Reagan outlines fair trade policy

By MICHAEL PUTZEL
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Reagan, trying to slay off legislation to protect battered American industries from cheap imports, outlined a refurbished trade policy Monday that is designed to combat unfair trade practices abroad and open foreign markets to U.S. goods.

"I will not stand by and watch American businesses fail because of unfair trading practices abroad," Reagan pledged in a speech to lawmakers and business leaders invited to the White House to hear his anouncement. "I will not stand by and watch American workers lose their jobs because other nations do not play by the rules."

Congress' reaction — A3
Dollar off, stocks up — D1

But Reagan, who has said quotas or tariffs to protect more expensive domestic products from foreign competition would lead to economic disaster, promised to veto measures "that I believe, will harm economic growth, cause loss of jobs and diminish international trade."

The president said he would ask Congress to establish a $500 million war chest to provide grants and loans to "counter our loss of business to trading partners who use what, in effect, are subsidies to deprive U.S. companies of fair access to world markets."

A senior administration official, briefing reporters on condition he not be identified, said the money would be used to compete with nations that not only provide low-cost loans to help foreign buyers acquire selected goods but sometimes even pay foreign buyers directly for choosing certain products. The official named France as one of the countries engaging in such practices.

The United States needs authority to participate in such deals as a means of discouraging others from engaging in the practice, the official said.

Sen. John Danforth, R-Mo., an author of major trade legislation pending in Congress, hailed Reagan's speech as "exactly what is needed... a terrific speech" but useful only if the administration carries out the new program.

Danforth predicted the speech wouldn't prevent passage of legislation to impose quotas on imported textiles, saying "the big battle" in Congress will be over whether the Senate will override the president's anticipated veto of the textile bill.

Retaliating his opposition to protectionism, Reagan said, "We do not dream of protecting America from others' success."

He said some programs, while "well-meaning in motive," would raise consumers' costs, invite retaliation by America's trading partners, cost jobs in other domestic industries, rekindle inflation and strain international relations.

"We do not want a trade war with other nations," Reagan told his East Room audience.

Rescue crews find 26 alive

By DANA FIELDS
The Associated Press

Relatives safe — B1

MEXICO CITY — Rescue workers said Monday they tunneled into the ruins of a government technical school and found 26 survivors of Mexico's two killer earthquakes.

"They said more people might be alive under the debris."

At a collapsed apartment building, a German shepherd rescue dog named Bobby sniffled and pawed at a spot in the ruins. An hour's digging freed 20-month-old Patricia Aguirre, dehydrated but otherwise unharmed despite being entombed since the quakes Thursday and Friday.

Dr. German Oropez Gonzalez, coordinator of the rescue effort at the Conalep technical school, said a tunnel had been dug through to the 26 survivors.

Police and the attorney general's office said the death toll in Mexico City stood at 3,000 on Monday with 1,500 others still believed trapped inside collapsed buildings. The president's office said about 100 people were killed elsewhere in Mexico. Police said about 4,000 people were missing.

The State Department said in Washington that 3,461 were known dead throughout the area struck by the quakes, including six Americans. There was no immediate explanation of the discrepancy. The State Department said it based its figure on information from Mexican authorities. But the U.S. Embassy in Mexico said it had no idea where the State Department figures were coming from.

Embassy spokesman Vince Hovanez said there are 12 missing Americans and they are presumed dead, but he would not give their names, nor identify the dead Americans.

Mexico's federal health department said at least 11,000 people were injured by the quakes, which smashed the heart of this city of 18 million people. The number of people left homeless was estimated at 300,000.

President Reagan's wife, Nancy, came on a brief mission of inspection and sympathy, bringing a U.S. government check for $1 million to help in relief efforts.

She toured the city for 3 1/2 hours, visiting survivors at refugee centers and a Red Cross hospital in the company of Paloma Cordero de la Madrid, wife of President Miguel de la Madrid.

She talked to opera star Placido Domingo outside the building where four of his relatives are missing.

Dozens of flights arrived from abroad with rescue squads, demolition experts, medicine, temporary shelters, food and clothing.

More than 50 specially trained dogs were sent from France, Italy, Switzerland and West Germany the United States.

At the ruins of the Juarez hospital, where at least 900 doctors, other medical personnel and patients were believed trapped, an intern crawled through a tunnel to safety at 5:30 a.m. Monday.

Jose Juan Hernandez Cruz had talked to rescuers Sunday, his 23rd birthday, as they dug toward him. The 29 1/2-hour rescue effort was accomplished by a French team trying to reach another man 10 feet beyond.

Other rescuers found 18-month-old Jessica Alonso on Sunday. She had been buried for 80 hours next to the body of her mother, and started crying when one of her saviors picked her up.

Relief funds sought

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Americans rushing to help quake-stricken Mexico were asked Monday to send money, not food, clothing and other traditional relief items that aren't needed and could choke fragile supply lines.

The American Red Cross, which made the request, also said its 10-member team on the scene reported that because some parts of Mexico City were untouched by the disaster, local authorities were coping better than had been expected.

A State Department spokesman, David Charles Redman, said the department would continue sending relief supplies, an effort that so far has included the shipment of medical equipment, bulldozers, search-and-rescue teams and fire-fighting helicopters.

A special phone number, 202-653-7959, was set up to take calls at the State Department from Americans who have not heard from relatives in Mexico and are concerned about their safety.

Shipments on Monday included two dozen 3,000-gallon water tanks and 110 rolls of plastic sheeting for shelters. More than 3,000 cases went from a U.S. government stockpile in Panama, and Dade County, Fla., sent a four-man team of rescue experts.

Educators laud Hispanic students' gains in scores on SAT

By LEE MITGANG
The Associated Press

Editorial — A4

NEW YORK — Hispanic students led the strongest gain in average Scholastic Aptitude Test scores in more than two decades this year, a surge hailed by some educators as evidence that reform is taking hold in public schools.

College Board president George H. Hanford said at a news conference Monday that nationwide average scores rose five points on the verbal portion of the test, to 451, and four points in math to 478.

The combined gain of nine points on the two-part exam, taken annually by about a million college-bound high school students, boosted the average math score to 508. It was the biggest increase since 1963 when scores also gained nine points before sliding steadily for the next two decades.

The SAT is scored on a scale of 200 to 800, with a combined math-verbal score of 1600 being perfect. It is an entrance requirement at virtually all the nation's selective colleges and universities.

Scores on the ACT, a rival test administered by the American College Testing Program in Iowa City, Iowa, also taken by about a million students mostly in the West and Midwest, also rose in 1985 but only slightly.

Hanford said this year's SAT upsurge was a product of steps taken by schools in the 1970s to stress basic skills, as well as the more recent education reforms of the 1980s.

In Washington, Education Secretary William J. Bennett hailed the SAT gains with a "Bravo!" but cautioned against letting up in the push for educational excellence. He called this year's results "further evidence that American secondary education is on the mend."

Hanford also warned against complacency. "Despite the gains of the past few years, we are yet a combined 100 to 171 points behind the scores of 1963, the last high point in this SAT saga. We still have a long way to go."

He added that it might not even be reasonable to expect average scores to over equal 1963 levels again — 502 math and 478 verbal. More students take the test now, he said, including many more minority students who traditionally have trouble with standardized exams.

President Reagan last year set a goal of trying to wipe out the 22-year SAT score decline by 1990. To achieve that would require average combined math-verbal gains of seven points annually.

Mexican-American and Puerto Rican students registered the best gains of any ethnic group. Puerto Ricans' verbal scores rose 10 points to a 388 average, and their math scores were up six points to 428. Mexican-Americans gained six points on both math and verbal scores, averaging 426 and 382, respectively.

Hanford said he had no explanation for the strong showing by those two groups, but said minority groups in general seemed to be performing better on the SAT in recent years.

Black students' scores improved four points to 345 on the verbal, and three points to 378 on the math. White students' scores rose by four points on both math, up to 491, and verbal, 440.

Lawmakers wary of Reagan trade offer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Legislators politely welcomed President Reagan's pledge Monday that he will fight unfair foreign trading practices, but members of Congress indicated they were unwilling to surrender the initiative in the trade battle to the White House.

In addition, authors of major trade legislation said they still plan to move ahead with their measures. "The Reagan administration still has one eye closed as it faces a mounting crisis in foreign trade," said Rep. Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill., chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee and a co-sponsor of a major Democratic trade bill.

However, Michel, whose Peoria, Ill., district includes the headquarters of Caterpillar Tractor Co., a major exporter, added, "We intend to move forward with our legislative proposals and I am encouraged by these new prospects for greater cooperation and assistance from the administration."

House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., D-Mass., said, "The president sounded an uncertain trumpet on trade. I believe the Congress wants to send a clear and certain message that the American people will not stand for unfair trade practices." Republican Sen. William Cohen of Maine, where the shoe industry has been hit hard by foreign imports, said, "The president says he won't stand idly by while American workers lose their jobs, but of course that is what the administration has done and will continue to do."

Generally, members of Congress applauded the U.S.-initiated agreement announced Sunday by the central bankers of the United States, Japan, West Germany, Britain and France to try to lower the value of the dollar compared with other currencies.

"Whenever you go in . . . to lower the value of the dollar, it's going to make our exports a little easier and make our imports a little bit harder," said Sen. Robert Packwood, R-Ore., chairman of the Senate Finance Committee. "I think it's a good short-term answer."

But it appeared the actions Reagan outlined in his White House speech may do little to curb Congress' appetite for protectionist legislation.

Commuter airliner crashes, 14 die

WEYERS CAVE, Va. (AP) — A commuter airplane carrying 14 people crashed into the side of a cloud-shrouded mountain in Shenandoah National Park on Monday, and there were no signs of survivors, state police said.

The crew of a Marine helicopter sighted the downed Henson Airlines Beech 99, around 5 p.m. MDT about five miles east of the Shenandoah Valley Airport, which the plane was approaching on an instrument landing, officials said.

The twin-engine propeller-driven craft, which had left Baltimore-Washington International Airport as Flight 1517, was last contacted by radar at 10:20 a.m., said Dick Stafford, a Federal Aviation Administration spokesman.

Mubarak wants talks moving

WASHINGTON (AP) — Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak, warning that "time is wasting," urged President Reagan on Monday to help break the long stalemate in the Middle East and get peace talks moving.

The principal roadblock is finding Palestinians acceptable to the United States to join the peace process. The administration has rejected some proposed candidates as being linked too closely to the Palestine Liberation Organization.

Reagan and Mubarak met for about an hour. Posing for pictures with the Egyptian president in the Oval Office, Reagan said the current impasse in the Middle East was "one of our great concerns."

French demanding identity

PARIS (AP) — French political leaders, stunned by Premier Laurent Fabius' admission that French spies blew up the Greenpeace ship Rainbow Warrior, were demanding to know Monday who gave the order for the July 10 attack.

Fabius told the nation on the evening news Sunday that the agents who attacked the ship "acted under orders." However, he did not name the agents or say who gave the order.

Fabius' announcement came two days after the resignation of Defense Minister Charles Hernu and the firing of Adm. Pierre Lacoste, head of the General Directorate for External Security (DGSE), the secret service agency charged with activities outside France.

Computer maker files suit

CUPERTINO, Calif. (AP) — Apple Computer Inc. filed suit Monday against Steven P. Jobs, who recently resigned as the company's chairman, saying Jobs had breached his contract by planning a new computer firm and hiring employees away from Apple.

The lawsuit alleges that Jobs' plans to begin a new company could lead to the "misappropriation of confidential and proprietary information," according to statement released by Apple.

Jobs, 30, a co-founder of Apple, has an unlisted telephone and could not be reached for comment Monday afternoon.

Synopsis:

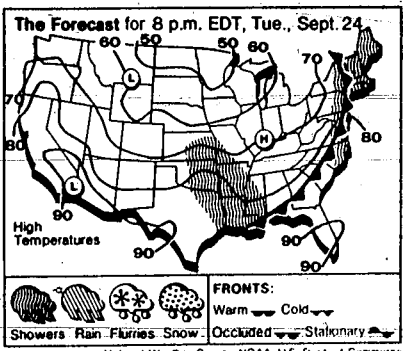

Under mostly clear skies Sunday night, temperatures dropped to some of the lowest readings so far early this fall.

The lowest reported in the state has been Stanley with 15 degrees but Monday Pass on the Idaho-Montana border dipped to 12 degrees, the National Weather Service said.

The warmest overnight reading was 39 degrees at Buhl. Early afternoon temperatures Monday were in the 50s and 60s.

Skies over the state Monday continued fair with only a few high clouds visible. Winds were generally north to northwest to 15 mph.

The only precipitation reported during the past 24 hours was in the southeast highlands where Bear Lake received 0.8 inch and Grace 0.1 inch.

The pollen count in Twin Falls Monday was 145 particles per cubic meter of air.

Highest temperature in the state Monday was 74 degrees in Weiser, while Stanley recorded the state low of 15 degrees.

The agricultural outlook in Southern Idaho, today through Saturday, shows conditions for field work and harvesting will be good through the period in the west while light showers in the east Friday and Saturday will average between .10 and .20 inch and locally fair field conditions. Soil temperatures for the potato harvest will be in the 38 to 45 degree range at sunrise both today and Wednesday.

The extended forecast for Southern Idaho indicates partly cloudy Thursday. Chance of showers mainly in the east Friday and Saturday. Highs 60s to low 70s. Lows 30s to low 40s.

Elsewhere in the nation Monday, temperatures ranged from a high of 101 degrees in Laughlin, Nev., and Alice and Beeville, both in Texas, to a low of 15 degrees in Gunnison, Colo.

But he also warned, "Let no one mistake our resolve to oppose any and all unfair trading practices."

"Above all else, free trade is, by definition, fair trade," Reagan said. "When domestic markets are closed to the exports of others, it is no longer free trade."

Other than the proposed war chest, however, the president proposed few steps that weren't already on the administration's agenda.

He did offer to work with Congress "to put into place any necessary legislation that would help us promote free and fair trade and secure American workers," possibly including bills to strengthen existing trade laws, speed up action in unfair trading cases and offer more protection against "dumping" of foreign products in U.S. markets at artificially low prices.

Some 300 bills are pending in Congress that would establish import quotas and tariffs on products ranging from textiles and footwear to waterbeds.

Without naming specific bills, Reagan said he remains opposed to measures that "are purely protectionist in nature."

The president's revised trade policy includes a number of proposals for strengthening existing laws to make it easier for the government to move in instances of unfair trading practices abroad.

Although he didn't mention it in his speech, Reagan's trade package as described by the White House also included a proposal to allow U.S. drug companies to export new drugs that cannot currently be sold in the United States because they have not been found safe and effective by the Food and Drug Administration.

The administration official describing the plan defended the proposal by saying it would permit American companies to compete with foreign manufacturers that now export such drugs to developing nations.

The official said the receiving nations should be permitted to set their own safety standards for drugs.

The president, meanwhile, also restated his call for a new round of international trade talks under the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT). The administration official disclosed that France unofficially removed its opposition to another round of the talks — the major barrier — on Sunday, leaving Brazil, India and a few other developing nations as the principal opponents of a new round long sought by the administration.

on their farm. While they have a one-year redemption period for buying back their land, Herzinger believes that will be impossible. The Herzingers obtained their farm through the Desert Lands Entry Program in 1966.

Both Herzinger and Kilbourne blamed the current farm problem on poor commodity prices and the dollar's high exchange rate.

They were the victims, Mrs. Herzinger said, of "circumstances completely beyond our control."

In the early 1970s Herzinger said the cost of irrigating their farm increased from $8,000 a year to $34,000. Since then, she said, crop prices have steadily fallen.

"You stub your toe once and you can never keep up," she said.

She believes, however, they will still be able to get by. "We're older; we've gone through a lot of trauma in our lives," Mrs. Herzinger said. Foreclosures and farm problems, she said, are hitting the younger farmers much harder. "It's crucifying these kids," she said.

"Tears," she said, "wash away a lot of hurts."

Belushi tape ruled improper

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Most of a taped interview in which Cathy Evelyn Smith purportedly admits killing John Belushi was ruled inadmissible as evidence Monday by a judge, who nonetheless allowed three of her statements to be used.

Municipal Judge James Nelson, ruling in Miss Smith's preliminary hearing, also said two National Enquirer reporters need not testify about the interview they captured on tape.

But Nelson said the prosecution could call free-lance reporter Christopher Van Ness to the stand to talk about a separate taped interview. Van Ness said he would invoke his right as a reporter to refuse to testify.

Defense firms deny charges

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two major defense contractors denied Monday they had conspired to bid the Air Force on a high-priced tool contract, and two Air Force generals agreed the firms had followed proper procedures.

Moreover, the Air Force officers defended their contracting procedures, noting they had cut the proposed contract price for the tools in half — from roughly $1.7 million to $835,000 — and said their biggest regret was that it had taken 18 months to negotiate the pact.

Executives of the contractors, General Dynamics Corp. and Westinghouse Electric Corp., said they would not attempt to defend the Pentagon procedures that led to the high prices. But they adamantly insisted their firms had done nothing wrong.

Baboon research criticized

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The University of Pennsylvania scolded two researchers Monday for their supervision of controversial head-injury experiments on baboons and suspended further experiments indefinitely.

The suspension resulted from a review of experiments at the Head Injury Clinical Research Laboratory that determined they did not meet federal guidelines, university President Sheldon Hackney and Provost Thomas Ehrlich said in a statement.

A university committee found deficiencies in supervision of personnel and sanitary conditions, including smoking in the operating room, a lack of clean surgical techniques and inadequate supervision of operations by a qualified veterinarian.

"There has been less than satisfactory discharge of the responsibilities expected of research faculty of the university," the statement said.

Lawmakers wary of Reagan trade offer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Legislators politely welcomed President Reagan's pledge Monday that he will fight unfair foreign trading practices, but members of Congress indicated they were unwilling to surrender the initiative in the trade battle to the White House.

In addition, authors of major trade legislation said they still plan to move ahead with their measures.

"The Reagan administration still has one eye closed as it faces a mounting crisis in foreign trade," said Rep. Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill., chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee and a co-sponsor of a major Democratic trade bill. "They're still very behind a Congress bent on toughening our response to unfair trade."

House Minority Leader Robert H. Michel, R-Ind., said Reagan's remarks are "a very positive signal."

He urged the president to move trade to the front burner, and it is clear that he has done so.

However, Michel, whose Peoria, Ill., district includes the headquarters of Caterpillar Tractor Co., a major exporter, added, "We intend to move forward with our legislative proposals and I am encouraged by these new prospects for greater cooperation and assistance from the administration."

House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., D-Mass., said, "The president sounded an uncertain trumpet on trade. I believe the Congress wants to send a clear and certain message that the American people will not stand for unfair trade practices."

Republican Sen. William Cohen of Maine, where the shoe industry has been hit hard by foreign imports, said, "The president says he won't stand idly by while American workers lose their jobs, but of course that is what the administration has done and will continue to do."

He said, "The president appears to have struck a pose instead of formulating a policy."

Generally, members of Congress applauded the U.S.-initiated agreement announced Sunday by the central bankers of the United States, Japan, West Germany, Britain and France to try to lower the value of the dollar compared with other currencies.

"This action should improve our trade position, and ease the path towards economic stability and growth both here and abroad," said Senate Majority Leader Robert Dole, R-Kan.

"Whenever you go in ... to lower the value of the dollar, it's going to make our exports a little easier and make our imports a little bit harder," said Sen. Hershel Parker, D-Ore., chairman of the Senate Finance Committee. "I think it's a good short-term answer."

But it appeared the actions Reagan outlined in his White House speech may do little to curb Congress' appetite for protectionist legislation.

SAT scores jump due to investment

Who says educational mediocrity can't be turned around?

Just look at the changing results in the nation's average Scholastic Aptitude Test, which took another jump in 1984.

The latest average math score was 475 and the average verbal score was 431 for a total of 906. That is nowhere near the combined total of 980 recorded in 1963, when the widely-noticed decline in scores set in. But it is a 9-point increase from 1983, and that's not bad.

The administration has set a national goal of wiping out half of the 22-year decline by the end of the decade. The 9-point increase matches the pace necessary to accomplish it.

The reasons for the improved scores aren't hard to find: Among them: tougher schools curricula and higher graduation requirements; fewer electives, which often were less-academic; longer class days; an emphasis on class attendance; newer, more challenging textbooks; better qualified teachers.

Many of these changes have come since the "Nation at Risk" report in 1983 which outlined the weaknesses of American schools, and the resulting "excellence" programs in many states, including Idaho.

But as with other programs, educational improvements are not the sort of thing which can be attended to in one dose. Making improvements in one year rarely entirely accomplishes the job.

With the American economy weakening, particularly in rural states like Idaho, there will be calls that the higher scores are fine, but enough is enough.

We prefer to draw the reverse conclusion: the scores have increased precisely because states have invested more in their educational systems. Further improvement will require more, not less, investment. To us, that is the proper course.

T.R. Reid's story provocative

The article by Washington Post reporter T. R. Reid, in Monday's paper was a most amazing piece of work. In many ways it really tells the tale of Idaho and its grotesquely fragmented socio-economic structure.

The three Idaho state (?) fairs are but a symptom of that fragmentation. One needs only to look at the amazing number of school and highway districts in the Magic Valley to see how crippled government entities can become by the inability of Idahoans to work together or pool their resources for things even as basic as education and local government.

Reid does make some provocative observations, like his description of southeastern Idaho as 90 percent Mormon and northwestern Idaho being populated with "free-thinkers" to wit: Neo-Nazis.

I am not sure what he means by this comparison or how he defines a free-thinker, but I am sure I would prefer the education and knowledge, get-involved-in-civically attitude of most Mormons to the militantly myopic views of the Aryan nations.

And I am here to tell you brother, if the freest thinkers Idaho can produce are Neo-Nazis, we are in big trouble!

Reid's description of a spudnut tends to make me wonder: he has really been in Idaho, a suspicion that is born out by his description of the location of the Snake River and its fertile potato growing lands.

As many McDonald french fry potatoes are grown in Pocatello-Idaho Falls as in the Treasure Valley.

But, who, in their right mind, would stuff a donut with mashed potatoes? The spudnuts my wife, her mother and my mother before her have made are delightfully light and moist, rather than donuts that use mashed potatoes in the batter as one of the ingredients.

Help local business; protest mall

We are a group of citizens who feel that the construction of the new Twin Falls mall south of the Perrine Bridge will degrade the quality of life for the people of the entire Magic Valley.

We believe that the mall will affect every downtown business in nearly all Magic Valley communities by drawing local consumers away from them. One need only examine the empty business spaces in Burley and Buhl to determine what happens when out-of-downtown malls are constructed.

Twin Falls spent $2.5 million in 1972 to revitalize the downtown business section.

We strongly support the idea that local profits serve the community when they remain local. We decry large interests collecting profits from our local citizens and sending those profits out of the community, a situation which we think will occur with the new mall.

Our long-term merchants deserve our support for they are the ones who have supported our communities over the years and serviced the products they have sold.

Further, we have observed the deterioration of the beauty of our area over the last several years. Noble trees which graciously greeted travelers to Twin Falls have been cut down. Graceful and warm homes are now gone, having been sacrificed for a harsh and noisy business district.

If you agree with our grass roots effort to stop the mall, please contact one of us and sign our petition or carry a petition for us.

Yes, the mall is currently under construction, but that does not mean that your voice will go unheard.

As summer's green wanes, fall's bright mixture takes over

SCRABBLE, Va. — Here in the Blue Ridge Mountains, we are dawdling around in the in-betweens, and there is not much to be said for them.

Summer will not quite let go; autumn has only technically arrived. We are hungry for the tart apple taste of fall.

The vegetable garden, which was producing luxuriantly a few weeks ago, is down to a few tomato plants that won't give up. The squash was the first to go, then the miniature cantaloupes. This year we grew cucumbers in cylindrical wire cages; the things worked well, but now the dead vines reach through the cages as forlornly as the hands of prisoners. The peppers and eggplants called it quits a week ago.

All of us know people who have "gone to seed." The metaphor is mercilessly accurate. Everything gets shabby at this time of year. The lawn goes to seed and the meadows go to seed, and along the roadside ditch banks even the wildflowers look a little tattered. We have one spectacular wildflower, known as the Joe Pye weed, that grows 6 feet tall. It supposedly is named for a Cherokee who used the plant in treating fever. At this time of year, the Joe Pye weeds are tired old Indians. A few other wildflowers are hanging on.

There's still some chicky, as blue as a granddaughters' eyes; we have the tiny white and gold fall asters; there's goldenrod, of course, and here and there you'll see the pink and white bouncing Bet, as pretty as a spring wedding. Most of the other flowers of summer have disappeared, and the last of the Queen Anne's lace looks as if it ought to go to the laundry.

This is a big September for acorns. Last year there were almost none, but this year there are hundreds, and they are giving Happy a hard time. Happy is the Shetland collie who snoozes on the deck outside the kitchen. Overhead are the branches of a towering chestnut oak. The acorns come down like bombs, and she wakes up yelling, "Who hit me? Where'd he go?" In theory, a big crop of acorns portends a hard winter. Maybe so. The five squirrels that hang around our place have been busy all month. Except for chipmunks, no other animals have come to call. I haven't seen a rabbit in weeks, or a groundhog, or a fox, and only a couple of deer, but I had a thrall one morning just after Labor Day. I stepped outside about 7 o'clock, and there on the lawn was a wild turkey. He looked as big as an ostrich. I never saw a bird that big, and he had two hens with him. They took off into the woods like a squadron of B-52s.

Otherwise there's nothing much to report. The hunting season for doves opened a couple of weeks ago, which meant that half the doves in Rappahannock County took up residence in our hay fields. Birds know a sanctuary when they find one. I maintain a feeder on the window by my desk. Doves are my best customers. Two of them are working on the free lunch now. These oldtrums won't last. The gums and dogwoods began turning color about the 10th of the month. Some of the leaves from the gum are as brown as boots, some are a little darker than fire wagon red, but they're all as mottled (in Gene McCarthy's phrase) as the hands of old men. Leaves from an oak are pappy to the touch. Leaves from a gum have the feel of good gloves.

Before long the maples and hickories and poplars will trade their summer's green for autumn's red and gold. The nights will be crisp and even a little shivery. It's time to cut kindling and to stack firewood in the garage. Be gone, summer! Go!

Reagan is in danger of leaving a stack of debt miles high

WASHINGTON — Four years ago, in one of his most memorable public performances, President Reagan brilliantly explained what $1 trillion means. "If you had a stack of $1,000 bills in your hand only four inches high, you'd be a millionaire," he told a joint session of Congress in a nationally televised speech. "A trillion dollars would be a stack of $1,000 bills 67 miles high."

That description was one everyone listening in Archie Bunker's celebrated tavern could, and presumably did, understand. It had a neat, pleasing symmetry. It even, for once, made inoperable William Safire's wonderfully apt term, MEGO (for "my eyes glaze over"), to describe the average American's reaction to the latest astronomical economic statistics emanating from Washington, billions for this exceeded by trillions for that.

tion about his economic program. He recalled his earlier address: "When I presented our economic recovery program to Congress, I said we were aiming to cut the deficit steadily to reach a balance by 1984."

That was still the goal, he said. Again, he used the $1 trillion figure as a rallying symbol of danger to inspire greater action to cut the debt: "In just the past decade, our national debt has more than doubled. And in the next few days, it'll pass the one trillion dollar mark. One trillion dollars of debt — if we as a nation need a warning, let that be it."

Today, that old devil debt continues to rise in almost geometrical proportions. It has a self-perpetuating life of its own. This month, the debt nears $2 trillion — you figure out how many miles that stack of $1,000 bills would now extend into space — and for the 11th time in Reagan's presidency, Congress deliberates over raising the federal debt ceiling.

Americans has dropped to the lowest level since the 20 years ago.

Personally, Americans are spending more, saving less and plunging deeper into debt. People are carrying a record level of consumer debt. The same is so for the nation as a whole.

And that's not the end of it, citizens. A sobering Editorial Research Reports study by Mary H. Cooper, published a few days ago by Congressional Quarterly, says:

"Just as the nation has gone into the red with the rest of the world, American consumers and businesses have been accumulating debts of their own at a rapid pace. Taken together, the outstanding debt of all types — public, consumer and corporate — grew faster in 1984 than at any time since World War II and now amounts to more than $5 trillion."

While that astounding sum is a small amount with the country's total assets of $24 trillion, the annual interest on the debt, about $60 billion, amounts to 16 percent of the gross national product (GNP), the country's total output of goods and services.

If all this isn't enough to get your attention, how about this: The forecasters say the national debt will rise to $10 trillion in five more years, on our present course, the trade deficit will rise to the $1 trillion mark. By the same terms, the total national debt will have jumped a total from $1 trillion to $8 trillion, a tripling of the debt in less than a decade.

Well, I leave it to experts in the "dramatic science" of economics to tell me if the reduction, not rhetoric, requiring a combination of across-the-board cuts at every level of federal spending and tax increases. If the doesn't, he's in danger of being as the rompers, as the old saying goes, as the rompers left in the woods — and left the rompers to rot in the woods for the birds to feast on.

Haynes Johnson writes on the economy for The Washington Post.

Appeals court upholds gas price ruling.

POCATELLO (AP) — The price-fixing convictions of three Pocatello gasoline dealers has been upheld by the 9th Circuit Court of Appeals in San Francisco, authorities say.

The ruling was the latest chapter in a case that began July, 1983, when a federal grand jury indicted eight people, and four companies on charges of violating the Sherman Antitrust Act.

However, a related civil suit brought by the state of Idaho against Pocatello gas dealers probably won't come to a conclusion for several months, officials say.

Following a three-week trial in 1984, U.S. District Judge Ray

McNichols fined three companies and five Pocatello dealers a total $375,000. The five dealers had either been convicted of gas price-fixing or had pleaded no contest to charges against them.

On March 9, 1984, a federal jury found Continental Fuel Co. Inc., Don Blesner, Howard O. Miller and H. David Miller guilty of conspiring to set gas prices in Bannock County from Jan. 1, 1972, to Oct. 31, 1982. George Frost, who co-owns Continental Fuel with Blesner, was found innocent.

Triangle Oil Inc. of Bountiful, Utah; the Vern E. Herzog Oil Company James B. Leese of Leese Oil and Earl Pixton of Herzog Oil pleaded no contest.

Triangle Oil's $100,000 fine was the highest imposed by McNichols. Howard O. Miller's was fined $5,000. Miller's son, David, and Leese were fined $35,000 each. Continental Fuel was fined $75,000 while Blesner was ordered to pay $25,000. Herzog Oil and Pixton were fined $80,000 and $20,000 respectively.

In May 1984, Blesner, Continental and David Miller appealed to 9th Circuit Court.

On Sept. 13, the three-judge appellate panel issued a 43-page opinion that "unanimously rejected all seven grounds for errors and reaffirmed District Court Judge McNichols' decision," said David Brown, a U.S. Justice Department antitrust lawyer who prosecuted the case.

The appellate court said the judge had committed some error, but it was not sufficiently prejudicial, Brown said.

"The end result is the convictions were upheld unless the entire Court of Appeals decides to reconsider. The case is over unless the defendants seek a reversal in Supreme Court," he said.

The defendants have a few months to decide whether to appeal.

ISU will cut $500,000

POCATELLO (AP) — Thanks to Gov. John Evans' order to hold back $14.7 million in state spending, Idaho State University will have to find ways to save more than $500,000, school officials say.

ISU Budget Officer Keith Hasselquist said Monday that ISU's share of the reduction for the 1985-86 year is expected to be $530,728.

"It won't be much of an impact on our ability to hire people," Hasselquist said. "The positions will just be scrutinized a little more."

Complaints force withdrawal of housing plan

IDAHO FALLS (AP) — A barrage of negative comment against an Idaho Housing Agency plan to finance construction of 150 apartments for low income and elderly residents in Idaho Falls has prompted the agency to withdraw its proposal.

"There were not enough pluses and too much negative," said Don Mackay, an Idaho Falls commissioner with the IHA.

Agency officials held a public hearing on the project in August. The few realtors in attendance opposed the construction, saying it would glut the market and create a hardship on landlords.

The Idaho Falls Board of Realtors later drew up a resolution vowing to lobby the Legislature to prevent the IHA from pursuing its plans.

Investors have proposed more than 300 apartments in the city, and IHA had planned to fund half by selling tax-exempt bonds. The interest rate for developers would have been 2 percent to 2.5 percent below the market rate at the time of financing.

Developers could have participated in the IHA program by renting 20 percent of the units to low-income families earning $20,900 or less in Bonneville County and the remaining to moderate income families earning $27,500 or less.

IHA also withdrew its proposal in Coeur D'Alene, but the agency plans to evaluate projects for Blackfoot, Lewiston, Moscow and Grandville, said IHA executive director Bob Kucab.

It is likely IHA will return to Idaho Falls with a proposal at a later date, he said.

Traffic accidents kill 3

POCATELLO (AP) — Traffic accidents in southeastern Idaho killed three people over the weekend, authorities said.

Ernest McGill, 48, of Fort Hall, died from extensive injuries received in an apparent hit-run accident on West Idaho Road Sunday night, said Bannock County Coroner Jim Allen.

McGill had apparently stepped from a van and was crossing the street when a car struck him, Allen said. The driver of the car pulled to a stop and got out long enough to ask what had happened before fleeing, the coroner said. McGill was dead at the scene.

Todd Butterfield, 23, Lava Hot Springs, died in a head-on collision

Saturday night on U.S. 30 at Georgetown summit 12 miles east of Soda Springs, the Idaho State Police said.

Butterfield died when his pickup apparently crossed the center line and struck a truck and semi-trailer driven by Phyllis E. Lund, 40, of Oregon, the ISP said.

Police said Butterfield was thrown from the vehicle and was dead at the scene. Lund suffered a knee injury and was released after treatment at an area hospital.

Dena Jean Manuel, 31, Idaho Falls, was killed Sunday night on a county highway west of Clyde in Butte County, the ISP said.

Ms. Manuel was eastbound when she swerved and lost control. Her vehicle left the road and rolled, throwing the woman from the vehicle, police said.

Fire stirs inmates

BOISE (AP) — Two Ada County Jail inmates were treated for smoke inhalation and minor burns at a Boise hospital after a fire broke out about 9 a.m. Sunday at the detention facility, said Capt. Mike Roberts.

About 40 prisoners were evacuated from the jail and about 80 others were moved to safe locations within the building, Roberts said.

The fire began in a clothes dryer, he said.

In wake of $9 million FarmAid, stadium needs TrashAid

A sea of garbage is left in the wake of 78,000 FarmAid concert-goers, atop a protective tarp

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (AP) — At $9 million so far, proceeds from the all-star FarmAid benefit concert appeared to be running short of the goal Monday but organizers said they would be happy if the event triggered new interest in farmers' problems.

By the time the 14-hour concert ended and 50 stars of country, rock and blues had left the stage early Monday, FarmAid had raised more than $9 million. That was way below singer Willie Nelson's prediction of raising $50 million.

Nelson, who organized Sunday's show, said FarmAid received about $4 million from corporate donations and ticket sales, and roughly $5 million in pledges from television viewers and radio listeners.

But tabulation of the pledges was incomplete.

"We don't know yet how much we raised," said spokeswoman Linda Lounsbury for the Howard Bloom Agency of New York, which handled promotion and publicity for the event.

"It may be next week before we have that," she said.

The crowd left mounds of garbage. As members of the FarmAid production crew removed sound and light equipment Monday, volunteers from the university began cleaning up Memorial Stadium.

The tarpaulin protecting the football field's new AstroTurf was soaked from several hours of rain Sunday and covered with a litter of paper cups, soggy blankets, food wrappers and other debris.

The FarmAid money will be used for cash grants to needy farmers, legal aid, counseling and job training, a nationwide information hotline and a campaign to increase awareness of farm problems.

Nelson will have control over its use, said his manager, Dave Anderson.

"You can spend it quick or spend it right," Nelson told reporters. "So we're not going to rush into anything."

He said he was not disappointed with the pledges because raising money was only one FarmAid goal. The other objective was reminding city dwellers of their links to the nation's food producers.

"I'm real happy. It exceeded my expectations," Nelson said early Monday as he left the stadium to return home to Austin, Texas.

Jim Skilbeck, special events coordinator for Gov. James Thompson, who helped line up University of Illinois Memorial Stadium football field for Sunday's concert, said he was confident the show will have lasting impact.

"The event was a rousing success, and it was a rousing success even before it began," Skilbeck said. "People are reading and thinking and talking about farm issues now, and that's a long-term thing."

Pet Alaskan reindeer butchered

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — Star the tame reindeer was the delight of hundreds of school children, strollers, joggers and senior citizens.

However, Star disappeared from her backyard pen in downtown Anchorage on Thursday and police say she apparently was killed and butchered. A 25-year-old man was arrested Sunday.

"The town has grown accustomed to having a little bit of what used to be Alaska right downtown," her saddened owner, Oro Stewart, said Monday.

"It must be a mentally ill person who would hurt a friendly reindeer that is associated with the spirit of Christmas and the kind of people who associate with love and kindness," Mrs. Stewart said.

Police said tips led them Sunday to trailers and the butchered carcass of a reindeer behind a store.

The tipsters also led police to a man who they reported had bragged about killing Star, authorities said.

Police said they found meat believed to be reindeer in a freezer at an Anchorage home and arrested Michael Yearty, 25, of Fairbanks.

Shultz rips Soviets over propoganda

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Secretary of State George P. Shultz scolded on the Soviet Union Monday to halt propoganda on arms control and "get down to real business, with the seriousness the subject deserves."

He said the United States will "more than match" genuine Soviet proposals once Moscow responds to American initiatives and begins negotiating seriously at the Geneva arms control talks. He described U.S. proposals as "far-reaching."

"We have offered trade-offs and made clear our readiness to take account of legitimate Soviet concerns to obtain an agreement that would enhance strategic stability and strengthen deterrence," Shultz said in a speech at the 40th U.N. General Assembly.

Shultz also said the United States is doing its part to ensure the success of the summit between President Reagan and Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev in Geneva Nov. 19-20.

"We want the meeting itself to give further impetus to the wide-ranging dialogue on which we both are already embarking," Shultz said. "Soviet acts of good faith and willingness to reach fair agreements will be more than matched on the American side."

Shultz said the two superpowers "have an historic opportunity to reduce the risk of war."

His speech was in keeping with the more optimistic statements from administration officials in recent days regarding the prospect for success at both the summit and the arms control talks.

Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard A. Shevardnadze, attending his first U.N. General Assembly after being named to succeed Andrei A. Gromyko earlier this year, was not in the audience for Shultz's speech. The Soviet will deliver his speech on Tuesday.

But he met Monday with Sir Geoffrey Howe, the British foreign secretary. British official sources quoted Shevardnadze as telling Howe, "We are ready to make deep cuts" in strategic and intermediate weapons.

In Moscow the official news agency, Tass, said Shultz's speech "discarded all claims to realism" and distorted questions of U.S.-Soviet relations.

S. African land plan would uproot blacks

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — A government commission Monday proposed a plan that would forcibly uproot about 42,000 people, most of them black. But a government official said the plan does not reflect the attitude of the white regime.

In another development Monday, the daughter of jailed black leader Nelson Mandela, the head of the African National Congress guerrilla organization, said he will be allowed an examination by a family physician. Government doctors have told Mandela he needs surgery for a swollen prostate and internal cysts.

In anti-apartheid unrest early Monday and late Sunday, police said a black policeman was killed by a black mob and police gunfire killed a black man among a crowd stoning a police vehicle. Both incidents were in black areas near Port Elizabeth, 600 miles south of Johannesburg.

More than 700 people have died in 13 months of anti-apartheid unrest.

The Commission for Cooperation and Development proposed proclaiming about 28,000 acres of the Zulu tribal homeland in Natal province of "white" South Africa, and buying up some 152,000 acres of white farmland and turning them into "black" areas of the homeland.

The plan, immediately condemned by many leading whites in Natal, would uproot about 42,000 people.

Chris Heunis, minister of constitutional development, said late Monday the proposal does not reflect the attitude of the government. He said the regime was willing to discuss the plans with blacks and whites.

It was unclear why the government allowed the report to be issued.

Power pylons hit by rebels in Salvador

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — Guerrillas blew up more than 30 power pylons across the country, blacking out three departments, military and power officials said Monday.

Military sources said guerrillas fired on a freight train that violated a rebel-imposed travel ban over the weekend, killing two, railway employees.

The military and power officials said 29 of the electric posts were destroyed north of the city of San Miguel 80 miles east of the capital.

The others were slightly west of there and in the north of the country. The departments of Usulután, Morazan and Chalatenango were blacked out.

A dispatcher at the bus terminal serving the eastern part of the country said public transportation was cut by 95 percent because of the rebel-ordered traffic ban that took effect Friday.

The ban is the eighth of the year, and guerrillas burned and machine-gunned several vehicles and a train operating in violation of it over the weekend.

Airport chief makes Hailey mayoral move

By BARBARA NEIWERT
Times-News correspondent

HAILEY — Pascal Drake has stepped forward as the first mayoral candidate in Hailey for the upcoming November elections.

Current mayor Wordell Itainey has yet to decide if he will seek the position for another term.

Drake, 62, has not held public office before, but said he decided to run for mayor after a large cross-section of people in the business community approached him requesting the people of Hailey be given a choice of candidates.

"The main objective or responsibility of mayor is to provide leadership and create an atmosphere for economic growth," Drake said. "The biggest compliment someone pays a city is when they choose to live there, and even a bigger compliment is when a business chooses to invest in a city."

Drake has served as manager of the Friedman Memorial Airport for the past five years following his retirement from government service.

For 21 years he served as a U.S. Navy pilot in active duty and in the reserves. He retired from government service as administrator of the Packers and Stockyards Administration U.S.D.A., overseeing a $8.5 million budget and 230 employees.

Drake currently serves as president of the Hailey

Rotary Club.

"If anything would hinder the economic status of Hailey, I'd be against that," Drake said in reference to the possibility of the state constructing a bypass along the Union Pacific Railroad right-of-way. He added the Wood River Valley economy is based so heavily on tourist business that a bypass would damage Hailey's economy.

In response to what could be done to improve the condition of city streets, Drake said there is no easy answer. "What it comes down to is the people are going to have to pay for it," he said. If the residents do not approve funding, the city will have "to concentrate on doing a better job of maintenance and patching."

When asked if implementation of a local option tax in Hailey was a viable alternative to increase the city's budget, Drake said "it will probably be something that's going to have to be looked at in the future."

As manager of the airport, Drake was concerned over the city council's August decision not to waive building permit fees for expansion of the airport terminal. That decision was reversed in the Sept. 9 council meeting, waiving some $2,450 in building permit fees and water connection fees.

"It wasn't so much the money, but the principle involved," Drake said, adding that the airport belongs to Hailey and if the city were to build a new library, they surely wouldn't tax that construction.

Teens' parents ask sheriff to let up on 11 p.m. curfew, cite evening school functions

By TERRELL WILLIAMS
Times-News correspondent

HAGERMAN — Parents of teenagers in Hagerman have asked the Gooding County sheriff to ease up on enforcement of the local 11 p.m. curfew.

At a recent Hagerman City Council meeting, Gooding County Sheriff Robert Aja said he and his deputies have recently enforced the curfew because his department has received too many calls complaining about teenagers out at late hours.

About a dozen parents asked Aja to extend the curfew on nights of school functions. Dances ending at 11 p.m. will not have good attendance, they said, and school groups will lose their only source of revenue.

Football players, one mother said, would have only an hour at an after-game dance that ended so early.

The parents said it is unfair to punish all the students when only a small percentage of them cause all the trouble.

One man said some of the disturbances are caused by Gooding, Wendell and Bliss students and by adults leaving local bars.

Aja explained that the temporary enforcement of the curfew is a tool the law has to get the youths' attention and co-operation. It might even save a life, he added.

The sheriff said he has received "numerous calls" to report late night drag racing, squealing tires and loud music. Spray paint graffiti and student drinking are also problems in Hagerman, he said.

"If we don't get a handle on it and stop it, it will continue," Aja said.

Because officers have been unable to catch "the three percent" who are offenders in the act, and no one will say who these offenders are, the curfew is being applied to everyone, he explained.

Students could help by letting officers know who the offenders are, Aja said. They can even communicate anonymously with an officer through written or telephone messages, he added.

"We strive to get citizens' cooperation," he said. "A phone call would help."

A parent said it is "unrealistic" for the sheriff's department to think the students will "rat on each other."

School Superintendent Ken Black agreed with Aja that the disruptive minority "needs to be corralled," and students need to be active in helping local law enforcement. Members of the student council, he noted, have volunteered to paint over the graffiti.

Deputy Jack Freeman said punishing all students puts peer pressure to work, especially since "a kid rarely causes trouble by himself."

Aja commented that the students who repair the graffiti damage will be likely to prevent it from happening again, if they can.

The sheriff said he is very willing to talk to Hagerman students about the problem and may extend the curfew if the teenagers will work with him to solve the problems.

Black said he will arrange the meeting.

Vandals strike Burley school and library a week after vote

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

BURLEY — Vandals, believed to be juveniles, went on a rampage in Burley over the weekend, causing extensive damage at the Burley High School building and breaking a City Library window.

The attack on the Burley school came only a week after the Burley City Council voted to take defensive action against vandals. Police say vandalism has been on the increase in Burley in recent months, and city officials announced plans to establish a reward system to help apprehend those responsible for it.

Burley police officers reported entry to the high school building at 1600 Park Ave. was gained sometime late Friday night or early Saturday morning. Vandals entered the building through a window, which was broken out by a heavy object. They then ransacked the entire building, throwing personal belongings of students and staff members onto floors and in hallways.

Investigating officers said the vandals initially entered the science department, where cupboards containing equipment and materials were forced open and contents scattered about the rooms. Ten lockers in the department were also emptied and contents spread around the building. The principal's office, the offices of school counselors, and teachers' desks were also ransacked.

No estimates of damage were available and police

TFEA members' new contracts require district dues paperwork

By DEAN S. MILLER
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — One of the first things Twin Falls Education Association members might notice about their new contract is the trip to the School District office they have to make to request that their dues be automatically deducted from their paychecks.

TFEA and American Federation of Teachers members have until Sept. 30 to go to the Twin Falls School District office to sign a form telling district payroll clerks to deduct dues from their paychecks.

The payroll deduction of dues was a point of contention in the recently completed contract talks between the TFEA, the bigger of the two local unions, and the Twin Falls School Board. In the past, TFEA officers sent a list of members to the district to arrange dues withholding. The School Board's position in negotiations was to do away with automatic dues withholding altogether.

Terry Gilbert, the local representative of the Idaho Education Association, said Monday the new policy doesn't seem to have hurt TFEA membership, though he did not have specific numbers of teachers who have signed up so far. "I doubt that anyone does at this point," Gilbert said. "We really don't have the numbers yet."

He said not all members of the association will opt for paycheck dues withholding; some will pay directly instead.

Association members have begun circulating fliers encouraging teachers to sign up, and building representatives are working one-to-one in the buildings to encourage membership. While local membership appears to be holding steady, some teachers in districts that have not yet been organized by the IEA are expressing interest in forming a local chapter, Gilbert said.

"People have been burned in a couple of places and they've been without the legal counsel of the association," Gilbert said.

Sue Langdon, secretary to Twin Fall School Supt. Carl Snow, says quite a few teachers have already signed up, but she has not counted the number of TFEA members who have signed up so far.

Other items to be deducted from teacher paychecks, such as credit union savings plans and annuities, are carried over from last year for veteran teachers and need not be renewed in person at the district office.

"Any teacher has to come down to the district office and sign a request to have dues deduction for the NEA or AFT," said district Treasurer Jenny Dougherty. For other payments, the teacher need not make a trip downtown. "If they have something established, we'll just maintain it," she said.

Sex crime suspects enter different pleas

By PAT MARCANTONIO
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Two men charged with sexually-related crimes entered different pleas Monday in 5th District Court in Twin Falls.

Michael Eugene Goodson, 21, of 237 Jackson St. in Twin Falls, pleaded innocent to a charge of raping a 16-year-old girl on Aug. 31, at a Twin Falls residence.

Goodson entered a similar innocent plea to a charge of aggravated battery for allegedly grabbing a woman who was walking down the street with her children on Aug. 14 in Twin Falls and threatening her with a knife, demanding that she perform oral sex. The woman was not injured.

Trial dates will be scheduled for the aggravated battery and rape charges.

Goodson, meanwhile, is being held in Twin Falls County Jail in lieu of $25,000 bond for the rape charge and $5,000 for the aggravated battery charge.

In a separate case, 50-year-old Ted

Matney Jr., no address available, changed his plea to guilty in a lewd conduct case.

Matney was charged with sexually molesting a 12-year-old girl between Sept. 25 and Oct. 2, 1982, in Twin Falls.

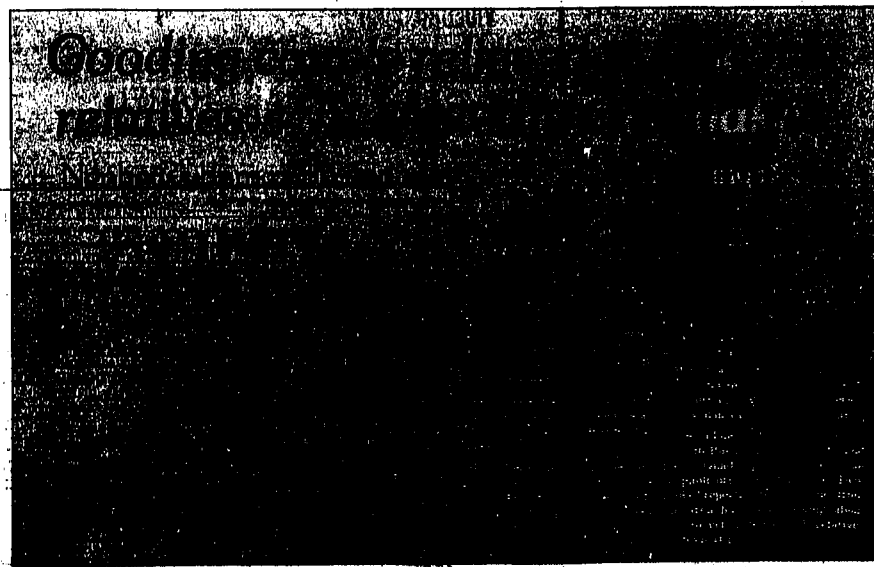

Matney was scheduled for trial Tuesday on the charge. His case was on the Monday docket for Judge Daniel Hurbitt to hear a motion relating to trial. Instead, Matney pleaded guilty.

After taking an oath, Matney admitted touching the girl for "self-gratification."

Hurbitt accepted the guilty plea and ordered a pre-sentence investigation to be conducted by the Department of Corrections, Bureau of Probation and Parole.

Matney will remain in jail in lieu of $25,000 bond.

According to court records, trial dates had been scheduled earlier for Matney, who apparently left the area. He was arrested in July 1985 in New Mexico, on a Twin Falls County warrant.

Former residents want proof of Rajneesh's good intentions

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Former Antelope residents said Monday Bhagwan Shree Rajneesh can prove he is sincere about giving them back their town by telling his followers to schedule an election to abolish the city government.

The Indian guru's followers took over the town in 1982 and renamed it Rajneesh. The guru said last week the name Antelope should be restored and property there should be offered for sale to the previous owners at the price paid by Rajneeshes.

At a Monday morning news conference sponsored by the Committee to Save Antelope, state Rep. Dave McTeague, D-Milwaukie, said, "We would believe Rajneesh is sincere if he instructs the City Council to repeal that charter by Nov. 2."

McTeague is chief sponsor of an initiative petition seeking to disincorporate the city through a state constitutional amendment.

He said the secretary of state's office had informed him the deadline for putting a measure on a Nov. 2 city ballot is Oct. 2. A city-wide vote would be required to repeal the charter or change the name.

The next regular meeting of the Rajneesh City Council is scheduled Oct. 1.

"We would like to believe a new day has dawned," McTeague said of Rajneesh's statements about restoring Antelope's status. He said, the committee would send a letter to Rajneesh with the request for a disincorporation election.

McTeague and the oldtime residents of Antelope said they will be satisfied only with disincorporation because they believe the Rajneeshes could too easily return and take over the city government again.

Former Antelope City Council member Don Smith, who now lives in Albany, said, "We have no confidence, no faith Rajneesh is acting in good faith — based on their track record."

He and other former residents said "nothing has changed" in the town, that lists a population of 115, 16 of them pre-Rajneesh residents.

Smith said he doubted any of the former residents who left would buy back their property and return because most are elderly and "they've been uprooted and moved once — they're not going to do it again."

He added, "I'm sure the town would fill up again with the same kind of people."

The city, which had no city property tax before the Rajneeshes took over, had a tax rate of $19.80 per $1,000 of assessed valuation for the fiscal year ending last June 30.

McClure advises regional utilities to build plants prior to shortages

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — The chairman of the Senate Committee on Energy and Natural Resources told Northwest electric utility executives Monday they should seek more generating capacity to ward off possible future energy shortages.

That advice, from Sen. James McClure, R-Idaho, comes at a time when most utilities produce more power than they can use and many are scrambling for new customers.

McClure told delegates to the Northwest Electric Power and Light Association in Portland that "dealing with problems of surplus are easier than dealing with problems of shortages."

To insure adequate energy supplies in the years to come, McClure said, utilities should plan beyond today's power glut.

He told the group he is sympathetic to the difficulties in planning caused by economic uncertainty but that too many leaders "want to withdraw from the fray instead of meet those challenges."

McClure drew laughs from many senior executives when he predicted that "many of you will be retired before the shortages come around again."

The senator blamed much of the uncertainty on the federal budget deficit which has propped up the price of the dollar and thrown the price of some Northwest industries into question.

In an interview before his speech, McClure said the region's abundance of energy is temporary and that "five, 10 or 15 years from now our problem will be shortages, not surpluses."

Averting those future shortages depends on convincing utilities, ratepayers, stockholders and government regulators that now is the time to begin investing in expanded generating capacity.

"But when prices are soft, the future is uncertain and real interest rates are high, how do you make plans to have it (greater capacity) in place," he said.

"What utility executive wants to tell his shareholders that they have to borrow money to invest in a time of surplus, when they're having trouble meeting their dividend payments?"

McClure recommended that state regulatory agencies tell utilities to raise their estimates of future load growth, encourage them to build additional capacity and stimulate conservation programs.

Vaccination clinics ready for fall

TWIN FALLS — Fall is in the air, and with it comes the flu virus, an irritation for some and a threat to others.

For people whose health problems are compounded by the flu, the South Central District Health Department has organized $5 vaccination clinics on Sept. 27 and Oct. 4, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

"Flu" is the common term for influenza, a viral infection of the lungs and the bronchial tubes leading into the lungs. Symptoms of the flu are usually fever, chills, cough and soreness and aches in the back, arms, and legs.

Though flu affects most people for only a few days, Health Department Physical Health Director Cheryl Juntunen says the virus can have a more serious effect on people who have a low resistance to infection or who have long-term heart and lung problems.

Flu vaccine is recommended for people. Others who are not as much at risk from the flu but for whom Health Department officials recommend vaccination include anyone over 65, and people who have been hospitalized or who have seen a doctor for kidney disease, cystic fibrosis, diabetes, anemia, or severe asthma.

People with cancer or any immunological disorder, or people taking medicine that lowers the body's resistance to disease, are also advised to be vaccinated. Some medical staff dealing with these high- and moderate-risk patients should be vaccinated, Health Department officials say.

Flu viruses change from year to year, so people who have been vaccinated may be infected by a new strain.

Juntunen says most people have no side effects from the vaccines developed to fight the latest strains of flu, unlike the 1976 swine flu vaccine. Still, as is the case with most drugs or vaccines, there is a possibility that allergic reactions or even death could be the result of a flu shot.

The Health Department's offices are at 324 Second St. East in Twin Falls. People with questions about the vaccination should call their doctor or county health department.

Car burglarized in Burley
BURLEY — An automobile burglary reported Monday by Burley police indicated a loss of $290 for the vehicle's owner.

Police said a car stereo and a 357 revolver were taken from the vehicle owned by Albert Zamora, which was parked at 1634 Oriental Dr., in Burley, between 10:40 and 11 p.m. Saturday night. The passenger side door of the vehicle was forced open and the items removed.

Stereo taken from vehicle
TWIN FALLS — Stereo equipment and speakers were taken from a parked vehicle in Twin Falls last week.

The owner, Joe Norman Olson, of Twin Falls, told police cost of his loss would reach $320. The vehicle was parked at 435 Canyon View Ave. in Twin Falls when the theft occurred. It was reported to have taken place late Thursday night or early Friday morning.

Pocatello driver injured
BURLEY — A Pocatello driver suffered minor injuries in one of five weekend traffic accidents in Cassia County.

Sheriff's officers reported Jimmy J. Bowman, 22, lost control of his small 1982 sedan about 3 a.m. Saturday while traveling on Interstate 86, near Ratf River. The vehicle went off the right side of the roadway, came back toward the road, rolled over and traveled another 28 feet before coming to a stop. Damage was estimated at $8,000. Bowman was taken to the Cassia Memorial Hospital by Rupert ambulance where he was treated for injuries and released. He was cited for driving while intoxicated.

Benefit bike ride planned
WENDELL — A "Wheels For Life" bicycle ride will be held in Wendell Sept. 28.

Evelyn Davis is organizing the event to raise money for St. Jude Children's Research Hospital in San Mateo, California.

According to a press release, this hospital, founded in 1962 by entertainer Danny Thomas, is the largest childhood cancer research center in the world and is the only institution dedicated solely to the treatment and study of catastrophic childhood disease. It treats patients from 29 states and 29 foreign countries and sends scientific findings to patients worldwide.

Three thought dead in plane crash

GRANGEVILLE (AP) — At least three people are believed to have died in the crash of a single-engine airplane that was on a flight along the Lachsa River, authorities said.

Idaho Sheriff's Department Officer Dick Ziegler said two people walked away from the crash and were taken to a Missoula, Mont., hospital. Five people were believed to have been on board, he said.

The names of the injured and dead are unavailable pending further investigation and notification of family members.

Idaho Aeronautics and Public Transportation spokesman Jim Con-der said the wreckage was located about 5:30 p.m. Monday near Lolo Pass along the Idaho-Montana state line. The crash site is near the Powell Ranger Station, he said.

Ziegler said the crash was in a mountainous section of Idaho that is not easily accessible. Deputies are believed to have reached the crash site about 7:15 p.m. Monday, though the department couldn't maintain radio contact.

Authorities are awaiting the deputies' return for confirmation on the number of people killed, Ziegler said.

The plane departed from Polkatch on Sunday, Conder said. About 30 searchers from the Idaho and Montana aeronautics bureaus began looking for the wreckage Monday morning after family members reported the plane overdue, he said. A U.S. Air Force helicopter aided in the search, he said.

The National Transportation Safety Board is investigating the crash.

TWIN FALLS — Two men arrested Sunday in Twin Falls after a neighbor roused them from a burglary in their home and held one at gunpoint until police arrived, were being held in Twin Falls County Jail Monday under $1,500 bond each.

Craig E. Taylor, 32, of Salt Lake City, and David Patrick Redwine, 32, of Twin Falls, were arraigned in 5th District Magistrate Court Monday on second-degree burglary charges.

Both were arrested after Randolph King, who told police he was watching the home of a neighbor who was away at the time, saw two strangers entering the house. Police said King went to the home, owned by Ernest Deaner, at 340 Wilt St., with a gun and held Redwine while other neighbors called police. During the procedure, King fired a shot into the ground to convince his captives that he was serious about his intentions to protect his neighbor's property.

When police arrived Redwine was turned over to officers by King, who told them a second person had fled the scene. Taylor was later arrested a few blocks from the Deaner home.

Both suspects were granted the services of the public defender and will appear in court again after they have had an opportunity to confer with the attorney.

Public Safety Director Tim Qualls said Monday that a vehicle the suspects were using was impounded and contained items believed to have been taken from the Deaner residence. The initial report listed the loss of a bottle of whiskey and damage to the building totaling only about $58.

said they were waiting for an inventory from school officials. It was not believed that anything was taken other than some petty cash, soft drinks and candy.

School Supt. Norman Hurst said school was held as usual after custodians worked during the weekend to clear up the debris. Staff members and students completed the cleanup Monday.

Hurst said valuable equipment such as computers, video, and sound equipment remained intact. No such items were taken, as far as school officials know Monday.

Hurst said the major damage would be to the building. The vandals went from one area of the building to another by kicking out doors and damaging door jambs. Much of this damage was still awaiting repair Monday.

At the Burley City Library a large, double-paneled window in the front of the building was broken out on Saturday. No entry was made and damage was confined to the window.

City officials have decided to post signs at various places in the city offering $100 in reward money for anyone providing information about instances of deliberate damage to private or public property. Damage to city parks, trash collection containers and numerous instances of broken windows at schools and other public buildings prompted the city's efforts to ask for assistance from the public.

Mock raid on Bible camp danger to kids' emotional well-being

DEAR ABBY: Our son recently returned from a Bible camp sponsored by our local church where the following incident occurred:

Abigail VanBuren
Dear Abby

It was late evening when 25 to 35 kids, aged 13 and 14, were in the main dormitory with the lights out. Suddenly a dozen or so men in camouflage uniforms burst into the dorm with lanterns. One was armed with a shotgun, another had a rifle. They said they were an anti-Christian organization. No one was allowed to leave and several children were shoved and cuffed to indicate that they meant business.

At first some kids laughed, then they became terrified and began to cry. Several children managed to slip out through a side door and duck into a school bus where they hid under the seats. Two girls were known to be held by the man who was carrying the rifle. Two shotguns were fired, and some of the kids assumed the girls were dead. Meanwhile, three other girls ran to a nearby cabin inhabited by some locals who became frightened and called the police.

The police arrived and contacted the camp counselor who, by the way, was a respected teacher and wrestling coach. He admitted it was a mock raid to show the kids what could happen to Christian children in some non-Christian countries. My wife still thinks this was a good "educational experience" for our son, and that I missed the point. I am angry, to say the least. Would you say this was educational?—Your comments, please.

—ANGRY IN RICHFIELD, MINN.
DEAR ANGRY: It was indeed educational. You parents learned that the Bible camp counselor used unforgivably poor judgment when he subjected your children to an act of terrorism to make a point. Although the raid was mock, the emotional impact of that horrifying experience was very real to those children, who may later need therapy to recover from recurring nightmares. Your anger is justified. Your wife missed the point.

I think the counselor should be psychologically examined. And if he is as sick as I think he is, he should be relieved of his responsibilities as a teacher and counselor until he is treated and recovers.

DEAR ABBY: I am the swimming supervisor for the Elmira Heights (N.Y.) Swimming Program. Earlier this week, I discussed a letter in your column with my Basic Water Safety class.

It concerned the woman whose husband (a non-swimmer) fell out of a boat and nearly drowned because he wasn't wearing a life jacket. Two days later, a similar tragedy occurred on a lake near here. A man and his daughter drowned when their boat capsized. Neither was wearing a life jacket.

Because of this, the lifeguards in our area urged me to write and thank you for reminding non-swimmers to wear life jackets. But, Abby, please stress that life jackets, vests and cushions are important not only for non-swimmers, but for every person who gets into a boat. Accidents do happen, and no matter how well a person can swim, there is always the possibility that an injury could prevent the most competent swimmer from saving himself. Many tragedies could be avoided if everyone who gets into a boat would wear a life-vest. Can you believe that some people won't wear life-vests because they think they don't look good in them? If they're unconscious, it doesn't matter how good they look, or how good they can swim.

—DEBORAH FISK & LIFEGUARDS DEAR DEBORAH AND LIFEGUARDS: Thanks for writing. You may have saved some lives today because you cared enough to write.

(Every teen-ager should know the truth about sex, drugs and how to be happy. For Abby's booklet, send your name and address clearly printed with a check or money order for $2.50 and a long, stamped (39 cents) self-addressed envelope to: Dear Abby, Teen Booklet, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.)

CSI students pick senators

TWIN FALLS — College of Southern Idaho students will elect a senator-at-large and two academic freshmen senators this week.

Candidates for the senator-at-large seat are Patty Schrenk, Wendell, Rick Stewart, Carey, and Gregg Hall, Filer. Running for the two academic senator positions are Stephanie Hoss, Winnemucca, Nev. and Troy Smith, Twin Falls.

Two vocational senators will be appointed since no one filed for these seats.

Voting will be conducted on Twin Falls County voting machines from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Wednesday and Thursday, and the election results will be announced by Friday.

Order members questioned in break-in SEATTLE (AP) — Members of the white supremacist group The Order were under investigation about a break-in at the compound of the "Aryan Nations" church compound and about counterfeiting, a witness testified Monday.

Howard J. Witherwax, security chief at the church, told a U.S. District Court jury that he had tried to question Bruce Pierce and Gary Yarborough after he heard reports of an office break-in at the church compound in Hayden Lake, Idaho, in 1983.

Pierce and Yarborough are among 10 Order members on trial for racketeering in federal court. The government claims the defendants killed, robbed and counterfeited money as part of The Order's plot to overthrow the government and eliminate Jews and other minorities. Witherwax is the son-in-law of the Rev. Richard Butler, head of the Aryan Nations church. The Order has been described as a militant offshoot of the church.

Witherwax, a former deputy sheriff from California, said he became aware of a possible break-in at the church office in November 1983 and told Butler about it.

Witherwax said when he tried to question Pierce about it, Pierce told him "it was none of my business." He said, "Once a cop, always a cop."

Witherwax said he also spoke with David Tate, who worked in the Aryan Nations print shop. Tate is also charged in the racketeering case but is not on trial. He is in custody and faces trial in October in Missouri on charges of killing a state trooper.

Tate said he had done the "layout" or in some other way participated in preparing counterfeit money. Witherwax testified.

After that, at least one membership dismissal letter was sent by Aryan Nations, Witherwax said.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Gene Wilson did not pursue who the letter was sent to, or other details about the alleged counterfeiting.

Last week, however, Order co-founder Denver Daw Parmenter testified that he had heard some Aryan Nations members were dismissed because of counterfeiting on church property. Witherwax said he also learned a short time after he investigated the incident that Pierce had been arrested for trying to pass a counterfeit bill in Union Gap.

In other testimony Monday, a succession of police, federal agents and store employees told of counterfeit money being passed at the Valley Mall shopping center in Union Gap on Dec. 3, 1983.

Yakima taxi driver Bruce Rogers said he found 14 $50 bills in a paper bag in the mall's parking lot, and used one to try to buy a toy for his son.

"At the time, we thought it was a windfall," he said. That ended when he was arrested for investigation of passing counterfeit money. He was released that evening.

Police search for kidnap suspect

CHEYENNE, Wyo. (AP) — Cheyenne police believe an armed man who ran from officers early this morning is a suspect in the kidnaping of a state trooper in Kansas last month.

Police Lt. Roy Pack said city, county, state and federal officers were looking for Lohman Mays Jr., 42, who was armed and considered dangerous. A woman also wanted in connection with the kidnaping, Patricia Barrett, was in the Laramie County Jail and had refused to answer questions, the lieutenant said.

Pack said two officers on patrol this morning became suspicious of a van, and a check showed the license plates were stolen. Pack said he didn't know the origin of the plates.

The officers stopped the van in central Cheyenne about 3 a.m., and a man and woman, got out and started running, Pack said. When she stopped to turn around, her companion ran into her and knocked her down, and she was arrested, but the man escaped down an alley, Pack said.

She was carrying an automatic military-style rifle, and an officer saw the man had some type of handgun, Pack said.

The lieutenant said crime technicians are examining other loaded guns that were found in the van, including a semi-automatic handgun.

He said a check of local motels showed the couple and another man had been in town for at least two days. "According to the FBI, they may have been in Wyoming for some time," Pack added.

Mays is about 5-11, 160 pounds, with short dark hair, and he needs a shave, Pack said.

Dickerson romps as Rams go to 3-0

By JIM COUR
The Associated Press

SEATTLE — Eric Dickerson played like he'd never been away. "Eric had his training camp in the first three quarters and then he began his regular season in the fourth quarter," Los Angeles Coach John Robinson said Monday night after Dickerson scored three touchdowns in the Rams' 35-24 National Football League victory over the Seattle Seahawks.

"I don't know what to say about him except that he's pretty damn good," Robinson said. "Eric is a two-time NFL rushing champion, seeing his first action after a 47-day contract holdout, scored on runs of 1, 2 and 15 yards while collecting 150 yards on 31 carries as the Rams, 3-0, handed Seattle its first loss in three games. "I think I was getting better in the fourth quarter," a smiling Dickerson said. "But I thought their defense was getting tired."

Dickerson, who rushed for an NFL-record 2,105 yards in 16 regular-season games in 1984, said he didn't have a similar goal this season.

"My goal is to try to play very well, get to the Super Bowl and stay healthy," he said.

The game between the two NFL powers was billed as a matchup between Dickerson and the Seahawks' Curt Warner. It turned out to be a mismatch. Warner was held to 32 yards on 13 carries.

"He's just a great running back, no question about that," Seahawks Coach Chuck Knox said of Dickerson.

The Seahawks' veteran wide receiver, Steve Largent, suffered a sprained knee in the game. Knox said he didn't know whether the injury would keep Largent out of Sunday's game at Kansas City. The Rams exploded for two touchdowns — on a 19-yard pass from quarterback Dieter Brock to Bobby Duckworth and Dickerson's 2-yard run — in the first 2:03 of the second half after a 7-7 halftime deadlock.

The Rams took the second-half kickoff and moved 80 yards in five plays, with Brock finding Duckworth in the left corner of the end zone with just 1:46 gone in the second half.

Seattle's Randall Morris fumbled the kickoff and Mark Jerue recovered the ball on the Seattle 2-yard line. Dickerson scored on the next play for a 21-7 Los Angeles lead.

The Seahawks came back within 21-17 on a 26-yard field goal by Norm Johnson and a 3-yard scoring pass from Dave Krieg to rookie Danny Greene. But the Rams then went 80 yards in six plays to put the game out of reach. Dickerson opened the drive with a 43-yard run and finished it with a 15-yard run with 3:33 left.

The Rams' final touchdown came on the fifth Seattle turnover of the game on Johnnie Johnson's 27-yard return of an intercepted Krieg pass with 1:45 to go. The Rams pressured Krieg throughout and sacked him seven times, including three by defensive end Doug Reed, for 61 yards.

Reserve quarterback Gale Gilbert threw 37 yards to Daryl Turner for the final Seattle touchdown with 28 seconds to play.

The teams played on even terms in the first half. The Rams went 65 yards in nine plays the second time they had the ball to take a 7-0 lead. On a fourth-and-goal situation from the one, Dickerson scored on a pitchout with 2:32 left in the first quarter. Brock had a 33-yard completion to Dickerson and a 23-yarder to Duckworth in the Los Angeles scoring drive.

The Seahawks scored their touchdown with 7:27 left in the second quarter when Dave Brown picked off a Brock pass on the left sideline and ran it back 28 yards.

After the Ram outburst early in the third quarter, the Seahawks made one run at the lead, using a piece of good fortune to cut the deficit to four points.

With the Seahawks at the Ram 3-yard line, Krieg had a center snuffly through his hands and a wild scramble for the ball ensued. The ball eventually bounced up into Krieg's arms at about the 20 and the quarterback lofted the scoring pass to Greene in the back of the end zone.

But Dickerson quickly ended Seattle's comeback hopes, barreling 43 yards through the left side of the Seahawk line on the Rams' next offensive play. Five plays later, Dickerson had his third score of the night and the Rams had a safe 28-17 lead.

Aslett takes 2nd

At nationals

By JANENE BUCKWAY
Times-News correspondent

TWIN FALLS — For the second time in as many years, Twin Falls air race pilot Tom Aslett finished second to the national Formula One champion at the Reno (Nev.) National Championship Air Races.

Aslett passed the home pylon in a time of 6 minutes, 35 seconds, just five seconds behind 11 time national champion, Ray Cote of El Cajon, Calif.

The nationals were held earlier this month.

Flying his new Lil' Thumper, Aslett covered the three-mile, eight-lap pylon course at an average speed of 226 miles an hour. In a near-repeat of the 1984 race, Aslett led for the first half of the race. Aslett and Cote's Judy raced side by side for a lap before Cote passed him on the back stretch of the seventh lap and took the checkered flag in 6:30 at a speed of 229 miles per hour.

"Well, we didn't do exactly what we wanted to this year," Aslett said. "Ray had his plane really humming, and I just couldn't get any more speed out of my new engine."

Aslett bought the plane from former national champion pilot Chuck Wentworth last October after flying it in the 1984 Reno race.

The plane has been fitted with a new engine, refurbished and painted in Aslett's maroon-and-old racing colors by Aslett and his Caldwell-based crew, Lee and Marvin Cox and Momie Cox.

"I couldn't have had the plane ready without their help," he said, adding "a lot of other people at Hubler Field (in Caldwell) helped get us ready. I'm grateful to them all."

Aslett is a Twin Falls businessman who operates Aslett Industries, a construction and road seal-coating business. He also owns the only two air race planes in Idaho.

He shares the distinction of being the state's only air race pilot with Gary Dean Hubler of Caldwell.

Hubler flies a plane built by Eldon Lutz of Ogden, Utah, but did not

Steinbrenner calls for truce among Yanks

NEW YORK (AP) — New York Yankees owner George Steinbrenner does not plan to take any disciplinary action against Manager Billy Martin or pitcher Ed Whitson during the remainder of the regular season following their weekend fight in Baltimore, he said Monday.

"Ed Whitson will not be suspended as far as I know at this time. Nor will Billy," Steinbrenner told the New York Times in Tuesday editions. "I don't know how I could take action against one without taking action against the other."

Steinbrenner, who had been watching his team fight the Toronto Blue Jays for the American League East title, had to turn his attention to another kind of fight after Martin suffered a broken right arm in the altercation with Whitson.

The brawl early Sunday began at a Baltimore hotel bar, spilled into the lobby and wound up in a pileup in the parking lot, and was the latest episode for a team that often is embroiled in controversy.

"I'm not going to make any statement until I get the facts," Steinbrenner said.

Getting the facts may not be that easy, and Steinbrenner said he expected it would be "a while" before he had all of the details he wanted.

"There are some absolutely gigantic contradictions in the stories of the parties," said Tom Reich, Whitson's agent. "There's no question the parties disagree as to who started the fight."

Martin said a man came over to his table in the bar and said, "Get over there quick, Whitson's in trouble." Martin said that when he turned over to Whitson's table, "he turned on me and went crazy," and threw the first punch.

Whitson claims Martin sucker-punched him, triggering the brawl. Witnesses said both combatants appeared to be intoxicated.

"I just wish it hadn't come to this situation," Whitson told WABC-TV on Monday. "As far as I'm concerned, it's in the past."

The pitcher said he had not talked with Martin since the incident. Whitson said Reich had advised him not to discuss the specifics of the fight until all of the parties had talked.

Steinbrenner said he hoped to talk

BILLY MARTIN
Won't be disciplined

on Tuesday by telephone from his Tampa, Fla., home with everyone concerned.

Steinbrenner sent General Manager Clyde King and vice president Woody Woodward to Baltimore on Sunday, and they spent part of the day talking to those who saw the fight, which began around midnight and lasted, in various stages, until 3 a.m.

During the brawl, Martin vowed he would suspend Whitson for the rest of his Yankees' contract, a five-year pact that started this season and is worth $4.4 million. Later, Martin relented and said Whitson would start Friday night against Baltimore.

"If he can pitch, he'll pitch," Martin said.

While the actual fight started Sunday morning, tension had been building for awhile.

Whitson got off to a poor start this season, and even though he now is 10-8, he hasn't been particularly effective or comfortable in the "Bronx Zoo." His frustration may have reached the breaking point when Martin scratched him from a start last Friday night at Baltimore.

"Martin said he referred to me as 'whatachamacallit,'" told him his arm was fine.

Choates' status for MSU still undecided

By The Associated Press and The Times-News

Lady Luck was with Nevada-Reno Saturday.

Boise State dealt the Wolf Pack eight turnovers that resulted in five Reno payoffs and a 37-10 home win in Big Sky Conference season opener for both teams.

"I think any coach goes in expecting great things to happen. Maybe they didn't dominate us quite as bad last year," Reno Coach Chris Aull said of Reno's 37-10 loss to the Broncos last year in Boise. "But the Boise kids have a lot of class; they hung in and kept hitting."

In another Big Sky opener Saturday, Idaho trounced Northern Arizona 47-9 in a game that saw the lumberjacks held to 74 yards total offense in the first half and 232 yards for game.

"Our defense played its best game in my four years at Idaho," said Coach Dennis Erickson. "NAU played good defense in the first half, but we adjusted at halftime and had success against them later in the game."

Other Big Sky teams involved in non-conference play Saturday weren't so lucky. Weber State

Yarber named 'Sky's player of week'

BOISE (AP) — University of Idaho wide receiver Eric Yarber and University of Nevada-Reno inside linebacker Scott Lommori have been named the Big Sky Conference football players of the week.

Yarber was honored on offense while Lommori received the defensive award.

Yarber, a 5-foot-9-inch, 160-pound senior from Los Angeles, Calif., had five receptions for 66 yards and returned a punt 62 yards for a touchdown as Idaho opened its Big Sky Conference season with a 27-3 road win at Northern Arizona. He also had a 34-yard run on a reverse, bringing his total to 102 yards in all purpose running.

Lommori, a 6-foot-2-inch, 220-pound sophomore from Yerington, Nev., had two pass interceptions and one pass deflection as Nevada-Reno downed rival Boise State, 37-10.

Choates, who was suspended for violating a team rule, the Broncos flourished offensively with their only scores a 48-yard field goal by Roberto Moran and the late touchdown that resulted from a 16-yard pass from Mike Williams to Tony Hunter.

Boise State Coach Lyle Setenetch said Monday he didn't know whether quarterback Hazen Choates, who was suspended before last week's game and did not make the trip to Reno, would play this week against Montana State. He added that the status of tailback Jon Francis, who was restricted to returning kicks in the UNR game because of a shoulder injury, is still doubtful.

Reno moved to 1-0 in conference play and 3-0 overall, while Boise State dropped to 1-2 and 0-1.

Northern Arizona came close to being shut out at home for the first time since 1977 as Idaho balanced an air-ground attack that totaled 360 yards.

"Idaho was a very good football team," said Northern Arizona Coach Larry Centura. "I feel we encouraged them to play better by making some mental mistakes."

The Wolf Pack denied Boise State a touchdown until the final two minutes of the game. Playing without quarterback Hazen

Holmes sends regrets to Marciano's family

NEW YORK (AP) — Larry Holmes, who failed to tie the Rocky Marciano record when he lost to Michael Spinks Saturday night, apologized Monday for remarks he made about Marciano following his defeat.

"I want to offer my apologies to Rocky Marciano's family for remarks I made at the press conference," Holmes told The Associated Press from his office in Easton, Pa.

One of those remarks made to Marciano's brother, Peter, who attended the post-fight press conference was, "Rocky couldn't carry my jockstrap."

Marciano, who had a 49-0 record, was the only heavyweight champion to retire unbeaten. He was killed in a plane crash in 1969.

"I have no hard feelings against Rocky Marciano," said the 33-year-old Holmes. "He was one of the greatest fighters of all time. His 49-0 record speaks for itself."

LARRY HOLMES
Wants to meet brother

"If I hurt Marciano's family, I regret it."

Holmes, whose record now is 49-1 and who says he will not fight again, said he would like to visit Peter Marciano or have Peter visit him.

THE ACES® BOBBY WOLFE

"Never explain. Your friends do not need it and your enemies will not believe you anyway."
— Elbert Hubbard.

South had some lame excuses for blowing today's game. The facts were that he chose the wrong priorities.

South took East's heart king, drew trumps and led the heart jack to establish dummy's 10 as a winner. West took his heart queen and switched to clubs for two quick tricks, and the defenders had book. East exited safely in hearts and although South "enjoyed" a discard, he still had to take the diamond finesse for one down.

Instead of giving priority to promoting dummy's heart 10, South should have concentrated on keeping West off lead. At trick one, he should have allowed East's heart king to win the trick.

South wins the heart continuation, draws trumps and takes a losing "diamond" finesse. East must now cash his club ace or lose it, and South's game is safe for 10 tricks. South observed that the game would always fail with a club lead and a heart switch. This was a fair and accurate analysis; too bad South didn't put as much effort into analyzing the possibilities of making his contract against the actual heart lead.

ANSWER: Four hearts. The two-heart raise placed an upper limit on this hand. North's bidding, however, promoted South's values in the red suits.
