Dam bursts in Italy; hundreds die

150-foot-wide wall of water, mud crushes mountain village

By JENNIFER PARMELEE
The Associated Press

STAVA, Italy — A swollen lake burst an earthen dam Friday and poured a raging torrent into homes and tourist hotels in this Dolomite Mountain village.

Officials reported at least 220 people were killed.

"They said a 150-foot-wide wall of water, mud and uprooted trees coursed down a valley and crushed 20 houses and three hotels in 20 seconds in the village of Stava.

"I saw the end of the world," said a survivor who broke down in tears.

Another said: "It sounded like an earthquake. I thought the mountain had collapsed."

"It looked like a big ball of mud that swallowed everything," a man who said he worked for the area's public works department told The Associated Press.

The man, who spoke on condition his name not be used, said he had just returned to Stava after making the daily inspection of the dam and had not noticed anything wrong.

"Afterward you could just see the tops of pine trees sticking out through the mud. It was very quiet. No one was there," he said, pointing to a vast expanse of mud where the houses and hotels once stood. A fourth hotel in the area was badly damaged.

Civil Defense Minister Giuseppe Zamberletti said at least 220 people were killed.

Fifteen people were dug out of the mud alive, officials reported.

State-run RAI television said almost all of the dead identified were tourists, but there was no official confirmation. No identities of the victims were released.

One survivor, who gave his name only as Pietro, told reporters his brother climbed a tree to escape the first wave of mud and water that hit the village of Stava, but a second carried him away.

"Many families were wiped out with their houses" when the dam burst at about 1 p.m. local time, said Alma Bernard, who owns a hotel in Tesero, about two miles from the disaster scene in the Fiemme Valley of northern Italy. "Earth and mud cover the village (Stava)," she said in a telephone interview with The Associated Press.

Rescue workers and soldiers brought in by helicopter fought through mud and debris in the search for victims. They said 80 bodies had been recovered.

Film taken by television cameramen flying over the scene showed an empty artificial lake and a 3 1/4-mile-long channel of mud stretching into the valley. The dam was completely washed away.

RAI, which broadcast the film, said the mass of water, mud, trees and other debris reached depths of 130 feet.

The earthen dam was built about 20 years ago to filter waste water from a mine that produces fluorite, a mineral used in making glass.

Officials of the Civil Defense Ministry said the rushing water carried with it sediment from the mine that had settled on the bottom near the dam.

Recent thunderstorms have been swelling mountain streams in the area of the lake and dam, about 4,000 feet above sea level near the Trento province town 183 miles northeast of Milan. Stava is about 18 miles southeast of Bolzano.

Rescue workers were called to the scene of the disaster from as far away as Tuscany, in central Italy. Dogs trained to sniff for victims buried under rubble also were rushed in. Police closed roads in the area to allow access by rescue squads and heavy earth-moving equipment.

The four hotels hit by the wave of water all in an area dotted with alpine lakes beneath snow-capped peaks of the Dolomites.

Tourist officials said about 170 people were registered at the hotels. The Erika, Stava and Miramonti were hit directly and a wing of the Dolomiti was damaged.

This is the height of the tourist season in the area. Most of the vacationers are Italians and northern Europeans.

Vatican officials said Pope John Paul II prayed for the victims and sent a condolence message to the archbishop of Trento.

Idaho teacher back-up pick

By The Associated Press

BOISE — Barbara Morgan, a second-grade teacher from McCall, was selected Friday as the alternate in the competition to become the nation's first "Teacher in Space."

She is described by relatives and friends as an energetic and highly qualified teacher who exemplifies the high caliber of Idaho educators.

"The only thing I can say about Barb is that when she puts her mind to something, she just puts all of her energies into that," said John Wall, her principal at the McCall-Donnelly Elementary School where she has taught for the past 10 years. "She's real thorough in what she does, and she has all sorts of energy."

Her husband, Clay Jr., a Forest Service smokejumper, was apparently still on the fire line somewhere in the West, where forest and range fires have been raging all month. But there were indications he might be able to meet her at the airport on her scheduled return to Idaho late Friday.

But Dr. Clay Morgan, her father-in-law, was ecstatic over the news, although he was along with others in the state had hoped to see Mrs. Morgan selected as the primary candidate for the January Space Shuttle mission. As alternate, she will now go only if Christa McAuliffe of New Hampshire cannot make it.

"I have mixed emotions on the whole thing," she said shortly after the announcement at the White House by Vice President George Bush. "That's a tremendous commitment. She'll be away from home and her husband and us a lot. I think she's qualified for number one, but number two isn't bad either."

Mrs. Morgan, 33, a Phi Beta Kappa graduate of Stanford University in human biology, was the youngest of the 10 finalists for the "Teacher in Space" honor. Another Idahoan, Sharon Christa McAuliffe, a New Hampshire social studies teacher who says she will keep a pioneer's journal in orbit, will be the first private citizen to travel in space, Vice President George Bush announced Friday.

McAuliffe, 36, who teaches at Concord, N.H., High School and has a special interest in women's studies, was chosen from 10 teacher finalists, who were also from 11,416 applicants to board the shuttle Challenger in January.

Bush announced her selection at a White House ceremony in the Roosevelt Room, pronouncing her one of America's teachers. "The right stuff," McAuliffe broke into tears when Bush read her name. The finalists had been told on their way into the White House only minutes earlier.

Boise High School teacher David Marquart was among the finalists as well, both winning a spot in the elite group in a competition that initially included more than 10,000 teachers. "I know he's disappointed," Mrs. Barbara Marquart said. "But he looks at it as such a neat experience. He can't be anything but let down. But I know he's looking forward to being a part of the program in the months to come. It will still be an exciting year."

Army helicopters in a "missing man" formation paid tribute Friday and family members planted a memorial tree on a hilltop, as the nation remembered more than 2,450 Americans still unaccounted for in Southeast Asia.

Black flags of remembrance flew over state capitols in Missouri and Texas on the 4th annual National MIA-POW Recognition Day. Shows of "Rambo," the movie liberator of languishing prisoners, broke in on ceremonies in Washington, D.C.

Bomb explodes in new park restroom

By ANNETTE CARY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — A powerful homemade bomb exploded in a new Harmon Park restroom, early Friday morning, causing about $2,000 damage.

The explosion blew a stainless steel toilet into jagged pieces which tore through walls and the roof, said Public Safety Director Tim Qualls.

The bomb was placed in a toilet in the women's restroom. A second bomb in another toilet burned but did not explode, Qualls said.

Twin Falls City Police believe the first bomb exploded about 1:30 a.m., when they received calls about a loud noise in the Harmon Park area, they said.

Information about the construction of the bomb is being withheld until the investigation is completed, Qualls said.

Crime Stoppers is offering a reward for any information leading to an arrest. The amount of the reward has not yet been set, but it will be substantial, said Twin Falls detective Jim Klister.

The toilet, purchased to withstand most vandalism, cost $600, said city officials. Replacing damaged plumbing, replacing a roof panel and repairing walls should bring the repair costs to at least $2,000, said City Engineer Gary Young.

Because there is an 11 p.m. curfew in the park, few people are believed to have been in the area when the bomb exploded.

The city has tried locking restrooms after curfew to prevent vandalism in the past, but the practice was stopped because vandals did more damage by knocking the doors down, said city Parks and Recreation Director Chad Browning.

Although vandalism is a chronic problem in city parks, there is no reason to connect the bomb to any other acts, Qualls said.

The damaged restroom was built only one year ago with $36,000 in federal revenue sharing money, Browning said.

In late May, a fire was set in the Harmon Park restroom, he said. Vandals are also causing problems in Harmon Park and other city restrooms by knocking valves off and plugging toilets with beer cans and clothing, he said.

However, until the bomb exploded Friday, the problem was no worse here than at other cities in the state, he said.

Reagan to be released one week after surgery

By MICHAEL PUTZEL
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Reagan will be released from Bethesda Naval Hospital to return to the White House today, just one week after undergoing surgery to remove a cancerous tumor from his colon.

White House spokesman Larry Speakes said Reagan would leave the hospital after making his weekly nighttime radio address, which will mark the first time the president's voice has been heard live in public since he entered the hospital July 14.

Reagan's five-minute radio speech last week was recorded in advance as a precaution. The tape was broadcast Saturday as doctors worked to remove a two-foot section of the president's colon containing the large, malignant tumor they found during a thorough intestinal examination a day earlier.

"Great. I'll sleep in my own bed tomorrow night," Speakes quoted the 74-year-old president as saying after his wife, Nancy, gave him the news that doctors had approved his discharge.

Speakes announced to reporters at the White House that Reagan would make the eight-mile trip home from Bethesda, Md., by motorcade.

The medical team told Reagan "to plan on an abbreviated schedule for a few days, but other than that, he's good as new," the spokesman said.

Car explodes near consulate

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP) — A car packed with explosives blew up Friday night across the street from the U.S. Consulate in Santiago, killing one person in a passing auto and injuring two policemen, police reported. The explosion shortly after 9 p.m. caused extensive damage to several nearby buildings and broke most of the windows in the consulate building, which is beside a public park. Police closed off several blocks around the consulate and U.S. Marine guards inside the building were seen by reporters at the entrances and windows. Consulate officials could not be reached immediately for comment.

NEW election draws nearer

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The National Organization for Women opened its annual convention on Friday, distracted by an increasingly hardfought presidential election contest. "We need to put more emphasis into what we're doing," said the challenger, Eleanor Smeal, promising more visible public activity. Replied incumbent Judy Goldsmith, "There have been concrete outstanding gains for women" during her term, including selection of Geraldine Ferraro as last year's Democratic vice-presidential candidate. With the balloting a day away, Friday's opening session of the national convention dealt with a discussion of feminist issues, but the campaign intruded everywhere.

Israeli women blast apartheid

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — Israeli-delegates condemned apartheid as abhorrent and anti-Semitic Friday as the U.N. conference marking the end of the decade for Women debated resolutions equating Zionism with racism. A group of women staged an anti-Israeli demonstration at Nairobi University, waving placards that read, "Down With Zionism."

Missile problem underscored

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new intelligence estimate reportedly indicating that the Soviet Union's SS-19 missile is less accurate than had been believed does not diminish the "massive Soviet advantage" in intercontinental ballistic missile warheads, President Reagan's national security adviser said Friday. Robert C. McFarlane, briefing reporters on the round of arms talks that resumed in Geneva, was asked about a report in the New York Times quoting administration sources as saying that the new estimate indicates the SS-19 is too inaccurate to pose a threat to U.S. missile sites. "The point of the article is the extent it implies a dimension of the problem, is just misleading," McFarlane said.

U.S. offers reward for killers

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. government offered a reward of up to $100,000 Friday for information leading to the prosecution and punishment of anyone who killed six Americans in El Salvador last year. State Department spokesman Robert McFarlane, announcing the reward, declined to say whether the announcement was tied to a warning letter given the Nicaraguan government Thursday by U.S. Ambassador Harry Bergdoll.

That warning, Smalley said, was "not a pretext for direct U.S. military action, absolutely not." He noted that the United States has indications of preparations being made for Nicaraguan-supported terrorist attacks against U.S. personnel in Honduras. Smalley said U.S. officials had learned of threats against specific targets.

Walkers can see documents

BALTIMORE (AP) — A federal judge will permit John A. Walker Jr., his son Michael and their attorney to see the "classified" government materials while preparing for their espionage trial if they follow strict rules to prevent disclosure of U.S. secrets.

Prosecutors and defense lawyers agreed to the order, signed Thursday by U.S. District Judge Alexander Harwood II. Lawyers on both sides said the disclosure is legally entitled to review pertinent information, even if it is classified. Harwood's order sets procedures for safeguarding national security while the defense reviews the material.

Buyer says airline sale near

SPOKANE (AP) — A Sarisota, Fla., man negotiating to buy Cascade Airways says the sale is nearly complete, but it will take until next Monday or Tuesday to certify.

However, Mark Chestnut, president of the Spokane-based regional air carrier, said Friday he didn't think the deal for 67 percent of Cascade's stock would be consummated.

Raymond Bassner, president of Aero Space Leasing, said an agreement was to be drawn up in New York with Cascade's parent company, Vanguard Ventures of Glendale, N.Y.

Smysner won't rule out race bid

PARMA (AP) — With his pregnant wife 11 days overdue, state Sen. C.A. "Skip" Smyser, R-Parma, has more on his mind than politics. But contrary to some reports, he has not ruled out running for lieutenant governor next year.

Smysner said he has heard rumors that he decided not to run for the Republican nomination for the state's No. 4 job because C.L. "Butch" Otter has said he plans to run.

Smysner said that whether Otter runs will have no influence on his decision.

Stoms bring flood worries to desert SW

By The Associated Press

Flash flood warnings were posted Tuesday for the desert Southwest and the frontiers of southern California Friday as developing thundershowers raised the threat of heavy downpours.

Scattered thundershowers also extended from the Great Lakes across the central Plains to the central and southern Rockies, dumping as much as 8 to 10 inches of rain in parts of Nebraska, Northern New England and Iowa.

A flood warning was in effect for Lincoln Creek and the upper Big Blue River in Seaward County, Neb.

Afternoon temperatures soared well into the 80s across the Northeast. Alpena, Mich., reached 86 degrees, tying the previous record high for the date set in 1977. In the Northwest, temperatures reached into the 80s and lower 90s.

The low for the nation was 39 degrees at Yellowstone Park, Wyo.

Temperatures around the nation at 9 p.m. EDT ranged from 57 degrees at Palm Springs, Calif., to 36 at McConell Air Force Base in Wichita, Kan.

Saturday's forecast called for widely scattered showers and thundershowers across much of the Rockies and most of the East.

Most of the nation will have high temperatures in the 80s to low 90s, with readings of mid 70s to low 80s in the northern Plains across the Great Lakes to northern New England.

In the Northwest, temperatures will be in the 70s to near 100 from Washington state across parts of Idaho to interior California, with 60s and the common along the Pacific coast. Highs across the desert Southwest will be in the mid 90s to 105.

Morgan

Both Mrs. Morgan and Marquart were praised by public officials throughout the state, and State Superintendent of Public Instruction Jerry Evans said their standing was evidence of professionalism in the Idaho school system. "The school system is doing a job of something magic about being special, and these people are," Evans said. "That will undoubtedly cause some people to be more interested in teaching and education than they might otherwise be." Mrs. Morgan, who taught children in Ecuador for a year in the 1970s, had said she wanted to use the space shuttle as a classroom, answering questions about space collected from students and the public via radio, television and computer. She said the pupils have been unyielding in their pressure to go along if she got the chance to fly in the shuttle. "I see this as elevating the status of the profession, and Barbara epitomizes that profession," Evans said. "She's a very capable and very talented individual." Mrs. Morgan's selection left the students of her district and her colleagues there brimming with pride. "I think it will create an excitement in the field of education generally and here locally I know there's a lot of excitement among the kids and the teachers," Superintendent Everett Howard said.

The MIA issue remains "probably the most open wound we have yet to heal from Vietnam," said Peter Sharp, director of the Vietnam Veterans' Center in Oklahoma City. Outside Washington, Rep. Stephen J. Baker, who oversees a House task force on POWs and MIAs, said a crowd of 600 that resolving the fate of those unaccounted for is "a national obligation and moral responsibility."

Interrupted by shouts of "Ramble!" he cautioned, "We must be cautious in the northern Plains across the Great Lakes to northern New England." Saturday's forecast called for widely scattered showers and thundershowers across much of the Rockies and most of the East.

Generals saluted those missing during ceremonies at the Pentagon Friday, as 1,400 people gathered to watch a scene reminiscent of the Vietnam era: an Army helicopter flyover, this time with one chopper deliberately missing.

A similar flyover by screaming jets was planned Friday during ceremonies at Pearl Harbor in Hawaii.

"We are confident that the Vietnamese hold far more information about our missing men than they have provided," said Gen. John Vessey, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, at the Pentagon observance.

The National Park Service flew the POW-MIA flag — bearing the inscription, "You are not forgotten" — at the Washington's Vietnam Memorial. The flag also flew in Austin, Texas, where Gov. Mark White said in a proclamation that those Americans who lost their lives or were imprisoned in Vietnam "shall remain as advocates for all Americans faced with adversity." A 6-foot pear tree was a symbol of recollection in Georgia, as 46 family members of soldiers missing in Vietnam gathered at Dobbin's Air Force Base near Marietta on Thursday. "We're not burying somebody. We're starting a living tradition," base spokesman Maj. Roland Reed said, as the tree was planted at the top of a hill, with each family member turning a spade of dirt over its roots.

At dawn Friday, seven men dressed in combat fatigues began a vigil at the Vietnam-Viet War monument in Syracuse, N.Y., constructing a cage of wood and rope that they said would show passersby how the North Vietnamese Army sometimes "killed" war prisoners. They said confinement may be continuing.

"It has to be brought to the attention of the American public," said Vince Larkin, president of the Central New York chapter of the Vietnam Veterans of America. "And you reach the public right here out on the street."

Correction

Due to a typographical error in Stu Murrell's column in Thursday's Times-News a line was dropped from a paragraph discussing the kinds of non-game birds which are sometimes hunted illegally in southern Idaho.

The paragraph should have read:

"Parents should assume the responsibility to inform their children the only non-game birds are English sparrows, starlings and wild pigeons which can be legally taken. The youngsters should be able to identify these species before being allowed to hunt with their BB or pellet guns." The Times-News regrets the error.

Probe 'exonerates' admiral

WASHINGTON (AP) — An internal Pentagon investigation has "exonerated" Vice Adm. Joseph Metcalf III of any wrongdoing in attempting to bring back captured Soviet rifles from Grenada, Navy Secretary John F. Lehman said Friday.

The fact-finding report by the Pentagon's inspector general, which wasn't released, shows Metcalf never intended to bring back any weapons for present use, Lehman added. That decision was made by a member of Metcalf's staff who exercised "poor judgment," the secretary added.

As a result, no further disciplinary action will be taken against Metcalf beyond the letter of reprimand he has already received, Lehman said. The staff officer "will be issued an official letter of caution."

Postal Service swings cost ax

WASHINGTON (AP) — Faced with mounting deficits, the Postal Service has launched a broad cost-cutting program that includes chopping the salaries of top executives, reducing overtime for workers and even eliminating a planned holiday stamp.

Higher-than-expected costs produced a $366 million deficit between last Oct. 1 and July 1, despite a postal rate increase in February that raised the price of first-class stamps from 20 cents to 22 cents.

Postmaster General Paul N. Carlin launched the cost-cutting campaign in May hoping to reduce the deficit. He added the pay cuts in recent days, said a Postal Service official who agreed to discuss the moves on condition he not be identified.

20 years for 'mountain man'

VIRGINIA CITY, Mont. (AP) — "Mountain man" Dan Nichols was sentenced Friday to the maximum term of 20 years in prison for kidnaping a woman athlete and using a firearm during a felony.

State District Judge Frank Davis said Nichols, 39, had shown "no real indication of any remorse" for his part in the crimes and had displayed a "subdued and benign arrogance and defiance" throughout the case.

Nichols was sentenced to 10 years on the kidnaping charge, plus another 10 years for using a firearm in the commission of a felony.

President nominates Miller

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan on Friday chose Federal Trade Commission chairman James C. Miller III, a conservative economist who favors reducing the size of the federal government, as the administrator of a new budget director.

Miller, 42, said he was "tremendously honored" and would find the man he succeeds, David A. Stockman, "a hard act to follow." Stockman is resigning Aug. 1 to join a New York investment banking firm, Salomon Brothers.

White House spokesman Larry Speakes said Miller will move into his new duties "as quickly as possible." The nomination is subject to Senate confirmation.

Leaders in Senate rip Regan remarks

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Republican leaders hit at White House chief of staff Donald T. Regan on Friday for criticizing Congress while legislators struggle to revive stalled budget talks and agree on a compromise deficit-reduction plan.

In addition, Sen. Pete V. Domenici, R-N.M., raised the possibility that Congress may have to go without a budget this year and instead fight over individual pieces of legislation in order to achieve spending savings.

"We can't do it without Ronald Regan; we could probably do it without Don Regan," Senate Majority Leader Robert Dole, R-Kan., said on ABC's "Good Morning America."

Domenici said, "I think we need the president's help, but if we are going to get that help with speeches like Don Regan gave a couple of days ago then we better just get on with trying to do something ourselves."

In remarks to be broadcast on Cable News Network's "Newsmaker" Saturday, Domenici said, "Don Regan apparently thinks that he ought to get into this budget fight.

"If that's his effort... when he thumped on a table and talked about having sent the (administration's) budget up three or four months ago, then let's sure thank that budget and the efforts, in my opinion, are calculated to bring Congress further away from getting a budget."

Dole and Domenici were commenting on Regan's angry podium-thumping denunciation Thursday of Congress for failing to come to grips with cutting federal spending. The president's top aide had said the budget deadlock on Capitol Hill was "ridiculous."

"There's enough blame to reach around to everyone" for lack of progress on the budget, Dole said, adding:

After his television appearance, Dole said the Senate "probably" will make "a legitimate counter-offer" to the House next week in hopes of getting the budget talks back on track.

He added, "I don't think we can let passion overtake our responsibility."

China accord tied to notes

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration, in an effort to break a 15-month impasse with a nuclear cooperation accord with China, will rely on negotiations of its talks with Chinese leaders to meet requirements of U.S. nuclear non-proliferation policy, congressional sources said Friday.

The negotiations incorporate the administration's understanding of the Chinese policy against nuclear proliferation, said one informed congressional source, who insisted on anonymity.

He said the administration is telling Congress the Chinese have confirmed that the understanding is correct and that it therefore clears the way for final approval of a commercial nuclear cooperation agreement safeguarding American interests. The understanding will be part of a statement that will be attached to the main agreement that was initially approved last year.

Ortega rips U.S. policies

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — President Daniel Ortega said Friday that Nicaragua is not helping plan attacks on Americans in Honduras, as Washington claims, and the United States is terrorist because it supports anti-Sandinista rebels.

He spoke to hundreds of thousands of cheering supporters gathered in the capital's main plaza to mark the sixth anniversary of the Sandinista victory that toppled the conservative government of President Anastasio Somoza.

"Nicaragua does not support or provoke or encourage terrorism," he said, and challenged the United States to prove its allegation in the International Court of Justice. He accused the Reagan administration of practicing "state terrorism" through its aid to rebels fighting his left-wing government.

His remarks referred to several major attacks that the rebels, also known as Contras, have mounted over the past three years on Nicaraguan targets.

Many people came in buses and trucks from outlying provinces to hear Ortega speak in the plaza near Lake Managua. They chanted Sandinista slogans — "No pasaran!" (They shall not pass!) and "Aqui, alla, el Yanqui morira" (Here, there, the Yankee will die).

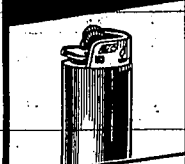

Eleven Soviet helicopters flew past the plaza, armed with six rockets each in pods of three.

Unlike previous years, when top officials from leftist or Third World countries came to Managua for the anniversary, only minor foreign officials attended Friday's ceremony.

South Africa police battle black rioters

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Police battled demonstrators in at least 16 black townships on Friday, the eve of funerals for eight victims of racial violence, including a militant black leader.

The two funeral services were expected to draw tens of thousands of mourners.

Police reported repeated clashes with rioters in Soweto, Johannesburg's vast black township, and said they used tear gas to scatter 2,000 rock-throwing students at a Soweto school.

More than 450 blacks have been slain in 10 months of violent demonstrations against the white-minority government and its racial-separation policies.

No fatalities were reported in the latest fighting, but police listed 27 incidents in 16 black townships late Thursday and early Friday involving mobs throwing stones and of gasoline bombings. Police used tear gas, rubber bullets and birdshot in some cases.

Police said they would keep in the background Saturday at the funeral in the sheep-farming village of Cradock for four black activists from the town found killed near their burned-out car June 27.

USSR puts forth offer to renew ties

JERUSALEM — The Soviet Union, which is seeking a role in the Middle East peace process, appears to have softened its conditions for restoring diplomatic relations with Israel.

Israel radio reported Friday that Moscow had signaled this week it would consider restoring relations and increasing Jewish emigration. It said the Soviets listed two conditions — an end to an anti-Soviet propaganda campaign in the West, and an agreement between Israel and Syria over the occupied Golan Heights.

BID will hit the street to push parking plan

By ANNETTE GARY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Downtown Business Improvement District officials will hit the streets Monday to clear up misconceptions about proposed validated parking and gather the opinions that will determine if the plan is adopted, changed or dropped.

"We are still trying to sell the plan on an overall basis," says Dave Cooper, of the BID board of directors. "But we may have to go lot by lot."

Backers of the plan maintain that a change in the parking system is vital. Business owners receive too many complaints from disgruntled customers who cannot find convenient parking or who receive parking tickets, they say.

The plan is meant to keep parking spaces on the three core blocks of Main Avenue free for shoppers who stop just long enough to pick up errands. It also is planned to keep downtown employees from snagging the most convenient spots in the five main parking lots on the Second Street area.

Changing the parking system will not necessarily mean an increase in business, but it should make customers happier, says a BID release that will be distributed Monday with a questionnaire.

Malls frequently advertise that their parking is free, the release says. Free parking downtown too — at least with a purchase — should make downtown more competitive with other businesses, it says.

The BID board has already heard from many of the merchants who hold the strongest opinions, pro and con, at the July monthly meeting and the recent annual meeting.

"What's frustrating is there has been some emotional response from businesses," says Cooper, of the BID board of directors. "But we haven't heard any new ideas or alternate plans."

Much of the objection to the plan comes from the pocketbook, says Earl Faulkner, chairman of the BID board. But he maintains that those opposing the plan have underestimated the number of shoppers already downtown and overestimated merchants' costs for validating.

In the private validated lot behind Faulkner's clothing business, The Paris Co., Faulkner picks up the largest bill for 25-cent validations — an average of $72 a month. Other stores listed on the BID handout include Dee Dee's Diner, which pays about $19 a month; Williams Shoes, which pays about $37; The English House, which pays $28; and Cooper, Norman and Jirovec, which pays $94.

Estimates by opponents of the plan that stores will pay as much as $2,000 a month for validated tickets at a rate five cents less than charged in the current lot are not realistic, Cooper and Faulkner maintain.

The number of transactions per 25-cent validation at the Paris averages about six to one, according to figures supplied by the BID.

Merchants who have estimated large monthly validation bills may not have taken into account those people who shop downtown after meeting with their attorney, banker or accountant, according to the BID information. Many customers also work downtown and do not need a validation, it says.

The information to be distributed also addresses concerns that BID officials may have overestimated revenues.

Figures for the latest plan show estimated annual revenue, including that from parking meters, at $141,138. Total expenses, including $31,380 annual payments on the parking lot debts each year are estimated at $120,020. That leaves $21,118, or a margin of error of 15 percent. The city would have to make up the additional time to pay off the debts.

BID officials are emphasizing that even if the plan is not adopted, parking downtown will never be without cost. The city now pays off the debt on the parking lots and salaries for maintenance and enforcement workers from meter payments and fines collected.

Even after debt on the lot is paid off, maintenance and enforcement costs will continue, BID officials say.

The basic concept of the validated parking proposal which BID officials will discuss with merchants Monday remains the same, despite some changes and clarifications since the plan was aired at the public meeting earlier this month.

Rates at parking meters in the three core blocks of downtown will be raised to 25 cents an hour, to keep spaces vacant for shoppers running quick errands. The price would be raised to 10 cents an hour elsewhere.

The BID would set up a gate system similar to that behind The Paris now. Shoppers would take a tag when they enter the lot. Merchants who choose to participate in the validation program would then stamp the tags while customers are in their stores.

Stores would receive monthly bills according to the number of 20-cent tags they stamped. Customers who do not get their tags stamped would have to pay for the parking themselves.

Employees could park in leased spaces or in two lots a block farther away from Main Avenue.

The final decision on the plan will be made by the City Council, after listening to the recommendation made by the BID board. If approved, the parking system will be ready in September, Faulkner says.

Punk!

A high-flying slam dancer (top) is thrown into the midst of an elbow-knocking jam session.

Area punks grab for a different way to dress, to dance, and to express

By FAT MARCANTONIO
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — What's that? Spiked hair at the Moose Hall, Black leathers and mud-stained 16-year-olds. Slam dancing to the tune of "TV Mutation," Can this be happening in Twin Falls? Indeed: Punk is here.

Punk is not wearing mowhawks and torn T-shirts to scare old ladies or be cool, says Brad Bowlin, one of Twin Falls' punk promoters and an articulate Homer of the culture.

"I think it's an open-mindedness to accept shaved heads or long strands of hair — tails as they are called — sprouting out from an otherwise short head of hair. Or to listen to music so full of a steady, loud beat that you can't tell where it leaves off and your heartbeat begins."

It's a stinging shock — like pictures of skulls in visceral orange — to call attention to punk musicians pointing the finger at the world's wrongs, such as violence and discrimination, says Bowlin, who also co-edits and publishes a local "punk magazine" called "No Answers."

The punk basics may look like advertisements for a horror film, but they are no different than magazines or newspapers using grisly photos to catch the eye of readers, Bowlin says.

Punk is an alternative. The purpose of "No Answers" is to provide an option to kids tired of movies or television, he adds.

The soul and surface of punk in Twin Falls was on display at a Moody dance sponsored by "No Answers."

One slip into the Moose Hall, where the dance was held, and you might have been in New York or L.A., says for the moonbeams serenely watching from one of the large rooms.

The first act was "State of Confusion," a band from Boise who sang of saving public lands, opposing the MX missiles and kids watching too much television.

"The children are watching TV again — just another misadventure — just another TV mutation." Singer: Pat Schmaljohn says the band has been playing mainstream music and make more money, but they remain with punk.

"It's a way of expressing ourselves," said Schmaljohn. Typical of punk music are songs about people problems, personal problems and parent problems, Bowlin says. Advocating sex or violence isn't the norm.

Bowlin answers that it's making fun of a society that is violent.

"It's totally a release of energy," Bowlin says. "No one is hurt, except for occasional bruises or a bloody nose. It has a courtesy all its own. If anyone falls, the dancers halt until he gets up."

The girls were standing nearby, considering diving into the pit. One attempted to talk the other into joining her.

"If you mess your hair up, so what," she booted a regular slammer with a Jerome leathersuit with a mowhawk, splashed with the help of egg whites.

"Why does he wear it like that? The boy brushes the shaved part and makes his head."

"Just like it!" Another teenager from Jerome is in full eye makeup, with hair cropped short and the color of sunshine. He says he usually wears the eye makeup, but the red lipstick was an added touch.

A young couple walked in and looked around. The boy took off and joined the slam dancing while his date found friends.

The girls will slam later, says another teenager. This was the "hard-core."

The costume for the dance was a mixture of Boy George gone sloppy and sanitized biker, Hawaiian print shirts, light shorts and preppy topsiders were out. Clothes were tight too big, held by belts and topped with dangling earrings, were in and not necessarily for the girls. Before he joined the slam pit, a young man received help from his date to adjust his earring.

Anyone over 30 who attended the dance that night probably felt the dizzying fall into the void of the generation gap. The upheaval of the 1960s seemed so far away.

Supple long hair was the sign of rebellion then. Instead of the sharp angles of punk. Torn T-shirts and oversized shirts have replaced the army jackets and flowers in hair.

Music was loud, but seemed more genteel, even though 60s bands such as "The Who" smashed guitars in stage and "The Doors" sang of murder.

The youth of the 1980s protested war and demanded peace. What was the goal of the punks? For Bowlin, it's calling attention to problems that need solving. Yet, the flower children and punks are common in one respect: They are demonstrations of youth always finding a way to make their own statements, good or bad.

Cheerful, student body president of his Twin Falls High School class and honor student, says he likes trying to fit in with everyone else. He decided it was stupid, so he and co-editor Kent McClarr had bleached the back of their hair.

"There was a tremendous opposition," Bowlin says. "It's easier to cop out and live five different lives. It's easier to agree with all and be undecided until we die."

Zoot suits, Bill Haley, meditation, the Beatles. Signs of youth looking for something else.

In the 1960s, you can add Punk to that list.

Vets express many words

Vigil held for 12 state MIAs

By DEAN S. MILLER
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — For the soldiers and civilians who never returned from Vietnam — dead or alive — and from whom nothing has been heard, memorials are mostly words and symbolic gestures, the intangible tokens of grief and frustration.

Vietnam veterans held a 24-hour vigil Friday in Twin Falls City Park for 12 Idahoan prisoners of war and soldiers missing in action and still in South Vietnam, dead or alive.

Looking to turn the public's attention to the plight of the 12 Idahoans and more than 2,000 Americans never accounted for after the war's end, a veterans' group erected a pine pole and barbed wire "tiger cage" like the bamboo cages used to hold prisoners in the jungles of North Vietnam, one of 12 flags, one for each Idahoan believed missing.

The light cage stood in stark contrast to the masonry and canyon sloping obelisk. A memorial to 113 Twin Falls-Vietnam War soldiers who found final resting places.

The 12 flags marked no granite tombstone, nor did they drape an ornate casket; they fluttered and flapped in a breeze as alive as the fates of the men they flew for.

For unreturned prisoners of war and missing soldiers, there is no grave for the family to weep on, no hero's casket to plough back into the earth before beginning a new life. These men live in memory and are buried in Department of Defense documents; their fates are unknown.

They are missing from all 50 states, 10 from tiny Rhode Island, three from Alaska, 162 from Texas, 250 from California, three from Puerto Rico, and one from the Virgin Islands. Twelve Idahoans are listed as missing by the Department of Defense: •Jon Sparks of Carey, Army; •Gerald Alley of Inkom, Air Force; •Jon Dodahl of Boise, Air Force; •Curtis Bohlscheld of Pocatello, Marine Corps; •Gregg Hollinger of Paul, Army; •Hal Hollingsworth of Grace, Navy; •William Hunt of Sandpoint, Army; •William Lemmons of Pocatello, Army; •Roric Mayer of Lewiston, Navy; •Jesse Phelps of Boise, Army; •John Powers of Mackay, Army; and •Larry Thornton of Idaho Falls, Air Force.

Fisher: 'This is important'

By TERRY RICH HARTLEY
Times-News correspondent

MIA/POW Day in Twin Falls City Park Friday, began with Idaho's Congressional Medal of Honor winner, Bernard Fisher, inkling his signature on a petition to Hanoi and swapping war tales with local Vietnam veterans.

"This is important. It's a good thing," Fisher said of the petition. "I think more should be done legitimately to get a full accounting of our men."

Fisher said he personally believes that some living POWs are likely to still be in Southeast Asia, but that, whether alive or dead, the families of missing Americans deserve to know for certain.

Fisher earned America's highest medal for valor when, in 1966, he landed his Skyraider aircraft on a short runway in a Shau Valley to pick up downed pilot, Major Jump Meyers. At that time, A Shau Valley was overrun by North Vietnamese troops. His aircraft was hit by hostile fire 19 times on takeoff.

Fisher said that the agreement with North Vietnam at the end of the war was that the Vietnamese would repatriate the prisoners and he would help rebuild their war-ravaged country.

"But, it's like the terrorists of today," he said. "The idea of holding prisoners has prevailed." Nevertheless, the war veteran adds that now Vietnam seems to be pushing ahead to gain the monies promised them in the original agreement. And, he thinks that the petition can help keep them moving in the right direction.

The mild-spoken man from Kuna could only stay in the park for an hour before leaving for Salt Lake City. Yet, when he left, other vets expressed good feelings about starting their special day out in the company of a genuine hero.

North Idaho is a new state of mind

TWIN FALLS — The chief executive of the imaginary 51st state of "North Idaho," vows that his state (of mind) will be represented at the National Governor's Convention to Boise this August.

North Idaho Gov. Diamond J. Western, 34, a retired geologist and part-time dishwasher, working on his teaching certificate, said in a recent press release that he had not been invited to the convention but, "I'm sure that's just an oversight on Governor Evans' part."

Western said Friday he was elected by a group of 10 North Idahoans who share his perception that the northern portion of the existing state of Idaho is really a 51st state, the "state of mind" of North Idaho.

The southern boundary of the state is the Salmon River, east to west, giving Seven Devils to North Idaho and Riggs to South Idaho, the name for the remainder of the state after the division.

"We're a completely different state. You guys have potatoes, we have wheat. You have deserts, we have mountains," Western said. The two states have different ways of life and different economies, he says.

In his cabinet are a lieutenant governor, an attorney general, a director of tourism, a press secretary and a superintendent of liquor dispensary.

Western said the grass-roots separatist movement has not yet considered terrorist acts to further its cause, but says they will attend the convention, though he did say they have not yet paid a registration fee.

National Governor's Association Administrator Rick Rodgers says the state of mind of North Idaho will not be recognized at the convention. "Membership in the NGA is restricted to the governors of the several states of the United States — and the five surrounding territories." Jean Terra, an aide to Idaho Gov. John Evans, said the new state would not be recognized in the statehouse. "There is only one governor of Idaho who was elected by the people of Idaho, and there is just one state of Idaho."

Congress bid afoul of FCC

By DEAN S. MILLER

TWIN FALLS — Idaho Falls radio personality Mel Richardson's candidacy for the 2nd Congressional District is snagged on a Federal Communications Commission rule that may make it impossible for him to run without going off the air.

In a telephone interview Friday, Richardson said FCC rules require broadcaster candidates to either sign off for good or offer equal time, free of charge, to their opponents.

There may be as many as five other Republicans seeking the nomination next spring.

Richardson, who is on the air hourly in advertising voice-overs and as a sportscaster, said he is looking for a way around the ruling.

He said that since his primary focus is on sports instead of news, his air time would not give him an unfair advantage over his opponents. Richardson said he also reads editorials for the station.

If there is a way around the rule, he is ready to run and will form a committee to look for funding sources and volunteer workers, Richardson said.

Richardson had announced last week that he would make a decision Friday whether or not to run, but said the FCC snag will delay that decision.

He said his earlier announcement that he would decide Friday generated a "rewarding" supportive response encouraging him to run.

While there is a possibility he could stay on as manager of the station without being on the air, he said the FCC rule "certainly handicaps my ability to do my job."

Mayer has been missing the longest, since October 17, 1965.

The local effort focuses on Gerald Alley, an Air Force officer whose platoon in Vietnam, leaving him the only crew member unaccounted for, said Rick Stone of Kimberly, the secretary of the local Vietnam veterans group.

The group planned to release 12 balloons at 7:30 Friday night and to read aloud the names of Idahoans as yet unaccounted for.

A petition urging the Hanoi government to return prisoners, remains of U.S. soldiers, and release information on those missing in action was circulated at the park Friday.

Veterans there said 1,400 names were on the list at the beginning of the day and they did not know how many names had been added by Friday afternoon.

According to the National League of Families of American Prisoners and Missing in Southeast Asia, 2,477 American servicemen and civilians are still missing and unaccounted for in Indochina.

The League says there is no question the Vietnamese have additional information on men still missing and that U.S. intelligence data suggests that the remains of 400 U.S. Servicemen have been recovered by the Hanoi government and are being withheld.

The League encourages members to write letters to the editor, to petition the U.N. Ambassador of the Socialist Republic of Vietnam (Hanoi) and to "adopt" a veteran.

Minidoka man loses boat motor, gas tank to thieves

It was the second theft of a motor from a boat in Minidoka County this year, sheriff's officers say, urging boat owners to be cautious as to where their boats are parked.

'Father Joe' lifts poor Buddhists' lives

By DENIS D. GRAY The Associated Press

BANGKOK, Thailand — He is known simply as "Father Joe" by the thousands who live in Bangkok's largest slum and seek him out in their darkest moments.

The Rev. Joseph H. Maier, a Roman Catholic priest from Longview, Wash., says weekly Mass for a small group of Catholics who labor in a squalid slum slaughterhouse. But almost all his energy is given to improving the worldly lives of the 65,000 dwellers of Klong Toey, more than 90 percent of whom are Buddhists.

The 30-year-old slum, one of hundreds in this city of 6 million, is peopled by peasants who find poverty in Thailand's countryside. The children, Maier said in an interview, discovered that their parents' virtues of honesty and hard work got them nowhere in a harsh urban environment.

Klong Toey, a marshy, fetid strip along Bangkok's river port, became a breeding ground for disease, anger, crime and wasted lives.

Assigned to Klong Toey more than 12 years ago, Maier's first step was to "brainwash the youngest with as much education as possible." About half the children at the time did not attend school, either through parental neglect or poverty.

Today, Father Joe's organization runs 11 kindergartens for about 1,800 children. They are known as "two-bait-a-day" schools because for that amount of money — the equivalent of 15 cents — a child receives a preschool education plus a substantial daily meal. But even this small fee can be waived.

"The golden rule is that the poorest receive preference," said Maier, whose projects are subsidized by the Catholic Church, "The Home" and by such Christian charities as West Germany's Christoffel Blindenmission. But he stressed that Moslems live in his schools and the abbot of a Buddhist monastery provides space for one of the kindergartens.

Every day the 65-year-old priest leaves his modest human development center to tour his slum projects — a medical clinic, public health center, home for orphaned and unwanted boys, a sports program that includes 62 soccer teams and a scheme to raise the income of women through the sewing of exquisite bedspreads and tablecloths for sale at Bangkok's markets.

Sometimes he wanders through the slum at night, observing and conversing. On one recent walk, he said, he had to disarm a drunk. He took the man's pistol, emptied it, flipped it away and ground the bullets into the mud with his feet — "scared as hell" while doing it.

Invariably, Maier stops at the slaughterhouse, where families spend their lives amid blood, dampness and the squeal of pigs. The place, he said, begets the toughest kids and the highest rates of pulmonary diseases.

"You can't live nice and then drop by the slum for a few hours a week," he added. "I couldn't pull it off. I dress like a slob, sleep under a mosquito net, don't have a radio or an air conditioner. It gets a little harder at 45, you get sick a bit more often, but that's the name of the game."

He said he knows the life stories of hundreds in Klong Toey and it is evident to a visitor walking along with him that virtually everyone there knows him.

Down by a public canal, he chats in Thai with Buppha Duanchana, a 63-year-old woman who had just been released from jail thanks to Maier's social workers. Mrs. Buppha, living largely off Father Joe's rice handouts, had refused to be moved from her ramshackle — squatter's — hut because the authorities wouldn't allow her to take along her seven pet dogs to a new site.

A young woman stops him and they talk. Like many, she has turned in desperation to prostitution to support herself and a family.

Father Joe is realistic about her plight. "I looked up and said, 'Father, forgive me,'" he later explained. "Then I told her never to charge under 600 baht."

At the Samakee Song Kroh Elementary School, another project, dozens of slum children in neat uniforms dart in front of him to extend their pressed-together palms toward their foreheads in the traditional Thai greeting. About 70 percent of Klong Toey's children, he said, do not live with their natural parents.

What's what

Americans taught Vietnamese farmers how to grow bigger onions. But nobody bought them. Buyers wanted little onions, as always. There are people who believe that all missionary philosophy, even that of the Peace Corps, is wrong -- in that it always assumes that bigger onions are better.

LONGEST HORNS

Q. What animal has the longest horns?
A. The sable of Africa. They grow five feet, arcing toward the rear.

In Panama, many generations of insects have been called "bichos," and American tourists usually learn this bit of Spanish while swatting the sons of same.

Q. Why are "cairn" terriers called that?
A. In Scotland, a "cairn" is a rock pile. Earliest of the little hunting-dogs were adept at living into rock piles after foxes and wildcats.

LIONS

The lions, into whose den Daniel was thrown, were probably loach beasts. There have been wild lions in Syria even in this century. Likewise, in Iran.

Look closely at the next child you see who stands less than five feet tall and weighs about 85 pounds. That was the typical size of earliest man.

City to settle dam problems

IDAHO FALLS (AP) — The Federal Energy Regulatory Commission has ordered the city of Idaho Falls to resolve complaints that its dam on the Snake River is causing winter flooding and ice jams. Residents of Bear Island Estates have been pressuring the city to correct the problems, but city officials have denied the dam is the cause of flooding. In a July 3 letter to the city, the FERC said it would reject designs for the dam located at the Jefferson-Bonneville County line unless the grievances are settled, said Arthur Martin, regional engineer, Fort Worth, Tex. He said the designs are record drawings showing the actual way the dam was built. "Until the complaint matter is settled, the plans are not approved."

Ranchers sue over loan lack

RIGBY (AP) — A $6.2 million lawsuit has been filed in 7th District Court by ranchers in Jefferson and Fremont counties seeking damages from First Interstate Bank. G. Emery Davis and his wife, Alice Davis, along with Michael Davis and Royce Davis maintain that refusal by First Interstate Bank to make loans to their account made it impossible for them to properly feed and care for their livestock, primarily sheep. The suit claims that lack of funding caused the plaintiffs to lose 300 ewes and 1,000 lambs from malnutrition, and caused a shortage of 50 lambs.

Utility seeks rate reduction

BOISE (AP) — Intermountain Gas Co. has asked state regulators to authorize a reduction in natural gas rates in response to declining oil prices in the Northwest. The reduction, if approved by the Public Utilities Commission, would be retroactive to June 29th for the utility's industrial and commercial customers but would not begin showing up on residential bills until Oct. 1. Spokesman Randy Schulz said the delay in adjusting residential rates is intended to give those customers the maximum benefit possible from the rate cut. For the average residential customer using gas for heating only, the savings will be about $15 a year. Those using gas for heating and water heaters will save about $22 a year, the utility said.

Gunman holds up bank branch

GARDEN CITY (AP) — A lone gunman took an undetermined amount of money from a First Security Bank branch in Garden City Friday morning, police said. Detective Scott Sprague said the white male in his late 20s or early 30s approached a teller in the bank about 10:40 a.m. and demanded cash while displaying a handgun. No one else in the bank was aware of the robbery until after the man fled, Sprague said. The gunman reportedly wore a light-colored short-sleeved plaid shirt, blue jeans, a blue-and-white baseball cap and sunglasses. He was last seen fleeing west on foot.

Boise candidate's faces trial

BOISE (AP) — Boise mayoral candidate Jim Sorrell will go on trial on obscene conduct charges about a month before this fall's election to fill the city's top job. Sorrell, 38, has pleaded innocent to allegations that he pulled down his pants and exposed himself on a city street in the early morning hours of June 27. Magistrate Patricia Flanagan set Oct. 2 for a trial on the charges. Sorrell, who is representing himself after abandoning a request for a public defender, said, "I do want this resolved before the November election." Sorrell, who describes himself as a professional volunteer, has acknowledged that he went for a walk that night but denied that he ever exposed himself.

Hemingway son held in jail

MISSOULA, Mont. (AP) — Dr. Gregory Hemingway, son of Nobel Prize-winning author Ernest Hemingway, remained in Missoula County jail Friday after he kicked out the glass in a restaurant door after he was released from service. Hemingway, 33, was sentenced to six months in jail after pleading guilty to misdemeanor criminal mischief. The incident occurred last weekend. Hemingway said he meant to kick the door, but didn't mean to break it. Gregory Hemingway is the son of the late author and his second wife, Pauline. In 1976, his biography of his Nobel Prize-winning father, called "Papa," received high praise. Hemingway has lived in Montana since the mid-1970s with much of that time spent practicing medicine in the small communities of Fort Benton and Jordan. He said he moved to Missoula about a year ago and has been working on several other books.

French Creek fire still uncontrolled

By The Associated Press

Fire crews got some welcome reinforcements Friday but continued to lose ground against roaring flames in western Idaho's French Creek drainage along the Salmon River, as gusty, erratic winds more than quadrupled the size of that blaze to 2,500 acres in less than 24 hours.

"It's hot and dry with light winds, so it doesn't look good for us," said Fayette National Forest spokesman Will Williams.

Some 340 firefighters were sent to the scene on Friday, bringing to 460 the number of personnel, backed up by air tankers making retardant drops, battling that three-day old blaze along the Salmon River. Meanwhile, crews appeared to finally be reining in two other fires along different stretches of the Salmon River system.

Some 550 firefighters were completing the fire line around a 1,000-acre blaze in the Salmon River Breaks area of the Nez Perce National Forest, and supervisors expected to officially contain that fire by late Friday. An itinerant named Jeffrey Clark Bowling, 23, faced arraignment Monday on charges of leaving an unattended campfire that ignited the blaze.

Mary Zabinski, spokeswoman for the Nez Perce forest, said three remote airstrips were closed Friday except for firefighting traffic because smoke had cut visibility in the mountain valleys. "Visibility was 'getting worse by the day,'" she said, and Williams added that "they've got all their smoke and probably some of ours, too."

Ms. Zabinski said the Moose Creek Fire airstrip in the Selway-Bitterroot Wilderness area were shut down Friday, as well as the Shearer airstrip northeast of the Gospel Hump Wilderness in the Elk City-Red River area.

On the French Creek fire, Williams said a popular landing spot for rafters on the Salmon River also was closed Friday, and the Forest Service was warning rafters to stay clear of the area until the blaze is controlled.

The French Creek Landing was cut off when the forest road from Burgdorf north toward the fire was closed beyond the Corduroy Junction fire camp, and another road upstream from there parallel to the river was closed at Manning Creek Bridge, Williams said.

Sleep-jerries, barging directly above the roads was dropping debris on the unpaved trails, making passage dangerous, he said.

Spraying nearing end

By The Associated Press

With the end of the massive aerial assault on grasshoppers finally in sight, crop dusters treated another 96,000 acres of infested southern Idaho range Friday, pushing to nearly 5.9 million acres the amount of land treated with pesticide so far.

Huge spray planes continued treating major tracts of land in Blaine, Mtnida, Lincoln and Cassia counties and began work on a new 61,000-acre block in Clark County.

Officials said spraying could begin this weekend on a 72,000-acre tract in Bannock and Power counties with work on the final 100,000-acre tract in Jefferson County scheduled to start next Tuesday. "The spray may be some other small areas to be mapped and sprayed," said Elmer Russell of the state Agriculture Department. "But this is pretty much the program."

Although it will be last next week before the final acre of the more than 6.5 million to be sprayed is treated, Gov. John Evans has already declared victory in the war against the pests.

The program is expected to cost more than $15 million in Idaho, and U.S. Agriculture Department spokesman Andy Adams said simply, "If we didn't feel like it was effective, we wouldn't do it."

Body of Boise man found in pond

BOISE (AP) — The body of a 35-year-old Boise man has been found recovered from a pond. Rescue workers spotted the body of Stephen Jensen floating in a dredge pond near the Boise River on Friday. Jensen was reported missing on Tuesday after he had been swimming with friends. Authorities said he is believed to have drowned.

It's Slaney-Budd redux

By ANDREW WARSHAW
The Associated Press

LONDON — Less than half the tickets for Saturday's much-publicized 3,000-meter showdown between America's Mary Decker Slaney and Britain's Zola Budd have been sold, officials said Friday.

While the two athletes relaxed privately on the eve of their first meeting since colliding at last year's Los Angeles Olympics, a spokesman for the organizers confirmed reports that only 8,000 of the 16,500 seats had been taken.

The race, which has been promoted as an Olympics rematch between the 26-year-old Slaney and the South African-born Budd, is the highlight of the second day in a two-day IAAF-Mobil grand prix meet at London's Crystal Palace stadium.

The first night of the event Friday was completely sold out.

"The British public is not used to having two days of top athletics back to back," explained Alan Pascoe, the former Olympic hurdler and one of the organizing team.

The Times of London claimed the Slaney-Budd clash originally was to have been held on Friday but was later moved to Saturday when the whole event was extended to cover two days.

Officials refused to confirm reports that the two athletes would each receive $35,000 for taking part.

Although ticket sales did not match the pre-race publicity, up to 100 million television viewers are expected to watch what organizers have described as "the personality race of the century."

They said five countries were televising the race live, including the United States (ABC, 2 p.m. MDT), with several others taking it by delayed broadcast.

The race can be seen on Channels 4 and 6 in the Magic Valley.

Last year's 3,000-meter Olympic final, Slaney and Budd collided in a dramatic tangle, wrecking their medal hopes.

Crystal Palace holds fond memories for Budd. Last June, she smashed the world junior 3,000-meter record and the following month set a world best for the 2,000 meters at the same venue.

Buhl's Mark Mohlenbrink awaits the throw while Jerome's Tracy Weeks slides safely into second base

Buhl won't go back to state

By BRAD BRELAND
Times-News writer

BURLEY — Idaho Falls and Pocatello remained undefeated, but the talk of the Southern Region American Legion "B" tournament is still the Wood River Wolverines.

Bob Shay's crew pulled off another upset by downing Burley 11-10 Friday. Earlier in the day, Pocatello breezed past Buhl 12-2 and Idaho Falls nipped the Wolverines 7-4. The Buhl-indentation is going to state for the first time in five years as Jerome eliminated Buhl 13-8 to set up a rematch with Wood River at 2 p.m. today. Pocatello will meet Idaho Falls at 11 a.m., with the winner moving to the championship and the loser facing the winner of the Jerome-Wood River contest.

The title game is scheduled for 8 p.m., while the third-place contest will be played at 5. All games are being played at the Burley High School field.

After Buhl took an early 2-0 lead, Pocatello pitcher Keith Whalen went to work tanning nine Indians in the six inning game.

Once again it was Paul Murphy with the big bat as he scored four runs and slapped a single and a double.

The winning runs came on three walks and singles to Brian Milward, Mark Corum and Dan Davis, who drove in the deciding run.

Mike Bennett spun a four hitter at the Wolverines and added a double in the seventh inning to help ice the game.

Idaho Falls held a 4-2 lead going into the seventh but broke the game open scoring three runs. Bennett doubled and was followed by a run scoring single by Dan Trube. After a walk and an out, Ryan Rose and Todd Halverson singled to put the Russells up 7-3.

The Braves looked like they would cruise to a win against Wood River after taking an 8-5 lead and then a 10-4 advantage.

But Wood River came back and tied the game 10-10 when Jason Roth led off the sixth inning with a homer.

The next batter, Jeff Schroeder, blasted a triple and came in on a wild pitch to cut the lead to one run.

Greg Roth then walked and came all the way around to score on a Burley error.

In the bottom of the seventh, Rob Dunn walked and came home to score the winning run on a single by James Nelson.

"I'm proud of them," said Shay about his team, who were seeded last going into the tournament.

"The first two games we didn't make an error and one game this year we made 18," added the coach about his teams sudden success.

Tracy Black keyed Jerome's victory over Buhl with a three-run homer in the bottom of the first.

Buhl battled back and added three runs in the second on a single by Mike Hartway and three walks by Jerome starter Alan Leavitt.

After David Massie put Buhl on top 5-4 in the top of the third, Jerome Coach Curt Bartholomew had seen enough and brought in Jeff Burnham to go the rest of the way.

Burnham struck out eight innings over the remaining five innings, but still had some trouble walking six batters.

Jerome came alive in the fourth and fifth inning knocking Massie out and slapping five hits for five runs against reliever Greg Owen.

In the fifth inning, Brad Somerset led off with a walk and Todd Amundson reached safely on a single. Jerome loaded the bases when Tracy Weeks bounced to the pitcher who made an error.

Rob Bartholomew came up and hit one to the shortstop who overthrew the first baseman allowing two runs to score.

Bartholomew was thrown out at home, but Burnham kept the rally alive by reaching first base on a dropped ball by the catcher, he came around to score on a pair of passed balls.

With two outs, Torrey Sheets drove a triple and came home on a single by John Toolson. Sheets led the Tigers going 3-for-4 while Toolson and Mark Boer had apair of hits.

Hartway had three hits leading the attack for Buhl.

In brief . . .

Muncie reinstated, traded

NEW YORK (AP) — A player who was suspended for a year after failing a drug test was reinstated Friday by National Football League officials. Muncie was traded from San Diego to Minnesota.

Muncie must complete a drug testing and treatment program in order to be reinstated. The league said Muncie was suspended for 12 months for failing a drug test. Chargers to Miami. Muncie's suspension was for 12 months. Muncie turned up in his uniform at a training camp. That nullified the trade. Muncie's suspension was for 12 months. Muncie's suspension was for 12 months.

Ball sent to Cincinnati

CINCINNATI (AP) — The Cincinnati Reds baseball team from the Texas League will be sent to Cincinnati. Reds manager Pete Rose said the team should help deal with a slump that's dropped his average to .257.

Injury may retire Selmon

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Tampa Bay Buccaneers defensive end Lee Roy Selmon said Friday he may retire because of a back injury that could force him to miss the rest of the National League season or possibly his career.

"Retirement is an option," Selmon said. "I'm looking at other alternatives." The original draft choice of the expansion Bucs in 1976 told a news conference at the team's training camp.

Selmon, 30, said he would announce a decision concerning his future Tuesday after spending the weekend "digesting" information gathered from tests conducted by doctors in Tampa, Oklahoma City and Los Angeles.

The six-time Pro Bowl selection said the injury originally was believed to be a muscular problem, but was later diagnosed as a herniated disc in his lower back.

Cruz ducks Coe rematch

LONDON (AP) — Joseph Cruz, Brazil's Olympic 800-meter champion, was banned Friday from his start two track meets in Europe after pulling out of a scheduled showdown with Britain's Sebastian Coe, the world record holder.

Cruz and Coe, who took gold and silver medals, respectively, at Los Angeles, were expected to hold their first head-to-head clash since the Olympics at the Peugeot Velodrome in London.

But the Brazilian withdrew from the meet, sending the program into confusion and disappointing a capacity crowd of 16,500 at Crystal Palace stadium for the first day of a two-day Grand Prix meet.

Afterwards, Andy Norman, promotions officer for British Athletics, conferred with Sven Hansen, organizer of the British Games in Oslo on Friday.

The meet was expected to have Cruz and Coe meet five days later, at which Cruz was to have competed in the Dream Mile.

Norman said Cruz had refused to start because he was annoyed that Coe had switched from the 1,500 meters to the 800.

Tway leads Quad Cities by 1

COAL VALLEY, Ill. (AP) — Rookie Bob Tway shot a 3-under-par 67 Friday to take a 1-stroke lead after the second round of the $300,000 Quad Cities Open tournament.

Tway, 26, of Edmond, Okla., birdied five holes and bogeyed twice to finish the round with a 7-under-par 67, giving him a two-round total of 131, 9 under par at the tournament's midpoint.

Tway, who joined the PGA tour full time this year and has won $38,000 so far, shared the lead after Thursday's opening round with Steve Jones, also 26. The two, who competed against each other in college, both had shot 64 under par.

Ill wind buffets O'Connor

SANDWICH, England (AP) — A savage, howling wind swept Christy O'Connor, 49, out of the lead, Jack Nicklaus out of the tournament and turned the 114th British Open into what some contend called "an open house."

"I'm not even thinking about winning. Not now. Too many holes left, too many players close," said Sandy Lyle, who had tied David Graham for the lead Friday in the second round.

Cubs: No daytime World Series game at Wrigley

By JOHN C. SHELTON
The Associated Press

CHICAGO — The Chicago Cubs announced Friday that if the team qualified, it would not play its World Series games at home "because of the light situation in Wrigley Field," the last major-league ballpark without lights.

General Manager Dallas Green said in a letter sent to season ticket-holders that "it is also possible" the team's home dates in any National League Championship Series would be moved elsewhere.

The Cubs currently are appealing to the Illinois Supreme Court the constitutionality of state and city laws that effectively ban night baseball at Wrigley Field.

Earlier this year, Baseball Commissioner Peter Ueberroth informed the ballclub and its owners, Tribune Co., that ABC-TV, which will televise some post-season games, had decided to exercise an option in its contract with league owners to have all such games played at night. The networks prefer night games because they draw a larger viewing audience and generate more advertising revenue.

Ueberroth did not specify lights as a solution to the problem in his letter.

He later urged the ballclub to seek a compromise with neighborhood groups that have opposed the installation of lights at the 70-year-old ballpark, citing noise and traffic problems.

Those groups, spearheaded by an organization called Citizens United for Baseball in the Sunshine, also have opposed the team's lawsuit challenging the city and state laws.

The Cubs won the NL East Division last year but lost the playoffs. Had they made it to the World Series, only three games would have been played at Wrigley — even though it was the National League's turn to have the home field advantage for four of the seven series games. The baseball commissioner's office cited the lack of lights at Wrigley in approving that plan.

"We have now reached the point where it is too late to have permanent lights at Wrigley Field this year due to long lead times necessary in ordering specialized equipment," Green said in his letter.

He added that "we don't believe that temporary lights will work for major league baseball — maybe for college football and baseball — but not for us."

"I'm not about to have amateur night with temporary lights and risk embarrassing the Cubs and City of Chicago in front of the entire nation."

Temporary lights — to be moved in for post-series play — have been suggested as a compromise solution to the lights controversy.

Green said he had asked his staff to study the possibility of a new stadium for the team and to review possible sites, both within the city and the surrounding suburbs — a possibility he has raised several times in recent weeks.

"It is difficult to assess the chances of staying in Wrigley Field or the City of Chicago at this time," he said.

"Perhaps Wrigley Field is living on borrowed time and a possibility he has raised several times in recent weeks.

"I have a sense no one wants us to leave Wrigley Field," Green said, "but quite honestly, actions speak louder than words and right now, no one seems to want to help us."

Briefly in Sports

Kressly edges Hamblin

JEROME — Caldwell's Dee Kressly ruined a birthday party for Twin Falls' Mike Hamblin Friday.

Kressly carded a seven-under par 65 to win the pro sweepstakes in Jerome pro-women's golf tournament, nipping Hamblin and his six under by a stroke. Del Ericson, Canyon Springs; Bill Downs, Jackpot, and Don Hunter, Pocatello, shared third at 70.

The Canyon Springs team of Ericson, Sally Bloxham, Mary Lou Barry, Sue Langdon and Dora Jones tied with Kressley's group of Georgia Hersh, Jamie Lowe, Betty Tolman and Shaaron Braun at 122 for team best ball honors.

Virginia Undhjem, Twin Falls, paced all scorers with an 82, followed by Shauna Robinson, Twin Falls, at 86 and JoAnne Sanderson, Twin Falls, at 87 in the 90-hole handicap gross division. Net wet to Buzzy Leeper, Idaho Falls, at 86 with Gloomah at 77 and Jackie Gasser, Twin Falls, 69.

In the upper division, Jeanne Abahl, Twin Falls, topped gross at 92, followed by Tolman at 93 and Barry at 88. In net, Jackie Shell, Twin Falls, won with a 69 while Rita Hiller, Idaho Falls, and Ethel Nelson and Kay Feldman, Jerome, all had 73s.

Stretch of Silver Creek closed

PICABO (AP) — A small stretch of Silver Creek, the renowned fly-fishing stream, has been closed to fishing because an estimated dozen trout suffering from low oxygen in the water have died.

A one-acre body of water often referred to as the Lower Slough has stagnated because of drifting logs, said the Nature Conservancy, which administers the 2,000-acre Silver Creek Preserve near Picabo.

Though was closed to fishing this summer after anglers reported speckling six dead fish, said Guy Boniviller, a Nature Conservancy field representative. He speculated twice that many might have died.

The problem is confined to the slough, which accounts for 1 percent of the Silver Creek Preserve water managed by the Nature Conservancy. The slough is fed by its own springs, Boniviller said.

"The last couple of years there hasn't been putting out the water. I don't know why," he said.

As a result, oxygen levels have been low, putting the trout under stress.

"The fish have their noses stuck right in the spring head...the only place where there is cool water," Boniviller said.

Jones leads Boston Five LPGA

DANVERS, Mass. (AP) — Rosie Jones shot her second consecutive 69 and led over two rounds of the $225,000 LPGA Boston Five Classic by one stroke over Maria Figueras-Dott, who equaled the course record of 69 Friday.

golf's oldest championship.

"It's an open look, isn't it?" Lyle asks as he looks at the standings of the leaders.

It was, indeed.

The dozen players within two strokes of the lead going into Saturday's third round were a mixed bag of under representatives from England, Ireland, Scotland, Wales, a stray from Zimbabwe, three Australians (one a transplant), a West German, a Spaniard (but not the defending champion) and one lone American.

The weather was the principal factor. It was windy in the afternoon, very, very windy.

And it was in the morning. The morning winds were accompanied by cold temperatures and driving rain.

"The guys who played this morning got the raw end of the deal," said Nathan, an Atlanta-born living in the United States. He, like Lyle, had a 1-over-par 71 in the afternoon and finished two links over the Royal St. George's Golf Links in 139, 1-over.

Nicklaus was among the unfortunate with an early starting time. He played in the worst of the weather—and didn't play well enough.

NL: Dodgers cool red-hot Cardinals

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Ken Landreaux knocked in three runs to support the five-hit pitching of Bob Welch as the Los Angeles Dodgers downed the St. Louis Cardinals 5-2 Friday night.

The victory kept the Dodgers, who were three games behind in the division, a half-game ahead of San Diego in the National League West, while St. Louis remained 1 1/2 games ahead of the New York Mets in the N.L. East.

Welch, winning his fourth game in five decisions, hurled his second complete game of the season, both against St. Louis. Welch walked one and struck out a season-high nine.

Danny Cox, 11-5, the victim of a four-run third inning, was the loser. Jack Clark hit his 18th home run of the season in the second to give the Cardinals a 1-0 lead, but the Dodgers erupted in the third to take the lead for good.

Landreaux's two-out double scored Dave Anderson and Mariano Duncan to put the Dodgers in the lead, and Greg Maddux and Steve Garvey singled to score Landreaux. Mike Marshall, playing his second game since coming back from an emergency appendectomy, doubled to score Brock.

Clark's RBI single gave the Cardinals a run in the fourth but he was sacrificed to second by Dan Biardello.

Atlanta 1 New York 0

NEW YORK (AP) — Zane Smith and Bruce Sutter combined for a four-out inning to help the Atlanta Braves to a 1-0 victory over the New York Mets Friday night, snapping the Mets' four-game winning streak.

In the first game, Derrick Jensen singled home Jason Rammel with two outs in the bottom of the seventh inning to lift the Royals past the Sage. In the nightcap, Rexburg struck for six runs in the seventh inning to avenge a 12-6 deficit and gain the lead.

Craig Ashby had the game-winning hit in the second game, a run-scoring double.

In the first game, Minico had rallied for three runs in the sixth inning to take an 8-6 lead on the strength of Marty Carter's RBI single. But Rexburg tied the contest in the bottom of the frame.

In the nightcap, the Sage rallied for eight runs in the sixth inning and sent 12 batters to the plate in the process.
