Board will consider state spending cuts

By QUANE KENYON
The Associated Press

BOISE — The Idaho Board of Examiners will hold a special meeting here Wednesday to consider whether it's necessary to order a holdback in state spending.

If that happens, it will be bad news for higher education and the Department of Health and Welfare, which get the bulk of the state's general tax revenues. Those departments would have to bear most of the brunt of any budget cuts.

The two Republican members of the three-person board, Secretary of State Pete Cenarrusa and Attorney General Jim Jones, issued a statement Monday saying they would not act on their own to cut the state budget.

"The governor is the chief budget officer of the state and has the primary responsibility of insuring a balanced budget," said Jones and Cenarrusa. "This is a responsibility which Evans cannot shift to the Board of Examiners."

Last week, Lt. Gov. David Leroy, the likely Republican governor candidate next year, urged Evans to "impose an immediate cut in state spending, or he would ask the GOP members of the Examiners board to act without him."

But both Cenarrusa and Jones said they would not act without the governor's support, because historically, it has been the governor's responsibility to balance the state budget. All the Board of Examiners can do is order permanent budget cuts late in the year if it appears state spending will exceed revenue.

The state Constitution forbids deficit budgets in Idaho.

State officials are estimating that at current tax collection levels, Idaho will spend about $10.95 million more than it collects in the fiscal year ending next July 1. But other officials have been urging a delay, since the projected deficit is only about 1 percent of the total state budget and Idaho is only six weeks into the budget.

"I'm pleased at this development and quick response to the crisis," said Leroy, in a statement. "The governor is to be commended for setting up this informational meeting before he leaves the state for the Western Governors' Conference. I hope that he also will follow through to temporarily trim state government spending to the current income levels."

Leroy said a small spending holdback now could avert the need for serious budget cuts toward the end-of-the-fiscal year. He said he plans to attend the Board of Examiners budget briefing.

Cenarrusa and Jones urged "prompt and prudent" action by Evans to balance the budget.

"We would use our budget-cutting authority only as a last resort in the event that prompt and responsible action is not forthcoming by the governor through a temporary holdback order or some other budget-balancing means," they said.

Cenarrusa, who has spent most of the last three decades in the Idaho Legislature and then as secretary of state, said he liked the way Republican Gov. Robert E. Smylie dealt with a similar problem years ago.

Third large store joins fight against BID's parking plan

By ANNETTE CARY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The Idaho Department Store in downtown Twin Falls may join The Bon and Penney's as downtown stores planning to move to the planned Magic Valley Mall, store manager Charles Stuart told the City Council Monday in a discussion of a validated parking plan for downtown.

Now Penney's and the Idaho Department Store occupy buildings adjacent to a small downtown park area featuring a fountain, trees and park benches. The Bon is directly across the street.

Stuart said he could not respond directly when council members asked if his store planned to leave downtown.

But then he added, "Possibly we will. There's a good chance we might move."

"Would you be interested in moving to the Penney's or Bon building?" asked Mayor Emery Petersen.

"I don't think that would solve our problems," Stuart said.

To date, Civic Development Corp. officials have named only The Bon and Penney's as downtown stores planning to move to Price's planned mall on Blue Lakes Boulevard North.

Monday, Carl Koehler of The Bon gave the first confirmation from his company that the store will be moving to the mall.

He said regional officials of The Bon plan to open a store there in the summer of 1987. Price officials, however, have named October 1986 as the opening date of the mall.

Koehler said he could not explain the discrepancy in dates since plans for the move were being made at administrative offices in Seattle, not in Twin Falls.

No decision was made on the validated parking proposal Monday. Managers of The Bon, J.C. Penney's and the Idaho Department Store have all opposed a change to validated parking in downtown lots. Council members asked the Downtown Business Improvement District for more time to study survey results handed out at the meeting.

About a dozen downtown business owners and managers attended the meeting, most to oppose the validated parking plan.

Donna Skinner of Skinner's Sewing Shoppe and Carl Brown of Claude Brown Music and Furniture Co. both suggested that merchants should be directly assessed for maintenance of parking lots, rather than raising the money through validated parking payments.

The board of the BID, a city taxing entity for the downtown, has asked the council for approval of a plan which would raise parking meter rates from 5-cents an hour at most meters to 10 cents an hour.

Parking meters would be removed in the main parking lots on the Second Avenue and Furulture, but instead receive parking tags which they could turn in with validation marks from stores in lieu of paying for parking.

Clergymen plead with intent Botha Claim he remains unresponsive to their pleas

By MAUREEN JOHNSON

PRETORIA, South Africa — South African church leaders pleaded Monday with President P.W. Botha to dismantle apartheid, but later said the president does not seem to realize time is running out for white-minority rule.

The meeting was called to discuss the racial violence that has lasted nearly a year and left more than 600 people dead.

"The two perceptions of South Africa were so different that we hardly began to communicate at all," said Archbishop Denis Hurley, leader of the nation's 2.36 million Roman Catholics.

Black Anglican Bishop Desmond Tutu, rejected last month when he asked for an private meeting with Botha, refused to attend, saying the president "only wanted to meet blacks in his choosing."

"I had hoped I could talk to him as a South African to a South African, as a Christian to a fellow Christian, even as a grandfather to another grandfather," Tutu, 53, said of the 69-year-old president.

Tutu, the 1984 Nobel Peace Prize winner, told The Associated Press by telephone.

"When you are listening to Mr. Botha you realize that he isn't really interested in peaceful negotiation, because he is strong militarily. ... His people seem intent on bludgeoning blacks into total submission."

Hansen man charged in crash; judge 'felt sick' at previous case

By PAT MARCANTONIO
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Richard Allen Lee of Hansen was charged Monday with vehicular manslaughter and felony drunken driving for allegedly causing the death of two people and injuring a third in a Friday accident near Hollister.

Fifth District Magistrate Judge Charles Brumbach, who presided over the Monday hearing, said he "felt sick" and responsible for the accident because he had sentenced Lee in June to 30 days in jail for drunken driving, but suspended 20 days of the sentence.

"If only I had a crystal ball to see the future,"

Brumbach said. He added that if he had levied the full 30 days of jail time, "two people would have been alive today."

Brumbach also said he wouldn't preside over any of the new charges filed against Lee because of his strong feelings about the case.

Lee, 23, 116 First St. W., Hansen, is charged with two felony counts of vehicular manslaughter in connection with the deaths of Hagerman rancher Fred Spencer Barrett, 67, and Barrett's sister, Margaret Lyons, 69, of Hereford, Texas.

The incident occurred early Friday morning on Highway 93, four miles south of Hollister. According to the complaint filed with the court, Lee was driving a pickup truck north when he crossed the center

Reagan plans pre-summit meeting; Soviets condemn test

President looks to 'prospects for progress'

By SUSANNE M. SCHAFER
The Associated Press

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. — President Reagan, looking to discuss "prospects for progress" in U.S.-Soviet relations before his first superpower summit, will meet next month with Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze, the White House announced Monday.

Spokesman Larry Speakes said Reagan had invited the recently appointed Soviet official to come to Washington and that Shevardnadze had accepted. The invitation was extended "some time last week," he said.

It would be the first meeting between the two men, and provides the opportunity for both sides to make substantial preparations for the scheduled November summit between Reagan and Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev. It also comes as a third round of U.S.-Soviet nuclear arms talks are scheduled to get under way in Geneva, Switzerland.

U.S. officials have said the president hopes the summit will "set the agenda" of superpower relations for the coming years.

"This meeting will review all areas of our relations and help prepare for the president's meeting with General Secretary Gorbachev in November," Speakes told reporters.

The two leaders are to meet in Geneva on Nov. 19-20.

Speakes, who accompanied the "president-looks forward to this meeting, both to review U.S.-Soviet relations and to look ahead toward the meeting with Secretary Gorbachev in November."

"Obviously we will be discussing the prospects for progress in all areas of U.S.-Soviet relations," Speakes said. "Our position at Geneva will provide a good basis for these discussions."

Secretary of State George P. Shultz and national security adviser Robert McFarlane will take part in

Soviet media points finger at Nevada test

By The Associated Press

MOSCOW — Soviet commentators criticized the United States Monday for an underground nuclear test blast last week, the first since Moscow declared a five-month moratorium on Soviet underground nuclear tests.

The official news agency, Tass, said that with Saturday's test, the 19th announced this year in the United States, "the Reagan administration graphically demonstrated in practice ... the worth of its avowed intention to make nuclear weapons 'impotent and outdated.'"

The U.S. Department of Energy said the atomic device was detonated in Nevada at 9:25 a.m. local time, 1,088 feet below Yucca Flats, a desert area 76 miles northwest of Las Vegas.

Genrikh Borovik, a senior commentator on U.S.-Soviet affairs, said on the national evening television news that the test showed the wrongfulness of U.S. assertions that moves such as the Soviet moratorium were only "profitable for the Russians."

Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev announced July 29 that Moscow would impose a five-month ban on underground nuclear tests and invited the United States to follow suit.

Gorbachev said the Soviet ban would remain in effect after Jan. 1, 1986 if the United States did not conduct any nuclear tests after that time.

U.S. President Ronald Reagan rejected an immediate test ban on grounds the United States must complete scheduled nuclear tests to keep pace with Soviet testing, which was carried out before their moratorium.

Gorbachev said last week that Washington had invented excuses to avoid matching the Soviet ban, which he described as an "honest and open move."

Envoy says blacks can attain equality

WASHINGTON (AP) — South Africa's — ambassador-designate, Herbert Beukes, said Monday that his country's ruling white minority will not agree to one-man, one-vote status for blacks because they have a different "value system" but that blacks nevertheless can attain political equality.

In an interview with The Associated Press, Beukes said the government of President P.W. Botha has made a firm commitment to dismantle apartheid laws, and "one after the other they have fallen like dominoes." "We are committed to political equality, to justice and to a system that will be as fair as we can possibly develop in that country within that diversity that we have," he said. "Whether we find that system, I don't know."

HERBERT BEUKES
Value system 'different'

He agreed that granting of political rights is the biggest remaining issue in South Africa, and the most fundamental to ending the government's strict system of racial segregation. But, Beukes said, Americans should not have been surprised that Botha ruled out a one-man, one-vote policy for South Africa's 24 million blacks, a privilege enjoyed by the 5 million whites.

"If you want an announcement that the government says our system will make provision for black rule, instead of democratic rule, then you will be disappointed," he said.

Roy L. Williams is pushed into courtroom in Chicago

Ex-Teamsters leader to begin 10-year term

CHICAGO (AP) — Despite an emotional plea for leniency Monday by attorney Roy L. Williams, a federal judge ordered the former Teamsters president to enter a prison hospital to begin serving a 10-year sentence.

U.S. District Judge Prentice Marshall reduced Williams' original 55-year sentence and ordered him to report to the prison hospital at Springfield, Mo., in 60 days.

"It's the death sentence for Roy," said attorney Thomas Wadden, who had argued that Williams, 70, should be placed on probation because he suffers from severe emphysema and heart problems.

Williams had said in his plea for leniency that his treatment during the 2 1/2 months he has already spent at the Springfield facility caused him to lose 10 pounds and was detrimental to his health.

"The other inmates are pushing me around," he said, speaking in a barely audible voice after being wheeled into the courtroom tethered to an oxygen supply. He also said prison food had given him indigestion and that cigarette smoke in the corridors made him lose his breath.

But Marshall said the Springfield facility was not supposed to be like a regular hospital.

"It is a federal correctional institution, a prison that happens to be structured as a hospital," he said. "I recognize Mr. Williams is dying, I recognize he has a terminal illness."

Marshall did not comment on reducing the sentence he had given Williams in 1983 for conspiring to bribe a U.S. senator. He had made the original sentence provisional pending a medical evaluation, which was completed in early August.

"My life is in your hands," Williams told the judge, and maintained that he is innocent.

"I think the evidence of guilt is overwhelming," the judge said.

Test doesn't tick with Timex

NIAGARA FALLS, Ontario (AP) — The watch that daredevil Steven T. Trotter wore when he went over Niagara Falls in a barrel was a Timex and, just like the commercials said, it took a licking and kept on ticking.

Spokesmen for the American and Canadian branches of the watch company said Monday that neither company knew in advance of Trotter's plan.

"The first I heard of it was on the morning news," said Mike Jacoby, vice-president for marketing and sales at the Timex Group Ltd. in Waterbury, Conn.

"We get a lot of letters where people do individual things (to test the watches), but this was more spectacular than the ones we usually get," Jacoby said.

Trotter, 22, of Barrington, R.I., faces arraignment Aug. 28 in Ontario Provincial Court and a maximum fine of $500 on a charge of performing an illegal stunt.

Trotter, an aspiring stunt man, became the seventh known person to plunge over the falls and survive. He received only a cut on his arm, said Niagara Parks Police Constable John Clark.

New Japanese 'Super Pill' Insures Rapid Weight-Loss

No Dieting — Eat All You Want, Pill Does All The Work

BEVERLY HILLS, CA — An exciting new "all natural" weight-loss "Super" Pill developed by the JMA (Japanese Medical Association) has just been approved for distribution in the United States. Reportedly, it can guarantee that you will lose more than a pound a day without dieting, from the very first day until you reach your ideal weight and figure. News of this "Super Pill" is literally sweeping the country. It's called Amiolol and there has never been anything quite like it before.

"Flushes Calories Right Out Of Your Body"

What makes Amiolol so thrilling and unique is its reported ability to flush calories right out of your body. Amiolol is completely safe, it contains no drugs whatsoever. Its ingredients are derived solely from the Konjac root which grows primarily in Northern Japan.

Why the Konjac root? It has been used in Japan for over 1600 years to produce rapid and natural weight-loss. Japanese studies verify that Konjac root actually prevents fat producing calories from being absorbed into your system. They say it does this by surrounding much of the fats, proteins and carbohydrates you have eaten with a protective viscous coating which is then gently flushed out of your system. And according to Japanese research this produces absolutely amazing results.

And who can disagree! Amiolol (although brand new to this country) is already being called by many people, "the most exciting weight-loss breakthrough of the century." In fact, every where there are reports of easy and fast weight-loss from formerly overweight people (in all walks of life) who are now slim, trim, and attractive again.

Company Offers Extraordinary Guarantee

You now can purchase Amiolol direct from the North American distributor, and it comes with an extraordinary guarantee.

If you place your order now and then follow the simple instructions for a period of 30 days, you must be completely satisfied with the dramatic visible results or just return the empty container and Dyna Labs will immediately send back your entire purchase price. This guarantee applies regardless of your age or current weight level. What could be better than that! It's just that simple. If you've tried to lose weight before and failed you no longer have an excuse. Amiolol is available, it's easy and it works without dieting!

Best of all, ordering Amiolol is simple, fast, and reliable! Simply call Dyna Labs Toll Free: (1-800-826-2220) and order with your credit card. If you don't have a credit card Dyna Labs will also accept C.O.D. orders right over the phone! All orders are shipped immediately by UPS, which means no delay and no orders lost in the mail!

$19.95—30 day supply, or $35.95—60 day supply. Operators are standing by and will be glad to take your order. You can order 24 hrs. a day, 7 days a week! Please don't wait to call. You really do deserve to be thin!

Oldest nuclear plant turns 25

ROWE, Mass. (AP) — The Yankee Atomic Power Station, the nation's oldest operating nuclear power plant, celebrated its 25th birthday Monday.

The 185-megawatt facility, nicknamed "Yankee Rowe," was completed Aug. 19, 1960, at a cost of $37 million, 23 percent under budget. That's just a fraction of the multibillion-dollar price of a typical 1,000-megawatt nuclear reactor now under construction.

Yankee Rowe, which didn't actually generate power until Nov. 10, 1960, has one of the best operating records of any atomic plant in the United States and has never been fined or sanctioned by the Nuclear Regulatory Commission, said plant spokesman William McGee.

Official: spills an 'act of God'

CROSS LANES, W.Va. (AP) — Officials on Monday called recent dangerous chemical leaks in West Virginia's "chemical valley" acts of God, but one added that "certainly God hasn't been too good to this valley lately."

Kanawha County Commission Chairman Douglas Stump offered that assessment after a chemical tanker spill Sunday night injured 10 people, forced more than 50 others from their homes and closed a 12-mile stretch of highway for three hours.

The sulfur trioxide spill on Interstate 64 near Cross Lanes came just one week after poison gas from Union Carbide's Institute plant two miles away sent 135 people to hospitals. Two days after that accident, less toxic material leaked from Carbide's South Charleston plant and drove a number of residents from their homes.

Post makes cable purchase

WASHINGTON (AP) — Capital Cities Communications said Monday it will sell a $350 million chunk of its media holdings, $3 cable systems, to the Washington Post Co. in preparation for its $3.5-billion merger with American Broadcasting Cos.

Both ABC and CapCities have been selling properties to meet federal restrictions on cross-ownership, actions which also reduce the amount of money that must be borrowed to complete the deal.

All of the spinoffs are conditioned on completion of the merger which still must be approved by the Federal Communications Commission.

Illinois' Thompson runs again

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — Republican Gov. James R. Thompson, the longest-serving chief executive in Illinois history, announced Monday he would be a candidate in 1986 for a fourth consecutive term.

Thompson, 49, said he "thought long and hard" about quitting, but said he likes his job and is still challenged by it.

Thompson, who was joined at a news conference by his wife, Jayne, and 7-year-old daughter, Samantha, said he expects his Democratic opponent to be Attorney General Neil Hartigan, who is to announce his plans after Labor Day.

Envoy optimistic despite failure to set talks

WASHINGTON (AP) — Richard W. Murphy, assistant secretary of state for Near Eastern affairs, returned to the United States on Monday from a six-day Middle East journey that failed to culminate in a preliminary meeting with a joint Palestinian-Jordanian delegation.

Despite the U.S. failure to advance that peace process to the point where such a meeting could be held, State Department spokesman Charles E. Redman said it was "obvious that the process is not dead and that we are continuing to pursue it."

Redman said Murphy, on his return, would consult with President Reagan and Secretary of State George P. Shultz to determine what the United States and a joint Jordanian-Palestinian delegation die East trip had advanced that was still possible, and he would not cause.

Tour guide suing TWA for hijacking

CHICAGO (AP) — A tour guide who was on hijacked TWA Flight 847 from Greece in June and was among those passengers held hostage in Lebanon sued the airline Monday for more than $1 million in damages.

The suit filed by Peter Hill, 47, charges that TWA failed to take appropriate safety precautions even though the airline's executives knew the Athens airport had lax security and a history of terrorist activities.

Hill said he still suffers nightmares and poor health because of his 17-day ordeal, during which he and 38 other men, including 10 from Illinois, were held captive in Beirut. Other passengers had been released earlier.

His suit seeks $1 million on grounds that TWA failed to initiate "proper and required safety procedures" despite previous terrorist activities at the airport.

Intelligence systems aid nuclear safety

IDAHO FALLS (AP) — It could happen today, it could happen next week. Something has gone wrong in a nuclear power plant somewhere in the United States, perhaps in Idaho.

As plant officials and technicians struggle to find the problem and correct it, a call is made to the Nuclear Regulatory Commission Operations Center in Bethesda, Md. An NRC emergency response team immediately begins collecting information from plant officials to keep track of what's happening, to advise the utility and ensure public safety.

The amount of data coming in is staggering and pushes the team to its limit. Sometimes bits of information, perhaps crucial bits, are missed under the avalanche of incoming data.

But a new artificial intelligence system under development at the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory is expected to aid the response team in its efforts to analyze the information coming from the accident scene, and perhaps diagnose the problem and its cause.

The Reactor Safety Assessment System takes artificial intelligence techniques, also known as expert systems, and applies them to nuclear power plant technology.

Artificial intelligence is a technique that makes computers reach logical conclusions.

The system accepts and analyzes large amounts of information-based data on a data base developed with the aid of power plant experts. The NRC will use the system to assess the changing situation in a power plant during an accident.

"It works on the data to generate conclusions for the people on the team," said Michael Bray, artificial intelligence project leader for EG&G Idaho Inc., a major contractor at the INEL. "The people on the team evaluate the conclusions and make decisions."

The conclusions usually are factual and immediately usable without much interpretation. For instance, the system will say a tank is full rather than the level the tank is 100 inches as would be shown in the raw data.

Federal grand jury files 4 indictments

BOISE (AP) — A man is accused of taking more than $156,000 in cash and traveler's checks in a July northern Idaho bank robbery, according to federal grand jury indictments filed here Monday.

Larry William Harvey, no address listed, is accused of robbing the St. Maries branch of Idaho First National Bank on July 12, an indictment says.

An FBI statement filed with the indictment said two men robbed the bank at gunpoint, and escaped with $69,050 in cash and $88,500 in American Express travelers' checks.

Courts records showed no address for Harvey; except the County Jail where he is being held. He is charged with bank robbery and using a firearm during a felony.

In other indictments returned by the grand jury and filed Monday:

- Mary Elizabeth Capps, 46, Richfield, is accused of two counts of embezzlement by a bank employee and two counts of using the mails for fraud. The Justice Department alleges she converted $4,673 from a loan insurance settlement to her own use on Sept. 19, 1983, and on Oct. 29, 1984, diverted $16,852 from a similar loan settlement. She's a former First Interstate Bank employee.
- Louis A. Simmons, 63, Boise, was accused of making three false statements about his income, in an effort to qualify for federal subsidy and assistance programs.
- Paul Robert Tetzlaff, Boise, was charged with bank robbery and using a firearm during a felony. He's charged with robbing a Boise Idaho First National Bank branch on Nov. 9, 1984, of an undisclosed amount.

District passes up cleanup fund offer

IDAHO FALLS (AP) — An Eastern Idaho school district says thanks but no thanks to a federal grant.

Trustees of the Bonneville School District at Idaho Falls applied for a federal Environmental Protection Agency grant to help remove asbestos from Hillview Elementary School. Officials say there isn't much of a problem at the school, and the grant request was for only $620.

But EPA granted only part of the request, approving a grant for $145.84 and allowing a $474.15 loan that would have to be repaid.

Counties' cash basis law upheld

BOISE (AP) — A 4th District Court judge has ruled that it's improper for counties to levy enough taxes to keep them operating on a cash basis and avoid borrowing money.

Fourth District Judge W.E. Smith has signed an order granting judgment to the state in a lawsuit filed by Sam and Faye Bennion; V-1 Oil Co.; Weatherite Block Co.; Six B, Inc.; and V-1 Self Service. The Bennions are Idaho Falls residents, and protested 1975 property taxes levied against V-1 Oil property in several counties.

The lawsuit alleged that Idaho laws allow counties to levy only enough taxes to cover budget needs. But several counties carry a surplus over from one budget to the next, and if the surplus were included in the operating budget, Bennion's property taxes would be lower, the lawsuit contended.

But Smith, in an order signed Aug. 12, ruled there is nothing in state law or the Idaho Constitution to forbid carrying over surpluses so counties do not have to borrow money to keep operating on a cash basis.

Smith said Article 7, Section 15 of the state Constitution requires counties to operate on a cash basis.

The ruling rejected Bennion's challenge, which was on 1975 tax assessments, based on the fact that counties at that time used a different percentage of market value to determine assessed value of property.

The judge ruled that the Idaho Constitution requires only that taxes within a certain taxing district must be uniform on all property within that district.

Cyst surgery saves infant

BOISE (AP) — Doctors at St. Luke's Regional Medical Center in Boise have made another step forward in the area of fetal surgery by draining a cyst in the lung of an unborn child, a hospital spokeswoman said.

The operation allowed the mother to continue her pregnancy and bear a 6-pound 16-ounce baby by Caesarean section last week, said Rita Ryan, St. Luke's public information director.

The baby, All Bronwyn Thomson, daughter of Nancy Stock and Gary Thomson, Boise, received corrective surgery after her birth on Wednesday and was in good condition Monday at the facility's neonatal intensive care unit, Ms. Ryan said.

She said Dr. Michael Gravett and an assist team inserted an intrathoracic shunt, or catheter, in the lung of a fetus in his seventh month of development.

It was the first known successful placement of a fetal thoracic shunt, which was designed and made at St. Luke's cardiac catheterization laboratory, Ms. Ryan said.

The surgery helped shrink a cyst in the fetus's lung from about three inches in diameter to less than one inch.

Ms. Ryan said that reduced the risks of the mother going into premature labor or the fetus dying of heart failure.

Nevadan Laxalt declines to seek third U.S. Senate term

Offers Reagan services as troubleshooter

By BRENDAN RILEY
The Associated Press

CARSON CITY, Nev. — Sen. Paul Laxalt of Nevada, a close friend and powerful ally of President Reagan, announced Monday he will not seek a third term in the U.S. Senate next year.

The 63-year-old Republican said he will offer his services to Reagan as a roving ambassador and congressional trouble-shooter and will stay in Washington, D.C., for the rest of the presidential term because the Reagans "want me there and I want to be there."

Laxalt did not go into details on why he decided to leave the Senate, but said the essence of his decision was "right or wrongly, that I had paid my dues in the term I came for me to try to achieve a greater measure of freedom." He has said there were economic considerations, but "they aren't overriding." Other senators who have announced plans to retire at the end of their terms next year include Republican Barry Goldwater of Arizona and Democrats Russell B. Long of Louisiana and Thomas Eagleton of Missouri.

The conservative senator said he didn't specify what his new role will be.

"You just name it and I'll be there," Laxalt said he told the president Sunday. Reagan was "deeply disappointed" by Laxalt's decision to leave the Senate, Laxalt said.

Laxalt headed Reagan's presidential campaign, placing his name in nomination for the White House at the 1976, 1980 and 1984 Republican conventions.

The senator said he will continue to serve as general chairman of the national Republican Party.

State political leaders voice shock, surprise

By ROBERT MACY
The Associated Press

Nevada political leaders expressed shock and surprise Monday at the announcement by U.S. Sen. Paul Laxalt that he would not seek a third term — a decision destined to change the state's political landscape.

"This has taken us all by surprise," said Claude Zobel, administrative aide to Democratic Congressman Harry Reid. "Harry felt very confident that the senator would run again. We were 99 percent sure he would run for re-election. The decision caught us off although Zobel stopped short of such a pronouncement.

"He has made no decision what might happen a year from now, although this provides new considerations," Zobel said. "He plans to discuss the situation with his family, close friends and personal aides."

Reid was out of the country, attending briefings with arms control negotiators in Geneva as a member of the House Foreign Affairs Committee.

Gov. Richard Bryan said he was sure all Nevadans, Republican or Democrat, wished Laxalt well and respected his decision.

"I think all of us respect his decision, understand the personal pressures he was under, both in terms of his responsibility to his party and his family and we accept his decision and certainly wish him well," Bryan said.

In an Associated Press interview at his Marietta Lake ranch last Thursday, Laxalt mentioned Reid, Bryan and former Congressman Jim Santini as the leading Democratic candidates if he decided not to seek re-election.

"My understanding is that Bryan has issued a statement that he is not running," Zobel said Monday. Bryan reaffirmed that intention later in the day.

"I will not be a candidate for the U.S. Senate in 1986," Bryan said Friday several hours after Laxalt's announcement. "I have a job to finish here in the governor's office. I will decide next year whether to run for re-election or not run at all."

Bryan said he would not take sides in a Democratic Party primary battle for the Senate seat if such a battle should develop.

Tougher DUI laws proposed

By QUANE KENYON
The Associated Press

BOISE — In response to a recent poll, Rep. Lyman Gene Winchester, R-Kuna, says one Idaho resident suggested hanging would be an appropriate punishment for repeated drunken driving offenses.

While he isn't prepared to go that far, Winchester and supporters say they're convinced that the bulk of Idaho's residents want even tougher drunken driving laws.

Winchester on Monday turned in preliminary paperwork for an initiative drive that the conservative Republican hopes will culminate in a new law requiring jail terms, even for first-time offenders.

When the paperwork is done, Winchester and his Deter Intoxicated Drivers task force will launch a state petition drive to get the question on the ballot in November of 1988.

The group has until July of next year to collect about 34,000 signatures of registered voters. Then Idaho voters would be asked if they want to require at least two days in jail, or 40 hours community service, a minimum $300 fine and a minimum 90-day license suspension for any driver convicted of drunken driving.

Although the Idaho Legislature acted two years ago to tighten and toughen its drunken driving laws, Winchester says experience with the new laws shows they aren't tough enough.

"Not enough is being done," he said. "This (the initiative) is just one more twist on the nut to get these people to start acting responsibly. We want to send them the message that if they drink, don't drive."

Winchester acknowledged that he in essence is bypassing the Legislature, because similar legislation has not been approved by the lawmakers the last two sessions.

But he said there are a number of reasons why the Legislature will not enact tougher drunken driving laws, although his surveys indicate a vast majority of state residents favor such action.

He said there are some legislators with drinking problems, and "personal" factors keep lawmakers from getting tougher. "We just can't get tougher laws through the Legislature, so we're going to try this," he said.

When a reporter suggested to Winchester that the Legislature could change the initiative if it passes, he said "it wouldn't be politically wise to tamper with it."

The secretary of state's office said the proposed petitions were turned over to the attorney general's office for review. Winchester said he hoped to get the paperwork done so supporters could circulate the petitions at this weekend's Western Idaho Fair at Boise.

Deputy Secretary of State Ben Ysursa said it appeared the petitions were well prepared and should be approved within a few days.

Current state law does not require a mandatory jail term for first-time offenders, no minimum fine and license suspension is not mandatory. Winchester wants to make that two days in jail, or community work, a fine of at least $300 and 90-day license suspensions.

Besides the hanging suggestion, Winchester said some people suggested impounding a driver's car for the second or third offense.

"Society as a whole is really fed up with drunken drivers," he said.

Pakistani general criticized

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan (AP) — Pakistan's government is touting a return to civilian rule next year, but opposition leaders say the only change is that President Gen. Mohammed Zia ul-Haq is becoming a civilian. He's not giving up power. Zia, leader of the military regime which has governed this nation of 88 million for eight years, will step down as military commander but stay on as president. The country's political opposition claims the new government will be merely a front for the military.

Conductors strike in England

LONDON (AP) — Striking train conductors disrupted commuter services to London and Glasgow on Monday in a dispute over management's plan to eliminate the conductor's job on some trains. The walkout began after conductors in Scotland and Wales refused to work on trains scheduled to become operated by drivers only. In Glasgow's southern commuter belt, British Rail said 50 percent of services were cancelled when guards did not show up for work.

Salvadoran rebels block traffic

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — Leftist guerrillas machine-gunned a pickup truck and a bus and set fire to at least three other vehicles Monday in a campaign to paralyze the nation's highway traffic, authorities said. Two passengers in the pickup were reported killed and an unknown number were wounded. Sources contacted around the country said rebel roadblocks had cut normal traffic by about 80 percent on principal highways by midday. The guerrillas had broadcast on their Radio Venceremos that anyone using the highways Monday would be fired upon or stopped at roadblocks.

Car explosions kill 29 in Beirut Moslem area

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Car bombs exploded outside a cafe and a mosque in Beirut's Moslem sector Monday, killing at least 29 people and wounding 82 in apparent revenge for similar bombings in the Christian sector that took 70 lives last week. The first explosion went off at 12:05 p.m. outside the Hamadeh sandwich bar in the densely populated Karakol el-Druse neighborhood. It killed 25 people, including several children, and wounded 73.

Ten minutes later, a car bomb detonated outside the Rawdat el-Shahideen mosque in Ghebril, a poor Shiite Moslem district, killing four people and wounding seven. Residents said worshippers had left the mosque after midday prayers only 15 minutes before the blast. An anonymous caller said a Christian group had set off the bombs to avenge Christians slain by car bombs last week.

"We have a car bomb war on our hands now," the Moslem radio Voice of the Nation declared. Police said the first explosion set passing cars afire and sent shards of metal flying through the streets, cutting people down like scythes. They said most of the casualties were in the street and a six-story apartment building above the row of shops.

A twisted tricycle lay on the sidewalk. Witnesses said a girl and boy who were playing on it were torn to pieces by the explosion. A 10-year-old girl, clutched two charred white sandals, "My two sisters are dead," she said. No one inside the sandwich bar was reported killed.

Mohammed Bindak, who saw the explosion, said a blond man in blue jeans and a white shirt parked a Peugeot sedan outside a flower shop next to the sandwich bar, bought a sandwich and fled moments before the car exploded. Capt. Youssef Biter, top police explosives expert, estimated that the car carried 77 pounds of liquid Hexogene, which he described as being four times stronger than TNT.

Police estimated the charge in the car outside the mosque at 110 pounds of TNT. The explosions followed threats by the Lebanese Forces, the main Christian militia, to avenge the 70 people killed by two car bombs last week in Christian east Beirut. More than 100 people were wounded in those explosions. The Druse and Shites, inhabitants of the two neighborhoods hit Monday, are allied against the Christians in Lebanon's 10-year-old civil war.

Pope: bury the hatchets

CASABLANCA (UPI) — Pope John Paul II, the first pope ever to be an official guest in an Arab state, said Monday that Christians and Muslims should replace their "old habits" with "new politics" with mutual respect.

In a speech to Arab leaders and officials, the pope said, "The pope realized the tradition of tolerance in Morocco, which he said was reflected by the presence of Jews and Christians here since ancient times, and asserted that dialogue between Christians and Muslims is today more necessary than ever."

"Muslims and Christians have generally understood each other badly, and sometimes, in the past, we have opposed each other and even exhausted each other in polemics and wars," he said.

"I think God invites us today to change our old habits. We have to respect each other and also stimulate each other in good works on the road of God."

The Roman Catholic Church and Islam represent the "two largest religious groups in the world."

Noting "important differences" between the Christianity and Islam, the pope said these could be accepted "with humility and respect in mutual tolerance."

"Every man expects to be respected for what he is, and what he believes in — conscience," the pope said. "Here is the true sense of religious freedom, which respects both God and man."

Nearly all the 20 million Moroccans are Muslims. Most of the 65,000 Christians are citizens of France and Spain, which governed Morocco jointly until 1956.

The weather was hot and sunny. John Paul II, 66, was in a stadium crowd in Arabic, then used French to praise the generosity of Muslims toward the pope as "living testimony of their faith."

Hasan, who is the chief of state and the nation's supreme religious leader, was at the airport when John Paul's Altalia jetliner touched down after an eight-hour flight from Nairobi, Kenya.

ing and were evacuating people from said. The explosion shattered windows in the main area Sunday night when the doors in nearby shops and burned the shopping area of Strabane in County Tyrone, slightly injuring three policemen and two civilians, police spokesman who spoke on condition he not be identified. The beer keg civilians had been in a nearby pub packed with the explosives had been left outside a store, the spokesman said. The explosion had been helping in the evacuation.

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — A bomb exploded in the main shopping area of Strabane in County Tyrone, slightly injuring three policemen and two civilians, police spokesman who spoke on condition he not be identified. The beer keg civilians had been in a nearby pub packed with the explosives had been left outside a store, the spokesman said. The explosion had been helping in the evacuation.

Philippine editor found murdered

CEBU CITY, Philippines (AP) — The editor of an English-language newspaper critical of the government was shot and killed Monday near a slum district in the southern Philippines.

He was the 11th journalist slain in the Philippines this year.

Police said they have taken two people into custody for questioning. The body of 41-year-old Joseito Paloma, riddled with 30 bullets, was found in his car in a deserted street in Surigao City, his cousin said.

Paloma was attacked in the slum area of Surigao City, 120 miles from Cebu City and 450 miles southeast of the capital of Manila.

Police said they were investigating why Paloma had gone near the slum area and were trying to find out if his death was related to his position as editor and publisher of the weekly Surigao Star.

Paloma was the 11th journalist slain in the Philippines this year, according to a National Press Club tally.

GARBAGE

Q. What did the early American Indians do with their garbage?

A. Covered it with dirt. Even in their caves, sod huts, domiciles of whatever sort, when the trash collected on the floor, they spread it around and heaped soil on it, raising the floor level by that much.

Q. It's said of Philadelphia: In no other big city in the world do so many people ride through on trains without getting off. Why?

A. Because it's so close to New York City. Nowhere else worldwide are two such metropolises so close together.

TIGER! TIGER!

'Night Court' judge enjoys shell game

LOS ANGELES (AP) — It wasn't long ago that Harry Anderson, the judge on television's 'Night Court,' worked the streets of San Francisco hustling passers-by with magic and the infamous shell game called three-card monte.

HARRY ANDERSON May hustle some more

HENRY WINKLER Fonzie's Triumph sold

They're still his favorite pastimes, and he's not sure whether he prefers his street performances over his TV-series role of Harry Stone, for which he has received a best comedy actor Emmy nomination.

"I take a six-penny nail and pound a up my nostril with the heel of my shoe," he said. "I can eat a live guinea pig. That went over well on Saturday Night Live."

Anderson jokes that he also gets a kick out of what he calls "the geek stuff."

Anderson appears in a Showtime cable TV special Sept. 26 featuring the shell game and magic.

Star cars draw bids ranging to 6 digits

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A Triumph driven by Henry Winkler's character Fonzie in "Happy Days" drew $3,200 in a celebrity auction that disposed of cars, props and other movie and TV memorabilia.

A 1928 Duesenberg roadster that appeared in the motion picture "Gable and Lombard" drew the high bid of $382,000 during Sunday's auction.

Vandals put big bite on computer program

NEW YORK (AP) — Somewhere out there, plugged into the nation's growing computer network, is a vandal whose bark — "Arf! Arf!" — is not nearly as bad as his bite.

public. "The disturbing thing is when someone's sense of humor becomes truly destructive, as in the 'Arf! Arf!' program."

The vandals' tool is a program he places on electronic bulletin boards, those linkups which allow computer buffs to exchange messages and information.

Streeter said some computer enthusiasts have spread the contagion unintentionally by copying the program and then offering it on bulletin boards without first testing it.

Richard Streeter, executive of Fanwood, N.J., an executive at CBS Inc., was once an innocent. He had 900 programs stored in his IBM AT computer, accumulated over several years, and he felt pretty good about it.

AI Stone, whose Family Ledger was the source of Streeter's miseries, tests programs, but "Arf! Arf!" did its damage before he could take a look at it.

But then, one night not long ago, Streeter was paging through the Long Island-based Family Ledger bulletin board when he saw a program that looked to improve his computer's graphics. He "downloaded" the program into his computer, and sat back to watch it work.

Luckily, Streeter had copies of 650 of the destroyed programs, and was able to restore them after a day's work.

Instead, those 900 programs — programs that help keep accounts, programs for word processing, game programs — had vanished. In their place was a simple gibe, designed to make the victim put a fist through the screen:

But at a time when "hackers" have been known to invade military and other computers, Streeter fears more mischief is on the way: "worms" that eat away at memory gradually as they are used, and programs that may balance the household budget the first, second and third times they are used and then gobble your computer library on the fourth go-round.

"Arf! Arf!" said the computer. "Got You!"

Richard Streeter finds it hard to describe his feelings at that moment.

"One, there was disbelief. Secondly, just devastation," he said. "According to PC magazine, there are several versions of the 'Arf! Arf!' program circulating. In each version, computer hobbyists are permitted one enticing thing on an electronic bulletin board, and get quite another."

When the vandals log on to the bulletin board, they generally give phony names, addresses and telephone numbers, and then they feed their program — known in the computer world as a "Trojan Horse."

Bill Machrone, editor of PC, said such pranks have been "very prevalent in campus computing situations forever," but had more recently extended to the general

Jazz fans applaud Texas blues guitarist

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — Texas blues guitarist Stevie Ray Vaughan & Double Trouble brought out the biggest response from a crowd of more than 7,000 who turned out for the finale of the JVC Jazz Festival.

Jazz fans clapped and danced to the performance by Vaughan, drummer Chris Layton, bassist Tommy Shannon and organist Reese Wynans, joined in jamming by trumpeter Bob Enos and saxophonists Greg Ficoole, Rich Letellie and Doug James of Roomful of Blues.

Young listeners dominated Sunday's crowd at seaside Fort Adams State Park.

The lineup of performers was geared to the current decade: the David Murray Octet, pianist McCoy Tyner and his quartet with special guest alto saxophonist Arthur Blythe, (fusion guitarist Lee Ritenour, keyboards player Dave Griffin, and Grammy Award-winning Wynton Marsalis and his quartet.

New series' locale also appears in film

RYE, N.Y. (AP) — The producers of a new television series were looking for a town that "epitomizes small-town New York" and they found it in the suburban Westchester County city of Rye, about 25 miles north of Manhattan.

Sharp-eyed watchers who tune in to view the premiere of the CBS series "Hometown" on Aug. 22 will spot Rye as the mythical town of Whitely.

"They first looked at Bedford and then they came here," said City Assessor Philip McGovern, who has been coordinating the project with producers.

"Hometown" is about a group of friends from the 1950s dealing with life in the 1980s. Critics have dubbed it a spinoff of the movie "The Big Chill."

Stock in brothel in Nevada could be traded over counter

SPARKS, Nev. (AP) — If John Davis' $10 million bid to buy the Mustang Ranch goes through, it will be the first time stock in prostitution has been sold over the counter.

Workers at the 100-bedroom brothel are even talking about investing.

Davis, of Irvine, Calif., and his Strong Point Inc., a publicly traded company, announced plans Aug. 5 to buy the ranch from Joseph and Sally Conforte. It could be late October before all of the financial arrangements are completed.

"I am not sure this is what the founding fathers had in mind when they set up our free enterprise system, but I can confirm this would be a first," said Charles Larson, a Washington spokesman for the Securities and Exchange Commission.

If Strong Point and its 300 investors holding 3.2 million shares succeed, it could help change the public's attitude toward prostitution, says Davis, who describes it as "just a business."

"My wife is a psychologist" as well as a registered nurse, Davis told The Los Angeles Times, "and she deals with patients who are victims of sex crimes and she thinks a lot of it could be avoided."

"Perhaps if there was legal prostitution there would be less incidence of rapes, molestation and incest."

The takeover plan has attracted much attention at the desert brothel, east of Reno, which operates legally.

Dellia, one of the 40 prostitutes employed at the 40-acre ranch, said several of her customers have told her they own stocks.

"A lot of them ask my opinion about whether they should buy stock in this place," said another woman known as Maria.

In the kitchen, conversation focuses on whether the prostitutes should buy in. Some have discussed liquidating their investment portfolios and putting all their assets into Mustang Ranch stock.

Conforte began his operations in the late 1950s when prostitution was illegal. In 1971, he won Storey County's approval for the Mustang, pioneering the statewide movement to legalization.

Storey County-Sheriff Robert Del Carlo on Monday said the Mustang Ranch pays a yearly license fee of $60,000.

Death penalty draws support

LOS ANGELES (AP) — An overwhelming majority of Californians support the death penalty, and many say the conviction of their mother or father of a capital crime wouldn't change their minds, a poll says.

The Los Angeles Times found that 75 percent of the 1,568 people polled in a telephone survey in June favored capital punishment, 85 percent of them strongly. Nine percent said they were staunchly opposed.

But most of those polled said they believe non-punitive measures such as education and drug rehabilitation would do more to reduce crime.

Of those who support the death penalty, 63 percent said they would still favor it if an innocent person was executed.

Abandoning rail lines reduces shipping rates

PULLMAN, Wash. (AP) — Abandonment of rail lines has benefited rather than harmed farmers because the result has been lower shipping rates, a Washington State University professor says.

The Staggers Railroad deregulation Act was designed to increase the financial viability of the railroads, and it has worked," said WSU agricultural economist Ken Casavant.

The law adopted in 1980 allowed railroads to abandon unprofitable spur lines. Many farmers feared that their resulting dependence on trucking would boost shipping costs, Casavant said.

Instead, he told a meeting of transportation specialists and economists Friday, his research indicates that abandonments had cut operating costs, holding rates down.

Shippers now must truck grain to regional loading sites, but Casavant said they're finding the combination of cost-effective short-haul trucking and lower rail rates cheaper than shipping by rail at pre-Staggers Act rates.

Casavant said farmers around Great Falls, Mont., sent 80 percent of their grain to market by barge in 1980. Now, lower rates have allowed railroads to recapture all but 10 percent of the market, he said.

Washington and Idaho transportation officials are exploring proposals to form a regional railroad using tracks that Burlington Northern plans to abandon in the Palouse. Casavant, however, said the lower cost of truck-rail grain shipping probably would remove the need for such actions.

Plant zoning decision may come in 2 weeks

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

JEROME — A decision on how to zone 1,560 acres of now-agricultural land in Jerome County to accommodate a proposed cheese plant may be made within two weeks, says County Commission Chairman Carl Montgomery.

Montgomery said he hopes the county board will review testimony from a two-and-one-half hour hearing Monday and reach a decision within that time span.

The hearing before the commissioners involves a zone change application of the Mountain's Empire Dairyman's Association (MEDA) for locating a proposed plant in southeast Jerome County to manufacture cheese from milk, which would come from the Magic Valley and areas as far away as Treasure Valley.

The Jerome County Planning and Zoning Commission voted several weeks ago to ask the county commissioners to decide on appropriate zoning since it could find no acceptable combination for the site.

If the county approves the application, MEDA would be cleared for construction of a multi-million dollar plant.

MEDA's attorney, William Parsons of Burley, submitted an alternate proposal at the opening of the hearing suggesting only 160 acres fronting on the county road be designated as heavy industrial and the remainder of the 1,560 acres retain an agricultural use.

But he also suggested the county change its zoning regulations to allow the agricultural land to be irrigated by diluted industrial wastes — whey from the cheese processing — and provide for location of collection lagoons to hold the whey during winter months.

He said about 270 acres of the site are now being irrigated and the MEDA proposal calls for irrigating only 180 acres more, for a total of 450 acres. He called the plan a "self contained" program in which the waste effluent from the plant would be used on the firm's land for irrigation and fertilizer.

Rosanne Hardin, attorney for some of the county residents who oppose the zoning request, argued that the original application from MEDA was for a heavy industrial zone designation on the entire 1,560 acre parcel.

To submit a new "proposal" at this time, she said, would mean starting over again with a new application and all of the information and hearing requirements that go with it.

She told the commissioners their own county zoning ordinance would require such action.

Hardin also objected on grounds that other zoning application requirements such as a Soil Conservation Service soil test and report, have not been met, and that authorities who testified Monday for MEDA said their own studies and reports are only about 60 percent complete.

She urged the commissioners to turn down the application and wait until the applicant's proposals and figures are more exact.

Parsons and Rex Gerratt of Burley, a MEDA director, stressed the economic value of the plant. Jerome and Magic Valley, Gerratt estimated construction costs at between $3 and $7 million with about two to three years construction work.

Gerratt said the plant would help the dairy industry in the area and save greatly in milk transportation costs to other markets.

However, he said fresh milk would be shipped.

Defender job lures field of 9

TWIN FALLS — Nine lawyers have applied for the job of Twin Falls County Public Defender.

Commissioner Judy Foston expects a decision to be made this week for a replacement to Mike Powers. Powers resigned earlier this year to enter private practice.

Among the applicants is Tim Wilson, the deputy public defender under Powers and now acting public defender.

Wilson, who had a private practice in Lewiston and was deputy attorney for the city of Lapwai, has been recommended for the job by Twin Falls County Sheriff Jim Munn.

Other applicants:

- Michael J. Hildebrand of Holton, Kan. Hildebrand now is in private practice. He formerly worked as a public defender and deputy prosecutor in Elmore County.
- Richard E. Kriger of Chatsworth, Calif., attended the University of California Law School at Davis. He has worked for a superior court judge in Fairfield, Calif., and in the office of counsel for the Army Corps of Engineers in Sacramento.
- Gerald Linn Wolf of Lincoln, Neb., has worked in a Lincoln law firm and county attorney's office. He graduated from the University of Nebraska.
- Michael J. Wood of Fort Collins, Colo., has experience in private practice, legal aide services in Colorado Springs, Colo., and as state deputy public defender. He is a University of Colorado Law School graduate.
- Alyssa C. Curry of Clarkston, Wash., is a prosecutor with the Nez Perce tribe and a University of Idaho Law School graduate.

Frederick H. Tournay of Boise now works for the Ada County Public Defender's office and has a private practice. He is another University of Idaho Law School graduate.

Joseph S. Stanzak of Twin Falls formerly worked for a district court judge in Soda Springs and at a legal clinic at the University of Idaho, where he attended law school.

David C. Kaudy is the manager of the Idaho Legal Aid Services office in Twin Falls. He worked in a similar capacity in Missoula, Mont., where he also attended law school.

Friday was the deadline for applicants. The public defender is hired on a one-year contract with the county.

'Seat' voting loses Council split kills proposal

By ANNETTE GARY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — An ordinance which would have required councilmembers to run for election by seat failed to pass with a vote of 3-3 Monday night.

Mayor Emory Petersen and councilmembers Doug Vollmer and Jack Miller voted for the proposed ordinance. Members Mary McClusky, Gale Kleinkopf and Erik Andersen opposed the plan. The seventh councilmember, John Petersen, was absent.

"I'm afraid any change in the current way of electing councilmembers would be disruptive to the process," said Andersen after the meeting. "And any 'spice' gained might create more hard feelings, than anything else."

Vollmer, who proposed the change, has said it would make elections "spicier" to have candidates running against other candidates instead of running at large.

Now, the candidates with the most votes will win the election. If the ordinance had been passed, candidates would have to pick one of the seats up for election. Then the candidate with the most votes running for each seat would be the winner.

The seats would be not reflect districts in the city.

"I didn't see adequate benefit to the plan," Kleinkopf said. "And public input was marginal."

McClusky said city residents who discussed the plan with her were opposed to it. She also voted against the plan because it would not take effect in the November election, she said.

State law requires that seats be designated at least 120 days before the election. Vollmer proposed the plan about three weeks before the 120-day deadline, but other members of the council blocked action then. They said there had not been enough time to gather comments on the change and fully consider it.

Now Pocatello is the only city in the state to elect council members by seat.

Learning center plans open house Wednesday

By KRISTIN TUCKER
Times-News correspondent

TWIN FALLS — Tailoring classwork to meet the needs of each child, Acorn Learning Center officials say individualized learning and small class size are part of their strong, personalized academic program.

Acorn's head teacher, Diana Westerman, and others on the staff are inviting "parents, kids, and interested community people" to an open house on Wednesday from 3 to 9 p.m.

Located in the basement of the school building at St. Edward's Catholic Church, the four-year-old private school had 75 students enrolled last year in classes for students from 3 years old to third grade.

Parent and student demand has convinced the Acorn staff to add an "advanced primary" class this fall for grades three and four, Westerman said. The hiring of Roger James to teach the new class brings the Acorn staff to five. Others are Chris Mannen, Christy Fischer and Bernice Roessler.

Class size is limited to 10 students in the preschool classes, 12 in kindergarten, and 15 in primary grades.

Westerman said there's a lot of movement between classrooms, including what she calls "flexible placement." Children are not always grouped according to chronological age, but where they can best learn. Academics are tailored to a child's needs, with quick learners allowed to move ahead and extra time given to those needing a little more help.

"It's sort of a family situation," Westerman said. "Older children often read to the younger students, and all the teachers are interested in all the kids — not just their own classes."

"We believe education is fun, and that academics are the necessary foundation for learning successfully later in life," she said. The school philosophy also demands that education be personalized, emphasizing that each person — student and teacher — is unique in abilities and interests.

Computers are an integral part of the Acorn curriculum, with basic computer programming taught in the primary grades, and computers used by all the classes.

$10,000-per-plate dinner in September

Idahoan looking for funds from PACs

By DEAN MILLER
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Sen. Steve Symms, who has already raised more than $600,000 for his re-election campaign, is gearing up to dip into the PAC pocket again in mid-September, when his campaign committee is sponsoring a $10,000 per plate fund-raiser dinner for lobbyists on board a yacht on the Potomac River.

Symms aide Phil Reberger said Monday he does not know how many people have responded to the invitations sent to about 200 people.

A contribution of $10,000 is the maximum legal PAC contribution.

For Symms, R-Idaho, and his Senate colleagues, 1985 has been a banner year for raising campaign cash from special interest groups.

A study by Common Cause, a Washington-based public interest research group, said senators on the Senate Finance Committee have accepted about three-and-a-half times as much special interest political action committee (PAC) money this year as they did in the last election cycle in 1983. Symms is a member of the Finance Committee.

"Special interest groups intent on related to legislative decision-making, this study shows that the answer is a resounding yes."

Phil Reberger says Wertheimer is off-base. "Fred and Common Cause have been in a tizzy for years over PAC giving, but because an individual can only give $2,000 and an organization or committee can only give $10,000, nobody buys their smokescreen."

"It is ludicrous to think any public official is going to be influenced by contributions of that size," Reberger said.

The testimony at hearings around the state this week will be the major determinant of Symms' action on tax reform, Reberger said.

Of the 20 members of the Finance Committee working over President Reagan's tax reform proposal, Symms has the third highest amount of PAC money in his coffers and he has collected the fourth highest overall amount of any member of the committee.

One member of the Senate Finance Committee, David Boren, H-Oklahoma, does not accept any money from PACs, Common Cause said.

Common Cause said that about 44 percent of Symms' $660,372 in

2,500 acres blackened Fire near Minidoka controlled Monday

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES

SHOSHONE — The largest range fire of the season in the Shoshone District of the Bureau of Land Management was controlled Monday evening after covering 2,500 acres of public land northeast of Minidoka.

The lightning-caused fire was reported about 2:10 p.m. Sunday, according to fire management officer Dan Chatterton of Shoshone. He said it was burning about six miles east and one-half mile north of Minidoka, and causing concern for some wheat farmers in the area.

"In fact it burned right up against some of the fields," Chatterton said, "before they were able to cut a line around it."

Chatterton said all of the crews were being brought in from the fire at 8:30 p.m. and there were no plans for a night patrol.

Chatterton said crews held the fire to about the same general acreage during Monday after it spread rapidly to 2,500 by Sunday night. It was scattered across dry vegetation by two wind storms that hit the area shortly after it started.

Fifty-four firefighters, including six Shoshone district crews and two from the Burley district, battled the fire Sunday and Monday. Also on the scene were two bulldozers, eight large engines, six small engines and one helicopter.

The Sunday fire has burned over more acreage in our district than has burned in the entire fire season to date," Chatterton said. "We were only at about 1,784 acres until Saturday when we had a 50-acre fire in Jerome County."

The Sunday fire was reported by the BLM lookout station at Kimama and by farmers in the area, he said.

Although lightning accompanied the Sunday night wind storm, there were no new fires reported in the Shoshone, Burley or Boise districts as of Monday afternoon.

Aug graduated from Ft. Zumwalt High School, St. Louis, Mo., in 1980 and is employed at ICT in Glenns Ferry.

An outdoor ceremony is planned for Sept. 14.

Joseph and Mara Roveda

Erkins-Roveda

BLISS — Mara Leigh Erkins and Joseph Samuel Roveda exchanged wedding vows July 6 at Sacred Heart Church on the campus of the University of Notre Dame, South Bend, Ind.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Erkins, Bliss, and the bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. James J. Roveda, Lincolnshire, Ill.

Rev. Theodore Hessburgh, C.S.C., president of Notre Dame, officiated. Music was provided by Steve Werner, harpist; Eaye Phillipson, flutist, and Gall Walton, organist.

Meloni Erkins was maid of honor, with Marla Erkins and Megan Erkins, sisters of the bride, and Mary Beth Roveda, sister of the bridegroom, serving as bridesmaids.

John Roveda was best man for his brother. Groomsmen were Steve Pearsall, Long Island, N. Y.; Bob Johnson, Chicago, and Billie Parante, Santa Ana, Calif. Tim Erkins, brother of the bride, and Jim Roveda, brother of the bridegroom, ushered.

Readings at the mass were given by Melinda Erkins Becker, Sally Esposto, Pittsburgh, and Sharon Roveda, Warwick, R. I., sister of the bridegroom.

The bride wore the same gown worn by her mother at her wedding in October 1949 at the same chapel. The bridal dress also has been worn by three other family members.

Both the newlyweds are 1984 graduates of Notre Dame. The bride has a degree in American studies and is an editorial assistant for the National Futures Association in Chicago.

The bridegroom, who has a degree in chemical engineering, is a staff management information consultant for Arthur Andersen and Co., Chicago.

After a trip to Bermuda, the newlyweds will live in Chicago.

Mom lost as dad leaves to find himself

DEAR ABBY: Last January, my father left home. My mother came back from shopping one day and all Dad's clothes were gone. She found a note saying, "Thanks for nothing, kid. I'll be seeing ya."

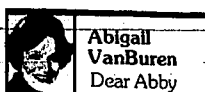

Abby, my father is 56 years old, and to tell you the truth, he wasn't the world's greatest father. He used to hit us kids with a belt and he was never around when we needed him. Mom really raised us.

Dad stops by the house on Sunday to give Mom a measly $150 to survive for the week. He keeps telling her he'll be back when he "finds himself"; meanwhile the talk around town is that he has another woman.

I can honestly say I don't miss him, but there is one fine woman who can't go on without him: our mother. She's lost 23 pounds since January, she doesn't eat right and she cries for hours every day.

When I was a kid growing up, Dad would come home from work, take his shoes off and read your column, so, Dad, if you're reading this now, please come home. You and Mom have been through a lot together the last 30 years. Why quit now? We want to become a family again.

ONE OF SIX IN WAIVER, N.J. DEAR ABBY: It will take more than a letter in this column to reunite your family. Your grieving mother needs professional counseling to help her cope with this abandonment. You can best help her by investigating the available options in your community. Call your local social services or mental health facility. The people there will guide you in instituting your mother get into therapy to become "whole" again. Your father's returning home is secondary.

DEAR ABBY: After a person dies, do the nails and hair continue to grow? I heard they do, but I can't believe it.

BILL JONES DEAR BILL: Nothing grows after death. The skin shrinks, however, creating the illusion that growth has taken place.

DEAR ABBY: I have been having a dispute with my brother-in-law and would appreciate your comments.

Briefly, he asked me to sign something, and I told him I would have to read it first because I never sign anything without reading it. (It was a petition.)

He became very upset, said he was "insulted," and inferred that I didn't trust him. Nothing could have been further from the truth. I do trust him, and he had no reason to be insulted; I just want to know what I'm signing.

(Every teen-ager should know the truth about sex, drugs and how to be happy. Meet Ken Hobart, cage coach

KEN HOBART
Pinch-hitter

KAMIAH (AP) — Yet another facet has been added to the multi-faceted professional life of former University of Idaho quarterback Ken Hobart.

Since leaving college last year, Hobart has played in two professional football leagues, made an unsuccessful bid to play in a third, and opened two video stores.

Now he's a high school basketball coach.

The Kamiah School Board has approved the hiring of Hobart, a Kamiah native, as "co-coach" at Kamiah High School.

Hobart, whose football career was rejuvenated two weeks ago when he landed the starting quarterback job for the Hamilton Tiger-Cats, plans to begin coaching as soon as the Canadian Football League season ends in November.

Hobart was drafted by the Seattle Seahawks of the National Football League in June after 18 years at the non-league level.

Hobart was drafted by the Seattle Seahawks of the National Football League in June after 18 years at the non-league level.

said the arrangement likely will be temporary.

Yates said he first tried to fill the job with the conventional teacher-coach, but was unsuccessful.

"We had only one position available, a science teaching position," he said. "We advertised and advertised," but got no takers.

"I thought about it for about three or four weeks," Hobart said. "But I feel I can do the job... I worked with Fred Mercer in some of his basketball camps, and I feel I have something to offer."

But what can Kamiah High School offer Hobart?

"I make more money in one week playing football than I will in three months of coaching," he admitted. But for one thing, the school's gym will give him a convenient place to work out. For another, it will "fill a void" between CFL seasons.

"The last year or so, I've been getting kind of lazy," Hobart said. "The last off-season I got kind of bored at times. I'd rather have too much to do than not enough."

Bruce Schulz, who served as assistant coach for Mercer, will fill the Idaho High School Activities Association's requirement that teams be supervised by certified teachers.

Robert Scott, who recently was hired as Kamiah High's principal, said he knew little about Hobart's hiring, but expressed emphatic approval.

"All I know is he walks on water," Scott said, "and he plays pretty good football."

Reno, Idaho favored to win Big Sky crown

BOISE (AP) — The University of Nevada-Reno and the University of Idaho are preseason favorites of coaches and the media, respectively, to win the 1985 Big Sky conference football title.

The choices were the result of separate polls conducted earlier this summer at the 5th annual Big Sky Football Kickoff, conference officials announced Monday.

Nevada-Reno, under the direction of veteran head coach Chris Aull, edged Idaho 51 points to 49½ in voting by the league's eight head coaches, which were not allowed to vote for their own teams.

The Wolf Pack, which finished second with a 5-2 league record last year, received five first-place votes, as well as one third and one fourth-place ballot. The Vandals, who third-year coach Dennis Erickson led to a 4-3 conference record and a third-place finish last year, were next with two first-place votes, 3½ second-place votes and 1½ third-place votes.

Defending Big Sky and NCAA Division I-AA champion Montana State was third with 42½ points, followed by Boise State with 38, Weber State with 32, Idaho State with 28, Montana with 21, including one first-place vote, and Northern Arizona with 18.

Thirty-seven sportscasters and sportswriters who cover the Big Sky cast votes in the media poll, in which Idaho outdistanced defending champion Montana State.

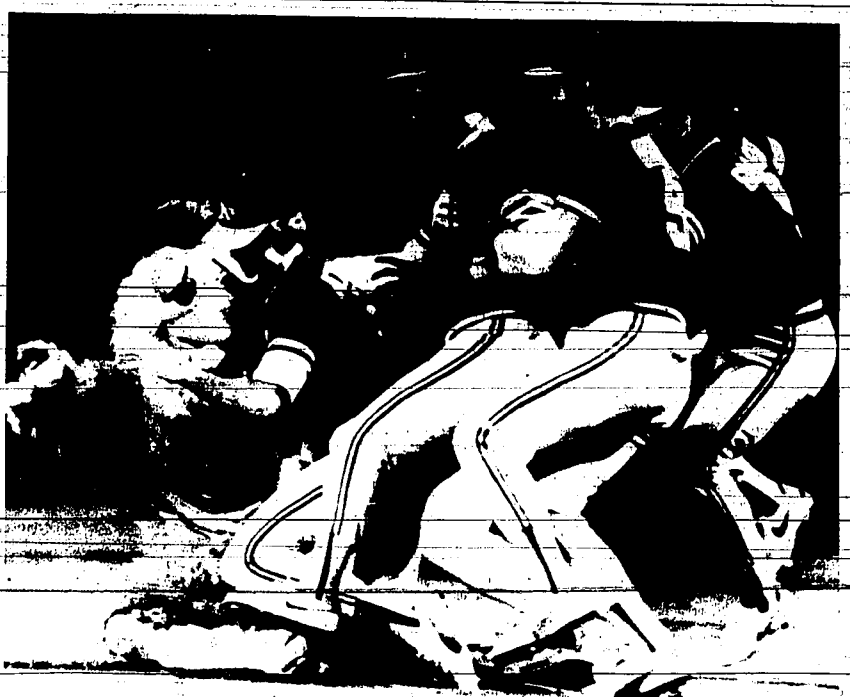

Related story — C2

The Vandals had 259½ total points, including 18½ first-place ballots. Six of the eight Big Sky teams received at least one first-place vote in the media poll.

Montana State was second with 8½ first-place ballots and 22½ points, edging Nevada-Reno by just half a point. The Wolf Pack had six first-place votes for 234 points. Boise State got one first-place vote and 183 points to edge cross-state rival Idaho State, which received two first-place votes and 182 points.

Weber State got one first-place vote and 117 points, while Montana received 68 points and Northern Arizona got 54.

Idaho, MSU and UNR received no vote lower than fifth in the media poll. Both BSU and TSU received votes ranging from first to seventh place.

Cubs reverting to form — with a vengeance

By JOE MOOSHLI
The Associated Press

CHICAGO — General Manager Dallas Green quickly opened his checkbook last winter when his top three Chicago Cubs pitchers became free agents.

He outbid the competition—and made instant millionaires of Rick Sutcliffe, Steve Trout and Dennis Eckersey, believing it would help the Cubs repeat as National League East champions.

He had no way of knowing they would contribute to the Cubs' 1985 collapse.

Sutcliffe, Trout and Eckersey are on the disabled list along with Scott Sanders and Dick Ruthven. All five starters are hurt.

"Unbelievable," said Manager Jim Frey. "I've never seen anything like it. I've seen teams lose one starter and, at times, two but nothing like this."

It's the main reason the Cubs caved in, but not the only one. Hitting suffered, too.

"It wasn't such a big deal as it seems right now," Frey said after Sanders went out last week with a knee injury to complete the incredible cycle.

Green and Frey still were not ready to concede anything, holding out hope that somehow things would turn around.

But last week, when the Cubs reached the two-thirds mark of the season mired in fourth place and more than a dozen games behind, little hope remained.

They already are looking toward next year, releasing Larry Bowa and bringing up future shortstop Shawn Dunston.

The slide actually began May 19 when Sutcliffe, the 1984 National League Cy Young winner, first went on the disabled list after suffering a partial tear of the left hamstring.

Then outfielder Gary Matthews, the team leader in the little-drive last year, went on the disabled list and Sandberg, the NL's Most Valuable Player last year, missed a week with an injured breastbone.

On June 12, the Cubs lost a game in Montreal that started a 13-game losing streak. When it was over, the Cubs were out of first place, but they still felt they could regain the lead when their players got healthy.

"It wasn't that noticeable," said catcher Jody Davis. "We didn't have our No. 1 offense when Bobby D. and Sarge (Matthews) were hurt. But we were still in it. We lost Sult, but we still could send four guys out there to pitch.

"We believed everything would work out for the best."

Things only got worse. Injuries mounted.

Sutcliffe went back on the disabled list a second time. Trout, who had a 13-7 record—in 1984, missed several turns with an elbow injury and eventually landed on the disabled list, followed by Eckersey with a bad arm.

Along with the pitching injuries, the Cubs never caught on with the kind of hitting they used last season to win the NL East.

In 1984, Ron Cey had 25 home runs and 97 runs batted in. Leon Durham hit 23 homers with 96 RBI. Sandberg was 19-84; Davis, 19-94; Keith Moreland, 16-80; and Matthews, 14-82.

Only Moreland still appears to have a chance to drive in 80 runs this season. He had 67.

Frey doesn't like the idea of conceding the season.

"The one thing you can't do in this business is quit," he said. "You still have to go out and try to win games. We know we can't replace the quantity of pitchers we lost."

"Nobody likes to say 'I quit.' Nobody likes to say 'I give up,' but it gets tougher with each loss."

Some of the disabled players, like Sutcliffe, might not come back this season.

"I'm not going to bring anyone back unless they are 100 percent fit," Frey said. "It's important for us not to make the mistakes we made in June and July."

"Regardless of the misfortunes, you can't feel sorry for yourself."

Running backs to reverse Flutie's fluke

By HERSCHEL NISSEYON
The Associated Press

Pat Sullivan is no longer the answer to a trivia question.

From 1971 until Doug Flutie came along last year, Sullivan, Auburn's career passing leader, was the answer to "Who question."

Name the last quarterback to win the Heisman Trophy.

Nebraska's Johnny Rodgers, the 1972 winner, was mainly a flanker but he carried the ball often. But the years from 1973 to 1984 (Pat Pellett) to 1985 (Mike Rucker) were dominated by running backs.

Seven though the passing game made a dramatic resurgence in numerous 3-yard-and-a-half-of-that school.

With apologies to the coaches such as Brigham Young's Robbie Bosco, Iowa's Chuck Long and Bowling Green's Brian Blum, the 1985 look very much like another year of the Running Back.

More college Cs

That's not all. Notre Dame's Allen Pinkel leads current players in rushing yards.

LSU's Dale Hilliard (24) and second-year Bill Hilliard (24) were the first-team running backs among active players in last year's season.

McCallum and Ryan were the first-team running backs in last year's game, while Ryan was the first-team running back in 1984 and leading in the 1985 season.

At BC, the optimism rings a little hollow

NEWTON, Mass. (AP) — Doug Flutie has left Boston College, taking his golden arm and bright football mind with him. Did he also take away the Eagles' chances for success?

The question has pursued Coach Jack Bicknell like a defensive lineman chasing Flutie. Like Flutie, Bicknell has the answer.

"Wherever I go, I'm asked if there's life after Flutie," he said. "I've answered that question once. I've answered it 1,000 times. Yes, there is."

The doubts about Boston College follow years of doubts about Flutie. He was too small and too prone to wildness on the field, critics said. But he answered them by winning the Heisman Trophy as a senior.

"Everybody doubted Doug for four years and he won the Heisman Trophy," said Shawn Halloran, who has a slim lead over Steve Peach in the battle to succeed Flutie at quarterback. "That's what we have to do. We have to prove people wrong."

The Eagles can do that very quickly when they open the college football season Aug. 29 in the Kickoff Classic against national champion Brigham Young.

It will be the fourth consecutive year in which the Eagles faced the defending champion. They have yet to lose. They tied Clemson in 1982 and beat Penn State and Miami (Fla.) the next two seasons.

Yankees win again; cut Jays' lead to 4 games

NEW YORK (AP) — Dave Winfield used his bat, Ken Griffey used his glove and Bruce Hurst used his logic.

"It's two extremes," Hurst, the starting and losing pitcher for the Boston Red Sox, said Monday. "They're on one extreme and we're on the other, but we're going in opposite directions. We wanted to win because they're in front of us, but it just didn't work out that way."

The Red Sox lost to the New York Yankees 6-5 because Winfield hit a two-run homer off Hurst in the first inning and a two-run single off Mark Clear in the seventh while Griffey robbed Boston's Marty Barrett of a game-tying home run in the ninth with a spectacular catch.

The Yankee victory, coupled with Toronto's loss to Cleveland, cut the Jays' lead to four games in the American League East.

"I've been getting some big hits," Winfield said after the Yankees stretched their winning streak to five games, "but one has been here and one has been there kind of sporadically. I haven't been getting multi-hit games like I did today. When I see my batting average at .280 I know I'm at rock-bottom and I've got to start producing."

Griffey capped a day of frustration for the Red Sox. With one out in the ninth, Barrett hit a drive off Bob Shirley that cleared the left-field wall. But Griffey, who entered the game as a pinch hitter in the seventh inning, used his right foot to boost himself up the 8-foot-high fence, balanced himself on top of the fence with his left hand and reached several feet over the wall to make the catch. As he came down, he stumbled and turned a somersault but held the ball.

Cleveland 5 Toronto 3

CLEVELAND (AP) — Tom Waddell allowed seven hits in his first career complete game and Tony Bernazard homered Monday night as the Cleveland Indians beat the Toronto Blue Jays 5-3, cutting the Blue Jays' first-place lead over the New York Yankees to four games.

Waddell, 35, making his third start after 98 career relief appearances, walked one and struck out four and was aided by two double plays. The right-hander had missed his last scheduled start after Detroit's Chet Lemon hit him in the chest with a line drive Aug. 9.

Dave Slieb, 11-9, took the loss. Toronto, which led the second-place Yankees by 9½ games on Aug. 4, has since divided to four games in 15 days. New York beat Boston 6-5 Monday for its fifth straight victory.

Cleveland scored a run in the second when George Vukovich lined a two-out double to center and scored on Brook Jacoby's single.

Bernazard drove a two-out solo homer in the third inning, his 10th, to make it 2-0.

Baseball

California 5 Oakland 4

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — Reggie Jackson hit a two-run homer in the first inning and sparked a three-run fourth with a single Monday night as the California Angels beat the Oakland A's 5-4.

Jackson's 20th homer of the season followed a two-out walk by Ruppert Jones of Don Sutton, 12-7.

In the fourth, Jackson led off with a single and took third on a double by Jack Howell. Juan Beniquez then hit a grounder to third baseman Mike Gallego and Jackson scored when catcher Mike Heath dropped the sixth inning chasing Kirk McCaskill 9-7.

Donnie Elliott singled home a run, extending his hitting streak to 13 games, and Heath hit a two-run, two-out double.

Stewart Criburn relieved McCaskill after Heath's double and held the A's to one hit the rest of the way for his fifth save.

New York Mets 1 Montreal 0

MONTREAL (AP) — Wally Backman doubled home the game's only run with one out in the eighth inning and Ron Darling and Roger McDowell combined on a four-hitter Monday night to give the New York Mets a 1-0 victory over the Montreal Expos.

The triumph boosted the Mets into a half-game lead over the idle St. Louis Cardinals in the National League East.

Danny Heep, batting for Darling, opened the eighth with a double to right-center off Tim Burke, 8-1, who had relieved starter Bryn Smith to start the inning. Len Dykstra grounded out to second, moving Heep to third, and Backman then doubled just beyond the reach of center fielder Herm Winningham.

The loss by Burke snapped his bid to set a team mark for consecutive victories. Smith gave up only three hits in seven innings.

Darling allowed just four hits in seven innings and McDowell pitched two perfect innings for his 11th save.

The Mets squandered a scoring chance in the fourth as Dykstra led off with a single and went to third when Backman followed with a single. Keith Hernandez hit a fly ball to left fielder Tim Raines, who threw out Dykstra at the plate.

Andre Dawson tripled with one out in the Montreal sixth but Darling struck out Hubie Brooks and retired Terry Francona on a grounder to get out of the inning.

Milwaukee 4 Minnesota 1

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Danny Darwin pitched a one-hitter, allowing only Roy Smalley's leadoff home run in the fifth inning of the right-field-foul-pole, and broke a personal 10-game losing streak Monday night as the Milwaukee Brewers beat the Minnesota Twins 4-1.

Kansas City 2 Detroit 1

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Rookie Dave Leeper hit a grounder to Detroit shortstop Alan Trammell and pinch-runner Onix Concepcion slid home from third base with one out in the 10th inning Monday night, giving the Kansas City Royals a 2-1 victory over the Tigers in a strike-postponed makeup game.

Detroit starter Jack Morris, 13-7, and Kansas City's Bret Saberhagen, 15-5, put on a classic pitching duel throughout the cool evening, each allowing just four hits. Saberhagen struck out seven and walked one, while Morris fanned five and walked three.

Steve Balboni led off the Kansas City 10th with a double and was sacrificed to third by John Wathan. Concepcion came into run for Balboni and Leeper batted for Buddy Blacalana. Trammell's throw appeared to beat Concepcion to the plate and the Tigers argued the call with home plate umpire Ted Hendry.

The fielder's choice produced Leeper's first major-league run batted in.

The American League rivals had already made up one of the two games postponed by the two-day strike. The makeup game caught the Royals in the middle of a nine-game road trip and between series in Toronto and Chicago. The Tigers finished a homestand Sunday and headed for a West Coast starting Tuesday.

Lou Whitaker led off the game with a bunt single but stayed at first as Saberhagen struck out Darrell Evans and Kirk Gibson. Lance Parrish then clubbed a double to give the Tigers a 1-0 lead that lasted until the bottom of the third.

Blacalana, a seldom-used light-hitting shortstop, tore into a Morris pitch and sent it sailing down the left-field line. The ball got away from Nelson Simmons and Blacalana went into third base standing up amid a chorus of booring from Royals fans who thought he could have made it home. Willie Wilson promptly pounced in Blacalana with an infield out.

Morris got out of a tight spot in the Kansas City sixth. Lonnie Smith hit a one-out single, stole second and took third on Morris' wild pitch.

But Morris disposed of the Royals' two most dangerous hitters, striking out George Brett and retiring Hal McRae on a fly ball.

Baltimore 9 Texas 2

BALTIMORE (AP) — Eddie Murray drove in the tie-breaking run as the Baltimore Orioles scored six times in the fifth inning with the help of three walks and two errors and defeated the Texas Rangers 9-2 Monday.

Scurry linked to drug dealer

By ALAN ROBINSON
The Associated Press

PITTSBURGH — Rod Scurry of the Pittsburgh Pirates Monday became the first player directly linked to the investigation of drug use in baseball when he was named as a customer of a man who pleaded guilty to selling cocaine.

The plea was entered by Dale Shiffman, one of seven men indicted by the grand jury investigating drug sales around Three Rivers Stadium. He pleaded guilty to 20 drug trafficking charges, but another 91 counts against Shiffman were dropped in a plea bargain.

Assistant U.S. Attorney James Ross said that if Shiffman's case had gone to trial, Scurry was prepared to testify that he bought cocaine from Shiffman on at least 19 different occasions during the 1982 and 1983 seasons. Scurry has undergone drug rehabilitation and publicly acknowledged his drug use.

Ross said the left-handed pitcher purchased cocaine from Shiffman every day the Pirates were in Pittsburgh during the 1982 season. Scurry could not be reached for comment and Pirates publicist Ed Wade said the team would have no comment on the case.

Shiffman, of suburban Pittsburgh, faces a maximum sentence of 45 years in prison, although he likely will serve only a portion that time, plus a fine of $25,000 and three years probation. U.S. District Judge Barron P. McCune did not schedule sentencing.

Shiffman, 33, is known to have visited the Pirates' Three Rivers Stadium clubhouse on numerous occasions and was frequently seen at Pirates games carrying a camera. During the investigation that led to the indictments, a federal grand jury heard testimony from at least 12 current or former major league players, all or most of whom testified under immunity from prosecution.

The New York Times reported Monday that Cincinnati Reds outfielder Dave Parker and New York Yankees infielder Dale Berra, both former Pirates, were among the players named as cocaine purchasers in a statement given to federal prosecutors by one defendant. Both Parker and Berra have denied the allegations.

The Times also said that those two were expected to testify in the trial of another defendant, Curtis Strong, along with Keith Hernandez of the New York Mets, Lee Lacy of

ROD SCURRY
First ballplayer named

Ballmore, Lonnie Smith of Kansas City, Al Holland of California, Jeff Leonard of San Francisco and Enos Cabell of Los Angeles. None of those players had any immediate comment.

Scurry spent a month at a rehabilitation center early last month and received jail terms. Scurry was charged with possession of cocaine and conspiracy to sell cocaine. Manager Chuck Tanner in mop-up of 10 cocaine-related charges, said roles after that. He was briefly suspended by the Pirates this June for failure to follow his rehabilitation program, but rejoined the team three weeks later.

Scurry's effectiveness... has deteriorated since 1982. He was 5-6 with a 2.53 earned-run average and four saves in 43 appearances last season and is 0-0 with one save and a 3.32 ERA in 40 1-3 innings this season. He has pitched fewer innings than any Pirate pitcher, other than several recently obtained players.

Ross said prosecutors would also have introduced the testimony of Kevin Koch, the former Pirate mascot known as the Parrot. Koch would have testified he made a controlled purchase of cocaine from Shiffman on Nov. 8, 1984, at Shiffman's home in a deal electronically monitored by the FBI, Ross said.

they are now negotiating a plea bargain with federal authorities. Of the four defendants whose cases have not yet been resolved, the most likely to stand trial is Strong, 32, a former caterer in the Philadelphia Phillies clubhouse who has been discredited by his attorney, Adam Renfro, as "a baseball groupie."

Renfro said he has discussed a plea bargain with U.S. Attorney J. Alan Johnson, but it's likely that Strong's case will go to trial the week of Sept. 3.

In its story, the Times also said a former member of the San Francisco Giants has named four players on the 1985 club as frequent cocaine users and that one, Chili Davis, conceded he had experimented with the drug and been warned by FBI agents in 1983 that he was under surveillance. "That was enough for me," Davis was quoted as saying. "You know, a word is the wisest."

Dolphins to strive for more balance

Editor's note: This is the second in a six-part series examining NFL prospects next season.

By FRED GOODALL
The Associated Press

MIAMI — Life atop the AFC East seems to agree with the Miami Dolphins, who will chase their 13th division crown in 16 years in 1985.

Two Super Bowl losses in the last three years, however, don't sit well with Coach Don Shula and players who are resolved to return to the National Football League's main event — and win.

On paper, the Dolphins have all the tools to get the job done. On the field, Shula must improve the club's rushing attack and defense against the run to stand a chance.

"You have to have a running game and it was evident in the Super Bowl that ours needs improvement," says Shula, who watched the AFC champions gain only 25 yards rushing against San Francisco in the NFL title game last January.

"When the 49ers went to six defensive backs and four linemen and invited us to run, we weren't able to run. We're going to have to work hard on playing against more defenses that use that philosophy."

Miami is still the class of the AFC East, a division once considered among the most balanced in the league.

The New England Patriots, New York Jets, Indianapolis Colts and Buffalo Bills are rebuilding, though, and are toughenings-to-stop the Miami juggernaut that rolled to an 8-0 record in the AFC East last fall.

Dolphins quarterback Dan Marino, a holdout this summer while trying to renegotiate his contract, passed for an NFL record 3,084 yards and 48 touchdowns in 1984. The totals represent more yards than 11 other teams gained in total offense, and more TDs than 21 clubs scored.

Shula, however, will strive for more balance. He hopes No. 1 draft pick Lorenzo Hampton can add punch to the ground game as well as serve as an additional target for Marino, who also has Mark

Clayton (73 receptions, 1,389, NFL single-season record 18 touchdowns) and Mark Duper (71 catches, 1,395 yards, eight TDs).

Defensively, the Dolphins ranked 19th in the NFL — 22nd against the run and 14th against the pass.

"We started out with some consistency and then had some serious problems in the middle of the season," Shula adds. "We managed to snap out of it just in time for the playoffs and played well in postseason until the Super Bowl."

Improvement, however, could hinge on which to Bowl nose tackle Bob Baumhower — bounced back from off-season surgery; unsigned linebacker Bob Brudzinski comes to terms, and Shula gets a contribution from young players such as Jackie Shipp.

New England, which finished five games behind Miami in the division at 9-7 a year ago, has set its sights on making the playoffs for the first time in three years.

Coach Raymond Berry has a passing sensation of his own in Tony Eason, who threw for 3,228 yards and 22 touchdowns as the NFL's third-rated quarterback behind Marino and San Francisco's Joe Montana in 1984.

Stanley Morgan and Stephen Starring are his prime targets, and Berry hopes to get more production from linemen Craig James and Tony Collins with a two-back offense.

"I've always approached the game with the idea that you should have a balanced offense, that you should have a good mix," Berry says. "We want to be a little unpredictable."

Defensively, the Patriots are looking for solid cornerback play on the left side, where Ronnie Lipsett and Ernest Gibson shared the Miami juggernaut that rolled to an 8-0 record in the AFC East last fall.

Oilers waive veteran Brazile

By The Associated Press

Linebacker Robert Brazile, an 11-year veteran and seven-time Pro Bowl star for the Houston Oilers, place-kicker Uwe Von Schamann of the Miami Dolphins and punter Craig Colquitt of the Pittsburgh Steelers were cut Monday as National Football League teams headed toward the 60-man roster limit.

Greg Buttle, who spent 10 seasons as a starting outside linebacker for the New York Jets, fell victim to the team's conversion to a 3-4 defense.

Teams must cut their rosters to 60 players by Tuesday, to 50 on Aug. 27 and to 45 on Sept. 2. Last season the roster limit was 49 players.

Brazile was a first-round draft choice for the Oilers in 1975 and had started every Houston game through the end of last season, a club-record 147 in a row.

He was Houston's second defensive star cut since training camp opened. Earlier, 13-year veteran linebacker Gregg Bingham accepted a front-office job.

Von Schamann, who rebounded from a kicking slump last season with three field goals in the Super Bowl, had been the Dolphins' kicker for six seasons. He hit 66 of 70 extra points last year, both NFL records.

But he also missed 10 of 19 field goal attempts during the season and made only two of 12 beyond 30 yards.

That leaves the job up for grabs between Fugé Revez, Miami's seventh-round draft choice from Tennessee, and former Green Bay Packer Eddie Garcia. "The toughest decision to make was letting Uwe go," said Coach Don Shula. "We based it on last year's performance and how he'd done in practice. It was tough because he won a lot of games for us."

The Dolphins also placed defensive back Don McNeal and offensive lineman Ed Newman on injured reserve and designated linebacker A.J. Duhe and fullback Andra Franklin as waived-did not pass physical, meaning they are free agents but the Dolphins must pay a percentage of their rehabilitation costs if no team picks them up.

Colquitt, the punter on the Steelers' 1978 and 1979 Super Bowl champions, averaged $4.7 net yards per kick last season, his worst as a pro. His release apparently gives the job to eighth-round draft choice Harry Newsome from Wake Forest. Linebacker Todd Seabaugh and eight other players also were cut by Pittsburgh.

Buttle, who has spent his whole NFL career in a 4-3 defense, was one of 24 players waived or placed on other inactive lists by the Jets. Darrol Ray, who had 21 interceptions during five years as a starting free safety, but sustained a separated shoulder Saturday night in an exhibition game at Cincinnati was placed on injured waivers.

The Jets also cut linebackers Bobby Bell and John Woodring and placed linebacker Bob Crable on the physically unable to perform list.

Bruce Harper, the Jets' all-purpose third-down back for eight years, was also waived after falling a physical earlier in the season, and offensive tackle Marvin Powell, a holdout, was placed on reserve — did not report.

Wayne Peace, a former United States Football League quarterback, was cut last week by the NFL's Cincinnati Bengals, walked out of the Dolphins' training camp. Peace, a star at the University of Florida, left the Dolphins' camp five days after showing up, saying he didn't think would have time to learn their offense.

"We were considering carrying him this week and he came in with his foot this morning," Shula said. "He said he didn't feel he was into it enough to compete and he didn't want us to think that he was and force us to make another decision."

Peace played for the USFL's Tampa Bay Bandits in 1984, completing 18 of 43 passes for 215 yards, one touchdown and four interceptions, then balked at a trade to the Portland Breakers in 1985, joined the NFL Cincinnati Bengals this summer, was cut by them and was picked up by the Dolphins last week.

Other moves announced included: • Carl Roaches, cut by the New Orleans Saints, who picked up the veteran kick-returner as a free agent from the Oilers. • Earnest Anderson, the nation's leading rusher in college in 1982 when he was a junior at Oklahoma State. • State's Football League quarterback "was cut" by the Detroit Lions. He was Detroit's third-round draft pick in the 1984.

Is there Eastern football after Flutie?

Editor's note: This is the first in a series of six regional college football preview.

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
The Associated Press

Despite Penn State's poorest season since 1966 and Pitt's collapse from a No. 3 preseason ranking to its first losing record since 1972, Joe Paterno thinks Eastern football is better than ever.

"I don't think that the quality of football in the East has ever been as excellent as it is now," says the Penn State coach. "The East has never gotten the proper credit it deserves."

Penn State fans, used to seeing the Nittany Lions as Beasts of the East with 12 Lambert Trophies in Paterno's 19 years, weren't thrilled when Pitt came along to challenge in the mid-1970s. They like it even less now that Boston College and West Virginia are annual bowl participants and Army, Rutgers, Syracuse and Temple are knocking on the door.

Paterno, on the other hand, thinks that "parity in Eastern football generally is good for the game, but it may take some time for our fans to appreciate that fact. Our fans may have become a little bit spoiled and accustomed to us dominating year in and year out.

"I think they are beginning to understand that there are many good football players and good football teams in the East, and because of the improvement in facilities, young coaches and recruiting, Eastern football is going to be very competitive."

It was every bit of that last year, although fifth-ranked Boston College was the only Eastern representative in the Top Twenty. Army and West Virginia joined the Eagles as bowl teams and all three won.

These are the key questions for 1985:

- Can Penn State and Pitt return to positions of dominance?
- How will Boston College manage without Doug Flutie, major college football's all-time passing leader?
- Will Army, Rutgers, Syracuse and Temple continue their improvement? Boston College, 10-2 a year ago, gets a chance to prove something right away. The Eagles open up against defending national champion Brigham Young in the Aug. 29 Kieff Classic.

And even though BC defeated Southwest Conference champion Houston 45-28 in the Cotton Bowl, Coach Jack Blecknell says that "a lot of people really don't believe we're for real nationally. Because Flutie got so much publicity, they said it's because of him. But that's not the case. I don't think we have anything to prove. We're in a position where we can be as good as anybody. There's nobody in the country we'd fear playing. It wasn't always that way."

Shawn Halloran, Flutie's understudy the past two seasons, gets the first shot at replacing the Heisman Trophy winner. He is eight inches taller than Flutie and a pure dropback passer who is less likely to scramble.

"Quarterback is not our main concern," says Blecknell. "Offensively, our concern is right tackle. Our offensive line should be a strong point. If we can solve right tackle, we should be in good shape." Troy Stratford — "As good a fallback as anybody in the country," Blecknell says — tight end Scott Gieseiman and wide receiver Kelvin Martin are other key offensive performers.

BC appears strong on the line, led by strong-man nose guard Mike Ruth, and at linebacker but Blecknell is scrambling to shore up the secondary.

West Virginia is aiming for an unprecedented fifth straight bowl trip — only nine other teams have been to a bowl in each of the last four years — and the Mountaineers intend to do it with de-fense.

"Last year, it was our defense which had us concerned because we had lost so many talented players," says Coach Don Nehlen. "This year, our defense will be sound but our offense is going to need a major overhaul. Still, I would rather enter the season with an experienced defense than an experienced offense."

quarterback John Talley. The running attack looks solid.

After a 6-5 campaign, Paterno says Penn State is "going into the season with the idea that we're starting all over. We're starting all over with the offense — with the defense, the whole bit."

For the first time, Penn State lost its final two regular-season games under Paterno (Notre Dame 44-7, Pitt 31-11) and the coach says that "what I remember particularly is how we lost those two games."

Heading the list of returnees is the defensive unit, which has 18 of the top 22 back, including eight starters led by strong safety Michael Zordich. The offense returns six starters but will have a new quarterback, probably junior Matt Kazner.

Coach Foge Fazio didn't have much to laugh about in 1984 when Pitt slipped to 3-7-1 but he chuckled when one pre-season magazine ranked the Panthers 17th in the country for 1985.

"I don't know who that guy is," Fazio said. "It's like a double-edged sword. It's nice to have the recognition, but great expectations come with it."

EDDIE ROBINSON
Winning for Grambling

Robinson four wins from Bear

By AUSTIN WILSON
The Associated Press

GRAMBLING, La. — Grambling's Eddie Robinson enters the 1985 season needing just four victories to break "Pat 'Bear' Bryant's record and become college football's winningest coach—it's one of the few things Robinson doesn't like to talk about.

"You know, I didn't start this thing," he says. "Back in 1941, I was just trying to win a football game and I did it—that was my goal."

For those who are counting, Bryant ended 38 years as a head coach, all at the major college level, with 323 victories. He retired from the University of Alabama in December 1982, and died on Jan. 26, 1983.

Robinson's Grambling teams have won 320 games since he started the football program there 44 years ago. The tiny school was known then as Louisiana Negro Normal College, and Robinson was paid $83.75 a month.

Robinson has a stock response to critics who note that Bryant's teams played a major college schedule, while Grambling's opponents were mostly small-college schools. "They all get their water from the same well."

That is lousy way of saying the National Football League is full of players from the Southwestern Athletic Conference, that his teams competed against the likes of Walter Payton and Robert Brazile of Jackson State, Harold Carmichael of Southern and Jimmy Giles and Russell Young of Alcorn.

Grambling has sent more than 200 players to the NFL since 1947 when Paul "Tank" Younger became the first player from a traditionally black school to make the NFL.

Robinson said it is those players, and the hundreds more who didn't go on to the pros, who should get credit for any record.

"I've been paid to coach, and I enjoy coaching," he said. "Truthfully, I feel there are a lot of other people who could have been here, if they'd had my tenure with these players."

"I can only accept the honors on their behalf. I can't push my appreciation back to the people who played and coached, but it really doesn't belong to me," he said.

Robinson tries to low-key his approach to this milestone, just as he did when he netted the 300-victory mark three seasons ago.

"You just try to win the next game," he said. "You try to keep the kids out of it and keep their minds on the game."

"I really thought I had done that for 300. I didn't think I was in trouble until I couldn't talk to the players before the game. And the assistants wouldn't talk to me."

"During the game, Trumaine (Johnson, now a USFL star) came over to me and said, 'Coach, we're going to win this one for you.' I told him, 'No, you win it for yourself and Grambling.'"

"He went back in the game and ran a punt back for a touchdown, and he came over and said, 'We're still going to win it for you.'"

THE ACES BOBBY WOLFF

"Some people are so fond of it... that they run halfway to meet it." - Douglas Jerrold.

South took one quick look at dummy and accused North of over-bidding...

Instead of complaining about North's overbid (it wasn't), South should have been more careful in his play...

High trump and the spade ace, and ruff a spade. He re-enters his hand in trump's suit...

Since East is forced to lead a card from a "black suit," South leads the slam. Dummy ruffs while South discards his losing diamond...

Benefit boost spurs personal income growth

By MARTIN CRUTSINGER The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Americans' personal income rose a moderate 0.4 percent in July as a big jump in Social Security benefits bolstered a meager increase in wages and salaries, the government reported Monday.

About 60 percent of the increase came from a rise in government payments to individuals. The bulk of this was $5 billion growth in retroactive Social Security payments that resulted from a recalculation of benefits for people who are still working while drawing payments.

In contrast, wages and salaries, the key factor in the economic decisions made by the average family, grew by the smallest amount this year, a slight $1.7 billion, far below the $10.8 billion June gain.

The news on income growth was the latest in a string of weak economic statistics for the month. Unemployment remained stagnant for the sixth straight month, while retail sales and industrial production showed disappointing gains and housing construction fell last month.

growth will rebound to a 3 percent annual rate in the final six months of this year, up sharply from the 1 percent turned in from January through June.

Stocks close mixed after lazy session

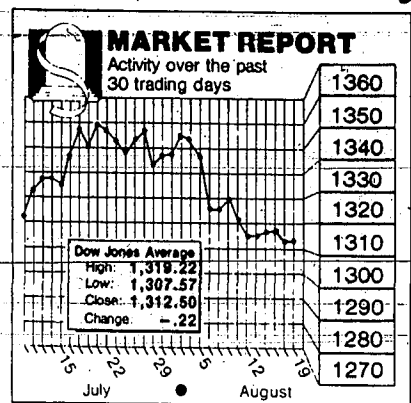

By JAMES F. PELTZ The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Stocks were mixed Monday in a lazy summer session in which trading dwindled to its lowest level in six weeks.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials slipped 0.22 to 1,312.59 after moving within a narrow range throughout the day.

Big Board volume slowed to 67.3 million shares from 97.1 million on Friday. It was the quietest activity since 62.45 million shares changed hands July 5, which was a Friday following the July 4 holiday.

The dull session extended the market's recent lackluster performance, which analysts have attributed to the typical summer lull in trading and to Wall Street's uncertainty about the economy's course.

monetary strategy for the next few weeks. Many credit analysts expect no policy changes because of the economy's mixed signals.

On the NYSE's active list, Revlon climbed 1/4 to 45. Shortly before the close Pantry Pride said it intends to offer $47.50 for each Revlon share, but Revlon's chairman said the company was not for sale.

Exxon gained 1/4 to 51, the price at which a 772,000-share block crossed. Nationwide turnover in NYSE-listed issues, including trades in those stocks on regional exchanges and in the over-the-counter market, totaled $3.75 billion shares.

Group digs up bones, dispute

KEMMERER, Wyo. (AP) — Members of the Oregon-California Trail Association dug up more than history this week when they excavated the remains of an early emigrant who got no farther along the famous trail than western Wyoming.

To save it from erosion, the skeleton of what appeared to be a young woman was reburied soon after being unearthed on Monday. But a Bureau of Land Management archeologist said the project was not well-planned.

The excavation was conducted under the auspices of the OCTA, which held its annual convention in Scottsbluff, Neb., on Wednesday. The excavators hope to present the information to the organization's full membership for further study.

"That will send 700 people to the library," said Randy Seed, a Chicago surgeon and the project leader. "Mostly we're going to try and find out who it is."

But David Vleck, BLM area archeologist, said scientists should have been involved in order to ensure all available information was extracted from the find.

"My concern is we don't have an archeological excavation," he said. "A lot of data has been lost."

The dig was conducted on private land adjacent to Emigrant Springs, a well-known camping spot along the Slade Creek Cutoff of the Oregon Trail, west of U.S. Highway 189 near Kemmerer. The grave is one of several below trail register rocks where westward travelers inscribed their names.

The remains were found in an oak wagon box and apparently had been disturbed before, Seed said. "We found finger bones above and below the grave."

A flagstone buried with the remains was inscribed with the name P. Jackson. Below that was chiseled W.C. English P., July 17th, 1854. At the bottom, the name T.F. Harris appeared.

"Whoever this person was she was buried with great care," Seed said.

The rock-lined wagon box was next to Emigrant Creek, which had washed away the surrounding soil. OCTA members said the only way to protect the grave was to move it.

"If the grave was not in danger we wouldn't have moved it," said Chester Buck, a LaBarge, Wyo., rancher and OCTA member.

Rip-rapping the site or placing rocks and scree on the grave to protect it from the stream was an alternative not considered by the group. "I think it was a well-meaning effort," he said. "I just think it's unfortunate that more care wasn't taken for the scientific and humanistic aspects."

An archeologist would have been able to collect additional information such as diet, age, cause of death and date of burial, Vleck said, but OCTA members did not want scientists involved.

"We're not in it for the scientific information we can get," said

Oregon-California Trail Association member unearths the unidentified emigrant's remains

Buck's wife, Karen. "We didn't want to wait two or three years to reburial."

The BLM owns all but 40 acres surrounding the springs and plans to preserve the trail register rocks. The local landowner has proposed a land swap to give the BLM control over the gravesites as well.

Vleck wants to open the trail to public use, but is concerned over possible damage to its historical features. Had the grave been on BLM land, the excavation would have been allowed only as a last resort, he said.

"It's a delicate balance between preserving the trail's historical aspects and opening it up for the people to use and enjoy," Vleck said. The OCTA is a nationwide organization which studies emigrant journals and other historical information on the trails used during America's western migration. The 700 members travel and map the trails to provide new information about their geography and history.

Ex-POWs say they were test victims

LONDON (AP) — Former American prisoners of war said in a British television documentary shown recently that the Japanese conducted germ warfare experiments on them during World War II.

The documentary said more than 1,000 American POWs and about 100 British and Australian POWs were used in the experiments at a Japanese prisoner of war camp at Mukden in northeast China in 1942.

It said the experiments involved injections, chemical sprays and blood samples. It also alleged that Japanese authorities experimented on up to 3,000 convicted Japanese criminals and jailed Japanese dissidents, dissecting them alive, freezing them to death and exposing them to mustard gas and cyanide.

The documentary was produced by TVS, one of the companies in Britain's commercial television network.

Former American POW Frank James said he saw parts of organs, including intestines, lungs, brains and pancreases, preserved in containers marked with the prisoner numbers of dead POWs.

Former American POW Charles Rodriguez Jr. claimed he was deliberately given a bacterial disease.

He said, "I was lying in my bunk in the barracks, and this Japanese, I thought he was a guard, he came in and he had a feather, and he ran that feather up and down under my nostrils."

"And then I discovered that this was one of the methods that they used to get prisoners to ingest bacteria. From the time I've come back, I've suffered with fevers. And I went to doctor after doctor. I went to specialists, and they can't discover what it is," he said.

A third former American POW, Charley Wilson, said he refused to go to the camp hospital when he got sick "because nobody that went in ever came out."

The documentary did not give the three Americans' hometowns. Jack Roberts, a former British army sergeant who worked in the camp hospital, said the prisoners were granted immunity and used as "guinea pigs."

The documentary said the experiments were performed by a secret branch of the Japanese Imperial Army known as Unit 731 and that they included injecting POWs with deadly germs and then charting the progression of their illness. Many of them died.

The hour-long documentary said Unit 731 was headed by bacteriologist Shiro Ishii, who died of cancer several years ago.

It said Japanese experimenters were granted immunity from prosecution for war crimes in exchange for sharing the results of their experiments with U.S. intelligence and bacteriological warfare officers in the months after Japan surrendered.

Col. Murray Sanders, who arranged the alleged immunity deal on behalf of Gen. Douglas MacArthur, said in the documentary that in retrospect he believed the deal had been a mistake.

The documentary said U.S. authorities withheld all evidence of Unit 731 from the trials of Japanese war criminals.

An October 1981 article in The Bulletin of the Atomic Scientists, a U.S. publication, first suggested that the Japanese carried out experiments on POWs in northern China, quoting a 1956 FBI memorandum to substantiate the charges.

Some people's love for pets goes as far as the graveyard

ELKRIDGE, Md. (AP) — Many of her friends didn't understand the grief Bonnie Fisher felt when she lost Andre.

When her 5-pound toy poodle died April 1, 1980, Miss Fisher, a 41-year-old registered nurse, said, "I didn't care whether I lived or died."

She frequently visits Andre's grave at Bonheur Memorial Park and always takes fresh flower arrangements on the anniversary of his death, his birthday, Memorial Day, Easter and Christmas.

"Even now I go back and talk to him," she said.

When she dies, according to the grave marker, Miss Fisher and her "little boy" who died when he was 12 will be "together forever."

The cemetery, named for 19th century French animal painter Rosa Bonheur, allows people to be buried beside their pets. Owner Bill Green, 34, said he doesn't know of any other cemetery that allows pets and owners to share gravesites.

"I don't think anyone else has been crazy enough to try it," said Green.

Green, who played at the cemetery as a child when it was owned by family friends, bought it in 1977. He also owns two people-only cemeteries.

He, too, plans to be buried with his pets at Bonheur. "After 22 years being here, I feel like it's my home," he said. "I don't have any children. My pets are my surrogate children."

One hundred people are among the 8,000 buried on Bonheur's 11½ acres, Green said. Animals buried there range from lizards to horses. A plot is reserved for a lion. The oldest gravestone is dated 1934.

Interment at Bonheur costs from $325 for a hamster to $2,000 for larger animals.

Miss Fisher has spent $3,000 for four graves, which doesn't include the cost of markers or her own embalming. The two extra graves are for two Yorkshire terriers she purchased a year after Andre died.
