President's comment may complicate plans

By R. GREGORY NOKES
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — While being true to his own feelings about "Star Wars," President Reagan has risked weakening the rationale for the program for those who have less grandiose expectations from it.

Reagan disclosed in an interview with Soviet journalists that he wouldn't deploy a defense against enemy missiles until after both sides, Washington and Moscow, had abolished all their missiles.

"We won't put this weapon or this system in place — this defensive system — until we do away with our nuclear missiles, our offensive missiles," Reagan said.

But many experts in his own administration doubt it is feasible to erect a perfect defense. They are more interested in seeing a Star Wars system developed to protect U.S. missile sites.

Reagan now appears to be ruling out any possibility of using a defensive system for that purpose.

It was a new element of the Strategic Defense Initiative — popularly known as Star Wars — and appeared designed to address Soviet objections that it could give the United States the capability of attacking the Soviet Union without fear of counter attack.

Reagan was telling Moscow that the United States would be content to sit behind its protective shield without any offensive missiles whatsoever, thus eliminating any possibility of an American nuclear first strike.

Satisfying the Soviets on this score could remove a major stumbling block to an arms control understanding when Reagan meets with Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev at their Geneva summit on Nov. 19-20.

Experts both in and out of the administration have been predicting that the two leaders would agree to a Star Wars compromise that involved a reaffirmation of the 1972 Anti-Ballistic Missile Treaty, an understanding on permissible testing, and an agreement on a notice period of up to 10 years during which there could be no deployment of defensive systems.

In the interview, which was given Thursday but made public Monday, Reagan said the United States has "made it plain that we are going to stay within a strict definition" of the ABM Treaty. The strict definition is generally understood to ban development, testing or deployment of new missile defense systems of any kind.

Research is not prohibited, and the Soviets have previously signaled

Sakharov's voice delights relatives

By CAROLYN LUMSDEN
The Associated Press

NEWTON, Mass. — Soviet dissident Andrei Sakharov, speaking with relatives here for the first time in six years, said Monday he is recovering after losing 44 pounds during a hunger strike that ended after the government said his wife would be allowed to leave the country for medical treatment.

Sakharov, 64, and his wife, Yelena Bonner, 62, were contacted by his stepchildren and mother-in-law by telephone in Gorky, where he was exiled in 1980.

Sakharov's voice on the phone was a surprise to the family, which has scheduled the call last week following reports that Mrs. Bonner had been given permission to leave the country. She has been abroad three to five times for eye treatment, most recently in 1979.

Mrs. Bonner plans to go to Siena, Italy, at the end of the month, to consult with an ophthalmologist as well as about her eye problems, then to Boston for coronary bypass surgery, her children said.

Mrs. Bonner's children said their mother and stepfather apparently were reunited Oct. 23, just before Mrs. Bonner was granted an exit visa. They said he had apparently been in a hospital during his hunger strike.

"We're looking at each other as though it's a miracle," Mrs. Bonner said. "Since the 23rd, we've been happy."

Asked why Sakharov had been permitted to talk on Monday, Tatiana Yankelevich, Mrs. Bonner's daughter, said, "They want us to know he's alive. That's quite clear."

Mrs. Bonner's children said they believe Sakharov's fast and the Nov. 19-20 summit between President Reagan and Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev led to the permission for their mother to leave.

Elena Yankelevich, Mrs. Bonner's son-in-law, said she spoke cautiously about her trip, and could not specifically say why she was allowed to leave.

Mrs. Bonner said Sakharov weighed only about 130 pounds when she was told late last month she could leave the country for three months.

The family said neither the physicist nor his wife referred to his fast, which began sometime in late September, as a hunger strike.

"Apparently they are not allowed country. She has been abroad three to five times for eye treatment, most recently in 1979."

Mrs. Yankelevich said Soviet officials wanted Mrs. Bonner to leave as soon as possible, but she postponed her trip until she was sure about her eye problems, then to Boston for coronary bypass surgery, her children said.

The family had tried twice last week to call Mrs. Bonner, but was unsuccessful. Monday was the first time in 18 months that Mrs. Bonner has talked with relatives by phone.

The family planned an eight-hour conversation on Nov. 18 to discuss her travel plans.

"We believe she will know by then when she is leaving for Moscow,"

'Star Wars' to follow missile cut

By TERENCE HUNT
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Reagan says the United States will not erect its "Star Wars" shield against nuclear weapons until America's missile arsenal is abolished.

"However, the White House" took pains Monday to explain that the United States will not disarm unilaterally and would expect the Soviet Union to scrap its weapons also.

In an interview published Monday in Moscow, barely two weeks before his summit in Geneva with Mikhail Gorbachev, Reagan firmly linked deployment of Star Wars with nuclear disarmament.

"We won't put this weapon, or this system, in place, this defensive system, until we do away with our nuclear — missiles, our — offensive missiles," Reagan said. "But we will make it" (Star Wars technology) available to other countries, including the Soviet Union, to do the same thing."

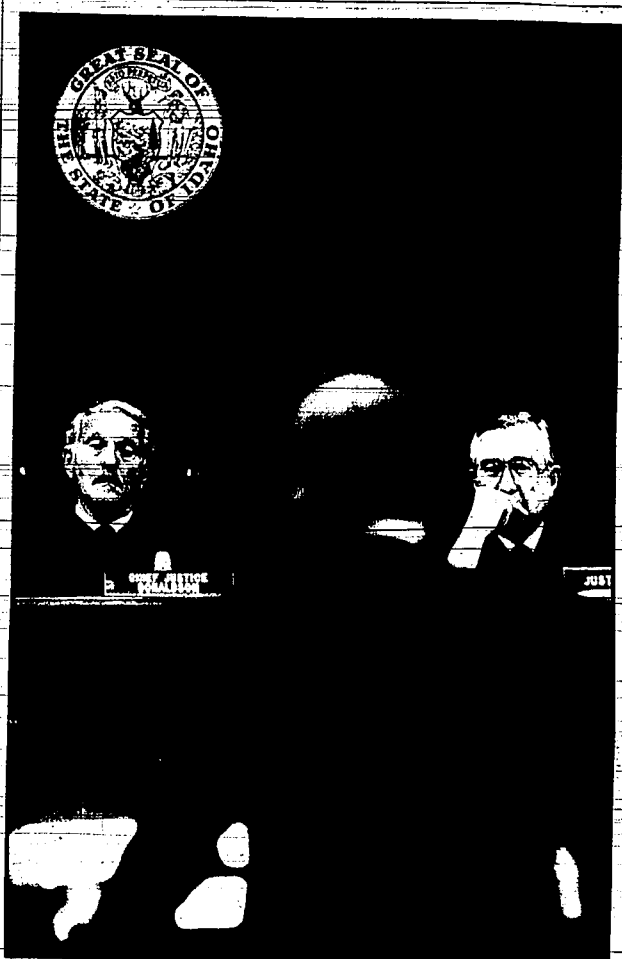

Reagan's statement suggested for the first time that Star Wars technology would not be deployed until U.S. nuclear weapons are dismantled, but White House officials insisted that was not the case.

Presidential spokesmen Larry Speakes and Edward Djerejian said Star Wars, known in the administration as the Strategic Defense Initiative, envisions reducing nuclear weaponry in stages as components of the defense system are installed.

While insisting that Reagan's comments were clear on the point, Speakes said Star Wars would be deployed even if Moscow refused to go along with disarmament, and the United States felt it had to keep its missiles.

"Certainly, if we get the technology we'd be prepared to

Chemical storage ordinance breezes through to adoption

By ANNETTE CARY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls City Council passed a law Monday night regulating the storage of large quantities of hazardous chemicals within the city limits.

The ordinance allows new businesses to store large quantities of materials such as pesticides only after the council grants them special use permits. And it restricts those businesses to the heavy manufacturing zones of the city.

Warehouses storing the chemicals will be allowed to open no closer than within 300 feet of existing houses, to protect the residents who live in the heavy manufacturing zones now.

Residents will be notified if a business applies for a permit to store chemicals near their property, so they may speak at a public hearing before a decision is made on granting each permit.

The adopted ordinance was the third to come before the council in recent years. This one, however, solved the problem of how to classify hazardous chemicals by referring to the Uniform Building Code which lists hazardous amounts and types of materials most chemical storage warehouses downwind from most second proposal this spring, Mayor Emery Petersen suggested that Idaho Neighbors Network, a citizens' action group, form a committee to develop a more workable plan.

Residents, health specialists, environmental officials, a representative of industry, city safety officials and Councilmember Mary McCluskey spent three months developing a plan.

They said they wanted to develop a law that protects nearby residents from spills and fire, that concentrates most chemical storage

Gorbachev visit today follows 8-hour session

Shultz, Soviet minister plan summit

By ROXANNE ERVASTI
The Associated Press

MOSCOW — Secretary of State George P. Shultz met with Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze for nearly eight hours Monday to plan the agenda for this month's U.S.-Soviet summit meeting, which is expected to focus on arms control.

Shultz arrived with a letter from President Reagan to Soviet Leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev, but its contents were not disclosed.

Shultz and Shevardnadze talked from noon through a "working lunch," until about 7:40 p.m. Moscow time at the elegant Foreign Ministry terize the meeting or say whether progress was made.

"We went through the whole agenda and everything on it," she said.

Shultz is to meet today with Gorbachev, whose call for a 50 percent reduction in American and Soviet nuclear weapons was followed by a new U.S. arms control offer announced by Reagan last Thursday.

Shultz planned to hold a news conference after meeting with Gorbachev and leave Moscow tonight, said Ms. Ridgway and Bernard Kalb, the State Department spokesman.

"I expect our meetings in Moscow will be that way as well," Shultz said. "I welcome this visit, and I hope it will be a productive one."

Shultz shook hands before entering a marble hall at the Foreign Ministry annex—to begin their talks, Shevardnadze told reporters. "I always expect results," but he cautioned, "don't run ahead of events."

Shultz was accompanied by 10 U.S. officials, including Robert C. McFarlane, the national security adviser; Paul H. Nitze, the principal U.S. arms control adviser; and Arthur A. Hartman, the U.S. ambassador to Moscow.

Representing the Soviets along with Shevardnadze were Deputy Foreign Minister Georgy Kornitsenko, arms control expert Yuli Kvitinsky, the Soviet ambassador to Washington, Anatoly F. Dobrynin, and eight other officials.

the city to protect residents from toxic fumes and smoke, and that gives safety officials a knowledge of where the chemicals are stored.

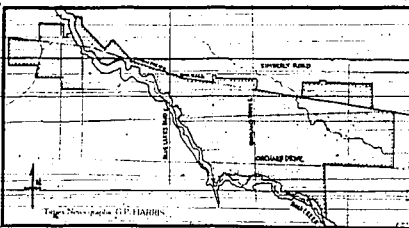

Monday, Mike McManis, with the Division of Environment, said there has been some concern among councilmembers that the federal Environmental Protection Agency is preparing to regulate hazardous chemical storage.

However, he advised the council to pass the law anyway, saying the federal government is less likely to become involved in local regulations if it sees that an effort to regulate storage is already being made.

Other residents at the Monday meeting questioned how the city would ensure that chemicals were being stored properly.

Public Safety Director Tim Qualls said that under his administration, buildings storing large amounts of hazardous chemicals will be checked without notice at least twice a year.

Local concern about the storage of the chemicals stems from 1982 when Edna Rains, who lived in the Buena Vista neighborhood near warehouses storing hazardous materials, said state fire marshal for not meeting that fumes in the neighborhood made her so ill that her head swelled and her throat blistered.

Her symptoms were never proved to be caused by chemical leaks or spills, but in November, 1982, the neighborhood network began work to have chemicals removed from the neighborhood.

The warehouses have since moved to the heavy manufacturing zone in the southeast corner of the city, under pressure from the deputy city safety officials say that three Twin Falls warehouses store large quantities of hazardous materials as defined by the Uniform Building Code, but all are in heavy manufacturing zones now.

The new law does not apply to existing businesses so they will not be required to apply to the council for special use permits.

All councilmembers voted for the ordinance, except Doug Vollmer, who was absent.

they would agree to consider testing within the research laboratory as part of research, but not testing outside, known as component testing.

Critics such as Gerard C. Smith, who negotiated the 1972 ABM Treaty for President Nixon, have argued that there would be no incentive for Moscow to reduce its own missile stocks if the United States was developing a missile defense to back up its potential offensive capability.

But Reagan's disclosure may undermine the arguments of officials in the Pentagon and elsewhere who see a missile defense as initially vital to protect American missile installations from Soviet attack. They worry that U.S. land-based missiles, such as the Minuteman, are growing increasingly vulnerable to highly accurate Soviet land-based missiles such as the SS-16.

As a consequence, they have supported the grandiose aims of Star Wars while also viewing it as meeting a practical short-term need.

it," he says. "But first, we express a willingness to discuss it with the Soviets and others about sharing." He accused the press of trying to "play games" about what Reagan actually said.

The president made his comments in an interview conducted last Thursday by four Moscow journalists who "intensively challenged" the president on U.S. policy, particularly on Star Wars, and criticized some of his responses as being "unbalanced and one-sided in favor of the U.S. side."

In a mini-debate at one point, the president and the journalists argued over whether the United States or the Soviet Union has more nuclear warheads. Neither side conceded superiority.

The interview, the first in 24 years between an American president and Soviet journalists, was published Monday in a full-page display on

Mrs. Yankelevich said.

The children said Sakharov will remain in a Gorky apartment and that relatives and colleagues from the Soviet Academy of Science will be allowed to visit him.

Sakharov, winner of the 1959 Nobel Peace Prize, helped develop the Soviet hydrogen bomb. As early as 1959, he openly criticized the government's nuclear weapons buildup. He was exiled to Gorky after criticizing the Soviet intervention in Afghanistan in December, 1979.

Mrs. Bonner, a pediatrician who married Sakharov in 1971, was exiled to Gorky in 1984, ending her freedom of travel in the Soviet Union.

The family said she has been involved to have the heart operation at any of three hospitals in Boston, but that one has not yet been chosen. They would not disclose the names of the hospitals.

The family exchanged news and jokes with Mrs. Bonner and Sakharov throughout the 25-minute conversation, in Russian. Others assembled for the call, in addition to the Yankelevichs, and Alexei Semynov were Mrs. Bonner's mother, Ruth, Semynov's wife, Elizaveta Alexeyeva, and three grandchildren. Yankelevich said the family believed the Soviets would not rescind Mrs. Bonner's visa before the end of the month.

WASHINGTON — The Supreme Court, setting the stage for a major gay rights ruling, said Monday it will decide whether the sexual activities of consenting homosexual adults are constitutionally protected.

The justices said they will review Georgia prosecutors' appeal of a ruling that, if upheld, could undo the sodomy laws in about half the states. Their ruling is expected by next July.

The court has not issued a detailed ruling on the rights of homosexuals since 1967, when it said aliens found of committing the crime of sodomy to be homosexual may be deported with another man in his home.

as people "afflicted with a psychopathic personality."

"This is potentially a momentous case, a watershed," said Kathleen L. Wilde, the Atlanta lawyer for a man challenging Georgia's sodomy law.

"We think the facts of this case are very strong for us — no money, no minors, no force involved and in the privacy of one's own bedroom," Ms. Wilde said.

Michael Hardwick, a self-described practicing homosexual, was arrested by Atlanta police in 1982 on charges of committing the crime of sodomy with another man in his home.

Mining ban: a conservationist victory

Tuesday, November 5, 1985 Times-News, Twin Falls, Idaho A-3

Idaho

BOISE (AP) — Conservationists are claiming a major victory with the federal court order barring dredge and placer mining in the drainage of the Middle Fork of the Salmon River.

Budget plan could hurt Idaho

WASHINGTON (AP) — With the nation's economic future still cloudy, the Senate's proposed balanced federal budget plan could cost the state of Idaho millions of dollars in additional financing for many programs if it becomes law, according to an analysis of the proposal's impact on states.

The "flash analysis" on just the affect the balanced budget proposal would have on Medicaid spending indicates Idaho would have to increase its contribution to medical services for the poor by as much as $4 percent in 1988 or reduce services by a quarter.

The analysis, based on economic forecasts by the Congressional Budget Office and a number of private economists, was conducted by the National Conference of State Legislatures in conjunction with Federal Funds Information for the States.

"This is the first real indication we have had as to the severe consequences which could result from this proposal," said John Marlin, speaker of the Maine House of Representatives and chairman of the conference's State-Federal Assembly.

According to the legislative conference's analysis, the states hardest hit by the proposition are those in the Rocky Mountain and southeastern regions of the nation, the ones a program like Medicaid is supposed to help because of their low tax bases. In Idaho, the federal government provides just over 72 percent of the money to finance the $100-million-a-year Medicaid program.

Thirteen states, including Idaho, all would face increases in excess of 50 percent in their Medicaid support if the plan becomes law and the economic forecasts are accurate, the analysis said.

Under the Congressional Budget Office forecast, which projects relatively strong economic growth in 1987 and 1988, the deficit would still exceed the target by some $15 billion in two years and over $8 billion in three years. The required reduction in federal Medicaid contributions would mean Idaho will have to make up $2 million in 1987 and $4 million in 1988.

reversed repeated Forest Service administrative rulings upholding the mining operations and sided with the Idaho Environmental Council, which claimed the issuance of mining permits in the drainage violated the Central Idaho Wilderness Act.

that act, creating the Frank Church-River of No Return Wilderness during the last decade, specifically banned dredging and placer mining for gold in the Middle Fork drainage.

"I think it can be characterized as a tremendous victory for fisheries in the Northwest," said Council spokesman Dennis Baird. The ban, he said, will protect streams that provide vital spawning grounds for Idaho's salmon and steelhead runs.

Forest Service officials were still reviewing McNichols' Friday ruling, but Interim Regional Forester Stan Tixier said, "It's very doubtful, knowing no more than I know about it at this time, that we would appeal it."

The mining plans challenged by the council in the Salmon National Forest involved only a relatively small operation on Silver Creek, which eventually feeds into the Middle Fork.

But, Salmon National Forest Supervisor Richard Hauff said it appears that McNichols' ruling applies not only to mining on reaches of the drainages within the wilderness boundaries but on portions outside the wilderness as well. The drainage covers parts of the Salmon, Challis, Boise and Payette national forests. Although there is still no estimate on exactly how many mining claims will be affected by the ruling, Hauff said the number of claims with potential for commercial operations is small. He added, however, that it is difficult to assess the order's impact in the future if more gold is discovered in the drainage.

Some license plates streamlined

BOISE (AP) — The Idaho Transportation Department has redesigned license plates for most vehicles other than regular passenger cars and trucks, eliminating the county designator. Department officials said the change was made to improve efficiency and reduce costs in handling license plates for vehicles that are basically used anywhere in the state.

The elimination of the county designator, has also ended the need to maintain 44 different inventories of those plates, according to the department.

Post Falls woman files toxic shock lawsuit against Playtex

BOISE (AP) — A Post Falls woman is seeking unspecified damages in a lawsuit alleging she suffered toxic shock syndrome as a result of using a Playtex tampon. The lawsuit was filed Monday in U.S. District Court in Boise against Playtex International by Donna Helmer and her husband, Kent.

Mrs. Helmer said in the suit that she contracted toxic shock syndrome while using a Playtex deodorant-super tampon on Dec. 9, 1983. The illness caused her to suffer severe, disabling and permanent personal injuries, according to the suit.

The lawsuit alleges that Playtex was responsible because the company failed to adequately test and manufacture the product.

INEL tax exemption repeal debated

POCATELLO (AP) — A section of an economic recovery proposal that would delete Idaho National Engineering Laboratory's tax-exempt status for research and development could bring a nearly $2 million windfall to state coffers, officials say.

Rep. L. Ed Brown, R-Pocatello, one of the act's sponsors, said he would like to see the repeal of one of several ingredients of the proposal — and is not necessarily supported by Brown or Larry Echols, D-Pocatello, the other local co-sponsor.

3rd search of home upsets Hofmann

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — A defense attorney for suspect Mark Hofmann says his client is upset by the third search of his home. In three weeks by authorities investigating two fatal bombings, Hofmann, who was seriously injured when a third bomb destroyed his car one day after the deadly Oct. 15 explosions, was released from the hospital and charged with a federal weapons violation unrelated to the bombings on Friday.

On Sunday, detectives returned to Hofmann's Holladay, Utah, home and removed several plastic bags of material from the garage. In two earlier searches, they seized manuscripts, books and other items. Police declined to say what was taken Sunday.

"It was the first time Hofmann had been home while his home was searched," said attorney Bradley Rich.

"He is recovering, but knowing that his house can be invaded over and over at any moment with no notice is a real frustrating, frightening kind of thing," said attorney Bradley Rich.

The warrant — executed by Salt Lake City Police and agents of the federal Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms — authorized a search for items "related to the manufacture of bombs."

Guru goes to Oregon

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Indian guru Bhawan Shree Rajneesh, after spending a week in jail here, began his trip back to Oregon on Monday, facing charges that he violated immigration laws.

"I'll take him out west tonight," said U.S. Marshal Max Wilson, "and I understand he'll be in Portland in the morning."

Rajneesh, 53, is a spiritual leader of a sect claiming 500,000 adherents around the world. Some of them live at an Oregon commune that has more than 30 Rolls-Royces, a hotel and an armed security force.

At about 3 p.m. MST, Rajneesh, wearing a grey robe and leg shackles, waist chains and handcuffs, also climbed aboard the plane. They were guarded by five marshals and two Bureau of Prisons guards. Wilson said, with a medic and a nurse aboard.

Rajneesh was arrested Oct. 28 when two Learjets landed at Charlotte-Douglas International Airport in what federal authorities said was an attempt to flee to Bermuda.

Whale reaches ocean home

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Humphrey the whale, lured by the flute-like sounds of feeding humpbacks, splashed through the Golden Gate into the Pacific Ocean on Monday after a 3½-week fresh-water cruise that made it a national celebrity.

Tracing at three knots against a rising tide, the 40-foot, 45-ton Leviathan cleared the log-shrouded Golden Gate Bridge at 5:36 p.m. MST as crewmen aboard a flotilla of military and civilian boats cheered and waved goodbye.

The whale, which shook off two radio transmitters shot into its skin with a crossbow as it neared the end of a journey that took it 70 miles inland, swam almost nine miles Monday before reaching the sea.

Humphrey was given an escort more than two miles past the Golden Gate "to make sure he stays at sea," said Hal Alabaster, spokesman for the Whale Rescue Coordination Center.

Soviet defector recants

KGB officer claims CIA drugged him

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vitaly Yurchenko, a high-level Soviet KGB officer who was described by the State Department as a defector to the United States, turned up at the Soviet embassy Monday and claimed that he had been drugged, kidnapped and offered $1 million to cooperate with the CIA.

The State Department said Yurchenko's charges were "completely false." One senator called his story "baloney" and said CIA officials weren't sure the Soviet was acting voluntarily when he made his allegations during an extraordinary press conference at the embassy.

The State Department said Yurchenko would not be permitted to leave the United States until he provides assurances that a decision to return to the Soviet Union is "genuinely of his own choosing."

Yurchenko repeatedly described his ordeal as "state-sponsored terrorism" and told of being drugged before meeting with CIA Director William Casey.

Yurchenko denied that he knowingly gave U.S. officials any Soviet secrets. He said he did not know who actually abducted him, but he discussed in detail what he said were CIA efforts to sign him to a lucrative lifetime contract in return for working with U.S. intelligence.

"I was kept in isolation and forced to take some drugs and denied the opportunity to get in touch with official Soviet representatives," Yurchenko charged.

A Soviet official who introduced Yurchenko said the embassy's charge of drugging was lodging a strong protest at the State Department.

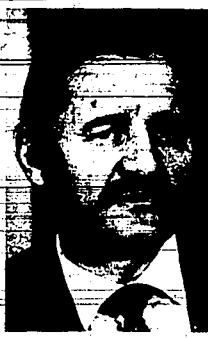

Yurchenko said that on Saturday, due to "a momentary lapse" in his supervision, he was able to "break out to freedom" and go to the embassy in the northwest section of Washington.

But Sen. David Durenberger, chairman of the Senate Intelligence Committee, said Yurchenko simply went out to dinner Saturday night and disappeared.

Sen. Patrick Leahy, D-Vt., the panel's chairman, told reporters that Yurchenko either was trying to get back in the good graces of the Soviet Union "or he was a double agent all along."

Was he a Soviet plant, sent in to cause an intelligence uproar? "I think that's highly unlikely but not to be dismissed," said Sen. Daniel Patrick Moynihan, D-N.Y., former vice chairman of the panel.

Yurchenko, 50, had been thought to be one of the highest-ranking Soviet officials to defect in recent years. He was described as the No. 5 man in the KGB, the Soviet intelligence service, at the time he defected in Rome in early August.

"Mr. Yurchenko was specifically responsible for the direction of KGB intelligence operations in the U.S. and Canada," the State Department said on Oct. 11.

State Department spokesman Charles Redman said Monday night that Yurchenko "defected of his own volition to the American Embassy in Rome, Italy."

"At no time was Mr. Yurchenko held or coerced by improper, illegal, or unethical means. It is Mr. Yurchenko's right to return to the Soviet Union once the United States government is, in fact, assured that this action is genuinely of his own choosing," Redman said.

Yurchenko said: "At the moment my only wish is to return as soon as possible to my country, my family, my kin and my friends" in the Soviet Union.

Durenberger told reporters on Capitol Hill that "the CIA is surprised at this as anyone else. . . Nobody can have a clear opinion right now as to why he's doing what he's doing."

CIA spokeswoman Patti Volz said the agency would have no comment, but Durenberger, R-Minn., called Yurchenko's claim "about being drugged" a "lot of baloney."

"At no time have any of the things he alleged happened to him actually happened to him," Durenberger said.

Earlier Monday, Dave Holliday, a spokesman for the Senate Intelligence Committee, said he had been told by the CIA that Yurchenko had redrafted to the Soviet Union, but that wasn't the story Yurchenko told.

"On a business trip to Italy (in August), I was forcibly abducted in Rome," he said. He did not say by whom but later he talked about conversations he held with CIA officials.

Of his alleged meeting with Casey, Yurchenko said, "Later I have only vague recollections of the conversation but it was a general conversation of vague policy issues regarding the summit, the things they usually write about in the newspapers."

He would not confirm that he worked for the KGB. "I know I'm not going to make any comments about spying business," he said.

He would not give details of his alleged escape, saying only, "I am very proud that I managed to escape, but I won't tell you how."

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States should block a Soviet freighter from leaving its waters until it can be learned whether 22-year-old sailor Medvedoff wants political asylum, the U.S. Court of Appeals was told Monday.

"We want to hold the ship in U.S. waters, not take Medvedoff off it," said Paul D. Kamenar, an attorney for the Ukrainian-American Bar Association, after 2½ hours of oral arguments before a three-member appeals court panel.

"We want to freeze the status quo until we have a full hearing on all the events to determine if his rights were breached," the judges — Spottswood W. Robinson III, Kenneth Starr, and Carl McGowan — took the case under advisement.

Civil rights protestor dies

MILWAUKEE (AP) — James Groppi, a former priest and civil rights activist who gained national attention in the 1960s by leading 200 consecutive daily open-house marches through the streets of Milwaukee, died Monday at age 54.

Groppi died "peacefully and comfortably" at home with his family, his wife Margaret, said in a statement. He had been partially paralyzed and confined to a wheelchair since Dec. 12, when a tumor was removed from his brain by laser surgery.

In 1967 and 1968, Groppi, then a Roman Catholic priest assigned to St. Boniface, a church in Milwaukee's inner city, led consecutive daily marches in support of an open-house law in Milwaukee. He was white but most of his followers were black.

Jury still uncertain

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Jurors in the Richard W. Miller spy trial on Monday finished their 12th day of deliberations without deciding the fate of the only FBI agent ever charged with espionage.

They asked for "box lunches" to be brought to the jury room Monday so they could continue trying to resolve their differences, but went home in the afternoon, bringing their total hours of fruitless deliberation to 61½.

Council hopefuls, pool bond on ballot today

By ANNETTE CARY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — From Hailley to Hollister and from Burley to Buhl, Magic Valley voters will go to the polls today to select mayors and councilmembers to lead their cities for the next four years.

Polling places throughout the valley will be open from noon to 8 p.m. In many smaller Magic Valley towns, residents will vote at City Hall. But voters in Twin Falls will cast their ballots in polling places assigned to match new precinct boundaries.

Twin Falls voters will be casting two ballots, each at separate voting machines in their polling places. They will be making a decision on a swimming pool, and they will be choosing three council members from a field of nine.

The City Council is asking that voters approve a $700,000 bond issue for a new city swimming pool. That money would be combined with $300,000 in city funds set aside for building a pool during earlier budget years.

Although a brochure sent to voters failed to mention the location of the pool, councilmembers promise that if the bond passes, it will be built in the southeast corner of Harmon Park.

The current pool proposal is identical to the one voters turned down by less than 10 votes in April 1985. It calls for an outdoor pool about the same size as the former pool at Harmon Park, but with a grassy picnic and recreation area to encourage family use. Since the council voted in April 1983 not to invest in costly repairs needed to open the Harmon Park pool, three bond issues to build a new pool have failed.

The only other Magic Valley residents to cast votes on an issue are in Stanley, where voters will decide whether to reinstate a 5 percent local option tax on rented rooms and barroom drinks.

Two incumbents are running for re-election in Twin Falls today — Mayor Emery Petersen and councilmember Mary McClusky. Also on the ballot are Jim Vickers, Donald McMurrin, E.A. Wallen, Fred Higgins, Bobby Bopp, Richard Carr and Ernest Vasquez. Voters will choose three.

Although Petersen is mayor now, he will run for a regular council seat. Then in January the council will choose a leader from among its members.

Today's election will be the first test of consolidated county and city voter rolls in Twin Falls. Some 5,550 voters were registered in April of this year. The consolidated rolls show 13,891 city residents who are registered to vote.

Rolling places for the nine new Twin Falls precincts are: 1st Precinct, Twin Falls County Courthouse; 2nd Precinct, Robert Stuart Junior High School; 3rd Precinct, Disabled American Veterans Hall; 4th Precinct, Judicial Building; 5th Precinct, Harrison School; 6th Precinct, Sawtooth School; 7th Precinct, Twin Falls Senior High School; 8th Precinct, Bickel School; 9th Precinct, Morningstar School.

Twin Falls registered voters were sent letters in October notifying them of their precinct and polling place.

Health care with all the comforts of home

TWIN FALLS — Sunlight streamed through Ann Heuston's second-story apartment window as she lay in bed and kicked her right leg up as far as it would go, about a foot above the bed.

Wrapped around her left leg was a cast, from her thigh down to her toes. Her new "pump," a catheter bag, was slung over the nearby nightstand. Her right hand, sliced the air constantly as she spoke, but her left hand remained motionless on her leg because she is paralyzed from her shoulder down on her left side, the result of a stroke.

Despite that, the 59-year-old Heuston kept kicking Friday as she showed off for her physical therapist, Julie Ellis, a member of Magic Valley Regional Medical Center's Home Health Services. Heuston is bed-ridden only as long as the cast stays on.

"I don't consider myself sick or crippled," she said as she leaned against a backdrop of pillows. "I want people to know you can go through something like this, and get through it."

Prior to her stroke in 1980, she was a teacher and director of a child-care center in Sun Valley for 14 years. She also was a ski instructor. Now, the mother of three daughters is one of 430 patients served monthly by MVRMC's Home Health Services, now a year old.

Before breaking her leg, she had a broken pelvis. Although she suffered a stroke during surgery for a brain tumor, she is capable of walking with a leg brace. In her room are the accoutrements of her new life: assorted books, a television, a stationary bike, a wheelchair, a portable phone and a "Lifeline" machine.

Without the support of part of nurses and therapists have traveled. Home Health's team of 19 nurses ed 50,676 miles in five counties and speech and physical therapists, Twin Falls, Cassia, Gooding, Jerome and Minidoka. The program began in October 1984, with Changes in Medicare and Medicaid payments have limited the number of days patients can stay in hospitals to recuperate, and more patients are choosing to leave earlier because they can get help at home.

Laufenberg said Home Health provides rehabilitation services and therapy to patients, usually after a brief time — such as after surgery. Nurses check vital signs, explain medicine, "anything that requires skilled care," said nurse Debi Kral, who works with Heuston.

As for therapy, Ellis said she does different muscle exercises, "anything to facilitate mobility and strengthen the patient."

The spirited Heuston enjoys the help, but only for as long, or as briefly, as she needs it. "It helps for individuals, so they don't have to be afraid of being alone," she said. "Most of the time, I'm by myself. And I want to get around by myself."

Verdict erases Hill's worries

Sugar firm says whole story untold

By PAT MARCANTONIO
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Virginia Hill said she felt like "jumping over the moon" when a jury awarded her $90,000 late Friday night on her claim that the Amalgamated Sugar Co. had polluted her well.

Meanwhile, Ed Bulglin, supervisor of the sugar plant south of Twin Falls, said he was disappointed at the verdict.

"We still don't feel responsible," Bulglin said Monday.

Hill, now residing in Provo, Utah, filed the $350,000 lawsuit July 8, 1983. She claimed the company's waste had seeped into the groundwater and contaminated her well, on the adjoining property, over a five-year period.

After a week-long trial in 5th District Court, a jury ruled late Friday night that the sugar manufacturing operation was negligent and had polluted Hill's water supply. The panel awarded the 79-year-old Hill $90,000 for emotional distress, inconvenience and to obtain a new water source.

Hill said Monday that she and her family had lived in the house for almost 50 years. A lifetime was spent renovating and improving it, she added.

But she had moved from the house, which "now sits vacant, because of the water problems."

"You couldn't sell it, rent it or live in it because you could not guarantee the water," Hill said.

When the jury returned a verdict in her favor late Friday night, Hill said the worry built up over the years had been lifted.

"Those dear jurors," she added, "the case may not be over. If the company decides to appeal. The case may be appealed only on the legal aspects — such as whether the jury's instructions were proper — and not on the jury's verdict."

Company officials had not yet reviewed the case to determine their next step, Bulglin said.

The plaintiff had attempted to portray the company as an insensitive polluter, he added. But Amalgamated was a good neighbor.

State Department of Environment employees testified during the trial that the company had 148 violations of water quality regulations.

Bulglin said the whole story of the company's extensive waste system wasn't told in court. There had been problems with some of the monitoring wells, but the wells were on their property and the waste system was intensively monitored, he said.

Boise hearing slated on water standards

By KENNETH A. BROWN
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The state Department of Health and Welfare and Division of Environment has scheduled a public hearing for Nov. 20 in Boise on new dissolved oxygen water quality standards.

The new levels are essentially those of the so-called "compromise" groups. The compromise levels were worked out in the midst of a series of interstate hearings the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency was holding to receive public comments on its proposed standards for dissolved oxygen levels below dams. Idaho's standards have been in violation of federal law since 1980. Idaho is the only state in the nation to have a separate standard for bodies of water below dams.

After four years of unsuccessfully trying to work with the state to develop acceptable regulations, the EPA decided to propose standards of its own for Idaho. The move was widely criticized by water users, who claimed the tougher standards would cost them thousands of dollars per year, and by a number of state officials, who labeled the standards overreaching.

SUN VALLEY — For the third year in a row, the staffs of the Twin Falls High School newspaper and yearbook captured the sweepstakes award at the annual Idaho Journalism Advisers Association Conference held here Oct. 27-29.

The journalists competed against 32 other schools from all over Idaho.

The Bruin yearbook placed in eight various contests. Claudine Chamberlain, Kent McClard and Terrie Jarrell took first place for theme design. Shawna Claiborne took first place for copy editing and Kim Mastaniak won first place for caption writing. Joy Engelman earned second place for cover design. Jennifer White captured third place for layout design. Amy Abram was awarded third place for headline writing. Matt Cilley took third place for feature photography and received an honorable mention for sports photography.

Bruin News placed in 11 contests. First-place awards went to: Margie Schmitt for layout design, Maureen Maron for headline and caption writing, Shaun Vecera for sports photography, and Shannon Chestnut for advertising. Earning second-place awards were: Adam Forbes for review writing, Mark Hartnoll for special effects photography, and Valory Evans for copy editing. Wendy Miller took third place for editorial cartoons, Mark Hartnoll came in third for news photography, and Geoff Cooper captured third for radio broadcasting.

Other winning schools from around the Magic Valley were Filer and Jerome, which came in seventh and ninth place in the sweepstakes, respectively.

McClure, Symms back wheat supports compromise

By BOB FREUND
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Saying the entire 1986 Farm Bill was at stake, Idaho senators Jim McClure and Steve Symms have voted for a new formula of wheat price supports that gears government payments to idled farmland.

In voting on Friday, Idaho's two Republican senators backed the higher target price rise. The maximum reduction of 40 percent of wheat acreage would yield a target price of $5.50 a bushel.

The current target price of $4.38 requires that 20 percent of a farmer's wheat acreage be taken out of production.

The target price, which is an artificial price set by Congress, is the main ingredient used to pay government price supports for wheat.

The compromise plan, written by Dole and Sen. Richard Lugar, R-Ind., differs from other versions that also remain alive. It uses a sliding scale of target prices to reward farmers for taking land out of production. The more land a farmer idles, the higher the target price rises. The maximum reduction of 40 percent of wheat acreage would yield a target price of $5.50 a bushel.

This month, the U.S. Department of Agriculture will release the season's national market price, but it undoubtedly will be below the loan rate. So, this year, the national federal loan rate of $3.30 and the deficiency payment of $1.68 will combine to form the total price support.

In Dole's compromise plan, a farmer would receive $4.20 for idling 15 percent of the wheat acreage, with the scale sliding up to $5.50 for idling 40 percent. The scale would continue through production years 1986, 1987 and 1988. In 1989, new target prices would be set above the average prices of the past five years.

Both McClure and Symms said they were reluctant to vote for the proposal, but failure to pass the proposal would have scuttled negotiations toward a new Farm Bill.

"If this proposal failed, negotiations on the Farm Bill would fall apart completely, and Idaho wheat farmers would be waiting until next spring before Congress could land a set-aside of 20 percent without government compensation and an additional 10 percent with government pay."

Palmer said McClure has not voiced firm

support for any of the wheat proposals to date, although both he and Symms did vote in favor of a one-year freeze on target prices with gradual cuts in future years.

A four-year freeze on target prices also is still alive. A variation of that freeze is supported by the Idaho State Wheat Growers Association, says Bernie Brown of Mountain Home, vice president for legislative affairs.

The wheat growers group is backing a two-year freeze at $4.38, with the following two years adjusted upward based on the consumer price index.

The ISWGA also supports a mandatory set-aside of 20 percent without government compensation and an additional 10 percent with government pay.

Palmer said McClure has not voiced firm

support for any of the wheat proposals to date, although both he and Symms did vote in favor of a one-year freeze on target prices with gradual cuts in future years.

ICL formulates legislative agenda

By KENNETH A. BROWN
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Changes in the state's Environmental Protection and Health Act and new legislation for the regulation of hazardous and toxic substances will be the major focus of the Idaho Conservation League's agenda during the 1986 legislative session.

The ICL's legislative agenda for the upcoming year was discussed at the group's legislative retreat last weekend in Idaho.

Carol Kriz, ICL board president, said the ICL is interested in "Right-to-Know" legislation, which gives employees the right to know about hazardous materials. In addition to toxics and the health act reform, the ICL may also target the Priest Lake land swap decision, if any proposals come before the Legislature addressing the state's action in that case, Kriz said.

The two-day conference included talks by state senators John Peavey and Gail Bray on effective lobbying, and other presentations on how a bill becomes a law.

Sessions were also held on phone networks and letter-writing. On reform of the state's Environmental Health Act, Kriz said, the group would like to see "some consensus legislation developed. Two bills are working with or come in the ICL, including civil and criminal penalties for polluters and the power to issue injunctions against polluters.

Currently the state can issue an injunction against polluters only if there is an imminent public health hazard.

Along with stronger injunctive powers, Kriz said the ICL would like the state to develop a "contractual arrangement" with mine operators, to ensure that responsibilities for cleanups and maintaining environmental standards are carefully laid out.

3 deer hunters spend cold night in wilds; found safe by officers

TWIN FALLS — Three deer hunters, who were reported missing about 10 p.m. Sunday by the mother of the two male hunters, Linda Roehlsberger, were reported missing about 10 p.m. Sunday by the mother of the two male hunters, Linda Roehlsberger.

The trio said they could not find their way out in the dark and built a fire and spent the night. They were picked up at 8:15 a.m. by the deputies as they walked on the Three Creek Road.

Gooding man dies of crash injuries

GOODING — A Gooding man who was injured Oct. 8 in a traffic accident north of Gooding has died of injuries in a Boise hospital.

Jerry Lee Howard, 45, died Saturday after remaining in critical condition for nearly a month.

Gooding County Sheriff's officers said Howard was driving a vehicle north on State Highway 46 when he made a left turn into a driveway and collided with a southbound vehicle driven by Jeffery Eklund, 28, of Gooding, about 3 1/2 miles north of the city.

Eklund escaped with a head cut and was not hospitalized. A passenger in the Howard vehicle, Marian Lynn Easterbrook, 37, of Gooding, remains in critical condition at St. Alphonsus Regional Medical Center in Boise.

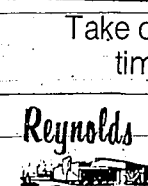

Officers said Howard, who works for the Easterbrooks, was taking Mrs. Easterbrook home after she had returned to Gooding from a trip.

He was turning into the Easterbrook driveway when the accident occurred. No charges had been filed in the accident, officers said Monday.

ICL formulates legislative agenda

By KENNETH A. BROWN
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Changes in the state's Environmental Protection and Health Act and new legislation for the regulation of hazardous and toxic substances will be the major focus of the Idaho Conservation League's agenda during the 1986 legislative session.

The ICL's legislative agenda for the upcoming year was discussed at the group's legislative retreat last weekend in Hailey.

Carol Kriz, ICL board president, said the ICL is interested in "Right-to-Know" legislation — which gives employees the right to know about hazardous materials they may be working with or come in contact with.

In addition — to toxics and health care reform, the ICL may also target the federal Superfund swap decision. If any proposals come before the Legislature addressing the state's action in that case, Kriz said, The two-day conference included talks by state senators John Peavey and Gail Bray on effective lobbying, and other presentations on how a bill becomes a law.

Sessions were also held on phone networks and letter writing.

On reform of the state's Environmental Health Act, Kriz said, the group would like to see some consensus legislation developed. Two issues of particular interest to the ICL include civil and criminal penalties for polluters and the power to issue injunctions against polluters.

Currently, the state can issue an injunction against polluters only if there is an imminent public health hazard.

Along with stronger injunctive powers, Kriz said the ICL would like the state to develop a "contractual arrangement" with mine operators to ensure that responsibilities for cleanups and maintaining environmental standards are carefully laid out.

3 deer hunters spend cold night in wilds; found safe by officers

TWIN FALLS — Three deer hunters, who were reported lost in the Clover Creek area in the extreme south end of Twin Falls County Sunday night, were found by two Twin Falls County officers Monday morning, cold and tired but otherwise in good condition.

Sheriff's officers said John Dwight, 24, Douglas Dwight, 15, and Heidi Watson, 18, all of Twin Falls, were reported missing about 10 p.m. Sunday by the mother of the two male hunters, Linda Roethlisberger.

The trio said they could not find their way out in the dark and built a fire and spent the night. They were picked up at 8:15 a.m. by the deputies as they walked on the Three Creek Road.

Gooding man dies of crash injuries

GOODING — A Gooding man who was injured Oct. 8 in a traffic accident north of Gooding has died of injuries in a Boise hospital.

Jerry Lee Howard, 45, died Saturday after remaining in critical condition for nearly a month.

Gooding County sheriff's officers said Howard was driving a vehicle north on State Highway 46 when he made a left turn into a driveway and collided with a southbound vehicle driven by Jeffrey Ellington, 29, of Gooding, about 3 1/2 miles north of the city.

Ellington escaped with a head cut and was not hospitalized. A passenger in the Howard vehicle, Marian Lynn Easterbrook, 37, of Gooding, remains in critical condition at St. Alphonsus Regional Medical Center in Boise.

Officers said Howard, who works for the Easterbrooks, was taking red.

Mrs. Easterbrook home after she was injured in the accident, officers said Monday.

No charges had been filed in the accident, officers said Monday.

and should not be held accountable just because we're here," Bulgis said. "Our management is dedicated to doing things right. There's a lot of good people here — it's the kind of company I'm proud to work for."

It's attorney, Jeff Stoker, said the amount of the award was good, considering his client wasn't awarded punitive damages.

Stoker had asked Judge Daniel Mechl to allow the jury to rule on awarding punitive damages, which are meant to punish the defendant for alleged intentional negligence.

But Mechl rejected the request.

Most of the trial was taken up with testimony and cross-examination of experts for Hill and the company. Each testified about how they believed underground water flowed in the area.

enact an absolute minimum of 4 milligrams of dissolved oxygen per liter of water; a 7-day mean of 5 milligrams per liter; and a 30-day mean of 6.5 milligrams per liter.

The compromise standards, by contrast, have proposed an absolute minimum of 3.5 milligrams per liter; a 7-day mean of 4.7 milligrams per liter; and a 30-day mean of 6 milligrams per liter.

The current state standard has no absolute minimum for waters below dams or hydroelectric facilities.

Water users feared the slightly stricter federal standards could cut them thousands of dollars because Idaho Power would be required to "dump water" to raise oxygen levels during periods of extremely low flow when oxygen levels drop.

The "dumped water" would mean lost generating power for hydroelectric facilities and potentially higher utility rates.

Al Murray, with the division's Bureau of Water Quality in Boise, said the standards will be presented to the state Board of Health and Welfare at its December meeting.

The department will then put together its decision on the standards and send them to the EPA for approval and review. The EPA may also testify at November hearings, Murray said.

The proposal being considered by the Division of Environment also discusses the exemption currently granted to dams, reservoirs, and hydroelectric facilities in the state's anti-degradation policy.

There is no charge for the seminar, sponsored by the cooperative extension service.

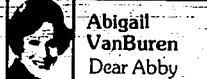

Youthful high spirits stain man's clean record

DEAR ABBY: Here's the problem: Years ago, when our son was a freshman in college, he and a bunch of kids his age went to Fort Lauderdale over Easter vacation. Well, he got drunk and urinated on a parked car. A policeman witnessed this, and our son was charged with indecent exposure, which is a felony.

Our son is now in his 30s, married with children, active in Scouting and owns his own business. He is interested in moving to Florida, but is terrified of this incident hanging over his head.

Indecent exposure sounds as if he was exposing himself to people, but Abby, he was just a college kid who drank too much and chose a handy place to relieve himself. I'm sure the police have arrested many kids in Florida over Easter break.

My question is: there a way to erase this from his record? He and his family went to Disney World, and he was afraid to drive for fear of an infraction of the law because of this happening years ago.

Abigail VanBuren
Dear Abby

You have my permission to run this in your column to warn other young people that what they do can follow them all through life.

DEAR HEARTBROKEN: In some states, if the offender was under 21 years of age and subsequently proved himself to be of good character, the record can be expunged (destroyed). Your son should consult a lawyer. It might cost a few hundred dollars, but the peace of mind for him and his family would be well worth it.

DEAR ABBY: Please, just one more time! Will you please tell us where to write for copies of "The Living Will"?

If we should become terminally ill and incapacitated, we do not want artificial life support. Many of us feel the same way.

We thank you...

Hundreds search remote terrain in Mexico for alleged drug dealers

MINATITILAN, Mexico (AP) — More than 600 policemen, soldiers and farmers converged Monday on a remote marijuana-growing area of southern Mexico to search for drug traffickers alleged to have tortured and killed 22 officers.

Cmdr. Eusebio Ventura, director of Interpol-Mexico, who is coordinating the hunt for the suspects, said three people were arrested in connection with the case, but he declined to elaborate.

Two police officers survived the ambush Friday. One survivor, Jose Saldaña Chantel, was transferred to Mexico City for questioning, according to a source who only spoke on condition of anonymity.

According to the survivors, the policemen were ambushed by about 80 armed drug traffickers in the small farming village of Iguaico on the Coahuila River from this town in the state of Veracruz.

When the police ran out of ammunition, the officers were captured, tortured and then forced to kneel with their hands and arms bound. They were shot to death with high-powered rifles, the witnesses said.

Ventura said authorities found in addition to 500 policemen sent about 40 sacks of marijuana, each containing more than 60 pounds of the drug, at the site of the slayings.

Policeman on duty slain

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — The government announced Monday that a black policeman was slain while guarding the home of a black councilman in Soweto.

The wife of black nationalist leader Nelson Mandela said he was recovering satisfactorily from prostate surgery, and "the whole army" seems to be guarding him.

"He is fine. The doctors seemed to do a very good job," Winnie Mandela told The Associated Press after visiting her husband in the Volks Hospital in Cape Town.

Mandela, 67, a founder of the guerrilla movement sworn to destroy apartheid, underwent the operation to remove the swollen prostate Sunday.

The government announced Monday that a black policeman was killed, apparently by assassins in Soweto, over the weekend. No reason was given for why the slaying was not announced until Monday.

Moderate takes lead in election

GUATEMALA CITY (AP) — Moderate candidate Vinicio Cerezo had a strong lead Monday in the election for Guatemala's first civilian president in 16 years, but the conservative running second vowed to force a runoff.

Election laws provide for a runoff unless one candidate gets a majority. With 32 percent of the ballots counted from Sunday's election, Cerezo had 270,348 — 39 percent of the total — and newspaper publisher Jorge Carpio Nicolle of the National Centrist Union had 136,626, or 21 percent.

Cerezo, a 42-year-old lawyer who has led the Christian Democrats for 16 years, appealed to Carpio to decline his right to a runoff, which would be held Dec. 8.

Marcos sets campaign for re-election

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — President Ferdinand E. Marcos plunged into campaigning Monday hours after his surprise call for a Jan. 17 presidential election. His squabbling foes met to pick a common candidate against him.

Marcos told reporters he was the only issue in the election. He rejected the idea of an election for the vacant vice presidency, saying he wanted to remove all doubts about the popularity of his leadership.

Political rivals said U.S. pressure for democratic reforms in the Philippines to counter a growing communist rebellion almost certainly helped spur Marcos' announcement Sunday calling for the election.

Two weeks earlier, he had indicated there would be no sudden election.

Dutch, U.S. draft missile agreement

THE HAGUE, Netherlands (AP) — Dutch and U.S. officials Monday initiated a draft treaty governing deployment of cruise missiles in the Netherlands, a matter which the Soviets have asked the Dutch to come to Moscow to discuss.

Paul Bremer, the U.S. ambassador to the Netherlands, initiated his copy of the draft treaty at the American Embassy in The Hague, according to a Dutch Foreign Ministry spokesman, who spoke on condition of anonymity in keeping with ministry practice.

Judge strips IDFG license interest

By MARILYN HAUKESS
The Associated Press

BOISE — A district judge has ruled that interest earned from fish and game license fees belongs to the general fund rather than the Fish and Game Department — a move that agency director Jerry Conley said could jeopardize $3.5 million in federal aid.

Fourth District Judge D. Duff McKee sided with state Treasurer Marjorie Ruth Moon on a lawsuit filed by the Idaho Sportsman's Coalition last December.

The Idaho Sports Coalition filed a lawsuit seeking an order to have interest earned from license fees benefit Fish and Game Department programs.

But 4th District Judge D. Duff McKee ruled that the Fish and Game Department isn't entitled to interest earned on the money because that wasn't the intent of the Funds Consolidation Act in 1976.

The coalition had no immediate comment on whether an appeal would be made.

Fish and Game Department Director Jerry Conley said Monday that the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service announced this year that states must have the "intent" earned on license fees benefit fish and wildlife programs. States that don't comply with that requirement within two years will not remain eligible for federal aid, Conley said.

About $3.5 million of the department's $22 million dollar budget comes from the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service. The amount of interest earned on license fees amounts to an average of $250,000 a year.

Conley said he would consider asking the Idaho Legislature for help to avoid losing $3.5 million to keep an average of only $250,000 a year in the general fund.

The federal aid funds programs such as research, hatchery projects, restoration, and relocation programs and repair of state boat ramps, Conley said. "It would surely be missed," he said.

In addition, the federal aid would put Idaho anglers in a position of subsidizing wildlife programs in other states, he said. The federal aid comes from an excise tax placed on tackle. If Idaho loses its eligibility to receive the federal aid, Gem State fishermen still would be required to pay the tackle tax.

According to the lawsuit filed in December, state law requires that money from license fees should be used only for "the administration of the Department of Fish and Game, and for the protection, propagation, preservation and investigation of wildlife."

But McKee said that doesn't apply to the interest earned on the funds because of Funds Consolidation Act of 1976 stipulates the money be deposited in an account that returns interest to the general fund.

The act created two state accounts — the dedicated fund, into which numerous state accounts were consolidated, and the agency asset fund.

Interest earned on money deposited into the agency asset fund may be returned to the agency, but interest earned on the dedicated fund is earmarked for the general fund, McKee said.

In addition, McKee said the coalition should have sued State Auditor Joe Williams instead of Miss Moon.

The auditor has the power to establish accounts within either fund, McKee said, while Miss Moon is charged with investing the money.

The department reported Monday that anglers harvested an estimated 31,800 steelhead during the 1984 spring and fall seasons, just below the record 32,200 caught the year before. Fish and Game officials found in their annual survey of steelhead harvest that the Salmon River fishery was down by more than 5,000 fish last year.

However, Clearwater and Snake River fishing took up most of the slack, producing a net and 1,100 additional fish respectively, officials said.

The survey found 14,400 steelhead were taken from the Clearwater River in 1984, 3,500 from the Snake and 13,900 from the Salmon.

BIG star New triple-threat Perry eyes expansive options

By NICHOLAS K. GERANIOS
The Associated Press

CHICAGO — William "The Refrigerator" Perry, who is paid to push his massive self away from the dining table, may soon be pushing hamburgers, french fries and other fast-food temptations, as well as real refrigerators.

The Chicago Bears' 300-pound rookie defensive tackle, whose girth makes him worth plenty to advertisers, stands to profit more from his endorsements this season than from his four-year, $1.35-million contract with the National Football League club.

"I don't know of a hotter property in the country right now," his agent, Jim Steiner of St. Louis-based Bry & Associates, said Monday.

"I'll endorse anything that's going to make some money," said Perry. "But it'll have to be something sensible."

McDonald's, Coca Cola, and, of course, refrigerator-makers General Electric and Whirlpool are hungry for endorsements from the 22-year-old Perry, who says a decision is expected in about two weeks.

"They (offers) are coming in at the rate of 15 an hour," said Steiner, whose firm represents more than 100 athletes, including the New York Mets' Darryl Strawberry, Kellen Winslow of the San Diego Chargers and the St. Louis Cardinals' Vince Coleman.

Offers were coming in even before Perry became an important factor on offense, scoring a touchdown and clearing the way for two TDs by Walter Payton against Green Bay two weeks ago. He victimized the Packers again Sunday, catching the first touchdown pass of his career as the Bears defeated Green Bay 16-10, raising their record to 9-0.

That earned him a Monday appearance on the CBS Morning News, plus a front-page story in USA Today.

Among the companies lining up to sign Perry are a toy maker who wants to market a William Perry robot, a manufacturer of hospital scrub suits and a thermal underwear company, Steiner said.

"We've had a company that wanted him to endorse a seat-cushion-food tray combination for football games," Steiner added.

And dentists are offering to replace Perry's missing front tooth for free.

Perry's show-biz career is being plotted carefully, Steiner said.

"We cannot overexpose him, and we want to align him with quality companies," he said.

Perry, raised in Aiken, S.C., was a surprise first-round draft choice out of Clemson. Many pro analysts had figured Perry's weight would drop his value, but the Bears gambled that he would stay within the weight and body fat ratio clauses of his unique contract.

His 180-pound wife, Sherry, is keeping him on a lean diet of baked chicken, vegetables and fruit. Perry said he didn't know if a slimmer profile would cost him

Harris may be out for season

By The Times-News

POCATELLO — The future of Idaho State University quarterback Vern Harris appeared in doubt Monday as the senior underwent an examination of his injured right knee.

ISU officials said Harris would definitely not play in the Bengals game next weekend at Nevada-Reno. Harris' backup, sophomore Gino Mariani, will also probably not play at quarterback Saturday because of a shoulder injury.

Harris and Mariani were both injured in ISU's 29-15 loss last week at Boise State. A preliminary examination indicated Harris suffered ligament damage, and he flew to his hometown of LaBrida, Calif., Monday to have the knee examined by his personal physician.

Mariani, who suffered a separation in his right shoulder in ISU's first game this season, reinjured his shoulder Saturday and probably will not be able to throw the ball this week, an ISU spokesman said. Mariani, who is also ISU's punter, may be able to kick Saturday, however.

The injuries to Harris and Mariani will leave senior Rocky Plig in a starting position. Plig played most of the season against Boise State, passing for 151 yards and two touchdowns, the 6-foot-11, 190-pound Harris was injured in the first half of a game against Idaho State at the end of the season when he started last year against Nevada-Reno after Harris was suspended for a half for a team rules infraction.

Plig, a freshman at Portland State in 1981, Plig started six games, completing 53 of his passes for 1,261 yards and three touchdowns. Plig will be backed up by sophomore Marty Hoge, brother of ISU tailback Merrill Hoge. Hoge is nominally a tight end, but was the Idaho State's Class A-1 Idaho offensive player of the year at quarterback two years ago as a senior at Pocatello's Highland High School. Marty Hoge has never taken a varsity snap from center at ISU.

Harris was injured in the first quarter of Saturday's game when he twisted his way out of the grasp of a would-be tackler while trying to avoid being sacked for a safety in the ISU end zone. Harris played the next series, but left the field limping and was replaced by Mariani.

Cardinals rally to upend Cowboys

By PAUL LEBAR
The Associated Press

ST. LOUIS — Neil Lomax and Danny White had decidedly different views, but each agreed that the play of the St. Louis Cardinals was the reason the Cardinals were able to rally for a 21-10 National Football League victory over the Dallas Cowboys Monday night.

"Our defense played a heck of a game," said Lomax, who threw second-half touchdown passes of 46 yards to Pat Tilley and nine yards to J.T. Smith as St. Louis snapped a four-game losing streak. "It's the best I've seen them play in a long time."

The defense was aimed at White, the Dallas quarterback who was largely neutralized in the last 30 minutes of the game.

"We were fired up but you have to give them credit for stopping us. They just played extremely well. White said, 'It's the best defense we've played all year, without question. They were very well prepared.'"

"It was an attitude thing," said St. Louis defensive back Leonard Smith, who intercepted a White pass. "We wanted to do it and we played aggressively. Everything White put up in the air we thought we could stop."

While St. Louis staggered against the Cowboys defense, Dallas built a 10-9 halftime advantage on White's four-yard pass to Tony Hill and a 19-yard field goal by Rafael Septien.

The St. Louis comeback dropped Dallas, 6-3, into a first-place tie with the New York Giants in the NFC East. The Cards, meanwhile, improved to 4-5.

"Offensively, we couldn't do anything but improve," Lomax said. "I don't know how to explain it. We were just playing hard."

"People said we were a playoff team before the season started. We were 9-7 last year but that's not that good. We knew we had a lot left to prove and I've still got a lot of growing to do."

"When we were down 10-0 at the half, the guys hung in there and fought. We never felt we were out of it," St. Louis Coach Jim Hanifan said. "We knew good things would eventually happen. It was a hell of a defensive struggle. It was just a fantastic fight. Our self-respect hung in the balance. We certainly had not been playing the way we are capable of playing, but tonight we did."

St. Louis caught fire on its first possession after halftime, with Lomax's 10-yard pass to Doug Marsh lighting the fuse on an 81-yard drive.

Lomax followed with a 13-yarder to Tilley, and the Cards picked up 11 additional yards on a roughing penalty. Lomax then connected with Tilley on the long touchdown play to cut the Dallas advantage to 10-7 with 12:05 left in the period.

St. Louis' replay of the play appeared to show that Tilley spiked the ball before reaching the end zone, but the play was ruled a touchdown.

The Cardinals moved 65 yards on their next possession for the go-ahead touchdown. Lomax completed passes of 11 yards to Smith and 12 yards to Tilley to set the stage for Earl Ferrell's 6-yard touchdown run with 4:07 left in the quarter.

While the Cardinal offense rolled, the Dallas offense was continually frustrated throughout the second half by an aroused St. Louis defense that prompted two turnovers.

St. Louis moved 80 yards in 10 plays for the clinching score. Stump Mitchell ran 21 yards and then took a Lomax pass for 25 to put the Cardinals on the Dallas 42. Lomax hit Smith for gains of 10 and 19 yards before the Cardinals' Smith on a 3-yard scoring play with 4:13 left in the game.

It was the Cards' third straight Monday night victory over Dallas, which had won 11 of the previous 13 games between the teams, including the last three at Busch Stadium.

Hearns-vs.-Hagler rematch uncertain

By TIM DAHLBERG
The Associated Press

LAUGHLIN, Nev. — James Shuler is the immediate reason Thomas Hearns is barricaded in this remote community of six casinos, separated by miles of desert from his friends and associates. Marvelous, Marvin Hagler is the real reason.

"I think about him every day, every hour, every minute," Hearns says. "This is the one I've got to have."

Hearns may have even longer to think about a Hagler fight, however, since a Nov. 14 card featuring Hearns against Shuler and Hagler against John "The Beast" Mugabi has been postponed indefinitely because of an injury to Hagler.

It's not simply a matter of revenge for Hearns, although the third-round knockout by Hagler he suffered last April 15 weighs heavily on his mind. There's also a very real, emotionally charged between these two fighters.

"We just don't like each other," Hearns said. "I know I don't like him and I know he doesn't like me. There's no like between us at all."

Hearns came to this town bordering the Colorado River to prepare for a fight he must not only win, but win impressively. He remained in training even after the cancellation of the card, hoping promoter Bob Arum would salvage his fight even without Hagler.

Arum had tentatively set a Hagler-Hearns rematch for next April, but that fight is also now up in the air.

Still, Hearns trains, hoping he'll still fight and look good enough to sell the public on a rematch with Hagler.

That is my main concern, that I suffered last April 15 weighs heavily

Jerome will host Shelley in A-2 semifinal Friday

By The Times-News

Jerome High School has exercised its prerogative as the home team in this weekend's Class A-2 state high school football semifinal game against Shelley and will play the game on its home field.

The game had been tentatively scheduled as part of a playoff triple-header Saturday in the Idaho State University Minidome in Pocatello.

The Tigers will take on the fourth-ranked Russlets at 6:30 p.m. Friday at Tiger Field.

Jerome gained the semifinals by defeating American Falls 40-32 at home last Friday, while Shelley blanked Marsh Valley 21-0 in the Minidome in another first-round game.

Defending state Class A-3 champion Gooding will play West Side High School of Dayton in the A-3 final Saturday at 1 p.m. in the Minidome. Blackfoot will take on the winner of today's Kansas playoff among Idaho Falls, Madison and Skyline in the other Minidome contest Saturday, a Class A-1 Division II semifinal game.

The third-ranked Senators thumped Clearwater Valley 29-8 in a first-round game last weekend, while West Side outlasted second-ranked North Fremont 28-20.

If Jerome wins its game Friday and Gooding beats West Side on Saturday, the two teams will advance to the state finals, which will be played in the Minidome the following weekend.

Oakley, the No. 1-ranked team in Class A-1, has already qualified for the state championship game, in which it will meet Kendrick. That game is scheduled for Friday, Nov. 15, in the Minidome.

Ex-Kentucky coach insists he saw nothing

BY STEVEN WINE
The Associated Press

BLAIR, Neb. — Former University of Kentucky basketball Coach Joe B. Hall said Monday he is not aware of any improprieties involving Wildcat players and boosters, but added "it's impossible" for coaches to prevent such violations.

In a copyright story, the Lexington (Ky.) Herald-Leader reported Oct. 27 that 31 former Kentucky coaches said they knew of improprieties while playing for the Wildcats.

"I haven't known of any NCAA violations in our program. In all cases, our players were informed of NCAA rules in writing and verbally," said Hall, who resigned last season after 17 years as Kentucky's coach.

"It's impossible to keep a player and fan from becoming involved if that player and fan want to," Hall made his comments during an interview at a Dana College athletic banquet where he spoke Monday night.

Hall said he hasn't spoken with University of Kentucky and National Collegiate Athletic Association officials who are investigating the allegations.

"I assume I will," Hall said. "We did everything we could to run a program free from violations."

ons," he said. "We tried to protect our players as far as any violations."

"We gave them a list of what they couldn't do as far as free passes and material gifts. We told them that boosters and fans didn't fall under NCAA rules, so the players were responsible that the rules are adhered to, no one else."

The Lexington newspaper reported that 26 players said they had accepted cash, gifts or meals, all allegedly in violation of NCAA rules.

The paper said some players referred to "$50 and $100 handshakes" with boosters in the locker room after games, free meals and gifts such as car tires.

An Olympic boycott could wreck NBC

By NORMAN CHAD
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — For the second time in a decade, NBC Sports is ready to get all dressed up with the possibility it will have nowhere to go.

NBC, which was burned badly by the U.S. led boycott of the 1980 Summer Olympics in Moscow, has agreed to pay between $300 million and $500 million for the rights to the 1988 Summer Olympics in Seoul, South Korea.

Given the fact that virtually all the Summer Games since 1968 have been marred by boycott or incident, given the fact that using the Olympics as a political tool has become standard fare and given the turbulent state of world affairs, NBC stockholders might fear for their investment.

After all, despite contractual insurances protecting NBC financially against major walkouts, is it really worth the gamble of investing so much time and resources for an event that could be ruined at any moment by shifting political winds?

Many observers, myself included, think the days of "normal" summer Olympiads are over. Even in the unlikely event that all nations agree to come together to compete, there are the growing security risks involved: with the world's eyes focused on one stage for two weeks, the potential for political statements or violent acts seemingly increases.

But in the face of these political realities, Arthur Watson, president of NBC Sports, smiles; lights up a cigarette and politely disagrees with his questioner.

"We think this will be the first Olympics in 42 years where all countries will be there," he said recently.

Analysis

There are certain championship events taking place now that all nations are participating in, and that's very positive.

"The Soviet bloc nations want to address the needs of their athletes. They missed out on 1984. By every indication we have, everyone will be there."

In case everyone's not there, NBC does have contractual provisions to reduce its rights fees.

The only way NBC will not broadcast the 1988 Games at all is if the United States were to pull out, just as was the case in 1980. NBC, which paid $90 million for the Moscow Games, recovered much of that money through a Lloyd's of London insurance policy.

This time around, the "insurance" will come strictly through the Seoul Olympic Organizing Committee.

"We will have substantial reductions in our rights fee if certain countries such as the Soviet Union, East Germany or Cuba aren't involved," Watson said.

"We had to have insurance within our contract that would protect us against nonappearances of major countries." NBC's unusual "risk-sharing" formula, in which the rights fee the network pays is tied to advertising revenues generated for the telecasts, has drawn a lot of criticism within the industry.

Neal Pilson, executive vice president of CBS-Broadcast Group overseeing sports, said his network was unwilling to negotiate in the area of revenue sharing. Jim Spencer, senior vice president of ABC Sports, told the Associated Press the risk-sharing concept "is not one we would consider in our daily activities."

Watson, after dismissing the criticisms as "sour grapes," said, "We evaluated that the Games were worth to us $300 million and they (the South Koreans) thought it was worth $500 million. That's a profound difference. So we came up with a unique formula."

"We had to protect ourselves. With a risk-sharing plan, if things were to change — and things do change — if we reached a certain level that generated $500 million, we'd be willing to pay that."

What's most curious is what might happen to the Olympic movement and future network interest if another major boycott of the Games occurs.

fans, but added, "I'm sure trying to get under 300 pounds."

The massive new Bear has taken Chicago by storm. His praises are sung on a record released locally called "Perry Across His Jersey," based on the old Gerry and the Pacemakers' hit, "Perry Cross the Mersey."

He has a fan club whose members receive, among other things, a square "72" refrigerator magnet, celebrating his jersey number.

The Wall Street Journal, a newspaper without a sports section, has featured Perry. And Sunday's Chicago Tribune carried an editorial declaring, "Mr. Perry has come to symbolize the revival of the Chicago Bears."

The Chicago Sun-Times recently published a full-page color poster of Perry, and the robust rookie is to appear Nov. 11 on The David Letterman Show.

Perry, who earlier acknowledged he had never seen the wise-cracking Letterman, said Monday he finally had watched the show.

"He's a nice funny guy, a little different. We'll have fun," said Perry. Steiner, who has been Perry's agent since college, said he doesn't think fame will change him.

"He's delightful. He's the same William Perry that he was six months ago," Steiner said.

The Bears' passing game went south against the Green Bay Packers because quarterback Jim McMahon wasn't retreating far enough from center when he set up to throw. Coach Mike Ditka said Monday.

"I couldn't figure out why there were so many (defenders) in his face all the time until somebody pointed out his drop," Ditka said.

Walter Payton rescued a floundering offense and the Bears' unbeaten National Football League record with 192 yards and the game-clinching score in Chicago's 16-10 victory over the Packers Sunday.

"I didn't notice it myself, but everytime we looked, it seemed like McMahon was in trouble," Ditka said. "Somebody had to point out the short drop on the films."

Fortunately for Ditka, those films also showed Payton rolling up the third-highest single-game rushing total of his long NFL career on the same day the Bears' passing game would finish with a season-low 54 net yards.

Payton, already the NFL's career rushing leader, also shattered the 14,000-yard barrier on the day. But much more important to all concerned was his fourth-quarter, 27-yard TD scamper for Chicago's final points.

It enabled the Bears to complete their sixth successful comeback in the nine games they've played this year without a loss.

Strong given 12-year sentence

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Former Philadelphia Phillies clubhouse caterer Curtis Strong was sentenced Monday to 12 years in prison for selling cocaine to major league players by a federal judge who warned baseball executives they "must clean up their house."

Strong, 39, of Philadelphia, also was sentenced to 12 years of special parole following his jail term for his Sept. 20 conviction on 11 of 14 cocaine distribution charges. U.S. District Judge Gustave Diamond said he wanted Strong to be "too old to engage in the drug business" when he leaves federal supervision in 24 years.

The judge, however, ruled that Strong would be eligible for parole, at the discretion of the federal parole board, meaning it is likely he will serve only a portion of his 12-year sentence.

Diamond, who presided over a three-week trial in which seven current or former major leaguers testified under grants of immunity, said they used cocaine. The players "were not virgin innocents" and "also committed crimes."

Idaho, WSC, UNR advance

BOISE (AP) — Lopsided victories for Idaho, Weber State and Nevada-Reno last weekend helped give those Big Sky Conference football teams national control of the total-offense category in the NCAA Division I-AA.

Nevada-Reno rolled up 496 yards in total offense and boosted its per-game average to 476.7 yards as the Wolf Pack dumped Montana State 61-14, maintaining their No. 3 national ranking both overall and in total offense.

Weber State's Division I-AA record of 800 yards in total offense in a wild 57-29 thrashing of Montana went a long way toward putting the Wildcats in second place in the total-offense rankings with a 502.1 yards-per-game average.

Idaho retained its top ranking in total offense by collecting 565 yards in a 45-21 nonconference victory over Eastern Washington, which fell from 10th to 15th in the national rankings.

That performance gave the conference leading Vandals a per-game average of 505 yards and lifted them from eighth to sixth in the weekly Division I-AA national poll.

The Big Sky also claims four of the nation's top 10 teams in scoring and three of the top 10 in passing offense. Idaho is ranked third, Idaho State sixth and Weber State 10th in Division I-AA passing offense, while UNR is second, Weber fourth, Idaho fifth and Idaho State 10th in scoring offense.

Jordan sidelined six weeks

CHICAGO (AP) — Acrobatic guard Michael Jordan, the Chicago Bulls' scoring sensation, has a broken bone in his left foot and will be out of National Basketball Association action for at least six weeks, the club said Monday.

The 6-foot-6 Jordan, last season's NBA Rookie of the Year, injured his foot when he came down hard on it in the second quarter of last Tuesday's game against the Golden State Warriors in Oakland and went to the bench with 12 points. He had scored 33 and 29 points in the season's two previous contests.

The Bulls won those first three games, but lost the next two, which Jordan sat out.

Bulls spokeswoman Corinne Zarler said these were the first games the 22-year-old guard has ever missed in a playing career, dating back to his days at Laney High School in North Carolina.

Herzog manager of year

NEW YORK (AP) — Whitey Herzog, who managed St. Louis to the National League pennant in what was expected to be a rebuilding year for the Cardinals, was named National League Manager of the Year by the Baseball Writers Association of America Monday, beating Cincinnati's Pete Rose by one point.

Herzog received 11 first-place votes and 16 points in balloting by the BBWAA panel composed of two writers from each of the 12 league cities. Rose, who took the Reds to a second-place finish in the NL West as a player-manager, had 85 points and 10 first place ballots.

Tom Lasorda of the Los Angeles Dodgers, winner of the first BBWAA manager award two years ago, finished third with 39 points including three first-place votes. Davey Johnson of the New York Mets had four points and Buck Rodgers of the Montreal Expos had two.

Young advances in PRCA

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. — Jerome's Mickey Young advanced a couple of notches, Mattie's Ken Cooper fell back one space and Bub's Rob Juker remained the same in the latest rankings released by the Professional Rodeo Cowboys Association.

Young moved up from 15th place to 13th in the PRCA barrel racing standings, with earnings of $26,786 this season. That's more than $40,000 behind the event leader, Lewis Field of Elk Ridge, Utah.

Cooper slipped from 10th place to 11th in the PRCA's saddle bronc rankings with winnings of $35,287. That's $22,000 behind the event leader, Bud Munroe of Valley Mills, Texas.

Juker remained in 12th place in the PRCA steer wrestling rankings with winnings of $28,550. That's about $40,000 behind the event leader, Marty Melvin of Holabird, S.D.

Defending PRCA all-around champion Dee Pickett of Caldwell remained in third place in the current all-around standings with winnings of $85,234, $10,000 behind the leader, Clay O'Brien Cooper of Gilbert, Ariz.

BSU's Ellis honored

BOISE (AP) — Weber State quarterback Dave Streman and Boise State inside linebacker Jim Ellis have been named the Big Sky Conference offensive and defensive football players of the week, respectively, league Commissioner Ron Stephenson said.

Streman, a 6-foot, 200-pound senior from King City, Calif., set a Weber State total offense record with 546 yards guiding the Wildcats to a 57-29 victory over Montana Saturday.

Streman helped the Wildcats set a new Big Sky and NCAA Division I-AA single-game total offense record with 800 yards. He was 26 of 44 passing for 427 yards and two touchdowns. He also rushed for 118 yards and three more touchdowns.

Ellis, a 6-3, 235-pound junior from Redondo Beach, Calif., was instrumental in Boise State's defense holding Idaho State to 225 yards below its per-game total offense average this season in Saturday's 29-16 victory over the Bengals.

Ellis was credited with nine tackles, including one unassisted stop for a three yard loss. He also returned a pass interception 21 yards for a touchdown.

Chinese gymnasts take lead

MONTREAL (AP) — The Chinese took a six-point lead Monday in the team competition at the World Gymnastics Championships, with Olympian Li Ning atop the individual standings after the compulsory exercises.

However, the judges had yet to see the powerhouse Soviet and Japanese men and the well-regarded Cubans and East Germans, all of whom were scheduled for their compulsory Monday night.

Despite being among the first gymnasts the judges scored, the Chinese amassed 289.45 points for first place after the morning and afternoon sessions. Hungary was second at 283.05, and the United States, despite low scores and the injury of a team member, was third at 281.85.

Li, who won two golds, three silvers and a bronze in Los Angeles, scored a 9.90 on the rings and 9.80 on the floor and parallel bars for a total of 58.30 points out of a possible 60.

Free agency fizzles for NBA's players

By WILLIAM R. BARNARD
The Associated Press

Larry Fleisher, general counsel of the National Basketball Association Players Association, already knows what the focus of negotiations will be when the current collective bargaining agreement between the union and the league expires in 1987.

Pro basketball

"Free agency in the NBA now is ridiculous," said Fleisher, who helped formulate the salary-cap system now in force in the league. "We had 70 free agents this year and had only two real signings, Joe Barry Carroll and Jerry Sichting, during the off-season."

By real signings, Fleisher means that both a player's original team and other teams want a player enough to bid for his services.

Although Carroll stayed with Golden State—the Milwaukee Bucks had wanted him badly enough to sign him to a big-money offer sheet that was worth far more than the Warriors had offered. But the Warriors matched Milwaukee's contract offer because they didn't want to lose him with no compensation.

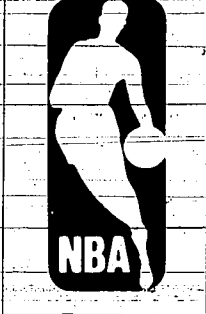

Indiana matched Boston's contract offer with Sichting, then traded him to the Celtics.

On Monday, a free-agent offer sheet—tendered by the New York Knicks to forward Albert King of the New Jersey Nets was ruled legal, the NBA said. The Knicks made the offer Oct. 21. The Nets have until Friday to match it.

Special Master Kingman Brewster, an attorney who lives in London, ruled that the offer sheet does not violate terms of the collective bargaining agreement. The Knicks, limited by the NBA's $2.2 million salary cap, had been trying to determine a way to make an offer to King before tendering it to him last month.

Arbitrator Billy Cunningham, former coach of the Philadelphia 76ers, ruled last month that the Knicks could make available to King only half of the $550,000 salary paid former New York forward Truck Robinson because Robinson, in effect, was retired.

If Robinson was actively seeking a job with another NBA team, the Knicks could have used all the money to sign King. If not, Robinson's salary would have amounted to less than the Nets were offering to King. The Knicks have not disclosed.

the amount of the offer sheet.

I don't really count the movement of free agents like Kyle Macy and Ray Williams because their original teams (Phoenix and Boston) didn't really want them and there was no competitive bidding," Fleisher said.

He said the apparent lack of interest in players such as Utah's Darrell Griffith, San Antonio's Johnny Moore and New Jersey's Mike Gminski tells him that the free-agent system isn't working — and he says he knows why.

"The number of offer sheets has declined dramatically in recent years, despite the increasing number of quality free agents — and it's because these general managers from around the league have conspired to stay away from other teams' free agents," Fleisher said.

Bob Woolf, an agent whose clients include Larry Bird and Griffith, said, "I hate to call it collusion, but there's no doubt there is communication between the clubs, an agreement that only in extreme cases will they get involved with free agents."

But Lewis Schaffel, a former player agent and now executive vice president and chief operating officer of the Nets, denies any conspiracy.

"It is definitely not collusion," Schaffel said. "The NBA is much too competitive; the teams want to win too badly to ever be collusive. Perhaps it's the decrease in offer sheets. It's the increasing number of teams that don't want to give teams too much latitude. Maybe it's that teams don't want to pay what some players are asking."

BOBBY WOLFF

"The reward for a thing well done is to have done it."

Emerson

Kibitzer marveled at how quickly and accurately South conquered today's doubled game. He summed up modestly: "The first hurdle was a tough guess. After that, the hand more or less played itself."

East dropped his jack on West's diamond king, conking West to cash the diamond ace and lead an other diamond.

This uncomfortable start forced an early decision in the trump suit, but South survived, ruffing cautiously with dummy's queen. His two high trumps picked up the outstanding trumps, and all that remained was to pick up the missing club queen.

With nine clubs, it was tempting to play for the drop (right over nine now). However, the bidding and the play thus far suggested another course.

Given that East had started with four cards in spades and diamonds, he would need a seven-card heart suit for the clubs to drop 2-2. And since West pushed on in hearts over four spades, West was most likely to have at least four hearts.

Confidently South led a low club to dummy's king and ran the club jack for a finesse against East. This picked up the club suit and the defenders were held to only two tricks.

It pays to visualize the opposing hands rather than rely upon worn clichés.
