Reagan-Gromyko meeting 'useful'

Gromyko gesture puzzles observers

By MAUREEN SANTINI
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Reagan, bent on improving U.S.-Soviet relations in the twilight of his first term, conducted nearly four hours of "very strong and useful" talks Friday with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko, but no breakthroughs or agreements were announced.

After the meeting, Gromyko issued a statement saying the conversation with Reagan "does not, unfortunately, make it possible to draw a conclusion about practical possible changes in the foreign-policy course of the U.S. administration."

When asked whether Reagan and Gromyko had agreed on anything during their talks, Secretary of State George F. Shultz told reporters: "They agreed to keep in touch."

interchange and Mr. Gromyko expressed his views very powerfully and aggressively, as he always does, and the president listened to him very carefully," Shultz said.

Reagan and Gromyko spent a considerable amount of time discussing "the problems of nuclear weapons and what could be done about them," but Shultz made a point of saying they were not negotiating.

Shortly after Gromyko left the White House, it was announced that he would meet Saturday with Shultz, their second meeting this week.

Gromyko's statement, reported by Tass, the Soviet news agency, said that "it is not seen that the U.S. administration is ready to take a realistic stand on the substance of the acute problems of war and peace."

"The president declared for more frequent meetings of representatives of the sides; both at high, medium and other levels," said

Gromyko. "This in itself if combined with the needed contents of talks and with the setting of constructive goals... would contribute to rightening the state of affairs both in the world as a whole and in the field of bilateral relations between the two powers."

"But this is not the case," said Gromyko. "The Soviet Union will continue to judge real intentions of the U.S. side by its practical deeds. The future will show whether Washington intends to adhere to this course."

Gromyko's statement outlined the "constructive goals" as "an end to the arms race, reduction of nuclear weapons so that ultimately they could be fully destroyed, the elimination of the dangerous international tension."

During his first official session with a senior Kremlin leader, the president pulled Gromyko aside for an eight-minute chat without any aides to deliver a personal message, according to Shultz.

"He had some points that he wanted to make to Mr. Gromyko alone and he did it that way because he felt that just two individuals all by themselves in a room... there's something about a close one-to-one statement that perhaps carries special weight," said Shultz.

Shultz refused to divulge details of the private meeting, but described the overall session as "useful, forceful and direct." Reporters gathered in the Rose Garden could see part of the one-on-one encounter through the glass doors of the Oval Office. Reagan and Gromyko, who speaks good English, were standing face-to-face, each using both hands to gesture with extreme animation. But Shultz denied there were angry overtones.

Outrage at guru mounts

RAJNEESH PURAM, Ore. (AP) — Residents angered when disciples of an Indian guru began bringing homeless people to this central Oregon town now are further outraged to learn that any recent arrivals who decide to leave will be bused to nearby communities instead of home.

"Street people" who have arrived here since Sunday will not be provided free tickets home if they decide to leave, Ma Ananda Sarita, a spokeswoman for guru Bhagwan Shree Rajneesh, announced Thursday. They will be taken instead "to the nearest city," she said.

Those who arrived before Sunday will still be given free trips home as promised, she added.

Officials in nearby Madras, a city of 2,300, said the announcement has left them fearful that scores of homeless people will arrive there with no means to leave.

"This is a new problem and we're scared," said Madras Mayor Ray Murray.

Local residents contend that the Rajneeshites hope the street people's votes will enable them to take over the Wasco County government in the Nov. 6 election. However, the sect members say the program is simply part of their social experiment to help the homeless rise above their circumstances.

More than 300 of the street people he registered to vote, according to Swami Dnyan Bhalaynar, who said he organized a voter registration drive after hearing officials wanted to deprive them of the right to vote.

His efforts were not in the direction of Rajneesh's leaders, he said. "I'm the only one who's asking them to register," he said.

Gov. Vic. Blaine Thursday warned of a "potentially explosive situation" and urged residents to remain calm. The state is considering a U.S. Justice Department proposal that a "rumor control" center be established to deal with concerns about the Rajneeshites, state Attorney General Dave Frohnmayer said.

Security request slashed, Senate told

By W. DALE NELSON
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The State Department's emergency request for security officers and armored vehicles to protect embassies was cut in half and funds for 310 new Marine guards were deferred because of a White House budget decision, department officials testified Friday.

But Ronald I. Spiers, undersecretary of state for management, and an associate told the Senate Foreign Relations Committee that they did not believe the cuts would jeopardize the safety of American personnel abroad. They said additional funds will be requested of Congress in January.

Sen. Joseph Biden, D-Del., however, asked the department representatives, "Why should we not be doing whatever is necessary as fast as possible?"

And Sen. Charles McC. Mathias Jr., R-Md., said, "If there are some false economies here that will affect our security program, we want to know about them and make our own judgment about them."

The testimony came eight days after a truck bombing damaged a U.S. Embassy annex in east Beirut — the third attack of its kind against an American installation in the Lebanese capital in 18 months.

After questioning Spiers and Robert E. Lamb, assistant secretary for administration, the committee approved the administration's request for $36 million for security at embassies and U.S. Information Agency posts, plus $10 million for rewards for information about terrorists.

Senators challenged, however, the decision of the Office of Management and Budget to seek only $10 million of the amount as an emergency bill, coming back for the rest of the money as part of the regular appropriation process next year.

"OMB has the right to its opinion, but OMB isn't always right," said Mathias.

Tracy pleads guilty to sex charge, resigns

By DAVE LEWIS
Times-News writer

HALEY — Blaine County School Board Chairman John B. Tracy, whose time on the board is described as "impeccable" by another trustee, pleaded guilty in Halley's Fifth District Court Friday to having sexual intercourse with a minor.

A nearly 9-year member of the district's board of trustees, Tracy, 49, was released on his own recognizance awaiting sentencing by Judge Douglas D. Kramer.

He resigned from the board of trustees Thursday after being asked to step down. "Efforts" by The Times-News to reach Tracy Friday were unsuccessful.

The felony charge carries a maximum life sentence. However,

Kramer will set the actual penalty based on a number of considerations, said County Prosecutor Keith Roark. Sentencing will take place in four to six weeks, following a pre-sentence investigation by the court.

Roark charged Tracy, a Bellevue carpenter, Wednesday with having sexual intercourse with a female under 18 years of age in Bellevue between May 1, 1984, and July 1984. But, Roark said, the incident took place near the first part of May.

Tracy was arrested and arraigned on Thursday and pleaded guilty Friday morning.

Roark said Tracy's involvement in the incident came up during a one-day investigation his office made this week that resulted in the arrest of another Bellevue man on the same charge.

Also arrested with having sexual intercourse with a female under 18 years of age on July 14, 1984, in Bellevue was William C. Wolfenbarger, 41. Wolfenbarger is still in Blaine County Jail with bail set at $100,000.

Wolfenbarger listed his occupation as a barber when arrested.

Although the two arrests came from the same investigation, there is no connection between the cases, Roark said.

He would not say if more than one juvenile was involved in the two cases or give the ages of any minors involved.

Other school district trustees said they were shocked by the incident and described Tracy as a dedicated member of the board.

"I was stunned and shocked to learn of the news and have great concern for John and his family," said Trustee David Griffith of Sun Valley. "What makes this whole situation tragic from our positions on the school board is that he served the schools so well," Griffith said.

Griffith said Tracy's service to the schools was "impeccable" and that he demonstrated strong leadership as chairman of the board.

Trustee Frank Rowland of Halley said Tracy always took a fair approach in his role as chairman. Superintendent Phil Homer said the trustees will declare a vacancy on the school board at their Oct. 9 meeting in Carey and then begin a search for someone to replace Tracy for the duration of his term.

Tracy represented the district's Zone 2 on the board, a zone that includes Bellevue and southwest Halley.

Witness in Lafferty case pleads guilty

PROVO, Utah (AP) — One of four men charged with first-degree murder in the deaths of Brenda Wright Lafferty, 24, and her 15-month-old daughter, Ester, at their American Fork home all are charged with murder, conspiracy and aggravated burglary in the July 24 deaths of Brenda Wright Lafferty, 24, and her 15-month-old daughter, Ester, at their American Fork home.

The two counts of first-degree murder against Carnes still are in a civil rights case. The judge indicated they will be dropped in exchange for his testimony in the Oct. 23 trial of the Lafferty and Knapp.

Later Friday, the judge set an Oct. 15 hearing date to determine if the Lafferty brothers are competent to act as their own lawyers, as they have demanded.

Briefly

Toxic waste law tightened

WASHINGTON (AP) — Legislation tightening the federal law covering the handling and disposal of hazardous wastes was approved Friday by a House-Senate conference committee, making it the first major piece of anti-pollution legislation to reach enactment in this Congress.

The bill, described by sponsors as a loophole-closing measure that will bring millions of tons of hazardous waste under regulation, was a compromise version of bills passed earlier by the House and the Senate. It is expected to win final approval in the House and Senate next week.

In its final form, it will extend federal regulations to an estimated 130,000 small businesses that use chemicals in their everyday work, affecting virtually every business that produces enough hazardous waste each month to fill half of a 55-gallon drum.

Disneyland wants pickets out

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — Disneyland officials sought a court order Friday to get pickets out of the Magic Kingdom as part of a $250,000 lawsuit, officials said.

Before the hearing in Orange County Superior Court began, a Disney official accused strikers of throwing nails on the pavement and giving a visitor's car two flat tires. The unions said non-striking Disney employees tried to interfere with picketers.

Disneyland filed suit Thursday against the five unions involved in the four-day-old strike, seeking to limit the number of pickets, a no trespassing order and $250,000 damages.

Before Friday's hearing before Orange County Superior Court Commissioner Greer Stroud, union attorney Robert W. Gilbert said the picketing by members of five striking unions is legal and peaceful.

Reagan explains to Carter

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan told former President Carter by telephone Friday that he never meant to imply the Carter administration was to blame for the Sept. 20 bombing of the U.S. Embassy in Beirut.

Reagan's call came one day after bitter remarks from Carter and congressional Democrats indicated they had taken Reagan's earlier comments on the subject as implying just such blame.

A White House official, commenting on condition he not be named, said Reagan placed the call to Plains because he "wanted to be absolutely sure" Carter understood his position. He described Reagan's call not as an apology but as "an explanation."

There was no immediate public response by Carter, who received the president's call at his home in Plains, Ga.

Tylenol case remains open

CHICAGO (AP) — Two years after seven Chicago-area people died from taking cyanide-laced Tylenol capsules, two men have gone to prison in connection with the case, but the murders remain unsolved.

"It is still an active investigation," FBI spokesman Robert G. Long said Friday, one day before the Sept. 29 anniversary of the first of the deaths. "It is still open."

Long said agents still pursue leads that continue to trickle in, but he declined to say how many people are working on the case.

James W. Lewis was sentenced in June to 10 years in prison for trying to extort $1 million from Tylenol's manufacturer: "to stop the killings."

Another Texas inmate slain

HUNTSVILLE, Texas (AP) — A convict stabbed three times Friday with a metal ruler honed into a knife became the 15th inmate killed in Texas prisons this year and the second, this week, corrections officials said.

Alvin Pink, 30, died in the Ramsey II Unit near Rosharon, said Department of Corrections spokesman Charles Brown.

Friday's incident occurred in the center hall at Ramsey II about 8:50 a.m., according to Brown. The victim, serving a life term for murder, was pronounced dead about an hour later.

Burglary game turns to theft

BOULDER, Colo. (AP) — Three teenagers set out to have some fun by breaking into stores, outwitting burglar alarms and leaving notes behind, but police said Friday they gradually became genuine thieves who allegedly stole $1,500 in merchandise.

A tip that one of the trio was bragging about his exploits in school led to the arrest Wednesday of a 15-year-old. Police expected to make two more arrests shortly, Detective Larry Stelgraber said Friday.

All three will be charged with at least two counts of second-degree burglary and could face additional charges, the detective said. The youths' names have not been released.

Training in Honduras halted

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — President Jose Napoleon Duarte confirmed Friday that the training of Salvadoran soldiers in Honduras by a U.S. military advisers will be suspended.

In Tegucigalpa, the Honduran capital, a government spokesman said the National Security Council, headed by President Roberto Suaza Cordova, ordered a halt to the training of Salvadoran soldiers at a camp run by U.S. Green Berets until El Salvador settles a longstanding border dispute.

Soviets deny mailing tank specs

MILFORD, Mich. (AP) — The FBI how the microfilm got into the said Friday it is investigating how microfilm information about U.S. tanks got into a package that the Soviet Mission to the United Nations requested material for a class project.

The microfilm specifications, all unclassified, were in a damaged package — received by Christopher Foley, a junior at Milford High who discovered the film's contents on a microfilm machine at the school library.

Foley, the son of Milford Township Supervisor Robert Foley, had sent away for information from the Soviet Mission at the United Nations as part of a project on international relations.

"We have no conclusive theory" on how the microfilm got into the package, said FBI spokesman John Anthony in Detroit.

"That's not from our mission. That's absolutely impossible," Ludmila Delyeva, public relations officer for the Soviet Mission, said Friday.

"I myself sent it (the package) and I know I never sent microfilm," she said, laughing. "We sent brochures, books and magazines. Usually we send only this kind of information."

Anthony said the microfilm was clipped to computer cards found in the relayed package received by Foley at his Oakland County home on Sept. 17.

"Also included were 42 cards pertaining to unclassified M-1 tank specifications in connection with a bid on a contract for work to be performed on turrets on tanks" for 1960-1981 models, said Anthony.

"They were not plans," he said. "They were something any contractor wanting to bid on a job could receive."

Anthony said it was possible the cards and microfilm had been in another package and "comingled" with the contents of the damaged Soviet Mission package.

"The outgoing 42 cards and the incoming mail may have crossed paths in the same U.S. Postal Department" somewhere along the route, Anthony said.

"Or it could have been sent by the Soviet Mission itself inadvertently," said Anthony.

Meeting

U.S. officials had said in advance that one objective of the meeting would be to clear the air in the wake of the growing hostility between the superpowers, but Shultz said only a step in that direction had been taken.

"There's a lot of distress, there's lots of apprehension, there are lots of questions and I don't know if it's going to clear the air completely—but I think it undoubtedly made some progress in that direction," Shultz said.

Guru

"They have to demonstrate some good faith to resolve this issue," Aiyeh said Friday at a news conference.

He said the Rajneeshees could reduce tensions in the county by guaranteeing bus tickets home for the street people, and "I'm asking them to do that."

Rajneeshee's personal secretary, Ma Anand Sheela, said the guru's disciples have no intention of granting Aiyeh's request, and called him and other officials "bigots."

About 1,600 street people from around the country have been brought to Rajneeshpuram since the program began earlier in the month, said Rajneesh spokeswoman Ma Prem Isabel. The departures, steadily increasing, now total 270, she said.

Bustloads of departing street people are passing through Madras regularly, but so far almost all have had bus tickets to other places, Jefferson County Sheriff Hamlin Perkins said Friday.

"We haven't had any great influx of people being in town with no way out," he said. "I don't know what this is going to start, but I'm really dreading it."

A few of the homeless have been arrested in Madras on minor charges such as criminal trespass and theft of services, the sheriff said. And a local church is trying to help a handful of street people who wound up staying in Madras for various reasons, he said.

Walter F. Mondale for not having met with top Soviets earlier in his presidency, began the meeting by telling reporters, "I think that anyone must react with hope" to the fact that the meeting was occurring.

Nearly four hours later, Shultz escorted the foreign minister to the White House diplomatic entrance to bid farewell. Gromyko grinned and a classic victory gesture before stepping into his waiting limousine. He declined to answer reporters' questions.

"Right now it's a tremendous concern to the community," Perkins said. "Where are these people going to go? How many will there be? What automobiles are they going to steal? What kind of other crimes are they going to commit? You can almost let your imagination run wild."

Raw farm product prices drop 2.8 percent in September

By JIM DRINKARD
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The prices farmers received for their raw products declined by 2.8 percent in September after holding relatively steady for the four previous months, the Agriculture Department said Friday.

The price index for commodities entering the marketing pipeline, however, was 2.2 percent above the level of a year earlier, the department's Crop Reporting Board said.

Declines in the prices for potatoes, hogs, beef cattle, oranges, corn and soybeans were only partly offset by increases in prices received for tobacco, apples, peaches, milk and broilers, the board reported.

The prices farmers paid in September for supplies, services, interest, taxes and wages was unchanged from August, but 1.9 percent above their year-earlier levels. Feed and feeder livestock prices fell while fuels and energy costs rose.

Crop prices generally were 4.2 percent lower than for August but 2.2 percent above September 1983. Livestock and livestock products prices were off 2.1 percent from the previous month and 2.2 percent higher than a year ago.

Revised figures for August showed that the latest downturn actually started then, instead of holding steady as preliminary figures showed a month ago. August prices were off by about 0.7 percent.

Prices rose sharply in August 1983, reflecting the reduced crops that resulted from drought and the government's one-year payment-in-kind acreage-reduction program.

But with PIK largely a thing of the past, millions of acres are back in production this year, and projections are for stockpiles of feed grains and wheat to begin mounting again. That has weakened the outlook for commodity prices next year.

Agriculture Secretary John Block said this week the prospect "doesn't look as good as I would like for it to," but added he saw some chance for price relief for corn farmers.

Department economists are predicting a sharp upturn in 1984 overall farm income because of greater production and a rebuilding of inven-ories, and they say food prices may rise about 4 percent this year, significantly above last year's 2.1 increase, which was the smallest since 1967.

The preliminary September figures, based primarily on midmonth averages, the index for meat animals was off 3.9 percent from August, but was up 5.8 percent from a year earlier.

Dairy products were up 2.2 percent from a month ago and 0.7 percent down from September 1983, while poultry and eggs were up 2.5 percent from August and down 3.9 percent from a year earlier.

Vegetable prices were 8.5 percent below August levels, averaging 4.6 percent above last year. Lower prices for tomatoes, onions and lettuce contributed most to the decline.

Potatoes, sweet potatoes and dry beans plummeted 40 percent from a month ago and were down 2.3 percent from a year earlier, with potatoes suffering the sharpest drop.

Corn led the decline in the feed grains and hay category, with the index 2.7 percent below August and 9 percent below last year.

Soybeans continued their decline, and all oil-bearing crops were down an average of 5 percent from a month earlier and 23 percent from 1983.

Overall, September farm commodity prices averaged 139 percent of a 1977 base used for comparison, according to the preliminary figures, four points lower than August's 143 index.

Last April the index rose to 146 percent, an all-time high, and then declined in May to 144 percent where it had been until August.

The September parity ratio of 56 percent was down two points from the 58 percent recorded in August. A year earlier the indicator was 56 percent.

Under the parity formula, prices farmers get for commodities are compared with prices they pay to purchase them. It then uses a 1910-14 measurement to gauge what happened. At 100 percent, the indicator would theoretically mean that farmers had the same buying power they had in 1910-14.

For example, the average price of wheat in September was $3.42 per bushel, according to the preliminary figures. That was 45 percent of the September parity price of $7.47 per bushel.

Says Casey ordered report altered

CIA analyst attacks political pressure

WILLIAM CASEY
Relled on anecdotal info

WASHINGTON (AP) — A senior CIA analyst quit the spy agency last May after refusing CIA Director William J. Casey's demand that he rewrite an intelligence report on Mexico to emphasize unrest in the country, sources in the intelligence community and close to the analyst said Friday.

The sources, who spoke only on condition they not be identified, also said the analyst, John R. Horton, has complained that Casey relies heavily on anecdotal information from businessmen friends, sometimes regarding it as more valuable than data developed by professional intelligence operatives.

Reached by telephone Friday, Horton, 64, would only confirm points made in an earlier interview with the Portland (Maine) Press Herald: "I've already done enough talking," said Horton, a longtime intelligence officer who was the senior Latin America analyst at the Central Intelligence Agency when he resigned.

In the Press Herald interview published Sept. 7, Horton complained that White House "zealotry" prevented a full review of options in Central America and that Casey had applied pressure so that a report on a major Latin America country would "come out a certain way" to support administration policy.

Asked about Horton's remarks Friday, CIA spokeswoman Kathy Pherson said disputes in preparation of intelligence estimates are not uncommon because the process involves "a built-in give-and-take" among top U.S. intelligence officials.

"There are frequent disagreements as to what questions to ask, as well as what assessments to make," she said. She declined, however, to respond directly to Horton's complaints or to confirm that Mexico was the country involved in the dispute.

In a letter to the Senate Intelligence Committee on Friday, Senate Minority Leader Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va., called Casey's reported handling of the disputed intelligence estimate "a shocking misuse of the CIA for political purposes" and called for "an immediate and comprehensive investigation."

"If the Congress cannot rely on the unvarnished accuracy of the CIA's intelligence reports, then the asserted factual basis for virtually every major foreign policy decision of this administration is brought into question," said Byrd.

Migrant bill prospects look dim

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republican sponsors of a major immigration control bill searched Friday for ways to keep the measure alive, but House Majority Leader Jim Wright, D-Texas, said the prospects for passage appeared dim.

"We are trying to find ways to knock us off dead center," said Rep. Dan Loungron, R-Tx., a House sponsor of the bill. "I'm not willing to accept that this bill is dead."

"Nor am I," said Sen. Alan K. Simpson, R-Wyo., the chief Senate sponsor of the bill.

Negotiations between House and Senate conferees fell apart Wednesday over a dispute about including an anti-discrimination clause in a compromise bill. Simpson refused to accept the House-approved language, which remains the only point of difference between the two chambers.

The sponsors are trying to push the bill through Congress before it adjourns late next week. But Wright told reporters he did not think a way will be found to break the deadlock. "I am not optimistic of the bill passing," he said. "The bill is so fraught with emotions it will be nigh impossible to get a consensus."

Simpson said he met Friday afternoon with President Reagan about the bill and told him, "Here we are... at an impasse." The senator said he and Reagan discussed the cost of the measure, which Simpson said was "in the ballpark."

Baby food is recalled

WASHINGTON (AP) — Gerber is recalling about 18,000 3.5-ounce jars of its strained chicken and chicken both baby food after glass fragments turned up in four samples of the product, the Agriculture Department announced Friday.

The jars affected by the recall can be identified by one brand name, the size and the freshness date "05 OCT 86" which appears on the jar lid, said Ronald Prucha, deputy administrator of the department's food safety and inspection service.

Prucha said anyone who has the product should return it to the store where it was purchased. The baby food subject to recall is marketed in Connecticut, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Maine, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, New Hampshire, New York, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, Vermont and Wisconsin.

German protesters break into Army training facility

WILDFLECKEN, West Germany (AP) — Anti-NATO protesters broke into a U.S. Army training area Friday in a protest against military maneuvers, and West German police arrested 188 of them.

The state interior minister accused the Army of failing to guard its installations adequately.

The U.S. Army said Friday that vandals had broken into an Army air defense post in Finkenbergr near the East German border and sprayed paint on three Hawk missiles, but that the weapons were not damaged.

Anti-war groups have been harassing U.S. Army and West German troops for more than a week in the strategic Fulda Gap region, near the East German frontier, during NATO's Autumn Forge maneuvers.

Hesse state police spokesman Ernst Ludwig Jung said authorities expected 20,000 to 30,000 people in Fulda today for a demonstration that would cap more than a week of protest.

On Thursday, Lt. Gen. Robert L. Wetzel, commander of the 5th Corps, urged West Germany to crack down on "anarchists and criminals" who have damaged military vehicles, cut fences, sprayed paint and thrown rocks at soldiers. He said the culprits must be "prosecuted fully under German law."

Wetzel's statement drew an angry response Friday from Hesse State Interior Minister Horst Winterstein. He accused the U.S. Army of "insufficient security measures at its own installations" in West Germany and said it should solve these problems before criticizing the Germans.

Wetzel's spokesman, Maj. Cecil Green, said Friday the general did not question the right of West Germans to hold anti-military demonstrations but believed "criminal acts" should not go unpunished.

West German police are responsible for providing security up to the perimeter of U.S. installations. American soldiers and civilian guards hired by the Army patrol inside the military property.

Protesters singled out 5th Corps installations and the Wildflecken training area Friday even though maneuvers involving American troops were staged more than 100 miles south in Bavaria.

At the training ground, which serves mainly as a firing range for artillery and tanks, protesters were detained in "small groups" over a period of several hours after climbing through fences and hiking into the wooded, hilly range in northern Bavaria.

There were no reports of violence or injuries when demonstrators were rounded up by police.

Jung said live-fire training at several target ranges was "periodically" halted when small groups of protesters approached the target areas.

Protesters hung a sign on a tree inside the off-limits area reading, "Don't abuse our country for your aims" and "Don't defend us to death."

More cargo retrieved from ship

OSTEND, Belgium (AP) — Workers on Friday retrieved six more containers with radioactive material from the ruptured hull of a sunken French freighter in the North Sea after two weeks of bad weather halted salvaging, officials said.

They said seven of 30 containers with slightly radioactive uranium hexafluoride were still inside the 4,210-ton Mont Louis, which sank 12 miles off the Belgian coast on Aug. 25.

Henk Drenth, a spokesman for the Dutch salvaging company of Smit Tak International, said workers would attempt to continue salvage work Friday night.

Seventeen full and 16 empty containers were brought to the surface two weeks ago during a full in bad weather. Since then, bad weather had made it impossible to reach the remaining containers.

Small holes were blown in the hull Thursday night, and a floating crane ripped a 50-by-15 foot hole in the side above the containers, Drenth said.

All containers retrieved so far have been undamaged and no radioactive contents have leaked, officials said.

The water inside and near the stricken vessel continued to be checked for radioactive and chemical pollution, but none has been found since the Mont Louis sank in 46 feet of water after colliding with a North Sea passenger ferry.

Embassy hit in Peruvian gun attack

LIMA, Peru (AP) — Two or three gunmen in police uniforms and armed with automatic weapons raked the U.S. Embassy with bullets early Friday, shattering windows in the four-story building but causing no casualties.

Authorities initially blamed guerrillas of the Maoist Shining Path movement, but a pro-Cuban rebel group asserted responsibility in a note delivered to the embassy 12 hours after the attack.

An embassy spokesman said the note was signed by the Tupac Amaru Revolutionary Movement and called the attack its "political-military answer" to President Fernando Belaunde Terry's visit to the United States. The spokesman said the embassy would have no comment on the authenticity of the note.

Interior Minister Luis Percovich had said three gunmen took part in the attack, but the note said it was carried out by two of the group's "commandos" and it identified them as Dionisio Paredes and Juan Pablo Chang.

Police have said they believe the Tupac Amaru group, holding its name from a ruler of the old Inca empire, is much smaller than the Shining Path movement, which is strong in the Ayacucho region southeast of Lima.

Hours after the embassy incident, President Belaunde, in an address to the U.N. General Assembly in New York, said, "It is the basic task of the United Nations to prevent this scourge of terrorism."

A U.S. Embassy official, who spoke on condition he not be identified, described damage at the embassy as "limited," but said some windows on all four floors were smashed.

Slides roll down volcano

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — Boulders and mud dislodged by heavy rain thundered down the slopes of the Mount Mayon volcano Friday, damaging agricultural crops and roads but causing no casualties.

A bulletin from the Philippine Institute of Volcanology noted a further decrease in the 8,100-foot volcano's eruptive activity Friday but said the nearly three-week-old eruption "is far from over."

The bulletin said Mayon emitted light gray and brown clouds of steam and occasionally spewed ash and fiery material.

The volcano, in Albay province 200 miles southeast of Manila, began erupting Sept. 9, forcing more than 60,000 people in surrounding villages to seek refuge in 51 government evacuation centers in the provincial capital of Legaspi and other towns.

Chess match ends in draw

MOSCOW (AP) — World chess champion Anatoly Karpov and fellow Soviet Garry Kasparov adjourned the seventh game in their title match Friday, with Kasparov holding what many chess experts saw as a virtually hopeless position.

Karpov, who was playing white and leads 2-0 in the contest, sealed his 42nd move. The game will resume today. Six victories are required to take the title; draws do not count.

Some observers thought Kasparov was likely to continue the play; but that the position left him facing the prospect of another loss.

Magic with words

By HAL BERNTON
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls was transformed into a literary colony Friday as about 75 writers took up residence at the Holiday Inn for a two-day conference of the Idaho Writers League.

A selection of their published works set on a motel display table included poetry, literary reviews, Idaho history books and even a couple of romance novels.

The theme of this year's annual conference was "Magic with Words," and at an afternoon panel discussion, a quartet of area writers offered some insights into the mysteries of their profession.

Some of the more esthetic advice was proffered by David Spencer, a reader advisor at the Twin Falls Public Library. Spencer studied at the University of Vienna, majoring in philosophy and literature.

Spencer recounted an anecdote about a concentration camp survivor who owed his life to a line of German poetry he recited to a Nazi officer. He illustrated his points with quotes from Oscar Wilde, Ezra Pound and Ernest Hemingway.

He then yielded the floor to Dick Manning, city editor for The Times-News, who professed that he felt a bit out of place.

Manning, a Michigan native, said that "having a newspaperman dis-

Penelope Reedy, director of the Camas Writer's Workshop, fields audience questions uss writing is like inviting the madam of the local bawdy house to a panel discussion on chastity." Nevertheless, he insisted on being heard.

Manning asserted that writing is simple, but good reporting is hard. He counseled his audience "to observe the human condition so closely that it hurts. Train your eyes to see and your ears to hear and your hands to feel. That's the hard part. The writing is easy."

Larry Anderson, a Harvard graduate, published author and state senatorial candidate, was the next panel speaker.

Anderson's works have included the co-writing of George Hansen's "To Harass Our People," which details alleged Internal Revenue Service wrongdoings.

But during Friday's panel discussion, Anderson struck a different tone as he read an excerpt from a "Tolkien-like" novel he is writing that detailed sailing a cloud-filled sky:

"The sky was cluttered, jumbled and mused with every possible form of cloud... To the east there were round-cotony balls floating not so very high in the air. They moved independently of each other; though sometimes they touched and joined for a moment, or longer. Often they trailed pieces of themselves after such touching, leaving tiny round fluffy balls tagging slowly behind."

Anderson then read an excerpt from a Russian novel he is working on partially based on his experiences during a 1983 trip to the Soviet Union.

During the trip, Anderson said he had traveled through Russia with "blackmailers, people who were trying to leave the country."

While awaiting a train, Anderson said he was briefly forced to pose as the husband of a Russian "blackmail" to avoid the scrutiny of two Soviet militia men.

After a brief but tense encounter, Anderson and the woman were able to safely board the train. He later detailed the scene in a novel. He read an excerpt of that work to the audience.

The final panelist was Penelope Reedy, a Camas County resident, who edits the popular Redneck Review, which will soon publish its 10th annual edition. This year's offerings will also include a special Redneck Revue focusing on women's issues, she said.

Writers gathered from all over Idaho to hear from panelists and workshop speakers

No probe against Minidoka officer

By ANNETTE CARY
Times-News writer

RUPERT — The Minidoka County prosecutor says he plans to take no action against a reserve police officer who knocked down a door to arrest a 12-year-old for calling the off-duty officer a name.

"Looking in retrospect — hindsight — it's certainly possible Mr. Vaughn (the reserve police officer) didn't use the best judgment," says prosecutor Charles Creason, Jr. But he says there is insufficient evidence to prosecute Vaughn.

The boy's lawyer, James Annett, says the investigation of the evidence ordered by the prosecutor was "a whitewash." He says there is sufficient evidence to prosecute Vaughn on charges of battery, malicious damage of property and unlawful use of police authority.

The incident has been complicated by disagreements about just what happened and whether Max Vaughn was acting as a reserve police officer or as a private citizen.

The boy, Travis Mulligan, however, was charged with resisting a police officer, says Annett.

According to police records, the incident began when Travis and two of his friends were walking along a sidewalk in Vaughn's house to reach a public ditch behind Vaughn's property. The boys say Vaughn told them not to go back to the ditch, because his dog was at the back of his property.

The children and Vaughn agree that Vaughn's wife walked up then and asked the children if they had thrown a stick in the yard. She handed the stick to her husband. He began arguing with the children who were still standing on the sidewalk.

Annett says the children allege that Vaughn told Travis "I could kill you with this stick" and grabbed Travis by the lapels. According to police records, Vaughn and his wife deny he threatened or touched Travis.

"Travis later told police he was scared and called Vaughn an obscene name. At that point, Vaughn told Travis he was under arrest for disturbing the peace."

Travis ran home then with Vaughn chasing him down the block and locked the door behind him. His mother was at work at the time.

When Vaughn reached the door he hit it, he wrote in a report, and it came open. He grabbed Travis, took him to the Vaughn home and called the squad car that took Travis to the police station.

Les says she found the door jam completely broken off when she got home. An estimate she got to have the door fixed puts the damage at just over $200.

She asked Creason to file charges against Vaughn, including charges of police brutality, destruction of property, and assault and battery, she says.

Creason asked a county deputy to investigate the charges against Vaughn.

Officials swamped with flood claims

By The Associated Press
and The Times-News

BURLEY — Cassia County has been swamped by claims from property owners, businesses and one city government seeking repayment of damages and costs incurred from last spring's emergency flood diversion project below Oakley Dam.

To date, more than $2.5 million in claims have been filed against the county. And the county board has countered by filing its own claim against the State Water Resources Board and the company that oversees the dam system.

"There's no way under law we can pay that," said Commission Chairman Weldon Beck, who led the recent move to raise $1 million through a one-year property tax hike to cover costs connected with the 25-mile emergency diversion channel.

"We're going to have to sit down and decide who's liable for what and go from there," Weldon said.

The major claim filed against the county is by the Oakley Canal Co., which is seeking $1 million in interest on more than 30 other claims, including one from the city of Oakley, most are relatively small. But Union Pacific Railroad is seeking $398,000 in reimbursement and several landowners have filed claims in excess of $50,000 each.

Most of the claims are from groups that have little hope of collecting any of the funds from a $1.2 billion loan that area banks made available to the county government. This money must go to pay off construction contractors who helped build the Oakley diversion channel, not the farmers or other groups whose lands were affected by the channel.

Earlier this year, Olsen said that "there is some question" of whether area farmers whose livelihood was affected by the diversion have a valid claim to county compensation.

Olsen said that the state constitution requires the funds obtained from the line of credit be used to repay only those claims that "stemmed out of actual work to create the canal."

"The claims, which preserve for the filers the right to sue the county for reimbursement, generally cover expenses or damage to property from the diversion channel."

In response to the $2.5 million in filed claims, the county filed its own claim against the state and the canal.

Arson charge filed in Twin Falls blaze

TWIN FALLS — Police have charged a 26-year-old Twin Falls man with setting a Sunday morning blaze that destroyed a downtown business building three weeks ago.

Brad Reed of Twin Falls was arrested late Friday afternoon and charged with second-degree arson of the vacant structure at 305 Third Ave. E., public safety director Tim Qualls said.

Reed also was charged with two counts of first-degree burglary in connection with a recent break-in at Kelley Garden Center, 2223 Addison Ave. E., he said.

The brick building, owned by Reed Gould of Twin Falls, was discovered to be burning by a neighbor who ran a block to the police station to turn in the alarm.

The Twin Falls fire department pumped water on the blaze for several hours. At one point, flames leaped high into the air and there was at least one large explosion. Although the building was gutted, nearby homes and a business across the alley were saved.

The building had housed Magic Valley Hell-Are and Manufacturing for nine years, but the business had moved in May.

Qualls said Friday city arson investigators had suspected arson from the way the fire had spread. It had started at the rear of the building, according to fire commander Phil Clough.

Reed had been under suspicion and was booked Friday after being questioned by police, Qualls said. No other suspects are being sought.

Police officer resigns, reduces force by half

SHOSHONE — The assistant police chief for Shoshone is leaving his post.

Dean Larsen, who has been half of the Shoshone town and police force for the past seven years, will end his Shoshone duty Sunday.

Larsen notified the city Sept. 18 that he has accepted a position with the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service, Border Patrol.

His resignation leaves police chief John Staifer as the city's only law enforcement officer until a replacement can be found, but the city department receives backup assistance from the Lincoln County Sheriff's office and city officers use the county dispatch service, city officials explained.

Larsen was recently honored by local law enforcement officials for his handling of a crisis situation involving an armed man.

County Prosecutor Doug Rose said Larsen's careful approach to a potentially dangerous situation prevented a shooting confrontation and quite likely saved lives.

Applications for the police officer position are being taken at Shoshone City Hall until 5 p.m. Oct. 8.

Few answers to predator problem

By HAL BERNTON
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — For the past nine years, Guy Connolly has spent most of his working hours trying to devise better ways to snuff out coyotes, that kill livestock.

Guard dogs, electric fences, tainted baits and poison collars — Connolly has seen them all. And none of them represents the final solution for doing away with mutton-seeking coyotes.

"We don't have a panacea and I don't think we ever will," says Connolly, a U.S. Fish and Wildlife biologist who works out of a small Twin Falls office.

But Connolly also is quick to point out that coyotes are not an all-pervasive problem for ranchers.

"The coyote's pose a serious problem for about 15 percent of the nation's ranchers," Connolly told a Thursday night meeting of the Prairie Falcon Audubon Society. "And about 50 percent of the ranchers really don't have any problems with them at all."

Connolly says that the Magic Valley — because of a very effective helicopter-hunt program — has relatively few ranchers plagued by coyote predation. But in the Mackey area, where the more rugged terrain offers plenty of places to hide from helicopters, ranchers have lost as many as 45 percent of their new lambs to coyotes.

Connolly's interest in coyotes began more than a decade ago when he worked as research biologist for the University of California in Mendocino, Calif.

"The sheep were being preyed on and there didn't seem to be that effective management," he recalls.

The catalyst for his early research projects was a 1972 Environmental Protection Agency decision to ban the use of the controversial 1080 in live baits. The baits were fiercely opposed by environmentalists because of their deadly impact on "non-target" wildlife species, including birds of prey.

"The one positive aspect of that decision was a great outpouring of federal funds to find an alternative control," Connolly says.

Connolly recalls the years following the 1972 ban as a sort of golden age for coyote research, with as many as 100 studies undertaken at various locations around the country.

In 1975, after his California job fell victim to budget cuts, Connolly moved to Twin Falls to head up a coyote research program for the Denver office of the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service.

His first assignment was to test out an untested poison collar filled with sodium cyanide, an extremely lethal poison.

Connolly was dubious about this particular collar design. But with funds for a field study already budgeted, he was instructed to complete the study.

The collar failed miserably, Connolly says. "It was a kind of Mac West affair with enough cyanide in the collar to kill 600 people. But we had 14 field trials and it didn't kill a single coyote. They didn't like its smell and wouldn't bite into it."

In recent years, despite waning national interest in coyote control, Connolly's program has continued to receive modest funding.

He now works with one technician and an Ogeden-based biologist who works with about 100 caged coyotes and a flock of trapped magpies.

In recent years, Connolly's research has focused on a modified collar design that contains a lethal dose of 1080.

He estimates that in 75-percent of coyote attacks on 1080-collared sheep, the predator ends up dying, usually within three hours time.

But trying to get the collars approved by the EPA for rancher use has been a time consuming and sometimes frustrating task. The collar is now authorized for limited use by state and federal agencies, but still off-limits to ranchers.

And even if the collar is approved for general use, it's $15 price tag may serve as an additional barrier to its widespread use.

Connolly says his current studies involve documenting the safety of "non-target" species who might feed on a poisoned coyote.

But he says that sometimes he worries of the coyote wars and contemplates expanding his work to look at predator impacts on wild game populations.

"Sometimes I think it would be nice to be in a less controversial area of research, but other times I think that this is really a tough issue to look at — and somebody's got to do the work."

Briefly

Beaulieu to court on assault

TWIN FALLS — Dean Robert Beaulieu, 32, 498 Jefferson St., Twin Falls, was arraigned in Fifth District Magistrate Court Thursday, on charges of aggravated assault after he allegedly took a gun from a city police officer and threatened another officer.

He also faces battery, and resisting arrest charges from an incident at his home Wednesday night. The complaint filed against Beaulieu alleges that while under the influence of alcohol, he engaged in an argument with his wife, repeatedly showing her against the furniture and onto the floor. When she fled outside, he followed, pushing her to the ground. Twin Falls police officers R. Tim Miller and Gary D. Motzner responded to a call from Helen Beaulieu requesting her husband be placed under arrest for battery.

According to police reports, Beaulieu pushed Motzner backwards over a piano stool and seized Miller's revolver from his holster and pointed it at the officers. Miller was able to retrieve the gun and Beaulieu was restrained with hand cuffs.

A public defender was appointed to represent the defendant on each of the three counts but Magistrate Charles Brumbach ordered him to reimburse the county for the costs. Bail was set at $1,500 for the felony charge of aggravated assault, and $500 each for resisting arrest and battery. Beaulieu entered a plea of not guilty to resisting arrest and battery. He is being held in custody in the Twin Falls County Jail.

Court upholds DUI arrest

BOISE (AP) — The Idaho Supreme Court has upheld a drunken driving arrest in a Twin Falls County case, even though a Nevada Highway Patrol officer had to cross the state line into Idaho to aid the arrest.

The court on Friday unanimously upheld the drunken driving arrest of Jan Rutherford in December of 1982. A Nevada officer testified he saw the man driving in an erratic manner, chased him across the state line and detained him until an Idaho officer could make the arrest.

The court ruled the Idaho officer had probable cause to arrest Rutherford, because he also observed the man in an apparently drunken state.

Construction activity rises

BOISE — The value of construction activity in Idaho was up 27.7 percent above 1983 levels during August with most of the effort going into commercial buildings and other nonresidential work.

First Security Bank of Idaho reports building permits totaling $44.1 million were issued throughout Idaho during August.

Residential building came to only 401 dwelling units, valued at $16.9 million, a 7.4 percent drop in value. At the same time, the value of nonresidential construction rose to $17.9 million, a jump of 165.8 percent over last August. Coeur d'Alene led the state with almost $4.2 million worth of activity. Boise was second with $2.6 million.

Permits for alterations and repairs dropped slightly to $3.4 million.

For the first eight months of the year, residential construction is up 13.3 percent and nonresidential building is up 8 percent, according to the bank, which issues monthly reports of construction activity.

Aspens turn color up north as fall settles in mountains

TWIN FALLS — The Aspens have turned yellow as fall continues to wind its way through the Sawtooth National Forest.

In the Burley Ranger District, all Campgrounds are open. But the district's water system is undergoing repairs, so campers must bring in their own water. Fishing is reported very good at Lake Cleveland and at Sublett Reservoir where anglers are reportedly catching "the big ones."

The Twin Falls Ranger District reports water has been turned off at all of the campgrounds, except Schipper and the Rock Creek Guard Station. Big Creek Road and Telephone Canyon Road are both still closed. Most district roads are dry, but rough and visitors are urged to drive slowly and with caution.

Recommended woodcutting areas in the Twin Falls District include Buckskin Ridge, Eagle Springs and Basin Patch north of Bostetter. Firewood permits can be obtained at the Ranger District office Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Permits can also be obtained at the trailer at Diamondfield Jack parking lot in the South Hills on Saturday and Sunday from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m.

In the Fairfield Ranger District, the water is turned off at all campgrounds except Canyon Campground and there are no fees charged where water is not available. Fishing is slow. Firewood permits are still available on weekends at the Shake Creek and Big Smoky Guard Stations on the South Fork of the Boise River.

Big Smoky is open Thursday through Monday from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., and Shake Creek is open Friday through Tuesday from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

The Ketchum Ranger District reports all campgrounds open, with no water available at Sawmill Campground. The hiking trail on Bald Mountain to the bottom of Graduate Ski Run is now open. Fishing in the area is good to excellent.

In the Sawtooth National Recreation Area, the water has been turned off at most campgrounds. Visitors should check at SNRA headquarters or the Stanley Ranger Station for specifics.

At Stanley Lake, only Inlet A Campground is open. At Redfish Lake, only Outlet and Seckley campgrounds are open. The SNRA headquarters will continue to be open seven days a week until November.

Drag races set at Bliss race track

By APRIL BISHOP Times-News correspondent

BLISS — The Wild Hare Race Track in Bliss will be the scene for wild sand and mud drag races Sunday.

The sand drag races run from 11:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. The races will be held over a 100-yard course with three categories — street class for Jeeps and pick-ups, street and trail class for Jeeps and pick-ups, and a modified class.

All classes are determined by the engine's cubic inches and the weight of the vehicle.

Mud races begin at 3 p.m. with races over a 100-yard course of 3/4-foot deep mud. The class divisions are the same for the mud races with classes being determined by tire size.

Power wheel

There will be first place trophies in every class with special trophies for best appearance and for the longest tow — the entry coming the longest distance.

Entry fees are $10 per event and $20 for the modified class. Fees will be paid at the track the day of the race. Entrants can call Jim Holland at 934-5441 for further information. Spectators admission is $3, children under 12 are free.

The Bliss City Council is tentatively planning a full-schedule of sanctioned racing activities at the Wild Hare Race track next year depending on the success of Sunday's racing meet.

Proposals include snow mobile races, 4x4 meet, motocross, tractor pulls and construction of a three-eighths mile, oval dirt track, similar to Thunder Bluff Raceway.

Officers

The deputy concluded that "reserve police officer Max Vaughn... did not actually sustain any action that was unlawful or that could be construed as using excessive force."

The deputy concluded that the argument "had blown up" and "needed immediate attention." He said Vaughn had chased the boy down the street and hit open the door in "hot pursuit."

Creonson says he does not plan to file a complaint against Vaughn. It would be difficult to prove what happened with "a swearing contest" now going on between the parties involved, he says.

There is no question that the child was grabbed inside the house, Creonson says. But to prove assault, specific intent has to be proved. That would be difficult, he says. Similarly, he says he does not think it could be proved that Vaughn hit in the door with malice, a requirement for a criminal destruction of property conviction.

Creonson says that the investigation was made on the assumption that Vaughn was acting as a private citizen, making a citizen's arrest.

Annest, however, says that Vaughn may have been acting as a property owner when he confronted the children, but "after some confrontation between the owner and the child he used the powers of a police officer to impose an arrest."

Annest also maintains that Vaughn had no right to touch the boy; the boy was never on Vaughn's property and called Vaughn a name only after the Vaughn had started an argument, Annest says.

Vaughn says he was acting as a reserve police officer. But city police Chief Paul Fries says Vaughn was not acting as a police officer during the incident and, consequently, Fries considers the matter a neighborhood squabble, not a police incident. He says Vaughn has been a "very active and very good" reserve officer for at least a dozen years.

Travis's mother says she wants a copy of the incident. The gravestone service will be held Monday at 2 p.m. in Rupert Cemetery, with the Rev. Sam Hosler officiating. Friends may call at the Hansen Mortuary Chapel in Rupert on Monday until the time of the service.

WHITE Mortuary

PLEASE OMIT SENTIMENT?

When it becomes your responsibility to decide whether flowers shall be included in a funeral service, consider, for a moment, why flowers play a part in all of life's significant ceremonies.

Because the beauty of flowers is in itself a miracle and a symbol of hope, flowers have always belonged at weddings, at church services, and at those moments when human feeling overflows.

At White's, we, of course, conduct services according to your wishes. Yet we think you would like to know that flowers at this time often provide comfort to the family as well as a tribute to the one they love.

company, claiming they are responsible for the losses sustained by landowners and businesses. The county claims the Water Resources Board is responsible for the losses because it was "negligent in handling the Oakley Dam prior to the flood emergency by its failure to order the release of water and by the failure of the board to exercise its power" to build the diversion channel itself.

"They would not accept that responsibility, forcing the county to exercise its emergency police powers," said attorney Gerald Olson. The county does not list a dollar amount in its claims.

McCannell to lead Small Church House

By GLENDA MAY Times-News writer

FILER — The Rev. Bruce McConnell, a native of Idaho, has been selected to direct the Small Church Center based in the Westby House, an annex of the United Methodist Church in Filer.

The Rev. Rene O. Bindeaux of New York City, associate general secretary of the general board of Global Ministries of the United Methodist Church, will speak during the opening of the center's service in observance of the center's opening at 3 p.m. Sunday at the church in Filer.

The center will serve congregations with fewer than 200 members in town and rural communities in the Magic Valley, San Luis Valley of Southern Colorado, and Medocino and Fresno Counties in California.

McCannell describes the project as a resource and support center for the small churches of the 12 western states which will respond and develop programs for the church members and the communities. His main interests are strengthening the Sunday School organizations, assisting young pastors, developing interest in leadership skills, and developing the lay leadership.

Graham: Soviets heard rights talk

By GEORGE W. CORNELL AP Religion Writer

Besides preaching in crowded churches across the Soviet Union, evangelist Billy Graham says he raised a key issue of U.S.-Soviet relations with top Soviet officials — the cause of human rights and religious liberty.

He says he feels those private talks might accomplish some good.

He says he pointed out that issues of religious freedom and imprisonment of unregistered believers are of high concern to American Christians and Jews and are "serious barriers to closer relations" with the Soviets.

He says he emphasized that this is "perhaps the No. 1 cause" of the problem. "I pointed out that it brings a psychological and philosophical difference in how American people feel."

Back this week from his 12-day Soviet trip, Graham says he had extended meetings with several Soviet leaders — including two hours with Politburo member Boris Ponomarev, secretary of the Central Committee of the Commu-

Billy Graham says Soviet leaders as well as Americans heard his message of peace in Russia his return Tuesday. He said there "seems to be far less oppression now" than in period before the late Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev, who died in 1982, and "that trend has continued. The Soviet government has begun to recognize that believers are the hardest workers and most dutiful citizens."

He says "there may be more difficulties for Jews than for Christians," noting that Jewish emigration from the Soviet Union has decreased. He says he talked with Soviet officials "about" the possibilities of more Jews doing so.

Graham, who delivered more than 50 sermons and other talks in four Soviet cities, said he was surprised at the Soviet coverage of his tour on Soviet television, radio and in the press.

"One archbishop said he did not recall anything like it in his lifetime," Graham said. He said he himself had "total freedom" in his preaching, but that Soviet law restricted religious services to church property.

"Many churches and cathedrals were filled to overflowing, and in some situations loudspeakers were used so groups standing in church courtyards or in other church facilities could hear."

He said "many more young people are attending than I anticipated." "as high as 50 percent of the congregations in some cases."

Asked about KGB plainclothesmen being on hand, Graham said he assumed such surveillance, and recalled his remark about it after a previous brief Soviet trip in 1982: "These are the kind of people I'm trying to reach with the Gospel."

An aide said the Western press failed to report Graham's public appeal to Soviet leaders to permit "more churches and more Bibles," and his call for all nations to observe the Helsinki accords on human rights.

Graham says he was surprised to find nine of his own books in print in Russian in the Soviet Union. "How they got there I don't know."

Baptist reins

TWIN FALLS — The Rev. Myron Glatz has assumed leadership at the Grace Baptist Church in Twin Falls.

Glatz attended Baptist Bible College in Denver, and completed his training at the Tennessee Temple University in Chattanooga, Tenn. He has served as pastor in churches in Colorado, South Dakota, Wyoming and Arizona. Glatz serves on the board of Northwest Baptist Mission, the board of International Baptist College in Phoenix, and has assisted in numerous Bible camps and churches in the West.

Glatz and his wife, Jeanene, have four children: Lorell, Sharyn, Robin and RaChara.

REV. MYRON GLATZ Worked around the West

...ions also were held with Vladimir Kuoedov, head of the Council for Religious Affairs, and Georgi Arbatov, director of Soviet analysis of U.S. and Canadian attitudes, Graham recounts.

He says he "tried to listen with respect" to those he met, and also tried to help them understand the concerns many people in the United States and elsewhere have about human rights and religious liberty."

As customary, Graham declines to go into details about those private conversations with political leaders. But from his own observations and talks-with-church-people, he says there seems to be a gradual easing of restrictions on religion. "Restrictions are lessening," he told a New York news conference on

Scientists ordered to pay old taxes

By The Los Angeles Times

Denying tax-exempt status to the California branch of the Church of Scientology, the U.S. Court in Washington has ruled that the controversial religious group must pay $1.4 million in back taxes and penalties, because, the court said, the church "has made a business of selling religion."

In a 222-page decision released Tuesday, the court, in stinging language, said that the church "conspired for almost a decade" to defraud the government and avoid paying taxes.

The ruling came in a suit filed by the church against the Internal Revenue Service, which had denied tax-exempt status to the church for 1970-72. The suit was tried in 1981.

While ruling that the church, which has national headquarters in Los Angeles, must pay taxes on its income, the court specifically said that $1.4 million in income taxes and penalties is due for the period from 1970 to 1972.

Gauge of economy tilts up

By MARTIN CRUTSINGER The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The government's main economic forecasting gauge posted a modest 0.5 percent rise in August after two consecutive declines.

That prompted the Reagan administration and private economists to say Friday that the economy is not in danger of toppling into a recession.

The release of the index of leading economic indicators had been awaited with some apprehension after decreases in June and July. A decline of three months in a row is often taken as a signal that a recession is approaching.

Some analysts said the August advance was fairly anemic, but all agreed that the economy is apparently shaking off its summer doldrums and headed for further growth.

But in another area, the news was less promising. The Commerce Department reported that the nation suffered a $9.9 billion foreign trade deficit in August. While this was an improvement from the record $14.1 billion set in July, it left the imbalance for the year at $83.7 billion.

Analysts predicted the deficit for all of 1984 would hit $130 billion — almost double last year's record $69.4 billion deficit.

The slight trade improvement in August stemmed from a 10.4 percent decline in petroleum shipments as both the volume and the price edged downward.

The increase in the index of leading indicators came following two consecutive monthly setbacks that had broken 21 straight advances — the longest string of improvements in the index since the end of World War II.

The original July drop of 0.8 percent was revised to a much steeper 1.8 percent fall following a revised 1.3 percent decline in June.

All eight of the country's postwar indexes were preceded by at least three consecutive declines in the leading index. However, on three other occasions, three declines in a row were followed by continued economic expansion although at a slower pace.

The economy has slowed considerably this summer. After growing at a 10.1 percent rate from January through March and a 7.1 percent clip in April through June, the growth level in the third quarter has been estimated at 3.6 percent.

However, government and private economists say this slowdown was needed to prevent the economy from overheating, kicking up inflation and bringing the next recession sooner.

At the White House, deputy press secretary Larry Speakes said the August gain in the leading index, coupled with Thursday's decline in the prime lending rate from 13 percent to 12.75 percent, should help insure continued economic growth in the months ahead.

John Albertine, president of the American Business Conference, which represents high-growth companies, said the August gain in the indicators "shows that a recession is not around the corner or down the road. It's not even on the road map."

Roger Brinner of Data Resources Inc. said the index was signaling sluggish growth in the months ahead. He predicted growth next year of only 2.7 percent, down from an anticipated 7 percent gain for all of 1984.

"Growth is going to pick up a little from the pause we had this summer," said David Berson of Wharton Econometrics. "But we certainly aren't going to go back to the growth rate we saw in the first half of the year."

Commerce Secretary Malcolm Baldrige predicted that the leading index and the economy as a whole would continue posting gains in coming months.

"Capital spending and defense production should continue to have strong growth and consumer spending is picking up after a summer pause," he said.

The index is a compilation of forward-looking economic statistics that tend to forecast changes in the overall economy six to nine months in advance.

The August change left the index at 164.5 percent of its 1967 base of 100. This represented an improvement from the revised 163.7 percent for July.

The overall gain came despite the fact that six of the 10 indicators available declined. The negative pull was offset by increases in four of the categories. The biggest boost came from a rise in stock market prices.

Others contributing to the gain in order of impact were net business formations, new claims for unemployment insurances and manufacturers' new orders for consumer goods.

Advancing interest setback for stocks

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices suffered a setback Friday, giving up some of their recent gains as interest rates rose in the credit markets.

Securities industry and blue-chip industrial issues posted some of the most notable losses in a relatively quiet session on Wall Street.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials dropped 10.05 to 1,206.71, reducing its gain for the week to 4.97 points.

Volume on the New York Stock Exchange slowed to 78.95 million shares from 88.88 million Thursday.

Before the market opened, the government reported that the index of leading economic indicators rose 0.5 percent in August. That better-than-expected showing marked a rebound from two consecutive monthly declines in the index, which is designed to detect future economic trends.

However, it was not warmly received in the bond market. Prices of long-term government bonds, which move in the opposite direction from interest rates, fell as much as $10 for every $1,000 in face value.

Analysts said many investors were preoccupied with last-minute maneuvering before the end of the third quarter of 1984, which came with the close of trading Friday.

The Dow Jones industrial average finished September with a net loss of 17.67 points. But it was up 74.35 for the third quarter, thanks mainly to a sharp rally in early August.

Friday's rally on the Big Board showed about four issues declining in price for every three that advanced. The exchange's composite index of all its listed common stocks dropped 42 to 85.77.

Nationwide turnover in NYSE-listed issues, including trades in those stocks on regional exchanges and in the over-the-counter market, totaled 93.42 million shares.

Standard & Poor's index of 400 industrials fell 1.03 to 187.41, and S&P's 500-stock composite index was down 86.86 to 152.48.

The NASDAQ composite index for the over-the-counter market slipped 35 to 249.94. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index closed at 215.45, up 50.

Point-loss losers among the blue chips included General Motors, down 2 1/2 at 77 1/2; Ford Motor, off 2 at 45 1/2; International Business Machines, down 1 1/2 at 124 1/2; Minnesota Mining & Manufacturing, down 1 1/2 at 75 1/2; and Digital Equipment, down 3 1/2 at 94 1/2.

The brokerage stocks fell after announcements in a Wall Street Journal article said only a slow recovery was likely from the industry's recent earnings woes. Merrill Lynch lost 2 to 23 1/2; Paine Webber to 22 1/2; E.F. Hutton 1 1/2 to 30 1/2; and Phillips 66 to 31 1/2.

Genrad was the day's biggest percentage loser, tumbling 7 to 15 1/2. The company said its third-quarter earnings would be "significantly" lower than the comparable figure last year.

Hillenbrand — Industries, which posted lower quarterly profits, fell 1 1/2 to 20 1/2.

G.D. Searle climbed 1 1/2 to 59 1/2. The analyst said the Searle family, which owns about 34 percent of its stock, had expressed a desire to diversify its holdings.

Analysts said that raised the possibility in investor's minds that the company might become a takeover candidate.

Bankers Trust New York led the active list, down 3/4 at 49 1/2. Two blocks of 2 million shares each were traded at 50 1/2 and 50.

Gas rate cut wins approval

BOISE (AP) — Idaho utility regulators have approved a 4 percent rate reduction for customers of Intermountain Gas Co.

The rate cut was sought by the utility earlier this month in response to the drop in the price of natural gas.

The reduction, approved Friday by the Public Utilities Commission, will take effect Nov. 1. It will save Idaho consumers about $5.3 million annually, averaging some $15 a year for the normal residential customer.

Farm lending officials for Idaho check on eligibility for debt relief

BOISE (AP) — With up to half the Idaho farmers holding federal loans behind in their payments, Farmers Home Administration officials throughout the state have started reviewing loan cases to determine those qualifying for President Reagan's debt-relief program.

"I suspect there's probably about 2,000 of our case load that will certainly be looked at first and we'll determine which ones of those... (we can) stay with under this program," said Idaho FMHA Director William Norberg. FMHA has about 4,400 farm borrowers in Idaho, nearly a quarter of all the producers in the state.

In addition, Norberg said the state FMHA office is beefing up its staff to handle applications for relief under the program Reagan announced last several weeks before the Nov. 6 election.

For farmers with loans from FMHA, considered the lender of last resort serving farmers who can no longer obtain credit through commercial sources, the program calls for deferring repayment of up to 25 percent of the outstanding principle and interest for five years.

The program, set up after the Reagan administration spent its initial years in office fighting various debt-relief proposals in Congress, is intended to give financially strapped farmers the chance to hang on until the economic recovery takes a firm hold in rural America.

Regulations under which the program will be operated are scheduled to be issued next Wednesday, but most FMHA borrowers won't be notified about whether they can meet the qualifications for the program until their annual loan reviews.

Analysts said many investors were preoccupied with last-minute maneuvering before the end of the third quarter of 1984, which came with the close of trading Friday.

Do you think of sweet potatoes when you think of Japanese food? Neither do I. The Japanese must not care what we think. They devote 10 percent of Japan's farm plots to the growing of sweet potatoes.

Q: Why is a baseball pitcher and catcher together called a "battery"?

A. Comes from the military. Before the turn of the century, soldiers referred to it as a battery when they worked two artillery pieces together as a unit.

Consider the black rhinoceros. A mother gives birth to only one calf every four years. That's not enough. We're rapidly running out of black rhinos.

California town for sale: price tag, $950,000

GORDA, Calif. (AP) — For a town of 950,000, Gorda can be yours. One of four communities along the spectacular Big Sur coastline, it's all for $950,000. The town includes a general store, a gas station, a restaurant, and a lodge shop.

But while Gorda's magnificent vistas and peaceful atmosphere make it about as close to paradise as you can get on Earth, the town is far away from just about everything else. It takes an ambulance 90 minutes to respond to emergencies. The closest movie theater is 70 miles away. There's no radio or television. And Highway 1, California's famed coastal route, is the only way to reach Gorda by car.

Situated halfway between the Monterey Peninsula and Morro Bay, Gorda has survived mostly as a refueling oasis for coastal travelers. Fog covers the town most mornings before burning off around noon, and a sign over the general store's cash register reads: "Sorry, I don't know when the fog will lift."

The current owner, Larry Anderson, lives about 50 miles north in Oak Hills. At 72, he says he's tired of keeping the town in shape long-distance.

Anderson bought Gorda in 1961 and thought he had sold it once before.

In 1979, four young siblings from the San Diego area tried to buy the town. The Cessa children, then 9 to 13, had made some mopey selling manure to golf courses, then brought in $500,000 when Warner Bros. bought their story. Gorda looked like a good investment.

But the plan went sour when devastating winter storms caused mudslides along the coast, shutting Highway 1 between Gorda and Big Sur for 14 months. The Cessa kids could no longer make their $3,400 monthly mortgage payments, so the town went back to Anderson.

"They qualified for a disaster loan, but they just didn't want to be burdened any more," said the children's mother, Joan Cessa. "It was so far away, and they were losing interest. When you're a million miles from nowhere like Gorda is, you have to hire mostly hippie-type people, and that's no good."

But the town's handful of residents love being "a million miles from nowhere," and they are hopeful the new owner will love it, too.

Pravda picks up story of Lenin poster flap

BRADFORD, Vt. (AP) — When two local school board members removed posters of Karl Marx and V.I. Lenin from a high school classroom, it made headlines. Including a sarcastic one in Pravda, the official newspaper of the Soviet Communist Party.

"This is just what the Russians look for in the United States," said Bruce MacLean, the Soviet history teacher ordered to remove the posters.

Pravda's story appeared in its Friday, April 27 edition and was substantially distorted.

MacLean, who had spent three years living in the Soviet Union and in other Eastern bloc countries, added that he had told a colleague he wouldn't be surprised to see the story in Pravda after local accounts of the incident last spring were distributed by wire services.

The Pravda story was spotted by University of Vermont professor Robert Daniels, who was in the Soviet Union on a research exchange program when it appeared. Dartmouth College assistant professor Lev Loseff translated it.

It was headlined: "And They Were Frightened By A Picture."

The story began dramatically: "Perhaps in all its history, the quiet village of Bradford in the state of Vermont has not seen such a storm of passion."

According to the Pravda version, "local superpatriots" said, "A picture of Lenin in the classroom. Remove it immediately — burn it! They are conspirators of the evil empire" that our president warned us about."

The story also said that MacLean was fired for putting up the posters.

MacLean was never fired and continues to teach Soviet history at the school. The two Oxbow School Board members who ordered the poster removed later said they acted without authority.

The posters went back up on MacLean's classroom wall a little less than a month after they were removed.

Halley's Comet shows early sign of activity

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Halley's Comet, a visitor every 76 years, has been spotted again by two California astronomers at Kitt Peak National Observatory as it approaches its 1986 swing through the solar system, a spokesman says.

Cari Posey of the National Optical Astronomy Observatories in Tucson said Thursday that Byron Spitzer and Stanislav Djorgovski, both of the University of California at Berkeley, described the comet as active and brighter than expected.

They said the comet's icy nucleus is surrounded by a bright, nebulous veil, or coma, which indicates that its activity already has begun, Posey said.

Development of the coma so far from the sun is unusual," Djorgovski said. "This must be one of the most distant comas ever detected from the ground."

Comets, sometimes called "dirty snowballs," are believed to be made up of ice and dust. Halley is thought to be about three miles across, with a tail extending nearly 50 million miles. It will be visible to the naked eye no later than March 1986, when it comes within 39 million miles of the earth, scientists say. It is now about 562 million miles from Earth.

The returning comet was first sighted at Mount Palomar in California in 1982, and was last seen at Kitt Peak in March. Scientists worldwide have been watching its approach.

Official quits over salary

FAIRFAX, Va. (AP) — The superintendent of a suburban Washington school district, stung by criticism of his new contract, has passed up a $157,000 annual salary that would have made him the highest paid public school official in the nation.

William J. Burkholder, 55, said Thursday he will resign his position at the end of the school year.

Earlier in the week, the Fairfax County school board announced it had offered Burkholder a contract that would have coupled his $79,450 annual salary with a $77,800 yearly cash payment. The cash payment would have been intended to compensate him for retirement benefits he would have to forfeit by postponing his scheduled retirement in July.

The pension, he said, is high because it is rare for a superintendent to have accumulated 28 years of service in the same school system from which he retires.

Educators defend IEA school policy

BOISE (AP) — Despite attacks by groups which oppose public education, the Idaho Education Association will continue to work to improve public schools, its president says.

Connie Hutchison, Twin Falls, told a news conference here Friday the IEA and its parent organization, the National Education Association, both pursue policies set by classroom teachers.

"We make no apologies for those views, even if they result in criticism from people who wish to abolish public education in this state and in this country," she said.

Ms. Hutchison said anti-NEA groups have "twisted and distorted" the organization's policies.

"The positions they take come from the teachers themselves," she said, "not the NEA leadership."

Earlier in the week news conferences were held in Boise and Washington, D.C., to launch a new anti-NEA publication, the "Trojan Horse," which blames the NEA for most of the problems in modern schools.

State Rep. Robert Forrey, R-Nampa, who appeared at that news conference to endorse the book, attended Friday's event but didn't make a statement.

Ms. Hutchison said both the state and national organizations have been under attack from groups which really want to do away with public schools completely. She said the IEA has been advised that the outside groups have prepared a "comic" book which will be distributed through Idaho newspapers soon, attacking the IEA.

She said the professional teachers' organization represents more than 80 percent of Idaho's teachers, and has about the same membership nationwide.

A delegate assembly of 600 teachers makes policy decisions for the IEA, she said. Nationally, the NEA has a delegate assembly of some 5,000 members, one of the largest decision-making bodies in the country.

"We are proud of our efforts during the last century to improve the quality of education provided every student," Ms. Hutchison said.

The educator groups will continue to work to "preserve and strengthen" public education despite the attacks, she said.

State asks damages in price fixing

BOISE (AP) — The state of Idaho filed a gasoline price-fixing lawsuit here Friday, asking undisclosed civil damages from 10 Utah and Idaho individuals and oil companies.

Attorney General Jim Jones announced the action earlier in the week at a Pocatello news conference. A private Boise law firm, retained by the state, filed the legal action.

The lawsuit, filed in U.S. District Court here, alleges that Pocatello-area dealers and distributors conspired together to suppress competition and artificially maintain high prices.

The exact amount of damages was not listed in the lawsuit, but it said the dealers between them sold at least 50 million gallons of gasoline between January, 1978, and October, 1982.

The lawsuit also asks triple damages, allowed in cases where antitrust violations are proven. The lawsuit was filed in the name of all Idaho residents.

Ken McClure resigns post

BOISE (AP) — Friday was the last day in office for Ken McClure, deputy attorney general, under Attorney General Jim Jones.

McClure, son of Idaho Sen. James McClure, resigned effective Friday to enter private law practice.

Ken McClure will join the Boise law firm of McDevitt, Purstey, Webb and Buser, Jones said.

McClure has been a deputy attorney general for four years, serving as chief of legislative and administrative matters for Jones and his predecessor, David Leroy.

McClure represented the state in the protracted battle over legislative redistricting. Jones said McClure has just completed drawing up a "victim's" rights bill which will go to the next Legislature.

Genocide votes hit

BOISE (AP) — Senators Jim McClure and Steve Symms are coming under fire from the head of the Boise chapter of Amnesty International for opposing a genocide treaty being considered in the Senate.

Although both Idaho Republicans say they oppose genocide, they refuse to vote for a treaty that would be a step toward stopping it, Marla Schneider said Thursday.

President Reagan said earlier this month that he supports the treaty, Ms. Schneider said. The issue may come up for a vote in the Senate next week, she said.

The treaty was negotiated 35 years ago through the United Nations.

She said the treaty defines genocide as an attempt by an individual or country to destroy in whole or part a national, ethnic, racial or religious group.

Domestic violence group names head

IDAHO FALLS (AP) — Natalie Steffler-Matlock, Blackfoot, is now chairman of the Idaho Council on Domestic Violence.

The council, at a meeting here Friday, also approved a grant of $12,180 for the Idaho Falls Women Against Domestic Violence.

Ms. Matlock succeeds Nancy Mjelde as chairman of the council, which funds programs across the state for victims of domestic violence.

A report at the Idaho Falls conference said the council has given out about $150,000 in grants to 14 local organizations. Help has been given to 550 women, 727 children and 12 males.

Funding for the program has been provided through a surtax on marriage licenses.

Impropriety accused

BOISE (AP) — Despite requesting the attorney general's investigation into allegations of impropriety, Gov. John Evans says he is withholding judgment on whether suspended Corrections Board member Kent Remington used his position for personal gain.

"I have not reached any conclusions concerning the validity of these allegations," Evans said Friday. "No adverse inference should be drawn against Mr. Remington by virtue of this mutually agreed to suspension."

Remington, a St. Anthony businessman appointed to the board by Evans two years ago, agreed to the suspension Tuesday at the governor's request. At the same time, Evans asked Attorney General Jim Jones to launch an investigation.

Remington, 54, whose term expires Jan. 1, has declined to comment on the probe, saying only that "it's all a rotten lie."

The governor has directed Corrections Chief Al Murphy and all other officials to cooperate in the inquiry, which investigator Russ Reneau said could be completed in early October.

No official has agreed to publicly discuss any details of the allegations against Remington. But officials close to the investigation, who have asked for anonymity, said it involves the possibility that Remington used his position on the board and connection with the Corrections Department's Bryson Industries program.

Bruins roll over Spartan line for 42-0 win

By LARRY HOVEY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — It took a quarter for the Twin Falls High offense to start rolling, but once it did the Bruins carved out a surprising 42-0 decision over Minico Friday night in a Gem State Conference football game.

In the most lopsided final margin in the history of this series, the Bruins broke Minico's will to resist with 21 second-quarter points and from then on it was a matter of not letting things get too far out of hand.

"When they're running nothing but dives and still making 30 yards at a clip, it never crossed my mind that they were running it up," said Minico Coach Doug Bailey. "They just beat us... stuck it to us in the line."

Twin Falls, looking at Minico's 4-4 defense, came out throwing the ball a little more than usual because Bruin Coach Bill Jones figured that the emphasis of the Spartans' defense would be on the off-tackle holes — the key spot for the veer offense.

But after an amazing display of ineptitude in which it cranked out 55 penalties in five plays and wound up looking at a second-and-45, Twin Falls went to its running game and it immediately began paying dividends.

"I'll tell you one thing," said Jones afterward. "I'm sort of shocked we came out and got 42 points against Minico. They have always played well against us and we expected a tight battle."

The scoring fireworks started on the last play of the first quarter, just after the Bruins had recovered a fumble on the Minico 47.

Twice quarterback Doug Petersen hit Todd Jones for first down passes and Jeff Lambert and Casey Bartholomew added yardage on the ground. On the fifth play, Lambert scored from four yards away and Troy Lucich converted.

Twin Falls rolled 73 yards in five plays on its next possession, Bartholomew getting most of that on a 47-yard run. Petersen sneaked across from the one but Lucich missed the extra point. In the closing three minutes, Twin Falls rolled again, Lambert winding it up on a three-yard surge and a Petersen-to-Todd-Jones slant-in added the extra two points.

The teams traded punts to open the second half, Twin Falls taking Minico's second kick on its own 27 and marching 73 yards. The big play was a 42-yard strike to Todd Jones — who caught all eight Bruin passes — to set up a two-yard plunge by Lambert.

In the final quarter, Jon Sander set up a touchdown with a 71-yard romp. Lambert capped that from five yards out and Bartholomew then wound up scoring with a two-yard burst with 2:45 to play.

Coach Jones said he was concerned about the scoring because familiar names were making the points. "We went into this with just two healthy running backs — we like to keep Sander for defense. That's when it looks bad when your top backs, like Lambert, wind up scoring so many late touchdowns," Jones said.

But Bailey had no bad thoughts about the way Twin Falls scored.

"We can't arm tackle with the size people we have," he began. "They were sticking with the dives and inside stuff. Offensively, I felt at times we moved the ball better than we have all year, but you don't score when you move from the 40 to the 40 and then foul up. I think Coach Jones just got his kids ready, he tightened up the gaps and simply ran the ball up our alley."

The victory improved the Bruins' season record to 2-3, 1-2 in conference. Minico is now winless in five outings and 0-3 in league games.

Carey QB Kendall Peck (9) sweeps wide behind the blocking of teammate Jack York during Carey's 44-8 loss to Shoshone.

Shoshone has slow start, but still wins

By SCOTT TUDEHOPE
Times-News writer

SHOSHONE — It was a night, Shane Ransom and the Indians won't forget.

The Shoshone senior scored four touchdowns and a PAT to bring back beleaguered Shoshone 44-8 over Carey in Sawtooth Conference action Friday night.

Down 8-0 at the half on a Kendall Peck-to-Will Neal 13-yard scoring pass, Shoshone found itself fumbling into oblivion and possibly looking at its first defeat in four games.

Enter Ransom. The diminutive 5-0, 165-pound running back used his speed to his advantage in chalking up runs of 40, 25 and 35 yards in that explosive second half. He ended up with nearly 150 yards on just 16 carries to lead everyone on the field.

"I got a little mad at myself at half," he said, "so I just decided to come out and play some football. I knew I was fired up then. The whole team was fired up."

They played like it. Gone were the memories of three fumbles, two deep in Panther territory. Gone were the stifled running game and impotent passing attack. The next 24 minutes would be different.

"We just didn't play football that first half," admitted Shoshone Coach Larry Bond. "We were just a little too anxious then, but the kids regrouped and put up the points. And give Carey credit, they played tough football."

As could be expected from an 8-0 halftime score, defense dominated the scene of those first two quarters. And while both teams picked up first downs here and there, consistent scoring drives didn't materialize. Turnovers resulted and the Panthers headed into the team bus looking at the very real possibility of pulling off a major upset.

The game was still in reach at the end of the third period, after Ransom ransacked the Panther defense with two scores. Alan Sizemore punched in another the first play in the fourth, and 24 points later, the game was over.

Shoshone's final touchdown resulted from Curtis Sandy's fumble recovery on Carey's 28-yard line, one of three losses built the sophomore came up with. This one resulted in

Dally, defense lead Senators over Valley

By CHRIS HAFT
Times-News writer

EDEN — The Gooding Senators' offense dilly-dallied Friday night, meaning it performed about as well as their defense in a 31-6 triumph over the Valley Vikings.

Running with relentless power, junior fullback Danny Dally accumulated 169 yards on 25 carries and scored three touchdowns for the No. 1-ranked Senators, who remained tied for first place with Kimberly in the Canyon Conference with a 3-0 league record and a 3-0 overall mark.

Gooding's defense matched, if not exceeded, Dally's effectiveness. The Senators limited Valley to 108 yards total offense, yielding only six first downs and forcing the Vikings to punt eight times.

"That's the way they've been playing the whole year," Gooding Coach Bob Milligan said, praising his defense's "defensive coordinator" Jeff Jeffries. "Each player stayed home, covered the ball and didn't try to do somebody else's job."

Gaining yardage appeared to be a near-impossible job for the Vikings. Whenever they ran half-decently, they dropped passes; if they caught the ball, Gooding stifled their rushing attack. Quarterback Bill Hardy endured a zero-for-eight, first-half passing watching receivers miff three balls (the Vikings finished with six drops). Then, in the second half, Gooding totally handcuffed the Viking runners, who "gained" minus-5 yards on 10 carries.

Dally, of course, didn't experience such problems. He ended Gooding's first touchdown drive, a 78-yard, 11-play march, by running 6 yards to score with 18 seconds left in the first quarter.

Were not for Bryan Darcy's 12-yard gain on a fourth-and-7 pass from quarterback Todd Sims, Dally would not have noticed that first score. Valley Coach Forrest Fomesbeck later hinted that Darcy may have been guilty of offensive pass interference on the play. Perhaps, but Gooding's subsequent dominance eliminated all doubt or controversy.

Moments later, after an 18-yard punt gave Gooding possession on Valley's 34-yard line, Dally set up the Senators' second touchdown by rambling 27 yards with a rollout pass from quarterback Todd Sims. This put the ball on the 6 again, and once more Dally churned through the Vikings, hitting the end zone with 9:53 to go in the half.

"He's the best back I've seen all year," Fomesbeck said of Dally. "He has great balance, and the thing is, he reads his blocks so well — he knows when to accelerate."

Shortly before halftime, Gooding went on another long touchdown foray — 82 yards on eight plays. Steve Gibbs eliminated matters with 25 seconds left, streaking 21 yards with a Sims screen pass behind two well-positioned blockers.

Donny Kiriland, who kicked four of four conversion points, booted a 23-yard field goal on Gooding's first possession of the second half, extending the difference to 24-0.

Following another Valley punt, Dally concluded Gooding's scoring, zooming up the middle 54 yards for a touchdown with 1:03 remaining in the third quarter.

The Vikings, who dropped to 2-1 in the conference and 4-1 overall, never ceased playing determinedly and finally scored only touchdown on Hardy's 4-yard pass to Todd Zeller with 4:42 left.

Cubs fever isn't all over Chicago

By DEBRA HALE
The Associated Press

CHICAGO — With playoffs beginning Tuesday, Chicago Cubs fever may be contagious, but some people seem immune to the epidemic.

Take Dawn McMahon, a book-keeper at the Ultimate Sports Bar & Grill, where 450 Cub fans went through about 500 cases of beer the night their team clinched the National League East title.

"I'm the only one at work that didn't watch it on TV," she said. "I didn't know anything about it."

She said she'd like the Cubs to win the World Series. "But I'm not overly excited. I'm not jumping up in the air."

Then there's Cynthia Quiroz, a beautician at Magic Comb Beauty Salon in downtown Chicago. She's never been to a Cubs game and doesn't care about the Cubs' fortunes. "I don't like sports," she said.

And that's not all. Which team the Cubs will face in Tuesday's playoffs, she said, "It doesn't matter."

Others, like John Taylor, 30, a beautician at Marilyn's Chiqueau of Beauty in downtown Chicago, don't have Cubs fever either — but for a different reason.

"I just think they're just setting themselves up for a big letdown," Taylor said. "I've lost faith in Chicago baseball fans."

At Evergreen Funeral Home in the south Chicago suburb of Evergreen Park, Terry Hornburg, wife of the funeral home director, said mourners even talk about the Cubs during visitation hours.

Royals clinch AL West title

By ERIC PREWITT
The Associated Press

OAKLAND, Calif. — Steve Baloni, the hottest hitter in Kansas City's September title drive, set the Royals ahead with a fourth-inning single Friday night and they beat the Oakland A's 6-5 to clinch the American League West crown.

Dan Quisenberry survived two home runs in the first three innings to earn his 44th save, one short of the major league record he established last season. He relieved Charlie Leibrandt, 11-7, who allowed five hits and two runs over the first six innings.

The Royals, who were deep in the division standings at baseball's All-Star break, won for the 10th time in their last 13 games and made their record 44-25 since July 18. The division title was their fifth in nine years.

Their victory over the A's, coupled with the second-place Minnesota Twins' 11-10 loss to Cleveland, settled the last contested division race in the major leagues.

Frank White drove in the Royals' final three runs, with a sixth-inning homer and a two-run triple in the seventh. The Royals held a 6-2 lead before Rickey Henderson belted a two-run homer, his 16th, off Quisenberry in the bottom of the seventh. Quisenberry also gave up Dwayne

Murphy's 33rd homer in the eighth.

The Royals will face the Detroit Tigers, wire-to-wire winners of the AL East race, in the Championship Series which opens Tuesday night in Kansas City.

Bill Almon's seventh homer of the season, with a two out in the second, gave the A's a 1-0 lead. George Brett hit his 13th homer with one out in the fourth to tie the score, and with two out in the fourth, an error by A's third baseman Carney Lansford set up the go-ahead run.

Darryl Motley reached second base after Lansford flied his grounder and made a throwing error over first. Baloni, the 2nd batter, singled to center, just over the glove of second baseman Tony Phillips, for his 76th RBI of the season.

Baloni hit safely for the 17th time in his last 18 games and has 13 RBI in that stretch. He has six game-winning RBIs this month, three in the last week.

Brett made the score 3-1 with a sacrifice fly in the fifth after Onix Concepcion and Pat Sheridan had singled off A's starter Ray Burris, 13-10.

The A's loaded the bases before Leibrandt retired a batter in the bottom of the fifth. Mickey Tettleton walked, Mark Wagner singled and Phillips beat out a bunt single.

But the threat resulted in only one run, on Lansford's one-out sacrifice fly. White's 17th homer, in the sixth, gave the Royals a two-run lead again.

If they gave a comeback franchise of the year award in major league baseball, "the Royals would win it hands down."

Except perhaps for those international symbols of failure and frustration, the Chicago Cubs, which of this year's division winners seemed less likely?

Twelve months ago, the Royals, who dominated the AL West from 1976-80, finished 20 games behind the Chicago White Sox. Many of their key players, such as pitcher Larry Gura, designated hitter Hal McRae and second baseman Frank White, were getting long of tooth.

But most damaging to the organization's standing in the community and in the game, was a shocking drug scandal which saw four members of the 1983 team sent to prison on federal cocaine charges. Kansas Cityans tried to comfort themselves with the knowledge that their team had given them several years of exciting championship baseball and that eventually everybody goes into a dreary period of decline. It looked for all the world like that period had begun for the Royals.

But it was not to begin this year, not in a division in which 500 was the measure of success.

The Royals' remarkable success story started just as the naysayers had predicted. All-star third baseman George Brett was disabled and all-star centerfielder Willie Wilson was suspended by the commissioner until mid-May because of his involvement with the drug scandal.

The rookie starting pitchers, Mark Gibson and Bret Sabergh, were having trouble establishing themselves. The shortstop position was a disaster, with one player after another going down with injury. Sure enough, Gura pitched himself right out of the rotation. Sure enough, McRae had a down year, his worst since 1974.

The low point came on July 18 when the Royals dropped into sixth place, 11 games below 500. If somebody had offered to bet them that the Royals would out-perform every other club in the major leagues —

Andujar trips up Cubs to collect 20th win

By The Associated Press

Joquin Andujar, saying he didn't have good control, nevertheless was proud of becoming the first 20-game winner in the National League this year. "I'm real happy and proud of myself," said Andujar after he held the Chicago Cubs to two hits and one run in nine innings Friday in Chicago.

"I'm sure happy he got it," said Herzog, the Cardinals manager. "He hadn't won since Sept. 8." "For him to go out there and pitch that many innings (261.1) and get 20 wins is an outstanding achievement for a starting pitcher," Sutter said.

Steve Braun, pinch-hitting for Andujar, blooped an RBI double to spark the 10th-inning rally. Darrell Porter led off the inning with a pinch-hit error and moved to third on a fly later when he stole second and catcher Steve Lake's throw went into the outfield. Braun then dropped his double down the third-base line to score Porter.

Clined the National League East title in Pittsburgh on Monday. Montreal 7, New York 0. In Montreal, rookie left-hander Joe Hesketh pitched a four-hitter and Dan Riessen drove in three runs with a home run and a single to lead the Montreal Expos to a victory over the New York Mets.

Craig McMurry, 9-17, had allowed the Padres only seven hits and no earned runs over a 15-inning span when the Padres scored their first run in the sixth inning. Houston 6, Cincinnati 3. In Cincinnati, Terry Puhl scored the go-ahead run on catcher Brad Gulden's fielding error in the top of the 10th inning Friday night and Alan Ashby added a two-run homer, lifting the Houston Astros to a 6-3 victory over the Cincinnati Reds.

Cleveland rallies from 10-0 deficit to win

By The Associated Press

Joe Carter, whose two home runs Friday night fueled a spectacular comeback against the Minnesota Twins, says he and his Cleveland Indians teammates didn't really expect to win the game after falling behind 10-0. "We just felt if we could put together one good inning, we could come back and at least make it exciting," Carter said after the Indians beat the Twins 11-10 on Brett Butler's RBI single in the ninth inning in Cleveland.

"I was still out there pitching to win for the Cubs," said the dejected Borch after the game. "It's an all-around bad day. I should have called in sick."

Butler followed with the game-winning hit, lofting his single to deep center past a draw-in outfield. Tom Waddell, 7-4, pitched three perfect innings of relief for the victory.

Thornion singled in two more runs against Rick Lyander. Boston 5, Baltimore 4. In Boston, Rich Gedman's sacrifice fly in the eighth inning scored Mike Easler with the tie-breaking run as the Boston Red Sox clinched fourth place in the American League East with a victory over the Baltimore Orioles.

Throwing error in the bottom of the 11th to lift Milwaukee to a victory over the Toronto Blue Jays. Romero opened the inning with a single off Ron Musselman, 9-2, and went to second on Willie Lozada's sacrifice bunt. Robin Yount singled to third and Grubbs' throw to first was wide to the right of first baseman Willie Upshaw, allowing Romero to score.

CSI runners finish 7th at Weber

OGDEN, Utah — The College of Southern Idaho cross country team, running short-handed because of injuries, finished seventh in both the men's and women's competition at the eight-team Weber State Invitational here Friday.

The CSI men finished in a tie for seventh place with Ricks College, with 162 points to meet with host Weber State with 38 points. The Golden Eagle women finished with 150 points in a competition also won by Weber State, with 47 points.

CSI sophomore Morenette Simmons was the top CSI finisher in 18 minutes, 13.2 seconds, taking fifth place behind Annette Hand of Montana State, who converted the 5,000-meter course in 17:38.4.

Shoshone

Wade Cooper's 13-yard scoring pass to Tim Rowan, and Charles Sandy received another of Cooper's lobs for the point after.

"Shoshone just has too much power," said Carey Coach Heber Kirkland. "As I said before the game, execution was going to be a factor. We just didn't execute, and starting on the 23- and 24-yard lines in the second half didn't help either."

Buhl holds off Rigby on road

Rigby's defense smothered Rigby's offense for the minus one-yard net gains in the second half and the offense came up with a couple of big plays that carried the Indians to a 14-7 victory Friday night in a Cross State Conference football game.

Rigby scored first and through much of the first half appeared to have Buhl bottled up. But the Indians put together an 80-yard march. The highlight was a bomb from Gary Brown to Kebb Roberts that carried to the Rigby 23. Junior Brian Howard then got outside to put the ball on the 1 and the Indians moved to another first down at the 2. A penalty killed a touchdown run by Brown and two plays later the Indians were looking at fourth and five when Brown found Alan Thornberry in the end zone for the touchdown. Howard punched the two-pointer across and Buhl was ahead for the night.

But Rigby did just more. The Bruins limited Buhl to one drive, but that provided the cushion. Again the long bomb, this one to Shawn Ware, carried the Indians to the Rigby 18. Howard got a first down at the 8 and two plays later, Brown hooked up with Ware for seven yards and the second Buhl score. Rigby stopped the two-point play but the Indian defense made the seven points stand up.

The victory improved the Indians' record to 2-3 for the season in the Cross State Conference play. Rigby fell to 2-3 and 0-2.

Burley 15, Caldwell 14

CALDWELL — The Burley Bobcats unleashed a grinding fourth-quarter march — replete with a fourth and 14 victory — to slip past the Caldwell Cougars 15-14 in a grudging defensive duel Friday night in a Cross State Conference football game.

The Bobcats ran the fifth among Class A-2 teams in the latest Associated Press poll, fell behind late in the third quarter. But Burley replied with the 70-yard march that took nearly eight minutes off the clock. The key play was a bootleg by quarterback Alex Alejandre that beat the fourth- and 14 situation and put the ball on the Caldwell 4-yard line. Two plays later, Brett Udy plunged across from the 2 to even the score and Jay Christensen then nailed it down with a conversion kick.

Caldwell scored first, David Alvaro hooking up with tight end Mike Ayers on a 36-yard bomb early in the second quarter and Geoff Hooley booted the point after.

Burley booted back late in the period, scoring on a 15-yard Alejandre-to-Christensen pass and Alejandre threw to Steve Peterson for what proved the decisive two-point conversion. Burley went ahead with 1:40 left in the half. Caldwell regained the lead in the third quarter, the touchdown coming on a 17-yard run by Scott Wilcox. Ayers kicked the extra point but Caldwell didn't get the ball back again until Burley had established its 15-14 advantage.

In the closing minutes, Caldwell moved to the Bobcats' 20 but then ran out of downs when a fourth and nine pass sailed out of bounds.

The victory improved Burley's season record to 4-1 and its Cross State Conference mark to 3-0. Caldwell fell to 1-3 for the year and 0-1 in conference.

Jerome 56, Wood River 0

HAILEY — Shane Jund threw for four touchdowns, two of them to Todd Adamson, as Jerome clobbered Wood River 56-0 Friday night in a South-Central Idaho Conference football game.

The first three touchdowns Jerome scored came on passes from Jund as the Tigers took command early in the contest. Two of them went to Adamson while the third came on an 18-yard toss to Tracy Black.

When Casey Bartholomew scampered into the end zone and Black added another touchdown in the second quarter, Jerome led 34-0 at the half.

The Tigers opened up the scoring in the second half when Brian Martin picked off a pass and ran 35 yards for a score to increase the Tigers' lead to 41 points.

Jund threw his fourth touchdown pass to Mark Leavitt closing out the scoring in the third quarter.

Jerome ran its conference mark to 2-0 with the victory, 3-2 for the season. Wood River is 0-1 and 0-5.

Kimberly 50, Wendell 18

KIMBERLY — Third-ranked Kimberly raised its 50-18 victory to 5-0 Friday night with the season record over Wendell in a Canyon Conference encounter.

The key in the victory for the Bulldogs was the tough defense against the Trojans coupled with breaking some big plays on the offense.

Troy Jackman had a 63-yard touchdown run and Kurt Holcomb tossed a 63-yard touchdown pass to Brett Wright. Mike Stark also had a 42-yard yardage run for the trojans. "We didn't play this week or what, but we had to struggle."

After winning the first game against Poacello, Anderson substituted three players off the bench in the second game. The Indians won easily before Anderson returned her starting lineup to action for the decided game.

Against Blackfoot, Twin Falls struggled to a first-game victory and then fell behind 8-0 in the second game. The Bruins battled back to tie the game at 14, then scored the next two points to win.

In junior varsity action, Twin Falls defeated Blackfoot 15-0, 15-13 before losing to Poacello 15-10, 10-15.

The Bruins will host Idaho Falls and Highland in a tri-meet this morning in the Bruin gym. Idaho Falls and Highland will square off in the opening game at 11 a.m., with the Twin Falls-Idaho Falls and Twin Falls-Highland matches to follow.

The Tigers scored 30 points in the first half and never looked back as they upped their record to 2-2 for the season, 1-3 in conference. Camas County fell to 1-3 for the season and 1-2 in league games.

"I was really pleased with how we played tonight. We've had a lot of changes in our offensive line and they played very well," Richfield Coach Leroy Johnson said, praising his players. "I think we're starting to roll."

Richfield linebacker Mike Johnson turned in a good defensive effort coming off of a broken jaw. He had five quarterback sacks, 12 tackles and nine assists.

Owen and Reynolds combined for 247 yards total offense and accounted for 31 points in helping Castleford improve its season record to 4-1. Mackay fell to 2-3.

Castleford Coach Hal Jardine was obviously happy with his team's performance. Besides noting the efforts of Owen and Reynolds, Jardine also praised his defense. "Mark Tervey and John Darrow were in the quarterback's face all night," he said.

Three turnovers, two bad punt snaps and an interception by Brian Lima were all taken advantage of by the Wolves, as they scored a touchdown following all three.

Salvage fishing set for canals

JEROME — Two Magie Valley major irrigation systems will be available to the public through salvage operations, according to Stu Murrell, Region 4 conservation educator for the Idaho Department of Fish and Game.

Already in operation is the salvage of the Salmon River canal system, which originates at Salmon Falls Reservoir. That was opened on an emergency basis when the canal was de-watered.

The main Big Wood River from the Richfield Canal Division to the Lincoln Canal diversion, the Lincoln Canal system including laterals and laterals-only on the Richfield canal will be open to public salvage effective Sept. 30, Murrell said.

Murrell emphasized that the main Richfield Canal is not open to salvage but is open to conventional fishing methods and limits on a year-round basis.

Under the salvage rules, the public may take fish by snagging, spearfishing, archery, dipnet, seines or with the hands. Use of toxic chemicals, explosives, firearms or electric current is prohibited.

Bag and possession limits are removed but a valid fishing license is required to salvage fish.

Kent Cooper strengthens lead

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. — Kent Cooper of Declo has solidified his lead atop the saddle bronc riding standings of the Professional Rodeo Cowboys Association.

The latest PRCA standings show Cooper with earnings of $62,569, nearly $14,000 ahead of second-place Brad Gjerumundson of Marshall, N.D.

Mike Young of Jerome has dropped from fourth to fifth place in the PRCA bareback riding standings, with earnings of $35,340. That's more than $25,000 behind the leader, Danny Brady of Henderson, Nev., and $1,200 behind the fourth-place cowboy, Steve Dunham of Turner Valley, Alberta. Dunham trailed Young last week by $500.

Rob Juker of Buhl has moved up a notch, from 15th to 14th place, in steer wrestling. Juker has won $22,262 this season, about $19,000 less than the event leader, John W. Jones of Morro Bay, Calif.

Dee Pickett of Caldwell is still ranked second in the all-around cowboy standings, behind Roy Cooper of Durant, Okla. Pickett and partner Mike Beers of Rufus, Ore., are the leaders in team roping.

Martina extends win skein

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Top-seeded Martina Navratilova extended her unbeaten streak to 63 matches with a 6-1, 6-0 thumping of unseeded Jenny Killich Friday night in the $150,000 Virginia Slims of New Orleans tennis tournament.

Navratilova advanced to Saturday's semifinal round against unseeded Alycia Moulton, who pulled off the biggest upset so far by defeating No. 3 Wendy Turnbull 6-3, 6-7, 6-0.

In other singles matches Friday, fourth-seeded Zena Garrison defeated Terry Holladay, 6-3, 4-6, 6-3, to advance to the semifinals against No. 2 Pam Shriver, who eliminated No. 6 Pam Casale 6-2, 6-4, in another Friday night match.

Cooney to fight Brown today

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — Gerry Cooney plans to fight today. The former top-ranked heavyweight contender had planned to fight several times since losing to Larry Holmes June 11, 1982, but this time it appears it will happen.

Cooney, big and brittle, is scheduled Saturday to fight Phillip Brown, unbeaten and unheralded, who was knocked down by Cooney in a sparring session three years ago.

The scheduled 10-round bout at the 8,900-seat Sullivan Arena will be televised live by CBS at 8:40 p.m. MDT.

Cooney, who made about $2 million when he was stopped by Holmes in the 13th round of their WBC title bout at Las Vegas, is getting about $300,000 to launch a comeback at a lot of boxing people thought would not happen.

Crenshaw advances to semis

VIRGINIA-WATER, England (AP) — Ben Crenshaw kept American hopes alive by advancing to the semifinals with a 3 and 2 victory Friday over Toru Nakamura of Japan in the $183,000 Sunbury World Match Play Golf Championship.

Fellow American Corey Pavin, however, lost 2 and 1 to West Germany's Bernhard Langer.

Greg Norman and Severiano Ballesteros, the two top seeds, also advanced to the semis and were expected to meet in Sunday's final. Norman, the defending champion from Australia, ended the challenge of Gary Player, beating the veteran South African 3 and 2.

Ballesteros ousted Nick Faldo 4 and 3, thus depriving Britain of a single player in the last four of the world's most prestigious head-to-head tournament.

h but he three-putted the 25th from 30 feet, while Ballesteros' afternoon round included putts of 18, 16 and 20 feet.

76ers sign ex-Olympics star

LANCASTER, Pa. (AP) — The Philadelphia 76ers announced Friday they had signed their first-round draft pick, guard Leon Wood, the 6-foot-5 Olympic star who has made the National Basketball Association, the players union and the team over the league's salary cap.

Owner Harold Katz said the salary cap and suit had no bearing on negotiations, which culminated in a multi-year contract signed Friday. General Manager Pat Williams said no other details would be announced.

Wood shrugged off questions about the suit, saying, "Playing basketball is my type of thing. That's all I want to do — play basketball."

McEnroe, Connors get Davis wins

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — John McEnroe and Jimmy Connors breezed to straight-set victories over their outmatched opponents Friday, giving the United States a commanding 3-0 lead over defending champion Australia in the Davis Cup semifinals.

The heavily favored U.S. squad can clinch the best-of-five competition and advance to the final of the prestigious international tennis event if McEnroe and Peter Fleming defeat Paul McNamee and Mark Edmondson in today's doubles match on the indoor-carpet at Portland's Memorial Coliseum.

McEnroe, the world's top-ranked player, methodically disposed of 19-year-old Pat Cash 6-3, 6-1, 6-1 while Connors, ranked third in the world, overpowered John Fitzgerald 6-3, 6-2, 6-3 as the American left-handers never dropped their own service.

On Sunday, the two teams will play "reversing" singles, with McEnroe taking on Fitzgerald and Connors meeting Cash.

The winner here will advance to the Davis Cup final against the winner of the semifinal between Sweden and Czechoslovakia. Sweden took a surprising 2-0 lead Friday when Mats Wilander defeated Tomas Smid and Henrik Sundstrom slugged Ivan Lendl.

Connors, 32, scheduled to play throughout the Davis Cup series for the first time in his long career, overpowered Fitzgerald 6-3, 6-2, 6-3 as the American left-handers never dropped their own service.

It took only three games for Connors to break Fitzgerald's serve, taking the game when the Aussie sent a volley long.

The second set was a virtual carbon copy of the first before the quiet crowd of 11,401. And many of those in attendance left after Connors broke Fitzgerald's service in the fifth game of the third set.

Bruin spikers win pair on road

... we hadn't played this week or what, but we had to struggle."

After winning the first game against Poacello, Anderson substituted three players off the bench in the second game. The Indians won easily before Anderson returned her starting lineup to action for the decided game.

Against Blackfoot, Twin Falls struggled to a first-game victory and then fell behind 8-0 in the second game. The Bruins battled back to tie the game at 14, then scored the next two points to win.

In junior varsity action, Twin Falls defeated Blackfoot 15-0, 15-13 before losing to Poacello 15-10, 10-15.

The Bruins will host Idaho Falls and Highland in a tri-meet this morning in the Bruin gym. Idaho Falls and Highland will square off in the opening game at 11 a.m., with the Twin Falls-Idaho Falls and Twin Falls-Highland matches to follow.

College Football Either Texas or Penn State will fall from grace today

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
The Associated Press

One of the top early season contenders for the national college football championship likely will suffer a setback Saturday when second-ranked Texas meets No. 4 Penn State in the "neutral" surroundings of East Rutherford, N.J.

They are two of college football's glamor names but have met only once, Penn State winning 30-6 in the 1972 Cotton Bowl. This is the first of a three-game series — Penn State visits Texas in 1985, the Longhorns are the "home" team, thanks to a coin flip, although they have sold only 9,500 tickets compared with Penn State's 28,000.

FRED AKERS
No home-field advantage

No. 20 Auburn.
Florida, in Galen Hall's debut as head coach following the dismissal of Charley Foll, entertains Mississippi State.

"It's a credit to the team that they've been able to come through the distractions like they have," Hall said. "They want to show what type of team they are."

In the 1972 Cotton Bowl, Akers was a Texas assistant under Darrell Royal. What he remembers is that "they (Penn State) had a couple of nice-looking backs that day — Franco Harris and Lydell Mitchell. To make Akers unappiar now, Penn State tailback D.J. Dozier returns to action this week after missing two games.

Nebraska Coach Tom Osborne appears to be trying to soft-soap Syracuse, an overwhelming underdog against the Cornhuskers.

"We beat them badly here (63-7 at Lincoln last year), but as I looked at the films I realized it was one of those situations where the score wasn't indicative of the game," Osborne said. "We had more trouble blocking Syracuse than anybody we played all year. What I'm trying to do is convince you that this isn't going to be a pushover."

Even Syracuse's 19-0 loss to Rutgers last week doesn't faze Osborne.

"I'd rather be playing a team coming off a win than a loss. I think it will probably bring-out the best in Syracuse," he said.

Like Nebraska, a 24-point favorite in the Carrier Dome, Ohio State goes indoors at Minnesota and the Buckeyes are 27-point favorites. Minnesota already has lost to Nebraska (38-7) and Coach Lou Holtz said that "Nebraska was an excellent football team, but Ohio State might be better. It has a better running back in Keith Byars and it has a better quarterback in Mike Tomczak. I believe that Ohio State is one of the three best teams in the country and the team that will win the Big Ten."

Miami of Ohio faces what it terms the "biggest challenge" in its 96-year football history against Washington, which Coach Tim Rose said "will probably be ranked among the top five teams in America. This year will be the major upset of the year."

Oklahoma has won 13 in a row from Kansas State — the Sooners once took 32 straight from the Wildcats (1937-68), an NCAA record for most consecutive victories over a major opponent in an uninterrupted series — and has averaged 43.9 points per game during that stretch.

Coach Bobby Bowden is concerned about a Florida State letdown after the Seminoles' 38-3 trouncing of Miami. "I don't know if we can psych 'em up two weeks in a row or not," he said. "Temple is not a natural rival for us (it's the first meeting), but when you think about it, it probably will be just as hard for them to get psyched up for us. They won their big one last Saturday when they beat Pitt."

ISU's encounter with Montana St. tops Big Sky-bill

By The Associated Press

The unbeaten ranks of the Big Sky conference will shrink this weekend with a matchup between two of the four teams sporting perfect conference records.

Last year's conference champion, Montana State, has the homefield advantage and the boost of a come-from-behind victory over Idaho last week as it takes on high-flying Idaho State, a pre-season pick as a title contender.

The third 1-0 team in the Big Sky, Northern Arizona University, goes on the road against Nevada-Reno, UNR, the early pick to repeat as conference champion, is reeling from last week's 37-10 drubbing by Boise State in the Big Sky opener for both teams.

Weber State will host Montana in their third conference clash as both teams try to post a Big Sky victory. Meanwhile, Boise State takes on traveling Eastern Washington and Idaho is invaded by Oregon State in two nonconference contests.

"Idaho State will be our toughest challenge to date," admitted MSU head coach Brian Avening. The team began avenging last year's dismal 1-6 showing with a 34-28 victory over the Idaho Vandals a week ago. Idaho led 14-0 early in that game.

"Our kids showed a lot of character coming back," Avening said. "Our offense is getting better and gaining confidence in each game, and the defense is playing tough."

"That defense will be tested by a Bengal team that exploded for 30 second-quarter points last week to swamp Montana, 49-3.

"There's no question that Montana State is the surprise team in the league," said Bengal head coach Jim Koelzer.

Haldorson Strange lead LaJet field

ABILENE, Texas (AP) — Curtis Strange and Canadian Dan Haldorson mastered the worst weather conditions the touring pros have encountered this year and slogged through rain, wind, mud and biting cold to a tie for the lead Friday in the second round of the $350,000 LaJet Golf Classic.

Strange had a no-bole, 5-under-par 67 while Haldorson put on a birdie-birdie finish for a 68 in occasional rain, with temperatures in the upper 40s, in winds gusting over 20 mph. The combination produced a lead that ranged from 13 to 25 degrees.

Strange and Haldorson each finished two trips over the 7,166 yard Forest Oaks Golf Club course in 135, nine under par.

"Under these conditions, maybe my best round ever," Strange said. "When you get under par on a day like today, it's like stealing."

Haldorson agreed.

"It was ready to quit on the first nine," he said. "I'm thinking, 'how can they let us play in stuff like this?' Just because I'm Canadian, don't think I'm used to weather like this."

The early starters were delayed 32 minutes by a heavy rain shower in an area that, until this week, had been suffering through the worst drought in decades.

PGA champion Lee Trevino, notorious as a hot-weather player and no fan of inclement conditions, took one look at the situation, decided he had a sore throat and withdrew. Trevino had a first-round 70.

"A day like today, you just try to survive it," said Vance Heafner, who thrived, rather than survived, with a round of par 72 that, he said "under these conditions was as good, or better, than the 67 yesterday."

"It's easy, on a day like today, to get upset," said veteran Hubert Green, who had to one-put nine times on his way to a round of 72. "You want to tear your hair, throw your clubs and cuss your grandmother."

"I'll tell you who I feel sorry for — the volunteers. They're out there suffering, wrapped up in garbage sacks and everything."

The players layered themselves in sweaters, foul-weather gear, gloves, mittens, knit caps. Only a shivering handful of spectators appeared.

Three strokes back of the leaders at 138 were Mark O'Meara and rookie Brett Unger. O'Meara closed up with a 70 and Unger had a 72.

Heafner was next at 139.

"Happiness? That's nothing more than health and a poor memory." - Albert Schweitzer.

South took refuge in his poor memory after he blew today's memorable slam. A helpful lead put South into such a complacent mood that, instead of clinching 12 tricks, he chose a heart lead to give South a free finesse and South's Jack won the first trick. Happy with that stroke of luck, South immediately led a spade to dummy's Jack, knowing that he could well afford a spade loser and still make his slam.

South was right but he could afford a spade loser but he should have thought more about avoiding the loss of two spade tricks. The safest way to play the spades four tricks is to cash a high spade first and if both opponents follow smart, return to the South hand for a finesse. Whether the finesse wins or loses, South has enough entries to assure four spade winners. It's normal to feel elation after a helpful opening-lead. However, it's silly to lose a slam because of a careless slip.

THE ACES

BOBBY WOLFF

"Happiness? That's nothing more than health and a poor memory." — Albert Schweitzer.

South took refuge in his poor memory after he blew today's vulnerable slam. A helpful lead put South into such a complacent mood that, instead of clinching 12 tricks, he chose a path to down one.

West's heart lead gave South a free finesse and South's Jack won the first trick. Happy with that stroke of luck, South immediately led a spade to dummy's Jack, knowing that he could well afford a spade loser and still make his slam.

East won his singleton queen and returned the club king to dummy's ace. The spade ace was cashed, but East's discard now made the slam a hopeless cause. South was forced to concede a club to East to hold his losses to only one down.

South was right in that he could afford a spade loser but he should have thought more about avoiding the loss of two spade tricks. The safest way to play the spades for four tricks is to cash a high spade first and if both opponents follow small, return to the South hand for a finesse. Whether the finesse wins or loses, South has enough entries to assure four spade winners.

It's normal to feel elation after a helpful opening lead. However, it's silly to lose a slam because of a careless slip.
