House tightens missile moratorium

By LEE BYRD
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The House, by the barest of margins, voted on Thursday night to lighten a prospective moratorium against the MX strategic missile by denying President Reagan any discretion over whether to order production if he thinks the Soviet Union has failed to resume arms bargaining in good faith.

nuclear versions of the sea-launched cruise missile. The chamber, on consecutive tallies, voted 199-197 and 199-197, to strengthen the restrictions it approved May 16 against 1985 production of the 10-warhead MX. In the showdown two weeks earlier, the House trimmed Reagan's request for 40 of the missiles to 15, and then only if Moscow refuses, by his assessment, to begin good-faith bargaining over strategic arms by April 15. The House initially reaffirmed that decision Thursday night 203-182. But barely an hour later, the two whisker-thin votes carried an amendment backed by Reps. Charles Bennett, D-Fla., and Stephen Neal, D-N.C., that would virtually remove the MX issue from Reagan's hands. Rep. Dante Fascell, D-Fla., cast the deciding vote after Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., D-Mass., a longtime MX opponent, tied it. The new measure would leave the decision of whether to proceed with any further production of the MX after next April strictly up to Congress — requiring new legislation after that date.

Earlier, the House voted to prohibit production of nuclear-tipped, sea-launched cruise missiles unless the Soviet Union deploys a similar weapons system. The stiffer curb on MX production followed an emotional appeal from Democratic Leader Jim Wright of Texas, who invoked the words of Dwight D. Eisenhower: "Every gun that is made, every warship launched, every rocket fired, signifies in a final sense a theft from those who are hungry and are not fed, from those cold and not clothed." "For 40 years," said Wright, "we've been leaptrogging each other, each side building weapons of more destructive capability. We have 4,000 nuclear warheads in the world already. Both of us have enough weapons to destroy one another three or four times over. If ever we were in a position where we could afford to take a step for arms control, now is the time." The vote on the sea-launched missile bars the administration from buying nuclear versions of the Navy's Tomahawk cruise, for which $39 million would be budgeted in fiscal 1985.

Long goodbye

Hearings set on delegates' wilderness bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — House hearings on the Idaho congressional delegation's wilderness bill will be held June 14.

Announcement of the date prompted protests from conservationist and timber industry representatives that they don't have enough time to prepare for the hearings.

The act calls for designating 526,000 acres of Idaho's 8 million acres of roadless areas as wilderness. Craig Gehrke of Lewiston, wilderness coordinator for the Idaho Conservation League, complained most about the short lead time. Gehrke said he had learned of the hearings through unofficial sources Tuesday.

The two weeks before the hearings leave conservation groups such as the Idaho Wilderness Defense Coalition, of which the league is a member, little time to mobilize for the hearings, Gehrke said.

Joseph Hinson, Idaho Forest Industry Council executive director, said the two-week notice leaves little time for industry to prepare its case, either. There is a lot of work to do on the issue in preparation for the hearings, Hinson said from his Coeur d'Alene office.

Hinson said the hearing before the House Subcommittee on Public Lands and National Parks will be a test of lobbying skills because of the large number of subcommittee members and the presence of a large number of swing votes.

The committee may be controlled by Democrats who might otherwise oppose the all-Republican Idaho delegation's bill, but that does not guarantee opposition to the bill, he said.

Conservationists had assumed that Rep. John Selberling, D-Ohio and chairman of the House subcommittee reviewing the wilderness bills, would schedule hearings after he visits Idaho this summer, Gehrke said.

The coalition is frustrated by the short notice, Gehrke said, because it had hoped to draw businessmen and outfitters and guides to the House hearing for testimony in favor of more wilderness.

But most outfitters are now in the field and unreachable, Gehrke said, while others haven't had time to arrange their schedules.

"We're going to make that point when we're back there," Gehrke said, "that people out here in Idaho need more time to arrange schedules and vacation time."

Andrew Wiessner, subcommittee counsel at Washington, said the committee had given three-week's notice of the hearings and that was sufficient notice.

Selberling still plans to visit Idaho in early July for a field inspection, Wiessner said.

Further action on the bill in the House will come after the field inspection, he said. Selberling, Wiessner said, is moving ahead in his consideration of the bill with "deliberate speed."

Planned extravaganza primes Reagan image

By JACK NELSON
The Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON — While Democratic presidential candidates are staggering toward the finish line of their primary season, President Reagan will be strolling through Ballyporeen, Ireland, the ancestral home of his great-grandfather, and making a foreign policy speech to the Irish Parliament.

And that is only the first act of another Reagan overseas journey carefully planned as a television extravaganza and guaranteed to irritate the Democrats as they try to locate their nominee to oppose Reagan in the general election. Michael K. Deaver, a longtime Reagan aide, clearly has made an all-out effort to do just that in arranging the president's 18-day European trip, which begins today as Reagan flies to Ireland. The trip will include visits with royalty and political leaders in Great Britain and participation in dramatic ceremonies on the beaches of Normandy in commemoration of the D-Day invasion during World War II. It winds up with a three-day economic summit in London that will include heads of state from Canada, England, France, Italy and West Germany, as

Census shows reversing trends Americans setting up fewer new households

WASHINGTON (AP) — Reversing the trend of the 1970s, the number of young Americans setting up housekeeping dropped last year, the Census Bureau reported Thursday.

The decline in household formation was primarily evident among persons under the age of 35.

The dropoff in formation of young married-couple households has been under way since 1980. New figures for 1983 show this trend has spread to single-parent families and persons living on their own or with unrelated individuals, according to the study of Household and Family Characteristics.

Since the pool of young people available to form households and families has not declined, the report said, the change "seems more likely to be a response to economic conditions that may have discouraged the formation of new households, particularly among young adults."

Steve W. Rawlings, author of the study, cited the high interest rates on mortgages as a particular problem.

And, he said, changes in the general social climate in recent years also may have had an effect.

"For example, divorce rates have stabilized, more adult sons and daughters appear to be living with their parents and many young adults are postponing marriage as they pursue educational and career goals," Rawlings wrote.

In a telephone interview, Rawlings cautioned against using one-year figures to predict major changes in living patterns. He said that when 1984 statistics are compiled, he expects an easing of the sharp alterations found last year.

But, he added, "it would also be a mistake to assume that everything will go back to the pattern of the 1970s. There are some underlying demographics that are going to change, just not so drastically as might be suggested by the 1983 data."

The number of young households can be expected to decline in coming years as the large baby-boom generation ages, Data Resources Inc., predicted an 11 percent drop in households headed by a person under age 25 by 1995 in a study published in the June edition of American Demographics magazine.

Blast wounds Nicaraguan rebel leader; four others killed

By ELOY O. AGUILAR
The Associated Press

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica — A bomb explosion ripped through a news conference at the jungle headquarters of Nicaraguan rebel leader Edén Pastora, killing four people and wounding 25, the Red Cross said.

Pastora, the famed "Commander Zero," suffered burns and shrapnel wounds. The Wednesday night blast killed Linda Frazier, a reporter for the English-language Times of San Jose and wife of AP Central American correspondent Joseph B. Frazier, and Jorge Quiroz, a Costa Rican television cameraman from San Jose.

Near Robles, the Red Cross chief of national rescue operations, said the other two people killed were a guerrilla who was in charge of the rebel camp in Nicaragua near the hamlet of La Panca and another rebel. He said the guerrilla camp leader was known only by her battle name, "Rosetta," and the identity of the other rebel was unknown.

"La Panca is across the San Juan River from Costa Rica."

Earlier, Red Cross officials said five people had been killed, two of them unidentified. Robles said the discrepancy was due to confusion at the scene and in transporting the victims to Costa Rica.

No group claimed responsibility for the attack at the two-story wood-frame house with a tropical-style open front.

The Costa Rica-based Revolutionary Democratic Alliance, of which Pastora is the military leader, issued a statement from San Jose blaming the bombing on the Sandinista rulers in Nicaragua.

"We blame the totalitarian regime (in Nicaragua) ... for this vile terrorist act," the rebel group said.

The group, known by its Spanish initials ARDE, said unspecified "bad acts" point to the Sandinistas "as the intellectual and material authors of this bloody deed."

In Nicaragua, a member of the ruling junta said the bombing "is the product of rivalries between the counterrevolutionary groups" trying to overthrow the leftist Sandinista junta and "has the typical mark of the CIA."

Sergio Ramirez Mercado called it a CIA-inspired attack designed to "increase tensions between Nicaragua and Costa Rica." He spoke to reporters after meeting with the joint Nicaraguan-Costa Rican commission set up to defuse border tensions.

In Moscow, the Soviet news agency Tass also accused the CIA of engineering the explosion. The CIA denied "historically" that it had "anything to do with the bombing of the press conference," said agency spokeswoman Patricia Vais in Washington.

The blast occurred as reporters crowded around Pastora for a question-and-answer session on the second floor of the house.

"There was a blinding explosion that knocked me back 10 feet into a wall," said Reid G. Miller, an Associated Press reporter who suffered shrapnel cuts and burns. "The explosion seemed to come from the middle of the circle of journalists."

Surgeons complete operation

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Surgeons on Thursday successfully completed the second in a series of operations to separate Siamese twin girls despite a slow start, a hospital spokesman said Thursday.

In the six-hour operation, surgeons slightly widened the separation between the two heads and also made a major modification of the heads and faces for use in later reconstructive surgery, said John Dwan, a spokesman for the University of Utah Medical Center.

The 12-week-old girls were wheeled into the operating room at the University of Utah Medical Center at 8 a.m., but doctors did not begin the surgery until about noon because of problems putting the infants under anesthetic and making the plaster mold, said Dwan.

Following the surgery, both infants were listed in critical but stable condition.

Milwaukee bomb hurts worker

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Two homemade bombs hatched with 41 hills were found Thursday in downtown Milwaukee — and one of them exploded and injured a city worker.

Police said one device bore a note like those found with bombs recently in three other Wisconsin and Minnesota cities.

In Chicago, meanwhile, a homemade bomb similar to the others but without any note was found in a downtown parking lot, police said. It was disarmed safely.

The city employee helping clean the grounds of the Milwaukee Civic Center Plaza was injured when she picked up one of the devices. The second bomb, found about four blocks away, was safely detonated by police.

Court stalls Florida execution

STARKE, Fla. (AP) — The U.S. Supreme Court refused Thursday to let Florida authorities execute convicted killer Alvin Bernard Ford this week.

The justices, by a 6-3 vote, rejected an emergency request by state Attorney General Jim Smith aimed at setting aside an execution postponement granted by a federal appeals court panel Wednesday.

Ford, who had been awaiting word on his appeal in a "death watch" cell 50 feet from the state's electric chair, was immediately moved back to another cell where he has spent some of his 34 years on death row, said Department of Corrections spokesman Vernon Bradford.

The Supreme Court turned down a state plea to overturn an 11th-hour reprieve granted by a federal appeals court late Wednesday.

Reagan offers to meet Soviets

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, with NATO foreign ministers at his side, said Thursday that the United States will meet the Soviet Union halfway if it will clear arms control negotiations it broke off last year.

But one foreign minister said it was a "fairly strong probability" that the Kremlin won't resume the arms control talks until after the U.S. presidential elections in November, at the earliest.

"When the Soviet Union returns to the negotiating table, we will meet them halfway," Reagan said. He said the United States is prepared to "negotiate fairly and flexibly without preconditions."

Secretary of State George P. Shultz, meanwhile, said he would "personally welcome" a meeting with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko at the United Nations this fall and expects one will take place.

SALT provisions 'in effect'

ATLANTA (AP) — The provisions of the second Strategic Arms Limitation Treaty, hammered out during years of talks in the late 1970s, are in effect even though the pact was never ratified by the U.S. Senate, former President Jimmy Carter said Thursday.

Carter said the Soviet Union is responsible for the lack of formal ratification because of its invasion of Afghanistan in late 1979.

But the SALT II treaty still provides the groundwork for resumption of arms control talks with the Soviets, Carter told 300 people at a symposium on arms control sponsored by The Carter Center of Emory University.

Utah streams run bankfull

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Heavy rainfall, marbled-sized hail and winds up to 40 mph swept through areas of northern and central Utah on Thursday, pushing runoff and streams to bankfull in some locations and causing mud and flooding.

Salt Lake County and Murray crews and volunteers were sandbagging and pumping late Thursday as Big and Little Cottonwood creeks threatened homes, condominiums and mobile homes from State Street 1 mile eastward.

Thirty or 40 people were evacuated from the Cottonwood Cove Mobile Home Park, said Craig Holland, Murray city official.

Reagan

As well as the president of the Commission of the European Communities.

Unless some foreign crisis erupts and dominates the news, White House aides expect extensive television coverage of the trip to give Americans a picture of Reagan playing a central role on the world stage.

On the European trip, as on his recent China trip, Reagan will be followed closely by a Republican National Committee television crew that will record his activities for possible use in campaign commercials.

Although demonstrators protesting Reagan's Central American policies are expected in Ireland and Britain, a White House aide said, "We don't expect any real problems, because people will differentiate between the significance of the demonstrations and the publicity given them."

"But the wild card," said the aide, "could be the Persian Gulf. If the situation turns worse there, it could dominate the trip and the economic summit."

Reagan will spend almost four days in Ireland before flying to London and while Democrats are voting Tuesday in primaries in California and four other states, the president will be having lunch with Queen Elizabeth II and Prince Philip at Buckingham Palace and meeting with Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher at 10 Downing Street.

The next day he will travel to France, where he will participate in the D-Day ceremonies and watch U.S. Army Rangers scale 100-foot cliffs in a re-enactment of a World War II feat during the Allied invasion. He returns to London for the economic summit, where concerns about interest rates and the strong U.S. dollar are likely to dominate, and is scheduled to return to Washington on June 10.

Reagan, accompanied on the trip by his wife Nancy, is scheduled to arrive at Shannon Airport in Ireland at 3:20 p.m. local time today. A Marine helicopter will take the Reagans on a 30-minute trip to Ashford Castle in Cong, where they will spend the night.

The president will deliver a speech and receive an honorary degree Saturday at ceremonies commemorating the 500th anniversary of the National University of Ireland at University College, Galway.

On Sunday, Reagan, described by an aide as "very excited" about seeing the birthplace of his ancestors, will take a 45-minute helicopter trip from Ashford Castle to the lawn adjoining the rectory of the Church of the Assumption of Our Lady, where his great-grandfather, Michael, was baptized in 1829, a year after the church was built.

Nuclear weapons test set off early

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — A major nuclear weapons test, with an explosive punch of 20,000 to 150,000 tons of TNT was detonated just after dawn Thursday at the Nevada Test Site.

The test, code-named Caprock, was conducted 1,970 feet beneath the surface of Yucca Flat, some 82 miles northwest of Las Vegas.

Iraq says jets hit refinery

MANAMA, Bahrain (AP) — Iraq announced that its warplanes raided an oil refinery in northern Iran on Thursday.

"We also said it would destroy installations on Iran's Kharg Island in the Persian Gulf if Iran launches a major ground assault.

Iraq said the Persian Gulf war "has reached a sensitive and highly fateful stage" and warned that if the U.S. intervened, "then our people will go to the Gulf in groups and make it in-sure."

An Iraqi military spokesman, speaking on state television, said Iraq jets attacked an oil refinery and a pumping station near Tabriz, about 300 miles northwest of Tehran.

The attack was "carried out this evening. The two targets were accurately hit," said the spokesman. "All Iraq jet fighters returned safely to base except for one, which was downed in enemy territory."

The broadcast was monitored in Baghdad. There was no immediate confirmation from Iran.

Iranian Parliament Speaker Hashemi Rafsanjani said in a speech to artillery and air defense personnel that it would destroy ports and oil pipelines in the Gulf region if the U.S. intervened in the Iran-Iraq war.

The United States has said it will intervene in the Gulf region to keep open the Strait of Hormuz, the narrow Gulf passage through which about 20 percent of the non-communist world's oil passes.

Kuwait made an "informal request" to the United States for short-range Stinger anti-aircraft missiles for protection against attacks spilling over into the Gulf from the Iran-Iraq war.

Flood chases 6,000 from their homes

New Jersey man wades to a National Guard rescue truck

BY DAVID L. LANGFORD
The Associated Press

The worst flooding in parts of the Northeast in almost half a century chased more than 6,000 people from their homes Thursday as rivers climbed as high as 12 feet above flood stage and water lapped at the eaves of buildings.

Up to 9 inches of rain in four days set records for the entire month of May in several Northeastern states and sent floodwaters surging through the downtown areas of several cities. It inundated thousands of acres of farmland that had just been planted and washed out roads and bridges.

National Guardsmen joined volunteers building sandbag dikes in several areas.

The storm system, which on Sunday killed 13 people and routed 4,000 people from their homes in Tulsa, Okla., was blamed for 17 deaths, including two sisters who drowned in New York and two traffic fatalities in Massachusetts.

Connecticut Gov. William A. O'Neill declared a state of emergency, citing the "devastating effect" of four days of flooding. The state has called out or put on alert 1,600 National Guard troops.

The Housatonic River was 8 to 10 feet above flood stage in the western part of the state, and the Connecticut River was expected to crest at 14 feet above flood stage Friday south of the state capital of Hartford.

"The Connecticut River is the highest since the hurricane of 1938," said Charles Smith, a hydrologist with the Northeast River Forecast Center in Bloomfield, Conn.

Others compared the flooding to a deluge in 1855 that killed 100 people in Connecticut alone.

Massachusetts Gov. Michael S. Dukakis declared a state of emergency in four counties in the rich bottomlands of the Connecticut Valley where losses to corn and potato fields were estimated at $30 million, with additional damage to highways and sewage treatment plants expected to exceed $10 million. Some of the farms — which date back three centuries — were under as much as 17 feet of water.

"You don't hold your own against a river," said Robert Clary, first selectman of the Connecticut River town of Portland. "It just comes up and hits you."

With the rivers still rising in many areas, officials said at least 3,500 people were displaced from their homes Wednesday and Thursday in Massachusetts, 1,000 in New Jersey, 650 in New York, 600 in Connecticut and 400 in New Hampshire.

Elsewhere in the country, temperatures were making news with either record highs or record lows.

Reaganite joins the panel

WASHINGTON (AP) — Martha Seger, a former bank regulator from Michigan, was named by President Reagan on Thursday to replace the most liberal governor on the Federal Reserve Board and she promptly declared her allegiance to Reagan's conservative economic policies.

Federal Reserve chairman Paul A. Volcker, who stood near the microphone at the podium, was overheard complaining about the presence of banking lobbyists at the ceremony.

If confirmed by the Senate, Ms. Seger will succeed Nancy H. Tosters, who was the first woman ever appointed to the Federal Reserve Board in its 70-year history when she was named in 1978 by President Carter.

Aeronautics board reverses on smoking ban

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Civil Aeronautics Board reversed course Tuesday, deciding to tentatively ban smoking on most airline flights.

Then it backed off and announced that separate smoking sections would be maintained on jetliners.

"The board is not going to do what it said this afternoon it would do," CAB spokesman Alan Pollock said Thursday night.

Earlier in a heated meeting, the board instructed its staff to prepare a regulation that would have banned cigarette smoking on all commercial flights of two hours or less, reversing a position it took two months ago when it rejected such a ban.

The move came after CAB chairman Daniel McKinnon said he had changed his mind and favored the ban. He carried a proxy vote from another board member who was absent and was joined by a third board member, giving the ban a majority.

One board member, James Smith, called the reversal from the March decision "temporary insanity," but failed to persuade McKinnon and could not delay the order until after further debate. The board adjourned with the instructions to the staff in effect.

But Pollock said the agency staff advised McKinnon late Thursday in a private session that a prohibition on smoking based on length of flight is "impractical," could not be enforced and could not be administered.

The board members, said Pollock, then decided to revert to their position of last March calling for stronger measures to protect non-smokers aboard jetliners, but rejecting a ban on short-haul flights.

The airline industry has said such a ban would affect 85 to 90 percent of all flights.

"You can use (the term) backing off, having a change of heart . . . The key is the impracticality of administering this two-hour ban," said Pollock, attempting to explain the double reversal by the CAB in a span of less than seven hours.

McKinnon's change of heart led the way earlier in the day to obtaining a majority.

Sting nabs mercenaries

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Authorities have arrested 13 people who allegedly plotted to muster and arm a small army to overthrow Haiti's government, a U.S. attorney said Thursday.

More arrests were expected, said U.S. Attorney John Volz.

The 13 were arrested Wednesday at a motel in suburban Slidell, where they had just signed three-page contracts "enlisting ourselves and our services in noble cause, for the liberation of Haiti, at considerable personal risk," according to Volz.

It was not known whether any of the men were Haitian citizens.

Bond of $5 million was set Thursday for Raymond Ramirez, identified as one of four leaders of the band. Ramirez said at his arraignment Thursday he was born in Puerto Rico.

Mondale needs wins in Tuesday contests

If this is the first week of June, there must be yet another primary somewhere in America. Sure enough, Tuesday brings us showdown contests in California and New Jersey.

Depending on how you roll the dice, the contests will either finish off Gary Hart and/or Jesse Jackson and secure the nomination for Walter Mondale or throw a heavy roundhouse at the front runner.

A weak showing for Mondale on Tuesday would start a serious "anybody but" movement; by convention time, the talk and certain speculation by the press could be devastating.

So the conventional wisdom is that Mondale, although he is the leader, can't afford to coast on the coasts. He must win in both states and win big enough to erase any doubts that he will run well against Ronald Reagan in November.

There is considerable evidence against that. Reagan's popularity continues to climb, and in pivotal California, voters give him a wider approval rating than a month ago.

More importantly, none of the Democratic candidates appear to have made much headway against Reagan on the issues or the conduct of the office. There he goes, off to China and now Ireland, England and Normandy for the D-Day anniversary, looking very lofty and presidential while his rivals squabble over delegates allocation.

Polls show Mondale drawing even with Hart in California; not exactly cheering news to either one. If Hart loses there, he is probably through. Mondale won't be helped by anything other than a landslide win.

At this point, we're entering the summer sticking to our January and March predictions: Mondale will come out the nominee from the Democratic convention, but will put on little more than a lackluster campaign against Reagan.

Despite that, the election in November will be a lot closer than anyone now thinks. We'll pick Reagan, but by less than 2 percent.

CSI offers a small dose of tax relief

Relief appears to be coming in small doses for property taxpayers in Twin Falls and Jerome counties.

The College of Southern Idaho last week took a baby step toward resolving tax inequities which stem from the way the school charges academic student tuition to other counties.

With little discussion, the school's Board of Trustees unanimously adopted CSI President Jerry Meyerhoefer's proposal to increase, to $750 a year from $650 a year, the per-student tuition paid by counties outside of the CSI taxing district.

But that 15 percent increase still leaves a substantial disparity between the amounts paid for academic student tuition by counties outside the district and the amounts paid by Jerome and Twin Falls, the two counties within the taxing district.

There is another disparity between those two counties. Both pay property taxes based on the same levy and Twin Falls County contributes about three times as much money to the school as does Jerome County. But the large number of Twin Falls students at CSI causes that county's cost per student, at $1,160 a year, to be about half that of the $2,240 per student that Jerome County's taxpayers contribute.

Had the school's trustees approved an increase of $350 — to the $1,000 maximum amount for out-of-district students — they would have nearly eliminated the disparity between Twin Falls County taxpayers and those of other Idaho counties that send students to CSI.

And although Jerome County taxpayers would still pay more than double the per-student amount paid by those other counties, their money would have done everything in their power to minimize the inequity.

Meyerhoefer defends the $100-a-year increase as fair. He says more than a 15 percent hike, combined with dramatic increases in enrollment in recent years would be prohibitively expensive for counties in one budget year. And, he adds, the disparity isn't nearly as bad as it seems because the college contributes substantially — in the neighborhood of $100 million a year, through a multiplier effect — to the local economies of Jerome and Twin Falls counties.

But if Meyerhoefer is concerned about the impact of tuition increases on other counties and their taxpayers, that is in many ways a departure from his position that all eight Magic Valley counties should be included in the CSI taxing district.

That highly-unpopular proposal lost even the support of its sponsors in the 1984 session of the Idaho Legislature because of the potentially devastating effect it would have had on property taxpayers in the other Magic Valley counties.

According to a study by Rep. Donna Scott, R-Twin Falls, Camas County would have found its CSI support bill increased from $650 a year to $15,960 a year under the expanded taxing district plan — an increase of more than 2,000 percent. Cassia County's share would have nearly tripled.

Property taxpayers in both Jerome and Twin Falls counties, however, would have received a 61 percent reduction in their CSI tax bills and, to the misfortune of property owners in the other six counties, the funding inequity would have been reversed.

Meyerhoefer defends extending the school's property tax base to all of the Magic Valley counties because he says it's an important step toward the establishment of a statewide system of community colleges — a proposal that was also endorsed by a Committee funded by the Idaho Association of Commerce and Industry. That study at least indirectly recognized another disparity in the funding of community colleges in Idaho — one that affects all Magic Valley residents who pay state taxes.

The state's "open door" admissions policy at its three universities and one college, in effect, provides a community college to each of the areas surrounding Boise, Lewiston, Moscow and Pocatello. The community college function is thus served in those communities without the imposition of a local property tax.

The general account appropriation for the state's college and universities amounts to nearly $3,800 per student — almost three times the roughly $1,300 amount per student the state spends on community colleges.

While much of the money that goes to the state college and universities is spent on upper level classes, graduate degree programs and research funding not available at community colleges, much of it is also used for the same functions that are provided at the community college level.

Consequently, for Magic Valley residents, state taxes paid to support higher education may not be providing an equitable return, considering CSI's share of the burden.

Rick Shaughnessy covers Idaho politics and state government for The Times-News.

Beware of utility's intentions

I don't believe what I am hearing on the radio lately about subordination of Idaho Power's so-called water rights. I certainly hope the people aren't fooled by Idaho Power's many recent ads in both the paper and on the air. Most of these ads are misquoted, contradictory or just simply aren't true.

Their right which is a use and re-use right, not a consumptive right as the Snake River want and need. Their water rights were also given to them by the Idaho Dept. of Water Resources. What about their rights?

The subordination only calls for present water rights already given as I understand it. It could be increased to allow enough water to irrigate every square mile of desert in Southern Idaho if the people of Idaho and Idaho Power would quit fighting like a bunch of pettifoggers and come to a reasonable compromise.

It is possible for the people of Idaho to have their cake and eat it too, that is if more water is stored during off irrigation months, we would have more flood control during spring run off.

It is possible by more storage on every tributary and as many low head dams on the Snake River to have more recreational areas, more power developed, more land under cultivation and still maintain the 8,400 CFS to Swan Falls Dam as Idaho Power wants.

To the people of Idaho I say "Beware: Idaho Power's only aim is to get their hands deeper in your pocket."

Gideon bibles were well worn

Decorating Day is a sad thing. My sons who were in the service returned home, but one is missing now because of that service. They brought back their Gideon Bibles which are given to all in the service who want them. These books were well worn, showing that they were used during the stress to give solace and comfort.

The episode at Jerome regarding the Gideon Bibles caused me to recall those words of an ancient prayer, asking protection from "The evil spirits who roam thru the world, seeking the ruin of souls."

Election is over and good men have been chosen to protect our water from state control and keep that control in the hands of the people.

We have state control of schools. See the sorry mess we are in.

The text books are to be changed every seven years. Now text books are being examined. You have every right to check these books and voice your opinion to the legislators and the text book committee. I have been informed that the books held by Dr. Richard Kay, Science and Energy are loaded. He wants them read after selection decision. Go to the Len Jordan Building in Boise, the Idaho Public Library there has all the books. Take down information on them and see the textbook committee members before they decide. The State Dept. of Education, 650 W. St., Boise 83720 has these books also.

A decision meeting will be held this fall. A crowd will be there, for it is a public meeting. People will demand good books as you have every right to do so.

It has been widely publicized that the history texts, teaches pupils to "despise the past and mock it." The texts treat religion with "complacent contempt," and that the early colonists came to America to escape religion and have religious freedom without it. GENEVIEVE UTT

It's tough work trying to decipher international mumbling

BOSTON — For most of 1984, I have been engaged in foreign policy.

It began, as many of these things do, with simple curiosity. Here I was, a child of one of the two countries that might actually finish off civilization, and I knew little about the other one. I wanted to see and write about the Soviet Union.

It is not possible for an American journalist to call up a travel agent, book a trip in Moscow, and wander around the streets interviewing people. So, around January, I began the process of gathering permission slips for a journey.

Over the next months, I studied the language from an engaging tutor, and the bureaucracy from a pleasant Soviet official in Washington. From both men, I learned the word "zaftra," which translates into Spanish as "manana."

The trip I had originally tried to schedule for March and which was rescheduled with "myet problem" for June has now, after an innumerable calls, been "postponed" indefinitely. Explained my contact, "There are so many journalists who want to go at this time, we cannot make for you such a wonderful trip right now."

Here we get into the foreign policy part of the story. From my thoroughly trivial report, I got a sense of how indirectly the U.S.A. and U.S.S.R. deal with each other today. I also learned something about the nature of negotiating in a time of mistrust.

Ellen Goodman

After my "myet for now," I immediately discounted the official explanation. So I was left to figure Soviet motivations without any help from the Soviets. Was my budding trip nipped by the big chill? Was it something I said? Wrote? Am? Should I take this personally or professionally? Or was it just their way?

It is this all begins to sound like the ranting of a person who's been stood up by a date. I hasten to say that this is how we conduct foreign policy these days: by international analysis. We don't say what we mean or what we really want. Instead, each country tries to psyche-out and out-psyche the other. To the best interpreter goes the spoils.

The Soviets withdrew from the games, claiming personal danger. We rejected that notion and came up with our own. It was, we figured, ill for Carter's tail. It was fear of defections in Los Angeles. It was just plain obstinacy. In the absence of plain talk each side withdrew behind its most paranoid theory.

Then there was the MX fiasco. In May, the House of Representatives passed a compromise bill to fund 15 MX missiles unless there are arms negotiations before next April. The supporters explain it as a "bargaining chip." Sitting near the international relations couch, they say that this will get the Soviets back to negotiating. Never mind that American detractors call it insanity on the part of the Legislature, or even vanity on the part of Rep. Les Aspin. D.W., who drew up the misguided "compromise." The Soviets must analyze it, simply, as hostile.

In the arms race as well, each country figures the behavior of the other. Each then draws up a real defense against their imaginings. Are "they" trying to influence U.S. elections? How can the United States best "show them"? Does Reagan call the U.S.S.R. an Evil Empire? How can they best show us? Can we scare them back to the table? Can they scare us into the election booth? How can we avoid making them believe that we are, gasp, weak?

Both countries end up contemplating what we think they think we think that they think. Instead of their own intentions, we read the signals and send signals. Araid of tipping our hand, we both clasp lips over our mouths and then try to decipher the code of international mumbling.

Both countries behave rather like a couple in a bad marriage. They can no longer communicate but can still try to manipulate and manipulate to use our mouths and ears. We try to read minds. It would all be pathetically amusing, if the messages that we need to psyche out weren't so bleak.

As for the postponement of my own excursion into foreign terrain, the man in Washington has suggested that we try for January. The last person who was invited to Moscow in January was Napoleon. I'll have to figure out what this means.

Ellen Goodman writes for The Boston Globe.

Farm prices down from record levels

WASHINGTON (AP)—Prices farmers get for their crops fell by 1.4 percent in May from April's record levels, the Agriculture Department said Thursday.

At the same time, prices that farmers must pay for labor, services, fuel and other things that go into running a farm were unchanged from the previous month, according to the preliminary figures in the department's monthly price report.

Eggs, cattle, onions, tomatoes and milk all declined to reverse a seven-month climb in the department's prices-received index. Those drops were partly offset by increases in oranges, soybeans and cotton, the department said.

The index of prices received in May stood 5.1 percent higher than what it was a year earlier.

Prices for fuel, fertilizer, chemicals and farm items all rose during the month, but these were offset by lower prices for replacement livestock to leave the prices-paid index unchanged from April and 3.1 percent more than it was a year earlier.

Livestock and livestock product prices fell 4 percent during the month but overall still were 0.7 percent above what they were in May 1983. Crop prices as a whole were up 2.9 percent during May and averaged 12 percent above the year-ago mark.

The department's economists have been expecting food prices to rise 4 percent to 7 percent this calendar year, most likely winding up in the low end of that range. Officials said Thursday that changes in a single month reversing a string of increases were unlikely to force revisions in the forecasts.

The 1983 increase of 2.1 percent was the lowest in 16 years.

Overall, farm prices in May averaged 144 percent of a 1977 base price average used for comparison, compared with a revised 146 percent in April and 137 percent in May 1983. The May reading matched the second highest ever figure set in February.

The index bottomed at 134 last October.

The May parity ratio of 58 percent was even with the April ratio. A year ago it was 56 percent.

Best speller declared

WASHINGTON (AP)—A self-confident young computer whiz, 13-year-old Daniel Greenblatt of Sterling, Va., won the 27th annual National Spelling Bee on Thursday when he correctly spelled "Luge," but his victory was no easy sledding.

Daniel bested Amy McWhirter, 12, of St. Joseph, Mich., after several rounds of word-to-word combat in which both of them misspelled words.

Any finally tripped over "towhee," a small North American sparrow, spelling it "tobee." Daniel got it right and took the prize over 151 finalists with "Luge," a racing sled.

He stepped back from the microphone in the crowded ballroom of a downtown Washington hotel and shook his head in astonishment. He grinned broadly and turned to shake Amy's hand.

"I'm ecstatic," said Daniel, "a slightly built eighth-grader with blond hair, blue eyes and a mouth full of braces. With tears in his eyes, he raised his gold trophy cup above his head.

Daniel said he will study calculus this summer in a program for gifted children at Johns Hopkins University and hopes to go to Harvard, Yale, Princeton or Johns Hopkins to study computer science.

Argentina's loan extended

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States is extending until June 15 its commitment to provide a short-term $300 million loan that would be sent to Argentina as soon as that nation agrees to an economic-adjustment plan with the International Monetary Fund, Treasury Department officials said Thursday.

The commitment had been extended until Thursday from the original expiration date of April 30.

"The decision by Treasury to extend its commitment to provide financing to Argentina was taken in light of the continuing progress which has been made in discussions between the government of Argentina and the IMF toward agreement on a new economic adjustment program," the department said in a two-paragraph statement.

Crippled girl not deported

IDAHO FALLS (AP) — A crippled Mexican girl whose deportation deadline was Thursday will remain in the United States at least temporarily, says an immigration official.

The U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service in Helena, Mont., is waiting to consider a letter sent by the attorney for the family of nine-year-old Esmeralda Hernandez of Idaho Falls, Deputy Director Paul Hayes said.

Officials also have indicated they will postpone action on the Hernandez case pending the outcome of legislation proposed by Rep. George Hansen, R-Idaho.

But the Hernandez family's attorney, J. Dee May of Twin Falls, said he has received no formal notice that action against his client will be delayed because of the Hansen proposal.

Nor has he received a response to his letter requesting extension of the deportation deadline, he said Thursday.

Deadly fish disease returns

AHSAHKA (AP) — The disease that caused heavy losses of young steelhead trout at Dworshak National Fish Hatchery last year has returned.

IHN disease has already killed or been responsible for the loss of 300,000 young steelhead, said Hatchery Manager Wayne Olson. The contents of 11 nursery tanks, each holding 25,000 to 30,000 fish, were lost to the disease in the past two weeks.

Another 13 tanks of Dworshak's 85 have shown signs of the disease, Olson said. "I just wish we knew where this thing was going to," he added.

The disease last year caused nearly total losses in each tank once it appeared, Olson said Wednesday. It has so far only affected very young fish, those up to about 2 inches long.

Some tanks of the young fish have so far been spared by the disease. When it has hit, the losses have been sporadic, Olson said.

New injection well rules aired

BOISE (AP) — The state is seeking public comment on proposed changes in the regulation of injection wells.

Major revisions triggered by action of the 1984 Legislature include bans on certain types of injection. Primarily, that concerns the injection of hazardous substances, such as radioactive materials, above drinking water sources, the Idaho Water Resources Department said.

Another change would impose stiffer penalties for violation of injection well rules. Still another would shift regulation of shallow injection wells from the Idaho Health and Welfare Department to the Water Resources Department.

Plans call for merging Health and Welfare Department rules for shallow wells with Idaho Water Resource Board rules for deeper wells.

The Water Resources Department will accept written comments until July 6.

Information sessions will be held in Twin Falls June 19, and in Coeur d'Alene June 21. A public hearing will be held in Boise June 26.

Phone company fixes books

COBUR D'ALENE (AP) — General Telephone Co. has resumed distributing its new directory to area residents after it found 400 wrong numbers.

Some 1,600 customers were scheduled to have their phone numbers changed in the new directory, according to Doug Shepherd, local service manager.

But as the deliveries to customers started on May 23, General Telephone found that not all the new numbers were printed. Some of the published numbers were the old exchanges, Shepherd said.

School patrons ponder levy

MIDDLETON (AP) — Middleton School District voters will be asked to approve a $126,000 supplemental tax levy on June 26.

The additional money would provide salaries for an additional five teachers and an aide, Superintendent Darwin Andersen said.

The district will need more teachers because of new state graduation requirements, he said.

Officials prepare for forest, range fire season

BOISE (AP) — Fires could blacken more acres of Idaho forest and rangeland this year than last, but forecasters say conditions won't be anything like the tinderbox season of 1979.

"It looks like it will be a pretty active year in the lower elevations," said Paul Werth, fire-weather-forecaster for the National Weather Service in Boise.

Werth tracks lightning and storm patterns, and precipitation, to help project possible fire danger. Officials differ on whether a bumper crop of fire-tolerant range grasses can be expected this year.

Some say the heavy precipitation that has drenched the state will nourish rangeland plants, but others say cold temperatures already may have stymied the growth.

"Our cheatgrass is spotty," said Chuck Bale, fire officer at the Bureau of Land Management's Idaho headquarters in Boise. "It didn't grow in a lot of areas because it was so cold." Based on weather patterns and long-range forecasts, it appears fires in higher-elevation forests could top the 1,000 acres of forest and that burned last year — one of the slowest seasons on record, Werth said. But the fire incidence still is expected to be below normal.

Weather Service records show fires swept across 270,000 acres of public and private rangeland in Idaho last year. Forest Service and Bureau of Land Management officials say they'll be watching June weather patterns to get a clearer idea of what's in store for Idaho fire crews this season.

Werth said the southwestern United States likely will be the scene of this year's most intense fire activity. Firefighters from McCall already have been dispatched to blazes in southern Nevada.

Reports bolster evidence recovery slowling

By ROBERT FURLOW
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Providing new evidence the national economic recovery is slowing, the government said Thursday its main economic forecasting gauge rose a modest 0.5 percent in April.

At the same time, another report showed new orders for manufactured goods took their steepest plunge in four years.

Government officials and private analysts said the latest slowdown from a full year of rapid growth was not necessarily bad news, that in fact it could mean the economic expansion is more likely to continue rather than explode into a new burst of high inflation.

In a typical comment, Thomas Thomson, chief economist for Crocker National Bank in San Francisco, said the new figures "should be welcomed by almost everyone."
"It's better to have a sustained recovery rather than a boom-bust situation," he said. "I'm not concerned at all that the slowdown will become a stall."

The two reports, both compiled by the Commerce Department, said:

- The Index of Leading Indicators, which is designed to forecast the nation's economic health six to nine months in advance, resumed its upward trend of nearly two years after dipping 0.1 percent in March. However, the new increase was much smaller than the gains that were typical much of last year.

- Orders to factories for manufactured goods dropped 3.6 percent in April, the biggest slide since May 1980. Most of that was accounted for by a huge 44.8 percent decline in the volatile category of military hardware, a category not expected to remain depressed.

Commerce Secretary Malcolm Baldrige said the relatively modest increase in the leading indicators meant that "less robust economic growth lies ahead."

"After a year and one-half of vigorous rebound, smaller gains in the Index of Leading Indicators and in many other economic statistics are a normal development signaling a more moderate, sustainable growth period ahead," he said.

At the White House, deputy press secretary Larry Speakes said the April figures "show the economy to be moving ahead at a brisk but sustainable pace."

Private economists said the fact that interest rates have been rising for several months undoubtedly had a lot to do with the slowdown.

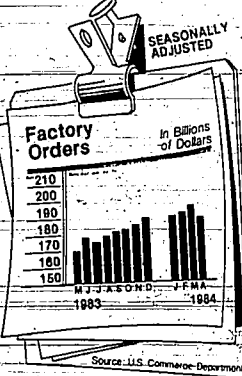

But Michael K. Evans, head of Evans Economics in Washington, said weaker economic growth—coupled with lower-than-expected inflation and other factors, could well bring lower rates. And he said a decline in interest rates could mean, contrary to some analysts' long-range forecasts of economic trouble, "1985 will be all right, too."

Crocker Bank's Thomson said, "I don't think things will get so tranquil that short-term interest rates will fall." But he said he saw no sign of a recession before, perhaps, the last half of 1985.

The leading indicators report, which pulls together a broad range of forward-pointing economic surveys, had not declined since the summer of 1982 before recording the tiny March dip. However, it has now risen an average of just 0.5 percent per month during the past 18 months, compared with an average of 1.5 percent for the preceding 10 months.

The broadest measure of economic expansion—the inflation-adjusted gross national product—charged ahead at an 8.8 percent annual rate in the January-March quarter, but most analysts are estimating only about half that growth for the April-June period.

In addition to providing April figures, the

new leading indicators report said the index declined only the very small amount in March rather than the earlier estimated 1.1 percent. That revision was mostly due to the addition of strong credit figures that were not available when the first version was compiled. April credit figures were missing from the new report, and Evans said those likely would be weaker, making a downward revision in the 0.5 percent April Index possible.

The report gave these further details:

- The biggest factor pushing the overall index upward was an increase in American production workers' average work week to 41.2 hours from 40.8 hours in March.

- Also rising were formation of new businesses, building permits for new home construction, the nation's money supply, stock prices and the prices of sensitive raw materials.

- Negative signals included a decline in contracts and orders for new plants and equipment, an increase in first-time claims for unemployment benefits, a drop in orders to manufacturers for consumer goods and a decline in companies reporting slower business deliveries.

In all, the report said, the leading indicators index rose to 167.8 percent of the 1967 base level in 1984.

The factory orders report said Total Orders dropped to $169.1 billion in April, a decline that had been expected in light of the recent advance report of a steep decrease in orders for durable goods, which make up more than half of the total.

Orders for non-durable goods such as chemicals, paper and food rose 0.2 percent, while orders for durables—those items expected by last three years or more—dropped 6.9 percent.

By far the biggest factor was the drop in military items, but there also were also declines of 6.2 percent in automotive equipment and 2 percent in home goods and clothing.

Big retail stores post strong gains

By The Associated Press

The nation's major retailers reported strong sales gains for May, and analysts said Thursday the trend will probably continue, but not without heavy promotions to lure customers after the post-recession buying spree of a year ago.

The sales increase from May 1983, which was somewhat lower than those registered earlier in the year, was typical of the second year of a recovery when pent-up demand has begun to be satisfied, analysts said.

Among the nation's retail leaders, No. 1 Sears, Roebuck & Co. said May sales rose 6.1 percent over May 1983.

Retail stocks stronger but bank issues weak

NEW YORK (AP)— The stock market, struggled to a small gain Thursday, maintaining its stand at the 1,100 level in the Dow Jones industrial average.

Retailing issues showed some response to strong May sales figures. But bank issues were weak.

The Dow Jones average of 30 blue-chip stocks rose to 1,103.57. Volume on the New York Stock Exchange slowed to 81.89 million shares from 105.66 million Wednesday.

On Wednesday the Dow Jones industrial average, down about 12 at 2 p.m. and up about 12 at 3 p.m., closed with a net gain of 1.45 points.

Some buying interest was attributed to reports that Iran was inclined to sell off below-prevailing market prices, over problems and high costs in shipping oil through the Persian Gulf war zone.

But brokers also said traders were encouraged by the fact that the market has rallied each time the Dow Jones industrial average has dipped below 1,100 lately. They said that gave rise to hopes that the market had found its "buyers' lift" after its long decline since last winter.

In the retailing group, K mart gained 1.2 to 294.3; J.C. Penney 4/4 to 50 1/4; Associated Dry Goods 3/4 to 47, and Federated Department Stores 1/2 to 45 1/2. Sears Roebuck, however, slipped 3/4 to 30 3/4.

Continental Illinois was the biggest loser in the banking sector, falling 1/4 to 5 1/2. Analysts said pessimism has apparently mounted about how shareholders' interests will fare in the ultimate resolution of the company's recent problems.

Some other banks lost ground amid new rumors of a possible default by Argentinean oil debts.

New bombs feared

LONDON (AP) — A study of nuclear weapons says it should be assumed that India, South Africa and Israel have small arsenals of nuclear weapons and that 11 other countries are potential nuclear powers.

Dr. Paul Rogers, a senior lecturer in peace studies at Bradford University, conducted the study, which was published Thursday.

He said other countries that may test or produce nuclear weapons by the turn of the century were Pakistan, Argentina, Brazil, Egypt, Taiwan, Iraq, Iran, Libya, South Korea, Nigeria and Chile.

Only the United States, the Soviet Union, Britain, France and China acknowledge that they possess nuclear weapons.

But there have been persistent reports in recent years that India, Israel and South Africa have joined the nuclear powers, although those countries have denied or refused to confirm the reports.

"It should be assumed that India, South Africa and Israel all have small nuclear arsenals, that of Israel being the most sophisticated," Rogers said.

Haiti's president-for-life shakes 'super-cabinet'

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti (AP) — President-for-Life Jean-Claude Duvalier has revamped his government and fired one member of his chief advisers after two outbreaks of rioting in northern Haiti.

Haitian soldiers continued patrols Thursday in Gonaves and Cap-Haitien, but no new incidents were reported.

The U.S. Embassy in Port-au-Prince said Washington had approved another $21-million in food aid for Haiti and that U.S. Agency for International Development staffers were studying how best to use the new aid to ease food shortages in the parched north.

A communique signed by Duvalier and released late Wednesday said Alix Cines was dismissed from the five-man "Super-Cabinet" of insider ministers, and as Secretary of State for Public Works, Transportation and Communication. Fritz Benjamin was named to replace Cines, but he was not named to the super cabinet.

Duvalier also fired three other ministers. No reason was given for any of the dismissals.

Poor trade upsets Caribbean

PLYMOUTH, Montserrat (AP) — The main threat to stability in the eastern Caribbean comes from trade problems, not politics, Prime Minister Eugenia Charles of Dominica said Thursday.

Opening a two-day summit of the seven-member Organization of Eastern Caribbean States, Miss Charles referred to the "inviting" of the United States to lead an invasion of Grenada in October 1983 after a takeover of the island by military men who were considered even farther left than deposed Prime Minister Maurice Bishop.

But Miss Charles stressed the consequences of trade problems, not political philosophies, in her address.

"The future of this organization is still delicate because economic conditions have not improved satisfactorily, if at all. We continue to be faced with difficulties caused by the search for greater self-reliance," she said.

Film breaks down Without talent

Review

By PAT MARCAZONIO Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — A movie that deals with a feud such as break dancing and features a leading man named "Shabba-Doo" should signal an immediate warning to stay away.

But if you ignore the red flag, you will find that "Breakin'" is a low-budget, low-effort, just plain low movie.

"Breakin'" is the story of Kelly, a dollish waitress-dancer hoping to hit the big time. But she is under the thumb of a tyrannical dance teacher who calls her "baby." And if he smiled, it might break his face.

A friend of Kelly introduces her to street dancing and its two best practitioners, Ozone and Turbo.

Kelly becomes intrigued with break dancing—which includes such variations as "popping," "locking" and "twirling on one's head."

With the help of her whimpy agent, Kelly, Ozone and Turbo hope to audition for a "big" dance competition. Kelly believes that the dance establishment should accept street dancing as an art form in its own right.

"Breakin'" is filled with no-name actors with no talent. As Kelly, Linda Dickey makes a better waitress than actress as she puts her way through the film.

Ozone, who has a crush on Kelly, is played by Adolfo "Shabba-Doo" Quiñones. Quiñones does have a flash for break dancing, but his acting is simply a dud.

There is an excitement to the dancing, but it's actually more fun to watch a Michael Jackson Pepsi commercial on television.

"Breakin'" can be of some value, however. It should be buried right away in a time capsule along with a hula-hoop, fishnet stocking and Nehru jacket.

Hal Cannon has a cowboy poetry program in the works and dreams of a folklore museum

As countdown begins Folk festival a world affair

By DAVE LEWIS Times-News writer

SUN VALLEY — It's become tradition to expect to see some of the best regional folk musicians at Halley's Northern Rockies Folk Festival each summer.

And at this year's eighth running of the event, those attending can expect a samurai.

But, Hal Cannon, the Sun Valley Center for the Arts and Humanities' new folkloric program director, says this year's event will go a step beyond and become a "world performance."

Along with the regional groups, Cannon says the 1984 audience will also see representatives of Black Cajun music from Louisiana—and possibly El-Salvadorian—and American Jewish folk groups.

This year, Cannon says, there is a deliberate emphasis on international and ethnic sounds for the audience.

"They will see a real varied program," says Cannon — to say the least.

A tentative line-up of almost certain performers at the July 26-28 festival includes:

- Queen Ida and the Bonlemps Zydeco Band, a Black-Cajun group originally from Louisiana, as headliners.
- Dingles, Larsen and Sutherland, performers of Irish and American string music from Indiana.
- Louis Kellan, who Cannon says is probably the world's foremost seashanty singer who now lives near Seattle.
- Bob Brozeman, who performs 100% Hawaiian music.

Other acts will include Idaho hispanic, cowboy-and-bluegrass performers.

Cannon, who took over direction of the festival this year, says he hopes to have a different theme for each festival, and this year is opening up with an international flavor with a "passport" of songs to travel.

Cannon seems to be leading the festival towards a strict folklore format, something that comes from his background of one of the West's most notable folklorists.

Cannon became the West's first folkloric director seven years ago when he joined the Utah Folklore Center in Salt Lake City. It was funded with a federal grant during the nation's bicentennial year. At the time, it was the second such program in the nation.

Folklore, Cannon says, began with the study of folk songs of peasants in Europe with a portion of it still holding onto the study of antiquities.

However, Cannon says his orientation to folklore is different from most. He says his main interest is in art that is made for or by a specific ethnic group. Of those groups, he is interested in "people who are without access to money or power."

The people of each ethnic group identify with each for some reason, whether it be occupation, religion or race, he says, and they are often overlooked by folklorists.

In Idaho, some of these groups are Hispanics, Basques, and migrant sheep herders he says.

"They bring with them real rich traditions," Cannon says, in such areas as faith promotion, stories and music.

Because this rich tradition of folklore runs throughout the Western states, most states have developed folkloric programs.

"One of the problems that exists is that folkloric isn't confined to state borders," Cannon says. Therefore, it is important for interstate programs and the Sun Valley Center, and Cannon were picked to coordinate a regional program.

With regional cooperation among each of the Western state's folkloric programs, Cannon will help coordinate programs based on folklore with roots in more than one state.

The first program will go on stage in January in Elko, Nev., and will deal with cowboy poetry.

"We tried to come up with a project that involves most of the West and came up with the cowboy

Popular western writer offers surprise swap

By GARRY ABRAMS The Los Angeles Times

LOS ANGELES — "Achilles would have been completely at home in Dodge City," said Louis L'Amour, author of more than 80 novels set in frontier America and one, his newest, in 12th-century Europe and the Middle East.

L'Amour's comment about the Greek hero — who died without his boots on at the siege of Troy — might surprise those who know him only through his output of fiction about the American West. But this spring, with the hardcover publication of "The Walking Drum" (Bantam), an unsuspected Louis L'Amour seems to be emerging. This L'Amour knows—about the adaptability of ancient warriors and the layout of medieval Spanish cities as the dusty streets of one-horse towns.

By suddenly unveiling himself as a writer with interests broader than the range of a six-gun, L'Amour realizes he runs the risk of turning off fans who might read a more erudite and worldly L'Amour to novel to take.

"Some of them will be disappointed," he acknowledged in an interview, while insisting that "The Walking Drum" fits neatly into the body of his work. "Most of them I think will go along with me because so far they have. Some of my books start in Shakespeare's time. I consider all my novels historical. My stories are frontier stories. A frontier is the point where the known meets the unknown. In science, in medicine, in anything."

His latest work, and 80th book, is about the travels of one Kerbochard, a young man who wanders over much of Europe and the western outposts of Asia in search of his enslaved father. Along the way there is plenty of the action that L'Amour readers expect. But as in his novels about this country, L'Amour insists that he has made up very little, that his explanations of Turkish rug weaving or a caliph's library are historically correct.

"If you're dealing with the facts, use the facts," L'Amour said. "I decided a long time ago that we writers owe our readers a debt of authenticity. Also, the truth is better than anything you can imagine. The truth is always better."

In L'Amour's own case, a recitation of the facts resembles more a survey of heavy industry than a single writer. His publisher reports that every one of his previous 88 books has sold a million copies or more; 145 million copies of his books are in print. Last year, when Bantam issued its first hardcover L'Amour, "The Lonesome Gods," it was on the best-seller list for 19 weeks. Five L'Amour books will be published this year.

Beyond the numbers, L'Amour is the first novelist to have received the Medal of Freedom, awarded by President Reagan, and the Congressional Gold Medal, both in recognition of his writing accomplishments.

L'Amour's career, which fills the trail more than 30 years ago with "Hondo," rests solidly on the Western (he prefers to call it frontier) story. Throughout his working life, L'Amour has not been shy about self-promotion. Despite his obviously comfortable existence in Los Angeles' posh Holmby Hills, the author still makes the autograph circuit, a chore he said most other writers chuck once they are successful. He keeps close watch on sales of his books and noted that last year his trip through New England and Nova Scotia boosted sales. His books also contain up to a page of biographical material, listing his jobs and journeys — seaman, boxer, lumberjack, elephant handler, cattle skinner, World War II Army officer and journalist.

However, L'Amour is at a point where he can relinquish some of the details. He no longer goes around talking to the truck drivers who stock the paperback racks, he said. Nor is he likely to reveal his age because it is "the wrong way to judge anybody."

He adopted this attitude at age 18 when he saw two friends, aged 38 and 42, turned down for jobs, he said.

Moreover, L'Amour believes that publication of "The Walking Drum" marks a turning point. From now on, he said, he wants to concentrate less on promotion and more on "improving my writing. I know how to write and I write fairly well. But you can never learn enough about writing. You can never learn enough and you can never know enough."

When it comes to knowing things,

L'Amour appears to be indefatigable. His home library contains 10,000 books, mostly non-fiction, on topics ranging from food and drink in ancient India to the 128-volume "War of the Rebellion," the official collection of U.S. government documents on the Civil War.

"I read voraciously in all areas, particularly history, but not history as you'd get in a school or university," he said. "I've read most of those textbooks. Now I read in the back alleys of history. I like to know how people lived, what they ate and how they dressed. I read a lot of memoirs of people who traveled to various parts of the world because I want to get their experiences."

"When I'm writing a book, when I have somebody traveling from here to there, I get a big piece of paper and I lay out the point of origin and the destination. Then I fill in all about the route the character's going to travel, partly from the history books and partly from the memoirs of people who traveled there."

L'Amour plans to use the history he has gleaned from his reading in a number of future projects. He intends to write two more novels about Kerbochard, which will take his hero to India and China. He also hopes to expand his saga about the Sackett clan (17 novels so far) to cover the periods from the Revolutionary to the Civil wars.

In the latter novels, L'Amour said he probably will use some of the obscure history he has uncovered. "The Saga of Jubal Sackett," for example, may contain a sidelight on the fate-of-the-mammoth-in-North America.

"According to scientists, the mammoth — the mastodon — disappeared about 600 B.C.," L'Amour began. "There's an awful lot of evidence to say this was [true at all]. The future too may hold room for one of his Sackett tales. "I think the greatest frontier is the one that's out there in space ... A number of my readers have written me asking if I might put a Sackett up in space. I haven't decided to do that, but it's very possible I will because the idea begins to intrigue me more and more. It won't be space as we know it now. It will be space as it will be 50 or 100 years from now because there's going to be a drastic change taking place before long. Pretty soon IBM and General Motors and other big companies will send their own expeditions out there. The next thing will be individuals going out to colonize and look for minerals. It'll be like the Gold Rush, which was just an excuse to go. Those people didn't particularly want gold, they just wanted to get out there."

"Out there" for L'Amour is his Holmby Hills home, where he spends seven to eight months of the year. (His family includes his wife, Kathy, and children, Beau, 23, and Angelique, 20.) The rest of the time he is traveling or at his ranch near Durango, Colo.

Los Angeles "is one of the greatest creative centers in the world and someday it'll be placed alongside Athens and Paris," he said. "There's a lot of people all over the country who talk about culture and who practice culture. They go to opera and they go to museums but, here we're creating culture. This is where Thomas Mann came. This is where Aldous Huxley came. This is where Bertolt Brecht came. It's more than just a city. It's an atmosphere here. One thing is that in so many places there is an author with a capital A. Not in Los Angeles. He's just another citizen. There are 50 million writers here they're taken for granted. Generally speaking I get more attention everywhere else in the country than here."

After two years, Trekkies returning

By JAY ARNOLD
The Associated Press

HOLLYWOOD — Following a two-year wait, "Trekkies" finally will learn the fate of their beloved Spock when the third big-screen version of the unsinkable "Star Trek" series blasts off today in the largest movie opening ever.

"Star Trek III: The Search for Spock," filmed in secrecy on the Paramount Pictures back lot, bursts forth on what the studio claims is a record 1,976 screens in the United States and Canada.

The fans are as much a part of the latest "Star Trek" movie as the plot, which supplies the answer to whether the "green-skinned," pointy-eared Vulcan really died at the end of "Star Trek II: The Wrath of Khan."

Despite the stringent security measures during filming, closely guarded scripts disappeared — only to turn up at a Trek convention last December.

"These incredible CIA fans of ours, they tap phones, they know every thing we know," producer-screenwriter Harve Bennett lamented Thursday.

The plot was revealed in the entertainment paper Daily Variety, and USA Today also gave away the ending, in a story that thoughtfully warned readers not to go on if they wanted to be surprised.

Paramount, meanwhile, has geared for wide distribution.

"As near as we could tell, it's the biggest release we've ever had, and we think the biggest release anyone ever had," Paramount spokesman Jeff Blake said.

Paramount thinks the "pre-sold" nature of "Star Trek" makes a big opening a smart move.

"Star Trek" is something that's been out there for 17 years," said Barry London, Paramount's senior vice-president-for-domestic distribution.

Spielberg has own temple

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Steven Spielberg, whose latest movie, "Indiana Jones and the Temple of Doom," is a box office hit, has his own temple at Universal Studios.

The studio has given the 36-year-old director-producer — a two-story, adobe-colored building in a remote corner of the movie lot. It has spacious offices for Spielberg and his collaborators, skylights for the set designers, a full kitchen, a fruit and vegetable garden, a video arcade, an outdoor spa and a 48-seat movie theater complete with candy counter and popcorn machine.

Tony producer vows short, entertaining show

By JAY SHARBUTT
The Los Angeles Times

NEW YORK — This year's Oscar awards show on ABC ran 2 hours and 40 minutes. It was denounced by many critics as an epic in ennui — a waste for viewers. But Alexander H. Cohen, Broadway producer by trade, declines to join the denouncers.

"I missed the first three hours because I was out to dinner," he explains with a straight face. However, er, one could cite professional courtesy as the main reason for his reluctance to razz Hollywood's annual big show.

"You see, he runs Broadway's annual big show, the Tony awards broadcast. This year's edition, airing Sunday night on CBS, features the music of nominee Stephen Sondheim, Jerry Herman and the timesmith team of John Kander and Fred Ebb.

The effort marks Cohen's 18th consecutive year as executive producer of the telecast, written and produced by Hildy Parks, his wife and collaborator for 28 years. In 1980, their Tony awards effort won television's Emmy award in the "special events" category.

Cohen, whose short-lived Broadway production of Joanna Glass' "Play Memory" is one of four best-play nominees this year, bravely vows that Sunday's program will run only two hours. It helps that there are only 19 categories of awards. In contrast to, say, the 65-category largess lurking in this fall's Emmy exercise for prime-time TV.

But it is equally helpful that the speeches of winners on Tony night usually are brief. This is because Cohen allows only a maximum 30 seconds of oration per winner.

A normally amiable man, Cohen, 63, is death on that which tends to make Oscar nights interminable.

Radio station alters its call

TWIN FALLS — Radio station KTLC will be changing its call letters back to KTFI this Friday.

The original call letters KTFI, standing for K-Twin Falls, Idaho, were changed to KTLC in 1977 when the station changed to a country music format. KTLC stands for K-Tender Lovin' Country.

Although the station changed from a country station to an easy-listening station in 1981, the call letters remained the same until now. The Federal Communications Commission approved the change back to KTFI in April of this year. The station, which was known as KTFI for 47 years, will remain at 1270 on the AM dial and continue its easy-listening format after the change on Friday.

poetry program," Cannon says.

In "three to five years," Cannon hopes to begin a folkie museum — a Sun Valley as a part of the regional folkie center.

However, Cannon says it may take a while for the idea of a regional center to take hold. But that doesn't worry him.

"I'm not a great believer in making things happen too fast," he says.

A main focus of the folkie program is the Northern Rockies Folk Festival, which Cannon hopes to keep in Halley.

"I'd hate to move it," he says. "There are so many people in Halley who feel they have a personal ownership in the festival. I'd hate to take that away."

Besides, Halley is the ideal location for the festival, in Cannon's opinion.

The low-keyed, small-town atmosphere is fine because he wants the festival to stay small and regional. And, he sees nothing wrong with having the audience primarily coming from the Wood River Valley with only a smattering of out-of-towners sitting in.

"I don't think people come from out-of-state for the event, except the performers," he says.

Cannon also is a musician and has played in all but one of the local folk festivals and has had a hand in all. Besides playing, he has coordinated the leaders' conference in conjunction with the festival to help teachers bring folkie to their classrooms.

International singer finds success with help from a friend

By BOB THOMAS
The Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — A year ago, international singing star Julio Iglesias declared he was facing the greatest challenge of his career: cracking the U.S. market.

There is lots of evidence that he's succeeded.

His first English-language LP will be released worldwide next month amid great expectations by CBS Records. Also forthcoming is a duet single with Diana Ross, "All of You."

On June 2, Iglesias will appear at the United Nations, launching a

"This is impossible," Iglesias said as he studied the tour itinerary at his rented house in the upper reaches of Bel Air. "I'll have to be in terrific shape. I'm working on that every day — two hours of exercises. I am 40 years old and see how fit I am."

He lifted his white T-shirt to display his muscular chest and flat belly.

Iglesias has been living in the hilltop houses since last October, and he will soon be immortalized in the title of his English album, "1100 Bel Air Place."

"I chose that because the album was created here. Right in this room," the singer said. "Until a few days ago, there was a piano here, and I worked with the Beach Boys and Stan Getz and other people. ... I considered 40 to 45 songs before I chose the ones for the album. Some of them I even recorded, then didn't use."

He said he recorded the song with Miss Ross in New York, and his duet with Nelson in Austin, Texas. Those will be the only duets on the album; the Beach Boys provide a vocal background.

"I think the album is the best work of my life," Iglesias said. "It's certainly was the hardest work of my life. English is a nice language to sing, but it is very difficult to learn. The phrasing is different, and I worked several hours a day with a coach so I could make myself understood."

"But it was not only a matter of being understood. I also had to think of the phrasing—the mood—the feelings, the accent. I had to speak the words without losing my Mediterranean feelings."

Iglesias lit a cigarette, oblivious to the No Smoking sign that his staff had hung over the living room table for his benefit. He reflected on the events of the past year.

"When I came here, I knew I would have to build my career little by little," he said. "This was the last country for me to reach and the most difficult. I never expected that after a year everything would have come out so nice. The same thing happened in Germany 12 years ago, in France and Italy 10 years ago, in Japan four years ago."

"After all this you begin to wonder how you could be so fortunate. You begin to think that all this doesn't belong to you."

Iglesias has managed to excel in virtually every medium except movies. Having had an unhappy experience in his early career, he remains adamant.

"They have offered me all kinds of movies, but I'm not interested — at least not for three or four years," he said. "Films are something you have to learn, otherwise your mistakes are up there for all the world to see."

Special effects whiz still winning fame

By CHARLES CHAMPLIN
The Los Angeles Times

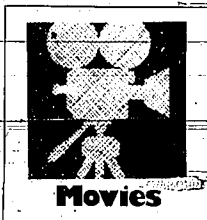

HOLLYWOOD — Douglas Trumbull commenced to win international huzzas for his special effects on Stanley Kubrick's "2001: A Space Odyssey" and extended his claims to "Close Encounters of the Third Kind," "The Andromeda Strain" and Steven Spielberg's "Cocoon Encounters of the Third Kind."

His own "Silent Running," which he also wrote and directed, was not a major hit in first release in 1972 but is now a frequently revived science-fiction classic, admired not only for its special effects and rich invention (including squat mini-robots that foreshadowed those in "Star Wars") but for its power as an ecological parable and a psychological study of madness begat by solitude.

Trumbull, who wants less than ever to be pigeonholed as a special-effects whiz, is in fact currently up to his eyes and ears in a serious and subversive attempt to introduce the first fundamental change in motion-picture projection and exhibition in decades.

He sees the new system, which he calls Showscan, as an urgently required antidote to the continuing threat to theatrical motion pictures posed by cable, videocassette recorders, rock videos and, as always, good old commercial television itself.

But Trumbull also regards the system as an overdue resumption of the technological evolution of movies, and above all as a way to infuse new excitement into film making and subtler and, in 70-millimeter, capable of majestic, detailed images.

More recently, the emphasis shifted from sight to sound: SDDS, Dolby, George Lucas' THX multispeaker system introduced on a widespread basis with "Indiana Jones and the Temple of Doom."

Trumbull has remained the same since the last years of the silent age in projection at 24 frames per second, though with each of the frames flashing on the screen for a fraction of a second. It has seemed the best speed to capitalize on the phenomenon of the persistence of vision, to create the illusion of continuous motion without flickering.

It is an upwardly shifted rate of projection that, along with other refinements, Trumbull has wrapped into a system called Showscan and on which, a few days ago, he received a patent, first applied for in 1976.

The patent, which caused the breaking out of wine and the raising of cheers in the Showscan office, is a new industrial patent. It is the consequence of nearly a decade's work.

(film audiences).

The movies have continued to evolve, in their halting and generally reluctant way. Sound arrived, and a few noisy cries that it added nothing and would not last. Color became the norm, instead of a hand-painted novelty.

Responding to the competitive impact of television, the movies experimented with many costly wide-screen systems — Cinemascope, Todd-AO, VistaVision, CinemaScope and Panavision — and the screen has stayed wide. Film itself is faster.

Daily Horoscope

GENERAL TENDENCIES: You have all kinds of opportunities to get ahead by being alert to modern techniques as well as humanitarian projects so get into these advanced interests and activities early.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19): You can garner a good deal of data if you listen to what modern persons have to suggest. Avoid one in business who is greedy.

Taurus (Apr. 20 to May 20): Important that you step out of the rut you are in and find out how some more modern careers can help you to get ahead faster.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): Think along more progressive lines and put aside whatever has been deterring your progress. Make new acquaintances.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21): A good day to get out of that rut you are in and look for more progressive ways of handling your daily business.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21): Don't permit a demanding bigwig to keep you from being with outside associates just to please his whim.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22): Look for new mechanisms that can make your job more efficient and forget that new contact who doesn't understand you.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 23): You can get into the amusements you like and have a fine time, so forget that meddler who's giving you a hard time.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Many changes are occurring today, so be prepared to accept them graciously.

Your plans also require some changes.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Analyze your methods well and see if adding modern touches do not improve your practical affairs.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): You feel that you understand a moody individual, but you may find it is just the opposite.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): Planning work may be difficult today since unexpected situations may come up to spoil your schedule.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): Entertainment that you have planned may need some last minute revision, but it will work out better than you had thought.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY, he or she will be emotional and romantic and will like change, but circumstances rise up that prevent consistency so try to be helpful to your progeny by proper guidance and teach early to be more objective.

Bad blood clouds annual Tony Awards

By WILLIAM A. RAIDY
Newhouse News Service

NEW YORK — A bad theater season and bad blood — on the part of many who feel such performers as Dustin Hoffman, Al Pacino and Anthony Quinn were slighted by the nominating committee — cloud the 38th annual Tony Awards to be presented Sunday night at the Gershwin Theatre.

The grumbling about who was left off the nomination list has been the worst in the history of the Tony Awards, Broadway's equivalent of the Oscars, and formally known as the American Theater Folly Antoinette Perry Awards. One critic dubbed this year's selection as "the worst performance on Broadway."

Just about everyone, except members of the nominating committee, complained that Arthur Miller's revival of "Death of a Salesman," starring Dustin Hoffman and John Malkovich, was more than just "curiously overlooked." The revival received one nomination, "for outstanding reproduction."

Others questioned whether the very competent performance of Calvin Levels in "Open Admissions" deserved a nod instead of Pacino in his soaring performance in David Mamet's "American Buffalo." Others felt Quinn in "Zorba," Jessica Tandy in the revival of "The Glass Menagerie" and Dorely Louden in "Noises Off" might have been nominated.

Louden and Quinn, incidentally, are very sporting about the whole thing, which will be broadcast at 9 p.m. (EDT) on CBS. They will appear in some of the musical sketches that will serve as a tribute to the works of four Broadway composer-lyricists: Jerry Herman, John Kander, Fred Ebb and Stephen Sondheim.

Both Herman, for his flamboyant "La Cage Aux Folles," and Sondheim, for "Sunday in the Park with George," are in the running for best musical awards.

Sondheim's new show has the largest number of nominations — with "Cage" following closely with 11 nominations.

The rules for the selection of winners require that four nominations be presented by a nominating committee in each category. This strict rule can be a decided embarrassment. Last year several nods slipped onto the list, including "Blues in the Night," a non-equity, and "Milk and Honey," which was unanimously panned.

This year, the scrap-the-barrel choice in the best play category is "Play Memory," which a prominent reviewer described as "a one-weekend flumeout of semi-amateur standing." Its producers, coincidentally, were Alexander H. Cohen, who put on the Tony telecast which is presented by the League of New York Theaters, and his wife.

Cohen and Peter Brook also will receive a special award for "La Tragedie de Carmen," Brook's adaptation of the Bizet opera. Many questioned not only the prize awarded directly by the Tony administration committee, made up of nine producers, including Cohen himself, and three representatives of the American Theatre Wing) but its wording. The citation is "for outstanding achievement in lyric theater." Many still want to know the definition of "lyric theater."

Julie Andrews and Robert Preston will host the ceremonies. Kander and Ebb will be heard from with excerpts from some of their hit musicals such as "Cabaret," "The Happy Time," "Woman of the Year," "Chicago" and their current shows running on Broadway, "Zorba" and "The Rink."

The Sondheim potpourri will include songs from "West Side Story," "Gypsy," "A Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum," "Company," "Follies," "A Little Night Music," "Sweetie Todd" and, of course, his new collaboration with James Lapine, "Sunday in the Park with George."

Highlighting Jerry Herman's career will be selections from "Milk and Honey," "Mame," "Dear World," "Hello, Dolly," "Mack and Mabel" and the current "La Cage Aux Folles." Presenting this life musical bouquet will be such stars as Carol Channing, Marilyn Cooper, Nancy Dussault, Robert Goulet, Robert Guillaume, Beth Howland, Larry Kert, Liza Minnelli, Bernadette Peters, Tony Randall, Chita Rivera, Tony Roberts, Leslie Uggaloni, John Verdon, Raquel Welch, and the aforementioned sports, Anthony Quinn and Dorothy Louden.

As for who will take the prizes, Tom Stoppard's "wonderfully cerebral comedy, 'The Real Thing,' staged brilliantly by Mike Nichols, looks like a shoo-in, not only for best play but best actor and actresses as well: Jeremy Irons and Glenn Close. Mike Nichols will take best director prize. "La Cage Aux Folles" also look like a best musical winner, based on more popular appeal than art.

Following are the nominations in the major categories which have been voted on in secret ballot by the 670 theater critics, journalists and theater professionals who constitute the Tony electorate:

• BEST PLAY: "Glenngary Glen Ross" (Author: David Mamet. Producer: Elliott Martin. The Shubert Organization, Arnold Bernhard, The Goodman Theatre, "Noises Off" (Author: Michael Fryn. Ex-public defender faces grand-theft charge

By DAVE LEWIS
Times-News writer

GOODING — Former Gooding County public defender Gary Shaw and his wife have been charged with felony grand theft and conspiracy for the alleged unauthorized transfer of property.

The two-count charge, filed in Fifth District Court against Shaw and his wife, Jeanne, alleges that in April 1983 the couple accepted payment on a note and transferred a title to property that they did not have rights to at the time.

The charges follow some earlier difficulties for the attorney.

On April 2 of this year, the Idaho Supreme Court placed Shaw on interim suspension pending a review by the Idaho State Bar for alleged professional misconduct.

As a result of the suspension, Shaw resigned his public defender's position on April 9.

The criminal complaint filed on May 29 alleges that the Shaws obtained rights to the payments from the account on a note held by Raleigh W. Stevens of Hagerman. The transfer of the payments to the Shaws was to pay off approximately $10,000 in debt Stevens owed Gary Shaw for legal services.

The account was part of the estate of Grace S. Henry, to which Stevens is the trustee and sole beneficiary. The escrow account was held on the property that is now Demaray's Gooding Chapel, a funeral chapel owned by Dowell and Judy Demaray, the complaint says.

When the Shaws and Stevens agreed to transfer the payments on the account in April 1982, they entered into two agreements, the complaint says.

One assigned all rights of the escrow, including title to the property, to the Shaws. But the second limited their benefit from the account, which was worth more than $20,000, to $10,000 to cover Stevens' debt to Shaw.

Under the second agreement, the escrow, including the title, would revert to the Henry estate and Stevens when Shaw was reimbursed for his services.

The Shaws used their interest in the account to guarantee payments on a loan from the Wendall branch of the Idaho First National Bank. The loan covered the amount of the Shaws' interest in the escrow account.

However, the complaint charges, the Shaws later reached an agreement with the Demarays to discount the escrow — accept a lump-sum payment lower than the actual value — in April 1983.

The complaint says the Shaws accepted a payment of $15,000 and in return gave the Demarays a warranty deed that gave them the title and complete interest to the property covered by the account.

In doing so, the Shaws deprived the Henry estate and of its interest in the account above the $10,000, to which they were entitled, the complaint says.

A spokesman in the Gooding County Sheriff's office says the Shaws have been served with criminal summonses and must appear in court on June 7.

When it suspended Shaw from practicing, pending a hearing into certain allegations, the Bar Association said it was looking at five complaints it had received from four of its former clients. These were that he allegedly:

- Forged a client's name on an insurance check and kept the money for his own use.
- Failed to return unearned legal fees after his discharge from a bankruptcy matter.
- Wrote a bad check from his trust account.
- Neglected an estate matter.
- Failed to properly account for proceeds from the sale of property to the parties in a divorce action.

The allegations investigated by the State Bar were from Shaw's private practice and not his work as public defender.

Bar Counsel Barbara Miller says that a hearing on the allegations has not yet been scheduled, but should be soon.

Harry DeHaan was greeted by friends and co-workers during an open house held Thursday afternoon in his honor

DeHaan lauded for color, progress

Co-workers join to honor, chide out-going prosecutor

TWIN FALLS — Courthouse personnel, law enforcement officers and friends gathered Thursday to wish a retiring Harry DeHaan goodbye.

At an afternoon open house, those who worked with the often-colorful county prosecutor reminisced about old times and speculated about the future.

"I hope it doesn't get too dull around here," said County Commissioner Marvin Hempleman.

He said one thing was for sure: "The transition to K. Baxter, who will be sworn in at 4 p.m. today, will be one of style as well as substance."

District Judge Daniel Meehl called DeHaan "one of the premiere flak-catchers in town."

He predicted this would not be DeHaan's "last hurrah," however, because DeHaan would soon be back in front of him as a private attorney.

Priscilla Bolton, an employee in the prosecutor's office, said she was sad to see her boss depart, but was optimistic about changes Baxter might bring.

Baxter, who has been familiarizing herself with the workings of the office this week, said the transition has been orderly so far. DeHaan was leaving few loose ends, she said.

Attorney Paul Smith, a friend of DeHaan's, compared this favorably with the situation when DeHaan took office in the spring of 1981.

It was difficult then to tell which cases were open and which closed, he said.

Smith praised DeHaan for "streaks of brilliance," and said DeHaan had allowed the people of Twin Falls to win important cases again.

For his part, DeHaan said being prosecutor had been the hardest job he ever took, harder than pouring concrete — which he did one summer during college.

"Everybody who comes into this office is mad," he explained.

Being prosecutor also has been the most rewarding of jobs, he said. The prosecutor has to attempt to "dismiss a case if he or she feels proceeding with it would be wrong."

It was remarkable he was still in one piece after three years of adhering to this principle, he said.

It was remarkable he had not been "tired and feathered" — for following my gut feeling right or wrong — damn the consequences," he said.

City fireworks set to return

TWIN FALLS — A professional fireworks display over Twin Falls on July 4 for the first time since 1979.

Idaho Frozen Foods Corp. will sponsor a 40-minute show at Frontier Field on the College of Southern Idaho's campus. The Greater Twin Falls Area Chamber of Commerce announced Thursday. Executive director Mike Dolton said the fireworks will be the state's largest display on the holiday.

"You should be able to see that fireworks display all over town," he said.

Idaho Frozen Foods, which processes potatoes into french fries and other products, is picking up the estimated $5,000 tab for the spectacle. The company is sponsoring the show "on behalf of its employees and the potato growers in the Magic Valley."

said J. David Phillips, vice president for human resources.

"The idea is just to have something the community could enjoy that would just be the... Happy Birthday, America" type of thing," Phillips said.

In past years, the city government had fielded the fireworks. The annual display was dropped in the same round of budget cutting that slashed personnel and services during 1979, said city manager Tom Courtney.

"Fireworks was not a big item in the budget, but it certainly was one of the first to go," he said. The last city fireworks display was on July 4 that year. Since then, no approved public displays have been touched in Twin Falls.

Twin Falls Mayor Emery Petersen said Thursday the city fire department will store the fireworks and will oversee the display.

Residents from Twin Falls and surrounding Magic Valley communities are being invited to attend at Frontier Field, Dolton said.

Bill tips preference to private utilities

By HAL BERNTON
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — A congressional bill introduced to both House and Senate subcommittees would ensure that Idaho Power Co. and other private utilities receive preference over public utilities when renewing their federal licenses to operate hydro power plants.

If approved by Congress, the bill would require the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission to renew Idaho Power's 50-year licenses on its network of Snake River hydro plants, unless it could be proved that the plants were not operated in the interest.

At least seven of Idaho Power's hydro plants will be up for FERC relicensing within the next 20 years, said Idaho Power Co. lawyer Nick Yursara. And a total of 18 plants will be up for relicensing in the next century. The Swan Falls plant, however, has already been granted a new license.

The preference bill was drafted by the Edison Electric Institute, a power industry lobbying organization, and first submitted to Congress by Rep. Richard C. Shelby, D-Ala., according to Shelby's administrative aide Adella Maddox. The bill was co-sponsored by 100 other congressmen.

A House Energy and Commerce subcommittee recently held hearings on the Shelby bill. Earlier this week, Sen. Bennett Johnston, D-La., introduced a similar bill to a Senate Energy and Natural Resources subcommittee.

Sen. James McClure, R-Idaho, the Energy committee's chairman, has yet to decide whether to support the bill, said McClure's press aide Bill Livingston.

"We really don't know where McClure is coming down on this one," Livingston said. "Private utilities are his friends and public utilities are his friends. So it is really a tough issue."

If approved by Congress, the Shelby bill would negate the effect of recent court rulings that gave public utilities the edge over private utilities if they petition for a power plant's operating license during the renewal process.

Sheriff withdraws deputy card from former rival who quits job

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

JEROME — The position of community diversion coordinator in the city of Jerome and the Jerome School District will be continued, in spite of the resignation this week of Larry Gold, the present CDC officer.

Jerome school and city officials say they will begin accepting applications shortly to fill the vacancy left by Gold's resignation in the wake of a hotly contested primary election race for Jerome County sheriff.

Gold, who was appointed last year as the first such officer in the Jerome School District, worked for the district and the Jerome City police department. He said Thursday he will continue as a city police officer.

Gold ran for the Republican nomination for sheriff against incumbent Eliza Hall and lost in Tuesday's primary. Following the election, Gold went to congratulate Hall and was promptly informed that the sheriff was "pulling" his deputy sheriff card, Gold said.

Gold said losing his deputy status would greatly hamper his opportunity to serve under terms of the Idaho Youth Commission grant that pays the majority of his salary and other expenses of the CDC officer.

Gold said although his headquarters were in junior high school, he also worked with the high school students, and the high school is located outside of the city of Jerome.

"It is also necessary to contact students and parents who live in the county and without a deputy card I don't feel I can effectively do this," he said.

Gold said, for example, he handled four attempted or threatened suicides this year and was required to contact the rural area students at their homes before school or late at night.

Gold said this would also curb the drug education programs he conducted for youth and adults in county areas.

Hall said any deputy on his staff who runs against him is discharged, under terms of a long-standing policy, and that the same would go for Gold, although he was not a full-time deputy.

Hall said Thursday he would have fired any of his deputies had they run against him, and Gold had to accept the same treatment. He said the Twin Falls County sheriff filed a deputy who ran against him four years ago, and the action was upheld by the prosecutor and attorney general.

"I feel the election is over and we have to get on with business," Hall said. "I hope things will die down and we can stop feuding in the press. As far as I'm concerned, if anyone has any questions they can

Tax exemption deadline nears

TWIN FALLS — The deadline for filing for the state homeowner property tax exemption for next year is June 15.

That date applies to all homeowners who changed their primary residence during the year or who did not register last year.

Those who registered last year, and who have not changed their primary residence, will automatically receive the exemption this year. The exemption is equal to 50 percent of the value of a home — but not land — up to $50,000.

Twin Falls assessor Dorothy Hamby says those Twin Falls County residents wishing to file should come to the assessor's office on the third floor of the county courthouse.

The assessor also will mail out forms if a trip is impractical, she says.

Jerome County assessor Marjorie DuBois cautions homeowners to check on their exemption status if their property ownership has been affected by a change in name due to remarriage, death or divorce.

The deadline for paying this year's second installment of property taxes is June 20.

Seniors chosen as honor pupils

BUIH — Eleven graduating seniors have been chosen as honor students from approximately 100 1984 graduates scheduled to receive diplomas at commencement exercises Sunday at 3 p.m. at the Middle School Gymnasium.

The honor students represent the top 10 percent of their class in academic standings for seven semesters of high school study. They include: Connie Baggett, Sandra Rae Baggett, Charlene Bonar, Jan Cecil Clements, Danielle Ellis, Lisa Marie Fischer, Anne Catherine Luntz, Renee Diane Peterson, Garey Montgomery Prouse, Ralph Brailsford Wright and Milzie Gayle Zagala.

Idaho's Lt. Gov. David Leroy will deliver the commencement address. Senior addresses will be given by Luntz and Wright. Dale Thornberry will present the scholarships, honors and special awards earned by the graduates.

Board of trustees, Kathleen Lunte, chairman and Howard Hopkins will present the diplomas.

Workshop on finances offered

KETCHUM — "Women, Take Charge of Your Financial Future," a workshop offered by the Blaine County Community Education Association, will be held from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturday at Louie's restaurant in Ketchum.

To register, call 788-2033. Cost is $20.

BLM chief invited to program

BOISE — The Idaho Bureau of Land Management has invited agency chief Robert Burford to a June 23 symposium celebrating the 50th anniversary of the Taylor Grazing Act.

Whitlock calls the 1934 legislation a "remarkably successful" act which marked a turning point in a national effort to improve range conditions on public lands.

The act provided the West with a system of citizen advisory boards to help remedy rangeland problems brought on by severe overgrazing, adverse weather, the Great Depression and unregulated conflict among range users over grazing privileges.

The June 23 symposium will be held in Boise at the Red Lion Riverside Inn. It will feature Burford; state Sen. Laird Noh, R-Kimberly; Gov. John Evans; Lt. Gov. David Leroy; Idaho Cattlemen Association members;

Correction

TWIN FALLS — The word "not" was inadvertently dropped when Thursday story on pre-kindergarten testing was printed.

The sentence should have read: "Kindergarten is not just a cut-and-paste session." The story emphasized the need for parents to take their children entering kindergarten next fall to screenings to be held Monday through Friday.

Library slates 'Dragonsummer'

TWIN FALLS — This month, the Twin Falls Public Library will hold "Dragonsummer," its summer reading program for children who have just completed grades one, two or three.

The program will meet on the four Thursdays in June from 11 a.m. to 11:45 a.m., and will feature group projects, films, reading and a parade in the park. For more information or to sign up your child, call the library at 733-2064.

High court stops flood ruling

RUPERT

The Idaho Supreme Court reversed a Fifth District Court decision last week concerning property flooded in March 1979 by partially treated sewage from the city of Rupert's lagoo system.

Dean and Alice Shaw and Paul and LaVie Crane sued for damages when 1 1/2 miles of their land was flooded in March 1979 by a city sewage lagoo. The lagoo system, which was built by Hamilton and Voeller Engineering, Inc. and constructed by Gale Construction Co., was located immediately west of the couples' property.

The Shaws and the Cranes named the city and both companies in the litigation, which alleged negligence in the design, construction, operation and maintenance of the sewage lagoo.

Before the trial, however, the deendants argued the couples weren't entitled to recover a total of $190,000 for the alleged decreased market value of their land due to potential future flooding, the decision states.

The district court agreed with the defendants and the couples appealed. The lower court had stated there was no indication that future flooding was an "inevitable consequence" because of the existence of the lagoons.

"In the absence of clear proof that the flooding problem is certain, it is improper to characterize the injury as permanent," wrote District Judge Ron Bruce of Rupert. As a result, anticipated flooding was not considered a permanent injury, so the couples couldn't recover for the alleged decrease in their land value.

The justices found, however, that the lower court used the wrong "test" to determine whether decreased market values should be awarded. "We find the district court's 'certainly test' to be too restrictive, and hold that it is not necessary to prove future certainty in order to show permanent injury, but rather only future injury," wrote Chief Justice Charles Donaldson in the majority decision.

The question whether future flooding was probable is a "genuine triable issue," Donaldson states.

The justices remanded the case to lower court for trial on the issue of market value and others.

Rupert City Attorney Donald Chisholm had no comment on the Supreme Court ruling. He did say the case probably will go to trial next year.

The couples' attorney, Randolph Calvin Stone of Burley, said, "We welcomed the decision."

Palisades, Jackson flows raised

BURLEY — The Bureau of Reclamation has increased outflows from Palisades and Jackson Reservoir to make room for a late-spring runoff that is expected to be higher than originally anticipated.

The outflow at Palisades is now at "full channel capacity" of 20,000 cubic feet per second, said Don Tracy, the Bureau's Minidoka Project supervisor. The high flows have lapped at the banks of riverfront property, causing minor flooding of lawns and marinas in the Burley area.

But Tracy said the high flows are necessary to prevent even higher flows of up to 24,000 cfs from occurring in June.

April forecasts estimated the Upper Snake watershed at about 95 percent of normal, but new forecasts indicate the runoff will be slightly above normal, said Keith Ebersole, a bureau forecaster. "We need to hold as much space as possible in Palisades and Jackson," Ebersole said.

Tracy said, "It is really unlikely" that high river flows will hurt the Burley area. He said much of the water released from Palisades and Jackson dam will be used by irrigators before it reaches the Burley area.

Confessed offenders placed on probation

JEROME — Two young Twin Falls men who admitted taking a van owned by the Valley School District at Hazelton were placed on probation Thursday when they appeared for sentencing in Fifth District Magistrate Court.

Robert Skinner and Loren Mark Lemoine, both 19, of Twin Falls, pleaded guilty to grand theft charges in connection with the May 2 incident. However, charges were reduced to joyriding Thursday and the guilty plea continued.

Judge Roger Burdick sentenced the two to 25 days in the county jail, suspended 20 days and allowed credit for the five days they had already served.

He ordered a $100 fine plus court costs for each of the two and placed both on one-year probation. Burdick ordered Lemoine to attend Alcoholics Anonymous for the ensuing year.

The van disappeared from in front of the home of Dave Lewis in Hazelton the night of May 2. It was later found parked near the Dalrymple Drive-in restaurant on Blue Lakes Boulevard North in Twin Falls.

Friends of the pair told officers that Lemoine and Skinner had "borrowed the van" in order to use it to start another vehicle and when the first vehicle would not start, they apparently used the van to drive back to Twin Falls.

Obituaries

Doris J. Garnett

TWIN FALLS — Doris J. Garnett, 71, of 2014 E. Main, died May 25 in a West Linn nursing home.

Born Nov. 25, 1913, in Boise, she was a registered nurse. She took her training at St. Luke's Hospital in Boise, then later worked at Twin Falls General Hospital.

Surviving are: a daughter, Sandra Hands of Canberra, Australia; two sisters, Nellie Faye of West Linn and Dixie Roberts of Portland; and a brother, James Hinshaw of Shoshone.

A graveside service and burial were held in Cloverdale Memorial Park in Boise.

spokesman, said his company supports the Shelby bill because it would allow private utilities to retain control of facilities they have built and that their customers have paid for.

The bill is opposed by a coalition of consumer, farmer and public power groups that have submitted alternative legislation to Congress that reaffirms the public preference principle.

"What (the Shelby Bill) is really talking about is granting a permanent preference to a publicly owned resource to private groups whose main interest is profit," said Bob Nelson, a spokesman for the National Rural Electric Cooperatives Association. "Alex Radin, an American Public Power Association spokesman, contends that the court ruling 'has stimulated competition in the electric utility industry by affording generally smaller public agencies a better opportunity to compete against large private power companies."

The national debate over the Federal Power Act's preference clause has heated up in recent years as public power agencies in Utah and Washington have sought — so far unsuccessfully — to take over two private utilities' power plants up for relicensing.

If a public power company ever succeeds in a takeover, the fate of the private utility's water rights is unclear, said Idaho Power's Logan Lamham. Also unclear is what financial compensation a private utility would receive in return for giving up its power plant.

The preference clause debate has been closely watched by Idaho Power lawyers, since the company's low-cost hydroelectric plants form the heart of its electric generating capacity.

come and ask me, but I am trying to do my job as sheriff," Hall said.

School Superintendent Stephenson, Youngerman said Thursday he has met with Jerome Police Chief Darryl Cameron to make plans for hiring someone else to serve as the diversion officer.

"We need more information about the grant for the forthcoming year before we go ahead," Youngerman said, "but I am sure we will want to continue the position and will be able to fund the program."

Youngerman, who developed the first such diversion program in Idaho prior to his coming to the Jerome District, said he appreciated Gold's efforts in putting the program to work in the Jerome School District.

"I'm sorry about the whole issue and accepted Gold's resignation with regret. He did extremely well from my standpoint. He proved the program would work here and that it is valuable and necessary," Youngerman said.

Youngerman said he hopes to eventually have two such resource officers in the Jerome district, which there is more demand than one individual can cover.

Meanwhile, Gold said he would run again for sheriff in four years.

Infertile couples must see positive side of their situation

DEAR ABBY: I would like to comment on the many childless couples who write to you moaning about how miserable they are because they can't have children "of their own."

Abigail VanBuren
Dear Abby

Don't get me wrong, I'm not unsympathetic toward infertile couples. I am, however, a bit disgusted with childless couples who are so obsessed with reproducing that they speak of little else.

What about each other? Is there so little love and satisfaction in their relationship that it's "empty" without children? Was their only purpose in marrying to produce children?

If the "emptiness" of their lives without children is so intolerable, may I suggest that they take an orphan into their home? It would fill their need to be parents and give the child a wonderful gift — a loving home with parents.

Don't be fooled, Abby. Childless couples are childless by choice.

—RICHARD G. BRISBANE, CALIF.

DEAR RICHARD: Please don't minimize the heartache and disappointment—experienced—by couples who desperately want to conceive and bear children and can't.

But you make a valid point. No one need be forever childless. Today there are many children growing up in institutions because they are racially mixed; too old to be adopted, or they're physically or mentally handicapped. And there's a special place in heaven for those people who will provide a loving home for such children.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 23-year-old man serving in the U.S. Navy, stationed in the Philippines. After knowing this 23-year-old girl for a year, I recently proposed to her, and she accepted.

Because she is a foreign national, there is much paperwork to be processed before our marriage can take place. One paper needs to be signed by her parents and mine. It states that the parents approve of the marriage. It is a requirement of Philippine law.

My fiancée's father is a pastor of the Church of Christ, and I am of another religion. He will not consent to the marriage unless I convert to their religion. I don't mind converting, but I would like to know more about their religion and their doctrines first.

I would greatly appreciate it if you would send me some information about this religion. I wouldn't have bothered you with this, but I am presently deployed to the Indian Ocean and the chaplains on board do not have the information I need.

Thank you.

MICHAEL FROM THE U.S.A.
DEAR MICHAEL: The most authoritative source of information would be your future father-in-law. Write to him.

DEAR ABBY: Please don't laugh, but whenever my husband approaches me for sex, I really do get a headache. We've only been married a few months and I need to find a cure real soon because it isn't fair to my husband. Aspirin doesn't help. I was never bothered by headaches before I was married, and I only get them when my husband asks for sex. Please help me.

—N.J. NEWLYWED
DEAR NEWLYWED: See your doctor and tell him exactly what you have told me. Regardless of the cause, you can be helped, so don't delay.

(Every teen-ager should know the truth about drugs, sex and how to be happy. For Abby's booklet, send your name and address clearly printed with a check or money order for $2.50. (This includes postage) to: Abby, Teen Booklet, P.O. Box 3822, Hollywood, Calif. 90033.)

Reservations advised for national park use

CHICAGO (AP) — Families planning a summer camping trip should make reservations from two to eight weeks in advance, especially for campsites in the most popular locations, the National Park Service advises.

Using a modern method to help people enjoy an old-fashioned kind of vacation, the service makes reservations by computer, through Ticketron.

Whether you're setting your sights on the Colorado Rocky Mountains, the Blue Ridge Mountains of Virginia or Yellowstone National Park in Wyoming, you'll find they all have something special to offer visitors. More than a third of the 300 areas in the National Park system have camping facilities available.

To make reservations at the park areas through Ticketron, visit sporting goods and department stores or automobile clubs and ask for the National Park Ticketron reservation form. CSI powers way to national finals

By LARRY HOVEY
Times-News writer

GRAND JUNCTION, Colo. — The College of Southern Idaho will play for the national junior college baseball championship tonight. The Golden Eagles, behind the two-hit pitching of freshman right-hander Bob Maitta, run-pitched Alamy (Md.) Community College 11-7 here Thursday to earn a right to face San Jacinto North Community College of Houston in the title game of the National Junior College Athletic Association tournament.

Game time is 8 p.m. Twin Falls radio station KEZJ-FM will provide either play-by-play or inning-by-inning coverage.

It will be a complete showdown as both teams have one loss in this double-elimination tourney. San Jac beat CSI 10-6 in their first meeting on Monday, then lost to Allegany 7-4 on Wednesday night.

Playing tonight means that CSI will have been the only team in this tournament to play every day. San Jac, which is 49-9 for the season and 3-1 in this tourney, had the two championship-bracket byes and sat resting in the stands Thursday night as the Eagles beat the Maryland team for the second time in three days.

"No one can say we did it the easy way," exulted CSI Coach Jim Walker. "We felt we should have had a bye Tuesday and a bye today, but the way the boys came through tonight this was, I guess, like a half-bye."

CSI, now 43-13 for the season and 5-1 in this tournament, will put one of two freshmen right-handers — Bob Edwards or Tim Peters — on the mound tonight against San Jac's Dody. Rather, a right-hander with a 15-4 record and five days' rest.

"One thing you know," Walker said. "If it's needed, you'll see the entire staff."

The happiest lad in the ballpark Thursday night was Maitta, who twice earlier in the tournament had been handed the ball by Walker and shelled on both occasions.

staff completely depleted by playing five games in five days and he went back to the youngster because "when he's on, he's got the best stuff on the staff."

Maitta obviously accepted the challenge much more calmly this time around because the job done with a minimum of effort. He said he felt no pressure, adding: "First I didn't know about starting until 30 minutes before the game. Then Daws (pitching coach Jim Dawson) took me on a little walk and told me to calm down and just pitch the way I could."

West will run, East to pass

In charity matchup

Editor's note: This is the second in a two-part series examining the prospects of the two teams in tonight's East-West Shrine all-star football game.

By SCOTT TUDEHOPE
Times-News writer

BURLEY — Like a grinding, run-oriented offense? Look for the West in tonight's East-West Shrine football game. But if you like an aerial show, keep an eye glued on Red Halverson's East offense. It could be interesting.

The 8 p.m. charity matchup in Twin Falls' Brulin Stadium will feature the best of both styles of offense by all-star teams from opposite sides of U.S. Highway 93.

Halverson, the retiring head coach at Minico High School and the offensive coordinator for the East in this game, will start Raft River's Rex Heaton at quarterback tonight. Heaton will toss missiles to Gene Chang of Minico and Dan Ebert of Burley at split end and to 6-foot-3 Kevin Halverson of Minico at flanker.

"I subscribe to the BYU strategy," Halverson said. "Go with 400 pass plays and 20 running plays. We intend to throw."

Heaton quarterbacked a Raft River team known more for its running game during his tenure at the Malta school.

"Yeah, but he's smart," said Halverson, when that fact was brought to light. "He was 4.0 at school and he picks things up in a hurry. He's sharp."

The East will operate out of an I formation, with fullback powerhouse Pratt Matthews of Murtaugh lining up between guard and tackle. Directly behind Matthews will be tailback Marlin Mussenman of Valley High School, the only player from the East squad to receive a college athletic scholarship to date. Look for him to punt

Kimberly quarterback Tim Ferrell rolls out during practice for the East team and placekick for the East as well. At center will be Ryan Tull of Burley, while on either side of him will be guards Dan Douglas of Valley and Richard Ball of Minico. Ball, at 210 pounds, is the biggest player on the East team.

At tackle, Halverson has lapped Mark Conrad of Carey and Burley's Scott Newman. While Newman's 160 pounds won't scare anyone in the trenches, he happens to be the only East player to start both ways. Look for him at the middle linebacker spot on defense.

The West would do well to keep in close contact with tight end Shawn Hutchison of Raft River, a possible surprise receiver for short galas.

Defensive coordinator John Billett of Burley said he's "impressed" with noseguard Kelly Dohse's performance at practice. The 5-9, 165-pound Kimberly product is flanked by teammate Paul Rood and Minico's John Hansen. The other two down linemen are Hansen's Clayton Walker and

Africans may protest Budd to run; trouble looms

By The Associated Press

LONDON — Zola Budd, the South African-born runner, who recently became a British subject, received an official confirmation Thursday that she is eligible to compete for Britain at the Los Angeles Olympics.

The go-ahead from the British Olympic Association ended weeks of speculation about the status of the 18-year-old runner, who was granted a British passport within 10 days of arriving in the country from her native South Africa in March.

The announcement, meanwhile, may bring strong disapproval from some African nations.

The official Congolese news agency ZOI suggested Monday that inclusion of white South African athletes on the British team "could jeopardize participation of African teams in the Los Angeles Games."

Budd should formally secure a place on the British national team when she competes in the 3,000 meters at London's Crystal Palace grounds June 6 in the first of two official Olympic trials.

She has run four world-class times over 1,500 and 3,000 meters since arriving here amid a storm of controversy.

The statement from the British Olympic Association said:

"The general purposes committee of the British Olympic Association, having taken legal advice on the nationality of Zola Budd and, with regard to the rules of the International Olympic Committee, confirm that Zola Budd meets the eligibility requirements of the IOC and can compete for Great Britain in the Los Angeles Olympics if selected."

The announcement put to rest fears about Budd's eligibility expressed earlier in the day by Nigel Cooper, British Amateur Athletics Board secretary.

He said the board had received only verbal assurances from the British Olympic Association and the IOC. Selectors could be in a difficult position, he said, if they had no written confirmation that Budd was eligible when they sat down to pick the squad on June 24.

Budd broke a world junior record Monday when she ran barefoot on a soaked track and against a cutting wind to clock 4 minutes, 4.39 seconds in the 1,500-meter final at the United Kingdom Track and Field Championships in Cwmbran, Wales.

It was a full second faster than the time run by American world champion Mary Decker last Saturday at the Bruce Jenner Classic in San Jose, Calif.

In January, Budd ran the 5,000 meters in an unrecognized world best time of 15:01.6. Decker holds the current world record with 15:07.2.

Budd's time was a record because it was run in South Africa, which is banned from most international meets, including the Olympics, because of its apartheid racial policy.

In its report Monday, the Congolese news agency criticized "Britain's apparent intention of integrating white South Africans in its national team by giving them British nationality, and thus" flouted the International Olympic Committee regulations, which forbid the participation of South Africans.

"The disguised participation of South African sportsmen could cause African countries to refuse to take part in the Games," the dispatch said.

There was no immediate comment from African nations on Thursday.

The Olympic trials will be televised live throughout Britain, giving the millions of viewers another chance to judge the talents of Budd.

The slightly built runner has received warm public acclaim at each of her runs but was criticized Sunday when she dashed from the track at Cwmbran after easily winning her 1,500 meters heat.

Budd lingered a little longer after winning the final Monday and was hugged and kissed by many of her fellow athletes.

Crystal Palace official Brian Stoddart promised Thursday that Budd will not be hustled away from the track after Wednesday's 3,000 meters.

"There will be no Davies this time and no ring of policemen," Stoddart said, referring to the most constant presence of representatives of the Daily Mail newspaper group, which has sponsored Budd's emigration for a reported $3,500.

She is also scheduled to run in the second Olympic trial June 10 and the Amateur Athletics Association championships June 24, the day selectors will announce the national team.

Western Days rodeo attracting 250 entrants from 4 states

By ANNA WAGNER
Times-News correspondent

TWIN FALLS — Nearly 250 cowboys and cowgirls from four western states will don chaps and spurs, saddle their mounts and ready their ropes for competition this weekend in the second annual Greater Twin Falls Chamber of Commerce Western Days Junior Rodeo.

Three rodeo performances are scheduled at the College of Southern Idaho arena beginning tonight at 7 p.m. and continuing Saturday at 2 p.m. and 7 p.m. Student athletes from Idaho, Oregon, Washington and Nevada will demonstrate their skills in various rough stock and timed events with competition divided into junior (ages 8-13) and senior (14-18) divisions. Contestants will vie for prizes donated by Magic Valley merchants, including horse blankets to the all-around cowboys and cowgirls in each division, gear bags to the top rough stock rider and Navaho blankets to all other event winners.

Points earned at the Twin Falls rodeo will also count toward qualifying for the Northwestern-Regional Finals in Union City, Ore., in August. Top regional competitors then advance to the National Junior Rodeo Finals in Fort Worth, Texas, in November.

The Western Days Junior Rodeo, one of 20 sanctioned by the Western States Junior Rodeo Association and one of eight junior rodeos in Idaho, is a non-profit event, with proceeds going to the Twin Falls High School rodeo athletes who qualify for the national high school rodeo finals. Rodeo chairman Chuck Brown says the committee's goal is to generate enough money to establish a scholarship fund for area high school rodeo athletes seeking to further their educations.

"We were very pleased with last year's crowd attendance and contestant participation," said rodeo secretary-treasurer Deb Urrutia. "Our entries have increased by about 100 over last year and there appears to be a lot more pre-rodeo enthusiasm and interest."

Brown believes one reason the rodeo has been so well received is because it is the only rodeo Twin Falls can truly claim as its own.

"This whole Western Days celebration is an important event for the city," he says. "The rodeo is a big part of that celebration, and with help from the weather we are looking forward to a good turnout."

Pre-rodeo entertainment will feature a mutton-busting contest at 7 p.m. for riders weighing up to 46 pounds. A trophy will be awarded to the top mutton rider at each performance and all participants will receive hat pins and ribbons. Entry fee is $5.

Posse will also drill every performance and additional merchandise and gifts donated by local businesses will be raffled both days. A sheep will be awarded as the grand prize on Saturday night. Raffle tickets can be purchased at the gate for $1.

Rodeo stock will be provided by Prescott & Sons of Twin Falls with Bud Britton of Buhl in the announcer's booth and Mike Bridges of Twin Falls handling the bullfighting duties. The Twin Falls Knights of Columbus will handle the concessions.

Admission is $3 for adults and $2 for students. Children under 6 will be admitted free.

Wedman jumper tips Lakers

By WILLIAM R. BARNARD
The Associated Press

BOSTON — Scott Wedman hit a jump shot from the corner with 14 seconds remaining in overtime to give the Boston Celtics a frantic 124-121 victory over the Los Angeles Lakers Thursday night, deadlocking the National Basketball Association championship series at one game apiece.

The Celtics trailed by as many as three points in the extra period.

They had sent the game into overtime when, trailing 113-111, Gerald Henderson stole a pass by James Worthy and drove in for a layup with 13 seconds. The Lakers were unable to get off a shot in the remaining time.

of the best-of-seven NBA finals Sunday and Wednesday.

Like two boxers trading haymakers, the teams traded spurs throughout the game. The Lakers took advantage of cold spells by Boston to run at will, but when the Celtics got hot for a time, Los Angeles slowed to a walk and its offense suffered.

The Lakers cut a 13-point deficit to two at halftime. Then with Kareem Abdul-Jabbar scoring nine points in the first 3:34 of the third period, Los Angeles took its first lead of the game at 66-65.

Boston then rebuilt a 76-69 advantage by scoring 11 of the next 14 points, but Los Angeles responded with a 16-8 run for an 85-82 lead. Worthy and Michael Cooper, filling the wings for passes from Earvin "Magic" Johnson, combined for every Los Angeles point in the spur.

Worthy led the Lakers with 29 points, including five of their nine 3-point plays. Johnson added 27 points, including four in overtime, and Abdul-Jabbar added 20 for the Lakers.

Parris contributed 12 points for Boston, and Henderson and Cedric Maxwell led 16 each.

The Celtics' victory marked the ninth straight time in NBA history that a home team that lost the opening game of a Championship Series had followed with a victory in Game 2. The road team has never won the first two games in the finals in 37 years of NBA championships.

The Lakers also won the opener on the road against Philadelphia in 1982 and went on to win the title.

The early minutes of Game 2 were in sharp contrast to Sunday's opener, won by the Lakers 115-109. The Celtics scored their first seven points Thursday, while in Game 1, Los Angeles led 22-7.

Johnson, who had 14 of Los Angeles' 26 first-quarter points, hit four straight long jumpers to cut Boston's margin to 13-10 before Alge came off the bench to spark the Celtics to a 15-point lead.

Cruz enhances Ducks' chance at NCAA men's track title

By BERT ROSENTHAL
The Associated Press

EUGENE, Ore. — The University of Oregon, led by star distance runner Joaquin Cruz, enhanced its chances for the men's team title Thursday in the NCAA Outdoor Track and Field Championships.

Cruz, a Brazilian who is rated one of the top contenders in the 800- and 1,500-meter for the Los Angeles Olympics, had to work hard in finishing second in his heat in the 1,500 Thursday.

But he came through in 3 minutes, 41.80 seconds in reaching Saturday's final. He had reached Friday's 800 final by winning his heat Thursday.

No one has won the difficult 800-1,500 double in the NCAA meet since Don Paige of Villanova in 1979.

Track

"If I pass this test, I should be OK for the 1,500," said Cruz, a sophomore, who won the NCAA 800 title last year as a freshman.

"I expected a slower race (in the 1,500 trials). But the guy (Paul Donovan of Arkansas, the heat winner in 3:41.64) pushed hard the last two laps. I just wanted to qualify."

"I'm feeling great," Cruz added, while gasping for breath moments after the race. Cruz's teammate, Dub Myers, also a sophomore, finished second in his 1,500 heat in 3:42.75, just behind another Arkansas runner, Tom Moloney (3:42.75), and advanced to the 14-man final.

"I wasn't going to win it," said Myers, fifth in last year's NCAA 1,500. "I didn't want to go all out. "I just wanted to move with the pack. When the pack moved, I moved."

Myers said Oregon Coach Bill Dellinger had told the team not to be overly concerned about the team title.

"I think about it," said Myers, "but I don't get so worked up about it. "I think as the team starts seeing how close we really can be to winning an NCAA title, we'll be thinking about it."

Earlier, Oregon's Jim Hill and John Zishka won their heats of the 5,000 and the Ducks got Frode Stormy and 1982 champion Brian Crouser into the final of the men's javelin.

the second-fastest qualifying time (13 minutes, 34.74 seconds), breezed through the first trial heat in 14:07.25 in qualifying for Saturday's final.

Hill's teammate, Mike Blackmore, finished third in the same heat and also made the 14-man final.

"I just wanted to conserve as much (energy) as I could," said Hill. "I think I would have run a more steady pace if I didn't have to fight the wind."

Then, Zishka, a junior who sat out the 1982 season after transferring from Penn State and missed last year because of a bone spur on his right foot, whipped through his heat in 13:58.65.

One of the surprises in the 5,000 was the failure of Iowa State's Joseph Kipsang, one of the top collegians in the nation this year, to make the final. He finished eighth in the first heat in 14:20.13. Washington State, the favorite to beat host Oregon for the men's title, got both its 5,000 entrants, Julius Korir and Peter Koech, into the final.

Thursday's entire program was devoted to qualifying and trials, and there were some sparkling performances. Virtually all the finals are set for Friday and Saturday.

Meanwhile, Florida State's swift women's sprinters broke the Hayward Field record for the 400-meter relay Thursday, clocking 43.99 seconds. The Seminoles' team of Michelle Finn, Marita Payne, Brenda Clifton and Randy Givens crossed the mark of 44.10, set by California State-Northridge in 44.10. Houston standout Carol Lewis, in her final NCAA meet, led the Cougar to victory in their 400-meter relay heat in 44.66.

Skip (Walker) said he had faith in me and the coaches. Just had me ready for this one. Besides," he added with a smile, "I had to prove a lot to myself."

Maitta said another reason for his success was that the umpire in Thursday night's game gave the pitchers the low strike.

"This guy gave us the lower part of the zone and the corner," Maitta said, referring to criticism by many pitchers and managers in this tournament that the umpires have been inconsistent in calling balls and strikes.

"The others have a strike zone the size of a quarter."

Another player who performed well was Twin Falls freshman Shawn Humberger, who was 3-for-4 at the plate in three RBIs — including the game-winner in the bottom of the fifth that brought the 10-run tie into effect.

"I hit two curves and a fastball," Humberger said of his hits. "The last time, it was the first time he'd thrown a curve to me. All the rest had been straight fastballs."

Maitta said the key to CSI's success since the San Jacinto game has been that "we are not tight at all. It's been awfully loose in the dugout because the kids know what they have to do to stay in.

"We have so many superstitions on this team, it's hard to remember them," he said with a laugh. "But we do them all every day and that helps take their minds off the game."

Walker, who loves the hitting game and the long ball, was pleased to learn that his Eagles now own the record for the most runs scored in a national juco-tournament — 65. Through the first six games, CSI has had 69 hits and picked up 55 walks and two hit batsmen.

For awhile, Thursday's game was atypical of the norm in this hitter's paradise. CSI took the lead in the second inning when Shell Scott drew a walk and Blake Jensen reached base on an error. Humberger followed with a single to center to score Scott and two walks — the second to Lynn VanEvery — pushed across a second run.

The Trojans got one run back in the third inning when a walk and a single by Mike Whitcomb put runners on first and third and Marshall Miller's ground ball was misplayed by Jensen. Then came perhaps the longest inning of the tournament.

The Eagles scored eight runs on just two hits in that fourth frame. Steve Caputo started things off with a walk and Mike Randall's fly ball to center was dropped. Dave Garro got aboard on a fielder's choice when Caputo beat the force throw to the plate, and VanEvery — who didn't swing the bat in four trips to the plate — picked up the second walk of the game before Jeff Schow bounced into a fielder's choice, forcing the runner at the plate.

Jim Kotkas then lined a single to right to score two runs and Jensen followed with a hard shot up the middle that was ruled an error on the second baseman. He compounded that mistake by overthrowing third base, allowing two more runs to score. Humberger sent the sixth run across on a base hit; two more walks and a hit batsman accounted for two more runs.

CSI ended the game with no outs in the fifth inning after Kotkas and Scott opened with base hits. Jensen drew a walk to load the bases before Humberger delivered the game-winning RBI.

The Trojans ended the season with a 41-11 record, 32 in this tournament.

Chicago dumped 10-2

RBs help Phillies' slugger break from frustrating slump

By The Associated Press

They weren't the kind of hits Mike Schmidt built his reputation on, but they helped him break out of a slump and lead the Philadelphia Phillies to a 10-2 victory over the Chicago Cubs Thursday in Philadelphia.

"I figured that sooner or later I'd get some RBIs," said Schmidt. "Maybe this will get my momentum back and generate a little confidence."

Schmidt collected two singles and three RBI Thursday night, breaking out of a 3-for-24 slump. The win propelled the Phillies into a half-game lead over Chicago in the National League East.

"They weren't classic hits," said Schmidt. "Just hits up the middle. "CHUCK RAINCY DIDN'T PITCH THAT BAD. There was my lopper in front of the plate that allowed a run to score. And there was the error on the doubleplay ball in the second. It could have been a 1-0 game," with the Cubs ahead, he said.

Winning pitcher Charles Hudson said he "was successful" because he kept his fastball down.

"You have to keep the ball down to be successful in this league," said the right-hander. "I kept it down in the strike zone. I kept it away from the middle of the plate, worked the corners inside and out."

Van Hayes, who collected three hits, two RBI and scored three runs, said he kept his bat back and swung quickly.

"I got back on track last night with that line-drive hit to left. When I hit to left it's a confidence builder," said the left-handed hitter. He was referring to his pinch-hit single in the ninth that helped beat San Francisco 3-2 Wednesday.

Chicago manager Jim Frey said

"It was just one of those games. We didn't play well that's all."

"Rainey got me to hit ground balls and we just didn't field well. They just outscored us tonight. It doesn't mean a thing tomorrow's another game."

Hudson, 6-3, allowed five hits through eight innings, striking out eight. Rainey, 3-4, the victim of seven unearned runs, was the loser.

The Phils broke a 1-1 tie with a six-run inning. With one out, Ozzie Virgil was hit by a pitch and scored on a double error by shortstop Larry Bowa, who bobbed Ivan DeJesus' grounder and then threw wildly to second. DeJesus took third on the throw.

Juan Samuel was hit by a pitch and Hayes singled home DeJesus, Samuel moving to third and Hayes to second on the throw to the plate. Schmidt then singled to score Samuel and Hayes.

Schmidt took third on a single by Joe Lefebvre and scored on Sixto Lezcano's single to center. The hit chased Rainey, then reliever Dickie Noles gave up an RBI single to Len Matuszko.

The Phils made it 8-1 in the fourth on a double by Hayes and Schmidt's single and added a run in the sixth on Hudson's double and a single by Samuel. The Cubs got a seventh-inning run on Jody Davis' eighth homer of the year, which also extended his hitting streak to 14 games.

Pittsburgh 2, Montreal 1
In Pittsburgh, Jose DeLeon pitched a six-hitter and Lee Lacy's seventh-inning double drove in the winning run as the Pittsburgh Pirates edged the Montreal Expos.

DeLeon, 3-2, struck out four — three of them in the first inning — and posted his ninth save.

walked one while holding the Expos to three hits and no runs after the second inning. He retired 12 of the final 13 batters he faced.

Atlanta 7, Cincinnati 1
In Cincinnati, Rick Mahler pitched a four-hitter, rookie Brad Kominsky singled in Atlanta's winning run and Glenn Hubbard and Dale Murphy homered — night as the Braves beat Cincinnati, ending the Reds' five-game winning streak.

Mahler, 4-1, struck out five and walked one as he improved his career record against the Reds to 3-0. The victory also left the teams tied for third in the National League West, one game behind first-place Los Angeles.

St. Louis 5, New York Mets 2
In New York, Bob Forsch, making only his second start since May 5 gained his first victory of the season and Bruce Sutter earned his 12th save, pitching the St. Louis Cardinals to a victory over the New York Mets.

Forsch, 1-1, who missed 16 days with a back injury, pitched five innings before being lifted for a pinch hitter. He allowed three hits, striking out two and walking one. Walt Terrell, 3-5, losing for the fourth consecutive time, allowed four runs, two of them earned.

Minnesota 7, Kansas City 2
In Minneapolis, Ed Hodge and Ron Davis teamed on a seven-hitter as the Minnesota Twins moved within one game of first-place California in the American League West with a victory over the Kansas City Royals.

Hodge, 2-1, yielded a run in the second inning on consecutive singles by Steve Balboni, Lynn Jones and Don Slaught and one in the eighth on Willie Wilson's double to right and George Brett's single before Davis took over and posted his ninth save.

Richfield's Terry Hampton.

Joining Newman as the Hebacker position will be Darin Wood of Burley, while at the corners are Valley's Shawn Thacker and Dave Tilley. Holding down the secondary at safety will be Gus Gorringer of Oakley and Burley's Rich Ralphs.

Because both sides are allowed only allowed 10 formal practices, coaches for this game is difficult, said Billett.

"Traditionally, it's been a game that's won or lost with the defense," he said. "A big part of this game for us is taking away their running game. If we can do that, we're going to win. We feel that if we just get the ball to (Coach) Halverson, he'll do the rest."

Raft River mentor Olani Wallace is heading up the whole show for the East team, which features a total of 29 players from 10 schools. Burley tops the list this year with six representatives.

"It's unfair to single out just a few kids," he said. "We have no one outstanding kid. We're just balanced, which should make for a good ball game."

Proceeds from the game go to benefit the Shrine's programs for crippled children, including the Shrine Children's Hospital in Salt Lake City.

Ex-amateur leads LPGA championship

By GEORGE STRODE
The Associated Press

MASON, Ohio — Cindy Hill, a former amateur star, but a non-winner as a professional, solved gustling winds Thursday for a 6-under-par 66 and the first-round lead of the LPGA Championship.

The 36-year-old former U.S. Amateur winner, a professional for six years, built a four-stroke lead over Alice Miller and rookie Amy Benz on the cold, blustery day at the Nicklaus Sports Center.

Only 11 players in the field of 146 could match par 72 on the Nicklaus Grizzly course, playing much longer than its 6,377 yards because of its wetness and the wind.

"You had to keep in touch with the wind. The course played longer than it ever has," said defending champion Patty Sheehan, among those at 71.

Also in the logjam at 71 were Hall of Famer Sandra Haynie, trying to shake a year-long slump; Pat Bradley, this year's leading money winner; 1980 Player of the Year Beth Daniel; Sally Little, winner here four years ago; and two-time U.S. Open champion Hollis Stacy.

No hope seen for Olympics

By NANCY TRAYER
The Associated Press

MOSCOW — Juan Antonio Samaranch, president of the International Olympic Committee, said Thursday there is "no hope" the Soviet Union will compete in the Los Angeles Olympics.

Samaranch, speaking to reporters at Moscow's Sheremetyevo Airport before departing for Paris, said Soviet officials had reiterated they would not send their athletes to the Games.

The Soviet National Olympic Committee announced May 8 that it was "impossible" to send a team to Los Angeles because of concerns for the security of athletes. At least 11 other Soviet-influenced countries have followed Moscow's lead in boycotting the Games, scheduled for July 28 to Aug. 12.

"The hope was very, very little and today there is no hope at all," Samaranch said. "We requested that the Soviet Union take part in the Los Angeles Olympics and their answer was no," he said.

A member of his delegation said the Soviets promised that there would be no alternative games organized by the Soviet Union or other boycotting nations during the Olympic period.

Samaranch arrived in Moscow on Wednesday and met with Marat Gramov, the Soviet Olympic Committee chairman. He met Thursday for two hours with Gramov and Nikolai Taiyazin, one of 11 Soviet deputy premiers.

Gramov, who is Samaranch's host at the airport, was asked how his meetings with the IOC president had progressed.

"We discussed the situation that exists now and the prospects for the future. I think both sides remain satisfied," he said.

"Asked if the Soviet Union would participate in the Los Angeles Summer Olympic Games," Gramov replied, "Let's wait until the end of Los Angeles and then we'll discuss Seoul."

In Los Angeles, Amy Quinn, LAOC press secretary, said: "We appreciate president Samaranch's courageous efforts. We weren't optimistic about the results of his visit, but the Olympic families continued strong support has been outstanding, particularly in light of the tremendous response we've had from national Olympic committees notifying us of their participation in the Games."

French open open in round 3

PARIS (AP) — With John McEnroe and Martina Navratilova leading the parade Thursday, the top-seeded players in the French Open tennis championships marched easily into the third round.

The parade, however, will go on without Jose Luis Clerc of Argentina, Czechoslovakia's Tomas Smit, Jo Durie of Britain, American Kiki Jordan and Hungary's Andrea Temesvari, all of whom were upset on the slow red clay courts in this $1.8 million tournament.

And the road to the third round was exhausting for John Frawley of Australia, who struggled for a second five-hour, 15-minute battle before eliminating West Germany's Hans-Jorgen Schwaller 6-1, 4-6, 6-3, 6-7, 6-6—the longest match ever at Roland Garros Stadium.

McEnroe, Ivan Lendl of Czechoslovakia and Jimmy Connors all advanced without dropping a set, while Martina Navratilova and Chris Evert Lloyd were in devastating form en route to an expected clash in the women's final.

Yannick Noah of France, the defending men's champion, at last got his service going and beat Belgium's Bernard Bolleau 6-4, 5-4, 6-4. Noah's concentration deserted him in his first-round match 24 hours earlier when he was taken to five sets by Mark Dickson of the United States.

GO!

JoAnne Carner opened with a 74 in her quest to collect a $500,000 bonus with her second successive victory.

If Carner can win here and at Malvern, Pa., next week, the Hall of Famer would pick up a $1.5 million bonus, posted by the three tournament sponsors.

Hill, 60th on the 1984 money list with less than $14,000, survived an opening bogey. She rallied with seven birdies in 14 holes. The birdies came at four, seven, nine, 10, 11, 14 and 17.

The leader, playing in the last threesome, fashioned her round in relative obscurity. Only 20 fans watched her make her fifth birdie on the 14th hole.

Her last birdie at 17 gave the Floridian her first-round margin. She protected the lead by paring the difficult, par-5 18th after the wind had settled on this layout just north of Cincinnati.

Miller, a member of Arizona State's 1976 national collegiate champions, rallied from a bogey-bogey start. She sank a 40-yard wedge shot on the seventh hole, one of five birdies.

"It was one of those days you try to get in the clubhouse alive. I thought I was going to shoot 80," said Miller, the winner at Sarasota and No. 6 on the money list this year.

Benz, 22, the 1982 national collegiate medalist at 77th on the money list, also recovered from a slow start. She bogeyed two of her first six holes, but a 2-under-par 34 on the back side lifted into a second-place tie.

At stake in the $250,000 tournament is a first prize of $90,000. Portions of the final rounds Saturday and Sunday will be carried by NBC-TV.

At Kemper Open Long-hitting Norman drives way to lead

By BOB GREEN
The Associated Press

BETHESDA, Md. — Long-hitting Australian Greg Norman used his driver to set up a 4-under-par 68 and establish a two-shot lead Thursday in the first round of the $400,000 Kemper Open Golf Tournament.

"I drove it extremely well — just perfect," Norman said.

"I didn't miss a fairway. And from that position it's easy to set up a good score," said Norman, who has won 38 tournaments around the world but has yet to collect his first official PGA Tour title.

Norman, now a U.S. resident and a full-time player on the American Tour, said a trans-Pacific telephone call to his long-time teacher in Australia last week helped him get in a better position on his backswing, has solved a problem that has bothered him for a couple of months and has boosted his confidence.

"I felt very confident today," he said. "I feel relaxed. I like the golf course. I feel it's a course I can play well."

"I'm looking forward to a good tournament."

Norman, his hair bleached white by the sun, was the only man in the 156-man field able to break into the 60s on the difficult Congressional Country Club course this chilly, breezy day.

The tough course, 7,175 yards of rolling hills in the Washington, D.C., suburbs, often ranks among the more difficult on the tour. A chilly north wind, damp fairways and wet rough produced by heavy, recent rain made it even more difficult than usual.

"It was a very long, very difficult golf course today," said two-time U.S. Open champion Hale Irwin, who matched par 72 and said that "was a very acceptable score on a day like this and on a course like this."

Tied for second at 70 were Gary Hallberg, Ralph Landrum, Jim Thorpe and Scott Simpson, a playoff loser in this event a year ago.

The group at 71 included Phoenix Open winner Tom Purtzer, Jim Simons and Peter Jacobsen, a recent winner of the Colonial National Invitation tournament.

PGA champion Hal Sutton could do no better than a 73. Defending title-holder Fred Couples and Craig Stadler, a frequent winner on this course, each had a 74.

South African Gary Player failed to sign his scorecard after shooting a 77 and was disqualified.

U.S. Open champ Larry Nelson, suffering from sinusitis, withdrew after playing nine holes.

Norman birdied the first hole from eight feet after a 9-iron shot, dropped a 25-foot putt on the fourth and got a 9-iron shot to within 12 feet and made the putt on the fifth.

THE ACES BOBBY WOLF

"I do not believe in the collective wisdom of individual ignorance." - Thomas Carlyle

East must make the right decision when he wins his ace of trumps. And that decision is no more than a guess...

The answer lies in the sequence in which West plays his trumps. With ace of trumps...

OL course South can avoid the diamond ruff by playing diamonds to the top hand...

Send bridge questions to The Aces, P.O. Box 11263, Dallas, Texas, 75211.
