Idaho races heat up

By The Associated Press

The George Hansen-Richard Stallings battle in the 2nd Congressional District is warming up considerably, heading into the final week of the campaign.

On Saturday, Hansen contended that a colleague, Sen. James McClure, R-Idaho, doesn't know what's going on with Idaho voters if he thinks Hansen is trailing in his bid for an eighth term.

Speaking through his campaign manager and son Bill Hansen, the convicted congressman said McClure's statements Friday that Hansen was behind and it would be "very difficult" for him to hold onto the 2nd Congressional District seat were ill-informed.

"McClure hasn't been in the district enough to know what's going on," Hansen said. "He's a top senator. He's been very busy in Washington and it's hard for him to get a feel for how things are going out there."

Stallings told reporters in Boise that Hansen is resorting to a "last-minute smear" by tying him to the national Democratic Party platform in the last days of the campaign across the conservative southern Idaho district.

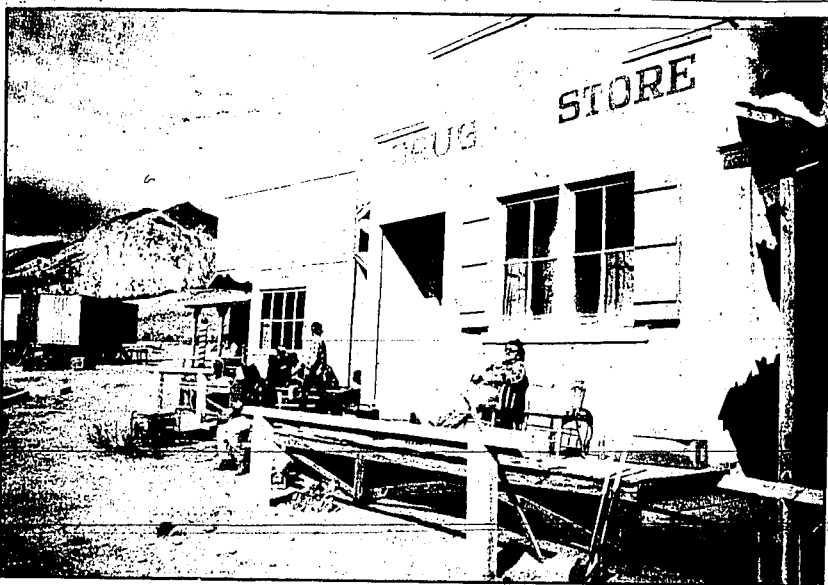

And Stallings' campaign chairman, Lynn Winmill, called a news conference in Pocatello to remind voters that if Hansen is re-elected on Nov. 6, Idaho residents could have a congressman serving from jail.

Hansen said it was Stallings who was slinging mud by going back on a pledge made early in the campaign to avoid discussing Hansen's troubled finances.

Up until the statewide televised debate between the two on Oct. 18, Stallings avoided direct attacks on Hansen over his felony convictions for falsifying financial disclosure statements or his troubled personal finances. Stallings said he wanted to run a positive campaign based on the issues, not a negative one targeting Hansen's personal problems.

But he questioned Hansen on his finances during the debate. With less than two weeks left in Idaho's hottest race the Rexburg Democrat hit the airwaves with radio commercials directly raising as campaign issues

Salvador fighting rages on

By The Associated Press

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador — Heavy fighting raged on the slopes of the San Vicente volcano Sunday between government troops and leftist rebels. The archbishop of San Salvador said the five-year civil war has intensified since the first peace talks two weeks ago.

An army officer in Zacatecoluca, the army operations base in the region, said 11 soldiers were killed and six wounded, including two officers, in fighting that began Saturday. The officer, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said guerrilla casualties were not known.

Fighting around the 6,000-foot-high volcano, 30 miles east of the capital, began when rebels exploded a mine under a government patrol at El Salto on the volcano slopes Saturday, killing one soldier and wounding another, military officials said.

Army officers in Zacatecoluca, south of the volcano, said the rebels then attacked a 25-man army base at El Salto and the military sent in reinforcements to try to trap the guerrillas.

A civil defense patrolman at San Juan Nonualco, three miles south of El Salto, said, "We tried to go in (to get the dead soldier out) but the guerrillas had us surrounded. We could not get him out. It's a rats' nest of guerrillas on that volcano."

The patrolman, who spoke on condition of anonymity, made the comments in a telephone interview from San Juan Nonualco.

The guerrilla Radio Farabundo Marti said Sunday that three U.S.-built A-37 attack planes bombed villages near Acacoo, 69 miles north of the capital near the Honduran border, on Saturday.

The report, which could not be confirmed immediately, said 14 bombs, each weighing 500 pounds, were dropped — on the rebel-held hamlets of the area.

The air force bombed the San Vicente volcano Sunday morning in support of the army effort to drive guerrillas away from the area, said civilian sources in Zacatecoluca, who spoke on condition they not be identified.

Monsignor Arturo Rivera y Damas, archbishop of San Salvador, said in his Sunday homily: "After the beginning of the dialogue, which was supported both here and abroad with sympathy and optimism, the road is bristling with difficulties."

Water amendment a political problem

By MARK WARBIS The Associated Press

BOISE — With irrigation the lifeblood of Idaho agriculture and industry linked inexorably to cheap hydroelectricity, there are few issues in the state as politically charged as those concerning water.

From irrigators to power generators, conservationists to developers, water has been the focus of dozens of disputes, major and minor, tugging at the sleeves of state decision-makers. Into that turbulent body of public opinion now comes a proposed amendment to the Idaho Constitution that proponents say would assure elected officials the final word on water issues in the state.

But at least one key player in the current water management hierarchy says the proposal could turn Idaho's most valuable resource into even more of a political football.

Don Kramer of Castleford, chairman of the state Water Resources Board, said passage of Senate Joint Resolution 117, giving the Idaho Legislature specific authority to amend or reject provisions of the state water plan, "would be an injustice." "Immediately, when they have control of it, it becomes a political issue," Kramer said. "It becomes the Democrats against the Republicans against the water."

But state Sen. Laird Noh, R-Kimberly, who authored the proposed amendment on the November ballot, said water "always has been, and should be, a political issue."

"It goes back to the fundamental principle that the elected representatives of the people ought to be very much involved in deciding which individuals in which areas get water and which ones don't," Noh said. "Those matters are too important to be left to an appointive board."

But the state's biggest consumers — Idaho Power Co. and the Water Users Association — are staying out of the intragovernmental fray.

Most agree the Water Resources Board has done a good job of dealing with the complex issues of water rights, conservation and use. But one of the arguments for SJR 117 is that there remains the "potential" for partisanship on the board.

However, the Senate must approve appointments made by the governor, and state law guarantees no more than four members of any one political party may sit on the eight-member panel at any one time.

Controversial since its inception nearly 20 years ago, the Water Board has at times been accused of being everything from rock-ribbed conservationist to wildly pro-development. Noh, chairman of the Senate Resources and Environment Committee, said the proposed amendment would add another set of stabilizing checks and balances to water management decisions.

He said the amendment gives the Legislature no more than 60 days to act on any change to the water plan proposed by lawmakers, thus precluding the possibility of wholesale revisions being jammed through in the hectic closing days of an annual legislative session.

The Legislature's power also would be limited by a provision prohibiting changes to the water plan through concurrent resolution, Noh said.

Still, Kramer said most legislators lack the "potential" for partisanship on the board.

Senior citizens express views on elections

To the older generation, voting is a certainty amid uncertainty

EDITOR'S NOTE: Following is the first in a Times-News series on Magic Valley voters and their views on the 1984 election and how it affects their lives, "Of the People." The series will examine various groups of voters in the region, how they vote and why. The first piece looks at senior citizens.

By ANNETTE CARY Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — It's not a good time to be old in America, say elderly diners gathered for a hot lunch and companionship at the Twin Falls Senior Citizen Center. They vividly remember the years of the depression. Men talk of backbreaking labor to raise crops to sell at rock-bottom prices. Women remember keeping house without running water and stretching meals to fill too many stomachs.

But in many ways those years were kinder than the ones now, they say.

Then they could, and did, work hard to gain economic security, they say. Today their subsistence is often dependent on politicians who several say do not care about the problems of people too old to work.

"I'm voting for the party that is really for Social Security and so on," says a 78-year-old woman. "I don't think a certain politician should wait to have Social Security put on the books at the end of the term. He's only trying to show someone up at the end of the term."

"Roosevelt — you could believe what he said," says her 80-year-old companion. "He had fireside chats. He got us Social Security. He thought more of the poor and the middle class."

It is not just the politicians who have changed, the senior citizens say. The children and grandchildren of their generation baffle them.

"I wish it was like then. (when I was young)," Wilbur Trout says. "The world changed too much, too fast."

"Why not have a woman for vice president? They're as smart as men."
— Anna Sill

"There's so much hassle among nations — unrest, distrust. It hasn't always been that way."
— Mayola Bahr

"I've never failed to vote, but I just don't know how to make it."
— Ann G. Galt

Promiscuity, abortion, drugs and crime are mentioned by other senior citizens. One elderly woman shakes her head over a male rock star who dresses as a joke. The morals of the young are unfathomable, they say.

Of The People

And they question their strength of character.

"Money wasn't as available (when I was young) as it is now, but people were better off," says Russell Wolfe, 69. "We knew how to sacrifice. They want right now what their folks and grandparents did without all their lives to get."

His wife, Lola, says, "Everyone is more graspy and greedy all the time. The kids don't know how to earn a dollar anymore."

"There's too much affluence," says Mayola Bahr. "It just doesn't make for strength of character. My husband (a carpenter) made $30 and that's for a week. People today have it too easy."

But then, the young today will have more complex problems to solve than they did, they say.

"It's dangerous now," Bahr says. "There's so much hassle among nations — unrest, distrust. It hasn't always been that way. I don't like to say what's going to happen."

"We're so sophisticated in war and war materials, and we're building them up for other countries. Something is going to happen," says George Sill.

"We've repeated mistakes," says Bob Spellman, a teacher of history and other subjects for 40 years. "Look at Central America. The Vietnam war hasn't taught us a thing. We-keep-building-defense. We're so far in debt it will ruin the country. Look at these space weapons. This war of the skies. It will cost trillions of dollars."

The national debt is brought up several times.

A man talks about landing a good job in the 1930's and then says it paid less than $1,000 a year. His companion follows with the remark with criticism of the nation's debt.

A 90-year-old woman says that

He fears the Water Board's policy of conducting at least 10 public hearings before making any change in the water plan would be undermined by lawmakers free to act without such public comment. "It took 10 years to put the state water plan together, and it takes a board member four years to understand why some of the policies are written like they are," Kramer said.

The amendment would allow the Legislature to bypass the often-tedious public hearing process. "That's not the way the legislative process ought to operate, but we all know that sometimes it does."

Currently, the Legislature has the ability to indirectly quash water-plan changes it dislikes through the power of the purse. Water Board decisions are no more than formal recommendations until they're implemented. And more often than not, that takes money which only lawmakers can appropriate. So an amendment allowing direct legislative input may never have been necessary if, as supporters say, language added to the state Constitution in 1964 establishing a "Water Resource Agency" had been more specific, or, as opponents contend, the Legislature would act on Policy 19 of the state water plan.

"A legislative committee on water resources should be appointed to work with the Idaho Water Resources Board in implementing the state water plan," Policy 19 states. It's never been done, and those on both sides of the issue say establishing such a committee is overdue, no matter the outcome of the amendment.

"That's something I intend to take up next time," Noe said. "I should have done it last time, but I didn't get it done."

Kramer, a Water Resources Board member for 12 years, said part of the reason lawmakers have not followed the recommendation of Policy 19 is the amount of time and energy needed to become versed in the multitude of sensitive, technical and often controversial issues involved. "I think their big problem is they've never found anybody in the Legislature that wanted to spend that much time," he said. Noe agreed, but said a water committee still would not allow the Legislature to take direct action if necessary to alter the water plan.

The proposed amendment to "restore" that power was unanimously approved by both the House and Senate, and Noe says it should be quickly received by voters. "It's one of those fundamental issues," he says, "that appeals to people's common sense."

Organized crime heads busted

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A bid by organized crime members to take over $1 million-a-week bookmaking operations here was cut short Sunday with the arrests of 20 people, including the reputed crime boss of Southern California, police said. Among those arrested was Peter John Milano, "considered to be the head of organized crime" in Southern California, police Chief Daryl Gates said.

Six men found dead in car

DALLAS (AP) — The bodies of six men were found Sunday inside a car that left a roadway and became airborne for 200 feet before nosediving into a dry river

The car was discovered about 12:30 p.m. Sunday about 10 miles northwest of downtown Dallas by two boys and their grandfather who noticed some steam car parts while looking for aluminum cans, said investigating police officer T.G. Hershberger. "The driver was either real-tired or real-drunk," said Hershberger. "We won't know what happened until we get the blood test."

The victims, whose identities were not released, were between the ages of 20 and 30, Hershberger said, adding their families had not been notified.

Mother Teresa visits convent

NORRISTOWN, Pa. (AP) — Urging a crowd of thousands to "share the joy of loving," Mother Teresa, the Nobel Peace Prize winner, dedicated a convent Sunday that officials say may spark confrontations by offering shelter to the poor in a neighborhood where such missions are prohibited. "We are here not just to be a number, we are here for better things," she said, during the celebration of a 30th anniversary of the founding of the Missionaries of Charity order that is being held at a special prayer service in St. Patrick's Roman Catholic Church.

AUBURN, Maine (AP) — A mother and her live-in boyfriend were being held without bond on murder charges Sunday after the charred body of the woman's 4-year-old daughter was found in an oven propped shut with a chair, authorities said.

Neighbors said they had heard loud religious music, sounds of fighting and screams of "Let me out!" before calling police to investigate a disturbance in the couple's apartment Sunday. A neighbor said she saw the "Luelier" was burning in the house when she inquired about an odor, according to a copyright story in the newspaper Sunday of Lewiston and Auburn.

"He's the biggest two-faced person I've seen in this state," said Bill Hansen, referring to Stallings. In calling the ads "political hype," Hansen also overheard another indication in the campaign of where the money in Glens Ferry account came from.

The younger Hansen said the period when $396,000 in deposits and $337,000 in checks were run through his father's account at the Idaho State Bank was the same time that Hansen was involved in a silver futures transaction with Texas millionaire Nelson Banker Hunt.

The congressman earned $87,475 from that venture. That transaction and others were central points in the congressman's April 2 felony conviction. Hansen also refinanced a huge debt during that period, his son said, but would not elaborate. "When you have to refinance a $400,000 debt, you're going to have that much going through there," Bill Hansen said. Stallings defended his ads questioning the incident. He contended he agreed only to avoid focusing on Hansen's convictions but was forced to bring up the issue by the Republican Party. "I'm not making connections between the Democratic challenger and House Speaker Thomas P. 'Tip' O'Neill."

"We're responding to him," Stallings said. "He has not addressed one issue that I think is important to the state. This is a legitimate issue."

He said Hansen's campaign tactics indicated "he would do anything to win an election. Principle really will take a back seat" during the last few days of the race. Stallings said. The Democrat, who lost to Hansen by about 7,000 votes in 1982, called McClure's comments those of a "reasonable and thinking Republican."

that forthright with the people," Stallings said. Bill Hansen said polls conducted by the Republican campaign show his father leading by 5 to 6 percent throughout the district. Stallings has claimed he holds the lead in the polls by better than 15 points.

During the taping of a television interview to be aired Sunday, McClure said "As of this sitting, it is fair to say that George Hansen is behind." But Idaho's senior senator refused to count his GOP colleague out. "I learned a long time ago not to discount George Hansen's ability to get votes," he said.

After hearing of McClure's statements, Dennis Olsen, chairman of Idaho's Republican Party, said "I wouldn't agree right down the line with everything he said, necessarily."

Olsen said he believed "a couple of months ago George was behind," but that the resilient conservative has gained support since then. "I think George may still win," he said.

Seniors

Continued from Page A1... when she goes to the grocery store these days she never knows what she will be charged for milk and eggs and other staples. Her friend jumps into the conversation, saying, "I've heard of indebtedness but I've never heard of anything like this. We've had it before but never like this."

Most of the seniors have something to say about President Reagan, although Walter Mondale's name comes up less frequently than his running mate's, Geraldine Ferraro.

Myrna Roach says the nation is "in a mess. I'm all for Reagan. He gets a lot of criticism but I can't see how he can do any better." It's his ingenuity and intelligence gained through "experience and years of living," she trusts, she says. Asked if any young politicians are capable, she replies that "George Bush is all right." But Spellman, who played football for Bradley College against Ronald Reagan, says he's "just an actor. You could have put Fonda or James Stewart in there and they'd have done just as well. Reagan never does anything in depth."

He's a liberal, he confides, just as Abe Lincoln would be if he had lived today. But then he adds, "That's a swear word today. Call me a progressive."

Most of the women say that even if they do not vote for Mondale, they admire Ferraro.

"Why not have a woman for vice president?" asks Anna Sill. "They're as smart as men." But that doesn't mean she holds with liberation and "women acting like men," she says. "If she was put in Congress, which she was, she's a smart one. She knows what is going on," says another woman about Ferraro.

One subject on which there was almost unanimous consensus was voting. Most said they had never missed voting for presidential election and were set about to start now. "The state of the world comes and goes," says E.M. Hawkins, 73. "There are hard times and bad times no matter who they put in there... but I'll try to vote."

Only Flossie Creed, 87, hesitates. "I've never failed to vote but I just don't think I can make it — my legs," she explains. But then she starts talking about George Hansen, grumbling angrily. "Maybe I'll go to vote against him," she says.

Pesticide poorly monitored: panel

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Food and Drug Administration failed to adequately monitor the pesticide ethylene dibromide (EDB), a suspected cause of cancer, even after indications arose that it did not dissipate in bread, citrus and other foods as had been thought, a House subcommittee said Sunday.

Delays in research and testing are "by no means limited to EDB," the report concluded, and are common to other pesticides the FDA is supposed to monitor.

"FDA has failed to do its job and this has prevented other government agencies from enforcing laws meant to keep dangerous chemicals out of our food," said

Rep. Ted Weiss, D-N.Y.

The 27-page report was based on two days of hearings last March before the House Government Operations Committee's intergovernmental relations subcommittee, chaired by Weiss.

From the 1940s until earlier this year, EDB was sprayed on citrus, soybeans, cotton, nuts and other crops to protect them from rootworms, and on stored grain to prevent insect infestation.

In the mid-1960s, evidence was published that linked the pesticide with reproductive damage in animals. In the 1970s, research indicated that EDB did not dissipate from grains while they were processed, as had been thought.

Baboon heart recipient remains stable

LOMA LINDA, Calif. (AP) — Doctors refused to predict Sunday how long a 16-day-old girl will survive with a heart transplanted from a baboon, but they defended the experimental operation as picketers protested it as "ghoulish tinkering."

"I can't speculate on her survival," said Dr. Leonard L. Bailey, 41, who headed the team that transplanted the baboon heart Friday. He said the girl, identified only as Baby Fae, would have died otherwise because her own heart was only partially developed.

"We have a beautiful, healthy baby," Bailey said. The infant remained in critical but stable condition Sunday, and was "doing better than most infants who have had heart surgery," said Jane McGill, spokeswoman for the Loma Linda University Medical Center, 60 miles east of Los Angeles.

Asked if she would live a year without rejecting the heart, Bailey replied: "We hope and pray it will be that... We know we may be in for a long battle in the weeks ahead." He acknowledged that the longest survivor of a similar procedure — a goat that received a lamb's heart — lived only 165 days before the heart was rejected and the goat died.

As Bailey and other doctors met with reporters, about 20 members of People for the Ethical Treatment of Animals picketed outside the medical center, carrying signs reading "Ghoulish tinkering is not science" and "Stop the madness."

In Los Angeles, a group calling itself "Guardian Apes" claimed Sunday it vandalized five businesses believed by the organization to be involved in animal experimentation. Only one business confirmed the vandalism. The intensive care unit where Baby Fae was staying was "under very tight security," said hospital spokeswoman Caroline Hamilton. Guards patrolled the area, and visitors to the floor were required to sign in and out. The hospital would not disclose on which floor the baby was staying. "It's just a peaceful demonstration to protest the suffering they are putting this little girl through," said John Shelton, who with his wife, Lucy, organized the protest outside the university. "She has no choice in the matter. She's merely being experimented on."

Mrs. Shelton added: "Instead of one death now, there will definitely be two... In essence, they killed a baboon to prolong the child's suffering. We feel it's just ghoulish tinkering."

"Somewhere along the line, somebody has to take the leap," said Dr. Jack W. Prownsham, director of the university's Center for Christian Bioethics.

About six people also demonstrated in support of the transplant. One of them, Cheryl Harrison, said the critics "are in a minority. I thought someone should represent the majority."

She carried a sign reading: "Thank you for my life — infant, Baby Fae."

Campaign '84 Reagan, Mondale split papers' endorsements

RONALD REAGAN Offers 'magnetic leadership'

By The Associated Press

Calling President Reagan's domestic program "repugnant" and his diplomacy dangerous, the New York Times on Sunday endorsed Democrat Walter F. Mondale for president, while the San Francisco Examiner backed Reagan for his "magnetic leadership."

Reagan won endorsements Sunday from the Miami Herald, the Chicago Tribune, the New York Daily News, the Hartford Courant, the Omaha World-Herald, the Sunday Oklahoman in Oklahoma City and the Oregonian in Portland.

Mondale was supported by the Philadelphia Inquirer, the Detroit Free Press, the Minneapolis Star and Tribune, the Milwaukee Journal and the St. Petersburg Times.

The New York Times said in an editorial that the Democratic candidate "would offer an enlightened and humane conception of what government should, and should not, do. Most of all, he would bring to the White House the will to control nuclear weapons."

The Times called much of Reagan's domestic program "repugnant." The president "has punished the poor and retreated from civil rights," and his diplomacy has been "dangerous," the newspaper said.

However, the San Francisco Examiner praised the economic recovery under Reagan's "magnetic leadership" while tying his opponent to the "double-digit inflation of the Carter-Mondale administration."

The Examiner criticized the president as "wrong to allow the piling of 'firecracker' mines in Nicaraguan harbors," but praised his invasion that "rescued Grenada... against the expansion of Eastern Bloc totalitarianism."

Mondale talks taxes in campaign's last week

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Walter F. Mondale, returning to a theme he abandoned earlier, said Sunday a tax increase is inevitable after the Nov. 6 election and declared, "I will be fair to the average American" while President Reagan will not.

Mondale, beginning the final full week of his presidential campaign, said Reagan "wants to sock it to the average American" after the election, The Democratic challenger also charged the president has "now got a strategy of hiding in the White House. They're taking the people for granted."

Reagan relaxed at the presidential retreat at Camp David, Md., over the weekend but returns to the campaign hustings Monday to shore up shaky support in Pennsylvania and West Virginia.

Talking with reporters after attending church services, Mondale returned to the rhetoric that marked the early days of his fall campaign, when he took daily shots at Reagan's economic program.

"No matter what the president tries to imply, after this election taxes will go up. The question is who will pay," he said.

Mondale added, "The president without any doubt plans to sock it to the average American."

Democrats hope to regain Senate

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democratic strategists are counting on massive ticket splitting to boost their chances of regaining control of the Senate in the Nov. 6 election, despite President Reagan's lead in the polls.

Republicans, on the other hand, say they are confident of holding the control that has been theirs since 1980. They now have a majority of 55 seats to the Democrats' 45.

Sen. J. Byrd, D-Texas, chairman of the Democratic Senatorial Campaign Committee, has said he believes the Democrats have a 50-50 chance of making the needed net gain of five or six seats.

"There is going to be a lot of ticket splitting and it is going to benefit Democratic candidates at the Senate and congressional levels," a Democratic pollster said, speaking only on condition he not be named.

A Democratic campaign official, also speaking anonymously, gave a similar assessment as Byrdens but he and other campaign aides who briefed reporters were more hopeful about individual races than most Democrats were earlier in the campaign.

The Democratic sources predicted the party would pick up from three to seven seats.

In Tennessee, the campaign official said, "the race is over as far as we are concerned" because Democratic Rep. Albert Gore leads strongly in the polls and Republican state Sen. Victor Ashe is running out of money.

In Iowa, Democratic challenger Tom Harkin, a fifth-term congressman, is running neck and neck in his race against first-term Sen. Roger Jepsen. Cecil Cole, communications director for the National Republican Senatorial Committee, described the race as a dead heat and said Jepsen, a former Iowa lieutenant governor, has a record of winning in close elections. The most recent Iowa Poll put the contest at a statistical dead heat.

Republicans and Democrats agreed that GOP Sen. Jesse Helms and Democratic Gov. James Hunt are in an extremely close race in North Carolina.

The Democratic official said the Illinois race is "very tough," with Republican Sen. Charles H. Percy making gains among voters in the Chicago suburbs where his Democratic challenger, Rep. Paul Simon, had previously led.

WELL—I THINK I CAN BE VERY PLEASED WITH MY SHOWING IN THE SECOND DEBATE, GERALDINE. YES, VERY PLEASED.

I'M BEGINNING TO FEEL MAYBE YOU'RE NOT SUCH A LIABILITY AFTER ALL, WALLY.

MAGNIFICENT, SIR! GEE, BOSS, YOU WERE JUST LIKE ME IN THAT DEBATE—YOU GOT OUT THERE AND KICKED ASS!!

I KICK, GEORGE—YOU KISS.

Democracy is censorship's real target

Give me the liberty to know, to utter, and to argue freely according to conscience, above all liberties. — John Milton (1689-1674)

Recently, schools and libraries were celebrating National Banned Books Week to prick the public awake about censorship in America.

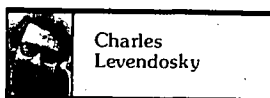

And no doubt that week some timid librarian somewhere in America, for the good of the community, removed books from a banned books exhibit because of so-called objectionable material. It happened last year in the Jericho High School in New York state. Perhaps the irony wasn't evident to the librarian.

In the last school year, according to a study done by People for the American Way, a national organization dedicated to the protection of the First Amendment, there were attempts to remove, alter, or restrict students' access to a wide variety of educational materials in all but two states, Hawaii and Michigan.

The study reported one attempt at censorship in Idaho schools. It involved a local church's objections to The Golden Book of the Mysterious by Jane Werner Watson and Sol Schanley being read in Moscow's elementary schools. The church criticized the book because of its occult material.

Last year in the Rocky Mountain states four out of the nine reported censorship cases were resolved by restricting or removing books, or banning items. And the number of assaults on our freedom continues to increase.

Our literary heritage, our history, and our ability to gather information is being jeopardized.

Charles Levendosky

The true meaning of education in a free country is jeopardized. The true meaning of an informed citizen in our democracy is jeopardized. And our right to express differing opinions is threatened.

Recent attempts at censorship have come from parents, right-wing and left-wing organizations, minority-rights groups, religious organizations, anti-pornography groups, the government, and publishers themselves.

The most distressing censorship is that which is self-imposed and motivated by timidity or by greed. A few school officials and librarians reportedly have removed "suspicious material" prior to any challenge. Fortunately, very few of these professionals take such a timid route. Many of them are in the frontlines battling the attacks against our First Amendment rights.

Unfortunately, many textbook publishers have dropped any pretense to professionalism or support of intellectual freedom in order to sell more books. Scott, Foresman and Company in their ninth grade English anthology, Arrangement in Literature, have bowdlerized Shakespeare's Romeo and Juliet without mentioning that the version was abridged. That's intellectually dishonest, even if it sells in Minnesota.

If we are going to attack classics for having "sexually explicit material," then we may soon see a sanitized Revised Standard Version of the Holy Bible with the Song of Solomon expunged.

When textbook publishers become afraid of controversy and cautious about their treatment of history and literature, then public school education is doomed. It may be time for those school districts which seek excellence to turn to other publishers for materials. Textbook anthologies aren't the only source of literature and textbooks aren't the only source for scientific material. It is time to push textbook companies to reevaluate their motives and their role in society by diminishing their sales.

If we allow these censors to nibble like termites at the structural beams of the First Amendment, then eventually the walls of our democratic society must crumble.

Numerous examples from history teach us unless they have already been revised by textbook censors that whenever a dictatorship takes over a country, the first freedom to be squelched is the freedom of speech. Freedom of speech and access to information protect our liberty. When we give up these freedoms, for whatever reason, we invite oppression.

George Bernard Shaw expressed it this way, "Assassination is the extreme form of censorship." Today, in our country, the target is democracy.

Hellar gained little ground in debate

BOISE — Bill Hellar, a brash political newcomer, is taking on a member of Idaho's "establishment," two-term Congressman Larry Craig.

Craig holds most of the cards, and few Democrats really believe Hellar can win.

But the challenger badly needed the exposure he got in Thursday night's televised debate. He may be a future winner, perhaps in 1986, although he didn't appear to pick up much ground in this debate.

Craig has run in the district six times, starting with the 1980 GOP primary, and hasn't lost yet. He has good credentials for an Idaho politician:

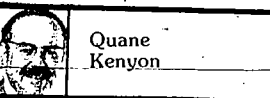

- Conservative rancher.
- University of Idaho graduate.
- Former champion debater.
- Once served in the Young Republicans.
- A former state senator.

That background makes things tough for Hellar, a Michigan native born into a steelworker's family who has never held a major office.

Hellar got a very late start, not even getting into the race until July. About six to eight months later than recent challengers, and he has little money.

Latest campaign finance reports show the challenger with about $22,000 in contributions. Craig has 10 times as much.

That means little money for media advertising.

Quane Kenyon

and Thursday's statewide telecast, carried on the state's public broadcast system, was important to Hellar.

But he didn't score many major points. Craig prepared for the debate carefully, bringing with him a looseleaf, with indexed notes on issues. Hellar didn't go that far, using only a notebook to jot down things as the debate went along.

It was a far more polite confrontation than the George Hansen-Hillard Stallings debate of one week earlier. There was little of the personal baiting and sharp exchanges this time.

Hansen last week spent little time preparing specifically for the debate, flying to campaign appearances in St. Anthony and Burley before returning to Pocatello for the debate.

Craig spent most of the day preparing for his debate, and had better answers than his and Hellar and Craig got to spend more time explaining their stands on key issues, and had to work less at defending themselves.

Craig appears to be a little more relaxed as he promised a "positive attitude" in Washington. "I'm not quite ready to give up on America," he said.

A heavy underdog needs to gain a lot of ground, and Hellar probably did not accomplish that in the debate. But he said afterward he was satisfied because the debate gave him a good chance to get his issues before the public.

"I feel good about it. It gives a perfect choice to the voters," he said.

Craig, meanwhile, emerged unscathed from what may be his last major challenge. He said voters have "a clear choice" and said Democrats are proposing "solutions of the past" to the country's problems.

"The government doesn't need more money, you do," Craig said.

Craig's not likely to be beaten this time. But if an aggressive newcomer, Hellar, comes fairly close, thanks to his statewide exposure in the debate, then Democrats may be lining up to run against Craig in 1986.

'84 elections bring quality candidates

Tominaga in Senate race

The 1984 political season has brought a raft of newcomers into Magic Valley politics.

Reapportionment created a new state Senate seat in new district 24, covering Cassia, Jerome and Minidoka Counties.

For that position, we like Republican—Lynn Tominaga, a Paul area farmer making his first try for public office. Tominaga is just 30, but already he has picked up valuable experience.

He was student body president at the University of Idaho and worked for the Idaho Water Users Association as a staff assistant and lobbyist on water issues before going into farming. Tominaga says he wants to specialize in water issues and his background will be helpful in a Legislature which will be debating the Swan Falls agreement this winter.

Richard Russell, his Democratic opponent, is a Rupert bartender who lost a primary contest to Sen. John Peavey in 1982.

Robbins gets edge

The choice is a more difficult one, in our view between Republican Gary Robbins, a Dietrich farmer, and Democrat Eugene Sullivan, a Fairfield restaurant owner and high school teacher, who are vying for a House seat in District 22.

Each offers positions consistent with his party affiliations, but either, in our view, would be a thoughtful legislator.

Our nod goes to Robbins, who won in the primary over an incumbent at least in part because of his strong support for subordination. Robbins, a former certified public accountant, knows the hazards of farming, having been forced into Chapter 11 reorganization. That, in our view, has given him a tough dose of reality through which to consider farming problems.

Sullivan has been a teacher for a number of years and has the backing of the Idaho Education Association in his legislative bid. He says he was "insulted" by a recent anti-IEA comic book, and supports higher education funding in the Legislature. He thinks the state needs to "elect people other than the reactionary right."

Von Lindern looks strong

Democratic House candidate Ian VonLindern, a Buhl chemical engineer, has run a low-budget, low-visibility campaign and as a Democrat, is a decided underdog against his opponent, Noy Brackett. As individuals, both are persons.

Despite Brackett's years of service, we think the chances are greater that VonLindern would be a more active and dynamic legislator for Twin Falls County.

Republican Brackett has been in the Idaho Legislature 10 years and is now seeking his sixth term. He survived a brisk challenge from Twin Falls attorney Paul Smith in the May primary.

He is an amiable individual who has specialized in ranching issues but his legislative leadership roles have been generally modest. As we said when Brackett was challenged by Smith, we think it is time for Twin Falls County voters to consider a change.

VonLindern, who has a Ph.D. from Yale, is particularly knowledgeable on toxic waste issues and water quality. He says he's concerned about the lack of effective monitoring of the proposed nuclear production reactor at the INEL site. VonLindern is also an affiliate professor at the University of Idaho and believes the state's higher education network is beginning to deteriorate.

No contest in some races

A number of legislative races are unopposed this year and we find all of the candidates for those positions acceptable.

They are: Rep. Lawrence Knigge, a strong supporter of education, in Twin Falls County;

Rep. Steve Antone, Rupert, who is running for the House Speaker position as a moderate alternative to Speaker Tom Stivers;

Rep. Waldo Martens, Jerome County, who defeated an incumbent in the May primary in part over subordination;

In district 26, covering Cassia and Minidoka Counties, Reps. J. Vard Catburn and Ernest A. Hale and Sen. Denton Darrington are all unopposed.

In district 25, Sen. Laird Noh, Kimberly, who has wide admiration from his colleagues for his moderation and knowledge in the fields of education and natural resources.

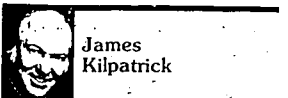

NATO's fleet small but inspirational

CHARLESTON, S.C. — It was the late Joe McCarthy of Wisconsin, if I mistake not, who once remarked upon the most unheard-of thing he had ever heard of. Here is a real McCarthy for you: the NATO fleet. Have you ever heard of it? Not many persons have.

Yet here it was on a sunny autumn day in Charleston — the entire fleet of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, all five ships of it, tied up in the naval yard for a couple of weeks of maintenance. Most of us tend to think of NATO entirely in terms of ground forces, divisions of infantry, battalions of tanks and traffic jams of armored vehicles. It comes as a surprise to learn that NATO also is out on the bounding main.

Considering its impressive sponsorship, the NATO fleet must qualify as the smallest fleet of them all. After several years of trials and demonstrations, it came formally into being in January 1968. Five member nations of NATO each contribute a frigate fully manned with its own nationals. At the moment the fleet consists of the USS Aubrey Fitch, the Canadian Otawa, the British Arctura, the Netherlands' Phillip van Almonde and the West German Lutjens. Individual ships come and go, and command of the squadron rotates annually among the participating nations.

The present commander of NATO's fleet is a 46-year-old West German, Capt. Klaus D. Schwabe. I don't believe they got him from Germany; I believe they got him from Central Casting. He is tall, lean, sunburned to a khaki tan; his eyes are the blue of a good gun barrel. Aching! He was born to be the persicoe in a U-boat movie. He speaks fluent English, partly because of a two-year tour of duty in Norfolk, Va., as an intelligence officer assigned to the supreme allied commander of the Atlantic fleet.

Schwabe's mission is partly symbolic, partly real. His little flotilla, flying its five national flags along with NATO's, is a highly visible representation of the treaty organization. During the course of a year's cruising, the fleet will call at 23 ports. The November-December schedule calls for visits to Savannah, Jacksonville and New Orleans, where Schwabe and his senior officers will have an opportunity to demonstrate the kind of stamina required to stand up to consecutive evenings of Southern hospitality. The fleet will then return to its patrols in the eastern Atlantic.

The captain's more serious mission is to assist other Western navies in keeping an eye on Soviet ships, to gather intelligence and to train crews in the art of anti-submarine warfare. Except when the 1,400 officers and men are in port, they have little leisure. "We exercise all the time," says Schwabe. This discipline pays off. A U.S. naval officer who has done joint exercises with the NATO fleet tells me that ship for ship, the five NATO frigates are as proficient as any in the world. When an order is given to turn, he adds admiringly, "they turn as precisely as a chorus line."

Schwabe professes a healthy respect for the Soviet Union's rapidly expanding navy. He has watched the Soviets on maneuvers, and he regards the Kirov and Slava cruisers as first-class warships. But he is sometimes puzzled, too. "Once we tracked a Soviet squadron for five days in the Baltic. Would you believe it? For the whole five days they did nothing — no exercises, no gunnery practice, no drills of any kind, nothing. What a waste of time! They should have been practicing something, every day."

If relations between the NATO nations and the Warsaw pact ever get really sticky, the five-ship fleet expects to be on the front line. Their mission in that event is "to take all military measures within their capability to establish and maintain control of the vital sea areas of the Allied Command Atlantic and to protect therein the seaboard traffic and reinforcement of the Alliance."

Meanwhile there are war games to be played and submarines to be monitored and ships to be kept in fighting trim. It may be the smallest fleet in the eastern Atlantic, but it has a German captain who loves it.

James Kilpatrick writes his column, "A Conservative View," from Washington.

Second-grade teacher Janel Mecham uses art as a teaching tool and to help children feel good about themselves.

Art opens doors to learning in class

By SARAH MURPHY
Times-News correspondent

RUPERT — Janel Mecham, recently named Mindoka County's teacher of the year, uses art as a key to learning in her second grade classroom.

A teacher at Memorial Elementary School in Rupert, Mecham says art is the key to open the door to learning for her small pupils.

"It creates an environment which helps a child feel good about himself," she says, adding that feeling good about themselves helps a student learn more easily.

A look around Mecham's classroom, inhabited this time of the year by whimsical "spookies," as she calls them, some created by the artistic Mecham, but most drawn and crafted with obvious loving care by the hands of the children, tells any observer Mecham practices what she preaches.

"Children who are unsuccessful in other areas of learning succeed in art projects," says

Mecham. "It helps these children to feel good about themselves," she says, indicating her colorful classroom with a sweep of her hand.

Mecham's theory can be put into practice at any grade level, she says, adding that for her, the second grade is an ideal age group with which to work.

"Children at this age are more uninhibited, not afraid to express themselves — they know from day one that art is very important to me.

"I use art freely on the board — they see me drawing easily and freely, and consequently, they feel more free to express themselves too," she explains.

Mecham is quick to point out that even though all teachers haven't been endowed by the artistic talent she possesses, they should try anyway to express themselves in front of their students.

"A child can be very content with a teacher drawing stick figures on the board," she says.

Mecham says art is fun, but it can be used effectively for "serious business" in the classroom.

"Halloween is reserved for fun" art, but I also use art to teach science, social studies, creative writing and math," explains Mecham.

"When doing animal units, I have the students pick an animal to research — they are required to make paper mache models of their animals, as true to life as possible," she says.

"In our social studies unit on Indians, we work as a group, constructing a model of an actual Indian village — I make clay out of salt dough, and we make pottery that we paint with authentic Indian designs," says Mecham.

Among many other things, we also make teepees out of brown paper, crumpled up to resemble buffalo hide," she says.

"This entire project is a highlight for most of my students," she adds, noting it is the one the students say they remember the most at the end of the year.

She says number concepts can be taught effectively through the medium of art. Bringing out a graphic display of numbers which she says

New fire rating lowers insurance costs in Wendell

By TERREL WILLIAMS
Times-News correspondent

WENDELL — Local residents have been receiving a welcome 20 percent drop in their fire insurance rates.

This drop is the result of a new fire rating the city recently was awarded by the state following a three-day survey. On a rating scale of one to 10, with 10 being the worst, the city went from a seven to a five.

Fire Chief Keith Hosack says the new rating was lower for several reasons.

The city, he says, has been improving its water system for several years, replacing old six-inch lines with new 10-inch ones and installing new hydrants along these lines.

"Charlie (Daly, city superin-endent) worked real hard at getting all these new water lines in," Hosack says.

"As a guess, I'd say they've put in 10 to 15 new hydrants in the last two or three years, plus the ones they're working on now."

The city has about 83 hydrants now and will continue to install new water lines for several more years, the fire chief notes.

The Wendell Fire Department, he continues, has a new $45,000 pumper truck, a full-time fire chief, better firemen training, improved fire prevention programs and more fire fighting and rescue equipment.

These improvements, Hosack says, accounted for 50 percent of the lower rating, while city improvements were the other 50 percent.

Death of Murtaugh baby caused by SIDS

MURTAUGH — The death of a seven-month-old Murtaugh baby who was found lifeless in his crib Saturday morning has been attributed to SIDS, sudden infant death syndrome.

Twin Falls County Coroner Jim Wood said doctors who attended the child at the hospital attributed death to the syndrome that "mysteriously strikes children up to 18 months of age.

Casey R. Wright, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Robin Wright, was pronounced dead at Magic Valley Regional Medical Center about 10:30 a.m. Saturday after numerous attempts to revive the child had failed. Doctors and nurses worked on the infant for some time at the hospital before determining he had probably died while asleep.

The mother said after she put the child down for a morning nap, she checked on him once and found him sleeping. When she checked again about 9:40 a.m., she discovered the child was apparently unconscious. She called the Murtaugh Quick Response unit, and the baby's father and QRU members attempted to revive the child before he was transported to the hospital in Twin Falls.

Buhl lunch to honor volunteers for youth

BUHL — Volunteer Appreciation Week to honor Buhl volunteers who work with youth will be celebrated today at a noon lunch in the Ramona Restaurant in Buhl.

This year's lunch, sponsored by the Buhl Chamber of Commerce, will focus on volunteers from the Buhl Community Education and Recreation program, Head Start, Little League Football, Buhl Junior Riding Club, Buhl Rodeo Association, Morrison Arena, 4-H, Buhl Youth Baseball, PALS, Boy Scouts, Cub Scouts, Blue Birds and the McAuley Home.

Mayor Jim Barker will preside Oct. 29 through Nov. 3 as Volunteer Appreciation Week and present the thirteen community organizations with a Certificate of Appreciation signed by the mayor, Gov. John Evans and the president of the chamber of commerce.

Pegan Venzon, chairperson of Volunteer Appreciation Week, said the lunch is open to the public to explain the volunteer programs and perhaps find additional residents interested in donating their time to community projects.

Jerome 'Citizen of the Year' honored for public service

By CAROLYN MILLER
Times-News correspondent

JEROME — Tom Prescott was honored last week as Jerome's "Citizen of the Year."

At a luncheon in his honor Wednesday, a gathering of friends, relatives and associates paid tribute to Prescott for his "outstanding service to the community of Jerome and to his fellowmen."

"It was very gratifying," said Prescott, "to have so many friends and members of my family say such kind things about me."

A western welcome greets you as you step into Prescott's spacious office at Prescott and Craig Insurance in Jerome. The decor is a reflection of the man, for the room is not filled with ostentatious mementos of innumerable honors and awards, but boasts a painting of Prescott's favorite quarter horse, several wood relief western scenes and humorous cowboy caricatures.

A soft spoken man with a warm smile and old fashioned courtesy aptly describes Prescott.

"One of my first duties as 'Citizen of the Year,' says Prescott, "was being grand marshal for the Jerome County Fair and Rodeo this past summer. I was really looking forward to riding one of my horses in the parade, rather than riding in a convertible. Apparently, my horse was of a different opinion, for he lunged, jumped and sidled down the street until he backed into a car. 'I horse,' Mecham says art is fun, but it can be used effectively for "serious business" in the classroom.

Born in Cleveland, Idaho, a small southeastern town between Grace and Preston, Prescott was one of four sons and two daughters. In 1925, the Prescott family moved to Wendell, where Prescott says he spent a good deal of time herding cattle on the desert.

A graduate of Wendell High School, Prescott attended Idaho State College and graduated from the Idaho State Teacher's College at Albion. He says a teaching position in Dietrich introduced him to Marge, the girl he was to marry. He and Marge moved to Oregon while Prescott was with the Corps, and following his request for termination with the Corps, moved to Wendell where Prescott taught high school math, geometry, aeronautics and was the high school coach as well.

In 1944 Prescott, joined the United States Navy and while enlisted was a company commander, swimming instructor and taught hand-to-hand combat to sailors and marines. During this time, he attended the Athletic Specialists School in Bainbridge, Maryland and graduated first in his class.

Prescott was also selected to attend Rehabilitation School at Samsom, New York, where he learned the skills required to rehabilitate wounded soldiers. He was later transferred to the Naval Rehabilitation School at Sun Valley, Idaho, where he was in charge of utilizing such sports as skiing, swimming, and football as a means of rehabilitating the service men.

In 1946 following his discharge from the Navy, Prescott moved to Jerome and joined Hevis Investment Company. Prescott and LeRoy Craig now own the business and it is known as Prescott & Craig Insurance.

Prescott has been president of Jerome

Rotary Club and vice president of the Jerome Chamber of Commerce. He has also served on the Jerome County Fair Board and on the board of directors for St. Benedict's Family Medical Center. He was also instrumental in raising funds to build the hospital and the Jerome swimming pool. He initiated the founding of KART radio station in Jerome.

In 1955, Prescott purchased a farm in Jerome which consisted of 200 acres. Since then his operation, both farming and ranching has developed to 2,300 acres with 1,200 acres in cultivation.

Prescott says he also runs cattle on the Miller Star Lake, and Star Lake East units, consisting of 250,000 acres administered by the Bureau of Land Management.

Inman builds frontier town

Carpenter works at SNRA site for new Clint Eastwood film

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — There's a new frontier town in the Sawtooth National Forest just north of Sun Valley that is destined for a brief but bustling future.

Although it won't be around long, the little Idaho town will be seen by people from throughout the country. Sounds like a difficult task, but according to a Twin Falls man who helped build the small town, it will meet all of those conditions.

Bob Inman, a Twin Falls carpenter, said the town may be in Idaho, but it's name is Lahood, Calif., and it is the setting for part of the new Clint Eastwood movie, "Pale Rider" that is now being filmed.

He was one of five area carpenters who went to work at Lahood, about 10 miles north of Sun Valley near Galena, early in October. Within only 13 days they had finished construction of the entire town.

Unlike many movie sets where the towns consist of store fronts only, Lahood's buildings are complete structures and some are sufficiently finished inside to provide for sets for some of the scenes.

Security at the filming site has kept most area residents at a distance, but Inman had a chance to become acquainted, not only with the set but with the Hollywood crews.

"I can say that I met Eastwood once," he said. "I shook his hand when he came to the filming location once during my 13 days there."

Inman said he and the four other carpenters didn't actually build the entire town in the 13-day period, since other set-builders from California had done a lot of the work. Local carpenters were called in later to help finish the project so filming could begin.

Buildings consist of the usual stores, saloons and livery stables of the western towns of the 1800s. There is a cafe, a bank, the hardware store, a second hand store, livery stable, and a "liquor and grocery" store. Then there is also the mansion where the "bad guy" lives and a lodging area above the hardware store.

"That's where the 'girls' live," Inman says.

Inman said he got the high-paying carpenter job through the carpenter's union that sent out a call for local workers. He said he and others lived in the Sun Valley and Ketchum area while working.

When the filming is finished, he said, the little California town in Idaho will be torn down for salvage.

Because the movie makers leased about 20 acres from the U.S. Forest Service for their town, they will be required to remove all traces of the buildings and sets and reseed the ground. It will then become just another 20 acres of forest terrain.

Inman said plans are to finish shooting at the Idaho site shortly. He said other parts of the movie are being shot at an old mine about three miles up the road from the townsite and at another location in California.

Inman said movie crews also built sheep corrals and a cemetery with fake headstones, located near the little town. These will also be used in some of the movie scenes.

It took just 13 days to build a temporary town for filming of a new Eastwood movie

Empty Chair, you missed something

You're a teacher. You have too many empty chairs in front of you each day. The projection is in another eight years, you will have 10 percent more empty chairs than you have now.

Who are these people who belong in those chairs and why aren't they there?

A few got lost, disappointed and figured they'd never catch up. Some are lazy and will give only what they have to get by. The majority are "bored."

Emma Bombeck
At wit's end

Math isn't "fun." Language is "repetitious." History isn't "relevant." They blame education. It's time all of us stopped making apologies for our school system. If kids want "fun," let 'em go to Disneyland. Language is repetitious because that's the way they learn it. And if the past isn't relevant, neither will be the future.

If someone took one of those "phantom" students by the hand in the first grade, he might say, "We're going on a cruise for the next 12 years to prepare you for a place in this world. We'll stop off at great moments in literature and spend a little time with the human mind and how it works. You can sample challenges of philosophy and sociology and learn why people act the way they do. You can explore the world of science and technology. For the first time you will interact with people outside of your family. Many of them will have different cultural backgrounds, religious views and values. But mostly, you'll learn a lot about yourself... your mental discipline and where you fit into the universe. Pack lightly... only your imagination and curiosity. You can pick up a lot along the way, but there will be 12 years.

"Sure, you're only 10 percent of boredom, tell him and even absurdity, but so is life sometimes."

Last spring, a school in Richmond, Ind., plagued by empty chairs, offered $100 to any student who showed up for school every day. The perfect attendance record went from 37 to 200 and the school had to scramble to raise $20,000. (The thought that crossed my mind was, the money should have been paid to the teachers to show up.)

You can't blame the principal. He's trying. We all are. Maybe parents should join forces with educators to stop "begging" their kids to attend school and telling them that "school is boring, but you might as well tough it out until you're of age."

I'd prefer to say, "Hey, Empty Chair! While you were watching 'The Love Boat' yesterday, you missed a fantastic trip to the battlegrounds at Gettysburg. If you miss tomorrow, you'll miss how to deal with your anger, what Hamlet said to his mother and blow a math quiz. Sorry, education isn't a lottery and it isn't show biz. It's a lot of hard work. We can't wait for you, Empty Chair. We've only got 12 years to get it together."

Time to abolish Halloween blackmail

DEAR ABBY: Those who presume to lead their children who are out trick-or-treating on Halloween should take a lesson from my mother and her friends.

They never had to worry. We stayed home because she and her neighbors would toss the best party of the year - next to Christmas. They did this with little effort, permitting the children to do most of the work and planning.

Hot dogs, hamburgers, soft drinks, cookies and cakes were in bountiful supply. We played games, lobbied for apples and received prizes for our costumes.

Abigail VanBuren
Dear Abby

Growing up in a small town (population about 9,000), I never heard of trick or treat until I moved to Washington, D.C. We didn't have to worry about poisoned candy, pins and razor blades in apples, or the threat of being lured into the home of a stranger or to be molested.

I personally despise the custom of trick or treat and refuse to condone it by encouraging children to come to my door. Call me Scrooge.

Fortunately, more parents in my part of the country are beginning to see the sense in block parties on Halloween. I hope it catches on and replaces the deplorable custom of sending children out to beg for treats.

"trick," being anything from overturning garbage cans, soaping (or breaking) windows, or doing serious damage to property.

This kind of vicious and anti-social behavior should not be tolerated. Most police departments must call in extra hands on Halloween to patrol the streets in an effort to protect private and public property.

What began years ago as a harmless holiday, celebrated by telling children scary ghost stories about imaginary witches, goblins and spirits; has turned into legalized blackmail.

Halloween has become scarier than ever, and I vote for abolishing the custom of trick or treat. Readers?

my wife with another man. I am aware of what is going on, and I do not have to be reminded of my incapability to do things for her. Why, oh why, can't these people keep their big mouths shut?

I'll bet others have this problem, too. If you print this, it will probably go up on a lot of bulletin boards. Thank you for listening.

— FRUSTRATED IN FLORIDA
DEAR FRUSTRATED: Some people are more thoughtless than malicious—I hope this reminds those who carry tales to use their heads.

DEAR ABBY: Single American women shouldn't complain about the "Ms." title.

In Australia an unmarried woman — be she 18 or 80 — is officially listed as a "spinster" on her passport!

Mecham

He created "many years ago, when I first started my teaching career here in Rupert," she points to the numerals shaped in the figures of colorful animals.

Turning her attention to the math corner of the room, Mecham points to a bulletin board filled with construction paper cut-outs of ghosts, witches and things that go "bump in the night."

"I give 'whizzie quizzes,' (timed tests) to the students. When they are rewarded by spoons which are personalized with their own names."

"I designed these wild little sharks which can eat each other up when positioned on the bulletin board — it gets a little gruesome sometimes," she says, smiling.

Mecham admits teaching creative writing is one of her favorite projects and combines writing with art to help her students get their thoughts down on paper.

"At the first of the year, when they are not yet able to write in complete sentences, I have them draw pictures to tell their stories," says Mecham.

"Second grade is a big change from first grade," she says. "I have seen kids easily turned off by writing their own stories. It puts them in a vulnerable position, especially those who are learning disabled. I have to be so careful not to criticize, even by the tone of my voice — their little egos are so fragile, she says."

Mecham, who learned the skill of signing from her husband Gary, who teaches in the resource room at East Minico Junior High School and who has taught signing in the Mindoka County Community Education program, uses the skill to help teach the alphabet.

"I teach the letter signs to my students at the same time they are learning their printed letters," she says, noting she has "found that some children who have problems with spelling do better when they can spell out their words with their hands."

"In fact, I have discovered that my slower students are the better signers, learning as many as 200 signs during the year," adds Mecham.

"I don't want to belittle the subjects we teach," she says, "but I think the most important thing a teacher can do is make the children like themselves, by treating them as individuals and making them realize their self-worth."

Empty Chair, you missed something

You're a teacher. You have too many empty chairs in front of you each day. The projection is in another eight years, you will have 10 percent more empty chairs than you have now.

Who are these people who belong in those chairs and why aren't they there? A few got lost, despaired and figured they'd never catch up. Some are lazy and will give only what they have to get by. The majority are "bored."

Math isn't "fun." Language is "repetitious." History isn't "relevant." They blame education. It's time all of us stopped making apologies for our school system. If kids want "fun," let 'em go to Disneyland. Language is repetitious because that's the way they learn it. And if the past isn't relevant, neither will be the future.

If someone took one of those "phantom" students by the hand in the first grade, he might say, "We're going on a cruise for the next 12 years to prepare you for a place in this world. We'll stop off at great moments in literature and spend a little time with the human mind and how it works. You can sample challenges of philosophy and sociology and learn why people act the way they do. You can explore the world of science and technology. For the first time you will interact with people outside of your family. Many of them will have different cultural backgrounds, religious views and values. But mostly, you'll learn a lot about yourself... your capacity for learning and where it will take you, your mental discipline and where you fit into the universe. Pack lightly... only your imagination and curiosity. You can pick up a lot along the way, but you only have 12 years.

"Sure, there'll be periods of boredom, tedium and even absurdity, but so is life sometimes."

Last spring, a school in Richmond, Ind., plagued by empty chairs, offered $100 to any student who showed up for school every day. The perfect attendance record went from 37 to 200 and the school had to scramble to raise $20,000. (The thought that crossed my mind was the money should have been paid to the teachers to show up.)

You can't blame the principal. He's trying. We all are. Maybe parents should join forces with educators to stop "begging" their kids to attend school and telling them that "school is boring, but you might as well tough it out until you're of age."

I'd prefer to say, "Hey, Empty Chair! While you were watching 'The Love Boat' yesterday, you missed a fantastic trip to the battlegrounds at Gettysburg. If you miss tomorrow, you'll miss how to deal with your anger, what Hamlet said to his mother and blow a math quiz. Sorry, education isn't a lottery and it isn't a quiz biz. It's a lot of hard work. We can't wait for you, Empty Chair. We've only got 12 years to get it together."

Time to abolish Halloween blackmail

DEAR ABBY: Those who presumably worry about their children who are out trick-or-treating on Halloween should take a lesson from my mother and her friends.

They never had to worry. We stayed home because she and her neighbors would toss the best party of the year—next to Christmas. They did this with little effort, permitting the children to do most of the work and planning.

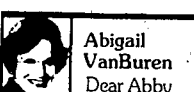

Hot dogs, hamburgers, soft drinks, cookies and cakes were in bountiful supply. We played games, lobbied for apples and received prizes for our costumes.

Growing up in a small town (population of 9,000), I never heard of trick or treat until I moved to Washington, D.C. We didn't have to worry about poisoned candy, pins and razor blades in apples, or the threat of being lured into the home of a stranger to be molested.

I personally despise the custom of trick or treat and refuse to condone it by encouraging children to come to my door. Call me Scrooge.

Fortunately, more parents in my part of the country are beginning to see the sense in block parties on Halloween. I hope it catches on and replaces the deplorable custom of sending children out to beg for treats.

DEAR CONCERNED: You hit upon something that has troubled me for a number of years. The very principle of trick or treat is pure and simple blackmail: "If you don't give me a treat, I will play a trick on you!" — the

"trick" being anything from overturning garbage cans, soaping (or breaking) windows, or doing serious damage to property.

This kind of vicious and anti-social behavior should not be tolerated. Most police departments must call in "extra" hands on Halloween to patrol the streets in an effort to protect private and public property.

What began years ago as a harmless holiday, celebrated by telling children scary ghost stories about imaginary witches, goblins and spirits, has turned into legalized blackmail.

Halloween has become scarier than ever, and I vote for abolishing the custom of trick or treat. Readers?

DEAR ABBY: I have been a resident in a nursing home for many years. My mind is sound, but my body is badly crippled. My wife visits me every day without fail. She has never neglected me and I know she loves me very much.

I've always encouraged her to have a little social life, but every time she goes to dinner with a gentleman, and the employees here at the home see her, they think it is their "duty" to rush in and report to me that they saw my wife with another man. I am aware of what is going on, and I do not have to be reminded of my incapability to do things for her. Why, oh why, can't these people keep their big mouths shut?

"I'll bet others have this problem, too. If you print this, it will probably go up on a lot of bulletin boards. Thank you for listening."

—FRUSTRATED IN FLORIDA
DEAR FRUSTRATED: Some people are more thoughtless than malicious. I hope this reminds those who carry tales to use their heads.

DEAR ABBY: Single American women shouldn't complain about the "Ms." title.

In Australia an unmarried woman — be she 18 or 80 — is officially listed as a "spinster" on her passport!

What's what

If 8,500 businesses change ownership nationwide today, call it typical.

When men buy cups, saucers, plates - that category of merchandise known as tableware - they most often choose pieces with hula in them.

Adolescence begins at puberty, but when does it end? A New York psychiatrist, Dr. O.B. Markey, once said it lasted until about age 35. Others have claimed it's only over paragraphs. Cartoonists draw dingbats in place of unprintable epithets. The word got into the vernacular as a synonym for "f---".

Q. Do frogs have ears?
A. Sort of. The hearing nerve is directly behind the eye. They hear with their eyes, as it were.

Q. Can you verify the contention that the most war-like people in the world are the Arabs?
A. No, sir, am not qualified to debate it either way. All I know is that Arabic has 350 words for sword.

LOVE AND WAR

Item No. 4882C in our Love and War man's file labeled "Three stages of a man's romantic life" reads: "Tri-

Something else you can do while waiting at stoplights is divide all the world's heavyweight boxing champions into two categories: Those with names in their names and those without. Start with John L. Sullivan, that's logical.

Was a time when the elevated ladies of China - during the Han Dynasty, this - painted shadow rings around their eyes. They all looked like pandas.

"Nifty" started out as the unpretentious slang for "magnificent."

Spectator saved life of pope: judge

ROME (AP) — An unidentified spectator saved the life of Pope John Paul II by shooting a Turkish gunman just before he fired what probably would have been the fatal shot, the judge who investigated the attempted assassination was quoted Sunday as saying.

The pope was badly wounded by three bullets on May 13, 1981, but has since recovered. Judge Ilario Martella, who on Friday indicted three Bulgarians and four Turks for complicity in the assassination attempt, granted a rare interview to Turin's La Stampa newspaper.

The newspaper quoted Martella as saying John Paul was an "easy target" at the point Agca was shot.

Convicted gunman Mehmet Ali Agca, who is serving a life sentence for the shooting, "was very clear on this point," Martella was quoted as saying. "I would have continued firing," he told us, "if someone who was next to me had not shoved me with force."

The newspaper quoted Martella as saying John Paul was an "easy target" at the point Agca was shot. One bullet had hit him in the intestine, a second bullet hit him in the arm, and a third hit his finger. He lay immobile on the seat of his open truck in the packed square.

Martella's report on his three-year investigation also charged that the shot that hit John Paul on the finger had been fired by a second gunman, a boyhood friend of Agca's named Oral Celik.

Both Turks were members of a right-wing terrorist group known as the Gray Wolves.

La Stampa quoted Martella as saying he believed the person who jostled Agca would have been the same spectator who helped capture Agca by grabbing him as he tried to flee St. Peter's Square.

La Stampa said Martella described Celik as standing about 100 feet from Agca. It quoted the judge as saying, "The agreement was that they would fire simultaneously. (Agca) did not see Celik fire the third bullet but he believes it is possible that he did so."

Martella told reporters Friday that 20 witnesses said they heard the third bullet and that he believed ballistic tests confirmed Celik had fired one of the shots.

Martella also was quoted as saying a blurred photograph taken by an American tourist of a man believed to be Celik running from the square after the attack "shows the shape of a pistol under his vest."

The judge was quoted as saying Agca could not explain why two "panic bombs" did not detonate to help them escape in the confusion.

"Agca ... said to me: 'Even here (in prison) I ask myself this same question. Because if the bombs had gone off I would not be in this cell!'"

Martella was quoted as reporting Martella's indictments allege that two Bulgarian Embassy employees, Todor Alvezov and Maj. Zhejko Kolev Vassilev, had promised to provide a special truck with a diplomatic seal to smuggle Agca and Celik out of the country after the shooting.

The judge also said that the third Bulgarian indicted, Bulgarian Airlines employee Sergel Ivanov Antonov, was walking with a car outside the square to help the gunman flee. Antonov, the only one of the three Bulgarians apprehended, is under house arrest in Rome.

Antonio Albano, an Italian prosecutor who reviewed Martella's evidence earlier this year, said in June that he was convinced Bulgaria, possibly with Soviet support, masterminded the assassination attempt to stop unrest in the pope's native Poland.

Walesa calls for calm over kidnap

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Solidarity leader Lech Walesa urged supporters Sunday to avoid being provoked into "bloody revolution" by the kidnapping of a pro-Solidarity priest, who the Interior Ministry says was abducted and possibly killed by three of its own officers.

"We won't let anybody pull us into brawls in which we will lose," said Walesa, contacted by telephone at his apartment in the northern port of Gdansk. "We simply cannot let anybody manipulate us into any situation."

Walesa, winner of the 1983 Nobel Peace Prize, said he appealed for restraint in a speech to worshippers following a Mass at St. Brygida's Church in Gdansk.

He said he told them the abduction of the Rev. Jerzy Popieluszko, 37, may have been an attempt to provoke the government's opponents.

"If somebody assumed it would be a revolution, I won't give him a bloody revolution," Walesa said. "I am for peaceful evolution."

A captain and two lieutenants of the Interior Ministry have been charged in the Oct. 19 abduction, the interior minister, Gen. Czeslaw Kiszczak, said in a nationwide television address Saturday night.

The captain, Grzegorz Piotrowski, said he had killed Popieluszko, but his confession had not been confirmed because the priest's body has not been found, and because the three men made conflicting statements.

Kiszczak said. He said he had no evidence to back up the assertion that the priest had been murdered. Kiszczak identified the two other kidnapers as Lt. Waldemar Chmielewski and Leszek Pekala.

Popieluszko, of Warsaw, had been one of the Polish Roman Catholic church's most outspoken defenders of the Solidarity free trade union movement, which was outlawed under martial law. In Rome on Sunday, Polish-born Pope John Paul II, told a crowd of several thousand people that included 200 Polish pilgrims: "We are still praying for Father Popieluszko and we thank all those in Rome, in the rest of Italy and throughout the world who are united with us in prayer in this incident."

"We ask God to give peace to our country," the pope said in Polish from his apartment window overlooking St. Peter's Square. "We ask that this new suffering may serve as a spiritual renewal for our nation."

Earlier Sunday, the Italian state-run RAI radio reported that the pope heard the news about Popieluszko's possible death "with dismay and great worry." It said he had followed news reports "late into the night."

In Gdansk, Walesa told the large crowd that Popieluszko's fate was still uncertain. Walesa said he dissuaded many who wanted to march to a monument to workers outside the gate of the Lenin Shipyard.

Rocket blast rips bus carrying Palestinians

JERUSALEM (AP) — An anti-tank rocket blasted through a bus crammed with about 40 Palestinians on Sunday, killing one young man and injuring 10 people. Police found a note written in Hebrew next to the missile launcher, threatening more attacks.

The note said the attack was in retaliation for the killing of two Israeli students last week. A Palestinian from the West Bank has been charged in those deaths.

Police raced up a hill overlooking a road outside the Old City walls and found the note in trampled shrubbery, said Yossi Yehuda, Jerusalem's deputy police commander. Next to it was a long, green, missile-launching tube.

According to a police announcement, the note said: "This is in revenge for the murder of the students near the Cremlim monastery."

It referred to the Oct. 22 killing of two Israelis near the monastery in Belt Jalla, 5 miles south of Jerusalem. A resident of the nearby Dheishe refugee camp, Issa Nimer Abd-Rabu, was accused of blindfolding the students and shooting them in the head. Police allege he killed the two as part of his initiation into a Palestinian guerrilla group.

Police Minister Haim Bar-Leve said in an Israel Radio interview that the note from the hilltop attackers "announced that they are acting because the Israeli government is not using the death penalty against terrorist murderers, and that they will stop if the government decides on the death penalty."

He described them as a "group, whose size is not yet known, of people taking the law into their own hands out of racist and nationalistic motives, extremists who are willing to injure the innocent."

The shoulder-fired rocket used in the bus attack was a U.S.-designed light anti-tank 60mm missile.

President continues fasting

LA PAZ, Bolivia (AP) — President Hernan Siles Zuazo, in the third day of a hunger strike to protest criticism of his role in fighting Bolivia's flourishing illegal cocaine trade, was ordered by his doctor Sunday to stop walking around the presidential palace to save his energy.

The opposition remained unmoved by the 70-year-old president's fast. Dr. Guillermo Calderon, Siles Zuazo's personal physician, said he ordered the president to stop strolling around the presidential palace to save his energy. Calderon also said that on his orders, the president had been putting some sugar in the water he drinks to keep up his strength. Siles Zuazo "is physically still well," the physician told reporters after visiting the president in his office at the palace, where Siles Zuazo has continued working for the past three days.

He sleeps there on a couch. Siles Zuazo told the nation last Thursday night in a televised speech that he would stop eating until the opposition-controlled Congress withdrew its censure of his drug enforcement record.

Israel withdrawal plan opens on two fronts

JERUSALEM (AP) — Israel appealed to the United States on Sunday for help in reaching a Lebanon troop withdrawal agreement with Syria and also asked for a broader role for the United Nations in securing peace along the Israel-Lebanon border.

A statement issued after a policy review by Prime Minister Shimon Peres' Cabinet said Israel will continue efforts "for reaching an agreement (with Syria) through the good offices of the United States."

At the same time, the statement called for talks between Israel and Lebanese military officers, under U.N. auspices, to arrange security for Israel's northern border once Israel's troops pull out of southern Lebanon.

Cabinet sources, who spoke on condition they not be identified, said a partial withdrawal which Peres had mentioned publicly did not come up Sunday.

Peres suggested this month that if an agreement could not be reached with Syria to pull Syrian troops out of Lebanon or to control its Palestinian and Lebanese militia allies, then Israeli troops who are withdrawn from the border area could be redeployed against Syrian positions in Lebanon's Bekaa Valley. On Sunday, Cabinet Secretary Yossi Beilin said, "No redeployment was discussed."

U.S. Secretary of State George P. Shultz has said Washington was ready to be "as helpful as we can" in building conditions for Israel to withdraw from southern Lebanon, which it invaded in June 1982 to stop cross-border attacks by Palestinian guerrillas.

But informed Western sources said the U.S. administration does not believe the countries involved were ready for a full-scale mediation effort at this point. Syrian officials have refused to discuss a withdrawal of their troops, which entered Lebanon in 1976.

Richard Murphy, the U.S. assistant secretary of state, was due back in the Middle East this week for exploratory talks described by Western diplomatic sources as "poking, prodding and probing." The Cabinet review produced no apparent change in Israel's approach.

Oil minister threatens cuts

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — A key Arab oil minister, Mansour Obeida of the United Arab Emirates, strongly suggested Sunday that his country would cut the price of its oil if an emergency OPEC meeting this week failed to reach agreement.

Obeida's surprise comment came after his Nigerian counterpart, Tani Davis-West, ruled out joining the cartel in reducing production to prop up its prices.

Together, the statements appeared to complicate the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries' desperate effort to stave off the second official price reduction in the past 19 months.

All 13 cartel oil ministers are due to meet in emergency session Monday to seek agreement on a hastily fashioned plan for cutting overall OPEC production by at least 1 million barrels a day. The present OPEC limit on production is 17.5 million barrels a day.

In an interview with NBC News Sunday evening in Geneva, Obeida said the meeting must do more than cut production. He said it must also agree on a realignment of some prices within the cartel.

He was referring to the system in which different grades of OPEC oil are all priced above and below the $29-a-barrel benchmark price of Saudi light crude. Oils of higher quality sell for more than $29; those of lower quality for less.

Obeida said the Emirates' high quality crudes are not selling because they are overpriced in relation to lower quality grades sold by other OPEC members.

Dolphins roll to ninth straight win

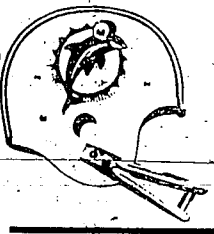

By FRED GOODALL
The Associated Press

MIAMI — When you're unbeaten and facing a winless opponent, Miami's Don Shula says a coach's major concern is the possibility of a letdown.

No problem. Shula's 9-0 Dolphins went out and destroyed the Buffalo Bills 27-7 Sunday to improve upon the NFL's best start since the Minnesota Vikings were 10-0 in 1975.

"We felt that Buffalo could be dangerous coming in here," Shula said after Dan Marino passed for 282 yards and three touchdowns to pace Miami's 14th straight regular-season triumph.

"We didn't give Buffalo a chance to get into the game, scoring a lot of points early," the coach added. "We felt it was important not to have any type of letdown."

Marino completed 19 of 28 passes, including scoring tosses covering 7 and 65 yards to Mark Clayton and 10 yards to Dan Johnson to hike his season TD pass total to 27.

The second-year quarterback also shattered Bob Griese's 16-year-old club record for passing yardage in a season, finishing the day with 2,672 yards with seven regular season games left in the 1984 campaign. Griese threw for 2,473 yards in 1968. The Dolphins' quick start has sparked comparisons with the 1972 Miami team that posted a perfect 17-0 record. Shula refuses to compare the club and his players are following his lead.

"I'd like to think no one can stop us, but we can't think about that because we've got to worry about the next game," said wide receiver Mark Duper.

Miami, ranked No. 1 in the NFL in total offense and scoring, rolled up 493 yards of offense and its defense was just as good, limiting Buffalo to 273 yards.

"I think we've got the ability to be a dominating defense," said nose tackle Bob Baumhower.

"If we keep our present attitude, nobody's going to sneak up on us," he added. "Somebody might beat us, but they're not going to sneak up on us." Buffalo, a 21-17 loser to Miami six weeks ago, dropped to 6-9 after its 11th straight loss dating back to the 15th week of the 1983 season.

"Miami has improved measurably since the first time we played," Bills Coach Kay Stephenson said. "Their running game is better and Marino continues to improve."

Marino, who broke Griese's single-season record for touchdown passes during a 44-24 victory over New England the week before, threw all three of his TD passes — giving him 27 this year — in the first half when the Dolphins built a 24-0 lead.

Fullbacks Woody Bennett and Pete Johnson completed the rout by scoring on 1-yard runs in the second half before an Orange Bowl crowd of 58,824.

Marino's 7-yard scoring pass to Clayton gave Miami a 7-0 lead with 3:18 left in the opening quarter and his 10-yard pass to Johnson made it 14-0 on the first play of the second period.

Clayton, who now is nine touchdown receptions, beat Bills cornerback Brian Carpenter on the 65-yard scoring play.

The speedy wide receiver caught Marino's pass at the Buffalo 40 and headed up the right sideline for 20 yards before cutting back to elude Steve Freeman and waltz into the end zone for a 24-0 lead.

Hello 'Cats, bye-bye ISU

Big changes clouding Big Sky

By The Associated Press

Fueled by a 22-18 victory over Boise State, the Montana State Bobcats are clinging to a lead in the race for the Big Sky Conference football playoffs.

The Bobcats will have the edge in tie-breaking procedures if they finish the season in a tie with Boise State and Idaho State.

Both Boise State and Montana State are now 4-1 in the league and 5-3 for the season, while Idaho State is 3-1 in the Big Sky and 4-4 for the season after suffering a 41-23, non-conference loss to Eastern Washington over the weekend.

In other conference games Saturday, Nevada-Reno scored a 35-21 victory over Weber State and Idaho edged Montana 40-39.

Northern Arizona crushed Canada's University of Manitoba 42-14 in a non-conference game at Flagstaff, Ariz.

The Nevada team boosted its Big Sky record to 3-2 and eyed its season record at 4-4. Weber State fell to 2-3 in the conference and 4-5 for the season, while Idaho established records of 1-3 in the Big Sky and 3-5 for the season.

Montana, with five Big Sky losses, has yet to win a conference game. The Grizzlies are 2-5 for the season.

In chilly Bozeman, Mont., Saturday, Montana State scored a game-winning 80-yard touchdown pass with 6:58 remaining. Despite that and other high points, the game wasn't without problems, Montana State Coach Dave Arnold said.

"We tried to give it away a couple of times," he said of second-half fumbles. "We did some things that got ourselves in a jam."

But the defensive action of end Mark Fellows helped Montana State keep the Broncos at arms length, as they have since 1974. That is when Boise State last defeated Montana State.

The Broncos dominated in total offense, first downs and time of possession, but they couldn't muster clear control over the game.

Boise State trailed 7-3 at halftime, and the Bobcats stretched their lead to 19-3 in the third quarter before BSU quarterback Haszen Chaites hit Steve Hale on a 33-yard pass to make it 15-11.

With 13:44 remaining in the game, the Broncos surged ahead 18-15, but the lead wasn't enough.

Idaho State's non-conference contest with Eastern Washington saw the EWU defense nab five interceptions from Idaho State quarterback Vern Harris.

The Eagles' Craig Richardson scooped three touchdowns to lead the Washington school to victory.

The Bengals now, 4-4 for the season, are no longer in the running for an at-large berth in the post-season NCAA Division I-AA playoffs, but the Eagles certainly are. EWU is now 6-1-1, with two games remaining.

The only way the Bengals could get into post-season play would be to win the conference title outright, which would mean that Idaho State would have to win its final three games of the season while Boise State — to whom ISU lost earlier in the season — loses one of its two remaining Big Sky games.

Boise State and Montana State, however, are very much in the running for the playoffs. If the two schools win the rest of their games and Idaho State does not, the Bobcats would get the conference championship and the Broncos would go to the playoffs as an at-large team.

If ISU, MSU and ISU all tie at 6-1, the team with the best season record would be the winner. If all three end up with the same overall record, the team that has been to the I-AA playoffs most recently — Idaho State — would be eliminated first. The title would then be decided between MSU and BSU, and the Bobcats would get the edge by virtue of Saturday's victory.

In Missoula, Mont., Idaho quarterback Scott Linehan hit receiver Eric Yarber on a 23-yard scoring pass with nine seconds left to lift the Vandals to a 40-39 come-from-behind victory over Montana.

"All losses are tough, but they don't come any tougher than that," Montana Coach Larry Donovan said.

He said Yarber's winning touchdown pass was "a terrible call. The official chided. He waited, waited and then he made the call."

In the weekend's other conference game, sophomore quarterback Eric Beavers picked up 448 yards in total offense and threw for four touchdowns to lead Nevada-Reno to its 35-21 victory over Weber State.

In Flagstaff, Darren Bennett threw three touchdown passes and freshman running back Dennis James scored twice in the fourth quarter as Northern Arizona beat Montana.

This weekend's Big Sky schedule matches traditional rivals Montana and Montana State in a game at Missoula. Northern Arizona plays Idaho in Moscow and Idaho State goes to Ogden, Utah, to meet Weber State.

On the non-conference calendar, Boise State plays Cal Poly-San Luis Obispo on the road and Nevada-Reno takes on Eastern Washington in Reno.

Broncos two-time Raiders

By JOHN NADEL
The Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — Barefooted Denver place-kicker Rich Karlis, getting a second chance, booted a 35-yard field goal as time expired in sudden-death overtime Sunday to give the Denver Broncos a thrilling 22-19 National Football League victory over the Los Angeles Raiders.

The Broncos got their chance at victory when safety Roger Jackson intercepted a pass from Los Angeles quarterback Marc Wilson and returned it 23 yards to the Raiders' 22-yard line with 38 seconds remaining. The interception came on a third-and-20 play.

Sammy Winder then ran for four yards before the Broncos' left the clock run down to five seconds and called timeout.

Karlis, who was wide left on a 42-yard field goal attempt with 3:30 remaining in the overtime, then came through with his game-winner.

The victory, which came before a crowd of 91,020 at the Los Angeles Coliseum, was the seventh in a row for the Broncos and boosted their record to 8-1. The Raiders fell to 7-2 and out of a first-place tie with Denver in the American Football Conference's West Division.

Los Angeles blew what appeared to be a solid shut at victory in the opening minute of the overtime. A 41-yard pass from Wilson to Malcolm Barnwell on the second-half game-play of the extra period put the ball at the Denver 11-yard line. But on the next play running back Frank Hawkins fumbled and defensive back Steve Foley recovered for Denver at the Broncos' 7.

The Broncos had forced the overtime by scoring a touchdown on a 12-yard pass from reserve quarterback Gary Kubiak to wide receiver Steve Watson and Carlis' conversion with 24 seconds remaining in the fourth quarter.

Denver drove 84 yards on 11 plays for the tying touchdown after Rulon Jones recovered a fumble by Los Angeles running back Marcus Allen at the Broncos' 16-yard line with 2:16

Jersey Giants afflict struggling Redskins, 37-13

By TOM CANAVAN
The Associated Press

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. — The 9-1 tie in the National Football League that the run is used to set up the pass. The New York Giants did just the opposite on Sunday, and it carried them to their biggest victory over the Washington Redskins since 1968.

Joe Morris scored on three short touchdown runs and Phil Simms tossed two touchdown passes as the Giants stopped Washington's potent offense and buried their defense in posting the 37-13 victory.

"We're happy to win and I think that was our best performance of the year," said Giants Coach Bill Parcells, soaking wet after his players dumped a bucket of water over his head in the closing seconds of the game.

Parcells was extremely pleased with Simms' performance, which loosened up the Washington defense.

"He hung in there and kept throwing it," said Parcells, who saw his quarterback sack seven times. "Those guys just kept catching it and that loosened up the run a little more."

Redskins linebacker Rich Milot agreed.

"In most situations you run the ball to set up the pass," said Milot. "They passed to set up the run and were very, very successful. It may have confused us a bit."

The victory was the Giants' first over the Redskins in seven NFL games dating back to 1981. And New York logged its widest margin over the Redskins since posting a 48-21 triumph in 1968.

It also further muddled the already tight battle for East Division of the National Football Conference. New York and Washington now are both 5-4 in the division, one game behind Dallas and St. Louis, who won Sunday to remain tied for first place.

Morris, who entered the game with 85 yards rushing on 22 carries, scored on 2- and 1-yard sweeps in the first and second quarters, respectively, and on a 3-yard sprint off right guard in the third period.

The third-year pro from Syracuse, who had not scored a touchdown this season, finished with 68 yards on 15 carries, 1 yard less than his 69-yard, career-best rushing performance against Washington last season.

The Giants had rushed for only four touchdowns in their first eight games this season.

Simms was 18 of 29 for 339 yards, firing a 22-yard touchdown pass to Earnest Gray in the first quarter and an 8-yard TD loss to Bobby Johnson on the opening play of the fourth quarter that gave New York a 37-6 lead.

On defense, the Giants limited

Washington fullback John Riggins to 51 yards on 15 carries and harried Washington quarterback Joe Theismann all afternoon.

Theismann, who failed to solve the mystery of the hard-hitting Giants defense until it was too late, tossed a 4-yard touchdown pass to Jeff Moore in the fourth quarter.

Mark Moseley had booted field goals of 23 and 33 yards in the second quarter for the Redskins, who lost for the second straight week.

The Redskins' offense never got on track in the opening half, collecting just five first downs.

Washington got a first down on its third play of the game and did not pick up another until seven series later when Theismann hit Art Monk on a 72-yard pass play to the New York 13. It set up Moseley's first field goal with three minutes left in the half.

The second field goal came with 24 seconds left in the half after Theismann moved the Redskins 41 yards in nine plays, the key plays being passes of 19 yards to Virgil Sey and 18 to Moore out of the backfield.

The rest of the half belonged to the Giants.

The Giants moved 83 yards in 10 plays midway through the first quarter to take a 7-0 lead. Simms' touchdown pass to Gray came on a third-and-16 play at the Washington 22 as Gray beat Darrell Green faking a post pattern and then running a corner route.

Morris' first touchdown capped a 62-yard, three-play drive that was set up by two passes from Simms to Gray covering 59 and 21 yards.

Simms completed two 23-yard passes to Lionel Manuel and Phil McConkey to set up Morris' second sweep into the end zone at 7:23 in the second quarter.

"The 49ers' defense held the NFL's second-leading rusher Eric Dickerson to just 38 yards on 13 carries. Dickerson, averaging more than 100 yards rushing per game, had not practiced this past week because of a toe injury.

Dwaine Board and Michael Carter each logged two quarterback sacks for the 49ers, who pressured Kemp most of the contest.

Montana shreds Rams' defense, 49ers romp to 33-0 win

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — Joe Montana threw for 365 yards and three touchdowns Sunday as the San Francisco 49ers blanked the Los Angeles Rams 33-0 in a key National Football Conference West Division game.

Montana, the conference's top-rated passer this season, completed 21 of his 31 attempts, including a stretch beginning in the second quarter when he completed 13 straight, accounting for 263 yards.

The victory, in which the San Francisco defense handed Los Angeles its first shutout since 1981, gave the 49ers an 8-1 record and padded their West Division lead to three games over the Rams, 5-4.

Montana's streak of consecutive completions included touchdown passes of 64 yards to Roger Craig and six yards to Freddie Solomon in a two-minute stretch of the second period as the 49ers took command 19-0. In the fourth quarter, Montana hooked up with Dwight Clark on a 44-yard scoring play for the 49ers' final touchdown.

Craig, in addition to racing 64 yards with a swing pass for one score, ran six yards for San Francisco's third touchdown.

Rams quarterback Jeff Kemp completed 14 of 30 passes for 180 yards, but was intercepted twice and fumbled deep in his own territory on another occasion.

White celebrates return by riddling Indianapolis

By The Associated Press

Hot-handed Danny White celebrated his return as Dallas starting quarterback Sunday by riddling Indianapolis' porous secondary with two touchdown passes and over 200 yards in the Cowboys' 23-0 National Football League victory over the Colts in Irving, Texas.

The Cowboys boosted their National Conference Eastern division record to 6-3, while the Colts dropped to 3-6 in the American Conference.

White, operating against the second worst pass defense in the NFL, hit Tony Hill with a 39-yard scoring pass and drilled a 5-yarder to tight end Doug Cosbie.

Ironically, Hill had been a "medicine ball" that could get a receiver hurt. Gary Hogeboom won the starting job from White in summer camp but needed relief help from him in the last three weeks.

NFC East

Hill caught eight passes from White for 125 yards.

White's return also pepped up the Cowboys' running game. Tony Dorsett rushed for more than 100 yards for the first time in 11 games, dating back to last year, gaining 104 yards on 24 carries.

White, the second most accurate passer in NFL history, completed 21 of 32 passes for 362 yards.

Dallas built a 13-0 halftime lead on White's two touchdown passes then took advantage of Colt mistakes for three short field goals by Rafael Septien in the second half.

Indianapolis starting quarterback Mike Pagar, who was ineffective, sprained a thumb and gave way to Mark Herrmann in the second half.

Herrmann completed a 44-yard pass to fullback Randy McMillan in the fourth quarter to set up Raul Allegre's 52-yard field goal.

St. Louis 34, Philadelphia 14

In Philadelphia, quarterback Neil Lomax completed 20 of 25 passes for 286 yards and two touchdowns and Stump Mitchell ended long drives with a pair of 1-yard scores as the St. Louis Cardinals rallied to defeat the Philadelphia Eagles.

Lomax's game-winning touchdown of 8 yards to Pat Tilley capped a 27-yard second-period drive after St. Louis tackle Mark Duda recovered a Wilbert Montgomery fumble at the Eagles' 27.

The Eagles had taken a 7-0 first period lead on a 2-yard pass from quarterback Ron Jaworski to tight end Vito Kab, ending a 10-play, 72-yard drive. The Cards tied it in the second period on Mitchell's 1-yard run at the end of a 10-play, 68-yard offensive.

Philadelphia moved back in front on a 90-yard pass-run play from Jaworski to wide receiver Mike Quick, who caught six passes for 170 yards, his career high.

Quick caught the ball at the 29 and outraced St. Louis defenders 69 yards to the end zone.

St. Louis then went ahead 17-14 in a span of 1:09 — on Neil O'Donoghue's 28-yard field goal and then Tilley's touchdown.

The Cards boosted their lead to 24-14 in the third period on a six-play, 78-yard drive culminated by a 24-yard scoring pass from Lomax to tight end Doug Marsh.

St. Louis wrapped up the scoring in the fourth period on a 1-yard touchdown by Mitchell and O'Donoghue's 47-yard field goal. After cornerback Wayne Smith intercepted a Jaworski pass at the Cardinals' 5, the Cards drove 95 yards on nine plays, with Mitchell scoring from the 1.

Another Cardinal drive stalled at the Eagles' 30, and with 3:38 remaining, O'Donoghue kicked his second field goal.

Saints bedevil Cleveland

On last-minute field goal

NFC West

By CHUCK MELVIN
The Associated Press

CLEVELAND — Although last-minute field goal are getting to be somewhat of a routine for Morien Andersen, the New Orleans' Saints' kicker says Sunday's game-winning 53-yarder felt so good it put him in a trance.

Andersen kicked three game-winning field goals last season, two of them in overtime, and he booted the career-long 53-yarder despite a pouring rain Sunday to defeat the Cleveland Browns 16-4 and spoil the National Football League debut of new Browns' Coach Marty Schottenheimer.

"This feels excellent," said Andersen, a left-footed kicker in his third year out of Michigan State. "I kind of went into a trance after the kick and (teammate) Scott Pelletier came up and said, 'Well, that's an average kick.'"

Andersen kicked two other field goals Sunday, including a 40-yarder as time ran out in the first half, while his Browns' counterpart, Matt Bahr, missed two tries from inside 40 yards.

"I've let myself down, and more important, I've let the team down," said Bahr, who has missed eight field goal attempts this season. "It's a frustrating year, because on every kick, there's been no case where the kicks haven't been important."

The 53-yarder was the longest in Andersen's NFL career, but he made a 63-yarder in college and hit several in the pros from more than 50 yards out.

"I felt we could win it if we got in reasonable range, which is 55 yards and in," he said.

The loss was the Browns' fifth straight by fewer than five points.

Saints' quarterback Richard Todd, who had completed his first 10 passes of the day, drove New Orleans into position for two field goals in the final 3:05.

He hit Tyrone Young with a 47-yard pass to set up Andersen's 21-yarder with about three minutes left, then fired a 36-yard pass to Lindsay Scott to put Andersen barely in range for the game-winner.

Todd finished with 21 completions in 27 attempts for 294 yards.

Cleveland, 1-8, which had not lost in its first eight games against the Saints, 4-5, had rebounded from a three-point halftime deficit by holding the ball for more than eight minutes at the start of the second half before Paul McDonald hit Ozzie Newsome with a 6-yard scoring pass to put the Browns up 4-0.

McDonald completed six straight passes on the drive, in the midst of a streak of 13 straight completions. He finished with 16 completions in 23 attempts without an interception.

The Saints had taken a 10-7 lead as the first half ended when Andersen kicked a 26-yard field goal to complete a 24-play, 65-yard drive.

The two teams' highly rated defenses dominated the first quarter. New Orleans, ranked fifth in the NFL, held the Browns to 8 first-quarter yards, while Cleveland, rated second defensively in the league, did not allow a Saints' first down until three minutes to go in the period.

But after Bahr hooked a 34-yard field goal attempt left of the uprights, Todd marched New Orleans 80 yards and hit Hokie Gajan with a 2-yard scoring pass five minutes into the second quarter.

The Browns came back to tie it on their next possession as McDonald hit Willis Adams with passes of 26 and 19 yards to set up a 5-yard scoring loss to Newsome.

Schottenheimer, previously the Browns' defensive coordinator, replaced seventh-year Browns' Coach Sam Rutigliano last Monday.

Aggressive Chicago defense whips Vikings

Jim McMahon passed for 180 yards and one touchdown and the Chicago Bears' defense, ranked No. 1 in the National Football League, registered a club record 11 sacks Sunday in a 16-7 victory over the Minnesota Vikings in Chicago.

Archie Manning, filling for injured quarterback Tommy Kramer, was dropped 11 times for losses totaling 101 yards. The NFL record for sacks is 12 held by the Pittsburgh Steelers and the Baltimore Colts.

McMahon connected on 16 of 26 passes including an 18-yard touchdown strike to Dennis McKinnon early in the second quarter.

McMahon, completely recovered from a broken bone in his hand, helped set up a first-period touchdown by Matt Suhey and also completed a 40-yard pass late in the first half before Bob Thomas booted a 19-yard field goal.

But the day belonged to the defense. Otis Wilson was credited with 2½ sacks while Steve McMichael and Richard Dent were credited with two each.

The Vikings averted a shutout when backup quarterback Wade Wilson directed a 71-yard drive which ended with a 22-yard touchdown pass to Leo Lewis with 1:54 left in the game.

Walter Payton rushed for 54 yards giving him 1,001 yards for the season and putting him over the 1,000-mark for the eighth time in his career to tie the NFL record held by Franco Harris.

Green Bay 41, Detroit 9
In Green Bay, Wis., Lynn Dickey picked apart the Detroit defense for four touchdown passes. Eddie Lee Ivery rushed for 116 yards and rookie safety Tom Flynn intercepted three passes as the Green Bay Packers broke a seven-game losing streak with an easy victory.

Green Bay improved its record to 2-7 in winning its first game since the Packers' season opener. The Lions fell to 3-6 in having a modest two-game winning streak come to an end.

Ivery carried the ball nine times, his first rushes this season after being sidelined with a knee injury.

Dickey was especially effective in the first half, when he tossed three touchdowns passes in staking the Packers to a 29-9 halftime lead. He completed scoring passes of three and 20 yards to tight end Paul Coffman and a three yards to Blake Moore.

Detroit, playing without star running back Billy Sims, could muster only first-half field goals of 46, 37 and 41 yards by Ed Murray in the first half. Sims suffered a season-ending injury the week before against Minnesota.

Flynn, a fifth-round pick from Pillsburgh, picked off a Gary Danielson pass in the third quarter and two by Mike Machurek in the fourth period.

The Packers went 75 yards on eight plays for a touchdown on their first possession of the game, with fullback Jessie Clark going over right tackle from the 1 with 10:22 left in the first quarter. Dickey completed four of four passes in the drive for 69 yards.

Dickey moved the Packers eight plays on 61 yards on their next possession, hitting Coffman on a 20-yard strike with 4:14 to go in the first quarter for a 14-0 lead. The drive was aided by a 15-yard rousing-the-passer penalty on Detroit end Michael Cofer after Dickey connected on a 19-yard pass to Coffman at the Lions' 45.

'84 Dolphins may be better than unbeaten 1972 ballclub

By JOEY HOLLEMAN
The Associated Press

MIAMI — When Don Shula looks in the mirror, the image he sees is that of the only head coach ever to nurse, cajole and push a National Football League team through an unbeaten season.

And the experience of living through Miami's perfect 17-0 performance of 1972 would seem invaluable as the Dolphins start the second half of the 1984 season as the only unbeaten team in the NFL at 9-0.

But Shula doesn't look at his reflection and ask for advice. If he did, he might see the same evil-eye glare so many others have been seen last few weeks.

Although his Dolphins have romped past nine straight opponents, Shula bristles at the mere mention of certain buzz words. He starts to seethe when he hears "compare" and "unbeaten." The number "1972" and the term "perfect season" bring out the worst in the usually amenable coach.

Between February and July, Shula is willing to discuss the events of 1972 and early 1973, when the Dolphins Finished the only unbeaten season in NFL history. Now, with the season in full bloom, he would like the fans and media would let him forget it.

Asked if the experience of the perfect season is being applied 12 seasons later, Shula replied curtly: "I learned not to compare seasons."

Shula may not want to talk about

'I learned not to compare seasons.'

— Don Shula

how the current Dolphins measure up against the 1972 team, but everyone else does. The Miami News ran a player-by-player breakdown and the Miami Herald was conducting fan balloting this weekend.

The News rated current players superior at eight of 11 defensive positions. The ultimate Dolphin of offense featured five current players (including Dan Marino over Bob Griese at quarterback and Mark Duper over Paul Warfield at wide receiver), four 1972 players and two others.

That 1984 ground corps of veterans Tony Nathan and Woody Bennett, speedy rookie Joe Carter and powerful Pete Johnson can't hope to equal the output of the 1972 club. But with 1,063 yards in eight games, the current Dolphin backs have kept defense honest while the aerial circus directed by Marino has racked up 2,403 passing yards.

Marino already has passed the team season record for touchdown passes with 24 and he's only 83 yards behind the record for passing yardage with 2,390. Fleet-footed receivers Duper and Mark Clayton average just under 20 yards per catch on 20 receptions. Warfield caught only 23 passes in all of 1972.

It is no coincidence that statistics indicate the 1972 defense was better against the pass (1,749 yards in 14 games compared to 1,675 this year in eight). The game has changed, and so have the Dolphins.

And that brings us back to the one constant — Shula. When the running game was vague, he put together the best in the league. Now, everybody does, and nobody does it better than the Dolphins.

The records Marino is breaking belonged to Griese. As an NBC television commentator who has covered six Dolphin games this season, Griese can offer a unique perspective in the comparison game.

"The similarities have to start with Shula," Griese said. "He is the constant and you have to give him all the credit. He sees what he has and rolls with the punches.

"He is not so staid in his ways that he won't change. And he knows how to bring out the best in them."

Shula doesn't throw the passes for Marino, Griese acknowledged, but he sure did make it easier by drafting Duper and Clayton.

"Another similarity is the number of jinxes that seem to be coming up this season," Griese said. "Like last week, they played in Foxboro where they had lost seven of eight. And a few weeks back they hadn't beaten Pittsburgh in Pittsburgh in a long time. There were a lot of things like that to get us up in 1972. It makes it easier."

What makes it harder is injuries, but there again Shula seems to have a knack for turning a negative into a positive. Griese broke his leg in the fifth game in 1972 and Earl Morrall came in to lead the team into the playoffs. This year, the Dolphins have lost offensive tackle Eric Laakso, tight end Joe Rose, defensive end Kim Bokamper and defensive back Don McNeal to injuries. In every case, somebody has stepped in and done the job so well that the original starters have hardly been missed.

"That's something Shula likes to talk about.

"That doesn't happen by accident," he said. "It's sort of a tradition down here. We make sure the second team players get plenty of work in practice, and they usually play just as much or more than the starters in the pre-season. They know they've got to be ready to play anytime we need them."

The Dolphins even won three straight pre-season games without Marino, who fractured a bone in his hand in a pre-season scrimmage against the New Orleans Saints.

The one person they can't afford to lose might be Shula himself.

Griese said. "I don't know what is different about him that makes him a winner. I guess it's just the fact that he does it that makes him different."

Forum, national TV audience don't intimidate Mavericks

DALLAS (AP) — Even though his Dallas Mavericks seemed to hold a special magic over the Los Angeles Lakers, head coach Dick Motta was not counting on that when the two teams met Sunday night.

"I thought we were in for a buzzaw tonight," said Motta. "We're on national television (WTBS), it's a full house and (Earvin) Magic (Johnson) loves the big crowd."

But the Mavericks held Johnson to 9 points and led by as many as 23 on the way to a 107-96 victory before a Reunion Arena sellout of 17,007.

"It's important to get out of the blocks quickly," said Lakers coach Pat Riley. "But tonight we were down 15-16 points right from the get-go. Fighting uphill is too much to ask."

NBA

The Mavericks, who were 3-2 against the Lakers last year, are coming to believe that they hold a spell over the team which has played in the NBA finals the last three years.

"I don't know if it's us getting up or them getting a little bit down, but we really seem to play well against the Lakers," said Dallas' Jay Vincent, who scored 16 points to go with teammate Mark Aguirre's game-high 31.

The Lakers, who never led, had pulled to within 95-90 with 4:40 to play when Aguirre hit a 12-foot jumper. Aguirre followed on the next possession with two free throws after he was fouled by Michael Cooper to put Dallas back in command before the Reunion Arena sellout crowd of 17,007.

The Lakers, who opened the season with 9-2, got 20 points from Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, but starters Earvin Johnson and Jamaal Wilkes were held to 9 and 7 points, respectively.

Jay Vincent had 16 points and Rolando Blackman 14 for the Mavericks, 1-1, who also got 13 points from reserve forward Kurt Nimphus, including a 3-point play earlier in the fourth quarter that snapped a 7-point Laker run.

Dallas led by as many as 23 points in the first half behind 18 points by Aguirre. He and Blackman sparked the Mavericks to a 21-9 lead that grew to 33-16 after one quarter.

Led by reserve guards Cooper and Mike McGee, the Lakers repaired a spluttering fast break and closed to within 59-46 at halftime.

Four-straight baskets by Laker guard Byron Scott led a third-quarter run that pulled the Lakers within 67-62. Blackman responded with a 3-point shot and reserve guard Dale Ellis added 6 points as Dallas led 84-73 after three quarters.

Phoenix 102, Seattle 67

In Seattle, Larry Nance scored 26 points and James Edwards added 16 of his 20 points in the second half to lead the Phoenix Suns to a victory over the Seattle SuperSonics.

Trailing Seattle by eight points with 2:56 left in the third quarter, the Suns rallied with a 14-3 spurt to take a 73-70 lead at the end of the quarter.

Nance had six fourth-quarter points, and Edwards, who tallied 15 rebounds, added eight points in the quarter as the Suns jumped out to a 95-82 lead in the last quarter to put the game away.

The SuperSonics, paced by Tom Chambers with 25 points, had jumped to a 46-43 halftime lead. In the decisive third quarter, Edwards teammate guard Rod Foster added six points to key the Suns' rally.

With the win, the Suns dropped their record to 2-0. The Sonics were up to 1-1.

The Suns were playing without Kyle Macy, who suffered a severe bruise on his left foot. He did not suit up for the game.

Sandpoint, St. Maries win A-1, A-2 state net honors

SANDPOINT (AP) — Sandpoint crushed Nampa 15-1 and 15-6 to retain the Idaho A-1 girls volleyball championship, while St. Maries took the A-2 crown with a pair of 15-10 victories over Madison.

Also in the Saturday playoffs, A-1 Twin Falls took third place by defeating Idaho Falls 15-6 and 15-11, while Preston defeated Post Falls 15-11 and 15-9 to claim third place among A-2 schools.

This is Sandpoint's third consecutive year as the state A-1 champion. The newest win boosts Coach Irene Matlock's record to 77-4.

Wood River lost to Valluave in two games in the first round of the consolation bracket competition in the A-2 tournament Saturday. The Wolverines led St. Maries in the Friday night opener.

In earlier competition, Malad swept past Fruitland, 15-4 and 15-8, and Shoshone, 15-7 and 15-8, to take the state A-3 championship in Idaho Falls.

Ketchum Sun Valley Community School won the A-4 championship with 16-4 and 15-11 victories over Dietrich.

Nagelsen, Walts take home Broncos world mixed doubles crown

HOUSTON (AP) — Betsy Nagelsen and Butch Walts finally wore down energetic Vince Van Patten and Kathy Rinaldi 6-3, 4-6, 6-3, 6-2 Sunday to capture the $100,000 first prize in the $400,000 World Mixed Doubles Championships at Astoriana.

Nagelsen and Walts, who defeated fourth seeded Billie Jean King and Peter Fleming en route to the finals, broke Van Patten in the first and fifth games of the first set.

Van Patten, who did not lose his serve in a 1970-71 season victory over top-seeded Chris Evert Lloyd and Jimmy Connors, was broken again at love in the second game of the second set and Nagelsen-Walts took a 3-0 lead.

But Van Patten-Rinaldi rallied to win the second set, breaking Walts in the fifth game and Nagelsen in the seventh game.

Walts' forehead started costing him errors in the fifth game of the second set. He hit two forehead errors in the fifth game, including the break point.

remaining. Kublak, hitting in for injured Denver starter John Elway, had thrown a 4-yard scoring pass to Clarence Kay with 13:15 left to draw Denver to within seven points of the Raiders.

Karlis didn't get a chance to convert after that touchdown because of a poor snap from center.

The Raiders after scoring a safety, made it 9-0 with 1:45 left in the opening period on a 36-yard touchdown pass from Wilson to Allen. Los Angeles added three more points on a 44-yard field goal by Chris Bahr midway through the second period.

The Broncos cut Los Angeles' lead in half late in the second quarter on field goals of 41 and 24 yards by Karlis. Both were set up by lost Los Angeles fumbles.

A 1-yard scoring plunge by Allen with 4:53 to play in the third quarter gave the Raiders a 19-6 advantage and they blew a couple of scoring opportunities late in the game before Denver earned the tie.

Denver, which handed the Super Bowl champs their only loss of the season 16-13 four weeks ago, went into the game ranked last in the league on offense. Denver's defense had scored six touchdowns and had allowed the fewest points in the NFL — 99 in eight games.

Malone & Co. riddle Atlanta defense

By The Associated Press

Mark Malone threw three touchdown passes, two to John Stallworth, and Dwayne Woodruff returned a fumble 65 yards to score on Atlanta's first play as the Pittsburgh Steelers routed the Falcons 35-10 Sunday in the National Football League in Pittsburgh.

Malone, making just his second start at quarterback in three years, rifled scoring passes of 20 and 31 yards to Stallworth and 7 yards to Rich Erenberg, while Frank Pollard ran for 111 yards and scored the Steelers' other touchdown.

Malone was intercepted on the game's first play on scrimmage, but Atlanta running back Gerald Riggs quickly returned the favor, fumbling as he was tackled by Gary Dunn and Robin Cole, with Woodruff scooping up the ball at the Steelers' 35.

Woodruff sidestepped quarterback Steve Bartkowski near midfield and hit the end zone untouched to give the Steelers, 5-4, a 7-0 lead with only 33 seconds gone.

The Steelers' defense forced three turnovers and contained Bartkowski who completed 19 of 23 passes for 167 yards.

AFC Central

The loss was the third in a row for the Falcons, 3-6, who managed only a 40-yard field goal by Mick Luckhurst on the last play of the first half and a 9-yard touchdown pass from Mike Moroski to Stacey Bailey on the game's final play.

Malone, who completed 11 of 21 passes for 162 yards in replacing a banged-up David Woodley, hit rookie tight end Darrell Nelson for 19 yards two plays before the first of his two touchdown passes to Stallworth, a 20-yarder with 2:24 remaining in the first half.

The Steelers marched 78 yards on 14 plays following a Woodruff interception early in the second half with Pollard capping the drive with a 5-yard scoring run with 6:07 left in the third period.

Malone made it 20-3 late in the third quarter with his second touchdown pass to Stallworth and then was replaced by rookie Scott Campbell after throwing to Erenberg for the Steelers' final score midway through the fourth quarter.

Malone's only other start since 1981 came on Oct. 14, when he directed a 20-17 Steelers' upset of the previously unbeaten San Francisco 49ers.

Cincinnati 31, Houston 13
In Houston, Cincinnati's Ken Anderson conducted a passing drill against Houston's secondary, completing 13 in a row at one point, and Larry Kinnebrew scored four close-range touchdowns as the Bengals routed the Oilers.

Anderson, who has beaten the Oilers six consecutive times and set an NFL record of 20 consecutive completions in a game in 1982, continued his mastery over the Oilers, hitting 18 of 24 for 154 yards.

Houston fell to 0-9 this season and the Oilers have won only three of their last 31 games.

The Oilers took a 7-0 first-quarter lead for only the second time this season on Larry Morlary's 1-yard dive after six consecutive pass completions by Oiler quarterback Warren Moon for 146 yards.

But Anderson, who has completed 73 percent of his passes in his string against the Oilers, took command in the second quarter, picking apart Houston's porous secondary to set up 1- and 3-yard touchdown drives by Kinnebrew.

The Bengals drove to Houston's 15 and Jim Breech kicked a 33-yard field goal with one second left for a 17-7 halftime lead.

Kinnebrew, who had scored only two touchdowns this season, added two more scores on an 11-yard reception from Anderson in the third quarter and a 1-yard run in the fourth quarter.

Anderson's string of 13 consecutive completions started in the second quarter and ended late in the third period.

The Bengals have won three of their last four games for a 3-6 record.

After completing his first six passes, Moon finished with 11 of 18 completions for 196 yards before being replaced in the fourth quarter by Oliver Luck, who scored on a 4-yard run with 7:42 to play.

Chiefs, Bucs shatter NFL passing record

By DOUG TUCKER
The Associated Press

AFC West

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Bill Kenney threw for 322 yards and two touchdowns, lifting Kansas City to a 24-20 victory Sunday over Tampa Bay in a game which saw a National Football League record 100 passes.

Kenney, in his second start of the season, connected on 26 of 46 passes. Ken Layey scored two touchdowns and Henry Marshall hauled in a 27-yard scoring strike as the Chiefs raised their record to 5-4 and handed the Bucs, 3-6, their third straight defeat.

The Bucs drove to the 10-yard line as Kansas City was nursing a one-point lead when Marshall beat John Holl down the left sideline and made an over-the-shoulder catch for the Chiefs' final touchdown with 9:20 remaining.

Kevin Ross intercepted a Steve DeBerg pass two minutes later and returned it 21 yards to the Tampa 42 to set up Nick Lowery's 47-yard field goal. The Bucs recovered a Herman Heard fumble on the 5-yard line with 4:07 left and DeBerg then fired a scoring pass to Scott Dierking.

After a scoreless first period, the Chiefs went on top 7-0 with an eight-play, 45-yard drive capped by Layey's 2-yard plunge over left guard.

Mark Cothey intercepted a Kenney pass a moment later and brought it back 25 yards to the Chiefs' 27. Four plays later, DeBerg fired a 7-yard touchdown to Kevin House to knot the score at 7-7.

Kenney's 56-yard pass play to Carlos Carson early in the second period carried to the Tampa 5, and two plays later Layey snared a 5-yard pass from Kenney to put the Chiefs on top 14-7.

Obed Ariri brought the Bucs to within one point in the third period with field goals of 34 and 25 yards.

Patriots rally to beat Jets, stay in chase for playoffs

By DAVE GOLDBERG
The Associated Press

AFC East

FOXBORO, Mass. — They had a new coach, but it was the same, old come-from-behind New-England-Patriots.

Trailing 20-3 late in the first half and 20-6 at intermission, the Pats rallied for 27 straight points to beat the New York Jets 30-20 Sunday to provide Raymond Berry with a victory in his coaching debut. It was the fifth come-from-behind win in six victories this season for the Pats, whose 6-3 record tied them with the Jets in the AFC East.

The catalyst in the Patriots' victory was running back Craig James, who rushed for 79 yards in 10 carries, including a 25-yard burst in the third quarter that gave the Pats their first touchdown late in the third quarter. And the go-ahead score came on a five-yard pass from Tony Eason to Stephen Starring with 10:53 left in the game.

But the motivating force was Berry, who played it low-key even when the Patriots trailed at halftime. "We didn't do anything special," he said. "We just ate a few oranges and drank a little water and got instructions from Rod Rust on defense and Lew Erber on offensive and went back out and did the job."

It was the dismissal of Rust last Wednesday by former Coach Ron Meyer that set off the crisis that gave Berry his job. "The next day, general manager Pat Sullivan fired Meyer. "He gave us a pep talk at halftime and told us to hang in there and we'd win," James said of Berry. "He said we could score 30 points and we did, even though we only had six at the time."

"We know we have the ability to score points," Berry added as one key play an 82-yard third quarter punt by Luke Prestridge that was downed by Paul Dombroski at the one and put the Jets in a hole they never escaped — on their next three possession, New England took over in New York territory.

First came Tony Franklin's 47-yard field goal that cut it to 20-3. Then came James' 25-yard burst — an off-tackle play right on which he cut back left and outran the Jets' secondary to the end zone.

Trailing 20-3 late in the first half and 20-6 at intermission, the Patriots came back in the third quarter, scoring first on Tony Franklin's 47-yard field goal, then on James' 25-yard burst — an off-tackle play right on which he cut back left and outran the Jets' secondary to the end zone.

It was the first NFL touchdown for James, who played for Meyer at Southern Methodist University but was largely ignored by his former coach after joining New England from the Washington Redskins of the United-States-Football League. He finished the game Sunday with 79 yards in 10 carries, one more yard than he had accumulated the entire season.

Waitz, unsung Italian capture New York Marathon titles

By BERT ROSENTHAL
The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Overcoming serious stomach cramps and extreme heat and humidity, Grete Waitz, a little-known 26-year-old distance runner from Italy, scored a stunning upset victory in the New York City Marathon Sunday.

There was no surprise, though, in the women's race, as Grete Waitz of Norway won for the third consecutive year and the sixth time in seven years.

The race was marred by the first death in its history. A French runner identified by race officials as Jacques Busseron, 49, collapsed after running about 15 miles and was pronounced dead in an apparent heart attack in the emergency room of Elmhurst Hospital in Queens.

Pizzolato and Waitz shared many similarities in their performances, but there were contrasts.

Pizzolato, who never had won a marathon in 12 previous races, led from near the halfway mark of the 26-mile, 385-yard event and struggled to the finish line, stopping to hold his stomach eight times during the final five miles. His time of 2 hours, 14 minutes, 53 seconds, was the slowest in the race's 15-year history since 1975 when Tom Fleming clocked 2:19:27.

At that time, however, the course went only through Central Park.

In 1976, the course was changed to include all five boroughs in New York City, and Bill Rodgers scored the first of his three straight victories. After Rodgers' streak, Alberto Salazar won the race three times in a row, starting in 1980, before Rod Dixon of New Zealand became the first foreign winner last year. Pizzolato was not considered in their class.

Dixon was unable to defend his title. Suffering stomach cramps, just like Pizzolato did, he dropped out about 100 yards before the 21-mile point, when he was in fourth place.

Pizzolato's time had to be considered respectable, in light of his physical problems and the heat which reached a high of 74 degrees and the humidity which soared to 96 percent.

Dave Murphy, a native of Britain now living in Louisville, Ky., finished second in 2:15:36. He was followed by Herbert Steffny of West Germany in 2:16:22, Pat Petersen of Ronkoma, N.Y., in 2:16:35, and Gianni DeMadonna of Italy in 2:17:05.

Waitz, who also admitted to having stomach cramps early in the race, when she occasionally lugged at her shorts and raised her arms, was clocked in 2:29:30, her slowest finish since winning the New York City race for the first time in 1978.

Pizzolato, born in the little Italian town of Plovene, some 60 miles from Venice, and now living near Milan, was asked after his startling triumph what had been his previous biggest triumph.

"There wasn't any," he said.

He also said that after the grueling race, he felt fine physically, despite the difficulties that had plagued him over the latter stages of the event.

But those problems added a lot of Ketchum's Andersen finishes 11th

NEW YORK (AP) — Gabriele Andersen-Schless, a native of Switzerland now living in Ketchum, Idaho, whose struggle to finish the Olympic marathon provided one of the most dramatic moments of the Games, finished 11th among the women in the New York City Marathon Sunday.

She covered the 26 2-mile course in 2 hours, 42:24 minutes.

"It was a hard race," admitted Andersen-Schless. "At the starting line, in the back of my mind was lingering the experience of Los Angeles, and hearing the weather was humid. I was disappointed because of the conditions."

"I decided to go out carefully," she said.

"I'm not happy with my time, but I finished in a little better state than Los Angeles."

drama to the race that was devoid of outstanding marathoners, except for Dixon among the men and Waitz among the women.

Almost each time Pizzolato stopped and grabbed his stomach, it appeared that he would have to stop running completely.

"I had some cramps in my legs and in my stomach," said Pizzolato, a student of physical education. "Also, along the course, it was very hot and very hard to run."

But he said he never thought of quitting.

"The important runners were behind me," noted Pizzolato, the 27th-place finisher in last year's New York City Marathon and with a personal best of 2:14:42 in the 1983 Rome Marathon.

"I had the courage to keep running."

"When I was in front, I controlled every mile. The people (along the course) were giving me great strength."

Meanwhile, Waitz, loser of only one race in eight previous marathons in which she had finished — when she wound up second to Joan Benoit of the United States in the Los Angeles Olympics — said she almost quit Sunday's race in the early going, when the stomach cramps bothered her continually.

She thought the cramps were caused by too much liquid.

"It was very warm, so I was drinking more than usual," said the 31-year-old Waitz, a former school teacher in Oslo. "I had stomach cramps for the first three or four miles... I think I dehydrated. The first part of the race I wasn't concentrating on the race, but on my stomach."

"I was seriously thinking of dropping out."

But like Pizzolato, she doggedly continued on, and Waitz said that the cramps finally went away near the 16-mile mark.

Waitz finished more than four minutes ahead of runner-up Veronique Marot, a native of France now living in England. Marot was timed in 2:33:58.

Then came Laura Fogli of Italy in 2:37:25, Lizanne Bussieres of Canada in 2:37:34 and Judi St. Hilaire of Cambridge, Mass. in 2:37:49.

Each of the winners earned $25,000 from the total purse of $273,000. In addition, Pizzolato and Waitz received a $23,000 Mercedes Benz.

This was the first year in which race director Fred Lebow, head of the New York Road Runners Club, said the prize money would be paid in the open, instead of secretly, or under-the-table, as had been doing since 1976.

Each of the runners-up collected $22,000 and the third-place finishers got $16,000.

The money will be dispersed according to the rules of The Athletics Congress, the national governing body of track and field, under the auspices of the International Amateur Athletic Federation, the world sanctioning group for the sport.

Kratzert gets rare victory at Pensacola

By BOB GREEN
The Associated Press

PENSACOLA, Fla. — Bill Kratzert completed a 5-under-par walk with birdies on three of his last four holes, broke a four-year slump and scored a two-stroke victory Sunday in the Pensacola Open Golf Tournament.

Kratzert, 32, once regarded as one of golf's rising young stars, scored the fourth victory of his career and his first since 1980 with a 270 total, 14 strokes under par on the Perdido Bay Inn and Resort course.

The victory in this, the final official event on the 10-month PGA Tour, was worth $54,000 from the total purse of $300,000 and boosted Kratzert's winnings for the year to $149,827.

Jim Mahaffey, who held a two-shot lead with four holes to go in the hot, muggy weather, and Ken Brown of Scotland tied for second at 272. Mahaffey, winner of the Bob Hope Classic early this season, had a closing 68. Brown, the third-round leader, had a 69. Each won $26,400.

For Brown, winner of several European titles but in his first full season of competition on the American Tour, it was enough to secure his exemption for play in 1985. It sent his American winnings to $17,625 for the season.

The absent Tom Watson, meanwhile, became the beneficiary of events at Pensacola and won the 1984 PGA Player of the Year honors, a record sixth time Watson has taken that title.

He edged Denis Watson of South Africa 56-54 on the complicated point list the PGA uses to determine its Player of the Year.

In the end, it came down to Tom Watson's position on the list of the leading scorers for the season. He finished eighth, worth 6 points, with a mark of 70.97. Had either Bruce Lietzke or Hal Sutton played the final round at Pensacola in 69 or better, they would have gone past Tom Watson in scoring average, cost him 2 points and left the Player of the Year standings in a tie between Tom and Denis Watson. Lietzke, however, played the last round in 72, Sutton in 70.

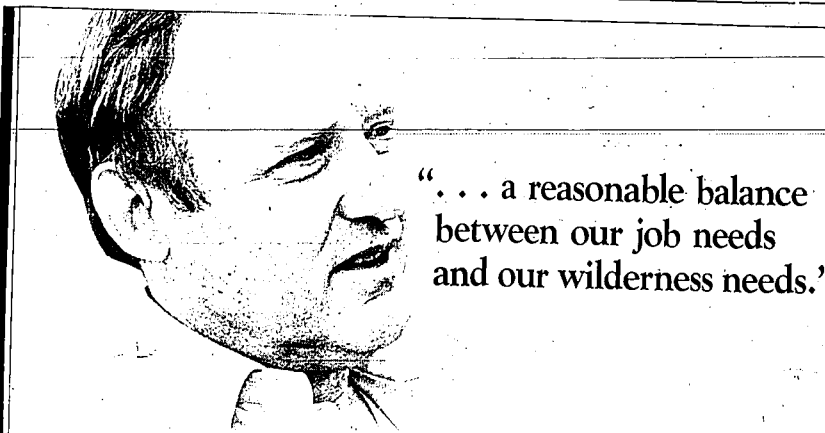

Tom Watson also won his fifth money-winning title with $476,260, and Calvin Peete took the Vardon Trophy for the low stroke average at 70.56.

Wadkins tops off new Nissan golf world tourney

NARITA, Japan (AP) — Lanny Wadkins of the United States fired a 63 Sunday to win the first World Nissan Championship of Golf and the $81,633 first prize with a 14-under-par four-day total of 266 at the par-70 Oak Hills Country Club.

He also received a $12,245 luxury sports car from Nissan Motor Co. Ltd., co-sponsor of the $80,000-dollar tournament — the biggest amount ever offered in Japan.

Chen Tze-min of Taiwan and Nick Price of Britain shared second place with 270s for $42,858 each.

"... a reasonable balance between our job needs and our wilderness needs."

So, what is reasonable balance? Jim McClure looks at it this way — "The true meaning of the word 'environmentalist' is someone who strives for balance and quality of life in the complete sense."

In the complete sense, that is, one who cares about quality of life in our homes and communities too. Jobs. Paychecks. It is grazing and agricultural development. It is how we are able to live day to day. Idaho already has the largest wilderness area in the continental U.S. (4,000,000 acres) and Jim McClure is ready to add over 500 thousand more.

Then it's time to build Idaho's job base.

Wilderness. Yes!
New jobs. A must!

Protecting our 'quality of life' . . .
