'Star Wars' holds spotlight as summit opens

By MICHAEL PUTZEL
The Associated Press

GENEVA (AP) — Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev joined President Reagan in this chilly seat of neutrality Monday, and on the eve of their summit the superpower chiefs squared off on "Star Wars," the anti-missile program that lies at the heart of tagging efforts to forge a new arms agreement. American and Soviet officials were sharpening their proposals for today's first session between the 74-year-old Reagan and Gorbachev — a man 20 years his junior and still relatively untested in international affairs. Both leaders pledged fidelity to efforts to end the superpower arms race, but discussed sharply divergent views on how to achieve the goal. Gorbachev, standing in a cold, blustery wind under a grim sky, said he came to discuss "primarily the question of what can be done to stop the unprecedented arms race which has unfolded in the world (and) to prevent it from spreading into new spheres." It was an unmistakable reference to Reagan's program to develop a defensive space shield that could bring down nuclear missiles before they reach their targets. Reagan, questioned about the Soviet leader's statement, told reporters, "We both must have the same intentions. If he feels as strongly that way as I do, then we'll end the arms race." But he remained determined to search for a space-based defense, best known as Star Wars despite his dislike for the term, saying, "Just wait'll he hears my proposal." "I think when that's explained to him, he'll find it will help end the arms race," the president told reporters as he posed for pictures with Swiss President Kurt Furgler. Reagan's national security adviser, Robert C. McFarlane, also defended the Star Wars research program, telling reporters "the Soviet-Union has driven us to this" by building up its own offensive nuclear arsenal and conducting a defensive research program of its own. "The Soviet Union, he said, "could not reasonably expect any country to stand by idly and watch" while Moscow pursued a program of its own.

In a new development Monday, a Soviet official traced a possible Kremlin proposal to break the impasse on space weapons by establishing a joint scientific panel for superpower intellectuals to consider "Star Wars" issues together. "The official who spoke on condition of anonymity, said he did not know whether Gorbachev might actually raise such a proposal to Reagan. But the source said that in Gorbachev's pre-summit preparations on Star Wars, "the role of scientists was very important."

Hard-liners carry the day

By BARRY SCHWEID
The Associated Press

GENEVA — President Reagan apparently has come down on the hard-line side in the administration's internal debate over Soviet policy on the eve of his summit talks with Mikhail Gorbachev. "It will be vintage President Reagan," his national security adviser, Robert McFarlane, predicted Monday. He said the president's discussions with Gorbachev, beginning this morning in a lakeside mansion, would be marked by "realism." Back in March 1985, in a speech to the National Association of Evangelicals in Orlando, Fla., Reagan denounced the Soviet system as "an evil empire" and seemed to challenge their system of government. "The rhetoric, reflecting years of tough talk by Reagan about communism and the Kremlin, not only unnerved the Soviets. It also bothered many Americans who fear a collision with Moscow that could spiral into a nuclear disaster. But beginning with a nationally televised speech in January 1984, Reagan adopted a more conciliatory stance. He softened his tone and offered compromises on nuclear weapons reduction proposals to try to get the lagging negotiations in Geneva going. And yet, beginning with the session with Gorbachev before they are joined by the full U.S. and Soviet delegations, Reagan will make it clear that "we disagree with their form of government," McFarlane said. The national security adviser said Reagan was prepared to advise Gorbachev "we do not seek to change the ideology or the structure" of the Soviet government. But, McFarlane said, "We tell it like we see it in the United States." In the maneuvering leading up to the summit, hard-liners in the administration, led by Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger, have sought to guard against concessions to Gorbachev. In a now-famous letter, Weinberger warned the president he would be under "great pressure" from the Soviet leader to commit himself to continued adherence to the 1979 SALT II treaty. The unratified accord, which imposes limits on various U.S. and

WASHINGTON — Defense Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger, in a report that accompanied his controversial letter of advice to President Reagan — urged — a "more forceful" U.S. response to Soviet violations of arms treaties, sources said Monday. "The bottom line is very simple," said one source, summarizing the report, which Weinberger hand-delivered to Reagan last Wednesday. "The Soviets are violating every arms control agreement there is, and Weinberger believes the president must respond forcefully and take an even tougher line." The report consolidated a list of previous Soviet violations alleged by the Defense Department of the Strategic Arms Limitation Treaties and the Anti-Ballistic Missile treaty, while asserting there is no evidence to show the extent of the Soviet violations, said the sources, speaking on condition they not be named. For example, Weinberger informed the president there is no longer any doubt that a new mobile Soviet missile, the SS-25, is a violation of the SALT II agreement, a source said. The United States has been able to measure the rocket's weight, length, diameter and payload and ascertained it cannot be categorized as simply a modernization of the older SS-13 rocket, as the Soviets maintain, the report said. The sources said Weinberger did not offer precise recommendations for American responses, saying that would not be done until after the Geneva summit. But they added it was clear Weinberger would continue to urge increased spending on the president's Strategic Defense Initiative missile defense program and further increases to America's nuclear arsenal, including additional deployments of the MX missile.

Looters, disease plague eruption zone

By MONTE HAYES
The Associated Press

BOGOTA, Colombia — Soldiers are patrolling the town of Armero with orders to shoot looters who roamed the sea of mud and stepped on the injured in their haste to rob the dead, officials said Monday. Five more survivors, including a 7-year-old boy, were found in the Andes farming town that was buried by a mud avalanche after a volcanic eruption last week, according to rescue workers interviewed by the Colombian radio chain RCN. Colombia's health minister said two cases of typhoid fever had been reported. He said the area would be fumigated to kill flies that carry the disease, but the operation would not interfere with rescue work. Officials say about 25,000 people were killed when the Nevado del Ruiz volcano erupted last Wednesday, melting part of its snowcap and sending ing a 15-foot-high wall of mud down the Lagunilla River, burying Armero. The three-mile-high volcano was spewing steam and ash 3,000 to 5,000 feet above its snow-capped cone, according to Darrell Herd of the U.S. Geological Survey team in Manizales, 25 miles west of Nevado del Ruiz. He told The Associated Press a seismograph placed on the volcano recorded 10 shocks Sunday afternoon. Tremors increased in frequency Monday, said a European scientist among about 20 from all over the world. He spoke on condition of anonymity because, he said, the government has told the scientists they may stay in Colombia only if they do not speak with reporters. Juan Tolora, a fireman working with a rescue team, told RCN radio Monday: "We located a little boy buried in the mud who was barely alive." He said he reached the boy by "swimming" through stinking mud that nearly covered his head.

Weak voices crying for help could be heard Monday in outlying areas of Armero, where the ground is higher than the devastated center of town, he said. Juan Castillo, spokesman for the presidential press office, said the rescue operation would continue until there was no doubt all survivors had been found and helped out of the stricken area. The government announced three days of national mourning in memory of the victims of the mudslide. A government decree ordered the Colombian flag to be flown at half-mast from Monday night until Wednesday. Victor Ricard, president of the government emergency committee, told Caracol radio he had reports of looting in the devastated area. He said Col. Rafael Horacio Ruiz was appointed mayor of Armero and its outlying districts, and told to restore order. Mayor Isaac Rodriguez de Lerida, four miles from Armero, said on Caracol that the army "has been given orders to shoot looters."

Magic Valley farmers sue Fed for fouling up credit system

By MARK WARBIS
The Associated Press

BOISE — Four southern Idaho farm families have filed a $10 million lawsuit against the Federal Reserve Board, charging that it has "manipulated and literally fouled up" the nationwide Farm Credit System. Dan Adamson, a Jerome attorney and undeclared candidate for the 1986 Republican nomination in Idaho's 2nd Congressional District, filed the complaint in U.S. District Court in Boise on Monday on behalf of the families, who appeared at an afternoon news conference. Calling the Fed "probably one of the most powerful organizations in the world," Adamson charged it had resulted in an avalanche of farm foreclosures. "They know their actions are disastrous to American agriculture," he said. The Federal Reserve approved policies of easy credit for collateral based on high land values in the late 1970s

Farm credit rescue measure due today

By JIM DRINKARD

WASHINGTON — Farm-state lawmakers on Monday unveiled legislation aimed at rescuing the troubled Farm Credit System, including a $3 billion backup line of credit. The measure, to be introduced today by House Agriculture Committee Chairman Kika de la Garza, D-Texas, and three other senior committee members, calls for stronger regulation of the loosely knit $70 billion lending system and a streamlining of FCS's cumbersome organization. Whether financial aid should be included in any package for the system, whose size would make the nation's third-largest bank if it were a normal commercial institution, has been the subject of hot debate. The Reagan administration has resisted any extension. "The collateral has collapsed; the credit has collapsed," he said. "They literally can't give their farms away right now." System that led directly to his clients facing bankruptcy and foreclosure of their farming operations. "The collateral has collapsed; the credit has collapsed," he said. "They literally can't give their farms away right now." U.S. District Judge Marion Callister on Monday rejected Adamson's request to hear arguments for a temporary restraining order against the foreclosure sale of Warren and Helen Myers' 1,500-acre Jerome farm. Equipment belonging to the brothers' partnership and Mrs. Myers was auctioned on Monday, and a sale of some 1,200 acres of their 1,500-acre farm was scheduled for Tuesday morning. But Callister refused to even hold a hearing on the request to block the sales, and referred action on a request for preliminary injunctions to U.S. District Judge Harold Ryan, who was out of town Monday. "They have been wronged; not just a little-bit but substantially," Adamson said of the loss of the Myers' farm, adding that more lawsuits would be filed in an attempt to recover their property. Besides the Myers' plaintiffs in the suit include Reynold and Fay and Clifford and Mary Ellen Ralphs, who operate the Ralphs Cerd and Elmy Ranches near

From Utah to Mississippi Valley, it's totally disagreeable

By ROGER PETERSON
The Associated Press

Roads were slippery from the Rockies to the Mississippi Valley on Monday as a new storm blew snow across the mountains and the northern Plains and freezing rain hit parts of South Dakota and Minnesota. A winter storm warning was issued for parts of Utah, where up to 15 inches of snow and wind whipping at 30 to 35 mph produced near-blizzard conditions in the northern part of the state, the National Weather Service said. Salt Lake City got 3 inches of snow during a six-hour period, and up to 10 inches of snow was expected in the northwestern part of the state. In Minnesota, dense fog closed the Minneapolis-St. Paul International Airport to all incoming flights after midmorning, disrupting travel for about 2,000 people for up to four hours, airport director Tim Anderson said. And in Oklahoma, severe thunderstorms caused flooding and flipped a house trailer and a car, causing minor injuries to three people.

At least eight weekend traffic deaths were blamed on roads left slick by ice or snow in Utah, Washington state and Massachusetts. Travelers' advisories warned of snow and icy roads were posted over eastern Washington state, California's Sierra Nevada, Idaho, northwestern and southeastern Montana, much of Wyoming and Colorado, northern Arizona, northern Nebraska, South Dakota, southern and eastern North Dakota, and northern Minnesota, with warnings of ongoing rain over the west of Minnesota.

From the upper Great Lakes across the Mississippi Valley from southern Minnesota to northern Arkansas. Western South Dakota reported 1 to 4 inches of snow, with blowing snow limiting visibility in some areas and snow and blowing snow cutting visibility to half a mile in parts of North Dakota. Freezing drizzle glazed roads along Colorado's northern foothills and snow fell over the mountains. Travelers in northwestern North Dakota were warned of wind chill factors reaching 30 to 45 degrees below zero during the morning. An area of below-zero temperatures chilled part of Montana and Cut Bank, near the Canadian border, hit 7 degrees below zero. Gusts northerly winds from the northern Rockies to the northern Plains lowered the wind chill to between minus 10 and 30 below in some parts. At noon, the wind chill plummeted to 41 below zero at Devils Lake, N.D.

Hurricane threatening Florida

MIAMI (AP) — People flocked out of the vulnerable Florida Keys on Monday and Gov. Bob Graham declared a state of emergency in South Florida as Hurricane Kate churned across tiny Bahamian islands. Boaters gathering to escape winter in the North were told to head for safe inland harbors, and residents of mobile homes and beachfront condominiums were urged to find more secure shelter.

"Certainly we ought to be worried," said Neil Frank, director of the National Hurricane Center. "This isn't the big awesome kind of storm we see in September, but it's a very respectable hurricane."

Tax shelter crackdown killed

WASHINGTON (AP) — A panel of the House Ways and Means Committee voted unanimously Monday to water down President Reagan's proposed limitation on interest deductions and to kill a plan for cracking down on abusive real estate tax shelters. One provision intended to by the task force would permit a couple to deduct interest on two home mortgages plus $20,000 plus an amount equal to investment income.

"I was just outgunned by a real estate lobby that knows no limit to its greed," said Rep. Fortney Starks, D-Calif., chairman of the task force, who favored tougher restrictions. He said the changes recommended by the task force, made up of Ways and Means Committee members, would produce only minimal reductions in abusive shelters.

Riots erupt in 3 Greek cities

ATHENS, Greece (AP) — Police shot and killed a 15-year-old boy who hurled fire bombs at a police bus Monday and rioters rampaged through the streets of three Greek cities in response.

Thirty-eight people, including 20 policemen, were reported injured in Athens alone. Students and self-proclaimed anarchists threw fire bombs at banks and stores in Athens, Salonica and Xanthi. The interior minister and his deputy submitted their resignations, but Prime Minister Andreas Papandreu ordered them to stay on.

Police called it the most rioting in years in the capital, and at least 70 people were arrested. It presented Papandreu with the worst domestic problem since his Socialist government came to power in October 1981.

Order members gave up rescue

SEATTLE (AP) — Members of the Order searching in the Southwest for a new base of operations considered racing back north to rescue their leader, Robert Mathews, when he was surrounded by federal agents in his fatal last stand, a former member of the group testified Monday.

Mark Franklin Jones, 27, of Tuscaloosa, Ala., also told how he and other members of the sect signed a "declaration of war" against the federal government in the group's last day, and how other members dropped hints about murders and other crimes they allegedly had committed.

Today's weather

Partly cloudy, chance of snow showers

Twin Falls, Burley, Rupert, Jerome and Gooding. Partly cloudy today. A slight chance of snow showers. Highs near 30. Lows tonight 19 to 15. Winds 5 to 15 mph. Wednesday: cloudy with occasional snow. Highs near 30.

Camas Prairie, Hailey and the Lower Wood River Valley. Partly cloudy today. A slight chance of snow showers. Highs 25 to 30. Lows tonight 20 to 15 above. Wednesday, cloudy with occasional snow.

Northern Utah and Nevada: Utah — Variable clouds today with widely scattered snow showers. Partly cloudy Wednesday with a few snow showers mainly over the mountains. Continued cold. Lows tonight 15 to 25. Highs in the 30s to 40s.

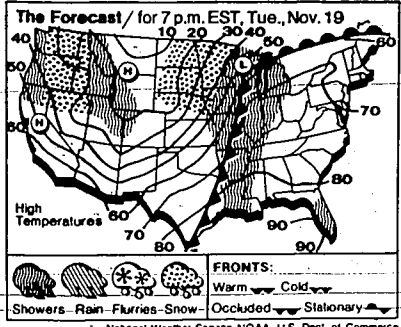

Nevada — Partly sunny today followed by increasing clouds spreading from the west late today. A chance of snow tonight, then occasional snow spreading over the area Wednesday. Lows tonight mid-teens to mid-20s. Highs today and Wednesday mostly 30 to 40.

Synopsis: Idaho's skies ranged from partly cloudy in the southwest to cloudy over the north and the southeast Monday. Snow fell from the Magic Valley eastward and a few stations reported snow in the north.

Along with the snow, winds were drifting strong in the Magic Valley, where wind chill factors were at 10 to 20 degrees below zero, and in the Upper Snake River Valley. The snow and blowing snow in the Twin Falls area caused schools to be let out early. Afternoon temperatures remained on the cool side with temperatures ranging from the low 20s into the 30s. The warmest temperature reported was at Mountain Home Air Force Base with 33 degrees.

The highest temperature in the state Monday was 41 degrees in Lowell, while Fairfield recorded the low of 6 degrees. The extended outlook for Southern Idaho, Thursday, Saturday, calls for continued cold. Snow likely Thursday and Friday, turning dry on Saturday. Highs up to 20s to upper 20s. Lows mid-teens to mid-20s.

Elsewhere in the nation Monday, a high of 89 degrees was reported at Laredo, Texas. The low was 7 degrees below zero at Cut Bank, Mont.

Reagan

Continued from Page A1 Soviet nuclear weapons, is highly controversial. Reagan was against it while campaigning for the presidency. He has sent Congress two reports accusing the Soviets of violating it and other similar agreements with the United States. But, in June, Reagan decided to maintain the U.S. policy of not undercutting the agreement, provided the Soviets behaved.

The leaking of Weinberger's letter may have served its purpose. Prospects for a joint statement by Reagan and Gorbachev to live up to the treaty have dwindled. "It's a hot potato," said a U.S. official. "We can't touch it." And Reagan is entering the summit talks with new skepticism about the meetings with Soviet leaders conducted by his predecessors in the White House. McFarlane noted that the 1967 Glassboro, N.J., summit involving President Lyndon Johnson and Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin was followed a year later by the Soviet invasion of Czechoslovakia. He also said the summit of the mid-1970s, while producing major U.S.-Soviet arms control agreements, were followed by relentless Soviet military build-ups.

Credit

Continued from Page A1 fort at financial aid arguing that the system has untapped resources it can use.

The system, the nation's largest farm lender, is suffering along with the rest of the agriculture sector from the most serious rural depression in decades. Farmhand values — the collateral for the bulk of the system's loans — have plummeted up to 50 percent over the past five years in the hardest hit areas of the Midwest.

System officials report that the 37 cooperatively owned banks will together lose $2.5 billion this year, with further losses expected in 1986 and 1987. Such losses would soon eat up everything the system has set aside as a buffer against bad loans, the system says.

The system — and its regulatory agency, the Farm Credit Administration, have asked Congress for a line of credit of up to $6 billion to tide it over the next three years.

Fed

Continued from Page A1 Rockland, and Gerald and Ramona Hansen, who operate the Diamond E Dairy near Plainville. All the plaintiffs said they have filed for relief under federal bankruptcy statutes and face foreclosure. They said lenders have rejected attempts over the past two years to negotiate a buyout of their debts ranging from $100,000 to $1.5 million with equity built up in their farms.

relieving local banks of the burden of such non-performing loans.

The bill co-sponsored by Reps. Ed Jones, D-Tenn., Edward Madigan, R-Ill., and Tom Coleman, R-Mo., would provide the financial help only if the system's regulators certify that FCS has done everything it reasonably can to help itself. Whether the aid is ultimately provided would be up to the secretary of the Treasury.

In a statement, de la Garza said administration and system witnesses will be asked to testify on the bill at a hearing on Thursday. Two features of the bill, those revamping the system's organization and the powers of its regulators, already have been endorsed in some form by all sides.

Self-help features in the Agriculture Committee members' proposal would provide for a central pool of readily available financing to be used for quick aid to ailing system institutions. Although the system now operates on a shared-loss principle, in practice it has been slow to shift financial resources to banks in need because clearance has been needed from its many banks' local governing boards.

A new system component, the Farm Credit Capital Corporation, would make the financial help available as well as serving as a bookkeeping warehouse for bad loans and foreclosed property.

The revamped agency would have new powers of examination, would require fully audited annual reports of each system institution and would be able to force a halt to any practices it regarded as unsound.

Under the proposal, the Farm Credit Administration would be reorganized and strengthened, giving it more of an "arm's-length" regulatory role. The agency would be operated by a full-time, presidentially appointed five-member board instead of the current system of a part-time board selecting a governor who runs FCA.

The revamped agency would have new powers of examination, would require fully audited annual reports of each system institution and would be able to force a halt to any practices it regarded as unsound.

Auto parts charges name pair

POCATELLO (AP) — The owner of Golden West Auto in Chubbuck and his wife have been arrested on a federal warrant charging them with conspiracy and trafficking in and altering identification numbers of stolen auto parts.

Earl and Peggy Ellis were arrested at 8:30 a.m. Monday, Deputy U.S. Attorney Dan Hawkey said at a news conference in Pocatello. Hawkey said the arrests came in conjunction with a search of the Chubbuck dealership and the couple's home.

A task force of officers from city, county, state and federal law enforcement agencies, including the FBI and the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms, converged on the auto dealership and residence Monday morning, Hawkey said.

A complete search for evidence on the couple's property was expected to take about a week, he said.

Land board eases mining rules

BOISE (AP) — The state Land Board has approved new regulations governing riverbed mineral leasing that ease requirements for recreational miners.

The rules, endorsed Monday, will become effective Dec. 2. They reduce the minimum royalty payment to the state for recreational miners from $500 to $340 and cut the bonding requirement from $5,000 to $1,000.

In addition, the new rules no longer contain the prohibition against owning more than one riverbed lease, substituting a regulation allowing multiple lease ownership but limiting the life of riverbed leases to five years. No individual lease can exceed one river-mile on any stream.

In other action, the board revived its plan to revamp state regulations on the sale of cedar poles following agreement between various segments of the industry on a proposal setting sales and quality standards.

Utah collision injures Idahoan

MONTICELLO, Utah (AP) — A Colorado man was killed and his passenger critically injured when their car slid out of control on a slushy road near Monticello, authorities said.

San Juan County Sheriff's Deputy Steve Stovall said Steven Duape Tate, 28, of Grand Junction, died instantly when his northbound car slid into the path of another vehicle and was hit broadside.

The other driver, Wayne Ira Garner, 40, of Boise, Idaho, suffered cuts, bruises and a fractured left arm and was treated and released from San Juan County Hospital, said Utah Highway Patrol Trooper Don Killgrew.

The accident occurred about 5:12 p.m. Sunday about six miles north of Monticello.

Ranks of ISU pharmacy grads dwindle

POCATELLO (AP) — Mounting adverse publicity about the Idaho State University Pharmacy School is being blamed for a drastic decline in the number of graduates the school has turned out over the past four years.

New state Board of Education figures show the number of students graduating from the beleaguered pharmacy school, once considered among the best in the nation, dropping over 60 percent from 1981 to 1985. Only 22 students graduated last spring, compared to 56 four years earlier.

Pharmacy Dean Ira Hillyard said Monday the decline in graduates has been the result of "extensive publicity about the program's troubles."

Facing loss of accreditation because of what university officials claim have been years of financial neglect, the Pharmacy School has been pressing state officials for an infusion of cash to upgrade facilities to preserve its reputation.

That campaign, focusing on the school's gloomy future prospects without additional resources, "had to be made to force the Legislature to think of us as a school needing help," Hillyard admitted, "but it tends to create an environment which is not good for recruiting."

While enrollment in the pharmacy program at the Pocatello university has not declined as drastically as the number of graduates, ISU spokesman Ron Hagerman conceded that there has been a reduction there as well.

Hillyard said enrollment has returned the levels of the 1970s before national programs "made it easy for students to get into the health professions."

In March, the state Board of Education authorized $483,000 for the ISU pharmacy program to head off threatened loss of accreditation and the Legislature approved $200,000 for initial work on a new $9 million pharmacy building.

Last month, however, the Permanent Building Fund Advisory Council stopped further spending for the building, citing the failure of the school to raise any significant amount of money to help finance the project. State Public Works Director Brian Chase said the decision "was a result of what appeared to be a lack of support for the pharmacy school."

The ISU Pharmacy School, however, was not the "only" program to suffer a significant decline.

EPA extends water standards comment time

WASHINGTON (AP) — At the urging of a number of Idaho officials, the Environmental Protection Agency has agreed to extend the public comment period for proposed water-quality standards in the state until Jan. 17, 1986.

It was to expire on Monday.

The federal agency also has assured Idaho's congressional delegation that it will not promulgate any water-quality regulations until at least next March.

In letters to EPA Administrator Lee Thomas, Idaho's congressmen and senators asked the agency to extend the comment period through March 1.

However, they said the extension announced Monday would give the Legislature time to act on a compromise proposal to set dissolved oxygen levels in water below Idaho dams between a more stringent EPA proposal and current state standards.

The dispute centers on the American Falls Dam on the Snake River. The EPA and legislative leaders have been at odds for years on how much dissolved oxygen should be required downstream from the dam to protect fish. Turbines in the dam's powers plant eliminate most oxygen from water that passes through them.

The Legislature in 1980 lowered the state's minimum dissolved oxygen level for rivers below hydroelectric dams to 5 parts per million after Idaho Power Co. and Irrigation Districts that own space in American Falls Reservoir said the previous standard of 6 ppm was too costly to maintain.

The EPA has proposed raising the dissolved oxygen level to 6.5 ppm for a 30-day average.

Regular summits would lessen danger

President Reagan, who will meet Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev today in Geneva, has said that he will propose that such summit gatherings be held annually.

The roller-coaster ride of up-down-up public expectations during the past few weeks is dramatic evidence of why annual summits would be a good idea.

U.S.-Soviet summit meetings have been held 14 times in the last 42 years, which is long enough for us to know that, while such face-to-face encounters are worthwhile, their sporadic timing itself creates problems.

One of the best things about summit meetings is that they force leaders of the two countries to concentrate their attention on the issues that divide them. This is no small matter when you consider that both the American and the Soviet political systems are dominated by domestic concerns, and that neither Reagan nor Gorbachev normally has much time to think much about U.S.-Soviet relations and the arcane complexities of arms control.

Experience suggests that summits succeed best when careful negotiations have already created the basis for agreement. Where the two sides are still far apart, as appears to be the case this week, there is a danger of an angry blowup by one side or the other, leaving relations in a more dangerous state than before.

However, there is something to be said for holding summits even when the prospects for concrete accomplishment are dim. In the first place, a fearful world demands it.

Unfortunately, it is extremely difficult to avoid the buildup of exaggerated, unrealistic expectations when summits are special occasions. When the results turn out to be modest, there is a tendency to judge the summit a failure — and the backlash of public disappointment makes the rational management of U.S.-Soviet relations that much more difficult.

Regular, preferably annual, summits would help. The governments would be able to concentrate more on serious business and less on the show-biz, propaganda maneuvering for advantage. If the great powers could get into the habit of holding regular summits whether the political weather was fair or foul, the problem of excessive expectations would be diminished — and with it the dangers associated with summits that are perceived as unsuccessful.

Power of purse now battling hormones

BOSTON — The whole thing started when Marlin Schneider saw this poster of a pregnant boy. If boys get pregnant, it suggested, they'd be a lot more careful.

That crystallized it for Schneider, a father of two daughters and a Wisconsin state legislator sometimes known as Sneezy. Marlin Schneider was on a study committee that had pro-life and pro-choice people actually working together on legislation that would deal with teen-age pregnancy.

The problem that had been bugging Schneider was, "How do we get the attention of boys and boys' families for their responsibility?" Since impregnating them was out of the question, Schneider came up with another plan: "It occurred to me that we can impact on boys by making their parents financially responsible for their child's offspring."

"After all," said Schneider in an analogy that is more widespread in Wisconsin these days than cheese, "if a neighbor's son comes over to my home and breaks my window his parents are liable, but if he pays a visit and my daughter gets pregnant there's no liability at all."

Out of one poster and one analogy dripping with Freudian symbolism came the grandparent liability law. It is just a small part of a comprehensive and was signed last week. The law appropriates money for sex education and repeals restrictions on ads and sales of contraceptives. But it is the small part that's gotten the biggest notice.

Wisconsin has made grandparents liable for the costs of the offspring of their own under-age offspring. They have shifted the financial burden, when possible, from the state to the normally. They have also shifted the burden, normally carried by the girls' parents, to be equally shared by the boys' parents.

Ellen Goodman

The Wisconsin message is that if parents of both sons and daughters are not responsible before the fact, they'll be responsible afterwards.

This threat to the parents' pocketbook is designed to get them to take a stronger role in advising young people about sex and its consequences.

Now there is, said one supporter, "a fiscal incentive to be given to children. They believe that young people, in turn, will be more cautious about financially burdening their parents."

The response to this grandparent liability law has been predictably and wildly ambivalent. Judy Sells, the head of Wisconsin's Planned Parenthood, talked to boys who viewed it favorably: "They told me in a serious fashion, they want to be held accountable — accountable to their parents."

Many of the parents, on the other hand, have been appalled. Some are insulted at the notion that they need a "fiscal incentive" to talk to their children. Others live day to day, trying to keep account of these teens who say they want to be accountable. They don't agree that parents should be punished for the sins, or at least the misjudgments, of their nearly adult children.

It comes down to a question of just how independent the teen-agers are who live in this no-man's-land between childhood and adulthood. A question of how much power and responsibility in turn belong to the elders who try and steer them through.

Schneider's original analogy, charming as it is, doesn't always hold up. A parent may be liable if a son's baseball goes through a neighbor's window, but if the same son mugs that neighbor, the boy goes to reform school, not the dad.

The average 14- or 15-year-old is biologically an adult. He doesn't need a parent's permission to have sex. She can get pregnant despite a family veto.

No parent can legally force a daughter, let alone a daughter-out-law, to have an abortion. Yet that same parent can be forced to pay for the grandchild until their son or daughter is 18. The purse can wield too much power. The parent and pro-choice people are concerned about the pressure from his and her parents that may be brought to bear on a pregnant girl to have an abortion.

The intentions of this law are honorable. To prevent pregnancy, to increase family dialogue, to get boys' families involved. But if prevention fails, the results may be disastrous.

The law to foster family communication may turn into a battle between Hatfields and McCoys.

The battle to make teens responsible may just leave their elders responsible. If that happens, the legislators in Wisconsin better dash out and find themselves one great poster boy. Color him pregnant.

Ellen Goodman writes for The Boston Globe.

Reagan's judicial appointments follow predecessors' course

WASHINGTON — All kinds of people are having conviction fits these days at President Reagan's "shaping" or "revolutionizing" the federal judiciary.

If Walter Mondale had been elected president, I might be having conviction fits too. So goes the ball game.

At the last count, Reagan had named 223 judges to the district and circuit benches. Eighty-five slots are vacant. Before he goes out of office in 1989, Reagan will have nominated more than half of the 761 judges now authorized. In recent years only Franklin Roosevelt and Dwight Eisenhower have passed the 50 percent mark.

No question about it, Reagan has sought to select nominees who qualify as conservatives. Overwhelmingly his choices are white, male, Republican and well-to-do — and in the judgment of the American Bar Association, most of them are highly qualified. He deliberately has reached for young candidates. "We want them around after we're gone," says White House counsel Fred Felding.

Among the choices, at the time of their appointment: Richard Posner, 79; Circuit, 45; Frank Easterbrook, 7th Circuit, 36; J. Harvie Wilkinson, 4th Circuit, 37; Edith Jones, 5th Circuit, 36. The controversialist Alex Kozinski, who just won his confirmation to the 9th Circuit, is 34.

That prospect of longevity gives me great comfort; it gives Norman Lear great pain. Lear has founded something called "People for the American Way," the better to oppose judicial nominees who do not think the American way, i.e., who do not think the way Norman Lear thinks. There's tolerance for you. Other critics are yelping. Harvard Professor Alan Dershowitz says Reagan's judicial agenda is "to set back civil liberties." Professor Robert Rowland of the University of Kansas says "the fit is on — these guys are very politicized." The liberals who run the Alliance for Justice and the American Civil Liberties Union are filled with gloom and consternation. This for Common Cause!

Let us be honest about these things. "Most presidents name justices who, they think, will vote the way they would vote." Justice William O. Douglas once observed, "That is what I would do were I president." Reagan is following precisely the same course pursued in other years and other administrations by George Washington, Woodrow Wilson, Franklin Roosevelt, Lyndon Johnson and Jimmy Carter.

Look at the record. In his first term, Reagan named 88 district judges of whom 97.1 percent were Republicans. Carter's 202 judges were 94.1 percent Democrats. Johnson's 122 choices were 94.3 percent Democrats. The percentages are not significantly different. Carter picked such reliable liberals as Abner Mikva and William Bradford Huie to fill the seats on the District of Columbia; Reagan has chosen such staunch conservatives as Robert Bork and Antonia Scalia.

This is the way the system is supposed to work. In greater or lesser degree, every president has sought to influence the ideological tilt of the federal courts. Some presidents have been greatly disappointed: Eisenhower named Earl Warren and William Brennan to the Supreme Court, and lived to rue his nominations as the dumbest thing he ever did. Richard Nixon chose Harry Blackmun, and Blackmun wrote for the high court in the great pro-abortion case of 1973. You can't win 'em all.

Reagan intends to win on the big constitutional issues that come before the federal courts over the next 20 to 30 years. In this determination he is following the high example of Franklin Roosevelt, a president much revered by the likes of Norman Lear, Roosevelt put Hugo Black, William Douglas and Felix Frankfurter on the Supreme Court. Black stayed on the court for 26 years after FDR's death in 1945. Douglas for 30 years, Frankfurter for 17 years. Sauce for the goose is sauce for the gander.

It all boils down to another proverb, which teaches that much depends upon whose ox is gored. If a future "Reagan Court" one day should reverse on permissive abortion, the Harvard professors and the folks at Common Cause will be howling of "judicial activism."

But it was judicial activism that gave us Roe v. Wade in the first place. Their activism is my judicial restraint, and my restraint is their activism. They should have elected Mondale. But they didn't.

James Kilpatrick writes his column, "A Conservative View," from Washington.

Letters/ 'Prison will not take your husband's life away'

An unimaginable agony

I would like to take this opportunity to thank Judge Meel for being so conscientious in his sentencing of Richard Lee and also K. Ellen Baxter for sticking to maximum sentences in this case. The case being, of course, the one in which Mr. Lee was convicted of killing my mother, Margaret Lyons, and my uncle, Fred Barrett. The length of the sentence is not enough to make up for the years of life my mother and my uncle would have enjoyed had Mr. Lee not been on the road drunk, that morning, but maybe it's enough to make him and people like him realize that drinking and driving don't mix. You cannot imagine the agony we have been through, having now lost both our father and mother within four months of each other. You also cannot imagine the pain when my four-year-old daughter talked to their "Gram" and what they used to do, always ending their tale with, "But she's dead now", or the sorrow when we talk about "Gram" and my two-year-old niece looks blank.

My mother was "Gram" though and through and I know it would break her heart if she could see and hear her granddaughters.

She loved them with everything she had and was so excited about watching them grow up. She won't now, and they will miss all that love and wisdom that comes from a Gram.

I will say this to Mrs. Lee, prison will not take your husband's life away; only death can do that, and it may really bring it back to him and then to you, because hopefully alcohol won't be his first love anymore.

Maybe without it, you both can live full happy lives. I wish it for you and hope you never have to go through what we have. You said in your letter to the editor, Mr. Lee, that alcoholism is a disease just like cancer and heart disease, but by themselves, they do not take the lives of innocent people.

You also said that alcohol is the number one killer of American people today and I agree.

But just remember, overcoming your problem doesn't make you exempt from becoming a victim of it; just like my mother and my uncle did.

In closing, I can only pray that Mr. Lee will turn his life around: if he will become a productive person after his years in prison, and I must add, Mrs. Lee, even if he serves the entire 14 years, it's still a lot less than eternity and you will both still be young enough to have a family, then maybe we can get a small measure of comfort that my mother did not die totally in vain.

Adding a story may help

I understood that when the judicial building was built, it was done so with the thought that in the future a second floor would be added as the new jail.

Has our administration forgotten this, or must we to remind the taxpayers? I'm sure it would be more cost efficient to do this.

With the pending lawsuits against the county most people realize the need is there but — $2.2 million?

Why don't we look into this and see if it is possible if that is what was originally planned. With changes in administration perhaps this was over looked through the years. We as taxpayers have rights as well as the ones in jail; most of our rights are to keep paying higher taxes to two and a half times their time? MRS. A. R. EGGERS

Court permits medical suit fee limits

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court, having earlier allowed states to limit how much money people may win in medical malpractice suits, ruled Monday that caps also will be placed on the fees that winning lawyers collect in such cases.

By a 7-2 vote, the court let stand a 1975 California law that imposes such lawyer-fee limits. The law was challenged as an infringement of free-speech rights on grounds it bars people who sue for medical malpractice from spending as they wish for constitutionally protected advocacy.

On Oct. 15, the Supreme Court allowed California to impose a $250,000 limit on the amount a victim of medical malpractice may recover for non-economic losses.

The court, as it had in the earlier case, ruled Monday that the appeal did not present "a substantial federal question."

Justice William J. Brennan and Byron R. White dissented.

Both California laws were passed as by the state Legislature in response to the medical malpractice insurance crisis of the 1970s.

In other matters Monday, the court:

- Ruled unanimously against a convicted Arkansas murderer who challenged his guilty plea after learning he was misinformed by his lawyer as to when he would be eligible for parole.

- Ruled in a case from Philadelphia that federal judges generally may not force the federal government to pay for the transfer of state prison inmates to federal court proceedings.
- Allowed Indiana's current redistricting plan to be used for the state's 1986 legislative elections, presumably unless a constitutional challenge now pending before the justices succeeds.

- Agreed to decide in a Texas case the validity of federal laws that cut food-stamp costs by limiting eligibility for family members who live together but may maintain separate households under the same roof.

- Said it will consider throwing out a lawsuit by a Chippewa Indian woman who claims the federal government owes her for 20 acres of Minnesota land taken 31 years ago.

The medical malpractice law acted on Monday states that a lawyer's contingency-fee payment may not exceed certain percentages.

It allows a 40 percent fee for the first $50,000 recovered by a plaintiff; one-third of the next $50,000; 25 percent of the next $100,000; and 10 percent of any additional amount over $200,000.

Frank and Yvonne Roa sued the Lodi Medical Group and Dr. Gordon B. Roget in San Joaquin County over alleged medical malpractice in treatment and care during the birth of their son, Frank Joseph Roa.

The suit was settled before trial when the defendants agreed to pay $495,000 to the child and $5,000 to the parents.

Under California law, lawyer fees may be spent from a lawsuit recovery obtained in settlement of a child's claim only if a court approves. The Roas thus asked permission to pay their lawyer 25 percent of their son's recovery — about $120,000.

The California Supreme Court upheld the law by a 4-3 vote.

INS demotion suggested

WASHINGTON (AP) — The No. 2 official of the Immigration and Naturalization Service moved Monday to demote and suspend without pay two Border Patrol agents involved in the premature return of a would-be Soviet defector to his ship.

Associate Commissioner Thomas C. Ferguson proposed the discipline for two unidentified agents in the New Orleans, La., area sector and also proposed a letter of reprimand for a supervisor there.

Under Civil Service rules, those proposed for punishment will have 10 days to respond. Alan C. Nelson, commissioner of the Immigration and Naturalization Service, would make the final decision.

Homeless woman opens fire

NEW YORK (AP) — A homeless woman who claimed to be a partner of the Deak-Perera currency exchange walked into its headquarters Monday and opened fire, killing a receptionist and the company's 80-year-old chairman, police said.

The shooting occurred about 9:30 a.m. MDT at the 21st-floor Lower Manhattan offices of the company, the nation's largest non-bank dealer in currency and precious metals now involved in bankruptcy proceedings.

Lois Lang, 44, walked up to receptionist Frances Lauder, 56, and shot twice, police Capt. William Quigley said. One bullet hit the wall, and the other went through Ms. Lauder's head.

Brennan: 'Unanimity is not itself judicial virtue'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Supreme Court Justice William J. Brennan, for years the high court's most prolific dissenter, told a law school audience Monday "unanimity is not in itself a judicial virtue."

He defended his "essentially immutable position" — not shared by a court majority — that capital punishment is always unconstitutional.

Brennan, 79, was appointed as a justice in 1956 by President Eisenhower. He is the court's senior member and its leading liberal.

A stalwart of the court's liberal majority during the 1960s, Brennan has more often become a dissenter to the nation's more conservative cast of justices in the 1970s and 1980s.

In the court's 1984-85 term, he dissented from 38 of 139 signed opinions — more than any other court member.

Over the past decade, no justice has cast as many dissenting votes or led in dissents cast for a particular court term as many times as Brennan.

In remarks prepared for delivery at a Hastings College of Law ceremony in San Francisco, Brennan said, "At the heart of this function is the critical recognition that vigorous debate improves the final product by forcing the prevailing side to deal with the hardest questions urged by the losing side."

He added, "Dissents contribute to the integrity of the process, not only by directing attention to perceived difficulties... but... also by contributing to the marketplace of competing ideas."

Copies of Brennan's speech were released by his office here.

About his views on the death penalty, Brennan said, "For me, the fatal constitutional infirmity of capital punishment is that it treats members of the human race as non-humans, as objects to be toyed with and discarded... It is thus inconsistent with the fundamental premise of the Constitution, that even the most-base criminal remains a human being."

Noting that he has repeated his opposition to the death penalty in numerous dissenting opinions, Brennan said, "This type of dissent constitutes a statement by a judge as an individual. Here I draw the line."

Sakharov relatives try to phone couple

NEWTON, Mass. (AP) — Relatives of Soviet dissident Andrei Sakharov and his wife, Yelena Bonner, tried unsuccessfully twice Monday to reach the exiled couple by telephone to get details of Mrs. Bonner's scheduled trip to the West.

Efrem Yankelevich, Mrs. Bonner's son-in-law, said he was concerned that neither call to the Soviet city of Gorky went through, but said the family would try again today.

"If she (Mrs. Bonner) doesn't show up then, it might mean she should have left the U.S.S.R. before the summit," he said. "We will not jump to conclusions until tomorrow."

Mrs. Bonner, 62, confirmed in a Nov. 4 telephone conversation with her relatives that she had been given permission to leave the Soviet Union for three months. It was the first time in 18 months she had spoken with her family here. The conversation was the first time relatives here through, but said the family would try again today.

First lawsuit shot fired at intrauterine device

BALTIMORE (AP) — The first major legal battle over the nation's most widely used intrauterine contraceptive device began Monday, with an attorney telling jurors that G.D. Searle & Co. rushed the Copper 7 to market on the basis of a "fatally flawed" study.

The 17 plaintiffs, women from all parts of the country, blame the device for pelvic inflammations, sterility and other gynecological problems. They are seeking unspecified damages.

In an emotional opening to the federal court trial, eight of the women were introduced from their front row seats as their attorney explained the medical problems he said they suffered from using the IUD.

Several wept after they sat down. The suit claims Searle was negligent, failed to adequately warn women of the IUD's dangers, knowingly withheld information about its risk, and breached an expressed warranty about its safety.

In opening arguments, Searle's attorney, Paul F. Strain, countered that the Copper 7 has "the overwhelming endorsement of the American medical community" and is prescribed a million times a year.

In the first stage of the trial, during which none of the 17 women will be called to testify, the plaintiffs will have to prove that the Copper 7 does cause the kind of problems alleged.

Digging for airmen set to begin

HANOI, Vietnam (AP) — Village children lined the road Monday and watched a gun-chewing U.S. soldier drive a tractor to the excavation site at Yen Thuong village on the outskirts of Hanoi, where remains of U.S. airmen may be buried. In an unprecedented joint search, American and Vietnamese military men are to begin digging today for remains of the airmen, who the Vietnamese say bombed their cities 13 years ago.

The tractor, water pumps, metal detectors and other equipment arrived Monday aboard a U.S. Air Force C-141 transport plane. Air Force Capt. Virginia Pribly, spokeswoman for the U.S. team, said a short ceremony today would mark the start if the dig. She said U.S. experts would use metal detectors to determine where and how far to dig. After the tractor clears the upper layer of earth, workers with hand shovels will probe for what the Vietnamese say may be the wreckage of a B-52 and the remains of four crew members, she said.

Pope Paul to tour Indian cities

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope John Paul II will visit 14 cities in India during a 10-day trip in February, the Vatican announced Monday.

The Feb. 1-10 trip will be John Paul's 29th foreign tour. The Vatican said the pope will arrive in New Delhi, the capital, and then go on to Ranchi and Shillong. He will spend Feb. 4 and 5 in Calcutta and then travel to Madras and Mangalore.

John Paul is scheduled to spend Feb. 6 and 7 in Goa, the former Portuguese colony that is a center of Roman Catholicism in India. About 82 percent of India's 750 million people are Hindus. About 1.5 percent, or 12.5 million, are Roman Catholics.

Peres urges Israeli/Soviet ties

JERUSALEM (AP) — Prime Minister Shimon Peres urged Moscow on Monday to restore relations with Israel, but he was quoted as telling a Parliament committee that free emigration of Jews from the Soviet Union is more important.

Journalists who were briefed by members said Peres also told the Foreign Affairs and Defense Committee the government would allow the Soviet Union a role in Middle East peace negotiations if it permitted Jews to emigrate.

"If they agree to emigration, we shall waive our objection to their taking part in an international peace conference on the Middle East," the prime minister was quoted as saying.

Story of boy wins French award

PARIS (AP) — Yann Queffelec, author of "Les Noces Barbares" (Barbaric Wedding), a tale of a young boy hated by his mother, on Monday received the Goncourt Prize, France's most prestigious book award.

The Renaudot Prize, the second most coveted literary award, went to Raphaelle Billetdoux for "Mes Nuits Sans Plus Belle Que Vos Jours" (My Nights Are More Beautiful than Your Days). Queffelec, a 36-year-old Paris literary critic, was honored for his tale of Ludovic and his mother Nicole, a baker's daughter who conceived him when she was the victim of a gang rape.

The Goncourt carries a stipend of 50 francs ($6.50), the same amount as when the prize was founded in 1930. But the award usually assures the sale of about 400,000 additional copies of a book. Although generally reserved for first novels, this year's Renaudot went to Ms. Billetdoux for her fifth novel.

5 accused hijackers get arms sentence

GENOA, Italy (AP) — Four Palestinians accused of hijacking the Achille Lauro cruise ship were convicted with a fifth man Monday on charges of illegal possession of arms and explosives.

Three of the defendants said in written statements read in court that slides to PLO official Mohammed Abbas delivered the weapons used in the hijacking. Abbas has denied this.

The court ordered prison terms ranging from four to nine years for the five men convicted Monday. They face trial at a later date on charges of kidnapping and of murdering an American passenger aboard the Italian cruise liner during the Oct. 7 ordeal.

The United States has accused Abbas of masterminding the hijacking.

The five men after hearing testimony in the morning. There was no jury. The judges deliberated for two hours and 20 minutes before announcing the verdicts.

The five defendants, in handcuffs and blue jeans, were brought into the gymnasium-sized courtroom and divided among three metal-barred cages.

They greeted their sentences with an outburst of pro-Palestinian chants.

"We will defend with our blood and soul our country," they chanted in Arabic while waving victory signs through the bars of their cages.

The stiffest sentence of nine years plus a fine of 3 million lire (about $1,700) was given to Mohammed Issa Abbas, identified previously as Mohammed Kalaf, who was arrested in Genoa carrying false passports before the Italian ship began its Mediterranean cruise.

Abbas said in court that he was a distant cousin of Mohammed Abbas, leader of the Palestine Liberation Front, one of the smallest and most radical of the factions comprising the Palestine Liberation Organization.

Prosecutor Luigi Carlì stopped short of naming the person who allegedly planned the hijack, but he repeatedly referred to defendant Mohammed Issa Abbas as "a relative of the mastermind."

Carlì asked for sentences ranging from 4½ to 9 years. The charges carried a maximum of 12 years imprisonment.

Envoy returns to Beirut from U.S.

LONDON (AP) — Terry Waite, the Archbishop of Canterbury's special envoy, was hastening back to Lebanon on Monday night to meet again with kidnappers of four American hostages after conferring with U.S. administration officials.

Waite's departure less than 24 hours after he returned from Beirut buoyed cautious hope for a breakthrough in the hostage crisis.

A brief statement Monday afternoon from Lambeth Palace, London residence of Archbishop Robert Runcie, spiritual head of the Anglican Church, said only that Waite was leaving Monday night via Paris and would fly on to Beirut Tuesday morning.

It was not known whether Waite was returning with any specific offer to the kidnappers. The Reagan administration has said it would not negotiate concessions with terrorists.

The bearded envoy conferred through the morning with U.S. officials who came to London for the meeting. The U.S. Embassy and the Church of England declined to identify the officials or give details of talks.

"We're keeping up the pressure," Waite told The Associated Press as he prepared to leave.

Waite had said Sunday he would return to Beirut later. But after meeting with U.S. officials he decided to return immediately via Paris, instead of waiting until Wednesday for the next direct London-Beirut flight.

Waite's departure came as a message to a Western news agency in Beirut purportedly from Islamic Jihad, a Shiite Muslim extremist group that says it is holding the Americans, said one of four French hostages also being held was gravely ill. The ailing Frenchman was not identified.

Waite has said previously that although his mission is primarily concerned with the four Americans, he will do what he can to raise the case of the Frenchman, who apparently are being held separately.

The 6-foot-7 envoy, believed to be the first Western intermediary to meet the kidnappers, said Sunday that "progress is being made" and that he had new hope. But, Waite cautioned, lives were still at risk.

First ladies' fur fashions take spotlight

GENEVA (AP) — On the eve of their own summit, Raisa Gorbachev and Nancy Reagan attended separate welcoming receptions with Switzerland's first lady on Monday and sparked a comparison of their fur fashions.

When the stylish Mrs. Gorbachev arrived in Geneva on Monday morning with her husband, Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev, she descended from the Aeroflot plane in an eye-catching, tailored grey coat. It was adorned with a fur collar and she wore a matching fur hat, which appeared to be either grey mink or silver fox.

Several hours later, Mrs. Reagan appeared in an elegant dark mink coat and matching hat at the official Swiss welcome for her husband, President Reagan.

When Mrs. Gorbachev first emerged on the international scene in London last December, she grabbed headlines with her attractive clothes and open style, a sharp contrast with the plain coats and drab garb of her predecessors.

In contrast, Mrs. Reagan, a former actress, was criticized during her husband's first term for paying too much attention to her clothes and high society friends.

Today, the U.S. and Soviet first ladies will meet for the first time in 10 years over tea, and probably coffee as well. The backdrop will be the countryside mansion, Maison de Sausure, where the Reagans are staying.

It is the first such tea between superpower first ladies since Pat Nixon visited with Viktoria Petrovna Brezhnev at the Kremlin in June 1974.

Mrs. Gorbachev will host a return tea on Wednesday for Mrs. Reagan at the Soviet mission.

A Soviet delegate, speaking on condition of anonymity, said Mrs. Gorbachev "doesn't want to show off. . . . She takes this visit very seriously."

Elaire Crispin, press secretary to Mrs. Reagan, said the U.S. first lady is not interested in competing with her Soviet counterpart.

"She's not going in with any talking points," Mrs. Crispin said. "It's just a matter of getting acquainted, just a good chance to exchange views. . . . She'll get into people, not politics."

Mrs. Reagan and Mrs. Gorbachev were served light refreshments by Swiss first lady Ursula Furgler after separate formal welcoming ceremonies for their husbands at Le Reposoir, an 18th century villa overlooking Lake Geneva.

Mrs. Reagan wore a dress in her favorite color of red, a gold necklace, and kept her mink hat on.

Mrs. Gorbachev wore a mauve silk blouse with a matching tie, black velvet skirt, gold earrings and took her hat off.

Before their 45-minute tea today, both first ladies have lined up serious schedules, with no time set aside for frivolous activities.

According to Swiss officials, Mrs. Gorbachev will visit City Hall, the watch museum, the offices of the United Nations and the library where Vladimir Lenin studied during his years in exile.

Angered by emigre, Soviet stages walkout

GENEVA (AP) — The Soviet Foreign Ministry spokesman walked out of a news conference Monday after being interrupted by a recent Soviet emigre who accuses the Kremlin of human rights abuses.

It was the second day in a row that a Soviet news conference had been interrupted by Irina Grivina, who has been accredited as a journalist to cover the U.S.-Soviet summit.

"Help me please against the G8!" she yelled to a room crowded with several hundred reporters from around the world. She said she could help victims of alleged human rights abuses by raising the issue in the news conference.

"No, I won't leave, I won't leave!" she screamed at a man who witnesses said was a plainclothes Swiss policeman.

Kremlin spokesman Vladimir Spinko first demanded that the woman take her protest elsewhere, then gathered his papers and walked out. Grivina began her challenge just as the news conference was about to begin.

"Obviously some of your colleagues would rather have a press conference with her," he said angrily. Some 20 reporters, most of them television cameramen, had gathered around Grivina, and other reporters were shouting at them to get down.

The incident took place at the international press center where the Soviets have been briefing Western journalists in advance of today's summit between President Reagan and Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev.

At a Soviet news conference on Monday, Grivina stood up to complain about human rights abuses, and earlier Monday was surrounded by Swiss police as she shouted similar accusations at Gorbachev at his arrival at Geneva's Cointrin Airport. She has been accredited as a journalist by a Dutch magazine, De Persiers.

The 40-year-old Dutchman, who said he has spent 13 months in Soviet prisons, received permission to leave the country last month.

Witnesses said Grivina had said nothing at Monday's news conference until a plainclothes Swiss policeman recognized her as the woman who had protested in Sunday's session and asked her to leave. She jumped up shouting, "Lomelko primanded her, and the cameramen rushed forward."

Gorbachevs smile warmly at reception

GENEVA (AP) — They said the weather was cold, but Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev and his wife, Raisa, looked warm and happy as they were welcomed Monday at the airport mission.

In contrast to a serious performance at Geneva's Cointrin airport, where they arrived Monday morning, the Gorbachevs were all smiles as they emerged from their limousine at the diplomatic mission near the United Nations.

"It's cold out here," Gorbachev said to the crowd of about 20 officials and employees who had gathered to greet Moscow's first couple.

He gave a hearty hug and kiss on the forehead to a little girl who presented him with a dozen red roses. He conversed briefly with the child, but their remarks could not be overheard.

Mrs. Gorbachev, dressed in a gray fur-trimmed coat and fur hat, smiled widely at the girl who handed her an equal number of roses.

"You all must have been freezing at the airport," she said to television cameramen, and they and others in the crowd laughed.

A light snow had begun to fall as the Gorbachevs arrived, and it collected slowly on his fedora hat as he walked.

After a few remarks about the weather, Gorbachev launched into a more serious discussion — the need for hard work to improve the Soviet Union's economy.

Souped-up computer takes its chess opponents in big byte

Helped design Hi-Tech

PITTSBURGH (AP) — While two Soviet chess masters were playing a 72-match struggle over 14 months for the world championship, a souped-up chess computer was earning the elite rank of master in just five months of play and achieving the highest-rating-ever-given a machine.

The electronic chess whiz is called Hi-Tech, capable of analyzing 175,000 moves per second, faster than any other chess-playing machine. It beats other computers and holds its own against humans.

"It's both smart and fast. It's very, very strong in tactics and the ability to calculate sequences," said Dr. Hans Berliner, a computer science professor at Carnegie-Mellon University who helped create Hi-Tech.

"What sets it apart from other computers is we're able to evaluate sophistication very, very quickly," said Berliner. "I think we have a real chance to penetrate the very top levels. We'll be in the top 50 players in the country by the end of next year."

Hi-Tech, three years in the making, won the first tournament it played May 25. By mid-October its record was 19-3-3. Berliner said the defeats came when it was new to competition.

In the grueling championship contest in the Soviet Union, Garry Kasparov finally defeated Anatoly Karpov earlier this month, making him the youngest chess champion in history at the age of 22.

On this side of the Atlantic this month, Hi-Tech whipped two human masters at a local tournament and drew a third. It also established supremacy over all other machines by winning the North American Computer Chess Championship in Denver.

The victories earned Hi-Tech the rank of master, based on a numerical formula that weighs win-loss records and the level of competition. Hi-Tech's ranking is about 2,250. The best human is near 2,000.

"Hi-Tech is the highest rated computer we ever had," said David Gerlter of the U.S. Chess Federation and assistant editor of "Chess Life" magazine.

A computer named Belle was the first machine to earn the master's rank in 1982, but it has since slipped to expert. Of 30,902 players rated by the U.S. Chess Federation, only 766 are masters and Hi-Tech is the lone machine. According to a recent Gallup poll, 20 million Americans know how to play chess.

Berliner, himself a chess master, was once one of the nation's top 12 players and played former world champion Bobby Fischer four times. He won the World Correspondence Chess Championship in 1968.

He sensed Hi-Tech was destined for greatness when it tied him recently.

"I took advantage of some things and got off to a good start. But according to it, I missed a chance to win. If you ask it, it will tell you what you should do," said Berliner.

"I don't think I'm going to be playing it much anymore. If it's not better than me now, it will be in half a year," he said.

Researchers are continually refining its program, he said.

Berliner, 56, developed his first chess program while working for International Business Machines Corp. He left IBM 16 years ago to get his doctorate in computer science at CMU, and stayed to continue work on the marriage of artificial intelligence and chess.

Hi-Tech is actually a series of parallel computers. Each of the 6 squares on a chess board is governed by a microchip that is a computer in itself.

Each microchip, containing the equivalent of thousands of transistors, identifies every move that can bring a chess piece onto its square, and a central arbiter evaluates each move and picks the best one.

A move is judged on whether it captures an opposing piece. If it puts a friendly piece in jeopardy and if it improves the control of the board.

Shuttle Enterprise makes its final flight

WASHINGTON (AP) — Shuttle Enterprise, a spaceship that couldn't fly, saw no space and earned no glory, was carried piggyback to the Washington area Monday for a final display in a museum that is yet to be built.

The shuttle, a lame duck from the day it was manufactured, flew to its final destination the only way it ever could — on the back of a 747 jettliner.

Enroute to Dulles International Airport — outside Washington — from Cape Canaveral, Fla., the jet dipped low over several cities to give residents a close-up look. The 1,000-mile journey was to take nearly five hours.

The Enterprise, which had been on public display next to a Saturn V moon rocket at the Kennedy Space Center, is to end its days in a $70 million wing that the National Air and Space Museum hopes to build at Dulles International Airport outside of Washington.

To the disappointment of Trekkies, the ship spent its entire career being dropped from an airplane, shaken on a launch pad, stripped of useable parts and being flown around the country and the world as a display of American technology. It never had the equipment of a real space shuttle — engines to take it into space or heat-resistant tiles to get it back home.

The Enterprise's last major job was as a dummy for fit tests on the new launch pad the military built at Vandenberg Air Force Base in California. Since then, thousands of people have seen it on tours of the Kennedy Space Center, parked in front of the Vehicle Assembly Building where real space shuttles are prepared for real space flight.

On its final trip, the Enterprise flew low over Savannah, Ga.; Charleston, S.C.; Columbia, S.C.; Charlotte, N.C.; Raleigh-Durham, N.C.; Norfolk-Tidewater, Va.; Langley Research Center-Hampton, Va.; Wallops Island, Va.; and Annapolis, Md.

Astronaut Gordon Fullerton, who has flown two shuttles in orbit, was co-pilot of the jet with A.J. Roy.

Congress has not yet appropriated the money for four new museum buildings to be put up at Dulles to accommodate large aircraft like the shuttle; the 707 jet transport and the 777.

"We think it will form the nucleus for the proposed new wing," said Brian Duff, spokesman for the Air and Space Museum. "The 747, the 707, the Concorde and the shuttle simply can't be displayed in downtown, urban museums."

"It's a chicken and egg situation. We felt the arrival of the shuttle will be a tangible demonstration of the kinds of artifacts that will require a museum of the kind we are proposing at Dulles."

When the shuttle was being fast-tracked in 1976 as a prototype for its flying sisters to come, ardent fans of the TV program "Star Trek" wrote letters, put Mr. Spock ears and lobbied their hearts out to have the ship named "Enterprise."

The name was not for the historic Revolutionary War-era ship that led the World War II aircraft carrier or the first nuclear-powered carrier, but for the Starship Enterprise dispatched on the TV show into intergalactic space on a five-year mission to build up where no man had ever gone before.

The campaign worked and President Ford directed that the first shuttle be named Enterprise.

IEA effort fans spark of tax reform

By JANE ROBISON
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Terry Gilbert, director of the Idaho Education Association in Region IV, is circling the wagons of budget-battered city and county officials as he tries to turn stray support for tax reform into unified support.

Gilbert last Wednesday gave a tax reform program to both county commissioners and city government officials from the eight-county Magic Valley region. He hopes it will be one of several given to public officials and civic groups, he said.

And his show-and-tell roadway, meant to show that tax reform will benefit everyone, is reaching receptive ears.

Gilbert's presentation included an overview of Idaho's tax system with the simple message that the regions are not overtaxed. In 1982, Idaho's per capita tax burden ranked 43rd in the nation, at $875. Only seven other states in the union, including Alabama, Arkansas, Mississippi and Tennessee, had lower rankings.

His goal, he said Monday, is to create an environment where tax reform is possible, "and that has to come from an educated citizenry."

The IEA's thrust in tax reform is to raise more taxes for vital programs and to attain a sense of balance in the tax system. An education coalition composed of the IEA, PTA, the Idaho Association of School Administrators, the state Department of Education and the Idaho School Boards Association is requesting $55.5 million from the next Legislature for schools, teacher salaries and the career ladder program.

Gilbert also dangled a carrot to prospective supporters. Better schools mean a bigger hook to lure businesses and jobs to Idaho. And Gilbert's object lesson for Idaho is Tennessee.

Tennessee recently pulled off the industrial coup of the 1980s by landing the multibillion-dollar Saturn auto plant General Motors is building.

At a press conference announcing the location of the plant, GM officials cited the state's new push for school reforms as one reason it decided to locate in Tennessee.

To drive home the point that better schools attract industry, Gilbert also quoted from the J-U-B Engineers report to the city of Twin Falls. The report said Idaho's conservative taxation does not allow for adequate money to develop services to attract business. It also stated that Idaho's higher education system is critically underfunded and oriented toward natural resource sciences, rather than the hard sciences which attract new employment and technical industries.

Gilbert, however, is also stressing his belief that tax reforms should benefit everyone, not just the education community.

His message has touched a responsive chord. Mindoka County Commissioner Norman Seibold said Monday he was very impressed by Gilbert's presentation.

"He's definitely done his homework," Commission Chairman Seibold said. "He feels, and I definitely agree, that in order to get tax revenue, we're going to have to present a unified front, as counties, cities and school districts."

In the past, government entities have gone hand in hand to legislators, but they've gone separately, not as a group. And they've been picked off separately, Seibold said.

"If we continue to go separately, legislators are going to be able to say, 'If we help you, we've got to take away from someone else,'" he said. "But we can't build up schools and let the police go."

The time has come, Seibold said, to change the tax structure to benefit everyone, including local government and school districts.

Twin Falls County Commissioner Marvin Hempleman agreed that "there are a lot of needs out there besides education." And his main concern is that legislators send more money with fewer strings attached.

"The Legislature in the past has mandated more programs for us, but not raised money to do it," he said.

Gilbert, too, said he sensed frustration from county commissioners that they have little local control.

"Although all state legislators pay lip service to local taxing and spending control, when it comes to tax policy, they bow at the shrine" and keep control in Boise, Gilbert said.

Surprise local storm creates road ruination

Vehicles stall, area schools closed early

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — An early season blizzard that raged into Magic Valley Monday closed a dozen schools, blocked rural roads and caused countless traffic accidents, bringing emergency equipment and crews out in full force.

In Twin Falls County law enforcement officers and highway crews worked in blizzard conditions to free stranded school buses and other vehicles as nearly all north-south roads became blocked by drifting snow. County Search and Rescue unit members were either assisting or standing by with four-wheel drive vehicles to help as needed.

Idaho State Police officers reported numerous accidents. Vehicles, including large trucks, were overturning or sliding off of Interstate Highway 84 and other highways. At one point, ISP officers at the Hollister Port of Entry were stopping large trucks with trailer because of the wind and icy roads. On U.S. Highway 30, about 16 miles west of Burley, a Greyhound bus slid from the road, but officers said it did not overturn and there were no injuries.

Winds were clocked at 20-30 mph by Horizon Air personnel at the Twin Falls-Sun Valley Regional Airport at 3 p.m. Monday, but the airport remained open.

Winds began slowing down after dark, but were still brisk enough to create an 8 p.m. wind chill factor minus 25 degrees at the airport.

This accident which occurred on Falls Avenue, one of many mishaps on Monday due to icy streets and hazardous conditions, caused only minor injuries.

A Twin Falls school bus taking students home was stuck in snow east of Twin Falls. Four-wheel drive vehicles from the Twin Falls County sheriff's office were used to take the students home. A wrecker also became stuck trying to free the bus from the snow drifts, but it was finally freed at about 5 p.m.

The worst of the winds and snow appeared to be in Twin Falls and Jerome counties, although the storm extended as far as Wendell on the west and into the Burley-Rupert area and toward the Utah State line to the southeast. In Lincoln and Blaine, counties, winds were reported, but officials said there was not enough snow on the ground or falling to cause problems.

No official snow measurement was available on Monday, but Bill Galkin of the National Weather Service station at Kimberly reported the new snow accounted for only .04 of an inch of precipitation.

Schools began closing at noon in Twin Falls County and districts continued sending buses home until about 1:45 p.m.

The College of Southern Idaho closed classes at 1:30 p.m. and new snow on Monday canceled all night classes on Monday.

Schools closing early included: Twin Falls, Kimberly, Hansen, Filer, Buhl and Castleford in Twin Falls County and Jerome and Valley Arlyn Boddy had his school closed at 2 p.m., but by 3:30 only two of the Gooding County the Wendell District closed early in the afternoon, but Gooding and other districts reported winds but not enough snow to create problems.

Blaine County had no closed schools or roads and reported little snow on Monday.

Mindoka County schools closed at 1 p.m. All students were delivered home but some buses ran into trouble on the return trip.

Valley School Superintendent Arlyn Boddy said his school closed at 2 p.m., but by 3:30 only two of the Gooding County the Wendell District closed early in the afternoon, but Gooding and other districts reported winds but not

schools in outlying communities were able to continue on a regular schedule.

A number of school officials said they had little hope for resuming classes today unless winds died down during the night. In the Twin Falls and Jerome areas, officials said the wind was whipping snow from last week's storm, in addition to the new snow, onto roads.

At 3:30 p.m. on Monday, Twin Falls County officers were asking radio stations to broadcast warnings asking all motorists to stay off county roads.

State examiners ease up on prison holdback, Gooding site considered

The Associated Press

BOISE — Feeling the heat of a federal court order to improve state prison conditions, the Board of Examiners today unanimously agreed to restore about two thirds of the money ordered cut from the current Corrections Department budget earlier this fall.

In a compromise worked out by Gov. John Evans' budget department and Corrections Director Al Murphy, the board agreed to reduce the 2.5 percent spending cut imposed on all state operations at Evans' direction two months ago to 1 percent for prison operations.

The move will free up some $223,000 that Murphy said will be used to open some 170 new inmates beds at satellite facilities in Orofino and Cottonwood.

In another move to help ease overcrowding in a prison system that is already operating 30 percent over its maximum capacity, Murphy said the state Board of Corrections will inspect the old state tuberculosis hospital at Gooding this Thursday with an eye toward converting it to a medium-security prison.

In response to an inmate lawsuit, a federal judge in late 1984 ordered the state to improve medical treatment, security and other conditions at the main prison. Murphy has secured the money needed to hire some 100 additional guards, but with the prison population rising at a double-digit rate each year, additional space will be needed or the state could face a court order to reduce the inmate population.

Murphy said it now appears the abandoned hospital at Gooding could be converted to a medium security state prison for 150 to 200 inmates at a cost of only about $1.5 million.

TRIM talk: Get tough with the Soviets

By DEAN S. MILLER
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The United States would not have to spend as much money on defense and on fighting international communism if it would stop sending money and technology weapons expert Bill Caruth told a Monday night meeting of the Magic Valley Tax Reform immediately (TRIM) Committee.

Criticizing American weaponry research and State Department policy, Caruth said the United States is not well defended.

About 45 people heard Caruth describe the planned summit talks between President Reagan and Soviet leader Gorbachev as "Charlie Brown strikes again."

Caruth said the Soviets have never lived up to an arms control treaty with the United States. Like comic strip character Charlie Brown, who every year asks Lucy to hold the football for him to kick, only to have her jerk it away at the last minute, the U.S. never seems to learn.

America's defense strategy is based on response to a Soviet strike, and does not provide for defense against a Soviet first strike, Caruth said. "It's a policy based on retribution, it says women and children first... and then we will try to kill as many Soviet civilians."

But nuclear war would not be as bad as it is portrayed in movies and by anti-nuclear weapon activists, said Caruth. He cited statistics that show only 17 extra cancer deaths due to radiation among survivors of the United States' atom bomb attacks on Japan.

"It is not the end of the earth... we would not all be killed," Caruth said. While nuclear war would be terrible, it would be even worse if the survivors had to be ruled by communists, he said.

Polis have shown Americans have the will to win and policy ought to reflect that will, he said.

While the U.S. has in the past reduced its nuclear arsenal, the Soviets have continued to build their and have not yet initiated a nuclear war because they cannot afford to destroy a country that supplies them with weapons and finances their global expansion, Caruth said.

Caruth ended his talk by urging TRIM members to push their congressmen to institute a foreign policy that is more in America's interest and less in the interest of the rest of the world.

Library given rights to Moran painting of falls

By ANNETTE CARY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls Public Library has been given full rights to reproduce and sell copies of an oil painting of Shoshone Falls done by Thomas Moran, the best-known artist ever to tackle the subject.

Moran painted a 6-by-11-1/2-foot picture titled "Shoshone Falls on the Snake River" when he visited Idaho in 1900. The sight of the falls is said to have prompted Moran to overcome a depression caused by the death of his wife and to begin painting again.

Today Moran is commonly known as the dean of Western American painting. Some of his better-known works depict the Yellowstone and Teton area and the Grand Canyon.

His painting of Shoshone Falls depicts the view from the south side of the Snake River Canyon, with water foaming over the rocks and mist rising from the river.

Copies of the painting should be ready by next spring, says Library Board Chairman David Mead. Money raised from print sales will be used for capital improvements at the library.

Librarian Arlan Call says he would like to bring the original to Idaho for the 85th anniversary of Twin Falls in 1989 or the state centennial in 1990. The picture is now housed at the Gilcrease Museum in Tulsa, Okla.

Details of the print sales have yet to be worked out. But Call says the committee working on the project will be marketing a print much smaller than the original work.

Sheep commission forced to clip animal health programs

By BOB FREUND
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The Idaho Sheep Commission is clipping its animal health programs to the hilt this year, but it still may have to raise wool fees or seek more money from the state Legislature to field them in future years.

Drastic drops in sheep numbers have cut the agency's income so thin that it could run out of money temporarily next spring, officials from the commission and the Idaho Department of Agriculture said.

After recording cash surpluses as high as $90,000 in the past six years, the state agency ended its fiscal year in June with a razor-thin, $2,400 cushion.

So far this year the commission has laid off one of its two field inspectors, limited its full-time veterinarian to part-time and borrowed $14,000 from predator control funds to operate its health programs.

The commission inspects sheep for diseases, approves imports of live sheep and enforces quarantines. It also disburses state collections for programs to control coyote, bear and other predators, funneling the money to special boards throughout the state.

A fee of 4 cents for each pound of wool sheared from the state's sheep pays sheep commission bills. Sixty percent of the revenue goes into health programs and the commission's operations, while the remaining 40 percent is earmarked for predator control, said Stan Boyd, executive secretary.

However, the commission, which can levy as much as 6 cents a pound, now is eyeing a hike to 6 cents, Boyd said.

With wool growers still recovering from difficult financial times in previous years, some commission members may prefer instead to turn to the state Legislature for more support.

The state's sheep and cattle industries were successful last year in winning another $82,000 from three separate sources to beef up the predator control program.

With that injection of money, the predator control program now is strong enough to pay the bills, but the animal health program is downturn in sheep numbers and, consequently, in wool sales.

Numbers of stock sheep, which represent most of those shorn, have plummeted from 490,000 in 1981 to 285,000 at the beginning of this year, a 40-percent drop.

Wool production had dropped from 4.9 million pounds during 1981 to about 3.2 million pounds by the end of 1984, a 36-percent drop.

Meanwhile, the commission's revenues from the fees have been cut to $115,300, in the year ending June 30, 1985, from $136,900 at the same time in 1981.

The commission expects sheep declines to end, allowing it to avoid long-term losses.

"We're expecting to receive from the (sheep) industry another $60,000 to $70,000 (this fiscal year)," said Boyd.

But the commission could encounter a temporary cash crunch in the last month or so of the fiscal year, because fees from spring shearings often do not arrive until after June 30, said Bob Phillips, controller for the Idaho Department of Agriculture, which oversees the commission's funds. He describes the situation as "severe."

Sheep Commissioner John Faulkner of Gooding said he thinks the cuts made so far will succeed. "I think by spring we'll be solvent, because we've already implemented this program and it's just starting to work. However, Faulkner and Boyd said it will be a close call this year.

"It's all in the wind. We're just kind of juggling it," said Boyd. "There is a chance — if we don't get our problems figured out — it could go broke."

Duck hunters given dunking

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

HAGERMAN - Three duck hunters had their enthusiasm dampened on Monday morning when their boat capsized and dumped them into the icy waters of the Snake River near Thousand Springs.

Deputy Sheriff Bill Tilson of Twin Falls County said the three survived the freezing conditions because of the rescue efforts of two Fish and Wildlife Service employees.

Tilson said the hunters, Jim Baltazar, 32; Montgomery Scott, 40; and Royce Merrill, 32, all of Hagerman, put their boat into the Snake River early on Monday to shoot ducks. When coming back to the dock about 10 a.m., their boat was caught in waves caused by the wind storm, and overturned. They managed to cling to the overturned boat until they were spotted by Dave Bruhn and Larry Moles of the nearby U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service Hagerman Refuge. The two men put their boat into the river and picked up the hunters, then towed the capsized boat to shore.

After the hunting party was pulled from the water, the trio was taken to the Thousand Springs resort. Their vehicle was brought there by Ron Adams of Hagerman and the men were taken to the Sportsman's Cafe in Hagerman where officers were notified at 10:50 a.m. Tilson said the wet and freezing clothing was removed and the men were wrapped in dry blankets. Canteen employees furnished hot coffee and hot chocolate, blankets and heaters to warm the men. Quick Response Units from both Buhl and Hagerman and an ambulance from Magic Valley Regional Medical Center responded.

The hunters were examined in the MVMC emergency room. Baltazar and Merrill were released while Howard was kept for observation. All three suffered hypothermia from the time spent in the river and the cold temperatures after they were taken from the water.

Library gift could mean tax break

TWIN FALLS - A donation to the Twin Falls Public Library now can mean a tax credit of as much as $50 for individuals or $50 for corporations in 1985 tax returns.

Last year was the first year that Idaho public libraries, secondary and elementary schools joined the list of state institutions eligible for the tax breaks that have tempted residents to contribute to Idaho universities and colleges in the past. Twin Falls Librarian Arlan Call said that last year the tax break prompted about $2,000 in donations to the city library.

In some cases the Idaho tax credit, combined with reductions in federal and state taxes, can cover the cost of the donation and then some.

A couple with a taxable income of $40,000 can donate $25 and receive $32.50 in tax benefits if a joint return is filed. If the same couple donates $100, their actual out-of-pocket costs would be only $7. Costs for people filing single tax returns will be slightly less.

Taxpayers do not have to be making $40,000 to benefit from the tax credits, however. A couple making $20,000 a year can donate $25 and receive a $10 reduction in federal tax, a $2 reduction in Idaho tax and a $12.50 Idaho tax credit for a total out-of-pocket cost of only $1.50.

Officials at the Twin Falls Public Library say those who want more specific details can read section 63-302A of the Idaho Code or talk to their tax consultant.

Coach needs debate judges

TWIN FALLS - Debate Coach R. L. Nicholson is recruiting judges for the 8th Annual Twin Falls High School Invitational Debate Tournament, scheduled for Friday and Saturday at the school.

Nicholson adds that, "Anybody can learn to debate well." Experienced judges and novices to debate will be welcome to participate, he says.

To assist the judges with the topic of the debate, a judging workshop will be held today, from 4 p.m. to 6:30 p.m., in Room D at Twin Falls High School. Anyone who would like to join the workshop in the event should call Nicholson at 733-6551 or 733-6119. The tournament will be open to the public.

Woman faces stabbing charge

TWIN FALLS - A Twin Falls woman accused of fatally stabbing her 62-year-old husband on April 30 will go on trial beginning today in 5th District Court.

Deanna Kay Parks, 38, is charged with second-degree murder in connection with the stabbing death of her husband, Walter Louis Parks. Parks was found at the couple's residence at 335 1/2 Main Ave. S. in Twin Falls. He died at Magic Valley Regional Medical Center of a single knife wound to the chest.

Judge Daniel Meehl will preside over the trial. According to a complaint filed with the court, the stabbing allegedly followed a domestic quarrel.

Mrs. Parks was released on a $2,500 bond.

Golf advisor positions open

TWIN FALLS - Anyone wishing to serve on the city's Golf Advisory Board in 1986 should contact board member Julie Blandford at 733-2970.

Blandford says names will be considered by the Golf Advisory Board and then submitted to the Twin Falls City Council, which makes appointments to city boards.

Obituaries

The family suggests memorial contributions to the St. Edward's Catholic Church.

W.L. 'Bud' Gardner
W.L. Gardner, of Moses Lake, Wash., and formerly of Twin Falls, died Oct. 26 in a Seattle hospital after a short illness.

Born Jan. 12, 1929, in Twin Falls, he graduated from Twin Falls High School. He served as a cook in the Army during the Korean War, then returned to Twin Falls, where he worked with the Department of Agriculture. He moved in 1950 to Moses Lake, working for various firms in the potato industry. At the time of his death, he was a member of the Moses Lake Elks Lodge, the Moses Lake Country Club and the American Legion. He was a past member of the Lions and Moose lodges.

Surviving are his wife, Hattie, of Moses Lake; a daughter, Janine Gardner, of Kent, Wash.; two stepsons, John Krantz of Yakima, Wash., and Patrick Sullivan of Wenatchee, Wash.; a brother, Rex Gardner, of Twin Falls; and a sister, Mary Helen Tarr of Boise. A funeral and burial were held in Moses Lake.

Idaho State College in Pocatello with a degree in elementary education. She married Roy H. Burley in 1921, in Twin Falls. Last September, they celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary.

She and her husband were active in educational affairs; their same-active-in-their-tenth school in Twin Falls, and in Burley, where she was head teacher at the Opportunity School at the time of her retirement in 1972. She also taught in the Air Force dependents schools overseas for five years. In 1972, she suffered a stroke, which confined her to a wheelchair.

Mrs. Reid was past president of Delta Kappa Gamma and was a member of Minidoka County Retired Teachers and AARP. She was active in the activities of United Methodist Women.

She was honored by receiving the Valley Forge Teachers Medal in 1972, and was awarded the State 1972 scholarship for the study of education of handicapped children. She was nominated for Woman of the Year award in 1972.

Surviving are: her husband of Burley; a daughter, Dorothy Fry of Pocatello; a son, Gerald D. Reid of Challis; five grandchildren, and a great-grandchild. A funeral will be held Thursday at 11 a.m. in the Burley Methodist Church, with the Rev. John Wais officiating. Burial will be in Pleasant View Cemetery.

Friends may call at McCall's Wednesday from 2 to 8:30 p.m. and prior to the time of the funeral on Thursday.

Alvin 'Slim' Edmondson
HEATHLEY - Alvin 'Slim' Edmondson, 76, of Burley, died Monday afternoon at the Burley Care Center.

The funeral arrangements are pending and will be announced by McCall's of Burley.

Golf board decides fees

TWIN FALLS - The Twin Falls Golf Advisory Board is recommending that the 1986 golf fee schedule remain the same as last season, except for an increase in fees for locker rentals.

The Twin Falls City Council will make the final decision on the matter.

Under the board's recommendation, season passes would cost as follows: $185 for a regular pass, $225 for a couples pass, $370 for a family pass, $2 for a junior pass and $65 for a college pass.

Senior citizens could buy a season pass for $120 for five days of play a week or $145 for a full week of play. The seniors couple rate would be $220 for the short week and $270 for the whole week.

Daily greens fees would be $6, increasing to $8 for weekends and holidays. A senior pass during a week day would cost $4.75. The charge for nine holes would be $1.25. And junior prices would range from $2.50 to $6 for weekend play.

Locker rental has cost $15 in the past, but the board is recommending that be increased to $40, to ensure that those who use them pay for them, Blandford said.

Greens fees and the cost of season passes were increased in 1985 to pay for the new clubhouse now under construction. The rate being suggested for 1986 includes last year's fee hikes but no additional increases.

Seatbelt use especially important during holidays, says association

CHICAGO (AP) — Holidays are a time of increased automobile travel for family visits and celebrations. It is also the time when it's most important to remember to buckle up, warns the American Association for Automotive Medicine here.

Traffic crashes are the third largest killer in the United States, after cancer and heart disease, notes Elaine Petrucelli, executive director of the association.

In fact, she adds, a report recently issued by the National Centers for Disease Control in Atlanta stated that more than 50 percent of deaths and serious injuries from automobile collisions could be prevented by wearing safety belts.

Although in many states the use of seatbelts is now required by law, it is important to get into the habit of buckling up even where their use is not mandatory, Petrucelli points out.

Petrucelli offers these tips to insure that nothing will mar the festive season during holiday travel: People generally drink more during the holidays. Although you may not be drinking, the danger from your fellow drivers makes it even more important than usual to wear your safety belt.

It's a good idea to stow packages in the trunk of your car, instead of on the back seat, or on passengers' laps. That way, there will be no excuses for not wearing a seatbelt.

Be sure to dig out all the safety belts in your car — both front and back — before setting out on your holiday journey. Easy accessibility encourages balky passengers to use their belts.

If you are driving in snowy or icy weather, your chances of having a collision are greater than in fair weather. So just when buckling up seems "most inconvenient" (bulky clothes, etc.), it's especially important to wear your seatbelt and fasten it properly.

Before making a lengthy drive, you may want to remove heavy overcoats for both easier buckling up and a more comfortable temperature during your trip.

For the best protection, be sure that the lap part of your belt is positioned as low as possible on your pelvis. Your shoulder belt should have no more than a fistful of slack, to allow you to move around.

Non-drinking college adjusts to neighbors

ANGWIN, Calif. (AP) — The teetotalers at a Seventh Day Adventist college nestled among the evergreens on Howell Mountain are trying to adjust to new neighbors: two wineries that have cleared trees to plant grapes.

One winery is planning its first bottling after the Adventists' attempt to stop it ended in what Pacific Union College Vice President Herbert Ford called "abysmal defeat."

The other is planting grapes as Ford and others consider whether to mount a last-ditch effort to protect their mountaintop sanctuary.

"It would appear to us that we've got enough wineries and vineyards to let everybody get all the wine they would want," said Ford. "Why do we really have to sacrifice a beautiful mountaintop?"

Because, say winemakers, the rolling mountaintop's soil is even better for grapes than land elsewhere in the wine-rich Napa Valley.

Besides, says Woltner Estates winemaker Ted Lemon, "It's a free country. It's important that people be allowed to do what they want to and you have to work out a compromise."

For now, the compromise is a jittery truce.

"We want to be friends with everybody," Ford said. "It's a free country. It's important that people be allowed to do what they want to and you have to work out a compromise."

Pacific Union College shared the mountaintop with wine grapes for more than 40 years before economic pressures killed the wineries in the 1950s. Forest overtook former vineyards.

Over the years, the one-time resort became dominated by the 1,400-student college. Today, Ford said, more than 75 percent of the 3,000 residents are Adventist.

Offer of shower causes complications for pregnant woman

DEAR ABBY: I am going through a divorce that will not be final until February 1986. Meanwhile, I have been living with a person I'll call Ben. I care about Ben, but I see no marriage in sight for us. I am also pregnant with Ben's baby, which I am very happy about because I have wanted a baby for the last four years. I am 20 and this is my first child.

Abigail VanBuren
Dear Abby

name should I give the baby — my present husband's? Or Ben's? If I don't use Ben's last name, will he still have to pay child support? He is the baby's father for sure and wants to pay. My husband says I can use his last name as long as I want to because, after all this is over, we might even get back together again.

— EXPECTING AND THRILLED DEAR THRILLED: Handle one crisis at a time. Don't allow Ben's mother to give you a baby shower.

under these circumstances. See a lawyer about which name your baby should have, as well as who is legally obligated to pay child support. Please consider counseling before you make any decisions. If there's a chance that you will get back together with your husband, and since there's nothing definite with Ben, why go through with the divorce?

DEAR ABBY: I read with interest the letter about the 96-year-old woman who didn't want to miss out on all the fun her friends and relatives would enjoy at her wake, so she invited them all to a party while she was alive, and able to share in the fun.

My dear departed mother felt the same way, so she decided to hold a "wake" while she was still around to enjoy it. Mother contacted all her relatives and told them she was having her "wake" early, and if they came to this one, they could skip the real one. The whole family showed up, and it was the best wake I ever attended.

My mother also had the time of her life (at the first one, that is).
— WARREN PERINE, NORTHPORT, N.Y.

Here's the situation: Ben's mother wants to give me a baby shower. She comes from a big family — about 50 women on one side only, just the aunts and cousins. I hardly know any of them. This will be her first grandchild and she is very excited, but, Abby, I am still married, and will not be divorced when the baby gets here. Even after that, Ben and I don't have any plans to get married. I just can't see accepting gifts from these people with things so up in the air.

Also, since I will still be married when my baby is born, whose last

WILLIAM E. WINLAND
To speak at club anniversary

Past director to address local Lions

TWIN FALLS — William E. Winland, Gillette, Wyo., past international director of the International Association of Lions Clubs, will address the Twin Falls club at 6:30 p.m. Saturday. The meeting, to be held at Canyon Springs Inn, will mark the Twin Falls Lions Club's 50th anniversary. Winland has held many offices in the organization, from local club president to district governor and international director. He is active in his community, serving on the Campbell County School Board and planning, commission and is a director of First Guaranty Savings and Loan.

New checks mailed soon

TWIN FALLS — Senior-center officials are concerned that senior citizens may unknowingly throw away their Social Security checks next month, confusing them with junk mail. The government checks will take on a new look beginning Dec. 3, with the familiar old green-punched-card type replaced by a colorful new one, made of lightweight paper. The move, according to the U.S. Treasury Department, will save taxpayers $6 million per year and make benefit checks more difficult to alter or counterfeit. The change is the result of new computer technology which make the old punched-card checks obsolete. The new checks will have more than a dozen security features contained in the design, ink and paper.

Study shows MS may be infectious

KEY WEST, Fla. (AP) — The unusually high incidence of multiple sclerosis among Key West residents suggests the crippling nerve disease could be "infectious," a newspaper study has concluded. Prolonged person-to-person contact could play a more critical role in transmitting MS than was previously believed, the Miami Herald said Sunday, citing a cluster of at least 26 confirmed cases and three suspected cases that challenge the old theory that the disease is not contagious. Last week, researchers at the University of Miami and The Wistar Institute in Philadelphia said they had identified a new virus in the blood and brain fluids of patients in Key West and in Sweden. The virus could be one cause of MS, the researchers said, but further research is needed to determine that. MS occurs when destructive blood cells attack nerves in the brain and spine, gnawing holes in the nerve cells' myelin insulation, experts say. Like frayed electrical wires, the nerves short-circuit, causing such problems as numbness, blindness, paralysis and loss of bladder control.

BYU selects Citrus Bowl, undetermined foe

PROVO, Utah (AP) — Brigham Young's Cougars are headed for the Dec. 28 Citrus Bowl in Florida, meeting probably either Ohio State or Auburn, sources said.

NCAA rules prohibit bids from issuing bids before Saturday, but sources said Auburn had been invited to play Brigham Young in the Citrus at Orlando.

However, the Cotton Bowl also was interested in Auburn, 8-2 overall with its final game Nov. 30 against Alabama.

But then there's Ohio State, which can go 9-2 by beating Michigan on Saturday, and a good prospect then for the Cotton Bowl.

Auburn reportedly was asked to wait the outcome of next Saturday's contest, but told the Cotton Bowl, "Nope!"

A BYU spokesman declined to comment on the reported bid offer.

"We had 11 different bowl representatives here this week," said associate sports information director Ralph Zobel. "The Citrus Bowl has been very interested, very much throughout the season, and this is not the first time they've watched us."

However, he said, representatives from a number of the other 14 bowls for which the Cougars are eligible also watched BYU bring down previously unbeaten Air Force on Saturday, 28-21.

Rick Bay, OSU athletic director, acknowledged talking to both the Citrus and Cotton representatives.

"Everything depends on what happens Saturday when we play Michigan and Iowa plays Minnesota. If we beat Michigan, we could still have a shot at the Cotton Bowl. But the Citrus Bowl wants us if we lose," he said.

A source in Orlando told The Salt Lake Tribune the Citrus Bowl committee spent all day Sunday sifting through the available teams.

"BYU and Air Force were top choices for one spot and BYU ended up getting the nod," the source said.

BYU had hopes of the Fiesta Bowl — Michigan reportedly worked a deal to play the Big Eight runner-up in the Arizona bowl.

Fiesta Bowl executive director Bruce Skinner refused to confirm the report, citing the NCAA rules about bids, but did say, "We have a real chance to pull off a matchup of two top-10 teams. All the teams left on our list are among the top 10."

Sources close to the Fiesta Bowl said if Michigan should go to Rose Bowl — which would require a Michigan victory over Ohio State and an Iowa loss to Minnesota on Saturday — then Iowa has agreed to come to the Fiesta Bowl.

Assistant BYU athletic director Pete Witbeck said, "We felt a lot of Utah people could have driven down to Phoenix for the game. And, of course, we could have been home for Christmas."

"But don't get me wrong. If the Citrus Bowl wants us, we'll be thrilled."

The Citrus Bowl will be televised nationally by NBC.

The Citrus would be BYU's 10th bowl game. The Cougars have won four of the last five Holiday Bowls, losing the 1982 contest to Ohio State, 47-17, and have a 4-5 overall bowl record.

In 1976, BYU went to the Citrus Bowl, then called the Tangerine Bowl, and lost to Oklahoma State, 49-21. Zobel said, "but everyone seemed to have a good time."

McGee named NL's MVP

NEW YORK (AP) — Batting champion Willie McGee, the flashy center fielder of the National League champion St. Louis Cardinals, was named the NL's Most Valuable Player by the Baseball Writers Association of America on Monday.

McGee received 14 first place votes from a 24-writer panel, two from each league city, and finished with 280 points.

Dave Parker of the Cincinnati Reds, who led the league with 125 runs batted in, finished second with six firsts and 220 points. Pedro Guerrero of the NL West champion Los Angeles Dodgers was third with three firsts and 208 points and pitcher Dwight Gooden of the New York Mets, who won the Cy Young Award last week, finished fourth with one first and 162 points.

Tommy Herr of St. Louis, Gary Carter of New York, Dale Murphy of Atlanta, Keith Hernandez of New York, John Tudor of St. Louis and Jack Clark of St. Louis completed the top 10.

McGee, Parker and Guerrero were the only players listed on all 24 ballots. Points were assigned 14-9-8-7-6-5-4-3-2-1 with voters asked to list 10 players on their ballots.

"I feel I'm still young and I still have some things to do," McGee said in a conference call from his Richmond, Calif., home. "This has been a special season for me. I'm most proud of the Cardinals as a team and an organization."

McGee became the ninth Cardinal player to win the NL batting title, hitting .353 last season. It was the highest average ever for a NL switch hitter, topping the mark of .348 by Frankie Frisch of the New York Giants in 1922 and matched by Pete Rose in 1969. Mickey Mantle of the New York Yankees set the major league mark in 1957 when he batted .365.

Coming into the season, McGee said, "I thought I had to improve my batting right-hand side. I felt I had to be more disciplined at the plate. I'd rather be known as an all-around ballplayer able to help the team win in different ways."

Batting second in the Cardinal lineup, McGee led the league with 114 runs and tied for second in the league and, with rookie leadoff man Vince Coleman, served as the catalyst for the racehorse St. Louis attack which produced 31 stolen bases.

The Cardinals acquired McGee from the New York Mets in exchange for pitcher Bob Sykes on Oct. 21, 1981.

Cardinal Willie McGee

"I read about the trade in the small type in the newspaper," McGee recalled. "I called the club a few days later and said, 'I think I belong to you. What are your plans for me?'"

McGee started the 1982 season at Louisville of the American Association and was called up in May to replace injured David Green. He won a regular job, batting .296 and helping the Cardinals win the world championship in the Series, he set a record for rookies by hitting two home runs in Game 3. His 24 putouts in the seven games tied another record.

McGee became the 14th Cardinal MVP winner since the BBWAA began the award in 1931. The last one was Hernandez, now with the New York Mets, who shared the award in 1979 with Pittsburgh's Willie Stargell.

Gooden and Tudor, who was second in the Cy Young voting, were the only pitchers to finish in the MVP top 10.

The American League MVP award will be announced Wednesday night.

Broncos join Idaho and Reno in Division 1-AA top 20 poll

BOISE, Idaho (AP) — The Boise State Broncos, riding a five-game winning streak into this weekend's showdown with Idaho, have finally cracked the NCAA Division I-AA Top 20 as the two contenders for the Big Sky Conference football title Idaho and Nevada-Reno — each improved their standing in the national poll.

Nevada-Reno, finishing its season last weekend at 10-1 with a 48-7 mauling of cross-state rival Nevada-Las Vegas, moved up from third in the weekly poll to a tie for second with 9-1 Furman while the Vandals, idle last weekend with an 8-2 record, jumped a notch to fifth this week.

But the Broncos, 6-5 finishers the two previous seasons, pushed their 1985 record to 7-3 last Saturday with a 42-14 trouncing of Cal Poly-San Luis Obispo to earn a tie for 20th with 8-3 Richmond in the national poll.

Unbeaten Middle Tennessee State remained top-ranked on boxing.

Although out of the race for the Big Sky championship, the Broncos could have a chance for an at-large bid to the post-season national tournament with a win over Idaho at Moscow Saturday. The Vandals, however, hold the key to their own fate, able to claim the league crown with a win or give it to Nevada-Reno with a loss.

Despite having the week off, Idaho remained the number-two team nationally in total offense, averaging just over 498 yards a game, while Weber State, though destined to finish in the middle of the Big Sky pack this season, bolstered its claim as the nation's most expiutive Division I-AA team.

The Wildcats rolled up 664 yards offensively Saturday in ekting out a come-from-behind 46-45 victory over Idaho State in Pocatello. The offensive display shoved Weber State's total offense average well above 500 yards to over 516 yards a game. Quarterback Dave Stremman, the co-Big Sky offensive player of the week, set a single-game school record of 442 yards passing.

Although Nevada-Reno blew out UNLV in running up 480 yards in total offense, the Wolf Pack still slipped a spot in the national offensive standings, dropping from third to fourth.

UNLV running back Chavez Foger, leading the Big Sky in rushing with over 124 yards a game, had his seventh straight 100-yard-plus game against UNLV to set a new Division I-AA freshman rushing mark of 1,241 yards. His 108 points scored this year on a school record 18 touchdowns is tops in the nation, one point ahead of the No. 2 Division I-AA scorer, Tennessee and place-kicker Marty Zendejas.

Defensively, Boise State remained the top defensive team in the conference, holding opponents to 289 yards a game. But that was just a fraction better than second-placed Nevada-Reno, whose rushing defense had kept challengers at less than 78 yards a game on the ground.

Public health group calls for banishment of all boxing

WASHINGTON (AP) — The American Public Health Association is considering a resolution this week to ban boxing citing "an alarming prevalence of brain damage in fighters."

The governing council of the association, which has a membership of 30,000 health professionals, will decide Wednesday whether to approve, reject or revise the resolution.

If the organization does formally call for a government ban on boxing, it would join several other medical groups, including the American Medical Association, in taking the stand.

"The evidence is fairly clear at this point that chronic recurrent blows to the head cause chronic brain injury," said Steven Macdonald in recommending the resolution at a hearing on Monday.

"The merit is an issue of risk versus safety," said Macdonald, a research consultant to the University of Washington Medical School and chairman of the health association's injury control and emergency health-services section.

The head injury risk for boxing is not acceptable," he said, citing studies of injuries of longtime boxers. However, Dr. Gerald Lytle, a Lake Charles, La., neurologist, argued at the hearing that "these studies are worthless" because they don't have scientifically controlled comparisons with non-boxers.

Lytle, chairman of the sports medicine committee of the Amateur Boxing Federation, also noted that amateur boxers wear protective headgear and box under much different rules from professionals.

"We don't care about the pros, but we don't ban amateur boxing," he said.

Even if boxing were banned everywhere in the United States, he said that young boxers would simply go elsewhere or box illegally in this country under much less safe conditions than now.

Lytle also said that "if broad new studies show real danger to amateur boxers, we'll ban the head blow."

Macdonald said such a limited ban would be helpful, but he still said the group should ask for a total boxing ban.

The resolution "concludes that the risks of injury and death from boxing are unacceptable; reform of boxing is not adequate to redress the fundamental problems and, on public health grounds, boxing should be banned as an occupational and recreational activity."

If approved, the resolution would call on both legislative and executive branches of federal, state and local governments to ban all boxing in their jurisdictions, and it promises the association will help in launching the necessary legislative or legal efforts.

The resolution objects that "boxing as an activity is based on the intent to harm."

It contends that "new research has documented an alarming prevalence of brain damage in fighters" and that "the public is not aware of the dangers of repeated blows to the head and that there are plenty of sporting alternatives for competition involving strength, skill and courage."

Washington loses Theismann

Redskins slip by Giants 23-21

WASHINGTON (AP) — Seldom-used quarterback Jay Schroeder, summoned when starter Joe Theismann suffered a broken leg, capped a fourth-quarter rally with a 14-yard touchdown pass to Clint Didier as Washington beat the New York Giants 23-21 in a National Football League game Monday night.

The Redskins' winning drive began at Mark Moseley's 28-yard field goal brought Washington within 21-17 midway of the fourth quarter.

Washington pulled off its second successful on-sides kick of the game and Schroeder, who had completed just four passes in his two years in the NFL prior to Monday night, completed three in a row, the last to a Didier, who took it away from Giants cornerback Elvis Patterson. Schroeder, who had thrown for just 51 yards prior to Monday, completed 13 of 20 for 221 yards in relief of Theismann, who suffered a compound fracture of the lower right leg when he was sacked in the second period.

The loss dropped the Giants, 7-4, into a first-place tie with Dallas in the National Conference East while pulling the Redskins, 6-5, back into contention for the division race.

The Redskins comeback overshadowed the efforts of Giant running back Joe Morris, who rushed for three touchdowns and 118 yards. Washington got its other scores on Theismann's 10-yard pass to Dan Warren and John Riggins' 1-yard run.

Morris shredded the Redskin defense for touchdown runs of 56, 41 and 8 yards, the last giving the Giants their first lead — 21-14 — with six minutes remaining in the third quarter.

Theismann, 36, starting his 71st consecutive game since 1978, went down on the second play of the second quarter as the Giants snuffed out an attempted flea flicker. After taking a pitch back from Riggins, Theismann was sacked by Giants linebackers Lawrence Taylor and Gary Reasons. As Theismann went down, his right leg was twisted beneath him.

Taylor immediately signalled for help from the sidelines.

Theismann, who was scheduled for surgery later Monday, was expected to be in a cast for three months.

Schroeder provided an instant spark, hooking up with Art Monk for 44 yards and a first down at the Giants' 13 on the second play after Theismann was carried from the field on a stretcher.

The Redskins came up empty however, when Taylor recovered a Riggins fumble at the New York 2.

The Redskins had opened smartly behind Theismann, who completed seven of 10 for 50 yards before his injury. He marched the team 64 yards on its first possession for a 7-0 lead.

The drive was kept alive when Steve Cox faked a punt and threw an 11-yard pass to defensive back Raphael Cherry for a first down. The Redskins got on the scoreboard on Theismann's pass to Warren, the tight end.

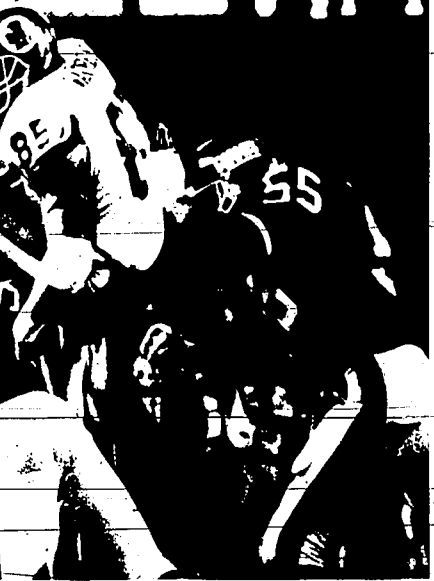

The Giants evened the score with just over four minutes remaining in the first quarter, traveling 80 yards in 14 seconds.

After picking up 24 yards on a pass interference call against cornerback Vernon Dean, the Giants got the equalizer on Morris' 56-yard run.

The Redskins opened the second half with an on-sides kick. Cox recovering his own boot at the Washington 46.

Schroeder again found Monk, this time for 50 yards, and Riggins punched it into the end zone three plays later for a 14-7 lead 3:55 into the third quarter.

The Giants tied it when Morris ran through the right side of the Redskin line for 31 yards, then went ahead with six minutes remaining in the quarter by converting a George Rogers fumble.

Redskins Don Warren sails over two New York Giants to score during NFL action Monday.

Washington accuses Tollner of spying

SEATTLE (AP) — An angry Washington Coach Don James said Monday that two local high school football coaches spied on the Huskies last week and supplied information to Southern California with the intent of sabotaging the team.

The Huskies rallied Saturday with a 98-yard drive climaxed by a 13-yard scoring pass from Chris Chandler to Lonnie Hill to beat Southern Cal 29-17 in a Pacific-10 Conference football game.

James said it clear that his anger was directed at two local high school coaches. He said some of the Trojans' offensive players noticed the two coaches with binoculars and clipboards standing furiously outside of Washington's practice area at Husky Stadium last Tuesday.

James said the secret observers left after they were discovered. The Huskies' practices were closed last week and will be closed again this week, James had complained about spies earlier this season.

Washington, 6-4, winds up its regular season schedule against Washington State here Saturday. The Huskies are out of the Rose Bowl race but are considered in the running for their seventh straight postseason appearance.

"We've gotten to the place where we have to have to close it," James explained.

He said he didn't know the identities of the two coaches but was attempting to find out that information. He said he thought the two men gathered the information with the idea of selling it to the Trojans.

Asked how he knew they were high school coaches, he replied, "That's information we got from our Secret Service."

He continued: "It's absolutely no excuse for a high school coach in our state to go out and do that. We open our doors for them."

"It's so frustrating that there are people who would come in and accept our knowledge and information from us, which we supplied to help them, and use it against us."

James said he would try to run the two coaches "out of coaching" if he found out their names.

McCluskey said he would wait to see Terry's contract offer before determining what the Pistons' response would be.

Joe Axelson talked to me today and told me they were going to sign Terry," McCluskey said Monday night. "I will wait until I receive a copy all the offer sheet. Then I'll evaluate it and have further talks with Joe Axelson."

Tyler, a 6-foot-7, 220-pound forward out of the University of Detroit, was the Pistons' second-round draft pick in 1978. He has averaged 11.6 points and 6.2 rebounds per game in his career.

Axelson said he met Monday with Tyler's attorney, Steve Kaufman of Philadelphia. Kaufman said Tyler preferred Sacramento to other interested teams because he felt he would receive more playing time.

Tyler also said Sacramento has a good nucleus of young players, the attorney said.

Forget 16-0 season, Ditka points Bears for Atlanta

LAKE FOREST, Ill. (AP) — Having clinched their second straight National Conference Central Division title, the undefeated Chicago Bears now are aiming for the home-field advantage throughout the National Football League playoffs.

Regardless of what other teams do, the Bears, 11-4, can achieve that goal with three more victories:

"Our next goal is Atlanta and 12-and-0," Coach Mike Ditka said Monday, day, ignoring all questions about the possibility of the Bears' finishing 16-0 during the regular season. "Nobody's beaten us at home and we'd like to keep that intact."

Reminded that nobody has beaten the Bears at all, Ditka said, "It is always more important to win at home and have the fans behind you."

He still was trying to explain Sunday's stunning 44-1 victory over the Cowboys at Dallas.

"I thought we could control Dallas if we didn't turn the ball over," said Ditka. "They did and we didn't."

Praising the Bears' defense as usual, he said, "Our defense took it away from them—With our defense, it's going to be hard for teams to do things against us."

"Remember, Dallas had the No. 2 offense in the league and we held them to 160 yards (actually 171). That's pretty good football. There's no question about it, our defense is much better than it was last year."

Ditka will get an argument about that from Buddy Ryan, his defensive coordinator, who earlier said this year's defense is "not quite as good" as the 1984 defense, which was No. 1 in the National Football League.

"We've missed two, all-pro people," said Ryan, referring to end Al Harris and safety Todd Bell, who are holdouts this year.

"Really," said Ditka of Ryan's statement. "That just goes to show you what great insight defensive coaches have. Ask him how many interceptions he has."

The Bears intercepted four passes Sunday and took the league lead in that department with 28, two more than the Cowboys.

"We're a much better football team than we were last year and one of these days we're going to play the perfect game on defense," said Ditka.

What would that take?

"No yards gained," he said, adding, "but we're looking at some teams who can score points."

Four of their remaining foes won big Sunday. Atlanta beat the Los Angeles Rams 30-14, the New York Jets whipped Tampa Bay 62-8, Detroit smashed Minnesota 41-21, and Miami defeated Indianapolis 34-7.

"Our defense has a way of changing that," said Ditka.

The Bears have held opponents to 10 points or less in eight games this season, including the last six. And in the last eight games, they have allowed a total of only 19 points in the second half.

All of which has taken the pressure off the offense and the quarterback situation.

No. 1 quarterback Jim McMahon sets out Sunday's game with an injured shoulder and backup Steve Fuller directed the team capably.

"If Jim is ready, he'll play," Ditka said of Sunday's game against the Atlanta Falcons. "He has earned that right. If not, Fuller will start. We'll assess the situation day-by-day."

In tight Pac-10 race

Even Cal may have title shot

By TIM LIOTTA
AP Sports writer

In what is expected to be a crowded, wide-open race for the Pac-10 Conference basketball championship, the California Golden Bears think they have an outside shot to win their first title since 1950.

Last year's Pac-10 powers—Washington, Southern Cal and Oregon State—are each losing key players, which could make the conference ripe for a surprise champion. It might just fit the bill.

Although they finished tied for eighth in the conference race last year and were 13-15 overall, the Golden Bears might have the fewest holes to fill this season.

Cal's new coach, Lou Campanelli, has four starters back—guards Ken Johnson and Chris Washington and forwards Leonard Taylor and Jim Beatie.

Also back in the Cal lineup will be junior forward Dave Butler, who redshirted last season with knee problems. Butler has 111 points in a game for Cal two years ago.

If the Golden Bears can find somebody to play the center position, they might be the team able to overhaul the Huskies' for the conference title.

"I didn't take this job to be mediocre," said Campanelli. "Our goal is to contend for the Pac-10 championship, to get into postseason play and eventually to play for the national championship."

"I'm a coach who likes challenges. It's not a Mission Impossible situation at California."

With Cal as an outside threat, Washington figures as the most likely team to be in the midst of a Pac-10 race that could be contested by any one of five schools this year. The Huskies finished tied atop the conference a year ago with Southern Cal. Both had 13-5 records.

But even the Huskies, 22-10 overall last season, have question marks. They lost their top scorer and rebounder—from last year—Dette Schrempf, to graduation, but will be counting on 7-foot center Christian Cal and forward Paul Fortier to fill the void.

Last year, Fortier averaged 33.2 points a game while Welp scored 13 per outing. The Huskies will look for even more production from those two this year.

The Huskies also have to blend with the philosophies of their first-year coach—Andy Russo—who replaces a Husky tradition in Marv Harshman.

Far West

Washington has some formidable obstacles besides California. Southern Cal, Oregon State and Arizona State all are possibilities. Even UCLA and Washington State could be considered longshot possibilities.

Southern Cal lost four starters from its 19-10 team last year, including forward Wayne Carlander, the Pac-10 Player of the Year.

Heading the returnees are junior forward Derrick Dowell, the Trojans' leading rebounder last year, and guard Larry Friend. Coach Stan Morrison will be hoping that the highly recruited Taylor, 6-7 freshman from Santa Ana, Calif., who has been impressive in preseason workouts, can make an immediate impact.

UCLA, which tied for third last year and was 22-9 overall, has center Steve Woudsma back, but the Beavers' forward Wayne Carlander, A.C. Green, the conference's leading scorer last year, guards Darryl Flowers and Eric Knox figure big in Coach Ralph Miller's plans this year.

Arizona State has seven of its top eight scorers returning from a team that finished disappointing 12-6 overall last year. Look for 6-7 sophomore forward Chris Sande, who averaged 10 points a game as a freshman, to become even more of an offensive force for the Sun Devils.

UCLA Coach Walt Hazzard, whose Bruins rallied to win 18 of their last 24 games last season and a National Invitation Tournament championship, has forward Reggie Miller and guard Montel Hatcher back to lead the way.

A new face that might have an impact on UCLA is freshman "Pooh" Richardson, a prep All-American point guard from Philadelphia.

Washington State, 5-13 in conference and 13-15 overall last year, have four returning starters, led by forwards Joe Wallace, second in the Pac-10 in scoring, and Otis Jennings.

Arizona Coach Lute Olsen has only one starter—guard Steve Kerr—back from a 21-10 team that finished tied for third in the conference last year, while Oregon Coach Don Monson has only one senior—forward Jerry Adams—on his roster, so the Ducks, 8-10 in conference and 15-16 overall, don't figure to be contenders.

Stanford, in the Pac-10 basement in 1984-85 and 11-17 overall, have a lot of holes to fill around forward Earl Oberlein.

The Pacific Coast Athletic Association, as it has the past three years, should be ruled by the University of Nevada-Las Vegas' Runnin' Rebels.

The Rebels, 20-4 a year ago, have lost two-time PCAA Player of the Year Richie Adams, but Coach Jerry Tarkenton has three returning starters.

The UNLV backcourt, led by returning starters Freddie Banks and Anthony Jones, will be the team's strength. Forward Armon Gilliam, the team's leading rebounder last year, also returns.

The only team given an outside chance of ending UNLV's "Univer-Fly" in the PCAA is San Jose State, which will pin its hopes on Ricky Berry, the 6-8 son of Spartan Coach Bill Berry.

Two-year starting guard Ward Farris will once again run the San Jose offense and sophomore forward Reggie Owens, who proved to be a strong rebounder last year as a freshman, is expected to play a key role if the Spartans are to improve their 16-13 record of a year ago.

UC Irvine, coming off a disappointing 12-17 season, will depend on forward Tom Murphy, who averaged 17 points a game last year.

Fresno State, 23-9 a year ago, has to rebounder leading scorer, and Scott Barnes, last year's leading rebounder. Forward Jos Koopiers is the Bulldogs' top returning starter.

UC Santa Barbara figures to better its 12-16 season last year with all five starters returning, led by forward Scott Fisher.

The West Coast Athletic Conference has added a shot clock and the University of San Francisco, which finishes its first basketball team since the 1981-82 season, to its roster. The WCAC also has itself a heavy favorite this year.

The Waves, 23-9 overall last year, will once again be led by forward Eric White and guard Dwayne Pole. Both averaged over 15 points per game last year.

Santa Clara, 20-9 overall and second in the WCAC a year ago, have only two starters returning—guard Steve Remivort and forward Dan Wens.

San Diego will try to rebound from a disappointing fourth-place finish last year behind all-conference center Scott Thompson, while Gonzaga, Portland and St. Mary's and San Francisco each figure to have an outside shot at third place at best.

Starting the rebuilding

Colts begin weeding players

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Frustrated by what he's seen on the football field recently, Coach Rod Dowhower announced Monday that the time for change had arrived.

Dowhower, who has seen Indianapolis lose five of its last six games to go 3-8 in his first season as a National Football League season as a head coach, said veteran wide receiver Ray Butler was being cut, and that he was replacing Mike Pagel at quarterback with Matt Kofler.

"Butler, a starter for most of his six years with the Colts, had only one reception for 23 yards Sunday as Indianapolis dropped a 34-20 game to Miami. The 6-foot-3, 197-pounder, who led Indianapolis in receptions this season with 43 last year, had 19 catches for 345 yards in his season."

"He just hasn't proven effective. The name of the game is to make the plays. He hasn't made them," said Dowhower in announcing the decision.

Dowhower also announced that rookie nose tackle George Achica had been cut. Achica and Butler were replaced on the active list by rookie wide receiver Ricky Nichols and rookie cornerback Don Anderson. Both had been on the injured reserve list.

"I wanted to let Willie Broughton play nose tackle. He played it in college. We can't play both and Brad White's been doing a yeoman's job," Dowhower said. "By no means are the two men being cut responsible for our nose dive. We just needed to make some changes."

The Colts, losers the past two weeks to New England and Miami, said Sunday's game didn't produce his decisions.

"What am I going to do, redshirt them and then see what they can do in four exhibition games next year?," Dowhower said about Nichols and Anderson. "They're here and they've been working out and they need to get involved now."

The decision to replace Pagel, who has started all but the opening game this season, comes less than one week after Dowhower said Kofler was not ready to start.

"We're going to start Matt Kofler on Sunday," Dowhower said Monday afternoon at a news conference. "Pagel probably played as well as he's played yesterday, but we need a new direction. I've been considering the move."

Kofler, acquired from Buffalo during training camp, saw no action in the first seven Indianapolis games. He's completed 21 of 35 passes for 272 yards and had three passes intercepted while seeing limited duty in three games. The 6-3, 192-pounder will be making his first NFL start in Kansas City Sunday against a club seeking to snap a seven-game losing streak.

Pagel, who completed 14 of 33 passes for 222 yards and had several dropped against Miami, has 135 completions in 278 attempts for 1,688 yards and nine touchdowns. He's also had 11 passes intercepted and been sacked 19 times for 131 yards.

"Matt came in and played well in his limited experience," Dowhower said. "The change is a necessity. I didn't want to take Mike out yesterday because I thought he was doing a good job."

Lakers only appear to get better

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — It's early in the season, but the Los Angeles Lakers appear to be playing even better than when they won the National Basketball Association title last season.

"When I was with the Lakers, we'd look at tapes and see a lot of little things we did wrong," says Dave Wohl, who spent the last three years as a Los Angeles assistant before becoming head coach of the New Jersey Nets.

"Now that I'm coaching against them, I watch tapes of the Lakers and I don't find any weaknesses. They don't do anything wrong. They're awesome."

The 1985-86 Lakers, seeking to become the first team to repeat as NBA champions since Boston did it in 1968-69, are off to a 10-1 start, the league's top record and their best start since they moved to Los Angeles in 1960.

They've won six straight after losing to the Cleveland Cavaliers Nov. 5, and have outscored their opponents by an average of more than 14 points in their 11 games.

Lakers Coach Pat Riley, although saying that there's still a lot of room for improvement, believes the players' experience as a unit—most of the same group has won three NBA titles in the past six years—is extremely important.

"Maybe the biggest thing this team has going for it is its chemistry," Riley said. "The players on this team have been blending together for a long time."

"It's on and off the court. They know each other very well, understand each other and like each other. During a game, they can almost sense what the other players are going to do."

Louisville, N.C. hold advantage for basketball newcomers

By JIM O'CONNELL
The Associated-Press

Freshmen of influence

When the 1985 college basketball recruiting season was over, two veteran coaches once again had the edge on their contemporaries and one of the best of last year's high school seniors wasn't to be found on any campus.

Louisville and North Carolina, two of college basketball's more successful teams over the past decade, signed some of the better players and coaches Denny Crum and Dean Smith have solid crews of veterans returning so their freshmen can only help the Cardinals and Tar Heels this season.

Alfredo "Tito" Horford, a 7-footer from the Dominican Republic, was considered the big man who could make a program go. Two programs, in fact.

Horford, who attended Marian Christian High School in Houston, signed a national letter of intent with the University of Houston, but was ruled ineligible when the school admitted recruiting violation.

Horford arrived on Louisiana State's campus just one day before the NCAA was to hold a hearing on the situation at Houston.

With possible Southeastern Conference title circulating throughout Baton Rouge, Horford disappeared. He was dismissed from the team by Coach Dale Brown after he missed a practice and intrasquad game.

Allegations of tampering by other schools surfaced and now, Horford is an outstanding player without a school.

Some schools, though, are more than stocked, with outstanding players.

Louisville will enter the 1985-86 season with some new faces that could make the Cardinals one of the nation's deepest teams after finishing 19-16 and making the semifinals of the National Invitation Tournament.

Tony Kimbro, a 6-7 local product, leads the Louisville Class of 1989 along with 6-7 Kenny Payne of Laurel, Miss., 6-10 Perzyl Ellison of Savannah, Ga., 6-7 Marshall Avery of Myrtle Beach, S.C., 6-8 David Robinson of Gainesville, Fla., and 6-4 Keith Williams, also of Louisville.

Crum said Ellison has "locked up" the starting center spot. I think he's going to be a great player," Crum also said Kimbro and Payne "are way ahead of the rest of the freshmen. They're going to play a lot."

Add to that list 6-2 Kevin Walla, one of the nation's leading high school scorers two years ago who sat out last season after knee surgery, and the return of senior guard Mill Wagner from an injury, and it's obvious why Crum's winces from his first non-20-victory season in 14 years at Louisville have turned to smiles.

Smith had plenty to smile about last year at North Carolina and it will be tough to wipe the grin off his face again this year as five starters return from last year's 27-9 team that went to the regional finals.

Joining veterans Brad Daugherty, Kenny Smith, Joe Wolf and Steve Hale on the Tar Heel roster are 6-2 Jeff Lebo of Carlisle, Pa., who has been compared to almost every outstanding guard the game has had in the last 30 years, 6-6 Kevin Madden of Staunton, Va., 6-6 Steve Bucknall of Boston and 6-11 Marty Hensley of Marion, N.C.

Smith, who never comments on his freshmen and doesn't let them talk to the press until after their first game, missed having the recruiting class a coach can only dream of by about eight miles. That's how far away 6-10 Danny Ferry is from the North Carolina campus since he enrolled at Duke in Durham.

Ferry, who has been compared to Larry Bird of the Boston Celtics because of his unselfish nature on the court, could be the player Coach Mike Krzyzewski needs. Ferry, a graduate of DeMatha High School and the son of Washington Bullets general manager Bob Ferry, is expected to start for the Blue Devils.

Several other freshmen are expected to step in and fill a void for teams considered Top Twenty caliber.

Georgia Tech will rely heavily on 6-8 Tommy Hammonds from Crestview, Fla., one of the more heavily recruited players in the nation.

"Things are good," Georgia Tech Coach Bobby Cremins said. "For us to be a great team, which everybody says we are, Hammonds has got to help us. He's very, very valuable."

Another player expected to fill a large gap in a program is Tennessee's 6-11 Doug Roth, whose addition has Coach Don DeVoe calling the Volunteers a "real force."

UCLA went across the nation to sign a guard that should stabilize the defending NIT champions, Jerome "Pooh" Richardson of Philadelphia. Richardson has been praised for his scoring ability, but Pac-10 coaches have been even more impressed with his defensive prowess.

Indiana Coach Bob Knight signed a solid prospect in Riley Gilroy of Philadelphia, who was impressive at the National Sports Festival.

Georgetown, which lost three-time All-American center Patrick Ewing, landed 6-9 Jonathan Edwards of New Orleans, while fellow Big East team Pittsburgh expects immediate help by the admissions department at Cincinnati, who was impressive at Ohio. One that got away, actually sent away, from Georgetown was Darryl Frue, a 6-7 forward from Washington, D.C., who enrolled at West Virginia after being rejected by the admissions department at Cincinnati, Georgetown.

Syracuse-Terps match set

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Syracuse University and the University of Maryland have accepted preliminary invitations to play in the Cherry Bowl football game at the Pontiac Silverdome, a spokesman for the event said Monday.

Michael L. Mills, director of communications and marketing for the Cherry Bowl, said official announcement of the teams playing in the Dec. 21 event would be made Saturday. But both Maryland and Syracuse had accepted informal invitations, Mills said.

"The chance of playing before 80,000 certainly is appealing, and considering the closeness of (Pontiac), it should give our alumni and fans a chance to attend the game," said Maryland Athletic Director Dick Dull.

Mills said he expected Syracuse to confirm by noon Tuesday that it would play in the Cherry Bowl. Syracuse Athletic Director Jake Crouthamr did not immediately return telephone messages Monday afternoon.

The Cherry Bowl pays about $1.1 million for each team, about half the payment for the Orange, Cotton, Rose and Sugar bowls.

Vandy trainer pleads guilty

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Former Vanderbilt University strength coach E.J. "Doc" Kreiss and former pharmacist Melvin "Woody" Wilson pleaded guilty Monday to selling steroid drugs to a former Clemson University coach.

Attorneys for Kreiss and Wilson reached a plea-bargain agreement with District Attorney General Tom Shriver, who allowed the men to plead guilty to a charge that in September had been dismissed on a technicality by Special Judge Bobby Capers.

In exchange, Shriver dropped a count of conspiracy against Kreiss and 95 counts of possession and distribution against Wilson.

Kreiss and Wilson could receive maximum sentences of 11 months, 29 days in the Davidson County jail at a sentencing hearing that will be held at an as yet unscheduled time next week.

In addition to the Clemson sale, Wilson also pleaded guilty to a misdemeanor count of conspiracy to possess and distribute steroid drugs without required prescriptions.

Kreiss' attorney, Roger May, said "it's no secret" both men will seek a probationary sentence.

Falcons' Kenn out for year

SUWANEE, Ga. (AP) — The Atlanta Falcons learned officially Monday that All-Pro offensive tackle Mike Kenn will be sidelined for the remainder of the National Football League season, as will punter Rick Donnelly.

Both players suffered knee injuries in Atlanta's 24-14 upset victory over the Los Angeles Rams Sunday.

Kenn, who has played in five Pro Bowl games, suffered a torn medial collateral ligament with cruciate damage to his right knee and the extent of the cruciate damage was to be determined in surgery Monday.

Donnelly sprained his right knee when he was rolled by a teammate during a Los Angeles punt return in Sunday's game.

Coach Dan Henning said a replacement for Kenn had not yet been made and that place kicker Mick Hubert would serve as the emergency punter, unless last year's punter, Ralph Giacominro, decides to return to pro football. Giacominro was cut by the Falcons during training camp. Tight end Arthur Cox will serve as the emergency kicking specialist.

The Falcons, 2-9, will be facing the only unbeaten team in the National Football League Sunday when they visit the Chicago Bears, and Atlanta will be starting its sixth different offensive line this season.

Stress break shelves Drexler

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Portland starting guard Clyde Drexler, the National Basketball Association team's assist leader and No. 2 scorer, has suffered a stress fracture in his left leg and will be out of the lineup indefinitely, the Trail Blazers announced Monday.

The 6-foot-7 third-year pro, known for his spectacular slam-dunking style, will be unable to run or do any other leg exercises for at least a week to 10 days, team spokesman John White said.

White said it wasn't known when Drexler suffered the injury. Trainer Ron Clup said the leg began to bother Drexler in the game at Utah Friday night. Despite the problem, he scored 24 points and had 10 assists in the Blazers' 117-104 homecourt loss to Milwaukee Sunday night, including 20 points in the first half.

Drexler had been averaging 17.6 points per game, second only to Kiki Vandeweghe.

THE ACES®

BOBBY WOLFF

"The world which credits what is done is cold to all that might have been."
— Alfred, Lord Tennyson.

There are several ways to play today's slam. As it turns out, the winning play is the technically superior one. Study the layout to see if you can find the best line.

At the recent San Antonio Regional, it took some aggressive moves to reach the excellent heart slam. What is your plan against the lead of the club king?

Those who won the club ace.

SOUTH ♦ 3

♥ A K 10 9
♥ J 8

Vulnerable: Neither. Dealer: South.

The bidding:
South West North East
1♥ Pass 3♥ Pass
4♥ Pass 5♥ Pass

Opening lead: Club king

East led two high diamonds and followed with a trump finesse, lost the slam quickly. East won and led a club, and the defenders had two tricks.

Henry Baer of Dallas found the winning play, taking a ruffing spade finesse while protecting himself from losing a club trick. Henry won the club ace, cashed the spade ace and pushed through dummy's spade suit, discarding his last club when East didn't cover. Later he took a safe trump finesse, losing only one trick in the process.

Note that the spade finesse can be taken in either direction but that only the ruffing finesse is technically sound. If the ruffing finesse loses, South's losing club is gone and success still rests with the possibility of winning the heart finesse.

ANSWER: Three no-trump: It may not make, but the diamond jack encourages South's chances enough to justify taking a shot.
