British jet explodes, burns; 54 die

By BEN DOBBIN
The Associated Press

MANCHESTER, England — An engine exploded on a British Airways plane as it sped down the runway on takeoff Thursday and flames swiftly engulfed the Boeing 737, killing 54 people.

Eighty-three survived the inferno and the panic of the escape.

As the pilot brought the plane to a halt at the edge of the runway, passengers leaped to the tarmac and stewards flung people down escape chutes in the desperate minutes before flames overtook them, survivors said.

The plane stopped about 300 yards from an airport fire station and firemen reached the jet in minutes.

Gil Thompson, airport manager, said, however, that a severed fuel line may have doused the twin-jet aircraft with fuel, and that "it then became really a towering inferno."

The plane was taking 131 package-tour passengers and six crew to Corfu in the Greek islands.

Thursday's accident was the sixth major air disaster this year. The most recent previous disaster was the Aug. 12 crash near Tokyo of a Japan Air Lines flight that killed 520 people.

Survivor Keith Middleton, 21, of Liverpool, said that as flames spread, "everyone was screaming and shouting. They were diving out of their seats, and everyone was pushing. People were falling onto the floor and getting trampled on."

Hilary Loftus told of holding her baby and jumping from the plane in to the arms of her husband, who had just gotten out with their young daughter.

Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher flew to this industrial city in northwest England at the end of her holiday in Austria. She viewed the wreckage and spent 75 minutes comforting survivors.

Fifteen survivors were held at Manchester's Wythenshawe Hospital, mainly with burns. The rest were released after treatment for minor injuries and shock.

British Airways, a subsidiary of state-owned British Airways, specializes in taking Britons on package tours to holiday resorts. There was no indication any foreigners were on the flight.

The Manchester Airport Authority said the jet was roaring down the runway at about 100 mph just after 7 a.m. when the pilot alerted the tower of a problem with the engine on his left wing.

Thompson said the pilot aborted the takeoff and stopped the plane within 30 to 40 seconds, turning it into a taxiway near an airport fire station. He said within minutes seven fire engines were spraying foam onto the plane, but still the fire raged out of control, billowing into the passenger compartment.

"Firemen... said it spread within seconds and they could see the plane crumbling," Thompson said. "The whole thing was a matter of minutes."

Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher walks past burned airliner

"We understand... that there was an explosion in the port engine which severed the main fuel line and saturated the aircraft with fuel," he said.

The airport authority said the first two firemen to enter the plane were blown back to the ground by a second explosion, later attributed to oxygen tanks exploding in the rear of the aircraft.

Thompson said accident investigators believed the explosion occurred in the engine's compressor chamber. He said the chamber is under great pressure during takeoff and for some unexplainable reason exploded.

"Parts of that (the engine debris) then went through the wing, which of course has the fuel tanks," he said. "Once it was ruptured, the fuel

Contra aid violating tax break

By ROBERT PARRY
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — A leading group raising funds for Nicaraguan rebels obtained federal tax-exempt status three years ago after pledging never to provide "materiel or funds" to insurgents, according to Internal Revenue Service documents.

Now, however, the Internal Revenue Service said the U.S. Council for World Freedom, claims credit for funneling tens of thousands of dollars in aid to the rebels fighting to overthrow Nicaragua's leftist government.

Richard M. Gen. John K. Singlaub, council chairman, said this week that he was not familiar with the commitment made to the IRS by the group's treasurer. "I suppose it should be," he said.

Singlaub and other council officials say funds collected in the United States were used only to buy the rebels non-lethal supplies—to avoid violating U.S. neutrality and arms export laws. Money to buy weapons for the rebels was raised elsewhere, they said.

Singlaub has also said that while House national security officials gave him advice on his private fund-raising last year after Congress stopped CIA aid to the rebels, "two congressional panels plan to examine those contacts next month."

IRS spokesman Wilson Padeley said privacy laws prevent him from commenting on any possible review of the council's tax-exempt status, but he noted that the exemption is granted "based upon the information provided to us" and could be revoked if a group is "not carrying out the tax-exempt purpose."

Fadeley also said White House involvement in the council's fund-raising would not influence IRS actions.

"The political situation does not affect the tax code," he said.

The Arizona-based U.S. Council for World Freedom is the American chapter of the World Anti-Communist League. It received tax-exempt status on Oct. 14, 1982. That

U.S. denies spy dust charges intended to sabotage summit

By MAUREEN SANTINI
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The Reagan administration on Thursday brushed aside the Soviet Union's denial that it has used a chemical agent to track American diplomats in Moscow, and rejected any suggestion that the United States was trying to sabotage the upcoming superpower summit.

"The evidence is there," State Department spokesman Charles E. Redman insisted when asked about the Soviet rejection of the charges made Wednesday. The tracing chemical allegedly was intended to monitor contacts between diplomats and Soviet citizens, including dissidents.

"We have absolutely no doubt in our mind that what we described as happening has been happening in the manner in which we described it as happening," Redman maintained.

At the same time, Redman affirmed that the United States had denied permission for three members of the Soviet consulate in San Francisco to travel to nearby Daly City, Calif., for a U.S.-Soviet volleyball match scheduled for Friday at the Cow Palace.

Daly City is closed to Soviet officials, and Redman said no exceptions will be made until Moscow makes good on its promise to allow American officials to travel to off-limits areas in the Soviet Union.

On the "spy dust" issue, the official Soviet news agency Tass said Thursday that the Kremlin resolutely rejects the absurd inventions that some chemical substances are being used against personnel of U.S. establishments in the Soviet Union.

It was the first Soviet media acknowledge of the U.S. accusations—that the Soviets have dramatically increased use of the chemical compound, identified by the State Department as NPPD, or nitrophenylpentadecanal, and said to be a potential cause of cancer.

Tass asserted the U.S. claims were made as part of a "slandereous campaign against the Soviet Union, to poison the atmosphere in relations between our two countries and to fan hostility toward Soviet people."

Mall recruiter says about 25 businesses lined up

By ANNETTE CARY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — No leases have been signed for 20 small shops at the planned Magic Valley Mall so far, but leasing agent Rob Springman says he does have commitments from about 25 national, local and regional businesses.

Armed with statistics, a planned marketing mix for the mall and plenty of reassurances about the value of paying higher rent for mall space, he is concentrating on recruiting businesses in the Twin Falls area this week.

"The emphasis will be on a family market, particularly a market for the middle to upper-middle income family, he told the Times-News Wednesday.

A study of valley demographics and spending patterns at stores here now shows that the average customer is likely to be female, married and have about 2.5 children, he says.

"Typically, her household income will be between $25,000 and $30,000, and she, not her husband, will be the one who spends much of it, he predicts.

That average customer is likely to account for 65 to 70 percent of sales, he says. That doesn't mean Price Development Co. will be ignoring other customers, however.

Much of the other trade will come from college students, teen-agers and the husbands of the average consumer that Springman identifies.

As much as 10 percent of the traffic through the mall should be tourist trade, Springman says. That includes trade from Jackpot, the Sun Valley and Ketchum area and tourists on their way to those destinations. Other tourist trade will be drawn off the interstate, he says.

John Price, founder of the company, emphasizes that all customers will be welcome. Price Development wants a mall where a senior citizen can feel comfortable about dropping by on a rainy day, to see a car show without making a purchase, he says.

It will be the sort of mall Price specializes in: one in a medium-sized town in Western America where the family unit is strong. "Real middle America," Springman calls it.

"The Twin Falls mall won't be a clone of others, however, he says. He is concentrating on selling space to businesses that will reflect the people who shop here, he says.

Pocatello — where Price has a mall with architecture, size and mix of stores similar to that planned for the Magic Valley Mall — has a more blue-collar customer base than Twin Falls, Springman says.

"He wants the Magic Valley Mall to cater slightly more to tourist trade and to business people and their families.

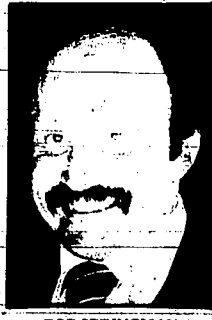

That could mean at least a few more "upper-end" shops, he says.

Price Development has a low turnover rate for stores — an average of less than 10 percent for all its malls since they opened, Springman says.

Price Development is interested in long-term results, rather than just filling the mall quickly and "volunteering their rents," he says. They start with stores that do not compete against each other — only one taco stand, one pizza place, one hamburger grill will be allowed in the food court, he says.

Local residents are likely to see stores at the Idaho legislators commend Causa at banquet

BOISE (AP) — Two of four Idaho legislators who attended a Washington, D.C., dinner honoring the Rev. Sun Myung Moon, say concerns about religious freedom motivated them to go.

State Reps. Lyman Gene Winchester, R-Kuna, and Robert Forrey, R-Nampa, were among about 10 Idahoans who attended the banquet held on Tuesday. Two other state representatives in the group, Dieter Bayer, R-Boise, and JoAnn Wood, R-Rigby, could not be reached for comment.

Bayer presented a gold trophy to Moon at the dinner, held only hours after the Unification Church founder was released from a New York City halfway house. Moon was sent to the facility after serving more than 11 months in prison for income-tax evasion. The Korean-born evangelist was convicted in May 1982 of failing to report $162,000 in income on his personal tax returns.

Winchester said former Idaho Rep. George Hansen, a Republican, sat at the head table with about 20 other people. Hansen, a staunch critic of the Internal Revenue Service, could not be reached for comment, either.

Winchester and Forrey said they were invited to the dinner by Causa, the activist arm of the Unification Church. They said Causa paid part of their air fare to Washington.

The National Committee for God and Freedom, which sponsored the event, paid for lodging and meals at the Shoreham Hotel in Washington, Winchester said. He said that as far as he knew, the committee paid food and lodging bills for everyone at the dinner. The crowd, its estimated size ranging from 1,700 to 2,200 people, included representatives from every state and many foreign countries.

Winchester said several testimonials during the event focused on churches having "felt the wrath" of the IRS. He said stories were told about the IRS locking churches and refusing to let people enter.

"You can't have religious freedom for yourself unless you have it for others," Winchester said.

He said he has no doubt that Moon was prosecuted unfairly by the IRS because he was outspoken.

Winchester also said the National Education Association is a bigger threat to the United States than is the Unification Church. Winchester tied his observation to what he said is the NEA's advocacy of gay rights.

"There are more threats there, but the press doesn't report it," he said. "It makes you wonder what side the press is on. I think Causa is a good movement, and it is on our (the United States') side."

Forrey said he doesn't support Moon's church, but likes what Causa is doing to make the world aware of the Communist threat.

Firefighters stop grass fire in time

BOISE (AP) — Dozens of firefighters battled a smoky grass fire southwest of Boise Thursday, and stopped it short of a subdivision.

Fred Corey, Bureau of Land Management spokesman, said the fire was stopped about 30 yards from the nearest buildings after a 3 1/2-hour battle. It covered just under 400 acres, and apparently scorched only grass and brush, he said.

Crews from both the BLM and the Whitney Fire District were on the scene along with a helicopter, four fire engines and a bulldozer, he said.

Andrus backs Evans in fight over state spending

BOISE (AP) — Five minutes after he took office as Idaho's governor more than 14 years ago, Cecil D. Andrus says he imposed a spending holdback on state government to erase an $11 million deficit.

He says if Republicans feel strongly that the state should have an immediate holdback, they should call a special session of the Board of Examiners and impose one.

Andrus, interviewed Thursday for a book on KTUV, backed Gov. John Evans, who contends it's too early in the state budget year to impose a spending holdback.

Evans decided Wednesday at a Board of Examiners meeting that only six weeks into the budget year is too soon to decide whether state budgets should be cut. Budget officials say it appears the current budget will be $10.7 million in the red by next July.

Neither Lt. Gov. David Leroy nor Andrus, governor between 1971-77, are announced candidates but are considered likely to be the Republican and Democrat nominees next year.

Leroy, in a series of news conferences last week, urged Evans to impose an immediate spending holdback to cope with the budget

Andrus refused to criticize that maneuver, saying only that "anyone can have their comments."

While it appears that a spending freeze might be necessary later, Andrus said it's too early now.

Without referring to Leroy directly, he said, "Headline hunters make poor problem-solvers."

Although Andrus said he supports Evans' decision to wait on the holdback issue, he said if Republicans favor an immediate holdback, they have a majority on the Board of Examiners and authority to impose one.

"Politics seems to be creeping in," he said. "Although in the past, the governor has been the official in charge of the state budget, Andrus said, "If they are serious (the Republicans), they should call a special meeting and impose a holdback."

Andrus also indirectly criticized Leroy on wilderness. The lieutenant governor has been saying Idaho citizens favor no more wilderness.

Andrus said that was "an extreme position," one which would not allow Leroy to negotiate an end to the state's lengthy wilderness debate.

"Inflexibility does not bring a solution," he said. "Reasonable people can bring about a solution."

Andrus said he and Republican Sen. James McClure were able to negotiate a settlement involving Hells Canyon land.

But he said because of politics, it will be almost impossible to negotiate a settlement to Idaho's wilderness issues this year, or next year, a major election year. "It can be resolved in 1987," he said, "but not in 1986."

In other areas Andrus said: "The state came out poorly" in the Priest Lake land deal. "It was a very poor deal," he said.

Jones considers suit to halt Indian fishing

LEWISTON (AP) — Idaho Attorney General Jim Jones says the state is ready to file suit to stop Indian steelhead and fall chinook fishing on the Columbia River this month if he believes Idaho's steelhead run will be seriously damaged by the Indian fishery.

"If it appears that an upstream run of steelhead is being seriously affected, we would determine on a very immediate basis what we are going to do, and try to get some kind of protective order from the (federal) court," Jones said Wednesday.

Indian fishing is to begin Saturday from Bonneville Dam to above McNary Dam on the Columbia. Tribal fishermen have been allotted three five-day seasons and two four-day seasons through September.

Jones said members of his office and the Idaho Department of Fish and Game plan to "closely monitor" Indian fishing on the Columbia, which is expected to take more steelhead than usual this season.

Jones said protection of Idaho steelhead and salmon runs is one of his highest priorities as attorney general. He said the state will pursue an aggressive case for Idaho sportsmen in its negotiations for a Columbia River anadromous (migrating) fish management plan with Oregon, Washington and the inter-tribal commission.

Negotiations for a new fish management plan have been going on for several months, and will continue for several more, Jones said. Idaho has been made a party in the negotiations, originally ordered in 1975 by a federal court judge at Portland, Ore. The original plan, created in 1978, is no longer in effect.

Andrus refused to criticize that maneuver, saying only that "anyone can have their comments."

While it appears that a spending freeze might be necessary later, Andrus said it's too early now.

Without referring to Leroy directly, he said, "Headline hunters make poor problem-solvers."

Jackson hit by 2 quakes in 12 hours

JACKSON, Wyo. (AP) — The Jackson area has been hit by earthquakes twice within 12 hours, but U.S. Geological Survey geophysicist Waverly Person said Thursday there was nothing unusual in the apparent "series" of quakes.

"We've had this kind of thing in many areas of the United States," said Person, who is at the National Earthquake Information Center in Golden, Colo.

"We're not preparing for the beginning of a buildup into something destructive," he said. No injuries or damage was reported from either quake.

A moderate quake registering 4.9 on the Richter scale rumbled was felt in Western Wyoming and eastern Montana at 12:06 p.m. on Wednesday. It was centered 20 miles south of Jackson.

Then another tremor registering 4.3 on the Richter scale was recorded at 12:17 a.m. Thursday, centered about 30 miles southeast of Jackson, "out in the middle of nowhere," a Wyoming Highway Patrol spokeswoman said.

A quake measuring 4.3 on the Richter scale shook the Lander area early last Friday.

"The way we would see it at this time is they are not related," Person said of the three quakes.

Prisoners riot, ask for release

FLORENCE, Ariz. (AP) — Cuban inmates rioted at a detention center early Thursday, setting fires, breaking windows and furniture, and shouting that they wanted to be returned home, authorities said.

By afternoon, the units were quiet, and the inmates took down barricades they had built with the debris in front of their dormitory-style cell units, said Manuel R. Cornejo, the officer in charge of the facility.

"The Cubans have totally torn up the facility," said Ruth Anne Myers, district director of the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service. "They are shouting 'Liberty,' they want to be free, they want to return to Cuba."

The 65 inmates broke windows and furniture, set small scattered fires and destroyed plumbing fixtures, officials said. Officials said 102 Cubans were being held at the center, about 60 miles southeast of Phoenix.

No injuries to guards or inmates were reported, authorities said.

The Cubans, who came to the center in June, were among those who came to the United States during a 1980 boatlift and who later were convicted of crimes in the United States.

The disturbance began late Wednesday night and continued until about 4 a.m. Thursday, when many inmates went to sleep, Miss Myers said.

About 40 of the inmates who joined in the riot were sent to an INS facility in El Paso, Texas, Cornejo said. As the bus left, the inmates inside could be seen chanting and pounding on the windows.

The other rioting inmates were shipped to Phoenix, where most will be transferred to federal prisons in El Reno, Okla., and Terminal Island near Long Beach, Calif.

Two-thirds of record lottery jackpot claimed

NEW YORK (AP) — Twenty-one factory workers who shared one ticket and a Brooklyn man claimed two-thirds of New York state's $41 million lottery jackpot Thursday, and officials waited for a call from the holder of the third winning ticket in North America's largest prize ever.

One of 21, Wilfred Jon-Ming, said he got the good news when he arrived at work "and people said, 'Good morning, you're a millionaire!'"

Each of the three winning tickets was worth $13,666,667, which would be distributed in 21 annual payments of $650,793.

"That meant each member of 'The Lucky 21' — the name they signed on papers at lottery offices — will receive 21 annual payments of about $24,000 after taxes," according to their lawyer.

Lottery Director John Quinn, who confirmed their winning ticket, declined to identify the other known winner except to say he was a Brooklyn man. The third winning ticket was bought in Albany.

Campaign shaded by bad checks

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Alan Cranston's campaign for the 1984 presidential nomination bounced 736 checks totaling more than $166,000 during the California Democrat's unsuccessful bid, a Federal Election Commission audit said Thursday.

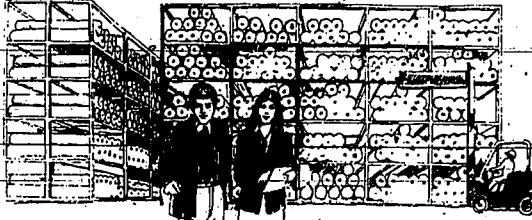

The FEC, saying it had never run into bad checks "on such a large scale by a publicly funded committee," wants no part of the $3,500 the campaign paid in fees banks in bad check charges. It ordered the campaign to repay the government $1,828, the share of the charges paid for by federal matching funds.

Vietnam vets form first state chapter

By TERRY RICH HARTLEY
Times-News correspondent

TWIN FALLS — Idaho now has its first officially chartered Vietnam Veterans of America chapter. Formed by Magic Valley veterans, the local group received its national charter this week and held a confirmation vote Wednesday evening in City Park to give a vote of confidence to its four founding members.

Serving one-year terms are Danny Hart, Kimberly, president; Jim Thomas, Twin Falls, vice president; Gordon Bybee, Twin Falls, secretary; and Rick Stone, Kimberly, treasurer. Also elected to the board of directors are Dale Hough, Roger Maschek and Cliff Dover, all of Twin Falls.

According to Hart, the local veterans' group is now sanctioned by the national headquarters of the VVA to work toward the benefit of veterans with the full backing of the national office. Hart says the local group will aggressively promote immediate goals, including working with veterans in employment efforts, setting up a legislative monitor and pressing ahead with demands for a full accounting of American prisoners of war and missing in action.

"The POW/MIA situation is a common denominator for us," Hart says, adding, "It's the glue that binds us together more than anything else." Yet, he does not slight other necessary programs, which include putting together a videotape library of the Vietnam War to be used in schools.

Bybee, who is a junior-high social studies and art teacher, points out

'The POW/MIA situation is . . . the glue that binds us together . . .'

— Danny Hart

that "most of his students' conception of the Southeast Asian war is the movie, 'Rambo.'" "War isn't that glorious," the former Army officer says. "We want to have veterans available to appear with slide shows and answer questions students might have — with factual answers."

Both men feel that the VVA "is growing into a major force in America, elevating into parity with both the Veterans of Foreign Wars and the American Legion. "Our whole society is coming to where we can talk about Vietnam," says Bybee. "Before, they made you feel like you did something wrong. When I returned in 1970, it seemed like heroes were the ones who went to Canada."

But now, Bybee points out that Vietnam veterans are coming of age and becoming more noticeable in both politics and community affairs.

According to Hart, the local group will be highly visible at the Twin Falls County Fair, getting more signatures on their petition urging Vietnam to account for American POW/MIAs, while also seeking new members and associate members.

He invites anyone interested in joining the local organization to attend a potluck in City Park beginning at 6 p.m., Wednesday, Aug. 28, or to call 734-2023, 548-5364 or 423-6204 for details.

Hazelton man gets re-trial

By PAT MARCANTONIO
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — A Hazelton man convicted of sexually molesting a 15-year-old girl and sentenced to life imprisonment deserves a new trial, stated a 5th District Court judge in a decision released Thursday.

Judge Daniel Hurlbutt sided with attorneys for 37-year-old Robert Millard Rogers in their claim that a juror had prejudged the case March 1 when he confessed to other jurors that his daughter had been sexually propositioned by a relative more than 30 years ago.

The same jury later convicted Rogers of lewd conduct with a minor for an incident that allegedly occurred June 3, 1984.

In response to Hurlbutt's decision, defense attorney Greg Fuller said, "I'm sure he (Rogers) will be happy that he will get another chance."

Rogers couldn't be reached for comment Thursday evening.

Fuller had filed a request for a new hearing June 17, the same day that Hurlbutt sentenced Rogers to the maximum sentence of life in prison. Hurlbutt did retain jurisdiction in the case and ordered Rogers to a state rehabilitation program for four months.

At a hearing held July 9 on the defense motion for a new trial, the juror testified that he didn't remember the incident about his daughter until the jury began deliberations. The man said he suffered a stroke and had trouble with his memory.

The juror also said he probably would have disqualified himself had he remembered during the jury selection held before the trial. He believed, however, that he had given Rogers a fair trial.

Attorney Jeff Hovig, who had represented Rogers during the trial, testified that if he had known about the past incident involving the juror, he would not have allowed him to serve.

To prove her argument that there had been no prejudice, Twin Falls County Prosecutor K. Elton Baxter had called to the stand the others jurors who had convicted Rogers. Each juror said they recalled the emotional confession of the juror, but were not swayed. They said they had convicted Rogers based on the evidence presented at the trial.

In a decision filed Thursday, Hurlbutt stated the right to trial by an impartial jury was one of the most basic rights guaranteed by the Constitution.

The potential jurors had been asked during jury selection about whether they had knowledge of or involvement with sexual abuse.

Textbooks rush-ordered

By PAULA EUBANKS
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — A textbook seller agreed Wednesday to rush-order Twin Falls upper-grade books so that about 300 public school science and English students will have new books on the first day of school Tuesday night.

The Caxton Printers, Ltd. bookseller agreed Wednesday to make "first priority" the Twin Falls order of new science, reading, critical thinking and mass media texts, Heaton said. Caxton stocks some of the books but must order others from publishers.

The books are being ordered late in the year because books were not selected and funding was not available earlier. Superintendent Carl Snow said that the district's 1985 bill to run $120,000 in deficit funds, first expected to be in this spring's override levy to be available in early summer. Although sufficient, these books, in two weeks, those funds will not be available until taxes are collected in January.

Snow said the new funds would be delivered in January, but the district probably did not know what books textbooks the committee would choose and did not have any extra funds to pay for new textbooks.

Until two weeks ago, district officials "had no funding solution for the problem" of not having enough money to buy the new books, Heaton said.

Then High School Principal Frank Charlton mentioned to district officials that Caxton might have a

Accident victim dies despite effort by passing motorists to save her

WENDELL — A Boise woman died Thursday afternoon about seven hours after an Ogden, Utah, ski patrolman and two Oregon women made an all-out effort to save her life at an accident scene near Wendell.

Karen M. Liles Jones, 42, of Boise died about 4:15 p.m. in Magic Valley Regional Medical Center of injuries sustained in a one-car accident on I-84 near Wendell Thursday morning.

Investigating officers credited the work of the passing motorists with emergency medical training who keeping her alive at the scene until an ambulance arrived.

She was thrown from her 1984 sedan when it went out of control and rolled at 9:10 a.m. on I-84 between Wendell and Tuttle. Her husband, Ralph A. Jones, 55, also of Boise, and a passenger in the car, escaped with minor injuries.

The Idaho State Patrolman Doug McFall of Wendell said Mrs. Jones was driving eastbound in the passing lane when Wendell and Tuttle when she reached for a cup of coffee from the car's console. The vehicle drifted to the left and went off the edge of the pavement. She brought

Teen's testimony to jury questioned

BOISE (AP) — Three witnesses testified Thursday that a 17-year-old Twin Falls woman told them she fled to a federal grand jury in Boise last week.

The woman came in a detention hearing here for Charles Roney, 34, Twin Falls, who faces federal charges of drug dealing and tax evasion. It was to resume later in the day.

Last week, a federal grand jury here returned a new indictment against Roney, that he continues to be involved in drugs while out on bond on the earlier charges.

Daniel Hawley, assistant U.S. attorney, has asked Magistrate Mike Williams to order Roney held without bond pending his trial. Roney is scheduled to go to trial next month on the original charges and Oct. 21 on the latest charge. He has pleaded innocent.

Joan Alvey, Twin Falls, said her daughter, Karen Ordez, told her she fled to the grand jury last week while testifying about Roney's continuing involvement in Twin Falls-area drug traffic.

Howard Elliott, Twin Falls Police Department investigator, and Michael Ryan, Internal Revenue Service special agent, said Ms. Ordez made similar statements under questioning. But Elliott said Ms. Ordez made a written statement, then tore it up, saying she feared retaliation.

Nicole Mott, Twin Falls, testified she agreed to become an undercover drug agent because she was faced with criminal charges. The woman said she has used a variety of illegal drugs, including marijuana, cocaine, speed and "crank," (methamphetamine), but is not an addict.

She testified that her fiancé used marijuana recently at Roney's Twin Falls residence, although she said Roney did not provide it himself. She has spent about four months working with police in the Roney investigation, she said, and some conversations have been tape-recorded.

Illiteracy foes need more funding for the battle

By DEAN S. MILLER

TWIN FALLS — Idaho educators involved in the battle against illiteracy gathered in Twin Falls Thursday to tell Sen. Steve Symms, R-Idaho, that they need more of a good thing.

Symms is chairman of the Senate Republican Conference task force on education and literacy and organized the public hearing to gather information to guide the writing of legislation to combat illiteracy.

"Give a man a fish and he will eat for a day; teach a man to fish and he will eat for a lifetime," said College of Southern Idaho adult basic education instructor Bruce Bennett.

Bennett said few educated people realize how many Americans are illiterate and that national leadership is needed to maintain education as a national priority.

Dr. Harold Goff, state coordinator of adult education, said a recent appropriation to support adult basic education courses has been a positive change, but that more money is needed. "We in adult education cannot spread ourselves any thinner," he said.

Dr. Robert Brown, a panelist at the hearing who represented the U.S. Department of Education, said Idaho's Adult Basic Education program and other volunteer organizations working to re-educate illiterate adults are very efficient, making the most of slim dollars.

"Brown, who is a statistician, said there are studies that claim one in five Americans are functionally illiterate, unable to read, write, or perform mathematical problems necessary to their everyday lives."

He said there are also studies that indicate 15 percent of high school graduates are illiterate.

The function of education is to prepare people to be functioning citizens in a free society, he said. "If we make people better prepared, we will make the cost of government drop."

Idaho Superintendent of Public Instruction Jerry Evans said Idaho, mostly faces a problem of a literate people who learn to read, but by choosing not to, become illiterate.

Students stop reading because they are not given the core information they need to make sense of what they read. By watering down reading materials to make them more interesting to top culture children, educators have not given

Don Nice and his work both unassuming

Idaho Landscape with Pencil and, in part, an example of...

By TERRY RICH HARTLEY

RETRICHUM — The most incomprehensible thing about the universe is that it is comprehensible. — Albert Einstein

Although the master physical painter and occasionally acclaimed watercolorist Don Nice whose work is on display at Images '85 in Ketchikan, Alaska, appears to concern the universe only applicable to Nice's exhibit, an exhibit of creations that merge with the work of a few artists, including a few from the list of American, the American and American Indian, many of their own land, and a few from the world's art scene, it is to focus on the art of the 19th century. In his own way, Nice is displaying a few of his own work, but it is his own work that is the focus of the exhibit.

spent his summers working on a cattle ranch, roping, herding and branding cattle. He also spent part of his youth as a mule packer, taking livestock back in to the park.

Of this time, he says, "There were no museums where I lived, so I had no contact with contemporary art. I painted obvious things I came in contact with, always, always, always, always something with art, but I wasn't sure what. In those times I didn't even think of making a profession, even a career — of the arts."

Originally, Nice planned to go on to commercial arts, but because of his parents' financial situation in high school, he was able to attend the University of Southern California on a football scholarship. Practice on the grid prevented him from taking any art studio courses. Nice, however, he studied algebra and calculus, by teaching himself, as well as through a correspondence school. "Back in the '40s in California, it wasn't too cool to be an artist," he says.

After graduation, he got a job teaching art in a juvenile delinquent center. He studied in the San Francisco State University, where he became a ceramics instructor at San Francisco State. He also did a 14-6000 military job, soldiers cleaning guns and maintaining them. He was also in the military. Most importantly, he became a member of the San Francisco, where he remembers he became more aware of what was going on in the world. "Every minute I had was painting and reading journals," he says, including "The New York Times" and "The New York Times."

Still singing

These minstrels continue upbeat folk after 23 years

By TERRY RICH HARTLEY
Times-News correspondent

TWIN FALLS — The New Christy Minstrels, hailed as America's leading folk singing group since their inception in 1961, will bring their lively, upbeat performance to the Burley Inn and Convention Center in Burley tonight at 7:30 p.m. and to the College of Southern Idaho Fine Arts Auditorium Saturday at 8 p.m.

The Burley performance, the Annual Cabaret International, will benefit the Snake River Area Council of the Boy Scouts of America, which is celebrating the 75th anniversary of the national scouting organization, Jack Muldoon, event chairman, says.

Proceeds from the CSI performance, being held in conjunction with the Utah-Idaho Kiwanis Convention, are earmarked for Kiwanis youth activities.

Considered a major phenomenon in the entertainment industry, the Minstrels have surpassed virtually every major milestone of professional achievement and remain one of the "busiest" and most-versatile acts in show business.

During their first decade, the Minstrels' single recording, "Green, Green," sold over 3 million records and was the catalyst for three Columbia Gold Albums — to follow: "Ramblin'" Today and "The New Christy Minstrels' Greatest Hits."

They have also received numerous Grammy nominations and several Grammy Awards, while other awards have come as a result of foreign lounge hits in Europe and the Far East.

In the 1960s, the Minstrels had their own NBC TV show and also composed, played and sang an entire film score for the motion picture "Advance to the Rear," from which their song, "Today," received an Academy award nomination.

To date, an estimated 65 million fans have viewed the Minstrels in live performances in nearly every country of the world. Their travels have included many return performances to Japan, Australia, Italy, Germany, Canada, France, England, Scandinavia, Spain, Vietnam and Thailand. Their 1967 appearance at the San Remo Sony Festival made history as the Minstrels became the first American artists to win the festival. As a result, their winning song sold more than 600,000 records in Italy alone — a feat 30 times greater than any previous record sale in that country.

Moreover, the Minstrels have

Music 'on green' winds up

Conductor calls it success, looks to land more support

By DAVE LEWIS
Times-News correspondent

SUN VALLEY — It happened at Clyde's. The week of Washington's birthday is busy in Sun Valley, and last winter was no exception. Carl Eberl, conductor of the Idaho Falls Symphony, was one of thousands in town to ski. Unlike the rest, however, Eberl had more on his mind than Bald Mountain's steep slopes.

Without reservations, Eberl was left to search for lodging. He eventually found it in the hotel at the Elkhorn Resort. As it turned out, Elkhorn was a fateful discovery for the 60-year-old maestro of music.

In the lobby, Eberl heard string music he thought was piped into the hotel. He was surprised when he found the music was live, and it started him thinking.

Having harbored the notion to start an outdoor summer concert in Sun Valley since moving to Idaho Falls in 1980, Eberl and a friend sat down to a plate of seafood in Clyde's, Eats restaurant in the village and considered the European-style Elkhorn-hotel as the backdrop for his dream.

"I could see that it had acoustic possibilities as well as its architectural charm," Eberl says.

That was in February. By March, the friend gave hotel manager Bill Short a proposal for the festival. In mid-April, they made the decision to give the plan a try. The Elkhorn Music Festival incorporated in May. Its first performance was held Aug. 3 "on the green" in the middle of the hotel complex.

the reception it has received from local and visiting listeners.

"It looks good, and the vibes are good all around. We seem to have hit a mix the people enjoy," he says.

On short notice, Eberl recruited two five-piece groups from San Francisco — the San Francisco Brass and the Sunset Chamber Winds — to accompany hand-picked string artists, including his wife, cellist Julianne Eberl, to perform in Sun Valley.

Together, he says, the group is versatile and large enough to master a mix of classical and popular music, a variety that has pleased the diverse audience, he says.

Eberl has put together two special performances for tonight and Saturday. Tonight, the program, titled "It Happened in Sun Valley and Other Serenades," will feature the theme song from the movie "Sun Valley Serenade."

(Filmed here in the 1950s, along with selections by Brahms, Schubert, Mozart and Tchaikovsky.

Saturday is "all request night," a selection made from the summer audiences' favorites from past performances.

Although Eberl began his quest for a festival in Sun Valley when he moved west, his interest in the area began some time ago. While in his twenties, he became attracted to the Rocky Mountains during a cross-country hitchhiking tour. He vowed someday to return and settle in the mountains.

Sun Valley, meanwhile, has long held a mystique for him. Despite never having visited the resort, Eberl says the intrigue with the place may have come from "Sun Valley Serenade," but he really doesn't know.

Before he came west, Eberl, and his wife settled for 25 years in New York City, where he was on the faculty of Queens College. On the side, he conducted and performed in concert halls and studios.

Conductor Carl Eberl with wife and cellist Julianne

In 1973, he became the conductor of the Olympic Village Sinfonietta, a summer group at the private and exclusive Lake Placid Club in upstate New York.

The way Americans took vacations was changing, however, and the club soon went public to survive. So did the orchestra, which under Eberl's guidance became the Lake Placid Music Festival in 1976. It is the format of that festival that inspired the Elkhorn events.

Eberl says he enjoyed his life in New York, and that he was artistically satisfied while there. Although he says he sometimes misses the vast opportunities to perform there, he doesn't regret the move west.

"I couldn't just fall out of bed in New York and see a rushing brook or enjoy the climate like I can here," he says.

Prize-winning photographer has no secrets

By LINDA LARSON
Times-News correspondent

BURLEY — Randy Collier is a prize winning photographer who shares his trade secrets.

As the recent two-time winner of the Idaho Photographer of the Year award, and Idaho winner of the Miss Photogenic Contest, Collier is equipped with enough skills and techniques to generate a sizable number of trade secrets.

"People say to me, 'Why do you tell everyone all your secrets?' I guess they're afraid that someone will jump on their ideas and steal all their business, but I don't feel that way. I am willing to share whatever I know," Collier said.

Collier's first secret to success in the photography business is his dedication. Rising at 4 a.m. on workdays, Collier spends the early hours alone at work in his studio.

"My dad said, 'Do it right or don't do it,'" said Collier, who admits a strong desire to win at whatever he does.

The long hours and dedication have paid off for Collier who has a successful business with plenty of satisfied clientele.

The second secret of Collier's success is his love of the business end of photography.

"I almost like the business end of it more than taking pictures," said Collier, who keeps all records, billings and inventories on a computer in his office.

Collier's third secret is his concentrated effort to master the techniques that produce prize-winning portrait photos.

In July, he received word that his entry had once again been selected at the national competition as a prize winner. Sponsored by the Professional Photographers of America (PPA), the contest could only be entered by state winners. The competition is run on a point system, with a total of 80 points needed on any entry to be placed in the winner's circle. The honor bestowed upon these entries is the recognition gained being "hung" at nationals.

One category of the national event features a traveling exhibit that tours the United States and foreign countries. One of Collier's winning photos from last year is now part of that exhibit.

Collier hopes to earn the coveted award of Master Photographer by the time he is 35. With six years to go, Collier must work hard. A total of 12 points must be earned at nationals before the prize is awarded by the PPA. Collier has earned four points in two years.

In attaining the level of craftsmanship that he has, Collier has sought training from other great photographers. Last summer, Collier spent one week studying with Salt Lake photographer Don Busath, whom Collier said is "the best in the world."

Busath has been in photography for 20 years, has earned the title of Master Photographer, and will travel to Chicago in two weeks to become the 44th photographer in the United States to receive the famed Fellowship Award from the American Society of Photography.

Prior to becoming a professional photographer, Collier was a real estate salesman. After being in that business only 8 months, he quit. He made three times the money he makes now, but did not like the cut-throat attitude he found in the large city where he worked.

It was money earned in the real estate business, though, that gave Collier his start into photography.

Collier said that too many photographers are not serious about their work. He said that often, people who have tried everything else will go into the profession just because they have a camera and think they will make money.

He said those photographers who continue in the profession because they are good at it and able to make a living are few.

Collier said he is still learning and will be for some time.

"My technique is not finished yet, but it is under control," he said. Much of his technique comes in learning not an attitude, but a way of seeing, he said.

Rabbit plague — In 1952, an elderly French doctor decided to get rid of the wild rabbits on his estate, so inoculated with the disease Myxomatosis. More too swift, that fellow, but the host. In turned into a plague that spread from France across the Low Countries through Germany, Central Europe, and even over the channel to Great Britain. Millions and millions of rabbits died, and a few industries were ruined, including much of the fur trade and a

A man with a stopwatch in an airplane clocked the speed of the California duck hawk in flight at 175 mph. This is accepted by the Smithsonian as the fastest bird flight speed ever recorded. But the occasion to get an accurate speed check on a bird doesn't arise that often. Some observers contend there's probably a bird — Superbird! — that can top 200 mph.

Los Angeles Times reviews current movies

Following are capsule reviews of most movies currently playing in the Magic Valley. Ratings are by the Motion Picture Association of America and the Los Angeles Times. Opinions are by Los Angeles Times reviewers.

BACK TO THE FUTURE (PG). An interesting premise — a teen-ager travels back in time and falls into the middle of his parents' romance

NBC reruns keep rolling, remain on top

LOS ANGELES (AP) — NBC, relying on reruns instead of summer shows, continued to dominate the Nielsen ratings last week with "The Cosby Show" and "Family Ties" taking the top two spots and five other shows making the Top 10.

Three summer show premieres, "OceanQuest," "I Had Three Wives" and "The Flashy Show West 57th" were rated No. 23, 24 and 40, respectively, in the A.C. Nielsen ratings issued Tuesday for the period ending Aug. 18.

NBC led the overall ratings with 12.6, meaning an average of 10.8 million households watched the network during prime-time hours of the week. CBS followed with a 12.0 rating, or 10.2 million households, with ABC trailing third with an 11.2 rating, or 9.5 million households.

Here is the Top 10: "The Cosby Show," NBC, first; "Family Ties," NBC, second; "Murder, She Wrote," CBS, third; "Cheers," NBC, fourth; "Facts of Life," NBC, fifth; "Night Court," NBC, sixth; "Double Trouble," NBC, seventh; "Miami Vice," NBC, eighth; "Moonlighting," ABC, ninth; "Trapper John," CBS, tenth.

"OceanQuest," which premiered Sunday on NBC, featured former Miss Universe Shawn Weatherly being lowered into the sea in a protective cage as great white sharks attacked. "I Had Three Wives" on ABC follows the exploits of a private investigator who calls on his three ex-wives, a lawyer, a reporter and a stuntwoman, to help in his investigations. It was broadcast Wednesday.

"West 57th" was CBS' contribution to the summer pack, a Tuesday night news magazine that dominates the network news line-up. The show race, the "CBS Evening News" won with a 11.6 rating. ABC's "World News Tonight" came in second for the seventh consecutive week with a 9.1 rating, and the "NBC Nightly News" finished third with a 9.0 rating.

— that is underdeveloped and over-produced. There are a few nice moments of nostalgia for a sea-quester, light, unenlightened past, but there are not enough bits of lovely inventiveness to pad out the gimmick. The outcome is hollow and materialistic.

THE BLACK CAULDRON (PG). The splendid visuals of this Disney film, 12 years in the making, are as welcome as rain in the desert. It is some of the best work the studio has produced since Walt Disney's death in 1966. The subtle, nuanced motions of these characters will come as a revelation. If its script and direction were equal to the animation, "Cauldron" would be a masterpiece to rank with "Snow White" and "Pinocchio." Instead of the frustrating, beautiful, exciting and ultimately unsatisfying film that it is.

THE BRIDE (PG-13). Director Franco Roddam and writer Lloyd Fonville's gorgeous-looking, sensationally reworking of the legend of Frankenstein's monster and his bride unfortunately misfires badly, due mainly to problems of structure and pace. With Sling as Baron Frankenstein and Jennifer Beals in the title role.

EXPLORERS (PG). Gentle, graceful children's space adventure has thin stretches but builds to provocative meeting with whimsical transmissions; and therefore terrified of adult humans. A handsome film, directed by "Gremlins" Joe Dante. With Ethan Hawke, River Phoenix, Jason Presson.

NATIONAL LAMPOON'S EUROPEAN VACATION (PG-13). The family Griswold returns, only to be done in by a labored, witless dog of a script (by John Hughes and Robert Klane) and, by direction (Amy Heckerling) that attempts to cover the story's bald spots by speeded-up action. Every moment is predictable, every performance wasted.

With Chevy Chase (PG). A solid sairical comedy skewering dangerously close ties between university research and the military-industrial complex. Written by "Police Academy's" Neal Israel and Pat Proft (plus Peter Tarkenton), and directed by "Valley Girls" Martha Coolidge. With Val Kilmer, Gabe Jarret, Michelle Meyrink and William Atherton.

THE RETURN OF THE LIVING DEAD (R). Ghouls and zombies rise from a cemetery in a Kentucky town and terrorize the natives. Starring Clu Gulager, James Karne and Don Calfa. Directed by Dan O'Bannon.

SUMMER RENTAL (PG). A frazzled air traffic controller who heads off on vacation with his family, Jack Chester (John Candy) is a man with a Midas touch for him on the head with a good script, because without it, "Summer Rental" takes a miracle for the poor guy to survive until Labor Day. You just wish that someone had whacked considerable bulk and talent.

Stutterers fight ridicule along with handicap

DEAR READERS: My attention has been called to a handicap that afflicts millions of people, but because it isn't life-threatening in the physical sense, it is minimized. It's the only handicap I know of that is openly ridiculed and made the butt of jokes. It's stuttering.

People who stutter are terrified to answer a telephone, speak up in a classroom, apply in person for a job, ask for a date, order in a restaurant, etc.

Because stutterers are afraid to talk, they are thought to be less intelligent than the average person. Some famous people who were stutterers, but overcame it: Thomas Jefferson, Charles Darwin, Jack Paar and Anthony Quinn, to name a few.

When a stutterer stutters, here's what NOT to do: Don't insert words, or finish phrases for the stutterer. Don't say, "Just think before you speak, and don't talk so fast." These seemingly helpful suggestions don't work.

What can help? There's a National Stuttering Project composed of members who form self-help groups in every state. I have seen their materials and newsletters, and recommend them highly.

Abigail VanBuren
Dear Abby

For information about this organization, write to: National Stuttering Project, 1269 Seventh Ave., San Francisco, Calif. 94122. Please enclose a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

DEAR ABBY: I have not been married very long and I need to know how to handle this:

My husband is a very good-looking man who gets a lot of attention from the ladies. His job (bartending) puts him on display, so to speak, where he can meet a lot of attractive women.

Some of them get friendly when they're half-loaded, which is very handy for him because he doesn't have to pay to get them drunk. He also works late hours, which doesn't help our marriage. He should get home by 2 a.m. but sometimes he's not home until 5 or 6. I think he's cheating on me.

Well, I found a strange set of keys in his pocket, so I took them and hid them. I see him going crazy looking for those keys but I don't say anything. I would like to know whose keys they are.

Should I ask him? You can print this. He never reads your column.

— NEEDS HELP

DEAR NEEDS: Don't ask him whose keys they are. A man who cheats will also lie.

CONFIDENTIAL TO WORRIED IN DICKINSON, TEXAS: You have good reason to worry. According to the Mayo Clinic Health Letter: "Cigarette smoking greatly increases your chances of acquiring bladder cancer. Cigarette smokers acquire bladder cancer two to five times more frequently than non-smokers."

NEVER SEEM TO GET ANYWHERE?
Widen your horizons and enjoy more of life with greater Self Confidence

Riggs is set to do the 'Hustle' one more time

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — Long before they invented a dance called the "Hustle," there was Bobby Riggs, one of the greatest hustlers of all time.

Riggs will be doing his thing Friday night here when he combines with Vilas Gerulaitis in a $500,000 challenge match against Martina Navratilova and Pam Shriver, the world's No. 1 women's doubles team.

To Riggs, it is a test of ability. "I only deal with things that involve hard work," said the 67-year-old Riggs. "A hustle since Wimbledon implies that the result is known in advance, that you set it up. I don't do that." The match at the Atlantic City Convention Center is scheduled to start at 7 p.m. MDT and will be the best of five sets. Navratilova and Shriver were favored 9-5 by oddsmakers in Las Vegas. The pair had won 109 straight doubles matches before losing to Elizabeth Smylie and Kathy Jordan in the final at Wimbledon this year. As of week ago, Shriver and Navratilova had not played together in a tournament since Wimbledon. "I don't imagine it's going to take us long to get used to each other," said Shriver, 23 and the world's third-ranked woman player. "We've been playing together so long." Riggs said he is not worried about playing Shriver and Navratilova, the 29-year-old who has dominated women's tennis over the past few years. "People are underestimating us," Riggs said about his team. "I've watched Vilas now as when he did so well in some big tournaments. Gerulaitis, 31, got involved in some controversy when he said that Navratilova would not be able to defeat the man who was ranked No. 100 on the men's tour. He softened his statement by saying she was one of the best female athletes in the world. The winners of the match will split $300,000 and the losers will divide $200,000. The match will mark the third time Riggs has lured a leading women's tennis player into a nationally publicized match. In 1973, he defeated Margaret Court. In a ballyhooed Mother's Day match and won 6-2, 6-1. That paved the way for a match against Billie Jean King in the Astrodome later that year that drew 39,472 people and a nationally televised audience of about 50 million viewers more before. It wasn't much of a match as King routed Riggs 6-4, 6-3, 6-3. "When I lost to Billie Jean, I had hoped she would give me a return match, but she refused," said Riggs. "So this was concocted as an alliance." Riggs has collected a lot of ways of playing tennis match during his career. He has played matches tied to doubles partners, holding a gorilla on a chain and even wearing an ankle length overcoat.

Just as perplexed was host professional Billy Downs who had six birds and managed to keep it just one under par.

"I bet Doyle and I had a heckuva best ball," he said with a laugh. Thompson wound up in a third-place tie with Twin Falls' Mike Hamblin and Caldwell's Dee Kressly at 4-under. At one time Hamblin had 11 five under but then saw that melt back with bogles on Nos. 2, 3 and 9.

Downs' 71 left him tied with Jeff Thomson in sixth place while Montana Open Champion Kevin Prentice and Utah's Vance Christiansen were lodged at even par.

The amateur chase was headed by Weiser's Joe Malay, who was one under at 71 and held a two-stroke advantage on Twin Falls' Kevin Packard. Steve Meyerhoefer and Doyle Dugger. With his six handicap, he'd 11 five under but then saw that melt back with bogles on Nos. 2, 3 and 9.

Every thing was very smooth," confirmed Frank. "I hit 18 greens and the only thing bad that happened was a tee-put on No. 18 (the pros played the back nine first)."

"You bet I teed it up: Every shot," he said, of the rules allowing that unusual ploy because of the newness of the course and possible rock damage to clubs. "I use a tee every time I played. You can throw everything right at the flag, and make it stick."

While those two were cruising, the rest of the field ran into heavy squalls at times. Not the least of these was Twin Falls' amateur Doyle Dugger who carded seven birdies, and wound up on even par. "I would never have believed that was possible," said the five-handicap veteran. "I double bogied No. 17 and I was CORVALLIS, Ore. — The passing attack that made Brigham Young University a national champion is being counted on to rebuild a long suffering Oregon State football program that has produced just six victories in the past five years.

Dave Kragthorpe, the coach who was BYU's offensive line coach for seven years, told touring Pacific to Conference Skywriters Wednesday that the Beavers were going to pass "no matter what" this fall.

He said the team would throw about 50 times a game.

"We're going to pass the football eight out of 10 times on first down," he promised.

Many times, all five receivers will be out on patterns, Kragthorpe said. "When you have five receivers out there, I guarantee you one of them will be open," he said.

At age 52, the gray-haired Kragthorpe is not your typical first-year major college coach. He guided Idaho State to the NCAA Division-1-AA title in 1981, then became athletic director at Utah State two years later.

He was wanting to return to coaching when his old boss, BYU Coach LaVell Edwards, helped him get the Oregon State job.

He inherits a program that has compiled the worst record in college football in recent years. His predecessor, Joe Avezzano, was 6-4-7 in his five seasons. The Beavers are 15-93-3 over the past decade and haven't had a winning season in 15 years. Their last bowl appearance was 20 years ago.

The way Kragthorpe looks at it, things can only get better.

"If you're going to start down, it might as well be way down," he said, "because what you do on the positive side really shows."

Kragthorpe, who helped install BYU's passing offense in 1972 and was the Cougars' offensive coordinator until 1979, wants to boost the Beavers' image on and off the field.

The sour last days of the Avezzano regime were recalled by center Jack Lester. He described it as a time of factional bickering, inconsistent discipline and low morale.

"It got so bad that by the Oregon game, it was just a big fight," he said.

"No matter what Avezzano said it just got worse and worse."

Asked about the differences in the Kragthorpe and Avezzano staffs, Lester described the new coaches as "real professionals."

"They lead by example," he said. Of Avezzano, Lester said, "I think it was his personality. I don't think he was out to be a head coach."

Kragthorpe said about 12 players who did not share his values — and desires are no longer with the program. About half of them left because of bad grades, he said. He asked the others to leave.

DAVE KRAGTHORPE
Former Idaho State mentor

game does, he said. But first, he has to have someone to pass the ball.

"We don't have a quarterback who has ever taken a snap in a four-year program," Kragthorpe said.

Last year's starter, Steve Steenwyk, had academic problems and didn't attend summer school to try to regain his eligibility.

Now, the battle for the starting job is between two redshirt freshmen — Erik Wilhelm and Shaun Shahan, who has the unusual ability to pass with either arm.

Normally, tight ends and running backs are the most-used receivers in Kragthorpe's offense, but he said he'll try to get the ball to wide receiver Reggie Bynum as much as possible this season.

Despite the inept Oregon State offense, Bynum led the Pac-10 in receiving last year with 51 catches for 711 yards.

"He's electrifying," Kragthorpe said. "Every time he gets the ball he's dangerous."

Kragthorpe has retained three of Avezzano's defensive coaches. He said Oregon State's defense was far better than its offense last year, and he was satisfied with that portion of the coaching staff.

Some Oregon State fans are bubbling about a possible 4-0 start, because the Beavers open against Idaho, California, Fresno State and Grambling. Such expectations are extremely unrealistic, Kragthorpe said.

Home course still kind to Darrington

By LARRY HOVEY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — A near two-month layoff hardly affected Karen Darrington Thursday as she returned to her former home course to card an even par 72 and take a four-stroke lead at the mid-point of the Twin Falls Amateur. Darrington, who moved to Boise two months ago, is being chased by former champion Virginia Udnhjem, Twin Falls, in a repeat of last month's state amateur when Darrington won by one stroke.

"I got up and down five times," said Darrington when asked where she felt most of that lead came from. "And I had just 27 putts."

That was the portion of the game that had worried her most coming into the event.

"I was surprised my short game was as good as it was," she said, "because I've only played two times since state. But sometimes, after a long layoff like that, your short game is pretty good the first time out," she quickly added, indicating she'll have the same worry today.

Udnhjem was just as certain about where Darrington picked up that four-stroke edge.

"I knocked it out of bounds for a two-stroke penalty on No. 5 and another time for one stroke on No. 12. Udnhjem said I never hit it out of bounds but I did today."

Udnhjem's 76 gives her a one-stroke advantage in the race for second with Shauna Robinson, Twin Falls, who said "I played pretty well for me. I missed two short putts so could have been a little better. But I'm pleased to be here today."

Joanne Sanderson, Twin Falls, was fourth at 80 while Nampa's Pat Dorman and Betty Davis of Twin Falls were knotted at 81. Dorman had a 65 to lead net.

In the first flight, Joan Miller, Twin Falls, had an 84 for the lead with Pat Williams, Twin Falls, at 85; Gloria Lee, Twin Falls, 87, and Justine Messersmith, Jerome, and Jeanne Alban, Twin Falls, at 88.

In the second flight, Rita Deweller and Margie Matthews shared the lead at 94 with Julie Blanford, Carole Kead and June Olmstead, all Twin Falls, at 95. Diana Startin, Twin Falls, had 96.

Three women beat 100 in the third flight, headed by Tom Phillips at 96. Letti Jordan had a 98 and Bobbi Sherwood, Twin Falls, carded a 99.

At 24, Mancini's had plenty; 'Boom Boom' says bye-bye

By ED SCHUYLER JR.
The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Ray "Boom Boom" Mancini, a former lightweight champion, said Tuesday he would retire from boxing at age 24, Thursday.

Mancini's parents and sister, Lina, said they were proud of his decision. He had won the world title in 1980 and had a record of 27-1-1.

Mancini said he was tired of the constant travel and the pressure of being a champion.

"I'm going to go into acting," he said. "I'm going to go into acting. I know I can do it. I know I can do it. I know I can do it."

who probably lost a fight when he was 19 because of World War II. He was a champion of the world in 1980. He was a champion of the world in 1980. He was a champion of the world in 1980.

Mancini's parents and sister, Lina, said they were proud of his decision. He had won the world title in 1980 and had a record of 27-1-1.

Mancini said he was tired of the constant travel and the pressure of being a champion.

"I'm going to go into acting," he said. "I'm going to go into acting. I know I can do it. I know I can do it. I know I can do it."

and in my last heart. But the three official scores came, all favoring Bramble. "I'm going to go into acting," he said. "I'm going to go into acting. I know I can do it. I know I can do it. I know I can do it."

Then the young man from Youngstown, Ohio, always wore a smile when the minutes had done beat, and said: "I'm going to go into acting. I know I can do it. I know I can do it. I know I can do it."

And that day, he said, he has been in Los Angeles, Calif., to make the commencement address at a school for women at Scranton, Pa.

In announcing his decision, Mancini never actually said he retired.

"I couldn't say I'm quitting," Mancini, who was warrior in the ring, said later. "I was tired of the constant travel and the pressure of being a champion. I was tired of the constant travel and the pressure of being a champion. I was tired of the constant travel and the pressure of being a champion."

Wolff said Mancini's purses totaled slightly more than $2.2 million and that there also was ancillary money.

The 5-foot-3½ Ray Mancini, whose attraction style of fighting sometimes left him more marked than the loser, turned pro at age 18 — he was born March 3, 1961.
