U.S., Soviets try for nuclear

By MAUREEN SANTINI
The Associated Press

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. — The United States and the Soviet Union, hoping to improve the climate for arms agreements, will open new negotiations Jan. 7-8 in Geneva aimed at curbing nuclear weapons and space weapons, the superpowers announced on Thanksgiving.

"We are at a moment where each side has decided to make a determined effort to reduce tensions," said Robert C. McFarlane, President Reagan's national security adviser. "We are ready for genuine give and take with the Soviet Union with the purpose of reaching concrete agreements."

Secretary of State George P. Shultz and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko will represent their respective nations at the first round of talks.

The meeting represents the first face-to-face negotiations on strategic and medium-range nuclear weapons in a year, and the first U.S.-Soviet talks on space weapons since 1978. Shultz and Gromyko will use their first session to discuss the objectives, format and agenda for the new talks, McFarlane said.

His announcement was made at the White House with a two-way audio hook-up to the headquarters of the press corps that accompanied Reagan to California.

In a move that symbolized the tense state of U.S.-Soviet relations, the Soviets stalked out of nuclear arms talks a year ago to protest U.S. deployment of new nuclear missiles in Europe. Year-long efforts to revive those talks have so far failed.

White House officials said the new talks will focus on strategic nuclear weapons, medium-range nuclear weapons and space weapons, he said. It was not yet known whether the separate suspended nuclear talks will ever be revived.

There was the possibility the new talks would, in effect, replace the stalemate talks — enabling the Soviets to avoid having to back down on the preconditions they had set for resuming those negotiations.

CBS-News reported Thursday evening that according to "reliable administration sources," possible American concessions to the Kremlin being considered in advance of the Geneva talks include a three-year moratorium on testing of U.S. space weapons as well as a "temporary suspension" of deployment of additional cruise and Pershing missiles in Western Europe.

In Moscow, Soviet Foreign Ministry spokesman Vladimir Lomeiko stressed that the United States and the Soviet Union were talking about "completely new" negotiations.

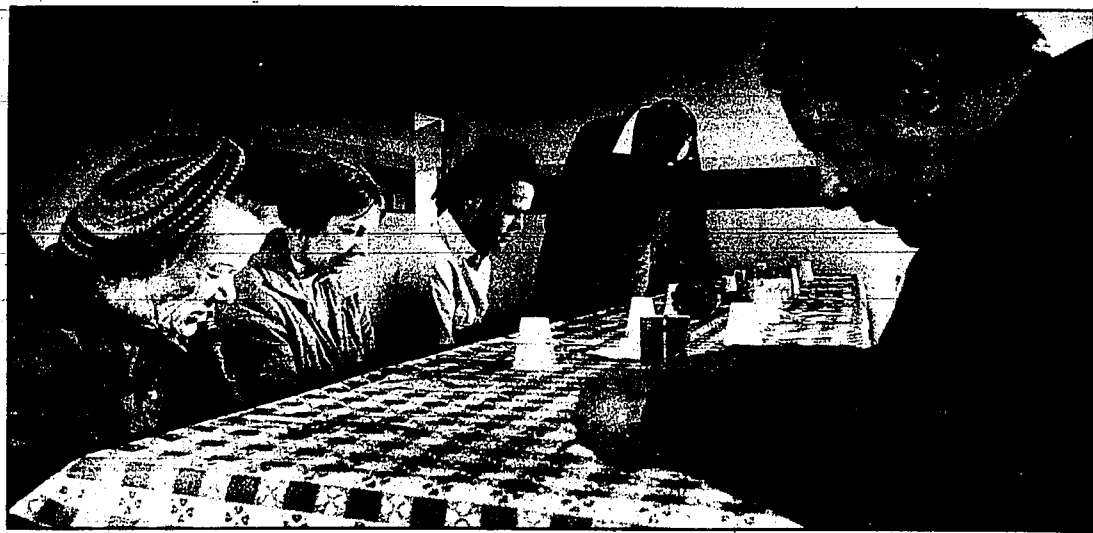

He said the Soviet Union does not consider the talks between Shultz and Gromyko to be a continuation of the suspended Geneva disarmament talks. And he said the Soviet Union still insists that the suspended talks cannot resume until U.S. cruise and Pershing 2 missiles are removed from Western Europe. Asked if it would be possible for the United States to raise the issue of medium-range weapons at the talks in January, and whether the Soviet Union had withdrawn its precondition that the missiles be removed before the arms control talks could resume, Lomeiko replied:

"I want to direct everyone's attention to the text in which everything was very clearly stated. We are not talking about resumed negotiations. As far as those negotiations go, the situation has not changed. They are only possible given the removal of the NATO rockets."

However, he said, Gromyko — and Shultz —

Protest labeled 'witness'

By PAUL PAGE
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The District of Columbia's delegate to Congress, appearing in court Thursday after being jailed overnight for a sit-in at the Embassy of South Africa, proclaimed the protest "an act of moral witness" to that country's policy of racial separation.

Democrat Walter Fauntroy, a non-voting representative in Congress for the nation's crack city, pleaded innocent to unlawful entry charges. Fauntroy, along with two other black leaders — Mary Frances Berry, a member of the U.S. Commission on Civil Rights, and Randall Robinson, head of a black lobbying group known as TransAfrica — was released on personal recognizance.

"Ours was an act of conscience in response to the repressive action of the South African government with respect to the noble, non-violent protests of black South Africans over the last few months," Fauntroy said after his arraignment.

D.C. Superior Court Judge Bruce S. Mencher set a Dec. 20 hearing for the trio.

The three had refused to leave South Africa's embassy here Wednesday night and were removed by police and charged with the misdemeanor violation. They refused bond, and Fauntroy did not claim congressional immunity, ensuring that he would spend the night in jail.

South Africa Foreign Minister, R.F. Botha, said in Pretoria Wednesday that "Two had been charged on black ownership after a two-day work stoppage earlier this month. Several labor leaders and others protesting that country's policy of apartheid, the strict policy of racial segregation, are being detained by authorities."

The sit-in was sparked by South Africa's new law on black ownership after a two-day work stoppage earlier this month. Several labor leaders and others protesting that country's policy of apartheid, the strict policy of racial segregation, are being detained by authorities.

"The Reagan administration's policy of 'constructive engagement,' is geared towards low-key diplomacy, is actually indifference towards apartheid, Fauntroy said. Fauntroy said the protest was also to show continued support for opponents to the current Pretoria regime.

For most, a traditional observance

Americans dined on turkey and trimmings, watched parades and helped to feed the less fortunate on Thanksgiving Day, the harvest festival that brings families together and marks the beginning of the winter holiday season.

"It is a time when we get together with our families to enjoy the celebration of Thanksgiving, and the thing I thank God for the most is my wonderful family," wrote one young resident of Boys' Town, the Nebraska community for troubled and homeless boys.

In New York, thousands bundled up their children against the cold and lined Broadway for the 58th annual Macy's Thanksgiving Day Parade, marked by a procession of giant helium-filled balloons of such cartoon characters as Donald Duck and Raggedy Ann.

An estimated 80 million people watched that parade and others in Philadelphia and Detroit on television.

42 guests served in Twin Falls — A7

The Thanksgiving Day parade in Montgomery, Ala., was marred by the stabbing death of a 20-year-old man during an argument with another spectator. Police said Dwight Faulson was treated at the scene but died a short time later in a hospital. A 16-year-old boy was arrested on a murder warrant.

Thanksgiving commemorates the first harvest celebrated by the settlers in Massachusetts, when in 1621 Pilgrims and Indians shared a meal.

"I've always loved the idea of Thanksgiving, with the pilgrims making friends with the Indians and sharing turkey together," said Diana Moreno, 23, a mother of four children. "But this year we can't afford the turkey."

Mrs. Moreno was among 2,000 people given bags of groceries Wednesday at Maywood, Calif., during a food giveaway sponsored by a Steelworkers food bank.

Not everyone saw the day as one for celebration. Ray Ramirez, who has Navajo ancestry and is superintendent of the Tigua reservation near El Paso, Texas, says that for him it is a day of mourning.

For others it is a day of feasting. Aboard the USS New Jersey at Long Beach, Calif., Ensign Jim French led 50 chefs in preparing dinner for about 300 people — crew members and their families. Last Thanksgiving, the recommissioned battleship was on patrol in support of the peacekeeping forces in Lebanon.

Others labored to feed those who lack homes or food.

In Denver, 64-year-old "Daddy" Bruce Randolph continued a 20-year tradition and dished up free meals for up to 50,000 people at his restaurant.

"I get a lot of joy out of life by helping people," Randolph said, adding that he and his employees had been cooking nearly 24 hours a day for two weeks to get ready. More than 3,000 people volunteered to help and others gave donations.

YELLOW THUNDER CAMP, S.D. — Indians at this camp in the Black Hills, land they consider sacred that was taken from them after gold was discovered, didn't give thanks on Thanksgiving or have a holiday feast.

Some families fasted in mourning at the camp on Black Hills National Forest land that they have occupied the site since April 1981.

"We have nothing to be thankful for," Indian activist Russell Means said Wednesday, adding that he and others across the nation would commemorate the day by fasting and praying, as they have for the past 14 years.

Camp leaders said the colonization of America and the slaughter of Indians in the process ruined the idea behind Thanksgiving.

Means fasts for 24 hours, beginning after sundown on the day before Thanksgiving. So does Frank Jañes, leader of the United American Indians of New England, the group that made the initial mourning day declaration in 1970 at Plymouth Rock in Massachusetts.

James, of South Orleans, Mass., said he considers Thanksgiving Day a time to mourn not just for those Indians slaughtered during colonization, but also for problems in the world today.

In Fort Worth and San Antonio, Texas, 18,000 elderly people were offered free turkey dinners by Mexican-food manufacturer Jimenez Sr., who started the holiday custom 12 years ago with a banquet for 250.

Stallings, Hansen both plan to attend orientation sessions

The Associated Press

IDAHO FALLS — Both Democratic Congressman-elect Richard Stallings and Republican incumbent George Hansen say they plan to attend Washington meetings at which congressional leaders plan committee assignments and lobby for leadership posts.

Stallings, as holder of the state's official certificate of election, is the invited delegate to the organizational session, which begins next Wednesday.

Hansen, who held the seat for seven terms, is challenging Stallings' 12-vote victory in the Nov. 6 election with a 20-precinct recount. He said he plans to attend on the assumption that "when the smoke clears, I'll still be the congressman."

House Administration Committee spokeswoman Ellen McCarthy said the candidate who receives official certification of election from the state is the candidate who is invited by House leadership to the preparatory session.

Stallings will receive an official certificate of election from the Secretary of State's office sometime this week, admitting him to the organizational meetings and making him eligible to receive House funds to offset expenses for himself and his aide.

The money comes from the House operating budget, not a separate account set up for Congressmen to pay office and travel expenses.

Stallings, his wife, Renee, and Pugmire will leave for the session Monday night. Stallings will also attend an issues seminar at Harvard University before returning to Rexburg on Dec. 12.

Hansen left late Wednesday evening for Washington, D.C., where he planned to spend Thanksgiving holidays with his family.

Hansen's term of office — and the salary and expense budget that comes with it — doesn't end until about noon on Jan. 3.

Hansen said he will use some of the $130,000-per-year travel expense budget allotted to Congressmen to attend next week's session.

Hansen said that, in contested races, House leadership makes allowances during the organizational session.

"We've made an official request for a recount and that's part of the election process," he said. "If a certificate of election does have to be issued, it can still be pre-empted" later through a successful challenge of the votes, he said.

Any committee appointments made at next week's session remain tentative until officially acted upon during the first days of the new session, Hansen added.

Stallings said Wednesday he has no problems with Hansen attending the session.

"We were declared the winner and with that certificate of election we're in business," he said. He said he expects Hansen to continue his challenge until all avenues are exhausted. "I think he's going to spend as much time as he can delaying," Stallings added.

If Hansen finds enough discrepancies in his favor in 20 contested precincts to project a possible change in the outcome of the election, then a district-wide recount can be ordered by the state. With Stallings clinging onto a thin .06-percent margin, Hansen would need only to gain a few votes in the challenged precincts to force the recount. The recount could be completed in about two weeks.

Meanwhile, Stallings is also taking on other trappings of a congressman-elect, including an appearance on the C-Span cable television network on Dec. 3 to analyze, as a freshman Congressman, the shape of the new Congress. The national call-in program airs at 7 p.m.

Stallings said he'll begin the process of filling administrative positions on his staff. As Congressman-elect, he can also take advantage of House franking privileges and has access to government stationery and mailing privileges.

He said he plans no active role during Hansen's recount challenge. "He'll call a recount. We'll just watch," Stallings said.

Road deaths could reach 500

CHICAGO (AP) — Highway accidents during the long Thanksgiving weekend could claim between 400 and 500 lives, the National Safety Council said. ... Country statistics say that 400 people could be expected to be killed in traffic accidents during a non-holiday period of the same length at this time of the year. ... By 5 p.m. MST Thursday, 61 people had died on the nation's highways.

Homes to be razed for park

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Scores of homes made uninhabitable by fire explosions at a gas storage facility will be razed and a public park will be built on the scorched area, officials said on Thursday. ... Three bodies were found in the rubble of the low-income neighborhood on Mexico City's outskirts and nine severely burned people in hospitals on Wednesday, raising to 348 the number killed by the inferno that raged through Tlalpanita before dawn on Monday.

Clergyman slain in Salvador

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — A Lutheran minister, who reportedly eulogized an army commander of anti-rebel operations, has been found shot to death in eastern El Salvador, a church official said Thursday. ... Civil guardsmen found the body of the Rev. David Ernesto Fernandez Espino near the city of San Miguel on Wednesday evening, according to the Rev. Merdardo Gomez, president of the Salvadoran Lutheran Synod. ... Fernandez had been shot once through the head. ... "The Lutheran church has no information about who might have committed this murder," said Gomez. ... Guerrillas have been fighting for more than five years to topple the U.S.-backed Salvadoran government.

Britain may leave UNESCO

LONDON (AP) — Britain announced Thursday it will join the United States in pulling out of UNESCO unless the U.N. organization makes management and budget reforms by the end of 1985. ... Britain, the United States, the Netherlands and other Western nations have criticized the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization as over-politicized, badly managed and often anti-Western. ... The long-expected move by Britain, one of UNESCO's founders, brought cries of protest and "Shame!" from opponents in the House of Commons when Foreign Secretary Sir Geoffrey Howe announced it.

The United States served notice last Dec. 28 that it would leave the Paris-based organization at the end of 1984, and all indications are that the plan will be followed although UNESCO's six-nation executive board put a ceiling on budget growth at its October meeting.

Inmates flee Virginia prison

BURKSVILLE, Va. (AP) — Five inmates escaped Thursday night from a medium-security prison by cutting through two fences near the base of a guard tower, authorities said. ... A guard in the tower spotted four inmates running across the parking lot outside the Nottoway Correctional Center shortly after 6 p.m., said Corrections Department spokesman Wayne Farrar. ... The guard called for his men to halt, but she was unable to get off a shot before they ran across a highway and disappeared into a woods, Farrar said. ... The escapees had cut through a pair of fences below her tower, he said.

Collins in pain after surgery

LONDON (AP) — Gov. Martha Layne Collins of Kentucky spent Thanksgiving Day in a great deal of pain after surgery to remove an inflamed section of her small intestine which contained a jagged piece of glass, her husband said. ... Dr. Bill Collins, who flew to London Thursday morning to see his wife, said intense pain was normal for two or three days after intestinal surgery and hospital officials "expect her to make a full recovery." ... The 47-year-old governor, who was in Britain with other governors for the start of a European tour to study acid rain, awoke in pain early Wednesday and underwent 3½ hours of exploratory surgery.

The language used by Lomeiko was almost identical: "The Soviet Union and the United States of America have agreed to enter new negotiations with the aim of achieving mutually acceptable accords on the entire complex questions concerning nuclear and space weapons." ... McFarlane said the agreement resulted from exchanges between Reagan and Soviet leader Konstantin U. Chernenko over the past eight weeks. ... Texan to challenge O'Neill in caucus

By MERRILL HARTSON
The Associated Press

SPEAKER TIP O'NEILL
Says he's not worried

the post." He declined to elaborate. O'Neill was first elected to the House in 1952 and ascended to the speaker's position in 1976. O'Neill, who turns 72 next month, has said he will retire in 1986, and some party sources have said that for this reason, any challenge to O'Neill's continuation in the leadership role in the 99th Congress starting in January likely would only be symbolic. These sources discussed the leadership situation on the grounds they not be quoted publicly. These sources have said that current discussions among legislators focus on changes that could be made in 1986, when O'Neill retires. Stenholm, 46, said he was concerned about the image of House Democrats in the wake of President Reagan's landslide Nov. 6 election victory over former Vice President Walter F. Mondale, saying he feared that under O'Neill's continuing leadership, the party would be seen as "obstructionist" by the American people. "I'm afraid we'll be left with a stalemate," he said. O'Neill had said the day after the elections that the new Congress was "going to be very far with the president." But the speaker also said that despite "the mandate on the popularity of the president, the people want both the Democratic House and Democrats in the Senate to be a safety net against any wild ideas the president of the United States may have out there about Social Security or new taxes." A Stenholm challenge would be the first formally launched against O'Neill since 1977, although in recent years there have been signs of discontent among young Democrats who feel the leadership gives them too little say in the affairs of the chamber. The Republican Party made only modest gains, picking up just 14 seats in the House, despite Reagan's landslide victory, and Democrats still hold a 253-182 margin. Stenholm, who is leader of a group known as the Conservative Democratic Forum in the House, met frequently with President Reagan's representatives in 1981 as the administration was seeking Democratic support for Reagan's budget proposals. But in the interview, Stenholm, a West Texas cotton grower just re-elected without opposition to his fourth term in Congress, denied that his goal is to use the speaker's platform to become a surrogate for Reagan. Saying that "I have no personal animosity" towards O'Neill, Stenholm said he believed the House speaker "should represent a more moderate or a little more-to-the-center philosophy." He alleged that O'Neill had "virtually hand-picked" Rep. Geraldine Ferraro, D-N.Y., to be Mondale's vice presidential running mate and said O'Neill's image as an old-style liberal Democrat is harmful to the party. "I guess you could say it's a conservative movement to make the challenge," Stenholm said, "but the dissatisfaction is very, very widespread. We hope that we will be able to make some of the needed changes."

WASHINGTON — Texas "Boll Weevil" Rep. Charles Stenholm said Thursday "there's a 99 percent certainty" he will challenge Thomas P. O'Neill for the post of Speaker of the House next month when House Democrats hold a leadership caucus. "There are those of us who feel it is time for a change," said Stenholm, leader of a faction of more than two dozen "Boll Weevils" — conservative Southern Democrats. "We haven't made an announcement he said. "Those of us who feel it's time for a change have decided to do it." In a telephone interview with The Associated Press from his suburban Virginia home, Stenholm said: "There are many of us in Congress who believe this is the time to begin rebuilding the (Democratic) party for 1986, and several feel that if we're going to do that, it's time to get started." "There's definitely going to be a challenge to the speaker" during a Dec. 3 caucus of House Democrats, he said, adding that "there's a 99 percent certainty that it will be me." "Anybody has a right to run in the caucus," said O'Neill, D-Mass., reached at his Cape Cod home Thursday. "And I feel — I have thousands of pledges of support to be able to retain

Car crash contaminates 20

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — Twenty people were taken to a fire station for showers and then sent home in jail clothes Thursday after toxic PCBs apparently spilled from a capacitor on a utility pole knocked down during a traffic accident, authorities said. Several vehicles, including a fire truck, four police cars and an ambulance were impounded for testing and decontamination after the accident, in which one man was killed. The capacitor's insulating fluid, which he said contained "probable PCBs," spilled out, Wickersham said. "It kind of strung out like molasses and blew as a spider web on the light wire."

Minneapolis bank building gutted in 1982 blaze

Boys say they lied about big bank fire

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Two boys who told police they started a Thanksgiving Day 1982 fire that gutted a 16-story bank building now say they were lying, according to legal records. "The whole thing I told (the police) was all lies, mostly," one of the boys said in a deposition that had not previously been made public. The fire, said to be the fourth-costliest in U.S. history, gutted the Northwestern National Bank building in downtown Minneapolis, causing an estimated $91 million in damage. It broke out in the vacant Donaldsons building site at 7th Street and the Nicollet Mall and quickly spread to the 16-story bank building next door, burning for 12 hours before the fire department declared it under control. In December 1982, the two youths, now 14 and 15 years old, told police they were involved in the fire, and they were charged with arson. They were later granted immunity, and the charges were subsequently dropped after a judge ruled that one boy's confession was coerced. The boys' new statements were made in separate depositions Sept. 20 and 21 during the course of litigation arising from the fire. The older boy said he lied to police and implicated the younger boy in the fire. He said he was angry that the younger boy had run away rather than help him during a fight that took place Thanksgiving night after the fire began. According to a deposition, the younger boy said he also lied to police. He said he decided to confess after a policeman "said if I tell him what he wanted to know, that he would let me go." Hennepin County District Judge Lindsay Arthur ruled in March 1983 that one boy was unconstitutionally coerced to confess. Arson charges against both boys were dropped after the ruling. Both boys say they had not discussed their latest statements with each other before giving the depositions. The boys gave the depositions this fall at the request of an attorney representing owners, tenants and insurers of the bank building. James D. Steiner, an attorney representing Norwest (the bank and its parent firm changed their names since the fire), said this week he doesn't think the youths' statements can be viewed as credible "either way. I think it's just as likely that they did (lie) as they didn't."

FBI agent contradicts fair expense records

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — An FBI agent is contradicting world's fair records indicating that an ex-employee of the debt-ridden exposition bought lunch for him and other federal agents last March. "I did not have lunch with Mr. Carlson on March 9; which was a Friday," Pistey said. "The other gentleman has been transferred, and I cannot say for certain whether he had lunch with Mr. Carlson on that date."

showing he had lunch at two different locations the same day he reported having lunch with FBI Agent Ed Pistey and another agent. "I did not have lunch with Mr. Carlson on March 9; which was a Friday," Pistey said. "The other gentleman has been transferred, and I cannot say for certain whether he had lunch with Mr. Carlson on that date."

Pistey said he had checked with the two other FBI agents still assigned to his office and said they did not lunch with Carlson on March 7, as reflected in the expense record. The documents Carlson filed indicated he was discussing protection of international figures with the FBI at the lunch meetings, according to The Morning Advocate.

Deficit requires both spending cuts, taxes

President Reagan's budget planners have found it convenient to project the nation's annual economic growth rate in coming years at a handsome 4 percent. That estimate very neatly supports Reagan's own campaign assurances that given a 4 percent growth rate the federal deficit could pretty much be erased by the end of his second term. Most economists outside the circle of presidential advisers and admirers have no trouble dismissing this projection as altogether too generous.

Revenue and spending projections for the rest of this decade indicate an increase in the federal debt of nearly $1 trillion. The president chooses to believe, and many of those around him encourage him to do so, that economic growth can turn this looming burden into a mirage.

The current White House approach to the deficit is to propose more budget cuts. By all means. Cuts should be recommended and scrutinized all across the board, including in the defense budget, and then Congress should decide amid the usual political agony what interests, what constituent lobbies, what favored programs it will scant.

The very enormity of the deficit threatens to transform it into an abstraction largely meaningless to most people. Let Martin Feldstein provide some meaning. The projected deficits for the rest of the 1980s would in effect, he notes, increase each family's share of national debt by about $20,000. The projected deficits would increase the government's interest costs by about $100 billion a year — forever. Finally and most chillingly, the projected deficits would soak up more than half the net savings generated by the American economy. How then would growth be financed?

The only hope for reducing deficits to manageable levels lies in a combination of reduced spending and higher taxes, and the only politically realistic hope for achieving this painful but necessary combination lies in action during the coming legislative year.

JESSE HELMS' DILEMMA: TO STAY ON AS CHAIRMAN OF THE AGRICULTURE COMMITTEE AND PROTECT TOBACCO, OR TO BECOME CHAIRMAN OF THE FOREIGN RELATIONS COMMITTEE.

Baby Fae case reflects 'ritual drama'

BOSTON — The headlines announcing her death were classics of the genre. "Baby Fae Dies," read one. "But Doctor Sees Gain for Science."

The words relayed from Loma Linda dressed this tiny casket with a silver lining of progress. Dr. Leonard L. Bailey, who oversaw the 21-day drama in the 32-day life of the girl with the baboon heart, called her and her parents "pioneers." The university spokesman at the memorial service said solemnly, "Baby Fae has not lived in vain, nor has she died in vain." Even the mother, we are told, gave one last wish, to the doctor for his experimental work: "Carry it on."

By the time Baby Fae is laid to rest, the choreography of this public medical ballet will have been complete and completely familiar. We have been through this enough to see the shape of a ritual drama.

The plot opens and concludes with "hope." At the beginning, the doctors announce that they are trying to save a patient, a life. The technique is new, daring, promising. There are risks, yes, but Barney Clark may yet be back on the golf course with his artificial heart and Baby Fae may turn 20 with her baboon heart. The story ends with a claim of victory for "science" — and a funeral.

Each time the curtain rises, the public audience suspends a bit of its disbelief in preference for medical magic shows. We have watched so many impossible cures become routine treatment that even when faced with a baboon organ beating inside a human body we do not want to be considered anti-science, anti-progress, pessimistic. "What if it works?" we say. After all, when Christiaan Barnard did the first human transplant, the patient lived for only 18 days. Now,

Ellen Goodman

65 percent of transplants done at Stanford live a year, and half are alive after five years. Yes, Barney Clark may have died after 112 days, but Dr. William DeVries announced this week that he is ready to try again. We don't know whether "frontier-blazing" experiments like animal-to-human transplants are headed down dead ends or onto new paths, whether we are talking laetrile or penicillin. We don't know if Dr. Bailey, who fits the alluring image of the buccaneer scientist, is a committed, crank or unrecognized genius. So, the human and the editorial response is that this situation "bears watching," and "raises questions."

But I don't think we have to be quite so reticent to judge this medical event. The issue of experimenting on terminally ill human beings has not always been handled nastily. Dr. Christian Barnard admitted in his memoirs that he lied to the first transplant patient, Dr. Barnard told Louis Washkansky the strong odds in favor of survival; he did not tell him that these were the odds of surviving just the operation.

Each such odds if there were no lion." We have all known people chased by the lions of cancer or heart disease. Two years ago, Barney Clark signed an 11-page consent form for an artificial heart, and leapt into that water. He had the right to do so.

Here's the question: Is whether a parent has the right to throw a child in. All the medical evidence of this case — except for the original boasting testimony of Dr. Bailey — suggests that this infant had no chance to survive into toddlerhood, let alone adulthood. Given that, we have to conclude that Baby Fae's body was donated, alive, to science. The rationale, that she was "going to die anyway," implies that it is open season on the dying, that we can try even the most outlandish experiment on these human beings.

Dr. Bailey, who called this transplant a "tremendous victory," is planning to do it again. It is entirely possible that he found what he was looking for, a reason to go on tinkering with newborns and baboons.

But whatever rationale there was for the first experiment — the idea that a newborn with an undeveloped immune system could absorb a foreign body better than an adult — there is none for a second experiment. Those who cannot give consent should be the last, not the first, people we use for experiments. It may be difficult to stop at the shoreline when the lion is gaining on your child. But when the crocodiles are hungry and the baby can't swim, there is no mercy in throwing that child in the water.

How Twin Falls could have an entry in the America's Cup

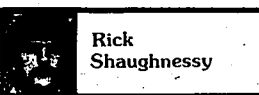

An otherwise enjoyably unproductive evening spent at a local watering hole was nearly ruined this week when my attention was distracted from gazing at the establishment's pictorial display of racing sailors hard at play.

Those thoughts had just about caused me to mentally add "Idaho Yachtsmen I Have Known" to the collection of books known as the world's shortest when I realized that certain recent and seemingly isolated news items could spell the end of that distraction.

Now I'm sure some of you will contend that these reports are unrelated and that making inferences from them is an act of pure speculation — the response of a political reporter to post-election shock and a slow week in state politics. And perhaps you would be correct.

But before writing off the possible connections and ramifications, consider the reports:

- First, the New York Supreme Court rules that the city of Chicago — which is near ly twice as far from the Atlantic Ocean as Twin Falls is from the Pacific — stands on an "arm of the sea" and is thus eligible to field a challenger's entry in competition for the America's Cup, the pinnacle of yacht racing and water sports.

Then Larry Craig, congressman from Idaho's 1st District, tells newly elected state lawmakers that more shipping ports need to be developed on the Snake River, ostensibly to improve sales of Idaho agricultural commodities to Pacific Rim countries.

And finally, it becomes apparent that one of the state's most successful financiers and fundraisers may have suddenly come upon two years of uncommitted time — provided he can arrange to get out of a previously arranged 15-month employment commitment at a federal sheet-metal stamping facility.

More than one person — meaning at least two and probably no more — have read into those combined reports the likelihood that Idaho — a state with more millionaires per capita than any other — will field an entry in America's Cup competition — a contest, which has proved to be among the most competitive in its obligatory displays of unbridled spending.

The famed bard, A. Nony Mous, is credited with the quip: "To simulate the sport of yacht racing, one stands under a cold shower, learning to slip on a hundred-dollar bill." It was said, did not, however, specify that those who head America's Cup syndicates rarely get wet. They generally hire a full contingent of manservants to do simultaneous currency learning for them, and then, sipping armanac, view the affair from the flying bridges of the nearby spectator fleet.

An Idaho entry into this fray would likely be prompted by the fact that the 1987 America's Cup competition promises to be more wide open than were the previous 25 contests and it leaves the nation's reputation dangerously at risk.

For only the second time in its 133-year history, the cup battle will occur somewhere other than off Newport, R.I., the result of Australians snapping the longest winning streak in sports history last year when they beat the American defender.

A Washington Post story estimates the cost of the Chicago Yacht Club's planned effort to build and campaign one of the competition's 12-Meter boats at $6.5 million. A small price to pay to regain this country's superiority by bringing the cup back to America.

Of course, a Twin Falls cup effort could be even more expensive. The Snake River would require dredging and widening in spots to allow training crews room to maneuver and come about.

But, if the challenge effort proved successful, those costs could be recovered in tourism revenues from an ensuing defense of the cup. The Chicago syndicate estimates a $50 million payoff if the cup races were held in Lake Michigan off the shores of the Windy City.

Twin Falls could probably realize even greater crowds and greater tourist revenues since observers could view Idaho America's Cup battles from the banks of the Snake, rather than from expensive boats located miles offshore.

And of course bringing the cup home to the Snake's 500 foot sheer canyon walls in 1990 — provided Idaho Power was willing to make the water available — would provide Magic Valley sailors with a local knowledge advantage that would keep the cup secure in southern Idaho for at least as long as the 132 years that the New York Yacht Club retained the prize at Newport.

And even if it proved unsuccessful, an Idaho entry into America's Cup competition could have a lasting influence on the sport. Tony Llama deck boats would no doubt come into vogue with the Bar Harbor and Marblehead crowds and gold braided stonions and western shirts with epaulettes wouldn't be far behind.

And to think none of this would have been possible if a roomful of attorneys hadn't been in sight to declare the waters off Chicago "an arm of the sea."

Letters/Orderly forest development 'in the public interest'

Broadcast is vital as well

This letter is in response to the Monday column by Times-News Managing Editor Stephen Hartgen concerning the value of newspapers as an information source.

I agree with Mr. Hartgen's assertion that the general public doesn't recognize the true measure of worth of our daily information sources. It's hard to put a price on the work of a competent, reliable, news-gathering organization. Safe to say, the public is getting more than its money's worth.

I'm confused, however, about Mr. Hartgen's request of Times-News readers to judge the merit of the newspaper's contents by checking to see how many of the same stories are covered by local broadcast news operations. What are we to think if few or none of the stories are the same? Does this mean the radio and television stations have blown their news coverage or has the Times-News missed out?

What would it mean if, heaven forbid, many of the same stories are reported by both the print and broadcast media?

Perhaps Mr. Hartgen meant to say that if the Times-News didn't report the accounts of many news happenings, those stories wouldn't see the light of day. If that was the intent, I strongly disagree. Our news department at KLIX does its homework and breaks its share of stories. And from what I know of a few other local broadcast news departments, the same can be said of them.

I believe the Times-News staff of reports and editors is hard-working and enterprising. It's the best news staff I've seen at the newspaper in the seven years I've lived in Twin Falls.

The print media's strengths is the ability to provide detail to stories. But, I'm constantly amazed at the efficiency displayed by many small broadcast news departments.

On many days these small staffs can match a daily newspaper story-for-story on bigger news events while presenting a worthwhile account of what took place.

There's another plus for the broadcast news media. It's in their capability to present news — as it happens. A good example was election night. At KLIX, we reported the vote totals as they arrived, who was winning, who was going down to defeat. We also provided comments from various candidates and others as the vote tabulating concluded in most races. Much of the same information was published the next day in the Times-News.

One of Wednesday's headlines proclaimed "Stallings Leads Hansen." That same day, however, broadcast news told of Stallings' apparently close victory with all the votes in from the precincts in the second congressional district. Finally, ask yourself which medium, broadcast or print, can provide the most useful information regarding fast-breaking stories such as the effects of major winter storms or a natural disaster.

The point is that both the broadcast and print media are vital and important in keeping the public informed. Saying that one is the best information source is wrong.

Forest news management

A recent well-orchestrated media campaign has focused on Forest Service timber management policies in Idaho and Montana. It is time to take a look at what is going on.

For years the national environmental groups have been trying to stop further development on the national forests. Timber management has been in the forefront of these attacks because it is the most land intensive but other developments such as ski areas have been affected. Motorized recreationists have been squeezed into ever smaller areas as well.

Recently, those wishing to stop development have become born-again economists in their quest. It is interesting to note that when the laws and regulations governing today's timber management practices on the national forests were being developed in the late 1970s, the very groups now advocating positive short-term cash flows on timber related projects were securing policies that ensure inefficiency. Their current actions are the height of hypocrisy.

The Congress, not the administration, determines how the timber resource will be managed on the national forests. The current direction is to integrate timber management with other resources and an objective, apolitical analysis will show this is being done as well as possible on most national forests. Such an approach has inherent inefficiencies and there is no question that the Forest Service could tighten things up a bit.

If the Congress decides that timber and other commodities on the national forests are there to make money, either as maximum short-term cash flow or long-term profit, then the Forest Service could manage for that purpose. This approach has implications which its advocates in the environmentalist camp have not thought through, however.

Orderly development of the national forests is in the public interest. Although imperfect, the Forest Service has the most detailed data and latest analytical techniques available for decision-making on integrated land management programs. Self-serving environmentalists are hardly in a position to be objective.

Thanks to Coors distributors

I would like to express my appreciation and gratitude to Coors Distributors for their generous support and contribution to the Vietnam Veterans of America group of Idaho.

Coors sponsored a delegation of 20 Vietnam vets to represent Idaho at the recent Salute II ceremonies in Washington, D.C., this past Veterans Day. We who were fortunate enough to have been selected to attend look rubbings of names of Idahoans killed for their families and dedicated the new Three Soldiers statue.

This monument was dedicated by the Vietnam Veterans to the federal government. The statue seems to give a sense of identity to the endless names upon the wall of those MIAs, POWs and those killed in Vietnam.

Unfortunately, the war still goes on for some 2,500 or so MIAs and POWs still in Vietnam.

Let us not forget our brothers, friends and neighbors still fighting over there this Thanksgiving Day. The final chapter of this most unpopular war can not end until every man is accounted for.

My sincere appreciation to Coors Distributors for their support to the Vietnam veterans.

Senator requesting investigation of Nicaragua shipments news leak

ATLANTA (AP) — Sen. Sam Nunn is calling for an investigation of reports earlier this month from U.S. government officials that a Soviet ship might have docked in a Nicaraguan harbor with a cargo of MIG jets.

The allegations by unidentified officials were first reported on Nov. 6, and were discounted within days. But Nunn said they were "very damaging to our abilities to monitor Soviet activity."

"Now, it's going to be much harder to gather intelligence on what the Soviet Union is up to," the Georgia Democrat in an interview from Washington published into Thursday's combined editions of The Atlanta Journal and The Atlanta Constitution.

Nunn called for an investigation of the officials' reports by the Senate Intelligence Committee, of which he is a member.

"Some people I've talked with in the intelligence community are very upset about it," Nunn said.

On Nov. 6, television networks quoted unidentified government sources as saying there may have been Soviet MIGs on a freighter that had docked in the Nicaraguan harbor of Corinto. Many other news organizations followed with similar reports.

The Nicaraguan government warned its people that an invasion was imminent, and tanks were seen on the streets of Managua.

On Nov. 9, U.S. officials said there was no evidence of MIGs on the ship. Later, Secretary of State George Shultz said the initial reports were the result of a leak within the Reagan administration, "a criminal act, in my opinion."

Nunn expressed concern that the reports may have revealed too much to the Soviets about U.S. intelligence-gathering capabilities.

Beached whale may be saved

BREWSTER, Mass. (AP) — Marine experts who rescued a pilot whale from a mass stranding said the young male was alert and frisky on Thursday, but warned it may be weeks before they know if the sea mammal will survive its beaching.

Meanwhile, another pilot whale was found washed up on a beach near Dennis, and was given a lethal injection by scientists.

"It was in real tough shape," said George King, director of Sealand marine museum here.

JFK assassination recalled by a few

By ALAN SAYRE
The Associated Press

DALLAS — For the first time in 20 years, Dealey Plaza was quiet on Nov. 22.

There were only a few dozen people wandering by Thursday and snapping pictures of the building from which a sniper gunned down President John F. Kennedy.

This year, there was no organized observance of the fateful moment when Kennedy was shot and killed as he rode in a motorcade through downtown Dallas.

Instead, a small, but steady procession moved through the JFK Memorial Plaza, reading the historical inscription, studying a map of the assassination site and wiping away an occasional tear.

A small U.S. flag had been placed in the shrubs in the front of the memorial. By 12:33 p.m. — approximately the time Kennedy was shot — the crowd had grown to about 75 to 100 people.

Several photographers aimed their cameras at the sixth floor of the Texas School Book Depository, from where Lee Harvey Oswald, the man arrested as the assassin who was himself slain two days later, fired the fatal shots.

Officials of the Dallas County Democratic Party, which sponsored the Nov. 22 memorial ceremonies for the past few years, said they decided it would be more appropriate to shift the services to Kennedy's birthday on May 23.

"That was the whole idea of last year's 20th anniversary services, to have a major remembrance, then stop it," said former Democratic County Chairman Bob Greenberg. "You don't celebrate people's deaths. You don't celebrate Lincoln's or Washington's death. You celebrate their birthdays."

G.L. Perkins of Naples, Fla., who came to Dallas as part of a Thanksgiving trip, said he and his son decided to see the memorial before attending a professional football game between Dallas and New England.

Perkins said the site reminded him of where he was when he first heard that Kennedy had been shot on Nov. 22, 1963 — an alumni club meeting for the University of Minnesota football team.

"It was quite a shock," he recalled.

Reagan's son 'shocked' by Nancy quotes

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — Michael Reagan, spending the holiday with his wife's family here, said Thursday he was "shocked" and "hurt" by Nancy Reagan's remarks that he and his father, President Reagan, have had a falling-out.

"I never realized we were estranged—Maybe strange—but not estranged," said Reagan's elder son.

Michael Reagan, who was adopted by Ronald Reagan and his first wife, actress Jane Wyman, celebrated Thanksgiving here with his wife, Colleen, her parents and several of her other relatives. Meanwhile, while the president, his three other children and Mrs. Reagan had Thanksgiving dinner at their ranch in Santa Barbara, Calif.

"I hope they all have a nice Thanksgiving Day," Michael said. "I'm going to spend it with my wife's family, which I think is the right thing to do."

The first lady said in an interview with the Washington Times earlier this week that there "is an estrangement and there has been for three years" between the president and Michael Reagan.

"I was really shocked and my whole family was hurt by the statement that came out yesterday," Michael said. "I think the timing was terrible. I wish somebody would have called me from home but I can just only feel sorry for her that she feels this way."

He said he was unsure whether he would call his father during the holiday.

"Right now we're all very hurt about the whole thing," he said. "We just haven't made any decision on that yet."

Mrs. Reagan did not divulge the source of the rift she said had come between her husband and Michael.

"Colleen and I were talking about it," Michael said. "All we can think of is that is maybe it's Nancy's way of justifying why she and Dad haven't ever seen our daughter Ashley. She's 19 months old and they've never laid eyes on her."

Ashley and 5-year-old Cameron, Michael and Colleen's other child, are the president's only grandchildren.

Michael said he believes his father probably agrees with Mrs. Reagan's assessment of his relationship with the president.

"He usually concurs with everything that Nancy says," he said. "Thursday was the first Thanksgiving in nine years of marriage that Michael and Colleen spent the holiday with her family."

"Heck, we weren't even invited to the ranch for Thanksgiving," he said.

Judge refuses parents child custody

SAN DIEGO (AP) — A 13-year-old boy would be in "grave danger" with his fundamentalist Christian mother and might run away from his homosexual father, says a judge who denied either parent custody of the child.

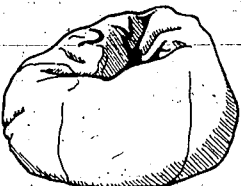

Superior Court Judge Judith McConnell on Wednesday ordered Brian

Batey to remain in a foster home, but set up a visitation schedule for Betty Lou and Frank Batey at the home.

The judge noted that Mrs. Batey took the boy in September 1982 while he was in his father's custody, remaining underground for 19 months, and that Brian has threatened to run away from Batey.

Owyhee County, EPA trade charges in toxic dump case

BOISE (AP) — Owyhee County's environmental safety officer charges that federal officials have neglected to ensure complete testing of groundwater that he believes is contaminated by a hazardous-waste dump.

But a regional Environmental Protection Agency official said county officer Charles Scott, a Boise toxicologist, is making "a count case" out of "gitchies."

Scott said last week that recently obtained laboratory-test results of groundwater from EnviroSAFE Services of Idaho's dump near Grand View showed an increasing amount of trace chemical contamination from waste buried there.

State and federal officials said test results do not show whether the water is contaminated and that Scott is misreading the results.

Rep. Larry Craig, R-Idaho, said Tuesday that he may seek a congressional investigation of EPA enforcement practices, and demanded the agency explain the test results.

Scott charged Wednesday that the monthly reports of test results on samples taken from six monitoring wells at EnviroSAFE contained missing pages.

He also said EnviroSAFE failed several times to test three wells for a certain indicator of contamination at its dump northwest of Grand View.

EPA officials faulted the omissions, although they received the data in September, Scott said. He said he informed them of the problem.

"Meanwhile, EST continues to put 3 million pounds of waste a month into the ground," Scott said.

George Hofer, chief of the regional EPA hazardous-waste-permit section in Seattle, said Scott's charges are partly true but do not constitute a problem.

Pages were missing from monthly reports of test results for June and July because an EnviroSAFE employee who reproduced the reports did not duplicate both sides of each page, he said.

But the EPA had complete reports up to that time, and based on those, it ordered EnviroSAFE to drill several more monitoring wells to gather more information about the groundwater, Hofer said.

The additional data from June and July would not have revealed much more, he said.

EnviroSAFE may not have tested for an indicator of contamination called "specific conductance," which are materials that conduct electricity, Hofer said. However, the company did test for individual chemicals that belong to that group of materials, he said.

"We are forcing the company to install a lot of wells and expand monitoring," Hofer said. "If there is any contamination, we're going to take some action."

Hofer said he hopes to have enough test results and other information by mid-December to tell whether toxic chemicals from waste buried at EnviroSAFE have contaminated the groundwater.

EnviroSAFE has been controversial since mid-1983, when neighboring landowners and other Owyhee County residents began criticizing state and federal agencies for inadequate regulation and environmental studies.

Man who helped capture rapist sues Customs for rough treatment

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — A Tucson man who won an "outstanding citizen" award for helping authorities catch a rapist has filed suit against eight federal officials, charging that five U.S. Customs inspectors in Nogales roughed him up and insulted him in October when he tried to cross the border from Mexico into Arizona.

Jesus R. Romo Vajjar, 36, said Wednesday that he filed the suit in part because Hispanics receive discriminatory scrutiny when entering the U.S.

The suit, filed Tuesday in U.S. District Court, lists the five Customs agents as John Does because Romo said he didn't yet know their names. Also named as defendants are: Donald F. Kelly, the regional commissioner of U.S. Customs; the Department of the Treasury; an Immigration and Naturalization Service inspector identified only by a last name; and Cecilia de la Ossa, identified as a Customs supervisor.

Dennis Hazleton, assistant Customs district director for inspection and control, declined comment about the suit Wednesday. He said he had not seen it and that policy bars discussion of pending suits.

But he said race is not a factor in the decision to single out persons for thorough checks at the border and added that a "substantial" number of the border agents are themselves Hispanic.

Romo, a University of Arizona law-college graduate who plans to take the state bar exam next year, works for Tucson lawyer William Risner, who filed the suit on his behalf.

The suit stems from an Oct. 31 trip to the U.S. and Mexican border cities of Nogales, on legal business for Risner's firm. The firm represents the Mexican consulate in Nogales, Ariz., in efforts to resolve business disputes between Mexican farms and Arizona produce companies. Romo said he travels to Nogales several times a month and routinely crosses the border to talk to the farmers.

As he was re-entering Arizona that day, an INS official directed him to a secondary search area for a more thorough Customs check, saying Romo had shown signs of nervousness, the suit claimed.

Romo said in his suit that he then refused to provide identification for a Customs inspector, saying he was a U.S. citizen and didn't need it.

Colburn gets grant for water filtration

SANDPOINT (AP) — A wrongful death suit filed by a Sandpoint man whose wife was killed in a traffic accident north of the town has been dismissed following a $100,000 out-of-court settlement.

Russell J. Kubiak Jr. had filed the suit against Darren Erickson and William Mezal, both of British Columbia. Erickson was sentenced to five years in prison earlier this year after pleading guilty to involuntary manslaughter.

The settlement calls for Mrs. Kubiak's three children — ages 5, 4 and 2 — to receive $4,500 to be held in trust. Kubiak is to receive $36,500.

Lowering U.S. 12 speed limit won't cut number of deaths, study says

LEWISTON (AP) — Lowering the speed limit on U.S. Highway 12 probably won't reduce the accident rate on what has been called Idaho's Killer Highway, a study indicates.

The study of the road's four most accident-prone sections, stretching from Lowell east to the Montana border, showed drivers did not slow down significantly even after the speed limit was reduced.

Speed limits for the sections were cut from 50 to 40 mph over this past summer. Electrical loops were installed in the pavement and connected to special recorders, logging vehicle speeds 24 hours a day.

The recorder showed that drivers slowed down when they came to the lower speed limit, but only by 1 mph. Ninety-three percent of the drivers traveled at speeds faster than the 40 mph limit, said Mary Bros, secretary to the Idaho Transportation Board.

The board received the report recently.

"People drive at the rate of speed that appears safe to them," board Chairman Carl C. Moore said, "and reducing the speed limit doesn't reduce the rate of travel unless you have an enforcement effort tied in with it."

He and other board members have been asked often to reduce the speed limit on the entire 169-mile stretch of the highway through Idaho, but he said they have resisted the idea so far.

Beefing up the Idaho State Police force that patrols the highway could be one way to deal with the problem, he said. Another method would be the state Department of Transportation to widen and realign the highway, as well as install slow vehicle turnouts, passing lanes and guard rails.

A public hearing on the proposal will be held Nov. 29 at Clearwater Valley High School, south of Kootenai.

Robber foiled with taunts

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — A store owner foiled a hold-up attempt when he taunted a gun-toting would-be robber, telling him, "Go ahead and shoot," authorities said.

Salt Lake County Sheriff's Deputy Wayne Schipaenboard said the store owner, whose name was not released, defied a robber Wednesday night at the Freckles-N Frills store in suburban Salt Lake County.

The owner reported that a man walked into the store, browsed through merchandise and left. He returned shortly afterward and demanded money from the cash register while displaying a pistol under his open coat.

"She said 'You're not getting it. Go ahead and shoot,'" Schipaenboard said.

When the man hesitated, the woman told him she was going for help. The would-be robber then fled the store.

Mayor punts city paycheck

POCATELLO (AP) — Mayor L. Ed Brown, recently elected to the Idaho House of Representatives, has decided not to accept his city councilman's pay during the 1985 legislative session.

"I want to erase all doubts in anybody's mind about 'double-dipping' or lack of integrity," Brown said.

As a councilman Brown makes $100 a month, and as a state legislator he will receive $35 a day, plus expenses, during the session. He currently is paid $100 per month extra city salary as mayor, but his two years in that post-end before the Legislature convenes in January.

"I just want to be of help to the city," Brown said Tuesday. "I don't have any pride invested in this, but if I can continue to be a part of or a catalyst for progressive things, I'd like to continue for a time on the council."

Sandpoint man sues in death of wife

COLBURN (AP) — The Colburn Water Association will receive a $100,000 state grant to help install a water filtration system in its fight against giardia infection.

The contaminated water system has given 71 users symptoms of giardiasis and "poses a serious health threat," a spokeswoman for Gov.

John Evans' office said.

The award was announced this week by Evans' office. The funds are coming from the Idaho Community Development Block Grant program.

The system's water has been infected with the microscopic organism for about a year. Use can lead to intestinal disorders.

Holiday brings thanks

Quiet prevails

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES and DEAN S. MILLER

TWIN FALLS — A young family en route to Denver, Colo., spent Thanksgiving in Twin Falls — a Thanksgiving they will not easily forget.

Lt. Doug Tollerude of the Salvation Army in Twin Falls said the man, his wife and small child, along with two hitchhikers they had befriended, were among the 42 persons served a free holiday dinner at the Twin Falls Salvation Army shelter Thursday.

They were traveling from Coeur d'Alene to their home in Denver after failing custody of the man's young daughter through a court action in northern Idaho.

"The man told me he had worked for the (Salvation) Army in Alaska at one time," Lt. Tollerude said. "They had no money for food because they had spent it all in court to win the custody of his child."

Tollerude said his organization was prepared to feed about 120 needy people Thursday. With plenty of leftovers, Tollerude sent the Colorado group, the only transients to join the Salvation Army holiday feast, on their way with food enough to complete the trip.

Among the supplies were an entire turkey that had not been cut. The turkey, along with dressing, corn and all the fixings down to the pumpkin pie went into the small travel trailer the couple was towing.

"It should get them, along with the hitchhiker and his wife, to their destinations without any hunger threats," Tollerude said. "That's typical of the people we deal with."

The lieutenant said he, his wife and 11 volunteers served a number of senior citizens who didn't want to eat alone or who don't cook.

"Most of them eat at the Senior Citizen Center, which is closed today," he said.

In addition to the four transients, Thanksgiving day "guests" at the shelter included 31 local residents, and seven of the 11 volunteers who helped prepare and serve the meal.

"We were a little disappointed in the small number," Tollerude said, "but it was a very worthwhile day."

Elsewhere in the Magic Valley, turkey dinners were served to a number of "shut-ins" housed in county and city jails. Erika Mumm, who cooks for prisoners in Twin Falls, was at work at 8 a.m. preparing turkey, dressing, pies and other holiday foods for 35 prisoners in the county and city jails. Then she went home to cook another meal for her family.

Other turkey feasters worked up an appetite at area ski resorts Thursday.

The Lower Warm Springs chairlift was open at Sun Valley with 3/4 feet of packed base.

Officials at Sun Valley said the area sold about 500 tickets Thanksgiving day and had 40 people booked into the resort hotel. The area will be open for the weekend, but skiing will be limited to the Warm Springs Chair until better snow cover is delivered with a better winter weather.

At Pomerelle, a recorded message claimed conditions were "just like February." Samdy Anderson, co-owner for the area, said there were 30 inches of packed base at the lodge, all lifts were operating and the area is in full operation.

The canyon road is plowed and clear, but chains or snow tires are recommended.

New county jail set to become a reality

Sheriff, staff offer suggestions in design work

By PAT MARCANTONIO
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The early design work on the proposed new Twin Falls County Jail has begun on the grass roots level with the sheriff and his staff mapping out what they need in a new facility to meet routine and emergency situations.

For the past few weeks, Sheriff Jim Munn and his jail personnel have been working on what they call scenarios. These scenarios detail the procedures that take place in different sections of the jail, Munn said. The descriptions of daily routine written by the staff then are set down in the form of a chart.

In an already prepared scenario of the booking process, the staff has detailed the procedure from the time a deputy calls the dispatcher about an incoming prisoner to the time the inmate is placed in his cell.

With a set of arrows and related circles, the chart shows normal and out-of-the-ordinary situations, such as what would happen if a prisoner were drunk or injured while he is being placed in jail.

The scenario charts tell the architects what they will need to include in the physical layout of a jail, said Richard Heindel, from the county-hired architectural firm that will design the proposed building. For example, if an inmate has to make a telephone call while he is being booked, there may have to be a room for that purpose, he said.

Similar scenarios will be prepared for the laundry, visiting and recreation areas food service and release procedures of the jail, Munn said. About half of the 18 scheduled scenarios are completed.

Part of the pre-planning of a new jail also involves deterring the movement of the people who will use the building. The architects must plan for the restricted movement of the inmates and the freer flow of the jailers.

Using the scenarios, flow of inmates and staff will be patterned to reduce tension so people can move safely and quickly through the building, Heindel said.

The pre-planning from the scenarios allows for the maximum efficiency of the building, said another architect, Randy Green.

After the scenarios are completed, the architects will add their expertise to determine how the jail of the future will function, Heindel said.

The scenarios then may be used in preliminary design work of a new jail, Heindel said. Although several steps remain, the end result will be a final blueprint.

Munn said he hopes that the scenarios of the jail will be completed by the middle of December.

Except for jails and hospitals, buildings usually aren't planned to this detail, Heindel said. Jail and hospitals require the meticulous planning such as the scenarios, because they are controlled environments with a lot of standards to be followed.

The completed scenarios will be part of a package of materials that will include a tentative date for a bond election to finance the building. The final product also will contain specific activities for county officials and the citizen jail committee to follow toward their main objective, which is to finance and build a new jail.

Classes for inmates being offered at jail

By PAT MARCANTONIO
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — A non-denominational Bible study, alcohol and drug-abuse class and Alcoholics Anonymous meetings have been initiated at the Twin Falls County Jail.

For some time, jail staff had been discussing offering such classes, but there wasn't the staff to handle the work. Twin Falls County Sheriff Jim Munn said. With the recent addition of new jailers, the classes have become a reality.

The activities, which began about two weeks ago, will assist prisoners and help morale, Munn said.

The classes for the first week were full and response from the prisoners has been good, said Deputy Wayne Tousey, the assistant jail administrator.

A one-hour substance-abuse education class, sponsored by the Port of Hope alcoholic treatment center in Twin Falls, will be held Thursday evenings. The following hour is an Alcoholics Anonymous session, Tousey said.

A large percentage of the inmates at the jail are serving time on drunken driving convictions, while many others are jailed for alcohol-related crimes, Tousey said.

A two-hour Bible study class will be offered every Tuesday evening by different churches and ministers. It is coordinated by Gordon Griffith, from the Gideon Bible service, Tousey said.

The Bible study class will focus on different topics each week instead of starting at Genesis and working through the book, Tousey said. The reasoning is that a majority of the inmates only reside at the jail for a short time.

Inmates will not be ordered to join the classes and only those with no disciplinary problems are allowed to participate, Tousey said. The classes are limited to 10 people each because of space restrictions. One of the two jailers working that shift will provide security, leaving the other jailer to take care of the normal work load.

Following the law that requires the separation of adult and juvenile prisoners, the staff has a separate class for the teen-age inmates, he said. Adults meet in the recreation room and juveniles in the visitor's area.

Depending on the response to the Bible class, it may be split into two one-hour sessions if necessary to accommodate more inmates, Tousey said.

"We want to see how this goes first," he added.

Tousey said the most of the coordinating of the classes was being handled by Griffith and the Port of Hope. They were providing volunteers to man the classes. Their volunteers also will keep track of what inmates appear to be serious about the courses and not using them as an excuse to get out of their cells, Tousey said.

Such community involvement at the jail is nothing new. For years, pastors from churches have been holding Sunday services for the inmates, Tousey said.

Jackpot's high rollers stranded without a bank

By BOB FREUND
Times-News writer

JACKPOT — Residents and casino workers at Jackpot will have to do their banking outside the small gambling town for some time, it now appears.

Directors of Nevada Bank and Trust Co. have decided not to establish a branch in Jackpot, executive vice president Jim Prince said this week.

Nevada Bank and Trust was the first bank to consider replacing Nevada National Bank of Reno, which moved out of its office in the Cactus Pete's mall on Nov. 7.

Carl Hayden, publicist for Cactus Pete's, said community leaders are continuing the search for a new bank.

"We are in contact with... an Idaho bank, which intends to make a market survey," he said. But there has been no commitment on the part of that bank to consider a move, Hayden said.

The board of directors of Nevada Bank and Trust discussed opening an office at Jackpot last week at the request of Hayden and others.

However, Prince said the bank, which has assets of $12 million, expanded to Wendover last year and plans to place an office at Carlin about 25 miles west of Elko. Headquartered at Carlin in southeastern Nevada, Nevada Bank and Trust also operates offices at Ely and Alamo.

"We're a small bank and we have to take things a step at a time," said Prince, who originally is from Shoshone.

"It didn't seem like an economically profitable operation at the time Nevada National was leaving there. If we couldn't get more business out of Jackpot than they were making, we couldn't make any money either."

To be economically feasible, a bank needs about $1.5 million in deposits to operate a branch, Prince said. Nevada National had an estimated $1 million at the time it closed, Hayden said earlier.

Prince said Nevada Bank and Trust might consider locating an office later, but not immediately.

Nevada National's withdrawal was part of a bank-wide move out of small, rural markets, Hayden said. Its Jackpot accounts automatically were transferred to Elko about 120 miles away.

Hayden said the search for a new bank is a community project with Cactus Pete's officials taking the lead because the bank office has been located in the gambling resort's small shopping mall.

Local Chamber selects foursome for board positions

Traffic mishap injures pair
TWIN FALLS — A Twin Falls man was treated for back injuries early Monday after he received a citation as the result of a traffic accident Thursday night south of Twin Falls.

Twin Falls police said Lester Eugene Anthis, 32, was injured when his southbound vehicle collided with a westbound car driven by Fern P. Tindall, 57, of Lewistown, Mont.

City and county officers investigated the accident that occurred at 7:50 p.m. at the intersection of county road, 3600 N., and Idaho Highway 74.

Mrs. Tindall was cited for failing to stop at a stop sign. Officers said she pulled onto the highway into the path of Anthis' pickup truck. The impact spun the truck around and it came to rest in the opposite direction beside the highway. The Montana car came to rest in a triangle median at the intersection. Tindall and a passenger, Aleen Abel, 69, suffered minor cuts and bruises.

Anthis was still being treated in the emergency room late Thursday but hospital attendants said his injuries were apparently not serious.

Buhl man shoots self in head
BUHL — Dale Howerton, 56, of Buhl was in serious condition Sunday in the Twin Falls Clinic Hospital suffering from what sheriff's officers said was apparently a self-inflicted gun shot wound.

Chief Deputy Sheriff John Jensen said Howerton shot himself and his family about 6:15 a.m. at his residence east of Buhl. He suffered a head wound. Jensen said investigation is continuing in the incident. Howerton operates Dale's Towing Service in Buhl.

Adoption program set Sunday
TWIN FALLS — A public meeting featuring foreign foods and a film on adoptions will be held Sunday at 2 p.m. by the adoptive family organization of Magic Valley.

The meeting of Family Outreach Adoption Group will honor national adoption week and will be held at 205 Ninth Ave. N., in Twin Falls.

Cecelia Kimball of Buhl said because of the special week honoring adoptions and adoptive families, a potluck dinner will feature foreign foods from the countries where the adopted children originated.

Lawn mower stolen Tuesday
TWIN FALLS — A riding lawn mower, valued at $750, was reported stolen Tuesday from the 1704 Addison Ave. E.

Terry Jones told police the machine was tied down with a one-eight inch cable that was cut by the thieves. He said the mower disappeared between Nov. 17 and Tuesday. It had been stored outside along with other lawn mowers, he said.

Evans defends parents' jailing
BOISE (AP) — Court action jailing three new Plymouth couples for keeping their children out of school may seem severe, but the judge was just following the law, state Superintendent of Public Instruction Jerry Evans says.

"The law is clear," Evans said. "We have a compulsory attendance law."

Sam and Marquita Shippy, Floyd and Roxy Shippy, and Robert and Cecelia Shippy are serving six-month jail sentences in Payette County for refusing to enroll their 16 school-age children in public schools or approved private programs.

A 3rd District magistrate found last week that the couples violated the terms of their 1982 probation on similar charges of contributing to the delinquency of minors.

Idaho tourist promotion urged
BOISE (AP) — Promoting tourism should be one of the highest priorities for the state Department of Parks and Recreation, the agency's new director says.

Robert Meinen, who moved up from his post as deputy director last month to replace the resigning Dale Christensen, said only his quest for a solid long-term funding source for the department would receive a higher priority.

"I am actively seeking ways to cooperate with the private sector in promoting Idaho," Meinen said. "The department is eager to hear new and innovative ideas from other segments of the tourism industry."

The Department of Parks and Recreation operates 21 state parks stretching across Idaho from Bear Lake to Priest Lake. More than 1.5 million people visit the parks each year, and the department annually handles over 10,000 requests for vacation information. Meinen said.

Jerome council hears sewer reports on city's water, sewer lines

JEROME — The extension of water and sewer lines on South Lincoln Street was a major topic at this week's Jerome City Council meeting.

The project is designed to provide water and sewer service to the properties adjacent to South Lincoln from the city lines that end at the One Mile South road to near the junction with I-84.

The addition of city water and sewer service will allow for commercial development south of Jerome where a moratorium on septic tank installation has blocked commercial development during the past several years.

Included in the area is Jerome County's major industry, the Tupperware plant.

"Tupperware will have about five times the normal cost, (because of extensive rock formation) just getting across its own property to tie in," said Public Works Director Larry Sloan.

"They have no processing water waste that so ever — only kitchen wastes, maintenance water to wash down and some of the cooling equipment from it," he added.

The city received federal grant money and will build the sewer and water lines with city approval. When completed to city specifications the lines will be taken over by the city for maintenance. The sewer line will empty into the city waste water treatment facility.

In other city business:

•Bob Williams, the city attorney, received a 4 percent increase in his services. His pay will now be $1,049 per month retroactive to Oct. 1.

•Hiring and firing policies of city employees were discussed. Further consideration will be given this matter in the future.

•Sloan recommended that Eighth Avenue West to Date Street be the next improvement project through the Federal Secondary Aid system.

•These projects were originally set up to route traffic around the main part of the city," Sloan explained.

Councilman Walt Beninger made the motion for approval of the project. It carried unanimously.

•Setbacks from property lines were again discussed. Mayor Ralph Peters said he would like to see a subdivider or contractor have the right to place buildings anywhere on the property in the new areas. This will be given further consideration.

•The question of who will hold title to the two-acre park which will be located at Candlelight Subdivision was raised.

•Whether it is the city or the (Jerome) Recreation District, whichever owns it will be responsible for the maintenance and the main development of the park," Councilwoman Jeanne Vandiver said.

"The recreation district will have some funds available for development. They are just not sure how much."

•Also, Vandiver said, progress on the additions to be made to the Jerome City Library shows a very rough cost estimate of $55,000.

•Proposed plans currently call for a lounge, two typing rooms, an expanded book area, and the extension on the east side of the building to provide for a conference or meeting room in addition to a kitchen.

•Referring to the shooting of crows in the trees near the library, Vandiver told the council, "The girls at the library evidently didn't get the word (that the birds were to be shot) and thought they were being attacked."

•Mayor Ralph Peters read a recipe for broiled crow. He said it called for cherry wine to be poured over the bird. However, he concluded his own version of the recipe with the statement, "When you take the crow from the oven, you drink the cherry wine and go to Sammy's (China Village restaurant) for duck dinner."

weather at Pomerelle was sunny and clear with little wind.

On Friday, Saturday, Sunday, Pomerelle bus service will be offered with pickups at 7:10 a.m. at Claude's Sports in Jerome; 7:30 at the Twin Falls K-Mart; 8:30 at the Burley Inn; and 8:45 at the Neptune Park in Rupert. Round-trip fare is $4.00. Bus service continues weekends and holidays through the season.

Pomerelle will offer special mid-week ticket reductions this winter. Tuesday tickets are half-price until the usual half-day ticket cut-off time. On Wednesday, meals all day for $9, and on Thursday, women ski all day for $9.

In Jackpot, revelers consumed about 800 turkey dinners between the three dining rooms at Cactus Pete's, according to the area beverage manager Geoff McIntosh.

Travel conditions for those who visited from out of state and out of town were generally excellent. Idaho State Police headquarters in Twin Falls reported all area roads clear with no serious traffic accidents as of late evening.

Much of the state enjoyed clear skies for the holiday, although some low clouds covered valley areas. Higher elevations reported clear cold weather and excellent conditions for this time of year.

Law enforcement officers said most people were staying out of trouble or were too full of turkey to misbehave. County and city authorities said the holiday was generally a quiet one.

Negotiations point to plans to build tuberculosis hospital

By JANENE BUCKWAY, Times-News correspondent

GOODING — Negotiations are continuing for the development of a private prison at the Gooding tuberculosis hospital.

Mayor Gene Heller reported at the Gooding City Council this week that the proposal from Buckingham Security Ltd. of Lewisburg, Pa., was the only offer received before the Nov. 9 deadline.

He said no firm price has yet been established but acknowledged a private prison is to be constructed on the 6.6 acre site presently owned by the city and the facility will be constructed and operated by the Pennsylvania firm of retired federal warden Charlie Fenton and his brother Joe.

Heller told the council the facility will be visiting western states during the next few weeks, taking with it the region officials' first firm commitments for states to place inmates at the Gooding facility.

He also said Gooding officials will meet with the developers Dec. 8-10, in Gooding, to continue discussion of the terms of the sale and city officials will introduce the Fenton brothers to the Idaho State Land Board Dec. 11 at the board's meeting in Boise.

Gooding purchased the 35-year-old, tuberculosis hospital for $100,000 from the state land board last month with the stipulation the property be used for a privately operated, medium-security prison for protective custody of inmates.

The deed transfer requires that if a prison is not built within two years of the transfer to the private party, and then continuously maintained, the property will return to state ownership.

In related business, Heller told the council his office has received 350 completed questionnaires from Gooding residents concerning a community improvement program.

The city sent out 1,000 questionnaires at the suggestion of the city engineer and Heller said the 350 represent "a pretty good response."

The grant is to be used to extend sewer and water service to the prison site and to upgrade the general city water system to improve fire protection.

The survey questionnaires ask residents if they support the prison project and what major problems they see facing Gooding area.

Heller said the engineer is tabulating the survey results and the figures should be available in a few days, but he said the forms he reviewed showed a lot of positive support for the prison with many people identifying a need for more jobs as a problem for the area.

The prison is expected to employ as many as 300 people when it is in full operation.

The survey also asked residents about ways to pay for construction of a new city swimming pool.

The aging Gooding pool at East Park has become unusable, so residents were asked if they want a new pool, what kind of pool they want, an outdoor seasonal use or a year-round indoor type and how best to pay for the facility.

Heller said he hopes to have the data on both questions available for the council's Dec. 3 meeting.

Arafat musters PLO council for session

By MONA ZIADE
The Associated Press

YASSER ARAFAT
Overcomes factional boycotts

AMMAN, Jordan — Despite opposition boycotts, PLO Chairman Yasser Arafat convened a meeting of the Palestine National Council on Thursday.

He said the mustering of a quorum assured the "eternal continuity" of the guerrilla movement.

The mere fact that this session of the Palestine National Council has been convened provides the biggest evidence and the irrefutable truth that there is no power on Earth that can destroy the PLO," Arafat said at the opening session of the group, which calls itself the parliament of the Palestinian people.

Arafat's ability to muster the needed two-thirds quorum of the 378-member Palestine National Council seemed to assure that he would get a vote of confidence in his leadership, despite the efforts of Syrian-backed factions to oust him.

But there was also widespread belief that by calling the session against the wishes of the Syrian-supported movements, Arafat was making the split in the Palestine Liberation Organization a permanent one.

Arafat needed 252 members to convene the session, and it was announced at the beginning of the meeting Thursday that the two-thirds majority had been achieved, but no specific number of delegates was given. The council has 380 seats, but five members have died since the last meeting, in February 1983, and have not been replaced.

Four Syrian-backed groups have been demanding that Arafat be removed as leader of the PLO since shortly after Israel's 1982 invasion of Lebanon drove the guerrilla movement from Beirut. Those groups boycotted the meeting and said Arafat did not have enough delegates to convene the meeting in the King Hussein Sports Center north of Amman. Barricades and armed guards were set up around the complex.

"Those from our enemies, and even from our friends, who imagined that the PLO is just a temporary phenomenon in the national life of our people must today reconsider their calculations," Arafat declared. He said the meeting "proves that no one can erase the Palestinian figure from the Middle East equation."

Arafat also paid tribute to Jordan's King Hussein — who also addressed the session — for "making available the holding of our meeting within a few kilometers of our usurped land (the Israeli-occupied West Bank)."

Among the factions opposing Arafat are the Democratic Front for the Liberation of Palestine, the Palestine Liberation Front, the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine-General Command, and the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine, from which the PFLP-GC had split.

But the two largest of those groups — the Democratic Front and the PFLP — have said they would oppose setting up a separate PLO under the wing of the Syrians, and have insisted there is only one representative of the Palestinian people, the PLO.

Before the session, Arafat met with Chadi Kilbi, secretary-general of the Arab League, and Habib al-Chatti, who heads the Islamic Conference Organization. Their presence was seen as a boost to Arafat's efforts to solidify his leadership.

Delegations from Morocco, Algeria and Egypt also showed up for the session. Saudi Arabia's government radio broadcast a statement in support of the meeting.

In the Syrian capital of Damascus, Mahmoud Labadi, a spokesman for dissidents in Arafat's own Fatah organization, said the PLO chairman was "falsifying names and nominating people (as) members in the PNC in order to claim the quorum is there."

"But PNC rules do not allow the nomination of any member unless the quorum is first established," said Labadi, who was once an aide to Arafat.

The events in Amman and Damascus mirrored the fragmentation of the PLO, which began with Israel's invasion of Lebanon to drive PLO guerrillas away from the border area, and widened when Syrian-backed rebels forced Arafat and his supporters out of the northern Lebanese port of Tripoli last year.

Jordan sent a 26-member delegation headed by Prime Minister Ahmed Obaidat to the parliament session, and the presence of envoys from other moderate Arab states such as Egypt and Morocco hinted at a new PLO stance toward settling the Arab-Israeli conflict.

However, in Syria, the strongest foe of Arafat, PLO factions denounced Arafat as surrendering the Palestinian cause.

In its Thursday edition, the Syrian government newspaper Tishrin compared Arafat to the late Egyptian President Anwar Sadat, who was assassinated by Muslim fundamentalists upset by secularization of

Israeli army shoots at crowd of demonstrators, youth dies

By ALLYN FISHER
The Associated Press

RAMALLAH, Occupied West Bank — Israeli soldiers shot and killed a young demonstrator Thursday, the second such death in two days during confrontations between Palestinians and the army.

The army said the soldiers fired after demonstrators pelted an Israeli patrol with rocks. A Palestinian youth wounded in the shooting denied throwing stones at soldiers.

"The army came and started shooting," said Jihad Salim, 16, who was hospitalized for a gunshot wound in the thigh.

On Wednesday, one demonstrator was killed and six were wounded by Israeli army gunfire. The clashes were the worst in months in territories occupied by Israel since the 1967 Middle East war.

The army arrived in Ramallah, some six miles north of Jerusalem, after about 100 people gathered in the main shopping district and chanted slogans opposing Palestine Liberation Organization chairman Yasser Arafat.

An Israeli army spokesman said soldiers opened fire on the demonstrators after the youths threw stones at the patrol. The spokesman spoke on condition of anonymity.

A communique from the military command said Salim, two other youths and the man who was killed, incited the crowd and defied soldiers' orders.

The military communique said the soldiers fired into the air. But when the youths refused to stop, the "force fired at them, and two of the rioters were wounded," it said.

Baqer Abdallah, 21, died at Ramallah Hospital shortly after a bullet struck the right side of his abdomen, doctors said.

Salim, the wounded demonstrator, said the Israeli soldiers arrived minutes after he and about a dozen young men came to protect women protesters who were carrying black flags to condemn the meeting of the PLO parliament convened Thursday in Jordan by Arafat.

The melee was over within 10 minutes, but tension pervaded this city of 50,000 for hours afterwards. Soldiers were seen patrolling the streets in jeeps and on foot in groups of six.

Soldiers prevented reporters from entering Ramallah Hospital for an hour after the shootings.

Ukraine Republic president dies at 70

MOSCOW (AP) — Alexei F. Vatchenko, president of the Republic of the Ukraine and one of 15 deputy presidents of the Soviet Union, died Thursday at age 70, the official Soviet news media announced.

The news agency Tass said Vatchenko died after an illness, but did not specify the exact cause of death. His death also was announced over Soviet television.

A Communist Party member since 1940, Vatchenko became a member of the Communist Party Central Committee in 1966.

He became chairman of the Presidium of the Council of Ministers of the Ukraine in 1976. The position automatically made Vatchenko the equivalent of a national vice president, along with the presidents of the 14 other Soviet republics.

Missiles' presence still a cause for unease in German towns

By TAMARA JONES
The Associated Press

MUTLANGEN, West Germany — The sight of the 7-ton Pershing 2 nuclear missiles passing by outside his picture window at Town Hall doesn't bother Heinz Hartmann at all.

"The human eye grows accustomed to anything," he insists.

The frequent protests that sometimes clog Mutlangen's two-lane main street and fill the quiet community with police aren't a major concern, either.

"They're peaceful," he emphasizes.

Deep down, what really bothers Hartmann is the occasional piece of hate mail.

"They have to understand," he says. "I am not Reagan. I am not Chernenko. I am the mayor of Mutlangen."

"There is nothing I can do about the rockets."

The sense of impotence is one that has become familiar to the public, the protesters, the press and some politicians as well in the year since NATO's first Pershing 2 missiles arrived in Western Europe.

Official silence surrounds the highly controversial weapons and the continuing deployment that triggered the collapse of U.S.-Soviet arms talks in Geneva, Switzerland, shortly after the first missile components arrived Nov. 23, 1983.

The Pentagon, NATO, the West German government and the U.S. Army refuse to comment on the Pershing 2s, routinely referring to each other such queries as:

- How many Pershing 2s have been deployed to date?
- Where are they stationed?
- When will full deployment (108 missiles at three sites) be complete?

However, on Tuesday, a NATO spokesman disclosed that 45 Pershing 2s have been deployed in West Germany, along with 32 cruise missiles in Britain and 16 cruises in Italy, for a total of 93 new medium-range missiles in the alliance.

The U.S. Army's 56th Field Artillery Brigade — the Pershing unit — also is unable or unwilling to say what happens to the Pershing is that the Pershing 2s are supposed to be replacing on a one-for-one basis.

On the question of deployment, the standard Army answer is that it is "proceeding on schedule according to the 1979 NATO twin-track decision."

The NATO plan says only that 572 medium-range Pershing 2 and cruise missiles are to be deployed in Western Europe over a five-year period unless the two superpowers reach an arms agreement.

Where the missiles are located is also a secret, although one of the worst-kept ones in Western Europe.

The West German media long ago published maps pinpointing the three sites as Mutlangen, Heilbronn and Neu Ulm. Government and military sources with access to such information have privately confirmed this. Each site is to receive 36 missiles, or four batteries.

Scraps of information from various sources indicate that deployment has been proceeding at the rate of about one missile per week.

The West German Defense Ministry announced last Dec. 30 that the first battery of nine missiles was operational, a move one spokesman, Col. Hoerst Prayon, later described as "sending a signal to Moscow."

But the ministry has no intention of "issuing progress reports" in the meantime, he added in a telephone interview with The Associated Press.

Thirty-six missiles are known to be in place at Mutlangen and deployment is well under way at Heilbronn, where members of the self-described peace movement photographed two missiles from a tall tree a few months ago.

"Of course everyone knows where the Pershing 2s are, including the Soviets," said one well-informed source who spoke on condition that he not be named.

The warheads are not stored with the missiles. In addition, military sources noted that one of the Pershing 2's biggest defense pluses is its mobility: In other words, where they are located now is not where they would be fired from if such a crisis arose.

Given these facts, more moderate politicians are starting to join the anti-NATO Greens party in urging the government to confirm where the three sites are.

Helmut Schaefer, foreign policy spokesman of the Free Democrats' parliamentary faction, recently called for disclosure under the Pershing 2 sites, but of the sites for the 96 cruise missiles to be stationed in West Germany once the Pershings are all deployed.

Such information is "in the public interest," Schaefer said.

The Pentagon, Army and NATO all say it's up to the host country to make any such announcement.

Blood research advance reported

LONDON (AP) — A British magazine reported Thursday that U.S. scientists have developed a synthetic copy of a blood clotting factor that most hemophiliacs lack — a breakthrough that could end their risk of contracting AIDS or hepatitis from donated blood.

Four articles describing the achievement appeared in Nature, a weekly British science magazine. However, the magazine said three to five years of clinical tests are needed before the substance could be available to the public.

British officials announced last week that a 33-year-old man had become the second British hemophiliac to die of acquired immune deficiency syndrome, or AIDS. The syndrome fatally weakens the body's ability to fight disease and infection.

The victim had received the clotting substance, Factor 8, from donated blood. Medical authorities say those who face the biggest risk of contracting AIDS include homosexuals, drug addicts, who often use contaminated needles, and hemophiliacs, who frequently need transfusions or substances obtained from donated blood.

Factor 8 was genetically engineered at Genentech Inc. of South San Francisco and at the Genetics Institute in Boston, the magazine said.

The achievement followed several years of work by 19 scientists from Genentech, 14 from the Genetics Institute, three from the Royal Free Hospital of Medicine in London and two from the Mayo Clinic in Rochester, Minn.

News group drops Kennedy pictures

MIAMI (AP) — An attorney for several news organizations has agreed not to seek the release of photographs and a videotape made during the investigation of David Kennedy's drug-related death.

Martin Reeder, on Wednesday showed the 63 photographs and the videotape of Kennedy's body, which was found April 25 in a $250-a-day suite at the Brazillan Court Hotel.

Reeder signed a consent agreement Tuesday night that said the material would be kept private if it appeared to show Kennedy's death was drug-related.

"The pictures show a person that had died of a drug overdose," Reeder said Wednesday. "They weren't anything more than they were purported to be."

Reeder represents news organizations including The Miami Herald, The Palm Beach Post and The Evening Times in West Palm Beach which have been battling prosecutors for the release of information gathered in the investigation.

The agreement was part of a settlement in a public access dispute between the media and the Kennedy family. It ends a lawsuit filed by two of Kennedy's siblings which claimed publication or broadcast of the photos would be an invasion of the family's privacy.

In their suit, Joseph Kennedy and Kathleen Kennedy Townsend also challenged the constitutionality of Florida's public records law and sought a permanent ban on the release of photographs by law enforcement agencies.

The agreement leaves intact that state law, which could have been overturned in the case, Reeder said.

On Monday, attorneys for the family and the media agreed to let Reeder make the decision. Reeder is forbidden to reveal details of the pictures as part of the agreement.

According to an autopsy, the son of the late Sen. Robert Kennedy died of "combined drug intoxication" from cocaine, the painkiller Demerol and the tranquillizer Mellaril. —Two former bellhops at the Brazillan Court Hotel — Peter Marchant, 24, of Warwick, R.I., and David Linwood Dorr, 31, of West Yarmouth, Mass. — are accused of selling cocaine and conspiring to sell the drug to Kennedy. Investigators say they don't know whether the cocaine they allegedly sold was that which medical examiners found in Kennedy's body.

Heart surgeon resting after ulcer surgery

HOUSTON (AP) — Dr. Michael E. DeBakey, a renowned surgeon who pioneered the development of the artificial heart, underwent surgery for a bleeding ulcer and was reported resting in "fine condition" Thursday.

DeBakey, 76, underwent the two-hour operation Wednesday night at Methodist Hospital, said spokeswoman Susan Russell.

"Dr. DeBakey is in fine condition," Miss Russell said. "His blood pressure and vital signs are stable. He is awake, alert and talking, and his physicians are delighted with his progress."

Miss Russell said doctors confirmed an earlier diagnosis of a benign ulcer of the duodenum, the upper section of the intestine that joins the stomach.

Miss Russell said doctors "have absolutely no idea" how long DeBakey will remain in the hospital. But she added, "he won't be there one minute longer than he has to be. He loves to work."

DeBakey was hospitalized last Saturday for what was described then as "intestinal upset."

DeBakey, chancellor of Baylor College of Medicine in Houston, has performed more than 60,000 operations during a career spanning a half century. His patients have included a British king of England, the Soviet Union's top scientists, three U.S. presidents and the late shah of Iran.

He performed 12 transplants during an 18-month period from August 1968 to early 1970, but stopped because only two of those patients survived more than four months. He performed another transplant last February.

Humperdinck in hospital

MASSAPEQUA, N.Y. (AP) British singer Engelbert Humperdinck was in stable condition and resting comfortably in a Long Island hospital Thursday after collapsing from a bronchial infection and extreme fatigue, his publicist said.

Humperdinck was taken to Massapequa General Hospital following his collapse in his dressing room Wednesday night before his second performance in a six-night stand at the Westbury Music Fair.

Dawn Bridges, a publicist for the entertainer, said Humperdinck was expected to be released Friday. "He's had a real rigorous touring and recording schedule," said Ms. Bridges. "The preliminary diagnosis was a bronchial infection and extreme fatigue."

Ms. Bridges said a hospital spokeswoman told her the singer's illness include "After the Loving," was in "stable but good condition, resting comfortably."

Wynette portrays her long journey in show

By DEANS MILLER
Times-News writer

JACKPOT, Nev. — Singing her songs of innocence and experience, Tammy Wynette gives a show that is a song cycle of the seasons of her life.

Wynette opened both Wednesday night shows at Jackpot with "Welcome to my World" and walked the audience through her journey from the cotton fields of Mississippi to the runway of Harrah's Casino in Las Vegas.

Those who saw her when she still sang most of her show barefoot may raise an eyebrow over the glamorous costuming, hairdo and choreography she has added to her show.

But gladrags are essential to her show; they are a misstep on her journey from rube to rube in a ruby-sequin dress with a wise eye toward the price her tale commands.

The journey is woven into her show. With three kids in tow, she tells the audience, she pounded the sidewalks of Nashville in 1955 until producer Billy Sherrill agreed to record her first hit, "Apartment No. 9," with her.

The song is a standard country and western lament, but in her story, it was the first ray of hope for a career. She has since had 35 No. 1 hits with four gold and two platinum records.

Her heartbreaks on the road from innocence to experience compose the bulk of her show and are the emotional basis for her singing style.

Early marriage to indigent Euple Byrd, short marriage to singer-manque Don Chapel, stormy marriage with country star George Jones, and brief expensive marriage to Michael Tomlin are the tearful tales the most of her song list. Her love and loves gone bad gave her "I Don't Wanna Play House," "Your Good Girl's Gonna Go Bad," "D-I-V-O-R-C-E," "Till I Get Used to Losin' You," "We Sure Can Love Each Other," "When We Try," "Another Lonely Song," "I'll Be Over You (When The Grass Grows Over Me)," "The Everly Brothers' 'Cryin' in the Rain,'" "Take My Hand," and "And They Call It Makin' Love."

Moving backwards through the seasons of her life, she sings briefly of her foreshortened young womanhood in "As I Slip Into My Womanhood" and of simple outdoor pleasures in "God Must Be a Cowboy at Heart."

Motherhood, like marriage, is a season of hope and some pain to which she devotes a good portion of the show, singing "Where are You Going, My Little One?" and delivering a sentimental letter to her daughters who grew up "While I was on the road, doin' what I had to do."

With a good number of mothers, fathers and grandfathers dabbling at their eyes in the audience, she closes her monologue of half-regrets with "You Light Up My Life."

With one more song of darkest experience that equates prostitution with sex between estranged mates ("And They Call It Makin' Love"), she heads into her gospel roots for a medley of "Amazing Grace," "I'll Fly Away," "Will the Circle be Unbroken," and "I Saw the Light."

Standing in a spotlight in a long black dress and lacy black top aspartle with sequins, she belts out her finale, the controversial "Stand By Your Man." Completing the cycle, it is her most successful song, but like "Apartment No. 9," a lament and a showcase for her emotional style.

Proctor concert on tap

By TERRY RICH HARTLEY
Times-News correspondent

TWIN FALLS — Chris Proctor, acoustic guitarist and 1982 Fingert-picking champion, is returning to Twin Falls Wednesday for a concert at the Renaissance Academy of the Arts.

Always a favorite with audiences and critics alike, Proctor finished third place in "Frets" magazine's national reader's poll in the "outstanding, new, national acoustic artist" category and was the first artist to be invited back to the national competition in Kansas as performer, workshop leader and judge of the 1983 contest.

Calling himself "a latecomer to the professional music world," the guitarist says he never played the guitar until he was a college senior and heard somebody at school plunking one.

"I became curious about how anybody could make so many different sounds with one instrument," he says. Even as late as 1978, Proctor says he was not a full-time musician, but was making a living as a pizza cook at Louie's in Ketchikan.

But, Proctor moved fast. "Mesmerizing, impressive, buoyant and breathtaking," are but a few of the terms reviewers around the country have used to describe the guitarist's talent.

In fact, the reviews have been so overwhelmingly in his favor that Proctor says, "I wished I believed them," pointing out that he is his own harshest critic. "I have to be."

The Utah native says he has a tough time describing his type of music. "There are a whole body of folk performers who came up at the time I did who are really not performing true folk anymore," he says, adding, "The label, 'New Acoustic Music' is put to it for lack of a better term."

Traditional Irish, traditional classical and jazz are the primary influences on his music, Proctor says. He also notes that a lot of his music is ragtime oriented. "It's a hybrid style. It's not Michael Jackson leauge and nobody's kidding themselves that everybody has to hear it," he says, referring to the entire acoustic field. "But those who do show up and listen, come back the next time."

But for four years now, he says he has found wide acceptance for his music all over the country, big city and small. He says it's harder to gain an audience in the larger cities at first.

'The Terminator' runs smoothly

By PAT MARCANTONIO
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — In the "Conan" films, Arnold Schwarzenegger was a muscle man of flesh and bone. In "The Terminator," he's a muscle man of flesh and bolts.

Schwarzenegger plays a souped-up robot from the Los Angeles of 2029 sent back to 1984. His mission: knock off a woman whose son will grow up to be the enemy leader of the evil machine rule who would bend him up.

This primo hit man must stomp his way through the teeming city, hordes of police and good-guy Kyle Reese (Michael Biehn), who was returned through time to protect the legendary mother of the human resistance. She turns out to be a somewhat timid waitress named Sarah (Linda Hamilton).

Of course, it's a silly plot. Of course, there's not a lot of suspense. But, "The Terminator" is a delectably trashy, handsomely stylized piece of hi-tech sci-fi hokum.

Screenwriters James Cameron, who also directed, and Gale Anne Hurd add dashes of sly humor that are as quick as the laser blasts of their army of tomorrow. Notice the "Jetsons" on Sarah's T-shirt or the children of the future watching a burning television as if it were cartoons.

The movie makers did well to place the most of her song list, in which you can relate instead of the heavy metal scenery of the 21st century. There, it would have floundered, lost all its fun and become another one of those Star Wars copycats.

The film isn't totally original, however. The climatic scene in the automated plant where the equally automated killer stalks the hero and heroine is reminiscent of "Westworld."

As the cybernetic killer, Schwarzenegger has no trouble making you believe he's his machine. He delivers more bullets than lines of dialogue. The, ahem, actor does enjoyably revive the term the "strong and silent type" as the machine that just won't quit.

Only when it pretends to be a message film about human versus machine does "The Terminator" run out of batteries.

Yet as long as it maintains its spot on up pace, it smoothly idles along.

Holiday movie fare gets off to early start with 'Supergirl'

By MIKE HENDERSON
The Everett Herald

The holiday film season, commencing earlier than in recent years, flew in on the fetching gown of "Supergirl," last week, and whether it will be the runaway hit of Yuletide '84 will be answered sometime in early January.

As the movie game is 90 percent speculative, however, here are some speculations about this crop of holiday fare.

First of all, one sure-fire hit of the season has all the elements: a musical-comedy about a lovable old guy who talks to animals and makes wishes, a fantasy mode of voluptuous fairies and philosophical pests clothed in form; wear and a social-issues tack, swirling in the contemporary currents with child abuse, juvenile delinquency and other modern problems.

And that's just the first half. The remainder of the picture combines the best aspects of "Jaws," "The Poselidon Adventure," "E.T.," "What's more, "Pinocchio" is a full-length animation — the best, by critical consensus, of all the great Disney-cartoon features. It was a hit the last time it was released; and it's sure to be one this time.

Indeed, "Pinocchio," which cost an unheard-of million-plus dollars when it was made for 1940 release, may actually gross more money than a pair of hotly anticipated new films, Frank Herbert's "Dune" and Francis Coppola's "The Cotton Club" — each of which is reported to have run up $50 million in bills.

"Dune," as most science-fiction and many a non-sci-fi fan knows, is about the most important work of the genre; Herbert, a Northwest author, apparently had a close association with the film project, and presumably will share in whatever profits emerge after the film has reached "break-even" — $125 million, when you factor in promotional costs.

"The Cotton Club," however, is described by exhibitors who have seen it as "a tap-dance movie." Whether a film about tap dancing has the, ahem, legs to run the $125 million distance no doubt is a matter of more than passing concern to those who have fronted Coppola such considerable sums.

If "Dune" does not suffice as the ultimate holiday sci-fi fix, perhaps "2010," a sequel of sorts to Arthur C. Clarke's "2001: A Space Odyssey," may fill the void. Test-screening results apparently have not boded well for either new picture, but that means virtually nothing. The grandest plot of '77, after all, was supposed to be a crazy science-fiction project by a guy named George Lucas.

Otherwise, there are about 20 major movies ready to separate the Yule fools and the rest of us from our money. There is, for example, the obligatory Clint Eastwood Christmas

'Show Boat' director named

TWIN FALLS — Rhonda Miracle has been chosen to direct the Dilettante's musical production of "Show Boat."

A native of Twin Falls, she has been involved in many local productions and currently is completing work for her Ph.D. degree in music and drama at the University of Oregon in Eugene.

Music for "Show Boat" was written by Jerome Kern with lyrics by Oscar Hammerstein II. The story is based on the novel by Edna Ferber and was first produced at the Ziegfeld Theatre in New York City in 1927. A new production was presented at the same theatre in 1946.

Some of the familiar songs in the show are "Only Make Believe," "O! Man River," "Can't Help Lovin' That Man of Mine," "Why Do I Love You?" and "Bill."

A pre-audition workshop will be held from 2 to 4 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 2, at the Immanuel Lutheran Church parish hall, 205 Flier Ave. E. Ted Hadley, musical director, will discuss the story and songs to attract potential cast members with the show which will be presented next March.

Auditions will be held from 7 to 10 p.m. Dec. 17 at Morningside School with call-backs scheduled for Dec. 18.

For additional information about either the workshop or auditions, call 734-3193 or 734-4718.

KAID show given film award

BOISE — KAID-TV's "An Evening With Big Bird and the Boole Philharmonic" has won the Best Musical Production award at the International Film & TV Festival of New York in recent ceremonies.

This production, filmed last June, highlighted the Boise State University Pavilion concert with Sesame Street's Big Bird and the Boise Philharmonic Orchestra under the direction of the Daniel Stern.

The program includes Big Bird performing many of his favorite songs and conducting the Boise Philharmonic. In addition, it features Big Bird's special guest, Oscar the Grouch.

The award comes from a comprehensive annual competition for visual communications, including entries from Australia, China, England, France, India, West Germany, the United States and 37 other countries.

Northwest artists' work to be shown

By TERRY RICH HARTLEY
Times-News correspondent

TWIN FALLS — "Coastal Viewpoints," an exhibition of artworks by 16 Northwest artists, opens at the Herrett Museum Art Gallery on the College of Southern Idaho campus Tuesday.

The 24 pieces in the exhibition, which will hang through Dec. 20, are from the Pacific Northwest Collection at the University of Oregon Museum of Art. The museum, through its department of Visual Arts Resources, is touring the works in the United States and Canada.

The exhibition, depicting the headlands, beaches, bays and wildlife of the Northwest, includes paintings, drawings, prints and photographs, all with coastal themes. Michael Green, CSI art director, describes it as "a quiet display."

Of the 16 artists, Tom Hardy is one of the better known. An Oregon native, Hardy taught at the University of British Columbia, the University of California, Tulane University, Reed College and the University of Wyoming.

He says his close observation of plants and animal life began as a boy growing up on a farm. This can be seen in his work depicting the everyday things in nature, especially fish, range animals and birds.

In contrast, Morris Graves, who was born in Oregon but lives in Northern California, has an eclectic interest in religious symbolism and has been heavily influenced by Oriental mysticism — especially Zen.

Mostly self-taught, Graves says his work portrays the relation of the individual to his inner self. Lone birds are perhaps his most frequent subjects.

LaVerne Krause of Eugene, Ore., is a painter and printmaker working in oils, acrylics, etchings, woodcuts and lithographs. She says she seeks to express visually, "the blues" — their timeless and universal poetry and music. This can be seen in her intaglio print, poem, "Clouded Sea" from "Portfolio," poem by V. Gale.

Photography is displayed as an art form by Claire Trotter, a Washington native who now lives in Eugene, Ore. Trotter displays her photographs, "Reeds," and "Reeds and Wet Sand, Sitcoos."

Trotter once headed the still camera's darkroom operation at Walt Disney Studios and has exhibited internationally.

Other exhibiting artists are: Steven Belzman, Louis Bunce, Kenneth Callahan, Josephine Cameron, William Gliver, David McCosh, Jack McLarty, Richard Muller, Gerald Robinson, Arthur Runquist and Wesley Wehr.

The public is invited to an opening reception at 7 p.m., Tuesday at the museum. Regular exhibition hours are 9:30 a.m. to 8 p.m. Tue. sdays; 9:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Wednesdays through Fridays and 1 to 4:30 p.m. Saturdays. For further information, contact Green at 735-9554, ext. 260.

HBO recovers from shakeup

By The Los Angeles Times

HOLLYWOOD — "It's like being in a car crash. You close your eyes and then open them and say, 'Gee, I'm still breathing.'"

That is what one survivor had to say Monday about the smash-up at Home Box Office Inc. Friday. The nation's largest pay-TV network laid off about 125 employees, 7 percent of its work force.

Another survivor, who, along with all of HBO's 1,700-person staff, had spent weeks awaiting the confirmation of the rumored layoffs, expressed an odd kind of pleasure at the news.

"The mood here's pretty upbeat," he said. "I think everybody's kind of relieved. It's done and over with."

The layoffs were the most visible, most obvious signal yet that HBO is in deep trouble. To at least one longtime HBO adversary, the layoffs suggested that, after floundering with a new, friendlier image in Hollywood, the pay-TV network may be reverting to its old, tougher, more adversarial style of business relationships.

HBO remains a major player in show business. But the network's aura of invincibility has been dulled considerably by the events of the last few months: a prolonged decline in HBO's rate of growth, ambitious movie deals that proved to be a live, declining profit margins, an extended shake-up of top management and, now, the layoffs.

HBO Chairman and Chief Executive Officer Michael J. Fuchs called the layoffs "the most difficult thing I've experienced at HBO." In a memo to employees last week Fuchs said, "This sort of thing is difficult for any organization, particularly for one which, like us, has never experienced anything like it before."

"HBO was magical," commented one long-time employee who didn't make the cut Friday. "It was like Camelot, and now it's gone."

In Hollywood, protocol and good taste dictated that "no one" express pleasure with the ill fortune of HBO's staff. Among motion picture studio executives who have chafed under HBO's financial dominance and, some say, domineering attitude, the response to the news of the layoffs was, well, courteous.

"We're not happy about it. We have a stake in their growth, and we don't take delight in other people losing their jobs," Wertheimer continued. "I guess it shows that nobody is absolutely impregnable under all circumstances. They were very, very powerful, and they are still very powerful."

Just two short years ago, HBO had steamrollered its way through the entertainment business.

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK — Although "The Ewok Adventure" — George Lucas' first TV movie — is more pleasant than sequel to "Star Wars," it is an enchanting fantasy-adventure for young children and all parents who wish they could be young again. The Ewoks, those pint-size, fuzzy creatures who helped save the day in Lucas' "Return of the Jedi," have been rewarded with their own movie on ABC Sunday night.

"If people come to this thinking it's the fourth 'Star Wars,' they'll be disappointed," said producer Tom Smith. "It's really sort of a side trip."

"The Ewok Adventure" is based on a story by Lucas, mastermind of the "Star Wars" trilogy and executive producer of the Indiana Jones epic adventures. Lucas is listed as executive producer of "The Ewok Adventure."

Smith said the film's budget was about twice that of a typical television movie, which would make it about $4 million. He said it's scaled down in size and scope, and made for TV, because Lucas didn't want to spend three years on the project.

The Thanksgiving weekend broadcast should provide a needed boost for ABC, which has sunk to No. 3 in the ratings and, uncharacteristically, has very few miniseries and special events as ballouts. The film was offered to all three networks, but Smith said ABC won the bidding with its "tremendous enthusiasm."

"The Ewok Adventure," shot amid the splendor of the redwoods of Northern California, will be released to movie theaters internationally after the ABC broadcast.

The story resembles a space-age version of the "Wizard of Oz," with enlightenment and peril lining the road back home. In this case, a family's spacecraft has crashed, separating two children from their parents. With the help of the brave Ewoks, the kids do the searching and eventually rescue their captives.

Along the way, the band of little

'Ewok' cast includes humans, furry little creatures

warriors — the pastoral Ewoks don't believe in first strike but they are pesky self-defenders — run into the kind of larger-than-life creatures, benign and otherwise, who inhabited Lucas' zany, intergalactic barroom scene in the original "Star Wars."

"There's really nothing in "The Ewok Adventure" to alarm or scare the young," "Ewoks" will never be confused with "Grenlins." But, at the same time, there's probably not enough action-adventure to wow the older, more cynical kids who have seen it all on cable TV.

"You get a lot of real life on TV in the evening news," said Smith, who spent 4½ years as general manager of Lucasfilm's special effects division. "There's not a lot of TV that goes to fantasy."

The special effects, which Smith defines as the optical images that are created after the actors leave the set, are outstanding for television. He said there were 170 special effects shots on "Ewoks," compared to 50 for "E.T.," 200 for "Star Trek," and 1,000 for "Return of the Jedi."

The movie's human acting is unexceptional. Eric Walker plays Mace Towani, a pugnacious teenager who distrusts the Ewoks but learns to appreciate their gentle, compassionate ways. Aubree Miller is his young sister, Chidel, who has gold locks and an instinctive attachment to the cuddly Ewoks.

Dunaway almost steals show from 'Supergirl' heroine, special effects

By KEVIN THOMAS
The Los Angeles Times

HOLLYWOOD — When Faye Dunaway, a carnival fortune-teller determined to become the biggest witch of them all, declares, "I'm considering nothing less than world domination," a glowing, pulsating metal sphere pops into her sauce remoulade as she pines with Peter Cook, her mentor in the black arts.

Fitted out with a wig that Louis XIV might envy and employing her finest "Mommie Dearest" manner, Dunaway is the delicious villainess of the light, airy "Supergirl," which introduces the lovely Helen Slater in the little role as Superman's cousin.

With that sphere, called an Omegahedron, Dunaway could rule the world. It is a key power source from Argo City, created in inner space from a fragment of Superman's shattered home planet Krypton by the visionary Peter O'Toole, who has grown bored with his environment, which resembles a vast Swiss cheese.

Inadvertently, Slater has allowed the sphere to tear through Argo City's protective membrane, and now she is off to Earth to retrieve it before Argo City disintegrates.

Supergirl's alter ego is a cousin to Clark Kent, and as such she enrolls in a girl's school in America's Heartland, where her roommate — wouldn't you know? — is a spunky niece (Maureen Tealy) of Lois Lane, and her boyfriend is the Daily Planet's Jimmy Olsen (Marc McClure). The girls' math prof is none other than Cook, and Dunaway's seemingly abandoned amusement park is conveniently near. In Dunaway's hands, the Omegahedron siffs up a scary tornado, a rampaging bulldozer, a battle of dodge-'em cars whimsically decorated with models of football players, making the collisions seem like scrimmages.

"Supergirl" benefits enormously from the inspired, elegant work of production designer Richard MacDonald. Besides Argo City and Dunaway's delightfully sinister amusement park, MacDonald also designed an appropriately gloomy Phantom Zone, to which O'Toole has been consigned, and a great Frank Lloyd Wrightian castle atop an instantly materialized mountain.

"Supergirl" (rated PG but more a G) has the impressive special effects and spectacle of the Christopher Reeve movies but verges too close to all-out camp than those films did. Fortunately, writer David Odell's dialogue has lots of sparkle, and director Jeannot Szwarc never goes over the edge. Nevertheless, we are a good distance from the wistful charm of the first Reeve "Superman," and to film further adventures of either Kryptonian is surely to risk travesty. In design and technique "Supergirl," which was filmed largely in England, is up to snuff, and so are its actors, all of whom seem to be having lots of fun.

With her outrageous panache, Dunaway more than carries her top billing.

Third 'Oh God!' consistently funny

To assist parents in evaluating movies for family viewing, the Los Angeles Times lists current movies and indicates areas of content (theme, language, sex, violence) that may be inappropriate for the very young or impressionable. MPAA or the Times' ratings are in parentheses.

ALL OF ME (PG) One scene of bathroom humor too explicit for children. Filmmaker, Steve Martin, to the left—Whoops, Steve Martin plays a lawyer forced to share half his body with a selfish, prudish and very wealthy client (Lily Tomlin). This light-hearted caper only occasionally lives up to the promise of its premise — usually on those occasions when Martin either is yanked about by the lady with or publicly squabbles with his unwanted distaff half.

AMERICAN DREAMER (PG) Rating is possibly because of two fairly innocent bed scenes. This movie can't decide whether it wants to be a screwball comedy, a spy thriller or a fantasy. As a result, it falls in all departments despite attractive players and lush settings in Paris. Similarity to the successful "Romancing the Stone" is striking, though undoubtedly coincidental. Both heroines are writers of romantic fiction whose fantasies become real. The "author" in "American Dreamer" is JoBeth Williams, a housewife with a boring, inattentive husband (James Stiles) and two teenage sons.

GHOSTBUSTERS (R) — Language and supernatural violence. Perfectly silly and slickly perfect fun on every level as three scientists (Bill Murray, Dan Aykroyd and Harold Ramis), dispossessed from their college-research niche, decide to take their parapsychological research out for hire. Every detail is witty perfection that miraculously never lets down throughout. With Sigourney Weaver, revealing a light touch you always hoped she had.

OH GOD! YOU DEVIL (PG) Family entertainment. In his third time around as God, George Burns takes on a second role — as the Devil in this inspired and consistently amusing comedy, which also stars Ted Wass as a struggling songwriter willing to sell his soul for a hit. Burns is pure joy.

PLACES IN THE HEART (PG)

Some scenes of violence too intense for very young children. Outstanding family fare. A work of love in which writer-director Robert Benton wants us to understand the character of a small Texas town where he grew up and the character of Americans at a time when their lives were most severely tried — mid-depression 1935. The film is extraordinary, restorative and deeply American, constructed with the intricacy of a fugue. The look of the film and its every technical detail is magnificent, and Benton's cast (which includes Sally Field, Ed Harris, Lindsay Crouse and Joan MarCUS) is the cream of young American performers.

REVENGE OF THE NERDS (R) Some sex, some nudity, much strong language; not for small children. Uproarious but deft satire of fraternity and sorority values and a gratifying, raucous fantasy of underdog triumph. Robert Carradine and Anthony Edwards are a couple of nerds — i.e., socially inept, unprepossessing-looking types — who take on the Greeks.

What's what

Q. A common saying is: "The exception proves the rule." I don't get it. How does an exception prove a rule?
A. It doesn't. As is, it's a ridiculous expression. But the older meaning of "prove" was "test." Originally, the common saying meant: "The exception tests the rule." And that made sense.

'America's Saints' nearly hits, but falls short of, perfection

By DAVID JOHNSTON
The Los Angeles Times

"America's Saints" offers a brilliant, incisive and revealing look at the internal politics and Jewish ambitions of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints. But, like the Mormon view of the righteous man or woman who does the right things but doesn't quite get into the highest reaches of heaven, this book falls just short of perfection.

Mormonism is an extremely difficult subject to grasp, especially for critical insiders or outsiders with a modern Western view of humility. The image the church presents to the world is as beguiling as Eve's apple, and far better polished.

Robert Gottlieb and Peter Wiley have seen beyond the gloss. They give a brief, satisfactory overview of Mormon history and then plunge into the powerful personalities who reshaped the church in recent decades. Their discussion of how Harold B. Lee, who served briefly as church president, used a seemingly obscure committee to reform the organization, concentrating power in his hands, is sharp and persuasive. It is here, in discussing internal church politics in Salt Lake City, that the authors are at their best. The authors' discussion of homosexuals and the church, including the assertion that a gay Brigham Young University faculty member hanged himself in a jail cell after a rest stop raid revealed his sexual orientation, is weak.

The authors err both in not doing enough reporting (they cite no evidence, such as a death certificate, to support the undated rumors) and in applying modern Judeo-Christian notions of individual freedom in examining Mormon theology on homosexuality.

It is in the area of theology where "America's Saints" falls short. The authors dismiss Mormon temples with a few sentences, ignoring their vital role in shaping Mormon psyches. Good Mormons routinely take oaths acknowledging God's right to slit their throats or disembowel them for revealing temple secrets. Temple rituals are central to Mormon spirituality. Like nearly all other writers who have examined the church, Gottlieb and Wiley focus too much on the temporal and not enough on the eternal. But the church's special vision of the eternal is key to understanding why Mormons are so involved in temporal political affairs.

Mormons regard themselves as a peculiar people: living in, but not of, this world and destined one day to save the Constitution, which they believe a Heavenly Father brought into being so that He could re-establish His one true church on this planet.

In Mormon theology, God was once a man on a planet named Kolob. Mormons believe that the men and women of Earth who prove themselves righteous can also become polygamous Gods and Mrs. Gods, ruling and reigning over their own planets. Or, as Mormons say: "As man is, God once was; and as God is, man may become."

As a mortal on Kolob, God may have been a philosopher or a public collector. But he heeded to the advice in the song taught every Mormon child: "Choose the right when a choice is placed before you."

Mormons believe that only those things which so refine their characters to choose, always, automatically, the right will go on to become Gods in the Celestial Kingdom, which the Church describes as the spiritually-purified Earth. The rest of us, except for murderers and slanders of the Holy Ghost, will live forever in various states of paradise enjoying every happy life has in after except sex and the creation of spirit children. The truly wicked will dwell not in hellfire and brimstone but in the searing loneliness of "outer darkness."

Had Gottlieb and Wiley focused more on Mormon theology they could have written a great book.

Johnston is a Times staff writer.

Book awards change format

By The Washington Post

Of the giving of prizes there is no end, and of the disputation over how to give them there is no end either.

Thus it was that last week in New York when the revised and streamlined American Book Awards were presented for the first time in their new format, there was controversy over that format even as there was general agreement that it was, on most counts, a welcome improvement.

The American Book Awards — TABA is their somewhat awkward acronym — are the latest in a steadily growing line of efforts to replace the distinguished old National Book Awards, which were killed off in 1979 by the publishing industry on the essentially specious grounds that they were excessively elitist and literary and, more to the point, did precious little to sell books.

The industry's real objection to the old NBA was that year after year, its juries overlooked best-sellers, no matter what their merits, and gave awards to books and authors few people had heard of; it did not seem to matter to the industry that it had been through the NBA that authors such as Walker Percy and Philip Roth, who subsequently made plenty of money for their publishers, were first recognized.

Be that as it may, the industry decided to replace the NBA with TABA, a program that at first seemed determined to give an award to every book ever published — the theory apparently being that if you give a book an award, everyone will rush out to buy it.

By 1983 the awards had ballooned to a staggering total of 27 categories, for both hardcover and paperback books, and not a soul alive could have named all of them without benefit of a computer.

PG-13 Rating Introduced

A new rating category is in place as of July 1. This new category is inserted between the current PG and R ratings. It is designated as "PG-13: Parents are strongly cautioned to give special guidance for attendance of children under 13. Some material may be inappropriate for young children."

The revised five-category system of the voluntary film industry rating program is now as follows:

- PG: General Audiences, all ages admitted.
- PG-13: Parental guidance suggested. Some material may not be suitable for children.
- PG-13: Parents are strongly cautioned to give special guidance for children under 13. Some material may be inappropriate for young children.
- R: Restricted, under-17 requires accompanying parent or adult guardian.
- X: No one under 17 admitted. All films rated after July 1 will be given ratings under the new five-category system.

How about turning charity energies to something practical?

DEAR ABBY: It seems that walkathons are becoming increasingly popular. This has bothered me for a long time, so I decided to get it off my chest.

I cannot see the relationship between charity and how far a person can walk. On the other hand, I could see some relationship if the volunteer walkers were sponsored for performing a meaningful service instead of walking.

For example: How about a "trashathon" to see how many bags of litter the volunteers could pick up off the land? Or how about a "win-

Abigail VanBuren
Dear Abby

downathon" to see how many senior citizens' windows could be washed by volunteers?

Or "readathons" to see how many pages volunteers could read to nursing home patients whose eyes have failed them? Or how many letters they could write for nursing home patients? Or how many senior citizens' yards could be raked or otherwise cleaned up?

I think you see my point. Why should walkers expend all that energy just to wind up with sore feet and aching muscles from walking until they're ready to drop?

It seems to me that if people want to volunteer their energy for charity, they might as well do it in an activity that's both productive and charitable.

—ENERGY CONSCIOUS,
GODDARD, KAN.
DEAR CONSCIOUS: Right on!

DEAR ABBY:—"Indiana—Mason" asked you to reprint the letter about the wife who kept nagging her husband to tell her all the secrets of the Masonic lodge of which he was a new member.

You told him you couldn't accommodate him unless he could pinpoint the year and month that letter appeared in your column.

Well, I am the editor of the Aaron Lodge No. 49, Free and Accepted Masons, in Tucson, Ariz., and I would like permission to run that letter in our newsletter. And I can pinpoint the date it ran; it was Nov. 17, 1968. Gotcha! How about it, Abby?

—MORRIS SEGAL, TUCSON
DEAR MORRIS: You win. Here it is:
DEAR ABBY: My husband recently joined the Masonic lodge. Naturally I was very proud of him, but now it has presented a problem to us.

He tells me that this is a "secret organization" and he has given his word that he will tell no one about the secrets of the lodge.

Abby, in all the 18 years we have been married, he never kept any secrets from each other. I have cried, begged, threatened and tried everything I could think of to make him tell me these "secrets" of his lodge, but he refuses.

How can an organization that is supposed to be dedicated to such high ideals create a barrier between a man and his wife? I'd appreciate your views.

—WIFE OF A MASON

DEAR WIFE: Consider yourself fortunate to be married to a man whose word means something. And quit pestering him to reveal the lodge secrets or you'll lose your Mason by degrees.

DEAR ABBY:—"Grandma" says, "Marriage is the price a man pays for sex, and sex is the price a woman pays for marriage."

Well, she's all wet. I say, "Men give love in order to get sex, and women give sex in order to get love. And marriage has nothing to do with it."

Old TV favorites return as cable station staples

By MARC GUNTHER
The Hartford Courant

"The Lone Ranger" is climbing back into the saddle. "My Favorite Martian" has returned to earth. And sur's up again on "Gidget."

Television shows of the 1950s and 1960s are returning to the home screen. They're being shown by cable services and independent stations.

The vintage shows are coming back, programmers say, because they appeal to viewers with traditional values who are unhappy with current network fare.

"Our philosophy is to provide the best, wholesome, family-oriented programming that we can," says Tim Robertson, group vice president of the CBN Cable Network.

CBN has carved out a niche in the crowded cable market by offering such westerns as "The Lone Ranger" and "Wagon Train" and such comedies as "The Best of Groucho" and "Burns and Allen" to its 27.1 million subscribers.

Independent stations also rely on old shows to fill the broadcast day. Some 84 independents broadcast "Gidget" as a replacement series last summer, and many will bring the show back again next year.

"You've got a new generation that's never seen these shows," explains Bruce C. Mayer, a veteran programmer of independent stations who now runs WTTV-TV (Channel 61) in Hartford, Conn. "And we all like to go back and think of times that were pleasant."

More than nostalgia, however, accounts for the return of the oldies. The syndication of older programs has become a big business, so much so that several TV companies have formed new units solely to market their older products.

The new units—bearing names like the Evergreen Division, Perennial Division and Encore Programs—were formed in recent years to respond to these changes in the TV business.

The growth of independent stations. Five years ago, there were fewer than 100 stations not affiliated with a network. Today, there are more than 200.

Since they are responsible for filling their entire broadcast day, the independents have a voracious appetite for programming.

The shortage of newer programs coming into syndication of the networks.

These days, the networks are quick to cancel shows with poor ratings, so fewer shows last long enough to be sold as reruns.

It is a rule of thumb that 80 or more episodes are needed before reruns of a show can be "stripped," or run daily in the same time period. The shortage is even more pronounced when it comes to half-hour sitcoms, the type of show best suited for syndication.

The high costs of the newer network shows. Popular shows like "Cheers" or "Diff'rent Strokes" that are being syndicated command higher prices than ever—roughly $10,000 to $15,000 per episode in a medium sized market, $30,000 to $100,000 in the biggest markets. Original programming such as "Wheel of Fortune" or "Entertainment Tonight" is nearly as costly.

In contrast, vintage shows are sold for much, much less—hundreds of dollars per episode in most markets—and some are given to stations in exchange for commercial time. Stations that need to fill many hours during daytime or late night, when audiences are small, find the old shows cheap enough so they can make money off them.

The syndicators, recognizing those factors, are developing aggressive and creative ways to sell the older shows. Telepictures' Perennial Division, for example, took over the selling of "My Favorite Martian" from Metromedia and boosted sales of the show from less than $50,000 to more than $1.5 million in six months.

James Moloshok, vice president for creative services of Telepictures, said "My Favorite Martian" has appeal to a whole generation of viewers, since it hasn't been widely distributed since it went off CBS in 1966. "Martian" is now seen in more than 50 markets.

Just as Telepictures hopes that "Martian" can ride the wave of self-filmed movies, Colco Enterprises hopes to capitalize on the appeal of action-adventure shows by selling a package that consists of "Hawk" and "Eisched," "Hawk" first ran in 1966, "Eisched," in 1979.

Dallas edges Pats

IRVING, Texas (AP) — It was a Thanksgiving Day the Dallas Cowboys wrapped themselves around New England quarterback Tony Eason like he was a turkey drumstick.

They sacked him 10 times, intercepted him for a touchdown, and Rafael Septien kicked a 23-yard field goal with four seconds to play for a vital 20-17 National Football League victory.

"I'm sorry to disappoint you all but I'm happy to announce the Cowboys aren't dead yet," Dallas Coach Tom Landry said. "It was our best game of the year. We really played good defense."

"The last drive was indicative of the way we wanted to play and win," Landry said. "The defense just played one of its best games. The Patriots had to travel and were tired and—after looking at last week's games—were probably overconfident. Danny White was keyed up for the game."

White, coming back after a two-week absence, threw a touchdown pass and directed the game-winning field goal drive.

New England Coach Ray Berry, who was an assistant under Landry in the late 1960s, said, "It was a typical Cowboy game. They put great pressure on Tony but I was proud of the way we came back."

"It's tough to lose a game like that but we're still in contention for the playoffs. We can bounce back from this."

The Cowboys seized the lead in the National Conference Eastern Division with an 8-5 record, with Washington and the New York Giants trailing by one-half game.

The Patriots dropped to 8-5 in the American Conference East but were still alive for a wild-card berth behind Miami.

For the game-winning field goal drive, White took the Cowboys 55 yards in 10 plays and completed a 16-yard pass to tight end Doug Cosbie to the New England 6-yard line before Septien's kick.

Dallas got a 16-yard run from Tony Dorsett, a 13-yard White to Doug Donley pass and a 11-yard White to Tony Hill completion to set up the game-winning score.

New England linebacker Larry McGrew strips ball from Cowboys quarterback Danny White

The Patriots drove 65 yards to tie the game at 17-17 with 1:58 to play on Eason's one-yard quarterback sneak. Craig James escaped for a 43-yard run to set up the score as the Patriots caught the Cowboys in a safety blitz trying for sack number 11.

Dallas defensive tackle Randy White had three of the 10 sacks, which were the most against the Patriots in their history. The losses totaled 57 yards.

White flicked a nine-yard touchdown pass to Hill in the third period to give Dallas a 17-10 lead.

The Cowboys led 10-3 at halftime thanks to Michael Downs' 27-yard touchdown interception return and a field goal by Septien and built it 17-3 at the end of the third period on the touchdown pass from White to Hill. Eason, hunted all day by the Cowboys' pass rush, came to life. He hit James with a 22-yard pass and completed a 27-yarder to Derrick Ramsey to the Dallas 1. On the next play, Eason rolled out and flipped a short scoring pass to a wide-open Ramsey with 14:53 to play.

White completed 21 of 41 for 288 yards and Eason hit 19 of 38 for 204 yards for the Patriots.

Hill returned to form by catching eight passes for 125 yards. The victory meant that Dallas had clinched a 20th consecutive winning season, which is the longest such streak in the NFL. The Cowboys are now 13-1 on Thanksgiving Day.

A crowd of 55,341 came to the game, with 9,769 no-shows for the nationally televised game.

The game was barely two minutes old when Downs stepped in front of New England receiver Stanley Morgan to intercept Eason's pass and dash 27 yards untouched for a score.

New England then took advantage of a Dallas miscue to get a 29-yard field goal from Tony Franklin. Dallas' Norm Granger was offside on a Patriot punt and it gave New England a first down at the Cowboys' 40. A 17-yard Eason to Ramsey pass set up the field goal, making it 7-3 in favor of Dallas at the end of the first period.

A 51-yard White to Hill connection positioned Dallas for Septien's 28-yard field goal in the second period, which gave the Cowboys a 10-3 lead.

Inspired Lions start slow but down Packers

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — An inspirational pre-game speech by Coach Monte Clark fired up Detroit, and the Lions responded Thursday with a resounding 31-28 comeback victory over the Green Bay Packers in their nationally televised National Football League game.

Lions quarterback Gary Danielson led the rally, passing for 335 yards and three touchdowns as the Lions avenged an earlier humiliation.

"Monte gave us a pre-game talk at breakfast," Danielson said. "It was one of his best ever, and we were ready to play after that."

"It showed the type of men we are. We've been through a lot this year, and the way we played shows we're not about to give up before the season officially ends. We've been through a lot and wanted to play well on national television."

The Lions spotted the Packers a two-touchdown lead but ended up controlling the ball for 44:47, leaving the Packers with only 16:13 to get something going.

"I told them, 'You've got to believe in yourselves,'" Clark said. "The defensive line really put the heat on them. That's how the whole thing works. You put pressure on their quarterback, and that makes the coverage easier."

"We had good execution," Clark said. "It's what I've been saying, 'You make a few plays and you win.' We made them pay in the past. We made them today."

Besides Danielson, the Lions also got a clutch performance from wide receiver Mark Nichols, who caught four passes, all in traffic, for 108 yards.

"We went right at them today," Nichols said. "I think it showed we were in better shape to play with three days rest than they were."

The defeat left the Packers with a 5-8 record in the NFC Central and virtually knocked them out of playoff contention. The Lions improved to 4-8-1.

"That was probably the worst 60 minutes of defensive football I've seen. It was horrible," a disgusted Green Bay Coach Forrest Gregg said. "This put us out of any hope for this year. It was embarrassing in front of a national television audience."

"The field goal just before the half was the difference in the ball game," Gregg said. "You can't count or glide in this league or you'll get your teeth kicked out, and that's what happened today."

Ex-Idaho State star quarterback Mike Machurek even figured in the Lions' victory. Shortly before the half Machurek, who has a stronger arm than Danielson, lofted a ball that Nichols brought down amid five defenders at the Green Bay 14, setting up Eddie Murray's 32-yard field goal as time ran out.

The Packers led 21-17 at the half, but an interception by Bobby Watkins set the Lions up at their own 19 with 8:49 remaining in the third quarter.

Danielson, who completed 24 of 33 with one interception, drove the Lions 81 yards in 16 plays, and fullback James Jones dove the final yard for the go-ahead TD at 13:52.

Danielson hit Jeff Chadwick with a 21-yard scoring strike at 8:45 of the fourth quarter which proved to be the margin of victory.

Green Bay's Gerry Ellis scored on a 40-yard run at 1:33 of the first quarter, and Lynn Dickey teamed with tight end Paul Coffman for a 44-yard TD pass play at 8:04 of the first quarter to put the Packers ahead 14-0.

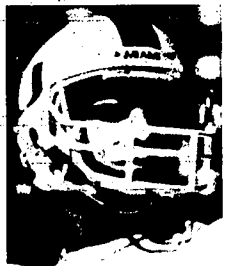

In the second quarter, Danielson flipped a 10-yard TD pass to David Lewis, but Dickey answered with a 7-yard scoring strike to Eddie Lee Ivey that put the Packers on top 21-7.

Danielson connected with Lewis for a 21-yard TD at 13:46 of the second quarter and Murray kicked a 32-yard field goal as time ran out to set the halftime margin.

Dickey completed 8 of 17 for 115 yards before having to leave the game after being poked in the eye. Rookie Randy Wright came on and tossed a 4-yard TD pass to Phil Epps with 55 seconds remaining. Wright was 5 of 7 for 100 yards.

The Lions' defense, avenging a humiliating 41-9 thrashing four weeks ago in Green Bay, held the Packers to just 14 first downs while Detroit was rolling up 33. The Lions held a 518-306 edge in total yards, 347-197 in the air.

The Lions, who started the NFL tradition of Thanksgiving Day football in 1934, now are 22-21-3 in the holiday contests.

BERNIE KOSAR Leads 12th-ranked Hurricanes

Boston College-Miami: QBs Flutie, Kosar duel

MIAMI (AP) — Boston College and Miami, a pair of explosive offensive football teams apparently headed for New Year's Day bowl appearances, met today in a nationally televised game showcasing the talents of quarterbacks Doug Flutie and Bernie Kosar.

Flutie, considered the leading candidate for the Heisman Trophy, has rewritten the record book in leading the 10th-ranked Eagles to national prominence the past four years.

Kosar, meanwhile, is only a sophomore but has professional scouts drooling because of his classic dropping passing style and the leadership he's shown in helping the 12th-ranked Hurricanes to a 10-4 record and a national championship over the past two seasons.

The 12:45 p.m. MST matchup will be the on-the-field meeting between the quarterbacks, but Miami's aerial chief shrugged off the significance.

"It don't have any effect on how he performs and he doesn't have any effect on my performance," Kosar said. "It's unfair to bill it as a battle between two people because there are so many other people involved."

Boston College, 7-2 with a pair of games remaining, reportedly is headed for the Cotton Bowl and a $1.5 million payday regardless of today's outcome.

The Hurricanes, 8-3 after losing to Maryland 42-10 in a shootout they led 31-0 at halftime two weeks ago, are said to have the inside track for a berth in the Fiesta Bowl.

The Cotton Bowl apparently is willing to accept the Eagles win or lose because of Flutie, who's passed 2,706 yards and 21 touchdowns this season and is considered a good bet to give the game's television ratings a boost.

The 5-foot-9, 176-pound senior from Natick, Mass., has thrown for 9,831 career yards and amassed 10,537 yards of total offense — both NCAA records — and Miami Coach Jimmy Johnson says Flutie presents the Hurricanes with their most formidable challenge of the season.

"You don't see ones like Doug Flutie very often," Johnson said. "He's able to do a lot of things because he has a lot of talent and a great supporting cast."

Kosar is also surrounded by loads of talent, including wide receiver Eddie Brown (49 catches, 894 yards, nine touchdowns), and has completed nearly 63 percent of his passes for 3,105 yards and 23 TDs in 1984. Kosar has thrown for 5,524 career yards and 33 touchdowns.

Miami also is said to have reached an agreement that'll send it to the Fiesta Bowl win or lose, but Johnson and his players said price will be a major incentive against Boston College.

Maryland's NCAA-record comeback left the Hurricanes with bruised egos and senior guard Alvin Ward said today's outing will give the team a chance to "show people the University of Miami is not through."

In the only major college game Thanksgiving Day, Miami of Ohio beat Cincinnati 31-26 as quarterback AJ Marlowe ran for a touchdown and passed for another. Miami completed its season at 4-7; Cincinnati was 2-9.

Games involving ranked teams Saturday — when bowl invitations will officially be extended — pit Utah State at No. 1 Brigham Young; No. 3 Oklahoma State at No. 2 Oklahoma; No. 6 Texas at Baylor; No. 9 South Carolina at Clemson; Arkansas at No. 11 Southern Methodist; Notre Dame at No. 14 Southern California; Tulane at No. 16 Louisiana State at night and No. 17 Texas Christian at Texas A&M.

Idaho St.'s Ballard ignores detractors

Editor's note: This is the second article in a three-part series previewing the prospects of Idaho's three Big Sky Conference college basketball teams this season.

By STEVE CRUMP Times-News sports editor

POCATELLO — Some might head Idaho State University head basketball Coach Wayne Ballard of whistling past the graveyard. Ballard, for one, will have none of that.

More details on Great Alaska Shootout — C2

"I think we're a better team than we were a year ago," says Ballard. "We're bigger, stronger — we have better shooters. I think some people will be surprised."

If Ballard is proven correct, indeed they will. His fellow Big Sky Conference coaches figure the Bengals will finish last in the conference; a pre-season media poll picked them sixth.

Understandably enough, Idaho State lost four starters from a 12-20 team that was, to be plain, just awful defensively and not overly familiar with the concept of the rebound.

"We've got better athletes this year," says Ballard. "We're going to be more physical — we're going to be able to mix it up inside and get the ball off the glass — we've got good shooters and we're going to be able to get up and down the floor. Yeah, we're going to be much better defensively."

TWIN FALLS — If you're a fan of the University of Idaho basketball team, you won't miss a thing by spending the winter in the Magic Valley. But if your team is Idaho State or Boise State, chances are you'll get some static this winter.

That's because only one Magic Valley radio station, Twin Falls' KEEP-AM, will carry Big Sky basketball this year. KEEP will continue its long-standing affiliation with Vandal sports by broadcasting all of the Idaho basketball games, starting hours that wouldn't seem to be an in-against UCLA.

The changes for the Bengals didn't come with the departure of Mike Williams, Mike Denkers, Buck Chavez and Tony Malveaux, and graduated seniors. Junior Ron McCants, perhaps Idaho State's best outside shooter a year ago, left the program by mutual consent with

Twin Falls station KTFI-AM, which has broadcast the ISU football games for the past two seasons, and carried Bengal basketball last winter, has passed on ISU basketball this year. That means that the closest outlet for ISU Bengal basketball will be Pocatello radio station KSEI-AM. KSEI (930 KC) is generally — but not always — audible in the eastern two-thirds of the Magic Valley after sundown.

Twin Falls station KLX-AM, which has handled Boise State football for the past two seasons, doesn't do Bronco basketball. For anyone who listens to the radio during the daylight hours, that wouldn't seem to be an in-against UCLA.

Ballard, Guards Fred Demerson, a sophomore, and Marjorie Montgomery, a red-shirt freshman, departed for junior college programs. And 6-foot-9 sophomore center Greg Housekeeper embarked on an LDS mission. Montgomery and Housekeeper are expected to return eventually; McCants and Demerson are not.

What remains are four of the 13 players who were on the ISU roster at the beginning of last season. The one returning starter is 6-4 senior-forward Nelson Peterson, who averaged 10.6-points-a game last year.

"We're looking to Nelson for leadership," says Ballard. "He's been our leading scorer in our scrimmages this fall and he's doing a solid job."

The other three returnees are Donnie Holston, a 6-4 sophomore guard; Phil Rohr, a 6-4 senior guard; and Doug Moratzka, a 6-6 senior forward. Moratzka was the Bengals' sixth man last year. Rohr, a transfer from the College of Southern Idaho, injured both ankles during the course of last season and saw very limited action. Holston was a spot player as a freshman.

"Phil's doing a lot, better this season," says Ballard. "He hurt his ankle in practice this fall, but he's done a good job. He's playing smart. Doug has done a great job for us on defense and rebounding for the past two years, and Donny has been real consistent for us in scrimmages so far this fall. With his shooting ability, he's going to help us."

Ballard expects that Peterson and Holston will take their share of shots this season, but thinks it will be a more balanced offense than last season's team which was dominated offensively by Williams and Chavez.

"It's hard to tell at this point, but I look for the point production to be spread around," says Ballard. "We've got several pretty good

Victory over Oklahoma eases jitters for No. 2-ranked Illini

By The Associated Press

Second-ranked Illinois goes into the Great Alaska Shootout today with a victory already to its credit and some welcome relief from the early-season jitters.

The Fighting Illini defeated fifth-ranked Oklahoma 81-64 last Sunday in the season's first traditional opener in Springfield, Mass., the Tip-Off Classic.

"I'd probably be just as happy beating up on some teams," says Illinois forward Doug Altenberger. "We're going to find out a lot of things in a hurry, but I feel better after beating Oklahoma."

Illinois faces Idaho State in the opening round of the tournament in Anchorage, Alaska. No. 19 Kansas gets its regular season started in the Shootout, facing an unranked but traditionally strong team from Maryland.

The other ranked teams scheduled to play tonight are top-ranked Georgetown, beginning defense of its national championship; No. 10 Southern Methodist and 11th-ranked Nevada-Las Vegas. Georgetown last night had a 77-67 victory over Texas.

Southern and Nevada-Las Vegas is at Nevada-Reno. George Montgomery, a 6-foot-9 senior center, sparked the Illini victory over Oklahoma with 17 points, 10 rebounds and a tough defensive job on Sooners All-American Wayman Tisdale.

Besides Illinois, Kansas and Maryland, the Great Alaska Shootout has drawn a field that includes other big-name schools such as Tennessee and Alabama-Birmingham.

Oregon, which went to the National Invitation Tournament last season, plays host Alaska-Anchorage in the other opening day game.

"It's earlier than I've ever played a tournament, and particularly with the type of teams that are in there," says Oregon Coach Don Monson, adding, "It's a chance for us to make a little bit of national recognition for ourselves."

Illinois was 25-5 last season. Kansas, under head coach Larry Brown, was 22-10 and opened its 1984-85 season with a 92-69 exhibition victory over China on Nov. 15. Greg Drelling, a 7-foot center, leads the Jayhawks.

Georgetown Coach John Thompson says the Hoyas will begin defense of their first national title "step by step." Led by All-American center Patrick Ewing, Georgetown's first step should be relatively easy against unranked Hawaii-Hilo. The Hoyas compiled a record of 34-3 last season.

Southern Methodist is led by 7-foot center Jon Koncak, who, like Ewing and Tisdale, was a member of the U.S. gold-medal Olympic team. Koncak averaged 15.5 points and 11.5 rebounds per game last season to lead SMU to a 25-11 mark. Also returning for the Mustangs are 6-7 Larry Davis, 6-6 Kevin Lew...

guards Butch Moore and Carl Wright. Nevada-Las Vegas Coach Jerry Tarkanian says he would like a return to the form of old

"We're trying to get back to running like we did a few years back," Tarkanian says. Nevada-Las Vegas went to the Final Four in 1976 and '77, during which time they earned the appendage "Runnin'" to their nickname.

Last year, the Rebels were 29-6, but they no longer have playmaker Danny Tarkanian, the coach's son. His spot will be taken by Fred Banks, and 6-9 Richie Adams, 6-8 Ed Catchings and 6-10 John Flowers give the Rebels strength up front.

Oregon State will announce decision on Avezzano today

JOE AVEZZANO
Andros thinks he's a goner

CORVALLIS, Ore. (AP) — Joe Avezzano's fate as head football coach at Oregon State will be made public today, but the school's athletic director thinks the university's new president already has decided Avezzano won't be rehired.

Dee Andros said Wednesday that he thinks new president John Byrne "probably will turn his mind made up" to hire a new coach when he scheduled a 10 a.m. PST news conference to announce Avezzano's fate.

Avezzano, who has a 6-47-2 record in five seasons at Oregon State, has completed the final year of his contract. He met with Byrne Tuesday and Wednesday and appeared to believe he had a chance for keeping his job.

"I'm thoroughly enjoying my dealings with Dr. Byrne," Avezzano said. "I think he's a high-powered, energetic administrator who is adressing an issue the best way he can. And he's doing it privately.

"I don't think he's afraid to make a decision one way or the other (to hire or fire)," Avezzano said. "From a man-to-man standpoint, I'm enjoying our conversations because I like his style."

Avezzano, 41, who has the worst record among major-college coaches over the past five years, said Tuesday's discussion was an "attempt to find out more facts about subject matter where the decision needs to be made."

Byrne appointed a special committee to evaluate the football program, which hasn't had a winning season since 1970. The group, which includes representatives of the athletic department, faculty, students, boosters and alumni, made a recommendation to Byrne Monday, but the recommendation wasn't made public.

Avezzano said Tuesday, however, that he would be shocked if the recommendation was for anything other than dismissal.

Andros said a screening committee has prepared a list of names of prospective new coaches for Byrne.

Two names believed to be on the list are Los Angeles Raiders' assistant coach Sam Boghosian and Idaho head Coach Dennis Erickson.

"It would put me in a bad spot to tell you if those two were on the list," Andros said. "But I think if you're discussing good coaching prospects up and down the West Coast, I would think they'd have to be mentioned."

Avezzano gathered his assistant coaches together for a brief meeting Wednesday following his conversation with Byrne.

"I had scheduled that a couple days ago to keep them abreast of what was going on," he said. "I wanted to make sure they relaxed and had a good Thanksgiving."

Despite the pressure he feels, Avezzano says he plans to enjoy the holiday.

"To say this thing isn't bothering me would be ridiculous," he noted, but as far as taking away from the enjoyment of those important things in life, "I'm going to make sure it doesn't hinder those things."

superable problem for BSU fans — Boise's KBOI-AM, the Broncos' flagship station, comes in loud and clear throughout the Magic Valley.

Until sunset. That's when, under Federal Communications Commission regulation, KBOI (670 KC) becomes "directional" — muting its signal to the east so as not to interfere with Chicago superstation WMAQ-AM. Magic Valley radio listeners tuning into KBOI after dark are apt to get instead San Francisco station KNBR-AM or Los Angeles station KFI-AM, both of which turn up their volume after the sun goes down.

The upshot is that unless you live in the western quarter of the Magic Valley, you don't hear BSU basketball.

"We know there's some interest down here in Boise State basketball, but so far we haven't been able to sell the stations on it," says KBOI station manager Al Volsteek. "All we can do is keep trying."

Ricks gridders in bowl game

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Undefeated and third-ranked Ricks College faces 11th-rated Phoenix College in the fourth annual Valley of the Sun Bowl, a junior college football championship yet to be won by an Arizona school.

Ricks takes a 10-0 record into the game at Phoenix College's Hoy Field.

The hosts Bears, 8-1 overall and winners of the Arizona Community College Athletic Conference, will be making their second straight appearance.

Last year, Phoenix College lost 17-10 to Dixie College of Utah. Ricks won the inaugural Valley of the Sun Bowl in 1982 by a 29-21 margin over Arizona Western while Utah's Snow College beat Glendale Community 41-23 the following year.

"This may not get the publicity of the Fiesta Bowl, but it's just as big a game to the two competing teams," said Bears Coach Ken Stiles. "We're expecting our toughest game in several years. We're going to have to play great to win."

Phoenix College is paced by running back Carlton Campbell (102 carries, 517 yards, five TDs) and quarterback Mike White (70-of-185 for 1,179 yards, 10 TDs, eight interceptions.) Roy Hurd has caught 24 passes for 720 yards and five scores for the Bears.

"They're a real tough, physical club and appear to be at the top of their game right now," Ricks Coach Ron Hain said of Phoenix College.

The Vikings are paced by running back Brian Nuffer, who has 643 yards and 14 rushing touchdowns on 91 carries plus four TDs and 466 yards on 21 receptions. Freshman quarterback Dan Keok has completed 117 of 197 passes for 1,479 yards and 10 touchdowns with eight interceptions.

Entries for holiday hoops

TWIN FALLS — Entries are being accepted for the annual O'Leary Christmas outdoor basketball tournament, announces chairman Clarence Phillips.

The tournament will begin Dec. 21 at the school gymnasium. Two tiers of competition are offered for "A" and "B" teams. Each will have a single elimination with consolation bracket.

Entry deadline is Dec. 17, said Phillips, who may be contacted at 733-2155 or 733-1701.

Missouri woos Maryland coach

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP) — University of Missouri athletic officials are interested in Maryland football coach Bobby Ross as a possible replacement for Warren Powers, fired Monday after his first losing season (3-7-1) in seven seasons as the Tigers' head coach.

Maryland Athletic Director Dick Dull confirmed Wednesday night that he had talked with Missouri assistant athletic director Dick Bestwick on Monday night and granted permission, as he always does, for job talks with Ross.

Paul Miller, also an assistant athletic director at Missouri, said he didn't want to interrupt Ross's preparations for Saturday's Atlantic Coast Conference showdown with Virginia and would wait at least until next week to contact the Terrapin coach.

Cowboys' boss vows changes

DALLAS (AP) — Dallas Cowboy's President Tex Schramm, voicing his displeasure with his struggling team, says some players who are "negative influences" will be gone from the roster by next year.

"Next year we need to eliminate the players who are not willing to contribute to the team concept," Schramm said.

Schramm said he is disturbed with what he calls "finger-pointers" and says the overall team attitude has eroded the last few weeks.

He declined in an interview with the Dallas Times Herald to name names of those players he thought were "negative influences."

"We have some players who are finger-pointers and who always want to say it's somebody else's fault," Schramm said. "That depreciates the team concept."

"Some players tend to be positive influences and some need to be negative influences. We need to emphasize the positive and it's time to reduce the negative ones."

Schramm also said the Cowboys will try to acquire some veteran National Football League players through trades during the off-season — a rare strategy for the Cowboys who currently have only two players — John Dutton and Mike Rento — acquired through player-for-player trades.

"It's not our normal pattern, but we could make some trades," Schramm said. "There's one thing about the Cowboys: we've always been willing to change our methods when we've needed to."

Running back Tony Dorsett, Schramm said, is a "positive influence" even though he has recently chided teammates, in general, for a lack of team effort.

Chicago neighborhood in mourning after shocking death of prep cage star

CHICAGO (AP) — An American flag flew at half-staff atop Simeon Vocational High as the South Side neighborhood mourned the death of Ben Wilson, who had brought hope and pride to the residents with his basketball accomplishments.

The 17-year-old Wilson, considered among the top college prospects in the nation, died early Wednesday from gunshot wounds suffered in a chance street-corner confrontation.

Two youths charged with Wilson's murder were ordered held without bond during a brief court appearance Wednesday, several hours after 1,800 Simeon students gathered for a memorial service in the gymnasium where, last spring, Wilson led the Wolverines to a Class AA state title.

Principal Ned McCray told the gathering that Tuesday's shooting was a tragic coincidence.

"Two groups of people passing on the sidewalk yesterday. One group of people full of hope and bright promise for the future," he said, referring to Wilson and his girlfriend, "and another group passing representing the past, no future."

"The two groups met, and in a flash, the future of both groups dim-

BEN WILSON Had been rated top prospect med," he said. "Where will it end?" Coach Bob Hambrick and Wilson's teammates did not attend the service, deciding instead to spare the players additional emotional strain before Wednesday night's season-opening game against Evanston.

The Wolverines traveled 90 miles to Rockford where they beat Evanston 71-52 in a holiday tournament. The last time the two teams met was in the Class AA final.

Athletes and spectators paid tribute to Wilson with a minute of silence before the tipoff.

Wilson's mother, Mary Wilson, also had a message at an emotional rally for the students, many of whom wept openly.

"I taught Benji to think positively through every situation," she said. "I must tell you I find it difficult to think positively about Benji's leaving us. But I know he would not want me to give energy to things I cannot change."

Outside McCray's office Wednesday, a blue graduation gown like one Wilson would have worn next spring was draped over a bulletin board. Pictures of Wilson and his teammates were tacked on.

Wilson was gunned down near the school's entrance during lunch break Tuesday. Police Sgt. Joe Gorman said Wilson was walking with a girlfriend when three young men blocked the sidewalk and he tried to pass.

"He said, 'Excuse me,' and they started it from there," said Gorman.

Deputy Chief of Detectives William Mahoney said one of the assailants attempted to go through Wilson's pockets. When the 6-foot-8 Wilson pushed him away, the youth's accomplice opened fire.

Two of the three youths were charged with murder in Wilson's death and with attempted robbery, while the third was questioned and released, said spokesman Dave Devane of the state's attorney's office.

McKeon thinks he can lure Sutcliffe to Padres

SAN DIEGO (AP) — San Diego Padres General Manager Jack McKeon says he is confident of attracting free agent pitcher Rick Sutcliffe to the Padres following two days of meetings between the National League baseball champions and the league's Cy Young Award winner.

"Rick has a genuine interest in playing here," McKeon said. "I think it's going to come down to two teams — us or the Cubs."

Sutcliffe was wooed by the top brass of the Padres, including owner Joan Kroce, during his visit to San Diego with agent Barry Axelrod.

"I'm impressed by the area and the people in the Padre organization," the 6-foot-7, 28-year-old said. "The Padres are an outstanding team and they're going to get nothing but better."

The Padres beat the Chicago Cubs, Sutcliffe's most recent employer, three games to two in the National League Championship Series in October.

"The Padres have a strong farm system and a lot of young players on their major-league roster," Sutcliffe said.

Sutcliffe and Axelrod said they were impressed by the enthusiasm of Mrs. Kroce, who hosted a dinner for the group Tuesday night in La Jolla, and by the inclusion in the discussions of Padres first baseman Steve Garvey.

Garvey and Sutcliffe are friends and former teammates on the Los Angeles Dodgers.

"Joan Kroce has done some tremendous things with this ballclub and for the people in this area," Sutcliffe said. "You read some bad things about ballplayers, but people like Steve Garvey and Andre Thornton try to give something back."

Axelrod said in addition to a five-year contract offer from the Padres, he has received bids from the Cubs, Kansas City and Atlanta.

Taiwanese golfer leads Japan event

IBUSUKI, Japan (AP) — Veteran Hsieh Min-man of Taiwan fired a 5-under-par 67 to a one-stroke lead after the first round of the $206,000 Casio World Open Golf Tournament Thursday.

Hsieh carded five birdies over the 7,654-yard, par 72 Ibusuki Golf Club course in fine weather.

One stroke behind Hsieh at 68 were Americans Gary Koch and Scott Hoch.

Now you can stay out of the rain... even when you play golf in it.

St. George's Best Value

Getting away from the icy, wintry blasts to enjoy St. George's sunny skies? If so, you owe it to yourself to see St. George's Sunflower Garden Homes. Why? Because they're unlike anything else St. George has to offer.

- Expansive, free standing units with no stairs or common walls.
- An open-air concept with ample green spaces. And a relaxed, comfortable lifestyle. That's Sunflower.

Sunflower Garden Homes can also save you over $40,000 on a comparable Grand Valley condominium. Dare to Compare. You'll be glad you did.

We're easy to find. Take the Washington/Middleton exit off I-15. Go under the overpass, and take the first right (Telegraph St.), then the first left (2450 East), and look for the giant American flag.

Riley faces difficult task trying to spark Lakers

Uses psychology, insanity

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — What does it take to motivate a team of high-flying basketball players who each earn an average of $725,000 a year, more than twice the salary of their counterparts in the National Basketball Association?

A little psychology mixed with a bit of temporary insanity, says Pat Riley, head coach of the talent-heavy Los Angeles Lakers.

"This is a remarkable team," Riley said. "They can be remarkably good or remarkably bad. You just can't coach and ignore the fact that their minds might be burned."

But does it work?

ProBasketball

"I personally don't need any of that," says Lakers captain and center Kareem Abdul-Jabbar. "I've been here a long time and I know all about the ups and downs. I've heard it all before. But that doesn't mean we don't need it."

After a 5-5 start, their worst in seven years, the Lakers needed something.

News of "Laker Psych" — motivational techniques to fill the void in psychology, Riley relies on what he has learned as a coach and a player, and on what he has picked up from his wife Chris, a former marriage and family counselor.

Riley says he has also read books on personnel management and psychology.

Part of the difficulty in motivating the Lakers to play season-long championship basketball is that they virtually know they will go to the playoffs. And winning a division doesn't even exempt a team from the first round of the playoffs any more.

So the Lakers' coach favors short phrases to whip his team into action.

Lucas helps give improving Rockets a break

HOUSTON (AP) — John Lucas slammed the towel to the locker room floor in mock anger.

"Dang, I was on the wrong page again, and I had it upside down this time," Lucas shouted. "I've got to get that straightened out."

Lucas was referring to an earlier comment by Rockets Coach Bill Fitch that he and Lucas weren't on the same page in directing the Rockets' fast break offense.

But Lucas, whose National Basketball Association career came full circle Oct. 4 when he returned to the Rockets from the San Antonio Spurs, is a quick learner.

"He's still learning," Fitch said. "He's only been around here a short time." Phil Ford and Allen Leavell, former Rocket guard, didn't start doing everything right until about halfway through the season.

"I've got no complaints with John's performance right now. It's just as the season goes along our break is bound to get better. It couldn't get any worse."

The Rockets' No. 1 draft pick in 1976 has made an immediate impression on the Rockets, both with the team and with opposing coaches.

"When I read that Houston had made the trade with San Antonio for Lucas, I shuddered," Dallas Mavericks Coach Dick Motta said. "He gives them a dimension that they didn't have."

That dimension has been directing traffic in the lane for "Twin Towers" Akeem Olatunji and Ralph Sampson and as an occasional scoring threat.

Lucas set a club record with 15 assists in a weekend game against San Antonio and holds an NBA record of 14 assists in one quarter in his final game as a Spur last season. He had 24 assists in that game, also an NBA mark.

Lucas has a clear idea of his role with the Rockets.

"My job is to spread the wealth around, I'm not the show," Lucas says modestly. "It's my job to make Ralph the league's most valuable player and Akeem rookie of the year."

At 31, Lucas is getting a second chance in the NBA.

He was sent to Golden State from the Rockets in exchange for the Rockets' signing of free agent Rick Barry. He was traded to Washington in 1981 and was dismissed from the team in the 1982-83 season for missing practices.

He played in the Continental Basketball Association and got his chance at the NBA when the Spurs signed him to a free agent contract.

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — John McEnroe, the world's No. 1 player, will miss the Australian Open because of an injury to his left wrist, but will be able to play for the United States in the Davis Cup final next month in Sweden.

McEnroe was ordered to take a two-week break from tennis after injuring his wrist during practice in California two days ago.

"He called me and told me about his wrist," Dr. Omar Fareed, a member of the U.S. Tennis Association's Sports Medicine Committee, said from his home in Los Angeles. "I examined him and prescribed two medications."

"I advised him not to play for two weeks. He's not ready to play right now."

Asked when the reigning U.S. Open and Wimbledon champion could play, Fareed said: "I'm leaning forward to his playing in the Davis Cup. As far as I'm concerned, he should be ready for that 100 percent."

The fiery New Yorker's withdrawal has left the way open for equally volatile Patrick Cash to become the first home-grown winner of Australia's top tennis event since Mark Edmondson in 1976.

Benj Robbins, the Association of Tennis Professionals' representative in Australia, said McEnroe was enroute from New York to Australia when he saw Dr. Fareed.

"John told me the wrist was causing him considerable pain," Robbins said.

The decision has cost McEnroe the chance of joining Don Budge and Rod Laver as the only male players to capture four consecutive Grand Slam titles. He has won the last two and could have pocketed a $1 million bonus by winning both the Australian Open and the French Open in June.

McEnroe's withdrawal from the grass court tournament has not only thrown the Australian Open title up for grabs, but has also confused the officials.

Toy's draw has been cancelled and now is expected to be held on either Saturday or Sunday.

With McEnroe out, Ivan Lendl of Czechoslovakia, the reigning French Open champion, will be the No. 1 seed as officials attempt to entice Jimmy Connors to take McEnroe's place.

Without Connors, the No. 2 seed would be defending champion Mats Wilander of Sweden, followed, in order, by Sweden's Joachim Nyström and Cash.

On Nov. 19, beat Wilander at Wimbledon and came close to upsetting Lendl in the U.S. Open on concrete in New York.

Also pulling out of the Australian Open on Thursday were McEnroe's doubles partner, Peter Fleming, and fellow Americans Tony Giammarini and Mike Leach.

Officials have issued five of the six wild cards for the open — the last one being held open in the event Connors decides to enter.

Colin Sluice, the tournament director, said the wild cards have gone to Australian's Peter McNamara, the former top 10 player attempting a comeback after a crippling knee injury, and four other Australians.

CONSIDER LEASING YOUR NEXT CAR OR TRUCK.

- Leasing is convenient. You only pay for what you use, not the full price of the vehicle.
- There is no used vehicle to dispose of at lease end.
- Leasing frees your cash and you can use your available bank line of credit for other purposes.
- Lessees leasing for business purposes will have the benefit of simplified tax records.
