Congress inching to adjournment

Federal workers return after partial shutdown

By CLIFF HAAS
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Despite last-minute attempts by Congress to keep federal funds flowing, the White House told hundreds of thousands of federal workers to go home at midday Thursday after lawmakers failed to approve a $500 billion catchall spending bill needed to keep most of the government solvent.

While the government was partially shut down, President Reagan and congressional leaders traded partisan charges of who was to blame for the mess, which also left in doubt whether Congress could meet its target of adjourning for the year by the end of the week.

The House voted Thursday morning to approve an emergency spending extension to finance out-of-cash government agencies through 4 p.m. MDT today, and the Senate followed suit early in the evening.

Deputy White House press secretary Marlin Fitzwater said the president will sign the temporary money measure and that all furloughed workers would report for work at their regular time today.

Before acting on the temporary measure, the long-term bill—the most expensive, most-inclusive piece of legislation ever to be considered by Congress—gained final Senate approval on a voice vote after more than a week of debate culminated by two rounds of cloture Senate sessions.

Congressional negotiators, meeting to work out a compromise version of the spending bills passed by the House and Senate, indicated they would be bargaining all night and into this morning.

In other activity: The Senate on Thursday night approved by voice vote a formula for distributing to the states $7.5 billion to pay for highway construction.

The Senate on Thursday night passed legislation establishing a study group to determine the feasibility of requiring that cigarettes stop burning when not being puffed.

House conferees refused to accept a Senate proposal that would have given the Pentagon more power to review licenses for the export of goods which might help the Soviet military. The vote was 15 to 2. Members of the House wanted the main power to remain with the Department of Commerce.

Several hours after the Senate finished action on the omnibus money bill, congressional negotiators were scheduled to begin working out a compromise between two versions passed by each chamber. Then, the finished product will go back to both houses for final approval—probably on Friday—before going to Reagan for his signature or veto.

If he vetoes the measure, Congress will likely miss its adjournment target for the year of 4 p.m. MDT today, the start of the Jewish religious holiday, Yom Kippur.

Baker said it was "extremely unlikely... one chance out of 100" that action could be completed by this evening.

O'Neill told reporters the House would return next Tuesday, if necessary, to complete work on the spending legislation, Baker agreed.

At the White House, Fitzwater said of the continuing resolution: "We would like a clean bill restricted to the appropriations necessary for the departments and agencies and this bill still contains measures we would prefer not to have in there."

Administration officials justified the decision to send federal workers home by noting that the Senate had not yet acted on the short extension.

Asked at the White House why he ordered the shutdown, Reagan replied: "This has been very typical of what has happened ever since we have been here and you can lay this right on the majority party in the House of Representatives."

The House had passed the long-term money bill in an afternoon last week, leading House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., D-Mass., to blast the president's remarks, saying, "Ronald Reagan is embarrassing his office by having been here and you can lay this right on the majority party in the House of Representatives."

"He stopped the government today not for purposes of good public policy, but for purposes of melodrama... By pulling the curtain on the government, the actor in the Oval Office is making his final grab for an Oscar," O'Neill said in a statement released by his office.

Shutdown order slows Magic Valley agencies

TWIN FALLS — In the Magic Valley, the federal bureaucracy was slowed but not halted by President Reagan's order to shut down most government offices.

At the Sawtooth National Forest office on Addison Avenue, word of the federal shutdown came about 2 p.m., said Ed Waldapfel, an agency spokesman.

Waldapfel said that more than 90 percent of Forest Service employees were considered non-essential.

"All the employees went home with the exception of a couple of employees in Twin Falls and field offices" to handle any emergencies that might arise, Waldapfel said.

"As far as most people are concerned, they would have rather remained at work," Waldapfel said. "There's a lot of work to be done, and most people don't like the disruption."

Waldapfel, who was contacted at his office at about 5:30 p.m., said he was donating some time to catch up on his work load.

But he said that none of his work "could involve anything that obligates the government to spend funds."

Other area federal agencies also sent workers home, including the Twin Falls Social Security office, which had a sign on the door noting that "we are not open for business — no funding. Please come back next week."

A major exception to the federal closures involved area post offices, which will remain open for business throughout the week. Lorenzo Palagi, the Twin Falls postmaster, said the Postal Service does not receive operating funds from congressional appropriations.

Instead, it must raise its own funds through postage.

Wild areas agreement chance dim

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Democratic leaders of the House Interior Committee offered a counter-proposal Thursday in the continuing negotiations over additional wilderness acreage in Idaho.

But while members of the state's all-Republican congressional delegation thought the plan over, Congressman Larry Craig indicated that chances for an agreement were disappearing.

"Things look very dim," Craig said through spokesman Scott Fisher, who added, "It doesn't have much hope for it."

Interior Committee Chairman Morris Udall, D-Ariz., and Public Lands Subcommittee Chairman John Selberling, D-Ohio, had been reviewing a compromise offered by the delegation on Tuesday and finally submitted their alternative during a one-hour meeting with McClure and Craig Thursday afternoon.

Despite the dwindling chances for an agreement before the planned congressional adjournment today, Fisher said congressional aides planned continued compromise efforts into the evening.

Neither side will divulge details of any of the latest wilderness alternatives. But environmental leaders in Idaho have also expressed doubt that a compromise can be reached this session.

Idaho legislators may encounter $40 million shortfall in revenues

The Associated Press

BOISE — State lawmakers could be facing massive revenue shortfalls when they meet next winter to write Idaho's 1985-1986 spending plan, according to the latest calculations of the Legislative Budget Office.

Even if this budget year's initial trend of higher-than-expected tax receipts continues, a prospect no state official is willing to accept right now, the legislative budget analysis indicated that minimum necessary state spending would eclipse revenues by $39.9 million for the budget year that begins in mid-1985.

Should tax receipts return to the level originally anticipated, that revenue shortfall could approach $66 million, according to the analysis.

Income tax, corporate tax and sales tax revenues all exceeded expectations in July and August, reflecting the impact of the recovery from the devastating recession.

But economic analysts have declined to build that trend into their longer-range projections — for the Idaho economy amid prospects that rising interest rates that could crush any outlook of prosperity for the state's crucial resource-based industries.

The Legislative Budget Office analysis assumes a 7 percent growth in tax receipts from the current budget year to the next, meaning nearly $390 million in revenues for the 1985-1986 year based on a continuation of the higher-than-expected tax collections.

But that total will be cut by more than $15 million if voters approve the November initiative repealing the sales tax on groceries, something state officials have already conceded.

That leaves the state with spending income of about $974 million to finance a budget projected to hit at least $644 million.

That budget assumes a 4 percent increase in state operating costs, a 5.8 percent pay raise for state workers and the second payment on the Legislature's 1984 commitment to bring teachers' salaries up to the national average.

In addition, the analysts expect pressure on lawmakers to restore the

He said Miller would plead innocent to charges of conspiracy to commit espionage at an Oct. 15 preliminary hearing in Los Angeles.

Meanwhile, the FBI said it had begun an investigation—to determine if its operations had been damaged by Miller, 47, who allegedly developed a personal relationship with a female Soviet agent during the past few months.

SPEAKER TOM STIVERS
Salaries come first

Stivers backs teachers over fund use

By DEANS MILLER
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — House Speaker Tom Stivers has taken the side of the Twin Falls Education Association in contract negotiations with the Twin Falls School Board.

Stivers confirmed Thursday that he called teacher negotiator Jana Roy on Sept. 28 to express his support for the teachers' position that money from a special legislative appropriation was "intended to increase salaries" for teachers.

Stivers said the Legislature "expressed very clearly that the intent was that money should go positively to teacher salaries."

"I can't help but sympathize with teachers," Stivers said. "Salary should take precedence over textbooks."

Negotiations have broken down since the board's last offer of $13,900 for base salary levels, an increased deductible amount on teacher health insurance, and reductions in the amount of extra-duty pay teachers receive for coaching and advising extra-curricular activities.

Acting Superintendent Carl Snow was unavailable for comment Thursday and District negotiations spokesman Doyt Simcoe declined to comment on Stivers' remarks.

Stivers said Thursday the board "apparently spent money they didn't have, expecting to use the teacher salary money to pay for it."

Stivers also said he previously warned the board against using the House Bill 475 money for "anything else other than increments (increases) in teacher salaries."

Stivers, who opposed the bill, says he did so because "we went too darn fast in implementation." Stivers said Thursday there is a good chance the second installment of the proposed salary equity appropriations will have to be spread over a third year.

Roy said Wednesday teachers had found approximately $214,000 in "unanticipated revenue now available" for pay raises.

The figures include $50,000 to $73,000 in rebates from Blue Shield; $55,000 in unanticipated additional property tax revenues due to the emergency levy and increased enrollment; $23,000 in increased state support funding due to increased enrollment; and $63,000 in Christmas tree appropriations from the Legislature for books and computers to free up general fund money for other uses.

Roy said Wednesday the Board "acknowledged the amounts indicated... but, declined to meet because 'they had nothing more to offer.'"

Robert L. Seaman, an accountant from Evans, Condie, Homstead, hired to audit district finances said Thursday the list of "unanticipated revenue" drafted by the teachers "has not been discussed" with him.

Simcoe declined to comment on the figures.

Flap over Bush taxes pales in contrast to Ferraro furor

By DAVID ESPO
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Vice President George Bush says the Internal Revenue Service took him "to the cleaners" in a tax dispute, but so far he has fared far better politically in a campaign flap over personal finances than Democratic vice presidential candidate Geraldine Ferraro.

Bush's disclosure on Wednesday of his income tax returns for the past three years produced front-page stories around the country and a renewal of Democratic re-election campaign the way the earlier controversy surrounding Ms. Ferraro affected the Democrats.

Not that the disclosure doesn't open up areas for Mondale and other Democrats to raise questions.

- Bush insisted for months that he was barred from disclosing his tax returns by the terms of the blind trust established when he became vice president. But because his home in Maine is not included in the trust, he knew that the IRS had billed him nearly $200,000 in taxes and interest in a capital gains tax dispute.
- He never mentioned that to reporters, though, even when he was citing the existence of the trust to deflect requests for detailed financial information.
- "You didn't ask me (specifically) about it and I didn't feel inclined to go out and say, 'Hey, I've got a problem with the IRS,'" he said in explaining his decision on Wednesday. The dispute arose when the IRS ruled in a routine audit that Bush had incorrectly deferred taxation on the proceeds of the sale of a home in Texas in conjunction with the subsequent purchase of a home in Maine. The vice president intends to appeal.

- Bush paid 48.6 percent of his adjusted gross income in taxes in 1981; 24.2 percent in 1982 and 12.8 percent in 1983. That works out to $303,421 in taxes on a combined income of $810,447. But the declining percentage might provide plenty of ammunition for Mondale to press his campaign claim that Reagan's tax plan helps the wealthy.
- Bush paid an average of 37.4 percent of his income in taxes over the three years. He said he found that "appalling" as a taxpayer. But as a politician, he "sighed with relief" when he discovered that he had paid "what looked like a reasonable amount of tax every year."
- "That reminds us again of how unfair the present tax system is," he said while campaigning the day after Bush disclosed his tax returns.
- "Vice President Bush is among the 1 percent of wealthiest Americans," Mondale added, claiming that the vice president paid less proportionately "than the maid pays who cleans up the office of the vice president."

But Mondale said it three days before the most important event of the campaign so far — his first televised debate with Reagan — and by the time that's over, most voters will likely have forgotten all about George Bush's tax returns.

In contrast, the controversy surrounding Ferraro's family finances became the dominant event of the presidential campaign at one point last summer.

She was forced onto the defensive at the moment she had burst into the political spotlight, dogged at virtually every campaign stop by reporters asking questions about her finances and those of her husband, John A. Zaccaro.

Republicans seized on the controversy to raise doubts about her, discovering it to be the perfect way to blunt the impact of her historic selection as the first woman nominated to a major party ticket.

In the end, Ferraro turned in an impressive performance at a crowded news conference that laid most questions to rest. But even she conceded that the controversy that preceded it had interfered with Mondale and herself as they sought to convey their message to the voters.

Bush has had to endure little of that. True, he has been dogged periodically by reporters asking about his tax returns. But even after conceding that the controversy that preceded it had interfered with Mondale and herself as they sought to convey their message to the voters, he did so in a way that seemed calculated to minimize the political damage — a few days before the first presidential debate.

Report on Ferraro's disclosure corrected

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Associated Press erroneously reported Wednesday that amended financial disclosure forms filed by Democratic Rep. Geraldine Ferraro showed that her income and assets had increased hundreds of thousands of dollars over what she previously reported.

The Mondale-Ferraro campaign Wednesday said that the information reported on Ms. Ferraro's amended Ethics in Government Act forms for the years 1978-1983 totals about $66,000, the bulk of which relates to two real estate transactions.

The amended value of the vice presidential candidate's net worth was about $70,000 greater than previously reported, the statement said.

The AP story said the newly disclosed items carried a value of $337,500 to $646,500. And the story said the revised entries, many of them bank accounts, added from $95,400 to $287,500 to what she had listed in previous statements. Under the ethics act, members of Congress are allowed to list the values of their assets, income and liabilities in broad dollar ranges.

The AP's account was arrived at by making a year-to-year comparison with previous disclosures and then adding up the differences. The AP's figure was, in fact, substantially inflated by the multiple counting of net-worth increases.

Reagan leading Mondale in polls

WASHINGTON — Heading into Sunday's presidential debate, President Reagan has a lead over Walter F. Mondale broad enough to make possible an electoral-college landslide and deep enough to boost the hopes of Republican candidates for other offices, the latest Washington Post-ABC News poll shows.

Nationally, Reagan led his Democratic challenger 55 percent to 37 percent. The margin is up slightly from the 16-point, or 56-40 percent, lead in a poll taken Sept. 6-11.

The Sept. 22-Oct. 2 poll is a super-sized sample of 12,000 people that is designed to measure the presidential race on a state-by-state, as well as a national, basis.

Drive aims at signing up new voters

The Associated Press

In dozens of cities across America, volunteers conducted a registration blitz Thursday, signing up new voters in parking lots and hospitals, on cheese lines, at bus stops, in fast food restaurants and even on the Staten Island Ferry in New York City.

About half the states close their voter rolls before next Wednesday.

Lillie Mae Wilson, 42, who said she had never voted, signed documents handed to her by a deputy registrar in the parking lot of a Safeway grocery in Little Rock, Ark. "I will vote this year," she said, "and I will tell

"my friends to."

The drive was nonpartisan but many of its participants hoped that newly enrolled voters — many from groups with Democratic leanings but usually low election participation — would help Democrat Walter Mondale's campaign to defeat President Reagan.

"I think the election is going to be decided by new voters," said Ken Grossinger, state coordinator of the Human Serve Fund, one of 50 groups participating in the effort in New York City.

He noted that Reagan won New York State by 165,000 votes in 1980 while 1.3 million adults in New York City alone are unregistered.

Cyanide capsules and the earth's fate

The idea may seem bizarre to many, but the vote this coming week at Brown University—on whether the student health service should stock cyanide pills for optional use in the event of a nuclear war may say something about the fatalism with which many young people see the fate of the earth.

The idea is the work of student activists who got the question on the student government ballot Oct. 10-11 by gathering 700 student signatures at the Providence, R.I., school.

The suicide pills are opposed by the health services director, a doctor, who says their presence and availability violates the Hippocratic Oath. But the student organizers disagree.

They think the vote will sharpen awareness of nuclear issues and the threat of war in these tension-filled times.

There has been much speculation by historians that pervasive apathy, cynicism and fatalism in European society helped bring about World War I which cost millions of lives.

No one believed that war could be prevented, and hence, the world seemed to drift toward it inexorably, as if driven by some unseen force. That fatalism is apparent in the literature of the era.

More than one historian has noticed a similar trend in modern times, in the military's theme that nuclear war is "winnable," in the confrontation mentality of the superpowers and in the buildup of military spending by many nations.

But as Jonathan Schell has observed in "The Fate of the Earth," a nuclear war would end life as we know it on this planet. In such a climate, suicide might be, for some, a better choice than life.

A good idea to extend

Well, the federal government stopped completely on Thursday, and wonder of wonders, the nation didn't come to a screeching halt after all.

Sure, you couldn't visit your friendly IRS office, but shucks, all things are relative.

Maybe we should let them take a month or so off. Just think of the continuing benefits.

But no one can expect Congress to come up with an idea like that. It's too simple.

Chisholm candidacy stirs controversy

Temperatures in the three-way race to represent the eight Magic Valley counties in the Idaho State Senate continued to rise this week, with controversy centering this time on the independent candidacy of Bill Chisholm.

Chisholm, a former Democrat and long-time Magic Valley activist on peace and environmental issues, displayed a more prominent presence at a pair of Democratic fundraising events held in the Magic Valley last weekend than did his Democratic opponent, Twin Falls teacher Nick Nicholson.

But that presence—combined with a statement of support for Chisholm from a volunteer for two other Democrats, running in the Magic Valley floating legislative district—apparently raised hackles on the backs of several Democratic necks of undisclosed color.

The volunteer worker, Tom Pomeroy, invited a Times-News reporter to attend the fund-raising party for Democratic House of Representative candidates Jude Hawkes of Ketchum and Melissa Stewart of Picoabo. He was working the door at Whiskey Jacques in Ketchum where the event took place and sat at a table which displayed campaign brochures for Hawkes, Stewart and Chisholm.

When asked why no Nicholson brochures were available, the volunteer answered that the candidates supported Chisholm because they had worked closely with him in the past on environmental issues. The comment was reported in the Times-News.

After being contacted by Nicholson and by state Democratic chairman Mel Morgan, Hawkes and Stewart stated that the volunteer did not accurately represent the views of the two candidates. Both clarified their positions. Stewart said she has supported Nicholson's candidacy since the beginning of her own candidacy. She added that she supports Chisholm on environmental issues.

Hawkes said she was "frustrated" by the two opposing candidates, which she said are likely to dilute support from Democratic voters and throw the election to Republican Larry Anderson. She said she was supportive of both individuals but was not supporting one over the other as a candidate.

BILL CHISHOLM
Could bring in fresh voters

That apparently did not suffice to lower the Democratic hackles.

On Thursday, Hawkes issued another statement, this one throwing her "complete support to Nick Nicholson." Nicola Potts, spokeswoman for the Committee to Elect Jude Hawkes said the latest announcement was made because Democratic party officials "want it cut and dried."

Rick Shaughnessy

"Jude" decided she will support the Democratic platform and work within the Democratic Party. She called Bill (Chisholm) and said she will not make any more comments to the press on this issue," Potts said.

If Democratic tempers seem easily ignited on the issue of Chisholm's candidacy, that could be because Idaho Democrats are scurrying to protect the sanctity of Gov. John Evans' veto—a powerful Democratic tool that will be lost if Democrats don't take their share of the seven new seats in the Idaho State Senate.

But more than the prospect of spilling Democratic chances in the district, Chisholm's candidacy could have a far-reaching impact on the race than is generally being conceded.

Clearly, he stands to dilute Nicholson showings in the Twin Falls and Wood River, Valley areas. Family familiarity with the Chisholm family name among Minidoka and Cassia county voters could bring the independent candidate votes in the area's strongest Republican reserve to the detriment of Anderson and to the benefit of Nicholson.

But most importantly, Chisholm's candidacy could spur increased voter participation in the district. Chisholm offers Magic Valley voters a candidate whose profile is neither Republican or Democrat.

That could provide a benefit to the electoral system by bringing new or old voters into the election process who otherwise would not participate.

Rick Shaughnessy covers Idaho politics and state government for The Times-News.

A lesson in U.S. justice

For weeks the news media, with the enthusiasm of hound pups dragging a dead cat around the front lawn, has been dragging Geraldine Ferraro and her financial problems before the public. This without one word on the crux of the matter and that is the contrast between the treatment by the IRS of a rich client and one of modest means who may have made an error in filling out his 1040.

Here we have a wealthy person, a member of Congress and a noted politician who, after she had accepted the nomination as Democratic candidate for the vice presidency was accused of improperly filling out her income tax returns. Right here she made the mistake of talking too much and the more she said the more ammunition her detractors had. Now let's get to the real nitty-gritty of this matter.

Digging into her past reporting she found an error in her 1978 return to the IRS that added $53,459 in penalties and interest. She is once sent her check in that amount. Now here is the lesson for a person of modest income, one that spells out in capital letters why 94 percent of these taxes are paid by persons with incomes of less than $20,000 while the millionaire class pays little or no such tax. Huge corporations with their sharp accountants, their juggling of income and ownership, pay but modest taxes. Now let's look at the treatment of a person of low income, the small businesswoman, the low-income farmer, the elderly on fixed income who attempts to fill out his 1040 and perhaps makes some mistake. At once they get a notice from the IRS saying "We find you have underpaid your tax by $10,50, please remit by return mail or we will attach your wages, your bank account, your car or other property, your home, etc." No excuses, you are declared guilty. You go to a lawyer and he tells you, "Pay if possible, it costs them nothing to sue you but it will cost you from $2,000 to $20,000 to defend by fighting through the maze of courts." So you send a check and please refrain from using the four letter words that come to mind in expressing your opinion.

Just remember that this is all recorded on microfilm and stored for future reference. Perhaps in the distant future you may decide to try to unseat some dude who has his hands in your pocket, where the salary and "side benefits" offer a real inducement. At once your opponent will slyly suggest to the IRS that your tax reporting may be less than correct and might bear scrutiny. The press grabs this and headlines scream, "Mr. X's tax returns being investigated by the IRS." Right there you have two strikes on you. If you fight the accusation it will take years in court. If you don't fight them you are in the eyes of the public a miserable tax dodger.

The IRS finds itself in the position of being the NKVD or secret police. Again, I invite you to make a mistake of $53,459 without being an inmate, peering through the bars, of the state Bastille. In this is a lesson in U.S. justice. This lady is probably as honest as 99 percent of her colleagues in Congress. Witness the mad scramble of congressmen to send in corrected tax forms after her exposure. Mrs. Ferraro has acknowledged that her "accountant" failed to include over $2,000 in her 1978 tax return. Now think that over. How could the IRS overlook such a sum unless they just skipped any careful examination and gave it a clean bill of health.

If partial, then admit it

I just read your latest attack on Congressman Hansen, and I find it ironic that you, on one hand, are in on congressional scheduling debates; then turn right around and knock him for sending a press release to you in response to your request to attempt to do so. You neglected to mention in your article that the press release was in response to your direct request, or maybe the Times-News has moved from the second congressional district. If not, I think that Georgy, complying with a request from you as a member of his constituency, is within the realms of his duty.

I notice that you have no qualms about calling him up in Washington and demanding an interview when he is on congressional time. Question, how many times have you asked that he call you back at public expense so you could misquote him? It seems that whether something is right or wrong in your opinion depends solely on whether it furthers your own aims.

Also, if you feel the need to do some more "investigative reporting" you might look into whether the things reported in his book were true or not. I have checked into some of it and find it 100 percent truth thus far. I also didn't receive any grants from any questionable foundations to finance my research. If you were doing your job then you would have reported this information long ago and saved me a lot of time and trouble. When I first came to Twin Falls I was told by a longtime resident that I would like everything about Twin Falls except KMYT and the "Jousy newspaper." In the case of the Times News, I can see why. If you are going to be press secretary for Richard Stallings, you ought to at least admit your partiality.

The Rev. Jerry Falwell seems blind to the dangers of the nuclear arms build-up. He reminds me of the saying, "Let the blind lead the blind."

The farther we go back into history, the greater was the superstition that dominated his kind.

Primitive religion has always divided people, and caused untold bloodshed, and it will most likely remain so until more people of many countries solve the origin of the God that they worship.

Jesus told the woman, "Ye worship ye know not what," and that is as true today as it was then.

The Pharisees were great believers and they did a lot of praying, but they were unable to communicate with the Spirit that Jesus had.

Falwell would lead us back into the dark ages and there is no greater sin than mistaking the people.

Odor of rancid oil offends

Autumn in this valley has always been a time to celebrate a fall. There's something about the leaves and the harvest that's always made me air-aware at this time. Because of this the pollution that's relatively new has bothered me.

The fast-food chains of our village have given us an umbrella of the smell of rancid oil that sometimes hangs over us for hours. I smell it later in a quiet night and awake to it the next day. These environmentally comatose businesses provide us with neon used of offensively, paper and plastic litter and a criminally slim excuse for food. I can choose not to support these businesses but I can't opt for another air supply! What kind of disposal, storage or ventilation problems are these establishments sharing with us?

Supporters see movement on proposed immigration law

By SUSANNE M. SCHAFER
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Backers of a controversial immigration control measure said Thursday progress has been made on breaking the deadlock over the bill, which has languished in a House-Senate conference committee and is in danger of dying when Congress adjourns.

Rep. Charles Schumer, D-N.Y., who is trying to bring House and Senate negotiators together for new discussions on the bill, said late Thursday that the main sticking point barring agreement on the bill "seems to be resolved."

Sen. Alan Simpson, R-Wyo., the main Senate sponsor, has given "tentative approval" to the agreement, according to Simpson aide Mary Kay Hill.

The immigration measure, one of the major items of legislation on this year's congressional calendar, is designed to curtail the flow of illegal aliens across U.S. borders.

The negotiators broke up in disagreement last week over an anti-discrimination clause in the House bill that was rejected by the Senate.

Schumer told reporters that he now thinks "there is a chance" the negotiators will meet today and approve a compromise he has suggested.

But he added that time is running out for getting the measure to the White House.

Congress was scheduled to adjourn today, but wrangling over a catch-all spending bill to finance the government may keep members meeting next week. If so, supporters might have time to push the measure through the conference committee and both chambers.

However, Rep. Peter Rodino, D-N.J., the chairman of the conference committee, said he had not yet decided whether he would call the conferees back into session.

"I haven't seen it," Rodino said of the compromise. He indicated that he would not recall the conference until he had assurances from Simpson and Rep. Barney Frank, D-Mass., the sponsor of the anti-discrimination measure, that they had been able to work out their differences over the matter.

During more than a week of intense discussions, the negotiators laid down the basic items in the bill — fines and possible prison sentences for employers who knowingly hire illegal aliens and a program to legalize those aliens who can prove they have lived in the country since before Jan. 1, 1981.

The sticking point came when Simpson refused to accept the anti-discrimination measure approved by the House. As proposed by Frank, the provision would forbid employers from discriminating against U.S. citizens, as well as non-citizens given the right to work in America.

Banking legislation buried by congressional committees

WASHINGTON (AP) — Far-ranging banking legislation, presumed dead last month, was buried Thursday by the chairman of key congressional committees.

In a joint statement, Sen. Jake Garn, R-Utah, and Rep. Bernard St. Germain, D-R.I., said that "no banking legislation will be finalized by Congress this week" before adjournment.

"As a result, they said, legislation "addressing the competitive and regulatory framework of the financial system will be the first priority of the banking committees of the House and the Senate as soon as the 99th Congress convenes in 1985."

About 10 days ago, St. Germain, chairman of the House Banking Committee, had said the measure was dead.

Garn, who heads the Senate Banking Committee and wanted a broad banking measure, had expressed disappointment and maintained there was still time for action.

The measure passed by the Senate would have given banks authority to spread into areas, such as the securities business, from which they have traditionally been excluded. It would also have spelled out the conditions under which banks could move across state lines, lifting certain prohibitions now in place.

That bill also included such provisions as a limit on increases in interest rates pegged to adjustable rate mortgages, setting of a goal of no more than a three-day hold on most out-of-town checks and requirements that banks disclose fees deducted from inactive checking accounts.

St. Germain had pushed for much narrower legislation, which would have slowed the growing trend of "non-bank banks." Those are bank-like institutions opened by securities firms and non-financial institutions that fall outside much federal banking regulation.

A temporary moratorium on the spread of the quasi-banks — imposed by the U.S. Comptroller of the Currency — expires with the adjournment of Congress.

Police arrest protesters at White House

WASHINGTON (AP) — Police arrested two chanting demonstrators Thursday after they unfurled a banner outside the White House fence denouncing "Reagan's harvest of shame."

The U.S. Park Police said they were charged with "demonstrating in a restricted area," a center section of the White House sidewalk where walking — but not standing — is permitted.

Police identified the two as Richard Stern, 22, and William Wardlaw, 46, both of Washington.

The protesters, they were standing on the sidewalk along Pennsylvania Avenue directly opposite the north portico of the White House. Other demonstrators were allowed to march up and down in front of the White House with no interference from police.

The police did not move to arrest and handcuff the two men, who were shouting slogans against President Reagan's nuclear and arms control policies, until they moved into the forbidden center section of the sidewalk.

House panel urges tax breaks as incentives for child day care

WASHINGTON (AP) — Acknowledging the rapid growth of women in the American work force, a House committee Thursday urged a major boost in federal tax breaks for child care and incentives for schools — and employers themselves — to provide day care for the children of working mothers.

"This report responds to historic and long-term changes in American society, the American economy and the American workplace that cannot be ignored any longer by Congress," said Rep. George Miller, D-Calif., chairman of the Select Committee on Children, Youth and Families.

Miller said 45 percent of all mothers with children, less than a year old, work outside the home, and the percentage is expected to increase.

The panel's report, described as the most comprehensive study of child care by Congress in a decade, was signed by every member of the committee, whether Democrats, Republicans, liberals or conservatives, Miller said.

Among the recommendations in the report:

- Revising federal tax policy to ensure that families raising children are not penalized whether they choose to stay home with their children or seek out-of-home care.
- Congress should consider halting federal assistance to states that fail to provide adequate health, safety and law enforcement standards for protection of children in out-of-home care.

- Establishing "a modest matching fund program designed to expand community-based information and referral services for parents."
- Encouraging employers, through tax incentives and other means, to help provide day care services for their employees. Of the 6 million employers in the United States, only 1,500 provide any form of child care assistance to their employees, the report said.
- Schools should be used to provide safe, supervised before- and after-school activities for so-called "latchkey children" who return home before their working parents do.

Board tabs Bieber

DETROIT (AP) — United Auto Workers President Owen Bieber was named a member of the Chrysler Corp. board of directors on Thursday, becoming only the second national union leader in U.S. history to sit on a major corporate board.

"Obviously, I'm very excited and pleased," said Bieber, who was recommended by Chrysler Chairman Lee Iacocca for the seat on the board of the 21st-largest U.S. corporation.

Economic indicators healthy

By The Associated Press

America's big retailers reported a modest September sales gain on Thursday, while the government said new unemployment applications fell slightly in mid-September and conventional mortgage rates in September were the lowest in three months.

Another closely watched economic indicator, the M1 measure of the nation's basic money supply, fell $2.4 billion in the latest reporting week, the Federal Reserve said. The decline, bigger than expected, was considered a sign that the Fed would not feel forced to tighten credit, which produces higher interest rates.

Among the 10 largest retailers, No. 1 Sears, Roebuck & Co. posted the lowest September increase, 4 percent. Last month's sales were down 1 percent from a year ago.

Analysts said there was little September growth in sales of durable goods, such as appliances and furniture, which are a major part of Sears' vast line.

But they said there was strength in apparel sales. That led to a 17 percent sales gain for No. 2 K mart Corp. and a 14.6 percent increase for J.C. Penney Co., third-largest sales.

In Washington, the Labor Department said new applications for unemployment compensation benefits totaled 377,000 in the week ended Sept. 22, down 4,000 from the preceding week.

The rate of insured unemployment in the week dipped 0.1 percent — down to 2.7 percent from 2.8 percent in the previous week. That is the percentage of the 105 million American workers eligible for unemployment benefits who are in fact drawing them.

The government said also that in the week ended Sept. 15 the grand total of Americans receiving benefits, nationwide and including the Virgin Islands and Puerto Rico, was 2,391,700, down 111,700 from the week earlier.

The Federal Home Loan Bank Board said interest rates on fixed-rate mortgages fell below 15 percent in September for the first time since June, and were the lowest since the nationwide average for a conventional mortgage on a new home was 14.91 percent in September, down from 15 percent in August and 15.23 percent in July.

However, the rate on the more popular adjustable-rate mortgages, in which the homeowner's payment varies with fluctuating interest rates, was unchanged in September at 12.89 percent.

Comparisons of adjustable rate averages are general at best because they are not regulated and vary widely in design from bank to bank.

The bank board said adjustable-rate home loans accounted for 63 percent of all mortgages closed in September, down from 70 percent in August.

In New York, the Fed said the measure of readily spendable money, mainly cash in circulation and non-bank travelers checks, known as M1, fell to a seasonally adjusted $547 billion in the week ended Sept. 24 from $549.4 billion the previous week.

Although the drop was larger than economists had expected, it had little effect on the bond market, where prices and rates remained mostly unchanged.

For the latest 13 weeks, M1 averaged $546.7 billion, a 4.7 percent seasonally adjusted annual rate of gain from the previous 13 weeks.

Bonner missive a mystery

NEWTON, Mass. (AP) — A postcard from Soviet dissident Yelena Bonner is a mystery because it makes no mention of her husband, Andrei Sakharov, and refers to events after the Aug. 7 date on the card, the couple's daughter said Thursday.

"It's a very mysterious, I would say, postcard by the very fact of not mentioning so many important things," said Tatiana Yankelevich. "It seems to be trying to tell us something important."

The U.S. State Department said last month it had unconfirmed reports that Mrs. Bonner was convicted of anti-Soviet slander and sentenced to five years in eastern exile in Gorky, 250 miles east of Moscow.

"Either there was no trial, or if there was a trial — if she were tried and sentenced — that this had not brought any changes to her life," she said. "The postcard gives an impression that she's avoiding this issue, or ignoring the particular situation she's in."

Microbial pesticide rules set

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Environmental Protection Agency, jumping into the genetic engineering fray, on Thursday established the first government controls on pesticides developed from genetically altered bacteria.

In an interim policy statement expected to be published next week, the agency said researchers must get EPA approval before they can test any genetically engineered pesticide outside the laboratory.

Research so far on a new generation of microbial pesticides developed through recombinant DNA research has been confined to laboratories, growth chambers and greenhouses where they could not be released into the environment.

The agency, however, has been approached by several companies expressing an interest in doing small field tests on 10 acres or less. One of them, Monsanto Co., has indicated it might be ready to field test a genetically modified soil microbe as an insecticide next year.

John Moore, EPA's assistant administrator for pesticides and toxic substances, said the agency wants at least 90 days to evaluate any specific proposed test for potential risk to the public's health.

"Although EPA does not have reason to believe that any harmful conditions will necessarily occur, the agency believes it should take a closer look at direct releases of these microbial pesticides into the environment," Moore said.

The new policy covers naturally occurring microorganisms to be used as pesticides outside their native habitat and bacteria that has been genetically altered or otherwise manipulated by researchers.

If after a 90-day review EPA is not satisfied with the data on laboratory experiments or the pesticides or still has serious environmental or health concerns about outdoor testing, it can require the researchers to obtain an experimental use permit.

Those permits, requiring much more detailed information before an experiment and establishing specific controls on any tests, are not normally needed for conventional chemical pesticides.

Officials fear that genetically altered microbes, however, might be capable of spreading, producing new toxins or showing an enhanced ability to survive, making them difficult to control or eradicate.

Mounties track down last Chinatown massacre suspect

SEATTLE (AP) — Tony Ng, the "third man" sought since February 1983 in the Chinatown massacre in which 19 people were shot to death, has been arrested by Canadian authorities in Calgary, Alberta, the FBI reported Thursday.

Seattle police confirmed Ng's arrest.

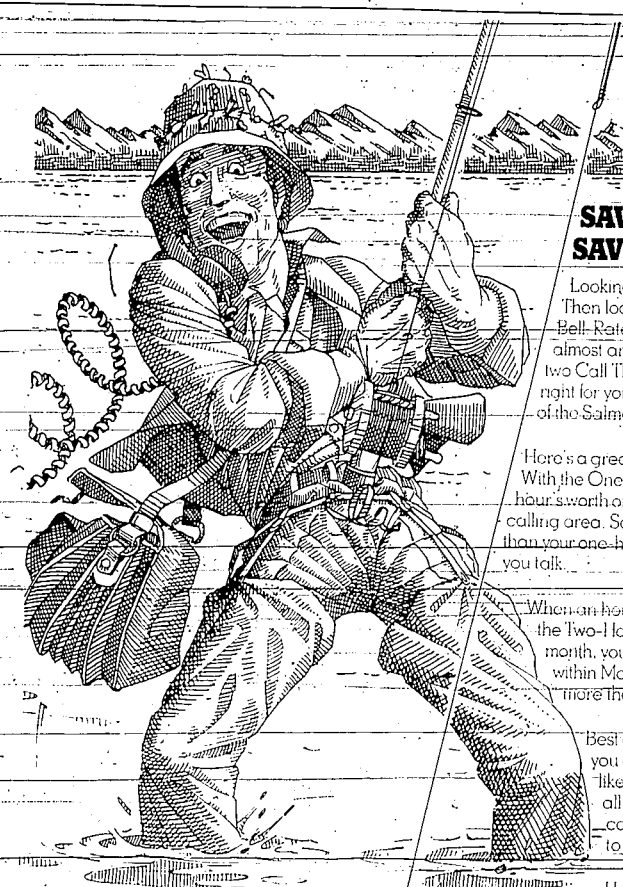

Ng, who disappeared from Seattle within hours of the shootings at the Wah Mee Club in Chinatown, had been on the FBI's Ten Most Wanted List since June.

He was arrested Thursday at his apartment in Calgary's Chinatown, Royal Canadian Mounted Police Staff Sgt. Ted Ellis of Calgary said in a news release.

Ng was arrested without incident by RCMP, Seattle police and FBI officers, said FBI special agent Joseph Smith in Seattle. Ng was being held on a Canadian immigration violation.

For the latest 13 weeks, M1 averaged $546.7 billion, a 4.7 percent seasonally adjusted annual rate of gain from the previous 13 weeks.

Drug may treat AIDS

WASHINGTON (AP) — A drug used to treat African sleeping sickness and other parasitic illnesses may be a candidate for use in therapy for people with the early stages of the deadly disease AIDS, government researchers said Thursday.

Scientists from the National Cancer Institute said the drug suramin stops the reproduction of the virus thought to play a major role in the development of acquired immune deficiency syndrome, or AIDS.

Laboratory experiments also indicate that the drug may protect white blood cells called helper T-cells from being killed by the virus. These cells, which produce hormones critical to the body's defense against disease, appear to be a principal target of AIDS.

The scientists stressed that their results, using cell cultures in the laboratory do not mean that the drug will be effective in humans, and they noted that suramin can be highly toxic at therapeutic doses.

To look at the therapeutic potential of the drug, the institute last month started a small human trial to determine toxicity, as well as safe and effective dose levels. So far, two AIDS patients have been enrolled in this pilot study.

Hinckley loses bid for more privileges

By TIM AHERN
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — A federal judge on Thursday denied a personal plea from presidential assailant John W. Hinckley Jr. that he be given unrestricted access to telephones and journalists and be permitted daily strolls in the yard of the mental hospital where he is confined.

"I no longer need those restrictions," Hinckley told U.S. District Judge Barrington Parker, who rejected the request on the advice of psychiatrists.

"I am not the same person I was two years ago," Hinckley said. "At the time of my trial, I was a sick young man. When I arrived at St. Elizabeths (Hospital), I did have a mental problem.

"I was out of control. I needed restrictions because my illness led me to say and do some very stupid things such as trying to commit suicide," Hinckley said.

Hinckley, 29, shot and wounded President Reagan and three other men on March 31, 1981. He has been

JOHN W. HINCKLEY JR.
Sought phone, media access confined at St. Elizabeths here since June 1982, after a jury found him innocent by reason of insanity. Restrictions on Hinckley's mail were lifted this week and he will be granted unrestricted access to the phones in three months "if he shows responsibility" in handling his mail privileges, his chief psychiatrist, Dr. Joan Turkus, testified.

But she said she did not think Hinckley is now ready for unrestricted phone access or interviews with reporters. She also ruled out daily walks around the hospital grounds.

Parker refused Hinckley's request, saying, "I don't feel I'm prepared to second-guess the doctors." He said he found "complete justification and sound reasoning to the position taken by the hospital."

The hearing, held under heavy security, was highlighted by the 20-minute appeal by Hinckley, speaking steadily as the stool in front of Parker. Hinckley said he was happy that his 1983 suicide attempt had failed. "For the first time in years, I am glad to be alive," he said.

"I now cherish my life," Hinckley added, promising that "I will never again harm another human being."

Hinckley said his obsession with actress Jodie Foster "has been over for 18 months." It was that obsession that led him to try to kill Reagan in an attempt to impress Miss Foster, according to testimony at his trial.

The practice of monitoring his phone calls is "unfair and unnecessary," Hinckley said, particularly since his parents will soon be moving to the Washington area and he wants to be able to talk freely with them on a daily basis.

As for the media, he said, "I would like to be given an interview to reporters I trust."

He promised to "never ask for money from an interview" because "I seek dignity and respect, not financial gain."

Hinckley is now held under extremely tight restrictions at St. Elizabeths and those should be relaxed enough to permit him to walk the grounds daily or at least weekly, he told Parker.

"All I want is a chance to have my therapy in the sunshine" and away from the walls, he said.

Organizers call off seven-year-Nestle boycott

WASHINGTON (AP) — An international boycott of Nestle products began more than seven years ago ended Thursday, with organizers saying "the Swiss-based corporation has made 'substantial progress' toward complying with reforms in marketing infant formula in the Third World.

The boycott, which began July 4, 1977, had been suspended last Jan. 26 while its organizers evaluated Nestle's progress toward coming into compliance with the code developed by the World Health Organization.

"Recognizing the substantial progress Nestle has made in implementing the WHO international code, the International Nestle Boycott Committee has voted to recommend full termination of the international boycott of the company," the committee said in a statement issued jointly with Nestle here and in Geneva, Switzerland.

The boycott began as a protest of the sales practices used by multinational corporations in promoting infant formula as preferable to breast milk to Third World women, who because of illiteracy, poor sanitation and shortage of pure water frequently were unable to use it properly.

Boycott activities took place in United States, Canada, Sweden, West Germany, the United Kingdom, Norway, Finland, Australia, New Zealand and Japan.

When the World Health Assembly adopted an international code of marketing of breast-milk substitutes in May 1981, the boycott group made implementation of the code's provisions its goal. The code was adopted by a 118-1 vote, with only the United States dissenting.

The code called for the promotion of breastfeeding because it is wholesome, nutritionally complete and economical.

"We found that Nestle is not perfect, but we also found that Nestle is not the same company it was seven years ago when the boycott began," said Douglas Johnson, chairman of the Infant Formula Action Coalition.

Carl L. Angst, executive vice president of Nestle S.A., said the company had lost some of its market share to three American competitors by complying with the code, but he declined to be specific.

Evans against merit pay plan

POCATELLO (AP) — Gov. John Evans Thursday renewed his opposition to merit pay for Idaho teachers, saying it would breed inequities and create an uncooperative teaching atmosphere. Speaking at a teachers' conference here, Evans said all Idaho teacher salaries should be raised before a merit scale is considered further. He pointed out that the state's teacher salaries are $3,000 behind neighboring states. "We shouldn't impose merit pay when our teachers' salaries are so far behind," Evans said. "Salaries must also be made comparable to other professions."

Boise driver dies in wreck

BOISE (AP) — The body of a driver whose car rolled down an embankment was discovered hours later when a passer-by saw the wreckage and notified police. The driver was speeding late Wednesday when his car went out of control, became airborne and rolled 90 feet down an embankment, Boise Police Lt. Larry Jones said. Police were notified Thursday afternoon. Jones identified the victim only as a 22-year-old Boise resident and said he apparently was alone in the car.

Inmate escapes Boise center

BOISE (AP) — A 21-year-old inmate escaped from the Corrections Department's Boise Work Release Center Thursday. Authorities issued a statewide alert for Leonard Allen Kelly of Boise, but prison system officials said he was not considered dangerous. Kelly slipped away from guards while enroute to a mechanic's job in the city. He had been sent to the center this past weekend from the Northern Idaho Correction Institution, where he had been since mid-November on a three-year sentence for grand theft.

Group denies LDS affiliation

REXBURG (AP) — The Madison County Citizens for Decency through Law is not affiliated with Mormon Church, the group's organizer says. Spokesman Gary Brock said the organization's primary purpose is to make people aware there is a way to educate Madison County residents about the long-term effects of pornography and its relationship to crime. "We're not trying to pass laws to do away with pornography," he said.

Bateman opts to leave IEA

IDAHO FALLS (AP) — Idaho Falls teacher and Republican legislator Linda Bateman says he's quitting the Idaho Education Association. "I'm Democratic," Bateman said this week. "It's just an extension of the Democratic Party." Bateman is House Majority Caucus chairman and a Bonneville High School history teacher. He sought an IEA endorsement this year, but the group declined to endorse him or his opponent, Democrat Charles LoPresti, who also requested an IEA stamp of approval.

Munger has heart surgery

BOISE (AP) — State Tax Commissioner Morgan Munger is expected to remain under intensive care the rest of the week after undergoing heart bypass surgery. Munger underwent the operation on Monday at St. Luke's Regional Medical Center in Boise. He served four terms in the Idaho Legislature and was appointed to the Idaho Tax Commission in 1982.

Abortion, suicide rate off the average

BOISE (AP) — Idaho's abortion rate continues to be less than half the national average, but the state's suicide rate is nearly 5 percent higher than the national norm, state Bureau of Vital Statistics officials say. Figures released by the state Department of Health and Welfare this week show Idaho physicians reported conducting 2,456 induced abortions last year. That's up 25 from 1982, but the rate of 11 abortions per 1,000 women of child-bearing age (15-44), was still far below the national level of 24 per 1,000. National figures have not been updated since 1980, vital statistics registrar Bee Biggs said. All but six of the abortions in Idaho during 1983 were conducted in Ada, Bannock, Kootenai, Latah and Blaine counties.

Deborah Hedden-Nicely, public relations director for Planned Parenthood of Idaho, said she suspects that concentration is the result of adequate medical services and doctors willing to perform abortions being located in those counties. Ada, Bannock and Kootenai include three of the state's population centers, and Latah County is the home of the University of Idaho, but Mrs. Hedden-Nicely could not explain why 914 abortions were conducted in Blaine County last year. She said the figures pointed out the need for improved contraceptive and family planning education. Planned Parenthood has no offices outside Boise. Statistics show 1,869 of the abortions in Idaho last year were performed on unmarried women. Twenty-three were conducted on girls between the ages of 10 and 14, and 777 females between 15 and 19. Women between 20 and 24 received the most abortions, with 831 reported by Idaho doctors. Mrs. Hedden-Nicely said younger girls rarely are seen in Planned Parenthood offices, and generally are encouraged to seek adult advice in such a serious decision. "The physicians that I know who provide terminations in this state are fairly conservative," she said. "I would imagine they would require some form of parental involvement with someone that age."

Districting amendment fight begins

BOISE (AP) — Leaders from both sides of the political fence, past and present, got together in Boise Thursday to lash out at a proposed amendment to the state constitution that would allow legislative districts to cross county boundaries. Former Republican Gov. Robert Smylie joined former Democratic governor and Interior Secretary Cecil Andrus and Democratic state Sen. Gall Bray outside the state Capitol to blast the proposal. Gov. John Evans, also a Democrat, kicked off the drive at a similar news conference in Pocatello. The bipartisan political all-stars have joined the Citizens Alliance for Reapportionment Equality (CARE) — a group pledged to the defeat of House Joint Resolution 5 on the November ballot. Group members contend that allowing legislators to split county boundaries would reduce effective representation and dilute the strength of traditional political communities. The state constitution currently requires that boundaries of legislative districts not cross county lines. However, reapportionment efforts in recent years have ignored that rule in pursuit of fulfilling the one-man-one-vote provision of the U.S. Constitution. "The bar on cross-county districts was the reason the state Supreme Court invalidated Idaho's 1982 reapportionment plan, throwing this year's election process into an uproar." The court-ordered redistricting plan that came out of that fight is being used for this year's election. But after two years of litigation and failed attempts to meet both the state and federal constitutional requirements, the 1984 Legislature voted to put an amendment on the ballot to drop the requirement to maintain county integrity. Smylie and Mrs. Bray said the legislature was too politically biased to make effective reapportionment decisions on its own. They called for an independent commission to oversee the redistricting process. Smylie said the chances were high that two-thirds of state legislators would approve such a measure.

Court refuses appeal of adult theater case

POCATELLO (AP) — The U.S. Supreme Court has refused to hear a City of Pocatello appeal of an unfavorable circuit court decision in the Gallery Theater case, now almost nine years old. Attorney L. Charles Johnson, the city's special counsel, received the decision Thursday. He said depending on the text of a written order from the court, he may seek another appeal. Otherwise, the case will be tried on its merits in U.S. District Court for Idaho. Joseph Tovar and Deborah Ann Moore, Tucson, Ariz., owners of the defunct Gallery Theater here, filed a $175 million civil rights lawsuit against the city, five city council members and a building inspector on the basis of a zoning decision against the adult theater. U.S. District Judge Marion Callister twice ruled for the city, but the federal circuit court twice overruled the Idaho judge. The city having spent about $74,000 in defending the case, the Citizens for Decency through Law, a Phoenix-based foundation, offered to carry an appeal to the Supreme Court. An attorney for the foundation, James J. Clancy of Los Angeles, filed the motion to the high court last June for a hearing of an appeal. However, the Supreme Court has refused to hear the case, because a request for a circuit court rehearing was not filed within a specified time period.

Boise firemen accept new contract

BOISE (AP) — Reluctant Boise firefighters have narrowly approved a two-year contract with the city calling for a 14 percent pay increase over the life of the pact. The Wednesday night vote was close as many union members were backing a 15 percent hike over the life of the contract, felt the city was inflexible during negotiations, union president Steve Hamilton said. But while Hamilton claimed the union compromised more than the city in the three-months of negotiations, he said the firemen endorsed the agreement because they did not want to strike. Their old contract expired Monday. Mayor Dick Eardley said the city had given as much as it could in the new agreement.

Surprise over delay in couple's arrest

By CAROLYN SKORNECK
The Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — In Los Angeles Soviet immigrant community, Svetlana Ogorodnik and her husband Nikolai stood out: pro-Soviet, anti-American and frequent visitors to the home of a Russian-language newspaper editor said.

So it came as no surprise to some people in the community when the couple was arrested Wednesday with veteran FBI Special Agent Richard W. Miller on charges they gathered U.S. intelligence data on behalf of the Soviet Union.

An FBI affidavit identified Mrs. Ogorodnik as a major in the KGB, the Soviet secret police, and intelligence agency.

"We're just surprised if took so long to arrest these people," said Alexander Polovets, editor of a Russian-language newspaper Fairfax.

"It's no surprise," said Isaac Greenblatt, 55, who emigrated from the Soviet Union in 1978. "From Russia, came a lot of people. I don't know what kind of people. Some people like the U.S. regime. Some are KGB."

The FBI said the couple was born in the Soviet Union, came to the United States in 1973 and were receiving welfare payments when they were arrested and held without bail. They resided in the Fairfax area, home to about 30,000 Soviet emigres.

"Everybody knew there were very strange activities" at the couple's apartment in a run-down, three-story stucco building on Gardner Street in

SVELTANA OGORODNIKOV
Alleged spy 'stood out'

West Hollywood, said Polovets, who wrote stories on the couple in 1981 and 1983.

Wednesday afternoon, sandals and a boy's tennis shoes were strewn on one side of the apartment's broken screen door and Russian-language newspapers and magazines were stacked on the other.

"Their behavior was like they were special representatives of the Soviet government," Polovets said. "They used to show Soviet films. How did they get these pictures? During the shows, they distributed the Soviet magazines made for Russian immigrants. Clear propaganda."

"We were surprised that people were allowed to be so pro-Soviet and anti-American," Polovets said. "But we thought that, well, this is a free country."

In addition, he said the couple traveled frequently to the Soviet Union and that their son Matthew, 13, "was sent to Pioneer Camp in Artek in Yalta. People with very special privileges can send their kids there."

He said he was surprised that the two might be spies because, "I don't think they're smart enough to be KGB agents. They were doing everything so openly."

Ogorodnik was a seven-year employee of Hoffman Bros. Meat Packing Co., earning about $2,000 a month, according to records filed with Los Angeles County Superior Court.

Richard Bretzing, special agent in charge of the Los Angeles FBI office, said Mrs. Ogorodnik worked as a day nurse, but neighbors said she was a housewife who only talked about being a nurse.

The court records showed Mrs.

Ogorodnik received $424 a month in county welfare payments and that the couple sued Ogorodnik in June 1983 to recover some welfare money the couple received for Matthew.

Some emigres expressed concern that the arrests could focus hostility on other Soviet immigrants. They recalled the embattled feeling triggered when Police Chief Daryl Gates suggested in January 1982 that the Soviet government might be smuggling in spies under the guise of being Soviet Jews, a ploy that apparently was not used for this couple.

"All the Russian community in Los Angeles worries about this," said Alexander Shklovsky, 35, an engineer who has been in the United States since 1978. "It's going to affect public reaction to our being here."

"Most Americans would understand that it's not all Russians are like that," Shklovsky said. "If intelligent enough, you realize you can find a couple of people anywhere who would sell themselves for a pile of dollars."

Accused spy attended BYU

PROVO, Utah (AP) — An FBI agent arrested in California on espionage charges graduated from Brigham Young University, said BYU spokesman Paul Richards.

Los Angeles-based Special Agent Richard W. Miller, 47, a 20-year FBI veteran said to have been in financial trouble, was the first FBI agent ever charged with espionage.

Richards said Miller was a transfer student from Compton Junior College in California and attended BYU from 1961 to May 1963, when he graduated with a bachelor's degree in Spanish with an English minor.

BYU is owned and operated by the Mormon Church, and Richards said Miller was a member of the church at that time. But church spokesman Jerry Cahill in Salt Lake City said Miller's name does not now appear on church records.

California 'high tech' lures spies

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Some people move to California for the sunny weather and relaxed lifestyle, but it's the state's concentration of high-tech defense firms — the greatest in the nation — that attracts spies.

Northern California and its Silicon Valley computer industry is a center of industrial as well as foreign spying, while Southern California is favored by foreign spies, said a West Coast defense analyst who asked not to be identified because his firm does military research.

"From Vandenberg Air Force Base to San Diego, from Edwards Air Force Base to the ocean, you have the bulk of the leading edge of the aircraft and space industry located here, so this is prime hunting grounds for espionage," the analyst said.

Southern California has "over 3,000 companies performing some type of classified government work," FBI spokesman John Hoos said. "It's probably the richest piece of real estate in the country as far as technology being developed. That's why foreign, hostile intelligence services are interested."

Air Force spokesman Paul Sewell said California has the nation's largest concentration of military employees and contracts, with 14.3 percent of all Defense Department uniformed and civilian employees based in the state and estimated fiscal 1985 defense expenditures of $28.8 billion.

On Wednesday, the "annals of California spy cases grew with the arrest by the FBI of its own employees, Richard W. Miller, 47. The FBI accused him of selling secrets about U.S. intelligence activities to a female Soviet-KGB major. Also arrested were the woman and her husband, who both were born in the Soviet Union and moved to the United States in 1973.

The California arrests came on the heels of two other espionage arrests, one in Washington and one in New York, on Tuesday. Associate Attorney General Lowell Jensen in Washington said the three cases in one week "may mark some kind of a record."

"The most notorious California spy case" involved Christopher Boyce, a lifetime employee of TRW Systems Group in Redondo Beach, who was arrested in 1977 after selling secrets to Soviet agents in Mexico City. He was sentenced to 40 years in prison, escaped, robbed banks and was sentenced to another 28 years in prison after he was caught in Washington state in 1981.

Boyce's exploits were detailed in the book "The Falcon and the Snowman." A movie version is due for release next year.

A more recent case involved James Harper, a former Silicon Valley consulting engineer. He pleaded guilty in April to conspiring to sell missile secrets to Polish agents, who delivered the information to the KGB. Harper was sentenced to life in prison.

Harper implicated Silicon Valley entrepreneur William Bell Hugel, 59. An FBI affidavit said Hugel introduced Harper to Polish agents in 1978. Hugel has not been charged with any crime. His lawyer says he believes Hugel is a target of a federal grand jury that has been meeting since October.

Car-bomb explodes outside embassy

By ALEX EFTY
The Associated Press

NICOSIA, Cyprus — A bomb-laden rental car exploded Thursday in the unguarded parking lot of a building housing the Israeli Embassy in Cyprus, and a pro-Syrian PLO guerrilla group later claimed responsibility for the blast.

Officials reported no casualties and said the explosion caused little damage.

Police said one Arab was detained for questioning and another, identified only as an Algerian who rented the Honda Civic in Nicosia on Saturday, was being sought. Police refused to give the Arabs' names.

A communique issued in Damascus, Syria, by Col. Saed Moussa, head of the Fatah faction opposed to PLO chairman Yasser Arafat, said, "One of our units operating abroad blew up the Israeli Embassy in Nicosia."

Moussa vowed to continue striking "against Israeli targets wherever they may be."

The Palestinian Liberation Organization office in Nicosia had said earlier that the bombing was arranged by Israeli agents to harm relations between authorities in Nicosia and the PLO.

The bombing was in many ways similar to a blast that sprung outside the Israel Airways office in Nicosia. The PLO blamed Israel then, too.

The bomb-laden Honda Civic was apparently parked in the lot during the night. The explosion, shortly after 11 p.m., shattered windows in the neighborhood and all but shredded the small car, sending chunks of twisted metal into the air.

Although no one was reported injured, Andreas Violaris, a Greek

Police search a wrecked car which exploded by a building housing the Israeli Embassy

Cyprus, told reporters he had just driven out of the parking lot when the bomb went off. "I probably escaped death by a minute," he said.

After the blast, crowds of shoppers scattered in panic as thick clouds of black smoke poured from the parking lot, and fire engines and police cordoned off the street within minutes. Explosives experts searched a half-dozen cars, several shops and apartments, but found no bombs.

A police statement said the explosion was caused by plastic explosive attached to two gas cylinders with a timing device in the car's trunk. The blast might have been worse, but the gas cylinders failed to explode, the statement said. Authorities said there was little structural damage to the back of the six-story Matina building, which adjoins the open parking lot. The lot is large enough for about 20 cars.

Police said there was no damage to the Israeli Embassy, which occupies the two top floors of the building on Makarios Avenue, the capital's main shopping and business street.

The front entrance to the building, leading to a hall and an elevator to the upper floors, is constantly guarded by armed Cyprus police. All foreign diplomatic missions in Nicosia have been under 24-hour police guard since Palestinian guerrillas attacked and blew up the residence of the Israeli ambassador in 1973.

Armed Israeli guards are constantly on duty outside the heavy iron entrance door to the fifth floor apartment leading to the Embassy. The building's back entrance, opening directly onto the parking lot, is guarded only during the night, however, according to neighbors who said they often leave their cars in the lot overnight.

Diver stumbles upon uranium in French freighter

Last batch of radioactive cargo found

OSTEND, Belgium (AP) — A diver on Thursday stumbled upon the last container of uranium hexafluoride trapped in the wreck of a French freighter, ending a six-week search for the radioactive cargo.

Divers had been plumbing the depths for the 15-ton cylinder since Saturday, when all but the last of such barrels had been retrieved from the freighter Mont Louis. The vessel sank Aug. 25 after colliding with a North Sea passenger ferry.

The final container was retrieved Thursday after it was found by a Dutch diver. He had first unsuccessfully searched the forward section of the ship's hull, the spot where the yellow cylinder was believed to be, loose from its chains and hidden by a mass of other cargo.

When he could not find it, the unidentified diver swam six to nine feet up inside the hull, where he bumped into an unexpected object. It proved to be the container he sought — undamaged and neatly attached to its chains exactly where it had been placed when the ship was loaded.

The discovery was described by Paul Goris, a senior official of Belgian Union de Remorquage et de Sauvetage, the company that handled the retrieval operation with the Dutch salvage company Smit Tak.

"I was not myself on the spot at the time," Goris said. "But I can imagine the excitement. We are all relieved. We were getting nervous."

Workers began the search and retrieval operation soon after the 4,210-ton Mont Louis sank 12 miles off Ostend. But inclement weather and high waves often delayed the effort.

At low tide, the ship could be seen resting on its starboard side in about 46 feet of water. Strong waves three weeks ago broke the ship apart, piling up its 30 uranium hexafluoride containers, empty barrels, steel pipes, crates and other assorted cargo in a mess through which divers had to find their way.

In addition, the shallow waters of the area are so filled with sand that visibility is practically zero and spotlights are virtually useless.

When the Mont Louis went down, its radioactive cargo was not disclosed.

Greece firm on plane's goal

ATHENS, Greece (AP) — Greece did not approve of the Soviet Union's downing of a South Korean jetliner, but remains convinced the plane was on a CIA spy mission, a government spokesman said Thursday.

Socialist Premier Andreas Papandreu told members of Parliament from his ruling Panhellenic Socialist Movement on Wednesday that "it's a given fact that the jumbo was on a spy mission for the American CIA and it really did violate Soviet air space for clandestine purposes."

Government spokesman Dimitri Maroudas told reporters Thursday that Papandreu's statement was made on the basis of reports in the U.S. and British media.

"His statement doesn't mean that he approved the downing of the plane," Maroudas said. He added that the Greek government continues to believe the plane was on a spy mission.

In Washington, Pentagon spokesman Michael Burch described Papandreu's accusation as "a completely irresponsible statement by the government."

A Soviet warplane shot down the Korean Air Lines Boeing 747 over Soviet territory last Sept. 1, killing all 289 people aboard.

Letters with Marilyn Monroe's signature on auction block

By ARNOLD ZEITLIN
The Associated Press

BOSTON — "The body is meant to be seen, not all covered up," says a note under the signature of movie star Marilyn Monroe, written in response to a query about posing in the nude.

That sentiment was worth $2,600 to an unidentified bidder Wednesday night as autographs and letters from the late sex symbol were put on the auction block along with the correspondence of former presidents and noblemen.

A letter by President Zachary Taylor dated May 19, 1850, discussing U.S. hostages in Cuba, drew the highest bid at $3,500. Close behind at $3,000 was a letter written by former President John Adams in 1817 regarding the settlement of slaves in what would later become the West African republic of Liberia.

Auctioned along with two letters from Miss Monroe was her high school yearbook — signed Norma Jean Baker, her pre-stardom name — for $1,500.

The Chieftain yearbook from University High School in West Los Angeles was the first known Marilyn Monroe high school artifact on the autograph market, according to Herman Darvik, president of the Universal Autograph Collectors Club.

The two Monroe letters up for auction were undated. Darvik, an autograph specialist from Rockville Center, N.Y., placed them around the mid-1950s.

Ms. Monroe died at age 36 from an overdose of sleeping pills in 1962, but as pop singer Elton John noted in the song "Goodbye Norma Jean," "Your candle burned out long before your legend ever did."

Darvik said Miss Monroe "is way above all movie stars for autograph prices. The prices at the auction were way too much for anything normal, but anything to do with Marilyn Monroe is not normal. She has a cult following and she has become more legendary as the years go by."

An unidentified mail bidder bought the two Monroe-signed, typewritten letters, which were listed in the auction catalogue between items from President James Monroe and John Montagu, the Fourth Earl of Sandwich, said Barry Hoffman, an associate of the Boston auction firm Daniel F. Kelleher Co. Inc.

Both Monroe letters were written to Dennis

Slark, who was not identified.

"You asked me about posing nude for photos or in the movies," said one letter, in which the word "think" was mis-typed. "I do not mind really as I think the body is meant to be seen not all covered up."

Referring to a seeking souvenirs, the second letter said, "You know people wanting your old clothes, jewelry, etc., is kind of funny, since I remember when just eating two meals a day was a treat."

Hoffman did not disclose the names of buyers at the invitation-only sale.

Boy shot in ambush for thieves

WESLACO, Texas (AP) — An 11-year-old boy was in critical condition Thursday after being shot eight times by a man "dressed in camouflaged clothing and ready to go to war" who left electronic equipment out in the open to lure hunters, police said.

The unidentified gunman was fed up with a rash of burglaries at a South Texas trailer park about 20 miles west of Harlingen and decided Wednesday to do something about them, police said.

Hidalgo County Sheriff's Capt. John Lara said the man put electronic gear including two televisions and stereo equipment in plain view of a road about 1,000 yards from the trailer park and then hid nearby.

Then a vehicle in which the boy, his father, and two other people were riding pulled up, Lara said.

"Apparently, there was no attempt by them to get near the property," Lara said. "The guy just opened fire on them without warning."

Lara said the occupants of the vehicle began running when the shooting started. The shotgun was loaded with buckshot about the size of a .32-caliber shell, he added.

The 48-year-old gunman, who had a shotgun and a .44-caliber Magnum, remained in Hidalgo County Jail Thursday and was to be charged with aggravated assault, said Lara.

The boy was listed in critical condition in the intensive care unit of Knapp Memorial Hospital after undergoing surgery, a hospital spokeswoman said. He had eight distinct gunshot wounds in his torso, including supervisor Aurora Guerrero said.

Police and hospital officials refused to release the boy's name.

Lara said a series of burglaries had occurred at the trailer park this week, and a police officer had investigated one attempted break-in there Tuesday, but officers knew nothing of the man's stakeout.

Man misses hearing for sentencing

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Jon C. Vasiliopoulos failed to appear in 3rd District Court to be sentenced for a multimillion-dollar diamond scam, and a bench warrant was issued for his arrest.

Vasiliopoulos, 28, failed to show up Wednesday for sentencing on three felony counts of theft by deception, and Judge Homer F. Wilkinson issued a warrant for his arrest.

Meanwhile, police said Vasiliopoulos was being investigated in the bad-check purchase in Colorado of three Ferrari sports cars — valued at almost $200,000.

It was the third time Vasiliopoulos failed to appear for sentencing. Defense lawyer Ronald Yengich told the court Tuesday that Vasiliopoulos was in a Las Vegas hospital suffering from a severe stomach ailment and would appear Wednesday.

When Vasiliopoulos failed to appear Wednesday morning, defense attorney Stephen R. McCaughey said he had checked out of the hospital and was en route to Salt Lake City. The judge said the defendant had until 2 p.m. before the warrant would be issued.

Vasiliopoulos pleaded guilty last February to two third-degree felony counts of theft by deception and one second-degree felony count of theft by deception for running a scheme in which he sold the same diamonds over and over again to different buyers.

Special Assistant Attorney general Craig Barlow said if Vasiliopoulos continued to avoid sentencing, the state could try him on 14 other felony counts that were to have been dismissed, or a $12,000 cash and property bond could be revoked.

This could result in his attorneys' losing their fee, as his house has been offered as payment for their services, McCaughey said.

As many as 3,000 investors are believed to have been bilked out of $12.5 million before Vasiliopoulos' arrest in 1981. Investors promised up to 50 percent return, put up amounts ranging from $1,000 to about $150,000.

Guitar music on slate

TWIN FALLS — Classical guitarist Gordon Rowland will present a musical program of Baroque, Spanish and modern guitar music Saturday at 8 p.m. at the Renaissance Academy of the Arts in Twin Falls. Rowland's program will include selections from Bach, Beethoven and Spanish guitar composers, as well as his own compositions.

The guitarist is especially courageous in translating music from the great classical masters, which were meant for instruments of the symphony, to his guitar, says critics. "But this is nothing new to Rowland, who is now director of The Northwest Guitar School in Boise and a member of the music faculty of the College of Idaho in Caldwell.

The guitarist has also authored a method book in three volumes and is listed in "Who's Who in Music International."

Rowland began guitar studies at the age of 12 with Charles Cox and Flaminio guitarist Fred Pierce. After attending the University of Idaho and Boise State University, he studied with such guitarists as Oscar Ghiglia, Christopher Parkening and Michael Lorrimer. His first major composition, "A Suite in a Minor" was finished while still in his teens. "Salmon River Suite" (descriptive of his 1974 wilderness hermitage) and "Suite for Five Ladies" are contained in his first album, "Rowland Plays Rowland." He has also finished "The Family Album" which is yet to be released. Tickets are $5 adults, $3 senior citizens and students.

Photos capture old miners

MOSCOW — The rich history of northern Idaho's Silver Valley is vividly recounted through the pictures of pioneer photographers Nellie Stockbridge and T.N. Barnard in the recently published "Mining Town," by Patricia Hart and Ivar Nelson.

From the thousands of glass plate negatives in the Barnard-Stockbridge collection, the authors have chosen 107 photographs, which they thoroughly describe in the context of the regional and national history which they portray.

The photographs, taken over the span of 80 years, document the transformation of a rowdy mining town to a settled community. In the space of one generation, Barnard and Stockbridge saw gold rush prospectors and canvas-roofed stores give way to wealthy mining magnates and retail chains, gold panning replaced by machine drilling, and prostitutes in "female boarding houses" supplanted (although never completely) by nuns and Sunday school picnics.

"Mining Town" also depicts one of the most dramatic class conflicts of American history — the power struggle between the organized workers of the Western Federation of Miners, and the mine owners. For 10 years both sides waged a hard and sometimes bloody battle, with the unions blowing up mills and the mine owners employing Pinkerton spies.

After that violent decade, the wealthy Coeur d'Alene mining district quieted down but remained sufficiently isolated in its mountain valleys to retain the flavor in this photographic history of what is still today the world's largest producer of silver.

"Mining Town" is published by the University of Washington Press in association with the Idaho State Historical society. It is available for $24.95 plus $1 postage from North Country Book Express, Box 9221, Moscow, 83843, or from local bookstores.

Institute's folklife program gets grant to develop through region

By DAVE LEWIS
Times-News writer

SUN VALLEY — The regional folklife program of the Institute of the American West has received a grant to help establish itself throughout the West.

The "advancement" grant from the National Endowment for the Arts could provide up to $85,000 during the next three years of the development of the program that began this year.

The institute was one of 36 organizations in the United States to get the grants said Frank Holsclot, chairman of the National Endowment, when the grants were announced.

Nearly 300 applicants competed for the grants that are meant to encourage cultural organizations to reach financial stability and artistic quality.

The institute — the humanities division of the Sun Valley Center for the Arts and Humanities, was the only organization in the Rocky Mountain region to get one of the grants.

"We are working toward our area becoming a center for folk arts of the West. The advancement grant will help greatly in this effort," said Hal Cannon, director of the folk life program.

The institute hired Cannon earlier this year to develop the regional program to coordinate the folk art programs of the Western states, especially those folk arts that may cross state boundaries.

The first project for the program is the Cowboy Poetry Gathering in Elko, Nev., in January 1985.

The advancement grant provides the institute with a year of development with specialists to build a management plan and a fund-raising plan. In the next two years, the institute will put the plans to work.

Easton expands with new album

By DENNIS HUNT
The Los Angeles Times

SHEENA EASTON
She likes chocolate, too.

HOLLYWOOD — Mention chocolate to Sheena Easton: the diminutive Scottish pop singer, and her light-up-just-the-thought-of-it is an instant high for her. "Chocolate," she purred, as if reciting the name of a cherished lover. "If it wasn't bad for you, I could eat tons of it a day. When I think about it, candy bars, hot chocolate ... and then there's the chocolate-ice cream. Chocolate chip ice cream. Ohhh chocolate is my favorite thing in the whole world."

Her rapture faded. She looked longingly at her glass of mineral water on the table in the restaurant lounge, probably wishing it were hot chocolate.

It was an amusingly offbeat interlude in an afternoon interview that wandered all over the place, skimming through a maze of topics. Part of it focused on business: her new album, "A Private Heaven," and her current — Top 40 — single, "Strut."

Another part examined some of the positive and negative effects of her life in the limelight.

"Usually, Easton is veering in a different direction. Unlike her other EMI America albums, "A Private Heaven" is oriented, featuring dance music, power-rock ballads, and some punchy but softer-toned rock (she is closer to Olivia Newton-John than Pat Benatar).

This shift of focus, away from the straight pop ballads, began on her last album, "Best Kept Secret," which she considers a transition work. "Telephone," the frothy Top 10 single from that album, telegraphed what was coming in this album.

"This is the younger album I've ever done," she noted proudly. "It's like coming out of the closet. The whole album is on a much higher energy level, which makes it sound more youthful. It's more into dance and rock and new wave. The bulk of my audience is in the 18-35 range. I'm not trying to do that anymore, but some people think I'm turning away from that base audience with this album. I want the younger people too. With this album, my audience will start at 14 and 15."

The album's most startling single is "Sweat," which not only has a distinct "80s" feel but also ventures into rap. "It's tongue-in-cheek," Easton chuckled. "Do I look like a hard-core rapper? Be serious."

Why, after four albums, is she turning her back on her staple: the straight pop ballad? "It's something I've wanted to do for a long time," she said. "My tastes are evolving. I like youthful music, like Billy Idol and the Rhythmites. So why shouldn't I sing younger music? I'm not an old lady. I'm still only 25. I'm allowing myself to be young for a change. Youth is coming through in the music."

"Sure it's taking a chance, but I figure I've already survived five years, so chances are I'll be around for a while. So if this is what I want to do, why not take the chance? I do very well on the album."

No, just fairly well. Since Easton is largely exploring new territory, some of her vocals are tentative. Often her voice, long associated with straight pop, seems out of the place in the flashier, hipper rock surroundings. It may take another album for her to feel at home on this new turf.

At five feet and chily attired, Easton looked like a sultry, sophisticated pixie. Part of her charm is her lulling Scottish accent. Spending so much time in America in the last few years — living both in London and in Hidden Hills, north of Los Angeles — her accent has softened. Since my first interview with her, early in 1981, her Scottish accent has become Americanized.

Back then, she was only 21, visiting America in the first time. She was suddenly in demand because of the hit single, "Morning Train," from her first EMI album. Then she was only a promising singer. Later that year, her Top 10 single of "For Your Eyes Only" made her a star.

In those days, she was somewhat hard-boiled and very confident. She disagreed. "No, I was overconfident. I was a cocky young thing. Everything I did turned to gold at first. One day I was a nobody, the next day I was very popular. I hadn't tasted defeat. I probably thought I never would."

In the next few years, Easton was zapped by reality. She had some hit records, but there were flop too. "Failures are part of the business," she said. "I've learned that somewhat. It's a hard lesson. I'm still not used to failure."

How does she deal with it?

"I get extremely depressed," she replied. "I sit down and tell myself, 'Oh God, my career is over; I'll never work again; everybody hates me.' That can last for two or three weeks. People tell me I'm wrong but I say, 'No, I'm finished.' I really believe at the time, I'm impossible at those times. I'm not a nice person to be around."

The antidote to depression about failure is a dose of success. "I may get a call that a record of mine is doing well in some country," she said. "That will make me feel good. Or I'll do a concert or a TV show and that will raise my spirits. I'm not a naturally depressed person. I don't like being depressed. I fight my way out of it."

Easton admitted that she still gets depressed when one of her albums or singles slips down the pop charts. "I don't care how high it gets — Top 20, Top 10, Top 5 — I always get depressed the first week it drops. I'm shattered for a least a day. I just can't help it. All the anticipation and fun of wondering whether it will go higher is over. Then it starts to drop down the charts. I feel like something is crashing down on me."

"This happens to me. It's something that say you're good at what you do. It's like the little kid in me looking for a gold star. When a record is high on the charts, I feel great. It's validation. When it drops, I drop."

Though she has not conquered depression, Easton has made progress in handling stress. She claims that she is calmer than she was as a rookie star.

"I had an ulcer when I was 21, from all the work and the pressure which made me not eat properly," she recalled. "I'm healthy now. I take things a little easier. I don't get so obsessed by things any more. In comparison, I'm relatively calm these days."

Probably her least favorite of her qualities is her lack of patience and tolerance. "I'm not a patient person," she admitted. "The thing that really sets me off is inefficiency and carelessness. I'm very demanding. I'm patient as long as I'm sure the person is giving 100 percent. Part of it is that I'm always striving for perfection. That's how you last in this business."

Easton admitted that, even in the best of times, she is plagued by a gnawing fear about her career: "There's always the feeling that this whole thing — the popularity, the money — will be over. I can never really relax. That fear is always there, just around the corner or lurking around the corner. I'm used to it. I don't know how I'd live without it. In a way, it keeps me going."

Audience included in crime mystery

LOS ANGELES (AP) — If you like to solve mysteries, the show for you might be NBC's "Scene of the Crime."

Orson Welles will be the host of the two-part program, in which the audience will be asked to participate in solving a murder mystery and figuring out the twist ending to a dramatic suspense story.

A first look at the show was offered Sept. 30, but NBC is considering making it a midseason replacement.

NBC Entertainment president Brandon Tartikoff calls it "the first interactive mystery show on television." Well, not quite.

Last March NBC had a show called "You Are the Jury," in which the audience was asked to telephone in their decision on the verdict. And in 1959 Ed McMahon was the host of "Whodunnit," a quiz show in which short mysteries were presented for three contestants and a panel of experts to solve.

"The Complete Director to Prime Time TV Shows" lists among other similar shows: "Stand By for Crime," 1949; "Chicagoand Mystery Players," 1949; and "Crawford Mystery Theatre," 1951.

Daily Horoscope

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Your hopes and wishes are now more progressive and original while at the same time you want to get them to operate on very practical bases so be sure you look at both sides.

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Some new idea is fascinating for you, but be sure you can fit it into your present set-up.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Come out with your aims and ambitions, but find more up-to-date ways of attaining them. Take no risks where money is concerned.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) A new school of philosophy may seem ideal, but make sure it can be put to practical use. Take it easy tonight.

MOON CHILD (June 22 to July 21) Although your ideas are good in business affairs, it would be well to get advice from others, also.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Talk over needed changes in any contracts, but remain steadfast to the original plan you have made, and be practical with associates.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Have a more up-to-date system where your work is concerned and get better results. Do not lose your temper with anyone.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Plan negotiations you like in the morning and be sure to include family in future ones. Be happy at home with kin in the evening.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Don't try to stop kin from doing what they please just because you may be unhappy. Cheer up.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Don't permit a secret worry to keep you from carrying through with the advice of a successful person in business.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) A widow friend might try to con you in some way, if you permit, so keep busy at whatever is constructive, and avoid it.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Don't permit one in high position to misdirect you in some financial affair. Get busy on what you personally want to do.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to March 20) Study that new agreement well and be sure it has no holes in it and carry on with projects that are profitable.

IF YOU'RE CHILD-15-BORN-TO-DAY, he or she will be very dynamic and progressive-thinking. (It would be unwise to teach to do things in the old-fashioned way.) Good spiritual training is essential. A lover of music here.

'Messiah' solo auditions slated

TWIN FALLS — Auditions for baritone, tenor, alto and soprano solo parts for Handel's "Messiah" will be held at 2 p.m. Oct. 21, in the Fine Arts Center at the College of Southern Idaho.

The production, in commemoration of George Friderick Handel's 300th anniversary, will be performed at 8 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 16, by the 120-voice Magic Valley Chorus. The work, which will be presented as an audience sing-along, will be accompanied by a full orchestra and will be directed by Carson Wong.

Qualifications of the soloists include the ability to sing all of the solos well, and ability to perform them with a degree of musicianship with a minimum of rehearsal time with the orchestra. Auditioners should also be able to project his or her voice in such a manner that it will be heard over the orchestra.

Travel expenses will be paid for the rehearsal at 7:30 p.m. Dec. 13, and the dress rehearsal at 6 p.m. Dec. 16.

Individuals wishing to audition should contact Wong at 733-9554, extension 268, to schedule an appointment.

Ballet to kick off arts series

GLENN'S FERRY — The annual Mountain Home Performing Arts Series kicks off this year with the American Festival Ballet Oct. 16.

The dance troupe will be performing choreographed pieces from the opera, "Carmen" as well as a shorter excerpt from "Sleeping Beauty."

On Nov. 15, the Boise Philharmonic will be in town to perform works by Bach, Rachmaninoff and Shostakovich.

And on Feb. 16, the Missoula Children's Theater will present the stage production of "The Wizard of Oz."

As many as 200 local children will be used as extras in the play.

March 30 will bring the arrival of the Denver Center Theater to Mountain Home to present an original musical, "Quilters" which also debuts this year at the Kennedy Center in Washington, D.C.

The final performance of the season will be the Boise Philharmonic, returning again on April 23 to present a family program of orchestral music that will include such favorites as "Peter and the Wolf" and "The Sorcerer's Apprentice."

Sher Sellman, MHA's president, says this year's programs are no exception to the quality programs presented during the series in past years.

Patron tickets, which include special seating and patron and business listings on each of the five performance programs, are on sale now, said Sellman.

Carma and Tim Miller

Clarke-Miller

TWIN FALLS — Carma Ann Clarke and R. Tim Miller were united in marriage in a candlelight ceremony Aug. 10 at St. Edward's Catholic Church in Twin Falls.

The Rev. Perry Dodds officiated with Jeff and Larry Nelson as altar servers, Ruth Sutzman as organist and Terry Row and Harold Shelton as soloists.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Clarke, Hansen, and the bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Joe Miller, Twin Falls.

Lindy Clarke, sister-in-law of the bride, was matron of honor. Mary Miller, sister of the groom, was maid of honor. Nikki Panatopoulos and Elva Harris were bridesmaids. Carle and Jacque Buckley, nieces of the groom, were flower girls.

Devon Mills was best man. Groomsman included Alan Clarke, brother of the bride, Jack Buckley, brother-in-law of the groom, and Tom Boehky. Alan Clarke Jr., nephew of the bride, was ringbearer.

Julie Gardner was guestbook attendant. Allison Whitney, Brandie Mildon and Rose Evans, sister of the groom, handled gifts.

Mrs. George McGregor, grandmother of the bridegroom, Mrs. Paul Corder, grandmother of the bride, and Sandie Nelson, godmother of the bride, were special guests.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the parish hall with Debbie Snow, Mary Dodson, Sandie Nelson and Betty Crawford serving.

After a trip to Glacier National Park, the couple resides in Twin Falls where the bridegroom is employed by the Twin Falls police department.

Denise and William Hart

Darr-Hart

TWIN FALLS — Denise Ann Darr became the bride of William Stephen Hart July 7 at Our Lady of Fatima Catholic Church in Lakewood, Colo.

Rev. Reuben Payo officiated with Adele Pierson as soloist and Robert Shaver providing music.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Darr, Wheatridge, Colo., and the bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Allen Hart, Hagerman.

Diane Elio was matron of honor for her sister. Heidi Babkiewicz, Adele Pierson, Sandy Shaver, Linda Stout, Joan Taylor and Maureen Weatherly were bridesmaids. Hillatrice Taylor, niece-of-the-bridegroom, was flower girl.

Dave Stout was best man. Craig Darr, Bill Davis, Jeff Kayler, Henry Taylor, Lynn Tomninga and Bruce Connery were groomsman. Jess Bauges, Tom Bishop and Doug Zander were ushers.

Kathleen Darr, cousin of the bride, attended the guest book. A reception was held at Rossi's Center in Denver, following the ceremony. The couple also held an open house at their home in Twin Falls Aug. 11.

Following a trip to Seattle and British Columbia, Canada, the couple resides in Twin Falls where the bride teaches second grade at Harrison Elementary School and the bridegroom is employed at Sinclair and Co.

Is sex the price paid for marriage?

DEAR ABBY: "Mismatched" said that her husband would be satisfied with sex three times a week, but twice a month was enough for her.

With all the frank talk about sex these days, I'm surprised "Mismatched" didn't know that men are every-nighters, and women are once-a-weekers.

Her grandmother could have told her that marriage is the price a man pays for sex, and sex is the price a woman pays for marriage.

GRANDMA: DEAR GRANDMA: "Mismatched" was not speaking for all women — only for herself. She didn't "know" that men are every-nighters and women are once-a-weekers because it's not a fact — it's hogwash that's been handed down from mother to daughter along with "No decent woman really enjoys sex; it's just something she has to put up with." Also, "Men need sex more often than women do."

Grandma, sexual appetites vary. Not all men are once-a-nighters; some are once-a-weekers, once-a-monthers, and some not-at-allers. Nor are all women once-a-weekers. Women range from once-a-nighters and once-a-weekers, to once-in-a-blue-mooners.

Furthermore, the person who says that marriage is the price a man pays for sex must have been unconscious for the last 25 years. It is not necessary for men to marry to obtain sex. And to say that sex is the price women pay for marriage labels all women as prostitutes.

Today's woman marries because she WANTS to — not because she needs a meal ticket. And women no longer submit to sex — they are equal partners. Get with it, Grandma!

DEAR ABBY: My parents divorced about a year ago. My father is very bitter, and asks me all sorts of questions about my mother's social life. (Who is she dating? What do they look like? What do they do?) I have met many of her dates, but I feel very uncomfortable — telling my father about them.

What should I do? — K. IN SAN DIEGO

DEAR K: Be honest. Tell him you feel very uncomfortable answering questions about your mother's social life, and you'd appreciate it if he didn't ask. And if he persists, repeat the above.

PG-13 Rating Introduced

A new rating category is in place as of July 1. This new category is inserted between the current PG and R ratings. It is designated as "PG-13." Parents are strongly cautioned to give special guidance for attendance of children under 13. Some material may be inappropriate for young children.

The revised five-category system of the voluntary film industry rating program is now as follows:

- PG: Parental guidance suggested. Some material may not be suitable for children.
  - PG-13: Parents are strongly cautioned to give special guidance for children under 13. Some material may be inappropriate for young children.
  - R: Restricted. Under-17 requires accompanying parent or adult guardian.
  - X: No one under 17 admitted.
- All films rated after July 1 will be given ratings under the new five-category system.

DEAR ABBY: How do you think a girl would feel receiving an engagement ring that had been the engagement ring of her fiancée's grandmother?

The grandmother is no longer living, and the girl never knew her. Except for sentimental value, the ring has very little value.

DEAR JUST: You are asking the wrong person. Ask the girl.

DEAR ABBY: What is your opinion of a wife who insists that each time I take a shower I wipe down the walls and glass doors in the shower?

Frankly, if it weren't for co-workers and customers, I wouldn't shower at all.

HENPECKED IN WISCONSIN DEAR HENPECKED: Somebody has to live up, so why not the person who made the mess?

And since you shower only out of consideration to co-workers and customers, it's obvious why your wife doesn't feel like doing anything for you. DEAR ABBY: Last year my daughter, who had just turned 12, did not want me to see her yearbook. We had some words about it, and when I looked at it I knew why she didn't want me to see it. A girlfriend had written something really obscene, so I called the girl's father and told him about it.

My husband writes to the school authorities and made a case out of it. This year just before the annuals came out, we won a school-wide vote requesting that parents carefully examine their children's yearbooks, and if we come across anything offensive, we should call the parents of the offending writers.

Samuel Saxon, new Murtaugh superintendent, says parental support of schools is essential to educational excellence

Involving parents in schools

Murtaugh's new superintendent wants to see participation

By DEAN S. MILLER
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The first line of educational responsibility is with parents, says Murtaugh's new superintendent of schools, Samuel A. Saxon. Saxon, whose mother earned her master's degree in education at the University of Florida in Gainesville when he was in high school, wrote his doctoral thesis on parent participation and student achievement.

"When parents and the school are working together, it's when the kids achieve the best and most," he says. Saxon, whose first day of work in Murtaugh was Tuesday, says the Murtaugh school "is a community school, more than any one I've seen."

The recent report of the President's Commission on Excellence in Education, titled "A Nation at Risk," recommends "some of the things these people have been doing all along. These people never lost sight of excellence as a goal," Saxon says.

As examples of excellence in the Murtaugh schools, Saxon said seven of nine graduating seniors from Murtaugh last year went to college. He referred to a list of Murtaugh graduates who have gone on to careers in law, banking, veterinary medicine, teaching, engineering and the opera.

Saxon, 48, was born in Albany, Ga., in 1936. He attended public elementary schools and was enrolled in the Gordon Military School in Barnstable, Ga.

He served a four-year hitch in the Air Force after high school before enrolling as an education major at the University of Florida in Gainesville.

Midway through his undergraduate career, Saxon transferred to LeGrange College in LeGrange, Ga., where he graduated in 1961 with a bachelor's degree in speech and drama.

Following his mother to Las Vegas, he earned his teaching certificate at the University of Nevada at Las Vegas in 1965.

Between 1965 and 1976, he worked as an elementary school teacher in the Clark County School District in Las Vegas while earning his master's degree in educational administration from Brigham Young University.

Saxon has also taken graduate courses in counseling at the University of Nevada, Las Vegas and at BYU.

In order to "immerse" himself in the year-round school situation in the Francis Howell School district, Saxon left BYU to be a school administrator in the Saint Louis suburb of Saint Charles, Mo.

Saxon's last school was almost 10 times larger than the Murtaugh school district.

"I prefer this, where it is possible for me to know the name of everyone," Saxon says.

Saxon calls Murtaugh a "sound, tight little district." Murtaugh is "in the black, we don't over-empower anybody," he said. "Because we are, we will be able to make decisions on the basis of what is educationally best, not what an economic pinch makes expedient."

Saxon says he is aware of the proposed consolidation of the Hansen, Kimberly and Murtaugh school districts, but does not know if he favors it. In keeping with his educational philosophy, Saxon said he would "urge the people to take into account parental support," when considering consolidation.

Study offers cost reduction in county jail

By HAL BERTON
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — A study by a Utah-based, criminal-justice consultant says a new Twin Falls County Jail could be built with only about 45 jail cells — less than half the minimum number of cells earlier thought necessary.

The study's recommendations, if adopted by county-contracted architects, could result in "substantial cost savings," says Twin Falls County Sheriff Jim Munn.

But the actual price tag on the new jail facility cannot be determined until the architects — Randy Green, Dana Larsen and Richard Heindel — draw up actual construction plans, Munn says.

The new facility is tentatively scheduled to be built at the former site of O'Leary Junior High School to replace the county's 73-year-old jail, which has been the target of several inmate lawsuits.

The jail study, which was submitted to the List of Murtaugh County Commissioners on Sept. 21 by Deland and Associates, recommends building a jail with 45 extra-large cells. As the jail population grew, a second bunk bed could be added to each cell to eventually double the facility's holding capacity, Munn said.

Even with the two-man occupancy, the cells would still be large enough to satisfy space requirements mandated by federal rulings, Deland wrote in a letter to the county commissioners.

Deland researched the report in August by gathering information from county and state officials on projected county population growth, employment statistics, sentencing philosophies and other pertinent statistics, says County Commissioner Judy Felton.

Felton said the report was paid for out of money from a grant by the National Institute of Corrections, a federally-funded, non-profit corporation headquartered in Boulder, Colo.

Felton said the commissioners decided to make the study after an April trip to a Boulder jail seminar convinced them that they didn't yet know enough about jail design to develop a bond proposal to finance its construction.

After the seminar, the commissioners realized that a proposed 100-to-150 cell jail would be a cost-effective solution. See JAIL on Page C2

Rupert woman has mobile home woes

By MICHELE SNYDER
Times-News correspondent

RUPERT — The Rupert City Council told a city property owner she needed permission from her nearby neighbors before she could move a mobile home onto her land.

Theresa Herrera asked the council Tuesday for permission to move a 1982, 14-foot-wide mobile home, belonging to Monica Nelbau, onto her property.

Nelbau, who will rent the land from Herrera, had been unsuccessful in her attempts to gain permission from 100 percent of the property owners within a 100-foot radius, it was noted.

One neighbor, Elsie Gular, told the council she objects to the trailer because of possible parking problems and because she was concerned it would lower the property value of her home.

Councilman Ron Klebe said the city has an ordinance requiring off-street parking for all residences.

Herrera noted improvements had been made on the property since she and her husband purchased it. She said the remains of a burned house had been removed and a new lawn had been planted.

Gular said even though it is well-cared for now, if the property and/or trailer were sold, "who would move in next?"

The council suggested Nelbau approach the nearby property owners and said it would allow the permit only if the neighbors' permission were obtained.

In other business: The council agreed to prod developer Glenn Walker to finish work on a 30-foot-long street in the Donna Glen subdivision.

Walker, it was reported, had signed an agreement with the city to put up bond and/or pave the street according to specifications, but had not yet done so.

It was noted that neighbors are anxious to get the street completed as they were told it would be.

The council determined that they would give Walker notice that he get the street finished "in a reasonable amount of time."

The council discussed how to solve the problem of Myrtle Kelly, whose stray animals have been a matter of controversy and conflict over the past several years. See RUPERT on Page C2

EPA takes permit action on trout farm pollution control

By HAL BERTON
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The Environmental Protection Agency has mailed final discharge permits to southern Idaho's commercial fish farm and ponds in a pollution-control action aimed at ending several years of regulatory chaos in the trout farm industry.

The new fish farm permits will establish maximum levels of suspended solids that the operators will be allowed to discharge into public waters. They will also require the development of waste management plans that use up-to-date pollution control technology.

Permits for the smaller, fish pond operations will require operators to develop management plans, but will not impose maximum discharge levels for suspended solids.

The permit standards will go into effect Oct. 29, unless individual trout operators request a hearing, said Harold Geren, a Seattle-based EPA official.

The new permits are the latest effort in EPA's more-than-a-decade-old attempt to regulate the trout farming industry under the guidelines set forth in the Clean Water Act.

An initial series of permits issued in 1974 were put together with little on-site study and state officials said, enforcement efforts were spotty.

By 1979, most of the initial permits had expired and the trout operations were left in a legal limbo. It was not until November 1982 that the EPA bothered to issue a compliance order to legalize the continued operation of the hatcheries and fish farms.

The new EPA permit system will be enforced by the state's Department of Health and Welfare, largely by inspector's operating out of the agency's Twin Falls office.

But at a June hearing, state health inspector Mike McMasters said his agency will not receive any increased funds to carry out the permit enforcement task.

Fish farm operators found guilty of negligently violating their permit requirements will face fines of not less than $2,500 per day of violation and prison terms of up to one year, according to Geren.

The final permits are similar to draft permits widely circulated among the trout farm industry earlier this summer. As a result of June hearings, however, several changes have been made.

These changes include an amendment that loosens the wording on chemical discharges. The draft permits prohibited "discharges of drugs and chemicals" into public waters,

'Republicans for Stallings' announces campaign plan

By RICK SHAUGHNESSY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Democratic congressional candidate Richard Stallings on Thursday unveiled the framework of a new organization through which he plans to promote open support for his candidacy by Republicans who refuse to support Rep. George Hansen — his opponent. Starting from a core of about 12 current or former Republican candidates, public officeholders or party officials and an undisclosed number of Republican party faithful, the Ricks College history professor estimates he will enlist the support of "200 to 300 vocal Republicans" by election day, Nov. 6.

Stallings, who missed unseating the seven-term incumbent in the 1982 election, says Hansen's well-known legal and financial problems have caused large numbers of Republicans to cross party lines to support this year's Democratic challenge.

Harry Deliaan, the former Republican prosecuting attorney of Twin Falls County, and Neil Weir, an active Jerome-County Republican who mounted a brief Republican primary campaign against Rep. Gordon Hollifield last spring, were the Magle Valley Republicans who appeared at a Twin Falls press conference, announcing the formation of the organization.

"I am not anti-George and this is not a movement to get George. This is pro-Stallings (and) pro-Idaho," said Deliaan, who earlier this year had undertaken legal research to determine whether Hansen's candidacy could be challenged on the basis of his felon status.

"We need someone who is more conciliatory... a worker, not a martyr," Deliaan said.

Weir said he is enlisting Republicans to participate in a newspaper ad featuring Republicans for Stallings. Weir said he has experienced mixed reactions to the proposal from the Republicans he has contacted.

"Some would prefer not to have their names used," he said of Republicans who support the Democrat over Hansen.

Stallings read one letter at the press conference from Challis-Republicans James R. Bennetts and Allen Getty. "We not only refuse to support Hansen, but wish to actively support you. Basically, we are not going to vote against George. We consider our vote(s) as being for Stallings," the letter stated.

"If you don't mind the support of conservative Republicans, would you please get some campaign material out to us," the letter stated.

Detroit's Wilcox adds reunion to tonight's pitching duties

DETROIT (AP) — As the only member of the 1967 Crooked Oak High School baseball team still active in the game, Mill Wilcox will bear an unusually heavy burden tonight.

Not only is Wilcox scheduled to pitch for the Detroit Tigers in Game 3 of the American League Championship Series against the Kansas City Royals, but he is expected to be the host for a hastily organized — but guaranteed rowdy — reunion of a bunch of his old Oklahoma buddies.

"Bo Hager and all the boys will be here," Wilcox said. "I just built a brand new house in the suburbs and they're all coming up to stay with me. They drove up for the first two games in Kansas City and they said they weren't about to watch my biggest game back home on television.

"I haven't seen some of those guys

AL playoffs

- (Detroit leads series, 2-0)
- Game 1, Tuesday — Detroit 8, Kansas City 1
  - Game 2, Wednesday — Detroit 5, Kansas City 3 (11 innings)
  - Game 3, today — at Detroit, 6:25 p.m.
  - Game 4, Saturday — at Detroit, 11 a.m., if necessary
  - Game 5, Sunday — at Detroit, 6:25 p.m., if necessary

since we played high school ball around Oklahoma City. It ought to be a wild time.

If Wilcox can beat the Royals, he and his pals won't be the only ones having a wild time.

Detroit natives have been waiting since 1967 for another shot at the World Series and they need only one more victory over the Royals to realize that dream.

The Tigers won the AL East Division title with a 104-58 record, the best in baseball this year. The Royals took the AL West with an 87-78 mark.

After beating the Royals twice at Kansas City, the Tigers need only one victory in three home games to clinch the pennant.

Game 3, which is scheduled for 6:25 p.m. MDT, will match Wilcox against Kansas City left-hander Charlie Leibrandt, who was 1-1 against Detroit while compiling an 11-7 record this season.

Wilcox, who was 1-1 against the Royals, enjoyed the best season of his long and checkered career in 1984, winning 17 games while losing only eight. The secret was that Wilcox, who has had a history of shoulder trouble, never completed one of the 33 games he started.

"I can't throw too many fastballs," Wilcox conceded. "What will get me in trouble, I'm more of a finesse pitcher now."

"I hope I can go seven strong innings, get a nice lead, and then turn it over to Willie Hernandez in the eighth."

Dan Petry had the same idea Wednesday night at Kansas City, but Hernandez was suffering from a slight strep throat and allowed the Royals to tie the score 3-3 in the eighth. The Tigers won the game 5-3 in the 11th, with Aurelio Lopez getting the victory over Royals' relief ace, Dan Quisenberry.

Because the extra-inning game ended so late, the Royals didn't arrive in Detroit until the wee hours Thursday, and Manager Dick Howser decided to cancel a scheduled 2 p.m. workout at Tiger Stadium, preferring, instead, to let his players get some rest.

"Tigers' Manager Sparky Anderson had planned all along to give his players the day off Thursday."

"We respect Kansas City," Wilcox said. "They survived the AL West and they can beat you in a lot of ways. They've played well, but you've kind of got to like our club now."

Wilcox pitched three innings for Anderson in a World Series game in the 1970 Cincinnati Reds, getting credit for a victory. He says, however, that he hardly remembers it.

Since then, Wilcox has been up and down between the big leagues and the minors, spending some time with the Cleveland Indians and Chicago Cubs. Since landing in Detroit in 1977, he has put together a 97-71 record while becoming only one of 10 pitchers in Tigers' history to win at least 10 games for seven consecutive seasons.

"This is by far the best of everything for me," Wilcox said. "The playoffs get you psyched up a little and I think you're going to see us go out and play good ball."

"Ever since spring training, Sparky has been telling us we're the best team in baseball and now we've got a chance to prove it."

If they do, Wilcox and his Crooked Oak buddies will have just that much more to celebrate.

League harrier finals today

IDAHO FALLS — Twin Falls may be able to challenge for the runner-up trophies but its chances of catching top-seeded Highland in the Gem State Conference cross country finals today are slim.

Coach Jerry Kleinkopf said Highland has proven over the past four weeks it is the team to beat in both the boys and girls divisions.

"I would say that Idaho Falls would be the logical choice to place second in both categories but I believe that Twin could challenge Idaho Falls," he said.

The Bruins' hopes for an individual winner apparently ride on the inexperienced shoulders of freshman Jenny Hannah.

"She hasn't won a race yet this year and I think most of that is simply because she isn't old enough to have the savvy and she's just out there for the sheer joy of running," Kleinkopf said. "She leads us in everything from the hill running to the 200s in speed work and consequently we don't have anyone she can learn from."

"But over the season she has beaten everyone at one time or another she'll be running against at Idaho Falls and she could win it," the coach said.

Twin Falls will end up its home season next Friday by hosting most of the A-1 schools from eastern and western Idaho in the Twin Falls Invitational at Canyon Springs Golf Course. That competition will begin with joyve races at 5 p.m.

Shoshone tops Gooding, nears Canyon crown

The Shoshone Indians moved to within a step of the Canyon Conference girls volleyball championship by topping visiting Gooding in a battle of league undefeated teams Thursday night.

The Shoshone got off to a fast start when Sharon Peterson came up with 18-point serve winners to pace a 15-8 victory. The second game was evenly fought, Gooding holding a 12-11 advantage when Shoshone's Patty O'Malley led things with four straight sets at 15-8 and 15-4 before the Pilots served. Julie Hibbert drew praise from Coach Larry Messick for her play.

Shoshone can clinch the title by beating Valley when those clubs meet in Hazelton next Thursday.

Shoshone took the preliminary 15-3, 10-15, 15-12.

Pilots tip Hagerman

CLARENCE FERRY — Glenns Ferry battled past Hagerman in the closing game to claim a non-conference victory.

The teams had split the first two sets at 15-8 and 15-4 before the Pilots won it 16-14 behind the net play of Cathy Johaneck.

Hagerman took the preliminary in straight sets.

Wendell topps Valley

WENDELL — The Wendell Trojans held the advantage at the net, defeating Valley 15-3, 9-15, 15-10 in a Canyon Conference game.

Alicia Harms had a good serving night for the winners.

Wendell will meet Gooding and Jerome in a double dual at 8:30 p.m. Tuesday.

Valley took the opener 15-6, 14-16,

15-3.

Kimberly downs Filer

FILER — The Kimberly Bulldogs, getting good serving from Dusty Anderson and Cindy Holcomb, downs Filer 15-6, 15-9.

The bright spot for Filer was the serving of Sandra Garey who, in the second game, had seven winners.

Gooding annihilates Wood River, 40-0

HAILEY — The Gooding Senators jumped on Wood River for 21 first-quarter points and rolled to a 40-0 non-conference victory Thursday night.

In running their record to 6-0, the Senators picked up two touchdowns from Denny Dally on runs of 37 and three yards while Steve Gibbs scored from 10 and five yards away. Don Kirtland, who booted four extra points, caught a short strike from Todd Simis for another Senators touchdown and Tim Anderson hit paydirt from 10 yards away.

The game was moved to Thursday due to teacher conferences at both schools.

Wood River splits runners win

HAILEY — The Wood River girls and Salmon boys collected team honors in a four-way cross country meet here Thursday.

Wood River topped Buhl 18-6 in the girls division while Salmon beat the Wolverines 34-4 in the boys category.

Wood River and Buhl will joined with other Southern Idaho teams Wednesday to run in the combined Cross State and South Central Idaho Conference championships in Jerome.

NL

Perhaps it was the change in venue, as much as Timperton's spark, that enlivened the Padres, winners of the NL West this season. Returning home after suffering in the unfriendly confines of Wrigley Field, the Padres played before the largest crowd ever at Jack Murphy Stadium, 63,846. The previous record was 52,134 set on July 4 this year against the Cubs.

As the starting lineups were announced, Timperton led the crowd in cheers, waving his hat and seeming to express the Padres' frustration as he called for fan support for his first division winner for San Diego.

Terry Kennedy, previously hitless in the playoffs, started the winning fifth-inning rally with a single. McReynolds, also hitless, singled, and Kennedy went to second. One out in left-center, and both runners scored easily.

Whitson then hopped out to second, and Alan Wiggins singled up the middle. He was thrown out trying to stretch the single, but Timperton scored, and San Diego led 3-1.

Tony Gwynn, who led the NL with a .351 batting average and had three hits on this night, started the sixth-inning with a single and went to second on a ground ball. Graig Nettles drove Gwynn home with a single and chased Eckersley. Kennedy singled off George Frazier, sending Nettles to second, and McReynolds, who had 20 homers during the season, followed with his homer to left on a 2-2 pitch.

Federals' franchise lands in Orlando

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Orlando businessman Donald Dizney said Thursday that he has reached a definitive agreement to purchase the Washington Federals of the United States Football League and move the club to Central Florida for the 1985 season.

USFL Commissioner Chet Simmons announced Thursday night that the league's executive committee approved Dizney's purchase.

"The purchase received the enthusiastic support of the committee and I recommended approval of the full ownership," Simmons said.

To add Don Dizney as an owner and Orlando as a franchise city for the USFL is a very positive step. It adds another strong football city to the league.

Simmons said approval by the league owners is expected on Monday.

The terms of the pending purchase were not announced during an afternoon news conference, but The Orlando Sentinel reported Dizney, chairman of the board of United Medical Corporation, will pay about $5 million for the struggling USFL franchise.

Youthful Vandals visit Nevada-Reno

By STEVE CRUMP Times-News sports editor

RENO, Nev. — Amazing. Last Saturday there were enough youngsters in starting roles in the University of Idaho football lineup to fill a Boy Scout troop. Still, the Vandals managed to throttle Oregon State of the Pac-10 Conference, 41-22.

The three previous weeks, with a more seasoned lineup, Idaho was 1-2. The good news, then, is that the Kibbles Korps will be intact when the Vandals challenge defending conference champion Nevada-Reno here Saturday.

None of the injured regulars, including quarterback Scott Linehan, will be on hand when the Vandals attempt to break a five-game losing streak against the 'Pack.

"I'd like to be able to bottle that game and keep it forever," says U of I Coach Dennis Erickson of the win over OSU. "We executed and we didn't turn the ball over. We controlled the ball and the young guys came through defensively and played extremely well."

Erickson is referring to household names like Dan McCanna, a 6-foot-1, 199-pound resistor strong safety who listed third on the Vandals' depth chart at the start of the season; Ron Crick, a 6-3, 205-pound junior defensive end (that's right, 205 pounds); and Eric Jorgensen, a 5-11, 154-pound sophomore wide receiver who was pressed into service as a nickel cornerback who listed fourth out of sheer necessity.

Idaho owed its 42 points to the likes of Rick Sloan, an obscure junior quarterback who followed his woe-filled debut against Montana State by completing 27 of 44 passes for 332 yards and two touchdowns. "It's a pretty good team," says UNR Coach Chris Ault. "The Oregon State game proved they can move the football."

RICK SLOAN Effective at QB last week

Moving the football against Reno, 2-2 this season, has been a particular problem for the Vandals. Last year Idaho went into the Reno game, which was played in the Kibbles Dome, with a 3-2 league record and a clear shot at the playoffs. The Wolf Pack won 43-24, picking quarterback Ken Hobar twice. Two years ago, in the final game of the season here, Idaho came in with a chance to win the Big Sky title. It lost 25-16, and Montana won the conference championship by default.

"The key to beating Reno is stopping their offense, and we haven't slowed them down in two years," says

Erickson. The line on Reno, a 37-12 loser to Boise State last year, is that the Wolf Pack ain't what it was a year ago. The statistics tend to support that view. UNR ranks fourth in the league in total offense, sixth in scoring offense. Defensively, Reno is surprising sixth overall — sixth in pass defense, seventh in rushing defense, and only seventh whose UNR has reasserted its traditional strength arm in rushing — Reno is generating 199 yards a game, best in the conference — and in placekicking, where freshman Martin Zendejas has kicked nine of 10 field goals he's tried this year, and leads the conference in scoring.

But Ault has an explanation. "We've got a young defense this year — seven kids — and they're still making mistakes," he says. "I see a lot of improvement, though: They played much better against Northern Arizona last week (a game the Pack won 37-20) than they did in the Boise State game."

Ault's philosophy is to keep the other team's offense off the field; Erickson points out that that's exactly the reason Idaho beat Oregon State.

"We've not been able to control the football," he says. "Last year they kept the ball for 37 minutes. You expect the other team have the football that long and expect to win." Idaho continues near the bottom of the Big Sky in both overall offense and defense, ranked seventh in each — including a surprising fifth in pass offense. Erickson's biggest worry, however, is pass defense. The Vandals are giving up an average of 289 yards a game and allowing opposing quarterbacks to complete 53 percent of their passes. "Everybody talks about their running back (Johnny Erickson), but their quarterback (Eric Boyce) is playing very well," Gordon says. "And their offensive line is just as good as it's always been."

Gordon, a 6-3, 218-pound JC transfer, is currently the No. 2 rusher in the Big Sky, averaging 83 yards a game. He is also, by most accounts, the only player to have a rushing touchdown. Johnny Corley, the UNR backs who finished 1-2 in rushing a year ago — "He's a heckuva player, I tell you that," says Erickson. "If we don't stop him at the line, which we haven't done against Reno the last two years, we're not going to stop him."

In addition to Linehan, the missing Idaho regulars include wide receiver Eric Yarbik, the leading pass-catcher in the Big Sky; linebacker Tom Hennessey, running back Andrew Smith, defensive end Frank Moreno, defensive tackles John Andrews and Scott Linehan; and cornerback Mike Johnston, Smith, Moreno, Katz and Johnston won't be back this season; Hennessey might not be.

"At least we didn't get anybody hurt against Oregon State," says Erickson. "That's a first for us this season."

The winner of Saturday's game will be back in the race for the conference title; the loser will be in serious trouble. Although an at-large team would be the conference runner-up — traditionally goes to the I-AA playoffs along with the league champion, that representative is picked on the basis of overall record.

Game time is 2 p.m. MDT. Radio station KPSP-AM will broadcast the game in the Magic Valley.

Steelhead migration strong

SALMON (AP) — Idaho Fish and Game Department records indicate that this year's migration of steelhead salmon could be an impressive run for the fish as they return to the Salmon River system.

As of Tuesday, an estimated 48,102 returning steelhead had passed the Lower Granite Dam on the Snake River, said Kent Ball, senior fisheries research biologist.

The dam is located about 25 miles downstream from Lewiston on the Snake River in Washington state. It's the last dam before the Snake flows into the Columbia.

Between Sept. 25 and Oct. 2, some 17,888 steelhead "poured over" the Lower Granite, he said.

"I was there on the 26th, and the fish were literally pouring over the dam," Ball said. "I'm sure there was probably at least 3,000 there that day."

Nearly 4,000 steelhead a day passed the dam on Monday and Tuesday, he said. Another 3,011 made it Thursday. Ball said it would take at least three weeks for a migrating steelhead to reach the North Fork of the Salmon River from the Lower Granite Dam.

To the Salmon River's Middle Fork he said the distance is nearly 300 river miles.

Season-ending scramble set

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls Men's Golf Association will conduct its season-closing scramble at 10 a.m. Sunday at Municipal Golf Course.

Assistant Professional Mike Hamblin said those participating must enter before the association business meeting at 9 a.m. The scramble will be followed by a barbecue.

CSI weekend baseball action

TWIN FALLS — College of Southern Idaho's national championship-winning baseball team will play a series of scrimmages this weekend at Frontier Field.

Today at 1 p.m. the Golden Eagles entertain Treasure Valley Community College, then Saturday and Sunday they'll face the University of Utah. Saturday's action begins at noon, while Sunday's starts at 11 a.m.

The teams will play two seven-inning games each day. Admission is free.

Bruins host volleyball event

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls High School volleyball team will sponsor a four-team invitational tournament Saturday.

The tournament will involve Nampa, like Twin Falls a Class A-1 school, as well as two A-2 schools, Madison and Preston. Preston is the defending state A-2 champion.

Twin Falls is slated to take on Nampa in the tournament opener at 11 a.m., while Preston and Nampa will meet at 12:30. At 2, Madison will face Nampa and at 3:30, Twin Falls will take on Preston. At 5, Nampa and Preston are scheduled to meet, while Twin Falls and Madison will wind up the tournament at 6:30.

Junior varsity matches will follow the same time schedule. All matches are scheduled for the Twin Falls High gym.

Scramble at Canyon Springs

TWIN FALLS — The Canyon Springs Men's Golf Association will conduct a blind-draw scramble and its final business meeting Sunday at the clubhouse.

The $10 entry fee will include breakfast from 10 to 10 a.m. with the scramble to begin at 10 a.m. It offers $1,000 in added money.

Election of officers for the 1985 season will highlight the closing business meeting, reports Bob Skredersu, association spokesman.

Fish film scheduled Tuesday

TWIN FALLS — Stu Murrell plans to show a film on steelhead and salmon hatcheries Tuesday at 8 p.m. at the Gun Club. All interested sportsmen are welcome.

Legion boosters to meet

TWIN FALLS — A meeting of the American Legion Baseball Booster Association has been scheduled for Sunday at 4 p.m. at the Idaho State University Resident Center, 140 Second St. E.

Topics for discussion include a recap of the 1984 season, the 1985 campaign and election of officers.

For more information, contact Solinda Korsen at 734-8500.

Sonics' Sobers ends holdout

LACEY, Wash. (AP) — Veteran guard Ricky Sobers, a former College of Southern Idaho standout, ended his contract holdout and joined the Seattle SuperSonics for preseason training camp at St. Martin's College; the National Basketball Association team announced Thursday.

General manager Les Hagberg said the Sonics renegotiated Sobers' one-year contract with the team, and extended it to a multi-year contract. Neither Hagberg nor Sobers would reveal details of the contract.

Sobers was traded to the Sonics by the Washington Bullets in exchange for guard Gus Williams.

Sobers' agent, Tom Collins of Los Angeles, said his client was looking for a long-term contract for future security. The 6-foot-3, 200-pound guard had refused to show up for team practice until an agreement was reached.

Marino voted month's best

NEW YORK (AP) — Quarterback Dan Marino, who led the unbeaten Miami Dolphins to two victories in September, has been voted the National Football League's Player of the Month, the Pro Football Writers of America announced Thursday.

Marino, a second-year pro, is the top-rated passer in the NFL. He leads the league with 15 touchdown passes and passing yardage, 1,527. He has completed 101 of 155 passes for a 65.2 completion percentage.

Services for Alston today

OXFORD, Ohio (AP) — Funeral services will be held today in this small college town for Walter "Smookey" Alston, who managed the Brooklyn and Los Angeles Dodgers for 23 years.

Alston died Monday at the age of 72. He was spent his entire life in nearby Darrown, a small farming community with about 200 people. He graduated from Miami University here in 1935.

Until he became a big league manager, Alston also taught school and coached basketball in Darrown in the off-season.

Following his retirement, Alston often was seen riding the country lanes on a motorcycle, offering rides to his neighbors. He suffered a massive heart attack last year and never recovered, family members said.

The Dodgers were expected to bring in a plane load of friends for the service in the small, sequential Chapel. Visitation was at the Marshall-Smith Funeral Home in Oxford.

Alston will be buried in the family plot at the Darrown Cemetery.

Giants to talk to Felipe Alou

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Felipe Alou, a former San Francisco Giants' player who now manages in the minor leagues, will be interviewed for the Giants' vacant managing job, it was reported Thursday.

Tom Heller, the Giants' general manager, told the San Francisco Chronicle that he had received permission from the Montreal Expos to interview Alou, who is a manager in the Expos' farm system.

"I'll be calling him in the next couple of days," Heller said in Scottsdale, Ariz., where he was attending a Giants' organizational meeting.

Jim Davenport, a coach with the Giants, has been interviewed for the job. Others reportedly interested include Jim Fregosi and Hal Lanier.

'Skins Game' scheduled

NEW YORK (AP) — The same four players — Arnold Palmer, Jack Nicklaus, Gary Player and Tom Watson — will compete in a second edition of the Skins Game in Scottsdale, Ariz., it was announced Thursday.

The 18-hole Skins Game will be spread over two days, Nov. 24-25, at the Desert Highlands course said Don Ohlmeyer, president of Ohlmeyer Communications Co., one of the sponsors of the event that will offer a total of $360,000 in prize money.

The event offers $10,000 for each of the first six holes, $20,000 for the next six and $30,000 for the final six. Each hole is a tournament in itself. If no player wins the hole outright, the prize money for that hole is carried over to the next hole.

Last year, in the Inaugural Skins Game, Gary Player made a birdie on the 17th hole which, with carry-overs, was worth $120,000. Palmer won $140,000, Nicklaus $40,000 and Watson $10,000.

Fast start gives Colbert lead at Texas

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Jim Colbert opened defense of his title with an eagle-birdie start that propelled him to a 5-under-par 65 and a four-way tie for the first-round lead Thursday in the $50,000 Texas Open Golf Tournament.

"Things just seem to fall right here. My comfort level is very good," said Colbert, 43, who scored the eighth victory of his 18-year career on this course last year.

"I feel like my shots fit this course. And that has a lot to do with your confidence," Colbert said.

He opened his round with a 40-foot putt for eagle-3 and played his last two holes in a drizzling rain.

He was tied for the top spot with Mark Wiebe, tour rookie Kurt Cox and Ron Streck, who reeled off a string of six consecutive birdies on the 6,525-yard Oak Hills Country Club course.

"I just got hot," Streck, who holed a bunker shot for one of those six birdies, said. "But I've been hot here before."

Streck's first professional title came on this course in 1978 when he set an all-time PGA Tour record with a score of 125 over the last 36 holes.

Lanny Wadkins, who did not make a bogey, Jim Kane and George Cagle were at 66.

Calvin Peete and Mark O'Meara topped the group at 67, two shots off the lead.

Peete is involved in a three-man struggle for the Vardon Trophy with Craig Stadler and Tom Kite. Stadler is not playing. And Peete beat Kite by five shots on this cool, cloudy day in the race for the season's low-stroke average. O'Meara, who scored his fifth runner-up finish of the season last week, needs a victory here to go past the absent Tom Watson and take the year's money-winning lead.

Also at 67 were Bruce Lietzke, Mark Calcavecchia and Howard Twitty.

Masters champion Ben Crenshaw led a large group at 68. PGA title-holder Lee Trevino matched par 70.

Okamoto maintains 1-stroke edge

WOBURN, England (AP) — Ayako Okamoto of Japan carded a second successive 71 and maintained her one-stroke lead Thursday at the halfway stage of the $200,000 British Women's Open Golf Championship.

Okamoto, with an eagle and three birdies for a 4-under-par total of 142, led Scottish professional Dale Reid, who also shot 71 for a 143.

U.S.-based Australian star Jan Stephenson suffered a putting nightmare but managed a 74 to take third place with a 2-over-par 148 thanks to some inspired iron play.

Stephenson said that she was ready to quit the game unless her putting improved.

"I've been through 18 months of anguish because of my putter and that is long enough," she said.

"I'm close to quitting because of my putter. It all went wrong after I won the U.S. Open last year and if I had putted half decently today I would have shot a 66."

"I've cried many times and it feels like the end of the world — my putting is slowly killing me. I've probably blown just another tournament on the greens."

Earnhardt shines at Miller 500 qualifying

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Dale Earnhardt outran Cale Yarborough Thursday to lead second-day qualifying for the Miller High-Lite 500 Grand National stock car race.

Earnhardt, driving the Wrangler-sponsored Chevrolet Monte Carlo SS, fielded by Richard Childress, posted a four-lap qualifying average of 165.011 mph on the high-banked, 1.5-mile Charlotte Motor Speedway oval.

That average, good for the 16th spot in the race day lineup, was considerably faster than the 163.243 he ran Wednesday. In fact, had he run that well in pole qualifying, Earnhardt, the 1981 Winston Cup champion, would have been fifth.

"We made the wrong decision on tires (Wednesday)," Earnhardt explained. "We put on the wrong tires and the stagger (offset) was wrong. That slowed us down. But, today, we worked on it and got it right."

Yarborough also improved considerably, moving up from 163.806 to 164.614, but losing a place in the process. The three-time Winston Cup champion was the 16th fastest Wednesday.

Neurologist pushes for elimination of boxing

ATLANTA (AP) — The president of the nation's largest organization of nerve specialists said Thursday he has concluded that boxing is "senseless brutality" and should be banned.

Dr. Nelson Richards said his change of heart came last month when he saw former heavyweight champion Muhammad Ali on television as the ex-fighter entered a New York hospital to be checked for parkinsonism, a nerve disorder.

"Even on TV, it was apparent to me that he had some kind of neurological damage," said Richards of Richmond, Va., who heads the 7,000-member American Academy of Neurology.

But Ali's former trainer, Angelo Dundee, said Thursday he disagreed with Richards.

"Boxing should be controlled but not banned," he said in a telephone interview from Miami. He said the main health hazard for professional boxers is too much drugs and alcohol.

Richards, who once viewed boxing as a decent sport, said controls on boxing, proposed last year by the American Medical Association, are insufficient to protect amateur or professional fighters.

Richards cited one study published in May in the Journal of the American Medical Association by a group of New York researchers, who found that 87 percent of 18 former boxers had definite evidence of brain damage. One in four of them scored poorly on psychological tests, the study found.

THE ACES BOBBY WOLFF

Opinions founded on prejudice are always sustained with the greatest violence.

Do you see any reason why South should not start trumps at trick two? Think things over carefully before offering an opinion.

South wins the first club and sees little danger. He thinks that if the trump finesse is off-side, the most he can lose is a spade, a trump and a diamond.

The reason for South's complacency is West's normal but favorable lead. What if West had led a spade instead of a club, exposing South to the loss of two spade tricks?

With the actual club lead, if South fineses in trumps at trick two, East wins and alertly shifts to the spade jack.

South holds: A J 10 9, K Q 5, A Q 7 3, 2 N T. North holds: A S T, K 4, A 8 5 2, Q J 10 9, 7 5 3.
