Jet engine makers find explosion cause

By LARRY THORSON
The Associated Press

LONDON — The Pratt and Whitney Co. makers of the jet engine that exploded on a Boeing 737 with the resulting death of 54 people, said Friday night it had traced the cause to the engine's combustors. Britain's domestic news agency reported.

The company warned aircraft operators to inspect engines like those on the 737, particularly the combustors, which ignite air and fuel inside the engine's combustion chamber, spokesman David Long told Press Association.

Pratt and Whitney is "reminding them (airlines) of previous advice on maintenance," said Long, speaking to the news agency from the firm's headquarters in East Hartford, Conn.

One of the two Pratt and Whitney JT8D-9 engines on the British Airways 737 exploded as the plane was taking off from Manchester airport on Thursday. The explosion in the left engine ruptured the fuel tank in the wing and the escaping fuel ignited, creating a huge fireball which engulfed the rear of the plane and burst into the cabin.

Press Association air correspondent Paul Markille quoted Long as saying Pratt and Whitney "felt it was imperative" to issue the maintenance advice after the Manchester disaster.

It said Long refused to comment when asked if maintenance could have been at fault. It quoted him as saying: "We are saying the combustors were responsible and we are sending a telex to all our operators throughout the world."

Long told The Associated Press bureau in East Hartford, "We've isolated it (the problem) to the combustors but still haven't determined why."

British and American officials confirmed that the U.S. Federal Aviation Administration had put out two orders in the past year about the Pratt and Whitney engines used in 737s.

In July, the engine-maker was ordered to make a survey of maintenance records of the engines. From the start, the administration has excluded grain sales — and the income they bring American farmers — from the various pressure tactics used against the Soviets in an effort to change their policies. Other sanctions were imposed to protest martial law in Poland and the shooting down of a South Korean commercial airliner two years ago.

Robert C. McFarlane, the president's national security assistant, touched off the latest show of U.S. toughness in a speech Monday in which he probed Soviet behavior and concluded "even incremental improvement" in relations would be hard to achieve without changes in Kremlin policy.

The speech, entitled "U.S.-Soviet Relations in the Late 20th Century," delivered to civic groups in California, accused the Soviets of "a masterpiece ofchutzpah" for criticizing American space research while undertaking large programs of their own.

The next day, the White House announced that, despite Soviet objections, the United States would proceed with the first American test of an anti-satellite weapon against an object in space.

"We have to test, and we have to test now," said Larry Speakes, the presidential spokesman. "They have one and they don't want us to have one."

Critics maintain the Soviets have a highly sophisticated version and that U.S. testing could help unravel the 1972 U.S.-Soviet Anti-Ballistic Missile Treaty. Considered a milestone in the history of arms control, the treaty limits missile defenses on the theory that the threat of devastating retaliation discourages launching a nuclear attack.

Then, on Thursday, Reagan took personal charge of the toughened U.S. stance, interrupting his long California vacation with a speech to Republican fund-raisers, the president strongly defended plans to develop a defensive weapons system in outer space. Noting Soviet objections, Reagan asked, "Why are they investing so many rubles of their own in the same technologies?"

tributed to a jump in government tax receipts because of the quarterly payments made by businesses and individuals.

In July, revenues fell back to more normal levels while outlays spurred up, accounting for the swollen deficit figure.

Government revenues totaled $77.7 billion, down 2.9 percent from the June level of $72.15 billion. Government spending totaled $78.01 billion during the month, up 9 percent from the June level.

The revenues included $26.25 billion in individual income taxes, $21.8 billion in Social Security payroll taxes and $1.89 billion in corporate income taxes.

The biggest outlays were, as usual, for the Department of Health and Human Services, the military and interest on the national debt.

Spending at HHS, which makes Social Security payments, totaled $27.10 billion in July and $26.35 billion for the first 10 months of the fiscal year, up almost 8 percent from the same period a year earlier.

Military expenditures totaled $21.8 billion in Social Security payroll taxes and $1.89 billion for the 10-month period, up 10 percent from a year ago.

Interest on the $1.82 trillion national debt totaled $12.9 billion in July and $15.05 billion for the year to date, up 18 percent from a year ago.

Deficit grows by $20 billion during July

By MARTIN CRUTSINGER
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The federal government's $20.04 billion budget deficit in July, pushing the total red ink above last year's mark with two months to go in the fiscal year.

The Treasury Department said for the first 10 months of the fiscal year the deficit has swelled to $175.59 billion, surpassing last year's 12-month total of $175.34 billion.

The Reagan administration is predicting that the deficit will be a record $203.02 billion by the time the 1985 fiscal year ends on Sept. 30. This would surpass the old record of $195.4 billion set in fiscal 1983.

These figures do not take into account so-called "off-budget" government programs. When they are added into the total, the deficit this year is expected to reach $213.3 billion.

The Congressional Budget Office estimated that based on cuts made by Congress in the budget resolution passed Aug. 1, the deficit for fiscal 1986 will decline to $116 billion and that a total of $203 billion will be shaved off the deficit amount over the next three years.

The $20.04 billion July deficit followed a rare surplus of $645 million in June, which was at-

Poisons in tank boiled for 11 days

By KELLY P. KISSEL
The Associated Press

SOUTH CHARLESTON, W.Va. — Poisons boiled for 11 days in a Union Carbide storage tank before escaping and injuring 135 people this month, and better management could have prevented the leak, company officials said Friday.

An internal probe of the Aug. 11 leak at the Institute plant showed that methylene chloride, a suspected carcinogen, made up about one-fifth of the 4,000 pounds of material that escaped from the vessel that workers thought was empty. However, company officials said Institute's 2,100 residents would suffer no long-term health effects.

PA said the firm's telex message covers Pratt and Whitney engine types JT8D-1 to JD8D-17.

Over 1,000 Boeing 737s are in service, used by 133 airlines worldwide. The planes are extensively used by Pan Am, British Airways, Air France and many charter companies. Boeing 737's began flying in 1967.

a mixture of aldicarb oxime and methylene chloride in an unvented and untested vessel, he said.

But a "jacket" surrounding the bottom half of the vessel filled with steam somehow, and the brew slowly stewed for seven days until workers, still unaware of the steam, pumped out what they thought was all of the mixture, Dupuy said.

However, only 1,000 pounds of the mixture remained in the original vessel while 5,000 pounds of methylene chloride vaporized in the heat and vented through scrubbers and flares or escaped to connected tanks, Dupuy said.

"We normally confirm a transfer by a liquid level measurement," Dupuy said. "That was not done."

Heat to the vessel was never checked and thus never shut off, and for the next four days, the remaining mixture boiled until it triggered a self-sustaining reaction that eventually built up enough pressure to cause the vessel to rupture.

Karawan said it would have been easy to avoid the accident.

"We have a standard operating procedure," Karawan said. "We have a pre-start-up review. That was not done."

Under better management, the untested storage vessel would not have been used in the first place, officials said.

Thirty-one workers — one department head, about five production engineers, five foremen and 20 operators — were responsible for the workers transferred 10,500 pounds of

U.S. takes tough arms policy stand as summit plans start

By BARRY SCHWEID
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The Reagan administration is staking out a tough stance on weapons policy and showing little inclination for conciliation as preliminary planning begins for the U.S.-Soviet summit meeting in November.

A furor over "spy dust" is also darkening the atmosphere, although U.S. officials say they were considering only the health of Americans in Moscow and not any possible impact on the summit when they charged the KGB with using a potentially harmful chemical.

According to the State Department, the chemical was used to track contacts be-between Americans and Russians, including dissidents, in Moscow. The Soviets have dismissed the allegations as "absurd" and accused the Reagan administration of "an act of provocation."

Despite the dispute, and a tough U.S. line on "Star Wars" and arms testing in space, the administration still intends to pursue cooperation in such fields as agriculture, environmental protection and housing for diplomats.

FBI says tape contained code

LOS ANGELES (AP) — An audio tape of two Soviet spies played for jurors Friday in which the Russians, talking in code, plan what the government says was to be a rendezvous between former FBI agent Richard W. Miller and KGB agent Vienna.

Miller is the first FBI agent ever charged with espionage. Federal prosecutors claim he was seduced into a spy scheme while having an affair with a Russian agent.

"I believe this is a clandestine phone call being made by a Soviet intelligence officer in furtherance of a KGB operation," testified agent Michael DiPreto, who eavesdropped on the Sept. 25, 1984 conversation.

DiPreto said the two were speaking a "plain language code" in Russian. Jurors watched a simultaneous translation on movie and TV screens.

Fed votes to maintain controls

WASHINGTON (AP) — Policymakers at the Federal Reserve Board voted last month to make no change in their controls over the nation's money supply, hoping that a two-month surge in money growth would soon subside.

Minutes of the July 9-10 meeting, released Friday, showed that members of the central bank's Federal Open Market Policy Committee were split in their debate over the strategy.

A majority on the committee voted to keep the current degree of pressure on the money supply. These members noted that any tightening in money controls would make it more difficult for the economy to revive from a period of sluggish growth.

VFU rejects non-intervention

DALLAS (AP) — A resolution urging the Reagan administration to stay out of Central America has been rejected by Veterans of Foreign Wars conventioners.

Richard Anderson, commander of the so-called "rebel vets" Post 8988 of Santa Cruz, Calif., proposed the resolution Thursday. It was rejected once in a committee and again before the whole delegation of about 3,000 people when Anderson failed to get a second for his motion.

Contadora may have solution

CARTAGENA, Colombia (AP) — Colombia's foreign minister said Friday the Contadora negotiations over an agreement on Canadian verification of a Central American peace treaty, but Canada said it had not offered its services.

The Contadora Group has spent four years trying to get all five Central American countries to agree on how to bring peace to the troubled region. Members of Contadora are Colombia, Mexico, Panama, and Venezuela.

Shuttle poised for launching

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Fitted with improved engine gauges to avoid another cliffhanger launch, Discovery was poised Friday to begin one of the most daring space shuttle missions, the capture and rewiring of an $85 million wandering satellite.

Launch was set for 6:38 a.m. EDT Saturday and an Air Force weatherman said "the worst we expect are scattered clouds."

If all goes well, the shuttle will edge alongside the 7½-ton satellite on Thursday, and one of the five astronauts will grab the satellite with his gloved hands and stop its rotation.

Women's group flays Robins

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — A national women's group accused the A.H. Robins Co. on Friday of seeking shelter under federal bankruptcy law to avoid fair payment to women injured by the company's Dalton Shield birth control device.

Robins "is attempting to deprive these women of their day in court," said a motion filed in U.S. Bankruptcy Court by attorney Aaron M. Lewis on behalf of the National Women Health Network and 69 women with damage suits pending against Robins.

Soviet fans remain barred

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The State Department, despite Mayor Diane Feinstein's plea, on Friday barred three Soviet diplomats from crossing a street to cheer on their countrymen in a match with U.S. Olympic volleyball team.

Geneva Avenue forms the boundary between San Francisco and Daly City, an area out-of-bounds to Soviet diplomats. The Cow Palace, where the match was scheduled for Friday night, is on the Daly City side of the street.

"A decision had been made to deny travel to three Soviets to Daly City," said State Department press officer Anita Stockman in Washington. "I understand the mayor made a proposal and I'm sure someone called and explained the reason why this could not be done. It was based on reciprocity."

Health risk briefing planned

WASHINGTON (AP) — The State Department Friday called a special briefing for American diplomats who worked in the Soviet Union since 1975 to advise them of possible health risks of "spy dust."

A powdery substance the United States charges was spread by the KGB to keep track of Americans in Moscow.

Meanwhile, Malcolm Toon, the U.S. ambassador to Moscow from 1975 to 1979, said he was not made aware of the chemical agent, which the department said had been used since the 1970s.

Fixed doctors' fees studied to control costs of Medicare

By ROBERT A. ROSENBLATT The Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON — The Reagan administration is considering far-reaching proposals to control spending for doctors' services under the Medicare program, such as a fixed fee for each medical procedure or a flat monthly payment for every patient.

A study of cost-control measures probably will be completed by the fall, but the Department of Health and Human Services has not decided on endorsing any particular approach, a department spokesman said Friday.

Reforms are being sought by Congress, concerned with rapidly rising federal outlays for Medicare at a time of burgeoning deficits, and by some health maintenance organizations, which have increased in out-of-pocket costs for the 27 million participants in the health care program for citizens over the age of 65.

The Health and Human Services study, being compiled in response to a request from Congress, is exploring the "best" way to control the amount of money spent for physicians' services. "We are considering the pros and cons of a number of proposals," the department spokesman said, emphasizing that the report is still "in draft status."

Rep. Pete Stark, D-Calif., chairman of the health subcommittee of the House Ways and Means Committee, said Friday that he will offer legislation providing "some kind of fee schedule." Hospitals treating Medicare patients now receive fixed fees for various procedures.

Once the American Medical Association realizes they are a union, they will come in and negotiate like one — helping Congress devise a system of fees to keep costs under control, Stark said in a telephone interview from California.

The AMA has traditionally been opposed to a government-mandated measure are:

A schedule of fixed fees for each separate service performed by a doctor. An office visit, a chest X-ray, removal of a wart, each would be priced individually.

A fee schedule for diagnostic groups, as is done for hospitals. For example, the doctor might get one overall fee for an appendectomy, without any separate calculations for the costs of laboratory tests, the operation, and a post-recovery office visit.

A single fee for a Medicare patient, regardless of the particular treatment. The doctor might get paid annually, or perhaps monthly, with the amount determined by what the government spends for a typical Medicare patient. (This type of "cap" plan is used by some health maintenance organizations, in which patients pay a fixed fee for complete coverage with no additional charges, regardless of how often they need medical services.)

Rep. Pete Stark, D-Calif., chairman of the health subcommittee of the House Ways and Means Committee, said Friday that he will offer legislation providing "some kind of fee schedule." Hospitals treating Medicare patients now receive fixed fees for various procedures.

Once the American Medical Association realizes they are a union, they will come in and negotiate like one — helping Congress devise a system of fees to keep costs under control, Stark said in a telephone interview from California.

The AMA has traditionally been opposed to a government-mandated fee system, arguing that it would interfere with quality-of-care. The organization declined to comment Friday on the possible proposals that may be contained in the Health and Human Services report.

The current complex Medicare system allows prices for physicians' services to vary dramatically among doctors and geographic areas — an initial office visit typically costs $40 in California compared with $15 in Pennsylvania. There are 6,000 separate classifications for billing, with the amount reimbursed by Medicare linked to the doctor's own customary charges as well as the prevailing rate in the local region.

Medicare theoretically pays 80 percent of covered charges for doctors' services, with the patient paying the other 20 percent. But an individual doctor's fee may be higher than the level covered by Medicare, with the beneficiary responsible for paying the difference. These "excess charges" totaled $2.4 billion last year for the Medicare beneficiaries, according to Chris McEntee, a legislative representative for the American Association of Retired Persons.

"We hear a lot of complaints that beneficiaries are not well protected for the costs of physicians fees; that fees are going up too fast," said McEntee.

The growth in hospital costs under Medicare has been slowed dramatically by a system that classifies all medical conditions and treatments under one of 476 diagnostic categories, each with a fee fixed in advance by the federal government.

Carbide

Kennedy would not say whether disciplinary action would be taken against the workers and refused to blame them.

About 45 pounds of methylene chloride escaped and settled down town, along with 3,200 pounds of aldicarb oxime and its byproducts.

Studies show that methylene chloride causes cancer in rats and mice at levels of more than 1,000 parts per million but exposure levels in Atlanta did not exceed 20 ppm, said Jackson Browning, Carbide's vice president of health, safety and environmental affairs.

Levels of sulfur-based irritants among the aldicarb oxime byproducts ranged from 3 ppm to 18 ppm, he said. There is no industry standard on what level of aldicarb oxime causes cancer.

Summit

Continued from Page A1 The Star Wars program is technically on the negotiating table in Geneva, Switzerland. But the administration, as the president's speech underscored, is not about to trade it away for Soviet concessions to "limit" their offensive nuclear weapons.

Behind the tough line taken by Reagan and McFarlane could be the view that the Soviets will give ground in the weapons talks or at the president's summit with Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev only if the United States demonstrates resolve.

So far, however, the Soviets show no sign of giving ground. The note delivered to the State Department on Thursday, protesting the "spy dust" charges, accused the United States of imperiling the summit meeting.

"Behind the raising of this artificial question," it said, "one cannot but see a quite definite design — to prepare the ground for yet another slander campaign against the Soviet Union, to poison the atmosphere in relations between our countries and kindle enmity toward Soviet people."

Driver escapes homicide rap

CHICAGO (AP) — Reckless homicide charges were dropped Friday against a bus driver whose car crushed a car, killing seven young people on their way to a Bruce Springsteen concert.

State's Attorney Richard Daley said he was dropping all seven felony counts against Chicago Transit Authority bus driver David Johnson, 47. Daley said an engineering report expected to be issued in two to three weeks will exonerate Johnson.

The accident occurred Aug. 3 when the 18-ton bus Johnson was driving collided with a Cadillac carrying seven people aged 15 to 21 going to the concert at Soldier Field. The crash also injured 60 people aboard the bus including Johnson, who was hospitalized with back injuries.

Icahn may have won TWA bid

NEW YORK (AP) — Financier Carl Icahn raised his stake in Trans World Airlines to 50.3 percent of its outstanding shares Friday, apparently sealing his victory in the fight for control of TWA.

Icahn disclosed in a terse statement that he and his affiliates boosted their holdings to 17,492,459 shares of the approximately 34.5 million outstanding shares of TWA common stock, raising their stake from 49 percent.

It is believed he purchased a 930,000-share block of TWA stock that traded Friday at $22.50 a share. TWA ended the week at $22.37 a share, unchanged from Thursday's close.

Icahn, reached at his home late Friday, refused to discuss his plans but said he hopes to reach agreement soon with TWA board to formally support his bid for the remaining stock.

Closed meetings defended

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Chief Justice Warren Burger on Friday defended his decision to close meetings on the bicentennial celebration of the U.S. Constitution, saying it was in keeping with the spirit of the Constitutional Convention.

"We're following the precedent of the signing of the document," Burger said of those planning the celebration, which is to begin in 1987, with the 200th anniversary of the document's signing in Philadelphia. "They even boarded up the windows there to keep people from knowing what was going on."

Burger and other members of the Commission on the Bicentennial of the U.S. Constitution met behind closed doors here Thursday and Friday to plan for the national celebration. Burger is chairman of the commission.

Navy undergoes reshuffling

WASHINGTON (AP) — One of the most extensive reshufflings of the Navy's leadership in recent memory began Friday with the reassignment of one four-star admiral and the nominations of three other admirals to receive their fourth stars and new posts.

The Pentagon announced that President Reagan intends to nominate Adm. Ronald J. Hays, currently the vice chief of naval operations, to become commander of all U.S. forces in the Pacific.

The Pentagon also announced that Reagan would recommend the elevation of Vice Adm. Carlisle A.H. Trost to the post of commander-in-chief of the Atlantic Fleet; Vice Adm. James A. Lyons Jr. as the new commander of the Pacific Fleet, and Vice Adm. James B. Busby IV to replace Hays as vice chief of naval operations.

Most don't want AIDS results

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Homosexual and bisexual men have become far less willing to be tested for exposure to the AIDS virus than they were 10 months ago, and less than half the people tested ask for the results, researchers said Friday.

A November 1984 survey of 728 gays and bisexuals in San Francisco found 69 percent planned to take the blood test to detect antibodies to the deadly acquired immune deficiency syndrome.

But when they were questioned again last May, only 22 percent said they had been tested or planned to be tested, said Thomas Coates, a psychologist at the University of California at San Francisco.

Another study of 835 men in Berkeley found that of those tested for exposure to the virus, only 46 percent of the homosexuals and bisexuals and 32 percent of the heterosexuals asked for the results, said sociologist James Wiley of the UC's Berkeley campus.

The AIDS test was designed to protect the nation's blood supply by detecting the presence of antibodies to the AIDS virus in the blood of potential donors.

Falwell clarifies remark regarding Tutu

By The Associated Press

The Rev. Jerry Falwell on Friday said his calling South African Bishop Desmond Tutu "a phony" was a poor choice of words, and that he did not intend to impugn the black leader's motives.

He said, however, that he still believed that Tutu did not speak for the majority of black South Africans.

"Falwell" the founder of the conservative Moral Majority, drew broad criticism after making the comment this week upon his return from a trip to South Africa.

In a letter Friday to the Nobel Peace Prize winner, Falwell said, "I stated that, if you purported to speak for a majority of South African non-whites, you were a phony."

"That was a poor choice of words, and the perception has been created by some that I was impugning your personal character and the genuineness of your ministry for Jesus Christ.

"If that is how you interpreted my statement, I apologize to you, Bishop Tutu. I did not intend to impugn your motives or your relationship with God.

"I firmly believe that you and I sincerely want the abolition of both apartheid. However, we disagree totally on how to achieve that goal." Apartheid is a system of legalized discrimination practiced by South Africa's white-minority government against the country's black majority.

During the trip, Falwell defended limited reforms by the white minority government and said the country's blacks don't want economic sanctions by other governments but sincerely want the abolition of apartheid. However, we disagree

First underground-silo MX launch succeeds

VANDENBERG AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP) — An unarmed MX missile was launched Friday down a Pacific Ocean range, the ninth in the series of tests and the first to use an underground silo, officials said.

The $60 million launch was conducted from an underground Minuteman missile silo, as called for in President Reagan's plan to modernize U.S. nuclear forces.

"This is the first flight out of a silo with a rail-launch control system like the one (the MX) will be deployed with," said Air Force Gen. Aloysius G. Casey.

Eight previous tests, which the Air Force said were all successful, had been conducted from a $2 million concrete pad above the ground.

"We had an extremely successful test," Casey said. "The engines performed within one-tenth of 1 percent accuracy."

The MX was given a steam-booster launch at 9:39 p.m. at this coastal California missile base, and 30 minutes later it fell in the Pacific Ocean at the Kwajalein Missile Test Range, about 4,700 miles from the launch site.

When operational, the MX will carry up to 10 nuclear warheads. The test missile launched Friday carried six unarmored Mark 21 warheads along with associated electronic test equipment, said Air Force Lt. Col. Don Brownlee.

Stivers says taxes lack sense

Claims investors scared

By DEAN S. MILLER
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Idaho's method of taxing local branches of multinational or interstate corporations scares away potential investors from the Gem State, House Speaker Tom Stivers said Thursday.

At a luncheon meeting of the Idaho World Trade Association, Stivers said he has formed a study committee of legislators and bureaucrats to study possible revisions to the "unitary tax" provisions of the state tax code.

"The unitary tax method looks at the total income of a corporation in all its domestic or international branches and taxes whatever portion of that income is assignable to Idaho operations. Stivers said this can lead to double taxation of income.

He said he doubts he could get a total repeal of the unitary tax provisions past the Legislature or even out of committee, but he felt a revision would be possible. He says he feels the unitary method could at least be repealed for foreign corporations who may fear that under the present tax law their home-country profits would be subject to Idaho taxes if they opened an Idaho branch.

"If we don't do something on an international level, we will not get any more businesses coming in to Idaho.

"We are concerned that if we don't do something, we're going to become an island." The Twin Falls Republican said other states have done away with the unitary taxing method and will draw investors away from Idaho.

"We need to loosen up to encourage new businesses to come in. . . If we open up, we might have more business interest; in reality, that's what increases revenues, not tax increases."

He said a recent revision of the Oregon tax code to loosen up unitary tax approaches to foreign businesses has netted the state $300 million in new industrial investment.

Stivers said the study committee will meet Aug. 29 in Boise and that all interested people are invited to attend. On the committee will be Stivers, Rep. Don Loveland, R-Boise, and Rep. Gary Montgomery, R-Boise, Stivers said. Representatives of industrial associations, the Department of Commerce, the Legislative Budget Office, and the Idaho Association of Taxpayers will be asked to join the panel.

TWIN FALLS — Some 6,000 gallons of road oil spilled from a tanker truck Friday, spreading in a 100-foot-long, sticky black puddle across an alfalfa field south of Twin Falls.

"Topsail in the area of the spill will have to be removed and replaced," said Mike McMasters of the Division of Environment of the Idaho Department of Health and Welfare.

The accident occurred just before 2 p.m., when Justin Clark Mills, driver of the truck, reached down to turn a dial on his citizens band radio, said Idaho State Police Cpl. Rick Wright. Mills' truck jerked off the shoulder and crashed through a power pole a half mile west of the Twin Falls city water tank on Highway 74, according to Wright and Keith Jensen of Idaho Power Co.

When Mills tried to pull the truck back on the road, it flipped over on its top, Wright said. The top of the truck was flattened, but Mills escaped injury other than scrapes, bruises, and a bump on the head, Wright said.

Mills was taken to Magic Valley Regional Medical Center by a friend.

The tank came to rest on its side, with its load leaking into a field owned by W.G. Sommer.

The tank was carrying an asphalt sealcoating called CRS-2 emulsion, McMasters said. It was to be the last load used in a State Department of Transportation project on Highway 74.

A ditch running by the alfalfa field was dry, so no surface water was contaminated, McMasters said. And the oil was not flammable enough to present a fire danger, he said.

An unnamed Boise company specializing in environmental cleanups will remove the oil, Wright said.

Power to about five houses in the area was disrupted for about an hour while Idaho Power workers put up a new pole, Jensen said.

Were it not for the accident, work on Highway 74 would have ended Friday, said John Root, of the Idaho Transportation Department. Workers should still be able to finish the project this morning, he said.

Mills, 45, who lives south of Twin Falls, owns the truck he was driving and had leased it to Spreeder Specialists of Salt Lake City.

An investigation of the accident was continuing late Friday afternoon.

Californians visit SNRA less

By KENNETH A. BROWN

TWIN FALLS — A population growth rate double that of California may explain why Idahoans are visiting the Sawtooth National Recreation Area in far greater numbers than Californians.

The percentage of Californians visiting the SNRA is down, according to a recent study by the University of Idaho's College of Agriculture. The study also found that use of the SNRA by Idaho residents had grown to just over 60 percent.

The study examined changes in use of the SNRA from 1972 to 1982. It was written and prepared by Edgar L. Michelson, a professor of agricultural economics who specializes in natural resource economics at the University of Idaho, and Robert L. Smathers, a research associate. Both are in the university's Department of Agricultural Economics.

It was compiled from interviews with 350 visitors in 24 different campgrounds in the SNRA. According to the study, Idaho residents made up 48.3 percent of all visitors in 1972, while Californians made up 24 percent.

Ten years later in 1982, however, the percentage of Californians visiting the SNRA dropped by almost a half, to 13 percent. At the same time visitor use by Idaho residents rose to 62 percent.

As a possible explanation for this trend the study pointed out that Idaho's growth rate was double that of California's between 1970 and 1980. In light of the change in user trends, the study suggested that planners and managers in the SNRA "exercise caution" when projecting future recreation demand.

Art Selin, with the Sawtooth National Forest office in Twin Falls, expressed similar concerns and said "sometimes these things change in a year."

The Forest Service plans to release a report on user trends for this past year by Oct. 1, according to Selin.

The report from the University of Idaho also revealed other trends in visitor use. Among these were a shrinking size of visitor "groups," a reduction in the percentage of children, and significant disparities in income and money spent by out-of-state and local visitors.

According to the study, the size of visitor groups dropped by two, from 5.9 individuals to about 3.9. While 80 percent of the visitor groups in the SNRA were families, the study suggested that the drop in group size could be linked to the shifting population structure in the U.S. As the country's median age continues to rise, the study suggested that the number of visitors under the age of 18 could be expected to decline.

Visitors to the SNRA, both local and out of state, had significantly higher incomes than the national average. The average income of local users was $30,600, while the average for out-of-state users, or tourists, was almost $8,000 higher at $38,161.

By contrast, the mean income for all U.S. families was $23,974 in 1981, according to the report.

While local users outnumbered tourists or out-of-state users by more than 2 to 1, the visitors spent almost three times as much on their trip, the report said. Some of this was spent outside of the SNRA on travel expenses.

Another facet of visitor use is that 14 percent of the tourists said the Sawtooths were not their main destination. A number of those not specifically traveling to the SNRA were headed to nearby national parks such as Glacier, Yellowstone and Grand Teton.

The study also indicated that users were becoming more sedentary. While backpacking, canoeing and horseback riding made the top 12 of the activities list in 1972, they were replaced by reading, relaxing, table games and radio in 1982.

Slightly more than one-third of the users also had complaints. Excessive noise in the campgrounds was one of the most common criticisms.

Judge will consider singer's road suit

CHALLIS (AP) — A lawsuit brought against singer Carole King-Sorensen to have a road-running through her ranch declared public was taken under advisement by a judge Friday.

Seventh District Judge Arnold T. Beebe Friday heard final arguments on the suit and then directed attorneys for both sides to submit briefs on the case. After court adjourned, the judge said he hoped to rule within 30 days.

"I think our side came across very straightforward," said Ms. King after adjournment. "I think we made a very good case."

Custer County is seeking clear title to the road and a judgment declaring it to be public.

Several rebuttal witnesses were heard as the four-day trial concluded.

In testimony Thursday, Ms. King said a couple who is suing her and her husband, Richard, for closing the Robinson Bar Road declined to offer to sign an agreement allowing them use of the road.

"Ms. King said that in November 1981 she offered neighbors Thurio and Dorothy French the opportunity to sign an agreement allowing them use of the road through the ranch.

The Frenches declined the offer, prompting the Sorensens to change the combination on the locks on the gates across the road, Ms. King said.

French said he declined to sign the agreement because he felt that would be admission that the road is private.

Previously, Ms. King said, she and her husband provided the Frenches and other neighbors using the road with the combination to locks on the property's east and west gates.

Suits against Firebird total 6

BOISE (AP) — Lawsuits by a Heyburn woman and a Boise couple, have pushed to six the number of suits filed in a fatal July 27 crash at the Firebird raceway near Emmett.

The six complaints in 4th District Court seek at least $4.4 million in damages, plus other compensation to be determined in court.

One of the new suits was filed by Diane Malsen, 31, of Heyburn, whose leg was amputated after being hit by a stunt car. The other new complaint was filed by a Boise couple claiming serious but unspecified injuries.

Ms. Malsen's left leg was amputated below the knee and she suffered a broken leg when he was struck by a car driven by Jim Dunn, 53, Long Beach, Calif., according to her complaint. She was in satisfactory condition at a Boise hospital on Thursday.

The accident occurred when Dunn's "Firemen's Quickie" stunt car went out of control during an exhibition and slammed into a concession stand during the Nightfire National drag races.

Ms. Malsen's suit names Firebird Raceway; raceway owner Bill New and his wife; Dunn and his wife; and the American Drag Racing Association. There are other, unnamed defendants. Ms. Malsen is seeking damages in amounts to be proved at trial and said awards should include compensation for her suffering and that of her children, plus punitive damages and money for medical expenses and lost earnings.

In the other new suit, Ken and Patricia Ann Pasha are seeking $1 million in general damages and $2 million for punitive damages, as well as other compensation to be proved at trial.

Defendants include those named in Ms. Malsen's suit, plus raceway employees W. Scott New and B.K. Newell.

Judge considers fed's request in drug case

BOISE (AP) — A federal judge has taken under advisement the government's request to hold a Twin Falls man in jail without bond until he goes on trial on drug charges.

After a hearing Thursday, U.S. Magistrate Mike Williams took the case of Charles Roney under advisement.

Roney faces trial on Justice Department charges of drug dealing in the Twin Falls area and trying to conceal his assets to avoid income taxes. While free on bond pending trial on that charge, the government alleges, Roney has continued to be involved in Twin Falls area drug trafficking.

In testimony Thursday, witnesses testified that a 17-year-old Twin Falls woman told them she lied to a federal grand jury in Boise last week.

Joan Alvey, Twin Falls, said her daughter, Karen Ordez, told her she lied to the grand jury last week while testifying about Roney's continuing involvement in Twin Falls area drug traffic.

Howard Elliott, Twin Falls Police Department investigator, and Michael Ryan, Internal Revenue Service special agent, said Ms. Ordez made similar statements under questioning. But Elliott said Ms. Ordez made a written statement, then tore it up, saying she feared retaliation.

Ranchers, environmentalists clash over Idaho wilderness

BOISE (AP) — With millions of acres of federal range throughout the West still under review for wilderness preservation, environmental and livestock interests have again clashed over the economic consequences of preserving large tracts of Bureau of Land Management land.

"Environmental protection, multiple use... have no significant impact on economies," Wilderness Society spokesman Tom Robinson told the National Public Lands Advisory Council Friday. "In fact, I think protecting these last wild areas will have enhance state economies."

But ranchers, led by Gene Davis of southwestern Idaho and council member Marlene Simons of Butah, Wyo., flatly disputed that claim, arguing that wilderness designations and the strict regulation that goes with them are devastating local and regional economies throughout the West.

"The time has come when the people of this country should say, 'We can't afford these lockups,'" added council member Lowell Jones of Klamath Falls, Ore. "You're missing the point that this country's got too many people. We can't afford it anymore."

The 21-member council, which advises the interior secretary and the Bureau of Land Management on public lands issues, conducted the debate as part of its regular meeting in Boise.

Robinson, whose organization opposes any increased grazing on federal range and backs a boost in federal grazing fees paid by ranchers for the right, argued that wilderness is being unfairly blamed for the economic problems plaguing both ranchers on federal range and the timber industry in federal forests.

"In states like Idaho, people are very quick to point fingers at it... with respect to the economic problems people are facing," he said, claiming those problems rest with weak markets, high interest rates and other factors far removed from wilderness designations.

More importantly, he warned of a public backlash against industries like livestock unless they change their tone on wilderness.

"The general public will lose a certain amount of respect for the industries using these lands and for the agencies administering them," he predicted, claiming that has already happened with timber interests in some areas of the West.

"State's like Idaho need to begin thinking about protecting the goose that is laying the golden eggs," Robinson said.

But Davis contended that wilderness supporters have failed to credit ranchers with many improvements they have made to public lands at their own expense — improvements he said have enhanced range for hunters, anglers, hikers and others.

"It's setting up to us in the livestock industry a confrontational situation," Davis argued while Mrs. Simons contended that expansion of protected land is denying her state and others resources that will significantly boost their economic prospects.

Hearing will decide if suspect will face Idaho murder charges

GRANGEVILLE (AP) — An extradition hearing set for Monday at Great Falls, Mont., will decide whether Gerald R. Pizutto will be transported to Washington or Idaho to face murder charges.

And a preliminary hearing for William and Lane Odum, charged with first-degree murder in connection with the same case for which Pizutto is wanted in Idaho County, was to begin at 9 a.m. today in Magistrate Court here.

Idaho County Sheriff Randy D. Baldwin was called to testify at the Great Falls hearing.

Baldwin said Thursday that he had to confirm that the man being held in the Cascade County Jail is the person named on the Idaho warrant.

Pizutto, the Odoms and James Rice, all of Orland, Calif., have been charged with first-degree murder in connection with the July 18 slayings of Alberta L. and Delbert D. Haglund, both of the Boise Valley. The Haglunds' bodies were discovered at Ruby Meadows, about 26 miles north of McCall.

Pizutto also is wanted in connection with two murders in King County, Wash. Shortly after their arrest at Great Falls Aug. 9, Pizutto was extradited to Washington.

But King County prosecutors, while reserving the right to prosecute Pizutto later, deferred jurisdiction of him to Idaho because of the multiple defendants in the Idaho case.

Idaho Gov. John V. Evans wrote Montana Gov. Ted Schuyler asking that Pizutto be returned to Idaho.

But Pizutto is fighting extradition to Idaho, Idaho County Prosecutor Henry R. Boomer said the extradition hearing will decide to which state Pizutto will be taken. Boomer said extradition proceedings vary from state to state and he didn't know how long it would take for the decision to be made.

Two forest fires blackening 6,500 acres in Wyoming national forest

SUNDANCE, Wyo. (AP) — Winds reaching 30 mph fanned a 6,500-acre forest fire near the Black Hills National Forest in northeastern Wyoming on Friday, while a 1,035-acre blaze scorched the Bridger-Teton National Forest on the other side of the state.

Firefighters had established perimeter around each fire, with containment of the Black Hills fire near Sundance expected Saturday, and containment of the Bridger-Teton blaze expected late Friday, officials said.

Neither fire had caused any reported injuries.

The Black Hills fire started Wednesday and was burning primarily on private lands surrounding the national forest. The Bridger-Teton fire started after a lightning strike Monday, and was burning entirely within the forest.

Officials estimated the cost of fighting both fires at $500,000.

"The crews had a fire line around 95 percent of the fire this morning," said Black Hills National Forest spokeswoman Mary Sue Waxler.

"Now it is completed and they are just winding it up."

The fire was blamed for the deaths of several cows and destroyed a trailer home and several outbuildings on area ranches seven miles southeast of Sundance, said Waxler.

Winds fanning the Bridger-Teton fire dropped to about 10 mph, allowing firefighters to contain about 75 percent of the blaze by late Friday, said Bridger-Teton spokesman Fred Kingwill.

"We've had some real breaks from the weather," he said. "The winds have subsided tremendously. And that has encouraged the crews."

The fire had burned 800 acres by early Friday, and crews established an outside perimeter that encompassed 1,035 acres, Kingwill said.

Firefighters were starting backfires within that buffer zone with hopes of choking the main fire, he said.

Evidence presented in Kuna killing

BOISE (AP) — Presentation of evidence in the trial of a Kuna man accused of killing his neighbor is expected to continue well into next week.

On Thursday, jurors in the case of Robert Johns, 23, heard a tape-recorded interview of John, that police conducted last March 3, the day Donald Price was shot to death at Initial Point in southern Ada County.

Johns first expressed surprise at the death of his neighbor, asking, "Is he dead, man?" but ultimately told Ada County Sheriff's Detective Randy Buzzini, "He got out of the pickup to (urinate) and I pulled out a pistol and I shot him. I shot him twice in the head. He fell on the ground and I stabbed him."

Johns, also accused of robbing Price, 37, was pressed concerning whether he had been thinking about killing Price and said, "I had thought about it for four... years."

On the tape, Johns told Buzzini that Price had been bothering his girlfriend.

Buzzini said Johns was questioned at the Ada County Sheriff's Department after waiving his right to have an attorney present.

Johns faces a maximum penalty of death if convicted of murder.

Bloodmobile invites area donation

TWIN FALLS — The Red Cross Bloodmobile will be at the Presbyterian Church in Twin Falls Aug. 26 and 27. The hours will be from 10 a.m. Monday and 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. Tuesday. Anyone in good health, aged 17 to 66, may donate. All donors are urged to eat a good meal before donating.

Arlene Florence, blood services chairman for the Sawtooth Chapter

Man-caused blaze burn 1,600 acres

MURPHY (AP) — It took just five hours for a fire to blacken more than 1,600 acres of cheat grass and light sage southeast of Swan Falls Dam on Friday, a Bureau of Land Management official says.

With the bureau's dispatcher in the Boise BLM district, said the man-caused blaze was sparked in two locations early Friday afternoon. The two flames grew together quickly through the under-dry fuel on federal rangeland.

About 25 firefighters managed to bring the fire under control by about 6 p.m. with the help of a water-dropping helicopter and a nearby private landowner who supplied the use of his disc plow, Ms. Christensen said.

Researcher points to code of church

SALT LAKE CITY, (AP) — The Mormon Church should reconsider its use in teaching doctrine of books which contain stories of divinely ordered killings, a speaker told a symposium on the church Thursday.

Attorney and researcher, Mark S. Gustafson, also questioned whether the church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints' emphasis on unwavering obedience to its leaders eventually could result in holding on to 8 million members.

"Can the LDS Church rid itself of its authoritarian insistence on unquestioned obedience to whatever injunction is uttered through proper channels and still justify the actions of its leaders?" Gustafson said at the Sunstone Symposium.

The symposium, held at Westin Hotel Utah here, is one of a series of annual gatherings of Mormons and church members. Gustafson said more than 1,500 people attended.

Soviet newspaper blasts CIA

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet government newspaper Izvestia on Friday accused the CIA of fabricating charges that the KGB used a chemical tracking agent on American diplomats in Moscow. The paper vehemently denied the charges, which it said were designed to sour U.S.-Soviet relations. But a U.S. Embassy official who briefed reporters Friday insisted the chemical was used, apparently as far back as 1976. He said increased use this spring and summer prompted disclosure of the KGB practice in an effort to end it.

20 killed prior to cease-fire

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Rival militias killed 20 people and wounded 89 in a last frenzy of shelling, then silenced their guns in a Syrian-sponsored cease-fire. Residents of Beirut are wary, however, and few emerged from their bunkers Friday. The cease-fire ended 12 days of car bombings and indiscriminate artillery and rocket fire that claimed more than 320 victims, most of them civilians. At least 1,000 were wounded. The airport reopened. It had been hit by 130 shells and rockets since Sunday and closed on Wednesday. There was no immediate indication that Syria would deploy military observers to enforce the cease-fire. Rashid Karami, the Sunni Moslem prime minister, requested that on Wednesday.

Major earthquake hits USSR

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union reported a major earthquake along the border with China on Friday and said it was felt in several large cities in Soviet Central Asia. There was no immediate word on casualties or damage. The official Soviet news agency Tass said the earthquake's epicenter was in the Central Asian republic of Kirghizia along the border with China and that it measured 6 on the 12-point Mercalli scale. A 12 reading on the scale can cause "total damage." In Golden, Colo., Bruce Presgrave, a geophysicist at the U.S. National Earthquake Information Center said the quake took place at 6:42 a.m. MDT in western China, and that its epicenter was in the Tien Shan mountains.

South African police kill 6, arrest 900 children

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Police fired shotguns at black rioters in Cape province Friday, killing six and wounding 20, and arrested nearly 900 children for boycotting classes in Soweto. Some of the children were only 6 or 7 years old. Bishop Desmond Tutu negotiated for their freedom, then used a bullhorn to tell hundreds of worried parents outside a police station: "All those under 13 will be released immediately without being charged. Those over 13, the police are taking their particulars and they will be released to their parents." Police headquarters said Friday night that all but six of the 542 black children picked up Friday had been released and 339 detained on Thursday also were let go without charge. Headquarters said the people killed and wounded were in crowds of black who threw stones at riot of five leading opponents of apartheid in Allval North, a remote town of the Durban area, but did not confirm reports that seven others were picked up in Cape Town. Authorities confirmed the arrests.

Pilotless spy plane crashes

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — A pilotless American spy plane crashed in northeast El Salvador while gathering information Friday for the Salvadoran military in its war with leftist guerrillas, the U.S. Embassy reported. Embassy spokesman Donald R. Hamilton said the cause of the crash had not been determined. He read a prepared list of questions and answers about the crash, but gave few other details. Military sources in San Francisco Gotera, which is near the crash site, said the aircraft was about 20 feet long and had no room for a pilot. Maj. Fred Lash, a Pentagon spokesman in Washington, said the plane was an R4E-40 Skyeeye surveillance drone made by Lear Siegler Inc. of Santa Monica, Calif. Lash would not explain how the Skyeeye was being used at the time of the crash, but added: "There was no indication of any hostile action."

BOISE (AP) — Optimism was the key word here Friday at a meeting between legislators and Indian leaders on water rights.

Spokesmen for Idaho's five Indian tribes say they're willing to negotiate, not battle in court, over their water rights.

"That could cut some of the cost, estimated by an Indian leader at $60 million to $70 million, of the state's massive effort to sort out southern Idaho water rights on the Snake River and its tributaries."

A delegation of Indians met with the Idaho Legislature's Interim committee on Indian affairs Friday.

"We have a good basis to begin looking for a negotiated settlement," said Shoshone-Bannock attorney Howard Finkler.

Rep. Ray Infanger, R-Salmon, co-chairman, said settling Snake River water rights could take many years, perhaps a century.

He said court efforts to settle water rights on the Lemhi River in his area started in 1967, and aren't finished 18 years later.

"And that's a little itty-bitty stream, with just a few miles of farms along it," Infanger said, "and we don't have it straightened out in 18 years."

The Snake provides irrigation for millions of acres in the southern part of the state. As part of a long-running dispute over water rights, the state is embarking on an effort to sort out all those rights in the next few years.

A key question will be Indian water rights. Federal laws give states sovereign authority over water, but Indian tribes are considered separate nations, and all have negotiated their own agreements with the federal government.

Finkler said in exchange for giving up most of the 40 million acres once roamed by the Shoshone-Bannocks, the tribes received certain rights in exchange.

Included is the 1.8 million acre Fort Hall Indian Reservation, he said. Since the land is almost worthless for farming without water, it's implied in the treaties that water rights went along with the land.

Infanger and Sen. Walter Varbrugh, R-Grand View, both said the meeting with Indian leaders left everyone optimistic that negotiating is the answer, not court battles.

"Every farmer along the Snake could battle any agreement we reach," said Infanger. "We haven't resolved anything by litigation and that's true for them, too."

Reagan administration. Because the fees are now so low, he claimed they amounted to a tax subsidy for ranchers, and in return he said ranchers should be willing to give something back to the taxpayers in terms of improved wildlife habitat.

"We vehemently deny that there is any subsidy," county council member J. William Swan of Rogerson, Idaho.

The council has already sided with the livestock industry on the grazing fee formula for 1986 and beyond.

"We think the formula's working," emphasized Jim Little, president-elect of the Idaho Cattle Association. "We think it reflects the good and bad parts of the industry. We hope it gets better, but we don't know when that will be. If it doesn't, it may not make any difference."

BLM manages land for livestock over wildlife, conservationist says

BOISE (AP) — A conservationist is accusing the Bureau of Land Management and the National Public Lands Advisory Council of bias toward the cattle industry in managing federal range throughout the West.

"The land is really being managed for livestock and the wildlife gets what's left," former state Sen. Ken Robison of Boise told the council Friday. "We really don't have multiple use."

Arguing with others that a significant share of revenues from federal grazing fees should be used specifically for improving wildlife habitat on federal range, Robison claimed that recent draft management plans for several BLM areas in southern Idaho allocate 90 percent of the available range for livestock.

"There is no evidence at all, in fact, that streams, fisheries and wildlife receive any consideration in BLM's management of this country," he charged in an additional written statement.

When he lashed out at the 21-member council itself, contending that livestock interests make up 86 percent of the panel and only one member truly represents wildlife interests.

"I feel the stacked-deck makeup of this council is an accurate reflection of the kind of management we are getting on BLM land in Idaho," Robison charged. "If wildlife is not ignored, it's neglected. I am somewhat skeptical whether what I say or other witnesses might say will change any position of this council."

But Dave Tidwell, an Owyhee County rancher who now serves as a special assistant to BLM Director Bob Burford, shot back at Robison. "If you devoted as much energy toward cooperation, your energies would be much better spent."

Robison, however, said he agrees with the council in opposing any fee increase in federal grazing fees as is now under review by the State Treasurer Marjorie Ruth Moon said Friday the state will issue $10 million in tax anticipation notes Oct. 2. It's a way of getting extra operating cash at a time when state tax revenue is low.

By issuing tax-exempt notes and borrowing at a low rate, the state can show a profit by investing some of the borrowed money at a higher rate. The last time Idaho went that way it gained about $4½ million in extra interest.

Miss Moon said she anticipates the state will make between $2 million and $3 million this time.

Miss Moon said the decision to issue tax anticipation notes was based on the conclusion "that the state's cash flow and revenues are likely to get worse rather than better in the months ahead."

Leader warns of war on tax

MCCALL (AP) — Failure to repeal Idaho's controversial ton-mile tax for trucks could trigger a major increase in financial penalties levied against Idaho truckers by other states, a trucking industry leader is warning.

"Eight states currently punish Idaho truck operators for the state's weight-distance tax, and you can bet other states are considering retaliation," Dale Craig, chairman of the board of the American Trucking Association, told delegates to the Idaho Motor Transport Association's annual convention Friday.

Craig, president of Craig Transportation Co. in Perrysburg, Ohio, did not identify the eight states already imposing retaliatory taxes against Idaho truckers or the kind of taxes involved, but he said there are presently 23 states with legislation on their books that would enable them to retaliate against Idaho carriers if they want to.

Idaho's long-standing tax — a user charge based on mileage driven and the weight of the freight hauler — has been the target of legislative debate for the past four years as state trucking interests have lobbied to replace it with a flat fee now used in 39 other states.

State plans to issue notes

BOISE (AP) — For only the third time in history, the state of Idaho will go on the national money markets in October to borrow cash for operating expenses.

State Treasurer Marjorie Ruth Moon said Friday the state will issue $10 million in tax anticipation notes Oct. 2. It's a way of getting extra operating cash at a time when state tax revenue is low.

Drunk-driving petitions OK'd; campaign begins

BOISE (AP) — Petitions for an initiative drive calling for tougher drunken driving laws received official approval Friday afternoon and supporters say they will start circulating them immediately.

One of the first targets could be the Western Idaho Fair at Boise, where officials are predicting attendance of 250,000 people in a week-long run.

Rep. Lyman Gene Winchester, R-Kuna, and others are calling for tougher penalties for drunken drivers, including mandatory two-day jail terms, even for first-time offenders, or a community service assignment.

Winchester presented the petition to the secretary of state's office Monday. It was sent to the attorney general's office for legal clearance later in the week.

Moroccan overcomes pain, sets 1,500 mark

By NESHA STAREVIC
The Associated Press

BERLIN — Said Aouita of Morocco, fighting "great pain" from an injury, added the 1,500-meter world record to his 5,000-meter mark here Friday and then announced he would attempt to set three more world records before the end of the season.

"I want to hold five world records," Aouita said after clocking 3:29.45 to beat Steve Cram's five-week-old mark of 3:29.67.

Meanwhile, American Carl Lewis, winner of four gold medals at the 1984 Olympic Games, finished fourth in the 200 meters, his second race after a two-month layoff with a hamstring injury.

Aouita also has hamstring problems, but they didn't slow him Friday.

With two runners setting a quick pace until the last lap, Aouita shattered the mark the Briton set July 16 in Nice, France, by 22-hundredths of a second.

Aouita, the Olympic champion at 5,000 meters, set the 5,000-meter world record July 27 with a time of 13:00.40 at Oslo, Norway.

Prior to Friday's meet, the 13th stop on the International Amateur Athletic Federation World Grand Prix tour, Aouita had announced his intention to go after the 1,500-meter record.

West Germany's Volker Blumenthal was the pacesetter for the first two laps, clocking 56.80 at the 400-meter mark and a fast 1:53.50 after 800 meters.

Blumenthal then pulled off the track, and Frank O'Mara of Ireland became the new pacesetter.

O'Mara also did his job well. He led the field past the 1,200-meter mark in 2:48.50, before dropping out.

Aouita then took over and launched into a furious pace. With the crowd and other athletes cheering him on, Aouita eventually crossed the finish line in record time and began celebrating jubilantly.

Cram, who did not complete Friday, lost the first of the three world records he set during a 20-day span in July and August. After breaking the 1,500-meter mark, Cram set records in the mile and 2,000 meters.

Aouita nearly broke the mile record Wednesday night at Zurich, Switzerland. He won in 3:46.92, the second-fastest mile time ever and just outside Cram's record of 3:46.31.

"I ran the last 500 meters in great pain. I suffered a hamstring injury six days ago and that injury prevented me from breaking the mile record in Zurich," Aouita said.

"If my injury improves, I plan to attack the mile record again next Wednesday in Koblenz," he said. "If everything is OK, I then plan to take a crack at the 2,000- and 3,000-meter records."

Sydney Marce of the United States finished second behind Aouita in 3:32.90.

Pierre Deleze of Switzerland was third in 3:33.04, followed by Mike Hilliard of Australia in 3:33.39, a national record.

Veteran Mike Bolt of Kenya placed fifth and 1976 Olympic champion John Walker of New Zealand was sixth.

In the 200, Lewis got out of the starting blocks at full speed, accelerated well and looked in a position to win down the stretch. But with about 50 meters left, he slowed down and finished fourth.

Kirk Baptiste and world champion Calvin Smith tied for first in 20.5 seconds, while the fourth American in the race, James Butler, clocked 20.63 for third. Lewis came in at 20.69.

"I ran a very good first 100 meters, but I felt very tired at the end," he said. "But I felt much better tonight than I did in Zurich. I'm pleased that I am coming around."

Lewis said he plans to run the 100 meters Sunday in Cologne, West Germany.

Meanwhile, Petra Felke of East Germany, world record holder in the women's javelin, won with a heave of 24 feet, 7 inches, more than 2 feet short of her mark of 247-4.

Wille Banks of the United States, world record holder in the men's triple jump, also won — and also fell short of his all-time best. Banks' winning jump was 55-6 1/2, compared with his record of 58-1 1/2.

Salt Lake pro nabs Cactus Pete's title, but ace takes ear

By LARRY HOVEY
Times-News writer

JACKPOT — Making the critical putts and keeping the ball in play, Lynn Landgren of Salt Lake City came from behind to claim the championship of the $30,000 Cactus Pete's Open Friday.

Thompson, an assistant to Joey Bonsgrove at Alpine Golf Course near American Fork, Utah, said, "It isn't the biggest payday I've had but it's one of them. Nothing feels as good as winning, regardless of the amount of money. And $3,000 (first prize) makes it a really good feeling."

Thompson led it on the 16th hole when he put in Lauren, Utah, and Burley assistant Tracy Frank behind him for good. He wound up with a five-under 139 total, with Landgren just one stroke behind.

Frank, the first-day leader, ran into putting troubles and slipped to third place while host professional Billy Downs and Twin Falls assistant Mike Hamblin tied for third at three-under 141. Joe Malay, Weiser, Idaho's perennial amateur contender, claimed the amateur prize with a three-under 141.

But so much for golf chit-chat. The big news — and the big winner — was Jim Russell, a Twin Falls resident who has been playing golf coach, golf pro and course owner-manager for the past many years in the warmer climes of Southwestern America.

Russell claimed the $11,800 Ford Thunderbird with a hole-in-one on the par-three, 175-yard fourth hole. He used a two-iron to accomplish the trick.

There was some congestion on the No. 4 tee with three foursomes waiting their turn to tee off. Russell didn't see the ball go in the hole but was immediately assured of the fact by a combined 12-man roar that could be heard throughout the course.

"I saw it hit the green and I thought it would be close," Russell said. "But I still don't believe there are people with eyes good enough to see the ball go in the hole."

Malay, playing with Russell, said "We all started to cheer and he turned to us and said, 'Come on, guys, don't put me on like that.' We told him it went in the cup, but he still didn't believe us. Finally we convinced him and the next thing he said was 'that's nice, because I just won a Cadillac last September.' Two new cars in eight months," Malay said, shaking his head.

"I won the other car in a raffle drawing with the Rotary Club," said Russell, a golf senior who didn't want to appear too lucky. "That one cost me $55,000."

How's that?

"We had to buy a nicer house to park it in front of," he answered with a laugh.

Meanwhile, back at the competition, things started going badly for the leaders from the outset.

"I missed an 18-inch putt for birdie on the first hole and it was downhill from there," said Frank, who had carded a 68 Thursday. "I wound up three-putting six greens and it was the putting that carried me yesterday."

Still, Thompson wasn't making a big splash on the front nine and was three-down coming into No. 3.

"I felt the birdie on No. 9 was pivotal," he said. "I'd been three or four down through the front nine and I felt it would be nice to be back within two at the turn and see what would happen."

"I made all the critical putts," he said of the back nine. "The pin placements were very severe, on sidehills and on tops of mounds. I had three sidehill putts that I managed to get down and I made all my second putts, even when I missed the first one badly."

"He didn't have a three-putt. He played very consistently and very smoothly," said Frank of Thompson's round. "Lynn and I weren't as consistent as him."

Thompson led it by knocking in a putt on the 16th that gave him a two-stroke lead.

In the amateur chase, Malay was as steady as Thompson and never left himself open to a charge. His closest competitor was Steve Meyerhoeffer, Twin Falls, who turned the front side in two under despite missing two short putts. He wound up with a 146, two strokes ahead of Jim Packard, Twin Falls. Two veterans, Jack Ridd of Magna, Utah, and Kevin Packard, Twin Falls, shared net at 139.

Twin Falls serves up closed tourney today

TWIN FALLS — Today's and Sunday's Amalgamated Sugar-Ropers Twin Falls Closed-Tennis Tournament will feature three players who fell one match short of walking off with a championship trophy last year.

On the other hand, two players who teamed up with others to win the title in the doubles competition are back to defend their half of the crown.

The tournament is open to members of the Twin Falls Tennis Association, which includes tennis players from all over the Magic Valley, and will start at 9 a.m. both days at Frontier Field. The finals will be held on Sunday afternoon.

Jess Olavarrin of Twin Falls, who lost to Andy Crane of Twin Falls in the championship of the men's A division last season, is the top seed in the men's "A" division, followed by Terry Newlan of Twin Falls.

The two players will team up next week to defend the top seeds in the men's A doubles competition. Olavarrin won the doubles title last year with Ron Renwick of Jerome.

The women's doubles have an even more heated pair of top seeds in the A singles.

Carolyn Matsuko and Mary Ann Robbins, both of Twin Falls, would normally be the top two seeds, but the two women are competing for a place on the Volvo tennis team in Colorado Springs, Colo., this weekend.

The ultimate 'old pro'

Hall of fame
Blanda still has

By Bob Berman

George Blanda, 47, is the oldest player in the NFL. He has played in 16 seasons and has been in the league since 1959. He is a two-time All-Pro and a member of the Pro Football Hall of Fame. Blanda is still playing for the Oakland Raiders.

Blanda is a quarterback and has led the Raiders to the AFC Championship game twice. He has also been named the NFL MVP twice.

Blanda's career has been filled with many highlights. He has won the Vince Lombardi Award twice and has been named the AFC MVP twice.

which brought in around $2,000 an hour. He had chosen coaching. Blanda certainly would have had a good chance at Kentucky," he played for four years at Kentucky, then moved to the University of Tennessee, where he was a star quarterback. He was drafted by the Chicago Bears in the first round of the 1959 draft.

He spent his first two years in the pros, then moved to the Oakland Raiders in 1967 and led the team to the AFC Championship game in 1976 and 1977.

each squad has decreased. Strong-limbed veteran says, "I don't think NFL clubs should have their yards down further. They cut back from 49 to 45 earlier this year — for the same reason he loves the USFL. Because it gives that many more players a chance to play and that many more coaches a chance to coach." Even though Blanda started his professional career, the skill was anything but dulled. He says the 12 teams in existence at that time "were stacked with talent" and points out that his own squad had two... Hall of Famers... and one Helmsman Trophy winner... all at quarterback.

Tracking Blanda's 26-year history in pro ball amounts to a veritable odyssey. After starting with the Bears his first season, he was traded with three teammates to the Colts; that wasn't where he wanted to play.

Blanda actually wanted to suit up with the Packers — where his old passing coach from Chicago had gone. "To insure a short stay in Baltimore," he says with a wry smile, "I didn't impress them."

The pretext was to not "avenge" however, as Chicago's Halas had arranged a contract clause that sent Blanda back to the Bears. So after one game with Baltimore, he was back to square one, where he stayed through the 1958 season.

— That point, Blanda was sure he was out of the business for good. But the opportunity arose, as he puts it, and the then-veteran star was back in training camp after a one-year layoff — this time with the Houston Oilers of the fledgling AFL as a free agent.

— Houston traded him after six seasons to his final home in "pro football," the Oakland Raiders. Blanda played his only Super Bowl there, in Oakland's 33-14 loss to the Packers, in 1968.

That defeat, however, isn't what sticks out in the minds of Blanda fans. Perhaps the greatest performances of his protracted career came in the span of five straight Sundays with the Raiders.

During that period, beginning Oct. 25, 1970, Blanda completed five touchdown passes and kicked four field goals in the closing seconds to hand Oakland five consecutive victories.

All this, at age 43. Those efforts insured Blanda not only a place in the NFL Hall of Fame, but a spot in the hearts of all football fans over 40.

Overtime birdie carries Darrington to victory

TWIN FALLS — A birdie putt from off the fringe on the first overtime hole carried Karen Darrington, Boise, to the championship of the Twin Falls Women's Amateur Golf Tournament Friday.

Darrington's putt, coming just after missing a possible clincher on the 18th, allowed her to withstand a determined comeback by Twin Falls' Virginia Underem.

Underem carded a two-under par 70 against Darrington's closing 76 to eat up a four-stroke lead Darrington had fashioned on Thursday. On the first extra hole, Darrington escaped bunker trouble when her shot landed just beyond the sand but stayed in the fringe, short of the green.

Her next shot cemented the victorious birdie.

Both ended the two-day event with 146. Shaun Robinson, who added a 78 Friday, ended up in third place gross at 155.

In the net division, Chris Sterling won with a 130, followed by Mildred Lynch, Burley, 132, and Jackie Gasser, Twin Falls, and Stella Wilson, Buhl, both 134.

In the first flight, Joan Miller clung to her first-day lead, winning gross at 175 and a one-stroke lead over Justin Messersmith, Jerome, and Gloria Lee, Twin Falls. Cy Davis was the net champion at 131 with Maria Duncan and Ann Cover at 132 and Pat Williams at 134. Vira Amende, Twin Falls, had 135.

Celtics cards 84 at Thompson

SUN VALLEY, AP) — Boston Celtics forward Kevin McHale will soon be preparing for another season of under-the-basket-battling against the other big men of the National Basketball Association.

But he spent Friday taking it easy at the Ninth Annual Danny Thompson Memorial Golf Tournament in Sun Valley, Texas, in honor of the former Minnesota Twins shortstop who died of leukemia while still playing baseball.

McHale, who was one of Boston's bright spots in the Celtics' loss to Los Angeles during the NBA championship series, toured Sun Valley's course in 84.

Bobby Malone of Fort Worth, Texas, led the tournament with a first-round 71, while John Lake of Palm Springs, Calif., and Roger Williams of Fort Worth were tied for second at 73.

The low score turned in by the sports celebrities was a 75-by-Idaho-native and former major league pitcher Larry Jackson. He went three over par at Sun Valley, where the greens were both tricky and quick on Friday.

Carter officially exits USFL

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Anthony Carter has gained his release from the United States Football League and is ready to join the Minnesota Vikings of the National Football League, his agent said Friday.

Last weekend, Woolf said, Carter and the Vikings agreed on a contract worth a little more than $2 million for the next five years.

Brit ties Maltbie at golf Series

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Britain's Gordon Brand Jr. scrambled to a 67 and tied Roger Maltbie for the second-round lead Friday of the $700,000, NEC World Series of Golf.

Women win challenge in rout

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — Martina Navratilova and Pam Shriver walked out onto the court advertising that they would defeat Bobby Riggs and Vitas Gerulaitis as easy as 1-2-3-4, and they did.

The world's No. 1 women's doubles team routed Riggs and Gerulaitis 6-2, 6-3, 7-5 in the highly publicized $500,000 exhibition match that wasn't even interesting.

Riggs had no roses for Navratilova and Shriver like he had for Margaret Court. In 1973 and they had no giant Sugar Daddy like the one Billie Jean King handed him before their battle of the sexes later in 1973.

Andujar leads Cards to become '85's first 20-game winner

ATLANTA (AP) — Joaquin Andujar became a 20-game winner for the St. Louis Cardinals last Friday night, becoming the first in the major leagues to reach the mark in 1985 as the St. Louis Cardinals downed the Atlanta Braves 6-2.

"Last year I took me to the last game to win 20," Andujar said, "it took me five times to win No. 20 last year. This year we still have 40 or 41 games to go and I got 20, thanks to God."

The 32-year-old St. Louis right-hander said he didn't have a victory goal for the remainder of the season. "I don't have any numbers," he said. "I just want to go to the World Series. That's my goal."

Andujar, 20-7, gave up 10 hits, walked four and fanned three in 7 1/3 innings, before Jeff Lahti finished the game for his 15th save.

Andujar became the first NL pitcher to record consecutive 20-victory seasons since Houston's Joe Niekro in 1979 and 1980. Andujar is the first St. Louis pitcher to win 20 games in two straight seasons since Bob Gibson did it in 1969 and 1970.

San Diego 6-3, New York 1-0

NEW YORK (AP) — Steve Garvey hit a two-run home run, his second of the night, to give the San Diego Padres a 3-0 victory over the New York Mets and a sweep of their doubleheader Friday night.

The two losses, coupled with St. Louis' 6-2 victory over Atlanta, the Expos and a sweep of their doubleheader Friday night, dropped the Mets into second place in the National League East, a game behind the Cardinals.

NEW YORK (AP)—Stocks closed mixed in lackluster trading Friday although the Dow Jones Industrial average emerged with its first weekly gain since mid-July.

Steel, telephone and drug issues were numerous among the losers, while chemical and oil stocks moved ahead.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials inched up 0.22 to 1,518.32, giving it a gain for the week of 5.50 points—its first weekly advance since climbing nearly 21 points the week ended July 19.

Deasy named M-K president

BOISE (AP)—W. J. Deasy has been named president and chief executive officer of the Morrison Knudsen Corp., the international shipbuilding, engineering and construction company.

Deasy, who has been the Boise-based company's president and chief operating officer for the past 14 months, succeeds W. H. McMurren as its top executive.

McMurren, who had been chairman and chief executive officer, died earlier this month after a long illness. The position of chairman has not been filled.

"The programs for development and growth of the corporation begun under Mr. McMurren's leadership will continue and will be amplified," Deasy said in a statement issued Friday.

Deasy, 48, began his career with Morrison-Knudsen in 1964 as a contract administrator and project engineer. He became a vice president in charge of company's then Northwest Region in 1971 and then was elected vice president of the Mining Group in 1978.

In mid-1983, Deasy was elevated to executive vice president for shipbuilding, mining and manufacturing operations, a job he held until becoming president and chief operating officer 11 months later.

Lumber production declines

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP)—Lumber production, orders and shipments decreased in 12 Western states in the week ending Aug. 17, a trade association reported.

Lumber production during the week was reported at 325 million board feet, 19 million feet less than the previous week, the Western Wood Products Association reported.

Orders were 294 million board feet, 15 million feet under the previous week's level. Shipments were reported at 330 million feet, a decrease of 4 million feet.

Figures for the same week a year ago show production at 321 million board feet, orders 275 million feet and shipments 328 million feet.

Inventories in the region are 2.261 billion board feet, 4 million feet less than the previous week. Figures for the same week a year ago show inventories were 2.465 billion board feet.

Mountain State sets dividend

KETCHUM—Mountain State Savings Bank of Ketchum has announced a 5 percent stock dividend for shareholders of record Sept. 1. The dividend is payable on Oct. 1, said President Ron Slocum.

The year-end dividend is the third consecutive one issued by the federally chartered savings bank. Shares are traded through the bank itself. Mountain State Savings currently has 330 stockholders, Slocum said.

The bank is headquartered in Ketchum, with branches in Halley, Salmon and Gooding.

Complex facing foreclosure

SALT LAKE CITY (AP)—Owners of the Trolley Square shopping complex said Thursday they face foreclosure on a $16.5 million note.

But Trolley Square Developers said business would continue as normal and that a buyer for the site was being sought.

Sales at the picturesque mall, housed in a group of former trolley car barns, increased by 12 percent for a first-half record, the owners said.

They also told tenants at a meeting that they intended to continue with improvements to make way for 25 new shops and eateries.

The square currently has about 100 tenants, ranging from one-employee stores to large restaurants and theaters.

Nordell Weeks, attorney for the owners, said BH Mortgage Corp. of Beverly Hills, Calif., informed him the foreclosure apparently was triggered by the Federal Home Loan Bank Board's takeover of the mortgage company, which holds the note.

Half-owner Wallace A. Wright Jr., a Salt Lake developer, said the asking price for the entire mall was $25 million.

THE ACES® BOBBY WOLFF

"Nothing is good or bad but by comparison."
— Thomas Fuller.

"They made a grand slam doubled against us because of the wrong lead," exclaimed one unhappy player in a recent contest. "We have lost the match unless you made the doubled grand slam as well."

At the first table, East doubled seven spades to alert his partner about the opening lead (Lightner slam double). East's double barred a heart or a trump lead, so West had to choose a minor.

Unluckily for East, West chose a club lead (dummy's first bid suit) and South had no problems. He dealt a rumpy pack, and claimed 13 tricks. Obviously a diamond lead would have been the winner, but how was West to know?

At the other table, the bidding went the same up to North's bid of six spades. However, this East bid seven diamonds instead of seven hearts. This was doubled, as well as the runout to seven hearts, but North-South collected only three penalty tricks for a score of 500.

Before the comparison of results, it was West who was feeling guilty for an unlucky guess. After the comparison, it was easy to see that East had missed his opportunity to guarantee that his partner got off to the killing diamond lead against a possible grand slam venture.

ANSWER: Three spades. The three aces, the singleton heart and the excellent trumps make this hand worth a jump raise (16-18 support points).
