GRAPEVINE, Texas — A Delta Airlines jumbo-jet carrying 160 people crashed and exploded Friday during a heavy thunderstorm on its final approach to Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport, killing about 130 people, officials said.

The Lockheed L-1011, Flight 191 from Fort Lauderdale, Fla., to Los Angeles with a stop here, struck two cars on a highway and decapitated a driver before slamming into a field and bursting into flames, witnesses said.

At least 42 people were injured, including a person not on the plane, hospital officials said. Twenty-four passengers and three flight attendants were known to have survived, said Matt Gullfoyle, a Delta spokesman.

"We're still trying to get bodies out" of the wreckage about a quarter-mile from the runway, said Armond Edwards, an investigator with the National Transportation Safety Board.

Linda Harrison, a records secretary at the Dallas County Medical Examiner's office, said the office's chief investigator, who was at the crash site, told her about 130 people were killed.

"We're recovering about 20 (bodies) so far," she said. "I understand a lot of the bodies are in fragments."

The three-engine jet crashed between 5:05 p.m. and 5:08 p.m. MDT, said Jerry Cooper, a Delta spokesman. Gullfoyle said the plane carried 149 passengers and 12 crew members. Earlier in Atlanta, Delta spokesman Jim Ewing said, there were 149 passengers and 11 crew members — a total he repeated when asked about Gullfoyle's statement.

The plane crashed in heavy rain north of the runway at the airport midway between Dallas and Fort Worth, said Federal Aviation Administration spokesman Dennis Feldman in Washington, D.C.

There was no immediate official explanation for the crash, but Jack Barker, an FAA spokesman in Atlanta, said witnesses told the FAA that lightning hit the plane.

"The final approach, Barker also said it wasn't known whether wind shear — abrupt change in wind direction and speed — was involved in the crash.

The flight and cockpit recorders — the so-called black boxes that record information about the flight and are designed to survive crashes — were recovered, said Edwards.

Misty fog shrouded the field as dense smoke streamed from the charred hulk of the jet. Wreckage ranging from 6 inches to 8 feet was scattered over several hundred yards. The tail section, with engine, was the largest recognizable piece.

"The plane was coming in real low. I saw the nose hit a car on the highway," said Robert Braden, who was on the 10th floor of an airport hotel.

clipped one or two water tanks and skidded across tarmac into a muddy, grassy field.

"It went into a ball of flame," said Braden. "The back end caught on fire and skidded across the ground."

Jerry Maximoff, an employee at Zantop International Airlines Inc., who was working on a plane about 200 yards from the crash, said he talked to a survivor.

"He said he was sitting in the tail, smoking a cigarette. It felt like the crew was maneuvering the plane left to right, then the next thing he knew he felt a bump, then all of a sudden he was upside down in his seat," Maximoff quoted the survivor as saying.

"He unfastened his belt and dropped down and ran out to the field," said Maximoff. "It looked like he only had a scratch on his back."

"I heard the low-flying jet. I did not see lightning. All I could feel was a heavy gust of wind coming in behind the plane and the plane itself in sight, exploding," said Tony Maza, another witness.

"It looked like it was making a normal approach to the airport," said another witness, David Bradbury.

Anthony Rogers said he was headed west on Highway 114 near the airport when the plane hit his car and then another.

"The roll he was sitting in was 30-40 feet in front of you," he said in an interview with Cable News Network. "All of a sudden it seemed like (my car) just caught

Jobless rate on 7.3 plateau

By PETE YOST
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The nation's civilian jobless rate remained on a 7.3 percent plateau for the sixth straight month, the Labor Department said Friday.

But there were signs that a long downward slide in manufacturing employment was coming to an end.

The number of new jobs overall rose by 243,000, a slightly better showing than most analysts had predicted, not in manufacturing, a segment of the labor market considered essential to continued economic growth, job losses numbered just 7,000, which most economists viewed as a welcome indication of stabilization.

"It may be that the worst of the depressing effect of foreign competition is behind us," said David Jones, chief economist at the securities firm of Aubrey G. Lansdon Co. Inc.

June's foreign trade deficit was $12.4 billion, the second highest ever, but the flatness in manufacturing employment suggests the trade deficit is not as much of a drag on the economy as it once was, he said. And Janet L. Norwood, commissioner of labor statistics, told a joint congressional committee that the nation's defense buildup to some extent has offset the trade imbalance.

Employment in manufacturing has declined every month this year, with job losses totalling 210,000. But there have been recent signs of faster growth in the economy generally, which eked out a meager 1 percent gain on an annual rate from January to June.

In July, the number of new jobs largely offset the total of people coming into the labor force in search of work. The pool of the unemployed was just 38,000 to a total of 845 million.

The civilian labor force grew by more than 500,000 workers, one of department's monthly surges of 60,000 American households showed. Almost all of that growth was accounted for by teenagers looking for summer jobs. Total civilian employment rose 492,000 to 106.8 million.

So far this year, the economy has created 1.6 million new jobs, almost all of them in the service-producing sector rather than the goods-producing sector of the economy, the department's Bureau of Labor Statistics said.

But job growth appears to be slowing in some segments of the service field as well, Mr. Norwood said. For example, business services, one of the fastest-growing employment areas since the end of the last recession, added just 6,000 jobs in July.

Magic Valley unemployment edges up in June

TWIN FALLS — Unemployment in both the Magic Valley and in Idaho rose .5 of a percentage point due to layoffs in food processing and cutbacks by electronics manufacturers.

The seasonally adjusted rate for Twin Falls, Jerome and Gooding counties was 6.1 percent, up from 5.6 percent in June, said Lon McDonald, labor force analyst for the Idaho Department of Employment at Twin Falls.

The Magic Valley rate was boosted by a late June layoff at Idaho Frozen Foods Corp., the closing of GemTec Inc. in Twin Falls and miscellaneous new claims.

Statewide, unemployment jumped to 6.5 percent. About 28,900 people were out of work. It was the largest number off the job since last December.

State Employment Director Scott McDonald attributed the rise to early seasonal layoffs by agricultural processing companies and to the outsourcing of employees at electronic plants. Fire danger also centered logging.

"With additional layoffs on the horizon, the rate will probably not drop until October," he said. The department's monthly survey of forestry and support jobs lost due to a 45-percent cutback by Potlatch Corp. in its Idaho work force.

The state's highest unemployment rate is in the average county reported in northern Idaho, which is reported in Coeur d'Alene. The greatest change from June came in the Canyon County area, where the rate rose 2.2 percentage points to 9.5 percent.

Other areas and their July unemployment rates were: Boise, 6 percent; Boise, 4.5 percent; Pocatello, 6.2 percent; and Idaho Falls, 4.5 percent.

Rain assists crews fighting Butte blaze

The Associated Press

SALMON — Rain-pelted more than 1,800 firefighters Friday as they dug in to gain more ground against the two-week-old Butte fire in east-central Idaho's Salmon National Forest, bolstering firefighters' hopes of fully containing the blaze by Aug. 5.

"The fire has increased only slightly, and it's been raining in camp since early this morning," spokeswoman Dixie Dies said.

The decision to set a containment target came after days of fuel between the main line and uncertainty over whether fire crews would ever get the upper hand on the blaze that began July 20 with a lightning strike and has spread across more than 20,100 acres in a 31-square-mile triangle, destroying nearly $4 million in commercial timber. Fire suppression costs have run over $2 million.

The tide began to turn early this week when a series of storms brought rising humidity, some rain and lower temperatures to the mountainous region some 35 miles northwest of Salmon near Long Tom Mountain.

Fire crews, reinforced by another 300 people, quickly completed a critical auxiliary fire-line some two miles ahead of the fire and then took advantage of the humidity's another effect on the fire to move right in on its front to construct a main control line that could halt the fire's advance immediately.

Firefighters burned out fresh fuel between the main line and the head of the fire as they brought 50 percent of the blaze to containment.

The damp, cooler weather that has prevailed across most of the southern half of the state also effectively ended the long battle in west-central Idaho's Payette National Forest, where as many as 2,300 firefighters had been on line against blazes in the French Creek and Savage Creek drainages of the Salmon River system.

Cheyenne flood leaves dozen dead

By MARGUERITE HERMAN
The Associated Press

CHEYENNE, Wyo. — Rescuers searched a flooded creek for bodies and snowplows cleared hail from a main-street Friday after the worst thunderstorm in memory sparked flash flooding and left at least 12 people dead and dozens injured.

The victims included a sheriff's deputy and a little girl he was trying to rescue. A woman and her two dogs were found dead in a basement. The police and county civil defense were flooded out of their offices and residents put on board to walk gingerly over the rubble-strewn trail that piled up Thursday night.

"I was like someone opened a faucet immediately above Cheyenne and set it on super," she said.

Travel biggest expense for Idaho's congressmen

By DEAN S. MILLER
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — With their constituents scattered across districts the size of three or four East Coast states and thousands of miles from the capital, intermountain congressmen, including Idaho Representatives Larry Craig and Richard Stalling, are spending a large share of their expense accounts on travel.

The base expense allowance for congressmen starts at $67,000 per year for office expenses and $394,000 for staff and clerk salaries.

Above that, base allowance of $67,000, congressional expense allowances vary according to the distance a congressman's district is from Washington, D.C., and according to the average price per mile for travel there.

Other adjustments to the expenses are made for the price of long-distance phone calls and for variations in the cost of office rentals in the members' districts.

And although the staff of the Committee on House Administration will not give out the exact dollar figure a congressman is allotted, records of the clerk of the House show that the Washington and district offices of the average congressman in the intermountain region cost $123,308 in the first three months of 1985 and $134,076 in the last quarter of 1984.

Expense records are not available immediately after the end of each quarter, since they are published in a single paper-bound book of nearly 2,000 pages.

Idaho's Republican 1st District congressman, Rep. Larry Craig, spent more than the intermountain average both quarters. His offices cost taxpayers $132,078.62 between Jan. 1 and March 31 of 1985 and $123,308 in the last quarter of 1984.

Democratic 2nd District congressman Richard Stalling spent $106,680, in the first quarter of 1985 and his predecessor, George Hansen, spent $127,986 in the last quarter of 1984.

Craig's office administrator, Yvonne Messick, said travel is the congressman's biggest expense. "It costs a heck of a lot to get around in Idaho... we spend a lot of money for travel for the congressman."

She said congressmen with smaller districts closer to Washington, D.C.,

Rains drench wide areas over nation

By The Associated Press
 Rain drenched Florida and much of the nation's midsection Friday, as rescue workers in Cheyenne, Wyo., searched flooded roads, houses and creeks for victims of a thunderstorm that killed at least 11 people.

Showers and thunderstorms were scattered from southern Montana across Wyoming to Idaho, as strong thunderstorms developed over the central Rockies. Thunderstorms poured heavy rain on Florida, and showers and thunderstorms were reported in Georgia, the lower Mississippi valley, the central Plains, the southern Rockies and southeastern Arizona.

Strong winds from the northern and middle Atlantic coast to the upper and middle Mississippi valley "was hot and humid in Texas and Louisiana, where temperatures were generally in the 90s and, in some areas, 100 degrees.

Temperatures around the nation at 1 p.m. MDT ranged from 48 degrees at "Butte, Mont., to 100 degrees at Beville and Temple, Texas.

Confidentiality ruling reversed

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A federal judge Friday reversed his own ruling and said that a former FBI agent accused of espionage did not knowingly waive his privilege of confidentiality in conversations with his wife.

The ruling barred the government from using as evidence secretly tape-recorded phone conversations between Richard W. Miller and his wife, Paula.

One of those conversations, taped by FBI agents while Miller was under surveillance, was used as evidence during the trial of his co-defendants, Soviet spies Svetlana and Nikolay Ogorodnikov.

However, U.S. District Judge David Kenyon's decision is not expected to affect the Ogorodnikov case because both pleaded guilty after their trial began. Both were sentenced to prison.

Train collision ignites fires

WESTMINSTER, Colo. (AP) — Two Burlington Northern freight trains collided here Friday, killing three crewmen and causing an explosion and fire that sent flames 100 feet into the air and enveloped the area in thick black smoke.

In addition to the three dead, two others were missing and still missing, said West Adams Fire Chief David McCarty. There were five crew members on the two trains, officials said.

The accident, which occurred about 7:30 p.m. on tracks below the Boulder Turnpike, derailed at least a dozen cars and caused one lane of the overpass to collapse. The four-lane highway, U.S. 36 between Denver and Boulder, was closed.

Wild bee hives being poisoned

LOST HILLS, Calif. (AP) — State agents zapped wild bee hives Friday with poison spray in the third day of an intense campaign to curb the nation's first intrusion of African "killer bees."

Workers had destroyed nearly three dozen wild hives by early Friday, said Wayne Baggett, a spokesman for the state Agriculture Department.

Authorities have also placed a 400-square-mile quarantine around Lost Hills, barring the movement of commercial hives or honey out of the area, a move that has angered some local beekeepers.

Currently, about 20 agents, dressed in protective clothing, are killing wild bees, Baggett said, but that number "will go up Monday when we gear up for the full project force."

Nicaraguan rebels surrounded

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — Government troops Friday surrounded 800 to 1,000 anti-Sandinista rebels in northern Estero province, the Defense Ministry said, after the guerrillas had daringly attacked a town near the capital.

A ministry spokesman said the rebel force had broken up into small fighting groups and that government troops had killed 41 rebels and captured 10 others. The ministry said most of the casualties came after guerrillas attacked La Trinidad, 75 miles north of Managua, early Thursday.

There was no independent confirmation of the Defense Ministry's statement.

U.S. halts further aid to Peru

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States has banned new aid to Peru because the country is more than a year behind on payments for $200,000 in military equipment, the State Department said Friday.

Greg Lagana, a department spokesman, said the ban went into effect Thursday.

Judge trims Carnes' sentence

PROVO, Utah (AP) — A 4th District judge has granted a reduced sentence for Charles Alan Carnes, one of four men sentenced in the July, 1984 slayings of an American Fork woman and her 14-month-old daughter.

Carnes, was sentenced last fall to three consecutive terms of five years in prison for his involvement in the murders of Brenda Wright Laferty and her infant daughter, Erica.

Judge J. Robert Block approved a request by defense attorney Tom Patton to allow Carnes' three prison terms to run concurrently.

Vogers said he then looked back for the plane and saw "a big explosion" "the ball of fire and the mushroom cloud."

Firefighters spread foam and a stream of ambulances left the scene.

Eighteen injured people, including an infant who later died, were brought to Parkland, said hospital spokesman Greg Graze. Among the injured were a 60-year-old man with burns and a 16-year-old with cuts and bruises.

Five survivors were taken to Community Hospital died.

Wind "shear" is caused by microwaves. Sudden and intense downward blasts of cool air from bottoms of clouds that often occur during thunderstorms. It has been blamed in 16 airliner accidents in the last 20 years, the most recent one being the crash of Iran Air Flight 720 on July 9, 1982, that killed 283 people at Kemmer, La., outside New Orleans.

Barker said "everything that can be done is done by the airlines, and by the National Weather Service, and by FAA to keep aircraft out of known thunderstorms. Just what happened and why the aircraft was there this time, of course, is what will be determined by the board."

Delta's last accident involved a DC-9 airplane in July 1973 at Logan Airport in Boston.

The airline last June owned or leased 292 jets.

The National Transportation Safety Board dispatched a crew from Washington to investigate the crash, said board spokesman Bob Buckhorn.

Flight 191 left Fort Lauderdale on a non-stop flight to Dallas at 4:17 p.m. EDT, said Martha Zaleski, Delta reservations clerk in Miami.

high velocity," Cheyenne Mayor Don Erickson said at a news conference Friday, where he put the damage at millions of dollars.

On Friday, rescue teams searched around Dry Creek, pulling victims from cars and trying to find owners of empty vehicles in the creek bed. The National Army geared up to provide emergency clothing and shelter.

"We've had a lot of calls," said Capt. Steve Owen. "They've lost almost everything they have and don't have anything to change into."

Water was receded by Friday morning, but was still several feet deep in parking lots and Holiday Park. On Thursday night, streets had been filled with 6 feet of water, and rescue workers took to canoes to get around cars and trucks.

Water damage was not apparent to residents of the street at 8 a.m. "It happened so fast," said Lois Nordberg, a north Cheyenne resident who climbed to her roof to avoid rising waters.

"I was watching through the kitchen window and the water was flowing down the street," she said. "I went into the living room and picked up a magazine and then I heard the sound of running water. I walked into the kitchen and there was water coming through the door. In five minutes, it was everywhere. Authorities started the day with 20 people on the list of missing, and we've been finding them safe here and there. Hopfully, that will continue." Larimore County Sheriff's Lt. Dan Broyles.

By late Friday, 12 people were confirmed dead, and all the missing had been accounted for, the sheriff's department said.

Most of the victims drowned when they were caught in cars that were quickly submerged, Cheyenne Police Chief Byron Rookstool said.

Seventy people were injured, the mayor said. Most suffered lacerations and bruises. Only two people were hospitalized Friday night, the mayor said.

"It just kept coming and coming harder and harder. I've lived here 25 years and have never seen it rain that hard, that long," said Jim Thomas of Western Hardware. But filters, a business, had been in one-in-100-or-200-year thing," said Bill Parker of the National Weather Service.

A severe thunderstorm watch was issued again Friday. And the weather service forecast a 60 percent chance of damaging winds, large hail, heavy rain and dangerous lightning.

In less than four hours beginning about 6 p.m. Thursday, a slow-moving storm dumped 6 inches of rain, half the usual annual precipitation, six inches of hail fell, but the rain pushed it into eight-foot drifts that blocked streets in one area.

The previous record for a 24-hour period in Cheyenne was 5.3 inches on July 15, 1896, said weather forecaster Christopher Scott.

Dry and Crow creeks, which run through the north and south parts of Cheyenne, swept cars off streets into their waters. Cars were tossed on top of one another, telephone booths were torn from their bases, benches across the city were filled with water.

The storm spawned three tornadoes, but no damage was reported from them.

Cars were still piled up Friday where the water had pushed them down streets, and snowplows were used to shove aside hail on Pershing Boulevard.

Cheyenne was holding, but personnel were watching closely for any new rainfall.

Utah: Fair cool nights and mostly sunny days through Sunday. Highs tonight in the upper 40s and 50s. Lows today mostly in the 60s and Sunday from the mid-50s to low 60s.

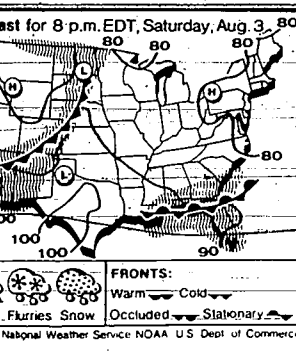

Nevada: Clear cool nights and sunny days with a warming trend through the weekend. Overnight lows upper 30s to low 50s. Highs both days lower 80s to mid 90s.

Synopsis: The National Weather Service says an upper level wave was located in central Idaho Thursday, with high pressure along the coast and moving inland.

The cold low moved slowly westward early Friday morning, allowing warmer, drier air to bring more summertime conditions to most of the state this weekend.

High-level clouds continued over north and central Idaho while portions of the south enjoyed a cool, spring-like day. Rain showers, at times heavy, occurred in the central mountains, with 1/2 to 1 inch of rain reported at Salmon reporting 1/2 inch. Westerly winds gusting up to 25 mph were reported in southern Idaho at both Burley and Pocatello.

Budget squabbling continues

WASHINGTON (AP) — Even after Congress left town on summer vacation, bickering continued Friday over the meaning of the $967.6 billion budget package passed last week and whether the fiscal 1986 spending blueprint will do anything to diminish the government's sea of red ink.

"It's better than no budget at all," said Treasury Secretary James A. Baker III, reflecting the ambivalence in Congress and the Reagan administration over the compromise the House and Senate quickly passed Thursday night on their way to a month-long recess.

"It was important yesterday that we passed that budget," said Senate Democratic Leader Robert C. Byrd of West Virginia. "It won't make a deep impact on the deficit, but I'm glad we won't be going back to our constituents with no budget at all. It was a step in the right direction."

The Senate calculated that the plan contained a $55.5 billion deficit-reduction package for next year, while the House pegged the savings at $57.4 billion. In either case, the deficit for the fiscal year beginning Oct. 1 was projected at $171.9 billion.

Three-year savings are $276.2 billion by Senate reckoning and $279.6 by House figures. However, congressional economists are less optimistic.

The non-partisan Congressional Budget Office estimated that the recommended savings for next year will amount to $39 billion. In addition, the budget writers predicted the deficit by 1988 will shrink to just under $113 billion.

The CBO, however, said that even with all the savings outlined in the budget, the deficit still would be about $162 billion three years from now.

In addition, the budget document projects that the ceiling on the national debt will have to be raised from its current $1.9 trillion to more than $2.3 trillion in 1988 to accommodate all the red ink that will be flowing. The administration and congressional leaders had set a goal at the beginning of the year to get a deficit-reduction package that would cut deficits by more than half — to less than $100 billion — by 1988.

Approved Compromised $967.6 Billion 1986 Budget

A $55 billion deficit reduction package, leaving a $172 billion deficit in 1986

The plan's $276.5 billion deficit reduction over three years will leave a deficit of more than $112 billion in 1988

Major items of the House-Senate approved Budget:

-  Shuns any tax increase
-  Safeguards the cost-of-living increases in Social Security
-  Enables Pentagon budget growth with inflation
-  Freezes on Medicare payments to hospitals and doctors
-  A 15% cut for Amtrak and Mass Transit programs

The budget is really little more than a blueprint for Congress to follow in making its spending and revenue decisions. The plan does not require the president's signature.

"We really haven't cut federal spending," said Senate Majority Leader Robert Dole, R-Kan. "We can't cut federal spending a lot more."

"And we really haven't reduced the deficit that much," he said in an appearance on NBC-TV's "Today" show. "It's a small step forward. It's not a big step. But again, it's better than nothing at all."

But Rep. William H. Gray III, D-Pa., chairman of the House Budget Committee, expressed irritation at such statements.

"Some people might say it's a bunny hop," Gray told reporters. "But it is a step... It is certainly more than a bunny hop. It is a strong step forward."

Nonetheless, Gray did not take issue with the budget office estimates and acknowledged that further action, including tax increases, will be necessary to meet deficits.

Dole also said the savings claimed for next year are "probably closer to somewhere in the $40 billion range."

He added: "I doubt Congress will do all the things we've been asked to do, and the deficit will really be much larger in three years than anticipated in the debate on the budget resolution."

Sen. Pete V. Domenici, R-N.M., chairman of the Senate Budget Committee, also has said the deficit problem cannot be solved without turning to taxes or reductions in the cost of benefit programs such as Social Security or both.

But President Reagan repeatedly dismissed any suggestions of tax increases this year, saying he wanted to see further cuts in federal spending.

Gray countered, "We have got a sea of red ink so deep you're not going to be able to cut your way out of it."

He added that the president refused to consider tax increases this year because "Ronald Reagan didn't want Walter Mondale to go on the 'Today' show and say I told you so."

In last year's presidential campaign Democratic nominee Mondale repeatedly said Reagan had a secret plan for raising taxes after he was re-elected.

U.S. reacts mildly to bombing statement

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration reacted with understanding Friday to Japanese Prime Minister Yasuhiro Nakasone's declaration that the U.S. atomic bombings of Hiroshima and Nagasaki were an "indiscriminate attack on civilians" that violated international law.

"The United States understands the special sentiments of the Japanese people, as the only nation to suffer an atomic attack, with regard to nuclear weapons," said a State Department spokesman, William Lenderking.

Japan has risen out of the devastation of World War II to become a major U.S. ally and the bulwark of our defense posture in the Pacific," he added.

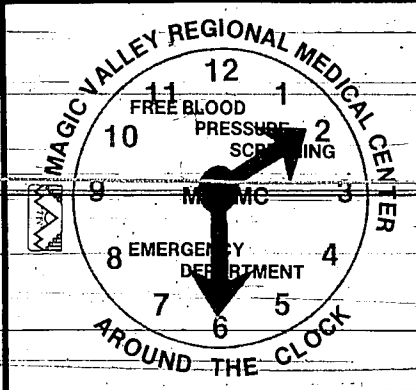

"We believe we should direct our attention not toward events of the past, but toward further strengthening our relationship for the future," Lenderking said.

Nakasone also was quoted by Kyodo News Service on Thursday as calling the bombing an "inhuman act."

A State Department official, speaking on the condition that he remain anonymous, said he did not know what international law Nakasone may have meant.

And the official said it was not helpful to the current relationship to raise such issues 40 years after the bombing.

On the other hand, he said, most Americans believe "it may have been a devastating weapon but it did shorten the war — so our approach is different."

Battle lines drawn over farm bill for '85

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration drew its battle lines Friday on the 1985 farm bill, with Agriculture Secretary John Block accusing Congress of "drifting off into fantasyland" and turning the legislation into a budget buster.

Bills drafted by both the House and Senate agriculture committees, but left uncompleted when Congress began its month-long recess Thursday night, are at least $16 billion more expensive than the amount allotted for farm programs in the newly approved congressional budget, Block told reporters.

"Discipline is upon us, whether we like it or not," he said. "It's time to come back to the ground and face the realities."

Block called on Congress to make several changes in the bills when it returns in September, chief among them a reduction in "target prices," the primary income subsidy for farmers.

The House version of the bill now contains an effective four-year freeze on such income guarantees, the Senate bill a two-year freeze. Block said targets should not be frozen, but should be cut beginning next year. Target prices apply to the major crops: wheat, corn, cotton and rice.

"Lowering the target price is necessary. Gradually, yes, not overnight," he said, contending that high income guarantees based on a farmer's traditional production only encourage surplus output and put downward pressure on commodity prices.

Block said he believed it was possible to reduce target levels and still "provide a program that is compassionate and gentle in reducing government involvement in agriculture."

Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan., said Congress "may end up over budget" on agricultural programs in order to push through a 1985 farm bill, but it "can't be very much."

He also emphasized that the administration must provide new signals to lawmakers on the amount of agricultural spending the president will accept.

Old foes square off

JUNEAU, Alaska (AP) — Two former Watergate lawyers squared off Friday before a Senate panel considering whether to impeach Gov. Bill Sheffield, with one saying there is "clear and convincing" evidence the governor lied under oath and the other saying Sheffield's memory was clouded by a busy schedule.

Senate lawyer Sam Dash, former counsel to the U.S. Senate Watergate committee, and Sheffield's lawyer, former Watergate prosecutor Philip Lacovara, delivered summations on the 11th day of impeachment proceedings against the governor. Their statements came amid signs the votes were not there to impeach Sheffield.

Impeachment proceedings were launched after the grand jury last month accused the governor of steering a $9.1 million state office lease to political fund-raiser Lenny Arsenault, who had a minor interest in the building for which the lease eventually was signed. The grand jury did not indict Sheffield.

"I suggest that the evidence can support the conclusion that the governor's preference for (Fairbanks) building... dates from the time Lenny Arsenault told him of his ownership interest," said Dash.

Judge drops lawsuits over KAL jet loss

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal judge, saying he did not have jurisdiction to hold the Soviet Union liable for shooting down Korean Air Line Flight 007, on Friday dismissed a lawsuit by relatives of the 269 people killed in the 1983 attack.

U.S. District Judge Aubrey E. Robinson Jr. also dismissed lawsuits against Boeing Co., the plane's manufacturer, and Litton Systems, Inc., which made the 747 jumbo jet's navigation system. He ruled the two companies could not be held responsible for the "deliberate destruction" of the aircraft by Soviet jet fighters.

The plane was shot down over the Sea of Japan on Sept. 1, 1983 after it strayed off course into Soviet airspace while en route from Anchorage, Alaska to Seoul. Sixty-four of the people aboard were Americans.

In a 17-page opinion, Robinson ruled that foreign governments cannot be sued over state actions under the Foreign Sovereign Immunities Act of 1976 and the Alien Tort Claims Act.

In dismissing the lawsuits against Boeing and Litton, the judge rejected arguments that the two companies could be held responsible for possible equipment failure that caused the plane to stray off course into Soviet airspace.

Fed chairman denies report

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Reserve Board on Friday denied a published report that Federal Reserve Chairman Paul Volcker will leave the central bank next year.

Fed spokesman Joseph Coyne branded the report by syndicated columnist Jack Anderson as "pure speculation." The chairman has no plans to leave.

Anderson's column said Volcker has told intimates that government service had "drained him personally and financially."

Volcker, first appointed by President Carter, was reappointed chairman by President Reagan in 1983. His current term runs until Aug. 7, 1987.

Press day Sunday

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan signed a congressional resolution Friday designating Sunday as Freedom of the Press Day.

It marks the 50th anniversary of the trial of John Peter Zenger, a German immigrant printer and journalist whose acquittal in a libel suit established the first important victory for freedom of the press in the English colonies of North America.

'Death squad' blamed in latest slaying

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa — Anti-apartheid activists charged Friday that a death squad sent by the white government assassinated a black civil rights lawyer, the fifth anti-apartheid leader slain in mysterious circumstances in five weeks.

The outlawed African National Congress accused President P. W. Botha's government of sending a death squad to kill Nonyamezo Mxenge. The main legal anti-apartheid movement in South Africa, the United Democratic Front, expressed suspicion that "the state or its allies" arranged the killing.

There were fears that Mrs. Mxenge's death will cause a new surge of unrest in Natal, her home province.

Police appealed for help in finding the killers and said it was useless to make "irresponsible, unfounded or unsubstantiated allegations" implicating South African authorities.

In Washington, State Department spokesman Charles D. Freeman called on South Africa to "find and prosecute the perpetrators of this heinous crime."

Mrs. Mxenge, 43, was a defense attorney for 16 leaders of the anti-apartheid front who face treason charges in Pietermaritzburg, near the Natal port city of Durban.

National police headquarters in Pretoria announced the arrests of 65 more people overnight, bringing the total to 1,384 in the 13-day-old state of emergency imposed to quell a year of protest and riot. An estimated 500 blacks have been killed in the violence. Police said they had released 48 of the detainees, who can be held indefinitely.

Cape province has suffered some of the worst violence against apartheid. The legal system of race discrimination in South Africa's 5 million whites use to control the voteless black majority of 24 million.

Rival journalists join strike at BBC

LONDON (AP) — Journalists at the Independent Television voted Friday to join a strike called by rival television news organizations. The BBC had been urged by the government not to broadcast the existing Corp. after the BBC cancelled a program on the Irish Republican Army.

Chile's military police commander resigns post

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP) — Gen. Cesar Mendoza, the national police commander and a member of the military Junta, resigned Friday, radio reports said, after a judge accused 12 policemen of involvement in the killings of three Communist Party members.

Hundreds of people protesting the military government had surged into the streets in response to the judge's ruling and battled with police, who used tear gas and water cannon. Sporadic clashes continued in downtown Santiago for eight hours. The semi-official Orbe news agency said 34 people were arrested including Claudio Huepe, a former Christian Democrat congressman.

Mendoza's resignation was announced by several radio stations. It was not immediately confirmed by the government, but sources said a communique would be issued.

The resignation poses a political problem for President Augusto Pinochet, the army commander who led the coup that ousted the elected government of the late Marxist president, Salvador Allende, in 1973.

In the ruling that led to the street demonstrations, Judge Jose Canaves said 14 police officers, including two colonels, "had participation" in the March 30 slayings of the three Communists, whose throats were cut.

All 14 officers were dismissed Thursday from the Carabineros, the paramilitary national police that Mendoza led. The policemen were subsequently arrested.

Leftists scoff at statement

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — Left-wing guerrillas on Friday dismissed as "totally false" Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger's assertion that Salvadoran troops had retaliated against the terrorists who killed six Americans.

"It is totally false that any member of the commandos has been captured or has fallen in combat," the rebels said in a broadcast by Radio Venceremos, their clandestine station.

The broadcast of a communique from the Farabundo Martí National Liberation Front said: "It is also false that the army has inflicted 21 casualties on us and given a blow of any significant military importance to any of our organizations, much less through a supposed fantastic special operation with the help of North American intelligence services."

Scholars call doctor's student 'hostage' idea impossible

CHICAGO (AP) — A proposal to exchange 250,000 U.S. and Soviet college students, chosen by lottery as "hostages" to avert the threat of nuclear war is commendable, but impossible, scholars and negotiators say.

"I think we're all sympathetic with the sentiments that give rise to such proposals," said Cynthia Kaplan, an assistant professor at the University of Chicago who specializes in Soviet politics.

But Kaplan, who has visited the Soviet Union 13 times, labeled the idea "impossible," citing not only the prohibitive costs for the Soviets and their reluctance to expose students to the outside world, but differences in the two educational systems that make exchanges "extraordinarily complicated."

The proposal was made by Dr. E. Grey Diamond, one of the first participants in medical exchanges with China and twice a visitor to the Soviet Union.

In an article in today's Journal of the American Medical Association, which is devoted entirely to nuclear war and atomic radiation, Diamond said Americans have a "near-bankrupt" store of ideas for approaching the Soviets.

The journal also contains a proposal to add a clause against nuclear war to oaths that U.S. doctors take on graduating from medical school. Such a clause was added to the Soviet doctors' oath in 1983.

The clause would say, "As a physician, I will strive to keep my patients' society and the world safe from the threat of nuclear war," according to the proposal by a group of doctors led by Dr. Christine K. Cassel, head of the department of internal medicine at the University of Chicago.

Diamond, provost emeritus of the University of Missouri-Kansas City School of Medicine, wrote: "An exchange of each nation's best young people makes more sense than even a remote threat of a nuclear exchange."

But others familiar with U.S.-Soviet relations dismissed the proposal.

"Each of the populations of the United States and the Soviet Union already are hostages in some sense. In that respect, it would be a redundant step," said U.S. Arms Control and Disarmament Agency spokesman Joseph D. Lehman.

"The idea is totally preposterous and inconceivable," said Paul Kamenar, executive director of the Washington Legal Foundation, a conservative group interested in legal issues.

For one thing, provisions of the Constitution could be invoked against forcing Americans to live in a totalitarian state, including First Amendment rights to freedom of speech, religion and association, Kamenar said.

"Even if you could do it legally . . . the notion that the Soviet Union would somehow be constrained (not) to engage in warfare because some of its citizens are in the United States shows a naïveté that is beyond belief," he said, adding that the Soviets have 4 million citizens in forced labor camps.

Diamond proposed using 250,000 young adults from each country for the two-year program, with equal numbers of women and men—all single—selected by national lottery and 20 to 25 years old.

He said they would attend university classes from September to June and tour the host country during the summer.

All students could live in dormitories, where each would have a roommate of his own nationality but otherwise be mixed in with students of the host country, Diamond said.

The idea of exchanging citizens and students dates to the city-states of ancient Greece, he said. "Caesar in his 'Commentaries' describes exchanges as a means of gaining understanding between tribes."

Diamond suggested the pool of students for the exchange be the top-third academically. To prevent students' intentionally lowering their grades, the bottom two-thirds could be a pool for military service, he said.

Reunion brings 200 former students to Iowa

Alumni of long-defunct college return

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — Midwestern College went bust 15 years ago, but at least 200 former students of the liberal arts school on Friday converged on rural Denison, Iowa, anyway for a reunion without a campus.

"They may have a hard time remembering themselves the way they were. The former college's buildings are now a state job training center. The Washburn, where many students gobbled chicken and sandwiches, is long gone. So is the Red Lantern. Another favorite watering hole, the Candy Kitchen, shut down six months ago.

But reunion organizer Marilyn Wright says there's still plenty of what many Midwestern students chose the school for in the first place — the pleasant, friendly atmosphere of Denison.

"The welcome of the community when we first came here was fantastic," she said. "That's my warmest memory."

Mrs. Wright and her husband, Bill, came to Denison in 1965 as part of the first Midwestern class, which braved winter classes in new rooms without windows, stayed in seedy hotel rooms while dormitory construction continued and heard grass at the unfinished college. One year after their graduation in 1969, the college closed.

She came from Chicago and he came from Massapequa on New York's Long Island. Like many of the college's students, they were get-away-from-here-for-life types and they both liked Denison so much that they married and stayed to teach in the town's schools.

But most of the approximately 2,000 former students scattered. It has taken more than two years to organize a reunion for a liberal arts college which didn't last long enough to keep track of its graduates.

"The mailing list was the hard part. There were no alumni records whatsoever," Mrs. Wright said. "All we had was the list of original students, which was mainly their parents' addresses. That's what we started with, but a lot of our letters came back addresse unknown."

"Our biggest aid was contacting people we knew and having them send us their addresses—that they had," she said. "We finally ended up with about 700 on our list, and about 200 of those are coming back."

The reunion was scheduled to begin with dinner Friday night at Crink's restaurant, followed by breakfast Saturday morning at the job training center which used to be the college. Then there's a picnic at Yellowstone Park and in the evening it's back to Crink's for a memorial banquet program.

"We're having a slide show and old radio interviews with students and faculty back in 1965," Mrs. Wright said. There will also be nostalgic speeches by former students and faculty members.

And there will probably be a toast or two to the school's illustrious football team, the Packers, which had to disband for lack of funds after its first season in 1965. But what a season.

"They were undefeated that year," Mrs. Wright said.

Tough to find impartial jury

JANESVILLE, Wis. (AP) — A man accused of beating three collic puppies to death with a baseball bat pleaded guilty to reduced charges after prosecutors said they feared they couldn't find an impartial jury.

Gerald Hopp, 32, of Janesville was fined $125 after pleading guilty to disorderly conduct. He had been charged with three counts of cruelty to animals.

A mistrial was declared in December when prospective jurors said they could not be impartial. Tom McClure, who prosecuted the case then, blamed the Christmas spirit for the jurors' inability to overcome Hopp's innocence.

District Attorney James Daley said he decided to allow Hopp's plea Wednesday because he was afraid he would again be unable to find an impartial jury if another effort was made to bring the case to trial.

This gem show presently being held at Burley High School has attracted 20 exhibitors

Lapidarists stress thrills of rock collecting at Burley gem show

By LINDA LARSON
Times-News correspondent

BURLEY — "Rock collecting is an interesting hobby because there is no end to what you can get involved in since it includes all the earth sciences," said Carroll Dillon, a lapidarist by avocation.

Dillon is vice president of the National Federation of Mineralogical Societies (NFMS) and one of the 20 exhibitors at the gem show being held today and Sunday at Burley High School.

"This hobby need not be expensive," said Dillon, who started out as a gem enthusiast 11 years ago when he helped a young son with a rock collecting project. Dillon said he started out with a converted table saw that he rebuilt himself, added a diamond blade and began a hobby that has brought him and his wife from their home in Washington to attend the NFMS-sponsored show.

Dillon is a businessman who does lapidary work in his spare time. Others at the Burley show are full-time rockhounds who make a living from their trade.

On display at the gem show is an exhibit of the Spencer Mine, an opal mine 16 miles north of Idaho Falls which is owned by Claudia and Doyle Haight and Mark and Geraldine Stetter. Purchased in 1961, the mine has been the sole source of income for the two families since 1969.

The two families (Claudia is daughter to the Stettlers) worked together to mine the opals, but they also allow the public to search for opals in the mine. For a $17.50 fee, a digger can spend the day at the open pit mine and carry away five pounds of material, family members say.

Claudia Haight said she markets the opals in every form, from the rock mineral to the finished gem set into jewelry. She also can design and create the gold jewelry.

Alcohol abuse subject at press club meeting

Schools need ALATEEN groups, activist says

By PAULA EUBANKS
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Alcohol information has a place in children's school studies now more than ever, said a local anti-alcoholism activist.

Archie Walker, Buhl School District superintendent, Gus Spiropoulos, Walker and Spiropoulos outlined the role schools should play in alcohol education and alcohol abuse prevention Friday to members of the Sawtooth Press Club.

Walker encouraged each school in Idaho to form an ALATEEN support group for teens interested in discussing alcohol abuse of family members and friends and their own drinking habits.

ARCHIE WALKER Warns of alcohol's effects

"ALATEEN would be the best program in school," Walker said. "They need to see that they're not the only ones."

"He added that schools do not do enough to make young people aware of the affects of alcohol and that adults deny alcohol is a problem in our era when the problem is worsening."

He said that "everybody showed up" for a community meeting on drug abuse at a Gooding school, but only two parents came to a seminar on alcoholism, even after extensive advertising.

"With drugs they're willing to deal. But with alcohol, they man, you're stepping on my toes," Walker said.

"The backbone of the disease (alcoholism) is denial," he said. "Yet, 40 percent of American families acknowledge the disease (is within their family)."

Alcohol abuse "serverly debilitates" families, "ecosystems," he said. Walker, who is 65, added that as a recovered alcoholic and a son of an alcoholic, he knows there is "no love in an alcoholic home." He said he hopes alcohol education will break the chain.

Alcohol education begins with talking about it, he said. "The alcoholic house rules are: Don't feel, don't trust and don't talk."

Spiropoulos said that while he supports alcohol education in schools, schools "take a hum rap."

It is a question of "responsibility of who should educate kids in all facets of their lives, including drugs and alcohol," Spiropoulos said.

"Parents should teach about alcohol in the home," Spiropoulos said. "It's easy to point fingers and say the schools are not doing enough."

"What kids do after they get home (from school) and during summer vacation, that's the parents' role," he added.

An audience member questioned an alcoholic parent's ability to educate their child about alcohol abuse.

"We all have to get involved," Spiropoulos said. "But it depends on the community," he said of parents' resistance to teaching social issues in the schools.

The Buhl School District is involved by offering a drug and alcohol abuse course to 6th graders.

Buhl will start a larger, new program on drug and alcohol education next year that will teach about abuse to kindergarten through 12th grade students.

In previous courses, students studied alcohol and drug abuse five hours per week during a 10-week session.

He said the old course stressed values clarification that permits a young person to decide for herself or himself what attitude to take towards alcohol.

Students' attitudes are partially formed after watching films of the effects of alcohol on a person, he said. "The films show what happens when someone goes 'sloppy drunk' or comes home drunk."

He added that alcohol abuse is a problem in Buhl and other districts and believes that peer pressure is often the reason for abuse.

"I know there are kids who have taken drinks, but I don't know how many have been involved with drugs," Spiropoulos said.

Responding to Walker's suggestion of ALATEEN support groups in each school, Spiropoulos said "Superintendents would have to think its a good idea" before adopting the program.

He added that the program might cost too much for financially tight school districts.

School administrators would also want to review ALATEEN guidelines before the establishing the groups "to keep them out of left field," he said.

"It's a controversial subject."

Reed Grain gets into beans with purchase of warehouses

By BOB FREUND
Times-News writer

GOODING — Reed Grain Co. of Gooding will break into the bean business by acquiring operations formerly owned by Shields Inc. of Twin Falls.

Owner Bob Reed announced late Friday an agreement to buy Shields warehouses at Buhl, Hansen and Nampa, as well as Twin Falls Feed and Ice in Twin Falls.

"We're in the final stage of doing it," he said. "It will be finalized in the early part of next week."

The Shields family had been seeking a buyer for the properties for some time. The warehouses had been operating since May in voluntary receivership, said Shields attorney John Heworth.

Reed Grain will purchase the assets of Shields Inc. and Shields of Idaho Inc. from Idaho First National Bank. Reed declined to disclose the terms of the agreement, but said the deal involves more than $1 million worth of assets.

The former Shields business will be operated by a new corporation, Good Grain and Bean Co. Inc., involving sons Earl, Bob and Peter Reed, said Bob Reed.

With the acquisition, Reed Grain will double its storage for wheat and barley. The company currently has capacity for 1.5 million bushels in elevators at Hogen in Home, Richfield and its Gooding headquarters.

"It also will enter the dry-bean business with the 500,000-sack storage in Shields' terminals at Buhl, Hansen and Nampa. Each sack holds 100 pounds of beans."

The purchase is a move to spread the company's reach in territory and in products, Reed said. "We just feel we ought to be maybe a little bit more diversified," Reed said.

Reed Grain has not handled beans but Reed himself worked as a bean broker for Get State Bean Co. and western warehouse. Reed founded his own company 21 years ago with a $10,000 loan after the warehouse business failed.

The Shields family had operated bean and grain warehouses in the Magic Valley since 1917. However, after the death of James T. Shields in 1982, none of the family has been involved actively in the business.

Although the warehouses have continued to operate, 64-year-old Twin Falls Feed & Ice closed last September to cut costs.

Reed is the second commodities company in the valley recently to diversify by acquiring a warehouse system. Late last month, A & B Grain Inc. of Burley said it would pick up the assets of Bean Growers Warehouse Association Inc., entering its markets and entering the wheat business for the first time.

State officials lift water-boiling order; say North Oakley water system is clear

OAKLEY — State officials announced Friday the water-boiling order for the North Oakley water system has been canceled.

Gary Burkett, an environmental engineer for the Idaho Division of Environment, said Friday the source of a coliform bacteria infection was in the North Oakley water supply spring, not the well.

He said samples collected Monday, Tuesday, and Thursday were all clear. Water system lines had been flushed with chlorine to remove any organic material that might have been carried into the system by groundwater, Burkett said.

"Most of the time with the spring sources it just has to do with surface waters carrying organic material into the system," Burkett said.

"The owners will continue to disinfect the system and we will be monitoring it for the next few weeks to make sure the problem doesn't recur," Burkett said.

Burkett said that while coliform bacteria are not harmful to humans, their presence indicates other harmful bacteria may be present. The bacteria can be caused by fecal material and decaying leaves, he said. Officials did not find any obvious cause of the bacteria bloom, Burkett said.

S. Africa scouts camp at Jamboree

By ALAN CULLEY
Special to the Times-News

FORT A.P. HILL, Va. — The Snake River Area Council Scouts attending the National Scout Jamboree here are camped with one of 16 Scouts from South Africa at the Jamboree.

Paul Carolin, 15, is from Johannesburg, South Africa.

This is Paul's first time in the United States. He says he is enjoying his stay with the Snake River Scouts and wouldn't mind living in America. If he could live in a suburban area, Most of all, he enjoys meeting people. "It's a great experience," he says.

Paul is serving as the third assistant Scoutmaster for Jamboree Troop 994. Troop 994 consists of boys from Twin Falls, Burley and Rupert.

When asked what he thought when he saw New York City for the first time, he replied, "It looks a lot like Johannesburg."

He said the buildings are mainly the same, only they are much higher in New York

Many business firms have booths set up at the Jamboree. Apple, IBM, and AT&T are some of the high-tech companies that have displays.

Scout activities include aquatic activities, buckskin games and the merit badge midway. Rowing, canoeing and fishing are some of the aquatic activities. In the buckskin games, Scouts learn how to throw a hatchet, crack a whip and shoot a bow and arrow. At merit badge midway, Scouts can earn or learn about every merit badge available.

Trappers gather at Magic Mountain for powder shoot

By INA HADAM
Times-News correspondent

JEROME — The North Valley Free Trappers are holding a rendezvous at Magic Mountain Ski Resort today and Sunday.

Spokesman Mike Sullivan, who makes "black powder rifles," says more than 100 "shooters" have registered in competing several shooting events. With families and interested visitors, the club expects approximately 300 people to attend the rendezvous, which began Friday.

Sullivan says he and his family will be in authentic 1800s clothing for the weekend, adding that some people will "pack in" by horseback, which is more authentic than coming by car.

Trail walks are scheduled each day. In this event, competitors use black powder metal targets placed throughout the area. Sullivan says the club tries to duplicate as nearly as possible the conditions an old-time hunter encountered in a walk through the woods.

Other competitive events include the longbow and knife throwing contests as well as some "fun shoots" and categories for women and children, says Sullivan. Because of the weight of the muzzle loaders, children are allowed to use "rest" for their events.

Primitive camps are set up in lean-to tents and can't from kettles are used for cooking over the campfire.

In keeping with the era of the 1820s to 1840s, much of the food cooked this weekend will be wild game such as deer, elk, bear steaks or muskrat. Sullivan says a pollock tonight will stew several dishes using wild game.

Another important historical aspect of the rendezvous is trading among the people attending, which is intended to emulate the heyday of the fur trade.

Many people bring "oddments" to know all the other intricacies necessary to sell or trade. Trading items include serm, five a muzzle loader.

Sullivan says he's first became interested in muzzle loaders after trying one on a firing range. He bought a kit and built one and was for the primary purpose of bringing trappers, traders and Indians together to exchange and "barter" beaver skins for guns and other supplies.

As the popularity of beaver hats in stock, the "barrel" is fitted into the stock

Europe gave way to silk hats, the fur trade fell off and forts gradually replaced the rendezvous.

However, Sullivan says the interest in the muzzle loader or black powder rifle was never completely lost because of the expertise and skill necessary to use these rifles.

Sullivan says it is a challenge to use exactly the right amount of dry powder and the other intricacies necessary to know all the other intricacies necessary to use these rifles.

He bought a kit and built one and was for the primary purpose of bringing trappers, traders and Indians together to exchange and "barter" beaver skins for guns and other supplies.

He buys a piece of wood, barrel metal and the locks. After he shapes the wooden and then the "lock" or firing mechanism is fitted onto the gun.

A small indentation called the pan holds a small amount of powder which is ignited by the flint striking the lock and throwing the sparks into the pan, which was supposed to ignite the powder in the barrel. However, many times only the small amount of powder in the pan ignited and caused a spark or "flash," with nothing ignited in the barrel.

Sullivan says he has a "cap lock" on his own gun which is a little quieter and a little more reliable than the flint lock, but he says he gets more orders for guns with the flint lock than the cap lock.

He says his hobby provides him enough money to attend rendezvous in other parts of the state.

Week-long crusade starts Sunday

TWIN FALLS — Sunday is the first of seven nights of the Intermountain Crusade for Christ. The crusade is a week-long attempt to bring a "community spirit of sharing" to the Magic Valley, according to Crusade Chairman Jack Muldoon.

Nightly services begin at 7:30 p.m. in Bruin Stadium and feature an evangelist, Bill Glass, a community choir, and guest speakers such as ex-pro football player Rosie Grier, Vietnam veteran Clebe McClary, former pro soccer player Kyle Rote Jr., and former Miss America Shirley Cochran Barrett. Other activities will include daily prayer breakfasts Monday through Saturday; a soccer clinic Aug. 7 conducted by Rote, and a special ladies' luncheon Aug. 9.

According to Media Chairman Mike McBride, crusade organizers expect to fill up Twin Falls High School stadium every night of the crusade with people from all over the Magic Valley. Any excess offerings from the crusade will be donated to the Prison Crusades, a program that works with prison inmates around the country. Muldoon said. For more information, phone the crusade office at 734-0325.

Amish farmers in Kentucky won't have to put bright orange warning signs on their carriages.

Amish win legal battle over signs

GLASSBORO, Ky. (AP) — Amish farmers have a constitutional right not to put bright orange warning signs on their plain, black buggies because their conservative religion prohibits such displays, a judge ruled Friday.

The First Amendment compels toleration of sincerely held beliefs of minority religious groups," Warren District Judge Ben Dickinson said in dismissing a traffic ticket issued to an Amish man for not carrying a sign on his horse-drawn carriage marking it as a slow-moving vehicle.

Herman Zook, 27, claimed his community should be exempted from the state law requiring the signs because its religion forbids display of bright-orange and symbols of government authority.

Zook is among 67 members of an ultraconservative Amish order called the Swartzentrubers who settled in rural Barren County last winter after moving across the border from northwestern Tennessee.

Members of the community wear hand-sewn black suits and long-sleeved dresses even in the summer sun, and work their fields without benefit of electricity, gas engines or modern plumbing.

Zook testified at a hearing June 20 that his community, the only one of its kind in Kentucky, would have to leave the state rather than submit to a law members consider a sin.

Zook said he was pleased with the court's decision but would not comment further, deferring to the community's religious leader, Moses Yoder.

"It's good news," Yoder said. "We didn't have any idea which way it might go, but we were prepared to appeal."

The Amish were uncomfortable finding themselves in conflict with police, he said, but felt they could not compromise.

Almost all of the settlement's adult males drove their buggies into town for Zook's hearing. It was the first time in a courtroom for most of them, members said.

Symms raises $651,425 for campaign

Briefly

First Firebird crash suit filed

BOISE (AP) — A Caldwell man whose wife was killed when a car careened into a concession stand at the Firebird Raceway last weekend has filed a lawsuit seeking at least $3.5 million.

The suit filed Friday on behalf of Jeffrey Keith Winston, 24, charges negligence in last Saturday's crash of a modified race car at the track near Emmet. The accident killed Danielle Winston, 25, and sent more than two dozen people, including her husband, to hospitals.

Defendants in the 4th District Court lawsuit include Firebird Raceway; the American Drag Racing Association; Firebird owner Bill New; driver Jim Dunn; and raceway employee B.K. Newall. A trial was requested.

Mrs. Symms keeps improving

ALEXANDRIA, Va. (AP) — Frances Symms, wife of Idaho Republican Sen. Steve Symms, continued to improve Friday from surgery for complications due to a rare arthritic disease.

Mrs. Symms, 47, underwent a 2½-hour operation Tuesday to ease pain and hemorrhaging in her abdomen resulting from a type of arthritis that attacks the digestive organs.

The hospitalization of his wife has also prompted the senator to cancel weekend appearances back in Idaho, and Symms said other commitments later in the month would be handled on a week-to-week basis.

Idaho issues warrants for 3

BOISE (AP) — Authorities are concentrating on Oklahoma in their search for three former Florida residents involved in the questionable promotion of oil and gas leases, state Finance Director Tom McEldowney said.

Arrest warrants were issued at McEldowney's request against Alvin Bergerman, Emice Broerman and Chester Hall, all originally from Florida. The three along with Liberty Oil and Gas Corp. were among 128 defendants in a suit filed by McEldowney 15 months ago over what he claimed was an illegal promotion.

Last February, 4th District Judge Gerald Schroeder ordered the three and Liberty Oil and Gas to cease illegal operations in the state and repay investors who had become involved in their scheme.

BOISE (AP) — Sen. Steve Symms has raised $651,425 during the first six months of this year, or nearly half as much as he spent in 1980 to defeat the late Sen. Frank Church, according to a report filed with the Idaho secretary of state's office.

The report shows that Symms raised more than seven times as much as Gov. John Evans, who is expected to challenge the Republican incumbent in next year's election.

Symms reported 1,797 Idaho residents among his contributors, many contributing the maximum $2,000 per person.

The report, received Thursday, shows that Symms spent about $157,000 during the first half of 1985.

Phil Heberger, Symms' chief of staff, said the senator's political advisors said he should raise his campaign funds early so he could plan the expected race against Evans and eliminate money worries during the next of the election.

His largest single contribution so far this year came from the National Republican Senatorial Committee, which gave $15,000. Other political action committees that contributed to the Symms campaign included the Air Line Pilots Association, National Coalition for a Free Cuba, Amoco, Pitzer, American Bankers Association, American Hospital Association, Truck Operators Non-Partisan Committee, United Pacific Fund for Effective Government, Commodity Futures Political Fund, Mountain Bell, Morrison-Knudsen Co. Inc., Politech Employees' Political Fund and the Associated General Contractors of America.

Hansen whittles debt

BOISE (AP) — Former Republican Rep. George Hansen repaid only $3,000 toward a campaign debt of more than $113,000 during the first six months of the year, a campaign finance report filed with the secretary of state shows.

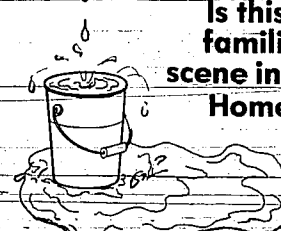

The debt is about one-third the amount Hansen spent in last year's race that saw him ousted from his seven-term House seat by Democrat Richard Stallings.

Hansen campaigned after he was convicted of falsifying personal financial disclosures the House requires of congressmen. He has appealed his conviction—and the sentence of $40,000 in fines and up to 15 months in prison.

The report received by the secretary of state on Friday also shows Hansen had $722 in his campaign chest when the six-month period ended. Expenditures totaling $3,692 included payments for travel and professional services.

Owners' bargainer criticizes Ueberroth plan

By JOHN NELSON
The Associated Press

NEW YORK — The labor chief for baseball's owners sharply rejected two points of Commissioner Peter Ueberroth's "potential solutions" Friday as the two sides planned to resume negotiations Saturday after a two-day lull.

Lee MacPhail said in a statement, after receiving copies of Ueberroth's proposals Friday morning, that he would continue to review the commissioner's recommendations in an attempt to avert Tuesday's strike deadline.

"Prior to doing that, however, I must express sharp disagreement with two of the suggestions made at yesterday's press conference," said MacPhail, president of the owners' Player Relations Committee.

Ueberroth's proposals, which seemed to be little new in any of Ueberroth's proposals, adding he was not surprised by MacPhail's reaction.

The two suggestions with which MacPhail took strongest exception were that owners stop blaming players for their financial difficulties and that owners put $45 million in escrow while the two sides negotiate how much of a pension raise the players get.

Negotiations with the union had been at a standstill. The two sides hadn't met since Wednesday, but Bob Fishel, executive vice president of the American League and the spokesman for MacPhail, said the two sides agreed to a resumption for noon MDT Saturday.

MacPhail was known to be angered by parts of Ueberroth's proposals which seemed to undermine a common thread through eight months of management negotiations with the union — that players must share responsibility in solving baseball's financial problems.

Fehr, acting executive director of the Major League Players Association, was in meetings with his staff most of Friday morning and afternoon, also reviewing what he said were seven proposals from the commission.

The first proposal called for the union to set aside its strike deadline and continue to negotiate on the talks' most troublesome issue: pensions, while finishing the season playoffs and the World Series. Fehr has said the union will not likely adjust its strike date.

Players have asked for $60 million annually as the owners' pension contribution. That figure represents about one-third of baseball's annual network television revenue, a percentage the union says is traditional. The owners' contribution last year was $15.5 million.

Ueberroth suggested the $45-million difference be put in escrow while the two sides set a 45-day period for negotiations on a pension raise. For each day negotiations continue, $1 million will be deducted from the difference and be given to charity as an incentive to find a speedy solution.

The second proposal asked owners, among other things, to stop asking players to help solve financial problems while dropping any discussion of a salary cap. The owners would negotiate a pension raise escalating from a 30 percent increase over $15.5 million to a 100 percent raise in five years. In return, owners would get favorable revisions in salary arbitration.

MacPhail said the escrow proposal was unacceptable. He said that although the yearly television payment hadn't yet been made, "It has already been committed for club operating expenses — primarily for major league players salaries," MacPhail said.

Twin Falls, Minico win

Magic Valley teams now play top-seeds in Legion tourney

By BRAD BRELAND and STEVE CRUMP
Times-News sports writers

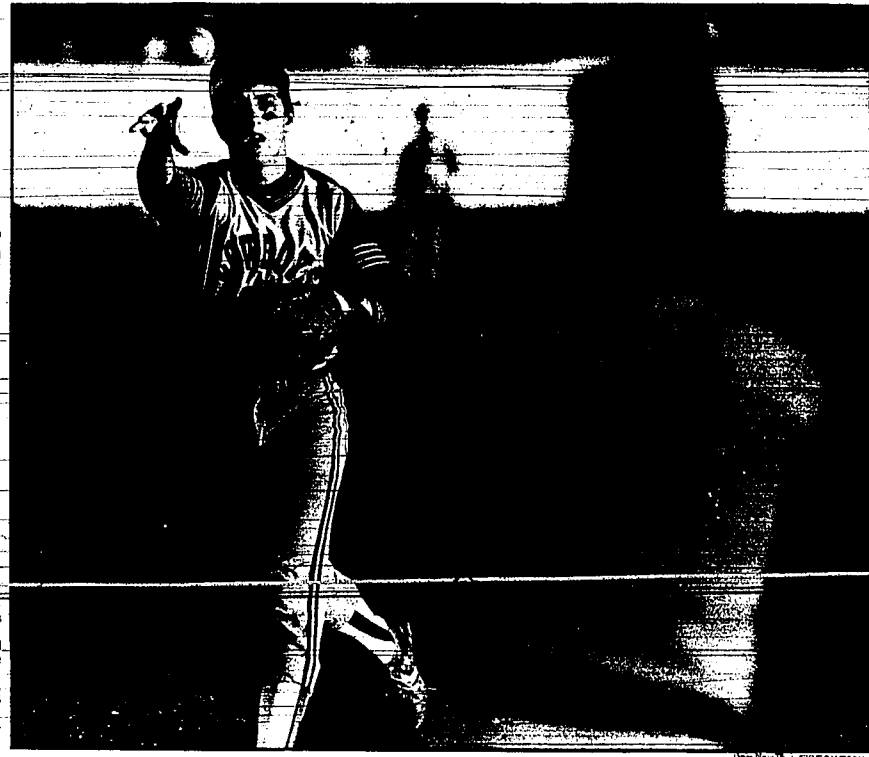

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls Cowboys and the Minico Sage both won their opening games Friday in the Southern Region A American Legion baseball tournament.

The Cowboys, seeded third in the tourney, whipped Blackfoot 5-1 behind a 14-strikeout performance by right-hander Tommy Prater. Minico came from behind in the ninth inning on hits by Tim Woods and Jesse Branson to edge Rexburg, 6-5.

Friday's games

Minico (undecided) vs. Idaho Falls (Bivens 6-1), 10 a.m.
Twin Falls (Harr no record available) vs. Pocatello (Newsome 5-3), 1:30 p.m.
Idaho Falls or Minico vs. Blackfoot (Schroeder, no record available), 5 p.m.
Twin Falls or Pocatello vs. Rexburg (Mortenson 1-2), 8:30 p.m.

After fielding a grounder, Matt Harr flips the ball to first baseman Rob Ellis (12) to retire Blackfoot's Todd Goodwin.

Minico will now meet top-seeded Idaho Falls this morning at 10 at Frontier Field, while Twin Falls will face No. 2 seed Pocatello at 1:30 p.m. The losers of those two games will play Blackfoot and Rexburg, respectively, tonight at 5 and 8:30.

"Twin Falls is Blackfoot's 'seventh' and Prater scattered seven hits and walked two as Twin Falls captured its seventh Blackfoot error."

"Tommy did a great job," said Twin Falls Coach Mike Tremayne. "He told me in the fifth that he'd go all nine, but I told him just make it to the seventh and we'll see."

Prater even enjoyed his performance.

"It was 100 percent better than the last game," said Prater, who lasted five innings and gave up four runs in a 5-3 loss to Idaho Falls last Monday.

Blackfoot got its only run in the eighth inning when Todd Goodwin singled and advanced to second base on a wild pitch. Stan Covington hit a single and the throw to the catcher was wide of home plate.

In the ninth inning, Blackfoot threatened again by leading the bases with two outs. But a shooting catch by Slater in center field ended the game.

Blackfoot right-hander David Carter, who will attend the College of Southern Idaho this fall along with teammate Cory Schroeder, scattered four hits and didn't allow an earned run.

Minico 6, Rexburg 5
A couple of two-strike pitches — a fastball and a forkball — decided the earlier game. Woods hit a 1-2 forkball over the left-fielder's head to tie the game in the ninth inning after Rexburg's Steve Young had belted an 0-2 fastball over the left fence to give the Royals a 5-4 lead in the eighth.

The Sage's Branson settled matters by hitting a 1-0 pitch into left field to score Woods with the winning run in the ninth.

"These kids have been hot with the bat lately," said Minico Coach Cory Bridges. "I wish we could get all our kids to hit like that."

Woods was 4-for-5 Friday, his final hit coming with one out in the ninth and teammate Kevin Miller standing on second base, with Minico trailing by a run. After two strikes, Woods took a pitch from Young, the Rexburg starter.

"That was close," said Bridges. Rexburg Coach Brent Jensen agreed: "Our catcher thought it was a strike." "He pitches a good game, wins it for us with a home run and then we come back and lose it."

Minico scored single runs in the first, third and fifth innings and Minico right-hander Scott Asson was sailing along with a two-hit shutout when he gave up two unearned runs in the sixth. The Sage made it 4-2 in the eighth when Branson hit a leadoff double and scored on an error, but the roof fell in on Asson in the next inning.

After getting the leadoff batter out, Asson surrendered a single to Craig Ashby, then sent him to third base when Asson's pickoff attempt got past the first baseman. Tony Mortenson followed with a single to score Ashby, bringing Young to the plate.

"Scotty threw him a fastball right down the middle, which you don't want in that situation," said Bridges. "But he pitched a good ballgame. He got himself in trouble a couple of times, but he was able to pitch out of it. Getting nine (innings) out of him is going to help our pitching for the rest of the tournament."

Bridges wouldn't say who he would throw against Idaho Falls this morning.

"We're going to do a little something unexpected," he said. "Idaho Falls has beaten all our regular pitchers anyway, so we'll show them something else."

Angels shore up for stretch by picking up 3 Pirate vets

By ALAN ROBINSON
The Associated Press

PITTSBURGH — The California Angels, trying to solidify their lead already in first place in the American League West, obtained pitchers John Candelaria and Al Holland and outfielder George Hendrick in a six-player trade Friday with the Pittsburgh Pirates.

The last-place Pirates, who apparently plan to unload high-priced, unproductive veterans to rebuild with youth, will receive power-hitting outfielder Mike Brown, pitcher Pat Clements and a player to be named later.

"We traded several players who are obviously not happy here," said Pirates interim General Manager Joe L. Brown, referring to the disgruntled Candelaria and Hendrick. "When you're not happy and make no attempt to hide it, it has to affect your play."

"We saw this as an opportunity to acquire three players of outstanding capabilities," said

Angels' General Manager Mike Port. "Our staff fully believes the inclusion of (Candelaria, Hendrick and Holland) ... into the lineup of our players has already created 'winning out the very best of their abilities.'"

The Pirates agreed to pay a portion of the veterans' contracts in order to complete the deal.

Candelaria, once one of baseball's top left-handed starters, was moved to the bullpen this spring by Pirates Manager Chuck Tanner, but often has been ineffective. He had a 2-4 record, eight saves and a 3.64 earned run average, but has recorded only one save since the first six weeks of the season.

Candelaria, 34, is in his 11th seasons, has pleaded to be traded for more than a year. He is expected to start Sunday for the Angels against the Minnesota Twins.

"When I told him of the trade, he said, 'Thank you,' and 'Brown, 'He is pleased and grateful. Any player likes to go to a team that has a chance to win a championship."

Candelaria was 20-5 with a National League-best 2.34 earned-run average in 1977 and was 15-2 two seasons ago.

Hendrick, a World Series star with St. Louis in 1982, was traded by the Cardinals to the Pirates last December for pitcher John Tudor. He was hitting only .230 with two home runs and 25 RBIs and was frequently booed by Pirates' fans unhappy with his casual style of play.

The Pirates' 32-67 record before Friday's game with Montreal was the worst in baseball. In deep financial trouble because of slumping attendance, the Pirates are reportedly attempting to deal several other highly paid veterans having poor seasons, including first baseman Jason Thompson, third baseman Bill Madlock and outfielders Steve Kemp and Sergio Lescano.

Top seeds win in early play

TWIN FALLS — There were very few surprises in very limited action Friday as the adult portion of the Idaho Closed Tennis Championships got under way.

The only seeded players to see action were in the men's 3.5 singles, or "B" division, where a trio of Boise fans all won their opening matches handily.

Top-seeded Ron Stepp of Boise defeated Dudley MacNeil of Twin Falls, 6-1, 6-2, while second-seeded Jim Baxter of Boise beat Bob Hoag of Twin Falls, 6-2, 6-1. The No. 3 seed, Jim Cornwall of Boise, beat Mike Leazer of Twin Falls, 6-0, 6-0.

In the only men's open singles match of the day, Kim Courjeay of Boise defeated Tim Crist of Twin Falls, 6-2, 6-1.

Competition will continue today at several sites through the quarterfinals and in some cases the semifinals will be played Sunday at the Frontier Field courts.

Report says Soviets will show for games

TOKYO (AP) — A senior Soviet Communist Party official says the Soviet Union will participate in the 1988 Olympic Games in Seoul, South Korea, the Japanese Kyodo News Service reported today.

In a dispatch from Moscow, Kyodo said Soviet Communist Party Central Committee spokesman Leonid Zamyatin made the comment, the first of its kind in Moscow, in a meeting with managing editor Kazumi Fukase.

Only a year ago, the Soviets and most of their allies skipped the Olympics in Los Angeles, an apparent retaliation for the U.S. boycott of Moscow in 1980.

Kyodo quoted Zamyatin as saying the Soviet Union was already informed the International Olympic Committee of its intent to take part in the Games in the South Korean capital.

In Lausanne, Switzerland, sportsman Michael Verdine said the IOC had not received official word from Moscow it would participate.

She noted IOC president Juan Antonio Samaranch met with sports officials in Moscow last week and expressed hope after talks that the Soviet Union would participate in the Seoul games.

No country has yet confirmed to the IOC it is coming to the games because invitations will be sent out only nine months before the start, Verdine said.

Zamyatin, who had left his office for the weekend, was unavailable today for comment in Moscow.

North Korea, a close Soviet ally, has rejected Seoul as an anti-Soviet Olympic host, alleging human rights problems and political instability in the South. The Communist bloc does not recognize South Korea, and no Soviet allies have diplomatic relations with Seoul.

Kyodo noted the Soviet disclosure came three days after a North Korea proposal that South Korea and North Korea jointly stage the 1988 Games.

U.S. falls behind 2-0 in Davis

By KEVIN COSTELLO
The Associated Press

HAMBURG, West Germany — Wimbledon champion Boris Becker and teammate Hansjörg Schwaller won their singles matches Friday to get West Germany off to a 2-0 lead against the United States in the Davis Cup quarterfinals.

Tennis

Becker, ranked No. 9 in the world, easily defeated No. 12 Elliot Teltscher in straight sets, 6-2, 6-2, 6-3.

Schwaller, ranked 39th, then ousted No. 23 Aron Krickstein 2-6, 6-1, 2-6, 6-1, 6-6 in a match that lasted 3 hours and 35 minutes.

"Things don't look as bright as they did at 12 o'clock today," U.S. Coach Arthur Ashe said after the losses. "But it's not over yet."

The U.S. squad is competing without America's two best players — No. 1-ranked John McEnroe and No. 4 Jimmy Connors.

The doubles match was to be played Saturday, followed by the reverse singles on Sunday.

In other World Group quarterfinals, defending Davis Cup champion Sweden took a 2-0 lead over India on singles victories by Anders Jarryd and Mats Wilander in Bangalore, India, while Australia and Paraguay split their opening singles matches in Sydney, Australia.

Jarryd rallied to defeat Vijay Amritraj 3-6, 7-5, 2-6, 6-3, 6-4, and Wilander beat Ramesh Krishnan 6-3, 6-3, 6-2.

Australia opened its bid with a 3-6, 6-4, 6-2 victory by Paul McNamee over Francisco Gonzalez, but Paraguay evened the score as Victor Pecci defeated John Fitzgerald 6-2, 6-3, 1-6, 6-4.

Krickstein played as well as he could," Ashe said. "I think Becker had too much power for Teltscher."

Becker, the 17-year-old who last month became the youngest man ever to win the Wimbledon singles title, controlled Teltscher, of Palos Verdes, Calif., throughout the match.

The young champion noted that Teltscher picked up and played better in the third set, but added: "I played well."

Becker made a total of 10 aces, a grimace Teltscher said after the match.

Schwaller said his victorious match, interrupted once by rain for 20 minutes at the Rothenbaum Tennis Club, came down to a contest of who was the most tired.

Dorsett, IRS agree on plan to repay taxes

DALLAS (AP) — Dallas Cowboy Tony Dorsett and the Internal Revenue Service have apparently reached an agreement over the running back's overdue tax bills.

Dorsett reportedly owes the IRS around $415,000 from tax shelters which were disallowed in September, and in penalties and interest.

"An agreement was reached which was satisfactory to both parties," Alice Jenkins, a spokeswoman for the Internal Revenue Service, told The Dallas Morning News Thursday. "We worked with Tony the same way we would work with any other taxpayer to help satisfy his tax obligations."

Dorsett reportedly owes back taxes for 1979, 1980 and 1983.

According to the Dallas Times Herald, after paying the IRS $21,000 a month from his Cowboys' paycheck since Oct. 1, Dorsett can again start drawing pay from the Cowboys beginning this month.

The Times Herald also said that the penalty and interest owed by Dorsett have been put on hold — an amount which makes up about half of the $415,000 owed.

IRS officials said penalty and interest compound daily when there is no appeal. Dorsett decided last week to appeal the liens placed on two of his homes by the IRS — and on his wages.

Meanwhile, Dorsett is being fined $1,000 per day during his absence from Cowboys training camp, which began Tuesday in Thousand Oaks, Calif.

Cowboys president Tex Schramm said he will work with Dorsett's representatives in an attempt to restructure Dorsett's seven-year contract. Dorsett is on the fourth year of the deal, worth $400,000 per season.

"I've always been interested in helping Tony restructure his financial stability so he can leave football with pride and financial security," said Schramm.

Dorsett's attorney, Howard Slusher, told Schramm that Dorsett wants the situation resolved as soon as possible so he can concentrate on football, which he can't do right now.

Team shoots to 2-stroke win

TWIN FALLS — Kay Koch, Mary Watson, Pat Marfil and Sue Smales shot 231 over two days to win the Blue Lakes Country Club Ladies Invitational tournament, which concluded here Friday.

Koch, Watson, Marfil and Smales finished two strokes ahead of two other teams. Jean McCollum, Kathy Hanchett, Kelli Howa and Elva Felton tied with Elsa Vaughn, Karen Allen, Del Cole and Betty Davis, all at 233.

The foursome of Missy Wignall, Betty Veeh, Patty Summerfield and Wilma Driscoll were fourth at 238, while Julie Carr, Georgette Cantrell, Rita Detweiler and Julie Blanford finished fifth at 239.

The winners Friday, at 119, were Vinnie Stanley, Jackie Gasser, Grace Bennett and Lois Hansen, Thursday's winners, at 111, were Jackie Anderson, Justine Messersmith, Kathy Borchard and Louise Smith.

One hundred golfers participated in the event.

Slaney wins, but misses mark

LONDON (AP) — America's Mary-Decker-Slaney, world champion at 1,500 and 3,000 meters, failed Friday in her bid to break the women's world mile record on a gold, damp night at Crystal Palace stadium.

The 26-year-old middle distance star from Eugene, Ore., who was making her second appearance here in two weeks, finished more than 100 meters clear of her nearest rival to win an IAAF/Mobil Grand Prix race in 4:19.59.

Mariners might lose Thomas

SEATTLE (AP) — The threat of a major-league baseball players strike has created an unsettling sideshow for the Seattle Mariners: Their designated hitter, Gorman Thomas, could become a free agent as soon as next week, according to Thomas' agent.

Agent Ed Kieven of Boston said Thomas could become a free agent because the Mariners failed to send a lump-sum payment of $200,000 by Wednesday, as required by Thomas' contract.

Brian Beggs, the Mariners' chief financial officer, said the Mariners didn't send the lump-sum payment, because they didn't want to risk paying the money and then wind up with Thomas not earning it if the players go on strike Tuesday.

Champion wrestlers fare poorly at festival

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — The wrestlers at the National Sports Festival began their three-day competition in virtual anonymity Friday as five members of the national championship Greco-Roman team lost, one under "tragic" circumstances.

Only 325 fans turned out at the Louisiana School for the Deaf to see the wrestlers, who complained earlier in the week that they had been shuffled off to the sidelines by organizers. Those who showed up saw two high schoolers, Martin Strmiska, 17, of Tracy, Calif., and Joe Russell, 17, of Portland, Ore., beat defeat. "Losing the child, that was more on my mind than wrestling," Carlisle, 27, said after his bout. "My wife told me she was all right and wanted me to stay. If I had won, I would have stayed, but right now I don't have any desire to continue."

Pittman couldn't allow Carlisle's sadness to affect his approach. "Maybe he wasn't at his best, but he fell tough to me," said Pittman, 25, who is certain of at least a bronze medal because of Carlisle's withdrawal. The lone gold medal awarded in the afternoon went to Debbie Erdmann of Austin, Texas, marines.

They also saw Ron Carlisle, a three-time national champion, fall to Craig Pittman in the heavyweight division. Carlisle and his wife lost their first child at birth Thursday night and he flew home to Quantico, Va., immediately after his 2-1 national championships next week.

'Nervous' Verplank stretches Western lead

By BOB GREEN
The Associated Press

OAK BROOK, Ill. — Amateur Scott Verplank played what he called an "unconscious" back nine — six birdies in his last eight holes — and stretched his lead to three shots Friday in the second round of the $500,000 Western Open.

Golf

Verplank, 21, an Oklahoma State student from Dallas and the current national amateur champion, rallied from a double bogey with his burst of birdies, shot another 68 and finished two trips over the difficult Butler National Golf Club course in 136, eight under par.

"I was kind of nervous over the first nine holes. I haven't been nervous on the golf course in a long time," said Verplank, winner of four important amateur titles this summer but in an unusual position in a professional event.

The last amateur to lead alone in a pro event was Mike Reid in the first round of the 1976 U.S. Open. The last amateur to win a professional tournament was Doug Sanders in the 1956 Canadian Open.

Although in command at the tournament's halfway point, Verplank insists he's not yet thinking about winning. "I won't worry about that until when the opportunity presents itself," Verplank said.

Canadian Dave Barr, five strokes back at 141.

"I played with him the first two rounds in the U.S. Open," said Seve Ballesteros of Spain, who shot a 68 and got back in contention at 143.

"He's a good player, good driver, good touch with the putter. Already a very good player." In the United States, amateurs, the college players, they play so many tournaments they're as good as the pros.

After a bogey on the first hole, he reeled off six birdies on the next eight holes.

"Just unconscious, I guess," he said. "Obviously, things are going my way."

He put his second shot over the green on the par-5 second and got up and down for birdie. He birdied the third from eight feet, parred the fourth and then put his putter to work.

Champ moves into tie at Toledo

Golf

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — Laurie Peterson, last year's champion in the inaugural James Frazar Toledo Classic, shot a 3-under-par 69 Friday for a 95-hole total of 4-under-140 and a share of the second-round lead in the $175,000 LPGA event.

The third-year pro was joined at 4-under by first-round co-leader Colleen Walker, who registered her second consecutive 2-under 70.

One shot off the lead at 3-under were the tour's No. 2 money-winner, Nancy Lopez, along with Val Skinner and Penny Hammel.

another birdie to quickly move to 5-under and a short-lived three-shot lead. After paring out for a 4-under 32 on the front side, she recorded two bogeys and a birdie on the back to close with her 69.

"Sometimes it's easier when you're a nobody, when nobody's watching you and nobody considers you a contender," Peterson said.

"That's the way it was last year for me. But this has been fun playing here again. You just go out there and put yourself in a little tunnel and try to concentrate on your game."

Walker, a non-winner in her four years on tour, posted three birdies and a bogey during her round of 70.

She expressed satisfaction with her round, "but then — cautioned, "Payday isn't until Sunday."

Lopez achieved her major objective with her score of 71: "You always want to stay around the leader, if you're not the leader."

"I guess we'll find out Sunday afternoon," he said.

Some of his challengers were more forthcoming. "It's no surprise that he's there. The kid can play," said the first 18 holes, started his second round on the 10th tee. He hit his second shot in the water on the 14th hole, made double bogey and reached the turn in one-over-par 37.

He holed a 20-foot putt on the fifth, scored from 10 feet on the sixth from 20 on the eighth and closed it out with a 4-iron shot that set up a 6-foot putt on the ninth, his final hole of warm, sunny day.

Lopez followed her opening day 70 with a 1-under 71. Skinner registered the lowest round of the tourney's two days, a 68, while Hammel shot a 69 following her first-round 72.

In a group of four players at 142, two shots off the lead, were the first round's co-leader, Lauren Howe, along with veteran Kathy Whitworth and rookie Mariel Borzich.

Peterson, playing in the same group as Whitworth, was followed by a large, supportive gallery. And she gave them reason to cheer.

She began the day with a par, then followed with a birdie, an eagle and
