Water lapped the bottom of the boards on top of the Oakley Reservoir spillway

A bulldozer fills a break in the diversion channel carrying water to Murtaugh Lake

Oakley flood canals finished, but leaking

By HAL BERTON
Times-News writer

OAKLEY — The rusty gates of a long-unused canal diversion opened Sunday morning to release flood waters from Oakley Reservoir into a 17-mile-long channel leading to the Snake River. Oakley Canal Co. officials hope the channel — completed late Saturday night after a frenzied four-day effort by hundreds of volunteers and contractors — can safely drain enough water from the runoff-swollen reservoir to eliminate the danger of downstream flooding. But by late Sunday, the new channel already was beginning to erode weak spots in its banks. At 9 p.m., county officials issued an appeal for volunteers to work twelve-hour shifts to shore up sagging banks less than a mile west of Oakley. On a brighter note, Earl Corless, a Bureau of Reclamation official who took hourly measurements of the reservoir level Sunday, said the rate of rise had begun slowing by late afternoon. "We're hoping for a leveling off tomorrow," said Corless as he crossed his fingers and glanced down at reservoir waters lapping within 23 inches of the lip of a newly-raised rock spillway. Although the diversion is complete, Burley Police continue to prepare for the worst. On Saturday, they leased a "worst case" evac. on scenario for the town that could be put into action if the Oakley Dam should collapse. But Burley Police Chief Leman Mesley reaffirmed Sunday that the dam was in good shape. He said there was only a "slight possibility" of a breach. Northwest of the reservoir, problems cropped up along a second diversion channel completed earlier in the week that flows into Murtaugh Lake. Throughout the weekend, farmers and volunteers responding to a radio appeal for help fought to beef up the channel's banks, which are crumbling under

Gunmen escape Jerome jail, steal weapons

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

JEROME — Two Washington convicts who kept frightened area residents behind locked doors last March after a running gun battle with police were at large again Sunday after escaping from the Jerome County Jail. Sheriff Eliza Hall said Timothy Algers, 25 and Jeffrey Morris, 26, made a successful break for freedom in the early morning hours Sunday. Hall said the pair, housed in the same cell while awaiting further court appearances, apparently fled about 4 a.m. Sunday. They were discovered missing about 7:30 a.m. when officers made a routine check of the jail area. Sunday evening, Hall said the pair is believed to have stolen three different vehicles and were armed and traveling west in a stolen pickup truck — possibly trying to return to familiar areas in Washington. Hall said the two somehow blocked their cell door from closing completely after it had been opened for feeding or to allow one of them to go to the restroom. The jail cells are opened and closed electronically from outside the cell area. This allowed them access to a walkway between the cell blocks. From there, they got into a "cat-walk" area along the outside wall of the building by means of a door that was somehow left unlocked — probably after cleaning Saturday. Hall explained that in the cat-walk area there is a tall narrow window — five to six feet high — that lets light into the jail. It is covered by unbreakable plastic. "They disassembled two near-by smoke alarms," Hall said, "and then used what may have been a radio antenna wire and some plastic knives and forks to start a fire." The sheriff said the pair used magazines and other papers to fuel the fire and succeeded in burning a hole in the plastic window, thereby working it loose. "Why the door into the cat-walk was open, we don't know," he said. "I don't have a 24-hour jailer and after hours the deputies walk through and check to see the prisoners are there and all right, but they don't go back into the cat walk behind the cell area. One of my main orders is that this door — kept locked, but it locks by key," he said. Officers believe the men left Jerome in a stolen 1975 Mercury sedan. The car was not reported stolen until later Sunday morning, which further delayed the manhunt. Hall said the pair had about five hours before the stolen car was reported and a description furnished to officers in Idaho and adjoining areas. At Mountain Home a Jeep was taken near where the car was found just off the freeway. The Jeep was recovered in Caldwell where a burglary and theft of a pickup truck occurred sometime between 9 a.m. and noon. Hall said a rifle and pistol and some clothing were taken from the home where the pickup truck was reported stolen. When the escapees left Jerome's jail, they were barefoot — as they have been since entering the Jerome Jail — and were wearing prison coveralls. However, Hall said, one pair of their cells they were able to find a pair of grey prison coveralls which they cut in half. Apparently, he said, one left wearing a grey top with the regular orange trousers, and the other with an orange top and grey trousers. Hall, who faces re-election Tuesday against a hard driving campaign of his opponent Larry Gold of Hazelton, said he didn't expect the escape to help his cause. "I may as well admit it," he said. "It's my jail, so I have to take the responsibility. However, I can't sit down at the jail 24 hours a day." Hall said his jailer works eight hours a day and is not on duty during weekend. He said his budget won't support a fulltime jailer although he has asked for such a system for some time. "This is the first escape from our jail since

Israeli airplanes bomb close to Syria

By MONA ZIADÉ

BEIRUT, Lebanon — Israeli warplanes bombed and strafed targets in eastern Lebanon less than two miles from the Syrian border on Sunday and Israel said its pilots scored direct hits on a "terrorist base" for pro-Iranian Muslim extremists. One Muslim was reported killed. Beirut radio stations said the jets attacked positions around the villages of Janta, Delir al-Ghazal and Reit in the eastern Bekaa Valley, about 1.2 miles from Syria. The area, which is occupied by Syrian troops, houses camps of Iranian Revolutionary Guards who came to Lebanon in 1982 to fight on the side of Palestinian guerrillas against Israeli occupation forces in south Lebanon. The Israeli military command in Tel Aviv said the target was a terrorist base near Janta. It said the pilots scored direct hits on buildings that served as a staging area for attacks, but did not say what group controlled the base. All planes returned safely, the command said. Lebanese security sources and the Christian Voice of Lebanon radio station said a camp occupied by militiamen of Hezbollah was hit. Hezbollah — Party of God in Arabic — is made up of Lebanese Shiite Muslim fundamentalists who have been trained and armed by the Iranian Revolutionary Guards. One of the militiamen was killed, said the

Two hours earlier, at noon, an Israeli soldier was wounded in a grenade attack on an Israeli patrol in Sliem, a Lebanese port city 25 miles south of Beirut. Witnesses said Israeli soldiers opened fire at random immediately after the grenade struck. Israeli radio said one man was killed. Witnesses identified the man as a Lebanese civilian, Samir Ahmed, and said 11 other Lebanese were wounded. Reporters who arrived moments later saw an Israeli soldier with a bandage on his face and two wounded Lebanese. — Israel has occupied south Lebanon since invading in June 1982 to drive Palestinian guerrillas from its northern border. Syria occupied eastern and northern Lebanon when it moved in at the end of the 1975-76 Lebanese civil war. Syrian President Hafez Assad was quoted Sunday in the London newspaper The Observer as saying that he would be prepared for Lebanon to give Israel security guarantees for its northern border on condition that Israeli troops leave Lebanon. In and around Beirut, police reported sporadic sniper exchanges Sunday. Politicians attributed the absence of any major gun battles to a meeting Saturday night between Walid Jumblatt, the Syrian-backed leader of Lebanon's Druse militia, and Padi Frem, commander of the rightist Christian Lebanese Forces militia, which is allied with Israel.

Demo hopefuls argue best running mates

By CAROLE FELDMAN
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — George McGovern, a dropout in the race for the Democratic presidential nomination, said Sunday that a Walter Mondale-Gary Hart ticket would be the "quickest way to heal" the animosity of the campaign, but Mondale refused to commit himself. Hart, meanwhile, said he would consider the Rev. Jesse Jackson, the third Democratic presidential candidate, as a possible running mate if he changed his views on the Middle East. "I think he has earned the right to be considered as a party leader, including vice president," Hart said on a California interview show. But he added, "I think for Rev. Jackson to be considered with me he would have to change his positions on the Middle East." Mondale declined to comment on prospective running mates. "I think it's presumptuous to pick a vice president now," the former vice president said, although he stated unequivocally that he will get enough delegates to win the nomination. Jackson delivered the commencement speech at Morehouse College in Atlanta, where he said he would have difficulty supporting any candidate who does not favor large increases in job-training programs for young people. "Our youth is not fighting for welfare; they need jobs," Jackson said. The latest Associated Press tabulation shows Mondale with 1,630.05 delegates to Hart's 884.75 and Jackson's 296.2. A total of 1,967 are needed for nomination. Mondale said he is not excluding anyone as a possible running mate. He said there were "substantial differences" between himself and Hart, but that they were not irreconcilable. Hart said he and Jackson had conflicting positions on the Middle East, but did not elaborate. However, the two generally disagree on whether the United States should recognize the Palestine Liberation Organization, as well as on U.S. support of Arab countries vis-a-vis Israel. "My positions are different than his, there are fairly strong differences," Hart said. "Clearly to be a vice president you have to line up with the president's policies."

India riot death toll rising

BOMBAY, India (AP) — Army troops were sent into Bombay early Monday to quell Hindu-Muslim rioting that has killed at least 83 people, injured more than 200 and left thousands homeless in four days of bloodshed.

"Our forces were getting tired and we needed more men. The situation is very tense," said police spokesman P.M. Sawant.

He said more than 1,200 people have been arrested. Police, with orders to shoot law-breakers on sight, killed six rioters and wounded five in Bombay's northeast Govandi section Sunday. Officials said mobs set fire to shops, homes and vehicles and hurled stones at trains and police.

Prime Minister Indira Gandhi sent Home Affairs Minister Prakash C. Sethi to the riot-ravaged city of Bhiwandi, 35 miles northeast of Bombay, where more than 1,200 buildings were burned.

Duarte frustrated by Congress

WASHINGTON (AP) — El Salvador's President-elect Jose Napoleon Duarte said Sunday he is convinced that, after 50 years of dominating the country's political life, the Salvadoran armed forces are now ready to take orders from a civilian leadership.

But Duarte, who takes office next month, said the military's policy of non-interference in the Salvadoran election process demonstrates its changed attitude.

Duarte, who arrived in Washington on Saturday night for talks with President Reagan on Monday and congressional leaders on Tuesday, expressed frustration over congressional resistance to military aid requests for El Salvador.

Burt Reynolds enters hospital

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — Actor Burt Reynolds passed out in his hotel room with pain from a kidney stone and was forced to miss the opening of his new restaurant here, his manager said.

"The pain was very severe — he passed out —" said manager David Gershenson. "He said he'd never been in so much pain in his life."

Reynolds, 48, was flying Sunday to Los Angeles where he will be tested "to determine the size of the kidney stone and where it is to start treating it," Gershenson said.

Reynolds and his companion, actress Lori Anderson, arrived here from Los Angeles on Saturday afternoon for the opening of the new restaurant, Burt and Jack's. Reynolds also owns the Burt Reynolds Diner Theater in Jupiter.

The actor, who had been suffering from a kidney infection for five days, was running a high fever, Gershenson said. He passed out about an hour before the scheduled opening and a doctor was called to Reynolds' room at the Pier 66 hotel.

More kidnappings threatened

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — The leader of a Tamil separatist group that kidnapped an American couple in Sri Lanka said Sunday his Marxist rebels "will not hesitate to repeat the abduction if it became absolutely necessary."

The kidnapping of Stanley and Mary Allen was meant to warn the United States to stop all "direct and indirect" support of the Sri Lankan government and to focus world attention on the Tamil movement, K. Padmanabha said in a prepared statement issued in the Indian capital.

"We are not apologetic about the abduction," said Padmanabha, secretary-general of the Eelam People's Revolutionary Liberation Front.

Wayward baboon gets new try

DALLAS (AP) — A wayward baboon at the Dallas Zoo is getting another chance to prove he can be a proper father and quit killing his kids.

Home, the zoo's only male hamadryas baboon, was blamed in solitary confinement last month after officials placed him in the care of six of the seven babies he had fathered in the past two years.

The deaths occurred at night, and all the victims were found with crushed skulls. Home, who frequently attacked adult baboons and had a reputation for being ill tempered, quickly became a prime suspect.

Instructor faces sex charges

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — The man who founded the Children's Theatre & School 20 years ago, then built it into a nationally acclaimed organization, will be arraigned Monday on charges he sexually abused three boys who were his students.

John Clark Donahue, 45, will appear in Hennepin County District Court and may enter a plea, attorneys said.

Donahue was arrested April 18. The following day, he was released on $150,000 bail and was suspended as artistic director at the school, which has 30 employees and a budget of $2.5 million.

Four other staff members of the school are being investigated for possible involvement, and they were suspended or took leave of absence after the director's arrest.

Patient's death causes probe

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The death of a patient given large doses of morphine at the UCLA Medical Center, which at first drew little attention, has come under the scrutiny of hospital and county authorities.

At issue are the legal and ethical limits of how far a physician can go in treating a patient when the treatment itself can shorten life.

The patient was a 55-year-old woman who had undergone a bone marrow transplant. On Jan. 23, she was unconscious and dying, drowning in her own blood.

The doctor, responding to the distress of the woman's family, injected multiple doses of morphine directly into her veins, stopping only when she quieted down. Within a few minutes of the last injection, the woman was dead.

the erosive forces of the silt-flowing water.

Carl Vantassell, a Burley area farmer, said a stretch of channel bordering his farmland began to breach late Saturday afternoon, threatening to flood out his fields and dairy barn.

"Within 30 minutes after it started to breach, we had 30 farmers out here with tractors and backhoes to help," Vantassell said late Sunday as the dike repair neared completion. "You can't believe the cooperation we've had."

A few miles up the channel from the Vantassell work crew, a group of volunteers tried to repair a bank stretch inaccessible to heavy equipment.

The volunteers formed a human chain and dumped rip-rap and sandbags along a water-worn bank. Suddenly they stopped what they were doing and raced to their vehicles to move upstream where the channel had jumped its banks completely.

The erosion problems at the second diversion channel forced officials to reduce the canal's inflow and increased the flows into the new diversion channel.

By Sunday afternoon, a muddy river flowed down the new channel on its way to the Snake River. As the water passed the outskirts of Oakley, spectators gathered to watch, speculating on whether the flows would be great enough to prevent flooding.

Corless said his measurements indicated the new outflows had slowed the reservoir's rise considerably. But he cautioned that inflows could again increase when the effect of Saturday's warm weather is felt.

A National Weather Service hydrologist predicted Sunday evening that the reservoir could overflow through its spillway as early as Wednesday.

Corless said the dam is under increased pressure because of the high water level, but state dam inspectors report only routine seepage through and around its rock-and-concrete structure.

Mesley said the city evacuation plan was "something that could have been drawn up three months ago," and is not related to an increased danger of a dam breach.

If the dam should go, a series of three siren blasts — repeated three times — would alert Burley residents to the need for an immediate evacuation of the town. Residents north of Main Street at the time of the signal should evacuate across the Paul bridge. Residents south of 16th Street should seek higher ground to the east. Those south of 21st Street should head toward Declo. All travel on the exit routes would be one-way.

Burley nursing homes also have developed an evacuation plan, with city churches taking responsibility for evacuation.

1975 when it first went into use. About two weeks after we began using it, we lost a prisoner," Hall added.

Morris and Alger were waiting trial on charges of assault with intent to commit a serious felony — murder, in the shooting and wounding of one Twin Falls police officer and firing shots at a second. They also have a record of several escapes from jails and prisons in the northwest.

Morris was captured on a dairy farm in Jerome County March 21 after the close of a chase by Jerome and Twin Falls area officers in which Larry Strolberg, Twin Falls officer, suffered a superficial head wound when a bullet skimmed across the top of his scalp as he pursued the car in which Albers and Morris were fleeing. Twin Falls Police Sgt. Robert Hodge first attempted to stop the two after becoming suspicious of their actions near a Twin Falls drug store.

Both hold records of armed robberies in Washington and Nevada. Morris is also an escapee from McVell Island prison in Washington and Alger was on parole from prison in Washington.

When officers attempted to stop the pair last March, they took off at a high rate of speed, shot out the rear window of their vehicle and fired at pursuing officers with a machine gun.

Their vehicle left Interstate 84 near Jerome and both men took off on foot. Jerome was caught at the scene and a two-day manhunt of the farm and desert area of Jerome County followed before Alger was taken into custody. He was captured on a rock ledge of Snake River Canyon after he fell while climbing to escape as officers closed in around him.

Neutrals hike military presence in gulf

By ALY MAHMOUD
The Associated Press

MANAMA, Bahrain — Oil-rich countries of the Persian Gulf region have increased their military surveillance and started diplomatic efforts to prevent further attacks on their oil tankers, diplomatic sources said Sunday.

Arab and Western diplomats said Kuwait and Saudi Arabia were sending reconnaissance planes over oil tanker routes south of the Iraq-Iran war zone. At least five Kuwaiti and Saudi tankers have been damaged by attacks since April 25.

The United Arab Emirates scheduled naval maneuvers for Monday and Tuesday in its territorial waters and advised commercial ships and fishermen to stay away from the area. Kuwait's defense minister, Sheikh Salem al-Sabah, warned Iran in a prepared statement that his government would defend its territorial waters at any expense.

He said Kuwait had intensified its defense coordination with other nations in the Gulf Cooperation Council — Saudi Arabia, the United Arab Emirates, Bahrain, Qatar and Oman — to ward off aggression.

The Kuwait minister said his country "has a military strategy and Hawk missile batteries installed... to deter any aggression on our territory."

Iraq has been attacking ships for months in a war-zone it declared around Iranian ports. U.S. officials said last week Iran apparently has begun retaliating by attacking Arab shipping.

Kuwait and Saudi Arabia blame Iran for the three most recent tanker attacks, which occurred close to their shores and far from the Iraqi-declared war zone. Iran has denied it was responsible.

The foreign ministers of the 21-nation Arab League met in Tunis on Saturday and denounced what they called aggression by Iran against Iraq and against gulf shipping. Iraq is a member of the Arab League. Iran is a Persian, not an Arab, nation.

The ministers recalled that under the Arab League charter, aggression against any Arab nation "is considered an aggression against all other Arab nations." They called on Iran to comply with U.N. resolutions calling for an end to the war.

Syria and Libya, the only Arab nations supporting Iran, refused to go along with the resolution denouncing Iran. Kuwait and Saudi Arabia are reliably reported to have given Iraq billions of dollars in aid.

Idaho falconers caught in a classic dilemma

By QUANE KENYON
AP Capital Writer

BOISE — Idaho falconers, the people who enjoy training and working with graceful birds of prey, are caught in a classic dilemma.

Many feel it's wrong to buy a bird of prey. But they'd like a new state law allowing it, because in the long run, it will improve and protect the species.

"Let us prove ourselves," said Jesse Woody,

Boise, spokesman for the Idaho Falconers Association.

It's always been against the law to "trade, barter or sell" birds of prey. The only way to get one has been to obtain a federal permit and go into the wild and try to capture one.

But last year, the federal government adopted a law allowing the sale of domestically produced birds of prey, under strict licensing and supervision.

Woody said Idahoans would like the same law.

No formal proposals went before the Fish and Game Commission, but members indicated they'd consider the matter later.

Woody said he personally has felt the birds shouldn't be sold, and he probably never will buy one. But in the long run, allowing domestic sales will promote research into birds of prey, could result in improved species and could relieve pressure on wild birds.

Morton Nelson, the Boise resident who has gained a worldwide reputation for his work with birds of prey, echoed Woody's feelings.

Toole's case raises awareness of serial killers

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — The case of a drifter who claims to have killed 6-year-old Adam Walsh and hundreds of other people may lead to better police procedures in investigations of serial murderers, authorities say.

Ottis Elwood Toole, 37, was sentenced to death Friday for setting a 1982 fire that killed George Sonnenberg, 64, a Jacksonville rooming house resident. He also has been charged with at least nine other slayings in Texas, Louisiana and Colorado.

Toole's accomplice, Henry Lee Lucas, 47, also claims responsibility for hundreds of murders around the country. Lucas has been charged with 18 murders and has been convicted in three slayings in Texas. He has drawn sentences of 75 years, life in prison and death.

Last week, Toole once again claimed to have decapitated Adam Walsh, a claim he first made, but retracted, last October.

This time, the part-time maintenance worker told the Florida Times-Union that he burned the child's body and scattered his remains in a Jacksonville dump.

Toole said he lured the boy out of a Hollywood shopping mall in July 1981 with promises of candy and toys.

Two weeks after Adam disappeared, his head was discovered in a canal near Vero Beach. His body was never found, but his death inspired a federal law on missing children and a television movie.

Hostages return to family

STOW, Ohio (AP) — An Ohio couple held captive in Sri Lanka for five days spent a quiet Sunday with relatives after a joyous homecoming the previous day, venturing out only to attend a Roman Catholic Mass and have breakfast.

Stanley and Mary Allen returned to their town in northeastern Ohio on Saturday night after being freed from captivity in the island nation off the coast of India.

"We just all went out to church, then went out to breakfast and now we're just sitting around talking,"

Dennis Freshwaters of Cape Coral, Fla.; Mrs. Allen's brother-in-law, said Sunday.

The gathering was at the home of Mary's parents, Harley and Katherine Daymon. Mrs. Allen's six brothers and sisters came from as far as California for the reunion.

The Allens were abducted May 10 from their home in Jaffna, Sri Lanka. An extremist group of Tamil separatists claimed responsibility and at first demanded a ransom of $2 million and the release of 20 "political prisoners."

Americans getting older

WASHINGTON (AP) — Americans are older than ever.

Their median age rose to a record 30.6 years as of 1982, the Census Bureau reported in a Population Profile of the nation released Sunday.

The aging of the post-war baby boom generation pushed the national median past the previous high of 30.3, set in 1952.

The report also showed that the proportion of blacks living in central cities is declining for the first time, most women in their early 20s are single and the number of people over 65 is rising rapidly.

The median age — meaning half the people are older and half younger — climbed from 27 to 30 between 1970 and 1980, and has continued to rise as the baby boom generation matures, the bureau reported.

Competent counsel is important right

If you're convicted of a crime because your attorney failed to call the one witness who could prove that you were 20 miles away when the dirty deed was done, can you win an appeal? ...

Two cases were decided dealing with the question of incompetence of counsel. The common question presented was whether an attorney's performance was so inadequate that the defendant was, for practical purposes, denied the effective assistance of counsel guaranteed by the Sixth Amendment.

A Florida case decided on the same day was more difficult because it resulted in a death penalty. Here, an experienced criminal lawyer was appointed to represent the defendant.

The standard established in these cases for reviewing attorney competence is a reasonable one. Cases will not be overturned if an advocate has provided "reasonably effective assistance" and if any errors would not have changed the outcome of the case.

Education to dominate 1985 session

BOISE - Educational issues are likely to key the next session of the Idaho Legislature. And that's drawn a large field of candidates with direct connections to education, including teachers, spouses of teachers, administrators or retired educators.

More than 20 candidates with direct education links dot the field of candidates for the 121 legislative seats. And in one race, the most crowded in the Tuesday primary, two of the four candidates are educators.

Thomas Kershaw of Sugar City is one of four Democrats running for the House seat being vacated by Mel Hammond of Rexburg, former House minority leader.

Kershaw is superintendent of the Sugar-Salem School District. And an opponent is Darrell H. Moss of Sugar City, retired school teacher and principal.

The other two candidates are from Rexburg, Roger Hoopes and Keith Larsen. Kershaw, former Ammon mayor, says he felt this would be a good time to run for the seat, with no incumbent.

"I've had a lot of dealings with the Legislature," he said. "I think there is a great deal of concern about following through with the educational reform matters - and I hope to have some input," he says.

Education takes more than two-thirds of the state general tax revenue. And battles over public school and college funding usually key all the other budget decisions.

Last session was no exception. And some of the carry-over issues loom big in the next session. Early in the last session, the House passed the

Quane Kenyon

"educational improvement" act. It called upon school districts to start some sort of "career ladder" systems, rewarding teachers who take on extra responsibilities, perform well or otherwise distinguish themselves.

It also appropriated $20.3 million to boost teacher salaries. That was supposed to erase about 60 percent of the difference between Idaho average teacher salaries and the national average.

That bill passed the House early in the session, but was held hostage in the Senate for about two months while Republican leaders of the Legislature tried to drum up support to cut the appropriation or stretch the increases over several years.

The Senate finally passed the bill in the waning hours of the session and it was signed into law.

Next session, another $13 million will be needed to complete the teacher salary "catch up" process.

It's estimated it will cost about $10 million to put the "career ladder" systems into effect, giving extra pay to outstanding teachers.

Jerry Evans, state superintendent of public instruction, thinks that's where the battles will be fought, not over the "career ladder" concept.

"The basic structure of the public schools" for the Legislature's education reform proposals, he said. "The difficulty will be in the funding for it." Evans said the Legislature also will have to come up with the $13 million for salary increases, and that won't be easy.

Daryl Sallaz, a teacher at Boise's Fairmont Junior High School, is one of two former Idaho Education Association presidents running for the Legislature.

"The other is an incumbent, Rep. Linda S. Dewey of Pocatello, who was appointed to fill a vacancy and is running on her own for the first time. Although he's concerned about education issues, Sallaz says he's running because of other matters, such as protecting the state's Land-Use Planning Act.

"One of my major interests is environmental concerns," he said. Idaho's 1975 planning-zoning law has been under attack several times. "It would be unfortunate to lose what planning we have," he said. "I favor a reasonable approach to land utilization."

Sallaz served in the Legislature in the 1970s, but vacated his seat for an unsuccessful bid for the Democratic nomination for state superintendent.

He noted that education takes 70 percent of all state general tax revenues.

"A lot of candidates are quite concerned with education," he said. And if you look in sons or daughters who are teachers, or other close family members, "There probably are very few candidates who do not have some connection to education," he said.

Quane Kenyon covers Idaho politics and state government for The Associated Press.

The meaning of the mural

Years ago while in the main library (500 So. 200 E.) in Lakeland, I saw a mural on the north wall of the main room. For years I've pondered its meaning. When I called the artist, he was very reluctant to give his interpretation of it. Why? Who knows.

Here is my interpretation:
The Choice Eternal

The choice is thine of Pilgrim Aeterna,
To grovel in earthy abodes
Or, acting aright in every way
Strive to live as the Masters say.
That, some day, from ashes of self-sacrifice
Thou, as Phoenix, shall heavenward rise
A fitting abode for the living God.

To make the choice to leave behind
The muck and murk of earthy ways
That make the hells that none desire.

Full permit thyself to Godward aspire
And let the light of that Eterne Fire
Guide thee along Life's way, that
To Heaven thou mayest retire.

If you think that despite it's few archaic phrases it is worth passing on, please print this. Thanks for reading, pondering the meaning (assumed) of the artist's mural.

Boycott reflects worsening state of U.S.-Soviet relations

To be properly understood, the Soviet decision not to participate in the Los Angeles Olympic Games must be seen in the context of the Kremlin's hardening view of American-Soviet relations.

Certainly the Soviets are concerned about possible defections. They still resent the American boycott of the Moscow Olympic Games. And they deeply distrust the Reagan administration, and are unwilling to do anything that might enhance President Reagan's prestige. But the decision not to attend the Games reflects more than these factors.

The Kremlin is engaged in a thorough re-evaluation of the future of U.S.-Soviet relations. The question has been raised as to whether it is possible to have a "normal" relationship with the United States under any conditions. The Soviets are asking themselves whether U.S. anti-Soviet attitudes are so entrenched that no fundamental change is possible.

Fred Warner Neal

This is something new: Before, no matter how bad relations were, the Soviet view was that improvement was possible, and sooner or later likely to come about; it is no longer clear that this view prevails. One result of this re-evaluation is a generally tougher line in relations with the United States.

While the administration's harsh anti-Soviet attitude is the immediate focus of Soviet concern, it is important to understand that Moscow's new attitude goes beyond this. There is acute disillusionment with what the Kremlin views as nine years, more or less, of increasingly hostile American attitudes. The entire history of U.S.-Soviet relations is being re-examined: Even the premises of détente are being questioned.

The key factor seems to be the Soviet Union's insistence that it be treated as an absolutely equal superpower in all respects. As the Kremlin sees it, the problem is not so much that there may be differences about what constitutes equality as a perceived U.S. refusal to accept the Soviet Union under any conditions. Moscow regards that as both unacceptable and threatening.

Although by no means a major issue in the overall context, the problems that arose over the arrangements for the Olympics were viewed increasingly by the Soviets as a denial of equal status: the indignity of not having normal access to the United States by air and ship; the fear that their representatives might be denied visas; the specter of mass demonstrations against their athletes, encouraged by an administration that they believe was bent on humiliating them.

In addition, with the Los Angeles Games so obviously ruled by monetary considerations at every turn, the Soviets feel that they were being asked to join in celebrating a capitalist triumph and, moreover, to help provide a tribune for Reagan, their leading American antagonist.

An age-old response by Russians to perceived threats, and to rebuffs from the West, is to withdraw into themselves - circling the wagons, so to speak - while rejecting the outside world and trusting no one. That process has been apparent in Moscow for at least a year. How far it will go is not clear. But the decision not to take part in the Games is almost certainly a manifestation of the syndrome.

Would a different administration attitude toward Soviet participation have produced a different decision? If one can strain the imagination far enough to envision Reagan addressing warm words to Moscow, condemning the "Ban the Soviets" movement and opening American airports to Aeroflot, then, possibly, but Soviet distrust of Reagan is so deep and pervasive that it is doubtful that even such a lone word would have produced a different outcome.

Can anything be done to persuade the Soviets to change their minds? Although there is scant reason for optimism, it might not be impossible. If, for example, Mayor Tom Bradley could distance himself from anything connected with Washington and persuade the Soviets that the city would take full responsibility for security and other arrangements, Moscow might listen.

It could conceivably make a difference if a joint commission was proposed, with representatives from Los Angeles city government and the Soviet Olympic Committee, to handle certain problems. It would be an outside chance, but perhaps worth a try. Ultimately, however, the Soviet decision will reflect broader considerations than just the Olympic Games.

Fred Warner Neal is executive vice president of the American Committee for East-West Accord. This article first appeared in The Los Angeles Times.

Clouds begin forming in Reagan's clear election sky

WASHINGTON - On the surface, at least, President Reagan's chances of being re-elected appear to remain excellent.

Reagan continues to lead Democratic contenders Walter F. Mondale and Gary Hart when matched against them in the national polls.

Reagan seems particularly strong on the domestic front, and likely will remain so as long as the recovering economy does not falter significantly. Respected economists Charles Schultz and Walter Heller, though loyal Democrats, have forecast that the economy will hold, in Reagan's favor, at least through the Nov. 6 general election.

Yet the same national polls that show such excellent strength for Reagan continue to hold some clues that the president could yet run into difficulty if certain circumstances conspire against him.

Loye Miller Jr.

Particularly in the area of foreign affairs, these survey findings show a latent threat that clouds Reagan's otherwise bright political horizon.

"Historically, the conduct of foreign policy usually has helped an incumbent president running for re-election," says pollster Robert Teeter, a member of the Reagan-Bush strategic inner circle. "But that is much more uncertain in this election."

Another national pollster, Louis Harris, provided one of the latest illustrations of this in a new survey released late last week.

Some 1,100 "likely voters" sampled nationwide were asked to give their general reaction to Reagan. Fifty-nine percent gave a "positive" reaction, while 36 percent gave a "negative" reaction and 5 percent were not sure.

But when asked whether Reagan's handling of the presidency in general inspired their confidence, these same voters split virtually evenly - 49 percent answering positively and 47 percent negatively.

And when asked their judgment on Reagan's handling of foreign policy, the verdict was a resounding 59 percent negative to 38 percent positive.

This clearly was yet another indication that Americans approve of Reagan personally - they simply want to like him - much more than they approve of his policies and his conduct of the government.

Harris' poll was taken from May 10 to May 13, to test the public reaction to Reagan's May 9 nationally televised speech urging public support for his policies in Central America. Harris reported, "Reagan's rating on handling the situation in Central America is 61-33 percent negative after speech; was 62-31 percent before speech" - virtually no change.

By similarly lopsided margins, the Harris poll found the voters strongly opposed to a different every facet of Reagan's efforts in Central America, including the aid he is seeking for the embattled government in El Salvador and the rebels in Nicaragua.

Noting that Reagan has been having at least limited success pushing these policies in Congress, Harris commented: "Reagan has been a better lobbyist (with Congress) than communicator (with the public) on Central America. The people are frightened that we are going to go into a war there."

Harris observed that Reagan also gets low marks from the voters on the other two most-sensitive foreign policy issues, failure of his efforts in the Middle East and the collapse of arms reduction talks with the Soviet Union.

"The question is whether all this will become a critical mass" during the campaign and finally "begin to stick to what they call his 'Reagan-coated presidency,' the pollster said. Teeter noted that some aspect of foreign policy, usually a difficult one, "has become an important issue in the top of the public's mind every four or five months during the Reagan presidency. El Salvador has been at the top three different times, the Middle East twice."

He and other Reagan strategists worry that a nagging recurrence of one or two more of these crisis-like concerns could yet threaten Reagan's chances to win in November.

Loye Miller Jr. writes from Washington for Newhouse News Service.

Drifter who killed nine, dies in Alaska

By PAUL JENKINS
The Associated Press

MANLEY HOT SPRINGS, Alaska — A "scraggly, weird" drifter killed nine people, including a state trooper in a helicopter, before being gunned down in a shootout near this tiny fishing village, police said.

Troopers armed with automatic rifles used two helicopters to close in Saturday afternoon on Michael C. Silka, 25, at a slough off the Zititana River. The heavily armed man fatally shot a trooper in one of the aircraft before he was killed, investigators said.

"This man has killed eight people since April 28, nine with our state trooper," said Sam Barnard, a homicide investigator with the troopers in Fairbanks.

Six Manley residents, including a pregnant woman and a 2-year-old child, were believed killed on Thursday, but none of the bodies have been recovered.

The only sign of the slaughter was a blood-spattered boat landing, three miles down a tree-lined lane from this mining town of about 80 people in the Tanana Valley, 90 miles west of Fairbanks.

For more than a day, most of the villagers had no idea their friends and neighbors were missing. For questioning in the suspected April 28 murder of Roger Culp of Fairbanks, whose body has not been found, Culp and Silka had been neighbors.

"We were actively investigating that homicide when we learned he was here," Barnard said.

Residents said the bearded Silka arrived about a week ago in a brown sedan with a canoe lashed to its roof, and camped by the river.

"He was scraggly and he acted really weird. He acted real crazy," said Patricia Lee, who, with her husband, Bob, operates the Manley Roadhouse. "He talked about how he could smell clams through the dirt. This is the end of the road. All the weirdos end up here."

Troopers speculated Silka killed the six townspeople Thursday and tossed their bodies in the swirling, mud-choked Tanana River before fleeing upstream. Troopers have not identified the victims.

Question of pre-impact suffering goes to trial

CHICAGO (AP) — Five years after 273 people died in the nation's worst air disaster, a jury will decide whether money should be awarded for suffering endured by the victims just before the jumbo jet crashed.

Relatives of Stephen and Carolyn Sutton, who boarded the ill-fated American Airlines DC-10 with their two young sons at Chicago on May 25, 1979, will ask a U.S. District Court jury for an as-yet unspecified amount of money for the emotional and physical distress suffered by the family in the final 31 seconds of the flight.

Jury selection begins Monday.

almost five years to the day after the DC-10, bound for Los Angeles, lost a wing engine at takeoff, banked sideways briefly and crashed in a ball of flame in a field near O'Hare International Airport.

The impact killed the 271 passengers and crew members and two people on the ground, and spawned more than 200 lawsuits.

The National Transportation Safety Board later determined that the probable cause of the crash was "maintenance-induced damage," a crack in the pylons securing the left engine that resulted in the engine tearing loose from its mounting. Without sufficient power, the plane never climbed higher than 500-600 feet. The Suttons, of suburban Wilmette, had planned to combine Stephen's business with a family vacation. They were headed for the American Booksellers Convention, and then on to Disneyland.

Lawyers for the couple's parents and siblings say the family members foresaw their fate in the 31 seconds between the moment the engine fell off and the moment the plane crashed.

Throughout the cabin, hearts raced, bodies shook and passengers became hysterical as they heard metal ripping, saw the engine fly by and felt the plane drop, attorneys for the surviving Suttons say.

They also contend that some passengers saw what the pilot saw because the view from a cockpit camera was shown on a monitor in the cabin during takeoff.

Psychiatrists and other doctors will be among the witnesses testifying in an attempt to show the Suttons' experienced emotional distress resulting in physical manifestations.

"It's a matter of expert opinion," said Robert J. Glenn, an attorney for the Suttons' relatives. "There are no survivors on the airplane who can tell how the others suffered."

Among the alleged physical problems were shock, muscle tremors, increased heart rate and sweating.

Comedian's cancer baffles

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Comedian Andy Kaufman died of a type of lung cancer that is fast-spreading and virtually unstoppable, even among non-smokers and the young, doctors say.

Typically, lung cancer strikes men and women more than 50 years old who have been smoking for many years. But researchers say at least a quarter of all lung cancer cases have been linked to other environmental factors, previous bouts of respiratory diseases or a genetic predisposition to the disease.

Kaufman, who was 35 and a non-smoker, suffered from one of the rarest and most malignant types of lung cancers, large-cell carcinoma, according to Cedars-Sinai Medical Center, where the offbeat comedian died last Wednesday. His disease had been diagnosed only five months previously.

Large-cell carcinoma affects about 10 percent of lung cancer patients. This tumor spreads rapidly from the lung to other vital organs and is unresponsive to radiation.

Chernenko's first days relive cold war

By ALISON SMALE
The Associated Press

MOSCOW — In Konstantin U. Chernenko's first 100 days as Soviet leader, Moscow has pulled out of the Los Angeles Olympics, launched its biggest offensive in Afghanistan in five years and silenced the major spokesman for the Soviet human rights movement, Andrei Sakharov.

The Soviets also scrapped a top-level visit to Peking and vowed it will not return to the Geneva arms control talks with the United States unless NATO removes new U.S.-made nuclear missiles deployed in Western Europe.

Clearly the Kremlin is in a tough mood. What is unclear is whether this is a policy dictated by Chernenko since he became Communist Party leader Feb. 13 or a result of independent action by the military, the foreign policy establishment or the security organs.

Observers of Kremlin affairs have theorized that the three factions may be acting from strength in their own spheres, with the 72-year-old Chernenko unable to rein them in.

One foreign diplomat cites as an example the treatment of Sakharov and his wife, Yelena Bonner.

Mrs. Bonner, Sakharov's last link to Westerners in Moscow, has reportedly been confined to the city of Gorky, like her husband, while authorities investigate her on charges of anti-Soviet slander.

Sakharov, on a hunger strike in a bid to gain his wife permission to travel abroad for medical treatment, was taken away from his home two weeks ago by authorities and has not been seen since, sources close to the family say.

The treatment of the couple is indicative of "a very strong move" by the KGB secret police with no apparent regard for any harm done to the Soviet image abroad, said the diplomat, who asked that he not be identified by name.

Soviets keep nuke threats

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet Defense Minister Dmitri F. Ustinov said Sunday that the Kremlin has increased the number of nuclear-armed submarines off American shores, as it vowed to do after NATO started deploying new missiles in Europe.

Ustinov said the Soviet Union could not ignore NATO's deployment of 572 new nuclear-tipped Pershing 2 and cruise missiles in Western Europe, which started late last year.

Marcos rebukes charge as more rioting erupts

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — President Ferdinand E. Marcos declared Sunday that he had never committed election fraud, and he said he was saddened by anti-government rioting that led police to fire into a crowd, killing one person and wounding 27.

"Now if we really had wanted to, we probably could have cheated," Marcos said in a nationally televised news conference, "but you know I've never cheated in my whole life in an election."

Marcos said opposition politicians were to blame for Saturday night riots by crowds who claimed the government committed vote fraud. Portions of a crowd of 10,000 people tried to storm the provincial capitol building in Cebu City, 200 miles south of Manila.

Marcos said the riots "may somehow blur the image of our free democracy—that we have presented to the world holding free, honest elections where the untrammelled will of the people is allowed to be expressed."

Constabulary Maj. Alberto Olario acknowledged that his troops fired at rioters who were hurling bricks and fire bombs. He said the troops aimed for rioters' legs, "to maim" but not kill.

Police said one person was killed, 27 were wounded and 18 were arrested.

Arab leaders denounce Iran

TUNIS, Tunisia (AP) — The foreign ministers of the Arab nations overruled Syrian and Libyan dissent Sunday and accuse Iran of aggression in its war against Iraq and its reported attacks against Arab shipping in the Persian Gulf.

Saudi Foreign Minister Saud al-Faisal told reporters the Arab states may have to "take action" to end the crisis in the gulf, a major source of oil for Western Europe and Japan. All 21 Arab League members were represented at the one-day meeting.

At least 20 ships have been damaged by attacks in the gulf since January, including five Kuwaiti and Saudi oil tankers in less than a month.

The resolution, approved by a majority vote, did not mention the attacks by league member Iraq on oil tankers around Iran's Kharg Island. Conference sources, speaking on condition they not be identified, said the distinction was made because the Iraqi attacks took place in a previously declared and well-defined war zone while recent alleged Iranian attacks came without warning in international sea lanes and in territorial waters of other gulf states.

Activist set to fight wilderness bill

IDAHO FALLS (AP) — Committing himself to making Idaho known more for its wilderness than its potatoes, the new point man in the conservationists' drive for more wilderness areas says the goal is to either expand or completely kill the congressional delegation's plan to preserve only another 526,000 acres.

"The balance is not there. There has been no effort at compromise" on the part of the congressional delegation, said Craig Gehrke, a member of the Idaho Conservation League executive board and the new wilderness coordinator for the Idaho Wildlands Defense Coalition.

The state already has 3.8 million acres preserved as wilderness, but at issue is what to do with another 8 million acres that have been under wilderness review.

While the congressional delegation wants to add just 526,000, calling its plan a balance between development and preservation, the coalition is calling for 3.4 million. Others have strongly criticized the delegation plan as well, calling it inadequate, and earlier this week the Fish and Game Commission formally endorsed a 1.8 million-acre wilderness plan.

Gehrke, who is organizing opposition to the delegation bill, conceded it will likely pass the Republican-dominated U.S. Senate, and he admitted that over there's a 50-50 chance that it will ultimately become law.

3,000 fruit trees killed during Idaho winter

BLACKFOOT (AP) — The severe Idaho winter has killed more than 3,000 fruit trees across the southern and eastern parts of the state, according to the University of Idaho Agricultural Research and Extension Center.

Four commercial orchards were completely wiped out in Bingham County as was the center's test orchard in Aberdeen, where hardiness of apple and plum varieties was under study.

"It'll be hard to evaluate the hard varieties," said Agricultural Agent Brian Finnigan. "I can't find anything that's still alive."

Finnigan blamed the destruction on an extremely frigid December following a relatively warm November.

Crippled girl wins reprieve

IDAHO FALLS (AP) — Federal immigration officials have delayed executing a deportation order against a crippled Mexican girl and her family, now living in Idaho Falls, until Congress considers special legislation making them permanent U.S. residents.

"I doubt anything's going to happen for a while," admitted Marvin Mohrman, district director for the Immigration and Naturalization Service.

The bill, introduced by Idaho Congressman George Hansen after the deportation controversy over Esmeralda Hernandez surfaced again earlier this year, will be taken up June 11 by the House Judiciary subcommittee on Immigration.

Should the panel reject the private immigration bill, however, the deportation order will likely be carried out. Otherwise, any deportation efforts will be dropped at least until next February.

Diet Pill Breakthrough

New Proven Diet Pill Gives Fast Weight Loss

Pill Works Without Dieting

SANTA BARBARA, CA (Exclusive) An amazing new diet pill has been developed that has proved remarkably effective. This fantastic pill allows you to lose 10-20-30 pounds and more — easily and quickly. Best of all, you can eat your favorite foods and still lose pound after pound starting from the very first day until you achieve your desired weight.

No Dieting Necessary

According to the manufacturer, the pill does all the work. There are NO special menus to follow, NO caloric counting, NO exercise and NO hunger pangs.

Nutri-Thin contains no drugs, caffeine or preservatives. Take the pill with a glass of water before each meal and the amazing combination of powerful ingredients is so effective that weight loss actually begins immediately.

Papain and Daily Vitamins

The unique and powerful blend of ingredients is what makes this pill so successful. Nutri-Thin contains Papain, the natural digestive enzyme of papaya. Papain works in the digestive system to aid and greatly accelerate the digestion of food you eat. It contains a diuretic to help eliminate bloating and puffiness, and in addition it is fortified with 100% of the recommended U.S. Government Daily Vitamin requirements necessary for health and energy.

Amazing Glucomannan

Nutri-Thin contains an effective amount of "Glucomannan," a natural dietary fiber used in Japan over 1500 years. Glucomannan expands in your stomach and gives you a full and satisfied feeling all day long. It increases metabolism and thus speeds up the burning of excess fat that will amaze you.

Results indicate a fast and easy weight loss for formerly overweight people who are now slim and attractive again.

SUBORDINATION

It'll hit you right where it hurts the most.

The old pocketbook.

The Idaho Public Utilities Commission has estimated that if Idaho Power's water rights on the Snake River are totally subordinated — as some land developers would like — the company's electric rates could rise by $54 million a year. An average of over $200 per year per customer.*

That's how much the IPUC thinks it would cost to replace the lost cheap hydropower with more expensive coal-fired generation. Irrigators would be hit especially hard by total subordination. The IPUC estimates rates for those customers might go up by more than 50%, which could threaten some family farms.

Idaho Power doesn't think that's fair. While we're doing everything we can to help the existing farmer protect his water rights (including signing a contract which subordinates our rights to those of existing farmers), we feel our ratepayers should not have to bear the huge financial burden of total subordination. A burden some people demand they bear alone.

Idaho Power does not stand alone in its opposition to the total subordination of its water rights. A lot of folks agree with us including: various chambers of commerce, Idaho Consumer Affairs, the Idaho Public Utilities Commission, the Idaho Wildlife Federation, the Idaho Conservation League, business interests, just about every newspaper in our service area and many private citizens.

They know that if subordination is successful, it will hurt even those who now support it.

*Based on 265,197 total business customers.

L.M. Boyd What's what

That ancient weapon known as the "mace" — an iron ball on a short chain with a handle — originally was a farmer's "breast". Peasants wielded it so devastatingly in their fights that the professional warriors adopted it, putting spikes in the ball to pierce armor. The old English called it "The Morning Star."

You own a dog? Or several maybe? In Texas lives an 80-year-old gentleman who has kept canines most of all his life. He now figures he has devoted 202 hours — about a month of workdays overall — to telling them to shut up and lie down.

Every President Harry Truman took his brisk stroll every morning, he always ate a banana.

OLD ZEALAND

Q. Everybody knows the whereabouts of New Zealand. But where's Old Zealand?

A. Somebody messed around with the spelling.

Original reference was to Zealand, now The Netherlands.

Q. What happens to the 4,000 letters mailed to President Reagan every day by youngsters under age 18?

A. They're sent to the Executive Office Building next to the White House. X-rayed, then relayed to staffers for handling.

Q. Where is it against the law for a woman to propose marriage to a man?

A. Whitesville, Del. Under an old statute, such a lady can be charged with disorderly conduct.

CAFE HOSTESS

The cafe hostess plays a key role in Japan's economy. The businessman over there relies on her. He never invites fellow executives to his home, but entertains them rather in the cafe of his choice, be it his own club or otherwise. He counts on the hostess to set it up properly.

Native American healer advocates burying hate

DEAR ABBY: Some time ago you had a letter from a woman who for many years thought she had a wonderful marriage. Then her husband died suddenly, and some evidence turned up that made her believe her husband had been having an affair with another woman. The poor widow then worked up an intense hatred for her husband's memory, making her bitter and miserable.

I have been practicing Native American medicine and healing for many years, and I know that most sicknesses begin in the head. Anger, jealousy, fear, resentment and bitterness — all emotional reactions create physical ailments: headaches, ulcers, heartaches, etc. I believe that certain types of cancer are caused by emotional stress.

I help people cure their sickness by having them go outside, dig a hole in the earth, lie down on their stomachs and speak all their angry, negative thoughts into the hole, cover it over with the dirt and leave it there. That way, they actually "bury" all the negative, stressful emotions within them that made them sick. It works, Abby.

—SUN BEAR IN SPOKANE

Abigail VanBuren Dear Abby

DEAR SUN BEAR: "Getting all the garbage out" is the basis for all healing. Indeed, it's the principle of psychoanalysis, which takes longer, and costs more.

DEAR ABBY: Why I can't claim authorship to this little verse; it's just my type:

My typist's away on vacation
My typist's away by the sea?
She left me to do all the typing
Of B.R. back my typist to me.
My typist is away in vacation
A fact you can easily see —
It's odd how these letters get mixed up.

Ubrine back my typist to me?
O Daxn! —

—SIGN ME FRUSTRATED

DEAR ABBY: Please warn people who use the newspapers' classified ads to give away free dogs and cats that many of these animals may wind up in pit bull dogfighting training sessions. Also suggest that they charge at least a nominal fee for the pets, and screen each potential owner.

Another good idea: Ask for visitation rights. If you are refused, you can suspect foul play. Some people "adopt" free pets, then turn around and sell them to research laboratories.

—ANIMAL LOVER

DEAR ABBY: I wish you would say something about husbands who take their wives out for dinner, then proceed to get overly familiar with the waitress. My husband does this frequently, and it spoils my dinner.

He always manages to engage the waitress in some kind of small talk that has nothing to do with the menu — complimenting her on her hair, her shape, her smile, etc. Some waitresses act pleased; others do not appreciate it.

This is one of the few complaints I have had about my husband throughout our 31-year marriage.

—DESERVES BETTER

DEAR DESERVES BETTER: It won't be easy to change a man's habits after 31 years, but you can try. Don't chastise or criticize him; use a more gentle and appealing approach.

Say, "George (or whatever his name is), when you get chummy with the waitress, it humiliates me. Please don't do it anymore."

If he claims he doesn't mean anything by it, repeat your little speech. And if he says he will "try" to overcome the habit, ask for permission to help him by giving him a small kick in the ankle should he "forget."

DEAR ABBY: If any of your readers have had upper arm plastic surgery, I hope they will write in and share the results because I am considering it.

I am a 64-year-old woman who would love to wear sleeveless dresses, but I am embarrassed to show my upper arms. The flesh just hangs and looks terrible.

The rest of my body is trim and firm. I'm a handicapped golfer and I'm in good shape physically, but no amount of exercise has firmed up these flabby upper arms.

Would plastic surgery help? I can't imagine tightening up that area without leaving some kind of scar — and, of course, I don't want scars on my arms.

Please let me know.

DEAR FLABBY IN FLORIDA: Another person's experience with plastic surgery may not apply to you. Much depends upon how you heal, how much elasticity remains in your skin, and how much "flab" must be eliminated in order to firm up your upper arms.

See a board-certified plastic surgeon and find out what is involved in this type of surgery. Ask the surgeon to let you see some of his work — then decide.

If you put off writing letters because you don't know what to say, get Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions." Send your name and address clearly printed with a check or money order for $2.50 (this includes postage) to: Abby, Letter Booklet, P.O. Box 38823, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.

Gooding youths perish in fiery Utah crash

By The Times-News and The Associated Press

NORTH SALT LAKE CITY, Utah — Three young Gooding residents — 21-year-old twin sisters and an 18-year-old high school senior — were among five persons killed Saturday in a fiery car-truck crash near North Salt Lake City.

All of the five were in a compact car that burst into flames after being crushed by a cattle truck on Interstate 15, authorities said.

It was the worst accident in Utah since April 1981, when six people died in a head-on collision at the mouth of Weber Canyon.

Douglas Ray Fisk was scheduled to graduate from high school this week in Gooding. He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Fisk of Gooding. Annette and Danette Ricks were the twin daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Dale Ricks of Gooding.

Police identified the other victims as Nancy Watson, 18, of Star and Yvonne M. Jorgensen, 20, of Redmond, Wash.

Relatives in Gooding said the accident occurred while the young people were enroute from Provo back home to Gooding. The Ricks women had been attending school there and Fisk had gone to Provo for the trip.

It took rescue workers and firefighters nearly three hours to extinguish the flames, remove the twisted and charred truck cab from the top of the car and recover the bodies of the victims, the Utah Highway Patrol reported.

The names of the victims were released Sunday by the UHP.

The accident kept the northbound lanes of I-15 closed at the Beck Street overpass here for several hours, while traffic in the south-bound lanes was bumper-to-bumper.

The driver of the cattle truck, William Wells, 67, of Plogree, Idaho, jumped from the burning rig and escaped serious injury. He was taken to a local hospital for observation shortly after the accident at 1:30 p.m. Saturday, said State Trooper Robert Coleman. The accident also killed about a dozen cattle on the truck and officers had to shoot two others because of the severity of their injuries, Coleman said. Officers and firefighters saved about three dozen more cattle, which later were picked up by another truck.

Coleman said no citations were issued in the accident, which occurred after traffic slowed near a construction site on the overpass.

Coleman said the compact vehicle carrying the five victims was struck in the rear by the cattle truck. The impact pushed the car ahead into a flatbed truck and the vehicle spun 180 degrees and flipped on its top.

He said the cattle truck then rammed over the top of the car, causing an explosion and fire.

Ken Nakalski of Clearfield, driver of the flatbed, said he had slowed almost to a stop near the construction site when he was struck in the rear by the car.

He said he then glanced up and saw a fireball, with some flames spewing from his trailer.

"I pulled forward to get out of the way and then I put it out myself," he said. "There was nothing I could do for the others."

Take that!

Explorer Scouts from all over the Magic Valley area put on a dazzling display of "offensive driving" Saturday at the Mindoka

County Fairgrounds in Rupert during the seventh annual Explorer Demolition Derby. Explorer scouts, who range in age between 16 and 20, came from as far away as Bliss and Raft River to take part in the event. About 48 cars competed to stay running the longest.

Area residents troubled by Latin America

By DAVID MOFFAT Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Though the struggle for freedom in Central America may seem far from the farms and fields of the Magic Valley, it was of central concern to about 35 people who gathered for a community forum at the College of Southern Idaho Friday night.

They came to listen to a panel consisting of Jerome pastor Bill Taylor, Filer minister Barbara Upp, Times-News Managing Editor Stephen Hartgen and Magic Valley Central America Task Force member Joan Huston.

And they brought their questions about U.S. Central America policy, which added spirit to the two-hour debate.

• Has the United States mistakenly become the prime agent of oppression in Central America, acting like a dinosaur whose brawn has outstripped its brain?

• Or is it "naive" to ignore a "full court press" by Soviet and Cuban agents?

• Can the United States coexist with revolutionary Central American populations whose only crime is to dream the same dream of self-determination and prosperity we know and cherish?

• Should our government step back and let the political chips fall where they may, or should it maintain its historic narrower definition of self-interest?

Given the lack of democratic institutions and the predominance of the military, how can the vicious cycle of repression and revolution be broken?

Taylor, who once received the National Catholic Press Award for articles on Latin America, was the most outspoken in opposition to current U.S. policy.

"How can we continue to stand there shaking hands with the devil?" he asked.

The United States historically has backed right-wing governments which maintain power by means of death squads, he said.

They perpetuate an economic system, which benefits U.S. concerns, but which has dispossessed the people to such an extent any act of self-assertion is viewed as subversion, he said.

He went to Central America in 1970 with a sense of superiority, believing he knew the answer.

What followed was the process of his own education, he said.

"As Idahoans we (too) hate the government. And they are friendly, or at least they are not supporting the local death squads," he said.

Under these conditions, the important question is not whether communist agents are at work in Central

Hailey firms slates industry magazine

By DAVE LEWIS Times-News writer

HAILEY — CommTek Publishing Co. of Hailey will publish its fifth magazine, dealing with the satellite television industry beginning next month.

The new magazine, VideoSat News, will target dealers in the home satellite and video industries and will premiere June 3 at the Consumer Electronics Show in Chicago.

The tabloid publication will attempt to bring together the satellite television and home video industries, two areas of home television viewing that have not yet combined, says the magazine's editor, Tom Woolf.

Woolf says the combination of video and satellite television among users is natural and CommTek is expecting it to be a future direction within the two industries.

"It's a logical extension and it will happen without us," he says.

Some video companies are moving into the area of satellite television, Woolf says, and most satellite equipment dealers are capable of understanding video electronic equipment.

"One of the primary functions we hope to fulfill in the industry is to show satellite dealers new avenues of profit," Woolf says.

The typical satellite television dealer now has slow periods of business, mainly because it is difficult to install equipment in the winter, he says.

VideoSat News hopes to fill that business gap by introducing the dealer to new types of equipment he can sell year round, Woolf says.

The magazine will, therefore, include new products the satellite dealer can add to his business in both industries that the consumer can take into his home, he says.

The June issue of the magazine will be available only at the Chicago show, which Woolf says is the largest of its kind and will include video and satellite equipment as well as other electronic gear. The next issue will come out in August and each month from then on.

Woolf hedges on predicting what the magazine's circulation may become, mainly because of the industry's phenomenal growth. In 1980, about 4,000 satellite systems were installed. In 1984, the industry anticipates about 600,000 new installations.

"I really don't know how large the universe is," he says. "The market's grown so fast that I don't think anybody can track it."

CommTek's first magazine was published in 1980 after the company was founded by David Wolford, who owned a local cable television company in Blaine County. SAT-Guide is now the largest publication targeted to cable operators whose programming is dominated by satellite transmission.

Three other publications have followed. Satellite Orbit came in June 1983. A monthly, it includes program listings and movie reviews. Its circulation is now over 100,000 and growing by 10,000 a month. Ad revenues were $5 million in 1983 and are projected to be at least $15 million in 1984.

In November, Satellite Orbit International started to reach consumers around the world.

Satellite Dealer began in September 1983 with the targeted market being distributors and manufacturers in the satellite television industry.

Public rights at odds with needs of fair trial

By ANNETTE CARY Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The press and the courts walk a delicate line between the public's right to know what happens in a courtroom and the right of those being tried to a fair hearing, panelists at a Saturday Sawtooth Press Club seminar agreed.

"From the court perspective there is every benefit to be gained by publicity," said Fifth District Judge Daniel Hurlbutt, after earlier discussing misunderstandings about the court system.

And he is reluctant to impose gag orders, to keep the press from reporting a trial because he does not believe it is his responsibility to edit in advance what the press covers. Yet, stories from above with front-page banner headlines to paragraph-length stories tucked on inside pages can cause problems that are not easily solved, he said.

A juror who hears about a trial before being asked to attend is not automatically disqualified, he said. The real issue is whether the juror has formed any conclusions before being impaneled.

But deciding if conclusions have yet been drawn can be difficult, said Blaine County Prosecutor Keith Roark. "Jurors don't always want to admit the extent to which publicity has affected them," he said. "We just don't know enough about the

Appealing to voters

Legislative contests highlight Jerome elections

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES Times-News writer

JEROME — Except for the Republican contest for the sheriff's nomination, the Jerome County primary election Tuesday has sparked little interest at the county level.

But at the state level, there will be six legislative district contests on the Tuesday ballot, with Jerome County native Sen. County Prosecutor Dennis Adamsoff, running for U.S. Congress against incumbent Republican George Hansen.

The lone county contest is between incumbent Sheriff Elia Hall and Jerome city police and school officer Larry Gold.

Gold has conducted a strong challenge to Hall, a veteran of 12 years in office. Gold is campaigning on an extensive background in law enforcement in California and New York, claiming to "do a better job" for the people of the county and promising more professionalism.

number of votes in the county on previous occasions, is standing on his record. He is better known than newcomer Gold who has lived in the county only since 1981, but Gold has mounted a more strenuous campaign effort.

Hall entered law enforcement in Buhl, serving with the police department there before joining the Jerome sheriff's office as a deputy and shortly after that becoming the sheriff.

"I have heard comments that voters believe I would serve only another two years and then retire," said Hall who is 58 years of age. "Nothing could be further from the truth. I would definitely complete the term (four years) and may run again after that."

He said in his administration he has upgraded the county jail with the help of federal grant money. Because it is qualified to house federal prisoners, Hall said, his department is able to add greatly to the county's income from a federal daily payments for housing illegal aliens and other federal prisoners housed in Jerome bring in about $100,000 per year. Add to that $17,000 a year from the city of Jerome for city prisoners and joint law enforcement facilities, $20,000 for civil papers plus about $9,000 to the sheriff's office for police protection in Eden and Hazelton and the income reaches in excess of $175,000 annually.

Hall said this income covers all but about $100,000 of his annual $288,000 budget.

Gold, 47, a police sergeant with the city of Jerome and the school diversion officer, resides in Eden. He has a 20-year career in law enforcement having worked as a police officer in New York City, and as a detective in Santa Barbara County's sheriff's office in Santa Barbara. One of his assignments in that capacity was full-time coverage of the Patty Hearst case.

Gold said while in New York, he worked for the Tuxedo City police department, a town about the size of Jerome.

Write-in candidates join race for commission

By DAVE LEWIS Times-News writer

HAILEY — Two Democratic write-in candidates have entered the race for two seats on the Blaine County Board of Commissioners, but the election still does not have any challenged contest in Tuesday's primary election.

Barbara Dargatz, a retired Hailey school teacher and administrator, and Tom Blanchard, a residential design specialist, have entered to challenge two incumbents seeking re-election.

Dargatz, 59, says she is running primarily because she didn't want to see incumbent Rupert House run unopposed for the two-year seat and wanted to give people a choice in the election. House's seat includes Hailey and the middle section of the county.

She was a teacher and principal in the Blaine County School District before retiring in 1981 and was Idaho Teacher of the Year in 1974.

A member of the Idaho Conservation League and Sierra Club, Dargatz says she is a strong proponent of land-use planning and conservation, far different from the conservative House.

She serves on the Blaine County and Hailey planning and zoning commissions.

Blanchard says he entered the race primarily to oppose the county's policies for river alterations. He is seeking the position held by Commissioner Robert Gardner, who is seeking re-election, that represents the southern portion of the county including Bellevue.

A resident of the Lower Broadford area west of Bellevue, he is a riverfront property homeowner along the Big Wood River who has vocally opposed the policies of the county and actions of his neighbors in handling high water in the river.

Blanchard, 42, says the county has not controlled alterations to the river and has approved almost all applications — for rip-rapping and other alterations.

"The basic record is that you can do anything you want with the river and get away with it," he says. "I'm not convinced that's the best way to handle it."

Gardner is finishing his first term on the commission. He ran as a Democrat two years ago, but switched parties this spring, citing his conservative outlook as the primary reason for the shift.

Only one other Blaine County race is contested, but not in the primary election.

Sheriff Dennis Haynes is seeking re-election after one term on the Republican ticket. The man he beat four years ago, Orville Drexler, a Democrat, is attempting to regain the position.

For two other county positions, only one person has filed to fill each.

Prosecutor Keith Roark is unopposed on the Democratic ticket and no Republicans have filed. For coroner, Russ Mikel, the acting coroner, is the only person interested in the job. He is a Republican.

Power line On the agenda

worker dies

BURLEY — A young Idaho Power Co. worker was electrocuted Saturday morning in remote Hidden Valley, southwest of Kinama, just inside Jerome County.

Cassia County Coroner Paul Young identified the victim as Robert Widman, 21, of Boise.

Widman was one of about eight men engaged in taking down a power line, Young said. He was working in the bucket of a power company boom truck while holding the ground wire in his hand. He got too close to the other high voltage wire, causing the electricity to arch through his body between the two lines.

Young said his fellow workers brought him down from the bucket and administered cardiac pulmonary resuscitation until he was picked up by helicopter. He was pronounced dead about 10 minutes after arrival at the hospital.

Here's a list of governmental meetings that are scheduled to take place this week in Magic Valley. This list is compiled from advance schedules. The Times-News suggests that you confirm the information by calling the appropriate clerk's offices before attending one of these meetings.

psychology of it. Pre-trial publicity probably has a far, far greater effect than anyone knows."

Of course, over time the prospective jurors may forget what they have heard or read. But in Twin Falls County, judges try to hear all criminal cases in a matter of weeks, Hurlbutt said. What judges can do is move the trial to another location or sequester the jury, both costly and inconvenient.

Yet, most judges and lawyers at the symposium favored increasing press access to the courtrooms by allowing cameras if certain problems could be ironed out.

"If parties feel they can get a fair trial and the truth elicited, it could be their choice to have cameras there or not," said Twin Falls attorney Greg Fuller. "If a camera interferes with truth and justice in the system, we just can't have it. I'm in favor of cameras but there's going to have to be some control."

"The question really comes down to: Is it disruptive?" said Court of Appeals Judge Don Burnett, from Boise. Cameras are routinely allowed into county commissioner meetings and the Legislature, he pointed out, but those people were elected to be there or are voluntarily testifying.

In court, however, many people are there involuntarily. Witnesses may be subpoenaed to be there, jurors may not be willingly serving and the accusced certainly does not wish to be there.

"Even if he is acquitted there is nothing you can do to restore his reputation," Burnett said. "Years later people will remember seeing his face on TV even if they don't remember the win or loss."

Blaine County District Judge Douglas Kramer said he is one of the few Idaho administrative judges to publicly state his support of cameras in the courtroom. There may be cases, such as rape trials, where the victim has a right not to be photographed, he said. "But people, including the press, do not understand the third branch of government. The only way that is going to be done is through television."

America, but why they have found fertile ground there.

Upp said the situation in Central America is not a conflict between East and West, as it is viewed by the Reagan administration, but a struggle for human rights.

Consequently, the United States has over-valued military solutions to political and economic problems that are better resolved through diplomatic initiatives.

She urged the administration to place greater emphasis on negotiations initiated by the Contadora Group, a diplomatic alliance of Venezuela, Mexico, Panama and Colombia.

This would require "humility," she said — not the arrogance of power as shown recently in the U.S. double standard in dealing with the World Court over the Iranian hostage crisis and the mining of Nicaraguan ports.

And it would require us to "let happen what happens," an attitude a lot of people in the United States are not willing to adopt, she said.

Huston, a registered nurse who recently completed studies at a Mexican intercultural center argued it is time to question basic assumptions.

Central American activists bear a historical fear of United States intervention, which causes them to see the United States as an imperialistic aggressor.

To understand their situation we cannot place ourselves in a box labeled "U.S. Citizens," she said.

Hartgen took a more moderate line predicting U.S. policy will remain largely unchanged regardless of who wins the presidential election in November.

The United States historically has justified intervention in Latin American as a matter of national security, he said. This policy is noted in such fundamental statements as the Monroe Doctrine.

The Reagan administration has diverged from its immediate predecessors by openly asserting the military option in instances where political costs are minimal — as in Grenada.

Jerome.

Gold has a long list of police training and several college degrees. In his bid for the sheriff's post, he is calling for more professional law enforcement for Jerome County and has proposed specialized departments and more intensive training of officers.

However, Gold said his number one push would be for more education on the part of officers.

"Motivation of the officers to apply for grants and use their own time for that education, which is for their own benefit, is one of the things I would provide," he said.

Gold said he would also urge his department members to enroll in first aid and cardiac pulmonary resuscitation courses.

Gold also said he would like to see officers tested following all schools they attend including those local law enforcement one-day seminars. The challenging said he would also institute a log program to monitor each officer's work schedules, to know where they are at all times and to know they were engaged in productive activities, whether it be a talk at a grade school, or an investigation.

Logs would be kept for review of the officer's productivity, he explained. A monitor and recording system of radio communications would also be valuable, he said, and would keep officers from discussing "baseball scores" on the police radio, reserving communications for business use.

"I would like to replace the 'niceties with necessities' and by that I mean things like a copy machine instead of the coffee pot or similar changes that would give better public service.

Other policies Gold has called for include closer coordination between city and county officers.

Another Eden resident and security officer, James Weaver, will face the winner of the Gold-Hall race. He is running unopposed on the Democratic ticket.

Soviet boycott may doom '88 Seoul Games

By KENNETH REICH
Los Angeles Times

ZURICH, Switzerland — International Olympic Committee officials said Sunday that negotiations for the sale of television rights for the Seoul Olympics in 1988 have been suspended until after the Los Angeles Games and they hinted that under some circumstances the 1988 Games might be moved.

The most direct suggestion of this possibility came from an IOC vice president, Ashwini Kumar of India, who said in an interview that prospects of lucrative television contracts for the Seoul Games have lessened since the Soviet boycott of the Los Angeles Games was announced May 8. He also referred to a report from Singapore that a visiting Soviet official had said the Soviet Union might also refuse to attend the Seoul Games.

Under these circumstances, the IOC vice president said, perhaps either Seoul will voluntarily give up the Games, or the IOC may move them to a more neutral site.

Kumar added, however, that a move by the IOC would be an apparent violation of its contract with Seoul, unless the IOC were able to invoke a provision allowing it to move the Games if it deems that a state of war exists.

Kumar gave his assessment as he and three other IOC executive board members, including the group's president, Juan Antonio Samaranch, traveled by train from Lausanne to Zurich to participate in the two-day World Soccer Federation Congress.

Samaranch, sitting a short distance away as Kumar spoke, remarked that it was "not good for the Olympic Games to be held in areas of tension." He did not elaborate.

When the party arrived in Zurich, it was greeted by IOC executive director Monique Berlioux, who had gone on ahead Saturday. Asked by a reporter whether she felt the Seoul Games were in jeopardy, she replied that they were "not in jeopardy," but then added, after a pause, "for the time being."

Meanwhile, a Barcelona newspaperman who is close to Samaranch, whose home city is Barcelona, quoted an unnamed IOC source as saying Saturday that the IOC was seriously concerned about the consequences should there be two Eastern bloc boycotts in a row and that it was considering asking Seoul whether it would be willing to postpone its Games until 1992.

The newspaperman, Andres Varela, quoted his source as saying that this would clear the way for award of the 1988 Games to either Barcelona or Paris, both of which have been talking about bidding for the 1992 Games.

His report could not be confirmed, and Berlioux insisted that the suspension of the television rights negotiations for Seoul had pre-dated the Soviet Union's May 8 boycott decision, although she did not say by how much. IOC board members indicated that the suspension was quite recent and was directly linked to the uncertainty about the Seoul Games and the future of the Olympic movement as the result of Soviet opposition to both the Los Angeles and Seoul sites.

Before the Sarajevo Winter Games this year, the ABC network signed a contract purchasing the right to show the 1988 Calgary Winter Games in the United States for a record $309 million. The IOC gets one-third of all television rights money by contract.

At that time, there was speculation that the Seoul rights could go to an American network for as much as $1 billion. By contrast, ABC's contract to show the Los Angeles Games, signed in 1979, was for $225 million, including $100 million in rights money and $125 million in so-called television services money. The IOC got $34 million, just over one-third of the rights portion.

Samaranch said in Sarajevo that he was anxious to conclude the Seoul negotiations with U.S. networks prior to the Los Angeles Games.

However, ABC's lower-than-expected viewer ratings during the Sarajevo Games put a crimp in the negotiations and then, as the spring wore on, Soviet criticism culminating in its boycott decision put the U.S. networks less and less in a mood to bid high for Seoul.

Under these circumstances, IOC executive board member Richard Poutou of Canada, who is in charge of the television negotiations for the IOC, said it was a "foregone conclusion" that the talks would have to be suspended.

Suns setting in West

LA takes 3-1 lead

By WALTER BERRY
The Associated Press

PHOENIX, Ariz. — The Los Angeles Lakers are one victory from another Western Conference championship after Sunday's 126-115 triumph over the Phoenix Suns, but Coach Pat Riley said he's taking nothing for granted.

"We're a long way from having this over with," Riley said. "We've got the momentum and we want to close it out as soon as possible. But we can't count Phoenix out yet."

Kareem Abdul-Jabbar scored 22 of his 31 points in the first half and Bob McAdoo added 15 of his 23 in the second half as Los Angeles staved off a fourth-quarter Suns rally to take a 3-1 lead in their National Basketball Association playoff series.

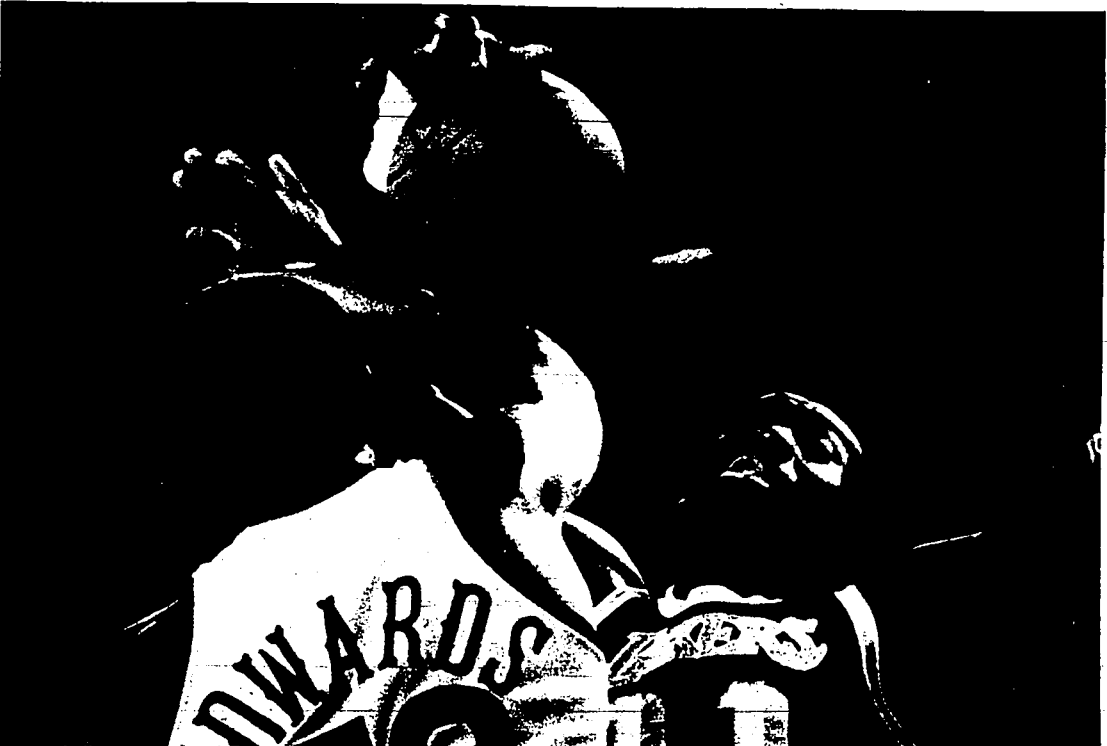

The Lakers now can wrap up the best-of-seven Western Conference finals with a victory in Game 5 Wednesday night in Inglewood, Calif.

"It's not over. This is just one step," Abdul-Jabbar said. "We picked up the defensive effort after Friday night's loss and we shot the ball and handled it better this time. We didn't make mistakes down the stretch like the last time and we hung tough."

Behind 105-83 with 9:08 remaining, Phoenix used four points apiece by reserves Alvin Scott and Chauncey Pittman plus Paul Westphal's jumper to cut the gap to 107-103 with 6:16 left.

Earvin "Magic" Johnson, who had 20 points, converted a mid-court steal into a stuff and Abdul-Jabbar's three-point play made it 114-103 with 4:44 remaining.

The Suns never got closer than eight from there before a sellout crowd of 14,660 at the Arizona Veterans Memorial Coliseum plus a national television audience. "It's not the best of situations to be in down 3-1, but we're not out of it. We're going over there with the idea that we're going to win Wednesday and bring it back here," said Phoenix Coach John MacLeod. "What hurt us was LA's first half. It was impressive. And it's very difficult to make up any kind of deficit against a ballclub like that."

Phoenix's James Edwards and Los Angeles' Bob McAdoo battle for a loose ball during the Lakers' victory Sunday in Game 4 of their NBA playoff series.

"They're so deep on the bench. Actually, we're playing against a team that has nine starters."

James Worthy added 17 points for Los Angeles while rookie Byron Scott had 16 and Michael Cooper 11.

Larry Nance led Phoenix with 27 points while Maurice Lucas had 21, Walter Davis 18, Alvan Adams 14, Kyle Macy 11 and James Edwards 10.

Abdul-Jabbar had 12 first-period points to lead the Lakers up 37-35 — their first lead of the series after the opening 12 minutes.

His patented sky hook with 2:58 left in the second quarter ballooned Los Angeles' lead to 63-48, before the Lakers settled for a 69-58 halftime bulge.

McAdoo, who had 11 third-period points, scored six in a two-minute span for a 95-77 lead with 2:36 remaining before Phoenix cut its deficit to 99-87 entering the final period.

Eagles' nine to open vs. Northeast champ

TWIN FALLS — The College of Southern Idaho's basketball team knows exactly two things about the National Junior College World Series in which it will play this weekend.

The tournament again will be held in Grand Junction, Colo., and the Eagles will meet the Northeast regional champion at 7 p.m. Saturday in the first round.

CSI Coach Jim Walker said "most of the regions are involved in bi-regional playoffs because they don't take as many teams to the baseball tournament as they do in basketball. Some of those bi-regionals were scheduled to wrap up until Sunday or Monday.

"But we expect to get a little better idea of where we'll be Monday and by Tuesday we should have a pretty complete bracket."

Walker said because the regions are different in baseball, he is hoping the Northeast representative is from New Jersey up to Maine because "that means they will have had the same kind of weather we've had to prepare for this. But it sticks

CSI recruits a double-threat in Skyles

By LARRY HOVEY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Michelle Skyles, this year's distance queen of Idaho track, has signed a track and basketball letter-of-intent with the College of Southern Idaho.

The signing of Skyles, a Nampa Christian senior who holds state records in the 3,200- and 800-meter runs and won eight state titles including cross country, was hailed by Coach Karl Kleinkopf as "a major milestone in establishing the credibility of our track and cross country programs."

"Last year we were fortunate in signing Sally Butts and Macie Miller of Twin Falls to give us sprint and field event strength and now I feel that with Michelle on our roster, we can be competitive with any college in the state or region in recruiting quality athletes to keep us on a strong national competitive level," Kleinkopf said.

CSI Basketball Coach Lloyd Hardesty was similarly pleased, noting "from what I saw during the state (Class A-4) tournament this spring, I would say that signing Skyles takes care of our point guard problems for two years. As far as I'm concerned she was the best point guard I saw last winter."

Skyles has run the second-fastest 3200-meter run of any Idaho woman. She clocked an 11-minute, 8-second two-mile in taking a third state title in last weekend's state tournament and knocked the 800 standard down to 2:19.

The surprising thing about the 5-foot-2 Skyles is she has the great endurance that usually is associated with "slow tic" muscles, according to Kleinkopf and Hardesty. But on the basketball floor she exhibits excellent quickness. She also is considered an excellent defensive player and solid outside shooter.

CSI went out in a recruiting battle with Seattle Pacific, an NAIA school that is striving to become a national women's track power.

Skyles listed several reasons led to her decision to select CSI.

"First, they offered me a good scholarship. Second, if I had gone to another school, I wouldn't have allowed to play basketball. This way I have two more years of basketball in my career and maybe by then I'll have that out of my system," she added with a laugh, indicating she feels track will become the focal point in the future.

"Third, the national cross country championships will be run in Twin Falls this fall and we'll be running on our home course. And, then, I think I can adjust to college competition and college a lot better at a junior college fairly close to home."

Skyles made her decision known to Kleinkopf during a telephone conversation while Kleinkopf was in San Angelo, Texas, for the National Junior College Athletic Association Track Championships last weekend.

"Getting word from Michelle right in the middle of the excellent showing, our women were making in nationals made this a week in my life I'll never forget," Kleinkopf said with a smile.

"Being at nationals really has bitten into my recruiting time, but we'll be getting back on the phone and on the road Monday," he said.

Did Carter boycott kill Olympics? Who's kidding whom?

TWIN FALLS — Peter Ueberroth, the president of the Los Angeles Olympic Organizing Committee, said the other day that it's all Jimmy Carter's fault.

The Soviet boycott, he said, would never have happened if meddling politicians such as Carter and Soviet President Konstantin Chernenko would keep their mitts off the Olympic rings.

I wonder, though, what Ueberroth would have thought if I had picked up his newspaper in January of 1980 and read the following:

"President Carter, rejecting the suggestions of his advisers that the United States boycott the Summer Olympic Games in Moscow in retaliation for the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan, today ordered an air and naval blockade of the island of Cuba.

"Soviet reaction was swift. As American naval vessels moved to place around Cuba, units of the Soviet and East German armies blocked all access to West Berlin. Warsaw Pact troops were also reported massing along East Germany's and Czechoslovakia's borders with West Germany.

Steve Crump

"The president immediately ordered all American nuclear forces to Condition One, the highest state of readiness."

If war is an extension of diplomacy by other means, than most assuredly so are the Olympics. Except that when a Carter or a Chernenko use the Olympics as a weapon, nobody gets killed.

But that doesn't mean that the Olympics aren't as powerful a weapon as the threat to deploy a new missile system or two; in many ways they are more effective. In a world in which overkill is an overused noun, additional megatonnage has little significance to the average American or Soviet. But everybody understands that an Olympic boycott — or the threat to boycott — has some sting.

That's why attitudes such as Ueberroth's are disingenuous. The Olympics are, if anything, political. Why else do they run three flags up the pole during the awards ceremony, the gold medal winner's flag slightly higher than the rest?

Baron Pierre de Coubertin, the founder of the modern Olympics, was full of noble ideas about the relationship between sports and brotherhood. But he was also opposed with the idea of whipping the youth of his native France into shape so that the Third Republic could break its vengeance on Germany, which had humiliated France in the Franco-Prussian War of 1870.

The first host, the Greeks, weren't too keen on hosting the Turks. Greece's colonial master for 400 years prior to Greece's independence. Greece was also less than happy with the presence of many of its Balkan neighbors, unhappy enough that it took some strong-arm pressures from the major powers to ensure that any country that wanted to compete in the 1896 Athens Games would be allowed to do so.

Of the 22 Summer Olympics since 1906, only seven have not been seriously marred by politics. In the 1908 Olympics in London, for example, the British refused to allow the Irish flag to be displayed and the Russians threatened to stay home if the Finnish flag were flown (Ireland and Finland were occupied, respectively, by Britain and Russia at the time). The decisions of the British judges so infuriated the Americans, French, Swedes, Canadians and Italians that they all threatened to walk out at one time or another. Sixteen years later in Paris, a same year that the Kellogg-Briand Pact "outlawed" war, spectators from several different countries brawled in the stands, frequently with such enthusiasm that events on the track had to be delayed.

The 1936 Games in Berlin — Jesse Owens vs. Adolf Hitler — are the most famous in history, but they were relatively uneventful. Consider the 1940 Games, for example. Initially scheduled for Tokyo, the Summer Olympics were canceled when Japan invaded China in 1937. But Hitler prevailed upon the International Olympic Committee, which had been impressed by the Berlin show to let Germany host the Winter Games in the Bavarian resort of Garmisch-Partenkirchen. The IOC also rescheduled the Summer Games for what seemed at the time (1939) to be the safe, neutral city of Helsinki. The Garmisch Games, of course, never took place because Hitler invaded Poland seven months before they were scheduled to begin. Helsinki remained was neutral until the Soviets invaded Finland in the winter of 1939, bombing — among other things — the Olympic

Red-hot Tigers, now 32-5, sweep Oakland

By The Associated Press

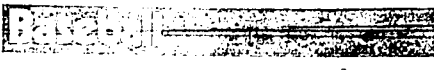

The Detroit Tigers continued to roll Sunday with a 4-3 victory over the Oakland A's that improved their record to a major-league best 32-5.

Rookie Dwight Lowry slammed his first major league homer and Mill Wilcox and Willie Hernandez combined on a four-hitter for baseball's hottest team.

Wilcox, 60, scattered three hits and allowed two runs over six innings. Hernandez took over and gave up an eighth-inning homer to Mike Heath.

The Tigers got two unearned runs after two were out in the first inning with the help of an error by left fielder Rickey Henderson. After the A's scored in the second on Heath's single, the Tigers got that back in the bottom of the inning on Lowry's shot off Larry Sorensen, 1-6.

Detroit scored its eventual winning run in the fourth on an RBI single by Barbara Garbey.

"With two strikes on me, hitting a homer was the farthest thing from my mind," said Lowry. "I was just trying to protect the plate. But, he gave me a slider up and I got good wood on it."

Then, after I hit it, I wasn't sure it had enough smoke on it to get out, so I was running as fast as I could, just trying for extra bases if it bounced off the wall or something. When I got back to the dugout, all the guys were really happy for me."

The Tigers, who are riding a six-game winning streak, are now 27 games over .500. They are 14-3 this month and have swept 10 series this season.

In other American League action, Julio Cruz cracked a two-run homer and Richard Dotson scattered six hits as Oakland defeated Toronto 3-0, snapping the Blue Jays' five-game winning streak and ending a four-game Chicago losing skid.

Rookie Ron Romanick pitched a three-hitter for his first major league shutout and Gary Pettit drove in two runs as the California Angels defeated the New York Yankees 3-0.

Cal Ripken Jr. broke a 10-game slump with a two-run homer and Mike Flanagan maintained his unbeaten career home record against Seattle as the Baltimore Orioles edged the Mariners 5-1.

Boston rookie Roger Clemens struck out seven batters in his second major league start and Rich Rice and Rich Gedman knocked in two runs apiece to carry the Red Sox past Minnesota 4-1.

Pitcher Carmen Castillo drove in the winning run on a fielder's choice grounder in the eighth inning to lift the Cleveland Indians to a 3-2 victory over the Milwaukee Brewers.

Buddy Bell doubled home two runs and Curtis Wilkerson scored the go-ahead run with the help of U.S. Washington's error, hitting the Texas Rangers to a 3-2 victory over Kansas City.

In the National League, Glen Hubbard's fielder's choice bounce drove in the winning run in a four-run ninth as the Atlanta Braves, no-hit by Jose DeLeon for seven innings, rallied for a 5-1 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Leon Durham and Ryne Sandberg hit home runs in support of Rich Bordi's first major league victory and the Chicago Cubs defeated the Houston Astros 10-3 for a sweep of their three-game series.

Darrell Porter's two-run homer with nobody out in the bottom of the ninth inning lifted the St. Louis Cardinals to a dramatic 3-2 victory over the Cincinnati Reds.

Rookie Franklin Stubbs hit a two-run homer in the bottom of the seventh inning to lift the Los Angeles Dodgers to a 3-2 victory over the Montreal Expos.

Len Matusek and Juan Samuel belted home runs in a five-run second-inning rally, powering the Philadelphia Phillies to their ninth straight victory with a 7-4 decision over the San Francisco Giants.

Center fielder Tony Gwynn's three-base error set up a tie-breaking sacrifice fly by Kevin Chapman in the 10th inning as the New York Mets defeated the San Diego Padres 4-2.

Bandits roll to seventh victory in row

By The Associated Press

Gary Anderson's touchdown runs of 2, 3 and 2 yards carried the Tampa Bay Bandits to their seventh consecutive victory Sunday, a 31-20 triumph over the sagging New Orleans Breakers in the United States Football League.

The victory left the Bandits 10-3 and one game behind first-place Birmingham in the Southern Division. New Orleans, 8-5, has lost three of its last four games.

Houston "ripped" Oklahoma 31-12. Los Angeles edged Michigan 24-17 and San Antonio routed Washington 30-14.

On Friday night, Birmingham buried Chicago 41-7 and in three Saturday night games, Oakland defeated Memphis 29-14, Philadelphia pounded Jacksonville 45-12 and Arizona dumped Denver 41-6.

Tonight, Pittsburgh visits New Jersey.

Anderson's 3-yard sprint gave Tampa Bay a 24-17 lead with 7:19 remaining in the third quarter. It came six plays after Dwayne Anderson of the Bandits recovered Buford Jordan's fumble.

Tim Mazzetti's 19-yard field goal cut the visiting Breakers' deficit to four points 4:19 into the fourth quarter, but the Bandits responded with a 15-play, 73-yard drive that consumed 8:42 and ended with Anderson's clinching TD run.

Houston, 9-5, took over first place in the Central Division, one game ahead of Michigan and two in front of Oklahoma, as Jim Kelly threw three touchdown passes in the first half against the visiting Outlaws, who lost their fifth straight.

Kelly hit 20 of 31 passes for 281 yards, including a 41-yarder to Rickard Johnson for a TD on the fourth play of the game. It was Johnson's 82nd catch of the season, surpassing Trumaine Johnson's year-old mark. Kelly also passed for scores of 36 yards to Todd Fowler and 13 yards to rookie Gerald McNeil.

Oklahoma quarterback Doug Williams was intercepted three times, twice by cornerback Will Lewis. Kelly survived seven sacks, three by defensive end Curtis Anderson.

In Los Angeles, Steve Young threw two touchdown passes and Tony Zendejas kicked three field goals as the Express, 6-7, moved into a second-place tie with Arizona in the Pacific Division, one game behind Denver.

Young's scoring passes covered 28 yards to Freddie Scott in the second period and 6 yards to John Townsend in the third quarter. One of Zendejas' field goals was a team-record 46-yarder.

Bobby Hebert of the Michigan quarterback, was intercepted three times in the first half, then teamed with Walter Broughton on a 46-yard TD pass play in the final minute of the game.

There were 6,159 fans — and 6,526 no-shows — in Washington as the Redskins fell to San Antonio quarterback Rick Neuheisel's two touchdown passes and Nick Mike-Mayer's three field goals.

Neuheisel threw TDs of 4 yards to Joey Hackett and 5 yards to Mark Rush, who also ran 1 yard for a score. Mike-Mayer had field goals of 37, 26 and 31 yards for the Gunslingers, 5-8.

Since then we've had the Munich Massacre in 1972, the 37-nation African boycott in 1976, the 65-nation American-led boycott in 1980 and the Soviet boycott of 1984, which could involve as many as 30 countries. Few remember, however, that Egypt, Iraq and Lebanon boycotted the 1956 games because Britain, France and Israel, which had just invaded the Suez Peninsula, were allowed to participate. Or that the Netherlands and Spain withdrew — the United States seriously considered withdrawing — after the Soviet invasion of Hungary the same year.

Fewer still remember that Indonesia and North Korea were kicked out of the 1964 Games because they had participated in a track meet in China — then an international parish — the year before.

It's naive to protest, as Ueberroth and IOC President Juan Antonio Samaranch do frequently, that the athletes are the innocent, apolitical victims of all of this. One of the more unforgettable pictures in Olympic history is of Owens, standing atop the awards platform after winning the 100-meters in Berlin, saluting the flag. The German who took third place in the race is standing behind him, his arm raised in a stiff Nazi salute.

The Olympics are useful as a political tool because much of the world still regards it as a sports — and brotherhood — festival. "The Games must go on," said the late Avery Brundage, then the IOC president, at a memorial service for the 11 Israeli athletes killed by Palestinian terrorists in Munich. Then he added that it was a shame that the Rhodesian team had been banned from the Munich Games for its government's apartheid policies.

"It's appropriate, somehow, that when it is used in conjunction with the Olympics, the word 'Games' is always capitalized. They are important Games indeed."

Jacobsen wins playoff at Colonial National

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Peter Jacobsen fulfilled a promise to his father, came from behind to gain a tie on the 72nd hole and then birdied the first playoff hole for the title Sunday in the Colonial National Invitation Tournament.

Payne Stewart, a two-stroke leader at the end of three rounds, led by one going to the final hole of regulation play.

But Stewart drove into deep trouble on the right and had no shot at the green. After considerable discussion as to his options — and while Jacobsen played a game with an imaginary basketball in the 18th fairway — Stewart played his second in the general direction of the green, hit a tree and dropped down some 150 yards from the putting surface.

He got his third onto the green and 2-putted, making a four-footer on his second, for the bogey that finished off a round of 77 and dropped him back into a tie for the top at 70.

Jacobsen, with a chance to win it outright, left a birdie putt short on the 72nd, finished with a round of par 70 and had second life in a sudden death.
