Gem court upholds local option tax

By DAVE LEWIS Times-News correspondent

BOISE — In a 3-2 decision Friday, the Idaho Supreme Court ruled the city of Sun Valley's local option tax is constitutional. The action reverses an earlier decision by a Fifth District Court Judge who ruled the law is invalid because it lacks sufficient safeguards to protect taxpayers from abuse. The Supreme Court also ruled the law creating the tax is a legitimate "implementation" of the Legislature's taxing authority and not an improper "delegation" of that authority, an important victory for proponents of local taxation.

"It sounds like we won on all points," said Jerry Seiffert, mayor of Ketchum, which also has a local option tax and joined the city of Sun Valley in its appeal to the high court of the decision from a lawsuit brought by the Sun Valley Co.

"That was close, but it wins," he said about the narrow split among the five justices.

Both Ketchum and Sun Valley stood to lose sizeable amounts of their annual operating budgets if the court had upheld the decision of Judge George Granata Jr. of Burley.

Ketchum has used the tax for more than 20 percent of its operations and Sun Valley more than 40 percent since the tax was created in 1978.

Because the money raised with the tax is targeted for services benefiting tourists, Seiffert said the decision will help keep Sun Valley one of the world's top resorts.

"In the coming months, we do not have to dismantle the city. We will have the resources to make Ketchum and Sun Valley, together, one of the best ski resorts in the world — not necessarily the biggest, but the best," he said.

"Without the Supreme Court decision, it would have been a dismal year. We now have the money for marketing and community improvements," Seiffert added.

Sun Valley officials had a similar reaction. "I think it's going to help our financial situation immeasurably and also help our planning immeasurably for city services that need to be provided," says Councilman Tom Praggas.

Sun Valley Co. officials were not available for comment on the decision that came nearly two years after the lawsuit was filed.

Suits were filed in 1983 against the city of Sun Valley by the company and the proprietors after they became disgruntled with the two cities' 5 percent tax on rented rooms and mixed drinks.

At the time, the taxes in both cities were

S. Africa riots claim 16 lives

By MAUREEN JOHNSON The Associated Press

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa — Rioting swept through Cape Town's black and mixed-race townships Thursday and police in armored cars battled mobs and stormed a school.

At least 16 people were reported killed throughout South Africa since Wednesday, when riot police charged with whips, clubs and tear gas into an interracial crowd of protesters trying to march to the prison where black leader Nelson Mandela is serving a life term.

Most of the killing, occurring around Cape Town where the march to Pollsmoor Prison was planned — Police sealed off the largest black township. Witnesses said others besieged at least three mixed-race schools and stormed a third, smashing windows as children ran shrieking from the building.

Riot squads in armored vehicles raced around Cape Town's sprawling "colored" — or mixed race — townships of Bellville South, Mitchells Plains and Mannenberg, throwing tear gas and firing rubber bullets. Gangs of youths responded with rocks, put up makeshift road blocks and burned tires in the streets.

About 100 students gathered at the overwhelmingly white University of Cape Town campus to protest the apartheid system that denies rights to the black majority. At nightfall, police hurled 15 tear gas canisters onto the campus and moved into the leafy grounds behind two armored-personnel carriers to disperse the demonstrators.

About 40 of the students were white. Moments earlier, Vice Chancellor Stuart Saunders warned them: "Please leave. The police say there are petrol bombs on the campus and they are prepared to use live ammunition."

No shots were fired and there was no evidence of gasoline bombs.

Guguletu, Cape Town's biggest black township, was sealed off for a second day. Police barred journalists from the area Thursday morning, after announcing that two more blacks had been shot dead there.

A 3-year-old boy burned to death when a gasoline bomb was heaved into his home, the South African Broadcasting Corp. reported.

That brought the number of victims in the Cape town area to at least 13 for the two days of riots, most of them killed by police. Nearly 650 people have been killed in a year of rage against white rule, nearly all of them black.

Sandy Stumpf, member of the Communications Workers of America, pickets outside Twin Falls' Mountain Bell building

Phone workers warn of layoff impact

By KENNETH A. BROWN Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Members of the Communications Workers of America set up a picket line Thursday morning in front of the Mountain Bell building and AT&T Phone Center to promote public awareness of rising telephone rates and the layoffs threatening many phone company employees.

"We're just out to tell the public we support them. We'd like to continue giving them good service, but that's getting impossible," said Sandy Stumpf, secretary-treasurer of the CWA's 106-member local in the Magic Valley.

The group's picket line in Twin Falls is part of nationwide demonstrations organized by the union as part of its "National Telephone Workers do Telephone Work Week," according to Stumpf.

"The CWA is affiliated with the AFL-CIO. According to the CWA, about 40,000 jobs have been lost in the Bell System and AT&T since the break-up of the phone company in 1984. The point that the union is trying to make with the public is that job cuts mean poorer service and that the cuts are coming in spite of increasing rates.

Last week, AT&T announced that they would be laying off an additional 24,000 employees.

In addition to possible job losses in the Magic Valley, Twin Falls may also lose its Phone Center store in December, according to Stumpf. No confirmation of this was available from AT&T.

The union also objects to AT&T's relocation of some manufacturing jobs in foreign countries, where wages are considerably lower, and to the contracting of some jobs to non-union workers.

According to the union, local telephone rates have increased an average of 18 percent nationwide since the breakup of AT&T.

Rate increases in Idaho, however, have only been about one-third of the national figure cited by CWA.

According to the Idaho Public Utilities Commission, Mountain Bell's rates have gone up by 6.34 percent. Another rate increase of 1 or 2 percent is pending for Mountain Bell, and AT&T will be filing for a rate increase of its own in the near future, said Eileen Bonner of the FUC.

The union is recommending that customers

Researchers report big step toward finding cause of MD

By MALCOLM RITTER The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Researchers reported Thursday that they have taken a major stride toward identifying the genetic defect that causes the most common form of muscular dystrophy, a deadly disease with no known cure.

The work by a team at Children's Hospital in Boston may help lead to development of a treatment for Duchenne muscular dystrophy, other experts said.

It will also provide a better test for finding carriers of the defect that causes Duchenne muscular dystrophy and for performing prenatal diagnosis, the experts said.

Some 50,000 to 100,000 boys and young men in the United States are afflicted with the disease, which causes progressive destruction of the skeletal muscles. It usually kills by the time the victim reaches his late 20s. The disease is caused by a defect on the X chromosome, which carries genes, the basic units of heredity, that give bodily cells their marching orders. The disease can arise if a key gene is defective or missing.

The new research, reported in the British journal Nature, greatly advances the search for the defective gene by narrowing the area on the X chromosome to look for it.

"That was a quantum leap to getting to the gene itself," said P. Michael Conneally, professor of medical genetics and neurology at Indiana University Medical Center. The gene may be found within a year, he said Thursday.

Once it is found, researchers can find what abnormal instruction it is issuing. In the form of a protein, that leads to the disease, he said. That knowledge will give leads on treatment, said Conneally, who wrote a commentary in Nature on the research.

More immediately, the work has produced a genetic probe that can be used to screen other people in a victim's family to reveal the defect with a high degree of accuracy, he said.

That's important because the Duchenne defect is carried by women who show no symptoms but who can pass the defect to their sons. Women are generally not affected because they have two X chromosomes, and a normal X chromosome can make up for the defect in the other. Men have only one X chromosome.

Women "really want to know whether they're carriers or not," Conneally said. In addition, the probe can be used for prenatal diagnosis of Duchenne, he said.

The test should provide more accuracy than a version reported earlier this year, being "essentially foolproof," he said. But he said a test for carriers can prevent only about 70 percent of Duchenne cases, because the other 30 percent arise from spontaneous mutations that are not inherited.

 write their concerns and tell them the breakup of the Bell System isn't working.
 The phone company is not entirely antagonistic to the workers' complaints.
 "Basically we're sympathetic to their concerns," said AT&T spokeswoman Diane Tipton in Denver.
 She also agreed with the union's contention that the breakup is forcing the company to cut jobs.
 "What we're seeing now is mainly due to the increase in competition," Tipton said. "You have to have a good profit margin to stay in the business."
 In 1984 AT&T had an operating loss for its telephone for the first time in its history, Tipton said. The company did, however, pay $1.20 per share in dividends to its shareholders on earnings of $1.25 per share of common equity.

 While union figures say 40,000 jobs have been lost in the Bell System and AT&T, Tipton said the lost positions at AT&T are lower. In 1984, Tipton said, there was a net loss of about 6,000 jobs.
 "A lot of our costs were due to duplication in staff," Tipton said. "The cuts are a process we've been going through for two years. Since the divestiture, we're a very different company."
 As for contracting, Tipton said, "We have a policy of not contracting work out if it leads to a layoff."
 The 24,000 positions AT&T is planning to eliminate may affect some employees in the Magic Valley.

Details on those cuts will be available in mid-September.
 While rate increases have been high for some local customers, Tipton said consumers should also remember that long distance rates have been cut by 11 percent since the breakup.
 A number of Idaho's small rural telephone companies have helped shield the state's consumers from the higher rates afflicting the rest of the country.
 In time, however, problems related to the breakup may also strike these companies as well.
 "There is a lot of pressure on the local companies," said Benner. "They're losing a lot of revenue as costs from long distance calling are being switched to the local exchanges."

 to expire after five years: Opponents said the tax was too high when coupled with state sales and tourist taxes, and their businesses were suffering.
 Rather than change the rate, however, voters in both cities renewed the 5 percent tax.
 To resolve the issue, Sun Valley and Ketchum officials successfully lobbied the Legislature in 1984 to amend the tax to allow the option of a broad-based sales tax.
 A year later, Ketchum changed its tax to 1 percent on general sales and 2 percent on beds and boats.
 The city of Sun Valley, however, did not change its tax, citing lack of cooperation by the Sun Valley Co. in its efforts to determine an appropriate sales tax rate.

in the form of a citizen vote to approve any tax under the law.
 Justices Stephen Blistine and Allan J. Shepard dissented from Donaldson's majority opinion.
 The 60 percent voter majority needed to pass the tax and the requirement to establish a specific amount and duration before the tax goes to the voters act as a cap, the court ruled.
 "The tax is reasonable," the court argued, because the voters are often subjected to the tax, and they will not impose an unreasonable tax on themselves.
 "There are sufficient safeguards in the act," Donaldson wrote in the decision.

when subjected to influence of tourists much larger than their own population.
 As long as all cities in similar situations are treated alike, the law is appropriate and not arbitrary, Donaldson wrote.
 "When we worked with (Rep.) Steve Antone to draft this legislation, we looked at some of those questions, and we thought they were constitutional," said Seiffert.
 "It's great to see the Supreme Court uphold those questions," he said.
 The decision, however, could have an impact far beyond the budgets of the six Idaho cities that qualify as resorts by extending into the heated local taxation issues.
 Jim Weatherly, executive director of the Association of Idaho Cities, said the decision removes one argument that of local option taxes being unconstitutional, used by opponents of local control.
 "I think it means one more positive step to granting local option authority to all cities of the state, and it is a step back for those who oppose local authority or control," Weatherly said.
 "I think it should clearly remove in anyone's mind the constitutional obstacles to local control," he said.
 It has been argued that Idaho gives the least local taxing authority of all 50 states.

Hurricane sweeping to coast
 PENSACOLA, Fla. (AP) — Hurricane Elena swept toward the Gulf Coast on Thursday as more than 125,000 people from Florida to Louisiana fled coastal homes and jammed highways in the face of the fast-growing storm's 85 mph winds and high tides.
 Forecasters warned that the 300-mile-wide hurricane, which was moving slowly toward the north-northwest and gaining strength, would strike land within that dangerous winds of up to 100 mph.

 SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Discovery's astronauts Thursday sent their commercial payloads to orbit and chased Syncom 3, hoping to catch the crippled communications satellite and salvage it during one of two weekend spacelocks.
 Mission commander Joe Engle and Dick Covey started a series of 12 rocket firings that will put Discovery on a catch-up orbit and bring the spacecraft to a rendezvous Saturday with the defunct Syncom 3 after a chase of more than a half-million miles through the heavens.
 Syncom 3 was 3,300 miles ahead of Discovery when the astronauts started the chase.

Separatists threaten to sue
 WASHINGTON (AP) — Proponents of strict church-state separation said Thursday they will sue the Reagan administration for allegedly trying to undermine a Supreme Court ruling barring public school teachers from conducting classes in religiously affiliated schools.
 Leaders of Americans United for Separation of Church and State also charged that Education Secretary William J. Bennett is trying to panic Congress into approving a voucher system to provide cash to parents of parochial schoolchildren.

AIDS victims can go to class
 ATLANTA (AP) — Most children with AIDS should be allowed in the classroom, and officials should do their best to protect the pupils' confidentiality, federal health authorities said Thursday amid mounting controversy over AIDS victims in public schools.
 "For most infected children, the benefits of an unrestricted setting would outweigh ... the apparent non-existent risk of transmission," the national Centers for Disease Control said.

The suit against Ketchum was dropped; the one against Sun Valley remained. The result was Granata's decision on Nov. 23, 1984.
 The long-awaited decision, written by Chief Justice Charles R. Donaldson, rejects Granata's main argument for ruling the tax law unconstitutional: it provides insufficient safeguards, primarily in the form of a rate cap, to protect against abuse.
 Donaldson, joined by Justices Robert Huntley and Robert Bakes, disagreed, saying the safeguards

The court went further, however, and ruled against two Sun Valley Co. other arguments.
 First, it ruled the Legislature did not improperly "delegate" its taxing authority when it created the tax, as the company argued.
 Instead, the court ruled the law is an "implementation" of the Legislature's taxing authority and not "self-executing" on the part of the cities.
 Second, it ruled that applying the law to only resort cities with populations of 10,000 or less is appropriate.
 Resort cities, the court ruled, deserve special treatment because they experience substantial impacts

Drummond became ill in February with a virus "that went to his heart," said Ed Rose, manager of the Safeway store in Cottonwood where Drummond worked. Drummond moved to Phoenix in May to stay with his parents after the condition worsened, said Rose.
 He was transferred to the medical center on Monday from Valley View Community Hospital in Yonagawa, northwest of Phoenix. Valley View spokeswoman Carolyn Goodwin said he was admitted there on Friday.
 Copeland was assisted in the operation by Dr. Cecil Vaughn of St. Luke's Medical Center in Phoenix.

 Drummond's Jarvik-7 is not intended as a permanent replacement heart, said Dr. Jack Copeland, who led the University of Arizona team that performed the operation.
 Copeland said he expects Drummond to remain on the Jarvik-7 heart for one to two weeks until doctors can find a human donor heart.
 "Mr. Drummond is doing fine ... The operation went well," Copeland said. "Right now I feel very good about what's going on. I have a lot of tears about what's going to happen."
 Copeland said the patient's vital signs were good and that bleeding from the operation had stopped. Drummond still had some fluid in his lungs which had existed before the operation, the surgeon said, adding that reducing the fluid was the most immediate goal.
 Dr. Robert Jarvik, who invented the device and who arrived during the operation, said Drummond's chances were "a little bit better or perhaps a lot better" than previous artificial heart patients because the others generally had more damage to their other organs.
 Four previous implants were performed by surgeon William DeVries, first at the University of Utah medical center and then at Humana Hospital Audubon in Louisville, Ky. A Swedish man also received a Jarvik-7 at a Stockholm hospital. Two of the previous five recipients died.

 Drummond had a rapidly deteriorating heart, and was expected to live for only 12 to 24 hours with his own heart, Copeland said.
 "I feel Mr. Drummond was dying," he said. "We caught him in the process of dying and we were able to rescue him with the artificial heart."
 Surgery began at 8:12 a.m., and lasted until about 1:15 p.m., said hospital spokeswoman Nina Trasoff.

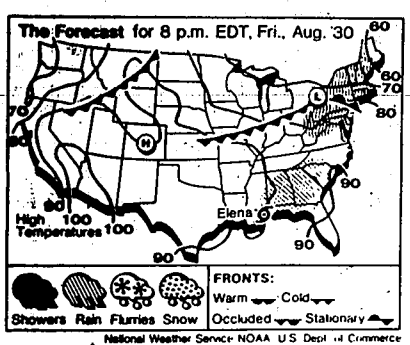

He was transferred to the medical center on Monday from Valley View Community Hospital in Yonagawa, northwest of Phoenix. Valley View spokeswoman Carolyn Goodwin said he was admitted there on Friday.
 Copeland was assisted in the operation by Dr. Cecil Vaughn of St. Luke's Medical Center in Phoenix.

 Today and Saturday, variable clouds with a slight chance of mainly afternoon and evening showers and thundershowers. Highs in the mid 80s. Lows tonight mid 50s. Labor Day weekend, mostly fair and mild with highs in the 80s. Lows in the upper 40s to mid 50s.
 Cassia, Pocatello, Halley, Lower Wood River Valley:
 Today and Saturday, variable clouds with a slight chance of mainly afternoon and evening showers and thundershowers. Highs in the upper 70s to low 80s. Lows mid to upper 40s. Labor Day weekend, slight chance of afternoon thundershowers, otherwise fair. Highs in the mid 80s. Lows in the 40s.
 Northern Idaho and Nevada:
 Utah: Partly cloudy Saturday through Sunday with widely scattered mainly afternoon and evening showers. Lows from the mid 50s to mid 60s. Highs in the 90s.
 Nevada: Variable high clouds today. A chance of showers today and Saturday. Highs at times. Highs in the mid 80s to low 90s. Lows in the mid and upper 40s.
 The National Weather Service says a trough of low pressure off the Pacific coast continues to deepen, forcing increasing clouds over the southern half of Idaho.
 Northern Idaho will be cloud free but that will change with the help of Tropical Storm Olaf forcing the cloud deck north. As circulation around Olaf shifted over the southwest, warm, dry air was funneling into the western low valleys. Humidities were extremely low with Boise having an afternoon temperature of 81 degrees and a humidity of 7 percent. Mountain Home was at 93 degrees with a humidity of 8 percent.
 Eastern Idaho, due to the greater amount of cloud cover, was somewhat cooler with highs in the upper 80s and humidities in the 20s. Northern Idaho, while under the influence of a maritime air mass, reported afternoon temperatures in the low 80s and humidities in the 30s.

 Due to these extremely low humidities, fire danger has increased to extreme conditions throughout the entire Idaho wilderness area. There were no showers, thundershowers or thundershowers reported anywhere in the state Thursday.
 The highest temperature in the state was 93 degrees at Boise, while the morning low of 52 degrees was registered at Stanley.
 The pollen count in Twin Falls was 148 particles per cubic meter of air.
 The agricultural outlook for today through Tuesday in Southern Idaho shows conditions for field work will be generally good, although scattered afternoon showers and thundershowers may hamper outside work in some areas today and Saturday. Good conditions will prevail Sunday through Tuesday. Precipitation totals will be mostly less than .25 inch. Irrigation demands will decrease today and Saturday due mainly to lower daytime temperatures. Demands will increase Sunday through Tuesday, but they won't reach this week's levels. Winds will be variable in direction mainly under 10 mph most of today, becoming west to northwest to 20 mph late today through Saturday.
 The extended forecast for Southern Idaho, Sunday through Tuesday, indicates isolated mountain showers each day. Otherwise dry. Highs in the low 50s. Lows in the upper 40s to mid-50s.
 Elsewhere in the nation Thursday, temperatures ranged from a high of 116 degrees in Lake Havasu City, Calif., to a low of 34 degrees in West Yellowstone, Mont.

Judge clears Sears in consumer action

AUGUSTA, Maine (AP) — A judge Thursday cleared Sears, Roebuck & Co. of most charges in a consumer-protection suit that accused the nation's largest retailer of "bait-and-switch" sales tactics and selling service contracts for repairs already covered under warranties.

Attorney General James E. Tierney called the ruling by Superior Court Justice Donald G. Alexander "a defeat for Maine consumers."

"I think we are reaching a point where we need increasing protection," he said, citing testimony from consumers who said they traveled long distances only to learn an advertised item was not available at Sears stores.

Tierney said he had not decided whether to appeal.

John J. O'Leary, the attorney representing Sears described the ruling as "a big victory" for the Chicago-based company and consumers. He said if the state won, Sears would have had to raise its prices.

Sears has eight stores in Maine and about 800 nationally.

The judge did conclude that Sears salesmen who sell service contracts by telephone may be illegally misleading consumers by advising them that major appliances and other big-ticket items are less reliable than they are.

But he stopped short of ordering an immediate halt in those solicitations, customarily made after a consumer has bought a product. He gave Sears 45 days to submit a plan for modifying sales manuals that suggest such tactics.

Alexander also drew a distinction between telephone solicitations made after the sale and attempts to sell the service contracts at the time the appliance is sold. Further, he chided the state for implying that Sears had a "sinister motive" in its admitted attempts to boost sales of the contracts.

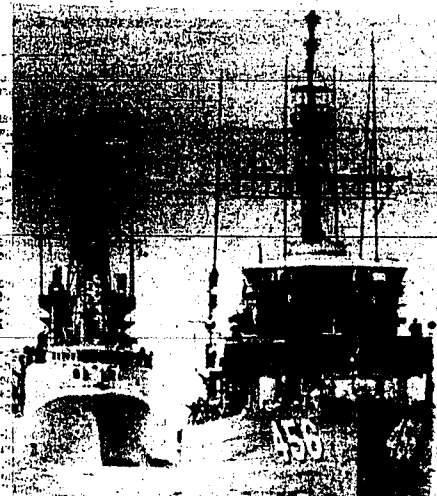

"Making a profit, even perhaps a significant one, is not yet an 'unfair trade practice,'" the judge said.

Alexander, who presided over the non-jury trial, based his ruling on thousands of pages of evidence, much of it confidential, and an array of exhibits that included refrigerators and other appliances wheeled into the courtroom.

He rejected claims that Sears systematically jures consumers by advertising bargains, then advises them that the advertised product is not immediately available and tries to substitute a more expensive alternative — the so-called bait and switch.

Alexander pointed to a 1977 Federal Trade Commission consent decree that requires Sears to include in its newspaper ads a statement that all advertised items are "readily available" for sale. The state maintained the items should be in stock. However, Alexander said the FTC "specifically approved" Sears' policy of storing major appliances at a central warehouse, not at individual stores.

U.S. minesweeper inflits leads NATO force out of Boston

Soviets keep eye on NATO exercise

BOSTON (AP) — Nearly 200 warships from 10 countries, including submarines, aircraft carriers and a battleship, joined forces Thursday off Boston Harbor, pretending the world was at the brink of war and rushing supplies to Allied forces across the Atlantic in NATO's largest-ever peacetime exercise.

As part of the exercise known as "Ocean Safari 85," the convoy will speed to Iceland and then Europe, harassed and "attacked" by 41 ships, submarines and aircraft along the way.

"This is the largest and most ambitious exercise we've done to date," said U.S. Coast Guard Lt. Russ Greer.

"The primary purpose is to supply Europe in the time of war," he said. "That is the mission. We have to know how to do that."

The ships, some carrying helicopters, steamed out of the harbor in single file. Some swiveling missile launchers, others flashing high intensity searchlights as hundreds of people on shore waved and honked car horns.

Although the four-week exercise is practice, the largest, one of the Soviet Union's balizes and most sophisticated spy ships, had been shadowing the group, officials said.

"We expect Soviet observation, as we would observe them," said U.S. Navy spokeswoman Margaret Ronzio.

The 300-man, 4,000-ton armed surveillance ship began trailing the first ships of the convoy as they left Norfolk, Va., earlier this week, and continued to follow them Thursday, said Navy Lt. Cmdr. C.R. Quigley, an Atlantic fleet spokesman.

Ships, planes and submarines from Belgium, Canada, Denmark, West Germany, the Netherlands, Norway, Portugal, Great Britain and the United States are taking part in the exercise. France, which does not belong to NATO, also will participate in a limited role, Greer said.

"Ocean Safari 85" began Thursday as five North Atlantic Treaty Organization warships — frigates of Britain, Canada, Holland, West Germany and the United States — raced from Boston Harbor to guide a small convoy of chartered cargo ships to the rendezvous 100 miles off-shore with the larger fleet.

The fleet meeting the convoy includes the aircraft carriers USS America, USS Saratoga, USS Eisenhower, HMS Illustrious and the battleship USS Iowa.

For a week, Navy and Coast Guard ships and units have been clearing the Boston shipping channel of "mines" and quickly lighting each other at night as "terrorists" try to infiltrate military installations around the harbor. Those exercises involved 1,000 people, 25 ships and five aircraft.

Seven dark-colored patrol boats maneuvered in the Atlantic off Gloucester, writing for night to attempt sorties into Boston Harbor and simulated attacks on defending forces and laying mines.

One hundred mock aggressors camped in tents for the week "because we want to provide a sense of realism for the participants," said Lt. Cmdr. Mark Newhart, the Navy's New England spokesman.

Once out to sea, targets will be set up and the vessels will fire "whatever it takes to destroy them," Greer said.

The war games end Sept. 20.

Order blocking TMI restart still in effect

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — Efforts to immediately reopen the Three Mile Island nuclear plant were thwarted Thursday when a federal court said its earlier order blocking restart is still in effect.

The continuation of the stay, signed by Judge Collins Seitz of the 3rd U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Philadelphia, came amid signs that Three Mile Island was getting ready to start up the Unit 1 reactor, which was undamaged in the March 1979 accident that crippled its sister reactor.

A three-judge panel from the circuit court had seemed to pave the way to reopening the plant when it allowed Tuesday a Nuclear Regulatory Commission order affirming restart.

But the state of Pennsylvania, which has fought the immediate restart of the plant, Thursday petitioned the appeals court to reaffirm its June 7 order temporarily halting TMI's reopening.

The state sought quick action on its request. According to court documents filed by the state, the NRC intended to issue a letter at 4 p.m. Thursday to authorize the plant to immediately restart its Unit 1 reactor.

'Spy dust' used in U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The State Department believes it is "highly probable" the chemical powder allegedly used by the Soviet Union to trace the movements of U.S. diplomats in Moscow may have been used at least once by Soviet agents in the United States, a congressman said Thursday.

"There are indications it has been used outside Moscow, in the United States," said Rep. Dan Mica, D-Fla., chairman of the House Foreign Affairs international operations subcommittee. "I have been told there with it. Asked whether other em- is 'one highly possible use' in the United States."

But Mica told a news conference that the State Department did not at this time.

The lawmaker said he also learned that the United States was produced outside Britain and West Germany States," said Rep. Dan Mica, D-Fla., with information on the chemical on the presumption that their diplomats also have been in contact committee. "I have been told there with it. Asked whether other em- is 'one highly possible use' in the United States."

California court upholds awards

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A state appeals court has upheld a $600,000 damage award to two men whose heads were forcibly shaved after they were detained by members of the former drug rehabilitation group Synanon.

In its decision Wednesday, a three-judge panel of the 1st District Court of Appeal rejected Synanon's argument that it was not legally responsible for the actions of its members in the 1970s incident.

In the opinion, Justice Mark Poche said the Synanon officials involved appeared to be acting in their line of duty.

Reagan freezes wages of white collar force

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) — President Reagan froze the salaries of approximately 2 million federal white-collar workers Thursday, rejecting an increase that the White House said would have added more than $20 billion to the budget deficit.

The president's decision is in line with the pay freeze adopted by Congress in work on budget provisions as a compromise between a 5 percent pay cut proposed by Reagan and a 19.15 percent increase suggested by his federal pay agent unit.

Reagan acted after reviewing the reports of the Advisory Committee on Federal Pay, which had recommended a 4.7 percent increase, and of his pay agent unit. The Office of Personnel Management said the pay agent unit is composed of the OPM director, the secretary of labor, and the director of the Office of Management and Budget.

White House spokesman Larry Speakes said it would have added $20.8 billion to the deficit for the fiscal year starting Oct. 1.

The president's decision affects most federal civilian white-collar employees. It does not apply to postal employees, who are under a separate pay system.

The president announced his decision in favor of a freeze in a message to Congress. Speakes said the president's determination could be changed only if it were overridden by both houses of Congress.

Administration and congressional officials had been talking since last year about the need to hold down federal pay to help cut the deficit, and the president's action freezing salaries had been expected.

The sergeant may be an embarrassed hero

Sgt. Alvin York was a Tennessee mountain man who became a World War I hero noted for his accurate shooting in combat in France.

Half a century or so later, the U.S. Army decided to recognize Sgt. York by applying his name to a new weapon — a mobile anti-aircraft gun mounted on a tank chassis, directed by radar and operated by computer. It was supposed to be super-accurate, fast-firing, and provide high-tech protection for columns of vehicles and troops.

The Army also cooked up one of its mysterious acronyms — DIVAD — for the gun, derived from its primary combat role of division air defense.

Watching the events of this week from wherever it is American heroes go, the late sergeant is probably chuckling — if he's not considerably embarrassed at having his name tagged on to a $1.8 billion flop.

Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger raised his stock considerably with economy-minded Congressmen and no doubt with some of his fellow citizens when he canceled the weapons system on Tuesday. Minus all of the explanatory verbal camouflage, the reason for dropping this particular weapon was that after extensive testing, development, and initial production, it didn't work.

The twin 40-millimeter guns jammed frequently and they lacked the range to deal with helicopters or low-flying planes standing off as much as four miles. The computer system didn't function well in cold climates. The radar was not reliable. Moreover, the modified tank chassis carrying the whole array was not able to travel over difficult terrain.

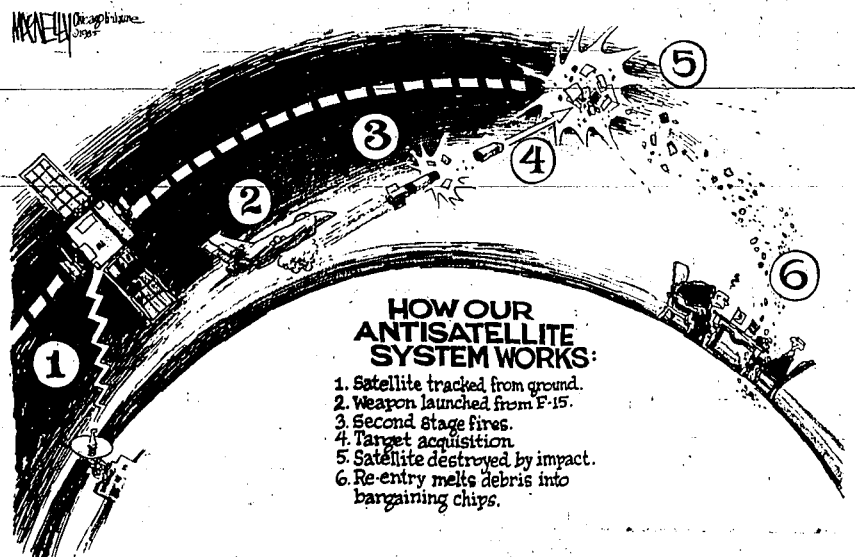

The Army and the contractor responsible for this bit of exotic, but ultimately useless, weaponry will probably squawk about the decision and may even succeed in obtaining a partial reversal, but perhaps some points have been made clear to the Pentagon and weapons developers.

One is that considering the cost of developing a weapons system today, even one which the secretary indicates is needed, another billion or so in defense funds has been wasted. For stopping this example of waste, Secretary Weinberger should be commended.

Another is that once again, a weapon of doubtful reliability has been turned out for American forces. This time, however, the cancellation avoided the painful and perhaps far more costly lesson of learning under combat conditions this one didn't do its job.

Now perhaps Secretary Weinberger will follow up by sending the troops back to the drawing boards to come up with a reliable inexpensive weapon that works — and lives up to the name given it.

And if it must have an acronym for a designation, maybe someone will settle on one that doesn't look like a typographical error and is easily pronounceable.

Questions about jump memorial

Approximately 11 years ago a certain man hit the front pages of the news media. He was supposed to attempt a motorcycle jump across the Snake River near Twin Falls.

News of this daring attempt was broadcast probably nationwide. Considerable excitement was created among those who read and heard of this widely-published act.

After the "stunt" was pulled off, the cry was "rip off." Thousands of people came and paid hard-earned cash to witness the great motorcycle jump. What a disappointment.

Before the jump was made, it was revealed that the jump was not to be on a motorcycle — but a special rocket "plane." That is when some people started to "smell a bad odor." Now some apparent publicity seeker wants a memorial placed beside the Perrine Memorial Bridge.

Don't you think the Perrine Memorial is more in line with American thinking? Did anyone measure to be sure the "jump" was to be one mile long?

So do not call Eileen Day, Sherman Day, Day's Monogram Shop or anyone else at this address for your promotional ticket sales. If you came to my shop, say a policeman in uniform or someone else legitimate, I might talk to you, there is a possibility I might buy your tickets. But you try hobbling to a phone with a cast on, or such as this — it's not much fun. Or you are expecting a very important call, so you make a dash to the phone — just another salesman... no thanks; I don't care if it's 5-carat diamonds you are selling at five for a dollar. I wouldn't buy them.

How do the Lafferty brothers fit into the picture? They once attended Freeman constitutional studies, and they have Mormon backgrounds. This exposure warped their minds and turned them into murderers. We are supposed to recognize that such association for us will also turn us into murderers, crackpots, and law violators.

Causa and the Unification Church are conservative. Causa has been established as a non-denominational organization, with its sole purpose to unite all churches everywhere to intercede for the advance of Communism throughout the world. Their approach is to rein-throne God as the ruler of the universe and to embrace his principles. I think that this is the true antidote to the godless problem. All Christians should find no fault with this. Likewise, can any clear-thinking person really find fault with converting thousands of misguided young people from a life of immorality and drugs into a life of purpose and meaning? The press would have you believe they have been hypnotized against their own wishes and are slaves in some way. I have met some of their converts and invite you to do likewise.

Pam Allen Fund a blessing

Thank you for publishing the recent article concerning the Pam Allen Children's Trust Fund. This fund has been a blessing to four families.

Two years ago when we were in the midst of fundraising, I felt privileged to witness the wave of love that the people of Magic Valley showed to one little girl. Many times, as I hung up the phone, I shed tears at the wonder of it all.

One major effort was omitted from the article, however, the work of Robert Glenn who wrote the Golden Rule store (presently Safeway) and his staff, whose 30-day promotion brought in not only one third of the monies in the trust fund, but also through him came the benefactor of the private jet we so desperately needed. These people did a terrific job for little Pam and should be applauded.

Once again the Trust Fund is starting a fundraiser. We need volunteers and donations. We plan to have a charity doll auction during the Christmas season, with the proceeds going to benefit children under the age of 13 with life-threatening medical problems. We would like to have a good selection of handmade dolls, teddy bears, and used dolls in good repair.

Many children in our valley need some kind of medical financial assistance. We want to provide that help. None of our board members draws a salary for their duties on the board. We are seven concerned parents who see a need. Please help help the children of Magic Valley.

The Times-News has unceasingly attacked our legislators for having attended, as non-paying guests, Causa conferences, where they have been taught the truth about Communism, its ruthless threat, its murder of approximately 150 million people since 1917, its overthrow of untold governments and enslavement of three-fourths of the earth's people, and the solution of how to stop this onslaught. Do you recall any effort on the part of the Times-News or any of the national-owned papers taking a stand on these atrocities, or even news coverage?

All assistance appreciated

A special thank you to the Idaho State Police, the Magic Valley Regional Medical Center, the Twin Falls community and all those who helped at the scene of the tragic accident involving our parents on Aug. 23, just south of Twin Falls on Highway 33.

Our family is all from Portland and everyone here has been very helpful and understanding.

In closing, we encourage everyone to wear their seat belts, no matter how short the distance, for this is what saved our father's life.

THE IVEY AND KETCHERSID FAMILIES

George Hansen is continually blasted by the Times-News as a convicted felon. Do you recall that the local courts found the Times guilty of serious crimes, which also would be convictions? Do you see any action that would tell you they have changed and are clean today? Could George's charges and conviction be concocted to neutralize him? How about Moon's?

Sales calls leave her angry

I'm mad, angry, upset, or any other word you might feel for the issue of people calling you on the phone to sell something.

I have two telephone numbers at my house, so therefore, I have like — "This is the police benefit committee calling to sell," what ever it was. I tell them I don't want anything or do not want to buy anything that anyone wants to sell over the phone by a promotion person or persons. Period. Then I just get back into the tub or back to the dishes; there goes the other line, same voice, same promotion.

Doesn't anyone know how to read a person's name in a phone book?

Whether it's the police benefit or steel shoes or books, or any other items a person doesn't want, I see no need to take my valuable time running back and forth to the phone and then back again to the phone because whoever is promoting these calls does not take the time to read a person's name and once you tell them "no," that should be enough.

As you can see, when one opens his mind, the owners and staff of the Times-News are friends of the liberals who are either friends of the socialists and communists, or members. It makes no difference if they carry cards of membership, or just do their bidding, the end results are the same. Have you ever seen the Times-News find fault with the millions of dollars of public money being spent to send our city, our state, our federal officials to seminars all over the world to teach them how to more fully socialize us?

A plot against conservatives

The question has arisen in the minds of many of us why the Times-News has chosen to resurrect the Lafferty murders, why the continual and repeated attacks against Causa, against the Unification Church, against the Mormon Church, against George Hansen, and in general against all conservative thinking people. Is there a relationship between the above issues?

The answer is positively yes! There is an involvement with conservative principles with each, and the Times-News has very subtly attempted to use their influence to mold minds into rejecting any acceptance or involvement with anything conservative.

If this country is to be saved, it will be by returning it to conservative principles, which were responsible for its original greatness. Learning about and embracing these conservative principles will not taint your mind and cause immorality and murder. Those actions come from satanic influences, while true conservative principles come from God.

Banks could help deal with $3 billion student loan default

The Pentagon recently accused General Dynamics of overcharging the government $240 million over the last decade.

The huge defense contractor has nothing on America's college students; in 1986 alone, the Department of Education will spend nearly $300 million dollars to pay off student loans in default. That's right, $300 million in one year.

Guaranteed Student Loans are a financial lifeline for many students. Nearly 3 million borrowers will get loans next year. Most will repay their loans on time, but many will not. That's the problem.

The program is large and complicated. In a nutshell, it works like this: The federal government subsidizes banks and other lenders to make low-interest loans to students. The loans are insured (guaranteed) by state agencies and again by the federal government. The banks never lose. If the borrower defaults, the state agency pays off the loan. The federal government then pays off the state agency, so it doesn't lose either. Eventually, the federal government tries to collect from the student.

There is some good news: the default problem is not as bad as it once was. Thanks to aggressive collection efforts begun in the four years.

The amount in default may not continue to double every four years, but it will continue to increase. More students are borrowing every year. A growing number of borrowers are in community colleges and private trade schools, and these students have high default rates. By way of illustration, Arthur Marmaduke, head of California's Student Aid Commission, reports that the gross default rate at the University of California is 5 percent, compared with 25 percent at trade schools.

Higher education groups simply hope the problem will go away; they have been unable or unwilling to suggest steps for dealing with it. Some educators even defend the defaults by noting that it is the financially neediest students who are most likely to fall in arrears.

As description, there is a measure of truth to this — most students who default lack either the money to repay the debt or a job to help them get the cash. But as justification, the educators' argument is disingenuous nonsense — some defaulters are simply deadbeats. While some may never have understood that they were getting a loan that would have to be repaid, others just don't bother to repay. They may feel ripped off — they didn't like the education they got (or didn't get, as the case may be) — but this does not justify cheating the government.

There is no shortage of ways to reduce defaults. Credit agencies could be used more effectively to monitor student borrowing and repayment. Flexible or graduated repayment options could be available for borrowers who are unemployed. The federal government could require that states garnish wages of those who default.

These are important steps, but they will not be enough. The program delegates administrative responsibility, but not risk. Reducing defaults will require taking a careful look at both banks and colleges.

Banks, for example, face no risk and their profits are guaranteed. Nothing so concentrates a banker's attention as the prospect of losing money. Since it is the government's money, they have little incentive to counsel students carefully or to seek repayment on defaults.

Colleges and trade schools should be watched more closely as well. At a handful of institutions, more than 40 percent of the students taking loans default. Such schools should be declared ineligible. This would provoke hundreds of protests from the affected schools, but it would also help solve the problem.

In a way, student-aid defaults illustrate the policy gridlock that has stymied efforts to reduce the budget deficit. The administration argues that higher education spending must be cut, while Congress argues that it is a vital investment in our future. They talk past each other.

There is a middle ground: Cracking down on loan defaulters, making banks share some of the risk and eliminating schools with outrageous default rates would save money while preserving the program for needy students.

Student aid is an essential national priority. By failing to take corrective action we undermine public support. More important, we send a signal that it is okay to cheat the government if you can get away with it. It was the same signal sent to defense contractors. It's not acceptable for either group.

U.S., Vietnam working on MIA plans

HANOI, Vietnam (AP) — The head of a U.S. delegation said Thursday that the two sides are working on a unified plan to speed the effort of accounting for nearly 140 Americans still missing in the Vietnam war that ended two years ago.

Vietnamese officials have pledged to resolve the MIA issue in "a very short time," said Richard Childress, a member of the National Security Council, who led the delegation in two days of talks in Hanoi that ended Thursday.

The Vietnamese team was led Wednesday by Hoang Bith Son, vice minister of foreign affairs, and on Thursday by Vo Dong Giang, who is acting foreign minister while Nguyen Co Thach is out of the country.

Childress would not give details of the plans under discussion, but said there were common features in proposals submitted at the beginning of the talks by the Americans and Vietnamese.

He described the negotiations as "very substantive."

Giang said Thursday that the Vietnamese put forth a three-step plan for resolving the MIA issue, and would welcome more meetings this year with American officials.

He said after an hour-long meeting with the U.S. delegation that he hoped there would be a joint plan, but "if that is not possible, work will be done unilaterally by Vietnam."

Giang said his country would welcome U.S. financial aid in the search for remains, but had not formally requested it.

On Aug. 14, Vietnam turned over what it believes to be the bones of 26 missing Americans, which have not yet been positively identified by U.S. experts. There are 2,464 American servicemen and civilians still listed as missing in Indochina, 1,375 of them in Vietnam.

The MIA search has been hampered by the lack of diplomatic relations. The United States says it will not recognize the Communist government until Vietnam withdraws its troops from Cambodia.

Vietnam invaded Cambodia in December 1978, drove out the Khmer Rouge government of Pol Pot and installed the current regime of Heng Samrin in January 1979. Its occupation troops are fighting three Cambodian rebel groups, including the Khmer Rouge.

Son, the vice foreign minister, said Wednesday that Vietnam's plan would resolve the MIA issue within two years and suggested that the process would go even more quickly if the United States adopted a less "hostile" attitude toward his country.

He told reporters that joint excavations of sites of remains was "not necessary."

Bhutto under arrest

KARACHI, Pakistan (AP) — The military government placed opposition leader Benazir Bhutto under house arrest on Thursday and barred her from all political activities, days after her return from self-imposed exile.

Police armed with rifles and tear gas guns barred entry to Ms. Bhutto's house after the government issued the 90-day detention order.

Ms. Bhutto, 32, is the daughter of former Prime Minister Zulfikar Ali Bhutto, who was ousted in a 1977 military coup led by Gen. Mohammad Zia ul-Haq, who currently is president.

The elder Bhutto was convicted of conspiring to kill a political opponent and executed two years after his ouster.

Ms. Bhutto, leader of her father's Pakistan Peoples Party, is regarded as Zia's most prominent opponent.

Bonn picks new chief counterspy

BONN, West Germany (AP) — West Germany named a new chief for its shaken foreign spy network on Thursday, and later announced that a high-ranking diplomat had defected from East Germany.

Bonn officials also confirmed they detained a West German counter-espionage agent Thursday on suspicion he was an undercover agent, but said he was released later because of insufficient evidence.

The spreading spy scandal has wracked Chancellor Helmut Kohl's government for more than a week. A secretary in the president's office was arrested last weekend.

Kohl moved Thursday to reorganize Bonn's spy services. He named Hans-Georg Weick, 57, a veteran diplomat with an extensive security background, as foreign intelligence chief. Weick, who has been serving as ambassador to NATO, replaced Harbert Heltenbroich, who was dismissed as head of the Federal Intelligence Service.

Government spokesman Juergen Sudhoff identified the defecting diplomat as Martin Winkler, who he said was No. 2 man in the East German Embassy in Buenos Aires, Argentina, and said Winkler had been in West Germany since Sunday.

He said Winkler was "a man of considerable importance in the East German Foreign Office" who held many major posts in Latin America, including Cuba.

Sudhoff, in an interview with West German television, rejected newspaper reports of a connection between the defection and the spy scandal, calling such suggestions "fairly tales."

The Argentine government news agency Telam and the East German Embassy in Buenos Aires informed the Foreign Ministry of Winkler's defection.

An East German Embassy official reached by telephone in the Argentine capital denied any knowledge of Winkler.

Official Bonn was jolted by word Thursday that Reinhard Liebetanz had been arrested as a suspected spy for the East Germans.

Liebetanz, 48, is a section chief in the Constitutional Protection Office, the agency whose duties include counter-espionage against East Germany.

Few checked superintendent's background

By PAULA EUBANKS
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — A small farming community in Oregon reeled this week as news that its recently hired school superintendent had just been arrested on charges of grand theft and forgery, allegedly committed when he was the Castelford school superintendent.

The community was even more shocked when it learned the details of the charges against Robert Hutchin, the man it placed in charge of district funds and children, said South Sherman School Board Chairman Gary R. Carlson.

Hutchin, 53, is scheduled to appear in 5th District Court here Sept. 3 to face charges that he cashed a $2,023

Castelford school district check allegedly forged by him in April. The check was cashed at Idaho First National Bank in Buhl.

In addition to, yet unrelated to the first charge, Hutchin is accused of not returning four X-rated video tapes that cost $50 each to a Buhl rental outlet.

In a series of interviews with rural school district superintendents and secretaries, school board clerks and members, and state-level officials of professional associations and education departments in Oregon, Montana and Idaho, a pattern emerged. For various reasons, Hutchin's employment background was seldom checked thoroughly.

Each of the people involved with hiring Hutchin told a different version of his background. Each district said it used differing systems to check Hutchin's employment claims and to question former employers.

Selection policies differed from year to year, as well as from district to district.

Throughout the interviews, Hutchin's associates offered explanations.

The most common reason was that job applicants direct potential employers to people who will give good recommendations.

And rural school boards who review applications and interview applicants tend to be trusting people. They don't suspect that applicants might have a tainted past, the education workers said.

They pointed to heavy reliance on informal professional networks that connect school districts within one state. Personnel information and referrals are easily passed around a state, but when an applicant is from out of state, that informal network breaks down and potential employers sometimes must rely on strangers' opinions, they said.

That reason led to another: Sometimes current employers want to dump an employee and will therefore give glowing recommendations to an unsuspecting potential employer.

At times, those fine references stem from an employer's fear of slander and civil rights lawsuits that might be filed by the former employee, some suggested. They added that simple politeness and "not wanting to wreck a guy's career" could also account for kind reports.

State agencies of the information evaluating an employee's verbal and undocumented and because personal files are protected under federal privacy laws, hiring committees must rely on other people's recollection and comments, some added.

Also, searches of public records such as bankruptcy and property ownership are expensive and time-consuming for small districts, and searches of arrest records are difficult. Some of those interviewed said that public records tend to reflect only dire circumstances and do not always tell a full story on an applicant.

Merit stand draws fire

Policy amendment defeated

By KAREN MAIN
Times-News correspondent

BUHL — A Buhl School Board member, who opposes the district's reduction-in-force policy for laying off teachers during financial difficulties, was defeated Tuesday in his attempt to change a portion of the policy.

Although the Buhl School Board has not discussed implementing the RIF policy since spring when proposed reductions in teaching positions and programs were considered, Trustee Grant Atkinson asked the board to review the policy again.

"I would like to see it changed so not being in favor of the policy," Atkinson said. "It does not serve the district's needs, instructionally or educationally."

Last April the board adopted the RIF policy pending its decision on teachers and programs because of a budget deficit.

Instead, the majority of board members voted in May to save all teaching positions for at least one more year. Atkinson cast the lone vote against that move.

So, Atkinson proposed that the board at least delete a paragraph of the RIF policy that gives credit for years of employment within other school districts.

"I don't care how long they've taught in the state of Idaho," but teachers should be credited with their years of teaching in Buhl, he said.

Atkinson's motion died for lack of a second.

"I don't see anything wrong with the policy the way it is," said Superintendent Gus Spiropoulos.

"That's your opinion," Atkinson replied.

The superintendent said he was advised by legal counsel that if the board eliminated the credit for a teacher's time in other school districts, the policy would move toward a merit basis which could void the entire purpose of a seniority policy.

The policy has the backing of the leadership of the Buhl Education Association, which represents the majority of teachers, Spiropoulos said.

When Chairman Howard Hopkins asked the other board members for their opinions, board members Leonard Crismon and David Ross sided with Atkinson for a system favoring merit.

It is a shame that a teacher with a great amount of ability can be "RIFed" over a person with seniority, Crismon said.

"I would like to see merit taken into consideration," because everyone knows some teachers are better than others even though they have not taught as long, Ross said.

But, board member Lila Bell said "Although I agree merit has some place in there, I believe we have to go one way or the other."

Merit is the hardest policy in the world to enforce and it "opens a can of worms," Hopkins said.

"Merit is difficult to measure," said High School Principal Dale Thornsberry.

Everyone wants the best teachers, but "unfortunately, RIF is a funny animal," because sometimes a weak teacher covers a subject that no one else can teach, he said.

Railroad slates closures

Area agent offices shut down Oct. 10

By BOB FREUND
Times-News writer

BOISE — The Union Pacific Railroad will shut its agent offices for Buhl, Burley, Jerome-Wendell, Minidoka and Glenns Ferry-Mountain from Oct. 10.

In a timetable filed with the Idaho Public Utilities Commission, the railroad also has announced closing dates for 12 other stations across the state. Seven are due to be padlocked today.

The PUC, which regulates railroads in the state, permitted the closings on a one-year trial basis earlier this month after the railroad argued they are necessary for economic reasons. The commission could extend the shutdowns permanently or order the agencies reopened next year.

The Union Pacific has argued for more than 1 1/2 years that the local stations were unnecessary and costly to maintain. The railroad will save approximately $1 million a year by closing them, said spokesman Dick Tinch.

Although some stations will close today, the Magic Valley offices will stay in business until Oct. 10, because of union labor agreements covering the agents involved, he said.

Some agents are taking early retirements and others will move to new locations, Tinch said.

Eight offices are being shut today. Six are in eastern Idaho. They are American Falls, Blackfoot, Shelley, Rexburg, St. Anthony and Newdale. The remaining two are at Caldwell and Cour d'Alene.

The Parma station closes Sept. 14 and Orofino Oct. 1. The five Magic Valley stations, along with those at Payette and Cascade, will shut their doors Oct. 10.

Instead of dealing directly with Union Pacific agents, shippers will deal by toll-free phone with regional service centers. The centers for the Magic Valley are at Twin Falls and Rupert.

However, in its Aug. 9 order the PUC also held open eight agencies but

County officials balk at '91'

Task force assigned to study consolidation of dispatch services

By PAT MARCANTONIO
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — County law enforcement officers balked Wednesday at a proposed consolidation of county dispatch services and use of the '911' emergency number because they said they had many concerns and questions.

Proponents of the concept countered with the argument that it would provide better service and a savings to cities and the county.

The result of the meeting Wednesday was the formation of a task force to research the proposal.

The meeting, which was called by the County Board of Commissioners, was attended by representatives of the Idaho Emergency Medical Services Agency, Magic Valley Regional Medical Center and police and public officials from communities in the county.

Commissioner Marvin Hempleman said the idea of consolidating the dispatch services and using the 911 number has been cooling in the "stodges" for several years. At the urging of the hospital's emergency room staff and ambulance service operated through the hospital, the commissioners scheduled the meeting.

Dennis Hendrixson, the manager of the hospital's ambulance department, said they felt the climate might be right to propose the idea.

The consolidation of dispatch service and 911 provides better service to county residents and is economical, Hendrixson said.

The county now has six law enforcement agencies, eight fire departments, four quick-response units and one emergency ambulance service — 27 different emergency numbers in all, as some agencies have more than one number, Hendrixson reported.

The consolidated system would provide one number for people to call. If the call isn't an emergency, then the caller will be referred to another number, Hendrixson said.

The 911 number, which doesn't exist, is just the easiest to remember, he added.

The benefits of the consolidation and 911 number include a reduction in response time — from 1 to 3 minutes — in emergencies, Hendrixson said.

And, there are the projected savings in personnel and equipment to the municipalities and county, he said.

In Cache County, Utah, which has a consolidated system, taxpayers will be saved $144,000 this year, Hendrixson said. The Utah county has a population similar to Twin Falls.

Paul Anderson, chief of the Idaho EMS agency which trains and certifies emergency medical technicians, said there were 27 911 systems in the state. The state's EMS committee encouraged local leaders to initiate such a service.

Twin Falls Public Safety Director Tim Qualls, however, expressed concern. For instance, he said, police cars would be needlessly dispatched to incidents that are now solved by telephone by dispatchers familiar with Twin Falls.

Twin Falls City Manager Tom Courtney said all administrative calls in addition to emergency ones are taken through one dispatcher. If the consolidated system only handled emergency calls, the city wouldn't see much of a savings because it still would need dispatchers for the other city needs.

"Qualls added, 'There are a hell of a lot of questions.'"

Emergency room physician Kent Pressman replied, 'That's the point of the meeting to find out what will work for the county.'

Filer Police Chief Don Barkley said he was "not sold." He was concerned that the dispatchers in the consolidated system might not know the area like a dispatcher who works in the city.

Second investigation under way of Kimberly police department

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

KIMBERLY — An Idaho Attorney General's office investigation into alleged irregularities in the Kimberly Police Department operations is completed as to interviews and field work, but another investigation has been requested by three of the town's councilmembers.

A letter was sent to the Twin Falls Public Safety Division Thursday by Council President Ted Wasko and councilmen Sterling Crothers and Avis Allen asking the Twin Falls agency to resume an investigation in Kimberly. The councilmembers asked for an investigation into alleged irregularities in both the police department and city administration in light of new developments.

Wasko said the letter was sent to Public Safety Director Tim Qualls.

"Qualls explained that the three councilmembers requested the Twin Falls police detective division, which is headed by Gary Cordeiro, make an investigation.

Last May, Kimberly Mayor Ron Jones asked the Idaho Attorney General's office to investigate the Kimberly Police Department. He took the action without confiding in members of the City Council. When Wasko, Police Commissioner Sterling Crothers and Councilman Avis Allen learned the investigation was under way without input from the full council, they asked that it be stopped.

At about the same time, Kimberly Police Chief Jim Campbell asked the Twin Falls Police Department to investigate missing police case files from his office. These were recovered, following a meeting of Qualls, Cordeiro, Mayor Jones and Chief Campbell. Both Qualls and Jones declined to say where the files were located.

In a special meeting June 23, when the mayor of the Police Department investigation was brought before the full council, a unanimous vote authorized resumption of the Attorney General's investigation.

Russ Renuau of the Idaho Attorney General's office said that his investigator assigned to the Kimberly case is out of town this week but will be back on the case Monday.

"We are close to being finished," Renuau said. "I think we have interviewed everyone we feel needs to be interviewed and are ready to start putting the report together."

Renuau estimated two to three weeks to complete the report and said it will then be sent to the Kimberly City Council and to the Twin Falls prosecuting attorney.

He said when his investigator begins compiling the information for the report, he may find it necessary to return to Kimberly with some additional questions. Otherwise, he said, field work and interviews are completed.

Wasko said he has not been contacted in the Attorney General's investigation, and as far as he knows no other councilmen have been interviewed.

Renuau said the scope of the investigation has escalated somewhat beyond the original expectations. It will be the responsibility of the Kimberly City Council and the Twin Falls County prosecutor to review the report and decide if any legal action is to be taken, Renuau said.

At the close of a Wednesday night Kimberly City Council meeting that had been called for a budget hearing and adoption, Wasko requested an executive session.

Chadband hits county fairs trail looking for voter support

By DEAN S. MILLER
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Congressional candidate Rep. J.F. Chadband, R-Idaho Falls, says he has hit 29 county fairs in 40 days in search of votes for the 1986 election.

In a Tuesday conversation with the Times-News, Chadband said he is pressing flesh and flashing grins in parades and at fairs around the state. Traveling in his private airplane, he is sometimes able to hit as many as three fairs in a day, as he recently did at Carey, Arco and Dubois. Chadband said he and his wife, Karen, sometimes march in parades next to their campaign "Chadbandwagon" full of youngsters dressed up in special clothes. Working with his finance chairman, Dave Comstock, Chadband is computerizing lists of donors to other congressional campaigns that he has gotten from the secretary of state for use in raising money for his own campaign.

In mid-September, Chadband will spend a week in Washington, D.C., peddling his campaign door-to-door.

at political action committee offices in search of "PAC" donations. The conservative southeast Idaho Republican runs a furniture, rental company and is a strong free enterprise advocate.

His campaign literature says he is the "burden of debt" is destructive to freedom; that the integrity of the family must be protected; that a strong defense is necessary; and that strong local government is the keystone in preserving freedom. Chadband has made plans to be at the Twin Falls County Fair next week.

Palisades Dam abutment studied

By KENNETH A. BROWN
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The Bureau of Reclamation is undertaking some additional field investigations of an ancient landslide which supports the right abutment of the Palisades Dam.

The investigations are part of the Safety of Dams Program examining the safety and stability of reclamation dams throughout the United States, according to Earl Corless, chief of river operations with the Bureau of Reclamation's Minidoka project, headquartered in Burley.

Palisades Dam is located on the Snake River, 55 miles southeast of Idaho Falls, not far from the Wyoming border. Palisades Reservoir, behind the dam, holds 1.4 million acre-feet of water and provides water for irrigation and recreation. In addition to regulating water flows for flood control, there is also a 119-megawatt hydroelectric generating facility at the dam.

The slide on the dam's right abutment, is "several thousand years old," according to Corless.

While there has been no indication of recent movement, slope indicators measuring deflexion which measure any out-of-vertical movement are being installed upstream and downstream from the dam, Corless said.

The recent studies are part of an ongoing study of the dam, Corless said.

Burley crews help fight fire

BURLEY — Two fire crews and several pieces of heavy equipment were sent from the Burley Bureau of Land Management District late Thursday to a fire in Box Elder County, Utah.

Fire dispatchers said the fire covered 800 acres by 10 p.m. and was burning in rough, inaccessible terrain. The fire was burning in juniper and brush.

The fire cause was not known, but it was reported to Burley about 5 p.m. Dispatchers say the area is just over the Utah state line, not in the Burley district but in Burley's fire attack area.

A total of 13 firefighters, including a fire crew from Utah, were using tankers and a bulldozer to fight the fire.

Watch, ring reported stolen

TWIN FALLS — Kathy Jolley, 27, of 353 Heyburn Ave. W., told police someone removed a watch and diamond ring valued at a total of $800 from her home between Aug. 20 and Aug. 23.

She said the home was listed for sale and a number of people had been in and out of the home during that time.

The jewelry was left in full view on the top of a bedroom dresser, Jolley told police.

Court upholds convictions

BOISE (AP) — It's up to a jury to weigh conflicting testimony and decide which to accept, the Idaho Court of Appeals says.

The court Thursday upheld the rape, assault and burglary convictions of David Poulignon in a Twin Falls County case.

Poulignon contended in his appeal that because of conflicting testimony, the evidence against him was not enough for conviction. He also asked the court to overturn a decision by District Judge Daniel Meehl rejecting Poulignon's request for a new trial.

"The reliability and credibility of the evidence presented at trial was a matter for the jury to determine," the court said. "We are not at liberty to reconcile inconsistencies in the evidence or to weigh the evidence or to decide the justifiable inferences that may be drawn from the evidence. Those are matters for the jury," the court said.

The court ruled there was enough evidence to convict Poulignon.

Back to School Breakfast set

BUHL — The sixth annual Back to School Breakfast, sponsored by the Buhl Chamber of Commerce to welcome Buhl School District staff, teachers and employees, will be held Tuesday, at 8 a.m. in the Poppewell Elementary School lunchroom.

Bob Weaver Jr. will give the invocation. Chamber President Claude McKeercher will welcome the guests and introduce chamber board members, and Superintendent Susan Spiropoulos will introduce new teachers and employees to chamber members.

The 911 number can be effective if the circumstances are "just right." Buhl Mayor Jim Barker, whose city already has adopted the 911 system, said he favored the service. The biggest obstacle would be satisfying the needs and desires of each community. Yet, the smaller communities using the Twin Falls County Sheriff's office dispatch at night were practicing consolidation.

"Economically, it is the thing we ought to do," Qualls added, "Not if we're going to decrease service."

Munn predicted there might be logistical problems with the consolidated agencies, especially when it comes to deciding who pays for what. Heplerman said the cost of a 911 phone line for each community will depend on its distance to the consolidated dispatch. If the center is in Twin Falls, for example, Castleford may have to pay $120 a month while Kimberly pays only $72.

It will take time to work out the details between the different agencies. Munn added that the 911 system Pressman remarked that a consolidated system would be subject to on-going modification. Hansen Mayor Tom Butler said there are three or four numbers people can call in Hansen for services, while the call usually ends up at the Twin Falls County Sheriff's office. He asked those present to put themselves in a position of a person in trouble having to dial several numbers for help.

Anderson told the gathering that the agencies they were raising were similar to the ones he's heard in other communities before they adopted the system. In some cases, the powers that be decided they wanted the system and the affected agencies were told to work it out. The present agency agreed to form a task force, composed of representatives from the different communities and hospital.

Union Pacific's shutdown list. They are the agencies serving: Shoshone and Gooding; Boise; Weiser; Kellogg; Moscow; Sandpoint and Bonners Ferry; Aberdeen and Ashton.

In strongly worded opinions, two of the PUC's three commissioners criticized the closings, but said they were forced to approve them.

"Unfortunately, there is little that a state agency like the Idaho PUC can do to either prevent the deterioration of rail service or defect national policy from its present course," wrote Commissioner Conley Ward.

The stations involved are operated by the Union Pacific Railroad and by two subsidiaries, the Camas Prairie and Spokane International railroads.

Hutchin

Some of those who had a part in choosing Hutchin for an educational post said they sincerely thought they picked someone who would suit the job. They added that they found out differently. Hutchin has served in various educational positions in Oregon, Montana and Idaho. He is a certified administrator in Montana and Idaho, but his certification is provisional. That means he must complete more courses to become certified as a superintendent.

In Montana Hutchin is certified as a school psychologist, according to the Office of Public Instruction, and in Oregon he is certified as a principal, an official with the Department of Education said.

No negative criticism appears in Hutchin's records until the 1978-79 school year, according to Dr. Gerald Post, a former superintendent at the Newberg Area School District. Post is now superintendent of the Snoqualmie, Wash., School District.

Hutchin came to the Newberg district around 1973 from The Dalles, Ore., School District, where he had been a high school guidance counselor and a teacher for about eight years. Post said. Post became superintendent of the Newberg district in 1976, after Hutchin had been working as the director of pupil personnel, overseeing guidance, special education, and special employees, he said.

"Hutchin was an excellent employee," Post said. "I found him thorough and efficient until one day in 1978 or '79, when he had a fall."

Post said that Hutchin's work performance changed after a slip in a puddle of water on the tile floor of the district office. Post said his back was injured and he claimed disability. As he became more depressed, Post said, Hutchin began to skip work days, made poor judgments and was not very dependable. Hutchin eventually resigned in January 1980 from the district.

"That fall changed him and he had personal and physical problems," Post said. "It was a dramatic change. I rationalize it this way — the fall injured his back and put him in intense personal pain. He loved that he worked for an established tremendous outfit. He became very depressed. But, I'm not a doctor."

Post added that he recalled Hutchin losing a disability suit against the district, after which Hutchin was reportedly unemployed in Bend, Ore.

After Hutchin resigned, the district found that a portable Dictaphone that had been bought with district funds was missing from Hutchin's office, Post said. He added that a letter he sent to Hutchin asking if he had the Dictaphone was never answered.

Two conflicting reports about Hutchin's activities between his Newberg resignation and his next school district job say that Hutchin either opened his own Christian school for a few years in Oregon or that he worked for an established parochial school in some Western state. Carlson, a member of the South Sherman School District Board, offered the Christian school version, and a Castleford School Board member, Roger Clark, recalled the established school version.

In August 1983, the Sander County, Mont., Special Education Committee hired Hutchin as a psychologist to serve several school districts, said Verne Reed, co-op director. Hutchin worked there until July 1984, when he notified Reed that he had accepted a superintendent's position in Castleford, a district of approximately 300 students in kindergarten through high school.

Reed added that Hutchin had admitted that he was looking for an administrative position by spring 1984. "I was satisfied by his performance. He had no complaints," Reed said. "He was real active in the church he belonged to here. Episcopal, I think. He spent most of his free time fishing and hunting." He had good experience in Oregon, and he was one of about three applicants we had for the (part-time) job."

The use of a screening committee is under review, he added.

The Castleford Board was satisfied by Hutchin's recommendations, although they could not recall where they came from, Clark said. They invited him for a two-hour interview, to which Hutchin traveled from Moscow, he said.

"I can't say he had all the right answers, but he was very up-to-date. He had the capacity to substantiate his ideas and goals," Clark said.

Blick added that the Hutchin interview was very extensive. In 1984, he said, he interviewed Hutchin's background was checked.

Hutchin resigned from the Castleford position in April, saying he did not have full board support. The board had unanimously voted to employ him as superintendent in 1984, but when Hutchin missed the deadline to re-apply after he resigned, the board refused.

Hutchin was hired from a pool of 20 applicants as superintendent and principal at the 120-student South Sherman School District in rural Shoshone, Ore., July 1, 1984.

Ever Riggs, the superintendent, Hutchin was hired to replace and who will now serve as an interim superintendent, researched Hutchin's application.

"I did call around quite a bit," Riggs said. "The Dalles for about 12 years — they said, 'He did a fine job here, but that was quite some time ago.'" Riggs said.

"I had no negative reports (including Castleford). — One thing I always ask from the prior employer is 'You've got this man back here, but they would have answered no, I wouldn't pass the application to the board,' he said.

He said he did not check Newberg School District because he thought Hutchin's Newberg application was from the superintendent of his own school there.

Hutchin had not been charged with any felonies when the South Sherman Board reviewed him, although Castleford and Newberg employees and board members were critical of Hutchin's work there, he said.

"You have to ask yourself what is a RIF policy for," the superintendent said.

If a RIF policy is based on merit, Spiropoulos said it could be claimed that the district is just using the policy to get rid of below average teachers.

It would be difficult to enforce a merit policy anyway, because the system currently used to evaluate teachers needs to be improved, he said.

Tax panel chairman says Idaho may have to revamp setup

BOISE (AP) — Economic and political pressures will likely force major changes in Idaho's controversial system of assessing corporate taxes based on a business's worldwide operations, state Tax Commission Chairman Larry Looney predicts.

"The reality is there may be some retreat from that," Looney said Thursday during a session of House Speaker Tom Silvers' ad hoc committee reviewing the controversial taxing method.

As critics like the Republican Twin Falls legislative leader blame the worldwide unitary tax for a lack of economic growth in Idaho and foreign governments like Great Britain threaten retaliation because of its use in America, Looney said the Reagan administration has been pressing for change.

Former Treasury Secretary Donald Regan and current Secretary James Baker have been working with Idaho and the other five worldwide unitary tax states, he said.

"The federal government has been concerned, in view of the positions of the trading partners, with trying to strike a compromise," Looney said. "The states agreed to look at some measure of retreat from the worldwide combination. . . . There was agreement that there would be some movement if the federal government agreed to provide more help to the states."

Under the worldwide unitary system, corporations are taxed not on the income directly allocated to Idaho operations but based on the contribution those Idaho operations make to their overall worldwide profits.

That contribution is calculated as a ratio of Idaho sales, employment and assets to total corporate sales, employment and assets.

But Looney, maintaining that the worldwide calculation used in Idaho is the most equitable way of assessing corporate tax liability, said the tax commission would open the system to the point that corporations could pay only what they wanted through manipulation of income between taxing jurisdictions.

"While various studies have shown that Idaho's overall business tax structure is among the lowest in the nation, business leaders have argued that the worldwide unitary approach leaves the impression with foreign business representatives that they will be penalized if they locate operations in Idaho."

Many have argued that by changing that impression and eliminating the tax, new foreign investment will begin coming into the state.

But Jay Engstrom of the new Commerce Department disputed that contention, contending many of the businesses expressing interest in locating in Idaho have not even mentioned the unitary tax as a factor.

"We think that if we went to the water's edge, that in itself would not open the floodgates of businesses entering this state," Engstrom said, adding that more must be done especially in the area of the state aggressively seeking new businesses through advertising and other promotional campaigns.

State's spraying cost shaved

BOISE (AP) — The state's share of the cost for this year's massive grasshopper spraying program in southern Idaho should be about 20 percent less than originally estimated.

Roger Pollard, the Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service official who oversees the spraying program, said final billing calculations appear to have set the state's share at between $500,000 and $550,000.

Overall, the spraying program covered more than 8.4 million acres of range and farmland in southern Idaho in more than 50 days at a cost of about $12.5 million.

Pollard said the per-acre cost came in under $2 after state officials had made their original projection of Idaho's share at $700,000 on per-acre estimates in excess of $2.

Although federal-land-accounted for over 90 percent of all the land treated with pesticide during the program, about 329,000 acres of private-owned land was sprayed as well.

The bulk of the program's costs will be paid for from the $25 million the U.S. Agriculture Department earmarked for pest control westwide this summer. The state's share must be appropriated by lawmakers this winter.

Panhandle district finalist

COEUR D'ALENE (AP) — The Environmental Protection Agency has selected northern Idaho's Panhandle Health District as a finalist for an agency project on environmental problems.

EPA official Diane Niedzialkowski said the health district was chosen as one of three finalists for the project because of its 10-year resolve to protect the Spokane-Rathdrum aquifer.

EPA officials will provide funds and advice on environmental problems to local officials who win the project.

Ms. Niedzialkowski said the district "has done a fantastic job with very limited resources" to protect the aquifer, which provides drinking water to Alhambra, Rathdrum, Hayden, Coeur d'Alene and Post Falls, Idaho, and Millwood and Spokane, Wash.

Roadblocks legal, Boise judge rules

BOISE (AP) — A Boise judge has upheld the legality of roadblocks used by Boise police over the Memorial Day weekend to check for drunken drivers.

One of those charged with drunk driving, Dave Henderson, 34, Boise, asked Magistrate Kay Hamilton to suppress evidence gathered by police at the roadblock.

But after a hearing Wednesday, the magistrate ruled the roadblock was necessary and was properly conducted. Boise police said they checked about 1,000 cars.

Thinly-settled states paying fair share to highway system

BOISE (AP) — Low-population states such as Idaho contribute their fair share to the federal highway system, even though the state receives about $2 in aid for every $1 paid in federal gasoline taxes, witnesses at a Senate subcommittee hearing on highway funding said.

Sen. Steve Symms, R-Idaho, conducted the hearing in Boise Thursday to gather input on the federal aid highway program, which will be up for renewal next year, and particularly on local concerns over government funding of highway projects in Idaho.

The field hearing was for the Transportation Subcommittee of the Senate Environment and Public Works Committee, of which Symms is a member. Eugene Thomas, co-chairman of the Uplown Boise group and president of the American Bar Association, urged Congress to adopt a national perspective on transportation funding. Highway funds for Western states such as Idaho should be a high priority since cities there serve as "bases" for far-flung populations, Thomas said.

Symms agreed that the interstate highway system is in desperate need of construction and rehabilitation, but said he was opposed to any increase in the federal gasoline tax.

Dean Tisdale, director of the Idaho Transportation Department, said the expected federal contribution to Idaho highway programs is $23 million per year, or about 29 percent of the state's needs. But he said state projects still were "grossly underfunded."

Idaho's primary highway system has a backlog of $1.1 billion in resurfacing and repair work, and it's expected that another $1 billion in needs will arise over the next dozen years, according to a new study.

"With such a large backlog of needs, the public questions some of the work we do in rehabilitating the interstate system," Tisdale said. Symms said the federal Highway Trust Fund could be used more efficiently if less money from the 9-cent-per-gallon fuel tax were spent on required programs such as the Davis-Bacon Act, which requires that contractors on government-financed projects pay the prevailing local wage.

Tisdale said he agreed with Symms' assessment that too much money intended for upgrading and expanding the nation's highway system also is siphoned off for use in projects such as mass transit and production of gasoline.

Regardless of the fuel used, all vehicles contribute to highway deterioration, and to exclude gasoline-fueled vehicles from paying their fair share is not consistent with the 'pay-as-you-go' concept which has been the cornerstone of our highly successful Highway Trust Fund and Federal-aid Highway Program," Tisdale said in a prepared statement.

Idaho pays approximately $4.4 million each year into the Mass Transit Account, but receives back less than $254,000, Tisdale said. He asked that the state's allotment be increased to at least one-half of 1 percent of the total allocation, or about $6 million.

Symms said he also opposes federal threats of sanctions against states which do not implement and enforce programs such as the 55 mph speed limit and a minimum drinking age of 21.

State Senate President Pro Tem James Risch, R-Boise, said the issues of highway funding and the drinking age should be "totally and absolutely separate." Still, Risch said he expects the Idaho Legislature to raise the state's legal drinking age from 19 to 21 when it reconvenes in January.

Butte fire pauses, keeps burning

By The Associated Press

Thick smoke blanketed the scene of a fire on Thursday that has scorched 25,000 acres of east-central Idaho's Salmon National Forest as reinforced crews struggled to stop flames before they reach nearby Montana.

The Butte fire, in the Long Tom Mountain Area about 35 miles northwest of Salmon, seemed to pause, to catch its breath Thursday, after bursting out over 2,000 acres on Wednesday. Flames were about 2 1/2 miles from the Montana border, forest spokesman Jim Stone said.

Additional crews and equipment arrived late Wednesday to help battle the stubborn fire that lay dormant for three weeks before springing to life last weekend.

About 900 firefighters and support personnel from western states were working to quell the fire on the north and east by constructing cleared lines back away from the main body of flames, Stone said. Plumes of dense, ash-laden smoke visible as far away as Salmon prevented air tankers from making chemical retardant drops Thursday, he said. There was no estimate of when the blaze might be contained.

Meanwhile, Bureau of Land Management crews in Oregon hoped to contain a range fire by Thursday night that had blackened 4,500 acres of sage, mahogany and juniper about 20 miles northwest of Jordan Valley, Ore.

Vale BLM District dispatcher Nancy Stampke said wind whipped the fire to life on Tuesday after a lightning strike several days before. About 190 firefighters were battling the blaze Thursday in rough, rocky terrain, she said. There were no reports of damage or injuries.

Brothers face hearings in tavern slayings

BOISE (AP) — Four brothers will face preliminary hearings next month on charges connected with the Aug. 8 slayings of two people at an Ada County tavern.

Ezequiel Hernandez, 26, Nampa, is charged with first-degree murder and his three brothers are charged with aiding and abetting the murders.

All four Hernandez brothers were arrested this week, Tuesday night in Nampa and Wednesday in Burley.

At a preliminary court hearing on Thursday the brothers were ordered held without bond in the Ada County Jail.

Ezequiel Hernandez and Jose Hernandez, 30, Salt Lake City, will have a preliminary hearing Sept. 12. Hearings are scheduled Sept. 26 for Juan, 22, and Raul Hernandez, 24, both of Nampa.

Patrice Hanson, 27, New Plymouth, and Billy Daniel, 26, Nampa, were shot to death outside the Hide Out Tavern early Aug. 8. Police allege four people were ejected from the tavern earlier in the evening, then returned with a fifth man when the tavern closed and fatally wounded Ms. Hanson and Daniel.

Garden City youth to have diagnosis

BOISE (AP) — A Garden City teen-ager will spend 30 days at the state's juvenile diagnostic unit in Orofino before being sentenced for bank robbery.

Patrick Wayne Streeb, 17, will undergo evaluation at the request of his attorney, Ada County Deputy Public Defender George Parham.

Parham's motion for the diagnosis was approved by 4th District Judge Alan Schwartzman on Wednesday.

Ada County Deputy Prosecutor Gus Rosenheim said he did not oppose the motion. Parham said Streeb will be sentenced by Schwartzman on Oct. 2.

Symms claims victory

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Steve Symms, R-Idaho, has declared victory in his fight to retain local control over duck hunting in Idaho.

After a month of negotiations, Symms said the Department of Interior has decided to accept the Pacific Flyway Council's recommendation for bag limits on mallard and pintail ducks in the Northwest. "This greatly reduces the threat of Washington bureaucrats usurping control over what should be a regional issue," Symms said. "There is no reason for the self-appointed experts in D.C. to poke their noses into every part of Idaho life."

Citing a 22-percent reduction in the number of ducks expected to pass through the flyway this winter, the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service had proposed cutting the daily bag limit to three mallards or pintails, including no more than one hen of each.

Wagons ho! in annual Ketchum parade

Huge freight wagons star as symbol of mining past

By DAVE LEWIS
Times-News correspondent

KETCHUM — It's been 101 years since Isaac and Horace Lewis founded the Lewis Fast Freight Line in Ketchum. Yet, the wagons they used to haul supplies and ore between town and surrounding Wood River Valley mining communities still roll on the same streets of this mountain town.

The large wagons are the centerpiece for Saturday's Wagon Days Parade, the 11th since the parade was revived as the main event in the weekend — full of — attractions celebrating Labor Day in the Wood River Valley.

Not only are events scheduled for Ketchum and Sun Valley today through Monday, but Bellevue will hold its traditional Labor Day events, including a parade and town picnic, on Monday.

For Ketchum officials, this is a special year because the wagons finally have a home after being stored at various places since taken out of commission around 1910. They were donated to the city of Ketchum in 1958 by Palmer Lewis, nephew of Horace Lewis, whose name is still stenciled on them.

Palmer Lewis, of Mercer Island, Wash., will attend the dedication of the Wagon Museum, at Fifth Street and East Avenue across from City Hall, at 3 p.m. today.

He also serves as grand marshal for Saturday's "Big Hiltch" Parade that begins at noon.

The wagon parade was first held in the 1860s as part of the town's Fourth of July celebration. It was abandoned, however, in the 1890s and revived in 1875 primarily through the efforts of Mayor Jerry Seiffert as part of the Labor Day festivities.

According to its organizers, the parade has become one of the premiere end-of-the-summer events in the Northwest. Last year, an estimated 5,000 people packed Ketchum's streets to watch the parade, and organizers expect as many Saturday. The wagons are the last true symbol of Ketchum's early history. The few remaining historic buildings, although important, are typical of early Western towns. The wagons, however, embody the mining heritage of the town's first years.

Seiffert says the museum finally gives the wagons the recognition they deserve.

"It gives our heritage a home around which you can build additional exhibits," says Seiffert of the new museum.

In the spring of 1880, there was only one cabin near the site of present-day Ketchum. It was owned by David Ketchum, a trapper who gave the town its name after the name "Leadville" was rejected by the U.S. Postal Service because there were too many towns of that name throughout the mining districts of the West.

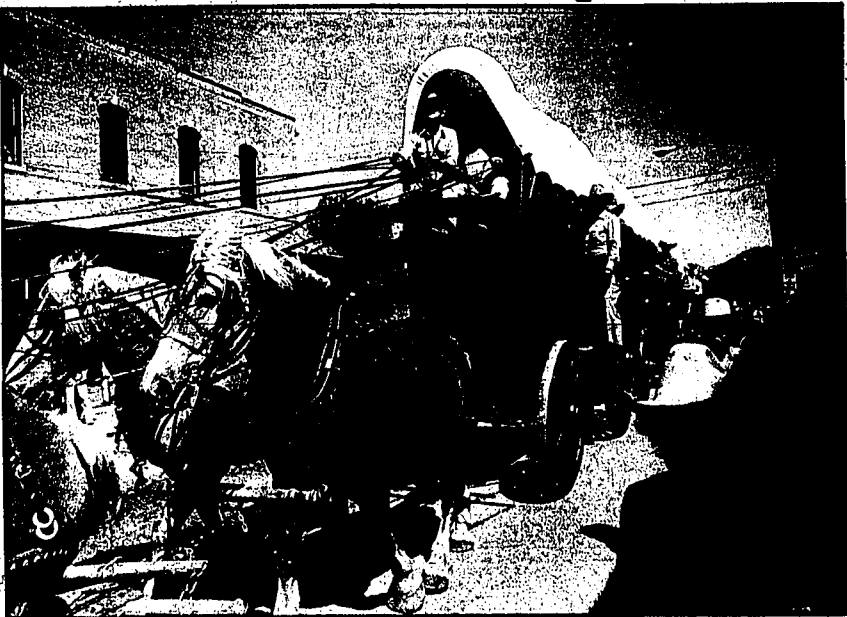

The "Bannock Wars" between the white man and Indians had ended the year before and eliminated any threat from Indians in south central Idaho. The mountains that feed the Big Wood River were finally safe for miners to enter.

As winter passed that year, Isaac Lewis and two friends left Montana seeking the fortunes found in the mines, an ore comprised of silver, lead and zinc and found in mountains around the Wood River.

"Lewis and his two friends were the second party to reach the future site of Ketchum that spring. The first had already staked the lots for the new town site, and Lewis bought the first two.

The region boomed rapidly as miners rushed to claim their part of the riches. Not only Ketchum, but Halley and Bellevue grew to become large towns that served the numerous small mining communities in the Pioneer, Boulder and Smoky mountains.

For a while, the Wood River Valley was the busiest area in the Idaho Territory. A railroad was put through to Ketchum, Halley had Idaho's first electric lights and Bellevue was seriously considered for the seat of the territorial government.

Miners needed supplies, and their ore needed transportation to railroads or the smelter in Ketchum. To meet that need, the Lewis built the huge wagons and started their freight line.

The wagon trains, pulled by teams of up to 22 horses and mules, ventured as far as Challis for ore. They could carry more than 18,000 pounds each and hauled 700,000 tons of ore in one year. The freight line reached 30 wagons and 700 horses and mules at one time at its peak.

Despite its early success, mining died quickly, and by the early 20th century, the wagons were no longer in use.

They remained in the valley, however, and were stored in various locations while sporadic efforts were made to find a permanent home for them.

It took 60 years to build it. As they have for the previous 10 years, the wagons will be the last entry in the 80-entry, non-motorized parade, following other relics from the past, horse teams and floats.

The parade features three marching bands: the U.S. 25th Army Band from the Idaho National Guard, the Burley Junior High School and High School band and the Jerome High School Band.

Wenty Jaquet, director of the Sun Valley-Ketchum Chamber of Commerce, says the parade is the largest in its 11 years. Last year had about 70 entries, she says. The parade will run from the Sun Valley Horseman's Center west through Ketchum, turn north on Main Street (Idaho 75) and return to the Horseman's Center on Saddle Road.

The weekend's events include: • Ore Wagons Museum dedication, 3 p.m. Friday, Fifth Street and East Avenue.

• A children's carnival, 3 p.m. to 10 p.m. Friday and all day Saturday.

Repertory group performs 'Godspell'

By DAVE LEWIS
Times-News correspondent

KETCHUM — The Idaho Repertory Theatre presents its version of "Godspell," a lively musical based on the Gospel of St. Matthew, in three performances during the weekend in Ketchum.

The performances of gospel, played in modern-day settings, begin at 8:15 p.m. Saturday and 2:30 p.m. and 8:15 p.m. Sunday in the Presbyterian Church of the Bigwood on Warm Springs Road.

Based on the first book of the New Testament, "Godspell" is a loosely-written play that allows each production the freedom to choose its own characters, settings and costumes, says Linda Breltman of Sun Valley, a member of the cast.

"When the show is done, you continually update it," says Breltman. "The show has a basic skeleton of a script, then the particular company will create its own parables from skeleton," she says.

The audience will recognize the characters, but not necessarily as Jesus Christ's contemporaries, but as people or characters from 20th century America.

Making appearances, Breltman says, is Scarlett O'Hara and a punked-out prodigal son, while "Trivial Pursuit" and "Classic Coke" are mentioned in play. The technique applies the parables of Jesus to contemporary situations without changing their significance, she says.

Bellevue plans Labor Day Celebration

By BARBARA NEIWERT
Times-News correspondent

BELLEVUE — To help celebrate summer's last three-day weekend, the city of Bellevue has a full day scheduled for the annual Bellevue Labor Day Celebration.

Complete with parade, shoot-out, barbecue and carnival, the festivities begin early Monday with the sixth annual Lions "Run for Sight" race. The 10-kilometer race begins at the Lions Park in Halley, with registration between 8 and 9 a.m. The race begins at 9 a.m.

The course follows Broadford Road along the Big Wood River and across the newly completed Broadford Bridge, winding up at the Bellevue City Park, organizer Steve Carlisle said. A tax-deductible entry fee of $10 provides participants with a T-shirt and a button which admits the entrant to the afternoon barbecue. Carlisle encourages everyone to enter the race, as the course is easy and the festivities following the race are fun for all, he said.

Proceeds will be used to benefit the Lion's winter camp for visually impaired children. For further information contact Carlisle at 738-9487. At 10:30 a.m., the Days of the Old West Committee re-enacts the antics of an old Western "shoot-out" on Main Street.

The Labor Day Parade follows at 11:30 a.m. on Main Street with commercial, religious and civic floats, several horseriding groups, antique cars and carriages, and children participating. The Wood River High School marching band is expected to perform. Prizes will be awarded for the best entrants, and anyone wishing to participate in the parade is welcome, said organizers.

A Western barbecue will be served at 1 p.m. in the city park at a cost of $2 per person. Barbecue buttons can be purchased from any of the Chamber of Commerce merchants or at the park.

The Wood River Home Builders Association is sponsoring bingo at the park following the parade.

The Old Time Fiddlers will be on hand to perform at the park from 1 p.m. until 2:30 p.m., followed by a Western swing dance demonstration by Lia's Western Swingers at 2:30 p.m. Cadillac Carl, a local group featuring western music as well as music from the '50s, will perform from 5 p.m. until 9 p.m.

At 3:30 p.m., street sports begin. This activity is open for participants ages 5 years and up. Prize money will be awarded for winners in the foot races, three-legged races, the shoe kick and sack races.

There also will be a "Sawdust Scramble" for younger kids. The Chamber of Commerce will hide $100 in change in a pile of sawdust and turn the kids loose to find it, creating a sport which is as much fun for the spectators as it is for the participants, said organizers.

A carnival will be set up Sunday afternoon and continue through Monday evening.

Organizer Lyle Guffy said the Labor Day event draws some 5,000 to 6,000 people to Bellevue, with about 2,500 people turning out for the barbecue. Carlisle is anticipating 120 entrants in the "Run for Sight" race as well.

Vintage motorcycle show graces park

By BONNIE BRIND JONES
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — This will be a big weekend for Idaho's fanatics of vintage motorcycles, with more than 50 antique and classic machines on display Sunday in the Twin Falls City Park.

The Idaho Vintage Motorcycle Club will be sponsoring the ninth annual rally and show in Twin Falls with a tour, show and swap on the agenda. The public is invited to visit the display at the park. There is no admission charge.

A ride is scheduled for 4 p.m. Saturday from the park and will open the weekend's festivities. This will be followed by banquet at George K's Restaurant at 7 p.m.

The concours display-Sunday will be open from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. The Idaho group's president, Frank Batten of Boise, said the display includes cycles of American, English, Czechoslovakian, German, Austrian and Italian origin dating from 1910. There will also be some early Japanese bikes of the 1950s and 1960s, he said.

The club has invited anyone with vintage bikes to bring them to the park for display. He said club rules require that bikes be at least 10 years old. No choppers, customs or modern bikes or parts are allowed at the show.

No entry fees are required, and there will be a "low-key" swap meet at the show, with members offering parts for sale or trade.

This is one of three shows the Idaho cycle group holds each year. Others are in Caldwell and Lewiston.

Batten said last year about 1,000 persons attended or participated in the Twin Falls event. Additional information is available from Lloyd Libert of Twin Falls at 733-6346 or Lynn Snider of Boise, 362-6319.

Wagon Days Parade: a rousing summer holidays conclusion

A major attraction in a Labor Day weekend here is the annual Wagon Days Parade on Saturday. Beginning at noon, the parade takes a loop from the Sun Valley Horseman's Center on Saddle Road west through Ketchum, north on Main Street (Idaho 75) and back to the center.

Carriages, floats, bands and other entries will be featured in the parade, which is the largest in its 11-year history.

The parade is sponsored by the Sun Valley-Ketchum Chamber of Commerce. It is a rousing conclusion to the summer holidays.

Making this 11th annual parade notable is the display of the Lewis wagons, which are the last true symbol of Ketchum's early history. The wagons, which were used to haul supplies and ore between town and surrounding Wood River Valley mining communities, still roll on the same streets of this mountain town. The wagons will be the last entry in the 80-entry, non-motorized parade, following other relics from the past, horse teams and floats.

Art in the Airport program will highlight Idaho artists

BOISE — Artists may now apply to have their work displayed in the new exhibit space at the Boise Municipal Airport. Applications will be accepted until Oct. 1.

The Art in the Airport program presents high-quality exhibitions of artwork in the site display cases in the Boise airport concourse. The program offers individual Idaho artists and arts organizations the opportunity to exhibit their work or collections of work and gain exposure in a highly visible, public environment. Each selected exhibit will be in place for about six weeks. Applications will be reviewed and exhibits selected twice a year by a committee consisting of persons representing the Boise City Arts Commission, Boise Gallery of Art, Idaho Commission on the Arts, Boise State University art department, Boise city schools art programs, Idaho State Historical Society and Boise Junior League.

Following the Oct. 1 deadline, the committee will select as many high quality, suitable exhibits as possible. The first exhibit, chosen by this process will be in place by Oct. 24. Applications will be reviewed again in the spring.

The program began in August, in time for the National Governors' Conference, with an exhibit by Boise sculptor A.J. Kober. The second exhibit, will be work by Boise painter Edith Hope, will begin Sept. 12.

To obtain an application and exhibition guidelines, contact John Shelton at the Idaho Commission on the Arts, 304 West State Street, Boise, ID 83720, or call 324-2118.

Idaho Reports begins 4th season

BOISE — Idaho Reports, Idaho Public Television's nightly public affairs program, debuts its fourth season on the air Sept. 2 at 6:30 p.m. over ITPBS's three stations, KATD, KISU and KIDT.

The only statewide public affairs show on the air in Idaho, Idaho Reports provides coverage of issues which affect the lives of Idahoans, with guests selected to present a wide range of expertise and opinion. Hosted by veteran public affairs correspondent Marc Johnson, Idaho Reports producers from around the state team up to focus on how the day's topic is viewed throughout the state.

Idaho Reports returns to the air under the direction of new executive producer, Ken Mundt. Mundt joins Idaho Reports from Wisconsin, where his public television background has included most recently experience as the senior producer and host of WHA-TV's public affairs magazine series, By-Lines.

Mundt says he plans to continue, with the formula that in years past has helped Idaho Reports win numerous awards for excellence in journalism.

Portland Opera invites singers to audition

PORTLAND — Portland Opera General Director Robert Bailey has announced that applications are now being accepted for the Sixth Annual Eleanor Anderson Lieber Awards for Young Singers auditions program, which will take place on Oct. 5-6 at Portland State University.

Contestants from the four Northwest states of Oregon, Washington, Idaho and Montana will compete for a total of $3,500 in prizes, and the first-prize winner will also be offered a paid recital tour.

The auditions program was inaugurated in 1980 by Portland Opera patron Eleanor Anderson Lieber to help provide performance and development opportunities for outstanding, young career-oriented Northwest singers. In 1984 about 45 young artists competed in the program.

Bailey says that the auditions are open to singers between the ages of 20 and 31 who have had advanced voice training and possess artistic aptitude. They must be prepared to sing four arias in two foreign languages plus English. All applicants will be screened by members of the Portland Opera staff, and the finalists will be judged by a prestigious panel headed by Henry Holt, guest conductor of POA's pro-folio, The Tales of Hoffman (Sept. 28, Oct. 2 and 5 at the Civic Auditorium). Daniel Stern, conductor of the Boise Philharmonic Orchestra, will be among the panelists.

Bailey also said that the finals on Oct. 5 will be broadcast for the first time by tape delay over the radio stations of Oregon Public Broadcasting, KOAP-FM and KOAC-AM.

The application deadline has been extended to Sept. 14. Interested singers are invited to contact Helen Stratkots at the Portland Opera office for more information and an application. POA's mailing address is 1530 SW Second Avenue, Portland, OR 97201 or call 503-241-1407.

Play

the show," Brettman says.

Directed by David Grabarkewitz, the show played three times in Boise last weekend and received favorable reviews in the Idaho Statesman and Idaho Press-Tribune in Nampa.

It played to sold-out audiences in Washington, D.C., for two years. Presented in two acts, the first part of the play deals primarily with the parables of Jesus while the second sets out his betrayal and other events surrounding the crucifixion.

Brettman says 18 songs, based on scriptures and backed by a three-piece band, are presented by the nine players. The song are lively, she says, but true to their source.

Three members of the cast are from the Wood River Valley: Brettman, Michael Scheline and Lori Roberto. The rest are from Boise.

Brettman says the cast will break up following the Ketchum performances because some of the players and Grabarkewitz have obligations elsewhere.

The Idaho Repertory Theatre's version of "Godspell" received favorable reviews for the Boise performances despite the short time the company had to put it together.

Because the cast was split between Blaine County and Boise, they practiced for only three weekends before the Boise performances. Those weekend sessions, Brettman says, were very long.

The troupe was fortunate, however, because some of the members had performed in "Godspell" before, she says.

Tickets for the Ketchum performances are on sale at Chapter One Book Store on Main Street. Prices are $6 for the evening performances and $4 for the Sunday matinee.

Gallery exhibits Wendell art

TWIN FALLS — Emma Coleman of Wendell has been chosen to display during Larson Art's "Artist of the Month" series in September. Coleman is an Idaho native whose parents were among the early settlers of the Wendell area. The artist points out that after many years of traveling with her husband in the construction business, she has now made Wendell her permanent home.

Coleman says she has had a lifelong interest in art but that it wasn't until 1974 that she began studying oil painting. Her many hours of independent study include the history and development of the Magic Valley. According to the artist, her work reflects her interest in the area's early history as well as her love of Idaho's magnificent scenery. Aside from that, she also paints doll house pictures to scale.

Coleman's display can be viewed at 132 Main Ave. N. from 9 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Monday through Saturday.

Lewis hosts 20th telethon for muscular dystrophy aid

By TIM DAHLBERG Associated Press Writer.

LAS VEGAS, Nev. — Comedian Jerry Lewis, whose Labor Day crusades have raised more than $300 million for the Muscular Dystrophy Association, will be host for his 20th annual telethon this weekend on a nationwide syndicate of nearly 200 television stations.

The Jerry Lewis Telethon, which began its Labor Day run in 1966 on a single New York station, took in a record $32 million last year.

"We certainly hope to set a new record this year," said telethon spokesman Craig Wood.

The telethon will run 21½ hours beginning Sunday at 9 p.m. EDT from the sports pavilion at the Caesars Palace resort on the Las Vegas Strip.

Millon Berle, in his first appearance since recent heart surgery, and Frank Sinatra head the usual array of stars who will sing, dance, tell jokes and plead for contributions.

What has become the nation's richest telethon began when $1 million was raised in the New York telethon. This year, 196 stations will carry the program, parts of which will be seen in an estimated 34 million homes.

Lewis, as has been his custom, will be the host during the entire program, with help from television personality Ed McMahon in Las Vegas, "Cecils" from Casey Kasem in Los Angeles and Sammy Davis Jr. in Atlantic City, N.J., will be included.

Thousands of volunteer phone operators from across the country will take contributions. At Caesars Palace, tourists and residents once again are expected to line up in 100-degree heat for their chance to get inside and watch an hour of the show.

Though volunteers staff most positions during the telecast, the costs of setting up the program and paying production and staff fees will chop several million dollars off the total.

Still, Wood called the telethon a "cost effective" way of raising money in the fight against Muscular Dystrophy, an umbrella name for a group of about 40 diseases which affect the muscular system.

"An investment of several million to make, say $28 million, is a good way to go," he said.

Wood said the MDA collects about 90 percent of the amount pledged by sending invoices to donors followed by second and third reminders if necessary.

This year's show features such entertainers as the Beach Boys and Wayne Newton and Liberace.

But the undisputed star is Lewis, who has transformed the telethon into a kind of a personal art and is involved in almost every aspect of the program.

"I don't know how he does it," said Wood. "It's got the most energy of anybody I've ever seen."

CAPSULE REVIEWS

Ratings are by the Motion Picture Association of America and the Los Angeles Times. Opinions are by Los Angeles Times reviewers.

BACK TO THE FUTURE (PG).

An interesting premise — a teenager travels back in time and falls into the middle of his parents' romance — that is underdeveloped and overproduced. There are a few nice moments of nostalgia for a sexually upright, unenlightened past, but there are not enough bits of lovely inventiveness to pad out the gimmick. The outcome is hollow and materialistic.

THE BLACK CAULDRON (PG).

The splendid visuals of this Disney epic, 12 years in the making, are as welcome as rain in the desert. It is some of the best work the studio has produced since Walt Disney's death in 1966. The subtle, nuanced motions of these characters will come as a revelation. If its script and direction were equal to the animation, "Cauldron" would be a masterpiece to rank with "Snow White" and "Pinocchio." Instead of the frustrating, beautiful, exciting and ultimately unsatisfying film that it is.

EXPLORERS (PG).

Gentle, graceful children's space adventure has thin stretches but builds to provocative meeting with whimsical aliens nurtured on violent TV transmissions; and therefore terrified of adult humans. A handsome film, directed by "Gremlins" Joe Dante with Ethan Hawke, River Phoenix, Jason Presson.

MAD MAX BEYOND THUNDERDOME (PG-13).

The third in Australian director George Miller's "Mad Max" series closes the trilogy like a lightning bolt followed by the ominous, resonant drone of thunder. We are 15 years past the time of "The Road Warrior" in an even more primitive, post-apocalyptic age, and Mel Gibson's Max, laconic wanderer through chaos, has become a bit gentler and wiser. Tina Turner makes a smashing villainess, and even though Miller waits until the climax to haul out his speciality — the hell-for-leather car chase — he then stages one that almost blinds you out of the theater. A great action film, and, in every sense of the description, outrageously entertaining.

NATIONAL LAMPOON'S EUROPEAN VACATION (PG-13).

The family Griswold returns, only to be done in by a laborious, wordy dog of a script (by John Hughes and Robert Klane) and by direction (Amy Heckerling) that attempts to cover the story's bald spots by speeded-up action. Every moment is predictable, every performance wasted. With Chevy Chase.

PRIZZI'S HONOR (R).

Prime John Huston, the director, casts a playful eye at Richard Condon's (and Janet Roach's) story of love, family loyalty and betrayal in and around a Mafia family where every emotion is larger than life, but death is only business. In its intricacy, it is like "The Maltese Falcon" done as Italian opera and set in Brooklyn. Jack Nicholson, Kathleen Turner, and (especially) Anjelica Huston as Macroe Prizzi are marvelous. Watching a thought make its way from behind Nicholson's eyes and, by a circuitous route, finally come out of his mouth is a monumental pleasure. This is probably the most satisfying role Nicholson has ever had and he attacks it with an unabashed delight that in the audience shares royally.

VOLUNTEERS (R).

The most arrogant rich boy in Yale's class of '62, Lawrence Bourne III wins off to the jungles of Thailand with the Peace Corps. Bourne's unlikely gesture is propelled not by idealism, but by money — he is escaping a massive gambling debt. It is a nifty premise for a comedy, but aside from a few hottentanny jokes, "Volunteers" is not a satire of the New Frontier, but a Yuppie comedy in disguise. Without a likeable character at its core, the film degenerates into an outlandish series of episodic adventures, depicting the Asian populace as cartoonish, eye-rolling caricatures.

WEIRD SCIENCE (PG-13).

Yet another John Hughes 15-year-old boy wish-fulfillment movie: in this one, two high school social pariahs (Anthony Michael Hall and Ian Mitchell-Smith) computer-create a woman to their own specifications. Luckily for us, it is Kelly LeBrock, who somehow manages to rise above everything that follows, including the "cool" scene of racial bigotry which seems now obligatory in Hughes' films. You might think by now kids would object to constant portrayals as sex-crazed house-wrecking morons.

YEAR OF THE DRAGON (R).

Michael Tiockles is sent to clean up the marauding youth gangs of New York's Chinatown in an astonishing success from Michael Cimino. The film has an arrogant, electric energy that dares you to look away from the screen for an instance, leaving you feeling that you have been smuggled behind the scenes of a closed world. Towering, claustrophobic and exhausting.

Jagger, Hall have 1st boy

NEW YORK (AP) — Mick Jagger's glittering model Jerry Hall gave birth to their second child Wednesday, a 7-pound, blond boy who is the couple's first son.

The Rolling Stones singer was present at an undisclosed New York hospital when Hall gave birth at 11:50 a.m., according to Geraldine McInerney of Mahoney Wasserman, the Stones' publicist.

"Both the baby and mother are healthy and whole and happy," Ms. McInerney said. No name has been given to the child.

Jagger, 42, and Miss Hall, 29, have one daughter, 17-month-old Scarlet. Jagger has two other daughters: Jade, 12, from his marriage to Bianca Perez Morena de Maclas, and Karis, 13, by actress Marsha Hunt.

Miss Hall recently published a book, "Tall Tales," about her modeling career and her life with Jagger.

Fox muscles in on Stallone's draw stronghold

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Actor Michael J. Fox in any form is popular at the box office as "Back to the Future" led the list of weekend film showings followed by "Teen Wolf," where Fox portrays a werewolf.

The Atlantic Releasing Co.'s "Teen Wolf" earned $6.1 million during the weekend, making it the largest opening in the company's history.

The diminutive Fox has become a threat to muscle-bound Sylvester Stallone's reign as the summer's top box office draw.

"Back to the Future" amassed $6.7 million during the weekend and $11.8 million since its opening eight weeks ago. "Rambo: First Blood Part II," which stars Stallone, grossed $1.1 million during the weekend and has total earnings of $14 million.

Pee-Wee Herman also demonstrated box-office muscle for Warner Bros. as "Pee-Wee's Big Adventure" earned $4 million in receipts over the weekend. Fewer audiences took up the call for "Volunteers" as it dropped from second to fourth place earning $3.6 million for Tri-Star.

"Year of the Dragon" Michael Cimino's violent took into corruption in New York's Chinatown, drew a smaller audience, grossing $2.9 million to earn fifth place.

Fewer moviegoers also viewed the zombie-fest "Return of the Living Dead," which made $2.8 million in taking sixth place.

"Summer Rental," towined in seventh with $2.3 million and a reissued film destined for fall rental on videocassette, "Ghostbusters," earned $2 million.

"National Lampoon's European Vacation" garnered $1.7 million, placing ninth in its fourth week of release. Fountain-of-youth comedy "Cocoon" completed the top 10 list with $1.7 million in receipts.

A change of pace from the summer's science fiction comedies, "Warning Sign," earned only $707,000 at the box office during its opening weekend.

Here are the top seven films at the box office this past weekend, with distributor, weekend gross, number of screens, total gross and number of weeks in release:

1. "Back to the Future," Universal, $6.8 million, 1,523 screens, 81 weeks.
2. "Teen Wolf," Atlantic, $6.1 million, 1,416 screens, $6.1 million, one week.
3. "Pee-Wee's Big Adventure," Warner Bros., $4 million, 892 screens, $19.8 million, five weeks.
4. "Volunteers," Tri-Star, $3.6 million, 1,468 screens, $10.8 million, two weeks.
5. "Year of the Dragon," MGM-UA, $2.9 million, 970 screens, $9.9 million, two weeks.
6. "The Return of the Living Dead," Orion, $2.8 million, 1,500 screens, $9.3 million, two weeks.
7. "Summer Rental," Paramount, $2.3 million, 1,251 screens, $17.2 million, three weeks.

NBC, CBS tie in ratings

By RICHARD DEATLEY Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES — With the summer season of reruns and short-run shows closing, NBC and CBS came to a draw in the Nielsen ratings for the week ended Aug. 25, stopping NBC's domination that began in June.

CBS actually came out ahead in terms of percentage of viewers, according to figures released Tuesday by the A.C. Nielsen Co.

In overall rating averages for the week, CBS had 12.6, or 10.6 million households, which NBC matched. But CBS polled a 23 average share, or percentage of viewers, while NBC drew 22. ABC had an 11.8 rating, or 10 million households, and a 21 share.

NBC had five of the Top 10 shows last week, CBS had four and ABC had one.

NBC, which depended on reruns of hit programs such as "The Cosby Show," "Family Ties," and "Miami Vice," had led the ratings race all summer long.

"Hometown," a new CBS show that premiered Thursday, placed No. 23 with a 13.8 rating, or 12.3 million households. The show about former campus activists from the 1960s has the flavor of the 1983 hit movie "The Big Chill." "Hometown" is not a summer show. It is slated for Thursday at 10 p.m. through Sept. 19 and afterward will be pitted against NBC's "The A-Team" at 8 p.m. on Tuesday.

Yesterday's Puzzle Solved:

L.M. Boyd What's what

You want to make your fortune? Grow a truly blue rose. There has never been one.

About seven centuries ago — in 1371, to be exact — the Queen of France sent the Queen of England several dolls dressed in the latest French fashions. You know the story: The doll outfits were copied by English dressmakers, and costumed dolls from France went wherever ships went; thereafter, making France the fashion designer of the western world. It's why models are known as mannequins. That's what those dolls were called.

In Northwest Brazil, cannibalistic tribesfolk claim the tastiest part of the human body is the palm of the hand.

AIR CONDITIONING

Q. What was the first car to offer air conditioning as an option?
A. The 1939 Packard.

Alps! Alps! Alps! That's all you ever hear about. Six peaks in the Caucasus are higher than any Alp, but you don't hear about them. Why not?

Q. If camels originated in North America, how did they get to Asia?
A. Same way the people who originated in Asia got here. Across the Bering Strait. Or so the scientists think.

To see 80,000 miles of wire cables, scan the span called The Golden Gate.

GIANT GRASSHOPPER

To some natives of South America's Colombia, this 1985 is the 36th year of the grasshopper. That's how long ago it was that surveyors first choppered over Colombia. The natives were mighty impressed with that helicopter. They thought it was a giant grasshopper and they started a whole new calendar, dating from then.

Q. What's the most popular ornamental plant in the world?
A. The rose.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to March 20) Have discussions with outside allies and come to a fine meeting of minds. Greater progress is possible in the future.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY...he or she should be taught early in life the importance of spiritual, moral and ethical verities and then the life will have a real purpose and your progeny will not be confused. - PG-13 Parents are strongly cautioned to give special guidance for children under 13. Some material may be inappropriate for young children.

All films rated after July 1 will be given ratings under the new five-category system.

Dad prefers not to attend racy bachelor's party

DEAR ABBY: I hope you can offer a practical solution to me, and millions of other fathers who face the following dilemma:

A son, about to be married, invites his father to his bachelor party that takes place the night before the wedding. In 1985, it seems that an X-rated, sexually explicit film is shown as part of the program. Fathers and prospective fathers-in-law are invited to attend, along with the bridegroom and his male friends.

How can a male parent who really doesn't want to attend this kind of party decline without making himself appear prudish or square? Or, if he does attend in order to be accepted as "one of the boys," what is the proper conduct at such parties?

—OKIE FROM MUSKOGEE

DEAR OKIE: A male parent can decline by saying, "Thanks, but if you don't mind, I think I'll pass." And if he attends, he should sit in the back of the room and be himself.

Tourists flock to Gibraltar after opening

GIBRALTAR (AP) — Tourism is booming in Gibraltar six months after Spain opened the border separating the rock from Europe, the Ministry of Tourism reported Tuesday. It had been closed for 16 years.

The ministry reported that more than 280,000 tourists converged on the 2.2-square-mile British colony so far this month, up from 250,000 in July.

The late Gen. Francisco Franco closed the border between Spain and Gibraltar in 1969 in an attempt to pressure the British, who have held the colony by treaty since 1713, to enter negotiations over its sovereignty.

The move effectively cut Gibraltar and its 25,000 inhabitants off from land access to Europe.

Abigail VanBuren Dear Abby

DEAR ABBY: My name is Angel Wiltz. I am 9 years old and I am a captain in one of the "Just Say No" clubs, helping other kids to say no to drugs.

These clubs are being started all over the country. They were formed last February under Oakland Parents in Action, a program to educate parents in early drug prevention.

Our aim is to get kids to say no to drugs because drugs will mess up their minds, hurt their bodies, ruin their chances in life, hurt their grades, make their parents sad, and get them in trouble with the law.

If any of your readers would like to know how to start a "Just Say No" club in their own communities, they can send a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to: Oakland Parents in Action, 1504 Franklin St., Suite 610, Oakland, Calif. 94612. Or call: (415) 836-6078.

Thank you

—ANGEL WILTZ

DEAR ANGEL: Glad to help. Please give me a progress report.

DEAR ABBY: I live in an area of Texas where tornadoes are apt to occur, so I try to learn all the safety precautions I can.

Lately, people have been telling me that I should keep my windows closed during a tornado.

Abby, I've always heard that you should keep your windows open. Could you please straighten this out for me?

—CONFUSED IN TEXAS

DEAR CONFUSED: My experts say to leave at least one window open on each side of the house to keep it from imploding. (That's the reverse of "exploding.")

DEAR ABBY: What's the proper etiquette here? A friend of mine is expecting triplets. Must everyone who attends her baby shower give her three presents, or is one gift acceptable? Any suggestions?

DEAR OVER: Give her three gifts, one for each baby; the cost of all three should amount to whatever you would have spent had she been expecting a single. She may appreciate a gift certificate for a diaper service.

(Getting married? Send for Abby's new updated, expanded booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding." Send your name and address clearly printed with a check or money order.

Bosco's 500-yard passing lifts BYU past Boston 28-14

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) — Robby Bosco completed 55 of 83 passes for a career-high 508 yards and Glen Kozlowski caught 10 for 241 as Brigham Young opened defense of its 1984 national championship Thursday night by defeating Boston College 28-14 in the third annual Kickoff Classic.

The victory stretched the nation's longest winning streak to 25 games and got BYU off and winging in the opening game of the college football season.

Bosco and Kozlowski teamed up on four long-range passes to set up BYU's first three touchdowns and then put the game away on a 22-yard touchdown pass with 8:32 left to play.

It was Bosco's third touchdown pass of the contest. He also flipped a 6-yarder to Mark Bellini to start the scoring early in the second quarter and fired a 12-yarder to Bellini late in the third quarter to snap a tie after BYU had blown a 14-0 lead. Bellini caught nine passes for 111 yards.

Boston College unveiled a new starting quarterback in Shawn Halloran, who spent the last two seasons backing up Heisman Trophy winner Doug Flutie. The fourth-year junior got off to a shaky start and finished with 18 completions in 37 attempts for 165 yards. He was intercepted three times while Bosco had four passes picked off.

Boston College, 10-2 a year ago and Cotton Bowl champion, scored on a 1-yard run by John Mihalk in the second period and tied the score on Troy Stradford's 5-yard run at 9:27 of the third quarter.

But the Cougars had something to prove to a Giants Stadium crowd of 61,227 and a television audience in 92 percent of the nation, and Bosco answered the tying touchdown with a 51-yard bomb to Kozlowski at the Eagles' 12-yard line. The next play was his second touchdown pass to Bellini and put BYU ahead to stay.

Despite last season's championship, BYU was only ranked No. 10 in this year's Associated Press preseason poll. Boston College was not ranked after finishing fifth a year ago.

BYU's 508 passing yards was the most ever against a Boston College team, surpassing the 477 yards of Mike Smith several years ago because his career lifestyle did not conform with the Mormon university's strict rules of discipline.

The senior split end from Carlsbad, Calif., played much of the game with leg cramps that the drive forced him to the sidelines.

Bosco's first touchdown pass to Bellini capped an eight-play, 48-yard drive, including a 30-yard Bosco-to-Kozlowski pass on third- and 20 that put the ball on the BC 28. The drive also included a third-down pass interference penalty against Boston College.

BYU scored again less than four minutes later for a 14-0 lead.

After BYU took a 21-14 lead, Bosco survived two interceptions and a fourth sack, all by BC's standout nose guard Mike Ruth.

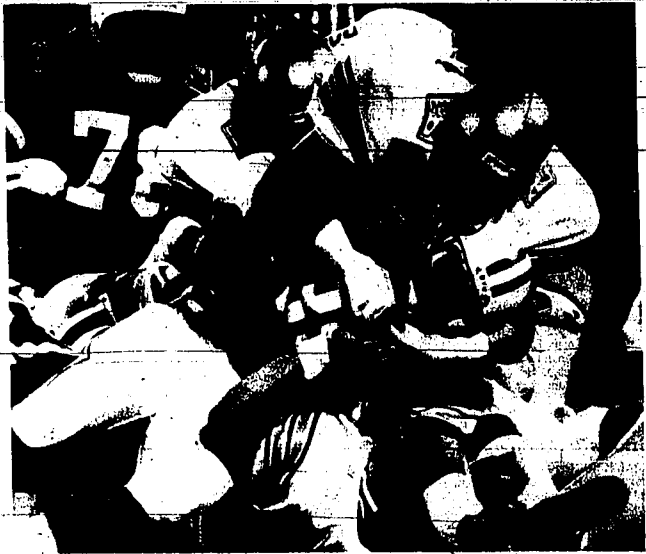

The insurance drive began with 12:24 remaining at the BYU 27. With Bosco running the Cougars' ball-control passing game to perfection by completing six passes in as many attempts for 49 yards, they moved to the BC 27. After an incomplete and a five-yard screen pass to Kelly Smith, Kozlowski beat cornerback Rorery Perryman in the end zone and Bellini him periodically.

Kozlowski was almost expelled from BYU several years ago because his career lifestyle did not conform with the Mormon university's strict rules of discipline.

BYU fullback Kakei Helmuli is topped by Boston's defense after a short gain.

Undhjem wins golf crown in overtime

BURLEY — Virginia Undhjem, Twin Falls, birdied the first extra hole Thursday to claim the championship in the annual Burlingame White Salt Sugar Women's Amateur.

Undhjem canned a 15-foot putt on the first green to close out runner-up Sergene Sorenson, Burley, after the two had battled to a tie at 159 over the two-day tournament.

Undhjem had entered the day with a one-stroke lead on Bette Davis, Twin Falls, and two over Sorenson. Davis ran into trouble and had to settle for third gross, but Sorenson came back to pick up a stroke on each nine and force the playoff.

The victory gave Undhjem a sweep of the prizes as she teamed with Jerri Hutchings and Betsy to claim the scotchball derby over Terrie Simpson and Gladys Moody.

Top seeds cruise along in U.S. Open

NEW YORK (AP) — Top-seeded Chris Evert Lloyd rambled into the third round of the U.S. Open Tennis Championships Thursday night, while defending champion John McEnroe and West Germany continued their march toward an expected quarterfinal showdown.

Lloyd, seeking her seventh U.S. Open title, demolished Raffaella Reggi of Italy 6-0, 6-3 in a night match.

McEnroe, who barely survived the first round, eliminated Martin Wostenholme of Canada 6-0, 7-6, 6-1, while the 17-year-old Becker crushed Huub van Boeckel of the Netherlands 6-0, 6-0, 6-2.

One seed tumbled out of the chase for the title on this, the third day of the $3 million tournament. Greg Holmes, a former NCAA champion, upset No. 12 Johan Kriek 2-6, 6-3, 6-4, 6-1.

Also ousted was Andrea Jaeger, once ranked No. 2 in the world. Jaeger fell to Kathy Jordan 3-6, 6-2, 6-2.

In tears, Jaeger rushed off the court surrounded by reporters.

The WTA (Women's Tennis Association) didn't want me when I won," she told a friend. "Now that I lost, they all want to talk to me."

Later, the 29-year-old right-hander, who took almost a year off to recuperate from injuries and has played only four tournaments this year, talked to reporters.

Also advancing into the third round of the women's singles on the hardcourts at the National Tennis Center were third-seeded Hana Mandlikova and No. 7 Helena Sukova, both of Czechoslovakia. No. 5

Claudia Kohde-Kilsch of West Germany, No. 12 Wendy Turnbull of Australia, No. 14 Bonnie Gadusek and No. 15 Carling Bassett of Canada.

Joining Becker and McEnroe in the third round in the men's field was Sweden's troika of Novak Mats Wilander, No. 6 Anders Jarryd and No. 10 Joakim Nyström. No. 13 Tim Mayotte and Czechoslovakia's Tomas Smid, third seed.

McEnroe said he was impressed with Becker, who he intended to operate in the fall starting in 1986.

"Steve is enrolled in school at BYU, school begins next week," Steinberg said. "But he would very much like to play football for Tampa Bay this season."

"Obviously, for Steve to be a member of Tampa Bay and be effective this year, a resolution will have to be reached very quickly."

Young, a 6-foot-2, 200-pound left-hander, was selected by Tampa Bay in a special NFL supplemental draft of USFL talent in 1984. He worked out with the Buccaneers earlier this month.

Stenberg had said a couple of weeks ago that the USFL was demanding what he called "a king's ransom" for the rights to Young, but the attorney didn't sound concerned about the situation Thursday.

If 1920s were sports' golden age, this has to be 'green age'

Editor's note — Sports is paying the price for a decade of free spending. This second of a three-part series traces the increases in salaries, television money and franchise values.

By BRUCE LOWITT The Associated Press

If the 1920s were the "Golden Age" of sports, the 1970s and 1980s will be remembered as the "Green Age," a time of million-dollar contracts for athletes and multimillion-dollar prizes for franchisees.

"When I started out in 1962, if a guy was making $15,000, that was a lot. They had no leverage," said lawyer and player-agent Bob Woolf.

Then new leagues — the American Basketball Association, the World Hockey Association — started springing up.

Baseball's television rights went from $250 million for the old five-year contract to $1.1 billion for the current six-year package.

The NBA has just completed four-year contracts that brought in $121 million from CBS and cable systems, up from $74 million the preceding four years.

"That, along with changing the laws like the reserve clause, really exploded everything," Woolf said. In the past decade, according to various league and union sources, the average salary has risen from $74,204 to $152,000 in the NHL, from $70,000 to $332,000 in the NBA, from $33,000 to $157,819 in the NFL and from $40,839 to $229,408 in major league baseball — increases of 104 percent to 708 percent.

At the same time, the average annual wage of the non-government worker in the American labor force has risen 80 percent, from $8,593 to $15,290, and the consumer price index has increased 93 percent.

In 1972, three years after signing a $1.4 million, five-year contract with the NBA Milwaukee Bucks, Kareem Abdul-Jabbar described basketball as "big business... a money game" and said $250,000 or more a year was not an excessive salary.

The 1980s brought $1 million a year for such stars as Jabbar and Larry Bird in basketball; Schmidt, Winfield, Jim Rice and Ozzie Smith in baseball. An estimated $4.5 million for three years was paid in 1975.

"The profit margin on the Redskins is thinly marginal but, oh boy, what fun it is!"

When J. Walter Duncan and Ron Blanding obtained charter franchises in the United States Football League, each had to show a $1.5 million letter of credit. A year later, in 1984, Duncan sold the Generals to Donald Trump for $10 million and Blanding sold the Denver Gold to Doug Spedding for about $11 million.

In 1976, when Tampa Bay and Seattle joined the NFL, an expansion franchise cost $16.5 million. In 1984 the Dallas Cowboys, Denver Broncos and San Diego Chargers were sold for $60 million to $80 million apiece. The New Orleans Saints, who have never had a winning season, were sold to a partnership magnate Tom Benson Jr. last June 3 for $70.2 million.

"I've been in touch with (Tampa Bay executive) Phil Krueger every day. I think we're entering a critical phase, the discussions have been encouraging. Hopefully, we can start to see some resolution of the situation over the next week."

The Bucs open the 1985 National Football League season on Sept. 8, facing the Bears at Chicago. The first-string Tampa Bay quarterback is Steve Deberg.

Young, 23, played two years for the Los Angeles Express of the United States Football League after signing a rich, multi-year contract with the team on March 5, 1984 following a brilliant career at Brigham Young University.

The Express is without an owner; the franchise is being run by the USFL, which has stated its intention to operate in the fall starting in 1986.

"Steve is enrolled in school at BYU, school begins next week," Steinberg said. "But he would very much like to play football for Tampa Bay this season."

"Obviously, for Steve to be a member of Tampa Bay and be effective this year, a resolution will have to be reached very quickly."

Ross Rejoins Bengals

CINCINNATI (AP) — The Cincinnati Bengals announced Thursday that tight end Dan Ross, a former Bengals player who left in 1982 to join the Boston Breakers of the rival United States Football League, has signed a contract.

The Bengals declined to disclose any terms of the contract. Ross, 28, who joined the Bengals on Thursday, played for Cincinnati from 1979 to 1983 before departing for the USFL. The Breakers later moved to Portland.

Rangers trade Cliff Johnson

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — The Texas Rangers traded designated hitter Cliff Johnson, a 12-year veteran, to the Toronto Blue Jays for three players to be identified later, the club announced Thursday.

Johnson, 38, played two years for Toronto before the Rangers signed him as a free agent last December. He was batting .257 with 12 home runs and 56 RBI this season.

Parrish cited in drug charge

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Former National Football League defensive back Lemar Parrish was in the Palm Beach County jail Thursday, charged with cocaine trafficking and conspiracy, county officials said.

Parrish, who was voted to the Pro Bowl eight times during his 13-year NFL career, was arrested at his Riviera Beach home Tuesday night by undercover agents.

The agents found seven ounces of cocaine worth about $15,000, two handguns and $56,000 in cash in the house, said Palm Beach County Sheriff's Department spokesman Tom Thompson.

Houston Open shows loss

HOUSTON (AP) — The 1985 Houston Open golf tournament lost more than $100,000, forcing operators of the PGA tour stop to dip into reserve money in order to meet charity commitments, officials said.

"The losses were a little greater than we expected, but considering the losses, I think our board showed optimism," Duke Butler, executive director of the Houston Golf Association, said Wednesday. "The financial loss was the first for the tournament since 1966-67, when it was rained out and had to be rescheduled.

Tournament officials had to scramble in their fund-raising efforts when Coca-Cola withdrew its sponsorship, worth $500,000. The break-even point for the tournament was about $1.5 million.

One-arm golfer scores ace

TWIN LAKES, Mich. (AP) — A 70-year-old Upper Peninsula man with one arm and blurred vision says he was "a little excited" after pulling off golf's most coveted accomplishment, a hole-in-one.

Frank Kaarto of Ontonagon County's Mass City used a five iron to ace the 140-yard, par-3 third hole at Wyandotte Hills Golf Course in Twin Lakes.

"That's my first, so I'm a little excited, of course," he said of Tuesday's shot.

Kaarto has no left arm, only four fingers on his right hand and has blurred vision in his right eye. A golfer for 23 years, he recorded his ace during a league playoff competition.

Flutie joins ABC staff

NEW YORK (AP) — Doug Flutie has joined ABC Sports as a studio analyst for its college football telecasts, the network said Thursday.

Flutie, the 1984 Heisman Trophy winner from Boston College who now plays for the New Jersey Generals of the United States Football League, will join studio hosts Jim Lampley and Beano Cook for pregame, halftime and postgame shows. "Doug will provide an added, and special, dimension," said Chuck Howard, the vice president of production for ABC Sports, "a unique and contemporary insight into the college game. Doug's presence in the studio should enhance the pregame, halftime and postgame shows."

U.S. adds gold to university games list

KOBE, Japan (AP) — American Keith Brantley sprinted home for the gold medal in the 10,000 meters and U.S. swimmers raced to two more victories Thursday, but an injured leg was keeping Matt Blondi from trying for a record-tying fifth University gold.

The fifth day of competition in the World University Games also brought world record holder Michael Gross of West Germany his first gold medal here, in the men's 200-meter butterfly.

University records fell in that and three other events, bringing the total of games records to 18 in 25 swimming races, with five still to go on Friday, the last day of swimming here.

The Soviet Union won two golds in swimming and two in first day action in track and field, boosting its total to 20 golds, and 42 medals overall.

The Americans had 32 medals, including 14 golds — two more than they won in the entire 1983 Universiade in Edmonton, Canada. Japan and China each had 12 medals, and Romania had 10.

Swimmers have won 13 of the U.S. golds and expect more on Friday. The games still have six days to go, and divers and basketball players are other leading candidates to win medals.

But the U.S. 400-meter medley relay quartet will be without the services of Blondi, 19, of Moraga, Calif., who has anchored two other relay teams in the victory and won the 100- and 200-meter freestyle races.

"He has an infected bull on the leg. He cut the leg last night while shaving. He won't be racing in the (relay) team tomorrow," said U.S. coach Don Lamont.

But, he added, "we have a lot of capable people on the U.S. team."

Swimmers shave their legs to lower resistance in the water.

In other action Thursday, Hungary beat France for the men's foil fencing team title and Japan won the judo team gold — again with France second.

Brantley, of Gainesville, Fla., ran the 10,000 in 29 minutes, 11.24 seconds, outkicking Mexico's Justo Herrera and Japan's Shuichi Yoneshige in the stretch. Herrera finished in 29:11.71 and Yoneshige in 29:11.73.

"I'm very quick over the last 100 meters, and I prayed for a slow pace so that I could kick," said Brantley, who got just that, partly because of 92-degree heat on the track.

Also at Kobe's main stadium, the Soviet Union's Natalya Lysovskaya won the women's shot put with a toss of 20.47 meters (68 feet 1-1/2 inch). China's Yang Yanling was second with 17.79 (58 feet 1-1/2) and Ramona Pagel of San Diego, Calif., was third with 17.46 (57-1-1/2).

Alexandra Grigorieva of the Soviet Union won the 5,000-meter walk in 22 minutes, 21.10 seconds, with Yan Hong of China second in 22:25.77, and with 17.79 (58 feet 1-1/2) and Ramona Pagel of San Diego, Calif., was third with 17.46 (57-1-1/2).

Mary T. Meagher of Louisville, Kentucky, won her third gold, helping a U.S. quartet to victory in the women's 800-meter medley relay. She still has one more butterfly event to race in on Friday.

Meagher, world record holder in two butterfly events, brought the Americans from two seconds behind the Bulgarians at the halfway point to nearly one second ahead. Then Jenna Johnson of La Habra, Calif., brought the Americans home more than three seconds ahead, picking up her second gold — both in relays.

The Americans won in 4:11.24, breaking the games record of 4:14.10. Bulgaria took the silver medal in 4:14.53.

Stacy Shupe of Cerritos, California, won the Americans' other swimming gold of the day with an 8:45.87 in the women's 800-meter freestyle. Carla Last of Italy was second in 8:47.76.

The Soviet Union's Igor Polyanski became a double gold medalist with a victory in the men's 100-meter backstroke, where his 56.26 beat the games record of 56.64. Mark Rhodebaugh of Cincinnati, Ohio, was second in 56.89 and Canada's Michael West, who held the old games record, was fourth in 57.08.

Soviet swimmer Svetlana Kopychkova won the women's 200-meter individual medley relay in 2:18.11, breaking the games record of 2:19.23. Michele Pearson of Australia was second in 2:18.21.

In men's basketball, the U.S. and Soviet teams remained undefeated as the Americans trounced North Korea 147-47 and the Soviets drubbed Jordan 161-43. The two gold medal contenders meet in a preliminary round game on Friday, but regardless of the outcome, both will advance to the quarterfinals.

The American women's team was idle Thursday and meets China Friday to decide whether it will advance to the semifinals. The Americans are 3-0, Yugoslavia is 3-1 and China is 2-1 in Group B. In Group A, the undefeated Soviet Union was set to advance along with the winner of Friday's Japan-Canada game.

Japan, the United States, West Germany and South Korea advance to the semifinals of women's volleyball on Saturday.

Rate dip spurs housing sales

By MARTIN CRUTSINGER
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Housing sales rose 1.4 percent in July, hitting their highest level in almost two years, the government said Thursday.

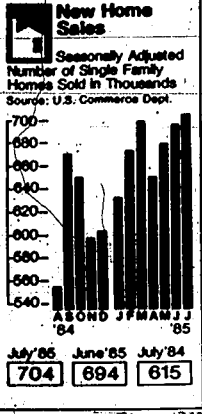

New single-family homes were sold in July at an annual rate of 704,000 units, the highest annual sales pace since December 1983, according to a report by the Commerce Department and the Department of Housing and Urban Development.

In addition, the government revised upward its sales figures from April through June to show more strength than originally reported. The June sales, which last month were reported to have dropped 0.1 percent, actually rose a stronger 2.2 percent, following an even better 4.6 percent May increase.

Economists had been puzzled last month when the government reported new home sales had dropped in June even though mortgage rates had continued falling to their lowest levels in five years.

Commerce Department analyst Matthew Grinberg said the upward revisions stemmed from more sales data included in later sampling reports.

Private economists noted that the increase in new home sales paralleled figures released earlier this week showing that sales of existing homes rose 1.6 percent in July, an annual rate of 3.11 million units, the highest percentage points lower than they were a year ago.

"Today's lower interest rates are causing the housing industry to shine as one of the economy's few bright spots as many other sectors are winding down from the recent economic expansion," said Jack Carlson, chief economist for the National Association of Realtors.

The Reagan administration, counting on strong housing activity, is calling for the economy to rebound to the annual growth of 4.9 percent in the second half of the year, up sharply from the sluggish 1.1 percent rate for the first six months.

Warren Raskoff, executive vice president of the Mortgage Bankers Association, said the sales gains were being reflected also in strong demand for Federal Housing Administration mortgages, which are primarily to first-time homebuyers.

"A good number of buyers have decided that interest rates are as low as they are going to go for a while and they are buying homes," he said.

Lasko predicted that mortgage rates will drop slightly in coming months because of the sluggish economy, but other analysts said they expected little change from the current level.

James Christian, chief economist for the U.S. League of Savings Institutions, said that falling mortgage rates, moderation in home prices and personal income gains had combined to produce the most affordable housing market conditions since 1979.

He noted that new home sales are running ahead of last year's level and predicted that, for the entire year, sales would total between 650,000 to 670,000 units, up from 630,000 new homes sold last year.

The average price of a new home climbed sharply in July to $101,900, up $3,300 from the June level. However, the median price of a new home fell by $3,500 to $82,100.

Analysts said the median price, which is the point where half the homes sell for more and half for less, provides a better picture of what housing prices are doing. They said the decline in the median price probably reflected the larger number of sales of smaller homes to first-time buyers.

The July gain in sales came from a strong 10.7 percent increase in the West and a 3.8 percent gain in the Midwest.

Sales in the South dropped 3.2 percent and showed no change in the Northeast from the June level.

The gains led sales 14 percent above the level of July 1984 and reduced the backlog of unsold homes to 6.2 months, the lowest level since 1963. Analysts said this decline from spring housing construction starts in 1983 means sales in the past three months have been disappointing.

Wall Street chugs to third straight gain

By CHET CURRIER
The Associated Press

NEW YORK — The stock market chugged ahead Thursday, posting its third straight gain in another quiet session.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial rose 4.04 to 1,335.13, bringing its gain over the past three days to 17.46 points.

Volume on the New York Stock Exchange came to 85.66 million shares, against 88.53 million Wednesday.

Westinghouse Electric led the active list and climbed 1 1/4 to 39 3/4. The stock jumped 4 1/2 Wednesday on news that the company plans to buy back as many as 25 million of its shares, and is considering selling its cable television business.

Union Carbide, which announced a restructuring plan on Wednesday, rose 1 1/2 to 56 1/2 in active trading.

Gains in Westinghouse and Union Carbide have helped push the Dow Jones industrial average higher in the past two sessions while other broader market measures show less robust advances.

Kobus Gas & Electric fell 3 1/2 to 14 1/2 as the day's biggest percentage loser among NYSE issues. The company said it would face serious financial problems if it is not granted a rate increase large enough to cover its stake in a nuclear power plant.

Kansas City Power & Light, which has a large investment in the same plant, dropped 1 1/2 to 20 3/4.

Middle South Utilities rose 3/4 to 8 1/2. The holding company omitted its quarterly dividend but the market had been widely expected since several subsidiaries had announced they were not making dividend payments to the parent company.

General climbed 1 1/2 to 34 1/2. It said it knew of no reason for the activity.

The daily tally on the Big Board showed about six issues rising in price for every five that lost ground. All its listed common stocks gained 0.18 to 0.47.

Nationwide turnover in NYSE-listed issues, including trades in those stocks on regional exchanges and in the over-the-counter market, totaled 10.82 billion shares.

Standard & Poor's index of 600 industrial rose 0.16 to 310.01 and the NYSE stock composite index was up 10 to 888.33.

The NASDAQ composite index for the over-the-counter market added $2.32 to 297.31. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index closed at 234.25, up $2.

Canada firm obtains Sunnyside gold mine

SILVERTON, Colo. (AP) — Standard Metals Corp. of New York has agreed to sell its Sunnyside mine, one of the best-known gold mines in the West.

The sale to Echo Bay Inc. of Edmonton, Canada.

According to an announcement by Standard Metals on Thursday, that firm will receive $20 million and a 30 percent royalty share on future profits on the property.

The sale of the mine seven miles north of Silverton is subject to approval by the U.S. Bankruptcy Court, where Standard Metals filed for protection from creditors under Chapter 11 of the federal bankruptcy code in March 1984. Directors of both companies also must approve the sale.

The $20 million will be used to pay the amount allowed for claims in the bankruptcy filing, Standard Metals said Thursday.

The sale plan was filed in States and Canada.

bankruptcy court on Monday.

The Sunnyside mine is a century old and is one of the best-known gold mines in the West.

When it was in full operation in 1983, Sunnyside employed 275 workers and produced 300,000 tons of gold, silver, zinc and lead ore. Although its main product for that year, its net operating profit for 1984 was estimated at $4.3 million.

But the mine has been closed since March.

Last year, Sunnyside officials reported the plant had been victimized by theft for years. They estimated the pilfering cost $4 million, have cost the company $2 million per year.

Echo Bay Inc. is a wholly-owned subsidiary of Echo Bay Mines Unlimited. Echo Bay Mines is one of the largest North American producers of gold, with mines in the United States and Canada.

Pittsburgh may sell unit

Danforth also said unit will begin to purchase up to 25 million of its 175 million outstanding common shares in open-market purchases or through private purchases "at prices management deems appropriate."

Carroll said there was no time limit set on the repurchase share.

Westinghouse stock rose $38.25 a share, up $4.75 Wednesday, making a repurchase at current prices estimated at more than $900 million.

Pittsburgh (AP) — Westinghouse Electric Corp. is considering the sale of its cable television subsidiary and the purchase of up to 25 million shares of its outstanding stock, the company said.
