New York Rep. Ferraro first woman ever on ticket for national office

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG
AP Political Writer

ST. PAUL, Minn. — Walter F. Mondale presented Rep. Geraldine Ferraro of New York on Thursday as his political partner for the White House campaign ahead.

"I looked for the best vice president, and I found her," he said of the first woman ever selected for a national ticket.

"Vice president has such a nice ring to it," said Ms. Ferraro, smiling broadly as Mondale introduced her to a cheering crowd in the chamber of the Minnesota House of Representatives.

"We made history today. We are the future," Mondale said afterwards in a luncheon toast.

Before the cameras, Mondale said he was "delighted" to ask the Democratic National Convention to rally his choice next week, and with Mondale's delegates in a majority, her nomination was as secure as his own.

"The story of her road from the Ferraro home to this moment is really a story of a classic American dream. She's earned her way here today," Mondale said during a session broadcast by the major radio and TV networks.

The woman's issue aside, Ms. Ferraro brings traditional balance to the Mondale ticket. She is a Roman Catholic, the first Italian-American ever nominated for national office, an Easterner with a background as a tough, county prosecutor but also a liberal with an AFL-CIO rating of 93 percent. Her home state, New York, fell to Reagan in 1980, and Mondale needs to take it back in the fall to maximize his chances of success.

Ms. Ferraro, 48 and a third-term congresswoman from Queens, talked of her Italian immigrant father and his love of America. "American history is about doors being opened," she said, "doors of opportunity for everyone."

Her husband, real estate developer John Zaccaro, and one of their three children, Laura, joined Mondale's family at the ceremony in the same place where Mondale launched his own candidacy in February 1983.

Democratic national chairman Charles Manatt said Mondale's choice of a woman running mate could tip the balance in the Democrats' favor in the fall campaign against President Reagan, and women were especially pleased. Even Elizabeth Dole, a member of Reagan's Cabinet, called Ms. Ferraro's selection a "dramatic move."

Mondale's campaign rival Gary Hart praised the choice as a "significant advance for women in American politics," but said it will not deter him from pursuing his own presidential candidacy.

The Rev. Jesse Jackson hailed Ms. Ferraro's selection.

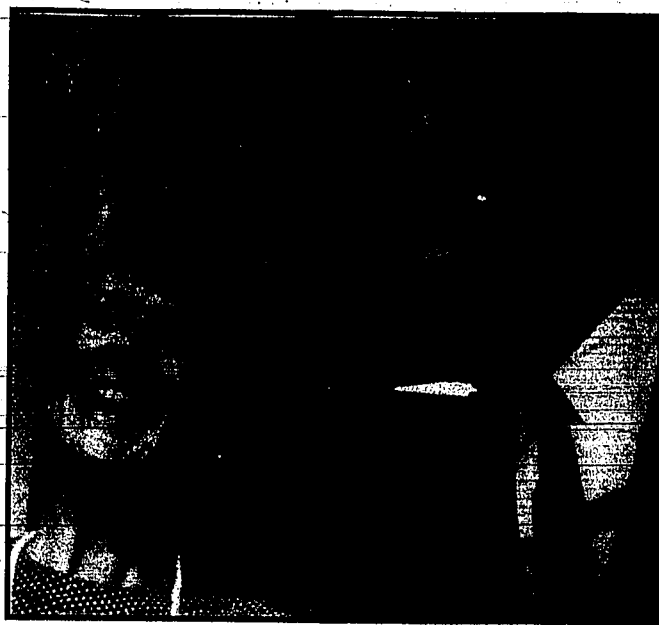

Reagan's campaign spokesman John Buckley provided a taste of the campaign to come. Ms. Ferraro "won't stack up" against Vice President George Bush, he said, citing him as a more experienced and seasoned public leader.

Reagan himself avoided direct comment as he campaigned for the third straight day as an environmentally-minded president, touring Mammoth Cave in Kentucky and addressing the National Campers and Hikers Association. Reporters asked him if he felt Mondale had made a historic decision, and he replied, "Yeah, like appointing Sandra Day O'Connor to the Supreme Court."

Ms. Ferraro used her national debut to take on Reagan.

Voters will have final say about Mondale's major wager

By EVANS WITT
AP Political Writer

SAN FRANCISCO — The usually cautious Walter F. Mondale has laid down the biggest wager of his political life.

He is gambling that the nomination of Geraldine Ferraro as his running mate will energize and attract more voters than it loses.

It is a high-risk strategy designed to upset Ronald Reagan.

For more than a year, feminists have been arguing that naming a woman would

Analysis

"maximize the gender gap," electrify otherwise indifferent voters — particularly women — and give Mondale the boost he needs to overcome what some polls say is now a 19-point Reagan margin.

In the past several months, male establishment politicians — such as House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. and governors Mario Cuomo and Richard Celeste, have also urged a historic choice aimed partly at erasing Mondale's image of a dull, cautious and uninteresting old-line politician.

Generally, academic analysts believe the vice presidential candidate has little impact on voters' decisions outside the nominee's home state. The Democrats are betting otherwise, in 1984 at least.

"There's an electricity in the air, an excitement, a sense of new possibilities and of pride," said Ferraro in St. Paul as she accepted Mondale's invitation.

But such talk comes from instinct, gut feelings and hopes.

With Ferraro come big risks as well. First is the question of "experience" and "qualifications." Then the accusation that Mondale caved in to special interests. And the "loss cannon" threat — no one knows Ferraro's ability under pressure.

Various national polls give mixed signals about the impact of choosing "a woman" — the Democrats seem to pick up some votes and lose some others. In some polls, the gains and the losses are a wash, while in others, a woman seems to make a bit of a contribution. Many analysts argue that a woman would hurt Democrats particularly in the South, where conservative, white males would turn to a more comfortable choice philosophically and vote for Reagan.

Republicans Thursday were rubbing their hands in glee.

They stack Ms. Ferraro's time as a prosecutor and three terms in the U.S. House against George Bush's one term in the House and his brief stints as ambassador to the

Kremlin still waiting

The Washington Post

MOSCOW — The Soviet Union said Thursday night that it has yet to receive a positive U.S. reply to its proposal to negotiate a ban on antisatellite and antiballistic space missile systems.

An editorial in the Communist Party newspaper Pravda, to be published in today's edition, asserted that Reagan administration officials were "creating the impression that they are all but packing their bags to go to Vienna" despite the fact that Washington has not formally agreed to Moscow's proposed agenda for the September negotiations.

The editorial, distributed in advance by the official news agency Tass, said "serious talks are impossible" if it is not clear what precisely the sides are going to discuss and to reach agreement on.

(In Washington, a senior State Department official said a public statement by the Soviets, such as the Pravda editorial, "is designed to give them flexibility" so that if they later decide not to go to Vienna, they have "built a public stage for it." He emphasized that the Reagan administration does not think the public announcements represent a final position but rather that the Kremlin is "still thinking it through.")

(As for the formal exchange of written notes, a White House official earlier this week said that the United States had yet to receive a response through diplomatic channels to its message delivered June 29 to Ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin. The senior official added that the United States has been addressing the proposed Vienna meeting "in diplomatic channels.")

Halting arms technology spread their aim Nuclear foes want new office

WASHINGTON (AP) — Criticizing both the Reagan and Carter administration records on nuclear proliferation, 15 environmental and arms control groups called Thursday for a special White House office to thwart the spread of atomic weapons technology.

Seven congressmen joined in urging creation of a new high-level office to control nuclear proliferation, calling it a "national security problem too long ignored by the American public."

The 15 groups expressed fears that a nuclear conflict between rival nations in the Middle East, for example, "could drag in the superpowers and escalate to all-out nuclear war."

They blamed the increasing potential ability of these countries and terrorist groups to acquire atomic weapons on an erosion in U.S. non-proliferation leadership under both Presidents Reagan and Carter.

The call for a special non-proliferation office in the White House was endorsed by Sens. William Proxmire, D-Wis., Gary Hart, D-Colo., and Alan Cranston, D-Calif., and Reps. Richard Ottinger, D-N.Y., Michael Barnes, D-Md., Howard Wolpe, D-Mich., and Edward Markey, D-Mass.

"We see Carter as having a mixed record, ultimately retreating to a go-slow approach that subordinated long-term non-proliferation objectives to achieve more immediate political goals," said Paul Leventhal, the principal author of a 38-page study calling for the special White House office.

"Reagan," he complained, "chiefly abdicated leadership, turning away from earlier efforts to eliminate atomic bomb materials from civilian nuclear programs in order to avoid friction with other governments and the nuclear industry."

The report contended that more than a dozen countries now or may soon have nuclear weapons. They include the five declared atomic weapons states — the

After-tax income off for some

WASHINGTON (AP) — While President Reagan's tax program boosted the income of most Americans, families headed by women were left with less money to spend, according to a new Census Bureau study of after-tax income in 1982.

"Average household income for Americans rose to $18,910 in 1982, up about 1.7 percent from the year before, the report said. It attributed the increase to federal tax cuts approved in 1981.

But the study also disclosed that, contrary to the experience of most families, income to households headed by women with no husband present fell 3.8 percent in the same period, to $10,870.

One possible reason is that female-headed families are those most likely to be receiving Aid to Families with Dependent Children and other assistance, and cuts in many of these programs occurred in 1981, Charles T. Nelson, the study's co-author, said in a telephone interview.

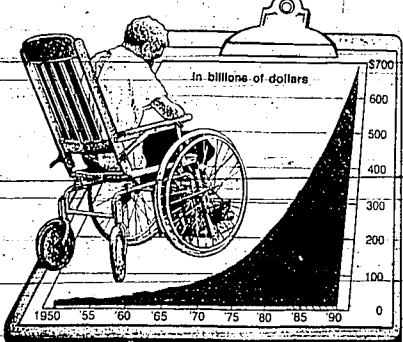

In particular, rules for many of these programs were tightened, making fewer families eligible for the assistance than in prior years.

Nelson pointed out that while cash income for these families declined, many are eligible for non-cash benefits such as food stamps, Medicaid, public housing and school lunches, which are not counted in income statistics.

But Catherine East of the National Women's Political Caucus noted that many of those non-cash benefits also were reduced.

She cited a Congressional Budget Office report that families with incomes of $10,000 or less lost money under the administration tax program, while those with higher incomes gained.

The rising cost of U.S. health care

Chicago Tribune Graphic by Kevin Boyd. Source: U.S. Department of Health and Human Services

Rising costs at hospitals may see ailing turned away

CHICAGO (AP) — The rise in health care costs may force the nation's major teaching hospitals to turn away the hopeless, ill and may prompt physicians to discontinue life-support for some patients to save money, researchers report.

The nation's large university teaching hospitals may be delivering "a technically excellent but financially unrealistic product" in competition with community hospitals, according to a report by Dr. Steven A. Schroeder of the University of California at San Francisco in today's issue of the Journal of the American Medical Association.

And in a separate commentary in the journal, Dr. Dana E. Johnson of the University of Minnesota argued that cost considerations are changing the role of the physician and may be playing an increasing role in medical decisions.

In the past, doctors acted as chief advocates for continuing life support for their sickest patients, Johnson said. But recent changes in health care financing have made some doctors employees of the organizations paying the medical bills, giving them incentive to cut costs, he said.

"Decisions may now be subtly tipped in favor of discontinuing life support on the basis of financial considerations," he said.

With this trend, "the white coat of the physician and the pin-striped suit of the comptroller may become indistinguishable," he said.

One way to cut hospital costs is to ration services, including turning away the critically ill to save on expensive life-sustaining care, both doctors said.

What patient groups will be the first victims of this burden of cost containment? Johnson wrote. "The same groups that are now most vulnerable — the handicapped, the retarded, the chronically ill, and the poor."

On the other hand, Schroeder said, society could simply accept that university hospitals will cost more because of greater teaching load and intensity of care, and maintain them as important resources in the U.S. health care system. The average cost per day of U.S. hospitals has nearly doubled since 1979, according to the American Hospital Association which surveys 2,000 hospitals a month. In the first quarter of 1979, it cost an average of $211.99 to stay in a hospital, said Dave Dolkart, manager of health economics for the association in Chicago. By the first quarter of 1984, a day in a hospital cost $409.85, he said.

The rate of increase in total hospital expenses slowed from 15.8 percent in 1982 to 10.2 percent in 1983.

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP) - Juvenile crime is on the wane, but a small number of juveniles are chronic offenders who belong in adult courts, according to a national report released here Thursday.

The report by the National Council of Juvenile and Family Court Judges says juveniles' involvement in crime - particularly property crime - is declining.

Cling FBI Uniform Crime Reports, the council said 24 percent of all serious property crimes in 1982 were cleared by the arrest of juveniles, compared with 43 percent in 1964.

Anti-Moral Majority protest erupts into clash with police

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) - Nearly 2,000 people, some throwing rocks, bottles and firecrackers, jammed Union Square Thursday in a confrontation with police that followed a protest against Jerry Falwell's Moral Majority.

At least eight people were arrested. "We don't know how many are demonstrators and how many are spectators," said Capt. Richard Slopely, in charge of police tactical units.

Later, six people were arrested after protesters dragged garbage cans into the street and blocked an intersection, said Deputy Chief George Emil. One police officer suffered minor injuries during the demonstration.

Blocking traffic, police issued a declaration of unlawful assembly, warning the demonstrators to retreat into the city's fashionable square.

Nearly 100 police were in full riot gear, including 17 mounted patrolmen whose horses were nearly nose-to-nose with protesters who shouted insults at police. Some tossed firecrackers in the crowded square.

Union Square, already disrupted by picket lines of striking Macy's Department Store clerks, was the site for at least three separate groups demonstrating against Falwell's Family Forum III conference in a hotel on the square.

Earlier Thursday, Falwell decried the spread of homosexuality, but said he didn't bring his two-day meeting to San Francisco to confront the city's gay community, estimated at 15 percent of the city's 705,000 residents.

"We came here because the Democratic leadership chose San Francisco as the place for their convention," he said. The convention begins Monday.

Phyllis Schlafly, a conservative opponent of the Equal Rights Amendment, lashed out at the concept of comparable worth for women and criticized Rep. Geraldine Ferraro as an "advocate of the radical feminist movement."

Her comments came about an hour before Walter Mondale, the likely Democratic nominee for president, officially chose the New York City Democrat for his running mate.

Outside, police erected barricades for about 25 protesters. The gathering chanted, "Two, four, six, eight, Jerry Falwell do us hate," and, "The Moral Majority equals death for women."

Nearby stood two bearded Falwell followers, one carrying a large banner depicting a cross, flames and the words, "Jesus Saves Sinners From Hell."

"Repeat, ye women libbers," the chanting crowd of the men as the declaration continued. "We love Jerry Falwell."

Falwell said that the 1960s and 1970s were the "dark ages of the 20th century."

United Nations and to China, chairman of the Republican National Committee and head of the Central Intelligence Agency.

But Mondale and feminists argue that women have been locked out of the (traditional career path in politics and can't be expected to have equal credentials - even if they would be equally good at the job.

The GOP is certain to attack Mondale for "veering into the special interests," particularly the National Organization for Women and other feminist groups. NOW, which endorsed Mondale, had threatened a revolt on the convention floor if Mondale picked an unacceptable man as his running mate.

Phyllis Schlafly, the leading anti-feminist woman, has already chimed in with her attack, calling Ms. Ferraro an "advocate of the radical feminist movement."

And there is the "loose-cannon problem" - even Ms. Ferraro's backers admit privately that she lacks the seasoning to deal with the glare of attention that is focused on a national political figure, that her answers are often not completely thought out.

She suggested that support for the proposed Equal Rights Amendment would not specifically be in the Democratic platform. After a four-hour controversy, she backed down and the ERA is in there, word-for-word.

She said flatly Wednesday in answer to a question that the United States would commit troops in battle in the Persian Gulf, if U.S. interests were involved. Mondale, in contrast, has a carefully hedged position on that topic.

And at the North Oaks, Minn., news conference after her talk with Mondale on July 2, Ms. Ferraro ignored Mondale's repeated comments that he was looking for the best person for the job and flatly said the choice should be made on the basis of who could bring the most votes to the ticket.

Now, Mondale has put down his own. The voters will decide in November what kind of hand he has drawn.

United States, the Soviet Union, Great Britain, France and China - and India, which demonstrated a "peaceful" nuclear device indistinguishable from a bomb in 1974.

"It is generally acknowledged that Israel and South Africa have secretly developed nuclear weapons capability without any announced test explosions," the study said. "At least seven other nations are believed to be actively seeking, or to have once sought, to build or acquire nuclear weapons."

Those seven countries were listed as Argentina, Brazil, Pakistan, Iraq, Libya, South Korea and Taiwan, although the final four have signed the 1970 121-nation Nuclear Non-Proliferation Treaty pledging not to seek atomic weapons.

Reagan is criticized in the study for:
* Approving nuclear sales to India, Argentina and South Africa, all of which have refused to sign the Non-Proliferation Treaty.

* Reducing research efforts aimed at cutting the use of weapons-grade highly enriched uranium in university and foreign research reactors.

The 30-page study - faulted Carter for:
* Allowing Japan, France and West Germany to "stone-wall" U.S. efforts to abandon reprocessing and breeder reactor technologies utilizing plutonium potentially capable for use in weapons.

* Granting every request from foreign governments to reprocess U.S.-supplied uranium fuel into plutonium.

Idaho delegates had advocated Ferraro

By The Associated Press

BOISE — The majority of Idaho's Democratic national convention delegation has gotten exactly what they wanted from former Vice President Walter Mondale — a woman running male named Geraldine Ferraro.

State Democratic Chairman Mel Morgan and former Gov. Cecil Andrus had been pushing the selection of a woman since state party leaders named the delegates to the nominating convention last month.

Andrus personally urged Mondale to pick a woman, and Morgan has been extremely high on Ms. Ferraro since the name of the New York congresswoman first surfaced weeks ago as a potential vice presidential nominee.

In all, a dozen of the state's 22 delegates called for Ms. Ferraro's selection long before Mondale announced his choice Thursday.

"He needs a woman to win," said Charlotte Presnell, a Mondale delegate from Boise. "I think she's the most qualified. She will add some excitement to his campaign."

The party's opposition in the form of state Republican Chairman Dennis Olsen of Idaho Falls took the announcement as an opportunity to accuse Mondale of catering to special-interest groups, specifically the National Organization for Women (NOW).

"It appears Mr. Mondale has been pressured into what probably was not what he would like to do, and I question whether the selection was made on the basis of qualification rather than political pressure," Olsen said.

"The real issue is picking a vice president that has the credentials to be president, and I'm not sure Ms. Ferraro has them," he said.

Although Ms. Ferraro was the favorite in the Idaho Democratic delegation that is pledging all-out support for the ticket it will help nominate next week, Gov. John Evans and a significant minority among the delegates had hoped that Mondale's chief rival for the nomination, Colorado Sen. Gary Hart, would take the second spot on the slate.

In what he called an uphill battle to defeat President Reagan this fall, Evans said Hart would have significantly strengthened Mondale's vote-getting power in the West.

But Andrus, who headed Mondale's Idaho campaign, said a woman with the clout Ms. Ferraro has as a member of Congress will draw new voters into the Democratic Party and spur election interest among women and minorities.

Ferraro from 'Bunker' land

NEW YORK (AP) — The Queens congressional district of Geraldine Ferraro, Walter Mondale's choice for his running mate, is Archie Bunker country, a mostly white, conservative and middle-class part of a city known best for political, social and economic extremes.

"Archie" (Bunker's) views, as modified over the years, are a fairly accurate, if stylized, portrayal of attitudes that are often, though not always, shared in this district," reports the 1984 edition of The Almanac of American Politics.

"She's a tough lady," said Bill Yell, 41, who cited Ms. Ferraro's attempts to secure federal funds to improve Queens' many roads.

Husband of VP choice backs her all the way

NEW YORK (AP) — John Zaccaro, Geraldine Ferraro's husband, says he doesn't mind when people call him "Mr. Ferraro," but his wife does.

"She gets upset," he said of the woman Walter Mondale chose Thursday to be the Democratic Party's vice presidential nominee. "I get a kick out of it."

Zaccaro, a Manhattan real estate broker, and Ms. Ferraro, a former grade school teacher, were married July 16, 1960, just days after she passed the New York state bar exam.

From the beginning she kept her maiden name — not to spare her husband the political limelight but because she wanted to honor her widowed mother, Antonia, who had raised her alone since she was 8.

Zaccaro, who inherited his family's commercial real estate business in Lower Manhattan, said his first year-in-the-business was rough because all his deals were failures. "I was a flop. It was embarrassing." But eventually Zaccaro began buying property in Greenwich Village, SoHo and Chinatown and managing rental properties for others. His fortunes improved.

Once his wife became a member of Congress in 1978, Zaccaro said, he stopped taking sales her district, the 9th, because "otherwise she may be criticized."

"My main business is with the Chinese," Zaccaro told The New York Times in 1980. "Thank God for them."

While Zaccaro built his real estate enterprise, Ms. Ferraro raised their three children, worked part-time in her husband's office and helped her cousin, Nicholas Ferraro, during his various political campaigns.

Nicholas Ferraro, who recently resigned his post as state Supreme Court justice to return to a private law practice, gave her her first political job in 1974 as an assistant district attorney while he was district attorney of Queens.

Zaccaro said that at first he was hesitant about his wife's political aspirations. "I was really dominating then, but I've changed a lot," he said.

John Zaccaro gives his spotlighted wife a hug.

Ferraro biography depicts successful career

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Geraldine Anne Ferraro soon will be the first woman ever to face the nation's voters as the vice presidential nominee of a major party. Here are a few facts about the congresswoman.

Born Aug. 26, 1935 in Newburgh, N.Y., the daughter of Italian immigrants. She is 48.

Educated at Marymount School and graduated from Marymount Manhattan College in 1956 with a B.A. Received law degree from Fordham University Law School, 1960.

- Professional career: Second- and fourth-grade teacher in the New York City Schools, 1956-60; private law practice 1961-1974; and Queens assistant district attorney 1974-78, specializing in prosecution of cases of child abuse, domestic violence, rape and crimes against the elderly.
- Political career: First elected from New York's Ninth District in 1978 to succeed Rep. James Delaney, a Democrat who retired. Won 51 percent of the vote in the Queens district. Re-elected in 1980 with 58 percent of the vote and in 1982 with 73 percent of the vote.

- House committees: Budget, Public Works and Transportation, Select Committee on Aging.
- Party leadership positions: Floored secretary of the House Democratic Caucus in 1981. Chairman of the Democratic Platform Committee, 1984.
- Roman Catholic.
- Married to John Zaccaro, now a successful real estate developer, in 1960.

- Kept her maiden name.
- Three children: Donna, 22; John Jr., 20; Laura, 18.

Mondale's bold step leaves big question

The selection of Rep. Geraldine Ferraro of New York as Walter Mondale's running mate has broken new political ground, but we suspect most voters will be impressed for all of five minutes before getting to the critical question:
Is she qualified to be president of the United States?
On that score, the decision is not yet in. Ferraro, in the next week, has an opportunity to impress the American people with her ideas and leadership style.
As chairman of the Democratic platform committee, she would have been a visible figure at the convention anyway; her selection assures even more close scrutiny, particularly of her largely-unknown voting record.
On the surface, Ferraro looks at least as qualified as such previous vice presidential timber as Spiro Agnew, William Miller and Sargent Shriver (a buck says you can't pick the year and running mate of all three). But that's not saying a whole lot.
The fact is that vice-presidential candidates are often plucked from relative obscurity for ticket-balancing reasons. That appears to be what Mondale has done here. Ferraro represents an urban, "Archie Bunker," Democratic district near New York City. She is Italian and Catholic.

How all of that will play in places like Anniston, Alabama or Twin Falls, Idaho, is uncertain. But in the selection of Ferraro, Mondale appears to be going for the maximum vote in the Eastern states, hoping to overwhelm Reagan there.
It is a bold strategy, but one with at least as much potential for failure as for success. Mondale could easily find that by conceding the South and much of the West, he's conceding the election.
Another pitfall is the backlash vote to a woman candidate. It is virtually impossible to measure, but we suspect there are at least as many voters who will vote against Ferraro because she is female as will vote for her.

And the link of the Ferraro selection to pressure, perceived or imagined, from the National Organization of Women isn't going to help in much of middle America, where Reagan is strongest and where Mondale has to do well to live.
But the most serious point is whether Ferraro is qualified to be president. On the surface, her experience seems to have been limited to three terms in the House and a stint as a local assistant district attorney. That's not much to show. It is particularly weak compared to the qualifications of George Bush, who has held positions as Ambassador to China and director of the Central Intelligence Agency.

Ticket balancing is fine, and Mondale has taken a bold, if risky, step in selecting Ferraro.
Now the burden is on the Democratic candidates to show that the choice goes beyond tokenism and rhetoric, and for Mondale to demonstrate that he doesn't cave into various interest groups which, in this case, appear to have pushed a candidate at him with perhaps little more than mediocre qualifications.

Despite feelings, dinner bid unlikely

I was taken aback last week when another employee in this newsroom confronted me, questioning and criticizing this newspaper's coverage of the legal and financial problems of Rep. George Hansen.
If you are not familiar with Hansen and his situation, he's a self-proclaimed champion of the little man, a seven-term member of Congress, and possessor of one of the House's most conservative voting records.
He is also a convicted felon for having failed to list personal income in loans on financial disclosure forms required of all members of Congress.
Further inquiries suggest, however, that Hansen's legal and financial problems are not limited to failing to fill out federal forms properly.
According to sources familiar with Hansen's financial operations — including but not limited to bankers, accountants and creditors — the Congressman has conducted a complex check-killing and personal borrowing scheme strongly suggestive of fraud.
He has dominated newspaper headlines and news broadcasts throughout southern Idaho since his trial in March. He claims the publicity surrounding his problems and inquiries into his financial dealings are a "dirty-up operation." Many of his supporters agree, including my colleague in the newsroom.
So I confronted this person under whose attack I had fallen. "Do you disbelieve these things we've published about Hansen?" I asked.

Rick Shaughnessy

She said she wasn't sure whether she believed the allegations of further improprieties that are now surfacing on a regular basis.
But she did say the more adverse publicity Hansen receives, the stronger her support for the embattled Congressman becomes.
"You must really hate him," she said.
"No," I answered. "In fact, I really like George. He's an amiable fellow who seems to have maintained his composure and his sense of humor despite the plethora of problems that have confronted him."
"I don't believe you," she said. "Besides, do you think he likes you?"
Well, I thought: I've tried to keep the lines of communication open with Hansen. He loves to bluster "the press" with stinging rebukes before his loyal audiences, but he also appears to enjoy the political mileage he gets from his anti-press tirades.
And, he did give me a "Hansen Hard Core" T-shirt. So I answered: "Yes, I think George Hansen likes me."

An editor who was passing by at the time, told me to stop before my nose started getting long. All right, I conceded, George may not like me, but he's still a nice guy.
To reporters, Hansen has been the most accessible of the area's three-member Congressional delegation. And on more than one occasion, his office has proven to have the most up-to-date information on issues of strong public interest.
Following the bombing of the U.S. Marine barracks in Lebanon last year, for example, Hansen was the first to release the names of the two Idahoans who died in the blast.
I tried to explain how I appreciated Hansen for these things when I spoke to his wife, Connie, earlier this week. Still, it was nonetheless one of the most unpleasant telephone conversations of my life.
I can now say, with a strong degree of certainty, that I won't be invited to dinner at the Hansen's in the near future.
She also advised me that the more adverse publicity her husband receives, the better he will do in November. She may well be correct, despite assessments from all corners of the district that support for Hansen has eroded.

They remembered George at the bar

WASHINGTON — They were talking about George Hansen at the bar of the Monocle the other night while up the street in the Capitol, a Senate-House conference committee was beating its brains out over the bankruptcy act.
A later lobbyist in need of something strong and potable had declared his own personal recess from the bloody legislative struggles and was enjoying his Miller time and remembering George V. (for victory according to George's admirers) Hansen.
He was remembering George with gratitude and affection though George is the rightest of right-wing Republicans.
George is still alive but the past tense is used around the Monocle for the politically dead as well as for the pathologically delirious.
George, you see, is the congressman from the 2nd Congressional District in Idaho, and has just been sentenced to serve five to 15 months in the federal pen and to pay a $10,000 fine for failing to put down on his financial disclosure forms a number of large loans, two of which came from Bunker Hunt, the famous Texas billionaire.
The Justice Department made it look like the money was for a bribe. That's a laugh. You'd have to be out of your mind to bribe George, the lobbyist was saying.
The only way George can help you is to be against you, which is why the lobbyist has a soft spot in the seat of his affections for this unique Congressman who, during the height of the Iranian hostage crisis, took off on his own private rescue mission to Teheran. George, as they like to tell you, is a piece of work.

Nicholas Von Hoffman

For years the conservative element in Congress had been trying to whack away at a dusty law called the Davis-Bacon Act, the gist of which is that it gives high wages to union workers on government construction projects.
After much work they thought they had lined up enough votes in the House Banking Committee to give the AFL-CIO a fearful clout with a brand new amendment.
Enter George. He heard about the amendment and thought it was such a good idea he jumped on it, and introduced it on his own.
Well, so great is George's reputation as Congress' Crusader Rabbit, half the conservative coalition bolted and went with the liberals' best bet — the amendment was defeated.
As the lobbyist raised a glass the other politicians at the bar reflected on the general opinion that George Hansen, the only congressman to be prosecuted for this grievous offense, is an honest man. It is not as though he has stolen anything or had failed to fill out his income tax properly. He simply had not filled out his disclosure forms for all sorts of reasons of principle; he had even told the House Finance Committee he was not going to fill out his forms.
People like George have complicated, incomprehensible reasons for doing things and fighting fights the rest of us go along with. We lack Crusader Rabbit's moral energy.

It was moral energy or an excess of some kind of uprightiness that got George in trouble this time. (George was convicted once before on a failure to file an election report properly. On that one the offense was so patently non-self-serving the judge said George was too "stupid" to be a crook and let him off.)
This time George brought himself to the attention of the FBI, an organ of government that George had been irking with his right-wing criticisms for years. A blackmailer sent Bunker Hunt a letter demanding a large sum of money in return for keeping the loans to George's wife quiet. What Hunt wanted to know, did George want to do about the threat to go to the FBI. George said, and took the case to them himself. That's how the Justice Department found out about the loans. It was through George himself.
In the end the blackmailer was caught and plea bargained to keep himself out of jail. George thinks the blackmailer got off because he was in cahoots with the FBI to get Bunker Hunt.
We think we saw a kind of Gill-and-run accident victim of a sting operation. George said, meaning that, failing to get billionaire Bunker, the authorities took what was there to be had and nailed the lesser gaffly on a technicality.
"A very technical violation," a "malum prohibitum," a minor infraction is what Rep. Tom Foley, the respected Democratic Whip, called the act. Ah, poor George, everybody thinks he's an honest man who got the business, but in politics you don't have to do the crime to do the time.

Letters/Long wait for driver's license brings call for a re-take of photograph

His explanation elusive
I don't believe it! But then again, maybe I do. After waiting 3 1/2 months, or to be exact 108 days, for my new Idaho driver's license, I received a letter on June 22, dated June 12, from the Transportation Department of Motor Vehicles, Bureau of Driver Services stating that the photograph taken for my driver's license must be taken because "photograph damaged in processing."
The letter further stated that I had 60 days in which to have my driver's license reprocessed at no additional cost to me. However, after 60 days I would be required to apply for a duplicate at a cost of $3.00.
Sheesh, talk about fleeing the sheep! They make a "mistake" on my driver's license and then threaten to penalize me if I don't get another mug shot within 60 days; if I were to forget about getting the retake until the 60th day, then had to wait another 3 1/2 months for the license to arrive, that would mean a grand total of 273 days, or 9 months, from the day I originally applied for my license. Nine months! Almost unbelievable.
When state employees complain that they are underpaid, I for one can understand why. In the meantime, I am trying to think of a good story to tell the traffic officer who asks why I haven't "renewed" my "expired" driver's license.

Wilderness measure worst
I praise William Turnage for criticizing Sen. James McClure's wilderness bill. I feel it is the worst bill in American history.
I feel these lands belong to America and not McClure.
I've worked for the U.S. Forest Service a few years ago and I enjoyed it. I enjoyed the beautiful mountains, lakes, rivers and great wilderness country. Idaho has the most beautiful wilderness in the United States.
I've enjoyed working in the Forest Service, planting trees and caring for the forest. I've enjoyed the drive in the wilderness.
I can't understand why McClure would bring destruction to the state's wilderness. Idaho serves as a showcase for America.
I feel more true Idahoans should fight the wilderness bill and not let an Ohioan run the show. I feel Idaho is proud of its magnificent beauty.

Resolution slaps owners
I would appreciate the opportunity to comment upon the recent resolution passed by the Minidoka County Board of Equalization cancelling doubled assessments on personal property.
State law directs the assessor, when receiving no personal property listing from the taxpayer, to value the property

"according to his best information and judgement." The list itself constituted the "best information," and we judged that unreported personal property this year was worth twice as much as last. Though perhaps poor judgement, there were three purposes for doubling assessments of unreported personal property.
The first reason was to make the property owner aware that an annual declaration is required by law. The second reason was to rectify the previous situation wherein the taxpayer who honestly complies with the law is subsidizing the individual who fails to report. The third reason was to demonstrate to the public the fact that personal property laws are inequitable and unjust and should be repealed or amended. At no time was there any wish to collect taxes on personal property at twice its market value.
In some quarters, the doubling of assessments has been mistakenly interpreted as relating to a statute concerning the subsequent assessment of personal property which is discovered to have been willfully concealed to avoid taxation (I.C. 63-207). The truth of the matter is, "judgement" was the basis for the doubling of certain assessments; at no time was an attempt made to prove a property owner guilty of willful concealment of personal property to avoid taxation. Thus, the double assessment could be corrected when the taxpayer did file a proper list with the assessor or with the Board of Equalization.

However, all this is relatively unimportant; what does matter is that the recent resolution is a slap in the face to those property owners who did conscientiously complete and return the declaration as required by law. In effect, over three hundred property owners who failed to comply with the law (albeit a bad law) will be assessed according to lists filed in previous years which may be outdated or incomplete, or in some cases, no list at all. Once again these individuals' tax bills will be subsidized by the taxpayer who complies with the law, but this inequity has been deemed necessary "for the equalization of the personal property roll."

New guidelines dangerous
Do you remember why the post-Watergate reforms (limits on the FBI and the CIA; strengthening of the Freedom of Information Act; oversight congressional committees) were created by the administrations of Presidents Ford and Carter?
It is so easy to forget!
In the 1950s, the U.S. government developed lists of "subversive organizations" and harassed individuals, destroying careers, reputations and lives.

In the 1960s, rights of privacy of anti-war activists were violated by unauthorized wiretaps, illegal late night searches, and "enemies lists."
These were the reasons for the post-Watergate reforms supported by President Ford and by President Carter to protect us from paranoia... from irrational suspicion.
Now, in the 1980s, according to the June newsletter of the ACLU, President Reagan has enacted an executive order which for the first time authorizes the CIA to conduct covert activity inside the United States. This will include infiltrating U.S. organizations and conducting secret surveillance; the Attorney General has issued new domestic security guidelines giving the FBI new latitude in surveillance and information gathering; a special computer file has been activated within the FBI's National Crime Information Center to keep track of people described by the Secret Service as "anti-authority or anti-law enforcement." (The new file already includes the names of Coretta Scott King and Dr. Benjamin Spock!)
Innocuous phrases like "suspected of," "believed to be," "associated with," "possibly involved,"... can become damaging and threatening to an individual.
Are you ready for all this?

Reagan speech shuns conservationists

By TERENCE HUNT
The Associated Press

BOWLING GREEN, Ky. — To the astonishment of conservationists, President Reagan credited his administration Thursday with moving "quickly and effectively to deal with the federal government's lagging efforts to protect our environment."

Winding up a three-day campaign to soften election-year criticism of his environmental record, the president said he had moved aggressively under the "Superfund" program to clean up toxic wastes, lightened protections against water pollution and pesticides, funded research on acid rain and financed a $1 billion reforestation of national parks.

called Reagan's speech "an affront to the intelligence of the American people. He must think we've been living in a cave while he has waged a 3½-year war on the environment."

Reagan addressed more than 10,000 people at a convention of the National Campers and Hikers Association, a group chiefly composed of recreational vehicle operators. Thousands of trailers and camper vehicles filled Beech Bend campground, where Reagan spoke to the crowd of people, most of whom were wearing shorts and sitting in folding chairs.

15-minute tour of nearby Mammoth Cave and viewed "Frozen Niagara," a calcium carbonate mineral formation that looks like a waterfall of rock. Reagan walked about 2,000 feet into the cave, whose chambers and tunnels extend 300 miles and comprise the largest cave system in the world. It was 34 degrees underground, compared with temperatures climbing in the 90s outside.

In his remarks to the camper's convention, Reagan said America had done a good job in protecting its natural heritage for the first 75 years of this century. "Sadly, though, in recent years, but environmental efforts began to lose some of their energy and direction," he said. "Indeed, by the time our administration took office, the federal government had become somewhat negligent in its care of our natural heritage." Reagan said national parks were in disrepair because of a lack of maintenance funds, efforts to protect endangered species had been neglected, wetlands were "in grave danger of disappearing," and state plans to combat pollution were being stalled by the federal government. Reagan said his administration inherited from Jimmy Carter "the worst economic crisis since the Great Depression and a weak and vacillating foreign policy that had lost the respect of friend and foe alike." "Yet, even while we moved to address these twin crises, we were determined to move quickly and effectively to deal with the federal government's lagging efforts to preserve our environment," said Reagan.

Nicaraguan report delayed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Reagan administration officials are delaying release of a new report that alleges continued Nicaraguan arms shipments to leftist Salvadoran guerrillas out of concern it lacks a "smoking gun" to convince critics of the charge. The 35-page report, which was first expected out in late May, then in June and then last week, remains unpublished as some administration officials press for release of secret intelligence to buttress the charges — and others question the value of having a new report at all. One senior State Department official, who insisted on anonymity, said that, as written, the report does not provide the "smoking gun" that would provide public proof of the administration's allegations. He is understood to have argued that it not be released because it would only raise further doubts about whether the administration really knows whether the Sandinista government is supplying arms to the guerrillas.

Salvadorans work on rights

WASHINGTON (AP) — The State Department is sending Congress a report saying that in recent months, there has been a marked improvement in El Salvador's record on human rights, including free elections, the rule of law and the elimination of death squads, officials said Thursday.

State George P. Shultz, who is traveling in Asia. Alan Romberg, deputy State Department spokesman, said the report finds that "the government of El Salvador has demonstrated progress toward land reform, free elections, freedom of association, the establishment of the rule of law and an effective judicial system and the termination of the activities of the so-called death squads."

The report is to be issued publicly on Friday in the name of Secretary of

Shuttle crew gets 2-for-1 mission for August

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Space shuttle Discovery's twice-delayed maiden flight will be launched Aug. 24 and will combine major features that had been planned for its first two missions, NASA announced Thursday.

The move was necessary to keep the accelerating shuttle schedule on track following back-to-back last-minute postponements of Discovery's debut last month.

"This plan will put the program back on schedule by the Oct. 1 launch," said Jesse W. Moore, NASA's acting shuttle director, in announcing the decision at a news conference in Washington. The conference was monitored by reporters here and at other NASA centers.

The Oct. 1 launch of shuttle Challenger will mark the beginning of a period when there will be at least one flight a month for the foreseeable future.

The combined mission will keep a Leasat communications satellite, a solar panel package and a miniature drug factory from Discovery's first manifest and add two communications satellites from the second flight. Pushed out to later flights are a large Earth-mapping camera from Flight 1 and a second Leasat satellite from Flight 2.

Chester M. Lee, director of shuttle customer relations, said the second Leasat will be added to the October manifest.

The crew for the combined mission will be the Flight 1 crew, which suffered through the June postponements. The members are commander Henry Hartsfield; pilot Michael Coats; mission specialist Judy Resnik, Steve Hawley and Richard Mullane, and payload specialist Charles Walker.

Moore said the crew for wiped-out Flight 2, commanded by astronaut Karol Bobko, would be reassigned as quickly as possible.

Accused cheaters lose bid to halt test scoring

TRENTON, N.J. (AP) — Four former high school students whose college entrance exam scores were questioned after they were accused of cheating lost their appeal Thursday to stop the Educational Testing Service from canceling the test results.

The Appellate Division of Superior Court unanimously upheld a lower court ruling that procedures used by the Princeton-based testing service were equitable and there was sufficient reason to doubt the validity of the students' scores on a Scholastic Aptitude Test they took May 1, 1982.

The decision lifted a stay imposed by Superior Court Judge Richard S. Cohen and the appellate division, which kept the SAT scores in high school records.

"We are now able to cancel the scores and if nothing further happens from plaintiffs' end, we will do so," said Patricia Taylor, assistant general counsel for ETS.

George B. Gelman, the lawyer for the students, did not return a telephone call. The students, now attending college, are Richard Becker, James Denburg and Lloyd Berkowitz, all of Short Hills, and Stephen Haskin of Springfield.

In its ruling, the appeals court recalled that after a three-week trial last August, Cohen found that ETS had "the duty of determining through equitable procedures... whether there was a reasonable basis to question these scores."

ETS had been trying since March 1983 to invalidate the scores of the students, who took the SAT when they were juniors at Millburn High School.

Exposure to AIDS virus deemed common

ATLANTA (AP) — Exposure to the virus that causes AIDS is "quite high" among members of high-risk groups, but the chance of such people becoming afflicted with the disease is uncertain, researchers said Thursday.

The national Centers for Disease Control reported that antibodies against the AIDS-causing virus — indicating exposure to the virus — were detected in 65 percent of 215 homosexual men attending a clinic on sexually transmitted diseases in San Francisco earlier this year.

However, less than 1 percent of those not in high-risk groups for acquired immune deficiency syndrome have the antibodies, said Dr. James Curran, director of the CDC's AIDS task force, who termed the exposures in some high-risk populations "quite high."

In addition to gay men, the high-risk groups are intravenous drug abusers, some Italian immigrants, hemophiliacs and recipients of blood transfusions.

A type of virus — isolated separately by French and American scientists — is believed to be the cause of the disease.

"Exposure to the virus is much more common than AIDS itself among (high-risk) populations," the CDC said in its Morbidity and Mortality Weekly Report.

Supreme Court modifies cogeneration rate ruling

BOISE — A contract between a cogenerator and a utility is not inflexible, but must be reviewed to see if it is fair, just and reasonable, the Idaho Supreme Court says.

The court on Thursday modified an earlier ruling in a long-running legal battle by Idaho Power Co. over the rates it must pay cogenerators.

Idaho Power said it did not want to be locked into a long-term, fixed-rate contract for electricity with no way to negotiate for changes. The utility has claimed it's paying one cogenerator far more than its cost of producing other power.

A federal law requires utilities to buy electricity from cogenerators, who generate small amounts of electricity as a by-product.

Idaho Power disputed a Public Utilities Commission order that it had to enter into a long-term, fixed agreement with Afton Energy, Inc., an Afton, Wyo., cogenerator.

The Supreme Court ruled in January that a federal law can require a utility to involuntarily enter into a cogeneration contract. Idaho Power asked for a rehearing, and the court has modified its January finding.

While not a tariff, the court said a cogeneration agreement should be covered by the same principles. It must be reviewed to determine if it is fair, just and reasonable to both parties.

"If appropriate, the contract rate can then be lowered," the court said.

The Public Utilities Commission must review the effect of the contract rate on the utility, its stockholders and customers and the benefits the utility will receive.

"We emphasize...that whether the rate paid by the utility is fair, just and reasonable is not dependent on the profit or loss realized by the cogenerator at any given time," the court said.

That will allow a utility to seek "meaningful and appropriate" review of a contract, and allows the cogenerator to proceed without fear of excessive regulation, the court said.

Justices Robert Bakes and Allan Shepard, who dissented from the January ruling, concurred with the majority Thursday that the contracts must be reviewed to determine if they are fair and reasonable.

Justice urges legal speedup

SUN VALLEY — The main reasons for delays in the legal system aren't a lack of judges to hear cases, or the complexity of legal disputes, Chief Justice Charles Donaldson says.

The delays are caused by what he calls the "local legal culture," or the attitudes of judges and lawyers on the amount of delay that is acceptable.

Donaldson told the Idaho State Bar here Thursday the Idaho Supreme Court is trying to change that attitude, so cases can be heard quicker.

The goal, said Donaldson, is "a court system which provides a quicker resolution to citizen disputes" and at the same time earns greater respect from citizens.

In the last eight months, he said, there has been a 70 percent reduction in cases at least four years old.

Idaho's courts now are trying to cut the number of cases pending at least three years.

Handling cases quicker, and cutting the backlog which often requires years before civil cases are settled, has been a major goal in the two years, Donaldson has been chief justice.

He said the number of appeals being filed with the Supreme Court is running ahead of decisions issued by both the Supreme Court and the Court of Appeals. There may be up to 500 appeals filed this year, he said.

Both courts are experimenting with "fast tracks" for appeals. There will be more appellate settlement conferences. And the Court of Appeals will be making some decisions without published, written opinions to step up productivity, Donaldson said.

He also said he has appointed a statewide committee on victims' rights. It will come up with recommendations for judicial practices improving the treatment of victims and witnesses in criminal cases.

Donaldson said the views of judges, prosecutors, defense attorneys, legislators and law-enforcement officers will be solicited. Attorney General Jim Jones and key legislators earlier in the month announced a drive to enact new "victims' rights" legislation.

Donaldson also urged the state's lawyers to support higher judicial salaries. Idaho's judges currently are facing a period of four years without salary increases and rank next to last in the nation in pay, the chief justice said.

Drowning victim identified

BOISE (AP) — A body pulled from the Boise River between Star and Eagle has been positively identified as that of Mike Sharpe, 19, who has been missing along with a second Boise teenager since jumping into the river two weeks ago.

Coroner Mike Johnson said extensive tests were needed to make the identification of the body. He listed the cause of death as drowning.

Sharp and Paul Owens, 16, were among several youths who jumped into the swift-flowing river from a railroad trestle on June 28th as the mercury soared to 100 degrees.

Although the others were rescued, an air, land and water search that lasted nearly 20 hours failed to turn up the pair's bodies.

Businessmen face charges

BOISE (AP) — A July 30 4th District Court arraignment date has been set for a former Boise man charged with 60 violations of securities laws involving gold mining operations.

Robert W. Geler, 40, Denver, turned himself in to FBI agents in Boise last month. That was almost eight months after he was charged with fraud in the sale of some $200,000 in limited partnerships and investment contracts.

Geler faces 20 counts each of unlawful offer and sale of a security, failure to register as a salesman and failure to register a security for sale. Officials said the charges stem from investments that Geler sold in an Oregon gold mine in 1981 and 1982.

The man has been free under $20,000 bond.

Court records allege Geler and his salesmen promised investors that their $16,000 investments would produce a monthly income of $3,000 for 60 months.

Geler's partner in one of the firms, known as Mine Management, Stanley Allen, pleaded guilty in March to four counts of securities violations and a fifth charge of writing a bad check.

He was sentenced to three years in prison.

Thieves net jewelry haul

BOISE (AP) — Thieves have made off with more than $67,000 in jewelry in a string of burglaries across southwestern Idaho.

Authorities believe the same people committed the burglaries, which occurred during the early morning hours Thursday.

According to police, the thieves netted at least $30,000 in jewels from the J.C. Penney store at Nampa's Karcher Mall, and estimated $20,000 from Call Jewelers in Boise and more than $17,000 from J.C.M. Fine Jewelers in Meridan.

Judge pondering halt on logging

BOISE (AP) — U.S. District Judge Marlon Callister says he will decide within a few days whether to grant a request to halt timber sales and construction of a logging road in the Nez Perce National Forest near Elk City.

Callister said he would take the matter under advisement Thursday after hearing arguments from officials of the National Wildlife Federation.

The environmental group is one of the main appellants in a case pending in the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in San Francisco which seeks to bar further timber sales on some sections of national forest land in Idaho.

Residents angered by closure of schoolhouse

CLAYTON (AP) — A school board decision to close the 50-year-old Clayton elementary school has angered some residents of the small, central Idaho mining community.

An election to decide whether children should attend the school will be July 24. It requires a two-thirds endorsement to pass.

Several residents at a Tuesday school board meeting said they were concerned about a national trend to consolidate rural school districts and close small schools.

If the school is moved, Clayton residents say children as young as 5 years old would be forced to ride the bus over ice-covered Highway 75 to Challis in the winter to attend school.

"People are real funny about these country schools. They're real sincere about keeping that school up there," said Rose Johnson, school board member. Rural schools are the "identity" of small communities, she said.

Asked if she thought the election would pass, she said "you never know." "We'll do everything we can for them that is economically feasible," she said.

School officials closed the doors on the red-brick building June 26 after receiving reports that rocks shaken loose on a nearby cliff in the October earthquake threatened the safety of children attending the school.

About 25 Clayton residents delivered a petition at Tuesday's school board meeting, calling for the July 24 election.

A petition bearing only five signatures is needed to bring the issue to a test of voters, Superintendent Terrell Donlich said.

The board of trustees based its decision to close the school on the recommendation of a Boise State University geologist who inspected the school site last spring.

Assault complaint filed against sheriff

BOISE (AP) — Deputy Attorney General Mark Haws has completed work on an assault complaint against Custer County Sheriff Ken Bowers and is filing it with the 7th District Court.

Bowers contended there is not enough evidence to back up the misdemeanor complaint, which carries a maximum penalty of a year in jail and $5,000 in fines.

The charge of unnecessary assault by a police officer stems from a Feb. 28 incident in which Warren Strohl of Clayton says he was handcuffed to a cell at the Custer County Jail and beaten by the sheriff.

Custer County Prosecutor Deborah Kristal, who requested the investigation, said she could not handle the case because of a conflict of interest. Haws, the chief of the Attorney General's criminal division, was named special prosecutor.

Strohl, a heavy equipment operator at Cyprus Mines' Thompson Creek molybdenum project, charged that Bowers punched and kicked him in the face while he was handcuffed to a cell. Bowers contended Strohl's claims were "untrue or half-true" and that Strohl had been changing his accounts of the incident.

But Bowers, who said the county has dropped the drunken driving charge against Strohl, would not discuss specifics of the incident.

Strohl has said he was asleep in his pickup at Bay Horse Campground, about nine miles north of Challis, on the evening of Feb. 28 when he was arrested and charged with drunken driving by Custer County sheriff's officers, who had received reports of a drunken driver in the area. Strohl said he was taken to the Custer County Jail and his request to make a phone call was refused.

Strohl said he then reached through the bars and "smacked" a sheriff's detective.

Then, after lying on his jail bunk for several minutes, Strohl said Bowers, wearing black leather gloves, entered the cell with two other officers. Strohl said Bowers began hitting his face and Strohl, who was trying to shield his face with his hands, rolled onto the floor. At that point, he said, he felt people kicking his back.

Dr. Charles Christensen, who later examined Strohl, said the man's face was injured but that he understood Strohl had been in a fight before he was jailed.

Schools to remove asbestos

IDAHO FALLS (AP) — Ceiling coatings in four schools in the Idaho Falls School District will be removed because they apparently contain asbestos, the school board has announced.

Research has shown asbestos, once commonly used in building materials as a fire-retardant and insulator, may cause lung cancer. It is inhaled over a long period of time.

District officials and industrial hygienists at a board meeting Tuesday night said there's little chance people could inhale the asbestos in the ceiling coatings.

"But the best and most responsible way to handle the problem is to remove the matter so there's no possibility of any problem coming to employees or students," said H. Ray Hart, board chairman.

The board authorized the superintendent to competitively bid the removal project, which it wants completed by Aug. 17.

Levels of 1 to 5 percent asbestos were found in recent samples of ceiling coatings in parts of Clair E. Gale Junior High School and Bush Elementary School, and in most of the ceilings at Templeview and Edgemont elementary schools.

Previous samples of the same material taken from different parts of the same buildings revealed no asbestos.

The district took new samples after being advised by the State Department of Education in December that the Environmental Protection Agency wanted schools to take more samples.

District business manager Ken Schow said samples were taken very close to where previous samples had been removed, but sent to a different laboratory.

Clyde Frank, an EG&G-Idaho chemist, said differences in qualifications and experience of people at the two laboratories could explain the different results.

TB case rise not a threat

BOISE (AP) — The number of reported tuberculosis cases in Idaho rose slightly from 1982 to 1983, but state health officials said that is no indication that the incidence of the disease is increasing.

According to statistics compiled by the Health and Welfare Department, 35 TB cases were reported last year compared to 31 the year before. No deaths have been directly linked to any of them, but the patients represented a cross-section of the state's population.

Dr. Charles Brokopp, head of the department's Bureau of Preventive Medicine, said many TB patients incur the disease years before the symptoms become obvious.

During the first half of this year, 15 cases have been reported from 14 during the first six months of 1983. In 1982, only 11 cases were reported in the state, but Brokopp said the significant increases since then are probably attributable to better diagnosis techniques rather than an actual rise in the number of TB victims.

Rexburg rebuilds its City Hall

REXBURG (AP) — The Rexburg City Council has decided to rebuild City Hall on its original site.

The council voted unanimously Wednesday to opt for rebuilding rather than to purchase and remodel a former printing company building.

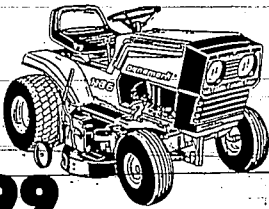

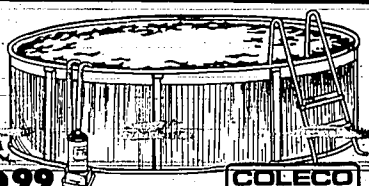

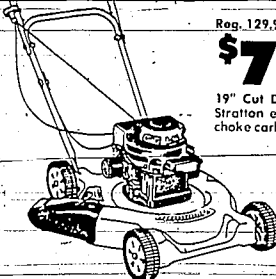

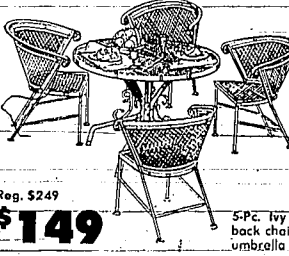

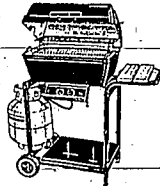

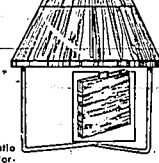

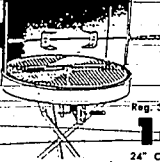

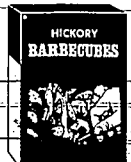

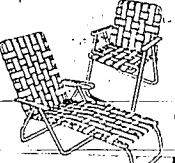

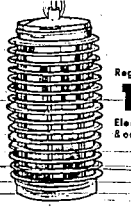

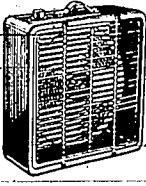

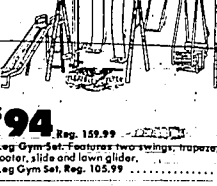

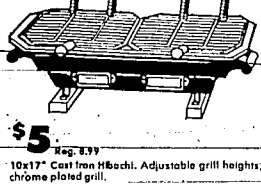

The old city hall was destroyed in a natural gas explosion last September.

City Treasurer Richard Horlem said it would cost an estimated $36,500 more to rebuild.

Surgeon divides twins' blood vessel

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — A surgeon divided a major cranial blood vessel shared by Siamese twins born joined at the head Thursday at the University of Utah Medical Center, moving the girls a step closer to being separated, a center spokesman said.

A team of 10 doctors, nurses and aides spent 7½ hours in surgery in the fourth major operation designed to separate the girls, said John Dwan, the hospital's director of community relations.

The 4-month-old girls, who are known only as Patricia and Ashley at their parents' request, were in critical condition following a "very complex, very delicate" operation in which the shared blood vessel was severed, Dwan said.

Dr. Theodore S. Roberts, the chief surgeon, separated the venous sinus by placing titanium clamps around the vessel and dividing it, Dwan said.

The venous sinus carries blood draining from the brain back to the heart. It normally runs down the top of the head, but the vessel ran down the side of the twins' heads, Dwan said.

"The major potential danger from this is there is a chance of hemorrhaging," Dwan said.

If the girls recover, Dwan said Roberts felt he was "pretty close to separating them."

The next operation for the girls will be in about two weeks, when Dr. Clifford Snyder, a plastic surgeon, will place "skin extenders" in the back of the girls' heads, inserting them between their skin and skull and filling them with fluids, Dwan said.

De Lorean's defense scores minor triumph

LOS ANGELES (AP) — John Z. De Lorean's judge threw out one of nine counts in his cocaine conspiracy trial Thursday and struck from evidence two "overt acts" that the government said helped to prove the automaker's guilt.

U.S. District Court Judge Robert Takasugi, refusing a detailed defense motion to dismiss the entire case, left intact eight counts against De Lorean and ordered the case to proceed.

"We are beginning to whittle their case to pieces," said a jubilant Donald Re, one of the defense attorneys.

De Lorean, seated at the counsel table, broke into a broad grin as the judge announced his decision and made a victory sign with his fingers to his attorneys.

The chief prosecutor, Assistant U.S.

Attorney James Walsh, minimized his loss. "You have to look at the number of counts left," he said.

After Takasugi denied the motion for acquittal on all charges and ordered testimony to proceed, the defense called its first witness — FBI agent Jerry West, who arrested De Lorean.

The judge, who asked many legal questions during attorneys' arguments with the jury absent, chopped out of the indictment a charge that De Lorean, 59, traveled to California on July 11, 1982, to engage in a continuing narcotics enterprise.

The judge said it was clear that on July 11 — the day the government claims the conspiracy was born — "there was no existing enterprise."

Fighter wing moves to Idaho base

HILL AIR FORCE BASE, Utah (AP) — The 38th Tactical Fighter Wing at Hill Air Force Base is moving to temporary quarters at bases in Mountain Home, Idaho, and Nevada, while workers continue to repair a main runway here.

The move will allow the wing to continue training during the repairs, which are expected to last several weeks, said wing public affairs officer L. Ed Worley.

British expel 2 envoys

LONDON (AP) — The British on Thursday declared Nigeria's ambassador unwelcome in Britain and expelled two of the West African nation's diplomats in retaliation for the bungled kidnapping of a fugitive Nigerian politician.

Britain stopped short of a break in diplomatic ties with Nigeria, its chief African trading partner, or an outright expulsion of its ambassador, Maj. Gen. Haidu Hananiya.

Hananiya flew to Lagos, the Nigerian capital, Wednesday for consultations with his government, and Foreign Secretary Sir Geoffrey Howe told Parliament it would be "inappropriate" for the ambassador to return.

Nigeria has denied involvement in the attempted abduction of former Nigerian Transport Minister Umaru Dikko, who was found drugged and unconscious July 5 in a crate that was to be loaded onto a Nigerian-bound cargo plane at Stansted Airport outside London. Dikko heads the list of former Nigerian officials accused of corruption by the military regime that seized power in a New Year's Eve coup.

Howe said Scotland Yard's investigation "disclosed evidence that appears to implicate the Nigerian High Commission (Embassy)," and the Nigerian government refused to allow police to question embassy staff members.

Because of the refusal, Howe said, the Foreign Office ordered Nigerian Embassy counselor Peter Oyedele and a tache Okon Edet to leave Britain within seven days.

Edet was at the airport when the crate containing Dikko and his captors arrived and was asked to serve as the embassy's witness when customs officials opened it, according to police. Oyedele's involvement in the case, if any, was not known.

There was no immediate reaction from the Nigerian government. But state-run Nigerian Television in Lagos said relations between Britain and its former colony had "hit an all-time low." It said Britain had shown it was willing to provide "adequate shelter for former politicians wanted in Nigeria."

South Africa bomb blast takes 4 lives

DURBAN, South Africa (AP) — An explosion thought to have been caused by a car bomb killed four people and injured 13 others Thursday in an industrial area on the outskirts of the Indian Ocean port city of Durban, police said.

"We suspect it was a car bomb, but we are not sure yet," said Lt. Barend Van Der Walt of the South African police department. The explosion occurred at 4:25 p.m. at an intersection in the Jacobs section of Durban, about five miles southwest of the city center. "It could have been sabotage," he said. There was no claim of responsibility.

The South African Broadcasting Corp. said a huge cloud of smoke rose from the site of the explosion, and ambulances sped to the scene to take the injured to hospitals.

Valerie Van Zyl, who lives about a mile from the site of the blast, said, "I was sitting inside and heard an extremely loud explosion."

The explosion occurred just over a mile from the site of an oil refinery that was damaged by a bomb explosion in May. Police blamed the African National Congress, an outlawed black nationalist group, for that attack.

Infiltrators denounced

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — The government on Thursday named 10 organizations it claims have been infiltrated by Communist assassins. The list included student, labor, business and church associations that have organized protests against President Ferdinand E. Marcos.

Philippines News Agency listed the 10 organizations, and said a recently captured Communist guerrilla leader identified as Alden Palmones had named 27 groups he said were infiltrated by members of the New People's Army's "sparrow" assassination units. Palmones' revelations "have confirmed President Marcos' warning of subversive infiltrations of such groups," the news agency said.

The palace statement said subversives were behind fighting Monday between rock-throwing workers and soldiers and policemen who used guns, firehoses and truncheons to break up a strike. Subversives were also blamed for a march last week to the palace by about 2,000 student protesters who were dispersed by police using tear gas.

'Fierce' battle on China-Vietnam border

PEKING (AP) — Vietnam attacked China's Yunnan Province on Thursday, sparking a "fierce" day-long battle, the official Chinese news agency reported. It said Chinese frontier guards repulsed the invaders, inflicting heavy casualties.

The Xinhua report said the battle began at 5 a.m. Thursday when a Vietnamese division attacked the Laoshan area. It said the ground troops were supported by Vietnamese artillery.

Although the report said the Vietnamese were repulsed, it added that the fighting was continuing. The Xinhua report gave no casualty figures.

Also Thursday, Vietnam accused China of firing thousands of artillery rounds and rockets this month on its Ha Tuyen border province, killing civilians and damaging property.

The official Vietnam News Agency, in a dispatch monitored in Bangkok, also said the Chinese were sending scouts and commandos across the border into Ha Tuyen.

Hong Kong talks advance

HONG KONG (AP) — Richard Luce, Britain's state minister for Hong Kong affairs, on Thursday urged residents to "keep a sense of perspective" during the ongoing talks with China over the British colony's future.

"It's natural that there are difficulties to overcome. But we are moving forward in these talks," Luce said. "I am confident that we will continue to make solid progress toward a satisfactory agreement for the future of Hong Kong."

Britain and China are holding talks over Hong Kong's future after 1997, when a British lease on 92 percent of the colony's territory expires.

Kuwait, USSR sign defensive arms deal

By ALY MAHMOUD
The Associated Press

MANAMA, Bahrain — Kuwait has initiated a $277 million arms deal with the Soviet Union aimed at defending Persian Gulf commercial shipping against Iranian attacks.

Officials in Kuwait said the deal comprises surface-to-air and surface-to-surface missiles, tanks and other types of military hardware. They said it did not include any Soviet anti-aircraft missiles nor MIG jet fighters.

The arms purchase was announced Wednesday by Arab reporters in Moscow by Kuwaiti Defense Minister Sheikh Salem al-Sabah. Soviet officials in Moscow made no announcement of the deal, and there were no reports of it in the Soviet media.

Pro-government news media along the Persian Gulf lauded Kuwait for arranging the deal, and saw it as a deserved slap at the United States. Washington refused a Kuwaiti request for Stinger anti-aircraft missiles which Kuwait said it needed to protect its offshore against attacks by low-flying warplanes.

According to the Kuwaiti newspaper Al-Qabas, al-Sabah said the arms deal stopped short of a military cooperation pact between Kuwait and the Soviet Union. But Arab and Western diplomatic sources said Soviet military experts were to go to Kuwait for the first time since the country gained independence from Britain 23 years ago.

Al-Qabas said the Soviet experts

History: Kuwait has been ruled by the Sabah dynasty since 1759, but the British ran foreign relations and defense from 1899 to 1961. The northern frontier with Iraq was agreed to in 1923, but in 1961 Iraq claimed control of Kuwait and threatened to invade. Kuwait appealed to Great Britain, which sent arms and deterred an invasion. Iraq invaded again in 1973, but quickly withdrew.

would assemble defense equipment, operate it, and train Kuwaiti personnel.

The Kuwaitis had avoided this before, relying on Syrian and Egyptian experts to operate Soviet-supplied equipment and train Kuwaiti soldiers.

Kuwaiti officials said the deal was prompted mainly by the U.S. refusal to supply Kuwait with Stinger missiles. Saudi Arabia, Kuwait's bigger neighbor, recently acquired 400 Stingers from the United States. Fear that the Stingers might fall into terrorist hands was seen as a prime reason for U.S. refusal to provide them to Kuwait.

The quest for air defense weaponry was a product of recent escalation in the Iraq-Iran war, when both sides began attacking commercial shipping.

Iraq kept its attacks to ships sailing to Iranian ports. Iran retaliated against Arab and other oil tankers in neutral waters along the lower Gulf region. Iraq's stated purpose in attacking Gulf shipping was to undermine Iran's economy by blocking its oil exports. Iran responded with the slogan "security (in the Gulf) for all or for none."

Kuwait, which has 1.5 million people living on 6,177 square miles, is separated from Iran by a 30-mile strip of Iraqi territory. It is the Gulf country most vulnerable to spillovers of the protracted conflict.

The Kuwaiti defense minister said in Moscow that the arms accord "carries no political overtones and does not imply any military facilities (for the Soviets) in Kuwait." He insisted it was "nothing but a straight commercial deal" and praised the Soviet leadership for "denying us nothing in their arsenal."

U.S. transport craft crashes; 9 aboard die

CATANIA, Sicily (AP) — A U.S. C-141B transport plane crashed shortly after takeoff from a naval air station Thursday, disintegrating in a ball of flames that killed all nine people aboard, a U.S. official said.

"There are no known survivors and no known civilian injuries or deaths," said Lt. Cmdr. Ron Donovan, press spokesman for the U.S. Sigonella Naval Air Station near the crash site in eastern Sicily.

He told The Associated Press in a telephone interview that the military units and identities of the victims, all Americans, were being withheld pending notification of next of kin.

The plane, carrying eight crewmen and one military passenger, crashed after a refueling stop at the U.S. base near Catania, he said.

"It was attached to the 437th Military Air Lift Wing from Charleston Air Force Base but we do not know its flight plan," he said.

Sgt. William Hamilton, a spokesman for the Charleston, S.C. base, said the plane was on a routine flight to Nairobi, Kenya, on a resupply mission. He said he did not know whether the eight crew members were from Charleston.

The four-engine jet crashed in a field outside Lintini, 15 miles southwest of Catania, around 2:45 p.m., witnesses said.

Donovan said a board of officers will investigate the crash and would not comment on its probable cause.

An Italian air force official, who asked not to be identified, told The Associated Press that shortly after takeoff the plane's pilot radioed that the engine of the aircraft was on fire.

Israel plans to start on 8 new settlements

JERUSALEM (AP) — Israel will begin building eight new settlements in the occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip next week, government spokesman Shmuel Levine said Thursday.

He said the villages were approved months ago and the action was unrelated to the July 23 general election.

However, a top official of the opposition Labor Party, Nissim Zivli, complained the timing was a political move "directly related to the election campaign" to help the governing Likud bloc. Zivli is Labor's co-chairman of the World Zionist Organization settlement department, which sponsors the settlements after they have won Cabinet approval.

Zivli told Israel Radio he wrote to his Likud counterpart in the department, Mattityahu Drobniss, complaining that the burst of settlement activity was counter to approved priorities.

The radio said five settlements were to be built in the West Bank and three in Gaza. Israel has built more than 100 settlements in the territories conquered in the 1967 Middle East war.

Business owners upset by BID funding hike

By DAVID MOFFAT
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls Business Improvement District board has trimmed that budget to include only a 5-percent increase following a meeting Wednesday at which several downtown business owners expressed extreme displeasure with a proposed budget based on a 34-percent assessment increase.

Before the new spending proposal is presented to the city, it will be presented to a general BID meeting Tuesday at 8:30 a.m. in the library of the Twin Falls Bank and Trust.

BID board chairman Alan Horner says he hopes the new figures will more accurately reflect the wishes of the business owners who comprise the BID.

Gone from the original proposal are $4,850 in projected advertising and promotion expenses, $3,820 in landscaping and capital improvements and $3,000 of a proposed $4,800 salary increase for district coordinator Chris Valence.

The few business owners who came to the meeting Wednesday were harsh in their appraisal of the first budget.

Bob Portlock, owner of the Twin Falls Travelodge, complained most increases in budgets these days are very limited.

He said he could not see how the BID should be any different, especially when most businessmen have faced a 23 percent increase in property taxes this year as the result of a state tax initiative and suffered increases in utility bills as well.

Another businessman said he was not against an increase as long as it was justified, but the budget as presented did not break numbers down in a way they could be understood.

Another criticized the large amount of money proposed for an advertising contract for full page newspaper when this seemed to be "putting all our eggs in one basket."

Pete Johnston of the Music Center said the best thing the BID could do is eliminate parking meters, but that this was not addressed in the document.

There was also a general feeling the district could not afford to pay for a full-time coordinator, which the increase in Valence's salary was intended to allow.

Horner said he was extremely pleased with the meeting, Thursday afternoon he said the "theme" of the revised budget was taken from the comments the evening before.

The board pared its expenditures in a number of areas during a meeting in the morning to reach the 5 percent increase figure, he said.

In the advertising area, "media agreements" such as those with The Times-News and local radio stations were cut back from $15,000 to $7,000, and an additional $3,150 added in the line for "promotions."

This reflects a consensus of the board individual merchants should do most of their own advertising, while the BID can best help them by sponsoring special events such as the Olympic torch parade, he said.

Landscaping contracts were cut back from $15,500 to $11,000. He hopes competitive bidding can bring prices down — especially for labor.

And the landscaping section of the budget was broken into its component parts, and a line added for "snow removal," an area where Horner said the BID could not afford to get caught again as this winter.

While the board felt Valence had done a good job, it agreed $1,000 per month might be more than the district could afford for her services, and that an increase from $600 per month to $750 might be more appropriate.

Escapee flies back to cell

JEROME — Escapee Jeffrey Dean Morris, 26, was back in the Jerome County jail late Thursday after a surprise decision to waive extradition from Springfield, Mo.

He was picked up by Jerome County Sheriff Elza Hall after Hall received word late Tuesday that the prisoner had signed the extradition waiver. Proceedings to extradite him were under way, but would have required several more weeks.

Hall and his prisoner left Springfield at 8 a.m. Thursday, flying to Salt Lake City via commercial airline, and then by sheriff's car to Jerome.

Morris and his companion, Timothy Alger, 26, broke out of the Jerome County jail May 20 and were captured in Springfield several weeks later. The pair of Washington state convicts was held in the Jerome jail, waiting trial in connection with a March 21 police chase from Twin Falls into Jerome County.

During attempts to stop and arrest the pair, one Twin Falls officer was wounded and two city police cars damaged by sub-machine gun fire.

Morris was taken into custody March 21, and Alger was captured a couple of days later in the Snake River Canyon.

Early May 20, the two blocked the lock on their jail cell door and then got into a corridor through an unlocked jail area door. They fashioned a torch from radio wiring to burn out a plexi-glass window. Officers said they left Jerome in a stolen vehicle.

Alger made good a second escape, leaving the Springfield jail about a week ago and is still at large.

Hall said the trip from Springfield to Twin Falls was uneventful and he had no problems with the convicts.

Morris is expected to be arraigned Monday on the escape charge. Hall said he will hold Morris until that time under the assault and other charges stemming from the March 21 chase and shooting. Bond was set at $200,000 on the original Jerome County charges.

Hall said he is taking some extra precautions to keep Morris in the county jail, but declined to elaborate.

Hall said after Alger's escape, Greene County authorities in Missouri were anxious to get Morris out of their jail. He and Alger are also wanted in Washington and several other states on armed robbery and escape charges.

Prosecutor resigns after second year

By DAVID MOFFAT
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls County deputy prosecuting attorney Kandace Kemp has resigned, effective at the end of today. From his office she has held for more than two years.

She says she is leaving to spend more time with her family, then return to private practice in Twin Falls in the fall.

"I've been with the prosecuting attorney 25 months. Most everybody who's been a prosecuting attorney can tell you that's probably enough," she says.

She says the changeover from prosecutor Harry DeHaan to K. Ellen Baxter "seemed like a good time to resign."

She says she was not forced out of her office by Baxter, who plans to resign this office in September.

And while she made her decision after the rape trial of Richard Bradley, in which she represented the county, she says her experience with that trial — including Bradley's subsequent suicide in the Twin Falls County jail — had nothing to do with her choice.

Baxter accepted Kemp's letter of resignation earlier this month.

She says Kemp's departure will not cause undue strain on the office. July and August are traditionally light months on the court calendar, she says, and she has managed to re-schedule cases she and the county's other deputy prosecutor, Dennis Voorhees, won't be able to pick up.

Kemp says she plans to "enjoy the summer with my family," then pursue one of several options in private practice this fall.

"I feel immensely privileged and honored to have worked with as many extraordinarily nice and honest people as there are in this courthouse," she says.

Researchers show off dream of future

By BOB FREUND
Times-News writer

KIMBERLY — Steve Dewey has been burning and stunting crop growth with chemicals to help farmers solve mysteries in their fields.

Dennis Corsini is growing more than a dozen different potatoes to put a new top yielder in Idaho's ground, while Truman Massee raises rows of commercial alfalfa to find the variety best suited to the Magic Valley.

And Dean Gaiser has been spraying a hormone on barley to shorten the stems and keep the plants from falling over in high winds or rain.

The fields at the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Snake River Conservation Research Center and the University of Idaho's Research and Extension Center near Kimberly probably don't look much like those of Magic Valley farmers.

The crops fluctuate between superior and substandard. The stands are uneven, and the varieties are mixed.

But the trials being done at the research complex could create the next trends in agriculture. At the least, they may make farming more efficient.

So, about 150 curious farmers and others from the Magic Valley took advantage of the stations' annual field day to home in on a single topic or to sample 15 agriculture-related topics.

The Snake River station's specialty is irrigation. Scientists showed how to screen trash and other contaminants out of irrigation water as well as how to save money with more efficient waterings. New techniques such as cablegation, surge irrigation and low-pressure sprinkler systems caught farmers' attention. One team of scientists also assessed the effects of too much water on crops.

Other experiments zeroed in on specific crops. One group of specialists is evaluating 36 different kinds of sugar beets. Massee, a soils scientist from the Snake River center, is monitoring the growth of a range of alfalfa varieties, looking for the perfect match to the Magic Valley's soils and climate.

Other studies are checking farming techniques.

One is looking at the best timing for fertilizing straw; another is comparing the effectiveness of various methods of applying insecticides to control pea aphids, which transmit pea leaf roll virus.

University of Idaho weed specialist Steve Dewey gave farmers a practical lesson in figuring out what types of herbicides might have damaged their crops.

Holding up samples of damaged crops, Dewey described the telltale signs that the chemicals leave behind. One group discolors plants when it invades their circulation systems. Another called diuron outlines retards the growth of the roots, so that they can't take up nutrients.

Plant regulators give them a shot of hormones that throw growth out of whack, resulting in malformed leaves and twisted stems. And contact herbicides simply burn whatever they touch, he says.

Even when farmers use their herbicides correctly, the chemicals can drift in from neighboring fields or can be left over in the soil from

Illegal dumps found with pesticide containers

By HAL BERTON
Times-News writer

MURTAUGH — Bureau of Land Management officials have located six illegal dump sites in western Cassia County that contain empty five-gallon containers which once held pesticides.

Burley District manager John Davis says the sites are typical of a growing problem of hazardous waste dumping on Magic Valley lands.

Three of the illegal dump sites were found in two old gravel pits and a spud cellar in an area northwest of Oakley. Three other dump sites were discovered in drainages southwest of Murtaugh.

"We have no idea who has done the dumping, but they're breaking the law," said Burley District BLM official Jim Tribble. "And some of the sites are pretty close to streams that might be used by cattle."

One site is in a dry creek bed near some large farms whose fields backed up against the South Hills.

The dump site, which partially filled a quarter-mile long stretch of the creek bed, was loaded with large concrete chunks, old cars and fill dirt. But mixed in among the garbage were about 17 empty five-gallon pesticide containers. The empty cans included Eptam, Eradicane, 2,4-D, Dyonafte, and sugar beet herbicide labels.

Tribble said state law requires that empty cans be deposited in county dumps equipped to handle hazardous wastes. In Cassia County, they should be brought to the landfill located at 650 South 250 East, Burley.

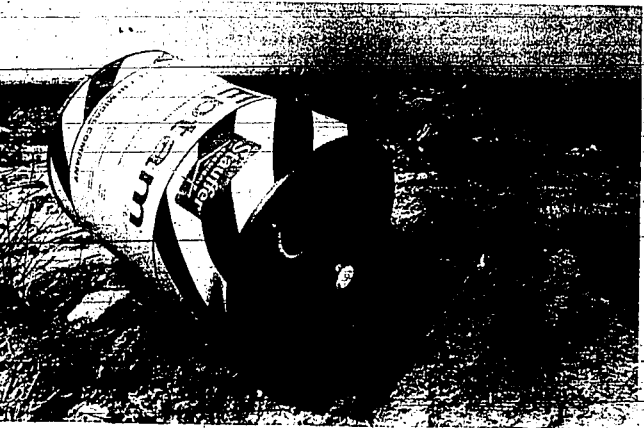

"We're just really starting to pick these dumps up, but they're putting in a lot of spray cans," said Tribble. "And that's where things really start to get bad."

District Manager Davis noted that all the empty pesticide cans displayed labels of "caution, warning, danger or poison."

"The careless disposal of these types of containers is a disservice to the public and potentially exposes public land users to unnecessary health hazards," Davis said.

Chuck Haszler, the manager of the BLM's Shoshone District, said the dumping problem is "all over the West. Anytime you get federal land joining agricultural lands, you get a lot of dumping."

Haszler said the Shoshone District is also littered with empty pesticide containers.

An empty pesticide can marks the site of an illegal dump located near the South Hills

Second trustee quits post

By CHRIS WILLIAMS
Times-News correspondent

KIMBERLY — The Kimberly School District now has two vacancies on its school board.

A letter of resignation was read at the board meeting Tuesday from Zone 4 trustee Ben Heldemann and the trustees formally accepted the resignation.

In the letter, Heldemann said his reason for resigning was the position is that he is moving to another area. Heldemann has two years remaining on his three-year term.

Heldemann said that he had enjoyed the time he had spent on the board, and thanked the board for the experience.

"I hope I have contributed to the district," Heldemann said.

Heldemann's resignation is the second in the last three months. Zone 3 trustee Steve Grupe resigned in May, due to what he called a "lack of time to devote to the position."

Grupe had one year to go on his three-year term.

School board reorganizes, ponders work on farm shop

Briefly

Council sets election on pool
TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls City Council gave final approval at a special meeting Monday afternoon to a vote Aug. 14 on nearly $2 million in general obligation bonds to finance a new city pool.
Council members voted 6-0, with Councilman John Peterson abstaining, to authorize the issue, and put it to a vote.
The total cost of the proposed project is $2.7 million — including an indoor 50 meter pool, lockers and administrative space.
If the bond issue passes, the council has said it will make up the difference with general city capital improvement fund money.
City finance director Bryce King told the council that, if approved, the bonds will be sold at between a 9 and 11.5 percent interest rate, and be paid back by property owners over 15 years.
Peterson says he abstained because he thinks the bond election has "no chance of passage."

Driver pleads guilty to charge
TWIN FALLS — A Twin Falls man pleaded guilty Monday to causing the death of a Kimberly youth last fall in an auto accident.

Martin H. Perkins, 24, of Twin Falls, pleaded guilty in Fifth District Court to a felony charge of vehicular manslaughter, according to court records. Perkins was accused of being negligent in connection with the death of 18-year-old Timothy Roy Cordier on Oct. 11.
According to a complaint filed with the court, Perkins was under the influence of alcohol when his truck collided with another truck west of Twin Falls on Kimberly Road.

Cordier, who was his passenger, died of injuries he sustained in the accident.
Man charged for molesting girl
TWIN FALLS — A 40-year-old man was charged Wednesday with sexually molesting a 14-year-old girl over a three-year period.

Merlin Dean Spence of Twin Falls faces a charge of lewd conduct with a minor under 16 years old. According to a complaint filed in Fifth District Magistrate Court, Spence molested a 13-year-old girl several times. Spence was released on his own recognizance on the felony charge.

Superintendent begins duties
CASTLEFORD — Robert Hutchin of Thompson Falls, Mont., will begin his new duties as superintendent of the Castleford School District Monday.

Hutchin has had previous administrative experience in Montana and Oregon. He takes over the job from Lyle Bretthauer, who resigned and moved to Kellogg to assume the position as assistant superintendent in charge of staff and curriculum development.
The annual reorganizational meeting of this school board will be held Tuesday, at which time two new board members, Robert Sample and Judy Heath, will be sworn in.

Day camp registration starts

TWIN FALLS — Magic Valley YFCA is accepting registration for its day camp program for boys and girls ages 6-12.
Day camp runs from 8 a.m. to 5:30 p.m., Monday through Friday, with daily or weekly enrollment from July 16 through August 24. There is a daily featured activity in addition to swimming.
Upcoming highlights include: July 16 — hiking and swimming at Nat-Soo-Pah; July 17 — fishing at Hidden Lakes and Cinema movie; July 18, tour of Indian sites at Devils Court guided by John Lytle of the BLM; July 19 — hiking and swimming at Dierkes Lake; and July 20 — a nature hike and scavenger hunt in the South Hills.
Fee is $7 per child, per-day which includes all activities. To register or for more information, call the Y at 733-4384.

School retains grade standard

SHOSHONE — The Shoshone School Board agreed at its meeting earlier this week to continue with its 2.0 grade point requirement for all extra curricular activity participation.
The requirement, first adopted a year ago, provides that a student who does not maintain a 'C' average during a nine-week grading period will not be eligible to participate in any extra activities during the next nine-week term.
The requirement was modified, however, to provide for three-week evaluations of junior high students, with these students being able to reinstate their eligibility in three weeks, rather than nine-week periods.

Girl hurt in bike-car collision

TWIN FALLS — A 14-year-old girl sustained minor injuries after the bike she was riding collided with a car Tuesday evening at Sixth Street and Second Avenue West in Twin Falls.
Melissa Ann Albers, 14, of 428 Third Ave. N. in Twin Falls was treated and released from Magic Valley Regional Medical Center.
The accident occurred at about 9 p.m., when 39-year-old Ulahwi of 437 Jackson St. in Twin Falls made a left turn from Sixth Street onto Second Avenue and struck Albers, according to a Twin Falls police report.
Ulahwi was cited for failure to yield while making a turn.

'Black out' cause of accident

TWIN FALLS — A young man "blacked out" Wednesday night and rammed a gas station at 303 Main Ave. E. in Twin Falls.
Robin-Russel Rogers, 26, of 712 Third Ave. E. was transported by ambulance to Magic Valley Regional Medical Center and later released.
At about 10 p.m., Rogers said he recalled driving east on Main Avenue when he lost consciousness, according to a Twin Falls police report. His truck first struck a gas pump station, then hit the building.
The owner of the business, Joe Mendiolia, reported $2,100 damage.

By JANE BUCKWAY Times-News Correspondent

GOODING — Claire Major was elected chairman of the Gooding School Board at the Tuesday reorganization meeting.
She replaces Walt Nelson who served as chairman for five years. Nelson did not seek re-election to the board.

The oath of office was administered to new board member Joe D. Pavkov and re-elected member Michael 'Mitch' Arkosh, who was elected vice chairman, the position Major had filled previously.

Frances Guinn was retained as district clerk-treasurer and Cecil Hobbey as attorney. The board will continue to hold its regular monthly meetings at 8 p.m. on the second Tuesday in the district office.

In other business, Superintendent Lester Diehl told the board work on the vocational agriculture shop and classroom facility being constructed at the high school is behind schedule, but "it's coming along pretty good."
He also said the concrete floor has developed a large crack in the middle of the main shop section.

The project architect has notified the contractor who laid the floor that the area will have to be taken up and new concrete installed, Diehl told the board.

He said he expects the walls and floors will be completed by this weekend and the contractor is waiting for the arrival of the roof trusses.

The building is scheduled for completion in late September, but Diehl said the district is hoping to be able to use the building as soon after school starts as possible.

In related business, the board accepted a bid of $26,404 for power woodworking tools for the new shop.

The bid from Ideal Hardware Co. of Idaho Falls includes power saws, a joiner, planer, drill press, wood lathe, metal lathe and some hand tools. The power tools are a type that can be hooked up to the shop's sawdust collector system.

Caxton Ltd. of Caldwell will supply the shop tables, Diehl said. Funds for the tools and tables are to be derived from earned interest on the shop building bond.

District clerk-treasurer Frances Guinn told the board there should be at least $24,000 in interest available to use for the tool purchase.

The board also reviewed bids for a natural gas heating system at Fraham Junior High School.
Two bids, one from Bradley Boiler Co. of Twin Falls and Peterson's of Gooding were received.

The Bradley basic bid was for $18,058 with additional charges for a condensation unit; the Peterson bid of $18,650 included the condensation unit price.

The board voted to accept Peterson's bid if an engineer's review of both bids show the equipment and specifications to be substantially the same.

Diehl said the bid needs to be awarded as soon as possible so that the old furnace can be removed and new equipment installed before the start of the school year.

Another teacher has resigned from the district. The board accepted the resignation of second grade teacher Stacey York who is pregnant. Several teachers have retired or left the Gooding teaching staff this year.

The board hired Mike Schireman from Oregon to teach art and reading at the high school. Kent Dunn as a fifth grade teacher and Chris Gibson of Twin Falls as director of the district's special education program and to teach the severely handicapped students in the new self-contained modular classroom being prepared for location at the junior high school.

Diehl said the district still needs a high school English teacher and a special education resource teacher at the junior high.

Farming

previous applications, Dewey says.
"The experiments at the complex also are trying to improve crops growing under normal conditions."

"Fruits" crops are susceptible to falling over in heavy winds or rain because the grain heads are heavy and the plant stems are tall and thin.
Plant science graduate student Dean Gaiser from the University of Idaho is using a plant hormone called ethephon to help stem growth before it gets too high.

"The shorter it is, the less leverage there is at the top," where the heavy heads grow, Gaiser says.

Although expensive to apply, if the growth regulator, which is sprayed on the crop late in its growth cycle, prevents significant lodging, it easily could pay its way, he says.

The advantages haven't been lost on the commercial market. "Next year, Union Carbide (Corp.) is hoping to have it labeled (by the government for federal use)," he says.

The farmers that stopped on a field at the university's experimental station also may have walked the rows of some future crops.

Corsini, a USDA researcher stationed at the University of Idaho's experiment station in Aberdeen, is growing 12 new selections of potatoes at Kimberly as part of a series of variety trials throughout the West.

Two look especially promising. One new type of Russet could give Magic Valley growers an early harvesting competitor to the Nordgolts that come from the Columbia River basin, he says.

Another kind, which is further along in development, promises to outyield current varieties in size and eating quality. It has gained much interest from frozen potato processors, Corsini said.

She predicts Baxter will do a "lovely" job running an office for which the most important attribute is stamina.

And while she says she looks forward to earning more in private practice than the $14,900 she earned with the county, she says the county salary was never a problem.

"Anybody who goes to work for county government knows they are going to be notoriously under-paid," she says.

School

Both of the openings will be filled by applicants who will be selected in a vote by the board.
"If there are enough applications, we will name both positions at our next board meeting in August," said Kent Taylor, the newly elected chairman of the school board.

Superintendent Richard Bauscher says anyone interested in either of the two positions can pick up a form in his office. The form will be filled out and returned by Aug. 1.

In other business:
• Officers were elected to lead the board in its deliberations for the fiscal year of 1984-85.
Kent Taylor was elected to succeed outgoing board member Keith Jensen as chairman, while Carol White will hold the position of vice chairman for the upcoming year.

In addition, LaRae Crawford was re-elected to the position of secretary-treasurer, and will also serve the board in the capacity of clerk.
JoAnn Irwin was given her trustee oath.

• School district leaders again put off a decision on how much of a raise will be given to football coaches.
The coaches had previously asked the board for two weeks regular salary for head coaches, and one week salary for assistant coaches.
The school board agreed to turn the problem over to Bauscher after first considering a suggestion that would have given the two Kimberly varsity football coaches a $500 salary increase, and a $250 increase to the two junior varsity coaches.

Bauscher says he has a plan that would alleviate a negotiation process with the coaches.
"What we did in Washington was to multiply the total number of weeks of time involved times a given factor which was comprised of the length of the season, a liability factor, how much additional scouting the coach does, total experience and the amount of practice time involved," Bauscher said.

"If a coach scoups for an additional sport, then he would be further compensated for, and if he practices after 6 p.m., he would also receive more compensation."
"I have talked to several of the coaches and they seem pretty receptive to the idea. I think it will reflect fairness for them in that they will be compensated for the amount of time put in," the superintendent said.

Major football colleges pool TV bargaining

By The Associated Press

All 63 members of the College Football Association, ignoring efforts by a Big Ten-Pac-10 coalition to lure them away, agreed Thursday to join together for a television package in 1984, officials said.

Chuck Nelms, executive director of the CFA, said each of his members had each filed a noncommitment form to be part of the organization's plan. Nelms said "a commitment form" means the schools are bound.

The CFA membership consists of the Atlantic Coast Conference, the Big 8 Conference, the Southeastern Conference, the Southwest Conference, the Western Athletic Conference and 19 major independents.

"Naturally, we are pleased with the unanimous vote," Nelms said from the CFA's headquarters in Denver.

The Big Ten and Pac-10 Conferences are not members of the CFA and are working out a separate plan for television rights. Wayne

Related story B5

Duke, the Big Ten commissioner, had said his coalition was talking with several Eastern and Southern Independents in an attempt to widen its base. Duke did not provide names of those schools.

The Supreme Court two weeks ago struck down two existing NCAA packages sold to CBS, ABC and ESPN for almost $275 million, saying they were in violation of federal antitrust laws. On Tuesday, college football's major schools turned down a last-ditch proposal by the NCAA for a TV package that would have been based on voluntary cooperation.

"The CFA Television Committee will commence discussions with all interested television entities at the earliest possible date," Nelms said.

He said the basic CFA television plan provides for a national marketing effort in two periods on each date — offering those to national networks and national cable — as well as an open period for conference and institutional telecasts in the afternoon, which would be used for local and regional broadcasts.

As it stands, schools can still negotiate deals for themselves or top of any arrangement they may make with either the CFA or Big Ten-Pac-10.

"We're committing to the CFA. It's the only choice we have," said Dr. Ed Bozick, the athletic director at the University of Pittsburgh. "The CFA had agreed to try to make a coalition with the Pac-10 and Big Ten. We committed to that proposition first."

"We initially supported the NCAA plan, but that doesn't exist anymore. It was voted down by the members. We have a major market for football, to be sure, but we certainly are not in a position to make that fly on a national level." Joe Kearney, commissioner of the nine-member WAC, said his schools had "only one choice."

"As a member of the CFA, you could go forward with the CFA plan of 63 members or go on as a conference. I think our feeling was the largest group we could join was the best. There was absolutely no choice to go out on your own as a conference."

"I think everybody has said that the best plan that was there was the NCAA plan that was declared null and void by the courts," he said.

Professor Frank Remington, who represented the University of Wisconsin at meeting of Big Ten athletic directors in Chicago this week, said "the general feeling was that the CFA plan was unsatisfactory because it, too, raises serious antitrust issues."

He said the Big Ten had not planned set up a separate coalition with the Pac-10. "The objective was to continue the NCAA plan. We voted for it. The problem with this is that it creates a great deal of uncertainty," he said.

"More importantly, it does great hurt to a number of schools — the Mid-American Conference, black schools and the Division I-AA schools."

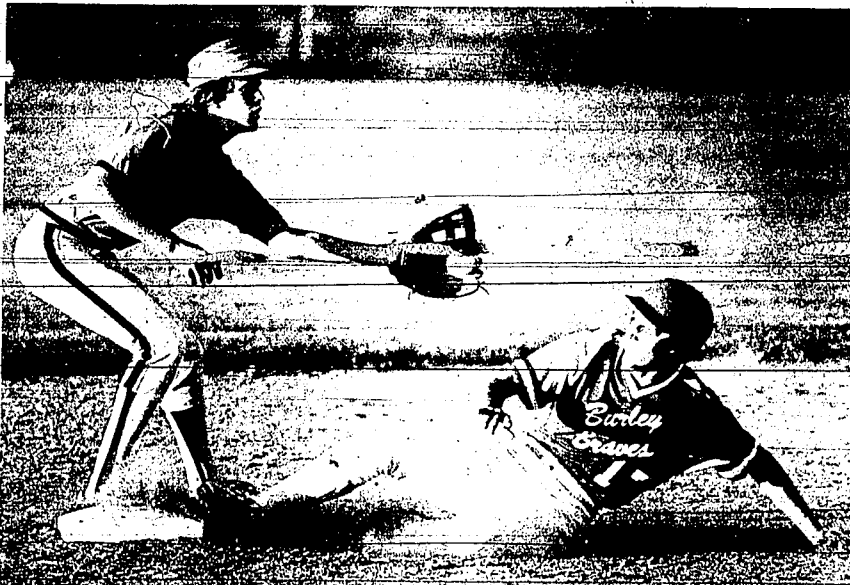

The smaller schools are the ones that will feel the heft of the breakup of the NCAA television package since it had provided that several Division I-AA, II and III games would be shown.

"Like most other I-AA independents not part of the CFA, we're sort of on our own," said Temple University athletic director Gavin White. "Hopefully, we'll be able to tie in with some syndication."

Adleg John Geis, director of the Southern Conference service bureau, said "The networks will feel with a very, very select few schools, to nobody's surprise. The money is going to have to be made up from somewhere at some point."

Too close to call

A bang-bang play such as the one caught by the camera during the Burley-Buhl American Legion game Thursday night is bound to leave half of the crowd feeling the official missed the call. The ball is about equidistant from the glove as the runner's foot is from the bag, close enough that neither the eye or ear could determine. The call was "out." Results of the double-header were not available at press time

Area players to perform in all-star game

BOISE — Burley guard Greg Boyd, Castleford center Alan Sipple, Carey guard Brad Tingey and Twin Falls guard Andy Toolson have been chosen to play in the seventh annual Idaho High School All-Star Basketball Game.

The game will be played at Capital High School on Friday, July 20, at 8 p.m. The game, which is sponsored by the Idaho Coaches Association, pits 10 top graduated seniors from Districts 1, 2, 3 against the same number from Districts 4, 5 and 6. The northern stars hold a 6-0 advance in the series.

The 6-foot-5 Toolson, who will attend Brigham Young University next year on a basketball scholarship, will be joined by the 6-4 Boyd, who will play at Eastern Oregon College. They were the leading scorers in the Magic Valley last season after Tingey, who set a District 4 season scoring record.

The game will be preceded by a scrimmage among the members of the Idaho Basketball Congress International team, which will represent the state at the BCI International tournament, next month in Tempe, Ariz.

Other members of the South team are Richard Black, a 6-1 guard from Burley; Bill Parrish, a 6-5 center from Falls; Robert Jensen, a 6-2 forward from Madison High School in Rexburg; Phil Olsen, a 6-5 center from Shelley; Bill Parrish, a 6-5 center from High School in Pocatello, and Christian Todd Peterson, a 6-6 center and Troy Shippen, a 5-10 guard, from High. The North squad will be led by Kurt Lundblad, a 6-2 guard from Coeur d'Alene who will play next year at Gonzaga. Other members of the team are Greg Fortmann, a 6-5 forward from Boise; Steve Halley, a 6-7 center from Nampa; Frank Hodge, a 6-2 guard from Moscow; Rob Line, a 6-0 guard from Meridian; Kip Meyer, a 5-10 guard from Borah in Boise; Bobby Sobotta, a 6-0 guard from Lapwai; Don Singland, a 6-4 forward from Caldwell; and Jim Worthington, a 6-8 center from Capital in Boise.

Basketball tournament to begin here Monday

TWIN FALLS — Perhaps the first basketball tournament ever held in July in Twin Falls unfolds Monday through Wednesday when the Basketball Congress International teams of Idaho get together to determine the lineup for national competition.

The Idaho team will draw its membership from underclassmen from all parts of the state, meaning all of the players who participate in the tournament next week will be playing in their high school teams this winter.

The South team, under the direction of Twin Falls Coach John Astorquia, has been working out this past week in Bralin gymnasium.

"Looking at the posters of the other parts of the state, we will be a little taller than the others but we don't have the size, the bulk that some of the others do," the coach said. "I was pretty happy with the work the boys have put into this and the way the pairings for the tournament are drawn up, we should have a chance of getting pretty good representation on the state team."

The teams should start arriving in Twin Falls Sunday with competition opening at 10 a.m. Monday with all games slated at College of Southern Idaho gymnasium.

The schedule includes: Monday, 10 a.m., North vs. South; 11:30 a.m., East vs. West; 5 p.m., North vs. West, and 8 p.m., South vs. East.

Tuesday, 10 a.m., North vs. East; 11:30 a.m., West vs. South; 6:30 p.m., second place vs. third place and 8 p.m., first place vs. fourth place.

The consolation game is slated for 10 a.m. Wednesday with the tournament championship being decided at 11:30 a.m.

"Judging from the number of returning starters from the various districts last year, I would assume that the East (Boise area) would have to be the favorite," Astorquia said.

"They have good experience. Inside with good rebounding and we can shoot the ball from the outside."

The team that wins the title places four men on the Idaho team that will travel to Phoenix the following week to meet some high-powered competition from several states and metropolitan areas. The title team also wins the Idaho head coaching position for the state team. The runner-up team gets two players and its coach becomes the assistant. The other two teams place two men each and the four participating coaches will choose two other "at-large" players.

Quarterback sagas add spice to finals

By DAVE GOLDBERG AP Sports Writer

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — When Chuck Fusina throws a pass, the ball sometimes flutters out of his hand like a wounded duck. When 37-year-old Greg Landry drops back, you can almost hear the creaking of damaged knees and ankles.

But the two quarterbacks in Sunday night's United States Football League championship game share one trait — hearts and minds that make them winners.

"Landry, what can you say about him?" asked Philadelphia Stars Coach Jim Mora, who figures that one of the keys to beating the Arizona Wranglers is stopping Landry. "He's so experienced. He has so much poise. You know you're not going to rattle him. He just finds a way to get it done."

Which is exactly what Landry and Arizona Coach George Allen say about Fusina, who found a home with the Stars after being released by Tampa Bay and San Francisco of the National Football League. He was the USFL's top-rated quarterback this season. "He's like a lot of the Penn State players I knew when I was with Detroit," said Landry. "He's a character player. He knows his own strengths and weaknesses. He knows how to win."

If it weren't for the USFL, Fusina would probably be in graduate school or embarking on a business career. A star at Penn State, he was a fifth-round draft choice by Tampa Bay, but he played less than 10 minutes in two seasons there, was released in training camp in 1983, and was released again by the San Francisco 49ers that same year.

"I thought I was finished," Fusina said. "I had really been beat with the 49ers and I thought maybe I really didn't have what it takes to play pro football. I talked it over with my wife and we wondered whether I should go to grad school or get a job."

Enter the USFL. The Stars and General Manager Carl Peterson, who convinced Fusina — who has a degree in industrial marketing from Penn State — to put aside plans for an MBA.

"Carl didn't promise me I'd be the starting quarterback or anything like that," Fusina said. "He simply said I'd get a shot. I was grateful for that." Fusina paced Philadelphia to a 15-3 regular season record last season, which ended with a two-point loss to Michigan in the USFL's first title game. This year, he led the Stars to a 16-2 record and two more wins in the playoffs by completing 61.9 percent of his passes for 2,837 yards and a 104.7 rating, tops in the league.

"A lot of people say he can't throw and he can't run at all," said Mora. "But the guy's a competitor and he's a winner. He's got something in his head that makes him know what he has to do."

"Landry's NFL career was considerably more successful, spanning 14 years, most of them with the Detroit Lions."

But he's found something in the USFL that he never had in the old league — the excitement of playing in a championship game. In fact, he was in only one NFL playoff game, Detroit's memorable 5-0 loss to Dallas in 1970.

"You know, I really didn't appreciate it at the time. I just really took the playoffs for granted," he said. "When I was released by the Colts I knew I could still play and I had a couple of offers from NFL teams, but I never expected to be in a championship game."

While weighing the NFL offers, he got one from George Allen, the then-Chicago Blitz. He took it, and started most of last season until he broke an ankle and injured knee ligaments against the New Jersey Generals late in the season.

Still, as an undrafted scrambling quarterback from Detroit, he knew how to rehabilitate himself and even with the Blitz moving to Arizona for this season in a franchise swap with the old Wranglers, he never really considered retirement.

"I got a call from Joe Schmidt, my old coach with Detroit," Landry recalls. "He said, 'If you still enjoy playing, make them tear the jersey off you.' I still enjoy playing, so I said I'd play one more year and quit if I couldn't do the job."

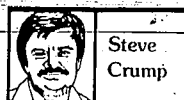

He did the job, completing 283 of 449 passes for 3,674 yards, and was second to Houston's Jim Kelly among Western Conference quarterbacks.

ISU's Peterson tries to make NFL Cowboys the hard way

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. — Having found the front door barred, Paul Peterson is trying to become a National Football League quarterback by the back door.

The former Idaho State University quarterback is one of six people signal-callers showing their stuff this week for the toughest organization in professional football, the Dallas Cowboys. If he makes it through Saturday's rookie scrimmage and next week's round of cuts, he'll have to return in two weeks to try to beat out two or three free agents for the right to try to take away Gary Hogeboom's job as backup to Danny White.

"If the life of an NFL free agent sounds like an uphill battle, it is. It's a big mental game," says Peterson, who set Idaho State's career and single-season passing and total offense records in two years at the Pocatello school. "At times, you think about the odds and you get discouraged. There are guys here who are bigger and run faster than me, but I've got to prove that I'm a nobody here who can throw the ball better than I can." Peterson was chosen in the 20th and final round of last winter's United States Football League draft by the now-defunct Washington Federals, but didn't get a serious offer from the financially troubled team. To his disappointment, he was not selected by any NFL club in the other league's draft in May.

But when he returned to his hometown from getting the bad news that night, a representative of the Cowboys was waiting on his doorstep with a free agent contract. "I signed about 3:30 in the morning," says Peterson. "The draft was on a Tuesday and this guy had been in town since Monday just waiting to see what would happen."

The Cowboys, Peterson explains, go to greater lengths than most other NFL teams to assure a wide assortment of rookies and free agents from which to choose. Before they get down to two quarterbacks when the season starts in September — a third will be kept on the taxi squad — Dallas will have looked at hundreds and signed a dozen to make good contracts like Peterson's.

"Yesterday (Tuesday) all I got to do was hand of, so I was pretty discouraged," Peterson says. "But today (Wednesday), I got to throw quite a bit, and I did all right. How am I doing? I really don't know. Nobody tells you anything. I think I'm holding my own."

It took Hogeboom, who played his college football at obscure Central Michigan University, three seasons to crack the Cowboys' roster; he finally replaced former Nevada-Las Vegas quarterback Glenn Carano in Dallas' No. 2 signal-caller last year; Carano went on to sign a USFL contract after spending seven seasons playing second banana to White and Roger Staubach before him.

Peterson's first task will be to raise more eyebrows than competitors such as former University of Virginia quarterback Wayne Schuchter, Notre Dame third-stringer Scott Grooms, San Diego State's Mark McKay and Steve Pellier of the University of Washington. Dallas' fifth-round draft choice last spring. "It's pretty basic stuff," Peterson says. "They gave us a little handout with about a dozen plays — different pass routes, mostly."

Peterson figures he's in a better position with the Cowboys than former Boise State running back Rodney Webster, who was also signed by Dallas as a free agent after missing the NFL draft.

"Rodney's doing OK, from what I can see, but there are so many running backs here — about 40 of them. At least I don't have those kinds of odds."

Peterson's ace in the hole is a phone call he got two days after he signed his Dallas contract. It was from the still unnamed Miami USFL ballclub that used to be the Washington Federals, offering him a contract.

"If I don't make this team, I figure I've got a chance with Miami. They have (Mike) Hohensee a second-year quarterback from the University of Minnesota, but they need a second quarterback and I think I might have a chance."

Last year at this time, Peterson had hoped for better prospects. Going into his senior year, many Big Sky Conference coaches — and some pro scouts — rated him as a better prospect than his predecessor at ISU, Mike Machurek. Machurek is now a third-year, third-string quarterback with the Detroit Lions.

"I can't think about what has happened," he says. "I'm going to play pro football, this is my chance to do it. This is what I've been working for."

Jordan dazzles home folks as Olympians beat NBA stars again

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Michael Jordan made a triumphant return to North Carolina Tuesday and led the U.S. Olympic basketball team to its sixth straight victory, a 99-85 whipping of a team of National Basketball Association All-Stars.

Jordan, last year's Collegiate Player of the Year under North Carolina coach Dean Smith, shook off a shooting slump to score 25 points as the Olympic team builds momentum for the summer games in Los Angeles. In five previous outings, Jordan was 29-of-63 from the field for 46 percent. Thursday night, he was 10-of-19 from the floor, including 6-of-14 in the second half.

"My role is no different than it was at North Carolina," Jordan said. "I'm trying to get inside, penetrate and draw fouls."

Jordan achieved his goal, scoring most of his points on follow shots, layups and dunk shots.

"He was excellent inside," said U.S. Olympic coach Bobby Knight, who moved Jordan from his natural guard spot to the forward position.

"I'm getting adjusted to it. I'm playing against a lot bigger guys," Jordan said. "I have a little advantage with my quickness. That should prepare me, well for what will happen in the NBA."

Jordan also got favorable reviews from his opponents, many of whom he will be facing this fall as a rookie with the Chicago Bulls. Jordan forfeited his final year of eligibility at North Carolina.

"Michael Jordan makes the team a great team," said

Kenny Carr, a member of the gold medal-winning 1976 U.S. Olympic squad. "I would hate to see the outcome if they didn't have him. I'm glad he's on our side."

Indiana's Steve Alford, himself a 47 percent shooter in five previous games, was 5-of-11 in the second half and finished with 15 points, while Sam Perkins of North Carolina and Alvin Robertson of Arkansas had 12 apiece.

The Olympians broke to a 15-4 lead in the first six minutes and the NBA squad never recovered. A Kenny Carr jumper with 55 seconds left pulled the NBA team to within 38-30 but two free throws by Chris Mullin of St. John's and Robertson's jumper at the buzzer gave the U.S. team a 42-30 half-time edge.

An 8-0 run late in the second half, in which Leon Wood scored four points, gave the U.S. its biggest lead at 80-61. It was then that Olympic coach Bobby Knight emptied his bench.

Carr led the NBA team with 16 points and Thurl Bailey added 15. Walter Davis and Eric "Sleazy" Floyd added 13 points apiece. James Worthy and Frank Johnson had 12 each.

The U.S. team has three exhibition games remaining. It will play in Milwaukee Friday and move on to Phoenix July 21 before finishing at San Diego July 25.

Viola scatters five hits as Minnesota trims Detroit 4-2

By The Associated Press

Frank Viola scattered five Detroit hits over eight innings to pick up his sixth straight victory and Gary Gattelli cracked a two-out seventh-inning triple to rally the Detroit Tigers 4-2.

The Twins were trailing 1-0 before their comeback in the bottom of the seventh.

Randy Bush started the inning with a double off Dan Petry, 11-4. Two outs later, Gattelli doubled and Houston Jimenez and Kirby Puckett followed with RBI singles.

Minnesota added a run in the eighth when Dave Engle had a one-out single and later scored on Brunansky's groundout.

Viola, 10-7, allowed a home run to Detroit's Barbara Garbow, his third, in the sixth. Viola struck out five and walked one and retired 12 batters.

The American League East-leading Tigers are now 22-23 since their torrid 35-5 start.

In other afternoon AL action, Dave Kingman's 24th home run of the year capped a six-run, seventh-inning explosion that rallied the Oakland A's past the Toronto Blue Jays 7-4.

Eddie Murray and Wayne Davis clouted home runs as Storm Glass and Sammy Stewart combined on a four-hitter as the Baltimore Orioles beat the Chicago White Sox 2-1 in the first game of a twin-night doubleheader.

In AL night action, Phil Niekro scattered seven hits over seven innings for his 12th victory and Dave Winfield drilled the first of four consecutive homers to lead off the bottom of the 10th inning, lifting the Chicago Cubs to a 3-2 victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers.

In AL night action, Phil Niekro scattered seven hits over seven innings for his 12th victory and Dave Winfield drilled the first of four consecutive homers to lead off the bottom of the 10th inning, lifting the Chicago Cubs to a 3-2 victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers.

In the National League, Ryne Sandberg homered to lead off the bottom of the 10th inning, lifting the Chicago Cubs to a 3-2 victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers.

Los Angeles Carner drove in three runs with a homer and a two-run single to back the combined six-hit pitching of Bryn Smith and two relievers as the Cincinnati Expos defeated the Montreal Red Sox.

Jose DeLeon struck out 12 batters in eight innings and Tony Pena's run-scoring double capped a three-run fifth inning as the Pittsburgh Pirates beat the San Francisco Giants 6-3.

Keith Hernandez and Mike Fitzgerald each drove in a pair of runs in a five-run ninth inning to give the New York Mets an 8-6 victory over the Atlanta Braves.

Kevin McReynolds rapped his 12th home run and Eric Show and Craig Lefferts combined on a four-hitler, leading the San Diego Padres to a 4-1 triumph over Joaquin Andujar and the St. Louis Cardinals.

Steve Carlton pitched a five-hitger, threw seven innings and drove in two runs with a double, and Ozzie Virgil and Tim Lincecum each homered as the Philadelphia Phillies defeated the Houston Astros 5-3.

In late AL games on the West Coast, Milwaukee was at California and Boston visited Seattle.

Donnelley's has extra-inning win

TWIN FALLS — Donnelley's Sporting Goods needed nine innings to trim Miller Beer 6-5 in the only extra-inning game in slowpitch action Thursday night.

Donnelley's victory came despite a homer by the visitors' Ken Crist.

In other C play, Grand Round rolled over Valley Hill 24-5 while Seven-Eleven/Klover Klub outlasted Merchants 13-12.

The A-league results were marked by lopsided hits in Falls. Falls Brand thumped Cook's Pest Control 11-2, Barton's Club 9-3 trimmed Hawkins-Kawasaki 14-5, R.C. Cola walked Windbreak-Sewer-Water Specialty 20-5 and Bud Light beat Royal Lounge 9-3.

The Sponters beat Video West 10-3 and Tee Shirts Plus dropped Country Inn 8-2 in a pair of division battles.

With both main Olympic villages due to open Saturday, Los Angeles Olympic Organizing Committee President Peter Ueberroth said Thursday that living quarters and competition sites are 98 percent complete.

Speaking to reporters at what he called the final pre-Olympic press briefing, Ueberroth said: "We're going to be all-right financially. The surplus will be there."

The LAOOC had previously predicted a $15 million surplus. That's been reduced, he admitted, but wouldn't say by how much.

TWIN FALLS — The first annual Twin Falls Bank and Trust Women's Open Softball Tournament will kick off at 9 a.m. Saturday at Frontier Field.

The round-robin tournament will feature eight teams, including The Brand/Coors and Donnelly Sports/Latham Motors of Twin Falls; Coors of Boise; Bargar Mattson of Nampa; Cotton Tree Inn of Pocatello; Beebe Brothers of Idaho Falls; Hector's of Seattle and Tri-Ace of Salt Lake City.

According to tournament director Pat Labrum, Hector's is the favorite to win, followed by Bargar Mattson.

Saturday's games will run to 8 p.m. and Sunday's games will begin at 8 a.m. and run through 4:30 p.m. If tie-breakers are necessary they will be played at 6:30 p.m. Sunday. All games will be played at Frontier Field.

Mavericks decline bid war

DALLAS (AP) — The Dallas Mavericks have agreed not to match an offer the New York Knicks made to free-agent center Pat Cummings, Mavericks officials announced Thursday.

In return, the Knicks are giving Dallas their 1986 second-round draft choice and their 1988 third-round pick in the National Basketball Association's college player draft.

In announcing the Mavericks' decision, Player Personnel Director Rick Sund said, "Once we decided not to offer Pat's offer sheet, we were pleased to be able to recruit our initial investment in Pat."

The Mavericks traded their 1982 second-round selection to the Milwaukee Bucks for Cummings.

"Pat's free agent contract is excess of $3 million over a five-year period," Sund said. "This next season, including his signing bonus, would have cost us $800,000."

FCC keeps blackout rule

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Communications Commission refused Thursday to consider any changes to its rules governing cable TV blackouts of sporting events.

Those rules specify that a cable TV system located within 35 miles of a team's stadium can be forced to blackout the live transmission of a game at the stadium even though it is being carried by some cable channel the system normally broadcasts.

Henry Geller, the communications policy adviser to former President Jimmy Carter and now the director of Duke University's Washington Center for Public Policy Research, had urged the commission to expand the rule by allowing any professional sports team or league to demand a blackout of any game in the same sport on the same day, even if it did not involve the home team.

The FCC refused, noting Congress had specifically singled out home team games in the Sports Broadcast Act of 1961 to protect gate receipts. Geller has submitted no evidence that would justify a more restrictive rule, the commission added.

Giants, Vikings trade stars

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) — The New York Giants traded five-time All-Pro linebacker Brad Van Pelt to the Minnesota Vikings for fullback Tony Galbreath, the National Football League teams announced Thursday.

Van Pelt, 33, had been a starter with the Giants since 1974, a year after he was the team's second-round draft choice from Michigan State.

Last season, Van Pelt was fourth on the team with 82 tackles, including three quarterback sacks. He also had two interceptions, raising his career total to 18, tying him with Sam Huff for the all-time team lead for linebackers.

Van Pelt was All-Pro and played in the Pro Bowl from 1976-80.

"One of the main reasons we made this trade is because (linebacker) Matt Blair is having trouble with his left knee and had surgery on it this morning," said Vikings Coach Les Steckel. "We had talked to the Giants previously about a Galbreath-for-Van Pelt trade and finally decided to make the deal."

Van Pelt was away from his Michigan home and could not be reached for comment.

Bradshaw heads to TV booth

SHREVEPORT, La. (AP) — Terry Bradshaw, who hedged a month ago on his retirement plans; is now resigned to ending his professional football career and is headed for the broadcast booth for the CBS television network, the Shreveport Journal reported Thursday.

In a copyright story, the Journal quoted unidentified sources close to Bradshaw as saying that Bradshaw, who quarterbacked the Pittsburgh Steelers to four Super Bowl championships during his 14 years with the team — will be a color analyst for National Football League games on CBS.

The announcement is expected next week in New York and will mark the official signal that he is retiring, the newspaper said.

"I've had enough operations. I'm resigned to the fact I can't play," Bradshaw, who underwent an operation and months of rehabilitation after injuring his right arm in 1983, told the newspaper Wednesday from his ranch near Mansfield.

Celtics promote Rodgers

BOSTON (AP) — Jimmy Rodgers was named Thursday director of player personnel for the Boston Celtics and will remain as an assistant coach, a job he has held the past four years with the National Basketball Association team.

His appointment to the newly created position came two days after the official announcement of the retirement of Red Auerbach as the club's general manager. Jan Volk, who is less basketball oriented than Auerbach, is the new general manager of the NBA champions.

"To be a respected and solid member of the Celtic family and tradition is very important to me," said Rodgers, who came to Boston from the Cleveland Cavaliers where he was player personnel director for one season and assistant coach for eight seasons. "I am very happy that Red and Jan have such confidence in me and I'm looking forward to the added responsibilities and challenges."

TV money loss wounds small schools

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

College football

Remember the old television show "The Millionaire" where each week someone was the recipient of a million dollars from a fictional philanthropist with money to burn?

The recent Supreme Court ruling and Tuesday's meeting of major football-playing colleges in Chicago — which combined to put the NCAA out of the TV football business for 1984 — will dry up that kind of money for some conferences.

In 1983, the Division I-AA Southern and Southland conferences received $1.3 million apiece from football TV revenue and divided it among their members and the conferences.

Among other things, the money was used to run the respective conference offices and "hold championships" in other sports.

"They will have to look elsewhere in 1984.

The TV networks, which were committed to showing a number of Division I-AA, II and III games under the old NCAA plan, likely won't be interested in Southern Illinois and Western Carolina when they can go after the Notre Dame and Nebraska with much more flexibility than in the past.

"It's a fight for survival," says James Frank, commissioner of the Southwestern Athletic Conference, a league of predominantly black schools, including Grambling. "Obviously, this means more competition, more people out there trying to strike deals — not only the big boys, but small ones, as well."

"The I-AA schools will probably get bypassed, and so will the have-nots in I-A," says John Geis, director of the Southern Conference Service Bureau. "The networks will deal with a very, very select few schools, to nobody's surprise."

"The money is going to have to be made up from somewhere at some point. Maybe not this year, but somewhere down the line, or our schools face the distinct possibility of an assessment over and above their normal dues structure."

"A bunch of people won't get what they've been getting," adds Dick Oliver, commissioner of the Southland Conference. "We'll just have to devise some other system."

The Chicago vote was termed "a big setback" by Andy Mooradian, athletic director at the University of New Hampshire, executive director of the Yankee Conference and a member of the NCAA Football Television Committee. "The big thing we're concerned about right now is the I-AA championship (televised by ABC in the past).

"We're going to try and save it because it built up a lot of interest in our conference, gave us something to shoot for, helped us attendance-wise and brought in some money. It will be very difficult now to get exposure for I-AA and people were just getting to realize that I-AA plays pretty good football."

The Yankee Conference took in $647,000 last year in football TV revenue, Mooradian said, and "we'll have to try and get it from somewhere. Right now we're all scrambling to see what we can do. If we don't increase our revenue, we may have to cut back on some things we're doing so we come out in the black."

Mooradian said the NCAA TV Committee would meet next Tuesday "to try and sell the I-AA championship and to try and get a Thursday night (I-AA) package, maybe a combination of the two. As far as the Yankee Conference is concerned, right after that we'll see if anybody would be interested in some of our key games."

The Ohio Valley Conference received about $800,000 in football TV revenue last year and Commissioner Jim Delany says the money "meant about five grants-in-aid for students (per school), an extra coach and an athletic secretary."

Jon Vermer, the OVC's information director, said that "where we go from here we're not real sure. It's conceivable we'll try to do something on our own. It's definitely going to hurt us."

While some conferences are scrambling to work up TV deals, others are ahead of the game. The Mid-American Conference, a I-A league, and the Missouri Valley Conference, which consists of I-A and I-AA schools, will have 12-week, 12-game packages televised by SportsTime of St. Louis.

"The (Chicago) vote doesn't really change the things," says Jack Gregory, athletic director at Bowling Green. "We still have our own package, but it's a regional package."

Ivy League games will be aired on nine straight Saturdays by the Eastern Educational Network, a group of Public Broadcasting Service stations which reach 48 million households, mainly in New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey and New England.

James Litvack, executive director of the Council of Ivy League Presidents, said each of the eight Ivy schools would take in roughly what it earned from the now-defunct NCAA package.

The old NCAA plan guaranteed the Southland Conference two exposures every two years — every time an SLC team was shown constituted one exposure, so a conference game meant two exposures.

"Since there's no plan any more, we're obviously not guaranteed anything," says Oliver.

In April, the SLC signed an agreement with Premier Productions Inc. of Austin, Texas, giving the company the right to establish a market for the conference.

"But we really didn't have anything to sell until Tuesday," Oliver says. "They're working on a Saturday night package of no more than 12 games, and preferably 10."

"We don't know what we're looking at in dollars until they start coming in with some national advertising. But in 1982 we weren't on television, so we didn't make anything in TV revenue. Last year, we made $1.3 million and each school in the conference made well over $100,000 whether it was on TV or not."

"This year, we didn't anticipate anything, if the networks followed their normal pattern. Since we probably wouldn't be getting anything from ABC and CBS, we'll come out ahead because we'll get something from this package. But there's no doubt it won't be $1.3 million."

Alcott, Washam lead U.S. open field

PEABODY, Mass. (AP) — Consistent Amy Alcott and patient Jo Ann Washam shot one-under par 715 for a share of the first-round lead Thursday in the U.S. Women's Golf championship.

JAN STEPHENSON
Keeps hopes alive

Alcott, winner of 19 events in 10 years on the LPGA tour, and Washam, a "veteran" winless since 1979, were the only players in a field of 150 to break par as the 72-hole event returned to Salem Country Club after a 30-year absence.

Defending champion Jan Stephenson, bidding to become the fifth player to win consecutive Opens, Japan's Ayako Okamoto and amateur Joan Ellis of Tampa, Fla., fired par 72s for a tie one stroke behind the co-leaders.

Ellis, 22, moved up with a hole-in-one, the ninth since the U.S. Golf Association became sponsor of the Open in 1953. Using a driver, she sank her tee shot on the 203-yard, 15th hole.

"Some days you make bogeys and some days you make holes-in-one," she quipped. "But this is my first hole-in-one since I began playing golf 10 years ago."

Deadlocked at 73 were Patty Sheehan, Kathy Whitworth, Alice Miller, Amy Benz and Rosie Jones. Two-time U.S. Open champions

Donna Caponi and Hollis Stacy and onetime International champion Carole Charbonnier were in a pack at 74.

Local favorites Pat Bradley, the 1981 Open champion, and Jane Blalock were locked in a group at 76. Nancy Lopez was fanned at 77.

Alcott and Washam fashioned their par-busting rounds while starting 16 minutes apart in midmorning. Alcott went out in par 36 and came back in one-under 35. Washam took a 38 on the front nine, then blazed home with a 33.

"I'm very pleased with a very consistent round of golf," Alcott, 29, said. "This is not an easy golf course. It is not set up for phenomenal rounds. But I was consistent. And consistency means success in professional golf."

Washam said she has been "hitting the ball pretty well" and was not discouraged when she reached the turn two over par.

Stephenson, winner on the tour this year, said she didn't hit the ball as close to the hole as she usually does but "I'm happy with my start." She began the tournament with a bogey 5 on the first hole, and "lagged two or three putts after that."

The second round is scheduled for Friday. The field then will be cut to the low 60 scorers and ties for the final 36 holes.

Wee Willie tops PGA event

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. (AP) — Willie Wood, the slightly built rookie called "Wee Willie," birdied half the holes he played, shot an 8-under-par 63 and established a two-stroke lead Thursday in the first round of the $50,000 Anheuser-Busch Golf Classic.

"Just one of those days," the 5-foot-7, 135-pounder said after he'd matched the record on the 6,746-yard Kingsmill Golf Club course.

"It's not a real long golf course, and that helps me. There was no wind. The greens were soft and you could fire the ball right at the hole."

Host pro Curtis Strange, whose home is on this course, regained the lead on such, that has eluded him much of the season and had a 65 that left him second alone.

"We played pretty well—the last couple of months," said Strange, who was third in the U.S. Open. "But I haven't been putting well, or scoring well."

"Today, the putter got back on the track," said Strange, who dropped a pair of 25-footers and holed four more from the 12-18 foot range.

Lindy Miller was next with a 66 in the hot, humid weather.

Lanny Wadkins, who has taken five titles in the last two seasons but has yet to win this year, and Bruce Lietzke led the group at 67, 4-under-par.

Also at that figure were Tim Simpson, Vance Heafner, Ralph Landrum, Mike Reid, rookie Joey Sindelar and Mike Smith.

Smith, 33, a career struggler now in his fourth season on the tour, blamed tour officials for the only bogey of his round, which came on his final hole.

"I don't think I'd have bogeyed that hole except they were rushing us. A Tour official was sitting there in a cart with a stop-watch on us. I lost my timing, lost my head a little bit,"

Smith said.

Smith, who was in the first group off the tee, said a tour official warned his group they were playing too slowly as they played their 16th hole.

"They were rushing us, running us around the course," Smith said. "I don't think it's right. I'm really upset."

Clyde Mangum, deputy commissioner of the tour, said he would comment on the incident until he had an opportunity to talk with Smith probably on Friday.

Breakdancing: Not as new as some think

But definitely fine poppin'

By JOE NEAVE
Times-News correspondent

TWIN FALLS — The Twin City Crew, a team of breakdancers, is tuning up for a contest out on the city bandshell. After taping a sheet of linoleum to the bandshell floor, they plug in a cassette, don nylon jackets and pants, and start to pop.

Songs by "Grand Master Flash and the Freeze Five" boom from their box and a small crowd of onlookers quickly forms, lured away from their lawnchairs and coolers to watch the breakdancing — the newest dance craze.

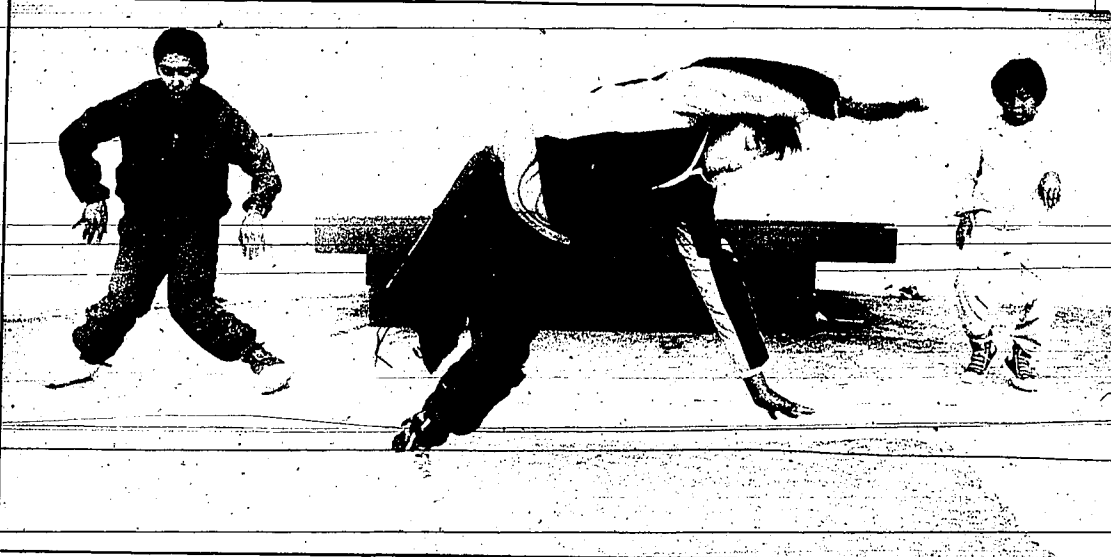

Or maybe not so new. Hollywood has come out with at least four movies this year on breakdancing, and is busy now displaying it to the world with breathless abandon. But Hollywood is usually a good 10 years behind the times.

"I first saw it in Phoenix when I was in the fourth grade," says City Crew member David Alonzo, now 17. "I didn't like it much then. I didn't even like the music. Then a while ago I saw another kid in Twin Falls who was doing it and he was getting a lot of attention so I decided he was doing it, I wanted to do it too."

Alonzo's street name is Mr. Freeze. Also with him are Dr. Fresh (Victor Cantu Jr., 14), and Lil' Rock (Joe Trevino, 10). The two other members of the City Crew who couldn't make it to tonight's practice are Fast Break (Larry Villafranco, 17) and Flip Rock (Ventura Sallas, 15).

The City Crew members all began breakdancing together about six months ago, Alonzo says. They recently appeared at a dance recital with Willa Dean Nelson at the College of Southern Idaho. Most of their moves are homegrown variations on whatever seems to go well with the rhythmic beat of the music. Even a "standard" move in breakdancing — has individual nuances depending on the performer.

"Everybody does a shuffle, but every shuffle is different," says Alonzo. "We don't like telling anyone else our moves. Then they'll see it and bite it (steal it). When you see one guy bite his finger, that means he's watching someone else bite his move."

Glossary for breakdancers — C2

Cantu adds, "And that can lead to arguments." With all the airplay in commercials, videos, television shows and movies that breakdancing has received in the past year, Alonzo says he is often asked to instruct others. He is teaching his sister, Delma, to help her start a girl's team.

All has not been fun and glory for the City Crew, despite breakdancing's popularity among the younger crowd. They have had difficulties finding a floor to practice on, and say they are not welcome at some social functions.

"At a Mormon Church dance when we started popping they told us to get out. They didn't tell us why. We just went because we like to dance," Alonzo says. "They won't let their kids do it either. Of course there's a lot of kids who go out without ever having danced before and say 'I'm gonna do a head spin,' and flip on their heads. That's not smart."

"There's more to the dance than making a few odd-looking contortions in time with music," Cantu says.

"Some kids think just because they do the Moonwalk (a float popularized by Michael Jackson) that they're breakdancing. You've got to be able to pop and break," he says.

One feature of breakdancing is the challenge, in which groups or individuals will have a battle of the breakers, with contenders trying to burn each other by making the better move. The City Crew, which Alonzo says is the only organized group of breakdancers in Twin Falls, was recently challenged by Jerome.

"They didn't know how to break that good or pop that good. They weren't much. We'll challenge anyone who's willing," he says.

"There are several attractions to this style of dance, City Crew members say.

"It's the in thing, it'll stay around," Alonzo says. "I also do it for the exercise, and it keeps me out of trouble. Since I started dancing and stuff I've quit partying."

A lot of the breaking can be hard on one's body, since dances are done on hard floors to enhance the spinning movements. Stories of dancers getting hurt are well known among dancers, and Alonzo says stretching out before going into a routine is important.

"Your chest and wrists get sore from continually shifting weight. I'd like to tell everyone not to do a headspin. You have to have really strong neck muscles to support your weight. And to wear pads — knee pads, elbow pads," he says.

The City Crew plans to enter a contest scheduled for July 21 at the Lynwood Shopping Center. They've been working on a synchronized routine, and expect to do well in the group competition.

"Our best member has got to be Larry Villafranco," Alonzo says. "He can break and pop better than any of us. We're all about the same, but Larry's got a unique style."

The head spins, hand spins, windmill and eggroll are some of the most difficult moves to master, according to the City Crew. They try to practice together every Sunday. Some of the people who've made it on television, but most come from whatever feels right.

"I don't get much time to watch TV. I usually practice at home in front of the mirror," Alonzo says.

Delma Alonzo, David's sister, says she knows of only three girls in town who breakdance, including herself. She's not sure of the reason for its unpopularity among women.

"I guess most girls don't think it's feminine or something," she says.

It's important to have the right surface for many of the breaks. Nylon warm-up suits or sweats are the preferred wear.

Exhibit for rockhounds dazzles eyes with unique creations

By TERRY RICH HARTLEY
Times-News correspondent

TWIN FALLS — Herrold Museum's new display, opening Tuesday, promises to be an educational experience for Magic Valley rockhounds and a real eye-pleaser for those who just enjoy looking at nature's beautiful creations.

From the "David and Iva Mitchell Gem and Mineral collection" curator of exhibits, Rodney Burks, and curator of collections, Phyllis Morgri, have chosen 50 crystals collected throughout the U.S. by the Mitchells and willed to the museum by pre-arrangement with the late Norman Herrold.

"We've chosen these 50 to exhibit out of some three or four thousand that we have," said Burks. "Not so much because they're finer examples, but because they show various things we want to show."

Burks invites the public to attend a session at 7:30 p.m., July 17, at which time a film will be shown on the subject of crystals, and Bureau of Land Management geologist, Larry Dee, will talk on identification of crystals and how they are formed.

Noting that there's a real interest in Magic Valley because Idaho is loaded with gems and minerals, the curator expects a good turnout for the session. "After all," he says, "Idaho is the Gem State."

He says that crystals need a medium in which to grow, such as mud or sand. "People can hardly believe that some of these aren't man-made."

Burks points out three basic ways nature does her artwork in creating crystals. The first is called "solution," and occurs when water evaporates from a salt solution to form salt crystals.

"Fusion" is similar to the formation of ice crystals when water freezes, while "vapors" is the least common way, occurs when a gas cools and a solid crystal is created much in the way snowflakes form from water vapor.

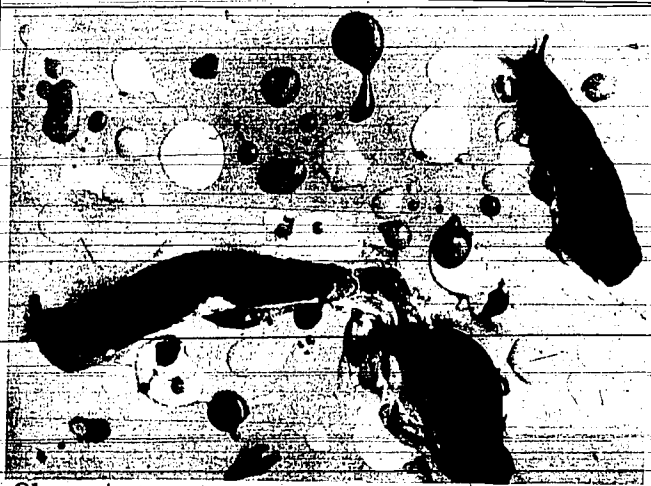

Geologist Dee points out that "crystals are probably the most interesting way to collect minerals because of their appearance. There's an intrinsic value to them because of their color, shape and sharp angles."

He agrees with Dee that a lot of people can't believe they could actually be created by nature since many crystals appear to be carved and polished.

Calling mineral collecting among the top two or three hobbies, the geologist thinks it's a great way for families to hobbly together and get into the out of doors. "And," he claims, "it's not too difficult to learn."

Dee says that after about a 25-minute movie and a 30 to 40-minute lecture, that those attending the session Tuesday night will be given some hands-on experience in identifying the numerous types of crystals.

'Karate kid' a summer rarity

By PAT MARCANTONIO
Times-News writer

"The Karate Kid" is a rarity. It's a good youth movie with none of the ultra-violence, sex or exploitation typical of most summer teenage films. It has wit, point and pace, and my gosh, even is heartwarming.

The film is about Daniel, a likeable good-humored teenager, transplanted by his divorced mother from New Jersey to the palm tree living of California.

Things get off to a relatively good start for Daniel. He's invited to a beach party where he meets a cute rich California girl. Things begin to go bad, however, when he gets on the wrong side of her ex-boy friend, a Karate abusing blond hulk.

The boy friend and his oversized companions wage a war of bullying on Daniel, whose meek karate skills are no match for theirs.

On Daniel's side, however, is a handyman from Okinawa who is willing to teach him karate. In the ensuing apprenticeship, Daniel learns not only the martial art, but the quiet beauty of its philosophy.

The relationship between the two and the older man is the core of the movie as teacher and pupil become friends.

Played by Pat Morita, the handyman is no stereotypical Oriental. Gratefully, he avoids those portraits of a mystic.

Guru-type alternately old platitudes and Karate.

Instead Morita, bearded, wise-cracking restaurant owner, "Happy Days," offers us a character with the right portions of strict caring.

As Daniel, Ralph Macchio is a champ. He gives a jaunty

Animals, treats part of circus' lure

By TERRY RICH HARTLEY

TWIN FALLS — If the aromas of buttered popcorn, cotton candy and hot dogs aren't enough to rouse you out next Friday, then maybe you'll respond to the throaty growls of wild animals, the antics of clowns and the thrills of a high trapeze act.

Sponsored by the Twin Falls Fireman's Benefit Fund, The American Continental Circus is planning two shows for July 20 at the Twin Falls County Fairgrounds in Filer.

Bill Hanchey, vice-president of the Fireman's Fund, says, "This will be one of the largest circuses in the state. They perform all the way from Texas to Canada. We've had them here two times before and they are real good."

"There will be about 20 different shows and the entire performance should last about three hours," Hanchey says.

Rosaire's Mixed Wild Animals in which the trainer works with beasts that are all enemies in their natural habitat.

"The Flying Caballinis" hail from Chile and are expected to perform a triple somersault and the passing leap of death from tons of overhead.

Tons and tons of performing pachyderms will be presented by Tommy and Poni Poni Knocho for those thrilled by elephants, while acrobats,

TV chef makes it in film

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — For actor Pat Morita, known to TV audiences as Arnold on "Happy Days," it's taken 52 years to land a major movie role, but then the Japanese-American entertainer is used to being a late bloomer.

Morita, critically acclaimed for his portrayal of the mentor, Miyagi, in the new movie, "The Karate Kid," was stricken at age 27 with spinal tuberculosis and was hospitalized for the next nine years.

He spent seven of those years lying prone in a body cast. Then at 11 he finally learned to walk, only to face new hardship: World War II. He says that a "well-meaning FBI agent" escorted him from the hospital to an internment camp with other Japanese Americans.

Following the war, Morita worked with computers and didn't try to break into show business until he was about 30, beginning as a stand-up comic at a Japanese nightclub in San Francisco.

In the screen credit for "The Karate Kid," Morita, who adopted the name Pat years ago — reverted to his real first name, Noriyuki.

"I wanted to honor my father and mother," he said. "Unfortunately, they didn't quite live long enough to see their Noriyuki accomplish anything in life. I guess it's a way of paying a small tribute, saying thanks to them."

Breakdancing

Phenomenon of breakdancing carries own language

TWIN FALLS — The phenomenon of breakdancing, while seemingly new, is another phase in the genre of jazz dancing, according to Kelli Turner of Mauldin's Dance Academy.

"It's a jazz idiom, like disco was. There's a mass appeal about it because it's very dynamic. It's fascinating. You can sit there and watch them forever. It's captivating and fresh," Turner says.

Since the movie "Breakin'" came out, Turner says she has been besieged by requests for instruction in breakdancing, but adds that it really cannot be taught.

"I've had parents ask if I could teach my 10-year-old children. They're in sixth grade and up and are able to do something with it. I don't profess to teach it, and I don't think any of the dance studios in town do," she says.

Here is a short breakdancing dictionary:

- Bite — Stealing a move from another dancer.
- Breaking — Moves performed on the floor, often some form of spin.
- Burned — Someone who has been beaten in a contest.
- Electric boogy — Simulating electric shocks running through one's body.
- Floater — When a dancer moves across the floor without apparently moving his feet. Michael Jackson took the fame for the Moonwalk, a type of float.

Head Spin — Same as a pirouette in ballet, but done on one's head instead of on the toe.

Knee spin — All weight balanced on one knee, then spinning on the floor.

Locking — Cutting another dancer down. Burning.

Popping — Moves performed while standing.

Suicide — Dancer stands, then throws himself over to land on his back.

Wacked or Wack — When someone messes up a move.

Karate

performance of a young man whose growing pains are compounded by physical ones from the regular beatings he receives at the hands of the young thugs.

"The Karate Kid" does have its bad moves. The supporting cast mostly is composed of your standard teenage and adult personalities. At times, the dialogue is a little hard to swallow. Example: Daniel is told, "Fighting won't solve anything." He replies, "Neither will palm trees."

Also, the climactic karate battle between Daniel and the beach boy gang is marginally incredible.

Yet for the most part, its fresh-upbeat approach to friendship and a teenager growing makes "The Karate Kid" a small victory.

Circus

Jugglers and clowns will be in strong evidence.

"The Zamudios Giant Wheel of Death" is a terrifying—thirty-foot gyrating wheel on which the performer will walk blindfolded.

Nothing that the Fireman's Ball is the only other fund raiser they hold. Hanchey says that they haven't been able to bring the circus to Magic Valley on an annual basis because they don't always come in our direction.

"They were here seven years ago, then again five years ago," he says. "So we know they're good. They're no fly-by-nighters."

"We had a professional group selling tickets by telephone and they sold between six and eight thousand tickets for us," he says. "But, we're hoping for about ten thousand."

He points out that some tickets will be donated to Head Start and other charitable organizations for children who can't afford them. Entrance is $6.00 adults, $3.00 children or $15 for two adults and three children.

Hanchey says that tickets will be available at the gate, or by calling 734-5090 or 733-6433.

And, even though some tickets were printed for the 2 p.m. show, they can be used either at 2 p.m. or the late show at 7 p.m. Doors open one hour before show time.

"The music they need to dance to is not readily available, yet in Twin Falls. Often the tapes must be specially ordered, or someone makes a run to Salt Lake City to find them."

"Grand Master Flash and the Freeze Five have the best music on the street. Also, anything by Sugar Hill Productions is good," Alonzo says.

When asked if he thinks breakdancing is just another fad, he says "A fad? I'll be doing this for a long time."

James Bond's sports car ages gracefully as Sean Connery

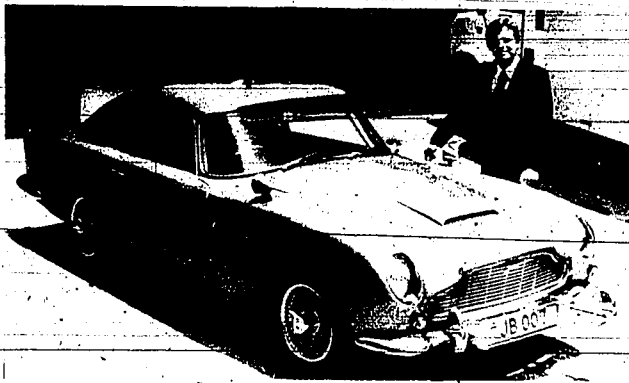

By PAUL DEAN
The Los Angeles Times

LOS ANGELES — "Morning, Q."
"Morning, 007."
"Where's my Bentley?"
"It's had its day, I'm afraid."
"But it's never let me down."
"M's orders, 007. You'll be using this Aston Martin DB5 with modifications. Now, pay attention, please. Windscreens, bulletproof...."

With that dialogue in an early scene from "Goldfinger," James Bond met a suave sports car that in real life has aged as magnificently as Sean Connery while upstaging every other vehicle in movies.

And for the last three weeks, Southern California has been gawking at its mechanical glamour as part of the promotion surrounding Sunday's auction of an 007 Aston Martin DB5. The silver-gray bag of tricks — fender machine guns, battering rams and ejector seat — sold for just about what the car originally cost United Artists — $80,000.

"When I heard that it was to be sold, I remembered everything it had done in the movie and said to myself: 'Wow, I've just got to have that,'" said Dick Barbour of San Diego, the automobile dealer-collector-racer who bought the long-lost legend. "Why? First of all, I love James Bond movies because I love cars; I love airplanes; I love boats, action, excitement and intrigue ... and have since the 'Adventures of Mr. Toad' as a kid."

Bond, of course, is alive only in fantasies. He is a character in a book, an actor playing a role; an image on a billboard. Yet James Bond's car ... well, that obviously was a tangible something of flesh and metal and so visually close to a stock Aston Martin that it had to be the real, durable thing.

Rick Cole, president of Rick Cole Auctions and presiding gavel at last weekend's sale, realized that particular bonus going in: "I've handled movie cars in the past; the Batmobile that sold for $77,000, the cars from 'The Great Race' but their attraction was as mock-ups and pieces of movie memorabilia, not as cars. Even without the gadgets, this Aston Martin stands as a classic performance car and certainly one of the 'quickest' DB5s I've ever driven. With the gadgets, it becomes the most famous movie car in the world."

A 1975 biography of Aston Martin Ltd. notes, "As soon as the film 'Goldfinger' was shown, a massive wave of publicity hit us, the like of which no other car firm in history had ever experienced."

"All of a sudden, every 10-year-old boy knew the name Aston Martin ... and if we had been able to produce 50 DB5s per week then we could have sold them. Unfortunately, we were just able to do about 11."

England's Prince Andrew now occupies himself with helicopters; but when he was younger he enjoyed an electrically driven, one-third scale model of the Bond car that was his gift from Aston Martin at the age of 6.

"The royal sides," says the company's chronicle, "which told in confidence of the surprise for Her Majesty, had requested that apart from leaving out any machine guns, it would be appreciated if the capacity for squirting oil all over the palace furniture could be somewhat inhibited."

When Imitators are separated from repliers, the four cars used in the filming of 'Goldfinger' are believed to reside in ... Utah ... Tennessee, Pennsylvania and California.

Until the hammer fell Sunday, J. Ernest Hartz of San Francisco was the California owner of one 007 DB5. He is a corporate counsel, a former Oxford scholar and a devout Bon-dophile, and for six months the car was the Hartz' pride, joy, love, mischief, fun and fantasy and a definite contrast to their 1980 Buick Electra.

Workers to give academy facelift

By DOUG WRIGHT
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Volunteers are needed Saturday to help give the Twin Falls Renaissance Academy of the Arts' 70-year-old building at 505 Second Avenue East a needed facelift.

The building, which originally housed the St. Edward's Church, needs painting both inside and out, some yard work, sewing, and carpentry work to make it look really good, says Marty Mead, a member of the Academy board of directors.

"Saturday, we plan to scrape and paint the outside and inside, build a ticket window in the front and do some sewing to improve the inside," said Mead. "The Academy also plans to build a wooden gazebo in the back of the building to conduct summer concerts outside, she added.

Workers, however, will not be asked to do all work and no pay, says Mead. The Academy will provide free entertainment in the form of Sylvia Walters, who sings and plays the guitar, and Mead, who also sings and plays the piano. Free food and drink for the work-day has also been donated by Albertson's, Swenson's, Twin Falls Beverage Co. and Coca-Cola.

Ernst Home Center, Koppel's Brownsville, Volco's Building Supply, and Sew-Clefy Fabrics have given the Academy most of the building materials, paint and fabric. Mead requests that volunteers bring rollers, paintbrushes, scrapers, ladders and hammers.

For the renovation effort, Kelly's Garden Center has agreed to do free landscaping, including the installation of a sprinkler system, added Mead.

The Academy, founded in 1982, instructs about 200 students a week in dance, voice, musical instruments, and drama, says Rick Strickland, who runs the teaching and entertainment part of the Academy.

The Academy also provides a stage for local artists, usually scheduling one or two concerts a week, and occasionally brings in nationally recognized performers.

People interested in helping overhaul the building should show up at the site anytime Saturday, said Mead.

What's what

When an amorous male spider drops by a female spider's abode to court her, he doesn't just jump on the web and head for the center. That would be suicide. She'd think him a captive insect and devour him. Instead, he stands at the web's edge and strums a little ditty on the silken suspension cord. When she feels his music in her feet, she slips into something comfortable, or whatever.

Some cattlemen took their beeves to the watering trough just before sale to add weight. We got the term "watered stock" from one meat peddler in particular named Daniel Drew. He'd buy 1,000 head, for example, load them up with sal, and drive them to the yards within a few days, about 10,000 pounds heavier. Incidentally, claim now is 99 percent of the commercially-raised feedlot cattle have time-release hormone pellets implanted under the skin of their ears.

ROCKNE'S CLASS

Ask the fellow on the next stool what Knute Rockne taught. No, besides football. He should say chemistry.

Chanel No. 5 was not the fifth perfume Coco Chanel turned out. It was designated "No. 5" in reference to her birthdate, August 5. She held it to be her lucky number.

The U.S. "million" is one followed by nine zeros. The British "million" is one followed by six zeros. It's a difference worth noting. If you're negotiating money, although as John Jacob Astor IV said, "A man who has a million dollars is as well off as if he were rich." The British refer to a one followed by nine zeros as a "milliard."

PRESIDENT'S SPEECH

When President Ronald Reagan makes a speech, it's immediately sent worldwide in 36 languages.

Curious, isn't it, that the quickest way to get to the back of the church is to walk in through the front door?

In the lingo of the great railroad era, those men who checked out the freight cars for hoboos were called "knockers."

Three out of four homicides committed by women are committed in their own homes.

The temperature of a sick peach tree often rises as much as 20 degrees F. above normal.

Don't pick up that pretty little blue-ringed octopus. Its venom is more poisonous than that of any spider or snake.

Daily Horoscope

GENERAL TENDENCIES: The today and gain more benefits from it, then you can have a happy time in the evening.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Don't take any risks with that new venture you think will be so great, and tonight you can get off to a good time.

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Get your regular work done very well your responsibilities and handle them in a meticulous, sure way. Don't argue with your mate in the morning.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Avoid any arguments with outsiders and maintain the peace. Tonight you can get some interesting work done well.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Get your work done in a most accurate way in the daytime, and tonight meet with associates. Take any necessary health treatments.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Make sure you do not get into amusements that are more expensive than you can afford. Plan the coming week's activities.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Study home conditions and know how to improve them quietly. Then tonight be with good friends at entertainments.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) You have to be careful with regular allies today - and don't speak unkindly otherwise there will be trouble.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21)

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) You feel depressed over lack of progress in daytime, but smile in the evening. Rid yourself of personal anxiety.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Every opportunity is yours during the daytime - show you have patience and can solve problems wisely.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to March 20) Find the right way to assist a friend in trouble who looks to you for assistance. Get your affairs in order in the evening.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY, he or she will understand what different problems are and should have a fine education in order to know how to solve them wisely. Provide cheerful surroundings for your progeny to grow in, otherwise a depressive can emerge here.

Valley happenings

Cheerleaders selling food

BLISS — The Bliss School cheerleading squad will hold a cooked food sale Saturday at the Bliss Country Store beginning at 10 a.m. The sale will feature home-baked bread, fudge, cookies and brownies. The proceeds from the food sale will go toward the cheerleader's uniforms.

Lecture on I.B. Perrine set

TWIN FALLS — A slide/tape lecture on I. B. Perrine will be given by Virginia Ricketts of Jerome, and J. Howard Moon of Filer, at 7:30 p.m. Monday in the CSI Votch building, first auditorium. The public program is sponsored by the South Central Idaho History Council in observance of the 100th anniversary of Perrine's arrival in the Blue Lakes area of the Snake River Canyon.

Life-saving course scheduled

TWIN FALLS — A class on how to give cardiopulmonary resuscitation to infants and children will be held at 10 a.m. Monday in the maternal/child unit at Magic Valley Regional Medical Center. For more information or to register for this free class, call 733-2460.

Christian women set picnic

HANSEN — Magic Valley Christian Women executive board will hold an alumni family picnic at Anderson Campgrounds, at 1 p.m. July 22. All past board members are invited. Those attending are to bring a main dish plus dessert or salad, drinks and table service. There will be miniature golf and other activities.

Alumni to meet at banquet

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls High School Alumni Association will hold its 14th annual banquet at noon July 20 at the Holiday Inn. All graduates of 50 years or more are invited, along with their spouse or guest. For further information contact Edna Carter Jakeway, 733-6170.

Cesarean birth class planned

TWIN FALLS — A cesarean birth class is scheduled at 7 p.m. Monday in the second floor conference room at Magic Valley Regional Medical Center. The single class includes discussion and a slide presentation about procedures, delivery and recovery after cesarean birth. The fee is $5 and participants must pre-register by calling 733-2120 between 8 a.m. and 4 p.m. Mondays through Fridays.

Retirees gather on Tuesday

TWIN FALLS — The Magic Valley chapter of the American Association of Retired Persons will hold a picnic at 10 a.m. Tuesday at Rock Creek Park, off Addison Avenue West, just west of the hospital. A short business meeting will precede the picnic. Members are asked to bring a covered dish and their own table service. Turkey will be furnished. New members are welcome.

Historical society to meet

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls County Historical Society will hold a picnic at the county museum in Curry at 6:30 p.m. Tuesday. The museum is located three miles west of Twin Falls on Highway 30. Displays include a special I. B. Perrine exhibit, country store, plus vintage barbershop and doctor's office. A blacksmith shop and hog butchering display are on the grounds.

Symms to speak at dinner

TWIN FALLS — Sen. Steve Symms will speak at a no-host dinner Wednesday evening at the Holiday Inn in Twin Falls. A no-host cocktail hour will begin at 7 p.m., followed by dinner at 8 p.m. The public is invited, according to Kathy Noh, state GOP committee woman. Cost is $8.25. Reservations should be made with Orriette Stinclair, 734-2515; Elaine Phillips, 734-3456; Dave Muirroe, 543-6161, or Noh, 733-3617.

Woman warns of assault by therapists

DEAR ABBY: I want to warn women against psychotherapists who have sex with their patients. It happened to me, and a year later, I am still devastated.

Two years ago, I went into psychoanalysis because of some recent personal tragedies that I couldn't handle. After many sessions, my therapist started to touch me — beginning with friendly pats and affectionate hugs. I didn't see what was coming. I was "in transference" at the time — projecting onto him the love that other important men in my life had rejected.

Then an entire session of "therapy" was spent rolling around on the floor of his office locked in embraces. (He billed me for that hour!)

I was in a state of emotional shock.

Abigail VanBuren
Dear Abby

terminated the analysis immediately, and sought help from an ethical analyst, the local rape and assault committee and a lawyer. I also filed a malpractice suit for these reasons:

When a woman is in therapy she's like a child — emotionally at the mercy of her therapist. It read that 5 percent of psychiatrists admit to having sex with their patients — which means there are probably more, but they won't admit it.)

The American Psychiatric Society

has taken the official position that once sex occurs with a patient, the therapy is destroyed. Few women take action against their therapists because they feel so ashamed.

So women, be warned. If a mental health professional starts to hug you, kiss you or go further, run like hell. He is sicker than you are!

I'm signing my real name and address, but please don't use it.

— ANONYMOUSLY GRATEFUL
DEAR GRATEFUL: All licensed therapists (psychiatrists, psychologists and counselors) are accountable for their professional conduct.

Patients should call their local mental health association to learn where to address their complaints. And they should do so promptly.

DEAR ABBY: How would you define "bedroom eyes"?

— JOHN, ANNETTE, JULIE
DEAR JOHN, ANNETTE, ETC.: "Bedroom eyes" are the kind of eyes that suggest mattress acrobatics. ("P.S. "Bedroom eyes" often lie in the eye of the beholder. And sometimes they just lie.)

(Every teen-ager should know the truth about drugs, sex and how to be happy. For Abby's booklet, send your name and address clearly printed with a check or money order for $2.50 (this includes postage) to: Abby, Teen Booklet, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.)
