Oakley shootings leave four dead

The shooting late Sunday in hospitals in Idaho and Pocatello

Taylor said getting the information together to learn exactly what happened is crucial and much of the story may never be known, Cassia County Under Sheriff Billy

Crystal said the names of the mother and two children would not be released until today, to give law enforcement authorities time to conduct investigations

He said he was hoping the two wounded men would soon be able to talk and provide some clues about how and why four people died. He also mentioned the shooting spree but added of there's had no past any previous problems with

Crystal said the estranged wife. He said he did not know how the two injured men happened to die with Mrs. Guerra

Crystal said three of the victims and the suspect's wife — were wounded about 3:30 a.m. beside a road in the foothills area southwest of Oakley. Crystal said all three victims had been traveling in a pickup truck, but were outside the truck when they were shot.

Ecklund,

After the three people were wounded, Taylor said, the suspect took the woman into his vehicle and drove to his own residence, several miles northwest of Oakley. At that time, the Guerras' children were at the home with a babysitter. Mrs. Guerra was shot again there and died about 5 a.m.

Crystal said it appeared she was trying to run from Guerra when she was killed just outside of the home. Guerra then picked up the two children and drove from the scene, Crystal said.

Taylor said residents living near the Guerra house heard the shots and went to investigate.

The neighbors discovered the woman's body and notified authorities about 5 a.m.

About the same time, Gee, although severely wounded, was able to get into his pickup truck at the scene of the original shooting and drive to Oakley where he summoned help and notified authorities. Gee told officers he left Eklund at the scene and that he believed he was dead. On arrival officers found Eklund was alive but also badly injured.

A police broadcast to all Magic Valley law enforcement officers asked for assistance in locating Guerra. He was reported traveling in a late model sedan and armed and dangerous.

The search was called off about 1 p.m. when Cassia County officers located the Guerra vehicle in a gravel pit about two miles from a main road northeast of Oakley.

Crystal said the children and Guerra were dead when found and a .357 caliber handgun, apparently the murder weapon, was in the vehicle. He estimated the three had not been dead long when the car was located. Taylor said it appeared the man had driven around awhile or parked in the gravel pit for several hours before deciding to take the lives of his children and himself.

Taylor said Guerra and his wife had been separated for about a year, and he did not know if they were divorced or just living apart. He said Guerra, a Peruvian national, worked in the Oakley area as a farm laborer and he did not know if Mrs. Guerra was employed.

Gee was listed in critical condition in the Pocatello Regional Medical Center late Sunday. Hospital officials said doctors were attempting to stabilize his condition prior to surgery.

Morning fire devastates old building

TWIN FALLS — Fire blazed through a former welding shop Sunday morning in Twin Falls, shooting flames high into the sky and causing an unexplained explosion.

No one apparently was injured, but residents of a seven-unit cluster of apartments next door were chased from their homes by the blaze.

Late Sunday morning, firefighters had controlled the flames and were knocking down dangerous, unsupported brickwork with jets of water before moving inside to douse smoldering spots.

By that time, the building at 305 Third St. East had been reduced to a burned-out hulk. Fire Commander Phil Clough said he expected some firefighters would remain at the scene for much of the day mopping up.

Steve Gobel, who lives in the corner apartment nearest the building, spotted smoke from the fire at about 6:30 a.m. and ran to the city police station less than a block away to turn in the alarm.

Flames already were leaping out of the roof as high as 50 feet in the air. Gobel told his uncle, Chet Gobel of Twin Falls.

Jerry Morton, 23, another resident of the apartments, was awakened by the arriving fire equipment.

"I looked out the window and saw the smoke and flames and I said 'Whoa — time to leave,'" Morton said later.

Police went through the complex and neighboring houses, knocking on doors to rouse sleeping residents.

When firefighters and police arrived, the blaze already had surged throughout the building, said public safety officer Dave Heldemann, one of the first responding traffic officers. He and other cross-trained police helped firefighters pour water

Hijackers release jet; take asylum in Iraq

By The Associated Press

Baghdad, Iraq — An Iranian policeman and a civilian family of four, including two young boys, on Sunday released a hijacked Iranian jetliner and set it on a course to return for political asylum in Iraq.

The policeman told reporters that he and the other hijackers were Iranian monarchists. He said they commandeered the Iran Air Boeing 727 with 118 other passengers and crew aboard by storming the cockpit and firing a warning shot during a domestic flight on Saturday.

The policeman said at the Baghdad airport news conference that woman and the boys, ages four and six, "helped" in the hijacking, but did not specify how.

After the plane was seized, it made stops refueling stops in Bahrain and Cairo, where 52 passengers were released.

The drama ended Sunday morning after the plane landed at a military airbase in southern Iraq, where the hijackers freed their remaining hostages and were granted asylum.

No one was reported hurt. The policeman said he made up an earlier report that someone had been shot to force authorities to meet their demands.

Iraqi authorities transferred the hijackers and the freed hostages to an Iraqi Airways Boeing 727 and flew them to Baghdad, where the 66 passengers and crew were taken by bus to a hotel. Some of them smiled and waved to reporters.

The official Iraqi News Agency quoted Baghdad authorities as saying the passengers and crew "can stay in Iraq, return to Iran or proceed to any other destination."

Hurricane Diana whips Florida coast

By The Associated Press

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla. — Tropical storm Diana lashed Florida's northeast coast with high tides, wall-like waves and 70 mph winds Sunday, prompting some seaside residents to pack up and flee and thousands more from Florida to North Carolina to prepare for a speedy evacuation.

"Coastal residents in northeast Florida, Georgia and South Carolina should be ready for quick action in case Diana becomes a hurricane," the National Hurricane Center said in a 10-p.m. statement, four hours after it issued a hurricane watch from St. Augustine to Oregon Inlet, N.C.

Diana was "strengthening and winds could reach hurricane force in the next few hours," the National Weather Service said at 6 p.m. EDT. A storm advisory issued four hours later said they were monitoring the storm with aircraft to see if it was strengthening.

If Diana stayed on her projected track, the center of the storm would move near or parallel to the coast, ordered by evening.

"However, any variation to that left will bring the center on the coast," the weather service said.

At 10 p.m. EDT, Diana's center was near latitude 29.7 north, longitude 80.6 west, or about 60 miles southeast of Jacksonville Beach. The weather service said there was a 70 percent chance the center of Diana would pass within 65 miles of Jacksonville through 6 p.m. Monday. Highest sustained winds were blowing at 70 mph, a storm becomes a hurricane when winds reach 75 mph.

Red Cross and Civil Defense authorities from Cape Canaveral to Jacksonville stood ready for a barrage.

"We've been on full operational alert since 3:30 p.m. Saturday," said John Nasser, director of Volusia County Civil Defense in Daytona Beach. "We've been watching this thing as it developed."

Gov. Bob Graham kept in touch with forecasters monitoring the storm's movement to help him decide whether evacuations were necessary, disaster experts said. None had been ordered by evening.

"The state is ready to act if it hits the coast," Steve Hudd, Graham's spokesman, said.

As the storm crawled north, civil defense officials in Georgia called for the voluntary evacuations of the "Golden Isles" Sunday night. Residents of Tybee Island near Savannah and Jekyll Island and Simons Island were urged to evacuate as tides up to 5 feet above normal were expected to flood causeways to the island Sunday night, officials said.

"Most everybody checked out today. We evacuated at 6 or 7 this evening," said Linda Williams, front desk clerk at the Hilton Hotel on Jekyll Island.

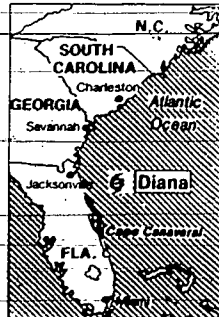

On St. Simons Island, about 75 residents of the Heritage Nursing Home were taken to the Glynn Brunswick Memorial Hospital in Brunswick, Ga.

"We're recommending (all residents) evacuate, secure loose articles," said Calhoun County, Ga., police Officer William Baker. "Small boats should be gotten out of water, also."

South Carolina set up a 2-hour command post and decreased the possible evacuations of Hilton Head and Fripp Islands. Monday's classes in Beaufort County schools were canceled because of Diana.

Diana also delayed the space shuttle Discovery's piggyback Journey Sunday to its Florida home.

Inexperience a key feature of Jerome prosecutor race

By DAVE LEWIS
Times-News writer

JEROME — When considering the three candidates in the Jerome County prosecuting attorney's race, one common trait voters will find in each is inexperience in the courtroom.

Although the problem of inexperience among prosecutors is neither unique to Jerome County nor insurmountable, there are concerns within the Jerome legal community over the problems a lack of time in a courtroom can cause.

The major problem most lawyers and a judge raise is the time it takes for a new and inexperienced prosecutor to learn the job, learn to run the office efficiently and find enough time to give to each case.

"Without experience, it's going to be a difficult job stepping in there and doing a good job..."
— Gene Fredericksen

is learning the job can lead to inadequate investigations and preparations.

Fredericksen says that, in turn, may result in the filing of charges against innocent people or delays in the prosecution of the guilty, he says.

Inexperience "hurts the guilty as well as the innocent," says Fredericksen, who served as the county's prosecutor for 10 years from 1974 through 1980.

The most difficult part of any lawyer's job is trial work, says John Heizer, a Jerome attorney with 17 years of trial experience.

"Although most good trial lawyers have a 'knack' for the job, Heizer says, the only way they can learn to function adequately in a courtroom is through experience.

"Without experience, it's going to be a difficult job stepping in there and doing a good job," he says.

An inexperienced prosecutor would have a "great chance" of losing a case, when faced with an experienced defense attorney, Heizer says.

Two cases pending in Jerome County that could cause problems with an inexperienced prosecutor are the pending first-degree murder trials of James D. Charbonneau and Cory Sellars.

It is possible one or both of these cases could carry over to the calendar of the new prosecutor after incumbent Des Adams steps down in January.

"It's going to put a tremendous burden on the new prosecutor because they're going to have to step into the middle of a case developed by another prosecutor," says Fredericksen.

But, a new prosecutor can get help from the Idaho Prosecuting Attorney's Association, by a number of ways, and the Idaho Attorney General's office also will provide help in some cases.

This help will soften the transition from the old to the new prosecutor's administration, says Jerome County Magistrate Judge Roger Burdick, who also served as the county's prosecutor from January to September 1981 before becoming magistrate.

Burdick says hard work and the outside help from others in the profession can help whoever becomes Jerome's new prosecutor meet the early challenges of the office.

He says it is premature to say that any of the candidates — Republican Francis M.

Winds threaten coasts, heat hits California

By The Associated Press

A triple-digit heat wave Sunday baked Southern California, where authorities said two toddlers died when left in a car for 21 hours, while gales menaced both coasts and the Plains cleaned up from 70 mph winds that snapped power lines and flipped cars.

Tropical storm Diana, about 60 miles off Daytona Beach, Fla., lurched toward land, where forecasters said it could develop into a minimal hurricane. Meanwhile, tropical storm Marie, 335 miles south of San Diego, Calif., moved slowly northward.

Gale warnings were posted for Southern California's coastal waters and all along the Atlantic seaboard from northeastern Florida to Virginia.

North Carolina's Outer Banks suffered minor beach erosion at high tide early Sunday, the National Weather Service said, warning of flooding and beach erosion elsewhere along the coast.

Forecasters said Marie might blow in rain and some relief from record high temperatures in Southern California, where air conditioners strained power supplies and beaches were jammed.

"By Tuesday, definitely by Wednesday, we'll be looking at a cooling trend," said weather service forecaster Dieter Croeger. But he added, "We're talking 5 to 10 degrees cooler, nothing exorbitant."

family's car with only its front windows slightly open.

The girls' father, Quindell Lewis, 24, was booked on two counts of involuntary manslaughter and two counts of felony child endangerment, the officer said.

"We're speculating the children may have suffocated or suffered heat prostration," said Lt. Paul Ybarondo, Autopsies were planned. On Thursday, an elderly Los Angeles man died of heat stroke.

The San Bernardino Freeway and a helicopter had to be called in to rescue an 8-year-old girl injured in a traffic accident Saturday. She was in critical condition Sunday.

The mercury was not expected to drop lower than 85 Sunday in Los Angeles, where the previous high minimum reading was 84.

Saturday's record 103-degree temperature sent half a million people to beaches, including one man obtained for sucking all of his clothes to cool off.

1878. Low marks were tied in Apalachicola, Fla., with 65, and Miami, with 70.

Heavy thunderstorms deluged parts of Oklahoma and Arkansas on Saturday night and early Sunday, the weather service said. Golf ball-size hail and blustering winds downed power lines in Menona, Okla., and a tornado was reported Saturday night in Murray County, Okla.

At least five vehicles were flipped by the bullying winds in Oklahoma. Gusts of 70 mph overturned two cars near Seminole around 1 a.m. EDT, the weather service said. And an 18-wheel tractor-trailer went over in an 80 mph gust near Paoli, state police said.

Man scheduled to die in chair

ANGOLA, La. (AP) — His appeals exhausted Sunday, a former altar boy convicted of murdering an 85-year-old blind woman was "in good spirits" and "prepared" to die early Monday in Louisiana's electric chair, the prison warden said.

The U.S. Supreme Court, on a 7-2 vote, cleared the way for the execution of Timothy Baldwin by rejecting his request for a stay.

"It's been what we've been waiting for for a long, long time," said Michael Baragona of Jonesboro, a grandson of Mary James Peters, whom Baldwin was convicted of killing during a 1978 robbery in West Monroe.

Baldwin's application for a stay was first considered by Justice Byron R. White, who referred the matter to the full court. Justices William T. Brennan and Thurgood Marshall, who oppose the death penalty, voted in favor of issuing the stay, court spokeswoman Kathy Arberg said.

Frank Blackburn, warden of the Louisiana State Prison at Angola, where Baldwin was scheduled to die by 3 a.m. Monday, said Baldwin "took the news very calmly."

Congress finds 'hit list' victim

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sworn statements by Reagan administration officials show at least one federal employee targeted on a "hit list" sent to the White House by the U.S. Chamber of Commerce was later demoted, then fired, because of her "lack of compatibility" with the president's policies.

The 1982 dismissal of Maxine Savitz, a senior executive of the Energy Department, was protested at the time by the special counsel of the Merit Systems Protection Board, who said it violated federal law intended to protect career government employees from arbitrary firings.

And one official who suggested Mrs. Savitz' removal, civil service chief Donald Devine, said under oath that he may have had an "offhand conversation" with White House aides about Mrs. Savitz before making his recommendation. But he said over the weekend that it did not involve a hit list.

Two congressional subcommittees held joint hearings last year to explore the firing, focusing on possible political harassment of civil servants.

Plague kills Colorado infant

By The Associated Press

A 13-month-old girl has died of plague that may have been contracted from rock squirrels near her Colorado home, and more than 500 people in New Mexico were treated with antibiotics for possible exposure, officials said.

Laboratory tests confirmed the cause of the Colorado toddler's death Saturday, said Ann Lockhart, a spokeswoman for the Health Department. The child, whose name was not released, died last Monday.

Her death was the first from plague in Colorado since 1978 and the fifth in the state's history, according to the Health Department. The last case was reported in December 1978.

Meanwhile, in Albuquerque, N.M., officials at the University of New Mexico Hospital estimated that more than 500 people were treated with antibiotics because they might have been exposed to a 12-year-old girl who contracted the contagious form of the plague.

Shootings

He was flown to Pocatello by the Life Flight helicopter ambulance shortly after being taken to Cassia Memorial Hospital.

Eklund was in extremely critical condition at Cassia Memorial Hospital, hospital officials said.

Cassia County Coroner Paul Young said no inquest of autopsies are planned. He said the girl's autopsies was scheduled in Mrs. Guerra's death, but added there is no question but that the shooting was done by Guerra and since he is now dead there is no need for autopsies.

He said Mrs. Guerra was shot first in the arm at about 3 a.m. and was then struck in the ribs and chest in the second shooting about 5 a.m. He estimated she lived about 10 minutes.

Each of the children, Young said, was shot in the chest at close range and apparently died instantly, as did Guerra, who was shot in the head.

Residents of the small Mormon pioneer community of Oakley were shocked by the shootings, but most said they knew little about them and were waiting for newspaper and broadcast reports.

Paul Woodhouse, a bishop of one of Oakley's two LDS Church wards, said he talked with the Pickett families for whom Guerra worked and they could not believe he had shot the five persons and himself.

"They said this was entirely out of character for him," Woodhouse said. "He was an easygoing man, although they said he had been depressed recently."

The church official said Guerra worked on the Pickett ranch and that his two children lived with him.

"They (the Picketts) said he had been having difficulties lately, having to find baby sitters for the children while he worked and had been depressed," Woodhouse said.

He said it was especially shocking that the two small children were killed. A babysitter and her two children were at the Guerra home when Mrs. Guerra was shot and the man left with the children.

"He could have spared the children. He could have left them with the babysitter," Woodhouse said.

Generally, the church official said, the community residents are shocked. He said it is probably the worst crime in Oakley they anyone can remember. About 20 years ago, he said, a man shot two young boys in Oakley, but they both survived.

Contestants won't pose nude

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — This year's Miss America contestants say they haven't and never would pose in the nude, as ex-pagant queen Vanessa Williams did. But they also acknowledge that even if they had appeared in the buff, they wouldn't admit it now.

"Who's crazy enough to say?" asked Miss South Carolina, Vicki Rene Harrell, 22, of Columbia.

"In interviews before Sunday's official registration ceremonies, most of the 51 contestants said reporters have hounded them with questions about whether they would do what Miss Williams did.

"Miss Williams, 21, of Millwood, N.Y., relinquished her title July 23 after it was revealed that nude photographs taken of her before she won the crown would appear in the September issue of Penthouse magazine. The pictures depicted her in intimate scenes with another woman.

Parts of the parapet — the brickwork above the roofline — tumbled to the pavement. When the flames were starting to diminish, an explosion inside refueled them and forced some firefighters back temporarily.

The adjacent apartment building was shrouded in thick smoke, and water spray also rolled through the neighborhood to the northeast, and a crowd of more than 100 people watched the blaze.

Gause, and independent Marlene Weed and David Thompson — are incapable of handling the job.

In any public office, or private-sector job, Burdick says, there is a period of adjustment every new employee must make. He doesn't think the prosecutor's office is any different.

"I don't look at it with the fear and trepidation — as some people do," Burdick says.

The fire apparently had ignited in the rear of the building, which is owned by Reed Good of Twin Falls.

The building's electrical supply came into the building through lines at the rear, said Louie Owens, co-owner of Magic Valley Home-Air and Manufacturing, which had occupied the shop for nine years before moving to new quarters in May.

Clough said the fire probably had been mounting for some time before the alarm was turned in because it spread so quickly throughout the structure.

Fire officials also are wondering about the source of the explosion, he said.

Owens said his welding business had not left behind any pressurized tanks of gases.

"There wasn't anything in the building when we vacated," he said. The front end of the building, where it occurred also was an open area, not storage, he said.

Movie message protested

CULVER CITY, Calif. (AP) — The movie "Red Dawn," which depicts an invasion of the United States by communist forces, has a false but "dangerous message" for young people, content protesters who demonstrated against the film this weekend.

About 35 members of groups supporting a nuclear weapons freeze and opposed to U.S. policy in Central America marched in the broiling heat Saturday outside MGM Studios to protest the MGM-UA production.

Mondale unveils new tax plan in speech today

By The Associated Press

Walter F. Mondale renewed his claim Sunday that "everyone knows" President Reagan will raise taxes after the election, while the president told Polish-Americans that his administration is not "any less dedicated to peace because we want a strong America."

The Democratic presidential nominee, preparing to reveal his own proposal to reduce the federal budget deficit on Monday, renewed the volatile tax issue by scoffing at Reagan's "last resort" stand on increasing taxes.

"Everyone knows that taxes must go up," he said. "But who will pay? If you have a president who favors millionaires and big corporations, he'll sock it to families of average income and leave his friends alone. That's Mr. Reagan, not me."

Reagan, meanwhile, traveled from the presidential retreat at Camp David, Md., to a Polish festival in Bucks County, Pa., where he appealed to the patriotism of a people whose native land he said still suffers "under the oppressor's boot."

"Those who believe they have crushed the Polish spirit with guns and brute force are wrong," he said during a visit in which he invoked the names of Polish-born Pope John Paul II and Polish labor leader Lech Walesa.

Seeing a huge banner in the crowd that read "Renounce Yalta," Reagan said, "Let us not be tempted into giving Yalta as coverage to those who have violated that agreement. That agreement never gave them the power to dominate Eastern Europe and Poland as they have."

That was a reference to an agreement with the Soviet Union at the end of World War II that effectively gave the Russians control over Eastern Europe.

The president was applauded several times and interrupted with shouts of "four more years." To that, he quipped, "I won't fight it."

Canada receives first visit from Pope

QUEBEC (AP) — Pope John Paul II came to Canada on Sunday for one of his longest foreign pilgrimages, kissing the ground where missionaries and martyrs founded a sturdy New World church four centuries ago.

"I greet you, Quebec, first church in North America, first witness to the faith," the pontiff said in an airport statement after arriving here at 11:23 a.m. EDT aboard his green-and-white Alitalia DC-10 jetliner.

Welcoming the pope, Governor General Jeanne Sauve said Canadians "receive you as a prophet, for you have been successful in identifying the causes of our universal misery."

But during his 12-day visit the Polish-born pontiff will find that the Canada once shaped by a French explorer-priest today is a secular, pluralistic society, many of whose Roman Catholics reject the pope's traditional positions on birth control, divorce and other family issues.

In French-speaking and largely Roman Catholic Quebec province, fewer than one-third of church members practice their religion, church officials say.

POPE JOHN PAUL II Arrives for 12-day visit expected to deliver on family life, sexual conduct and church authority. The messages Pope John Paul II is expected to deliver on family life, sexual conduct and church authority may be directed as well across the border to U.S. Roman Catholics, many of whom are increasingly disaffected by what they see as rigid church doctrine.

As he crisscrosses Canada, John Paul will visit 13 cities, cover 8,500 miles and pass through all six time zones of this vast nation. It is the first visit by a pope to Canada, although John Paul has been here before, coming in 1969 as a Polish archbishop.

The white-clad, 64-year-old pontiff arrived on a brilliant, autumn-like morning at Quebec's city airport.

In the gesture that has become a papal hallmark, he knelt at the bottom of the airplane steps and kissed the ground.

Besides Mrs. Sauve, Queen Elizabeth II's representative in its former British colony, he was welcomed by Prime Minister John Turner, Canadian bishops and 600 other dignitaries.

Seven children representing Canada's ethnic groups presented flowers as a 21-gun howitzer-salute boomed.

Switching between French and English, Canada's two languages, in his arrival statement, the pope said he would like to speak to Canadians about the issues of our times, concerning culture, the community, technology, the family, sharing and justice.

Beyond the airport, throngs of welcoming Quebecers waited to greet the pope as his motorcade rode to a park at the St. Lawrence-River waterfront to meet with newly confirmed children.

His schedule also included a visit to the tomb of Francois de Laval, the 17th century Quebec archbishop regarded as the father of Roman Catholic Canada, and a Mass at Laval University.

For months, the impending papal visit, 23rd foreign trip by John Paul, had stirred excitement and anticipation across Canada, whose 25 million people include 11.4 million Catholics.

Church officials estimate 5 million people, including at least a million Americans, will journey away from home to catch a glimpse of the pilgrim pope. In far-off Fort Simpson, an Indian town near the Arctic Circle which John Paul is to visit Sept. 18, authorities expect travelers to begin camping out one week ahead of time.

Government-owned Canadian Broadcasting Corp. plans to air 100 hours of pope coverage.

Israeli minister's role sparks rebellion

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Ariel Sharon's appointment in a bipartisan Cabinet, 18 months after the hawkish Likud leader was ousted from the Defense Ministry, is sparking a leftist rebellion against a Labor-led government.

Critics said Sunday that by giving in to Likud's demand that Sharon be appointed commerce and industry minister, Labor leader and Prime Minister-designate Shimon Peres was committing "political suicide."

"Labor is splitting in the face of people who give it their votes because they wanted to keep Sharon out of the government," said Ron Cohen, a member of Parliament from the left-leaning Citizens Rights Movement.

"I will make every effort to organize a movement to fight against the government which puts Ariel Sharon in such a central position," Cohen told The Associated Press.

Sharon's position in a new government expected to be installed this week will give him a powerful voice on economic affairs, the nation's top priority issue. Israel inflation is heading toward 400 percent this year, and its mounting debts are creating problems in obtaining foreign credit.

Sharon branded the panel's findings an unjust "mark of Cain," and fought to restore his political power.

The 56-year-old Sharon's comeback began last April when, as a minister without portfolio, he challenged outgoing Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir for the party leadership and won an astonishing 40 percent of the vote from his Likud colleagues.

His political strength grew during the July election campaign; when his ability as an exciting and charismatic speaker permitted him to draw crowds often larger than those who gathered to hear Shamir.

Labor tried to cash in on his image of a warmer in their own campaign, warning Arab voters that if Likud came to power so would Sharon.

But Peres agreed to install Sharon in a Labor-led government after Shamir warned that otherwise, Likud's Central Committee would not approve a proposal for joint rule, Israel news media reported.

The Peace Now movement sent a cable to Peres demanding that Sharon be prevented from serving in the government, and Mattiyyahu Peled of the Joint Arab-Jewish Progressive List for Peace party called the appointment "abhorrent 0601 like the government before it is established," the daily 11:06 Haaretz wrote in an editorial Sunday.

Sharon's appointment in a bipartisan Cabinet, 18 months after the hawkish Likud leader was ousted from the Defense Ministry, is sparking a leftist rebellion against a Labor-led government.

Wandering stowaway confuses Australian immigration officials

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — Embarrassed immigration officials Sunday dropped demands that the United States accept custody of a beach-happy youth who sneaked into the country as an airplane stowaway and told them he was a 14-year-old American orphan.

It seems the quick-thinking, slick-talking youth with the bad case of beach wanderlust is not an orphan, is not 14 years old, and isn't even American.

Officials said that he is Steven Stroble, 17, a Canadian who hid aboard a Qantas flight from Hawaii to Australia two weeks ago, even though he did not have a ticket or a passport.

He talked his way through heavy security at the Sydney airport and spent the day at a surfing beach. He wasn't caught until he returned to the airport aiming to hide aboard another flight to Greece.

Going by the boy's story and accent, immigration officials identified him as David Smith, 14, of Honolulu, and demanded the United States take him back.

U.S. officials here agreed the youth appeared to be American, but refused to accept him until they could substantiate his story, especially his claim that he had been staying at a child welfare center in Honolulu.

"You'd think his own country would have him back," said Kerry-Anne Walsh, a spokeswoman for the Australian Immigration Department.

After authorities identified Stroble on Sunday, Ms. Walsh was still puzzled, but this time at the youth's claim that he is Steven Stroble, 17, a Canadian who hid aboard a Qantas flight from Hawaii to Australia two weeks ago, even though he did not have a ticket or a passport.

Falwell: Mondale doesn't have a 'voluntary prayer'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Rev. Jerry Falwell said Sunday that Democratic presidential nominee Walter F. Mondale is injecting religion into the campaign because he "doesn't have a prayer — even a voluntary prayer — of being elected."

"I think the whole issue is a non-issue," the fundamentalist minister said. "I think that Mr. Mondale, for lack of an issue and a point of vulnerability on the president, has created the church-state issue."

Falwell, who is president of the conservative Moral Majority, made the comments during appearances on two nationally broadcast television programs: ABC's "This Week with David Brinkley" and CBS's "Face the Nation."

"It's a farce," he said. "No one is questioning anyone's religion. No one wants to establish a Christian state. We want a nation under God. That's all the president, and every president since Washington, has called for."

Congress debates U.S. bases in Honduras

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Democrats will try to rein in construction of U.S.-built bases in Honduras this week in the first congressional debate over Central American policy since a helicopter crash in Nicaragua killed two Americans on a flight across the Honduran border.

Sen. James Sasser, D-Tenn., says he will press for an amendment to an $8.5 billion military construction appropriation bill that would ban spending any of the money for design or construction of permanent military bases in the Central American country.

The amendment is a narrower version of one that Sasser offered in April, when the Senate was considering overall authorizations for military spending. That amendment would also have prohibited the use of any U.S.-built bases in Honduras for military or paramilitary purposes.

The April amendment failed, 51-44. Sasser hopes to do better this time, but he is making no predictions.

"We are going to press the amendment ... then just wait and see what develops," Sasser said in an interview last week.

His press secretary, Doug Hall, added, "I think we will have a better chance on this in the light of the events of the past few days."

But Sen. Muck Mattindin, R-Ga., chairman of the military construction appropriations subcommittee, said he did not think the deaths of the two American civilians would have any effect.

"Where there are Republicans or Democrats who are opposed to assistance in Central America, this will be fodder for them, but I don't think it will have any impact on those who really understand the situation in the region," he said.

Dana Parker Jr. of Huntsville, Ala., and James Powell III of Memphis, Tenn., members of Civilian Military Assistance, an Alabama-based group of self-described anti-communist "freedom fighters," were killed Sept. 7 when their helicopter crashed in Nicaragua.

Vietnam prisoners need speedy action

Twice in the last two years the government of Vietnam has said it is willing to hand over to the United States an unspecified number of the political prisoners it has held in so-called "reeducation" camps since 1975. Many of these inmates are thought to have worked for the U.S. government during the Vietnam War, sometimes in the most modest of capacities. This past association is the only reason for the severe and often killing punishment that has been inflicted on them since the Communists completed their conquest of the country. That same association, however, also imposes a moral obligation on the United States to do all in its power to obtain freedom for those who have suffered so much.

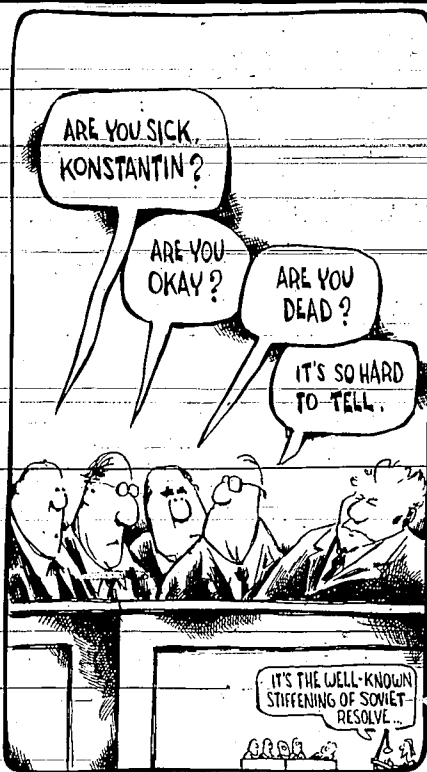

Why, then, has the offer from Vietnam not been speedily agreed to? A big reason is that its genuineness remains in doubt. Vietnam has never allowed its prison camps to be inspected by the International Red Cross, and it has never provided the Red Cross or anyone else with a list of those "criminals" it says it is prepared to release. Without such a list it is impossible to verify that the detainees are in fact political prisoners to whom the United States owes a particular debt.

Four years ago the United States gave haven to tens of thousands of Cubans who had suddenly been granted permission to emigrate by Fidel Castro. Most were legitimate refugees. Salded among them, however, were thousands of mental patients and common criminals freshly released from Cuban jails. It is to avoid this unhappy experience that the United States wants to know in advance whom it is being offered.

But if prudence is one watchword, human decency must be another. Vietnam continues to hold in its concentration camps an estimated 6,000 to 15,000 political prisoners. From all indications they are kept in the most miserable conditions. At a minimum, the sincerity of Vietnam's offer to let these people go must be tested. If Vietnam means what it says, it should not cavil at giving the International Red Cross the names of those it proposes to release.

Next week Secretary of State George P. Shultz is to meet with congressional committees on refugees to discuss this issue. One proposal that is gaining strength is for the United States to grant asylum to the political prisoners and their families without reference to the quota of approximately 50,000 that has been set for Vietnamese immigrants in the current fiscal year. The special status of the prisoners leaves no doubt about the need for such humane action, and with as little delay as possible.

Ellsworth's impact on state still felt

BOISE — A man who played an important part in the Idaho political process died quietly in California the other day at the age of 79.

But the events that involved the late W. Fisher Ellsworth, who died at Escondido, Calif., continue to affect members of the Idaho Legislature.

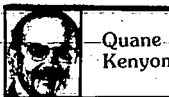

Ellsworth and a fellow Bonneville County Republican lawmaker, John Hyde, are believed to be the only modern state legislators ever recalled from office in the Gen. State. And that incident has served to keep salaries for Idaho's legislators among the lowest in the nation.

The Idaho Constitution set salaries for lawmakers at $5 per day at statehood, not a bad sum when many a peasant was happy to work for $1 per day.

But legislative pay remained at that level for 56 years -- until it was doubled to all of $10 per day in 1946. Within a few years, lawmakers voted themselves expense payments of $25 per day, while in session.

Then began a stormy decade when legislative pay and expenses were hot issues at almost every session. It wound up with Ellsworth, a two-term senator, and Hyde, a five-term veteran House member, recalled by Bonneville County voters angered by what they perceived as a vote against their wishes.

In 1967, voters defeated by 32,000 votes an initiative to allow legislators to set their own salaries, and also to create a legislative compensation commission to recommend pay and expense levels. Undismayed, the Legislature in 1969 voted to set its salaries at $200 per month, plus $35 per day in expenses while in session.

A 1970 initiative, put on the ballot after a statewide petition drive, rolled back that expense payment to $25 per day for the first 60 days of a legislative session, a device voters figured would be a good way to keep sessions from dragging on too long.

The 1971 Legislature voted to amend the initiative, giving legislators who live outside Ada County an extra $10 per day in expenses, eliminating the 60-day limitation on payments, and adding $3.50 per day while not in session for "office expense."

In a tight turnout, Hyde and Ellsworth were recalled over that vote. John Corlett, retired Idaho Statesman political editor who covered 40 years of the Idaho Legislature, says the two were "very excellent legislators" who happened to be in the wrong place at the wrong time.

"It could have been anyone who was recalled," he said. "They were good legislators, good workers in the Republican Party."

Ellsworth, who with his brothers operated an Idaho Falls automobile and truck dealership, was well-known in state politics and was one of the three men appointed to the first Idaho Highway Board, now the state Transportation Board.

"It distressed him. It really hurt Ellsworth to think they'd do that to him," said Corlett. The lawmakers later changed the recall laws, making it very difficult to get the votes needed. No legislator has been recalled since.

And the Ellsworth-Hyde case is brought up whenever the Legislature talks about raising its pay or expenses.

In 1976, the present system went into effect. The state has a Legislative Compensation Commission, which recommends salaries and expenses for lawmakers. The recommendations become law unless rejected by the Legislature.

The last couple of sessions have rejected the raises, and some lawmakers have reminded their brethren what happened a decade ago when an earlier Legislature went against public opinion and approved raises.

Idaho lawmakers now get about $6,000 per year in salary and expenses, but also get fringe benefits such as coverage under the state medical and life insurance programs.

Letters/ Humanism's impact on education system attacked

Humanists are evil

I am writing in reply to your article entitled "Religious Group Finds Support for Text Fight," in your Aug. 27 edition. The article concerns "Secular Humanism." I would like to define this for your readers, and mention how it can influence education.

These values are influencing our children in some of today's public schools. Humanism was officially ruled a "religion" by the United States Supreme Court. It centers everything upon "self" instead of God. Thus, it promotes sexual license, an atheistic morality, and anti-American values. The United States Constitution was never meant to separate God and the Bible from our public institutions. There are many examples, such as our inaugural ceremonies and even our money -- "In God We Trust." The founding fathers knew that if this happened, a secular "religion" would be established. Today, Secular Humanism is eroding the constitutional freedoms of Americans. It has gained widespread influence only in the past eight to ten years.

As explained in "The Humanist" magazine, the beliefs of Secular Humanism include:

- 1) There is no ultimate truth.
- 2) There was no Jesus Christ.
- 3) There is no afterlife.
- 4) There exists no heaven or hell.
- 5) Man has no need of forgiveness.
- 6) There is no salvation or deliverance.
- 7) We have no need of God.
- 8) Humanists must destroy traditional religion. It is a harmful secular superstition.

Secular Humanists say that man accidentally arose from the animals and has no divine creator or guide. They conclude that, therefore, homosexuality is normal, sin has no meaning. To the Secular Humanists, free sex and free abortions are expected, for they have no absolute standard of right and wrong. They want to force religion out of our schools.

For the sake of God and mankind, let's expose Secular Humanism and restore Godism to today's education!

Child's play has an effect on what we become as adults

She returns home from shopping at the commissary and calls her sons to help her carry in the groceries. Curious about the silence in the house she calls again, then opens the hall closet to hang up her coat. Her younger son falls out from between the overcoats with a switchblade knife sticking in his chest. She steps back, stifling a little scream. The boy moans horribly. Then crumbles to the floor.

I had been hiding behind an overstuffed chair in the living room. I couldn't contain my laughter any longer. It burst from my lips in bubbles of glee. My brother smiled and stood up. "Did we fool you, Mom? Did we fool you?" My mother shook her head in wonderment at her two sons. I was twelve years old at the time, my brother was eight.

We had leased my mother before with such antics, but the catsup dripping down from the stab through the fabric of his old white shirt, and a flat piece of pine board behind the shirt to hold the knife erect, was our most convincing effort yet.

I don't think we ever really fooled her, but I still don't know how she stood it. I don't know how she put up with our rough house humor, and the games we played. We were boys growing up at a time when to act like boys was understood and accepted. Only intellectuals had heard of the word "androgyny." If someone had explained it to my father, he would have thought that it was another pussyfooting word for homosexual.

My brother and I frequently played war games. Our family's old photo albums contain numerous yellowing snapshots of us in boy-sized army uniforms and helmets aiming wooden rifles at make-believe enemies from behind small hills. Stands to reason, our father was a career army man and proud of it. He was proud of us in our tiny uniforms. He may have imagined us attending West Point one day.

Our mock aggression taught us to compete, taught us to face danger (mock danger, to be sure) -- the way lion cubs nip and growl in their tumbling play. And paradoxically, it was also a way of expressing our affection for one another, our brotherly love.

These were pre-Vietnam years and parents hadn't learned to feel guilty about allowing their children to play with guns. There was no twinge of conscience about males expressing their aggression. This was before the current feminization of our culture. Mothers didn't fret about boys playing with cap pistols. Parents didn't agonize about raising killers if they bought their son a Dalsy B-B gun, or a 22-caliber rifle.

Boys played as boys, hard and dangerous. And sometimes they wondered later, how they ever managed to grow up. But most of them did. Some of these hardball, gun-toting kids even became pacifists and conscientious objectors. My brother and I did. My brother continued to teach in the school for mentally retarded children where he was employed for his alternate service.

As a nation we have become too self-conscious about our attitudes toward male aggression. We project too much of our vacillating ideas and fears concerning war and preach on our children. Perhaps we worry too much about the obvious content of play, and not enough about the underlying meaning, below the war toys and the surface aggression.

We are overlooking how play allows us to express our fears and frustrations at being impotent in the world of adults. Repressing frustrations builds them up for a future explosion. It builds a child into a time bomb.

The games my brother and I played that allowed him equal opportunity to win, and in doing so made me suffer, just a little, gave vent to his frustration, my superior attitude, older-brother teasing, and consequently have given us a genuine closeness over the years.

I don't think those games made us potential killers, or pouched out our sensitivity. Rather, that play taught us to think like one another, to anticipate each other. You had to be able to think like your opponent to beat him. To think like someone else has a significant social function. It is the first step to feeling what someone else feels, to putting yourself in someone else's place. And that allows cooperation at the deepest human level.

Attorneys vie for Jerome prosecutor seat

By DAVE LEWIS
Times-News correspondent

JEROME — Despite a lack of experience in the courtroom, Jerome County prosecuting attorney candidates say they will be effective early in their terms because of hard work and a willingness to ask for help.

The three people contending for the prosecutor's position have very little experience, as lawyers in the courtroom.

Because of the lack of experience, some members of the Jerome legal community have said they are concerned about the quality of work that will come from the office during the break-in period of the new prosecutor.

However, the three candidates — Francis M. Gause, Marlene Weed, and David Thompson — say they can overcome the problems associated with inexperience.

Thompson, 32, has courtroom experience from his year-long practice in California after graduating in June 1983 from the McGeorge School of Law at the University of Pacific in Sacramento.

He says he did civil, criminal and corporate legal work while in private practice.

Thompson is a native of Nevada who grew up in the San Francisco Bay area. His father was raised in Jerome.

Thompson says he is seeking the office for a career opportunity rather than as a way to enter the legal profession. If elected, he says he will stay with the job for at least two four-year terms.

"The only other position I'd consider to get out of it (the prosecutor's position) is if I was accepted to a judgeship down the line in a few years," Thompson says.

If that opportunity comes, he says it will come in a minimum of eight years.

Thompson says he has a tough case counter his inexperience if faced with tough cases early in his administration. But, he says he is not free to say what the plan is.

He does say he can get help from former prosecutors in the Magic Valley, if needed.

"I'm not going to be afraid to ask for help," Thompson says when asked about the possibility of trying the pending first-degree murder cases against Cory Sellers and Jamie D. Charbonneau, which may carry over into the administration of the next prosecutor.

"I realize there is going to be a lot of homework involved and I'm not afraid of it," he says.

Thompson, who was looking for an opportunity to come to Jerome when he heard the prosecutor's job was open, says he will stay in private practice here if he does not win the election.

He is running as an independent candidate.

Gause, 30, says he is seeking the prosecutor's job as a stepping stone into the legal profession.

"It's not a job people go after for the money. I'm going after it for the experience and to put my mind to work," he says.

Gause graduated from the University of Idaho School of Law in 1973, but has not practiced law although admitted to the bar in the spring of 1980.

While waiting to take the bar exam, he began the Happy Hooker Worm Farm in Jerome County. The farm took up so much of his time that he was unable to start a legal practice, he says.

Now, the Jerome High School graduate says, he wants to put his education to work.

"To overcome his lack of experience, Gause says, he will take 'hard work' through."

He says he will have to go "through" the on-the-job learning process that all new lawyers do to learn their jobs, including the getting courtroom experience.

"I don't have any. But this is the best way I can get it," he says.

Gause says if the facts in the Charbonneau and Sellers cases are as he understands them,

Joint band finds strength in numbers

By SARAH MURPHY
Times-News correspondent

BURLEY — Based on the premise that two band teachers are better than one, Steve Floyd and Skip Leone, band instructors in the Burley school system, are joining forces.

The two musicians are combining the junior and senior high school band programs to form the Burley Bobcat Band, says Floyd.

"We are convinced that combining the junior and senior high school band programs instead of splitting them, will bring many benefits to our students," says Floyd.

"Right now, we have the third largest high school band in the state," he says. "In a year, we anticipate having the largest high school band in the state with a projected membership of 140 band members."

Leone says the joint arrangement is based upon an idea dreamed up by the band students.

"I would never have thought of it on my own," he says.

"In our case, two heads may be equal to one — instead of being better than one — we are both equally crazy," says Leone jokingly.

Floyd says their strength as a team lies in the ability of the two teachers to communicate effectively with each other and with their band students. The two band masters possess a flexibility and sense of humor vital to this kind of arrangement, says Floyd.

"We are both good at team teaching, not an attribute always found in music teachers," says Floyd. "Actually, our systems are similar — we don't have one."

The flexibility of the two men becomes obvious when they describe some of the ideas they are implementing in their combined program.

Floyd says each of them can supplement the other's strengths by emphasizing their own special skills as teachers.

"Skip is a better jazz man than I am, but I can't do as strong at reading notes as I," says Floyd.

"I can read the spots off the page, but I can't 'riff' (a jazz term meaning to improvise) like Skip can."

Consequently, Leone will teach the jazz ensemble at the two schools, while Floyd will concentrate his efforts on teaching the high school concert band.

"Skip and I will team-teach the junior-high concert bands," explains Floyd. "We are both

Weather caused drop in fair gate

FILED — Attendance at the 1984 Twin Falls County Fair and Rodeo will go into the record books as lower than expected, despite a packed house for the last performance of the rodeo on Saturday.

Fair manager Tom Shouse Sunday reported 98,725 admissions to this year's fair, 9,250 less than in 1983. He and the county fair board had been hoping to break the 100,000 mark.

The fair had opened ahead of last year's pace, but rainy and cool weather at the end of the week cut into the crowds. Thursday's count of 16,667 and Friday's of 19,873 put attendance 1,979 behind the 1983 pace.

Saturday's perfect weather did turn out the biggest draw of the five-day fair, bringing 20,740 people through the gates. However, that spurt of interest still stopped 4,297 short of the same day in 1983.

Farmers now are busy harvesting some crops and may not have been able to spend the time to come, Shouse said. Excellent fall grazing weather also is excellent harvest weather.

The smaller than expected take at the gate will affect fair finances.

"We'll just have to watch the pennies and cut back and be bargain buyers, and we can handle it. We've done it before," he said.

One bright spot in attendance was the interest in Saturday's rodeo. Shouse said everybody who wanted to get in was able to, but there were few — any — empty spots in the 6,000-seat arena.

"We've already sold some tickets for next year's rodeo," he said.

"This week — the fair staff — begins work on the 1985 rodeo, Shouse said.

Minidoka voters face third school bond levy

By SARAH MURPHY
Times-News correspondent

RUPERT — The Minidoka County School District Board of Trustees has set Sept. 27 as the date for a third attempt in two years to pass a school bond issue, this time in the amount of $5.950 million.

Board members say the bond issue is necessary in order to relieve an acute overcrowding problem in district classrooms.

Decay in passing the bond issue, first offered last November, has potentially cost district taxpayers an additional $250,000.

Essentially, the same package offered last November at a cost of $3.7 million, is being offered again at increased expense to the district because of escalating costs of materials and manpower for the proposed construction of a new elementary building in the Rupert area, as well as a new multi-purpose room at Minidoka High School, Superintendent Gene Snapp has said.

Other projects proposed in the new bond issue are the construction of additions to existing buildings in the district, plus repairs and improvements necessary for the continued operation of all district buildings.

The total amount of the bonds, including principal and interest, based on an anticipated interest rate of 8.75 percent to 11.5 percent, is approximately $12.5 million to be repaid over the life of the proposed bond.

Board Chairman Russell Holland says an ad hoc community committee reports that the people in the district want their elementary children kept in local community schools, and that the proposed plan for expansion of buildings at the elementary level will address this need.

If the issue passes, the district will be able to install classroom additions next fall allowing the return of the sixth grade students, now located in the junior high buildings, back to the elementary schools, and the ninth graders, from Minidoka High School back to the junior high school buildings, said Snapp.

Leona Rasmussen, representing the Minidoka County Parent-Teacher Association Council, told the board that there was a positive attitude in the community toward the passing of the proposed bond issue.

FILED — Becoming Miss Rodeo Idaho fulfilled a long-cherished dream of 21-year-old Neenie Blake, Boise, who was crowned the Gem State title Saturday during the final performance of the Twin Falls County Fair Rodeo.

Upon being announced as the pageant winner, Blake told rodeo spectators she "wished there were three crowns" so her parents would each have one to wear, acknowledging her appreciation for their support and sacrifice. She also thanked her sponsoring organizations and congratulated her fellow contestants, which she described as an "incredible group of girls."

Miss Rodeo Idaho

Asked to describe how it feels to be the state's First Lady of rodeo, Blake replied: "Wonderful! I've been waiting for this moment for about eight years. It has taken a lot of hard work and dedication to get here, but the effort has really paid off now."

Representing the Caldwell Night Rodeo, the poised and polished beauty topped a field of 12 other contestants for the coveted crown following a five-day competition that included horsemanship, personal interviews, modeling, and extemporaneous and prepared speaking.

Blake won the horsemanship category, which, she said, is her favorite portion of the competition. Candidates are judged on their riding ability during three rounds of horsemanship, featuring a freestyle pattern on their own horse as well as two pre-set reining patterns on drawn horses they have never ridden before.

"I had a few problems riding one of the horses I had drawn," she explained. "The saddle was a new one that wasn't broken in. Well, and I blew a couple of stirrups. Yet, I guess it worked out for the best."

The horsemanship award is one of many she has received throughout her years as an all-around equestrian competitor.

Since she started riding at age 8, Blake has been involved in several facets of horsemanship competition, she said. Blake participated in 4-H and Quarter Horse shows and also rode with the Eh Capa Bareback Riders, a professional mounted drill group based in the Boise Valley.

The new queen is no stranger to a rodeo arena. She competed in Little Britches Rodeo as a youngster and moved through the ranks. Her Junior year in high school she was named Miss High School Rodeo Idaho and went on to become the 1978-79 National High School Rodeo Queen.

She currently competes on the equestrian polo team at Stanford University in Palo Alto, Calif., where she is a senior majoring in human biology.

"Completion of my education will have to wait awhile," Blake admitted, "but that's quite all right, there's plenty of time."

Blake said during the next three months she will spend "99 percent" of her "time" preparing for the Rodeo American Pageant, held the first week of December in Oklahoma City, Okla., in conjunction with the National Finals Rodeo.

Along with keeping her riding skills honed (she will not take her own horse to the event), Blake must prepare a two-minute speech in her state organization her wardrobe to include the latest in western fashion, arrange for gifts (representative of Idaho) to take to the other contestants, and study for interview sessions that will tap her knowledge of rodeo, western dress and current events, as well as her "personableness."

Gooding celebrates famous Idaho spuds

By JANENE BUCKWAY
Times-News correspondent

GOODING — The third annual Gem State Spud Festival begins Friday in Gooding.

The yearly autumn event was begun by the Gooding Chamber of Commerce to celebrate Idaho's most famous agricultural product.

Chamber Manager Gene Heller says the festival is the only event of its kind in the state.

Gooding County is the birth place of commercial potato growing in Idaho. The "tuber" was introduced as a commercial crop in the Wendell and Jerome area about 1867 by Eugene H. Grubb, a potato expert from Colorado, who was teaching farming techniques to North Side settlers at the request of irrigation developer William S. Kuhn.

Gooding's tribute to the potato includes a Spud Festival Grand parade — complete with marching bands and potato floats and a community beef and potato barbecue catered by the Lincoln Inn.

Other events include spud art carving and poster contests for students and a potato cooking contest for local cooks.

Entries for the cooking contest must be taken to City Hall by 3 p.m. Friday. They must be made of potatoes and be accompanied by the recipe.

There are seven categories in the contest: appetizers, soups, main dishes, salads, breads and desserts (including candy).

Information is available from Gooding Extension Home Economist Mary Lou Ruby at the Gooding County Courthouse.

Area merchants will compete in a Main Street pole decorating contest and spud buttons with lucky numbers are on sale around the town for $1.

The festival schedule is: Friday — Main Street pole decorating contest with live music and concessions downtown.

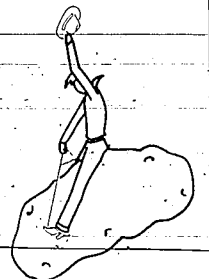

Saturday — potato-cooking contest, dishes 7:30 City Hall and Gooding High School Homecoming parade 8 p.m., homecoming football game Gooding vs Glens Ferry.

Saturday — 7 to 9 a.m., pioneer breakfast at Blacking Grange Hall.

10:30 a.m.: gooding powder shoot-out on Main Street staged by a group from Hailey.

11 a.m., grand parade on Main Street.

12:30 p.m., community beef and potato barbecue on the Courthouse lawn. Adults $2.50, children under 12 $1.75. Live music and entertainment.

1 p.m. drawing for merchants' prizes begins (lucky numbers located on spud buttons).

3 p.m. grand prize drawing for $500. If winner is not present all the drawing prizes will only be $100.

7:30 p.m. The Renaissance Academy of the Arts of Twin Falls will present the play "Snoopy" in the Gooding High School multipurpose room. The special entertainment event is sponsored by the Gooding Parent-Teacher-Student Organization. Admission is adults $4, students and senior citizens $2.50.

A Spud Festival slow pitch softball tournament will be held Friday, Saturday and Sunday for lower, 'B' and all-'C' class teams. The double elimination contest is sponsored by Skaggs Appliance and Furniture in Gooding.

Money sought for chapel at state penitentiary site

TWIN FALLS — The chaplain from the Idaho State Correctional Institution in Boise was in Twin Falls on Friday for the final days of raising money to build a chapel at the main penitentiary site.

To help promote the fundraising, Governor John Evans proclaimed Sept. 16 as Prison Sunday to encourage people to attend church in support of the interfaith prison chapel.

Don Stephan, who is chaplain and chief of volunteer services at the Boise prison, said only $20,000 more is needed of the estimated $30,000 it will cost for a religious activities center at the state correctional institution.

"So the big thrust right now is to get all the churches in Idaho, to contribute," the chaplain said.

If the remaining funds can be raised, Stephan said an Oct. 1 construction date has been set for the 5200 square foot religious center, which includes the chapel, six classrooms, a library, music room and counseling rooms.

The center will not only offer services and Bible studies for men of Christian religions, it will also have facilities for those of the Muslim, Jewish and Native American faiths among others, he said.

"So it's truly interfaith, not just interdenominational," the chaplain said.

Currently the Idaho penitentiary in Boise is the only prison in the northwest and one of very few in the country that does not have a chapel, he said.

He has 12 years ago, Stephan said he has seen the attitude of many prisoners change in the six years he has been chaplain.

During a prison riot four years ago, Stephan said it brought tears to his eyes when about two dozen prisoners of various denominations endangered their own lives to save the organ, pulpit and other items in the classrooms from being destroyed.

"I was really moved," the chaplain said. "So I don't worry."

The new religious center will not only help the men retain their faith, but should also increase attendance, the chaplain said.

"I'd say God is where we are," the chaplain said. "But we'd all like to have a nice place to visit. And this would be a real live church."

Besides, the chaplain said, as far as he knows the Boise Institution has the most extensive religious training in the country with Bible studies and other programs 7 days a week so the facilities would be in full time use.

Approximately 32 percent of the inmates in the Boise facility attend some portion of the religious programs, which is a much higher rate of church attendance than the general population.

And the prisoners, whose average stay in the penitentiary is only 34 months, need religion so they can return to the outside world with something to fall back on, he said.

"If all we are doing is locking them up, they're probably going to come back just as they were, probably worse," he said.

The Oregon Foundation, a private organization from Portland, Ore., has pledged an additional $50,000 if construction starts in October, and many individuals from around the state have made many small donations, he said.

Even some inmates have contributed to the project by volunteering $100,000 in labor and giving what they have money they have, the chaplain said.

"That's sacrifice," Stephan said, "they're giving enough in it that they're believing."

Money for the chapel has to be raised through Idaho churches and individuals because there are no government funds for the project, he said.

Because funding for correctional institutions is limited, Stephan said the legislature's top priority is spending money on prison security.

Scarcely three years ago a group of individuals from various denominations started the Religious Advisory Council to raise money for the project, he said.

Although the chapel that was at the old prison in downtown Boise was burned down by the inmates in he does not anticipate any problems prosecuting them.

He says he does not know how long he would stay in the prosecutor's position if elected.

Gause has changed his mind about his candidacy a couple of times since the May primary election. He had decided to drop out last month, but then reinstated himself a week later.

He says his indecision was a result of his private business. If elected, he says it would be a financial burden on the worm farm that operates five to six months each summer. But, he says, he has found people to run the business if elected.

Weed, 48, also is a newcomer to Jerome with little experience as a lawyer.

She is a graduate of the Whittier College School of Law in Los Angeles. She moved to Idaho in 1983 after being admitted to the bar in the fall of 1982.

Weed clerked for Fourth District Judge Gerald Schroeder in Boise before starting a private practice in Boise in January of this year.

She moved to Jerome two months ago and has started a practice here. Weed also worked as the administrator for her husband's former law firm in Kansas City, Mo., before moving to California in the early 1970s.

To overcome her inexperience, Weed says she will use good judgment and depend on the help and advice of others.

"I think I have the maturity and I think I have the ability. I think I have developed the ability to use the good judgment that the job needs," she says.

Weed also says she has contacted the state Attorney General's office and other Magic Valley prosecutors who have committed to help her handle any tough cases early in her work, particularly in the Charbonneau and Sellars cases.

She says she has been reviewing those cases on her own time to be prepared if she is elected.

Weed also says she is viewing the prosecutor's job from a career standpoint and will stay with it for at least eight years if elected.

She will stay in Jerome in private practice if not elected, Weed says.

Band

strong on teaching beginning band — and we love it," he adds.

The bands in the junior high will be designated as concert band in the seventh grade, symphonic band in the eighth and wind ensemble in the ninth, says Floyd.

He says, however, students may be given overlapping assignments to any of these bands.

"In this way, a student may be advanced ahead to a more difficult level while, at the same time, being given the opportunity to learn to play a new instrument at a different level," he explains.

Floyd and Leone carry this principle over into their policy concerning drummers in the bands, often a problem because drummers aren't usually involved in continuous playing like other musicians in the band, says Leone.

No one is allowed to play the drums in the bands until they have become proficient on a wind instrument, he explains.

This allows the drummers to alternate from the drums to other instruments during the course of rehearsal, eliminating the problem of idle time on their hands — a good way to allow them total participation in band performance, he says.

"This also gives the drummers a chance to see how the entire band performs, not limiting them to one little corner of the group," adds Floyd.

The dynamic duo, as they are often referred to by people enjoying the benefits of having a good band program in Burley, demonstrates enthusiasm in both words and actions.

"A good band teacher must be a versatile person," emphasizes Floyd. "Being a good performing musician is the least important skill he must possess.

"Besides being an instrument repair man, the band teacher must be a stage hand and an expediter — most importantly, a communicator and a motivator, with emphasis on the motivator," he adds.

All of this dedication to the job of teaching band adds up to a lot of hard work and time expended for both kids and their teachers, says Floyd.

"There are days when it is hard to go out in the cold and motivate shivering kids to practice marching for a football half-time show," he says.

"The kids don't complain about the hard work, though. They are proud of their reputation and proud of the performances they put on, on the concert stage, in parades and in half-time shows at the sports events," says Floyd.

"It's great to see people staying in the stands at half times to watch the band instead of making a mad dash to the concession stands," adds Leone.

Floyd and Leone agree that pride is an important component in a good band program.

"We instill pride in the kids — both for themselves, as individuals, and in their instruments and equipment," says Floyd.

New uniforms for the high school band are on order now to the tune of almost $10,000, money raised by the band students and the parents' booster club, Floyd notes.

He says neither the band or the teachers want the district to provide for the band.

"We think it's better for the kids to go and bust their hind ends for it," says Floyd.

"They will respect what they have if they work for it themselves. The concept is we don't just sound good — we look good," he says.

Supporters attempt to get recreation district on ballot

By DIANA HOOLEY
Times-News correspondent

GLENNIS FERRY — The race is on to get 20 percent of the qualified voter signatures in eastern Elmore County on a petition to establish a recreation district.

Karen Hall, head of the eastern Elmore County recreation district, says Monday is the last day to get the petition in. If the district proposal is not decided in the November general elections.

"We're trying to be economical about this," said Hall, "and getting the district proposal placed on the November ballot is the most logical move. We've also chosen to stick with existing boundaries rather than drawing up new boundaries for the district and the waste time and money."

Hall said the petition and the boundary's description would be turned in to the county clerk Monday. The district boundaries are the same as the Glennis Ferry School District, excluding Owyhee County, said Hall.

Ferry is based in King Hill, Glennis Ferry is Hammett, she added.

Fact sheet has been distributed in these areas, said Hall, describing what a recreation district is and how much money it would cost in assessed property tax. Hall said she felt the fact sheet has helped many people understand the district's issue better, but there are still misconceptions.

"Probably the biggest misconception is that having a district will cost a lot," said Hall.

Hall said residents in the district with property valued at $35,000 would pay $14 a year on a .0004 per thousand tax base, which is about the city needed to build, for example, a base swimming pool.

Hall said she first became involved in the effort to establish a recreation district because she would like to see a community swimming pool where kids can swim, she said.

But, said Hall, a recreation district for eastern Elmore County could mean a lot more than just a swimming pool. Dance, arts and crafts, symphonies and concerts for the community, as well as many other leisure and recreational activities would be possible through the use of recreation district funds, said Hall.

Hall says residents who have questions about the recreation district proposal can contact her at 366-7779, or call Kathy Kowash at 366-2689.

Education protects kids from abuse

DEAR READERS: In recent months, a national disgrace of epidemic proportions has come out of the closet — the sexual abuse of children. It began when the owners and operators of a prestigious day care center were charged with having sexually abused more than 40 children who ranged in age from 2 to 5.

Abigail VanBuren
Dear Abby

The suspects were charged with, among other things, having posed and photographed the children in sex acts with other children and adults; then selling the pictures and movies to a large porno ring.

It seems incredible that these children had been repeatedly sexually abused over a period of so many years, yet no child told anyone. It was later learned that the children had been threatened that if they told anyone, their parents would be tortured and killed!

As is usually the case, when one can of worms is opened, others follow; and now we discover that children in day care centers in other areas of the country may have also been victimized by sexual abuse.

As a result of the publicity, my office has been deluged with books dealing with the sexual abuse of children. Most were good, many were very good, but in my estimation the one book that topped them all was "No More Secrets for Me" by Oralee Wachtler.

Her plain-speaking little gem is written for children of all ages.

Children who are just learning to read will understand it. Children who are too young to read, but are read to by their parents, grandparents, teachers and sitters will understand it.

It handles a very delicate subject with great sensitivity and tact. But more importantly, it tells children how to protect themselves against being sexually abused.

I telephoned the publishers at Little, Brown and Co. and told them that I thought "No More Secrets for Me" was the best book I had seen on the subject, but $12.95 was too much for the millions of people who should buy it.

I urged them to bring it out in softcover for under $5. It is now available in paperback, and I do not overstate my enthusiasm when I say that no home with a child between the ages of 2 and 14 should be without it. The introduction to the book begins:

"It's not fair, but it happens. Someone you know, or someone you like, or someone in your family touches you, and you don't like it. It doesn't feel good the way hugging and holding hands does. It isn't fun like wrestling. It doesn't feel clean and comfortable the way it does when someone you love puts an arm around you.

"If someone touches your body in a way you don't like, you may feel mixed up. You may feel as if you were tricked or forced into it. Or maybe the person makes you promise not to tell anyone and to keep the touching a secret. This book is about taking care of yourself, just in case this ever happens to you or a friend."

"No More Secrets for Me" is now available at your local bookseller for $1.95. If it's not in stock, order it directly from Little, Brown and Co., Distribution Center, 200 West St., Waltham, Mass. 02154.

What's what

You know how the wheat harvesters roll their caravans of combines from one end of North America to the other during the harvest season? A group of beekeepers called the "Tachihis" do the same in Japan. Carrying their hives with them, they travel about 3,000 miles a year to collect honey.

Barroom bettors also win a few on the motto of the U.S. Postal Service, which is, in fact: "Certainty, Security and Certainty." A group of beekeepers called the "Tachihis" do the same in Japan. History records he drank nothing but chocolate.

Did I tell you the housefly hums in the middle octave's key of F?

PRESIDENT'S GRADES

Q: What kind of grades did President Ronald Reagan get in school?

A. C's, mostly. On a television interview, the once wid Barbara Walters. "The C average was eligibility for sports. I figured that was the standard to shoot at, so I never knew anything about C's."

Sleepwalking runs in families. Q: When Sen. John Glenn piloted bombing missions over Korea, who was his co-pilot? A. None other than that heavy hitter of baseballs, Ted Williams.

Nearsighted? If so, you're one out of every three.

HEARTBEATS

In your younger years, your heart beats fast when you inhale, slow when you exhale. As you age, though, the heart muscle stiffens. The difference between the inhale-exhale rates narrows. That's why a doctor who pays attention could tell you, "Congratulations, you've got the heart of a 20-year-old."

There's no such thing as "bullet-proof glass." Or so says one expert. Defensive glass is designed to stop only the first three shots from a handgun, he contends. Time enough to duck.

Daily Horoscope

GENERAL TENDENCIES: This is a time to make your environment more attractive and operative and to show you can penetrate into better means for building a more comfortable set of circumstances about you.

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Get advice from an expert who can help you to get rid of problematical affairs quite easily.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Morning is fine for studying just how to gain a personal aim quickly; then do so. Devote yourself to your mate in the evening.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Get into that outside work that needs handling early, but in the evening avoid an angry partner.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) You are inspired in the morning about how to gain your aims, so carry through in a positive manner.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Your inclination is fine in the morning about how best to please kin and get your home nicely organized.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) State your aims to partners who can assist you in gaining them and avoid a family fracas.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Get your environment improved and delight others and in the evening be most careful in driving.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Your creativity is high and you can make real progress during day hours, but the evening is not good for investing money.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21)

Have those talks with kin which can bring about greater position and prosperity in the future.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Confer with friends and discuss your plans for the future, but in the evening do not go against a good pal.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Consult a monetary expert and find out how to better your situation in life, but steer clear of one who gossips in the evening.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to March 20) A change in routines can be good for you during the daytime, but tonight steer clear of a bigwig who likes to talk a lot.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will understand the whole of an enterprise and know how to set it up so that every phase can be worked out successfully. Later, your progeny may want to get into something different from the norm which would be bad to do, since consistency is the key to the success.

Prize-winners sell well in fat stock auction

FILER—Championship 4-H and FFA animals of the Twin Falls County fair reflected the quality of the animals and the support of the community businesses Saturday in the fat stock sale.

A prize winning steer, raised and shown by Shelle Brewer of Roberson, brought a total of $8,440 for the young 4-H girl's summer efforts. The animal was bid to a high of $7.50 per pound live weight. It weighed in at 1,112 lbs.

Counties unsure about medical plan

By MARTY TRILLHAASE
The Daily Idahoian

MOSCOW — Idaho's new catastrophic health care system is off and running, although less than half the state's 44 counties so far have signed on for the ride.

Latah County is among the 24 counties either holding off or deciding not to participate in the $4.5 million self-insurance pool.

This week, seven Idaho county commissioners, serving as the governing board of that self-insurance pool, formally hired Fred Grant of Caldwell as the program administrator. Grant will open an office Monday in Caldwell. And that sets in motion the development of program rules and regulations.

"A program will be established to take effect on Oct. 1 in compliance with the law that says it's available for all 44 counties," said Chuck Holden of Boise, executive director of the Idaho Association of Counties. The lobbying arm of county officials, the IAC secured authorization and funding for the program during the past three legislative sessions.

Despite Grant's formal appointment, Latah County commissioners say they want to meet with him before they decide to allocate nearly $140,000 in sales-tax revenue toward the program. Like many of their counterparts across the state, Latah officials say the program as it now exists is too vague.

"I was hoping we'd have all the answers first before they hired the administrator," said Latah County Commissioner Jay Nelson.

The program is designed to help counties meet the rising cost of providing medical care to the needy. Under Idaho law, counties are deemed the source of last resort for the medically indigent.

That obligation has produced major medical bills for some counties, particularly in the case of prematurely born children who have been treated at out-of-state medical centers. In some cases, those bills have passed the $100,000 mark.

With Grant on board, insurance plan supporters hope to resolve some of the doubts expressed about the program. Grant will present proposed rules and regulations Sept. 17 in Pocatello.

Plant moves, lights go out in new Idaho ghost town

By ELLEN CARNLEY
Caribou County Sun

CONDA — Visitors to this southeastern Idaho mining settlement are greeted by a sign that proclaims Conda "Idaho's Newest Ghost Town."

The community that once was home to hundreds and then suffered through a population decline for years is virtually deserted.

The most recent plunge occurred when J.R. Simplot Co. modernized its phosphate fertilizer production and relocated operations that had been in Conda.

Residents were told they would have to move by Aug. 31 because maintaining the town with utilities and other services for just a handful of people would cost too much.

Ten or 15 years ago, some 250 people lived here, remembers Frank Bolton, a Conda resident for nearly 50 years and the town's postmaster for 30.

"It was like one big happy family," said Bolton, proprietor of the general store.

"But mining towns come and go — it's a natural evolution. Conda has lasted longer than most."

Situated on a Union Pacific Railroad spur six miles northeast of Soda Springs, Conda was established in 1920 by Araconda Copper Co. and became the site of a major phosphate plant for the company. Simplot took over operations in 1959.

In its early years, Conda had shops, a warehouse, a community store and an elementary school. Ellis Skinner, moved to Conda when he was about 10 years old, and has lived here since. His wife, Shirley, also grew up in Conda.

"I was sent to school about the place, but it had to come some time," Skinner said.

The Bill Horsley family has lived in Conda just six years, but the Horsleys consider it home.

"I guess I'm sort of an unofficial census taker," said Horsley, tallying the population.

Utilities were disconnected Sept. 1.

Girl swept into culvert

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — A two-year-old girl remained in critical condition Sunday at Primary Children's Medical Center here after being swept into a culvert drain.

Heather Bowman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kent Bowman of Salt Lake City, was rescued when an unidentified 10-year-old boy crawled into the drain and grasped the girl's legs while her father and a firefighter pulled her out.

Authorities said the child fell into the drain while playing with friends at a neighbor's home. She was swept into the drain by two feet of swift-running water.

The girl was taken to Pioneer Valley Hospital and later transferred to Primary Children's.

Counties to get disaster aid

BURLEY (AP) — Because Mother Nature turned on Utah last April, three southeastern Idaho counties are eligible for emergency Farmers Home Administration loans.

Officials in Cassia, Franklin and Oneida counties have been notified local residents are eligible for the loans because their counties are adjacent to Utah.

Nine Utah counties were declared eligible for emergency physical and production loss loan assistance, said Bill Norberg Jr., Idaho FmHA director. That automatically includes all counties contiguous to the disaster area, he said.

Farmers in the three counties who suffered losses because of the April flooding, mudslides and landslides can apply for emergency loss loans. FmHA offices are located at Burley, Preston and Majad and applications can be filed at the offices until next April 17.

Cassia County already had been declared eligible for the loans because of flooding that took place in the Haft River area.

Losses designated as physical loss would qualify for loans toward the cost of refurbishing land, replacing lost seed and fertilizer and flood repairs.

Nevada governor supports miners

ELKO, Nev. (AP) — Nevada Gov. Richard Bryan told the state's miners over the weekend that he favors their position on which lands should be set aside for wilderness designations.

"What we have is a polarization on this issue," Bryan told the Nevada Mining Association meeting in Eiko Saturday. "One the one side, we have environmentalists who want everything withdrawn."

On the other side of the issue is the Mining Association, which agreed Saturday to end its opposition to a wilderness designation for six areas in the state comprising about 244,000 acres of U.S. Forest Service land.

Bryan said the proposal "strikes me as a reasonable position."

But the Democratic governor warned that the state must come up with its own wilderness policy or the state will be "dealt out of the hand" by Congress.

Bryan's concerns were shared by Rep. Barbara Vucanovich, R-Nev., who urged the miners to reach a compromise with environmentalists.

She added that such a compromise should be struck quickly so a bill can be prepared to head off possible congressional attempts to include more Nevada land in the federal wilderness system.

Ms. Vucanovich explained that Nevada is the only state without its own wilderness bill pending in Congress, and she warned that congressmen from states where environmentalists have more political muscle could push for more wilderness lands.

IF YOU DREAMED UP SOMETHING WITH THE HIGH INTEREST OF A CD, THE CONVENIENCE OF A MONEY MARKET ACCOUNT, AND THE SECURITY OF SAVINGS,

THIS WOULD BE IT.

DREAM RATE:
10.5%***

*From September 10, 14, our rate on deposits of $10,000 or more in our MultiRate MacroSavings Account is 10.5%. The rate for deposits of $2,500 to $9,999 is 9.25%. The rate for amounts below $2,500 is 8.75%. (Annual Percentage Rate)

It's called the Idaho First MultiRate MacroSavings Account.

That's quite a mouthful, we admit. But it's quite likely just what you'd dream up for your money.

Our MultiRate MacroSavings Account pays high competitive interest. Just like short-term CDs.

But a lot of people don't like having their money tied up in CDs. And they don't like running to the bank to renew them. So our MultiRate MacroSavings Account lets you take out funds whenever you want. Or leave it in as long as you like. Just like money market accounts.

Of course, many people wish money market accounts were insured. So our MultiRate MacroSavings Account is insured up to $100,000 by the FDIC. Just like ordinary passbook savings.

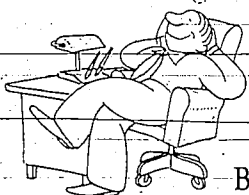

Unlike most CDs or money market accounts or savings plans, our MultiRate account gives you an occasional pat on the back. You see, the more you save, the higher your interest rate.

That's why we call it MultiRate.

You can open an account for as little as $2,500 and earn interest at one rate. When your account grows to $10,000, your interest goes up to the next rate.

As you know, interest rates do change. So check with us to find out the current rates. Give us a call or stop by. We'll try to answer all your questions. And, maybe, make at least one of your dreams come true.

Interest is compounded daily and paid quarterly on collected funds. Rates may change weekly based on a Treasury Bill based index.

King John conquers U.S. Open

By MIKE PENNER
Los Angeles Times

NEW YORK — Ivan Lendl lost his third consecutive U.S. Open men's championship final Sunday, but let the record show that, this time, he didn't choke.

This time, he didn't have the chance. To choke, a tennis player at least has to be in the position to win the match. The circumstances are all-important. Usually, it happens in the fifth set during the final of a major tournament, when a player, once in control, crumbles under the pressure of the moment's significance.

For an illustration, see Lendl vs. Connors, U.S. Open, 1982 — when Lendl withered completely in the last set, losing it, 6-0.

In 1984, John McEnroe never allowed Lendl that opportunity. McEnroe began Sunday's title match on top, stayed on top and wound up on top, winning in exactly 1 hour 40 minutes and in straight sets, 6-3, 6-4, 6-1.

It was anticlimactic — a mismatch in the final after a pair of all-timers in the semifinals the day before. McEnroe and Lendl had to put their all into scheduling this meeting, wringing out every drop of energy and emotion they had to get past Jimmy Connors and Pat Cash, respectively, in a couple of five-set crunchers Saturday.

And it showed Sunday. McEnroe said he felt miserable when he came to the National Tennis Center early in the afternoon. "And he looked pretty bad himself," McEnroe said of Lendl.

Both players were dragging, short of stamina and heavy in the feet. Lendl's solution was to try and end the points quickly, forsaking his accustomed baseline game for frequent ventures to the net.

McEnroe had a plan on a grander scale: He decided to end the match quickly. "I'm glad it went three sets," McEnroe said. "I feel really exhausted right now. I mean, I feel unbelievable and terrible at the same time. It was more of a mental thing — to just try and push, push, push each time."

Take it from Mac: Yelling at umpires, cracking rackets on the cement, throwing balls at linesman and stomping all over the court can really tucker a guy out. And — news flash — it also wastes time.

So McEnroe figured out that the quickest path between him and a good night's rest was to play it straight.

Lendl comes equipped with one of the most formidable weapons in the sport — his running forehead. For an opponent, it has to be one of the most fearsome sights imaginable: Lendl, at full steam, sprinting parallel to the baseline, swarming all over a shot, cranking up his right arm to full torque and — CRACK — sending the ball screaming down the line for a winner.

He put on a clinic in his match against Cash, finally wearing down the Australian with a fountain of forehands. But against McEnroe, Lendl's forehead was more an idle threat than anything else.

McEnroe simply didn't let Lendl hit it. This is accomplished one of three ways. The most obvious is to keep sending the ball back to Lendl's backhand, which McEnroe did on occasion.

More often, he took Steps 2 and 3 — hitting ground strokes to the deepest part of the court and slicing volleys at the severest of angles.

John McEnroe celebrates after receiving the trophy for defeating Ivan Lendl for the championship of the U.S. Open Sunday.

In brief . . .

Archer breezes in Boston

SUTTON, Mass. (AP) — Lanky George Archer celebrated his 45th birthday three weeks early Sunday, pulling away from the pack to win the $350,000 Bank of Boston Golf Classic by six strokes.

Archer, helped by an eagle-2 on the 394-yard 13th hole, fired a 6-under par 65 for a 72-hole score of 270, 14 under at Pleasant Valley Country Club.

The margin of victory was the biggest on the PGA tour this year. The victory was Archer's 13th since he joined the tour in 1961. However, it was the 6-foot-5 veteran's first since 1976 — after hand surgery but before a back operation.

Archer, who shot 68, 66 and 70 in the first three rounds started the day tied with Calvin Peete at 205, one stroke behind PGA tour rookie Joey Sindelar, a three-time Ohio State All-American. Sindelar finished in a tie with Frank Conner for second place at 276.

Another title for CMV/FB

POCATELLO — The Coors of Magee-Valley/Falls-Brand team of Twin Falls captured the championship of the Pocatello Co-ed Softball Tournament here Sunday.

Coors defeated Tri-Circle of Rupert in the championship game, 17-4, after beating teams from Pocatello and Logan, Utah, to gain the finals.

Rich Watson of Coors was named the top defensive player of the tournament while teammate Krista Kravitz earned the tournament's offensive player honors.

Twenty-six teams from Idaho and Utah participated in the tourney.

Alcott wins Portland crown

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Amy Alcott, playing a near error-free round while her main challengers struggled, shot a 2-under-par 70 Sunday to win the $150,000 Portland PING Championship by three strokes.

The 28-year-old Alcott, who began the day in a four-way tie for first, won for the third time this year and the 20th time in her nine years on the Ladies Professional Golf Association tour. She finished the 54-hole event at 4-under-par 212, one-of-jif-two golfers who managed to break par through three rounds on the difficult Riverside Golf and Country Club course.

Kathy Baker of Clover, S.C., was second at 1-under-par 215, her highest finish in her year on the LPGA tour. Baker won $13,500 by finishing second.

Nevada-Reno loses opener

STOCKTON, Calif. (AP) — Ken Norgaard kicked two field goals to lead Pacific University to a 12-7 victory late Saturday over defending Big Sky Conference champion University of Nevada-Reno in a non-conference college football game.

Reno posted its only score in the second quarter on a 45-yard touchdown pass from Eric Beavers to Scott Threde.

With 3:05 remaining in the third quarter, Norgaard kicked a 36-yard field goal. On the ensuing kickoff, Norgaard's kick was fumbled by Nevada-Reno on their own 22-yard line. Pacific's Michael Scott recovered it, two plays later, Ron Thornton ran 41 yards from the 12 to make the score 9-7.

Norgaard added another 32-yard field goal with 3:38 remaining in the fourth quarter.

Simms & Co. top fumbling Cowboys

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. — Phil Simms fired three touchdown passes and Lawrence Taylor and Terry Kinard led an opportunistic defense that forced two Dallas turnovers as the surprising New York Giants breezed past the Dallas Cowboys 28-7 Sunday.

Simms, who — through — for — four touchdowns in a victory over Philadelphia last Sunday, fired a 62-yard scoring pass to Byron Williams late in the first period to give the Giants a 7-0 lead. Then, only a minute and five seconds later, he hit rookie Lionel Manuel with a 16-yard scoring strike on the first play after Kinard intercepted a Gary Hogeboom pass and returned it 39 yards.

Then Taylor, who finished with three sacks despite leaving the game briefly in the third quarter with a shoulder bruise, put on his show for the Giants Stadium crowd of 75,911.

With Dallas in a third-and-3 situation at the Giants 6, the all-pro linebacker blitzed up the middle and crashed into Hogeboom. The ball bounced loose right into the hands of Andy Headen, the Giants' other outside linebacker, and he raced 81 yards untouched into the end zone to make it 21-0. It was the longest fumble return for a touchdown in Giants' history.

Taylor sacked Hogeboom again to force a fumble that Kinard recovered late in the first half to stop another threat by the Cowboys, who fell to 1-1 after an opening-game victory over Los Angeles.

Ron Fellows fumbled the opening kickoff of the second half and Byron Hunt recovered on the Cowboys' 18. On the first play, Simms, who finished with 10-of-20 completions for 165 yards, fired a strike over the middle to tight end Zeke Mowatt for the final Giants' score.

Dallas finally scored midway through the third period when Hogeboom tossed a 2-yard scoring pass to Doug Cosbie at the end of a 60-yard, seven-play drive.

The win was the second for the Giants in their last three meetings with the Cowboys in Giants Stadium. The margin of victory was the greatest for New York over Dallas since a 44-10 decision in 1962, the Cowboys' third year of existence.

Parcells, who is starting his second season as coach, is looking for the same thing in the Giants, who again appear to be strong defensively and questionable offensively.

"We're still not where I want to be on either side of the ball," said Parcells. "But the clubs that can play well over the next four, five and six weeks will have a shot at the playoffs. Our objective is to improve every week."

Seahawks win big yet again

By JIM COHR
The Associated Press

SEATTLE — When Franco Harris made his first carry for the Seattle Seahawks Sunday, a 6-yard gain over left tackle late in the opening quarter, they trailed the San Diego Chargers 10-0.

"I was thinking about not fumbling," admitted the National Football League's No. 2 all-time career rusher following the Seahawks' 31-17 come-from-behind victory. "I didn't know how much I could help the team but I didn't want to hurt them."

"Franco was relieved after his first carry," chimed in quarterback Dave Krieg, the Seahawks' offensive star of the game. "It was like someone had lifted a burden off his back."

The legendary Harris, 34, who joined Seattle as a free agent Wednesday after surprisingly being placed on waivers by the Pittsburgh Steelers on Aug. 20, gained 46 yards on 14 carries in his Seahawks' debut.

That gave him 11,996 yards in his 13-year NFL career and moved him into within 317 yards of breaking Jim Brown's NFL rushing record.

"I want to help Seattle as much as I can," Harris said. "This is a team that wants to go all the way to the Super Bowl. I want to help them get there."

Krieg scored on a pair of runs in the second half, including a 37-yarder in the third quarter, and passed for another score.

Meanwhile, the Seahawks forced San Diego to commit eight turnovers. "I'm not saying we have to do this every week in order for us to win," said Seahawks' free safety John Harris, who picked off two Dan Fouts passes, "but I sure helps our offense when we do."

The Seahawks' secondary intercepted Fouts four times as Seattle improved its National Football League record to 2-0. San Diego dropped to 1-1. Seattle's defense had six of the San Diego turnovers — four pass interceptions and two fumbles — and its special teams had the other two Chargers' lost fumbles.

"We weren't able to maintain any consistency at all," said San Diego head Coach Don Coryell.

Payton runs amok over Broncos

By JOE MOOSHL
The Associated Press

CHICAGO — Walter Payton's ultimate goal is 15,000 yards rushing and, "If Jim Brown's record falls in this process, that's just one of those things."

Payton took a giant stride toward that goal when he tipped off a 72-yard touchdown — his 28th — for 179 yards Sunday to break Brown's combined yardage total, leading the Chicago Bears to a 27-0 victory over the Denver Broncos.

Payton also caught two passes for seven yards, giving him a career total of 15,317 combined yards to Brown's previous record of 15,453.

"I'm feeling pretty good," said Payton after the game. "It was a tremendous win and the victory means more than anything. It's our best start in a long time. When things go right, they go right."

Payton was returning to the 72-yard run, the longest touchdown run of his 10-year career. It looked like a picture play bit came off the wrong formation.

"Jimbo (Covert) was supposed to dull and didn't," said Payton. "I sliced through — and after I hit the outside I kept my balance and took off. They charged down and I drifted out."

Coach Mike Ditka said the play can be run off both of the Bear formations.

"The players did what the quarterback called," said Ditka. "I wanted it to go strong-left to get (Dennis) Smith, the safety, out of the play. As it turned out, he wasn't in the play at all."

Payton said he wasn't "thinking about any records going into the game. Just to win."

Someone informed Payton that Brown had said he would like to be a special guest when Payton breaks his record — and Payton said, "I do anything he wants, I'll even foot the bill for him. Throwing the football the way I did probably will cost me $500 or $1,000."

Payton threw the football high into the stands when scored on the 72-yard run but he also had the game stopped and was given the ball when he surpassed — Brown's — combined rushing-receiving total.

It was the eighth-best rushing game for the 30-year-old Payton, who holds the single-game NFL rushing record of 275 yards set against Minnesota in 1977. He now has 11,965 rushing yards, 47 short of Brown's coveted record of 12,312.

Payton, who did not play in the fourth quarter, broke loose for the 72 yards in the second period to stake the Bears to a 17-0 lead.

Payton started around his left end, cut back after receiving a couple of blocks and eluded cornerback Mike Harden as he breezed into the end zone.

Earlier, Harden had been burned on a 61-yard touchdown pass from Jim McMahon to Willie Gault, giving the Bears a 10-0 lead in the first quarter after Bob Thomas had booted a 38-yard field goal.

Murray's second-chance kick stakes Detroit to overtime win over surprising Atlanta crew

By The Associated Press

Ed Murray of the Detroit Lions said he didn't like the kick, but he loved the results.

Murray kicked a 48-yard field goal 5:06 into overtime Sunday to give the Lions a 27-24 National Football League triumph over the Atlanta Falcons in Atlanta.

"The result was good, but I wasn't pleased with the kick," Murray said of his game-winner. "I knew it was long enough, but it was moving around a little and I was a little concerned with that. It started to move left, then floated right and went right through the middle."

Murray was disappointed over missing a 55-yard attempt with nine minutes remaining that would have broken the 24-24 deadlock before the extra period.

"I really screwed up that 55-yarder," he said. "I started out good, then about halfway there it died. The ball seemed dead all day."

Lions Coach Monte Clark said, "The best thing we did all afternoon was win the toss, then take the kickoff in the overtime and move the ball into field goal range for the winning kick. I sure didn't want Atlanta to have another shot at it."

The Lions, squaring their record at 11, drove 51 yards with the overtime kickoff, with Gary Danielson contributing the key play, a 30-yard pass to David Lewis down the middle for a first down at the Atlanta 34.

Danielson, who completed 22 of 31 passes for 250 yards, earlier had a 13-yard pass to Lewis during the drive.

The setback left the Falcons at 1-1, despite a brilliant passing game by Steve Bartkowski, who hit 24 of 28 attempts for 299 yards.

Atlanta drove 51 yards to the Detroit 29-yard line with 2:00 remaining in regulation, but Mick Litchner missed a 47-yard field goal attempt that could have won the game.

The Falcons, who overcame a 17-0 deficit and gained a 17-1 tie, fought back again to tie the score at 24 when Bartkowski threw a 25-yard touchdown strike to Stacey Bailey in the end zone five seconds into the tie period.

Danielson, who engineered scoring drives on Detroit's first three possessions of the game, had given the Lions a 24-17 lead with 4:10 left in the third period when he connected with Leonard Thompson on an 11-yard scoring pass.

Philadelphia 19, Minnesota 17 in Philadelphia, quarterback Ron Jaworski threw a 1-yard touchdown pass to tight end John Spagnola with two seconds left to give the Philadelphia Eagles a victory over the Minnesota Vikings.

Philadelphia drove 59 yards in 11 plays for the touchdown that evened its season record at 1-1.

The Vikings appeared to have stopped the Eagles when Wilbert Montgomery was tackled short of the end zone on a fourth-down run. But Minnesota was assessed a two-yard penalty, giving Philadelphia another chance.

This time, Jaworski stood in the pocket and found Spagnola in the corner of the end zone for the winning score.

Los Angeles 20, Cleveland 17 in Anaheim, Calif., Mike Lansford kicked a 27-yard field goal with 1:25 to 17-13 victory over the Tampa Bay Buccaneers.

come-from-behind victory over the Cleveland Browns in a National Football League game.

Back Eric Dickerson led the Rams marched 61 yards to the Cleveland 9 set up the winning score.

Dickerson, who gained 102 yards on 27 carries in the game, got 48 of his yards on six carries in the winning drive.

The victory evened the Rams' record at 1-1. Cleveland's whitest loss to the Seattle Seahawks last week, 33-0, fell to 0-2.

New Orleans 17, Tampa Bay 13 in New Orleans, quarterback Richard Todd hit two long passes in the final 2:35 of play, setting up Hokie Gajan's winning touchdown run, as the New Orleans Saints rallied for a 17-13 victory over the Tampa Bay Buccaneers.

Todd's first late completion was a 24-yard pass to Tyrone Young. The second was a 51-yard pass play to Gajan that put the ball at Tampa Bay's 13-yard line.

The 31-yard play went 7 yards in the air and 44 on the ground as Gajan lightpooped the right sideline past the Bucs' secondary. Gajan picked up 5 yards from the 13, then booted 9 yards for the touchdown on the next play.

St. Louis 37, Buffalo 7 in St. Louis, Neil Lomax passed for 276 yards and two touchdowns and Stump Mitchell set up a touchdown, and a field goal with lengthy returns, helping the St. Louis Cardinals roll to a triumph over the Buffalo Bills.

Neil O'Donoghue kicked field goals of 23, 21 and 52 yards for St. Louis, helping the Cards square their record at 1-1. Buffalo 15-0-2.

Dolphins take no prisoners while extending their record to 2-0 with victory over New England

By The Associated Press

Dan Marino continued his domination of the National Football League secondary Sunday, but the Miami quarterback shared the hero's role with little-known wide receiver Mark Clayton in the Dolphins' 17th straight victory over the New England Patriots in Miami.

Marino tossed a pair of touchdown passes to Clayton within a 96-second span of the third quarter as the defending AFC East champions broke away from a 7-7 halftime tie and buried the Patriots 27-7.

New England, dropping to 1-1, hasn't won in Miami since Nov. 27, 1966 — the first time the teams ever met.

"You hate to come in here and lose, but we're in good company," Pat quarterback Steve Grogan said. "A lot of other people come down here and do the same thing, but we're more consistent than anyone."

Marino, who threw five touchdown passes in a season-opening 35-17 victory over Washington, teamed with Clayton on a 38-yard bomb for a go-ahead score with 12:38 remaining in the third period.

Charles Bowser's fumble recovery two plays later set up a 15-yard scoring flip to Clayton, who shrugged off the effects of a mid-week cold, 1:36 later.

"The first (TD) time I ran the wrong route, but I saw Dan was scrambling and I broke my pattern," Clayton said. "I don't think they'll (coaches) complain about that."

"It was just a great throw, great execution on the second one," added

Clayton, who said he vomited at halftime and returned to field feeling "I was sick in the first half. I felt weak and had no strength," the second-year pro said. "I just needed to clean out my mind and get a Cincinnati comeback and put the Chiefs ahead to stay.

Los Angeles 28, Green Bay 7 in Los Angeles, cornerback Mike Haynes and Lester Hayes and the rest of the Los Angeles secondary dominated Green Bay's celebrated receiving corps as the Raiders whipped the Packers.

Green Bay's James Lofton, considered one of the NFL's finest wide receivers, was held without a reception. His running mate, John Jefferson, caught only three passes for 19 yards.

Blackedge completed 18 of 35 passes for 289 yards. His 19-yarder to Carlos Carson took the steam out of a Cincinnati comeback and put the Chiefs ahead to stay.

The Packers, who fell to 1-1, played all but the opening 1:58 without starting quarterback Lynn Dickey, who was forced to the sidelines with a bruised back. He incurred the injury when sacked by Mike Davis and Lyle Allen of the Oakland Raiders.

Randy Wright, a rookie from Cincinnati, took over at quarterback for the Packers. Playing in his first NFL regular-season game, Wright completed only 10 of his 23 passes for 67 yards and was intercepted twice before being replaced by Rich Campbell with 10:37 remaining in the game.

Indianapolis 35, Houston 21 in Houston, Indianapolis quarterback Mike Pagel threw three touchdowns passes, including one during a 21-point, second quarter, rally the Colts to a over the Houston Oilers.

The triumph was the first regular-season victory for the Colts since they moved from Baltimore to Indianapolis this year.

Pagel, who fiddled — fumbled — by completing 15 of 20 passes for 215 yards, completed a 14-yard touchdown pass to Butler in the third quarter that extended the Colts' lead to 29-14.

Houston, 0-2, managed to trim the Colts' victory margin in the fourth quarter when Earl Campbell, on his third touchdown run, lunched one yard to the end zone. Campbell rushed 24 yards on 15 carries for the day.

But Pagel came back with a 33-yard bomb to wide receiver Terry Porter with 5:58 left in the game.

Surprise — Kansas City finds itself alone atop the heap in the AL's Mild, Mild West

By The Associated Press

Kansas City Manager Dick Howser gets no special feeling from being alone in first place, though he admits things seem to be going the Royals' way.

Pinch-hitter Don Slaught and Darryl Motley each hit sacrifice flies in the bottom of the ninth inning Sunday to lift the Royals to a 5-3 decision over the Seattle Mariners in Kansas City, Mo., and take sole possession of first in the American League West. It was the first time the Royals were alone atop the AL West this season.

"That was a crazy game," said Howser. "You'd like to think things are going your way, at least for today. We were out of it, we were back into it, we were out of it and we were back on top of it."

The win put Kansas City one game ahead of Minnesota, which dropped a 9-3 decision to the Texas Rangers.

Kansas City begins a three-game series at Minnesota Monday and then plays three games each at Seattle and California.

"Minnesota is a big series, we've got to win," said Howser. "One thing I've thought about, is that in September you lose some tough ball games. This would have been a tough one to lose."

The victory left center fielder Willie Wilson, who scored the winning run, feeling a little funny.

"It does feel kind of funny," said Wilson. "We haven't been there (in first place) this late in the year in a while... But I can't get too happy because we still have a long way to go."

Slaught lined a pitch off reliever Ed Vande Berg to left field to score Willie Wilson with the winning run. Reliever Ed Nunez, 2-2, took the loss.

Jorge Orta had opened the Royals ninth with a pinch single. Wilson singled Orta to second and Pat Sheridan was intentionally walked to fill the bases before Motley filed to left to score pinch runner Oik Concepcion.

Mark Huisman, 3-3, pitched three innings of relief to get the win.

Seattle had gone ahead 5-4 in the top of the inning when John Moses scored from third base on Huisman's throwing error. With Moses on third and two outs, Huisman fielded pinch hitter Larry Milbourne's tap to the mound but threw wildly past first baseman Steve Balboni.

Texas 9, Minnesota 3
In Minneapolis, Texas knuckleballer Charlie Hough improved his career record to 8-0 against Minnesota with eight strikeouts and Donnie Scott, Gary Ward and Buddy Bell homered to carry the Rangers over the Twins.

The Twins fell a full game behind Kansas City in the race for first place in the American League West, but remained one-half game ahead of California.

Hough, 15-12, scattered nine hits in tossing his league-leading 15th complete game.

Chicago 8, California 2

In Chicago, Chicago White Sox pitcher Tom Seaver collected career victory No. 287, throttling the California Angels by doling out only four hits while striking out two and walking three.

Marc Hill's two-run double and a two-run single by Vance Law supported Seaver's pitching as Chicago snapped California's four-game winning streak. The Angels slipped 1½ games back of West Division-leading Kansas City.

Detroit 7, Toronto 2

In Toronto, Kirk Gibson hit a three-run homer and John Grubb added a solo blast to lift the Detroit Tigers to a victory over the Toronto Blue Jays and a sweep of their three-game showdown.

The victory increased the Tigers' lead in 11½ games over Toronto in the American League East and reduced their magic number to nine. Any combination of Detroit victories and Toronto defeats that add up to nine will clinch the division for the Tigers. Milt Wilcox, 16-7, scattered eight hits, striking out five, over the first six innings for Detroit.

Cleveland 7, Oakland 5

In Cleveland, Joe Carter and Chris Bando homered, doubled and singled and Jamie Easterly hurled four innings of scoreless relief as the Cleveland Indians rebounded from a five-run deficit to beat the Oakland A's.

Boston 10, New York 1

In Boston, hot-hitting Wade Boggs smacked four hits, including a pair of RBI doubles, and Jim Rice belted his 25th homer of the season to power the Boston Red Sox to a rout of the New York Yankees.

Baltimore 4, Milwaukee 0

In Baltimore, Mike Boddicker pitched the Baltimore Orioles to a shut-out victory over the Milwaukee Brewers and took the league lead with 18 victories. Cal Ripken Jr. clouted a two-run homer in support of Boddicker, an 8-1 performer since July 23 who lowered his earned run average to 2.69, second only to Toronto's Dave Stieb in the AL.

Mets win two out of three from Chicago

By The Associated Press

Ron Darling and Jesse Orosco combined on a six-hitter and Hubble Brooks hit a three-run homer in a five-run sixth inning as the New York Mets defeated the Chicago Cubs 5-1 Sunday in New York.

The victory moved the Mets within six games of Chicago in the National League East pennant race.

Darling, 12-6, struck out eight and walked two. The lone run came on Gary Mathews' 12th home run of the season leading off the ninth. Orosco finished with a perfect 11th inning of relief.

Scott Sanderson, who pitched five shutout innings for the Cubs, was forced to leave the game because of back spasms, an injury which caused him to spend more than a month on the disabled list this season. George Frazier, 5-3, gave up four of the five runs without recording an out in the sixth. Warren Brusstar relieved and allowed the final run.

Mookie Wilson opened the sixth with a triple to right field and Keith Hernandez doubled to right-center to drive in Wilson. Darryl Strawberry then struck out, but a third-strike wild pitch allowed Hernandez to reach third and Strawberry first.

George Foster singled to right to score Hernandez and bring on Brusstar, setting the stage for Brooks' 16th home run of the season. The Cubs' magic number held at 14 with both teams having 19 games to play.

Philadelphia 6, Montreal 5

In Montreal, pinch-hitter John Russell scored Rich Schu from third base with a sacrifice fly in the 11th inning as the Philadelphia Phillies defeated the Montreal Expos to snap a six-game losing streak.

With one out in the 11th, Schu singled to center off reliever Joe Hesketh, 1-1. Glenn Wilson doubled to send Schu to third and, after pinch-hitter Sixto Lezcano was intentionally walked, Dick Grapenthin relieved and Russell sent his first pitch to score the winning run.

San Diego 8, Houston 4

In San Diego, left-hander Mark Thurmond stopped the Houston Astros on four hits through seven innings to help the San Diego Padres nestle themselves a little more comfortably in the National League West driver's seat.

The Padres scored all of their runs in the first two innings as they moved to a nine-game lead over the Astros with 19 games remaining for both clubs. San Diego's magic number for the pennant is 11.

St. Louis 2, Pittsburgh 1

In Pittsburgh, Danny Cox and Bryce Sutter combined on a seven-hitter and Andy Van Slyke homered to lead the St. Louis Cardinals to a victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates.

San Francisco 6, Atlanta 4

In San Francisco, the San Francisco Giants posted a rare series sweep, but they were mathematically eliminated from contention when the division leading San Diego Padres also posted a victory. Rookie Bob Dyer blasted his first major-league home run and rookie Chris Brown contributed a two-run double.

Cincinnati 5, Los Angeles 1

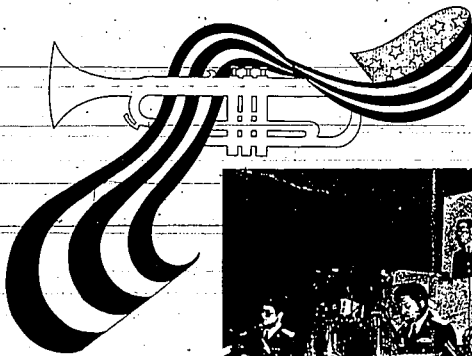

In Los Angeles, Cincinnati pitcher Tom Browning came within one out of becoming the first National League pitcher in a decade to hurl a shutout in his first major league start by beating the Los Angeles Dodgers.
