Bombings in gulf hike insurance

By LARRY THORSON The Associated Press

LONDON — Iraq's claim that it attacked Persian Gulf shipping Friday sent some tanker insurance rates up 150 percent.

The Saudi oil minister said he feared the West "might panic" and the gulf oil route would close for lack of insurance.

But a leading underwriter at Lloyd's of London, Stephen Merrett, told a news conference at the insurance syndicate's headquarters that Lloyd's was unlikely to cancel existing coverage or refuse to insure vessels calling at gulf ports.

"There is no practical possibility of insurance (being) unavailable at terms to and from gulf ports," he said.

A British news magazine estimated world oil prices have been 15 percent to 25 percent higher than they would be if Iran and Iraq were not at war.

Iran offers an end to ship attacks — A12

Lloyd's raised premiums for voyages to Iran's Kharg Island oil terminal soon after a Baghdad military statement was issued claiming Iraqi jets and warships had attacked a convoy near the Iranian coast and destroyed six ships.

The new premiums for a week's coverage in the gulf are 7 1/2 percent of the ship's value, up from 3 percent. Even the previous rate was four times higher than Lloyd's premiums several months ago when the gulf was quieter.

A typical large tanker now would pay over $4 million for a one-week trip in the gulf the Iranian oil terminal, compared with $500,000 six months ago.

There was no independent confirmation of the Iraqi statement, which came a day after Baghdad claimed to have hit two other ships in the gulf.

In Geneva, Saudi Arabian Oil Minister Sheikh Ahmed Zaki Yamani said his country had opened talks with oil customers to deal with a possible cutoff of insurance.

"What we're afraid of is that Lloyd's might cancel insurance for navigation in the gulf, and this is equal to closing the Strait of Hormuz," Yamani told 600 businessmen at a luncheon.

He warned that a resulting oil cutoff could cripple economic recovery in the United States and Western Europe.

"What we're afraid of is that you (the West) might panic, which is natural," he said.

Merrett said the latest premium increase was "surprisingly moderate" given the number of ships attacked. He said Lloyd's, the insurer for most vessels operating in the gulf, had paid out "in the order of 100 million pounds" ($140 million) in war damage claims.

That did not include damages in the last three weeks because those had not been assessed yet.

Merrett estimated 30 to 40 ships have been hit in the gulf this year, including in the oil-riddled area of the Iranian port of Bandar Khomeini.

Premiums to insure cargoes remained steady, and rates for other voyages also were unchanged, though Merrett confirmed insurers imposed war risk premiums this week on coverage of some ports just outside the gulf.

He cited the possibility of attacks in the Gulf of Oman ports of the United Arab Emirates.

Honored hero still nameless since Vietnam

By HARRY F. ROSENTHAL The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — In a solemn tribute to the thousands of Americans who died in Vietnam, the remains of an unidentified serviceman lay in honored repose in the rotunda of the U.S. Capitol Friday, saluted by the nation for which he gave his life.

"We may not know his name, but we know his courage," said President Reagan. "He is the heart, the spirit and the soul of America."

The president placed a wreath of red and white carnations at the foot of the coffin, one of three identical arrangements that were the only flowers in the great circular hall that is between the two houses of Congress.

In the silver coffin lay the only fallen serviceman not identified in the war which ended 11 years ago, and in which 58,012 Americans died. He will be interred Monday at the Tomb of the Unknowns, behind the Unknown Soldier of World War I and between the unknown servicemen of World War II and Korea.

The flag-draped coffin rested on the funeral bier hastily constructed in April 1965 after the death of President Abraham Lincoln. It was the 26th time remains lay in state in the rotunda. Three of those times were for the other unknowns.

Nine presidents have lain on that bier, including John F. Kennedy, Dwight D. Eisenhower and Lyndon B. Johnson. The last person to lie in state in the Capitol was Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, in 1978.

Ruffles and flourishes sounded in the Capitol Plaza and a band played the Navy Hymn.

An eight-man honor guard, representing all the armed services, carried the coffin into the hushed chamber, the silence interrupted only by the guard's footsteps and the whirring and clicking of cameras. Uniformed servicemen stood at attention; a scattering of men wearing veterans' caps placed their right hands over their hearts.

The president, dressed in somber black and wearing a light gray tie, held his hands clenched at his side.

Only a dozen senators were there and only 30 members of the House. Congress was not in session this day.

The service lasted 15 minutes. "Now that he is known only to Your grace, he will forever be an influence to all people of this beloved country," said Rear Adm. Neil Stevenson, head of the Navy chaplain corps.

Richard Halverson, the chaplain of the Senate, read Psalm 50. And Rabbi Simeon Kobrinetz, director of the Veterans Administration's chaplain service, intoned: "May his self-sacrifice be an inspiration to all Americans."

Reagan said that "this young American understood that freedom is never more than one generation away from extinction. He may not have wanted to be a hero, but there was a need — in the Iron Triangle off Yankee Station, at Khe Sanh, over the Red River Valley."

Hazelton youth charged as an adult for woman's murder

By PAT MARCANTONIO and DOUG WRIGHT Times-News Staff

HAZELTON — A teenager has been charged with beating to death his neighbor, a 67-year-old Hazelton woman whose body was found Thursday evening in her burning home.

Cory Sellers, 17, of 230 Lenz St. in Hazelton, was charged as an adult Friday in Fifth District Magistrate Court with first-degree murder, Jerome County Sheriff Eliza Hall said. Sellers was arrested on suspicion of murder and arson late Thursday about half a block from the home of the victim, Faye Ostler-Hall said.

Ostler's body was found "severely beaten" in the living room of her home at 129 Second St., Hall said. He didn't know how long the woman had been dead.

Jerome County Coroner Gerald Ostler, who is no relation to the victim, said he suspected the woman died of "severe head trauma" rather than as a result of the fire. The exact cause, however, will be determined after completion of an autopsy that began Friday in Pocatello.

Sellers, who lived next door, turned himself in to deputies within an hour after Ostler's body had been found, said Cpl. Ray Clark, a Jerome County deputy, who resides in Hazelton.

The woman's body was discovered by Jerome County sheriff's deputies and about a half a dozen Hazelton firefighters who responded to a fire alarm shortly after 8 p.m. The fire started in a back bedroom of the two-bedroom residence where the woman lived alone, Hall said. The cause of the fire still was under investigation.

The fire damage was confined to the bedroom, although smoke filled the house and had to be cleared before the officers could enter, Clark said. No damage estimates were available Friday evening.

Hall said the arson charge may be dropped against Sellers, who is being held without bond in the Jerome County Jail.

Jerome County Prosecutor Dan Admison had no comment on the case.

PUC won't permit Idaho Power to charge ratepayers for TV ads

By HAL BERNTON Times-News Staff

BOISE — The state Public Utilities Commission will not allow Idaho Power to charge ratepayers for its advertising campaign opposing subordination of its Swan Falls water rights.

"The PUC has a firm policy of excluding from customer rates all expenses related to a utility's political and corporate image advertising, lobbying and charities," said Dana Howard, the agency's spokeswoman.

Idaho Power's newspaper, radio and television advertisements have touched off protests from prosubordination politicians and farmers who said the costs of the public relations campaign would be passed on to the utility's customers.

Gary Robbins, a Dietrich dairyman who beat Rep. Gary Brooks in the Republican primary, claimed during the campaign that the Idaho Power ads "were an unfair use of the media and the ratepayers' money."

And state Attorney General Jim Jones blasted the utility for "using money 'extracted' from the ratepayer" at a pre-election press conference.

But Howard says the campaign's costs must come out of shareholder profits, not the ratepayer's pockets.

And she said that PUC auditors could check to make sure the costs are not passed on to the consumer when the utility decides to seek a new rate increase.

Larry Taylor, an Idaho Power spokesman, said the PUC first ruled in 1978 that the utility could not pass on advertising costs to the consumer. Since then, the company has voluntarily excluded those promotion costs from its ratepayer expense base, he said.

Taylor said that the concept of an anti-subordination campaign had been discussed by Idaho Power officials for more than a year.

Carter paper probe in limbo

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Court of Appeals agreed Friday to hear arguments next month on whether a special prosecutor should be appointed to investigate how Jimmy Carter's briefing papers wound up in Ronald Reagan's 1980 campaign headquarters.

Meanwhile, CIA Director William J. Casey, who ran the 1980 Reagan campaign, denounced a House subcommittee's 2,400-page report, released Tuesday, that charged Casey had received materials taken from the Carter camp. The CIA chief called the report "clearly a partisan document in a political year."

Last week, the appeals court suspended the order of a U.S. district judge for the appointment of a special prosecutor and scheduled arguments on whether the judge acted constitutionally for as late as Sept. 28.

The lower court had acted on a suit filed by two law professors, John H. Banzhaf III and Peter H. Meyers of George Washington University. They went to the appeals court this week, contending that such a late hearing would have the effect of putting off the special prosecutor's investigation until after the November election.

On Friday, nine of the judges of the U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia issued an order fixing arguments for June 20.

"I'm delighted," Banzhaf said. "It indicated they recognize not only the importance of the case, but the need for a prompt decision in order to get a special prosecutor before the election."

Rep. Donald J. Albosta, D-Mich., the subcommittee chairman, and House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill, D-Mass., had both called for the appointment of a special prosecutor.

JOHNNY CARSON
Calls allegations false

Carson named in trial

LOS ANGELES (AP) — John Z. De Lorean's chief accuser claimed Friday that the automaker boasted he had "been involved in cocaine trafficking with Johnny Carson," but the witness said he did not believe him.

Carson dismissed the allegations as "totally false."

"I thought he was puffing. I did not believe it then—I do not believe it now," James Timothy Hoffman said at De Lorean's drug trial. Hoffman, a government informant, says De Lorean solicited his help in a drug deal "two years" after the statement about Carson.

"Let me make this clear," said De Lorean's attorney, Howard Weitzman.

"He (De Lorean) told you he trafficked—in cocaine—with Johnny Carson?"

"Yes," said Hoffman, who placed the conversation in the spring of 1980, after he says he first told De Lorean he was a drug smuggler.

During the taping of "The Tonight Show" on Friday afternoon, Carson said he was going to make a "personal observation."

"I've been trying to contain my anger most of the day and I assume a lot of you have watched the television news and the radio news," the comedian said after the first commercials. "And I feel compelled to respond to certain allegations made today in the John De Lorean trial."

"The statements that were made about me are totally false, and beyond that there is nothing further to say," Carson said.

Carson lawyer Henry Bushkin earlier issued a statement through Carson publicist Jim Mahoney, saying in part: "The only involvement Mr. Carson ever had with John De Lorean was an ill-fated stock investment in the De Lorean automobile company."

Hoffman, who turned informant to avoid prison, said De Lorean, then his neighbor in the San Diego area, immediately began talking about "celebrities" he knew who used cocaine and trafficked in it.

Field workers demonstrate for basic sanitation on job

WASHINGTON (AP) — A pair of shiny portable toilets graced the sidewalk in front of the Labor Department on Friday, the focus of a gathering of farmworker groups demanding basic sanitation for field workers.

"In 1984 to be still arguing about putting toilets and water in the fields is tragic," said Arnoldo S. Torres, executive director of the League of United Latin American Citizens.

"Farm workers have to defecate in the fields, urinate in the fields, work long hours in the hot sun without water," added Charles Horwitz of the Migrant Legal Action Program.

And Valerie Wilk of the Farm Workers Justice Fund pointed out that field laborers are the only group required to show the necessity for toilet facilities at work.

"Construction workers, office workers and others don't have to prove they need toilets and hand-washing facilities," she told reporters gathered on the sidewalk.

The news conference came before the start of the third day of hearings on sanitation for farm workers conducted by the Labor Department's Occupational Safety and Health Administration.

The government is considering a proposal to require toilets, hand-washing facilities and fresh drinking water wherever more than 10 field workers are employed. A similar proposal in 1976 was dropped in the face of opposition from farm organizations.

Argubusiness interests have urged that provision of the facilities be done on a voluntary basis rather than through government regulation.

A consultant to the government has estimated that more than one-third of farm workers have no toilet facilities available and more than half are not provided with drinking water.

Cited as the areas most lacking in these facilities were Southern tobacco farms, Midwestern vegetable farms and apple orchards in the Northeast.

The proposal would affect about a half-million farm workers, although the majority would not come under its provisions because they work in smaller groups.

Ted Anderson of the Portable Sanitation Association estimated that the facilities he had on display would cost 10 cents per worker per day. The units include a toilet, urinal and a sink, and rent for between $45 and $55 a month, including cleanup, he said.

Horwitz of the legal action program said lack of water for workers can lead to dehydration and heat cramps, and the absence of hand-washing facilities prevent workers from removing dangerous pesticides from their skin.

In addition, Horwitz said, "lack of toilet facilities can cause bladder diseases, gastrointestinal problems and food contamination."

Nicaragua dispute will continue

WASHINGTON (AP) — As Congress began a holiday recess without resolving its dispute over the CIA's role in Nicaragua, senators heard testimony Friday from villagers who said their children were killed and kidnapped in a raid by CIA-backed rebels fighting Nicaragua's leftist government.

Residents of Sumbilla in northern Nicaragua described the April 17 raid, in which they said seven persons were killed and 39 young people kidnapped, at a special hearing arranged by Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., who opposes U.S. support for the anti-government guerrillas.

"Too often, as we debate the great issues of the day, we forget that what we do has real consequences for real people," Kennedy said. "We know the numbers. We read the statistics. But do those numbers tell the whole story? Today we will learn of the suffering of specific individuals."

On Thursday, the House rejected President Reagan's request for $21 million in covert U.S. aid this year for the "contras," as the Nicaraguan rebels are called. Several weeks ago, the Senate added the rebel aid money to a routine, House-passed appropriations bill and added $62 million in emergency military aid to El Salvador.

The House approved the Salvadoran aid funds but balked at providing further assistance to the Nicaraguan rebels.

The Senate is expected to take up the issue after it returns June 4 from the Memorial Day recess. A House-Senate conference committee has, deadlocked over Central America issues and left them to be settled on the floor of the House and Senate.

At the Kennedy forum, Irma Colman, 37, tearfully told of the death of her 9-year-old son, Fermin, from wounds suffered during the rebel attack on Sumbilla, a village created by the ruling Sandinista government to resettle Miskito Indians who were forced to leave their homes near the Honduran border.

Regan will still get money from brokerage

WASHINGTON (AP) — Treasury Secretary Donald T. Regan will continue to draw payments from his former Wall Street brokerage firm for three years longer than he has previously reported, according to his latest financial disclosure statement.

The new report also showed that he had outside earnings of at least $204,000 last year, principally from a blind trust he established when he took the Treasury post in 1981.

Regan reported in 1981 that he had received a $641,000 compensation package upon leaving as chairman of Merrill Lynch & Co.

He said $441,000 of this package was paid in January 1981, with the remaining $200,000 to be paid at the end of 1983. In two subsequent disclosure forms, Regan said the $200,000 with interest would be paid as a lump sum on Dec. 31, 1983.

However, in this year's disclosure statement, Regan said he would receive the money in three payments in January of 1984, 1985 and 1986.

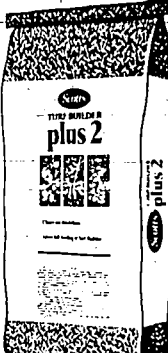

Asked about this discrepancy, Margary Waxman, a Treasury Department ethics officer, said the latest report simply provided more detail but did not represent a change in Regan's relationship to his former company.

State alters some mining regulations

By MARILYN HAUKE ESSEX
The Associated Press

BOISE (AP) — Cyanide contamination of monitoring wells near Elk City's water supply earlier this year has prompted the state to revamp regulations for some mining operations.

Al Murrey, chief of Idaho's Water Quality Bureau, said the changes will allow the state to take immediate court action against companies that pose a threat to public health.

That control will come in the form of an order from the State Board of Health — "a legal document recognized by the courts and recognized by state law," Murrey said.

The order, issued at the time a company received state approval for an operating plan, outlines specific guidelines and regulations a company must follow while operating in Idaho.

Because a company agrees in advance to the order outlining state regulations, the Water Quality Bureau and State Board of Health can take immediate court action if violations are detected.

The stricter guidelines apply only to companies using heap leaching operations — a method where gold and silver tailings from old mines are recovered with cyanide.

In the past, state control was limited once a company's operating plan received state approval, Murrey said. If a company violated state regulations, he said, the state faced a drawn-out battle through the court system to prove which regulations had been violated.

If a company decided not to cooperate, the state had no authority to impose temporary measures to protect Idahoans while the matter was settled in court.

Murrey said the state's hands were tied in such cases unless Idaho officials could convince the federal Environmental Protection Agency to order immediate remedial action.

Because of problems at Elk City, the state has established new guidelines for heap leaching operations. But Murrey said it has been a learning experience for the state in other ways.

In the future, all new operations will receive more careful review before getting state operation approval, he said.

The heap leaching process is new to Idaho, and Murrey said the operating plan probably would have been different if state officials had been more familiar with the process.

Heap leaching to recover precious metal tailings from old mines has become economically feasible in the last five years with a surge in gold in silver prices, Murrey said.

State officials said that when monitoring well tests showed levels of cyanide 100 times greater than state standards this spring, the state received full cooperation from Hoekins-Western-Sonderreger Gold and Silver Ltd., the company operating at Elk City.

Paul Erickson, president of the company based in Lincoln, Neb., said that test was erroneous. Other company officials said a sample contaminated in the laboratory could account for the reading.

Additional tests by the company and state agencies showed cyanide levels at only slightly greater than state standards in monitoring wells and Big Elk Creek, which is the water supply for Elk City's 200 residents in north central Idaho.

But several weeks after the possible cyanide contamination came to light, a company employee mentioned a cyanide spill might have occurred last fall and gone unreported. State officials later determined a spill of great proportion probably did not occur.

The cyanide levels in the monitoring wells slightly above state levels apparently seeped into the groundwater through an unlined holding pond, he said.

1,000 Mormons meet, dedicate new temple

BOISE (AP) — More than 1,000 Mormons gathered in Boise Friday for dedication of the new Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints Temple.

Morning ceremonies at the spired building topped by a figure of the Angel Moroni included placement of a cornerstone and time capsule that contained literature about the temple, invitations issued as part of its unveiling and other memorabilia.

The remaining ceremonies were held indoors and were open only to Mormons deemed worthy under church guidelines.

Gordon B. Hinkley, second counselor to church President Spencer W. Kimball in the First Presidency, was among the speakers. Others included Ezra Taft Benson, president of the Quorum of the Twelve Apostles.

Services closed with the "Hosanna Anthem," a piece traditionally sung at temple dedications, said church spokesman Ted Johnson. At that point, he said, many participants wept.

"It was a very moving experience," Johnson said. "There were many tears in many eyes. It was extremely exciting and rewarding."

The temple near Interstate 84 has been built to serve thousands of eastern Oregon and western Idaho Mormons who previously performed sacred ordinances at the temple in Idaho Falls.

Friday's ceremonies precede a week of 21 dedication services expected to draw some 30,000 members of church stakes within the temple district.

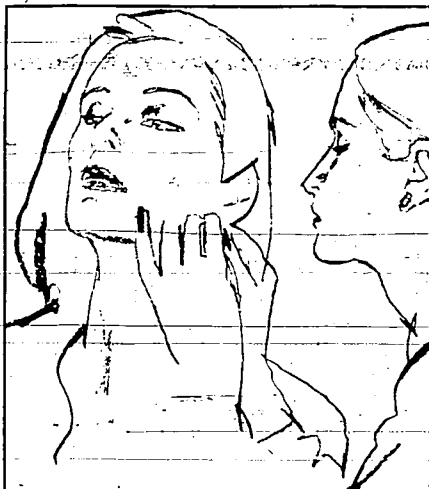

Six hundred church members supervised by Temple President Seth Redford are expected to perform preparatory work leading up to the temple's official opening on July 10.

Johnson said a date for opening of the time capsule has not been set. It may be opened during a period of temple renovation, or simply out of curiosity, he said.

"Curiosity may get the better of them someday, maybe in 100 years," he said.

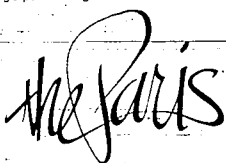

Johnson said Benson recalled for listeners that in 1939, church officials announced an Idaho temple would be built. But a city was not selected immediately, and although Boise was considered, Idaho Falls was the choice.

The temple was under construction about a year and drew nearly 130,000 people for an open house this month. "The building is now open-only to Mormons considered worthy by the church."

Student strip search charged

BOISE (AP) — The American Civil Liberties Union has filed a lawsuit charging a Meridian Junior High School student was strip searched by school officials looking for chewing tobacco.

The suit filed Friday in U.S. District Court accuses school administrators of arbitrarily punishing both that student and another boy.

The alleged searches required Brian Edgerton, 14, to remove his shoes and socks, raise his shirt and drop his underwear, said Amy Silberberg, an ACLU attorney in Denver. Body cavities were not searched, she said.

Silberberg said strip searches violate the constitutional right to privacy.

The suit claims Edgerton was searched three times between September 1983 and April 1984, and no contraband was found on any of the occasions. Edgerton was summarily suspended from school in September and January, the attorney said.

Silberberg also said a youth who had relinquished tobacco to officials after the threat of a strip search was accused of possessing the contraband again at a later time. He was punished, even though no tobacco was found on that occasion, she said.

County workers ask public to vote on raises

GREG FULLER
Representing employees

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

JEROME — Employees of Jerome County expect to be circulating petitions within a week asking public support for an initiative that will let the voters decide if they should have better salaries.

Meeting Thursday night, the employees asked Attorney Greg Fuller to prepare the petitions and to draw up a question to be put on an initiative ballot.

Fuller said he should have the petitions ready within about a week and he asked that each employee help with circulating the petitions.

The employees will need signatures equal to 10 percent of the county votes cast in the 1982 gubernatorial election.

Fuller said at this point it appears the Jerome County Board of Commissioners does not plan to advise employees of salary plans for the coming year.

"I think your only chance is to take the issue to the voters. We have to emphasize that we are not asking for any increase in taxes or any additional county revenue," Fuller said.

"All we are asking is for a revision in priorities. Instead of buying equipment or expanding programs we want them to consider employee wages first," he added.

Fuller also asked workers to help him prepare a fact sheet that can be circulated to let the public know the problems Jerome County workers face.

It has been three years since workers received a raise. Those attending the meeting said one household head is receiving only $397 a month on which to support herself and children.

Another worker said his family not only qualifies for food stamps, but relies on them to make his income cover basic needs.

Employees also have information on how their salaries compare with those in other counties of the same size.

One employee said that Jerome County ranks second in the state in taxing levels, but 40th in employee salaries.

Fuller told the group they need not worry about retaliation because of their effort to call an election.

"What you are doing is perfectly legal and there are steps we can take if you are the subjects of retaliation or harassment," he said.

Commissioners have said they are preparing a salary schedule following an employee evaluation and meetings with department heads and expect to announce a schedule in the near future.

Fuller warned that, because commissioners have not offered any information on pay plans to the workers, it is possible the information will be released after the tentative budget is set.

After that date passes, he told workers, the commissioners can cut budgets but cannot increase them. Workers would be stuck with what the commissioners offer and the excuse that they cannot make changes, Fuller warned.

The attorney agreed with workers that the low county salaries account for a large turnover of workers and, consequently, poor quality work.

"As soon as you are trained you can qualify for a better paying job and so you move on to be replaced by a new, inexperienced worker who has to be trained. These are the things we need to let the voters know, and I think with an educational campaign we can get the voters support," he said.

Employees want to hold their election on salaries prior to the November general election if possible, depending on when the proper number of signatures are obtained and when the Secretary of State sets the election.

Justice pans tax changes

By ANNETTE CARY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Changes in the Idaho tax structure since 1977 have left education and the judiciary system chronically underpaid, State Supreme Court Justice Robert Huntley said here Thursday.

"In short, our tax structure is in need of immediate and dramatic restructuring," he said. "And until and unless that matter is addressed, we are going to experience a continuing crisis in the delivery of essential state services."

In the coming year the state may face a $36 million shortfall, he said. "We've had that kind of shortfall in each of the last four years. The deficits in our tax structure have nothing to do with the economy. They're built in. If the economy gets better or worse."

But in the 1970s, the people of the state were able to afford a sound tax structure, he said. It has only been since 1977 that the state has lost $128.3 million with the passage of the One Percent Initiative and changes in other tax laws, even with increases in sales tax and personal and corporate income taxes added in, he said.

Taxpayers just are not paying as much of their income in taxes as they used to, he said. And corporations are also paying significantly less as a result of tax law changes since 1977, he said.

This year, corporations would have paid $27.4 million more in taxes had tax laws remained the same, Huntley said, citing State Division of Financial Management figures.

A bill in the 1984 Senate to raise corporate taxes $20 million failed after testimony from a representative of the Idaho Association of Commerce and Industry. Yet that same group had called for an extra $8 million a year to bring professors' salaries to a competitive level and had indicated industry's financial support for the project, Huntley said.

"The level of funding for higher education from this session provided not one dime of the $8 million needed to achieve salary equity for our college professors," he said. "In fact, the universities did not receive a maintenance level budget and when all the numbers are sifted out you will find that their funding puts them behind the rate of inflation to even maintain current services."

Public education fared little better, even though this year the Legislature provided more for education than any other Legislature has in the last 10 years, he said.

While $20.3 million was allotted to close 50 percent of the gap between Idaho teacher salaries and the national average, the national average has jumped $1,000 already, he said. Teachers' pay looks particularly grim when the rise in personal income for all other workers in the state is considered for the last 12 years. Their paychecks have jumped 13.4 percent with inflation considered while teachers' salaries have declined 12.2 percent, he said.

Huntley also took on the matter of judge's salaries. The pay scale for trial judges ranks 48th in the nation, Supreme Court judges rank 19th and Court of Appeals judges' salaries rank dead last.

In fact, Huntley said he made more as a lawyer with 13 years experience than he makes now with a salary of $47,300.

"My primary concern is for the future makeup of the Idaho trial and appellate bench," he said. "Approximately one-third of our trial judges will be in a position to retire within the next three years. It is not inconceivable that there will be a turnover of four or even all five members of the Supreme Court within the next five years."

School grants raises

14-percent hike

FILER — Filer teachers will be receiving 14 percent more in salaries next year if they confirm the salary schedule approved by the school board earlier this week.

The new salaries will range from a base pay of $13,750 for new teachers with a bachelor's degree to $21,400 for teachers with 12 years of service with a master's degree.

Superintendent Sheldon Kovarski said 12 percent of the pay increase will come from the state appropriation of $20.3 million for salaries and 2 percent will come from the district.

The board also voted to change the working hours for teachers. Teachers currently are required to be on the job from 8:10 a.m. to 3:30 p.m., but in the 1984-85 school year the hours will expand to 8 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Bob McGrew, the Filer Education Association negotiator, said the teachers had already tentatively agreed to the pay raise and the new hours but they need to take a final vote.

Also, attorney Richard Greenwood told the board that Lyle Abel's attorney had filed for a new trial on a fence dispute between Abel and the school district. At a recent trial the judge ruled that the school district was not obligated to build a fence around 10 acres of land it purchased from Abel until the property was used for school purposes.

Although the acreage is being farmed by the Booster Club, it was ruled that was not traditional school usage.

Requiring a new trial is the usual step before filing an appeal, Greenwood said, "but for now the school district has prevailed and rightly so."

Community center gets financial boost from chili cookoff

By DAVE LEWIS
Times-News writer

STANLEY — A district chili cookoff and dance to raise funds to help pay for the Stanley Community Center will be held Sunday from noon until dark.

Money raised from the event will go to pay off the loan for the town's community center after the town's local option tax was defeated in March, says Kathy Cole, one of the organizers of the event.

Funds from the 5 percent tax on beds and liquor by the drink were used to pay off a 10-year loan to build the center.

Cole says the champion of the district cookoff will advance to the regional cookoff in Ketchum later this summer. A band will play in the community center and door prizes will be awarded for visitors. The entry fee is $5 at the door, but donations will be accepted, she says.

Mayor Gerald Nicholson says the city still owes about $51,000 on the community center it built in 1982. The city purchased the land for the center with a community development grant and then borrowed the money to build it, he says.

The city pays $890 a month on the center on an original loan of $65,000, he says.

By a two-vote margin in March, the townspeople rejected the option tax, which must pass by a 60 percent majority, Nicholson says.

By law, the town cannot vote on the tax again until one year after the last vote.

Despite the city losing a possible $37,000 over five years if the tax is not renewed, Nicholson says the city should be able to meet its debt obligation for the community center.

He says the town has enough money saved to pay on the loan through the summer, and then it can restructure its budget for the 1984-85 fiscal year to cover the center's loan.

He does say the city will have to make some cuts to accommodate the loan until tax is presented to voters again next spring.

"I don't think we need to worry too much about it," Nicholson says.

The State Legislature revised the resort cities local option tax this winter to allow a tax on general sales items, much like the state's sales tax.

The changes were brought at the request of the cities of Ketchum and Sun Valley after bar, hotel and motel owners in the Sun Valley area complained the 5 percent tax was too high on top of the 4.5 percent state sales tax and the 2 percent state bed tax.

Salmon Falls Dam release to be increased to even flows

ROGERSON — The Salmon River Canal Co. said it would increase water releases from the Salmon Falls Reservoir by about 20 percent Friday night to even off flows downstream.

The canal company's board of directors boosted the spilling rate to 1,200 cubic feet a second in response to a request from Magic Water Co. and Irrigation District 47-G, said Lloyd Webb, company attorney.

However, the increase was about 600 cubic feet a second less than Magic Water president

Pat Elkin had sought, he said.

"What we're trying to do is accommodate without any commitment some of the downstream people to try to keep a fairly level flow," Webb said. "We're going to try to maintain the 1,200 second-foot flow for a week."

The company had been letting water out of the reservoir at the rate of about 1,000 cubic feet a second, roughly 2,000 acre feet a day.

Salmon Falls Creek has been bringing water into the south end of the 12-mile-long reservoir at about 1,500 cubic feet a second, Webb said. The water level behind the dam consequently has been rising about 3 feet a day, it was holding at about 3 feet below capacity late Friday.

Webb said the new release rate should hold the water level steady.

"Our survey of the (remaining) snowpack is that we can safely do what we are doing," he said. However, if warmer temperatures bring more runoff into the reservoir from surrounding mountains, the canal company may have to increase its spilling, he said.

"Shoshone Creek, which carries runoff from the South Hills into Salmon Falls Creek, has dropped substantially. However, runoff from the Jarbridge Range still is swelling Salmon Falls Creek."

"The canal company has been drawing water from the reservoir for two weeks to avoid

Condominium plan gets OK along Jerome Country Club

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

JEROME — A building permit will be granted for a multi-family unit in the North Rim Fairways Subdivision that adjoins the Jerome Country Club Golf Course.

The Jerome County Board of Commissioners made a preliminary agreement late last week after a special meeting to allow a condominium complex of 34 units on 24 lots adjoining the Jerome Country Club golf course.

In the special meeting called by the board after the permit request was received, developers said they had always understood they would be permitted to have condominiums in groupings and that the present development plan allowed a total of 120 units on the 100-acre site.

The project was designed several years ago and approved with a housing density that utilized the golfcourse fairways as part of the land necessary to meet septic system space requirements.

Pointing out the land is adjacent to the fairways and the fairways will not be developed, owners gained approval for more than one housing unit per acre.

County Commission Chairman Carl Butler told the group the commissioners are not opposed to the development and feel it is an asset to the county.

"We are only concerned about the density and the septic system," Butler said. "We first heard there would be 24 units and now we are hearing there is 34 (on a specific section of the site)," Butler said.

Gerald Hurst, administrative officer of the South Central Idaho Health District, said his agency is concerned only about the sewer system.

"If the county approves 120 units, then we have to find sewage drainage for 120 units," Hurst said. "We approved it earlier for single family units of one per lot."

Attorney Evan Robertson, representing owner Noy Brackett, said that under the long-standing rule of one unit per acre as maximum density for septic tank systems, the project is still in the clear. He said it shouldn't matter if there were ten lots on ten acres and they were

Suspect fights extradition

Buhl, — A Mexican national suspected of murdering a Buhl woman last fall refused to waive extradition from La Paz County, Ariz., where he was arrested Tuesday.

Nicholas Beltran, alias Carlos Beltran, 27, was arrested at the house of relatives near Parker, Ariz., on a first-degree murder warrant from Twin Falls County, said Lt. Mike Newman of the La Paz County Sheriff's office.

During a Wednesday hearing, Beltran refused to return voluntarily to Idaho. "He was extremely uncooperative," Newman said.

Dennis Voorhees, a Twin Falls County deputy prosecutor, said extradition proceedings probably will be initiated.

Beltran is accused of shooting 25-year-old Maria Teresa Velasquez at her Buhl residence on Oct. 1. She died four days later at St. Alphonsus Regional Medical Center in Boise.

After she was wounded, Velasquez identified the man who shot her by his nickname, and then became so ill she couldn't be questioned again, according to a complaint filed against Beltran.

A few days after Velasquez's death, a warrant was issued for Beltran who had left the area.

Beltran, who reportedly worked with the victim at a Buhl processing plant, was arrested on a lead from the Buhl police and Twin Falls County Sheriff's office.

Beltran's relatives had provided the Idaho law enforcement officers with a phone number that was traced to a small community outside Parker, Newman said. The La Paz County Sheriff's office placed the house under surveillance and arrested Beltran without incident, he said.

Beltran was being held without bond at the La Paz County Jail in Parker. The county is located near the western border of the state.

Accused child molesters charged

TWIN FALLS — Two men accused of molesting a total of six Twin Falls children over a three-year period appeared in court Thursday.

Clarence Edward Hood, also known as Eddy Bylles, 40, of 853 Third Ave. W. in Twin Falls, was charged with four counts of lewd conduct with a minor under 16 years old.

Hood was accused of performing oral sex on a 10-year-old boy on Sept. 10, 1982; a 13-year-old boy on Sept. 21, 1982; a 14-year-old girl on May 22 and a 12-year-old boy on April 27 at his residence, according to a complaint filed in Fifth District Magistrate Court.

In one case, Hood had invited one of the youths over to clean his yard, the complaint alleges.

Hood was being held in Twin Falls County Jail on a $20,000 bond on each charge. At a Thursday hearing in magistrate court, a public defender was appointed to represent him.

In another case, 37-year-old Norman Newton of Twin Falls admitted in district court that he fondled a 4-year-old girl on Aug. 28, 1983, and a 4-year-old boy on Dec. 20, 1983, at his residence, according to court records.

He turned himself in to the Twin Falls police, the complaint states.

Judge Daniel Hurlbut accepted the plea and ordered a pre-sentence investigation.

Newton was being held in the Twin Falls County Jail in lieu of $10,000 bond.

The charges filed against Newton and Hood each carry upon conviction a maximum sentence of life in prison.

Phone solicitations worry police

Jerome — Police in Jerome have warned people to be careful recently on any telephone solicitations for steel siding or other building material before making any commitments.

City officers said there is apparently a sales campaign in the area in which the caller says he represents a firm called Pacific Builders at 136 South Lincoln Street in Jerome. Officers said that is the address of another business.

The caller made a mistake when he dialed the Gen Capps residence. Capps just happens to be a Jerome police commissioner and knew all of the right questions to ask. Police checked out the information given Capps and learned it was not correct, they allege.

There is a Pacific Builders Co. in Boise, but officials there denied any knowledge of the solicitor as did the Better Business Bureau, of which he said he was a member.

Police said people approached by anyone claiming to represent Pacific Siding could call the firm in Boise for verification. The company told the police department aside from some builders who use their supplies, they have no representatives in Jerome.

lawyers in judicial positions is becoming more difficult, he said. Even though Supreme Court justices head one of the three branches of government—in Idaho, 56 state employees are paid more. Seventy-two employees are paid more than district judges. They include education assistants to university presidents and second level administrators in the Idaho Department of Transportation, Huntley said.

"The concrete solution to the problem of eroding judicial quality because of low salaries is to establish a citizens' commission for recommending judicial compensation," he said. "The Legislature, I might add, has already set the example and has established exactly such a commission."

The court's commission could set judicial salaries and the Legislature would retain the right to overturn the commission's decision by a two-thirds vote within 60 days of the beginning of the session, Huntley said.

A representative of the county club said he had always understood there would be 100 units and the club officials had worked hard to make sure there was 100 acres of land for the development.

The problem came to light when one of the lots was sold to a buyer applied for a multi-family building permit.

Architect Ivan Stone said there were not many records kept of early negotiations and it is necessary to rely a lot on memory. He said the project was approved as a planned unit development with building groupings and open space.

LOS ANGELES — A former personal assistant to Church of Scientology founder L. Ron Hubbard testified this week that he feared that discovery of documents discrediting Hubbard's background would make her a target of the organization.

Laurel Sullivan, 34, who left Scientology in 1961 after 14 years of working directly for Hubbard in a public relations role, described her fears during the fourth week of trial of the church's civil suit against its former archivist, Gerald Armstrong. The church is asking Los Angeles Superior Court Judge Paul G. Breckenridge Jr. to return some five boxes of personal documents of Hubbard and his third wife, Mary Sue, obtained by Armstrong.

Armstrong claims he had Hubbard's permission to gather the materials for an authorized biography by author Omar Garrison, that he saved them from a shredding operation when the church feared he had done so in 1980, and that he took out of court custody — to defend himself against church charges that he was a rumormonger unfairly discrediting Hubbard.

Divided Presbyterians to seek unity at assembly

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

United in law and commitment but still fractured in operations, the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) is moving to get its working parts together, and its leadership.

A special drama was shaping up over choosing the denomination's top administrative authority, now shared by two men, but to be combined in one person, possibly a woman.

Decisions on that and other consolidation processes are due May 29-June 6 in Phoenix, Ariz., at the church's governing assembly, the first since Southern and Northern branches were legislatively reunited a year ago.

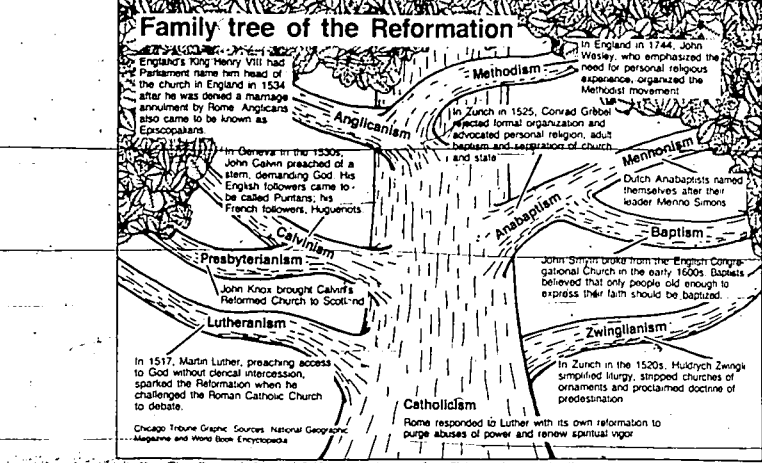

Since then, the 3.2-million-member denomination has been running partly as a divided set of departments, although under guidance of a single council for interim policy-making.

"We are at a moment of malleability," says the current assembly moderator, the Rev. J. Randolph Taylor of Charlotte, N.C., adding that church institutions rarely have such opportunities for thorough-going reform.

While some of the dual arrangements are to continue until completion of a new mission design a year hence, various meshing steps are to be determined at the assembly, including election of the main, long-term executive.

For the last year, that position, called stated clerk, has been jointly shared by the Rev. James Andrews of Atlanta, who held the job to the former Presbyterian Church U.S. (southern), and William P. Thompson of New York, who held it in the former United Presbyterian Church.

Andrews is bowing out of the race, but Thompson, a one-time Wichita, Kan., lawyer who had been chief executive of the former mostly northern denomination for a decade, has expressed willingness to take the post in the nationally recruited church. So has the Rev. Flynn V. Long Jr. of Atlanta, the associate stated clerk in the former-southern branch. Both are expected to be nominated from the floor, pitting an ex-southern executive against the ex-northern executive for the new church's top, long-term administrative post.

But further drama has been added to the picture by the recommendation of a special nominations committee, whose eight members voted unanimously May 12 after a six-month search to nominate a Southern clergywoman for the job, the Rev.

Patricia M. McClurg of Atlanta. A native of Orange, Texas, who got her college and seminary degrees in that state, she was ordained in 1967, the third woman to be ordained in the former southern denomination, and first to fill a pastoral role for a congregation — at Westminster Presbyterian Church in Beaumont, Texas.

Since 1978, she had been director of the former southern denomination's mission board in Atlanta, and still heads the southern wing of the board.

In nominating her, the committee said "she represents and is committed to the newness of our reunited denomination," noting that the stated clerk's task is expected to be significantly different.

In the proposed description of that office, "its style is to be 'less dependent' than in the previous former denominations, and 'is expected to be collegial and accountable' in conjunction with other church officers.

"It was with an awareness of the newness of the position description that we proceeded," said the committee, headed by the Rev. Gary Demarest of LaCandad, Calif. It said

It had considered 59 people in deciding the nomination. It will go to an assembly's standing committee on nominations for stated clerk, and that committee can accept or reject the recommendation, and may nominate one or two candidates.

Signs of drug use found on Kennedy

PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Tiny puncture wounds found in the groin area of David Kennedy's body may indicate he had recently injected drugs there in an effort to hide the marks, pathologists say.

On Friday, at the prodding of lawyers for several newspapers and television stations, the state attorney's office released a toxicology report listing levels of the drugs found in Kennedy's body.

Highly technical language in the autopsy report, released under court order Thursday, indicated that the 28-year-old son of the late senator Robert Kennedy injected drugs in the "inguinal" area, at the juncture of the leg and torso, said Dr. Ronald Wright, the Broward County Medical Examiner.

Dr. Gabino Cuevas, chief pathologist at Bethesda Memorial Hospital in Boynton Beach, said: "He was probably using the groin receptively."

Wright probably tried to, no pun intended, cover his tracks, said Dr. Charles Well, deputy chief medical examiner for Dade County.

"That's really unusual," Well said. "Most people don't go to that kind of trouble (except) people who are high-profile individuals, or in the military, or public figures."

The report was released by the Palm Beach County State Attorney's Office after legal wrangling with the press, said Kennedy's death was an "accident" caused by "combined drug intoxication" from a tranquilizer, a painkiller and cocaine.

The technical, three-page toxicology report said tests found cocaine, meperidine and thioridazine in Kennedy's body. It was signed by William R. Heldman Jr., a toxicologist with the Palm Beach County sheriff's department.

The autopsy report had said the three drugs were responsible for Kennedy's death. Meperidine is the chemical name of the painkiller Demerol, and thioridazine is the chemical name of the tranquilizer Mellaril.

Heldman could not be reached to comment on the significance of the drug levels found in Kennedy's body. Telephone calls to his office and home

Prize given for solving book crimes

NEW YORK (AP) — Denis and Nancy Keleher and six of their friends in Denver just may be the best sleuths this side of Scotland Yard.

In less time than it took Hercule Poirot to find a murderer on the Orient Express, they solved the publishing crime of the year: "Who Killed the Robins Family?"

They say it took them one night last April to come up with the right answers to the eight nasty riddles and nab a $10,000 jackpot.

"We were sure we had done our best, but we thought that surely some certified genius would come along and solve it," Keleher, 49, a doctor of internal medicine, said Friday.

"We were delighted we had done so well that the money is not that important," Mrs. Keleher, 44, a registered nurse, added.

The contest, which drew 25,000 entries, was sponsored by William Morrow & Co., publisher of the book by Thomas Chastain and Bill Adler, "Who Killed the Robins Family?"

They sold 300,000 copies and spent 36 weeks on best-seller lists. Sixty-five newspapers syndicated the quirky murder mystery.

The winners, correctly answered 39 of 40 questions surrounding the murders of Tyler Robins, his wife Evelyn and their six children. For each murder, contestants had to solve who killed the character, where, when, how and why.

"There were so many red herrings in the book, you could go off in so many directions," Mrs. Keleher said.

went unanswered.
Palm Beach County Medical Examiner James Benz was also out of his office. A woman who answered the telephone at his home said he was not in.

Media attorneys Thomas Julin and Martin Reeder had asked Assistant State Attorney Frank Stockton to release the toxicology report, saying it should have been made public along with the autopsy report Thursday.

Iraq says its jets destroyed eight ships in Persian Gulf

MANAMA, Bahrain (AP) — Iraq said its jetfighters and warships attacked a convoy of ships near the Iranian coast of the Persian Gulf on Friday, hitting six of them, and chasing two others into floating mines.

All eight ships were destroyed in the "violent and surprise attack," a Baghdad war communique claimed.

Arab diplomats and gulf shipping sources said other countries in the region were expecting Iranian attacks in retaliation.

calling for a halt in such attacks, he said, "If they (the Iraqis) abide, we will abide."

Rajale-Khorassani said when asked about Iran's threat to close the Strait of Hormuz that it will remain open unless Kharg Island is totally out of use.

Kuwaiti Foreign Minister Sheik Sabah al-Jaber al-Sabah said in the council session that the escalating attacks on shipping in the area threaten to draw other gulf nations and possibly the superpowers into the conflict.

Syrian President Hafez Assad conferred in Damascus Friday night with Vice President A. H. Khaddam and Foreign Minister Fawok al-Sharraa on their mission to Tehran this week to try to cool down the crisis.

Friday's reported strikes brought to 10 the number of targets Iraq said it hit in two days.

There was no independent confirmation of the attacks Iraq reported on Thursday and Friday. Shipping agents and salvage company sources in the gulf said no distress signals were received from any vessels in the areas where the Iraqis said their attacks were mounted.

In Washington, Army Maj. Bob Shields, Pentagon press duty officer, said he had no comment when asked to confirm the latest Iraqi attacks. State Department spokesman Brian Carlson said the department had no information on attacks.

On Thursday, a State Department spokesman said an Iranian Phantom F-4 jetfighter crippled an empty Liberton tanker off Saudi Arabia. The attack on the Chemical Venture came a few hours after Iraq claimed it attacked two ships near Iran's Kharg Island oil terminal.

Friday's reported attacks came a few hours before the U.N. Security Council met in emergency session to seek ways of discouraging further attacks on commercial shipping in neutral gulf waters. The meeting was called at the urging of the six-nation Gulf Cooperation Council — Saudi Arabia, Kuwait, the United Arab Emirates, Bahrain, Qatar and Oman.

Iran's top U.N. envoy, Said Rajale-Khorassani, boycotted Friday's 2 1/2-hour debate, but said outside the council chamber that Iranian warplanes will not hit commercial vessels in the gulf if Iraq also agrees to stop such attacks.

Hindus, Moslems engage in battle using rocks, knives in India streets

BOMBAY, India (AP) — Hindus and Moslems fought with rocks and knives in the streets of Bombay and nearby towns Friday.

It was the ninth day of communal rioting that has killed at least 218 people.

Maharashtra state officials said, however, that the violence in the region appeared to be subsiding. The fatality toll rose Friday mainly because of the discovery of 18 decomposed bodies in riot-scarred Bhlwandi town, 35 miles northeast of here.

"Deployment of the army in many areas has helped to contain the violence," said Chief Minister Vasantrao Patil, the top elected official in Maharashtra state.

Two bombs exploded in Bombay, the state capital, seriously wounding a city employee and his four children. Four "homemade" bombs also were seized in a raid near the British-built Gateway of India monument.

Overnight rioting in the city claimed three lives. Police Commissioner J.F. Ribeiro said 10 people were seriously wounded in a stabbing spree.

Army troops earlier were rushed to six nearby towns to halt widespread rioting and arson in which six people were killed.

Moslems and Hindus fought Friday in at least two city districts and in the town of Thane. Police opened fire to disperse a rampaging mob in an industrial sector of Bombay, but no casualties were reported.

Authorities said four people were slain by police gunfire late Thursday near the town of Wartaknagar, north of Bombay. Three trucks carrying acid-filled bulbs, firebombs, iron weapons and other weapons were reported seized Thursday in this Arabian Sea port of 8.5 million.

Indian Prime Minister Indira Gandhi, who recently toured the violence-torn sectors of Maharashtra, said in New Delhi that if communal violence is not checked, chaos will engulf the country.

"A campaign of terror has been unleashed in the nation," Mrs. Gandhi said.

President Zail Singh also voiced concern over religious rioting in Maharashtra. "Religion is meant for promoting unity, not for creating differences and sowing seeds of hatred among people of different communities," he told a seminar in the sacred Hindu city of Benares.

Soviets pan memorial

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union lodged an official protest Friday over Japan's plans to honor the hero of its naval victories over czarist Russia in 1904 and 1905. The Soviets say the goal of the celebrations is to rekindle militaristic and anti-Soviet sentiment.

The official news agency Tass said Japanese chauvinists turned Admiral Heihachiro Togo into an "ideological symbol of Samurai gallantry" to prepare Japan for World War II. Togo, Japan's greatest naval hero, commanded the fleet during the 1904-05 Russo-Japanese war. He died May 30, 1934.

The Japanese Embassy said the Soviet protest was delivered to Charge d'Affaires Kunisada Kume, who was summoned to the Foreign Ministry and told the Soviets consider the celebrations hostile.

Tass said the ceremonies honoring Togo 50 years after his death, are to be held in the town of Kagoshima today and Sunday. There will be a naval parade. Tass said that will include British and French ships, and British and French officials will be present.

The Japanese government has said the ceremonies are organized by private individuals, but Tass said that was only a "disguise" because the Japanese military was providing aircraft and ships for it.

Dominicans break off talks

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic (AP) — The government, already shaken by recent food price riots, has broken off negotiations with the International Monetary Fund because of the fund's insistence that gasoline prices be increased.

President Salvador Jorge Blanco, making the announcement late Thursday, called for national unity. He said the government's decision could result in a final break with international creditors at a time when it badly needs to renegotiate its $2.4 billion foreign debt.

"This decision obliges us to austerity and puts in danger international credits and the renegotiation of our foreign debt," the president said in an address from the National Palace.

He said he rejected the IMF's condition that gasoline and other petroleum products be shifted to what is called the "parallel" rate of exchange of nearly three Dominican pesos to one U.S. dollar, compared to the "official" rate of one peso to one dollar.

While negotiating with the monetary fund in April, Jorge Blanco shifted most other imports to the higher parallel rate and increased prices of basic foods by as much as 200 percent. The move sparked four days of riots.

Conventional war feared

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — A slowdown in spending on conventional forces has undermined NATO's ability to deter a nuclear attack, the Supreme Allied Commander in Europe said Friday.

Gen. Bernard Rogers criticized the budget goals that NATO defense ministers set last week, which reduced each country's average yearly increase in spending for conventional forces to 3.2 percent through 1990, compared with a 4 percent increase in the previous planning period.

"There's only one conclusion that can be drawn from that fact, and that is that we're moving in the wrong direction," the American general told a forum sponsored by the Center For European Policy Studies in Brussels.

Powers sign pact against the U.S.

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union and North Korea agreed to take special security measures in the Far East because of a "militarist policy" in the region by the United States and Japan, the official news agency Tass reported Friday.

No joint communique was issued at the end of three days of talks between Soviet President Konstantin U. Chernenko and North Korean President Kim Il Sung.

Gwynn bats S.D. past Phils

By The Associated Press

Tony Gwynn hit a triple and two singles, collected an RBI and scored two runs Friday night. He walked off the field giving more credit to luck than to skill.

The ball "just" found the "open spaces," Gwynn said after helping the San Diego Padres defeat the Philadelphia Phillies — 7-3 in Philadelphia. "I haven't been swinging the bat that good the last three weeks or so, but I'm coming around a little bit. Hopefully, I'll be more consistent."

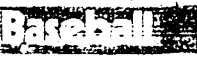

The victory, combined with the Los Angeles Dodgers loss to the New York Mets, put the Padres into the first-place tie with the Dodgers in the National League West.

With his three hits Friday night, Gwynn is batting .360, second best in the National League. He also knows how to handle a glove.

With the Padres leading 5-0 in the third inning, he climbed the right-field wall to steal an extra-base hit from Juan Samuel with two Phillies on base.

"That turned the game around," said Padres Manager Dick Williams. "The Phillies would have had two runs and maybe a big inning."

But Gwynn played down the accomplishment. "I just ran to the wall and jumped up and caught it," he said. "It wasn't as tough as it looked. I've made some better catches."

Graig Nettles also had a big hand in the Padres' victory with four hits, including a home run, and two RBIs. Nettles raised his batting average .25 points to .211.

"I never produce much the first two months of the season," Nettles said. "I usually start to come around about June 1."

Cincinnati 3, Chicago 0. In Chicago, Tom Hume made his first start in almost five years and set down the Chicago Cubs on three hits in five innings and struck out six as the Reds snapped the Cubs' six-game winning streak.

Atlanta 8, St. Louis 4. In Atlanta, Gerald Perry had three hits, scored three runs, drove in one and stole a base and Dale Murphy hit his 100th home run of the season for the Braves.

New York 2, Los Angeles 1. In New York, Dwight Gooden tied Nolan Ryan's club record for a rookie by striking out 14 batters in eight innings for the Mets.

Pittsburgh 6, Houston 2. In Houston, Dale Berra drove in three runs and John Tudor scattered nine hits for the Pirates.

Montreal 3, San Francisco 2. In Montreal, Miguel DiToro scored from third base on Tim Lincecum's eighth-inning grounder to lift the Expos.

Kansas City 6, Boston 6. In Boston, Darryl Motley drove in five runs with a bases-loaded triple and a tape-measure homer and ralleo ace Dan Quisenberry earned his 12th save for the Royals.

Texas 11, Chicago White Sox 0. In Arlington, Texas, Charlie Hough allowed only three hits and Larry Parrish and Mickey Rivers drove in three runs each for the Rangers.

Minnesota 7, Milwaukee 4. In Minneapolis, Keni Herbek drove in two runs with three hits and Gary Gaetti drove in two runs with two hits, leading the Twins.

California 10, Baltimore 2. In Anaheim, Calif., Juan Benitez belted a two-run homer and added a pair of RBI singles and Brian Downing also smacked a two-run homer as the Angels swamped the Orioles behind the six-hit pitching of rookie Ron Romanick.

Toronto 5, Cleveland 1. In Toronto, George Bell doubled in two runs in the first inning to propel the Blue Jays.

Oakland 10, New York 7. In Oakland, Dave Kingman crashed a grand slam to cap a six-run eighth inning that powered the Oakland Athletics and new manager Jackie Moore to triumph.

Memphis surprises

Tampa Bay

By The Associated Press

Mike Kelley, a third-string quarterback a week ago, threw for three touchdowns and a club passing record Friday night as the Memphis Showboats surprised the Tampa Bay Bandits 31-21 in Tampa, Fla.

Kelley stepped in for an injured Walter Lewis to complete 21 of 26 passes for 284 yards before 27,422 United States Football League fans at the Liberty Bowl. Lewis owned the previous club mark of 265 yards.

After the Bandits took a 7-0 edge 10 minutes deep into the first period, Kelley used eight plays to get the Showboats in field goal range. Alan Duncan narrowed the score to 7-3 with a 32-yard boot.

The Showboats caught the Bandits napping on the ensuing kickoff when rookie Barney Bussay covered an onside kick at the Memphis 49.

From there, Memphis moved quickly to the Tampa Bay 15, from where Kelley unloaded an aerial to flanker Derrick Crawford to make it 10-7.

Tampa retaliated with a 74-yard drive that ended with a three-yard scoring pass from quarterback John Reeves to wide receiver Eric Trivillion.

Denver 27, San Antonio 20. In San Antonio, Texas, Denver quarterback Fred Mortensen fired a 32-yard scoring strike to help the Gold.

Houston 54, Jacksonville 7. In Jacksonville, Fla., Houston quarterback Jim Kelly completed 50 of 23 passes for 362 yards and three touchdowns, and scored on a one-yard keeper, to lead the Gamblers 10-0.

"We haven't seen the potential of that many quarterbacks in a group of that kind including our Arizona too," Walker said. "And we've seen very few left-handed pitchers."

Rutherford an underdog again at

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Johnny Rutherford is back in a deep hole, starting 30th in the 33-car field in Sunday's Indianapolis 500.

The three-time Indy winner was the last driver to start the race as far back as 25th and charge to the victory, accomplishing that feat in 1974.

But the powerful Texan says he is shouldering a bigger load this weekend if he hopes to get to the front.

"Obviously, it will be tougher," Rutherford said. "I came from 25th to win this race, I had the second fastest car in qualifying," he explained.

"We didn't even put a qualifying setup on it. We just took it out to qualify the way we were gonna race."

Rutherford, who was driving for Team McLaren that year, was unable to qualify on the first weekend because of mechanical and weather problems.

"We were technically relegated to the third day of qualifying," he explained.

"It was a situation where we had the second fastest car. Foyt was on the pole and I would have been next to him on the front row, but because of a technically I was 25th."

"As I recall, I came from 25th to third in 12 laps. I would doubt very seriously that you could put Tom Sneva or Mario Andretti or Rick Mears, who have been the quickest here this month, back there (in 25th) and that they could do that. The cars are just too close (in speed) together now."

Since it is going to be tougher this year, Rutherford said he thinks he will be able to pass early in the race.

"As many as you can," the 46-year-old driver replied. "That's the name of the game. It's a race. If you can pass guys, then you pass them. If it becomes a chore, then you wait for them to slip.

"It becomes a giant waiting game. You run along with the guy and watch for his weaknesses and figure out what is happening if you can. Whatever is easy, if I can move up 10 (places), I'll move up 10. If I can move up three, then that's what I'll take. Especially because it is a long day — 500 miles."

Rutherford later added victories here in 1974 — again — with Team McLaren — and in 1980 — with Jim Hall's Chaparral team. But the veteran racer has fallen on hard times since he won the national championship in 1980.

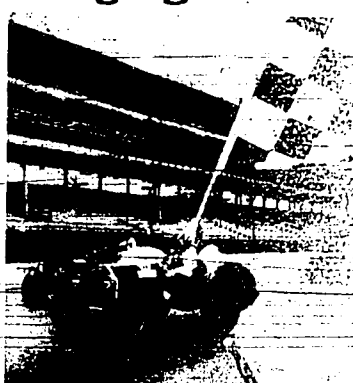

His last victory came in the 1981 season-opener at Phoenix and after a long uphill struggle, Hall's team folded at the end of 1982. Rutherford passed up a chance to drive for the new Forsythe Brothers' team — for whom Indy-car rookie Tio Ellinger won Indianapolis and season Rookie of the Year honors. He then spent a tough season with the Patrick Racing Team last year — missing Indy after crashing in practice and breaking a foot and an ankle.

This year hasn't been any easier, so far.

First, he found himself without a ride and with no sponsorship money to buy one. When he did put together a ride last week in his third entry — a March powered by an experimental Chevrolet V6 — which he was unable to get into the field because of mechanical problems. Finally, Foyt's competitive.

Follow Texan A.J. Foyt gave him a ride last week in his third entry — a March powered by an experimental Chevrolet V6 — which he was unable to get into the field because of mechanical problems. Finally, Foyt's

Antique car finish an exhibition race at team bought a new March, quickly put in a Cosworth engine and, after six practice laps, Rutherford qualified it at 202.069 mph.

Rain washed out any chance of practice Sunday and the team tore down the car to modify it for the race. They were unable to finish it by Thursday, the last chance before the race to get on the track for practice.

"It's been a long time since I've had my whole team together. It's a couple of years since I've had my whole team together. It's a couple of years since I've had my whole team together."

Cubs, Bosox switch big-name players

BOSTON — Boston Red Sox pitcher Dennis Eckerley, the 1975 rookie pitcher of the year, was traded by the Boston Red Sox Friday for former National League ballplayer Chicago Cubs.

The inter-league trade first discussed at baseball winter meetings last December, brought tears both in Boston and Chicago.

Eckerley, 29, broke down and wept openly for several minutes after talking with sports writers and reporters in the Red Sox clubhouse.

"It's just emotional and hard," he said as Boston players came up and stuck out their hands.

In Chicago, Cubs manager Tom LaSorda, however, was not reacting with his composure. He said he was looking forward to joining Boston.

Eckerley, who has a no-hitter against California in his third year with the Cleveland Indians in 1977, was shocked even though the trade

DENNIS ECKERLEY Right-hander dealt to Cubs had been rumored for a long while. A 20-game winner in 1978 after being traded to Boston, he has been bouncing back from his worst major league campaign, 9-13 last season. He had won an ailing shoulder and had four of his last six starts for a 4-4 record this year.

Buckner, owner of a .296 lifetime average in six years with the Los Angeles Dodgers, and seven years with the Cubs through 1983, lost his first base job in Chicago to Leon Durham and was offered around as trade bait.

The Cubs reportedly held out for one of Boston's top young prospects as part of the trade. They finally settled on minor league infielder outfielder Mike Brunley, 22, Boston's second-round draft pick last June after helping Texas to the NCAA championship.

"It's an end of an era for the Chicago Cubs," said Chicago General Manager Dallas Green.

"No one ever likes to give up a pitcher such as Dennis Eckerley, but we think this makes us a stronger ball club," Boston Manager Ralph Houk said. "We think he (Buckner) will help us win more ball games than Eckerley."

"Nothing against Bill Buckner, but it stinks," Boston relief pitcher Bob Stanley when asked his reaction.

"Probably is the toughest competitor on this ball club, and we need all the competitors we can get," catcher Gary Atencio said.

"You read about trade talks, and you know they're part of baseball, but when the time comes it still hurts," Eckerley said. "I know this opens up new avenues in my career, but it's still sad, very sad."

Then, asked about pitching in Wrigley Field, Eckerley, pitched in Wrigley Field, Eckerley, quipped. "I'm not worried about pitching in Wrigley Field. I'm worried about hitting there."

With the designated hitter in the AL, Eckerley has not had to swing a bat. He'll have to do his own batting in the NL, which does not use the DH.

Buckner has appeared in just 21 games as the Cubs have charged into the lead in the NL East.

Twins sale imminent

MINNEAPOLIS — An bid by Minneapolis-based entrepreneur Carl Pohlad to buy controlling stock of the Minnesota Twins baseball team is a fair offer, team manager and President Calvin Griffith said Friday.

Pohlad presented his offer to buy the American League club at a meeting with Griffith on Friday.

Griffith said he will turn the offer over to his board of directors for further study. An announcement regarding possible acceptance of the offer is expected sometime next week.

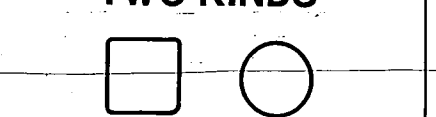

and he met the price," Griffith said.

Although he would not disclose the amount of the offer, there has been speculation that Griffith is seeking $30 million to $35 million for the 52 percent of Twins stock that he and his sister, Thelma Haynes, own.

Griffith reportedly also has a $25 million offer from two Twin Cities real estate developers in front of him. But Pohlad is believed to have the inside track with Griffith.

Pohlad also said he plans to keep the team in town, another condition of the offer which Griffith said pleased him.
