'Nesting' outstrips birth rate

By RANDOLPHE SCHMID

WASHINGTON — Offering good news for homebuilders and merchants, the Census Bureau reported Sunday that Americans are setting up housekeeping at a sharply higher rate than the nation's overall population growth.

While the population grew 4.2 percent between 1980 and 1984, the number of households jumped 7 percent, the new Census Bureau study said.

Changes in the nation's age structure were cited by the report as leading to this shift in living arrangements.

The so-called Baby Bust, occurring as the post-World War II Baby Boom generation postponed families to pursue education and careers, has resulted in fewer youngsters in America, and a population tending to age overall.

A larger percentage of the population over age 18 results in more and more young folks leaving their parents' homes to set up housekeeping on their own. This trend increases demand for apartments and later houses, plus furniture, cooking utensils and the many sundry goods needed to run a home.

House headed for farm showdown

By JIM DRINKARD

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The House has scheduled showdown votes on the nation's farm policy this week while the Senate faces money matters, including the task of breaking the $2 trillion barrier on the national debt.

For the second week, the shape of future agriculture programs dominates House action, and a vote is expected Tuesday on a bitterly contested provision in the 1985 farm bill that would give grain farmers the right to decide between two options for how their crops are subsidized.

That section of the bill, written by Rep. Berkeley Bedell, D-Iowa, would put wheat and feed grain price-support systems to a national vote. Producers could choose between the declining support prices and frozen income supports in the bill, or an alternative featuring strict marketing controls and sharply higher support prices.

The Reagan administration, which suffered surprisingly lopsided defeats on sugar and dairy price-support portions of the bill last week, was taking aim at the Bedell referendum.

"It sounds harmless," said Agriculture Secretary John Block. "Just letting the farmers decide what they want to do. But I think the program, if adopted, would be devastating to American agriculture."

Block contends the alternate plan's high price supports would send U.S. grain prices shooting so high that no foreign customer would be interested in buying them. Grain farmers are now heavily dependent on exports to soak up their surplus production.

"The kinds of problems a bill like this would create are almost endless," Block said.

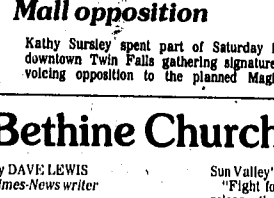

Bedell contends his legislation would bolster farm income at a time when farmers — particularly those in the grain belt — are suffering from serious economic problems. And he argues that export subsidies built into the bill would offset the high support levels and maintain overseas sales.

Other confrontations expected when farm bill work resumes on Tuesday include an amendment to scrap the national peanut quota system and one to rescind the income support freeze written into the bill by the House Agriculture Committee.

Senators, meanwhile, face the prospect that the government will be bumping up against its $1.8 trillion debt ceiling by about Oct. 7. Congress has to authorize an increase in the ceiling, or the government would theoretically run out of money on that date.

A proposal to raise the limit to more than $2 trillion — an increase of $24 billion — will be up for debate. Periodic increases in the debt limit always prompt a series of complaints and floor speeches from senators deriding deficit spending, and the bills, because they are "must" legislation, also attract dozens of senators' pet proposals as riders.

The Senate also must act on a slew of appropriations bills providing money for various government departments in the fiscal year which begins Oct. 1.

Mall opposition

Kathy Sursley spent part of Saturday in downtown Twin Falls gathering signatures voicing opposition to the planned Magic Valley Mall. She is one member of the Citizens to Stop the Mall Committee, which believes the new mall will damage the economic health of downtown and degrade Twin Falls aesthetically. Bethine Church urges conservationists to pick their battles

By DAVE LEWIS

Times-News writer

SUN VALLEY — Bethine Church, widow of former Sen. Frank Church, told Idaho conservationists Saturday to stand fast in their fight to protect quality areas as wilderness, but not to bother about lesser areas.

"Don't get involved in numbers game but weigh each area separately," Church said in the keynote speech at the annual convention of the Idaho Conservation League at Sun Valley's Elkhorn Resort.

"Fight for the (special areas) and release that which isn't," she told the group, which is a part of a National Recreation Area near her parents' homestead on the Salmon River.

Railroad Ridge lies north of the White Cloud Peaks in the SNRA. While the peaks are proposed for wilderness in the draft Forest Service management plan, Railroad Ridge is proposed as semi-primitive land that would not allow new roads, but motorized uses.

Church's father, former Idaho Gov. Chase Clark, homesteaded in the Warm Spring Creek area on the Salmon River before becoming governor.

Church criticized opponents of additional wilderness in Idaho who say more will hurt the state's economy, particularly the timber industry.

Potlatch officials did not blame wilderness when it announced the closure, and Church said the company has large tracts of private timberlands that it could have logged to remain open. The problem is too small a demand for timber, she said.

"If timber availability made for a ment against more wilderness, had nothing to do with wilderness or the Forest Service's wilderness review, she said.

Pentagon reducing clearances

By NORMAN BLACK

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The armed services and defense contractors appear to be meeting Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger's three-month goal of reducing security clearances by 10 percent.

Final figures on the crackdown, which grew out of a Navy spy scandal, are not expected until next month. But Weinberger's deadline for an across-the-board, 10 percent reduction in clearances expires Monday and some preliminary figures have been compiled.

Captors threaten hostages

By ED BLANCHE

The Associated Press

BEIRUT, Lebanon — Some of six Americans held hostage by Shiite Moslems will be shown to newsmen, but time is running out for the U.S. government to meet the kidnappers' demands, a telephone caller claiming to speak for the kidnappers said Sunday.

If the captives are produced, it will be their first public appearance since the kidnappings began in March 1984.

'Gloria' cleanup continues

The East Coast continued to clean up Sunday from Hurricane Gloria's fury and most government and utility officials said they still had no estimate of the storm's damage, although some early loss figures exceeded $47 million.

Seven more deaths were attributed to Gloria, bringing to 16 the number of people believed killed as a result of Friday's storm.

Oil spill hits Delaware River

CLAYMONT, Del. (AP) — More than 400,000 gallons of crude oil from a grounded Panamanian tanker fouled the Delaware River on Sunday, and the Coast Guard closed the waterway to navigation as crews worked to clean up the mess.

The slick stretched 15 miles from where the 761-foot Grand Eagle ran aground late Saturday near Claymont, on the Pennsylvania border, said Gov. Michael Castle. Many water fowl were coated with oil, he said.

The Grand Eagle lost about 435,000 gallons of oil, or about 10,400 barrels, after running aground after losing power around 11:30 p.m. Saturday, said Coast Guard Lt. Robert Mitchell.

Pope pleads with abductors

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope John Paul II on Sunday urged leftist kidnappers to drop their demands and free the daughter of Salvadoran President Jose Napoleon Duarte.

"We follow with keen apprehension the news that continues to arrive from El Salvador" about the abduction of Ines Guadalupe Duarte Duran and her companion, the pope said.

Mrs. Duarte Duran, 35, and Ana Cecilia Villeda Sosa, 23, were kidnapped Sept. 10.

Soviets to outline arms plan

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — U.S. and Soviet arms control negotiators begin a crucial two-day session today at which the Soviets are expected to detail their new proposal to cut nuclear arsenals by 50 percent.

The full U.S. and Soviet delegations to the arms talks were to attend the session. Normally negotiations are conducted in three special groups meeting separately on space and defense weapons, strategic and medium range nuclear forces.

Today's weather

Harvest days will be clear, cool, dry

Twin Falls, Burley, Rupert, Jerome and Gooding:

Continued fair with gradual warming today and Tuesday. Highs 55 to 60 today and in the lower 60s Tuesday. Lows tonight 25 to 30. Light winds.

Camas Prairie, Halley, Lower Wood River Valley:

Continued fair with gradual warming. Highs today and Tuesday. Highs in the mid-50s today and 55 to 60 Tuesday. Lows tonight in the lower 20s. Light winds.

Northern Utah and Nevada:

Utah — Slow warming trend today through Tuesday with mostly fair skies except for possible isolated showers in the southwest Tuesday. Lows tonight upper 20s and 30s. Highs today in the 60s and Tuesday in the 70s.

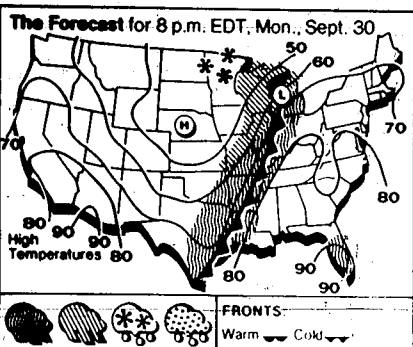

Nevada — Mostly sunny and a little warmer today and Tuesday. Highs from the mid-60s to mid-70s east and in the 70s west. Lows tonight in the mid-20s to lower 30s east and mid-20s to upper 30s west.

Synops:

Low temperatures reported Sunday morning around Idaho resembled those of early November rather than the end of September.

Lows in the mountains and the higher valleys dipped into the teens, while the lower valleys reported 20s to lower 30s. State's recorded state low at 9 degrees above zero.

Other than for a few high clouds, early autumn skies were sunny across Idaho Sunday afternoon. Temperatures remained cool however, with most readings in the 50s. Boise was the warm spot with 61. Mid-afternoon winds were

In the 5 to 10 mph range around upper valley today, rising to above 45 degrees afternoons Tuesday through Friday. In the central and western valley areas, soil temperatures will rise elsewhere in the nation Sunday. Temperatures ranged from a high of 59 and low 45 only during the night and early morning hours for the rest of the week.

The extended forecast for southern Idaho, Wednesday through Friday, calls for some near normal temperatures and dry conditions. Highs will range from the upper 60s into the mid 70s and nighttime lows will return to the mid 30s and low 40s.

Full moon Clearance sees rains, early snow

By The Associated Press

A storm dumped up to 14 inches of snow on Colorado, while record lows were reached in 16 cities around the nation Sunday and parts of Texas were drenched by almost 7 inches of rain.

Showers and thunderstorms were scattered near the east coast of Florida and mostly sunny skies prevailed east of the Appalachians, the northern Rockies and much of the Plateau.

The snow storm weakened as it moved east of the central Rockies by afternoon, but snow continued to fall over much of Nebraska and from western Kansas to the Texas Panhandle.

The snowfall ended by afternoon in Colorado after dumping 14 inches at Estes Park and Winter Park, and a foot at Table Mesa and Evergreen.

Travelers' advisories due to the snow or stockmen's advisories warning of cold were in effect in Colorado and in western Kansas.

In Texas, showers and thunderstorms extended from state's northeast to south-central regions, and downpours dumped 6.9 inches of rain at Spofford, near the Rio Grande.

Rain also was heavy across southwest Oklahoma, with more than 4 inches recorded at Roosevelt and Anadarko. Heavier rainfall during the six hours ending at noon MET dumped 2.45 inches at Waco, Texas, and 1.82 at San Antonio.

The 17-degree reading at Denver shattered the 112-year-old record for the date by 11 degrees, and the 10 degrees reached at Livingston, Mont., was 8 degrees colder than the mark set in 1983. Both readings were the coldest ever reached in September and the 27 degree low in Pueblo, Colo., tied the September record.

Los Angeles (AP) — Stars including Ricardo Montalban and Vikki Carr joined by satellite Sunday with celebrities from Latin America in a 12-hour telethon meant to raise $4 million for earthquake-devastated Mexico.

"In a tragic moment like this, it fills my heart to see all the Latino artists united," said Rene Enriquez, star of the NBC television series "Hill Street Blues."

"In a moment of tragedy, there are no barriers between countries."

The show started at 10 a.m. MDT and by 8:30 p.m., $3.8 million had been pledged in the United States alone, telethon spokesman Steve Moya said. Totals from the other countries where the program was being shown would not be immediately available.

CINCINNATI (AP) — A bus collided Sunday with an ambulance that had run a red light while carrying a seriously ill woman, injuring 21 people aboard the bus, one seriously, officials said.

The 102-year-old woman in the ambulance, whose heart had stopped before the accident, was declared dead at the scene, said Jerry Shoemaker, operations director of the Shoemaker Ambulance Service.

The ambulance had run a red light and was struck broadside by the bus, said police Officer Darla Winkbarley.

LEWISTON (AP) — The value of the U.S. dollar must decrease and interest rates must decline before Idaho's farmers and loggers can recover from an economic slump, Gov. John Evans says.

Evans said Friday that President Reagan and foreign leaders must continue to lower the dollar's value in foreign markets.

Evans also said the state's economic development program may best be helped by a new state business tax. He said a business tax structure similar to the state's motel and hotel tax that supports tourism promotion may be the best tool to boost the economic development program's $350,000 budget.

Evans also said he will lobby during the 1986 legislative session for quarterly collection of state income taxes.

ermament and American personalities and their families."

There was no way to authenticate the call.

Islamic Jihad repeatedly has said in statements that it wants the release of 17 comrades held in Kuwait. Kuwait has refused. The 17 were convicted of a series of bombings in December 1983, including attacks on the U.S. and French embassies in Kuwait.

Shultz, asked on "Meet the Press" if the United States would negotiate for the hostages release, said: "I'm not going to discuss that question. We don't think it is wise to pressure the release of people who are being held for, in effect, blowing up things in Kuwait and killing people there in exchange for the hostages."

"All that kind of thing does is invite people to take other hostages."

The American hostages are Terry Anderson, 37, The Associated Press' Chief Middle East correspondent; William Buckley, 57, a U.S. Embassy political officer; Peter Kilburn, 60, a librarian at the American University of Beirut; David Jacobsen, 54, director of the university's hospital; Thomas Sutherland, 53, acting dean of agriculture at the university; and the Rev. Lawrence Jenco, 50, a Roman Catholic priest.

A seventh hostage, the Rev. Benjamin Weir, 61, a Presbyterian minister, was freed Sept. 14.

The caller said this was "done" to give the American government an opportunity which has been extended. We are waiting for this opportunity to expire, after which our attitude will be decisive.

Weir, a Presbyterian minister, was freed under mysterious circumstances after a man claiming to represent Islamic Jihad called the same Western news agency to announce the release. The agency has asked it not be identified.

Weir later said the kidnapers warned they will kidnap more Americans and start executing the hostages if their demands are not met.

clearances during fiscal 1986, which begins Tuesday.

The Navy's higher goal of 50 percent was a direct response to the so-called Walker family-spy scandal, which erupted in May with the arrest of John Anthony Walker, a retired warrant officer, who was accused of passing Navy secrets to the Soviet Union over a 20-year period.

Last June, Lehman and Adm. James D. Watkins, the chief of naval operations, admitted the Walker ring caused "serious damage" to the nation's security, particularly in naval communications. All four men held at least a Secret clearance while in the Navy and only one of the four had ever been re-investigated to maintain his clearance — a process that is supposed to occur every five years.

Because of Lehman's special crackdown, Snider said the service had revoked or reduced the number of security clearances by at least 20 percent since the scandal began. A Navy source who requested anonymity said Friday the actual total might be as high as 45 percent, but reports were still being received from the field.

Snider said, however, that Navy Secretary John F. Lehman Jr. has set a goal of reducing Navy clearances by 50 percent as soon as possible, and Weinberger also ordered a 10 percent reduction in the number of new requests for security clearances during fiscal 1986, which begins Tuesday.

Improved medical care is allowing many elderly people to continue to live in their own households for more years than had been the case in the past.

The overall trend is nearly universal across the nation, with household growth exceeding population growth in every state except Utah and Wyoming, the new Census study reports.

Those two states were also the only ones where the proportion of the population under age 18 increased between 1980 and 1984.

Alaska had the sharpest increase in households in the 1980-84 period, up 25.7 percent. But that state's population was close behind with growth of 24.4 percent.

Overall, the report said, as of July 1, 1984, the nation has a population of 236,158,000, with 86,019,000 households.

Both government and private studies have also noted that the mere number of young adults is not the only factor at play.

were counted in the 1980 Census, a number that jumped by 2.2 million by July 1, 1981.

Growth then slowed as the economy worsened, with some studies indicating that many young people, unable to find jobs, choose to remain with their parents longer than they had originally anticipated.

Households grew by 920,000 in 1982 and 796,000 in 1983, and then began to rebound as the economy improved. Household growth totaled 1,682,000 in the year ending July 1, 1984.

healthy industry, it would now be thriving," Church said.

Church, whose late husband played a leading role in passing major environmental legislation in the 1960s and 1970s including the creation of the SNRA and the Frank Church River of No Return Wilderness Area, criticized the Forest Service for deficit timber sales and allowing timber cuts on remote tracts of land.

She also said, however, the agency is facing a staff shortage at a time when it is being given large road-building budgets.

Church also said she is concerned with other environmental problems, especially the quality of water in Idaho and the rest of the nation.

She said toxic materials are seeping into the ground water in many areas of the state and jeopardizing the quality of its water.

Church said there needs to be more emphasis on the clean up of toxic sites through the Environmental Protection Agency's Superfund to protect the environment and people's health.

She criticized Sen. Steve Symms, who defeated her husband in a close race in 1980, for recently fighting the renewal of the Superfund, created to clean up the nation's worst toxic sites.

Referring to Symms teaming with fellow arch-conservative Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., to defeat the renewal, Church said "Now, I sometimes wonder if Idaho is not the North Carolina of the West."

While in office, her husband had taken steps to control wastes and the contamination of water, she said.

"Yet, the problem of inadequate storage remains," and the answer is "always a day away on the agenda," Church said.

Shultz: SDI limit proposal 'ridiculous'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State George Shultz said Sunday it would be "ridiculous" to limit the U.S. missile defense research program, even as part of a Soviet proposal for deep cuts in offensive nuclear weapons.

GEORGE SHULTZ Says Soviet plan will be dented

Shultz and Richard Perle, assistant secretary of defense and one of the administration's leading arms control hard-liners, both said there was no way President Reagan would agree to Soviet calls for limits on the U.S. Strategic Defense Initiative.

The Soviets on Friday said they will propose a cut in weapons this week in superpower arms control talks in Geneva. The offer reportedly will trim offensive weapons 50 percent in return for U.S. limits on the program known as "Star Wars."

Both Shultz and Perle said they are waiting to see details of the Soviet offer, but cautioned against calling the Soviet proposal a breakthrough in the stalled talks.

"You can't just be talking a percentage," Shultz said on NBC's "Meet the Press." "You can't just be talking a percentage of what and that is why it is so important that we see what is laid out in Geneva in detail and then respond." Perle, interviewed on CBS' "Face the Nation," said, "the question is reductions of what and measured against what base... The Soviets have not laid down the proposal, there have, only been hints as to what is in it, so it's difficult to talk with precision about it."

But both men flatly rejected limits on the Star Wars program to seek a high-tech defense against missile attack.

"It's clear they want us to abandon the president's Strategic Initiative," Shultz said. "It also clear that the president won't."

"Any deal on research (limits) would be ridiculous because there would be absolutely no way to verify whether or not it's being observed," he said. "It's inherently impossible and that isn't even disputed."

"The president is not going to give it up," Shultz said. "Personally, I would certainly not advise him to give that up and there is no sentiment for such."

Perle said "there's no doubt in my mind that (Reagan) will continue the program" and added that there is "no doubt whatsoever that he is serious about continuing this program."

Both Shultz and Perle said Star Wars research does not violate the 1972 treaty limiting anti-ballistic missiles, a charge the Soviets have repeatedly made since Reagan announced the Star Wars program in March, 1983.

"What is being done is being done in accordance with that treaty," Shultz said.

Perle said "the treaty does not flatly rule out testing. It depends on which systems and under what circumstances and we are adjusting our program so that we stay within the terms of the treaty and test only those things the treaty permits."

Both men contended the Soviets have long been trying to develop their own strategic defense system.

Sen. Albert Gore Jr., D-Tenn., said the Soviet proposal "does obviously contain some new elements" although he also noted no detailed offer has yet been made.

"This new offer, when it is spelled out," Gore said on the CBS program, "May really offer the basis for genuine progress in the talks in Geneva."

Calling 'E.T.'s Experts start search with 84-foot antenna

HARVARD, Mass. (AP) — With the touch of a lever, "E.T." director Steven Spielberg on Sunday inaugurated a search for real-life extraterrestrials, switching on a giant antenna that astronomers hope will detect radio signals sent from outer space.

"This marks the beginning of a really powerful search that has a decent chance of finding something," said Paul Horowitz, a Harvard University professor who designed the 84-foot communications dish, part of the most powerful radio-scanning system ever used to hunt for aliens.

The dish, capable of scanning 8.4 million radio channels, marks an escalation of such efforts by The Planetary Society, which scans the skies for signs of life from its Oak Ridge Observatory in Harvard, a small town northwest of Boston.

Since 1963, the space-watching group had been searching with a simpler scanner, which picked up only 180,000 radio channels.

The new antenna, known as Project Meta, was built with the help of a $100,000 grant from Spielberg, the science fiction filmmaker; whose credits include "Close Encounters of the Third Kind" and "E.T.," which featured a lovable alien. Spielberg whisked into Harvard just long enough to flip on the antenna with the help of his infant son, Max. The communications dish hummed as it rotated skyward.

"It's the most sophisticated search for extraterrestrial intelligence in human history," said Carl Sagan, the popular science writer and president of the Planetary Society, who joined Spielberg, Horowitz and other astronomers at the observatory to dedicate the antenna. Afterwards, they toasted the event with champagne.

"It's a search for our counterparts elsewhere," said Sagan. "It's part of human curiosity."

Horowitz said the antenna was capable of reaching to the edges of the known galaxy. If there is life on other planets, he said, "this kind of communications system can do the job." He said he will visit the observatory once every two weeks to check on the project.

The scanner, which took two years to construct, is more versatile than its predecessor and includes changes that should increase the chances of rating alien messages.

Stockman: close loopholes, kill deficit

NEW YORK (AP) — Former budget director David Stockman said Sunday that any money raised by closing loopholes as part of a tax reform plan should go to reducing the deficit, rather than lowering tax rates as President Reagan has proposed.

At the same time, Stockman said in an interview on ABC-TV's "This Week with David Brinkley," cost-of-living adjustments for Social Security and other programs should be frozen for two years, as should defense spending.

He also said domestic programs such as the Small Business Administration and Urban Development Action Grants should be cut — all part of an "across-the-board national sacrifice."

Stockman, who left the administration to join a Wall Street firm, criticized the Republicans for refusing to press for spending cuts, and denounced "similar demagoguery" on the part of the Democrats, who have refused to consider tax increases.

The result, he said, has been "close to a depression in a selective sense." High interest rates caused by federal borrowing have boosted the value of the dollar, hurting farmers and manufacturers.

"Doing nothing at all, borrowing $200 billion, is not an economic free lunch," he said.

Stockman said it appeared that Americans were satisfied with the spending cuts of the early part of the Reagan administration, and "what is left, most of the people want, and we'll have to raise taxes to pay for it."

If that is true, Stockman said, what is needed is "a very major tax increase, larger than we ever had." He suggested a tax boost of $100 billion, the equivalent of 2 percent of the gross national product.

"The ultimate dread here and the ultimate tragedy" would occur if the administration increased the money supply to pay for the deficit, the result being sharply higher inflation, he said.

Heckler future planned

WASHINGTON (AP) — Health and Human Services Secretary Margaret Heckler, reportedly under fire by critics who want her appointed ambassador to Ireland, is set to meet today with President Reagan to discuss her future.

An aide to Mrs. Heckler said the secretary would "make an appropriate decision" if offered the Dublin post.

Assistant Senate Majority Leader Alan K. Simpson, R-Wyo., said Sunday he was one of several members of Congress who had advised Mrs. Heckler to see the president and "state her case... and that's what she's doing."

Mrs. Heckler is reportedly under fire from influential administration licenses, other materials they were carrying, or by members of the conservative ideals. White House

Chief of Staff Donald T. Regan reportedly wants her to become ambassador to Ireland.

Sen. Orrin G. Hatch, R-Utah, chairman of the Senate Labor and Human Resources Committee, was quoted in Sunday editions of The New York Times as saying that Regan "told me Wednesday that the president had already decided to send Mrs. Heckler to Ireland."

"The campaign by the White House staff to denigrate Margaret has been pathetic and disgusting and I am outraged by it," Hatch was quoted as saying.

Parachutists killed in jump plane crash

JENKINSBURG, Ga. (AP) — An airplane filled with parachutists crashed on takeoff from a private rural airstrip Sunday, killing all 17 people aboard, officials said.

Within minutes, as many as 10 skydivers from another plane jumped into the horse pasture where the Cessna 208 Caravan crashed, but found no survivors, witnesses said.

"One parachutist pushed in front of me and started hollering. They're all dead," said Mary Whitaker, who lives nearby. "There wasn't any sound coming out of the plane. He kept saying, 'My God, my God, they're dead.'"

The single-engine Caravan "was apparently climbing out after taking off and a witness stated that the engine stalled," said Preston Hicks, a National Transportation Safety Board investigator who was on the scene.

The plane crashed around 10:30 a.m. MDT about one mile from the grass airstrip owned by the West

Wind Sport Parachute Center, about 50 miles south of Atlanta, said Federal Aviation Administration spokesman Roger Myers.

Club members already had made several jumps Sunday when the Cessna took off with 16 experienced skydivers aboard, said Chuck Garwood, a spokesman for West Wind.

The plane was to climb to 12,000 feet and position itself so its passengers could land in a large field in front of the club, Garwood said. He said the 1-year-old plane was certified to carry 16 passengers and a pilot, and that it was routine for it to carry a full load.

Grady Wyatt was out in his yard when the plane flew over just above the treetops.

"The plane came up and looked like it could hardly stay up. A few minutes after that, I heard a crash, what sounded like a crash," said Wyatt.

The plane came to rest on its back, its cockpit destroyed but the wheels intact, said Bulls County Fire Chief W.L. Vaughn.

"The first report to us was that there were 17 persons on board and all were injured fatally," said Myers.

Mountain climber rescued by pair of helicopter crews

LYONS, Ore. (AP) — Two helicopter crews rescued a mountain climber from a cliff where he lay critically injured more than seven hours after falling 100 feet when a safety rope snapped, authorities said Sunday.

The man's companion also fell, but was able to hike to his car and notify authorities.

Len A. Meyer, 20, was rappelling from the top of the 1,000-foot

Thomas Cain Cliff near this western Oregon town Saturday afternoon with Tony Commerce when their safety rope snapped and they plunged 100 feet, said Lyons Fire Chief Steve Kennard.

'Gloria' cleanup continues

By The Associated Press

The East Coast continued to clean up Sunday from Hurricane Gloria's fury and most government and utility officials said they still had no estimate of the storm's damage, although some early loss figures exceeded $47 million.

Seven more deaths were attributed to Gloria, bringing to 16 the number of people believed killed as a result of Friday's storm.

Oil spill hits Delaware River

CLAYMONT, Del. (AP) — More than 400,000 gallons of crude oil from a grounded Panamanian tanker fouled the Delaware River on Sunday, and the Coast Guard closed the waterway to navigation as crews worked to clean up the mess.

The slick stretched 15 miles from where the 761-foot Grand Eagle ran aground late Saturday near Claymont, on the Pennsylvania border, said Gov. Michael Castle. Many water fowl were coated with oil, he said.

The Grand Eagle lost about 435,000 gallons of oil, or about 10,400 barrels, after running aground after losing power around 11:30 p.m. Saturday, said Coast Guard Lt. Robert Mitchell.

Pope pleads with abductors

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope John Paul II on Sunday urged leftist kidnappers to drop their demands and free the daughter of Salvadoran President Jose Napoleon Duarte.

"We follow with keen apprehension the news that continues to arrive from El Salvador" about the abduction of Ines Guadalupe Duarte Duran and her companion, the pope said.

Mrs. Duarte, 35, and Ana Cecilia Villeda Sosa, 23, were kidnapped Sept. 10.

Soviets to outline arms plan

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — U.S. and Soviet arms control negotiators begin a crucial two-day session today at which the Soviets are expected to detail their new proposal to cut nuclear arsenals by 50 percent.

The full U.S. and Soviet delegations to the arms talks were to attend the session. Normally negotiations are conducted in three special groups meeting separately on space and defense weapons, strategic and medium range nuclear forces.

Separatism out with the old

MONTREAL (AP) — The Parti Quebecois on Sunday completed its rejection of a separatist strategy, choosing Pierre Marc Johnson as its new leader to replace Rene Levesque, the man who brought Quebec to the brink of independence.

Johnson, the party's leading moderate, engineered the decision earlier this year to drop sovereignty from the Parti Quebecois' platform as an immediate goal. He has been Levesque's heir apparent for years.

All 160,000 registered members of the party were eligible to vote.

Battleship visit protested

COPENHAGEN, Denmark (AP) — About 1,000 anti-nuclear demonstrators on Sunday protested the port visit of the U.S. battleship Iowa, police reported.

They said police arrested seven people who challenged themselves to a U.S. Navy escort launch at Langelinie pier, and two who threw paint at the boat.

But they said the demonstration, organized by various groups, was peaceful.

Stars run Mexico telethon

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Stars including Ricardo Montalban and Vikki Carr joined by satellite Sunday with celebrities from Latin America in a 12-hour telethon meant to raise $4 million for earthquake-devastated Mexico.

"In a tragic moment like this, it fills my heart to see all the Latino artists united," said Rene Enriquez, star of the NBC television series "Hill Street Blues."

"In a moment of tragedy, there are no barriers between countries."

The show started at 10 a.m. MDT and by 8:30 p.m., $3.8 million had been pledged in the United States alone, telethon spokesman Steve Moysa said. Totals from the other countries where the program was being shown would not be immediately available.

Bus and ambulance collide

CINCINNATI (AP) — A bus collided Sunday with an ambulance that had run a red light while carrying a seriously ill woman, injuring 21 people aboard the bus, one seriously, officials said.

The 102-year-old woman in the ambulance, whose heart had stopped before the accident, was declared dead at the scene, said Jerry Shoemaker, operations director of the Shoemaker Ambulance Service.

The ambulance had run a red light and was struck broadside by the bus, said police Officer Darla Wis-Barley.

sees rains, early snow

By The Associated Press

A storm dumped up to 14 inches of snow on Colorado, while record lows were reached in 16 cities around the nation Sunday and parts of Texas were drenched by almost 7 inches of rain.

Showers and thunderstorms were scattered near the east coast of Florida as a mostly sunny skies prevailed east of the Appalachians, the northern Rockies and much of the Plateau.

The snow storm weakened as it moved east of the central Rockies by afternoon, but snow continued to fall over much of Nebraska and from western Kansas to the Texas Panhandle.

The snowfall ended by afternoon in Colorado after dumping 14 inches at Estes Park and Winter Park, and a foot at Table Mesa and Evergreen in the "Travelers" advisories due to the snow or stockmen's advisories warning of cold were in effect in Colorado and in western Kansas.

In Texas, showers and thunderstorms extended from state's northeast to south-central regions, and downpours dumped 6.9 inches of rain at Spofford, near the Rio Grande.

Rain also was heavy across southwest Oklahoma, with more than 4 inches recorded at Roosevelt and Anadarko. Heavier rainfall during the six hours ending at noon MDT included 2.45 inches at Waco, Texas, and 1.82 at San Antonio.

The 17-degree reading at Denver shattered the 112-year-old record for the date by 11 degrees, and the 10 degrees reached at Livingston, Mont., was 8 degrees colder than the mark set in 1983. Both readings were the coldest ever reached in September and the 27 degree low in Pueblo, Colo., tied the September record.

objective by the first of October."
"As of Sept. 15, we estimate that an overall reduction of approximately 8 percent had been achieved."

Sluder disclosed. "Each of the military departments has advised that it expects to satisfy the requirement in a timely manner."

Defense contractors' clots, "had eliminated 149,599 existing clearances, or 10.7 percent of the whole" by Sept. 14, Sluder continued.

Sluder said also the Pentagon approved some exceptions to Weinberger's order. While he declined to offer figures, he said the goal goal won't be met, by the National Security Agency because their employees "have an undisputed need for a clearance."

Sluder said, however, that Navy Secretary John F. Lehman Jr. has set a goal of reducing Navy clearances by 50 percent as soon as possible, "and Weinberger also ordered a 10 percent reduction in the number of new requests for security clearances during fiscal 1986, which begins Tuesday.

The Navy's higher goal of 50 percent was a direct response to the so-called Walker family spy scandal, which erupted in May with the arrest of John Anthony Walker, a retired warrant officer, who was accused of passing Navy secrets to the Soviet Union over a 20-year period.

Last June, Lehman and Adm. James D. Watkins, the chief of naval operations, admitted the Walker episode caused "serious damage" to the nation's security, particularly in naval communications. All four men held at least a Secret clearance while in the Navy and only one of the four had ever been re-investigated to maintain his clearance — a process that is supposed to occur every five years.

Because of Lehman's special crackdown, Sluder said the service had revoked or reduced the number of security clearances by at least 26 percent since the scandal began. A Navy source who requested anonymity said Friday the actual total might be as high as 45 percent, but reports were still being received from the field.

were counted in the 1980 Census, a number that jumped by 2.2 million by July 1, 1981.

Growth then slowed as the economy worsened, with some studies indicating that many young people, unable to find jobs, choose to remain with their parents longer than they had originally anticipated.

Households grew by 920,000 in 1982 and 796,000 in 1983, and then began to rebound as the economy improved. Household growth totaled 1,682,000 in the year ending July 1, 1984.

Both government and private studies have also noted that the mere number of young adults is not the only factor at play.

Many Baby Boomers have postponed marriage to undertake careers, increasing the number of one-person households in the nation.

And other studies have pointed out that pressure for increased household growth is also being exerted at the other end of the age scale — the elderly.

Improved medical care is allowing many elderly people to continue live in their own households for more years than had been the case in the past.

The overall trend is nearly universal across the nation, with household growth exceeding population growth in every state except Utah and Wyoming, the new Census study reports.

Those two states were also the only ones where the proportion of the population under age 18 increased between 1980 and 1984.

Alaska had the sharpest increase in households in the 1980-84 period, up 25.7 percent. But that state's population was close behind with growth of 24.4 percent.

Overall, the report said, as of July 1, 1984, the nation has a population of 236,158,000, with 86,019,000 households.

Evans: farm woes tied to high dollar

LEWISTON (AP) — The value of the U.S. dollar must decrease and interest rates must decline before Idaho's farmers and loggers can recover from an economic slump, Gov. John Evans says.

Evans said Friday that President Reagan and foreign leaders must continue to lower the dollar's value in foreign markets.

Evans also said the state's economic development program may best be helped by a new state business tax. He said a business tax structure similar to the state's motel and hotel tax that supports tourism promotion may be the best tool to boost the economic development program's $350,000 budget.

Evans also said he will lobby during the 1986 legislative session for quarterly collection of state income taxes.

healthy industry, it would now be thriving," Church said.

Church, whose late husband played a leading role in passing major environmental legislation in the 1960s and 1970s including the creation of the SNRA and the Frank Church River of No Return Wilderness Area, criticized the Forest Service for allowing timber sales and deferring timber cuts on remote tracts of land.

She also said, however, the agency is facing a staff shortage at a time when it is being given large road-building budgets.

Church also said she is concerned with other environmental problems, especially the quality of water in Idaho and the rest of the nation.

She criticized Sen. Steve Symms, who dated her husband in a close race in 1980, for recently lighting the renewal of the Superfund, created to clean up the nation's worst toxic sites.

Referring to Symms teaming with fellow arch-conservative Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., to defeat the renewal, Church said "Now, I sometimes wonder if Idaho is not the North Carolina of the West."

While in office, her husband had taken steps to control wastes and the contamination of water, she said.

"Yet, the problem of inadequate storage remains," and the answer is "always a day away on the agenda," Church said.

erment and American personalities and their families."

There was no way to authenticate the call.

Islamic Jihad repeatedly has said in statements that it wants the release of 17 comrades held in Kuwait. Kuwait has refused. The 17 were convicted of a series of bombings in December 1983, including attacks on the U.S. and French embassies in Kuwait.

Shultz, asked on "Meet the Press" if the United States would negotiate for the hostages release, said: "I'm not going to discuss that question. We don't think it is wise to pressure the release of people who are being held for, in effect, blowing up things in Kuwait and killing people there in exchange for the hostages ... All that kind of thing does is invite people to take other hostages."

The American hostages are Terry Anderson, 37, The Associated Press' Chief Middle East correspondent; William Buckley, 57, a U.S. Embassy political officer; Peter Kilburn, 60, a librarian at the American University of Beirut; David Jacobson, 54, director of the university's hospital; Thomas Sutherland, 53, acting dean of agriculture at the university; and the Rev. Lawrence Jenco, 50, a Roman Catholic priest.

A seventh hostage, the Rev. Benjamin Weir, 61, a Presbyterian minister, was freed Sept. 14.

The caller, said this man done "to give the American government an opportunity which has been extended. We are waiting for this opportunity to expire, after which our attitude will be decisive."

He did not give any deadline.

Weir, a Presbyterian minister, was freed under mysterious circumstances after a man claiming to represent Islamic Jihad called the same Western news agency to announce the release. The agency has asked it not be identified.

Weir later said the kidnappers warned they will kidnap more Americans and start executing the hostages if their demands are not met.

Shultz: SDI limit proposal 'ridiculous'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State George Shultz said Sunday it would "be ridiculous" to limit the U.S. missile defense research program, even as part of a Soviet proposal for deep cuts in offensive nuclear weapons.

GEORGE SHULTZ
Says Soviet plan will be denied

Shultz and Richard Perle, assistant secretary of defense and one of the administration's leading arms control hard-liners, both said there was no way President Reagan would agree to Soviet calls for limits on the U.S. Strategic Defense Initiative.

The Soviets on Friday said they will propose a cut-in weapons this week in superpower arms control talks in Geneva. The offer reportedly will trim offensive weapons 50 percent in return for U.S. limits on the program known as "Star Wars."

Both Shultz and Perle said they are waiting to see details of the Soviet offer, but cautioned against calling the Soviet proposal a breakthrough in the stalled talks.

"You can't just be talking a percentage," Shultz said on NBC's "Meet the Press." "You can't just be talking a percentage of what and that is why it is so important that we see what is laid out in Geneva in detail and then respond."

Perle, interviewed on CBS' "Face the Nation," said, "The question is reductions of what and measured against what base. . . . The Soviets have not laid down the proposal, there have only been hints as to what is in it, so it's difficult to talk with precision about it."

But both men flatly rejected limits on the Star Wars program to seek a high-tech defense against missile attack.

"It's clear they want us to abandon the president's Strategic Initiative," Shultz said. "It also clear that the president won't."

"Any deal on research (limits) would be ridiculous because there would be absolutely no way to verify whether or not it's being observed," he said. "It's inherently impossible and that isn't even disputed."

"The president is not going to give it up," Shultz said. "Personally, I would certainly not advise him to give that up and there is no sentiment for such."

Perle said "there's no doubt in my mind that he (Reagan) will continue the program" and added that there is "no doubt whatsoever that he is serious about continuing this program."

Both Shultz and Perle said Star Wars research does not violate the 1972 treaty limiting anti-ballistic missiles, a charge the Soviets have repeatedly made since Reagan announced the Star Wars program in March, 1983.

"What is being done is being done in accordance with that treaty," Shultz said.

Perle said "the treaty does not flatly rule out testing. It depends on which systems and under what circumstances and we are adjusting our program so that we stay within the terms of the treaty and test only those things the treaty permits."

Both men contended the Soviets have long been trying to develop their own strategic defense system.

Sen. Albert Gore Jr., D-Tenn., said the Soviet proposal "does obviously contain some new elements" although he also noted no detailed offer has yet been made.

"This new offer, when it is spelled out," Gore said on the CBS program, "is really offering the basis for genuine progress in the talks in Geneva."

Calling 'E.T.'s Experts start search with 84-foot antenna

HARVARD, Mass. (AP) — With the touch of a lever, "E.T." director Steven Spielberg on Sunday inaugurated a search for real-life extraterrestrials, switching on a giant antenna that astronomers hope will detect radio signals sent from outer space.

"This marks the beginning of a really powerful search that has a decent chance of finding something," said Paul Horowitz, a Harvard University professor who designed the 84-foot communications dish, part of the most powerful radio-scanning system ever used to hunt for aliens.

The dish, capable of scanning 8.4 million radio channels, marks an escalation of such efforts by The Planetary Society, which scans the skies for signs of life from its Oak Ridge Observatory in Harvard, a small town northwest of Boston.

Since 1983, the space-watching group had been searching with only 100,000 radio channels.

The new antenna, known as Project Meta, was built with the help of a $100,000 grant from Spielberg, the science fiction filmmaker whose credits include "Close Encounters of the Third Kind" and "E.T.," which featured a lovable alien.

Spielberg whisked into Harvard just long enough to flip on the antenna with the help of his infant son, Max. The communications dish hummed as it rotated skyward.

"It's the most sophisticated search for extraterrestrial intelligence in human history," said Carl Sagan, the popular science writer and president of the Planetary Society, who joined Spielberg, Horowitz and other astronomers at the observatory to dedicate the antenna. Afterward, they toasted the event with champagne.

"It's a search for our counterparts elsewhere," said Sagan. "It's part of human curiosity."

Horowitz said the antenna was capable of reaching to the edges of the known galaxy. If there is life on other planets, he said, "this kind of communications system can do the job." He said he will visit the observatory once every two weeks to check on the project.

The scanner, which took two years to construct, is more versatile than its predecessor and includes changes that should increase the chances of raising alien messages.

Stockman: close loopholes, kill deficit

NEW YORK (AP) — Former budget director David Stockman said Sunday that any money raised by closing loopholes as part of a tax reform plan should go to reducing the deficit, rather than lowering tax rates as President Reagan has proposed.

He also said domestic programs such as the Small Business Administration and Urban Development Action Grants should be cut — all part of an "across-the-board national sacrifice."

The result, he said, has been "close to a depression in a selective sense." High interest rates caused by federal borrowing have boosted the value of the dollar, hurting farmers and manufacturers.

"Doing nothing at all, borrowing $200 billion, is not an economic free lunch," he said.

Stockman said it appeared that Americans were satisfied with the spending cuts of the early part of the Reagan administration, and "what is left, most of the people want, and we'll have to raise taxes to pay for it."

If that is true, Stockman said, what is needed is "a very major tax increase, larger than we ever had." He suggested a tax boost of $100 billion, the equivalent of 2 percent of the gross national product.

At the same time, Stockman said in an interview on ABC-TV's "This Week with David Brinkley," cost-of-living adjustments for Social Security and other programs should be frozen for two years, as should defense spending.

Stockman, who left the administration to join a Wall Street firm, criticized the Republicans for refusing to press for spending cuts, and denounced "similar demagoguery" on the part of the Democrats, who have refused to consider tax increases.

"The ultimate dread here and the ultimate tragedy" would occur if the administration increased the money supply to pay for the deficit, the result being sharply higher inflation, he said.

Heckler future planned

WASHINGTON (AP) — Health and Human Services Secretary Margaret Heckler, reportedly under fire by critics who want her appointed ambassador to Ireland, is set to meet today with President Reagan to discuss her future.

An aide to Mrs. Heckler said the secretary would "make an appropriate decision" if offered the Dublin post.

Assistant Senate Majority Leader Alan K. Simpson, R-Wyo., said Sunday he was one of several members of Congress who had advised Mrs. Heckler to see the president and "state her case . . . and that's what she's doing."

Chief of Staff Donald T. Regan reportedly wants her to become ambassador to Ireland.

Sen. Orrin G. Hatch, R-Utah, chairman of the Senate Labor and Human Resources Committee, was quoted in Sunday editions of The New York Times as saying that Regan "told me Wednesday that the president had already decided to send Mrs. Heckler to Ireland."

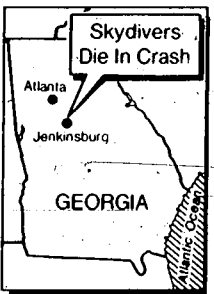

"The campaign by the White House staff to denigrate Margaret, has been pathetic and disgusting and I am outraged by it," Hatch was quoted as saying.

Mrs. Heckler is reportedly under fire from influential administration critics who question her management abilities and solidarity with conservative ideals. White House

Parachutists killed in jump plane crash

JENKINSBURG, Ga. (AP) — An airplane filled with parachutists crashed on takeoff from a private rural airstrip Sunday, killing all 17 people aboard, officials said.

Cessna took off with 16 experienced skydivers aboard, said Chuck Garwood, a spokesman for West Wind.

The plane was to climb to 12,000 feet and position itself so its passengers could land in a large field in front of the club, Garwood said. He said the 1-year-old plane was certified to carry 16 passengers and a pilot, and that it was routine for it to carry a full load.

"It just didn't look real — bodies on top of bodies. It looked really like mannequins," said David Aukerman, owner of the horse farm where the plane crashed. "When we walked up, we just knew there wasn't anybody alive."

Within minutes, as many as 10 skydivers from another plane jumped into the horse pasture where the Cessna 208 Caravan crashed, but found no survivors, witnesses said.

"One parachutist, pushed in front of me and started hollering. They're all dead," said Mary Whitaker, who lives nearby. "There wasn't any sound coming out of the plane. He kept saying, 'My God, my God, they're dead.'"

Wind-Sport Parachute Center, about 50 miles south of Atlanta, said Federal Aviation Administration spokesman Roger Myers.

Club members already had made several jumps Sunday when the Grady Wyatt was out in his yard when the plane flew over just above the treetops.

"The plane came up and looked like it could hardly stay up. A few minutes after that, I heard a crash, what sounded like a crash," said Wyatt.

Rescue workers spent two hours pulling bodies from the wreckage.

All the accident victims were quickly identified from driver's licenses; other materials they were carrying, or by members of the parachute jump club.

The single-engine Caravan "was apparently climbing out after taking off and a witness stated that the engine stalled," said Preston Hicks, a National Transportation Safety Board investigator who was on the scene.

The plane crashed around 10:30 a.m. MDT about one mile from the grass airstrip owned by the West

Sunday.

The man's companion also fell, but was able to hike to his car and notify authorities.

The plane came to rest on its back, its cockpit destroyed but the wheels intact, said Butts County Fire Chief W.L. Vaughn.

"The first report to us was that there were 17 persons on board and all were injured fatally," said Myers.

Political infighting no help to 'damsel'

On his latest odyssey to sell tax reform to the people, President Reagan described his program as a "damsel in distress" lashed to the tracks by selfish special interests.

But some of those special interests turn out to be fairly broad-based. There are legitimate questions about the effect of the plan on large segments of society, including state and local governments and the mass of middle-income taxpayers.

Senate Republicans have indicated that they will not stay in session just to pass a tax bill this year. Barber B. Conable Jr., the respected former Republican leader on the House's tax-writing committee, has raised serious concerns about key features of the president's plan. There is cause for not rushing for the bandwagon. As Conable wrote in the New York Times, "We had better go slowly and get it right."

Thus it seems imprudent for White House spokesman Larry Speakes to scold the media, as he did Wednesday, for failing to give sufficient attention to the president's now-routine tax-reform speeches. Speakes accused segments of the media of writing off the president's plan as "a lost issue." He predicted that they would wind up eating crow.

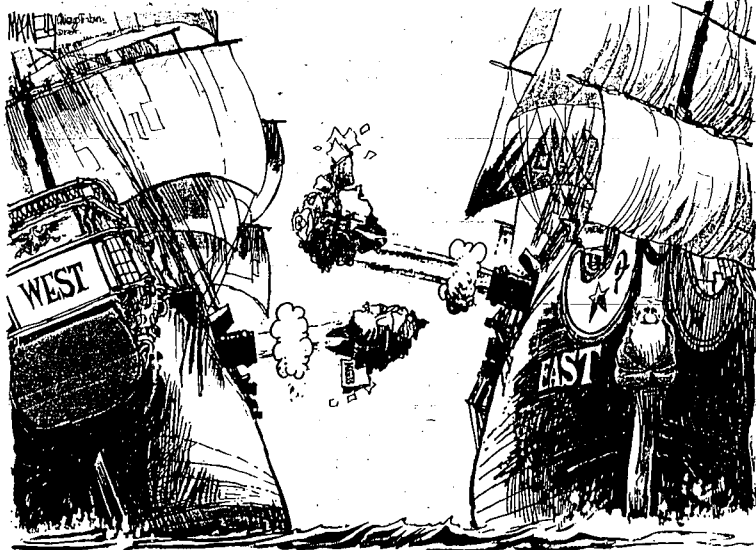

The first sign that things are not going well is that officials start blaming the media.

Tax reform is needed. But the fact is that the president's plan contains major flaws that have been identified by responsible experts such as Conable.

Rather than lecturing the media, the administration should cooperate with Congress to adopt a plan that will work, and truly benefit both taxpayers and the national economy. Then we'll get poor Nell off the tracks.

Frightening bigotry is on the rise again

America's history has been marred by major manifestations of racial and religious bigotry.

For three centuries, our country tolerated slavery, and, more than a century after abolition, black Americans still don't share in the full benefits and opportunities of American life. Hispanics, Native Americans, and Asian-Americans have also felt the sting of racial bigotry.

Meanwhile, Catholics, Jews, and other religious minorities have been the targets of bigots from the know-nothings of the nineteenth century to the Neo-Nazi movement of today. Indeed, the Neo-Nazi and the resurgent Ku Klux Klan prove that racial and religious bigotry go together: they hate Catholics, Jews, Blacks, Hispanics, and anyone else who doesn't measure up to their standards of "Aryan" perfection.

Fortunately, none of these forms of bigotry is as widespread today as in the past — but that doesn't mean they have disappeared. The frightening truth is: Racial and religious bigotry are making a comeback, often under the guise of "respectable" religio-political movements.

To examine the new faces of bigotry in America, let's take a look at four individuals who represent the troubling new wave of religious intolerance: Tony Alamo, Louis Farrakhan, Jimmy Swaggart, and Jerry Falwell.

Alamo and Farrakhan are both correctly considered to be extremists. Alamo heads the Tony and Susan Alamo Foundation, a pseudo-Christian cult whose followers have been distributing a series of virulently anti-Catholic pamphlets and wall posters all across the country.

The Rev. Charles Bergstrom

Louis Farrakhan heads the Nation of Islam, a splinter from the Muslim organization founded by the late Elijah Muhammad. Farrakhan has turned white racism inside out by offering black racism laced liberally with anti-Semitism. After achieving notoriety last year for calling Hitler a "great man" and Judaism a "gutter religion," Farrakhan has told audiences this year that "Jews know their wickedness," mocked the Holocaust, and issued threats against black leaders who don't share his views.

While Alamo and Farrakhan have earned their notoriety, Swaggart and Falwell are basking in an undeserved respectability.

Jimmy Swaggart, the most-watched televangelist in America, offers a blatant replay of the know-nothing anti-Catholicism and anti-Semitism of the 19th century. He has called Catholicism a "false cult" and described the Catholic practice of confession to a priest as a "Doctrine of devils."

Jerry Falwell has most recently been in the headlines because of his million-dollar campaign in support of the South African government. His support for the apartheid regime recalls his opposition to civil rights during the 1950s and 60s, when he called segregation "God's law."

In recent years, Falwell has repudiated his segregationist past and apologized for apparently anti-Semitic statements such as his declaration that Jews are "spiritually blind." However, just days before he addressed an audience of rabbis and repudiated anti-Semitism, Falwell entertained another audience with a joke about a "Jewish feminist lesbian."

Falwell's insensitive remarks — are part of a continuing pattern: faced with a choice between the forces of racism and the forces of reconciliation, he rarely opts for reconciliation.

Of these four individuals, Tony Alamo and Louis Farrakhan are deservedly treated as extremists by the nation's news media and political leadership.

However, Jimmy Swaggart has been an honored guest at the Reagan White House, and Jerry Falwell receives respectful attention from the media and the administration when he defends the racist regime in South Africa.

Fairgoers protest treatment

I am writing concerning the Twin Falls County Fair two weeks ago. A friend and I attended the fair on Thursday, Twin Falls Day, expecting to have a wonderful time.

I would like to first compliment Inland Empire and all of the businesses involved in the organization of the fair for the neatness of the grounds. I'm sure that it left a positive impression with many.

However, the actual reason for this letter is to express the situation that we encountered that evening. After only being there for fifteen minutes, we were more than ready to leave.

To answer the question "why?", it was due to the crudeness of many of the Magic Valley residents.

We were both appalled at the vulgar remarks that came out of these people's mouths, remarks that were directed at us regarding our clothing and hair styles.

What we would like to know is what gives these people the right to judge others that categories: appropriate or inappropriate. Some more examples: • Michael Jackson, the popular Los Angeles talk radio host, says, "I was driving up they don't even know? Certainly this is a free country, but have people lost their common decency, and what is to say, their manners?"

John F. Berry

"These particular individuals had the nerve to call us cruel names and treat us as if we were filthier than the dirt they walked on."

It may be typical of teenagers to embark on this type of behavior, but clearly it was not just the young people. As a matter of fact, the majority of the problem was bestowed by the adults.

The ignorance of these people should not have to be tolerated by anyone. Miss Christensen and I are both aware that Twin Falls is a very conservative town that has a difficult time accepting change, and is referred to by some as being a "hick town."

But is that any excuse for this type of juvenile conduct? Our experience may seem irrelevant to this society, but it is about time people realize that there is another world outside of the Magic Valley where the words "individually" and "open-

Sunset Boulevard with Mort Sahl in his convertible, going appropriately fast."

• Donald Trump, the egotistical New York City developer who puts his name on just about everything, says that he didn't put it on his subsidized housing that he built because "that would be inappropriate."

• The anchorperson on the CBS Morning News asks, "When is pulling the plug on a patient an appropriate thing to do . . . and when is it an inappropriate thing to do?"

• At a Connecticut beach club, a house rule reads, "Dining room luncheons are informal, and appropriately covered beach wear and tennis wear are acceptable."

Why have these highbrow words become so common? I can't say for sure, but I have some theories. Words and phrases seem to gain popularity often because they are connected to some important event or social development. Remember the '60s when everyone seemed to be searching for something "relevant?" That one seems to have run out of steam. Then there was the Watergate saga on TV, with both sides endlessly intoning "at this point in time."

Unfortunately, that silly phrase seems to be imbedded in our lexicon. "Excellent," thanks to the best-selling book of that name, is the favorite word among corporate executives — especially those whose companies are defunct in that commodity.

It is not surprising that lawyers, those experts at befogging reality, are the biggest users of appropriate-inappropriate. They are always finding it "inappropriate to comment" about their clients or seeking the "appropriate venue" for a trial — which usually means that their client is guilty and that they want to find an easy judge.

That appropriate-inappropriate have become commonplace beyond the courtroom is, I think, a reflection of our times. For one thing, they are cool, thoughtful-sounding words for a Calvin Klein age. Things are appropriate-inappropriate instead of great-lousy, swell-n-g, terrific-stinky. The words mindfulness" have a significant meaning. My friend and I would both be ashamed of ourselves if we judged people by their outward appearance. Aren't one's inner personality and values far more important?

We are the future generation and soon we will be the leaders of this community. If our elderly don't have the decency to salvage us from their own naivetes and insensitivities, then what will the future of this city be? Will tourists want to see what could become an even more unfriendly place?

We both doubt that this public complaint will have any effect on the majority of its readers, but possibly it will make some more aware that a person's feelings can either be hurt or spared.

Wouldn't a friendly smile be much more pleasant than an inconsiderate remark from a neighbor? I think the answer is obvious. I rest my case.

RANELLE DAYLEY and TIRA CHRISTENSEN

smack of sophistication and worldliness, of Beluga and Mercedes, potted palms and rattan furniture, white suits and tapered fingernails.

But their use often reflects something more subtle, a kind of modern moral plasticity. People these days are more comfortable judging things as appropriate or inappropriate instead of right or wrong. It is like a friend's explanation of why Thanksgiving is his favorite holiday: "It's got none of that religious crap attached to it." Well, the Pilgrims were no slouches when it came to harsh moral judgments, and neither are we, thanks to Jerry Falwell and others. What is appealing about using appropriate and inappropriate is that they allow us to render harsh moral judgments about people and things without reverting to those old Ten Commandments. Actions are either appropriate or inappropriate — not right or wrong, moral or immoral. When a recent Phil Donahue show discussed the rotten lyrics of a hard-rock song called "Nasty Girl," the host asked the audience, "Is this appropriate material?"

The two words need a rest, or at least less promiscuous use. Let us revert to a simpler time when talk was straighter and lawyers were fewer. The next time someone wants you to do something that is wrong or stupid, try saying, "No, I don't want to" — not, "That would be inappropriate."

The field is wide-open in political wake of George Hansen

BOISE — Supporters of former congressman George Hansen could have difficulty deciding which of his would-be successors to vote for in the Republican 2nd District primary election next year.

State Sen. Diane Watkins and state Rep. J. F. "Chad" Chaddab, both Idaho Falls Republicans, have strong credentials to follow Hansen as the conservative candidate in the district.

But if a split occurs, that may boost the candidacy of Idaho Falls broadcaster Mel Richardson, who is hiding his time, quietly building the organization he could need to capture the party nomination in next May's primary.

Watkins already has announced. Chaddab says he will become a formal candidate in his early efforts produce enough money and volunteers. Richardson says he's "very much into it" but probably won't become an official candidate until late this year. State Rep. Gary Robbins, R-District, also hasn't made a formal declaration, but has been out campaigning for several weeks.

Quane Kenyon

Watkins made it clear he hopes to pick up Hansen's support. His official announcement speeches sounded much like Hansen's, mainly attacks on government. Like Hansen, he's a member of the Mormon Church, a tremendous asset in a district which hasn't elected a non-Mormon since 1948.

By challenging the results of Blaine County voting, Chaddab helped Hansen in his unsuccessful effort last year to overturn his 170-vote defeat at the hands of Democrat Richard Stallings.

But Chaddab reportedly has lost some GOP support in that county by continuing to press his election protests, even after numerous local, county, federal and state investigations turned up little to substantiate the allegations.

Hansen followers will have a clear choice in some areas. In eight terms in the Idaho Senate, Watkins has gained a reputation mainly through killing legislation. Chaddab, in two terms in the House, hasn't hesitated to come up with legislation, and work hard for it, although he lost most of his major battles in the last session.

Chaddab tried to get the state out of the liquor business by turning it over to private industry. And he pushed for some sort of tuition tax credit for families wishing to send their children to private or parochial schools.

Watkins also stated his flat opposition to tax increases, saying he'd rather be whipped than vote for a tax increase. Chaddab supports local-option taxing powers for cities and counties with the proper restrictions.

Some political observers believe the reason Chaddab and Watkins are becoming so visible so early, nine months before the primary, is that some of Hansen's backers might be turning to political newcomer Richardson.

"I've heard that and I'd like to believe it," said Richardson, general manager of KID radio station.

Richardson said his summer poll of Madison, Jefferson, Bonneville and Bingham counties showed so much support for him that he's going ahead and organizing volunteers and trying to raise money.

As an on-air broadcaster, Richardson is subject to Federal Communications Commission restrictions that require broadcasters running for public office to provide equal time to opponents.

After much checking with the FCC, Richardson says he's been advised he does not become an official "candidate" until he qualifies for the ballot.

The filing period for candidates doesn't open until next April. And Richardson says if he wanted to stretch a point, he wouldn't become a "candidate" until signatures on his nominating petitions are certified by county clerks.

After that, he won't be heard on the air as long as he's a candidate.

A bulldozer took to the streets of London's Brixton area Sunday to clean up after riots.

South London starts cleanup after race riots rip slum area

LONDON (AP) — Gangs of black youths set fire to a car and hurled bricks and rocks at police Sunday in London's slum district of Brixton in sporadic violence a day after the worst rioting in the city since 1981.

Saturday's violence, which began after police shot a black woman while seeking a man armed with a shotgun, left dozens of stores gutted by flames and at least 36 people injured.

Scotland Yard spokeswoman Frances Walker said Sunday's disturbances were isolated and "completely contained." She said 16 to 15 people were arrested, but there were no reports of injuries.

Youths, most of them black, had rioted for about seven hours Saturday night and early Sunday. Scotland Yard said 26 civilians and 10 policemen suffered minor injuries and 149 people were arrested in the overnight violence. Brixton's third and worst riot since April 1981.

The racially mixed district in south London was calm most of Sunday until the car was set on fire toward nightfall.

About 50 policemen, wearing helmets and carrying plastic shields, moved in after the blazing car was used to block a road in a flashpoint area of Brixton known as the Front Line.

Police cleared a path for firefighters through a crowd of 200 people who gathered as the car was being set ablaze. Rocks, bottles and bricks were thrown, but police said no one was hurt.

Earlier Sunday, shopkeepers boarded up broken windows and bulldozers shoveled other burned-out cars from the streets. Clean-up crews mingled with sightseers gawking at the widespread devastation.

"There is still some friction in the area," said Scotland Yard Cmdr. Alex Marnoch. "Feelings are still running high, and obviously it is something we must monitor."

The Yard said 137 major crimes were reported overnight and 55 vehicles were burned or damaged.

Scotland Yard said Brixton erupted after police, searching for a youth believed armed with a shotgun, burst into a home and shot the suspect's unarmed mother. It called the incident a well-planned operation "that went tragically wrong."

The injured woman, Cherry Groat, 38, spent the night in the intensive care unit at St. Thomas Hospital with bullet fragments in her spine. She was transferred to a general ward Sunday and reported in stable condition. Doctors said it was too early to tell whether she was paralyzed.

Youths marched to the Brixton police station and began hurling firebombs, paving stones, bottles and pieces of lumber. Stores were looted and cars and trucks were overturned and burned.

Just three weeks earlier, sections of the Handsworth district in Birmingham, home to predominantly West Indian blacks, went up in flames in a riot that black leaders said was prompted by a police crackdown on drug trafficking.

Black man killed in rioting

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — A mob burned a black man to death Sunday in the second straight day of clashes between rival black groups near Durban, and anti-apartheid violence spilled into white areas for the third day in a row, police said.

Police also reported they shot and killed a black man heaving a gasoline "bomb" in "Dordrecht" in eastern Cape Province.

An explosion that police believed was caused by a bomb went off in the men's room of a hotel near Durban "where about 150 black youngsters were guests at a 'children's day,'" but no one was injured.

Peter Davidson, owner of the Executive Hotel in Umhlati, a black township west of Durban, told The Associated Press: "We don't know who would have done it. I am not involved in politics."

However, local Zulus and sources within Inkatha, the million-strong Zulu political movement, said Davidson is one of the more than 100 members of the Inkatha central committee, which advises hereditary Zulu Chief Gatsha Buthelezi. The sources spoke on condition of anonymity.

Two Sunday newspapers called for the government to lift the state of emergency imposed July 21 in 36 areas, saying the emergency has given police the opportunity to torture detainees.

The death toll from Saturday's street battles between rival black groups in Umhlati was unclear.

Italy begins to ration water

ROME (AP) — Cities that haven't had rain in months are turning off fountains. Florence could run dry in days and the grape harvest could suffer from a drought that has driven some places to water rationing.

However, the drought has gripped Italy unevenly, with some cities like Rome largely escaping its effects because of adequate reservoir levels.

The worst hit city is Florence, where the Arno River, usually silver as it courses through the city under the famous Ponte Vecchio, is now a gray muddy stream that stinks of dying fish.

has enough water in its reservoir only for a few more days.

Naples, which has not seen rain since May, has been divided by rationing. On alternating days, half the city has running water to conserve the little that remains.

Three months without much more than a drop has forced government officials to draw up an emergency plan to bring water from other areas to Florence, which they say

Tokyo airport plan draws protesters

TOKYO (AP) — About 700 people demonstrated Sunday to protest expansion of the New Tokyo International Airport at Narita. Police said they arrested 75 protesters, including 15 women, after they clashed with riot police.

The demonstrators were protesting plans to build an additional runway at the airport, about 40 miles northeast of Tokyo.

A police official who spoke on condition of anonymity said about 200 people carrying stones and bamboo staves marched down streets and fought with police who moved in to stop them.

Police brutality protest turns to riot in Frankfurt's streets

FRANKFURT, West Germany (AP) — Some 5,000 demonstrators went on a rampage in downtown Frankfurt Sunday evening, clashing with riot police, smashing store windows and looting luxury shops. There were no immediate reports of injuries.

The demonstration started as a peaceful rally to protest a clash with police the night before in which a demonstrator protesting a neo-Nazi party meeting was killed under the wheels of a police water cannon vehicle. Twenty-two police were injured in the clash.

Leftist protesters gathered in downtown Paul's Platz Sunday to hear speeches against police brutality and then marched toward the main railway station.

The marchers pelted police with rocks and rocket flares, demolished an abandoned police van, smashed store windows and looted luxury shops.

An estimated 200 riot police were unable to contain the crowd.

Banks, jewelry stores, insurance agencies and airlines suffered the worst damage and while Australia's Qantas airline office was set on

What's what

Ask the fellow on the next stool the whereabouts of that town called "Mustang." No wild west village, this. Mustang is in Nepal. Might add, the job of butchering meat there is assigned to Shemba tribesmen, and they're not allowed to live in town. Eaters of meat can live there, just not the fellows who butcher it.

Whenever a sizable new building goes up nationwide, one wrecking company in Los Angeles sends an engineer to check out the blueprints and file away a full report. Plan growing vegetable matter. how come they pop up overnight? A. Rain can swell them 100 times their dry size. They're right at the surface, then the rain hits them.

Q. Can two hurricanes collide?
A. No, one gets weaker, and they rotate past each other.

Q. What color is the inside of the sun?
A. Black. Take my word for it. I took somebody else's.

TAYLOR ON HORSEBACK

It's common knowledge among trivia gamblers that President Zachary Taylor never voted. Less well known is the fact that he was so short-legged he had to get help to climb on a horse, and on many an occasion, he didn't even bother to straddle, but just rode sideways.

There's a name for everything, isn't there? Hang a chain loosely between two hooks. Its sag is called an "inverted catenary." Here's the dialogue: "Did you close the gate, son?" "No, sir. I erected an inverted catenary." "Waste of time, Boy, just hang a chain across it."

It was that golf fanatic — Mary, Queen of Scots — who decided "Stuart" looked better than "Stewart." Before then, all with that name spelled it "Stewart."

Daily Horoscope

GENERAL TENDENCIES: The daytime is good for implementing the new ideas which came to you over the weekend and which you need to discuss further with outside contacts, so put on your thinking cap.

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Garner the data you need during the day that can make your existence more as you want it to be, and tonight seek advice.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Complete arrangements for a plan you have in the morning. In the afternoon, you can start putting it in operation.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Home lies and friends can easily be persuaded to assist you in gaining personal desires, then you can do the work connected to it.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Go to the most influential person you know and gain advice how best to utilize your finest talents.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Study worldly desires well and then make fine plans to gain them. A new contact can give you fine ideas.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 21) Listen to the ideas of your mate so that there can be greater accord between you. Concentrate on the practical.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Morning is best for making new deals with associates so that later you can do the actual work required of you.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Be more energetic about handling your work and it becomes more profitable and valuable.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Study the new plan you made over the weekend for more good angles to add to it, then put it in motion.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Plan how to make your home more charming and tonight talk your ideas over with family. Invite friends in.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Study how to become more successful and get into practical work connected with such. Answer any correspondence.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to March 20) Get expert advice concerning money and property in the morning before you make any investments. Complete tasks.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY...he or she will be capable of putting the finest talents to work advantageously provided he, or she, does not simply do the planning in the mind, but gets right to work on the ideas and plans. Give praise for any fine job done.

Close wants to star in 'South Pacific'

Key West native Debra Benedict displays gold, gem

Key West span hid treasure hunt prize

KEY WEST, Fla. (AP) — A woman who climbed beneath Garrison Bight bridge and pawed along a cement ledge found a hidden envelope that earned her $50,000 in gold and a $10,000 emerald.

The find Saturday ended a treasure hunt staged by Mel Fisher, the ocean salvor who last July found millions of dollars' worth of gold and silver from the Spanish galleon Nuestra Señora de Atocha after a 16-year hunt.

For seven days, hundreds of people combed Key West's streets, beaches and alleyways for clues that would lead to a solid gold bar from the Atocha and the emerald donated by a local jeweler.

The final clue took her to the bridge where she found a certificate wrapped in aluminum foil taped to cement, Ms. McHale said.

"She was totally in shock," Ms. McHale said. "We had a hand-crank siren that went off and the balloons were released."

Ms. Benedict, who is unemployed, said she plans to sell her gold bar and spread some of the proceeds around.

"It would be really nice to help Mark House," she said, indicating a home for the elderly and retarded in Key West that she said had been sold recently. "I also have a little business that I could start up. And my landlady was thrilled."

In addition to the grand prize, the organizers offered eight other $5,000 prizes, which included gold coins worth $2,100.

Contestants used metal detectors on the beach to find aluminum tokens and searched a barroom wall covered with business cards for the one belonging to treasure hunter Mel Fisher.

Treasure was found by checking a flying kite, by bicycling through the city streets, and by driving around the island in search of automobile-related clues, Ms. McHale said.

Ron Saunders, an attorney from Key West, won two of the events — the kite flight and the car search. Other winners were Stephen Kent of Marathon, Jeff Overby of Key West, Tim Steele of Key West, Walter McCullon of Boca Raton and Jane Evens of Boca Raton.

Participants came from as far as Canada, Washington state, and the Cayman Islands, Ms. McHale said.

"We had more out-of-state entrants than in state," she said. "It was all set up to promote tourism in Key West."

NEW YORK (AP) — Actress Glenn Close hasn't been hungry for work lately — not with two movies in back-to-back release and a Broadway play opening this season — but what she'd really like to do is star in "South Pacific."

"My earliest memories are of listening to that score, singing along with it," she said in a Daily News interview published Sunday. "I love the Rodgers music, the Hammerstein lyrics."

Now, however, she's on the publicity circuit for her new movies, "Maxie," a comedy that opened last week, and "The Jagged Edge," a courtroom drama opening Friday. Then, there are lines to learn for "Benefactors," a new comedy scheduled to open on Broadway in December.

The actress, who won a Tony for "The Real Thing" and a nomination for "Barnum" and collected three Oscar nominations ("The World According to Garp," "The Big Chill" and "The Natural"), got her start with New York's Phoenix Theater and has been working fairly steadily ever since, she says.

Governor is 'fantastick' in his first performance

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Wearing little more than a hat and oversized underwear, Gov. Bob Graham took the stage and sang his way into his first, and possibly last, theatrical performance.

"We were very fortunate to get him," Florida Repertory Theater artistic director Keith Baker said before Graham's Friday night performance in "The Fantasticks."

In fact, the audience loved Graham. When he delivered his first line — "I could tell you a great deal about myself!" — the audience roared with laughter and continued laughing through his second line — "I am a man of experience."

as Hucklebee, a father who conspires to marry his daughter off to the next-door-neighbor's son, generated statewide publicity and support for the theater, which almost went broke last year.

But the governor, who has tried his hand at a variety of jobs to gain firsthand knowledge of citizens' concerns, kept his political touch.

He told stage manager James Danford: "... If the show goes well, I'll take the credit. If it gets screwed up, it's your fault."

Automobile Collection auction this weekend, said organizers.

More than 300 antique vehicles, including many child-size toy cars, were sold at the auction, which brought in $10.5 million.

Second highest price for a car was the $710,000 paid by Bill Lyons, founder of Alr Cal airline, for a 1934 Packard Runabout Speedster.

'Inspirational' headline lead to 'Agnes of God'

STATE COLLEGE, Pa. (AP) — "Agnes of God" playwright John Pielmeier says the idea for his hit Broadway drama came from a newspaper headline.

The Roman Catholic-born writer was grappling with his own questions about religion and spiritualism eight years ago when he saw the headline "Nun Kills Baby."

"I was sort of struggling to find a story upon which to hang all these questions that I was asking about — about Catholicism, about sanctity

Used car costs a million for Detroit Tiger chief

SPARKS, Nev. (AP) — Buying a used car is not everyone's notion of how to spend $1 million, but to Detroit Tigers owner Tom Monaghan the 1929 Duesenberg looked like a honey.

Monaghan, also founder and president of Domino's Pizza, made the record bid at the two-day Harrah's

Midshipman's court-martial: third at Annapolis in 63 years

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP) — A midshipman who fled after being accused of stealing $9,000 in merchandise from the U.S. Naval Academy stores faces a court-martial Monday, only the third at the academy in 63 years.

Clayton M. Lewis, 20, of Roanoke Rapids, N.C., disappeared before his scheduled court-martial July 23. The second-year midshipman was arrested Aug. 14 in Los Angeles on a misdemeanor charge after allegedly failing to pay a $14.66 restaurant tab.

If convicted of all charges, Lewis could be confined at hard labor for as long as 11 1/2 years. He also faces possible dismissal from the Navy and forfeiture of all pay and allowances for the alleged crimes, which include desertion, larceny and conspiracy to commit larceny.

Participants came from as far as Canada, Washington state, and the Cayman Islands, Ms. McHale said.

"We had more out-of-state entrants than in state," she said. "It was all set up to promote tourism in Key West."

Lewis is accused of stealing clothes, records, appliances and other personal items between August 1984 and last April from the Midshipmen's Store.

Academy officials have declined to detail his alleged method but said that he was implicated by another midshipman. No one else is to be charged in the thefts, academy officials said.

The midshipman is also accused of fleeing the academy grounds May 4 at the height of an investigation by the Naval Investigative Service. He surrendered to naval authorities May 20 in Norfolk, Va.

Lewis has been held at the Quantico Marine Base in Quantico, Va., since his arrest on the West Coast. For his court-martial, he will be transported back and forth each day from the base, academy officials said.

His case will be heard by Marine Lt. Col. H.S. Atkins of the Navy's Atlantic Judicial Court.

A standout baseball player and top student at Roanoke Rapids High School, Lewis will be defended by Lt. Christine Sensemans of the Navy Legal Service in Washington, D.C. She declined comment Friday on the case.

This is only the second time the academy has convened a court-martial since 1922, when a midshipman was convicted in a hazing case, according to Dennis Box, an academy spokesman. The most recent court-martial stemmed from a 1980 car accident on academy grounds in which a midshipman was killed. A midshipman was initially dismissed from the academy in that case, but later allowed to graduate.

Vampire victim 'competent'

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — A man who allegedly told psychiatrists that vampires suck his blood and the judicial system is controlled by demons has been judged competent to stand trial in the beating death of his wife.

Johnson County Circuit Judge Robert Russell made the ruling Friday in the case of Michael H. Singh 40, after hearing testimony from mental health experts. Singh was charged with capital murder in the 1982 death of his third wife, Susan C. Singh, 34.

Singh, who had previously been declared incompetent to stand trial, and sat in the courtroom bound in chains, cursed Russell as the judge announced his decision. He was removed from the courtroom after a second outburst.

Singh served a four-year prison term after being convicted in 1977 of manslaughter in the shooting death of his second wife. His first marriage ended in divorce, his attorneys said.

Adoption-bound infant alive after Mexico City disaster

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — After anxiously days of waiting, Armando and Jenn Orellana have received word that the tiniest member of their family survived two earthquakes that shattered part of Mexico City.

One of the newborn babies found trapped under the crumbled Juarez Hospital in Mexico City was their adopted son.

He and several infants miraculously survived in the rubble for nearly a week without food and water.

The Orellana baby, who is less than two weeks old, is being treated for bruises and injuries received in the earthquake.

Orellana said Friday that he and his wife have been waiting for about two months to adopt a child from his native country.

Although there are still legalities in the adoption, Orellana said the couple hopes to travel to Mexico City and bring the boy home late this week.

They have already selected a name for the tiny boy — Karlo Roberto.

The Orellanas have two other children, Karen, 16, and Alexander, 11. Orellana works for the division of employment and training in the Wisconsin Department of Industry, Labor and Human Relations.

Rhythmic gymnastics gets Olympic lift

By TRUDY S. TARIO
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Rhythmic gymnastics was the new kid on the block at the 1984 summer Olympic Games.

So new, in fact, the ABC cameramen had a hard time keeping their sights on the action, said Varina French, media coordinator of the U.S. Gymnastics Federation who worked as a floor spotter for the TV crews.

French was in Twin Falls recently, working as an educational consultant for The Athletic Club of Twin Falls' new classes in the sport.

"The camera would follow a club thrown high in the air, missing all the moves the rhythmic gymnast made in anticipation of catching it. TV crews are not astute yet about how to capture the sport on camera," she said.

What the cameras did manage to capture in part was an old sport, developed by the Greeks, which had at last been accepted for Olympic level competition. That media exposure has stirred up a surge of interest among kids, like that generated by artistic gymnast Nadia Comaneci, French said. But for now, rhythmic gymnastics is strictly for girls.

Unlike the powerful, tumbling sport of artistic gymnastics, which uses stationary apparatus such as the balance beam and bars, rhythmic gymnastics is freestyle dance using hand-held ropes, ribbons, clubs, balls and hoops.

The typical routine lasts 1½ to 2 minutes and is accompanied by a single instrument, usually a piano, played live.

French said the sport has been popular in Europe for a long time, under the name Swedish gymnastics. She recalled that European groups would tour the U.S. giving clinics. She herself started demonstration teams 25 years ago.

"Gradually many of us in public education saw the value of the sport," she said.

French taught for 18 years in grades kindergarten through eight in Oregon and, at the university level, instructed teachers in physical education, learning and development skills. She was vice-president of the USGF and served for eight years on the U.S. Olympic Committee.

Training begun as early as 2 years old increases perceptual motor skills, French said. As the child develops, other skills and pieces of equipment are added. Working with objects, French has found, releases the inhibitions of the gymnasts.

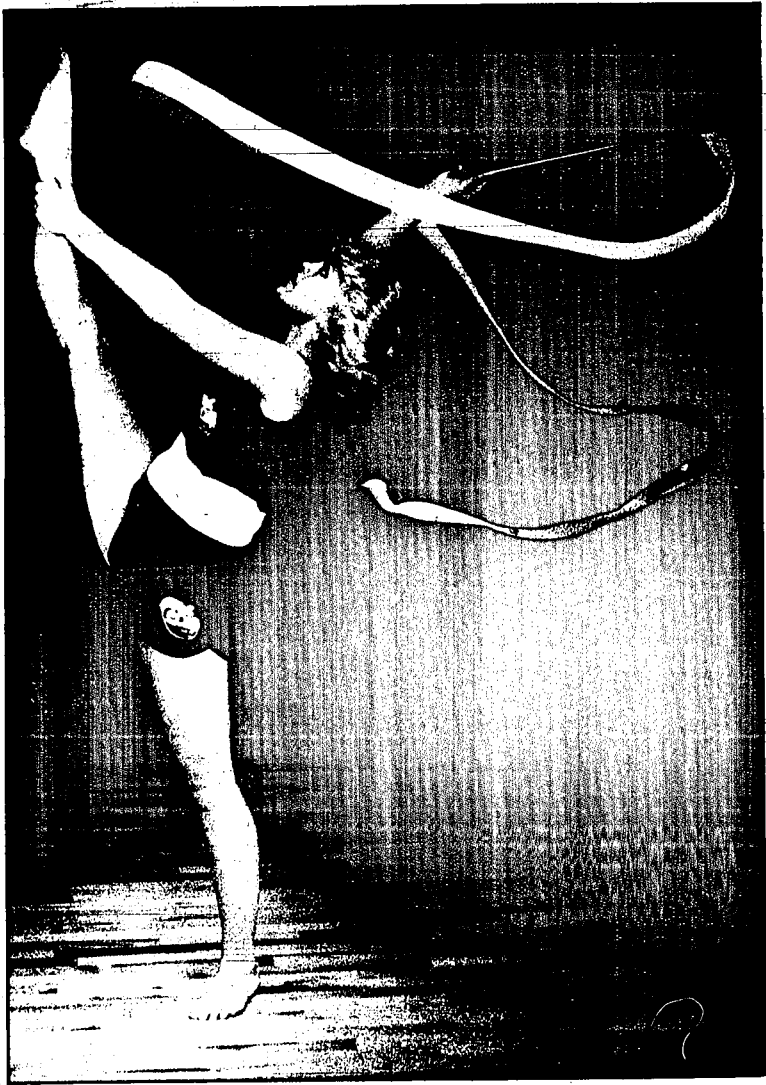

Also unlike artistic gymnasts, who reach the peak of their performance at about age 21, most rhythmic gymnasts compete best in their mid- to late 20s, when maturity brings a richness of understanding to the dance presentation, she said.

Classical ballet training is a prerequisite, but modern jazz and folk are merged with ballet in the freestyle routines.

The USFG has established eight regions in the U.S., although there are many states which haven't yet organized the sport yet. French's daughter, Laurie Johnson, who is The Club's athletic director, has been the state rhythmic gymnastics director for the past two years.

The Club begins a program of rhythmic gymnastics classes on Tuesday. For more information, call 734-7538.

In April The Club will be host to a USFG regional competition, with Region 2 competitors from Idaho, Washington and Oregon vying for a chance to compete in the national finals. Region 1 competitors, California and Nevada, will participate just for the opportunity to compete, Johnson said.

Tough gonorrhea strain appears

By PAUL BERG
The Washington Post

A new type of gonorrhea that can't be treated with the antibiotic tetracycline has begun to appear in several East Coast cities, government medical researchers reported last week, and health officials expect the bacteria to continue to evolve in response to new drugs.

Gonorrhea bacteria "have an enormous capacity to mutate," says Dr. John Zenilman of the Centers for Disease Control in Atlanta. "Basically, they're smarter than we are."

The CDC reports 12 cases of the new strain in Atlanta and Philadelphia. Additional unconfirmed cases of the sexually transmitted infection have occurred in Boston, Alabama and Maryland, Zenilman says.

Expanded studies in the Atlanta area showed that about 4 percent of all cases were resistant to tetracycline, but it is not known whether the prevalence of the new bacteria is the same nationally.

In the past 40 years, the penicillin dose necessary to treat gonorrhea has increased almost 100 times as the bacteria have mutated. But in most cases, the inexpensive antibiotic is still an effective cure.

Maybe food put you in the mood

Food may have a direct effect on some people's moods, new research at the University of Chicago suggests.

"We're not talking here about what might be called 'traditional' food allergies, such as breaking out in hives or a rash after eating certain foods, but marked changes in moods," says Dr. John Crayton, who headed the study.

The study suggests that these changes in moods may be connected to changes in the immune system, but the mechanism has yet to be figured out.

Thirty-five volunteers, many of whom already believed they were sensitive to foods, were given unmarked pills that contained either wheat, milk or chocolate. Some were given plain placebo.

A battery of physical and psychological tests showed that 16 of the 35 sensitive people had "statistically significant" mood and behavior changes after eating the wheat and milk pills. They became irritable, anxious or depressed.

Reverse vasectomy often void

Vasectomies can be successfully reversed more than half the time, a study at the University of Alabama concludes, but often, even when the operation is deemed a success, the men often still fail to father children.

"In 49 percent of our patients who had a technically successful reversal, no pregnancy occurred," write Dr. Kenneth W. Aldridge and several colleagues in the Southern Journal of Medicine.

Each year, as many as 1 million vasectomies, in which the sperm-carrying tubes are cut, are performed as a method of birth control in the United States. The tubes can be reconnected with microsurgery.

Patients shun right to silence

Being warned of the right to remain silent has little if any effect on whether patients will talk to psychiatrists before commitment hearings.

A group of psychiatrists in Wisconsin — with commitment patients must be read their rights before any interviews — found in a study that most patients talked anyway, recognizing their "need for help" and believing that "talking to staff was necessary to obtain it."

Death in the chair seems remote

From the This Won't Hurt a Bit department: The chances of dying from anesthesia in the dentist's chair are extremely remote, the National Institutes of Health concludes. About 1 in 250,000, according to the best estimate.

Berkeley campus sets AIDS aid

The University of California at Berkeley has announced an education campaign to help prevent the spread of AIDS on campus. "Right now, the emotional climate of the campus community is one of fear about the transmission of AIDS, the unknown aspects of the disease and its fatality rate." Campus health officials say two students and a staff member have died of the disease.

Rim to Rim Run set for Oct. 12; training run hours at site extended

TWIN FALLS — Runners are getting ready for one of Idaho's most challenging races, the Rim to Rim Run on Oct. 12. The scenic 7.5-mile race crosses from one side of the Snake River Canyon to the other. The race begins at 10:30 a.m., with registration at Blue Lakes Country Club at 9:30 a.m. Entry fee is $10.

The Rim to Rim Run is sponsored by Falls Brand Independent Meats, Idaho Frozen Foods, Newton's Sports Center and The Times-News.

Don Wood, manager of the country club, has extended the hours for runners to cross club property for practice runs. The new hours are before 9 a.m. and after 6 p.m. daily. Wood requests that runners call the club at 733-2330 to obtain permission to be on the property.

For the first time, a Youth Fun Run for ages 6-12 will be held in conjunction with the Rim to Rim. The 1-mile run begins at 9:30 a.m. and advance registration is required. The fee is $6. To register, or for more information about either run, call the YFCA at 733-4384.

Celebrity ski invitational kicks off Sun Valley's 50th anniversary year

SUN VALLEY — The 1986 Sun Valley Celebrity Ski Invitational slated for Jan. 30 through Feb. 2 has already been arranged with more than a dozen "super celebrities" scheduled to participate.

The event opens Sun Valley's 50th anniversary year and will be hosted by Hollywood star Paul Newman as a benefit for the Scott Newman Foundation. Part of the proceeds will be donated to a local Sun Valley charity.

A limited number of tickets for a benefit banquet Feb. 1 in the Limestone Room of the Sun Valley Inn will go on sale Nov. 1.

In addition to Newman, 15 other celebrities will be attending the gala benefit dinner. These include William Devane, Robert Wagner, Jill St.

John, Albert Finney, Clint Eastwood, Jon Collins, Linda Evans, Sidney Poller, George Hamilton, William Shatner, Joe Theisman, Cliff Robertson, Raquel Welch, Sean Connery and Michael Caine. Additional information is available by calling Marjoe Gortner, (213) 655-1400, or after Nov. 1, Sun Valley Co., 622-4111, extensions 221 or 2433.

Looking good

Cherry's Quarterly magazine says yellow is this year's biggest hit of 1985 color. It's also the color of the season. Yellow is a warm, sunny color that's perfect for fall. It's also a color that's easy to wear. Yellow is a color that's perfect for fall. It's also a color that's easy to wear.

Argyle Vics with fall's harbinger

Tartan plaids are a frequent harbinger of fall, but this year they've given some competition to argyle. Argyle patterns are a classic fall color. They're also a color that's easy to wear. Argyle is a color that's perfect for fall. It's also a color that's easy to wear.

Good negotiating limits issues, opens doors to possibilities

When there are issues in your relationship, do you fight to the bitter end to get your way? Or do you throw up your hands in despair and just give in — only to feel angry and resentful because you lost?

Jo Ann Larsen

Or do you negotiate? Most couples don't go to the bargaining table to resolve smoldering complaints. Nor do they deliberately negotiate when they disagree. They simply don't realize they have that choice.

For some, not negotiating can be deadly. As one author astutely observed, "The war is filled with marriages that failed because people didn't know how to negotiate instead of fight."

If you happen to be one of those people who views a disagreement as a war you don't want to lose, you'll find that negotiation can work wonders for you, giving you a sure-fire method of resolving disputes without the usual battle scars.

negotiating but you do need guidelines so here are some that can help.

CHOOSE YOUR ISSUES. If you want to settle an ongoing battle over household chores, rest assured it will not advance your position to note your partner is perpetually late, always overdraws the bank account and never remembers your anniversary.

Muddying the water with other matters will only confuse you both and short-circuit efforts to negotiate. So be persistent about sticking to the subject and bringing a meandering discussion back to the issue at hand.

CHOOSE THE TIME AND PLACE. Launching a heavy-weight discussion when your partner is halfway into the bathroom or late to work will only have disastrous consequences. So don't just dump your problem and expect your partner to listen whenever you're in the mood. Instead, give some room by asking when would be an opportune time to have a talk about whatever's concerning you.

USE HUMOR TO DO A LITTLE MOOD CHANGING. Marcia Lasswell and Norman Lorange, authors of "No-Fault Marriage," relate the story of a wife who continually wrote her husband notes and reminders that she always sign-you'll feel like negotiating or making amends. As Victor Borge aptly observed, "Laughter is the shortest distance between two people."

MONITOR YOUR APPRECIATION/DEPRECIATION RATIO. When you talk about a problem, put it in perspective by pointing out air without the draft. The librarian solved the problem with "possibility thinking." She looked beyond the positions of the fighters for other possibilities — and found one that fit the needs of both. When you run into problems — you're cinging desperately to one position and your partner to another — STOP! Pull out your possibility thinking and ask, "What creative ways are there to solve this problem?"

Together list as many possibilities as you can — including even those that seem farfetched — without either of you criticizing the other's suggestions. Then rate the options on a scale of "1" ("low") to "10" ("high" "fit") and choose your solution from among those you both rank high.

Negotiating can replace bickering to become the habit couples revert to whenever they disagree. So why not start negotiating today and opt for peace instead of war in your relationship?

Jo Ann Larsen, D.S.W., is a Salt Lake City family counselor and a daughter of Dr. Ivin M. and Alice Jackson of Kimberly.

DO THE UNEXPECTED — BE APPROACHABLE! Put yourself in your partner's place and try to feel the way he or she feels. Instead of trying to discount or minimize your partner's position, say surprising things such as "I'd like to understand your position better" or "I really want you happy with any decision we make." Remember, you're not trying now to "beat the other side" — you're trying to make the other side — and yourself —

Together list as many possibilities as you can — including even those that seem farfetched — without criticizing the other's suggestions.

ed, "Love, Wife." "One night," her husband reported, "we had a big argument. We went to bed still angry. The next morning I found a note beside my coffee cup. It was a serious comment on our dispute but it was signed 'Distant Relative.' The joke didn't solve anything, but it did open the way for us to start talking again."

things your partner is doing right as well as things you want changed. For example, maybe you want your partner to be more affectionate. Even so, acknowledge ways he or she now is affectionate or now shows caring for you. Keep your ratio of positives to negatives high.

USE "POSSIBILITY THINKING." Roger Fisher and William Ury, authors of "Getting to Yes: Negotiating Agreement Without Giving In," tell the story of two men quarreling in a library. One wanted the window open and the other wanted it closed. The librarian watching the bickering asked the first man why he wanted the window open. "To get some fresh air," he said. Turning to the second man, she asked why he wanted the window closed. "To avoid a draft," was the reply. After thinking for a moment, the librarian opened a window in the next room, bringing in some fresh

Manage stress before it rules you

By DIANE HANSEN, Ph.D. The Prilkin Center

There are no shortcuts to gaining control of our daily lives. The best relaxation techniques are preventive and involve making a conscious effort to stay aware of our body's signals and to stay ahead of distress. Here are some ways to prevent or manage stressful situations.

UNDERSCHEDULE WHERE POSSIBLE. We seem to want to tackle more than is humanly possible. Successful coping with our daily lives requires that we shed our "super-person" garb. You may not be able to do everything for everyone perfectly now or ever.

Design some flexible time between appointments. Set up a list of priorities the night before and allow it to be okay if your goals are not met today. Once a week write "ME" on your calendar and give yourself the gift of an unstructured "open" time experience.

START THE DAY IN A SPECIAL WAY. Wake up a few minutes earlier to begin the day with an enjoyable activity such as walking around your neighborhood or on the beach, leisurely reading the paper or eating a nutritious breakfast. Because it is your own special time, it is not important what you do, but rather that you enjoy what you are doing!

PACE YOURSELF. You might find that unexpected circumstances are controlling your daily activities and as the day unfolds you are "trying to" accomplish more than is possible. Stepping back to enjoy a mid-morning stretch and/or a fruit break can be refreshing. Relaxation techniques are also helpful to break up the day. These techniques will be described later in the article.

Occasionally, design a non-business lunch that will provide variety and pleasure to your week. For example, take a box lunch to a museum, enjoy shopping, meet a friend, exercise at your favorite club or outdoors.

TAKE CHARGE OF YOUR EMOTIONS. Withdraw temporarily when your temper flares. Work through situations rather than react to them. Laugh once in a while and avoid taking yourself too seriously.

AEROBICIZE AND EAT RIGHT. Although it is not certain how the benefits of physical activity relieve stress, researchers agree that exercise does promote positive physical and mental changes.

QUICK RELAXATION TECHNIQUES. You should relax often and well. Here are some techniques to help you:

1. Quick calm: 3-6 seconds
Inhale normally then exhale slowly while audibly "sighing." This is repeated the "sigh breath." Do 3 to 4 times throughout the day or when you become conscious of tension buildup.
2. Optional addition to the sigh breath: 60 seconds
After the sigh breaths, close your eyes and consciously tell yourself to relax. Imagine yourself in a place that is very comfortable, safe and peaceful. This place can be real or imaginary. Allow yourself to go there in your mind's eye and be there for a minute or two. Open your eyes, take a deep breath and slowly exhale.
3. Quietening Response: 30 to 50 seconds Countdown from 10 to one. Breathe deeply and slowly exhale with each number. You can also substitute colors for the numbers. Countdown: Red — Orange — Yellow — Green — Blue — Violet.

4. Progressive Relaxation: 15 minutes
This technique involves going through a series of body parts: tightening muscle groups, becoming conscious of how the tension feels, and then relaxing them. Tapes for this exercise are readily accessible.

5. Meditation: 20 minutes twice daily
Meditation techniques have the advantage of producing an "alpha" state which, achieved for 20 minutes, can be more restful and beneficial than a nap for 1 1/2 hours. When practiced regularly, many people report more control over their daily choices.

RESTRUCTURE NEGATIVE THOUGHTS. Based on the belief that you are in charge of what you think, here is a three-step approach to alter negative thinking:

1. Become aware when your self-talks seem defeating and negative.
  2. Yell STOP! Saying it mentally will work after you have practiced out loud on 15 different occasions.
  3. Every time a negative thought occurs, substitute a positive thought. It really works!
- Sustaining your health and creating a comfortable lifestyle is based on your capacity to:
- Reconstruct your lifestyle so you are in control;
  - Use relaxation techniques regularly;
  - Halt negative thoughts.
- If you heighten your sensitivity to the above factors and make them happen, you will have the enjoyment of living in harmony, balance and control.

Self-sedating device helps patient control pain

By ANN JAPENGA Los Angeles Times

Following back surgery in 1977, Dorothee Triest of Menlo Park, Calif., fell as though she was on a roller coaster as the pain surged and receded. She never got used to the excruciating wait — that gap between the time when she would press the nurse-call buzzer, and the moment when pain medication was injected and finally began to give relief. The worst part, the 62-year-old retired social worker said, was that the pain management was out of her hands. Triest was back in Stanford Hospital last week for a total hip replacement. But this time, when she felt the pain approaching an unacceptable level, she simply reached to her bedside for something that resembles a nurse-call cord. Triest would depress a button, and a buzzer would sound to tell her a dose of pain medication was being released directly into her bloodstream through an attached intravenous line.

"By doing it yourself, you feel somehow a little more in control of the pain," Triest said in a telephone interview from her hospital bed. "It's not something that's being done to you."

Leaders in anesthesiology predict that the device Triest was using, called a PCA (patient controlled analgesia) unit, will become the norm for managing pain in post-operative and cancer patients within five years.

While patient controlled analgesia is in use mostly at total hip and total hip-affiliated institutions around the nation, Dr. Ronald Katz, chairman of the Department of Anesthesiology at the University of California, Los Angeles, argues that PCA "is not a research issue anymore."

To do for you

"To Do for You" is a calendar listing health-related activities, events and education. Information should be submitted by Thursday for publication in the following Monday's Reach section. Mail notices to The Times-News, P.O. Box 546, Twin Falls, 83303, or deliver them to our office at 132 Third St. W.

sponsored by Moritz Community Hospital and the Blaine County School District, will be held Oct. 2 from 1-4 p.m. at Wood River High School Gymnasium. Speakers will be Dr. Christine Pickford, educational psychologist; Dr. James Cooper, adolescent psychiatrist; and Dr. Stephen Lubert, pediatrician.

Arthritis course provides skills

TWIN FALLS — The Idaho Chapter of the Arthritis Foundation will offer a self-help course in managing arthritis.

The course is designed for people with arthritis and their families. It will provide information about the disease, and a variety of management techniques including the best use of arthritis medication. The six-week course will be held Wednesdays, beginning Oct. 2, from 7-9 p.m. in the classroom at the Twin Falls Police Station. For more information and an application, interested persons should call Dean Mayes at 734-5893.

Breast cancer screening offered

TWIN FALLS — A breast cancer seminar will be held Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. in the cafeteria at Magic Valley Regional Medical Center. A physician will lecture on breast cancer incidence, mortality and symptoms.

At the seminar, participants may sign up for a clinic scheduled for Oct. 9 at which self-breast examination techniques will be taught and a mammogram can be arranged.

The seminar and clinic are free, however, there is a $60 charge for xeromammography. For more information, call 737-2000 and ask for Educational Services.

Physician prescribes TV to inform public on health

David Watts is a photographer who was hand-picked to study his craft with Ansel Adams in the wilds of Yosemite. He plays jazz bass and classical French horn. He's a composer of serious music and Christmas carols, a published poet and a children's author.

Furthermore, Watts is a husband, a father of five, a skier, jogger and tennis player who'll turn 46 on his next birthday and looks, maybe 34, 35 years old. He smiles a lot.

And he eats right. David Watts, M.D., wants you to eat right, too and look 10 years younger and live 10 years longer, and have the energy to fly down mountains and take up new hobbies and keep up with your kids. That's one reason Watts will be seen as co-host, along with Jane Brody, science and medical reporter and columnist for The New York Times, when "The National Nutrition Quiz" airs on Public Broadcasting Service (PBS) stations tonight.

Watts, a trim, curly-headed internist who grew up in Texas and now serves on the faculties of the Stanford University and University of California medical schools, is a strong believer in television as the ideal medium for spreading health information.

"TV is our single most powerful tool of communication," he says. "We know now that people retain much better what they both see and hear on TV than information they get through seeing or hearing separately. I saw a change coming in the areas of fitness and health about 10 years ago, and seven years ago I began to explore using television as a way to help people increase their knowledge."

These explorations have included "Health Notes," Watt's continuing series of five-minute fitness tips currently seen on most PBS stations, and a cable series aimed at health professionals.

But is information about health and nutrition what people really want from their television? Watts concedes that programs like "The National Nutrition Quiz" aren't likely to push "Dallas" into the ratings cellar, but he believes he and co-host Brody will reach a large and interested audience when the one-hour PBS special airs. "Oh, there's no question. The curiosity level of the general public is so high for this type of information — anything at all about fitness as a whole. There's a certain group that is out there actively seeking good, reliable information they can apply right now to their daily lives. Others," he continues, "may not be looking for radical changes, but they'll pick up one, two or three facts that they can do something about."

Many of the facts Watts and Brody pass along in "The National Nutrition Quiz" deal with what not to eat, or what to eat less of, rather than which foods one should seek out. "As an internist," Watts explains, "I see nutritional problems everyday, but they aren't nutritional deficiencies. The problem in this country is our nutritional excesses: too much fat, too much salt, too much or practically everything."

The natural question is, why? "Because they taste so good!"

"No, it's just taste," Watts believes. "Our taste buds, unfortunately, don't choose the foods that are most beneficial."

Fortunately, Watts doesn't think the only answer is to lead a life of sensory deprivation. "When we finally begin to change our eating habits," he says, "our taste buds will eventually come around to recognize the sensory stimulation that is just as present in nutritional foods as in the others. We can end up seeking the good stuff and being repulsed by the foods we used to love."

PBS airs nutrition special tonight

If we truly are what we eat, then most of us are walking storehouses of cholesterol, saturated fat, a dozen different kinds of sugar and enough salt to cure a fair-sized side of beef. To find out just what this means and get some solid information on what can be done about it, television viewers can take "The National Nutrition Quiz," a one-hour Public Broadcasting Service (PBS) special airing tonight.

"The National Nutrition Quiz," produced for PBS by KERA, Dallas/Fort Worth, is hosted by nationally known health advocates Jane Brody and David Watts, M.D. Brody, longtime science and medical reporter for The New York Times, has authored five health-related books, including the 1981 best-seller "Jane Brody's Nutrition Book" and the soon-to-be-released "Jane Brody's Good Food Book." Her "Personal Health" column appears weekly in The Times and is syndicated to more than 100 other American newspapers.

Watts, a practicing physician who serves on the faculties of the Stanford University and University of California medical schools, is best known to national television audiences for his long-running "Health Notes" series on PBS. He is also host of ongoing health-care series on radio and on cable television's Lifetime channel. In "The National Nutrition Quiz," Brody and Watts lead viewers through the bewildering maze of foodstuffs that looms so large in our lives. A program for the whole family, the quiz explores facts and fantasies about nutrition and, in a fun and entertaining way, presents up-to-date scientific data on the protective and destructive properties of the awesome array of things we swallow during a given day.

The questions themselves are interspersed throughout the hour like herbs and spices in a tasty salad dressing, beginning at the top of the show with a series of questions that allow the viewer to evaluate his or her own health profile. As the program progresses, the questions range from the basic — "How much sugar is in one tablespoon of ketchup?" — to the more complicated, such as the amount of cholesterol found in an ounce of red meat and the connection between fatty foods and certain cancers.

By the end of "The National Nutrition Quiz," the viewer will understand the relationship of nutrition to obesity, diabetes and major killers such as heart disease and cancer, as well as to simple "good health" and overall fitness.

Protein gorging's dangerous

By KEN SPRAGUE
Los Angeles Times

A few decades ago, there was near-unanimous agreement among athletic coaches about the wonders of protein. "Eat as much meat and eggs as your parents will tolerate, and then wash it down with a high-protein drink," was the familiar refrain. A generation has passed, and many coaches still say basically the same thing. Well, the fact is that any coach who tells you to eat T-bone steaks until they're coming out of your ears is wrong.

Unlimited omelets and stacks of mutton chops are good for no one. The average person requires approximately 60 grams of protein a day — which might come from two eggs at breakfast, a fish stick at lunch and a lamb chop — at dinner. Larger amounts of protein could create problems.

But athletes regularly exert themselves more than the average person, so surely their recommended protein intake should be more than 60 grams a day, right? Wrong. Dr. Carter (whose views are widely shared in medicine) states: "Massive amounts of protein do nothing to help an athlete's performance or muscle growth. In fact, too much protein can actually harm an athlete."

EPA, Forest Service to test mountain lakes

By KENNETH A. BROWN
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Susceptibility to acid rain will be a focus of a water quality survey being conducted in the Sawtooth National Forest.

The U.S. Forest Service and the Environmental Protection Agency are in the process of conducting the EPA's National Surface Water Survey in the Sawtooth National Forest. A total of 22 lakes are being sampled, including 17 in the Sawtooth Wilderness Area. The other five are located in the Sawtooth National Recreation Area and the Ketchum Ranger District.

The National Surface Water Survey is an effort to establish baseline data on the status of lakes in the United States which may be susceptible to damage by acid rain, or already damaged by it.

Sampling will be done off foot and on horseback, as well as by helicopter in some instances. In the Sawtooth Wilderness Area, the Forest Service has required the EPA to do its sampling on foot and on horseback so as to not disrupt the wilderness qualities of the area with a helicopter.

The EPA will also do a "control" sample with both foot and helicopter samples to assure there is no difference in results.

The EPA had wanted to use helicopters for all of its sampling because timing is critical for the samples. Once taken from the lake, samples must reach the field lab within 24 hours to ensure no changes in water quality or chemistry.

The field lab for lakes in the Sawtooths is in Missoula, Mont. Once taken from the lake, samples will be carried by "runners" to trailheads, where they can be picked up by vehicles and taken to the Stanley airport. From Stanley they will be flown to Montana.

Acid rain occurs when oxides of nitrogen and sulfur are emitted into the atmosphere. The combustion of fossil fuels in power plants, factories and automobiles is the leading man-made source of these acid-rain-producing substances. In general, automobiles are responsible for most of the nitrogen oxides while coal-fired power plants and factories release most of the sulfur oxides.

Elsewhere in the country acid rain has been linked to serious environmental problems. While natural factors can cause the acidity of lakes to increase, acid rain contributes to the problem. In extremely sensitive areas, such as upstate New York or New England, acid rain may even change the chemistry of lakes and streams, killing fish and other aquatic life.

Lakes and streams differ in their capacity to "buffer," or neutralize, acid rain. According to a pamphlet put out by the EPA, the limited data available suggests that the West may have a large population of highly sensitive watersheds with little or no buffering capacity.

Last year the EPA sampled over 2,000 lakes in the East and West. This fall the EPA will be sampling 900 lakes in the West.

The data is a "vital" part of the agency's research on acid rain, according to the EPA's pamphlet. In addition to adding to the agency's own store of information on the issue, the data will be reported to Congress, where it will be used to guide future legislation on controlling acid rain.

Chemical storage plan stirs citizen debate

By ANNETTE CARY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls residents Ethel Ikenberry and Georgene Mason say Twin Falls needs to restrict the storage of hazardous chemicals to one area of the city.

But please, they say, don't restrict it to their neighborhood.

Ikenberry and Mason live in the southeast corner of the city. It's the same area that the Twin Falls Citizens Ordinance Committee wants designated as the only place within city limits where large amounts of hazardous chemicals such as pesticides may be stored.

"I think the people who proposed this to the council would object if it was in their neighborhood, too," Mason says. The two women are countering the proposal being considered by the City Council with an alternate plan to restrict storage of hazardous chemicals even further from the center of the city.

The original proposal, before the council grew out of the concern of neighbors in the Buena Vista area where two warehouses storing pesticides were located until this year.

Tests did not confirm allegations, but neighbors there believed chemical fumes in the area were making some of them ill. With the help of Idaho Neighbors Network, they have been working for at least three years to see some controls put on the storage of hazardous chemicals.

Pam Shropshire, chairperson of INN and the ordinance committee, conceded when the new regulations were proposed that the new plan is not ideal. Rather it is a compromise worked out by members of INN, health care workers, environmental specialists, city advisors and a representative from the chemical industry, she said.

One of the compromises the ordinance committee made was to restrict storage to certain zones, rather than restrict it from all residences, as had been proposed to the council unsuccessfully in an earlier plan by INN.

They now are proposing that chemical storage be restricted to the heavy industrial zone that includes the Chamber of Commerce Industrial Park in the southeast corner of the city.

That would not only prevent warehouses in the Buena Vista neighborhood from again being used for chemical storage, but would provide protection for the rest of the city. The area is downwind from the center of the city, lessening the danger from poisonous smoke or fumes in the event of a spill or fire.

Now there are no restrictions on where large amounts of hazardous chemicals may be stored in the city. City officials say that means they could be stored in warehouses near downtown or some schools.

Ikenberry and Mason say the danger of storing large amounts of hazardous chemicals in the core of the city is clear. But even with the ordinance committee's proposal, the warehouses could still be located less than a mile from downtown Twin Falls; City Hall and Bickel Elementary School, they say,

The warehouses would be sharing the industrial area with food industry firms such as Independent Meats and Amalgamated Sugar, which were there before it was zoned industrial by the city. They are proposing that any more storage of hazardous chemicals be limited to the eastern portion of the approximately 100 acre area proposed by the ordinance committee. That area is less densely populated. The ordinance committee's proposal would not effect existing businesses. The three businesses that do store large amounts of hazardous chemicals, as defined by the Uniform Building Code, are located in the larger zone proposed by the ordinance committee. Ikenberry and Mason say they can live with those businesses, but do not want to see additional warehouses storing chemicals move into their neighborhood.

BLM land exchange site in Jerome being groomed for sale

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News correspondent

JEROME — The 120-acre Desert Park Development site in Jerome County is currently being improved for sale to commercial interests.

Larry Hughes of Twin Falls, one of the owners of the property, said Thursday the owners began recently to level the ground and remove rocks in preparation for sale of lots. He said the owners anticipate interesting such businesses as motels, restaurants, service stations, convenience stores and other tourist related services. It is a natural location for such businesses, he added.

In addition to land clearing and leveling which is now under way, Hughes said owners will be installing utilities and roads for future buyers.

The 20 to 22 acres of highway frontage will be regraded first, he said. There is a well already on the property for water supplies, and the owners will install their own sewage treatment facility. Once the sewage is treated, the effluent will be carried by pipe to the Snake River, where it will be discharged in a treated form that will meet state and federal standards.

Hughes said there will be three access roads into the property from U.S. 93, and owners will build the streets through the project prior to sale of building sites.

The 120 acres were originally traded by the Bureau of Land Management to the Thorn Creek Land and Cattle Assn. for a larger acreage at Thorn Creek Reservoir, which the federal agency says is suitable for recreational uses and wildlife habitat. The Desert Park Development Assn. purchased the site previously owned by the Thorn Creek cattle association and is going ahead with plans to sell individual lots to interested businesses.

Hughes said he believes the area, once it is developed, will serve as a major benefit to both Jerome and Twin Falls counties.

It is located on the west side of U.S. 93 and just south of I-84. Development is designed to attract motorists into the area from the interstate.

"They (tourists) can't see any reason to stop now, and most of them are passing us by," Hughes said. "Our project will get them off the interstate and into our area for a meal, gasoline or an overnight stop. Once they stop, they can be told of the various attractions in the area, and maybe some will stay a day or two in this area."

Hughes said that since U.S. 93 leads to both Sun Valley and Jackpot, Nev., there will be a good opportunity to advertise these areas as side trips offering entertainment and a sight-seeing break.

Hughes said he has a lot of confidence in the future of commercial and industrial developments on the north side of the Snake River.

The Desert Park site is one of several land swap efforts between federal and state agencies and private developers in the area north of the canyon.

Chamber may spin off 2 successful projects

By BOB FREUND
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The Greater Twin Falls Area Chamber of Commerce may spin off its successful Crime Stoppers program and the annual Western Days celebration as independent groups to help streamline the business organization.

The board of directors is considering narrowing the chamber's activities as part of a year-long evaluation aiming at formal accreditation by the U.S. Chamber of Commerce.

Although most of the changes will involve internal reorganizations, the chamber also may usher several projects out on their own, handing them over to the community for funding and other types of support, said Chamber President Barney Carlson.

"What we're trying to do is to steer them to stand on their own feet," he said.

Among the activities being eyed are the Crime Stoppers program, which is run by the chamber's crime prevention committee; Western Days, which broke even this summer for the first time; and Bruin-Night for Twin Falls High School, which could be turned over to the Bruin Booster Club.

However, the chamber board has made no decisions yet on any of the projects. The board is trying to nudge aside "activity traps" — activities that don't directly pertain to the chamber's main goals and that might be done as well or better by the community at large, Carlson said.

"What we're looking at saying is, 'Maybe it's not in the best interest of the chamber to stay involved in those,'" he said.

The internal analysis is part of a drive to gain full accreditation as a professional chamber by the U.S. Chamber of Commerce. Fewer than 20 percent of the nation's chambers have the accreditation.

"We're looking at streamlining the chamber and becoming more effective and keying on economic development," said Executive Vice President Mike Dolton.

One proposal trims the number of chamber committees from 12 to seven and two subcommittees, he said.

The accreditation review, which will stretch into 1986, prompts chamber officials to look deeply into its internal structure, Carlson said. It also involves an independent check by the national chamber. Both can be beneficial to the organization, he said.

Status as an accredited chamber also can aid economic development, he said. "It carries a little bit of strength in dealing with site selection firms (for industries) ... in that they know they're dealing with a professional organization," he said.

Kidney transplant

Improved tennis is among benefits

By CLAUDINE CHAMBERLAIN
Times-News correspondent

TWIN FALLS — Armed with a new kidney, Jim Bohrn not only plans on returning to tournament tennis competition, he said he feels he will be "better than ever" next season.

Bohrn is back home in Twin Falls from Salt Lake City after a complicated kidney transplant operation Aug. 28 at the University Medical Center.

According to Bohrn, 31, his immune system was "too healthy." The new drugs used in kidney transplant operations were rejected by his body, causing repeated operations using different drugs, he said.

After going back to the oldest drug used for such operations, the transplant was successful — and Bohrn returned to Twin Falls last Friday night.

"The last two tournaments I was in before the operation almost ended up in triple crowns for me," he said. "If I can do that well on dialysis, I should be able to do even better now."

He was born with one defective kidney and, at the age of 8, had to have it surgically removed. Before his recent operation, he was on dialysis until the problems became worse and required a transplant, he said. Over his lifetime, Bohrn has had six operations on his kidneys.

Bohrn said he is going through some physical therapy-type exercises to gain back some of the muscle mass lost during the recent weeks, when his weight dropped by 14 pounds.

The first three months after a kidney transplant are the most critical, according to Bohrn. The average transplant lasts five years, but some may last up to 20 years. He said he thinks he'll be one of the 20-year cases.

When tennis season starts again, Bohrn said he will be out there competing. Until then, he plans on playing and refereeing basketball for church and city league teams.

Cycle mishap kills Utah girl

DECLIO — A 9-year-old Utah girl died of a broken neck Saturday when she was thrown from a three-wheel motorcycle operated by a 7-year-old companion just south of Declo.

Cassia County officers said Nicholas "Nickie" Heslop was riding behind the driver, Mandi Moss, 7, when the machine hit a bump, throwing both girls to the ground. Mandi was not seriously injured. The accident occurred about noon Saturday on the Dan Moss farm, said Deputy Sheriff Cary Bristol who investigated.

Parents of the victim, Bud and Jan Heslop of West Point, Utah, near Ogden, were vacationing in California and were not located until late Saturday night.

The girl was staying with her grandparents, Carl and Jane Heslop of West Point, who brought her to Declo on a visit to at the home of relatives, Mr. and Mrs. Dan Moss. They are the parents of Mandi Moss.

The two children were playing together and riding on the cycle when the accident occurred, the officer said. Bristol said he was not sure if the cycle struck some rocks or other object that caused it to eject both of the children.

Cassia County Coroner Paul Young said the Heslop child suffered a broken neck and was pronounced dead at Cassia Memorial Hospital after ambulance crews were unable to revive her at the scene.

Frozen lines hinder firemen

BURLEY — A double-wide mobile home on the Conrad Farms about 10 miles west of Burley was destroyed by fire Sunday morning when owners and firemen were unable to turn water on the fire because of frozen water pipes.

The fire occurred about 11 a.m. Sunday, apparently started from a hot water heater. Cassia County Deputy Sheriff Cary Bristol said the mobile home was used as housing for farm workers and all occupants got out without injury.

He said the loss would probably run from $20,000 to $30,000. The Burley Rural Fire Department responded but was unable to save the building.

Bristol said freezing temperatures have been recorded in the area the past several nights.

Divorce case decision upheld

BOISE (AP) — Decisions in a complicated Elmore County divorce action have been upheld by the Idaho Supreme Court on a 4-1 ruling, despite a claim by the lone dissenter that the rulings were procedurally flawed.

The court on Tuesday upheld rulings in a divorce action involving Irvine Le Vine and Joan Le Vine Spickelmeier. Key portions of the case involved Le Vine's military pension, disposition of community assets and debts and Le Vine's veterinary practice.

Lower courts held the ex-wife was entitled to 11 percent of her ex-husband's military pension, to child support payments and 48 months of payments for "spousal support" to allow her to complete college.

Justice Robert Bakes dissented in part, over procedural grounds.

Bakes noted that at one time, since a magistrate's findings were not final, yet were appealed, the case was under consideration by magistrate, district and the Supreme Court at the same time.

Sound, electronic gear stolen

TWIN FALLS — The theft of $300 worth of sound and electronic equipment from the Fine Arts Building at the College of Southern Idaho was reported to police over the weekend.

Police reported the theft occurred on Friday following use of the facility by a jazz band. Speakers, a microphone and other items were among the equipment reported missing.

Another weekend incident was reported by Diane Porter of Buhl who said her vehicle was damaged in Twin Falls early Saturday morning. She estimated $50 damage when someone took a blunt instrument and tore open the top of her convertible. The car was parked at 121 Fourth Ave. S. at the time, she said.

Batt rebuts Libya tie charges

BOISE (AP) — State Sen. Phil Batt, R-Wilder, is defending Sen. Steve Symms against Democratic Party attempts to link him to Moamman Khadafi, the strong man of the Libyan government.

Batt issued a statement Saturday saying that Symms, R-Idaho, only joined others in attempting to sell Idaho products to Libya. When it became apparent Khadafi was unstable, Batt said the effort was dropped.

Bethine Church, widow of former Sen. Frank Church, defeated by Symms in a tough 1980 U.S. Senate race, signed a Democratic fund-raising letter attempting to link Symms with Khadafi.

"Unfortunately, we can't be extremely selective in choosing the countries we sell to," said Batt, who lost the 1982 governor race to Democrat John Evans.

"John Evans has been vigorously courting trade with Red China although that repressive government has murdered hundreds of thousands of its own people. Nevertheless, if we don't sell to such questionable customers, other countries, friend and foe alike, are eager and willing to do so," Batt said.

Studded tires legal on Oct. 1

BOISE (AP) — Studded tires became legal Tuesday on Idaho's 5,000-mile state highway system, though winter-like driving conditions aren't forecast this week.

Tires with tungsten carbide studs will be allowed on state highways through April 15.

The State Transportation Department warns that studded tires should be mounted on the same wheels from which they were removed the previous winter. Otherwise, the worn studs will be backwards on the tire and have a tendency to flip out when in motion, officials said.

Liquor prices rise in state

BOISE (AP) — Idahoans have one more day before a federal tax increase forces the prices of spirits to rise in state-run liquor stores.

Because of a federal tax increase, prices in the stores will go up about 12 percent effective Tuesday, said Mike McAllister, superintendent of the State Liquor Dispensary.

Federal taxes will go from $10.50 to $12.50 per hundred-proof gallon, with prices adjusted for variations in proof and quality.

The state will pass along the price increases, but will not increase its markup, he said.

The state expects liquor sales to drop 6 percent because of the price increase, McAllister said.

Blackfoot area agent thinks crop will be small potatoes

BLACKFOOT (AP) — Potato combines are just starting to roll west of Blackfoot, but based on early harvest reports in American Falls, Fort Hall and Aberdeen, the 1995 potato crop will be a disappointment.

Bingham County potato agent Ed Musselman said the anticipated yields just aren't there. Musselman said the fluctuating weather, especially in August where it became unseasonably cold and then very warm, affected irrigation habits.

"From what I've seen, it's not the crop we've expected," Musselman said.

Not only is tuber size down, but the general quality has been poor. Musselman said he has seen some good quality potatoes but on average quality is "pretty poor." Musselman said the harvest is about 30 to 40 percent finished in Fort Hall, Aberdeen and American Falls. Blackfoot, areas west and Shelley and Idaho Falls are just gearing up. Snake River School District just let out for its annual two-week potato harvest.

Musselman said some farmers have found they've had to water their fields to get the moisture content back around the 50 percent mark. Some fields have been so dry that the dirt clods have been too hard and won't break away from the potatoes. That causes bruising, he said.

Older morning temperatures are also forcing farmers to wait a little longer before heading out into the fields. Musselman said soil temperature needs to be about 45 degrees to dig potatoes without an unusual amount of bruising. While the harvest is gearing up towards full-scale digging, Musselman said there may not be good news once farmers try to market their product. Open market prices are expected to be below pre-harvest contract prices.

Musselman said those $3.50 to $3.75 prices plus incentives for specific gravity and lack of bruising will probably be the best farmers can expect.

He said processing plants are paying between $2 and $2.50 plus incentives. He said he expects the open market prices to fall somewhere between the process price and contract prices.

"Contract prices appear to be better," he said. "If you already have a contract, I think you're better off."

Pocatello candidate disputes claim INEL would be poor collider site

POCATELLO (AP) — Jim Elander, a Pocatello mayoral candidate, has disputed a Brigham Young University professor's statement that the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory is not a likely site for the $6 billion atom smasher.

Steve Jones, a BYU physics professor, said this past Thursday that the INEL "doesn't stack up against the sites in other states vying for the 'super collider.'"

Elander, one of eight announced candidates for the $40,000-a-year mayor's job, said, "Maybe physicists will design and operate the collider, but remember politicians will select the site."

In addition to the $6 billion cost of construction, the super-collider would employ 2,000 people and have an operating budget of $200 million annually. As the largest and most powerful facility of its kind in the world, it would host as many as 500 visiting physicists.

Jones said one of INEL's problems is its rugged terrain and proximity to earthquake zones.

Not so, Elander said. Noting that Harry Charyulu, Idaho State University's Engineering School dean, has studied INEL's location, Elander said the site "has plenty of flat ground" for the project. He said the INEL is also less likely to be af-fectured by earthquakes than Utah's proposed site.

"As for the university, Idaho Falls is only 60 miles from Pocatello and Idaho State University, whereas Utah's proposed site is at least 100 miles from the nearest college," he said.

Elander said if he were elected, one of his first priorities would be to develop a coalition with the mayors of Idaho Falls, Blackfoot and Arco to push for the project.

Idahoan's shooting ruled 'justified'

CLARKSTON, Wash. (AP) — The fatal shooting of a Kamiah, Idaho, man by a Washington State Patrol trooper here in early September has been ruled justified by a state patrol board and by the patrol's chief.

Trooper Rodney Schmidt shot Leland Ellenwood Sept. 7 outside

Clarkston residence about 30 minutes after Ellenwood, 36, allegedly was involved in a robbery of a nearby grocery.

State Patrol Chief George Tellevis Friday ruled the shooting justified after reviewing a report issued by an investigative patrol board.

Obituaries

Wayne H. Peterson
JAYHOME — Wayne H. Peterson, 72, of Jerome, died Saturday morning at his home following an illness.

Born May 31, 1913, in Mantel, Utah, he was reared — and educated — there and entered the printing business with his father while still in high school. He later moved to Richfield, Utah, where he continued in the printing business. He married Genevieve Poulsen at the Mantel LDS Temple on Aug. 28, 1936.

He served in the European Theater during World War II. He and his wife then moved to Jerome in 1947 where they have since resided.

He worked as a linotype operator for the North Side News and later for the Times-News. He retired in 1962. He was a member of the Disabled American Veterans and the LDS Church.

Surviving are his wife of Jerome; one daughter, Carol Scherer of Twin Falls; two brothers, Albert Peterson of Sandy, Utah, and Dale Peterson of College Station, Texas; seven grandchildren and eight great grandchildren. Mr. Peterson was preceded in death by four brothers, one sister and one grandchild.

The funeral will be conducted at 2 p.m. Tuesday in the Second Ward LDS Chapel on North Lincoln Street by Bishop Robert D. Robinson. Burial will be in the Jerome Cemetery with military graveside rites. Friends may call at the Hove-Robertson Funeral Chapel today from 9 until 11 a.m. and Tuesday from 9 until 11 a.m., and one hour prior to the service at the church.

Louwa Wallick
BULLH — Louwa Wallick, 81, of Bullh died Sunday in the Twin Falls Clinic Hospital after a short illness.

She was born in Moroni, Utah, on June 19, 1914, and came to Bullh in 1911 from Moroni. She attended schools in the Bullh area and married Jack Carr on July 4, 1935.

They moved to Colorado in 1935 and in 1945 they returned to Bullh. They then moved to San Diego for 15 years, returning to Bullh in 1960. Her first husband died and she later married F. E. Wallick, who also preceded her in death. She was a member of the LDS Church.

Surviving are one son, Keith Carr of Thurston, Calif., and three sisters, Amy Love of Twin Falls, Lorene Barrett of Ogden, Utah, and Eva Tyler of Bullh.

A graveside service will be conducted at 11 a.m. Tuesday in the West End Cemetery in Bullh. Friends may call at the Farmer Chapel in Bullh today from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. and Tuesday morning until time of services. The family suggests memorials to a favorite charity.

Marie Shockey
BLISS — Marie Shockey, 72, of Bliss, died Sunday in the Green Acres Care Center in Gooding.

Funeral services will be announced by Demary's Gooding Chapel.

Kenneth R. Grimsman
BURLEY — Kenneth Russell Grimsman, 71, of Burley, died Saturday afternoon in the Cassia Memorial Hospital of a sudden illness.

McClubb Funeral Chapel will announce services.

Nichole Heslop
BURLEY — Nichole Heslop, 9, of Ogden, Utah, died Saturday in a three-wheel motorcycle accident south of Declo.

The funeral service will be held later this week in Ogden. Local arrangements were handled by McClubb's Funeral Chapel.

Mary Josephine Houghton
BURLEY — Mary Josephine Houghton, 86, barnhart of Burley, died Sunday on Solinus, Calif.

Funeral services will be announced by the Payne-Mortuary in Burley.

District court

TWIN FALLS — The following criminal cases were recently heard in Fifth District Court in Twin Falls:

David B. Warnock, 36, 1351 Fifth Ave. East, Twin Falls, entered a plea of guilty to possession of a controlled substance, marijuana. Judgment was withheld and the defendant was placed on one-year probation with the stipulation he attend the Port of Hope South and a drug education program. The defendant was also ordered to pay restitution to the Twin Falls Police Dept. and was fined $115.50.

Dennis Lee Major, 24, 445 Quincy, Twin Falls, entered a plea of guilty to a reduced charge of escape by one charged with a misdemeanor. Major was sentenced to six months to run consecutive to the misdemeanor charge served and concurrent to time being served on a felony charge. The defendant was placed in custody of the Twin Falls County Sheriff for transportation to the Idaho State Penitentiary.

Scarlett Lorraine McCullough, 36, 750 All St., Twin Falls, was ordered to pay restitution to the Dept. of Health and Welfare in the amount of $1,930 on a felony charge of fraudulent procurement of public assistance. Following her plea of guilty McCullough was granted probation of three years and ordered to successfully complete the GED program, seek employment and pursue counseling. The defendant was also ordered to seek permission from the Dept. of Probation and Parole for any purchase over $200.

Jose L. Cabras, 47, Filer, entered a plea of guilty to the charge of aggravated assault and was ordered by the court to have no contact with his family nor consume any alcohol and to move from his residence. Sentencing was withheld until a presentence report has been filed and reviewed.

Harry Irving Martin III, 18, address unknown, entered a plea of guilty to two counts of first degree burglary. A presentence investigation report was ordered by the court and the defendant was remanded to the custody of the Twin Falls County Sheriff.

Brian Edward Smith, 28, 1520 Kimberly Road, Kimberly, was remanded to the custody of the Twin Falls County Sheriff following his plea of guilty to the charge of aggravated battery. A presentence investigation report was ordered.

Wilson James Sabon, 26, address unknown, was ordered to seek an evaluation by the Port of Hope following his plea of guilty to the charge of aggravated assault. The court also ordered a presentence investigation report.

Thomas Kessel, 23, 409 West Ave. E, Jerome, entered a plea of guilty to the charge of grand theft. Kessel was released on his own recognizance and a presentence report was ordered by the court.

William Arneson, 21, Rt. 6 Easton, Drive S., Twin Falls, was sentenced to a presentence probation and 180 days in the county jail, 176 days suspended. Arneson was sentenced for malicious destruction and ordered to reimburse the city of Twin Falls in the amount of $5,500 and the Public Defender $150. The court also ordered Arneson to pay $75 per month while on probation and was fined $115.50.

Marsh vies for Miss Teen-Ager crown

NANCY MARSH Represents Idaho

Kalyn Marsh, 18, daughter of Robert and Nancy Marsh, Twin Falls, will represent the state of Idaho as Miss Teen-Ager in the 1985 "Pageant of the States" in Orlando, Fla., Oct. 24-27.

She was fourth in the 1985 Miss Twin Falls pageant this summer, placing first in the evening gown competition. A 1985 graduate of Twin Falls High School, she won a trip to Houston, Texas, to compete in the national finals of the Office Education Association. While in high school she was a varsity cheerleader, participated in track, Bruin Club, Student League, drama and is a lifetime Thespian.

She now attends CSI on a trustee and pageant scholarship and works as secretary-bookkeeper for the Curry Bean Co., Inc., in Filer.

Robert Edward Murphy, a self-employed electrical engineer who moved to Twin Falls six months ago, is listed in the current issue of "Who's Who in the West." He was involved in the hydroelectric department of J-U-B Engineers in Boise the last several years.

Eric H. Herrgesell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Herrgesell, Jerome, was one of the American Servicemen volunteering to participate in the International Nijmegen marches. The 100-mile event is held in conjunction with the Dutch Summer Festival in Nijmegen, Netherlands.

He is a combat medic with the First Battalion, 36th Infantry, a Third Armored division unit based in Friedberg, West Germany. A 1982 graduate of Wendell High School, Herrgesell said one reason he volunteered for the strenuous march was to see Holland.

"I also volunteered to make my time here go faster so I can get home to my fiancée, Tamara," Herrgesell said. Military marchers train as teams and compete for team, as well as individual, awards. Both Third Armored Division teams earned awards for completing the march.

The medic says seeing the dairy farms in the Dutch countryside and the friendliness of the people compensated for the "foot agony" of the grueling four-day trek.

Patricia Deberry Siplon, Twin Falls, was listed on the summer quarter honor roll at Utah State University, Logan. The daughter of Don and Karine Siplon, Twin Falls, she is a sophomore at USU where she is taking a pre-med course.

Ina and Felix Boguslawski children and eight great-grandchildren.

Forget about windows if a tornado's coming

DEAR ABBY: I am a regular reader of your column in the Cape Girardeau (Mo.) Bulletin Journal, in which I read a letter from a Texan asking about tornado information.

Your advice to open two windows is no longer correct, according to Robert Hamilton, meteorologist-in-charge, National Weather Service Forecast Office in St. Charles, Mo. For many years, we also advised people that in the event of a tornado warning to open a window (or windows) on the side of the structure away from the approaching storm.

However, in the last few years, we instruct people to stay away from windows, and immediately seek shelter in the basement, in a closet under a stairway or in any strong supporting structure.

Abby, also tell your readers never to try to ride out a tornado in a mobile home or vehicle. There is no safe safety under a substantial structure, or in a ditch or culvert. Two-thirds of the persons killed in the Wichita Falls, Texas, tornado of '79 were trying to escape the storm in their cars.

—BRIAN MILLER, COORDINATOR OFFICE OF EMERGENCY PREPAREDNESS, JACKSON, MO.

DEAR BRIAN: Thank you for updating my information. And a standing ovation to all of the weather spotters who volunteer long hours, day and night, on some stormy hilltop, watching for approaching storms. It's a miserable and dangerous job, and you weather spotters deserve all the praise and recognition you can get.

DEAR ABBY: This problem has me frustrated. I'm an independent 27-year-old single woman. I have a full-time job; take courses at college at night and have little time for social life. My parents live, about an hour's drive from me, but in heavy traffic. It takes two hours each way. I visit them faithfully at least once a week usually on the weekend. I also try to spend every holiday with them, but every time I go there, I'm asked why I don't come more often. They tell me I'm a selfish, ungrateful daughter who doesn't care about her lonely parents. I hear this lecture for the first 30 minutes I'm there. And when I start to leave, whether I've stayed for two hours or 10, they say, "You're leaving already? You just got here. You always have to rush off. Come back when you have more time to visit." Their constant complaining about how little time I give them makes me angry. I honestly do the best I can, but if they don't lay off, I won't visit them as much in the future as I have in the past. Please help me. I dread those visits home.

DEAR HASSLED: If you're giving them as much time as you can, try harder in a loving way to make them understand. And let them know that you are very hurt by their complaints.

You can't change your parents, but you can reduce your anger and frustration by talking openly about your feelings.

DEAR ABBY: I had to write after reading the letter from "Speechless in Santa Ana," whose dinner guests canceled at the last minute because another couple couldn't make it. The same thing happened to me an hour before this couple was to arrive. She phoned and said, "Can we have a rain check?"

I replied, "Sure. Call me the next time it rains for 40 days and 40 nights!" Then I hung up.

Taps are turned off as drinks go fizzy

By FRED BAYLES
The Associated Press

How about something to drink? How about a new Coke? An old Coke? With or without caffeine? With or without calories?

A brew, maybe? Low-cal? Light alcohol? No alcohol?

Perhaps wine. Regular alcohol, light alcohol or no alcohol? A wine cooler? Maybe some fruit juice with sparkling water? Or just plain water?

Over the last two decades Americans have forsaken tap water for beverages with fizz and flavor. This year the nation will spend an estimated $60 billion to slake its thirst.

So seriously do people take their beverages that Coca-Cola's decision to fiddle with its 99-year-old formula became a front-page, cultural event.

Jesse Meyers, publisher of Beverage Digest, estimates the average consumer now drinks 42 gallons of soft drinks per year, 26 gallons of coffee, 25 gallons of beer, 30 gallons of milk and 43 gallons of water. That last figure is a bit misleading, since it counts the water contained in foods; for example, the water in a popsicle.

Fifteen years ago Americans quaffed 64 gallons of water to 27 gallons of soft drinks, 36 gallons of coffee, 23 gallons of milk and 19 gallons of beer. By the end of the decade, Meyers predicts, soft-drink consumption will hit 50 gallons per person compared to 35 gallons of water.

"Find me somebody who gets turned-on by a glass of tap water anymore," he challenges.

There are many theories about the change in the nation's drinking habits. Martin Romm, who follows the intricacies of the beverage in-

"The consumer is drinking water in other forms," he says. "Now it's water with flavor and no calories."

Public tastes also are influenced by the constant buzz of advertising. Coca-Cola spent an estimated $70 million last year proclaiming that Coke is it. Pepsi-Cola countered with around $50 million, using robots, space ships, even Michael Jackson, to tout the "Choice of the New Generation."

Cost is a small matter in the $23 billion soft drink industry, where a change in 1 percent of the market share is worth $230 million.

"It is a very, very important part of the business," says Ken Ross, a spokesman for Pepsi-Cola USA, which spent $1 billion for a 60-second commercial featuring the Jackson brothers. "This is a glutted market and you've got to find a way to separate yourself from the pack."

The boom in the fast food industry has encouraged America's fizzy habit. Meyers estimates a third of Coke's business and 19 percent of Pepsi's sales comes from food chains like McDonald's and Burger King.

"Everyday 6 percent of the U.S. population walks into McDonald's and has a soda," he says.

The fitness craze also altered drinking habits, and one of three sodas now sold is a diet brand.

Meyers, a student of the beverage industry for 24 years, theorizes the way we live determines our refreshment. Agrarian societies, he says, like beverages that are hot and/or acidic, like coffee, tea and beer.

Cancer studies Painkiller drug is under scrutiny

By SALLY SQUIRES
The Washington Post

The widely used painkiller acetaminophen — sold as a non-prescription drug under such brand names as Tylenol, T Dairil and Panadol — is being studied by two government agencies as a possible cancer-causing agent.

Both the National Cancer Institute, part of the National Institutes of Health, and the National Toxicology Program, a research arm of the National Institute of Environmental Health in North Carolina, are investigating whether this popular analgesic may cause cancer either through long-term use or by taking high doses.

In addition to these new studies under way, several other factors are part of the scientific debate on whether there is a link between acetaminophen and cancer. Among them are:

- The chemical, similarly to two other painkillers, is now banned in the United States because of its association with kidney cancer, and acetaminophen. The body metabolizes phenacetin by breaking it down in the liver to acetaminophen, and another compound called p-phenitidine.
- A 1983 NCI study showing that people who took both acetaminophen and phenacetin for three years or more had four times the expected rate of a type of cancer that affects a part of the kidney known as the pelvis. Because it was impossible for researchers to separate the individual effects of these drugs, the new NCI study is now under way to look at the effects of acetaminophen alone.

- A 1983 animal study by British researchers Antonia and Bojan Flaks that found that administering 10 times the daily human dose of acetaminophen caused malignant liver tumors in more than 80 percent of mice studied during an 18-month period. A similar study in rats, also by the Flakses, found that acetaminophen produced benign kidney tumors in these animals.

- Any one of these studies "might not have been that worrisome," says Dr. Robert Hoover, chief of NCI's environmental epidemiology branch. Taken together, however, they provide reason for continued study, he says.

Many questions about acetaminophen — and the studies of this drug — need to be answered, researchers say, since conflicting information appears in the scientific literature. Most recently, two Japanese groups attempted to repeat the Flaks study and reported earlier this year — in the Japanese Journal of Hygiene and the Japanese Journal of Cancer Research — that help resolve the issue is being done by the National Toxicology Program. NTP investigators routinely screen widely used drugs that were introduced to the market before the Food and Drug Administration began requiring drug manufacturers to show proof of safety and effectiveness. The NTP study on acetaminophen, begun in 1978 — well before the results of the Flaks study were known — is looking at whether this painkiller causes cancer in mice and rats. Results will be released sometime next year, says NTP chemist Richard Irwin, who heads the study.

Acetaminophen (pronounced a-sea-a-MIN-a-fin), was introduced to the American public some 90 years ago. It acts on the part of the brain known as the hypothalamus to increase loss of body heat and to lower fever. Like aspirin, acetaminophen can also control pain. Overdoses of acetaminophen, however, can be far deadlier than aspirin by causing severe and often irreparable liver damage and death.

Death made a teen icon out of Jimmy Dean

By RICHARD DE ATTLBY
The Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — Racing over the central California hills in the autumn twilight, the low-slung silver Porsche Cayenne he had been in a mere shadow of motion as it skidded the highway.

Driving the car was a 24-year-old actor named James Dean. It was Sept. 30, 1955. It was the day James Dean died.

The actor's death in a car crash transformed him from a movie actor on the brink of stardom to the patron saint of young American rebels. His portrayals of vulnerable and moody young men who openly expressed fear and pain became standards for a generation.

His mystique has endured. Rock songs such as the Eagle's "James Dean," and David Essex's "Rock On" evoke his name. The movie "P-30-55" studied the reactions of contemporary fans to Dean's death. A Broadway play, "Come Back to the Five and Dime, Jimmy Dean, Jimmy Dean," took aim at the hopeless nostalgia created by some fans.

Warner Bros. will show new prints of "Rebel Without a Cause" and "East of Eden" to commemorate the 30th anniversary of his death and has released a videotape package with all three Dean movies, including "Giant."

The James Dean Memorial Foundation plans to erect a $200,000 statue of the actor in Hollywood Cemetery, though Dean is buried in Fairmount, Ind. Thousands of fans were expected in Fairmount this weekend to commemorate the anniversary.

"This idolizing — it all started after his death," said Beulah Roth, who with her late husband, photographer Sanford Roth, befriended Dean in the last seven months of his life. Roth was following Dean in a station wagon the day he died.

Dean was on old State Highway 466, about 160 miles north of his San Fernando Valley home, on his way to a sports car race. He was approaching the village of Cholame when a college student in a Ford sedan turned in front of him.

"He's gotta see us! He's gotta stop!" Dean told his passenger, factory mechanic Roll Wuerthrich, though they had no brakes. The Ford rammed into the left side of the Porsche. Dean's neck and arms were broken, his left side crushed. Wuerthrich survived with a broken leg. Donald Turnpseed, who drove the Ford, was only slightly injured. No charges were filed against him.

Jimmy Dean, the patron saint of teen rebels, died 30 years ago today

Police estimated Dean had been averaging 75 mph along the narrow highway. Earlier that day, he had received a speeding ticket for traveling between 85 and 86 mph. In the months before his death, Dean could walk down a street without being mobbed.

He had been a sensation in "East of Eden," but that was the only movie released while he was alive.

"It wasn't so much his acting," said filmmaker Elia Kazan, who cast Dean as Cal Trask in "Eden." "It was his personality. He seemed very much like the character — edgy, mysterious and compulsive. I would even say there was something haunting."

Others remember him as playful, inquisitive and sometimes rude. Dean once spat on the floor of playwright Leonard Spigelglass. He sometimes showed up late on the set of "Giant" and wore a T-shirt and blue jeans at a press gathering instead of a suit and tie.

"He just didn't respond to normal social demands," said actor-director Corey Allen who appeared in "Rebel."

"He realized all that smiling and hand-shaking was just being untruthful." As a youngster, James Dean was driven to succeed. He was born in Marion, Ind., on Feb. 8, 1931, the only son of Winton Dean, a dental technician, and Mildred Dean. The family moved to Santa Monica in 1935. His mother died five years later. Jimmy returned to Indiana to be reared by an aunt and uncle.

He was a basketball star in high school, set a state record in pole vaulting and won a contest in 1949 for a reading from "The Pickwick Papers."

He studied theater at the University of California at Los Angeles and went to New York in 1951. He was in the 1952 Broadway flop, "See the Jaguar." However, Dean received good notices and was cast in "The Immoralist," in which he was spotted by Kazan.

Dean was a serious actor and intensely curious about art, literature and music. His favorite composers were Bartok and Schoenberg.

He also was fascinated with Antoine de Saint-Exupery's "The Little Prince," and wanted to make a movie of the fairy tale. A quote from the book, "What is essential is invisible to the eye," is on a plaque near a Dean monument in Cholame.

Dean responded warmly to friendship, but reacted with barnyard hostility if he sensed resentment, which gave him a reputation of being "difficult" on the set. "He was a very imaginative boy. I always

'He seemed very much like the character — edgy, mysterious and compulsive. I would even say there was something haunting.'

thought of him as a Tom Sawyer type," said actress Julie Harris who starred in "Eden." "Life was always an adventure to him. He never took the well-worn path. He always took his own road."

Though Dean had a love for fast cars, there was every indication that he wanted to live a very full life. The day before he died, Dean signed up for lessons in the Japanese fencing art of kendo after watching a match at a Buddhist temple in Los Angeles. He also wanted to go to Paris and meet Picasso and Cocteau.

In the past 30 years, fan club activity has slowed. However, Curtis Licensing Corp. says there is a huge market for a line of Dean memorabilia and clothing being offered this fall.

Among the items available are a red windbreaker jacket similar to the one Dean wore in "Rebel," a Stetson hat similar to the one he wore in "Giant," posters, dolls, satin pillows, sunglasses and a leather motorcycling jacket.

"It's central casting's portrayal of Jimmy that has attracted the youth of every generation ... the misunderstood young man," said Mrs. Roth.

However, Kazan has not been enticed by the Dean mystique. "I don't subscribe to it," he said. "I'm not hostile or anything, it's just not my business. "He was good for my film. He worked hard. And he did well. That's it — he's not one of my heroes."

In compliance with Section 67-5203(a)(1), Idaho Code, notice is hereby given that the Idaho Department of Health, has initiated rule-making. The proposed action, under Docket Number 0214-8501, involves the promulgation of rules governing inspection of care, Title 2, Chapter 14, Rules and Regulations of the Department of Health and Welfare. The action is proposed under the authority granted in Section 56-202(b) and Section 56-203(i), Idaho Code, for the purposes of updating and clarifying the provisions of rules governing inspection of care, effective as soon as possible.

The following is a descriptive summary of the substance of the intended action and of the principal issues involved:
The Department is updating the Department of Care rules to provide clarity for existing rules and the addition of materials necessary for program implementation. Definitions for active treatment and habilitation have been added to the scope. There has been simplification of definitions of skilled and intermediate care have been clarified; physician certification and recertification requirements have been clarified; required components of activities for admission to ICF/MR individuals have been specifically outlined; the process for recipient level of care change has been expanded; and a process required for corrective action has been added.

Within the time limits specified below, any person can review the proposed rules by submitting a written request to the Department of Health and Welfare, Administrative Procedure Section or in any of the regional administrative offices of the Department. Copies of the proposed rules will be made available upon written request specifying the docket number cited above and at a rate of ten cents (10¢) per page. Checks must accompany the request and be made payable to the Department of Health and Welfare for the amount of $1.00.

Anyone can submit written comment regarding the proposed rules, and any individual or industry who may be affected by the proposed rules is encouraged to submit information concerning the anticipated economic impact of the proposed action. For assistance on technical questions concerning

THE ACES BOBBY WOLFF

"Nothing is impossible for the person who doesn't have to do it." -Weller's Law.

Dummy knew how the play should have gone after the play was over. One wonders if he would have done better had he been faced with the test.

East played the diamond jack on West's 10 and South took the queen. This promoting West's jack.

East winning the king. South thought his problems were over, but they were just beginning.

West had signaled high-low in Trumps to show a third trump and a willingness to ruff. So East continued with the diamond king and another diamond. South had the choice of letting West's trump jack win the trick or ruffing with the queen.

Jerry-rigged Saints surprise 'Niners

By ERIC PREWITT
The Associated Press

SAN FRANCISCO — Dave Wilson outperformed San Francisco's Joe Montana, and the New Orleans Saints' patched-up offensive line dealt the 49ers' defense a lot of frustration Sunday.

"This is the biggest win we've had in a long time. It was a great birthday present," said Coach Bum Phillips, whose Saints presented him a 20-17 upset victory over the Super Bowl champion 49ers on his 62nd birthday.

Wilson's 43-yard touchdown pass to Eugene Goodlow early in the fourth quarter was the score that stood up for victory. The New Orleans quarterback passed for 189 yards and was sacked just once, while Montana had perhaps the roughest day of his National Football League career.

"Not bad for a makeshift line," tackle Ralph Williams said. "But I don't consider us a makeshift line

Seahawks routed 28-7 by resurgent Kansas City

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — The score in Kansas City's 28-7 conquest of the Seattle Seahawks Sunday did not give a true indication of what happened, said Chiefs Coach John Mackovic.

"We had some opportunities and some good breaks," Mackovic said. "I didn't think it was an one-sided game. The weather really played a factor and lots of things happened. Seattle is a good football team."

Bill Kenney fired two touchdown passes to Stephen Pate and safety Deron Cherry tied a National Football League record shared by about 16 others with four intercep-ptions on the slick, wet artificial turf. A cold, steady rain fell all day as the Chiefs raised their record to 3-1 and plunged the Seahawks to 0-2.

"We're all professionals. We wouldn't be here if we weren't. It's an awfully sweet victory. The Saints lost three offensive line starters with injuries a week earlier. Their starters Sunday included left guard Pete Perot, signed last Monday as a free agent.

Turnovers told the story, said Seattle Coach Chuck Knox. "You're not going to beat anybody with seven turnovers," he said. "It's a tough way to start if you leave the ball laying out there."

Knox brushed aside references to the cold rain. "We just didn't get it done," Knox said. "We didn't give ourselves a chance early in the game."

The Seahawks, six days after a lopsided Monday night loss to the Los Angeles Rams, killed themselves with mistakes. Herman Heard scored Kansas City's first touchdown early in the game on a 2-yard run after Danny Greene fumbled away a Chiefs' punt on the Seattle 5.

In the waning minutes of the second period, Krieg underneath his receiver and Greg Hill scampared to the 13. On third and goal from the 12, Terry Taylor was flagged for face guarding in the end zone to give the Chiefs a first down on the 1- and two plays later. Kenney jackknifed across the goal line for a 21-0 halftime lead.

"I can't give them enough credit for the job they did," Wilson said. San Francisco Coach Bill Walsh admitted, "We certainly felt we were a team playing in spurts and without consistency." The Saints' defense sacked Montana six times and intercepted him twice. The Super Bowl star completed only 12 of 26 passes for 120 yards and his longest completion was for 18 yards. His completion average was under .500 for only the third time in his seven-year career. "Nothing seemed to be working," Montana said. "It seemed like every defense they were in was just the right one."

The Saints finished with a 354-231 edge in offensive yardage.

A 79-yard San Francisco drive, ending with Roger Craig's two-yard touchdown run, gave the 49ers a 17-13 lead two minutes into the fourth period. But three minutes later, the Saints got the ball and scored on a three-play, 83-yard drive which began with Wayne Wilson's 38-yard run and ended with the TD pass to Goodlow.

Both teams came out of the game. See 49ers on Page D2

Round 1 goes to Marino

Elway loses, 30-26

By JOHN MOSSMAN
The Associated Press

DENVER — Miami's Dan Marino won his much-awaited duel with Denver's John Elway, passing for 390 yards and three touchdowns Sunday to lead the Dolphins over the Broncos 30-26 in National Football League action.

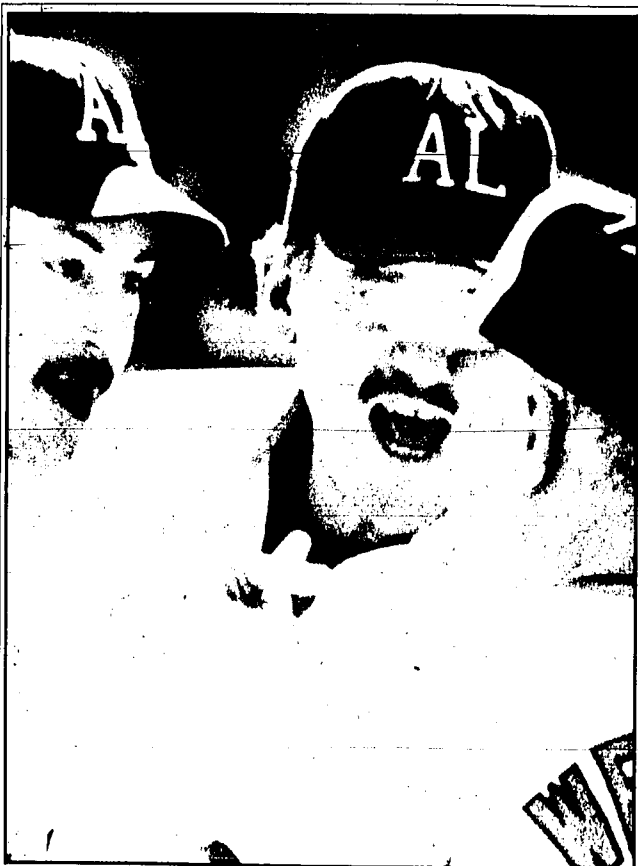

Marino — despite the loss of his best receiver, Mark Clayton, to a sprained ankle early in the third quarter — completed 25 of 43 passes and repeatedly kept the Denver defense off-balance, making full use of his available receivers. The victory raised the Dolphins' record to 3-1, while Denver fell to 2-2.

Marino put the Dolphins ahead for good late in the third quarter, flipping a pass to Clayton's backup, Vince Heflin, who spun away from two Denver defenders and dashed into the end zone to complete a 46-yard scoring play. It gave Miami a 27-23 lead, and the two teams traded fourth-quarter field goals to account for the final margin.

Marino earlier fired a 69-yard TD pass to Nat Moore, who had slipped undetected behind the Bronco secondary. His 24-yard flip to tight end Joe Rose gave Miami a 20-14 lead late in the first half.

Elway performed capably, helping maneuver the Broncos into position for a pair of scoring runs by Sammy Winder and one by Gene Lang. Elway completed 18 of 37 passes for 250 yards.

But the Broncos were victimized by two crucial fourth-period turnovers — a fumble by Winder at the Miami 39-yard line and a Bud Brown interception of Elway in the closing seconds.

Undeclared Bears maul Redskins, 45-10, as Gault, McMahon conspire

By JOE MOOSHL
The Associated Press

CHICAGO — Willie Gault's specialty is catching passes. He didn't catch a single pass Sunday but his 99-yard kickoff return for a touchdown turned things around completely for the Chicago Bears in a 45-10 victory over the Washington Redskins.

"Willie Gault's play was outstanding," said Bear Coach Mike Ditka, whose team is 4-0 and one of two unbeaten teams in the NFL. "It was the catalyst. The kickoff return turned on everybody. Even the fans."

It also turned around quarterback Jim McMahon who eventually was to throw three touchdown passes and catch another thrown by Walter Payton.

"It was the biggest play of the game," said McMahon. "I turned the whole game around. I had started our 0-0-4 with an interception."

Gault's kickoff return for a touchdown was his first in the National Football League.

"I felt it after the return," said Gault. "Everyone was pumped up and our defense started killing their guys."

The Redskins were leading 10-0 when Jeff Hayes, who also punts, kicked off and Gault took it on the one-yard line and broke it for a touchdown. Hayes injured his foot on the kickoff and didn't return to the game.

"I can't believe what's happening to us right now," said Washington Coach Joe Gibbs. "We suffer a 99-yard kickoff return and lose our punter all on one shot. From then on it's field position and you can't get behind the Bears. They're a great pass rush team."

Gault's return triggered a club-record 31-point second quarter.

McMahon threw touchdown passes of 14 yards to Dennis McKinhead and 10 yards to Emery Moorehead and also caught a 13-yard touchdown pass from Walter Payton on a halfback option during the flurry.

Kevin Butler booted a 28-yard field goal with four seconds left in the half to give the Bears their biggest single-quarter scoring spurge and a 31-10 halftime lead.

The Redskins, who dropped to 1-3, never recovered and the Bears put the game out of reach early in the third quarter when McMahon hit Payton with a 33-yard touchdown pass.

Washington had dominated play in the first quarter and mounted a 10-0 lead on the running of John Riggin and George Rogers and some short passes by Joe Theismann.

But they lost punter Jeff Hayes, who was injured on Gault's kickoff return and poor punts by Theismann and Jay Schroeder led to two of Chicago's touchdowns in the wild second quarter.

Rams victimize Atlanta, 17-6, even without Dickerson's legs

By KEN PETERS
The Associated Press

ANAHEIM, Calif. — With or without Eric Dickerson, the Los Angeles Rams continue to find ways to win.

With Dickerson sidelined for the second half with a hamstring pull, the Rams beat the Atlanta Falcons 17-6 Sunday to go 4-0 and remain apace with the Chicago Bears as the National Football League's only unbeaten teams.

This time, quarterback Dieter Brock, a 34-year-old NFL rookie, was the catalyst for the Rams, completing 16 of 20 throws for 215 yards and two touchdowns against the winless Falcons.

The Rams' defense, the club's one constant this season, again was excellent.

Los Angeles Coach John Robinson, who spotted Brock in the Canadian Football League and decided to trade away Vince Ferragamo in order to make room for him, said, "Dieter Brock is undefeated in the NFL. To my criterion, he's played very sound every game."

"I thought he had an outstanding game against Atlanta."

"I'm really good about the game," said Brock, who was able to take advantage of the Falcons' injured secondary. "I'm feeling real comfortable with our receivers now."

Dickerson said of leaving the game, "I'm not the Terminator. When I get hurt, it hurts. It was the coach's decision to take me out, but I didn't argue."

start since 1978, while the Falcons are off to their poorest since 1968.

"This game just wasn't in the cards for us," said Atlanta Coach Dan Henning. "I have a lot of respect for their defense."

"Obviously," Henning added, "we're going to have to do something."

Brock, signed by the Rams after 11 seasons in the Canadian Football League, put the Rams ahead to stay when he and Henry Ellard hooked up on a 64-yard touchdown play to make it 17-3 in the second quarter.

Playing his best game so far in the NFL, Brock struck the Rams to an 11-point lead with a 13-yard scoring throw to Bobby Duckworth late in the third period.

The Rams rolled on their passing game after Dickerson went out in the first half because the hamstring problem in his left leg.

Dickerson, who set an NFL single-season rushing mark last year, had been a contract holdout this season and made his 1985 debut just last Monday with a 150-yard performance in Los Angeles. See Rams on Page D4

Royals swept by Twins, face showdown in K.C.

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — The Kansas City Royals did not have to try very hard to figure out why they got swept in a three-game series by the Minnesota Twins.

"Seven runs in the series — that's the answer right there," Hower said Sunday after the Twins completed their sweep with a 6-3 victory.

The loss knocked the Royals out of a first-place tie with California, which beat Cleveland 9-3. The Angels begin a four-game series in Kansas City on Monday night.

"We didn't see Blyleven (Bert) or Smithson (Mike), but you've got to give them credit, you can't put them down. Their third, fourth and fifth starters did a job against us this weekend," said Hower.

Twins Manager Ray Miller, whose team began the day in sixth place in the AL West, said the Royals "may expect to beat our better starters because they are in the first division and we're in the second."

"But our pitching was good and that's why we weren't hitting in the series. (Winning pitcher) John Butcher pitched a heck of a game out there."

Looking ahead to the series against the Angels, Hower said, "I still feel we can pull it off."

"We've played well against California this year. We just need to get a few hits and anytime you're not hitting you look flat. What we need to do is win one a row."

Kent Hrbek drove in three runs and Mark Salas homered to lead the Minnesota offense.

Butcher, 11-14, pitched 6 2/3 innings for the victory and Ron Davis got the final two outs for his 25th save.

The Twins scored twice in the fifth inning to take a 4-3 lead. Greg Gagne drew a leadoff walk, took second on a sacrifice and moved to third on an infield hit by Kirby Puckett. Mickey Hatcher and Hrbek then delivered RBI singles off Mark Gubicza, 13-10.

Minnesota scored twice in the seventh on a run-scoring single by Hatcher and a sacrifice fly by Hrbek.

George Brett gave the Royals a 3-2 lead with a two-out double that drove in Lonnie Smith, who had singled.

Kansas City tied the score 2-2 in the third as Buddy Blancoana was safe on a forceout, moved to second on a single by Smith and scored on a double by Willie Wilson. Brett's sacrifice fly tied the game.

NL: Cardinals lose; Mets close to within 3 games

PITTSBURGH (AP) — With his former Montreal Expos teammates cooperating, Gary Carter helped the New York Mets get a little closer in the National League East race.

Carter slammed a two-run homer with one out in the 10th inning to give the Mets a 9-7 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates and pull New York to within three games of the first-place St. Louis Cardinals.

"The Mets picked up a full game because St. Louis lost 7-5 to Montreal, the team Carter played 10 seasons with before he was traded to New York last winter."

New York begins a three-game series against the Cardinals in St. Louis Tuesday.

"We wanted to go in there no worse than three games out and that's what we are," Mets Manager Dave Johnson said. "For some reason, I thought all along that we would. I didn't really have anything to base it on."

With one out, Keith Hernandez singled and Carter hit his 32nd homer, a career high, against loser Larry McWilliams, 6-9. It was Carter's 13th home run in September, tying a Mets record set by Dave Kingman in July 1975.

"If everything's going to come together and happen, it's nice that it does it in September," Carter said.

Carter entered the game batting .161 against Pittsburgh, going nine-for-66 with no home runs and three RBIs.

"We've kept him under control all year," Pittsburgh Manager Chuck Tanner said.

"They've pitched me tough all year," Carter said. "It's sweet to get a home run against them. Keith got us going, just like he has all year. McWilliams likes to quick pitch so all I was thinking was first ball, fastball."

The victory went to Jesse Grosco, 7-6, who worked the final 2-3 innings.

Howard Johnson had homered off Pirate reliever Cecilio Guante in the top of the ninth inning to tie the score at 7-7.

"For some reason, I felt we were going to come back," Johnson said. Pittsburgh took a 7-6 lead after Johnny Ray's two-run double and Tony Pena's RBI single keyed an eighth-inning rally.

Bill Almon and R.J. Reynolds led off the Pirates eighth with singles against Roger McDowell and scored on Ray's double into the right-field corner.

After Milwaukee's Ray, who hit a two-run homer in the eighth, broke through the Braves' defense to score the winning run over the Braves, Andre Sunday.

New York led 4-3 in the sixth inning when Darryl Strawberry hit Jim Wynn's first pitch over the center-field wall, scoring Carter, who had walked.

Montreal 7 St. Louis 5

MONTREAL (AP) — Hank Brooks' one-two-run triple in the eighth inning, breaking an seventh-inning tie and lifting the Montreal Expos to a 7-5 triumph over the St. Louis Cardinals.

The loss left the Cardinals' magic number to clinch the National League East title at four. St. Louis went into Sunday's game with a four-game lead over the New York Mets, who were at Pittsburgh Sunday.

Los Angeles 7 San Francisco 2

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Pedro Guerrero singled in the fifth and go-ahead runs in the fifth inning and Mike Marshall added a two-run homer two innings later to lead Los Angeles to a 7-2 victory over the San Francisco Giants Sunday.

Cincinnati 5 Houston 0

CINCINNATI (AP) — Jay Tibbs' two-run homer in the eighth inning, breaking a 5-5 tie, led Cincinnati to a 5-0 victory over Houston Sunday.

Chicago 6 Philadelphia 2

CHICAGO (AP) — Keith Moreland drove in two runs with a pair of two-out singles Sunday, extending his hitting streak to 18 games and leading the Chicago Cubs to a 6-2 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies.

Atlanta 3 San Diego 2

ATLANTA (AP) — San Diego's Steve Wiltse walked Atlanta pinch hitter Rafael Ramirez with the bases loaded, forcing in Bill Thompson with the winning run and giving the Braves a 3-2 victory over San Diego Sunday.

AL: Yanks win twice, but Toronto nears clincher

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Toronto Manager Boby Cox couldn't resist a peek Sunday as the Blue Jays were outslugging the Milwaukee Brewers 13-5 and edging closer to the American League East title.

Cox admitted he had his eyes on the scoreboard, watching the fortunes of the second-place New York Yankees, who swept a doubleheader from Baltimore.

"I watched the scoreboard every inning," Cox said. "You can't help but do it."

The Blue Jays lead the Yankees by 3 1/2 games. And even though Toronto lowered its magic number for clinching its first-ever division title to three, Cox wishes the deed had already been done.

"It's going slow, that's all," Cox said.

In Sunday's victory, Toronto established season-high for runs and with its 22 hits. Milwaukee used seven pitchers in its final home game of the season.

"They just worked us over," said Brewers Manager George Bamberger. "We were hoping to finish up on a good note. Unfortunately, we didn't."

"I'd pick Toronto to go all the way," he added. "They're the best club in baseball."

Tony Fernandez drove in four runs with four hits, including a two-run single during a sixth-run first inning and a two-run triple in the fifth.

"It was one of those days when the team is winning, sometimes everything works out for you," Fernandez said.

"He had a great day," Cox said. "Big hits." Lloyd Moseby, who had three hits, and Ernie Whitl added two-run homers for Toronto. Jesse Barfield also got three hits. The Blue Jays ripped seven pitchers, including starter Ray Burris, 9-13, who got only two outs and was charged with six runs.

"I think we've been pretty consistent all year," Ernie said. "Everything just came together today. We hit a lot of balls hard, some we didn't."

New York 8 Baltimore 2

NEW YORK (AP) — Don Baylor and Dave Winfield hit two-run homers and Rich Bordi teamed with Rod Scurry on a three-bitter in the second game as the New York Yankees defeated the Baltimore Orioles 8-2 and completed a sweep of their Sunday doubleheader.

Baltimore Manager Earl Weaver was ejected from both games. He has been tossed out of four games this season since taking over the Orioles in midseason.

New York 4 Baltimore 0

NEW YORK (AP) — Don Mattingly hit his 32nd and 33rd home runs of the season and Joe Goley and Dave Rightel combined on a three-bitter Sunday as the New York Yankees beat the Baltimore Orioles 4-0 in the first game of a doubleheader.

California 9 Cleveland 3

CLEVELAND (AP) — Kirk McCaskill pitched a seven-bitter, and Bob Boone and Dick Schofield drove in two runs apiece Sunday as the California Angels beat the Cleveland Indians 9-3 and took sole possession of first place in the American League West.

The Angels moved one game ahead of Kansas City, which lost to Minnesota, 6-3. California begins a four-game series in Kansas City on Monday night.

Chicago 3 Oakland 0

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Tom Seaver won his 30th career game and Bob James got his 30th save of the season Sunday to lead the Chicago White Sox over the Oakland A's 3-0.

Boston 8 Detroit 4

DETROIT (AP) — Wade Boggs and Mike Easler each collected four hits and Bob Woodward was his first major-league start Sunday as the Boston Red Sox defeated the Detroit Tigers 8-4.

Texas 5 Seattle 2

SEATTLE (AP) — Pinch-hitter Bill Stein's three-run double broke an eighth-inning tie Sunday and sent the Texas Rangers to a 5-2 victory over the Seattle Mariners.

Dugger claims his second Idaho seniors' crown

By The Times-News

Golf

BURLEY — Doyle Dugger of Twin Falls fired a three-under-par 68 on Sunday to claim a 10-stroke victory in the Idaho Seniors' Golf Tournament at the Burley Municipal Golf Course.

Dugger, who had won this tournament once before, combined his 68 of Sunday with a 72 on Saturday for a two-under-par 140. Dean Oliver and John Everett, both of Boise, finished

Oliver, who was two strokes behind Dugger when the second day of competition began Sunday, slipped to 76 in the final round. Everett shot a 76 on Saturday and a 74 on Sunday.

One hundred golfers participated in the annual event.

Virginia Unhjem of Twin Falls, who finished second this summer in the Idaho Women's Amateur Golf Tournament, took the women's seniors' honors with a 159 on rounds of 80 and 79. Roma Schuehler of Pocatello won the net honors in the ladies' division with a 139.

In the freshman division, Everett and Oliver tied for low gross while Keith Corbett of American Falls won net at 133, followed by Don Walton of Caldwell with a 134.

In the sophomore division, the low gross score was 153 by former Glenns Ferry High School Principal Gordon Brown. Herm Longhurst of Pocatello followed with a 156. The net winner in that event was Earl Plackett at 138, while Bryce Roper of Pocatello, Bernard Cochran of Boise and Wayne Petersen of Nampa all came in at 139.

Tilzey, Whaley pace carriers in cold Bozeman

By The Times-News

BOZEMAN, Mont. — Jill Tilzey finished 18th and DeVoe Whaley 22nd here Saturday to top the College of Southern Idaho's performances in the Montana State University Invitational cross country meet.

Tilzey covered the three-mile course on the snow-covered Riverside Golf Course in 19 minutes, 21 seconds, a little over two minutes behind the winner, Annette Hand of Montana State. Hand's time was 17:18.5.

Whaley ran the men's five-mile course in 28:08.1, a little less than three minutes behind the winner, Rod Hanson of Idaho State. Hansen's time was 25:12.1.

The Montana men's team and

Cross country

the Montana State women won team titles, for which CSI did not have enough runners participating to compete.

Other CSI finishers include Teresa Wright, 20th, in 20:23; Sandy Tilzey, 24th, in 21:27; and Karen Hunt, 27th, in 22:52. Among the men, Mike Nielsen finished 23rd in 28:17 while Fran Soldana had a 30:13 clocking.

The Lady Bobcats swept the top three positions in the women's competition. Molly Trittle and Theresa Zacker rounded out the top three for MSU.

Montana placed second in the women's race, and Idaho State was third.

For the men, Idaho State placed three runners in the top five on the five-mile course, but ended up second to Montana, which placed runners in second and fourth places.

Hanson edged Frank Horn of Montana for the individual men's honors. Horn's time was 25:13.9.

Third place went to Montana State in the men's race.

Also competing in the meet was a team from Boise State.

CSI will host its own invitational meet Wednesday at 4 p.m. at the Canyon Springs Golf Course. CSI track and cross country Coach Rick Nell said he expects several intermountain collegiate teams will participate.

and of freshmen Amy Olsen of Preston and Cindy Marshall of Vall. Ore. and sophomore Heidi Hansen of Twin Falls.

CSI's 4-1 finish in the tournament improved its season record to 12-3.

The Eagles will visit TVCO for a dual match Wednesday, then host the Chukars in CSI's last home game of the season. That is scheduled for 7 p.m. in the Eagles' gym in Twin Falls prior to the annual alumni men's basketball game.

Rams

over Seattle.

The Falcons, 0-4, played the second half with Dave Archer at quarterback, as starter Steve Bartkowski was benched after Atlanta trailed 10-3 late in the second quarter.

The Rams' defense, led by linebacker Jim Collins and cornerback Lefty Irvin, limited the Falcons to just a pair of field goals by Mick Luckhurst.

The Rams took the lead when Ellard took a short sideline pass from Brock, whirled and cut back across the grain of the defense, then sprinted 56 yards and into the end zone.

Luckhurst had given Atlanta a 3-0 lead 1:10 earlier on a 44-yard field goal.

Los Angeles made it 10-3 before the intermission on a 52-yard field goal by Mike Lanford, longest of his five-year NFL career.

Luckhurst trimmed the difference to 10-6 early in the third quarter when he hit a 47-yard field goal that gave him a club record 10 in a row.

But the Rams then marched 79 yards to their second touchdown. Brock completed five-of-five throws for 47 yards during the drive, including the scoring pass to Duckworth with 42 seconds remaining in the period.

Dickerson gained just 26 yards on seven carries before being sidelined, and the Rams wound up with just 106 yards rushing. Barry Redden was the game's leading runner with 74 yards on 18 carries.

Bartkowski completed seven of 13 for 67 yards in the first half, and Archer was 11 of 21 for 114 yards after taking over. Archer also ran five times for 29 yards.

Late-Saturday games

Sun Devils shock No. 18 USC, 24-0

TEMPE, Ariz. (AP) — First-year Arizona State football Coach John Cooper said he told his team all week that "the road to the Rose Bowl goes through Trojan Land."

Cooper's Sun Devils got a healthy start Saturday night, beating 18-ranked Southern California 24-0 in both teams' Pacific-10 Conference opener as Jeff Van Raaphorst threw two second-quarter touchdowns, one a 35-yarder to Aaron Cox.

"This is beyond my wildest dreams that we shut them out," Cooper said. "I've got to be SC if you want to win the league title."

All the Sun Devil points were set up by Trojan turnovers as USC fell to 1-2 with its second straight loss.

"It's a long year," said Trojans Coach Ted Tollner. "There's eight more games to go and it's a long conference race. We've just got to eliminate a lot of the mistakes we've been making."

Arizona State is now 2-1 with back-to-back shutout victories. The Eastern Washington University's second-best defense, have not allowed a touchdown in the last 11 quarters now.

Cox, a junior split end, turned a third-down play into the longest scoring pass ever allowed by Southern Cal. He caught the ball at the 28-yard line and raced the final 72 yards along the sidelines for a 14-0 lead 2:51 before halftime.

The play tied Arizona State's school record for the longest touchdown pass, set in 1975. The Sun Devils had recovered a fumble by USC tailback Fred Crutcher at the Arizona State 2-yard line three plays earlier.

Van Raaphorst also threw a 33-yard touchdown pass to halfback Vinnie Amoa 4:25 into the second quarter off a fake draw play to make it 7-0. That score was set up by linebacker Greg Battle's interception with 47 seconds left in the first period.

USC quarterback Sean Salisbury took a fumble at the Trojans' 13-yard line with one minute remaining in the first half and Sun Devil freshman Kent Bostrom kicked a 32-yard field goal as time ran out for a 17-0 halftime lead.

Bostrom missed on a 43-yard attempt in the first quarter but USC place-kicker Don Shafer also was wide right on a 36-yard try with 6:03 remaining in the third quarter.

Pacific 33 Utah St. 7

STOCKTON, Calif. (AP) — Senior cornerback Tommy Purvis intercepted two passes, returning one 66 yards for a touchdown, to lead University of the Pacific to a 33-7 victory over Utah State in a Pacific Coast Athletic Association football game Saturday.

The Pacific defense, led by linebacker Jeff Plunkett with 14 tackles, crushed Utah State's offense. The Tigers' defense overall recovered four fumble fumbles and intercepted three passes.

Quarterback Huey Jackson led Pacific with 80 yards on 25 carries, including a 32-yard touchdown run in the third quarter.

Utah State's was led by running back Richard Gwynn who had 91 yards in 15 carries and the Aggies' lone touchdown.

College football

San Diego St. 48 Colorado St. 23

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Junior running back Chris Hardy ran for 235 yards and two touchdowns Saturday night to lead San Diego State to a 48-23 victory over Colorado State in a Western Athletic Conference football game.

Hardy scored on runs of 62 and 35 yards and carried the ball 20 times in his first start of the season for San Diego State, which won its conference opener and improved its overall mark to 2-1.

Quarterback Kelly Stouffer threw three touchdown passes for Colorado State, which fell to 1-1 in conference and 1-3 overall.

E. Washington 33 N. Arizona 0

SPOKANE, Wash. (AP) — The Eastern Washington University Eagles have proved worthy opponents to Big Sky Conference football teams this season.

Eastern tailback Jamie Townsend, showing an ability to twist and scamper his way through the smallest openings, ran for three touchdowns to lead the independent Eagles to a crushing 33-0 defeat over the Big Sky Northern Arizona Lumberjacks Saturday night.

Eastern ran its record to 4-0 overall and 3-0 against Big Sky competition, while NAU fell to 2-2.

Though Townsend put on a show, it was Eastern's defense that made the difference, forcing turnovers that accounted for three touchdowns, one field goal and a safety while limiting the Lumberjacks to just 17 yards in total offense.

Eastern quarterback Rick Workman completed an 11 of 21 passes for 120 yards while the Eagles managed 551 yards in offense.

After a scoreless first quarter, the Eagles got by the board on a 3-yard scoring burst by Townsend, capping a 68-yard march started when safety Mark Cordes recovered a fumble on the EWU 32.

The defense helped produce the Eagles' next touchdown, a 5-yard aerial from Workman to Tim Floyd. That play was set up when John Eddy intercepted a Craig Austin pass at the EWU 47 and returned it 19 yards to the NAU 3.

Austin's effort brought a flurry of yellow flags against NAU, giving EWU 25 yards more when the Lumberjacks were called for an illegal block and a personal foul to put the ball on the 9.

Giants run record to 3-1 by beating Philly in overtime

NFC East

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Cornerback Elvis Patterson returned an intercepted pass 29 yards for a touchdown 55 seconds into overtime to give the New York Giants a 16-10 victory over the Philadelphia Eagles in a National Football League game Sunday.

Patterson, a second-year player from Kansas, grabbed a pass thrown by Eagles quarterback Ron Jaworski and raced into the end zone behind a host of blockers to give the Giants their third victory of the season against one loss.

Jaworski, benched after the first game of the season for rookie quarterback Randall Cunningham, got into the game late in the fourth period when Cunningham suffered an injury to his left ankle on a running play.

The Eagles, 1-3, trailed 10-3 with 3:58 left in the game and the Giants pinned on their 4 after a 51-yard punt by Mike Horan.

On third down, quarterback Phil Simms attempted a pass to running back Joe Morris, but defensive end Reggie White tipped the ball. Cornerback Herman Edwards intercepted and ran three yards for the tying touchdown with 3:02 remaining.

The Eagles had a chance to win the game in regulation when a punt by Sean Landetta, the NFL's leading punter, took a bad bounce and rolled dead at the Giants' 44 with 1:57 left in the game.

The Eagles, with Jaworski directing the offense, moved to a first down at the New York 29. Three plays gave five yards and then Paul McCadden attempted a game-winning field goal of 42 yards that sailed wide to the left and sent the game into overtime.

Dallas 17 Houston 10

HOUSTON (AP) — Dallas quarterback Danny White lofted a game-winning 1-yard touchdown pass to Fred Cornwell with 1:47 to play and the Cowboys' defense sacked Houston quarterback Warren Moon 12 times en route to a 17-10 National Football League victory over the Oilers Sunday.

The Cowboys got the ball at their own 25 with 2:14 left in the game and Tony Dorssett ran 21 yards, White hit James Jones for 22 yards and Dorssett ran 31 yards on successive plays to give the Cowboys a first-down at the Oilers' 1.

The comeback helped ease the misery for Dallas kicker Rafael Septien, who missed four field goals, including two that hit the uprights, the last coming with 13:20 left in the game.

Houston kicker Tony Zendejas also missed a 37-yarder with 6:04 left that would have given the Oilers a 13-10 lead.

In addition to losing 82 yards on 12 sacks, Moon also was intercepted four times, including twice by Ron Fellows. Randy White and Victor Scott each had two sacks.

Dallas took a 7-0 halftime lead on the strength of White's 7-yard touchdown with seven seconds left in the first quarter. The Cowboys blew three other scoring chances on Septien's misses from 47, 33 and 36 yards.

Septien missed for a fourth time with 13:20 left in the game, when his 36-yard attempt hit the right upright.

The Cowboys' defense took up the slack, harassing Moon with seven sacks for 55 yards in losses in the first half alone. Moon also was intercepted three times and lost one fumble in the Oilers' unproductive first half.

Dallas extended its lead to 10-0 in the third quarter when Septien kicked a 36-yard field goal.

The Oilers rallied in the third quarter on Moon's 57-yard touchdown bomb to Drew Hill and Tony Zendejas tied it with a 33-yard field goal with 2:42 to go in the period.

Dallas improved its record to 3-1, while the Oilers fell to 1-3.

St. Louis 43 Green Bay 28

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Leonard Smith set up 10 second-quarter points with a blocked punt and an interception and Neil Lomax passed for three touchdowns in the third and fourth quarters, helping the St. Louis Cardinals roll to a 43-28 National Football League triumph Sunday over the Green Bay Packers.

St. Louis, following a scoreless opening period, exploded for 26 points in just under 18 minutes extending to the final half. The Cardinals, while improving their record to 3-1, dropped Green Bay to 1-3 despite Jesse Clark's 80-yard run for the Packers, longest ever by a St. Louis opponent, and Lynn Dickey's three scoring passes.

Smith, the Cards' strong safety, broke through to bat down Joe Prokop's punt from Green Bay's 24 with St. Louis leading 9-0 in the second quarter.

Ottis Anderson banged 1 yard to score three plays afterward. Moments later, Smith plucked off a deflected Randy Wright pass and raced 67 yards to set up Neil O'Donoghue's first of two field goals in padding the Cards' lead to 19-0 at halftime.

Linebacker E. J. Junior also scored came up with an interception early in the final half that preceded a 20-yard pass play from Lomax to running back Stump Mitchell.

That increased St. Louis' advantage to 26-0 before Dickey spelled Wright, who had been making his first start as Packers quarterback. Gerry Ellis capped a 74-yard Green Bay sortie with a 39-yard scoring dash, and James Lofton tucked in a 10-yard Dickey touchdown pass after Lomax made it 33-7 by finding Pat Tilley on an 11-yard scoring play.

Lomax, who had had trouble finding his wide receivers open in three previous games, completed 20 of 37 passes for 261 yards without an interception.

FOXBORO, Mass. — Lyle Alzado scored on a fumble recovery in the end zone and Lester Hayes and Sam Seale returned interceptions for touchdowns as Los Angeles' defense made up for a sputtering offense and gave the Raiders a 35-20 National Football League victory over the New England Patriots Sunday.

AFC West

The Raiders broke a two-game-losing streak despite playing nearly half the game with third-string quarterback Rusty Hilger, a rookie. Jim Plunkett missed the game with a shoulder injury and Marc Wilson sat out the rest of the contest after hurting his right ankle in the third quarter.

Trailing 20-14 at halftime, the Raiders, 2-2, took the lead for good on Alzado's fumble recovery with 1:49 left in the third period.

The Patriots, 2-2, had a first down at their 11-yard line when Craig James was stripped of the ball by linebacker Brad Van Pelt as James ran up the middle. Raider linebacker Rod Martin picked the ball up and fumbled into the end zone, where Alzado, a defensive end, pounced on it near the end line.

Hayes' touchdown came on Tony Eason's second pass of the game and gave Los Angeles a 7-3 lead. Hayes picked the ball off when he stepped in front of Irving Fryar on a pass into the left flat and ran 27 yards for the score 3:49 into the game.

Los Angeles, which punted on 11 of its 15 possessions, capped its comeback on Seale's 38-yard interception return with 5:24 left in the game.

The Raiders also scored on touchdown passes of 38 yards from Wilson to Dokie Williams and 2 yards from Hilger to Todd Christensen.

Tony Franklin's 47-yard field goal gave New England a 9-0 lead, and the Patriots went ahead 10-7 on Eason's 40-yard scoring strike to Fryar.

But Wilson put the Raiders on top 14-10 with his throw to Williams with 49 seconds remaining in the first quarter.

Franklin's 20-yard field goal and linebacker Andre Tippett's 25-yard return of a fumble recovery boosted New England into its halftime lead.

Detroit, Vikings keep two of NFL's winless teams that way

NFC Central

ORCHARD PARK, N.Y. (AP) — A 22-yard touchdown run by Ted Brown with just under three minutes to play gave the Minnesota Vikings a 27-20 National Football League victory over the winless Buffalo Bills Sunday.

Quarterback Tommy Kramer threw three touchdown passes for the Vikings, including one to Brown, but Minnesota, 3-1, squandered a 17-point halftime lead setting up Brown's game-winning run.

Running back Greg Bell had his best day of the season for the 0-4 Bills, rushing 24 times for 92 yards and one touchdown.

Vince Ferragamo snuck in from the 1-yard line for Buffalo's only touchdown. Scott Norwood kicked two field goals for the Bills.

The Vikings dominated in the first half, with Kramer also throwing touchdown passes to Leo Lewis and Anthony Carter.

The Bills, however, got 1-yard touchdown plunges in the second half from Bell and Ferragamo to tie the game at 20-20.

Detroit 30 Tampa Bay 9

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — Detroit wide receiver Mark Nichols, who hadn't caught a pass all season, caught two for touchdowns Sunday as the Lions beat Tampa Bay 30-9, keeping the Buccaneers winless after four weeks of National Football League play.

Nichols, turning in the first two TD game of his career, finished with six catches for 54 yards, including scores of 4 and 9 yards from Eric Hipple.

Hipple scored Detroit's other touchdown on a 1-yard plunge with 1:57 remaining in the game.

Eddie Murray kicked field goals of 22, 33 and 39 yards to account for the rest of the Detroit scoring.

Field goals of 21, 32 and 20 yards by Donald Igwebuike accounted for all of the Tampa Bay scoring.

Hipple completed 19 of 31 pass attempts for 250 yards. Tampa Bay quarterback Steve DeBerg was 19 of 31 for 193 yards, with one interception.

Bucs running back James Wilder, who led the NFL in rushing coming into the game, turned in his sixth consecutive 100-yard game. Wilder finished with 104 yards on 27 carries and caught seven passes for another 57 yards.

The game drew only 45,023 fans in the Silverdome. There were 5,456 no-shows.

Kicker Leahy lifts Jets past Indianapolis

By BARRY WILNER
The Associated Press

AFC East

One play after the Colts had pulled within five points on a 29-yard field goal by Haul Allegre, Jets running back Freeman McNeil fumbled and Colts safety Tate Randle picked up the ball and ran eight yards to the New York 14.

Owen Gill ran the ball twice for nine yards, setting up a third-and-one at the five. The Jets' defense stopped a soaring Albert Bentley, then Marty Lyons tackled Bentley for no gain on fourth down.

The Jets built a 25-17 lead after three periods on the strength of Leahy's field goals from 22, 35, 48 and 45 yards. Their touchdowns came on a 49-yard flea-flicker pass from Ken O'Brien to Kurt Sohn 53 seconds into the second period and a one-yard dive by Tony Paige in the third quarter.

New York's flea-flicker began when O'Brien handed to McNeil, who took two steps forward, then lateraled the ball back to O'Brien. The quarterback hit a wide-open Sohn at the Colts' 15 and he scooted into the end zone.

Leahy missed the extra point by hitting the right upright of the goal posts.

Fouts-less Chargers fall to Cleveland

By DENNIS GEORGIATOS
The Associated Press

SAN DIEGO — Fullback Kevin Mack ran for one score and caught one of Gary Danielson's two touchdown passes Sunday to lead the Cleveland Browns to a 21-7 National Football League victory over the San Diego Chargers, who lost starting quarterback Dan Fouts to injury.

AFC Central

The Chargers, who failed to score after the injury to Fouts, dropped to 2-2, while the Browns lifted their record to 2-2.

With the game tied 7-7 at the half, Cleveland scored — it — go ahead — touchdown on an 11-yard pass from Danielson to running back Earnest Byner with 6:55 remaining in the third period.

Two plays earlier Danielson completed a 49-yard pass to wide receiver Clarence Weathers to put the ball at the Charger 13. The Browns added an insurance score with 2:34 gone in the final period on Mack's second touchdown, a 10-yard pass from Danielson.

Earlier, Mack had scored on a 10-yard run with 2:24 remaining in the first half. The score, which tied the game at 7-7, was set up by Don Rogers' interception of a Herrmann pass to give Cleveland the ball at the Charger 37 yardline.
