ween now and the middle of November is not very large. But nevertheless as far as the United States is concerned, we are there in Geneva, and we're ready to work at this and achieve as much as can possibly be achieved, although we don't believe in getting put in a position where because of a deadline of a meeting we are tempted to agree to something that we think is unwise.

"We will push the negotiations as hard as we can as far as we can, but we'll just have to wait and see, but certainly we want to see the November meeting be as productive as possible."

In describing the meeting, which began in the Oval Office and later shifted to the State Dining Room, where the two delegations had lunch, Shultz said Reagan, speaking through an interpreter, first presented "a comprehensive view of his thoughts" leading up to the summit meeting in November.

That was followed, the secretary said, by Shevardnadze's presentation of Gorbachev's letter and his description of its contents. He said both men spoke from notes but that the meeting was conversational in nature with the participants responding to what was being said and not just talking at each other.

He said the foreign minister, with whom Shultz had more than four hours of talks on Wednesday, was "very straightforward" and "a very easy person to talk to."

As the Soviet delegation drove away, Reagan refused even to say whether Shevardnadze offered a new proposal to break the deadlock in nuclear arms reduction talks between their two nations, leaving that announcement to Shultz. Reagan told reporters he was satisfied with the meeting but did not expect to see the foreign minister again during his stay in Washington, as some had speculated he would if the session went well.

"There's always progress when you're talking to each other, and we were talking to each other," Reagan said. He did say the United States remains "determined to go forward" with his administration's Star Wars research program.

minutes alone in private conversation before going to lunch, Shultz said.

But when the two men emerged from the White House at the end of the session, they gave no indication the talks had been easy or familiar. Walking side by side out of the Diplomatic Entrance to Shevardnadze's waiting limousine, neither smiled or responded to reporters' shouted questions.

educators because it's a part-time, lay board.

"The board is made up of independent thinkers. In no way are board members such as Robert Montgomery and myself rubber stamps for anybody," said Wheeler.

He said some changes are necessary, such as uniform accounting system for all the schools, otherwise it is impossible to hold the institutions accountable for their operations.

"We can't afford the luxury of a chancellor system. What we have is working very well," he said.

Wheeler was asked how much time he spends on board matters. He said 25 to 30 hours per month.

"But you could spend full time and not do the job right if you tried to stick your noses into the day-to-day business of the universities," he said.

Davis was part of an accreditation team which studied Idaho's state Board of Education. One thing that struck the committee, said Davis, was the "mind-boggling" responsibilities of the board, ranging from public school policy to governing different and complex institutions.

Davis said under Oregon's chancellor system, each of the college presidents reports to his office. His office is responsible for working with the state legislature, and there is no lobbying by individual colleges of the agencies involved on the board, since there are inevitable conflicts of interest.

"It simply does not make good sense," he said.

enrollment. "Head counts can be very misleading, and it leads schools into doing things for the wrong reason," he said.

Oregon's eight state colleges and universities are funded at reasonable levels, and there is no change for minor enrollment swings, he said.

In his committee's review of the Idaho system, Davis said most educators felt it was a bad idea to have the head of an education agency on the board which governs all education agencies.

Idaho's superintendent of public instruction is one of eight members of the Board of Education.

Davis said he meant no criticism of the incumbent, Jerry Evans, but the Board of Education is designed as a panel of lay people making policy and budget decisions. It's not a good idea to have the head of the agencies involved on the board, since there are inevitable conflicts of interest.

300 protest as president meets Soviet

WASHINGTON (AP)—About 300 people protested in front of the White House on Friday as President Reagan met with Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze.

They included people protesting Soviet military presence in Afghanistan, charging the Soviets are selling arms to the Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini of Iran, and advocating the rights of national minority groups within the Soviet Union.

"I don't see how this torturer can be accepted into the White House," said Myron Wasyluk, director of the Ukrainian National Information Service and protest organizer.

Wasyluk and other protesters cited a 10-year-old Soviet underground report claiming Shevardnadze personally authorized torture of political prisoners while he was minister of internal affairs for the Soviet state of Georgia.

However, a State Department official familiar with Soviet affairs, who declined to be quoted by name, said: "I have seen the same reports, and like all such reports, there is no way to confirm them."

Mohamed Nabi Salehi, representative in the United States for the Afghan Mujahadeen guerrillas, said he opposed the Reagan-Shevardnadze meeting because "we consider the Soviet leaders enemies of the free world."

Correction

An article in the Times-News Thursday incorrectly attributed a quote to U.S. Rep. Richard Stalling. Because of a typographical error, a comment by State Rep. J.F. Chadbond regarding Chadbond's attendance at anti-communist seminars was attributed to Stalling.

Also, another quote by Chadbond, regarding his Republican primary opposition should be chosen to run for the 2nd Congressional District seat held by Stalling, incorrectly referred to his opponents as Democrats.

The Times-News regrets the errors.

Panama president may be out

PANAMA CITY (AP)—Members of Panama's National Assembly gathered for a late-night meeting Friday amid reports that President Nicolas Ardito Barletta had resigned under pressure from the military after 11 months in office.

A presidential spokeswoman, Migdalla Fuentes, said she had been told by a local television station that Vice President Eric Arturo del Valle, 49, was to be sworn in as Ardito Barletta's replacement. The television stations are government controlled, and she said she had no other information.

There had been rumors for two days that Barletta was under pressure from the powerful Defense Force, which serves as the nation's army, and labor and business groups to resign.

7th killer bee colony found

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP)—A swarm of wild bees found in an oil pipe was identified Friday as the seventh colony of "killer bees" to be discovered since June, when the first U.S. colony of the aggressive insects was found.

The seventh swarm was found Sept. 6 about 13 miles northeast of Bakersfield and destroyed the same day, but it took until Friday to confirm they were Africanized bees, said Dr. Thomas Rinderer of the U.S. Department of Agriculture Research Service.

Africanized bees look much the same as domestic bees, and it requires tedious detailed measuring to determine the difference.

Arms deal with Jordan offered

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Reagan, in a move certain to touch off opposition from Israel's supporters in Congress, on Friday proposed a $1.55 billion arms sale to Jordan that includes 40 advanced fighter aircraft.

Reagan, who will meet with Hussein at the White House on Monday, said the proposed sale sends "a powerful message of U.S. political support for King Hussein's efforts to bring about a comprehensive, lasting peace settlement between Israel and the Arab world."

Synopsis:
The National Weather Service says cold northerly air moved into the state Friday from Canada. Clouds and precipitation in Idaho that are associated with this system have been along the eastern borders. Salton has reported snow showers over the Bitterroot Mountains to the north and east.

This cooler weather will be around for the weekend with a chance of showers remaining in the eastern sections of the state through Sunday.

Winds were gusting across southern Idaho to near 30 mph at most locations. Skies were mostly clear in most areas of the state except for the east.

Overnight lows were generally in the upper 20s and 30s. Afternoon temperatures ranged from 45 degrees at Mullain and 47 at Salmon under cloudy skies to 70 degrees with clear skies at Malad.

The pollen count in Twin Falls was 218 particles per cubic meter of air.

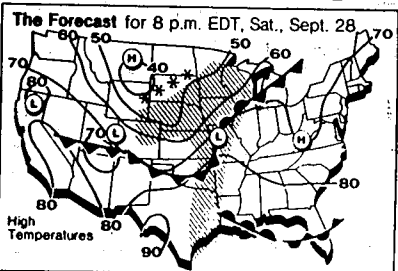

Highest temperature in the state Friday was 75 degrees in Emmett, while Stanley recorded the state low of 17 degrees.

The agricultural outlook in Southern Idaho shows conditions for field work and harvesting will be fair in the west and locally poor in the east through the weekend with improving conditions Monday through Wednesday. A chance of rain or snow showers, windy conditions and cold temperatures will persist over mainly southeast Idaho through the weekend. Soil temperatures for the potato harvest will be falling to the upper 30s and low 40s by sunrise and rise only slowly above 45 degrees by noon both today and Sunday.

The extended forecast for Southern Idaho, Monday through Wednesday, indicates dry with slowly warming temperatures. Highs in the mid-50s to mid-60s Monday, warming to the 60s Tuesday and Wednesday. Lows in the upper 30s and 40s.

Elsewhere in the nation Friday, temperatures ranged from a high of 85 degrees in Presidio, Texas, to a low of 17 degrees in Gunnison, Colo.

We Hate To Rush You But .....

It's later than you think. Ford Motor Co. has been offering 7.7 APR rates on all new Mercury's for the last 15 days. At this tremendous low rate of interest, the lowest we've ever seen, our Mercury stock is fast being depleted. Of course, we still have an excellent selection of Grand Marquis, which have been discounted up to $2,000 plus 7.7 financing. Many cars to choose from in our Lynx and we've just received 30 new Topaz that have been slashed in price plus 7.7 financing. In our opinion if you are even thinking about purchasing a new car in the next couple of years, this is the time you can buy a new car now with no down payment and 7.7 financing plus all '85's have been discounted during our close-out. We urge you to come in as soon as possible.

State joins in backing restart ban

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — The state Friday joined an anti-nuclear group in urging the U.S. Supreme Court to continue an order blocking restart of the Three Mile Island nuclear power plant.

The Nuclear Regulatory Commission has asked the high court to let the plant to reopen, saying opponents did not demonstrate that a restart of TMI's Unit 1 would cause harm.

TMI has not produced power since March 1979, when nuclear-fuel in the Unit 2 reactor partially melted and radiation was released into the environment in the worst commercial nuclear accident in U.S. history.

Justice William Brennan Jr. had set Friday as the deadline for responses to an appeal filed Tuesday by the group Three Mile Island Alert, which argued more hearings on plant management are needed.

The NRC earlier this year ruled that it needed no more hearings on management issues.

FarmAid tickets first money for groups across the nation

WASHINGTON (AP) — The first $100,000 in proceeds from last weekend's FarmAid concert will be distributed to 12 organizations to feed hungry farm families from Florida to Wyoming, it was announced Friday.

The FarmAid concert also said organizers are contemplating a syndicated television special to be aired during the Christmas season to continue raising money for financially distressed farmers.

The FarmAid concert Sunday in Champaign, Ill., has pulled in $6 million in contributions and the total is going to exceed $10 million for sure," spokeswoman Jim Nicholls said.

Organizers had said the concert might raise up to $50 million.

Nicholls said country singer Willie Nelson, a principal architect of the FarmAid project, will release a detailed statement on the organization's income, expenses and spending plans early next week.

A spokeswoman for the National Council of Churches said Friday that $100,000 will be channeled to a dozen groups serving poor farmers in 17 states. FarmAid asked the council to identify areas and groups that could use the money.

Carol Fouke, a New York-based spokeswoman for the council, said FarmAid imposed a restriction that the whole sum must be spent for food or cash payments for food. No money is to cover expenses by the council or the receiving groups, she said.

Ms. Fouke added that the organizations receiving the money will distribute food or cash through assistance networks and not "soup kitchens."

"These groups aren't going to set up soup kitchens for farmers and make the farmers come and stand in line with their bowls and plates out," she said.

Ms. Fouke said the organizations and the amounts designated for them were:

- Iowa Rural Crisis Fund, based in Des Moines, Iowa, $10,000 for use in Iowa and $5,000 for use in Missouri.
- Minnesota COACT (Citizens Organizations Acting Together), St. Paul, Minn., $5,000. Works in Northern Minnesota.
- Groundswell Inc., Lambertson, Minn., $5,000. Works in Southern Minnesota.
- Interchurch Ministries of Nebraska, Lincoln, Neb., $10,000.
- Federation of Southern Cooperatives, Epses, Ala., $20,000.

Money will be used in Alabama, Mississippi, Northern Florida and Georgia.

• Cincinnati Free Store Food Bank for its rural network, Cincinnati, $10,000. To be used in Ohio and Kentucky.

• Wyoming Rural Support Network; Torrington, Wyo., $5,000.

• Oklahoma Conference of Churches, Oklahoma City, $5,000.

• Kansas Consultation of Cooperating Churches; Topeka, Kan., $5,000.

• Illinois Conference of Churches for its Illinois South Project; Herrin, Ill., $5,000.

• Wisconsin Conference of Churches; Madison, Wis., $5,000.

• Rural Advancement Fund; Pittsboro, N.C., $10,000 for use in North and South Carolina.

Nicholls said FarmAid organizers hope to raise additional money for financially distressed farmers at Christmas with the television special. He said organizers are planning a one-hour program featuring excerpts from the concert and stories about farmers who were helped by its proceeds.

Ex-education secretary heads principals' group

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former Secretary of Education T.H. Bell will head a national panel seeking to define the qualities needed to be an effective principal, an educators' group said Friday.

The National Association of Secondary School Principals, based in suburban Reston, Va., said Bell has agreed to be chairman of its National Commission on Professional Standards for the Principalship.

Bell played a key role in the school reform movement during President Reagan's first term.

He left the Cabinet at the end of 1984 to become an education professor at the University of Utah.

Bell said, "The principal is the prime leader who will make the difference between success and failure in bringing about the changes that we all hope will happen in our nation's schools."

Scott Thomson, executive director of the association, said the commission's first step will be to draw up an accurate description of the tasks principals perform and to rank those tasks by their importance.

Nuclear test set off Friday

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — A nuclear weapons test with an explosive yield of less than 20,000 tons of TNT was conducted Friday 1,200 feet underground at the Nevada Test Site, authorities announced.

The shot, code-named Poni, was the 11th announced test at the Nevada site this year and the 541st announced shot since testing began in Nevada in January of 1951. For security reasons, not all tests are announced.

The test was detonated at 7:15 a.m. in a shaft beneath the surface of Yucca Flat, 79 miles northwest of Las Vegas.

Court rules out 'Gone With the Wind' sequel

ATLANTA (AP) — MGM/UA Entertainment Co. may not film a sequel to "Gone With the Wind" because neither author Margaret Mitchell nor her estate ever intended the Civil War saga to be continued, a federal appeals court ruled Friday.

Ms. Mitchell "believed any resolution of what happened to Scarlett and Rhett would undermine the integrity of the original story," the 11th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals said.

The subject of a sequel was never broached in contract negotiations in 1936 and 1961, the court said. The filmmakers knew then that Stephens Mitchell, Ms. Mitchell's brother who had acquired all rights to her novel, did not intend to grant sequel rights, the court said.

Gary Hatch, an attorney representing Trust Company Bank, which is executor of the Mitchell estate, was out of town Friday and could not be reached for comment. MGM spokesman Art Rockwell in Los Angeles said the film company had no comment on the ruling.

MGM and its predecessor, Selznick International Pictures Inc., had been trying to arrange for a sequel to "Gone With the Wind" since before the original film was made, according to Friday's ruling.

Senator Mathias announces he will pass up fourth term

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Charles McC. Mathias Jr., R-Md., announced Friday he will not seek re-election when his term ends next year, a move that jeopardizes Republican hopes of retaining control of the Senate.

Mathias, 64, told a news conference "the season has arrived to shift to a new field of activity," and said he might practice law, teach and write.

The three-term moderate was the fourth Republican senator to decide against seeking re-election next year, when Republicans must defend 22 Senate seats and the Democrats only 12. The GOP now controls the Senate, 53-47.

While Mathias was often at odds with the Republican right, he said "that was not significant" in the decision, and that conservative colleagues were "extremely open and supportive during the time I had this under consideration."

He also predicted "the tide will come in again" for Republican moderates and liberals who once were a powerful force in the party but now are few in numbers and exert little clout.

Even before the official an-

CHARLES MATHIAS JR.
Move could hurt GOP effort ouncement, Maryland Republican Chairman Allan Levey commented: "I'm disappointed. I was always hoping the senator would run because I don't think anyone in the state — in the Democratic or Republican party could beat him. This creates a problem because we were counting on him to run."

Mathias said he considered the possibility that Republicans may lose the seat because of his retirement but quickly added it was "not controlling" in his decision.

Democratic National Chairman Paul G. Kirk Jr. described Mathias' announcement as "a political hurricane" and said "the 1986 weather report gets better every day for the Democrats."

Top Democratic vote-getters already were considering a race for the seat even before Mathias' decision, including Gov. Harry Hughes, Rep. Michael Barnes and Rep. Barbara Mikulski, the senator's 1974 opponent.

Likely Republican contenders are more conservative than Mathias. They include former U.N. Ambassador "Jeane" Kirkpatrick; Rep. Marjorie Holt, who has announced plans to retire from the House; and Donald Devine, former head of the Office of Personnel Management and now head of a political action committee maintained by Senate Majority Leader Robert Dole, R-Kan.

Gloria stalls De Lorean's Detroit court date

DETROIT (AP) — John Z. De Lorean's arraignment on charges of bilking investors in his failed car company out of $8.9 million was delayed Friday because the entrepreneur was stranded in New York by Hurricane Gloria. "Even John could not stop Gloria," De Lorean's attorney entered Detroit's federal courthouse to discuss the arraignment, which was rescheduled for Monday at 11 a.m. MDT. Had the arraignment been held, "I was going to say we enter a plea of not guilty" to the racketeering and fraud charges, Weitzman said.

The 15-count indictment accused De Lorean of racketeering — mail fraud, wire fraud, interstate transportation of stolen money, income tax evasion and causing false tax returns to be filed. If convicted, De Lorean would face a maximum penalty for racketeering of 20 years in prison, $25,000 in fines and forfeiture of any property acquired.

Official fears NORAD computer is obsolete

DENVER (AP) — A federal official says the computer at the top-secret NORAD command post inside Colorado's Cheyenne Mountain, which coordinates the nation's early-warning system against nuclear attack, is becoming obsolete.

"We have been told by (the Defense Department) that the state-of-the-art computer equipment will not be ready until 1992 at the earliest," Charles Bowsher, comptroller general of the General Accounting Office, told a House subcommittee Thursday.

"The solutions to the computer problem always seem to be a few years away," he said.

But Pentagon representatives, including Gen. Robert Herres, commander of the North American Aerospace Defense Command, acknowledged there are flaws in the system but said it is adequate.

Hay fever 'Tis the season, but don't blame the beans

By MIKE SULLIVAN
Times-News city editor

TWIN FALLS — Hay fever sufferers waking up to stuffed noses, coughing and itchy eyes may be blaming the wrong culprits. It isn't the bean harvest, cottonwood trees or ragweed, a Sun Valley allergist says. It's more likely sagebrush, Russian thistle or grass pollen that triggers the annoying attacks.

Although blamed by many as the source of their upper respiratory distress, ragweed is not that predominant a source of pollen in this area," says Dr. Steve Lubber of the Mollie Scott Clinic in Sun Valley. Neither is the bean harvest in the Magic Valley area. "Beans are not the problem," Lubber says. "That's just because it's easily visible."

Lubber also gives cottonwood trees less credit as an irritant than most hayfever sufferers are likely to. The stately trees may be dropping seeds, but they should not be blamed for hayfever symptoms.

Like beanfields, cottonwoods are visible, so those people allergic to certain pollens blame them for their misery. Less visible, but more responsible, are sagebrush, grass pollen (from second cuttings of hay), Russian thistle and even rabbitbrush, Lubber says.

Based in Sun Valley, Lubber sees hayfever sufferers about a month earlier than Magic Valley doctors would, he says. Symptoms began flaring up in Wood River Valley about mid-August, Lubber says — roughly a month before similar conditions occurred in the Magic Valley area. The mountain climate precipitates the pollination of the offending flora, he points out.

The Magic Valley pollen count has been steadily rising the past week. The count of pollen particles per cubic meter of air rose from 20 on Sept. 20 to 218 Friday, when hayfever sufferers probably experienced the most distress.

The opening of grouse season last weekend exposed vulnerable hunters to rabbitbrush pollen as well as that of the others, Lubber says. Rabbitbrush pollen is heavy and doesn't blow around in the wind as the others do, but sage grouse hunters may have stirred it up by walking through the weed on the high desert. There's nothing unusual about any of it, Lubber says.

"Every fall about this time you see a big group of people (having allergy problems)," Lubber says.

What can be done about it? "There is a wide range of things people can do for it," Lubber says. "For most people, over-the-counter remedies will do it. . . . But if you're really miserable, see professional help. Over-the-counter probably won't be that effective."

Lubber advises against getting steroid shots as an allergy remedy, however. And before giving beans a bum rap, blame the desert. Knowing the enemy is half the battle.

Counties meeting wraps up

By PAT MARCANTONIO
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Resolutions ranging from day-care licensing to English as Idaho's official language were acted on during the final sessions of this week's annual convention of the Idaho Association of Counties.

The group of county officials from across the state supported a resolution supporting a revamping of the present indigent law. Earlier in the week, an association committee on indigents said the law was full of ambiguities.

Another resolution stated the association's opposition to any requirement that counties become directly responsible for regulating day-care operations.

Larry Ghan, a clerk of the District Court in Bannock County who proposed the resolution, said he did favor day-care licensing. But counties weren't financially able to deal with the responsibility.

The gist of the resolution prohibited the state from ordering counties to license day-care centers, Ghan said. But it didn't preclude

Clubhouse ready to be replaced

City calls for bids on Municipal Golf Course project

By ANNETTE CARY
Times-News writer

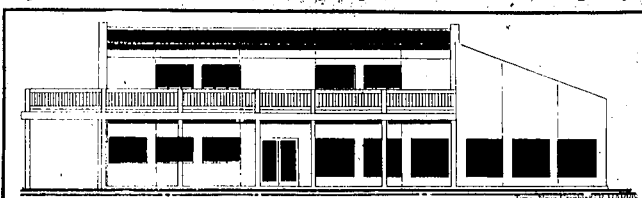

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls city officials say they will start accepting bids next week to replace the city's dilapidated Municipal Golf Course Clubhouse with a new, 4,600-square-foot structure.

The exterior of the building will reflect a Spanish flavor, with metal roof tiles and a synthetic tile covering called drivet. The covering looks like stucco but is more durable, says Wayne Pea, who designed the building. He is the city building department supervisor and a licensed architect.

"Originally, they (golfers and city officials) had been looking at a massive building," Pea says. "The shape and function of the building dictated its own character."

It will be a one-story building, but could accommodate a mezzanine if more space is needed in coming years, Pea says. The new clubhouse will already be about 1,100 square feet larger than the present building, he says. It will be built on the same site, but it will extend to the north about 20 feet farther.

Additional space will be provided outdoors by a 2,200-square-foot deck surrounding three sides of the building. It's intended to be used for lounging and watching other players, Pea says. It will also serve as shelter for more seating on the patio beneath.

The architect's design reflects Spanish elements, such as roof tiles and stucco texture.

The back part of the building will be divided into men's and women's locker areas, a kitchen and lounge separated by a partition from the main seating area.

The lounge is intended for meetings, and is likely also to be used by those who want to sit down and drink a beer after they play, city officials say. The clubhouse will continue its present policy of not serving hard liquor, however.

The southeast corner of the building will be used for a pro shop. The shop is arranged for easy supervision of the complex, with a view of the course and the main inside dining and seating area, Pea says. An island in the center of the main seating area will be used for storage, offices and display.

The new building should be ready to open by March or April, when the 1986 season tees off, although some work will continue on the building. The exterior covering can only be applied in warm weather, says Councilmember Gale Kleinkopf, the council's representative to the Golf Advisory Board.

City officials are hoping that the building can be built for $200,000. The City Council allocated $20,000 for the project last year, but most of the money will come from the golfers.

In December, the council and the Golf Advisory Board decided to raise green fees for 18 holes by $1 and boost the price of a season pass $25. That extra money and extra funds after operating costs of the course are covered will be used to pay for the building, Kleinkopf says. He expects the building to be paid for in five to eight years.

Having the building designed by a staff architect will save the city the customary 7-percent design fee, says City Manager Tom Courtney.

Pea was hired this year when the city needed a building department supervisor. But the City Council also hired him with an eye to planned building projects. Pea will be planning the remodeling of the old KMYT-TV studios into a senior citizen center and planning new shop facilities, Courtney says. The City Council and the Golf Advisory Board, which includes representatives of the Men's and Women's Golf Association, advised Pea on the clubhouse building's design.

The council decided in December to replace the clubhouse rather than attempting the extensive repairs which were needed.

Kleinkopf told the council then that the current clubhouse roof leaked in five or six places, that major plumbing repairs were needed and that the flooring in the kitchen area was rotting away. The building started with a barracks-style structure in the 1940s and has had at least four additions since, he said.

Anti-mall group will circulate boycott petition downtown

BID coordinator describes effort as 'an exercise in futility'

By ANNETTE CARY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Members of Citizens to Stop the Mall Committee will be downtown in Twin Falls today collecting signatures of local residents willing to boycott the planned Magic Valley Mall.

"At this point, we have received a favorable response from the business community and citizens of the valley who agree with us that the new mall is not wanted, not needed and should be stopped," says Kathy Sursley, spokesperson for the group.

No businesses have aligned themselves publicly with the group, Sursley says. However, the group has received donations from some of them, she says.

The group also has a growing number of volunteers who want to distribute petitions, she says. There is no tally, so far, on the number of people signing petitions, however.

The petition claims that the new mall will degrade the quality of life in the Magic Valley, further destroy the aesthetics of Twin Falls and damage long-time businesses in local communities. It asks residents to boycott the Magic Valley Mall, now under construction on North-Blue-Lakes Boulevard.

The petitions will be used to show support for businesses that do not want to move to the mall and copies will be given to stores that have already announced they are leaving downtown Twin Falls for the mall, she says.

Chris Valence, coordinator for the Downtown Business Improvement District, says that although the group will be distributing petitions and asking for $1 donations downtown, the group "has absolutely nothing to do with the BID or downtown."

"It's too late," she says. "They should have been working on this three years ago. It's an exercise in futility."

Sursley says group members have been asked if they really believe they can stop construction of the mall.

"Our answer is that if enough citizens of Magic Valley register their protest, the citizens themselves will stop it," Sursley says.

Valence says the BID is more interested in "just getting on with business." She points to the changes being made downtown with the City Council's help, including improving lighting, upgrading the Christmas display and removing parking meters.

5 of 7 striking employees return to former Merc jobs

But labor board will pursue negotiations for back pay

By BARBARA NEIWERT
Times-News correspondent

HAILEY — Five of seven striking employees of the Merc Department Store and Food Center went back on the payroll Friday after a two-month absence resulting from their protest against the food chain.

The strikers were offered their old jobs back at their former pay in letters sent Monday by the Merc.

In an investigation completed last week by the National Labor Relations Board in Seattle, the NLRB determined there was "reasonable cause" to believe the Merc had violated the rights of the employees, who formed an informal union and walked off their jobs Aug. 8 to protest low wages and working conditions.

The five strikers, Sylvia Broadway, Sally Brown, Rondah Ivce, Christi Nilsson and Brenda Hoskins, met with grocery manager Tony Wild Friday morning to arrange work schedules.

Several of the women have been without steady jobs or income since the strike.

Store manager Dick Stephens was on vacation, Brown said, and was not present when the employees returned.

"It went very well," Broadway said. "He (Wild) even bought our coffee, and he even gave me my regular day off. You couldn't have asked for anything nicer."

All five employees are scheduled to begin work next week.

The NLRB issued a complaint Tuesday against the Merc because there are still items to be negotiated to complete a settlement, said Terry Jensen of the NLRB. One of the items the NLRB wishes to negotiate is back pay for the strikers.

A representative for the Merc, Tom Hazard of the Idaho Employer's Council, said back pay will be granted, at least for a portion of the time the women were on strike.

Hazard said back pay is normally paid from the time employees go on strike to the time an offer to return to work is made by the employer. Since the Merc first made an offer on Aug. 13 to reemploy the first four of the strikers who returned, Hazard feels back pay is due only from Aug. 8 to Aug. 13.

However, the NLRB has said the offer to return to work was unacceptable because Stephens told employees they could fill out applications before returning to work, and the offer was therefore "conditional."

Wayne Larsen, representative of the United Food and Commercial Workers Union in Boise, said he is acting on behalf of the strikers and feels they are entitled to back pay for lost wages up to the time they return to work.

The NLRB is continuing to try to reach a settlement with the Merc and the IEC. A Nov. 13 hearing date has been scheduled with the complaint being heard by an administrative law judge from San Francisco.

Larsen also said the UFCWU will try to organize a union for the Hailey store after looking at the situation and determining if it is warranted.

Burley elevator reinstated on USDA approved status

By BOB FREUND
Times-News writer

WASHINGTON — Officials at the U.S. Department of Agriculture have restored Union Seed Co. of Burley to its list of approved warehouses for federal grain reserves.

The company is the eighth Idaho elevator to be reinstated conditionally after being accused of shipping and selling federal wheat without government permission.

Another seven elevators still are barred from accepting grain. Some are negotiating for reinstatement with the U.S. Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service.

Friday's action, announced by an aide to U.S. Rep. Richard Stallings, D-Idaho, allows farmers who want to store grain with Union Seed to obtain federal price support loans from their county ASCS offices.

Union Seed and the other elevators still must submit to an in-depth audit by the USDA before getting back on the list permanently.

Many of the elevators have said they had permission from the Idaho Department of Agriculture to move the grain closer to export markets. Some also claim that transfers of little, which the federal government considers a sale, were merely technical requirements involved in the deals and that they still had control of the grain involved. However, federal officials have characterized the actions as serious violations of their contracts to store federal grain.

While the elevators were suspended from the government's approved list, they still could do business with the public as state-approved warehouses.

To date, three Magic Valley elevators have recaptured conditionally the storage permission. They are: Union Seed; Kenyon Grain of Burley; and Reed Grain's elevator at Mountain Home.

Area elevators still off the approved list are: Mart Grain Co. at Rupert; D. R. Curtis Co. at Burley; Boan Growers Warehouse Association at Twin Falls and Hansen and Curry Grain Storage west of Twin Falls.

Unemployment taxes unequally supported

BURLEY (AP) — Employees in high-wage industries are getting off easy in comparison to other businesses when it comes to paying unemployment taxes in Idaho, the president of the Idaho Retailers Association says.

Tim Brennan told a recent meeting sponsored by the Burley Lions Club and the Burley Area Chamber of Commerce that the average wage in Idaho is well above the $15,000-a-year maximum on which employers are taxed to fund the state's unemployment insurance system.

The maximum weekly unemployment benefit in Idaho is $179, based on a minimum annual salary of $18,616, according to the state Department of Employment.

"This means to the Idaho retailer that retailers, farmers and other low-wage employers in the state are subsidizing the unemployment costs of the high-wage industries in the state, which are also the highest users of the unemployment system," Brennan said.

He said the Retailers Association wants the unemployment tax rate to be set high enough to impose the same level of effective tax on all Idaho employers, some of whom currently have as little as 56 percent of their payroll subject to the tax. "That way the rate of tax can be lowered for all Idaho employers," he said.

Brennan said local residents should urge their state legislators to vote to raise the unemployment tax base to a level nearer Idaho's average salary.

On another matter, he said the state should lift its sales-tax exemption for the Fort Hall Indian Reservation. Merchants on the reservation are in direct competition with other local retailers, and should be required to collect and pay the state sales tax, Brennan said.

Judge sentences 'mountain man' to 85 years

VIRGINIA CITY, Mont. (AP) — A man who shunned society and hoped to establish a tribe of "mountain people" was sentenced to 85 years in prison Friday for kidnaping a young woman and killing one of her would-be rescuers.

Don Nichols, who has refused to express remorse, was convicted by a Madison County District Court jury in July of murder, kidnaping and assault.

District Judge Frank Davis sentenced Nichols, 54, to 70 years for kidnaping Kari Swenson, 24, a member of the U.S. biathlon team, as she jogged in the mountains of southwestern Montana on July 15, 1984.

Davis ordered a 15-year sentence for the murder of Alan Goldstein, who was slain when he tried to rescue Swenson the following day, and 20 years for pointing a rifle at another would-be rescuer, Jim Schwalbe.

The sentences are to run concurrently, but

Davis added 10 years to be served consecutively because Nichols used a firearm, and he designated the man a dangerous offender.

That means Nichols will have to serve at least half of the 85-year term before becoming eligible for parole.

The judge said he took Nichols' age and life expectancy into consideration in determining the length of sentence.

Nichols and his 20-year-old son, Dan, were arrested in December in the foothills of the Madison Range after they had eluded an extensive search following the kidnaping.

The son was tried separately last spring and convicted of kidnaping Swenson and of misdemeanor assault for accidentally shooting her in the chest when surprised by Goldstein and Schwalbe. He was acquitted of deliberate homicide and is serving a 20-year sentence in the Montana Prison.

Goldstein's widow, Diane, and Jan Swenson, Swenson's mother, said they were satisfied with the sentences for the elder Nichols. Mrs. Swenson said the father continues to blame everybody but himself for what happened.

Nichols read a handwritten statement charging the news media and prosecutor Marc Racicot with exaggerating the importance of what had occurred.

"The truth is that we showed some truths that they can't stand to face," said Nichols. "Foremost among these, two men easily stayed away from a highly technological, much-bragged-about law enforcement agency with ease and were obviously not much concerned about it."

Racicot, in his recommendations for sentencing, had said Nichols showed no remorse for the injuries and anguish he had caused to the victims and their families.

"I'm expected to feel remorseful," Nichols said. "I feel rage at the sick, sanctimonious people who are shoving revenge down Karl's throat. They're destroying her."

"When Kari was with us she was brave, sweet, cheerful and optimistic," he said. "She was not pretending to be those things anymore than she was pretending to be unhappy now."

Swenson has not spoken about the incident, except during testimony at the trials, when she said she feared for her life during the ordeal.

Defense lawyer Don White presented testimony by a clinical psychologist, Dr. John A. Platt, who said he determined that Nichols was not a ruthless or aggressive person.

The elder Nichols testified at his son's trial and his own that he dreamed of leading a small tribe of mountain people in the wilderness, because he no longer wanted to live in civilization.

The kidnaping was part of a plan to get a woman to live with him and his son in the wilderness, the Nicholoses testified at their trials.

Swenson recovered from her wound and has resumed training for the biathlon, a sport that combines nordic skiing and target shooting.

Racicot said Nichols had planned the kidnaping of women since at least 1978 and had refined his plan before he and his son went to the Big Sky area in July to look for girls. Nichols showed his callousness by the "casual, indiscriminate, impersonal kidnaping of the first female who happened by," Racicot said.

"They left her to die in the dirt with insects feeding on her for hours," he said.

Former Order member calls others' testimony slanderous

By RORY MARSHALL
Associated Press Writer

SEATTLE — Testimony that members of "The Order" were assigned to assassination targets and plotted to eliminate Jews and blacks as part of a revolution is "preposterous," a former member of the white supremacist group testified Friday.

"It hurts me dearly to hear that kind of slander has taken place," Daniel R. Bauer, a prosecution witness, said as the federal racketeering trial of 10 purported Order members ended its third week.

The government accuses the defendants and 13 others of a 1 1/2-year crime spree to support the Order's goal of a revolution to rid the United States of Jews and racial minorities.

Even people have pleaded guilty, one remains at large and another is jailed in Missouri on a murder charge. In a 21-count indictment, Order members were accused of 67 individual crimes, including the machine-gun death of Denver radio host Alan Berg, a second homicide, counterfeiting and armored-car and bank robberies.

The picture-Bauer presented of the extremist group was different from testimony by two other former members, Denver lawyer Parmenter II and William Soderquist.

They had told the Order, when it formed in 1983, assigned its members assassination targets, including Henry Kissinger, David Rockefeller and other agents of what the group called "ZOG" — the Zionist Occupied Government.

They also said the group gave serious consideration to the beginning to robbery and counterfeiting to raise funds, and that members once plotted a bombing at Seattle's Olympic Hotel to kill the French Baron Elie de Rothschild.

Bauer, asked by defense attorney Tony Savage whether assassination targets were assigned at an early Order founding meeting, replied, "That's a total distortion of what took place."

Asked whether he and Soderquist had worked to put together a hit list of prominent Jews and others, he said, "That's totally preposterous. I never worked with Bill, and that never would have been assigned to me anyway."

Bauer said group members discussed finding legitimate work to earn money, and mentioned robbery and counterfeiting only peripherally.

He also admitted, however, that he was out of the room for about an hour at the crucial meeting where Parmenter and Soderquist said the assassination targets were assigned.

Bauer also testified that he was given $100,000 in the summer of 1984 by Gary Yarbrough, one of the defendants, but didn't realize he was to use the money for researching laser weapons.

Bauer said Yarbrough told him the money was to go to the Church of Jesus Christ Christian (Aryan Nations), an Idaho-based white supremacist group from which the Order supposedly split.

Bauer said the church's pastor, Richard Butler, refused the money, so Bauer called Robert Mathews, the Order's leader.

Mathews then said the money was for Bauer's "project," but did not say what that project was, Bauer testified. He said he realized later the money was supposed to finance the weapons research.

Bauer pleaded guilty Sept. 13 in Boise, Idaho, to receiving $100,000 from an armored car robbery near Ukiah, Calif. Earlier testimony indicated that Bauer was given $100,000 for Operation Reliance, a scheme to ask scientists to provide the Order with such things as laser weapons and thought-control devices.

Order members asked him about the high-tech weapons, implying Bauer should have looked into them.

"I mentioned that I thought laser beams, laser weapons, even at this point were antiquated," he said. "But I had heard radionics (radio waves) was of current interest to the Russians and the United States."

He said he told the members he still had the $100,000 and they could get it whenever they wanted.

Earlier, Bauer told how Order members booked a pimp, held up a pornographic book store and searched for robbery targets in Seattle before settling on counterfeiting as their first serious effort at financing a racist revolution against the U.S. government.

Health officials order Picabo residents to boil drinking water

PICABO — A boil water order has been put into effect for municipal water users in Picabo, Gary Burckett, of the Idaho Department of Health and Welfare, Division of Environment, said Friday.

Health officials are recommending Picabo residents boil city water for five minutes before using it for drinking, food preparation or making ice cubes.

Coliform bacteria appeared in routine samples taken on Sept. 18 and in a check sample taken Thursday, Burckett said. Coliform bacteria is not itself harmful to humans, but its presence indicates other harmful bacteria may be present, he said.

"Our water bacteria may be with a well the other water problems with in the past," Burckett said. "The city has shut off the well, but until we confirm the water is clear, this order should remain in effect until canceled."

He expects the order to continue at least until Thursday.

Picabo residents who have questions or need further information can call 734-9520.

21 indicted for cocaine trafficking

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — A federal grand jury has handed down a new 170-count indictment that charges 21 people in what authorities say is a major cocaine trafficking operation in Utah, Idaho and Wyoming.

The U.S. Attorney's Office said the indictment adds two defendants and 43 new counts to an earlier indictment issued in the case on June 27.

U.S. Attorney Brent Ward said the new indictment was returned Thursday in U.S. District Court here, but was ordered sealed until Friday to allow authorities time to arrest the two new defendants.

Ward said the investigation unveiled a 3-year-old drug ring that is believed responsible for distribution of more than 100 pounds of cocaine in the intermountain region.

Evidence for the case was gathered by the Organized Crime

Drug Enforcement Task Force, a multi-agency group comprising representatives from the U.S. Attorney's Office, the FBI, Internal Revenue Service, the federal Drug Enforcement Administration, and the Utah Bureau of Narcotics and Liquor Law Enforcement.

The new indictment named two additional defendants, Ralph E. Anderson, 31, of Logan, Utah, and Susan K. Croft, 31, also of Logan.

Disguised as auditor, robber sticks up bank

LOLO, Mont. (AP) — A man who identified himself as an auditor pulled what was believed to be a sawed-off shotgun from a briefcase and robbed the Bitterroot Valley Bank here on Friday of an undisclosed amount of money, authorities said.

Missoula County Sheriff's Detective Jerry Crego said the robbery occurred about 12:15 p.m. in the bank located in a shopping center.

He described the lone gunman as 5-foot-6 to 5-foot-7, about 140 pounds, with dark hair streaked with grey and a well-trimmed beard and mustache.

The man last was seen wearing a green jacket and matching pants, Crego said.

According to a bank clerk, the man approached here and told her he was there to audit the bank, Crego said.

The clerk said she went to a female cashier, and the man then opened the briefcase and pulled out a weapon.

The clerk said the man then motioned the cashier into a vault, took the money and ordered the cashier to follow him from the bank.

Once outside, the clerk said, the man sent the cashier back inside. Crego said it is believed the robber drove away either in a pickup truck or a stationwagon.

Probation granted in lewd conduct decision

TWIN FALLS — Timothy M. Bowman, 22, 2509 9th Ave. N., Buhl, was sentenced this past week to 10 years in the Idaho State Penitentiary for lewd conduct with a minor, but the sentence was suspended by 5th District Court Judge Daniel C. Hurlburt Jr. and Bowman was granted four-years probation.

The terms of Bowman's probation ordered by Hurlburt include payment for counseling of the victim, evaluation at the Port of Hope for substance abuse, full-time employment, reimbursement to the State of Idaho Child Support Division in the amount of $1,814, payment of supervision fees in the amount of $30 per month and payment for the Public Defender at $50 per hour.

Bowman was also ordered to have no contact with the victim and to refrain from consuming alcohol or frequenting establishments where alcohol is served. Bowman is to continue sex abuse counseling until he is released from the program.

HUNT — Norman Lee Parson, 35, of Hunt, died Thursday morning at his home after an extended illness.

Scholars celebrate Jeffersonian ideas of religious freedom

By MARJORIE HYER
The Washington Post

"No man shall be compelled to frequent or support any religious worship, place, or ministry whatsoever, nor shall be enforced, restrained, molested, or burthened in his body or goods . . . but that all men shall be free to profess and by argument to maintain their opinion in matters of religion."

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va. — It will have been 200 years in January since the General Assembly of Virginia adopted Thomas Jefferson's revolutionary notion, summed up in that key passage from his statute on religious freedom.

Accordingly, this week some 150 scholars gathered at the University of Virginia here to celebrate Jefferson's invention, which quickly found its way into the U.S. Constitution.

Their examined applications of the idea over the last two centuries and added to the increasing debate over how the religious freedom statute should be applied today.

Contemporary Americans may take for granted their right to participate in any religion or none, but it was not always so.

In Virginia, Anglicanism was the established church. Although, as one of the speakers here pointed out, "it was not exactly thriving," especially after the Revolutionary War when the priests who had supported the British had fled back to England, it had the power of the state on its side.

Only Anglican clergymen could legally perform marriages and baptisms, noted David Little of the University of Virginia.

"Dissenters, such as the Baptists and Presbyterians, whose ranks were rapidly expanding, were refused admission to municipal and business corporations, were prevented from holding civil and military offices, and were excluded from the universities," he said in a paper prepared for delivery this weekend.

And each of the other 13 colonies, except for Rhode Island and Pennsylvania, had some form of established religion.

After all, the European nations from which the early settlers came all had their established churches, in some instances controlling as much as 60 percent of the nation's land and wealth, said Harry J. Abraham of the University of Virginia.

So it is not surprising that it took Jefferson nearly a decade between the time he first proposed his religious freedom idea and its adoption by the Virginia legislators.

Two hundred years later, Martin E. Marly of the University of Chicago said, the Jeffersonian concept of religious freedom is "on the defensive."

In the largest public session of the three-day conference held on the campus that Jefferson designed, Marly called the religious freedom statute "the most decisive element in an epochal shift in the Western World's approach to relations between civil and religious spheres of life after 14 centuries."

Even though the Jeffersonian concept of religious freedom was incorporated in the First Amendment to the U.S. Constitution, it was only in the last four or five decades that "First Amendment provisions began to be applied to all the states," Marly said.

The first Supreme Court decision that started the modern practice of making decisions about religion on the basis of the First Amendment came in 1940, Marly noted.

In recent years, the high court docket has been increasingly laden with a range of church-state issues.

At the same time, the University of Chicago historian said, "Some organized forces in American Protestantism have tried to decelerate the First Amendment religion clauses to turn back to the states the powers to determine legal matters concerning religion."

More recently those "forces" — primarily right-wing evangelicals — have been joined by such high government officials as Attorney General Edwin Meese, who "very strenuously called into question" last summer the Supreme Court's reasoning on church-state separation cases.

The Rev. Robert Drinan took sharp issue with the Supreme Court's interpretation of the First Amendment in repeatedly rejecting aid to church schools, particularly the Title I program of aid to disadvantaged children, which the court ruled unconstitutional this year.

Catholics are currently in an "awkward" position in their quest for school aid because "now we have new friends that we didn't seek . . . including Jerry Falwell and, so help me, the Republican Party," said the one-time Democratic U.S. representative from Massachusetts and national head of Americans for Democratic Action.

The nation's 52 million Catholics are caught in a bind by contemporary interpretations of the First Amendment, which was drafted when the Catholic Church "hardly existed either in Virginia or in the other colonies."

Priest celibacy stands, bishop says

By ROBERT FURLLOW
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — The Roman Catholic ban on married priests should not be lifted and will not be under foreseeable conditions in this country, the president of the National Conference of Catholic Bishops said Wednesday.

Bishop James Malone of Youngstown, Ohio, left open the possibility of a change some day in an area of the world with an acute shortage of priests. But he added, "I expect no change in our lifetime and perhaps no change ever."

Malone, whose comments were released by the bishops' organization, was reacting to news coverage of his brief reference to the subject last week, especially a Time magazine account he said "leaves open the question of whether I personally believe that the church's discipline of celibacy for priests should be changed."

"That is not my view," he said. "I believe the present discipline is right to support it."

More broadly, Malone said, "Celibacy is a discipline, a law of the church, which in theory could be changed."

However, he added: "If a change should come about, I believe it would almost certainly be in countries where the Eucharist would otherwise not be available to the people because of a shortage of priests. That is not the case in the United States, where no shortage of priests foreseeable could have this result."

Pastor fears Utah may lag in AIDS battle

By MICHAEL WHITE
Associated Press Writer

SALT LAKE CITY — The founder of a church oriented to homosexuals said Friday the belief that AIDS is a curse from God could keep state officials from allocating money to fight the disease.

The Rev. Troy Perry, founder of the Universal Fellowship of Metropolitan Community Churches, said he hopes to meet with state and local officials here to request $1.5 million to educate the public about the danger of AIDS. He said no meetings have actually been scheduled yet.

Perry, a homosexual, said many Utahns apparently think homosexuality is a sin, and that may keep the public and their leaders from acting against AIDS.

"That's what we have to overcome in Utah. That's the honest-to-God way we've got to deal with it. We've got to talk to them on that level," he said. "This medieval attitude of somehow they deserve it" must be eliminated."

Mormon Church supports a national day of fasting

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Mormon Church official

Wednesday endorsed a congressional drive for a national day of fasting to raise money for famine-stricken nations of East Africa.

Glenn L. Pace of the church's Presiding Bishopric made the endorsement during testimony before the Senate Labor and Human Resources Committee. Pace was invited to testify by Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, a fellow Mormon and chairman of the committee.

"We as a church, and as individuals, feel a great responsibility not only for the welfare of our 6 million plus members worldwide, but for all of our brothers and sisters need," said Pace.

Pace and three Utah school girls were asked to testify to generate support for Hatch's National Fast Day.

Hatch has proposed that the nation fast on the Sunday before Thanksgiving and donate money they would have spent on food to African relief agencies. About 3 million members of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints in the United States and Canada raised $6.4 million for the relief effort through a special fast day Jan. 27. Mormons typically fast — abstaining from food and drink for 24 hours — on the first Sunday of each month and donate the cost of missed meals to the church's welfare fund. The Jan. 27 fast was held in addition to the regular fast day.

Pace said Mormon leaders supported Hatch's drive for a national day of fasting.

"If 3 million Mormons can raise $6.4 million in one day, it is thrilling to anticipate how much could be raised by our nation's 240 million citizens," Pace said.

Also testifying before the committee were Amy Murphy, Amy Buchi and Annette Milliron, who initiated a drive that produced $150,000 for aid to famine victims in Ethiopia.

The three girls organized a walkathon last year to raise the money. They also persuaded then-Gov. Scott Matheson to declare a week last November as "Care for Ethiopia Week."

BYU prof: Six states better for collider

IDAHO FALLS (AP) - Six states appear better suited as locations for the multimillion-dollar Super-Conducting Super Collider high-energy physics project than Idaho, according to a physicist at Brigham Young University.

Steven Jones said he conducted the state-by-state comparison based on criteria known to be desirable for locating of the giant atom smasher, which is still in the development stages.

"In my opinion, with respect to these criteria, the best sites appear to be Colorado and Utah," said Jones, a former employee of EG&G Idaho which operates the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory near Idaho Falls for the Department of Energy. "Then perhaps Texas, California, Illinois and finally North Carolina."

Jones said INEL, which has been mentioned as a possible site and has the backing of a special state task force trying to secure the project, ranked seventh.

The comparison was based on site flatness, climate, proximity to a major airport, proximity to universities, transportation availability, electric power, water and accessibility to researchers from around the world.

He said INEL has problems in several areas including security, flatness and the harshness of the climate. The beefed-up security measures imposed on the facility recently to protect its nuclear-related projects could work against it as a site for the $4 billion to $6 billion project, Jones said.

"You have to provide an environment in which high-energy physicists can communicate and travel freely," he explained. Physicists from around the world, including the Soviet Union, regularly tour other high-energy research facilities in the U.S., he said.

But INEL officials do not see security as a problem, pointing out that foreign nationals at the facility on a number of unclassified programs with no security penalty, and they object to such early ratings.

"I think until the site criteria are promulgated it's premature to be comparing the pros and cons of the other sites," said Robert Tiller, DOE-Idaho director of special programs.

DOE has not yet approved the project, which has the support of the physics community. A decision is not expected until next year on whether to go ahead with the project, and a siting decision is expected no earlier than 1987.

Church surprised by stir over letter

BOISE (AP) - The widow of, United States and Libya, she said. For two or three years Frank Church says she was surprised by the negative reaction to a recent fund-raising letter she wrote that called Sen. Steve Symms, R-Idaho, the "favorite senator" of Libyan ruler Moammar Khadafi.

Bethine Church said she regretted that some people took her letter as an attempt to "get even" with Symms, who defeated her husband in the 1980 election. But she said she wrote the letter because she disagrees with the way Symms represents Idaho, and that it accurately portrayed his relationship with Khadafi.

"I am sorry it was construed that I had personal feelings about Sen. Symms when I do not," Mrs. Church said. She said the defeat of her husband gave her the "four best years I had," before Church died of cancer in April 1984.

The letter was written to raise funds for Democratic Gov. John Evans, who is expected to oppose Symms next year. It was sent to people who had contributed to the late senator Church's past campaigns.

Mrs. Church said the public record would show her letter was accurate. Symms was one of the senators Khadafi "depended upon" before President Reagan cut off most ties between the United States and Libya, she said. For two or three years Frank Church says she was surprised by the negative reaction to a recent fund-raising letter she wrote that called Sen. Steve Symms, R-Idaho, the "favorite senator" of Libyan ruler Moammar Khadafi.

Mrs. Church said both her husband and Evans avoided trade trips to Libya in the late 1970s because they knew Libya was a "terrorist state."

She said she has a copy of a letter that Symms, then a 1st District congressman, wrote to his House colleagues in January 1979, inviting them to his office to meet Ahmed el-Shabati, head of the Foreign Liaison Office of the Libyan Congress. That letter shows the ties between Symms and Libya, Mrs. Church said.

In her letter, which was written June 17, Mrs. Church said Symms had cozied up to Libyan strongman Qaddafi (Khadafi) and is counting on hundreds of thousands of dollars in oil money.

She also said Symms was one of only a handful of senators who did not sponsor the Senate resolution asking Reagan to reassess his visit to the Nazi SS cemetery at Bitburg, West Germany.

At the time the letter hit the Idaho media, Phil Reberger, Symms' chief of staff, said Mrs. Church was "probably overreacting" to the results of the 1980 elections.

Migrant council tries to shed radical image

POCATELLO (AP) - The Idaho Migrant Council is trying to shed its image as a radical group helping only Hispanic farm workers for one of an organization training and finding jobs for all unskilled workers.

"We don't want to be perceived as radicals," Daniel Rodriguez, a job and training consultant for the council, said. "Basically, we're getting more professional in what we're doing."

While the seven-year-old council is trying to end its financial ties to the federal government, however, its commitment to the farm worker remains a high priority, he said.

"As long as we're out there working in the fields, we'll be there to assist them," Rodriguez said, specifically citing the drive for improved housing. But he also added, "We're going to try to upgrade our image. We want to get more visibility in the communities and let people know that we're here and that we're really enthusiastic."

If the council, now based in Caldwell, is able to become financially independent within three to five years as it now hopes, Rodriguez said, it will begin job training and placement programs while expanding its clientele beyond field workers to all low-income people, the disabled and teenagers.

Council officials, he said, recognize that the need for field labor will continue to decline as farm mechanization increases. The emphasis as the shift in direction takes place, Rodriguez said, will be on private industry to determine "what opportunities are there and to explain the benefits they could derive by putting these people to work."

At the same time, however, clients will need counseling and training to acquire the skills that will make them marketable. "We're shedding our welfare agency image," he said.

Convict's murder appeal refused

BOISE (AP) - A sentence requiring a man to serve 15 years in prison for two killings is not unreasonable, the Idaho Court of Appeals says.

But the court says the man might be eligible for credit for the eight months he spent in jail before sentencing.

The court on Friday upheld the prison sentences ordered for Joseph Gresham Plumley in a Boundary County case. The man pleaded guilty to one count of first-degree murder and a second of involuntary manslaughter.

Court records show Plumley shot his wife and father-in-law during a family argument.

Gas defendant reaches pact

POCATELLO (AP) - Another defendant in a state civil lawsuit alleging price-fixing by Pocatello gasoline dealers has reached a settlement with the state, Attorney General Jim Jones says.

Jones told a Pocatello news conference Friday that Triangle Oil Co.,

a Utah firm, has agreed to pay $35,000 to settle its portion of the lawsuit.

It's the fourth negotiated settlement in the state lawsuit, filed one year ago after federal criminal charges resulted in a number of convictions and fines for price-fixing.

Editor decries cropped photo use by Chadband

BOISE (AP) — The editor of the newspaper from which state Rep. J.F. "Chad" Chadband, R-Idaho Falls, lifted a picture of Congressman Richard Stallings and actress Jane Fonda says his paper should not have been used for a partisan political campaign.

"I don't think anyone dreams it (the paper) is going to be used in a campaign," said Sid Yudain, who edits Roll Call, a weekly newspaper that reports on federal government events in Washington, D.C. "It's not the purpose of the paper."

Yudain said the paper's work may be reproduced if it is given credit. But he said permission never is given for its use in political campaigns. "No one from Chadband's campaign asked permission to use the photo, he added.

Chadband said as far as he knew, no one in his campaign asked permission to use the photo, but he said he thought anything published could be reproduced.

Chadband said he was surprised at Yudain's stand on political campaigns. Noting where the paper is published, Chadband said "You can't get any more political than Washington, D.C., the political center of the United States."

The state lawmaker still considers himself an undecided candidate for the Republican nomination in Idaho's 2nd Congressional District, a seat now held by Stallings, a Democrat. Chadband cropped the Roll Call photograph to show Stallings standing behind Ms. Fonda and actress Sissy Spacek and sent it to 37,000 Idaho Republicans, along with a request for campaign funds.

Ms. Fonda and Ms. Spacek testified in May before members of the House Agriculture Committee on the economic plight of America's farmers. Stallings sits on that committee.

neighbors. I need their support too Idaho congressman. God Bless to defeat Jane Fonda's favorite Chad."

Former agriculture dean

U of I's Miller resigns

MOSCOW (AP) — Raymond B. Miller has resigned as dean of the University of Idaho's College of Agriculture, complaining that the people of Idaho don't understand the importance of higher education.

Miller said he has accepted a position as vice president of agriculture for the University of Maryland system and as provost for the division of agricultural and life sciences at the UI's main campus at College Park, Md. He will leave Moscow sometime before Christmas and assume his new duties Jan. 1.

"Unfortunately, I don't think the people of Idaho realize how good the university is, or how important a strong higher education system is to the state," Miller said.

Still, he said, UI's agriculture school is surprisingly good — given restrictions on its size and budget.

Despite his sometimes-rocky relationship with faculty and staff within the UI college, Miller said he will miss the school and the people who work there.

"I would rank the UI as college person-for-person as good as any college in the United States," he said. He praised the UI administration, his faculty and staff as well as agriculture groups throughout the state.

In a prepared release, UI President Richard Gibb likewise praised Miller.

"It is impressive that Maryland contacted Ray Miller; he did not seek out the position," Gibb said. "It says a great deal about the reputation he has established, not just within the state of Idaho, but nationally."

Miller first came to the UI in 1973 as director of the Idaho Agricultural Experiment Station and associate dean of the college. He was named dean in July 1980. His five years as dean have not been trouble-free.

During his tenure, the college took some of the deepest budget cuts in its history and the faculty gave him a "no confidence" vote in 1983.

Bonneville bond votes under doubt

IDAHO FALLS (AP) — A question has been raised over the validity of nearly 900 ballots cast in Thursday's $7.4 million school bond issue election in the Bonneville School District, but the district's attorney believes passage of the bond will stand.

"The electorate has spoken loud and clear, and I don't think there will be a problem," attorney Fred Hahn said. But the final decision on whether the bond issue was approved will rest with the district's Salt Lake City bond attorneys, he said.

In what Supt. Richard Goodworth called a heavy turnout, district patrons endorsed the bond by nearly 82.5 percent. It needed at least a two-thirds majority. The vote was 3,453 for the bond and 735 against it.

But shortly after the polls opened Thursday, School Board Chairman Lonnie Kelly said he noticed that at least some ballots failed to contain the complete wording for the bonding proposition as required by state law.

Goodworth said the incompletely worded ballots had been mistakenly printed earlier and then withdrawn after new ballots had been printed. But apparently some incomplete ballots were distributed for the official vote.

Driver's ed criticized

COEUR D'ALENE (AP) — Ten state legislators and seat-belt advocates from six Northwest states agree that states need better road safety measures.

One Idaho legislator, speaking Thursday at the 1985 Northwest Transportation Conference here, criticized schools' lack of participation in the safety drive.

"There's no emphasis on seat belts in driver's ed," said Rep. Lydia Justice Edwards, R-Donnelly. She said students going through driver education programs drive better than parent-taught drivers only during the course.

Ms. Edwards, the most outspoken of the panelists, suggested that states either stop wasting money on the program or inject enough money to make them effective.

Court temporarily frees man not jailed for 11 years

By LARRY LOPEZ
The Associated Press

PHOENIX, Ariz. — A man convicted on a marijuana charge 11 years ago but not ordered to report to prison until last month can go free while prosecutors try to reinstate his sentence, Arizona's chief justice ruled Friday.

Baron Sumter, 37, was sentenced to two-to-three years in prison for possession of marijuana for sale in August 1974, but remained free during his appeal and afterwards, when authorities failed to notify him to report to prison.

"That mistake was noticed earlier this year, and Sumter, a brickmason living in Prunedale, Calif., was notified through his lawyer to surrender. He reported to prison last month while appealing the action, arguing that authorities waited too long to notice the mistake."

Chief Justice William Holohan, while not ruling on the appeal itself, ruled that Sumter could be released as of Monday, pending a fuller hearing on the case.

Sumter's wife, Alice, burst into tears when called with the news.

"Oh my God," she sobbed. "Oh, I can't tell you how long I've been praying."

"I've been praying all morning, ever since I woke up," she said. "I'm so happy I'm jumping up and down. I'm slapping myself to make sure I'm not dreaming."

She said the hardest thing for her and her children was their isolation from Sumter since his imprisonment.

"I haven't been able to hold him one time since this whole thing started," Mrs. Sumter said. "He's going to get one of the biggest hugs he'll probably ever get in his life."

Deputy Yuma County Attorney Tom Hannis could not be reached for comment immediately after the decision, said aides.

Superior Court Judge B.L. Helm had ordered that Sumter be freed, agreeing that the state waited too long to discover its mistake, but the state asked the chief justice to block his order from going into effect while prosecutors tried to get it overturned.

Holohan conferred with lawyers in the case by telephone Friday and decided not to intercede for now, saying Sumter posed no threat to anyone.

"I feel under the circumstances of this case that we should not stay the order," Holohan said. "There is no danger to the community and apparently no problem otherwise."

He said the full-court would consider the government's arguments at a hearing Nov. 5, but did not see any reason for Sumter to stay in prison in the meantime "in view of the long history of this case and the request of the defendant."

Hannis had argued that it might be more traumatic for Sumter to be freed now if he had to go back to prison later, but defense attorney Paul Hunter disagreed and Holohan indicated he'd take Hunter's word for it.

Girl fine after half of brain removed

DENVER (AP) — Four-year-old Maranda Francisco has gone home from the hospital in fine spirits after surgeons removed nearly half her brain to stop almost constant seizures that sent her into uncontrollable spasms.

"Better," Maranda answered a reporter who asked how she is feeling. "No hospitals."

Maranda, the daughter of Lou and Terry Francisco, has been in and out of hospitals most of her life. Doctors diagnosed her this year as a victim of a rare brain disease called Rasmussen's encephalitis.

She underwent a 10-hour operation at Johns Hopkins Children's Center in Baltimore seven weeks ago and Tuesday was the first time she had been in her southwest Denver home since April.

Maranda's future seems bright, said her surgeon, Dr. Ben Carson.

"I see no reason why she shouldn't be able to have a normal life," Carson said. "There have been no seizures since the operation. It's a time of watchful waiting."

Maranda is becoming an independent, energetic child despite braces on her right leg and right arm which she may have to wear for the rest of her life, her mother said.

"One doctor told me, 'She's a regular, pain-in-the-butt 4-year-old again,'" Terry Francisco said.

Maranda had her first seizure at 18 months. At the time, doctors said she might epileptic but told her parents not to worry.

She was sent last spring to the University of California-Los Angeles Medical Center, where her disease was diagnosed.

The radical brain operation was discussed. At first, Maranda's father, argued against it after being told his child could be left paralyzed on one side and speechless.

Although the left side of Maranda's brain was the dominant half, her young brain was flexible enough to transfer functions such as speech and movement, doctors said.

Man called brain dead proves obituary wrong

CINCINNATI (AP) — A man whose obituary was published after doctors declared him "brain dead" revived and was returned to intensive care in critical condition, officials said.

Physicians at the University of Cincinnati Hospital declared John Birkhead, 41, of Cincinnati brain dead Wednesday morning, hospital spokesman David Bracey said Thursday.

Funeral arrangements had been made by that evening and a death notice was purchased for Birkhead, who had been hospitalized in a coma after being found hanging by his T-shirt at a jail. The funeral service was held at Hodapp Funeral Home in Cynthiana.

Meanwhile, breathing was detected during a final medical evaluation—and Birkhead was returned to intensive care at the hospital, officials said.

A misunderstanding between hospital officials and members of Birkhead's family resulted in the publication of John Birkhead's obituary Thursday morning in The Cincinnati Enquirer.

The family was told that before a legal declaration of death, a second medical evaluation had to be performed, Bracey said.

When the second examination was performed, there was no brain activity, but "minimal spontaneous respiration," or a "flicker" of life was detected, Bracey said.

At that point Birkhead's condition was "beyond a coma," Bracey said.

New Soviet premier seen as pivotal in economic campaign

MOSCOW (AP) — Nikolai I. Ryzhkov, named premier of the Soviet Union on Friday, is a young technocrat who is seen as a pivotal figure in Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev's campaign to revive the nation's sluggish economy.

Ryzhkov's meteoric rise in the Kremlin hierarchy under Gorbachev also is further evidence of the emergence of a younger generation of Soviet leaders.

Ryzhkov turns 56 today, and replaces 80-year-old Nikolai A. Tikhonov, who said he is retiring on his doctors' advice, according to the official Soviet news agency, Tass.

As premier, Ryzhkov will head the Council of Ministers and take charge of the massive apparatus responsible for day-to-day government operations.

NIKOLAI I. RYZHKOV
Named premier

NIKOLAI A. TIKHONOV
Retires on doctors' advice

He is the youngest member of the 13-man ruling Politburo after Gorbachev, who is 54. The announcement of Tikhonov's retirement did not say whether he was leaving the Politburo, but it is assumed he is.

Ryzhkov was named a full member of the Politburo on April 23, barely six weeks after Gorbachev became Communist Party leader following the death of 74-year-old Konstantin U. Chernenko.

The appointment of Ryzhkov to full Politburo membership was unusual because he had not been an alternate, or non-voting member, which traditionally precedes full membership.

Since his appointment, Ryzhkov has been considered one of Gorbachev's chief executives in the campaign to boost the sagging economy. He has appeared at the Soviet leader's side during virtually every major party meeting on that subject, and was with Gorbachev on a recent trip to western Siberia and Kazakhstan.

Ryzhkov first came to prominence in November 1982 when, under then-Soviet leader Yuri Andropov, he was named a Central Committee secretary in charge of economic administration.

A Communist Party member since 1956, his background is in heavy industry, which is important to Soviet defense manufacture. He is considered a technocrat and a backer of economic reforms initiated by Andropov and continued by Gorbachev.

Ryzhkov graduated from the Ural Polytechnical Institute in 1959 with an engineering degree. He worked in various capacities in mining, smelting and machine-building enterprises.

In 1975, he was named the Soviet Union's first deputy minister of heavy and transport machine building, and in 1979 he became a first deputy chairman of the State Planning Committee.

According to his official biography, Ryzhkov is Russian by nationality. His birthplace has not been disclosed.

His official writings in party and state newspapers have concentrated on economic management, plan fulfillment and industrial production.

A draft of the next five-year plan, scheduled for adoption at the 27th Communist Party Congress in February, has yet to be approved by the Politburo. An earlier draft was rejected as inadequate, and the plan to be adopted in February — along with a new party program — likely will bear Ryzhkov's stamp.

The sudden announcement of Tikhonov's retirement came as a surprise because it had been announced in April that he would give a report at the February congress. Tikhonov had been premier since 1975, following the retirement of Alexei Kosygin at age 76.

Silence called for in earthquake rescue

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Rescuers demanded silence Friday and listened for signs, however faint, that life still stirred under the rubble more than a week after the great earthquake.

Pedestrians stopped and drivers shutoff their engines.

Hopes of success persisted, but were flagging because so much time had passed. Rescue teams from Switzerland, France, West Germany and Canada began going home.

"Absolute silence has been requested since yesterday on at least four occasions," said Ernesto

Sahuayo, captain for security in the Juarez Avenue zone. "They are using ultra-sound equipment, which means that people should not even walk."

The latest rescues were of four babies and two adults Wednesday and Thursday from the ruins of the 12-story Juarez Hospital, now a heap of rubble 120 feet high.

Nearly 1,000 people were believed trapped in it by the two quakes that struck the city last Thursday and Friday, and 190 have been rescued.

Doctors at the scene said the last people taken out should have died in a week without water, food, or movement.

"There's much to learn from these survivors, who overcame death even in the condition they found themselves in," said Carlos Rojas Enriquez, who helped pull a baby and a nurse to safety Thursday.

Jase Barroso Chavez, director of the Mexican Red Cross, said: "It is impossible to know with precision the real number of deaths."

An emergency federal commission headed by Mayor Ramon Aguirre said late Thursday that more than 4,000 people were known dead in the city, 1,000 missing, 8,335 injured and 400,000 homeless.

The city police department put the number of deaths at 4,356. The federal Interior Ministry said "government records" showed 1,500 to 2,000 missing and 18,000 injured.

President Miguel de la Madrid called new meetings Friday with Mayor Aguirre and Cabinet ministers. He has said no buildings will be destroyed while there is a chance of finding survivors.

Bombs explode in 3 Durban department stores

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Bombs exploded Friday evening in three downtown Durban department stores shortly after closing time, and police defused an explosive device in a fourth store, authorities said.

Police headquarters in Pretoria said no one was injured in the explosions, which occurred over a 90-minute period starting at 5:20 p.m. in major stores in the Indian Ocean port city. The fourth bomb was found in a supermarket in the same area, a police spokesman said.

News reports had said two bombs were defused, but the police spokesman, who may not be identified under department rules, said only one unexploded bomb was found.

The outlawed African National Congress guerrilla movement carries out periodic sabotage attacks, but its targets usually are government facilities, not commercial premises.

Earlier, Nobel Peace laureate Bishop Desmond Tutu silently began a 24-hour hunger strike to protest the use of soldiers against rioters in black townships.

At the same time, the army launched a three-week project in Tembisa township to build sports fields and upgrade roads. A black council member called it a gesture proving the army's "healthy and sound" relationship with black communities.

Police headquarters in Pretoria said the number of activists arrested since a state of emergency was imposed nine weeks ago rose to 4,371, with 815 still in custody and the rest released. It was an increase of nearly 1,200 from the previous figures released two weeks ago.

Tutu, the Anglican bishop of Johannesburg, refused to speak to reporters as he sat with his head bowed inside the chapel at Khotsotso, a Johannesburg office building housing the South African Council of Churches and other groups opposed to apartheid.

Media skeptical about Greenpeace

PARIS (AP) — French newspapers, which reported secret service involvement in the Rainbow Warrior sinking for weeks before the government admitted it, remained skeptical Friday that the whole truth had been told.

"Still The Doubts," was the banner headline of the Independent left-daily, Liberation.

The centrist weekly L'Express said the secret service had duplicated of important documents on the bombing of the Greenpeace protest ship.

Oakley's Joel Elquist (24) races out ahead of Shoshone's Kelly Duffan as he sweeps for a big gain. Right, Shoshone quarterback Wade Cooper escapes the clutches of Oakley's J.J. Gee

Shoshone kicks itself into defeat by Oakley

By LARRY HOVEY
Times-News writer

OAKLEY — One thing's for certain. If Oakley repeats as Magie Valley Conference champion and this area's Class A-4 state playoff representative, Shoshone can't kick.

That's because third-ranked Shoshone twice had kicks blocked, muffed two others and threw in a bad center snap in another kicking situation — the last one leading to a touchdown three minutes from game's end and holding the top-ranked Hornets to a 20-14 victory Friday night.

"We definitely got beat on it didn't we?" said Shoshone Coach Larry Bond after watching his Indians, aspiring to move from the eight-man to the 11-man playoffs in one season, self-destruct over the last four minutes.

That started just after Oakley appeared to have blown a chance to stay away from overtime. The Hornets had driven 74 yards to a third and one at the Shoshone one — but fumbled the ball into the end zone where the Indians recovered at the 5:33 mark.

But three plays later — and for the second time during the game — Oakley blocked Shoshone's punting effort to get out of the hole. Will Bedke, although impaled on the shoulder pads of a Shoshone blocker, stuck his right hand out as far as he could and with those five fingers completely smothered the punt. The ball rebounded sideways and John Oldham fell on it at the Indian 18 yards line.

Joel Elquist, Oakley's slip-sliding tailback, then carried four straight times, finally piling the ball into the end zone from the one to end scoring. But Shoshone's hopes stayed alive when Bedke's extra-point kick was a pop and fell short of the cross bar.

Those fading Indians hopes were dashed in rapid order, however, when Jared Milton recovered a Shoshone fumble on the first play after the kickoff.

Tigers sophomore mauls Wolverines in 39-21 tromping

By BRAD BRELAND
Times-News writer

JEROME — Sophomore Joel Jund, making his first start as a varsity quarterback, tossed three touchdown passes as Jerome built up a 37-0 lead at halftime and the Tigers never looked back in belting Wood River 39-21 in South Central Idaho Conference play Friday.

"He's the starter for the year," said Jerome Coach Jon Jund.

The 5-9, 140-pound sophomore, ignited early drives in the first half when he hit 9 of 11 passes.

Jund finished the game completing 15-for-26 for 235 yards. Meanwhile, his counterpart, James Nelson of Wood River, only completed 11 of 43 passes.

"He's very, very intense," said Jund of his son. "He's a long way ahead of a lot of people."

After being stopped on a goal-line stand by the Wolverines early in the first quarter, Jerome bounced back after a Wood River punt when Jund found Torrey Sheets in the endzone. Tracy Black added the extra point.

After Wood River failed to move the ball, it set up to punt, but the Tigers were flagged for roughing the kicker and Wood River was alive.

Wolverine quarterback, James Nelson, fired a 30-yard scoring strike to Art Eccles and after the extra point conversion, the score was tied.

Black brought the ensuing kickoff back 65-yards and two plays later, Jund passed to Sheets, who took it to the 2-yard line.

On the next play, Black skirted the left side for the touchdown.

After an exchange of turnovers, Jerome got the ball with 8:01 left in the half.

After Jund connected with Welch for a 40-yard gain, the sophomore found Wade Robinson from 17-yards out for another touchdown.

Less than a minute later, the Wolverines coughed up the ball and

Vandals-Pack: a game both must win

By STEVE CRUMP
Times-News sports editor

MOSCOW — Four two of the last three years, the Big Sky Conference football game between the University of Idaho and the University of Nevada at Reno has decided the league championship. That won't be the case in today's game between the two schools, says Vandal Coach Dennis Erickson.

"Nobody who's ever played in Bozeman or Pocatello or Ogden, which we still have to do, could say that," says Erickson. "It's a long time until November. We're looking at this as a game we have to win, but it's just one game that we have to win."

UNR Coach Chris Ault does less to discourage speculation that the conference title is on the line today.

"There's no question that this is the most important game up to this point," he says. "This is the kind of game you play for. We're looking forward to it."

Kickoff time is 2 p.m. MDT in the Kibbie Dome. Boise TV station KTVB, Channel 7, will telecast the game live.

Erickson rates his opponents, who are 3-0 for the season and ranked second in the country in the latest NCAA Division I-AA football poll, as better than the team that beat the Vandals 43-24 here in 1983 and then went on to win the conference title.

"They're just as solid defensively and do some other things offensively that make them harder to stop," says Erickson.

Mariners retain Cottier
SEATTLE (AP) — Chuck Cottier, who took over when Del Crandall was fired last year, will return as manager of the Seattle Mariners in 1986, the American League baseball club announced on Friday.

Cottier, 49, is finishing his first full season as skipper of the Mariners. He was selected as Seattle's interim manager after Crandall was dismissed on Sept. 1, 1984.

Cottier previously spent three seasons as the Mariners' third-base coach.

VIRGINIA WATER, England (AP) — West Germany's Bernhard Langer overcame a lingering cold at sunny Wentworth Friday to reach the semifinals of the $200,000 Sunbury World Matchplay Golf Championship.

The U.S. Masters champion beat Japan's Tommy Nakajima 5 and 3 in his quarterfinal match and will play South African Denis Watson Saturday.

Mudd's name not mud
SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Jodie Mudd boled out twice from off the green — once for an eagle-3 — compiled the lowest two-stroke total of the year and established a 4-hole lead Friday in the second round of the $350,000 Texas Open Golf Tournament.

Mudd, 36, got yet a winner in four years of PGA Tour activity, chipped in for a birdie and boled out a 116-yard wedge shot for an eagle-2 on his way to a second round 66.

BSU-MSU clash will be tough on loser

By STEVE CRUMP
Times-News sports editor

BOISE — A month ago, tonight's Boise State-Montana State encounter in Bronco Stadium was being billed as a game that might determine the Big Sky Conference championship. As it turns out, a lot more may be at stake for the loser.

Both teams are heading into tonight's 7 p.m. clash, the Bronco best of offense through the first three contests and the defending NCAA Division I-AA champions Bobcats still looking for a defense.

Whichever team finds it last will face a very long October and November.

Boise State is already 0-1 in conference following a 37-10 loss to Nevada-Reno last week in which neither quarterback Hazen Coates nor tailback Jon Francis started. An 0-2 start in conference games would virtually eliminate the Broncos from any chance of making the I-AA playoffs, regardless of what they do in their remaining five conference games.

The pressure is also mounting on third-year BSU coach Lyle Selenech, who is going into tonight's game, one game over .500 for his tenure.

Selenech couldn't be reached for comment this week, and didn't return phone calls.

MSU Coach Dave Arnold, however, had plenty to say about tonight's game.

"This is a real big game for us because we've got a lot to prove," said Arnold, who guided the Bobcats from a 1-10 finish in 1983 to the conference and national championships last year. "Right now, as far as I'm concerned, we're 0-2 — I don't count the other game."

The other game was a record-setting 80-0 romp over Eastern Oregon, an NAIA school, two weeks ago.

"There are a lot of things we're going to have to do better to beat Boise State," said Arnold, whose "Cats will be making their conference debut tonight. "The biggest thing, I think, will be to play a complete game. We haven't done that yet."

Kelly Bradley has come close. Despite the fact that the Bobcats' offense has generated just 437 yards on the ground in three games and has turned the ball over 13 times, Montana State is ranked seventh in the country and third in the conference in total offense. Bradley, a junior who was an All-American last season, has already passed for 635 yards and 10 touchdowns.

"We feel pretty good about the offense," said Arnold. "We knew before the season started that would be the strength of the team. But we're still not consistent. Last week we didn't score for the first half against Eastern Washington and got into a hole 23-3 before we started to

Toronto whips Milwaukee, 5-1, leads by six

The Associated Press

MILWAUKEE — Dave Stieb* and the Toronto Blue Jays got what they needed Friday night.

Home runs by Jesse Barfield and Cecil Fielder hit consecutive home runs in the fourth inning, and Lloyd Moseby and Damaso Garcia added solo shots that powered the Blue Jays over the Milwaukee Brewers 5-1.

Stieb, 14-12, ended his personal three-game losing streak. The Blue Jays broke a two-game losing skid — their longest since the All-Star break — and increased their American League East lead to six games over the New York Yankees, who were rained out against Baltimore.

Toronto lowered its magic number for clinching its first-ever division title to five.

Stieb has "lost some tough games," said Toronto Manager Bob by Cox. "A win like this should get him going. We needed the win to get going too." Stieb was relieved in the fifth inning by Dennis Lamp, who got his second save.

American

"He's a quality pitcher," Milwaukee Manager George Bamberger said of Stieb. "They can do everything. They have super relief pitching."

"And (Lamp) isn't even the stopper," Bamberger said.

Stieb, who gave up a run in the seventh on an RBI groundout by Charlie Moore, allowed seven hits and left the game in the ninth with no outs and runners on first and second.

Garcia put Toronto ahead in the third with his eighth homer, and the Blue Jays made it 3-0 in fourth against Teddy Higuera, 14-8, when Barfield hit his 27th homer and Fielder followed with his fourth.

Moseby connected for a disputed home run in the sixth. Moseby's 18th homer hit the top of the left-field fence and bounced into the stands. Bamberger argued that the ball should have been a ground-rule double.

Fielder led off the seventh with a double that knocked out Higuera, and Steve Nicosia hit a run-scoring single off Pete Ladd for a 5-0 lead.

Minnesota 4

Kansas City 1

MINNEAPOLIS — Frank Viola pitched a three-hitter and Gary Gaetti and Kirby Puckett hit fifth-inning home runs Friday night as the Minnesota Twins routed Kansas City's chance to take the lead in the American League West with a 4-1 victory over the Royals.

The Royals and California, which lost 7-3 to Cleveland, remain tied for the AL West lead.

Viola, 17-11, matched his career low-hit game with his third three-hitter in the major leagues. He struck out five and walked one in winning his fourth straight game. The only hit Viola allowed in the first five innings was Frank White's 21st homer of the season in the second.

The Twins tied the game in their half of the second on Greg Gagne's RBI single off Bud Black, 9-15.

Black retired seven straight Twins entering the fifth, but Gaetti lined his 19th homer over the left-field fence on Black's third pitch of the inning. One out later, Steve Lombardizzo doubled and Puckett followed with his fourth homer, another line shot to left.

Cleveland 7

California 3

CLEVELAND — Andre Thornton's

two-run double highlighted a five-run fourth inning and Neal Heaton and Vern Riffe combined on a five-hitter Friday night to lead the Cleveland Indians over the California Angels 7-3.

California began the game tied for first place in the American League West with Kansas City, which played later in Minnesota. The Angels' loss began their season-ending, 10-game road trip.

Heaton, 9-17, yielded two runs on four hits through six innings. He left because of a stiff forearm and Riffe gave up only one hit, Bobby Grich's 12th homer in the ninth, for his third save.

The Angels were held hitless between Bob Boone's two-out single in the second and Grich's leadoff homer.

Loser Mike Witt, 13-9, set down the first nine Cleveland batters before the Indians scored five times in the fourth.

Brett Butler led off with a single, stole second and took third on Tony Bernazard's single. Julio Franco delivered an RBI single and Thornton put the Indians in front with his two-run double, giving him 62 RBI in his last 70 games.

Detroit 5

Boston 1

DETROIT — Alan Trammell hit a two-run homer and Walt Terrell gave up one run over 7 1/2 innings Friday night as the Detroit Tigers beat the Boston Red Sox 5-1.

Seattle 6

Texas 0

SEATTLE — Frank Wills and Ed VanDe Bree combined on a two-hitter Friday night as the Seattle Mariners defeated the Texas Rangers 6-0.

Mets could very likely rue third inning, 8-7 loss to Pirates

The Associated Press

PITTSBURGH — If the New York Mets don't win the National League East, they may be painfully looking back on Friday night's 8-7 loss to the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Joe Orsulak drove in two runs with an infield hit in a sixth-run third, to give the Pirates the win and drop the Mets 4 1/2 games behind the idle first-place St. Louis Cardinals.

"That was a tough one," said Mets Manager Davey Johnson. "We couldn't afford to lose it. We need a lot of help now."

"That one hurts," said Keith Hernandez, who had four hits.

The key play in the third was pitcher Randy Neiman's inability to handle Orsulak's slow roller down the first base line. Tony Pena scored from third and Sammy Khalifa scored from second.

National

"I tried to hit it as hard as I could and ended up barely touching it," Orsulak said. "I don't think he'd have gotten me anyway if he picked it up cleanly. It was like a perfect bump with great baserunning by Sammy (Khalifa)."

"I know that Orsulak has good speed and I didn't think I could field it with my glove, transfer the ball and still get him," Neiman said.

"I tried to pick it up with my bare hand and it hit off my little finger. I had to make a choice. I should've eaten it but that never crossed my mind."

The Mets got their two runners on in the ninth but Jose DeLeon, a 2-18 pitcher, retired Gary Carter, Darrell Strawberry and Tom Paolore for his second save this season.

"I thought we were going to win it right there," Johnson said.

The Pirates trailed 5-2 before sending 11 batters to the plate against three New York pitchers in an inning kept alive by third baseman Howard Johnson's error, which led to four unearned runs.

After singles by Orsulak and R.J. Reynolds, Sid Bream had an RBI hit against reliever Tom Gorman.

Johnson's error allowed another run to score and loser Wes Gardner, 0-2, issued a bases-loaded walk to Sammy Khalifa to make it 5-5.

Cincinnati 4

Houston 3

CINCINNATI — Dave Parker hit a three-run homer in the bottom of the eighth inning to lift the Cincinnati Reds over the Houston Astros 4-3 Friday night.

Parker's 30th homer equaled his career high established in 1978. He now has 119 RBIs, the National League lead and a career high.

With one out in the eighth inning and the Reds trailing 3-1, Eddie Milner singled off Houston starter Jeff Heathcock. One out later, Pete Rose singled off reliever Jeff Calhoun, 5-5. Parker then hit the first pitch into the right-field seats.

Rob Reynolds, 7-6, scattered seven hits in eight innings for the victory. John Franco pitched the ninth for his 10th save.

The Astros took a 1-0 lead in the first when Craig Reynolds singled, stole second and scored on Kevin Bass' single.

Houston added two runs in the second inning. Heathcock singled for his first major league hit and Bill Doran followed with his 14th homer of the season, tying a club record for Astros second basemen set by Joe Morgan.

The Reds scored an unearned run in the fourth when Max Venable singled and took second on second baseman Doran's throwing error, went to third on Rose's groundout and scored on Parker's grounder.

Chicago 9

Philadelphia 7

CHICAGO — Leon Durham hit a three-run homer, his 20th of the season, in the seventh inning, lifting the Chicago Cubs to a 9-7 victory over Philadelphia Friday, the Phillies' eighth loss in a row.

Durham's homer off loser Kent Tekulve, 4-10, came after Philadelphia Manager John Felske had vehemently protested that a fan interfered with right fielder Glenn Wilson on a foul fly by Durham.

With two out in the Cubs' seventh, Jody Davis got an infield single, his fourth hit of the game. Ron Cey, whose fifth-inning single drove in Davis, tying the score 6-6, walked and Dave Owen ran for Davis.

San Diego 10

Atlanta 1

ATLANTA — Eric Show scattered

eight hits and drove in four runs, three with his first homer of the year, to lead the San Diego Padres to a 10-1 victory over the Atlanta Braves Friday night.

Show, 12-10, became the second winningest pitcher in Padre history with his 53rd victory. He had been tied with Clay Kirby.

The Padres built an 8-0 margin in the first four innings, pinning the defeat on Braves starter Joe Johnson, 4-3, who left after giving up seven hits in 2 1/2 innings. He was charged with seven runs.

Jerome

It was recovered by Mike Holley at the Wood River 15-yard line.

On the next play, Black dashed in to the endzone for a 33-7 lead.

Black scampered 80 yards with the second-half kickoff, extending the lead to 32 points.

"That's all of the scoring that Jerome would have as Wood River closed out the second half with a pair of touchdowns.

With 2:34 in the third quarter, Brad Gelski recovered a fumble and Lowell Anderson ran it in from the two-yard line.

Wood River got the ball back on the Tigers' 25-yard line after a Jerome pass went to an ineligible receiver.

A few plays later, Nelson dashed in from the two yard line closing out the scoring.

Oakley

Hurled back by a penalty. Oakley punted to the Shoshone 11 and took the ball back there on a Mike Jenks interception. Oakley happily let the clock run out there.

That Shoshone miscues and fumbles would be the final determination of its fate wasn't discernible in the late third period when the Indians used an inter-brother fumbling act to pull into a tie. It started with junior Curtis Sandy bucking the line on a fourth and three play. He advanced the stakes but then coughed the ball up to his left-returned freshman brother Clint Sandy who was looking for someone to block. Clint simply gathered the ball in and raced 33 yards to set the stage for Bart Harris' extra point to tie it.

With all the extras, the basic fact of the game was rather obliterated. That basic fact says the team that controls the line of scrimmage will win — and Oakley did that. Although its offensive consistency was stymied by its own miscues, Shoshone only once strung three first downs together. Oakley had the ball for 71 offensive plays against 33 for Shoshone — and 25-5 in the final eight minutes.

Still, the Indians broke out on top when, on its second possession, Wade

Cooper and Tim Rowlan hooked up on a 76-yard scoring bomb with Harris' extra point making it 7-0 with less than four minutes gone. By then Shoshone already had dodged a penalty for having its first punt partially blocked.

Oakley rebounded immediately as Elquist hit for four yards and then 46 to give the Hornets a first down at the Shoshone nine. After a penalty, Elquist carried four straight times, getting the touchdown on a fourth and three. Bedke's kick tied it.

Shoshone missed a good chance late in the quarter after Alan Sizemore pounced on an Oakley fumble 30 yards from paydirt. Shoshone's turnover woes began to mount in the second period. Its first possession ended in an interception and the second died a-borning on a muffed punt. The Indian defense fought off those two problems but when a bad snap from center to the punter was covered by Andy Rodriguez, Oakley wouldn't be denied.

The Hornets five plays to cover the 14 yards, Steve Manning slamming for the final four with 2:01 left in the half.

The third quarter was spent in punt trading until Shoshone put together its most consistent effort. From its own 20, Shoshone picked up two first downs and 31 yards in three plays and then, on fourth and two at the Oakley 40, the Sandy brothers performed their juggling act.

It was the last happy moment the Indians were to have, however. Oakley Coach Don Thompkins was soothed that thrilled his Hornets didn't capitalize better on Shoshone's late largesse.

"We just didn't execute," he said of the numerous missed scoring chances. "Finally we just went to punting it out."

He said the blocked punts were something "we felt we could do by the way they line up. We thought we say a weakness but basically our linemen just took off and got it."

Tompkins declined to celebrate an undefeated burst through the upper division of the conference, however. "You can always stumble," he said. "If our players get caught up in homecoming next week, Hagerman could embarrass us."

The win improved Oakley's season record to 5-0 and its conference mark to 4-0. Shoshone is 4-1 and 3-1.

Those other things are being accomplished on the arm of quarterback Eric Beavers, who has averaged 35 passes a game so far this season. That statistic would have been unthinkable two years ago in a program that lived and died on the legs of a big fullback and a menacing offensive line.

"Two years ago we got to the semifinals of the I-AA post-season playoffs), got behind and couldn't catch up because we didn't have the passing game to do it," says Ault. "Last year we threw the ball more and this year, ideally, we'd like to throw it 35 or 40 times a game."

Beavers, a 5-foot-10, 175-pound junior, currently leads the conference in passing efficiency and ranks fifth in the nation in that department. He has completed 61 percent of his passes this year for 722 yards and seven touchdowns.

"Beavers is springing out, hitting trips, throwing to three different receivers," says Erickson. "And they're good receivers."

Erickson says the biggest challenge for his defense will be controlling the line of scrimmage, dominated by 6-4, 240-pound senior guard Greg Itie.

"Their offensive line just dominated Boise last week, and Boise has a good defensive line," says the Vandal coach. "We're going to have to control the line of scrimmage to free up our linebackers to do some things. We've got to put pressure on Beavers because if you give him time to throw, he'll beat you."

Idaho, which opened the season with big questions on defense, has performed well since the Vandals' 43-26 loss to Oregon State in the season opener, Idaho — which is 2-1 for the season and ranked 10th in

U.S. trade deficit hits year's low in August

By MARTIN CRUTSINGER
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The U.S. trade deficit shrank in August to its lowest level for the year.

Some economists hailed the reported decline Friday as evidence that the country has finally seen the worst of its trade woes.

However, other analysts were not as optimistic, contending that much of the improvement in the past two months has come from a temporary drop in oil demand.

The Commerce Department report showed that the difference between what the United States imported and what it exported fell to a $9.9 billion imbalance in August, the lowest monthly total since last December.

The August deficit was 5.8 percent below the July figure and a sharp 26 percent lower than the $13.4 billion June imbalance, the largest this year.

"The decline in the dollar is beginning to have an impact. This turnaround is for real," said Michael Evans, head of a Washington economic forecasting firm.

Evans said that the declines in the dollar since last March were now being felt in the trade statistics with further improvement on the way. The dollar has fallen more this week following an announcement Sunday that the United States had joined with the governments of Britain, France, West Germany and Japan to coordinate efforts to push the dollar lower.

Other analysts, however, said the July and August trade improvements came not from declines in the dollar earlier this year but from a decision by U.S. oil companies to cut back on oil purchases in hopes that the price will fall further.

"By the time we get into the winter we could see an upsurge in imports," said Nariman Behravesh, an economist at Wharton Economics, another private forecasting firm. "I don't think we have turned the corner yet on trade."

Jack Albertine, president of the American Business Conference, a coalition of high-growth companies, said even with the slight improvement the country's trading problems remained "n.a.r. crisis proportions. This is welcome news but we have a long way to go before we have the problem solved."

Commerce Secretary Malcolm Baldrige was also cautious in proclaiming the country has seen the worst of its trade problems. Testifying before the congressional Joint Economic Committee, Baldrige predicted the trade deficit will likely reach a record $145 billion to $150 billion this year, far above last year's $123.3 billion deficit.

However, Baldrige was optimistic that new initiatives announced by President Reagan this week could produce a slightly lower deficit of around $135 billion next year.

In addition to joining with other countries to sell dollars on world currency markets to drive the price down, the administration announced a package of proposals to attack unfair trading practices.

But White House spokesman Larry Speakes denied a published report Friday that the administration is considering an even-tougher action — imposing a fee of up to 1 percent on all imports. The Washington Post reported that the administration, if it adopted the import fee, would use the $250 million raised to provide training for workers who lose their jobs because of foreign competition.

Speakes said the president's opposition to any type of import fee had not changed. He said that the import charge was one of several options that had been brought up at an Economic Policy Council meeting among Cabinet members on Thursday. But he said there had been "no move on the part of the Economic Policy Council to push that (import fee) forward."

Much of the improvement in the August trade figures stemmed from a 4.6 percent drop in petroleum imports to a level of $3.35 billion. Foreign oil shipments are now 23 percent below where they were in June.

The August report showed that imports dropped 2.1 percent on an August figure of $27.3 billion but were still 7.6 percent above their average level in the first six months of the year.

Exports rose a tiny 0.1 percent last month to $17.4 billion but were still 3 percent below the monthly average from January through July.

U.S. farmers and manufacturers have been especially hurt by the high value of the dollar, which has made their goods more expensive on overseas markets.

Oil imports averaged 4.6 million barrels a day, down from 4.8 million barrels in July, and the price dropping to $26.96 a barrel, down from $27.16 in July. This was the lowest price since December 1979 and reflected the troubles oil exporting countries have been having selling petroleum.

Imports of passenger cars totaled $2.87 billion in August, a rise of 0.9 percent from July but still down 16 percent from June.

August exports included sales of $2.29 billion in agricultural products, up 8.5 percent from July, with wheat sales totaling $300 million, corn sales also at $300 million and soybean sales at $200 million last month.

As usual, the biggest deficit was run up with Japan, a $3.7 billion imbalance, down slightly from a $4 billion deficit recorded in July.

Ego ruled career

New De Lorean speaks humbly

By LINDA DEUTSCH
The Associated Press

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. — He speaks as if emerging from a long illness, a disease called egomania which devoured his fortune, broke up his marriage and dragged his name through the courts in a celebrated criminal trial.

John De Lorean, still mourning the loss of his car company and devastated by his divorce from model Cristina Ferrare, says he's recovering slowly. And he's written a book to tell his side of the story.

"I believe I deserve what happened to me," De Lorean said, a year after his acquittal on cocaine trafficking charges and two years after the collapse of his auto company.

"The deadliest sin is pride," he said. "I was an arrogant egomaniac. I needed this, as difficult as it was, to get my perspective back. My relationship with the Lord more than compensates for anything that happened to me."

De Lorean is the new De Lorean style — relaxed, self-deprecating and at times even humorous.

Speaking of his wife's remarriage to ABC-TV executive Tony Danza, De Lorean quipped: "She said he reminded her of me. I guess we do have a lot in common. Pontiac in third place and he in ABC in third place."

Volting around Beverly Hills in his decidedly unglamorous truck, the striking-looking silver-haired Lorean, in blue jeans and a denim shirt, was deeply tanned and 30 pounds slimmer than at his peak.

He spoke of the future while he made arrangements for a trip to San Diego for a church benefit for the homeless. Also on his agenda was a tour to promote his just published autobiography, "De Lorean," and negotiations for a movie deal. Then there's a plan to go back to New York and to sportsman's club.

De Lorean said at so, the "survivor" clearly is back in the game.

He predicted that the tangled litigation in Detroit over his bankrupt car company will soon be over and he'll be in business again. He said he plans to sue the

John De Lorean says he has a better perspective now

U.S. and British governments for violating his civil rights, claiming the two governments conspired to have him caught in a "sting" operation involving cocaine.

The "CBS Evening News," quoting unidentified Justice Department sources, reported on the night of Sept. 19 that De Lorean was expected to be indicted in Detroit on the following day on charges of tax violations, and defrauding investors in his car company.

"I'm not at liberty to comment on anything in the De Lorean case at this point," said Robert Mott, special agent for the FBI in Detroit. "Those have been orders all along in the De Lorean case until an official announcement is made."

Messages left with De Lorean, his attorney and his publisher Thursday night were not returned. CBS said De Lorean had no immediate comment.

But the problems which impede De Lorean most are personal. He hasn't recovered from the breakup of his "perfect marriage" to Ms. Ferrare, a fashion model who became a TV talk show host after De Lorean's acquittal.

"If this were a fairy tale," he says in his book, "Cristina and I would have taken our children and ridden off into the sunset to live happily ever after."

Instead, he said, his wife of 12 years told him a month after his trial that she was leaving him to marry Thomopoulos, with whom she had been having an affair. De Lorean said he had been under too much stress during his trial to notice signals that his wife was straying.

"Of all the things that happened to me, that was the most shattering," De Lorean said. "I lost 30 pounds in 90 days. It was an absolutely shattering experience."

Only his religious experience as a born-again Christian has saved him from despondency during the divorce, De Lorean said, declaring, "I wouldn't be alive today if I weren't for the Lord."

He said the two De Lorean children, Zachary, 14, and Kathryn, 7, have suffered emotionally from the divorce, and Zachary at one point ran away from home after a dispute with his mother.

"We found him wandering Sunset Boulevard," De Lorean recalled. Zachary, who summered with his father, moved in with Mrs. Thomopoulos who also has temporary custody of Kathryn. Both children of De Lorean on vacation.

Record merger nears

By COTTEN TIMBERLAKE
The Associated Press

NEW YORK — General Foods Corp. said Friday it has agreed to be purchased by Philip Morris Cos. Inc. for about $5.3 billion, in what would be the largest non-oil acquisition in corporate history.

The merger also would create the nation's largest consumer products company.

Under the agreement, Philip Morris is to acquire all of General Foods' 46.9 million shares outstanding at $120 a share in cash.

The merger is subject to the approval of both boards of directors, the companies said. Board meetings are scheduled for Monday.

Hamish Maxwell, chairman and chief executive officer of Philip Morris, and James L. Ferguson, who holds the same titles at General Foods, said they would strongly recommend that their directors approve the merger, and they indicated that approval was likely.

General Foods, which makes such products as Jell-O desserts, Kool-Aid powdered drinks, Post cereals, Birds Eye frozen vegetables and Maxwell House coffee, would operate as a separate company within the Philip Morris structure and maintain its headquarters in Rye Brook, N.Y., the companies said.

Principally a tobacco company, Philip Morris' net income declined 1.7 percent last year to $585.8 million on worldwide sales of $13.8 billion.

Its cigarette brands include Marlboro — the No. 1 selling brand in the United States and the world — Benson & Hedges 100s, Merit, Parliament and Virginia Slims. It also owns Seven-Up Co., Miller Brewing Co. and Mission Viejo Realty Group Inc., a community development company in Southern California and Colorado. It has 68,000 employees.

General Foods' earnings have not been spectacular, either. Net income edged up 2.5 percent to $24.9 million on sales of $9.02 billion in its fiscal year ended March 30.

There has been a spate of acquisitions in the food business in the 1980s. Recently, R.J. Reynolds Industries Inc. acquired Nabisco Brands Inc. in a friendly deal valued at $4.9 billion, and Nestle SA, the Swiss company, acquired Carnation Co. for $2.9 billion.

The previous largest non-oil takeover was the $5.2 billion merger between Southern Pacific and Santa Fe, creating Santa Fe Southern Pacific Corp.

General Foods' management would continue to operate its businesses and Philip Morris currently does not plan to divest any of General Foods' businesses, Maxwell said.

General Foods, which was rumored to be a takeover target for months, had announced Tuesday that it had received an offer to begin negotiations over the possible purchase of the company and said its board would hold a special meeting sometime this week to weigh the proposal. It declined to identify the suitor, but speculation on Wall Street centered on Philip Morris.

Friday morning, General Foods and Philip Morris separately asked the New York Stock Exchange to delay trading in their stocks pending announcements.

The trading halt proved irrelevant, however, because the New York Stock Exchange decided not to operate because of Hurricane Gloria.

But General Foods' stock rose $6.25 a share to $117 as 28,200 shares traded hands on the Midwest Exchange before that exchange also was closed.

After General Foods released its first announcement Tuesday, its stock soared $16.62 1/2 a share to close at $101.50. It rose $5.25 more on Wednesday and a further $3.50 Thursday to $110.25 in composite New York Stock Exchange trading.

Philip Morris closed down $1 a share at $75.87 on Thursday.

Power deal to trim earnings

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Utah Power & Light stockholders stand to lose $26 million on a contract to sell power to Sierra Pacific Power Co., a UP&L spokesman said.

The contract to sell wholesale power to the Reno-based company will reduce UP&L earnings per share by 8 cents in 1985 and 17 cents in 1986, said spokesman John Serfustini.

The loss stems from a mistake in a former contract with Sierra Pacific, one that could have ended up with UP&L providing power to Sierra Pacific for free.

That contract was before the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission for approval when Utah Power discovered Sierra Pacific was intercepting it in a way that UP&L never considered.

Gloria closes stock markets

NEW YORK (AP) — Hurricane Gloria forced Wall Street to shut down Friday, and stocks did not trade on the New York and American stock exchanges.

Some regional exchanges opened briefly, but then halted trading after the NYSE and Amex failed to start as they originally had planned at 8 a.m. EDT. Other exchanges followed the NYSE's lead and never opened.

The Big Board and Amex said they were equipped to operate their trading floors and had intended to open. But as Gloria drew nearer they delayed the start of trading and later announced they would be closed for the day.

The decision was made "at the request of many member firms and out of concern over the safety of all our employees," said NYSE spokesman Richard Torrenzano.

Gloria generally spared New York City, however, and the skies were sunny by 4 p.m. — the hour when the trading floor normally ends.

It was not the first time trading had been interrupted by severe weather or equipment problems.

The market's unexpected holiday Friday came as Wall Street prepared to lengthen its work day.

Under a new schedule beginning Monday, the New York, American, Pacific, Cincinnati, Philadelphia, Midwest and over-the-counter markets will begin trading at 7:30 a.m. Mountain time, rather than the previous 8 a.m. MDT start.

Closing times will remain unchanged — 2 p.m. Mountain time for all exchanges except the over-the-counter market and Pacific Stock Exchange, which close at 2:30 p.m. Mountain time.

General Foods was among the NYSE-listed issues that were briefly traded on regional exchanges, and it jumped an additional 6 1/2 to 117.

Other such issues that traded included Beatrice, down 3/4 to 35 1/2; Richardson-Vicks, up 1/4 to 53 1/2; and American Express, up 1/4 to 42.

Younger workers doubt Social Security's future benefits

A startling two-thirds of the younger workers in the United States doubt that they will be able to collect Social Security benefits when they reach retirement age in the 21st century.

Oh, yes, they consider Social Security a successful program for older people. In a poll conducted for the American Association of Retired Persons as the program recently approached its 50th anniversary, an overwhelming 82 percent saluted it as a success, agreed it had cherished place in their hearts and opposed any cuts in benefits.

But an underplayed and unnoticed finding of that poll was this disclosure about the younger workers among us. It's an unfounded and disturbing assumption — a legacy of the propaganda generated in the early 1980s alleging the impending "bankruptcy" of the program.

At that time, the recession of the early 1980s plus the combination of continuing double-digit inflation and high unemployment caused the Social Security Trust Funds to drop by several billion dollars. It was a leader in fighting that attempt to kill Social Security — and believe me, that was just what it was. It was a bitter, no-holds-barred fight, which our side won then. But that's no guarantee it can't and won't erupt again. There is no substitute for alertness to attack.

Social Security's stability is now ensured, well into the 21st century as a result of actions taken by Congress in 1983. Based on the work of a National Commission on Social Security Reform, Congress enacted a package of gradual tax increases; spread out benefit cuts; postponed for six months all cost-of-living increases; and revived the public's faith.

President Reagan gave the legislation his unbounded endorsement, noting that it "assures the elderly that Americans will always keep the promises made in troubled times a half-century ago." To younger people, he said: "It assures those who are still working that they, too, have our pledge that they will get their fair share of benefits when they retire."

But word of the changes has not spread widely enough to root out the seeds of doubt planted earlier, and the ideologues are still chanting of demographic doom. They also have come up with suggestions for supplementing Social Security with schemes based on private investments, schemes that are based on questionable estimates of costs and payment — not to mention the obvious questions of how the money collected is to be invested and who is to make that decision.

And what would become of the system of benefits now provided for the families of workers? Social Security is far more than a pension program. About 50 percent of Social Security taxes go for old-age benefits; the rest pays for survivors and disability benefits and for Medicare's hospital insurance program.

Also, "Most young people do not realize what their financial obligations would be if there were no Social Security," points out Wilbur J. Cohen, former secretary of Health, Education and Welfare (who helped develop the program under President Franklin Roosevelt).

Do you as a person in your 20s or early 30s realize what your burden would be if you had to contribute to the support of an aging parent or relative without any help from Social Security? The strain is much more than financial; it touches emotional, social, all other factors, too.

Social Security was never intended to provide income security in old age. It was intended to be a base on which you can build family protection against the economic hazards of old age, disability and death.

There are now 126 million Social Security tax contributors and $6 billion on the Social Security benefit rolls. There are growing numbers of private pension plans spurred by the fact that Social Security gave employers a base on which to build pensions.

Let's join and salute with confidence the year 2036 — SS's 100th anniversary — when there will be 79.8 million beneficiaries and cash benefits totaling $114 billion.

THE ACES BOBBY WOLFF

"Unfamiliarity lends weight to misfortune, and there was never a man whose grief was not heightened by surprise."

A reader begs for arbitration regarding the bidding of today's slam. If you've ever been left to play in a cue-bid, you can understand South's plea.

Six diamonds by North made, but for a poor duplicate score. Most declarers were in six or seven hearts, taking all 13 tricks.

At six diamonds, North played trumps as soon as possible to force out the ace. He then ruffed his way back to his hand to draw the remaining trumps. He lost only to the trump ace.

Our reader maintains that his bidding clearly identified hearts as the trump suit. After North's five-diamond response to Blackwood to show one ace, South cue-bid his diamond void in the hopes that North would bid seven hearts with the spade ace and would bid only six hearts with the diamond ace.

North maintained that South, as the "captain," was the one to place the contract after the Blackwood response. Whose side are we on?

There is some technical merit to South's argument and perhaps a few expert pairs would solve the problem in this manner. (Some might cue-bid five diamonds instead of using Blackwood.) South was on solid ground in that hearts were agreed upon and that North shouldn't have passed to six diamonds. Nevertheless, it would take a very trusting North to make a seven-heart bid based only on his possession of the spade ace.

ANSWER: Two hearts. Do not bid one spade. With strength enough for only one constructive bid, raise the known five-card major.
