$40,000 fine, jail time for Hansen

'We plan to appeal and we intend to win,' Rep. George Hansen declares on leaving court.

By TOM SEPPY
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Rep. George V. Hansen, R-Idaho, was sentenced to up to 15 months and fined the maximum $40,000 Friday for failing to report $338,978 in loans and other transactions on four consecutive financial disclosure statements.

"... We don't intend to pay it," said Hansen after his sentencing. "We don't intend to go to jail. We plan to appeal and we intend to win."

A short time earlier, the House Committee on Standards of Official Conduct announced it would hold a hearing June 20 to determine what punishment it will recommend that the House impose on Hansen, 53, a colorful and conservative seven-term congressman. Hansen said he will ask the committee, at the hearing, to reconsider its decision to recommend a punishment to the full House.

The possible penalties range from a simple reprimand to formal censure to expulsion, the harshest step the House could take.

Hansen is the first elected member of the 1976 Ethics in Government Act, which requires virtually all major government officials to make annual disclosures of their financial holdings, liabilities and transactions, including gifts, loans and profits for themselves and members of their immediate family.

Several Republican National Committee members from Hansen's home state said his sentencing — and especially the House ethics committee's plans to recommend punishment — may seriously jeopardize Hansen's re-election chances in November.

U.S. District Judge Joyce Hens Green sentenced Hansen to five to 15 months in prison, to run concurrently with each of the four counts of filing false financial disclosure statements to the House for 1978 through 1981.

Hansen may be paroled after at least five months in prison.

Hansen was convicted April 2 of omitting mention of loans, profits from the sale of silver contracts and other transactions, some of which involved Texas billionaire Nelson Bunker Hunt.

Hansen was convicted of omitting from his disclosure forms an $87,475 profit that his wife Connie made trading silver (along with Hunt's help); a $50,000 bank loan to Mrs. Hansen that was guaranteed by Hunt; a $61,503 personal loan from Hunt to Mrs. Hansen; and $135,000 in personal loans to the congressman from three Virginia men — John Meade Jr., Carl McAfee and Odel Rogers.

His conviction put into effect a House rule calling for a preliminary inquiry by the House ethics committee, which concluded Friday that he should be disciplined by his House colleagues. Judge Green rejected Hansen's plea for a new trial or acquittal one week ago.

The case was not Hansen's first brush with the law. He pleaded guilty in 1975 to two misdemeanor charges of filing false campaign finance reports. A federal judge in that case sentenced him to prison, but later reduced the punishment to a $2,000 fine.

Idahoans see persecution, justice, GOP woes in ruling

By The Times-News and the Associated Press

TWIN FALLS — If you love George Hansen, the jail sentence and fine given to him Friday was unjust but an expected persecution by liberals and bureaucrats.

If you're a Hansen critic, the 15 months in prison and $40,000 fine ordered by Judge Joyce Hens Green represents justice being served against someone whose financial affairs have long been suspect and who you consider an embarrassment to the state.

But if you're a loyal member of the Republican Party — one who has been neither overzealous in your support nor your criticism of the beleaguered seven-term Congressman — the sentencing combined with action from the House Committee on Standards of Official Conduct presents a serious problem to your party in the Republican-dominated 2nd Congressional District.

Idahoans' reactions covered that range Friday, when asked to respond to Hansen's sentencing and to the ethics committee's findings that Hansen has violated House Rules and should be punished.

"I'm fearful we'll lose that seat,"

Republicans for Stallings — A7

says Vard Chatburn, an Albion Republican who has served 28 years in the Idaho House of Representatives. "I wouldn't go so far as to say it's a conspiracy (against Hansen) but there's no doubt he's being made an example of. He hasn't necessarily been singled out. He stepped in there (and) they're going to take his hide off. You don't skin the animal that stays out of the trap," he says.

Former Lt. Gov. Phil Batt, Idaho's Republican National Committeeman, says Hansen's chances at re-election are continuing to decline. "Each piece of adverse news makes it more difficult for a person to be elected," he says.

"It's a very delicate situation at a very delicate time," Dennis Olsen, Republican chairman in Idaho, said Friday afternoon. "George's candidacy presents a very difficult problem in this election. Ultimately, I think he will be vindicated," he said.

Olsen declined to comment when asked if he would ask Hansen to remove himself from the ballot in November's general election.

Hansen was sentenced on four felony counts of filing false disclosure forms required under the Federal Ethics in Government Act.

Tom Silvers, Speaker of the Idaho House of Representatives, said he was "not surprised at the sentence." Silvers, a Twin Falls Republican, says anti-Hansen forces have been trying for years to remove the congressman from office. He adds that he will continue to support Hansen unless the congressman is in prison.

Lloyd Walker, a Twin Falls attorney who was formerly Democratic state chairman, called the sentencing "a deserved and proper decision based on the fact that it was not the first time. The Constitutional court system worked properly," he said. Walker said it is unlikely Hansen is the victim of a conspiracy because the charges were brought against him by the Justice Department of the Reagan Administration.

Richard Stallings, the Democratic candidate who will oppose Hansen in November after falling just 7,000 votes short of unseating him two years ago, called Friday's devel-

BOISE (AP) — Idaho Democrats launched their state convention here Friday on a harmonious note, staving off what could have been a divisive battle over a platform plank.

And one of the chief topics of discussion was a Republican, not a Democrat.

There was almost a festive air at the gathering, which started shortly after a federal judge in Washington, D.C., sentenced Republican Congressman George Hansen to 5 to 15 months in prison on federal charges.

Several delegates said they thought that would add to the party's chances of capturing that congressional seat for the first time in 20 years.

"Almost every delegate sported a sticker in support of Hansen's Democratic opponent, Richard Stallings of Rexburg. And debate over a party plank on world peace and nuclear arms control centered on how it would help Stallings' campaign.

There was less talk of the Democrats' other congressional candidate, Fred Craner of Post Falls. But Craner, a political unknown when he announced against Rep. Larry Craig in the 1st District, spent much of Friday introducing himself to delegates and working on party support.

Friday's session centered on workshops for candidates and campaign workers, and panel discussions on party platform planks.

After a debate that went on most of the afternoon, the Democrats' proposed "peace plank" was approved. It's almost the same as the proposed national Democratic Party plank.

A key section is aimed at boosting Stallings' chances against Hansen.

The proposed national platform plank calls for negotiations on a "permanent, verifiable and comprehensive ban" on the production and deployment of nuclear weapons, and a ban on the production of fissionable materials for weapons.

That might be considered a plank against the proposed New Production Reactor at the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory.

Frustrated Hispanics rip measure

WASHINGTON (AP) — Hispanic leaders, frustrated over a series of defeats, said Friday that offering illegal immigrants living in the United States a chance to become legal residents is no satisfactory tradeoff for the "racist" immigration control bill before a House conference.

At a news conference, they said both the Democratic and Republican national conventions this summer would be picketed to demonstrate Hispanic anger over the measure. Helen Gonzales of the Mexican American Legal Defense and Educational Fund called the measure "the worst, most nativist, most racist piece of immigration legislation" since the Chinese Exclusion Acts of the 1890s. "Nativism" is the practice of favoring native-born citizens over immigrants.

She deplored Thursday's 228-172 vote to establish a huge "guest workers" program that would bring tens of thousands of foreigners into this country to harvest perishable crops. She said the message it conveyed was "Come here, work and get out."

The Hispanic spokesmen said the bill's amnesty feature — offering legalization to illegal immigrants now leading a shadowy, underground existence — is so narrowly drawn that only a relative handful of those eligible to apply would qualify.

Arnoldo Torres, executive director of the League of United Latin American Citizens, estimated that 2.2

million of 6 million illegal aliens living in the United States would be eligible to apply for legalization, but only 5 percent of them — 110,000 people in all — would actually apply.

Gonzales said most illegal aliens would be afraid to apply out of concern they would be deported if they failed to qualify for legalization.

The House is expected to vote on amnesty on Tuesday. The proposal would allow any illegal immigrant who has been in this country since 1982 to become a permanent resident, ultimately eligible for citizenship, if he or she has earned a living, is in good health and has not gotten into serious trouble with the law while living in the United States.

Missouri River overflows; storms bring flood watches

By CHARLOTTE PORTER
The Associated Press

Evacuations were ordered in Missouri and Kansas Friday and flash flood watches were posted across much of the soaked Midwest.

At the same time, thunderstorms dumped more rain on rivers that had already swamped fields, washed over city streets and forced hundreds of people from their homes.

About 1,000 people left their homes in northwest Missouri as heavy rain sent the Missouri River spilling over levees along a 75-mile stretch from the Iowa border in St. Joseph, Mo.

Meanwhile, minimum-security inmates were moved from their dormitory near the Kansas State Penitentiary as rising waters threatened to isolate them.

The rains pushed the Missouri to near-record levels. South of Omaha, the river was at its highest since record floods of 1952.

More than 3 inches of rain fell overnight in parts of Nebraska, Missouri and Iowa, and 2 inches fell in 20 minutes in Eagle Butte, S.D. As some residents ran out of sandbags, the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers flew in pumps to help keep back the rising waters in Kansas and Missouri.

"The whole area is just saturated," said Dave Brandon of the National Weather Service in Topeka, Kan. "This is one of those situations where it starts to get serious when you're getting 2 to 4 inches on top of what they've already got."

In the Northeast, meanwhile, cool air broke a punishing heat wave blamed for the deaths of at least 14 people in the past week. Four other people died Tuesday in the violent weather in the Midwest.

The National Weather Service issued flash flood watches for northern Missouri, northeastern Kansas, southwestern Minnesota, all of South Dakota, parts of southeast Nebraska and the western two-thirds of Iowa.

About a third of Fremont County, Iowa, was under water Friday, most of it cropland, said Civil Defense Director Donald Bartholomew. He said 50 residents of the small town of Bartlett were being warned to prepare for evacuation.

The Missouri crested at 23 feet at Pacific Junction, Iowa, the elevation of the town's dike, said Mills County engineer Jerry Hare. "The ground is saturated," he said. "If there's any more rain, it can't soak into the ground, there's a good chance that the dike would go, and that would put a lot of homes underwater. Residents of DeWitt, Neb., 40 miles southwest of Lincoln, began to return to the small community, where officials estimated that 95 percent of the homes and businesses were damaged by the overflowing Big Blue River.

Mondale eyes running mate, challenges Reagan to debate

By CAROLE FELDMAN
The Associated Press

Walter F. Mondale, preparing to select a running mate for the Democratic presidential ticket he expects to head, returned to his Minnesota home Friday and said he will challenge President Reagan in a series of debates before the fall election.

"Such debates would serve the American people," he told a meeting of his Texas delegates before flying to his home state and reiterating his determination to challenge Reagan — particularly on arms control.

"Mondale said Reagan has 'taken a pretty hostile attitude toward arms negotiation.'"

"There is a 20-year record by this president, first in private life, in which he opposed every effort of every president of both political parties to control nuclear armaments for over 20 years," he said.

"Whatever divides us along partisan lines, certainly survival is not on that list," Mondale said.

Calling the selection of a running mate the "most important decision a presidential nominee makes," Mondale said he will interview Mayor "Dianne" Feinstein of San Francisco and Sen. Lloyd Bentsen of Texas for the No. 2 spot.

He said the two meetings are the first in a series he plans with prospective vice presidential candidates.

Mondale said the interviews with Feinstein and Bentsen would be held in his North Oaks, Minn., home with Bentsen on Thursday and with Ms. Feinstein on June 23, a week from Saturday.

Rep. Geraldine Ferraro of New York, also mentioned as a possible vice presidential candidate, will be meeting with Mondale on Saturday to discuss the Democratic Party platform.

Mondale spokesman Dayton Duncan said the No. 2 spot on the ticket would not be discussed at the meeting.

The former vice president also will meet with Gov. Martha Layne Collins of Kentucky on Sunday to discuss the Democratic Convention and with Rep. Barbara Mikulski of Maryland to discuss the general election campaign.

Mrs. Collins, chairwoman of next month's convention in San Francisco, also has been mentioned as a possible running mate to Mondale.

The apparent Democratic nominee told the Minnesota State Democratic Farm Labor Convention in St. Paul: "This is the end of a rough and tough campaign for the nomination and I'm glad to be home before I start another one."

While Mondale was talking about plans for November, the Rev. Jesse Jackson was in Anderson, S.C., reiterating his complaint that party rules have resulted in him being shortchanged on delegates and Gary Hart was in Texas for the state party convention.

Jackson said the party must give justice to those "locked out" of the nominating process before unifying behind a candidate.

"A remedy can be found now, and a remedy must be found now," he said. "We cannot stand idly by and allow our people to be disenfranchised."

He restated his plan to push for rule changes at the convention, saying it not too late to change the rules or to consider Hart's suggestion that Mondale is counting some "talented" delegates among his majority.

"There is no statute of limitations on injustice," Jackson said.

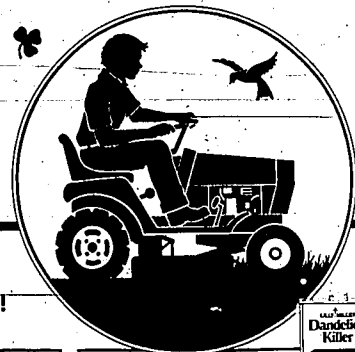

Jackson said Mondale's announced list of vice-presidential choices "could be a public relations hype" and indicated that he's not interested in being included.

"I'm not looking for a job, I'm looking for justice," he told reporters outside Welfare Baptist Church.

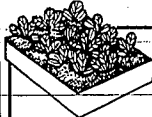

Jackson, who flew into his native South Carolina on Thursday night to visit his mother, spoke with reporters after delivering a sermon inside the black Baptist church.

Mondale called for separate debates with Reagan on foreign policy, national security and defense, economics, justice and equal rights, the environment and how to prepare for the future.

Kennecott threatens 2,000 layoffs

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Kennecott will lay off 2,000 workers in its Utah Copper Division by July 1 unless unions agree to drastic cost-cutting concessions, Kennecott President G. Frank Joklik said Friday.

A continuing decline in the price of copper is forcing the firm to cut production at its Utah operation by two-thirds, he said at a news conference.

Kennecott currently employs about 4,400 workers in Utah.

The firm earlier this year asked union leaders to reopen contracts that were negotiated last year, based on a projected rise in copper prices. The unions have so far rejected that proposal.

Joklik said the layoffs would be permanent, and denied they were a threat to bring unions to the negotiating table. He said further reductions were possible if conditions did not improve.

"We're not in the business of making threats. We cannot sustain operations any longer without a cut in costs or an increase in prices," he said.

Senate pushes for risk-reducing posts

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate recommended 82-0 on Friday the establishment of "nuclear risk-reduction centers" in Washington and Moscow.

The bill would guard against the chance that a global holocaust could be triggered by accident or the acts of a terrorist group or third nation. The non-binding amendment to a $21 billion defense authorization bill calls upon President Reagan to raise the issue in arms talks with the Soviets. In addition to the confidence-building steps he already has proposed — such as technically upgrading the "hotline" between the two capitals.

Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., told the Senate that a secret Pentagon study has shown the United States and the Soviet Union may not have the capacity to determine the country of origin of a third-party (nuclear) attack.

According to the legislation, "an increasing number of scenarios, including miscalculation, misunderstanding, possession of nuclear arms by a terrorist group or a state-sponsored threat could precipitate a sudden increase in tensions and the risk of a nuclear confrontation" between the superpowers.

It commends Reagan for embracing earlier congressional initiatives calling for upgrading the hotline — actually a 1960s-era teletype — and creating joint military communications links between Washington and Moscow. Those proposals remain under discussion with the Soviets.

But Nunn and 15 co-sponsors say those steps do not go far enough to guard against an accidental nuclear exchange, citing the "steady proliferation throughout the world of the knowledge, equipment and materials necessary to fabricate nuclear weapons" and an "increasing potential for nuclear terrorism."

The legislation envisions a variety of possibilities for the establishment of "nuclear risk-reduction centers," including:

- One in each capital, manned 24 hours per day by diplomatic and military experts, with a liaison officer assigned from the opposite nation.
- Jointly manned centers in each capital.
- A jointly manned center at a neutral site.

The administration has so far been lukewarm to the idea, originated by the late Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash. Some Pentagon officials have suggested it would only add another layer to the defense and diplomatic bureaucracy — and could even impede the flow of information to top leaders.

Fifth consecutive successful test for MX

WASHINGTON (AP) — The controversial MX missile scored its fifth successful test flight in a row Friday, sending six unarmed warheads into a target area in the mid-Pacific from the California coast, the Air Force announced.

The test came one day after the Senate narrowly approved continuation of the new, multiple-warhead intercontinental ballistic missile, which is to be installed at fixed launch bases in Wyoming and Nebraska starting in 1986.

Major Ron Rand said officials at Vandenberg Air Force Base, from which the MX was launched, reported the fifth consecutive successful test. He said the Air Force considered four previous test flights successes, despite what was described as a "short fuel burn" on the third test.

Even with that short burn, Rand said, all the re-entry vehicles landed in the target area at the Kwajalein missile test range.

The MX traveled more than 4,100 miles. The test flight Friday involved a new warhead, the Mark 21, for the first time.

Overall, the Air Force plans 20 research and development test flights.

WHEAT RIDGE, Colo. (AP) — A cemetery caretaker riding a sweeping machine was struck by a Burlington Northern freight train and pinned under the engine for about an hour Friday morning, and died later at a hospital, officials said.

The victim, Michael Sillstrop of Denver, was pulled alive from the wreckage, said Jefferson County Deputy Coroner Triena Harper, who confirmed his identity and said he was about 17 years of age.

Cincinnati lawyer cites Supreme Court ruling

WASHINGTON (AP) — Quickly using a new Supreme Court decision limiting affirmative action, the Justice Department moved Friday to overturn a court order that bars the Cincinnati police department from laying off or denying minority officers on the basis of seniority.

In a motion filed jointly with Queen City Lodge No. 69 of the Fraternal Order of Police, Assistant Attorney General William Bradford Reynolds, chief of the department's civil rights division, cited the high court's ruling Tuesday in a case involving the layoff of firefighters in Memphis, Tenn.

Reynolds told U.S. District Judge Carl Rubin in Cincinnati that "this court's order of April 11, 1984, is virtually identical to the order that the Supreme Court invalidated" in the Memphis case.

It was expected that the department soon would make a similar motion to overturn another court order involving Newark, N.J., firefighters. In May, U.S. District Judge H. Lee Sarokin ruled that white firefighters with seniority in Newark could be laid off to protect minorities who were newly hired in an effort to remedy past discrimination.

Alert at nuclear plant

VERNON, Vt. (AP) — An alert was issued at the Vermont Yankee nuclear power plant on Friday after a tiny radioactive probe used to examine the reactor core was accidentally exposed inside the plant, officials said.

No radioactive material was released into the air and there was no danger to the public in the alert, declared at 9:20 a.m., said Vermont Yankee spokeswoman Mary Schneider.

"Preliminary checks are that no employees were exposed to high levels of radiation," said David

Dillon, aide to Gov. Richard Snelling. By early afternoon, plant workers were still trying to get the probe back into its containment area and the alert was still in effect, officials said.

Vermont Yankee spokesman Steve Bravar said it would take several hours before radiation detection badges worn by workers could be examined.

It was the first alert ever issued at the 12-year-old reactor, according to officials. An alert is the second of four levels of federal emergency designations at nuclear power plants.

U.S. urges China to remain mum

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration is urging China to give new, strong assurances it will not use a pending agreement with the United States to help other countries gain nuclear weapons technology, officials said Friday.

But Chinese officials are said to be resisting the requests, accusing the United States of attempting to renegotiate an agreement which was finalized in Peking last April as the highpoint of President Reagan's journey to China.

The result is an apparent impasse that may prevent the agreement, which would permit the United States to transfer commercial nuclear technology to China, from being submitted to Congress for passage this year. The deal would create a framework for U.S. companies to compete for up to $20 billion for contracts in energy-short China.

John Hughes, the State Department's chief spokesman, confirmed the delay.

By law, agreements to sell U.S. nuclear technology to foreign countries cannot take effect until they have been before Congress for 60 legislative days.

Officials agree that the text must be sent to Capitol Hill by next Monday to meet that requirement in the time remaining in the current session of Congress. The summer congressional recess is approaching, followed by the November elections.

"Non-proliferation is a critical issue to the United States," Hughes said. "This is a serious question. We want to make sure everything is in order, everything is right and that everyone understands the situation."

Government toughens on worker exposure to chemical

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government on Friday moved to tighten restrictions on worker exposure to ethylene oxide, a widely used sterilizing agent that has been linked to cancer and genetic damage.

The Occupational Safety and Health Administration said a new regulation, to be published in the Federal Register next week, will reduce by fifty-fold the current permissible worker exposure to the gaseous, colorless substance.

The health standard, which will take effect 60 days after its publication, is intended to protect an estimated 140,000 Americans, the bulk of them working in hospitals where the substance is used as sterilant.

The existing permissible exposure limit, which has been in effect since 1971, allows worker exposure up to a maximum of 50 parts per million (ppm) of ethylene oxide over an eight-hour day. The new rule lowers that permissible limit to 1 ppm over an eight-hour day.

Vegas stagehands accept contract

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Stagehands voted overwhelmingly to accept a new 5-year contract at four Strip resorts Friday, cutting to six the number of hotels still being struck in a bitter 76-day labor dispute.

Musicians approved a new 5-year contract by a vote of 242-56.

Loan offer withdrawn

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. government is withdrawing its offer of a $300 million short-term loan that was to help Argentina deal with pressing international debt problems, Treasury Department officials said Friday.

However, they left open the possibility the loan can still be made if Argentina is able to reach a separate agreement with the International Monetary Fund.

The U.S. offer, scheduled to expire at midnight Friday, had been renewed twice since it was first made at the end of March. But U.S. officials, in a brief statement by the department, said it would not be renewed a third time.

Argentina, which owes about $44 billion in international debt, has been seeking a large loan from the International Monetary Fund to help with its credit problems. The Treasury commitment, Friday's official statement said, "was temporary in nature and was granted to provide Argentina with the time to reach an agreement with the IMF."

Argentina's leaders told the IMF in a letter this week that they were reluctant to put into effect the budget austerity measures the agency was asking in return for granting its loan.

There has been no indication whether the IMF will go along with Argentina's much-modified economic-adjustment proposal, something the agency has not been willing to do with other Latin American nations.

Gulf OKs merger

WILMINGTON, Del. (AP) — Gulf Corp.'s shareholders on Friday approved the company's $13.4 billion acquisition by Standard Oil Co. of California, completing the largest merger in U.S. corporate history.

Gulf said 138.8 million of its shares, or 84 percent of its total stock outstanding, were voted in favor of the merger. About 135.4 million of the shares already are owned by Socon following a tender offer.

The marriage makes Socon the nation's third-largest oil concern, based on 1983 sales, just behind Mobil Corp. Exxon Corp. is the industry leader.

Bradley denies rape charge

TWIN FALLS — Convicted rapist Richard Roy Bradley, as his trial continued Friday in Fifth District Court, denied that he raped a Twin Falls woman Nov. 16.

Bradley also testified he pleaded guilty to a rape charge in Arizona in 1975.

With testimony from Bradley's mother and another defense witness, Public Defender Mike Powers also attempted to show Friday that Bradley was home in bed when the alleged rape occurred.

Bradley's mother, Carmalee Jansen, said in a taped conversation that her son came home about 2 a.m. on the night of the rape, conversed with her for about half an hour and then "went in his room and shut the door." Jansen had been hospitalized the day before.

The 34-year-old Bradley testified he went directly home to Jerome using an old truck route to Jerome using a drinking with friend Verna Cox.

Under cross-examination by Twin Falls County Deputy Prosecutor Kandace Kemp, however, Bradley could not remember the approximate time he left the bar or arrived home.

Under questioning by Powers, Bradley admitted he had pleaded guilty to an attempted rape charge in Boise in Nov., 1983, but he denied he making any confession about the incident to a Boise police detective.

Cox later told the jury she had been with Bradley, whom she described as a "close friend" on the night of the rape. They parted company in a bar about 11:30 p.m. When she returned home, the victim came over at 4 a.m.

Under questioning by Powers, Bradley admitted he had pleaded guilty to an attempted rape charge in Boise in Nov., 1983, but he denied he making any confession about the incident to a Boise police detective.

Under Kemp's questioning, Jansen admitted she did not check in her son's room to see if he had gone to bed and actually had no idea where he was between 2:30 and 7:30 a.m.

First Christian's Chapman plans move to Arizona

By DOUG WRIGHT
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — After five years in Twin Falls, the Rev. Warren Chapman of the First Christian Church is moving on to the Phoenix, Ariz. area to attempt to increase membership in the church there.

A full-time evangelist by profession, Chapman's role in the Christian Church is to start new branches of the church and increase membership in the existing ones, he says. "Chapters or prospective chapters hire me to attempt to increase interest and membership in the church," said Chapman.

In beginning a new chapter, "what we do is start with a nucleus of people, maybe three or four families who get together in a home for Bible study," said Chapman. "Then we go out and tell people about the Bible Study and try to get them interested."

"When we have about 20 families, we either rent a building to hold services in or if we have the money, we buy land and start building a new one," added Chapman.

In an established church like the Twin Falls church, which was incorporated before Twin Falls was a city, Chapman's job is to increase membership. He believes he has been successful here, increasing the number of members attending services from about 150 five years ago to about 300 now.

The 43-year-old Chapman, who was born and raised in Sullivan, Ind., was channeled into service for the Christian Church early in life. His father and brother-in-law are also ministers in the church.

"I was 16 years old when I decided to enter theology, and as soon as I graduated from high school, I entered the Lincoln Christian College in Illinois. Four years later, I was a minister in the church," said Chapman.

After receiving his undergraduate degree, Chapman earned a Master of Divinity degree from Trinity Theological Seminary in Indiana, and is currently working on his Doctorate of Ministry from a theological seminary in Tacoma, Wash.

Chapman said he has enjoyed the time he spent here. "The people of the church are very loving, and I like the independence and smart thinking of the people in the community," said Chapman.

"It's also an excellent place to raise a family," said Chapman, "and the availability of sports and recreational activities is great for an outdoorsman like me. Practically all you have to do is walk out in your backyard and you can hunt or hike or fish."

But, having been successful here, he now moves on to the Phoenix area where he has been hired to help increase membership in the Christian Church there.

A message
Ron Vieselmeyer, administrator of an informal highway evangelism group, stands near one of the group's billboards near Coeur d'Alene. He said the billboard's messages have benefited many Idaho travelers, and the group plans to expand its operations to other states.

Suit contests firings

COEUR D'ALENE (AP) — Three former Kootenai County employees have filed a $1.4 million suit against Kootenai County officials, contending they were unfairly fired.

The suit was filed in First District Court by Ira Miltenbruch, June Thompson and Sharon Bassett. It seeks back pay and benefits, as well as general damages for pain, suffering and embarrassment and loss of wages, employment opportunities and future earnings.

Named in the suit are the county commissioners and County Engineer John Carplita.

The employees say their firings last

August represent a "wrongful discharge" by the county.

Eugene Marano, attorney for the plaintiffs, said the suit was filed following the county's failure to respond to a $1.4 million claim filed in December.

He said the employees want damages or reinstatement to their jobs.

The suit contends the firings were a negligent and intentional infliction of emotional distress.

Deputy Prosecuting Attorney Richard Kasper said he had not seen the suit and would not comment on it.

Bassett had worked for the county since 1977 and was a building permit coordinator at the time of her firing.

GOP head out of hospital

BOISE (AP) — Dennis Olsen, chairman of the Idaho Republican Party, will be released from a Salt Lake City hospital this weekend following successful treatment of a heart ailment, according to state Republican Director Jim Davidson.

Olsen, 54, an Idaho Falls attorney, entered the University of Utah Medical Center after problems developed from angioplasty treatments begun a month ago in Kansas City.

According to Sterling Miller, a relative, doctors were standing by Friday to begin open-heart surgery had they been unable to resolve problems with the treatments — to eliminate a blockage near the heart.

In a statement issued through party headquarters in Boise, Olsen said the success of the procedure has cleared the way for him to run for another term as head of the Idaho Republican Party at the state convention in Sun Valley in two weeks.

Olsen became chairman of the party in 1977.

Mud Lake dikes still intact

By The Associated Press

Flood control officials and volunteers continued reinforcing the 16 miles of dikes containing Mud Lake in eastern Idaho Friday as Jefferson County was designated a state disaster area.

"We're just kind of holding right now," said Deputy Sheriff Reed Sanders. "The residents are just waiting to be told anytime that it has broken." "Warmer, drier weather has helped stabilize the lake, which has been pushed to record levels by recent heavy rains and high runoff from the mountain snowpack.

Increased evaporation and a higher demand for water from the lake for farm irrigation has eased the situation. But Sanders said the lake remains slightly over 10 feet with water lapping at the top of the dike system.

Although most of the land threatened by possible flooding is crop or pasture land, about 20 homes stand in the potential path of floodwaters should the dike give way. Only one, which is completely surrounded by water, has been evacuated.

Gov. John Evans' disaster declaration for the county says the way for state personnel and equipment to be used should the situation deteriorate.

Elsewhere in the state, the National Weather Service has lifted its flood warning for the Henry's Fork at St. Anthony, and while warnings remain in effect for the Portneuse River at Pocatello and the Henry's Fork at Rexburg, hydrologist Scott Kiser said neither poses a serious flooding threat.

"We're tailing down," Kiser said. "It's the end of flood season."

"We're getting the water down to where we can get around pretty good," said Rivir Wedder, chairman of the Raft River flood repair committee at Malta.

Yearbook pictures make parents upset

IDAHO FALLS (AP) — Yearbook photographs in which an Eagle Rock Junior High School student is described as "best bod" and another is labeled a rape victim have some parents upset.

The 1984 annual also pictures the legs of a band member in a toilet stall and features covers from Playgirl and Playboy magazines. Principal Joel LaPray said he agrees with the 10 or 12 parents who called to complain the items are in poor taste, but students say the adults are off base.

"The year." Students don't find their yearbook offensive, Miss Barlow said.

The so-called "rape" photographs drew the strongest criticism.

One picture shows a prone girl's arm protruding from behind a lavatory wall. The caption is "rape." The next picture is captioned "Thanks for your help."

Miss Barlow disagrees with claims that the pictures imply women enjoy being raped.

The pictures referred to male students teasing girls in the school hallway, and "rape" is what girls often say as a joke in those instances, Miss Barlow said.

Congregation plans rebuilding

BONNERS FERRY (AP) — The congregation of the Trinity Lutheran Church here plans to reconstruct the church following a fire that caused more than $300,000 of damages, a church official said.

The Rev. Larry Nelson said the blaze gutted the church sanctuary and entryway. The church headquarters and classrooms also were damaged by smoke and water, he said.

Bonnors Ferry Fire Chief Tom Hopkins said a malfunction in the church organ is thought to have caused the Wednesday night fire, which started in the choir loft.

Nelson said church members must decide how and when to begin rebuilding the structure.

Guardsmen suffer injury in training

BOISE (AP) — Three Montana Army National Guardsmen remained hospitalized here Friday with injuries received during a training exercise at Gowen Field south of Boise.

Capt. Bob Howe identified the injured as Sgt. Robert Johnson, 38, Hamilton, Mont., Staff Sgt. Tom Lusk, 33, Stevensville, Mont., and Sgt. Steve Barringer, 29, Corvallis, Mont. All were in stable condition at St. Alphonsus Regional Medical Center, a nursing supervisor said.

Spc. 4 Rana Scott Vadnals, 21, Hamilton, was treated and released. The accident occurred Wednesday in a training area near Gowen Field, but Army National Guard officials released no information on the incident until Friday.

The men were injured when their armored personnel carrier went over a ledge and dropped 25 feet. The carrier has small parachutes, Tierney said, and "they can see out, but not down."

Chaplain Robert Baker said the men were hurt when they were tossed around during the drop. Lusk radioed for help, while Vadnals crawled out of the carrier and flagged down a group of Boy Scouts, Tierney said.

Tierney said the Guard stresses safety, but that Wednesday's accident was unavoidable. He attributed the accident to problems with dust and speed. The carrier travels about 10 mph, he said.

A helicopter crash Friday also injured the training exercise, but officials refused to release details of the latest accident.

Lt. Col. Michael Bolin, Montana Army National Guard, said no one was injured in the crash at Gowen Field.

About 1,700 guardsmen from Montana, Texas, Colorado, and Washington also participating in the training exercise, Tierney said.

Job outlook optimistic

BOISE (AP) — Despite current indications of continued trouble in the resource-based sector of the economy, state government analysts are predicting a significant expansion of employment opportunities in Idaho through next winter.

"Just as the state's economy was slow to feel the economic recovery, it has yet to give evidence of slowing down," the analysts said in their monthly economic outlook. "About 10,000 new jobs are projected from the first quarter of 1984 to the first quarter of 1985."

The monthly forecast pointed out that tightening credit in the national economy has generated widespread opinion that rising interest rates "are beginning to hamper housing and construction markets."

The analysts said the national trend will likely spill over in Idaho and dampen the state's already-fragile recovery, but they expect the recovery to continue albeit at a slower pace.

With that, the forecast said, "total non-agricultural employment in Idaho will equal its pre-recession 1979 peak."

Hearns devours Duran in 2

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Thomas Hearns called Roberto Duran "the greatest fighter I ever faced in the ring" after putting one of boxing's brightest stars into eclipse Friday night.

Hearns smashed Duran to the canvas three times and stopped him at 1:07 of the second round to retain the World Boxing Council super-welterweight championship.

"I wanted to win by a knockout because I'm fighting a legend," said Hearns.

Duran, who will be 33 today, was a badly beaten legend. As the Panamanian left the ring, possibly for the last time in his 18-year career, he asked someone, "What did I do wrong?"

Asked if he would retire, Duran replied, "No decision yet."

It was not what Duran did wrong, it was that Hearns was devastating.

"I think 'Hit Man' is appropriate for this fight because I planned to use my ability to punch," said the man who had always dinked being called "Hit Man" and who in his last three fights had scored decisions.

He proved quickly on this hot desert night that he was the "Hit Man" agent with the kind of performance that should lead him to a major match with Marvelous Marvin Hagler, the undisputed middleweight champion who kept his title on a 15-round title on a decision here over Duran last Nov. 10.

"Hagler gave Duran too much respect," said Hearns. "He's going to give me the same respect, and it's going to be over in no time."

With about a minute to go in the first round, Hearns, who weighed 133½, hurt Duran, 154, with a barrage of head shots, and then put him down for the third time in his career with a left hook to the head. Duran got up at four and took a mandatory eight count.

The 6-foot-1 Hearns, who enjoyed an 11-inch reach advantage over the 5-7½ Duran, charged to the attack and another onslaught of head blows put Duran down again with seven seconds left in the round. Duran, who was also cut about the right eye, got up immediately and the bell rang moments later.

Duran came out on shaky legs for the second round, and Hearns wasted no time in going after him. He trapped Duran in a corner and worked him over with head shots before the challenger escaped.

Then Hearns pinned Duran against the ropes and landed another barrage. As Duran was about to go down, Hearns threw a crushing right hand that dropped him flat on his face. Luis Spada, Duran's manager, jumped into the ring as referee Carlos Padilla stopped the bout.

Duran — the triple world champion with "Hands of Stone" who had knocked out 57 opponents — had been knocked out. Padilla didn't start count 10. He didn't need to.

"The right in the second round was probably the best right of my career," said Hearns.

"I jumped into the ring because I think it's very important to protect

Irwin clings to Open lead

MAMARONECK, N.Y. (AP) — Hale Irwin carded "amazing birdies" on the last three holes for another 68 and a one-stroke lead Friday in the second round of the 84th United States Open Golf Championship.

Related story — B3

"Patience was very much a virtue today," said Irwin, who three-putted for bogey on his first two holes, said he was "sweating bullets," and then birdied his time until the putts began to fall on those last three, difficult holes at the Winged Foot Golf Club.

"After a start like that, there is a tendency to get too aggressive. But the key to Winged Foot is patience. You want to be somewhat aggressive, but at the same time be realistic; keep in mind that at the end of the round a total score of par will be a very good score."

At the end of his round, it was even better than that — two under par for the day and, at 136, four under for the championship he has won twice: The first one came 10 years ago on this same tough layout in the northern New York suburbs.

But at the halfway point of the American national championship, his lead was far from secure.

The chief challengers were two of the game's longest-hitters, former Masters champion Fuzzy Zoeller and Greg Norman, the Australian import known as "the Great White Shark."

The happy-go-lucky Zoeller did not make a bogey in his late-afternoon round of 66, by two strokes the best of the tournament. It was the lowest round ever shot in this tournament on this course.

An approach to within two feet of the flag on the fifth and last birdie of the mild, sunny day, lifted him into second alone at 137, three under par.

Norman, too, got around the difficult course without a bogey. He did a 68 that included a brilliant save from the trees on the 18th — "the best shot I've hit in a long time," he said — and a 30-foot birdie putt on the 17th.

His playing partners, Jack Nicklaus and Ray Floyd, also birdied the 17th and the three veterans delighted their huge gallery by performing a leaping, "high-five" mutually-congratulatory hand-slap as they walked off the green.

Norman was tied at 138 with longestshot David Carpe, a refugee from the Florida mini-tours who attempted — and failed — three times to play the PGA Tour. He had a second consecutive 69.

"My goal was to make the cut," Canipe said. "I've made it. Now my goal is to make as much money as I can. The thought of winning hasn't crossed my mind."

Jim Thorpe and Curtis Strange were at 139. Thorpe holed a 30-yard bunker shot for an eagle 3 on his way to a 71. Strange holed out two shots from the fairway — a 97-yard wedge for birdie and a 159-yard 5-iron shot for eagle 2 — in his round of 70.

Fred Couples, winner of the important Tournament Players Championship earlier this season, was next at 71-140.

Nicklaus, the 44-year-old Golden Bear, had to rally from a bogey-bogey start to salvage another 71. He finished 58 holes at 142, two over par and six off the pace in his quest for a record fifth Open crown.

Lewis, Moses in spotlight

U.S. track & field trials begin today

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Carl Lewis begins a quest that he hopes will carry him to four Olympic gold medals and Edwin Moses shoots for his 100th consecutive victory today in the opening session of the U.S. Olympic track and field trials.

The meet will determine the American team that will participate in the Games for the first time since 1976 — a team with the possibility of reaping the biggest gold medal harvest in U.S. history.

The most golds ever won by a U.S. track and field team in Olympic history were 17, in the 1928 Games at Los Angeles — also the site of this year's Trials and this year's Games.

With the Soviet-led boycott stripping the 1984 Games of such world track and field powers as the Soviet Union, East Germany, Czechoslovakia, Poland and Cuba, the United States "realistically" has a chance of capturing 19 gold medals in the Games, beginning July 28.

The Americans are anxious to get back into Olympic competition, after having missed the 1980 Moscow Games because of a boycott ordered by then-President Jimmy Carter.

The leader of the American contingent is the ebullient Lewis, considered the finest American track and field athlete since the late Jesse Owens completed during the 1930s.

Lewis, a 22-year-old from Willingboro, N.J., is trying to match the accomplishment of Owens, winner of gold medals in the 100-meter dash, 200-meter dash, 400-meter relay and long jump in the 1936 Olympics.

"In the 200, he is the American record holder at 19.75, the best ever at that level," and is ranked second in the world.

In the long jump, he also has been ranked No. 1 in the world for three straight years, owns the longest jump ever at sea level, 28 feet, 10½ inches — both indoors and outdoors — led a 1-2-3 U.S. sweep at the World Championships, and is unbeaten in 34 straight competitions.

And in the relay, he anchored the U.S. team to a world record 37.88 clocking in the World Championships.

"No one is a failure if he works hard at what he does," Lewis said. "A person is only a failure if he is lazy."

"People expect certain things from certain people. From me, they expect four gold medals."

"I don't believe in 'failing.' I don't worry about that."

"In a certain way, it could be true, but I don't see it that way. I can't relate to it."

Today, he will try and start his Olympic gold medal journey by competing in the first and second rounds of the 100, Sunday, he has the semifinals and the final of the 100.

Then, on Monday, it's the qualifying in the long jump, on Tuesday the long jump final and the first and second rounds of the 200, and next Thursday, the semifinals and the final of the 200.

"He has a lot of pressure on him and it may get to him," said Ron Brown, the only sprinter to beat Lewis at 100 meters last year.

Brown, along with world record holder Calvin Smith, Emmitt King, Mel Lattany and Sam Graddy are expected to vie with Lewis for the three spots on the U.S. team in the 100. Smith and Lattany also are competing in the 200, while Larry Myricks, Mike Conley and Jason Gyrimes are rated Lewis' strongest challengers in the long jump.

"Moses," meanwhile, appears unchallenged in the 400-meter intermediate hurdles.

Only two finals are scheduled Saturday — the women's shot put and the men's 20,000-kilometer walk. The United States never has won an Olympic gold medal in either event, and even with the Soviet Bloc boycott, doesn't figure to win one this year.

NBA sues Clippers over move to L.A.

NEW YORK (AP) — The National Basketball Association said Friday it has filed suit to replace or terminate the San Diego Clippers franchise because the club moved to Los Angeles without league approval.

However, the league said that because of uncertainties created by the ruling in past cases involving the movement of professional sports franchises — the Clippers will be scheduled to play their home games in Los Angeles and "any further steps to terminate the Clippers franchise will await the outcome of the litigation."

NBA spokesman Alex Sachare said that under the suit, filed in U.S. District Court in San Diego, another franchise could be created by the NBA board of governors to replace the Clippers either in San Diego or in another city.

Commissioner David Stern said the suit "also seeks to confirm the NBA's right to evaluate the move under NBA franchise relocation procedures — and to approve or disapprove it after such evaluation."

The NBA is seeking damages of more than $55 million "as a result of the financial impact of the Clippers' move."

"While we regret that the NBA has made a tragic error by suing us, we are delighted that they have made no attempt whatsoever to block the club's relocation," Clippers president Alan Rosenblatt said in Los Angeles Friday. "We are the Los Angeles Clippers. We are here to stay."

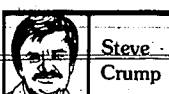

Religion a key in existence of Olympic prospect Jacoby

BOISE — Most athletes wear their religion like most people do, once a week or a couple of times a year. The rest of the time it stays home in the closet, waiting for the big moments.

At 22, Boise State University high jumper Jake Jacoby has had more big moments than most of the rest of us will experience in a lifetime. And he doesn't pause at all when he tells you what goes through his mind when they raise his high jump bar from 7-foot-5 to 7-6.

"The best way I prepare is my Bible," says the 6-6, rail-thin BSU senior avoyn. "I recline over and over in my head. It's made all the difference in the world."

Jacoby, who last month joined University of Idaho's Steve Brown (1987) as the only Big Sky Conference NCAA track champions (both accomplished it in the high jump), is as close to a shot-in-the-arm as the U.S. Olympic team as Idaho is ever likely to produce for the Summer Games. He is easily the third-best male high jumper in the country — there will be two high jumpers representing the United States at the Olympics — and maybe better.

Steve Crump

football player, not a high jumper. A member of the first-ever Idaho Class A state championship team at Borah High School, he had a speed and caught passes that sailed far over the heads of most high school receivers.

He went to Boise State, where his dad Ed Jacoby is the head men's track coach, on a football and track scholarship, and was member of the Bronco team that won the 1980 NCAA Division I-AA national championship. And then after his freshman year, he quit football.

"College football was not what I expected," he said. "There was not enough individuality, and there was always somebody to take your place if you got hurt."

Jacoby, who had jumped 7-0 as a high school senior, progressed slowly but gradually, winning the Big Sky outdoor title in 1983 at 7-3.

Then over the summer, he made some rather drastic technical changes in his jumping style. At the Big Sky indoor championship in Flagstaff, Ariz., last February, he leaped 7-5½. A month later at a meet in Los Angeles, he went 7-6.

"It took a lot of pressure off knowing I could jump that high," he says. "But it made it harder in a way, too, because I was in the position of having to try to equal that every week. I didn't think it was possible for me to go 7-6 at the time I did it but after that I just worked on maintaining a pretty consistent level."

Jacoby won the Big Sky title with a 7-2¼ leap, jumped 7-3 to qualify for the finals at the NCAA championship and then went 7-5¼ to win the national title, beating James Lot of Texas and Brian Tjeltjens of Iowa State on fewer misses.

"Winning the NCAA definitely boosted my confidence for the Olympic trials," he says. "Having a little bit of experience in that type of meet is a big help because it gave me more confidence in my ability to deal with the pressures."

Jacoby's toughest competition at the trials will come from two ex-collegians, Ty Feneck, the American record-holder at 7-7¾, and Jimmy Howard, who has jumped 7-7½ this year.

"I think a 7-6 jump would get me into the Olympics," he says. "Because the competition is two days in a row, it won't take a week record."

To make it in the finals, he figures he'll need a leap of 7-4.

To that end, Jacoby went through his last hard workout on Wednesday.

"At the NCAA, I was a little tired," he says. "I started out before the Big Sky meet (which was held two weeks before the NCAA finals) trying to reach a peak and after a while it takes its toll. I didn't feel real strong, and I'm not sure I could have jumped like that (7-5¼) for two days in a row. This time, I think I've got the timing down to give myself about the right time to recover. I think my dad has done a good job of scheduling my workouts so I get evenly spaced periodization."

For Los Angeles — next week or at the Olympics next month if he gets the chance — Jacoby doesn't know how high he can soar.

"The Lord," he says, "really has had something in store for me."

Ketchum man gets milestone

WYOMING, 1984 (AP) — An expedition of Wyoming and Idaho skiers is claiming one of its members was the first American to ski the 2,000-foot south face of the Artesonraju Peak in the Cordillera Blanca Range in Peru.
 Kim Anderson, Ketchum, successfully completed the ski run in late May, according to a June 1 postcard from Jackson climber Jack Leven.
 Leven, Anderson, Peter Westchard and Doug Green, all of Ketchum, entered the range May 18. On May 27, they put a high bivouac at 17,000 feet. They made an attempt at the 19,582-foot summit May 28, but poor snow conditions stopped them at 19,200 feet, Leven said.
 The Jackson climber said Anderson then skied the face, reportedly becoming the first American to do so. Leven said Patrick Vallencart, a Frenchman, skied the face in 1976.

Father's Day golf tourney

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls Municipal Golf Course will conduct its Father's Day father-son scotchball tournament Sunday morning. Competition is offered in handicap and non-handicap divisions. The competition is open to any father-son team with a minimum team entry fee. Those planning to participate should call the clubhouse by noon today.

Jets extend McNeil's pact

NEW YORK (AP) — The National Football League contract of running back Freeman McNeil has been extended three years through 1986 by the New York Jets.
 A Jets' spokesman, however, would not confirm Friday's New York Daily News report that the new contract is worth $5 million. McNeil, 25, would become the second highest-paid runner in the NFL, according to the story. Walter Payton of the Chicago Bears, who recently signed a lifetime pact with the Bears, is the highest paid.

Cards, Braves pull swap

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The St. Louis Cardinals beefed up their hobbled pitching staff Friday by trading third baseman Ken Oberkell to the Atlanta Braves for left-handed pitcher Ken Dayley and veteran first baseman Mike Jorgensen.
 At the same time, the Cardinals placed left-handed pitcher Dave LaPoint on the 15-day disabled list because of tenderness on his left side and moved right-handed pitcher Bob Forsch from the 15-day to the 21-day disabled list.
 Oberkell, 28, is hitting .309 this year with 11 RBI. He has been St. Louis' regular third baseman for the past five years and started for the 1982 world championship team.
 Prior to this year, Oberkell had a lifetime hitting mark of .291 in 674 games. He signed a two-year contract with the Braves in 1982.

In return, St. Louis picked up the 25-year-old Dayley, who was 4-0 at Richmond in the International League this year after an 0-3 start with Atlanta. The 6-foot, 178-pounder was 5-8 for Atlanta last year with a 4.30 ERA in 104 innings pitched.

Bunge-McEnroe 'match' ?

BIRMINGHAM, England (AP) — London's tabloid Daily Star reported Friday that Swiss-born tennis star Bettina Bunge is John McEnroe's latest love match. But she said there's nothing to it.
 "I've known him a couple of years and we are friends. But we are not close friends," she told reporters in Birmingham after beating American Wendy White to gain the semifinals of the Edgbaston Cup tournament.
 "The picture on the story was mine, but that was the only thing about it that I recognized," the 20-year-old West German said. Bunge currently resides in Coral Gables, Fla.

Murphy leaves player rep job

ATLANTA (AP) — Dale Murphy, the Atlanta Braves' player representative, has stepped down from the post, citing family reasons and schedule conflicts.
 "With the size of my family and the time it would require next year, it just wouldn't be right," said Murphy, who is married and has three sons.

The Braves' center fielder was referring to the expected battle between the baseball players' association and owners when a new basic agreement is negotiated. The current basic agreement, for which the players went on strike during the 1981 season, expires before the 1985 season.

West Germans lead meet

HANOVER, West Germany (AP) — West German athletes led Poland, France and Czechoslovakia Friday after the first day of a quadrangular track and field meet.
 During the first of the two-day competition in cool and windy weather, the West Germans had 115 points, Poland 97, France 91 and Czechoslovakia 85.

Chaotic conditions surrounding Open

MAMARONECK, N.Y. (AP) — There is no intention or ambition, Jack Nicklaus said, to elevate his prestigious Memorial tournament to "major" status.
 "There are four majors," Nicklaus said, referring to the Masters, U.S. and British Opens and the PGA. "That's enough."
 "What we want to do is put on the best tournament in the world, with a good golf course, good facilities and the best organization."
 He paused a moment, and, as an aside, added:
 "On that last point, compared with the majors, that's not too hard to do."

His point has been well-illustrated this week in chaotic conditions that have surrounded the 84th U.S. Open, held at the Winged Foot Golf Club in the northern New York suburbs.
 This event, the principal tournament of the U.S. Golf Association, carries the most prestigious of all the world's myriad golf titles: the American national championship.
 It also provides — in confusion, in monumental traffic jams — a severe test of the temper and nerves of players and spectators alike.
 "The worst tournament I've ever played in," said Peter Oosterhuis, an English veteran who has completed around the world.
 Horror stories abound of leading players — Tom Watson, Hale Irwin among them — being forced to abandon vehicles in traffic and make hurried half-walk, half-run approaches on foot to the clubhouse in order to meet their starting times.
 "It's not very good," Irwin said, "to start the U.S. Open by walking to the clubhouse and arriving in a fury."
 On opening day, Watson left his rented house 2½ hours before his tee time. Like thousands of others, he was caught in gridlock traffic. With his tee time approaching, Watson climbed out of his car and hustled on foot to the course.
 Hours later, as he was leaving, he was flagged down by Andy Bean, who said he had been waiting more than an hour for courtesy-car transportation back to his hotel.
 The traffic, backed up for hours in the few, narrow roads winding through residential areas, was perhaps the worst of it — the most obvious problem to players and spectators.
 But there were others. In the huge press center, housing hundreds of reporters, there were massive communications problems.

Munroe leads Buhl Bs to split with Meridian

BUHL — Mark Munroe threw six innings and drove in the deciding two runs Friday night to help Buhl split an American Legion double-header with the Meridian B team.
 The Indians took the opener 4-3 but then issued 13 walks in the nightcap, helping Meridian to even things up 8-2.
 The teams traded two-run first innings in the opener. Jeff Straw single in two for Meridian and Dave Massie duplicating the effort in the bottom of the frame for Buhl.
 Buhl won it in the fourth when Tom Fleming singled, Darin Strickler lived on an error and Massie walked to load the bases before Munroe came up with a two-run hit.
 Meridian got one back in the sixth and Strickler came on in relief in the seventh when Munroe threw and walked the lead-off hitter. Strickler fanned the first batter and then induced the next two to bounce back weakly to the mound.

 A two-run first inning in the night game kept Buhl even at 2-2 over the first two innings but then the combination of walks and Meridian's eight hits decided the issue.
 Buhl, now 4-7, travels to Jerome at 7 p.m. today to begin league play.

Tarkanian trial continues

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — The NCAA upheld charges against the University of Nevada-Las Vegas and basketball coach Jerry Tarkanian despite having only the recollections of its investigators as evidence, a former university attorney testified Friday.
 K. Michael Leavitt, who was hired by UNLV to answer allegations in 1976, said the NCAA Infractions Committee ruled against the school despite the fact the institution had a preponderance of evidence refuting the charges.
 "We asked why the (NCAA) staff was able to present this recollectible information as opposed to documents," Leavitt said. "They said those were the policies they had and that's the way they did things."
 Leavitt's testimony came at the end of the first week of Tarkanian's district court civil suit — a suit that could have an impact on the NCAA's enforcement procedures. Tarkanian is claiming the NCAA violated due process in demanding he be suspended for two years in 1977 after his UNLV basketball program was slapped with a two-year probation for 38 alleged recruiting violations.
 Tarkanian obtained a court injunction prohibiting the suspension and the case has been snaggled in the courts for seven years while he compiled one of the best records in college basketball.

THE ACES® BOBBY WOLFF

"A prejudiced person will almost certainly claim that he has sufficient warrant for his views." — Gordon W. Allport.

"I played East for the diamond king because of his overall," alibied South after he had lost today's vulnerable game. His reason was no better than his choice of plays led the heart six and East made the extra trick play of the nine to prevent a hold-up play by South. (Had East played a high honor, South would have refused the trick, making it impossible for West to lead a third round of the suit.) South's heart jack won a game was led to dummy's ace and a diamond finesse lost to West's king. Back came a heart to East's queen and the game was out of reach. South had only eight tricks without clubs, and East's club ace and his hearts added up to at least one down.

South was right to play East for either or both of the missing key cards (diamond king and club ace). However, had East held the diamond king, a late successful finesse would have counted as much as an early one. South gives himself an extra chance if he first plays clubs from dummy. If the club ace is held up, allowing South to score a trick with his queen, he can then try the diamond finesse for a possible overtrick.

In today's layout, East's club ace wins and the game is safe. South ducks East's heart-king, wins the third round and cashes the club

ANSWER: Two hearts. Minimum in high cards for a two-over-one bid. However, the fine six-card heart suit plus the value of the spade fit makes two hearts the standout choice.
