Reagan cites win against twin evils

By MERRILL HARTSON AP Labor Writer

WASHINGTON - Civilian unemployment fell to 7.1 percent in June, the lowest since April 1980.

The drop prompted President Reagan to proclaim success Friday in simultaneously combating the twin evils of joblessness and high inflation.

An estimated 460,000 Americans found work last month, the Labor Department said. Stacked on top of 890,000 jobs created the month before, total employment in a two-month span has soared by 1.35 million.

Since the recession hit its low point in late 1982, more than 6.7 million people have gone to work, while the roster of those officially declared as jobless has shrunk from well over 12 million to just above 8 million.

Reagan, appearing before the Texas Bar Association in San Antonio, declared triumphantly that his has been the first administration in two decades "that has reduced both unemployment and inflation in the same period of time."

Records show, however, that the same feat was accomplished from 1975 to 1978, during the administration of Gerald R. Ford.

Labor Secretary Raymond Donovan said "joblessness is now at its lowest level in over four years and well below the (7.5 percent) rate inherited by the Reagan administration. Americans are being put back to work without the pains of inflation."

Ernst, an analyst with Evans Economics, a forecasting firm here, said: "I was definitely surprised by the boom in employment last month. The economy has continued to out-perform virtually all expectations."

Not everyone was pleased, however. The Roosevelt Institute, a private, liberal-oriented group focusing on the special labor market problems of teen-agers, picketed the Labor Department,

Tourism, farming boost local employment

By DOUG WRIGHT Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS - Unemployment in the Magic Valley plunged 7 of a percentage point in June as tourism, agriculture and a positive outlook by consumers increased the number of jobs available, state Department of Unemployment officials announced Friday.

The seasonally adjusted rate for Jerome, Twin Falls and Gooding counties dropped to 6.6 percent in June, slightly lower than the unemployment figures for Idaho, which dropped 3 percentage point to 8.1 percent, said state unemployment expert Janelle Hyer.

Hyer attributed the strong June figures to several factors benefiting the Idaho labor force.

"A lot of the decrease is due to improvements in agriculture and increased construction work in tourism having some impact too," said Hyer.

But she also points to a "real positive outlook by consumers," as a major contributor to the good health of the Idaho economy. "Consumers are out there buying claiming that far too many people remain out of work. Frank Slobig, a spokesman for the group, said he was worried that the plight of those still without jobs "is going to get buried in the rhetoric of the Reagan euphoria about the rising tide that carries the boats. But a lot of people have not yet found the boat."

Slobig was referring to teen-ages unemployment, which stood at 17.6 percent last month, although that was down significantly from 19 percent the previous month.

But the Labor Department report also showed a lot of goods and services and buying them with confidence," she added.

The department reported that 2,230 people remain unemployed in the three-county area, while 34,870 people held jobs in June. This compares with state-wide figures of 26,400 unemployed and 406,900 holding jobs.

Both Magic Valley and state unemployment rates for June registered a big drop over last year's figures. In June of 1983, Magic Valley unemployment was 7.3 percent, while state unemployment registered 7.5 percent.

June is traditionally a good month for the labor force in Idaho with a strong tourism trade and increased agricultural activity increasing job availability, say state officials.

Factors which are considered in the June seasonal adjustment of the unemployment rate for Jerome, Twin Falls and Gooding counties include increased agricultural activity, increased tourism, and the hiring of extra workers by the Forest Service and the Bureau of Land Management, says Hyer.

Another group critical of the administration, the Center on Budget and Policy Priorities, contended that the decline in the jobless rate masked some disturbing trends.

Only 23.2 percent of jobless workers are receiving any unemployment benefits - lowest in the history of the dramatic decline in the rate of joblessness among black teenagers, a segment of the population that has suffered unemployment as high as 56 percent in recent years. The unemployment rate for that group plummeted from 44.1 percent in 1981 to 34.3 percent in June.

Unemployment benefits - lowest in the history of the unemployment insurance program - the center said in analyzing Labor Department figures. At the worst part of the recession, in November 1982, 5.95 million unemployed were receiving no benefits. Last month, the figure climbed to 6.68 million, the center said.

The number of people who have been jobless for more than six months but are still seeking work is 133 percent higher than in April 1980, and the average length of unemployment has risen by almost two months, to 18.6 weeks, the center added.

In Capitol Hill, Rep. Parren J. Mitchell, D-Md., a member of the congressional Joint Economic Committee, asked Commissioner of Labor Statistics Janet L. Norwood: "Did a Smurf invade the computer?"

Mrs. Norwood assured Mitchell that the steep drop was neither a statistical quirk nor a case of a gromlin in the computer.

The 0.4 percentage point drop from May's seasonally adjusted 7.5 percent civilian unemployment rate came as total employment expanded by 460,000 to 105.7 million, the highest on record.

Last month's improvement was shared by all population groups, with black Americans, whose unemployment has been more severe than that of whites; enjoying the largest drop in joblessness.

An alternative unemployment rate, which combines the 113.8 million-member civilian labor force with the 1.7 million members of the armed forces stationed in the United States, fell by a commensurate amount to 7.0 percent.

The Labor Department reported that the ranks of the among the unemployed because they have given up looking for jobs - remained unchanged at 1.3 million in the second quarter. Analysts noted, however, that this total was 500,000 below that recorded at the depth of the recession in the fourth quarter of 1982.

Citizens aim at city pool Call plan grandiose

By DAVID MOFFAT Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS - Organized opposition has surfaced to the city's effort to pass a nearly $2 million bond issue to build an enclosed 50-meter swimming pool adjacent to Twin Falls High School.

At a press conference Friday, members of Idaho Neighbors Network, a community group based in Twin Falls and Burley, announced their opposition to the project, saying they will try to spearhead a coalition to sink it.

The bond would pay the lion's share of $2.7 million first phase of a community recreation center that would ultimately also include a multi-purpose gymnasium. The first phase would include the pool, locker rooms and administrative space.

But the group, which has about 35 members in the Twin Falls area, says the city's plans to enter into the project with the Twin Falls School District are too grandiose.

"The need here is for a city swimming pool affordable to the

Edna Rains, left, Pam Shropshire and Bruce Wenigmann, of the Idaho Neighbors Network announced their opposition to the proposed city pool users and the taxpayers," INN member Pam Shropshire read from a prepared statement at the press conference.

"At this time, we should buy and pay for what we can afford, not something that might become a large financial burden for the city and the school district."

The group says it will hold a public meeting July 12 in the Twin Falls County Judicial Annex to form a coalition to oppose the project.

INN director Bruce Wenigmann says there is a swell of opinion against the project that could be used successfully to defeat the project. He hopes to obtain support for that effort from teachers organizations, PTOs, church groups and senior citizens at the July 12 meeting.

In addition to fears the bond will raise taxes when the community must pay for a number of other needs, the group opposes the project because it will not serve the interests of low and moderate income people, said INN member Edna Rains.

One problem here is the proposed location, Wenigmann says. Building at the high school will primarily benefit affluent residents in the northeast section of the city, he says.

He believes the city should build an outdoor pool at Harmon Park that could eventually be covered when the community has the money to do so.

Responding to points raised by the group, Mayor Emery Petersen said Friday the reason the council scheduled the bond for a vote Aug. 14 is "to find out what people want."

He said he had no idea which way opinion is going at this point. "That's why we have bond elections."

Petersen defended building the pool at the high school on a number of grounds.

First, that site is slightly closer to the demographic center of the city than is Harmon Park. Second, he said by joining with the school district in the project, the city will save taxpayers money by eliminating the duplication of certain facilities such as a second geothermal well.

The proposal favored by INN is similar to that city voters seemed to have approved last November before the city's bond council refused to certify the results of the bond election on account of a procedural error in the running of the election by the city.

Records: Hansen cash flow unusually high

Hansens put $840,000 through bank in month

By The Times-News and Associated Press

GLENN'S FERRY - During a single month in the winter of 1979, 156 checks, totaling nearly $940,000, were written on a Glenn's Ferry personal bank account opened by Rep. George Hansen and his wife, Connie.

The figures, showing deposits of up to $61,000 and check drafts of up to $10,000, are contained in an Idaho State Bank joint-checking account statement of the Hansens which was submitted by federal prosecutors as part of evidence in the congressman's trial in March.

The statement shows the Hansens placed nearly $86,000 in the account in 21 separate deposits - at least one on virtually every working day of the month. Many of the 156 checks written on the accounts were for amounts between $9,000 and $10,000.

Despite the large deposits, keeping the account in the black sometimes required precision timing.

On January 12, 1979, the account briefly fell $14,518 in the red when $125,000 in deposits failed to clear the ledger before a weekend check posting.

Agaiti on Jan. 17, the account was briefly 5,977.26 in the red, before a $39,000 check posted later that same day brought the account back into the black.

Hansen told the Times-News Friday he would not comment on the source of cash infusions into the Glenn's Ferry account, nor on what the money was used for.

He said he wanted his campaign to stay focused on issues, not on the "garbage."

"Your newspaper should get on the issues and off the balcony," Hansen said.

"Hansen said he hadn't even looked at" an Idaho Statesman article published Friday also detailing the Glenn's Ferry transactions.

"As far as I can tell, it was a rehash of some information that appeared in the trial, and a lot of wild speculations. As far as I'm concerned, we have a dirty-up operation by certain elements of the press."

Hansen said such tactics "failed to defeat me in the primary and failed to create problems at Sun Valley (the site of a recent state Republican convention)."

Democratic opponent in the November elections, said people have reacted to the information about the account "with a sense of disgust and disbelief."

"Most people have difficulty comprehending life-time earnings of almost a million dollars," Stallings said.

"People are frustrated and angered to learn that their congressman was able to write checks for $940,000 in a one-month period while going around the nation claiming poverty and persecution."

The Hansen's bank statement was submitted by federal prosecutors seeking to prove that the congressman knew of, participated and benefited from, an $87,000 profit that Connie Hansen realized in three days of trading on the silver commodities market.

Hansen's failure to report the $87,000 on congressional disclosure documents formed one part of an April 2, four-part felony conviction for violations of the Ethics in Government Act of 1979. Following the conviction, Federal District Court

Flow of checks used to buoy personal finances

By RICK SHAUGHNESSY Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS - A bank statement showing 177 transactions involving almost $900,000 in George and Connie Hansen's joint Glenn's Ferry bank account in early 1979 is the latest of several public records that provide a glimpse into the seven-term congressman's financial practices.

Sources familiar with Hansen's financial affairs say the transactions in the Glenn's Ferry account are part of a larger operation that Hansen has used to buoy his personal finances.

According to those sources - who spoke on the basis that they would not be identified - Hansen has used congressional staff members and at least one other individual in Idaho to transfer checks between at least five different bank accounts in the state.

The Hansen operation kited checks drawn on those accounts and added money to the operation through short-term personal loans, the sources say.

A bank kite is the process of issuing checks for a larger amount than the balance in the account, taking advantage of the time interval needed for check collection and the fact that accounts may be credited by a bank as soon as the checks are deposited by the holder, but are charged only when the check is presented for payment.

REP. GEORGE HANSEN Finances questioned again

By maintaining the flow of checks through the system, the kiter can either enjoy the use of an interest-free line of credit or can withdraw cash from the operation.

Jim Ostler, the highest paid member of Hansen's Idaho staff, said in an interview Friday that he may have made bank deposits for Hansen in the past, but he said he would have done so as a personal favor since Hansen is too far removed in his Washington D.C. office to conduct his own Idaho banking affairs.

"We'll just fit in wherever... I do what has to be done," he said.

Ostler explained the large volume of funds that moved through the Glenn's Ferry bank by saying, "when you're a quarter of a million dollars in debt, you have to move some big money."

He added, "George has paid every penny to everybody (he's borrowed from) with full interest."

The monthly statement for Hansen's account at the Idaho State Bank in Glenn's Ferry was entered as evidence in Hansen's recent criminal trial. It shows 177 transactions - 156 checks totaling $839,519.85 and 21 deposits totaling $896,000 - between Jan. 9 and Feb. 6, 1979.

The balance on that account varied from as high as $107,335 to as low as

Reagan to sign sticky immigration bill

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — President Reagan indicated Friday that he will sign the landmark Immigration legislation passed by Congress, but the measure has caused lawmakers such election-year anxiety that one of the bill's sponsors is worried that it may never reach the president's desk.

"This baby is hanging by a thread," said Sen. Alan K. Simpson, R-Wyo., sponsor of the Senate Immigration bill.

The House approved the legislation two weeks ago by five votes. The Senate approved a somewhat different form more than a year ago.

Although the bill's supporters have expressed hope that a conference committee will meet this summer to reconcile the bills, their optimism has waned since the House vote.

"It just isn't a good issue. You offend someone whichever way you go," a Senate aide said. "It's a political hot potato for them."

Reagan, in his most extensive defense of the legislation, called it "fair" and a "legitimate effort to regain control of our borders." He indicated that nothing in either version of the bill will lead to a veto.

Differences between the two versions, he said, "are not very great, and it is reasonably close to what we asked the Congress for." Administration officials have supported the Senate bill, but said portions of the House version would be too costly.

The legislation is designed to stop the flow of illegal immigrants by granting amnesty to many of those here while closing jobs to new illegal aliens by imposing tough fines on employers who hire them.

The bill has been particularly touchy for Democrats, who traditionally have had Hispanic support, and Senate leaders are having difficulty getting Democrats to serve on the conference committee.

House volunteers are numerous, but many want to join the conference committee simply to scuttle the bill or defang it, a position that has riled the bill's sponsors.

Ex-convict guilty of slayings

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A 54-year-old ex-convict was convicted Friday of first-degree murder for two of the "Tralside Slayings" that occurred along forest trails in state parks south of San Francisco.

prosecutor said he would seek the death penalty.

A Superior Court jury also found David Carpenter guilty of special circumstances, making him subject to the death penalty or life in prison without possibility of parole. The Carpenter, who still faces trial for five similar murders in Marin County, showed no emotion as a clerk read the verdict in the 1981 Santa Cruz County murders of Heather Scaggs, 20, of San Jose and Ellen Marie Hansen, 20, of Davis.

The mothers of the two slain women were in court for the verdict and were hugged by jurors afterward.

Mondale winds down search for running mate

NORTH OAKS, Minn. (AP) — Walter F. Mondale wound down his public search for a running mate Friday, interviewing of Kentucky Gov. Martha Layne Collins while from the sidelines rival Gary Hart blasted the selection process as "pandering."

Mondale, the apparent Democratic presidential nominee, responded, "I don't know how else to proceed other than in the deliberate, systematic way that I am proceeding."

He added, "For the first time in history, a nominee is seriously considering people who have been deliberately excluded in the past — women and minorities."

Mondale, meanwhile, praised Mrs. Collins, the seventh person he has interviewed, as "an example of a very successful public leader in our country who happens to be a woman."

However, Mrs. Collins' visit was overshadowed by Hart's long-distance slip at Mondale — and grumbling within the Democratic Party over the attention that has been focused on the No. 2 spot on the ticket.

Hart belittled Mondale's series of interviews with three women, two black men, a Hispanic man and one white man.

Hart said Mondale's meetings reminded him of a movie with "one of everything" in a libelous including a kid who played the harmonica.

Hart said former President Jimmy Carter broke that tradition to symbolize his role as an outsider but Mondale "has followed the example without the reason."

Forest Service losing money

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Forest Service lost more than $80 million on timber sales in 10 western states in 1981 and 1982, the General Accounting Office said Friday.

The forest service, however, made $712 million when revenue from sales out of the big forests of Oregon and Washington state was included, the GAO reported.

The GAO, an auditing arm of Congress, examined all 3,244 timber sales in 12 western states in 1981 and 1982.

Overall, 34 percent of the sales lost money, but when Oregon and

Washington state are excluded, 70 percent lost money in North Dakota, South Dakota, Montana, Idaho, Wyoming, Colorado, Nebraska, Kansas, Utah and Nevada, according to the GAO report.

In those 10 states, 65 percent of 417 sales lost money in 1981, and 80 percent of 333 sales lost money in 1982. The service is not required to recover its costs on every sale and there may well be good reasons for not doing so, the GAO said.

Overall, the Forest Service is supposed to at least recover its costs of

Ex-president's wife placed in hospital

NEW YORK (AP) — Pat Nixon, the 72-year-old former first lady, was being treated for a lung infection Friday at New York Hospital, her husband's office said.

The hospital said she was in satisfactory condition.

John Taylor, a spokesman for former President Richard M. Nixon, said Mrs. Nixon was taken to the hospital Wednesday night from the Nixon home in Saddle River, N.J.

The former first lady was hospitalized in 1976 with viral bronchitis, in 1979 for bronchial pneumonia, in 1980 for a lung infection and in 1983 for a mild stroke.

Modest slide on Wall Street

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market closed its quietest week in almost a year with a modest decline Friday.

Analysts said increased fears of upward pressure on interest rates kept the market on the defensive.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial slips 1.99 to 1,127.57, bringing its loss for the week to 6.83 points.

Volume on the New York Stock Exchange came to 65.65 million shares, against 66.10 million Thursday.

The average daily Big Board volume for the week, which was split by the July 4 holiday on Wednesday, amounted to 67.78 million shares. That was the lowest total since the market set a 66.22 million-share daily pace last Aug. 29-Sept. 2.

On Friday morning, the Labor Department reported that the civilian unemployment rate took an unexpectedly large drop to 7.1 percent in June from 7.5 percent the month before.

While that was positive news for many individuals, analysts said it exacerbated concern among investors that continued strong growth of the economy would exert further upward pressure on interest rates.

Before the employment report was issued, there was already speculation on Wall Street that the Federal Reserve might soon tighten credit conditions in order to try to stave off a resurgence of inflation.

Banking issues were broadly lower, apparently on concern over unconfirmed rumors that the troubled Continental Illinois National Bank had increased its borrowing from the Fed. Continental Illinois Corp. shares dropped 3/4 to 4 1/2. Citicorp fell 1/2 to 29 3/4; Chase Manhattan 1/4 to 36 1/4; Manufacturers Hanover 1/4 to 22 1/4; and J.P. Morgan 1/4 to 60 1/4.

Metals and mining stocks finished mixed, rallying late in the session after some early selling as the price of gold for delivery this month tumbled $1.40 to $345.10 an ounce on the Commodity Exchange in New York.

Asarco dropped 1/4 to 20 1/4 and ASA was down 1/4 at 5 1/4, but Homestake Mining gained 1/4 to 21 1/4, and Sunshine Mining rose 1/4 to 10 1/4.

Transocean Energy led the active list, up 2 1/4 at 53 on top of an 8 1/4-point jump Thursday, when the company disclosed plans to begin making quarterly payments of partnership units in Transco Exploration Partners Ltd.

Transco's move prompted buying of such other natural-gas stocks as Enerser, up 1 1/4 at 21 1/4; Panhandle Eastern, up 2 1/4 at 36 1/4; and American Natural Resources, up 1 1/4 at 29 1/4.

Declining issues outnumbered advances by about 5 to 3 in the daily on the Big Board, and the exchange's composite index lost .27 to 87.90.

Nationwide turnover in NYSE-listed issues, including trades in those stocks on regional exchanges and in the over-the-counter market, totaled 78.81 million shares.

Standard & Poor's index of 400 industrial fell 7 1/4 to 173.27, and S&P's 500-stock composite index was down 52.11 to 2,242.

The NASDAQ composite index for the over-the-counter market dropped 1.11 to 236.72. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index closed at 197.22, down .85.

Grounded Air Florida prime takeover target

MIAMI (AP) — Air Florida, which halted operations after filing for bankruptcy court protection from its creditors, has become a "very attractive" target for a takeover by some other airline, the carrier's founder says.

"The potential for acquiring an extensive international route structure... has to be attractive," said Eli Timoner, who started the Miami-based carrier 12 years ago but is no longer part of its management.

Timoner, now an airline management consultant, in his 1972-73 Air Florida grew from a small commuter carrier to a highly competitive, international airline after deregulation.

But over the years, Air Florida has run into financial problems, accruing about $134 million debt in the last three years alone. It lost $4.8 million in the first quarter of this year.

Air Florida served 26 cities in 13 in the country before it grounded its operations last week and filed for protection from its numerous creditors Tuesday under Chapter 11 of the federal Bankruptcy Act.

In its 1983 financial report, Air Florida noted that its Miami-London route alone accounted for 25 percent of gross revenues that year.

"If another carrier with ambitions for an international route structure acquired Air Florida and, in effect, homogenized it with its own route system, they would have a very valuable addition," Timoner told The Miami News in his Friday edition.

It wouldn't surprise me if they were making plans to attract another airline right now," said Timoner, who stepped down as Air Florida chairman in 1983 after suffering a stroke.

But he added he had "no inside knowledge of what Air Florida plans to do," and had not kept in contact with the new management, now headed by J.R.K. Tinkle.

Russians buy more wheat

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Soviet Union has bought an additional 325,000 metric tons of wheat — about 11.9 million bushels — for delivery this year under a "long-term agreement" that took effect last Oct. 1, the Agriculture Department said Friday.

In the current round of buying that began June 29, the Soviets now have purchased nearly 18 million tons.

The sale was reported to the department by private exporters, as required by law. No prices or other details were disclosed.

However, the department says the latest estimated farm price of wheat is $3.35 per bushel. A metric ton is about 2,205 pounds and is equal to 39.4

Judge Roger Burdick offered views Friday on changing treatment for juvenile offenders.

Troubled youth

Handling offenders may rely more on families

By DAVID MOFFAT
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Treatment of juvenile offenders in Idaho will rely more in coming years on local communities and the family, Jerome Magistrate Judge Roger Burdick told a meeting of the Sawtooth Press Club Friday.

In comments directed at recent changes in Idaho law, Burdick said this has come about both as a result of philosophical changes and funding cutbacks.

But overall it indicates that the theories of the late '60s and '70s that the state should intercede in fixing problems associated with juvenile crime are passing from favor, he said.

The feeling now is that most "status" offenses, those determined by a juvenile's age alone, can be traced to "distinction in the family."

Burdick predicted that in returning to the family as the controlling force in juvenile affairs, however, people would find that families have become "lazy" in their interpersonal relations, relying too much on institutions.

Burdick said the financial pressure for "decentralization" has come from federal budget cuts, which have trimmed the amount available for juvenile programs nationwide, from $125 million to $75 million.

The effects of these cuts trickle down to the state level, where the Idaho Department for Children and Youth is now running at no more than a "sustenance level," he said.

At the same time, recent changes in the Idaho Youth Rehabilitation Act have increased the rights of juveniles and encouraged "diversion" programs to keep kids out of the court system.

The bottom line is that local communities will be left the burden of providing these things, he said.

Burdick said philosophical changes have occurred at both ends of the state Youth Rehabilitation Act.

In the area of "status" offenses the movement has been to keep kids out of jail. It is now mandatory that a juvenile have a felony in his background before he can be sent to the Youth Services Center in St. Anthony, Burdick said.

Pressure to provide alternatives to incarceration has come from federal court rulings, which now say juveniles must be kept out of "sight and sound" of adults.

But one of the most vocal groups opposed to keeping juveniles in county jails has become the Idaho Sheriff's Association, he said, one positive result from the Peterman case, in which a juvenile was killed in the Ada County jail.

At the other end of the law, that of dealing with repeated felony convictions and violent crimes, the move has been "lightening of alternatives," treating juvenile offenders more as adults, he said.

Workers seek raises

Petition poses wage election

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

JEROME — A petition for a special election allowing Jerome county voters to decide on an initiative that would give Jerome County employees a 12 percent pay increase for the coming fiscal year was filed with the county clerk Friday.

Also on Friday, the Jerome County Board of Commissioners released a salary schedule to each county department head. The commissioners' salary plan takes each individual employee into consideration with no over-all percentage increase considered.

Commission Chairman Carl Butler said he could not comment on the initiative petition since he had not seen it. But he said the county's salary schedule will probably not reach the 12 percent increase asked for by the employees and their attorney. Butler said department heads were told they may inform their staff members of the salary increases and make the amounts public. However, commissioners had not met with all department heads by Friday evening and plan to resume sessions on Monday.

One department head said pay increases offered by the county range from $52 to $140 per month. In most cases, the longtime workers whose salaries are higher than the new employees were scheduled to receive the smallest raises. In one department a 11-year employee was given $52 per month and a four-month employee was listed for $105 a month.

Fuller, who is representing the county employees, filed the initiative petition with 20 registered voter signatures asking for the initiative. This is the first step in bringing about the special election.

The petition seeks at least a 12 percent increase, beginning Oct. 1, 1984, for all county employees. However, Fuller stressed Friday, it is not asking for an increase in taxes. Instead, the petition calls for "redirecting expected revenues" during the 1984-85 fiscal year. Fuller said the 12 percent increase would represent a budget item of $82,500 in the coming year.

"What we're doing," Fuller said, "is asking the county commissioners to revise their priorities to give the employees a higher consideration this year."

In taking the question of county salaries to the people, the workers and their attorney also seek a pay

Judge Joyce Hens Green ordered Hansen to pay a $40,000 fine and serve up to 15 months in prison. Hansen has appealed the verdict and sentence.

The $87,000 in silver profits was initially deposited from a Chicago brokerage house to the First Security Bank's Focetello branch, according to trial testimony.

From there, most of the silver profits were transferred by George Hansen into the Glenns Ferry account, according to a stipulated agreement between the Justice Department and Hansen's lawyers.

The Justice Department investigators said that the amount of money in the Hansen account was not relevant to their case; they were concerned only with the account's relationship to the silver transaction.

No information is available as to how long the account was open, whether it is still open, or whether the one-month transactions in it are representative of the account's activity. In 1976, the account balance was listed as $660, according to a 1977 property separation agreement drawn up by the Hansens.

The amount of money deposited into the Glenns Ferry account can not be explained by an examination of Hansen's personal or campaign disclosure documents.

Hansen's congressional salary in 1979 was $8,300, with honoraria that totaled only $2,200. He also had six outstanding bank loans with unpaid balances of more than $10,000.

One of the six loans apparently was the same bank in the amount of $15,000. A 1981 bank document also filed with the federal court lists the loan as unsecured and due in 1982 at 21 percent interest.

The same document lists Hansen's net worth as $246,620 in 1977 and $296,500 in 1980.

Hansen's campaign contributions for the first three months of 1979 were listed at $23,430.

being overruled by $14,518 during the one-month period.

The statement is just one of several public records which have surfaced recently involving Hansen's financial affairs. Others include:

• Testimony in Hansen's criminal trial by his Pocatello accountant, Lee Caldwell, who said Hansen instructed him on Jan. 15, 1979 to write a $125,000 check on a Pocatello account that contained less than $300. The $125,000 was used as margin money to claim a profit of $87,000 on a silver investment made by Connie.

Caldwell testified that Hansen told him a deposit would be made that same day to cover the check. However, it wasn't until Jan. 21, three days later, that a check for the margin money and the profit was wired to Idaho from a Chicago bank. It was deposited in time to keep the $125,000 check from bouncing.

• A separation agreement between Hansen and his wife, notarized Sep. 30, 1977, shows the Hansens maintained nine checking accounts. In Idaho, Virginia and Kansas. The account balances ranged from $100 to $5,122 at the time of the separation, the agreement claims.

• Testimony and a stipulation entered into at Hansen's court trial outline how Hansen, between the summer of 1980 and March, 1982, withdrew at least $138,000 from his Washington D.C. bank account. This red ink was cleared up by a $90,000 loan from a Pocatello bank. That loan was secured by four guarantors. Their names have never been disclosed publicly.

Stray bullet strikes fisherman on lake

HAILLEY — A bullet shot at a dead fish has resulted in misdemeanor charges being filed in Blaine County against a Montana man because of the accidental shooting of a Bellevue man at Magic Reservoir.

The charges of the careless use of a firearm were filed against Donny Wayne Exon, 23, of Townsend, Mont., this week in Halley Fifth District Court.

Exon is accused of firing a pistol at a dead fish in Magic Reservoir on May 27, the bullet of which skipped off the water and hit Christopher P. Terry, who was about one-quarter of a mile away.

Terry was hit in the lower left side of his torso and was transported to Blaine County Medical Center by friends after the incident.

Exon and some friends were fishing near the Moonstone Landing on the west side of Magic Reservoir when they saw the dead fish floating on the water.

Exon went to his automobile, got his pistol and fired four shots at the fish for target practice, according to court documents.

Meanwhile, Terry was fishing just off the boat ramp at Moonstone Landing and was walking back to his car when he heard the shots and a whining sound. He was then hit, walked to a car and went to the hospital.

When friends of Terry's told Exon that Terry had been hit by one of his bullets, Exon drove to Fairfield and turned himself in to the Camas County Sheriff.

'Old-time music' continues as key to fiddlers' success

SHOSHONE — Maunie Shaw's Old Time Fiddler's Jamboree, which will be held Sunday beginning at 10 a.m., is 20 years old.

The annual event, to be held at the Mary L. Gooding Park in Shoshone, first came to Shoshone in 1964, after Shaw had organized the Old-Time Fiddler's Association of Idaho in 1963.

He wanted to observe the state's territorial-centennial and to "preserve fiddle music," he says of his activities.

Shaw held the jamboree at his Corral ranch the first year, but it was so successful he began trying to find a permanent sponsor and a location that could handle the large crowd.

The Shoshone Chamber of Commerce has sponsored the event and Shaw has served as emcee for the past 19 years.

Shaw and Shoshone organizers say the event is not a contest. Shaw describes it as "a celebration of old-time music" and a jam session where all musicians, amateur or professional, who play stringed instruments of all kinds are welcome to participate.

The public is invited to bring a picnic lunch and enjoy the music in the park. There is no charge for the afternoon's entertainment, concession and souvenir booths are set up during the jamboree.

This year's festivities will begin at 10 a.m. at the park's bowery. Organizers say that over the years the jamboree has attracted musicians from around the west and Canada with occasional visitors from further east.

Crowds are usually large, some estimates indicate over 2,000 visitors annually, depending on the weather.

The weather and the music are both forecast to be excellent for Sunday's twelfth performance of the fiddler's jamboree.

All are welcome to come join in the fun.

The schedule of events includes the following: 10:30 a.m., kids parade; 10:45 a.m. — a shoot out; 11 a.m. — the main parade; Noon, fish fry; 1- to 5 p.m., square dance; 6:30 p.m. — parade in style show, firemans beer-barrel contest and beard judging.

Firewood cutting permitted

SOUTH HILLS — Firewood permits will go on sale today at the Diamondfield Jack parking lot.

The permits will be available from the Twin Falls Ranger District on Tuesday and Sundays this summer from 9:30 a.m. to 7 p.m. at the parking lot one mile south of Rock Creek Guard Station in the South Hills.

A government trailer will be set up so woodcutters will not have to stop on the uphill grade to buy permits, says David Sleight of the Forest Service. But the Rock Creek Guard Station will still be open to respond to reports of fire and other emergency situations, he says.

Forest Service employees will be patrolling the area to answer questions and to assure compliance with the permit requirements, including the closure of stock fence gates.

McClure to attend dinner

TWIN FALLS — Sen. James McClure will attend a Twin Falls fund raiser for his campaign Tuesday.

Dubbed the McClures' Magic Valley Roundup, guests will eat chicken, barbecued western style, and listen to western music performed by Rudy Williamson and Edyth Fulmer.

The fund raiser will begin at 6:30 p.m. with the barbecue scheduled for 7 p.m. and McClure expected to make a few remarks at 8 p.m.

It will be held at the home of Dick and Donna Brizee, 208 Hillcrest Dr. For information about donations or to make a reservation, call the Brizees at 733-8189.

Police investigate shooting

RUPERT — The Minidoka County Sheriff's office still is investigating the July 4 shooting of a Paul youth who was setting off fireworks near the Snake River.

The victim was identified Friday as Matt Cofer, no age available. Cofer was reported in satisfactory condition Friday evening at the LDS Hospital in Salt Lake City.

The boy was shot in the mouth at about 11 p.m. while he and three unidentified companions were exploding firecrackers on the river bank about three miles south and two miles east of Rupert, according to a sheriff's report.

The boys reported that the shot came from a vehicle that earlier "charged" them. Cofer was taken to Minidoka Memorial Hospital, later transferred to Banrock County Hospital in Pocatello and then taken to the Utah facility.

Utility helping consumers

BOISE — Idaho Power reports that it has collected just under $22,000 for use in a Salvation Army-administered fund to help company customers unable to pay their electric bills.

This "Project Share" money is contributed by Idaho Power customers who add $1 to their monthly power bill payments.

This year's fund, which is now at its half-way mark, is slightly less than the $24,000 that was in the fund on July 1 of 1983.

Those wishing to help are urged to make the $1 monthly contribution.

BLM seeks panel nominees

SHOSHONE — The Bureau of Land Management's Shoshone District is still seeking nominations to fill three positions on the district's advisory council.

The nominations are needed to fill two vacant council positions in the renewable resource area and one in the general management area. The terms of service are for three-year terms.

Council members advise the BLM on programs and policies affecting public lands within the Shoshone District.

All appointments must be confirmed by Interior Secretary William Clark, after first being approved by Bureau District Manager Charles Hanzler.

The membership on this council is required by federal law to be balanced in terms of points of view and functions performed. For more information, call Jon Idso at 886-2206.

4-way stop altered to 3-way

TWIN FALLS — The city of Twin Falls is changing the traffic control signaling at the corner of Pole Line Road and Washington Street North.

The signaling will be permanently changed from a four-way stop to a three-way stop so that traffic westbound on Pole Line Road will no longer have to stop when turning south onto Washington Street, says Rod Smith, spokesman for the city engineering department.

The intersection is used by trucks detouring around the downtown area, and the change is being made to "keep traffic moving steadily," Mathis says.

Computers to teach class

TWIN FALLS — Computers will be the teacher. In a new Intro to Data Processing Class being offered by the College of Southern Idaho.

The class will meet at 8 a.m. Wednesday in Shields 208 with instructor Marvin Stroppe. That will be the last class meeting. Students will work on their own and at their own pace, receiving instructions from a computer.

It should take about three weeks to complete the course and earn two credits, Stroppe says.

Students can pre-register for the class at the admissions office in the Taylor Administration Building.

Correction

BURLEY — A caption to a photo appearing on the Focus Page of the July 5 issue of the Times-News incorrectly identified the band playing in the picture as the Minidoka High School band. The band pictured was actually the Burley High School band.

The Times-News regrets the error.

Bliss water to be shut off

BLISS — The Bliss city water will be shut off Tuesday from 2 to 4 p.m., says Bliss Councilman Ed Butler.

Butler, who is in charge of waterworks, says the water cutoff is the first stage of the renovation planned for the city waterworks.

Smith and Pump Co. of Jerome will begin replacing the two-inch water main now in use with an eight-inch line.

Butler says the city will continue with water cutoffs at irregular intervals until the work is finished, sometime in the next few months.

Butler advises Bliss residents to watch the Times-News for the dates and times the water will be shut off.

Social Security pay probed

TWIN FALLS — Magic Valley Social Security officials are cracking down on overpayment of benefits.

Jim Fritzy, Social Security district manager, says people likely to be overpaid will be receiving a letter asking if they are making more money than they expected when they last notified Social Security personnel.

People who have been overpaid before, who estimated they would earn less this year than last, or who expect retirement checks for the first time, can expect to be notified. Those who earn over the exempt amount, but still get some benefits and dependents whose benefits ended this year are also targeted.

Enclosed with the letters will be a form to complete and return. For more information call the toll free number 1-800-633-5121 or visit the Twin Falls office.

Scale for all full-time employees that will exceed the minimum monthly wage established by the Federal Poverty Income Guideline as published by the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services.

He said that in requesting this, workers are asking for pay above the poverty level for all employees on an average of a family of three. This will be approximately $705 per month — the minimum that any county employee would be paid. Fuller said there are now 13 percent of the full-time Jerome County employees who are working for less.

The salary paid several county employees qualifies them for food stamps and low income housing, he said.

Fuller said there is also a great inequity in the pay scale for Jerome County employees in regard to the positions they fill.

To demonstrate this, he referred to the Idaho Occupational Wage Survey conducted by the state of Idaho and published last December.

"Of 21 comparable governmental clerical and secretarial positions in the county, 19 of them were paid less than the statewide average wage for that position," he said. "Furthermore these 21 clerks and secretaries were getting an average of $160.75 less per month than the statewide average."

Fuller said the inadequate salaries justify an initiative to insure that employee salaries are finally given a priority in the budget. He said even though the county had a $196,949 surplus to carry over last year, the county commissioners did not give employees any pay raise.

Fuller said apparently Jerome County has never adopted an ordinance providing for initiatives as required by law. In the absence of county ordinances, he said, the state laws are being followed in this case.

The initial petition, which was filed Friday, will be reviewed by Jerome County Clerk Cheryl Watts and approved, if found to be proper with 20 qualified signatures.

Petitions will then be circulated to obtain signatures from registered voters representing 20 percent of the number of persons who voted in the last regular election.

When these petitions are filed with the clerk and the signatures verified, the clerk will certify the petitions and set an election date. The date must be within 90 days of the initial filing (Friday).

Fuller said he would like to see the election held before the November general election, but he added it will depend on how long it takes to obtain signatures and approve the petitions. Fuller said there is also the matter of saving money by having the initiative on the November ballot.

Fuller said Jerome County employees regret having to resort to the initiative process, but they are tired of being overlooked.

Jerome commissioners have made a survey of jobs in the county and have attempted to set a fair salary depending on length of service and responsibility of the position, Butler said. Until Friday, all discussions have been in executive sessions and department heads have been asked to keep salary information confidential.

HOW MUCH DOES A FUNERAL COST?

What a funeral costs depends upon decisions made by the family, and answers to this question that appear in advertising are usually generalized and misleading. The one sure way to find out exactly what you want to know about funeral prices (and what they include) is to visit a funeral home and find out first-hand.

Punished priest now allowed services

JEFF BRADLEY
Associated Press writer

PEKING — Bishop Michael Fu Tieshan, a leader in China's state-approved "patriotic" Catholic Church, grew rich and pruned fruit trees during the country's 1966-1976 Cultural Revolution, when churches were closed and desecrated.

Today, under the government's policy of limited religious tolerance, three Masses a day are celebrated at the bishop's renovated church of St. Mary of the Immaculate Conception— for about 1,700 regular worshippers.

"One good thing about the Communist Party," said Bishop Fu. "When it commits mistakes, it corrects them."

The bishop, recalling his humiliation at the hands of Mao Tse-tung's Red Guards, said, "I was subjected to criticism . . . in this very churchyard . . . and sent to the outskirts to do physical labor for six years."

"I grew rich and pruned fruit trees until they let me come back in 1973."

China's 1982 constitution forbids "foreign domination" of religious groups but guarantees its citizens the right "to believe in, or not to believe in, any religion." The official view is that "religion will ultimately disappear."

For Catholics, that means no links with the Vatican, the jailing of elderly priests loyal to the pope and wardens at the gates of churches.

The bishop estimated that 3 million Chinese belong to 300 "patriotic" Catholic churches. An estimated 3 million other Catholics remain loyal to the Vatican and conduct worship in "house-churches" subject to government suppression.

At least 10 defiant priests are reportedly in jail, including the bishop of Baoding, Peter Joseph Pan, 75, who was convicted last year of "colluding with anti-Chinese foreign forces to jeopardize the security of the motherland." Jesuit priest Francis Zhu Shude, 70, died in a labor camp in Anhui Province last winter, according to Catholic sources in Hong Kong.

Bishop Fu acknowledged that "some believers have different views from the church and refuse to cooperate."

The breach was created by the Roman Catholic Church and until now it hasn't stopped interfering, dividing and sabotaging the Chinese Catholic Church," alleged the 53-year-old bishop, wearing a purple silk clerical bib under a gray suit, with a crucifix around his neck.

The bishop traced the rift with Rome back to the 1930s when the apostolic delegate in Peking warned Catholics against resisting Japanese troops or supporting Mao Tse-tung's Red Army.

After the communists defeated Chiang Kai-shek in 1949, the Vatican's minister in Peking forbade Catholics from backing the new government, warning Mao jockeys or joining the People's Liberation Army, he said.

The Chinese church broke with Rome in 1957, when foreign clergymen departed. The Vatican's service will be held at 10 a.m. and 7:30 p.m. on Tuesday.

Most of China's 40 bishops were subsequently ordained by the patriotic church, while the majority of its 1,000 priests opted to sever ties with Rome.

Other sources of antagonism include the Vatican's diplomatic relations with Taiwan, which Peking considers a breakaway province, and Pope John Paul II's appointment in 1981 of a Jesuit priest as archbishop of Canton, a year after the priest was released from jail for his loyalty to Rome.

The government accused John Paul II of interference in its religious affairs when, during his 11-nation Asian trip this spring, he urged Chinese Catholics to recognize the Vatican's authority.

Asked about reported reconciliation overtures from the pope, the bishop said, "We have had no contact."

Missionaries planted the roots of Christianity in China in the 6th century, and Catholicism took hold, after the Jesuit Matteo Ricci came here in 1583.

Peking's first Catholic church was built in 1650. For 400 years, Bishop Fu said, "Foreign missionaries had control of the church."

Today, visitors to Peking's two Catholic churches — St. Ignace used the second one as a depot for stolen goods and it is now only open on Sunday — are scrutinized closely.

Foreigners have difficulty following the Mass, which has uniquely Chinese elements. Worshippers, led by a promoter in the congregation, chant plainsong in Chinese during and after the Mass. At the altar, the priest says Mass in Latin, a language few Chinese Catholics understand.

Parishioners know hundreds of chants, passed on from generation to generation.

What's what

Q. The people of what national origin are most likely to have red hair?
A. The Celts of Northern Ireland.

SCISSORS

Sixty percent of the female visitors to the penitentiary at San Quentin carried scissors in their handbags years ago. One pair of scissors makes two deadly weapons. Then the In-spectroscope — that sensor device such as the airlines use to screen passengers — was installed. Thereafter, only 10 percent of the female visitors carried scissors. There was a time behind the walls, when most wounds, fatal or otherwise, were inflicted by scissor blades.

Our Chief Prognosticator says Siberia someday will compete with the Yukon in agricultural production. How so? After drillers tap the deep hot-spings, they'll grow bananas up there, just as they do now in Iceland.

A jewelry designer in Providence, R.I., has doubled his sales in recent months by sending gifts of his earring creations to TV stars to wear on "Dynasty," "Love Boat," "Hart to Hart," "Matt Houston," "All My Children" and "Ryan's Hope." Free samples, that did it.

PEKING DOGS

Q. In China's Peking, who is authorized to own a dog?
A. Any foreigner, circus performer, scientist or police officer. Nobody else. It's legal there to drown, electrocute, strangle or club any stray dog that wanders by.

Invitation renewed on weapons talks

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet Union on Friday renewed its invitation to the United States to hold talks on banning space weapons, but said the Americans must first agree to limit the agenda to that issue.

It also said Washington must agree to a moratorium on testing anti-satellite systems.

In an official government statement and a special briefing for foreign reporters, the Kremlin emphasized its rejection of U.S. moves to include a discussion of other nuclear arms issues at a conference the Soviets have said should begin in Vienna, Austria, in September.

The Soviet news agency Tass said the Kremlin leaders were inviting the United States to talks on a treaty banning anti-satellite weapons and other space-based arms, "and not some other talks."

An official spokesman, Vladimir Lomelko of the Foreign Ministry press department, would not say if this meant the invitation would be cancelled if Washington does not agree to an agenda limited to space weapons.

It was not clear if the Soviets were trying to lay the groundwork to blame the United States if the talks don't begin, or were suggesting that Washington, at least publicly, drop its insistence on talking about other nuclear arms issues.

A White House spokesman greeted the renewal of the invitation with enthusiasm.

"This is good news that the Soviets are coming to the talks in Vienna. We have no precondition to our agreement," said presidential spokesman Larry Speakes, on board Air Force One as President Reagan was flying back to Washington from a speech in Texas.

State Department spokesman Alan Romberg declined to comment on the differences in opinion over the agenda for the talks.

There have been high-level diplomatic contacts on the proposed talks, but Lomelko would not say if they had produced any progress.

The Soviet statement reiterated a key element of its invitation — that the space-weapon talks begin with a moratorium on the testing, development and deployment of space weapons.

Nine Sikhs release jet, 255 hostages

LAHORE, Pakistan (AP)—Nine young Sikhs who hijacked an Indian Airlines plane with guns, axes and a phony bomb surrendered unconditionally Friday after holding 255 hostages for 20 hours.

The hijackers were taken into custody by police in Pakistan, where authorities said they would be tried on charges of air piracy.

Indian Airlines said 245 passengers and 10 crew were returned to New Delhi, where a crowd of flower-garlanded relatives cheered and cried as they stepped off a chartered Pakistani DC-10.

As the passengers disembarked, the sons of flight purser D.K. Mehta held up a poster reading, "Welcome, Pakistan."

State-run All India radio said in a conflicting report that 256 people — nine crew members and 247 passengers — had returned from Lahore.

Officials at the U.S. consulate in Lahore said there were 11 Americans aboard the plane.

McClure backs Hansen stand

LEWISTON (AP) — U.S. Sen. James McClure, defending earlier statements, has said Congressman George Hansen should be considered innocent until he has exhausted appeals on his conviction or goes to jail.

Hansen, R-Idaho, was convicted of failing to report $333,978 in loans and other transactions on federal financial disclosure statements. He has been sentenced to up to 15 months in jail and fined $40,000, but is appealing the conviction.

"He gets a presumption of innocence until the end of the legal process," McClure said in Lewiston this week, when asked about his earlier statements that Hansen should be presumed innocent despite his conviction.

McClure said the legal question is determined only at the end of the appeals process, saying the question "is only determined in the trial court as a technical matter, that's why you have an appeal."

Larger wilderness bill posed

BOISE (AP) — Amid continued criticism that their wilderness proposal is inadequate, Sen. James McClure and Congressman Larry Craig say they expect Congress to endorse a plan larger than the 528,000-acre setaside the Idaho Republican delegation has been pushing.

But both GOP lawmakers, who will be touring proposed wilderness areas with Ohio Democratic Rep. John Seiberling for the next several days, said they hoped the final plan will fall below the 1.2 million acres being backed by Gov. John Evans.

"I cannot support millions of acres of wilderness," Craig said.

Democrats: Craig vulnerable

BOISE (AP) — Three men who want to be the Democratic Party's 1st District congressional candidate say incumbent Republican Larry Craig is vulnerable.

And today, the Idaho Democratic Party's Central Committee meets here to elect a replacement for the late Fred Crahan.

The Post-Falls logger was killed in a traffic accident last month, while returning from the Democrats' state convention at Boise.

Party Chairman Mel Morgan said he expected a quick meeting here Saturday to select the replacement.

The three candidates, Bill Heliar and David Potts of Coeur d'Alene and Terry McKay, Kuna, all addressed a gathering of Democrats Friday afternoon.

A fourth northern Idaho resident, Keith Gilbert of Post Falls, declared himself a candidate but did not attend the Friday meeting in Boise.

Schools warned for busing

BOISE (AP) — The Idaho Department of Education is warning several school districts to halt a long-standing practice of transporting private and parochial school students on their buses. But legal research is under way to determine if the practice can be resumed constitutionally.

As many as 200 private or parochial school pupils and possibly more have benefited from the practice, which was declared unconstitutional 13 years ago by the state Supreme Court, according to department spokesman Wayne Phillips.

Aryan Nations lose appeal

COEUR D'ALENE (AP) — The Kootenai County Commission, citing confusion over ownership of the Aryan Nations Church land north of Hayden, has dismissed an appeal by the group to exempt the property from taxation.

However, commissioners said the group can make another appeal after it settles the ownership question.

Attorney Everett Hofmeister appeared Thursday on behalf of the Aryan Nations, saying he represented the Church of Jesus Christ - Christian Inc. That's the same name as Missoula, Mont., man used when he organized a corporation that owns land elsewhere in the county.

BOISE (AP) — Idaho voters apparently will decide in November whether to remove the 4 percent sales tax from groceries.

To a background of singing and cheers, sponsors of an initiative drive turned in more than 40,000 signatures Friday, calling for a vote on a law to end the sales tax on food.

But a leader of the drive, Rev. Nathaniel Pierce of Nampa, said the battle is just begun.

"Two more challenges lie ahead. We must work for a majority vote in November," he said.

And Pierce, rector of Grace Episcopal Church, said the greatest challenge might come if the initiative wins voter approval.

That will be protecting the law from a Legislature which seems to be no longer in touch with the concerns of the average citizen, a Legislature that would appear to be at the beck and call of special interests," Pierce said.

J. Tim Brennan, executive director of the Idaho Retailers' Association, said his organization will meet soon to decide whether it will actively oppose the initiative.

"But I think it's a mistake," Brennan said. "It will have a negative effect on the efficiency of the overall tax structure."

He contended that if sales tax is dropped on groceries, other taxes will have to be raised to make up the difference.

"It's a difficult proposition to argue against," he said.

Idaho Fair Share, the Idaho Hunger Action Council, senior citizen groups and other consumer-oriented organizations launched a summer-long drive for signatures after the 1984 Legislature refused to give serious consideration to repealing the grocery sales tax.

Pierce said some 2,000 volunteers collected 40,850 signatures, about 8,200 more than needed. The signatures already have been verified by county clerks, he said.

The food tax initiative was one of a dozen launched this year.

Alternative needed for juveniles

BOISE (AP) — In a study triggered by the Christopher Peterson slaying in the Ada County Jail, a study committee is urging more "alternative" programs for juvenile offenders.

After a six-month study, the Ada County Juvenile Justice Committee is recommending immediate work on new guidelines on detention of juvenile law-breakers. And it urges new emphasis on programs for the "treatment, training and rehabilitation" of juveniles in non-institutional settings.

Christopher Bray, a Boise attorney who headed the 13-member study committee, and other committee members presented the report to 4th District Court officials this week.

Courts Administrator Grant Yee said work will begin immediately on at least one recommendation. A panel will be set up next week to work on guidelines for the handling of juvenile offenders in Ada County.

Yee said the committee might be ready to make recommendations as early as next month.

The report says if more juvenile offenders are diverted to foster homes, shelter homes, counseling and alternative schools, there will be no need to expand the Ada County Juvenile Detention Center.

The state has a new law, going into effect in one year, which will keep many juveniles from being jailed for offenses which would not be crimes if they were adults, such as possession of tobacco.

Cooper pacing bronc riders

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. — Decla's Kent Cooper continued out the Professional Rodeo Cowboys Association saddle bronc riding standings last week, expanding his lead over second-place Clint Johnson of Sturgis, S.D.

Cooper has won $37,357 this season, compared with $27,548 for Johnson. Butch Small of Dubois is ranked fifth, with earnings of $23,671.

Jerome's Mickey Young moved up a couple of notches in the PRCA bareback standings — to fifth place with $19,945 in earnings. He trails the event leader, Danny Brady of Henderson, Nev., by nearly $17,000.

Rob Jucker of Buhl ranked eighth in the latest PRCA steer wrestling standings with winnings of $15,641. That's less than $8,000 behind the leader, Danny Torricellas of Eugene, Ore.

Caldwell's Dee Pickett is currently third in the PRCA all-around cowboy standings; his highest seeding of the season. Pickett, who with his partner Mike Beers leads the PRCA team roping standings, has won $35,058 this season, $15,787 of it in call roping, where he is ranked 14th.

Neyer, Wyland leading divers

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Megan Neyer and Wendy Wyland, unsuccessful in their first attempts to make the U.S. Olympic team, led 12 women into the platform finals Friday as the United States diving trials continued.

Wyland, the world platform champion, scored 443.34 points to top the field of 19. Wyland, who exchanged the lead with Neyer for most of the eight rounds, took the lead for good on her final dive — a forward, 1/4-somersault with three twists that brought her 68.73 points.

Neyer, the world springboard champ who missed qualifying for the Olympics by placing fourth in that event Thursday night, was second at 432.96.

The finals are scheduled for tonight with all preliminary scores discarded.

OUA won't support boycott

PARIS (AP) — Ethiopian Foreign Minister Gebru Wolde said Friday the Organization of African Unity will take no formal action on efforts to promote an African boycott of the Los Angeles Olympic Games because of the English rugby tour of South Africa.

Ethiopia is current chairman of the OAU which has its headquarters in the Ethiopian capital of Addis Ababa.

In response to a question at a press conference, Wolde said African ministers of sport had passed a resolution recommending that individual states consider a boycott, and "if there is any boycott, it will be by individual states' decisions."

Ethiopia itself has boycotted the Games in support of the stand by the Soviet Union and other East bloc nations.

Dailey up by 2 in Toledo play

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — Dianne Dailey, playing the best 36 holes of her five winless LPGA seasons, shot a 3-under-par 69 Friday to take a two-stroke lead in the new Jamie Far Toledo Classic.

The 34-year-old Kentuckian, never higher than third as a professional, assembled a 36-hole total of 137, 7-under-par for two trips around the Glengarry Country Club course.

Alice Miller, just returning to form after an eye infection lashed her two weeks, surged into second place. Miller, already a winner in 1984, shot a 70 for a 139 total.

Dailey, who shared the first-round lead with Lauri Peterson, took over the lead with three birdies in four holes on the front side of this 6,240-yard layout.

Dailey needed only 11 puts on her front nine. "I was a little nervous and knew the round was going to be all right when I made a five-footer to save par on the first hole. It set the tone for my round," she said.

Dailey credited her experience for her best 36-hole total as a pro. Her best previous start was 69-69 in the Philadelphia stop three years ago.

Soviets give Turner net offer

ATLANTA (AP) — The Soviet Union has given Turner Broadcasting System an offer for cable television coverage of the Communist bloc's alternative Olympics, TBS said.

The Soviet bloc nations, which are boycotting the Olympics because of alleged security flaws, plan to stage the "Friendship Games" in Budapest, Hungary, Aug. 16-30, said Robert Wussler, executive vice president of TBS, which operates the WTBS cable "superstation."

Wussler met Thursday with TBS President Ted Turner, who said no decision had been made.

"I'm quite aware that it would be controversial," Turner said. "That's not always a bad thing."

The Atlanta Constitution quoted sources within TBS as speculating Turner is giving the appearance of seriously considering the Friendship Games offer only to avoid jeopardizing ongoing negotiations on a news-sharing arrangement between Turner's Cable News Network and Soviet and Eastern European television.

Weibring shares Western Open lead

By BOB GREEN
The Associated Press

OAK BROOK, Ill. — D.A. Weibring, who said he came to this event "with only one thing in mind — winning," rolled in a 25-foot birdie putt on the 18th hole and tied T.C. Chen for the second-round lead Friday in the $400,000 Western Open Golf Tournament.

Weibring, whose only previous victory in an eight-year PGA Tour career, came five seasons ago, had a 7-under-par 69 in the mild, windy weather and completed two trips over the Butler National Golf Club course in 137.

Chen, a tour sophomore from Taiwan, matched the best round in the tournament with a 67 and shared the top spot at seven under par at the halfway point.

Australian Greg Norman, a winner last week in Canada and currently the hottest player in the game, birdied his last two holes after, he said, "playing rubbish for 14 holes," and salvaged a 70 that left him at 138, one stroke off the lead.

He was tied with Danny Edwards, one of the first-round leaders, who registered seven birdies on the way to a 71 that also included two balls in the water.

George Burns, with a 68, and Scott Hoch, with a 70, were another stroke back at 139.

Tom Watson, a five-time British Open champion and this year's leading money-winner, used a closing burst to produce a 69 that tied him at 140 with Dave Ogren. Ogren had a 71 on a course that Watson said "played a good two or three shots harder in the wind."

Loren Roberts, who shared the first-round lead, went 10 shots higher to a 77 and was at 144. Defending titleholder Mark Mcumber was 71-142. PGA champion Hal Sutton slipped to a 75 and was at 144, while Masters titleholder Ben Crenshaw was 70-145.

Weibring credited his leading position with a four-day program he underwent last week in Eugene, Ore., "the same thing that Peter went through."

His close friend, Peter Jacobsen, won the Colonial National Invitation Tournament two months ago and said at the time that the program, which emphasizes the mental aspects of golf and physical relaxation, was largely responsible.

"I did the same thing," Weibring said.

All-star managers fill their benches

NEW YORK (AP) — The addition of shortstop Alan Trammell to the American League All-Star team Friday gave the Detroit Tigers six players on the squad for Tuesday's game in San Francisco.

Trammell, a slick-fielding, 308-hitter who finished second behind Baltimore's Cal Ripken in the fan balloting, was among the reserves chosen by AL Manager Joe Altobelli.

Other All-Star members of the Tigers, front-runners in the AL East, are catcher Lance Parrish, second baseman Lou Whitaker and outfielder Chet Lemon — all starters — along with pitchers Jack Morris and Willie Hernandez.

Other AL reserves include rookie first baseman Al Davis of the Seattle Mariners, catcher Dave Engle of the Minnesota Twins, second baseman Damaso Garcia of the Toronto Blue Jays and outfielder-first baseman Don Mattingly of the New York Yankees, all chosen to the All-Star team for the first time.

Completing the AL list of reserves are first baseman Eddle Murray of the Baltimore Orioles and Andre Thornton of the Cleveland Indians, third baseman Buddy Bell of the Texas Rangers, and outfielders Tony Armas and Jim Rice of the Boston Red Sox; Rickey Henderson of the Oakland A's and catcher Jim Sundberg of the Milwaukee Brewers.

National League Manager Paul Owens chose eight reserves who will be making their All-Star debut, including rookie second baseman Juan Samuel of the Philadelphia Phillies.

Other first-time NL All-Stars, picked as reserves, are catchers Bob Brenly of the San Francisco Giants and Jody Davis of the Chicago Cubs, shortstop Rafael Ramirez of the Atlanta Braves, third baseman Tim Lincecum of the Montreal Expos, and outfielders Jerry Mumphrey of the Houston Astros, Mike Marshall of the Los Angeles Dodgers and Chili Davis of the Giants.

The Expos and the Mets dominate the National League by placing four players each on the All-Star team.

In addition to outfielder Tim Lincecum and pitcher Charlie Lea and starting pitcher Gary Carter, first baseman Keith Hernandez joins New York teammates Dwight Gooden, a rookie pitcher, relief pitcher Jesse Orosco and starting outfielder Darryl Strawberry.

Hernandez, Atlanta outfielder Claudell Washington, Pittsburgh Pirates catcher Tony Pena and Raisers are the only NL reserves with previous All-Star experience. Raisers is appearing for the fourth time, Hernandez for the third, and Pena and Washington for the second.
