Discovery nearing satellites

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Discovery's commander guided the spaceship Sunday to within 2,000 miles of a wayward satellite that two astronauts will try to recover during a space walk on Monday.

Commander Rick Hauck fired the shuttle's engines twice to raise Discovery's orbit about 10 miles to 215 miles above Earth, just 15 miles below the path of the Palapa R2 satellite. The ship, traveling 17,400 mph, was closing in on the target at a rate of 101 miles an hour.

The shuttle's launch on Thursday was timed to start a 1.6-million-mile orbital chase of the Palapa and Westar 6 satellites, which have been in "useless" orbits since their booster rockets misfired in February.

Discovery started out 40 miles below its targets, and in the lower orbit it took less time to circle the globe and gradually closed the initial 17,000-mile gap.

Today, Hauck and pilot David Walker are to steer the shuttle to within 35 feet of Palapa and fire information with it while astronauts Joe Allen and Dale Gardner try to capture the 1,000-pound satellite during a six-hour space walk.

The two space walkers will try to retrieve Westar — which is about 760 miles ahead of Palapa — on Wednesday.

Insurance companies are paying the National Aeronautics and Space Administration $5.5 million to return the two communications satellites to Earth for refurbishment. They hope to sell the used payloads, to recoup some of the $180 million in claims they paid when the satellites shot into the wrong orbits.

To prepare for the space walk, the crew Sunday lowered the cabin pressure from 14.7 to 10.2 pounds per square inch, and Allen and Gardner donned helmets to breathe pure oxygen for more than an hour.

Soviet ship departs port in Nicaragua

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — A Soviet freighter whose arrival prompted U.S. concerns about the possibility of the Soviets providing Nicaragua with MIG combat jets left port Sunday after unloading its cargo. Sources said the cargo included military helicopters.

U.S. Secretary of Defense Caspar Weinberger on Sunday attempted to downplay the situation, which grew tense last week after reports that the freighter was delivering fighter planes to the leftist government. He said there was "no confirmation" such planes had arrived in Nicaragua.

An AP reporter watched the freighter, the Bakuriani, leave Corinto, a port on Nicaragua's Pacific coast, on Sunday. Sources, who spoke on condition they not be named, have said the ship brought two Soviet MiG combat helicopters and one Mi24 transport helicopter.

Nicaragua has complained to the United Nations of alleged U.S. aggression, accusing U.S. Navy warships of harassing the Bakuriani as it entered the port, 105 miles northwest of the capital.

Last week, Reagan administration officials said the Bakuriani was under surveillance, and that the United States would not rule out a strike to stop MIGs from arriving in Nicaragua.

Francisco Chacon, an official with Indoamerican Maritime Agency, which normally handles shipments from the Soviet Union, said the Bakuriani's cargo was handled directly by the Nicaraguan government.

Weinberger downplays MiG report

WASHINGTON (AP) — Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger said Sunday the United States has "no confirmation" that the Soviets are supplying MiG fighter planes to Nicaragua — and that recent reports to that effect were "harmful" to U.S. security interests.

Appearing on NBC-TV's "Meet the Press," Weinberger attempted to downplay the controversy surrounding the possible delivery of MIGs to Nicaragua's leftist Sandinista government, but said he was still deeply concerned about the "constant flow of offensive weapons" that makes Nicaragua "very harmful" to their neighbor's security and ultimately to ours.

Bernardo Lang, an official with the Vassall Shipping Co. in Corinto, said a security Soviet ship, which he described as a fishing boat, left on Saturday night after docking earlier in the day. He said the boat has docked at the port previously.

Nation's taste for sweeter corn makes growers change

CALDWELL (AP) — Consumers' preference for new, sweeter sweet corn is causing changes in one of Canyon County's major industries.

The county grows about 88 percent of the nation's sweet corn seed, as well as shrunken, or dent, sweet corn. Growers grow the seed under contracts with a half dozen seed companies with offices in Nampa and Caldwell.

A trend toward new corn varieties is enabling farmers to harvest more seeds on fewer acres, and that may force some growers out of the business, said Allan and Gardner, board chairman of Crookham Co., the largest producer of sweet corn seed.

The new varieties require more care at planting time and more specialized equipment to harvest and process, Crookham said.

Crookham Co. has been at the forefront of a revolution in the sweet corn industry as breeders and growers latch onto new sweeter varieties of corn.

The new varieties fall into two categories. One group, called sugary enhancers, contains genes that slow the conversion of corn sugars to starch. The other, called shrunken-2, contains less of a natural ingredient that triggers the starch conversion.

Geneticists named the latter type "shrunken" because the kernels shrink to near flat when dry. Some farmers refer to the seeds as corn flakes because of their shape.

Shrunken varieties contain more rows of kernels per ear, meaning that more seeds can be produced per acre.

Because the seeds are smaller and contain less starch — the primary source of nourishment for seedlings — planting and irrigation need to be more precise, said Houston Garman, Crookham's vice president for production.

Some of the older varieties can be harvested with threshing combines, which remove the corn kernels from the cobs, Garman said. The sugary enhancer and shrunken types must be harvested in ear form to avoid damaging the seeds.

That posed no problem 20 years ago when nearly all of the field corn grown for livestock feed was harvested on the cob, he said. But as combines became more efficient, ear-corn harvesters became obsolete and most companies quit making them.

Some Idaho sweet corn growers have made trips to the Midwest, buying up old harvesters for parts. At least one Idaho grower, Donald Taggart of Nampa, has built his own pickers by modifying a commercially available harvester.

An Iowa equipment firm, Vermeer Manufacturing, recently began making ear-corn pickers. The company used Idaho growers to test its designs.

Joe Van Wassenhove, Marsing, one of those growers, has been growing sweet-corn seed for Crookham Co. for 40 years. Van Wassenhove said the new machines do a better job of separating the corn ears from the stocks without shelling kernels onto the ground.

Growing sweet corn seed requires considerably more work than it did when he began in the business, he said. But the crop is worth the effort, and has been a definite boon to the southwestern Idaho economy.

Canyon County raises an average of 10,000 to 12,000 acres of sweet corn seed, said Darrell Boiz, a county agricultural extension agent. Companies guard their production and sale volumes as trade secrets, but any decrease because of the higher yielding varieties probably has benefited Idaho's economy.

The change has begun, however, said Steve Marshall, Crookham vice president for research.

Two years ago, less than 15 percent of the winter sweet corn raised in Florida was the shrunken type, Marshall said. This year, industry analysts are predicting 80 percent of the Florida crop will be shrunken.

Grocery stores from as far away as Chicago are requesting a Florida variety called "Summer Sweet," a shrunken type grown from seed raised in Idaho, he said. The advantage to grocery stores is that sweet corn spends up to six days on a truck before it gets to the store. Traditional corn varieties lose much of their natural sugar in that time.

Winter sweet corn found in Idaho stores comes from California, where the switch to shrunken is just starting, Marshall said.

Nearly two-thirds of the sweet corn seed produced at the Crookham Co. plant in Caldwell is of the shrunken or sugary enhancer types, he said.

The switch to new varieties has required Crookham Co. to purchase new equipment, Bill Crookham said. The company recently spent $426,000 to expand and improve its husking and sorting facilities.

New dryers also will be needed, he said. The new corn types contain nearly 50 percent moisture at picking, compared to 35 percent for traditional varieties.

King Sr. dead at age of 84

ATLANTA (AP) — The Rev. Martin Luther King Sr., the father of slain civil rights leader Martin Luther King Jr., died Sunday at Crawford Long Hospital. He was 84.

King was taken from his home to the hospital on Sunday, said Bernice Thompson, a secretary at Ebenezer Baptist Church, where King and his slain son had been pastors.

The son of a Georgia sharecropper, King's life was marred by the assassinations of his elder son and the sniper slaying of his wife, Alberta, as she played the church organ in 1974. His other son, A.D., drowned in a backyard swimming pool in 1969.

Christine King Farris, King's daughter and only surviving child, told a hospital news conference her father was stricken Sunday afternoon at his home and was rushed to the hospital where "extensive resuscitation efforts were taken."

King died at 5:41 p.m. at the hospital. "It appears to be some sort of heart attack," said Dr. Bernard Bridges, King's personal physician, adding that no post-mortem examination was planned.

King had suffered from a chronic heart condition.

President offers homage to Viet war veterans

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, accepting for all Americans a Vietnam-Veterans Memorial symbolizing "past and current sacrifice," told a Veterans Day throng Sunday that he hopes the national rite caused by the Southeast Asia war can be closed during his second term.

"The war in Vietnam threatened to tear our society apart, and the political and philosophical disagreements that animated both sides continue to some extent," the president said.

"But he added: 'I believe that in the decade since Vietnam the healing has begun and hope that before my days as commander in chief are over, the healing will be complete.'"

As Veterans Day ceremonies took place across the nation honoring America's 1,981,000 war dead since 1776, Reagan addressed thousands gathered near the black granite wall containing the names of 58,007 dead and missing in the Vietnam conflict, which ended in 1975.

"This memorial is a symbol of both past and current sacrifice," Reagan said as he signed a deed conveying the wall and a statue of three servicemen to the U.S. government. The wall, completed two years ago, was erected through private funds raised by Vietnam

Americans to observe veterans day

By The Associated Press

From parades to solemn graveside ceremonies, Americans on Sunday marked Veterans Day by honoring those who served their country, with some noting a "new spark of patriotism" and others renewing cries for peace.

In Boston, about 600 people gathered in the Statehouse Hall of Flags for a solemn ceremony commemorating the signing of the 1918 armistice ending World War I.

The holiday was known as Armistice Day until 1954, when Veterans Day was officially adopted to honor all veterans. True to that spirit, some vets at the Boston ceremony wore the jungle fatigues they wore in Vietnam, others the uniforms of World War II, and one stariness.

Others have complained about the decision to augment the original spartan design with the bronze statue, which was unveiled last Friday in the first of a weekend of tributes to Vietnam veterans.

For some veterans, however, the • See MEMORIAL on Page A2

War veterans came in his wheelchair.

Drums rolled, schoolchildren led the pledge of allegiance, veterans called out the names of soldiers still missing in Vietnam, and public officials spoke out for peace.

"It makes you feel sad but really good to see you don't forget all the vets who passed away," said Irene Blodreau, whose husband is a disabled World War II veteran. Then, her voice cracking, she said: "It's an honor, really, to be here today."

In Washington, D.C., thousands of veterans gathered at the Vietnam Veterans Memorial to pay homage to their dead colleagues.

President Reagan called the memorial "a symbol of both past and current sacrifice" and called Vietnam veterans "true patriots."

Reagan said disagreements engendered by the Southeast Asian war "threatened to tear our society apart" and "continue to exist."

But he added, "I believe that in the decade since Vietnam the healing has begun and hope that before any days as commander in chief are over, the healing will be complete."

Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger said in a message that "a nation that forgets the sacrifices of its heroes risks its very existence."

Retired Army Gen. William C. Westmoreland, the former Vietnam commander, told the assembled veterans: "You did the job the country asked you to do. You did it magnificently, and nobody could have done it any better."

He termed Vietnam "one of the most complicated and controversial wars. Never before had men been sent out to the battlefield under such circumstances."

Sunday's activities in Washington also included the traditional placing of red, white and blue flowers at the Tomb of the Unknowns at Arlington National Cemetery.

"We have gathered not to celebrate war. We have gathered to celebrate the end of war," Weinberger told the 5,000 people at the ceremony.

He said the key to this is a "deterrent strength" rebuilt by the Reagan administration following erosion in the 1970s.

Friday, a seven-foot statue called "Three Servicemen" was unveiled at the memorial. The statue depicts three Vietnam servicemen, a Caucasian, a black and a Hispanic, standing in line "battle-dress looking uncertainly toward the black granite monument that bears the names of 58,022 Americans dead or missing in the Vietnam."

"It's about him we were recognized," shouted a Vietnam veteran, one of about 400 people who attended Sunday's unveiling of a statue at the New Orleans Superdome plaza honoring Louisianians who served in Vietnam.

In Logan, Utah, the commander of a local American Legion, Roger Jeffs, told about 30 people at the Logan Cemetery of Sunday that veterans of all the nation's wars appreciate the new statue at the memorial.

heart-rending and emotionally draining. The memorial is sort of like closing their book. It finally puts them at rest."

Former Marine John Wisdom, 37, of Orlando, Fla., walked the wall with the cane he used since 1968, when a mortar blast damaged nerve endings in his back.

"There's a commitment you have to go through with," he said. "It's very deep. For the first time since I came back, I cried. I found a buddy's name on the wall. I took my Purple Heart off my jacket and the American flag (patch) and left them there. That's all I could give him."

Sunday's activities in the nation's capital included the traditional placing of red, white and blue flowers at the Tomb of the Unknowns at Arlington National Cemetery.

Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger, the principal speaker, told the crowd of about 5,000 that the Vietnam Memorial is more than a tribute to the 5.8 million who wore American uniforms during the Vietnam War.

against a U.S. invasion, while the nation's top churchmen urged leaders to stop talking of war and instead search for peace.

Managua's Roman Catholic Archbishop Miguel Obando y Bravo said in a homily to about 200 people at Santo Domingo Church that "There can be no peace while those who govern us talk of the desire for peace while talking of violence at the time."

Obando y Bravo, a frequent critic of the Sandinista regime, has urged the Sandinistas to negotiate with all their opponents, including U.S.-backed forces fighting to oust the government, which came to power in 1979 with the overthrow of the Somoza regime.

Loud booms shook Managua for the fourth consecutive day on Sunday and the government's Voice of Nicaragua radio repeated the charge that the noises were caused by a U.S. Air Force spy plane breaking the sound barrier as it streaked over Nicaragua.

"Prepare for the defense of the country against the North American invasion," the radio announcer added.

The Soviet news agency Tass has also said the sonic booms are caused by U.S. planes.

Fighters chase Soviet bomber
TOKYO (AP) — Forty Japanese jetfighters chased a Soviet bomber which violated Japan's airspace Monday morning despite repeated warnings, a Defense Agency spokesman said.

The spokesman said nine Soviet bombers were flying south past the Tsushima Straits, between South Korea and Japan, in international airspace.

Four of the bombers turned back to the north. Despite repeated radio warnings from Japanese ground stations and Japanese jetfighters, one of the four, a Tu-16 Badger, violated Japanese airspace above the island of Okinoshima for two minutes, the spokesman said, speaking on condition of anonymity.

The Japanese jetfighters included F-4 Phantoms and F-16 Falcons.

Diablo plant making electricity
SAN LUIS OBISPO, Calif. (AP) — The controversial Diablo Canyon nuclear power plant began producing electricity Sunday for the first time in its stormy 16-year history as the Unit 1 reactor reached 15 percent of its capacity.

"For the first time we have an operating nuclear power plant putting out electricity on the system," said Ron Weinberger, a spokesman for Pacific Gas & Electric.

The power is being generated as part of a testing program begun after the Nuclear Regulatory Commission issued a full-power operating license for the $5.3 billion plant on Nov. 2, Weinberger said.

The plant, on the Pacific Coast midway between Los Angeles and San Francisco, reached 15 percent capacity at 3 a.m. Sunday and was generating about 50,000 kilowatts, Weinberger said.

Weinberger emphasized that the plant is not yet in commercial operation, and that customers won't pay for the power generated by Diablo Canyon until the Public Utilities Commission approves rates.

McCartney plot a year old
LONDON (AP) — Police have arrested several people in connection with a year-old plot to kidnap singer Paul McCartney's American-born wife, Linda, for a $12.5 million ransom, Sussex police reported Sunday.

Police said the kidnap plans had been discovered "in the past few weeks." A spokesman for McCartney, Bernard Doherty, told The Associated Press that the "kidnap plot has been developed for more than a year ago and has now been crushed by the police."

Reading a statement on behalf of McCartney, the multi-millionaire ex-Beatle, Doherty said: "Paul feels the media shouldn't blow this sort of thing up out of proportion. It puts undue pressure on his family and private life."

Bell tolls in wreck memorial
DETROIT (AP) — Howling winds blew snow across the Detroit River but couldn't mask the sound of a bell slowly tolling at a riverfront church Sunday as mourners gathered to remember the 29 people who perished in the wreck of the S.S. Edmund Fitzgerald.

"In a misty old hall in Detroit they prayed, in the Maritime Sailors' Cathedral. The church bell chimed 'til it rang 29 times for each man on the Edmund Fitzgerald," wrote Canadian singer Gordon Lightfoot in a ballad that made the Nov. 10, 1975, shipwreck part of pop culture.

But when asked directly if the latest weapons delivered to Nicaragua included Soviet-built MIG fighter planes, Weinberger said, "We are saying exactly as the president has said, there has been no confirmation that there are any planes."

In recent days Weinberger and other administration officials have distanced themselves from reports that a freighter that docked in the Nicaraguan port of Corinto on Wednesday was delivering sophisticated MIG-21 fighters to the Sandinistas.

Meanwhile, deputy White House press secretary Larry Speakes echoed Weinberger's remarks, saying the administration was still uncertain as to the cargo aboard the freighter, adding that press reports on the subject were "not helpful at all."

Bishops urge economic plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's Catholic bishops, in a major new effort to press their influence beyond religion, demanded on Sunday more jobs for the jobless and a narrowing of "morally unacceptable" gaps between rich and poor.

The first draft of the bishops' new economic policy letter raises many of the "fairness issues" that Walter Mondale used during the presidential campaign in an attempt to portray President Reagan's policies as favoring the rich over the poor.

However, the letter is not — as some conservative critics had predicted — an outright indictment of American capitalism. In the 1980s, it calls for more centralized government planning.

Nor is it a detailed blueprint for organizational or policy change. Rather, it provides a moral framework for economic decisions, insisting over and over that they be made with more consideration for those too poor, ignorant or discriminated against to defend their own interests.

Polish police disperse crowd

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Helmeted riot police peacefully dispersed a march by about 4,000 Solidarity supporters Sunday night following a Roman Catholic Mass marking Poland's pre-World War II independence day.

The crowd, chanting, "There is no freedom without Solidarity" and the name of slain pro-Solidarity priest Jerzy Popieluszko, was dispersed in the middle of its mile-long march from St. John's Cathedral to the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier.

The police, standing in a column across the street, blocked most of the marchers from continuing. However, about 100 people were allowed to carry a wreath honoring the pre-war national day to the monument.

Proxmire hits Social Security

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. William Proxmire has selected the Social Security Administration as winner of the Golden Fleece of the Month award for spending $1.8 billion and six years trying — and failing — to perfect a filing system for tape recordings of appeals hearings.

In a written statement, Proxmire, D-Wis., said hundreds of thousands of the elderly or disabled had to go through the appeals process all over again because the original tapes had been lost.

Proxmire is the ranking Democrat on the Appropriations subcommittee that oversees the Social Security Administration. He says the Golden Fleece Award goes to the "most wasteful, ridiculous, or ironic use of the taxpayers' money."

Lou Enoff, the deputy commissioner of Social Security for programs and policy confirmed the basic details of Proxmire's complaint. He conceded that "some of that money was not well spent," but characterized the effort as a good faith way of dealing with a growing problem.

Marriage tied to low drug use

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — Young people who marry after high school drink less and use fewer illicit drugs than their counterparts who live alone, with their parents or with a lover after graduation, a national study found.

The survey by the University of Michigan's Institute for Social Research questioned about 17,000 high school seniors in the classes of 1975 through 1979 and followed up with annual questionnaires.

"When they were seniors, there was little difference, on average, between those who soon would marry, those who would continue to live with their parents and those who would choose other living arrangements," said researcher Gerald G. Bachman.

"The shifts in drug use became evident only after the changes in marital status and living arrangements," said Bachman, who conducted the study with fellow social psychologists Patrick M. O'Malley and Lloyd D. Johnston at the university.

World Fair ending in red ink

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A rip roaring jazz parade Sunday didn't drown out the financial blues as the 1984 world's fair ended a six-month run, its critical acclaim overshadowed by losses of more than $100 million.

Instead of drawing the daily crowds of 90,000 or more that would have led to success, the Louisiana World Exposition averaged 39,000 a day for its 184 days — about half of what it would have taken just to break even.

The exposition goes down as the biggest financial fiasco in the annals of world fairs, owing over $100 million to 750 creditors and in the middle of a Chapter 11 reorganization under federal bankruptcy laws.

Group sees energy complacency

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Americans who were turning down the so-called "glut" of oil and natural gas — which has lured many Americans into a state of complacency — could disappear if economic conditions continue to improve, or if events in the Middle East lead to the effective closing of the Strait of Hormuz.

Stephen D. Baker, senior vice president of the American Petroleum Institute, wrote in the report.

The Strait of Hormuz is a strategic passage way out of the Persian Gulf, through which flows about 20 percent of the oil used in the non-communist world. The strait so far has not been involved in the more than four-year-old Iran-Iraq war, but Iran threatened last week to disrupt oil shipments in the gulf if price-cutting spreads.

Today's glut, which has led to falling prices, is in part a response to the economic slowdown that followed expensive oil price increases between 1973 and 1981. In reaction to rising prices, consumers around the world stepped up conservation, switched to other fuels and developed more efficient motors.

Brisk economic recoveries in the United States and Japan and renewed growth elsewhere have reversed the slide in demand for oil.

In the United States, demand for energy rose 4.7 percent in the first nine months of the year, compared with the same period a year earlier, and imports were up 8.6 percent.

House blaze leaves 8 dead

WATERBURY, Conn. (AP) — An intense fire in a three-family house early Sunday killed at least eight people, including four children, authorities said.

The victims ranged in age from 3 to 70, authorities said.

Firefighters responding to the 2 a.m. blaze found the second and third floors of the house engulfed in flames, initially leading officials to suspect the fire might have been set, said Deputy Fire Chief Martin Grody.

But Detective Sgt. Armand Marino said late Sunday that indications pointed to careless smoking or a malfunctioning electric heater as the cause.

"When the first crews got there, they found the front windows burned through," Grody said.

Any time there is a fire of that intensity, Grody said, officials tend to think it is of suspicious nature.

Milton Anthony, a neighbor awakened when his wife heard screaming, said the house was in flames by the time he reached the street and "when the firemen got there, they couldn't even get in the house."

It was 20 or 30 minutes before firefighters could gain access to the home, Grody said.

Two Soviet deserters returning home

Igor Rykhov, front, and Oleg Khlan prepare to return home.

LONDON (AP) — Two Soviet soldiers who were held captive by Afghan rebels and force-fed opium before being smuggled to Britain by a member of the European Parliament departed on Sunday for the Soviet Union and an uncertain fate.

"We think everything will be all right," Sgt. Igor Rykhov, 22, said through an interpreter as he and Pvt. Oleg Khlan, 21, were escorted by Soviet officials to a Leningrad-bound flight from London's Heathrow Airport.

But the British intelligence service saved the two from Afghan guerrillas and smuggled them into Britain said he fears they will be court-martialed and shot.

Lord Bethel, a Conservative member of the European Parliament, accused the Soviets of subjecting the soldiers to "moral blackmail" through their families.

The Soviet Embassy denied the charge. It said the two acted of their own free will when they turned themselves in at the mission on Friday and asked to be sent home "to join their families."

The return of Rykhov and Khlan followed — the recent return to the Soviet Union of two other defectors who had settled in Britain — Russian journalist Oleg Blyev and Svetlana Peters, the daughter of the late, longtime Soviet leader Joseph Stalin. Rykhov and Khlan, both Ukrainians, were mechanic-drivers in the Red Army's 1st Infantry Regiment near Kandahar in Afghanistan when they went AWOL in the summer of 1983.

"They were captured by fundamentalist Islamic Mujahideen guerrillas and taken to a camp near the Pakistani border. The rebels made the soldiers take opium to keep them docile, Bethel said.

Bethel, a bitter critic of the 1979 Soviet military intervention in Afghanistan, discovered the doped-up soldiers on a visit to the camp last June and smuggled them back to Britain.

He appealed directly to Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher on their behalf. The Home Office said they were ineligible for formal asylum because of the crime of desertion, but said they could remain in Britain for a year.

Bethel said the two soldiers had hoped to settle eventually in Canada, which has a large Ukrainian population.

But on Thursday, Rykhov, who was living with Khlan in the home of a Ukrainian family in London, got a letter from his home village of Gulkavichi. It was from his mother.

"It was the first contact he had from them for probably some years," Bethel said. "It put them into a state of considerable despair ... I'm sure the letter was sent with the knowledge of the Soviet police."

Bethel added: "The final straw ... was a picture of Igor's little girl, who he has never seen."

Reagan's honeymoon in Congress could be short-lived next session

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republicans retained control of the Senate and increased their numbers in the Democratic-controlled House, but President Reagan may enjoy only the briefest of honeymoons with the new Congress despite his huge reelection victory.

"The GOP gain of 14 seats clearly makes the House a tad more conservative in makeup, but it falls far short of GOP hopes of regaining the kind of 'working majority' Republicans enjoyed in the first two years of Reagan's term."

The new makeup suggests a Congress not nearly as pliable as the Congress that Reagan had to work with in 1981 — when he was able to push one economic program after another through both chambers in a honeymoon that lasted nearly two years.

White House spokesman Larry Speakes said Sunday he wouldn't characterize the administration's legislative strategy as a 100-day plan, "but there's surely going to be a push on our part to see that our budget proposals move through Congress as quickly as possible."

He said it was "legislative reality" that it would be best to win approval of Reagan's proposals before the mid-term congressional elections in 1986. Parties with sitting presidents always lose seats in mid-term elections.

Republicans didn't even come close to their goal of winning back the 26 seats they lost to Democrats in 1982, an election which effectively ended Reagan's success in getting his legislation through both houses of Congress.

And the modest GOP gains in the House this year were more than offset by the Democratic pickup of two seats in the Senate, trimming GOP control of that chamber to a narrow 53-47 majority.

And in those Senate races, two defeated Republican senators were replaced by relatively liberal Democrats: Rep. Paul Simon unseated Sen. Charles Percy in Illinois and Rep. Tom Harkin toppled Sen. Roger Jepsen in Iowa.

If Reagan is going to have any success with the 99th Congress, which convenes Jan. 3, he will have to press his agenda "in the first several weeks of 1985 and he will have to do quickly," said Senate Democratic Leader Robert C. Byrd of West Virginia.

"With each day that goes by, he more and more becomes a lame duck," Byrd added.

Leaders of both parties seemed to agree, in varying degrees, with Byrd's assessment that Reagan must act quickly.

Rep. Guy Vander Jagt of Michigan, chairman of the National Republican Congressional Committee, calls it "a window of opportunity, however long it lasts."

While Republicans fell short of their goal of winning back the seats lost in 1982, enough Democrats tied themselves to Reagan's programs and policies in campaigning for reelection that the new House can't help but be more conservative than the old one, even though Democrats will exercise nearly a 70-vote majority, Vander Jagt contends.

"I was in 64 congressional districts. Without exception the Democratic incumbent was running away from Walter Mondale and the Democratic team's commitment to the higher taxes and more government and reduced defense and getting as close as they could to Ronald Reagan and his policies."

Reagan must move quickly on tax plan

If President Reagan wants to make good on his campaign promise to simplify the U.S. tax code, he has to move quickly. In his post-election press conference, he repeated that he has yet to consider, much less decide on, any of the ideas being developed by his Treasury Department. But opposition to reform is already building among the numerous interests that guard every nook and cranny in the tax code.

Part of that opposition is coming, at least for the moment, from disgruntled Democratic leaders who see tax reform as a disguise for the tax hikes Ronald Reagan swore he would never support. But tax reform doesn't necessarily mean a tax boost for the average taxpayer — however welcome new tax revenue would be. The president went too far when he asserted that a tax simplification plan could ensure that no individual would have his taxes raised. But a simpler system could ensure that groups of taxpayers at various income levels end up paying the same average amounts.

In fact, one of the best tax simplification plans devised to date would achieve that general result. Its authors are Sen. Bill Bradley and Rep. Richard Gephardt — Democrats. The Bradley-Gephardt plan, like the one sponsored by Republicans Robert Kasten and Jack Kemp and the one apparently under development at the Treasury, would eliminate most deductions, exemptions and preferences. But, in return for relinquishing these tax breaks, taxpayers would be rewarded with much lower rates on their total income.

This simplification promises substantial economic and moral benefits. Investors could put their money where it would provide the greatest economic return — rather than where it would produce the biggest tax break. In time, that should help economic growth and produce more revenues. Most taxpayers would no longer have to pay for help in filing their returns. Lower tax rates would reduce the incentive for outright cheating. And everyone would feel better about paying his taxes knowing that others were also bearing their fair share.

Of course, some individuals would be worse off. Although transition rules would generally allow taxpayers to claim preferences for past investments, people who currently shield almost all their income from taxation would ultimately end up paying a higher average rate. Other people, who take very little advantage of current loopholes, could reap substantial tax savings. Whether the system is "fair" or not, however, won't depend so much on whether a specific deduction is eliminated, but on whether taxpayers at each income level end up paying a larger or smaller share of the income tax burden. And that will depend crucially on how the new system of tax rates is constructed.

The price of getting the many benefits of tax reform will be the public's agreement to wear itself from all special tax breaks and benefits. Worthy as their original objectives may have been, these preferences together distort this country's economic system and undermine its public morality. Winning that public agreement will be a true measure of the president's leadership.

Veterans Day: a time to say 'thanks'

Dale Stewart

Like most others familiar with the weapon, he preferred it over any other in the infantryman's arsenal.

His accounts of the Pacific war occasionally dealt with battle, but more often with war's waste — such as seven bulldozers being driven into a New Guinea swamp one after another to build a road — and with its seamlar but human scenes. Among those he described were the block-long lines of GI's waiting outside establishments in Manila's red-light district.

After the war, family economic conditions led Spore into a succession of unspectacular jobs instead of into the college football arena along with a lot of other returning veterans. He had received offers of scholarships from the big state universities and some others from out of state, such as Tulane, but had to pass them up.

He never lost interest in football. His constant verbal tormenting of a high school youth who was another summer employee undoubtedly helped turn that kid into an excellent running back his senior year — and in the long run helped make him into a good surgeon.

One autumn afternoon in a college football stadium, Spore watched one of the home team's defensive linemen — against whom he had played in his own career — wipe out three blockers on a single wing play. "Now, that's the way to do it!" was his reaction and you knew he was on the field in spirit if not physically.

Through his tales and comments, Spore and his co-worker had me pretty well indoctrinated when Uncle Sam's draft board called me to help defend the Republic. On my return, there were comparisons of army days as well as more fishing jaunts.

By then, Spore had become a father and appeared to be making an excellent adjustment to that role.

But one December night in 1955, an accidental gunshot in his home ended his life. The day of the funeral was sunny and mild. I adopted the services and went hunting, figuring he would understand, and might have preferred to do so himself, given a choice.

I think often of Norm Spore, not solely on Veterans Day or some other patriotic occasion. His influence has extended to another generation because I've told my own now-grown children some of his experiences and of some of the shared incidents at work and on the river banks. "It's fitting, though, that on this Veterans Day to say 'Thanks, pal,'" to Spore and to all of his fellow veterans of World War II for their contributions to the nation and to many of us as individuals.

Struggling against the arctic of soul

Charles Levendosky

"I withdraw into myself, find a quiet place in the house and think. Sometimes I lie awake at night justifying my marriage, settling things in order. Then I get up in the morning and everything falls apart. I just don't know." I hadn't heard her speak like this before, although I knew there were difficulties in her marriage and had been for at least five years.

The tone of her voice isn't keyed to an emotional sharp, nor is it flat with resignation. She speaks as if she were describing some frustrating problem with her washing machine. But the words fall from her lips and break open like soft melons. It is herself she spills.

A river of unhappiness flows below the subdued words. Cresting.

She is holding her marriage together for the children. That's what she tells herself when the lonely hours settle around her like snowdrift. Holding the marriage together doesn't warm her.

The questions she asks herself blizzard over her and blind her. If she leaves and deprives her children of a two-parent home, how will it affect them? Will they withdraw from their friends, will they withdraw from her? Will they blame her; will they blame themselves? Yet, can't they sense how poorly the marriage bonds hold? What sense of love do they learn from the cold and bitter climate of their home?

In moments like these she feels herself struggling against sleep. She feels the coming dawn, the wintry sun. She feels her new frigidity. She feels a rising to death in the winter of their marriage. She flails the air for warmth. Again and again.

And keeps herself busy, this woman who once enjoyed hours reading, tending the garden, listening to music, and putting around the house. Now she tries not to be home. Gathers activities into her vacant arms like flowers, like lovers, like tiny children. Doing things keeps her from dwelling on the emptiness, for awhile. Activity holds back the cold dark. Moving from one point to another, because she has "responsibilities" allows her to avoid facing the decision she must eventually face. Within herself.

If she keeps busy enough she can forget the arctic in her life. Temporarily. She can forget the lingering snowstorms, the brief thaws which never last long enough to melt the underlayers of ice; she can turn her attention away from the glacier moving inexorably toward her home. She shivers unaccountably and turns up the heat.

She feels she has failed. The mirror of her mind reflects how unworthy she is of love and kindness. She withers before her own unkind gaze. She listens to her own testimony, then finds herself guilty of being selfish and unloving. Guilty of being greedy for emotional fulfillment.

Each day has whittled at her sense of self-worth. "But she's a shy child wrapped in a shroud," she would rather not look. She turns away. But inside she suspects she will never be worthy of love, again.

Her body and her emotions are out of phase. She sees herself as if she were another person observing. It, out of habit, she mouths some tiny tenderness to her husband, she hears herself saying it as someone else speaking. It seems mechanical. It seems distant. Some tiny voice out of their past. She knows that she knows. She is quiet, again. She embraces the silence for solace.

And at night, lying next to her husband without touching, she waits while the air cool between them, she stares at the wall on the side of the bed she hugs. She feels trapped in her bed, her life, trapped against the wall she leans toward.

Trapped within the walls she created to keep her husband out. She no longer wants the tenderness he offers. The irony of that — once that tenderness made her feel whole and womanly, and she yearned for it more frequently than it was given. Now she has turned her back. And inside shrinks at his touch. And her flesh becomes wail. The sad walls she lives within.

In the moonlight through the blinds, she notices little details, a finger smudge, a shoe mark, on the bare bedroom wall near her head. The accumulating stains and smears of daily life crowd in on her. They seem a sign — barely discernible in the dark, but clearer than the path she seeks.

She stares yet stops seeing the wall. She sees her pain. She sees the dream of life together, their growing old together fade like a mirage. She wants to fade with it. She has begun mourning the death of their dream. In this cold desert, she sees the hours flow like sand into months and years. She doesn't remember falling asleep, nor whether she did. She hibernates.

Nothing is solved. Again.

Educators may have lost out, but perhaps not education

BOISE — On the surface, it might appear that educators and education turned up the big losers in election night's legislative races.

Educators yes, but education may not. Life poplars before a buzz saw, members of the Idaho Education Association went down to defeat at the hands of Republicans.

The IEA's political action committee backed 33 House candidates that lost, and 11 Senate candidates who finished second.

Pete Black and Linda Dewey, Democratic incumbents running in Democratic stronghold Pocatello, were the only IEA members able to withstand the Reagan-Republican onslaught.

Even former IEA president Darryl Salazar, an ex-house member, couldn't defeat Republican businessman Bernia Rakoz in a key Ada County Senate race.

Educator J.C. Worthen lost an Ada County Senate battle to Rep. Rachel Gilbert, R-Boise. And incumbent Rep. Dan Kelly of Mountain Home, a teacher, fell before a Republican challenger.

Rep. Linden Bateman, R-Idaho Falls, resigned recently from the IEA because that group declined to endorse him, despite his hard work to pass last session's major education bills. Bateman won despite IEA opposition. And Sugar City educator Thomas Kershaw, a Democrat, lost a House seat that had been held by a Democrat for 16 years in eastern Idaho.

Quane Kenyon

That might signal hard times for education. House Speaker Tom Silvers immediately started talking about cutting the state budget. And since education takes three-quarters of the state's tax revenue, that could only mean cutting education.

But a variety of sources say just the opposite might be true. For the first time in modern politics, Republicans the next two sessions will have a veto-proof Legislature to override action by a Democratic governor.

Democrats had that control in the 1930s, when they swept to power in Franklin Delano Roosevelt's New Deal landslide. Willi Ben Ross the Democratic governor, the party had full control of state government in that era. But between 1946 and 1970, all the governors were Republicans. Democrats controlled the Legislature for the last time in 1955, but without the ability to override vetoes.

Since 1970, Idaho has had Republican-dominated Legislatures and Democratic governors. But never before has the GOP had enough votes to fully control the process and override vetoes.

Education funding has become the basic battle of recent sessions, with Democrats generally calling for higher spending and Republicans for less.

But now, with unbridled GOP authority to set the budgets, political leaders say that doesn't necessarily mean the GOP will cut education support.

Lt. Gov. David Leroy, who will preside over Senate sessions, points out that a year ago, the Republican Party drew up a point education plan, parts of which served as the blueprint for last session's major education bill.

Leroy said. "Perhaps they will get more credit now for their good work in that area," he said.

The next session will have an almost unprecedented number of newcomers. There will be 43 freshmen in the 126-member Legislature, although some have served before, like Phil Batt in the Senate and Myron Jones in the House.

Leroy agrees with Silvers that many freshmen will be conservative — on financial and tax matters. "On issues that require a change in policy — such as education — I expect them to be very progressive," he said.

"The voters have expressed strongly held opinions for changes in the quality of social systems such as education."

Don Rolfe, executive secretary of the IEA, said a "significant number" of the IEA's endorsed candidates won. And he said Silvers' announcements about cutting government aren't new or unexpected. "For him, that's fairly standard stuff. That's his stock, pre-legislative comments," Rolfe said.

Both Leroy and Rolfe say education got a boost when voters defeated a proposal to remove the sales tax from groceries. The IEA mounted no public campaign against it, but quickly informed its members that education funding might suffer if state coffers lost up to $20 million in sales tax revenues.

"Education won a significant victory in that election. They're $20 million ahead of where they were supposed to be at this time," said Leroy.

Rolle said the IEA's major priorities — basic school funding, the second stage of a two-year effort to improve teacher salaries and funding for the new "career ladder" system — will cost upwards of $50 million next year. "I think we should be thankful the initiative was defeated," he said.

Leroy also noted that the Senate has a number of Republican moderates who aren't likely to jump at the call of the conservative Silvers. He mentioned Batt, Roger Fairchild of Fruitland and Laird Nob of Kimberly. "Whatever happens, Rolfe said, the IEA won't allow a rift between public schools and higher education for state funding. "That's happened in the past, but it won't happen now."

Vets Day ceremony today in city park

TWIN FALLS — The local post of the American Legion will celebrate Veterans Day today with a ceremony in the Twin Falls City Park.

Plans are not yet final but Commander Donald Siglon says it will be "a solemn occasion which reminds us all of the heavy price others have paid to protect and defend the freedoms we all enjoy."

The ceremony is planned for the northeast corner of the park at 10:30 a.m. Siglon says he expects veterans who fought from World War I to more recent hostilities to attend.

Children will attend school as usual. But the College of Southern Idaho plans to close to honor veterans.

Most stores will be open as usual.

Since Monday is a federal holiday, banks and the post office will be closed. All federal and state offices will be closed, as will the county courthouse.

Twin Falls City Hall will remain open.

Ice, snow cause headaches for drivers

By BONNIE BAIRD-JONES
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Motorists were having problems with winter arrival Saturday night and Sunday as black ice and a heavy snow storm combined to take a toll of cars and trucks on Magic Valley highways.

Idaho State police said Interstate 84 in the area of Sweetzer pass was "a mess of jackknifed trucks and skidding cars" for several hours Saturday night.

ISP Dispatcher Lori Oliver estimated about 40 vehicles were either off the road jackknifed or held up at Sweetzer Pass at one time late Saturday night.

She said it was necessary to send a four-wheel drive unit to the scene for the Idaho State Police officer to use while attempting to assist the motorists and clear the highway.

The Interstate was temporarily closed for a time when it became completely blocked by the vehicle pile-up. State officers were advising no travel between Burley and the Idaho-Utah state line unless absolutely necessary.

At the time snow was falling on black ice and a packed snow floor, making it extremely slick. Trucks were losing traction on the pass, she said, and jackknifing as they began sliding back down the highway. Numerous cars were also off the road in a stretch of several miles.

In the Blaine County area, highways and streets remained icy as the snow storm continued through most of Sunday.

Two drivers collided on Elkhorn Road in Blaine County Saturday night resulting in injury to one passenger. Officers said a van driven by Philip Pinbette of Sun Valley and a car driven by Lupe Lafferty of Ketchum collided on ice. Barbara Gilmartin, a passenger in the Lafferty vehicle, was treated for injuries at the Moritz Community Hospital in Sun Valley. The accident occurred at 8:45 p.m. Officers said there was snow, black ice and fog in the area at the time.

One man was injured near the junction of U.S. 93 and I-84 southeast of Jerome about 7:30 a.m. Sunday. ISP reported Sengko Vongphrachanh, 17, of Twin Falls was going onto I-84 from U.S. 93 when his small sedan slid sideways, crossed both lanes of traffic and left the roadway. Officers said the vehicle rolled over one and one-half times and came to rest in the median. He was treated for minor injuries and released but was cited for basic rule violation — driving too fast for road conditions.

State, county and city officers reported numerous minor accidents throughout Magic Valley as motorists began getting used to winter driving practices.

Needy refugees arrive

By DEAN S. MILLER
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Marvin Glasscock thought he had his hands full with 22 new Cambodians at the Refugee Center on Kimberly Road two weeks ago. Then someone phoned from the airport to say a family of 11 had arrived and was waiting for someone to pick them up.

In the past two weeks, 33 Cambodian refugees have arrived in Twin Falls after having spent up to six years in refugee camps in Thailand.

Glasscock, who is the director of the center, says there are about 430 Cambodians now living in the Magic Valley but that the latest arrivals are at a disadvantage compared to their countrymen who arrived earlier.

Most of the new arrivals have no sponsoring family to help them make the early stages of transition into American life and because they have been in the refugee camps longer, they have arrived with less money. Glasscock says some of the children arrived barefoot.

"We need just about anything for them," Glasscock said Friday. Clothing, housewares and toys for the children are on the list of items he says area residents can donate by dropping them at the center or center staffers will pick them up.

Though the newcomers are now settled in rental housing, many of them found temporary quarters with Young Pook, a refugee who has been here long enough to learn some English and land a job at Idaho Frozen Foods. "He takes all comers," Glasscock says.

This family of 11 from Cambodia is the most recent group of refugees to arrive in the Magic Valley

Glasscock said he had no sooner found housing for a family of 12 that had been staying with Pook, when the family of 11 arrived.

The Refugee Center finds housing for refugee immigrants, arranges for them to take English courses at the College of Southern Idaho and in the public schools, and tries to place the refugees in jobs.

The success rate for placing the refugees in jobs is good, says Glasscock.

A refugee cash assistance program gives financial support and food stamps to refugees for 18 months or until they can find work and Glasscock says almost all the refugees have found work.

Many of the Cambodians who arrived previously are now working at Idaho Frozen Foods, where personnel director Dave Phillips says they are winning attendance and service awards.

The Sun Valley Lodge also employs 56 Cambodians, Glasscock says.

Glasscock, 72, is a retired director of continuing education at CSI and look on the Refugee Center in 1980.

Police salaries approved

By DAVE LEWIS
Times-News writer

BURLEY — The Burley City Council recently approved a revised salary schedule for members of the city police department.

The new schedule was ironed out in a special session after a schedule formulated by Police Chief Leman Messley was found not to be within guidelines established by the council.

According to Councilman Garth Payne, the council mandated that salary budgets for each city department be increased by 5 percent, with amounts of raises to employees to be at the discretion of department heads.

The council also approved 6 percent pay raises for all city department heads.

The problem in the police department salary schedule was brought to light following the resignation of police officer Brian Hawkins.

Payne says Messley included the resigning officer's salary in the amount of money to be disbursed to other department employees as pay raises, resulting in the department being one worker short and department employees receiving larger raises than mandated by the council.

Under the revised schedule approved by the council, pay raises ranging from 3 percent to 15 percent will be awarded to workers in the Burley police department.

The amounts of the raises are based on length of service and the department head's judgment of the worker's efficiency. One probationary employee and two uncertified officers will not receive increases.

The department's yearly salary budget is now $753,312.

Stallings confident of win, relishing role of independence

By BOB FICK
The Associated Press

BOISE, Idaho (AP) — At ease in his hometown in one of Idaho's most conservative counties, Richard Stallings, confident his razor-thin lead for Congress and without vote certification, may find himself the man in the middle when he walks into the Capitol next January.

A Democratic outside in a previously all-Republican state delegation, the conservative history professor, if true to his past and his campaign pledges for Congress and without vote certification, may find himself the man in the middle when he walks into the Capitol next January.

A Democratic outside in a previously all-Republican state delegation, the conservative history professor, if true to his past and his campaign pledges for Congress and without vote certification, may find himself the man in the middle when he walks into the Capitol next January.

But the future freshman congressman is finishing what he calls his congressional independence, contending he will not be nearly as fast on the outside of everything as circumstances might suggest.

"There's a conservative wing in the Democratic Party," Stallings insisted, in an interview from his Rexburg home after Tuesday's election left him with a 66-vote margin over incumbent Republican Rep. George Hansen.

The bitter campaign that wrenched southern Idaho's 2nd District for months focused in part on whether Stallings as a Democrat from a conservative district could avoid succumbing to the pressures of House leaders like liberal Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill of Massachusetts.

Stallings, 44, constantly denied that he would align himself with party liberals, but when asked whether he would join the southern Democrats, the Boll Weevils who helped President Reagan pass his massive budget cuts in 1981, he said, "I'm not going to be a Boll Weevil. I'm going to vote independently. I think that's what Idahoans elected me to do.

"I'm not going to vote for the liberal philosophy," he asserted. "But I don't think Idahoans elected me to be a yes-man for Reagan. We're going to have a maverick from Idaho, but that's what Idahoans want."

His victory, should it stand, is his first in four political campaigns, two for the state Legislature and his 1982 run as an underfunded and poorly organized challenger to Hansen — a race he only narrowly lost.

But his political interest goes back much farther. He first became involved in politics while earning his bachelor degree at Weber State College in the early 1960s when he campaigned for former Utah Gov. Calvin Rampton, a popular Democratic moderate in an arch-conservative state.

As a Mormon, he had already completed his two-year church mission to New Zealand and after earning a masters degree at the University of Utah, he was offered and accepted a teaching position in 1969 at conservative Dixie College in Rexburg, a two-year school owned by the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints.

He has since been named head of the school's history department and is taking a leave of absence to serve in Congress. His wife Renae and his three children plan to remain in Rexburg until summer until after daughter Sallianne graduates from high school.

The fine line Stallings has had to walk between the liberal-to-moderate positions of the Democratic Party and the conservative views held by most of his constituents has already caused him trouble.

Throughout the campaign, Stallings repeatedly had to distance himself from national Democratic platform stands on issues like the nuclear freeze, the Equal Rights Amendment and abortion — all anathema to most southern Idahoans.

As a self-proclaimed maverick, Stallings will have to keep walking that line in the House chamber — something others have tried and found difficult at best.

Effective mavericks like Phil Gramm of Texas, who pushed Reagan's budget cuts through the Democratic House in 1981, are effectively forced out of the party. Gramm finally became a Republican. Others have stayed within the party but have been shunted aside.

O'Neill and other House Democratic leaders recognize some constituent problems facing members, especially new ones, on many key issues and tend to overlook opposing votes when they don't really threaten the outcome. But the

Blaine Republicans happy with results

HAILEY — Blaine County Republicans are satisfied with, some jubilant over, the results of last week's general election, and with good reason.

In a county that often goes heavily Democratic, the Republicans matched up well and came away with some key victories in the ballot's 12 contested races, particularly on the county level.

The results were mixed, with voters crossing over party lines and giving clear victories to candidates of each party.

Countywide, Democrats got 51.1 percent of the vote. However, six Republican candidates outperformed their challengers while five Democrats did so. One race ended in a virtual tie.

Importantly, Republicans held on to both contested county Board of Commissioners seats when many thought only one was possible. And, they returned their sheriff to office with a close victory in a hot and bitter sheriff's race.

For their part, the Democrats areas totally dependent. They provided the margin of victory for state Sen. John Peavey, D-Carey, in his close victory over Republican Wes Tronsden of Gooding.

They also gave Democrat Richard Stallings a landslide and just enough votes to secure his narrow win over Republican Cong. George Hansen and a ticket to Washington, D.C.

For most Democrats, those two races marked their day.

Voters jumped around the ballot, making the outcome a little hard to analyze.

At the top of the ballot, President Reagan won very easily and U.S. Sen. James McClure, a Republican, won with a sizeable margin over Democrat Pete Busch. If Busch was to win any county, it was Blaine.

The next two races belonged to the Democrats where Stallings and Peavey were big landslide winners.

In the five other state Legislative races for Districts 22 and 25, it was almost a toss-up with the Democrats taking slightly better.

But in the three contested county races, the Republicans won, with the most surprising win being incumbent Robert Gardner's win over Democrat Tom Blanchard.

Blanchard, seen as an environmentalist from Bellevue, was expected to win in Ketchum, where environmentalists were expected to vote heavily for him. Gardner, who switched parties after the Ketchum vote carried into office two years ago, appeared to be in trouble.

Although Ketchum voters went with Blanchard, they didn't in overwhelming numbers and Gardner won by 475 votes.

What happened to Blanchard happened to most Democrats in Ketchum.

"I think the real difference (in the outcome) is that the people who were expected to carry Ketchum by wide margins didn't," says Tim Phillips, an attorney active in the Democratic party.

"They won, but not by enough to overcome a party split in Hailey and a strong Republican vote in the south county.

Why the expected didn't happen isn't clear, but there are suggestions.

Republican county chairman Marty Orwig attributes it to a strong Republican organizing effort, Reagan's continual aid, in the case of Gardner, a strong candidate with whom the Ketchum voters could identify.

The coalition may have dragged a few to Republicans, but Democrats say a conservative trend among young voters in Ketchum may have had an effect.

Still another factor, they say, was the inability of the challengers to overcome the name recognition of the incumbents.

Twin Falls GOP wins big — as usual

TWIN FALLS — For party organizations in Twin Falls County, the results of Tuesday's election were more of the same thing that has been occurring here for years.

"I'm happy. I knew all our local legislative races were in great shape," says Elaine Phillips, chairman of the Twin Falls Republican Party. "I was disappointed Congressman Hansen didn't do better than he has."

Except for Rep. George Hansen's race against Democrat Richard Stallings, every Republican on the ballot in Twin Falls County won. An unofficial count of ballots shows Stallings holding a statewide 66-vote lead over Hansen.

"I think that the Republican Party represents the views of the people who live here," Phillips said. "Our candidates were better qualified on issues... The Democrats were single-issue candidates," she said.

But Phillips says she recognizes progress in this year's Democratic Party effort. "They're building some numbers and some grass roots."

Dennis Maughan, the Democrat chairman for Twin Falls County, said he is being encouraged with Tuesday's results. "I thought we would do much better."

"It takes an excellent Democratic candidate to beat a poor Republican candidate in this area," he says, but adds, "We

Filer incident results in 2 arrests

TWIN FALLS — A filer man who allegedly attempted to run down patrons in a parking lot early Sunday morning, and a Twin Falls man who tried to put a stop to the activities both found themselves facing aggravated assault charges.

Twin Falls City police received a call shortly after 1 a.m. Sunday saying a man had been removed from the Diamondfield Jack lounge at Canyon Springs Inn, and then drove through the parking area, allegedly attempting to run down persons walking from the business to their vehicles. The suspect was identified as Cecil Galley, 25, of Filer.

A man identified as Raub Eugene Owens, 22, of Twin Falls, reportedly got into his own vehicle and went after Galley, chasing him to the Twin Falls County courthouse parking lot. A few minutes later Galley entered the sheriff's office in the courthouse to report he had been beaten up.

Owens then followed him to the sheriff's office, carrying shot gun. Officers said Owens had allegedly pointed the gun at Galley and threatened to shoot him.

Youth injured in traffic accident

TWIN FALLS — A Twin Falls youth was injured in a one-vehicle accident Saturday in the 1000 block of Washington St. N.

The vehicle went out of control and struck the pole. A passenger, Mike Jasper, 14, was treated for minor injuries and released.

Clifford J. Bemis, 31, of Twin Falls was also injured in a traffic accident just before 1 a.m. Sunday.

Silva arrested for break-in TWIN FALLS — A 26-year-old Twin Falls man was arrested and charged with first degree burglary early Sunday morning.

Ignacio Silva was charged with breaking into the Pioneer Bar at 1519 Kimberly Rd. about 3 a.m. Sunday. Officers said Peter Boetwick reported about $258 in damage and missing items as a result of the burglary. A large plate glass window was broken to gain entry and two 12-packs of beer and some small change were taken.

Officers arrested the suspect shortly after the break-in was reported. Police said Silva was located in the vicinity of the bar as he sat in his car drinking a beer.

Drums were taken from a vehicle at the Canyon Springs Inn parking lot on Blue Lakes Boulevard Saturday night. Even L. McEwen, 16, said the drums were in a vehicle parked in the lot when it was broken into and the instruments taken. He estimated loss at $650.

Dewey Marks told police Sunday that someone broke into his residence at 1586 Blue Lakes N., and took about $1,000 in change, two guns and the keys to a van on his car lot near his home. The van was also taken, he said. He estimated his loss at $3,000.

Headline corrected

TWIN FALLS — A headline in the Saturday edition of The Time-News incorrectly stated that the property that is the site of the historic Stricker cabin was rezoned Thursday at the Twin Falls County Zoning Commission meeting.

Symms takes barbs at roast

BOISE (AP) — The barbs for Steve Symms were bi-partisan this weekend as members of both major political parties took their shots at the Republican senator's roast.

About 225 people attended the $50-a-plate dinner Saturday night when Symms for his work with Sen. Alan Cranston and Barry Goldwater on a bill that would have created a separate institution to do research on arthritis.

"The people in Washington thought I was going to fill Steve's shoes," said Rep. Larry Craig, a Republican who won Symms' old 1st Congressional District seat in 1982.

"They thought he was a typical Idaho voter," Craig said. "But there are not too many people with two right feet."

"You must never feel sorry for the roaster," said Democrat and master of ceremonies Larry LaRocco. "He's been dishing it out for decades; now it is his turn to take it."

LaRocco said he appreciated the work Symms had done for the arthritis foundation.

He said that as a Democrat, though, he felt out of place. "I've never been in a room with this many winners."

Arthur DeRosier, president of the College of Idaho, said when Steve Ahrens, a lobbyist for Boise Cascade Corp., asked him to roast Symms he thought Ahrens meant Dick Symms.

"I thought he meant the Dick Symms who started the Stee-Chappelle Winery and brought out champagne this year," DeRosier said. "I thought we were going to honor someone who works."

Election rumor discounted

IDAHO FALLS (AP) — A Bonneville County election official says there's no truth to reports that Democrat Richard Stallings has picked up 17 votes in his election effort against Republican George Hansen.

Stallings apparently defeated Hansen by 68 votes out of more than 202,000 cast Tuesday night, in final unofficial results.

Reports circulated statewide on Friday that a 682 count in Bonneville had added 17 votes to the Stallings victory.

Recorder Ellen Bingham said Saturday there was nothing to the report. Bonneville, like other counties, counts the vote election night, then sealed and stored the ballot boxes until the county commission can certify the results.

Outcome of the election won't be official until Nov. 21, when the state Board of Canvassers reviews reports from all 14 Idaho counties.

Hansen has indicated he may ask for a recount if Stallings' margin holds up.

Election officials said a number of rumors have been circulating since election night. A person who said he was calling from Jefferson County called a number of places on Wednesday, declaring that the results had been reversed and Hansen was the winner, state election officials said.

News report clarified

TWIN FALLS — A story in the Saturday edition of The Times-News incorrectly implied that the Twin Falls County Prosecutor's office was ordered to clear up a backlog of cases by the Idaho Supreme Court.

The principal cause of the backlog was the result of a set of guidelines contained in a Supreme Court order that is effective statewide. The guidelines concerned speeding up the processing of cases.

have been pressing throughout Reagan's presidency for higher federal price supports and greater government assurances of producer income protection, while he stands for organic and non-organic.

For now, Stallings remains confident in his position, knowing that most Idaho farmers agree with him.

Stallings admits that if he wants to keep southern Idaho in Democratic hands he will have to do more than just beat Hansen, a flamboyant conservative who was plagued by a felony conviction and nagging financial questions, but still fell only 66 votes short of Stallings' 101,088.

To Stallings, that means returning to Idaho from Washington nearly every weekend and building a competent staff of Idahoans, both in Idaho and in Washington, to handle matters important to southern Idaho voters.

"If the people are satisfied, I think they'll re-elect me," he said of his history in the same election Reagan caparen't going to die and roll over. We're still in a building process. We need to right now — start building for '88."

Maughan says much of the work to be done is educating voters about what a Western Democrat is. "We need to not be perceived as a far-out leftist organization... People perceive the Democratic Party as the way it is back east," he says.

"I think we can keep them together," Maughan says of his party's faithful workers. "They're used to being discouraged. This isn't the first time... A lot of people say they can't wait until '88."

Errors of grammar, spelling harm newspaper's credibility

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

Writer's art

Lane Smith, assistant managing editor of the Seattle Times, wrote a first-rate piece a few weeks ago on the errors of grammar, spelling and usage that so often afflict our newspapers. He made no excuses. It's hard, after all, to excuse reporters who regularly slip into such misspellings as surprised, disastrous, bizarre and liaison.

Smith's point was that such lapses undermine a newspaper's credibility: "Some readers wonder whether a newspaper that makes careless little mistakes in spelling and grammar might also be careless with facts."

The point is well taken. In recent weeks, readers have seen some would-be examples of the kind of thing Lane Smith decried. Many of the examples, said to have come from the Associated Press. There was a time when AP prided itself on the high quality of writing that went over its wire.

This is how the AP handled a quote involving Green Bay's wide receivers John Jefferson and James Lofton: "It's unfortunate the fans didn't see the showdown," said Jefferson, referring to the publicized battle between him and Lofton against Los Angeles cornerback Lester Hayes and Mike Haynes."

In Montgomery, Ala., the AP reported that a retired minister and his wife had been troubled by supernatural occurrences: "The Rev. Fred Rucker said that several entities have been causing trouble for he and his wife Ruby."

The AP's reporter at the U.S. Open had an interesting comment on the match between Martina Navratilova and Chris Evert Lloyd: "In one of the most closest women's finals in recent years, there were only five service breaks."

In Los Angeles, the AP asked actor Danby Coleman about some of his roles on television: "The baddest was Buffalo Bill Bittenger, the talk-show host with no visible redeeming qualities."

In Birmingham, Ala., the AP provided a truly explicit explanation of an injury that has troubled golfer Fuzzy Zoeller. The ailing athlete "was taken to Brockwood Medical Center Hospital suffering from extreme back pain in his back."

The Seattle reader who sent me a clipping of Lane Smith's penitent column added a thoughtful comment: "What gets me is not so much that the mistakes slip through as that high school graduates make them in the first place." Amerto that.

On a happier note, let me cite a few examples of the good writing that flows like roses amid the thorns. Arnold Markowitz, a staff writer for The Miami Herald, had a great lead on a hurricane story: "Tropical Storm Isidore turned inland Thursday after clinging to Florida's Atlantic coast as if it were a handrail."

And to come back to The Seattle Times, columnist Emmett Watson one Sunday went to services at St. Mark's Cathedral. "This was done without any idea of running my grubby soul through an ecclesiastical car wash, but rather to take a look at the old building up on 10th Avenue East."

Notice one thing that all three of those examples have in common: They relied upon objects in nature to describe people and things and car washes. It's said that the sweetest meat is closest to the bone. The sweetest smiles and metaphors, I submit, are drawn from images closest home.

Mom OKs teens sharing bedroom

DEAR ABBY: You recently answered a reader's query regarding a brother and sister sleeping in the same room at the ages of 14 and 11 by saying "My experts say children of the opposite sex require their privacy after age 10."

Granted, I am not an expert, but I do have a daughter, 16, and a son, 15, who have been sharing a bedroom since they were born, and I think this has been good for them.

One of the greatest joys I have received from sleeping in the same room with my husband is the joy of sharing in the peacefulness of a darkened room, experiences, thoughts and feelings that have occurred during the day.

Many evenings, my husband and I have stood in the hallway and heard the children talking about their friends, teachers, relatives, even us; sharing ideas and discussing problems.

When children share a bedroom, they learn to cooperate, share and compromise.

As a final note, I do not feel there is any difference in having a brother and sister share a bedroom as opposed to two brothers or two sisters.

Thanks for allowing me to state my dissenting opinion.

I would appreciate knowing what you think about my ideas. Just call me.

Abigail VanBuren Dear Abby

Very strong sexual urges in that period in the life of a normal teenage boy and girl.

To subject them to the nightly stress of such close private physical proximity is not only unfair to them, but also presents a greater risk of subjecting them to a potentially traumatic and incestuous experience.

My psychiatric consultants tell me that brother and sister incest is probably the most common form of incest and the least frequently reported; and it is most likely to occur when brothers and sisters share sleeping quarters.

All the positive aspects — the beauty of sharing ideas, discussing problems, and learning to cooperate and compromise — are quite irrelevant. Brothers and sisters can learn these things without sharing sleeping quarters.

The husband-wife relationship is vastly different from the brother-sister relationship, and to compare one with the other is sure to create serious confusion in the minds of the children.

guests who appreciate fine wine have told us that this wine is far from cheap.

Abby, for the amount of money spent on the wine, we would rather have a Christmas gift we could enjoy personally. Is there some tactful way to make that suggestion?

NON-DRINKERS: No. Thank the company graciously and serve the wine to your guests.

DEAR ABBY: Some good friends of ours have a boy who is 14 and a girl who is nearly 11. These children share a bedroom ("twin beds"). We don't think this is a healthy setup for children of these ages and of the opposite sex.

We've brought up the subject several times, but our friends say, "Oh, they're both good kids — there's nothing to worry about."

The father has been talking about building another room onto the house ever since we've known them, but he never seems to get around to it. (He found time, however, to build a patio and a sun porch.)

Abby, what do your experts say about this subject? If we can get a professional opinion, maybe these people will wake up.

CONCERNED FRIENDS

DEAR FRIENDS: My experts say children of the opposite sex require their privacy after age 10.

'84-'85 CSI cagers debut Tuesday

By LARRY HOVEY
Times-News Staff

TWIN FALLS — If one word sums up where Coach Fred Trenkle figures his 1984-85 College of Southern Idaho men's basketball team will show improvement, it is "consistency."

That's consistency in better help off the court, rebounding on both ends of the bench, quickness, scoring from all five positions and, in Trenkle's favorite area of the game, intensity.

"Potentially I have to believe this is a lot better team overall than last year," Trenkle says. "But it remains to be seen if that potential can be realized."

AARON COMBS
Strength on boards

"Last year it seemed someone or another had his mind wandering somewhere but not on the game in just about all the games. I don't expect that to happen much with this bunch," Trenkle says.

Augmenting that, the second-year coach adds "we don't have the big inside players but I believe the rebounding consistency will be much better. We don't have the 'fill 'em up' guy but I think we have eight or nine people you would have to regard as good shooters from 18-19 feet on in. Expect this to be a good free throw shooting team. In our first two scrimmages we were 22-for-28 and 26-for-34 and that's excellent shooting. And I think our very solid overall size is going to be a factor defensively."

On those points, Trenkle's first concern has been the boards which were a sometime-on, sometime-off thing last year. "First, I expect Kevin Hulse and Aaron Combs to be very consistent on the boards. They are going to run into taller people who will rebound them at times. But no one is going to be more physical than those two. We're calling them the 'bruise brothers' and they've left their impressions on the teams we've scrimmaged."

"I think the major difference is we are going to get rebounding from our guards this year. They all range from 6-3 to 6-6 and they have been going to the boards well."

In that area, Trenkle anticipates the 6-foot-8 Combs will get off to a slower start than the others for two reasons: First, he has missed 2 1/2 weeks of practice with a strained achilles tendon and, second, he is a transfer from University of Oklahoma who did not play last year.

"For two years, Combs has just been a practice player," says Trenkle. "He has to get back into the routine of preparing himself mentally to play in games and concentrating."

Expanding on team shooting, Trenkle says "it will be a little different this year. We'll be playing without a point guard in the vein of a Dewey Haley. In the five-man passing game we are seeing shooting from virtually everyone — but that's not including range. You won't see many of those 24-footers. So while we are not a great shooting team, our guys are compensating by understanding what shots we want and taking those. We're shot over 50 percent in all our scrimmages and that's very decent."

KEVIN HULSEY
He'll help inside

Defensively Trenkle demands the most effort from the other team has the ball. From that standpoint he already is pleased with the effort his charges are making although "we still have the expectable rough spots. This can be a good pressing team. With our guards running 6-3 to 6-6, at time it could be smothering. Our run and jump defense has been good in the preseason."

Although there are few familiar faces, Trenkle still is working with seven sophomores. Coming back from last year are 6-3 Larry Brown of Chicago, the team's second-leading scorer and quickest player; 6-6 Derrick Hopkins of Toledo, Ohio, the team's second-leading rebounder; 6-4 Lowell Cisowski, a part-time swingman starter from Gary, Ind., who will probably start at guard this time around; and Hulse, a 6-6 Jerome product who also started at times last

Big Sky title: Color it MSU blue and gold

By MARILYN HAUKESEKX
The Associated Press

Montana State clinched the Big Sky Conference college football championship Saturday by beating Northern Arizona while Boise State fell to Weber State.

Montana State, 8-2 in the season and 4-1 in Big Sky play, knocked Northern Arizona 41-3 while BSU squandered an 11-point lead with eight minutes left to play and fell to Weber State 23-21.

In other Big Sky action, Idaho slipped by Idaho State 45-42 and Nevada-Reno defeated Montana 31-28.

"We're extremely excited and I'm very happy for the players," said Montana State head coach Dave Arnold upon clinching the title. "They worked hard and overcame something nobody thought they could do. We're on the ones who deserve the praise."

Sophomore quarterback Kelly Bradley passed for 361 yards and four touchdowns in less than three quarters. He stalked the Bobcats to 7-0 lead two minutes into the game against the Lumberjacks, 4-4 and 3-5.

Montana State scored again on its next possession and then opened a 17-0 lead on the first play of the second quarter as Mark Carter kicked a 24-yard field goal.

Bradley, who completed 31 of 45 passes, threw for two more touchdowns in the first five minutes of the second half. Carter's 22-yard field goal gave Montana State a 41-0 lead near the end of the third quarter.

The Lumberjacks' only score came when Sean Blankenship kicked a field goal midway through the final quarter.

Saturday, the Bobcats will play upper division Fresno State and "we're looking forward to playing a good Fresno State team and would like to finish our regular season 9-2," Arnold said.

Arnold said Montana State's post-season play may be partially determined by the "Bobcats" showing against the FSU Bulldogs.

In Boise Saturday, Weber State, 5-6 for the season and 3-4 in conference play, came from 11 points down with eight minutes left to play. The loss shattered the Broncos' chances for an NCAA Division I-AA playoff berth, leaving Boise State 6-4 and 4-2.

Weber State ran up 447 yards total offense — almost 100 yards more than usual — to 437 yards for Boise State.

Ninety-eight of those yards came on the game-ending drive with 1:03 left in the game that saw quarterback Dave Strenman hit tightend Craig Stama with 11 seconds left on the clock.

Dolphins win 11th straight, but just barely

By JOEY HOLLEMAN
The Associated Press

MIAMI — For the first time this season, the Miami Dolphins had to rely on good fortune to win a football game, but they got it Sunday when Doug Betters broke through to block an extra point attempt and preserve a 24-23 victory over the Philadelphia Eagles.

On the strength of Betters' well-timed right mitt, the unbeaten Dolphins moved to 11-0 for the second best start in National Football League history. The 1972 Dolphins, the only team ever to record an unbeaten season, did that in 1972.

Coach Don Shula's crew has won 17 consecutive regular-season games. Only the 1937-38 Chicago Bears with 17 have bettered that streak, and only the 1941-42 Bears and the 1972 Dolphins led that mark.

"There are a lot of ways to win football games," Shula said. "And blocking a PAT is one of them. We had to do that today because Philadelphia played an excellent football game."

Betters, a 6-foot-7 defensive end, said the game-winning play was the result of long hours in the film room. He said he had broken through the soft spot he noticed in the films and barely-tipped Paul McFadden's first extra-point kick in the game. He went through the same hole for his block with 1:52 left.

"We've been working on this," he said. "We saw that No. 64 (Deen Miraldi) had a weakness."

"Three or four guys wedged together to open the lane for me. I caught it right on my fingertips. It wasn't much, but it was enough to knock it off."

Philadelphia Coach Campbell said he was concentrating on preparing the defense for the final two minutes when he looked up and saw the block.

"I thought it was going to be over time, to be honest," Campbell said.

"You've got to give them credit — they did a good job."

"We played so hard and lost, and that hurts more because of the work our guys put into it."

The Dolphins, who had trailed only three times all season, spent more than three quarters on the short end of the score — until they scored two touchdowns in 3:44 bridging the third and fourth periods to take a 21-17 lead.

A 27-yard Uwe Von Schamann field goal made it 24-17, but the Eagles drove right back down the field with a 38-yard Ron Jaworski-to-Melvin Hoover TD pass giving the Eagles a chance to tie the game with the conversion with 1:52 left.

But Betters toughed his way through the middle and slammed McFadden's kick to the turf.

The Eagles, 4-6-1, kept the high-powered Miami offense off the field with an unexpectedly strong running game that produced 117 yards in the first half.

But — Miami — quarterback — Dan Marino finally started to connect in the second half, hitting tosses of 13, 14, 18; 9 and 12 yards on a 68-yard march which culminated in a 2-yard run by Woody Bennett with 2:07 left in the third quarter.

That left the Dolphins behind 17-14, but they took control when Paul Lankford intercepted a Jaworski pass at the Eagles' 26 on the first play after the touchdown.

Seven plays later, Pete Johnson rambled in from 1 yard out to put the Dolphins ahead 21-17.

The Eagles squandered the Orange Bowl crowd of 70,222 by plowing through the Miami defense in drives of 80 and 83 yards in the first quarter. Philadelphia, the worst running team in the NFL with an average of 77 yards per game, coming in, manhandled the Dolphins for 55 yards on 16 carries. And Jaworski capped each of the run-dominated drives with medium-range scoring passes.

First Jaworski looped a 19-yarder to Mike Quick with 10:35 left in the quarter, then he fired a 13-yarder to Tony Woodruff with 2:34 remaining in the period.

The Dolphins finally got on the board with a 76-yard, seven-play drive highlighted by Marino's pass play to Tony Nathan and 19 and 20 yards to Mark Clayton. Marino then threw a 12-yard line drive to Nathan for the score with 1:18 left in the half to make it 14-17.

Cincinnati surprises Pittsburgh, 22-20

By JOE KAY
The Associated Press

More NFL — B3-5

CINCINNATI — Fullback Larry Kinnebrew powered through the left side of the Pittsburgh defense for a 3-yard touchdown run with 35 seconds to play Sunday, capping a desperation drive that gave the Cincinnati Bengals a 22-20 victory over the Steelers and kept the Bengals' slim playoff hopes alive.

Second-string quarterback Turk Schonert guided the Bengals 49 yards to the winning points with under six minutes to play. Cincinnati is in second place in the AFC Central Division at 4-7, two games behind the Steelers, 6-5, with five to play.

Schonert took over when starter Ken Anderson bruised his shoulder on a third-quarter sack, the fourth straight game in which the Steelers have injured Anderson. The Steelers led 13-12 at the time.

Schonert hit his first pass, a 48-yarder to tight end M.L. Harris, to set up a 28-yard field goal by Jim Breech for a 15-13 lead late in the quarter. Wide receiver Louis Lipps raced untouched on a 38-yard reverse to give the Steelers a 20-15 lead with 12 minutes to play. But Schonert coolly directed the Bengals to their winning points on their final drive to finish with seven completions in 10 attempts for 115 yards.

Anderson completed just 2 of 4 first-half passes for 28 yards as the Bengals' offense remained dormant.

Breech kicked a 21-yard field goal for an early 3-0 lead, but the Bengals wasted an excellent opportunity to pad the lead on the next series.

Oilers finally get win to go with 10 losses

By DOUG TUCKER
The Associated Press

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Warren Moon hurdled a stack of tacklers on the 1-yard line for the go-ahead touchdown and the Houston Oilers — without a road victory since 1981 — defeated the fading Kansas City Chiefs 17-16 Sunday to win their first game of the year.

The triumph broke an 11-game losing streak and a National Football League record of 23 straight road defeats for the Oilers, 1-10.

Moon, the former Canadian Football League star, threw a 20-yard touchdown pass to Jamie Williams in the second quarter and scored on a 4-yard plunge with 12:29 remaining to put Houston on top 14-9.

Cowboys, Washington have division lead to themselves

By The Associated Press

NFC East

Wonsley scored his third TD in the third quarter, from the 3-yard line, giving Washington a 28-0 lead three minutes into the second half.

Gary Hogeboom threw a 26-yard fourth quarter touchdown pass to Ron Springs to break a 17-all tie Sunday as the Dallas Cowboys took advantage of six turnovers to beat the mistake-prone Cardinals 24-17 in St. Louis and leave the National Football Conference East race with the familiar faces of Dallas and Washington at the top.

Hogeboom's TD loss to Springs with 9:03 left, the second of the day for the Cowboys' quarterback, came three plays after Victor Scott had intercepted a Neil Lomax pass that had been tipped away from Roy Green by Dennis Thurman.

St. Louis had four fumbles, was intercepted twice; had a touchdown called back because of offensive pass interference and a field goal attempt blocked to set up the Cowboys' first score. Lomax was also sacked six times by the Cowboys.

The win improved the Cowboys' record to 7-4 and put them in a first place tie in the NFC East with Washington, which beat Detroit, 20-14. Those two had entered the day in a four-way tie with the Cards and the New York Giants, who lost to Tampa Bay.

Trailing 17-7 at the half, the Cards took less than two minutes to take the ball 82 yards for a touchdown as Lomax began to find Roy Green, held to only 25 yards in three catches before intermission.

The key play came on third and 16 from the Dallas 25, when Lomax hit Green on the one. On the next play, Lomax flipped off a scramble to Randy Love for the touchdown to cut the lead to 17-14.

After Rafael Septien missed a 48-yard field goal try, Stump Mitchell fumbled a John Warren punt — St. Louis' third fumble lost on the day — the Cowboys came right back again. They went 56 yards in 10 plays to the Dallas 13, from where Neil O'Donoghue kicked a 30-yard field goal to tie it.

But the Cardinals kept getting thwarted by their own mistakes, including an offensive interference call on Roy Green that nullified a 39-yard TD pass from Lomax.

Then Scott picked off the Lomax pass on the 32 and on the first play after a first down, Hogeboom, starting because Danny White injured a shoulder last week, hit Springs in the right flat and he zoomed down the sideline into the end zone.

Washington 28, Detroit 14

In Washington, rarely used Otis Wonsley scored three touchdowns as the Washington Redskins continued their mastery over Detroit.

Rookie Keith Griffin, substituting for injured John Riggins, gained 114 yards on the ground as the Redskins downed the Lions for the ninth straight time, the longest current streak for one team over another in the NFL.

Wonsley, who had carried only four times prior to Sunday and usually serves as Riggins' blocking back in short yardage situations, was called on to help carry the load with Riggins sidelined by a back injury. He responded with two 1-yard touchdowns as the Redskins took a 21-0 lead at the half. The touchdowns were his first in a regular season game in four years as a pro.

Dean signs 49er contract

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Fred Dean, the holdout defensive end for the San Francisco 49ers, has signed a four-year contract with the National Football League team announced Sunday.

The negotiations, which were concluded the night before the team's 41-7 win over the Browns in Cleveland Sunday, were aided by a special mediator: California assembly speaker Willie Brown, (D)-San Francisco.

The deal, which was revealed during a postgame interview on KCBS radio in San Francisco, which broadcasts 49ers' games, calls for Dean to finish out this season on his existing contract and then gives him four more years. Terms of the deal were not disclosed.

Washington State routs Cal

By The Associated Press

Mark Rypien fumbled to kill Washington State's first scoring threat but came back Saturday night to throw two touchdown passes and run for another TD, leading the Cougars to a 37-Pacific-10 Conference victory over California in Berkeley, Calif.

The Cougars' Rueben Mayes, second-ranked rusher in college football, ran for 113 yards and scored on a 4-yard run in the third period of a game played in steady rain and under portable lighting. He raised his season yardage to 1,472, including 827 in the last four games, all WSU victories.

Washington State improved to 6-4 overall and 4-2 in the Pac-10, while Cal's fifth straight loss dropped the Bears to 2-8 and 1-7.

Mayes got 55 yards rushing on an early WSU drive which ended when Rypien fumbled into the end zone, where Cal recovered for a touchback.

Cal went 38 yards to take a 7-0 lead after Gayland Houston's 30-yard return. Ron Story ran one yard for the Bears' touchdown.

Rypien threw a 34-yard touchdown pass to John Marshall on the final play of the first quarter and sent WSU ahead with a 13-yard TD run late in the second period. Tom Cushing blocked a Cal punt in the third quarter to set up flanker Michael James' 22-yard TD run on a reverse play, and Rypien hit Sammy Burris on a 37-yard scoring pass in the fourth quarter.

Arizona 28, Stanford 14
In Tucson, Ariz., Arizona's defense kept Stanford punter Doug Robinson from getting off three first-quarter punts as the Wildcats scored a sloppy homecoming victory over the Cardinal in Pacific-10 Conference football.

Arizona tailback David Adams scored first half touchdowns on one- and three-yard runs, and quarterback Alford Jenkins added a three-yard second half touchdown run while Max Zendejas kicked three extra points and added field goals of 32 and 47 yards.

The Wildcats improved their record to 6-4 overall and 4-2 in the Pac-10, while Stanford fell to 4-5 and 2-5.

The Wildcats moved ahead quickly in the first quarter after safety Allan Durdens' rush kept Robinson, a freshman, from getting off his punt. Arizona took possession at the Stanford 13, and Adams scored a few plays later.

Late Saturday

On the next possession, Robinson fumbled a punt snap and Durden tackled him on the Stanford 15, but a Jenkins pass was intercepted, ending what could have been an early rout. Air Force 23, New Mexico 9

In Albuquerque, N.M., quarterback Bart Weiss and halfback Mike Brown scored third-quarter touchdowns to spark Air Force to a Western Athletic Conference football victory over punchless New Mexico.

Trailing 9-3 in the third quarter, the Falcons put two touchdowns on the scoreboard inside of a three-minute span as Weiss scampered in from 24 yards out and Brown added a 27-yard TD run.

The win improved Air Force's record to 6-4 overall and 3-3 in the WAC. New Mexico, losing its sixth straight game, dropped to 4-6 and 1-5 in the conference.

Dickerson, Rams roll Bears

By The Associated Press

Los Angeles' Eric Dickerson, outgaining Chicago's Walter Payton in a duel of the National Football League's top runners, rushed for 149 yards and scored twice early in the final period Sunday as the Rams rallied for a 29-13 victory over the Bears in Anaheim, Calif.

Dickerson carried 28 times as he became the first runner in 12 games to roll up more than 100 yards. The Bears' vaunted defense, which was tops in the league in total defense and stopping the run going into the contest at Anaheim Stadium.

Payton, who moved ahead of Jim Brown as the league's all-time leading rusher earlier this season, carried 13 times for 60 yards. Payton, did, however, have seven receptions — giving him a team record 381 catches — for 78 yards.

The outcome left both teams with 7-4 records. The Bears still hold a three-game edge in the NFC Central Division while the Rams are three games behind first-place San Francisco in the NFC West.

The Rams, bidding for a wild-card berth in the playoffs, came alive in the second half after being limited to a pair of Mike Lansford field goals in the opening 30 minutes and trailing 13-6.

A 63-yard touchdown pass from Jeff Kemp to Henry Ellard, with Ellard wrestling the ball away from Chicago defensive back Mike Richardson, brought Los Angeles to within one point midway through the third period. Lansford missed the conversion, however, when Kemp bobbled the snap from center.

Dickerson, who gained 58 yards in the second half, gave the Rams the lead for the first time when he scored on a 1-yard run to cap a 95-yard drive with 1:40 gone in the fourth quarter.

Gary Green recovered a fumble by Chicago's Matt Suhey at the Bears' 19-yard line shortly later, and Dickerson then made it 29-13 with a 4-yard touchdown pass.

Lansford, who booted field goals of 21 and 45 yards earlier in the game, capped the scoring with a 29-yarder after the Bears had to give up the ball when a fake punt failed.

NFC West

The Bears scored on their first two possessions, getting a 1-yard touchdown run from quarterback Steve Fuller, who started in place of the injured Jim McMahon, and a 20-yard field goal by Bob Thomas. Thomas booted a 52-yarder on the final play of the first half to give the Bears a seven-point lead.

San Francisco 41, Cleveland 7
In Cleveland, Joe Montana fired a pair of touchdown passes to Freddie Solomon while Roger Craig ran for two scores as the San Francisco 49ers beat the Cleveland Browns for their fourth straight victory. The 49ers, 10-1, held Cleveland scoreless until Bruce Davis hauled in an 18-yard deflected pass from Paul McDonald for a touchdown with less than four minutes left.

Cleveland, 2-9, whose defense was rated second in the NFL entering the game, fumbled away the game's opening kickoff and fought poor field position all day.

San Francisco, leading 13-0 at the half, dominated the third quarter with an 11-play scoring drive capped by Craig's 2-yard run and a three-play drive that ended when Montana hit Solomon on a 60-yard touchdown pass play to end the period.

Montana, who finished with 24 completions in 30 attempts for 263 yards despite heavy rain, rested after throwing a 2-yard scoring pass to Solomon that made it 27-0 early in the fourth quarter. Bill Ring ran 5 yards for the 49ers' last score midway through the quarter.

The 49ers started six drives inside Browns' territory in the first half but came away with only 10 points.

Ray Werschling kicked a 47-yard field goal less than two minutes into the game after Cleveland's Earnest Byner fumbled the opening kickoff, and Werschling followed that with a 26-yard kick when Byner fumbled again on the Browns' next possession.

Craig sprinted 20 yards up the middle to make it 13-0 early in the second quarter after Keena Turner returned an interception 21 yards to the Cleveland 26.

New Orleans 17, Atlanta 13
In Atlanta, Richard Todd rifled scoring passes of 37 and 17 yards to Hoby Brenner as the New Orleans Saints trimmed the puncheon Atlanta Falcons.

Brenner extended his 6-foot-4 frame to the limit on the 17-yard reception in the end zone that erased a 13-15 Atlanta lead with 12:11 remaining in the game.

It only was the second triumph in six games for the Saints, who lifted their record to 5-6, and it was the fifth loss in a row for the 3-6 Falcons. Todd sparked the 87-yard go-ahead scoring drive that started in the final minute of the third quarter. He connected on four of six passes for 68 yards, adding another 9 yards when he scrambled out of trouble.

The Saints had then a 10-0 lead in the first quarter on the 37-yard strike to Brenner, which came on a fourth-and-one play, and on Morten Andersen's 47-yard field goal.

Mike Moroski, going the distance at quarterback because of Steve Barkowski's knee injury, completed four passes for 47 yards in a 77-yard scoring drive that ended on Gerald Riggs' 1-yard plunge in the second quarter.

Atlanta gained a 10-10 tie 2:04 before halftime on Mick Luckhurst's 39-yard field goal and Luckhurst came back with 46 seconds left in the third period to give Atlanta its 13-10 lead with a 24-yard field goal.

The Saints sacked Moroski five times for losses of 47, led by Jim Wilks, who was in on three of them.

Bucs knock Giants from division lead

By The Associated Press

Kevin House caught a 10-yard touchdown pass from Steve DeBerg and set up 10 more points with a pair of diving receptions as the Tampa Bay Buccaneers snapped a four-game National Football League losing streak with a 20-17 victory over the New York Giants Sunday in Tampa Fla.

The triumph made a winner of the 4-7 Bucs in their first outing since Coach John McKay announced he'll retire at the end of the season and knocked the 6-5 Giants out of a tie for first place in the NFC's Eastern Division.

DeBerg, who completed 16 of 28 passes for 233 yards, connected with House to complete a seven-play, 72-yard drive that enabled the 4-7 Bucs to erase a 10-3 deficit late in the third quarter.

The Tampa Bay quarterback then used a 42-yard completion to House to set up James Wilder's 1-yard TD run for a 17-10 lead 4:42 into the fourth period, and later threw 26 yards to House as the Bucs moved toward Obed Ariiri's 20-yard field goal and a 20-10 advantage.

Wilder, who went over the 1,000-yard rushing mark midway through the second quarter, finished with 99 yards on 34 carries. He now has 1,062 yards on the season.

The teams exchanged field goals in the first half with Al Hajj-Sheikh booting a 41-yarder for a 3-0 New York lead with 6:14 left in the opening quarter and Ariiri countering with a 37-yarder nine minutes later. Giants linebacker Harry Carson intercepted a DeBerg pass on the third play of the second half and returned it 6 yards to the Tampa Bay 21. Two plays later, Giants quarterback Phil Simms fired a 23-yard TD pass to Zeke Mowatt to give New York a 10-3 lead.

Ariiri's 20-yard field goal gave the Bucs a 20-10 lead with 4:52 to go, but the Giants didn't give up.

Simms engineered a seven-play, 72-yard drive that he capped with an 11-yard touchdown pass to Bob Johnson with 1:02 remaining.

Green Bay 45, Minnesota 17

In Milwaukee, Lynn Dickey passed for 303 yards and four touchdowns, including two third-quarter strikes to fullback Jessie Clark that broke the game open, as the Green Bay Packers rolled to an easy victory over the Minnesota Vikings.

Dickey completed 22 of 40 passes — was intercepted once — as the Packers improved to 4-7 in climbing out of the NFC Central cellar. They also got 107 yards on 10 carries from halfback Gerry Ellis in winning their third straight game.

Dickey's TD passes to Clark came after Vikings had rallied to tie the game 17-17 on a 28-yard screen pass from Wade Wilson to Alfred Anderson with 12:11 left in the third quarter.

The Packers came back on the next series to go up 24-17 on Dickey's 18-yard screen pass to Clark. Dickey also completed passes of 33 yards to James Lofton and 15 to Paul Coffman in the nine-play, 70-play drive.

After stopping the Vikings on four plays, Green Bay mounted an 11-play, 75-yard march — that ended with Dickey finding Clark at the right side of the end zone for a 2-yard pass for a 31-17 lead with 54 seconds left in the third period.

The Packers added two more touchdowns in the fourth quarter, with Dickey tossing a 63-yard bomb to Lofton with 13:07 remaining and Ellis scampering in from the 6 with 10:01 to go.

Lofton finished with four catches for 119 yards. Minnesota fell to 3-8, last in the NFC Central. The Vikings have lost six of their last seven games.

Indianapolis stuns Jets, 9-5

By The Associated Press

AFC East

The Indianapolis Colts didn't score a touchdown. But they didn't have to Sunday to beat the punchless New York Jets.

"It was a great defensive game on our part," Colts Coach Frank Kush said after a 9-5 National Football League victory over the Jets in East Rutherford, N.J. "Our defense totally dominated their offensive line. We manhandled them a lot of the time, and that's unusual for us."

"We have a right to be mad at ourselves," said Jets defensive tackle Joe Klecko. "We gave away a game we should have won."

The game's only offense came in the form of field goals, and Raul Allegre kicked three of them for the Colts' winning points.

"The footing was not too good out there," the Colts kicker said of the rain-slick field, "but that doesn't hurt me as much as the snapper and the holder. I feel confident because it's Astroturf. It gives me good footing with kicks."

Kush said the Colts' game plan worked to perfection.

"I thought we were going to have to run the ball," Kush said. "We self-destruct when we have to pass. Our game plan was designed to take the air out of the football. If we run and hide it, we have a better chance."

The Colts won this battle of ineffective offenses with the help of Allegre, who kicked field goals of 44 yards in the first period, 46 in the second and 25 yards in the fourth.

But it was the Colts' defense that shared the glory, continually keeping the Jets away from the goal line on a rain-slick field that made running difficult.

The Jets, playing without injured running back Freeman McNeil, were never able to get their offense untracked, falling behind 3-0 early and trailing the entire game.

Their only points in the first half were scored on a safety, and they went into the dressing room at halftime trailing 6-2 after compiling merely 37 yards total offense before intermission.

Ryan and his replacement, Ken O'Brien, were sacked six times for a total of 51 yards by the hard-hitting Colts' defense. Ryan finished with just 7 completions in 15 attempts for 66 yards before leaving the game in the fourth quarter.

Frank Middleton carried 31 times for 73 yards to spearhead a ground-oriented Coli running attack that helped Indianapolis control the flow of the game.

The loss was the third straight for the Jets, 6-6, while the Colts, 4-7, who were 9 1/2-point underdogs in the game, broke a two-game losing streak.

Neither team was able to get its offense untracked in the first half. Each team continually found itself in good field position but was unable to cash in a touchdown.

The Colts took a 3-0 lead on Allegre's 44-yard field goal at the 7:49 mark of the first period, capping a 54-yard, 14-play drive on their first possession. The Colts, in scoring for the first time in the first quarter in the last five games, kept the drive alive when they made a first down at their 43 in a fourth-and-one situation. New England 38, Buffalo 10

In Foxboro, Mass., Tony Collins broke open a tight game with two 1-yard touchdown runs within three minutes late in the third quarter, and Tony Eason fired three scoring passes as the New England Patriots whipped the witless and error-prone Buffalo Bills.

With the score tied 10-10, the Patriots, 7-4, got the ball at their 49-yard line after a punt. They moved to the Buffalo 36 on Eason's 15-yard pass to Greg Hawthorne.

Brian Carpenter then was penalized for interfering with receiver Cedric Jones in the end zone, and the ball was moved to the 1. Collins got the go-ahead touchdown on the next play with 2:50 left in the third period.

Late-Denver score staves off Chargers

By MARK J. KREIDLER
The Associated Press

SAN DIEGO — Sammy Winder's 1-yard plunge with 38 seconds left capped a 77-yard drive that lifted the Denver Broncos to a 16-13 victory over the San Diego Chargers in a National Football League game Sunday.

AFC West

The triumph was the ninth in a row for the Broncos, who have an overall record of 10-1. The Chargers fell to 5-6.

After Winder's touchdown, San Diego quarterback Dan Fouts guided the Chargers from their own 20-yard line to the Denver 27. Most of the yardage was eaten up on passes of 20 and 31 yards to Wes Chandler.

However, Rolf Benirschke was wide to the left on a 46-yard field goal attempt with two seconds remaining that could have forced an overtime period.

San Diego had led 10-6 at halftime and made it 13-6 on a 43-yard field goal by Benirschke 56 seconds into the final period. But quarterback John Elway directed two Denver scoring after that.

Elway completed four of six passes on the final drive, including a 19-yarder to Butch Johnson and a 15-yarder to Ray Alexander, whose bobbling catch at the 5-yard line set the stage for Winder's touchdown.

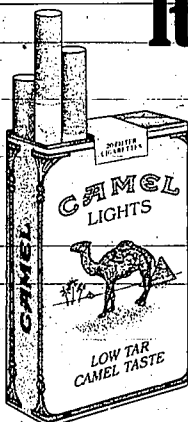

Denver had made it 13-9 on Rich Karlis' third field goal of the game, a 37-yarder with 8:41 remaining. Earlier in the game, Karlis had clicked on field goals of 44 and 45 yards and missed on a 34-yarder.

Fouts fired a 25-yard touchdown pass to Charlie Johnson to give the Chargers a 7-3 lead in the first period, after Karlis' 44-yard field goal.

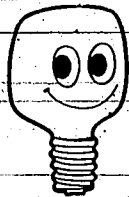

Benirschke's 49-yard field goal with 2:44 remaining before halftime made it 10-6 and it stayed that way until the fourth quarter.

Tennis

Absent McEnroe, Lendl wins easily

By ANDREW WARSHAW
The Associated Press

WIMBLEDON, England — Ivan Lendl of Czechoslovakia slammed home 15 aces and hammered Ecuador's Andres Gomez 7-6 (7-1), 6-2, 6-1 Sunday to win the $150,000 Benson and Hedges tennis tournament.

Lendl dropped only 15 points on his service en route to capturing the top prize of $50,000 in his first appearance in this prestigious Grand Prix event.

Gomez, a semifinalist last year, collected $25,000.

Lendl, the first non-American to win this title since 1977, was given a tough fight for one set, but then took command.

The players traded love games in the opening set, Gomez had two break points for a 4-2 lead.

But Lendl had two straight aces, then produced four more in succession to tie the score 4-4.

Gomez, who has won five titles this year and is ranked No. 5 in the world — two places behind Lendl — was the more imaginative player at this stage but could not handle the Czech's bullet-like aces.

Lendl's touch play and effortless forehand drives kept Gomez in the match until the score was 6-6. Then, his game suddenly fell apart.

After winning the opening point in the tiebreaker, Gomez won only one of the next 18 points, as Lendl won the set and took a 3-0 lead in the second set.

Gomez won the next game, but there was no stopping Lendl, whose confidence grew with some brilliant retrieving including a coaching "running" forehand cross-court pass — perhaps the best shot of the match — which helped him break his opponent again to take the second set.

As Lendl increased the pressure, Gomez played become sloppy and careless and the third set lasted only 22 minutes.

John McEnroe of the United States, the 1983 champion, had won the tournament five times in the past six years, but pulled out under suspension on the eve of this year's event.

That left two-time champion Jimmy Connors of the U.S. and Lendl — seeded 2,3, respectively — as the leading players in the competition.

Both were in the same half of the draw, however, and met in Saturday's semifinal, which Lendl won 6-4, 6-2 in a bad-tempered match.

In the final against Gomez, the No. 4 seed, Lendl was mostly at ease except for an occasional outburst over line calls.

It was his first victory since he rallied from a two-set deficit to beat McEnroe in the final of the French Open in June. "I wanted so much to win today that I was afraid to hit the ball on his serve at the beginning," Lendl said after his third tournament victory of the year. "After the tiebreaker, I just lifted my game a little."

He said he was going to the Australian Championships, where McEnroe will be aiming for the third leg of a Grand Slam bid later this month.

An expected starter is 6-3 Jeff Peterson, a double transfer student from Fullerton State and the University of Montana. He will come closest to filling the floor general's role and is considered perhaps the team's best outside threat.

Combs probably will get the other nod. Backing up all three inside spots will be 6-6 Dave Galbraith of Brentwood, Calif., who transferred out of Fair Community College in California and did not play last year, and Todd Peterson, 6-6 1/2, a highly high star, who is a proven baseline scorer.

Adding depth and height to the guard line is freshman Mike Miller, a 6-6 Californian. The shortest man on the team is 6-1 freshman Chris Cunningham, who is the best leaper on the team.

Swingman performances will come from Kent McKenzie, a 6-4 Milco product, and 6-5 Phil Olson from Shelley.

"Right now I can safely say this team is much stronger and more physical than last year's," Trendle says. "Our pre-season weight program added an average of seven pounds per man and guys like Combs and Hulseley really improved in their lifting ability."

The coach figures the test comes quickly for the Eagles. "Everything get used to playing in front of a crowd but it's at home," he points out. "Next Monday we travel to Central Wyoming and they should be pretty good. They played in their regional finals last year and are expected to have four starters back and a lot of good newcomers."

The Eagles return to host an unknown quantity in Lassen Community College of California and then travel to Logan, Utah, on Nov. 26 to meet the Utah State Jayvees.

After that comes another three-game battle in the Ricks College tournament in Rexburg on Nov. 29. CSI will open against Dawson Community College of Glendora, Mont., then West Western Montana, four-year NAAJ school from Dillon. The round-robin affair winds up Dec. 1 with CSI playing Ricks — and that, fans, could be a preview of the sub-regional championship which will determine which northern-division team will host regionals.
