Hansen slightly leads in area poll

By RICK SHAUHNESSY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Rep. George Hansen and his Democratic challenger, Richard Stallings, appear to be running close in the Magic Valley voters, according to results obtained in a Times-News telephone poll.

But nearly one-third of the poll's respondents say they are still undecided on the race, which is shaping up as a tight one.

Hansen was preferred over Stallings 42 percent to 38 percent among the 402 registered voters who responded to telephone interviews conducted Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday evenings. The poll's findings should be accurate within 5 percentage points for each candidate's share.

President Ronald Reagan was by far the most popular of any candidate mentioned in the survey. He outpolled challenger Walter Mondale 72 percent to 16 percent among the 494 voters who responded on that race.

Twelve percent of the Magic Valley voters who responded said they were undecided on the presidential race.

Of the four races mentioned in the poll, voters appear least certain about the three-way race for the Idaho Senate — from District 22 — the eight-county Magic Valley floating district.

Almost half of those queried on that battle — between Republican Larry Anderson, Independent Bill Chisholm and Democrat Nick Nicholson — said they hadn't yet made up their mind on the race.

Anderson was the choice of 31 percent of the respondents, Nicholson garnered the support of 14 percent of the respondents and Chisholm was the candidate of choice for 6 percent of the respondents.

U.S. Sen. Jim McClure, who is generally conceded to be one of Congress' safest incumbents this election year, was preferred by 58 percent of the poll's respondents. His Democratic challenger, Lewiston real-estate agent Pole-Busch, had the support of 18 percent of the respondents.

Libertarian candidate Don Billings, a Boise State University economics professor, garnered support from 1 percent of the respondents.

Perhaps the biggest surprise of the poll is the apparent strong opposition among area voters to an initiative to provide an exemption from the state sales tax for grocery purchases. More than half — 53 percent — of the poll's respondents said they oppose removing the tax on groceries. The initiative had the support of 28 percent of those responding and 19 percent answered that they were undecided on the issue.

The tight Magic Valley race between Hansen and Stallings is particularly important in light of speculation that the 2nd District seat will be won or lost in the Magic Valley.

In 1982 voters in the eight Magic Valley counties — Blaine, Camas, Cassia, Gooding, Jerome, Lincoln, Minidoka and Twin Falls — cast more than one-fourth, 28.3 percent, of the total district votes. Hansen carried

Jobless rate holds steady for nation

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Civilian unemployment, the last major economic indicator released before Election Day, held steady last month at 7.4 percent.

The rate Reagan inherited, the President said Friday.

Amid other signals of a business slowdown, some 650,000 Americans found work. New hiring by business was strong enough to offset a surge in the number of job-seekers without forcing the unemployment rate up.

White House spokesman Larry Speakes, accompanying Reagan on a campaign swing through Michigan, said the latest Labor Department report showed that "the economy is still expanding and creating new jobs."

Committee "there is a stall in the economy. There is no improvement."

Labor and civil rights groups also weighed in with criticism of Reagan, saying the unemployment rate masked lost opportunities for too many.

The standard 7.4 percent, a 1/2 point below the rate that existed when Reagan took office in January 1981, confounded some private economists who had said in advance of Friday's report they expected joblessness to worsen.

These analysts based that projection in large part on the Commerce Department's report earlier in the week showing that the Leading Index of Economic Indicators had advanced only 0.4 percent in September following three consecutive months of decline.

"But the Bureau of Labor Statistics' one-day survey of some 60,000 randomly selected U.S. households showed that total employment last month shot up by 347,000, bringing the number of Americans with jobs to roughly 105.6 million.

The companion survey of 185 industries, which is not used in compilation of the rate, showed a more impressive gain, the addition of 460,000 people to business payrolls. Total unemployment fell by 28,000, to just over 8.4 million.

Blue collars ready to vote for Reagan

TWIN FALLS — At about noon Friday, Henry Taylor, a Twin Falls carpenter, grabbed his lunch, slid the rip fence of his table saw off to one side and flopped up to sit on its broad, flat surface.

He unpacked a thermos of coffee and a small Igloo cooler.

A few feet away from him in the attached garage of an unfinished home on the city's east side, bricklayer Bill Rehwal sat atop a stack of planks, probing into his own midday mess.

"Since I turned 21, I've voted regularly," Rehwal says, adding "I may have missed a couple of times when I was out of town." Rehwal says he'll vote for Ronald Reagan and against George Hansen. "In state (races), I look for the candidate that does not support right to work, and that supports the little Davis-Bacon law," he says.

Rehwal, 33, the father of two children, is a non-union subcontractor. He says he supports the state's Davis-Bacon law, which is intended to provide local prevailing wages to workers on public works contracts. It ensures quality construction; he says.

"A lot of people around here think a good wage is $3 or $4 an hour," he says.

"I was a union bricklayer for 10 years. I wouldn't work below scale," he says, adding, "If it's a government building, it's partly my money that's building it. I want a good product. I don't want someone who isn't in the trade."

Taylor, a non-union carpenter, speaks up on so-called "right to work" laws. He says he isn't necessarily in favor of union shops, "but if we didn't have unions, who's to say what we'd be working for?"

Rehwal said he isn't sure which candidates favor his stands on labor issues but says he votes using an established system. "I'm a state Democrat and a federal Republican. But," he hastens to add, "I'm not voting for (Rep. George) Hansen either. I think, he's a slyster."

Taylor nods approval to the statement. "He (Hansen) has his own personal interests at heart. He makes people think he's doing more for them but he is doing it for him."

"He didn't help us last year when he had the worst attendance of any member of Congress," Taylor says.

Both workers express support for the Reagan administration. "I've been a lot better off the last four years under Reagan than I was the previous four years under Carter-Mondale," Taylor says.

"I would be more inclined to vote Democratic if it was the other way around," he adds, noting the composition of the Democratic ticket of

Prison chiefs see changes as helpful

By QUANE KENYON
The Associated Press

BOISE — When the state of Idaho finishes making the changes in its prison system ordered by a federal judge, Idaho will have a "better system," says Corrections Director Al Murphy.

"The judge wants inmates held safely in a clean facility. We want the same thing," Murphy said Friday.

A day earlier, U.S. District Judge Harold Ryan in a 65-page ruling agreed with many of the complaints contained in an inmate lawsuit. He ordered immediate improvements in inmate security, the hiring of a full-time medical doctor and psychiatrist and a better system to hear inmate disciplinary complaints. The judge also directed staff increases.

Murphy and other officials agreed the ruling was not unexpected. And if it underscores the department's need for more money, it probably was welcome, Murphy said Friday.

But changes ordered by Ryan will be expensive. Murphy disclosed that the department anticipated many of the orders while preparing next year's budget, and included money in the request that's before Gov. John Evans.

"The department will seek a 50 percent increase in funding, from $12 million to $18 million in state funds," Murphy said.

The inmates who filed the lawsuit had mixed feelings about Ryan's ruling. Dean Schwartzmiller, the inmate who served as the convict's attorney, said he was "licked pink."

"It will save a lot of misery for a lot of people," said Schwartzmiller. "It's a big decision for the entire state."

But inmates in whose names the suit was filed, Walter "Bud" Balla, said Ryan's ruling did not go far enough. He said he planned to appeal all parts except Ryan's orders to improve psychiatric and medical help for the inmates.

Evans could not be reached for comment Friday, but a top aide, Pat Costello, said many of the prison's problems are related to money, and the ruling will support the agency's request for more funds.

"In that respect it is not entirely unwelcome," he said.

He said state officials knew Idaho was vulnerable to such a lawsuit, but could do little about it.

"He said the Legislature has not been 'unresponsive' to Corrections' requests for more money. There are a number of critical needs in the state, so many different needs," he said. "We can't meet all of them."

"It's frustrating," said Costello. "It is not a very popular constituency."

Deputy Attorney General Rob Gates said the state will decide shortly whether it will appeal portions of the decision. That decision will rest in the hands of Attorney General Jim Jones, he said.

Of The People

Walter Mondale and Geraldine Ferraro. "I think she has more on the ball than he does," he says.

Rehwal adds, "I don't think Walter's got it all upstairs."

On the afternoon of October 31, Madeleine Brown of Eden is waiting on a high-backed wooden bench to punch the time clock at the Tupperware plant in Jerome. A festive air joins a decidedly plastic odor permeating the employee entrance to the plant as workers compare the costumes they've worn to celebrate Halloween.

"I vote for who I think is the best candidate, although I am a Republican," Brown says. And although she votes regularly, Brown says she isn't overly optimistic about the process. "Things are going to go on how they are. Some things don't seem to change."

Brown says she and her husband argue regularly over the political choices. "This time he thinks I should vote for Mondale because of Ferraro, because of the woman," she says. "I just don't think Mondale's that capable," she adds.

Dorothy Malone of Kimberly, another Tupperware employee, says she is a regular voter who is concerned most about tax issues. She votes for individuals and not parties, she says, adding that one individual she will vote for is Hansen.

"They probably all do it. Some of them get caught," she says.

Bill Sparks, 25, of Jerome, was sporting some unconventional apparel on Halloween, although with his equally unconventional hairstyle, he would probably stand out in a southern Idaho crowd almost any day.

Space-born drug-contaminated India set for Gandhi funeral

WASHINGTON (AP) — A drug created in space by American biotechnology activists two months ago has been contaminated and possibly destroyed, the McDonnell Douglas Corp. said Friday.

The firm, which hopes some day to market the mysterious drug to treat a disease affecting millions of people, did not have an explanation for the contamination but said it will use "different procedures for sterilization of the equipment before flight."

The drug, a hormone, was manufactured aboard the space shuttle Discovery on a flight in late August and September by Charles D. Walker, chief test engineer for a McDonnell Douglas project on making drugs in space. He used a process called electrophoresis with apparatus and purifies the hormone from cell culture fluids.

The contamination is so bad that the material returned from space is unsuitable for testing in laboratory animals.

McDonnell Douglas scientists are studying methods of separating the contaminants from the hormone, the firm said.

BYU enrollment sees increase

PROVO, Utah (AP) — Fall semester enrollment at Brigham Young University is 26,700 students, or about one percent less than last year's total of 26,955, officials said.

Robert W. Spencer, dean of admissions and records, said freshman enrollment increased 5 percent this school year, but a record number of graduating seniors last school year has resulted in a slight drop in the student population.

Fall enrollment statistics show all 50 states and about 50 countries are represented in the student body, said H. Bruce Higley, director of institutional studies.

The largest representation is from Utah, with about 33 percent of the students. California is second with 18 percent, followed by Washington with 12 percent, with 5 percent and Arizona with 4 percent, Higley said. The largest number of foreign students are from Canada.

Yellowstone roads unplowed

YELLOWSTONE NATIONAL PARK, Wyo. (AP) — Yellowstone National Park officials are delaying plowing roads, in preparation for the opening of winter season next month at the park in northwestern Wyoming, a spokeswoman said.

"The interior roadways of Yellowstone are now closed to automobiles," spokeswoman Joan Anzelmo said Friday.

The closure doesn't affect the year-round road from Gardiner, Mont., to Cooke City, Mont.

Storms have continued to dump snow on the park for the past five days, and roads have been closing all along, with more than 20 inches measured at Old Faithful, Mrs. Anzelmo said. But now, all plowing is stopped, and snow will be allowed to accumulate to accommodate over-snow vehicles, she said.

Old Faithful Snow Lodge opens Dec. 14, and Mammoth Hotel opens Dec. 21, she said.

India set for Gandhi funeral

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — India's millions, deeply shocked by the assassination of Indira Gandhi and her son and successor Friday to halt the violence or "communal madness will destroy us."

Thousands of Indians, some traveling as far as 360 miles, began marching before 7 a.m. Saturday to join the funeral procession, scheduled to begin at 12 p.m. (4 a.m. MST).

Leaders of foreign governments gathered to honor the slain leader, and the United Nations of India reported the curfew in the capital was being relaxed. The death toll in mob violence around the nation, mostly against Sikhs, has totaled more than 500 with at least 250 dead in New Delhi alone.

The night before the funeral, a pall of smoke from burning Sikh-owned homes and villages was seen over large areas of New Delhi.

Most of the violence has been directed at the Sikhs, an influential religious minority that constitutes 2 percent of India's 730 million people — because Mrs. Gandhi's two assassins were identified as Sikh security guards. But about 80 of the 300 bodies overflowing the storage rooms of the Delhi morgue were those of Hindus.

Rajiv Gandhi, Mrs. Gandhi's son, was elected prime minister by an emergency session of the ruling Congress Party on Friday, ratifying his appointment Wednesday within hours of his mother's death.

In an emotional nationwide radio appeal for calm, Gandhi said the violence "is only heaping the substantive forces to achieve their ends."

Thanksgiving meal costs rise

WASHINGTON (AP) — The average cost of a typical Thanksgiving dinner will be 7.5 percent higher than a year ago, the Agriculture Department said Friday.

According to the department's calculations, a turkey dinner with stuffing, potatoes, gravy, vegetables and other side dishes will cost $3.35 each for six people. That doesn't count second helpings and leftovers.

Last year, the same food cost $7.77 each for six servings. The costs for three earlier years were $7.92 in 1980, $5.30 in 1979, and $5.32 in 1978.

Deputy Director of the department's Human Nutrition Information Service said turkey prices were lower in 1983 and 1984 than they were in 1980. Also, she said, coffee prices came down after 1980.

The report said Thanksgiving menu costs were based on foods for which U.S. average prices are available from the Labor Department's Bureau of Labor Statistics, going back 20 years.

"This is just one example of a Thanksgiving menu," the report said. "Your traditional meal may differ. Some items that you may associate with Thanksgiving dinner — cranberries and pumpkin pie, for example — are not included in the menu because they were not priced by BLS."

The dinner's cost rose only 5 percent in the four years since 1984, but jumped 47 percent between 1974 and 1980, the report said.

Poll

The region 55 percent to 45 percent in the that race.

Stallings is expected to do well in Ada and Blaine, counties which make up the westernmost portion of the district. Voters in that region favored Stallings over Hansen 58 percent to 42 percent in the 1982 general election. They were expected to vote for Hansen in the districts vote but because of a district boundary change they will be a larger factor in the race this year.

Hansen is expected to do best in the Upper Snake River region centered around Idaho Falls. In 1982, 31 percent of the congressional race's votes came from that region, with almost 60 percent going to Hansen.

Stallings edged out Hansen in the six-counties of southeastern Idaho, although he won only the most populous of those counties — Bannock, home of Pocatello.

The Magic Valley has been the most erratic in its support of the seven-term incumbent. In 1974, when Hansen was elected to return to Congress after a six-year hiatus, the Magic Valley provided him the largest plurality of any of those regions — 76 percent of the vote against Democrat Max Hanson.

In his 1978 race against Democrat Stan Kress, Hansen received only 40 percent of the vote, the lowest of any region except southwestern Idaho.

Poll taken at random

TWIN FALLS — A Times-News political poll conducted Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday evenings reached a total of 506 respondents. Of that total 435 respondents — or 80 percent — identified themselves as registered voters intending to vote in Tuesday's general election.

These qualified electors were queried on four races for public office and one ballot issue. The names were chosen through a systematic sample of every 130th name in the 1984 Magic Valley Phone Book, published by Intermountain Phone Books. The results of the poll should accurately reflect voter attitudes in the eight-county Magic Valley for the mid-week period of Oct. 30 through Nov. 1, with an error margin of plus or minus 5 percent.

One possible bias in the poll exists because candidates' party affiliations — information that is included on ballots — was not provided to respondents by those conducting the poll.

Staff to modify water plan

BOISE (AP) — Idaho Water Resources Department staff members will draft by mid-December a modification of the state water plan that incorporates parts of the recently signed Snake River water rights settlement.

Frank Sherman, supervisor of water planning, said Friday the draft is expected to change parts of the state plan that deal with allocation of water in the Snake River System. Minimum stream flow requirements would be increased.

Tuesday. The amendment would give the state legislature final authority on approving water plan modifications, Sherman said.

Meanwhile, negotiators for the state and Idaho Power Thursday defended the proposed settlement before critics who questioned the cost to electricity customers if more water is removed from behind the river's hydroelectric dams.

The settlement over Snake River water rights was signed last week by Gov. Jim Evans, Attorney General Jim Jones and Idaho Power Chairman Jim Bruce.

Board members will review the draft at their next meeting, tentatively scheduled for around Dec. 12, Sherman said.

Once the draft is presented to the board, a series of formal meetings will be held around the state, as mandated by state law.

"Even though we've gone through six hearings, I don't think we've been heard by a great many people," Sherman said. "I think the board member Gene Gray, referring to a series of informational meetings recently held on the settlement, reached among Evans, Jones and Idaho Power."

Idaho Power Chairman Don Kramer said a total of about 300 people attended the six meetings.

The state Water Resources Board is responsible for reviewing and updating the state water plan on a continuing basis.

But Sherman said that authority could change if a proposed constitutional amendment should pass.

Richard Stallings is the candidate for Congress.

Northwest hit by big storms

By The Associated Press

Driven by cold Arctic air and gale winds, the first major storm of the season in the Pacific Northwest is now raining and wet snow across Oregon and Washington for a second day Friday.

Police said the snow contributed to the storm knocking out power, closed roads and flooding in widespread areas of both states, but no serious injuries were reported.

The Issue is:

The ineffectiveness of the incumbent:

- ✓ A Congressman is not effective when he is ranked 435th out of 435 in his attendance record!
- ✓ A Congressman is not effective when he misses 85 out of 102 Banking Committee meetings!
- ✓ A Congressman is not effective when he is rated one of the six worst representatives in voting habits and bills passed!
- ✓ A Congressman is not effective when he attends only 11 out of 39 meetings of the Agriculture Committee — his most important assignment for Idaho's farm industry!
- ✓ A Congressman is not effective in working to balance the Federal budget when preoccupied with his personal financial problems!
- ✓ A Congressman is not effective when all of the 147 bills he has introduced in four years have failed!

Mondale talks win; Reagan talks crime

By CHRISTOPHER CONNELL
The Associated Press

Walter F. Mondale insisted "we can win this thing" as he rallied voters in Democratic bedrock states across the Northeast on Friday.

Meanwhile, President Reagan talked about crime-fighting and tried to get GOP congressional candidates latched onto his coalition.

Vice President George Bush said in Wilmington, Del., that Mondale's pledge to raise taxes was "one of the all-time great blunders in American political history."

And Geraldine Ferraro, the Democratic vice-presidential candidate, made her most pointed appeal for women's votes, telling supporters in Los Angeles, "In this contest, we're doing more than changing administrations. We're choosing between justice and injustice for American women."

The four candidates hoppedscotch across the country Friday as they headed into the hectic final weekend of a campaign that estimates Tuesday when 95 million or more Americans are expected to go to the polls.

Meanwhile, a National Public Radio-Lou Harris survey released Friday indicated that Reagan's lead had narrowed from 19 to 16 points — 57-41 — in the past week. The poll's margin of error was 2.5 points.

Mondale, at a morning rally in Lorain, Ohio, declared, "We can win this thing."

He encouraged unemployed steelworkers and others to exact retribution from Reagan and the Republicans in the voting booth, saying, "They've done it to you. Now you do it to them."

In Boston, before tens of thousands of people gathered on the slopes of Boston Common, Mondale proclaimed himself "a people's Democrat, a full-employment Democrat in the people's tradition of Roosevelt, Truman, Kennedy and Humphrey" and derided Reagan as a leader who "doesn't care, doesn't listen and doesn't help."

The crowd appeared twice or three times the size of the throng that greeted Reagan in Boston on Thursday.

The president, addressing thousands of supporters outside a courthouse in Cleveland, took credit for a reduction in crime and contended "a tiny handful of liberal Democrats" in the House had slowed passage of a crime control act.

"That act, which eliminates parole for federal crime, stiffens drug penalties and shifts the burden of proof from the prosecution to the defense in insanity cases, was passed in October after a year of party wrangling."

"Our national crackdown on crime has produced the sharpest decrease ever in the history of crime statistics," the president declared. "But this has not been easy, especially with the strong obstacles we faced in the House of Representatives."

Most non-government experts say crime has dropped mostly for another reason — the aging of the outsize baby boom generation born after World War II — past the turbulent teenage and young adult years.

Reagan urged voters to make clear on Tuesday that "the people are in charge, not the Democratic leadership of the House of Representatives."

Earlier, in blue-collar Saginaw, Mich., he appealed for four more years for his "second American revolution."

The president's itinerary also took him to Springfield, Ill., where he was trying to help Sen. Charles Percy stand off a challenge from Democratic Rep. Paul Simon, and then on to Little Rock, Ark., where Republican Rep. Ed Bethune is trying to topple Democratic Sen. David Pryor. Mondale headed from Boston to Wilkes-Barre, Pa., and was ending his day in Detroit.

Bush, in Wilmington to bolster the congressional candidacy of Eliseo Di Pont, wife of the Republican governor, said citizens have nothing to fear from Mondale on the tax front because "fortunately for the republic... when Walter Mondale speaks, nobody listens."

Mondale said in his acceptance speech at the Democratic convention in July that a tax increase next year is inevitable to deal with the deficit, which was $175 billion in fiscal 1984. He accused Reagan of harboring a secret plan to raise taxes.

Meanwhile, Treasury Secretary Donald T. Regan dismissed as "idle speculation" newspaper reports that the administration may seek to tax all unemployment and workmen's compensation benefits and to phase out the state and local income tax credits.

House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill labeled a Washington Post report on tax changes it said were being studied by the administration as "the smoking gun of Reagan unfairness." He said Reagan has just kicked sand in the faces of the country's eight-million unemployed.

Ferraro, speaking before 2,000 people at Los Angeles Valley College before flying to San Francisco and Davton, Ohio, spoke of the progress women have made in American life and the obstacles still before them. "This campaign proves what Susan B. Anthony always knew: Because our cause is just, we cannot fail," she said.

"We've chosen the path to equality. Don't let them turn us around. We cannot go backwards, especially when there's so much more to be done," she said.

Judge refuses to order GOP ads off nation's television airwaves

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal judge Friday refused to order immediate action on a Democratic complaint that the Republicans are waging an illegal effort to buy next House elections.

The Democrats want the Federal Election Commission to take a wave of GOP congressional commercials off the air.

The Democratic Congressional Campaign Committee alleged that the commercials, which urge viewers to vote for GOP House candidates, are being used by the Republican Party to benefit its candidates in districts where it has already made a maximum allowable contribution.

U.S. District Judge Oliver Gasch, in a three-page opinion denying the request for a preliminary injunction, said the court does not have jurisdiction to require the FEC to make an expedited decision.

Gasch agreed with FEC lawyers who had argued that the commission rules state, in part, that the agency has 120 days beginning with the date a complaint is filed to make a decision before a lawsuit can be filed with the U.S. District Court.

Since the Democratic Congressional Campaign Committee filed its complaint against the Republicans with the FEC only 11 days ago, Gasch said the 120-day period has not yet expired and therefore, the court had no jurisdiction.

"Shortening the period is discretionary and mandatory injunction will not control an act discretionary in character," said Gasch.

The suit asks the court to force the FEC to rule on the issue before the elections. During a brief hearing before the judge, Bob Bauer, attorney for the Democratic Congressional Campaign Committee, said the ads "constitute a clear bribe to the Republican nominees and they are allocable to the spending limits." This involves millions of dollars in hundreds of districts.

Richard Bader, assistant general counsel for the FEC, told Gasch that federal courts had no jurisdiction to order an expedited hearing.

He said the Democratic complaint was originally filed Oct. 22, setting off a 120-day clock for the FEC to decide the case. There is no reason for that time frame to be shortened, he said. "The only reason we have an FEC is to resolve these disputes in a timely fashion, not after the election when it's too late to do anything."

Rep. Tony Coelho of California, chairman of the Democratic panel, said earlier in the day. The suit claimed that the ads "unmistakably urge the election of GOP candidates for the House of Representatives" in certain targeted districts.

"Since the Republicans have already given the maximum to their targeted candidates, they are exceeding the legal limit ($40,400 per district) by spending millions on these illegal TV spots," Coelho said.

Reagan quits reading 'Doonesbury'

CLEVELAND (AP) — President Reagan said Friday he has "stopped reading Doonesbury," the comic strip that has been highly critical of him and Vice President George Bush, "because it isn't on the comic pages any more."

Asked about the "Doonesbury" strip for Sunday, which apparently mentions Reagan's divorce from actress Jane Wyman, the president said, "What makes that any different from any other day?"

Speaking to reporters before boarding Air Force One for a campaign flight to Springfield, Ill., Reagan also was asked if he had seen the "Doonesbury" strips critical of Bush.

"No," he said. "Because it isn't on the comic pages any more. It is not on the comic pages any more."

Deputy White House press secretary Larry Speakes, asked whether Reagan's reply was serious or facetious, said he did not know.

Sign-waver gets expletive

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — President Reagan jokingly referred to a sign-waving protester as a "brave bastard" Friday after the president had finished speaking to a crowd outside the state Capitol at Springfield.

As he finished his speech, Reagan was laughing with Sen. Charles Percy and other Republicans on the platform and the president remarked: "Look at that brave bastard out there with the Simon sign."

It was a reference to a supporter of Democratic Rep. Paul Simon, who is locked in a tight race with Percy for a Senate seat.

Percy responded with a loud laugh to Reagan's comment. He had finished his speech and the crowd was beginning to disperse, but his off-the-cuff remark was picked up by the microphone at his lectern.

Candidates for '25' floterial seats explain their views

The business of an American newspaper is to publish and distribute information and opinions. The editorial opinion of a newspaper reflects the views of its editor and that voice is his guaranteed constitutional right. This is part of our great democratic process, which was established to represent equal rights, with liberty and justice for all, including freedom of the press.

I feel Mr. Hartgen overlooked an integral part of the decision-making process by not contacting me personally and having the advantage of fully understanding my position on the issues.

Melissa Stewart, Peabo, is the Democratic candidate for one of two House seats, district 25, floterial.

By now I know most of us have been overwhelmed with information by and for political candidates, but I feel I must make one last attempt to clarify my position for the voters of the Magic Valley before election day.

Jude Hawkes

In the endorsement from the Times-News, the race between myself and Jeff Stokard was called a "loss-up."

But by representing me only as a "member of the Idaho Conservation League," my other qualifications for House Seat 25 were overlooked.

My environmental concerns are important because they show my long-term commitment to Idaho's future. I believe our real wealth lies in our scenic beauty, natural resources, and unspoiled farmland.

One of the ICL's goals is to preserve our family farm and ranch way of life and to promote a healthy economy through our agricultural base.

In addition, as a substitute teacher and a parent, I am dedicated to improving the quality of education for our children. I have studied the problems of our educational system as a graduate student.

I am a certified teacher in three states, including Idaho; I am a volunteer worker in the Great Books program at Hemingway School; and I work with an average of ten children every day in my summer camp and after-school program.

The teachers of the Magic Valley have endorsed my candidacy over my opponent's and I have received support from various school board members as well.

promoting thriving small business, tourism, and clean industry for Idahoans.

I have sensible solutions to generate more revenue for Idaho, such as a Department of Commerce to strengthen our business and agricultural economy, removing sales tax exemptions on federal projects like the INEL, and making our tax structure more equitable so the average property owner doesn't suffer again.

Most importantly, I want the Magic Valley residents to know that I am a person who deeply cares about Idaho — her land and her people. I cared enough to throw my hat into the ring when I saw that Mr. Stokard was running unopposed.

I am proud to offer the voters of District 25 a choice and a chance to elect a different kind of "politician" — a person who will continue working and caring for Idaho long after the polls have closed. I want to thank all of you for caring enough to vote.

Jude Hawkes, Ketchum, is the Democratic candidate for House seat 25, floterial district.

consideration and study; and because it is a published opinion should be given more carefully considered.

When Steve Hartgen made his endorsement of Jerry Callen in Wednesday's Times-News, he was exercising both a right and a responsibility. A responsibility I am certain he does not take lightly. However, I am Mr. Callen's opponent for House Seat 25, the 25th Floterial District, and in this democracy that is a responsibility which I do not take lightly. I was neither interviewed by phone or in person, or contacted by Mr. Hartgen in any way. I did speak with staff reporters on occasion and their stories were well-balanced reports of events or forums in which I participated.

Letters/ Reagan, Hansen, food tax initiative draw reader responses

Write in Dan Adamson

It is difficult for me to understand how the people of Idaho can put George Hansen back in Washington. We people complain that politicians are crooks. Then support a man with problems like George? Republicans do not have to vote for Stallings! Let's write in Dan Adamson! He may help Idaho a lot more than a lesser of evils.

If George really cared for Idaho, he would step down and pass on the responsibility to a qualified Republican. Is George really good for Idaho? TRUDY HAMMOND - HAZELTON

Kiss your check goodbye

Maybe the old professor wasn't so absent-minded after all when he sent his wife to the bank and "kissed" his check goodbye. DAVE ANDERST - HAZELTON

Ferraro a beat away

Hunter! Decision time. One of the planks of the Democratic platform calls for the continuation of anti-hand guns. Geraldine Ferraro could be just a heart-beat away from being president. Now her record is as an anti-hand gunner, and pro-gun control. She has a past voting record on these measures and accepts campaign money from the anti-gun groups. NUTS! LEO J. HAYES - WENDLE

Say no on tax removal

As a member of the Idaho State Board of Education, I feel I should inform the voters what the effect of the initiative exempting food from the sales tax would be on Idaho's educational system. For every dollar saved by the grocery exemption, 51 cents would come out of our public schools. This would reduce the state's net income by $15.3 million, according to the legislative budget office. Although all agencies would be affected, the biggest loss would be to our schools. In the public schools over 65 percent of all money goes to instructors and only 3.5 percent goes to administrators. Our schools are still reeling from the 1 percent initiative. In 1978 higher education received 14.5 percent of the general fund. They get 14.5 percent. Now more of the public school money must come from the state instead of local property taxes. To make up some of the gap, higher education's student's fees have almost tripled. To make matters worse, Idaho consistently ranks in the top three states in birth rate. Idaho has slipped to 48th per student expenditures in 1983-84 for public schools. And our class size is sixth in the nation, among the largest. Three years ago, there was a 19.5 percent differential between Idaho's average teachers salary and the average of the six contiguous states. Two years ago, that differential was 23.2 percent, last year 25.9 percent. Since voters have spoken against property taxes, which don't fluctuate with the economy, the unstable sales tax has taken its place. Without the grocery tax, the next area to raise taxes would probably be to expand the loopholes exempting services, such as doctors, lawyers, cleaners, hair dressers, etc. Idaho's teachers are constantly being asked to "make do," to do more with less. Don't cut education money any more. Vote no. CLERY THYMAS - Jerome

Billings explains issues

The Republican dominated Legislature does not address the real issues of Idaho. Neither does my opponent. Without the understanding that our economies are all ag related and without an advocate at the state level, our farmers and communities are not being represented. The rural farmer keeps the economy of their communities stable. They buy the gas, the food and the retail products that support business, management and government that my opponent represents. The swift talking politicians are being replaced, even at the national level with men and women who are dedicated in representing the people they serve. To me, this is integrity. These issues are why I'm fighting to get your vote. OPAL BILLINGS - Twin Falls

Send George back to D.C.

Your writers and editors would have the voters believe that Professor Stallings is a conservative — devoid of political party ties — especially those of the Mondale-Ferraro team. He has no monkey of Democrat label on his literature except for the "union label" on each page and envelope of his campaign material. It has been stated he is against much of the liberal legislation such as the ERCA, abortion financed abortion, gun control, nuclear freeze and disarmament, gay rights, etc. Why then has Mr. Stallings publicly stated that he will vote for "Tip" O'Neill for Speaker of the House who has total control over the picking of Democrat Committee Chairmen in the House of Representatives where these liberal policies of the Democrat Party are put into bill form? Could it be he has just seen his first signs of the kind of pressure that can and will be put upon him when his "party" needs his "yes" vote? I understand that the National Education Association Union has given him between $12,000 and $14,000 this campaign. They make no secret that they support much of the radical ideas of the democrat platform because they supply most of the delegates. Why buying the seat for Stallings? Why buying George Hansen a vacation without pay? For our sake and that of our country, I pray we will again send George Hansen to represent us in Washington. PATRICIA L. CALLEN - Jerome

Supports Drexler for sheriff

I recently wrote letters to the editors of the Mountain Express and Wood River Journal opposing the re-election of Dennis Haynes for Blaine County Sheriff. The Mountain Express printed my letter but the Wood River Journal did not. I also know of one other opposing letter that was not printed. I do not think this is fair. I wrote those letters as I felt I had an important message to express to the public as I was Dennis Haynes' secretary for 9 1/2 years. I sincerely believe that Haynes is not professional and that the comments Cal Nerland has been making about Haynes are true. In my opinion, I supported the election of Orville Drexler for Sheriff as I feel he is being honest and cares about the people. I hope people in Blaine County are aware of what is going on. I'm afraid to think what will happen if Dennis Haynes is re-elected and continues to be the leader of the county law enforcement agency and the Wood River Journal, who is obviously supporting Dennis Haynes, continues to report news only in the way they want people to read it.

James Salisbury

It is us, his courageous, patriotic constituents who have recognized his integrity and produce these superlatives concerning George's "righteousness." George himself speaks out well for himself when he needs to but is actually a very humble man. He is still in there because we want a man exactly like him in there and wish there were more like him. As evidence to his usual selfless service, in the time of his greatest pressure of personal difficulties over three trumped-up financial charges, he responded to pleas from clergymen of Idaho and elsewhere to go to Nebraska for the cause of freedom of religion and education, knowing that people like the Times-News would pretend to be "embarrassed." It is NOT TRUE that "his personal finances are in a wreck." In spite of the great expenses

Don't let this kind of maneuvering take over Blaine County. Bring back some honesty and dignity. Blaine County residents; you're too good to let this happen. CLAUDIA REESE - Buhl

An ode to Ron Reagan

There came a man upon the scene in early nineteen-eighty. He pledged to save us from our woes, that seemed mighty weighty. He said he would the budget balance by supply side and trickle down. But those of us who know the facts, know he's failed us all around.

That awful debt just grew and grew from round eight hundred billion, (an amount the mind does boggle!) to one and a half trillion!

In four short years, from bad to worse, two hundred plus have perished. El Salvador and old Belrut, men have died, men we cherished.

The Middle East, mistakes at home, brought issues that were strenuous. They say Ron works three hours a day! Dedication, so tremendous!

Perhaps his 70-odd years have brought a slacking pace, but he always lights on work, playing cowboy 'round the place?

Ron said it's not political that an envoy goes to Rome. But if J.C. had pulled that stunt, back to Georgia, right back home!

"I get so homesick," he has said, "for good old California." So Air Force One takes off again. The cost, my friend, will stun ya.

The time has come for us to have just a glimpse of Righteous Ron. So suddenly a Godly Man — inspires us all to carry on.

He speaks a lot of Christian Creeds, with a message loud and clear. Just like an old revival camp, one just can't help but shed a tear.

A pause, effective, as you know, the voice with just a quiver. A tear appears, as if on cue, it simply cracks your liver!

A grade B actor, he was thought to be, and very common. — But rhetoric and a folksy smile and all his subjects cry, "Right on!"

Now where was Ronnie all the time while scores of Sundays came and went?

The Times-News welcomes letters to the editor but will reject those it considers libelous or in bad taste. Each letter must be signed and should include the writer's mailing address. Letters of more than 400 words may be edited for length.

He managed just nine trips to church, that's real Christian commitment!

Hypercrist still runs rampant, it seems there's no exception. The truth, alas, is mighty scarce, the theme is pure deception.

We add no more to this sad tale of nonsense, burn balance! The sudden shift to righteousness just doesn't fit ol' Ronnie.

Republican backs Stallings

As a Republican, I have a touchy but clear decision to make next Tuesday, Nov. 6. Not to denounce the credibility of Richard Stallings, I am selecting "the better of two evils." This is why I am voting for a Democrat for that Congressional seat. Some Republicans will tell you that if Ronald Reagan is re-elected, he will need the support of the entire Republican team. This is true, but I've heard that "the wheels of justice turn slowly, but surely." How sure are you that you will vote for George Hansen to clear his name? How much support will he be able to give to the people of Idaho if he is preoccupied with his "legal problems?" I can't help but recall those two gentlemen in Washington that were found guilty of having sexual relationships with their pages. To resign would only prove the gull to a further degree. The only thing they could do was to run for re-election and try to demolish their wrong-doings. How could the voting public even consider their re-election? I began to wonder about their judgments. On that point, what is the national view of our judgement in this attempt to re-elect George Hansen? If he does get re-elected will the people of this nation refer to Idaho as the state of "famous potatoes" and "a shifty Congressman?" ROBERT DE KRUYF - Buhl

Supports Pete Busch

Question: When is a pork barrel not a pork barrel? Answer: According to James McClure: When it wears the INEL label. In a current radio ad, our (not really mine) senior senator boasts of his fighting to keep monies being cut from INEL's budget and that he is working hard to increase the activities there. Who is that really helping? The INEL guy, the Idaho farmer? No. It splits a little money out to labor, but most of it is big bucks for the big guy and as is usually the case we get left with the garbage. So no thanks for your efforts McClure, and remember folks, one Busch in the Senate is worth three McClures in your pocket. WILLIAM K. CHISHOLM - Buhl

'Real demagogues' are 'hungry to be rid' of George

Your latest anti-Hansen piece (editorial, Thursday) was a really drastic measure to sway readers to a particular side. It contained many inaccuracies, yes, totally false comments beside the usual misleading, misrepresented and slanted ones. It is NOT TRUE that George Hansen "has one of the worst attendance records in Congress" unless you consider his generous, voluntary voting absences during the time of the spurious indictments and court proceedings. It is NOT TRUE that "chances are good he will serve at least some of" the silly sentence time placed by that rigged pseudo court. It is completely untrue to say that a "major congressman" who sentences him. This is to put us against special interest groups (like the IRS and its mistress in the justice department) who may wish to prevent a good congressman from showing up to vote against their bad behavior. Re-electing George would apply a popular check and balance correction to those sham, convictions and insure his continued voting and speaking out in congress against the ballooning bureaucracy and in favor of our personal rights. It is NOT TRUE that there are any credible "reports that (his opponent) is leading and may win the seat. Ricks College (where the other candidate is a fine professor) students even voted 345 to 137 in favor of George, although we can see why you would wishfully want us to believe otherwise. It is NOT TRUE that "he continues to hide" from the people of Idaho where he got nearly $900,000, or any other monies. There were loan proceeds and there has never been any indictment about those monies nor the slightest evidence of wrongdoing that will be made public. Nearly all congressmen, nearly all corporations and even newspapers, including this one, sometime report over large amounts of money in hundreds of thousands to keep financed. (Has the Times-News given full disclosure of all its loans, IRS papers, contributions to the newspaper prints a figure like $900,000 in an editorial or one of its supposedly objective anti-Hansen slanted news reports. It is only to make the readers gasp. It is NOT TRUE that he has become "a demagogue" by any interpretation of the term. It is us, his courageous, patriotic constituents who have recognized his integrity and produce these superlatives concerning George's "righteousness." George himself speaks out well for himself when he needs to but is actually a very humble man. He is still in there because we want a man exactly like him in there and wish there were more like him. As evidence to his usual selfless service, in the time of his greatest pressure of personal difficulties over three trumped-up financial charges, he responded to pleas from clergymen of Idaho and elsewhere to go to Nebraska for the cause of freedom of religion and education, knowing that people like the Times-News would pretend to be "embarrassed." It is NOT TRUE that "his personal finances are in a wreck." In spite of the great expenses of defending himself against these silly charges, he is currently operating in the black and is closer to being debt-free than many congressmen of either party. And what's this clouded gibe at "Hansen's venality?" Is precisely George's refusal to succumb to the usual value compromises that so tyrannically control government agents (including the IRS and OSHA) that has made these real demagogues so hungry to be rid of George's ruthless revelations about their graft and us Idaho honest folk that keep him going for us. We haven't the slightest "doubt" about his "honesty or forthrightness." Once again I champion your right to use the newspaper to express your political opinions in editorials and thank you for printing other viewpoints. James Salisbury is a Twin Falls resident.

Supports McRoberts

Darrel McRoberts is an excellent choice for State Senator, District 23B, the newly created district. He and incumbent Senator Laird Nob will represent Twin Falls County honestly, capably, and energetically.

Darrel, new to the Idaho Legislature, has been a city councilman in Washington when he worked for the Green Giant Company in Dayton.

He has worked up the ladder of Green Giant Company in several states from a part-time high school and college student job to a full-time top management job with that large agricultural processing firm. As a result, he has dealt with budgets "living within a budget and tight ones," he has dealt with management problems with a large labor force and he has been a public relations representative for his firm in Buhl and in the Twin Falls County area.

This year, 1984, the business, commercial and professional people selected him as president of the Buhl Chamber of Commerce.

He'll make a good senator and deserves your support on Nov. 6 at the general election polls.

Prosecutor's race

Marlene Wood has stated in the Letter to the Editor Column of the Northside News that I misrepresented my own committee and the citizens of Jerome regarding my contact with her to come to a meeting of the Citizens Action Committee. At the time I talked with Mrs. Wood she stated she would be out of town on the date I stated our committee would be meeting. I was waiting to hear from Mrs. Wood to set up a meeting date that would meet with her. I delayed for two weeks to her office and yielded two materials without further word from her.

She states she made repeated phone calls to my home and could not reach me. I am hard to reach by phone as Mrs. Wood stated. I guess Mrs. Wood has not yet heard of the U.S. mail system that, believe it or not, is able to deliver a letter mailed within the City of Jerome to a Jerome city resident within one day. And I do pick up my mail every day.

After waiting two weeks and not hearing from Mrs. Wood, I contacted David Thompson for help.

VonLindern's views

Thank you for endorsing my candidacy for the State Legislature. I believe your editorial effectively capitalized our campaign. I am the underdog, and we have had a low-profile, low-budget race. Part of that is personality. My friends know me to be quiet and thrifty. I'm conservative with both words and money. However the low visibility has been mostly attributable to the facts of life. I'm operating a business and my commitment and obligations to my clients and employees have kept me from campaigning full time. But I want to assure the voters of Twin Falls County that I am a full-time and dedicated legislator.

My greatest disadvantage, as you point out, is the Democratic party affiliation. Twin Falls County voters are decidedly reluctant to select a Democrat. But I have heard numerous individuals state their intention, this year, to vote the person and not the party. If the citizens of this county will sincerely practice that policy, I'll be satisfied no matter who wins this or any other race. I have not campaigned against my opponent. Nor Brackett is a good man and I commend him for his many years of sincere service to our state. I am only beginning to appreciate the demands of time and caring that are involved in elective public service.

I believe it is critically important that we bring the contrasting views of our citizenry into the forums of local government. We need the two party system. Myself and the other Democratic candidates in Magic Valley are concerned with issues important to all of us. We want to preserve the family farm, to insure the quality of life and this beautiful environment that we have, and to provide our children with quality education. We don't, at least, I don't want to spend us into the poorhouse either. The most important need of state government in Idaho today is not money. It is the need for cooperation, dialogue, and compromise in listening to each other and working together to achieve that future we all want.

We cannot accomplish that if we continue to send only one party to Boise. I can approach a Democratic governor on behalf of Twin Falls County. I can have a voice with those northern Idaho legislators that now ignore us. And, I most want to use my experience and expertise in water, environment, and higher education together with my inherent understanding of agriculture to employ our State resources to aid our farm economy.

That is the real story of Twin Falls County. We must help and protect our economy and resource base for them, our other problems will, largely resolve themselves. The family farm and agricultural base are the cornerstone of that environment and lifestyle we love. And a farmer that can pay his bills and his banker and still have a fair share leftover, will support quality education.

It is my sincere hope that 1984 marks the year that the people of this county and this valley begin to work together to maintain the outstanding resources and lifestyle we enjoy.

Houston responds

I will not apologize for the stand I have taken with regard to protecting and supporting our most precious resource, our children.

The future of Idaho rests squarely on the shoulders of those responsible for making our education system the best possible. I have chosen to accept this responsibility and act accordingly which places me in the current legislative race in District 23.

As a teacher, naturally, I'm very concerned with funding for education. This not only means exploring new sources of revenue but the determination of how that revenue will be distributed. Since education currently receives approximately 75 percent of the general fund, it seems sensible to me that people who are in the education field should have some direct input into how this budget is managed.

However, the fact that I am a teacher concerned about education issues does not make me a "one-issue" candidate as the media would have people believe. I have consistently taken a stand for strong, protective standards for day-care centers, an equitable tax system which does not include raising taxes, more local control, a strong agriculture economy, a safe and clean environment, protection of our aquifer, protection of Idaho's water rights and preventive measures to protect our beautiful state from becoming toxic waste dump.

Representation of the many interests of the people is not an easy task, but an important one. The people of this area are experts who have what they want and need in state government. I'm convinced this includes having a legislator who will study proposed legislation, talk to the constituency, take a position representative of that constituency and maintain that position.

"Waffling" or "leave it to the experts in the legislature" is not my approach to legislation as my opponent's.

I have taken care not to become obligated to special interest groups and believe I can go to the Legislature with an independent, open mind, ready to examine the issues and honestly represent the people of Twin Falls County.

The Times-News claims I would be "articulate and caring" about one issue. I say I would be articulate and caring about many.

Voters are Twin Falls

I too, had been taught to get out and vote. Now I ask why? Twin Falls had a special election (consolidation) both were voted down. Did the votes count?

Some days later, after a private, and on a holiday, meeting Times-News headlines read, "Twin Falls decides to keep Consolidation." Who is Twin Falls? And what good did the election do?

Another subject - I agree with Monto and Virginia Lee, no vote for Skaker. Had it been Skaker's son, would he still say "not murder, manslaughter." Would he also be fighting for appeal? Big emphasis was placed on his client being "drunk at the time." God help us all, if every drunk decides to shoot and kill.

I'm still upset that a council and Mayor can ignore the no vote and call themselves, Twin Falls. The voters are Twin Falls!

Correction

In a letter Friday from Virginia Ash, Buhl, a sentence was inadvertently typed incorrectly. The sentence, referring to the John Birch Society, should have read: "they work toward elimination of graduated income tax; contend American government is the greatest single force supporting advance of communism in United States." The Times-News regrets the error.

Daughter's support

For 28 years, Donna Scott's No. 1 priority was raising her six children. When we needed Mom, she was there for us.

But in 1981, when faced with an "empty nest," she made the decision to run for the state Legislature - and won!

During her first term, she proved herself as a conscientious, hard-working representative, gaining the favor of her conservative colleagues who constantly striving to bet her herself.

You need her vote and Donna Scott is here for you!

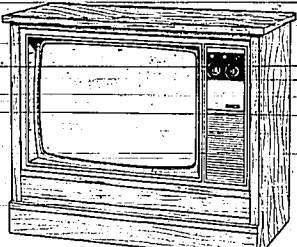

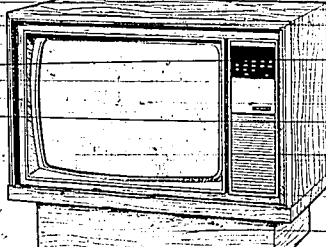

A vote for my Mom is a vote for Idaho!

Daily Horoscope

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Except for romance and entertainment, you now have a very good day to get into whatever various tasks and duties face you and to work them out in a very satisfactory fashion.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) It would be well to list all the personal tasks you need to perform and then get at them and polish them off quickly.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Be thoughtful — with those you want to know better in the coming weeks and get into their good graces.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Fine day for handling any public duties for which you are well equipped or have to do. Guard your reputation.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Plan how to expand your interests so that you have greater happiness and contentment.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) Follow your hunches and you will be able to get closer to the one you really love. Take to some romantic place where the atmosphere is lovely.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Situations arise that will give you an opportunity to come to a better understanding with your partners today.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Early plan how to make your surroundings more charming and then get to work on them. Feel satisfied and content this evening.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) A good day to make some special talent work far more efficiently so that you can gain greater benefits with it.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 21 to Dec. 22) You need to fix little things around the house and this is a good day to do them.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 23 to Jan. 20) Get an early start on shopping and making visits that you have been putting aside for some time.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) A good day to handle practical affairs and be very wise if where money is concerned. Hit on a good plan that will bring money in.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) You have had a long-time desire and this is a good day to gain it. Show that you have ingenuity.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY, he or she will be very much interested in anything of an artistic or mystical nature and should have the education slanted along some such lines, but be sure to give good moral and religious training early so as to avoid human pitfalls. Let the discipline be gentle so as to prevent a martyr complex to manifest itself.

Stalin's daughter in Russia following defection to West

By ALISON SMALE
The Associated Press

MOSCOW — Josef Stalin's only daughter, reviled in the Soviet Union when she defected to the West in 1967, has returned home with her 13-year-old American-born daughter, the news agency Tass said Friday.

Soviet authorities have restored to Svetlana I. Alliluyeva the citizenship revoked in 1970, and granted Soviet citizenship to her daughter, Olga, Tass said. It did not mention that she was the daughter of Stalin, the Soviet leader who died in 1953.

Svetlana had lived in the United States from 1967 to 1982, and then moved to Britain. She and her daughter are American citizens.

She had vowed never to return to the Soviet Union and left behind two children from previous marriages, Josef and Yekaterina, who said they were shocked and hurt by her decision. There now are two grand-children.

SVETLANA ALLILUYEVA
Agains a Soviet citizen

her defection until six or seven years ago, a neighbor told an Associated Press reporter Friday.

Svetlana defected in March 1967, after being allowed to return the ashes of her husband, Leonid Brezhnev, to India. She had lived with him in Moscow and later referred to him as her husband. But Soviet officials had refused to sanction her marriage to the Indian.

In an interview in March with the London Observer newspaper, Svetlana said that she missed her children and grandchildren in the Soviet Union.

"It is sometimes very hard," the newspaper quoted her as saying. "I have not seen my son and daughter for 17 years and I have a grandson and granddaughter I have never seen. Sometimes it's an almost superhuman effort not to drop everything and run and get a ticket to go and see them."

However, Svetlana gave friends at her home in Cambridge, England, no clue she was leaving.

"There was no hint whatsoever she was going to go back to Russia. If she has gone permanently, I will be flabbergasted," said Cambridge University professor Donald Denman, one of her closest friends in England.

Denman said Olga is "100-percent American."

"If she had arranged to go to Moscow to see her son, that's understandable," Denman said. "I find it incredible that she has formally applied to the Soviet Union for citizenship. I can't believe it. Her freedom meant more."

The only hint that she planned to leave came from John Woods, headmaster of Olga's school. He was quoted as saying Svetlana telephoned him Oct. 28 and said she was going to Moscow.

Svetlana was denounced in the Soviet Union for defecting. On July 1, 1967, Metropolitan Filaret of the Russian Orthodox Church was quoted in Izvestia as condemning her for abandoning her children.

"The moral image of this woman, who has sold everything sacred for dollars, can only arouse revulsion and anger," he was quoted as saying. Svetlana had been baptized in the Russian Orthodox Church five years before leaving the Soviet Union.

Svetlana's two children remaining in the Soviet Union were born of marriages to Grigory Morozov in 1944 and Yuri Zhdanov in 1949.

During a news conference in New York in 1967 she said her decision not to return to the Soviet Union also was motivated by a gradual reconsideration of her communist ideas, and her acceptance of religion. She criticized the "lack of freedom everywhere" in the Soviet bloc.

Gay Sr. gets five years probation

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Singer Marvin Gaye's father was sentenced to five years probation Friday for killing his son in a shooting that the judge said was the victim's "own fault."

Superior Court Judge Gordon Ringer said imposing jail time would have been a "death sentence" for 71-year-old Marvin Gay Sr., who had pleaded no contest to voluntary manslaughter, could have received a 13-year prison sentence.

The judge said Gay Sr. provoked the shooting which led to his death during a family argument on the eve of his 43th birthday.

Gay Sr. was sentenced to probation for five years for the killing of his son in a shooting that the judge said was the victim's "own fault." Although tragically provoked this incident, it was his own fault," Ringer said.

Gaye thanked Ringer profusely for allowing the sentencing, saying he was "sorry" for what defense attorneys voluntarily manslaughter, could have received a 13-year prison sentence.

door," said Gay in a lengthy, rambling speech to the judge.

Gaye, who underwent surgery to remove a walnut-sized tumor at the base of his brain following his arrest, continued to address the court in a barely audible voice.

Svetlana's ex-husband admits shock at move

MILWAUKEE (AP) — William Wesley Peters, the third husband of Stalin's daughter Svetlana, said Friday it was "kind of a shocker" to learn that she had returned to the Soviet Union with her daughter Olga.

"My reaction is surprise and concern of course about our daughter going back to the Soviet Union. If the whole story is so, it's naturally a concern to me. But there isn't anything I know I can do about it."

"It is kind of a shocker all right, and I'm concerned about the welfare of both Svetlana and Olga," he said.

Peters is the architect of the Frank Lloyd Wright Foundation. In 1970 he married Svetlana Alliluyeva, daughter of the Soviet dictator. A year later, their daughter was born and three years later the marriage ended.

He said his former wife might have been motivated by a desire to see her two children from her first marriage. She had tried to stay in touch with them after leaving the USSR, he said, but had not been successful.

"That's the only thing I can think of," he said.

Peters said he had not been in close touch with his ex-wife, who had been living recently in England. He said he tried to call her in August and had written her then, but had not heard back from her.

He said the last time he saw Olga was in the summer of 1983, when she attended a summer camp near Spring Green, where the Wright Foundation has its Taliesin East center.

FELLOW PEONS, LET'S REVOLT

Tuesday

Let's revolt against people making less than $50,000 a year, paying a very disproportionate share of the government's spending. Let's vote against the greedy, dishonest people who have formed a bureaucracy to gain control and ownership of everything in the United States.

How many men have you heard or read about who profited from the billions spent by the Pentagon? None.

I am not a Republican or Democrat, as I do not believe those words have meaning anymore. I believe we are now peons on one hand and people of power or wealth on the other.

I believe we have lost control of the news media, our government, and our economy, to the bureaucracy. The news medias' constant pressure to not reveal their sources of information, if finally accepted, would be the removal of the right of the accused to face his accuser. Surely one of our most precious rights.

The pendulum swings. Sanity will prevail in the world someday, but if we do not act soon, it could be, for us, generations in coming, and bloody. The poor in Mexico have tried for a long time and shed a lot of blood trying to gain a portion of their country's wealth and have not succeeded yet.

I suggest we vote a protest by voting for anyone not now in office unless you personally know the challenger to be dishonest or insane.

We have a local example of this power struggle in action. We have lost our once taxpayer-owned, adequate county hospital. A power mad, private company managed to somehow bilk our legislature, our hospital board, and our county commissioners into an insanity which is a pure example of the old Pyramid game. This is considered illegal in the rest of our economic structure. I have no answer to the problem, but we taxpayers better admit the problem exists.

Copies of this statement will be available at 511 Union, Filer, Idaho, as of October 30, 1984.

Kloos suspended from job as court trustee

By HAL BERNSTON
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Federal bankruptcy court trustee Teresa Kloos was suspended from her duties on Tuesday and an investigation is now under way into her job performance, according to federal court officials.

Kloos began working as a trustee in the spring of 1981 and has handled hundreds of area bankruptcies on a contract basis with Boise federal court officials. These cases include the liquidation of two major trout companies owned by Buhl entrepreneur Ken Ellis.

Kloos's office and warehouse on South Park Avenue are now closed and a sign on the office door says that "the contents of these premises are now in custody of the U.S. District Court."

Kloos's bankruptcy cases have been transferred to Pocatello trustee L.D.

Fitzgerald, according to Ladora Hutchinson, the clerk of the federal bankruptcy court in Boise.

"The Times-News has been unable to reach Kloos for comment during the past three days. An assistant to Kloos said she had 'no idea where she was,' and an answering service operator also had 'no knowledge of her whereabouts.'

Melanie Saavedra, who lives next door to the Kloos' Elm Street residence, says that Kloos abruptly moved out of her home Sunday night. Saavedra said that much of Kloos' furniture was picked up by individuals who arrived at her house Sunday morning. That evening Kloos packed up all of her remaining belongings and then early Monday morning drove away to an unknown destination, Saavedra said.

Kloos shared trustee duties for the eight-county Magic Valley area with Jerome resident Roland Severson.

Severson, who works independently of Kloos, had no knowledge of her whereabouts and would not comment on her performance.

Kloos was appointed to her position three years ago after applying for the job through the Washington, D.C., headquarters of the federal bankruptcy court and interviewing with Boise court officials, Hutchinson said.

As a trustee, Kloos is responsible for locating the assets of bankrupt businesses and individuals and then selling them to help pay creditors. She is paid on a percentage basis, according to the amount of money she raises in the sale of assets, Hutchinson said.

"She is supposed to liquidate assets as quickly as possible for the benefit of creditors," Hutchinson said.

A trustee may also be given control of a bankrupt company and asked to perform temporary management functions.

Hutchinson stressed that Kloos was not an employee of the court but rather hired on a contractual basis.

Kloos received a great deal of notoriety in the summer of 1982 after she became trustee of the bankrupt Rupert Beaver Ranches.

Several hundred beavers were destined to be slaughtered before Kloos joined forces with the New York-based The Fund For Animals to transport the animals to new homes in the wild.

The beavers became a national cause celebre — and Kloos was portrayed in the media as their protector.

Farrago Inc., trout feed company and Magic Springs Inc., a trout processing company, are still in the process of litigation, according to Frank Dykas, a Buhl attorney who once represented Ellis.

Science unravels mystery of alcoholism

Physicians discover strong link between alcoholic parents, kids

By DEAN S. MILLER
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Physicians are beginning to think of alcoholism as a disease.

Dr. Timmen Cermak told participants in the "Recovery '84" conference at the College of Southern Idaho Friday recent findings have made doctors "feel much more comfortable about calling it an illness."

One particular study shows that sons of alcoholic fathers adopted at or near birth by non-alcoholic parents are four to nine times more likely to develop alcoholism than men in the population at large.

These results are "as close as we have to a smoking pistol," says Cermak. The proof of a "genetic component" to alcoholism has put to rest some of the debate over whether alcoholism was a learned or genetic behavior.

Cermak says that there may be a host of causes of alcoholism, but it has been established that genetic predisposition plays a part. "Some start with a genetic predisposition. As a corollary to the study of children adopted from alcoholic parents, Cermak said studies have shown that children of non-alcoholic parents adopted into alcoholic families do not suffer from a substantially higher rate of alcoholism than the norm.

Other research into brain wave activity in anticipation of repeated stimuli such as noises, shows that alcoholics and their children share certain brain wave patterns.

"Something is different" in the brains of alcoholics and that something is passed along genetically, Cermak said. The brain waves studied are called "voltage potential" waves and Cermak says no one knows what the alcoholic's lower voltage potential wave level means about the actual function of the alcoholic's brain.

Research with monkeys and cocaine indicates "there is part of the brain that triggers compulsive behavior," said Cermak. The addictive effects of alcohol were long thought to be a major barrier to curing alcoholism.

Cermak said cocaine is not physically addictive, but the monkeys behaved so compulsively as to starve themselves to death in order to be given cocaine. Withdrawal effects from cocaine are minimal, Cermak says, yet the drug has been found to be the "strongest producer of compulsive behaviors."

The Alcohols Anonymous treatment method recognized that alcoholism was a disease early on and took the onus of blame off the alcoholic.

Physicians have begun to follow up, recognizing that alcoholism is a chronic and sometimes fatal disease, Cermak said.

Alcoholic's failure affects entire family

By DEAN S. MILLER
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — While an alcoholic suffers from a physical disease, the alcoholic and family may suffer from the psychological symptoms of the addiction.

Dr. Timmen Cermak, speaking at the "Recovery '84" conference on drug and alcohol abuse at the College of Southern Idaho Friday, described the five symptoms of "co-dependency" from which alcoholics and their families suffer.

In co-dependency, "the alcoholic pricks his finger and his wife says 'Gee, Tim, you're bleeding.'"

Co-dependency means the alcoholic's failure to combat alcoholism affects the other person to feel worse about himself.

"Fences" identities get fused and confused" in co-dependency, Cermak said. He cited cases of families "still walking on egg shells" 10 years after the death of an alcoholic in the family. "They were still living with shame and guilt," he says.

Co-dependent people tend to "stuff" their feelings the way alcoholics do and Cermak said the family of a recovering alcoholic must enter into recovery with the alcoholic.

Cermak said there are 28 million children of alcoholics in the United States, many of whom suffer from co-dependency.

The treatment of co-dependency is similar to the treatment of alcoholism and has to do primarily with dispelling the myth of willpower as a means to combat alcoholism.

Cermak described five symptoms of co-dependency.

The first symptom of co-dependency is denial of the problem or delusions as to the boundaries of the co-dependent's power to combat it.

The co-dependent person is "just as willing to use denial to deal with stress as the alcoholic is to use denial to share up denial" of his alcoholism, Cermak said.

Willpower alone won't fight it

TWIN FALLS — Willpower is no match for alcoholism.

Speaking at the "Recovery '84" conference on alcohol and drug abuse at the College of Southern Idaho Friday, Dr. Timmen Cermak said trying to exercise willpower to combat alcoholism is like "trying to saw a board with a hammer."

Alcoholics who attempt to use willpower have "a distorted sense of what is under their control," they blame their lapsing into drink on not having tried hard enough.

Self-esteem is tied up in willpower, Cermak says, forcing the alcoholic of time and energy attempting to control something that it is not possible to control.

"The impulse to drink is not under your control, the reaction to that impulse is," said Cermak. The alcoholic must learn to "go to a meeting" rather than have a drink, he said.

Because alcoholics who attempt to use willpower have "a distorted sense of what is under their control," they blame their lapsing into drink on not having tried hard enough.

Sheriff denies discrimination charge

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

JEROME — Jerome County Sheriff Elza Hall denied charges Thursday of discrimination and sexual harassment made by a former radio dispatcher — and said he believes she reported the allegations to a Jerome newspaper "in order to get a political election as a political move against him."

Hall said he was not aware of the sexual harassment charges and was not told about them by the North Side News reporter during an interview early in the week. He said the reporter asked "for comments only on allegations that he discriminated against the part-time dispatcher when he refused her request for full-time employment."

Tamara Burden, who resigned Saturday, gave information to the paper earlier this week. She is now living out of state and unavailable for comment.

Hall said the woman was offered an opportunity last April to train on her own time at no pay with a promise that if she was trained and an opening for a deputy was available she would be considered.

"I got an opening and I did give her a part-time job," he said.

He said the day she came to him and asked why she had not been given full-time work when two other trainees were put on full time, she was told her work simply was not up to standards.

"I told her she could continue part-time (to improve her skills), but that I had complaints about her work from the officers in the city, county and state departments," Hall said.

He said several officers had indicated they were afraid to work with the dispatcher, because she was unable to keep track of the cars and officers.

Hall said there were also times when prisoners were booked in and records of their money did not check out properly.

Hall said he was advised by the Idaho Human Rights Commission of a complaint from Burden and answered questions, at the commission's request, advising members to come to Jerome to interview other officers for verification of his statements.

After the young woman resigned, Hall said, her boyfriend, a city police officer who also resigned, came to him to demand she be given a full-time job.

"If there was sexual harassment going on, why was she so anxious to work for me on a full-time basis?" Hall asked.

He added he has been told the woman threatened to sue that he lost his job if she had to resign from hers.

Layoffs cause jump in jobless numbers

By BOB FREUND
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Unemployment in the Magic Valley took a quite a step-up during October to 6.1 percent, as summer workers dropped out of the labor force and seasonal layoffs started.

The state rate also took a move upward to 6.6 percent, the Idaho Department of Employment reported.

The seasonally adjusted rate for Twin Falls, Jerome and Gooding counties increased 0.3 percent, compared to the September figure. State employment analyst Len McDonald, who is based in Twin Falls, said the labor force in the area dropped by 1,340 workers during October.

"This usually happens about this time of the year," he said. "This is caused by some individuals only wishing to work part of the year and dropping out of the labor force as winter approaches."

Part of the losses in labor force came as food processing plants, like the Green Giant Co.'s frozen corn plant at Buhl, ended their campaigns.

The total labor force affects the unemployment rate because, as the labor force shrinks, fewer numbers of unemployed people make a bigger difference.

McDonald also reported that October was a very active month for hiring. The hiring was so brisk that the actual number of people unemployed was 1,771, only 23 more than in September, he said.

The Magic Valley figures caused Cermak to also show 34,416 people on the job.

At 6.1 percent, the Magic Valley's unemployment still is substantially below the 7.3 percent recorded a year ago.

"The increase from September to October, while not large, is more significant when you consider that we've had an increase of a full half-percent since August, said department spokesman Randy Furness.

The 6.6 percent Idaho rate translates to 27,800 people out of work, the largest number for any month this year. Meanwhile, the unemployment rate because, as

Police investigate rape of Ketchum woman

KETCHUM — Ketchum police are investigating the rape of a woman at her apartment on Nov. 30.

Patrolman Gary Compton says the woman was alone in her northwest Ketchum apartment when she was attacked about midnight.

He said he was in an interview of the apartment through the front door unnoticed just before the attack. Although the woman was awake, she was unaware of the man until the attack, Compton says.

Investigators also are considering the possibility of the man hiding in the apartment and waiting for the woman to return home, he says, but they believe that to be unlikely.

The woman was not injured from the assault and called police about two hours after it happened. She was taken to Moritz Community Hospital in Sun Valley by friends for examination, he says.

Police were assisted by a member of Volunteers Against Violence in the investigation, Compton says.

"There are a couple of leads that we are looking to right now," he says. "There's a good chance we can get something out of this, but it will take a little time to work it out," he says.

Compton would not give the woman's age, he says, to protect her, but described her as a "young" but older than 18.

He said there was no damage to the apartment from the assault.

Willpower

to repeatedly test sobriety by drinking to see if that willpower is strong enough to withstand a force the alcohol has been avoiding.

The alcoholic has no power over how alcohol affects their body, Cermak described the non-recovering and recovering alcoholic by a parable of two men facing an ocean wave too large for either of them to stand up under.

The non-recovering alcoholic wastes a great deal of energy trying to resist the wave, which eventually bows him over, leaving him weakened when he begins to swim for the surface.

By contrast, the recovering alcoholic relaxes under the onslaught of the wave and when the power of it subsides, swims vigorously to the surface, Cermak said.

Cermak said the recovering alcoholic relies on willingness rather than willpower. "In recovery someone relies on willingness to explore control," he said.

Psyche-liners as many men as women are recovering alcoholics. This may be partially attributable to the difference in male and female personalities. "A man has to swallow more in the population to recover than a woman."

Alcoholism

Cermak said.

The co-dependent frequently has delusions that there is something he can "be, say, or do, to get the alcoholic to stop drinking."

A second symptom of co-dependency is compulsive behavior. The co-dependent may be compulsive about work, TV, sex, or eating, but they are "not very present to their self or to the feelings of others," Cermak said.

Co-dependents feel themselves "lost in a whirlpool" in the middle of conversation, but can carry on without letting anyone see the feelings of lost control they are having, said Cermak.

The third symptom Cermak described is the co-dependent's tendency to "freeze feelings."

The co-dependent expends so much energy "damming up" his feelings, the healing process never takes place until he learns to let go of feelings he has chosen to ignore.

Low self-esteem is the fourth symptom of co-dependency Cermak described. Because their self-esteem is tied to the success or failure of the alcoholic, co-dependents live in terror of losing the person to whom their sense of self-worth is tied.

The fifth symptom of co-dependency is increased medical complications, Cermak said. Close family members of alcoholics were found to use insurance benefits most-in-a-study-by-the-Kemper-

Insurance company, said Cermak.

Cermak observed co-dependency as a "distortion in relationships."

He said the treatment of co-dependency is the treatment of dysfunctional family systems that have a special charge, around willpower.

Co-dependents "see willpower as the royal road to self-esteem" and try fruitfully to use self-esteem to combat the problems of alcoholics and themselves.

Compulsive co-dependent behaviors may show up in eating disorders such as anorexia nervosa and bulimia, Cermak said children of alcoholics are disproportionately represented in the population of anorexics and sufferers of bulimia.

Winds cause area power outages

TWIN FALLS — The city's power Friday afternoon and evening due to high winds that also caused outages in sections of Twin Falls, Hagerman and Hansen.

The problems began about 3:30 p.m. in the Hagerman area, reported by Glenn Carter, city engineer.

Power, Co. substation supervisor Curt Stuart of Twin Falls. Savage winds knocked trees into wires and blew down poles, he said. Twenty poles were knocked down south of Milner.

A major transmission line in the Oakley area caused a blackout in the small community and surrounding area affecting about 800 customers at about 8:30 p.m., he said. Power was re-routed and the outage only lasted for about an hour.

Customers in Hagerman and Bliss were out of power for three hours due to the storm, Stuart reported. The storm shook an insulator off a pole and started a small fire, he said.

About 1,100 households lost power in the Twin Falls and Hansen area for various lengths of time.

With crews from Twin Falls, Gooding and the Mirdokka-Cassia area on the job, the power was restored to all areas affected by the storm by 9 p.m., Stuart said.

Mountain Bell to install laser cable lines

By TERRELL WILLIAMS
Times-News correspondent

WENDELL — The Wendell City Council recently gave permission for Mountain Bell to install a new laser telephone cable line in the city.

The project will mean that several streets will have to be dug up during the work.

The new line, called Fiber Optic Cable, has six glass hair-like fibers in a protective tube less than an inch in diameter.

According to Steve Guerber, a Mountain Bell Information Specialist in Boise, these fibers transmit messages by flashing lights instead of electrical impulses.

"Once the long distance system, the laser system, goes into effect, it will improve the quality of the long distance calls that come into and go out of Wendell — that are handled in Southern Idaho," Guerber explains, noting the new system also will have a greater capacity for calls.

The laser cable, being installed from Boise to Twin Falls, is now passing "Mountain Home" and will reach Wendell by early December, Guerber predicts.

A digging machine, which plows the cable four feet underground at about a half mile per hour, cuts easily through lava rock and will not be bothered by frozen ground, he says.

In Wendell, the laser beams will be boosted at the telephone office behind the post office building in the alley of Avenue A.

If the cable is accidentally cut, says the telephone representative, it can be quickly and easily spliced with special tools under a microscope. This is a relief from having to splice as many as 1,000 wires in some of the existing cables, he adds.

"Our goal is to locate the cable so it will run with all the other utilities that are underground," Guerber comments, "and it's pretty unlikely that you'll have somebody dig into a location in town where all of the utilities run."

FILER — A filer man was charged Wednesday with lewd conduct with a teenage boy over a three-year period.

According to a complaint filed with Fifth District Magistrate Court, Leon McGuire, 37, of Route 1, had sex with a 15-year-old boy between May 1980 and October 1984.

McGuire was being held in Twin Falls County Jail in lieu of $10,000 bond.

Nursing program is offered

TWIN FALLS — In January, the Practical Nursing Program at the College of Southern Idaho will again be offered in the fall term.

Karline Siplon, Nursing Department chairperson, said for a candidate to take part in the program, he will have to take anatomy and physiology and growth and development offered Monday and Wednesday from 6 to 9 p.m. beginning in January. Summer offerings include professional concepts and medical terminology.

After completing these courses and meeting admission criteria, students will be integrated into full-time program for both fall of 1985 and spring of 1986.

Students interested in the part-time program, who have not completed the pre-assessment testing and are enrolled in the part-time PN program, will be expected to complete this during June.

Anyone having more questions can contact Siplon at 733-9554, ext. 282 or Ann Ferrell at ext. 211.

Director canvassing begins

TWIN FALLS — Canvassers for the R.L. Polk-Twin Falls directory of businesses and residents will begin gathering information in Twin Falls this week.

During the next six to seven weeks, they will cover all residents and business areas in town.

Canvassers will carry identification cards supplied by R.L. Polk & Co.

A Polk Company press release says the publisher is being producing directories since 1870.

Pins found in kids' candy

JEROME — Jerome police are warning parents to inspect Halloween candy after three straight pins were found in candy bars by a family.

Carol Hornaday of 325 Fifth Ave. E. said she and her husband found the pins in small candy bars after they returned from trick or treating with their 4-year-old daughter and 7-year-old son.

"Another pin was found by officers after the Hornadays notified police, reported Police Chief Darryl Cameron. Police believe the candy with the pins was obtained in the 10th Avenue East area, he said.

Hornaday said the incident made her angry and "sick."

Cameron urged parents to closely inspect their children's Halloween candy. If they find anything or have any information about the tampered candy to contact police, he said.

Tampering with the candy can result in misdemeanor or felony charges where the maximum sentence is up to 10 years in prison, Cameron said.

There have been no other reports about similar incidents in Jerome or other Magic Valley counties.

Shoshone students set dance

SHOSHONE — The student council at Shoshone High School will sponsor a community appreciation dance at 8:30 tonight in the Lincoln Elementary School Auditorium.

Dance music will include country western, 50s style, popular music and modern music.

Admission prices are $3.50 for couples, $2 for singles and 50 cents for elementary students. Families will be admitted for $5.

Winds hit southwest Idaho

BOISE, Idaho (AP) — Winds gusting up to 60 mph knocked out power to thousands of southwestern Idaho residents Friday afternoon and prompted the National Weather Service to issue an advisory.

The winds were the product of a low-pressure system and the remains of typhoon "Vanessa," which recently assaulted the Pacific Coast, National Weather Service meteorologist Joe Tannanville said.

Idaho Power spokesman Larry Taylor said power outages that affected Boise and surrounding areas began between noon and 1 p.m., but most did not last longer than 2 1/2 hours.

Heavy winds that carried a piece of metal-backed plastic foam into a power line south of Boise ignited a fire that severed the power line, Taylor said. He said the burning plastic foam dropped to the ground and started a small grass fire.

Hall said all of the charges are unfounded. Burden has charged that she began training in April and received no pay until the end of May. Hall said this is true, because he had told her she could train but he had no money to pay for training for more than two hours than he had recommended.

Hall said the woman also violated another policy that is posted in the dispatch area. He said his staff members are not allowed to work if married or living with another employee.

He said his officers told him her relationship with J.R. Burns, a city officer with whom she worked, was causing talk and problems in the department.

numbers of workers with jobs dropped to 396,500, which is the lowest count since May 1983.

Department analysts said the rise in job openings was due to reductions in seasonal agricultural jobs and to layoffs in summer-related work, such as construction, recreation, hotels and restaurants.

The hardest hit region of the state remained in the Panhandle, where unemployment soared to 10.1 percent during October. Furness said figures obtained a few weeks ago showed "a dozen or so counties with double-digit unemployment in the central and northern parts of the state where lumber and wood products are the major factor in the economy."

Two economic trends are likely to affect employment in the months ahead. Drops in the prime interest rate could bode well for the housing construction and wood products industries. But weather could hurt employment in those sectors.

No gloom and doom for Rev. Haskell

Minister preaches optimism, urges voters to stand for 'right'

TWIN FALLS.—The Rev. Herald Haskell of the Community Christian Church of Twin Falls admits he may be somewhat of a party in these days when there is so much focus on "gloom and doom."

"I am an optimist, pure and simple," he says. He believes it is better to "stand for what is right" based on Bible morality, than to "stand against what is wrong," he says.

In more than 40 years in the ministry, Haskell says, he has always urged his congregations to vote, adding that, so often, when people don't feel they have any influence, it is because they haven't exercised this right and privilege granted by the Constitution.

Haskell says he doesn't like to see the church as a power bloc in public issues. "You can't legislate morality by but rather can you separate your Christian convictions from your life," he says.

The pastor is originally from Fresno, Calif., where he worked in a photography studio for five years after he finished high school. "I always thought I'd be a news photographer," he says. He now uses this facet of his training as an adjunct to his ministry.

He went on to Northwest Christian College in Eugene, Ore., at the same time taking liberal arts courses at the University of Oregon, and graduated with his bachelor's degree in theology from NCC.

The Haskell's were married in 1943, and he says, as a junior in college, he made the decision to go into the ministry when he and his wife opened a church in Garibaldi, Ore. which they had discovered boarded up and closed. After serving as a student preacher "in that little church" for nearly four years, Haskell became the first youth minister in Central Christian Church in Portland.

Following that, he attended seminary in Indianapolis, Ind., where, after six years, he received his bachelor's and master's of divinity degrees from the School of Religion-Butler University.

Haskell says both he and his wife taught at the university during their 16 years in Minnesota and he worked in radio there, as well as in Seattle and Eugene. He primarily did religious news, devotional programs, and panel discussions with questions and comments phoned in by the public.

This is Haskell's eighth year in Twin Falls; he says, as pastor of the church on Grandview Drive, which is not yet 10 years old. The church is preparing for a "Faith-Promise Rally," to be held Nov. 15-18, with Mont Smith, who pioneered mission work in Africa. Smith will speak and lead seminars throughout the three-day rally.

A "Faith promise," says Haskell, is not a pledge, but rather a willingness to share with others "above what you planned — any blessings that may come unexpectedly."

Pastors and their wives need an uplift too, he says. He and his wife recently returned from a Billy Graham crusade in Vancouver, B.C., which had seminars especially adapted to those in the ministry.

Bishop denounces cohabiting

By KAREN MILLS The Associated Press

ST. CLOUD, Minn. — Bishop George Speltz proudly displays a pile of letters "from all over the country" that support his stand against the practice of couples living together before they marry.

"I have received only two letters that were negative," said the 72-year-old bishop of the St. Cloud Diocese.

Couples living together and wanting a full Catholic marriage in one of the central Minnesota diocese's 147 parishes must "begin living separately immediately," Speltz said in a recent pastoral letter. He called cohabitation before marriage "immoral and a scandal to the community."

No other diocese in the United States has taken a similar step, according to a spokesman for the United States Catholic Conference, but in Bismarck, N.D., a parish pastor, the Rev. Thomas K. Kramer, announced that he would follow the same policy as Speltz.

Speltz said he issued his pastoral letter because priests in his diocese had been hearing from parents who were angry about the living together before marriage is against God's law and wanted more direction from church leaders.

In his letter, Speltz said cohabitation "calls into question fundamental moral values that have long been the sacred character of sex and of the Christian family."

Many pastors, he said, also wanted to avoid "what has been an embarrassing situation of couples moving from a life of cohabitation to the elaborate marriage in the Catholic

Bishop Speltz denies couples living together a full ceremony

Church. They feel there has been some hypocrisy about this.

Ten percent of the couples in the diocese — planning marriage live together beforehand, the bishop estimated.

Priests do not directly ask couples whether they are living together, but if they determine that is the case they may refuse a full Catholic wedding ceremony. Couples who refuse to comply may still be married in the church if the priest agrees, but the ceremony is to be open only to the witnesses and families, he said.

Speltz — and the Rev. Edwin Kraemer, 55, director of the diocese's Family Life Bureau, said they have no idea how many couples have admitted to living together since the pastoral letter was issued Sept. 14 to clearly the church's teaching on cohabitation and marriage.

"We're really not keeping statistics on this. We're doing it for the good of the people and we don't care about numbers," Kraemer said.

Several priests in the diocese said it was too early to evaluate the effect of the pastoral letter, because the marriages they are now performing were scheduled months ago and these couples went through the required three-month preparation before the letter was issued.

The Rev. Tom Lynch, a representative of the marriage and family department of the U.S. Catholic Conference in Washington, said that in his knowledge, no other diocese in the country has taken such a step in dealing with the issue of cohabitation before marriage.

A minority of people in the St. Cloud area, which has large universities, is predominantly white collar, do not approve of the bishop's cohabitation policy, according to an Oct. 3 poll by the St. Cloud Daily Times.

Candidates make final pitch

By The Associated Press

Heading into the last weekend of the 1984 Idaho political campaign, some groups and candidates launched last-minute efforts to sway voters.

Democrat Bill Hellar, running against Rep. Larry Craig, told a Boise news conference that Craig has allowed a tie to be leveraged against an Owyhee County hazardous waste disposal firm to be cut sharply, "without protecting the interests of Idaho citizens."

And Idaho retailers, who had kept quiet for months about the initiative to remove sales tax from groceries, launched an attack against it, four days before the election.

Spokesmen for the Idaho Retailers' Association said they now feel there's a "slight probability" the proposal will be defeated. Most state political leaders have been predicting since the initiative started that it would pass easily.

Storeroowners feel it will be "costly and disruptive" if stores have to decide which items are not subject to sales tax.

J. Tim Brennan, president of the association, estimated that the state could lose up to $30 million in revenue if the initiative passes.

State tax officials have estimated the loss much lower, perhaps as little as $10 million in general tax revenue. Some of the money from sales taxes goes to the cities and counties, and organizations for those agencies also oppose the initiative.

A representative of one employee group attended the retailers' news conference and used the occasion to express support for the initiative.

Steve Hamilton, spokesman for Boise union firefighters, said the fire fighters feel the initiative will be fair and equitable.

Retailers haven't worked against the initiative earlier. Brennan said his organization always has opposed it, but made "no aggressive efforts" to defeat the proposal.

But now, he said, "There is a slight probability it will be defeated" and the organization decided to spend more.

He said the tax loss could be at least 50 percent higher than the $20 million estimated by officials, and that will have to be made up with higher taxes in other areas.

Dennis Shaver, chairman of the board of directors of the association, said if the tax on groceries is repealed, it will be "disruptive" for retailers, especially small stores which do not have electronic registers or scanners.

Higher handling costs for retailers will be passed on to consumers, he said. "I doubt if there will be any savings," he said.

Shaver acknowledged that groceries are exempt from sales tax in 34 other states, but he said stores in those states have not escaped the problems.

"They are coping with the difficulty as we must do," he said.

Elsewhere in politics, the Idaho Employee Rights Campaign Committee has already spent more than $36,000 in a drive to influence the outcome of Tuesday's legislative elections.

Committee Treasurer Gary Glenn said the right-to-work forces in the state planned to pump another $23,000 into races before polls open Tuesday.

Although right-to-work legislation, banning mandatory union membership, has not been a central issue in Idaho this year, its backers have been pressing for a 1985 Legislature with enough Republicans to override vetoes by Gov. John Evans.

Hellar said he has learned that the Environmental Protection Agency's Seattle office has agreed to settle a proposed $150,000 fine for $67,000. Enviro-safe operates an Owyhee County hazardous waste disposal site near Grand View. The fines were for violating federal and state laws on the handling and disposal of hazardous waste.

Hellar said that was the wrong way to go with a company with repeated violations of federal and state regulations. "We need to get tougher with them," said Hellar. He said $150,000 in fines last year didn't stop the company from violations.

Hellar said the fine settlement was reached in bargaining between Enviro-safe officials and the EPA, with no Idaho participation.

He said Craig should have made certain Idaho's interests were represented in the negotiations. Craig's office said he was in Portland, Ore., Friday afternoon, campaigning for an Oregon Republican, and could not be reached for comment on Hellar's statements.

If elected, Hellar said he would vote for more money for EPA to return the federal agency to effectiveness. He said Craig has voted against additional funding for EPA.

Hellar also criticized Craig for accepting a $500 campaign contribution on March 27 from Enviro-safe's parent corporation. The money was returned in May.

Evans sets trade trip

BOISE (AP) — Idaho's governor is headed out on another trade promotion trip, this time to Latin America.

The governor's office said Friday Evans will leave next Thursday on a 21-day trip to Peru, Bolivia, Argentina, Brazil and Panama, returning Nov. 29.

The announcement said participants will pay their expenses and no government funds will be used on the business and goodwill tour.

Evans has made similar trips this year to China, the Pacific Northwest and Southern California.

"South America is truly the new frontier of the Western Hemisphere," the governor said in a prepared statement.

He said relations with South American countries "rank in importance with our ties to Europe and Asia" but few people in the Pacific Northwest know much about those countries.

Busch announces he'll marry in Sun Valley

IDAHO FALLS (AP) — Legislative candidate Charlene McGrath and Sen. candidate Pete Busch have something besides Tuesday's election to anticipate. The two Democratic candidates will be married on Nov. 19, Busch's birthday.

It will be a marriage made in politics.

Miss McGrath, a Westside elementary teacher facing Marilyn Stanger for House seat B in District 82, first saw Busch at a Truman banquet in May and met him at a Fourth of July parade.

Their courtship between Busch, 50, and Miss McGrath, 40, will culminate in ceremonies at Sun Valley, a site chosen as "sort of no-man's land" between Busch's home in Lewiston and Miss McGrath's home in Swan Valley, she said.

Idaho Falls Presbyterian minister

Bill Evans will officiate at the ceremony. "Miss McGrath said it was Busch's politics that first attracted her. After hearing him speak, I thought at the time, 'What a remarkable individual.'"

"How does any of this fall into place?" I wondered. "It was one of the most serendipitous events in my life," Miss McGrath said.

Despite their campaign schedules, the two got together "as often as we could," she said.

The couple is waiting to see what happens on Tuesday before making any concrete plans about where to live. Busch, a retired U.S. Marine fighter pilot, can live anywhere in the state if he loses his underdog battle to U.S. Sen. James McClure, Miss McGrath said.

Her chances are generally seen as at least as good as his of winning, and she said the couple will live in Idaho Falls if he loses and she wins. "In the event I lose the election, then we could go anywhere we want to," she added.

Delegation gets rating from realtors

WASHINGTON (AP) — Three of the state's four Republican congressional delegation members have won high marks from the National Association of Realtors for their performance on housing and real estate issues since President Reagan took office four years ago.

The economic report card for the Idaho delegation, the Washington-based group rated Sen. Steve Symms and Congressman George Hansen and the members of Congress for their support on issues important to the industry.

Each received what the association said was an "A" grade.

Sen. James McClure, who is seeking re-election Tuesday along with Hansen and Craig, was given a "B" grade by the realtors. In addition to citing his positions on various government policies, the association noted that he voted against realtor interests on 45 percent of the real estate-related issues the Senate made decisions on between 1981 and this October.

The association, in issuing the delegation assessment, acknowledged that there is no completely acceptable method of assessing the performance of congressmen, and it said that its report card does not cover non-real estate-related issues or even all the industry votes that came before the House and Senate in the past four years.

Laffertys' cohort sentenced for aiding in woman's murder

PROVO, Utah (AP) — Ricky Martin-Knapp, one of four men charged with the slayings of Brenda Wright Lafferty and her infant daughter, was sentenced Friday to three consecutive terms of five years to life in prison.

Fourth District Judge J. Robert Bullock handed down the sentence, which was the result of a plea bargain with Knapp.

Knapp, 24, of Wichita, Kan., pleaded guilty to a reduced charge of second-degree murder and two counts of aggravated burglary in the murders of Mrs. Lafferty, 24, and her 15-month-old daughter, Erica.

The victims were found in their American Fork home July 24.

Knapp, Dan and Ron Lafferty and Charles Carnes originally were charged with two counts of first-degree murder, two counts of criminal conspiracy, and two counts of aggravated burglary.

Knapp and Carnes, 23, of Belen,

N.M., both agreed to testify for the state. Carnes pleaded guilty to two counts of criminal conspiracy and one count of aggravated robbery but has yet to be sentenced.

Knapp agreed to be sentenced before the state Adult Probation and Parole, Division's presentencing report had been submitted to Bullock.

However, the judge reserved the right to change the sentences to run concurrently once he receives the report, which is expected to be submitted in about two weeks.

Bullock said the report had been delayed because Knapp's previous criminal record is in his home state of Kansas.

He said a preliminary report showed Knapp had been on his own since the age of 13, and that he had served previous prison terms in Kansas.

Bullock did not say what convictions led to the previous prison terms.

Knapp earlier pleaded innocent to the count of first-degree murder and two counts of conspiracy to commit homicide. The prosecution agreed to drop those counts following the Laffertys' upcoming trial on the condition. Knapp testified against the brothers.

Knapp's attorney, Kent Willis, said he will petition the court to reconsider the sentence once the Adult Probation and Parole report has been submitted.

Prosecutors allege the Laffertys instigated the murder and a conspiracy to murder two other American Fork residents, Mormon Church stake president Richard Stowe and local Mormon Relief Society president Chloë Law.

Their names appear along with Brenda and Erica Lafferty in a hand-written "revelation" which Ron Lafferty said he received from God, directing him to "remove" all four.

After the brothers released a copy of the document to a local newspaper, Bullock decided not to allow them to represent themselves in court and appointed two public defenders. However, both lawyers since have asked permission to withdraw from the case, saying the brothers refuse to be defended.

On Thursday, Sheriff's Lt. Jerry Scott also filed a petition requesting a second competency hearing for Lafferty in 4th District Court.

No date for the hearing has been set.

Gas Co. workers convicted

COBUR DALENE (AP) — Five Blue Flame Gas Co. personnel were found guilty of a total of 10 counts of grand theft and conspiracy Friday afternoon by a First District Court jury.

The five had been charged with tampering with meters and inflating customer invoices when delivering propane.

Chester Kaufman, the owner and self-described unofficial company adviser, and Manager Terry Corey were each found guilty of two counts of grand theft and one count of conspiracy.

Deputy Attorney General Randy Diemert was found guilty of one count of grand theft, but the jury was hung on one count of conspiracy. Driver Wade Edington was found guilty of two grand theft counts and one conspiracy count. The third driver charged, Chad Smith, was found guilty on four counts of grand theft and one count of conspiracy.

Peter Erbland, Kootenai County deputy prosecutor, said each count carries a maximum sentence of 14 years in prison and a fine of $5,000.

Sentencing has been set for Dec. 18 by Judge Dar Cogswell.

Siamese twin's state worsens

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — The condition of Patricia, one of Utah's separated Siamese twins, was downgraded from satisfactory to serious Friday after doctors discovered she was possibly suffering from meningitis.

"She has been running a high fever for the past 24 hours and the doctors suspect meningitis, though that has not been confirmed as yet and won't be until tests are completed," said University of Utah Medical Center spokesman John Dwan.

He said doctors would not be sure for two or three days if Patricia had meningitis, or if it is the bacterial form of the ailment.

Bacterial meningitis is an infection of the membranes surrounding the brain.

Her twin, Ashley, who had earlier weathered a bout with bacterial meningitis and responded favorably to treatment, remained in satisfactory condition.

Meinen to head state parks

MOSCOW (AP) — Deputy Parks Director Bob Meinen has been appointed director of the Idaho Department of Parks and Recreation.

The state Parks and Recreation Board elevated Meinen to the top administrative position at its quarterly meeting in Moscow Friday, filling the vacancy created this summer with the resignation of Director Dale Christiansen.

Christiansen left the department to pursue a doctoral degree at the University of Oregon, according to a spokesman.

Meinen, 35, named deputy director in 1979 two years after joining the department, pledged his efforts to improving the budget allocated for the state park system and working with tourism officials to enhance Idaho's economy overall.

Before coming to Idaho Meinen worked for the Nevada Parks and Recreation Department.

Statehouse tree honors King

BOISE (AP) — A tree will be planted outside Idaho's Statehouse today honoring Martin Luther King Jr.'s contributions to the civil rights movement.

Gov. John Evans last January signed a proclamation honoring King on the 35th anniversary of his birth. The Statehouse grounds were frozen, so the tree-planting ceremony was postponed.

A plaque will be placed near the tree, honoring King. Among those attending will be state Sen. Terry Williams of Utah and members of the Boise and Pocatello chapters of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

Boise airport obtains port

BOISE (AP) — Idaho has a new facility — a port of entry at the Boise Airport.

President Reagan has signed into law legislation sponsored by Rep. Larry Craig giving the city of Boise official port of entry status.

Craig said in a news release the port of entry designation will allow businesses operating in Idaho to cut costs, and the time required to import products into the state and clearing customs.

In the past, imports had to go through customs at Salt Lake City, Spokane or Great Falls, Craig said.

"Idaho was one of only two states in the nation that did not have a customs service at a major population center," said Craig.

Nampa man denied new trial

CALDWELL (AP) — Third District Judge Edward Lodge has refused to grant a new trial to a Nampa man under death sentence for the slaying of a 13-year-old girl.

Michael Shawn Scroggins, one of two men convicted of killing Mondie Lenzin, 13, in July of 1983, asked Lodge to order a new trial.

He contended he can prove that his accomplice, Alfred Ray Beam, lied about Scroggins' involvement in the girl's slaying.

Attorney Kenneth White, working for Scroggins, told Lodge in a Friday hearing here that in a letter allegedly written by Beam, Beam admits he lied about Scroggins' part in the crime.

White also produced a sworn statement from another death row inmate, Lacey Sivak, that Beam admitted to Sivak that he lied about Scroggins' involvement.

Jeff Jones, chief deputy prosecutor, contended a new trial would not change the verdict.

Feds refuse garage funds

NAMPA (AP) — Nampa city officials are looking into alternate ways to fund a proposed downtown garage, now that a federal agency has rejected a $1 million grant request.

City officials wanted to use the money from the federal Department of Housing and Urban Development to build a multilevel parking garage downtown. But Mayor Winston Goering said the city has been told that it will not receive the grant.

The mayor said the grants were based on economic need and depressed economies, and Nampa lost out to East Coast communities with relatively high unemployment.

City officials said they planned to go ahead with the project, and look for other funding sources.

Man killed by falling log

CASCADE (AP) — An elderly Boise man was killed Thursday when a log-pile restraint failed and a log slipped from the pile, crashing into his chest. Valley County authorities reported.

The victim was identified as John Kelly, 68. The accident occurred about 12 miles south of Cascade in the Tripod Snowbank area.

Guard says Ron Lafferty attacked him

PROVO, Utah (AP) — The commander of the Utah County Jail has filed a complaint, alleging he was assaulted by one of two brothers being held on capital murder charges in the slaying deaths of their sister-in-law and her baby.

Sheriff's Lt. Jerry Scott filed a petition Thursday requesting a second competency hearing for Ron Lafferty in 4th District Court.

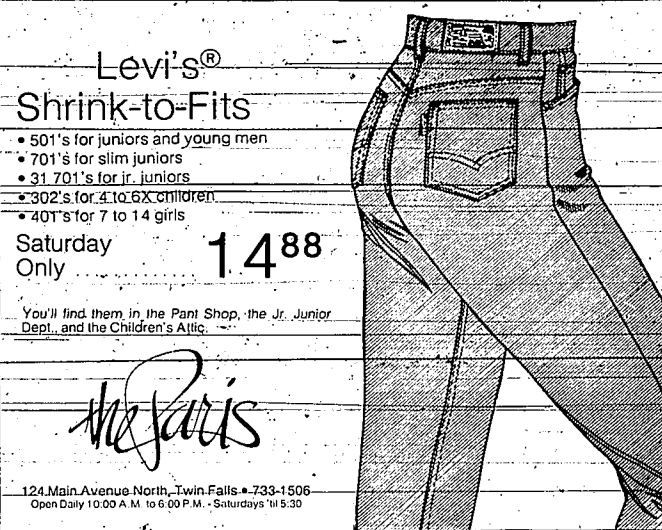

Ron's brother Dan is not named in the document signed by Scott, who claims that during a conversation with Ron Oct. 25, the inmate "physically attacked me without provocation on my part. He appeared to become irrational and was physically out of control and did not appear to be mentally in control of his faculties."

No date for the hearing has been set.

In addition to the attack on Scott, the petition claims Ron Lafferty assaulted another jailer, Deputy Casey Thacker, while being moved from a holding cell later that afternoon.

Sources told The Salt Lake Tribune after that incident that Dan Lafferty later "exercised an evil spirit" from his brother.

Both Laffertys have already been found legally competent to proceed with the trial and to act as their own attorneys.

Bruins win finale

BLACKFOOT — Some key defensive plays by Mark Lee and a late fumble recovery by Jayce Sudweeks allowed the Twin Falls Bruins to outlast Blackfoot 27-26 in a rain-wind- and mud-splattered season finale Friday night.

Lee-batted-a-tee-two-passes-and-pounced on a fumble that provided Twin Falls' winning points in the second half and Sudweeks' fumble recovery snuffed out Blackfoot's last chance to pull out the victory.

The Bruins, despite getting a career-best running effort from Jim Lutes, couldn't put the Broncos away earlier in the game because of running back Troy Simpson. He picked up 182 yards on the treacherous surface and scored on runs of two, 54 and 32 yards.

Lutes did most of his damage in the first half when he scored on 107 yards in seven carries, kicking on a 34-yard ramble and setting up another with a 32-yard run. But he was injured just before halftime and didn't return. Earlier, Jeff Lambert, the Gem State conference's second-best rusher, came up with a hip-pointer on his second carry and had to leave. He had 17 yards in two tries. In the second half, Coach Bill Jones went largely with juniors Jeff Malina and Casey Bartholomew in the backfield. They combined with Jon Sander to get critical first downs that allowed Twin Falls to run the last two one-half minutes off the clock.

The victory pulled Twin Falls into a break-even season while Blackfoot wound up at 3-7.

Jones said he credited most of the season to "our three or four offensive linemen and four or five offensive linemen. That's all we had for the entire season and these young men did a heck of a job."

"There wasn't a lot of defense in the opening 15 minutes as the teams rolled up and down the field and wound up tied at it.

Twin Falls started it on its second possession when Sander return a punt to the Blackfoot 34 and Lutes took it across on the next play. The point-after kick was blocked.

Then as the tide increased and the rain turned into a downpour, Blackfoot came back with a 67-yard, 10-play drive that a two-yard pass from Brandon Bird to Simpson completed. The point-after kick was wide.

"Another good Sander return pointed Twin Falls to its second touchdown. Starting from its own 46, Twin Falls moved to the Blackfoot 37 in three plays before Lutes broke up the middle to put the ball on the two. Doug Eberhart snatched over from there and then threw to Lutes for the

Tigers meet Beavers in playoff test

By CHRIS HAFT
Times-News writer

POCATELLO — In at least one sense, tonight's American Falls Jerome state A-2 football playoff quarterfinal at the ISU Mindome is a classic confrontation.

Much of the drama should unfold when Jerome has the ball and the Beavers are trying to prevent its advancement.

American Falls, 9-0 and rated third in the state, has built its success with defense, a strength embodied in ends Bud Behring and Mike Espinola and linebackers Shawn Hamilton and Scott Wright.

"The thing I remember most about American Falls is their defense — it seemed like it would bend but it wouldn't break," acknowledged Coach Ron Wakley of Marsh Valley, which lost both American Falls and Jerome during the regular season. "Their defensive ends are just outstanding ball players."

Fifth-ranked Jerome, of course, is known for its slick offense, which quarterback Shane Jund will receive Todd Amundson and running back Tracy Black spearheaded throughout a 7-2 campaign.

"Judging by what we've seen, Jerome will have a very good day passing, and then they've got the Black kid who runs the ball very well," said Coach Keith Metzner of Buhl, which also fell to both the Beavers and Tigers. "American Falls keyed on (Buhl) running back Darren Howard and didn't play pass defense. I think Jerome should have a very, very good shot. American Falls is bigger and maybe a little more physical, but when you can pass, you have more chances of cutting back and scoring a lot quicker."

American Falls Coach Gary Garland is well aware of that.

"We've been more successful (defending) the run; that's why this game presents a real problem for us," he said, considering Jund's 1,511 yards passing and Amundson's 800-plus yards receiving. "We'll try and pressure Jund, but they do a really good job of protecting him. So we'll put some pressure on him but we're not going to rely on that as a final solution. We'll have to play pretty good defense in the secondary."

The Beavers' defense is a formidable one. Besides fanning five shutouts, American Falls held opponents to just one touchdown in two games and only two scores in

Jerome's Jon Jund especially respects Hamilton, a 6-1, 180-pound senior. "I would say he's as impressive a linebacker as we've seen this year," the Tigers' fourth-year coach said. "I'd put him in a class with (Todd) McLaughlin of Twin Falls — a big, strong kid, a good blocker."

Obviously, the Tigers aren't about to back down from American Falls' 50-based (five-man front) alignments. "If they stay in a 5-2 we feel we'll be able to throw the football; so we're able to throw it," Coach Jund said.

Flooding the field with receivers might not be necessary for Jerome; the Shane Jund-to-Amundson combination could be enough. "We feel nobody can afford not to double-cover him," Coach Jund said. "If they have to double-cover Todd, it enhances our running game and our other receivers."

But Jund wouldn't mind if the Beavers switch to a different formation. It might allow Jerome to liberate Black, who amassed 1,019 yards this year.

"If they move to a 4-3, that's really helped us, because that's not their base defense and we've forced them to use something different," Jund said. "In the 4-3 they're susceptible to the quick trapping game which we have tremendous success with."

An element which Coach Jund believes has assisted Jerome is the Mindome's Astroturf surface. Not only will the ersatz turf help the shifty Black make sharper cuts, but Jund noted that the well-marked field should ease the task of running timing routes for Tiger receivers.

Not can American Falls' offense, which scored 35 points or more five times this season, be overlooked. "They're basically a power team," Buhl's Metzner recalled. "They're going to come right at you. They did a good success with the big fullback (Wright, a 5-8, 175-pound junior), the power sweep and the toss."

Other offensive weapons include tailback Justin Kietel and quarterbacks Kirk Thomson and Robert Eames, who divide signal-calling duties. "Eames usually runs the option a little better; Thomson is

Samaranch disdains threats of boycott

ROME (AP) — Boycott threats by the International Olympic Committee into moving the 1988 Summer Games from Seoul, South Korea, IOC president Juan Antonio Samaranch said in reports published Friday.

"We will go to Seoul, just as we did to Moscow and Los Angeles," Samaranch told two major Rome newspapers, Il Messaggero and Il Tempo, during an interview Thursday in Lausanne, Switzerland.

"The IOC has signed a contract with Korea organizers and the contract cannot be nullified for any reason," Samaranch said.

"The only possibility (of a switch) is in the hands of the Koreans. If they say that they do not want or cannot organize the Games, then we would have to find an alternative. But I don't think this will happen. I just don't think so," he said.

Samaranch made the statement when asked to comment on a campaign led by an Italian IOC member for a "more neutral" site for the 1988 Games — an avoid-boycott similar to the one that marred both the 1980 Moscow Olympics and this year's Games in Los Angeles.

Flutie gets another chance to rip Penn State

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
The Associated Press

Doug Flutie is closing in on major college football's total offense record and closing out his career against Penn State — which probably makes him happy and a little sad at the same time.

Boston College's diminutive passing star needs only 142 yards by land or by air when the ninth-ranked Eagles visit Penn State today to break the mark of 9,723 held by former Brigham Young quarterback Jim McMahon.

Despite Flutie's heroics against the Nittany Lions the past two seasons, the career passing yardage record will have to wait a few more weeks. The 5-foot-9 senior has thrown for 8,837 yards but still trails Purdue's Mark Herrmann (9,188), Stanford's

John Elway (9,349), McMahon (9,536) and Duke's Ben Bennett (9,614).

If Flutie could have faced Penn State every week, he might have broken both records as a freshman. In 1982, he riddled the Nittany Lions for 153 yards through the air. Last year, he settled for 380 as Boston College beat Penn State for the first time in their 12-game series.

In fact, Flutie began his career in the fourth quarter of the 1981 Penn State game, hitting 8 of 18 passes for 153 yards and a touchdown.

"When you're with Doug for three years and you practice with him and play with him, nothing's amazing any more," said without Gerard Phelan, Flutie's favorite receiver. "You thank God he came to Boston College and he's part of our team."

while runner-up Texas visits Texas Tech and No. 3 Nebraska is at Iowa State.

Fourth-ranked Brigham Young is home against Texas-El Paso, No. 5 South Carolina is at North Carolina State, sixth-ranked Wake Forest is at Louisville, No. 7 Oklahoma State is at Kansas State, No. 8 Virginia Tech entertains Memphis State, and No. 10 Oklahoma is home against Missouri.

In the only pairing of Associated Press Top Twenty teams, No. 11 Auburn visits No. 13 Florida.

Houston.

Boston College has struggled since a three-week layoff, rallying to beat Temple, losing to West Virginia and holding off Rutgers 35-23 last week.

"Rutgers was a game we had to win and we did play very tough to get it," Coach Jack Bicknell. "For the most part, I was pleased with our offensive effort."

"Penn State is coming off a difficult loss (17-14 to West Virginia). I can guarantee you they will be ready to play and we can't play very tough to do an exceptional tailback and they've got a whole team of talented and physical players. On top of this, they are always tough in their home stadium. What else can I say?"

Meanwhile, Washington winds up its home week. D. I. Dexter is a truly exceptional tailback and Washington faces Southern Cal and Washington

CSI's talented Chicago Connection back for alumni event

TWIN FALLS — When the plane stopped and disgorged its passengers at Twin Falls airport Friday afternoon, a lot of College of Southern Idaho basketball nostalgia and history stepped off.

It was a major part of the CSI-Chicago connection. Tom Bush, a member of CSI's second intercollegiate team and its first first-team all-American; Albert Davis, Bush's cousin, an NBA draftee, a pro in the European league and the reigning sophomore on the first CSI team that made it to Hutchinson; and Andre Wakefield, very probably the best defensive player in English history, an NBA draftee and player and the glue of the school's first national championship team.

They form the outside corps of the two teams that will square off in CSI's first alumni basketball game tonight at the school gymnasium. The men's game starts at 7 p.m. and the men's game starting at 8:30 to 8:45 p.m.

As the forerunner of the Chicago Eagles, Bush was a vastly different looking individual than when he first hit ground at the local airport.

At that time he was an 18-year-old black from the inner city who wasn't sure just what he was getting into by coming to an all-white community. It was during the height of the "protest" days on campuses when no one was happy with anyone else and the word "militant" was pervasive in the land.

Bush has admitted the difference would be similar to changing planets and that it took him a while to understand what he was seeing and hearing but his experience helped him prepare Davis for the same thing.

By the time Wakefield made his way to CSI, things had simmered to a point where most understood that blacks and whites could get along and Wakefield's appearance was very similar to that of any basketball player who enters a college — a hopeful look to the future. In his two years here, he and the Eagles lost just four times — one of them in the national finals.

"I'm glad I came here," said Bush Friday. "It was a great place for me at that time of my life. I learned a lot of things here."

"But I'm stunned, amazed," he said after giving the CSI gymnasium an inspection. "I was just in the lockerroom and there's no graffiti on the walls or the lockers. It isn't like that in Chicago," he added with a laugh.

The three look like they will give a good account of themselves in tonight's game. All are slim and trim looking.

"I've been working out with our team," said Wakefield, who is an assistant at Loyola of Chicago. "And Davis and I have played together the last couple of summers in the pro league in Chicago. I've gone to a couple of pro-ams (where he was paired with NBA players). The only one who hasn't been working out is Tom."

That drew a loud protest from Bush. "I haven't been running but I've been jogging. I'll give an account of myself out there tomorrow night," he said.

"I just hope no one else to steal the ball from Tom," Wakefield added with a laugh. "He's got a patented move that guarantees a broken jaw of you try."

"Sure," Bush laughed back. "I lead with the elbow."

"I don't care about all that stuff," interrupted CSI Coach Fred Trenkle who was a teammate of Bush. "I want to know when you guys are going to send me some big players out of Chicago."

"I'll talk to them," Bush immediately answered. "But it isn't like it was. They don't want to leave anymore."

Claude Rasmussen, Minico's first contribution to CSI, dropped in for an early visit and along with Trenkle the "house" days stories started to roll.

"The house was a lot better than the dorms they have now," said Davis. "I've acknowledged that the home cooking — enough for a small army — of a house mother beat cafeteria food all hollow. We just kept bringing it out of the kitchen and we just kept eating," he laughed.

"Remember the night Nate Stevens beat up on Maurice Moe?" he joined the other conversation. "He knocked him down on the floor, then put his hands on the ceiling and started stomping him."

After a while there wasn't anything serious to worry about.

But it was kinda interesting seeing the difference of this visit to Twin Falls for those three — but more particularly Bush and Davis.

"I've been around the world now," said Davis. "I've seen a lot of things and I do. And it showed."

And even if everyone who ever saw any of the three play in the old days show up at the CSI gym tonight, the guarantee is none will have as much fun as the players.

76ers' Cunningham earns 400th win

By The Associated Press

The Philadelphia 76ers gave Coach Billy Cunningham his 400th National Basketball Association victory Friday night, but not without a last quarter scramble to stop a scrappy Dallas comeback attempt.

"I thought for the first 2 1/2 periods we played outstanding basketball," Cunningham said after the 76ers' 107-103 victory at Philadelphia. "Then Dallas started hitting their outside shots. I think we probably should have been more patient on offense."

Byt in the end, the Mavericks couldn't tie it up. Mark Aguirre, who led all scorers with 30 points, missed a three-point field goal attempt with seven seconds left to end the Dallas attack.

"I thought Mark took it too soon, and we could have run options other than that," said Dallas Coach Dick Motta. "We also missed two free throws at the end that just killed it for us."

As for his 400th victory, Cunningham said: "I can't believe I've lasted this long."

"It will just say that I have been fortunate to one, stay in one city for so many years, and secondly, to be involved with such classy players."

When you're coaching great players such as these guys, if you just stay around long enough, the wins will come. Cunningham recorded his 400th victory in 572 games, faster than any other coach. Former Celtics Coach Tom Heinsohn reached 400 wins in 630 games.

Julius Erving called Cunningham a "neighbor and friend."

"I figured I might as well stay with him until he gets 500 — then he's on his own," said Erving, whose final free throw gave him 24 points and ended the scoring.

33-point third period to victory.

Kevin McHale added 21 points and Robert Parish 20 for the Celtics, who spoiled a 33-point performance by Detroit's Isiah Thomas.

Johnson scored 13 points, McHale and Bird 8 as the Celtics opened a 98-88 lead in the third period. Boston controlled the boards 17-7 in rebounds in the decisive quarter.

Baskets by McHale and Johnson increased Boston's lead by 14 points at the outset of the fourth period.

However, the Pistons, beaten at home 130-123 by the Celtics in the season opener, rallied to close within 2 points, 105-107 with four minutes remaining.

Johnson then made two free throws and Bill Laimbeer converted one for Detroit. Bird then took charge, scoring Boston's next 10 points to pull the Celtics out of danger.

Lakers 119, Spurs 100
At Los Angeles, Mike McGee's 21 points off the bench paced the Lakers.

The Lakers jumped out to a 35-10 lead after one quarter and opened up a 68-48 lead by halftime. The Lakers widened their lead to 31 points in the final seconds of the third quarter and took a 97-88 edge into the final period.

The victory was the Lakers' second at home against first place San Antonio, which opened night loss in San Antonio.

Forward James Worthy, starting for the first time this year, added 17 points for the Lakers, 13 of which came in the first half, and Kareem Abdul-Jabbar and Ervin "Magic" Johnson each added 16 points. Johnson also contributed 11 assists and seven rebounds, while guard Byron Scott chipped in 14 points.

Bucks 102, Bullets 95
At Landover, Md., Terry Cummings scored 25 points and Sidney Moncrief added 21 to lead Milwaukee.

It was the Bucks' ninth victory in the last 10 outings against the Bullets and second in three nights. Milwaukee took the lead early and never trailed after Moncrief's three-point basket gave the Bucks a 74 edge.

Moncrief scored five of his 13 first-quarter points during a 9-0 Milwaukee spurt that enabled the Bucks to take a 27-16 lead into the second period.

The margin reached 55-36 at halftime, but the Bullets' Gus Williams scored 10 of his game-high 37 points in the third quarter to help Washington close the deficit to 75-70 entering the final period.

The Bullets stayed close throughout the fourth quarter, but Mike Dunleavy's three-point play with 5:46 remaining gave Milwaukee a 92-84 lead. Washington never cut the gap below four points the rest of the way.

Pacers 116, Cavaliers 109
At Richfield, Ohio, Herb Williams scored 21 points and rookie Vern Fleming contributed 19 as Indiana broke open a close game early in the fourth quarter.

With the game tied 85-85, Williams made a layup with 10:38 remaining to put the Pacers up 87-85 and start an 11-0 Indiana run. Jim Thomas had four points during the outburst, and Tony Brown tossed in three.

The Pacers maintained at least an eight-point lead the rest of the game until the Cavaliers spurred to pull within seven on their final basket by Johnny Davis.

Indiana, 1-2, got 16 points from rookie Devin Durrant, 15 from Thomas and 14 from Jerry Sichting to give first-year Coach George Irvine his first NBA victory.

Jets must pressure Marino for shot at beating Dolphins

By The Associated Press

Mark Gastineau, the National Football League's sack leader, knows how the New York Jets can end unbeaten Miami's winning streak Sunday.

San Francisco, Tampa Bay at Minnesota, San Diego at Indianapolis, Philadelphia at Detroit, the New York Giants at Dallas, Houston at Pittsburgh, Green Bay at New Orleans, and Cleveland at Buffalo.

Chicago, the National Conference Central leader with a 6-3 mark, hasn't been able to beat some of the tougher teams (St. Louis, Dallas, Seattle) and will be tested against the Raiders, 7-2, and the Broncos, 7-2, after an overtime loss to Denver. The Raiders are expected to take to the air because of the Bears' rugged defense against the rush.

Seattle, 7-2, has won three straight and leads the American Conference in sacks with 38. Quarterback Bill Kenney is back on target for Kansas City, 5-4, but the Chiefs have lacked a strong running game.

San Francisco, the NFC West leader with an 8-1 record, has a potent offense but can't take the 3-6 Bengals lightly because of the Ken Anderson-Cris Collinsworth passing combination.

Colts-related suits to be consolidated

BALTIMORE (AP) — A federal judge decided Friday to consolidate a civil rights suit filed by Colts owner Robert Irsay against Baltimore with the city's suit to reclaim the National League Football team through eminent domain.

The suit, which now names the city and Mayor William Donald Schafer, alleges the city's suit has interfered with the owner's ability to make contracts and with a constitutional right to relocate the team.

The essence is they (the Colts) had to litigate the condemnation case, but that is not a violation of (due process) rights, said J. Shawn Alcarese, lawyer representing the city.

Alcarese told the judge that despite allegations by Colts attorneys that the team would be deprived, the lawyers were not specific enough in their plea.

a little better passer," Gardner said.

Passing, in fact, is what concerns Coach Jund most. Fehringer, who doubles as a tight end, has been effective as a receiver over the middle. "We haven't seen that in quite a while," Jund said. "It forces us out of our 4-4 defense, and I think most people who have seen us play realize that we've been known to give up the inside . . . that forces our corners into a one-on-one situation."

Both Mietzner and Wakley called tonight's match even, adding that the kicking game could make the difference. Wakley judged American Falls a better punting team than Jerome, with the Tigers and placekicker Amundson getting the nod in the realm of kickoffs, conversions and field goals.

Mietzner also said that American Falls could be vulnerable in defending punt and kickoff returns. "We took a kickoff back, and we almost ran in a punt," he said, recalling the Beavers' 42-14 triumph. Noting that their game occurred in the season's third week, Mietzner admitted, "I'm sure they've worked on that."

Radio coverage for playoffs

All four high school football playoff games involving Magic Valley teams will be broadcast by area radio stations today.

This morning's Declo-Grangeville Class A-3 playoff game at Moscow will be broadcast by Rupert radio station KNAQ-FM, beginning at 11:30 a.m. At 2 p.m., Jerome radio station KART-FM will carry the Gooding-North Fremont game A-3 playoff game from Gooding.

At the same hour, Burley station KBAQ-AM will broadcast the A-4 semifinal game between Oakley and Marsing at 2 p.m. from Burley. The first-round A-2 playoff game between Jerome and American Falls, which will be played in the ISU Midlondie in Pocatello, will be broadcast by Jerome radio station KART-AM. Scheduled broadcast time is 7:45 a.m., but because of the Jerome-American Falls contest is the third game of a high school football triple-header, it may not start until later.

Dorsett's dad suffers stroke

ALBUQUERQUE, Pa. (AP) — West Dorsett, the father of Dallas Cowboys running back Tony Dorsett, was hospitalized in critical condition Friday after suffering a massive stroke, according to hospital officials.

"He's very poor, very poor," said Regina Sluka, a nursing supervisor at Alliquippa Hospital.

West Dorsett, 60, a steelworker from this southwestern Pennsylvania milltown north of Pittsburgh, was rushed to the hospital at about 9:30 a.m. Friday, according to Ms. Sluka.

Also at the hospital were West Dorsett's wife, Myrtle, and their other children.

"Tony was pretty upset," running back said.

Cowboys Coach Tom Landry said young Dorsett had booked a Saturday night flight back to Dallas but it was

That came with 35 seconds left in the period and the second quarter was only 65 seconds old when Blackfoot tied it again. Simpson edged off his

The teams then traded punts before Twin Falls went for its final lead.

Lutes uncorked a 20-yarder while Malina added 22 on two carries to put the ball on the Blackfoot 27.

The Bruins then went to Bartholomew for three straight carries, the junior punting it across from the 13. Troy Luich converted.

Blackfoot started the second half with an intercept at the 52 and marched into a strong wind, completing one 23-yard pass to set up a two-yard scoring plunge by Bryan Watson.

But the kick was blown aside, leaving the Bruins on top 21-20.

A 39-yard romp by Bartholomew came in the first half as the Bruins period and he banged to the four on the next play as Twin Falls threatened to move away. A fumble stymied that on the next play, but in trying to drive out, Blackfoot fumbled and Lee made his recovery on the 34. Four plays later, that Malina scored from the two but again the kick failed, leaving the Bruins vulnerable to the two-point conversion.

Washington Coach Don James

"He certainly has the ability to spark an offense. I understand he was dressed for the USC game so, with a week's rest, I expect we'll see him."

The Huskies will have a new starting quarterback — Paul Sicuro replacing Hugh Millen, who fumbled twice and was intercepted three times in the first half against Arizona last week.

"Nobody believes it, but we look at the remaining season as an opportunity to win three football games," said California Coach Joe Kapp.

DAN MARINO Focus of Jets' attention

Jets must pressure Marino for shot at beating Dolphins

By The Associated Press

Mark Gastineau, the National Football League's sack leader, knows how the New York Jets can end unbeaten Miami's winning streak Sunday.

"We have to put Dan Marino on his heels," said the Jets' defensive end. "The coach said that done so far this season."

The Dolphins' brilliant quarterback, has been sacked only three times in nine games and is the league's top-rated passer with 27 touchdowns.

"People say he's the No. 1 quarterback in the NFL and one of the best that's ever been and they're right," said Gastineau. "We've got to be aware that we've got to apply pressure."

The Jets, who have lost their last five meetings with Miami, are 6-3 and will have running back Freeman McNeil and wide receivers Wesley Walker and Lam Jones set for the home game.

Other key NFL contests Sunday include the Los Angeles Raiders at Chicago and New England at Denver.

In other Sunday games, it's the Los Angeles Rams at St. Louis, Kansas City at Seattle, Cincinnati at San Francisco, Tampa Bay at Minnesota, San Diego at Indianapolis, Philadelphia at Detroit, the New York Giants at Dallas, Houston at Pittsburgh, Green Bay at New Orleans, and Cleveland at Buffalo.

Atlanta-Victoria Washington Monday night. The National Conference Central leader with a 6-3 mark, hasn't been able to beat some of the tougher teams (St. Louis, Dallas, Seattle) and will be tested against the Raiders, 7-2, trying to bounce back after an overtime loss to Denver.

The Raiders are expected to take to the air because of the Bears' rugged defense against the rush.

New England, 6-3, runs into a hot Denver club, 8-1 and winner of seven in a row. Patriots' quarterback Tom Eason, who has thrown only two interceptions this year, faces a defense which leads the league in interceptions with 24. John Elway is expected to return at quarterback for the Broncos.

St. Louis, 6-3, winner of four straight, has a potent passing attack with quarterback Neil Lomax and receiver Roy Green, and a strong running game with Otis Anderson and Stump Mitchell. Eric Dickerson needs 51 yards to reach the 1,000-yard mark for the 5-4 Rams.

Seattle, 7-2, has won three straight and leads the American Conference in sacks with 38. Quarterback Bill Kenney is back on target for Kansas City, 5-4, but the Chiefs have lacked a strong running game.

San Francisco, the NFC West leader with an 8-1 record, has a potent offense but can't take the 4-5 Bengals lightly "because of the Ken Anderson-Cris Collinsworth passing combination."

Tampa Bay, 6-3, is three in a row, Minnesota has dropped five straight. The Buccaneers beat the Vikings in an earlier meeting 35-31.

Blanked last Monday night by Seattle, San Diego, 4-5, tries to rebound against 3-6 Indianapolis. San Diego quarterback Dan Fouts is expected to ride the Colts' secondary with passes, while Indianapolis relies on its ground game.

Both Philadelphia, 4-5, and Detroit, 3-6, are coming off losses. Eagles' running back Wilbert Montgomery is questionable because of a hamstring pull.

The Giants beat Dallas in their first meeting this season, but haven't swept the Cowboys since 1963. New York, 5-4, comes off an impressive victory over Washington.

Colts-related suits to be consolidated

BALTIMORE (AP) — A federal judge decided Friday to consolidate a civil rights suit filed by Colts owner Robert Irsay against Baltimore with the city's suit to reclaim the National League Football team through eminent domain.

U.S. District Judge Walter Black granted a motion brought by Colts' attorney Black consolidated the two suits, but said the two suits could be separated again when they come to trial.

The suit, which now names the city and Mayor William Donald Schaefer, alleges the city's suit has interfered with the owner's ability to make contracts and with a constitutional right to relocate the team.

The suit also contends the city has interfered with the Colts' right to travel from state to state and alleges a conspiracy on the part of the mayor and the City Council in "passing legislation to condemn and reclaim the team."

The essence is they (the Colts) had to litigate an condemnation case, but that is not a violation of (due process) rights," said Justice Alacresse, a lawyer representing the Colts.

Alacresse told the judge that despite allegations by Colts attorneys that the team would be deprived, the lawyers were not specific enough in their plea.

Max Truitt Jr., a Colts attorney, told Black that the City Council and the mayor knew when they passed legislation to condemn the team that "they were acting beyond their authority" because the team had already moved to Indianapolis.

At least one TV network turns down USFL

NEW YORK (AP) — NBC said Friday it was not interested in televising United States Football League games for the 1986 season, when the league said it will move from a spring to a fall schedule.

The network confirmed its position on the 1986 season in response to a Washington Post story which said both NBC and ABC had informed the USFL of their disinterest in broadcasting games that year — the final year of the National Football League's current contract with the three major networks.

"Essentially, it's true," NBC spokesman Tom Merritt said when asked to comment on the story.

The networks had not made any announcement since the USFL filed a $32 billion antitrust suit against the NFL on Oct. 17. The suit sought the voiding of the NFL's contracts with the three major networks and charged that a "conspiracy" exists that is trying to force the 2-year-old league out of business.

CBS has not decided what it will do regarding 1986, but it is not likely to make a deal, according to the Post.

City lawyers told Black the Colts suit, which seeks relief under the 1983 federal Civil Rights Act, was a "non-specific, shot-gun type of approach."

Mark Carlson, a CBS spokesman, confirmed that the network was still reviewing a fall USFL package.

Mayor ignores Knight remark

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Mayor William Hudnut says the Pan American Games offer more than just athletics, despite Bobby Knight's criticism of the competition as "almost negligible."

Knight, the basketball coach at Indiana University who led the United States team to the championship in the 1979 Pan American Games at San Juan, Puerto Rico, said Wednesday that he doesn't consider the Games worthwhile and that the U.S. should not compete in them.

"He's entitled to his opinion," Hudnut said. "But it's important what this kind of event can do for Indianapolis. It's important that Bob Knight thinks it can do athletically."

Hudnut was to fly this weekend to Mexico City, where the Pan American Sports Organization will be meeting, to reinforce his city's bid to host the 1987 Pan American Games.

Hudnut said the Games promote a world unity, and would provide many advantages for Indianapolis.

U.S. women win golf event

HONG KONG (AP) — The United States won the World Women's Amateur golf championship Friday by 12 strokes over runner-up France to capture the Espirito Santo Trophy and finished 1-2-3 in the individual competition.

The American team of Debra Richard, Heather Farr and Jodie Rosenthal finished with a four-round total of 585.

France was at 597 and Britain-Ireland placed third at 600.

The Americans began the final round with an 11-stroke lead and increased it slightly as Farr shot a two-under-par 71 and Richard carded a 75.

Richard finished with a 295 total to 296 for Farr and 298 for Rosenthal, who tied for third with Claire Waite of the Britain-Ireland team.

Japan finished fourth at 607, followed by Brazil at 610 and Spain at 612.

Pontiac, fearing team's departure, sues to block transfer

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — The city of Pontiac, upset that the Michigan Panthers might merge with another United States Football League team and leave the state, hopes to recapture the Panthers with a court suit.

Circuit Court seeking a court order to block the transfer of team assets — specifically player contracts — to another state and to require the Panthers to play their games in the Pontiac Silverdome.

Attorneys for the team told Judge Hilda Gage Thursday that they would not transfer the franchise or its assets for at least another 24 hours.

The lawsuit apparently was prompted by reports that several mergers, including the Panthers, would be announced by the USFL Nov. 13.

Among the sites mentioned for the league are: Denver; New York; Indianapolis; Miami; Tampa Bay; Vancouver; Brooklyn, N.Y.; New Jersey; Washington, D.C.; New Orleans, and Mexico City.

Owners of the Denver franchise were described by Berney as "industrialists and a lawyer." One was identified as Jerry Cohen, a New York investor with a Denver back ground. He said the other two are from New York and New Orleans, and that the remaining owners would be announced Monday.

Under no circumstances is it our design or desire" to eventually join major league baseball, said Berney.

Competing league being planned

DENVER (AP) — An organizational meeting is scheduled for Monday in New York by prospective members of the North American Baseball League which plans to compete against major league baseball, the acting commissioner of the proposed league said.

Loon Berney, NABL acting commissioner, said in an interview from New York that the new league was being organized "out of a crying need," and if Monday's meeting goes as planned, the signing of 100-150 free agents and top college prospects could occur this month.

Some of them are the biggest names in baseball," Berney said in an interview with the Rocky Mountain News.

Easy Stockholm wins for McEnroe, Connors

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — Tossed John McEnroe and No. 2 seed Jimmy Connors, both of the United States, scored straight-set victories in third-round play Friday in the $315,000 Stockholm Open-Scandinavian Tennis Championships.

In advancing into the quarterfinals, McEnroe improved his 1984 record to 72-2 with a 6-1, 6-1 rout of Michiel Schapers, a 6-foot-7 qualifier from The Netherlands.

Schapers had a break point at 30-40 in the opening game of the match. But McEnroe hit three brilliant serves, including one ace, for the lead he needed to save two service breaks, until Schapers finally held to 1-4 in the second set.

THE ACES® BOBBY WOLFF

Dear Mr. Wolff:
We missed a cold five diamonds on this bidding.

North	South

West North East South
Pass 1♦ Pass 1♦
Pass 2 NT Pass 3♦

Close Call, Memphis, Tenn.

South claims his raise to three diamonds opposite a passed hand invited game and that North first accepted with four clubs but then scooped the bid over four diamonds. North claims that South's four diamonds was a sign-off. Who's right?

ANSWER: North's bidding shows a very good hand with only three-card support. I would not consider it forcing; however, with a five-card spade suit and useful minimal values, I would push on to the spade game.

Dear Mr. Wolff:
Partner opened one club, not vulnerable, and next player preempted in three clubs. After two passes, partner reopened with a double. What should I have bid with K-x-x, Q-9-8-x-x-x, x-x-x, x?

ANSWER: Partner has a good hand and obviously opened a short club suit. Three hearts is a "nothing" bid under the circumstances. I suggest a jump to four hearts.

Dear Mr. Wolff:
Partner opens one spade and I bid two diamonds. He bids two spades and I bid three hearts. Should my heart bid be interpreted as an attempt to get partner to bid no-trump, or should it show a suit and more diamonds than hearts?

Dear Mr. Wolff:
West opens one club and the next two players pass. It's a jump to two spades by the fourth player, a weak jump overall or does it show strength?

ANSWER: I would interpret it as the latter — a strong hand with more diamonds than hearts.

ANSWER: Weak jump overcalls are intended to interfere with the opponents' bidding. After RHO's pass, there's nothing to interfere with, the jump shows a good suit and good opening bid strength.

Dear Mr. Wolff:
Is this bidding sequence by North forcing on South? Both were vulnerable.

THE ACES®

BOBBY WOLFF

"Too bad that all the people who know how to run the country are busy driving, taxicabs and cutting hair."

— George Burns

Barbers and cab drivers have no problem beating today's game. Put yourself in the West chair and see if you can do as well.

Dummy wins the club lead and a trump is led to South's king. West wins the ace and must now choose between leading hearts or spades to get his club ruff. Which suit should he choose?

West gets his ruff if he guesses spades, but the game slips away if West leads hearts. How could West have improved his chances to find the right switch?

"When South led a trump to his king, West should have ruffed to the next trump lead and East's discard would announce the suit for an entry. On West's trump-ace-East would signal with the spade nine and a spade lead by West would then net a tidy down one."

West can force the duck in trumps because he has a third trump. With only two trumps, the duck would not be possible and West would be forced to play the game of "win and guess."

Expert says dinosaur extinction took millions of years

By JACK SCHREIBMAN
The Associated Press

BERKELEY, Calif. — One of the world's leading fossil experts says dinosaurs died out gradually over millions of years because they couldn't find food during a cooling of the Earth, an idea that contradicts the theory that the beasts were annihilated by a sudden catastrophe.

William A. Clemens, a professor of paleontology at the University of California at Berkeley, said in an interview that 10 years' research convinced him the historic creatures became extinct during a period of 5 million to 7 million years.

Clemens, a curator of the university's Museum of Paleontology, developed his theory by studying fossils at "Bug Creek" in eastern Montana.

"What we got at the most refined record of what happened at that time in any place in the world," Clemens said, "we've got one window to see what happened in a global situation. . . . What we see through our window suggests gradual change" for the "immense reptiles that ruled the planet" for more than 150 million years.

Clemens planned to present his theory today at the annual meeting of the Society of Vertebrate Paleontology.

His hypothesis contrasts with another backed mainly by geologists, that contends a huge cloud of dust was raised by an extraterrestrial body smashing into Earth. The cloud so changed the environment that dinosaurs vanished in a relatively short span — within a few thousand years or less.

Walter Alvarez, a geology professor at the university, said he believes a space-borne catastrophe killed the dinosaurs. The theory stems largely from the discovery of iridium in rocks formed around the time when the dinosaurs disappeared, "known as the Cretaceous-Tertiary boundary period."

Iridium is found in asteroids as well as on Earth.

Alvarez and others say an asteroid smashing into Earth would have been so much dust that the sun would have been blotted out, causing a temporary collapse of the food chain.

In March, Alvarez wrote in Science magazine, "We have an enormous amount of evidence showing that an asteroid or comet hit the Earth 65 million years ago . . . and was in some way responsible for the extinction of the dinosaurs, and many other kinds of animals and plants."

Clemens says that theory fails to explain the survival of 20 million other species, including fish, lizards and turtles, and the early ancestors of today's mammals.

"The asteroid hypothesis," said Clemens, "calls for such severe changes in the environment in a matter of a few days, months or years . . . you just would expect other kinds of animals to almost totally go extinct. . . . There would have been devastation in the (geological) record."

Barfield dies for murder

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Dressed in pink embroidered pajamas and a specialty, Velma Barfield was put to death by injection Friday for poisoning her boyfriend, Gov. Jim Hunt said he hoped the first execution of a woman in this country in 22 years would help deter premeditated killings.

After Mrs. Barfield, 52, was executed at 2 a. m., medical workers tried but failed to restart her heart to keep blood flowing to organs that said Bill Glance, spokesman for Bowman Gray Medical Center in Winston-Salem.

She had asked that her organs be used for transplants.

Mrs. Barfield, who appealed until the eve of her execution in hopes of stopping the death sentence, said she was suffering from a 10-year addiction to prescription drugs and was a "zombie" when she put ant poison in the beer and tea of her fiance, former Stuart Taylor, in 1978.

After her arrest, Mrs. Barfield confessed to poisoning her mother and two elderly people for whom she worked as a live-in housekeeper to cover up checks she had forged on their accounts. She was charged and convicted only in Taylor's killing.

"Though the amount of money was not large, money was the motive," said Robeson County District Attorney Joe Freeman Britt. "And then it's arguable that she enjoyed watching—those people suffer—and later enjoyed being part of the funeral and the family groups after the deaths."

"I want to say I'm sorry for all the hurt I have caused," Mrs. Barfield said just before the execution began. She was pronounced dead at 2 a. m.

The governor interrupted his Democratic Senate campaign against Sen. Jesse Helms just before the execution and went to Raleigh in case he was needed, aides said. Neither side in the Senate campaign made the execution an issue.

"But I hope that both the deterrent effect of this law and the value of her years here at Central Prison hoping many people will be things that will be remembered," Hunt said. "I think the effect will be to cause less taking of life when people do premeditate and plan in advance."

The execution came at the end of six years of appeals, including three to the U.S. Supreme Court. Hunt had refused to grant clemency last month.

Mrs. Barfield, dressed in her pink pajamas, was wheeled into the death chamber before 16 witnesses.

At 2 a. m., as the sleep-inducing sodium thiopental began to "drip through tubes in her arms, Mrs. Barfield's mouth moved quickly, as if she were saying something.

"She was moving her lips quite — People held a vigil while waiting for the execution of murder Velma Barfield visibly," said witness Karen Fitecan of WFNC radio in Fayetteville. "It was almost as if she was praying."

Associated Press reporter Dennis Patterson, another witness, said Mrs. Barfield's face was turned away from the witnesses as the deadly muscle relaxant procuronium bromide dripped into her arms.

"At about 2:08, her color conged to subtly change from reddish to gray," Patterson said. "About four or five minutes after that, a doctor came in, placed a stethoscope on her chest, pulled her eyeglasses down, used the light to check her eyes. Then they pulled the curtain in front."

As Mrs. Barfield read mail and had a final meal of cola and cheese snacks, about 100 death penalty opponents held a vigil and church service and then marched to Central Prison.

By midnight, the crowd had grown to about 300. Several prisoners banged on cell windows while others lit matches in response to candles held by the demonstrators.

Hepatitis virus killing drug users

WORCESTER, Mass. (AP) — They call themselves "Weekend Warriors," young people whose heroin and cocaine habits are limited to party nights.

But for the past year, the lips of their syringes have carried the risk of virulent disease and possible death.

Since September 1983 seven people have died from the ravages of a particularly dangerous combination of germs known as delta hepatitis. All contracted the disease through drug use, or sexual contact with a drug user.

More than 84 cases have been linked to the outbreak, making Worcester the first U.S. city to be hit with a major slice of the new and little understood form of the disease.

"We've just diagnosed our first hepatitis B in the United States where the severity could be attributed to the delta virus," says Dr. Ludwig Lettau, an epidemiologist with the Federal Centers for Disease Control in Atlanta.

The delta virus is widespread in southern Italy and has been found in the Middle East, South America and Africa. There have been Kentucky sporadic cases and have reported in the Los Angeles area.

Drug users and their sexual partners have always faced the risk of hepatitis B, a virus that attacks the human liver. Transmitted via blood or body fluids, the disease can bring nausea, fatigue, painful joints, rash and jaundice. But it is rarely fatal; only one in 500 cases results in death.

Most patients recover within a few months, receiving immunity to the disease for their trouble. But some 5 to 10 percent become carriers, capable of passing the disease to others.

In delta hepatitis, a second virus is present with the hepatitis B virus, prolonging and worsening the illness. The incidence of liver failure and resulting death among sufferers is 10 to 20 times higher.

Baby Fae went home to die prior to transplant surgery

LOMA LINDA, Calif. (AP) — Before allowing a historic baboon heart transplant, the parents of Baby Fae were so discouraged they took her to the hospital, believing her condition was hopeless, officials said Friday.

"The parents initially wanted the baby to die at home" after learning she had an "underdeveloped heart," said Dr. Robert H. Beyer, pediatric chairman at Loma Linda University Medical Center, where the baby on Friday completed her first week with the baboon's heart.

The disclosure raised questions from a medical ethics expert on whether Loma Linda University Medical Center informed the parents of alternative treatments for the infant's defective heart.

Ronald Beyer, a bioethics expert at the Hastings Center, a research institute, argued Loma Linda officials failed to adequately inform the baby's parents of alternatives to the baboon heart transplant, including experimental corrective surgery or a human heart transplant.

Three-week-old Baby Fae, whose real name has been kept secret at her parent's request, was reported in serious but stable condition Friday, still showing no signs that her body might reject the baboon heart she was given Oct. 26, doctors said.

Mace said he understood that the parents had not been told of the transplant possibility before they signed the consent form, but he didn't know why.

"It may just be that it was because Dr. Bailey was not here. He was at a medical meeting," Mace said, referring to Dr. Leonard Bailey, who led the transplant team.

Loma Linda spokesman Dick Schaefer confirmed that after Baby Fae's condition was diagnosed, her parents removed her from the hospital and took her to a nearby motel.

Medical officials have refused to say how long the baby was out of the hospital or what the parents were told to make them return. The administrators also refused to the consent form for the surgery signed by the baby's parents, which might indicate what the couple was told.

The revelation of Baby Fae's initial discharge "renews questions about what the parents were told before discharge, and what they were told after that made them come back," Beyer said in a telephone interview from his Hastings-on-Hudson, N.Y., office.

"One question is, when they were initially leaving the hospital, was a referral made to a hospital where human heart transplant surgery is possible?" Beyer asked.

Loma Linda doctors have insisted the parents were told of the experimental surgery, but acknowledged they never looked for a human heart because infants' hearts are so rare — a factor that spurred Bailey to test if the baboon hearts can be used to save the lives of children with heart defects.

LaRouche to appeal verdict

WASHINGTON (AP) — Independent presidential candidate Lyndon H. LaRouche Jr. said Friday he plans to appeal a federal court jury verdict which rejected his $150 million defamation suit against NBC and instead awarded the network $3 million in "contractual damages."

"It's a rotten verdict," LaRouche said at a news conference. "This is round one. The thing is going to go to appeal . . . the appeal was already ready when we began."

Larry Grossman, president of NBC News, said the decision "supports the right and obligation of journalists to gather news and report the facts to the American public. The jury found that NBC News was doing its job, doing it right, and that what NBC reported was truthful."

Italian charged with smuggling

NEW YORK (AP) — An Italian citizen was held on $250,000 bail Friday after being charged with conspiring to smuggle high-technology military equipment to the Soviet Union and Libya.

The only items that actually left the country, however, were several camouflage cloths that were brought to Libya in late 1983, prosecutors said.

Francesco Blotta, 41, of Rome, was arrested at 6:45 a. m. in the Manhattan apartment he rented for use on business trips.

The U.S. Department said in court papers that agents were tipped to the case by a confidential informant who was approached in 1982 by an unidentified person seeking to buy a tank-warfare training system, among other items, for Libya.

Blotta allegedly began meeting with the informant in September 1983 to continue those negotiations, the papers said.

Blotta's attorney, M. Joshua Aber, told U.S. Magistrate John Caden that the informant is Benjamin Jamil, an electronics consultant who was charged in 1981 with illegally exporting sensitive high-technology equipment.

Blotta is suing Jamil in state court in Manhattan, Aber said, for selling sensitive equipment to the informant, including gear to Blotta's company.

"Mr. Jamil, in his usual course of events, does anything and everything he can against anybody who jeopardizes his economic situation and his liberty," Aber told Caden.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Peter Tomao refused to confirm or deny that Jamil is involved in the case. Most court records of Jamil's prosecution are sealed.

The complaint filed against Blotta said he showed the informant a list of equipment he wanted to purchase for later sale to the Soviet Union. This equipment, the document said, included "radar" for "satellites," "voice scramblers" and electronic and computer gear.

Court overrules Hatch Act ban on drives

WASHINGTON (AP) — A U.S. Court of Appeals panel ruled Friday that a lower-court judge acted prematurely in deciding that the Hatch Act prohibits federal employee unions that endorse political candidates from conducting voter registration drives.

The three-member panel, in a 2-1 decision, said neither the unions nor the government is entitled to the action they seek because the matter "is not ripe for judicial review."

The panel returned the case to the lower court with instructions to dismiss the complaints "for failure to present concrete claims ripe for court adjudication."

U.S. District Judge Thomas Penfield Jackson, in a July ruling, affirmed an earlier decision by U.S. District Court, special counsel to the Merit Systems Protection Board, whose office enforces the Hatch Act.

In March, O'Connor told the American Federation of Government

Employees and the National Treasury Employees Union that they lost their right to register voters when they endorsed Democrat Walter F. Mondale for president.

O'Connor said the Hatch Act permits unions to conduct voter registration drives and to endorse candidates, but not both. Once an employee union endorses a candidate, he said, it becomes "a partisan club for the duration of the campaign" and is prohibited from engaging in voter drives.

Workers walk among the rubble of a New Delhi house destroyed by rioters who burned it after Indra Gandhi's assassination

Colonels arrested, general suspended in priest shooting

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — The government has suspended an Interior Ministry general and arrested two colonels in the ministry in connection with the slaying of the Rev. Jerzy Popieluszko, official reports said Friday.

The reports indicated that the investigation into the death of the pro-Solidarity priest had reached the higher ranks of Poland's police hierarchy. Three lower-ranking officers have already been arrested in the case.

The official Polish news agency PAP said the director of an Interior Ministry department, Gen. Zenon Platek, was "suspended for lack of sufficient supervision."

The news agency did not identify the department Platek headed. But church sources and Western diplomats, who spoke on condition they not be identified, said he was in charge of an interior ministry section that concerns itself with the church. It apparently keeps track of church contacts with dissidents and analyzes church policy.

Meanwhile Friday, thousands of weeping mourners watched as the coffin bearing the body of Popieluszko was returned to Warsaw. Other Poles streamed past the grave awaiting him in the courtyard beneath the twin spires of the Warsaw church he served. A million people were expected at today's funeral.

Foes hit Gandhi for violence

By WILLIAM CLAIBORNE
The Washington Post

NEW DELHI, India — Less than 48 hours after he was sworn in as India's sixth prime minister, Rajiv Gandhi was condemned by opposition leaders Friday for failing to cool the violence that has swept the country in the wake of his mother's assassination.

As the official death toll in sectarian rioting climbed far beyond the government's official totals — unofficially more than 500, with 200 dead in New Delhi alone — and mob rampages continued in many states, Gandhi appealed in a surprise television broadcast for an end to "communal madness" that he said would weaken the unity of India.

The sharp criticism of Gandhi's handling of his first crisis as India's youngest prime minister, which was issued as Gandhi prepared to lead several million mourners to his mother's cremation Saturday along the Yamuna River, was begun by leaders of several major non-communist opposition parties that will contest the next parliamentary elections.

The Janata Party, which ousted Indira Gandhi's Congress Party in the 1977 elections, joined with former Prime Minister Charan Singh and with leaders of the Bharatiya Janata Party (BJP) in blaming what they termed Rajiv Gandhi's ineptness and lack of leadership qualities for the continuing violence.

The opposition leaders also condemned the manner in which Gandhi was sworn in to succeed his mother without a vote of the full Congress (I) Party parliamentary caucus, calling it a "serious violation of parliament-ry norms and democratic traditions." Later Friday night, however, Gandhi was unanimously elected leader of his party by its parliamentary caucus, providing the necessary technical stamp of approval on his induction as prime minister.

While the attacks by the fractious opposition posed no serious threat to Gandhi's leadership, they appeared to signal a rebuff of the prime minister's appeal to all political parties Thursday for support of his efforts to curtail post-assassination violence. In a joint statement issued after a meeting with Gandhi, opposition leaders urged all workers of all of India's political parties to "exert themselves to the utmost" in restoring communal harmony.

The criticism also suggested that the issues of alleged lack of leadership and political experience — focused on the assassination aftermath — will be in the forefront of efforts to unseat Gandhi in what promises to be a divisive campaign.

Mafia informer to face U.S. charges

ROME (AP) — Italian authorities decided Friday to send a key Mafia mobster turned informer to the United States to face drug-related charges, Italian media reported.

The Italian news agency ANSA and state-run RAI television, quoting unnamed judicial sources, said jailed crime boss Tommaso Buscetta would leave for the United States as early as next week. They said he would face charges in connection with ties to the American Mafia's drug trafficking networks.

ANSA also said Buscetta might cooperate with U.S. officials investigating the secret crime society's connections in the United States.

However, another Italian news agency, AGI, quoted judicial sources as denying the extradition had been cleared, instead saying that Buscetta would remain in Italy "at least for the time being."

Honduras security up after coup plot found

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras (AP) — Officials have increased security and arrested "several suspects" in connection with an alleged drug-financed plot to kill the president and seize control, a military intelligence official said Friday.

"The situation is under control," he said, asking that he not be identified by name. "Our armored units, immigration and the secret police have arrested several suspects, who are being interrogated."

He did not say how many people were arrested or who they were.

The military command is on alert and all customs posts have intensified their investigations, he said.

President Roberto Suazo Cordova told reporters at his home in La Paz, 50 miles north of Tegucigalpa, that he was "serene and tranquil."

At least 800 soldiers from the 9th Infantry Battalion were on duty in La Paz, reinforcing the local police.

On Thursday, in Miami, Fla., the FBI announced the arrests of eight members of a U.S.-based exile group and said they planned to assassinate Suazo Cordova in a coup financed by cocaine profits.

Joseph V. Corless, special agent in charge of the FBI office in Miami, said the suspect indicated in conversations that they are staunch anti-communists. I believe they were just interested in putting in a man favorable to them."

Nearly a decade of military rule ended in Honduras with congressional and presidential elections in November 1981, and Suazo Cordova won a four-year term with 53 percent of the vote.

Suazo Cordova told the reporters in La Paz, "The ambition of certain people that plotted the destabilization of my government. This is something unjust, simply because I have not done anything to them and, on the contrary, I have been benevolent with all them."

The FBI also named a ninth suspect, Gen. José Bueso Rosa, in the criminal complaint filed in the U.S. District Court in Miami. Bueso Rosa was the military attache at the Honduran Embassy in Chile.

According to the FBI, agents seized 760 pounds of cocaine worth $10.3 million wholesale at a residence in southern Florida Sunday, and the drug was used in the plot to kill Suazo Cordova and seize control of the government.

Attorney General Elizabeth Chutz Sierra said the government will seize crime boss Tommaso Buscetta in Bueso Rosa, and also Gen. Gustavo Alvarez Martinez.

Relief food a problem

ADDIS ABABA, Ethiopia (AP) — Relief officials say they are facing huge logistical problems in moving the sudden influx of donated food, clothing and medicine to starving people in the remote regions of this East African nation.

A new report by a group of donor countries' and agencies called the problem "imminent and serious" and suggested ways to speed up the movement of food to the estimated six million people facing starvation.

emergency relief begun this week will probably be needed "at least for one year."

"This sprawling drought-stricken country, the size of Texas, Oklahoma and New Mexico combined, has less than 2,500 miles of paved roads, meaning goods must be transported — mainly rural villages on pack animals.

The report by the Working Group on Relief Assistance, representing donor countries, private aid groups and United Nations agencies, blamed both Ethiopia's Marxist government and donors themselves for delays.

U.S. official's son wounded

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — The teen-age son of a U.S. Embassy official said Friday he was shot in the leg by a private security guard who mistook him for a rebel because his Halloween costume included a plastic M-16 rifle.

Hugo Denkler, 14, said he was wounded as he walked by a San Benito district house en route to a costume party, at about 6:30 p.m. Thursday.

He and his father, Peter Denkler, spoke by telephone with the Associated Press from the youth's room at the Politecnica Hospital in San Salvador.

The elder Denkler said his son was in good condition and would probably leave the hospital early next week. "It was just an accident," said Denkler, an official of the Agency for International Development who has been in El Salvador for several years. "It's no big deal."

Expert says dinosaur extinction took millions of years

By JACK SCHREIBMAN
The Associated Press

BERKELEY, Calif. — One of the world's leading fossil experts says dinosaurs died out gradually over millions of years because they couldn't find food during a cooling of the Earth, an idea that contradicts the theory that the beasts were annihilated by a sudden catastrophe.

William A. Clemens, a professor of paleontology at the University of California at Berkeley, said in an interview that 10 years' research convinced him the prehistoric creatures became extinct during a period of 5 million to 7 million years.

Clemens, a curator of the university's Museum of Paleontology, developed his theory by studying fossils at "Bug Creek" in eastern Montana.

"We've got the most refined record of what happened at that time in any place in the world," Clemens said. "We've got one window to see what happened in a global situation. . . . What we see through our window suggests gradual change" for the immense reptiles that ruled the planet for more than 150 million years.

"The parents initially wanted the baby to die at home" after learning she had an underdeveloped heart, said Dr. John Mace, pediatric chairman at Loma Linda University Medical Center, where the baby on Friday completed her first week with the baboon's heart.

Mace said he understood that the parents had not been told of the transplant possibility before they took the baby from the hospital, but he didn't know why.

"It may just be that it was because Dr. Bailey was not here. He was at a medical meeting," Mace said, referring to Dr. Leonard Bailey, who led the transplant team.

Blotta's attorney, M. Joshua Aber, told U.S. Magistrate John Caden that the informant is Benjamin Jamil, an electronics constant who was charged in 1981 with illegally exporting sensitive high-technology equipment.

the consent form for the surgery signed by the baby's parents, which might indicate what the couple was told.

The revelation of Baby Fae's initial discharge "renews questions about what the parents were told before discharge and what they were told after that made them come back," Bayer said in a telephone interview from Hastings-on-Hudson, N.Y., office.

"One question is, when they were initially leaving the hospital, was a referral made to a hospital where human heart transplant surgery is possible?" Bayer asked.

Loma Linda doctors have insisted the parents were told of the experimental surgery, but opted for the baboon transplant. They acknowledged they never looked for a human heart because infant donors are so scarce—a factor that spurred Blotta's test whether baboon hearts could be used to save the lives of children with fatal heart defects.

LaRouche to appeal verdict

MINNAPOLIS (AP) — Independent presidential candidate Lyndon H. LaRouche Jr. said Friday he plans to appeal a federal court jury verdict which rejected his $150 million defamation suit against NBC and instead awarded the network $3 million in counterclaim damages.

"It's a rotten verdict," LaRouche said at a news conference. "This is round one. The thing is going to go to appeal . . . the appeal was already ready when we began."

Larry Grossman, president of NBC News, said the decision "supports the right and obligation of journalists to gather news and report the facts to the American public. The jury found that NBC News was doing its job, doing it right, and that what NBC reported was truthful."

Italian charged with smuggling

NEW YORK (AP) — An Italian citizen was held on $250,000 bail Friday after being charged with conspiring to smuggle high-technology military equipment to the Soviet Union and Libya.

The only items that actually left the country, however, were several camouflage cloths that were brought to Libya in late 1983, prosecutors said.

Francesco Blotta, 41, of Rome, was arrested at 6:45 a.m. in the Manhattan apartment he rented for use on business trips.

The Justice Department said in court papers that agents were tipped to the case by a confidential informant who was approached in 1982 by an unidentified person seeking to buy a tank-warfare training system, among other items, for Libya.

Blotta allegedly began meeting with the informant in September 1983 to continue those negotiations, the papers said.

Blotta's attorney, M. Joshua Aber, told U.S. Magistrate John Caden that the informant is Benjamin Jamil, an electronics constant who was charged in 1981 with illegally exporting sensitive high-technology equipment.

Blotta is suing Jamil in state court in Manhattan, Aber said, for selling "radar, radar workhorses, anti-eavesdropping gear to Blotta's company."

"Mr. Jamil, in his usual course of events, does anything and everything he can against anybody who jeopardizes his economic situation and his liberty," Aber told Caden.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Peter Tomao refused to confirm or deny that Jamil is involved in the case. Most court records of Jamil's prosecution are sealed.

The complaint filed against Blotta said he showed the informant a list of equipment he wanted to purchase for later sale to the Soviet Union. This equipment, the document said, included radar for satellites, voice scramblers and electronic and computer gear.

Court overturns Hatch Act ban on drives

WASHINGTON (AP) — A U.S. Court of Appeals panel ruled Friday that a lower-court judge acted prematurely in deciding that the Hatch Act prohibits federal employes unions that endorse political candidates from conducting voter-registration drives.

The three-member panel, in a 2-1 decision, said neither the unions nor the government is entitled to the action they seek because the matter "is not ripe for judicial review."

The panel returned the case to the lower court with instructions to dismiss the complaints "for failure to present concrete claims ripe for court adjudication."

U.S. District Judge Thomas P. Fenfield Jackson, in a July ruling, affirmed an earlier decision by K. William O'Connor, special counsel to the Merit Systems Protection Board, whose office enforces the Hatch Act.

In March, O'Connor told the American Federation of Government

Employees and the National Treasury Employees Union that they lost their right to register voters when they endorsed Democrat Walter F. Mondale for president.

O'Connor said the Hatch Act permits unions to conduct voter registration drives and to endorse candidates, but not both. Once an employe union endorses a candidate, he said, it becomes "a partisan club for the duration of the campaign" and is prohibited from engaging in voter drives.

Workers walk among the rubble of a New Delhi house destroyed by rioters who burned it after Indra Gandhi's assassination

Foes hit Gandhi for violence

By WILLIAM CLAIBORNE
The Washington Post

NEW DELHI, India — Less than 48 hours after he was sworn in as India's sixth prime minister, Rajiv Gandhi was condemned by opposition leaders Friday for failing to control the violence that has swept the country in the wake of his mother's assassination.

"As the official death toll in sectarian rioting climbed far beyond the government's official total — unofficially to more than 500, with 200 dead in New Delhi alone — and mob rampages continued in many states, Gandhi appealed in a surprise television broadcast for an end to "communal madness" that he said would weaken the unity of India.

"The sharp criticism of Gandhi's handling of his first crisis as India's youngest prime minister, which was issued as Gandhi prepared to lead several million mourners to his mother's cremation Saturday alongside the Yamuna River, was begun by leaders of several major non-communist opposition parties that will contest the next parliamentary elections.

The Janata Party, which ousted Indira Gandhi's Congress Party in the 1977 elections, joined with former Prime Minister Charan Singh and with leaders of the Bharatiya Janata Party (BJP) in blaming what they termed Rajiv Gandhi's ineptness and lack of leadership qualities for the continuing violence.

The opposition leaders also condemned the manner in which Gandhi was sworn in to succeed his mother without a vote of the full Congress (I) Party parliamentary caucus, calling it a "serious violation of parliament-ry norms and democratic traditions." Later Friday night, however, Gandhi was unanimously elected leader of his party by its parliamentary caucus, providing the necessary technical stamp of approval on his induction as prime minister.

While the attacks by the fractious opposition posed no serious threat to Gandhi's leadership, they appeared to signal a rebuff of the prime minister's appeal to all political parties Thursday for support of his efforts to curtail post-assassination violence. In a joint statement issued after a meeting with Gandhi, opposition leaders urged all workers of all of India's political parties to "exert themselves to the utmost" in restoring communal harmony.

The criticism also suggested that the issues of alleged lack of leadership and political experience — focused on the assassination aftermath — will be in the forefront of efforts to unseat Gandhi in what promises to be a divisive campaign.

Mafia informer to face U.S. charges

ROME (AP) — Italian authorities decided Friday to send a key Mafia mobster turned informer to the United States to face drug-related charges, Italian media reported.

The Italian news agency ANSA and state-run RAI television, quoting unnamed judicial sources, said jailed crime boss Tommaso Buscetta would leave for the United States as early as next week. They said he would face charges in connection with ties to the American Mafia's drug trafficking networks.

ANSA also said Buscetta might cooperate with U.S. officials in investigating the secret crime society's connections in the United States. However, another Italian news agency, AGI, quoted judicial sources as denying the extradition had been cleared, instead saying that Buscetta would remain in Italy "at least for the time being."

Colonels arrested, general suspended in priest shooting

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — The government has suspended an Interior Ministry general and arrested two colonels in the ministry in connection with the slaying of the Rev. Jerzy Popieluszko, official reports said Friday.

The reports indicated that the investigation into the death of the pro-Solidarity priest had reached the higher ranks of Poland's police hierarchy. Three lower-ranking officers have already been arrested in the case.

The official Polish news agency PAP said the director of an Interior Ministry department, Gen. Zenon Platek, was "suspended for lack of sufficient supervision."

The news agency did not identify the department Platek headed. But church sources and Western diplomats who spoke on condition they not be identified, said Platek was in charge of an interior ministry section that concerns itself with the church. It apparently "keeps track of church contacts with dissidents and analyzes church policy."

Meanwhile Friday, thousands of grieving mourners watched as the coffin bearing the body of Popieluszko was returned to Warsaw. Other Poles streamed past the grave awaiting him in the courtyard beneath the twin spires of the Warsaw church he served. A million people were expected at today's funeral.

Church officials and leaders of Solidarity, the outlawed free trade union, appealed for "calm amid concern about anti-government demonstrations. But there were no reports of violence.

With the two latest arrests, five police officials were in custody in connection with Popieluszko's death. The government announced on Oct. 26 that a police captain and two lieutenants had been arrested. Four days later, police divers found the priest's body in a reservoir in northern Poland.

The three lower-ranking officers were charged in the Oct. 19 abduction of the 37-year-old Roman Gabbale activity — and authorities said they may also be charged with murder.

The Interior Ministry, which oversees all uniformed and plainclothes police in Poland, identified the three as Captain Grzegorz Piotrowski, Lt. Waldemar Chmielewski and Lt. Leszek Pekala.

No specific charges were cited against the two colonels arrested Friday. The official Polish news agency PAP identified the latest detainees as Lt. Col. Czeslaw Kiszczak, only as Lt. Col. Leszek W., the head of a department at Warsaw police headquarters, and Col. Adam P., a deputy director of an interior ministry department.

The report was released as a government communique on a state-run television news broadcast. An autopsy "confirmed the initial investigation suspicion on the reasons and circumstances of Popieluszko's killing," the communique said.

'Hacker' invades files

LONDON (AP) — A teen-age computer buff gained access to the personal electronic mail of Britain's Prince Philip and showed a reporter how he could falsify a key financial market table, a London newspaper reported Friday.

The Daily Mail said its reporter watched the unidentified youth infiltrate a state-owned telephone company computer Thursday night to browse over the prince's mail, including a message of congratulations for him to pass to Princess Diana on her 23rd birthday last July 1.

The "hacker," jargon for computer eavesdropper, also breached the private files of a London stockbroker, and altered another display to give a false reading of the dollar-pound exchange rate, the daily claimed.

Reporter Peter Sheridan said he sat in a west London apartment Thursday night and watched the 19-year-old use a $25 personal computer and an ordinary television set to change the computer files of British Telecom's Prestel Information Service.

British Telecom said Friday that the company had been aware of a breach of computer security for over a week, that Prestel had issued new codes to information providers, and that all customers had been advised to change their passwords.

Honduras security up after coup plot found

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras (AP) — Officials have increased security and arrested "several suspects" in connection with an alleged drug-financed plot to kill the president and seize control, a military intelligence official said Friday.

"The situation is under control," he said, asking that he not be identified by name. "Our army and the military police have arrested several suspects, who are being interrogated."

He did not say how many people were arrested or who they were.

The military command is on alert and all customs posts have intensified their investigations, he said.

President Roberto Suazo Cordova told reporters at his home in La Paz, 50 miles north of Tegucigalpa, that he was "serene and tranquil."

At least 800 soldiers from the 9th Infantry Battalion are based in La Paz, reinforcing the local police.

On Thursday, in Miami, Fla., the FBI announced the arrests of eight members of a U.S.-based exile group and said they planned to assassinate Suazo Cordova in a coup financed by cocaine profits.

Joseph V. Cortes, special agent in charge of the FBI office in Miami, said the suspects "indicated in conversations that they are staunch anti-communists. I believe they were just interested in putting in a man favorable to them."

A decade of military rule ended in Honduras with congressional and presidential elections in November 1981, and Suazo Cordova won a four-year term with 53 percent of the vote.

Suazo Cordova told his reporters in La Paz. "The ambition of certain people had plotted the destabilization of my government. This is something unjust, simply because I have not done anything to them and, on the contrary, I have been benevolent with all them."

The FBI also named a ninth suspect, Gen. Jose Bueso Rosa, in the criminal complaint filed in the U.S. District Court in Miami. Bueso Rosa was the military attaché at the Honduran Embassy in Chile.

According to the FBI, agents seized 760 pounds of cocaine worth $10.3 million wholesale at a remote airstrip in southern Florida Sunday, and the drugs were to be used in the plot to kill Suazo Cordova and seize control of the government.

Attorney General Elizabeth Chuz Sierra said the government will seek to extradite the eight held in Miami, Bueso Rosa, and also Gen. Gustavo Alvarez Martinez.

Relief food a problem

ADDIS ABABA, Ethiopia (AP) — Relief officials say they are facing huge logistical problems in moving the sudden influx of donated food, clothing and medicine to starving people in the remote regions of this East African nation.

"A new report by a group of donor countries and agencies called the problem 'imminent and serious' and suggested ways to speed up the movement of food to the estimated six million people facing starvation.

The Ethiopian minister of transport and communications, Yusuf Ahmed, said an international airlift of emergency relief begun this week will probably be needed "at least for one year."

"This sprawling drought-stricken country, the size of Texas, Oklahoma and New Mexico combined, has less than 2,500 miles of paved roads, meaning goods must be transported to many rural villages on pack animals."

The report by the Working Group on Relief Assistance, representing donor countries, private aid groups and United Nations agencies, blamed both Ethiopia's Marxist government and donors themselves for delays.

U.S. official's son wounded

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — The teen-age son of a U.S. Embassy official said Friday he was shot in the leg by a private security guard who mistook him for a rebel because his Halloween costume included a plastic M-16 rifle.

Hugo Denklen, 14, said he was wounded "as he walked by a San Benito district house en route to a costume party at about 6:30 p.m. Thursday.

He and his father, Peter Denklen, spoke by telephone with The Associated Press from the youth's room at the Polyclinic Hospital in San Salvador.

The elder Denklen said his son was in good condition and would probably leave the hospital early next week. "It was just an accident," said Denklen, an official of the Agency for International Development who has been in El Salvador for several years. "It's no big deal."

Train to Delhi produces nightmare of anti-Sikh violence

EDITOR'S NOTE: Gristly accounts of the anti-Sikh reprisals in India are just emerging. Here is a report of three hours of terror witnessed by The AP's Bombay correspondent.

By SIDHARTH BHATIA
The Associated Press

NEW DELHI, India — Had I read about this, I might have dismissed it as far-fetched. But I saw it.

The Rajdhani Express, India's premier train, a 17½-hour, 1,000-mile run from Bombay to New Delhi, arrived at its second stop, Ratlam, on schedule at 1 a.m. Friday. Passengers were roused by an announcement warning them there was "trouble" ahead and they could disembark there if they wished. Few did.

The train made an unscheduled stop at Mathura at 8:30 a.m. There was another announcement, and a few more passengers got off.

A teen-age Sikh boy, until then calmly listening to music on his portable stereo, was advised by some passengers to take shelter at Mathura station, where he would be safe with some soldiers.

He took the advice, but two other Sikhs in the car — identifiable by their beards, turbans and long hair — declined. One was alone, the other had his wife and a son and daughter with him.

On the outskirts of New Delhi, the train stopped again at a small station, Dughinkabad. A voice announced that passengers should "lock all doors and keep all windows curtned."

We did not know why. Although we knew of the assassination of Prime Minister Indira Gandhi, allegedly by Sikh bodyguards, we had only a vague indication of the subsequent Hindu attacks on members of the Sikh sect.

Three minutes later we knew.

About a hundred people, all young men, began hammering on the doors of the halted train, pounding at the compartment door with iron rods and stones. There was a crunching sound, then a cheer. The window had broken.

Four youths, unkempt and wielding sticks, came into our car. I was sitting near the door and one glanced at me, pondering over my beard.

"Come out, all the Sikhs in here!" one shouted.

"There are none here," a passenger said softly. "There are none here," repeated one of the youths and they turned to go.

Just then a few of their companions entered the car, some with iron rods, others with long black rubber pipes.

The armed brigade marched down the aisle about the seats. Suddenly there was a shout, "Here! Here! Come here! We got one of these fellows."

As the passengers slowly got to their feet and turned to look, there was a sound of scuffling and a series of releasing thuds. For a minute or so, everything was hidden from my view. Then the crowd in the aisle parted.

Two teenage girls, traveling with their mother, screamed hysterically. The other passengers did not react. They just looked on silently.

One of the marauding youths was pulling a Sikh man by his long hair. Three other attackers followed, hitting the Sikh with their rods. He held onto the seats, refusing to move.

His shirt became spattered with blood.

A girl screamed and one of the mob looked at her soothingly and said: "Don't worry, sister. We will not do anything to you. We are after them. They are killing our womenfolk. We will not spare them."

Finally one of the youths broke the Sikh's hold on a seat. They hauled the beaten, deeply wounded man outside. The crowd collected around him and continued their relentless onslaught. We could only watch from the windows. No one got down onto the platform.

A few moments later an acrid smell floated into the car through the broken windows. The crowd's presence and the "see-flames-leap-up" from the body of the Sikh, a man who just 15 minutes before had been riding peacefully with us from Bombay.
