Sell the hospital?

Angry Twin Falls county commissioner raises the possibility

By JANE ROBISON
Times-News writer

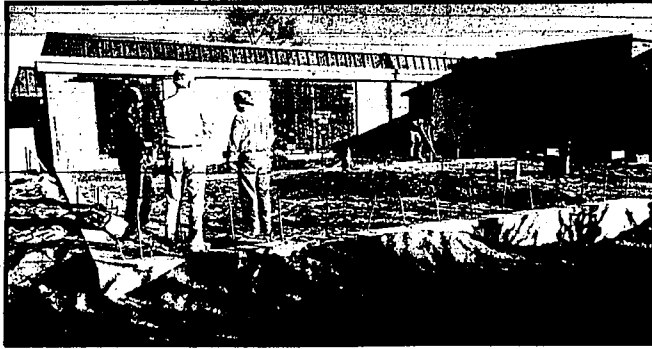

TWIN FALLS — Angered by the construction of two surgical suites across from the Magic Valley Regional Medical Center by two doctors on the Hospital Board, Twin Falls County Commissioner Judy Felton said Thursday it may be time for the county to consider selling MVRMC.

"I've been previously been in a position that we never sold MVRMC," Felton said in a strongly worded letter sent to 13 doctors involved — a letter that all but accused two doctors of a conflict of interest.

Felton added, during an interview Thursday, "Selling the hospital is an alternative that's never been considered, and I think it needs community discussion."

Felton's ire was piqued when she learned a few days ago that plastic surgeons Mark Greenson, Larry Maxwell and Julian Nicholson are adding two operating rooms on their offices at 570 Shoup Ave. W., part of the Doctors Park across from MVRMC. The three are part of a corporation of 13 doctors who own the building on Shoup.

The doctors say the two surgical rooms will be used by the three surgeons only, and will not be used as an out-patient clinic. The rooms will be used for plastic surgery under a local anesthetic on patients embarrassed about going to MVRMC and having their names released, doctors said.

Felton, in her letter, charged that the surgical suites will directly compete with the hospital and "the financial impact upon us (MVRMC) is going to be major." Adding insult to injury was that two of the doctors participate in hospital decisions, Felton said.

"The ultimate irony of this situation is that some of you directly involved in this project have been sitting as members of our Marketing Committee and MVRMC Board of Trustees," her letter said. Felton's letter did not name the two doctors.

Maxwell is a member of MVRMC's Marketing Committee. Dr. Miles Humphrey, part of the corporation of doctors who own the Shoup building, is a member of the Hospital Board.

Both denied Thursday that there was any conflict of interest, or that the two surgical suites would siphon business from MVRMC.

"I think it's a misunderstanding on her part," Maxwell said. "It's going to increase our practice and referral base, and the hospital will benefit directly."

MVRMC Administrator John Bingham was not so sure. Bingham said that he is "concerned" about the project, its financial impact on the hospital and on working relations between the hospital and doctors.

"The Hospital Board initiated an effort to up-grade and improve the hospital to be a regional medical center and to meet doctors' needs," he said. "I'm concerned this will pull out bits and pieces of Services we've tried to maintain."

Bingham also said the hospital has worked hard in recent months to improve doctor-hospital relations, and "this has the potential to take

Farm bill looks like veto bait

By JIM DINKARD
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Congress' emerging, new farm bill threatens to set records for farm subsidy spending over the next three years and is regarded as prime veto bait by President Reagan, Agriculture Secretary John Block said Thursday.

"The risks of a veto now are even greater than a year ago because of the runaway budget exposure" in the House-passed bill and in the version the Senate is expected to take up in the next few days, Block said in an interview. "We're headed for a three-year record."

Block outlined changes the administration would like to see made in the Senate version, including cuts in farm income support payments and dairy price supports, and elimination of a standby plan for mandatory crop production curbs.

Even if those changes are made, and proponents admit it will be an uphill fight — subsidy spending levels would far exceed the $35 billion three-year figure called for in Congress' budget blueprint.

Block conceded that the administration has given up on trying to meet that target. But he insisted that spending in the bill be brought "down a ways" from the estimated $60 billion-plus estimate for the Senate bill as approved by the Agriculture Committee.

Block's chief economic adviser, Robert Thompson, sent a letter Thursday to Senate Agriculture Committee Chairman Jesse Helms, R-N.C., estimating that the body's bill would cost $60 billion to $70 billion through fiscal 1988. That estimate was up by $10 billion from July's figure, primarily because of bumper crops this fall that will increase surpluses and because of continuing declines in exports.

"It's not heartless and insensitive to talk about spending a little less than $20 billion a year," Block said. Last year's farm program cost about $18 billion, and the supports are expected to hit a record $20 billion in fiscal 1986.

Block said Reagan has listened to fellow-Republicans who have warned of intense political damage, particularly in the hard-hit Midwest, if the farm bill is vetoed.

'Fresh start' time

By MICHAEL PUTZEL
The Associated Press

UNITED NATIONS — President Reagan committed the United States on Thursday to a "fresh start" in U.S.-Soviet relations and the search for world peace, proposing that Moscow join him in trying to settle conflicts in two warring nations where he said the Soviets are contributing to the daily loss of life.

Launching a public relations counteroffensive from the podium of the United Nations General Assembly on its 40th anniversary, Reagan shifted his focus for next month's summit meeting with Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev from nuclear arms reduction to local flashpoints in the Third World.

And he said before he goes to Geneva for the Nov. 19-20 summit he will present new proposals for ending what he called the unjustified division of Europe between East and West.

Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard A. Shevardnadze, who drew worldwide attention two months ago with his proposal from the same lectern for "star peace" instead of "Star Wars," sat in passivity in the packed but silent chamber as Reagan spent a half-hour presenting what he called the plain and simple but deep and abiding differences between the United States and Soviet Union.

The Soviet foreign minister addressed the world body after Reagan, reiterating that "the Soviet Union has countered the concept of Star Wars with the concept of Star Peace and of lasting peace on earth."

Without responding directly to Reagan's speech, he denounced the United States' recent attempt to redefine the 1972 Antihallucic Missile Treaty to permit development of Reagan's strategic space shield, popularly called Star Wars.

The president and Shevardnadze met later in the day for a 30-minute discussion on plans for the Geneva summit. After the meeting, Secretary of State George Shultz told reporters it was a "base-touching" session in the continuing preparations

As part of his preparations for the summit, Reagan convened a meeting of allied leaders to advise him on tactics he should use in Geneva. Budget proposals staggering ahead

WASHINGTON — Congress' struggling to make good on the budget it adopted over the summer, made steady progress Thursday toward accepting omnibus legislation for spending cuts and tax changes.

At the same time, congressional negotiators trying to draft a compromise version of a Senate-passed budget plan appeared to be at odds with President Reagan over whether the Pentagon will be immune from cuts in the drive to force a balanced budget by 1991.

The House approved its version of a $61.1 billion deficit-reduction bill on a virtually party-line vote of 238-199 after defeating a Republican effort to cut even further by killing housing programs and limiting federal pay increases and health benefits.

But the Senate, moving toward a final vote on its $85.6 billion version of the measure, bogged down as legislators moved to attach legislation providing aid for the textile industry.

that measure would open the way for a flood of unrelated amendments.

"This is open season," Dole said, adding that such action surely would sink the entire package.

The Senate then voted 95-0 not to let the same thing happen to future budget legislation of this type.

With the parliamentary situation muddled due to the pending textile measure, the Senate postponed further action on the deficit-reduction measure until next week at the earliest.

The House and Senate versions of the deficit-reduction packages include spending cuts, tax hikes and other provisions designed to limit the estimated deficit this fiscal year to about $17.1 billion. Deficits are now running at about $20 billion a year. Bargainers from each chamber will have to work out the differences between the two bills.

But the Reagan administration already has indicated the Senate bill may draw a veto because of tax increases included in it. The administration also has indicated that it thinks the savings in the House Senate Majority Leader Robert Dole: "R-Kan." said that attaching

Hofmann can't help defense

By JENNIFER BRANDON
The Associated Press

SALT LAKE CITY — The chief suspect in two fatal bombings has ruptured eardrums, is groggy from severe operations and lost his glasses in the explosion that destroyed his car last week, his attorney said Thursday.

Meanwhile, defense attorney Bradley Rich and Salt Lake County Attorney Ted Cannon said they are conducting publicity surrounding the bombings could be causing less visible, but equally serious harm to Mark Hofmann's chances for a fair trial, it is charged.

"It's unprecedented in my 12 years of defending criminal cases. There are anonymous sources within the police department passing out what I call 'the theory of the day,'" Rich said.

Rich blasted authorities for calling Hofmann their prime suspect for more than a week... yet not filing charges — after separate bombs disguised as packages killed Steven L. Christensen and Kelly Shurts, Hofmann, a dealer in historical documents who was seriously injured when a bomb exploded in his sports car Oct. 16 — one day after the fatal bombings — is physically unable to help his attorneys prepare to defend him from "a public witch hunt," the attorney said.

Authorities have said they believe the blast which injured Hofmann, unlike the others, was accidental and do not intend to file charges until tests are completed on evidence left by the explosions.

Much of the speculation arising from the bombings has revolved around whether the motive was to cover up possible forgery or fraudulent dealings in documents pertaining to the early history of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints.

'Lost hour' returns Sunday as standard time comes back

By RANDOLPHE SCHMID
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — For most Americans, it's nearly time to regain that hour of sleep they lost when they shifted to daylight-savings time last spring.

That extra hour, a boon to everyone except night-shift workers, arrives at 2 a.m. this Sunday, when the most of the country returns to standard time.

On Sunday, the change benefits morning people, as an hour of daytime shifts from evening to morning. Everywhere except Hawaii, Arizona and portions of Indiana, clocks should be turned back — from 2 a.m. to 1 a.m., for example.

Because that hour in the evening during summer's longer days provided extra time and light for recreational activities, some daylight time boosters say that time should be used all year to save energy on nighttime lighting.

After all, saving energy was the idea when daylight time was first introduced in 1918, moving an hour of daylight from morning when few people were awake, to night, when more people could use it.

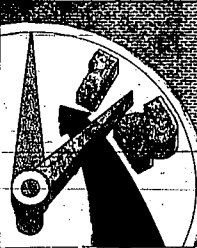

But a brief shift to year-round daylight time during the energy crisis of the 1970s produced only negligible energy savings and a crescendo of complaints from rural residents.

They denounced a disruption of farm schedules, danger to children heading for school buses, confusion and inconvenience. The result was a return to the current system of daylight time from the last Sunday in April to the last Sunday in October.

The debate heard since World War I continues, pitting urban daylight time enthusiasts against rural standard time advocates, state against state and county against county in some areas.

Businesses are urging extended daylight time, particularly operators of convenience stores, nurseries and sporting goods shops. They reason that more daylight means bigger sales of tennis equipment, more gardening, more after-work shopping and, in short, more business.

When Congress made the semi-annual time change uniform in 1966, it also allowed state legislatures to decline to participate.

DAYLIGHT SAVINGS TIME ENDS October 27

As the saying goes, it's time to fall back. Remember to set your clocks back one hour before going to bed on Saturday, Oct. 27.

Judge in Tennessee prohibits admission of more prisoners

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Officials scrambled Thursday to quarantine they could lock up dangerous criminals despite a judge's ruling that Tennessee's crowded prisons could accept no new inmates without special permission.

And prosecutors and police said the ruling by U.S. District Judge Thomas A. Higgins left them wondering why they should continue to pursue convictions.

"Right now, none of us understands how damaging the effects will be," said Gary Gerbitz, district attorney general in Chattanooga and former president of the Tennessee District Attorney Generals Conference.

Inmates are being housed in gymnasiums, libraries and day rooms at the state's 11 reception centers where all convicts are processed before being transferred to the larger penal institutions, which also are crowded.

Higgins ruled Wednesday that the state cannot admit more prisoners until the number at those reception centers is reduced by about 400, to below a court-set cap of 1,373.

He said violence-prone convicts could be held in only on a "case-by-case" basis decided by a special master appointed to oversee prison improvements.

JUDGE THOMAS HIGGINS Closes gates to prisons

But state Attorney General Mike Cofy filed a new motion with the court Thursday, asking that the judge to allow the state to imprison automatically all "Class X" offenders — those convicted of crimes such as murder, armed robbery, rape and serious drug charges.

The state wants Higgins "to take into consideration the danger posed by these offenders and balance this against the problems" addressed by the order, Cofy said in court papers.

Gerbitz said Higgins' order would contribute to an already faltering morale.

"I've observed a marked difference in attitudes of the assistant district attorneys who work for me," he said. "They've all been within the state long enough to watch this problem evolve and now they're getting apathetic."

Lawmakers and local officials say the ban on admissions to the state reception centers will cause a backup of inmates in crowded local jails within days. About 3,500 state prisoners are currently in local jails.

Gov. Lamar Alexander said Higgins took a path the state has been unwilling or unable to take.

"The judge's order underscores the problem, dramatizes the problem," Alexander said. "It goes to the heart of the problem, which is the explosion of new prisoners into the state system for whom there is no room. It spreads the misery, but it's still misery."

Foes sidetrack trade legislation

WASHINGTON (AP) — Supporters of major trade legislation to aid the import-battered textile and apparel industries won three skirmishes Thursday in the Senate, only to see their drive derailed for the time being.

In three preliminary votes, textile forces showed enough strength to win Senate approval of the measure but fell short of the two-thirds needed to override a threatened presidential veto.

Seeking to head off a filibuster over tightened textile quotas, the spearhead of more than 300 trade measures before Congress, sponsors sought to attach it to a major budget-cutting package. There are strict time limits on the budget debate.

That tactic attracted both strenuous criticism and a rash of rival amendments. With the clock running out on debate over the complex budget measure, Senate leaders withdrew it from the floor.

"We'll see if we can't put together what's left of it," Senate Majority Leader Robert Dole, R-Kan., told the Senate. It was the second time in a month that the textile bill, advancing under a White House veto threat, temporarily scuttled another measure before the Senate.

A pact to revise U.S. ties to the Pacific atolls of Micronesia was pulled from the floor by the leadership on Oct. 22 after textile forces attached their measure to it and opponents threatened a filibuster.

Uncle Sam overdrew Fed account

WASHINGTON (AP) — Uncle Sam was in worse financial shape than first believed earlier this month when the government's coffers ran dry, the government said Thursday.

The Treasury Department confirmed that on Oct. 8 the government actually overdrew its account at the Federal Reserve — its banker.

Treasury Department spokesman Art Siddon said the government ran a small, inadvertent overdraft on Oct. 8, which was discovered on the morning of Oct. 9.

Siddon refused to give a figure, but Fortune magazine put it at $100 million.

On Oct. 9, the department used borrowing power from an obscure federal agency, the Federal Financing Bank, to raise $5 billion in cash to keep the government from bouncing checks for the first time in history.

At the time, the government reported that it had less than $500 million in its accounts on Oct. 8 before the infusion of new money.

The money squeeze developed because of an impasse in Congress in passing legislation to raise the debt limit above $2 trillion. This legislation is needed so that the government, which spends more than it takes in, can borrow more money.

In a letter to Congress this week, Treasury Secretary James Baker III warned that the government will have again face the danger of bouncing checks on Nov. 15 unless a new debt limit is passed.

Senate votes to delay Jordan arms sale

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Republican-controlled Senate, moving to sidetrack President Reagan's unpopular $1.9 billion arms sale to Jordan, voted 71-23 Thursday to ban the deal until March 1 unless King Hussein begins "direct and meaningful" peace talks with the Israelis.

GOP leaders said Reagan agreed reluctantly to accept the restriction, and several senators said his only other alternative was to have his sale of sophisticated aircraft, air defense missiles and other weapons shot down altogether.

and the United States is implemented in the manner agreed upon... this (peace talks) is the last we would do to try to secure this particular package," Hussein said.

More than 70 senators had lined up to oppose the sale of F-20 or F-16 aircraft as well as other weapons, which Reagan proposed to bolster Jordan's own defenses and reward Hussein for his movement toward joining the Middle East peace process.

The House chamber a few hours before the Senate vote.

The State Department, meanwhile, revocated Thursday that Richard W. Murphy, the assistant secretary of state for Near Eastern affairs, visited Jordan earlier this week in an effort to further the Jordan-Israeli peace process.

"He discussed with the Jordanians how to sustain momentum and move forward in the peace process in light of the recent visits of King Hussein and Prime Minister Peres to Washington, and the strong reaffirmation by both the king and prime minister of their desire to find a way to negotiations," said Charles Redman, a department spokesman.

strong commitment of Jordan and Israel to achieve success and by the momentum that has been sustained in the recent period," Redman said.

The measure approved overwhelmingly in the Senate was a hastily crafted attempt by GOP leaders to avert an outright major-foreign policy defeat for Reagan at a sensitive time in the Middle East peace process, and less than a month before his summit with Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev.

Opponents said Hussein should not receive U.S. arms as long as he was technically still in a state of war with Israel and until he sat down for direct peace talks with the Jewish state, but made clear at the same time they wanted to encourage the king's peace efforts.

The sale also has drawn the opposition of more than 270 House members, and legislation rejecting the sale was formally introduced in the House.

He said the talks, which had not been previously announced, were part of a continuing process of consultations with Jordan and Israel.

"All the obstacles to direct negotiations have not been solved, although we are encouraged by the House rejects chemical arms funds

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Appropriations Committee voted Thursday to reject President Reagan's request for money to build new U.S. chemical weapons, but refused to cut deeply into his "Star Wars" research against Soviet nuclear missiles.

The votes came as the committee worked its way through a huge bill appropriating money for the Defense Department for the current fiscal year. The bill, approved and sent to the House floor on a voice vote, contains most of the proposed $292 billion Pentagon budget.

Rep. John Edward Porter, R-Ill., won 26-24 approval for his motion to kill the Pentagon's request for $163.5 million to build nerve gas artillery shells and bombs for the first time since the U.S. program was suspended in 1969.

The vote came in a closed session that Porter requested to present new classified information in support of his argument that no new U.S. weapons are needed to offset the Soviet chemical arsenal.

The fight over chemical weapons now moves again to the House floor, where supporters will try to add the money back into the bill.

Earlier this year, a separate bill authorizing the Pentagon budget was approved the Democratic-controlled House with the chemical weapons provision intact. But although that measure is likely to win floor approval, no weapons can be built unless the Pentagon budget was approved the Democratic-controlled House with the chemical weapons provision intact.

The authorization bill, a separate measure, is scheduled to come to the floor next week.

Public financing of Senate races proposed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two senators, saying they want to curb the growing influence of the "rich and powerful" on Congress, unveiled legislation Thursday to establish limited public financing of Senate campaigns.

Charles McCMathias, R-Md., and Paul Simon, D-Ill., told a news conference their colleagues privately share their view that the escalating cost of seeking office holds politicians captive to political action committees.

"There's no question it has an impact on the conduct of legislators and the results of the legislation," Simon said. "Our present system of financing campaigns is keyed to respond to the wishes of the rich and powerful."

The proposal, which would not cover Senate primaries or any House races, would impose spending limits on candidates opting to receive public money from a voluntary income tax checkoff system like the one now used for presidential campaigns.

Participating Senate candidates would be given an amount equal to a state's spending limit, ranging from $500,000 in the least populous states to $5.7 million in California.

Senate candidates' general election opponent decided not to accept money from the public fund, the participating candidate would be able to get additional public money equal to the amount by which the opponent exceeded the state's limit.

France sets off nuclear test

PAPEETE, Tahiti (AP) — France dispatched a warship to seize a Greenpeace protest yacht within its territorial waters Thursday, had it towed away and then proceeded with the first publicized nuclear test at the Mururoa Atoll.

The Defense Ministry in Paris confirmed the underground test soon after it was held at about 8:30 a.m. and said it was successful. The French premier witnessed the test from an observation bunker—and the defense minister hovered in a helicopter over ground zero.

French nuclear tests at Mururoa used to be held in secrecy, but that was before French secret agents sank the Greenpeace flagship Rainbow Warrior in the Auckland, New Zealand, harbor July 10, killing a crewman.

French sailors boarded the Greenpeace yacht Vega early Thursday after it entered territorial waters near the test site in French Polynesia.

Hussein sees positive signs

AMMAN, Jordan (AP) — King Hussein said Thursday he finds positive signs in peace proposals made by Shimon Peres, but the U.S. Congress can't coerce him into talking with the Israeli prime minister by delaying an arms sale.

Hussein commented at a palace news conference before spending four hours with President Hosni Mubarak of Egypt on their efforts to advance peace in the Middle East.

Mubarak told reporters in Cairo afterward that they discussed the Peres proposal, which includes an offer to meet Hussein in Amman. "It has some good points and some unsatisfactory ones," he said.

Second hijacker cooperating

ROME (AP) — Two of the four hijackers of the Achille Lauro cruise ship, including the one thought to have killed American passenger Leon Klinghoffer, may be cooperating with investigators, Italian news media said Thursday.

Italian newspapers said that the youngest of the four hijackers had decided to tell all and had been transferred away from his colleagues, who are held in a maximum security prison in Spoleto.

"The young—terrorist—collaborating—with magistrates—investigating the hijacking of the Achille Lauro is no longer alone," the Italian news agency AGI reported. "Another member of the commando could have decided to follow the same path."

AGI and the Italian news agency ANSA, which ran a similar report, did not provide any details about the second repentant hijacker or his testimony.

Old problem stalls resolution

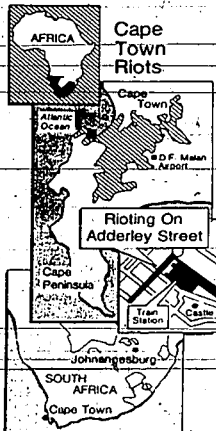

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The United Nations 40th birthday celebration was marred Thursday by failure of member states to agree on a declaration marking the occasion.

Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar told a special session of the General Assembly, "No single viewpoint can dominate or exclude others in this forum. The challenge is to hammer out agreements from the differences and to harmonize the actions of nations."

Just before he spoke U.N. members failed to meet this challenge. A special drafting committee representing more than 100 countries, working on and off since May, gave up trying to reach consensus on a "declaration on the occasion of the 40th anniversary of the United Nations."

The issue on which the declaration faltered is one which has bedeviled the United Nations for 38 of its 40 years: Palestine.

Rioting erupts in heart of Cape Town

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Hundreds of rioters carried their rage against apartheid to the heart of white Cape Town on Thursday, smashing windows and overturning cars in a fashionable shopping street, witnesses reported.

Police headquarters in Pretoria said eight black and mixed-race men had been killed in townships around Cape Town and in other parts of the country in the past 24 hours.

Journalists on the scene said chaos reigned as police pursued the rioters down Cape Town's Adderley Street and into streets leading out of it, beating rioters with rubber whips.

"Initially they beat everyone who was not white. Later, they beat everyone indiscriminately, even whites. If you were walking in a group, they beat you," one reporter said.

Late Thursday night, a bomb exploded at school to be used for voting in a white parliamentary election near Durban next week.

Two black men who had apparently just planted the device, police said.

Police said there was a trail of blood leading away from the blast site at Grosvenor High School in the Durban suburb of Hillside. One man may have been wounded and escaped. One of the blacks killed was blown to pieces, his body parts scattered across a street, a reporter said, while the other was killed a few yards away when the force of the explosion collapsed a retaining wall on top of him.

The outlawed African National Congress, the main guerrillas group fighting against white rule, wages a periodic sabotage campaign, and has claimed responsibility for several recent bombings in Durban.

In Pretoria, President P.W. Botha announced that the state of emergency had been ended in six of the 36 black communities on which it was imposed July 21 because calm had been restored there.

"The lifting of the state of emergency in these areas is proof of the effectiveness of these measures in ensuring a return to stability in these areas," he said in a statement.

All six are small rural communities where few major clashes had been reported in South Africa's 14 months of uprising against apartheid, the race laws that keep power in the hands of 5 million whites and deny rights to the nation's 24 million blacks.

Guerrillas set Duarte's daughter free

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — President Jose Napoleon Duarte's daughter and nine municipal officials were freed by guerrilla kidnapers Thursday in the first part of an exchange for 118 jailed political prisoners and wounded guerrillas, the president's chief adviser said.

The government freed 22 political prisoners, who left Mariona prison on a bus, newsmen and the rebels' Radio Venceremos said.

The rebel radio said 96 wounded guerrillas were evacuated from various parts of the country and turned over to the International Red Cross and diplomatic representatives. They were expected to be flown out of El Salvador for treatment.

"She was freed," Irey Prendes told reporters waiting for news of the president's daughter, Ines Guadalupe Duarte Duran, 35.

Movie industry spokesman balks at drug warning category

By JOAN MOWER
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The movie industry's top spokesman said Thursday he is opposed to creating a new movie rating category that would warn parents about the visual depiction of drug use in films.

Jack Valenti, president of the Motion Picture Association of America, said the use of an "S-R" code — for substance abuse — would be confusing to parents and difficult to use.

"sex appeal." Valenti told the Senate subcommittee on investigations. "We've got five categories now — how many more can we handle?"

The current movie categories are general audience (G); parental guidance (PG); parental guidance, with special attention to children under 13 (PG-13); restricted, under 17s require a parent or guardian (R); No one under 17 admitted (X).

rating board is expected to recommend that any film depicting drug use carry a PG-13 at the minimum. The subcommittee called Valenti to testify on how the motion picture industry could voluntarily use its power to dissuade young people from drug use.

Also testifying at the hearing was William Shatner, a television actor who appeared in the "Star Trek" series and is the national spokesman for the voluntary organization PRIDE, Parents' Resource Institute for Drug Education. "It's a crusade," Shatner said of his involvement in the anti-drug campaign.

To spread the anti-drug message more effectively, he suggested Congress establish a clearinghouse, matching celebrities willing to volunteer their time with organizations needing public speakers.

"An interview here, an appearance there... I am constantly amazed at the impact with which a celebrity can deliver a deserving message," he said. Valenti, in his testimony about ratings, said the system "cannot be a parental substitute," and parents of Hollywood — must be the final arbiter of morals. But Sen. William V. Roth Jr., R-DeL., panel chairman, said there are "serious questions as to whether adequate information" is being given to parents about drug use in films.

At the same time, he said he wanted to avoid any actions which would infringe on the free speech rights of movie makers or impose censorship on them.

Several cuts of movies were shown at the hearing in which drug use was portrayed in a fashionable way. In one scene from "Terms of Endearment", actress Debra Winger and her friend smoke marijuana while playing with a dog.

Valenti said he opposed scenes glorifying the use of drugs, but he said the vast majority of movies do not make such statements.

Trick-or-treat outings a week early

Mystery creature frightens Texas town

HEARNE, Texas, (AP) — A tall, mysterious creature appears to have begun trick-or-treating a week early, say police who have been getting reports about something leaping from rooftops to rooftop and gnawing on front porches.

The creature also has reportedly torn screen windows and scared a dog, police Chief James Bundren said Wednesday. "It's Halloween time and there might be a lot of creatures out there. Every now and then someone calls and says they think they heard the creature."

One resident told authorities last week that something about six feet tall chewed up his porch screen and railling, Bundren said. The resident heard a noise at the front door during the night and went to investigate. When he opened the door, Bundren said, he saw the "image of a man but it had a head that was chewing and slapping at the door."

The resident told police he quickly slammed the door. He looked out the window and saw his frightened dog running down the street. Bundren said the pet still has not returned.

Another resident told police she heard something large land on one side of her roof — walk to the other side and leap off the carport, he said. But police found no tracks around the house. "It raised all kinds of commotion around here after that happened," he said, adding that calls are still coming in from people saying they have heard the creature. Bundren said police have no suspects, but that the first homeowner may have seen a man holding a large dog in front of him.

Ram kills woman feeding chickens

PORT HURON, Mich. (AP) — A 73-year-old woman who went outside to feed chickens in the barn was battered to death by a ram the family had known to be aggressive, police said.

Daglis Zarkowski's body was found Tuesday afternoon by her grandchildren coming home from school, said St. Clair County Sheriff's Deputy Ray Gleason.

Mrs. Zarkowski died of internal injuries and broken ribs inflicted by the ram, medical examiner Dr. Clemens M. Kopp said Wednesday.

The woman lived with her daughter and son-in-law, Eve and Thomas Zdanilo, about 10 months ago. Zdanilo said the ram was known to be aggressive.

The ram was back in its pen when the Zdanilo children returned home.

New citizen registers

CHICAGO (AP) — Walter Polovchak, the Soviet youth who refused to return to the U.S.S.R. with his parents and became the object of a lengthy court battle, registered with the Selective Service System on Wednesday.

His 22-year-old sister, Natalie, who also chose to stay in the United States, took the citizenship oath Wednesday.

"I feel great," Polovchak told reporters as he registered at a Loop post office. He said he would serve in the military if necessary, but that "right now, I have to think about continuing my education."

Polovchak, until he turned 18 on Oct. 31 and applied for citizenship, had been the object of a legal tug-of-war. His lawyer vowed to fight to allow the teen-ager would stay in the United States as he wished. The American Civil Liberties Union represented Polovchak's parents in the U.S. courts.

The Polovchaks returned to the Soviet Union in 1981 after becoming disenchanted with the United States. Walter and Natalie remained in Chicago with a relative.

Polovchak is a high school senior who works part time in a grocery store.

Dog to get new home

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lucky's luck has run out.

The presidential pooch that has roamed the White House for nearly a year has grown so big that she's outgrown her home at 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue.

Soon, probably during the Thanksgiving holidays, Lucky will be taken to President Reagan's California ranch, to join four other dogs on the 688-acre spread in the Santa Ynez Mountains near Santa Barbara, said Elaine Crispin, press secretary to Mrs. Reagan.

The dog, a Flemish cowherd known as a Bouvier, now weighs about 65 pounds and stands more than two feet tall. At full growth, she should weigh 100 pounds.

"Dogs that size love to run and be outdoors. The president and Mrs. Reagan felt the ranch would be a happy spot for her," Mrs. Crispin said.

Soviet tanks cause no stir

MIDDLESBROUGH, England (AP) — Ten Soviet tanks rolled into northeastern England Tuesday, but few people showed much interest.

A British arms dealer had imported them for sale to museums. Until a month ago, the 30-ton T-34 tanks of World War II vintage were used as training vehicles for the Polish reserve army and are still in working order. Arms dealer Ian McGregor said he'd had no trouble negotiating the purchase with the Soviet Union.

He would not say what he paid for the tanks, but Independent Television News reported he has sold them for almost $42,000 each.

State eyes Gooding hospital for prison site

BOISE (AP) — The state of Idaho is going to take a good look at the possibility of converting an old state hospital at Gooding into a minimum security prison — an option Corrections Director Al Murphy says he prefers to spending $12 million for a new prison.

The Permanent Building Fund Council Thursday directed its staff and the corrections agency to look into the possibility of the conversion, for discussion at a December board meeting.

The old state tuberculosis hospital at Gooding hasn't been used for many years. But Murphy said it appeared, with a minimum expenditure, the buildings and grounds could add 175-225 beds to an overcrowded prison system.

The Permanent Building Fund Council supervises the spending of state construction funds. This year there is $5.3 million available, the list of requests is about $47 million. Included is a bid for $12 million by the Department of Corrections to build a new maximum security prison. The Board of Corrections earlier voted to cap the number of inmates at the state prison south of Boise at 1,300, a figure Murphy says the state will fill shortly.

U.S. District Judge Harold Ryan earlier ruled the state must do something about overcrowding and other problems at the state prison. He will conduct a hearing next week on whether the state's complying with that order.

Boardmember Jerry Hess, Nampa, said for corrections to request $12 million for a new prison was "ridiculous," although he agrees there is a need for new prison facilities.

Remodeling the Gooding site could ease some of the overcrowding, he said. Murphy said that would relieve the problem, but the state still needs more high-security cells.

"We have 400 people who should be locked up, who are sitting in minimum security facilities," he said. The system needs at least 100 beds in maximum security units and room for 200 medium security prisoners, he said.

With the Idaho Legislature apparently moving toward tougher criminal sentencing laws, and perhaps ending the practice of giving prisoners "good time" off their sentences, the Idaho system faces even more overcrowding, he said.

About 120 prisoners each year are released with "good time" credit off their sentences, Murphy said.

Murphy said he needs to talk to the Board of Corrections before committing to the Gooding project; but he prefers that idea to about to expand the existing prison.

Private developers have been talking about converting the Gooding hospital to a regional, private prison, but have not been able to secure financing.

Murphy estimated it might cost $11 million and take 12-18 months to renovate the Gooding facility, but it still would be "cheap beds" compared with the cost of building a new prison.

He said the Corrections Board plans to meet in Gooding in a few weeks "and might come back with that recommendation."

The state twice before has converted other facilities into prison space to relieve overcrowding. An old Job Corps center near Cottonwood was made into a women's prison, then into a minimum security center.

Part of the old State Hospital North mental institution at Orofino was converted into a women's prison.

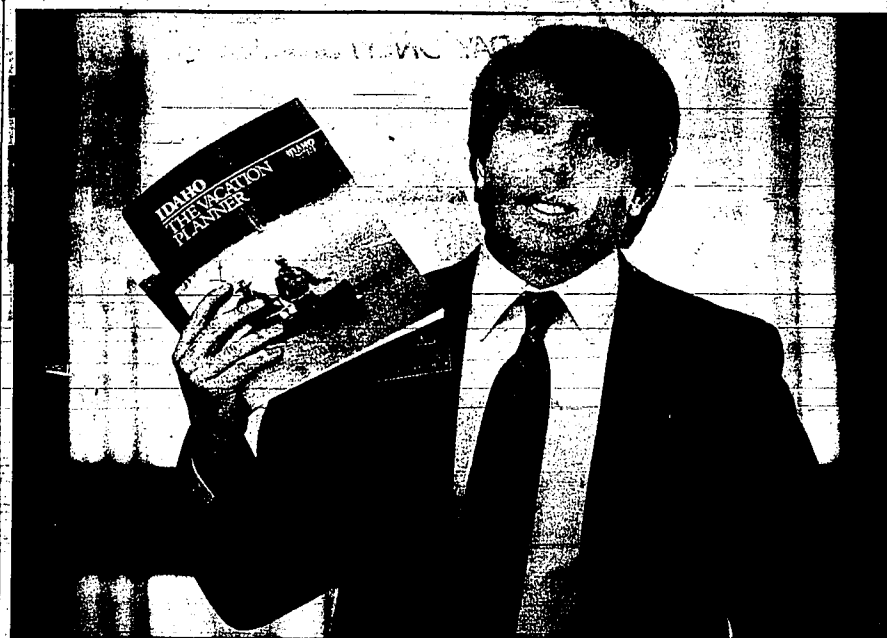

Brian Chase, state public works administrator, said it could cost between $1 1/2 million to $3 million to make the conversion.

"We're going to have to deal with this problem (overcrowding) one way or another," said Board Chairman Thomas Bourne, Idaho Falls.

The council gave Murphy permission to spend $20,000 for "exercise cages" at the state prison that will allow inmates to exercise separately, but at the same time. Prisoners have a right to exercise, Murphy said, but dangerous inmates must be kept away from others.

"We have to separate some very dangerous people, and people who must be separated," he said. Death row inmates, by law, must be segregated from other prisoners.

Travel director touts Idaho's potential

By MICHAEL VANAUDELN Times-News correspondent

TWIN FALLS — "I know that tourism is not the main industry in Twin Falls, but tourism, through a variety of means, can help the economy," said State Travel Director Ralph McMullen Thursday during the Leadership Twin Falls conference.

"The travel industry can't be developed overnight," he said at the College of Southern Idaho, "but the industry can become an economic force in your community."

McMullen stressed that tourism in Idaho does more than create money for the community. It can also create jobs.

"If four million visitors come to Idaho, then over one billion dollars will come with it," he told the Chamber of Commerce-sponsored forum. "And not only that, but it also creates approximately 25 thousand jobs."

McMullen feels that Twin Falls has great potential for tourism because of its many attractions.

"Twin Falls is close to Sun Valley, a major ski resort; has the Snake River Canyon; and has plenty of opportunities for people to hunt, fish, or whatever they like."

McMullen praised Twin Falls for installing the Evel Knievel monument.

"I know there was a lot of controversy about the monument, but it will attract visitors. People are interested in history — it is history and it will draw people."

McMullen pointed out that motels are not the major beneficiaries of tourism.

"Food sales are the major beneficiary," he said. "Tourism helps everybody."

He also felt that tourism is on the rise because more people are travelling and looking toward Idaho.

"People today have more leisure time than they have ever had before," McMullen said. "Also, these people are healthier now, so they are looking for adventuresome recreation. Idaho is known as a recreational state."

McMullen also pointed to the increase in traveling by senior citizens.

"People are finding out that they can't live on Social Security when they retire; therefore, there is an increase in private savings. And the result is, senior citizens are spending more money on travel than ever before."

McMullen said he and his staff are working on several package deals that would be less expensive for the tourist.

"It is much cheaper for an individual or a family to go on a package deal than if they went by themselves," he said. "We can get a package together where motels and food are cheaper."

Many of these package deals involve cooperation with not only other states, but with other countries.

"With the 1988 Winter Olympics and the World's Fair in Canada, we are working on deals that would create these people attending these events to travel through Idaho and see what we have to offer," McMullen said.

Probably the biggest project McMullen has in development is a centennial tour.

"Several of our surrounding states will be celebrating their centennials about the same time we are in 1989 and 1990," he said. "We are starting a tour that would allow tourists to visit our states during the celebrations."

McMullen is also working on a location manual, hoping to draw Hollywood to Idaho.

"Last year, we were able to get Clint Eastwood to film 'Pale Rider' in Idaho," he pointed out. "That production brought six million dollars into Idaho's economy."

He felt that Idaho has several advantages that attracts tourists.

"We try to emphasize that Idaho is uncrowded and that it has great winter recreation," he said. "These things draw a lot of tourists."

Previously Idaho was just a "pathway state," McMullen said, noting he is trying to change that.

"We have the potential to draw a lot of tourists. Usually, people traveling through Idaho are either on their way to Oregon, Salt Lake, Yellowstone, or California," he said. "We are trying to get those people to stay in Idaho for a couple of days."

If there is one philosophy that McMullen subscribes to, he said, it is "that tourists are looking for something different."

"They want a change, and I think Twin Falls and Idaho offer that," he said.

Election field pleases former mayor

By ANNETTE CARY Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Former Twin Falls City mayor Chris Talkington said Thursday that he is heartened by the wide range of candidates running for the Nov. 5 City Council election.

A good council should be made up of people with divergent priorities and differing professional perspectives, he said, in a speech to the Greater Twin Falls Area Chamber of Commerce Leadership Conference and in an interview following the conference.

"It's not healthy for the majority of the council to have the same interests," he said. That means the council should not be made up of mostly business people, mostly firefighters, mostly retired people, or any other closely allied groups of people, he said.

"I would hope the lesson of seven people serving is not a lesson you would overlook," he said. "They do have conflicting interests."

As uncomfortable as public squabbles among councilmembers may be, the public interest is best served by a full and open airing of issues in public, he said.

In his eight years on the council, ending in 1983, the "greatest impediment was a tendency toward secretiveness and not seeking public input," Talkington said.

The present council has held three or more closed meetings a month during the last year. However, Talkington said, in his experience on the council legal uses of the closed meeting were usually unjustified.

Meetings were closed to discuss a suit brought over the unsatisfactory renovation of the city sewage treatment plant, but they were also often closed to save councilmembers from embarrassment, he said.

The public officials who are most secretive tend to be those without faith in the people of the valley, he said.

Reagan says it won't be included

McClure: 'Star Wars' is a summit issue

By DEANS MILLER Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — President Reagan's space-based defense system is on the bargaining table for the upcoming summit talks with the Soviets, whether he wants it to be or not, U.S. Sen. Jim McClure, R-Idaho, said Thursday in a wide-ranging telephone press conference.

Idaho's senior senator said the fact that the Soviets have made it an issue, coupled with public speculation as to whether or not the U.S. should include the "Star Wars" system in negotiations, has made the planned system a bargaining point over Reagan's objections.

In his speech at a fund-raising event last week for Sen. Steve Symms, R-Idaho, President Reagan stressed that the space-based warning system would not be included in his talks with Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev in Geneva next month.

McClure said there is a great deal of pressure on Reagan to come back from the talks with "concrete results that can be seen." He said Reagan should not make any concessions on the Strategic Defense Initiative or any other weapon, unless the Soviets also make concessions.

"On the 1985 Farry-Bill, which is being debated in the House and Senate Conference Committee, McClure said he does not support the whole herd buyout plan put forward in the House version of the bill. Under that plan the government would pay farmers to take entire dairy herds out of production and send them to slaughter.

The top priority in the Farm Bill should be to get production under control," McClure said. "I think that the dairymen themselves will make

Candidates forum slated for Monday

TWIN FALLS — The League of Women Voters will sponsor a candidates forum at 7:30 p.m. Monday for the Nov. 5 Twin Falls City Council elections.

By Thursday afternoon, eight of the nine candidates running for office had accepted invitations to answer questions about city government, said Betty Valentine of the LWV.

The forum will be held at City Hall, with attorney Paula Sinclair acting as moderator.

Three council seats are up for election in November. Councilmember John Peterson is not seeking another term, but Mayor Emery Petersen and Councilmember Mary McClusky, whose terms are ending, have entered the race.

Also running are former city fire chief Bob Bopp; former city fire marshal Fred Higgins; former city fire battalion chief and local business owner Jim Vickers; Douglas Hotel manager Ernie Vasquez; school teacher Ernie Wallen; insurance firm state manager Rick Carr; and handyman Donald McMurrain.

All candidates are running at large-and-voters-will-pick their favorite three from the field of nine. Voters will also be asked to approve a $700,000 bond levy for a new swimming pool.

Members will choose a mayor from among their ranks.

All Twin Falls residents eligible to vote in the election should have received a notice in the mail by now, indicating where they should cast their ballot. Notices were mailed last week. Those not receiving a notice from the city are not registered to vote in the election.

Today is the last day to file for the Nov. 5 election. Residents may register at City Hall or the County Courthouse, but only City Hall will remain open until 8 p.m. today to accept last-minute registrations.

Those with questions about registration may call City Hall at 333-0880.

Investors await county support for juvenile jail

By The Times-News and The Associated Press

JEROME — A group of Jerome investors is proceeding on its plan to build a $250,000 regional juvenile jail facility, despite the refusal of one Magic Valley county to participate and the hesitation of two others to support the project.

John Rasco, a spokesman for the group, said Thursday that the investors have set today as the deadline for the Blaine and Blinnoda county commissioners to sign a letter of support saying they will use the 24-bed facility when it opens in Jerome County, tentatively, on Dec. 1.

If the two counties don't cooperate, the investors probably will do some re-evaluation on how they should proceed, he added.

"If they back out, that would be a setback for us. (But) we're going ahead, no matter what," said Rasco, a writer and former County of Southern Idaho employee. "If they do go with us, we will proceed as rapidly as possible."

The investors, whose names weren't released Thursday, want all the support they can get from the eight Magic Valley counties, Rasco said.

"Considering the amount of money at stake for us, we want to be certain what we're doing, that's all," Jerome, Lincoln, Gooding, Camas and Twin Falls counties have provided their written support of the project, Rasco said. Cassia County refused to sign the letter of support.

Cassia County officials said they planned to continue their search for a more economical alternative to house juveniles, contending the daily proposed cost of the investors — compounded by the expense of transporting juveniles across the valley to Jerome — would be a major new budget expense.

County Attorney Stephen Bywater said a juvenile detention addition to the County Jail or some other alternative may prove less expensive in the long run.

Despite the rejection, Rasco said Cassia County would be able to use the facility, although the price would be higher if they waited until after it opened to sign on.

Felony charges filed against 2 men arrested at trailer with stolen items

By PAT MARCANTONIO Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Four felony charges were filed Thursday against two men arrested Oct. 10 at a trailer house full of stolen goods.

James Lee Walker, also known as Frank Larry Isaacs, 20, of Twin Falls, was charged in the 2nd District Magistrate Court with two counts of second-degree burglary and two counts of grand theft/possession of stolen property.

According to the complaint filed with the court, Walker helped burglarize the Fliter-area residence of Ken Brown and Dennis and Linda Moon sometime between Oct. 5-7.

In the grand theft charges, Walker is accused of possessing items stolen from Brown and the Moons, including a television set, stereo equipment, slide projector and four trays full of slides, and a Norwegian sweater. The items were valued at more than $150.

When Walker appeared in court Thursday, a public defender was appointed for the court to represent him and a $5,000 bond was set.

A complaint alleging similar charges of felony grand theft was filed Thursday against 20-year-old Steve Darryl Inlow, who is being held in Gooding County Jail on burglary charges there, probably will be charged to the court on Friday.

Inlow, Walker and a 17-year-old female were taken into custody Oct. 10 at a rented trailer house near Coalinga, west of Twin Falls, on suspicion of stealing $180 in cash from Shepherd's Bar in Hollister earlier in the day.

Officers traced the trio to the trailer house, obtained a search warrant and found the suspected stolen goods.

Inlow and Walker previously were charged with grand theft for the Hollister bar theft. A preliminary hearing was supposed to have been

Thursday afternoon for Walker, but it was canceled. Twin-Falls County Deputy Prosecutor Rockne Lamers said he intended to ask for a reduction of the felony theft charge to misdemeanor petty theft because the lesser charge was more appropriate.

Inlow, however, still will be charged with felony grand theft for the bar incident.

The recovery of the goods at the trailer house, including 18 weapons, solved two thefts in Twin Falls County, Chief Deputy Sheriff Harold Jensen reported earlier.

A car-load full of the items, however, were taken to Wells, Nev., by police to determine if they are linked to three burglaries there. Wells Police Officer Pat Moore reported Thursday that their investigation has not been completed.

Walker is being held in Twin Falls County Jail. The juvenile female, who is charged with accessory to grand theft, was released to her parents.

Burglars take photo equipment
TWIN FALLS — A burglary at Bach Photographs, 304 Second Ave. E., resulted in a loss of $6,950 in equipment. Twin Falls city police reported Thursday.

Dennis H. Hamilton of the photography studio notified police Wednesday after discovering the building had been entered and the equipment taken.

Police said entry was gained by cutting a hole in the roof and breaking through the ceiling. Police believe access to the roof was gained from a canopy on an adjoining building.

The burglars took cameras, lenses, lights and other equipment from the studio area. The equipment was then carried out the back door, officers said.

The break-in occurred sometime Tuesday night or early Wednesday morning.

Dozens of goose decoys stolen

TWIN FALLS — Someone will be more than ready for weekend goose hunting as the result of a burglary at a storage compound at 222 Gem St.

Twin Falls Police said seven dozen goose decoys, including bodies and legs, were taken from a small trailer sometime between 4 p.m. Tuesday and 9 a.m. Wednesday.

The trailer, a pickup-truck-bed-type unit, was parked inside a Parks and Sons Intermountain Inc. enclosure at the time of the theft. Police said the trailer was in the southeast corner of the fenced lot.

The decoys are valued at $150 per dozen, for a total loss of $1,050, including nylon bag containers for the decoys.

Owners of the decoys included William E. Howard of 1937 Falls Ave. E., and Rick C. Parks, 2951 Conordia Dr., who each lost two dozen decoys — and Les Keltz of 499 Fliter Ave. W., who lost three dozen.

Accident kills former resident

TWIN FALLS — A hunting party out of the Boise area ended in tragedy near Higgins Tuesday when a former Twin Falls man and another from Boise were killed in a traffic accident.

Deputy Sheriff Damon Deter of Idaho County said Gary Dick, 33, who recently moved from Twin Falls to Boise, was dead at the scene of the accident. A driver died several hours later, after being flown to a Boise Hospital.

Deter said Dick was one of five men traveling in a 17-foot motorhome on a dirt road, four miles east of Higgins, at about 3:45 p.m. The vehicle apparently hit a soft gravel shoulder on the road above the Salmon River and rolled down a 250-foot embankment.

It was necessary for officers to launch a jet boat on the river and bring the victims to a private boat landing, where they could be taken to ambulances. Two of the men escaped injury and a third was treated at a local hospital for injuries Deter said were apparently not serious.

He said the party was on a hunting and fishing trip and was driving toward Higgins.

Caldwell man dies after crash

RUPERT — Mindoka County sheriff's officers Wednesday identified the victim of a fatal accident on State Highway 24 Tuesday as 61-year-old David D. Dredge of Caldwell.

Deputy Sheriff Bob Nevarez said a northbound pickup truck driven by Laurie Lee Johnson, 31, of Decia, came up behind a slow-moving vehicle in the inside lane of the four-lane highway. Johns reportedly applied her brakes on the rain-slick roadway, causing her vehicle to go out of control. Nevarez said the accident report showed that the Johns pickup crossed the median and went into the oncoming roadway traffic lanes. Nevarez said that Dredge apparently had no time to attempt to avoid the Johns vehicle, crashing into its left side as it skidded into his path.

The collision occurred about a half-mile south of Rupert and was reported at 11:55 p.m.

Both Dredge and Johns were taken to Mindoka Memorial Hospital by ambulance. Dredge died about two hours later. Johns was treated for minor injuries and released. Mindoka County Coroner John Fisher said Dredge suffered extensive chest trauma.

Stanley race will be uncontested

STANLEY — Four candidates are seeking four essentially uncontested seats in the Stanley city government during the Nov. 3 general election.

Mayor Lloyd "Bud" James is seeking re-election to a four-year term.

Incumbent Councilman Ronald Krohn is looking to fill a two-year seat on the council, says Joanna Kimpton, the city clerk.

Two candidates have filed to be selected to two four-year seats on the council. They are incumbent David "Fluffo" Wood and newcomer Floris Sullivan.

The city also is hoping to regain its 5 percent local option tax on rented rooms and barroom drinks in the election, Kimpton says.

The city had the resort cities' option tax until about 18 months ago when Stanley residents voted down the measure by a small margin.

Polluted well trial continues
TWIN FALLS — The civil trial of a woman who claims the Amalgamated Sugar Co. polluted her water supply went into its second day Wednesday in 5th District Court in Twin Falls.

Virginia Hill, of Route 6, Twin Falls had filed the $350,000 suit July 8, 1983 against the Ogden-based company. In the complaint, she alleges the company has been discharging waste in quantities that polluted her water and will discuss land loan applications.

She asked the court to order the sugar manufacturing company to discontinue the dumping and replace the plumbing and appliances damaged by the alleged pollution of the water. She also requested a reimbursement for the extra costs of cleaning because of the alleged contamination, plus $350,000 in damages.

The jury trial began Tuesday. A panel was selected by the afternoon.

Expert testimony is expected to continue today in the trial.

Pump-irrigation acreage added
BOISE (AP) — Idaho Power Co. added 17,836 acres under pumped-irrigation water this year, passing the 2 million acre mark.

But the added acreage was slightly less than last year and far below the average of 77,000 acres added each year during the 1970s, the company says.

The new pump-irrigation acreage pushes the company's southern Idaho total to 2,004,213 acres.

Idaho Power's latest newsletter said the Twin Falls area showed the largest growth, 6,645 acres. The Pocatello area grew by 2,066 acres, the Boise area by 2,647 and the Payette area by 2,522 ac.

The company said not all the acres were new farm land. Some of the land was converted to pumped irrigation water from other types of irrigation that did not require electricity.

Halloween is for treats, but no tricks

DEAR ABBY: Last year you ran a wonderful letter from a concerned mother who deplored the custom of sending children out to beg for treats on Halloween.

My 12-year-old daughter took it to school, and it completely changed the character of the way Halloween was celebrated in our little town. Please run it again. This is from your home state.

Abigail VanBuren Dear Abby

WHILE TALL CORNS grow from DEAR FELLOW IOWAN: Thanks for asking. Here it is:

DEAR ABBY: Those who presumably worry about their children who are out trick-or-treating on Halloween should take a lesson from my mother and her friends.

They never had to worry. We stayed home because she and her neighbors would toss the best party of the year next to Christmas. They did this with little effort, permitting the children to do most of the work and planning.

Hot dogs, hamburgers, soft drinks, cookies and cakes were in bountiful supply. We played games, bobbed for apples and received prizes for our costumes.

Growing up in a small town (population about 9,000), I never heard of trick or treat until I moved to Washington, D.C. We didn't have to worry about poisoned candy, pins and razor blades in apples, or the threat of being lured into the home of a stranger to be molested.

I personally despise the custom of trick or treat and refuse to condone it by encouraging children to come to my door. Call me Scrooge.

Fortunately, more parents in my part of the country are beginning to see the sense in block parties on Halloween. I hope it catches on and replaces the "deplorable" custom of sending children out to beg for treats.

patrol the streets in an effort to protect private and public property.

What began many years ago as a harmless holiday, celebrated by telling children scary ghost stories about imaginary witches, goblins and spirits, has turned into legalized blackmail.

Halloween has become scarier than ever, and I vote for abolishing the custom of trick or treat.

To those of you out there who want to correspond with a 23-year-old, single senior airman from Medford, N.J., now stationed at Osan Air Base in Korea: write to Operation Dear Abby in care of Wayne J. Barnaby, PSC Box 421, APO San Francisco 96366-0066. He promised to share the overflow with his buddies.

DEAR READERS: A few weeks ago I published a letter from Mel Hebert, a lonesome U.S. Marine stationed in Okinawa. He asked for mail for him and some of his lonely buddies.

Well, the island of Okinawa has been clobbered with mail, thanks to you, my readers.

Poll: Americans feel satisfied with finances, but living levels lower

NEW YORK (AP) — Americans think about money more than about sex, but they enjoy sex more, according to the results of a Money magazine survey released Wednesday.

In addition, a majority of Americans remain satisfied with their current financial situation, Money said.

But the number of satisfied Americans slipped to 54 percent from 55 percent in 1984, and the number of those who feel that their standard of living is "comfortable" decreased to 59 percent from 66 percent in 1984 and 68 percent two years ago, the magazine said.

According to Money's third annual survey, more than a third of the people polled said they think about money more than sex, compared with a quarter who think about sex more often.

The survey results were based on responses to a questionnaire by 2,491 adults—who are the financial decision-makers of their households, Money said.

People saved and invested more money this year than last. However, they also borrowed more, Money said.

People who responded to the survey said they had savings and investments worth an average of $36,500 vs. $35,800 a year ago. The segment with $10,000 or more saved or invested rose to 40 percent from 36 percent in 1984, while those with less than $3,000 saved or invested fell to 36 percent from 42 percent.

The average amount of debt increased to $33,300 from $30,900.

"The reduced impression among Americans that their standard of living is comfortable is somewhat surprising, given savings patterns this year, plus the drop in interest rates and the rate of inflation," said Seymour Lieberman, a researcher who directed the survey for Money.

"People may be reflecting a sense of raised expectations for their living standards more than an actual lowering of their financial conditions," he said.

About half of those polled, or 49 percent, are optimistic that next year will be better for them financially than this year. Thirty-nine percent think next year will be the same as this year and 12 percent think that next year will not be as good.

People with higher incomes, better education and managerial or professional jobs are more satisfied and optimistic than lower income people, the less educated and people in non-supervisory jobs.

CONCERNED MOTHER DEAR CONCERNED: You hit upon something that has troubled me for a number of years. The very principle of trick or treat is pure and simple blackmail: "If you don't give me a treat, I will play a trick on you" — the "trick" being anything from overturning garbage cans, soaping or breaking windows, or doing serious damage to property.

This kind of vicious and antisocial behavior should not be tolerated. Most police departments must call in extra hands on Halloween to

Red Cross chapter helps local families

TWIN FALLS — During the past year, the Sawtooth Chapter of the American Red Cross assisted 633 servicemen and 32 veterans and their families.

And 426 people were given first aid at 46 first aid stations throughout the area operated by Red Cross trained volunteers. The stations were located at high school rodeo, United Way picnic and the Twin Falls County fair and rodeo.

According to a report prepared by Ann Livingston, chapter manager, for the group's annual meeting Wednesday, these are only part of the many community services performed by the Red Cross.

Others include sponsoring blood drawings; transporting blood to area hospitals by volunteers, providing free blood pressure clinics twice monthly; fingerprinting, safety training and health services.

Livingston said 3,794 persons were trained in 654 water safety classes with 163 certified instructors last year. In first-aid, 4,411 people were trained in 426 classes with 163 certified instructors in the various courses.

The Red Cross is the only private agency with a mandate from Congress to provide assistance to military and disaster relief, according to Vernon E. Smith, chapter board chairman.

New board members elected were Sadie DeGlee, Wes Frey, Maury Hansen, Keith Whittaker, John Thiebert, Tim Jones, Romana Peterson, George Nye and Dennis Osmond. Re-elected were June Kunkel, Margaret Ralphs and Clara Bruner for three-year terms and Aulene Florence, Julia Campeau and Diane Schrank for one-year terms.

Smith was re-elected chairman, and Bruner was retained as vice chairman. Val Kuehn is the new secretary and Wes Frey was elected treasurer.

Limits on tax hikes could cost districts control of schools

By MARK WARBISS
The Associated Press

BOISE — Communities across Idaho are in danger of losing local control of their schools unless the Legislature lifts a cap on property tax increases, state Superintendent of Public Instruction Jerry Evans said.

He told the Idaho Press Club's Headliner Luncheon Thursday that financing for the state's public schools is badly out of balance. The state currently funds 75 percent of public school needs, while just 25 percent comes from the federal government and local districts, Evans said.

Adoption of the 1 Percent Initiative in 1978 prohibits counties from raising local property taxes more than 5 percent a year. And Evans said with continued dependence on state funding to pick up the slack in increased education needs, local officials soon may be unable to decide how their own schools are run.

"I don't think we can maintain local control of our public schools if we get much more than 75 percent of our funding from Evans said he would back legislation to lift the property tax limitation. But if that's done, he said he also would urge lawmakers to adopt measures to equalize funding between relatively rich and poor school districts across the state.

"If that cap just comes off, you'll see $10 raised for schools in Blaine County for every $1 in a district like just outside Idaho Falls," Evans said.

But there are more pressing financial needs facing Idaho's 116 local school districts. Evans said they will have some "tremendous cash-flow problems" unless the next Legislature comes up with the money to cover an ordered 2 1/2-percent holdback of public school funding.

He said even the automatic property tax increase that would be triggered by a short-fall in public school funding would leave districts waiting up to 13 months for money appropriated for the current spending year.

Gov. John Evans' across-the-board holdback of state agency expenditures trims $7.6 million from public schools. The Legislature can find a source of revenue to cover that holdback or allow a property tax increase with the end of the current fiscal year next June 30.

But Jerry Evans said that would mean school districts would not get the first half of their money due this coming May 15, December 1986, and the balance not until the following June.

On another matter, Evans said he would "let the dust settle" before trying again to amend Idaho's controversial C-average grade rule for high school graduation.

The state Board of Education last week rejected a change of that rule that would have allowed local school districts the option of administering standard tests in "core" math and language subjects.

That would have given school district officials the authority to set their own cut-off scores for graduation requirements, and Evans said the plan could have eased some concerns raised by those opposing the C-average requirement, results in grade inflation and increased drop-out rates.

"I don't know where we go from here because it is not well received and accepted at the school level," he said.

Governor files disclosure statement

BOISE (AP) — Gov. John Evans, who won't declare officially that he's a candidate for the U.S. Senate, nevertheless has filed a personal financial disclosure statement with the Senate.

It shows Evans, in his sixth year as Idaho's chief executive, has extensive holdings in farms, ranches and banking interests in southern Idaho.

Although the Senate disclosure report only requires disclosures in broad categories, Evans' statement shows he owns stock and land with an estimated value of at least $680,000 and it could be worth more than $1.8 million.

One asset, Evans' 2,500-acre Dempsey Creek ranch in Oneida County, is listed in a category of $250,000 and above.

Evans has not declared officially that he is a candidate for the Democratic nomination to oppose Republican Sen. Steve Symms, who is up for re-election next year.

But on the disclosure form, Evans listed himself as a U.S. Senate candidate.

Evans listed only his $50,000 governor's salary, $1,000 for a speech and between $5,000 and $15,000 income from a family trust last year. But his disclosure shows substantial holdings in land and stock, all of which are being held in a trust.

The governor listed a Malad rental house at between $50,000 and $100,000, and listed the same value for his 320-acre Big Hollow Ranch in Oneida County.

Evans valued the 600-acre Francis Place farm in Oneida County at $100,000 to $250,000 and listed a value of between $15,000 and $50,000 for four unimproved lots on Evans Ave. in Malad.

The governor owns 250 shares of D.L. Evans Farms at Malad, valued at between $100,000 and $250,000; 2,125 shares in D.L. Evans Bank and 900 shares in Ireland Bank, both with a value of between $100,000 and $250,000.

Evans listed 22 shares in JENCO, a holding company which owns real estate and farm equipment, valued at $5,000 to $15,000; 864 shares of Great Western Mines, less than $5,000 and 2,208 shares of First Interstate Bank stock, valued at between $100,000 and $250,000.

Evans also listed between $25,000 and $50,000 in individual retirement accounts, paid-up value of life insurance policies and miscellaneous farm equipment.

As liabilities, the governor listed three farm operating loans with D.L. Evans Bank, totaling about $57,000 and a $5,500 loan with an Ogden, Utah, bank.

Gooding State School building plans OK'd

BOISE (AP) — All of the money available in next year's state construction fund will go to two projects, the Permanent Building Fund Council has decided.

The board voted Thursday afternoon to recommend spending $3 million to complete a new psychiatric unit at State Hospital South and $2.3 million to start paying for major rebuilding at the State School for the Deaf and Blind at Gooding.

The Permanent Building Fund will have about $5.3 million for construction next year, according to Public Works Director Brian Chase.

The recommendation goes to the governor's office, where it will go into the state budget proposal that goes before the 1986 Legislature.

A final decision will be made by the Legislature on the construction projects.

The Legislature earlier appropriated $2.2 million toward the $3.2 million cost of building a new 120-bed psychiatric unit at the Blackfoot mental institution.

The current building is so old that temperatures can be controlled only by opening windows, legislators were advised last week.

The State Building Authority has issued bonds to pay for new buildings at the Gooding school. Director Wayne Meulemann said Thursday construction bids will be opened in January for an $8 million project.

Members of the Permanent Building Fund Council talked of recommending at least $1 million for the Department of Corrections construction requests. But council members said they felt the state is obligated to finish financing the Blackfoot and Gooding projects started earlier.

High court upholds conviction, death penalty

BOISE (AP) — The Idaho Supreme Court has upheld the murder conviction of a Nampa man in the rape-slaying of a 13-year-old Nampa girl, and the death penalty ordered by 3rd District Judge Edward Lodge.

In a 4-1 decision announced Thursday, the Supreme Court upheld the use of a unique "dual jury" system to try Albert Ray Beam, who was age 21 at the time he was charged with murder, and co-defendant Michael Shaw Scroggins.

Scroggins, age 18 at the time of the slaying, also was convicted and sentenced to death. He is appealing separately to the Supreme Court.

In an opinion written by Justice Allan Sheppard, the majority held Beam was not deprived of his rights when Lodge decided to use two juries; one to hear the Beam case and one to hear Scroggins testimony.

Both juries listened to some of the testimony, but each of the juries was exposed during certain testimony.

The Supreme Court said that was because Beam made a confession in the case, and a 1968 court decision says the confession of a defendant may not be used to convict a co-defendant.

Justice Stephen Bistline dissented, saying the dual jury system deprived Beam of valuable rights to cross-examine witnesses.

The Supreme Court noted that the dual jury system has been used in other states, and in each case has been upheld. But only twice before, in Illinois and Arizona cases, has a dual jury returned a conviction that resulted in an affirmed death penalty, the court said.

Beam and Scroggins were accused of the July 8, 1983, rape-slaying of Mondil Lenten.

Ruling denies 'fishing expeditions'

BOISE (AP) — A defendant in a rape case can't go on a "fishing expedition" with inquiries about the victim's past sexual conduct, the Idaho Court of Appeals says.

The defendant must show there is some relevancy before the request will be granted, the court said Thursday. It ruled 2-1 to uphold the conviction of Vernon Stuart Gabrielson on rape, kidnap and assault charges in a 1982 incident near Idaho Falls.

Woman faces perjury count

BLACKFOOT (AP) — Kathy Leavitt, the wife of convicted murderer Rick Leavitt, has been arraigned on a perjury charge stemming from testimony she offered at a December, 1984 magistrate's inquiry.

Magistrate Judge James A. March Wednesday scheduled a preliminary hearing for Nov. 15 at 10 a.m. She remains in jail in lieu of $5,000 bond.

Mrs. Leavitt, 23, is accused of lying when she testified at the inquiry that Leavitt had cut his finger in a fan on July 17, 1984, the night Danette Jean Elig, 31, was murdered at her Blackfoot home.

Leavitt, 26, was convicted Sept. 25 of first-degree murder in her death, following a 10-day jury trial.

Board orders ISU pharmacy project halted

By QUANE KENYON
The Associated Press

BOISE — The $8.5 million pharmacy building construction project at Idaho State University has been ordered halted until somebody figures out how the state will pay for its $5 million share of the cost.

The Permanent Building Fund Council on Thursday approved preliminary drawings on the project, but then voted unanimously to stop any further work.

"I support the program," said council member state Sen. Kermit Klebert, D-Home. "But we need to deal pragmatically with our funding problems. I wouldn't want to raise a false hope that there will be a pharmacy building at Idaho State within the next few years" unless the state comes up with a new revenue source.

The 1985 Legislature approved the $200,000 for preliminary planning and design of a new pharmacy building to replace a 40-year-old structure that has caused ISU's pharmacy program to be threatened with loss of accreditation.

ISU officials hope to raise $3.5 million in private donations and contributions toward the cost. The other $5 million would have to come from state funds.

Board member Jerry Hess, Nampa contractor, called any further work on the project "an exercise in futility" because there's no money to pay for it.

"I can see no way we can find $5 million in state funds to pay the rest," he said. "We should stop this project now until we figure out how we can pay for it, so we don't spend any more money than necessary. We may have spent $200,000 more than we needed to already."

Phil Eastman, ISU financial vice president, said the school needed the preliminary drawings to launch its fund-raising efforts. "It is not easy to raise $5 million," he said.

The Pocatello school hopes to launch its major fund-raising drive shortly. Eastman said ISU hopes to come before the Legislature next year with a substantial number of pledges.

But Hess said the state already has a heavy commitment to existing projects — and some of those might not be completed because of a lack of money.

"I think we're putting the cart before the horse," he said.

Council member state Rep. Kathleen Gurnsey, R-Boise, questioned the program on different grounds.

She said ISU should look into some sort of cooperative program with other states to train pharmacy students, rather than building its own facilities.

"If I were in your shoes," she told the ISU officials, "I'd be pushing for a new pharmacy building, too. But I question whether that's the best use of our resources."

ISU Pharmacy Dean Ira Hillyard said it didn't appear a regional facility was feasible. He said the states of Wyoming, Montana and North and South Dakota have small, under-financed pharmacy programs.

ISU would have to plan to accommodate 25 to 50 students from each state if it operated a regional pharmacy school, he said.

Since 1981, ISU has been threatened with loss of accreditation for its pharmacy program, which in the 1970s graduated 70 to 80 pharmacists per year. A study indicated the school needed more money for faculty and staff and more space.

Upon a recommendation from ISU, the state Board of Education approved constructing a new pharmacy building, instead of trying to renovate the existing facility.

Architect Joe LaMarsh presented plans for a three-story building that could accommodate about 200 students. It's planned for what now is a parking lot on South 10th, about a block away from ISU's main quadrangle of classroom buildings.

Governor may put $6 million in budget

Maintenance requests top $17 million

BOISE (AP) — The Permanent Building Fund Council has decided to send Gov. John Evans about $17 million in maintenance requests for state facilities, even though the governor probably will put only $6 million into his next budget.

The council voted Thursday to send the governor all of a list of maintenance requests for state agencies, without priorities. The Division of Financial Management said it plans to designate $6 million for maintenance in the upcoming budget request, even though there's no guarantee the Legislature will fund even that amount.

Public Works Director Brian Chase presented the council with a list of projects totalling $17,155,650. Included was $3.8 million in maintenance and repair requests from the Department of Corrections, just over $6 million from the Board of Education and $5.9 million for the Department of Health and Welfare.

Even though there won't be enough money for all the request, he said, the list should be sent to the governor's office and Legislature so there will be an awareness of the need to spend more money to maintain and repair the state's $800 million worth of buildings and facilities.

Some board members argued they should set priorities.

Member Rep. Kathleen Gurnsey, R-Boise, is co-chairman of the Legislature's budget committee. "Realistically, I think there will be $2 1/2 to $3 million for maintenance," she said. "I'd like to know what the priorities are."

Board member Jerry Hess said the $17 million list of projects is "asking for the moon."

The Permanent Building Fund Council approved Keys Ennsley of Nampa as the architect for a new Boise State University

Canyon County vocational-technical training center on the Nampa-Caldwell highway.

The old Boise Cascade distribution center is being renovated into a training center. Some of the $1.2 million cost is being met by a $500,000 economic development grant.

The council also gave approval for preliminary planning on other projects, including a multi-purpose building at Eastern Idaho Vocational-Technical School, Idaho Falls; remodeling and restoration of Boise State's Music Auditorium building and remodeling of the base of the Sam Glenn building at Lewis-Clark State College.

The council deferred until a future meeting a request to approve $50,000 for planning and design for a $1.7 million project to remodel and expand the Idaho Veterans Home. Federal funds will pay two-thirds of the cost and a request for state funds won't be made until at least 1987.

PUC approves utilities' bid for lower gas rates

BOISE (AP) — The Idaho Public Utilities Commission has approved decreases in natural gas rates requested by Intermountain Gas Co. and Washington Water Power Co.

The requests came as a result of a drop in the price of natural gas from Canadian suppliers. Northwest Pipeline. The reduced rates are effective Nov. 1.

The cuts will mean an overall annual drop in revenue of approximately $4.5 million or 3.9 percent for Intermountain Gas and $1.4 million or 4.4 percent for WWP, the commission said Thursday.

For the average Intermountain residential customer the reduction will be about $13.35 a year, while WWP residential gas customers will see their annual bills cut by about $15.36.

Overall, the proposal seeks to boost residential rates by 9.3 percent, hike discount rates by 4.2 percent and increase commercial rates by 7.7 percent.

However, some of that cost would be shifted from the company's large-volume industrial users, for which Intermountain requested a rate decrease of 4.7 percent. Without such a cut, the utility said, it would be in danger of losing some of the heavy gas users that help subsidize rates to other customer classes.

Dave Schunke, an engineer for the PUC, said he agreed that Intermountain's sales to industrial customers dropped about 43 percent from 1979 through 1984.

But based on staff findings on the company's accounting practices, Schunke recommended that there be no change in rates to any customer class but large-volume industrial, and that those rates be decreased by only about 2 percent — less than half Intermountain's request.

"Everybody needs a decrease, even the residential customers," he said. "But the most immediate brush fire we felt was the large-volume industrial use."

Inmate scales fence, leaves

BOISE (AP) — A full-scale ground and air search was launched Thursday for a convicted rapist who escaped just before dawn from the main prison south of Boise. Authorities said James Wesley Swain, 28, apparently scaled the double fence on the eastern perimeter of the institution and then fled on foot. The Idaho National Guard was called in to assist in the search for Swain, labeled by officials as "extremely dangerous."

A prison spokesman said officials were going house-to-house, warning residents in the area near the prison of the escape.

Swain entered the prison in 1982 to begin a 20-year term for a Kootenai County rape. Authorities said he had undergone psychiatric care prior to that.

Water rights sessions set

BOISE (AP) — The state of Idaho and the Shoshone-Bannock Indian Tribes will start negotiating water rights issues here next Wednesday.

Attorney General Jim Jones said the first negotiating session, at the statehouse, is to cover a discussion on how the public can be included in the negotiations. Jones said the talks will be open to the public, and opportunity will be provided for public comment.

A resolution passed by the 1985 Legislature directed the governor and attorney general to negotiate with Indian tribes in an effort to resolve questions about Indian water rights and federal water rights as they affect the use of Snake River water.

'Stalker' case suspect hails Satan in court

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "Night Stalker" defendant Richard Ramirez pleaded innocent Thursday to 38 felonies, including 17 murder counts, and shouted "Hail Satan!" as he was led from court.

Ramirez, 25, wearing manacles and leg irons as he entered court, also twice raised his left palm to display a pentagram, a five-pointed star that is sometimes a symbol of the devil.

"Hail Satan!" yelled Ramirez as he was led from the courtroom after entering the pleas at the hearing. The court stenographer confirmed the quote.

Ramirez's obsession with devil worship had been described in court documents and detailed by friends and relatives.

Municipal Court Judge Elva Soper scheduled a hearing for Dec. 13.

The pleas were entered by Ramirez's new attorney, Arturo Hernandez, who along with co-counsel Daniel Hernandez was appointed by Ms. Soper earlier in the hearing after Ramirez fired attorney Joseph Gallegos did not object.

Ms. Soper, who had criticized the Hernandezes, who are not related, for their inexperience, said she was obliged under law to allow Ramirez to choose his own counsel.

Fake heart surgeon faces murder charge

CAMPBELL, Calif. (AP) — A phony heart surgeon who allegedly told an elderly woman to stop taking medicine and jump up and down has been charged with murdering her so he could inherit her $350,000 estate, authorities said Thursday.

Ebrahim Sadeghy was arrested Wednesday night in the June 11 death of 84-year-old Myrtle Reid, who suffered from severe cardiovascular disease, investigators at the Santa Clara County District Attorney's office said.

Sadeghy, who was adopted by Mrs. Reid, advised her to stop taking medication and to jump up and down for 15 minutes to relieve her stomach pain, investigators said.

Sadeghy, 38, faced an as yet unscheduled arraignment on murder, grand theft, fraud and perjury charges, Hamilton said. If convicted, he could be sentenced to life in prison.

Sadeghy has denied that he advised Mrs. Reid, who died June 11, to stop taking medicine or that he ever treated her as a physician, officials said. However, court documents said he admitted using "M.D." after his name.

Resort tax vote set Nov. 5

WEST YELLOWSTONE, Mont. (AP) — West Yellowstone voters will go to the polls Nov. 5 to determine whether they will have Montana's first sales tax.

Only it won't be called a sales tax. If enacted by the Town Council, it would be a "resort tax," a 3 percent sales tax on selected goods and services mainly used by tourists in this western gateway of Yellowstone National Park.

If voters approve, West Yellowstone would be the first resort community in Montana to have a local option sales tax under a new state law that was tailored for West Yellowstone.

But legislators have steadfastly resisted talk of enacting a general sales tax in Montana, which for years has prided itself on being one of the few states in the country without a sales tax.

West Yellowstone officials are pushing for the resort tax and are planning a public information campaign to convince the town's 735 year-round residents of its benefits.

Royals return World Series to home park

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The Kansas City speed connection of Lonnie Smith and Willie Wilson sent a silver lining to the Cardinals' night yet expired on the American League champion Royals.

The Royals' Nos. 1 and 2 hitters sparked an offensive surge Thursday night that carried Kansas City to a 5-1 victory in Game 6 of the World Series against St. Louis.

The victory cut the Cardinals' advantage in the best-of-seven Series to three games to two and sent the Series back to Kansas City for Game 6 Saturday night. The Royals will send left-hander Charlie Leibrandt, the hard-luck loser of Game 2, against right-hander Danny Cox, who won Game 2 with the aid of four ninth-inning runs.

"What keeps us coming back is that World Series," Wilson said. "We want to win it. ... We were thinking about taking this back home. Nobody thought about losing."

With Danny Jackson pitching in and out of trouble in the early going despite allowing only five hits, Wilson and Smith spearheaded an 11-hit attack, matching the Royals' offensive output in their 6-1 victory in Game 3. Smith had two hits and scored a pair of runs, and Wilson had two hits, including a triple and a pair of RBI.

"The first three innings—my motion and timing were a little off," Jackson said. "I thought I didn't have it until the fourth inning. Now I'm in a good groove, the groove I like to be in. I concentrated harder tonight, especially with our backs to the wall."

The Royals scored once in the first inning against St. Louis, then added three more in the second, beginning with the first controversial call of the Series — a disputed play at home plate, argued vehemently between Cardinals Manager Whitey Herzog and home plate umpire John Shaulock. But Herzog said it was Jackson

Royal Jim Sundberg reaches for the plate as Cardinal catcher Tom Nieto tries for the tag. Sundberg was rule safe who kept the Cards from winning Shaulock.

"Too much," Danny Jackson said. "We haven't done too much with him, the last two times we faced him. The ballclub isn't hitting. They're pitching well, but you'd think we would get a few hits every now and then."

"Character, I guess, is what keeps us coming back," said Royals third baseman George Brett. "It's really hard to explain. Today, before the game, everybody was poised and comfortable and ready to play."

The Cardinals, meanwhile, seemed more like the team showing pressure. Slick-fielding shortstop Ozzie Smith made an error that led to a run, and fan favorite Tito Landrum had a rough day. Landrum let runners move up to second and third on a flyout in the first, leading to one run; misplayed a fly ball into a double, leading to the game-winning run in the second; and let another ball go over his head in the ninth for an RBI double.

Jackson, who worked seven effective innings in Game 1 before he left for a pinch-hitter, was a little less effective in Game 5, but he was good enough. He gave up a first-inning run on Jack Clark's double, plucked out of a bases-loaded jam in the third, then retired the 11 hitters in a row until Landrum's infield hit with one out in the ninth.

"We really feel we can shut down their hitting," said the 23-year-old Jackson, who struck out five and walked three. "We've faced some pretty good clubs during the season with some success, and we really feel we can do it tonight for the next two games now."

After Forsch's exit in the second inning, Herzog's bullpen did an effective job, but it was too late. Until the Royals scored a ninth-inning run on Pat Stanton's double, Mickey Horton, Bill Campbell, Todd Worrell and Jeff Lahti had combined him for a double.

The Royals broke a 1-1 tie with the disputed run, starting a three-run inning and the demise of Forsch. With one out, Jim Sundberg hit a soft fly into shallow left field, apparently misjudged by Landrum. Landrum tried to make a shoe-top catch and got his glove on it, but the ball rolled perhaps 15 feet past cond. Cesar Cedeno fielded the ball in shallow right and made a strong throw home. Catcher Tom Nieto took the throw slightly in front of the plate, and Sundberg slid head first, reaching to touch the base with his left hand as Nieto attempted a lunging tag.

"The throw was up the line," Shaulock said.

Wood River, Gooding, Shoshone loom as state contenders

BY STEVE CRUMP
Times-News sports editor

For the first time since the state high school volleyball tournament split into four parts in 1981, Magic Valley teams are among the favorites to win state championships in all the classes in which they are represented.

For the first time, Magic Valley teams won't be represented in all four divisions. Twin Falls High lost the Region 3 championship to Highland of Pocatello and then lost a playoff match against Mountain Home for the right to play in the Class A-1 tournament, which starts this afternoon in Reed Gymnasium on the campus of Idaho State University in Pocatello.

But in the A-2 tournament, which will be held simultaneously with the A-1 tourney in Reed Gym, District I champion Wood River will be one of the favorites, along with St. Maries and Preston, which have split the last four state A-2 titles.

And in Kootenai, where the A-3 and A-4 tournaments will be contested starting today in the Northwest Nazarene College gym, Gooding and Shoshone will be among the teams to beat.

Competition among the 32 teams involved in the four tournaments will commence at 1 p.m. today and conclude Saturday night. Sandpoint, St. Maries and Malad are all on hand to defend last year's state championships in classes A-1, A-2 and A-3 respectively, but defending state A-4 winner Ketchum-Sun Valley Community School was eliminated in the sub-district competition.

Wood River Coach David Neumann introduced a new offense and three sophomores into his starting rotation this year, and the Wolverines took their lumps for awhile. But the team won nine of its last 11 matches to finish the season 15-8.

"I think if we're executing well and if everybody plays the way they're capable of playing, we'll be right in the thick of it," says Neumann, who has won two state championships at Wood River. "It took us awhile to get started this season and we haven't done real well in tournaments, but I'm hoping the experience we've gained will help him for a double.

Herzog said Sundberg's hall was hit on the fists, "and that's the toughest kind of ball to judge. It's almost caught the ball. I don't fault him."

Forsch ran the count full against Buddy Biancalano, and the light-hitting Royals shortstop hit a ground single between first and second.

The brackets are laid out about as fairly as I've seen them at a state tournament," says Neumann. "Sure, St. Maries is in our bracket, but Preston, which also had an undefeated season, is on the other side."

"Buhl Coach Pat Thornberry, whose 18-8 Indians had to win two inter-district playoff games to get to state, is philosophical about having to open up against the Lumberjacks, who are 21-0 for the season, 20 of those victories coming in two-game matches.

"If we're going to state, we know that we're going to have to play some good teams. We're going to have to play-tough on the front row."

POCATELLO — Midway through the 1980 season, Portland State University — the quarterbacked by Neil Lomax — came to the Midlindome to take an Idaho State, then — quarterbacked by Mike Machurek.

Together they threw 123 passes, consuming more than 1,600 yards and nearly 4 1/2 hours.

If you're a fan of football teams that swallow real estate without chewing it, could be you ain't seen nothing yet.

The University of Idaho, ranked fourth in the country in NCAA Division I-A, comes to town for a Big Sky Conference game against Idaho State Saturday night that will have a lot to do with who wins the conference championship.

"The Vandals are No. 1 in the country in total offense. Guess who's No. 2?"

"We may be there all night," says Idaho Coach Dennis Erickson.

"There's no question it's the biggest game of the year," says ISU Coach Jim Koetter. "Right now we're No. 1 in the conference and could make it a four-way tie with a win. It's an in-state rivalry and it's a chance to get back the conference lead."

For the record, Idaho is generating 493 yards total offense per game, 10 inches a game more than the Bengals. ISU leads the conference in passing offense with 322 yards, 26 inches more than the Vandals. Idaho is averaging 35.4 points per game; ISU averages 30.

Yet both coaches wonder how much that will mean Saturday. Since the arrival of Koetter in 1980 and Erickson in 1982, this game has rarely been decided by defense. This year, Koetter says, "the numbers tell us."

"The biggest difference between this Idaho team and the one we played here in 1983 is its defensive blockers," Koetter says.

Idaho at Idaho State: Passing records could fall

The secret of the Vandals' six victories in seven outings this year has been simple, Koetter adds.

"They've controlled the line scrimmage."

The 41-31 ISU win here in 1983 that knocked the Vandals out of the playoffs and put the Bengals in was achieved largely by chasing then-Vandal quarterback Ken Hobart out of the pocket. Erickson expects frequent visits from ISU's linebackers again Saturday night.

"They stunt, they blitz, they do a little of everything," he says. "If you don't pick them up, they'll hurt you."

Erickson says Idaho's young defensive secondary, which includes two sophomores and two juniors, will have its hands full with ISU's ball-control type passing game.

"We played pretty good defense against Montana, but we haven't been challenged like we will be this year," Koetter says.

Harris four or five seconds to throw the ball and he'll beat you."

Koetter says he expects some blitzing, but — out of respect for tailback Merrill Hoge — not a lot. But that doesn't mean Idaho's defense won't be pressuring Harris.

"They've been playing aggressively," he says. "They play basically a zone defense and it's been a disciplined zone with good schemes. Their front gotten good pressure on passing plays."

"The Bengals, who depended heavily upon Hoge at the end of last season and the beginning of this year, have reverted to form in the past few weeks. Harris, a strong but heretofore erratic quarterback, has risen to second in the conference in passing efficiency.

"He shows great improvement in getting away from one rusher, who pressures the pocket, and then picking up his receivers from behind."

Koetter says.

ability," says Koetter. "Idaho has some excellent defensive personnel. They can put pressure on the quarterback and they can defend against the run."

"Their strength is the people up front," says Erickson of the Bengals. "You combine people who can consistently put pressure on the quarterback with an excellent secondary, and you're going to give defenses problems."

Statistically, ISU ranks first in the conference and third in the country in passing defense, giving up an average of only 125 yards a game through the air. Koetter says, "the numbers overstate the Bengals' effectiveness.

"Considering the opponents we've played, I don't really think we can say we've been challenged — and at least we haven't been challenged the way we will be Saturday."

The challenge Saturday will come from Rick Sloan, perhaps the best second-stringing college quarterback in the country, subbing for the injured Scott Lincoln.

"There's not a great deal of difference between the two of them," says Koetter. "They both have strong arms, they both think well on their feet and they both can run."

Lincoln maybe will run the option a little more."

Koetter also says he has no illusions about shutting down Idaho

Stuart finishes unbeaten

TWIN FALLS — A three-yard slant in from quarterback Jeremy Eller to Joey Bryant on the third play of overtime let the Stuart Bears nip O'Leary 6-0 and complete an undefeated ninth-grade football season Thursday night.

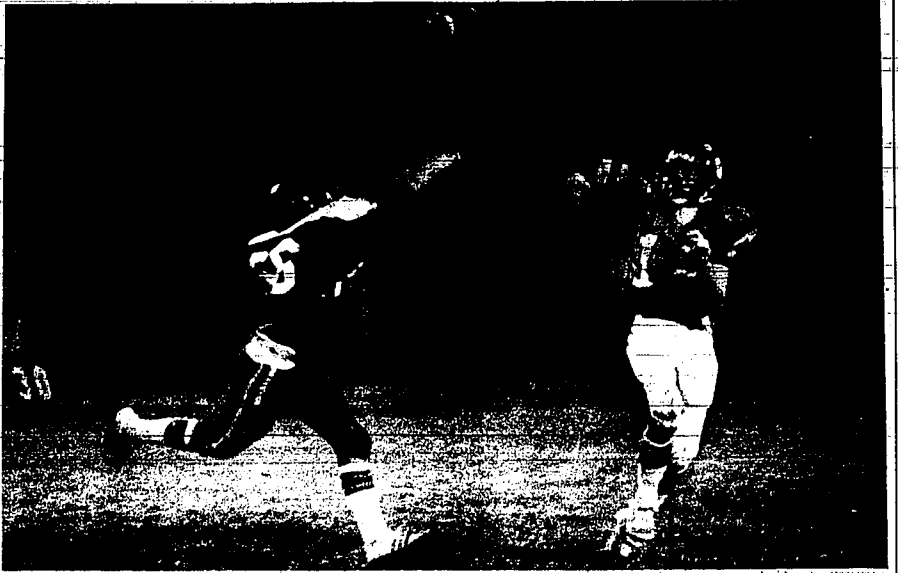

O'Leary, which fell 22-15 to Stuart earlier in the season, had a chance to put the Bears' undefeated boast on ice but fumbled a handoff on a first-and-goal situation on the Stuart two-yard line early in the final quarter.

O'Leary won the flip and went on offense to open the overtime but died immediately on another fumbled handoff.

Eller opened Stuart's side-of-the-playoff with a seven-yard rollout and, after a crack into the line netted nothing, turned to Bryant for the decisive points on the next play.

"It's been a hard year for coaches but a satisfying one," said Stuart Coach Charles Brown. "We've had four games just like this one — one play could have made the difference. But our players made all the plays."

Stuart ended the season at 7-0 while O'Leary finished 2-6.

Camas stops late Carey bid for win

CAREY — Todd Funkhouser intercepted a Scott Pyrah pass on the Camas County 19-yard line with three seconds remaining here Thursday to preserve a 22-20 victory for the Musers over Carey.

The Panthers had mounted a drive from their own 25 with one minute remaining and no timeouts left, moving into field goal range before Funkhouser's interception.

Camas had scored what proved to be the winning touchdown early in the fourth quarter when Blake Bennett plunged over from the 1-yard line. The two-point conversion attempt failed, and Carey moved to within two points a few minutes later on a one-yard run by Milt Peterson. The PAT attempt that would have tied the game failed, however.

Peterson was the game's leading rusher with 177 yards.

Steelhead limits raised

BOISE (AP) — A record fall run of steelhead returning to Idaho has prompted the state Fish and Game Commission to immediately increase limits on the Salmon and Snake rivers.

Fish and Game officials said Thursday that the steelhead count at Lower Granite Dam on the Snake River, site of Wednesday's almost 97,000, that easily topped strong returns of 82,400 in 1984 and 74,000 the year before. The highest recorded steelhead count at the dam before that was 12,800 in 1975.

That convinced the commission to increase limits on the Salmon River from its mouth upstream to Basin Creek from two to three daily, four to ten in possession and 10 to 20 per season.

New players, coaches debut in NBA tonight

By WILLIAM R. BARNARD
AP Basketball Writer

Of the 16 head coaches pacing the sidelines at Friday night's eight season-opening National Basketball Association games, the biggest buzz will belong to New Jersey's Dave Wohl.

Wohl is one of three coaches making his debut as a head coach, but the other two — Matt Guokas of the Philadelphia 76ers and Bernie Binkert of the Seattle SuperSonics — have to wait until Saturday to get started. Wohl and the Nets, meanwhile, have to face the defending Eastern Conference champion Boston Celtics.

Wohl was an assistant coach for Los Angeles last season, when the Lakers beat the Celtics in six games to win their third NBA title of the decade.

Other openers Friday include Washington at Atlanta, Milwaukee at Detroit, Cleveland at Chicago, Houston at Utah, the Los Angeles Clippers at Sacramento, Denver at Golden State and Phoenix at Portland. The Clippers-Kings meeting marks the first NBA game ever at the California capital, where the Kings moved from Kansas City after last season.

On Saturday, rookie center Patrick Ewing of the New York Knicks makes his regular-season debut in a nationally televised afternoon game at Madison Square Garden against Guokas and the 76ers. On Saturday night, it's New Jersey at Indiana, Boston at Cleveland, Detroit at Chicago, Seat-

Gervin sent to Bulls

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — George Gervin, the "Ice Man" who has sparked the San Antonio Spurs' scoring attack since 1974, was traded Thursday to the Chicago Bulls for forward David Greenwood.

Gervin, who led the National Basketball Association in scoring four years and was named to the All-NBA team five times, "has been a mainstay of this franchise for years," Spurs owner Angelo Drossos said.

He is expected to play for the Bulls at Dallas, the Lakers at San Antonio, Atlanta at Milwaukee, Sacramento at Denver and Houston at the Clippers.

"It was a difficult decision but a decision we had to make sooner or later," Drossos said. "We decided to make it now."

Gervin, 32, who for the first time last year in his nine NBA seasons failed to rank among the league's top 20 scorers, said, "It ain't like I'm dying. I got a new job, a new owner and new people to deal with. If you're a good person, you can deal with that."

Gervin said he will continue to live in San Antonio.

Wohl, after coaching a Lakers' offense that could rely on all-time leading scorer Kareem Abdul-Jabbar in the clutch, says he isn't sure who can take that role with the Nets.

"The problem could be that most of the guys are the same age," Wohl said. "There's no veteran they can look up to. It's a lot easier to have that one guy you always know you can look to him. At this point, we haven't had that one guy step forward and be that person."

Wohl said he is most likely to look to forward Buck Williams and guard Otis Birdsong to take the pressure shot, but is reluctant to give that role to Michael Ray Richardson, who already has the responsibility to run the offense. All three players, however, say they want to take the important shots.

"It's got to be me," Richardson said.

we're going to have to hit the ball and get the blocks.

Thornberry figures the Indians' circuitous route to the tournament — they had to defeat District 5 runner-up Soda Springs and District 6 runner-up Salmon to do it — will be to Tuohi's advantage.

The boys were able to see the second-place teams of two other districts, and I think that will be of some benefit to us when we get to state."

Neumann believes the setting might make it harder for St. Maries to dominate the tournament as thoroughly as it did last year in Sandpoint.

"That 11-12-hour bus ride takes a lot out of you when you have to get out and play the next day," he says. "And the ISU facility, I think, is much better than the one in Sandpoint."

The Wood River-Middletown match is scheduled for 1 p.m., while the Buhl-St. Maries games will be played at 7:30 p.m. showdown, while the losers will play at 9 a.m. Saturday.

Malad High School has won the last three state A-3 championships, but the Dragons have graduated the three classes that accomplished that feat. That Gooding Coach Joeleen Toone believes, should make this anybody's tournament.

"I talked to Roslyn (Malad Coach Roslynn Brimhall) at state last year, and she said her sophomore class wasn't as strong as the last three," says Toone, whose Senators won their second straight district A-3 title earlier this month. "I see where they've lost a few more matches this year than they have in the past, so they might not be as strong as they were last year."

Last year, Gooding lost to Malad in the first round and never made it back through the consolation bracket for a rematch. This year, Toone believes, Gooding's prospects are better.

"We only have two seniors but we have a very talented group of juniors," she says. "If we can keep up the teamwork, communicate on the floor and if our serving and hitting is effective, I think we have a chance."

The Senators, who are 18-4 in the season, open up at 4 this afternoon against District 6 runner-up Firih (17-6), a team Gooding beat handily in last year's state tournament.

"I know they lost four starters from last year's team, but they're supposed to have a pretty good group of juniors including a girl Debbie Reeder who's 5-4," Toone says. "I don't really expect many surprises because A-3 and A-4 are so inter-mixed," says Messick, whose Indians won the district A-4 championship and compiled a 23-1 record in the process. "I do expect we'll see some good teams, though, including the first one, Genesee and Greenleaf may be two of the teams to beat and (District 4 runner-up) Camas County may be the other."

Shoshone and Genesee (15-1) will open the A-4 tourney at 1 p.m.

"From what I understand, they were the No. 1 team up there (District 2) and ended up coming in second place in the tournament," says Messick. "They're supposed to have a good hitting attack, which sounds familiar. That's what we've seen from Camas County and District this season."

The Indians won the district title despite having just two seniors on the roster and an injury-plagued season.

"We've had our ups and downs," says Messick. "We play well for a spurt and then we don't. One of our seniors, Julie Hibbard, has been hurt and is only about 70 percent. (Junior) Janis Eberhard has been hurt for most of the season and just came in about district time."

The Musers, 18-2 going into the tournament, draw the only unbeaten team in A-4 ranks for their first match — Clark County High School of Dubois — at 4 this afternoon.

"It's really hard to say what to expect," says Camas Coach Bret Kiefer. "We will be taking the Musers to state for the first time in years. Generally, the good teams tonight. The losers will play at 9 a.m. Saturday."

If Gooding beats Firih, the Solons will face the winner of the Friday afternoon matchup between Kamiah and Homedale at 9 p.m. The losers will play Saturday at 10:30 a.m.

Larry Messick's Shoshone Indians have as good credentials as you could ask for entering this year's state A-4 tournament.

They finished second in last year's state A-3 tourney.

"I don't really expect many surprises because A-3 and A-4 are so inter-mixed," says Messick, whose Indians won the district A-4 championship and compiled a 23-1 record in the process. "I do expect we'll see some good teams, though, including the first one, Genesee and Greenleaf may be two of the teams to beat and (District 4 runner-up) Camas County may be the other."

Shoshone and Genesee (15-1) will open the A-4 tourney at 1 p.m.

"From what I understand, they were the No. 1 team up there (District 2) and ended up coming in second place in the tournament," says Messick. "They're supposed to have a good hitting attack, which sounds familiar. That's what we've seen from Camas County and District this season."

The Indians won the district title despite having just two seniors on the roster and an injury-plagued season.

"We've had our ups and downs," says Messick. "We play well for a spurt and then we don't. One of our seniors, Julie Hibbard, has been hurt and is only about 70 percent. (Junior) Janis Eberhard has been hurt for most of the season and just came in about district time."

The Musers, 18-2 going into the tournament, draw the only unbeaten team in A-4 ranks for their first match — Clark County High School of Dubois — at 4 this afternoon.

"It's really hard to say what to expect," says Camas Coach Bret Kiefer. "We will be taking the Musers to state for the first time in years. Generally, the good teams come out of the tougher districts, but certain teams can come out of certain districts and be really tough. I'm preparing to play anyone."

Kiefer says the Musers can hold their own if they play with consistency.

"That's what we're going to have to rely on," he says. "We're going to have to have consistency in passing and serve-and-serve."

The winner of the Genesee-Shoshone match will meet the survivor of Cambridge and Milliam's afternoon games tonight at 7:30 p.m.

The Camas-Clark winner will meet the winner in the match between Troy and Greenleaf Friends Academy at 9 o'clock.

The first-match losers will play Saturday morning at 9 a.m. and 10:30 a.m., respectively.

Pirate investor withdraws

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Pittsburgh businessman Frank Fuhrer has pulled out as a new investor in the Pittsburgh Pirates because he is angry over not being informed of major decisions, an associate said Thursday.

"We felt we were just left out in the cold on everything. We were never kept up to date on what was going on," said Jack Miller, executive vice president of Frank D. Fuhrer Associates.

"We didn't even know about the press conference announcing the sale of the team until that morning. We heard about it on the radio on the way to work. I thought, 'Heck, it must be another investor's group because I sure don't know anything about it,'" he said.

Miller said Fuhrer also was upset that Malcolm Prince, chairman of Ryan Homes Inc., was named chief executive officer of the Pirates before all investors were consulted.

"We really don't even know Mr. Prince. I'm sure he's a fine gentleman. We just didn't like the way it was handled," he said.

Webb to be NBA's shortest

ATLANTA (AP)—Free agent guard Spud Webb of Atlanta will make his National Basketball Association debut Friday night when the Hawks host the Washington Bullets, and at 5 feet 7, he may be the shortest player ever to play in the league.

"Here I am, 'King' who played in the 11 games during 1947-48 season for the Baltimore Bullets, also was listed at 5 feet 7. Webb, who played at North Carolina State, also will have the distinction of playing his first regular season NBA game against the league's tallest player ever in Washington rookie Manute Bol, who is listed at 7 feet 7.

Webb was drafted by the Detroit Pistons and cut before training camp. He was signed by the Hawks, but given little chance of making the squad, but averaged 9.4 points and 7 assists during the preseason to win a job.

Evans killed in crash

MARTINSVILLE, Va. (AP)—Richte Evans, a nine-time NASCAR Modified division champion, died Thursday when his car slammed into a wall during a practice run at Martinsville Speedway, a track official said.

Evans, 44, of Rome, N.Y., was practicing for Sunday's Winn-Dixie 500 when his race car hit the wall between the fourth and fifth turns on the 1/2-mile track about 11 a.m. EDT, said Dick Thompson, a spokesman for the race track.

"We have no idea at all why. It was just a straight practice session, and the car just hit the wall. No other cars were near him," Thompson said.

It is the first fatality at the track since it opened in 1947.

Series attracts viewers

NEW YORK (AP)—The third game of the World Series drew a 25.4 rating Tuesday night, easily bettering the numbers ABC collected for the first two games of the Kansas City-St. Louis series.

Game 4 drew a 22.9 rating on Saturday night, and the second game got a 22.9. Weekend viewership traditionally is lower than on weeknights, which accounts for much of the increase.

National figures for Game 4 on Wednesday night were not available but overnight ratings in 10 cities showed a 21.0, with the Detroit metropolitan area having the highest regional mark.

Overall after three games, ABC's composite rating is a 23.5, down 6 percent from last year. But the 1984 Series, pitting the Detroit Tigers and San Diego Padres, began in midweek, which allowed NBC to pull in a 25.1.

Knicks may reunite Kings

NEW YORK (AP)—The New York Knicks said Thursday they have signed forward Albert King to a free-agent offer sheet in a move that could unite him with his older brother, Bernard, on the National Basketball Association team.

The Nets, however, have 15 days to match the offer and keep the younger King, who has averaged 14.4 points per game in four years with New Jersey. Bernard King was the NBA scoring champion last season, but could not play because of a knee injury.

Lewis Schaffel, vice president and director of player personnel for the Nets, said previously he would probably match any offer the Knicks made for Albert King, but he declined to comment Thursday.

The Knicks, who are above the NBA's $4.2 million salary cap, had been trying for days to figure out a way to make an offer to King.

Laskey returns to Giants

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Pitcher Bill Laskey, traded to the Montreal Expos on Aug. 1, will return to the San Francisco Giants in a deal announced Thursday.

Giants General Manager Al Rosen said Laskey would return to the club in a trade that sends two minor league players to Montreal.

Laskey was 5-11 with a 3.55 earned run average when he was traded three months ago. With Montreal, Laskey was 0-5 with a 9.4 ERA.

"He pitched in some tough luck early in the season, but he's healthy and we think Bill can develop the split-fingered fastball to become a winner," Rosen said.

Mariners sign new lease

SEATTLE (AP)—The owner of the Seattle Mariners signed a new Kingdom lease agreement with King County Thursday, then pledged to keep his financially ailing American League baseball franchise there.

"I know that's a prevailing thought among some skeptics," Southern California multi-millionaire George Argersy said at a news conference Thursday. "I am not interested in moving the Mariners."

"We bought this franchise to make baseball successful in the Northwest and we are sincere about that. We would have not gone through all of this if we didn't intend to stay here."

During the negotiations, Argersy threatened to move the Mariners by declaring bankruptcy unless he got a better deal from the county for the domed stadium it owns and operates. Argersy purchased the Mariners from their original group of owners, including entertainer Danny Kaye, in 1981. He contends he has lost millions of dollars in his five seasons of ownership of the franchise.

The new lease provides financial benefits to the team ranging between $10 million and $19 million. County Executive Randy Revelle said.

It is designed to keep major league baseball in Seattle.

Aussies kicked off airplane

HONOLULU (AP)—An Australian Rules football team was ordered off a Qantas airliner on Thursday because of unruly behavior during a flight from Melbourne to Hawaii, an airline official said.

"There was loutish behavior in the terminal (during a stopover at Nadi, Fiji), where they commandeered wheelchairs and raced each other," Ken Boys, Qantas media relations manager, said from the airline's headquarters in Sydney. "This schoolboy behavior continued on the aircraft, where they broke at least 12 seatbacks and three utensils and food at each other."

"The players pulled a City of Peas out of their coats of arms emblem from the wall and tore off a female flight attendant's uniform jacket, Boys said.

"They were harassing the crew and began throwing glasses and full trays of food at each other," Boys said. "At this stage, all other passengers were moved out of that section of the aircraft."

Club Manager Steven Nash and Coach Mick Matthews apparently were unable to control the players, said Boys, who identified team captain Jim Edmond as one of the rowdiest of the players.

"It was more a problem of loutish behavior that got out of hand," Boys said. "On the bright side, nobody was injured."

Boys said 40 members of the traveling party of the Footscray team, which represents an industrial section of west Melbourne, were grounded at Honolulu International Airport when the captain refused to carry them on to Los Angeles.

THE ACES

BOBBY WOLFF

"Pray that success will not come any faster than you are able to endure it."
— Elbert Hubbard.

If your slam depends upon winning one of two finesses, you can congratulate yourself for good bidding. But sometimes declarer's work isn't over after one finess has worked.

South ruffed the first club, drew trumps and ran his diamond ten. East ducked smoothly and South was sure he could now make seven. Another diamond finess followed and the roof collapsed. East won and led another club. South could ruff it, but the heart loser was inevitable for one down.

Granted, East made a super play when he ducked his diamond king. Nevertheless, South should not have assumed that it was safe to try another diamond finess for an overtrick.

After the diamond 10 has won, South should cash a high heart and then lead a diamond to dummy's ace. When no king appears, South should run the heart jack which loses to West's queen. This is the only trick for the defense as South chalks up his cinch slam.

Why the change of horses? The heart finess after the diamond finess can bring in an overtrick, but it cannot lose the slam. A repeated trick if it wins, but loses the slam if it doesn't. No overtrick is ever worth the risk of losing a slam.

'The Spell of Malatesta' casts humor

Children's theater group lightens Halloween mood

By TERRY RICH HARTLEY
Times-News correspondent

TWIN FALLS — Halloween is coming early to the Renaissance Academy of the Arts thanks to the Junior Musical Production Company's performance of "The Spell of Malatesta."

Slated for Oct. 26, 28 and 29 at 7:30 p.m., the play is a light-hearted spoof written to give more smiles than chills to area youngsters. It is also the prelude to a possible annual Halloween day event.

"The idea," says director Julie Haux, "is to get young children to bring their parents. If it works, then we'll hold it next year on Halloween in lieu of trick-or-treating."

The story, written by Mickey Klar Marks, revolves around the troubled witch, Malatesta, who has the most hideous face, crookedest nose and the most warts of any witch in her coven. But, even though she is ugly enough to be queen of her coven, Malatesta isn't even considered for the top spot because she is the consummate flop of witchcraft.

In 500 years she has never turned a cow's milk sour, scared the wits out of one person or created one evil potion. At this point her frustration increases dramatically when fellow witch, Grimanna, tells her, "Every witch is given 500 years to come up with an evil spell. You've never come up with anything original or deadly. Your time's up. Tomorrow you return to the world I have spoken!" Then, after a brief debate as to whether Grimanna has spoken, or spoken, Malatesta is banished.

Knowing she has to return to the human race, she becomes desperate to change her beastly face. And, only a potion can do that.

But, alas, this latest attempt at a potion turns into something. Lever Brothers would sell their souls for — a cure for the common cold. And what a change it means for Malatesta! From an ugly witch to woman of the year, fame and fortune are hers for the taking. The world is her oyster. After a plastic surgeon and a beautician give her what her potions never could — beauty — it appears that Malatesta is on her way to the life of a modern-day Cinderella. But, then, like all good marketers, she isn't content to leave well enough alone. Instead she alters her potion to — of course — "New And Improved." This puts a twist ending to the story that should bring all the kids six to 60 to their feet.

According to Haux, a song-and-dance warm-up will be performed before the show, then, after the final scene, the audience will be treated to a sample of witches' brew.

Playing the part of Malatesta is Lorelei Juntunen; Julie Lehr is Crow; Annette Stephenson is Lolobad; Becky Dodds is Grimanna; Kristy Rasmussen is Satania; Amy Anderson is Asphyxia; Karen Tucker is Hecate; Fred Haux is the plastic surgeon; and Amy Waters takes the role of the beautician.

The Renaissance Academy of the Arts is located at 305 2nd Ave. E. Children's tickets are $1; adults $2. For more information, call Julie Haux, 734-5783, or Mary Wright, 734-1650.

Touring Guthrie Theater presents a Dickens classic

By DAVE LEWIS
Times-News correspondent

SUN VALLEY — If it worked the first time around, why not give it a second try and see if it works again?

In the case of the Guthrie Theater of Minneapolis, it apparently has worked again in the production of Charles Dickens' "Great Expectations," which plays in Halley next week.

Adapting "Great Expectations" to play on a stage before a live audience rantes the team that created what is perhaps the Guthrie's all-time favorite production of 70 years ago, "A Christmas Carol."

Playwright Barbara Fields rejoins director Stephen Kane in bringing to the Wood River High School Auditorium a one-night performance of the play that is now on a 30-week tour throughout the Midwest and Western states.

Presented by the Sun Valley Center for the Arts and Humanities, the play begins at 7:30 p.m. on Oct. 29.

Tickets cost $12 for adult general admission, $10 for center members, $6 for student general admission and $5 for student members. They are on sale at the Center Gallery and Chapter One Bookstore in Ketchum and Gemini Art in Halley.

The production of "Great Expectations" brings to the Wood River Valley one of the nation's most highly-acclaimed theatrical companies, says Jacquelyn Schuett, the center's performing arts director.

Established in 1970, the company recently won a Tony award for its excellence.

Aside from its performances in Minneapolis, the company features a touring production each year, for usually 15 weeks throughout the Midwest.

The Guthrie has changed things a little this year, however.

"Until this year, they really haven't done extensive touring in the West," says Schuett. "The company extended the touring season to 30 weeks and will make a major swing through the Western states, including stops in Wyoming, Denver and Tacoma, Wash., as well as the stop in Sun Valley.

"They're actually more recognized for their own theater — its design is an interesting one — and the caliber of their directors and actors," Schuett says.

Fields and Kane were involved in the development of the Guthrie Theater and the early stages of the Twin Cities' general theatrical renaissance in the 1970s, she says.

Since leaving the Guthrie in 1981, Fields has traveled throughout the country working as a playwright, writing her own plays and adapting other forms to the stage.

Her adaptation of "Great Expectations" was originally done for a children's theater in Seattle in 1983. The Guthrie, however, asked her to rewrite the play without children in the cast for the audience in Minneapolis, where seven performances were added to the scheduled 38-show run before going on tour.

He has freelanced as a director and restaged on "Broadway" the production of "Feldbe and Her Demon," which first played at the Guthrie in 1978.

Following the Broadway experience, Kane taught at the University of Southern New Mexico before returning to the University of Minnesota to finish his studies for a master's of fine arts degree, a pursuit he abandoned when he was first hired by the Guthrie.

He has now come full-circle by being rehired by the Guthrie for "Great Expectations," the tale of Pip, Dickens' classic character in his story of a boy coming of age.

"It is a showcase for actors," says Kane. "There are a multitude of fascinating characters, and many of the actors play two or three roles. It's exciting drama and very theatrical."

Kane says the stage setting is designed to be relatively abstract so that it provides a universal background for the entire play. The space is divided by two stairways that can become the country, the city, a river or a garden.

The touring cast's production in Halley marks an expansion into the West this year

Cowboy Poetry Gathering planned

ELKO, Nev. — Cowboy poetry may appear on the surface to be a contradiction, yet cowboys have been writing and reciting poetry of the ranch and of the open range for over a hundred years.

This long tradition of Western artistry will be celebrated at the second Cowboy Poetry Gathering, Nov. 30 through Feb. 1, 1986, at Elko, Nev. The gathering will feature recitations of poetry, exhibitions of cowboy arts and crafts and performances of cowboy music.

Last year's gathering attracted over one hundred cowboy poets who shared their poems, stories and songs with over a thousand folks who had come in from ranches throughout the West.

The coordinators of the second gathering hope to locate and invite even more poets. Up to fifty expense-paid trips will be provided for poets who represent the best in reciting the traditional poems or writing original verse. The only criterion is that poets, both men and women, must have earned most of their living working with cattle at some time in their lives.

'Nutcracker' ballet slated

SALT LAKE CITY — For over two decades Ballet West has presented "The Nutcracker" during the Christmas holidays. Keeping the tradition alive, the troupe has slated performances from Dec. 18-24 and Dec. 26-31 at the Capitol Theatre.

Immediately following matinee performances on Dec. 20, 21, 22 and 26 children will be given the opportunity to meet the Sugar Plum Fairy and members of her court while enjoying party refreshments during Sugar Plum Time on the stage.

Using a rotating cast system, Ballet West will be presenting not only its full troupe of professionals but 250 local youth in the various children's parts that are included in the surrealistic fantasy that flows around the music of Tchaikovsky.

Evening performances are slated for all dates, while 2 p.m. matinees will be performed Dec. 20-23 and 26-31. A noon performance is scheduled for Dec. 24. Reservations are suggested, particularly during the week of Christmas.

Tickets for the Sugar Plum Parties are $5 each. Seating for matinee performances is $7, $10, $14, $17 or $20 depending on theater section. The evening performances run $8, $12, $16, $20 and $30. Lab seats for children two to four years of age are available for $3.

For reservations or information call (801) 533-5555 or write to Ballet West, 50 West 200 South, Salt Lake City, Utah 84101.

Free ballet performance scheduled

BOISE — The American Festival Ballet, with funding from the Idaho Power Employees Community Service Fund, will present a free performance for special constituencies on Nov. 2 at 3 p.m. in the Boise High School Auditorium.

According to spokesman Jack Alotto, 27 community agencies, including Idaho Special Olympics, the United Way and the Easter Seal Society, have been invited. He points out that this is a first attempt by the troupe to give a free show of this type. He says that if sponsors can be found he would like to bring the troupe to the Magic Valley as well.

"We're working on doing one of these shows at the Gooding School for the Deaf, and we would like to do one at the College of Southern Idaho if we can find the backers," Alotto says. "Our goal is to eventually do it in every community in Idaho." The "Magic Of Dance" program was created in October as a celebration of the American Festival. Ballet Month as declared by Governor John Evans. Artistic director Marius Zirra calls it, "Our gift to the state. We perform it to show our audiences the magic that dance brings to our lives."

Alotto says the Boise performance is for those who couldn't normally afford to see a professional show, including handicapped and needy children. For more information call 343-0556.

Stern announces resignation as Boise Philharmonic head

By TERRY RICH HARTLEY
Times-News correspondent

BOISE — Daniel Stern, music director of the Boise Philharmonic since 1974, has announced that he will leave that position at the close of the 1985-87 season.

According to Boise Philharmonic general manager Michael Winter, the organization is forming a committee to outline a job description and begin the search for a new director.

"I don't know what our needs will be. This will be a new era," Winter says. The committee members will have to decide if they are seeking a flamboyant personality, an older director who will stay on for years, or more of an orchestra-building type who will sign on for a couple of years, then move on. Another consideration, he points out, will be whether they want a full-time director or one they can share with another orchestra.

Stern, who has made no definite plans for when he leaves the post, says, "I take great pride in having had a part in the Philharmonic's growth over the past 11 years. The high level of talent and support for the arts which exists in this community, however, is something in which we can all take pride."

"I feel that the time has now come when, in order to maintain both the orchestra's and my artistic growth, a change must be made. Stern has held the position of music director for nearly half of the 25 years since the Boise Civic Symphony became the Boise Philharmonic. During his tenure the orchestra has grown from a community orchestra with a budget of just over $50,000 to a regionally recognized professional ensemble with a budget nearing $500,000.

Winter says that Stern will direct all performances this year. During the 1986-87 season, Stern will direct four concerts, while the three remaining performances will be directed by guest conductors. Besides inviting candidates to be guest conductors, Winter says that committee members will travel to other areas to observe candidates at work.

Herrett Museum seeks national accreditation

TWIN FALLS — The Herrett Museum on the College of Southern Idaho campus may soon be competing for blockbuster exhibits such as the Ramses II exhibit at Brigham Young University.

The museum is in the final stage of a two-year application process for accreditation by the American Association of Museums, said Jim Woods, museum director.

If approved, Herrett will be only one of two museums in the state accredited. Currently, the State Historical Museum in Boise holds accreditation.

An accreditation team representing the American Association of Museums will tour Herrett in November for the final phase. If accredited, the museum will be able to compete for national grants from the federal government and private foundations to fund major exhibits, especially those from the Smithsonian Institution, Woods said.

"The money is there. It's just a matter of competing," Woods said Tuesday. "A lot of the federal grant forms ask if you're an accredited museum, and I know that influences their decision."

He said the Smithsonian has a traveling exhibit service, but it is "extremely costly," with stringent requirements.

"If you can say you're an accredited museum, they assume you've met the standards to house an exhibit," he said.

Carson turns 60; Tartikoff gets him shirt

By LILA CAMPUZANO
Associated Press Writer

BUENAVISTA, Calif. (AP) — Entertainer Johnny Carson celebrated his 60th birthday Wednesday, telling his television audience that NBC marked the occasion by naming a speed bump in the parking lot after him.

Before the 5:30 p.m. PDT taping of Wednesday night's show, the staff of "The Tonight Show" celebrated backstage with cake and coffee, and Brandon Tartikoff, president of NBC Entertainment, presented Carson with a T-shirt that had the number 60 printed on it.

Carson and sidekick Ed McMahon linked arms and each ate a bite of cake. Carson warned McMahon: "Don't say anything about marriage," referring to his recent divorce.

After the show began, Carson made several references to his birthday during his monologue. He said his legal fees from the divorce were so high that "my staff sent my gifts to the legal firm of Jacoby & Myers."

"In another 20 years, I'll be eligible for a guest spot on 'The Love Boat,'" he added.

Carson was born Oct. 23, 1925, in Corning, Iowa, but grew up in Norfolk, Neb. He's been the host of "The Tonight Show" for the past 23 years, and has no plans to retire.

Carson has often said he would give up the show only if it fell out of first place in the late-night ratings or if it was no longer interesting.

"Tonight Show" producer Fred de Cordova, an occasional target of Carson's humor, turns 75 on Sunday.

Artisans' cooperative brings flours, arts together just right

By CAROL BOYD
Times-News correspondent

FAIRFIELD — An empty newspaper building, an artisans' cooperative and a bag of topioca are examples of the way in which unrelated things sometimes come together just right.

In 1981, Cindy Varin, a young Camas Prairie homemaker, bought the old Camas Courier newspaper building on Fairfield's main street. She believed in the eventual growth of the Prairie county seat and chose the historical building as an investment property.

The previous year Leone Brooks, a native of Australia before marrying a Corral, Idaho rancher, got her membership in a Boise artisans' cooperative to open a gift shop in her home. Handy with needle or loom, Brooks' business soon demanded broader marketing. She arranged to display her work in the small front room of the Varin building.

Meanwhile, another Prairie homemaker east of town warned her husband that her new flour supply from Salt Lake City was so excellent he must either fly her there to replenish it or find a means to have it marketed on the Prairie. He did just that through Linda and Steve Miller and Ruben Miller, manager of the local elevator.

The Millers investigated the California milling company and its Utah outlet. It had the reputation and capacity to handle the red wheat grown in organic crop rotation with alfalfa on some Camas Prairie ranch operations. Eventually the Millers began selling supplies of the flours to Prairie customers who found it baked into quality breads and pastries.

Ruben Miller explained the quality control method used as he showed me the storage room containing samples from each grower. They must meet Oregon and California

Health and Safety Codes under a contract stipulating that "the grain has been grown on ground that has either lain fallow for at least eight months or where only natural fertilizers have been used in its production."

"We keep samples from each shipping lot for two years," Miller said. "Customers can know they are buying one hundred percent wheat products. No pesticides, herbicides and no additives."

No marketing location off the Prairie could be found at that time so the Millers sold it out of the elevator office.

"We were always dipping out whatever supply customer needed," says Linda Miller. "Things got pretty crowded in here. And then, the topioca. That did it."

She was paying over two dollars for thirteen ounces of topioca when she noticed her milling company product list. Available was a twenty-five pound bag of topioca for nine dollars. She was ready for separate facilities to house all the organic products she wanted to "bring to Prairie customers. After some dickering with Cindy Varin, they opened for business in February 1984.

During these years, Brooks' gift shop grew too much for its location. She wanted to "bring to Prairie customers. After some dickering with Cindy Varin, they opened for business in February 1984.

Ramses exhibit seen as goodwill token

By LAURIE SULLIVAN
Associated Press Writer

PROVO, Utah (AP) — An exhibit of priceless antiquities from the reign of Ramses the Great makes its U.S. debut today, and organizers hope it will be a "message of goodwill" between the United States and Egypt, whose relations have been strained since the Achille Lauro hijacking.

The Egyptian Museum's exhibit, "Ramses II: The Pharaoh and His Time," is scheduled to run through April 5 at Mormon Church-owned Brigham Young University. It will then be displayed at the World's Fair in Vancouver, British Columbia, before going to Jacksonville, Fla., and Memphis, Tenn.

Organizers of the tour say the exhibit of artifacts from the time of Ramses II, who is believed to have been pharaoh during the biblical Exodus, is even more spectacular than that of the King Tutankhamen exhibit, which drew hundreds of thousands of people during its U.S. tour several years ago.

The Ramses exhibit includes temple shrines, sarcophagi and an 8-ton statue of a falcon guarding the young child Ramses, delicate pieces of jewelry, ornate instruments used to apply cosmetics, workmen's tools, pottery and papyrus wicker.

The exhibit has any 8-ton pieces," said Wilfred C. Griggs, a BYU professor of ancient scripture who helped bring the exhibit here.

"We have the whole range — that's the thing that makes this more spectacular than Tut. That was one man's burial tomb. This runs the gamut of Egyptian culture."

Griggs said the exhibit would be a "message of goodwill" that transcends "anti-American sentiment" spreading through Egypt that followed the U.S. interception of an Egyptian airliner carrying the four Palestinians accused of killing an American tourist during the Achille Lauro hijacking.

"Obviously the Egyptians see this exhibit as a chance to recognize our common inheritance," Griggs said. "I hope people don't lose their heads over critical incidents — and I realize it is a critical incident — but one has to look beyond."

Ibrahim el-Nawawy, director-general of the Egyptian Antiquities Organization's museum sector, said negotiations for the exhibit would not have been affected even if they began after the hijacking.

"Our relations are more solid than to be affected permanently by such a crisis," said el-Nawawy. "We never considered withdrawing the Ramses exhibit."

However, Egyptian Prime Minister Ali Lutfi Mahmoud Lutfi and Ambassador Abdel el Reddy said they would be able to attend the exhibit's Friday opening even though they had once expressed such an interest. Lutfi, who was recently appointed prime minister, cited the need to become more acquainted with his new position.

The most senior official attending will be Ismail el Mouti, consul-general from the Egyptian consulate in San Francisco.

The university has spent more than $1.5 million to bring the exhibit here, Griggs said.

The collection has been insured for $35 million, and security surrounding the Monte L. Bean museum has been bolstered. The artifacts are under heavy guard in alarm-fitted and climate-controlled display cases.

More than 20 officers have been added to the campus police force, and trucking the exhibit from the Salt Lake City International Airport to Provo involved SWAT teams and the FBI.

WHO'S AFRAID OF GEORGE C. SCOTT?

The Loves And Hates Of George C. Scott
An Interview By Cleveland Amory

INSIDE: Secrets Of Glamour By Elizabeth Gaynor

Prior to meeting George C. Scott, PARADE Contributing Editor Cleveland Amory had heard that Scott is a man who fiercely guards his privacy, avoids socializing and shuns journalists. Bill Amory hoped that Scott's bark was worse than his bite. After hearing Scott's thoughts on everything from MTV and the Beatles to his family and career, Amory came away with some surprising insights into the man and his eccentricities. You will too after reading Sunday's "PARADE."

Small towns in West know how to open up to performers

CASPER, Wyo. — Aaron Copland's "Appalachian Spring Suite" plays to a darkened gym. In the center, a beam of low, portable spotlights illuminates two ballet dancers turn in a pas de deux over a laminated maple floor. The audience in the bleachers is silent, spellbound.

Several weeks ago, I drove 100 miles-up to a small town in the heart of the Prairie. A small, dedicated dance company out of Billings, Mont.

I had a personal interest in the performance: my daughter was on tour with the company and danced that night. But, as I sat in the darkness of the Miles City College gym with the rest of the audience watching these dancers, I was reminded once again of what has made the West so important to me as a poet — the opportunity to grow as an artist, the opportunity to earn a marginal living as a poet, and the opportunity to touch my community with the best of my work.

There is an openness in the West that offers many of its artists these crucial exchanges. Artists anywhere are fed spiritually by an accepting and responsive community, no matter how small the community; but I have noticed this nurturing happens often in the West.

Human movement turns into music — "Appalachian Spring" — a silent audience sits in the dark, breathless. The choreography informs the music with emotion; the movement of the dancers touches the feelings of those behind the lights, those of us in the dark.

There were about 150 people in the audience that night. It was an appreciative audience. The lack of a theater setting, the uncomfortable aluminum bleachers built for sitting, the gym floor as simplified stage and a jury-rigged sound system, seemed to make little difference to the audience. The applause indicated that those around me were as transported into the magic world of dance as I was, no doubt for more objective reasons.

As I watch, I am thinking:

There are young dancers in the company, and there are older dancers, too. The older dancers have found an outlet for their creativity and their sense of movement and their training. They will probably never reach any further than this company with their talents and doubly settled that within themselves. The young dancers are opening into their careers as dancers, into their hopes. Ballet of the Prairie is their first semi-professional experience as dancers. They are learning. They are performing. The experience of an older dancer is a gift. This audience is a gift.

People in rural communities and small towns in the West say about themselves, self-consciously, that they will attend anything because there isn't much else to do. It's a deprecating statement and there is a grain of truth to it, but there is another side of that truth — people in these communities create for themselves, they do they perform, they are the home of the best of folk may not be as critically well-informed as an audience in New York City or Los Angeles, but they understand how to open themselves to performers.

I have learned over the years that I would much rather read to an audience in a small town in Colorado or Wyoming than in New York City or New York City. The audiences in the West come to hear poetry, they come to be moved. Poetry comes because they have never heard a poem before. In New York City the audience are writers who come to hear how much better than you they can write. I'd much rather hear a rancher say, "I've never been to a poetry reading before, but you have said something about the land that I have always felt, but couldn't say." Rather than that, "You have an interesting sense of the strophe in your poetry." Can you explain it? (I had to look up the word, afterward.) "Appalachian Spring" becomes human movement. Here we are witness to a vitality, a way of giving meaning to a life. These mature dancers offer us a greater sense of themselves, of what has given an extra dimension to their lives. They live more fully because of their art. We live more fully because of it. For here we see the essence of art. It is to inform a life with greater meaning. Essentially art has nothing to do with fame or with money; it has more to do with work and dedication of a life to creative expression. Points shoes click softly on the hardwood floor. She rotates on pointe using her partner's hand as guide and as pivot. In the performance, the audience sees itself reflected — its own hopes and dreams, its own sadnesses and betrayal of dreams. We are reflected, like moonlight-off-dark ened windowpanes, so that we can see both the reflection and the dimly lit rooms within. — We came to be moved. And we were.

And what of the young, aspiring dancers who will someday, perhaps, go on to larger, better known dance companies? It is this desire which lends its controlled passion to their movements. I can almost hear it in the heartbeat. To be better, be better, be better. They are with us now. They leap across the gym floor. They leap into their futures. They land as softly as pulse beats. A part of us leaps with them. We feel their dreams, they nourish ours. We are a community.

L.M. Boyd What's what

The American woman who models clothing for a living of the average stands 5-foot-7 and weighs less than 115 pounds. It is no news she's a typical. Average American woman stands 5-foot-4 and weighs 130 pounds. What's curious about this, I think, is the persistence of the unreal image, generation after generation. Bustles come-and bouffants go. But the difference, the difference between the typical, model and the typical mom, the difference between the fantasy and the fact, remains. Women devoutly believe in

Q. First motion picture theater charged a nickel, right?

A. Twice that much. The first movie house -- the "Electric Theater" which opened April 2, 1902, on Main Street in Los Angeles -- charged a dime.

'Sweet Dreams' Patsy Cline film draws fire for truthfulness

By DEBORAH CAULFIELD
Los Angeles Times

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — How true is "Sweet Dreams," the film starring Jessica Lange and Ed Harris, which is billed as country singer Patsy Cline's "true life and love story?" The answer depends on the person queried.

"Dreams" presents the relationship between Cline and her husband Charlie Dick (Ed Harris) as a loving, though stormy one. Dick, who is actually dying, is portrayed rather unfavorably, as a hard-drinking womanizer who had no qualms about hitting his wife occasionally. Cline, who died when she was 30 in a 1963 plane crash, is shown as a woman who left her first husband the morning after she met and made love to Dick.

Husband, Dick says the film "stretched the hell out of the truth," as does daughter Julie. "Dreams" producer Bernard Schwartz ("Coal Miner's Daughter") maintains that, while events may have been "juggled around," everything happened at the time or another.

Cline's mother, Hilda Hensley (Ann Wedgeworth in the film), and Cline's son, Tommy, are not saying anything at all, at least to the media.

About the only aspect of "Dreams" no one is questioning is the music, because Cline's actual recordings were used.

Hollywood's tendency to tinker with real-life stories is nothing new. Understandably, such stories often do not accommodate the plot structures film makers desire. What is unusual about "Sweet Dreams" is the rather-dramatic-linking performed by director Karel Reisz and writer Robert Getchell, especially on the Charlie Dick character. Even more unusual is Dick's good-natured acceptance of his characterization. "It (the movie) is a general story of our life," Dick said in an interview. "I don't think anything in there's a total lie; they just altered the sequence of events and stretched the hell out of it, that's all."

In the film, Dick is smitten by Cline the first time he sees her singing at a dance. Sometime later he meets and talks with her after she has finished singing in a honky-tonk roadhouse. The "two" dance "by starlight and consummate the relationship in the back seat of his car. In the next scene, Cline has left her husband, Gerald.

Dick had an entirely different recollection. "I did see Patsy at a dance, but she was just another girl. I asked her to dance, but she was there with her husband," he recalled. He said that Cline had already left her husband and was living at her mother's house when he actually started dating her.

Dick "in 'Dreams,'" Dick is nowhere to be found the night Cline gives birth to her daughter. Instead, he is shown drinking with his friends and, the suggestion is made, having a one-night stand with an old girlfriend.

Also untrue, Dick says, "When Julie was born, I was in the Army. The doctor told her that if she wanted me home at the right time, he would induce labor. I took Patsy to the hospital, but was told that nothing would happen that night. I was home in bed when the call came that labor had started, but by the time I got there, Julie was already there.

Julie Dick, now 27, said in a separate interview, "I don't remember when I was born, but then again, when you grow up every body hears about when they were born. My grandmother and my Dad have both told me the same story (the one, Dick recounted)."

Later, while sitting with her father, she added, "There are a lot of things that have been fictionalized, technical-things. I just wonder about the little old woman in Minnesota who's listened to the Grand Ole Opry every Saturday night. She will believe that all of this really happened the way it does in the movie."

Rivera leaves

WASHINGTON — After six weeks of negotiating a new contract proved fruitless, ABC News and "20/20" correspondent-senior producer Gerardo Rivera have made an amicable parting of the ways.

Rivera said Tuesday that he will make his last appearance on the Thursday magazine show at the end of November and then take a three-month trip with his brother to figure out what he wants to do "with the rest of my life."

Both Rivera and ABC News confirmed Tuesday that he will probably continue to do free-lance pieces for "20/20" in the future.
