Cowboy congress returns

To legislature

By RICK SHAUGHNESSY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — There will be a few more lawyers and at least one less educator in Boise when the 48th Legislature convenes in January.

But, this year's real winners for representation on the third-floor of the Idaho Statehouse are the state's perennial, biennial winners — the state's farmers and ranchers.

Nearly one out of every three state lawmakers elected on Nov. 6 is either a full-time, part-time or retired agriculturist, according to a Times-News survey of candidates, party workers, past legislative directories and journalists.

The combined total of the two largest groups of legislators — 23 farmers and 17 ranchers — is about equal to the combined membership total of the next seven occupational classifications, which consist of 11 educators, 10 lawyers, five home-makers, four contractors, four estate agents or executives, four food processing executives or workers and three retailers.

However, the preponderance of agriculturists in the Legislature isn't new. Idaho's cowboy caucus has longed supreme over lawmaking functions through most of the state's history.

And in many ways it's a relationship of convenience: Lawmaking

There will be 23 farmers, 17 ranchers on hand when 48th Idaho Legislature convenes.

provides farmers with a job for the slack winter months while also allowing them to keep a close eye on the effect of state taxes and laws on the Idaho's largest industry.

And the pressing need to put crops in the ground has more than once helped to keep lawmakers from dawdling in the marble halls and wood-paneled hearing rooms during the spring months, wrangling over legislative chores that could have been accomplished in the winter.

Another group of Idahoans that is amply represented in the state's Legislature is retired individuals. Of the 126 members of the new Legislature at least 17 are retired and several more are at least partially retired.

The 10 lawyers elected to the new Legislature mark an increase for that profession's membership, up from the seven attorneys who served in 1983 and 1984.

Food processors also made strong inroads in legislative membership in the last week's election. Sen. Roger Fairchild, a Fruiland Republican who owns a fruit juice company, was the state's food processor in the statehouse for the past two years. Next year he'll be joined in the Senate by Republican Darrel McRoberts of Twin Falls, manager of the Green Giant sweet corn plant in Buhl, and by two other industry members.

Eleven educators were elected to the Legislature last week — one less than were elected in 1982. But the educators' share of membership declined even more sharply when measured as a percentage of membership.

Teachers, administrators, guidance counselors and other educators will make up 3.7 percent of the lawmaking contingent in 1985. In 1983 they supplied 11.7 percent of the state's 105 lawmakers.

While a "citizens" Legislature tends to elect large numbers from a few professions or occupations, such as agriculture and law, it also elects many one-of-a-kind lawmakers. In 1985, there will be a utility lineman, a butcher, a printer, a pilot, a writer, a rodeo producer, a florist, an architect, a restaurateur, a veterinarian and a surgeon among the ranks of lawmakers.

President orders lid on taxes

By LAWRENCE L. KNUITSON
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Reagan told his Cabinet and economic advisers during a lengthy meeting Thursday that their marching orders are to produce a new federal budget with significant spending cuts and "no tax increase."

"That was his precise message summed up in headline terms," said presidential spokesman Larry Speakes as he reported on the two-hour, 35-minute meeting.

"His marching orders were, no tax increase and cut spending," said Speakes, who declined to give specific details of the meeting.

Speakes was asked if anyone at the meeting suggested to the president that tax increases might be necessary to deal with the vast federal budget deficit.

"I don't think any one would have dared," Speakes replied. Speakes said Reagan will make no specific budget decisions until after the Thanksgiving holiday.

During the meeting Secretary of the Treasury Donald Regan presented economic assumptions underpinning the budgetary process and David Stockman, director of the Office of Management and Budget, offered a series of options that could be used to reduce looming budget deficits, according to Speakes.

Speakes said the general assumption underlying the discussion was that the economy will grow at a rate of four percent in the next fiscal year, but he declined to give any other precise numbers "other than the length of the meeting."

Ed Dale, OMB spokesman, also declined in a telephone interview to give specific details of the options. Stockman outlined. But he said one would be based on cutting the deficit without reducing defense spending or Social Security. He said another might be based on cutting the deficit along with reductions in defense spending.

But Dale said he did not know whether one of the options involved cuts in Social Security. Reagan has pledged not to reduce benefits for either current or future recipients.

Dale said that while there was talk among various Cabinet members about a freeze on spending or a requirement for across-the-board spending cuts, he did not believe those approaches would win out.

Speakes, asked whether there was discussion at the meeting about whether the federal budget might be balanced, said there were "various proposals" that could nearly balance the budget by "the early 1990s."

Bishops demand help for the poor

By ROBERT FURLOW
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The leader of the nation's Roman Catholic bishops challenged Congress on Thursday to safeguard programs for the poor, he said, his spending in these areas "does not seem to be part of the plan" of the Reagan administration.

Bishop James Malone, president of the National Conference of Catholic Bishops, said a "major task for his group now is "to raise the consciousness" of public officials and private citizens concerning the needs of the poor.

And he suggested the task should begin at once, with no need to wait until the group's formal vote next November on its major economic policy statement, which was released in draft form this week.

The draft generally exhorts officials and other citizens to give the poor more consideration when making economic decisions. And it also includes such specific recommendations as higher welfare payments and new government programs to create jobs.

Referring to administration budget actions and goals, Malone said, "Additional social programs do not seem to be part of the plan. Therefore we are speaking about a subject that is not on the public agenda at this time."

Malone's comment came in a news conference at the end of the bishops' annual meeting, which was presided by reporters to sharpen what seemed to be criticism of the administration.

But he declined, saying instead that his words "could be a challenge to the Congress to see that this matter deserves attention as the budget is being examined."

Reports this week have indicated that White House estimates for the federal deficit now show it rising past $200 billion a year in coming years rather than steadily declining as

Safer X-rays

New technology makes it safer, easier and less expensive to use x-rays to determine the health of human blood vessels. At left is a conventional arteriogram, with the patient's skull at top of frame, facing left, and the arteries and veins ap-

Proposals on dumps out today

The Associated Press

BOISE — Four proposals to regulate siting of new hazardous waste dumps in Idaho will be discussed by a special legislative committee today.

The proposed laws include one that would permit a state agency to establish and operate a dump if private industry didn't meet demand.

Testimony the Idaho Legislature's interim committee on hazardous waste heard in September suggested southwestern Idaho might be a prime target for installation of disposal operations because production and regulation of hazardous waste are growing.

Snake doesn't have a law to regulate siting of toxic-waste dumps. There have been claims the state's lone facility, operated by Envirostate Services of Idaho Inc. near Grand View, is too close to farms and the Snake River.

The proposed law would not force Envirostate to move or close, and would be an addition to existing waste-disposal regulations.

A key issue concerns where authority should rest in deciding applications for new hazardous-waste dumps, said Michael Nugent, a legislative Council staff member. The state and affected cities and counties are possible decision makers.

Most of the 28 states with siting laws give final authority to the state, Nugent said.

The four bills include differing provisions for siting studies, siting plans, bonding and siting boards. All provide for public notices and hearings.

Highlights of the four proposals are:

State siting board. A state hazardous-waste management planning committee, appointed by the governor with approval by the Idaho Senate, would submit a plan to the Legislature, including location of suitable sites. A separate site review board appointed by state agencies and the affected local governments would decide on specific permit applications.

U.S. envoy, Sandinista leader due to meet again

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The White House said that U.S. envoy soon will meet with the foreign minister of Nicaragua in talks aimed at fostering a regional peace settlement in Central America.

But the Reagan administration remains concerned about bolstered shipments of Soviet weapons to Nicaragua, and the Pentagon said more ships loaded with Soviet bloc weapons may be headed for the Central American nation.

The new ships would be in addition to three spotted earlier, and the much-publicized visit last week of a Soviet ship which U.S. officials had feared might have been carrying MIG fighters, which the Soviet Union had said from Nicaragua without delivering any jets, officials said.

In addition to the three vessels already sighted, "there exists the possibility of other ships," Pentagon spokesman Michael Burch said.

But he refused to provide any more information or speculate on what the vessels might be carrying.

White House press spokesman Larry Speakes said the new talks between U.S. Ambassador-at-Large Harry Shlaudeman and Nicaraguan Foreign Minister Miguel D'Escoto "hopefully will enhance prospects for the Contadora treaty," the regional peace initiative by four Latin American nations.

"The thrust of our approach to these talks has been to move the Contadora process forward and let the Nicaraguans understand our feelings and desires about an agreement with their neighbors," Speakes said.

Speakes said repeatedly that the United States feels it has not contributed to heightening tensions in the region.

And a White House official, who commented only on the condition he not be identified, said that as far as the United States is concerned the recent escalation of tensions is due to "a rather open, full-bore" buildup of military equipment shipments by the Soviet Union to Nicaragua.

Smoker's reaction to drug hints lung cancer risk

By MALCOLM RITTER
The Associated Press

NEW YORK — British researchers have found evidence that the way a smoker's body reacts to a blood pressure drug may help indicate his risk of getting lung cancer.

They trace their results to a gene that controls the body's metabolic reaction to a drug called debrisoquine. Smokers who show more of a particular chemical reaction to the drug seem to be at higher risk for lung cancer, the researchers report in a recent issue of the British scientific journal Nature.

That doesn't mean that high blood pressure is linked to cancer. The researchers selected debrisoquine because the body's reaction to it resembles what could be a crucial reaction of smokers to cancer-causing chemicals. Differences in the extent of the reaction to cancer chemicals might explain why only some smokers get lung cancer.

Curtis Harris, chief of the National Cancer Institute's laboratory for researching causes of human cancer, called the British work a beginning in a new direction. But "there's several years of work ahead" before the test could be proven, he said in a telephone interview.

Lung cancer will be discovered in 139,000 Americans this year, the American Cancer Society estimates. The society blames cigarette smoking for about 80 percent of lung cancer cases. Only 9 percent of lung cancer patients survive five or more years after the diagnosis, the society says.

The British work was done by Riald Ayeesh and Martin Helzlsouer at Whitehead Hospital in London, and Jeffrey Idle, James Ritchie and Michael Crothers of St. Mary's Hospital Medical School in London.

They studied 479 smokers, 245 of whom had lung cancer, to determine how much of a chemical reaction their bodies had to debrisoquine. The cancer patient group was found to have a higher proportion of smokers whose metabolisms produced that reaction extensively.

The two groups of Caucasian smokers were matched for age, sex and smoking history. The smokers were in their mid-60s on average, and each cancer patient had one of five types of the disease: squamous cell, small cell, large cell, undifferentiated, or adenocarcinoma. Each smoker swallowed a tablet of debrisoquine for the test, and urine was collected for the next eight hours and analyzed.

Results showed 79 percent of the cancer patients were "extensive metabolizers" of debrisoquine and only 2 percent were "poor metabolizers," whereas only 23 percent of the non-cancerous smokers were rated "extensive" and 9 percent ranked "poor."

Nicaragua wants to copters

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — A government official acknowledged for the first time Thursday that Nicaragua has Soviet-made Mi-24 combat helicopters and that it plans to use them against rebel planes. Jaime Wheelock replied "Yes" when asked by reporters whether Nicaragua possesses the fast and heavily armed Mi-24s. Wheelock is agriculture minister and a member in the military. Officials of Nicaragua's leftist Sandinista government previously had refused to answer directly when asked about the presence of Mi-24s. Sources in Managua had said a Soviet ship that arrived last week in the port of Corinto may have brought a shipment of the helicopters. Wheelock did not say when Nicaragua received the Mi-24s.

The freighter was the focus of an international stir when unidentified U.S. officials told reporters it might be taking advanced MIG fighter planes to Nicaragua. Nicaragua denied MIGs were delivered, and U.S. officials later backed down on their claims.

Korean meeting ends in smiles

PANMUNJOM, Korea — In an unprecedented meeting Thursday that began and ended with smiles, officials of North Korea and South Korea, bitter enemies in a fraternal war, exchanged specific proposals to begin trade and economic cooperation and agreed to meet here again Dec. 5.

It was the first time that representatives of the two governments had met to discuss establishing economic interchange; the country was divided in 1945 by American and Soviet military occupations. It also was the first meeting of any kind between officials of the two governments in more than four years.

"A good beginning is a job half completed," Kim Ki Hwan, head of South Korea's seven-member delegation, said after the meeting of more than 2-1/2 hours. Kim, who has vice ministerial rank, is an official of the governmental Economic Planning Board.

Things went well, said Li Song Rok, the vice minister of trade and commerce, who led the North Korean delegation, told reporters.

Lebanon demands withdrawal

NAQOURA, Lebanon (AP) — Lebanese negotiators on Thursday demanded a quick and complete withdrawal of Israeli troops from south Lebanon and payment of $8 billion to $10 billion in war reparations by the Jewish state.

The Lebanese military delegation presented a long list of demands in the second round of negotiations with Israeli officers at the headquarters of the United Nations peacekeeping force. Israel is concerned with the security of its northern border if the troops are pulled back. Almost every point the Lebanese raised on the future of south Lebanon conflicted with Israel's previously stated positions.

Confidence sources said Israel rejected the Lebanese declaration and asked instead for a detailed Lebanese plan on security arrangements following an Israeli withdrawal from the country it invaded 2 1/2 years ago.

The Lebanese agreed to continue discussions of the security issue when the talks resume Monday in this border town, according to the sources who spoke on condition they not be identified.

Arms talks czar idea dropped

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration is scrapping a proposal to create a special arms control czar position to oversee U.S. negotiations with the Soviet Union, a high official in the administration said Thursday night.

The administration official, who spoke only on condition that he not be identified, said the proposal was not being adopted for President Reagan's second term.

The Washington Post reported in Friday editions that the idea, proposed by White House officials, had been thrown out by opposition from the State Department and the Defense Department.

With the arms control czar idea dead, Paul H. Nitze, who is chief U.S. negotiator on the suspended talks with the Soviets to reduce missiles in Europe, declined to say whether Secretary of State George P. Shultz had given overall responsibility for launching new discussions with the Soviet Union.

Deficit

Speakers also said that recently published estimates of the huge federal deficit are imprecise and possibly misleading because all are based on early submissions by various Cabinet departments and federal agencies and are subject to change.

"That's why we don't talk about them because they do change," Speakers said.

Administration officials preparing the spending plan Reagan will send to Congress early next year all but concede they will have no more success balancing the budget in Reagan's second term than they had in his first.

According to administration officials who spoke only on condition they not be quoted by name, Stockman told the president and the Cabinet earlier this week that rising government farm payments and unanticipated government securities sales pushed the deficit for the fiscal year into the record range of $205 billion to $210 billion.

The current red ink record was $164.4 billion set in fiscal 1983. The deficit was $175.3 billion in fiscal 1984, which ended Sept. 30.

The administration had projected the current fiscal 1985 — deficit at $172.4 billion as recently as August.

At that time, the Office of Management and Budget projected red ink of $174.2 billion in 1986 and $181.7 billion in 1989, without any changes in current policy. The bipartisan Congressional Budget Office, however, had forecast deficits growing to $263 billion by fiscal 1989.

Administration officials said Wednesday that Stockman's latest estimates now peg the deficits at roughly $190 billion through the end of the decade.

Speakers said the president has sent out word that he wants government spending levels cut, but without specifying where the cuts should come.

Congress, however, appears unlikely to accept large-scale slashes in social programs. Reagan has indicated he won't go along with extensive cuts in defense and — is convinced that the modernizing of the armed forces has to continue.

And the president has ruled out tax increases as anything but a "last resort" after all possible spending cuts have been made.

Speakers was asked if Reagan could accept a reduction in spending for defense, perhaps obtaining a five percent increase after inflation rather than the higher increases of recent years.

He replied that all of the possible growth rate figures are subject to discussion and "we haven't decided any of that yet."

During his re-election campaign, Reagan said a growing economy would do much to create increased revenues for the government and trim the deficit.

The initial budget presentation to Reagan is being fashioned by a 12-member budget working group formed this year to sift the available options for the budget that will be sent to Congress early next year.

Waste — Bishops

apply to a city or county and pay a fee of up to $20,000. A federal or state permit also would be required. The state could be asked to make a study of the site: "Arbitrary or capricious" decisions could be taken to court. A city or county, or a group of cities or counties, could establish and operate its own hazardous-waste dump.

State authority. Ten state agency directors would form a hazardous-waste facility siting committee to develop a 25-year siting plan and decide on applications. Applicants could apply for other sites but would risk local government interference. Under a provision based on a Utah law, anyone could petition the state to form a hazardous-waste facilities authority to establish and operate dumps, if needs "are not being adequately serviced by private industry."

Local negotiations. A statewide plan would not be adopted. Modeled after a Wisconsin law, this bill would encourage local governments and developers to negotiate. A state-siting board would arbitrate disputes and, if a city or county refused to bargain, would make the decision. Approval also would require a favorable feasibility report and approved operation plan from the Idaho Department of Health and Welfare.

earlier projected. President Reagan has been said to be unwavering in his opposition to a tax increase to narrow the deficit, indicating that Congress will be asked to make substantial cuts when it returns to the capital in January.

As the bishops wound up their four-day meeting on Thursday, it also took action on several other matters with more obvious religious connections. In three of them, the bishops agreed to commission a study of what several of them perceived as declining Sunday mass attendance by Catholics. Archbishop John Pilarczyk of Cincinnati, Ohio, said he gauged attendance at about 50 percent of the Catholics in his area, and others said they suspected the figure was about the same nationwide, down from about 70 percent in the 1950s.

Approved a report giving a basically positive evaluation of the final report of a joint commission that had sought to find common ground between the Catholic Church and the Anglican Church. Though not always successful, the commission did come up with language acceptable to both churches on several matters, the bishops' report said.

Voted in favor of new guidelines for permanent deacons in America's Catholic churches. Deacons are ordained and can conduct some of the church's basic rites but, unlike priests, they cannot conduct the mass, the church's central service. Deacons, again unlike priests, can be married.

Coretta Scott King weeps at 'Daddy' King's funeral

Hundreds gather at King Sr.'s funeral

ATLANTA (AP) — Vice President George Bush, former President Jimmy Carter and the Rev. Jesse Jackson gathered Thursday with hundreds of other mourners for the funeral of Rev. Martin Luther King Sr., the civil rights pioneer who was honored as "God's Southern gentleman."

King, the father of slain civil rights leader Rev. Martin Luther King Jr., died Sunday of a heart attack at age 64.

"He was a shepherd of a royal flock, father to a nation, not just merely a family," Jackson said. "From seeds of his body blossomed the flower that liberated a people and touched the soul of a nation."

The funeral was at Ebenezer Baptist Church, where King served for 44 years and which was his son's base during much of his civil rights work.

"When he stood, a man stood who once picked cotton but then picked presidents. . . . And when he did speak, he spoke not as one who had the political mandate, but one with moral authority," Jackson said of the elder King.

"It seems like I've lost two fathers," Carter said, recalling how the elder King supported him after a gaffe during his 1976 presidential campaign.

Carter's comment about maintaining the "ethic purity" of neighborhoods turned away many of his liberal supporters, but the elder King joined him at a rally in Atlanta's Central City Park and held up Carter's hand and reiterated his support.

"Daddy King repaired the damage I'd done to myself," Carter said. "Quite often Daddy King let me know 'I'm still with you.' Not everybody said that."

"To me, Daddy King was God's Southern gentleman," Carter said.

Bush said King was "a true American hero" who "left us the legacy to do our duty to finally cast off these manacles" of racism.

King also was eulogized by the Rev. Ralph David Abernathy, the Rev. Joseph Lowery, who followed King Jr. as president of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, Gov. Joe Frank Harris, Atlanta Mayor Andrew Young and former Atlanta Mayor Ivan Allen.

Several hundred people attended the funeral, some watching the eulogy on closed-circuit television in the church basement.

President Reagan praised the elder King in a letter to his daughter-in-law, Coretta Scott King, calling him a "distinguished American" who left a "shining legacy for others to follow." Deputy White House press secretary Larry Speakes released excerpts of the letter Thursday.

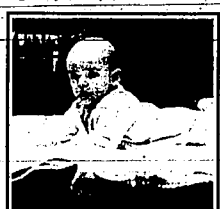

Following the three-hour ceremony, King was buried in a white marble crypt with his wife, who was shot in 1974 while she played the organ during a Sunday service at the church.

Baby's mom OK'd surgery

BARSTOW, Calif. (AP) — The doctor who replaced Baby Fae's malformed heart with a baboon's outlined "all the options" in advance and warned that the infant might reject the organ, but told the mother that "It was our only chance," friends and relatives say.

After a phase identity, has not been revealed by Loma Linda authorities, remained in serious but stable condition Thursday, ending her third week with the walnut-sized simian heart.

She struggled back from a rejection episode which peaked Monday and weakened the heart's pumping abilities, said spokeswoman Joyce McClintock at Loma Linda University Medical Center. The five-pound infant was on a respirator and being fed intravenously.

The mother was initially shocked at the proposal, but agreed to the unprecedented operation after receiving assurances that the baby would not suffer brain damage or undue pain, one friend said.

The mother worried that her daughter, then about two weeks old, would suffer physical pain from the surgery, but Bailey said the infant would feel only some physical discomfort, the friend said.

Bailey also assured them the child would not suffer brain damage from the heavy doses of medication and drugs designed to prevent her body from rejecting the organ. Both the mother and her estranged husband signed consent forms and they were allowed six hours to change their minds after signing.

New charge to be added to phone bills

WASHINGTON (AP) — Consumers should begin paying a minimum $1-a-month telephone "access charge" next June, but state utility commissions should be given flexibility to shield low-income households from that fee, a special board of federal and state regulators recommended Thursday.

The unanimous recommendation by a body known as the Joint Board, which now goes to the Federal Communications Commission, also calls for an increase in the monthly fee to $2 starting in June 1986. But the fee should be capped at that level pending further studies, the board added.

By paying the monthly fee, consumers can expect further reductions in the long-distance rates charged by the American Telephone & Telegraph Co., board officials said. That is because the revenue from the fees will be used to replace money that is now collected from long-distance callers to hold down local rates.

Currently, an estimated $11 billion is collected from long-distance customers of AT&T — and to a much lesser extent, those of its competitors — and funneled to local phone companies.

The $1-a-month fee, to be paid directly to local phone companies, will cost consumers $1 billion during the first year, but that revenue will be flowed through, dollar for dollar, into long-distance rate reductions, said Albert Halprin, the chief of the FCC's Mass Media Bureau.

Drugs reported found on body of UO sniper

EUGENE, Ore. (AP) — A sniper who killed a former Olympic sprinter and then shot himself to death at the University of Oregon was carrying cocaine at the time of the shootings, police said Thursday.

Michael E. Feher, a 19-year-old former student, had used cocaine the night before he committed suicide, Detective Sgt. Mike Cline said.

"I don't know if drugs played any substantial part in his death, but we did get a report that he had used some drugs earlier in the evening, and there were some drugs found on his body," Cline said.

No tests are planned to determine if Feher was under the influence of drugs or alcohol, Cline said.

The shootings began at about 8:30 a.m. Monday. Police were told that Feher used cocaine at about 7:30 p.m. Sunday, he said.

During the shooting spree,

Christopher Brathwaite, 36, a former sprinter for Oregon who competed for his native Trinidad in the 1976 and 1980 Olympic Games, was killed as he jogged along a bicycle path near the stadium where Feher was perched.

Wrestler Ricky L. O'Shea, 22, suffered shrapnel wounds to his leg.

Briefly

Shultz to stay on Reagan team

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State George P. Shultz will continue to serve as secretary of state in President Reagan's second term, State Department spokesman John Hughes said Thursday.

"The President has asked him to stay and he is honored to stay on," Hughes said.

Hughes also stressed the administration will be flexible in discussing ways of resuming arms control talks with the Soviet Union, a subject that will occupy much of Shultz' time during the next few months at least.

Shultz, who became secretary of state in July 1982 after the resignation of former Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr., had been expected to stay.

Russo ordered to return funds

WASHINGTON (AP) — An Illinois congressman must refund $750 in illegal contributions that he unwittingly received from the Chicago Board of Trade Clearing Corp., a divided Federal Election Commission tentatively decided Thursday.

Rep. Marty Russo, D-Ill., had asked the election agency to issue a formal opinion on whether he was obliged to refund the money, which was part of nearly $30,000 that the trade group pumped into the campaign coffers of five prominent House Democrats in 1981 and 1982.

The Chicago firm was fined $100,000 on Oct. 19 after pleading guilty to four misdemeanor charges of making illegal campaign gifts.

Two of its former top executives, Walter W. Brinkman and James E. Johnson, were sentenced Thursday in Chicago for their part in the scheme.

Probe of CIA coaching sought

WASHINGTON (AP) — A senior Senate Democrat and a branch of the American Civil Liberties Union are calling for an investigation of the CIA's reported coaching of Nicaraguan rebels on how to lobby members of Congress, an action the ACLU charged would be an illegal domestic covert operation.

In a letter to CIA Director William J. Casey, Sen. Daniel Patrick Moynihan, D-N.Y., vice chairman of the Intelligence Committee, asked for a list of members of Congress "targeted" for lobbying and "the characterizations made about these members."

Moynihan said that "if substantially accurate, these charges reflect an invasion of the privacy of members of Congress and improper conduct about which the intelligence oversight committees of the Congress have to inquire."

General testifies in trial

NEW YORK (AP) — Retired Gen. William C. Westmoreland, who commanded U.S. forces in Vietnam at the height of the war, testified for the first time Thursday in his $120 million libel suit against CBS, saying he paid scant attention to the enemy troop-strength reports that are the focus of the suit.

The suit alleges CBS libeled Westmoreland in a 1982 documentary which said the general led a 1967 "conspiracy" to suppress information that communist forces in Vietnam were gaining strength.

The 70-year-old Westmoreland said the "order of battle" reports listing the strength and disposition of hostile forces in Vietnam "was available in my office, but I don't recall ever having an occasion to refer to it."

Group sees Diablo violations

WASHINGTON (AP) — A whistleblower group filed a petition with the Nuclear Regulatory Commission on Thursday alleging 491 new violations of quality assurance regulations at the Diablo Canyon plant in California, which began producing its first electricity on Sunday.

The Government Accountability Project told the NRC that before it allows commercial operations at Diablo Canyon — expected early next year — it should replace most of the staff in its allegation management program "with a new team that has not had previous responsibility" at the plant.

The group also asked for public release of a report by the NRC's Office of Investigation into all charges of wrongdoing to assess whether the Pacific Gas & Electric Co., owner of the plant, "possesses the requisite corporate character and competence to operate a nuclear facility."

Harvard students plan fast

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — Thousands of Harvard University students agreed to skip dinner Thursday or dine on rice and water, the meager diet of millions worldwide, to help raise money for starving drought victims in Africa.

The dinner and other activities around the country are part of the Fast for World Harvest, an annual fund-raiser made more urgent this year by public awareness of the famine in Ethiopia.

Renee Cing, president of Harvard Hunger Action, said at least 75 percent of the school's 6,000 undergraduates agreed to skip dinner completely, pledging the $1.25 rebate each will receive to Ethiopian relief.

In addition, the Harvard group is also one of several nationwide that will hold a "hunger banquet," where guests will be split up by lot into three groups, corresponding to the division of wealth in the world.

Kennedy used family name to get drugs

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — David Kennedy relied on his family name in the week before his death to persuade cocaine sources to give him credit, a police chief says in a deposition.

Palm Beach Police Chief Joseph Terlizze also said in the sworn deposition that Caroline Kennedy and Sydney Lawford tried to enter their cousin's hotel room 90 minutes before his body was found, but "we never found any evidence... to indicate they were in the room."

Terlizze was questioned Wednesday, as reporters looked on, by an attorney representing one of two bellhops charged with selling cocaine to Kennedy around Easter, when members of the family gathered in Palm Beach to visit his ailing grandmother, Rose Kennedy. He was found dead from a combination of drugs on April 25 at the Brazilian Court Hotel.

Michael Sainick, attorney for former bellhop Peter Marchant, asked Terlizze several questions about Kennedy's alleged cocaine purchase, including whether any cash was used in the deal.

Sainick then asked Terlizze to confirm rumors that Kennedy used his family name to gain credit from cocaine sources.

Did Kennedy "score using his family name?" Sainick asked Terlizze.

Terlizze said Kennedy did. "I had heard that this was his way of doing things when he was short of cash," Terlizze said.

Chilean soldiers seal off shanty town in raid

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP) — Soldiers sealed off a politically active shanty town at dawn Thursday and confined most of the male population in a soccer stadium. It was the second massive raid during Chile's nine-day-old state of siege.

Police said they were searching for firearms and common criminals during the seven-hour occupation, but the slum's Roman Catholic priest, the Rev. Pierre DuBois, said it was intended "to intimidate and punish the people" for their opposition to military rule.

President Augusto Pinochet declared a 90-day suspension of civil liberties on Nov. 6 to fight what he called a Marxist insurgency. Police since have cracked down on low-ranking activists of leftist parties and unions, and on selected poor neighborhoods.

The target of Thursday's raid was La Victoria, a neighborhood of 32,000 people in southwest Santiago, the scene of frequent clashes and leftistled demonstrators against Pinochet's 11-year-old government.

Residents said they awoke before 5 a.m. to the thumping of a low-flying helicopter and then heard loudspeakers announcing: "This is an operation for the good of the neighborhood. Stay in your homes and nothing will happen. We are only here to take out delinquents."

Army and air force troops surrounded the sprawling slum with trucks and tanks, and combat-clad and helmeted soldiers went house-to-house searching for weapons. They searched mattresses, dresser-drawers, ovens, washing machines, bathroom cabinets and garbage, residents told reporters.

Thousands of males — virtually all those over 16 years old — were sent in trucks or buses to the San Eugenio Soccer Stadium 2.5 miles away for identity checks that lasted late into the afternoon. Hundreds were released.

Miss Venezuela selected Miss World

LONDON (AP) — Miss Venezuela, 21-year-old Astrid Herrera Trazabal, won the 1984 Miss World title Thursday night in the 34th annual beauty pageant at London's Royal Albert Hall.

She was chosen from among 72 contestants representing as many countries.

First runner-up was Miss Canada, Connie Fitzpatrick, 20, a blonde, hazel-eyed student from Ontario. Miss Australia, Lou-Anne Caroline Ronchi, 22, was third.

Digital subtractive equipment, foreground, projects image on TV screen, and patients are X-rayed in next room

Window on the circulation

Computer technology helps doctors get a clearer picture

By DEAN S. MILLER
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The computer technology that brought images of Mars to Earth is now bringing images of our blood vessels to doctors. Newly acquired equipment has made this technology available locally.

Digital Subtraction Angiography is the brainchild of computer imaging technology and arteriography and affords radiologists a quicker, less-expensive and less dangerous window into the circulatory system.

In both DSA and conventional arteriography, the radiologist injects an organic iodine dye into the blood stream while taking X-ray images in order to spot troublesome irregularities in the arteries or veins of a patient.

Conventional arteriography requires the insertion of a catheter into the arterial system to inject dye into the blood stream in high concentrations at the problem area to ensure a clear image.

The dye quickly disperses in the blood stream as it mixes with the blood, so the X-ray image must be taken while the dye is thick enough for the X-ray camera to pick up.

Unfortunately, the insertion of the catheter can result in significant numbers of strokes if it loosens debris from arterial walls that later lodge in the brain, blocking blood flow, says Dr. Sid Henderson, Magic Valley Regional Medical Center chief of radiology.

For DSA, the dye is simply injected into an arm vein. A standard X-ray camera takes a sequence of images before and while the dye is circulating through the blood stream.

The computer receiving the images registers the slight change in the images caused by the X-ray-blocking dye in the blood. Where the computer registers changes in the image before and after the injection of dye, it amplifies the image.

Where little or no change occurs, the computer eliminates the image. When the computer is done subtracting unnecessary elements of the image, the radiologist is left with a clearer composite picture in which bones, intestinal gas bubbles, and other shadows have been eliminated.

The patient has undergone nothing more than a routine injection and X-ray and can walk away from the X-ray table rather than spending a night in the hospital, says Henderson.

Because the image is stored in the computer, the technician can manipulate the contrast, darkness and focus of the image with the computer before printing a copy of the picture.

Patient movement on the X-ray table is a major problem, Henderson says. Because the X-ray camera takes a number of images over time, motion makes the composite images difficult to line up. Here, the computer adjusts the stored images until they line up in focus.

Henderson and Dr. Evan Thomas are now using the new technique and technology at the hospital — with almost $200,000 worth of new equipment. Henderson says the computer imaging equipment is no more expensive than conventional X-ray equipment and saves money on X-ray film, physician time, and patient bills.

Henderson says a disadvantage of the computer images is "a person with poor cardiac output doesn't disperse the dye well enough" for the camera to pick it up. Other disadvantages include the necessity for a motionless patient, difficulty where the patient is unconscious, and the inability of the equipment to pick up detail in very small vessels.

Though surgeons sometimes require a higher quality image than the computer can generate, the computer image at least narrows down the area to which the surgeon will thread the catheter for a conventional arteriogram before surgery.

The primary value of DSA is in screening patients thought to be prone to strokes. Henderson says high-risk elderly patients can be tested well in advance of trouble without risking catheter insertion. The lower cost allows more testing as well.

Lawyer seeks dismissal of murder case

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

JEROME — A motion to dismiss a first-degree murder and related charges against the suspect in the July 1 shooting death of Marilyn Arbaugh of Jerome will be argued in Fifth District Court Tuesday.

Golden Bennett of Twin Falls, attorney for the defendant, Jami Dean Charboneau, 24, of Jerome, filed a four-page motion Wednesday. His motion declares charges against Charboneau should be dismissed because of "gross misunderstanding of the case" by the Jerome county prosecutor and sheriff's office.

He alleged he had a "verbal open discovery agreement" with Prosecutor Dan Adamson, but that Adamson totally ignored the agreement. In his motion, Bennett said several pieces of evidence that would prove Charboneau did not kill Arbaugh have been "purposely suppressed."

Adamson said "Thursday" he has received a copy of the motion, but he termed it frivolous, spurious and typical of the actions of Bennett throughout proceedings in the case.

The motion is scheduled for hearing at 10 a.m. Tuesday before Fifth District Judge Phillip Becker.

Bennett's motion contends that Charboneau has already admitted to wounding but not killing the victim and contends after dismissal of the murder count "a new charge of aggravated assault could be filed."

Further, Bennett asks dismissal of grand larceny and kidnapping charges, saying both are totally unfounded and evidence exists to prove they did not occur and that it was not Charboneau who burned the victim's vehicle.

Bennett says Adamson had evidence in his possession July 11, prior to a preliminary hearing in the case that "proves conclusively that the defendant did not commit grand theft and torch Arbaugh's vehicle."

Bennett contends the Jerome sheriff's office was aware at the time of the murder that two guns "were at the murder scene," but he said the officers showed interest in only one. Bennett says it is now known that these guns may have been involved, but ballistics tests have not been run on the third weapon and he has received no ballistics test reports.

"The murderer of Marilyn Arbaugh is not in custody and if the prosecuting attorney would conduct an investigation with any degree of fidelity, the real murderer would be apprehended," Bennett's motion contends.

Arbaugh, 36, was killed July 1 by gunshot wounds in the chest area. A total of 15 bullets were fired into her body, but some entered body extremities and were not fatal, according to autopsy reports. Officers arrested Charboneau, Arbaugh's former husband, near the scene after being called to the rural residence by the dead woman's daughters. About two weeks before the fatal shooting Arbaugh told officers her former husband had forced her into her car as she left work, driven her to Lincoln County where she was raped, and that she then escaped in Gooding County. Her vehicle was later found burned in Owyhee County.

United Way drive to divide up funds

TWIN FALLS — The United Way Board will divide up money pledged to 18 local community service organizations in the 1985 fund-raising drive at a noon meeting today.

United Way has collected $177,000 in this year's campaign, says executive director John Thomas. The organizations still coming in, she expects the volunteers to meet their goal of $210,000.

The board may be asked to allocate a little more than that as donations continue to come in and interest is included, she says.

Last week an allocations board heard pitches from the 18 agencies already chosen to receive 1985 United Way money.

Representatives from the organizations presented their budgets for the next year and the last two, payrolls, audits or financial reviews, and an overview of their programs.

The organizations were picked because they improved the quality of life in the community by offering such services as counseling, disaster assistance, crisis centers, recreation, help for the disabled and elderly, and emergency food and shelter, Thomas says.

Organizations in United Way for 1985 include senior citizen groups in six Magic Valley communities, the YFCA, the Boy Scouts, the American Red Cross and the Salvation Army.

Drug bust results from extensive probe

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — One of the most extensive drug investigations in Idaho this year resulted in the arrest late Wednesday night of 17 people in Twin Falls and Boise and confiscation of marijuana and weapons.

Director John Rooney of the Department of Law Enforcement in Boise said three warrants were issued in the 24-hour period prior to roundup of the 17 suspects Wednesday night.

A complaint filed against three of the suspects in Twin Falls County stated five pounds of marijuana was confiscated here. Rooney said a large amount of marijuana and suspected cocaine were seized in searches of separate locations. He declined to release the total amount of the seizure.

Most of the arrests, Rooney said, were in the Twin Falls area. Local officers booked 10 people on misdemeanor charges of "frequenting a drug establishment" as a result of the night-long effort by law enforcement officers. All of these were released on their own recognizance as of Thursday morning.

Three others appeared in Magistrate court in Twin Falls Thursday on charges of possession of a controlled substance — marijuana — with intent to deliver.

Two Twin Falls County women, Diana E. Nogler, 22, and Tammy Fay Webb, 22, also known as Tammy Sartin, along with Lyle Harmon, 32, of Eden, were arraigned in court on the delivery charge. Bond was set at $1,500 each and the trio remained in the Twin Falls County jail.

Rooney said at the same time one Twin Falls city establishment and another in the county were visited by officers, a third location in Boise was also searched.

He said the names of other individuals arrested were not being released further investigation and additional arrests. He also declined to issue the addresses of the three properties that were searched.

Twin Falls Public Safety Director Tim Qualls said a number of guns were confiscated in the Twin Falls search. These have been identified as those missing in several burglaries around the area, he said.

Rooney said the investigation, one of the most elaborate his department has been involved with this year, began several months ago. He declined to name what triggered it.

He said the investigation and resulting arrests made Wednesday night resulted from a wide cooperative effort by numerous officers. Working on the case were officers of the Idaho Department of Law Enforcement, Twin Falls Police, Twin Falls County sheriff's office, Boise police, Idaho State Police in Twin Falls and officials from the Alcohol, Tobacco and Fire Arms division and the Federal Financial Taskforce.

Officers, working in two groups in Twin Falls city and county worked throughout most of the night.

Wall Street Journal writes up CSI rodeo

TWIN FALLS — Magic Valley residents reading the Thursday edition of the Journal of Commerce market tips found themselves reading about the College of Southern Idaho rodeo team on the front page instead.

An article about college rodeo scholarships and "increased" corporate membership of professional rodeo competition got front-page play in the Wall Street Journal's daily feature column.

CSI rodeo coach Shawn Davis says he met the reporter, Carrie Dolan, at a Tri Pro rodeo tournament in Casper, Wyo. three weeks ago.

Davis, who is president of the Professional Rodeo Cowboys Association, said Thursday Ms. Dolan's editor is interested in rodeo and allowed her to follow Davis back to Twin Falls to research the story.

Dolan's story begins with a bit of background description and then proceeds to detail the increasing competition between schools for rodeo hands.

Davis and three team members, Marty Kelliker, George Schmiel and Gary Brigan, were all quoted in the article.

Blast punctuates controlled burn

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls residents in the neighborhood of Filer Ave. West and Washington Street may have heard a loud boom about 12:30 p.m. Thursday.

It wasn't a jet breaking the sound barrier or a clap of thunder but the unexpected explosion of an aging, wood-frame structure controlled burn. No one was injured by the blast, but it did startle the team of city firefighters supervising the burn.

"I imagine it rattled the windows here and there," said Capt. Jim Miller, a city firefighter. Miller said the controlled burn of an aging, wood-frame structure two blocks east of Washington on Filer began at about 9:30 a.m. Thursday and was expected to last until the evening.

He said the vacated house had already been gutted by fire once prior to the controlled burn. A crew of eight city firefighters were supervising the burn, taking turns at the site as part of a training exercise, Miller said.

By 1 p.m. Thursday the raging fire had largely destroyed the house's frame structure, uncovering its basement foundation. Miller said that firefighters would let the fire burn as much of the house debris as possible.

Anthony sues Filer in false arrest case

By The Times-News staff

FILER — Buhl businessman and former congressional candidate George Anthony is seeking financial satisfaction from the city of Filer on a claim that he was falsely arrested two months ago by Twin Falls County Sheriff's deputies and the Filer Police Chief.

Anthony already has collected $5,000 from Twin Falls County for the incident.

According to Anthony, he was arrested Sept. 20 when he was mistaken for another man.

A felony warrant had been issued for Buhl resident James Crispo, who was suspected of failing to return a $300 loan to a woman, according to Filer District Magistrate Court records.

On the information of a sheriff's deputy, Crispo was supposed to also have gone by the name of George Anthony, said Twin Falls County Prosecutor K. Ellen Baxter.

Anthony claimed he was arrested at his home near Filer by a deputy and a Filer officer while another deputy waited in a patrol car.

Filer Police Chief Don Barkley said he was under the direction of the county deputies during the incident.

The mistake was discovered after Anthony had been booked and banded out of Twin Falls County Jail. "It was so weird, they just jumped to this conclusion," said Anthony's attorney, Jeff Rolig of Twin Falls. "Afterward, the county officials were 'all real apologetic in a hurry,'" Rolig added.

Although no suit was filed, Twin Falls County settled with him for $5,000 about three weeks later, Anthony said. Baxter would not comment on the settlement because it never reached court.

Falls County Board of Commissioners, said the settlement was paid out of the county's revenue sharing funds.

Anthony said his other lawyer, Harry DeHaan of Twin Falls, has contacted the city of Filer about its alleged part in the arrest.

Filer Mayor Perry Dyke said the matter was in the hands of City Attorney Fred Decker. Decker would only say that the city has been contacted by DeHaan and there have been negotiations.

Twin Falls County Sheriff Jim Munn would not discuss the incident and referred questions to Baxter. When asked if the deputies involved in the arrest had been disciplined, Munn said, "That's between me and my personnel."

Rolig said the records concerning the false charges brought against Anthony should have been cleared from public view from the courthouse.

Declo ranch donated to BYU

By BOB FREUND
Times-News writer

agronomy and agricultural economics.

MALTA — Brigham Young University will establish a working farm and agricultural research station at a 6,200-acre ranch donated by a Declo-area couple.

Sam and Aline Skaggs gave the property about 15 miles southeast of Declo to the school for use by its College of Biology and Agriculture on Oct. 1 officials said Thursday. Brigham Young faculty will hold an open meeting with area residents at 6:30 p.m. today in the Malta High School to explain how the university wants to use the property, said Paul Shumway, BYU professor of animal sciences.

The ranch, to be called the Sam and Aline Skaggs Research Ranch in honor of its donors, will become a working laboratory for students in agricultural disciplines such as animal sciences, range management,

"We'll have some students that will spend a semester there or half a semester there depending on their needs," said Shumway. "We'll have groups that come up for a week at a time or a day at a time."

As many as 400 students a year could visit the ranch, which will have a permanent staff, he said. "The overall goal is to make livestock businessmen — managers and businessmen — for a number of our students, and (for) the others it is to give them more of an acquaintance with a large, well-run operation," he said. The university has small groups of livestock at its main campus in Provo, but no large herds.

Graduate students also could conduct applied research projects in areas such as crossbreeding, feed management, range grazing systems and others, according to the university.

The land comes with four wells for crop irrigation. The Skaggs also have donated seven new pivot irrigation sprinklers capable of watering 128 acres each. Alfalfa, potatoes, sugar beets and grain have been grown on the ranch or nearby. There are also a number of springs on the large range.

BYU will have to develop its own facilities and livestock herds because there are no buildings and few fences on the land.

"It takes a lot of capital," said Paul Richards, BYU spokesman.

"We have people that are interested in the project — donors — but at this point I don't think there are any commitments made," he said.

"We're very pleased with the donation," Richards said.

Sam and Aline Skaggs were out of the area and could not be reached Thursday for comment.

Hansen council OKs old siren

IDAHO FALLS — The Hansen City Council approved the installation of the old fire station siren in Rolling Hills Community Park after reviewing several bids for the project during recent months.

The city currently has one siren operating at the Main Street Fire Station, but volunteer firemen living on the north-side-of-town often do not hear it, it was noted. The second siren is needed to better alert north-side residents in an emergency, and city leaders are pleased to get the project under-way and completed before the ground freezes.

The cost of the siren installation will run approximately $630, including $256 for the Idaho Power hook-up, $300 for boring and $84 for 140 feet of two-inch conduit.

Guilty plea in case of coke possession

JEROME — A Jerome man who allegedly attempted to sell cocaine to a police informant last year pleaded guilty Wednesday to reduced charges of possession of cocaine when he appeared in Fifth District Court here Wednesday.

Randy Nabb, 24, was scheduled for a jury trial on charges of delivery of a controlled substance, cocaine, Wednesday morning. But on recommendations of Jerome County Prosecuting Attorney Dennis Adamson, Nabb was allowed to plead to the lesser offense, thus eliminating the jury trial.

Nabb told the court he understood his guilty plea could bring as much as a three-year state penitentiary sentence and a fine of $5,000, but said to District Judge Philip Becker that after his pre-sentence investigation, he "might not even go to jail at all."

"Don't count on it," Becker advised the defendant, adding he wanted Nabb to understand he should not enter a guilty plea in the belief it would get him a lighter sentence. Nabb said he was willing to plead guilty because he was guilty of the charge, explaining, "At some time in my life I have had cocaine in my possession."

The court granted a pre-sentence investigation and will set sentencing when the report is completed.

The reduced charge, according to Adamson, was the result of plea negotiations during the past several months. Nabb was originally charged with attempting to sell cocaine to a Jerome informant on Aug. 12, 1983.

A trial that began June 21 on that charge was dropped when a woman who was selected for jury duty failed to appear on the day testimony was to begin. The woman also refused to accompany an officer sent to bring her to the courthouse and she was charged with contempt of court.

Attorney Golden Bennett of Twin Falls, who represented Nabb, concurred with the charge reduction.

Grant work progresses

BUHL — Buhl officials expect that by the end of this month the paperwork should be completed for a government grant the city will receive to conduct an energy conservation audit of the city hall and library.

The $1,750 grant from the Department of Energy administered through the Idaho Department of Resources will be matched by the city.

Public Works Supervisor Al Hodge, who conducted a preliminary audit of the buildings with councilman Claude

McKercher and wrote the grant application for the Technical Assistance Study in April, said the city received confirmation last week that the grant had been awarded.

With the funds, McClure Engineering of Twin Falls, which submitted the lowest of three bids to conduct the audit, will advise the city how it can save money through energy saving measures at the city hall and library, Hodge said.

The engineer will probably study the long-term cost savings of items such as another heating system for city hall, storm windows and insulation, he said.

But the city has to carefully consider any changes to city hall so the building's historical register standing will not be affected, Hodge said.

After the engineers have made their recommendations for energy conservation, Hodge said the city will then consider finding matching fund government grants to renovate the two structures.

"The ideal situation" when applying for grants is for the city to recover the investment within seven to eight years, Hodge said.

Officers for county board

JEROME — A slate of new officers was elected Wednesday at a meeting of the Region Four Elected County Officials organization.

Jerome County Commissioner Pam Smith was elected chairman. She replaces Commissioner Everett Ward of Lincoln County.

Twin Falls County Commissioner Marvin Hempleman was elected vice chairman and legislative representative responsible for preparing legislation for the organization.

Another Twin Falls County officer, Clerk Dick Pence, was named secretary and Jerome County Assessor Marge Dubois was named treasurer.

Bids for summer job funds open

TWIN FALLS — The South-Central Private Industry Council is accepting proposals to operate summer youth training and employment programs.

Approximately $25,000 from the Job Training Partnership Act are available to public and private organizations. The programs eligible for funds will operate from April 1 to Sept. 30 next year in the eight counties of the Magic Valley.

All applications for funds must be delivered to the council staff or postmarked no later than 5 p.m., Dec. 3. The council will make the final selection by Jan. 15.

Application instructions may be obtained by contacting Robert M. Lundgren, Coordinator, South-Central Private Industry Council, 1300 Kimberly Road, P.O. Box 1844, Twin Falls, or phone 734-6586.

Trash pickup rates rise

BUHL — Buhl trash collection rates will go up 18 percent starting next month.

On Tuesday the Buhl City Council voted the first raise in four years to keep up with increased county landfill charges and other growing sanitation expenses.

The garbage collection rate to households will increase from $4 to $4.72 per month and commercial users will be charged a higher rate based on the amount of trash and the time needed to collect it.

Some light industries hire private collection agencies, because their refuse cannot be removed by city crews, so the council decided to leave the minimum commercial fee at $7 per month.

In other business: Councilman Claude McKercher will ask Howard Johnson, a state Department of Transportation engineer, to study the problem of storm water that settles in the northwest corner of Buhl.

If Johnson agrees with recommendations made in a previous study done by the city's consulting engineer, John Priestler, the city will apply for state funds to correct the flooding where Highway 30 and Broadway intersect.

Earlier this year the council had discussed repairing several intersections in the city, but McKercher said it might be better to first focus on the drainage problem northwest of town. "Instead of getting ourselves going in too many different directions."

McClure hits protectionism

BOISE (AP) — "Protectionism" might help some domestic industries such as steel and auto-making, but it can be devastating to American efforts to market agricultural products abroad, Sen. James McClure says.

In a speech to the Idaho Wheat Growers Association convention here Thursday, McClure said "protectionism" is sweeping the world, as countries try to protect their own industries by erecting barriers against the import of outside products.

It isn't limited to other countries, McClure said. Even segments of the American agricultural economy, such as cattlemen and wool growers, have been trying to increase barriers against foreign imports, he said.

But the problem is other countries usually respond by erecting barriers of their own, and that could be fatal for American industries such as wheat, which depends a lot on foreign sales.

Slaying conviction questioned

BOISE (AP) — A defense attorney claims there was too much information released by police in the case of convicted slayer Donald Kenneth Fetterly, and the man didn't get a fair trial as a result.

Public Defender Van Bishop on Thursday urged the Idaho Supreme Court to overturn Fetterly's first-degree murder conviction and the death penalty ordered by 3rd District Judge Edward Lodge. Fetterly and a companion, Karla Windsor, had been convicted of the robbery-slaying death of Sterling Grammer in Canyon County 14 months ago. After separate trials, Lodge ordered the death penalty for both.

Just one day earlier, Lodge refused a request to reduce the death penalty for Ms. Windsor, who is the first woman in Idaho ever sentenced to die for first-degree murder.

Man sentenced in child death

CALDWELL (AP) — A prison term of up to 10 years has been ordered here for a 20-year-old man who admitted beating an infant so severely that the child is "brain dead."

But Jeffrey Ivan Bingham won't have to start serving the term for at least six months. Third District Judge Edward Lodge on Wednesday ordered six months of psychiatric treatment for Bingham, after the man was sentenced on a charge of aggravated assault. At the end of the 180 days, the judge said he would decide whether to order treatment for Bingham in a mental institution, order him to the main prison population in Boise or put him on probation.

Arson charges filed in Moscow

MOSCOW (AP) — A second Moscow man has been charged in connection with a fire that destroyed a tire warehouse last month, Moscow police announced.

Frederick Downey, 35, who was already in jail awaiting extradition on other charges, was served with warrants Wednesday for seven counts in connection with the Oct. 26 fire at the Brunel Tire Co.

The warrants charge Downey with second-degree arson and six counts of first-degree burglary in connection with break-ins at businesses that occurred during the blaze. Last week, Downey's nephew, Robert Dickinson, 19, was arrested and charged with the crimes. Dickinson listed the same address as Downey. Dickinson is also in the county jail on arson and burglary charges in lieu of a similar $25,000 bond.

Thomas headed for ABA post

BOISE (AP) — With no opposition in sight, Boise lawyer Eugene Thomas appears headed toward the presidency of the American Bar Association.

Thomas, chairman from 1980-82 of the ABA's House of Delegates, would become president-elect of the 300,000-member lawyer's organization next August, and president one year later.

If all goes as expected, Thomas, 53, will be nominated president-elect by the 65-member nominating committee at the ABA's midyear meeting in Detroit next February. He then will be chosen president-elect in London, England, where the ABA winds up its annual meeting, which begins in Washington, D.C.

He would become president at the August 1986 annual meeting in New York City.

Environmentalists laud Idaho's wilds

MOSCOW (AP) — Backcountry trails used by hikers and hunters in Idaho wilderness debates would be national parks in other states, environmentalist Brock Evans says.

"There is such an abundance of wilderness riches in Idaho that the spectacular almost becomes ordinary," he said Wednesday. "But it isn't ordinary. Idaho clearly has the finest wilderness resource in the lower 48 states."

Evans delivered the eighth annual wilderness resource distinguished lecture at the University of Idaho's College of Forestry, Wildlife and Range Sciences.

A former vice president of the National Audubon Society, he also waged an unsuccessful bid this fall for a U.S. House seat from Washington state.

Evans traced the progress made by conservation groups in the 20 years since Congress passed the Wilderness Act, and also looked ahead. "Just as we saw the closing of the American frontier in 1890, we will see the closing of the wilderness frontier in the next 20 years," he said.

But he said achievements to date have gone far beyond anything he imagined in 1964, noting that 8.5 million acres of wilderness in 18 states were added in the last session of Congress.

The battle over remaining back-country parcels that are being designated wilderness will be a tough one, he predicted, saying Idaho's remaining 8.5 million acres will be at the top of the list to be decided.

Evans, a Democrat, also said he was "happy" to propose Idaho wilderness bills, but not make it through the last congressional session. The proposal to set aside another 526,000 acres as wilderness was "wilderness destruction, not protection," he contended.

Conservationists in the state had proposed designating another 3 million acres as wilderness. He urged Idaho residents to become involved in the next round of wilderness debates and to remember that they live "in a state blessed with a far greater wilderness resource than most."

Evans said workers in timber-related industries should not fear additional wilderness designation.

"There always has been better quality, more easily accessible sources of timber in places other than wilderness," he said. "The timber industry isn't hurting because of wilderness areas or national parks."

Instead, market problems and foreign competition have hurt the industry, he said.

Idaho tribes object to cross-deputization plan

BOISE (AP) — Indian leaders say proposed legislation requiring affiliation with local government agencies before tribal police can be certified by the state is a "Catch 22" that may harm law enforcement on Idaho reservations.

At a meeting of the Legislature's interim committee on Indian affairs in Boise Thursday, members of several Idaho tribes objected to the requirement for cross-deputization" agreements with city police or county sheriffs.

"That's kind of putting the cart before the horse, isn't it?" Kootenai tribal counsel Rodney Roadrunner Clarke said.

The Peace Officer Standards and Training academy at Boise currently can certify only officers employed by government agencies or "public entities." But Indian officials, and a deputy attorney general on the POST Council said tribal police may have a hard time convincing local law enforcement authorities they're qualified to be deputies.

"It's kind of a Catch 22 situation," said Gordon High Eagle of the Nez Perce Tribal Executive Council. He said county officials have "a real fear of the quality of enforcement on the reservation" which makes them wary of deputizing Indian police.

He said the cross-deputization necessary for state certification as a "peace officer" would be difficult until Indians received the training needed to "demonstrate to the community that our tribal officers are able to pass the county or city officers' same qualifications."

Deputy Attorney General D. Marc Hays, a member of the POST Council, told the committee that county reluctance to deputize Indian police stemmed partly from the fact that they have "no right or power to supervise a member of a tribe," yet would be legally liable for their actions should they be sued for violations of civil rights off the reservation.

LCSC president to seek ISU post

LEWISTON (AP) — Lewis-Clark State College President Lee Vickers announced his intention Thursday to apply for the presidency of Idaho State University.

The ISU position was left vacant last summer when Myron Coulter left for a job in South Carolina. The deadline for applications was Thursday.

"Vickers said several people encouraged him to apply for the opening. He based his decision on the fact that such a move "would be a definite step forward professionally," he said.

Vickers has been president of LCSC since December 1977. He had earlier said he was uncertain about applying for the ISU post because he still had several projects he would like to accomplish at the Lewiston college.

It's Buckley vs. quarterback

STEVE BUCKLEY
Shades of Gastineau

By STEVE CRUMP
Times-News sports editor

OAKLEY — As Mullan High School quarterback Van Higblom will probably discover this afternoon, Steve Buckley prizes one aspect of the game of football above all others.

"Mark Gastineau, he's my favorite player," says the 6-foot-3, 220-pound Oakley High School senior. "I love football, so I'll play anywhere they want me to. But I like to get quarterbacks."

Buckley and his colleague John Oldham have indulged themselves almost as frequently in that pursuit during the past two seasons as the

New York Jets' defensive end who is the object of Buckley's esteem. As a result, the Hornets are 17-1 during that period and headed into the state Class A-4 title game against the defending champions from Mullan this afternoon at 4 in the Idaho State University Mindome in Pocatello.

It hasn't been an easy two years. Despite finishing with a 8-1 record in 1983, Oakley lost the game that counted — 25-12 to Castelford — and stayed home at the end of last season. Before this season started, one of Oakley's starters was killed in a farm accident and two weeks into the campaign wide receiver Cory Woodhouse, the star of Hornets, broke his collarbone. Nonetheless, Oakley shut out Castelford and Raft River in succession and coasted to the Magic Valley Conference championship and a berth in the state playoffs.

During the same period, Buckley developed from a strapping youngster who was too big to play Little League football into a force to be reckoned with. When Oakley Coach Don Tompkins inherited the program at the start of the 1983 season, Buckley was a 195-pound junior. He's made up the difference in the weight room.

"Steve's been an asset to this team because he's come in and done his thing when he's had to," says his coach. "He's done it even though people have been double- and triple-teaming him all year."

A 6-3, 220-pounder in an A-4 program attracts a lot of attention. Opponents on offense and defense — Buckley also plays offensive tackle — swarm to him like honeybees to a hive.

"Every once in a while, it's a challenge to get through," he concedes. "I seem to get triple-teamed a lot. But that's part of the game. Before the season started, I made some goals. I wanted to be the best tackle in the conference and I just wanted to help the team win."

Opposite coaches say it's Buckley's quickness as much as his heft that makes him effective.

"You like to see a kid like Buckley, because he's got the quickness to start with," says one. "A kid with a big frame like that can always add more weight, but if he doesn't have the quickness to start with he's not going to get any faster."

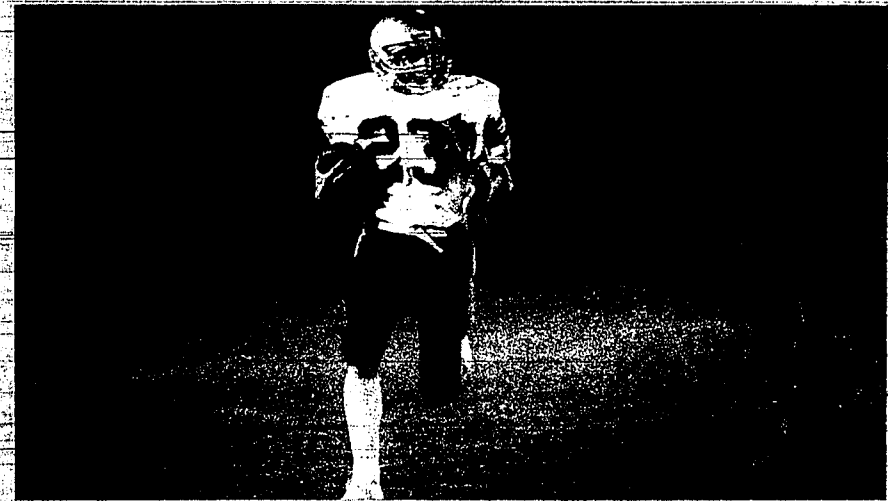

Buckley isn't the Hornets' leading tackler, but he drastically affects what other teams do offensively. Passing teams tend to be more conservative because of the pressure that Buckley and Oldham can bring to bear on the quarterback, while running teams find the going tough.

Shoshone's Charles Sandy, here returning a kickoff against Carey, will be just one of the weapons to confront Council

Can Indians shake Axers' confidence?

By CHRIS HAFT
Times-News writer

POCATELLO — Since a team's attitude usually reflects that of its coach, one can assume that the Council Lumberjacks possess unshakable confidence.

The No. 1-ranked Lumberjacks, who confront a second-ranked Shoshone for the state eight-man football championship Saturday at 9 a.m. in the ISU Mindome, have all it takes to emerge on top if you ask Larry Russell, their first-year coach.

Russell quickly ticked off a list of the assets that could prove advantageous to Council: speed, experience, having played on artificial turf intelligently, quick and "very diversified" were some of the phrases he used to describe his 10 Long Pin Conference champions, who won last year's unofficial eight-man crown. He also mentioned, "We haven't turned over the ball more than five times all year."

He stated that Shoshone surely would offer Council's most difficult opposition of the season. Then he noted that North Gem, which Council whipped 49-13 two weeks ago to reach the finals, had managed to score on the Indians in a 44-24 loss during the regular season's fourth week. "We feel we can do the same, that's for sure," he said.

"In eight-man football I feel that most of the time scoring is inevitable," Russell continued. "But we hope not to let Shoshone

Is Pocatello ready for 26 hours of prep grid title games?

POCATELLO (AP) — The Idaho High School Activities Association is trying something new this weekend. It will hold all of its high school football championships in the same place — Idaho State University Mindome.

That means the Mindome will be a busy place, because it will have to host three prep championship games Friday, three more Saturday — and then get ready for Idaho State's season-ending Big Sky Conference game against Nevada-Reno at 7:30 p.m.

The United Dairyman of Idaho are sponsoring this year's championships. In the past, the games have been held at separate locations. And for the first time, the state is sanctioning an official eight-man state championship game.

In the past, Idaho's smallest football-playing schools have had to settle for a "mythical" state crown.

There's also a new A-1, Division I title up for grabs. Nampa plays Mountain Home in that contest, which is scheduled for 3:30 p.m. on Saturday, the last of the six playoff games.

Four of the teams which won No.

1 ranking in the final Associated Press poll of the season will be in championship games; and all four of the state's undefeated teams will be playing.

Here's a brief summary of the championship games:

A-4, 11-man championship, Mullan against Oakley, 4 p.m. today.

Oakley is undefeated and ranked No. 1, but Mullan is the defending champion and has lost only one game in the last two years. The northern Idaho team also features perhaps the biggest pair of running backs in the state: Ron Jacobson, a 6-foot, 210-pound tailback and Scott Johnson, a 6-foot, 250-pound fullback. And quarterback Van Higblom won all-state honors last season.

A-1, Division I, Highland against Capital, 8:30 p.m. today.

Third-ranked Capital is the defending state champion, and undefeated and top-ranked Coeur d'Alene in last week's semifinal. But Highland is ranked No. 4, has lost only one game in the playoffs, and is that defeat by losing the Lions in the semifinals. The game will pit perhaps the two best passing attacks in the state, featuring Mark Arstein of Highland against Matt Barney of Capital.

A-3, Madison against Bishop Kelly, 9 p.m. today.

Madison was upset by Bonneville three weeks ago, ending the No. 1-ranked Bobcats' 32-game winning streak and a chance at Borah's state record of 34 straight. But Madison teams as a strong favorite over Kelly, a surprise team under freshman coach Will Overgaard. Madison walloped Jerome last weekend in the semifinal, while Bishop Kelly had to struggle past Vallivue. The Bobcats also have about twice as many players as the Boise Catholic school, and fatigue may be a factor.

— Bonneville against Gooding, Saturday 1 p.m.

Like the A-4 championship, this contest also pits Gooding, undefeated and No. 1 in the final A-3 poll, against the defending state champion, Homedale. And the southwestern Idaho Trojans of Homedale will have experience going for them. It's the sixth straight year Homedale has appeared in the A-3 playoffs.

A-1, Division II, Nampa against Mountain Home, Saturday 9:30 p.m.

Both teams may feel like winners in this game, because for the first time, the smaller A-1 schools have been given a chance to compete for a championship against teams of their own size. Nampa beat Mountain Home 16-12 earlier in the year, but the Tigers already have had one playoff game in the Mindome.

Senators, Hornets dominate all-Canyon Conference teams

KIMBERLY — Canyon Conference champion Gooding and runner-up Declo dominate the Canyon Conference all-league football team, which was released Thursday.

The Senators, who will play for the state Class A-3 state title Saturday in Pocatello, placed six players on the offense and three on defense while Declo had three players on offense and three on defense.

Third-place Kimberly had two players on offense and four on defense.

The all-conference teams were chosen by the league's seven coaches. Second-year Gooding Coach Bob Milligan was named coach of the year.

Five players from the conference made both the all-star offensive and defensive units. They are Bart Kelsey, a senior tailback and noseguard from Declo; Troy Jackman, a senior tailback and free safety from Kimberly; Mark Johnson, a senior offensive and defensive tackle from Valley; Matt Birnie, a senior guard and linebacker from Gooding; and John Solosabal, a senior offensive tackle and linebacker from Glenns Ferry.

Gooding players on the all-league team in addition to Birnie are junior quarterback Todd Simis; junior fullback Danny Dally, junior light end Brian Darcy; senior center Walt Delbo and senior placekicker Scott Kirtland on offense. On defense are Birnie, senior defensive end Jeff Yore and senior cornerback Ben Yore.

Commissioner quits over loan

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A member of the Los Angeles Coliseum Commission resigned in protest Thursday in the wake of the commissioner's vote to lend $4 million to the Los Angeles Raiders, and asked for a court order to block the loan.

Los Angeles County Supervisor Paul Schabarum, who called the commission's action "an arrogant disregard of the public's interest," asked District Attorney Robert H. Philibosian to obtain a restraining order that would block the loan.

The loan was part of a 1982 agreement that brought the team here from Oakland.

Johnson took dive in Houston

DALLAS (AP) — Denver wide receiver Butch Johnson, one of the keys to the Broncos' success this year, says he purposely played below par with the Houston Oilers to better his chances of being traded to another National Football League team, a Dallas newspaper reported Thursday.

Johnson said he pulled a fast one on the team that took him from the Dallas Cowboys but traded him to the Broncos at season's start, according to The Dallas Morning News.

The Broncos are 10-1 and hold a one-game lead in the American Football Conference West. The Oilers won their first game of the season last week.

Johnson told the newspaper he believed if he became expendable he would enhance his chances of ending up with the Broncos or the Los Angeles Raiders, his two preferences.

Panthers close up shop

ROCHESTER, Mich. (AP) — The Michigan Panthers of the United States Football League have told their employees the team is closing shop and Thursday's paychecks will be their last.

Vince Lombardi, the club's president and general manager, said Wednesday that even if a proposed merger with the USFL's Oakland Invaders falls through, the team will not stay in the Detroit area.

"It's not true that the merger has fallen through," Lombardi said. "But if we don't go to Oakland, we're not staying here."

Cowboys waive Carmichael

DALLAS (AP) — Veteran wide receiver Harold Carmichael, who played in only two games and caught one pass for seven yards, was released by the Dallas Cowboys of the National Football League on Wednesday to make room for a rookie linebacker.

The Cowboys resigned free agent linebacker Jimmie Turner of Presbyterian, who was one of the last training camp cuts, Turner will play on the specialty teams.

Carmichael, making over $5,000 per game, was on the Dallas roster for 10 games. The 14-year-veteran played 13 years for the Philadelphia Eagles.

NFL suspends Muncie for rest of year

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Running back Chuck Muncie, undergoing rehabilitation for drug problems, was declared ineligible for the remainder of the 1984 National Football League season Thursday by Commissioner Pete Rozelle.

CHUCK MUNCIE League cites drugs

The announcement was made by the office of the San Diego Chargers, who currently possess Muncie's contract. A publicist quoted Chargers owner Alex Spanos as saying the club "will abide by any ruling made by Commissioner Rozelle."

Muncie was told by Rozelle that the question of his future eligibility will be reviewed prior to the 1985 season, the team said.

"A decision at that time will be conditioned on several factors, including satisfactory adherence to the terms of his after-care treatment program," Rozelle's statement said.

"Muncie also must totally avoid further drug-related involvement and any other conduct detrimental to the integrity of the professional football or to public confidence in it," the statement said.

Muncie, who has turned down recent requests for interviews, was not available for comment.

The ninth-year pro from the University of California, who was San Diego's leading rusher every year between 1980 and 1983, was suspended from the league in September after his drug problems came to light.

He subsequently was ordered to undergo rehabilitation and spent several days at the Scottsdale-Camelback Hospital near Phoenix. He has since returned to San Diego for the after-care portion of his treatment.

League sources said last week the NFL was not satisfied with Muncie's progress in the rehabilitation program, but Rozelle did not address the issue in his statement.

Muncie ran for 196 yards and eight passes totaling 396 yards for San Diego in 1983, and had gained 6,651 yards on the ground in his eight NFL seasons prior to this year. He rushed 14 times for 51 yards in the opening game of this season.

He is the sixth-leading active rusher in the NFL.

The Chargers tried to trade Muncie to Miami in September after he missed a team plane to Seattle and Coach

Don Coryell said he did not accept the running back's excuse — that his car had been vandalized — and that his car fell through when a urinalysis showed traces of cocaine in Muncie's system.

Rozelle then suspended the back from the league and ordered the which San Diego received a second-round draft pick in 1985. But the deal had been vandalized.

Coryell announced Sept. 11 that the Dolphins had agreed to the trade, in which San Diego received a second-round draft pick in 1985. But the deal had been vandalized.

Getting past Utah means a lot to No. 3 BYU

By JOHN MOSSMAN
The Associated Press

Unlike previous seasons, the Western Athletic Conference title and the WAC's automatic Holiday Bowl berth aren't hanging in the balance when Brigham Young and Utah stage their annual late-season battle this weekend in Salt Lake City. BYU has already nailed down those trophies.

But something even more precious could be at stake. The third-ranked arch-enemy Cougars are eyeing the thoughts of a national championship. With top-rated Nebraska facing Oklahoma this week and No. 2 South Carolina going on the road to play Navy and Clemson in its last two games, it is possible, allowing BYU to move up in the rankings — but only if the Cougars stay undefeated.

Utah represents a significant obstacle. The Utes boast the nation's fifth-best rushing attack, with a deep corps of tailbacks and fullbacks and a flashy quarterback who have combined to run for 278 yards per game this season. The Utes also are on a roll, having won their last three games.

That winning streak pales, of course, in comparison with BYU's 21 victories in a row. But another factor complicating the equation is Utah's record at home. In three seasons under Coach Chuck Stobart, the Utes are 14-1 at home. Their lone blemish during that span was a tightly contested 17-12 loss to BYU in 1982.

"Utah is one of the best offensive teams we've seen this year," said BYU Coach LaVell Edwards. "We're expecting a very tough game. BYU-Utah always is."

Stobart agrees. "It should be an intense and exciting game, because we're a much better team than people think," Stobart calls BYU, the top passing team in the nation, "the best team we'll play this year. They're good because they have no weaknesses."

BYU's Holiday Bowl opponent will be named on Nov. 24. Holiday Bowl officials would love to have either South Carolina, the only other major-college unbeaten, or Boston College, 6-2, but both figures are going to a more lucrative bowl, probably one of the majors on New Year's Day.

The bowl's selection committee will scout games this weekend involving Ohio State-Michigan, Oklahoma-Nebraska, Oklahoma State-Iowa State, Washington-Washington State, Arkansas and Tennessee.

In other Western Athletic Conference action on Saturday, Wyoming plays at Texas-El Paso and New Mex-led CSU 31-17 midway through the third quarter behind quarterback Sammy Garza's scoring run and two TD passes, but the Rams rallied to win 59-31.

Defensively, Wyoming ranks 103rd out of 105 Division I-A teams, allowing 455 yards per game. UTEP isn't far behind, in 99th place at 426 yards per game.

"We've played pretty well on offense the last five games," noted Wyoming Coach Al Kincaid. "The way we've been playing defense, we'll need every point we can get."

"Wyoming has gone nuts on offense," said UTEP's Bill Yung. "Our offense has to control the ball and keep it away from them. If we don't, we'll need to get some fire extinguishers out there on the Astroturf."

New Mexico, after starting the year 4-0, was hit by a string of injuries that contributed to the Lobos' subsequent six-game losing streak. The Lobos have gone 13 quarters without scoring a touchdown and have scored only 11 points in their last three outings, but they may get quarterback Buddy Funkh back from an ankle injury this week.

Coach Joe Lee Dunn calls SDSU "the most talented team we'll play except for BYU, and they're close to BYU. I sure would feel better if we get Buddy back."

Aztec Coach Doug Scovil, whose team fell to BYU 34-3 last week, calls UNM "more of a defense-oriented team than we are. They specialize in blitzing, and we must pick up their blitzes to be able to move the football."

CSU quarterback Kelly Stouffer has thrown for more than 300 yards in his last three games, and the Rams, 3-7, will try to stay hot against ASU, 4-5. The Sun Devils also boast a formidable passing attack. Jeff Van Raaphorst set Pac-10 passing records with a 532-yard performance against Florida State two weeks ago.

ico visits San Diego State. Colorado State is at Arizona State in a non-league matchup. Hawaii and Air Force are idle.

Wyoming and UTEP both have fielded productive defenses in recent weeks along with there they go again defenses, so expect a high-scoring battle in El Paso. The Cowboys got a WAC-record 302 yards from halfback Kevin Lowe in last week's 45-23 victory over South Dakota State. UTEP

Would-be bride dislikes plans for orgiastic bachelor party

DEAR ABBY: I am praying you will answer my letter in the paper because I don't even know where I'll be living by the time you get this.

I was supposed to be married last Friday. My family went to a lot of trouble to arrange the wedding and many guests had bought gifts to bring. I thought I was marrying a sweet, thoughtful man who loved me. I found out last week that "Jerry's" friends were planning a "bachelor party" for the night before our wedding. I also found out that a cheap hooker would be there to provide sex and entertainment and that plenty of Hagar had been booked so everyone could get drunk.

I didn't want to marry a man who thought illicit sex with a hooker was a "treat," and I told Jerry so. He said there was no way he'd call the party off, that he deserved one last fling, and that he was glad he found out I planned to run his life before it was too late to get out.

Now, none of my family is speaking to me. My mother says I will have to change my ways if I ever expect to find a husband. Everyone else says I threw away a great guy. I am sick and wish I had never been born.

Was I wrong not to want a husband who got drunk and had sex with a slut the night before my wedding? Everyone is making me feel like I am crazy or something. Please answer me.

DEAR C: You are not crazy. You and Jerry are miles apart when it comes to moral values, which is the cement that holds a marriage together. You are not his kind of woman, and he is not your kind of man. You're lucky to learn it before the knot was tied.

DEAR ABBY: Recently my wife and I stopped at a restaurant while driving to Savannah, Ga. After ordering, I asked the waitress for a glass of water to take some pills — one for my heart, the other for diabetes. The waitress said, "I will have to charge you 10 cents for the water, sir." I was shocked. I replied, "Ten cents for a glass of water?" She said, "Yes, for the paper cup you will be using."

Abigail VanBuren
Dear Abby

10 cents, but suppose a customer is eating and starts to choke; do you mean to tell me if he didn't have 10 cents for a glass of water, he would just have to choke? She didn't say anything, but she brought the water, and I took my pills.

Later I asked her for a spoon to stir my coffee. She said, "Sorry, sir, we don't serve spoons with coffee, but I can let you have a plastic knife." I said, "Remind me never to eat here again."

Was I wrong to pay my bill without leaving a tip for the waitress?

A SOUTHERN PASTOR: DEAR PASTOR: Yes. Assuming the waitress wasn't also the owner, she didn't make the rules; she was only carrying out the boss's orders.

If the service was good, you should have left a tip.

CONFIDENTIAL EVERYBODY:

"Some people's n'oeuvres."
— WARREN KNOX

DEAR ABBY: I'm a longtime reader who wants to share an experience I had that could be helpful to others.

A friend of mine was sick in the hospital, so I sent her flowers. I spoke to her several times while she was in the hospital and she made no mention of my flowers, so I decided to let the matter. I telephoned her hospital and asked if my flowers had ever been delivered, and would you believe they had had TWO patients named Mrs. Fred Lawrence registered there at the same time?

It seems that my flowers had been delivered to the wrong Mrs. Fred Lawrence, who checked out the day my flowers arrived, taking my flowers with her and leaving my friend flowerless!

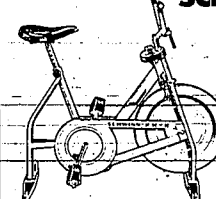

The moral to this story is always use the patient's first name when sending anything (cards, letters, gifts) to a large hospital.

— E.C. IN SAN FRANCISCO

DEAR E.C.: Using the first name only can be equally risky. There could have been two "Mary" Lawrences registered. To cover all bases, one should provide as much identifying information as possible.

Example: to Mary (Mrs. Fred) Lawrence of Menlo Park, Calif.

Shopping's dark mysteries

When a merchant or a shopkeeper is born, his first words are, "Please, God, please send me an Erma Bombeck."

I am the quintessential consumer. I buy quickly. I buy often. And I have absolutely no taste whatsoever.

If the sleeves are a little long, I'll roll them up. If the hem is uneven, I'll walk with one shoulder higher than the other. If the color isn't quite what I want, I'll sit in bed at night. There isn't a retailer who cannot read the digits of my credit cards from memory. My husband says I am the only person in the world who can run up a $136 charge at the carwash.

Having established my credentials as a shopper, I will now proceed to question some of the mysteries of shopping that have astounded me for years.

How come I have never seen a line that wasn't an sale? Or a Housewares Boutique that wasn't going out of business? Beauty shops never go out of business.

How do big signs in their windows that read, "MOVED TO A NEW LOCATION."

How come people who sell used cars assume we are all hard of hearing? If we needed those kind of deals, we couldn't qualify for a driver's license.

And why is it perfumes and cosmetics are never sold by American women? They are always Europeans with hair dramatically pulled to a bun in the back and accents so thick you can barely understand the name of the product. The only things American women sell are laundry detergents and toilet bowl cleansers.

Why do they put seats and ashtrays in dressing rooms? If it isn't my favorite place to entertain guests. Possibly the only person I would allow in the room with me as I am changing my clothes is someone who has given birth to me.

I have never in my life seen carpet that has not been marked down from its original price, or that is guaranteed not to last a lifetime. (If this were true, then how do all the carpet stores stay in business?)

Why is it men who never sew sell sewing machines and men who never vacuum sell sweepers? And if you wear a junior size and are over 50, you have to jeopardize your hearing with funky music to buy clothes.

How come shoestores always have big signs on the roof that read, "OPEN FOR BUSINESS?" What else would they be open for?

And why would toy departments have everything close to the floor when they know children will try out everything and... forget I asked.

I just bought a three-foot teddy bear and the baby is 26 years old. Merchants know what they're doing.

Media may help teen suicide spread

By MARTA W. ALDRICH
The Associated Press

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — Adolescent suicide can become contagious when the media glamorize the deaths and give the story front-page attention, a national expert says.

"A lot of kids see the attention a suicide gets. They read the headlines and hear the reports and think to themselves that, for one moment, I can be important, too," said Dr. Susan J. Blumenthal, director of suicide research at the National Institute of Mental Health in Rockville, Md.

Reporters portray suicide victims as heroes when they cover the stories from the angle of "the all-American kid who just decides to kill himself," Ms. Blumenthal told the National Mental Health Association on Saturday during a two-day conference here.

Adolescents often view suicide as their pathway to glory, and the news stories often awaken fantasies about death without reminding them of the consequences, she said.

One suicide can trigger another when adolescents identify with a suicide victim through the media's description of the youth and the events leading up to the death, she said.

Ms. Blumenthal cited a "suicide cluster" this year in Westchester County, N.Y., where 10 youths killed themselves — five within a three-week period in February.

"They didn't know each other, but there is evidence they had all read or heard about the other suicides," she said.

The suicide rate among people aged 15 to 24 has tripled in the last 30 years, while the rate among every other age group in the United States has decreased, said Ms. Blumenthal, an adjunct assistant professor at George Washington University School of Medicine.

About 5,400 adolescents and 30,000 Americans of all ages kill themselves each year, and many more suicides go unreported, she said.

Most young people who kill themselves are white males, but the rate has increased recently among black males living in urban areas. The suicide rate also is higher in the West, she said.

Ms. Blumenthal said the increase in suicides among young people, especially in affluent communities, often can be traced to competition for jobs, money and status. They have little self-esteem, base their identities on others' opinions and cannot face rejection.

"After the Depression, there was a sense of something to achieve. Today, kids look at successful parents who have a lot of material things, and they're not sure where to go and fear they'll be failures," she said.

Adolescents usually suffer from chronic depression or aggression before killing themselves, Ms. Blumenthal said.

that said.

"The idea that the well-adjusted adolescent commits suicide after one disappointment is a myth," she said.

Depression is the primary cause of suicides in both adolescents and adults — but society attaches a stigma to depression that hampers treatment, she said.

American Heart Association has a more fun meeting than you think

By DANIEL Q. HANEY
The Associated Press

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. — When doctors at the American Heart Association's annual meeting tire of the 1,852 formal scientific presentations, they can play a video game, take in a skit or sit inside a giant blue pill.

The diversions that rest at the heart of this big convention are the product exhibits, a glossy sea of lights, chrome and elaborate booths where 4,000 salespeople try to make a good impression on 8,000 doctors and nurses.

"We want exposure with cardiologists, to let them know that this exists," says David Jordan.

He's spending the four-day convention demonstrating the wizardry of one of the priciest gadgets on the floor: a room-size, $1.3 million General Electric cardiac catheterization machine. And if all goes well for Jordan, the doctors will return to their home hospitals and recommend buying one.

The 340 exhibitors cover 250,000 square feet in the Miami Beach exhibition hall. No one knows how much it all costs or even the total value of the tens of millions of dollars worth of hospital equipment, but the numbers are big.

"It's got to be mind-boggling," said Richard Scheln, the meeting's manager. "Last year, one exhibitor told me he spent — bringing in sales people, building the exhibit, hotel costs — half a million dollars. He said it was the best half million he could have spent."

On display are every conceivable kind of medicine to treat heart trouble and machine to diagnose it: doppler ultrasound equipment, complete with color TV screens and lub-dub sound effects; computerized monitoring systems; digital stethoscopes that record heart sounds and play them back at half speed; jogging machines; surgical lasers; radiographic film developers; arrhythmia simulators and more.

All this is displayed in booths that are competitively eye-catching.

The name of the game is to be attractive," said Edward Ellsworth behind the counter of ELA Medical's pacemaker display. "It's like flowers to the bees. The more bees that come along, the more flowers that get pollinated."

Ayerst Laboratories has its giant pill, the size of a bus, to promote its heart drug Inderal. Doctors can sit inside and watch them get pollinated.

At Geigy's Lopressor display, doctors lounge in easy chairs and play a video game called Breakout. A monitor records their rising blood pressure as the game gets progressively tougher.

Nearby, Wyeth Laboratories puts on a live skit about a young woman who leads a healthy lifestyle while taking Wyatensin, a high blood pressure medicine. Those who leave business cards are promised they'll get a record album called "Heart Aches by the Number."

At Hoechst-Roussel's display, heart doctors can even slip behind a curtain and have electrocardiograms.

No money changes hands. Actual selling during the meeting is forbidden. But conventioners are given credit card-like squares of plastic, and those who give them to the sales people can be sure of a followup call where deals are struck.

"It gets a little more impressive year after year," said Dr. Andrew Buda of the University of Michigan. "For someone who's never seen them before, it must be overwhelming."

"Overwhelming is the word for it," chipped in Dr. Willard S. Harris of Tampa.

Twin Falls man organizes wildlife art show

One of Blaine Billman's renderings of quail in flight that will be on display in the Idaho Wildlife Art Show in Boise

By TERRY RICH HARTLEY
Times-News correspondent

BOISE — A premiere Idaho Wildlife Art Show is scheduled for Nov. 21 and 22 at the Red Lion-Riverside Ballroom in Boise where 24 artists, comprising 14 different media of wildlife art, will be exhibiting.

"There's never been anything like it in the West," says artist Blaine Billman of Twin Falls, who organized the show with Ted Smith of Boise. "We're not solely concerned with sales," he says, adding, "at least as important is educating the public to truly professional work and raising awareness of the wildlife genre."

Billman, whose pen and ink work, "Night Moves" made the finals in the 1984 Duck Stamp competition, wants the public to view what he calls "a quality product." He says too much of the wildlife art in general art shows misrepresents wildlife.

"The artists in this show are people who don't do things we haven't gone out and studied," he says. "It has to all click — otherwise, it's a misrepresentation."

As an example, Billman shows two carved ducks of Smith's, pointing out rich detail and coloration.

"This comes from not being in such a rush to make a lot of money," he says. "These are the kind of people who'll be at the show. They'll stick their heads under water to see how a fish swims before trying to paint or carve one."

Billman says most quality shows are in the East and are sponsored by organizations that are primarily interested in profit.

"This show is an investment in our own future," he says, pointing out that rather than looking for a sponsor, he and Smith put the event together themselves with help from Idaho Wildlife magazine and the Idaho Sportsmen's Coalition.

Billman hopes to make the show an annual event, saying, "We're very fortunate to live in the Northwest from a creative standpoint, but the opportunities for us to show and sell our work are extremely limited without extensive travel. I hope this show grows every year."

"And I don't think anybody will be disappointed with the range of art we'll be showing."

He says where most shows display very limited technique, this one stretches from taxidermy to oil painting, from watercolor to birds of prey and fish.

Showtimes for the general public are 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. Saturday and 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Sunday. Admission is $2 adults and free for children 12 and under.

The Idaho Sportsmen's Coalition is selling tickets at a discount prior to the show. Write Box 4716, Boise, 83711 for information.

Acclaimed pianist to return to Magic Valley

TWIN FALLS — Concert pianist Mark Nelwirth is performing at the Renaissance Academy of the Arts Saturday at 7:30 p.m.

A native of Elmberly who currently lives in New York City, Nelwirth has performed as a solo pianist, concerto soloist, chamber musician and accompanist.

Studying with Teala Bellini in Twin Falls during his high school years, the pianist later attended Hartt College of Music in Hartford, Conn., and Manhattan School of Music in New York City.

To critical acclaim, Nelwirth performed in Carnegie Recital Hall in 1980 and, in 1981, he won first place in the prestigious Manhattan School of Music Concerto Competition, performing "Concerto No. 2 in B-flat" by Brahms with the Manhattan Symphony. Later that year, he performed "Concerto No. 2" by Rachmaninoff with the Magic Valley Symphony.

Nelwirth was a national finalist in the National Federation of Music Clubs Young Artists Competition last year, and he is the first recipient of the Young Artist Grant sponsored by the Idaho Federation of Music Clubs.

Saturday evening marks his third solo appearance at the Renaissance Academy, where he is scheduled to perform "Sonata in G minor, Op. 7, No. 3" by Muzio Clementi; "Sonata No. 26 in E-flat major, Op. 81a" by Beethoven; Alexander Scriabin's "Sonata-Fantasy, Op. 19" and "Mephisto Waltz No. 1" by Franz Liszt. After an intermission, the pianist will play three preludes by Rachmaninoff and Chopin's "Sonata No. 3 in B minor, Op. 58."

Rick Strickland, academy director, says that both of Nelwirth's prior concert appearances sold out early and advises early reservations by calling 734-0719. Tickets are $5 adults and $3 students and senior citizens.

Some good seeds sown in 'Country'

JESSICA LANGE Helped co-produce film

By PAT MARCANTONIO
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Gil and Jewell Ivy keep scraping along on their farm, hoping for a good year on the farm, but for the string of bad ones. But the years of hard luck have caught up with them.

Their livelihood of the earth is threatened this year again, and not by a natural enemy of storm or insect. Their foe is a man-made disaster of rising costs and dropping crop prices.

"Country" is not altogether about the Ivys becoming another statistic of slumped commodity prices or agricultural economies. Rather, it is the story of a family's battle to endure an inner tremor brought on by an exterior force.

Jessica Lange, who also co-produced the film, heads the strong cast as Jewell. Lange has well made up for her sickening debut in "King Kong" with one good performance after another in films such as "Frances," "Tootsie," "The Postman Always Rings Twice," and now, this one.

In "Country," Lange gives complexity to a woman with simple aims: to save her farm and family. Sam Shepard plays Gil with grit. The actor, whose mere presence is that of rugged individualism, is at home over tractor and newly plowed ground.

Director Richard Pearce has an eye for furrows of the land and the beaten, yet honorable faces of the farm people. He makes the two elements inseparable. The painful hewing winter parallels the upheaval of the Ivys' lives under the spectre of mortgaging the farm.

Where the film fails to blossom in the script, which backs off from what could have been a powerful statement on the toll that financial pressure brings to the family who believes it can withstand anything.

Instead of full commitment, we are given the expected. The fate of a neighbor going through the same hardship can be seen coming like a speeding truck on the straight lonely dirt road. The end of the film creeps up to the emotional potential. And, it is softened even more with an epilogue that assures a happy ending where in life there is no such guarantee.

"Country" has the feel of life down on the farm in its sensitive and earnest approach.

The seeds it sows are good ones.

Wynette to bring her 'natural talent' to Jackpot

By TERRY RICH HARTLEY
Times-News correspondent

JACKPOT — When Tammy Wynette steps on stage at Cactus Pete's Nov. 21, the audience is likely to perceive the woman called "The First Lady of Country Music" as one of culture, wealth — even one born with that proverbial silver spoon in her mouth.

Yet, reality shows the spoon was made of straw, while the stuff of success is a mixture of grit, natural talent and unrelenting drive.

Only two decades ago, as the 42-year-old singer remembers, she was living in a three-room log house on a Mississippi farm that lacked even an indoor toilet, water pump and stove. Wynette says she cooked in an open fireplace, carried water from a spring down the hill and boiled diapers in an iron pot over a backyard fire.

Born Virginia Wynette Pugh on her grandfather's farm in Itawamba County, Mississippi, she explains, "Our property crossed the state line, so I tell people my top half comes from Mississippi and my bottom half from Alabama, and if they're not happy, turn me around."

Her father, a local musician, died of a brain tumor when she was eight months old and her widowed mother went to a Birmingham department plant. Living with her grandparents, Wynette says that by age 7, she was "boiling, chopping, pickling and hating every minute of it."

But it was this hardship that led to her future career in music. Wynette says, "I think she endured long, back-breaking hours in the cotton fields by daydreaming of singing before thousands of people. On Sundays, she played piano and sang in church, and, by her teen years, had formed a trio which performed on local radio.

"I dreamed of being a singer," she says, "but I also wanted to be a housewife and mother like my girlfriends. I wasn't singleminded in my goal. When two of my best friends got married during our senior year of high school, I mistook infatuation for love and did the same thing. I thought marriage would get me off the farm."

It did. It also landed her an itinerant construction worker — "unemployed more often than not," — two children within three years, and a life harder than she'd known at home.

Describing the rent-free, abandoned log house they were forced to live in, Wynette says, "Not even the poorest sharecropper would have paid to live there. There were huge cracks between the logs, so we froze in winter and melted in summer. I insulated the rooms with cardboard boxes which I ripped up and nailed to the walls."

With money given to her by her mother, Wynette enrolled in beauty school in nearby Tupelo with the hope of escaping poverty and drudgery. "A part of me still thinks getting paid to sing is too good to be true," she says, explaining that she still keeps her beautician's license current. "Having the license means I can always go back to hairdressing."

It also gave her an escape from a bad marriage. Moving to Birmingham, Wynette gave premature birth to a third daughter who suffered a nearly fatal bout with spinal meningitis before she was four months old. On top of this, Wynette was in the midst of a divorce, worked 10-hour days as a hairdresser, and still found the strength to get up at 4 a.m. to sing on the local "Country Boy Eddie" TV show. Wynette says she also made trips to Nashville whenever she could get free from work to see producers about getting a recording contract. After months of rejection, determined to make "an all-out, do-or-die effort" to break into the business, she moved to Nashville with no contracts, no knowledge of the music industry and no friends in that city.

"I'm a Taurus," she says. "Telling me I can't is like waving a red flag in front of a bull." But, she admits that the ordeal of having no money, no job, no place to live, and three small children dependent on her nearly broke her spirit. "We had been living on cornbread, milk and pinto beans for weeks, then I met Billy Sherrill," she says, referring to the young boss of Epic Records. "I was on my last leg, just about ready to give up and go back to a steady job in a beauty shop."

Sherrill listened to her sing three songs, agreed to record her, and the rest is the stuff of fairy tales. Quite literally, a star was born. Her first single, "Apt. No. 9," was released within weeks and hit the charts almost as soon as it appeared on the record racks. Within three years, Wynette had won her first Grammy. She has twice been named Female Vocalist of the Year by the Country Music Association.

The log cabins are no more than a memory these days: She divides her free time between a splendid retreat in Jupiter, Fla., and a home in Nashville and she spends an average of 15 days per month criss-crossing the U.S. in a luxurious, custom-designed bus. A second bus, painted china white and adorned with Old

Club to boost folk dancing

By DARLENE WILLIAMS
Times-News correspondent

TWIN FALLS — The Magic Valley Folk Dancing Club has recently been formed in an effort to promote folk dancing in the Magic Valley and its now recruiting new members.

The newly-formed club consists of a small group of people who are "hard-core" folk dancers says group member Lise Swedberg.

The local members originally were students of folk dancing classes taught by Ed Austin, the former director of continuing education at the College of Southern Idaho.

When Austin moved to Utah this past summer, some of his former students decided to start a folk dancing club.

Since the club is now organized, the group would like other dancers to join, says Swedberg, adding, people who would like to folk dance don't necessarily have to be experienced in folk dancing to join the club. The group would like beginners to come too.

Swedberg says, "We will accommodate the less experienced. The main idea is to come and have a good time."

The club is not a professional or performing group, said Swedberg, but is a sociable group that is casual and relaxed.

"We are not in a hurry," says Swedberg. "This gives us a chance to teach new people."

She said the group would accept all ages from high school students on up to join the club.

Glenn Yarbrough slated to bring special vocal style to CSI concert

TWIN FALLS — The magical voice of Glenn Yarbrough, a favorite of the '60s when he appeared as lead singer with the Lime Lighters group, will be heard in Twin Falls tonight.

Twin Falls Exchange Club is sponsoring Yarbrough in concert from 8 to 10 p.m. tonight in the College of Southern Idaho Fine Arts Auditorium in a benefit appearance.

Tickets have been on sale for several weeks and are also available at the door at $5.50. The ticket at that price will admit one adult and two children.

Exchange Club officials say the response to the Yarbrough concert has been excellent with many of his ardent fans welcoming the rare opportunity to hear him in person and to let members of a younger generation become familiar with his music.

Yarbrough helped make a number of ballads and folk songs popular in the '60s and his popularity continues in demand, according to Exchange Club

President Tom Bush. The club sponsors a leading performer or group of performers each year to raise money to assist handicapped children, senior citizens and to support youth programs. Funds are also used to provide youth scholarships in the community. Many business organizations assisted the Exchange Club by sponsoring blocks of tickets. These were sent free to

Olivia Newton-John to wed

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Olivia Newton-John, a singer and actress who starred in dance movies as "Grease," will wed actor Matt Lattanzi in a private ceremony before the year is out, her publicist announced Thursday.

Miss Newton-John, 36, an Australian, met Lattanzi, a 25-year-old American, five years ago when they both appeared in the film "Xanadu," said Paul Bloch of the special education classes, homes for youth in trouble or handicapped and senior citizens who might not otherwise be able to hear the concert.

Yarbrough involves his audience in his performance, club members explain, and the concert goes well have an opportunity to hear or join in on such favorite numbers as "Baby, The Rain Must Fall," "Love's Been Good to Me," "Daddy Boy" and others.

Rogers and Cowan publicity agency. Bloch said the marriage will be first for both. The ceremonies will be private and no details will be divulged until after it has taken place, Bloch said. He said it will be "before the end of the year."

Miss Newton-John, whose first big song hit was "Let Me Be There" in 1973, teamed with John Travolta in 1978 for the hit movie "Grease."

Gloria like her own, carries her band. Wynette has performed in Europe many times where some of her albums have been certified gold and platinum, and for many years now she has been a regular in the this country on prime time TV, concerts and recordings.

Besides being an album-label of hers, "Stand By Your Man," is also the title of her best-selling autobiography published in hardback in 1979 and reprinted in paperback in 1980. It aired as a CBS-TV movie special in 1982.

"Even with all the commercial success she's enjoyed, Wynette is aware that her personal life has often shadowed her career. Particularly during the seven years she was married to George Jones starting in 1968.

"Wynette's albums that they loved, sang, wrote, recorded and performed in a romantic, stormy and much publicized relationship that ultimately brought her more headlines than happiness.

But, now married to long-time friend and songwriter George Richey, Wynette says she feels joy has surfaced in her life. She says she's grown a lot since the George Jones days when, "I depended on him to carry the ball on stage because he was more at ease fooling around with the audience."

Tickets for her two Cactus Pete's shows are currently on sale for $15 per person. Customers may call 800-821-1103 toll free 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily. Curtain is 9 p.m. and midnight.

Dancers

"One of the problems with folk dancing is people don't know what it is," says Swedberg.

Folk dancing is dancing that belongs to a particular nation or group of people. It can be any kind of dancing. Examples of well-known folk dances are the Irish jig and the Mexican hat dance. An American folk dance is the square dance.

Most folk dances started as entertainment and were danced during national festivals and celebrations such as holidays.

Folk dancing is not necessarily couple dancing, noted Swedberg. Circular or line dances are often used.

Swedberg says she enjoys folk dancing because it can be danced with just a few people or with a large group. The Magic Valley group dances about 30 different folk dances and will be learning more, she says.

Most of the dancing the group practices originated in Europe.

A folk dance Swedberg says she enjoys doing is the "have nagilla" from Israel. It is a line dance that was done in the streets to celebrate, she says. "Israeli dances bounce and move and are lively," she says.

"Folk dancing is different, but not difficult," says Swedberg. She invites anyone who is interested in this form of dancing to come to room 144 of the Vo-Tech building at CSI every Wednesday evening from 8 to 9:30 p.m. The club doesn't have dues and is free - just show up, says Swedberg. The group's instructor is Linda Rutledge.

'Still the Beaver' to bring back old favorites on Disney Channel

By JERRY BUCK
AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — There are some television series that just won't go away. There's "Star Trek," of course, and then there's "Leave It to Beaver."

"The Beaver" is a phenomenon. It left network television 21 years ago, but it's never left the air. The reruns still attract an extraordinary audience, and it has cut followers as dedicated as any Trekkie.

Now, the Beav, Wally and Eddie Haskell are grown up and all have children of their own — and a new series on the Disney Channel called "Still the Beaver."

It was a rocky comeback. "We started trying to sell the idea of bringing back Beaver five years ago," said Nick Abdo, whose partner is Brian Levant. The rights are owned by Universal Television.

"It was two years before we got the go-ahead for a movie on CBS. Then they wouldn't let Brian write it. They gave it to another team of writers, and we got a script you couldn't shoot. We started from scratch, then they forced a director on us who made a depressing movie. Let's say the movie wasn't up to our expectations." Luckily for Abdo and Levant, the people at the Disney Channel never saw the movie. They bought 13 shows and took an option for 13 more based on the idea. A new episode will appear every two weeks and run six to eight times during that period.

What they came up with for Disney is light years ahead of the movie. Although it lacks the nostalgic impact of the original, it's still lighthearted and funny.

Jerry Mathers is back as Theodore "Beaver" Cleaver. So are Tony Dow as Wally, Barbara Billingsley as his mother June, Ken Osmond as Eddie, and Frank Bank as Lumpy. Abdo and Levant have also added five young performers (including Ken Osmond's son Eric) to play the children of the Beav, Wally and Eddie. The only missing member of the original cast is Hugh Beaumont, who played Ward Cleaver. He died in 1982.

In the new show, Beaver is divorced and works at a bank. He and his two sons live in the old Cleaver home in Mayfield with Beaver's mother, Wally, now the boy next door, is married to his high school sweetheart, Mary Ellen Rogers. Eddie Haskell owns a construction company.

"We wanted to bring back 'Beaver' because television doesn't have any real families anymore," said Levant. "Except the Bill Cosby."

"I had wonderful characters, so why not?" said Abdo. Levant said the magic is still there. "Year in and year out, 'Beaver' was the most satisfying show on the air," he said.

"People associate the show with an air of innocence and the way they regard the world. The strange thing about the show is that it was never a Top 10 show the 10 years it was on the network."

'Fatal Vision' dramatizes murder of family in a compelling fashion.

By FRED ROTHENBERG
The Associated Press

NEW YORK — "Fatal Vision," NBC's miniseries about the former Green Beret physician who was convicted of brutally murdering his pregnant wife and two children, is a tastefully compelling production that is thoroughly worth your emotional and time commitment.

And that was no easy task. First of all, the real-life story of Dr. Jeffrey MacDonald is almost too revolting to dramatize, and second, the facts of the case have already been well-reported in newspaper articles and television news, including a 90-minute "60 Minutes."

"Fatal Vision" will be broadcast in two-hour installments, Sunday and Monday night.

It begins in 1970 on a rainy night, the kind Hitchcock loved, in Fort Bragg, N.C. MacDonald, a physician, is weary and incoherent. He's calling for an ambulance. He says there's been a stabbing.

Next scene: the curious are milling outside. A voice in the crowd says it's a child. Subtly, the sense of a monumental crime about to be overborne.

The first two hours show and tell MacDonald's version—he's the victim, the grieving husband and father who says four drug-crazed hippies burst into his house and stabbed and beat his family to death. He tried to fight them off, he said, but was beaten back, suffering some superficial punctures and wounds.

In the first two hours, he's also innocent. He has the support of the press and his father-in-law, Freddy Kassab. (Karl Malden.) But something is amiss. This charming, All-American type is shown to have an arrogant streak. His affection for his family never seems to go beneath the surface.

In the second two hours, everything gets turned around.

Kassab, after reading the transcript of the botched Army hearing into the killings, becomes convinced of MacDonald's guilt. He begins a relentless 9½-year quest for justice. It finally comes in a 1979 trial, the other side to this story, the one for which the jury needed only 6½ hours to render guilty verdicts in the triple murder.

The jury believed that MacDonald (Gary Cole), the supposed boy-next-door-type, had killed his family, staged a hoax murder scene and inflicted a host of injuries. Although there was no motive established, and no witnesses, MacDonald was convicted through a fiber-and-bloodstain reconstruction.

Joe McGinniss, author of the best-selling "Fatal Vision" (went through a similar transformation on the basis of MacDonald's guilt or innocence. Invited by MacDonald to have inside access during the trial for the purpose of writing a book, McGinniss comes to the conclusion "beyond any reasonable doubt" that MacDonald was a killer.

MacDonald, serving three life sentences in a federal prison in Texas, is eligible for parole in 1991. He still maintains his innocence.

According to McGinniss, MacDonald got $75,000 for book royalties and is getting a piece of the TV action. NBC refused MacDonald's lawyer's request to delay the miniseries. The lawyers claimed the broadcast could prejudice any potential trial.

NBC News has agreed, though, to the lawyers' proposal for a panel discussion to examine the issues raised by the film. The forum will be held on the "Today" show next Tuesday.

In an effort to be fair and keep the suspense working for four hours, the miniseries seems to have softened some aspects of McGinniss' vision of the former Army doctor, leaving out some incriminating evidence and only briefly touching on MacDonald's marital infidelity and mood extremities.

"I left a lot of room deliberately for people who think he's innocent," said director David Greene ("Roots," "Friendly Fire").

The prosecution had to prove that MacDonald committed the crime.

McGinniss tried to prove more—that MacDonald was the kind of guy who could kill his family. Consequently, the book's indictment seems stronger.

The miniseries stresses Kassab's conversion. To keep it to four hours, 23 pages of courtroom scenes were cut. "It's a story about a man's search for justice," said Greene. "It's not Perry Mason."

'All of Me' fitfully funny but some scenes aren't for children

To assist parents in evaluating movies for family viewing, the Los Angeles Times lists current movies and indicates areas of content (theme, language, sex, violence) that may be inappropriate for the very young or imprudent. MPA or The Times' ratings are in parentheses.

ALL OF ME (PG) One scene of bathroom humor too explicit for children. Fitfully funny but somewhat on the left of wholesome. Steve Martin plays a lawyer forced to share half his body with a selfish, prudish and very wealthy client (Lily Tomlin). This lighthearted caper only occasionally lives up to the promise of its premise — usually on those occasions when undoubtedly coincidental. Both heroines are writers of romantic fiction whose fantasies become real. The "author" in "American Dreamer" is JoBeth Williams, a housewife with a boring, indifferent husband (James Staley) and two attractive sons.

GHOSTBUSTERS (R) Language and supernatural violence. Perfectly silly and silyly perfect fun on every level as three scientists (Bill Murray, Dan Aykroyd and Harold Ramis), dispossessed from their college research niche, decide to take their parapsychological research out — for hire. Every detail is witty perfection that miraculously never lets down throughout. With Sigourney Weaver, revealing a light touch you always hoped she had.

NINJA III: THE DOMINATION (R) Violence. A slickly made martial arts-demonic exploitation film about an attractive young woman (Lucinda Dickey) who goes on a killing spree. Sam Rainsberg's direction is full of action and violence but not much originality.

OH GOD! YOU DEVIL (PG) Family entertainment. In his third time around as God, George Burns takes on a second role — as the Devil — in this inspired and consistently amusing comedy, which also stars Ted Wass as a struggling songwriter willing to sell his soul for a hit. Burns is pure joy.

PLACES IN THE HEART (PG) Some scenes of violence too intense for very young children. Outstanding family fare. A work of love in which writer-director Robert Benton wants us to understand the character of a small Texas town where he grew up and the character of Americans at a time when their lives were most severely tried — mid-depression 1935. The film is extraordinary, restorative and deeply American, constructed with the intricacy of a fugue. The look of the film and its every technical detail is magnificent; and Benton's cast (which includes Sally Field, Ed Harris, Lindsay Crouse and John Malkovich) is the cream of young American performers.

Capsule reviews

Martin either is yanked about by the lady world or publicly squabbles with his unwanted disaffair.

AMERICAN DREAMER (PG) Rating is possibly because of two fairly innocent bed scenes. This movie can't decide whether it wants to be a screwball comedy, a spy thriller or a fantasy. As a result, it falls in all departments despite attractive players and lush settings in Paris. Similarly to the successful "Romancing the Stone" is striking, though

Star, director expected to rise in stature

Action-comedy looks like money maker

By DALE POLLOCK
The Los Angeles Times

HOLLYWOOD — The smart money is betting that Eddie Murphy will be the hottest talent on screen this Christmas as the star of "Beverly Hills Cop." Theater owners who have seen the film say the action-comedy shapes up as the big holiday money maker.

Martin Brest, the film's director, is expected to rise in stature, too. His asking price may increase tenfold if the film becomes a box-office smash.

"But" the "real money" industry beneficiaries of the anticipated success of "Beverly Hills Cop" will be the picture's producers, Don Simpson and Jerry Bruckheimer.

EDDIE MURPHY
Hot talent for holidays

The pair responsible for "Flashdance" and "Thief of Hearts" stand to cement their reputation as two of the most sought-after producers in Hollywood.

Twentieth Century Fox wants them. Walt Disney Productions wants them. It is a little over a year until their contract with Paramount Pictures expires, but the courting has already begun by former Paramount executives now heading Fox and Disney.

Such desirability can mean a lot in today's Hollywood: plush offices, expensive perks and the ability to make virtually any movie you want, with writers, directors and stars of your choosing. Most importantly, it means recognition that can lift producers out of the ranks of rich anonymity.

"If we can't be the Ted Williams of movie producers, then why produce movies?" asked Simpson, 34, a volatile, former Paramount Pictures production chief, who reportedly made $3.5 million for producing "Flashdance."

"We feel we have a talent for knowing talent," said the Bruckheimer, 40, a soft-spoken veteran producer. "We don't rely on agents to make our careers. We're very close to the audience because we love movies."

It's difficult to find two more unlikely prospects for Hollywood producers than Bruckheimer and Simpson. A lower-middle-class Jewish kid from Detroit, Bruckheimer came up through the advertising business, learning his trade while shooting commercials. He had no relatives or sponsors in the business, just a talent for putting together visual elements.

"That's where I learned the mechanics of film making," Bruckheimer explained. "I'm more Mr. Outside, putting things together and then stepping back. Don is Mr. Inside — he knows the studio system inside and out."

Simpson began his career as anything but Mr. Inside. His father was a hunting guide in Alaska, and his family was strictly fundamentalist Southern Baptist.

But Simpson got more than religion growing up in Alaska. He rebelled against his upbringing, and became what he calls "Baby Face Nelson in Anchorage," convicted of four felonies before he was 16 (they were expunged from his record because he was a juvenile). Simpson turned his life around as a teen-ager and went on to college, but part of his Alaskan heritage remained.

"That's my survivalist background, my competitiveness, my combativeness," Simpson said. "I'm a survivor. I love sports because I'm a total competitor. I love hand-to-hand combat. Battle is a joy to me. But I've never in my life cheated in a sport. I believe unequivocally in ethics. I will not lie, cheat or steal. I do what I have to do to get the job done within ethical boundaries. In their own way, the pair cause as much discussion in Hollywood as their movies do.

"Don and Jerry are atomic producers — their energy can either drive a city or destroy it."

Yet they are not without detractors. Present and former Paramount executives complain that all three movies made by Simpson and Bruckheimer were handed to them by the studio.

"Let me respond directly to that," Simpson said of the assertions. "We've never been handed a movie in our lives, except for 'Thief of Hearts,' which was a studio movie we were asked to produce."

Michael Eisner, former president of Paramount and now chairman of Disney, remembered it differently. "These films, for good, bad, or worse, were all Paramount projects we gave to Simpson and Bruckheimer to produce. They wouldn't have worked without Don and Jerry, but the idea that they developed 'Flashdance' and 'Beverly Hills Cop' all by themselves is just ridiculous."

Others say that whatever success Simpson and Bruckheimer have enjoyed has resulted more from luck than talent.

One agent who has worked with the producers noted: "This is a town of instant stardom. Simpson and Bruckheimer have made one successful movie ("Flashdance," which has sold $180 million worth of tickets worldwide) and one unsuccessful movie—"Thief of Hearts," which has sold a disappointing $9.1 million in tickets. Isn't that a little too early to judge them?"

"I don't know and I don't care what people think, because the truth is Jerry and I are on the set of every movie we make every day," Simpson, now president of Paramount's movie-making arm, said. "Our participation is in every aspect of the movie-making process."

Simpson took a deep breath to calm himself, and then smiled. "Ask us why we are not of the old school, and not of the new school, but of our own school, the school of film making, not producing," he rattled off. "We're not producers, we're film makers."

That may come as news to the Directors Guild of America, which was founded on the notion that directors are the guiding force in movie making, and which put a quick stop to producers making movies when it was attempted on films such as "Mahogany."

So how can Don Simpson and Jerry Bruckheimer call themselves film makers?

"We put together all the elements," said Bruckheimer, who usually only speaks when Simpson has paused to catch his breath. "We decide what aesthetic is right for a picture. Since the total number of movies Don and I have worked on (individually) is enormous, we have a good idea of how people operate from the cinematographer to the prop man."

"I've worked with other directors and seen how they operate, and in my mind, we operate totally differently," Bruckheimer added. "We are as much a part of the process as the director. We don't just step back and let the director come in and say, 'I want to hire so and so.' A lot of producers say, 'Fine, go ahead and do it.' We'll say no."

Being a producer means more than just saying no, Simpson and Bruckheimer faced several crises daily during the making of "Beverly Hills Cop," including one over the credits which was resolved only when Murphy's managers agreed to reduce the size of the star's name against that of the film's title.

Simpson and Bruckheimer recall that "Flashdance" was a grueling exercise in post-production, too. The producers, the studio, the director and the editors frantically shuffled sections of the movie around in an effort to make it work.

They accepted accept full responsibility for the lack of success of "Thief of Hearts," although Simpson maintains it was "a very well-produced movie."

The responsibility comes, he explained, because "no one is cast, no one is set on the crew without Jerry and myself being there. No one sends us a memo saying so-and-so has been cast in the movie. That's not the way we work."

"Beverly Hills Cop" had a singularly discouraging pre-production period.

The story of a Detroit police officer tracing the investigation of a friend's murder back to Beverly Hills was originally designed to star Mickey Rourke. But problems with the script delayed filming, and Rourke departed to make "Pope of Greenwich Village."

Paramount then sent the script to Sylvester Stallone without Simpson and Bruckheimer's knowledge, according to the producers. When Stallone committed to star in the project in less than 24 hours, their misgivings were mitigated by the fact that "Cop" would actually get made, and would be directed by Martin Brest, whom they lobbied for two years before he agreed to make the film.

But Stallone, as is his wont, rewrote Dan Petrie Jr.'s script, and when Stallone turned his version over to Paramount, it was no longer the same movie he had told the studio he would make. Paramount and Stallone decided to part ways.

(A spokesman for Stallone said the actor rewrote the project at Paramount's request, and departed from the project amicably when it was clear that "Beverly Hills Cop" was going to be more of a comedy than an action picture.)

Enter Eddie Murphy, who was under exclusive contract to Paramount. As usual with a project involving Simpson and Bruckheimer, there's a minor dispute as to just who suggested casting Murphy as a "black and funny Clint Eastwood." It was his idea, Eisner suggested it was then-Paramount production chief Jeffrey Katzenberg who brought Murphy into the project.)

Elvis re-releases show youthful side

By JIM KELTON
The Everett Herald

ELVIS PRESLEY—Early recordings re-released of rhythm; not Charlie Rich; not Roy Orbison; not anyone.

To commemorate the 50th anniversary (on Jan. 8, 1985) of the birth of Elvis Presley, RCA Records is re-releasing several of his early albums.

The wisdom behind the move is obvious: Young Elvis is better than older Elvis.

Even more important, the younger Elvis' recordings were significant. They were full of fire and passion, and they helped inspire a generation to rebel against the middle-class conventions that Presley so blithely ignored.

As the King aged (badly), his music (like his body) was more often gonged with excess. There were exceptions — 70s hits such as "Burnin' Love," for example, had an awful lot of lean-mean life in them.

However, it is the juiced-up, rockabilly exuberance of "The Sun Sessions" (also on RCA) and the soulful rock 'n' roll that is contained on the new RCA re-issues that really matters.

Presley not only was different in that he was the flashiest, most aggressive and least inhibited of the white rockers who were imitating black rhythm-and-blues stars, but he was even more eccentric, in some ways, than many of the faney-freaky blacks who influenced him.

He sounded mighty angry, as if he were venting some monumental frustration, and nobody could copy him totally. He was too unpredictable. A lot of singers naturally sounded like him. A lot more were made to resemble him by ambitious managers and voice coaches and by the use of studio echoes that effectively duplicated the dominant elements of his style.

But not a single white rock 'n' roller topped him — not Jerry Lee Lewis, who had more musical adventurousness; not Carl Perkins, who had a livelier sense of rhythm; not Charlie Rich; not Roy Orbison; not anyone.

Yet most of them outlasted him. Many of them are still plying their trades in one capacity or another. Some, like Perkins, continued on even though they faded from the record-sales charts while others, like Lewis and Rich, developed prosperous careers in country music.

In any event, the Elvis legacy lingers in a singular fashion. That is what makes RCA's re-issue (and restoration) to the original monumental glory of "The Sun Records," "50,000 Elvis Fans Can't Be Wrong," "Elvis and the Rocker" so worthwhile an endeavor.

Those albums define Elvis. They contain the classic Presley cuts that followed his move from Memphis' Sun label to RCA: "Hound Dog," "Heartbreak Hotel," "Jailhouse Rock," "Love Me Tender," "Tutti Frutti," "Rip It Up," "Don't Be Cruel," "Love Me Tender," "That's When Your Heartaches Begin" and on and on and on.

Big Country's new album offers a mixed bag

By The Los Angeles Times

Reviews

BIG COUNTRY "Big Country's Long-Awaited Second Album" proclaims the slicker on the front of the Scottish band's new LP. Actually, it hasn't been that long a wait. The group's debut album, "The Crossing," was released just 14 months ago.

Still, there is an element of truth to the phrase. Big Country has raised enormous expectations. "The Crossing" was one of the most promising rock debuts in years, offering in such songs as "A Big Country" and "Fields of Fire" much of the spiritually edged thematic ambition and the guitar grandeur of U2's most prized works.

The quartet had trouble unloosening in the three songs I saw in its first United States tour, but the final half-hour of each of those concerts last fall was as exhilarating as anything I'd seen by a new band since the arrival of the Clash and the Pretenders.

But, there is a second cause for concern: a largely uneventful mini-album that consisted chiefly of earlier English "B" sides, thus leaving the issue of new material unresolved.

The opening track on "Steeltown" compounds the anxiety. Stuart

Adamson, the group's lead singer and songwriter, continues to explore the social concerns of the debut album, but there's too little revelation in "Flame of the West." Things pick up after that, but the music too often circles aimlessly rather than setting a foundation for Adamson's earnest vocals.

Big Country rallies strongly, however. In the last two songs on Side 1, "Where the Rose Is Sown" is a deftly crafted anti-war statement that utilizes a dual narration structure for dazzling effect. The track — which will be the first single from the album — also reveals the guitar richness of the first album.

"Come Back to Me" is a more delicate, folk-accented track, which contrasts brilliantly the loneliness and anger of a pregnant war widow with the cheering at a war hero's homecoming.

Nothing else on the album extends the promise of those two tracks, leaving material a major question mark in Big Country's future. Even with the problems, there is a winning sense of idealism and dedication about the band. Big Country is still prized rock 'n' roll territory, but it needs more production than what "Steeltown" offers if it's going to live up to its promise.

BEFORE THE INDUSTRIAL TRIAL COMMISSION, STATE OF IDAHO

In the Matter of the Amendment of the Idaho Occupational Safety and Health Standards Code No. 1.

NOTICE OF INTENDED RULEMAKING

Pursuant to IDAHO CODE, 72-508 and IDAHO CODE, 72-720, the Idaho Industrial Commission is authorized to adopt reasonable minimum safety standards for workmen exposed to airborne asbestos fibers. The proposed amendments would set additional limitations for airborne asbestos fibers, would prescribe methods for asbestos equipment to be utilized by potentially exposed workers, and would prescribe appropriate cautionary labels and signs. The proposed amendments would apply to:

- 1) every person in the service of the State or of any political subdivision thereof, under any contract of hire, express or implied; and every official or officer thereof, whether elected or appointed, while performing his official duties;
- 2) every person in the service of the County, City, or any political subdivision thereof, or of any municipal corporation;
- 3) members of the Idaho National Guard while on duty and participating in Idaho Youth Conservation projects under the supervision of the Idaho State Forester;
- 4) every person who is a member of a volunteer fire, or police department;
- 5) every person who is a regularly enrolled volunteer in a fire, or police, or trainee of the Department of Disaster and Civil Defense or of a Civil defense corps;
- 6) every person who is employed by a public school or school district.

The proposed rules are identical to federal administrative rules adopted by the Occupational Safety and Health Administration and codified at 29 CFR sec. 1910.1001 et seq. The Commission is considering the proposed administrative rules to insure the protection of workers who are not protected by occupational safety and health administration rules relating to asbestos fibers. It is the Commission's policy to, and the Commission does, encourage the individuals or industry affected thereby.

Any person who examines a copy of the proposed amendments by inquiring in person, or writing to:

Idaho Industrial Commission, 317 - Main Street, Boise, ID 83720. Written comments on the proposed amendment will be delivered to the Commission if mailed or delivered to the above address not later than the close of business November 23, 1984.

THE ACES BOBBY WOLFF

"By perseverance the snail reached the ark."
- Charles H. Spurgeon

How does one take two finesses in the same suit when dummy has a singleton? Not in the usual way, of course. Remember, there's more than one way to take a finesse.

North made a transfer bid to show spades and jumped to four spades when South promised at least three cards in the suit. (South could have passed. East's double with only a doubtless spade.) One of the advantages of the Jacoby transfer is that the opening lead rides up to the no-trump bidder's high cards, an advantage not applicable to today's layout.

South won the first heart, afraid that his ace of hearts might be ruffed away if he ducked. Trumps were drawn in two rounds and dummy's diamond jack was passed for an everyday finesse. West won the queen and led his remaining heart, and East took his two high hearts before shifting to a club.

East entered his hand with his last trump and dummy's club lost went on South's diamond 10, limiting the defense to only three tricks.

This time it was a ruffing finesse. South led his diamond king, forcing West to cover with the ace, which was ruffed in dummy. South's hand with his last trump and dummy's club lost went on South's diamond 10, limiting the defense to only three tricks.
