House expands U.S. combat limits

By LEE BYRD
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — A day after it virtually banned U.S. combat in Nicaragua and El Salvador, the House on Thursday voted to expand those curbs throughout Central America.

Following a bitter showdown between two South Carolina Republicans, the House adopted by voice an amendment that prohibits expenditures for "delivering weapons fire upon an enemy" in Honduras, Mexico, Costa Rica, Guatemala, Panama and Belize.

That action came as the House resumed debate on the Reagan budget. Moments earlier, on separate legislation, the chamber denied covert aid to Nicaraguan rebels. The actions combined, said Speaker

Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., D-Mass., "sends the clearest possible message: The American people want an end to the violence and bloodshed in Central America."

Late Wednesday night, the House approved 341-64 an amendment by Rep. Thomas F. Foley, D-Wash., that barred the introduction of U.S. military forces "into or over El Salvador or Nicaragua for combat," unless needed to rescue embassy staff or other American citizens.

With Foley's support, Rep. Carroll A. Campbell Jr., R-S.C., successfully argued Thursday the curbs should apply to other nations in the region. His amendment, too, added this stipulation: "Nothing in this ... shall be construed as limiting the power of the president to exercise his authority as commander-in-chief."

As to whether that would give Reagan a loophole by which to wage war in the region, Rep. Vin Weber, R-Minn., declared "that final clause means nothing." He protested that Campbell's measure "is a strengthening and expansion of the Foley amendment."

Foley, asked if the legislation usurped presidential power, replied that "it is appropriate to have a stipulation that the president must act before he sends the troops" in the area.

Rep. Thomas F. Hartnett, Campbell's Republican colleague from South Carolina, pronounced the legislation "stupid" and "dumb," and challenged the House to strike his criticism from the record as ungentlemanly. That didn't happen.

Rep. Duncan Hunter, R-Calif., attempted to soften the curbs by allowing Reagan to order combat activity in the region if he determines it is necessary to respond "to a Soviet, or Soviet bloc threat." He was defeated, 238-199.

Earlier Thursday, Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger ran into trouble with Republican members of the Senate defense appropriations subcommittee when he complained about the $14 billion in Pentagon spending cuts already ordered by President Reagan in an agreement with GOP leaders.

The Senate Armed Services Committee, meanwhile, unveiled its own version of the defense budget being debated on the House floor. As expected, the Republican-dominated panel stayed in line with Reagan's revised total figure of about $299 billion — but it juggled several programs against administration wishes.

Weinberger, for example, had pleaded that the panel stick with all 40 of the MX missiles requested in Reagan's original budget. But the committee cut that number to 21. The House already has voted a reduction to 15 — and then only if the Soviet

Medal given late After 40 years

By HAL BERNTON
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — It's 40 years overdue, but a 76-year-old Twin Falls tractor salesman finally will receive Army recognition for the 18-hour days he spent operating a delousing plant in a newly liberated Austrian concentration camp.

Within the next two months, Lee Hettenbach will be presented with a Bronze Star, which his commanding officer, Col. Dale G. Friend, first recommended him for on June 17, 1945.

William Thayer, a Virginia-based Army warrant officer, said the award for "meritorious service," will probably be presented to Hettenbach at a brief ceremony at Ft. Lewis, Wash.

Lee Hettenbach's Bronze Star will be awarded for hard work in an emergency hospital for concentration camp survivors

The recently widowed Hettenbach, who still works an eight-hour sales day, said he was pleased the Army decided to finally recognize his services.

"It was all a surprise. I didn't know anything about it," Hettenbach said. I wasn't aware the Army was looking into it."

Hettenbach, who served in the 131st Hospital Evacuation Unit with Gen. George Patton's Third Army, spent five months operating a sterilization boiler at the newly liberated Camp Gusen near the Danube River.

"It looked like hell. The bodies were stacked up and hauled away in wagons by teams of horses. It wasn't a pretty sight," he said.

Hettenbach said the camp was filled with civilians from Holland, Czechoslovakia, Hungary and Poland, as well as some American prisoners.

Shortly before Hettenbach arrived at the camp, the inmates had lynched the prison commander, painted swastikas all over his body and straddled the corpse on a barbed wire fence.

As Hettenbach pitched his sleeping tent — at the camp, dozens of the inmates were dying from hunger and exhaustion. Disease was rampant.

Hettenbach helped to set up a makeshift hospital to treat the inmates, spending most of his time sterilizing blankets, clothes and other equipment for hospital use.

"Hettenbach ... displayed such devotion to duty and utter disregard for his personal considerations during the operation of an emergency hospital for concentration camp inmates that he was instrumental in the saving of many lives," wrote Friend in the original award recommendation.

Warrant Officer Thayer says he is unsure why Friend's recommendation to honor Hettenbach was never acted on.

"We can only surmise what happened," Thayer said. "At the conclusion of the war there was a great deal of turbulence and turmoil."

School levy passes

For Twin Falls

By ANNETTE GARY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls voters passed a $64,550 override levy by 58.1 percent of the ballots cast Thursday.

It will pay for repairs and instructional material.

"The results give a good indication of this community's pride in its schools and education in general," said board member Gary Fay.

"I'm very pleased in a year of tight money," Superintendent Gary Piller said. "The community is very supportive."

He says many of the no votes were cast by residents who were not necessarily against more money for the schools, but wanted the Legislature to take the responsibility to pay for education properly, he said.

Of the residents voting 1,043 were for the measure that will cost about $1 for each $1,000 of taxable market value. If it were up to those voting at Robert Stuart Junior High or Lincoln Elementary school the measure would not have passed. Voters there rejected the measure with 53 and 51 percent of the ballots, respectively, against the override. But voters at the high school passed the measure by 68 percent.

The levy includes $326,000 to reroof the entire high school, about 80 percent of Bickel Elementary School and portions of Morningside, Lincoln and Harrison elementary schools.

Another $243,000 will buy textbooks and instructional supplies the district could not afford this year or last.

Idaho preserves Hart's Western win string

Mondale garners local support for convention

By RICK SHAUGHNESSY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Overcoming the nearly 2:1 whipping that candidate received in Tuesday's presidential preference primary, Walter Mondale's Twin Falls County supporters managed a comeback of sorts Thursday.

The former vice president garnered the commitment of 33 of the 96 people who attended the Democratic caucus at the Twin Falls County Courthouse, earning six of the county's 17 delegates to the state convention in June.

Gary Hart, who was the big winner in both the state and the county Tuesday, had only enough supporters to earn him seven delegates — a one-delegate margin of victory over Mondale.

But the group that proclaimed victory was the Twin Falls delegation for the Rev. Jesse Jackson. The black civil rights activist was originally supported by only 9 of those attending the caucus — an amount below the 10 percent threshold level that a candidate must exceed to send committed delegates to the state convention.

Tom Miksel was the first person to change his status from uncommitted to committed to Jackson. He was joined by two others, including the caucus's only black participant, a woman who changed her support from Hart to Jackson.

She originally announced her support as Hart-Jackson, apparently announcing her choices for the top two spots on the Democratic ticket.

Tom Gilmore, a Jackson supporter, said the goal of the Jackson camp was to get enough support in the county caucus to be represented at the mid-June state convention at Boise State University.

Jackson, who is running third behind Mondale and Hart in terms of committed delegates to the national convention in San Francisco, has received most of his support in the predominantly urban and industrial states. But his Twin Falls supporters said Thursday that he offers a viable candidacy to Idahoans and residents of the Magic Valley.

Tom Gilmore said he supports Jackson "because of his stands on agricultural issues and because of his stands on the military."

Kathy Kreilkamp, another Jackson supporter, said, "Jesse's saying that everybody should have a chance. And whether we have all-white Idaho or all-black-Alabama doesn't matter."

Lloyd Shewmaker, chairman of the Twin Falls County Democratic Central Committee and a Hart supporter said the election has separated local Democrats into two opposing camps. He said the Hart campaign, of which he is "a resource man," had a relatively unstructured organization in Twin Falls County.

Meanwhile, John Sutter, a member of Mondale's national committee was staking the room with a full supply of literature and campaign badges and buttons. He has been in Twin Falls since Sunday working the telephone and canvassing from door-to-door to boost the Mondale turnout, he said.

Sutter said his efforts were directed at Hispanics, senior citizens and teachers. He said he was hoping Mondale would do better in the caucuses than he did in the so-called beauty contest primary. In Twin Falls County, at least, his efforts were fruitful and his wishes came true.

Strength of the non-binding primary carries Hart

By BOB FICK
The Associated Press

BOISE — Gary Hart preserved his string of western victories Thursday, capturing more than 57 percent of the rank-and-file Democratic delegates in Idaho who will attend the state convention.

The Colorado senator's victory over front-runner Walter Mondale mirrored the lopsided win he posted just two days earlier in the state's nonbinding presidential preference primary.

With all 381 delegates selected, Hart had 219 to Mondale's 128. The Rev. Jesse Jackson, who mounted no campaign in Idaho, finished with six delegates and 28 were uncommitted. The makeup of that delegation determines how 18 of Idaho's 22 national presidential nominating votes will be cast.

Based on the formula to be used by the party at the June convention, the delegate distribution will mean Hart should receive at least 10 of those 18 delegates and Mondale four. The allegiance of the other four will depend on who gets the support of the Jackson and uncommitted delegates.

Hart's northwestern coordinator Jane Rueckman said there had been mounting support for Hart since his nearly two-to-one percent victory over Mondale in Tuesday's primary.

Mondale's campaign, after pre-primary predictions that the front-runner would end Hart's string of western victories with two-thirds of Idaho's delegation, had hoped to break even in the caucuses, banking on the strength of its organization and supporters like former Gov. Cecil Andrus.

In addition to the 18 pledged delegates, Idaho will send four formally uncommitted delegates, including Gov. John Evans and state chairman Mel Morgan, to the San Francisco convention.

With the primary season heading toward a June 5 close, Mondale had 1,637.05 of the 1,967 delegates needed to win the nomination. Hart had 977.75 and Jackson had 306.2 delegates nationally.

Hart, who won all 41 Idaho counties in Tuesday's balloting, strengthened his position in the state a week ago with a personal visit to Boise.

"It's a tough state when you're running against a westerner who came to the state," LaRocco said.

After Hart's primary win, his supporters kept up the campaign pace, recalling the experiences in other states where Hart lost the delegate battle after winning the non-binding primary.

Since the Idaho primary Tuesday, a number of Democratic county officials have effectively endorsed Hart. Among them was Pat Castello, Democratic chairman in Ada County, the state's most populous.

USSR drops arms talk hints

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Soviet diplomat said Thursday his government was prepared to negotiate a ban on chemical weapons and other arms-control measures with the United States, but it would not allow bargaining to be used as "smoke screen" for new U.S. missiles in western Europe.

Vladimir Shustov, Soviet ambassador to the United Nations, said Moscow's initial frosty reaction to a U.S. proposal for a ban on chemical weapons should not be taken as final.

Shustov said his government was ready to pursue negotiations on it as well as curb space weapons and to extend current limits on nuclear weapons tests, but he flatly ruled out a return to the suspended negotiations in Geneva, Switzerland, on U.S. and Soviet nuclear missiles in Europe.

FEC rules on political TV ads

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Election Commission ruled Thursday that if the Republican National Committee mounts a television campaign this summer against the Democratic presidential candidates, the costs would count against the GOP committee's $6.9 million spending limit for the fall election.

But the advisory opinion ruling could have its biggest impact on the Democratic Party, which has already run ads attacking President Reagan and accusing top Reagan appointees of ethical breaches.

E. Mark Braden, the Republican National Committee's chief counsel, said the ruling "basically means those ads (the Democrats) have already run and paid for have to count against their coordinated expenditures limit."

Changes in program opposed

BOISE (AP) — Educators and medical students say drastic changes in the state's professional studies program would lead to a decline in the number of physicians, veterinarians and dentists in Idaho.

But one legislator called for abolishing the program in which trainees are guaranteed seats in neighboring state schools.

The professional studies program is a "ripoff to the taxpayers in this state," Rep. Mack Neuhar, R-Paul, said during a State Board of Education hearing Thursday.

Utah mud continues sliding

FARMINGTON, Utah (AP) — A mudslide that thundered into a catch basin built after a slide last Memorial Day ruined a dozen homes was still Thursday, while residents of another mudslide-ravaged northern Utah community were allowed back in their homes.

Meanwhile, Utah county engineers and others maintained a watch on a mud-filled pond near the community of Genola after a 12-foot breach drilled in an eroding earthen dam prevented the pond from flooding structures and farmland downstream.

The National Weather Service predicted a sunny Memorial Day weekend with temperatures in the mid 80s as Utah approached the one-year anniversary of the worst flooding in its history. Flooding and mudslides caused over $480 million damage in 1983.

Vietnam unknown home again

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — About 200 dignitaries and mourners turned out Thursday to honor the unknown soldier of Vietnam, whose remains are en route to Arlington National Cemetery.

A flag-draped casket, guarded by a Marine, stood in the bow of the USS Brewton as it cruised beneath the Golden Gate Bridge to Alameda Naval Air Station near Oakland.

The remains, which have been in U.S. custody for 10 years, were carried from Hawaii. They are to be flown to Washington today.

Foundation favors UN oustero

WASHINGTON (AP) — "A world without the United Nations would be a better world," says a study by the Heritage Foundation, a conservative research group with which several Reagan administration officials formerly were associated.

An introduction to the study, written by foundation vice president Burton Y. Pines, says that after four decades the United Nations "is an organization out of control" and must prove it deserves continued support.

Questioned about the report Thursday at a news briefing, U.N. spokesman Francois Giulliani quipped, "I think the world would live without the Heritage Foundation."

He added, "They are entitled to their views, however erroneous."

Senators salvage nomination

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senators supporting the Reagan administration defeated an attempt Thursday to sink the judgeship nomination of J. Harvie Wilkinson, a conservative law professor who never tried a case in court.

The administration backers prevailed by defeating, 54-36, a motion to send the nomination for the 4th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals back to the Judiciary Committee for more hearings.

That action kept the nomination of the University of Virginia professor alive on the Senate floor, but Majority Leader Howard Baker, R-Tenn., said a confirmation vote would not be taken until after the Memorial Day recess.

Hindus, Moslems battle again

BOMBAY, India (AP) — Hindus and Moslems battled with rocks, knives and firebombs in this Arabian Sea port Thursday and thousands of army troops moved into new areas to quell violence that has killed nearly 200 people.

In the eighth day of bloodletting in Bombay and towns to the northeast, authorities said 36 more deaths were reported. But they claimed the situation had improved in the past 24 hours and attributed the rising death toll to the discovery of bodies of victims who had been killed earlier.

Officials said 6,000 soldiers were deployed in Bombay, India's major commercial center of 8.5 million people. Soldiers were also stationed 35 miles northeast in the textile city of Bhiwandi where recent religious violence between Hindus and Moslems started May 17.

Hart raps Mondale 'ambition,' Jackson deplores warlike trend

By The Associated Press

Gary Hart charged Thursday that Walter F. Mondale was driven by "blind ambition" in his attacks on the Rev. Jesse Jackson accused President Reagan of creating a warlike atmosphere in American society as the Democratic presidential campaign focused on New Jersey.

Mondale, though campaigning in New Mexico, had New Jersey on his mind when he offered to debate Hart and Jackson separately in the state before the June 5 primary. Hart (as turned down a proposed televised debate among the three candidates next Sunday, citing scheduling problems.

California, New Jersey, New Mexico, West Virginia and South Dakota were primaries June 5, and the candidates have been crisscrossing the country seeking a share of the 486 delegates that will elect a victor.

Mondale scored a victory in Ohio Thursday night when Democrats selected the 10 remaining unpledged delegates. The state Democratic Executive Committee elected nine Mondale delegates and one Jackson delegate — over the protests of Hart's backers, who said they were ignoring Hart's victory in the Ohio primary.

The result means that Ohio's convention delegation will be 80 for Hart, 79 for Mondale and 10 for Jackson with 6 uncommitted.

In an interview on the road between Camden and Cherry Hill, N.J., Hart said his record on the environment, civil rights and arms control had been misrepresented by Mondale.

"It's just cheap political tricks," Hart said. "He and I have been friends and we've known each other a long time." Hart said Mondale, "We've worked very closely together on a whole variety of issues, including arms control."

Union falls to return to arms talks by next April.

The Senate committee also agreed with an earlier House decision to scuttle Reagan's call to resume the production of nerve gas weaponry for the first time since 1969. The Senate has supported the chemical weapons program the last two years, but the House succeeded each time in eliminating it.

Sen. John Tower, R-Texas, the panel's chairman, said "the committee's decision to deny this funding is made without prejudice and out of concern that in an election year, it is unlikely that Congress would be willing to take a favorable position."

The bill on the House floor already has been cut more than $21 billion from Reagan's original request — $7.5 billion more than the president has requested.

Even the most recent cuts envisioned by Reagan "mean we are less well able to meet our commitments," said Weinberger, citing new what he called the growing Soviet threat around the globe.

Noting that Congress appears likely to cut a request for 40 MX missiles next year by more than half, Weinberger said, "I would strongly urge that these funds be used instead to fund" other Pentagon programs rather than to reduce the federal deficit.

"You're in real trouble, Cap," warned Sen. Ted Stevens, R-Alaska, chairman of the panel. "In the 16 years I've been on this panel, I've seen a lot of security of defense and you're the best, but I wish you'd listen a little more."

Sen. Mark Andrews, R-N.D., told Weinberger "you need systemic reform in procurement" to eliminate cost overruns.

Sen. Warren Rudman, R-N.H., said he plans within the next 90 days to offer "a revolutionary proposal" on that score.

The Army's decision to finally follow through on the Bronze Star was the result of an inquiry by Sen. James McClure's office prompted by Hattenbach's daughter, Carolyn Chupa.

Chupa said her interest in the award resulted from a forage through her father's records that turned up a copy of Friend's recommendation.

"I just happened to run onto it and decided to find out why he never got the medal," Chupa said.

In 1978 Chupa said she wrote letters to the late Sen. Frank Church and Gov. John Evans asking them to find out why the award was never given to her father.

But she never got any replies to her letters and finally forgot about the award.

But Chupa's interest in the award was rekindled late last year when she once again found a copy of the recommendation again, and forwarded a copy of it to Sen. James McClure's office. "They wrote me back and said they would look into it," she recalled.

Shortly after the McClure inquiry began, Chupa received a letter from the U.S. Army Personnel Center in Alexandria, Va. Informing her that "my father's records" had been burned in a fire back east.

Despite the lack of records, Thayer said the Army was finally able to document Friend's request and approve the award.

Thayer said, "It is very rare" for an award recommendation to be lost in the shuffle. "We feel like the Army has a fairly good record. When we establish that an error has taken place, we try to correct it," he said.

Emergency military funding for Salvador clears House

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House approved emergency military aid for El Salvador on Thursday but voted to deny funds for Nicaraguan rebels praised by President Reagan as freedom fighters and denounced by Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill as murderers and rapists.

By a vote of 267-154, the lawmakers adopted a compromise spending plan that calls for $62 million in Salvadoran security assistance, but earmarks $32 million of the total to pay back the Pentagon for funds diverted to El Salvador by Reagan without congressional action.

The House then went on to approve, 241-177, a measure refusing to provide any additional funds in the current fiscal year for the guerrillas fighting the leftist Sandinista government of Nicaragua.

"Let us end this war; this brings us no peace," Rep. Lee Hamilton of Indiana, a senior Democratic member of the House Intelligence Committee, implored the House, arguing that the Nicaraguan conflict is continually escalating and "is no longer what it was intended to be."

House Minority Leader Robert Michel, R-Ill., on the other hand, told his colleagues that if they denied support to the rebels, "The people of El Salvador will perceive us as giving aid with one hand and taking it away with the other."

"It is morally wrong," Michel said. "What kind of moral foreign policy is this that suddenly cuts off aid to those whom we have urged to fight tyranny?"

Rep. Wyche Fowler, D-Ga., also a member of the intelligence panel, said that in Nicaragua, "We are doing under the table what we are not brave enough to go to the American people and say that we want to do openly."

—By Rep. C.W. Young of Florida, a Republican member of the committee, argued, "We have to decide what we are going to do about the communist expansion in Central America, our front yard."

The Salvadoran aid package would give the administration the full amount approved earlier by the Republican-controlled Senate as a first instalment or $179 million of additional Salvadoran military aid that Reagan is seeking for the remainder of the fiscal year ending Sept. 30.

Reagan has repeatedly lauded the Nicaraguan guerrillas as freedom fighters who need U.S. backing to prevent the Nicaraguan government from fostering Marxist-led revolutions in other Central countries.

Congress expands U.S. borrowing to keep fed checks from bouncing

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress on Thursday gave the Reagan administration the increased borrowing authority it said is necessary to keep government checks from bouncing, but for the second time this week most House Republicans opposed the president's request.

By a 211-198 vote, the House approved a $30 billion boost in the debt limit to $1.52 trillion, which is enough to last — until about June 22. The administration was seeking a record $63 billion increase — to $1.73 trillion — to carry the government through June 1985.

The House quickly accepted by voice vote the slightly different $30 billion boost adopted by the Senate and sent it to President Reagan for his signature.

Unless Congress acts again by June 22, the debt limit would again drop to the $1.49 trillion now in effect. However, it is more likely that Congress will vote yet another extension at that time.

As the lawmakers were acting, the Treasury Department was scrapping the bottom of the barrel, having exhausted most of the existing borrowing authority and getting short on cash as well. Rep. Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill., manager of the increase bill, said the treasury was left with only $9.6 billion cash and credit authority combined — enough to last just three days.

Treasury Secretary Donald T. Regan had warned the lawmakers Wednesday that if they did not increase the borrowing authority before leaving town for the Memorial Day holiday, $9 billion worth of Social Security checks being dropped into the mail and other government checks might be in jeopardy.

Reagan ponders gulf war action

WASHINGTON (AP) — As the air war over the Persian Gulf intensified Thursday, the Reagan administration urgently debated alternate approaches to helping Saudi Arabia bolster its defenses against possible Iranian air attacks.

White House and State Department spokesmen said a decision to send Stinger and aircraft missiles to the Saudis was still pending but other officials said the administration appeared to be committed to the sale.

The officials, who spoke on condition they not be identified, said consultations with congress were moving ahead as quickly as possible and that an announcement likely would be made before the end of the week.

At issue was whether to give the Congress 30 days notice of the sale or for President Reagan to make use of his emergency powers and send the missiles immediately.

Presidential spokesman Larry Speakes said "we really have no preference; pending our discussions of the matter fully with the Congress." The administration intends to "actively and fully discuss this matter with the leadership on the Hill before we proceed in any fashion with the sale," he said.

"There is an urgency to the situation there and that is probably why this one item is in the forefront at the moment," Speakes said.

State Department spokesman John Hughes said the request was under active consideration. He noted that the Saudis had asked for the missiles earlier this year and had not withdrawn their request.

Statisticians cite elaborate smoke danger

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The tobacco industry on Thursday blasted as "pseudoscience" a statistician's recent study that concluded it is unhealthy for women to live or work with a cigarette smoker.

The Tobacco Institute said Gus Miller's study on "passive smoking," which cited health statistics on 537 women who died in Erie County in 1975 and 1976, "contributed nothing to knowledge of any effects of environmental tobacco smoke or the workplace."

The group's fire toward Miller came one day after Surgeon General C. Everett Koop said there was "very solid" evidence that non-smokers suffered lung disease from the smoke of those who used cigarettes. The Tobacco Institute also refuted Koop's assertion.

'Tylenol' suing FDA over rival

WASHINGTON (AP) — McNeilab Inc., manufacturers of Tylenol, sued the Food and Drug Administration on Thursday for its approval of the non-prescription sale of a pain reliever that will compete with aspirin and Tylenol.

Attorneys for McNeilab Inc., a subsidiary of Johnson & Johnson, said in a complaint filed in U.S. District Court in Washington that the FDA unlawfully approved the drug, ibuprofen, for over-the-counter sale last Friday.

Second pool plan should be dropped

The Twin Falls City Council and the Twin Falls School District are moving ahead cautiously on a proposal to build a joint gymnasium and Olympic-sized swimming pool.

But after listening to considerable debate on the subject, we think they should both drop the plan as it is now drafted.

Instead, we suggest that the council alone should push forward and build a geothermal pool, usable for an extended season and perhaps convertible to year-round use, as part of the city's recreation program. We also suggest that the school district spend a modest amount — say $500,000 — on remodeling locker rooms at the high school gym and completing other gym improvements, but that it abandon, at this time, plans for a new gym or gym addition.

These approaches are modest, and we believe the community would support them. A pool bond issue was passed by city voters last fall, only to be sidetracked by the council's ineptitude. But with careful planning, we think it would fly again.

The school district has twice proposed an additional gym for the high school and twice has been turned down. It is time to let the matter rest.

Last fall, the gym proposal was for 17,000 square feet at about $1.3 million. It was rejected by the voters. Now, like a Phoenix bird arisen from the ashes, the pool-gym proponents want a facility of nearly 60,000 square feet costing $3.8 million.

To us, that's like telling the voter that since they didn't like the cheaper, pine-box casket in the front of the mortuary, well, let us show you one of the gold-plated deluxe caskets here in the back room.

Nonetheless, the arguments in favor of this huge facility are several. We'll enumerate them here and on Sunday, outline some of our objections and concerns. But first, the pros:

Competitive swimming. Proponents advocate more competitive swimming in the community and they refer to the Santa Clara, Calif., swim club as putting Santa Clara on the map. The same could be done here, they imply, with an Olympic-sized pool and its attendant competition programs.

Pool consultant Jim Gaughran of Sun Valley, a former Stanford University swimming coach, worked up an admittedly speculative, hour-by-hour time chart for the new pool, showing about 30 percent of the time devoted to competitive swimming and team events.

Year-round use. A city-school pool could be used in every season. Summer months would have more recreational use time. During the school year, time would be allotted to the schools, although time to teach kids how to swim, which seems an obvious use to us, was not included in Gaughran's hour-by-hour chart.

Geothermal water. The new pool would use geothermal water. That will reduce heating costs and, perhaps, allow the facility to pay a fair proportion of its own costs.

Multipurpose facility. Proponents claim the community wants a large, multipurpose gymnasium and recreational center and that it should be funded by the widest tax base, the school district, rather than through a city bond issue.

They say that new physical education requirements make building more physical education facilities necessary, and they point to the obviously-aging locker facilities at the gym as needing replacement.

They also argue that a multipurpose facility is necessary to attract the paying customer who will help carry costs, although as yet, no figures have been provided on how much would be generated from things like weight rooms, basketball, tennis, a running track and other physical fitness programs.

Cooperative facility. Proponents say that Twin Falls has an "exciting, unique opportunity" to build a joint facility because of the need for both a pool and additional gym facilities. The tax load, they say, should be spread across the widest number of users; the school district's taxing base is larger than the city's and is the appropriate one to use here, with the city kicking in an up-front cash payment.

But despite these arguments, we are not in favor of the pool-gym proposal as it is now being presented. On Sunday, we'll review some of our concerns.

Moderates benefit from first sweeping

The first round of legislative housecleaning was completed by Idaho voters Tuesday. In the process, six incumbents, including three committee chairmen, were informed their services will not be needed on the third floor of the Boise Statehouse when lawmakers reconvenes in January.

At least two others will be removed in November when incumbents square off in two senate races in and near the Magic Valley. And the plethora of contests involving incumbents both here and elsewhere suggests the number of deposed lawmakers will be even greater.

The casualties Tuesday were for the most part inflicted upon conservatives. In all cases, the victims were Republicans.

Four of the six incumbents who were muscled out in the primary election — Sen. William Moore of Hayden Lake and Hope, Jim Golder of Boise, John Brooks of Gooding and Gordon Hillfield of Jerome — were considered among the most conservative of state lawmakers.

The other two ousted incumbents — Reps. Jerry Deekard of Boise and Carrol Dean of Notus — generally kept company with the more moderate elements of the Legislature's majority party, although both had their more conservative moments.

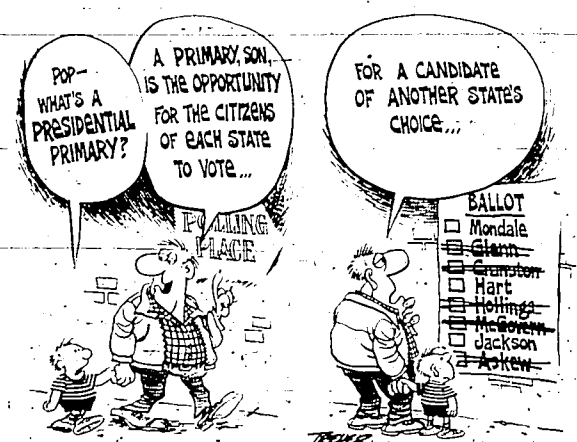

For the liberal elements in Idaho politics, the defeat of Moore will be the most welcomed.

Aside from proving himself an inept chairman of the Senate Commerce and Labor Committee, the two-term Republican from north of Coeur d'Alene has served as the perennial gadfly of the Senate and as the puppet of the right-to-life lobby and others.

In 1983, debating in favor of a bill to eliminate abortion coverage from blanket coverage in health insurance policies, Moore dismissed the argument that a woman who is raped should be protected with that type of insurance. Moore told the upper legislative chamber that a woman who is "truly raped" cannot become pregnant because fear effectively acts as contraceptive.

In the case of Brooks, it is the right-to-work lobby that lost a trusted ally. The five-term farmer from Gooding, chairman of the House Agricultural Affairs Committee, spearheaded annual, ill-fated efforts to pass legislation designed to outlaw union shops in Idaho.

But with John Evans occupying the governor's chair and wielding the gubernatorial veto, little of substance resulted from Brooks' right-to-work efforts. His legislative profile became that of a anything else, resulted in his political demise. Hillfield's reputation as a highly conservative lawmaker was cemented with occasional after-lunch debates, attacking teachers' unions and the notion that additional money for state schools would improve the quality of education in Idaho. The havoc wreaked on incumbents Tuesday may just be a precursor of what will occur in November. Now Congress is trying to claim a larger piece of the advertising space for health. If a pending bill passes Congress as quickly as it cleared the House committee, each package of cigarettes, each ad and each billboard will have larger warnings that rotate almost as often as the beautiful young stars of the cigarette scenes. These will bring specific messages that smoking can cause lung cancer, heart disease, emphysema and pregnancy problems. They will include a warning about the risks of passive smoking and an upbeat injunction about the value of quitting. One admonition about cigarette addiction didn't make the list — the idea that cigarette smoking is an addiction. But in all, there are four warnings which would change, once every three months. The rotating-message theory, dubbed the Fortune Cookie theory, came out of a behavioral study done by the Federal Trade Commission in 1979. AS Commissioner Michael Pertschuk remembers, "The theory is that any repeated warning

Chairman John Peavey seeking to represent Blaine, Camas, Gooding and Lincoln counties — are carrying what may be severe performance liabilities into campaigns against first-term incumbents who nonetheless claim deep rooted support.

For Peavey it is his position on water. For Yarbrough it is his opposition to a state Department of Commerce. And in opponents Wes Tronson of Wendell and Claire Wetherell the two face rivals whose positions on those issues are diametrically opposed and who have developed extensive support in their home counties of Gooding and Elmore.

It is still too early to tell what the effect of this year's legislative house- and senate-cleaning will be. Round one goes to the moderates.

Admonition of addiction not included

Ellen Goodman

BOSTON — Scene I: The two handsome young men in their fashionable gear are resting at the top of the rock climb. A rope dangles over the precipice in the rugged Southwestern canyon country. The winsome twosome look into the distance, their hair attractively windblown, cigarettes sticking out of their mouths. It's Winston — "America's Best."

Scene II: The young man and woman are playing in a tree. He is hanging upside down, she is hanging rightside up. What fun they are having with their jeans and their energy. They are Newport Smokers. "Alive with Pleasure!"

Scene III: The young woman is standing in her formal gown on the long winding staircase, her hair blown up and draped casually behind her. In front of her, a tuxedo-clad man romantically lights her cigarette. It's Benson & Hedges. "The Deluxe 100."

There are other scenes in the endless saga of cigarette commercials that flicker through the magazines and billboards of our lives. The Kent man, barechested in tennis duds, whose only health problem is suggested by a knee support. The Players crowd at the local Yuccie bar. The Vintage smoker lighting up after her exercise class. But one thing remains constant through all these changing pictures of the good life: a small rectangular dissent that says, "Warning: The Surgeon General Has Determined That Cigarette Smoking Is Dangerous to Your Health."

In the years since this little corner of concern was permanently installed onto the upbeat scenes images of smoking, it has become virtually invisible. We are barely aware of any irony when an ad that promises "maximum 'Alive'" also carries a medical warning of danger.

Today, 20 years since the first Surgeon General's report documented the health effects of smoking, one-third of American adults still smoke cigarettes. Today, as the latest report shows in utterly convincing detail how smoking costs and kills, almost one-quarter of high-school seniors have taken up the habit. Now Congress is trying to claim a larger piece of the advertising space for health. If a pending bill passes Congress as quickly as it cleared the House committee, each package of cigarettes, each ad and each billboard will have larger warnings that rotate almost as often as the beautiful young stars of the cigarette scenes. These will bring specific messages that smoking can cause lung cancer, heart disease, emphysema and pregnancy problems. They will include a warning about the risks of passive smoking and an upbeat injunction about the value of quitting. One admonition about cigarette addiction didn't make the list — the idea that cigarette smoking is an addiction. But in all, there are four warnings which would change, once every three months. The rotating-message theory, dubbed the Fortune Cookie theory, came out of a behavioral study done by the Federal Trade Commission in 1979. AS Commissioner Michael Pertschuk remembers, "The theory is that any repeated warning disappears, even a skull and crossbones. But if you continually rotate warnings, the place where the warning appears becomes a focal point of interest, like in a fortune cookie."

If I were writing messages for these misfortune cookies, they would rotate weekly. Each would be inscribed plainly with the name of a smoker who died of lung cancer or emphysema. From time to time, I might include the names of survivors.

It's not that I, or the members of Congress, believe too faithfully in the power of the written warning. There are addicts who smoke during cancer lectures.

Indeed, there is something pathetic about pasting little warnings against smoking onto billion-dollar advertising campaigns in favor of smoking.

While we lobby for labels, cigarette manufacturers are giving away free samples, sponsoring rock concerts and sporting events for teens, and targeting the "growth market" of kids and young women.

One benighted cigarette advertiser even placed a spot in a movie theater that was showing "Snow White."

If we are going to be a smoke-free country by the year 2000, as Surgeon General C. Everett Koop aims, we need a combination of methods designed to make smoking unacceptable behavior.

But labeling is at least a truth-on-advertising law. It's one small way that we inform any consumer who still doesn't know, about the risks of this deadly product. It's also a chance for the public to put its own stamp on cigarette smoking. The stamp says simply, "Don't."

Ellen Goodman writes for The Boston Globe.

Un-American parts of act should go

William McPherson

WASHINGTON — There is a campaign poster in the office of Rep. Barney Frank, D-Mass., that proclaims "Neatness Isn't Everything."

Fortunately for the congressman, whose photograph on the poster shows him in a rather disheveled state, the voters agreed. He still has his job, which includes, among other responsibilities, service on the House Judiciary Committee's subcommittee on immigration, refugees and international law.

The subcommittee has scheduled hearings June 14 on Frank's bill to repeal the two sections of the McCarran-Walter Act that exclude foreign visitors for their political beliefs instead of their behavior. The United States is the only Western democracy to impose such a test of political correctness, and Frank is among others — would like to dispose of it.

Political correctness is difficult to define neatly (rather like Frank). Over the years, one or the other of these two sections of the act has been invoked to exclude spokesmen for the left and the right, such divergent people as Nicaraguan Interior Minister Tomas Borge (on the left), El Salvador's Robert D'Aubusson (on the right), a host of literary figures, some of them Nobel laureates, and others whose activities would be contrary to the public interest. (Section 212(a)(2)(A) of law are members of Communist Party branches or organizations as well as those who are not members but "write, publish, circulate, display or distribute any written or printed matter advocating or teaching opposition to all organized government" or "advocating and teaching the economic, international and government theories of Communism" (Section 212(a)(2)(B)).

Secretary of State George Shultz admitted last December, when Tomas Borge's visa was denied, that Borge was not "going to overthrow the government or anything like that," but he felt "inevitably" that his presence here would divert attention from the Contadora peace talks. "As a general proposition I think we have to favor freedom of speech," the secretary said, "but it can get abused by people who do not wish us well, and I think we have to take some reasonable precautions about that."

Well, of course the whole point of freedom of speech is the freedom to abuse it, to say things that are unpalatable, politically incorrect, tasteless, wrongheaded, obscene even — certainly things the State Department and whatever the current administration is, may not like. A visa grant not to imply a seal of approval. The speaker — an alien speaker included — has the right to offer his opinions here, the listener, if there is one, has the right to ignore them.

Freedom of speech does impose a responsibility, but the responsibility falls less on the speaker than on his audience, which, it is assumed under our constitution, is capable of discerning the rash from the rational, the ridiculous from the reasonable, and the idiotic from the intelligent. That responsibility ought not to fall on an American consular official in, for example, Milan, who objects to an applicant's philosophy, the books he has written, his sex life or whatever ideas he deems possibly "contrary to the public interest." In this country, unlike the Soviet Union and other totalitarian regimes of the left and the right, the "public" is thought capable of determining its own interests.

The Italian satirist and playwright Dario Fo, whose "Accidental Death of an Anarchist" recently concluded a successful run at Arena Stage here, denied a visa in 1980 (and again last August).

1. the State Department conceded that he and his wife, Franca Rame, had actively denounced terrorism and political violence. "It's just that Fo's record of performance with regard to the United States is not good," a department official said at the time. "Dario Fo has never had a good word to say about (this country)." (Or any other, he might have added.)

But Fo promptly came up with a few. "The State Department has our highest respect," he wrote. "It is, in fact, the only body in the world to hold such high esteem the thought and creative imaginings of artists. It is more than convinced that ideas put forth on the stage are more explosive than the atomic bomb."

Unfortunately, Fo was wrong in one respect. There are other governments and government bodies that believe the same thing, but with much greater vigor and consistency. The Union of South Africa is one of them; the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics is another. These two countries have quite neatly and tidily defined what is contrary to the public interest, which ideas are admissible and which inadmissible. So far as I know, this country has not, and it is, in Frank's words, "an unregulated grant of public power" to give that defining authority to any government official, however well-intentioned he may be, however "rightly" concerned for my interests or yours.

In the disheveled realm of politics, "Neatness isn't everything," Barney Frank knows that. The State Department ought to recognize it, too, and if the department fails to see that on its own, Congress ought to help it along by repealing those two un-American sections of the McCarran-Walter Act that exclude, virtually at will, those whose beliefs cannot neatly be categorized as "correct."

Time to open eyes

Towering peaks, covered with snow
A curtain of trees to the valley below
Beauty is seen, in every ravine
If one just takes it slow

The breeze is crisp, the air is clean
The lakes are clear, the grass is green
The balance is fair to all up there
Except for just one thing —
Mister McClellan is coming in between

Smooth talk and bait, he's a corporate creep
He'll leave our paradise a desecrated heap
The big money friends are at it again
Mister McClellan has sold out cheap

Such pristine beauty should be left alone
How can they ruin what they just think they own
The big money boys should find other toys
And leave God's country alone

And you sleepy people better open your eyes
Or you're gonna wake up to a big surprise
Cause Mister McClellan has his hands in the fur
And he's pulling it over your eyes

Jury convicts 5 guardsmen of murdering American nuns

ZACATECOLUCA, El Salvador (AP) — After a 20-hour trial, a jury convicted five former national guardsmen Thursday of killing four American churchwomen whose deaths in 1980 became a rallying point for opposition to U.S. aid to El Salvador.

The murders became symbols of the country's widespread human rights abuses and the U.S. Congress has withheld its decision on $19 million in military aid for the government until after the trial.

The five-member jury seated in straight-backed wooden chairs heard 20 hours of testimony and argument broken only by brief recesses. They deliberated for an hour before returning a verdict of guilty on all counts shortly before dawn.

The convicted men had been returned to their jail cells and were not in the courtroom when the verdict was read.

Relatives of the dead women called the conviction a good first step toward learning who ordered the killing and who tried to cover it up. Michael Posner, director of the Lawyers Committee for International Human Rights, said he has been assured there will be an investigation of whether higher authorities were involved.

A U.S. Embassy statement said "the successful prosecution of these murderers shows the Salvadoran criminal justice system can be made to work."

In Washington, State Department spokesman John Hughes said, "The United States is fully committed to assisting the government of El Salvador in the strengthening of the Salvadoran judicial system."

American Maryknoll nuns Ita Ford, 40, and Maura Clarke, 49, of New York, Ursuline sister Dorothy Kazel, 41, and layworker Jean Donovan, 27, both of Cleveland, were found shot to death and buried in a shallow grave Dec. 4, 1980 outside the capital. Some were raped, according to testimony in the case.

Judge Bernardo Rauda Murcia of the 1st Penal Court here said he has 15 days, starting today, to deliver a sentence. The maximum sentence is 30 years imprisonment.

The five found guilty of aggravated homicide, aggravated destruction of property and theft, were Luis Antonio Colindres Aleman, 28, a national guard sergeant at the time of the slayings; Carlos Joaquin Contreras Palacios, 27; Francisco Orlando Contreras, 36; Jose Roberto Moreno, 28, and Daniel Canales, 27 — all privates at the time of the killings.

The last two charges stem from the burning of a church-owned van the women were riding in when they were abducted Dec. 2, 1980.

The two Maryknoll nuns worked with refugees from the political violence in the northern town of Chalatenango. They had been to the airport to pick up Sister Dorothy and Miss Donovan, who ran nutrition programs for pregnant women in La Libertad in the south and were arriving from Nicaragua.

Iraq claims its planes attacked ships in gulf

By The Associated Press

Iraq said Thursday its warplanes attacked two ships south of Iran's Kharg Island oil port, and U.S. intelligence sources said Iran struck back hours later by hitting a Liberian-registered tanker in the Persian Gulf.

An Iranian F-4 attacked the tanker Chemical Venture, U.S. State Department spokesman John Hughes said in Washington, quoting intelligence sources in the southern gulf region.

Hughes said the ship was reported sinking, and that crew members might still be on board.

"It is probably fairly good information that a Liberian tanker was hit, probably about 10 o'clock this morning (EDT) by an Iranian F-4," Hughes said.

Saudi planes scrambled and gave chase to the attacker, but were unable to make contact, Hughes said.

The reported Iranian attack came about six hours after Iraq announced its warplanes had hit two "big" naval targets south of Kharg Island. The Iraq strikes came less than 24 hours after Iraq's president threatened to step up a blockade of Iranian oil ports.

The air action was the first since last Friday when Iraqi plane hit a Panamanian freighter carrying steel.

Nobel panel protests Sakharov's isolation

OSLO, Norway (AP) — The Norwegian Nobel Committee said Thursday it has written to Soviet President Konstantin Chernenko expressing "concern and dismay over what is happening to Andrei Sakharov and his wife Yelena Bonner."

A top committee official said he believed such an appeal was unprecedented. In Paris, the stepdaughter of Sakharov, a leading Soviet dissident who won the Nobel Peace Prize in 1975, said she feared he may be dead. Sakharov, 63, began a hunger strike 22 days ago to pressure Soviet authorities into letting his wife leave the country for medical treatment for her heart and eyes.

Stepdaughter Tatiana Yankelovich met French President Francois Mit-terrand Thursday seeking his help. Later she told reporters she was worried that "Soviet authorities might be continuing to say that everything is fine, while our parents are no longer alive."

The five-member Norwegian Nobel Committee said it sent a letter to Chernenko on Tuesday.

PUC rejects power contract

BOISE (AP) — The Public Utilities Commission has rejected a proposed Idaho Power Co. contract with a private power generator because it would have required the independent operator to repudiate his own rights under federal law.

The commission, in taking the stand, also said it is becoming "weary of Idaho Power's apparently endless appetite for harassment of small power producers."

On another Idaho Power matter, the commission on Thursday also reasoned the utility's customers that they will not be billed for the cost of an advertising campaign the company has begun to bolster public opposition to proposed subordination of its Snake River water rights.

On the power contract, the commission rejected the utility's request that it approve language stating that it "is not in the public interest" for the company to sign such power purchase agreements with independent generators even though it is required to do so under federal law. The contract in question was with Cogeneration Inc., which has a hydroproject in the Twin Falls area.

The utility has repeatedly attempted to get the PUC to relieve it of that federal responsibility, imposed in part as a means of encouraging private development of energy sources.

"The small power producer is obviously being held hostage while Idaho Power conducts its vendetta against the National Energy Act," the commission said.

The company contends that it does not need the additional power being supplied by those independent producers because of expected power surpluses through the end of the century.

Busch files funds report

BOISE (AP) — Democratic U.S. Senate nominee Pete Busch has personal financial holdings of about $300,000, and possibly more, according to his federal finance disclosure statement.

Busch, who rolled to the nomination Tuesday and will face incumbent Republican James McClure in November, also reported receiving some $25,000 in unearned income last year, 80 percent of it from his Marine Corps pension.

According to the statement, most of Busch's assets are in real estate, which he valued in excess of $250,000.

Judge decides against district in Teton suit

BOISE (AP) — A federal judge has ruled against the Fremont-Madison Irrigation District in its attempts to get compensation for the 1976 failure of the Teton Dam.

Judge Marlon Callister on Thursday ruled that the district lost anticipated benefits, but did not lose any actual property when the dam failed.

Callister's ruling upheld an earlier ruling handed down by an administrative law judge.

The district, in a lawsuit filed against the U.S. Department of the Interior, had sought $71 million. But in recently filed documents, it amended its request. It asked that if the judge did not agree with the $71 million figure, he order the two sides to sit down and reach a mutually acceptable figure.

The district had claimed it should be compensated for the loss of the ability to irrigate cropland and generate hydropower.

The irrigation district serves 3,500 farms in Fremont, Teton and Madison counties.

Water stored at the dam just prior to the failure was intended for irrigation of crops in 1976.

Compensation the district sought included $1.2 million for obtaining a substitute water supply over a 21-year period.

The total $71 million is based on what the district could have sold water for, what it could have sold hydropower for, plus what it cost the district to lose irrigation time immediately after the dam failed.

Panel supports dean

BOISE (AP) — The Idaho Potato Commission, calling a faculty "no-confidence" vote ridiculous, has unanimously voted to back University of Idaho College of Agriculture Dean Raymond Miller.

Commission Director Gordon Randall blamed the faculty vote earlier this week on the fact that Miller had been forced to make spending cuts because of the state's financial problems.

"It is obvious that the budget crisis in higher education made it necessary for Ray Miller to step on some tenured toes as he made the difficult decisions involved in realignment within the College of Agriculture," Randall said after the commission vote.

"In trimming the fat that was necessary under budget constraints, Dr. Miller obviously aroused the ire of some of the tenured people in the academic world, and this so-called no-confidence vote is an inappropriate and clumsy attempt to bring about his dismissal," he said.

Of the 65 percent of the college faculty members responding to the ballots issued by the American Federation of Teachers, more than half voted that Miller not be retained as dean. But University President Richard Giltner has already said he would put no stock in the outcome of that vote.

Those pressing for Miller's dismissal have complained about a lack of leadership and management at the College of Agriculture, which plays a critical role in the state's resource-based economy.

But Randall, in a statement issued Thursday, rated Miller's performance as excellent and said there has been decided improvement in the university's research operations under his leadership of the last three years.

Lucky Peak groundbreaking today

BOISE (AP) — Ground-breaking ceremonies will be held today at the site of the future Lucky Peak hydroelectric power plant.

Speakers at Friday's ceremonies include John Saven, superintendent of the Seattle City Light department, and Col. Robert Williams, district engineer for the Army Corps' regional office in Walla Walla, Wash.

County asks potato plant to abide by zones

By DAVID MOFFAT
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Six months after a District Court order to the contrary, Idaho Frozen Foods continues to operate its potato waste treatment system in the Snake River Canyon in apparent violation of the county zoning ordinance.

But following a breakdown in negotiations between the company and the Meander Point Homeowners Association, the Board of Twin Falls County Commissioners has decided to bring the issue to a head.

The commissioners have written a letter to the company asking it to initiate formal proceedings that would bring the facility in line with the ordinance.

They have requested the company seek a conditional-use permit for the facility. A public hearing will be required as part of that application in front of the Twin Falls County Planning and Zoning Commission.

A conditional-use application has been picked up by the company, says county zoning administrator Lee Taylor. Attorney Evan Robertson, representing the company, says that application will be submitted within 30 days.

If the application is not submitted, the commissioners are prepared to take other action. Moving to close down the waste water treatment system is not out of the question, they say.

The intent has been to give the company and the homeowners a chance to come to an agreement on their own, says Chairwoman Ann Cover.

"It's been long enough," she said Thursday. "We have to get it off dead center."

The company began construction of the system near the confluence of Rock Creek and the Snake River in 1982, following a determination by the county that the system was an allowed use under the zoning ordinance.

The system is located in the county outdoor recreation zone, and to date consists mostly of settling ponds.

Then-commissioners Merle Leonard, Ann Cover and Marvin Hempleman took the position it qualified as an agricultural practice.

The homeowners association from the Meander Point Subdivision on the rim of the canyon above appealed this finding to the district court, however.

The order from Fourth District Judge Robert Rowett concluded the commissioners misinterpreted the ordinance — that the facility was primarily a waste disposal system, and not an allowed use.

Whereas the commissioners argued the facility could be permitted without special permit or the need for a public hearing, Rowett disagreed.

He said the zoning ordinance specifically mentions a series of permitted uses.

"If there had been any intention to have a use as dissimilar to those as a waste water disposal system, there would have been clearly some wording (in the ordinance) that would more closely encompass it," he wrote.

He ordered the commissioners to reconsider the issue, and take whatever zoning action might be necessary to rectify it, among which would be a public hearing.

Both the homeowners and the company approached the negotiations, apparently agreeing the means for resolving the issue would be a conditional use permit.

Ranger Jerry Davis surveys flood damage in a South Hills campground, one area which should be avoided by people seeking picnic spots this weekend

Snow, floods upset holiday plans

By DOUG WRIGHT
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Snow, mud and floods have put a damper on the area's recreational opportunities for Memorial Day weekend. — traditional opening of the summer fun season.

Because of the persistence of snow and high water, all recreational facilities in the South Hills are inaccessible and many facilities in the Sawtooth Mountains to the north are closed, says Art Selin of the Sawtooth National Forest Twin Falls office.

Refugees from the Sawtooth Mountains and South Hills will not find relief in the Humboldt National Forest either, according to Wilma Finlayson of the Jarbridge District Ranger's Office. She reported that all campgrounds in that area will be closed this weekend because of flood damage.

And high waters have eroded weekend fishing prospects. Anglers will be greeted with what Bill Webb, Region IV supervisor of the Idaho Fish and Game Department calls "the saddest opening day" he can remember.

In the Sawtooth National Recreation Area, camping, fishing and other recreational activities will be limited to lowland areas, with most hiking and backpacking trails closed due to the unusually low 7500 to 8000 foot snow line, Selin says.

For the hardy souls not daunted by cold weather, however, some Hedfish Lake campgrounds are open, but without drinking water. The lake itself is mostly frozen, but breaking up, with open water around the edges.

The Alturas Lake Road is also open with access to Alturas North Shore Campground and the Alturas Outlet picnic ground.

The campgrounds along the Salmon River from Stanley and Sunny Gulch Campground south of Stanley also are open and free from snow as is Grandjean Campground.

However, campgrounds near Stanley on Highway 21 and the roads to the Stanley Lake and Iron Creek campgrounds are closed.

In the Big Wood River area below Galena Summit, small portions of the Wood River, North Fork and Easley campgrounds are open but wet.

Campers may fare a little better in the Ketchikan Ranger District, with Boundary Picnic Area, Sawmill, Federal Gulch and East Fork campgrounds and the road to Lake Creek Lakes open. The Trail Creek Summit road, however, is closed.

In the Fairfield Ranger District, the road between Featherhill and Baumgartner along the South Fork of the Boise River is open; all campgrounds along the road are open but wet.

However, the Boise River Road beyond Baumgartner and all summits north of Fairfield are closed, as is Abolt Campground.

Superintendent Stephen Youngerman said teachers could have all of the state's appropriate salary improvement money the district receives. This would yield the proposed schedule, or the district could cut back on the salaries and hold part of the money for improved fringe benefits, he said.

He said the district has no money with which to work except for the salary improvement fund, which in the Jerome district amounts to $248,377.

The salary schedule offered by the board, Chojnacky said, would allocate 33 percent of the district's total $4,135,672 general fund budget to teacher salaries, or a total of $2,191,484. The teacher proposal, however, calls for $2,291,050 to be budgeted for teacher pay in the coming year.

The board's latest proposal shows a base salary — pay for the new teacher without experience — at $12,750 per year. Chojnacky took several teacher salary figures at random, to illustrate the percentage increases. He said the teacher who received the base pay this year, which is $11,500, would advance one step and receive the improved salary for a total increase to $13,095 or 14 percent more in the coming year.

A teacher at step 13 this year — with 13 years experience and a master's degree — receives $19,472 and would advance to $22,171 next year, or about 12 percent more pay.

Hoy Parton, from the teacher negotiation team, said 53 percent of the total general fund budget is the lowest percentage allocated to salaries over

Rides for drinkers readied; police launch patrols

By DOUG WRIGHT
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — State, county and local law enforcement officials are gearing up to prevent traffic fatalities and injuries associated with high school graduation ceremonies and the Memorial Day weekend.

High schools and community action groups also are scheduling activities to prevent youths from attending the traditional "keggers." One group, the Magic Valley Chemical People, has set up a "safe-ride" hotline for Twin Falls graduates who don't want to drive drunk.

The Idaho State Police, in an effort to prevent the 3 fatalities and 112 injuries that occurred last year on Idaho roads during Memorial Day weekend, will be patrolling the state roads in full force this weekend and will be concentrating on catching drinking and speeding drivers.

In the Magic Valley, ISP has scheduled several extra patrols during peak hours this weekend and will be concentrating its efforts on the Interstate between Burley and Rupert and Slate Highway 75 from Twin Falls to Hatley, says Sgt. Dave Neal of the Twin Falls office.

County law enforcement officials also are preparing for this weekend in Twin Falls, Minidoka, Cassia and Gooding Counties with extra patrols, reserve officers on duty and longer hours for deputies scheduled.

In Minidoka County, the Sheriff's Office will be at full force Friday and Saturday nights to prevent any trouble caused by graduation and Memorial Day weekend parties, says Deputy Bob Nevarez.

Although no extra patrols are scheduled in Twin Falls County, reserve officers will ride with the regular deputies and other deputies will be available if trouble arises, Lieutenant Jim Hopkins said.

In addition, local police forces in Twin Falls and Rupert are getting ready for graduation parties and drunken drivers.

Although the Twin Falls city police officers have scheduled no extra cars this weekend, they always have a heavy weekend crew, say police

Buhl school superintendent saying goodbye to Idaho

By KAREN MAIN
Times-News correspondent

Buhl School Superintendent Bob Pratt is leaving the farm fields of Idaho for the mountains of Montana.

On Sunday, Pratt told the Buhl School Board he was resigning as of July 2, to become superintendent in the mining and logging community of Libby.

After six years on the job, Pratt said the local school board was reluctant to see him go, but by Tuesday agreed the superintendent's position was open so the job can be filled by mid-June.

"I will miss Buhl greatly," Pratt said. "I love the community."

"I will miss my board probably more than any board in Buhl," he said. "I have a super rapport with them."

Buhl, said the superintendent who is known for raising nearly $1 million dollars in grants for the Buhl schools, "I will not miss the inadequate financing in public schools in Idaho."

Besides the beauty of Libby, a bigger budget for education in the school district is one reason Pratt

BOB PRATT

The board and management team in Libby have a "sound financial system with very progressive and professional attitudes," he said.

With his experience as the Buhl superintendent, and eight years as vice principal in Borah, and now completing his doctorate in education administration and community education, Pratt said the Montana School District appreciated his strong background in fiscal management, community relations and leadership.

Looking back, Pratt said he is proud of his accomplishments in obtaining grants for programs in special education, youth and adult training and the gifted and talented students. He has also developed or improved programs in special education and community education.

Buhl, Pratt jokes, perhaps, his greatest pride in community relations through not only keeping the school board well informed but also working in many community organizations. He is a member of the American Field Service, Community Education City Recreation, North Park Project, Rotary, Chamber of Commerce, Sagebrush Community and United Way.

Pratt said he was also impressed with the excellent facilities and the superb staff in the Libby schools.

Negotiations unsettling to Twin Falls teachers

By ANNI IFFERY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls school administrators' first two salary negotiation proposals offered as a package Wednesday have met with derision and confusion on the part of teachers.

"Negotiations are not going smoothly," says Jana Roy, spokesman for the teachers.

But district administrators say they have made a generous proposal. They are willing to pump much more money into salary costs, they say, than they will actually receive from appropriations for House Bill 475 earmarked by the Legislature to raise teacher salaries.

But teachers question whether that increased money falls into areas in which the Legislature intended the district to spend the money or even how much money the district will receive.

District administrators say they expect to receive $50,520 from House Bill 475 appropriations. But Roy says the district has underestimated attendance and is more likely to receive $610,000 to use for teacher and administrator salary raises.

Under the administration's proposals, teachers would make a total of $70,080 more than they received last year. But only around $251,000 would come from raises in the salary scale for an increase of just below 5 percent, according to Twin Falls Education Association estimates. The administration counted in its figure the automatic advance teachers make each year to a higher salary based on an additional year of experience.

The district figures that, altogether, it will spend about $691,880 more for teacher salaries next year. But $183,000 will come from hiring new teachers, and a counselor and paying for the salary of six teachers hired last year but not budgeted for that year.

In addition, $12,000 would go to substitute pay increases and $15,000 to pay the additional wages of teachers who move up the salary scale by gaining more experience. And the remaining proposed $11,880 increase would go for extra pay such as for teaching summer school or extended contracts based on how much a teacher earns.

But for the average teacher the proposal may not mean a great deal of gain, considering that the Legislature

JACKPOT — A Hansen man was killed and his father injured Thursday morning in a one-car accident six miles north of Jackpot on Highway 83.

Charles Brannon, Jr., 30, was killed instantly when he was thrown out of a car, said Twin Falls County Coroner, Cloyce Edwards.

His father, 59-year-old Charles Brannon of Twin Falls, was reported in fair condition Thursday at Magic Valley Regional Medical Center.

According to the Idaho State Police, the elder Brannon was driving north on the highway when he failed to negotiate a curve at about 1:40 a.m. The car flipped over three and a half times and the younger Brannon was thrown out into the southbound lane where he was struck by a car. The car was driven by Julia Hansen, no age available, of Jackpot.

Brannon already was dead by the time he was struck by Hansen's car, the ISP report. Brannon died of massive internal injuries, Edwards said.

The case still is under investigation.

Boy hurt in school bus crash

BURLEY — A 10-year-old boy suffered minor injuries when a school bus collided with a truck about five miles west of Burley on U.S. Highway 30 on Thursday.

Another person was injured when her truck collided with an Idaho State Police patrol car enroute to the bus accident.

The first accident took place at 500 West Road and the highway at 2:35 p.m., said Undersheriff Billy Crystal of Cassia County.

The school bus was northbound on the county road when its driver, 29-year-old Wendy Marie Penrose of Burley failed to yield at the intersection, Crystal reported. The bus, which carried four children, was struck in the right rear by a U.S. Department of Agriculture truck driven by 53-year-old Harold D. Waggoner of Twin Falls. The truck was headed north on the highway. One of the school children, Douglas Pace, 10, of Burley, received a cut above his right eye. He was treated and released at Cassia Memorial Hospital. There were no other injuries, Crystal said.

Penrose was cited for failure to yield, Crystal said.

A short while later, 40-year-old Marselina Gonzalez Ochoa of 950 Yale Ave. in Burley was hospitalized when her truck collided with an ISP patrol car.

Ochoa was reported in stable condition with fractured ribs and chest injuries Thursday evening at Cassia Memorial Hospital.

The second accident took place at U.S. Highway 30 and county road 100 West, one mile west of Blye about 2:40 p.m., according to Sgt. David Rich of the Idaho State Police district office in Twin Falls. He said Cpl. Robert Connor, 37 of Rupert, was headed west on his way to assist at the bus accident. The emergency lights were flashing as the police care were in operation, Rich said.

Ochoa was also traveling west ahead of the police car and as Connor's car attempted to pass her pickup truck she turned left and the two vehicles collided, Rich said. The state car struck the pickup in the rear, spinning it around. It then crashed into a power pole, the impact throwing Ochoa out of the vehicle.

Her two children, Mike Gonzales, 14, and Albert Gonzales, 13, were treated at the Cassia hospital and released as were Connor and his passenger, Cassia County Deputy Sheriff Dennis Dexter, 29, of Burley.

Weekend

Access to the South Hills, is completely blocked from Twin Falls, Oakley, and Shoshone Basin because of road washouts, high water and snow, Selin says. Lower Rock Creek Campgrounds will also be closed this weekend due to high water and debris. In the Burley Ranger District, only the Sublett Campground will be open. All other campgrounds are closed and the City of Rocks is only accessible through the town of Almo.

Selin advises that people planning to drive the inclement conditions bring their own drinking water and provisions to take with them, since maintenance crews have started late this year. He also advises that campers check the latest conditions with the local Ranger Station before setting out.

According to Wilma Finlayson of the Jarbidge Ranger District in the Humboldt National Forest, all campgrounds in the district will be closed this weekend because of flood damage, although the road to Jarbidge is now passable.

For fishermen determined to cast this opening weekend, Webb of the Fish and Game Department advises staying with spring-fed areas, because all other areas will be high and muddy from the late and heavy runoff.

In particular, Webb recommended the Silver Creek Area south of Bellevue, the Hagerman Wildlife Management Area, the Camas Reservoir and the Featherville Dredge Ponds as places to go for the die-hard fisherman.

Generally, however, in view of the many closures and bad fishing, this weekend may be a good weekend to stay home.

estimated it would mean a $2,000 increase in the average teacher salary. A teacher with 15 years experience and a bachelor's degree plus 15 extra hours of education made $19,375 last year. A teacher with identical experience would make only $168 more than that next year under one proposal or $600 under another proposal by the district.

One proposal raises the entry salary from $12,500 to $12,800 with the traditional 3 percent raise for each year of experience and 5 percent raise for five different levels of education. The other weights salary increases more heavily for those with more experience and education and leaves the entry salary as is.

The teachers are countering with a proposal for a salary scale that will give teachers a total raise of $45,047 in addition to increment raises, or those they automatically earn for more education and experience. They also do not want to make up a projected increase in insurance costs.

Superintendent Gary "Pillie" has suggested that teachers increase their deductible, pay for their dependents, move basic benefits to major medical deductibles or drop dental insurance to meet higher insurance costs to the district.

While the homeowners lost the first battle, allowing the construction of the plant in the first place, they see this as a means of gaining a hand in controlling the extent of their defeat.

"If we have to live with it, we should have some protection from now on," says homeowner spokesman Ed Laats.

He says the homeowners have three primary objectives: that the system not expand, that it be shut down during the summer when warm weather exacerbates the problem of odors and that it be run in compliance with a state Health and Welfare Department order.

The negotiations apparently broke down when the company found these restrictions too severe.

The company apparently found summer closure impossible to accommodate.

It also is trying to renegotiate the compliance order to allow new methods of treating the waste water on the 500 acre site, says local health and welfare officer Mike McMasters.

Among changes the company would like to try is sprinkler irrigation using waste water, he says. Laats says sprinkler irrigation would increase the odor problem considerably.

"We have given up on negotiating because it has been indicated that we are spinning our wheels," says Lance Salladay, a Boise attorney representing the homeowners.

He predicts the company now plans to take its case to the commissioners, where it hopes to find a willing audience.

"We want to see if the county commission will back them completely... if they will cave into political pressure," he says.

The commissioners have already made one decision regarding the system — that no amendment to the zoning ordinance will be needed.

Felton says the commissioners believe the system can be allowed under the conditional-use process because conditional-use permits are granted to all projects "which are compatible with existing land uses in the general neighborhood."

The company can point to the city waste treatment plant — located in the canyon about a mile away — in support of that contention.

the past several years. But to reach this percentage, he said, his group figured slightly differently than the board.

The teacher's counterproposal shows a slightly lower basic pay rate of $12,652. However, the step-13 teacher would advance in the coming year to $21,656.

Parton said taking the $248,377 salary improvement money from the total budget leaves $3,887,256. This is what his group uses as the salary budget.

The salary improvement money is calculated to give employees an average $1,800 increase. Multiplying this by only the number of certified employees (teachers), and adding that back into the fund, he said, the teachers come up with the total of $100,000 more salary money than the board's figures.

Percentage figures on the increases listed by teachers run fairly close to those proposed by the board.

Negotiation sessions are expected to resume within a week or two, Youngerman said.

Generally, the efforts by state, county and local law enforcement agencies and community groups are directed towards getting drivers and especially graduates to "go smart, go slow, and go sober."

Entries competing in Paint-O-Rama

FILER — Entries from five Western states are expected to compete in the Paint-O-Rama, an American paint horse show scheduled Saturday at the Twin Falls County Fairgrounds.

Activities begin at 7 a.m. with a full mile of classes running until all horses are judged.

The competition is opened to any horse registered with the American Paint Horse Association.

The show is a Class A qualifying show and points earned from each of three judges will be counted toward Register Merit National Championship awards.

An average of the points will be used to determine the winners on a local basis.

"The paint is more of a rarity here than it is in the South and Southwest," said show manager Butch Wonderlich.

"It will be a beautiful show," Wonderlich said, "and there is no charge to the public."

The National American Paint Horse Show will be held in Oklahoma City, Okla., July 22-30.

Youths hurt in wreck

TWIN FALLS — Two youths were injured late Tuesday when the motorcycle they were riding hit a rock and overturned on the 2200 block of Longbow Drive, according to a Twin Falls police report.

The driver of the motorcycle, 14-year-old Becky Jean Collins of 2272

Castle Drive in Twin Falls, was hospitalized at Magic Valley Regional Medical Center and released Thursday.

Her passenger, 12-year-old Shawnee Jayne Nickerson of 2243 Castle Dr., was treated and released.

There was $50 damage to the motorcycle.

County hires deputy

SHOSHONE — A new deputy sheriff has been hired for Lincoln County. Sheriff Darwin Mills said Tuesday he has hired Gregory Johnston of Twin Falls to replace Jack Olsen, who was dismissed from the sheriff's department last month.

Mills said Johnston, 35, who has been self-employed, will begin his training in Lincoln County June 1 and will attend Idaho Police Officer's Standard Training after school starts in September to complete his law-enforcement certification.

Lincoln county has a contract with Richfield to have a deputy live in the city and assist with city law enforcement. Richfield has no other police forces.

Mills said the new deputy has already rented a home and will live in Richfield.

County slates computer fair

SHOSHONE — A computer fair will be held at Shoshone High School today from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

The fair, sponsored by the Shoshone Computer Task Force, will feature a variety of micro-computers — with demonstrations of business, education and other software applications.

The computer task force was set up in Shoshone to prepare a plan for acquiring and using computers in the public schools.

The fair is also an opportunity for other interested persons to see several different machines and software programs all under one roof.

Idaho's budget outlook bleak

BOISE (AP) — The continuing economic slump could leave Idaho $35 to $40 million below basic revenue needs by the time 1986 budget preparations begin later this year, the governor's chief financial planner says.

Overall, the prognosis for Idaho's ailing financial condition does not look good, Marty Peterson, director of the Idaho Division of Financial Management, said Thursday.

"I don't think it's fair to single out one reason as the sole culprit," said Peterson, whose office this year is monitoring a $466 million state budget.

He said the nation's economy has not recovered at the pace expected, and demand for Idaho goods has been slow. Sales and income tax revenue is down, and proposed legislation, chiefly elimination of sales tax on food, also threatens to cut state funds.

State officials have said Idaho tax revenue might be $25 million short of estimates this year, and there may be another shortfall of $20 million in the 1985 budget year.

They have warned state agencies it's unlikely $9 million the Legislature promised under the so-called surplus eliminator bill will be disbursed.

That bill offered agencies funds lawmakers thought would be left over this year after meeting basic needs. Now, state officials predict that money will be needed for budget balancing.

Peterson said the absence of dollars expected under the bill can be blamed on "some people in the Legislature who were overly optimistic," and who dismissed conflicting reports out of the state's financial condition.

He also said it will be July before fiscal analysts know whether it will be necessary to order a budget holdback for state agencies.

"We are still cautioning (them) to expect a 4 percent holdback in July," Peterson said.

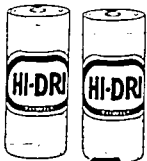

But state officials want to examine spring revenue figures before making a definite decision, he said.

The holdback might have to be subtracted from the base budget for 1986, only aggravating the problems anticipated for that fiscal year, Peterson added.

"All but one institution in the college and university system has pending employment contracts based on funding earlier funding projections, he said.

China comes alive Through artist

By JOE NEAVE
Times-News correspondent

TWIN FALLS — Chinese artist Chung-Chung Wong, in Twin Falls to create two murals for the Mandarin House Restaurant, remembers some of his earlier commissions in mainland China being of an even more awe-inspiring size than the 20-foot painting he recently completed in the restaurant.

Speaking through Edward Lui, manager of the Mandarin House, Wong says, "I painted huge pictures of Mao-Tse-Tung. Only the eye of Mao was as big as a dining table. The pen that I painted in his pocket was as tall as a man."

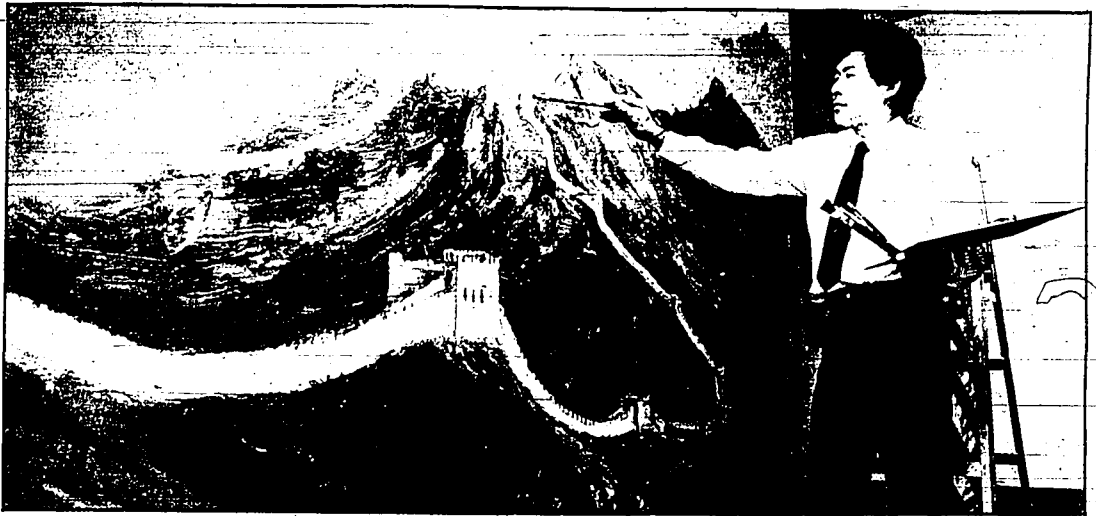

"And it had to look like him," Wong added, "or you'd get in trouble."

After emigrating to America five years ago, Wong lived in Florida with his father and then moved to New York City, where he now lives.

Painting since he was 10 years old, he works on canvas and on walls using a style that has been described as "a brand new attempt, combining the traditional skills in Chinese drawings with those of modern Western oil paintings."

Wong has had several exhibitions of his work in New York, Florida, and is soon having an opening in San Francisco.

"A friend of mine knows him," Lui says, "and I got him to personally come here for two pictures. He's done the paintings at the Mandarin

Chung-Chung Wong works on a 20-foot mural of the Great Wall which he completed in 20 hours on a dining room wall of the Mandarin House in Twin Falls.

House in Pocatello. It's very interesting to watch him work. He makes a few lines on the wall to start with, and then just uses the brushes and paints."

Lui will not comment on what Wong's artwork costs, but he says it's art.

In the Twin Falls Mandarin House, Wong painted a scene of the Great Wall. He also brought with him from New York a 40-foot mural painted on a single length of canvas, which will be framed and hung in the restaurant.

The mural took him two months to complete, and is full of colorful representations of Chinese New Year celebrations. Details of the lion dance, dragon dance and groups of women playing instruments cover the work.

One reason the mural took so long to do, Wong says, was that his New York studio is not big enough to hold the canvas when it is laid out, so he had to paint one portion of it at a time, let it dry, and then roll it up to expose a fresh portion of canvas.

The Great Wall painting on the dining room wall, which is less detailed, took about 20 hours to finish, Lui says.

His favorite painting is that of a girl performing an ancient Chinese dance. Wong says. The work appeared in 1982 on the cover of the China Times Weekly, a publication serving the Chinese community in New York. Wong says he enjoys doing larger paintings because he got used to painting the giant pictures of Mao.

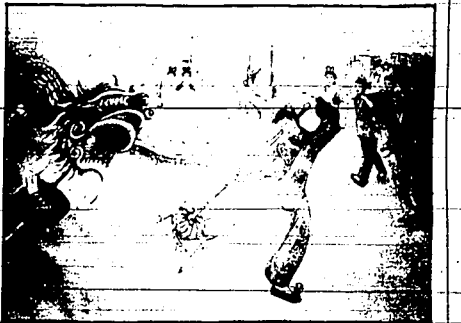

The tools he has are simple. For work on a large wall Wong uses a wide brush tied to the end of a pole, and with this he paints the larger features of the piece. Then he climbs a ladder and completes the more detailed portions with a handful of smaller brushes.

Most of his paintings are provincial scenes from China. Wong visited many of the places he has painted, such as the Great Wall, and made sketches and photographs while there to serve as models for later work.

He uses the same paints and techniques for his smaller pictures on canvas as he does for wall paintings. He says he learned to use oil paints first, then was taught to paint in the Chinese style, and now combines the essential features of the two.

Wong has one son, who also does some painting, and plans to remain in the United States. He hopes to return to China for a visit sometime, but says "Everybody likes America better. There is more freedom."

Area musicians finish album, but face chore of promotion

By TERRY RICH HARTLEY
Times-News correspondent

TWIN FALLS — Steve Swank and Rick Strickland, fun-loving local musicians, recently tested their stamina by taking the big plunge of recording nine songs for an album, "Across The Prairie," which was recorded during numerous sessions at North Idaho Recording in Moscow.

Swank says 140 hours were spent in the actual recording with another 40 hours taken to mix, or put all the tracks together in two tracks. That does not include travel time to the distant north Idaho city.

"I've got hundreds of hours into this," says Swank, who also wrote all nine songs. "It's a business of love. You gotta like it to be in it."

The songwriter says he does his best writing while driving the truck down the road.

"I'll just pull over and write down a whole verse. I hear it all in my head first."

One reason the mural took so long to do, Wong says, was that his New Though Swank writes the songs, he says Strickland plays an important part in arrangements and harmony.

More recently forming the Swank and Strickland Band, the pair used Teddy Ray Jones on the fiddle and guitarists Wayne Love and Murray Olsen when recording the album.

Gary Braun also helped out with vocal and by playing the harmonica.

Swank calls the music, "Basically Country. Country to me is simple. It's got a story line and is based around real life. And it doesn't have to have drinking in it — or divorce."

The two singers say their new album consists of songs about the people and places that make this part of the country, "we live in what it is."

The titles pretty well tell where Swank's heart is. They range from "Carnas Prairie" to "Old Blue Truck" and finally, "I Like Livin' This Way."

The songwriter says most of his and Strickland's efforts this summer will be based on promoting the album, which will be in cassette form, and that they are scheduling numerous appearances at rodeos and celebrations all over Idaho — including Western Days in Twin Falls.

Appearing soon on the Idaho Records and Cassette label, the album will be distributed through the Budget stores and other retail outlets. And, of course, on stage at all performances.

"This is a start," Swank says. "We'll let it take its run in the state first. Then, who knows? Even though two of the songs have Idaho in them, I don't think it has to stay local. I don't expect it to take off in New York City, but I wouldn't mind it if it did," he adds.

Fans line up to see Indiana Jones' return to the screen

Local turnout showing strong

By The Associated Press and The Time-News

LOS ANGELES — Movie fans — some dressed like their hero and camping out for as long as three days — formed long lines Tuesday as theaters coast-to-coast hired extra help for the debut of "Indiana Jones and the Temple of Doom."

The new Steven Spielberg-George Lucas movie — a sequel to the popular "Raiders of the Lost Ark" — opened Wednesday at 1,685 theaters around the country.

In New York City, the movie, also was being shown at 12:01 a.m., but no lines had formed by Tuesday afternoon.

Across the country in Twin Falls, the box-office was opened two hours before the movie, which outgrossed "Return of the Jedi" in its premier showing, said Ron Harmon of Interstate Amusements, the theatre company.

Harmon predicted the film would be "bigger" than "Jedi."

"People like it."

Though no one dressed as Indy, Twin Falls crowds cheered during one short scene that was filmed near Twin Falls at the Snake River Canyon.

Harrison Ford, as Indiana Jones, and Kate Capshaw, as Willie Scott, in film scene employees to handle the crush. "We'll be swamped," Newman said.

"The only people who wait in line are crazy, but we have nothing better to do at the moment," said Gordon Berg, a 17-year-old from Costa Mesa, who waited outside the Newport Beach theater. Some came dressed like the movie's hero, Indiana Jones, in overcoats and hats.

"It's like Christmas," said Patrick Laborteaux, 18, of the Los Angeles suburb of Northridge, as he relaxed in a folding lawn chair at a theater near UCLA waiting for the debut at 12:01 a.m. Wednesday.

Laborteaux waited for three days to be first inside to see the two-hour movie. But he wasn't alone. Others behind him had been there for several days, playing cards and games.

TWIN FALLS — George Lucas and Steven Spielberg are masters of thrills and chills and big-grossing movies.

In their newest collaboration, "Indiana Jones and the Temple of Doom," the filmmakers have outdone themselves.

They bring fantasy to life and daydreams to reality with their craftsmanship and ability to hold an audience in the palm of their hands.

Director Spielberg and producer Lucas use the big-bang theory to kick off "Temple of Doom," which is a "pre-quel" to the smash, "Raiders of the Lost Ark."

Nothing ever is simple for archaeologist and adventurer Indiana Jones (Harrison Ford). At a Shanghai nightclub in 1935, Indy is bargaining for a diamond from slimy bad guys. Oh, oh, they slip him a poisoned cocktail. Can he retrieve the diamond and poison antidote? Maybe, but not without one whopper of it chase as Indy, nightclub singer

Willie Scott (Kate Capshaw) and the evil Flibbers play kick-the-can with the two items over the nightclub floor and into the city streets amid balloons and bullets.

Just as we think Indy, Willie and Indy's child-partner Short Round (Ke Huy Quan) are safe, they cascade into another predicament.

From Shanghai, they are shanghaied to India on a plane, where the pilots ball out. And this is where their search and the real plot of the movie begins.

A magical missing stone has been taken from a village. The cultists also have stolen the children for some diabolical purpose. In this case, Indy not only hunts for "fortune and glory," but also has a cause.

He will discover that finding the lost Ark was kiki's play compared to recapturing the stone. It's in the hands of Indian thugs, who hold sadistic rites near the mouth of a volcano.

So much for the storyline. The real fun is in the telling, and Spielberg does it with sheer unadorned panache and lightning speed.

There is little time in fact to catch one's breath. If Indy and companions aren't creeping through bug-infested secret tunnels or avoiding large men with large knives, they are gliding down a mountainside and into a canyon on a raft. The latter stunt earned a big cheer from local audiences, because part of it was filmed outside of Twin Falls at the familiar Snake River Canyon.

Based on a story by Lucas, the screenplay by Willard Huyck and Gloria Katz smacks of the old cliffhangers of yesteryear right

Redford's baseball stays number one

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "The Natural," a baseball fable starring Robert Redford as a pitching ace, topped its box office take by 7 percent to remain the weekend's top grossing film in its second week out.

With $4.4 million in sales for the three days ending last Sunday, "The Natural" appears to be displaying good "legs," the film industry's term for movies with long-term appeal.

"Breakin'," a film about the popular break-dance craze, was No. 2 last weekend with $4 million in receipts; down 18 percent from the previous weekend but still considered a strong showing in the current competitive market. A Cannon film distributed by MGM-UA, "Breakin'" has grossed $18 million since its release two weekends ago.

"Romancing the Stone," now in its eighth week of release, enjoyed a 15 percent increase in business last weekend to move back up to third place in the weekend box office list. Last week the 20th Century-Fox film, which has grossed $49 million, was No. 5.

The weekend's top newcomer was "Making the Grade," another Cannon-MGM-UA release about a rich prep schooler who hires a street kid to earn his diploma for him. It was No. 7 with a gross of $1.8 million.

"Finders Keepers," new from CBS-Warner Bros., managed only $865,200 and was 13th on the list.

The Stamp Act went into effect in the British colonies in 1765, and it aroused stiff resistance from the American colonists.

down to the entertaining male-female scrapping between Indy and Willie sans physical contact.

The comic book scenario is catapulted through the screen, however, with special effects that accomplish their task — to mesmerize. Some youngsters may find them too intense.

"Temple of Doom" is an adult adventure appealing to those who ever have played cops and robbers or dreamed of being a pirate or even fighting along side Luke Skywalker. And the epitome of those childhood visions is Indiana Jones, played by Ford with macho mystique and little-boy wonder at finding back-yard treasure.

As Willie, Cashpaw recalls the spunky heroine of the late night movies who mostly complain about breaking a fingernail.

In the overview, it's Spielberg baby as he again demonstrates his showmanship. Only a few drawn-out sequences put a skip in the pacing and fun.

Sure, "Indiana Jones and the Temple of Doom" lacks redeeming social values or gripping performances. But thanks to Spielberg and Lucas, it has plenty of pure movie magic.

Like " Raiders," the sequel stars Harrison Ford as a daring archaeologist. This time, with a young Oriental sidekick and a reluctant nightclub singer in tow, he retrieves a poor Indian village's stolen child and sacred stone from a secret evil cult.

The film is rated PG, which means parental guidance is suggested. But some critics contend it is too violent and are worried about the effects it could have on young children.

Musicians vie during concert

TWIN FALLS — A concert of senior high musicians vying for scholarships will be held Monday at 7:30 p.m. at the Renaissance Academy of the Arts at 505 Second Ave. E. in Twin Falls.

Winners of the finalist's competition will receive a partial scholarship to a summer music camp at the College of Southern Idaho.

The participants are Mike Kointopp, Paul Durban and Liz Allard, all of Twin Falls; Kris Dille of Kimberly and Tom Spencer and Jana Mauldin of Jerome.

Admission to the concert is $1 per person and $5 for a family.

For more information, call the academy at 734-0719.

Censors has written to Paramount, saying that many changes, are needed for the movie to receive a similar rating in England.

Among the violent scenes are ones that depict a heart being torn from a living man, the flogging of children and the killing of a caged man by immersing him in a pit of boiling lava.

Survey: Cassettes sell better than LPs

By DOLORES BARCLAY
The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Music lovers are increasingly buying more cassettes of their favorite artists than LPs, according to a new record industry survey.

Last year, 37 percent of the money spent on music went to cassettes, while 55 percent went to albums, the five-year trend report of the Recording Industry Association of America said.

In 1979, only 7 percent of consumer dollars went to cassettes and 71 percent to LPs. During that same period, purchases of eight-track tapes steadily declined from 17 percent in 1979 to 2 percent in 1983. Singles remained fairly steady: 5 percent in 1979 and 6 percent in 1983.

Cassettes also have increased their share of the direct marketing sector by 11 percent, eclipsing eight-track sales and displacing LP sales. Albums accounted for 48 percent of direct market sales last year, cassettes 43 percent and eight-tracks 9 percent.

Rock music dominates record buying habits, according to the report, going from 34 percent to 35 percent from 1982-83. The second biggest seller, pop and easy listening, has remained steady at 14 percent.

The biggest increase occurred in the so-called blackdance category, jumping from 7 to 11 percent in 1983. The Association said this reflected the commercialism of dance-oriented crossover music hits that move from the pop and rock charts to the rhythm and blues charts and vice versa, such as Michael Jackson's "Beat It" and "Billie Jean" or Culture Club's "Karma Chameleon." Country, gospel, classical and jazz music declined, while music in the "other" category — Latin, folk, spoken word, etc. — increased.

Women increased their music spending last year by 1 percent, going from 43 to 44 percent over 1982.

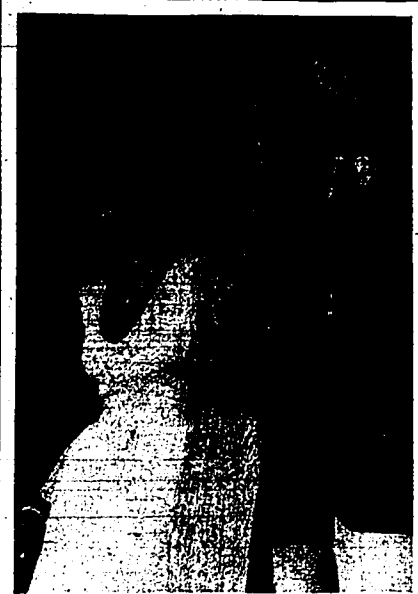

Consumers 35 years old and over buy more records than anyone else, the report said, representing 28 percent of the market. But their purchasing habits slipped by 1 percent from 1982.

The second largest group was 25-34 year olds, who also decreased by 1 percent, going from 27 to 26 percent. Those 20-24 year olds gained by 2 percent, representing 25 percent of the market in 1983 and 23 percent of the market in 1982.

The 19 years old and under age group remained steady.

More people in the southern states buy records and tapes than in any other region of the country. The South represented 38 percent of sales, followed by the north central and northeast — both at 20 percent — and the West at 20 percent.

'Mystic Warrior' is a tale in itself

By BOB WISEHART
Newhouse News Service

Once upon a time, the five-hour miniseries "The Mystic Warrior" was an 834-page book called "Hanta Yo."

The story takes place in the magic kingdom of TV, where dwell David Wolp and Vigd Stan Margulies, the jolly green giants of miniseries ("Roots," "Roots: The Next Generations" and "The Thorn Birds").

The making of "The Mystic Warrior" includes outraged Indians, an angry novelist and so much controversy that, says Margulies, "we were tempted to say, 'To hell with it!'"

"The Mystic Warrior" is about the life of the Mahto band of the Sioux Indians early in the 19th century. It's on ABC Sunday at 8 p.m. (EDT) and Monday at 9 p.m.

"Hanta Yo" was written by Ruth Beebe Hill, who spent 25 years researching Indian life before the white man. Wolper and Margulies bought television rights from Hill and cut a deal with ABC.

Dark clouds soon gathered. To say the least, "Hanta Yo" was upsetting to the Indian community. According to Margulies, the Indians objected that a book written by a white woman on Indians didn't go down well with the Indians. They suggested the best source might just be their own people.

The producers agreed, but said that with all of Hill's research "it was possible there were some errors, but she couldn't have gotten everything wrong."

But many details, "especially on sexual practices," were wrong, complained the Indians. The producers shrugged that those couldn't be shown on TV anyway.

Wolper and Margulies say they always planned to cooperate with Indian groups and never intended to make a miniseries about blue-eyed savages from central casting.

Host Donahue wins battle over equal time rule

By NORMAN BLACK
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Television personality Phil Donahue won a four-year battle Thursday when the Federal Communications Commission agreed that his talk show qualified as a "bona fide news interview" program under the equal time law.

The ruling, which reverses a string of decisions dating to 1980, means Donahue may invite political candidates to appear on his program without worrying about according equal time to all opposing candidates.

Efforts to contact Donahue were not immediately successful.

"But we're obviously pleased," said Penny Rothelner, the show's press manager. "Phil has long felt all along that if a program like 'Good Morning America' can win this news exemption, there's no reason to deny it to him. He does as much as much that's newsworthy as they do."

"Donahue" is a syndicated talk show produced by

Multimedia Entertainment Inc. Donahue first sought the equal time exemption in 1980, but the FCC's staff denied the request and a subsequent appeal was dismissed by the full commission in 1981.

The equal time law requires a broadcaster who provides or sells air time to one political candidate to provide an equal opportunity for air time to that candidate's opponents. The law has long contained certain exemptions, however, applying to bona fide newscasts, news interviews and the on-the-spot coverage of news events.

Congress enacted the exemptions in 1959, citing such programs as "Meet the Press" and "Face the Nation" and saying it did not want to inhibit journalists in their coverage of political affairs.

In 1980 and 1981, the FCC denied Donahue's request for an exemption primarily because the format of his show allows members of the audience to pose questions.

A member of the audience could make a statement advancing the election of a particular candidate, the FCC said, "creating the very risks that Congress wanted to avoid. There is no way for the broadcaster to ensure itself that the statements made or questions asked will in fact be consistent with its journalistic judgment."

The producers of the program go to extreme lengths to eliminate any potential for abuse, the FCC found, including the distribution of tickets months in advance of any particular program and strict control by Donahue of the microphone and the direction of all questioning.

"We believe that it would be unsound to rule that a program involving a unique or innovative approach to interviewing its guests somehow lacks sufficient licensee control ... when the licensee has implemented reasonable techniques to ensure control," the FCC wrote.

"To do so would discourage programming innovation by sending a signal to broadcasters that to be exempt, an interview program should adhere only to the format of certain programs mentioned by Congress over 25 years ago."

Other Hope reveals herself

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Comedian Bob Hope recently finished packing for yet another trip and asked his wife, Dolores, "What did I forget?"

"Me," she replied wistfully.

For a half-century it has been ever so—Hope trying to entertain more audiences, his wife staying home.

"As we get older, the absences get more difficult," she said. "Why? I guess I love him more, that's why."

In the past five years, Mrs. Hope hasn't always been staying at home. A successful singer when she met the young comedian in 1932, she began singing again on Hope's tours — "not the one-nighters, Bob loves them but I can't stand sleeping in a different bed every night."

The other day Dolores Hope gave a rare interview at the family spread in the Toluca Lake section of the San Fernando Valley. She is an elegant woman unabashedly facing her 75th birthday. Her quiet manner is deceptive.

She is well-organized and smoothly oversees a host of charities, two mammoth houses — the other is on a Palm Springs hillside — and a peripatetic husband.

"I suppose he is something of an endangered species," said Mrs. Hope, who will be among the guests May 28 on NBC's "Super Birthday: A World's Fair Salute to Bob Hope." He turns 81 May 28.

"But really, Bob is quite easy to care for, in terms of food and rest," she said. "He has a little extra weight now, and I told him, 'You're not going to tape the show like that, are you?' The trouble is all those dinners. You sit there with nothing to do so you eat."

"But he knows how to take care of himself," she continued. "He does all his packing, and he never takes anyone with him. When he has a cold or a fever, he goes out and plays golf, hits a bucket of balls. He refuses to baby himself."

What's what

Tennessee Ernie Ford's version of "Onward Christian Soldiers" started a small war in Ghana on March 24, 1974. An unsuccessful military uprising. Revolutionists played that song over Radio Uganda as their signal to attack. They got whipped.

"Quick, Henry, the Fiat!" You've heard that old ad slogan. It was coined by a copywriter for an advertising agency in the 1920s. Theodor Geisel, by name, he of later fame as the "Dr. Seuss" author of children's books.

People wore mantles. They draped them to dry from shelves over fireplaces. After awhile, the mantles became known as cloaks and the shelves became known as mantles.

FIRE!
Q. In some places it's a criminal offense to yell "Fire" in a public place unless there really is a fire. What tragically led to that?

A. Happened at a Christmas party for the families of copper miners in Calumet, Mich., in 1913. Somebody shouted that word—Everybody panicked. Seventy-two of them, mostly children, were trampled to death. That was only one of many such tragedies.

Q. Poet Edgar Allan Poe was kicked out of West Point. Why?

A. Parade uniform was announced as "white belts and gloves, under arms." Poe showed up with a white belt, white gloves, and his rifle, otherwise stark naked. Or so goes the oft-repeated story. I don't believe it. His 1831 discharge says "gross neglect of duty."

RED GOLF BALLS
That Woodrow Wilson so liked golf that he played it in the snow with colored golf balls has been reported. It was the renowned Rudyard Kipling, however, who invented "snow golf," while enjoying what he called five of the happiest years of his life in Brattleboro, Vt. He painted his golf balls red.

In only one society worldwide are the people known to be entirely free of cancer — the Hunzas of northwest Kashmir.

It has been against federal law since 1899 for any factory to dump any waste in any U.S. body of water.

Chinese acrobats win spotlight at Olympic Arts Festival

By MICHAEL PARKS
The Los Angeles Times

PEKING — Her long braids trailing behind her as she lies on her back, the young Chinese acrobat tosses, she opens it with her foot and sets it spinning upside down, like a top, on the other foot. She adds a second and then a third, quickly juggling them back and forth between her feet and finally stacking the three, one on top of the other.

She somersaults, does handstands and imitates the footwork of a ballerina, all the time juggling two or three umbrellas above with her feet. Later, she opens two more of the umbrellas, each about three feet in diameter, and juggles all five from hand to foot in intricate patterns. Sometimes they spin like airplane propellers; sometimes they turn very slowly, barely fast enough to stay upright.

"For any acrobat, it is a very, very good trick, but what makes it a standout is the precision, the delicacy and the subtle artistry which she does it," says Mark Wilson, a Los Angeles magician and impresario, who was here recently auditioning acrobats and made acts for an American engagement. The virtuosity is captivating.

Chinese acrobats, who will be among the performing artists in this summer's Olympic Arts Festival in Los Angeles, have developed a distinctive style over 2,500 years of acrobatics that runs what elsewhere would be circus acts into one of China's national arts.

"Chinese acrobats emphasize the beauty of perfect execution," says Ye Mingshu, an official of the China Performing Arts Agency, which is sending the Chengdu Acrobatic Troupe to Los Angeles for the festival.

"For Chinese, something done exactly right, even though it might only seem some kind of stunt, can be beautiful. You can see this in our other arts, too, and that is why the finest flaw — just a misstep — can ruin a performance. Where foreign audiences might see the spectacle, the circus aspect, Chinese audiences see the artistry of refined skills, of the development of traditional styles."

For example, there is Wu Min, 25, a member of the Hangzhou acrobatic troupe who became one of China's newest acrobatic stars by winning a prestigious international competition a year ago. Wu has raised the fairly routine trick of spinning plates atop four-foot wands to an extraordinary level. Not only can Wu spin 12 porcelain dinner plates at a time, six wands in each hand, but she does slow somersaults and other bits of gymnastics while she keeps all the plates twirling.

The finale of Wu's act involves four other women — kneeling and standing around her, all spinning plates — and a 12-year-old girl, who also is spinning several plates while bent over backwards on a frame that Wu holds in her mouth. Wu can total 42 plates spinning; the array does resemble "Glistening Petals Highlighting Red Flowers," the poetic Chinese for the act, which won first prize at the Acrobatic Festival of Tomorrow, held in January 1983 in Paris.

Chinese acrobats seem able, in fact, to juggle almost anything that one finds around a Chinese home: rice bowls, teapots, 25-pound earthen jars, bowls full of water, badminton rackets, large straw hats, and open-carpets that seem to be flying magically as they spin in the air. A Shanghai performer even juggles his young assistant with his feet as though she were no heavier than a parasol.

Chinese acrobats also build 30 and 40-foot towers of chairs, benches or ladders while doing handstands on the top. They do breathtaking backward leaps through large hoops piled six feet high. And they turn leather straps hanging from rafters above the stage into a forest, with the acrobats imitating a dozen animals climbing through the trees.

All of this the Chinese call simply zhu, or "assorted skills," which include not only acrobatics and juggling but also contortion, vocal mimicry, clowning and magic. Zhu Muzhi, the Chinese minister of culture, described the best of it as belonging to "the cream of our national culture."

Although some of the skills are practiced in other countries by acrobats and circus performers, Chinese acrobats believe that many skills are uniquely theirs, having grown out of the long history of acrobatics in China — first as an imperial entertainment and later as popular showmanship.

Two thousand-year-old clay figures of acrobats, jugglers and contortionists, some doing the same tricks that are popular today, were unearthed several years ago by archeologists excavating Han dynasty tombs in Shandong, one of the major centers of acrobatics in East China. Chinese historians record Emperor Wu Di as having had acrobats entertain foreign emissaries in the 2nd Century B.C., and Emperor Yang Di as having organized a show of 10,000 Chinese acrobats to impress visiting Turkish Khan in the 6th Century A.D.

Court acrobatics gradually became popular through the development of local circuses and traveling shows, according to Chinese historians, but they deteriorated when performers became thought of as little better than vagabonds and beggars.

"Although they were immensely popular, acrobats fell into disrepute because their social status was little more than that of street performers," said Ye, the Performing Arts Agency official. "People enjoyed their tricks, but did not respect them. Young people, as a result, did not want to become acrobats, and some acrobatic skills were lost over the past five centuries, and some acts that historians describe cannot be done now. During the last three decades, however, we have had a revitalization of acrobatics through the government's establishment of more than 120 professional troupes."

Although China now has more than 12,000 professional acrobats — a remarkable figure, even in a country of 1.1 billion people — most acrobatic skills are still handed down from parent to child. Now, however, efforts are being made to recruit promising youths — often as young as 6 or 7 — for the 10 years of training that it takes to become a good acrobat. Less than three years ago, the government accorded professional acrobats a status akin to that of musicians, actors and writers, and it recently authorized establishment of a national acrobatic school and theater in Peking to improve the training.

The reason Chinese acrobats are so good technically is that most of their own acts exclusively, whereas Americans and Europeans tend to do double and triple duty," said Wilson, who arranged a 10-week summer run for seven acts at a New Jersey amusement park.

"Chinese acrobats are not only entertaining but are displaying a special kind of artistry, too."

Boyfriend offers his buddies to girl as part of package

DEAR ABBY: For the last six months I have been going with a most loving and wonderful man. I am 20.

He keeps telling me he loves me, but the last few weeks he has been asking me to go to various places with some of his friends — such as to bed. He assures me that he loves me, but when I refuse to go to bed with his friends he says he doesn't understand me. I told him that the only man I want to go to bed with is him, and I can't understand why he wants to share me with his friends. He said a former girlfriend told him that that was the way to tell if a girl really loved him.

Please help me, Abby. I love him more than anything in the world and I don't want to lose him.

DEAR IN LOVE IN SEATTLE: I told him that the only man I want to go to bed with is him, and I can't understand why he wants to share me with his friends. He said a former girlfriend told him that that was the way to tell if a girl really loved him.

I hate to be the bearer of bad news, but the man is very bad news, and the sooner you dump him, the better.

DEAR ABBY: My stepdaughter, (I'll call her Betty) was recently married in a lovely church wedding. Her mother was escorted to the wedding by a relative.

Betty and I have never been what you would call "close," but there has never been a harsh word between us. I have been married to her father for over a year, and Betty seemed genuinely happy that her daddy found happiness with me because she knew that her parents had lived in a hopelessly bad marriage for years.

Abigail Van Buren
Dear Abby

After the ceremony, Betty asked the photographer to take some pictures, summoning her mother, father and younger brother to pose with her and her new in-laws to pose with her and her new husband.

I stood on the sidelines, but was not asked to be in even one picture! Betty must have noticed how hurt I was because she smiled at me and said, "These are family pictures."

Abby, am I not "family?" I am her father's wife. Am I wrong to feel hurt?

DEAR HURT: Feelings are neither "wrong" nor "right" — they are the honest emotional responses to what happens to us.

In Betty's mind, only blood relatives were "family." It was no reflection on you. She was very insensitive for failing to include you in at least one picture, but she was probably more thoughtless than intentionally cruel.

DEAR ABBY: I just came home from a visit to my new doctor. (My old doctor retired and now I have a young one.) He is the age of my youngest child, yet he called me "Kathy."

When will doctors realize that not all older women appreciate this presumptuous "friendliness"? If I were to correct him, it would put a strain on our relationship, so I keep quiet. The office nurse also calls me "Kathy," which irritates me.

Please print this, Abby. It may get the message across.

— CALL ME MRS. DEAR MRS.: I suggest that you tell the doctor and his nurse that you prefer to be called "Mrs." Why worry about straining a relationship that's already been strained? It might improve it.

Tigers burn up road at record pace

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — The record, the latest in a series of Detroit achievements, was not on Jack Morris' mind.

"I really wasn't thinking about it. The only thing on my mind was the game at hand," said Morris, who indeed had Thursday night's game with the California Angels in his hand.

Morris' four-hitter with 10 strikeouts gave the Tigers a 5-1 victory and led the major league record of 17 consecutive victories on the road. Detroit, 35-5 and unbeaten away from home this year, equaled the 1916 New York Giants' major league record for most consecutive road wins.

"This was one of my better efforts of the season," said Morris, who fired a no-hitter on April 7. "It's hard to imagine a team staying as hot as we are. We're happier than heck about it."

Does it feel like a fantasy? It feels real to me.

"Knowing that sooner or later we'll score some runs makes my job easier."

Detroit's ninth consecutive win put it 8½ games ahead of second-place Toronto in the East and snapped the AL standard of 16 straight road wins.

set by the 1912 Washington Senators. Morris, 31, walked only one in going the route for the sixth time and allowed only a first-inning, unearned run.

Rod Carew scored after singling with one out, stealing second, taking third on Doug DeCinces' infield single and continuing home when third baseman Barbaro Garbey threw away the ball.

California's 1-0 lead survived only until the Tigers erupted for four runs in the fourth. Lou Whitaker led off with a walk and Alan Trammell powered his fifth homer off right-hander Jim Slaton, 1-2. Singles by Kirk Gibson, Lance Parrish and Darrell Evans accounted for another run and Parrish scored when Larry Herndon bounced into a double play. Parrish's solo homer in the sixth, his seventh, gave the Tigers a 5-1 lead. On Wednesday, Parrish's two-run homer in the seventh inning gave the Tigers a 4-2 victory over the Angels and an AL record tying 16th consecutive triumph on the road.

The 1912 Senators featured pitcher Walter Johnson. The 1916 Giants of Manager John J. McGraw were led by pitcher Christy Mathewson, who was in his last year at the Polo Grounds.

By contrast, the 1984 Tigers are relative unknowns. But their grizzled manager, Sparky Anderson, thinks it is a team for the ages. "This club is just coming into its own," Anderson said after Tuesday night's 3-1 Detroit victory over the Angels ran the team's overall record to 33-5.

"For the next six or seven years, they're going to be good. We'll lose just like any other team but when you beat us, you'll know you've beaten a good team. It's worth the price of a ticket just to watch these kids play defense."

In another late game on the Pacific Coast Thursday night, New York knuckleballer Phil Niekro pitched seven shutout innings and Don Baylor drilled his third homer in as many games as the Yankees beat the Seattle Mariners 2-0 in Seattle.

Niekro, 72, lowered his league-leading earned run average to 1.20 as he struck out seven, walked one and scattered five hits. The 45-year-old right-hander picked up his 27th career victory.

Jay Howell worked the eighth and Dave Rightt came on after a leadoff single by Phil Bradley in the ninth. Rightt picked up his sixth save.

Baylor ripped his seventh homer of the season into the left-field seats with one out in the sixth. He had fouled off four straight pitches from rookie left-hander Mark Langston, 2-4, before ripping the 3-2 pitch to give New York a 1-0 lead.

New York picked up its own run in the seventh when Dave Winfield hammered a two-out double off reliever Mike Stanton to score Willie Randolph. With one out, Randolph had doubled to right for his third hit of the game to chase Langston. Stanton retired Toby Harrah on a groundout before Winfield delivered.

Seattle's best chance to score came in the sixth. With one out, Rick Perconte singled and went to third on Bradley's hit-and-run single. Bradley stole second, but Niekro struck out Alvin Davis and Ken Phelps.

Romania informs allies it will go to LA Games

By LARRY GERBER
The Associated Press

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia — Romania's delegate to a conference of Eastern Bloc athletic ministers told International Olympic Committee President Juan Antonio Samaranch here Wednesday that his country will send a team to the Summer Olympics in Los Angeles.

Romanian athletes "are preparing to go to Los Angeles and they are going to Los Angeles," said Alexandru Siperco, vice president of both his country's Olympic Committee and the IOC.

The statement followed a special one-day meeting during which sports chiefs from boycotting nations also indicated that North Korea had joined the Soviet-led boycott and said they were planning their own post-Olympic games.

Attending the session were top sports officials from Romania, the Soviet Union, Czechoslovakia, Hungary, Poland, Bulgaria, Mongolia, Vietnam, Cuba and East Germany. North Korea also was represented. All of the countries except Romania have announced that they will boycott the Los Angeles Games.

Laos and Afghanistan, the other boycotting countries, were not represented at the meeting. Cuba announced Wednesday it was boycotting the Games.

In Rome, the president of the Italian Olympic Committee and head of the European Olympic Committees said Thursday that any nations that participate in any counter-Olympics this summer risk sanctions for doing so.

"Whoever organizes international events of Olympic sports during this period (of the Los Angeles games) violates the regulation and therefore faces sanctions," Franco Carraro told a news conference.

International sports sources have said the Soviet Union and its Communist allies boycotting the Los Angeles Games might organize separate competitions for their athletes denied the opportunity to compete in the United States.

The Olympic charter prohibits members from organizing meets during the games, which are set for July 28-Aug. 12, and the official statements of boycotting countries have emphasized their support of the charter.

East Bloc nations hint boycott of '88 Games

By LARRY GERBER
The Associated Press

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia — Communist nations boycotting the Los Angeles Olympics rejected the latest plea for a reconsideration Thursday and placed the fate of the 1988 Games in question by expressing "unease" with South Korea as the site of the next summer Olympiad.

The statement followed a special one-day meeting during which sports chiefs from boycotting nations also indicated that North Korea had joined the Soviet-led boycott and said they were planning their own post-Olympic games.

International Olympic Committee President Juan Antonio Samaranch's lone success was a commitment by Soviet ally Romania to send a team to the Los Angeles Games.

An official communique carried by the CTK, the Czech news agency, and translated by The Associated Press indicated that North Korea had joined the boycott, although there was no official announcement.

"The national Olympic committees of socialist countries, with the exception of the National Olympic Committee of Romania, were forced to decide on non-participation of their sportsmen in the 23rd Olympic Games," the statement by the communist sports officials said.

"The Reagan administration unfortunately did not carry out effective measures for ensuring the security of the socialist countries' sportsmen and committed many violations of the Olympic charter," it said without giving details.

The boycotters decided to stage their own games after the July 28-Aug. 12 Olympics. The Olympic charter forbids top-caliber international meets from being held during the Games.

"These games will be open to all sportsmen," said Antonin Hirm, president of the Czechoslovak Olympic Committee, speaking on national television. He did not give a complete schedule, but said women's track and field, women's handball, gymnastics for both sexes and archery would be held in this country.

Ueberroth insists LA doesn't need Soviets

By EVAN MAXWELL
Los Angeles Times

LOS ANGELES — A record 123 nations have officially said they will take part in the Los Angeles Olympic Games despite a boycott led by the Soviet Union that has now spread to 12 countries, Olympic organizer Peter Ueberroth said Thursday.

Ueberroth said Syria and Nicaragua, both allies of the Soviet Union, had accepted their invitations. National Olympic committees officially have until June 2 to accept their invitations to the Games, but the Los Angeles organizers began a campaign to elicit responses soon after the Soviets announced their boycott two weeks ago.

The results of the canvass of national Olympic committees, conducted in the past week by a cadre of volunteers and Los Angeles Olympic Organizing Committee envoys working virtually around the clock, showed that the Soviet boycott has "fallen miserably and has been given a kick in the backside," Ueberroth told a news conference.

Ueberroth said that the number of acceptances indicates that the Los Angeles Games will surpass the 1972 Munich Games in numbers of teams and numbers of athletes. The Munich Games were attended by 122 nations and by 7,147 athletes, contrasted with the 7,400 athletes now expected at the Los Angeles Games.

Ueberroth said he expected the Soviet Union to continue its campaign, "which he characterized as a violation of the Olympic Charter and a violation of promises made by its officials not to spread the boycott — even after the June 2 deadline.

JAMA: Ban blows to head in boxing

By VICTOR COHN
The Washington Post

If society will not ban boxing, it should ban blows to the head, the Journal of the American Medical Association says in an editorial to be published Friday.

A new study indicates that most boxers suffer some irreversible brain damage and loss of memory of recent events, Dr. George Lundberg, the Journal's editor, said in his signed editorial.

"The slaughter continues," he added, despite the Journal's January 1983 call for a ban on boxing. That widely publicized editorial and the deaths of 11 fighters from ring injuries since then prompted several states to pass laws to protect boxers. These laws either tightened medical supervision or let ring doctors stop matches to examine boxers.

But none of these measures will alleviate boxing's most serious problem — chronic brain damage," Lundberg wrote.

He cited a journal report on 18 unidentified current or former boxers — including two former professional champions, three high-ranked professional contenders and four amateur champions — with an average of 83 blows.

None had any previously known medical, neurological or mental problems, or history of drug or alcohol abuse. All the former boxers held full-time jobs. In short, this group seemed far less likely than obviously punch-drunk fighters to show brain damage.

None of the 18 had abnormal CT scans, mainly areas of brain atrophy, a neurological oriented physical, an electroencephalogram (brain-wave study), a CT (computerized X-ray) scan and a battery of neuropsychological (question-and-answer) tests.

Eight of the 18 had abnormal CT scans, mainly areas of brain atrophy. Three current Golden Gloves fighters came through unscathed on physical, brain-wave and X-ray exams. But all 18 subjects had at least one abnormal neuropsychological test score.

"Either boxing should be abolished, which we favor, or blows to the head should be made illegal," Lundberg concluded. "Blows to the testes were considered limits long ago. Boxing could remain a sport of speed, skill, bravery, stamina, cunning and strength. Crowds cheer, devastating liver and kidney punches. But the men fighting their way out of the ghettos wouldn't have to lose brain substance on the way out."

The AMA last summer moved beyond its moderate policy of encouraging more safety measures in boxing with a vote to try to get boxing eliminated from amateur scholastic, intercollegiate and governmental programs.

Federal legislation proposing a congressional advisory committee on boxing failed to get out of subcommittee last year in the U.S. House, Lundberg said.

He cited figures compiled by Ring magazine showing 11 fighters have died as a result of injuries suffered in the ring since January 1983. According to the magazine, 31 boxers died between 1945 and 1982.

Brothwell gets shot at Games

By BERT ROSENTHAL
The Associated Press

BUFFALO, N.Y. — Bellevue's Monte Brothwell will face some tough company Saturday as he attempts to win one of three spots on the U.S. Olympic Team in the marathon.

Brothwell will run in a field headed by Ron Tabb at the U.S. Olympic Marathon Trials.

Brothwell, a former Wood River High School and College of Southern Idaho distance star, won the right to compete in the Olympic trials with his victory in the Portland Marathon last October. But he will need his best marathon time ever to stay with runners the likes of Alberto Salazar, the world's fastest marathoner.

Tabb, generally considered to be the runner to beat in this race, will be out to erase the memory of a fourth-place finish in the 1980 trials and to show that his 18th place in last year's World Championships was not indicative of his ability.

About 175 of the nation's best distance runners will take part in the 26-mile, 385-race race Saturday morning.

In addition to Tabb and Salazar, the field will include Greg Meyer and Tony Santol. These four are the favorites to take the first three places and earn berths on the Olympic team.

"They're going to have to work hard to get them," warned Tabb. "I'm not afraid of any of them."

Tabb has been labeled as inconsistent by fellow marathoner Benji Durdan and one who "only seems to run well when he's picking up the pieces" by Meyer, the 1983 Boston Marathon winner.

"I don't agree with those assessments," said Tabb, 29. "Last year, except for the World Championships, I was very consistent."

"I finished second at Boston (to Meyer) in 2 hours, 40 minutes, 32 seconds, making him the No. 5 performer on the all-time U.S. list), third at New York (in 2:10:46) and I won at Sydney (Australia, in 2:10:54) and in China (at Peking, in 2:18:51, in broiling 90-degree heat)."

Even at the World Championships, Tabb stayed with the leaders for the first 18.6 miles. But he faded and wound up 18th in 2:13:38.

"I felt the time was respectable, but it was not indicative of the shape I was in," he said. "It was more mental than anything."

The two-time defending Olympic champion in the marathon, Waldemar Cierpinski of East Germany, will not be competing in Los Angeles because his country is boycotting the games.

Tough B-M leads field for tourney

TWIN FALLS — Eleven women's softball teams from around the state and one from Salt Lake City will be in town this weekend to participate in the Twin Falls Open and B Tournament Saturday and Sunday.

The tournament will feature seven teams, including a pair from Nampa and two squads from Boise.

Barger-Maison from Nampa, one of the stronger teams in the state, will be one of the favorites to win the open competition in the tourney. The Nampa squad won the state championship last year and placed seventh in the national tournament.

Twin Falls' only two A-league teams in the tournament, Falls Brand/Coors of Magic Valley and Donnelly Sports/Latham Motors should be tough and may give the team from Nampa a run for the title.

In the Class B, only five teams are competing for honors in that division. Gooding Lumber and Jovial Jerry's of Mountain Home have been tabbed early favorites in that competition, although Dick's Pharmacy and Norm's Cafe of Twin Falls have another shot at winning the crown.

The tourney will be played all day Saturday at Harmon and Frontier diamonds, with the competition scheduled to be complete on Sunday night at 8:30 p.m. game at Harmon.

The round-robin tournament will start both days at 11 a.m. The open is the first of a series of national softball tournaments that will be played in Twin Falls.

Sizzling Chicago two-times Atlanta

By The Associated Press

On a day better suited for flying kites than batted baseballs, the Chicago Cubs got the better of the 53 hits pounded out in Wrigley Field, including six of the seven home runs, to sweep Thursday's double-header from the Atlanta Braves.

Leon Durham ripped a pair of three-run homers and the Cubs held on to take the opener 10-7 after leading 9-0 going into the seventh inning. Ron Cey smacked a three-run homer and Jody Davis, who also homered in the opener, added a solo shot in the nightcap for a 7-5 victory, extending one first-place Cubs' longest winning streak of the season to six games and giving them a double-header sweep for the first time in almost four years.

A 17-mile-an-hour blast blowing to straightaway center field for most of the day added more than one long ball.

"We're getting some tremendous mileage out of different people," said Chicago Manager Jim Frey when told that the Cubs had collected 10 or more hits in 21 of their 41 games this season. "I don't know how long that's going to last, but we have to take advantage of it as long as it lasts."

Atlanta Manager Joe Torre watched his head over the home run differential.

"Something I find hard to believe," said Torre, whose Braves lost the long-ball contest 7-2 during the three-game series sweep by the Cubs. "They beat us 20-3 (in home runs) last year. I couldn't figure it out then and I'm not going to try now."

In the first game, Durham — whose six RBI were a career high — drilled his first three-run shot in the first inning off local Pascual Perez, 2-1. It was Perez's first loss since returning to baseball earlier this month after he was suspended following a drug conviction in his native Dominican Republic.

In the nightcap, Rick Reuschel, 2-1, earned the win going 6 1/2 innings, Oakland 3, Baltimore 2.

In Oakland, Calif., Dave Kingman boosted his RBI total to 37 with a bases-loaded sacrifice fly in the eighth inning, leading the Oakland A's to a victory over the Baltimore Orioles. Bill Krueger, 2-1, scattered eight hits — four by John Shelby — in notching the victory. Bill Caudill received his eighth save of the year, coming on in the ninth inning with one man on base and one out.

Pittsburgh 3, Cincinnati 1. In Pittsburgh, Larry McWilliams scattered eight hits and Lee Mazzilli and Dale Berra each drove in two runs to lead the Pittsburgh Pirates to a victory over the Cincinnati Reds.

McWilliams, 2-3, lost his bid for his second shutout in a row when right fielder Lee Lacy's two-base error in the sixth inning allowed the Reds to score their only run.

San Francisco 3, New York Mets 2. In New York, Mike Krukow continued his mastery over New York with a four-hitter and Bob Brenly hit a tie-breaking home run in the sixth inning, leading the San Francisco Giants to a victory over the Mets.

Krukow, 3-5, allowed only two hits after the third inning in defeating the Mets for the eighth consecutive time since June 25, 1960, and boosting his career mark against them to 13-3. The veteran right-hander struck out nine and walked two.

Texas 4, Milwaukee 3. In Arlington, Texas, Dave

Hostetter's fourth-inning solo homer backed Dave Stewart's six-hit pitching and the Texas Rangers earned a victory over the Milwaukee Brewers.

Stewart raised his record to 3-6 with eight solo innings. Dave Schmidt pitched the ninth for his second save. Milwaukee's Mike Caldwell, who lasted six innings and yielded 10 hits, tell to-4. Philadelphia 4, Los Angeles 3. In Philadelphia, Len Matuszek's bases-loaded infield hit with two out in the ninth inning scored Juan Samuel and gave the Philadelphia Phillies a victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers.

Reliever Pat Zachry, 2-1, yielded Samuel's National League-leading seventh triple of the season with one out on the Dodgers intentionally walked Greg Gross and Mike Schmidt to load the bases.

In a late game, it was New York at Seattle.

MOC gets under way today

BOISE — The first phase of the second annual Meet of Champions high school track and field meet will get under way this afternoon in Bronco Stadium here with the dedication and heptathlon events.

The top finishers in last week's Idaho Track and Field Meet were invited to this meet, which was organized a year ago by Jerome High School athletic director Jim Jundt and moved from Jerome to Boise this year. Some of the top athletes in the state, such as Capital's D.D. Harris and Rigby's Troy Shippen, will be competing in the decathlon and the heptathlon for the first time today.

The bulk of the track and field events won't get under way until Saturday. Most of the top track athletes from the Magic Valley will be on hand.

Five events of the decathlon — a 10-event display of overall athletic prowess for men — and four events in the seven-event heptathlon will be run tonight, beginning at 5 p.m. The balance of the decathlon and heptathlon will be completed Saturday night in conjunction with the main track and field events.

Action is scheduled to get started Saturday at 4 p.m. for the field events and 5 p.m. for the running events.

No defensive gem for St. Paul's

TWIN FALLS — 'Slow-pitch softball is not a game of inches.

First Nazarene discovered that Thursday night as it scored 18 runs in Twin Falls Church League Class B men's action. But St. Paul's Lutheran scored 32 runs, eclipsing First Nazarene's hitting display.

In other B-league church league games, St. Edward's whipped First Assembly 27-9 and United Methodist thumped Community Christian 21-5. In Class A, Community Christian defeated United Methodist by 12-8 and Sandpiper/Ground Pound blanked Sandpiper Syndicate/Rour House 16-0.

In women's slow-pitch games, Payless Duro defeated Guy Rose Shop 12-6, Dahle's/Latham Motors edged Hawkins/Jerry Young Construction 6-4, Gem Linn outlasted King Video 17-15, Coors of Magic Valley/Ealls Brand routed Norm's Cafe 18-4, The Food Shack/Idaho Frozen Foods 6-5 and North's Chuck Wagner/Nebecker Construction got past Dick's Pharmacy 9-7.

Softball
Twin Falls Reformed routed First Nazarene 15-5 and St. Paul's Lutheran defeated Trinity Lutheran 11-6.

In city league men's action, Cook's Pest Control edged Hawkins/Kawasaki 9-7 in spite of home run by H.K.'s John Johnson. In a pair of Class A games, DGS Motors defeated Commercial Tire

Senior series at CSCC this weekend

TWIN FALLS — The second stop of the Idaho Seniors' Golf Association season will be made this weekend at Canyon Springs Golf Course.

It will be a 36-hole medal play tournament with net and gross prizes away in various age divisions for men and women. A host-ship is planned for tonight with a dinner slated for Saturday.

Tea "limes" will be assigned for Saturday play and the event will conclude with an 8:30 a.m. Sunday shotgun start.

The next ISGA tournament will be played at Rupert Country Club June 23-24.

Muni-Coors to tee off on Saturday

TWIN FALLS — Members of the Twin Falls Golf Association will compete in their annual Coors Tournament this weekend, winding up with an annual scotchball elimination derby Monday.

Popular racer rejoins 500's starting ranks

By MIKE HARRIS
The Associated Press

INDIANAPOLIS — Fun-loving Chris Kneifel, who tried to mask his sorrow at being bumped from the starting field for Sunday's Indianapolis 500, was back in the lineup Thursday with the help of friend and former teammate Jacques Villeneuve.

Kneifel, first alternate for the 68th Indy classic, was thrust back into the picture for the $2.5 million race when Villeneuve was ruled "medically unfit" because of a concussion suffered last week when he crashed his backup car during a practice session.

Kneifel is the first alternate to start the race since the alternate system was inaugurated after World War II.

Villeneuve's Canadian Tire team, owned by David G. Billes, withdrew its qualified car Thursday rather than hire another driver for its first Indianapolis entry or sell the 1982 March-Cosworth to one of several teams.

Kneifel, through Lee Kunzman, the manager of his Erismas racing team, bought his way back into the race by paying less than $50,000 — about what the last place car in the race will get in prize money — for the Villeneuve car to be withdrawn.

Kneifel, who started 25th and finished 12th in his first Indy race, qualified at 199.831 mph but was bumped last Saturday by Johnny Rutherford, the last driver to complete a four-lap, 10-mile qualification run.

Kneifel still had a backup car that he's been driving at more than 202 mph in practice, but Sunday's final qualification period was raised out and the disappointed Kneifel became first alternate.

However, he left Indianapolis Sunday night knowing that Villeneuve's availability still was questionable.

"I tried to forget about all this as well as I could," Kneifel said. "I figured if Jacques had any say in the matter, that he'd take care of me, and I'm thankful that he did."

In 1982, Kneifel pulled out of an Indy car race in Phoenix, Ariz., to preserve his rookie status on the 1983 circuit and gave the ride to Villeneuve, his former-Formula Atlantic teammate.

"It was a good experience for me," Villeneuve said. "I'm just returning the favor now."

Kneifel insisted he was not a party to the negotiations which went on through Wednesday night and the early hours Thursday with Kunzman and representatives of several other teams hoping to buy Villeneuve's car and the 33rd starting position.

Villeneuve had put the car into the field at 200.013 mph — slowest speed in the "original" starting field, but good tentatively for the 28th starting position.

"I've been out of town all week. I was on vacation in Houston," Kneifel said. "I went boating, crashed the boat, had a real good time. Enjoyed myself more for three days at 40 Houston than I did most of the month I was here. I got back in town about 1:30 in the morning and found out about five minutes before 11 (Thursday morning) that Jacques had withdrawn the car."

The withdrawal spoiled auto racing's first all-200-mph field.

But Kneifel said, "I couldn't care less. Two years ago now, nobody's going to give a hoot whether I was at 183 or 192."

Villeneuve, 28-year-old brother of the late Formula One star Gilles Villeneuve, said he caused his own banishment by telling doctors he had had momentary lapses of memory.

"It's my fault," the defending Can-Am champion said. "I opened my mouth when I shouldn't have. I said I wasn't feeling too good two days ago. I went to a shopping center and was lost for a fraction of a second. They call it some kind of brain damage where it will happen once in a while before I get well in two or three weeks. Maybe it will happen and I won't notice and nobody else will, either, because it will be a fraction of a second."

"I feel like I'm good enough to go racing right now. ... If they tested me now, I don't think they'd find anything wrong with me. But maybe it's best I did open my mouth. Maybe it could happen in the race and I could endanger other drivers."

Thirty-two of the 33 starters, were on the Speedway's 2 1/2-mile oval for Thursday's two-hour practice session, only one between the end of qualifications last Sunday and the noon EDT start of the race Sunday.

Others over 200 were Colombian rookie Robert Guerrero, 205.058, two-time Indy winner Gordon Johncock, 204.178, Bobby Rahal 203.206, Italian Teo Fabi 202.839 and Danny Ongais 202.020.

Briefly in Sports

ISU basketball coach resigns

POCATELLO — Idaho State University assistant basketball Coach Greg Gensing has resigned to accept a similar position at Pan American University in Edinburg, Texas. Gensing has been an assistant to ISU Coach Wayne Ballard for the past two seasons.

Buhl Legion team starts play

BUHL — The Buhl American Legion baseball team will kick off its season Saturday with an intra-squad scrimmage. The game will be played at 6 p.m. at the Legion field here. Buhl will start the 1984 season on June 1 in Idaho Falls.

Sampson named NBA's rookie

NEW YORK (AP) — Ralph Sampson, who said he "really didn't know what to expect" during his first pro season, was named Thursday the National Basketball Association's Rookie of the Year, the first unanimous winner since Kareem Abdul-Jabbar in 1979.

The 7-foot-4 Houston Rockets center led his team in scoring, rebounding and blocked shots and averaged 21 points per game to lead all first-year players.

The No. 1 pick in last year's NBA college draft, Sampson drew all 76 votes cast by a panel of sportswriters and broadcasters and will receive the Eddie Gottlieb Trophy, named after the coach of the NBA's first championship team and one of the league's founders.

Sampson ranked fifth in the NBA in rebounding with 11.1 rebounds per game and third in shootingblock with 2.40 blocks per game in helping Houston improve from 14 wins in 1982 to 29 wins last season.

McEnroe nets 34th win in row

DUESSELDORF, West Germany (AP) — John McEnroe, untroubled by a three-hour rain-caused interruption, scored his 34th consecutive victory by downing Jose Luis Clerc, 6-3, 6-3, to power the United States to an unbeatable 2-0 lead over Argentina in the $31,000 Ambre Solaire World Team Tennis Cup Thursday.

It was McEnroe's first victory over Clerc on clay, following two Davis Cup defeats, in 1982 and 1983.

McEnroe put the U.S. team ahead and Jimmy Arias clinched the match with a 6-2, 6-3 victory over Alejandro Gattiker.

The doubles match was halted by rain with McEnroe and Peter Fleming leading Clerc and Gattiker 6-0, 5-1 and McEnroe serving at 30-30. The match will be resumed Friday.

In the other match in the Blue Group, West Germany upset Spain, 2-0, as Andreas Maurer, ranked 78th in the world, topped Jose Higueras, no. 15, 6-4, 6-4.

Olympic winner in Ice Capades

DENVER (AP) — Olympic gold medalist Scott Hamilton has signed a multi-year contract with Ice Capades and will join the tour as a skater in August, according to Ice Capades President Richard Palmer.

Hamilton, winner of four straight world championships in men's skating, indicated after winning the gold medal in the 1984 Winter Olympics that he had decided to turn professional.

Palmer made the announcement Thursday at Ice Capades headquarters in Los Angeles. Terms of the contract were not disclosed.

"Scott will bring a very unique and exciting style of skating to our shows and we are very happy to have this world-renowned athlete as a member of our Ice Capades family," Palmer said.

The diminutive, Denver-trained skater is now on tour with Classics on Ice, which performed Wednesday night at McNichols Arena in Denver.

Halling leading LPGA at Corning

CORNING, N.Y. (AP) — Long-hitting Debbie Hall shot an eagle, three birdies and a bogey Thursday for a 68 and a one-stroke lead over Pat Meyers in the first round of the $150,000 LPGA Corning Classic.

Vicki Ferguson, Sherri Turner and Mary Haleman were two strokes out of the lead at 2-under-par as little-known players dominated the first round.

JoAnne Carner, Ayako Okamoto of Japan, Pat Bradley, Jan Stephenson, Sharon Barrett, Lenore Muraoka and Jane Geddes were tied three strokes back after shooting opening round 71s.

Defending champion Patty Sheehan, who took five weeks off to get ready for Corning, shot a 4-over-par 76 and had nothing to say to reporters afterward.

Long hitters did well on the slightly damp, 6,023-yard Corning Country Club course.

Rose Bowl to host Super Bowl

WASHINGTON (AP) — National Football League club owners on Thursday picked the Rose Bowl in Pasadena, Calif., as the site of Super Bowl XXI on January 25, 1987.

The selection for Pasadena, which last hosted a Super Bowl in 1983, came on the 13th ballot as the league's 29 owners reviewed the bids of 14 cities vying for the NFL championship.

The owners, meeting in executive session, were expected to name the site of the 1988 Super Bowl Thursday night.

Lloyd, Temesvari enter finals

PERUGIA, Italy (AP) — Top-seeded Chris Evert Lloyd of the United States and defending champion Andrea Temesvari of Hungary on Thursday advanced to the quarterfinals of the $150,000 Italian Open women's tennis championships.

Lloyd defeated Anna Maria Cecchini of Italy 6-4, 6-2, while Temesvari beat Yugoslavia's Sabrina Goleg 6-2, 6-4 to set up their meeting Friday at Perugia's Junior Tennis Club.

In the other quarterfinals, local favorite Raffaella Reggi meets Lisa Bondar of Saline, Mich.; Canada's Carling Bassett plays South African Yvonne Vermaak, and Bulgaria's Manuela Maleeva meets Romania's Virginia Ruzici.

Reggi beat Rene Uys of South Africa 6-3, 6-1; Bondar defeated Ivanna Madruga-Osses of Argentina 6-3, 6-4, and Bassett downed Laura Arrauva, Peru, 6-3, 6-2.

Vermaak defeated Marcela Mesker of Holland 6-4, 7-5; Maleeva defeated Susie Mascarin of the United States 7-5, 6-2; and Ruzici defeated Vicki Nelson of the United States 6-3, 6-0.

Andretti seeks two dreams

By MIKE HARRIS
The Associated Press

INDIANAPOLIS — Mario Andretti has two goals in Sunday's $2.5 million Indianapolis 500: to get his elusive second victory in the world's most prestigious race and to share a few wheel-to-wheel, high-speed moments with his 21-year-old son, Michael.

Mario, who won here in 1969, will be starting his 19th Indy race. It will be Michael's first. And a duel, even a brief one, on the Indianapolis Motor Speedway's 2 1/2-mile oval would be special to both of them.

Michael outqualified his famous father two weeks ago, taking the inside of the second row with a four-lap average of 207.805 mph. Mario will start on the outside of the same row after qualifying at 207.467.

"To be honest with you, I kind of look forward to when just the two of us are gonna go at it seriously," Mario said. "And then, I hope that we can just have a good laugh about it. Whoever comes out looking better that day will feel real good."

"When the time comes, I feel we're going to have some good, honest racing because I certainly know him, and he knows me, and that's probably the best shot we'll ever have."

"Probably, I'll want to just be sure that I have control of the situation where I am, that I don't slide into him. I won't give him anything. Like any one else, I'll make him earn it, and I think he'll do the same."

Michael, who approaches racing in the same quiet, easy-going manner as his father, says he, too, would enjoy a wheel-to-wheel battle.

"I guess I'd drive a little differently than I do against other people," Michael said. "Maybe I'd give him a little more room, but I'd drive as hard as I can."

The Andrettis are the second father-son combination in an Indy race, joining Al Unser and Al Unser Jr., who broke the family barrier a year ago.

Al Jr. was penalized two laps last year for passing under the yellow flag to position himself between Al Sr. and eventual winner Tom Sneva when those two were battling for the lead late in the race. Al Jr. said later he was just trying to help his dad.

"I don't really think what he did was right," Michael said, but he made no promise that he wouldn't do it, too.

On All-Gem State squad

Federico, Valdez, Morgan honored

TWIN FALLS — Scott Morgan, Corky Federico and Allan Valdez from Twin Falls have been selected to the first team of the all-Gem State Conference baseball team, announced Thursday.

Five players from conference champion Idaho Falls along with Minico's Terrence Smith and one other player completed the first-team.

Idaho Falls' pitching duo of Greg Talamantez and Todd Hansen were both selected as the top two pitchers in the conference.

Pitcher Scott Mallock and catcher Tim Crossman of Twin Falls were chosen for the second team. Minico's Greg Schow was also selected for second-team honors. Meanwhile, Bonneville, Highland and Blackfoot also notched two players on the second team. One player from Idaho Falls rounded out the second squad. Vince Moll of Idaho Falls was selected as coach of the year.

STEVE BOROS
Short tenure

Oakland fires skipper Boros

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Steve Boros was fired Thursday as the manager of the Oakland A's, less than an hour after the team's 3-2 victory over the Baltimore Orioles.

Jackie Moore, the A's first base coach, was named by President Roy Eisenhardt as the new manager of the American League club. Pitching coach Ron Schueler also was lifted. Eisenhardt said Boros and Schueler both were offered other jobs in the organization.

Wes Stock, a former A's pitching coach who began this season as a minor league instructor, was named to succeed Schueler.

Boros, 47, became manager after the 1982 season following the firing of Billy Martin. It was his first major league managing job.

He left with the A's in fifth place in the West Division. The club is 6-17 on the road, 14-7 at home.

The A's led their division several times earlier in the season.

"There was a feeling on the part of the front office that in light of the way the club had not only performed, but the attitudes and lack of aggressiveness that the players had demonstrated, that there was a need for a change of leadership," said A's vice president Sandy Alderson.

"It's not an indictment of Steve, just a recognition that there was a need for a change of chemistry," Alderson said. "Steve is a very valued member of the A's organization."

Alderson said Boros will remain with the A's in a front office post, with duties including instruction and scouting.

On the firing of Schueler, Alderson said, "We felt we needed to address a specific problem with the pitching staff and to reorient the staff and provide it with some stability."

Boros received the news in a 20-minute meeting with Eisenhardt, executive vice president Wally Haas and Alderson following the Orioles game.

"He reacted very well, professionally," Alderson said. "He expressed disappointment but also the recognition that this is part of the game. Very often a change of managers can be a catalyst to an improvement in the club."

3 golfers share lead in Memorial tourney

DUBLIN, Ohio (AP) — Payne Stewart, a playoff loser last week, veteran Bob Murphy and Dr. Gil Morgan followed different avenues to their rounds of 5-under-par 67 that placed them in a 3-way tie for the first round lead Thursday in the $500,000 Memorial tournament.

Stewart reeled off a string of five consecutive birdies and set a tournament record with a front-nine 30, six under-par on Jack Nicklaus' Muirfield Village Golf Club.

"I felt like ever putt I got I was going to make. Just a carry-over from last week," said Stewart, who lost a sudden death playoff to Peter Jacobsen in the Colonial National Invitation Tournament last Sunday.

Murphy, 41, said some advice from close friend Tom Watson helped him make a needed swing change that resulted in his best effort of the year. "I've been playing better every day," Murphy said.

His round very easily could have been a two shot better. He watched a hole-in-one turn into a three on the 204-yard 16th hole. Murphy flew the ball into the cup with a 4-iron shot, but it bounced out, ran up the flag and then, with the spin taking over, ran some 30 feet away. He took two to get it down.

Morgan, who called his third-place 34 scattered seven birdies across his card. He did not have a bogey, and he did not have a 5. But he did have a double bogey-7 on the 11th, where he drove into trouble, rattled around in the woods for a while and took five to reach the putting surface.

A single stroke off the pace at 68 was a group that included Masters champ Ben Crenshaw, U.S. Open title-holder Larry Nelson and Bruce Lietzke, who said he'd rather win this tournament than any other in golf.

PayLess earnings set record

WILSONVILLE, Ore. — Pay Less Drug Stores Northwest Inc. has posted record earnings of $3.7 million during the first quarter of fiscal 1985, the company announced.

The performance, which was 43 percent better than the same quarter in 1984, came on sales of $203.8 million, also a record.

Pay Less President E.B. Hart said that a planned reduction in advertising had slowed growth in sales somewhat, but also reduced expenses, resulting in improved earnings. The company also is distributing more new lines of merchandise through a central warehouse, he said.

Pay Less operates 149 drug stores throughout the Northwest, including one in Twin Falls.

Circle K sales top $1 billion

PHOENIX, Ariz. — Circle K Corp. topped the billion-dollar mark in sales during the fiscal that ended April 30, chairman and chief executive officer Karl Eller announced this week.

The company, which is the country's second-largest convenience store chain, recorded net income of $21.6 million on sales of $1.02 billion. The earnings came to $1.80 a share of common stock, 31 percent higher than 1983's performance of $1.30 a share, Circle K said.

Circle K also broke its previous marks for the fourth quarter with sales of $359.9 million and net income of $6.4 million.

Eller credited acquisition of 96 U-Teem stores and the expansion of its fast food business as important factors in the sales increase. Increases in gasoline sales also contributed, he said.

On April 30, Circle K operated 2,185 convenience stores in 18 states. The chain has branches in Twin Falls, Buhl, Jerome, Burley and Ketchum.

Net income up for JB's chain

SALT LAKE CITY — JB's Restaurants Inc. reported a 20 percent increase in net income for the second quarter of fiscal 1984.

The company earned $345,000 on revenues of $13.3 million during the quarter, said Clark D. Jones, president and chief executive officer. The earnings came to 14 cents a share, up from 12 cents in the comparable quarter of fiscal 1983, he said.

The Salt Lake City-based chain operates JB's Big Boy Family Restaurants in Twin Falls and Burley, as well as the Sportsman's Brother in Twin Falls. It runs 79 outlets in the intermountain states and the Midwest.

Hollister bid opening today

HOLLISTER — Bid opening for the Hollister LDS Ward Building remodeling and new construction project will take place today at 2 p.m. at the Filer L&C State Center.

Vern G. Hancock, architect from Pocatello, said seven general contractors have been invited to submit bids.

The project will include approximately 5,500 square feet of remodeling and 5,200 square feet of new construction. The job involves wood frame with brick veneer and a truss roof system with slab-on-grade.

Subcontractors for mechanical and electrical plant facilities are invited to deposit bids at the Idaho Bank and Trust, Twin Falls, by 10:30 a.m. today.

ZCMI head sees strong year

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — ZCMI had record earnings in 1983 and expects business to be even better this year, Joseph A. Anderson, president, told stockholders.

Volume in the fiscal year ended Jan. 31 was $151 million, compared to $141 million the year before.

Book value of ZCMI stock grew from $19.60 to $20.77 and net earnings increased from $3.29 million or $1.53 a share to $3.36 million or $1.68 a share, the company said.

Banks lead stocks in retreat

By STEVEN P. ROSENFELD
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK — A selloff of banking issues paced a broad retreat in stock prices Thursday.

It raised Wall Street's losses on paper to $75 billion over the past six sessions and dragged the Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks to a 15-month low.

"In this market, greed has been extinguished and fear and panic has been substituted," said Robert Stoval, an analyst at Dean Witter Reynolds Inc.

With more than 1,300 stocks falling in price, declines outpaced advances by better than 4-1 on the New York Stock Exchange. The NYSE's composite index of all its listed stocks fell 1.14 to 86.95.

The Dow Jones industrials fell 19.37 points to 1,103.43, bringing its losses to 49.73 points since May 16. It was the lowest close for Wall Street's best-known indicator since Feb. 23, 1983, when the average stood at 1,096.94.

An hour before the close, the stock market's best-known indicator briefly dipped below 1,100 before regaining some lost ground.

Meanwhile, the Wilshire Associates' 5,000 Equity Index, the market value of 5,000 issues traded on the NYSE, American Stock Exchange and over-the-counter markets, fell $21.91 million Thursday to stand at $154.6 billion. That compared with $162.1 billion on May 16, before the latest slide.

The latest worries to hit Wall Street centered on the financial system, with a dozen bank stocks falling to 52-week lows.

Last week, the government engineered a multi-billion dollar rescue operation for Continental Illinois National Bank & Trust, which had suffered a run on deposits amid concern over its stability.

Continental Illinois slipped 1/8. Among banking institutions that fell, Manufacturers Hanover, which declined there were any problems, plunged 3/4 to 27 1/2. Bankers Trust fell 1/2 to 38, Chase Manhattan dropped 1/2 to 60 1/2, Citicorp was off 1/4, and Security Pacific slid 1/4 to 41 1/2.

Big Board volume rose to 99.04 million shares from 82.69 million Wednesday, Nationwide turnover in NYSE-listed issues, including trades on those stocks on regional exchanges and in the over-the-counter market, totaled 118.73 million shares.

Esmark, which agreed to be acquired by Beatrice Foods for a sweetened bid of $20 a share, rose 1/4 to 58 1/2 to a 52-week high as the most active common stock as of the 2 p.m. MDI close of the NYSE. More than 2.7 million shares changed hands.

Beatrice Foods was up 1/4 to 28 1/2.

Meanwhile, a block of 3.75 million shares of Chrysler preferred stock traded at 23 1/4, a share, leaving that issue unchanged on the day.

International Business Machines, often a market leader because of its prominence in investment portfolios, slipped 1/4 to 106 1/4.

Home resales in April climb to 4-year peak

By MARTIN CRUTSINGER
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The sale of existing single-family homes rose 1.7 percent in April to the highest level in almost four years, a real estate trade group said Thursday.

Home resales climbed to a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 3.07 million units, the second consecutive month the sales pace has been above the 3 million mark and the highest rate since October 1980, the National Association of Realtors said.

The sales pace was 63.3 percent above the recession low of 1.88 million units recorded in August 1982.

But Jack Carlson, chief economist for the realtors, said recent hikes in mortgage interest rates still dampen further increases this year.

"Most of the growth" in home resale market will experience in 1984 already has occurred," he said.

He noted that fixed rate mortgages hit 14.11 percent in April, compared with 13.85 percent the month before, while adjustable rate mortgages, which carry lower initial rates, rose above 13 percent.

"Even adjustable rate mortgages, which have been taking some of the sting out of the high cost of mortgage financing, now are proving unaffordable for many potential buyers," he said.

Three of the country's four regions recorded increased sales of existing homes in April. The South had the largest hike, a 5.4 percent rise to an annual rate of 1.18 million units. The Northeast had a 4 percent increase to a rate of 520,000 units and the North Central region posted a 1.2 percent jump to an annual pace of 820,000 units.

Sales in the West, which had advanced 18.4 percent in March, fell off slightly from that gain, dropping 5.2 percent in April to an annual rate of 550,000 units.

The recent increases in mortgage interest rates dampened increases in the price of the homes, Carlson said.

The April median — or midpoint — sales price for an existing single-family home was $72,800, a slight 0.6 percent increase over the $72,200 level in March.

For the year, Carlson predicted that existing-home prices would rise about 5.5 percent, compared with a 2.3 percent rise in 1982 and a 3.2 percent increase in 1983.

At the end of April, 2.69 million existing single-family homes were for sale, a 10.5-month supply at the April sales pace, down from a 10.9-month supply the previous month.

Blacks may boycott Coors

DENVER (AP) — The NAACP and other black organizations have threatened to join a nationwide boycott against the Adolph Coors Co. of Golden, unless the brewery concedes to their economic demands.

Black negotiators walked out of talks with Coors, the nation's fifth-largest brewer, Tuesday night and planned to announce the boycott on Wednesday, said Fred Rasheed, a director of economic development for the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

THE ACES® BOBBY WOLFF

"I dislike arguments of any kind. They are always vulgar, and often convincing." — Oscar Wilde.

The defenders exchanged a few words after the woful defense against today's game. But it was brief. It didn't take long to convince one of the defenders that he was hanged with his own rope.

South ruffed the third heart and drew trumps in two rounds. He wisely postponed the diamond finesse, playing the ace, king and a third club instead. East won the third club and was forced to surrender South's tenth trick. A diamond lead from East would offer a free finesse and a heart lead would allow a ruff and discard.

"Why didn't you throw your club queen under one of dummy's honors?" inquired West. "A blind man could have seen what was coming."

"Why didn't you throw your club jack under the ace?" retorted East. "Then I would have known you had the 10 and it would have been easy to jettison my club queen."

"Do you blame East, West or both for the disaster?" It is true that West could have thrown the club jack under the ace to promise the 10. —But what if West had held the jack without the 10? Clearly, East should have seen what was about to
