Nations call for Pretoria sanctions

By The Associated Press

UNITED NATIONS — The Security Council on Friday adopted a resolution calling for worldwide voluntary sanctions to force South Africa to dismantle its system of race separation. The United States and Britain abstained, and the vote was 12-0.

Earlier, the United States and Britain teamed up to veto a proposed amendment by the council's six non-aligned members that would have threatened South Africa with mandatory sanctions if it failed to eradicate its system of apartheid.

France, which co-sponsored the adopted resolution with Denmark, abstained on the amendment put forward by Burkina Faso, Egypt, India, Madagascar, Peru and Trinidad and Tobago.

Even without the threat of mandatory sanctions, the resolution is the strongest anti-apartheid measure to be taken by the 15-nation council since it proclaimed a mandatory arms embargo against South Africa in 1977.

French Ambassador Claude de Kemourlari, speaking after the vote, called the resolution the "gravest warning" to South Africa and added: "Let us hope this warning will be heeded."

Kurt Von Schröding, South Africa's ambassador, told the Security Council Thursday that the internal situation in his country is not a matter for council discussion, and nothing it may say or do will deter his white-minority government from "what we believe is in the best interests of all the peoples of South Africa."

Apartheid is the system under which South Africa's 5 million whites retain power and deny the vote and citizenship to 22 million blacks.

Despite its abstention on the Security Council resolution, the United States Friday stepped up its rhetorical attempt to influence the Pretoria government into ending its week-old state of emergency.

White House spokesman Larry Speakes, who on Monday blamed violence on the government's policy of apartheid while avoiding criticism of the emergency declaration, announced Friday, "We want the state of emergency removed."

"We call on the government of South Africa to act with the greatest restraint at this tense time," the spokesman said, reading a statement two hours after President Reagan chaired his first National Security Council meeting since undergoing cancer surgery.

Although Speakes, as is customary, refused to say whether South Africa was discussed at the secret meeting in the president's living quarters, he said the statement was consistent with Reagan's views.

Saying the United States continues to oppose economic and political sanctions against South Africa, the spokesman said the administration nonetheless regards it as "essential that the government in Pretoria respect the fundamental rights of all South Africans."

"The world is watching how that government and the South African police conduct themselves," Speakes said.

"The real cause of violence in South Africa"

Gooding Mayor Gene Heller, in front of the old state tuberculosis hospital, which may soon become a privately-owned, maximum-security prison

Iowa company may save Gooding prison plan

By ANNETTE KARY Times-News writer

GOODING — Jan Blickenstaff, a state Department of Commerce administrator, said Friday he has been assured by Buckingham Security that an Iowa firm has put together a financing package for a proposed private prison in Gooding.

With that information, he is "90-percent certain" that an extension will be awarded for a $720,000 community block grant project for the city of Gooding to improve water and sewer facilities for the proposed prison, he said.

"He is replying, however, that R.G. Dickinson and Co., an Iowa investment banking firm, provide him with letters stating the firm's commitment and indicating how the project will be financed. The letter should be similar to the one that same firm sent the state when Gooding applied for the block grant, Blickenstaff said.

When the grant was approved, it was with the understanding that industrial revenue bonds were to be used to finance the project, Blickenstaff said. However, officials later discovered that in Idaho, unlike Iowa, the bonds cannot be used to finance prisons, he said.

The state Department of Commerce has asked Buckingham to provide proof that new financing had been arranged by the end of this month.

Philip Boesel, president of R.G. Dickinson, confirmed Friday that his firm "is putting together financing" for the project. The firm has continued working on the project since the original proposal to use industrial revenue bonds proved unworkable, company officials said.

About $14 million will be needed to turn the old state tuberculosis hospital at Gooding into a prison to house as many as 650 protective custody prisoners from Western states, says Joe Fenton, one of the two brothers who own Buckingham Security Ltd. of Pennsylvania.

"We think it (arranging financing) is possible," said Larry Cheezes, vice president and director of finance for Dickinson. "The potential need for the prison is overwhelming."

Fenton said the deal is not final yet, but that "a great deal of progress has been made."

Buckingham is no longer looking at a lease-back agreement with the state, Fenton said. The state was working with the company on such a plan, but Buckingham has decided that less complicated plans would best meet the company's needs, Fenton said.

He declined to discuss details, saying he did not want to jeopardize the deal until papers are signed.

Gooding Mayor Gene Heller, who met Thursday with Fenton and Blickenstaff, said Dickinson is "committed to making every effort for the $14 million. It's an involved process."

After meeting with Fenton and other Gooding Chamber of Commerce officials Thursday, Chamber President Kim Vaughan said, "The deal is met as far as we're concerned."

Fenton was in Idaho this past week, meeting with Gooding city officials, state officials and Morrison-Knudsen, the firm which is expected to be general contractor for the project.

Revenue forecast plunges

$10 million shortfall seen in state taxes

By The Associated Press

BOISE — Clinging stagnation in the national economy and persistent problems in key Idaho industries, state government economists have revamped their projections for tax receipts during the current year.

Their new forecast sees at least a $10 million gap between revenue and spending authorizations.

Based on current economic expectations, analysts for the Division of Financial Management have projected total revenues for the current budget year that began this month at $576.4 million. The estimate includes more than $5.7 million in one-time receipts from a special budget reserve fund built up in the past.

That compared to the Legislature's revenue estimate of $585.7 million and the 1986 spending plan it approved of $576.7 million.

Idaho Gov. John Evans objected to the legislative budget decisions, particularly its refusal to approve some kind of revenue-raising measure, he permitted the spending package to become law without his signature.

The present budget year, which began in July, also exceeded that the gap between revenues and spending commitments would widen by another $1 million because personal income refunds totaling that amount and obligated under the budget for the year that ended in June were deferred into the present budget year.

The action along with the delay in payment of some other state bills was taken to avoid a state budget deficit on June 30.

The analysts projected an increase of only 7.5 percent in sales tax receipts for the new year compared to the $576.7 million. The estimate for nearly 95 percent growth. Estimates for personal and corporate income tax receipts differed only minimally, although the division figures continued to run below those adopted by lawmakers.

Splicing of AIDS gene may lead eventually to vaccine for disease

By DANIEL Q. HANEV The Associated Press

BOSTON — A key gene from the AIDS virus has been inserted into bacteria to produce a protein that may serve as a highly accurate diagnostic test and perhaps eventually as a vaccine for the deadly disease, researchers say.

The gene contains the instructions for the protein that forms the outer shell, or envelope, of the AIDS virus. With gene-splicing techniques, harmless bacteria are programmed to produce this protein in large quantities.

Other researchers have used similar methods to churn out small chunks of a variety of AIDS virus proteins, but the newest attempt produced a nearly complete copy of the envelope protein.

"This one expressed the largest envelope protein in one piece, so it not only can be used as a diagnostic reagent (test substance), but there is also a potential of using it as a vaccine," said Dr. Flossie Wong-Staal of the National Cancer Institute, one of the researchers.

Much more study will be necessary before this or some similar substance could be used as a vaccine against AIDS, or acquired immune deficiency syndrome.

It will take at least five years to produce such a vaccine "if we're lucky," said Dr. Robert Crowl, who directed the work at the Hoffmann-La Roche pharmaceutical labs. A report was printed in the July issue of Cell, a journal published at Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Vaccines are often weakened versions of dangerous germs. When the recipient's blood encounters these germs, it produces antibodies to fight them. If the recipient later contracts the full-strength germ, his body will be fortified and ready to knock it out.

A strategy in the production of an AIDS vaccine is to use the envelope protein as a substitute for the whole virus. Theoretically, at least, a healthy person who received an injection of the protein would produce a variety of antibodies against it, and some of these would also attack a whole AIDS virus.

"We don't know what part of the protein is important to generate neutralizing antibodies, ones that would actually inactivate the virus," Crowl said. "That's one of the things we're interested in determining."

Whether such a vaccine is even possible has been debated. A potential difficulty is the speed with which the virus changes its genetic structure as it evolves. Of the various AIDS viruses compared so far, scientists have found about a 10 percent variation in their makeup.

However, these differences often seem to occur in the gene that produces the envelope protein.

New York's water yields plutonium

By WILLIAM MURPHY The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Low levels of plutonium were found in the city's drinking water after an anonymous threat was made to put the radioactive substance into reservoirs if charges were not dropped against subway gunner Bernhard Goetz, the mayor said Friday.

The plutonium posed no health hazard, and city tap water was safe to drink, said Mayor Edward I. Koch. Officials joining him at a news conference said they did not know how the plutonium entered the water.

Koch said a threat to poison reservoirs with large amounts of plutonium was received by mail on April 1 by his office, by the judge handling the Goetz case and by Manhattan District Attorney Robert M. Morgenthau.

Officials first detected plutonium April 17, after having conducted tests

Ministers cautious of 'cult' overtures

By DEANS MILLER Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Like the dose of anti-communism administered by Idaho Legislators this spring, local religious leaders are being offered samples of "Unification Church" theology in a variety of forms.

Three-day seminars, one-day workshops, video tapes, books, and personal visits from Unification Church members or "apostles" are among the means of contact between ministers and members of the church.

And while some report little contact, little concern, Pastor Larry Jones of the First United Brethren Church says the "Moonies" are trying to lead members of local churches and into the Unification Church.

"It's a cult; they're trying to infiltrate into the churches," he said. "Techniques are the same as communist techniques," he said Thursday.

Jones says local Unification Church efforts are "spearheaded" by Paul Carlson and Paul Victor, both of Twin Falls.

Carlson has been active in the Unification Church for a year since last fall. Victor most recently appeared when he invited Idaho legislators to Unification Church-sponsored seminars on communism this spring. Beginning in April, 25 Idaho legislators attended "All-Idaho Peace Day" three-day seminars in Salt Lake City, and Deans Miller, sponsored by Cause, an arm of the Unification Church.

Victor said Friday night he is not a member of the Unification Church and is involved only with "Cause."

Carlson could not be reached for comment.

What courses they are trying to incorporate is, Jones said. At a Unification Church conference in

 "is apartheid," the spokesman said, strengthening his language from several days ago when he said the government's racial policies were "largely responsible" for the outbreak.
 Lasting peace will take hold in the townships only when apartheid is dismantled, Speakes added.
 Addressing the Pretoria government's imposition of a state of emergency, under which hundreds of black and anti-government leaders have been arrested, Speakes said, "We are deeply concerned whenever civil liberties are suspended anywhere in the world. This is certainly the case in South Africa, where violence and repression will not solve the country's problems."

Asked why, if the United States is concerned about suspension of civil liberties it waited nearly a week to announce its opposition to the state of emergency, Speakes said the new position was prompted by the "continuing violence and bloodshed."
 He reiterated U.S. desires for talks between the South African government and black leaders and restated U.S. opposition to sanctions that the administration contends would punish all South Africans, not just those who maintain white supremacy.
 He said the United States would continue its policy of "constructive engagement," which seeks to use public and private diplomacy to persuade the South African government to ease its policies.

"If there is no voice of reason talking with South Africa, it could lead to a result that no one wants," Speakes argued.
 Meanwhile, police on Friday arrested 229 people in violence in the Cape Town area and said they had detained 115 others without charges in separate incidents under emergency powers granted six days ago.
 The riots occurred as police said "law-abiding citizens" were "cooperating very well" with security forces in black townships.
 The detentions last Thursday and Friday brought to 910 the number of people held under powers granted under the state of emergency declaration, which stirred opposition from anti-apartheid leaders and many foreign nations.

Church

 Twin Falls last winter (Jones could not remember the date) two Korean-looking church members delivered separate messages — one of Unification theology and the other on the threat of communism. "They worked both together: first a lot on communism and then a lot on Godism — you get both barrels," Jones said. "Godism" is the Unification Church's God-based response to the perceived threat of communism.
 Since then, he said, church members have attended services at his church, gotten acquainted with First United Brethren members, and gone to their homes with literature and videotapes on the Unification Church.
 "I've told members to watch out; they work especially hard on youth," Jones' experience was not exceptional among the ministers contacted. Of 15 contacted by the Times-News in the last month, only two said they have not received literature, phone calls, or seminar invitations from Unification Church representatives.
 Twin Falls LDS Sixth Ward Bishop Vern Barnes and Twin Falls Jehovah's Witness elder Dan Campbell said they had not been contacted or sent material by the Unification Church.
 Twin Falls Third Ward LDS Bishop Cal Denison said Friday he received an invitation in the mail to attend a Unification Church conference in Park City, Utah last March; but he has not been directly contacted since then, nor did he know if other LDS leaders have received invitations or visits.
 Seventh-day Adventist Pastor Lee Larson said Friday he has received videotapes and literature on Unification theology but does not consider the "Moonies" a problem.
 "They don't give me any trouble; it's not like they're high pressure," he said of Carlson, Carlson's mother Serenity and a third member whom Larson has met. Larson said he is skeptical of Cause and the Rev. Sun Myung Moon's background, but "He has a right and they have a right to what they want to believe."
 North Side Episcopal parishes Pastor Rev. Roy Ziemann said he has refused proffered tapes and books. "I think they're a cult and I don't see any sense in sitting down and discussing anything with them."
 He said young members of his church have been approached by Unification Church members at Boise State University and the University of Idaho in Moscow.

 Rev. E.J. Bernthal of Immanuel Lutheran Church in Twin Falls said he has received videotapes and copies of the Unification bible, "Divine Principle."
 He said he has not read the books and gave the videotapes to a preacher friend, who recorded other shows over them. Bernthal has not been invited to seminars or had direct contact with Unification Church members.
 Rev. Greg Lindsay of the First United Methodist Church in Twin Falls said Friday he and co-pastor Rev. Tom Tucker attended a three-day Unification Church seminar on theology last fall. He was invited to the conference by the Seattle office of the Unification Church.
 Lindsay says the seminar focused entirely on theology and the workshop leaders steered clear of political questions.
 He says he is not aware of Unification Church members attending services at the Methodist church, but would not be surprised because the Unification Church builds no church buildings; they don't have their own church; they go and become pseudo members of other churches," he said.
 Twin Falls Grace Baptist Church Rev. Myron Glantz says he has received invitations, "urging me to go to this place or that place for an all-expense-paid trip; it's really attractive."

He said his denomination is countering the Unification Church's efforts with a letter containing a theological statement about the Moonies. "It's definitely heretical because they feel Jesus Christ is a culture hero (Rev. Sun Myung Moon) has come along to (be) the new savior."
 Fr. Perry Dodds of St. Edwards Catholic Church in Twin Falls said he thinks the box of tapes and books sent him is worthless since they are very Catholic priest in Idaho received the tapes and books.
 Dodds said his first contact with the Unification Church was when he was working at Boise State University and was asked to talk about Catholicism at a Moonie meeting and LDS leader Episcopal priest and LDS leader also spoke.
 "I think they use ministers and priests from mainline churches as straight men... we contribute an aura of respectability."
 "I do see it as a cult, but then there's a fine line between cult and church."
 Stephen Thompson of the Twin Falls Bible Baptist Church said Unification Church members have visited his services, sent him the tapes and invited him to their seminars. He said he has not gone because "I would just as soon not be identified with their group."

Revenues

 With the national economy trending higher as rising imports hamper growth in manufacturing and commodity producing sectors, the analysts said the critical Idaho industries of timber, mining and agriculture continued to struggle.
 The decline in unemployment to 6.1 percent in June was clouded by the fact that the hiring came in lower-paying seasonal and service-industry jobs, reducing the outlook for growth in both sales and personal income tax receipts.
 Agriculture remained a key problem area, the economists said, as drought has started adding to the losses producers have suffered from invading grasshoppers. Estimated wheat yields have been significantly lower than market prices remain depressed due to surpluses, excessive milk production has led to another drop in the dairy price support and potato harvest projections are up meaning downward pressure on market prices for that commodity.

 These tough conditions fall on farmers in weakened financial shape, increasing the likelihood of further farm liquidations this winter," they said.
 Agriculture analysts have already seen the drought's impact on spring crops like peas, barley and wheat, and the onslaught of drought-induced crop diseases has started well.
 "Under current dry conditions, we could anticipate both yield and quality losses... in pea and wheat crops."

said University of Idaho crop scientist Kenneth Kephart.
 In southern Idaho, the absence of a wet winter and spring left reservoirs lower than needed for field irrigation, especially under the current extremely dry conditions.
 "As a consequence, those reservoirs feeding irrigation systems are now low and rationing of water is already occurring," Kephart said, adding that even if there was rain now, it would do little good for the mature crops and could create problems with quality by mixing immature kernels with mature ones.
 "We're beyond the point where moisture is going to help the crops which are currently maturing," he said.

Plutonium

 every four hours, said Environmental Protection Commissioner Joseph McGough.
 A sample of 50 containers taken from four separate parts of the waste system was tested by the federal Energy Department, and showed a plutonium level of 21 femtocuries, Koch said.
 The usual background level would be 1 to 5 femtocuries, and federal limits range from 10 to 5,000 femtocuries of plutonium in drinking water, he said. A single femtocurie is a tiny amount: a decimal point followed by 14 zeros and a 1.

 The level of 21 femtocuries was the highest detected in city water in the decade the Energy Department has been conducting the tests, said Herbert Volchok, director of the agency's Environmental Measurements Laboratory.
 Volchok said the specific isotope of plutonium ruled out fallout from nuclear testing. He and the other scientists said they could not pinpoint the likely source, although it might be found in highly specialized laboratories.

 Since April 17, four more tests were conducted. Two showed nothing higher than the usual background level of plutonium, and results were pending from two tests, said Volchok.
 He and other officials refused to say exactly where the contamination was found, and Koch refused to answer most questions about the anonymous letter. He declined to say whether the writer threatened more than once to poison the water system.

Today's weather

Hot weekend; shower break possible

Twin Falls, Burley, Rupert, Jerome and Gooding:
 Today and Sunday, slight chance of a late afternoon or evening thunderstorm, otherwise fair. Highs both days low 90s to near 100 degrees. Lows tonight mid-50s.
 Camas Prairie, Halley, Lower Wood River and Vale:
 Today and Sunday, isolated late afternoon and evening thunderstorms, otherwise fair. Highs both days 85 to 90. Lows tonight upper 50s to upper 60s.
 Northern Utah and Nevada:
 Utah: Scattered afternoon and nighttime thundershowers statewide today and Sunday. Gusty winds near the showers. Lows in the 50s to mid-60s. Highs mostly 90s.
 Nevada: Mostly sunny today, with scattered thundershowers. High today mid-80s to upper 90s. Lows tonight 50s to low 60s. Highs Sunday mid-60s to mid-90s.
 Synopsis:
 The National Weather Service says high pressure brought mostly sunny and hot weather to Idaho Friday, and little change is expected over the weekend.
 There will be a chance of late day thundershowers over nearly all of the state the next couple of days, however, as a little subtropical moisture moves up from California and through the Great Basin.
 Mid-afternoon temperatures were typical of summer in Idaho. The mountains and panhandle areas were reporting 80s, with the remainder of the state in the 90s. Highest temperature in the state Friday was 102 degrees in Weiser, while the low of 31 degrees was recorded in Stanley.

 Skies Friday were mostly clear in the north but had become partly cloudy in the south due to the invading subtropical moisture. No thundershowers had yet been reported. But lightning strike charts and satellite pictures showed some thundershower activity developing along the southern Idaho border.
 The pollen count in Twin Falls was 37 particles per cubic meter of air.
 The agricultural outlook for Southern Idaho shows conditions for field work will be good through the next five days... lows in the lower 50s to the low 60s.

Panel to aid jobless, farmers

BOISE (AP) — Formation of a panel to help laid-off mill workers and the expansion of an effort to assist farmers have been announced by the governor's office.

A task force has been formed to help solve problems associated with reductions by Potlatch Corp., which is winding down operations at its Lewiston sawmill and at a plywood plant near Pierce. The cuts are expected to end about 1,250 jobs in the mills and in the woods.

Gov. John Evans also said the farm hotline established this spring to help troubled farmers find assistance will be expanded to include a Twin Falls office.

State assistance plans for another troubled segment of the Idaho economy, farming, include recruiting volunteers. People are being asked to donate their time to staff the new Twin Falls hotline and one already established in Boise. Both can be reached toll-free by dialing 1-800-257-FARM.

Schools fear effect of layoffs

OROFINO (AP) — All the figures are not in yet, but local and state officials are painting a bleak picture for the future of Clearwater County schools in the wake of pending Potlatch Corp. layoffs.

"We won't be affected this year by the closure because our budget is always set one year ahead," Thomas Williams, superintendent of Joint School District 171, said. "But next year will be a whole different story, and things are bad enough as it is."

School District 171 is comprised of schools at Orofino, Weippe, Pierce, Peck and other portions of the Clearwater Valley.

The district already has been considering several program cuts due to the failure of an $90,000 override levy election June 25.

Police: Suspect from Idaho

BROOKINGS, Ore. (AP) — A man killed in a shoot-out with a state trooper was a 23-year-old ex-convict from Idaho armed with two stolen .357-caliber Magnum revolvers, state police said Friday.

Investigators were "99 percent" sure the man who pulled a gun from under the seat of his car Thursday and shot the trooper in a gun battle in the parking lot of an oceanic resort condominium complex was Marvin Lance Krommenhoek of Boise, said state police Sgt. Robert Hurita.

Fingerprints were expected to confirm the identification, he added.

Krommenhoek had gotten out of prison in Idaho a month ago after serving a sentence for burglary and was armed with two .357-caliber Magnum revolvers stolen from a Boise sporting goods store on Sunday, Hurita said.

Board seeks suit dismissal

BOISE (AP) — The Idaho Land Board is seeking dismissal of a lawsuit filed over its controversial decision to swap some of the state's Priest Lake property for private lands.

The dismissal was requested in documents filed in 1st District Court by Attorney General Jim Jones, a Land Board member. Jones has called the suit "vexatious litigation" that doesn't help Idaho people and raises the cost of conducting the state's legal business.

Acting on behalf of the board, he requested dismissal of a suit that challenges the decision to exchange some of the state's lake-area property for Diamond Lands Corp. holdings near the lake.

The company said the trade involving a total of about 15,000 acres was needed to enhance a proposed resort development.

Jones contends the Priest Lake Coalition used an "inappropriate" legal procedure to obtain judicial review of the Republican-controlled board's 3-2, partyline vote.

Trail proposal hits Congress

LEWISTON (AP) — A proposal to designate the Nez Perce National Historic Trail in northern Idaho has been advanced to Congress.

Congressional approval would add the route to the National Trails System. The trail begins near White Bird Hill in northern Idaho and extends 170 miles, terminating in Montana's Bear Paw Mountains about 40 miles south of the Canadian border.

The proposed designation was forwarded along with study reports and an environmental assessment.

The trail was used by Nez Perce Chief Joseph and his band when they were pursued by the U.S. Army, the Forest Service said.

Chief's job status uncertain

HOMEDALE (AP) — Police Chief Allen Bidwell apparently still has his job, even though the mayor told him he was fired.

"Legally, he is not fired," Homedale City Council President Herbert Fritzel said after a discussion with the city attorney on Thursday.

Fritzel said Mayor Paul Fink overstepped his authority a day earlier by firing Bidwell without council approval.

The mayor said his desired changes in patrol shifts weren't carried out by Bidwell, and that's why he wanted the chief out of the job he's held for seven years.

Fritzel said the City Council will discuss Bidwell's employment next week. Bidwell said he probably won't return to work until he knows what action the council will take.

Fire battles go on; restrictions imposed

By The Associated Press

New restrictions on use of federal forests and range look effect in tinder-dry southern Idaho Friday as thousands of firefighters strung out through the central mountains held their ground against six wildfires that have already destroyed more than 50,000 acres.

Weather aided more than 1,000 firefighters battling three separate fires near Long Tom Mountain in east-central Idaho's Salmon National Forest as winds that had been gusting up to 30 miles an hour died down.

"We just didn't have the burning conditions we had," spokesman Gordon Reid said.

Another 1,000 firefighters expected to finally gain full control late Friday of a 5,500-acre man-caused fire in the Salmon River Breaks of west-central Idaho's Nez Perce National Forest while crews numbering more than 1,000 used airborne hot-torches to ignite backfires in their drive to encircle a 13,400-acre blaze 20 miles west in the French Creek drainage of the Payette National Forest.

Lines also held against the 11,000-acre Savage Creek fire about 25 miles to south as the flames continued moving slowly up rocky, barren terrain where they were expected to eventually run out of fuel.

"Things are still looking pretty good," spokesman David Olson said.

At 1 p.m. Friday a 12-hour daily ban on use of chainsaws and other equipment on federal lands south of the Salmon River took effect because of the extremely high fire danger. Vehicles were also restricted to designated roads and trails during the same afternoon and evening period each day.

Similar restrictions have been in place north of the Salmon River for the last two weeks, and campfires and smoking has been banned outside developed recreational sites statewide since early this month, one of the worst on record for fire damage.

The six major fires still burning in the state are only the latest batch to scar Idaho's timber and rangelands. Since persistent dry-lightning storms began plaguing the state a month ago, more than 300,000 acres has been blackened by scores of fires, and costs of fighting the blazes has run well above $8 million.

With that kind of pricetag, said Arnold Hartigan of the Interagency Fire Center in Boise, the government "will go after anybody who starts a fire."

In the Salmon National Forest, fire crews finally began checking the Butte, Fountain and Goat Creek fires with the help of a temperature inversion that stilled gusting winds that had fanned the blazes over a total of more than 21,000 acres in a matter of days.

The 10,000-acre Butte fire had been burning toward some summer homes and cabins near the mouth of Owl Creek, but crews quickly encircled the buildings with cleared fire lines to save them, according to Reid.

Officials: Spray damage minimal

By The Associated Press

Crop dusters moved within days of finishing their work in Idaho's eight-week aerial battle against grasshoppers Friday as officials said there will probably be minimal damage to wildlife and birds from the pesticides.

Spray planes treated over 20,000 more acres of infested range in Clark and Jefferson counties, effectively finishing a 60,000-acre block in Clark and leaving only about 35,000 acres that still must be treated in Jefferson.

With cooperation from the weather, spokesman Roger Pollard said the program should be completed by Sunday. Since spraying began on June 5 under a multimillion-dollar federal commitment, more than 6.3 million acres of range and farm land has been sprayed in Idaho.

But while a panel of experts meeting in Boise said the insecticides used against the grasshoppers should have minimal effect on animals and birds, they said there could be some damage to aquatic life if the chemicals contaminate water.

Malathion, used in most of the spray campaign, is toxic but breaks down in mammals and birds and doesn't have a lasting effect on them, Elmer Russell of the Idaho Agriculture Department said Thursday at a panel discussion sponsored by the Audubon Society.

"The effect of malathion on the food chain is minimal," Russell said.

However, malathion and Sevin, the other insecticide sprayed on grasshoppers in Idaho, can kill fish and the food they eat, said James Nee, a U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service ecologist.

"If malathion and Sevin get into the water, they are bad," Nee said. He added that most of the spraying in Idaho was away from bodies of water. The Fish and Wildlife Service gave low priority to monitoring effects of the insecticides, which have been shown to have low toxicity, Nee said.

Reagan, O'Neill keys to budget hopes

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress effort to combat budget deficits came down Friday to the dim hope that President Reagan and House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. will soften their opposition to increasing taxes and tampering with Social Security.

Both controversial moves are included in a three-year, $33 billion package that Senate negotiators have proposed to try to shake loose the budget deadlock on Capitol Hill.

"I assume that if the speaker and the president are each waiting for the other to blink... we have no package. If there was a way to get them to blink... at the same time, we have a chance," said Sen. Pete V. Domenici, R-N.M., the Senate Budget Committee chairman.

$27 million for Contras given nod

WASHINGTON (AP) — Negotiators for the House and Senate agreed Friday to provide $27 million in non-lethal aid to the Contra rebels fighting the leftist government of Nicaragua, resuming the flow of assistance that was cut off a year ago.

The legislation, expected to win final approval in both the House and Senate next week, would prohibit either the Central Intelligence Agency or the Defense Department from distributing the funds.

Even so, final passage would mark the first time since covert military assistance was exhausted last summer that Congress has yielded to Reagan administration requests for immediate aid to the forces fighting Nicaragua's Sandinista government.

previously taken off the table in congressional budget talks — Social Security and taxes.

Meanwhile, Senate Majority Leader Robert Dole, R-Kan., kept the pressure on O'Neill, saying the Senate was "waiting for the leaders on the House side to indicate a willingness to negotiate."

The Senate plan, which would reduce next year's projected $230 billion budget deficit by $65 billion, would:

- Make inflation adjustments in Social Security and other benefit programs every two years, instead of annually. For example, cost-of-living adjustments would be made in even-numbered years but skipped in odd-numbered years.

So far there has not even been a twitch from either Reagan or O'Neill, D-Mass.

Entering the Capitol on Friday, O'Neill scoffed at the Senate package which included items that were

Mom backs warnings

WASHINGTON (AP) — Saying "your child should not have to endure the pain and suffering I watched my son bravely face," the mother of a 19-year-old boy who died from mouth cancer urged Congress Friday to require warning labels on smokeless tobacco.

Betty Ann Marsee told a House subcommittee that her son, Sean, from Ada, Okla., died last year. She said he began using snuff at age 12, and operations left him disfigured and in pain, but failed to remove the cancer that appeared in his senior year of high school. She said he had rebuffed her requests to stop using snuff, and had argued that smokeless tobacco carried no warning label and was advertised on television by She urged the House Energy and Commerce subcommittee on health to approve legislation requiring warning labels on snuff and chewing tobacco and to ban their advertising on radio and television.

"Sean would not have used snuff had there been a warning label," she said.

Near the end of his life, Sean tried to warn other youngsters of the danger, Mrs. Marsee said.

U.S. slaps Soviet reports

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration charged the Soviet Union on Friday with staging a propaganda effort regarding the arms talks in Geneva, and with failing to produce concrete proposals at the superpower negotiations.

White House spokesman Larry Speakes made the charges in response to a published report that Yuli Kvitlinsky, who heads the Soviet delegation in the space-weapons segment at the Geneva, appeared to have drawn a distinction between pure scientific research into space-based defense weapons and work leading to the development or various components.

Speakes said the United States is "not aware" of any such change in the Soviet negotiating position concerning President Reagan's proposal for research into a futuristic missile defense, known formally as the Strategic Defense Initiative and popularly as "Star Wars."

"The spokesman said the Soviets have consistently said that all research should be banned."

Governor set to face panel

JUNEAU, Alaska (AP) — Gov. Bill Sheffield prepared Friday for an appearance before a Senate panel deciding whether he should be impeached, but a veteran lawmaker predicted failure for any Senate motion to oust the governor.

Impeachment hearings before the Senate Rules Committee continued for a fifth day Friday, but a revolt was brewing within the 20-member Senate over the contention that the grand jury that sparked the proceedings had overstepped its bounds.

Sheffield is accused of manipulating lease specifications to steer a $9.1 million contract to a friend and fund-raiser, and then lying about it to a grand jury. The lease has since been voided.

A grand jury probing the lease negotiations returned no indictments, but recommended July 2 that the Legislature consider removing Sheffield from office.

Leroy brings sights to bear on Legislature.

Says cities, counties deserve more control

By ANNETTE CARY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The time is right for Idaho cities and counties to ask the 1988 Legislature for more local control, Lt. Gov. David Leroy said Thursday at a Greater Twin Falls Chamber of Commerce seminar to develop community leaders.

"In the past, state government has not always treated local government as well as it could," he said. In 1980, the Advisory Committee on Intergovernmental Relations found that no other state in the nation afforded local government less control than Idaho does. The study was based on such items as the functions local governments performed, their taxing and borrowing authority and their discretionary authority, he said.

Yet, citizens across the nation seem to have more faith in local government than in state and federal government, he said.

The same advisory committee found in a 1984 survey that 35 percent of those polled thought that local government provided the best value for the tax dollar spent. Only 27 percent thought the state provided the best value and only 24 percent named the federal government, he said.

The importance of local government is also demonstrated by its comparative size. There are 9.3 million local government workers in the United States, more than the number of state and federal workers combined, Leroy said.

Local control, however, seems to be hampered by some entrenched myths, he said. One is that "local officials are not as capable of responding as well as state and federal government," he said. Another is that greater control at the local level would lead to chaos because of conflicts between

Chenoweth to run Leroy's bid for governor

By DEANS MILLER
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Veteran Idaho campaigner Helen Chenoweth announced Friday she will manage Lt. Gov. David Leroy's as-yet-unofficial campaign for governor of Idaho.

Breathing free enterprise fire like Leroy's, Chenoweth immediately took Democratic Gov. John Evans to task for not boosting Idaho's economy. She said the voter's choice in the election 16 months away will be "back to business, or back to sleep."

"It's an important thing to be able to maintain a quality of life, but part of that is being able to bring some paycheck and for the breadwinner to be able to face their family with dignity," she said in a telephone interview with the Times-News Friday.

Chenoweth said she has been working for Leroy for three weeks but had not come to a final agreement with him until Friday.

"Historically, Idaho has been the last to feel any depression in national economic sands, and among the first to recover, but under the Andrus, Evans Democratic administrations, we have seen that trend reversed and it's primarily because we're not using our natural resources to provide jobs for Idahoans and their families," she said.

"Our Idaho farmer and those families surrounding agriculture, and timber and mining are very good environmentalists, especially our Idaho farmer, because he makes a living at being able to sustain a year-in, year-out yield on his farmland."

She said she decided to work for Leroy because she thinks Idaho needs a Republican governor. Reliance on the free enterprise system to solve Idaho's problems will be a major theme in the campaign, she said, but emphasized that the ideas put forward in the Game is over for Curtis

Court forces him to make restitutions

By DOUG WRIGHT
Times-News writer

HAILEY — The game is over for Curtis Johnson and apparently, he lost.

Johnson, the man who sold board space for "The Game of Sun Valley," and never issued the game, was sentenced Friday in 6th District Court on one count of grand theft by embezzlement.

Under a withheld judgment ruling by Judge Douglas Kramer, Johnson was sentenced to 18 months probation and was ordered to pay full restitution of $3,186.91 to the victims, a $500 fine, and court and public defender's fees, Blaine County Prosecutor Sandra Shaw said.

Because of the withheld judgment ruling, if Johnson does not comply with the conditions of the sentencing, the judgment can and will be legally opposed at the time of his non-compliance, said Shaw.

Although he was originally arrested on eight counts of grand theft, Johnson pleaded guilty Friday to only one count because of a plea bargain; an arrangement between Shaw and the public defender's office, she said.

To pay off his debts to the victims who bought advertising space on the board game, Johnson is expected to make four payments of approximately $800 to the prosecutor's office. The first one is due in three or four months.

Johnson was arrested and convicted of selling advertising space on a game board similar to that of "Monopoly" to Blaine County businesses in January and February. The ads cost the businesses between $350 and $450 each in cash or services.

In his contacts with the businesses, he told them that the game would be issued in March 1985, or he would refund their money.

He also promised that some of the profits would go to charities, including the Vietnam Veterans Association, of which he said he was the president of the Twin Falls chapter. The VVA, however, denied his involvement in the organization and said that they don't even have a Twin Falls chapter.

When the game was not issued in March and they did not receive a refund, the Blaine County businesses decided to file a criminal complaint against him.

The businesses listed in the criminal complaint include: White Cloud Properties, Inc.; Peterson's Jewelry Store; Wood River Steam Cleaners; Ketchum Wine Market; Lynndee's Bakery; KSKI Radio; Chapter One Book Store; and Rent-A-Dent.

After reviewing the complaint, Judge Kramer issued a warrant for Johnson's arrest in May, and he was arrested July 9 at his Twin Falls residence, 1123 Imperial St., by the Twin Falls Police Department.

After being transported to the Blaine County Jail, Johnson was held in lieu of $10,000 bond until his arraignment and sentencing on Friday.

In a printed letter which he sent before his arrest to each of the businesses listed in the criminal complaint, Johnson said he would make good on his debt and blamed bad publicity for his inability to issue the game.

Boise police cited in woman's lawsuit

BOISE — A Twin Falls woman is seeking $62,300 from the city of Boise in connection with a January auto accident in which her vehicle collided with a Boise Police pickup.

Carol Allred claims it was the officer's fault and has filed a $62,300 lawsuit against the city and the officer. The accident occurred on Jan. 8, when Allred's sports car collided with a Boise Police pickup, driven by Sgt. Richard Pew, at the intersection of 15th Street and Jefferson Street, which was slushy at the time.

Allred, 41, said the officer who investigated the accident, Sgt. Don Newell, told her, "that it is difficult to cite a police officer," according to the lawsuit filed in Fourth District Court in Boise. According to Allred, Newell said that to her as he wrote her a ticket for auto signal violation.

A police review board found that Pew was not at fault, said Larry Armstrong, the department's special investigator.

Allred contends she had the right of way, with a green light, and that a witness saw Pew run a red light and strike the right side of her car. The impact caused Allred's car to bounce over a curb and into a store's parking lot.

Filer launches Fun Festival

Event promotes business, service and industry opportunities

By KAREN MAIN
Times-News correspondent

FILER — The fifth annual Filer Fun Festival, organized by the Filer Chamber of Commerce, will be held today from 7 a.m. until midnight with the theme "Opportunities in a Small Town-Business-Industry-Service."

The festival "helps promote the hometown spirit back in Filer," said chamber of commerce member Bob Fort, who helped coordinate the celebration. "It's getting bigger and better each year."

The theme of the festival is to remind people that in Filer "there're opportunities for business, service and industry," Fort said. "Just because we're a small town doesn't mean that we're not alive."

But the main reason for the event is to celebrate family and community, Fort said. "The entire day is built toward family — that's our major thrust."

The festival begins with a pancake breakfast from 7 to 10:30 a.m. served by the youth group of Peace Lutheran Church at the corner of Stevens Street and 6th Street.

The parade will start at 11 a.m. from the elementary school, travel north on Stevens Street, east on Main Street, south on Yakima Avenue to Highway 30, then turn back on Yakima Avenue, going north to end at Main Street.

This year's parade marshal will be longtime Filer resident Merle Allison who was formerly the manager of Bean Growers, a member of the Idaho State Parks Board, a school board member and Filer Fire Chief for 35 years.

In addition to the floats and various vehicles, Police Chief Don Barkley, will be appearing in the parade costumed as McGruff, the shaggy dog in a trench coat who represents the Twin Falls Crime Stoppers.

"It's a super parade," Fort said. "There are more entries than last year."

After the parade, activities will begin at the Filer City Park. Starting at noon there will be a fish fry, food and game concessions, commercial displays and a chain saw sculptor.

At 1 p.m. there will be free swimming in the park pool, and three

Wisemans sell Gooding Livestock

By DOUG WRIGHT
Times-News writer

GOODING — The Gooding Livestock Commission Co., which has been sponsoring livestock auctions for southern Idaho ranchers since the 1940s, has been sold by the Wiseman family to Tommy Callen of Wendell.

"Although the official legal sale date is not until Aug. 8, the deal is signed and sealed, and Callen will take over operations on Aug. 1," said Mel Wiseman, one of the former owners.

Once he begins managing the operation, Callen plans to change the company's name to Magic Valley Livestock Sales Inc.

"Although neither party would discuss the specific details of the transaction, Realtor Harry Le Moine, who handled the deal, said the sale was a "normal" transaction, involving a large cash downpayment and a mortgage back." "The Wiseman family, which has owned the company for the last 11 years, decided to sell the auction service this summer because of the economic situation faced by our family," said Wiseman. He would not elaborate on this statement, however. When Callen heard that the livestock service was for sale, he said he jumped at the chance.

"When the opportunity was brought to my attention that Mel and his family were interested in getting out, my wife and I decided to come in here, build a business and make a living out of it," Callen said.

But Callen could not say what, if any, specific changes he planned to make in the company yet. "The whole thing is going to stay intact until we get here and see what changes we might need to make to improve the operation," he said.

"But in the future, we'll just continue to operate it and improve it as best we can," he added, "and we'll still work 100 percent for the consumer."

"We'll definitely try to get more cattle to our auction, because we feel we have more competitive commission rates and are very knowledgeable in the marketing of livestock."

The Magic Valley Livestock Sales Inc., like its predecessor, will serve southern Idaho and northern Nevada ranchers and hold livestock auctions every Friday, he said.

The auction will also continue to be a "stocker-feeder" auction, run on a strict commission basis.

Callen, who was born and raised in the Magic Valley, is well-suited for his new occupation, with over 35 years of experience in the livestock business.

"For the last 11 years I've been manager of Janiss Farms in Wendell, but prior to that I spent 25 years working in and around livestock auctions, so I'm quite familiar with the business," he said.

At Janiss Farms he spent his time buying feeder cattle and marketing fat cattle for the company.

Although the Wiseman family decided to sell, Wiseman had nothing but praise for the Gooding community and business. "It was a good business, a good community and a good area to be in. We've really enjoyed it," he said.

Wiseman is undecided about his plans for the future right now. "We just haven't crossed that bridge yet," he said.

urban and rural issues, he said.

Local officials also need to work to define the roles of government.

"We're long past the point when Legislatures and courts in Boise need to make decisions on every matter," he said.

Correcting inequities in the property tax system, which has hampered growth, should be another priority of cities and counties in the upcoming legislative session, he said.

Cities and counties are limited to collecting only 5 percent more property tax each year unless the local office takes a jump that local officials say is impossible legally.

The cap works against business in fast growing areas, Leroy said.

Cities and counties should also not forget the gains they have made in local control since ranked dead last in the 1960 county commission study, Leroy said.

They need to work to keep the state revenue sharing money coming, he said. Two years ago the Legislature dedicated one-fourth cent of sales tax over every dollar spent to be sent to all the 19 counties for any use the local governments choose.

The new federalism that Pres. Reagan has called for in the last five or six years may not have "born much seed, but it's an important sign for local government," Leroy said.

"It invites the question, 'Is this (program) something in Boise that could be eliminated or moved back to the people' for them to administer more efficiently?" he said.

campaign will all be Leroy's.

Born in Topeka, Kan., the 47-year-old Chenoweth attended Whitworth College in Spokane for 3 1/2 years and then went to the University of Minnesota, where she earned her master's degree in law office management. She is divorced, has two grown children and lives in Boise.

Chenoweth was named executive director of the Idaho Republican Party in 1975 and was named then-congressman Steve Symms' district director in 1977. In 1978, she managed Symms' re-election campaign, in which he defeated Roy Truby by a 60-percent to 40-percent margin.

After the Symms campaign, she and Vern Ravenscroft, a Republican gubernatorial nominee, formed Consulting Associates, a natural resources consulting firm that assists small hydroelectric project developers sort out the state bureaucracy.

Chenoweth says she has acted as a consultant on congressional campaigns in Idaho and Washington and in a few Idaho legislative campaigns for friends.

"We're excited to have someone with Helen's abilities and experience joining the campaign in such a critically important role," Leroy said in a Friday press release.

Chenoweth takes over the campaign from Rep. Pam Bengson, R-Boise, who has chaired the Leroy exploratory committee since January. Chenoweth said Friday she expects to name a finance director for the campaign "very soon."

Stallings considers son's adjustment

IDAHO FALLS (AP) — Idaho's freshman congressman says he's reasonably sure he will seek re-election next year, but that could change if his son's adjustment to life in the Washington area doesn't improve.

"My main concern is my family, and my top priority is their well-being," said Rep. Richard Stallings, D-Idaho.

Stallings said he enjoys his job, but his 9-year-old son, Danny, has had trouble adjusting to life in the Washington area.

"This is not Idaho," Stallings said. "I almost pulled him out of school and put him back in Idaho, but he needs a father, too. I'll just have to see what kind of shape he is in this fall."

Stallings will be in for "70 percent" sure he will run for re-election next year, but he will not make a firm decision until fall.

Danny is in the fourth grade at a public school in Fairfax County, Va. The school system is excellent, but it is larger and less personal than Idaho schools, Stallings said.

"He has had to give up lifelong friends, and kids in the fourth and fifth grades can be harsh," Stallings said. "He's the largest kid in the class, and others give him a hard time. He's kind of a gentle giant."

Stallings said his son also has found himself part of a minority group after growing up in a world of white people.

"His teacher is black, and he is going to school with a lot of blacks, Hispanics and children of diplomats. It's really like a little United Nations."

"But he does have some friends, and I hope he will be able to appreciate this situation," Stallings added.

He and his wife, Renae, have another son, Rick, who is serving a mission with the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, and a daughter, Stillman, who graduated from eastern Idaho's Madison High School this year. She recently joined the family in the Washington area.

Stallings, who taught at Ricks College in Rexburg before his election, said he is proceeding as if he will run for another term.

Campaign coordinators have been lined up in about two-thirds of the counties in the 2nd Congressional District, and nearly $35,000 in campaign contributions have been raised. The contributions have allowed Stallings to erase an $18,000 deficit from his 1984 race against Republican incumbent George Hansen.

Stallings said he hasn't chosen a campaign manager. Randy Furniss of his Boise office is serving as an interim coordinator of campaign activities.

President Marvin Finestien.

"It is difficult to say if any of these business decisions have been inappropriate," Robertson said. "I have my suspicions. The money owed to us was owed to us by the previous Redi-Spuds operator. ... Mr. Finestien's company assumed the debts of Redi-Spuds when they took over the plant. We want to be sure the new owners were not prejudiced to certain creditors to the extent assets were transferred or disposed of contrary to the rights of Redi-Spuds creditors."

A hearing in the bankruptcy court proceeding is scheduled for next month.

Court protects Redi-Spuds from creditors' bills

GLENN'S FERRY (AP) — More than 140 southern Idaho businessmen have been left holding hundreds of thousands of dollars in unpaid bills in the wake of action by Redi-Spuds of America to protect itself from creditors under federal bankruptcy laws.

According to a report in the Glenn's Ferry Pilot, Redi-Spuds owes nearly $400,000 to five businesses alone and its unpaid bills from scores of others will apparently run into hundreds of thousands of dollars more.

Redi-Spuds, which became a wholly-owned subsidiary of Marvin Properties in March 1984, shut down operations at its Glenn's Ferry plant this spring, a few days before it filed for reorganization in Oakland, Calif., under Chapter 11 of the federal bankruptcy code. Redi-Spuds processed potatoes for the fresh frozen potato market, primarily restaurants.

The bankruptcy court paper show the location of the Redi-Spuds headquarters as San Lorenzo, Calif., where Cui and Ready Spuds is located by Marvin Properties, is owned.

In addition to debts still owed the Idaho businesses, Redi-Spuds owes over $1 million in loans and interest to the Bank of California and used its now-closed Glenn's Ferry plant as collateral, according to bankruptcy court files.

But the newspaper reported that equipment from the Glenn's Ferry plant has already been shipped to the San Lorenzo facility. It said the court has ordered all revenues from the Redi-Spuds operation to be turned over to the Bank of California.

Attorney Tom Robertson of Twin Falls, who represents the Western Idaho Potato Processors in the bankruptcy court proceedings, questioned the way the Redi-Spuds situation has been handled by company

Speaker Tom Stivers announced Friday that Rep. Donna Scott, R-Twin Falls, will replace former representative Lawrence Knigge on the Joint Finance Appropriations Committee.

"It is my firm conviction that Rep. Scott is well-suited to fill the vacancy. She has a clearly defined record on the dedication and willingness to address these needs," Stivers said.

Scott, who is embarking on the second half of her second term in the Idaho House, will give up her seats on the Health and Welfare and Education committees, she said Friday.

The move to JFAC, will mark a shift from social policy to financial policy. She said that the state's recent budget crunches will make the committee assignment a tough one. Scott will keep her seat on the Business Committee.

Stivers said it was logical to replace a legislative member from Twin Falls County with another from the same county. "I have every confidence that she will prove to be an asset to the joint committee and to the state of Idaho as she applies herself to the task of representation," Stivers said.

Stivers also announced Friday that Rep. Doug Jones, R-Twin Falls, who was appointed to replace Knigge, will sit on the House Agriculture Committee. He said other assignments for Jones will be announced next week.

"I want to publicly thank Lawrence Knigge for the several years he devoted to the legislative process and his application to the duties as he perceived them. Legislative friendships are somewhat like a fraternity, we will miss his participation and wish him the best in his new venture with the State Department of Agriculture," Stivers said.

Group to sponsor Burley gem show

LINDA LARSON Times-News correspondent

BURLEY — The Northwest Federation of Mineralogical Societies will sponsor a gem show at Burley High School Aug. 2-3.

Expecting about 700 participants and 200 exhibits, show chairman Cliff Jackson, Burley, said the main feature of the show will be the premiere exhibit of a carving crafted from a 100-pound section of jade from the opiate work was carved in mainland China by a crew of craftsmen over a period of six months, Jackson said, and is owned by Don and Pat Snyder of Richland, Wash.

Snyder acquired the jade in British Columbia and then had it shipped to China for the carving work.

Jackson said the three-day show will feature field trips for rock collecting in addition to the exhibits. One such field trip will take participants into Nevada to collect gemstones.

Demonstrators also will be at the show to instruct in techniques of gem preparation. Gary Peterson, of Ketchum, will illustrate diamond cutting and JoAnn King, Orofino, will teach sapphire mining.

Fansy D. Kraus, San Diego, editor of the topiary magazine, will conduct a symposium, and Dr. Marvin Stroppe, professor of earth science at College of Southern Idaho, will lecture on volcanoes.

An auction of gems cut by prize-winning members of the AFMS will be conducted at 5 p.m. on Saturday with proceeds to go to the AFMS scholarship fund which provides scholarships for six northwest students in the field of earth science.

The opening of the show will be at 9:45 a.m. Friday with a ribbon-cutting ceremony supervised by Mayor Chuck Shaddock.

Events will continue through the weekend. Individuals can contact chairman Cliff Jackson, Burley, or Roy O. Bush, Twin Falls, for information.

Admission to the show is $1.50 for each day with children 12 and under to be admitted free if accompanied by an adult.

Scott to take Knigge's old JFAC place

Hagerman takes sewer bids

HAGERMAN — The Hagerman City Council has selected two contractors for the city sewer system construction project.

City Structures Inc. of Blackfoot was awarded the project's Schedule 1 and Schedule 1A, which includes lining existing lagoon cell number two and building a filtration system. The total bid for these two schedules was $761,300.

Hunk Rock Contractors of Twin Falls, owned by Dewey Balley, had the winning bid for Schedule 2, which includes building a pipeline from the existing ponds to the river. Total of this bid was $211,916.

The council opened the bids July 16 and selected the contractors at a special meeting called and held Tuesday. Mayor Merle Owsley says the lowest bids were selected, and they must be approved by the Idaho Health and Welfare Department. Contracts must then be signed by the contractors.

After the contracts are signed, the companies have 10 days to begin work and then 150 days to complete the work.

Hagerman recently received a $50,000 grant for improvement of its sewer system. Owsley says the additional cost of the project will be paid for by the state.

Castleford men schedule picnic

CASTLEFORD — The Castleford Men's Club will hold its 13th annual picnic on Sunday at 1 p.m. at the Castleford school grounds.

The picnic is open to the public, and there is no admission charge.

There will be a softball game from 1 to 3 p.m. between the Castleford Men's Club and the Buhl Rotary Club, and from 3 to 5 p.m. there will be games for the entire family with prizes awarded.

Something new at the picnic this year is a siphon tube setting contest from 4 to 5 p.m.

There will be a free barbecue from 5 p.m. to 6 p.m. and entertainment from 6 to 8 p.m. provided by the Hunk Rock Fiddlers of Jerome.

Rounding out the picnic, a dance, open to all ages, will be held outside of the school from 7:30 until 9:30 p.m.

Correction

TWIN FALLS — House Speaker Tom Stivers said he misstated the facts in a point made to demonstrate the problems with local option taxes Thursday at a Chamber of Commerce seminar.

It was Twin Falls laws not allowing liquor by the drink that caused nightclubs to start business in Kimberly many years ago, only to abandon Kimberly when Twin Falls started allowing liquor by the drink, he said.

The incident still illustrates the problems that would be caused by allowing local option taxes, he said.

Mixed reaction to GM's Saturn plant choice

By MARGARET HABERMAN
The Associated Press

Union contract — A9

SPRING HILL, Tenn. — The jobs that General Motors' coveted Saturn plant would bring are welcome, but some Spring Hill residents said Friday they hate the intimacy of their small town, where the main industry once dealt in another mode of transport — mules.

"Property already is... beginning to rise sharply," said Mayor George Jones. "A lot of options are being taken and some properties are being bought. I'll drive up the economy considerably."

But while the small-car plant would bring new jobs and industry, some residents said they objected to what else they expect would accompany it.

"It's a great opportunity, but it will end the rural atmosphere. I don't want to see a Wendy's on every corner and a four-lane highway through town," said Louise Mallory-Elliott, a Tennessee State University psychology teacher who said she'll move if the Saturn plant comes to town.

U.S. Sens. Albert Gore Jr. and James Sasser, both Tennessee Democrats, on Friday confirmed earlier reports that GM has chosen Spring Hill, a town of 1,110 people 30 miles south of Nashville, for the Saturn plant.

"We won. It's a great day for Maury County, for Tennessee and for the country," Gore said.

"The 16,000 direct and related jobs that Saturn brings is really only the tip of the iceberg," Sasser said.

The plant, part of a $5 billion project designed to cut into the import market, surely would change the complexion of this community, which, Jones said, "in the '20s and '30s was known as the mule capital of the world."

The area still holds an annual Mule Day celebration to commemorate the industry that reached its heyday in the 1930s, when Spring Hill was the country's largest mule trade center.

"In the last five years, farm land has brought from $3,000 to $5,000 an acre. Right now farm land is going for quite a bit more because of this. Some land is going for 30 percent more," said the mayor. GM's final announcement is expected within a few days.

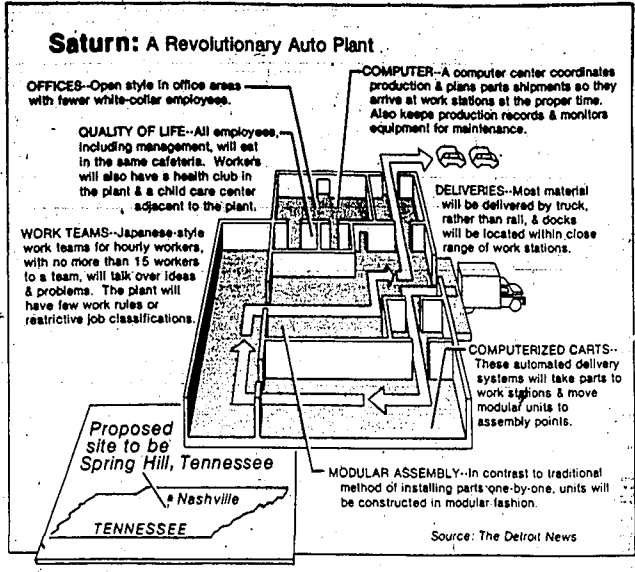

"The gentle rolling farm land reportedly offered for the site is just outside city limits.

The centerpiece is the 1,200-acre Haynes Haven farm that includes a 7,500-square-foot antebellum mansion, a stone dairy barn, about 550 head of cattle and a $500,000 annual business, said farm manager Ray Woods.

Two adjoining farms totaling about 600 acres also are included in the package, Woods said.

Down town Spring Hill is a compilation of houses, storefront shops, a farm dealers store and several churches on a mile-long stretch of road that has two traffic lights which switch off at 8 p.m. Some say they'll hate to see progress overrun the small-town atmosphere.

"If it were to come, you wouldn't know it was the same place," said John Campbell, a fourth-generation dairy farmer with 525 acres. "We'll lose friends, family and all the political clout we had."

Prof not surprised by closing of mill

MOSCOW (AP) — The decision of the Potlatch Corp. to close its sawmill at Lewiston, Idaho, is not surprising, according to University of Idaho forest products professors.

"I don't think it's really surprising that the Lewiston mill closed; it's maybe only surprising that they were able to keep it open as long as they could," Robert L. Govett, a forest products professor at the University of Idaho, said. "It's been sort of a puzzle to us that it's not been closed before."

Potlatch announced Tuesday that operations at the sawmill and the plywood plant will begin winding down Friday to an indefinite closure, resulting in loss of about 1,250 jobs in the mills and in the woods.

Both the sawmill and the plywood plant are old and inefficient, Moslemi and Govett said in interviews. Both operations have high labor costs compared to non-union mills in the region and mills in other areas of this country and in other nations. Both mills also have high shipping costs because of their distance from markets, they said.

For those reasons, neither Moslemi nor Govett expects that the plywood plant or the sawmill will reopen although they said a new, efficient sawmill in Lewiston might increase the profitability of Potlatch's pulp and paper mill there.

Both operations also suffer from different, if related, problems, Moslemi said.

Lumber produced by Potlatch faces international, national and local problems, Moslemi said. The strength of the U.S. dollar has helped foreign producers, particularly the Canadian sawmills, he said.

The national problem is the deficit, which increases interest rates and the financing of new homes.

Locally, the entire Idaho timber industry suffers from a lack of diversification into specialty products and is heavily reliant on lumber, he said. Potlatch's strength is in its pulp and paper division, he added.

"Right now, even though we have peak consumption, we have excess production, and the bottom line is someone is going to go out of business," Govett said.

Housing starts are expected to drop next year, further hurting lumber sales. The only thing for Potlatch to do is to cut its losses, shut down the sawmill and dismantle it, resell or use the more recent parts and unload the rest for scrap metal.

Kennecott $45 million in red for 2nd quarter

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Kennecott's parent company, Standard Oil Co. of Ohio, with a million loss in the second quarter, and has lost $85 million in the first six months of 1985.

Sohio reported its second-quarter net income per share was $1.66, down 11 percent from the same period last year. Net income per share for the first half of 1985 was $3.12, down 8 percent from the amount earned in the first half of 1984.

In its second-quarter report issued Thursday, Sohio said its repurchases of common stock during 1984 and 1985 reduced the per-share impact of the decline in net income, which totaled $73 million in the first half of this year.

Chairman Alton W. Whitehouse said factors in the quarterly earnings decline included a 100 percent increase in oil and gas exploration expenses, lower crude oil prices, reduced oil earnings and higher net interest expenses.

Metals mining losses increased because of lower prices for copper, gold and silver, as well as shutdown costs in Utah, he said.

Kennecott announced the shutdown of its Bingham Mine southeast of here earlier this year. An indefinite suspension of operations began March 31, with the goal of closing down completely by Sept. 1.

Lessons learned in market can gain or lose easy money

NEW YORK — There is a lesson from any experience. The 1960s and early 1970s were the go-go years, a time of unlimited but seemingly achievable horizons.

John Cunniff

That lesson was learned reluctantly by the managements of many companies, some of whom thought growth was eternal and profits automatic.

What's what?

Among the 400 wives of King Ibn Saud (1880-1953) were dozens of women whose faces he didn't even see until after the weddings.

W. Somerset Maugham expressed the notion: "If you refuse to expect anything but the best, you very often get it." You buy that?

Artists, not writers, put wings on angels. The Bible has these spiritual creatures flying around, but it doesn't say anything about wings.

You can squeeze about half a gallon of oil out of one shark liver. Not so much really. The liver is the only place where a shark stores its fat.

ALCATRAZ

Those who admit to the knowledge say Alcatraz during its 30 years as the infamous "Rock" had the best food in the federal prison system.

VITAMIN C

Mosquitoes sing. That's been known for awhile. The males listen to the females, but the females don't listen to the males. That's been known for quite awhile.

Consider those individuals who want private security guard licenses in Florida. In one recent three-month period, 4,780 applied. One out of four was turned down. Reason: "Felony history - burglary, assault, armed robbery, rape, fraud, drug trafficking, homicide."

Lot of people wish they had blue eyes, evidently. It's the most popular color sold to the buyers of colored contact lenses.

Dogs make their own Vitamin C. So they never crave a glass of orange juice or anything like that.

Disney World at last report needed 138 telephone operators to handle reservations. Do believe that place might make it.

New book on the market: "Sex as a Sublimation for Tennis." What do you make of that?

Were no strictly female names in ancient Rome, only feminized male names: Claudia, Julia, Cornelia, Lucretia, so on.

At least 200 Americans claim they own the pistol that killed Abe Lincoln.

Wife of assassinated Egyptian leader will teach at Radford

JIHAN SADAT
Will teach once a week

FRANK SHORTER
May do some different running

RADFORD, Va. (AP) — Jihan Sadat, widow of former Egyptian President Anwar Sadat, will join the faculty of Radford University to teach once a week this fall, school officials say.

Mrs. Sadat, whose husband was assassinated in October 1981, will teach 30 students in a program titled "Women in the Third World."

"She made a choice to be an active leader in a country where it was not traditional for women to do this," Radford President Donald N. Dedmon said. "Then, having lost her husband, she continues to speak to the world on women's rights, while continuing her studies and being a mother. This is a small bill, but this is a courageous woman."

Mrs. Sadat recently taught at American University in Washington, D.C. and at the University of South Carolina, where she is pursuing a doctorate in English literature.

'Revolution 1776' starts final scenes in Norway

OSLO, Norway (AP) — Actor Al Pacino and a 46-member film crew have arrived in Norway to start shooting Sunday the final scenes of the movie "Revolution 1776" in breathtaking Norwegian nature.

The team will spend one week in scenic Geiranger and will later move on to the Lofoten archipelago.

Other actors in the adventurous love story set during the American Revolution and scheduled for release in December include Donald Sutherland and Nastassja Kinski.

Maestro Herbert von Karajan was to direct Bizet's "Carmen" in the opening night performance with the title role filled by Greek mezzo-soprano Agnes Baltsa, who has scored successes in Vienna, Milan, Athens, Zurich and Houston.

John Paul's script gets contemporary revision

SAN MINIATO, Italy (AP) — A play based on a 45-year-old script by Pope John Paul II has been updated to include a scene depicting the murder of a prominent Polish priest by government secret service agents.

The murder of the Rev. Jerzy Popieluszko was inserted into the pope's script by Polish-born dramatist Aleksandra Kurksab, according to Italian critics who attended Thursday night's world premiere here of "Globoe," which is Italian for Job.

Another scene added by Kurksab shows the slaying of Italian prime minister Aldo Moro, assassinated by Red Brigade terrorists in 1978.

John Paul was a 20-year-old philosophy student in Krakow, Poland, when he wrote the play's original text, which uses the biblical story of Job to describe the troubles of the Polish people under Nazi occupation.

Kurksab said she inserted the two assassination scenes to make the drama more modern. The writer said she had spoken to the pope and he had expressed a wish to see the play.

Olympic gold-medalist considers political run

BOULDER, Colo. (AP) — Olympic marathon winner Frank Shorter says he may do some running of a different sort — campaigning for political office.

"Having had to survive in the Olympic political system may not be like serving in Congress, but it has relevance. I'm not a neophyte when it comes to political dealings," Shorter said Thursday.

The Colorado resident became the third American to win the gold medal in the marathon at the 1972 Olympics in Munich. He won a silver medal in the same event at Montreal in 1976.

Word on Hudson's condition remains terse, contradictory

PARIS (AP) — The condition of movie and television star Rock Hudson, suffering from AIDS and hospitalized with liver problems, "remained stable" on Friday, the American Hospital announced.

The hospital would not amplify on its six-word communique nor indicate how it related to Thursday's statement by Hudson's local spokeswoman, Yvonne Collart. That statement said he had been "very ill" when admitted last Sunday but was "improving daily."

Miss Collart's office said Friday it had only the hospital's statement to relay. Its only other information was that movie star Elizabeth Taylor was to telephone him Friday evening.

President Reagan telephoned Hudson earlier this week and Miss Collart's office said the actor had received hundreds of letters and telegrams.

There was no comment on Miss Collart's statement Thursday that doctors wanted to carry out a liver biopsy on Hudson, 59, but were waiting until he was strong enough.

The only medical information contained in Thursday's statement, was that doctors at the hospital, before being informed Hudson had AIDS, found liver abnormalities suspected to be caused either by an infectious disease or cancer.

Hudson was taken to the hospital Sunday, the day after arriving in Paris for consultations with specialists on AIDS, the initials standing for acquired immune deficiency syndrome. It was only in Thursday's statement that Hudson revealed AIDS had been diagnosed more than a year ago.

It was not known which specialists Hudson had been planning to see in Paris, a world center of research into AIDS diagnosis and treatment.

The disease's most likely victims are homosexuals, abusers of injectable drugs and hemophiliacs. AIDS apparently is spread by sexual contact, contaminated needles and blood transfusions, but not by casual contact.

The affliction makes the body's immune system unable to resist disease. AIDS can go into remission, but there is no known cure.

A new drug, called HPA 23, is being used on a highly restricted number of patients in trials in Paris; a number of drugs hoped to prove useful against AIDS.

Dr. Willy Rozenbaum, a coordinator of the AIDS treatment research program being conducted at several Paris hospitals, was asked if Hudson was here for treatment with HPA 23.

"I know no patient named Rock Hudson. No one named Rock Hudson came to France for treatment in an HPA 23 program," he said.

Mail problems about zipped

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Postal Service is about to agree formally that West Wendover is in Nevada, according to Postmaster General Paul Carlin.

The community has been sharing a ZIP code with its neighboring city on the eastern side of the border, Wendover, Utah, and people on the Nevada side complain that has fouled up their mail deliveries.

Steve May, a spokesman for the West Wendover Advisory Board, said people on the Nevada side have been getting their mail late or not at all.

The final straw came last year when the board failed to receive notice of a meeting regarding disposal of federal lands around West Wendover and did not learn about the meeting until it was too late, May said.

Carlin said a new ZIP code would be selected within 30 days and implemented as soon as possible.

Fans' favorite seal, 14, dies

BOSTON (AP) — Hoover, the harbor seal whose speechlike barks delighted 900,000 visitors a year as mascot of the New England Aquarium, has died at the age of 14.

"The new England Aquarium is saddened by the loss of Hoover," said Dick Lyons, the aquarium's director of programs and exhibits. "For 13 years Hoover has been our good will ambassador to the world."

Hoover, who died Thursday, communicated with visitors to his outdoor pool with barks that people said sounded like, "Hello, there," "Get over here" and "Hoover."

Hoover was found in 1971 as an orphaned pup in Maine. Several of his offspring remain in the aquarium's seal pool on the Boston waterfront.

The cause of Hoover's death was not known, officials said.

World Dialogue on policy still alive

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Secretary of State George P. Shultz said Friday that the "most visible" area of disagreement between the United States and Mexico on the subject of Nicaragua is U.S. talks with the leftist government.

Most of those nine rounds of talks, begun in June 1984 and suspended by Washington last January, were held in Mexico's Pacific coast resort of Manzanillo.

But Shultz said that the U.S.-Mexico dialogue over U.S. policy toward Nicaragua has not reached a stalemate. He also said the United States will keep up consultations about entering into talks with Nicaragua, but that the "appropriate circumstances" do not now exist for such talks.

Shultz told reporters at a news conference, "I don't think that we're at a stalemate (Mexico and the United States). There are differences of opinion about a variety of practical issues about how to handle the situation (in Nicaragua)."

He did not elaborate on those "practical issues."

On Thursday, Shultz said the Reagan administration rejects the Contadora group's call for the United States to resume direct talks with Nicaragua's leftist Sandinista government, until the talks can lead to a church-mediated dialogue with rebel forces.

Shultz told Friday's news conference, "What is needed in Central America most of all is for Nicaragua to give up its aims for subverting the neighborhood and to undertake a process of national, church-mediated reconciliation."

Pastora tape to be released on Monday

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica (AP) — Eden Pastora, the hero of the Sandinista revolution who turned against his former comrades for their Marxist policies, will release a tape recording to prove he is alive, a leader of his rebel group said Friday.

Pastora is residing in a jungle camp in northern Nicaragua from exhaustion and injuries he received in a helicopter crash, said Jose Davilla of Pastora's Revolutionary Democratic Alliance.

Davilla told The Associated Press that Pastora would use the tape to announce from the camp on Monday that his group will continue its armed struggle against Sandinista troops in southern Nicaragua.

Pastora's statements will be made on tape to prove he is alive "since there are some people who insist that the commander died in the accident," said Davilla, a member of the alliance directorate.

Pastora's followers said he had been at a rebel jungle camp near Sarapiquí in southern Nicaragua, but Davilla said he moved to another camp because of recent fighting in the area between the rebels and Sandinista troops.

Disaster toll climbs to 218

TRENTO, Italy (AP) — Surgeons amputated the legs of a woman buried for 18 hours under the mud and debris that inundated the tourist town of Stava when a dam collapsed, and hours later she died of heart failure, doctors said Friday.

The death of Maria Assunta Cara, 24, on Friday and the recovery of four more bodies from the mud covering Stava valley brought the official fatality count to 218.

Authorities said 96 people still were missing, although that figure has varied considerably since the July 19 tragedy.

Meanwhile, authorities said 1,800 rescue workers would remain in the Stava area for another week, searching for bodies, hauling out debris and spraying disinfectant on muddy areas to prevent the spread of germs from decomposing bodies.

Woman defects from cruise ship

OSLO, Norway (AP) — A 29-year-old Soviet woman defected by jumping from a cruise ship visiting a Norwegian island near the Arctic Circle, swimming to land, and walking four days without food and water, authorities said Friday.

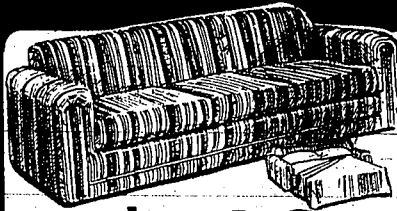

They said she defected last weekend as the cruise ship Maxim Gorky visited Norway's Spitzbergen Island between the Arctic Circle and Norway. The island is part of the Svalbard archipelago.

The woman was found Thursday night.

Baseball talks move to major (cash) issues

NEW YORK (AP) — With Commissioner Peter Ueberroth vowing he will not allow a strike, the two sides in baseball's labor negotiations settled more than 20 minor issues Friday in an attempt to clear the way for the major matters.

MacPhail, president of the owners' Player Relations Committee, said the two sides had agreed "or come very close to agreeing" on about 20 non-economic issues and had about 20 more items to go before they could turn their attention to issues like pensions, salary arbitration and free agents.

Meanwhile, Ueberroth said in an interview with KNX Radio of Los Angeles: "I just really can't allow there to be a strike that shuts down America's national pastime. It's been shut down too many times in the past. It's just not the right thing."

Ueberroth's comments to the CBS affiliate were made Thursday night and aired Friday.

The baseball players' union has set an August 6 strike deadline. In 1981, the players went on strike for seven weeks.

"The major issues are still before us," MacPhail said after the two-hour meeting at union headquarters in New York. "First, we have to tackle these other things, try to put them aside, so we can concentrate on the major issues."

"We're trying to use all the imagination we have. We hope they are too," MacPhail said, and Don Fehr, acting executive director of the Major League Players Association, said both sides withdrew some issues and made compromises in order to come to agreement on many of the so-called minor issues. These issues have included things like waiver procedures, player allowances, scheduling and licensing.

"We do regard this as an attempt to be constructive," said Fehr, who only one day earlier said he suspected management of trying to provoke a breakdown in negotiations.

"On these issues that we discussed today, we have advanced the ball."

"Perhaps we are finally getting to the stage where we can put these differences behind us and concentrate on other matters."

The union's primary objective in these labor negotiations is to increase the owners' contribution to the players' benefits plan by some $45 million annually, from $15.5 million in 1984 to $60 million. To fund this increase, the union wants one-third of the owners' $1.1 billion, six-year network television contract.

The union also would like to alter or abolish the free-agent re-entry draft to allow for freer movement of players.

On the management side, owners would like to substantially alter salary arbitration in their favor. On Thursday, management proposed revisions in arbitration that would have limited the size of salary awards and restricted the types of players that could go to an arbitrator. The union rejected the proposal.

"We're still not back into the major issues," Fehr said. "The fact is, we've been looking for specific, concrete proposals on pensions since September, and we still don't have it."

MacPhail reiterated that management was working on a pension proposal:

"We would make a proposal now if we had one to make," MacPhail said. "We are trying to find a way to close the ground between us, to find some way to search for common ground. We are working on something, and we are sure they are too."

Misplayed infield fly costs Cowboys split of twinbill

TWIN FALLS — Gaston and Alphonse showed up at the wrong time Friday night, dooming the Twin Falls Legion Cowboys to a 4-2 defeat at the hands of the Pocatello Rebels.

The mental miscue, which resulted in a misplayed pop fly turning into four unearned Pocatello runs in the third inning, put the Cowboys in a position of having to win all four of their remaining games to the Idaho Falls for the Southern division regular season title.

The Cowboys had kept their hopes alive handily in the opener Friday, picking up a 13-8 decision.

They remain in action today, hosting Rexburg in a double-header beginning at 5 p.m. and then wind up the season Monday by certifying peace-stipulated Idaho Falls in another twinbill starting at 6 p.m. at Frontier Field.

Pocatello was quick to take advantage of Twin Falls' misplay that fly ball in the third inning of the nightcap. Kevin Ames was working along well with a couple of men on and two outs.

"He made a great pitch to the guy and gets him to pop it up for the third out," said Cowboy Coach Mike Tremayne. "But out fielders are playing 'I've got it, I've got it — you've got it' and let the ball fall in."

Immediately after that came singles by Todd Webb, Kory Newsom, Jared Ney and Brian Lash — each plating a run and cementing Twin Falls' doom.

"That pop up falling in kinda cost Kevin his concentration for a while and he didn't get it back until we had a chance to talk to him in the dugout after the inning," Tremayne said. "After that he was in control."

Twin Falls had taken the early lead, moving ahead in the bottom of the first inning when Kirk Slater uncoiled a double and rode in on Rob Ellis' single. But the Cowboys then went six innings without another hit against Ernie Shelton.

They then mounted a threat to pull it out in the bottom of the seventh, chasing Shelton and getting two walks from reliever Moose McCann to load the bases with one away.

One run scored on a ground out but Pocatello preserved the win when Slater's little wrongfield, hump-back liner couldn't quite get over the first baseman's head.

Tremayne felt Shelton's effectiveness was due more to a couple of pickoff throws than his being left-handed.

In the third and fourth innings Twin Falls managed to get the leading hitter on base but Shelton picked them off.

"Something like that takes you down," Tremayne said. "It affects your hitting and playing. We were down three runs, there was no steal on and still they get picked off. Don't ask me what they were doing."

Germans top Buhl, Wolves

By BRAD BRELAND
Times-News writer

CASTLEFORD — The West German 'A' and 'B' teams cruised to easy victories Friday against the Buhl Indians and the Castleford Wolves in a special basketball exhibition.

In the opener, the 'A' team, a squad of German's from the ages of 18-to-20, outscored the Indians 23-8 in the first quarter and breezed to a 107-73 victory.

The German squad was led by Klaus and Juergen Neumann, a pair of 20-year-old players, who combined for 35 points. Stefan Suntheim chipped in 13 for the winners, who only won their fourth game in 10 tries.

The Indians dug their own grave by sending the German team to the line 51 times in the contest. The game might have been a little more lopsided if the German had converted on more of the shots. They hit 15 of 51 at the charity stripe.

"We've been playing a lot of junior college teams and all-star teams," said German Coach Uli Sledz.

The German 'B' team, comprised of 16 and 17 year olds, ran its record to 8-2 with a 58-41 win, spilling the coaching debut of Castleford's Dick Schuerke.

"Castleford has a better team than Buhl," said Sledz. "They play better together, but they need size. The coach needed to coach tonight," he said of himself.

Playing well together was a surprise to Schuerke because his team had only practiced two days before the game.

The Wolves were physical and near the end of the first half, Castleford and the Germans were knotted at 25-25. The German team rallied in the end and took a 30-25 lead into the locker room at the half.

In the fourth period, the game started to slip away from the Wolves when Bernd Neumann grabbed a couple of missed free throws with 3:30 left and tossed them in for a 51-41 lead.

Neumann had 16 points for the winners, while Brian Lima lead Castleford with 12.

"We played well," said Schuerke. "There was no slouching. But we were out to have fun."

The German team will conclude its United States tour in Meridian tonight and then go to a basketball camp in Spokane.

Certainly the remainder of the tour will involve places bigger than Castleford, but according to Sledz, Castleford isn't the smallest place to host the German team.

"We've been to a place called Darrington, Washington," he said. "They had four blocks up and four blocks down and no stop lights. Castleford has five blocks up and five blocks down and one stop light."

It's all free today

Sights like this will be prevalent throughout Magic Valley and Idaho today as this is "free fishing day" in the state. Anyone interested may try his luck in any stream or impoundment that is open to general fishing now. While a license isn't required, all other state fishing regulations and limits apply. Idaho is the fifth state to try this novel idea and has heavily planted all streams and lakes of late.

Official opening ceremony brings sports festival to bloom

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — A cheering crowd of 50,000 staged a massive celebration of Louisiana and the state's governor, Edwin Edwards, declared the sixth National Sports Festival, opened Friday night.

Edwards welcomed some 3,300 athletes and the festival record turnout of fans at Tiger Stadium on the Louisiana State University campus, saying, "We are proud to have you in our midst." Meanwhile, Greg Louganis and Valerie Brisco-Hooks, heroes from the Los Angeles Olympics and double gold medalists from those 1984 Games, carried the festival torch to the top of a 60-foot pyramid. A dark green beam of light from a laser dramatically shot across the darkened stadium, lighting a huge, butane cauldron, which serves as the official NSF flame.

Edwin Moses, the virtually unbeatable intermediate hurdler and a gold medalist at Los Angeles, carried in the American flag. Moses, who is injured and will not compete here, said, "I think it's important that this one be big because it was the one after the Olympics."

The opening ceremonies certainly were big, with nearly 4,000 dancers, band members and flag bearers joining the athletes on the field. Leading the four teams (North, South, East, West) into the stadium were disabled athletes in wheelchairs. This is the first year that disabled athletes will compete in a Sports Festival.

The opening ceremonies were preceded by three days of competition in figure skating, cycling, team handball and diving. Five gold medals already had been awarded and a controversy was brewing over the drug testing program to be implemented, even before the gathering at Tiger Stadium.

The sixth NSF is the first at which a thorough, intense drug testing program complete with the most modern technology, has been used. But the program lost much of its sting when Miller revealed Thursday that boxers, basketball players, track and field athletes and yacht sailors were exempt.

The yachting union asked for and received a waiver because its sailors have not been involved in drug abuse education. The Athletics Congress, governing body for U.S. track and field, has not amended its own policies to conform with the USOC testing policy, and the Amateur Basketball Association of the United States hasn't signed a memorandum of agreement with the USOC.

Boxers will, however, undergo the tests, the head of the USA Amateur Boxing Federation said Friday.

"Our boxers will be tested," said Jim Fox, executive director of the USAABF. "What we discussed was the boxers hadn't signed the agreement with the USOC. We will review that agreement on Saturday Aug. 3, at which time we will accept it. The wording has been changed to be acceptable to us."

"The only time boxers will be tested is when they win a medal and that won't be before Aug. 4."

Boxing begins Aug. 1.

On the playing fields — or more accurately, in the diving pool — Michele Mitchell of El Toro, Calif., who already has a gold medal for springboard diving, led qualifying in the 10-meter platform event. Mitchell, 23, is the world champion on the platform and won a silver medal in that discipline at the Los Angeles Olympics.

She collected 410.58 points to lead Wendy Williams, bronze medalist in the springboard and a teammate of Mitchell's with the Mission Viejo Swim Club, by more than 32 points.

"After competing in the heat last night," she said Friday afternoon in reference to her winning performance on the springboard Thursday night, "I was just glad to survive the prelims."

The women's platform competition ends Saturday.

Mitchell, commenting on the drug testing situation, said, "They need to push toward uniformity. It doesn't bother me that they will test me, because I have no problems with drugs. But they should address the uniformity issue and have one movement."

On the ice, national figure skating singles champion Brian Boitano led on all seven judges' cards as he grabbed a big lead in the compulsory. Boitano, 21, of Sunnysvale, Calif., had 87.60 points.

The flame bursts into life atop Tiger Stadium as the festival begins

South cagers plan on winning

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — Other basketball coaches in the National Sports Festival talk about developing players for future Olympic teams and international competition. Davey Whitney talks about winning.

"We believe we have as good basketball players in the South as they have anywhere, and we're out to prove it," said Whitney, winner of 369 games in 16 years at Alcorn State in Mississippi.

The South team meets the West Saturday at 5 p.m. at the Southern University arena in the opening game of the NSF men's basketball competition. The women play two games on Saturday, East vs. North at noon and South vs. West at 5 p.m. The four team tournaments end on Wednesday.

Whitney's squad has only four players with college experience. The West team, coached by Tom Davis of Stanford, has 10.

"We have the youngest team in the entire festival," Whitney said, then laughed as he said that could turn out to be an advantage. "These 17-and-18-year-olds don't get as tired as the 19-and-20-year-olds."

Festival coaches adopted rules that require giving every player extensive time on court. The 12-member squads are split into six player units, which share time for the first 30 minutes — unit A for 10 minutes, unit B for 10, then back to unit A for 5 minutes and unit B for 5. The sixth player on each unit is expected to play extensively, too.

For the final 10 minutes, the coaches put their best five on the court.

"Only in the last 10 minutes will you play your best guys," said Davis. "If you want to know who we think our best players are, watch the last 10 minutes."

Boggs loses hitting streak but Red Sox down Seattle 6-2

By The Associated Press

"If (Hurricane) Bob had hit, I might have made contact," Wade Boggs said with a grin. That was Boggs' way of dismissing the end of his 26-game hitting streak Friday night as the Red Sox whipped the Seattle Mariners 6-2 for their sixth consecutive victory.

"At least I walked," Boggs quipped after he struck out twice, filed deep to left and drew a base on balls in ending the major league's longest hitting streak since 1980. Ken Landraux hit in 31 straight games in 1980. "Every good thing must come to an end — the big thing is that we won," Boggs said. "A streak like that is a lot of luck." Then, referring to Joe Dimaggio's major league record set in 1941, the Boston third baseman said: "That record of 56 games is monumental. I got halfway there, but there was no pressure—maybe there might have been if the record was 36 games."

Although his hitting streak was broken, Boggs extended another personal streak. He has reached base on a hit, walk or hit by pitch in 50 consecutive games.

Marty Barrett hit a wind-blown, three-run homer and Mike Easler also homered to boost the Red Sox.

Jays 8, Angels 3

Willie Upshaw hit a two-run homer in the fourth inning and pinch-hitter Jeff Burroughs blooped a two-run triple in the seventh as the Toronto Blue Jays won their sixth straight game with an 8-3 victory over the California Angels.

The Blue Jays held a 4-3 lead in the seventh when Damaso Garcia drew a walk from reliever Pat Clements and Lloyd Moseby beat out a bunt single. Moseby appeared to pull a hamstring on his hit and was replaced by pinch-runner Lou Thornton after pinch-hitter Garth Iorg had advanced the runners with a sacrifice against Stewart Criburn.

With two outs, Burroughs lifted a soft fly to left-center that fell between three fielders and rolled to the wall for a triple that gave Toronto a 6-3 lead. Thornton and Iorg delivered RBI singles in the eighth.

A's 7, Brewers 3

Tommy John, in his debut with Oakland, pitched six strong innings for the victory and Dwyane Murphy and Mike Davis homered to lead the A's past the Milwaukee Brewers 7-3.

John, 34, released by the California Angels in June, gave up one run on four hits. The only run he allowed came in the second inning on an RBI grounder by Mark Breuhahn. John walked none and struck out two. Keith Atherton worked the last three innings for his third save.

Royals 7, Indians 1

Steve Balboni, Darryl Motley, Frank White and Hal McRae hampered home runs to carry the Kansas City Royals to a 7-1 victory over the Cleveland Indians.

McRae also doubled and singled as the Royals, built more for speed than muscle, rang up their fourth straight victory with an uncharacteristic quiet second, went to third on a fly ball and scored on McRae's single.

Twins 6, Tigers 5

Kirby Puckett and Tim Teufel drove in two runs apiece and Darrin Holmstrom, a pinch runner, walked in the eighth inning because of a controversial time out call as the Minnesota Twins held off the Tigers 6-5.

The Tigers trailed 6-3 entering the eighth, but RBI singles by Barbaro Garbey and Darrell Evans pulled Detroit within a run. Then, with runners on first and third and two outs, catcher Mark Salas tried to pick off Evans at first.

Evans dove safely back to the base and landed on top of first baseman Kent Hrbek as Garbey broke home and crossed the plate. But first base umpire Ken Kiser returned Garbey to third, saying he had called time out when he thought Hrbek was hurt on the play.

Detroit Manager Sparky Anderson announced he was playing the game under protest, claiming Garbey was injured. Kiser called time out before Kaiser called time. Bergman struck out to end the inning.

Rangers 9, Orioles 8

Wayne Tolleson's RBI single capped a five-run rally in the eighth inning that lifted the Texas Rangers over the New York Yankees 9-8.

The Rangers loaded the bases in the eighth as Oddie McDownell walked and Tony Harrah and Pete O'Brien singled, chasing Ron Guidry, who has won 12 straight decisions.

Reliever Dave Righetti, 7-7, threw a wild pitch on his first delivery, allowing McDownell to score, and Harrah came home on Gary Ward's sacrifice fly. Cliff Johnson delivered a run-scoring single and pinch-runner Cliff Wilson went the way to third on another wild pitch.

Bill Stein's pinch-single drove in Wilkerson. George Wright walked and Tolleson followed with his single that drove in pinch-runner Duane Walker.

Chisox 9, Orioles 8

Carlton Fisk hit a two-run triple in the bottom of the ninth inning, rallying the Chicago White Sox over the Baltimore Orioles 9-8.

Harold Baines started the rally with a one-out double off reliever Sammy Stewart and Greg Walker greeted Don Aase, 5-5, with a single, sending Baines to third. Fisk then lined a 2-2 pitch over center fielder Fred Lynn's head for his game-winning triple.

Cards nip Padres 2-1 in 12th

By The Associated Press

Ozzie Smith singled in Jack Clark with two outs in the 11th inning to help Joaquin Andujar to his 17th victory, a 2-1 triumph over the San Diego Padres Friday night.

The victory was the sixth in a row for the streaking Cardinals while it was the sixth consecutive loss for the Padres. First-place St. Louis now leads New York by four games in the East Division, while San Diego has fallen 4 1/2 games off the pace of Los Angeles in the West.

Clark led off the 12th inning with a single off reliever Tim Lincecum, 1-5, was sacrificed to second by Tito Larran and advanced to third on a groundout before Smith came through with his second game-winning hit of the year.

Andujar, 17-4, pitched 11 innings, gave up seven hits, walked six and struck out one, with Ken Dayley working the final inning for his seventh save.

Baseball shrine prepares to induct new 'immortals'

COOPERSTOWN, N.Y. (AP) — Relief pitcher Hoyt Wilhelm, considered the greatest knuckleballer of all time, and Lou Brock and Enos Slaughter, whose careers were built on sprints around the bases, will be inducted Sunday into baseball's Hall of Fame.

Also being inducted is the late Arky Vaughan of the Pittsburgh Pirates and Brooklyn Dodgers whose career batting average of .318 was second only to Honus Wagner's .329 among Hall of Fame shortstops.

Wilhelm and Brock were chosen for induction by the Baseball Writers Association of America, Vaughan and Slaughter by the Hall of Fame Veterans Committee.

They enter the shrine as the sport faces the prospect of its second midseason strike in five years. The deadline is Aug. 6 and little progress between the owners and players has been reported in the daily contract talks.

"It's a shame all of baseball can't be here this weekend," Bill Guilfoile, the associate director of the Hall of Fame, said. "If they could witness the ceremony, feel the crowds and see what the Hall means to the people who are in it, there would never be another baseball strike."

In 21 seasons with nine teams, Wilhelm appeared in a record 1,073 games, winning 143 (123 in relief) and saving 227 before retiring at the age of 49. As a 29-year-old rookie with the New York Giants in 1952, he hit a home-run in his first at-bat in the majors. It was the only home run he hit.

It takes a back seat in his memories to his best game on the mound, a no-hitter against the New York Yankees in 1958 when he was a starting pitcher for the Baltimore Orioles. "The no-hitter was the single biggest game of my career," he has said. "I don't remember any tough plays, but nobody pitches a no-hitter without being a little lucky."

Brock, the key player in one of the most one-sided trades in baseball history, owns the record for career stolen bases at 938. He retired in 1979, five seasons after he had set what was then the single-season record of 118 stolen bases, surpassed in 1982 by the Yankees' Rickey Henderson's 130 when he was with Oakland.

In 1964, his fourth seasons in the majors, Brock was dealt to the St. Louis Cardinals by the Chicago Cubs in exchange for pitcher Ernie Broglio. After 2½ losing seasons with the Cubs, Broglio was out of baseball. Brock, in 19 years in the majors, had a career batting average of .293.

Slaughter retired in 1959, a career .300 hitter over 19 seasons. His best-known exploit came in the seventh game of the 1946 World Series against the Boston Red Sox when his eighth-inning single and subsequent dash from first to home on Harry Walker's double to left-center field gave the Cardinals the winning run.

In reality, Slaughter ran everywhere — to first base on a walk, to the outfield, to the dugout. When he played in Cincinnati against the Reds, he became the role model for a kid growing up in Crosley Field — Pete Rose.

After he retired, Slaughter waited the customary five years to become eligible for the Hall of Fame, then waited in vain for 15 years while the writers bypassed him.

"For a couple of years, I waited around by the phone for the call," he said. "But then I said, 'To hell with it; when they want me, they can come and find me.'" This year the veterans committee found him. "Deep in my heart, I was bitter," he said of his repeated rejection, "but all that has been forgotten now."

Some of NFL's most recognizable head for enshrinement

CANTON, Ohio (AP) — O.J. Simpson and Joe Namath may have to leave the Pro Football Hall of Fame ceremonies a little early next Saturday. They have to go to work.

"They'll pick up their induction plaques, say a few words, then dash up to the ABC-TV broadcast booth to announce the Hall of Fame game.

"I think we're going to just go up in the booth and the game will really be a time of reflection for Joe and myself," Simpson said. "It'll be an emotional time. I've given a lot of thought to what I'm going to say, but I think I'm going to have to rely on the emotion of the moment."

Joining Simpson and Namath as 1985 Hall inductees are quarterback Roger Staubach, center Frank Gatski and Pete Rozelle, NFL commissioner since 1960.

The induction ceremony will be followed by the annual AFC-NFC game, this year between the Houston Oilers and the New York Giants. The game, which kicks off the 1985 NFL exhibition season, begins at 2:30 p.m. EDT.

This year's class includes some of the sport's most recognizable faces, prompting Rozelle to quip: "My only regret about being named to the Pro Football Hall of Fame this year is that I wish I could have been included in a more illustrious group."

The 38-year-old Simpson, who has appeared in movies and commercials since leaving football in 1979, attributes his success to the same things that made him a record-setting running back for the Buffalo Bills and San Francisco 49ers.

"The first thing is to be prepared, to be totally initiative," he said during a telephone interview. "When I was playing, I knew our offense and I knew what everybody's job was. Plus, I understood the defenses I was playing against. I knew a little bit about everybody on the other team."

"Joe Namath was known for the same thing. If you ever watched Joe or me before a game, you'd see us talking to the other team. Those things help you in the long run."

Simpson, along with newly hired Namath and another Hall member, Frank Gifford, make up ABC's Monday Night Football team. Simpson says he still gets the same butterflies before a TV game that he did when he was playing.

"The worst part about this is, you don't get hit. When you get hit in a game, it knocks that right out of you," he says.

"The Juice" rushed for 11,236 yards, second only to Jim Brown's 12,312 when he retired. In 1973, Simpson became the first player to surpass 2,000 yards rushing in a single season when he compiled 2,003. That record was broken last season by Eric Dickerson of the Los Angeles Rams who gained 2,105.

Simpson said he was proud to be part of this Hall class because each player, in his own way, made a different contribution to football.

"Joe said, 'Don't expect any more from us than we are. Joe was out front with people,'" Simpson said. "And Roger probably epitomized what we were expected to be as football heroes. Gatski was long before my time, but it was people like him who built pro football."

Namath, 42, played for the New York Jets from 1965-76 and for the Los Angeles Rams in 1977. He is best remembered for predicting victory in Super Bowl III when the Jets defeated the Baltimore Colts 16-7. In 1967, he became the first passer to go over 4,000 yards in one season with 4,007 in 14 games.

Staubach, 43, who led the Dallas Cowboys to two Super Bowls during his 11-year career, is successful selling real estate and doing commercials.

But he said making the transition wasn't always easy.

"I had withdrawal pains on Sunday afternoons for a while," he said.

Gatski, 63, now teaches in his native West Virginia. He played with the Cleveland Browns from 1946-1956 and then completed his career with the Detroit Lions in 1957.

It was a time when football produced no great riches for players. His annual salary never surpassed $10,000, and no television job was awaiting him after he finished his 12-year career in 1957.

Golf Undhjem claims city crown

TWIN FALLS — Virginia Undhjem rallied with a 78 Friday to overhaul first-day leader Lois Maddy and claim the Twin Falls Women's Golf Association club championship.

Undhjem trailed Maddy 80-78 going into the second round but moved ahead when Maddy posted an

Floyd clings to narrow lead

CROMWELL, Conn. (AP) — Ray Floyd withstood a 5-hour, 30-minute rain delay and challenges from three unknown players Friday to hold on to a one-stroke lead when play was suspended in the $500,000 Canon-Sammy Davis Jr.-Greater Hartford Open.

Floyd shot a 68 to move to 10-under-par for the tournament and "broke off" hard-charging Steven Scaia, who shot a 62 to move to 9-under.

But that wasn't the best round of the rain-soaked day. Dave Lundstrom, another unknown on the PGA Tour, equalled the course record of 63, which was established last year by Peter Jacobsen in the first GTO held at the radically redesigned Tournament Players Club of Connecticut course.

Lundstrom's round included a hole-in-one on the 172-yard sixteenth, and it left him in a tie for third place with Jodie Mudd who shot a 67.

84. Championship flight net honors went to Cheri Webster at 124 with Julie Blandford at 128.

In the all-net first flight, Janet Cummins won at 114 followed by Arlene Gross 131, Elva Feiton 136 and Wilma Champlin 141.

A fierce morning rain storm with gusting winds stalled play at the 6,800-yard, par-71 TPC course from 8:30 a.m. EDT until 1:40 p.m., and Floyd said he was exhausted and annoyed at the manner in which the delay was handled.

"I'm pleased to get in with the score I did, and I'm pleased to get in before dark," said Floyd, twice the runner-up in the GTO.

"It was difficult and it was trying to do what we did today without getting any information about what was going on," he said.

Floyd had just teed off at 8:30 a.m. when play was halted, and he didn't finish his round until 6 p.m.

Fate shot eight birdies, including a 40-foot chip-in on the 343-yard seventh hole, and two bogles to move into contention.

"We did get here five hours too early," Pate said. "I was a little annoyed at having to go back out there but I'm glad I did."

Geddes breaks record

MONTREAL (AP) — Jane Geddes shot a 64, the best round of her professional career, and set a course record to grab a share of first place after two rounds at the $390,000 du Maurier Classic Ladies' Professional Golf Association tournament Friday.

Geddes's score — eight under par on the 6,033-yard Beaconsfield Golf Club course — broke the mark set by Ellsworth Vines in the 1946 Canadian Open.

"I played pretty much a flawless round today," said Geddes, a third-year pro from Summerville, S.C. "I played pretty much as well as I could play."

The round left her in a three-way tie for the lead with Laurie Rinker and Sally Little at 137, seven under par through 36 holes.

Rinker and Little both shot 69s. Chris Johnson, 68, and shared the first-round lead with Rinker. Little and Allen Miller was among five golfers at five-under par 139 in second place after firing a 70.

Val Skinner, who led the course record, with a 65. Alexandra Reinhardt, who shot a 67, Mary Beth Zimmerman and Marcel Garath were also bracketed at 139.

Geddes's record round included seven birdies and an eagle and just one bogey. She said the record she broke wasn't the one she was aiming for.

New York group buys struggling USFL franchise

Pro football

NEW YORK (AP) — The Houston Gamblers of the United States Football League were sold Friday to a five-man group headed by New York real estate developer Steve Ross, just beating a deadline that would have turned Jim Kelly and his teammates into free agents.

"The deal is done," USFL Commissioner Harry Usher said upon returning to his office from a meeting with the principals. "The lawyers are finalizing the language in the contract... We are delighted to welcome Stephen Ross and his partners to the USFL."

Ross, 45, heads a group identified in a release issued under his name as Peter Friedman, David Solomon, Fred Dematis and Warren Scherwin, all real estate developers.

No details of the sale were available.

Ross could keep the team in Houston, where it was ninth in attendance in the 14-team league with an average crowd of 19,120; he could move it to New York or elsewhere, or he could merge the franchise with the Generals.

He said the options were being considered and that "it would be very difficult to achieve" a merger. Donald Trump, owner of the Generals, called the prospect of a merger "intriguing."

Jerry Argovitz, formerly a player agent, was a one-third owner of the Gamblers, an expansion franchise in 1984, the USFL's second season. Jay Roulter and Alvin Lubetkin were the other one-third owners and Lubetkin had opposed the sale.

The league provided $15 million to keep the team in business in 1985, when the Gamblers posted a 10-8 record, then lost 22-20 to Birmingham in first round of the playoffs.

When the players finally receive their last paychecks, an arbitrator ruled that they would be waived at 5 p.m. Friday if they were not paid by the deadline. Argovitz told the New York Daily News.

When the USFL's third and final spring season ended a month ago, four teams had failed to meet at least one of their payrolls — Tampa Bay, Houston, Portland and San Antonio.

Earlier this week, the 46 players on the San Antonio Gunslingers' roster were placed on waivers an hour before their deadline. Portland and Tampa Bay have been given longer to meet their payrolls.

Those problems are among a number plaguing the league which has announced its intention to switch from a spring-summer operation to fall-winter starting with the 1986 season.

Don Klosterman, president of the Los Angeles Express, has been released by the league despite having a contract running through 1985. Coach John Hadi and his staff also were dismissed, and nearly all players have laid off from office personnel ranging from public relations directors to equipment managers.

Tampa Bay, the only USFL franchise still in the same city with the same ownership since the league began play in 1983, are up for sale. John Bassett, owner of the Bandits, opposed the move to the fall, threatened to pull the team out of the USFL and form a new spring league around it, but that never materialized. The Bandits may be merged with the Jacksonville or Orlando franchises or both.

Steelers find history falling away quickly

LATROBE, Pa. (AP) — John Stallworth, Mike Webster and Donnie Shell reported to the Pittsburgh Steelers training camp Friday and almost immediately were asked to pose for a photograph of rather historical significance.

Only two years ago there were seven other members of their history-making fraternity still wearing the Steelers' black and gold uniforms. Now, the three are the only active Steelers who played on the team's four Super Bowl champions during the 1974, 1975, 1978 and 1979 seasons.

Jack Lambert, his All-Pro linebacking career ended prematurely by a bum leg, and once-kneed tackle Larry Brown called it quits in the off-season. Franco Harris, released by both the Steelers and the Seattle Seahawks last season, has been unable to find a team willing to hire him as a running back.

"Maybe one of these days the three of us will sit down and talk about the old days," said Shell, who like Webster and Stallworth, was a member of the Steelers' rookie class of 1974.

"Right now, when you're still playing, it's hard to get a grasp on history... It's easier to look back once you're not a player anymore and appreciate what it was like to play with guys like Jack Lambert, Joe Greene, Jack Ham and Andy Russell."

As nearly 30 Steelers' veterans joined 68 rookies, free agents and assorted veterans in camp, the shrinking in ranks of the Steelers' old guard was noticeable.

There was no Terry Bradshaw throwing a crisp spiral to a leaping Lynn Swann. No Lambert-flashing loopy grime. No Harris dodging a tackler and running out of bounds for an eight-yard gain.

"You look around and see all those familiar faces missing, even though Lambert's hurt, even though Swann and Lynn Swann... No Lambert-flashing loopy grime. No Harris dodging a tackler and running out of bounds for an eight-yard gain."

Webster, Shell and Stallworth all enjoyed excellent seasons for the 1984 American Conference Central Division champions. Webster said there is no reason to believe the Steelers' list of on-time ring-bearers will become even shorter during the next year.

"Who knows, maybe we can play for three or four more years," he said.

"That age thing is overrated, isn't it?" added the 32-year-old Shell.

Briefly in Sports

Hailey tournament begins

HAILEY — The Hailey Little League tournament began working its way through a round-robin schedule and into Sunday's finals. In Friday's action, Burley beat Hailey 5-1, Ketchum topped Challis 14-7, Arc dumped Hansen 30-3, Rupert dropped Bellevue 19-4, Homedale handed salmon 7-6 and Boise J Mark dumped Twin Falls 9-2.

Action resumes at 6:30 a.m. today with Burley vs. Ketchum, Hailey vs. Hansen, and Challis vs. Arc; 10:30 a.m., Rupert vs. Homedale, Bellevue vs. Twin Falls and Salmon vs. Boise; 4:30 p.m., Burley vs. Challis, Hailey vs. Arc and Ketchum vs. Hansen, and 6:30 p.m., Rupert vs. Salmon, Bellevue vs. Boise and Twin Falls vs. Homedale.

The two teams with the best record in each of the divisions will advance to the semifinals at 9 a.m. Sunday with those winners playing for the title at 1 p.m.

IGA crowns golf seniors

TWIN FALLS — A largely Rupert team of W.C. Boyd, Bob Wakewood, Robert Steele and Colleen Kerbs won the first annual Idaho Golf Association's senior scramble Friday at Canyon Springs Golf Course.

The team, with handicaps fractionalized, wound up with 65-4. In second was the crew of Preston Porter, Chet Sams, Lauren Seamons and Marilyn Savvik at 67.2 while a team from Burley, Twin Falls and Pocatello was third. On that unit were Bob Savvik, Joe McCollum, Wayne King, Ab Helzold and Rudy Willecke.

Sparks paces pro-am win

JACKPOT — Boise pro Ken Sparks won the pro sweeps and paced his team to victory in the Club 39 Pro-Senior Golf Tournament Friday.

Sparks, bogeying two of the last three holes, finished with a four-under par 68 while his team of Keith Beauchamp, Dick Miller, Dick Harland and Loren Zollinger won the best ball division at 114.

Mike Cerello, Jackpot, was second individually at 70 with Clyde Thomsen, Boise, third at 72.

The best ball runner-up spot was shared among Thomsen, Chuck Martin, Herm Ray, Dave Samuelson and Wes Cayford and Cerello, A.C. Anderson, Gus Menapace and Norm Thomsen.

Jack Felt paced amateur scoring with a 75, one ahead of Ed Glavin, Wendover, with Tom third at 82. In net, Martin tied with a 65, followed by Ray at 76 and Glenn Giddings, Caldwell, and Curly Young, Wendover, 74.

The 12-over handicap division gross title went to B.L. Black with Beauchamp at 79 and Menapace third with 81. Harland was the net winner with a 66 while Norm Hochandl, Boise, had 68 and Ray Copeland, Caldwell, 69.

Dairymen back prep athletics

BOISE, Idaho (AP) — The state's dairymen have given $100,000 to the Idaho High School Activities Association, which plans to use most of the money for travel costs and a program on chemical dependency.

Last year, United Dairymen of Idaho gave the association $85,000. The new contribution will cover the cost of transporting students to and from sports events and also will fund a Boise conference on chemical dependency Aug. 5-6, the association said. Conference topics will include coaches as role models.

Tennis tourney postponed

JEROME — This weekend's scheduled Jerome Tennis Association all-classes tournament has been postponed because of repair work currently taking place at the city courts.

The tournament will be played on Saturday, Aug. 10, and Sunday, Aug. 11.

Marsh leads Dutch Open

NOORDWIJK, Netherlands (AP) — Australian Graham Marsh shot a four-under-par 68 Friday to take a two-stroke lead over Northern Ireland's David Fehery after two rounds of 66th Dutch Open Golf Championships.

That gave Marsh, who won the 1979 Dutch Open, a 36-hole total of 136, two over par.

West Germany's Bernhard Langer, the defending champion and first-day leader, had a 72 to drop to third at 140 while Curtis Strange, the leading money winner on the U.S. tour, was fourth at 142. Strange shot his second straight 71 on Friday.

Senior meet washed out

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — Arnold Palmer's return to competition was wiped out Friday by the remnants of tropical storm Bob, which pelted the Newport Country Club and forced postponement of the first-round of the $175,000 Merrill Lynch-Golf Digest Commemorative Pro-Am.

The delay means the scheduled 54-hole Senior Tour event now becomes a 36-hole tournament. The 36 competing pros will play Saturday with amateur partners, and have the course to themselves for Sunday's finale.

Full prize money will be awarded despite the reduction in the holes to be played.

Palmer, the 55-year-old golfing great who had surgery for removal of benign fatty tumors on his right side less than two weeks ago, was the leader, at 2-under par through 12 holes, when action was halted.

"I've had everything from 65s to 75s wiped out by bad weather," said Palmer. "This doesn't mean anything."

Dorsett given leave to fight money woes

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (AP) — While Dallas Cowboys running back Tony Dorsett tried to straighten some of his business affairs with the Internal Revenue Service in Dallas on Friday, Coach Tom Landry took a long look at other talibacks in training camp.

Dorsett was given a 48-hour extension of the veterans' reporting deadline on Thursday to he could meet with financial advisors.

"This will give us a chance to look at some of our other talibacks," said Landry. "James Jones has been looking pretty good and we'll see if he can get a job." Norm Granger also will get a look.

"It's a sad situation," said Schramm. "I just wish Tony had come to us earlier with his problems. However, he is still under contract and needs to abide by terms of the contract."

Dorsett is in the fourth year of a seven-year deal that brings him some $100,000 a year.

"The boat Tony finds himself in was caused by poor planning and advice," said Schramm. "We are looking for a structure where he can play the next three years and have something left."

"It's a sad situation," said Schramm. "I just wish Tony had come to us earlier with his problems. However, he is still under contract and needs to abide by terms of the contract."

Dorsett at one time had a 15-year deferred contract at $100,000 but decided he wanted the money up front. Investments turned sour and trouble with the IRS has drained away much of the money.

"We want Tony to get what's best for Tony," Newsome said. "We can all be behind him in this case but it's always a distraction when someone like him isn't in training camp."

"Coach Landry granted the extension," said Schramm. "We are disappointed he (Dorsett) is not here but we are more disappointed about the position Tony has arrived at. It's sad that a player of his ability and personality finds himself in this role."

THE ACES BOBBY FLOFF

"It isn't what we don't know that gives us trouble, it's what we know that ain't so." - Will Rogers.

East's overall conviction South that he has now to play today's spade suit. It turned out that West's opening lead was more illuminating than East's overall. The way today's hand was played at a recent duplicate contest, East won his spade ace and returned his seven at trick two. South finessed with the king, relying on East to have held the A-Q to justify his overall in that suit. West won the queen and returned the six, and that was it for South. When East won his diamond ace, two more spade winners netted the defenders five tricks. At duplicate contests, East is obligated to complete a convention card, which outlines all system agreements that he has with his partner regarding bidding and play. Had South been alert, he could have referred to a defender's card to determine what to do. Lead agreements the opponents had reached. Had South checked, he would have seen that the lead of the deuce promised an honor or three other cards in the suit. With that information, the play of the king is correct at trick two. It blocks the suit, giving South time to win nine tricks. What about rubber bridge? Declarer is always entitled to ask about defensive carding agreements and East would be obliged to provide an accurate answer.
