Idaho pursues giant atom smasher

By BOB FREUND
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The State of Idaho will try to attract the world's largest atom smasher and its high-energy research station to Idaho National Engineering Laboratory near Idaho Falls.

David Porter, administrator for the Idaho Department of Commerce, said state officials during the next month will start organizing a task force to assemble a detailed bid for the Super Superconducting Collider, a futuristic research project to probe the frontiers of subatomic physics. The project's potential scale is enormous: a circular track up to 100 miles around, a cost estimated at $6 billion; perhaps 10,000 new households.

A group of prominent scientists and the U.S. Department of Energy now is doing ground work aimed at starting construction of the SSC in fall of 1987.

"We've been spending $20 million a year for the past two years and also for the next year doing research trying to get answers to technical and economic questions about the feasibility of the project," said Jeff Sherwood, spokesman for the U.S. Department of Energy.

The SSC would smash together two pencil-thin beams of protons moving in opposite directions at close to the speed of light. The collisions of the subatomic particles will allow scientists to probe deeper than ever before into the basic structure of matter.

Once built, the SSC would become the most powerful particle accelerator in the world, producing collisions with energies of 40 trillion electron volts. It is called "superconducting," because the magnets that bend the two subatomic beams must carry electrical currents with "minute resistance" just to keep the electrical power costs affordable.

The project would exceed the new Saturn auto plant, recently announced by General Motors Corp. The DOE estimates the SSC's construction cost at $6 billion and its operating budget will approach $300 million annually, said Porter during an interview in Twin Falls.

Porter, who briefly mentioned the project to Twin Falls business leaders, said Gov. John Evans and other top-level Idaho officials have been exploring the possibility of an Idaho bid for the past 30 days.

The state is planning to convene a task force of business and industry leaders, with funding to come from the private sector, he said. Idaho's bid will need broad-based support, Porter said.

Pay plan attacked in courts

By MERRILL HARTSON
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The Reagan administration, which has denounced the concept of "comparable worth," filed a court brief Friday giving its legal arguments for resisting the idea of paying men and women equally for different jobs of similar value.

In a friend-of-the-court brief filed with the 7th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Chicago, in which it takes the side of the state of Illinois in a suit brought by nurses, the Justice Department maintained that Congress never intended to give judges the authority to decide the relative value of people's jobs.

It was the first time the administration had entered any case testing the constitutionality of comparable worth systems, even though President Reagan recently was quoted as calling the notion "Mickey Mouse, a cockamamie idea ... (that) would destroy the basis of free enterprise."

In its brief, signed by Assistant Attorney General William Bradford Reynolds, head of the civil rights division, the administration made a similar argument.

The Justice Department argued that the bulk of the case brought against the state by the Illinois Nurses Association and the American Nurses Association was based on the advancement of the comparable worth theory.

Last April 4, U.S. District Judge Charles P. Kocoras dismissed the plaintiffs' suit against the state, saying a claim of wage discrimination based on the comparable worth theory "goes far beyond the existing statutory law. Supreme Court precedent and the application of constitutional provisions."

The question before the appeals court is whether the district judge's decision should be upheld or remanded to his court for a full trial.

The Justice Department said in its brief that only one point of the plaintiffs' suit — alleging that nurses were not compensated on the basis of equal pay for equal work — was worthy of further consideration. That issue alone should be remanded to the lower court, it said.

But on a host of other issues, the department said, the plaintiffs' claims "are inextricably tied to and dependent upon a theory of comparable worth requiring the district court to embark on a course of subjective judicial analysis of the inherent worth of state employment positions."

Isolation still wrong course

By NORMAN KEMPSTER
The Los Angeles Times

SAN FRANCISCO — The Reagan administration's top Africa specialist said Friday that the U.S. government's policy of "constructive engagement" has not produced adequate racial reforms in South Africa but economic sanctions would accomplish even less.

Assistant Secretary of State Chester A. Crocker did little to mask his disappointment at the hardline speech delivered Thursday by South African President Pieter W. Botha, but he said Washington should not abandon its efforts to influence the white minority government.

"It won't be in our interest to walk away and cover our contact in a speech to the Commonwealth Club. 'We don't intend to do so.'"

Crocker tried to distance the administration from the Pretoria government while retaining the option of dealing with South Africa through diplomatic means — a policy that has been called "constructive engagement" — instead of trying to punish and isolate the apartheid regime.

Crocker repeated the administration's familiar objections to legislation now awaiting final action in Congress — that would impose economic sanctions on the Pretoria regime. He said the sanctions would hurt black workers far more than the government and would end any American hope of influencing the government. Besides, he said, such sanctions would not work.

"No single state can impose its will unilaterally (on another), no matter how unequal the power relationship may seem," he said. The chief author of "constructive engagement," Crocker used much bleaker language in assessing the situation than he had employed in previous speeches. Nevertheless, he said, "It may sound unduly optimistic, but compromise and reconciliation in this strife-torn area remain within reach. No responsible South African (of any race) wants to turn his country into an economic basket case."

Crocker clearly was on the defensive throughout his speech. "Being involved through our presence and our program means having tools of influence, rolling up our sleeves and pursuing our goals," he said. "It does not mean being seduced by a status quo that is overwhelmingly repellent to Americans."

He conceded that it was difficult to claim any recent accomplishment for "constructive engagement in South Africa."

"It would be a mistake for us to claim any recent accomplishment for 'constructive engagement in South Africa.'"

More violence likely after Botha's address

The Associated Press

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa — Opponents of white rule saw the specter of more violence in President P.W. Botha's refusal to change the segregation laws that control the non-violent majority, and South Africa's currency plunged to a record low Friday.

"The Botha regime has to be destroyed," the president of the outlawed African National Congress declared at a news conference in Lusaka, Zambia. "Many white people will lose their lives as the black people have been doing already," said the black leader, Oliver Tambo. The ANC is the main guerrilla group fighting the government.

Black Anglican Bishop Desmond Tutu, who won the 1984 Nobel Peace Prize, said he was "devastated" by Botha's policy speech Thursday to the ruling National Party.

"I think the chances of peaceful change are virtually nil. ... Short of a miracle, short of intervention by the international community, we are for the birds," and vultures will pick at South Africa's carcass, he told reporters. Tutu, an advocate of non-violence, appeared to be on the verge of tears.

Police reported only scattered outbreaks of riot and arson in the country's black townships, in which a year of rage against white domination has cost more than 600 black lives.

White opponents of the government, such as Mrs. Suzman, expressed fear, disappointment and anger. Whites to the right of Botha said he had undermined apartheid, the system of race discrimination guarantees privilege for South Africa's 5 million whites and denies rights to its 24 million blacks.

Former Castleford superintendent now facing felony forgery charge

By PAT MARCANTONIO
Times-News writer

CASTLEFORD — A second felony warrant has been issued for the arrest of former Castleford School Superintendent Robert Hutchin, accusing him of forging a $2,023 district check April 28.

Hutchin, no age available and whose whereabouts are unknown, already has been charged with grand theft for allegedly failing to return four X-rated videos, including those titled "French 'Finishing School'" and "Never Enough," to a Buhl rental business in June. The most recent warrant was filed

Friday in 5th District Magistrate Court in Twin Falls. Hutchin allegedly forged the name of former district secretary Lisa Winslow on a payroll check sometime between April 1 and April 30 and cashed it at Idaho First National Bank in Buhl, according to the complaint filed with the court.

Hutchin resigned from his school district job in April. The Twin Falls County sheriff's office has been investigating the unauthorized check ever since school officials discovered it last month while reviewing school finances. Bank authorities notified the sheriff's office. The suspect check was not stamped by a machine that normally marks district checks with the money values, according to a statement prepared by the sheriff's office in support of the criminal complaint, nor was the suspect check recorded by school officials.

District checks require the signatures of the district secretary and school board chairman, who was then Roger Clark, said Chief Deputy Sheriff Harold Jensen. Some of the checks were pre-signed by the chairman for the secretary to sign when needed.

According to the sheriff's statement, Hutchin had access to blank, See HUTCHIN on Page A2

Overheating caused tank to leak

By KELLY P. KISSSEL
The Associated Press

CHARLESTON, W.Va. — A leak of poison gas from a Union Carbide Corp. plant occurred when a tank that workers mistakenly thought was empty became overheated, possibly because a leaking valve admitted steam, a state official said Friday.

The tank, where the leak that sickened 135 people originated Sunday, was being used as a temporary storage vessel for overflow chemicals from a separate reactor, said state Air Pollution Control Director Carl Beard.

Plant workers had pumped out the tank and believed it to be empty, but it still contained 500 gallons of a chemical mixture, Beard said. The temperature and pressure increased and blew the rupture disk and emergency release valve that would have kept the tank from exploding," he said.

Beard said investigators have found no evidence the overheating was due to a chemical reaction.

"If there was no reaction with a foreign substance, the only explanation is that steam got to it — either introduced to it, which would be senseless, or a leaking valve," he said.

Beard said he did not know why the workers thought the tank was empty.

He also said he did not know why the workers did not notice the slow increase in heat and pressure. Union Carbide spokesman Dick Henderson said that the company will wait until Carbide and government investigators finish their reports before commenting on the cause of Sunday's leak. Earlier Friday, Union Carbide Chairman Warren Anderson acknowledged that the institute plant was too slow to warn the public about the leak. He said he has told employees in the future to "pull the cord" first and worry later about whether it was necessary.

Reagan signs bill giving Contra aid

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) — President Reagan has signed legislation that starts the flow of $27 million in aid to the rebels fighting the leftist government of Nicaragua. In a statement issued by his press office here Friday while Reagan vacations at his 688-acre ranch nearby, the president called the aid "modest," but went on to laud Congress for showing "bipartisan support" for those fighting the Sandinista dictatorship.

"This is an important element in our overall effort to assist neighboring countries to defend themselves against Nicaraguan attack and subversion," Reagan said.

Referring to the legislation's ban on use of the Pentagon or CIA to distribute the money, he added: "Unfortunately, the provision unduly and unnecessarily restricts efficient management and administration of the program. Nevertheless, I will continue to work with the Congress to carry out the program as effectively as possible and will take care to assure that the law is faithfully executed."

The measure opens the way for a resumption of U.S. assistance to the Nicaraguan rebels, known as Contras, for uniforms, rations and other non-lethal supplies. The money is available through March 1986.

Congress had halted the flow of aid to the rebels last year following the revelation of the mining of Nicaragua's harbors by the CIA.

Reagan signed the overall bill, containing $1 billion for various programs in the current fiscal year, on Thursday, a White House aide said.

Besides the Contra aid, the legislation opens the way for the eventual resumption of construction on the federal dam, harbor and inland seaway projects across the country on a negotiated cost-sharing basis between the government and local beneficiaries.

The House completed action on the spending bill on Aug. 1 after smothering over a dispute with the Senate over money for the 41 projects.

The bill contains $63.1 million in seed money for the water projects, which carry an estimated price tag of $4.46 billion.

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) — valuable member of the Reagan Cabinet," said White House press secretary Harry Spinks. President Reagan to remain in the Earlier, The Washington Post quoted unnamed White House officials as saying there was dissatisfaction with Mrs. Heckler's performance. The newspaper said it was told by non-official that the president's full support and confidence will continue as she was "fighting for her job."

U.S. group to search for POWs

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite their differences, the United States and Vietnam agreed Friday that a high-level U.S. delegation will visit Hanoi in search of new information about nearly 2,500 military personnel and civilians listed as missing in Southeast Asia.

Senior State Department, Pentagon and White House officials, accompanied by Ann Mills-Griffiths, executive director of the National League of POW-MIA Families, will be received in the Vietnamese capital Aug. 28 and 29, according to an announcement here.

"We and the Vietnamese have agreed that the POW-MIA question is a humanitarian problem which will be dealt with despite all differences between our countries," said spokesman Charles Redman in a statement read to reporters at the State Department.

Earlier this week, Vietnam returned what are believed to be the remains of 28 Americans missing since the Vietnam war. Ninety-nine other sets of remains have been returned, including 22 in 1977.

Assistant Secretary of Defense Richard Armittage, Assistant Secretary of State Paul Wolfowitz and Richard Childress, director of political and military affairs at the National Security Council, will head the U.S. delegation.

The outgoing commander-in-chief of the Veterans of Foreign Wars said Friday in Dallas that the United States should open diplomatic relations with Vietnam if the Vietnam side speed up resolution of the MIA issue.

"Let's resolve the whole problem," Billy Ray Cameron said at a news conference at the VFW's national convention. "I would ask our government to have diplomatic relations with Vietnam only way we're going to resolve it."

Cameron, 41, is the first Vietnam veteran to head the VFW. He said he would be willing to have his group go on record in favor of diplomatic relations if the Vietnamese have a full account of those missing in action.

Gray requests military cuts

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Budget Committee Chairman William H. Gray III said Friday that Congress can still produce a true $50 billion in spending cuts next year by further tightening the reins on defense spending.

The Congressional Budget Office on Thursday said deficit reduction in the budget passed Aug. 1 totals $37 billion next year — not the $57 billion in savings Congress claimed when it approved the package.

Gray, D-Pa., said the message to Congress is clear — "The cuts you made in Pentagon spending, they aren't real."

The report is "a challenge for us in the Congress. It says, 'Hey, do we have the will to do the Pentagon what we've done to the domestic side,'" Gray said in a telephone interview.

First Lady's press secretary resigns

WASHINGTON (AP) — Jennifer Hirschberg, press secretary to Nancy Reagan, is resigning after just six months at the White House and will be succeeded by Elaine Crispin, the first lady's special assistant since 1981, it was announced Friday.

Hirschberg will rejoin her former boss, James Miller, as he takes over as director of the Office of Management and Budget. Until last February, she was public affairs director for the Imperial Trade Commission while Miller was its chairman.

Carbide trouble may cause Temik shortage

By KENNETH A. BROWN
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Union Carbide's troubles in Institute, W. Va., may be felt in southern Idaho. Tuesday Union Carbide announced that it was suspending production of aldicarb oxime, a key component of the pesticide Temik, widely used by Idaho potato farmers.

This spring, Temik shortages related to the disaster at Union Carbide's plant in Bhopal, India, forced many farmers to find substitute pesticides.

A chemical supplier says that the company's recent action could also affect supplies for next year.

The suspension followed a leak of aldicarb oxime and methylene chloride at the Union Carbide plant in West Virginia last Sunday which sent 125 nearby residents to area hospitals and injured six employees.

Opinions mixed over importance of accident

Aldicarb is derived from methyl isocyanate, the chemical which killed more than 2,000 people in India and injured thousands more.

According to an internal company report, aldicarb oxime is capable of causing "irreversible" nerve damage, cancer and infertility.

The temporary suspension of aldicarb production again raises the question of the pesticide's availability, although it should not pose a problem for growers until next season when supplies are needed.

"It depends what happens between now and spring," said John Bailey of Snake River Chemical. "It's pure speculation right now."

However, Lee Anderson, of the Wilbur-Ellis Company, said "this is real serious. I don't know if there will be 10 pounds of it available next year."

"It's a waiting game right now," he added.

Growers, Anderson said, will probably react a little more calmly to the shutdown than they did this spring.

"The first reaction is panic," Anderson said, "but they've been through this before."

For Union Carbide, a shortage could cut into their market. In response to this season's Temik shortage, many growers switched to other products and were able to get good results, Anderson said.

Two years of unavailability, however, could cost the company customers.

"Temik is an excellent product," Anderson said, "probably one of the best on the market."

Temik, Anderson explained, is a systemic pesticide, traveling through the plant, taking care of pests both above and below the ground.

Injected into the ground in potato fields early in the growing season, Temik protects the plant and its roots against pests for most of the season, Anderson said.

The recent suspension of aldicarb adds to a long list of problems for Temik. The pesticide has been linked to health problems in both Long Island and Florida. This summer in California, aldicarb, the active ingredient in Temik, sickened hundreds when it was improperly applied to watermelons.

Thursday, researchers at the University of Wisconsin raised what they called a "caution flag" about aldicarb. According to the Associated Press, researchers at the university found that the pesticide can affect the immune systems of laboratory rats at doses now considered safe in drinking water.

Squirrel causes outage

Rodent takes wrong step, shorts power

By PAULA EUBANKS

TWIN FALLS — One misstep by a squirrel cut the electrical power to almost 1,000 Idaho Power Co. customers in the downtown business district and the northwest residential area for 21 minutes on Friday afternoon.

Traffic lights, phone systems, and computers went dead at 2:34 p.m., when a squirrel stepped on an electrical pole's transformer in the alley in the 200 block of 7th Ave. N., was electrocuted by 7,200-volts and activated an automatic de-energizer, said Barry L. Knoblich, Idaho Power division operating supervisor.

The squirrel stepped on both a grounded and a live bushing (metal box) at the same time, bridging a current between the two. Automatic safety equipment sensed a fault in the power lines and shut down power to a feeder line. The equipment is designed to sense line problems, such as tree limbs or cars accidentally knocking down live power lines.

"It's a protection mechanism. It senses things that are not normal," Knoblich said. "It's like a circuit breaker in a house."

Knoblich said the power company easily found the problem pole because people phoning the power company office mentioned a "loud bang" heard as far as the 800 block of 8th Ave. E. The bang was the sound of a blown fuse on the transformer.

Six power company employees were dispatched to the area and patrolled the lines until they found the scene of the squirrel accident.

Three workers fixed the transformer. Power was returned to about 754 customers at 2:47 p.m., and five minutes later, all customers had power.

Sheriff's deputies and rescue personnel took Richard Lee onto a stretcher while resuscitation efforts continued on the Barrett automobile, right.

Two die, man jailed after highway 93 wreck

HOLLISTER — A Hagerman ranch owner and one of his passengers died Friday morning in a head-on collision on Highway 93 near Hollister with a pickup truck driven by a Hagerman man with a history of drunk-driving charges.

Richard Allen Lee, 23, of West First Street in Hansen, has been booked into Twin Falls County Jail on two charges of vehicular manslaughter. He also has been charged with driving under the influence of alcohol.

Margaret "Sue" Lyons, 60, who police believe was his sister, Idaho State Police officer Dave Rich said Lyons was from Hereford, Texas, and Barrett was from Seminole, Texas.

Hagerman Mayor Marie Semole said Barrett owned Pine Lane Acres, a ranch near Hagerman. A second passenger in the car, Barrett's wife Mary, 37, was taken to a hospital in Boise. She was not wearing a seatbelt.

The accident occurred at about 6:45 a.m. Barrett died during the hour that emergency workers spent attempting to extricate him from the wreckage, Rich said. He was not wearing a seatbelt.

Barrett, who was driving, died of injuries sustained in the crash. He was not wearing a seatbelt.

Barrett, who was driving, died of injuries sustained in the crash. He was not wearing a seatbelt.

Rich credited the seatbelt and shoulder harness that Barrett's wife was wearing with saving her life. She was riding in the front passenger seat.

The Barretts apparently were driving from Hagerman to Texas, Rich said. Police have not yet determined where Lee was driving from when the accident occurred.

Only minutes before the accident occurred, Idaho State Police had received a call from James and Jacqueline Scoville of Missoula, Mont., about a possible DUI. They had pulled over and called from a farm house near Rogerson after seeing a white pickup run two cars off the road, state police said.

BLM reports Three Creek/Roseworth blaze under control

By KEN BROWN and BOB FREUND
Times-News writers

TWIN FALLS — Government firefighters contained a range fire between Three Creek and Roseworth on Friday evening, stopping the blaze after it had burned 16,500 acres of under-dry sage and cheat grass.

Kim Christensen, fire dispatch officer for the Bureau of Land

Management's Boise District, said a large force halted the advance of the flames at 6:12 p.m. just southeast of the Three Creek Highway.

The man-caused fire had begun in John Boyd Draw, along House Creek Road, about five miles northwest of Cedar-Creek Reservoir, which is west of Rogerson, at about 1:24 p.m. Thursday. It had spread southeast to the reservoir, across Three Creek Road and into steep, rugged terrain. It was stopped just short of Brown's Bench in the Twin Buttes area, Christensen said.

The BLM fought the blaze with 108 firefighters from its Boise headquarters, as well as nearby districts at Burley and Shoshone. Since Thursday, there have been 15 fire engines, three bulldozers, five north-south pump units and one helicopter supporting the fire crews.

Two firefighters from Shoshone District suffered leg injuries, one sustaining a broken ankle.

No residences or farms were destroyed, the BLM dispatcher reported. The land is public range, but has heavy stands of sagebrush.

Ray Jackson, of Roseworth, said Bob and Julie Groves, who live on a ranch near Antelope Springs, lost some cattle to the fire. At one point Thursday night, almost 1,000 head of cattle were trapped by the blaze.

BLM officials have not determined a specific cause for the blaze, but consider it man-caused because there was no lightning in the area on Thursday afternoon.

Knigge resigns weed post on suggestion of superior

TWIN FALLS — Former local Rep. Lawrence Knigge has resigned under pressure from his boss to step down from his position as state weed control coordinator.

He had worked on six weeks in the job after resigning his legislative seat in mid-session to fill the newly-created position.

According to Associated Press reports, Roger Vega, administrator of the Idaho Department of Agriculture's Bureau of Plant Industry, said Knigge was called into the office of the agriculture director Thursday and given the opportunity to resign.

Knigge then resigned late Thursday afternoon, said Dick Bush, director of the Department of Agriculture.

Bush declined comment when asked to explain the resignation due to the personal nature of the matter. He said Knigge had a "very sensitive" resignation, and any further comment should come from Knigge.

Sawtooth Forest plan affects areas in South Hills, Utah

By KENNETH A. BROWN
Times-News writer

While the Forest Service's Draft Management Plan for Sawtooth National Forest has generated a great deal of concern in the forest's northern areas, the plan also covers areas to the south of Twin Falls.

Forest Service lands in the South Hills, the Cache Peak area, Sublett, the Black Pine Division near Malta, and the Raft River Mountains in Utah are also covered by the plan.

"All are touched some way by this plan," said Forest Supervisor Ron Stoleson. "I don't want there to be any surprises for people."

Right now, the Forest Service is soliciting public comments on the draft plan to direct them in formulating the final management plan for the forest.

"We can make good decisions if we're dealing with an informed public," Stoleson said.

Forest Service emphasizes public use and recreation.

For land areas, it contains a variety of land prescriptions. While most public attention so far has been focused on the areas proposed for wilderness, there are nine other land designations in the preferred alternative.

Along with wilderness, semi-primitive status has received considerable attention. Most of this has focused on the areas proposed for wilderness status.

Motorized vehicles use, however, is not the only aspect of semi-primitive status. This emphasizes primitive recreation and prohibits timber sales. It also allows to manage the area for aquatic life and wildlife, something which is not possible in wilderness areas.

In the Forest Service's opinion, the variety of uses and concerns addressed by each management prescription is something the public should be aware of. "No designation is single use," said Rob Hendricks, leader of the forest's land Management Planning Team.

In fact, all land designations in the plan are governed by a basic set of forest-wide management goals. These basic goals include such provisions as maintaining and constructing trails, managing wildlife habitats, and meeting state fish and game population goals.

In addition, all of the management prescriptions in the forest pay particular attention to visual impacts.

Simply stated, it could be said that the Forest Service tries to make things look as natural as possible. Even the designation for developed recreation, known as roads/recreation—developed, contains provisions for protecting the visual quality of an area.

"Visual management doesn't just happen," Hendricks said. "It's planned. A landscape architect is generally part of any Forest Service project, according to Ed Waldpfer, Information Officer for Sawtooth National Forest.

The plan also contains separate land prescriptions for managing special areas of the forest such as "unique plant communities," special cultural or recreational sites and ski areas.

The City of Rocks area, for example, is a special area.

Man accused of dealing drugs, ordered held pending hearing

BOISE (AP) — A Magic Valley man accused of dealing in drugs while free on bond must be held in custody pending a full hearing before a U.S. District Court judge next Thursday, a federal magistrate has ruled.

Charles Roney, indicted last April on charges of drug conspiracy and concealing assets from the Internal Revenue Service, was ordered detained in a court appearance on Friday.

A federal grand jury also filed a new indictment that incorporates earlier charges and lengthens by four months the period in which Roney allegedly dealt in drugs. He is accused of participating in drug transactions between Oct. 1, 1982, and Friday.

Roney appeared in court on a warrant charging the violation of terms of his release by U.S. District Judge Harold Ryan.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Dan Hawley said Roney has been accused in drug distribution while free on bond and should be held in custody until a bond revocation hearing takes place.

But defense attorney Gar Hackney said detention could not be imposed without a hearing on the substance of the complaint against Roney. Until Ryan hears the case, Roney should remain free on bond, Hackney said.

Roney, 32, was one of 12 Twin Falls-area residents named in an April 12 grand jury indictment that alleged transactions involving marijuana, cocaine and methamphetamine. Defendants were charged with conspiracy to sell drugs, or with helping Roney conceal assets.

A federal judge has rejected a plea bargaining agreement in which Roney agreed to plead guilty to one count of conspiracy to distribute controlled substances, and a second charge that he tried to conceal his assets.

Shoshone registration scheduled

SHOSHONE — School registration for Shoshone students starts Monday with kindergarten screening for children who will be age 5 before Oct. 15.

The screening will be held at Lincoln Elementary School in Shoshone from 9 a.m. to noon and 1 p.m. to 4 p.m. Elementary principal Dan Pagoga said parents should bring birth certificates and immunization records with their children.

Phyllis Teffertiller, 38, of Twin Falls was listed in fair condition in the Magic Valley Regional Medical Center intensive care unit Friday.

Comptroller Gray Corder of the Twin Falls Police detective division said officers were able to question the woman Thursday and she told them the gun accidentally discharged.

Corder said it appeared the victim was at a friend's home when a friend, Lyle Kiser, was struggling near possession of the .38-caliber revolver when it discharged. He said as of Thursday there were no plans to file charges against either individual.

Teffertiller was shot in the chest area about 6:30 p.m. Tuesday while at Kiser's home at 281 Casswell Ave. W.

Firefighters put out two house fires

Neither incident caused any injuries

TWIN FALLS — Fires damaged two Twin Falls houses Friday, but were snuffed out before they could spread.

City firefighters put out a blaze in a basement family room at the Ralph Compher house, 21 Buena Vista, Friday afternoon. Twin Falls Fire Department Battalion Chief Wayne Campbell said the fire burned much of the basement, but the rest of the house was damaged only by smoke.

Compher had just left the home at the time. The fire apparently was ignited by a burning candle. Campbell said. A damage estimate was not available.

Flames caused almost $1,200 damage to the front of the Joan Sharron home at 319 Eighth Ave. N., Campbell said. Neither she nor two young boys at the house were injured.

The fire apparently began when the boys were playing with matches in the shrubs next to the front of the house, Campbell said. The fire spread to the wood structure and broke out the front picture window. It was doused in about 45 minutes, he said.

No firefighters were injured at either blaze.

Council agrees to a vote on temple lighting policy

ST. GEORGE, Utah (AP)—The St. George city council has agreed to place the city's policy of providing free outside lighting for the Mormon temple before residents in a public hearing next month.

The practice of subsidizing electricity to the church building came under fire recently when attorney Phillip Lang Foremaster threatened to sue the city if it wasn't halted.

Foremaster claims the practice violates the Constitution's separation of church and state.

On Friday, Foremaster said he wasn't aware of the council's move to schedule a public hearing, but said he had asked for one. City Attorney Ted Shumway said the hearing will be held Sept. 26 at the council's regularly scheduled meeting.

Shumway said he will continue to advise city officials that the practice is legal. "We're convinced case law will support the practice, and we haven't been shown differently by Mr. Foremaster," he said.

He said the $137 monthly credit to the church's electric bill would hold up in court because the temple is a historic landmark and tourist attraction.

But Foremaster said he's asked city officials to provide studies that show how many tourists the temple brings into St. George. And he said the city hasn't complied with the request because there are no such studies.

"Even assuming it's attracting tourists, I still think it's inappropriate," he said. "It tends to put official government sanction on a particular religion."

Foremaster, who says he's an inactive member of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints, said his campaign isn't a "religious attack." This is an attack on city government, he said.

And he says temple lighting isn't the only issue.

There also is a "facsimile of the temple on the official St. George city logo, and he claims that also is unconstitutional. "They go together and indicate too much governmental entanglement in religion," he said.

While glad the issue will be before residents, Foremaster said he's disappointed it won't be sooner.

"I want to bring it to a head. My original demand was in early August. I'm not prepared to give them forever," he said.

Neither Shumway nor Foremaster could say when the city first started picking up the lighting tab for the temple.

Shumway said he remembers the council discussing plans to increase the payment when electricity rates went up about five years ago. Foremaster said he's been told payments originally started within the last three or four years.

BYU chief pleased with trip

PROVO, Utah (AP)—Brigham Young University President Jeffrey R. Holland says last week's trip to Israel went well and he managed to persuade middle-of-the-road Jews to visit the new BYU Center won't be a base for Mormon missionaries.

"It was hard work, very long hours and a lot of tension with considerable conflict," Holland said Monday. "But I think overall the trip went well."

An ultra-orthodox Jewish group is protesting the construction of BYU's Jerusalem Center for Near East Studies, claiming the college actually is building a missionary center to convert Jews to the Mormon faith.

"It's really a misunderstanding created by a very vocal, very small group that kept hammering on the phrase 'missionary center,'" Holland said. "Despite the group's protest, most Jews do not oppose the project, Holland said."

Bliss minister to take Nevada post

By APRIL BISHOP POHLE Times-News Correspondent

BLISS — "The geographical location doesn't matter, it's a matter of being in God's will," said the Rev. Doug Cartwright as he is leaving the Bliss Community Church to accept a nine-year stay at a new position in Pahrum, Nev.

"Pahrum is an Indian name, I think," said Cartwright with a smile. Located between Las Vegas and Death Valley, Pahrum boasts a population of 5,000 people, he said.

Cartwright will be assuming the assistant minister position in the Pahrum Community Church, which has a membership of 200 people.

The decision to leave Bliss has been difficult for Cartwright. "It's going to be like pulling teeth from a rattlesnake to leave here," he said. "It's been a nice place, I've really enjoyed it."

"It's taken me eight months to finalize my decision," he said quietly. "But it's basically God's will."

During career counseling sessions, Cartwright discovered his strengths lie in one-to-one relationship with people. "God has given me an ear to listen," said Cartwright. "My strong points are young people, and I've done lots of marriage counseling."

"I lack the managerial skills to be an effective senior minister," said Cartwright honestly. "This new position homes in on my strengths."

"Frustrations have taken a toll on me," Cartwright said about his years serving the Bliss Church. "I wanted more. It seems like the older you get, you get burned out."

"I got into ministry because I felt it was the only chance for providing the fundamental peace people are looking for," he said.

A quiet, soft-spoken man, Cartwright describes his views on religion as leaning toward a conservative doctrinal stand.

"I don't take doctrine as such because it divides," said Cartwright quietly. "Intellect kills — the tenderness of the word."

Frustration aside, Cartwright is pleased with the progress of the Bliss Church in the nine years of his ministry. There is now an after-school program for children, Bible coffees and discipleship classes.

"I'm proudest of some of the people we've been able to work with," he said. Doug and Margene Cartwright and their children were honored at a potluck dinner held at the church Aug. 11. The new minister, Dan Tanner, will be arriving by Aug. 24 to take Cartwright's place, who is scheduled to leave on Aug. 15.

Calvary Chapel Calvary Chapel has been formed, as a fellowship of believers in the Lordship of Jesus Christ. Our supreme desire is to know Christ and to be conformed into His image by the power of the Holy Spirit. We like to think of ourselves as Bible Christians. We establish our beliefs from the Word of God — and if the Bible says it, we try to practice it. We are not a denominational church, nor are we opposed to denominations as such, only their over-emphasis of the doctrinal differences that have led to the division of the Body of Christ. We believe that the only true basis of Christian fellowship is God's (Agape) love, which is greater than any differences we possess — and without which we have no right to claim to be Christians. WE BELIEVE worship of God should be spiritual. Therefore: We remain flexible and yielded to the leading of the Holy Spirit to direct our worship. WE BELIEVE worship of God should be inspirational. Therefore: We give a great place to music in our worship. WE BELIEVE worship of God should be intelligent. Therefore: Our services are designed with great emphasis upon teaching the Word of God so He can instruct us how He wants to be worshipped. WE BELIEVE worship of God should be fruitful. Therefore: We look for His love in our lives as the supreme manifestation that we have truly been worshipping Him. BILLY BRAUN of the Braun Brothers will be sharing with us in song Sunday Morning. Extent of terminal damage uncertain

MANAMA, Bahrain (AP) — Marine salvage executives on the Persian Gulf said Friday that Iraqi jets inflicted "enormous damage on Iran's vast Kharg Island oil terminal, but that two of its three loading jetties may still be operating.

One expert estimated Kharg's loading capacity was cut by 40 percent, but said operations could be back to normal in about two weeks.

Iran said Iraq lost one jet in attacking Kharg, but Iraq said all its planes returned safely. Iran said nothing about possible damage at Kharg.

Traffic at the heavily fortified island, 138 miles southeast of Iraq, accounts for about 50 percent of Iran's exports of 1 million barrels daily of crude oil.

Iran and Iraq have been at war since September 1980. Iraq periodically has attacked Kharg and gulf shipping trying to cut off oil ex-

Heavily populated Kenya greets pope

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — Kenyans gave the pope a joyous welcome Friday, but his visit may prove difficult because of the government's attempt to control population growth through contraception and other means the church opposes.

President Daniel arap Moi greeted the pontiff when his jet touched down after the flight from Lubumbashi, Zaire. He will spend the weekend in Kenya, then go to Morocco on Monday a five-hour visit that concludes the trip. Choirs and dancing groups per-

Vietnamese pledge pullback

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Vietnam said Friday it would remove all of its troops from Cambodia by 1990, but would take what it called appropriate measures if the security of Cambodia was undermined by the pullout.

It was the first time Vietnam set a specific date for a total withdrawal. It has staged annual withdrawals of 10,000 or more troops since 1982, but opponents say those merely were troop rotations.

Governor, mayor report no injuries in butter pat skirmish

RICHARD ADAMS

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — Food fight? More of a playful pat, Mayor Mike Boyle says of his reported showdown with Gov. Bob Kerrey and other county officials over dinner.

"We were injured. The butter wasn't frozen," Boyle joked Thursday in response to questions about a dinner a group of Democrats had last month.

As for throwing foil-wrapped butter patties, Boyle said he was just having fun among friends.

"I think a sense of humor is one of the things that keeps everybody sane," he said.

Politics and love on the prairie

Most Nebraskans approve of Kerrey/Winger romance

By ED HOWARD
The Associated Press

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — There seem to be two kinds of people in this prairie capital — those who admit they gossip about Gov. Debra Winger's romance with Gov. Bob Kerrey, and those who don't.

Since they met two years ago the governor and the actress have charmed most Nebraskans, who treasure their "Winger sightings" and decline to look askance at her overnight visits in the governor's mansion. Even Kerrey's Republican opponents admit she is a political asset.

Pictures of the two holding hands, smiling at one another or just staring into space have adorned most of the state's daily newspapers.

They have been seen shopping arm-in-arm at the Ideal Grocery, or spooning homemade ice cream at Ted and Walley's near the University of Nebraska campus. The 49-year-old Kerrey still dons blue jeans and a sport shirt to stop with her at The Zoo Bar, a local blues joint where a governor and a famous actress don't have to worry about being bothered.

"They drink a few beers and sit and talk and then they leave. You know, like normal people," said bartender Kathy Rjordan.

"Is Debra in town?" is asked in bars and beauty parlors as often as it is thrown at Kerrey's chief of staff, Don Nelson, who flatly refuses to provide information "for Kerrey-Winger stories."

"Sometimes they are together and sometimes they aren't and that's the way it is," Nelson said.

That's Kerrey's policy too. He won't talk about their plans for the weekend, much less marriage before "Is Debra in town?" is asked in bars and beauty parlors as often as it is thrown at Kerrey's chief of staff, Don Nelson, who flatly refuses to provide information "for Kerrey-Winger stories."

"Sometimes they are together and sometimes they aren't and that's the way it is," Nelson said.

That's Kerrey's policy too. He won't talk about their plans for the weekend, much less marriage before may run for governor, said Ms. Winger's political influence will depend on Kerrey.

"Nebraskans are a warm, friendly, tolerant people," Brashear said. "We start with the premise that they have been very willing to accept Ms. Winger and they have enjoyed the attention which she has brought to Nebraska."

However, Brashear contends, her Hollywood stardom reinforces the image of Kerrey as a national Democratic star, not as a governor working effectively for Nebraska.

Kerrey is expected to announce soon whether he will run for a second term.

"If the Republicans pick on his friendship with Winger, they will be telling Nebraskans that we should act like the provincial kind of people they think we are," said Democratic State Chairman Tom Monaghan of Omaha.

Sen. John DeCamp of Neligh, an influential maverick in the state's one-house Legislature and a potential long-shot Republican gubernatorial candidate, takes a more severe view of possible public reaction.

"Things are sort of going to hell in agriculture and other areas, and Bob Kerrey also has some big plan to announce, some big program that's going to change the whole world, and six weeks later no one ever hears of it again and Bobby comes out with some other idea that doesn't work," DeCamp fumes, "and the greatest keeps running his picture with good old Debra Winger."

Rev. Everett Silven — a fundamentalist minister who may also run for governor — criticized Kerrey a few weeks ago for allowing Ms. Winger to stay at the governor's mansion.

A poll of 300 registered voters in Lincoln by the Journal-Star Printing Co. found that 76 percent thought it was "a right" for her to stay at the mansion, 12 percent thought it was "nobody's business," and 12 percent thought it was "not all right."

Kerrey conceded, in a quiet way, that it was not all right for Ms. Winger to be speeding, without a driver's license, in his state-provided Lincoln Continental, or to test her car privileges after being ticketed last year.

A local columnist and a used-car salesman took up a collection to buy her a used car. At Ms. Winger's request, however, the car was donated to a group that works with troubled young women.

Chicken chief charged in rear-end collision

SALISBURY, Md. (AP) — Chicken magnate Frank Perdue was charged with a traffic violation after he was injured in an accident in this Eastern Shore city where his company is based.

City police spokesman Jack Marsh said Perdue, 65, was charged with failure to reduce speed to avoid a collision Thursday afternoon and was treated for lip and head injuries at Peninsula General Hospital and released.

Marsh said Perdue's 1984 Mercedes Benz struck the rear of a car that was waiting for a red light. The driver of that car was not injured.

Shuttle pilot credits help from homefront

ATLANTA (AP) — Roy Bridges, the pilot of the space shuttle Challenger's voyage earlier this month says encouragement at home was the first and biggest boost to his ambitions.

Bridges, who once attended a four-room schoolhouse in Pendergrass, Georgia, from Gainesville High School in 1961, went on to the Air Force Academy and later flew 26 combat missions in Vietnam.

"Several of us on this mission looked back at our early days and wondered how we ever made the grade coming from fairly humble backgrounds," said Bridges. "I guess it's a credit to the encouragement I got at home."

He joined the space program in 1980.

"I got a little more out of my first flight than I bargained for and you wouldn't wish something like that on your colleagues," said Bridges, 42.

The shuttle was scheduled for launch July 12, but the launch was aborted at the three-second mark in the countdown. Although the shuttle was going nowhere, Bridges recalled they got a good jarring when the engines fired briefly. "The thing is shaking you around like a hound dog with a ham bone," he said.

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Theft charges were dropped against a man accused of stealing a bicycle and a judge gave him $20 for bus fare back to Ohio after the man reported he had AIDS, authorities said.

Municipal Judge John D. Downer asked Marion County Deputy Prosecutor Jon M. Bailey not to file formal charges, Bailey said Thursday.

"Rather than expose court and sheriff's personnel to this hazard, no charges were filed. There isn't any doubt it was a good arrest."

Officials have refused to identify the man who was arrested Tuesday at a clinic where authorities said he was being treated for AIDS. Two witnesses told police they saw the man wheel a bicycle out of the clinic and hide it in some bushes, said Sgt. Ronald B. Turner, Wishard Memorial Hospital security chief.

The man admitted the theft during questioning and the bicycle was returned, Turner said. Although clinic employees would not tell Turner the nature of the man's disease, the suspect told him he suffered from AIDS.

A Houston hospital confirmed the man was diagnosed in April 1984 as having acquired immune deficiency syndrome, said sheriff's Deputy Terry A. Date.

Girl charged for giving falsehoods

BOUNTIFUL, Utah (AP) — A Davis County beauty queen who said she invented a story about being abducted to explain an overnight disappearance was charged today with two counts of giving false information to police.

The two misdemeanor charges against Fawna Gillette, 19, were filed in 4th Circuit Court in Bountiful Tuesday. Police Chief Larry Higgins consulted with city prosecutor Russell Mahan.

The woman's mother said her daughter planned to resign last Friday the crown she won last week as Miss Davis County.

Miss Gillette said at a news conference Thursday the reason she told police she had been abducted by a man outside Bountiful City Hall was that she didn't know how to explain why she left work early Tuesday afternoon and stayed in a canyon overnight.

She said she had not thought about the consequences of her actions and apologized for the concern she had caused.

"I just needed to get away from all the high expectations, all conveniences, all food, and be alone and think," she said. "It was just a whim I had the night before."

However, Mahan said Miss Gillette was served a summons at her family's home and would be expected to appear for arraignment at a later date. She was not arrested or booked on the charges, which carry maximum penalties of a $299 fine and six months in jail.

Asked if he considered the filling of charges to be excessive under the circumstances, Mahan replied, "Not in my opinion." He declined to elaborate.

Miss Gillette's disappearance launched a 29-hour search and caused her parents, LuAnn and Paul Gillette of Bountiful, to hurry home from a Hawaiian trip.

Mrs. Gillette said Thursday her daughter, who won the pageant Aug. 7, had been under too much stress.

"I guess she just snapped," said the mother. "Fawna has led an incredibly busy life the past two years. She's a lot of pressure on herself, being a perfectionist."

"She developed an ulcer last year. That should have told us something, I guess," she added.

Her father said the young woman had reached the canyon before he realized what she had done and just needed to come back and get the thing straightened out.

After the charges were filed today, Mrs. Gillette said the family feels terrible about the charges but doesn't believe them unfair.

NCAA guts SMU football program

By DOUG TUCKER
The Associated Press

MISSION, Kan. — The NCAA, citing Southern Methodist University's "history of involvement" in rule violations, slapped a three-year probation on the Mustang football program Friday that includes an unprecedented reduction of 45 scholarships.

A lengthy list of penalties accompanying the Southwest Conference school's fourth probation in 11 years also calls for sanctions prohibiting television and bowl appearances and punishment of certain unnamed staff members.

Most critically, SMU will not be allowed to give any football scholarships next season and only 15 the following year. This is in line with a resolution adopted this year by the American Football Coaches Association urging the NCAA to make greater use of scholarship cuts in punishing rule-breakers.

"This case marks the fourth occasion in eleven years that the university has been placed on NCAA probation, and these cases have included findings that the university has been involved in violations during 12 of the last 14 years," the news release quoted Wilford Bailey, secretary-treasurer of the NCAA, as saying.

"Based upon the serious violations in this case, as well as the university's history of involvement in previous infractions cases, the Council believed that the severe penalties proposed by the Committee on Infractions in this case were appropriate, including severe grant-in-aid limitations."

In what was previously thought to be the most severe scholarship cut, Florida last year was stripped of a total of 30 grants over a two-year period. Clemson, less than a year after winning the 1982 national championship, was stripped of 20 grants over two years.

NCAA rules allow a maximum of 30 football scholarships each year and a total of 95.

The NCAA release included four pages of single-paragraph listings of alleged violations from 1981 through 1984. Violations include giving $5,000 in cash to the family of a prospective, and promising the young man a $300 monthly cash allowance during his SMU career; paying the cost of repairing players' cars, giving cash amounts up to $2,000 to family members of other players being recruited, and providing improper transportation, lodging and entertainment expenses to recruits and their family members.

Specifically the probation:

- Prohibits SMU, expected to be among the most powerful teams in the nation this year, from playing in post-season bowl games after the 1985 and 1986 seasons.
- Prohibits the school from having its games on any live telecast during the 1986 season.
- Orders that during the probation period of three years, effective on Friday, SMU "shall make every reasonable effort to ensure that outside representatives of the university's athletic interests are not engaged in any activities related to the recruitment of prospective student-athletes in the sport of football on behalf of the institution."

Orders that one assistant coach, who was not named, be placed on probation and not be allowed to recruit until May 1, 1985; that his salary be reduced 15 percent.

Orders that one unnamed athletic department staff member be given a written notice that action may be taken against him if he is involved in more violations.

The NCAA said a number of SMU boosters had already been dissociated from the athletic program.

The sanctions do not include the so-called "death penalty" measures adopted in June at a special NCAA convention. However, it puts the Mustangs in danger of having their program suspended for as long as two years if they are convicted of another major violation before Aug. 16, 1990.

New back 9 stars as golfers tune up for Cactus Pete's

By LARRY HOVEY
Times-News writer

JACKPOT — A return of the professionals probably is overshadowed by the inauguration of the new back nine today as about 225 players begin tuning up for the $50,000 Cactus Pete's Open.

The tournament is scheduled for Tuesday through Friday at the Elk County course with the 16-over handicap players competing the first two days and the pros and 0-15 handicappers meeting Thursday and Friday.

Host professional Bill Downs said a few spots still remain open in the tournament, particularly in the upper handicap division.

Professionals haven't competed in the tournament for the past four years, during which Cactus Pete's has provided a $20,000 amateur. The pro flight was trimmed when the entry list dwindled. Downs said through Friday just 25 professionals had entered this year's competition but he notes "we feel probably would have to build it back up after going those years without it. We've changed the dates (from mid-September) and some players weren't aware of that last spring when they were putting their tournament agenda together for the season. We do have a few more holes have had more but I feel we'll get a few more entries in over the next few days. One thing about it," he added with a laugh, "with the added money everyone's chances for a big payday are good in a smaller field like this.

The major change remains the opening of the back nine.

"This takes us away from the shotgun starts we had to use over the past several years to accommodate everyone who wanted to play. And moving the tournament up three weeks should increase our chances of having good weather," he noted.

The back nine is actually less than a year old but Downs said "even with our high altitude here we feel it has filled in pretty well. There are some rough spots and there is some rock out there. But the greens have come in very well. Again, there are some places that we're still working with but there is sufficient care on everyone to provide good pin placement. All the new greens are putting true and smoothly in those areas."

To overcome the bare spots, Downs said "we'll simply let the field tee it up anytime it wants to on the fairway. — but not in the rough. It will be the same for everyone and it should take away any of the complaints that might arise."

The new nine will play to about 3,550 yards with tee capabilities of increasing that considerably. No. 16 can be stretched to over 600 yards and the other par 5 on the new nine will play to about 560 yards.

While the pro flight isn't big, it boasts some players. One is Don Prentice, who won the Montana Open late last month and this will be one of the few times that Twin Falls graduate Jeff Thomsen will be able to play near his home.

Thomsen, fifth in the Treasure Valley Open last week, has played on the PGA tour in the U.S. plus the Eastern and European tours the past 10 years.

A top contender figures to be Mike Hamblin, Twin Falls, who was second in the TVO. The length of the new nine lends itself to his game.

Two other entries who have won consistently in pro events this year are Tracy Frank of Burley assistant, and John Lewis, an aide to Tim Reinke at Pinecrest in Idaho Falls.

Utah is sending Lynn Langer, who has played on the tour and is always one of that state's leading money winners.

The usual large list of championship contenders from Utah hasn't shown up yet, although Jack Ridd always is among the leaders and is entered. Former champions Perry Hanchey of Twin Falls and Glenn Blakeley of Burley are back along with the Packard boys, Jim and Kevin, both of Twin Falls, and Weiser's Joe Malay.

Downs said the usual hospitality and favors by the host casino will again highlight the tournament.

Clay Taylor of Caldwell tries unsuccessfully to rope a calf Friday at the Cassia rodeo

New leaders take control of reins

By SCOTT TUDEHOPE
Times-News writer

BURLEY — Ropes whistled and ornery bulls bristled in the second night of the Cassia County Professional Rodeo.

The final go-round begins at the fairgrounds at 8 p.m. today.

A new leader bulled his way ahead of the pack in the final event of the evening — bull riding. Mark McClure of Houston was the next-to-last rider for the night, but his 47-point finish put him eight points ahead of Thursday's leader, Vance Every of Idaho Falls.

McClure was one of just two cowboys out of a field of 11 to legally finish — his eight-second mount. He's expected to be challenged tonight by Tom Henrie, who according to announcer Zeb Bell is the top-ranked U.S. rookie in that event.

Barback riding also established a new leader. Stockton, Utah, cowboy Tim Rydahl rode Hancock to a 77-point mark to wrest first-place honors from Thursday's leader, Mickey Young of Jerome, who had 73. Second-place honors currently belong to Gary Broner of Twin Falls and Paul Henrie of Joseph, Utah, who have tied at 75.

Pocatello's Bill Aller put the brakes on his steer for a 5.1-second close-down to capture second place in bulldogging Friday. Rogerson rancher Dave Chadwick put in the next-best time of 7.6 seconds, but is out of the money.

Meanwhile in saddle bronc riding, Laren, Oregon, cowboy Terry Carlton took Rain Dance to a tie for first with Curt Clarke, Boreman, Mont., with 75 points. Neither Steve Manning of Burley nor Todd Telford of Malta made it into the top four finishers.

The Madera, Calif., duo of David Gill and Ron Goodrich have nailed down fourth place in team roping with a time of 8.3 seconds, while no one came close to besting Jerome's Kirk Webb's 9.7-second time in calf roping. Burley's Saggers joined five other "pokes by not posting a time."

In the barrels, the fastest times yet in the rodeo were recorded, with Pocatello cowboy Mary Agnes Aller in the lead with a 17.41.

Uecker sits front row in hearts of his fans

By TIM LIOTTA
The Associated Press

ANAHEIM, Calif. — Go ahead, the next time you're at the ballpark, as the usher leads the way down the aisle, tell someone loudly that your seats "must be in the front row!"

Heads will turn, those sitting nearby will nod knowingly, and smiles will almost certainly spread throughout those within earshot.

Not since Yogi Berra coined, "It ain't over 'til it's over," has baseball had an anthem so easily recognized, so universally appreciated.

"This utterance, born in a beer commercial, has made a cult hero out of its owner — the ever-bumbling, always seemingly lost Bob Uecker (whose seats end up not in the front row but in the farthest-reaching bleachers).

His following awaits him wherever he goes as the play-by-play announcer for the Milwaukee Brewers. It awoke most recently in the Kingdom in Seattle.

"They put people up in the worst section of the stadium... they'll have Bob Uecker seats... in the farthest reaches of the stadium, and the guys have banners. 'Thanks for the great seats, Uek,'" said Uecker in an interview at Anaheim Stadium.

The seats may be one thing, but it's the line that people remember.

BOB UECKER
Fame from obscurity

"You can ask any of the ushers," Uecker said. "Somebody will be in the front row, not on purpose, of course, and they'll say, 'If I must be in the front row, or 'He missed the tag, he missed the tag.'"

Uecker's popularity has mushroomed through the series of Life Beer commercials and has exploded into other national commercials.

Big Sky hints at 7-team hoop tourney

By The Times-News
BOISE — The Big Sky Conference will probably have a seven-team basketball tournament next winter, with the regular-season league champion getting a bye in the first round.

That's the word from Big Sky Commissioner Ron Stephenson, who says the final decision will be up to the Big Sky presidents, who will meet in December to determine whether Idaho State — which was NCAA last month — can participate in the tournament.

Under the terms of its probation, Idaho State is prohibited from participating in post-season competition and from making TV appearances during the 1985-86 season.

Stephenson says it's his guess that the other institutions won't take the chance of not sending a representative to the NCAA tournament, and thus "will not permit ISU to participate in the conference tournament on two years' probation by the

The tournament will be played in the Law Events Center in Reno, Nev., because Nevada Reno won the league championship last season.

If UNR should win the regular-season Big Sky title again next year, it would have a bye in next winter's tournament in its own arena.

"That causes us some concern from the standpoint of attendance, since the team with the bye year wouldn't play on the first night," Stephenson said. "But with seven teams there's very little else we can do."

The Big Sky decided last year that starting in 1986, the defending Big Sky champion would host the tournament the following year.

"If Reno wins it and doesn't play the first night, it won't ruin the gate, but it will have an impact," Stephenson says.

Under the seven-team format, the regular-season champion from next year will open on the second night of the tournament against the winner of the one of the first day's games.

Tougher penalties on minds

By DOUG TUCKER
The Associated Press

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Knowing that his Kansas football program faces a possible two-year shutdown does nothing for Coach Mike Gottfried's peace of mind.

"It's difficult enough getting ready for a season, without having to worry about that," he said. "It's something you're definitely aware of."

Gottfried and several other football coaches are preparing for the 1985 season knowing there may be no 1986 or 1987.

By an overwhelming vote at a special NCAA convention in June, sweeping changes were made in the enforcement department's penalty structure. The most severe new sanctions were immediately dubbed the "death penalty" by coaches who said the rules could effectively kill a program.

Under the provisions, any school that commits a major violation twice within a five-year period could have its entire program suspended for as long as two seasons.

For the same period, restrictions would be put on scholarships and members of the coaching staff could be prohibited from off-campus recruiting.

"Any school that gets hit with all that," declared Oklahoma State basketball coach Paul Hansen, "is going to the graveyard."

Several schools are just one mistake away from that graveyard. Delegates to the June meeting, determined to stop an increasing number of violations, made the death penalty retroactive. Therefore, all schools put on probation for a major violation after Sept. 1, 1980, already are in danger.

If they commit a second major offense within five years of being slapped for offense No. 1, they will be in jeopardy of having their program suspended.

Any suspension would apply only to the second sport penalized. The "vulnerability period" expires five years after the last major penalty is imposed.

During the June convention there was a brief floor fight, led by the Pac-10 Conference, against retroactivity. The Pac-10 commits file off its members among the vulnerable group.

"It's something our conference and our members are very much aware of," said Jim Muldoon, a Pac-10 spokesman. "There hasn't been a lot of talk about it, really. What can you say? Those who are under that cloud are resigned to it. I've talked to some of them and they realize that you only get two strikes in this game and we've already got one."

Those in jeopardy in the Pac-10 are UCLA, Southern Cal, Oregon, Arizona and Arizona State. Others known to fall into that category include Kansas, New Mexico, Florida, Clemson, Wichita State, SMU, Wisconsin, Illinois, Southern Mississippi and Dayton.

The NCAA has refused to name the vulnerable schools.

Winfield helps Yankees move to within six games of Jays

NEW YORK (AP) — New York Yankees cleanup hitter Dave Winfield knew he was on his way to second the moment his bat touched the ball. Boston Red Sox Manager John McNamara, on the other hand, was thinking more about what he would think on his way home.

Winfield doubled with two out in the 10th inning and scored the winning run on a bases-loaded walk to Randolph as the Yankees defeated the Red Sox 5-4 Friday night to move to within six games of Toronto in the American League East.

American

Winfield's double went into shallow left field toward the line, then died in the grass, giving Winfield plenty of time to beat Jim Rice's throw.

"When I hit it, I knew I was going," Winfield said. "I didn't know if I'd make it, I was just going. It's instinct."

After the double, Red Sox reliever Steve Crawford, 5-3, walked Dan

Pasqua intentionally, then walked Butch Wynegar on a 3-2 count.

That brought on Bob Stanley, who walked Randolph on four pitches to drive in the winning run.

Dave Righetti, 8-7, pitched a scoreless 10th inning to the Yankees, who have won nine of their last 10.

"It didn't feel good for a couple of innings, but it's okay," the 35-year-old St. Louis Cardinals hurler said of a slight back injury he suffered en route to a 6-1 triumph over the Montreal Expos. "I was a little upset, because at first, it felt about the same as last year."

Utah bank will enter Moore fold

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) - Continental Bank & Trust Co. shareholders voted Thursday to merge the 76-year-old institution into the Boise-based Moore Financial Group Inc.

The merger could be completed by the end of the quarter, said George N. Larsen, a Continental director and the attorney who handled the transaction.

Ten percent of the cash is to be held in escrow to cover any contingencies unforeseen by Moore, Larsen said. Selling shareholders, however, will receive interest on the escrowed amount.

The vote was nearly 90 percent in favor of merger. However, dissent came from Patricia Cosgriff Dahl, owner of 6.89 percent of outstanding shares and daughter of former Continental President-Walter E. Cosgriff, who died in 1981.

Her attorney, Ray Gardiner, read a statement by Mrs. Dahl and her sister, Lynn Isbell. "I must express my opinion that had it been managed in a more aggressive posture, and had it better served the needs of this community, our shares may have commanded a far higher value than the Moore Group is now proposing to pay," the statement said.

UP chooses Ashton to open station

ASHTON (AP) - Union Pacific Railroad will keep its agency station open at the stations at St. Anthony and Newdale on a one-year trial basis.

Employees have received five-day notices and the closures are expected within the next two weeks, said Richard D. Tinchler, Salt Lake City, regional spokesman for the railroad.

Tinchler said he wasn't told why the Ashton depot was chosen to remain open, "but it's probably because it's more centrally located or something. It doesn't really make much difference ... if (shippers) call him, he has to turn about and call the customer service center in Idaho Falls."

The closure of 16 agencies throughout the state and consolidation of two in northern Idaho for a year's trial period was approved by the Idaho Public Utilities Commission last week. The operation will be reviewed in a year to determine if closures will be permanent.

The closure of 16 agencies throughout the state and consolidation of two in northern Idaho for a year's trial period was approved by the Idaho Public Utilities Commission last week. The operation will be reviewed in a year to determine if closures will be permanent.

Union Pacific asked to close 26 agency stations to centralize its operation at customer service centers, such as the ones in Idaho Falls and Pocatello. Instead of calling local stations, shippers will call a toll-free number at the nearest center.

In its ruling, the PUC told Union Pacific to keep open one of the Upper Valley agencies but left the decision of which one up to the railroad. Other agencies in eastern Idaho to be closed are Rexburg, Shelley, Arco, Blackfoot and American Falls.

The station at Aberdeen will remain open.
