Signups by sect blocked

The Associated Press

PORTLAND (AP) — A judge upheld an order Monday blocking all new voter registrations in Wasco County, thwarting followers of an Indian guru who have been accused of trying to register scores of "street people" in an effort to take over the local government on Election Day.

An attorney for the sect, Swami Prabhoo Subram, called the ruling "a sad day for the Constitution" and promised further legal action.

Three hundred eligibility hearings for would-be voters were scheduled to begin today in The Dalles, Wasco County's seat. Several street people recruited to the commune-city of Rajneeshpuram in the past two months said they would participate.

Later in the day, the judge scheduled a conference this morning on the Rajneeshes' request to move to Rajneeshpuram those hearings, which affect residents of the commune-city.

Acting at the state's insistence, Wasco County officials imposed the rejections Oct. 10 in an effort to prevent voter fraud. Officials feared followers of Bhagwan Shree Rajneesh were importing thousands of the nation's down-and-out to pack voter rolls and elect Rajneeshes to county offices.

State and county officials also testified that they feared opponents of the Rajneeshes would move temporarily to the county just before the Nov. 6 election to counter Rajneesh vote, worsening the fraud problem. In past elections, the sect has voted as a bloc.

Wasco County Clerk Sue Profit said her five-person staff would have been overwhelmed by an avalanche of last-minute registrations from Rajneeshpuram. The new recruits could cast their ballots and then move out of Rajneeshpuram, leaving officials with no way to challenge their votes, she said.

Midweek reopening for schools

By DEAN S. MILLER Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The school board decided Monday to reopen schools Wednesday as a "show of faith in the integrity of the teachers of this district."

Acting superintendent Carl Snow said schools will be closed today as previously announced.

Snow read a board statement late Monday night which said "Since it is obviously in everyone's best interest to settle, the Board is confident that settlement will, in fact, occur Tuesday evening."

"I have a lot of teachers that have told me they are more interested in teaching than demonstrating," Snow said.

Teachers and the board will meet with a federal mediator at 7 p.m. today.

Schools were ordered closed Monday and today "in an effort to protect the health, safety, and welfare of the children of the district," said Snow.

Teachers union president Dick Chilcote said Tuesday night "This seems to me to be a very positive step in the right direction... we hope that this is a step in the direction of settling this thing at the mediation session."

Chilcote said the board's move to reopen schools is "in the best interests of the teachers and students of the district."

Board spokesman Gary Fay said the decision was made by telephone poll Monday before the board's closed evening executive session to discuss negotiations.

Chilcote said Monday evening 241

Bruin athletics go on as usual — C1

Teachers showed up for work and signed a notarized statement, indicating they had "reported at school to teach on Monday morning, Oct. 22, 1984."

Teachers are repeating the action this morning, Chilcote said.

A Monday morning teachers union press release said the board had been told no Monday demonstrations were planned, but refused to open schools unless teachers agreed not to demonstrate.

Chilcote said, "we could not give up our right to react."

"What they are asking us to do is give up every constitutional right we give our other citizen has," Chilcote says.

Teachers' union officials say the board had been informed Sunday there would be no demonstration Tuesday because the board has agreed to meet with teacher negotiators Tuesday evening.

"We are not on strike. We withheld services for one day. That day was Friday. The board has chosen to close school Monday and Tuesday. We are experiencing a lockout," the statement says.

"We have never intended that class time should be disrupted," says the statement.

The Monday morning press release said teachers "will be back in the classrooms on Tuesday... there is absolutely no reason to have schools closed Tuesday as we have met the board's conditions for that day."

Post-debate question: Can Mondale close gap by Nov. 6

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG The Associated Press

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — By any reasonable standard, Walter F. Mondale did about as well he could have expected in his two debates with President Reagan, but now the Democratic challenger will find out if that was enough to close the gap in the presidential race.

From now until Nov. 6, Mondale will chase the electoral votes he needs to to upset the president. That is likely to keep the challenger in the nation's largest states and talking about the themes he stressed in the second debate — competence, leadership and foreign policy.

Analysis

"We are solidly on the foreign policy course," Mondale campaign chairman James Johnson told reporters in a post-debate briefing on Monday.

Although Johnson denied that foreign policy would be the exclusive topic of Mondale's last two campaign weeks, don't expect the candidate to spend much time talking about his plan to raise taxes or stressing fairness — an issue that worked for the Democrats in the recession election of 1982 but has proven less effective during this recovery year.

It is ironic that Mondale, perceived by most observers as the winner of the domestic policy debate, should close his campaign dependent more heavily on the issues of the foreign policy confrontation.

Mondale's strong performance in the first debate coupled with Reagan's subpar showing gave the Democratic a desperately needed boost. In their second debate, Reagan was back in form and Mondale also was strong.

The initial polls Sunday night gave the president a statistically insignificant edge and a panel of debate judges said Mondale was the clear winner.

Mondale moved quickly to try and set the campaign agenda for the next two weeks, to make it his definition of presidential leadership.

As he left his hotel, the candidate offered his rating of the president's performance: "In one sense, he didn't do as poorly as he did last time. But, on the central question of command, knowledge, of taking responsibility, I think he did worse."

"When this record is debated over the next two weeks," Mondale said, "it's clear he didn't know what a president must know, he didn't take responsibility where a president must. And, when things went wrong, he tried to run away from them."

The morning-after assessments from the candidates' top aides were predictable claims of victory.

Johnson called it a "decisive victory" for Mondale and said the Democrat established that he is "a strong, effective spokesman who understood the issues clearly."

James A. Baker III, White House chief of staff, said Reagan "did what he had to do... he was on the offensive most of the evening."

But Johnson and Mondale campaign manager See GAP on Page A2

Singer upheld on appeal

The Associated Press

SAN FRANCISCO — Singer Carole King's rights may have been violated when officials in Custer County declared an old road through her ranch to be public property, a federal appeals court ruled Monday.

The decision by a three-member panel of the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals returns the case to a federal judge in Boise to decide whether King should have been given notice and a hearing before the county acted. It also said she may be able to seek damages from the county.

King, the songwriter best known for her hugely successful "Tapestry" album, has been locked in a dispute with local officials and neighbors over a road through the Robinson Bar Ranch alongside the Salmon River in mountainous central Idaho.

After buying the ranch in June 1981, she and her husband, Rick Sorensen, locked the gate across Robinson Bar Road, which runs through the ranch. See KING on Page A2

Reagan critics charge forest roads ignore court

DENVER (AP) — Some Reagan administration critics are charging that the U.S. Forest Service is ignoring a federal court decision barring roadbuilding in potential wilderness areas, and is putting roads in previously untouched forests to profit the timber industry, the Denver Post reports.

"We've got to blow the whistle on it. This is the same kind of end-running of the law that (former Interior Secretary James) Watt and (former Environmental Protection Agency chief Anne) Burford did," said U.S.

Rep. Tim Wirth, D-Colo. The criticism of the Forest Service's roadbuilding policies was revealed by the Denver Post in a copyright story in its Sunday edition. Wirth said the Forest Service and the agency have forgotten their mandate to ensure that federal lands serve "many uses."

"If you go to the San Juan and Rio Grande (national forests), you see campground after campground closed, because the Forest Service has been told the money should be spent on roads," Wirth said.

But Crowell, a former timber industry executive, told the Post the agency "needs a steady roadbuilding program to get at timber in order to earn a return for the taxpayers of the United States."

Environmentalists and others say they fear the roadbuilding costing taxpayers in two ways. First, once roads are built through previously untouched areas, they eliminate the chance that Congress can protect the areas from development by designating them as wilderness areas.

Second, studies by Congress, the Forest Service and environmental groups show that cutting timber in the Rocky Mountain region costs more money than it raises, and the cost of the roadbuilding is alleged to add to federal losses on national forest timber sales.

In 1982 and 1983, the Forest Service lost more than $1 billion on timber sales, including Alaskan deals that brought in only pennies for each dollar spent, the Post reported.

"The roadbuilding causes the deficits," said William Turnage, director of The Wilderness Society in Washington, D.C. Conservationists say the following areas have been targeted for agency road projects:

- In Colorado, the Troublesome area of Routt National Forest and the V-Rock and Montezuma areas of the San Juan and Rio Grande national forests. Conservationists say the areas need wilderness designation protection because they are some of the best big game hunting and backpacking grounds in the state.

Team recommends cure for college 'sniffles'

By CHRISTOPHER CONNELL The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Education Secretary T.H. Bell said Monday a critique by a team of scholars shows "American higher education has the sniffles and needs to take precautions to avoid getting a bad cold or even pneumonia."

But Bell said the verdict rendered by the scholars was less harsh than he had anticipated, and he stressed that colleges were not in as much difficulty as the nation's elementary and secondary schools.

"Educational institutions are a bit like people: they can grow old and top out and go to seed if they don't renew and rejuvenate themselves periodically," Bell said.

"American higher education has the sniffles. It might come down with a bad cold or even pneumonia if we don't do something about it," he told reporters at a news conference at George Washington University.

Among the recommendations in the report, "Involvement in Learning: Realizing the Potential of American Higher Education," are that colleges devote more resources to teaching and advising freshmen and sophomores; that they make students pass proficiency tests, not merely acquire course credits; to get a degree; and that all students take at least two years of liberal arts courses, even if that forces them to extend their stay on campus beyond four years.

The presidents of five major higher education groups issued a statement applauding the study and expressing hope it would stir up as much interest as "A Nation At Risk," the study on high schools by a Bell commission last year.

But they also said the report slighted adult learners and gave the false impression "that all of higher education is composed of 18-21-year-olds all pursuing a baccalaureate degree." They also took issue with the report's statement that only half the students who start college aim for a bachelor's degree "actually attain this goal."

The American Council on Education said its statistics show that 66 percent of freshmen complete the degree within five years and 75 percent after 10 years.

The criticism came from the heads of the council, the American Association of State Colleges and Universities, the National Association of Independent Colleges and Universities, the Association of American Colleges and the American Association of Community and Junior Colleges.

TERRELL H. BELL Proficiency tests one idea

Rep. Paul Simon, D-Ill., the chairman of the House subcommittee on postsecondary education, defended vocationally oriented courses, saying, "Postsecondary education is an accepted requirement for far more jobs than it was 20 years ago."

"We must resist temptations to simply overlay the goals of the past upon the goals of the future," said Simon.

The Associated Press disclosed the report's recommendations last week. Bell's National Institute of Education commissioned the study by a seven-member panel of experts on academic

Mondale, Reagan continue tacks of debate

By MIKE FEINSILBER
The Associated Press

Following the same tacks they pursued in their final debate, Walter F. Mondale pictured President Reagan on Monday as "the most detached, most remote, most unformed president in modern history" while the Republican incumbent said Mondale believes that "a weaker America is a safer America."

Both sides claimed victory in Sunday night's television exchange as they opened the home stretch of the 1984 race by concentrating on one issue: which candidate would make peace more likely and America more secure.

Reagan, his wife and his aides acted as though the debate had nailed down a Nov. 6 victory.

"I believe the election of 1984 will be a victory for us all," the president told defense workers in his home state of California, where Mondale has made some inroads.

And a jubilant Nancy Reagan said her husband's wisecrack about Mondale — that he was too young and inexperienced for the presidency — ended forever the debate over whether her husband is too old to serve another term.

"He put it to bed once and for all," she said of the age issue aboard Air Force One, flying to California. Mrs. Reagan demonstrated her high spirits by rolling an orange down the aisle.

"We're on a roll," said Vice President George Bush, campaigning in Cape Girardeau, Mo. "They're not going to be able to take it from us."

Reporters asked Mondale how he'd done and the Democrat grinned: "Well, I thought it over, and I won."

He said in one sense Reagan did better than he had in their first

President Reagan tries on B-1B cap at plane assembly plant debate, "but on the central question of command, knowledge, of taking responsibility, I think he did worse."

Three polls — for Newsweek magazine, ABC News and CBS News-New York Times — showed viewers saw the second debate as a virtual tie, while a survey taken for USA Today tagged Reagan the winner.

Mondale's running mate, Geraldine Ferraro, went home to Queens, N.Y., the working class district which elected her to Congress, and asked for the votes of the common people.

"If only 50 percent of the working people in this country vote for the Mondale-Ferraro ticket, we lose," she said. "It's a simple as that."

At a church in Harlem, Ms. Ferraro acknowledged that the Democratic team is running behind the Republicans, but said, "Blacks and women and disadvantaged Americans have only themselves to blame if they stay home and let Ronald Reagan be president."

House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill issued a post-debate statement which called Reagan "ignorant" three times. "Reagan was Reagan, comfortably amiable but dangerously ignorant," the Massachusetts Democrat said.

Reagan arranged to campaign among employees of three defense contractors — Rockwell International, Lockheed and Northrup — to underscore the differences between himself and Mondale.

The president said Mondale had "made a career out of weakening America's armed forces."

Added Reagan: "As long as I'm president, we will not shortchange the security needs of America. Those who have no vision of America have no business leading America. And those who believe a weaker America is a safer America have no business guiding the destiny of our nation."

For his part, Mondale said those who watched the debate saw "a commander in chief who is not commanding and who isn't a chief."

Before tens of thousands in downtown Philadelphia, the Democratic nominee pictured Reagan as detached, remote and unformed and said he backs responsibilities for his policies in Lebanon, Central America and elsewhere.

Mondale said the administration is conducting a secret war in Latin America that is "so secret apparently the president hasn't heard about it."

Philadelphia was the first stop of a grueling 17-hour campaign swing in Pennsylvania, New Jersey, New York and Ohio.

Mondale campaign manager Robert Beckel maintained that Mondale is leading Reagan in the Northeast while "closing the gap" in the Midwest, but offered no specifics to back up those claims, which contradict a number of polls. White House Chief of Staff James Baker said Beckel was "whispering past the graveyards."

Baker acknowledged that Reagan's lead in California went from 16 points to 10 points but he said that happened after Mondale spent $1 million on advertising and made three campaign trips in the state.

Baker conceded that many Democrats who now support Reagan will "go home" to Mondale and he said the campaign's chief problem remains complacency.

Meanwhile, Bush tripped up in answering questions on the controversial psychological warfare manual which advises Nicaraguan rebels on "the selective use of violence" to "neutralize" government officials. The CIA's involvement in publishing the manual was a debate issue Sunday night.

Bush said in a television interview in St. Louis that "this manual was given out" by Counterspy Magazine, a critic of U.S. intelligence efforts, but in Des Moines, Bush's press secretary, Peter Tootley, told reporters that Bush was not referring to the CIA manual but to an earlier document prepared by the Defense Intelligence Agency.

Bush later conceded that he had been in error in saying that Counterspy had distributed the manual. "I misstated this morning," Bush said, adding that he didn't know who leaked the manual.

And Reagan was dogged by questions about a news conference statement in May 1982 which figured in Sunday's debate. Mondale said it showed Reagan thought that missiles, once launched, could be recalled.

Reagan said he meant that submarines and airplanes — from which missiles are launched — and not the missiles themselves — could be recalled "before the launching point."

Reagan appeared to blame the problem on reporters.

"I realize that all of you are on the record as having repeated it so often," he said. "But try to find a way to back off the end of the limb. I won't tell."

He asked: "How could anyone think that any reasonable human being could believe that you can turn a missile around and bring it home? I think that shows a lack of intelligence on their part."

Accusation fended off

HELENA, Mont. (AP) — It is surely no coincidence that the Montana AFL-CIO has been accused, only two weeks before the election, of using federally paid employees to help Democratic candidates, executive secretary Jim Murry said Monday.

"Mondale is moving up in the polls, Chuck Cozzens (the Republican U.S. Senate candidate) is desperate, and the conservatives have to do something to enhance their chances, so it's no coincidence that it happened at this time," Murry said at a news conference at AFL-CIO headquarters.

He said the allegations will not cause the AFL-CIO to reduce its work on behalf of any candidates it is supporting.

Murry sent letters Monday asking both the state and federal labor departments to investigate the charges, which he called "unfounded, but serious."

Warnke laughs away Reagan's suggestion

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former arms control negotiator Paul C. Warnke on Monday ridiculed President Reagan's suggestion for demonstrating the effectiveness of a space-based defensive weapon against missiles as "science fiction of a fairly low order."

At a news conference, Warnke said the only demonstration he could think of would be to build the system and then invite the Soviet Union to fire thousands of missiles at the United States.

"Now suppose it does not work 100 percent," he said. "If it works 95 percent, that means that hundreds of those missiles get through."

"Given the wide scientific skepticism about the merits of any existing or foreseeable technology (for a missile defense), the idea of a test which would convince the Soviet Union to get out of the offensive nuclear arms race strikes me as being science fiction of a fairly low order," he said.

Warnke served as director of the Arms Control and Disarmament Agency during the administration of Jimmy Carter and negotiated the first Strategic Arms Limitation Treaty with the Soviets.

Reagan made the proposal for a demonstration during Sunday night's campaign debate against Democrat Walter F. Mondale as part of his defense of his plan to develop a weapon that would destroy incoming missiles in flight. He said he would be willing to turn the weapon over to the Soviets so both sides would be able to destroy their nuclear weapons.

Reagan said after the weapon, often called the "Star Wars" defense, is developed he would tell the Soviets: "Here's what we can do. Now if you are willing to join us in getting rid of all the nuclear weapons in the world, then we can give you this one so that we would both know that no one can cheat, that we both have something... if anyone tries to cheat."

Mondale did not comment on Reagan's proposal for a demonstration, but he opposed the development of a "Star Wars" weapon.

"For the first time we would delegate to computers the decision as to whether to start a war," he said of the proposal.

'Best educational environment' is key to teacher dispute

Suzanne Pack
Judith Day Chapman

How can the school board think that teachers, we are naive enough to believe their outrageous and contradictory statements, yet trust that we are intelligent enough to teach the children? Perhaps we are naive.

Who would accept a parttime position as a career, and further agree to be paid for this parttime position on an annual basis, thereby losing the advantage of accruing interest by skillful management of one's own money?

We are not given the option of changing this parttime position for a fulltime one, as year-round schools are not available in this district.

Finding adequate supplementary work puts teachers in competition with high school and college students when seeking parttime summer employment to fill the gap.

For those of you who feel that we teachers are already well-paid, or perhaps overpaid, one of our colleagues would point out to you: "The door is open for you to join us."

All you need to do is go back to school for four years and be willing to accept an entry level, part-time position at $13,300 with a maximum earning potential of $24,200. This figure may be reached after attaining your masters degree plus thirty post-masters hours, and after having spent twenty years teaching continuously for this district.

Bear in mind, you must obtain those post-graduate hours while teaching your current position for this same district, or you risk losing your accrued years of experience back to the seven-year level, reducing your income to $19,019 rather than the $24,206 previously quoted.

It must also be recognized that ours is the only profession where years of experience and extra education become a liability not an asset when seeking a new position owing to the policy adhered to by many districts which emphasizes hiring the least expensive replacements for their faculties.

Contrast this with the philosophies on experience and salaries earned in comparable professions before you make your decision to join us.

Remember, too, that the position is unique in that it is one of the few where monies have to be expended by the employee in order to provide adequate services such as bulletin board materials, enrichment activities, and other stimuli, amounting to, for us, an average of $500 yearly personal expense, not including an additional $250 expense for graduate coursework to maintain professional excellence.

This year we find ourselves without current textbooks, lacking adequate roots over our heads, minus the $30 usually provided to help purchase supplies, and without our paper supply in adequate amounts. We should be able to depend on these basic classroom essentials.

Extra services are, however, still expected beyond the regular work day, partially due to the overcrowded conditions we are experiencing.

Regular contributions of extra hours must be given evaluating students' papers, conferencing with parents, planning enrichment activities, and working with parent-teacher organizations to plan coordinated activities, because we must devote the entire school day to teaching. For those who have preparation periods, the time is not adequate for all of the responsibilities involved. Elementary teachers find no time scheduled during the students' school day. Some districts have solved this dilemma for their staffs by allowing an early dismissal on Thursday afternoons every week, thereby affording time to the teachers to do paper work and time for parents to schedule appointments and cultural types of lessons for their children during regular business hours.

Teachers teach because they want to teach. That is the only reason anyone would choose this profession. Perhaps the only way we will be able to survive the current trauma is to stop thinking of it as a profession and consider it only a job.

The real issue at hand should be to provide the best educational environment for the students which must be a cooperative effort by the board, the administration, the teachers, the parents, and the students. A free education is a gift we have chosen to give ourselves, and is the strength of a healthy nation.

No, we are not naive. We simply love to teach, as do our colleagues, and would like not only to be allowed to teach, but to be supported and encouraged to do so to the best of our creative ability.

Suzanne Pack and Judith Day Chapman are Twin Falls teachers at Sawtooth and Harrison Elementary Schools, respectively.

'Yellow' journalism

In Thursday's paper, there was an article written by Hal Bernton that was not reported fairly. It was the worst form of "yellow journalism" because a point was made that was not pertinent.

America is a homogenous nation that is a melting pot of national derivatives, but we are all Americans. The sentence in question is the last one stating that the only Hispanics at the dinner at the Turf Club Wednesday, Oct. 17, were the ones in the band.

The fact is a person's ancestry is irrelevant in the reporting of a political dinner.

Does one have to state their background before entering a door to attend a dinner? Otherwise an apparent misinterpretation might be made.

Was the number in attendance at last fall's Scottish Dinner all of Scottish bloodlines or of no Scottish ancestry?

This reader takes The Times-News to read about the ancestry at a political dinner? I forgot it's the black vote, the Hispanic vote, the female vote, the Catholic vote, the LDS vote, etc., that is important to these esteemed political journalists, who try to influence with trivialities.

That is journalism in the brightest shade of ochre.

Doesn't feel drudgery

An open letter to Diana Hooley: I am not naive enough to believe that every job is a bed of roses. Every job, I know, has distasteful tasks that must be done. But I feel sorry for you and for any person that is caught up in such a multitude of tasks that they find no personal satisfaction in any of them.

Our lives were not intended to be a merry-go-round of events that we can't get off or of bearings. We need to be able to control our lifestyles enough so that somehow, somewhere, we feel real satisfaction and self-respect for our jobs well done.

What is the matter with re-evaluating our goals and values, with lowering our expectations of ourselves, and with slowing down?

I, for one, find the two choices for lifestyles that you have allowed yourself: (1) That of a schizo-frantic superwoman, or (2) a housewife/drudge, as horrible options for any human being.

I am home with my children now, and do not feel that I am anywhere near your generalization of a housewife/drudge.

How can you, Diana Hooley, look womanhood in the eye and label them as either dizzy career people or as drudges who do nothing but mop floors with their hair in curlers under a kerchief? We, as women need to respect each other and regard every chosen lifestyle with dignity and honor.

He's against HJR 5

Unfortunately for the citizens and voters of Idaho, HJR No. 5 offers no solution to the problem of establishing reasonable legislative districts. The proposed constitutional change mandates no minimum or maximum number of legislative districts, offers no guidelines in placing boundaries, mandates a system to prevent gerrymandering by incumbent legislators.

The specter of legislators scrambling to secure their stronghold while releasing their weakest areas should be awesome to behold.

Imagine no minimum or maximum number of legislative districts, no sanctity of county lines, city lines or precinct lines, and no outside guidance except for the governor's veto or signature.

It is unreasonable and wrong to promote that without violating county lines, a one man-one vote mandate could be established. Last year our legislators had the opportunity to actually reduce the size of government, abide by the constitution and reapportion themselves. Several good reapportionment plans without flatter districts were submitted that would have reduced the House by eight Seats (to 62) and the Senate by four seats (to 31). Nothing more than partisan politics prevented this admirable solution.

It is political naivety to assume or even hope that because county lines can be crossed to obtain representative or senatorial districts a smaller legislature or better representation will result. The importance of voting against HJR No. 5 cannot be overstated.

Is there a solution? Maybe. Both Governor Evans and former Governor Smiley have urged our legislators to appoint a non-partisan committee to make a recommendation as to the establishing of legislative district boundaries. Such a committee could make recommendation without undue political consideration of an incumbent legislator. Best of all, if HJR No. 5 does not pass, the voter's most basic regional identifier, his or her county, will be represented intact.

Swim action criticized

I would like to comment on an incident that occurred on Magic Reservoir on Aug. 20.

On that day I was in a boat and at 9 a.m. I proceeded toward the backwaters of the reservoir to do some fishing. I was met about one mile south of the Magic Reservoir by the Blaine County Sheriff's boat. They informed me, as well as other boaters proceeding in that direction, that we could proceed no farther because there were swimmers in the water ahead.

These swimmers with the sanction of the sheriff's office, had roped off this area for their own personal use. I would estimate that this comprised of at least 25 percent of the reservoir. There was ample room for these swimmers to have had their swimming meet in other areas of the shoreline, without closing off such a large amount of the reservoir to the use of others. It seems that very poor judgement was used, or none at all. I think the sheriff acted illegally in so doing.

Since these waters are open to the fishing public, I feel that I, for one, should not have been denied the use of same. We were kept out of the area for about three hours.

I wrote a letter of complaint to the Blaine County Sheriff's office, the Fish and Game Department, and the Blaine County Commissioners. To this date, my letters to all three have been totally ignored. One would have thought that at least the Fish and Game would have intervened in behalf of all fishermen who have a right to fish these waters. It appears Fish and Game doesn't want to get involved, they want to maintain the status quo with the sheriff. They are probably hoping I will go away.

There are other problems on this reservoir too. Such as the mix of high-powered boats with much smaller boats, swimmers, sail boats, surfers, and lots of evidence of operators of these boats being intoxicated.

For now, I would like to get an answer from these people that I wrote to. I would like a meeting with anyone, or all of them.

Since none of them have the courtesy to answer my letters, maybe a little force needs to be brought to bear.

Of course, by myself I don't have much clout.

Do all of you fishermen who use Magic Reservoir want to stand by and let the Sun Valley set completely take over the reservoir for water sports only?

It is obvious that special interest groups can curry special favors from the sheriff at the expense of fishermen with valid licenses to fish.

Will back Stallings

This letter is addressed to George Hansen.

I watched your debate last night and I think you know Richard Stallings won hands down. You didn't answer half the questions that were asked of you. You completely ignored them and hum had around about Tip O'Neill and that wasn't the issue.

We are not concerned about what Tip O'Neill believes but what you will do if re-elected.

Can you name one thing you have done for our state this year besides holding your hand out for that $5,000 a month? If you stayed in Washington and did your job right, you might have won the election on your record, but your voting record is mighty poor. I see in Wednesday's paper where you had to draw money from your personal account. Come on George, is there anything wrong with using some of your own money to beat your felony convictions?

I talked with Richard Stallings at the county fair. He is a man with very high ideals and he knows what must be done in Washington. He told you last night that he is against abortion and raising taxes, yet you continuously harp on these things.

I have a bumper sticker on my car that says "Republicans for Stallings" and I am mighty proud of it. I will do all in my power to see Richard Stallings win this election.

What's what

The typical male burglar commits 41 crimes before he's caught and sentenced to two years. Or so say the statisticians. Extrapolate that: A thief every eight days, let's say. That's less than a year of action. At $1,000 per burglary -- the figure is high, I think -- the untaxed income reaches $41,000, or an annual take of $13,667 for the three years, the last two of which are spent in the hoosegow.

Q: Among the women recognized as current television and movie stars, which ones used to be fashion models?

A: Used to be and still are, Cheryl Tiegs, Lauren Hutton, Al McGraw, Christie Brinkley, Jessica Lange, Lois Chiles, Pam Dawber, Sherry Belafonte Harper, Jane Fonda. And I've missed quite a many, no doubt.

WRITER'S LINGO

Q: What's "connative detail"?

A: A writer's term. Words suggested more than they mean. If you leave "footprints," you've done something historic, maybe. If "fingerprints," maybe something criminal. The difference between "lip prints" and "teeth marks" is a difference in connotative detail. Class dismissed.

There's one chance in a billion that: 1. A goftball will land on a specific blade of grass in a fairway. 2. A coin will come heads consecutively 30 times when you flip it. And 3. You'll be killed in a plane crash.

Four out of five Texans live in cities.

HEART ATTACKS

Q: Don't most heart attack victims survive the first attack?

A: Almost but not quite. Annually, the first attack kills 690,000 Americans, but another 600,000 survive the first.

Was reported that numerous words from the Basque language are spoken by Canadian-Indians-Client-asks, How come? Not only were most of Christopher Columbus's sailors Basques, but about 80 percent of the shipping to the Americas in the 16th century was aboard Basque vessels, with Basque crews.

Q: Quick, name the only U.S. president who'd, graduated from Annapolis.

A: Jimmy Carter.

Hometown throws late birthday party for Victor Borge

VICTOR BORGE Celebrates 75th

GREENWICH, Conn. (AP) — Victor Borge turned 75 on Jan. 9, but the musician and comedian didn't miss a beat when his hometown symphony orchestra threw him a birthday party nine months later.

Borge arrived at the local high school Sunday in a Rolls Royce festooned with ribbons and balloons, accompanied by a motorcycle and a drum and bugle corps.

Inside, townfolk sang along when the orchestra played "Happy Birthday," and the Danish-born entertainer told them Greenwich seemed like "the center of the world."

Orchestra president Mary J. Radcliffe said she didn't know his birthday was in January until the summer, but went ahead with the festivities anyway.

O'Brien wants Chinese to buy Wyatt Earp show

PEKING (AP) — Actor Hugh O'Brien, who played the gun-slinging marshal Wyatt Earp, said Monday that China should purchase the television series to spice up its state-run programming.

"I think it would be terrific," said the 59-year-old actor, who is on a three-week tour of China. "It has some history, some informative value. Each of our shows also has a moral, a lesson."

O'Brien suggested his Wyatt Earp series, which includes more than 200 shows, would interest the Chinese because it portrays a turbulent, pioneering time in America's development.

Chinese television follows strict ideological guidelines, with little violence and no sex. But the choices are expanding slowly with the recent addition of several American programs including episodes of "60 Minutes" and some sports shows.

Former students honor English teacher, 80

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Martha Turpin isn't just any 80-year-old English teacher around here.

The prim and proper educator's birthday was feted by more than 100 former students from around the country Sunday at the Arsenal Technical High School, where she taught for 38 years and is remembered as strict but caring.

"I came all the way from Albuquerque," said Keith Johnson, Class of '56. "It that seems like quite a tribute, that's what I meant it to be. She is what school teachers are all about."

Miss Turpin said she was "overwhelmed" by the tribute and added that "the school and the children were my whole life."

Susanne Baranyak, Class of '57, recalled: "A lot of us were poor. Miss Turpin was elegant, and she exposed many, many students to the only social graces they had ever known, or possibly would ever know."

Princess Anne to tour Bangladesh to help kids DHAKA, Bangladesh (AP) — A warm welcome is planned for Princess Anne of Great Britain when she arrives Tuesday for a six-day tour of Bangladesh as president of the Save the Children Fund.

The princess, making her first visit to this country, will visit projects sponsored by the agency to enhance the health and education of children living in poverty.

She will be welcomed at the airport by various dignitaries including Women Affairs Minister Shafia Khatun, and is scheduled to meet President General Mohammad Ershad on Wednesday. Princess Anne departs Oct. 28 for a similar tour of India.

Hole opens up in road; Cadillac slowly sinks

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — A driver got a nasty surprise when a burst water main opened a 25-foot-wide hole in front of her luxury car, nearly swallowing it at a busy intersection.

"I've got a Cadillac sinking in the intersection," police officer Bill Cutler radioed in shortly after 12:30 p.m. Sunday.

The driver, 65-year-old Betty Fealk of Fort Lauderdale, said she was "rather upset," but wasn't injured when her 1980 silver Cadillac Seville did a slow, inch-by-inch crawl into the ever-widening hole.

Spectators helped Ms. Fealk climb out of her car. It took three tow trucks to haul out the car.

A crowd of about 200 people gathered to watch the event. The hole formed when a 24-inch water main burst. Water gushed, washing away sand from under the pavement and pushing the asphalt upward until it cracked, officials said.

"When her tires hit it, it just caved in," Cutler said. "It looked like the Titanic just sinking down." Bystanders watched as three tow trucks arrived one by one to rescue Ms. Fealk's car, which sank so low the water covered the crushed-velour front seats.

When the trucks managed to pull the car out with a loud scraping noise, the crowd cheered.

Officials said the intersection will be closed until Tuesday for repairs. "It's one of those freak accidents," said Art Saey, Fort Lauderdale's chief utility serviceman.

GARRY TRUDEAU Creator of Doonesbury

DARMSSTADT, West Germany (AP) — The U.S.-armed forces newspaper Stars and Stripes announced today it was moving the comic strip "Doonesbury" to its commentary page because it has a "blatant" political message.

A boxed message in the comic section said, "Many comic strips carry political messages, but none is as blatant as Doonesbury."

"Stars and Stripes will carry Doonesbury on the Columns and Comment page at least until after election day," the statement said.

The comic strip, created by Gary Trudeau, recently has taken swipes at President Reagan's policy on minorities.

Residents seek work in next town

ATHOL, Mass. (AP) — Hundreds of unemployed residents of this depressed mill town began lining up at daybreak Monday, hoping for the chance to travel 70 miles each way to a $4-an-hour job in a city whose economy is so strong it can't find enough workers.

The round trip from Athol, tucked in the hills of central Massachusetts, to Framingham, a bustling metropolitan area west of Boston, could take three hours a day. But the jobseekers were not discouraged.

"I've been out of work for three years. I would take anything," said former machine operator Eugene Labor. "My benefits are completely exhausted now. If it wasn't for my parents, I'd be out in the streets."

The possibility of jobs is welcome news to local residents.

"The people of Athol are good, hard-working people," said Dee DiTerlizzi, a division representative. "They want a happy holiday. They want a turkey on the table at Thanksgiving. They want presents under the tree at Christmas."

Once a thriving factory town that churned out shoes, tables and tools, Athol, a town of 8,700 residents, now has an unemployment rate of 8.2 percent.

Framingham, once a quiet Boston suburb, has become one of the state's fastest-growing urban areas with 70,000 residents. Its jobless rate is just 2.3 percent.

Framingham's retail merchants turned to Ms. DiTerlizzi when they realized they could not find the nearly 1,000 workers they will need for November and December.

"I decided to try the program with Athol because this is a community that wants to work," she said.

The scene inside town hall seemed to bear her out.

Husbands and wives, mothers and teen-age sons, graying men and housewives gathered around long tables to fill out applications, and then patiently waited for interviews.

"I just need something to keep my head above water," said Herman Foster, a janitor who has been out of work since July. "You can survive on welfare, but you've got nothing. I have five kids. How can I buy them a pair of shoes?"

Foster, 54, applied for jobs with American Optical, a contact lens manufacturer, and Filene's, a department store.

Agent pleads innocent to spy charge

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The first FBI agent to be charged with espionage appeared in court for arraignment Monday along with his two Soviet co-defendants, and their attorneys entered innocent pleas for all three.

Former agent Richard Miller and emigres Svetlana and Nikolay Ogorodnikov entered their pleas to a 13-count indictment before U.S. District Judge David V. Kenyon.

The three defendants were ~~manacled~~ together as they arrived under tight security for the brief arraignment. At least 10 U.S. marshals were present in the courtroom.

Kenyon set a trial date of Dec. 4, preceded by a status conference on Nov. 5. The defendants remained in custody without bail.

U.S. Attorney Robert Bonner said the government will seek to sever Miller's trial from that of the Ogorodnikovs.

Earlier, the three defendants, manacled together, appeared at an arraignment hearing before U.S. Magistrate James Penne, who read them their rights and asked if they understood them. Russian interpreters translated Penne's words to the Ogorodnikovs.

Members of Miller's family motioned "I love you" to each other in the courtroom in sign of support, which they learned because one of his sons is dead.

An indictment returned Oct. 12 alleges that Miller, 47, a 20-year FBI veteran who was a counterintelligence agent in the agency's Los Angeles office, conspired to pass secrets to the Ogorodnikovs in exchange for $50,000 in gold and $15,000 in cash.

Although the money apparently never changed hands, Miller allegedly received a $673 trench coat in partial return for agreeing to pass on classified documents, writings and information relating to the national defense of the United States.

Miller was fired from the FBI shortly before his arrest Oct. 3.

FBI officials have said Miller, father of eight children, was believed motivated by financial troubles.

The indictment said Miller gave Mrs. Ogorodnikov, who allegedly told him she was a major in the Soviet KGB, at least two classified documents, including a manual on how the United States combats foreign espionage. The other document was not described for national security reasons.

Soviet Vice Consul Alexander Grishin, who has diplomatic immunity, was named as an undicted co-conspirator. FBI wiretaps of Mrs. Ogorodnikov's telephone allegedly include conversations in which Grishin and Mrs. Ogorodnikov, 34, discussed how the classified documents would be delivered in Europe.

Bond reduced for accused Navy spy

BALTIMORE (AP) — A U.S. Navy intelligence analyst accused of giving a British magazine secret government satellite photographs of Soviet ships was ordered freed on $100,000 bond Monday.

Samuel Leroy Morrison, the grandson of a Pulitzer Prize-winning historian, had his bond reduced from $500,000. He has been held since his arrest three weeks ago.

Federal prosecutors and an attorney for Morrison, 40, of Crofton, agreed to the reduced bond as long as Morrison's mother, Judith Morrison of New York City, agreed to forfeit up to $100,000 from her retirement fund if he jumped bail.

Morrison, 40, would be allowed to travel only within Maryland, Washington, D.C., and northern Virginia, or for three-day trips to New York to see his mother with court approval, said U.S. Magistrate Paul Rosenberg. Morrison also was required to forfeit his passport and to report to a federal pretrial unit three times weekly.

The civilian employee of the Naval Intelligence Support Center in Suitland is charged with transmitting and disclosing three classified satellite photographs of a Soviet aircraft carrier and other ships under construction in a Black Sea naval shipyard to Jane's Defense Weekly.

A two-count indictment returned Oct. 9 against Morrison alleged he transmitted defense information in violation of the espionage statute and stole government property.

Experts called to libel trial

NEW YORK (AP) — Vietnam War intelligence reports that are a key issue in Gen. William C. Westmoreland's libel suit against CBS were produced by analysts who were "truly the experts," a retired general told a federal jury Monday.

Westmoreland's analysts "were right there on the front, compared to everyone else who was 3,000 or 6,000 miles away," said Maj. Gen. Chesley Peterson, formerly in charge of military intelligence in the Pacific command in Honolulu.

Westmoreland, the commander of U.S. forces in Vietnam, is suing the network for $120 million. He claims the January 1982 documentary "The Uncounted Enemy: A Vietnam Deception" libeled him by saying he tried to suppress truthful reports about enemy strength to give the impression that the war was winnable.

The documentary asserted that Westmoreland ordered a "ceiling" of 300,000 on estimates of enemy troop strength, despite a CIA analyst's evidence of a larger force.

Peterson testified that intelligence decisions were reached without concern about press reaction or public relations, disputing the CBS documentary.

Groundwater policy called for by study

WASHINGTON (AP) — A government study calls for a national groundwater protection policy to replace "the existing loose network of federal and state programs" which it says is insufficient to protect groundwater supplies from a wide range of pollution threats.

A study to be released later this week by the Office of Technology Assessment says enough information exists to justify national action, according to a media advisory distributed Monday by Sen. Dave Durenberger, R-Minn.

Groundwater provides drinking water to half the nation's population and fills 40 percent of America's irrigation requirements.

The report, "Protecting the Nation's Groundwater from Contamination" will be released at a Capitol Hill news conference on Thursday.

2 Navy pilots die

AURORA, Colo. (AP) — A jet trainer crashed Monday as it approached a runway at Buckley Air National Guard Base here, killing both Navy airmen aboard, an official said.

The crash occurred at 2:34 p.m. as the TA-4J was trying to land at the base in this southeast Denver suburb, said Master Sgt. Doug Stanley, a Buckley spokesman. The jet, which broke into several pieces on impact, crashed in a wildlife preserve south of the base and about a mile short of the runway, he said.

Weekend raids net illegal harvest workers

By HAL BERTON
Times-News writer
HAGERMAN — The federal Border Patrol picked up 46 illegal workers during a series of weekend raids on mesa-top farms in western Twin Falls County and Elmore County.

acres of beets to go. If they (the Border Patrol) would just wait a week these workers are all going to be going back home anyway.
James Stenger, agent-in-charge of the Twin Falls-based Border Patrol office, said that his agency will not time its raids for the farmers' convenience.

Stenger said the illegals were placed on a bus bound for the border town of Calexico, Calif., Sunday evening. A Twin Falls Border Patrol agent accompanied the illegals to ensure that they didn't get off the bus before it reached its destination, he said.

state employment office two weeks ago to try to find American workers. They were only able to find two American workers from Texas who quit after a short time, he said.

Stenger said that illegals picked up on the weekend raids were found lodged in quarters that ranged from one very comfortable facility complete with cable television to drafty trailers with only a range or gas-stove as a heat source.

'Jackpot scribe' has long career

Tisdale sentence appeal upheld

BOISE (AP) — The Idaho Court of Appeals has upheld an indeterminate 10-year prison sentence handed down against a Salt Lake City man for the 1979 shooting death of a Boise man at Twin Falls.

Ward's original 1980 sentence was struck down in December 1982 by the state Court of Appeals, which found the judge had failed to give adequate reasons for his sentence.

Tisdale pleaded guilty to voluntary manslaughter for the Twin Falls killing of David William Nylander after first being charged with second-degree murder.

Busch: McClure planned wilds bill defeat

By The Associated Press

Democratic Senate Candidate Pete Busch, again setting the wilderness issue, charged Republican Sen. James McClure Monday with presiding over a Reagan administration scheme to maximize development in national forests so wilderness designations are precluded.

Assuming the two-term incumbent of doing the bidding of the timber industry, Busch said McClure intended all along that his $26,000-acre wilderness plan, the target of harsh criticism from various quarters, be rejected in the just-completed congressional session.

He claimed that cleared the way for a major roadbuilding campaign that would eliminate proposed tracts from wilderness consideration. "He never intended for it to pass," the long-shot challenger said. "It's quite clear to me that McClure and the timber companies wanted any Idaho wilderness settlement scuttled, leaving the question to be resolved by the road engineers in the Forest Service's upcoming management plans."

McClure, on the campaign trail in eastern Idaho, denied Busch's allegations, saying through spokesman H.D. Palmer that the challenger was "suffering from a severe case of truth decay."

Palmer said McClure made good faith attempts to resolve the state's wilderness debate during the last session but each was rejected by environmentalists.

He also repeated the senior senator's contention that the delegation's original $26,000-acre plan was based on its belief that it offered a balanced approach between development and preservation while complying with the wishes of Idahoans for no major additions to the nearly 4 million acres of land already preserved.

Nationally, however, environmentalists have claimed the Reagan administration is ignoring a court-ordered ban on forest roadbuilding with major plans to construct roads in previously untouched areas under review for possible preservation.

Those plans for Idaho involve road construction in the Salmon River Breaks area of the Elmer, Payette and Salmon National Forests, which sportsmen and environmentalist alike say will imperil crucial salmon and steelhead spawning habitat, and in the Clearwater National Forest, where elk habitat could be jeopardized.

Assistant Agriculture Secretary John Crowell, who oversees the Forest Service, acknowledged in an interview with the Denver Post that he told the service to ignore a court order banning roads unless detailed environmental impact studies were performed.

Crowell, a one-time official of the Louisiana Pacific Corp., among the biggest buyers of federal timber in the nation, denied any agency attempt to overbuild roads in the forests and claimed the projects provide jobs and revenues to the treasury.

Busch argued, however, that the roadbuilding program has completely overshadowed all other National Forest Service programs and that McClure as head of the Natural Resources Committee and the inter- or appropriations subcommittee was at the forefront of those decisions.

He pointed out that the 1982-1983 roadbuilding program in Idaho was more than triple the program during the final two budget years of the Carter administration with another 10,500 miles of forest roads planned over the next 14 years.

"The Forest Service has more road engineers working in Idaho national forests than the state of Idaho employs in its Transportation Department," he said.

At the same time, Busch said, spending for reforestation, soil and water protection, fish and wildlife management and recreational programs has been severely curtailed.

State says rules are effective, adequate

ICL proposes stronger mining rules

BOISE (AP) — The state needs more power to punish mining companies that damage the environment, and it also should be authorized to require bond payments sufficient for land reclamation, the Idaho Conservation League says.

The league on Monday presented several proposals for strengthened state regulation of surface mining in Idaho.

The recommendations came during an Idaho Department of Lands committee meeting at which Lands Director Stan Hamilton requested lists of issues for consideration in the pending review of surface-mining rules.

The biggest contributor was the league, with the Idaho Mining Association declaring existing rules effective and adequate.

The association said the state rules are part of a "mosaic" of regulation. Various government agencies' jurisdictions often overlap, and the combination of their rules results in ample regulation, the industry group said.

ICL spokeswoman Lillian Erickson said multiple regulation enforcement is effective, but the league is concerned about mining activity on private lands in areas were nearby streams and other public property can be affected. In those situations, the state rules alone can't assure protection of the environment, she said.

"Where is the incentive to do a good job?" Ms. Erickson said of the existing rules.

She said revised rules should require mining companies to draw up operating plans and make them available to the public. Presently, the state requires only reclamation plans, and those can be declared confidential at a company's request, she said.

She also said the $750-per-acre bonds that companies must post are too small. That amount of money may not finance restoration of land damaged by a company that subsequently defaults on its agreement with the state, she said.

Another proposal by the conservation league calls for the new rules to cover the surface effects of underground mining. Many of the same land disturbances occur result from subsurface as from open-pit mining, Ms. Erickson said.

The league also wants closer regulation of use of cyanide used to separate ore from rock. In 3 1/2 years there have been four cyanide-related accidents in the central Idaho mining area, Ms. Erickson said. She also proposed that mine operators pay a $100 fee so the state will have more money for inspections.

Rollover kills Salmon man

SALMON (AP) — A 25-year-old Salmon man died on a weekend hunting trip when the pickup truck he was driving overturned as he attempted to drive it up a steep hill.

Michael Brennan died Sunday when his 1982 pickup rolled over him on a steep hillside 10 miles northeast of Salmon, Lemhi County Sheriff William Baker said.

Brennan was attempting to drive the vehicle up a steep hill near the Badger Springs area along Carmen Creek, Baker said, and reportedly jumped from the vehicle after losing control of it.

Brennan died instantly of head injuries when the vehicle rolled over him, Baker said.

Brennan was on a hunting trip with his wife, Angela, at the time.

Funding for ISU not unfair, says legislator

POCATELLO (AP) — The state Board of Education's funding formula is no more unfair to Idaho State University than it is to other state schools, state Sen. C.E. "Chick" Blyyen says.

Blyyen told the Pocatello Chamber of Commerce that ISU receives more money per full-time equivalent (FTE) student than any other school in the state.

"The problem is not at ISU, but with the entire system," Blyyen said. "We here in Pocatello don't hear the arguments from the other schools, but I hear all of them. All the schools are pleading for fiscal help, not just us."

The funding formula was devised precisely because the whole system has been underfunded, Blyyen told the group. He said despite the local furor over the formula, it gives ISU $5,200 per FTE, while BSU gets only $3,600. The University of Idaho gets $5,000, while Lewis-Clark State College gets $4,000.

The Pocatello Democrat, running unopposed for re-election this year, told the chamber the perception that Boise-area legislators "are stretching their long arms into the heart of Idaho State University and draining the lifeblood out of ISU" is a myth.

"Blyyen, whose wife Diane is a member of the state Board of Education, said he has pleaded with ISU administrators to give him specific examples of where the formula has discriminated against ISU.

"I'm still waiting for those specifics," he said.

He said Pocatello has three legislators — himself, Larry Echohawk and Bert Marley — on the powerful Joint Finance and Appropriations Committee, while Boise has just one — Republican Kathleen "Kitty" Gurnsey.

Blyyen also said he was the loudest voice for higher education in the Senate, and that no state senator from Boise spoke out for higher education during the last session of the Idaho Legislature.

The problem with ISU, and with every university in the state, is that the entire appropriation for higher education is too low, he said.

Shelley girl dies from burns in house fire

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — A 3-year-old Idaho girl died at the University of Utah's Intermountain Burn Center from burns she suffered in a house fire at her home in Shelley, officials said.

Victoria Lovvick died Sunday. She was burned in a Friday fire at her home.

The child, daughter of Bernadette Grayby, had second- and third-degree burns over 57 percent of her body and extensive internal injuries from inhaling smoke from the fire, which started about 11:30 a.m. at the family home, a hospital spokeswoman said.

She was rescued from the burning house by Frank Butler of the Shelley Quick Response Unit. After being taken to Idaho Falls Consolidated Hospital's Riverview facility, she was transferred by airplane to the burn center.

Butler was quoted Friday as saying he believed the fire started from a woodburning stove, but said Monday he was not sure.

"We're a volunteer group and are not trained to make judgments like that," Butler said.

He said Mrs. Grayby was at work when the fire occurred and that her children were in the care of a babysitter. He said the older children, were playing outside when the fire started, but that Victoria had apparently gone inside and climbed onto a bed to play. "She was found in one of the bedrooms," he said.

Man sleeps in stolen car

WALLACE (AP) — A Wallace, Idaho man was arrested after he was found sleeping in a car he allegedly stole, according to city police.

William S. Gray, 21, was brought to the Shoshone County Jail on Saturday by a man who made a citizens arrest on Gray as the defendant was sleeping in the car on Lookout Pass along Interstate 90, police reported Monday.

The vehicle had been reported stolen late Friday night from in front of a local tavern, police said.

Shortly after sunrise, a friend of the vehicle's owner spotted the car and Gray sleeping in the back seat, police said.

The friend asked police to withhold his identity, police said.

Gray was charged with grand larceny-auto theft by city police.

Boise Cascade closes sawmill

BOISE (AP) — As part of its effort to consolidate its western wood products operations, Boise Cascade Corp. has permanently closed a small sawmill at Aberdeen, Wash.

The company announced the move on Friday. The sawmill, which employed 62 persons, had been idle since Aug. 10 because of the depressed timber market. Earlier in the month, Boise Cascade also announced closure of its sawmill at Clatskanie, Ore.

A spokesman said no more permanent shutdowns are planned at the firm's 23 sawmill plywood mill-venor plants. That includes plants in Idaho at Council, Emmett, Cassada and Horsehoe Bend.

Shooting ruled accidental

BOISE (AP) — Authorities have determined that the weekend shooting death of a Boise man at a local plant nursery was accidental.

Detective Randy Buzzini said an investigation determined that Antonio Maldonado Delson apparently accidentally shot himself in the head with a small caliber pistol.

'Lemons' returned to service

CALDWELL (AP) — Canyon County will use four police cars the county commission previously said were lemons meriting a lawsuit. Commissioners made the decision to use the cars after a considering litigation costs and the possibility a suit filed last year would not be won.

The Nampa motor company that supplied the 1983 Plymouth patrol cars has declared their braking systems in order, county officials said. Commissioners had contended the cars swerved when the brakes were used.

Commissioner Glenn Koch said the four cars will be used in non-emergency service areas patrolled by the Canyon County Sheriff's Department.

Boise man dies in rollover

ATLANTA (AP) — A Boise man whose body was found in the wreckage of his pickup on Friday near Atlanta apparently died when his pickup rolled down an embankment on Thursday, an Elmore County Coroner's spokesman said.

R. Dennis Welch, 35, was killed when he rolled down an embankment about 7 miles west of Atlanta on Middle Fork Road — the main road into Atlanta, Elmore County Deputy Coroner David Humpherys said.

He said Welch was partially ejected through a window and the vehicle rolled over him. Welch was alone in the vehicle, Humpherys said.

Plunge into river kills man

RIGGINS (AP) — A Boise man was killed when a pickup in which he was riding went off a rural road, rolled down a 200-foot embankment and plunged into the Salmon River near Riggins, Idaho State Police said Sunday.

Kelley Turnbull, 40, died at the scene, police said. The driver of the pickup, 22-year-old Michael Dellgard of Boise, was treated at McCall Memorial Hospital and released Sunday evening, a hospital spokeswoman said.

Police said Dellgard was charged with aggravated driving under the influence of alcohol.

Payette girl dies in accident

PAYETTE (AP) — An 11-year-old Payette girl has been killed in a car-pedestrian accident here.

Idaho State Police identified the victim as Leslie Jo-Ella Palmer. Investigating officers said the girl was crossing U.S. 95 Friday night when she was struck by a vehicle.

McClure opposes surcharge on power

POCATELLO (AP) — A proposal by the Northwest Power-Planning Council to impose a surcharge on power sales to utilities that fail to comply with a model conservation program is running into opposition from Idaho's senior senator.

Sen. James McClure blasted the regional power board before a Pocatello audience Friday for what he said was its claim to higher authority than Congress ever intended.

"The Congress never granted the Northwest Power-Planning Council the power to impose standards and regulations that supersede local and state authority," McClure said.

The council is considering authorizing the Bonneville Power Administration to slap a 10-percent surcharge on energy purchased from the federal power cooperative if utilities do not meet conservation standards for building construction set down by the board.

Rural utilities in Idaho, which buy the bulk of their electricity from the BPA, have objected to the plan, calling it unenforceable and possibly illegal.

Idaho Power Co. has been telling customers it cannot advise them regarding adoption of the planning council's conservation standards.

Several local governments have asked the company if failure to adopt the council's standards would adversely affect Idaho.

Idaho Power Co. has been telling customers it cannot advise them regarding adoption of the planning council's conservation standards.

Several local governments have asked the company if failure to adopt the council's standards would adversely affect Idaho Power customers living with the jurisdictions of those governments, utility spokesman Larry Taylor said.

Arson suspected in Lewiston fires

LEWISTON (AP) — As many as nine recent arson fires appear to be the work of the same person or persons using the same accelerant, the Lewiston police chief announced.

The latest fire, which destroyed a storage annex at the Lewiston Grain Growers Inc. complex last Tuesday, has also been determined as arson, Chief Rod Frederiksen said at a press conference Monday.

Frederiksen identified the accelerant as turpentine. The amount used varied, but up to five gallons was used to start one fire, he said.

The seven-member task force is continuing to investigate the arsons, which began during the summer. The task force includes officials from the Lewiston police and fire departments, the Nez Perce County Sheriff's Department, the federal Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms, plus technicians from the North Idaho Crime Lab at Coeur d'Alene, the Washington State Patrol crime lab and a crime lab at Portland, Ore.

Frederiksen said he released the information in case anyone knows of persons buying or storing large amounts of turpentine.

Meese hopes to see repeal of exclusionary rule for police

By BOB BLACK
The Associated Press

SALT LAKE CITY — U.S. Attorney General-designate Edwin Meese III says he hopes the courts one day will "do away with the exclusionary rule in its entirety."

Meese, who has been the Reagan Administration's attorney general designate since Jan. 23, also cautioned the International Association of Chiefs of Police convention on Monday that law officers need to use continued "good police work" or courts will take back gains already made.

Police officers have been assisted by four landmark U.S. Supreme Court decisions that repeal portions of the so-called exclusionary rule, which Meese said has been the "bane of law enforcement for so long."

The rulings allow admission of some evidence, even though officers may have technically erred when gathering it.

The court has ruled there can be an exception to the exclusionary rule if it can be shown the officer acted in good faith, he said. Meese said the rulings demonstrate the court feels "we should not take truth out of the courtroom."

"The court said in making this balance between the defendant's rights and public safety, it is important that we recognize the social costs of that exclusionary rule," Meese said, adding that criminals who are freed on technicalities often commit additional crimes.

Meese was nominated early this year to be President Reagan's attorney general, but he was later accused of failing to list a 1980 loan for $15,000 from Californian Edwin Thomas before Meese gave Thomas' wife and son jobs in the Reagan Administration.

A special prosecutor was appointed in April and found there was no evidence of criminal wrongdoing, but the Senate has not yet approved Meese's nomination.

Meese said crime rates have decreased nationwide since the 1960s and 1970s and several factors are responsible.

In recent years, "the probability of arrest and incarceration of serious criminals has increased" as state laws have become tougher and judges have sent "more and more serious criminals to prison," he said. Earlier Monday, the U.S. Marshals Service national director said there will be weapons-screening devices in every federal courtroom by the end of 1986.

Stanley E. Morris said increased enforcement of drug laws, tougher sentences and higher bails ensure desperate suspects and criminals will use threats of violence to avoid prison.

Meese said the Federal Bureau of Investigation has increased its "war on drugs" and "we are making record seizures (of drugs) before they enter the country and as they enter the country."

Another factor contributing to the declining crime rate, Meese said, is "a change of society's attitude toward crime." He said "we've turned away from sociologists" and others who "sought to place the blame for crimes on everybody but the criminals."

Despite the gains, Meese said, "this is no time for euphoria," and he called on the police chiefs to continue educating the public and judges.

"If anything, we need to redouble our efforts," Meese said. Morris said the attorney general's office has increased its efforts against organized crime, and the Marshals' Service has initiated a witness protection program that has become increasingly important.

The service protects witnesses, who are often former members of organized crime families, by giving them new identities and moving them to new homes.

About 4,500 people a year go through the program, which costs about $30 million a year, and Morris said to one involved in the program has been killed in retaliation for testifying.

Sting nets 120 arrests in Nevada

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — A nine-month sting financed by $100,000 in contributions has resulted in 120 arrests and the recovery of $500,000 in stolen property, authorities said Monday.

Dubbed "Operation STIP," the sting is being hailed as the most successful in Nevada history.

Those arrested include 68 nabbed in pre-dawn raids Saturday. Details of the raids and the sting were announced by police Monday.

Police say more than 40 corporations and individuals contributed to STIP, an acronym for Special Investigative Trust Fund.

The contributors funded a phony store front operation to process stolen merchandise, police said. Authorities declined to discuss details of the sting, saying a similar operation might be used again.

Sheriff John Moran called the arrests a major blow to the Las Vegas criminal community and forecast criminals "will be looking over their shoulder" because of the weekend raid.

'Newspaper rock' rolls, closes trail

HOLBROOK (AP) — Petrified Forest National Park's "Newspaper Rock" is on the National Register of Historic Places. Now, it's on a list of places difficult to get to.

A large boulder loosened by rains in August and September crashed onto the trail leading to the rock in early October, Susan Colclazer, a National Park Service management assistant, said Monday.

Acting after park employees noted ground movement, officials had closed the trail the day before the 3,000-pound boulder shifted, she said.

"Fortunately they closed it before anybody walked down and was under (the boulder)," she said.

Newspaper Rock got its name from hundreds of petroglyphs carved by Indians on a huge boulder at the bottom of a slope. The trail to the site goes down the slope.

The slope's soil has shifted several inches, Ms. Colclazer said. "The steps are moving and cracking up," she said.

In addition, boulders still on the slope also appear to be moving. If they were to roll down the slope, they could damage Newspaper Rock itself, she said.

Rock Springs man dies in bar fight

ROCK SPRINGS, Wyo. (AP) — One man is dead, another critically injured and a third in custody as the result of a shooting outside a Rock Springs bar, police officials said Monday.

The three men had been drinking heavily and began fighting, verbally and physically, at Giovalle's bar prior to the Friday night shooting, which took place in the street near the bar, according to Rock Springs Police Lt. Tom Tufford.

Sweetwater County Coroner said James George Richmond, 29, of Rock Springs, died of hemorrhaging in the abdomen. Donald White, 29, of Rock Springs, was listed in critical condition at Sweetwater County Memorial Hospital with a wound to the lower back.

Tufford said the suspect in the shooting was Henry Joseph Summer, 35, of Rock Springs. Two shots from a .22-caliber pistol were fired, Tufford said.

Tuxedo rental tab a big surprise

DEAR ABBY: Please print this so parents will think twice before planning a "sky's the limit" wedding for their son or daughter.

Abigail VanBuren Dear Abby

When a college fraternity brother asked him to be an usher at his wedding. Although this meant a long trip either by plane or automobile, as well as time off from work, our son agreed. What he did not realize (nor was there any mention of this until the day before the wedding), he was expected to pick up a tab of $70 for his tux rental! We were floored when we were informed at the tux rental shop that the wedding had become too expensive for the groom's family, so everybody had to pay for his own.

attending college of Ames, Iowa. I've fallen in love with a young man whose father was a farmer, and he intends to follow in his father's footsteps. What are my chances for happiness as a farmer's wife? Do you have any statistics on this?

Since our son is not financially well-off, we are paying for his tux rental. Weddings with the attendants all dressed alike make a pretty picture, but in my opinion, unless the bride and groom or their parents are prepared to foot the bill, the wedding should be kept on a more conservative scale.

DISILLUSIONED BY FANCY WEDDINGS DEAR DISILLUSIONED: When the bride and groom select their attendants, they should state whether they will pick up the tab for tux rental and attendants' gowns. Unless the bride and groom are extraordinarily well-to-do, the attendants are expected to provide for their own gowns and tuxes, but this should be clearly understood when the attendants are invited to serve.

DEAR ABBY: While shopping in a card shop recently, I remarked to an elderly woman standing near me that it was difficult to find just the right "get well" card.

She replied, "Yes, especially when you know that the person is not going to get well."

The lady was right. As I looked at card after card in the "get well" section, they all bore the same message: "Please, get well soon!"

Abby, the reality of life is that many sick people do not get well, so to send such a card to a terminally ill person who is aware of his condition is to deny reality.

I am not suggesting that we send a card saying, "I know you're dying and I hope it will be as easy as possible," but, Abby, surely there must be some way to say, "I hope you're comfortable."

Thanks for listening. REV. DOROTHY LAIRMORE, PHOENIX, ARIZ.

DEAR MS. LAIRMORE: Your point well-taken. Next time, look in the "friendship" section. You will find cards that say, "Thinking of you," or, "I value your friendship," and if you can't find an appropriate message, write one.

CONFIDENTIAL TO YOU: If you are not registered, you cannot vote. If you do not vote, you are voting AGAINST the candidate of your choice. Your vote IS important. Edmund Burke is reported to have said: The only thing necessary for the triumph of evil is for good men to do nothing.

Grocery buying a mystery

One by one the mystiques of meat and women are crumbling. We have done in-depth psychological studies on why men like football, why women buy shoes that hurt their feet, why men refuse to answer the phone when it rings, and why women go to the restroom. The average woman goes to the supermarket for a quart of milk and emerges with two full shopping carts. The easy answer is when women enter a supermarket, the air becomes thinner and they black out. When the air hits them, they are $103.93 thinner than when they went in. The real answer takes longer and is more complicated. First, a little history. Women have always been foragers for food. In the animal kingdom, it is the female lion who drags back an impala for lunch and then sits there while the males stuff themselves before she gets to eat. In the days B.S. (Before Supermarkets), the men used to track down something furry with bad breath and bring it home to be cleaned, cooked and served by the little woman. When the first general store came upon the scene, men (and wisely so) gave the job back to women. They told them it would be a social experience where they could visit with neighbors, buy a piece of candy for the kids, a length of calico for themselves and then load up the backboard with a year's provisions. The supermarket experience, as we know it today, is not for sissies. It begins with the cart delicately engineered so that when you push it forward it runs backward over your foot. You go from the heat of revolving barbecue spits to the bone-chilling cold of the frozen turkeys, to the humidity of the produce within seconds. There's a child seat in the cart where the child's legs can kick you in the stomach as you shop. There's the Garden of Eden waiting room (at the check-out) featuring gum, The National Inquisition, fresh flowers, sunglasses and fresh baked croissants to tempt you. Aisle upon aisle is lined with free entry blanks (win a trip to Florida), sample pizza and pastrami, bonus coupons, introductory offers, coupons to be redeemed, get one free, new, improved, revolutionary, buy me, try me. When a woman goes into a supermarket for a quart of milk, it's perhaps the greatest challenge she will face in her entire life. I cannot tell you the pressure of trying to get down an aisle without a cookie reaching out and whining, "Make me yours," or a bag of potato chips jumping into her arms and whispering sensuously, "You need me." The supermarkets are women's Mount Everest, their Olympic Marathon, their Armageddon. We're fighting for our lives. I know you wouldn't understand.

Buying fine furniture is a sound investment

By HOUSE BEAUTIFUL

Today's high quality furniture may become tomorrow's high-priced antique, which makes buying fine furniture a sound investment.

House Beautiful gives the following tips on recognizing quality as an investment in your home.

- The appearance and durability of upholstery fabric is related to its fiber content, weave and finish. Generally, a close woven fabric will wear the longest; patterns and medium or dark colors will show the least soil.
- Look, too, for fabrics treated to resist soil.
- When shopping for sofas and chairs, make sure cushions are properly sized and shaped to fit snugly and evenly. Unzip a cushion cover. If it has a sturdy cotton ticking and feels substantial, it is more likely to be of good quality.
- Better furniture is built with tight springs that add to comfort and durability. You can feel the springs by putting your hand under the cushion seat. The higher the number of coil rows, the better the piece. Three rows are good; four is best.
- Wood furniture usually is more expensive because of higher material costs and the amount of hand craftsmanship required. Sometimes 25 steps are required for a wood piece, including sanding, rubbing, glazing and padding.
- Finishes should feel smooth to the touch, with no rough or uneven edges. They should be clear to reveal the figure or grain of the wood. They should exhibit a glowing depth of patina.
- Inlays and marquetry are two of the aesthetically pleasing effects achieved through veneer construction with solid woods. Veneers do not indicate inferior finishes — antiques with intricate veneer patterns currently are bringing record prices at auction.

Showdown set for Bozeman

By The Associated Press

For weeks now football coaches at Boise State and Montana State have been calling each Saturday's Big Sky conference matchup "crucial" or "pivotal." Next week, they'll mean it.

Boise State stretched its five-game winning streak with a 35-7 walkover of Montana, and Montana State kept its momentum alive with a 45-27 drubbing of Portland State on Saturday to set up a truly "crucial" and "pivotal" meeting between the Broncos and Bobcats.

the Broncos on their own turf.

However, "It's tough to go through 11 games and be emotionally high for each one," Arnold said.

Boise State, after a tough two-game road trip that ended with a struggling offensive performance in a 14-12 victory over Northern Arizona, remembered how to score points on Saturday.

Harris, who earned Player of the Week honors for his 397-yards passing Saturday, is now averaging just over 300 yards a game in total offense.

That was enough to push him past Montana State quarterback Kelly Bradley, who hit 22 of 35 passes for 257 yards in Saturday's 45-22 Bobcat victory over Portland State. Bradley is averaging 291 yards a game in total offense, second in the league.

And when the balloon goes up in Bozeman, Mont., Saturday, expect the fur to fly. BSU comes into the contest with its offense, especially its ground game, rejuvenated and its defense sky high. MSU, on the other hand, can play the role of the traditional underdog -- with nothing to lose and the whole world to gain.

Montana State came into the season picked by everyone except the familiar with the Big Sky not as the team to beat, but as the team that was already beaten. The Bobcats' record was 1-10 before they strapped on their thigh pads for two-day drills.

Now, seven games into the season and a lot of changed minds later, Montana State is 3-1 in the league and 5-2 overall. Coach Dave Arnold's Bobcats trail perennial powerhouse Boise State by only a half game, and they have the advantage of meeting

But rather than leaning on the prodigious arm of sophomore Hazen Coates, the Broncos kept it on the ground to the tune of 386 yards, including 100-yard-plus performances from Jon Francis and Dean Collins.

"We didn't want it to be like Northern Arizona -- no points, no production," said Francis.

Meanwhile, Idaho State stayed firmly in the title hunt with a 29-15 victory over Northern Arizona in Flagstaff. The Bengals and their Son of BYU passing offense picked up 397 yards through the rarified air of Walkup Skydome to keep pace with Montana State at 3-1 in the Big Sky, 4-3 overall.

It was the second tough loss at home for the Lumberjacks, who fell to 2-3 in the league and 4-4 overall after being touted as a preseason team to watch.

Idaho State quarterback Vern Harris became the Big Sky Conference's total offensive leader this week on the strength of his impressive showing this weekend in a crucial 29-15 victory over Northern Arizona University.

The Bengals and Montana State are tied for second in the Big Sky, both at 3-1 in the conference just a half game behind Boise State.

The Broncos, 4-0 in conference play and riding a five-game winning streak, also improved their standing in league statistics this week as they head into a key matchup against the Bobcats Saturday in Bozeman.

After rolling up 386 yards rushing in his 35-7 drubbing of last place Montana, the Broncos moved 1 first-place in the conference in rushing MISSION, Kan. — Boise State has jumped from 14th to eighth place, in the latest NCAA Division I-AA college football poll.

The Broncos, who improved their season record to 5-2 last Saturday with a 35-7 victory over Montana, are tied with McNeese State of Louisiana and Murray State of Kentucky for the No. 8 position in the survey of sportswriters and broadcasters.

Indiana State continues to lead the survey for the third straight week.

Rams offense too explosive for Falcons

By DAVE GOLDBERG
The Associated Press

ATLANTA — It was hard to tell these were the same Los Angeles Rams who only two weeks ago lost a 30-28 decision to the Atlanta Falcons. Atlanta, no less.

There were no 30 points for the Falcons Monday night — the Rams cruised home 24-10 as a defense led by linebackers Jim Collins, Carl Eckern and Mel Owens limited the Falcons to only 97 total yards and Henry Ellard and Ernie Dickerson supplied the offense.

Ellard was the main show, returning a punt 69 yards for a touchdown, setting up a second score with a 29-yard punt return and catching a 9-yard pass for a third TD, all in the second quarter when the Rams scored 21 of the points.

But Los Angeles Coach John Robinson was more interested in talking about the first meeting, just two weeks ago, when the Falcons controlled the ball on the ground.

"They pretty much rammed it down our throats in that game," he said. "This time, we stopped them pretty well."

Well, indeed. The Falcons—who didn't score their touchdown until 1:08 remained in a game that was long since out of hand, were limited to 79 yards on the ground. And Gerald Riggs, the NFL's fourth-leading rusher coming into the game, could get only 66 yards in 20 carries.

"We had a pretty good idea that they would come out to run the football, and we pretty much knew that would be their game plan," Robinson said. "But the real reason we stopped them is that we just played better."

Ellard, who led the NFL in punt returns last year as a rookie and leads again this season, bruised his thigh on an early punt return and his 69-yard TD run came with that thigh aching. He sat out the second half as a precautionary measure.

It was also his third return-for-a-touchdown in nine games dating back to last year.

"I love it," he said of running back punts. "I just love running with the ball and that just gives me more chances, more opportunities. Anytime I get a chance I feel I can go all the way."

It was Ellard's show as the Rams ran their record to 5-3 and stayed two games behind San Francisco in the NFC West.

The 5-foot-11, 170-pound second-year man from Fresno State got the Rams going by returning Ralph Giacomarro's punt 29 yards—to the Atlanta 43 late in the first period.

Eight plays later, Dickerson burst off tackle from the 10 and into the end zone for the first score of the game. Dickerson finished with 142 yards.

BRUIN STADIUM Prep sports go on

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls school district athletic events and practices will not be affected by the work stoppage in District 411, with one exception.

Twin Falls High girls' basketball Coach Paul Stover, whose team was supposed to begin practice Monday for its Nov. 6 season-opening game, said drills will not begin until students and teachers return to school.

District athletic director Al Glanders said Monday that all of the district's scheduled athletic events this week would proceed as scheduled, including trips by the Twin Falls High volleyball team to the state Class A-I tournament in Sandpoint next weekend and by the Bruin cross country team to the state meet in Idaho Falls on Saturday.

Also unaffected by the work stoppage will be Twin Falls' scheduled varsity football game Friday against Idaho Falls, set for 8 p.m. in Bruin Stadium.

Twin Falls High football Coach Bill Jones, cross country coach Jerry Kirkpatrik and volleyball Coach Kathy Anderson all said practices would continue this week as usual, although perhaps at times other than the late-afternoon hours during which they are normally held. All three coaches held drills on Monday.

Sims lost to Detroit for the season...

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — Detroit Lions running back Billy Sims is out for the season after having surgery to repair his injured right knee, Coach Monte Clark said early Tuesday.

Sims underwent surgery at Henry Ford Hospital in Detroit. Dr. Robert A. Teitge, the team physician, said he repaired one torn cartilage and two torn ligaments in Sims' knee.

"The operation went very well," Clark said. "The doctor told me just after midnight that he was very optimistic about a full return by Billy next spring."

Sims picked up 103 yards on 22 carries Sunday, before being hurt midway through the third quarter in the Lions' 16-14 National Football League victory over the Minnesota Vikings.

The game was Sims' fourth of the season in which he gained 100 yards or more and the 23rd of his career. In 60 NFL games, the Heisman Trophy-winner from Oklahoma has rushed 1,131 times for a club-record 5,106 yards.

Sims scored Detroit's only touchdown Sunday, his 42nd rushing TD and 47th overall.

"If we lose Billy, we'll have to go with Dexter Bussey and Kenny Jenkins," Clark said at his weekly news conference Monday afternoon, before he knew the extent of Sims' injury. "We're also looking to change our offense a little bit and possibly use (fullback) James Jones more in the one-back set."

KELLEN WINSLOW 'Serious' damage

Winslow could be sidelined forever

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Kellen Winslow, the National Football League's leading receiver over the past six years, will not know for six months whether he can ever return to football, a San Diego Chargers physician said Monday in San Diego.

Dr. Gary Losee said the ligaments in Winslow's right knee looked like "spaghetti" — like a couple of rope ends — after the light and went down following a catch in the fourth quarter of the Chargers' 44-37 loss to the Los Angeles Raiders on Sunday.

"The ligaments had almost an explosion-like appearance," said Losee, who operated on Winslow for 2½ hours Sunday night. "It's a very, very severe injury."

He declined to talk to reporters after the game. Losee said Monday his patient's response was "very appropriate. If he hadn't been upset before being informed of this nature of injury, I'd have been worried."

Losee said Winslow will never regain 100 percent use of the knee — "we would hope for it to return to 65 percent" — and will be sidelined for nine months to a year even if his recovery is perfect.

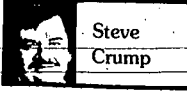

The 6-foot-5, 240-pounder will be in a cast for eight weeks, then in rehabilitation for the better part of a year. In six months, Losee said, Winslow may be allowed to try running and pivoting on the knee to determine if he can ever rejoin the Chargers.

This business of college football polling highly scientific

TWIN FALLS — For 11 weeks this fall, I am one of 50-odd sportswriters and broadcasters in the country who determine who's the Best College Football Team in the Country. And the next Best 10. And by exclusion, I suppose, the next best 102.

The task is intrinsically a little silly, sort of like picking the 20 best politicians in the country. Who can tell whether, for example, Jesse Jackson should be ranked ahead of Jerry Falwell?

The rules of The Associated Press football polls are that the members of the panel — all of whom work for AP member newspapers, television or radio stations — must choose the very best Division I-A football teams in the whole republic each and every week, then line them up like bowling pins. The first-place team gets 20 points, the second 19 points, the third 18 points, and so on. An AP computer in New York inhales the ballots, eiphers the results and announces them to a fellow named Herschel Nissensohn, who has the incredibly dull job of telling the whole world each week that Oklahoma State is still ranked 15th.

The task of picking the best team in the land isn't all that difficult. You just look for an undefeated football power with an outrageous mismatch on its schedule and calculate the time it will take for that team to lose to the aforementioned underdog.

The rest is easy, too, mull you got to about the No. 4 spot, when the moral implications of putting BYU (conquerer of mighty Baylor and Colorado State) ahead of Southern Methodist (which crushed Louisville, North Texas State and Texas Instruments in quick succession) begin to nuzzle the conscience.

At about the No. 15 spot, you face the issue of whether a football powerhouse with a bad team (say Notre Dame) is better than a Bottom 10 team (say Vanderbilt or Oregon) with an uncharacteristically noble record.

Then there's the issue of whether a loss by a Top 20 team is sufficiently humiliating to warrant the banishing of the loser from the ranks of the select. Most of the panel took a dim view of Nebraska's loss to Syracuse earlier in the season; I suspect a few even dropped the previously top-ranked Huskers from the First Ten. On the other hand, Auburn (6-3) and Miami (7-2) have been spared the voters' wrath because they schedule opponents that are upwardly mobile.

The worst sin an aspiring Top 20 team can commit is to schedule I-AA schools. I submit the case of Fullerton State, whose 8-0 record is the best in the nation. Fullerton State, which also has the disadvantage of being a member of the Pacific Coast Athletic Conference, considered in better circles to be a jumped-up aggregation of Junior college transfers with pretensions of network television revenue — has played Boise State, Idaho and Nevada-Reno this season. That simply isn't done.

But the toughest job facing a football pundit charged with separating the sheep from the goats is picking the last sheep — or, if you prefer, the top goat. No. 20.

The Hobson's choice this week was among the Bad News Bears of UCLA (6-4), Clemson (4-2), Virginia (5-1), Houston (4-2), TCU (5-1), Kentucky (5-1), Memphis State (5-1), Army (4-1), Penn State (5-2), Virginia Tech (5-2) or selected inmates of the Texas State Prison (10-15). Alternatively, there's Fullerton

State, Nevada-Las Vegas (6-1), Fresno State (6-1), Central Michigan (6-0-1) or Toledo (5-0-1), all teams that associate with a lower class of college and that recruit in their own states.

I rejected TCU (the Horned Frogs have won five games in a single season this year for the first time in a decade) in favor of Kentucky, which fell to LSU by just 26 points on Saturday. Somehow, though, I couldn't make my trembling fingers write K-E-N-T-U-C-K-Y on a ballot for a Top 20 football poll. So I did the next-best thing...

I put my No. 19 pick, Georgia, in 20th place, stuck Fullerton State in ninth place and moved numbers 10 through 16 down a notch. And you thought these things were done arbitrarily.

Floundering Browns sack Rutigliano

By CHUCK MELVIN The Associated Press

CLEVELAND — Sam Rutigliano was fired as head coach of the Cleveland Browns Monday and replaced by defensive coordinator Marty Schottenheimer.

SAM RUTIGLIANO Gone after 6 seasons

Rutigliano, 52, coach of the National Football League team since 1978 and also a vice president, was asked to remain with the Browns' front office by owner Art Modell.

He will stay with the team in another capacity. "As I perceive it, this is fresh start. We've got to get this organization back to winning ways," said Schottenheimer.

quarterback for next week's game against New Orleans. McDonald became the Browns' starter this season because of the departure of Brian Sipe to the United States Football League.

"Anytime you find a situation where the quarterback is in transition ... you have some problems," Schottenheimer said. "But Paul's thrown for over 300 yards a couple of times. There are signs he is coming around."

Schottenheimer said he plans to make no changes in the Browns' highly rated defense, but he will discuss with the team's offensive coaches this week whether adjustments are needed in the offensive unit, which has sputtered all season and averaged fewer than 13 points a game.

Schottenheimer's defensive duties will be assumed by linebacker coach Dave Adolph. Rutigliano, the fifth coach in Browns' history, replaced Forrest Gregg after the 1977 season. Rutigliano was the first head coach ever hired from outside the organization, coming over from an assistant coaching position with the New Orleans Saints.

Cleveland was erratic after that, falling to 5-11 in 1981, 4-5 in the strike-shortened 1982 season and 9-7 last year.

Rutigliano, though, was already fifth in seniority among NFL head coaches with the same team, tied with Lindy Infante, Chuck Noll of Pittsburgh, Don Shula of Miami and John McKay of Tampa Bay. His career record fell to 47-50.

"I only have one regret — that I wasn't able to completely get the job done," Rutigliano said. "Today I've become the No. 1 fan of the Cleveland Browns."

Modell made the move amid heavy media and fan criticism of Rutigliano, despite earlier assurances that he would not change coaches in mid-season. "It's way out of character for me to do this," Modell said. "Sam Rutigliano represents what I consider to be quality, integrity and character. There are very few like him in professional sports today."

He improved Cleveland's record from 8-8 his first season to 9-7 in 1979 and an AFC Central Division-leading 11-5 in 1980, before the Browns dropped a heartbreaking 14-12 game to the eventual Super Bowl champion Oakland Raiders in the playoffs.

State volleyball pairings set

BOISE — The Idaho High School Activities Association announced first-round pairings Monday for next week's state high school volleyball tournament.

The Class A-1 and A-2 tournaments will be played in Sandpoint while the A-3 and A-4 tournaments will take place at Idaho Falls High School. Both tournaments will start Friday and conclude Saturday.

District 4 A-1 champion Twin Falls will face District 3 runner-up Blackfoot in the first round of the A-1 tournament at 7 p.m. MDT Friday. The Bruins, the Gem State Conference champions, defeated Blackfoot twice during the regular season.

District 4 A-2 champ Wood River will face District 1 winner Bismarck in the opening match of that tournament, at 6:30 p.m. MDT Friday.

In Idaho Falls, District 4 Class A-3 champ Gooding will take on District 5 defending state champion Hamlet in the first match at 4:30 p.m., while District 4 runner-up and Canyon Conference champion Shoshone will face District 3 champion Homedale at 7 p.m.

In the A-4 tournament, District 4 runner-up Hagerman will take on District 3 champion Cambridge in the opening match at 4:30 p.m., the third-place team from District 4 — Ketchum/Sun Valley Community School — will meet District 1 champion Malheur at 6 p.m., while at 7:30, District 4 champion Dietrich will face District 6 champ Clark County.

Hagerman grid finale switched

HAGERMAN — Hagerman High School's scheduled Friday night Magic Valley Conference football game against Hansen has been switched to Thursday night.

Kickoff time for the game, the last of the season for both teams, will be 7 p.m.

Bruin golf benefit set Oct. 28

TWIN FALLS — In order to raise money for the upcoming season, the Twin Falls High School golf team will hold a scramble at the Twin Falls Municipal Golf Course on Sunday, Oct. 28.

The entry fee will be $10 plus greens fees and players must be signed up by 9 a.m. A 9:30 a.m. breakfast will precede the 10-hole event. Half of the collected money will aid the golf team, while the other half will go back into prize money.

Mavericks deal for No. 1 pick

DALLAS (AP) — The Dallas Mavericks traded forward Bill Garrett and guard Trent Stansbury to Indiana Monday for the Pacers' first-round draft choice in the 1990 National Basketball Association draft.

If that pick is among the seven best that year, the Mavericks instead would receive the Pacers' 1991 draft choice.

Garrett, a 6-foot-4 forward drafted fourth overall in 1982 from Wyoming, "never was able to reach our full expectations for him and hopefully he will be able to earn minutes at Indiana that he would have had difficulty receiving here in Dallas," said Mavericks General Manager Norm Sonju.

Stansbury, a 6-5 guard drafted in the first round this year from Temple, "was beaten out by Howard Carter, who was not on our roster when we drafted Stansbury," Sonju said.

More Cubs file for free agency

NEW YORK (AP) — Two more Chicago Cubs pitchers, Dennis Ebelersky and Tim Stoddard, went among eleven players who filed for free agency Monday, the Major League Players Association said.

That brought the number of Cubs free-agent pitchers to four and the total number of declared free agents to 37. Rick Sutcliffe, the ace of the Cubs staff, and Rick Reuschel filed for free agency last week.

The deadline for filing for free agency is midnight Oct. 26. Clubs have until Nov. 6 to try to re-sign their free-agent players.

Also among those declaring free agency Monday were two and a half infielders: Darrell Thomas. The rest of the latest free agents were pinch-hitter Benny Ayala of the Baltimore Orioles, pitcher Rudy May of the New York Yankees and outfielder Gene Richards of the San Francisco Giants.

with over 206 yards a game, supplanting Nevada Reno with its 192 yards-per-game average.

Montana State is the league leader in scoring, averaging just under 32 points a game.

Idaho State has the leading passing offense at nearly 334 yards a game, and the Bengals pace the conference in total offense with over 456 yards a game.

But Boise State and Montana State, ranking second and third respectively in total offense, are both within 25 yards of ISU.

Francis rolled up 161 yards in 27 carries over the weekend to jump from third to first in the battle for the Big Sky rushing title. Francis is now averaging just over 98 yards per game.

He improved Manti Hoge of Idaho State, who remains the league's leading all-purpose runner, is averaging just under 92 yards a game rushing.

On the defensive side, Montana State leads the Big Sky with less than 267 total yards given up each game.

The Bobcats also have the best defense against the run, permitting less than 84 yards a game on the ground.

Idaho State leads the league in scoring defense, however, allowing only 17.4 point a game.

Pro Basketball

This could be Detroit's, Dallas year

Editor's note: The 39th National Basketball Association season opens Friday. The following is a team-by-team preview of each of the NBA's 22 ballclubs.

By WILLIAM R. BARNARD The Associated Press

Team-by-team rundown for the 1984-85 National Basketball Association season, in predicted order finish:

EASTERN CONFERENCE Atlantic Division BOSTON - For several years, the Celtics have been a front line-dominated team, which always has been enough to make them one of the best teams in the NBA. Last year they got just enough help from new acquisition Dennis Johnson, a defensive stalwart at guard who stiffed Magic Johnson in the championship series, to make them No. 1. Basically, Boston is standing pat with regular season and playoff MVP Larry Bird, Kevin McHale, Robert Parish and Cedric Maxwell up front, and Johnson and Gerald Henderson the starting guards.

PHILADELPHIA - It's hard to call three-time Most Valuable Player Moses Malone a question mark, but his return to form at center is the key to the '76ers' ability to challenge the Celtics for division supremacy. In their 1982-83 championship season, when the Sixers went 68-14, Malone was brilliant. He pulled for much of last season - when Philadelphia slipped to 52-30. The '76ers still have Julius Erving at forward and stand-out guards Andrew Toney and Maurice Cheeks to support Malone, and Coach Billy Cunningham hopes rookie Charles Barkley and Leon Wood can help supersub Bobby Jones off the bench.

WASHINGTON - The Bullets finished last in the division last season but still made the playoffs, mainly because of the bruising front line of Jeff Ruland, Rick Mahorn and Greg Ballard. This team may have improved itself as much as any in the NBA with the addition of veteran point guard Gus Williams from Seattle, and underrated forward Cliff Robinson from Cleveland.

NEW JERSEY - The Nets surprised everyone by upsetting Philadelphia in the playoffs with three victories on the road. But to improve its record, New Jersey will have to have full, trouble-free seasons from guards Otis Birdsong and Michael King. Forward Albert King and the Nets need him to regain his shooting form if they hope to beat New York and Washington in what could be a close battle for third place. Buck Williams, the top rebounding forward in the NBA, is the team's bright spot, and Darryl Dawkins and Mike Gminski form a better-than-average center duo.

NEW YORK - Bernard King emerged as a superstar last season, finishing behind Bird in the MVP balloting. His presence and tough defense make the Knicks a threat to win every night. But they start the season with center Bill Cartwright hurt and backup Marvin Webster out with hepatitis. That leaves the middle in the hands of 6-foot-9 Pat Cummings, a free-agent signee who was supposed to back up rebounding forward Truck Robinson. At guard, Ray Williams is too undisciplined to suit Coach Hubie Brown, which may mean more playing time for Darrell Walker, a strong defensive player but questionable as a shooter.

Central Division DETROIT - The Pistons look ready to dethrone Milwaukee after five years as division champions. They traded for Dan Roundfield, a standout power forward when healthy, to go with all-stars Isiah Thomas, Kelly Tripucka and Bill Laimbeer. Perry Tyler, Vinnie Johnson and Kent Benson should be solid backups, with forward Tony Campbell the top rookie.

MILWAUKEE - The Bucks made wholesale changes to compensate for the retirement of Bob Lanier, but the losses could outweigh the gains. Terry Cummings, the 1982-83 Rookie of the Year, was a marvelous way to fill a gaping hole at power forward; from where Alton Lister moved to center to replace Lanier. Gone are veteran standouts Marques Johnson and Junior Bridgeman. Rookie forward Kenny Fields and point guard Paul Pressey are being groomed heavily to help Sidney Moncrief, one of the best all-round players in the league.

CHICAGO - The Bulls finished 27-55 and out of the playoffs last season, but here's a vote that rookie Michael Jordan will bring the team back to the top of the doldrums. Jordan followed his Olympic heroics with a brilliant exhibition season and Chicago, despite its dismal record, has other talent. Orlando Woolridge and David Greenwood are solid forwards, and Ennis Whatley was the best rookie playmaker in the league. Quintin Dailey is a high scorer off the bench and Caldwell Jones should lend a defensive hand, sharing center with Dave Corzine.

ATLANTA - The Hawks continued their youth movement with the acquisition of Antoine Carr, a rookie holdout last season. In the Roundfield deal with Detroit, Carr will combine on the front line with Dominique Wilkins, an exciting player who hasn't lived up to his superstar billing, and defensive-minded center Tree Rollins. Atlanta also got Cliff Levingston in the Pistons deal and he could help at forward, along with injury-plagued Sty Williams. The guard positions, already a weak spot, was hurt further by the loss of Johnny Davis.

CLEVELAND - The Cavaliers gambled that rookie Mel Turpin will be good enough offensively and defensively to offset the loss of Cliff Robinson, the team's top rebounder and No. 1 scorer last year. The addition of Davis improved the starting guard, which includes shooting star World B. Free, Geoff Huston, Paul Thompson and John Bagley. Unless Turpin duplicates his Kentucky stats, the frontline will be woefully weak offensively with Roy Hinson, Lonnie Shelton and Phil Hubbard. INDIANA - The Pacers believe they have one of the best of the front lines in Clark Kellogg, Herb Williams and Steve Stipanovich, who was the No. 2 rookie in the league behind Ralph Sampson last season. Their potential, however, has not yet been translated into success. New Coach George Irvine hopes rookie Vern Fleming can improve a weak guard corps.

WESTERN CONFERENCE Midwest Division DALLAS - The Mavericks again will play without a top-notch center, but they have enough talent elsewhere - and there are enough weaknesses elsewhere in this division - for Dallas to win. Mark Aguirre was the second-leading scorer in the NBA last season and he gets help from shooting guard Rolando Blackman and playmaker Eddi Davis. Last year's starting center, Pat Cummings, departed for New York, leaving the position in the hands of Kurt Nimphus, untested Mark West and rookie Sam Perkins, an Olympic star who probably is more suited for forward.

UTAH - The Jazz emerged as division champions last season after a long history of futility and there's a reason to expect them to fall drastically. Adrian Dantley, tops in the NBA in scoring; shooter Darryl Griffith, playmaker Ricky Green and sixth man John Drew all are known quantities. How far up does Utah go in the standings depends on the development of center M. Eaton, the league's top shocker last season, and forward Thurl Bailey.

SAN ANTONIO - The Spurs failed to make the playoffs for the first time in the NBA, and enough of their problems were injury-related to figure they will come back. George Gervin is still a top scorer although he has lost a step or two, while Johnny Moore was one of the NBA's top point guards before spending most of last year on the sidelines. Mike Mitchell and Gene Banks return at forwards and aging Artis Gilmore, who played by injuries, can still play. Another Olympic stalwart, Alvin Robertson should help at guard and provide needed help at defense.

HOUSTON - Every team has question marks, but none is as intriguing as the Rockets' mystery of how Ralph Sampson and Akeem Olatunji will fit together in the same frontcourt. Their talent is unquestioned, but every championship team in the last 25 years has been just that, a team. Just as questionable are the value of the other pieces of the Houston puzzle: forward Rodney McCray, who developed slowly but surely as the team's "other" rookie last season; holdover guard Lewis Lloyd and Phil Ford, and addition John Lucas and Mitchell Wiggins, acquired from San Antonio and Chicago for surplus veterans James Bailey and Caldwell Jones.

KANSAS CITY - The Kings also have some good players who could make this a winning team if all the pieces fall in place. The strengths are at guard, with Larry Drew, Reggie Theus and Mike Woodson, and small forward, with Eddie Johnson and Billy Knight. To climb in the standings, Kansas City will need good seasons from center LaSalle Thompson and rookie forward Otis Thorpe.

DENVER - The Nuggets made a move to change their high scoring-defense image by trading shooting machine, Kirk Van Winkle to Portland for forward Carl Nall, guard Lafayette Lever and center Wayne Cooper. The added depth should allow Denver to put on more pressure on defense, but their game essentially will still be trying to outscore the other team. Without Vandeweghe, that will be tough for Inex English and Dan Issel, probably in his last season.

Pacific Division LOS ANGELES LAKERS - The Lakers have a nice blend of age and youth that should carry them to the championship series for the third straight year. Old veterans are led by all-time leading scorer Kareem Abdul-Jabbar and backup frontliners Jamaal Wilkes and Bob McAdoo. The young veterans are all-NBA guard Magic Johnson, rebounding forward Kurt Rambis, and defensive star Michael Cooper, while big and fast Byron Scott are the emerging stars.

PORTLAND - The Trail Blazers bid to challenge the Lakers for conference supremacy by trading for high-scoring Denver forward Kiki Vandeweghe and drafting Kentucky's Sam Bowie to fill a weakness at center. Mychal Thompson has played both center and forward for years and may continue to start in the middle until Jack Ramsay decides Bowie is ready to take over. When Bowie doesn't start, the forwards will be Vandeweghe and Kenny Carr. The loss of depth because of the Vandeweghe trade should mean more playing time for second-year Clyde Drexler, who could play and behind Darnell Valentine and Jim Paxson.

LOS ANGELES CLIPPERS - The Clippers' long-NBA ordeal, combined with weaknesses in the rest of the division, they may be ready to move to the playoffs. Margie Johnson and Junior Bridgeman come from Milwaukee with talent, experience and the knowledge of how to win. Bill Walton, who started a new career as a forward last season, returns with a new contract and will play alongside monster center James Downey. Greg Keler and rookie Michael Carter lend depth at forward, while rookie Lancaster Gordon and Bridgeman should help guards Derek Smith and Norm Nixon, a holdout in training camp.

SEATTLE - The last time the SuperSonics played without Gus Williams, they fell completely apart, so things are not looking good in Seattle. Ricky Sobers and rookie center Tim McCormick came over in the trade for Williams, leaving the team without a proven point guard. Sobers and Al Wood should share one guard position, with second-year Jon Sundvold the most likely playmaker. The frontline starters are Jack Sikma and speed forwards Tom Chambers and Danny Vranes.

PHOENIX - The Suns would be picked higher except for the knee injury of star guard Walter Davis that will sideline him for 21 games. Top forward Maurice Lucas is out with contract hassles. Phoenix is a capable, balanced team when at full strength, with Davis, Lucas, point guard Kyle Macy, center James Edwards and jumping-back forward Larry Nance. Rick Robey, Alvan Adams, Charles Pittman and rookie guard Jay Humphries add bench strength.

GOLDEN STATE - The Warriors announced they were ready to play the season without unsigned free center Joe Barry Carroll, who is not a rugged player but a dependable 204-pounds. If Carroll isn't the center spot falls to Jerome Whitehead, formerly with the Clippers. With Carroll, Golden State has a reasonably balanced starting five, with rebounding forward Larry and Scott, scoring forward Purvis Short and center Lee Van Cester and Eric Floyd. Veteran Mickey Johnson is the sixth man.

award on offense were Boise State quarterback Vern Harris and Boise State nose guard Glenn Simonton have named the Big Sky conference players of the week, league commissioner Ron Stephenson says.

Harris, a 6-foot-2-inch, 191-pound junior from La Mirada, Calif., guided Idaho State to a 29-15 record victory over Northern Arizona last Saturday. He completed 24 of 41 passes for 397 yards and two touchdowns as the Bengals remained in Big Sky title contention. Harris teamed with wide receiver Tad Pearson on an 89-yard bomb that ranks as the longest pass play in the conference this season. Harris' 397 yards passing and 390 yards in total offense were both the second best yardage performances in the Big Sky this season. Simonton, a 6-foot-2-inch, 225-pound senior from Los Angeles, was a major reason why Boise State remained unbeaten in league play and held be ameliorated by a territorial adjustment.

6) Any new information discovered since the issuance of the license regarding wildlife management in the licensed area.

7) In determining whether to adjust a licensed area of operation or reasons of territorial conflict, the board or the hearing officer shall consider, among other things, the following:

a) Any incidents of territorial conflict and how they were resolved or ameliorated by a territorial adjustment.

b) The extent of a licensee's legal use of the disputed area.

c) Any public or client safety concerns that might be ameliorated by or might arise from the inclusion of the disputed area as part of a licensee's operation.

d) Any environmental or operational factors that indicate that licensee will be able to make the best use of the disputed area in providing services to the public, considering among other things, each licensee's licensed activities and the relationship of those activities to the activities conducted in the disputed area.

e) The extent of each licensee's total area of operation, the financial stability of each licensee, and the accessibility of the disputed area from the adjacent licensed areas of operation.

f) Any recommendation submitted by any governmental land management agency that regulates land within the disputed area.

g) In determining whether to adjust a licensed area of operation for reasons of safety of persons using the services of outfitters and guides, the board or hearing officer shall consider, among other things, the following:

1) Any changes in the environmental conditions of the licensed area that pose a threat to the health and safety of persons using the licensed area.

2) Any change in a licensee's manner of operation within the licensed area that may affect client safety, or other things, among other things, changes in the condition of the licensee's capability or equipment.

3) Any safety-related incidents that have occurred in the licensed area.

4) Any safety concerns expressed by any governmental land management or wildlife agency that regulates land within the licensed area.

5) Any new information discovered since the issuance of the license regarding safety.

This rule establishes a procedure for altering a licensee's area of operation because of either safety, territorial conflict, or some management. In addition, the rule establishes certain criteria the Board must consider when making a determination to alter a licensee's area of operation.

Published in Idaho Code paragraph 87-5203, the Board hereby gives

THE ACES BOBBY WOLFF

"He thinks things through very clearly before going off half-cocked."

- Gen. Carl Spaatz

South knew he would win only eight tricks if he failed to pick up the club queen. But he took the losing club finesse anyway. His excuse was that East was likely to be shorter in clubs than West.

East covered dummy's heart, allowing South to win the jack. South studied and counted but came to only one conclusion: picking up the club queen was vital to success. He cashed his club king and finessed to dummy's 10, losing to East's queen. Back came the ace and another heart, and South's chances were gone. East waited with his diamond ace and two good hearts, and the game went one down.

South has a better shot at his game if he combines his chances in both minors. First he plays the king and ace of clubs to try to drop a doubton queen. In today's case, the queen drops and it's all over. South is now playing for overtricks. But what if the club queen had not dropped?

South would then have his second chance in diamonds. He would lead a low diamond to his 10, hoping to win three diamond tricks. These, added to the other six obvious winners, would give him enough to hit his contract.

"In 1983, we cut $5 and we've suffered," he said referring to the first OPEC price cut in March 1983 after prices had spiraled from $2.75 to $34 a barrel in 10 years. "In 1984, we are not going to cut prices."

"I think the general trend is that we could lower our production to defend the current price," he said after meeting with Yaman, OPEC ministers from Venezuela, Algeria, Kuwait, the United Arab Emirates, and the acting Libyan oil minister. "Tomorrow (Tuesday) morning, we will tell you everything," said Kuwaiti oil minister Sheikh Al Khakshouk of Libya, as well as Francisco Labastida Ochoa of Mexico and Abdelnady Kandil of Egypt.

Norway "get away with" cutting prices.

All told the Kuwaiti newspaper Al-Anba that the current oil price crisis was a "strategic affair" that occurred every March and October, and predicted demand for OPEC crude will rise by 1 million to 2 million barrels a day during November and December.

Yaman, Ali and Maghir met through the day with oil ministers Sheikh Said al-Otaiba of the United Arab Emirates, Arturo Hernandez Grisanti of Venezuela, Belkacem Nabl of Algeria, and Fawzi Shakhshouk of Libya, as well as Francisco Labastida Ochoa of Mexico and Abdelnady Kandil of Egypt.

Nigeria Oil Minister Tam David-West earlier was expected to attend the meeting, but hotel officials said he was to arrive only in time for next week's meeting.

That meeting is seen by some oil industry analysts as a major test of OPEC's ability to continue to influence world oil prices as they are buffeted by expanding production of non-OPEC members and a relative decline in demand due to conservation.

In addition, bankers and oil industry sources in the United States may also find the price cuts unwelcome, arguing that they could hurt domestic drillers and cause additional losses for some U.S. energy banks and their weakest borrowers.

Economist: Old business habits must change for more farm profit

IDAH0 FALLS (AP) — The short-term economic outlook for farmers isn't good, an economist here says, but farmers can survive if they abandon some of the old ways of doing business. Farming by habit and tradition can cost money, said Paul Patterson, of the University of Idaho College of Agriculture's office at Idaho Falls. Patterson specializes in farm management and marketing of southern Idaho crops. And he said marketing is more than selling a commodity and starts before a crop is planted, not after it is harvested.

Oil exploration drops

POCATELLO (AP) — Oil and gas exploration has decreased in a national forest largely tied up in leases for exploration. Seismic work in Caribou County National Forest this year has covered about 100 miles, compared with 300 last year, forest official Sherman Boyce said. The forest is part of the Overthrust Belt, a geological formation considered favorable for discovery of oil and gas. None of the eight exploratory wells drilled in Idaho has produced oil or gas, Boyce said on out of five exploratory wells drilled in Utah and

Church fears for life of kidnapped pro-Solidarity priest

By MATTHEW C. VITA
The Associated Press

WARSAW, Poland — Poland's Roman Catholic Church said Monday that it feared for the life of a kidnapped pro-Solidarity priest, and government spokesman Jerzy Urban asserted that the abduction was aimed at undermining the authorities.

The church also said there were indications the kidnappers had political motives.

The whereabouts or condition of the Rev. Jerzy Popieluszko were not known and no one had claimed responsibility for his abduction, which occurred Friday in northern Poland.

Keston College, an institution near London that monitors religious affairs in Eastern Europe, reported Monday that Popieluszko had received numerous death threats in recent weeks. Solidarity leaders confirmed the report.

The Catholic episcopate, in its first comment on the priest's disappearance, said it "brings deep concern."

"On the one hand there is fear about his life and on the other there is fear that kidnapping may become a method of political strife in our country," said a statement issued by the episcopate in Warsaw. "The information we have about the circumstances of the kidnapping indicate that the culprits acted for political motives."

The statement did not elaborate.

Popieluszko, 37, is one of the Polish clergy's most outspoken advocates of the now-outlawed Solidarity labor union and had been the target of frequent government attacks for his pro-Solidarity sermons.

In Washington, State Department spokesman John Hughes voiced concern over the kidnapping and expressed "the strong hope that the Polish government will ensure Popieluszko's speedy release." Hughes said he had no information on who might be responsible for the kidnapping.

Polish government spokesman Jerzy Urban said police had received "signals from the population" that Popieluszko was seen alive after the kidnapping, but had not been able to establish the identity of the kidnappers or to determine Popieluszko's whereabouts.

Urban, who said he was speaking in an unofficial capacity, dismissed as "sensational" allegations that the authorities had been involved in the disappearance of Popieluszko.

The kidnapping "is a carefully timed provocation aimed against us," Urban said. "I cannot say at the moment who is responsible, but most emphatically one should think about who stands to gain from this affair and make political capital out of it."

The priest's disappearance came at an awkward moment for Polish leader General Wojciech Jaruzelski, who welcomed Prime Minister Andreas Papandreu of Greece to Warsaw on Monday in the first visit by a leader of a NATO country since the Dec. 13, 1981, imposition of martial law that crushed Solidarity.

The abduction also came a week before a meeting of the Communist Party Central Committee and followed three months of relative calm in Poland after a general amnesty in July for political prisoners.

Solidarity activists said they would press authorities to explain the priest's disappearance. They organized daily prayer sessions at factories and a round-the-clock vigil at St. Stanislaw Kostka Church in Warsaw, where Popieluszko served.

According to a report Saturday on state-run television, Popieluszko was kidnapped Friday night on a highway near the northern city of Torun, about 125 miles northwest of Warsaw, by a group of men, one of whom was wearing a police uniform.

The kidnappers pulled the priest's car over under the pretext of administering a sobriety test to the car's driver, the report said. The driver escaped and reportedly was being held for questioning at a security service headquarters in Torun.

A senior Solidarity adviser said the kidnapping was similar to at least three other abductions in the Torun area this year, and confirmed reports that an anti-Solidarity "terrorist group" had been operating in the region.

"This kind of terrorist group could be a part of a political game which we don't know."

Rebels hit power system

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — Rebels attacked the nation's power grid Monday, bombing pylons that support high tension wires and blacking out the capital and most of northern El Salvador.

On Sunday, leftist guerrillas overran a substation near Nejapa, five miles north of the capital, blew up the control room and killed 13 guards. Ten rebels were killed.

Attacks on power facilities Sunday and Monday affected about 1.5 million of the nation's 5 million people. They follow by a week the Oct. 15 meeting between President Jose Napoleon Duarte and rebel leaders, the first such top-level session during the five-year-old civil war.

Rebel attacks Monday damaged power lines leading from two principal hydroelectric dams to a substation that generates electricity for San Salvador, said Francisco Grandino, director of the Lempa River Hydroelectric Commission.

The lines run from the Nov. 5 dam, 63 miles north of San Salvador, and the Sept. 15 dam, 60 miles to the east, to the San Rafael Cedros substation 24 miles east of the capital. Grandino said the damage was being surveyed from a company helicopter and probably would be repaired by late Monday.

Also Monday, rebels blew up secondary power lines leading from the Nejapa plant to Chitatan along the main north-south highway, cutting electricity to the northern province.

Electric facilities often have been the target of guerrilla attacks during the civil war. Highway traffic also has been attacked, and rebel threats left roads in the east and north nearly deserted late last week.

Spokesmen at bus terminals said traffic was nearly back to normal Monday despite a continuing rebel warning that drivers stay off the roads or risk having their vehicles burned.

Spokesmen at the terminal in San Salvador, who asked not to be identified for security reasons, said some drivers still were staying off the roads, but traffic was much increased from last week.

A 2,500-man army operation continued in northern Morazan province, said Maj. Ricardo Murcia, executive officer of the Atlacatl Battalion, which is taking part in the drive.

Reporters returning from the area said there was heavy fighting Sunday, but military officials provided no details.

The rebels' Radio Venceremos claimed Monday that the guerrillas had killed or wounded 21 army troops since the offensive began Thursday.

An army communique said troops killed six guerrillas and one soldier was wounded in scattered fighting Sunday in eastern Usulután province, about 80 miles east of the capital.

In a related development, the army said in a news release Monday that it is offering a cash reward of $1,000 to any guerrilla who defects with a weapon, as part of a renewed U.S.-promoted campaign to induce the rebels to desert.

The news release also listed additional rewards for 13 different types of weapons surrendered or brought in to military authorities, ranging from $1,000 for a 120 mm mortar — roughly double-what an average Salvadoran peasant earns in a year — to $600 for grenade-launchers, automatic rifles and light machine guns.

Information leading to the discovery of an arms cache will be rewarded with $2,400, and information on guerrilla operations with $200, the news release said.

Soviets step up presence in S. Pacific

The Los Angeles Times

WELLINGTON, New Zealand — The Soviet Union is planning to step up its military presence in the South Pacific, according to New Zealand military intelligence reports received by the Labor government here.

Defense Minister Francis O'Flynn said on Sunday the Soviet Union wants to transfer its highly sophisticated Backfire bombers from eastern Siberia to Cam Ranh Bay, a base developed by the United States in South Vietnam some years ago.

The Soviets would then be in a position from which to attack Australia and New Zealand, O'Flynn said. The reports said Cam Ranh Bay had become one of the Soviets' key naval and air force bases, he added.

Concerned that the Soviets were maintaining a bigger fleet in the South Pacific than the United States, New Zealand defense experts warned their Labor government against abandoning the ANZUS (Australia-New Zealand-United States) defense pact.

The Labor government, headed by David Lange, asked for a revision of the pact recently when banning nuclear warships from the country's ports.

Gemayel takes quick trip to visit Khadafy

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Lebanese President Amin Gemayel left on a hurriedly arranged visit to Libya on Monday at the invitation of Col. Moammar Khadafy, a brief palace statement announced.

It gave no explanation for the surprise trip.

Before leaving, Gemayel headed an emergency cabinet session which decided to close down illegal ports operated by Lebanese militia groups. The ports, a major cause of dissension in the government, have cut into government customs and duty revenues, diverting millions of dollars to Christian and Moslem militias.

Gemayel and his party flew 125 miles by helicopter to the Mediterian near island of Cyprus where he boarded his presidential jet for Libya. The jet had flown from Beirut International Airport to Larnaca, Cyprus, earlier in the day.

Sources at Beirut airport said Gemayel apparently decided to avoid using the airport because of fighting in the adjacent Palestinian refugee camp of Bourj el-Barajneh.

Police said at least eight people were killed and 14 wounded in battles that began in the camp Sunday and

Cyprus residents said the fighting was between Palestinians and Amal, the military arm of Lebanon's Shiite Moslem community. Amal issued a statement saying its people were not involved, but Lebanese military sources said at least some of the dead were Amal militiamen.

At the time Gemayel was en route to Cyprus, all approaches to the camp and surrounding roads, including the main airport highway, were sealed off by Lebanese army troops who intervened to halt the fighting.

Monday's visit to Libya was Gemayel's second since he took office in 1982. A group of opposition Lebanese leaders headed by Druse leader Walid Jumblatt visited that radical North African nation last week. Under Khadafy, Libya has strongly supported anti-government forces in recent rounds of the nine-year-old Lebanese civil war.

The Voice of Lebanon radio station of Gemayel's right-wing Christian Phalang Party had said Monday that Gemayel was going to Libya at Khadafy's invitation, but did not elaborate.

Sandinistas support Nov. 4 election date

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — Nicaragua's Sandinista government said Monday that it will stick by the Nov. 4 election date even if the government party has to run alone.

It was responding to a decision by the Independent Liberal Party to withdraw from the election and join the Nicaraguan Democratic Coordinator, the nation's largest opposition group, in boycotting the vote for president, vice president and a national assembly.

"We will go to the elections with one, two, five or seven parties and in the end, if all abstain, the Sandinista Front will go alone to the elections, but they will be held Nov. 4," declared Daniel Ortega, coordinator of the governing junta.

He spoke in a brief interview broadcast Monday on the Voice of Nicaragua, the left-wing government's radio station.

Orlando Quironez, secretary of the Independent Liberals, said Monday the election should be postponed until February 1985. He called for the governing junta to "be ousted" and replaced by a government including all political parties in the country.

The small party's decision to withdraw from the election was announced Sunday after a 94-20 vote on the issue at a party convention. It leaves the Sandinista National Liberation Front and five small parties in the running.

The Sandinista newspaper Baricada said Monday that Virgilio Godoy, the Independent Liberal presidential candidate, met several times with U.S. Embassy officials to discuss the boycott. It quoted party sources, not identified, as saying that U.S. Ambassador Harry Bergold told Godoy on Saturday that "if (the party) participated in the elections, U.S. policy toward Nicaragua would be seriously affected."

"It is true that I met last week with Ambassador Bergold, but at no time did he make any suggestion or pressure the PLI to abstain from participating in the elections," Godoy said Monday in a news conference.

New head for timber group

COEUR D'ALENE (AP) — The manager of northern Idaho timber operations for a Burlington Northern Co. subsidiary is the 1985 president of the Idaho Forest Industry Council.

Bob Boeh is the northern Idaho timber manager for Plum Creek Timber Co. As president of the council, he succeeds Dick Bennett of Bennett Lumber Co. in Princeton.

The Idaho Forest Industry Council represents timber owners and wood-products manufacturers in the state. It was a key supporter of the Idaho congressional delegation's unsuccessful bill calling for the addition of 526,000 acres to the national wilderness system in Idaho.

The council plans to increase its membership by including firms that serve the wood-products industry, logging-truck drivers and others, said Joe Hinson, executive director of the council.

Offer made for Palouse railroad

TACOMA, Wash. (AP) — A small Tacoma company says it can do what one of the nation's largest railroads has been unable to do on branch lines in the Washington and Idaho Palouse country.

Ed Bertsens, president of Pacific Transportation Services Co., said he made an offer to the Burlington Northern Railroad to purchase its branch line track near Pullman, Wash., and Moscow and Lewiston, Idaho.

Bertsens said his 5-year-old company submitted an offer at the end of August. He expects an answer by the proposal within the next few weeks.

If the two companies can agree on a price and federal and state regulators approve, the Tacoma company could be operating a new railroad called the Palouse & Lewiston Railway by March 1.

Bertsens, a former Burlington Northern employee for 21 years, said his company can operate with greater flexibility and less expense.

"We will be locally managed and more flexible because we can be on the scene," he said.

The new railroad hopes to be flexible enough to help local grain producers take advantage of the trunk line's unit train rates, Bertsens said.

Burlington Northern and other large railroads most often are required to have four or five person crews operating trains. The Palouse & Lewiston, he said, could operate with two-person crews.

Bertsens said because his company doesn't have massive overhead costs, office buildings, repair shops and a large permanent staff, customer can be held in check.

Pacific Transportation was founded to fill a niche, he said. Larger railroads cannot provide the frequency of switching services that some industries need, so those industries were forced to provide their own.

The firm's first customer was the Continental Grain elevator in Tacoma, where trunk line railroads deliver the grain cars in 52-car units.

Church fears for life of kidnapped pro-Solidarity priest

By MATTHEW C. VITA
The Associated Press

WARSAW, Poland — Poland's Roman Catholic Church said Monday it feared for the life of a kidnapped pro-Solidarity priest, and government spokesman Jerzy Urban asserted that the abduction was aimed at undermining the authorities.

The church also said there were indications the kidnappers had political motives.

The whereabouts or condition of the Rev. Jerzy Popieluszko were not known and no one had claimed responsibility for his abduction, which occurred Friday in northern Poland.

Keston College, an institution near London that monitors religious affairs in Eastern Europe, reported Monday that Popieluszko had received numerous death threats in recent weeks. Solidarity leaders confirmed the report.

The Catholic episcopate, in its first comment on the priest's disappearance, said it "brings deep concern."

and on the other there is fear that kidnapping may become a method of political strife in our country," said a statement issued by the episcopate in Warsaw. "The information we have about the circumstances of the kidnapping indicate that the culprits acted for political motives."

The statement did not elaborate.

Popieluszko, 37, is one of the Polish clergy's most outspoken advocates of the non-outlawed Solidarity labor union and had been the target of frequent government attacks for his pro-Solidarity sermons.

In Washington, State Department spokesman John Hughes voiced concern over the kidnapping and expressed "the strong hope that the Polish government will ensure Popieluszko's speedy release." Hughes said he had no information on who might be responsible for the kidnapping.

Polish government spokesman Jerzy Urban said police had received "signals from the population" that Popieluszko was seen alive after the kidnapping, but had not been able to establish the identity of the kidnappers or to determine Popieluszko's whereabouts.

Urban, who said he was speaking in an unofficial capacity, dismissed as "sensational" allegations that the authorities had been involved in the disappearance of Popieluszko.

The kidnapping "is a carefully timed provocation aimed against us," Urban said. "I cannot say at the moment who is responsible, but most emphatically one should think about who stands to gain from this affair and make political capital out of it."

The priest's disappearance came at an awkward moment for Polish leader Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski, who welcomed Prime Minister Andreas Papandreu of Greece to Warsaw on Monday in the first visit by a leader of a NATO country since the Dec. 13, 1981, imposition of martial law that crushed Solidarity.

The abduction also came a week before a meeting of the Communist Party Central Committee and followed three months of relative "calm" in Poland after a general amnesty in July for political prisoners.

Solidarity activists said they would press authorities to explain the priest's disappearance. They organized daily prayer sessions at factories and a round-the-clock vigil at St. Stanislaw Koska Church in Warsaw, where Popieluszko served.

According to a report Saturday on state-run television, Popieluszko was kidnapped Friday night on a highway near the northern city of Torun, about 125 miles northwest of Warsaw, by a group of men, one of whom was wearing a police uniform.

The kidnappers pulled the priest's car over under the pretext of administering a sobriety test to the car's driver, the report said. The driver escaped and reportedly was being held for questioning at a security service headquarters in Torun.

A senior Solidarity adviser said the kidnapping was similar to at least three other abductions in the Torun area this year, and confirmed reports that an anti-Solidarity "terrorist group" had been operating in the region.

"This kind of terrorist group could be a part of a political game which we don't know."

An army communique said troops killed six guerrillas and one soldier was wounded in scattered fighting Sunday in eastern Usulután province, about 80 miles east of the capital.

In a related development, the army said in a news release Monday that it is offering a cash reward of $1,000 to any guerrilla who defects with a weapon, as part of a renewed U.S.-promoted campaign to induce the rebels to desert.

The news release also listed additional rewards for 13 different types of weapons surrendered or brought in to military authorities, ranging from $1,000 for a 120 mm mortar — roughly double what an average Salvadoran peasant earns in a year — to $600 for grenade launchers, automatic rifles and light machine guns.

Information leading to the discovery of an arms cache will be rewarded with $2,400, and information on guerrilla operations with $200, the news release said.

Soviets step up presence in S. Pacific

WELLINGTON, New Zealand — The Soviet Union is planning to step up its military presence in the South Pacific, according to New Zealand military intelligence reports received by the Labor government here.

Defense Minister Francis O'Flynn said on Sunday the Soviet Union wants to transfer its highly sophisticated Backfire bombers from eastern Siberia to Cam Ranh Bay, a base developed by the United States in South Vietnam some years ago.

The Soviets would then be in a position from which to attack Australia and New Zealand, O'Flynn said. The reports said Cam Ranh Bay had become one of the Soviets' key naval and air force bases, he added.

Concerned that the Soviets were maintaining a bigger fleet in the South Pacific than the United States, New Zealand defense experts warned their Labor government against abandoning the ANZUS (Australia-New Zealand-United States) defense pact.

The Labor government, headed by David Lange, asked for a revision of the pact recently when banning nuclear warships from the country's ports.

Britain, Jordan hold weapons talks

The Los Angeles Times also briefed Heseltine on Jordan's Middle East policy.

Military experts from both sides will hold detailed talks on arms supply questions.

Heseltine, who came here from the Jordanian winter resort of Aqaba, said he had discussed the situation with Jordan's commander-in-chief of Jordan's British defensive weapons. The King-armed forces.

AMMAN, Jordan — British Defense Secretary Michael Heseltine conferred here Monday with King Hussein of Jordan about possible British arms supplies to Jordan.

Informed sources said the discussion dealt with Jordan's need for commander-in-chief of Jordan's British defensive weapons. The King-armed forces.

Gemayel takes quick trip to visit Khadafy

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Lebanese President Amin Gemayel left on a hurriedly arranged visit to Libya on Monday at the invitation of Col. Moammar Khadafy, a brief palace statement announced.

It gave no explanation for the surprise trip.

Before leaving, Gemayel headed an emergency Cabinet session which decided to close down illegal ports operated by Lebanese militia groups.

The ports, a major cause of dissension in the government, have cut into government customs and duty revenues, diverting millions of dollars to Christian and Muslim militias.

Gemayel and his party flew 125 miles by helicopter to the Mediterranean island of Cyprus where he boarded his presidential jet for Libya. The jet, had flown from Beirut International Airport — to Larnaca, Cyprus, earlier in the day.

Sources at Beirut airport said Gemayel apparently decided to avoid using the airport because of fighting in the adjacent Palestinian refugee camp of Bourj el-Barajneh.

Police said at least eight people were killed and 14 wounded in battles that began in the camp Sunday and

Camp residents said the fighting was between Palestinians and Amal, the military arm of Lebanon's Shiite Muslim community. Amal issued a statement saying its people were not involved, but Lebanese military sources said at least some of the dead were Amal militiamen.

At the time Gemayel was en route to Cyprus, all approaches to the camp and surrounding roads, including the main airport highway, were sealed off by Lebanese army troops who intervened to halt the fighting.

Monday's visit to Libya was Gemayel's second since he took office in 1982. A group of opposition Lebanese leaders headed by Druse leader Walid Jumblatt visited that radical North African nation last week. Under Khadafy, Libya has strongly supported anti-government forces in recent rounds of the nine-year-old Lebanese civil war.

The Voice of Lebanon radio station of Gemayel's right-wing Christian Phalange Party had said Monday that Gemayel was going to Libya at Khadafy's invitation, but did not elaborate.

Sandinistas support Nov. 4 election date

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — Nicaragua's Sandinista government said Monday that it will stick by the Nov. 4 election date even if the government party has to run alone.

It was responding to a decision by the Independent Liberal Party to withdraw from the election and join the Nicaraguan Democratic Coordinate, the nation's largest opposition group, in boycotting the vote for president, vice president and a national assembly.

"We will go to the elections with one, two, five or seven parties and in the end, if all abstain, the Sandinista Front will go alone to the elections, but they will be held Nov. 4," declared Daniel Ortega, coordinator of the governing Junta.

He spoke in a brief interview broadcast Monday on the Voice of Nicaragua, the left-wing government's radio station.

Orlando Quintana, secretary of the Independent Liberals, said Monday the elections should be postponed until February 1985. He called for the governing junta to "be ousted" and replaced by a government including all political parties in the country.

The small party's decision to withdraw from the election was announced Sunday after a 94-20 vote on the issue at a party convention. It leaves the Sandinista National Liberation Front and five small parties in the running.

The Sandinista newspaper Baricada said Monday that Virgilio Godoy, the Independent Liberal presidential candidate, met several times with U.S. Embassy officials to discuss the boycott. It quoted party sources, not identified, as saying that U.S. Ambassador Harry Bergold told Godoy on Saturday that "if (the party) participated in the elections, U.S. policy toward Nicaragua would be seriously affected."

"It is true that I met last week with Ambassador Bergold, but at no time did he make any suggestion or pressure the PL-1 to abstain from participating in the elections," Godoy said Monday in a news conference.

Israel to repay loan on time

JERUSALEM (AP) — Prime Minister Shimon Peres told Parliament on Monday he was refusing "for the time being" a U.S. offer to defer payment on $500 million in war debts. In a state of the nation address, Peres also outlined his program and conditions for ending Israel's 30-month occupation of Lebanon, but said any evacuation would not sacrifice Israeli security "on the altar of Syrian or Lebanese prestige."

He said his 25-member national unity Cabinet would decide on its specific steps in Lebanon at a Cabinet meeting Sunday.

Reporting on his talks earlier this month in Washington, Peres said Israel declined for now an offer by Secretary of State George P. Shultz for a 90-day deferral on debts falling due this year.

The offer was made as a "safety net" to protect plunging foreign currency reserves while Israel begins an economic recovery plan to slash government spending and cut living standards.

"We believe that if nothing unexpected happens, we will stand by the dates of debt repayment in the future, as we have in the past and still do," he said.

Peres did not explain why he refused the offer, but officials said earlier that the deferral could damage Israel's credit rating with commercial banks.

The $500 million due later this year is from an emergency loan granted with a 10-year period of grace after the 1973 Arab-Israeli war, the officials said.

Peres said Israel owed the United States $11 billion, $10 billion of which was used to buy military equipment.

Peres said Israel also was seeking more aid from the United States to compensate for a 68 percent decline in the value of the dollar since 1973, when Israel began receiving infusions of about $2 billion annually.

He said Israel used to pay $10 million for a Phantom jet, the warhorse of the Israeli air force 10 years ago, but the F-16 that Israel now buys costs $40 million.

"We will demand an update of American aid to take account of these two phenomena. The administration has recognized in principle the justice of this claim," he said.

Knoxville Zoo is leading the effort to save animals, like this Aslan Lion, from extinction

Zoos saving rare animals

By PATRICIA A. PAQUETTE
The Associated Press

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. — Dozens of zoos across the country are forming a collective Noah's ark so that thousands of rare animals eventually may be returned to the wild.

The animals, whose habitats have been destroyed by encroaching humans, would become extinct without the zoos' temporary refuge.

"There will be places where certain animals' natural habitats will disappear for long periods of time. That's where the ark analogy is particularly appropriate," said Dr. Thomas J. Foose, conservation coordinator for the American Association of Zoological Parks and Aquariums.

The association is managing 34 species survival plans, or SSPs, in which highly endangered species are selectively bred to ensure their survival for at least 200 years, when it is estimated that human population will stabilize and the animals' habitats can be restored.

Zoo managers hope that by the end of the century, 1,500 species will ride the "zoo ark," Foose said. His vision is that "virtually all species at zoos will be SSP animals in the next century."

Roughly 5,000 animals in about 100 zoos across the country are part of the species survival program, which started nearly four years ago with a pilot program to save the Siberian tiger.

The Knoxville zoo participated in the effort, and soon led the program to breed Aslan lions.

Other zoos — such as the San Diego Zoo, which has 28 of the 34 species in its zoo and Wild Animal Park — joined in the breeding program.

Knoxville's zoo, which has some 750 animals and yearly expenditures of $1.1 million, coordinates the Aslan lion program. It has helped make the zoo "one of the more prominent institutions" in the "ark," Foose said.

Sometimes called the Indian lion, the Aslan lion is a slightly smaller cousin of the African lion and the most endangered of the big cats. Only 180 Aslan lions still exist in the wild, and the only place they are found is on a peninsula in northwest India.

Guy L. Smith III, director of the Knoxville Zoological Park, said that if the program did not exist, "We wouldn't have any Aslan lions here or in the wild."

The zoo owns 13 Aslan lions of the estimated 250 left in the world — eight of them here and five on loan for breeding at other zoos, Smith said.

Smith's job is to ensure that there isn't too much inbreeding among the animals in the program. Animals that are too closely related often are unhealthy and sometimes won't reproduce, he said.

Breeding records kept at zoos are scrutinized, and Smith keeps a detailed computer printout that shows how inbreeding would affect offspring for each combination of the 149 captive male and female lions in the survival plan.

Smith has made several trips to Europe in an attempt to find Aslan lions with bloodlines different from those in the United States.

After two years of negotiating with the East German government, Smith said he was able to get "a very important male" Aslan lion to breed with one of three females in Knoxville.

But perhaps Smith's biggest victory has been getting permission from the government of India to bring in three wild male lions.

Smith's personal involvement with lions dates back to 1963 when he bought Joshua, an African lion-cub which soon became too large for him to keep at home.

Youths film U.S. drug abuse

WASHINGTON (AP) — They look like a troupe of spirited orphans from a Walt Disney movie, but the six Australian youths are working behind the camera as they travel with the likes of Nancy Reagan and cross the country filming a documentary on drug abuse in America.

The boys, ages 12 to 17, are members of the Australian Children's Television School. They're on a month-long, 12-city trip to shoot an anti-drug program slated to appear on national television in their homeland in a couple of months.

Last week the group interviewed first lady Nancy Reagan and accompanied her on a three-day, four-state trip as she took her anti-drug crusade to schools throughout the South. The team's next stop is New York, where they plan to tour the Bronx and Harlem under the supervision of police narcotics officers.

"The idea is to give children a voice in the media which is heavily controlling and affecting their lives," said Roland Cantley, 61, the TV school's founder and the lone adult with the group.

"Children in Australia watch TV for an average of six hours each day, and yet the kids have never had a voice in this medium," said Cantley.

Armed with a $100,000 budget and more than a quarter million dollars worth of video hardware, the team will also visit Boston, Chicago, Detroit, Miami, and California before returning home to complete the film entitled "Please Leave Us Alone."

So far, the reviews have been favorable.

"These kids really held their own (on the trip)," said Sheila Tate, Mrs. Reagan's press secretary. "They were very professional in their approach and the kids at the schools we visited identified with them and were eager to talk."

Justin Ridley, 12, the group's youngest member, said: "Mrs. Reagan was very nice and she answered all my questions. I invited her to come speak in Australia, and she said she would if she's ever there."

Ridley gave Mrs. Reagan a koala bear, and in return may have become the only journalist ever to receive a kiss from a first lady at the conclusion of an interview.

Josh Cooper, assistant producer for the CBS Morning News, said: "They were lugging around a lot of equipment and got pushed and shoved around like the rest of the camera crews on the trip but they managed pretty well." He said the network was planning a feature segment on the group in the near future.

Despite such royal treatment, the project isn't exactly child's play.

In recent days the group has accompanied police officers in suburban Arlington, Va., and filmed several drug-related arrests. They are scheduled to talk extensively with drug users and visit drug treatment centers around the country.

Peter Pearce, 16, said that "in San Antonio we talked to kids who told us about sniffing fumes from aerosol cans and getting terribly sick. They told us some horror stories about kids our own age who were permanently damaged by drugs."

Adrian Rose, 17, a cameraman for the team, said he believes drug abuse is more pronounced in America but that it is a growing problem in his country as well.

"We find some aboriginals (in Australia) that have become total vegetables from sniffing petrol," Rose said. "Some of what we've seen has been pretty shocking."

Cantley, in an interview Sunday night, said: "This has just been a warmup. We will be going into some real slums and back alleys. Kids tend to be blasé when adults lecture them, and we want a film that shows kids talking to kids about drugs."

Over the 10 years Cantley has run the program his troops have made numerous films on life in Australia, with financing coming from the Australian government and private business. He said he recently signed a contract with an Australian network for a series of 13 documentaries to be filmed by his students, of which this is the first.

Boys like supernatural fantasies

BOSTON (AP) — Little boys pass as much as a quarter of their playtime fantasizing spacehip rides, ray gun duels and other outlandish adventures, while girls are far less likely to act out unrealistic escapades, new research shows.

"Very often, parents worry about kids doing all these crazy things," said psychologist Malcolm W. Watson of Brandeis University. So he set out to learn how much time youngsters spend in the realm of fantasy.

He found that bizarre, often combative, daydreams filled with magic and the supernatural are the almost exclusive domain of little boys. But he says — parents — shouldn't worry, because these fantasies are normal.

Sometimes pre-school boys pretend they are spies and superheroes, but most of this time they spend in space, traveling in rocket ships, exploring planets and zapping aliens with ray guns. Woven through these illusions are conflicts between good guys and bad guys.

Girls the same age also spend lots of time pretending, but their fantasies are almost always realistic domestic dramas. They play house, go to work, cook dinner and talk to their neighbors.

In fact, the girls studied never drifted into the unrealistic never-never land that so fascinated the little boys.

One telling difference, he said, is the way children use props in their fantasies. A girl might pretend that a banana is a telephone. But in the hands of a boy, it becomes a magic wand.

Watson found the high fantasy among boys 4 or 5 years old but not among toddlers who were two years younger.

"This shows that it's quite common and increases with age, and it's normal," Watson said. "The first implication is: Don't worry about it."

The unpublished research was conducted on 45 apparently ordinary, middle-class youngsters at a day care center. It was financed by the National Institute of Mental Health.

Watson said there's no reason to think that dwelling in outlandish illusions makes youngsters lose touch with the real world. Instead, he theorizes that it may actually help them develop imagination and creativity.

"It may even help them to differentiate fantasy and reality," he said, "because they play around the borders of the two and learn how to handle it."

There is no clear explanation of why boys like high fantasy and girls don't. Part of the difference could result from encouragement from adults and more male role models in movies and television.

Foundation to wage $20 million war on parasitic disease

CHICAGO (AP) — A $20 million war on parasitic diseases that afflict 3 billion people will be funded by one of the nation's largest philanthropic organizations, it was announced Tuesday.

The John D. and Catherine T. MacArthur Foundation and Dr. Jonas Salk, known for his pioneering work with the polio vaccine, announced the research program, which will be conducted at 12 U.S. and foreign medical institutions.

"Diseases caused by parasites afflict more than half the world's people," said Salk, who is chairman of the foundation's health committee. "Some of them are deadly. Some of them leave you living a life worse than death."

Among the diseases targeted by researchers are malaria, hookworm and ascariasis, an infestation of the small intestine by a foot-long worm. Together they afflict 2 billion people.

Other ailments to be tackled include dysentery, African sleeping sickness, and filariasis, a worm infection transmitted through the tropical world by biting insects.

"Parasitic diseases are the 'cancers' of developing nations," added Dr. Myron Schultz of the Centers for Disease Control. "But there is no equivalent of the American Cancer Society ... even though they (parasitic diseases) claim many more victims than cancer."

Parasitic diseases, which can result in malnutrition, blindness, organ damage, disfigurement or death, usually afflict poor people, experts say.

The diseases are most common in Third World nations or developing countries in Africa, Southeast Asia, South America, Central America, and the tropics and sub-tropics, Salk said.

Health experts say parasitic diseases are increasing in the United States as nearly 4 million Americans travel each year to exotic parts of the world.

The research is timely because "the new science of molecular biology ... allows for the possibility of studying the process ... at the molecular level, which provide ways and means of tricking the parasites, which at the moment is trickier than we are in surviving in the human body," Salk said.

The research has wider implications for developing countries because parasitic diseases drain these nations.
