Rely more on market, Reagan tells farmers

By W. DALE NELSON
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Reagan warned Congress on Saturday he would not hesitate to veto any farm bill "which repeats the mistakes of the past" instead of encouraging farmers to rely less on the government and more on the market for their income.

In his weekly radio address, delivered from the presidential retreat at Camp David, Md., Reagan said, "We must meet our responsibilities to America's farmers and pass a farm bill that provides hope, not measured doses of despair."

"I am asking Congress to unite with me for intelligent policies that provide farmers needed help without doing harm to the budget limitations adopted by Congress, and greater freedom for them to grow and sell their crops in the marketplaces of the world," he said.

"By working in this spirit, we can avoid budget-busting legislation which repeats the mistakes of the past, legislation I would not hesitate to veto."

The Democratic-led House Agriculture Committee has approved a bill carrying a price tag of $42.8 billion for programs to support farm income and commodity prices and provide farmers with credit. Administration officials have said some provisions of the bill move away from the more "market-oriented" policy that the administration seeks. They said they will seek changes on the floor.

The Republican-controlled Senate Agriculture Committee is nearing completion of its own version of the bill. The legislation would replace a law that expires in less than three weeks.

In addition to his remarks on the farm bill, Reagan urged Congress to reject approximately 300 protectionist trade bills awaiting action, saying they would "invite certain retaliation against our farm exports, heightening the risk of a farm catastrophe which would send shock waves throughout our economy."

"Believe me, protectionism is farmers' enemy No. 1, and that enemy is stalking our gate," the president said. "Let us work aggressively for freer and fairer markets."

He said the United States should also encourage other countries to adopt the "low-tax, free-market policies" that his administration espouses.

"We do not seek an America that is closed to the world; we seek a world that is open to America," the president said.

In the Democratic response to Reagan, Sen. John D. Rockefeller IV of West Virginia said Reagan is ignoring the trade deficit of $150 billion a year and should take steps to reduce the federal budget deficit and to resist unfair trade competition.

"The president only tells you good economic news; his administration refuses to acknowledge the damage caused by the budget deficit and the trade deficit," Rockefeller said.

"They see neither the pain of West Virginia's unemployed coal miners nor the growing problems for California's high tech firms," he said.

Shadow of AIDS brings fear, death into Idaho, Utah

By BOB MIMS
The Associated Press

AIDS victim — B4

As the loathsome shadow of Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome moves into Utah and Idaho, health officials are expecting new cases and the region's homosexuals grimly wait, wondering who will be the killer disease's next victim.

In Utah, 21 cases of AIDS have been reported since August, 15 of them involving homosexual or bisexual men. Other victims reflect the other "high risk" groups for the disease — four were intravenous drug users and two had received blood transfusions, the Utah Health Department says. In all, 10 have died.

Idaho health officer Dr. Fritz Dixon said no cases of AIDS have been diagnosed in the state, but a spokesman for Idaho's homosexuals said he knows of at least one resident with the disease.

"I had heard that there was a case around," Dixon said. "A definition of an AIDS case in Idaho is that the diagnosis is first made in the state of Idaho."

The Rev. Ed Sherriff of Boise's Metropolitan Community Church said he is counseling a Halley man who was diagnosed with the disease while in Colorado. Sherriff, the pastor of an 80-member congregation made up mostly of homosexual men and women, said he also had arranged blood tests for another man he "strongly suspects" has AIDS.

But beyond the statistical toll the disease is taking, a shadow of fear has fallen on the region's estimated 40,000 homosexuals that has put a damper on passion, and in some places triggered increased polarization of gay and "straight" communities.

"It's really frightening. I could have it, my friends could have it," said Scott Stykes, president of the Golden Spike Empire, a 200-member gay organization in Salt Lake City. "People aren't going to the bathhouses as much. They aren't participating in sex as often."

Cash shortage halts FarmAid in tracks

The Associated Press

BAKERSFIELD, Calif. — Country singer Merle Haggard's whistle-stop train tour from California to Illinois to benefit farmers was derailed by money problems but should roll in several weeks, a spokesman said Saturday.

"There's been such an incredible interest on the part of America, that we're going to try to make it work," said Dwight Haldeman of Luckenbach Productions, Haggard's agency in San Marcos, Calif.

The train, carrying country music stars was to leave here Monday at noon on a 39-stop tour to Chicago for the separately organized Sept. 22 FarmAid concert at the University of Illinois in Champaign.

Those planning to ride the train included Michael Martin Murphey, Haggard, Willie Nelson, Earl Thomas Conley, Janie Fricke, John Schneider, Lacy J. Dalton, Arlo Guthrie, Catherine Bach and the Nitty Gritty Dirt Band.

The tour was called off late Friday after hours of negotiations with Amtrak officials.

By an 8 p.m. Friday deadline, Haggard was $100,000 short of the $600,000 required by Amtrak to release the train.

Soviet media blast ASAT test as 'dangerous'

The Associated Press

MOSCOW — The Soviet media on Saturday sharply criticized the U.S. test of an anti-satellite weapon and said it interfered with preparations for November's superpower summit conference.

Radio Moscow called the test a "dangerous step" toward deploying other space weapons, and the official Tass news agency accused the United States of worsening the strained relations between Moscow and Washington.

On Friday, a U.S. F-15 fighter plane launched a rocket that soared into space and demolished an old satellite in orbit about 345 miles above the Pacific Ocean.

President Reagan and Soviet leader Mikhail S.

Gorbachev are scheduled to meet in Geneva in November.

Radio Moscow reported the test in its English-language newscasts and said:

"Washington, in defiance of widespread protests of the world public, took a dangerous step leading directly to the deployment of a new class of weaponry — strike space weapons."

"By testing its ASAT system, Washington indicated that it regards the escalation of the arms buildup and its spread to outer space as a major goal of America's policy."

Tass moved a story identical to the one read over Radio Moscow and then added a commentary by analyst Vevegeny Yegorov.

"Another round of the arms race in space, hinging on the notorious 'Star Wars' program, has begun," he wrote.

"What is noteworthy is that this escalation of war preparations is taking place before the meeting of the Soviet and U.S. leaders in Geneva and is called upon, according to admissions of senior U.S. officials, to demonstrate the 'resolve' and 'firmness' of the Reagan administration."

Yegorov added, "Acts of militarism perpetrated by the United States can only lead to the further aggravation of international tension and to the deterioration of Soviet-U.S. Relations."

In 1983, the Soviets said they would not test or deploy anti-satellite weapons if the United States also refrained from doing so. But they said on Sept. 4 they would feel free to deploy such weapons if the U.S. ASAT testing went ahead.

Governor files for bankruptcy

CHEYENNE, Wyo. (AP) — Gov. Ed Herschler has filed a bankruptcy petition, seeking court protection while he works out a repayment plan for more than $9 million in debts.

A petition filed Friday in U.S. Bankruptcy Court listed Herschler's debts at $9.4 million, and assets at $25,733, and sought protection from creditors under Chapter 11 of the Federal Bankruptcy Act.

The petition listed 13 creditors, including Herschler's three partners in a failed cattle ranch that was sold for $1.9 million under a bank foreclosure sale in April.

The bankruptcy filing was the direct result of financial difficulties associated with the ranch, Herschler's attorney, Alvin Wiederspahn, said Saturday.

California gets seat-belt law

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The state Legislature on Saturday approved a seat belt bill under which Californians must buckle up or face a $20 fine beginning Jan. 1.

The measure was sent to Gov. George Deukmejian for his signature after passing the Assembly 48-20 late Friday, and clearing the Senate on a 24-10 vote Saturday.

Supporters estimate that 1,000 lives could be saved each year if the bill is enacted.

The bill also would order automakers to install air bags of automatic seat belts in all new California cars sold in the state after Sept. 1, 1989.

The bill includes a "repealer clause" that would wipe out the seat belt requirement if the bill is used to help overturn a federal rule calling for new cars to have automatic seat belts, air bags or another form of "passive restraint" by 1990.

Eighth Trident sub launched

GROTON, Conn. (AP) — U.S. Sen. Paul Laxalt spoke of President Reagan's "yearnings for peace" and 12 demonstrators were arrested Saturday at the launching of the Nevada, the nation's eighth Trident-class nuclear submarine.

The launching of the 560-foot sub, which will carry 24 nuclear missiles, drew 150 to 200 demonstrators to the Electric Boat Shipyard. Police said 12 were arrested when they tried to block guests from entering the shipyard.

Laxalt, speaking to about 3,000 people during launching ceremonies, said the Nevada "will be charged with keeping the peace. There is no more important assignment in the world."

The ceremony for the third Navy vessel to carry the name "Nevada" was attended by two officers from the battleship USS Nevada, which was the only battleship to get under way during the Japanese bombing of Pearl Harbor, and survived World War II.

Problem cattle to be killed

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service on Monday is to resume the slaughter and removal of wild cattle that are trampling three refuge islands in the Aleutian chain, officials said.

The federal agency has wanted to rid the Shumagin islands of cattle for years because the animals are destroying vegetation. The islands, part of the Alaska Maritime National Wildlife Refuge, are located about 550 miles southwest of Anchorage.

Officials started killing cattle in March, after the Shumagin Native Corp. agreed to take some of the animals and slaughter them for meat.

Congressmen ready to propose limits on travel

WASHINGTON (AP) — One congressman's trip to Brazil on a big military jet at a cost of over $50,000, has prompted renewed efforts in both the House and Senate to tighten the rules governing foreign travel by members of Congress.

"We need to do a better job policing ourselves," said Rep. William Hughes, D-N.J., author of a resolution that would require committees to justify and publicly vote on trips before taking them.

Hughes and a handful of members on both sides of Congress are pushing to end the long-standing system under which foreign travel, much of it aboard Pentagon aircraft, is approved by committee chairmen and House and Senate leaders in the privacy of their offices. Their efforts come in the wake of publicity over the trip by Rep. Bill Alexander, D-Ark., who was the only member of Congress in a seven-person delegation that took a 42-seat Air Force jet to Brazil last month. The Pentagon says the trip cost $56,364.

Sen. Don Nickles, R-Okla., has revived a bill he introduced unsuccessfully last year that would require the cost of congressional travel to be listed as a specific item in the federal budget.

There is no requirement that any trip be announced in advance, and expense records published after the fact in the Congressional Record under "understate the cost of travel," Nickles said.

U.S. fortifies nuclear force, analyst says

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States, in a general strengthening of military ties with Turkey, has placed its nuclear forces there on a standby alert status similar to that of land-based missiles and B-52 bombers at home, according to a civilian analyst.

The change in nuclear readiness came over the last two years, says William M. Arkin, an Institute for Policy Studies researcher, in an article to be published Monday in the "Bulletin of the Atomic Scientists."

As evidence, he cited an October 1983 "Munitions Bulletin" published by the headquarters of the U.S. Air Forces in Europe. It recently was obtained through the Freedom of Information Act.

The publication said the U.S. nuclear weapons mission in Turkey "is in an aggressive growth stage" and that its four munitions support squadrons "are actively pursuing resumption of alert."

The squadrons guard nuclear bombs that would be used in wartime by the Turkish Air Force. Turkey is a U.S. ally in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

The Institute for Policy Studies is a liberal, Washington-based think tank that is frequently critical of the Reagan administration and Pentagon programs.

Meanwhile, the other young people on campus are often resentful of these alien gangs from the fieldhouse, sleeping or mumbering through classes, unprepared and seemingly unconcerned, secure in the protection of Coach. They rarely find out how insecure, exploited and isolated the athletes feel.

In my involvement with the Center for the Study of Sport in Society at Northern, I've met a number of current professional athletes who have enrolled in the degree-completion program. Some had college transcripts that looked like a list of day camp activities. Some had as few as 40 transferable credits for their five years.

Almost all had an intense bitterness toward a system in which a 17-year-old poor boy could be manipulated into a one-sided contract with as powerful an institution as a major university.

They had come through a system where Coach held all the cards in their life, where Coach became a father-figure whose best interests were in keeping his sons dependent and grateful, fearful of non-athletes, unsure of their ability to meet standards beyond the playing field.

It is often a shock for non-athletes to find that these jocks are not only brighter and more sensitive than expected, but also socially timid, sexually inexperienced, financially and politically naive and academically malnourished.

Worst Case Scenario No. 2 — The star of the basketball team, a potential pro, the campus hero at a prestigious and highly selective Southern university, is indicted for accepting bribes to manipulate the final score of games. At least four other players, five other students and two outsiders are involved. Prosecutors allege a gambling conspiracy.

A college basketball team needs only one star to "turn the program around," which means filling the arena, recruiting other good players, winning games and, best of all, leading it into the televised Final Four championship series where the university will become rich and famous.

Gamblers only need one star, too, to shave points so that the final score will upset the spread, which is the odds-makers' line on the favored team's expected margin of victory. In basketball (and football) gambling, it is not whether you win or lose, but by how many points you do it. This worst case scenario was played in court in New Orleans. The charges against John "Hot Rod" Williams of Tulane were eventually thrown out of New Orleans District Court. The judge ruled that misconduct by the prosecutors deprived Williams of a fair trial. Whether or not federal charges are brought against him, and whether or not he ever plays for the National Basketball Association's Cleveland Cavaliers, some aspects of the story are worth examining.

Like most of the athlete-students at Tulane, Williams was registered in the physical education program that leads to a bachelor of general studies. One needs only a total score of 700 on the Scholastic Aptitude Test (the minimum possible is 400) for admission. In contrast, the average entering Tulane student has scored more than 1,000.

During the course of the investigation, prosecutors uncovered violations of National Collegiate Athletic Association rules, including cash payments to athletes. Soon afterward, the basketball coach and the athletic director resigned.

In answers of exquisite precision, Tulane's president, Eamon Kelly, took the blame for focusing more attention on academic counseling for athletes than on "societal problems counseling." (Translation: Other than trying to keep them eligible, we had no interest in their problems.)

He also said, "I have excellent control of all of the finances of the athletic program that come through the university accounting system." (Translation: If the boosters want to pay coaches or kids directly, I can't stop them.)

The money they get from their schools is not enough. The kids are lured with cash to shave points; only gamblers will get hurt, they are told, and the gamblers are breaking the rules. Because the kids are not philosophy majors, they can be excused for accepting this logical jump from taking cash from coaches for breaking the rules to taking cash from some illegal gamblers to hurt other illegal gamblers.

The kids get caught. The coaches slip away. The college presidents beat their breasts.

And let's not forget the media. Sports journalism has been remarkably forgiving toward universities who violate NCAA rules and seemingly uncaring toward young athletes who are routinely victimized.

If the print press has done a poor job, television has been part of the problem. The networks are contracted to the universities to produce the game. No wonder the only news we get from them is the latest gambling information.

Worst Case Scenario No. 3 — During the halftime of a bowl game, the quarterback informs the coach that he will not take the field until he gets $25,000 in cash. The coach coolly speaks of school spirit, responsibility, character — and the risk of being blackballed by the pros. The quarterback is firm, compared to the revenue the university will get from the game, the fees the network charges for commercial minutes, even the coach's income from his summer camp, TV program and speaking engagements, $25,000 for the star of the show is cheap at the price. The head coach calls in the TV producer who is outraged at being ripped off by a dumb jock.

This hasn't happened yet. At least, I haven't heard about it.

Preserve rigid vote principles

WASHINGTON - Elbridge Gerry, as every schoolboy knows, was a signer of the Declaration of Independence, a member of the convention of 1787, vice president under Madison. He is remembered for none of these.

In 1812, Gerry was governor of Massachusetts. An ardent Republican, he loathed the Federalists of that day. When it was decided to draw up districts for election of the state Senate, Gerry artfully drew the lines for the northeastern corner of the state. "Looks like a salamander!" marveled one observer. "Nope," came the reply, "it's a gerrymander."

So the custom began. On the opening day of its 1985 term, the U.S. Supreme Court will hear argument on a question it never has fully considered before: Is it unconstitutional, as a violation of the 14th Amendment, for a legislative body to create political districts for egregiously partisan purposes?

The facts are not greatly in dispute. The Indiana General Assembly in 1981 was required to draw new district lines for the election of state senators and representatives. The Republican Party then controlled both the Senate and the House. The Republican State Committee put up $250,000 to hire computer specialists to prepare a redistricting plan. Just before the end of the 1981 session, the plan was made public. It was a beaut.

Black voters in Washington Township were put with white suburbanites in Hamilton and Boone counties. Farmers from Allen and Noble counties wound up with residents of downtown Fort Wayne. The lines for Marion County were artfully jiggered to assure the Republicans a 12-3 majority. It was a nice piece of work. The Democrats, understandably, were outraged. It was immaterial that in 1965 they had done the same kind of thing to the Republicans. They went into U.S. District Court with a petition to have the Legislature's reapportionment set aside.

Back in 1962, when the Supreme Court voted 6-2 to nullify Tennessee's state legislative districts, Justice Frankfurter delivered a passionate dissent. That case turned wholly on population — on the decisive and rigid principle of one man, one vote. The majority opinion, said Frankfurter, "foreshadows deeper and more pervasive difficulties in consequence." He was right on the mark.

CUT FOOTPAD

QUESTION: Is a cut footpad on a dog considered dangerous?

ANSWER: A dog's footpad has a lot of blood vessels and can therefore bleed profusely when cut. If the wound is shallow, bleeding should soon stop by itself. Clean the wound gently with soap and water or hydrogen peroxide. Be sure to remove any foreign material from the area. Keep reasonably clean; this kind of wound will generally heal itself.

If the bleeding does not stop, use direct pressure with a gauze pad and take the dog to the veterinarian as soon as possible. If the wound is very deep, very large, very dirty or has become infected, you should also visit the veterinarian who will thoroughly clean and suture the wound.

Two-term limit should be ended — Reagan

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan told a group of state legislators he believes the Constitution should be changed to permit presidents to serve more than two terms. White House spokesman Larry Speakes said Saturday.

Speakes said the question was raised by a long-time Reagan supporter at a private meeting with legislators on Thursday in Tampa, Fla., where the president had just given a speech.

He said Reagan responded "in a light-hearted manner" but went on to say in a more serious vein that while such an amendment would not apply to him, he believed that "the people ought to have a right to decide who their leadership would be."

Speakes said the question was couched to Reagan in terms of whether he felt handicapped by being considered a "lame duck" in his second term "and he was indicating that he was going to be an active president." The 22nd Amendment to the Constitution, ratified in 1951, limits presidents to two elected terms and provides that no person who has filled more than two years of an unexpired term shall be elected more than once.

Until then, presidents were free to run for as many terms as they chose. Until Franklin D. Roosevelt, who died a few months after taking office for his fourth term, however, all had followed a two-term tradition established by George Washington.

President Harry S. Truman, who assumed office on Roosevelt's death and was president when the 22nd Amendment was adopted, was exempted from it.

Repealing the 22nd Amendment would require another amendment to the Constitution, which would have to be approved by two-thirds vote of both houses of Congress and by legislatures or conventions in three-fourths of the states.

Experts affirm source of Salmonella outbreak

CHICAGO (AP) — A unique strain of salmonella that sickened 18,000 people in six Midwestern states last spring also infected at least 23 people several months before the outbreak, a team of experts said Saturday.

The experts also affirmed an earlier report, blaming the outbreak on milk that was contaminated at the suburban Hillfarm Dairy because of a valve that malfunctioned for almost a year.

"This wasn't sabotage, this wasn't a superbug, this wasn't a failure of the pasteurization process. It was a unique microbiological engineering phenomenon," state Inspector General Jeremy Margolis said at a news conference.

The valve apparently intermittently allowed salmonella bacteria to enter pasteurized milk products during a mixing operation that was the final step in production, Margolis said.

Ex-Carter aide hospitalized

ATLANTA (AP) — Former White House chief of staff Hamilton Jordan was in satisfactory condition Saturday after being hospitalized for cancer of the lymph system, hospital officials said.

"I'm doing great," Jordan said Saturday, according to Judy Smith, a hospital spokeswoman. "I'm feeling good and my prospects for whipping this thing are better than Jimmy Carter's chances were before being elected president. I plan to be as successful."

Jordan, 40, joked that it will be easier for him to beat the cancer known as lymphoma than it was to mastermind the 1976 presidential campaign of then-unknown Jimmy Carter.

Carter's former chief aide was diagnosed with lymphoma Friday after being admitted to Emory University Hospital in Atlanta for tests.

Nicaraguan 'haven' hit by Meese

WASHINGTON (AP) — Attorney General Edwin Meese III alleged Saturday that Sandinista-ruled Nicaragua is giving sanctuary to terrorists from all over the globe.

"Members of the Italian government have been unafraid to charge Nicaragua with harboring some of the worst of the Red Brigade terrorists," Meese said in the prepared text of a speech to The International Association of Jurists.

"The evidence further indicates that Nicaragua is fast becoming a terrorist country club, offering refuge to members of the PLO (Palestine Liberation Organization), the Basque ETA, the IRA (Irish Republican Army) . . . and West Germany's Baader-Meinhoff gang," Meese added.

The attorney general's references to Nicaragua came at the end of a speech in which he called for international cooperation in attacking world terrorism.

Francisco Campbell, minister-counselor for political affairs at the Nicaraguan Embassy, called the allegations "outright falsehoods, distortions and misrepresentations."

He added: "If the U.S. has any evidence of any aggressive act by Nicaragua, the administration should take it to the World Court."

Nicaragua has charged before the International Court of Justice, or World Court, that the United States is committing aggression against it by financing and directing the Contras, or rebel forces, who are trying to overthrow the country's Marxist government. The United States is boycotting the proceedings.

Campbell said the Meese speech is part of a campaign "to try to discredit and detract from the case Nicaragua has brought against the U.S. in the World Court."

Buckley released

DETROIT (AP) — Columnist William F. Buckley Jr. was released from a Detroit hospital Saturday, one day after he was admitted to its coronary care unit with chest and stomach pains, a hospital spokesman said.

Buckley, 59, canceled an appearance before the State Bar of Michigan's annual convention Friday after being rushed to Detroit Receiving Hospital, said his secretary, Francis Bronson.

Last-minute bill change clears way for rebel aid

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration engineered a last-minute change in the new foreign aid law that apparently allows it to reach an "understanding" with other countries to ship military aid to Nicaraguan rebels, government officials say.

Congressional Democrats who accepted the behind-the-scenes change shortly before the law's enactment now say they were unaware that several U.S. allies reportedly had already cleared with the White House their plans to send military aid to the rebels.

Those "third-country" shipments, still cloaked in tight secrecy, have helped the rebels sustain their war against Nicaragua's leftist government despite the congressional cutoff of CIA aid in 1984, according to private and government sources close to the rebels.

The White House and the State Department said they had no comment on the change in the aid provision. Government officials and other sources spoke about it on condition they not be identified by name.

Some congressional aides say they now believe the administration's tacit approval of those "third-country" shipments might have conflicted with the foreign aid bill's original language barring an "understanding, either formal or informal" between the United States and any U.S. aid recipient on sending arms to the rebels.

Various sources close to the rebels have said assistance has come from Israel, South Korea, Taiwan, Guatemala, Honduras and Venezuela, but it was unclear if the providing of weapons and sometimes advisers has been sanctioned by those governments.

The change in the bill's language came in an unusual parliamentary move after House and Senate negotiators had finished work July 28 on the measure, which provides $12.7 billion in assistance worldwide and $27 million in non-tactical aid to the Nicaraguan rebels.

When the conference broke up, the bill contained language stating: "The United States . . . shall enter into no understanding, either formal or informal, under which a recipient of U.S. economic or military assistance . . . shall provide assistance of any kind to the Nicaraguan rebels."

Earlier, Rep. Benjamin Gilman, R-N.Y., had told the negotiators about White House displeasure over the language, and after the conference, administration representatives informed staff aides that President Reagan might veto the entire bill if the wording was not changed.

Ortega wants meeting to end border fighting

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — After a day of border clashes, President Daniel Ortega called Saturday for an immediate meeting with Honduran President Roberto Suazo Cordova to prevent further bloodshed.

At the same time, he vowed on national television that "the people and armed forces of Nicaragua will repel and destroy any foreign aggression."

He accused neighboring Honduras of trying to "provoke U.S. intervention and said Honduras' actions were the result of pressure by the United States.

The Reagan administration opposes Nicaragua's leftist Sandinista government and has supported rebels, called Contras, who are trying to overthrow it.

Honduran military spokesman said in Tegucigalpa, that nation's capital, that Honduran warplanes shot down a Nicaragua helicopter Friday and strafed mortar batteries that had fired into Honduras hours earlier.

Suazo Cordova called the Honduran Congress into urgent session to consider defense. Foreign Minister Edgardo Paz Barncia convened a meeting of the diplomatic corps seeking support for Honduras.

Suazo Cordova accused Ortega's Sandinista government on television late Friday of maintaining "a permanent attitude of harassment against Honduras... and for that reason I have ordered the armed forces to repel with all energy that aggression."

The Honduran military spokesman, who asked not to be identified for security reasons, told The Associated Press "the army still maintains a state of alert on land, sea and air on the border with the neighboring country... and is prepared to repel any criminal action by the Sandinistas against national territory."

Capt. Rosa Pasos, spokeswoman for Nicaragua's Defense Ministry, said Sandinista forces were not on a state of alert.

Honduras moved 2,000 troops to the border Friday before the air attacks. The military spokesman said they remained there Saturday, and an air patrol of the area continued.

Russians counter expulsion by ordering 25 Britons out

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union on Saturday ordered 25 British diplomats, journalists and businessmen to leave the country, two days after London announced it was expelling 25 Soviets on spy charges, British officials said.

The official news agency Tass said British Ambassador Bryan Cartledge was called into the Foreign Ministry and told that "a number" of British citizens were being expelled for "impermissible activities."

Tass did not specify how many were ordered out.

Donald MacLaren, spokesman for the British Embassy in Moscow, said the Soviets on Saturday accused the Britons — 18 diplomats, five journalists and two businessmen — of "activities incompatible with their official status," a diplomatic phrase for spying.

Cartledge denied the charge and registered a formal protest with the Soviet Foreign Ministry, MacLaren said.

Britain's Foreign Office had said the expelled Soviets were fingered as spies by Oleg A. Gordievski, whom it identified as the KGB's chief agent in Britain. It said Gordievski, a Soviet Embassy counselor, defected and was granted asylum in Britain.

Tass did not mention Gordievski in its report. It quoted the Foreign Ministry as saying the British expulsions were "a gross provocative action with regard to a number of British representatives in Great Britain — against whom ill-intentioned and absolutely unjustifiable accusations had been made."

The Soviet move had been expected since Britain's announcement Thursday that it was expelling 25 Soviet officials, diplomats and journalists.

On Friday, a British source in London who demanded anonymity said his government would retaliate if the Soviets expelled "seven or more" members of the British community in Moscow. After the Soviet move, the Foreign Office in London declined comment on whether it was planning to expel more Soviets.

MacLaren said the Britons were given three weeks to get out of the Soviet Union, the same amount of time Britain allowed the expelled Soviets.

He said the British diplomats ordered out included three first secretaries, two second secretaries, six attaches and seven administrative and technical employees of the embassy.

Jordan and Egypt talk about talks

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — Jordan's King Hussein met Saturday with President Hosni Mubarak to coordinate the positions they will take in separate talks this month with President Reagan and Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher of Britain.

Hussein's visit was disclosed Friday night, just after the White House announced Reagan would meet Mubarak on Sept. 23 and Hussein one week later, both in Washington.

Mrs. Thatcher is scheduled to visit Cairo on Monday and later travel to Amman, the Jordanian capital.

"Coordination with Jordan is continuing and is being intensified," said Osama el-Baz, Mubarak's chief political adviser, after Mubarak and Hussein conferred in private for three hours, including a working lunch.

"It was natural that we should consult with King Hussein before the upcoming weeks of intensified talks," Baz said.

The only comment afterward by either leader was Hussein's reply to a question as to what had been discussed: "Everything."

Cartledge denied the charge and registered a formal protest with the Soviet Foreign Ministry, MacLaren said.

Britain's Foreign Office had said the expelled Soviets were fingered as spies by Oleg A. Gordievski, whom it identified as the KGB's chief agent in Britain. It said Gordievski, a Soviet Embassy counselor, defected and was granted asylum in Britain.

Botha blows up over bi-racial meeting

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — President P.W. Botha on Saturday bitterly criticized white business executives who met with black guerrilla chiefs, quashing hopes he might negotiate with the black leaders he regards as terrorists.

Another official, Deputy Foreign Minister Louis Nell, said there was no point in the white-minority government talking to the outlawed African National Congress — ANC.

"They want the violent overthrow of the government and we won't allow that," the South African Press Association quoted Nell as saying.

In Johannesburg's black Soweto township, about 20 black taxi drivers stabbed to death a young black and shot and wounded another at a riot victim's funeral after youths commandeered cabs parked at a hospital, witnesses said.

Police headquarters in Pretoria could not confirm the killing. The witnesses said it occurred as troops fired tear gas at some people in the funeral crowd of about 10,000, but away from the attacking drivers.

As word of the incident spread, mourners returning from the funeral in Diepkloof district stoned at least half a dozen passing taxis and the drivers fled, according to the witnesses.

In Pretoria's black Mamelodi township, police fired rubber bullets to disperse several hundred people in a funeral procession for two brothers killed last week. Magistrates had ordered that only close relatives could attend the funeral and mourners could not march to and from the service.

Police said Saturday evening that blacks in Mamelodi stoned buses and a police vehicle. The burned body of a black man also was found in Kimberley in the Eastern Cape.

Newspapers reported under banner headlines Friday's meeting in Zambia between seven white executives who control much of South Africa's vast mineral wealth and Oliver Tambo, president of the Africa.

Botha has said he will not talk to the ANC unless it renounces violence. The organization is fighting a hit-and-run war of sabotage against the government and its policy of apartheid, or enforced racial segregation.

South Africa's Financial Mail and several other English-language publications had speculated that the meeting could lead to talks between the government and the ANC, and the release of Nelson Mandela.

Former Chinese chief appears in good health

PEKING (AP) — Former Communist Party Chairman Hua Guofeng, chosen heir of Mao Tse-tung but ousted from power in 1981 by China's current leader, Deng Xiaoping, resurfaced Saturday in apparent good health.

Hua, 64, was last seen in April 1982 when he was shown on Chinese television in pajamas, reportedly recovering from an illness in a Peking hospital. Hong Kong press reports said he had cancer or heart disease, but Chinese authorities declined comment.

Japan's former foreign minister, Masayoshi Ito, told Japanese reporters here that he met Hua for 40 minutes in a luxurious, guarded house in north-central Peking that he believed was Hua's residence.

Ito, president of the Japanese Parliament's League for Japan-

China Friendship, said they discussed Chinese-Japanese relations and did not touch on current Chinese politics or Hua's personal circumstances.

Hua's last known meeting with a foreigner was in August 1981, two months after his ouster, when he met with Ito. Ito said Hua looked exhausted then, but seemed in good health now.

Hua, who also was premier from 1976 to 1980, still is on the 210-member party Central Committee. He reportedly was on the rostrum at Peking's Tiananmen Square last Oct. 1 for Communist China's 35th anniversary celebrations, but he was not photographed.

Hua was party chairman from Mao's death in September 1976 until June 1981, when Deng ousted Hua and installed his own protégé, Hu Yaobang.

Missing Greek found among Lebanon dead

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — The bullet-riddled bodies of four men, believed to be Christians kidnapped by Moslem gunmen, were found in west Beirut, raising fears Saturday that Christians will start killing Moslems they had seized in retaliatory abductions.

Police said the bodies were found in an empty lot in the beachside Jnah district Friday night.

Authorities said one body was that of a Syrian-born Greek, Andreas Toyazakis, who disappeared Sept. 7 in west Beirut's commercial Hamra district.

They said the other three were not identified, but "all appear to be Lebanese."

The bodies of two other men, both believed to be Christians kidnapped by Moslems five days ago, were found in the northern part of Tripoli on Friday, police said.

Christian militiamen have kidnapped more than a score of Moslems in recent weeks. Police officials, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said they feared the Christians will retaliate by killing some of their captives.

Italian Embassy officials, who also insisted on not being identified, said there was still no word on businessman Alberto Molinaro, missing since Wednesday.

The diplomats believe Moslem gunmen kidnapped Molinaro when he drove across Beirut's dividing Green Line, the hunting ground for marauding gunmen on both sides.

By police count, Christian and Moslem fighters have abducted more than 60 people in the last month on the 3-mile line that cuts the Lebanese capital into Christian and Moslem territory.

SWAT breaks in on shower

PORT ORANGE, Fla. (AP) — James Appleby shouted for his wife to call the police when a man smashed a rifle butt through a bathroom window, but the intruder who interrupted the 43-year-old plumber's shower turned out to be a SWAT team member.

The Volusia County sheriff's special weapons and tactics squad had staged out the wrong home during a drug raid on the house next door.

"We thought the place was being burglarized," said Linda Appelby, who was in her living room watching football while her husband was stepping into the shower.

"We're in shock," she said.

The Applebys had lived in their Port Orange home only about two months before the Thursday night incident. Deputies told them afterward that 17 members of the team were closing in on the house next door to search for illegal drugs.

Sheriff's Capt. Ed Carroll said Sgt. Buddy Klepper broke the window to distract who he believed was a drug suspect trying to flush narcotics down the toilet.

Klepper mistakenly thought other members of the SWAT team were covering the front of the house and were about to enter. Instead, he

Man lost 575 lbs. and record

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — William Cobb lost 575 pounds in three years during the mid-1960s and set a record for losing weight—but now, after two decades, he's finally going to lose that distinction.

"Records are made to be broken," Cobb, 60, said from his small Augusta apartment.

In his teen years, he was a 600-pound wrestler who breakfasted on three dozen eggs and 2 pounds of bacon. He went on to become an 800-pound professional wrestler, but his two-decade career ended with a heart attack in the ring in 1962.

After the heart attack, he was put on an unprecedented diet and earned a place in the Guinness Book of World Records.

But in the book's next edition, Cobb is to be starved out by Roy McIntyre, an Englishman who dropped from 592 pounds to 187 pounds in two years, said an editorial spokesman for New York City-based Sterling Publishing Co., U.S. publisher of the Guinness books.

"Although Cobb lost more weight than McIntyre, the Englishman's six-month weight-loss average was 101.5 pounds compared with Cobb's 96 pounds.

Cobb's name probably will remain in the Guinness books, especially the U.S. editions, along with McIntyre's, the spokesman said.

The diet spawned by the heart attack in November 1962 was a major turning point in his life, said Cobb.

"We were wrestling in Oklahoma City. I had that heart attack right there, and they had to tear the ring apart just to get me out."

Medics had to load him into a pickup truck.

"They couldn't get me in the ambulance," he said. "I wouldn't fit."

He moved back to Macon to recuperate and caught the attention of Dr. Wayne Greenberg, an Augusta physician studying obesity.

"I came to Augusta to let the doctors at Tallmadge Hospital (now Medical College of Georgia Hospital) study me because they said they could help."

Cobb dropped from 802 pounds at the time of his admission to a mere 232 pounds when he was discharged.

Ex-judge convicted of killing

MILWAUKEE (AP) — A longtime juror was convicted Saturday of murdering the lawyer associate of the man who defeated him in his bid for re-election to the bench, and jurors next consider his mental responsibility for the killing.

Former Lafayette County Circuit Judge Daniel P. McDonald, 43, slumped slightly, trembled and his head shook when a clerk read the verdict: guilty of first-degree murder in the death of James C. Klein.

McDonald had pleaded innocent and innocent by reason of mental disease or defect. Klein, 31, of rural Cuba City, was an associate in the law firm of William Johnston, 44, who defeated McDonald April 2 and assumed the bench in August. Prosecutors said McDonald, a judge for 14 years, had been stalking Johnston but instead bludgeoned and stabbed Klein to death June 22 when he happened upon him in the Darlingtown law office he shared with Johnston.

A second phase of the trial, during which the defense will have the burden of proof, will be held beginning Tuesday to determine whether McDonald was mentally responsible at the time of the crime.

Milwaukee County Circuit Judge Ralph Adam Fine, who is hearing the case on a change of venue, said he would hold no court session Monday because of the Jewish holiday of Rosh Hashana. He ordered that the jury remain sequestered.

Jurors had reached their verdict at 8:55 p.m. Friday after eight days of testimony and slightly less than four hours of deliberations. But rather than hold a late-night session, the judge ordered the verdict sealed and read Saturday morning.

McDonald testified in his own defense Thursday, claiming he was "seized silly" when Klein attacked

Springsteen, Don Henley take awards

NEW YORK (AP) — The best group video prize at the MTV Video Music Awards went to something more than a trio or quartet — a 45-person group, the USA for Africa collaboration on "We Are the World."

"This is an award for best group. We have to thank all 45 artists who participated," said Ken Kragen, who helped arrange the recording session and accepted the award at Radio City Music Hall on Friday night.

"And certainly we have to thank Michael Jackson and Lionel Richie, who wrote what has become an anthem for our time," Kragen said.

The video also took the viewers' attention in the project that raised millions for African famine relief — Bruce Springsteen and Tina Turner — also won individual awards.

Springsteen won best male video for "I'm on Fire" and best stage performance in a video for "Dancing in the Dark." Miss Turner won best female video for "What's Love Got to Do With It?"

Former Eagles drummer Don Henley's "Boys of Summer" won best award for best photography, best art direction, best direction and best video. Henley's former bandmate, Glenn Frey, won best concept for "Smuggler's Blues," a video that became the basis of a "Miami Vice" TV episode.

him after inviting him into the law office. McDonald said he used a metal bar and Klein's knife to keep the young lawyer at bay.

However, two witnesses who watched the scuffle through the window of a locked door said McDonald was clearly the aggressor.

If the jury finds McDonald mentally responsible, he would automatically be sentenced to life in prison. He has been held without bail under the state's preventive detention law.

Assistant State Attorney General Michael Zaleski, who acted as special prosecutor, told reporters he believed McDonald's testimony hurt his own case.

"It certainly didn't help him. I think it hurt him because of his demeanor and because the things he said were patently incredible," Zaleski said.

Suspect in park slaying held

CHEYENNE, Wyo. (AP) — A 19-year-old seasonal-Yellowstone National Park employee was denied bond Friday on a second-degree murder charge in connection with last week's slaying in the park.

U.S. Magistrate William Beaman refused to grant bail for Michael Lane Nickelson, of Livingston, Mont., at a hearing in U.S. District Court.

FBI Special Agent David Boyer and Assistant U.S. Attorney Lee Pico testified that Nickelson also is on probation from an armed robbery conviction in Montana.

A preliminary hearing is scheduled Wednesday to determine whether Nickelson should be bound over to federal court on the second-degree murder charge.

He is accused in the bludgeoning death of 22-year-old Randy Reddog of Wolf Point, Mont., whose body was found last Friday near the Old Faithful geyser in the park.

Both men worked for TW Services, a concessions firm in the park.

Feelin' Good charges waived

PROVO, Utah (AP) — Third-degree felony charges against 52 people involved in Feelin' Great, Inc., a Florida-based motivational firm, have been dropped at the request of the Utah County Attorney, authorities say.

However, charges based on Utah's pyramid scheme act remain in effect against 21 leaders of the organization, said Utah County Sheriff Dave Bateman.

The 52 charges were dismissed Friday in 8th Circuit Court. The individuals were served with summonses last week at a Feelin' Good seminar at the Excelsior Hotel here.

Feelin' Great uses books, tapes and lectures to promote a sense of well-being. The organization is considered a pyramid scheme under Utah law because it sells participants a chance to get money and commissions by bringing in new members instead of marketing a product, Bateman said.

Charge dropped in stabbing

PORTLAND (AP) — Murder charges have been dismissed against Robert Van Pelt, one of three Indian men accused in the stabbing death of a Toledo millworker.

The dismissal Friday was based on a ruling by Multnomah County Circuit Judge Donald H. Londer restricting the testimony of two witnesses to the killing. Jury selection begins Monday in the case.

Van Pelt, 23, was charged with murder, felony murder and burglary in the death of Donald Lee Pier, 42, and the attempted murder of Pier's son, Paul. Still facing the charges are Van Pelt's two cousins, Darelle Dean "Dino" Butler, 42, and Gary Leroy Butler, 27. The prosecution has linked Pier's death with robberies of Indian graves in the Toledo area.

The three have pleaded innocent to the charges.

"Friday the 13th is my lucky day," said Van Pelt, a Umatilla Indian, after his release. "In another four or five weeks, I don't know how long, my brothers will be out here with me."

Episcopal church commits to issues

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — The Episcopal Church ended an eight-day convention Saturday, having set a course of vigorous social activism in line with its new leader's commitment to grapple with public issues from nuclear arms to apartheid.

"However uncomfortable at times it becomes, the gospel of Jesus Christ requires a pastoral ministry which leads to prophetic witness and action," declared the Rt. Rev. Edmond Lee Browning, chosen to head the "diverse denomination for the next 12 years. "I pledge to you the exercise of both."

The Texas-reared bishop of Hawaii, a white-haired, liberal churchman of 56, is to be installed in January as the church's presiding bishop, primate and chief pastor. Succeeding the Most Rev. John M. Allin.

Browning, in his acceptance address last week, reeled off an agenda on which to mobilize the 3-million-member denomination, including help for America's "overburdened poor," battling the nuclear arms buildup as inconsistent with the gospel, fighting the "brutality of apartheid" in South Africa, and challenging U.S. policies in Central America.

The suffering in Central America is "in its poverty and injustice, not in communism," he said.

His platform got firm backing from the triennial governing convention, which ordered divestment of about $9 million of denominational holdings in companies doing business in South Africa, denounced federal indictments against church workers providing sanctuary to refugees from Central America and urged a halt to U.S. aid to rebels trying to topple the Nicaraguan government.

The convention launched a drive against President Reagan's Strategic Defense Initiative, known as "Star Wars," as a "fatally flawed" spur to the arms race, called for a U.S. Soviet verifiable nuclear freeze, condemned U.S. steps to resume production of nerve-gas weapons, and deplored cutbacks in aid for the poor to bolster military spending.

Representatives of the church, one of 28 national branches in the Anglican Communion, which claims 70 million members, dealt also with a host of ecclesiastical concerns, ranging from evangelical efforts to assuring equity in its own household to all comers.

The church's two-chamber government, the House of Bishops and lay-clergy House of Deputies, set new standards for reception of members, hailed recent Anglican-Roman Catholic agreements as a basis for work-toward-Christian reunion and reaffirmed participation in the Consultation on Church Union seeking to unite 10 U.S. denominations. They also asserted active involvement in world and national councils of churches, but asked fuller accountability to member denominations.

Seattle teachers set to vote

SEATTLE (AP) — Striking Seattle teachers will vote on the Seattle School District's latest contract offer, with the recommendation they reject it, a spokesman for the teachers' union said early today.

Spokesman John Cahill said the Seattle Teachers Association has not yet set a time or place for the vote, but hoped the referendum could be as early as Sunday evening.

"The (school) board challenged us to take it to our members," Cahill said. "We're going to do that but with the recommendation to vote no."

Talks between the two sides resumed Friday night and ended at 2:45 a.m. with the union saying it would call for the vote, said district spokesman Jim Hawkins.

Teachers will be voting on a district contract worth $6.2 million, Hawkins said. The union had proposed a $9.2 million package.

If teachers do vote to accept the offer, it would end the strike that began Sept. 3 and has kept about 43,500 students out of school since Sept. 4.

The walkout involves about 3,700 teachers, substitutes, secretaries and aides.

Board crosses fingers Tough battle looms for education funds

POCATELLO (AP) — The Idaho Board of Education is asking for an increase of more than 14 percent in state support for higher education — even though members acknowledge the request faces a tough battle to win approval from the governor and Legislature.

The board wound up a financial meeting in Pocatello Friday afternoon by asking for a $294.2 million budget, for the year starting next July 1. The request still has to be screened by the governor, then the Legislature's Joint Finance-Appropriations Committee, then the full Legislature.

Recent history indicates it will get a good look at all levels. And members Mike Mitchell, Lewiston, and Cheryl Hymas, Jerome, both voted against the budget, saying it was too low.

Within the week, Gov. John Evans ordered state agencies to cut back 2 1/2 percent of their budgets, because the state economy may not produce the revenue needed to fund the current budget.

That's a cut of more than $14 million. And since education gets three-quarters of general tax revenue, $10.9 million of the holdback will fall on educational institutions.

That means $7.6 million from state public school support. That may be more of a political problem than financial, however, because if the Legislature does nothing about the cutback, a statewide property tax increase will be triggered to offset the cut.

Colleges and universities will face $2.2 million less in the current budget — at the same time they're asking for a healthy increase in the new budget. School officials noted it's the fifth time in the last six budgets that higher education has faced a holdback of some sort.

Board members said while they realized the state's economic slump probably will linger well into next year, they felt obligated to present the actual needs of educational institutions.

"We should reflect the needs within reason," said board member Robert Montgomery, Boise.

Under the proposal approved Friday afternoon, the University of Idaho would receive $67.9 million; Boise State University $35.5 million; Idaho State University $30.8 million and Lewis-Clark State College would get $6.9 million.

That's the general fund revenue portion of the budget. The schools receive other income such as from student fees, endowment funds and similar sources.

New programs met a mixed reception. The board reduced a new program to create jobs from $2.5 million to $1 million, saying the economic stimulation proposals were too vague. A more detailed plan will be developed before members ask the Legislature for more money, the board decided.

The board also turned down $1.7 million to support endowed academic chairs for eminent scholars, and to reward students studying to become school teachers in critical areas such as math and science.

A BSU request for an increase to pay for program improvements in education and the health sciences also was turned down.

But the school won approval to launch a $1.2 million technical-vocational center in Canyon County. Funding will include a $500,000 federal grant; $300,000 from Boise Cascade Corp., $150,000 from the city of Nampa and $75,000 from Canyon County, in addition to $200,000 in Boise State University funds.

The new facility is designed to centralize operations in Canyon County. "Canyon County has a 3.5 percent unemployment rate. The vocational programs will retain people for existing jobs," said BSU President John Keiser.

He set the middle of next year for the facility's opening date.

Boise State also signed an agreement with the U.S. Army to develop educational training techniques. And a new contract with United Cable Television Corp. gives the university a license for a cable television channel to broadcast more educational programming.

Idaho State won approval to work on development of a new research park on state-owned land near the Pocatello campus. President Richard Bowen said the research center could benefit both ISU and the southeastern Idaho economy.

Conference panelists support idea of Hispanic commission

—BOISE (AP) — A state commission to work on Hispanic problems has captured general support at the third annual Image de Idaho conference here.

Panelists Ernesto Sanchez, director of Idaho Legal Aid Inc.; Frank Sanchez, Idaho Falls, equal employment opportunity manager for EG&G Idaho Inc.; and state Sen. Phil Batt, R-Willard, supported the idea.

Batt, who said he has not pushed for a commission, explained that he would support a commission dedicated to positive self-improvement.

But he said he would "not support a group which seeks to continue some of the failed programs of the past."

He added that he had read the goals of Image de Idaho. "They are excellent and consistent with my views," Batt said.

Batt told the 60 people attending the final day of the two-day conference that he saw two main reasons why it has been harder for Hispanics to join the American mainstream than other minorities. They are an influx of illegal aliens from Latin America and a strong desire by Hispanics to protect their culture.

Batt said he would support a commission on Hispanics if it would work to encourage self-help with minimal reliance on government programs; to create educational and job opportunities; and to enable Hispanics, as well as Anglos, to improve Idaho's ability to compete in the world marketplace.

Ernesto Sanchez said he was on a fact-finding committee, including legislators, that found there "was a need for a formal body to address the needs facing Hispanics."

A proposal for a commission on Hispanics was not considered by the full Legislature this year, Sanchez said, but will be revived in the 1986 session.

He said the commission would be a place where Hispanics could call for referral and information to resolve specific problems and a vehicle to address the broader issues facing Hispanic communities in Idaho.

Sanchez said a commission should work toward economic, educational, social, legal, housing and political equality for Hispanics. It also should be responsible for monitoring programs and legislation intended to help Hispanic people; identify and research problems and issues affecting Hispanics; recommend action or legislation to the governor; and be a liaison between community and government entities.

Sanchez told delegates they could help by becoming informed about the commission and talking with legislators.

State police fight crash-rate climb

BOISE (AP) — With Idaho accident rates climbing, the Idaho State Police force has launched a series of intensive patrols.

This week, the saturation effort put 62 ISP officers on interstate highways in eastern and southern Idaho for a 16-hour period.

More than 800 citations were written, the bulk of them for speeding. There were other traffic infractions and three arrests for drunken driving officers said.

"This stepped-up enforcement is in direct response to the sharp upturn noted in traffic fatalities," said ISP Superintendent Col. Calvin Bernard.

"Review of these accidents, has shown that speed, inattention and driving under the influence are the common denominators," he said.

Ore-Ida Foods lightens up, tries reduced-calorie fries

BOISE (AP) — If people are addicted to "tasty french fries," they might be in the mood for a reduced-calorie version, a Boise company figures.

Ore-Ida Foods, Inc., a subsidiary of the H.J. Heinz Co., plans a $20 million promotion campaign for its latest product, Ore-Ida Lites.

John Hell, new products manager, said Lites are french fries with 100 calories per 3-ounce portion, about the amount in a small order of fries at a fast food outlet.

Ore-Ida already offers low-calorie versions of other versions of french fries, but they contain 120 to 160 calories for a typical serving.

Ore-Ida said market research indicated consumers would buy low-calorie french fries if they tasted as good as the kind with more calories. The company came up with fries that contain 33 percent less oil, can be prepared in an oven and still taste good.

Last year, Ore-Ida ran a yearlong test of Lites in Denver, Dallas and Phoenix. The low-cal fries quickly grabbed a 5-percent share of the local french fry market.

The company's aiming at a 5-percent share of the national french-fry market, which currently is running about 900 million pounds per year.

Hell said Ore-Ida believes consumers will buy 45 million to 50 million pounds per year.

Lites are being produced at Ore-Ida's plants at Burley, Idaho, and Greenville, Mich.

Hell said Ore-Ida plans to develop french fries that can be cooked in microwave ovens and hash browns that can be prepared in toasters.

AIDS victim calm about death as he strives to help others

By BOB MIMS
The Associated Press

WALT LAKE CITY (AP) — It is with calm determination that Sheldon Spears faces death from Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome. At peace with his fate, he is devoted to helping other AIDS victims.

The progress of his illness, manifested as a form of skin cancer, has momentarily been halted by chemotherapy. But the 34-year-old Spears knows his time is limited.

Eventually, he says, the cancer will spread to his internal organs. At most, he expects to live less than three years.

"I'm handling it. I've had some emotional highs and lows, but I haven't been overly distraught," said Spears, who until he became ill in June was an educational psychology professor at the University of Utah.

"We all die eventually. It's just a matter of when," he said. "It looks like my number has come up a little more quickly, but I don't have a fear of the transition of death itself."

Already, 21 cases of AIDS have been reported in Utah, 10 of which ended in death, state health officials say. Fifteen of the victims were homosexual or bisexual men. Other victims included four intravenous drug users and two transfusion recipients.

But death itself is not as devastating a foe as the fear AIDS has brought to homosexuals, Spears said.

"Unfortunately, the fear that is currently in the gay community has almost paralyzed them from action. They are frightened of getting the disease," he said.

While living on accumulated sick leave and vacation time and having applied for disability under Social Security, Spears is keeping busy. Sandwiched in between trips to the doctor, he is striving to get AIDS Project-Utah off the ground.

The program is envisioned as an organization extending emotional support and practical care — transportation to doctors' offices, grocery shopping, house-cleaning and the like — to AIDS sufferers.

"The goal, in general, is to just try to make their lives as comfortable as possible," Spears said.

Meantime, Spears himself wrestles with the AIDS specter, and is doing so had grown closer to his family and his lover. He has quit having sex because of the disease.

"I have lost some friends, but I have not met with the overwhelming rejection that a lot of other AIDS patients go through," Spears said.

"I still have a lover. He's been very supportive. In fact, we have probably become closer (since the diagnosis)."

Finally, Spears said he felt he had made his peace with God.

"I do have a belief in God, and I have tried to make my way with Him," he said.

In reference to the Rev. Jerry Falwell's assertion that AIDS is a punishment from heaven, Spears said, "I don't feel it's retribution."

"Other people are diagnosed with other terminal diseases besides AIDS," he said. "It's just something that happens. Your number comes up, your card is turned over."

Wendell irons details of sewer lagoon plan

By TERRELL WILLIAMS
Times-News correspondent

WENDELL — City officials in Wendell are working out final legal details to buy a 40-acre farm for expansion of the sewer lagoon system. Loran Stephenson has agreed to sell the city his farm southwest of Wendell for $80,000. He and his wife have been given "life estate" in the transaction so they may live at the farm as long as they want to. The city has three lagoons that have been filled beyond capacity during winter months. In response to complaints from landowners around the lagoons, the council decided last spring to expand the sewer system. At the Wendell City Council meeting Thursday, the council agreed to take $80,000 from city savings and buy the Stephenson farm. Council President Dick Beck said the money, gained from the sale of city lots years ago, has been kept in a special savings account for such emergencies. To spend the money, the city must re-open its new 1985-86 budget. The $80,000 expenditure plan must be published in the Gooding County Leader two weeks in advance of approval and a public hearing on the budget change must be held. Beck predicted the land deal will be closed by Oct. 25. This winter, he said, the city might build a temporary dike to catch excess water. "As it's needed," Beck said, "we'll build ponds. Not this year, but maybe next year."

INN pushes utility changes

BURLEY — Idaho Neighbors Network has begun its drive to place an initiative on the November ballot that could change the city utility policy. INN spokesman Cheryl Choate said the initial petition was filed September 12 with the city clerk and will be returned within 10 days of that date. The document must be reviewed by city attorney Bill Parsons. Choate said that a door-to-door drive will be conducted to try to get the 367 signatures required by law for an initiative. The group is hopeful that they can get the petition readied in time for the November election, Choate said. INN would like to see the utility policy allow for personal notification before termination, a lower deposit fee, and no cut-off of service between Nov. 15 and March 15 in homes where there are children or elderly or sick residents.

Wendell holiday season to get early start with Christmas lights

By TERRELL WILLIAMS
Times-News correspondent

WENDELL — Christmas lights in Wendell will be lit Friday evening on the day after Thanksgiving. At the Wendell City Council meeting Thursday, businessmen Everett Winslow and Mitchell Bunn, representing the Wendell Chamber of Commerce, asked the city to put the decorations up earlier than usual this year. The merchants said they do not want to "overshadow Thanksgiving," but the biggest retail selling day of the year is the day after Thanksgiving, and so the Christmas decorations should be up. "People have to start early," Winslow said. "Dolly said the city's decorations are already in very poor shape. But the council agreed to have the Christmas lights lit by Nov. 29. The council members were re-

CSI offers five-week class on hospice for fall

TWIN FALLS — A class for hospice volunteers will start Sept. 24, from 7 to 10 p.m., at the College of Southern Idaho. The class, sponsored by Hospice for Southern Idaho, is a five-week class that will meet on Tuesday and Thursday of each week. Volunteers are needed throughout the Magic Valley area to assist Hospice for Southern Idaho in carrying out its program of hospice care. Hospice for Southern Idaho is a non-profit organization that serves all of the Magic Valley. The classes include the following subjects: Introduction to Hospice, Psychological Aspects of Terminal Illness, Pain Control for the Dying Person, and Grief Processes, Family Dynamics and Communication Skills, Spiritual Concerns and Funeral Options and Decisions, Personal Care of the Patient and Family, and Community Resources for the Dying and their Family.

'Value-added' alfalfa pellets example for the rest of Idaho

By BOB FREUND
Times-News writer

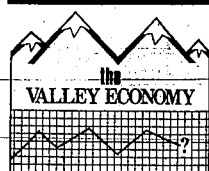

TWIN FALLS — John Stolzman hauls in tons of alfalfa hay in big, bulky bales to the Faulkner Pelleting Plant on Gooding's west side.

He sends it out to feed manufacturers, horse farms and rabbit raisers in small pellets, less than an inch long and about as thick as a pencil.

It's been chopped, pressed and dried into a different form for several reasons.

"It's more compact. It takes up less room and it's cleaner," says Stolzman, who runs the Faulkner Pelleting mill with employee Max Snow. It also is more palatable to some animals, such as sheep.

But something else has happened. The pelleted hay is worth more. It commands higher price because of its new form.

Seventh in a series

While a standard bale of hay sells anywhere from $55 to $70 a ton, "Right now, it's anywhere from $90 to $105 a ton, depending upon what you want to do and how much you want to buy," Stolzman says.

Faulkner Pelleting is doing on a small scale what state officials and some business people say Idaho ought to be doing on a big scale — adding value to its raw products.

"Value-added" is the buzzword used. It may mean different things for different products.

Generally, it involves processing the raw products — crops from the fields, timber from the forests or minerals from the mines — into more valuable forms. For some industries, it may mean intermediate products. In others, it may mean finished goods that go directly to the consumer.

Idaho already does large amounts of food processing and wood products manufacturing.

The benefits of adding value close to the fields or forests can be substantial for both the state's economy and for industry.

The plants themselves create jobs and enlarge the tax base, both through property owned and through income that is taxed. Often, the dollars spent on the products also return to the state. And new plants here attract suppliers and other services.

Industries also have substantial incentive to add value in locations near their raw products.

A major advantage comes in transportation costs, because the raw product often is processed into something smaller or more compact, says Don Holley, economist for Orelida Foods Corp., which operates a processing plant in Burley.

"In food processing, it's much cheaper to ship a french fry than to ship a fresh potato," Holley says.

John Stolzman bags pellets produced from alfalfa hay at the Faulkner Pelleting Plant

Once processed, 100 pounds of raw potatoes will yield 45 to 60 pounds of frozen potatoes.

"If we grow the potato and ship it to Washington to be processed, then we have added very little value to the final product," he says. And the company has paid more freight to get it there.

The transportation costs are important to industries looking for new sites. "I think southern Idaho or Twin Falls are good locations because they are close to the raw product, and they'll process the raw product and get rid of some of the weight and ship it out," he says.

Green Giant Co. at Buhl operates close to its raw product — sweet corn — and essentially does the same thing as the frozen potato packers. Green Giant strips husks off the corn and for most products, also gets rid of the cobs. The much lighter and smaller kernels are packed into cans or frozen for packages.

"About two-thirds of the weight goes out as husk and cob," says plant Manager Darrel McRoberts. It then is much more economical to ship to destinations in the West and the Far East.

The freight formula offers one explanation as to why Idaho is an unlikely candidate for an auto plant or a refrigerator manufacturer. Making either in Idaho would involve shipping heavy, bulky metals in and shipping heavy, bulky products out. Two tremendous freight bills to put up against the added value.

How much value can be added to products? It is an important question.

For some industries, it may be absolutely essential to be close to the raw product. If Amalgamated Sugar

Co. had to ship raw sugar beets all over the country, the value of the refined sugar might not ever overcome the transportation bills and other expenses.

On the other hand, Tupperware Co. takes no raw material for its products from the area. It hauls compact, plastic pellets into its Jerome plant and ships out many truckloads of light, bulky containers to markets throughout the county, says plant Manager John Forbes. The workers change the form, adding very little more than the plastic, but substantial value, he says.

For Tupperware, it's more economical to send products to market from Idaho than to locate near the plant that produces the pellets.

Spud assessment rate climbs

SUN VALLEY — The Idaho Potato Commission has increased its advertising assessment rate for growers and shippers to 6½ cents for each 100 pounds of potatoes marketed during the 1985-86 season, Executive Director G.C. Randall has announced.

The new rate represents a one-half cent increase from 1984-85 marketing year.

Under state law, the grower will pay 3.9 cents this year, which is 50 percent of the tax. The first handler will pay the remaining 40 percent, or 2.6 cents of the tax.

The state commission, which promotes Idaho potatoes, has budgeted $4.2 million for advertising in the coming year. The promotions budget is up $500,000 from the $3.7 million spent in 1984.

Advertising plans include national consumer advertising in magazines, a number of television commercials in major markets across the country, and an expanded schedule of ads in trade publications for the food service industry. The commission also plans promotional programs aimed at the nation's volume feeders, Randall said.

The commission met in Sun Valley recently during the annual convention of the Idaho Grower Shippers Association.

Dairy nominations still open

BOISE — Magic Valley dairy producers can nominate candidates to represent them on the Idaho Dairyman's Association board of directors until Sept. 23.

The term of the representative for District III is expiring. The district covers Blaine, Camas, Gooding, Jerome, Lincoln, Cassia, Minidoka and Twin Falls counties. Lewis Ehlers of Kimberly currently holds the seat and is eligible for re-nomination.

Nominations should be sent to Dale Williams at Pfler, district nominating committee chairman. After nominations are set, formal ballots will be mailed to all eligible producers in the district. The election closes on Oct. 15.

Wheat Growers' post filled

BOISE — A Moscow-area farm manager has been appointed executive director of the Idaho State Wheat Growers Association.

Timothy McGreevy was named to the post Sept. 1, association President Ted J. Roth announced. He replaces Harland Blackburn, who retired after many years with the ISWGA.

McGreevy, 27, recently managed a 800-acre farm growing wheat, barley, peas and lentils in the Moscow area. He also managed a related, 300-head cattle operation.

He holds a master's degree in agricultural economics from Washington State University at Pullman. He also worked with campus radio and television stations and wrote some commentaries for National Public Radio, McGreevy said in a short interview.

As executive director, McGreevy is the association's top staff member and directs its daily operations.

BOISE — Richard Leshner, president of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, will headline the governor's Pro-Idaho Economic Development Conference Thursday and Friday at the Red Lion-Riverside in Boise. The Idaho Department of Commerce has announced.

Leshner, who has been president of the national chamber for the past decade, will speak on the state's role in economic development at the conference's dinner Thursday evening.

The conference includes discussions of economic development in the Rocky Mountain states and the potential for more growth in Idaho. Seminars during the two-day meeting include assessments of Idaho's resources and ways of organizing to spur economic development.

The conference is open to anyone interested in economic development. More information is available by contacting the Department of Commerce at 334-3416.

Bureau post goes to Brown

POCATELLO — Bill Brown, a Twin Falls native and former Hazelton-area farmer, has been named executive vice president of the Idaho Farm Bureau Federation, President Tom Geary of Burley has announced.

Brown will direct the staff and run the day-to-day operations of the statewide federation. He replaces former executive director vice president Lynn Parke, who resigned in the spring.

Brown most recently was employed as marketing officer for the Pocatello branch of Idaho-First National Bank.

However, he served from 1980 to 1983 as executive vice president of the Montana Farm Bureau Federation.

He also held a number of positions in the Idaho federation during the 1970s, including manager of the Farm Bureau Marketing Association of Idaho, director of public affairs and director of field services.

In a written announcement, Brown said profitability is the most critical problem for Idaho farmers. "We need to work toward a more market-oriented agriculture, where our members are free to make management decisions that lead toward a reasonable expectation of a fair profit," he said.

Ray Poe, director of the federation's commodity division, had been the acting executive vice president since Parke's resignation.

The Idaho Farm Bureau Federation is the state's largest general farm organization, with more than 23,000 members.

Travel committee meet set

TWIN FALLS — The Magicland Travel Committee will meet Tuesday to reorganize and elect new officers. Chairman Nick Cotzakos has announced. The meeting is scheduled for 1 p.m. at Doc & Dan's restaurant in Rupert.

The committee holds an organizational meeting annually. However, Cotzakos called this reorganization "critical" because of budget cuts at the Region IV Development Association which supplies committee staff.

Businesses in the travel industry and interested members of the public are invited.

'Mixed' wheat classification could cost growers dollars

BOISE — A variety of winter wheat grown in the Magic Valley and southeastern Idaho may be classified as a "mixed" grain by federal authorities and bring significant discounts at market if planted this fall. Its developer and the Idaho State Wheat Growers Association are warning.

The Federal Grain Inspection Service already has placed some samples of Ute wheat into its "mixed" classification, saying the "kernels have characteristics of both hard red spring and hard red winter wheats."

"We feel it's urgent to get the word out, because farmers may be planting their winter wheat any day, and the discount could range from a few cents to between 30 and 40 cents," said Wade Dewey, the Utah State University researcher who developed Ute two years ago.

Ute — a semi-dwarf hard red winter wheat — will be classified as a mixed grain if the kernels contain more than a 10 percent mixture of hard red spring characteristics, the chairman of the FGIS Board of Appeals and Review told the Idaho State Wheat Growers Association.

Dewey said the problem is cosmetic. The crossbreeding used to develop the strain creates kernels that occasionally have a shorter and stubbler appearance like that of spring wheat, he said.

The FGIS classifications originally were developed to show differences in milling and baking qualities of different types of wheats, Dewey said. Plant scientists have proposed several changes in the grading system, he said.

Brendan O'Connell, a University of Idaho cereals chemist based at Aberdeen and manager of the Crop Quality Laboratory at Aberdeen, said an "outmoded" grading system is causing the problem.

For the time being, "we're cautioning against planting the irrigated winter wheat. Farmers cannot afford the discount that could be involved," Dewey said.

Trade winds

Lynn Nicholson has been appointed U.S. postmaster at Hagerman, Nicholson, who was postmaster at Marsing for four years, replaces Mearl James, who retired in March. In the interim, Dave Davis of the Glens Ferry Post Office and Dennis Hampton from the Boise Post Office each had acted as officer-in-charge.

Young Ford Inc. of Burley has been awarded Ford Motor Co.'s Gold Distinguished Service Citation for excellence in parts and service. The award ranks the dealership among the top 1 percent of Ford and Lincoln-Mercury dealerships nationwide in parts and service.

Harold Young, Equitable Life and Casualty Insurance Co. agent for Twin Falls, recently was honored as an exceptional agent by the company for writing insurance policies worth at least $50,000 in new premiums during the first seven months of the year. He is based in Twin Falls.

East Idaho layoff woes continuing

IDAHO FALLS (AP) — Only days after major layoffs were announced by two other employers in the region, 50 to 55 employees of EG&G Idaho have been notified that they too are being laid off before the end of the month.

A spokesman for the company, which is the prime Department of Energy contractor at the Idaho National Engineer Laboratory near Idaho Falls, said most of the affected workers were union members in the crafts trades although several professional and non-union employees are affected as well.

The layoffs were prompted by the end of experiments at INEL's Loss of Fluid Test Facility and the Power Burst Facility, according to Roger Scott. There will also be some seasonal reductions by the Sept. 27 layoff date.

"The numbers are still hard to pin down," Scott said. "There will still be work going on to place these people. Hopefully the number laid off by the 27th will be lower than the number right now."

EG&G, which had a total Idaho employment of 3,600 in August, had originally expected as many as 150 layoffs when projects were made in March about the ending of programs at the two INEL facilities. The company is attempting to place some of the people in other positions internally. It also plans to assist them in placement elsewhere, Scott said. Some of the layoffs may be handled by early retirements.

The latest round of layoffs were first announced by Republican Sen. Steve Symms, who said the situation demonstrates the need for an expanded employment base in eastern Idaho. He gave no indication of steps he would take to move the state in that direction.

Earlier this week, Project Construction Corp. in Pocatello announced the layoff of 120 workers as it phases out its involvement in a Wyoming natural gas project, and a day later ANR-Garrett Freightlines of Utah announced it would close its Pocatello maintenance shop and line haul operation by mid-December, throwing another 60 to 70 people out of work.

Judges set to bestow two Junior Miss titles

By LORAYNE O. SMITH - Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Two Junior Miss titles for 1986 will be conferred at the talent program Saturday at the CSI Fine Arts Auditorium.

Eighteen area senior high school girls are competing in this year's event. Eleven will vie for the Twin Falls title and seven for Magic Valley Junior Miss designation. The annual program is sponsored by the Twin Falls Kiwanis Club.

Crowning of the 1986 contenders will highlight the 8 p.m. Saturday program which will include individual — talent — numbers — and — a choreographed physical fitness routine, according to Mike McBride, program chairman.

Current title holders are Monica Andersen, Twin Falls Junior Miss, and Marie Glenn, Magic Valley Junior Miss.

Nearly $5,000 in scholarships will be given this year, focusing attention on the achievements of youth and encouraging excellence in young people, McBride says.

Admission tickets are $4 each and may be purchased from any of the contestants, Kiwanis Club members or at the door. They also are available at Judi's Book Store, Christian Book Store and Penny Wise-Drug-In-Twin-Falls; Sav-Mor-Drug and Print Shop in Filer.

Local winners will compete for the state title in Moscow in November. Contestants for Twin Falls Junior Miss, all 17 years of age and Twin Falls High School seniors, include:

Paula Armstrong, daughter of Gordon and Carol Armstrong, is active in drill team, French Club, Chamber Singers and student government. She hopes to become a dental hygienist after attending BYU and enjoys water skiing, snow skiing, tennis, softball, football and jogging.

Avoiding loneliness adds strength to an otherwise small fear

By COSMOPOLITAN

One quarter of the adult American population lives alone — and the wise one learns to cope with it. Some people can ride out periods of solitude in comparative comfort, according to an article in the September issue of Cosmopolitan, while others have almost a phobia about being alone.

"People who are most afraid of loneliness may never have let themselves actually experience it," said New York City psychologist Carin M. Rubenstein, author of a national study of loneliness. "It then becomes something like a fear of snakes. The more you avoid what scares you, the harder it is to overcome."

Women, sometimes dread loneliness because they see it as a permanent condition.

"In the realm of relationships, these women think if they risk being alone, they are doomed to be 'terminally single,'" said Arthur Freeman, a clinical psychologist and senior consultant to the Center for Cognitive Therapy in Philadelphia.

"Many are convinced there are just no eligible men out there, only gays, married men, and nerds. If a woman conceals there may be a few good men around, she is convinced that none of them would ever be attracted to her. So she figures she'd better stick with what she's got and pretend to like it."

Chronically lonely people do have problems, according to a survey by psychologists Rubenstein and Phillip Shaver. They found the lonely prone to depression, insomnia, headaches, heart disease, weight problems and loss of sexual interest.

Disneyland memorable for carriers

Five Times-News carriers/salesmen from throughout the Magic Valley had a memorable trip to Disneyland recently for winning a new subscription contest.

They include James B. Wood, son of Jim Wood and Betty J. Hayes, both Twin Falls; Jeremy and Michelle Breeding, children of Paul and Jeana Breeding, Rupert; Larry Capps, son of Bill and Belinda Capps, Twin Falls, and Boyd Okeberry, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Okeberry, Guler. Mike Bower, circulation manager, and Jeana Breeding, a district circulation manager, accompanied the young salesmen. The four-day outing also included a visit to Universal Studios.

Winners are announced for the Kids "R" Cuts contest held recently to benefit the American Cancer Society, with proceeds going to further cancer research and public education in the Magic Valley.

In the Infant to 12-month category, Cody Collins was the people's choice; Jennifer Parry was first; Hilary Parry, second, and Christopher Vollmer, third, and Timothy Bourner and Callie Burk, honorable mention in the judges' choice.

For 13 months to 2 1/2 years, Brett Kleinholz

Lorayne O. Smith Spotlight

was the people's choice; Brenna Dowd, first; Sara King, second; Collin Peterson, third; Stephanie and Hollie Howard, honorable mention in the judges' choice.

Two and a half to 5 years — Maria Leazer was the people's choice; Corrie Reed, first; Andy Nelson, second; Rachel Gooding, third, and Kristal Adams and Darcy Thomas, honorable mention in the judges' choice.

Jaimy Louise Rost, 7, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Rost, Wendell, was named 1985 Idaho queen at Today's Little Dream pageant held recently in Boise. The second-grader also was named Miss Hospitality, receiving $300 for both titles and a roundtrip air flight to Florida to participate in the national pageant in October.

Ray Schmidt, Filer, has been elected governor of Region 13 of the International Luthan Laymen's League. Schmidt was elected to the two-year term at the 88th annual convention of the international group.

A member of Trinity Lutheran Church in Boise, he previously served as president and media chairman of the Utah-Idaho district. He is employed as an operator-pumping stations for the High Line Canal Co. and is president of the Twin Falls City Bowling Association. He and his wife, Georgia, are the parents of five grown children.

Shelly Skaug, daughter of Joo Skaug, Jerome, has received a $14,000 scholarship for outstanding students for her senior year at the University of Southern California. She is scheduled to graduate next May with a B.S. degree in investment banking. She graduated from CSI in 1983.

Allen J. Denison, son of Calvin and Alys Denison, Twin Falls, has been accepted into the four-year professional program leading to the doctor of optometry degree at Southern California College of Optometry. A graduate of Twin Falls High School, Denison earned his B.A. degree at Brigham Young University in 1983 where he belonged to Phi Kappa Phi, national honor society.

Edna Graham still has an old railroad sign from her early years in Adelaide

Adelaide not forgotten site in mind of Edna Graham

By LORAYNE O. SMITH
Times-News writer

RUPERT — Adelaide may be only a near-forgotten railroad siding in Minidoka County, but to Edna Graham the rural area 14 miles north of Rupert holds fond memories.

It also recalls years of hard times, drought and an over-abundance of rabbits which ultimately meant economic failure of the early-day attempt to dry farm the area known as the North Side Project. Deep wells installed several decades later have since brought prosperity to later settlers.

But Graham, who was born there in 1917, mostly remembers the beautiful desert flowers, herding cows and everyday family life. For amusement she would make "umbrellas" out of the Jim Hill mustard.

"When anyone wanted to get on the train, they'd just flag it down with a piece of sagebrush," the longtime Rupert woman recalls.

In addition to a railroad maintenance building, there was a combined post office and general store located on their farm, but after it burned, the post office was moved to Kimama, another railroad siding five miles to the east.

Graham's parents, Christian and Johanna Neuharth, were among the area's first pioneers, coming in April 1914 from South Dakota. Her father homesteaded 320 acres, part of a settlement of mostly German-Americans.

They first had to haul water from Kimama, which received brief news media attention several decades ago when the entire townsite was sold.

Graham attended a country school south of Adelaide which first served both as a school and church for the German Reform (Congregational) settlers.

Graham remembers her mother, in true pioneer spirit, once mother-of-factly killing a coyote in the corner of their garden with several blows with a heavy stick. Another time she calmly put out a fire Graham had accidentally started while playing with matches.

"I was so scared I hid in the closet," Graham laughs, "but Mother just doused the fire and then found me."

After living in the usual homestead shack, her father built an eight-room, two-story house which later served as the parsonage for the Zion Reformed Church.

He worked for the Oregon Short Line Railroad and her mother took in boarders in a vain effort to keep afloat financially, despite the low productivity of the farmland caused by drought. Her father also trapped coyotes to supplement the family income.

But despite their vallant efforts, the Neuharths, along with most of their neighbors, lost their land in 1926 to a combination of drought and rabbits, Graham says. They moved to a farm on the rim rock north of Rupert and later east of town.

In 1929 the family returned to Virgil, S.D., where she met her husband, John Graham, at a Christmas program in a country school. They were married March 1, 1935, in De Smet, S.D., and came to Idaho that fall. Her parents also returned to Idaho the next year.

The Grahams farmed southeast and southwest of Rupert, then he worked for the city of Rupert for 25 years. She has worked at many kinds of jobs, in a day before that was common, as well as raising her family.

She was doing housework for $2 to $3 per week when she was married, and since returning to the Rupert area, has variously worked at Simplot's, Idaho Department Store and M.H. King Co.

She also hastened at the old Chan's Barbecue and was a carhop at Cooper's Drive-in "to help out."

Although she was materially poor in her early years, Graham says "poverty taught us to do without. If you don't have the money for it, you don't need it."

Times were too hard for her to obtain much formal education, but her love of reading and poetry and travels "from coast to coast" have provided much self education.

For many years, she belonged to the Helping Hand Club, whose members perform many unselfing neighborly tasks. She is secretary of the Rupert Grange, a post she's held the past nine years. In 1983, the Adelaide native also served as president of the Old Settlers Association, which has an annual get-together each October.

Graham is past secretary and director of the Minidoka Historical Society in which she and her husband still retain membership. The Grahams also love to camp as well as travel to see their children, Lester Graham, Santa Fe, N.M., Daryl Graham, Rupert, and Judy Thornton, Amarillo, Texas. They have 11 grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

They observed their golden wedding anniversary last month when all their children could be home.

Graham loves to garden, enjoys photography and collects commemorative stamps. She has stamps to get into albums, slides from their travels to sort and is working on writing her family history.

"I've got to live to be 100 to get everything I want to, do done," she laughs.

KEY FOR MEAT LEAN FACTS GRAPH

A. Cut of meat.
B. 3 oz. is the standard serving size of cooked trimmed meat used throughout the Albertsons LEAN FACTS™ program.
C. The explanation under TOTAL FAT provides amounts of saturated fat, monounsaturated fat and polyunsaturated fat.
D. Measurements for components highlighted by a "*" are based on other standards of comparison, because there are no official U.S. RDA's for these factors.
E. The calorie and sodium standards are based on information from the National Academy of Sciences Food Nutrition Board which establishes recommended daily allowances.
F. Fat and cholesterol standards are based on the recommendation of the American Heart Association.
G. Measurements for components highlighted by a "" are based on the Recommended Daily Allowances (U.S. RDA). The U.S. RDA's were developed by the Food & Drug Administration. They are guides to the amount of protein, vitamins and minerals a healthy person needs each day.
H. Source of data is given.
I. The number of calories in the 3 oz. cooked, trimmed serving size is given.
J. The cut will have a specific method of cooking indicated because the way the meat is cooked affects the nutritive value.
K. The weights of the nutrients in the 3 oz. serving of meat are indicated by the following measurements: calories (kcal) = energy measure gram (g) = 1/28 oz. milligram (mg) = one thousandth of a gram microgram (mcg) = one millionth of a gram
L. Bars on the graph show the percent of U.S. RDA or other standard of comparison for the calories and nutrients. The bars show how much of your dietary recommendation you will get from the 3 oz. serving of meat.
M. The percent of dietary recommendations are shown in numbers, as well as bars.

Teen caught in lurch between parent's lies

DEAR ABBY: I am 16 and my problem is my parents. I love them both and hope they aren't staying married because of me, because I think they both would be happier if they were divorced.

They lie to each other and they both ask me to lie for them. My mother has several boyfriends, and my father has one ladyfriend that I know about for sure.

Neither of my parents knows what the other is doing, but I do. They are not being fair to each other, and they are not being fair to me and they are not being fair to the friends they are lying to. I don't know how to handle it.

I need some advice, but please don't say where this is from. Sign me

—TIREDFLYING
DEAR TIREDFLYING: Talk to both parents privately. Tell them that you are tired of lying, and urge them to get counseling so that they can quit lying to each other and asking you to lie for them.

This is a heavy load for you to bear alone, so for the good of all, I strongly recommend family counseling. You are a very intelligent 16-year-old, and I admire you for trying to find a solution to this family problem.

DEAR ABBY: The letter from the man who worries whether the staples used in his vasectomy might rip an airport's security alarm reminds me of my problem.

I've been single-breasted since my 1964 mastectomy. Though I've tried various prostheses, the one I'm most comfortable with — don't laugh — is a plastic bag filled with birdseed, tightly closed and encased in a little cotton pouch. (I buy parakeet seed from the supermarket.) The birdseed shifts with my movements, as my natural breast does. But since I'm an A-cup, it isn't heavy enough to keep from riding up, so I accepted my husband's suggestion and added about a teaspoon of birdshot for added weight.

Query: If I wear this gadget when

Abigail VanBuren Dear Abby

I fly, will the birdshot trip the security alarm? It would be most embarrassing if it did, so I leave it home, and wear a silicone prosthesis when I travel — which is not as comfortable, especially in hot weather.

Please let me know.

—MASS BIRDSEED LADY
DEAR LADY: The next time you fly, carry your birdseed-birdshot mixture in your purse. If it trips the alarm, you could show it to the inspectors without embarrassment.

DEAR ABBY: "Cliff" and I have been married for 23 years, and we've had what I consider a good marriage, but something bothers me. Before we met, Cliff was engaged to "Ellen," but he caught her with another man and broke off with her.

Soon after, we met, fell in love and were married. Ellen is also married and lives in another state, and Cliff has kept in touch with her all these years. He's especially close to Ellen's son, who is being married next month.

Cliff plans to go to the wedding and says I am welcome to go with him, but I don't really want to go.

This has me so upset I can't think straight. I've always wondered why Cliff has taken such an interest in that boy. I've even wondered if the boy was his.

I don't know what to do. Should I go with him or not? Or should I try to stop him from going?

—AFRAID TO DIG DEEPER
DEAR AFRAID: Your signature shows you to be a very perceptive woman. Not knowing is worse than knowing. I think you should share your innermost feelings and nagging doubts with Cliff. You need to clear the air and put your mind at ease. Don't ask him not to go. Go with him.

Grange holds golden rites

TWIN FALLS — The Knoll Grange will celebrate its 50th anniversary with a reception Friday night at Woodstone Retirement Center honoring Elmer M. Dossert, the only remaining charter member.

Granger members and friends are invited to call between 6 and 8 p.m. in the Woodstone recreation room.

Knoll Grange No. 361 was organized March 7, 1935, with 53 charter members. Dossert was the first overseer of the group and the next year served as master. Through the years, he has served in nearly every office of the subordinate grange and also was master and held other offices in the Twin Falls County Pomona Grange.

When first organized, the Knoll Grange met in the Pleasant View school six miles south of Twin Falls on Highway 74. After the schools consolidated in 1944, the men of the community purchased the building and renamed it the Knoll Community Center, with the Grange as caretaker of the building.

The grange continues to be the center of community activities, sponsoring a Boy Scout troop and 4-H clubs. Members help with polo and Red Cross drives as well as many other activities.
