Pakistan closes in on bomb

By GEORGE GEDDA
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — India's nuclear weapons production capability has increased by more than 1,000 per cent since it first exploded a nuclear device 11 years ago while neighboring Pakistan has achieved "very significant" advances in its program, a top nuclear expert said Monday.

Leonard Spector, author of a new study on efforts to prevent the spread of nuclear weapons, said the Indian and Pakistani nuclear policies have made South Asia the area of "the greatest proliferation in the danger of proliferation over the past year."

Spector also said he assumes Israel has 25 nuclear weapons and estimates South Africa has enough material for perhaps 10 to 15 weapons.

At a news conference sponsored by Foreign Policy magazine, Spector summarized the findings of his study, "The New Nuclear Nations," which was written under the auspices of the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace, a private, non-profit organization. The information in his 367-page study was based mostly on public sources.

There are five nations which have admitted possession of atomic weapons—the United States, the Soviet Union, China, Britain, and France. India exploded a single nuclear device in 1974 but has always maintained that it was for "peaceful" purposes.

Spector said India enhanced its nuclear program over the past year by introducing "a sizable power reactor" and an "unusually large research reactor." He added that neither is subject to international inspection.

"If we take these facilities and we look at some others that have been built in the last year or two, it is a correct estimate to say that India's nuclear weapon production capability has increased by more than 1,000 per cent since 1974, and that is on the basis of these reactors," Spector said.

As for Pakistan, Spector said that in July that country, which has fought three wars with India since 1947, "was able to demonstrate the nuclear portion of a nuclear weapon—a very significant milestone."

In August, he said, there were reports that the Pakistanis were seeking to purchase, and may have bought, a flash X-ray machine, which can be used in dummy nuclear tests.

U.S. aided Egyptian commando unit

By GEORGE C. WILSON and DAVID B. OTTAWAY
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — The United States provided secret equipment to Egyptian commandos preparing to storm a hijacked jetliner on Sunday and also offered to protect the commandos with warplanes from the USS Coral Sea, Pentagon officials said Monday.

The Egyptian force was given what U.S. officials described as "technical support," including portable listening gear which allowed the commandos to determine where the terrorists were located inside the hijacked Boeing 737. Sixty people were killed during the rescue attempt.

The Coral Sea had been ordered to have F-18 fighter bombers and E-2C control planes prepared for action if the Egyptian government requested help in protecting the C-130 transport planes carrying the commandos, Pentagon officials said. The Egyptians never asked for help.

An administration official said the quick offer of U.S. military assistance is part of a "get tough" policy on terrorist attacks, with the United States prepared to help friendly governments requesting aid against terrorists.

Pentagon officials added, however, that the offer of armed assistance did not extend to bombing missions against Libyan forces if any military action had been taken against Egypt during the hijacking crisis. "That's not our bag," one official added Monday night.

The White House said Monday that President Reagan had sent a message of support to Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak for the decision to dispatch the commandos to Malta.

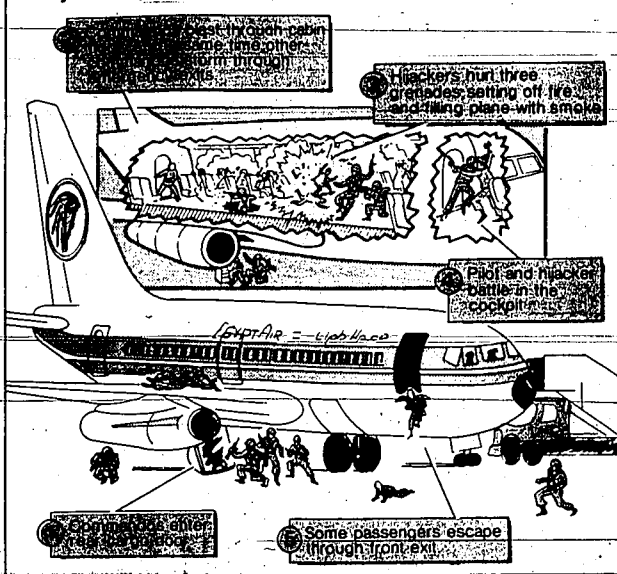

According to spokesman Edward Djerejian, Reagan sent the cable to Mubarak Sunday night through the U.S. Embassy in Cairo. The White House declined to reveal the contents of the message, but one official said it supported Egypt's handling of the rescue attempt while lamenting the loss of life.

Defense Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger also praised Mubarak for his action, in an interview with Reuters news agency, saying, "We think the Egyptian and Maltese governments did what had to be done."

The State Department reaffirmed that the United States "fully supports" what it called the "difficult decision" taken by the governments.

Hijacking Drama

Ordeal ends for families of Americans

The Associated Press

The ordeal of three American families whose relatives were aboard the hijacked Egyptian plane has ended, with one family learning Monday of their daughter's death and the two others thankful their loved ones survived.

Meanwhile, a Massachusetts man learned that his brother, a Greek sailor, also died in the hijacking.

The three Americans, along with two Israeli women, were singled out by the Arab terrorists who commandeered the Boeing 737 on Saturday as it left Athens, Greece, on a flight to Cairo, Egypt, and forced it to the Mediterranean island of Malta.

The gunmen shot each of them in the back of the head and their bodies fell or were thrown from the plane's platform. But only one woman, Scarlett Marie Rogenkamp, 38, of Oceanside, Calif., died. The others were hospitalized in conditions ranging Monday from serious to good.

Ms. Rogenkamp was a civilian employee at the Air Force Contract Management Center detachment at the Tanagra Air Base near Athens. She was on vacation when the plane was hijacked, said Defense Department spokesman Cmdr. Bob Prucha.

The wounded Americans were Patrick Scott Baker, 28, of White Salmon, Wash., and Jackie Nink Plig, 30, of Pasadena, Texas, a special education teacher. In Cairo, Mrs. Plig underwent nine hours of surgery Sunday to remove a bullet from her head and was in serious but stable condition Monday. Baker, the first American to be shot, was grazed in the head by the bullet.

In Draught, Mass., Joanna Houllaris said her brother-in-law, 24-year-old Ioannis Houllaris, died

In the fire that engulfed the Egyptian jetliner after the commando raid.

Mrs. Houllaris is married to Peter Houllaris, the man's older brother.

Ioannis Houllaris, a sailor in the Greek navy, was headed to Cairo to catch a second plane to Japan where he was to board a ship for his next tour of duty, she said.

Ms. Rogenkamp's sister, Katherine Peterson, said the funeral has been scheduled tentatively for Friday.

"Dad said to make arrangements for Friday. He said my sister should be back by then," Ms. Peterson said from Oceanside after her father telephoned from Washington, D.C., with word from the State Department.

Her mother, Hetty Peterson, spoke briefly with reporters, fighting back tears.

"I was very happy to be with my daughter this morning," she said.

Sun emerges Monday but cold on way to state

The Associated Press

The sun broke through clouded skies for a white Monday as much of southern Idaho dug out from another in the series of storms system that has been dumping snow on the state for more than a week.

But travelers advisories were in effect for the central and eastern sections of the southern part of the state and for the Panhandle as well as another snowstorm built intensity to the northwest and began moving toward Idaho.

Region blanketed — B1

The weekend system that finally left the state Monday brought with it record cold and enough additional snow to push total snowfall for November to record levels in both the eastern and western parts of the state.

As Monday dawned road conditions across much of the state's southern half were hazardous and schools in a number of areas were closed. Scores of minor accidents and slide-offs were reported to the Idaho State Police as freezing rain mixed with snow at times.

Idaho Highways 32, 33 and 34 in eastern and southeastern Idaho were closed, and drifting was reported throughout. Visibility was near zero over Malad Pass.

Interstate 15, trucks were stopped at Bliss on Interstate 84 during the morning and snow closed in on rural roads, ISP dispatcher Rose Roberts said.

More than a dozen districts closed schools including Shelley and Rigby in eastern Idaho, Cassia County in southern Idaho and Mountain Home, Vallivue, and Greenleaf Friends Academy in the southwestern part of the state.

By late Monday, the National Weather Service said Boise had received over three inches of new snow, bringing the total for the month to well over 11 inches and eclipsing the 20th century record for November of 8.8 inches set in 1973.

In Pocatello, a record 7.3 inches of snow on Sunday brought to 20.2 inches of snow the amount fallen on that city this month, making it the snowiest November on record.

But National Weather Service forecaster Bob Glodo said a cold, snowy November does not always mean a bitter winter. Of the 10 coldest, snowiest winters on record, Glodo said only two were preceded by an extremely adverse November.

Symms hears no call for aid to spud farmers

By BOB FREUND
Times-News writer

JEROME — Heading into Idaho's potato harvest season, Steve Symms is hearing little call for government aid to offset either low potato prices or frost-damaged crops.

Symms, R-Idaho, and U.S. Agricultural Marketing Service Administrator James Handley are checking potato crops and talking to farmers as far north as Idaho Falls today.

But, speaking in Jerome Monday, the state's junior senator said potato growers have not clamored for government help, either through a federal diversion program or through disaster declarations.

Symms said in a short interview that he would not consider any federal diversion program to firm up prices unless requested by the state's spud farmers. Many farmers felt the last such program in 1978 hurt their interests, he said. The government paid farmers directly for potatoes at above-market prices, and sold them at low prices to livestock producers for cattle feed.

Early fall frosts also have numbed a significant portion of the state's crop and threaten the entire yields of some farms in eastern Idaho, Symms said.

"I saw a potato cellar where they were taking them out in an end loader and dumping them out in a field," he said.

However, Symms said, he found skepticism among farmers about disaster declarations that could bring them cut-rate loans from the government.

"They have a disaster; there's no question about that," he said. At the same time, "They didn't know whether they wanted to be declared a disaster area," partially because

Identified by Soviet turnabout defector

FBI spy sweep nabs ex-NSA worker

By MICHAEL J. SNIFFEN
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — A former National Security Agency communications specialist, originally implicated by turnabout defector Vitaly Yurchenko, has told the FBI he sold U.S. secrets to the Soviet Union and became on Monday the fourth American arrested on espionage charges in five days.

Early Monday at an Annapolis, Md., hotel, the FBI arrested Ronald William Pelton, 44, who worked from 1965 to 1979 for the super-secret NSA, which spies on foreign communications and breaks codes.

In a court affidavit, FBI agent David Faulkner said Pelton told the FBI in an interview Sunday that he met with KGB officer Anatoly Slavnov on several occasions from January 1980 through January 1983. Pelton admitted receiving cash from Slavnov several times, including a $15,000 payoff as a result of a trip to Vienna, Austria, in January 1983, according to the affidavit.

A federal source, who requested anonymity, said Pelton had been fired by the NSA for reasons not linked to the charges against him. Several sources said Pelton was the second former U.S. intelligence official whose work for the Soviets was disclosed by Vitaly Yurchenko, the KGB general-designate who defected to the U.S. on Aug. 1 and returned to the Soviet Union three months later.

The Pelton arrests came on a day replete with spy developments in the capital.

The United States concluded a spy swap with Ghana, allowing Michael A. Soussoudis, 39, a cousin of Ghana's military leader Lt. Jerry Rawlings, to return to Ghana while close to 10 Ghanaians "of interest to the United States" were allowed to fly to an unidentified African country. Soussoudis pleaded no contest to charges under the espionage act and was sentenced to 20 years in prison, but that was reduced to time served since his arrest July 16.

His former lover, Sharon M. Scranage, 29, a former clerk in the CIA's Ghana station, who pleaded guilty to revealing the identities of CIA informants to Soussoudis, was sentenced Monday to five years in prison.

Foreign officials, who demanded anonymity, said their government was investigating whether someone at their Washington embassy overstepped his authority in buying classified U.S. documents from Jonathan J. Pollard, 31, a Navy civilian counter-terrorism analyst who was charged last Thursday with selling secrets to a foreign power identified by U.S. sources as Israel.

Pollard's wife, Ann Henderson-Pollard, 25, who was arrested Friday night, was formally charged before a magistrate with unauthorized possession of documents relating to the national defense. She was held without bail.

In addition to the Pelton and Pollard cases, Larry Wu-Tai Chin, 63, a former CIA intelligence analyst, was arrested Friday and charged with selling U.S. secrets to China since 1957 for more than $150,000, including information on communist Chinese soldiers, taken prisoner during the Korean War.

Eastern Nevada national park proposal hailed by backers

BLV, Nev. (AP) — A plan to establish Nevada's first national park was hailed as an economic boon to the eastern part of the state while ranchers warned it could undermine their grazing rights.

Eight members of Congress, sitting as a House subcommittee on national parks and recreation, listened Monday as some 80 people testified on a proposal to establish the Great Basin National Park around 13,063-foot Wheeler Peak near the Utah border.

The 174,000-acre park plan was tacked onto a bill establishing nearly 1 million acres of federal wilderness areas throughout Nevada. Rep. Bruce Vento, D-Minn., author of the bill, chaired the hearing.

"I'm an unabashed enthusiast for the park. I haven't heard anything here that I think is unwelcome or unresolvable," Vento said.

Nevada's two representatives, Harry Reid, D-Nev., and Barbara Vucanovich, R-Nev., battled each other with their differing wilderness bills before the House Interior Committee. Reid's bill called for designating 130,000 acres around Wheeler Peak as wilderness.

Mrs. Vucanovich voiced concerns Monday about amending the wilderness bill rather than considering the proposed park on its own merits.

Reid responded that the hearing was to determine the value of the park to the state and the nation and not the merits of the wilderness bill.

Evans may seek seat belt law

BOISE (AP) — Gov. John Evans said he is considering seeking a mandatory seat belt law in Idaho and urged Gem State residents to join in "All-American Buckle Up Week."

Evans challenged Idahoans to use their seat belts for one week during the All-American Buckle Up Week. Patterned after the Great American Smokeout, the theme of buckle-up week is "start a new habit for life."

Grant Jones of the Idaho AAA said the seat belt campaign is being launched during Thanksgiving week because that's traditionally a time of numerous accidents.

Balloonists top Himalayas

KATMANDU, Nepal (AP) — Two Australians and a Briton said Monday they flew over the Himalayas in an open wicker basket suspended from a hot-air balloon to honor two centuries of balloon flight.

"We flew across the Machapuchhare peak ... and Lamjung Himal ... the highest mountains that a hot air balloon has ever flown over," Chris Dewhurst of Sydney told The Associated Press on his return from north-west Nepal.

Machapuchhare is 22,942 feet high and Lamjung Himal measures 22,912 feet.

Dewhurst, 37, was accompanied by his colleague from Melbourne, Brian Smith, 36, and Leo Dickinson, 38, of London, on the two-hour flight.

Reality, fantasy matched

WASHINGTON (AP) — The reality of possible war in space has caught up with the fantasy created in the movie blockbuster, "Star Wars," a federal judge was told Monday.

Mary E. Jackstell, an attorney for an arms control organization, told U.S. District Judge Gerhard A. Gesell that filmmaker George Lucas "cannot turn back the clock" on what she described as "the real world."

"The kind of weapons they are talking about shows that fantasy has turned into reality," said Ms. Jackstell, referring to President Reagan's futuristic missile defense system, the Strategic Defense Initiative.

Lucasfilm Ltd., Lucas's film company, has filed suit to bar supporters and opponents of the Reagan plan from calling it "Star Wars" in television commercials.

One suit was filed Nov. 13 against a pro-Pentagon group, the Coalition for the Strategic Defense Initiative, which is the public relations arm of the High Frontier organization. Last week, a suit was filed against anti-SDI organizations, the Committee for a Strong, Peaceful America and the Committee for National Security and two public relations firms.

During oral arguments on the suits Monday, Gesell combined the cases. He took the case under advisement following the arguments.

Laurence Hefter, attorney for Lucasfilm, said the moviemaker is opposed to the use of the term "Star Wars," a Lucas trademark, in the commercials because children will associate the movie's name with "nuclear holocaust."

Wreckage of twin-engine plane burns following crash in Des Moines, Iowa, neighborhood

Plane carrying runners crashes in Des Moines, killing 7 persons

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — A twin-engine plane carrying members of the Iowa State University cross-country team crashed and burst into flames in a residential neighborhood Monday evening, killing seven people aboard and knocking out power to about 1,600 homes.

The Aero Commander, one of three planes carrying members of the men's and women's teams and coaching staff from Milwaukee to Ames, crashed in a freezing drizzle shortly before 5 p.m. MDT, and missed a house by 50 feet, said Sgt. Bill Mullins.

Seven bodies were found in the wreckage, Mullins said. Firefighters searched the charred wreckage, which lay crumpled at the base of a tree on a sloping street. "The plane was built to carry seven and we think that is all that are there," he said.

Dave Tidler, assistant manager of the Ames airport, confirmed the plane was one carrying part of the Iowa State squad, but added that he did not know how many people were aboard.

Bad weather forced the three planes to be diverted from Ames to Des Moines, and the other two planes landed safely, Mullins said. There were 21 members of the men's and women's teams and coaching staff aboard the three planes.

The cross-country team finished second behind Wisconsin in the NCAA championship meet at Marquette University.

The bodies remained in the plane pending the arrival of officials from the Federal Aviation Administration.

Frank Arbs said he was driving home from a convenience store and heard the plane coming in.

"I could hear one engine sputtering and the other engine just screaming," Arbs said.

It went almost directly over his car as it came in, he added. "It sounded like a semi-truck barreling down the street," said Christy Cobb, who lives in the neighborhood west of downtown. "Before it hit, I said 'That plane's going to crash.' Then the sky turned pink."

Residents were evacuated from the area for fear the plane's burning fuel could explode. Fire and police vehicles lined the street and floodlights bathed the wreckage.

Woman innocent

BANGOR, Maine (AP) — A woman whose ex-boyfriend killed her 4-year-old daughter in an oven during an exorcism rite was found innocent of manslaughter Monday in the child's death.

Superior Court Justice Bruce Chandler said he concluded that Cynthia Palmer was in a trance or perhaps unconscious, causing her to be unaware that her daughter, Angela, was being tortured and killed. Palmer had waived her right to a trial by jury.

Senator sues to have convicts moved

MIAMI (AP) — A detention camp where criminal refugees from Cuba staged a rock-throwing melee and mass escape attempt presents a "clear and present danger" of violence, and the convicts should be moved, a U.S. senator charged in a lawsuit filed Monday.

Sen. Lawton Chiles, D-Fla., accused Attorney General Edwin Meese III and senior immigration and prison officials of dereliction of duty for failing to find a new site for convicted felons who came from Cuba in the 1980 Mariel boatlift.

Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger also was named in the suit, which said the use of military facilities to house the refugees had been discussed.

Spectacular launch of shuttle set tonight

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Space shuttle Atlantis is set to turn tonight into light today in a liftoff that may be visible for hundreds of miles as it speeds toward orbit on a mission to test space-station-building techniques.

The liftoff of Atlantis and its crew of six men and one woman is set for 5:29 p.m. MST. If a forecast of clear skies holds, NASA said, the 700-foot-long tail of fire from the shuttle's booster rockets could be visible from South Canana to Cuba.

"Weatherwise, we're setting up for a really spectacular launch," said Air Force Lt. Scott Funk, the shuttle weather officer. "We should have a clear beautiful sky with almost a full moon."

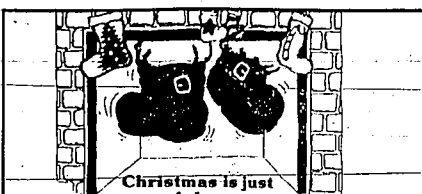

In the only other nighttime shuttle launch, in 1983, Challenger brilliantly illuminated the immediate launch area, but heavy clouds ruined the viewing for those in most of the rest of the state, although the rising ship was seen in Tampa and in Miami, both more than 150 miles away.

"Atlantis will carry into orbit three commercial communications satellite lites, Mexico's first astronaut, a special camera to search for underground water in drought-stricken Africa, a small medicine factory, materials processing experiments and 40 aluminum struts that two space-walking astronauts will assemble into a large beam and a small pyramid.

The astronauts will launch the satellites for the Mexican and Australian governments and RCA American Communications, which are paying NASA a total of about $30 million for the delivery service. Mexican astronaut Rodolfo Neri will be aboard to observe the release of his country's satellite and to conduct several experiments.

Once the cargo bay is clear, Jerry Ross and Sherwood Spring will move outside the cabin to practice techniques for constructing the large permanent space station. The United States plans for the early 1990s. Ninety-three rods, resembling giant Tinkertoy segments, will be snapped together to form a 45-foot beam. Six 12-foot-long struts will be fashioned into an inverted pyramid.

Year on heart for Schroeder

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Artificial heart patient William Schroeder showed slight improvement Monday from his third stroke as he quietly marked his first anniversary with a Jarvik-7 mechanical pump, a spokeswoman said.

The heart has beaten roughly 40 million times since it was turned on by Dr. William C. DeVries during a 6½-hour implant operation to replace his own failing heart.

No special events were planned for Schroeder at Humana Hospital Audubon, but his wife, Margaret, held a reception for members of the medical staff who had helped him during the year.

Schroeder, 53, a federal retiree, became the world's second recipient of a permanent mechanical heart on Nov. 25, 1984, at Audubon, where he is bedridden and recovering from his most recent setback, a stroke on Nov. 10.

Doctors said he had spoken a few single-syllable words in the last week and was moving his limbs, said Donna Hazle, Audubon's director of public affairs.

Smith-Thomas bill reasonable response

The House of Representatives is making progress in solving what some of its members consider a nettlesome problem. We say some, because not all of them are convinced that TV networks' projections in presidential races while polls are open on the West Coast make any difference in other races.

There is anecdotal evidence that people left voter lines in 1980 when the networks accurately projected Ronald Reagan's victory over Jimmy Carter at 5:15 p.m. Pacific time. But there's no reliable evidence that those who left the lines would have made a difference even in the close races in which several veteran Democratic congressmen were beaten.

No candidate has a constitutional right to votes from citizens too apathetic to wait in line.

Still, it somehow injures the notion of common citizenship for voters in one part of the country to have reason to believe that a presidential election is settled before they can have their say.

The injury is nowhere near great enough to justify infringements of the constitutionally protected right to disseminate news. Proposals carelessly tossed off by some politicians to prohibit broadcasting of exit-poll results run up against the First Amendment, as do state laws that bar access to voters outside the polling place in order to prevent exit polling altogether.

Fortunately, Reps. Al Swift, D-Wash., and Bill Thomas, R-Calif., have taken another, more constructive approach.

Their bill, as reported out of the House Administration Committee, has a jerry-built appearance to it. It provides for a uniform poll-closing time in the 48 contiguous states, at 9 p.m. Eastern time, 8 p.m. Central.

In order to give West Coast voters more time to vote, it extends Daylight Savings Time two extra weeks in the Pacific time zone, so that the polls will close at 7 p.m. in California, Oregon, and Washington.

Alaska and Hawaii are left alone, which is evidently their wish. Since the networks have always had a policy of not announcing the result or projecting a winner in a particular state until most of its polls are closed, they will not make any projections until the polls are closed in 48 states.

There will be some objections, notably from airlines that must juggle their schedules for two weeks every four years when the West Coast is on daylight time and the rest of the nation isn't.

A solution to this problem seems well within the capacity of an industry with the ingenuity to administer frequent-flyer and multiple-discount plans.

The Swift-Thomas bill is not ideal. But it seems a reasonable and minimally disruptive response to a problem that troubles some people and is capable of inspiring far worse ideas.

Create places for sledding

Re: Letter from Mr. Courtney, city manager, concerning snow removal from city streets: There are many vacant lots in this city—many are eyesores in summer, with weeds waist high and in many cases a traffic hazard at intersections. I believe there is a city ordinance concerning weed growth but for some reason the city cannot or will not enforce this ordinance. My idea for snow removal might possibly help to control weeds and provide our younger children places to play.

Why not haul snow to these vacant lots, pile it high and let children from three to 12 use the piled-up snow for sledding? These children need a place to play and use that wonderful healthy energy. Twin Falls doesn't have any place except school playgrounds—inadequate to say the least.

I notice dozens of youngsters at the back of the new I.B. Perrine school where there is a big slope. Ideal for sleds. Now soon, either the city or the school board will put a stop to their innocent fun.

If you are worried about accidents and lawsuits, stop the places—make the parents of the youngsters responsible for them.

Also, wouldn't it be less expensive for city trucks to haul and dump snow inside of city limits?

I'm sure all the tramping of little feet on the snow plus the slow melting in the spring, may just help to control ugly weed growth and provide children a place to play.

This is just an idea from a senior citizen who cares about our children.

No time for a pay raise

Open Letter to Congressman Stallings:

In a time when many of your constituents are losing their farms, when inflation has supposedly been whipped, when this country has such a deficit as to be virtually bankrupt—how do you rationalize voting yourself a pay increase of almost $4,000?

The budget reconciliation bill you voted for last month raised your salary to $78,855. Now, in Washington almost $80,000, may not seem much, but out here in Idaho that seems like a sizeable sum to pay an employee who will not even let his employers know that they have given him a raise.

One thing I must commend you on—you have gall: Sir, you certainly have gall.

No entrance requirements

This letter represents an open invitation, to all Republicans that might be disgruntled by their party's latest move to have candidates pass a "Lithium" test to be in their "Elite" party. To take a close look at the very open Democratic Party.

The Democratic Party has, and always will be, the party of the average, working class American. We have no "entrance" requirements to pass. Democrats, historically have been sensible, open-minded individuals, willing to work with all people to care for the common good of our land. While we cannot and will not ever totally agree with everything a party might espouse, we do agree that a political party must be open to all individuals that might have aspirations for candidacy.

Democrats in Idaho are very moderate people. Our ideas and leadership at all levels of state and national positions are nothing to be ashamed of or frightened of. Idaho Democrats are moderate, sensible individuals with a strong love of Idaho and the country.

We are proud to have Rep. Stallings, Gov. Evans; former Gov. Andrus; and the late Sen. Frank Church, as fine examples of patriotic Americans, who have worked for the common good of all Idahans.

So, at this time, ponder your true political beliefs. You may discover that you have voted for these fine people I have mentioned more than once. And you may realize that those who call themselves "conservative," because it is fashionable, actually do not vote the way you think they should.

We welcome any and all types of people. We are a growing, viable party in this state, and are very proud of our tradition and accomplishments.

I'm not saying that we have all the answers, but we will listen to all points of view and would never discourage anyone from running for elective office because that person does not think or act like we think they should.

Twin Falls dislikes youth

I'm starting to wonder about the future of Twin Falls.

One might ask why a 20-year-old Caucasian gentleman would be concerned about the future of his city. God knows that most men that answer that description don't.

This venerable city definitely has a problem: Hatred of youth. Yup, that's right, Twin Falls hates a progressive "young man."

I have tried unsuccessfully to gain meaningful and gainful employment in this fair burg, but hear the same disheartening phrase: "Boy, you're young."

Somebody explain this to me. I've gone to interviews that were for jobs stereotypical of the 30-year-old, resume in hand, wishing to get a job that requires no experience. A month later, I call on the same firm to find that the job has been taken with the person that exemplifies the position.

The American youth has much to offer—after all, where can one find limitless energy? A young person. What person can cater hours to your desires? Youth.

In closing, I'd like to pass on a few quotes: "Give us love for what they are: young men for what they promise to be!"—Chateaubriand—"Keep true to the dreams of thy youth!"—Schiller.

"The mind is a terrible thing to waste!"—United Negro College Fund.

Letters/ Tax increase to help Idaho education would be counter-productive

Idaho needs more promotion

Regarding a suggestion recently made by a spokesman for several large Boise based companies, I would like to say this:

He advocated a tax increase to provide more funding for education. This would be counter-productive for several reasons. First of all the people simply cannot afford a tax increase. Increased tax means we will have less to spend for consumer goods. That will hurt business and cause more unemployment. It also means less tax money for the state. It's self-defeating.

Others have advocated expanding the tax base by bringing new business to Idaho. That is the only practical solution to Idaho's depressed economy. It would generate new tax dollars and jobs.

Business can be attracted by setting up state commissions, industrial, agricultural and tourist—the individual and tourist boards could launch nation wide campaigns to bring in business tourists. The agriculture commission would promote our products world-wide.

Every time I pick up a magazine, I see ads promoting our neighboring states. It is very rare to see anything promoting Idaho. If tourists don't know what we have, they won't come. We have more than potatoes to offer, but the world doesn't know that. Let's tell them.

The state and counties must be willing to provide tax incentives to new industry. Our chambers of commerce should work with the legislators towards that end. The state can also spur new growth by lowering the tax rate on interest and dividends. This would encourage saving, and investments and provide new capital for growth. It would also draw outside money.

Republican and Democratic politicians must stop squabbling and start cooperating. If the politicians continue to sit on their hands and avoid the issue, then the people need to do the job themselves and get new politicians.

Educators must realize that they have to lighten their belts along with the rest of us. If the schools spent less on sports and other frills, we would be better off. I haven't seen a sheriff's sale on a campus yet. Everyday farms go under and companies fold and yet school administrators talk about building convention centers. They are not living in the real world and schools should not be in the entertainment business.

If CSI wants to help bring in new industry, they should change their curriculum. How many body and fender men, small engine mechanics, and refrigeration technicians can we use? The market was flooded long ago.

The fact is our schools are wasteful and over-funded. They don't know what economy is. Their basic tenet is, "Ask and we shall receive." Do we build schools to educate; or to make jobs for teachers? This should be clarified.

Educators, in order to get more money, are now claiming that a primary requirement for new industry is a larger higher education system. Wrong! If that were true, our industry wouldn't have moved to the far East and other underdeveloped areas. Idaho is not a poor state. Our resources compare favorably with many other states. What doesn't Connecticut, Alabama or Florida have? Yet they are thriving, thriving because they do.

Another thing we can do is buy American made goods. Every time an Idaho rancher buys a Japanese pickup, a worker in Detroit loses his job. That worker can't buy beef anymore, so the rancher goes broke. That's a little simplistic, but basically true. The same applies to radios, clothing, shoes and anything else we buy. American must start keeping her dollars and jobs at home. Buy American.

One of the most important things we can do is to vote intelligently. Stop voting along party lines. Vote for someone because he gets things done, and not just because he's a Republican or Democrat. If the politicians know you are watching, then they'll watch out. Otherwise, they'll continue their silly, self-serving little games.

If Congress ever gets serious about balancing the budget it will mean cutbacks. That translates into less money for Idaho. We have to love ourselves.

If we want to pay our civil service employees decent wages, we must have new revenue. If we want new swimming pools, jails, roads and sewers, we must have the expanded tax base to pay for them or do without.

We will not attract new business by raising taxes, we will drive them away. The primary lure for new industry are, a favorable tax climate, land with compatible zoning, transportation, market accessibility and an available work force. There's no reason we can't provide all this except for inertia.

Not a day goes by that doesn't see Idahans leaving their homes in search of work and a better future elsewhere. If Idahans don't get together, with or without the politicians, things will continue to deteriorate. Think about it and then let's do something. Vote, write your legislators, attend meetings. Farmers and townspeople must work together. Your future and your children's future are at stake.

Teachers deserve far more

There have been many recent articles and letters concerning education. I am thankful that some of our local representatives have listening ears, unfortunately not all are comprehending the situation.

It is very difficult to teach a subject and expect the students to excel when there is not enough money to buy books for each student.

Many schools are struggling to update facilities that are deteriorating or have even been condemned.

Construction projects have to be scaled down because of lack of adequate funds or rising construction costs. A projected high school cafeteria and kitchen becomes just a cafeteria. Locker, weight, and wrestling rooms are totally deleted. Many teachers are told that facilities they were shown on blue prints have to be scaled down. Items such as cabinets, storage areas, desks, etc. will have to wait. Wait until when?

Many teachers have been forced to use personal equipment of their own, and there is no reimbursement.

Where do we draw the line as to what we expect of our teachers? They are "professional educators" that deserve better pay, better working conditions and a lot more respect.

In your paper recently there was an article about raising the sales tax increase only if that money is for education. It is a fair tax in that everyone pays, not just property owners. Currently many parents with school age children are not property owners, so the burden of our educational system lies unfairly upon those who pay property taxes. Let's change the way our educational system is funded so there is an adequate amount of money supplied by everyone.

Change bond passage rules

The talk around town is that the populous is not progressive—witness—four bond proposals rejected during the last couple of years.

The results of these votes though, rather than supporting the anti-progress notion, seem actually to support the opposite view. Three of the five votes garnered large majorities, majorities considerably larger than that received by President Reagan in the last election. Yet, President Reagan's margin was perceived as a mandate to implement his policies.

Perhaps the problem is not the anti-progress nature of our citizens, but the two-third majority vote required to pass a bond. Many states require much smaller margins. For example a county jail bond recently passed in Elko by considerably less than 67 percent because only one vote more than 50 percent is required to pass a bond proposal in Nevada.

In truth, we have a tyranny of the minority in our state; 34 percent of the voters can, election after election, torpedo the wishes and desires of the majority. I propose that as one step in getting our city and state off of dead center, the legislature reduce the percent required to pass a bond proposal from 67 to 55.

Input on education needed

As a newly appointed State Representative of District 23, I would greatly appreciate public input on the critical "Education Funding Issue" affecting our state. In January, when the Legislature resumes in Boise, I will be representing you. To do the job effectively, I need your thoughts, ideas and information.

I have already spoken with many people in our area on the public education issue. What has become increasingly apparent is the differing views of this issue concerning the future of our state. Because of this wide dissension, I would appreciate specific information, so that I might better represent my constituency.

Please take a moment of your time to tell me your views on Public Education funding. If additional funding is needed, it will probably require a tax increase. What tax should be raised? Sales tax rate? Sales tax on services? Income tax or property tax? Please let me know your feelings on this issue or any other state concern you may have.

With your continued communication and support, I will strive to do the best job I can in representing you.

Arabs may be suspects in anti-U.S. bombing

FRANKFURT, West Germany (AP) — Two men believed to be carrying Moroccan passports became prime suspects Monday in the hunt for those who bombed a U.S. military shopping center, West German authorities reported.

Sunday's car bombing wounded 35 people, almost all of them U.S. civilians and servicemen. Three remained hospitalized Monday, one a serviceman who had been listed in serious condition but was upgraded to good condition Monday.

Officials have refused to release the names of the injured.

Authorities first had said the attack looked like the work of West German leftist terrorists. Later they said foreigners might have been responsible, and federal police issued a statement saying the silver-blue metallic BMW 525 sedan in which the explosives were packed had been bought Saturday by two men "apparently carrying Moroccan passports."

Authorities issued descriptions and composite pictures of the pair and asked possible witnesses to report any sightings of the men, described as being in their 30s.

"They may be Arabs," the statement said, adding that both were definitely foreigners and that only one spoke any German. One man's name appeared on his passport as "Azuz Mohsein."

Police said the two told the automobile dealership they were taking the BMW to Jiblat, the Moroccan capital, where they said they resided.

The same second-hand car dealership, outside Frankfurt, also sold the car that was used in a bombing at the U.S. Air Force Rhein-Main Air Base on Aug. 8, which killed two Americans and injured 20 people.

The left-wing Red Army Faction terrorist group claimed responsibility for that attack, but there was no immediate assertion of responsibility for Sunday's blast.

Peres seeks meeting

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Prime Minister Shimon Peres said Monday he is willing to meet Morocco's King Hassan II and discuss Middle East peace plans, an aide told The Associated Press.

Peres was quoted by the aide, Baruch Askerov, as saying, "There were exchanges of messages between the king and myself, and I will be happy to meet with him."

The prime minister was responding to an offer reportedly made earlier Monday by Hassan, who said he was ready to receive Peres in Morocco if the Israeli leader had serious proposals for a new Middle East peace initiative.

Hassan is chairman of the 21-nation Arab League.

Militia chiefs enforce cease-fire mercilessly

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Druze and Shiite militia chiefs harshly enforced a tense cease-fire among their gunmen in west Beirut Monday after five days of fighting.

One Druze commander shot one of his own men dead for violating the truce.

The sidewalk execution came after leaders of the Shiite Muslim Amal militia and the Druze Progressive Socialist Party, pressed by Syria, warned they would "mercilessly punish" truce-breakers.

An Associated Press photographer who witnessed the execution said Druze chief Issam Al-Amin, commander of a joint PSP-Amal task force policing the truce, shot the Druze gunman for refusing to surrender his weapon after a young Amal fighter was killed.

Al-Amin drew his pistol and shot the militiaman four times at close range, then brusquely ordered his men to get rid of the body.

The truce held through the day as the joint security force, backed by tanks, patrolled the streets.

Police said 68 people were killed and almost 300 wounded in the fighting, which erupted last Wednesday when Druze militiamen tried to tear down Lebanese flags from goAormen buildings guarded by Shiite troops.

The casualties included 15 children killed in a fire in their apartment block started by the fighting, police said. Firemen could not get to the building because of the street battles.

West Beirut residents cautiously emerged from basement bunkers and bullet-scarred apartment buildings Monday, some for the first time since Wednesday. They found streets wrecked by the heaviest battles in west Beirut since the militias seized control by pushing out the Lebanese Army in February 1984.

Synod finds Vatican II remains valid

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Roman Catholic bishops assessing the impact of the Second Vatican Council at a special synod are freely airing their views but will not go back on the council's reforms, two leading cardinals reported Monday.

"The council remains valid; completely valid... It's impossible to regress," Cardinal Godfried Danneels of Brussels said at a news conference to explain the work of the two-week gathering.

After a ceremonial opening Sunday, 165 participants in the extraordinary synod called by Pope John Paul II heard Danneels sum up how the church has fared in the two-turbulent decades since the end of the council, known as Vatican II.

"The implementation of the council reforms exceeded great hopes that many of the members of the council had at that time," Cardinal John Krol of Philadelphia said at the news conference.

"The reality is, even from a juridical standpoint, the synod cannot change, overturn, renege or amplify the ecumenical council."

Asked repeatedly if a battle was shaping up between conservative and progressive bishops at the synod, Krol replied, "It's not a boxing match we are conducting. It is not a conflict."

Krol, who is of Polish extraction and is close to the pope, is one of three co-presidents of the synod.

Fired blacks to be rehired

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — The government said Monday it would rehire about 1,800 blacks who were fired for striking at a huge hospital in the black township of Soweto.

The dispute had threatened to inspire sympathy walkouts elsewhere. Police reported scattered incidents of rioting around the country but no new fatalities after one of the bloodiest weeks in 15 months of rioting against the white-minority government's apartheid racial policy. Official accounts listed at least 52 deaths last week.

The decision to rehire the dismissed student nurses and auxiliary workers came hours after a judge ruled that the initial mass firing at Baragwanath Hospital was illegal. Richard Goldstone, a provincial supreme court judge, ruled that cases must be reviewed separately.

What's what

That mild oath, "gadzooks," started out as "God's hooks." And that other one, "ounds," came down from "God's wounds."

Gypsy mythologists explained why whites are white and blacks are black: God baked the first people in ovens, and some were underdone, some overdone. Those gypsies, originally out of northern India, thought God did the perfect job on northern Indians, people with skin the color of tea.

Not often do city ordinance makers complain that their communities—topless dancers wear too many clothes, but offenders—in Southend, England, did so complain. Their proposed law to rectify this wrong didn't pass, though. They had trouble getting the wording just right.

Said a gourmet acquaintance, seriously: "You'll like quail. It tastes just like rattlesnake meat."

TERMITES

Men who commit suicide in hospitals tend to do so between 3 and 6 p.m. Saturdays, more so than any other time. The statisticians are don't live in those buildings, you said. Why not? Too dangerous? A. You eat pumpkin pie but you don't live in a pumpkin. Termites live in the ground. There's moisture there. They crave that.

Q. Which was first advertised as a headache remedy—Coke or Seven-Up?—A. Both.

Q. A fine symphony orchestra always tunes up on an A note, I've read. Where does it get that A note? A. From the oboe. Which gets it from a tuning fork.

SUICIDE

Men who commit suicide in hospitals tend to do so between 3 and 6 p.m. Saturdays, more so than any other time. The statisticians are working on the why of that. They're tinkering with the idea that it's right after the families of other patients show up. But they're not sure of anything.

"Off with his head" is one of the most quoted lines from William Shakespeare's "Richard III." But Shakespeare didn't write it. An early actor, Coley Coker, improvised it for his own convenience, and it stuck.

In the French lessons it ran during World War II, the European edition of "Yank" upset stateside women considerably when it printed instructions on how to say, "My wife doesn't understand me."

Students of human behavior say a person rarely throws a tantrum when alone.

Daily Horoscope

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Today continues to be a very good time to find the ways to add to your income as well as to get rid of present obligations so that you can clear the decks for more action.

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) An ideal day to make plans for the days ahead and become more financially secure by using a new system.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Study your reflection in the mirror and decide how to improve both your health and your appearance. Try not to be unkind today.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Get rid of stumbling blocks in the path of your progress and then all goes smoothly for you.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) If you are more objective you can regain your peace of mind at this time. Don't rely on some friend for help.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Be very efficient at handling outside matters and do nothing that can annoy bigwigs. Make at least a partial payment on credit.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Although you want to get off to new outlets, it is wise to complete whatever work needs completion first.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Listening carefully to advice of an expert in some field that interests you can lead to greater success.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Not a good day to try to have an understanding with a difficult person but at least show understanding.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Be sure to get duties handled that you have neglected for some time and then you can make progress.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Plan to have amusements that do not cost too much so that you do not deplete your assets.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) The situation is not very good at home, but if you are objective you soon can solve the problems.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to March 20) Be most careful while out driving and be alert to what others are doing. Others are tempted to be sarcastic.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY, he or she will think that own opinions are the best and will not listen to those of others, so teach that everyone has a right to own opinions, and then your progeny will be successful and popular. 'Lake Wobegon Days' humor rolls on CLAREMONT, Calif. (AP) — Satirist Garrison Keillor, who turned his American Public Radio humor into the best-selling book, "Lake Wobegon Days," hasn't let his new-found riches cost him his humor.

"What will you do when the book stops selling?" a reporter asked him before a performance at Claremont Colleges' Bridges Auditorium over the weekend.

Replied Keillor: "When the book is a dead item, we plan to use 250,000 gold copies to insulate the World Theater in St. Paul," where his show, "A Prairie Home Companion," is based.

Keillor's book, which costs $17.95, is in its 13th printing with 925,000 copies off the presses.

In addition, sweatshirts emblazoned with the name of Lake Wobegon, a mythical Minnesota village that is the foil for Keillor's humor, are selling for $18.50 each, and they're just one of the items for sale in a 32-page catalogue of collectibles from the program.

Princess Anne tours Mozambique

MAPUTO, Mozambique (AP) — Britain's Princess Anne visited a hospital, the Maputo port and British Petroleum installations Monday on the third day of her visit to Mozambique.

The princess, daughter of Queen Elizabeth II, spoke with Mozambican and foreign doctors at Maputo Central Hospital about casualties in Mozambique's guerrilla war between members of the Mozambique National Resistance and the Marxist government of President Samora Machel.

Heller gets French book prize

PARIS (AP) — American novelist Joseph Heller and South Africa's J.M. Coetzee were honored Monday as the best foreign novelists of the year by France's Interallie book awards.

Heller won for his most recent novel, "God Knows," and Coetzee for "Michael K: His Life, His Time."

The respected Femina prize, worth $620 and generally awarded to "new, young talent," went to Argentinian Hector Bianciotti for "Sansia Misericorde du Christ." (Without the Mercy of Christ) — his first novel written in French.

The Medis Prize, which crowns a "new style or tone" and earns the winning author $550, was awarded to Michel Braudeau, 39, for "Naissance d'une Passion," (Birth of a Passion), a story of three adolescents whose lives and loves reflect the changing mores of a generation.

The Interallie jury hailed "God Knows" for its sensitive and probing portrayal of King David as a man of many faces — a Jewish maverick, an artist and an insatiable lover, both tender and cruel.

Heller, 62, best known for the irreverent and witty style of his best-selling "Catch 22," has a wide audience in France.

The jury said Coetzee, whose novel tells the story of a gardener with a hairlip mistaken for a dangerous terrorist, was following in the tradition of other white South African literary talents such as Nadine Gordimer, Andre Brink and Breyten Breytenbach.

Femina laureate Bianciotti, 55, was born to Italian parents who settled in Argentina. He first came to Europe in 1955, settling in Paris in 1961.

Bianciotti's style, with its long sentences that digress, opening and closing parentheses that take the reader back in time, has been compared to that of Marcel Proust.

"Sansia Misericorde du Christ," is the story of a lonely expatriate woman living in Paris. In the opening pages, she is befriended by the narrator, her neighbor, who ultimately tells her story, and records it, in novel form, for posterity.

JIMMY CARTER
He got the limit of mallards

At the port, Princess Anne visited the container terminal where a team of British consultants is training Mozambicans to take over management of the facility.

On Sunday, the princess visited Inhambane, the southern province, where drought and guerrilla activity have combined to create food shortages. She visited an orphanage housing 85 children.

The princess' trip is part of her duties as head of the British Save the Children Fund which runs a major vaccination project in Inhambane Province. Residents showered the princess with gifts, including handicrafts and cashews, the local delicacy.

Carter goes for ducks in Arkansas

WEINER, Ark. (AP) — Former President Jimmy Carter says Arkansas is a nice place for duck hunting — talking politics and meeting folks who occasionally recognize him.

"This is the fourth year I've been here and every year the duck hunting's been beautiful," Carter said in a telephone interview Monday. The former president is a guest of former U.S. Sen. Kameester Hodges Jr., Democrat from Newport.

He headed for the hunt early Monday with Hodges.

"It was drizzling rain and very good duck hunting. We got the limit again, all mallards," Carter said. "I not only like the country and the duck hunting but the people are great."

Carter said he likes to talk to the people in northeast Arkansas, but has had little chance to visit during this trip.

Beatles museum moves to London

LIVERPOOL, England (AP) — A museum containing more than 1,000 pieces of Beatles memorabilia will be moved to London after proving a flop in the rock group's hometown of Liverpool, the museum's owner said Monday.

Since it opened in this economically depressed port city in April 1984, the $2.9 million exhibition called "Beatle City" has failed to make a profit and has drawn fewer than 200,000 visitors, according to its owners, the independent radio station Radio City.

Radio City managing director Terry Smith said the museum has been sold to an undisclosed buyer who has pledged to move the exhibition to London early next year. Until then, the museum will open only on weekends.

Radio City said an estimated $94,250 was lost on the sale.

"I am personally extremely sorry it is leaving Liverpool," said Smith. "But it needs to be in a place where there is more tourist activity."

"With more than 12 million tourists a year visiting the capital, I think it will prove a tremendous attraction there," he said.

Singer to stand trial in Belushi's death

CATHY EVELYN SMITH
Also faces drug charges

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A woman who has acknowledged injecting comedian John Belushi with "speedballs" of cocaine and heroin during a three-day binge before his death was ordered Monday to stand trial for second-degree murder.

Cathy Evelyn Smith, a former backup singer and companion to rock musicians, wept as Municipal Court Judge James Nelson said she must also be tried on 13 counts of furnishing cocaine and heroin to Belushi, star of television's "Saturday Night Live" and such films as "Animal House" and "The Blues Brothers."

Miss Smith's lawyer, Howard Weitzman, contended that she should never have been charged with murder.

"There's something inherently wrong with the system when a woman is charged with second-degree murder when she simply acted on the wishes of another person," Weitzman said outside court.

The judge had said in court: "Surely Mr. Belushi issued the invitation in this dance, but it is an inherently dangerous dance."

Miss Smith, 38, who was ordered to appear for arraignment Dec. 10, faces a maximum sentence of eight years and eight months if convicted. She said nothing as she left with Weitzman, who successfully defended former automaker John Z. DeLorean in his cocaine trafficking trial in 1981.

Weitzman contended that someone else or the portly comedian himself had provided and administered the fatal dose to Belushi, who was 33 when he died.

During the three days of partying, Belushi at times was joined by comedian Robin Williams and Academy Award-winning actor Robert DeNiro, although there has been no testimony to indicate they injected drugs.

Miss Smith contends she last injected Belushi at 2:30 a.m. on March 5, 1982, in the Chateau Marmont hotel bungalow where his body was found. She left the Sunset Strip bungalow before 8 a.m., Weitzman said.

Belushi's body was found between 11:30 a.m. and noon, and Deputy District Attorney Michael Montagna, citing expert testimony, said Belushi died sometime after 9:30 a.m.

Safeway, union reach agreement

SPOKANE (AP) — Safeway stores avoided a strike by reaching contract agreement with 350 workers at 10 Washington and Idaho stores, company spokesman Jim Bevers said Sunday.

Negotiators for the supermarket chain and Local 1439 of the United Food and Commercial Workers union reached the agreement after the union set a midnight Saturday deadline for submission of a final contract offer.

The stores covered by the new contract are in Omak, Chewelah, Colville, Newport, Grand Coulee, Davenport and Cheney in Washington and St. Maries, Sandpoint and Bonners Ferry in Idaho.

Utahns blast voucher plan

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Utah Sen. Orrin Hatch's support of legislation that would launch a school "voucher" program has drawn fire from the Utah Education Association, which says the idea is likely to "damage" education for many young people.

UEA President Betty Condie said the bill would provide about $600 in tax revenues to families of disadvantaged children for education at both public and private schools.

"Instead of helping the child from a poor family, I believe the voucher plan could be devastating to these children's education," Ms. Condie said.

Further, she said the UEA questioned the use of Title I funds for the program.

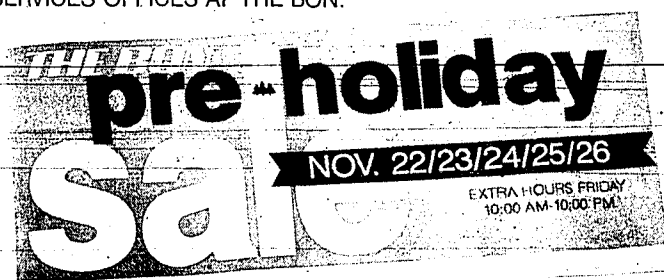

"I believe it's wrong to use public funds for private schools," she said. "This raises serious constitutional questions."

Former superintendent admits forgery guilt

By PAT MARCANTONIO
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Robert Hutchin, former superintendent of the Castleford School District, pleaded guilty Monday to a charge of forging a $2,023 district check in April.

Hutchin, 53, previously had pleaded innocent to the felony charge and a trial had been scheduled for Nov. 20 in 5th District Court.

In a brief statement to the court Monday, Hutchin changed his plea to guilty as the result of a plea arrangement with the Twin Falls County prosecutor's office.

In exchange for the guilty plea and immediate repayment of the $2,023, the prosecutor's office agreed not to recommend any prison sentence for Hutchin and to not oppose the defense's request to Judge Daniel Hurlbutt for a withheld judgment, according to a copy of the agreement filed with the court.

The defense and prosecutor also agreed to recommend a three-year probation, which Hutchin would serve in Missoula, Mont., where he now resides.

Under the terms of a withheld judgment, the felony conviction would be removed from Hutchin's record after he successfully completes probation.

Hutchin wasn't available for comment

after the hearing.

Hutchin's attorney, Bill Hollifield of Twin Falls, had no comment Monday afternoon. He did say Prosecutor K. Ellen Baxter and he used a relatively new criminal procedure in which Hurlbutt was involved in the plea negotiations.

Considering it was his (Hutchin's) first offense, it was a good case to go through the procedure," Hollifield said. Baxter and he had worked on a general outline of the agreement. Hurlbutt then reviewed and signed it.

Hutchin will be sentenced in about six weeks, following a report by the Bureau of Probation and Parole, Baxter said.

Forgery carries a maximum sentence of 14 years imprisonment.

Hutchin was accused of forging the name of then-district secretary Lisa Winslow on a payroll check and cashing it at a Bull bank sometime in April.

Jon Wells, chairman of the Castleford School District Board of Trustees, said he knew about the guilty plea. As for any comment, he added, "It speaks for itself. We'd like this case to be a clear message to anyone not to pull anything off like this again with the district."

After spending about a year with the Castleford School District, Hutchin resigned in April and left the area.

Twin Falls County law enforcement officers filed warrants on Hutchin last summer, seeking him on charges of forgery and grand theft.

Hutchin was arrested in August in a small Oregon town, where he was working as a school superintendent.

Upon his return to Twin Falls, the grand theft charge — which stemmed from his alleged failure to return four X-rated video tapes from a Bull business — was dropped Sept. 20 after a preliminary hearing.

Deputy Prosecutor Rockne Lammers wasn't available for comment Monday about whether the grand theft charge will be refiled against Hutchin.

A pair of Twin Falls City graders push snow into the center lane of Filer Avenue Monday afternoon; snow on residential streets stays until it melts

Cities vary in approach to snow removal

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — As Magic Valley residents dug out Monday from yet another winter storm, motorists were finding that driving on city streets was generally much more difficult than on major highways or county roads.

Snow removal in cities involves unique problems, city officials say, and is dealt with in different ways.

Twin Falls City Manager Tom Courtney says Twin Falls has four pieces of snow removal equipment. Two are graders and two are Street Department dump trucks, with blades mounted on the front. They were all at work Monday and scheduled to go into action again at 2 a.m. today. But in Twin Falls snow removal is limited to the major arterial and collector streets.

The plan, Courtney says, is to work during the early morning hours when traffic is at a minimum. The equipment will plow snow into the center of the streets and then open up intersections. City trucks then load and haul it to vacant areas around the city to "store" until it melts. The program costs the city $6,000-$7,000 each winter.

"Normally, we start on Shoshone Street and make a loop covering Addison Avenue, Blue Lakes Boulevard, Eastland, Filer and Falls avenues and Washington Street. We also do parts of the Second avenues," Courtney explained Monday.

To make the loop with all plows requires about six to seven hours, he said, but crews and equipment

Lack of winds ease storm

TWIN FALLS — One of the heaviest snowstorms of the season closed only three Magic Valley schools Monday and highway and school officials said they were saved because there was no wind.

Jerome closed its schools when county roads and city streets posed travel problems under 6.8 inches of new snow.

Shoshone and Cassia County schools also closed Monday, but neighboring Minidoka County, with many miles of outlying country roads that are usually windswept, had school as usual — as did the Valley District in Jerome County.

Officials in both districts said that with the amount of snow on the ground strong winds would have closed everything.

County highway districts were plowing snow, but no county roads were closed.

Clyde Burney of the Twin Falls Highway District said his crews and equipment were "cleaning up" all roads, but everything remained open to traffic.

Some of the measurements reported included an unofficial 6 inches in Twin Falls, 4 inches in Hailey and Ketchum, with a total of 14 inches on the ground at Ketchum. Fairfield also reported a total of 14 inches in town, with about 1 inch of new snow. In the Burley and Rupert areas unofficial reports ranged at 4-8 inches.

At the Twin Falls-Sun Valley Regional Airport, south of Twin Falls, 8-10 inches were reported on the ground, but the weather station attendant said he had a good foot of snow in his front yard in the north area of Twin Falls.

The Idaho Division of Highways at Shoshone reported the outside traffic lanes on Interstate 84, from Bliss to the Utah state line, were wet with some icy spots, and passing lanes had broken snow floors. Most other highways had broken snow floors or snow flurries.

The ramp that fell south of Twin Falls on U.S. Highway 30 and in the Burley-Rupert area Sunday night created some unusually hazardous driving conditions, officials said.

However, Idaho State Police and county officers reported no serious accidents.

"Sometimes we will drop the blade when we go through town to accommodate a situation, but our agreement is to plow and sanding the portions of the highways in their jurisdiction," he said.

In Twin Falls no effort is made on residential streets unless they are also major arterials, Courtney said. Part of this, he said, is cost and part is the volume of snow that would have to be handled.

"If we get 3 inches of snow on the streets, we are talking about 7,000 dump truck loads of snow just on the 15 to 20 miles of arterial and collector streets in Twin Falls. One dump truck can haul 5 cubic yards."

"One inch of snow would result in one truck load of snow for every 45 square feet of street surface. That's a lot of snow to remove," he added.

Twin Falls did not own a snow plow until three years ago, Courtney said, and, with a limited budget, the city tries to conserve as much of the street budget as possible for permanent improvements such as asphalt patching and surfacing. The dollars spent for snow removal accomplish no permanent benefit, he explained.

The city does not plow during snowstorms to avoid having to go over the same territory a second time.

"Plowing snow in the city is not like clearing highways or county roads," Courtney said. "There you can push it into the borrow pits or to the edge of the roadway or blow it into a field. In town, you can't push or blow it onto private property or sidewalks. You have to haul it away."

Farmers pick Iacocca for president

By DEAN S. MILLER
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Armed with 50 bumper stickers and some experience as political "rally-raisers," two Twin Falls area farmers say they want to draft Chrysler Motors President Lee Iacocca for Republican president of the United States in 1988.

Unfortunately for them, Iacocca has publicly said he will not run, even if drafted. And according to a spokesman for Iacocca, the highly visible executive lends to the Donkey side of the political spectrum.

Huge Meyer of Filer and Bill Loughmiller of

Hollister say they have not spoken to Iacocca about their plans for him, but Loughmiller says that everywhere he goes on business, people are supportive of an Iacocca candidacy. He says he paid to have 50 blue and white stickers printed that read "Republican Farmers for Iacocca '88."

"He's a personality who should fill in behind (President Ronald) Reagan," Meyer said Monday. He and his partner in politics said they want to get Iacocca before anyone else does.

The high value of the dollar and unfair trade practices of foreign competitors are the biggest problems facing farmers, and Iacocca has the experience to make America competitive again, Loughmiller said.

After reading Iacocca's autobiography and watching him work with the committee to renovate the Statue of Liberty, Loughmiller said, he decided Iacocca would be an excellent Republican presidential candidate.

But Meyer said they are not looking for a leader to haul out the farmers the way Iacocca convinced the federal government to bail out Chrysler Motors. "Any bail-out is temporary; it only makes it worse," he said.

Baron-Bates, Chrysler's vice president for public relations, said there's no chance Iacocca would run; and if he did, he would probably be a Democrat.

Farmer to go on trial for range fire arson

By PAT MARCANTONIO
Times-News writer

BOISE — A Twin Falls-area farmer accused of setting a range fire near Castleford last summer will go on trial Dec. 17 in U.S. District Magistrate Court in Boise.

Richard L. Kerbs, who farms near Castleford, has been charged with igniting a fire June 19 that burned 3,000 acres of public rangeland, according to Dan Hughes, the state criminal investigator with the Bureau of Land Management.

Hughes would not comment on how the fire was allegedly set or if it was started to burn grasshoppers threatening nearby farms last summer.

According to BLM officials, investigations into the suspect fires in the Castleford and Magic Water areas last summer were sparked by reports of people torching the land to kill the pesky insects.

Kerbs said Monday that he couldn't comment on the citation because of the upcoming trial. He did say the fire spread from private land onto public land.

If convicted, Kerbs faces a maximum sentence of $1,000 fine and/or one year in jail, Hughes said.

Although the citation was issued to Kerbs last summer, the court thought it better not to release Kerbs' name until he made his first appearance in court Nov. 15, Hughes said. At that court appearance, Kerbs pleaded innocent to the allegation.

A citation is similar to a summons on criminal charges. In this case, the charge is a violation of federal law. Depending on the severity of the case, the BLM has the option of asking suspects to appear in court or to pay a fine without going before a judge, Hughes said previously.

The bureau also has the option of filing a civil court action to regain the costs of fighting the fire. Hughes didn't know the cost of suppressing the fire in question. He said earlier that the bureau normally decides on that route after the disposition of any criminal charges.

State BLM spokesman Chris Long said Monday that there were cases pending against three more people suspected of arson in connection with fires on public land this summer in southern Idaho. He would not release their names, however.

Long also reported that a Kuna-area farmer had pleaded guilty in September to starting a fire in May to rid the rangeland of grasshoppers.

Blaine board sets building issue airing

By BARBARA NEIWEIT
Times-News correspondent

HAILEY — Responding to a recent outburst of opposition to the Blaine County School Board's building program, trustees have scheduled a special meeting Dec. 9 to give patrons a chance to air their views on the issue.

The board met Monday to set the date for the public meeting, which will be held at 7 p.m. at the Wood River Senior High auditorium.

Board members will then hold their regular monthly meeting Dec.

10 and use the public comments to establish the district's building schedule.

Voters approved a $4 million plant facilities levy in 1984 to finance a district-wide building program. The tax levy raises $675,000 a year for five years for the addition of some 30 classrooms and maintenance projects throughout the district's six schools.

The conflict between the board and parents arose last winter when the board instructed its architect to prepare plans and draw up a bid package for remodeling work at Hemingway Elementary School in Ketchum and new construction and remodeling at the Carey School. This schedule preempted original plans to make classroom additions to the Hailey Elementary School in 1986.

With nearly 100 people present at a Nov. 20 meeting of the Hailey/Bellevue Parent Teacher Organization, Superintendent David Noonan told the board the PTO had "very strong feelings" that the board had committed "itself" to an annual building plan when the referendum was presented to the public last year.

Board member Peter Flood reminded trustees that at the time the levy was passed, the board was "very adamant" about having a flexible building schedule open for revision from time to time.

Noonan also said another "Pandora's Box" was opened regarding the middle school concept of moving sixth-graders to the junior high with seventh- and eighth-grade students and moving the ninth graders to the high school.

Noonan said it was the PTO's "unanimous" opinion they did not

TWIN FALLS — Robert Hutchin, former superintendent of the Castleford School District, pleaded guilty Monday to a charge of forging a $2,023 district check in April.

Hutchin, 53, previously had pleaded innocent to the felony charge and a trial had been scheduled for Nov. 20 in 5th District Court.

In a brief statement to the court Monday, Hutchin changed his plea to guilty as the result of a plea arrangement with the Twin Falls County prosecutor's office.

In exchange for the guilty plea and immediate repayment of the $2,023, the prosecutor's office agreed not to recommend any prison sentence for Hutchin and to not oppose the defense's request to Judge Daniel Hurlbutt for a withheld judgment, according to a copy of the agreement filed with the court.

The defense and prosecutor also agreed to recommend a three-year probation, which Hutchin would serve in Missoula, Mont., where he now resides.

Under the terms of a withheld judgment, the felony conviction would be removed from Hutchin's record after he successfully completes probation.

Hutchin wasn't available for comment

after the hearing.

Hutchin's attorney, Bill Hollifield of Twin Falls, had no comment Monday afternoon. He did say Prosecutor K. Ellen Baxter and he used a relatively new criminal procedure in which Hurlbutt was involved in the plea negotiations.

"Considering it was his (Hutchin's) first offense, it was a good case to go through the procedure," Hollifield said. Baxter and he had worked on a general outline of the agreement. Hurlbutt then reviewed and signed it.

Hutchin will be sentenced in about six weeks, following a report by the Bureau of Probation and Parole, Baxter said.

Forgery carries a maximum sentence of 14 years imprisonment.

Hutchin was accused of forging the name of then-district secretary Lisa Winslow on a payroll check and cashing it at a Buhl bank sometime in April.

Jon Wells, chairman of the Castleford School District Board of Trustees, said he knew about the guilty plea. As for any comment, he added, "It speaks for itself. We'd like this case to be a clear message to anyone not to pull anything off like this again with the district."

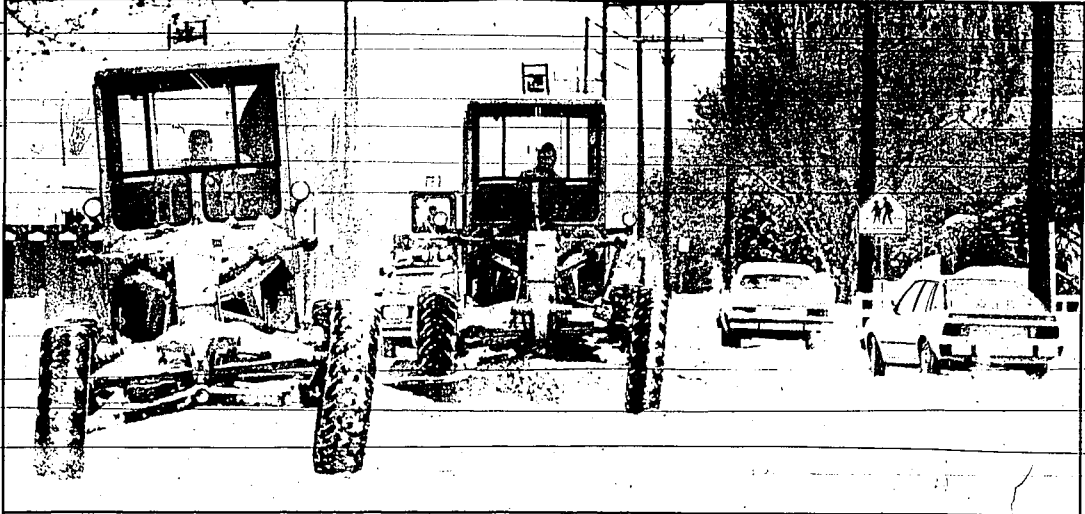

After spending about a year with the Castleford School District, Hutchin resigned in April and left the area.

Twin Falls County law enforcement officers filed warrants on Hutchin last summer, seeking him on charges of forgery and grand theft.

Hutchin was arrested in August in a small Oregon town where he was working as a school superintendent.

Upon his return to Twin Falls, the grand theft charge — which stemmed from his alleged failure to return four X-rated video tapes from a Buhl business — was dropped Sept. 29 after a preliminary hearing.

Deputy Prosecutor Rockne Lammers wasn't available for comment Monday about whether the grand theft charge will be refilled against Hutchin.

A pair of Twin Falls City graders push snow into the center lane of Filer Avenue Monday afternoon; snow on residential streets stays until it melts

Cities vary in approach to snow removal

By BONNIE-BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — As Magic Valley residents dug out Monday from yet another winter storm, motorists were finding that driving on city streets was generally much more difficult than on major highways or county roads.

Snow removal in cities involves unique problems, city officials say, and is dealt with in different ways.

Twin Falls City Manager Tom Courtney says Twin Falls has four pieces of snow removal equipment. Two are graders and two are Street Department dump trucks, with blades mounted on the front. They were all at work Monday and scheduled to go into action again at 2 a.m. today. But in Twin Falls snow removal is limited to the major arterial and collector streets.

The plan, Courtney says, is to work during the early morning hours when traffic is at a minimum. The equipment will plow snow into the center of the streets and then open up intersections. City trucks then load and haul it to vacant areas around the city to be "stored" until it melts. The program costs the city $6,000 to $7,000 each winter.

"Normally, we start on Shoshone Street and make a loop covering Addison Avenue, Blue Lakes Boulevard, Eastland, Filer and Falls avenues and Washington Street. We also do parts of the Second avenues," Courtney explained Monday.

To make the loop with all plows requires about six to seven hours, he said, but crews and equipment

Lack of winds ease storm

TWIN FALLS — One of the heaviest snowstorms of the season closed only three Magic Valley schools Monday and highway and school officials said they were saved because there was no wind.

Jerome closed its schools when county roads and city streets posed travel problems under 6.8 inches of new snow.

Shoshone and Cassia County schools also closed Monday, but neighboring Minidoka County, with many miles of outlying country roads that are usually windy, had school as usual — as did the Valley District in Jerome County.

Officials in both districts said that with the amount of snow on the ground strong winds would have closed everything.

County highway districts were plowing snow, but no county roads were closed.

Clyde Burney of the Twin Falls Highway District said his crews and equipment were "cleaning up" all roads, but everything remained open to traffic.

Some of the measurements reported included, an unofficial 6 inches in Twin Falls, 4 inches in Hailey and Ketchum, with a total of 14 inches on the ground at Ketchum. Fairfield also reported a total of 14 inches in town, with about 4 inches of new snow. In the Burley and Rupert areas unofficial reports ranged at 4.5 inches.

At the Twin Falls-Sun Valley Regional Airport, south of Twin Falls, 8-10 inches were reported on the ground, but the weather station attendant said he had a good foot of snow in his front yard in the north area of Twin Falls.

The Idaho Division of Highways at Shoshone reported the outside traffic lanes on Interstate 84, from Bliss to the Utah state line, were wet with some icy spots, and passing lanes had broken snow floors. Most other highways had broken snow floors or snow floors.

The rain that fell south of Twin Falls on U.S. Highway 93 and in the Burley-Rupert area Sunday night created some unusually hazardous driving conditions, officials said.

However, Idaho State Police and county officers reported no serious accidents.

of motorists who complain that the highways are good until they enter the city limits.

Jon Seibergman with the Division of Highways in Shoshone elaborated on the policy Monday.

"Sometimes we will drop the blade when we go through town to accommodate a situation, but our agreement with the cities is that they are responsible for plowing and sanding the portions of the highways in their jurisdiction," he said.

In Twin Falls no effort is made on residential streets unless they are also major arterials, Courtney said. Part of this, he said, is cost and part is the volume of snow that would have to be hauled.

"If we get 3 inches of snow on the streets, we are talking about 7,000 dump truck loads of snow just on the 13 to 20 miles of arterial and collector streets in Twin Falls. One dump truck can haul 5 cubic yards."

"One inch of snow would result in one truck load of snow for every 45 square feet of street surface. That's a lot of snow to remove," he added.

Twin Falls did not own a snow plow until three years ago, Courtney said, and with a limited budget, the city tries to conserve as much of the street budget as possible for permanent improvements such as asphalt patching and surfacing. The dollars spent for snow removal accomplish no permanent benefit, he explained.

The city does not plow during snowstorms to avoid having to go over the same territory a second time.

"Plowing snow in the city is not like clearing highways or county roads," Courtney said. "There you can push it into the borrow pits or to the edge of the roadway or blow it into a field. In town, you can't push or blow it onto private property or sidewalks. You have to haul it away."

Farmers pick Iacocca for president

By DEAN S. MILLER
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Armed with 50 bumper stickers and some experience as political "rabble-rousers," two Twin Falls area farmers say they want to draft Chrysler Motors President Lee Iacocca for Republican president of the United States in 1988.

"Unfortunate for them, Iacocca has publicly said he will not run, even if drafted. And according to a spokesman for Iacocca, the highly-visible executive leans to the Donkey side of the political spectrum."

Hugo Meyer of Filer and Bill Loughmiller of

Hollister say they have not spoken to Iacocca about their plans for him, but Loughmiller says that everywhere he goes on business, people are supportive of an Iacocca candidacy. He says he paid to have 50 blue and white stickers printed that read "Republican Farmers for Iacocca '88."

"He's a personality who should fill in behind (President Ronald) Reagan," Meyer said Monday. He and his partner in politics said they want to get Iacocca before anyone else does.

The high value of the dollar and unfair trade practices of foreign competitors are the biggest problems facing farmers, and Iacocca has the experience to make America competitive, again, Loughmiller said.

After reading Iacocca's autobiography and watching him work with the committee to renovate the Statue of Liberty, Loughmiller said, he decided Iacocca would be an excellent Republican presidential candidate.

But Meyer said they are not looking for a leader to haul out the farmers' way in a no-win situation. They are looking for a leader to convince the federal government to bail out Chrysler Motors. "Any ball out is temporary; it only makes it worse," he said.

Baron Bates, Chrysler's vice president for public relations, said there is no chance Iacocca would run; and if he did, he would probably be a Democrat.

Farmer to go on trial for range fire arson

By PAT MARCANTONIO
Times-News writer

BOISE — A Twin Falls-area farmer accused of setting a range fire near Castleford last summer will go on trial Dec. 17 in U.S. District Magistrate Court in Boise.

Richard L. Kerbs, who farms near Castleford, has been charged with igniting a fire June 19 that burned 3,000 acres of public rangeland, according to Dan Hughes, the state criminal investigator with the Bureau of Land Management.

Hughes would not comment on how the fire was allegedly set or if it was started to burn grasshoppers threatening nearby farms last summer.

According to BLM officials, investigations into the suspected fires in the Castleford and Magic Valley areas last summer were sparked by reports of people torching the land to kill the pesky insects.

Kerbs said Monday that he couldn't comment on the citation because of the upcoming trial. He did say the fire spread from private land onto public land.

If convicted, Kerbs faces a maximum sentence of $100,000 fine and/or one year in jail, Hughes said.

Although the citation was issued to Kerbs last summer, the court thought it better not to release Kerbs' name until he made his first appearance in court Nov. 15, Hughes said.

At that court appearance, Kerbs, alleged innocent to the allegation.

A citation is similar to a summons on criminal charges. In this case, the charge is a violation of federal law. Depending on the severity of the case, the BLM has the option of asking suspects to appear in court or to pay a fine without going before a judge, Hughes said previously.

The bureau also has the option of filing a civil court action to regain the costs of fighting the fire. Hughes didn't know the cost of suppressing the fire in question. He said earlier that the bureau normally decides on that route after the disposition of any criminal charges.

State BLM spokesman Chris Long said Monday that there were cases pending against three more people suspected of arson in connection with fires on public land this summer in southern Idaho. He would not release their names, however.

Long also reported that a Kuna-area farmer had pleaded guilty in September to starting a fire in May to rid the rangeland of grasshoppers.

Blaine board sets building issue airing

By BARBARA NEIWERT
Times-News correspondent

HAILEY — Responding to a recent outburst of opposition to the Blaine County School Board's building program, trustees have scheduled a special meeting Dec. 9 to give patrons a chance to air their views on the issue.

The board met Monday to set the date for the public meeting, which will be held at 7 p.m. at the Wood River Senior High auditorium. A Board members will then hold their regular monthly meeting Dec.

10 and use the public comments to establish the district's building schedule.

Voters approved a $4 million plant facilities levy in the fall of 1984 to finance a district-wide building program. The tax levy raises $575,000 a year for five years for the addition of some 30 classrooms and maintenance projects throughout the district's six schools.

The conflict between the board and parents arose last week after the board instructed its architect to prepare plans and draw up a bid package for remodeling work at Hemingway Elementary School in Ketchum and new construction and remodeling at the Carey School. This schedule preempted original plans to make classroom additions to the Hailey Elementary School in 1986.

With nearly 100 people present at a Nov. 20 meeting of the Hailey/Belleview Parent Teacher Organization, Superintendent David Noonan told the board the PTO had "very strong feelings" that the board had committed itself to an annual building plan when the referendum was presented to the public last year.

Board member Peter Flood reminded trustees that at the time the levy was passed, the board was "very adamant" about having a flexible building schedule open for review from time to time.

Noonan also said another "Pandora's Box" was opened regarding the middle school concept of moving sixth-graders to the junior high with seventh- and eighth-grade students and moving the ninth graders to the high school.

Noonan said it was the PTO's "unanimous" opinion they did not want to see the building program want to see any change in the organizational pattern at either the junior or senior high schools.

Board chairman Frank Rowland said it had been the board's primary objective to put construction at Halley Elementary on hold while they studied the middle school concept.

"It's certainly not going to take me a year to decide that's not a good idea," said Noonan, referring to the parents' response at last week's PTO meeting.

Rowland said the board may need to revamp its proposal.

"The bottom line is, if we made a mistake, we should admit it, back off and reconsider where to go from here," Rowland said.

The proposed addition at Halley Elementary School, which houses the fourth through sixth grades, calls for the addition of up to seven new classrooms. To date, no cost analysis has been completed on this phase.

Construction at the Carey School would add an instructional wing and lobby — and — remodel several classrooms and administrative offices for approximately $700,000.

Remodeling work at Hemingway Elementary in Kelchum would develop four new classrooms, a media center and new administrative offices for a projected cost of $605,000.

Rowland pointed out the PTO's protest was a reminder to the board the communities in Blaine County are "very involved."

"When our patrons are picking up 85 percent of the educational tab, it's a community effort in everything — we're involved with," said Wood River High School Principal Phil Homer.

Supreme Court overturns judgment against Uniroyal

BOISE (AP) — The Idaho Supreme Court has overturned a $225,000 damage judgment against Uniroyal Tire and Rubber Co., ruling that the trial court was mistaken when it excluded jury instructions that others could have been found responsible for injuries to a Twin Falls man.

Jerry Vannoy was left with a permanently impaired right arm after a tire he was trying to mount on a rim exploded on Oct. 6, 1980. He and his wife, Nadine, filed a complaint in 5th District Court against Uniroyal, as the manufacturer of the wheel rim, the mounting machine, a trade association and the man who sold the wheel rim.

All the defendants but Uniroyal either were dismissed from the case or settled out of court with the Vannoys. The claim that went to jury assigned a percentage of fault for Vannoy's injury to the makers of the tire mounting machine, The Coats Co. Inc., and the wheel rim, Kelsey-Hayes Co.

Meehl denied the request, and the jury found that Uniroyal was 90 percent responsible for the accident and Vannoy 10 percent.

Vannoy was awarded $224,688, plus $74,895 to his wife for loss of consortium. However, the couple agreed to reduce the consortium damages to $20,000 after Meehl said he would grant a new trial if they did not.

But on an appeal from Uniroyal, the Supreme Court on Monday ruled that the judge should have included Kelsey-Hayes and Coats on the jury's verdict form, even though they were excluded from any potential damage award.

Citing a number of federal and state court cases, Justice Robert Bakes wrote for the 3-2 majority that it was necessary to compare the "contributory negligence" of other parties with the "strict liability" of Uniroyal.

Bakes said the practice of having a jury's verdict form include all contributing factors in a negligence suit has even been applied where the contributing parties are unknown.

"Reason and consistency in statutory interpretation — dictate that products liability cases based on strict liability should be treated the same," he said.

The merchants tell us a good snow removal program pays off.

Whitton said, "Shoppers don't stay home because of the parking and driving problems that are associated with snowstorms," he said.

In Burley crews went to work at 5 a.m. Monday plowing snow into the center of the streets and leaving two narrow lanes of traffic. Intersections are being cleared and the snow hauled away, but the center ridges will be left in place, said Street Foreman Glen Spurgeon. Usually, he said, the center-street ridges of snow will melt between storms.

Burley doesn't have the manpower and money to do much in residential areas except to send sand and salt trucks out after each storm, Spurgeon said.

Ways to avoid a weight gain

By BETTER HOMES AND GARDENS

Now's the time to resolve that this year you won't have to make that annual New Year's resolution — to lose the extra pounds you put on over the holidays. Follow these smart eating rules for healthful and satisfying — holiday feasting.

Come Jan. 1, you'll be glad you did, say the editors of Better Homes and Gardens.

As Pavlov showed, subtle cues can make us think we want to eat. These signs trigger a reaction that makes us feel hungry. This list of weight reducing hints can help you reduce weight gain.

- Remove sight cues: Store food in opaque containers. If "seconds" tempt, serve plates from the stove.
- Avoid the desire triggered by location: Eat in one room only, and not in front of the TV or in bed.
- "Don't gobble your food," Mama said. More than good manners is at stake. As many as 20 or so minutes pass between the first bite and the time that your brain gets the word that you're satisfied. The more slowly you eat, the less you eat before you realize you've eaten.
- Plan family holiday celebrations around activities, not the table. Every turkey — or person — need not be stuffed for an enjoyable holiday.

Woman spots tax breaks in charity donations

DEAR ABBY: I have a sister-in-law I'll call Daisy. Her father died eight years ago, at which time she set up a memorial fund foundation in his name to benefit her favorite charity. Now, eight years later, whenever my husband and I have a birthday, anniversary and even at Christmas, we receive a card from Daisy stating that a gift to her father's memorial has been made in our honor.

We never were very close to Daisy's father, and while we appreciate the fact that she wanted to set up this foundation in memory of her father, we cannot understand why, instead of giving us a gift, she makes a contribution to her favorite charity. We are also irked because we suspect that Daisy is probably deriving tax benefits by these contributions.

How do you see this? Or should we ask Daisy?

— NOT HONORED IN NEW YORK
DEAR NOT HONORED: If Daisy really wanted to give you a gift, it would be more appropriate for her to make a contribution to your favorite charity — not hers. But don't ask whether she's deriving tax benefits. Daisies don't tell.

DEAR READERS: "Trenton Times Reader" wrote to point out that the words imply and infer are frequently interchanged because most people do not know the correct meaning of either.

Briefly, to "imply" means to suggest or insinuate. To "infer" means to draw a conclusion from something that was either said or implied.

That item inspired the following:

DEAR ABBY:

Inferred implications or implied inferences?

He: I merely implied. That you were inferring. Some things never meant. And, thus, you were erring.

Now, I cannot help. Any blow to your pride, if you have inferred. Things I never implied. She: You DID imply. All the facts you are blurring. You sure were implying. I was not inferring! It's you who inferred. When you heard my reply, Some very wrong things I would never imply. We: Each says, "You inferred."

Each says, "You implied." We don't know who's right. And just can't decide. One thing 'tho' seems certain. There'll be no concurring. Or who was implying. Or who was inferring.

Author tries to convey sense of big numbers

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — David Schwartz gets pensive when he hears children boast they've collected "a million" baseball cards or have eaten "a billion" hamburgers.

When reading the newspaper, the 33-year-old — Wallingford — resident ponders whether other adults realize the enormity of 1.5 billion gallons of water, $4-billion-worth of British fighter planes, 4 million latchkey children and nearly 2 million unwed mothers.

It quickly became apparent that children often grow up into adults who don't understand how much goes into a million and a billion and especially a trillion, Schwartz said.

"Innumeracy can be just as dangerous as illiteracy," he said.

A personal mission ensued, with the end result being Schwartz's first children's book, titled "How Much Is a Million?"

"I thought I would try to write a book for children that would put them in touch with a sense of awe that I have for such large amounts," he said. "Whenever I would try to express something, I realized I was using really large numbers."

Schwartz, a former educator who is now a free-lance writer, realized he was not alone in trying to express the greatness of large numbers. During a recent interview, he pulled clippings from a file to illustrate. They ranged from an Iowa social studies class collecting 1 million bottle caps as a hands-on example to President Reagan, explaining the trillion-dollar deficit by equating it to a stack of $1,000 bills piled 67 miles high.

Schwartz, incidentally, said he had sent Reagan a copy of his book.

"It would really like to have my book be noticed by somebody who's really talked about these numbers in a serious way because it's part of their job," he said.

Schwartz's story, in conjunction with illustrator Steven Kellogg's whimsical watercolor drawings, seeks to explain big things in a small way.

"Kids like big numbers. They're kind of intrigued by them. They don't have any way to understand them," he said. "Adults tend to prefer to skip over big numbers. When they read an article, their eyes just sort of skim over the number and what they get out of that is this is a big number."

Writing the book involved more than simply sitting down with a calculator, Schwartz said.

"I came up with different ways of viewing a million and a billion and a trillion," he said.

He did so by selecting examples in all dimensions: distance, area, volume and time.

For instance, the book says, "If a trillion kids stood on top of each other, they would reach way, way, way beyond the moon — beyond Mars and Jupiter, too, and almost as far as Saturn's rings."

Or, "If you found a goldfish-bowl large enough to hold a billion goldfish, it would be as big as a stadium," the book reads.

SNOW BUILD-UP

During the last few days of continued snowfall and snow build-up the City of Twin Falls has had an increasing problem with snow being pushed out into streets and alleys from private property. City Code Section 8-2-9 (D) prohibits the obstruction of public ways except by special permit. Those who block or partially block streets, alleys, and sidewalks with snow removed from private property are violating the law. They are also increasing their personal liability exposure by creating hazardous driving conditions for the traveling public. Property owners should pile snow up their own property to stay legal. Citations will be issued if continued violations occur.

Montgomery will leave board

BOISE (AP) — Gov. John Evans says he regrets having to accept the resignation of Board of Education member Robert Montgomery, who is stepping aside after six years on the panel.

But the governor said Monday that he is reviewing possible successors to Montgomery and hopes to name a replacement soon. Evans' appointment will be subject to Senate confirmation.

Montgomery, a retired banker, tendered his resignation effective Dec. 1, citing personal reasons and business interests that make it impossible for him to continue devoting the time necessary to board activities.

Andrus poll charged slanted

BOISE (AP) — A supporter of Republican gubernatorial candidate Lt. Gov. David Leroy says likely opponent Cecil Andrus apparently is manipulating questions and participants in a poll aimed at casting the former Democratic governor in a favorable light.

Andrus, who hasn't announced intentions to seek the Democratic nomination for governor, was out of town and couldn't be reached for comment.

Sen. C. "Slim" Smyser, R-Parma, said at a news conference that Andrus supporters apparently are circulating the poll in Democratic strongholds of the state. However, Smyser had no confirmation that the polls were financed by Andrus and a copy of the questionnaire bore only the name of Market Decisions, a Portland-based research firm.

Smyser alleged that questions on the poll are worded to get responses that would support Andrus, who resigned as governor to serve as Interior Secretary under President Carter.

Results of the poll aren't available.

Utilities won't deny services

BOISE (AP) — Utilities serving Idahoans have agreed to place into effect immediately the annual moratorium on shutting off service for lack of payment, according to the Idaho Public Utilities Commission.

The ban usually is in effect from Dec. 1 through the end of February.

But Commission President Perry Swisher asked electric and natural gas companies operating in Idaho to implement the rule immediately because of unprecedented cold and forecasts that indicate no immediate relief.

Swisher said the only exception to the ban would be cases of "outright fraud."

Elderly man dies in pet rescue

NEW PLYMOUTH (AP) — An autopsy was being performed Monday on an elderly New Plymouth man who died after re-entering his burning home in an attempt to save his pet dogs and cats.

Payette County Sheriff Bob Barowsky said firefighters were able to evacuate both Melvin Bridd, 81, and his sister after their home caught on fire Sunday. But then Bridd went back into the house in an unsuccessful attempt to save the animals and died of apparent smoke inhalation, Barowsky said.

Boy's nose bitten off, put back

NAMPA (AP) — A 2-year-old Nampa boy whose nose was bitten off and swallowed by the family dog on Saturday was in good condition in a Boise hospital following plastic surgery to reattach the nose, officials said.

However, Nampa police said the boy's father, Ken Quick, may face charges of exhibiting and discharging a firearm inside the city limits for his shooting of the dog after the attack.

Kellan B. Quick was recovering from his injuries Monday at Saint Luke's Regional Medical Center, a hospital spokeswoman said. However, she said it would be several days before doctors know whether surgery to reattach his nose was successful.

Drunk driver faces sentencing

CALDWELL (AP) — A Nampa man will be sentenced Dec. 31 after pleading guilty to involuntary manslaughter in the 1984 drunken-driving death of a Nampa woman, 3rd District Court officials said.

A trial for Earl Barrett was scheduled to begin Monday before Judge Dennis Goff. But Goff accepted Barrett's plea on Monday and scheduled sentencing.

Ora Irene Jensen, 34, died after Barrett's car, in which she was a passenger, hit a parked truck on Idaho Highway 55 on Nov. 30, 1984.

Sex discrimination suit filed

BOISE (AP) — A man fired from Westinghouse Idaho Nuclear Co. for sexual harassment has filed a lawsuit alleging sex discrimination that seeks $4.5 million in damages.

The suit filed Monday in U.S. District Court by John Szulcowski of Idaho Falls alleges he was fired from his position as warehouse supervisor at Westinghouse Idaho Nuclear Co. so the company could hire a woman to enhance its affirmative action program.

Szulcowski is seeking $1.25 million in exemplary damages and $3.25 million in actual damages. He also is asking for $200,000 in attorney fees if the lawsuit is not contested and $50,000 in attorney fees if it is contested.

Former resident sues center manager

BOISE (AP) — One of the initial plaintiffs in a class-action lawsuit against the state over conditions at the St. Anthony Youth Service Center has filed a $200,000 lawsuit against the center administrator.

The lawsuit was filed Monday in U.S. District Court by former center resident William Bodak, 18, and his parents, Alexander and Louise Bodak.

Named as defendants in the suit are Kurt Friedenauer, administrator of the home for juveniles, Gaylene Nelson, counselor, Dick Kendall, program director, and Skip Johnson, counselor.

The suit also names Mark Schumacher, Mervil Martineau and Mike Powell as people who knew of alleged mistreatment. Five employees identified only as "John Does" also are named in the suit.

The lawsuit asks for $100,000 in general damages and $100,000 in punitive damages.

Bodak, Post Falls, testified during the May trial involving alleged abuses at the center: He was one of the plaintiffs initially named in the lawsuit against the state Department of Health and Welfare. That suit was filed by attorneys of the Youth Law Center in San Francisco.

Among the constitutional rights violations alleged in the lawsuit filed Monday are solitary confinement, handcuffing and shackling, and being forced to sit in a chair or stand next to a wall for long periods at a time.

Bodak said he was put in solitary confinement at least 15 times for up to 45 days at a time, according to the suit. The confinement was intended as punishment rather than a measure to protect the safety of Bodak and other residents, the lawsuit said.

The suit also says Bodak was handcuffed or tied to his bed for long periods of time as punishment.

Bodak said in the suit that he has suffered "serious physical and emotional injury" as a result of his stay at the center.

During the trial, Health and Welfare officials said the controversial practices had occurred in the past, but said they had been discontinued.

Most counties involved in self-insurance pool

BOISE (AP) — At least 36 Idaho counties will be involved in a self-insurance pool formed in response to cancellation of liability insurance or hikes in premiums for governmental entities, a spokesman for the Idaho Association of Counties said Monday.

Chuck Holden said four other counties likely would decide to join the pool before Monday's deadline.

Meanwhile, Jim Weatherly, executive director for the Association of Idaho Cities, said his organization hopes to have a pool insurance program in operation by Jan. 1.

Holden said he didn't want to disclose which counties haven't offered firm agreements until the deadline is passed.

The association's directors are scheduled to sign agreements Tuesday for the liability insurance pool coverage that goes into effect Friday, Holden said.

Holden said the insurance pool for counties will cost each county from $5,000 to $100,000 to join. The buy-in cost covers the county for the first $50,000 of a claim, with a $250,000 deductible, Holden said.

In addition, counties will have a premium of ranging from $7,500 to $127,000 for re-insurance, which covers claims beyond the $50,000 limit, Holden said.

Holden said the amount each county pays for joining the pool and for re-insurance is based on the county's operating budget.

Lloyd's of London, the insurance underwriter, required a $700,000 pool when 26 counties were involved, Holden said. The company will determine a new pool sum requirement by Nov. 30 after the association knows the final number of participants, he said.

Weatherly said the insurance consultant for the Idaho Association of Cities was in London Monday meeting with Lloyd's of London representatives about re-insurance.

The cities association is considering an arrangement in which the pool would insure a governmental entity for the first $100,000 of a claim. Re-insurance would cover claims that are more than $100,000, Weatherly said.

He said the cost to participate isn't available because details are still being worked out. The price tag Lloyd's of London places on the re-insurance will have the most effect on how much participants will pay.

Weatherly said the pool insurance also would be available to school districts and other governmental entities, such as highway districts.

CSI men lack size, but not playing talent

By LARRY HOVEY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — When the College of Southern Idaho men's basketball team takes the floor against Utah State's Jayvees for its season opener tonight, Coach Fred Trenkle will be less apprehensive than usual.

Not that he won't be nervous, but, he says, "I feel better about this team being ready and capable of playing at this point of the season than any I've had here."

These are Eagles of a different look. With 6-foot-7 sophomore Jeff Rekevege out two more weeks with a stress fracture, CSI's tallest starter will be 6-4.

But this is a team with solid skill levels.

"We don't have a player who hasn't played guard sometime during his career. In high school or somewhere along the line," Trenkle said. "Maybe that means we don't have a center. But one thing it does mean is we have several players — just about all of them — in fact — who can bring the ball down the court (lead the break) and the entire team runs the floor well, perhaps as well as any team I've seen in junior college."

"But the thing I feel best about is that for two years I've fought to get guys ready to play," he continued. "This fall there's only been a couple of times that I had to get on them in practice. Even in the scrimmages we've had — second scrimmages against teams we've handled easily the first time — the dressing room has been quiet and the players have been getting themselves ready to go."

"That's amazing because most of our players this year are freshmen," he said.

What most observers see when they first view the Eagles is a major question mark concerning rebounding.

"They play taller — than themselves and we haven't had a scrimmage where the other team has outbounced us — and we've run into some pretty respectable and tall teams," Trenkle said. "It will be a problem against some of the big teams we have on the schedule, but right now I'm very confident we can hold our own on most nights. In fact, with our quickness, quick jumpers and excellent jumpers, at times rebounding could be one of our better points."

"At 6-4 (freshman Eric) Newman might be the most prolific rebounder in CSI history — at least for his size since Pies Vann," Trenkle said. "He flat can find a rebound, offensively or defensively."

The Eagles also have skywalker Joey Johnson, who has a 48-inch vertical rise, and 6-4 Chris Blocker, another good leaper, to fill in that "quick jumper" category. "But all of our players appear to rebound better than their size," the coach emphasized.

Trenkle said a definite — but hoped for — plus has been the team's overall shooting.

"Of course, sophomore Greg Boyd can fill up from the outside, but our guys have shot well during our scrimmages. The shot selection has been a little shaky with everyone thinking he can make everything. That may be good for confidence but it isn't going to be true every night."

Among the intangibles, Trenkle said, "this team apparently likes each other. We don't have the moodiness and the individual lack of concentration we've seen in other years. Various combinations have looked very good in the scrimmages and that gives us a lot of depth and a lot of ways to attack or survive foul trouble."

The other thing is, because of team quickness, this will be the best defensive team we've had here," he continued. "The players seem to believe in defense and they understand it and play it better than any team we've had."

At the end, however, the change of the Region 18 basketball world should throw another challenge at this team.

"This will be the first CSI or Idaho team that will have to win a spot in nationals by winning in Utah," Trenkle pointed out concerning the realignment of a year ago.

"And it would appear right now — at least from the returning players — that the northern division will be the toughest, so simply getting into regional may be a major problem."

"Then there's the change in making it double home-and-home with North Idaho, Ricks and Treasure Valley, and bringing Flathead (Community College of Kalspell, Mont.) back into competition," he said. "That increases pressure on must games and also means our schedule will be one of the toughest because we have just two jayvee teams this year. All the rest are junior colleges."

In a quick look at the region, Trenkle noted "North Idaho returns two good players including (6-1) Sven Meyer, and Coach Williams has six or seven foreign players on his roster this year. They have good size. Ricks has a 6-9 and three 6-8s and a 6-7 so they'll be a lot bigger than us."

In Utah, "the new Dixie coach brought in a 6-11 and a 6-8. Snow returns three of its top players but loses some size from last year and Utah Tech, which also has a lot of height, believes this is the best team it's ever had."

But Trenkle agreed that a team that beats his Eagles will either have to overpower them inside or get on their bicycles. No one should be able to run with this CSI group, which has to be the quickest in school history.

Expanded men's slate may make North Division tough

EDITOR'S NOTE: Here's a look at the other men's basketball teams in the Northern Division of junior college Region 18.

By RON GATES
Times-News writer

North Idaho beat the College of Southern Idaho for the championship of the Northern Division of Region 18 last year, only to lose the regional title and a berth in the National Junior College Athletic Association tournament to Dixie, the eventual national champ.

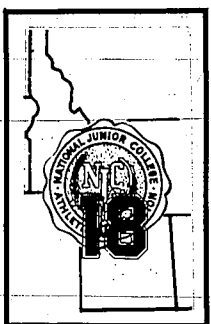

But this year, with a greater premium placed upon games within the Northern Division, the Cardinals — as well as the Golden Eagles — will face stiffer competition from several teams.

Ricks Coach Gary Gardner, starting his fifth season at the helm of the Ricks College basketball team, says he "has the ingredients for good team." But he cautions "we still have a lot of work to do."

Boistered by the return of four freshmen and one transfer player, the Vikings will be "more of an inside team" this year, Gardner says.

Back from ball-bust that finished 20-11 in 1984-85 — third in the Northern Division — are guard Jeff Parry of Syracuse, Utah, and forward-center Guy Hendrickson of Sandy, Utah. Parry averaged 3.9 points a game and saw considerable action, while Hendrickson — in a backup role at center — got only limited playing time, averaging 1.4 points an outing.

An incoming transfer student is Robert Tersigni of San Jose, Calif. Tersigni played on the Brigham Young University junior varsity last year and was a starter at forward for the Cougar Juniors.

Freshmen players who are projected starters include Gerald Riddick, a guard out of Bath, N.C., and Breck Parkinson, a guard from Bonneville High School in Idaho Falls. Parkinson may get the starting nod in place of Parry, who is out with a broken finger.

Other freshmen who will contribute are Dean Morrison, a guard out of Nampa; Bob Quinney, a guard from Eugene, Ore.; and David Deming, another guard from Beaverton, Ore. At the forward-center position are Kenneth Jackson of Sanford, Colo.; Reed Watson of Gilbert, Ariz.; and Jerry Jeffs from Orem, Utah.

North Idaho Coach Holte Williams professes to be "kind of searching right now" and "looking to find a lineup to complement each other," those would seem to be the kinds of headaches that would make his Northern Division counterpart's green with envy.

With three freshmen back — two of them starters — and a bumper crop of recruits, the Cardinals appear capable of flying high again.

CSI women figure in 3-way dogfight in Region 18 North

EDITOR'S NOTE: Here's a look at the women's basketball teams that make up the Northern Division of junior college Region 18.

By RON GATES
Times-News writer

The usual three-way battle for the title shapes up for the current season in the Northern Division of Region 18 as an "improved" College of Southern Idaho and Hicks College challenge North Idaho College for the women's title.

Add to this a young but confident Treasure Valley contingent and a new entity in Flathead Valley Community College from Kalspell, Mont., and you have all the ingredients for an exciting race.

While the Northern Division coaches (and most of the south as well) pick Utah Tech as a prohibitive favorite down south, all feel that the region is wide open in the other division and any of three or even four teams could contend for the right to make the season-ending trip to the National Junior College Athletic Association tournament.

A preview of CSI's women's basketball team was published in The Times-News on Thursday, Nov. 7.

Ricks The new and the old will combine to make the Ricks College women's basketball team one of the leading contenders in the Northern Division of Region 18 this season.

The Ricks women will be led by a new coach, but return three starters, including the top two scorers from last year's 18-10 squad that finished third in the region.

Lori Woodland, a former Nevada prep girls' basketball coach, takes over from Sheri Wakefield. Woodland coached Lowry High School of Winnemucca, Nev., to a four-year 65-15 record — and two Nevada Class AA championships.

Although she has last year's leading scorer in Andrea Smith from Idaho Falls and the second-leading scorer in Kathy Parkinson from Rexburg returning, Woodland is emphasizing team play.

"The game doesn't rest on any one player," she says. "We don't need any stars on our team. There is not a player on the team I wouldn't feel confident about going to in a clutch situation."

Smith, a 5-foot-10 sophomore, scored 15.5 points per game last year and was second in rebounding. Parkinson, also a sophomore, averaged 11.3 points a game and led the team in rebounding at 8.4. She comes from highly successful Madison High School in Rexburg. Parkinson, at 5-9, will join Smith at forward.

Also seeing considerable action was Cheryl Lynn Severe, a sophomore from Oakley, who averaged 4.8, most of them from long range. The fourth-returnee is Geigy Jacobs, a 5-8 guard from Vale, Ore.

The only other sophomore on the team is Traci Peterson, a standout at Bonneville in 1984. She is a prep days guard and very confident floor leader.

Idaho ranked fifth in final NCAA Division I-AA football poll

MISSION, Kan. (AP) — Big Sky Conference champion University of Idaho finished fifth in the final NCAA Division I-AA college football poll of the season, the same spot the Vandals had held for the two previous weeks.

Idaho, which wrapped up the Big Sky title with a 42-7 win over Boise State last weekend, received 65 points, one point behind Northern Iowa, the fourth-place team in the final survey. Idaho is 9-2, Northern Iowa 10-1.

Boise State, which was ranked 19th last week, dropped out of the final rankings.

Big Sky runner-up Nevada-Reno, which suffered its only loss of the season at the hands of the Vandals in September, remained in a tie with Furman University for second place.

UNR and Furman both received 74 points, six points behind Middle Tennessee State, which has held the top spot for the last four weeks.

The Wolf Pack is 10-1, and received a first-round bye in the I-AA playoffs, which begin next week. Idaho must host Eastern Washington, 8-2, and ranked 11th in this week's poll. In a first-round playoff game next Saturday.

The rankings are determined by a panel of four Division I-AA athletic directors, one from each region of the country. Idaho State University athletic director Babe Caccia is the western representative on that board, which also determines the post-season playoff pairings.

Idaho, UNR, Boise and Idaho State were the only four Big Sky teams ranked in the poll during the course of the season.

Big Sky: Idaho drubs Seattle in opener

MOSCOW (AP) — Guard Teddy Noel scored 20 points and forward Ken Luckett added 16 Monday night to lead the University of Idaho to an easy 75-51 victory over outmanned Seattle University in a non-conference basketball game.

Noel scored eight points in the first three minutes of the second half as the Big Sky Conference's Vandals stretched a 33-20 halftime edge to a 44-22 lead.

Idaho slowly stretched the lead to as much as 30 points to run its record to 20-2, Seattle fell to 0-3.

Noel made 10 of 11 shots from the field. The Vandals connected on 36 of 60 of their field goals for 60 percent. Idaho outrebounded the Chieftans 44-23.

Tom Stalick led Idaho with nine rebounds.

Seattle guard John Moretti was the only Chieftan in double figures with 10 points. Chris Church added nine points as the Chieftans connected on 22 of 66 field goals for 33 percent.

Mike Nelson had four key second-half field goals to spark Southwest Conference champion Texas Tech in a comeback rally to defeat Montana 65-58 in Tech's season opener Monday night.

Tech used a three-guard attack to hound the Grizzlies into numerous errors as the Raiders rallied from a 54-40 deficit with 7:54 to play.

Junior Mike Nelson gave Tech its first lead since the first half, 58-56, with a jumper with 3:03 left.

Senior guard Tony Benford paced the Red Raiders with 17 points and freshman guard Sean Gay added 11.

Montana guard John Boyd and forward Larry Krystkowiak paced the Grizzlies, now 1-1, with 12 points apiece.

State forward Curtis Webster scored 14 points and led a balanced Weber

State College attack to an 80-50 non-conference basketball victory over visiting Southern Utah State College Monday night.

The previously unbeaten Thunderbirds from SUCS trailed Weber by only six points, 36-30 at the half, but Weber outscored SUCS 17-4 to open up the second half and it was never closer after that.

Joining Webster in double figures for Weber were Walt Tyler with 13 and Dale Baum, Harry Willis and Guy Beach with 10 each as Weber State improved its mark to 3-0.

Leading Southern Utah were Alex Adams with 14 and Russell Otis with 10. The Thunderbirds are now 2-1.

Idaho St. 68
Tennessee St. 55

POCATELLO (AP) — Dave Danforth went 9-of-9 from the free-throw line and had 19 points for the night to lead Idaho State to a 68-55 non-conference basketball victory over Tennessee State Monday night.

ISU led by 10 at the half, 34-24, and the closest Tennessee State got was 49-41 with 8 minutes left.

Danforth scored a field goal and a free throw to widen the gap to 11 and Tennessee State never came closer than nine points in the remainder of the game.

Donn Holston and Bruce Galtor scored 15 points each for Idaho State and Anthony Mason led Tennessee State with 21.

E. Washington 82
N. Arizona 70

CHENEY, Wash. (AP) — Leroy Dean scored 19 points, as hot-shooting Eastern Washington University remained undefeated with an 82-70 victory over Northern Arizona Monday night in a non-conference basketball contest.

The Eagles, 3-0 on the season, shot 63 percent from the field, connecting on 31 of 50 shots in the game.

Northern Arizona led 22-21 midway through the first half, but Eastern outscored the Lumberjacks 15-4 to take a 36-26 lead with 4:28 left in the half.

The Eagles ended the first half with a 17-7 edge.

Northern Arizona's Andy Hurd led all scorers with 21 points. Aggie Spencer pitched in 18.

Top 20: No. 2' Jackets cruise to 59-point win

ATLANTA (AP) — John Salley's 21 points led a parade of six players in double figures as No. 2 Georgia Tech blasted outmanned South Carolina-Aiken 119-60 in college basketball Monday.

Georgia Tech trailed 6-4, but outscored Aiken 26-4 to take a 20-point lead that grew to 62-33 by halftime. The largest lead was 60 points at 11:56.

Duane Ferrell had 18, Bruce Dalrymple 15, Mark Price and Craig Neal 14 each and freshman Tom Hammonds 11 for the Yellow Jackets, who set school records for most points in a game and largest victory margin.

The previous records were 116 points in a 1982 victory over Wofford and a 53-point margin against Maryland-Eastern Shore in 1984.

Tech, 14-0, also hit 52 field goals, tying a record for most field goals set in 1966 against Furman University.

N. Carolina St. 80
W. Carolina 57

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Senior guard Nate McMillan scored a career-high 19 points to lead four players in double figures as 15th-ranked North Carolina State defeated Western Carolina 80-57 in college basketball Monday night.

Freshman forward Chucky Brown chipped in with 15 points and 11 rebounds, while sophomore center Chris Washburn and freshman Kelsey Weems added 13 points each in the season-opener for both teams.

Sophomore forward Leroy Gasque paced the Calamancos with 19 points and 11 rebounds, and junior guard Vincent Walker added 11 points.

Western Carolina took a 6-4 lead before the Wolfpack reeled off an 11-2 spurt to move ahead 15-13 with 13:20 left in the first half.

College poll

N. Carolina supplants Tech

By The Associated Press

North Carolina, which handed UCLA its worst defeat ever, passed idle Georgia Tech Monday to take the No. 1 spot in The Associated Press college basketball poll.

The Tar Heels, who blasted UCLA 107-70 Sunday night in the season opener for both teams, received 22 first-place votes — two less than Georgia Tech — and 1,158 in the nationwide balloting of 61 writers and broadcasters.

After Georgia Tech, which received 10 points less than North Carolina, the third through ninth spots in the poll remained the same as the preseason Top Twenty.

Michigan, which won two games during the opening week of the college basketball season, had nine first-place votes and 1,030 points, followed by Syracuse, 947, Kansas, two first-place votes and 933, Duke, one first-place vote and 917, Illinois, one first-place vote and 899, Georgetown, one first-place vote and 791, and Louisville, 786 points.

Kentucky, which led the Second Ten in the preseason poll, improved one spot with 526 points, while Notre Dame, 12th last week, leads the Second Ten this week with the remaining first-place vote.

Following Notre Dame are Louisiana State, Oklahoma, Memphis State, North Carolina State, Nevada, Maryland, St. John's, Auburn and Ala.-Birmingham.

Last week's Second Ten was Kentucky, Notre Dame, Oklahoma, Louisiana State, Memphis State, Ala.-Birmingham, North Carolina

State, Nev.-Las Vegas and Maryland and Navy tied for 19th.

St. John's, which beat Navy — the only team to fall from the ranks of the ranked — and West Virginia in its Big Apple National Invitation Tournament regional, is the only newcomer to the poll. The Redmen.

A Final Four team last season, was the only team besides Georgetown to hold the No. 1 spot last season.

The four teams scheduled to meet in the Big Apple NIT semifinals Friday night in New York are all ranked—Duke will face St. John's, while Kansas is to meet Louisville.

Four of the ranked teams have yet to play their first game of the season. Georgia Tech, which fell despite not playing, was the only hurt by inaction. Illinois remained seventh, while Memphis State improved from 15th to 14th and North Carolina State jumped from 17th to 15th.

Auburn and Ala.-Birmingham are the only Top Twenty teams with losses and both received theirs in the Big Apple NIT.

Sox shortstop named AL Rookie of the Year

NEW YORK (AP) — Shortstop Ozie Guillen, who came to the Chicago White Sox in a trade that sent a Cy Young winner to San Diego, was named the American League Rookie of the Year in voting released Monday by the Baseball Writers' Association of America.

Baseball

The 21-year-old Guillen, who lives in his native Venezuela, committed just 12 errors in 150 games this past season, the fewest of any regular American League shortstop, while hitting .273.

He came to the White Sox last Dec. 10 in the seven-player deal that sent right-handed pitcher Lamarr Hoyt, the 1983 Cy Young award winner, to San Diego along with two minor leaguers for pitcher Tim Lollar, infielder Luis Salazar, Guillen and a minor leaguer.

Guillen received 16 of a possible 28 first-place votes — allotted two apiece among BBWAA members in each of the 14 American League cities — for 101 total points. Ted Higuera, a left-handed pitcher from the Milwaukee Brewers, was second with nine first-place votes and 67 points.

Third went to another Brewer, infielder Earnest Riles, who got 29 points, followed by outfielder Oddibe McDowell, Texas, 25; pitcher Stu Cliburn, California, 16; pitcher Brian Fisher, New York, 7; pitcher Tom Henke, Toronto, 5, and catcher Mark Salas, Minnesota, 2.

McDowell, Cliburn and Henke got the other first-place votes. A first-place vote counts five points, with three awarded for second and one for third.

Sage girls' gymnasts capture Idaho Falls invitational meet

IDAHO FALLS — Sage Gymnastics' Class III girls' team finished first in an invitational meet held here last weekend.

It was the final meet of the season before the state meet, which begins Dec. 7.

Sage's Amber Doi finished first in the all-around competition in the children's division and took firsts in floor exercise and on the balance beam. Teammate Katy Blanch finished first on the junior balance beam.

Doi also had a second-place finish on the uneven bars, while Blanch was second in the all-around competition in the junior division and second in the vault. Jennifer Race took

In 1985, Guillen became the third Venezuelan to play shortstop for the White Sox and the club's fifth Rookie of the Year award winner.

Before Guillen, Venezuelans Chico Carrasquel and Luis Aparicio played shortstop for the White Sox. Chicago's most recent rookie winner was outfielder Ron Kittle in 1983. Before that, they were Aparicio in 1956, Gary Peters in 1963 and Tommie Agee in 1966. Alvin Davis of the Seattle Mariners won the 1984 AL rookie award.

Guillen, noted primarily for his glove, was a .308 hitter in four minor-league seasons, but he began the 1985 season slowly. He hit just .210 through June 10, but he hit .302 the rest of the way to raise his average to .263 points. He walked only 12 times and stole just seven bases, but he struck out only 36 times and scored 71 runs in 491 at-bats.

Originally a switch-hitter, Guillen has hit left-handed exclusively since 1983.

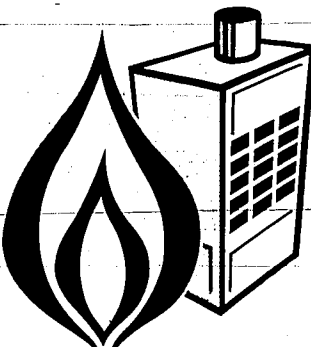

Second in the vault in the children's division.

Sage got third-place finishes from Juli Drury in children's vault, Race in children's all-around and on the uneven bars, Desna Garcia on children's balance beam and Blanch in junior floor exercise.

Christy May of Sage finished fourth in children's vault and on the balance beam, while Garcia was fourth on children's uneven bars. Race was fourth in floor exercise in the children's division.

LARRY DONOVAN

Montana fires Donovan after 6 years

College football

MISSOULA, Mont. (AP) — University of Montana football coach Larry Donovan, whose Grizzlies narrowly escaped the Big Sky Conference cellar this fall, won't be back next fall. U.M. Athletic Director Harley Lewis said Monday.

Donovan and eight of nine assistant coaches will not have their contracts renewed for 1986 after failing to produce either a winner or a crowd-pleasing this fall, Lewis said.

"Our football program has not been competitive in the Big Sky Conference the last three seasons, and I am not convinced playing in a new stadium will guarantee us the success we are striving for," Lewis said.

"We have had a competitive slide in our football program the past few seasons."

The Grizzlies ended their 1985 season with a 32-31 victory over Northern Arizona last Saturday but compiled only a 3-4 overall record and were 2-5 in the conference. Montana has been 5-16 in Big Sky games the last three seasons, since winning the championship in 1982.

The last two seasons the Grizzlies have been last in the nation in defense and lost by an average of 17.3 points in league games. Worse, they suffered a decline in attendance in their last season at Dornblaser Field.

Lewis estimated that attendance averaged less than 5,000 a game. Next year, the Grizzlies hope to be in a new, larger stadium.

"We need to insure that we are fiscally sound," Lewis said. "Our fan support has diminished greatly, and loss of revenue affects all other programs in our department."

Donovan, 44, has coached at Montana for six seasons and is 25-30-1 overall and 16-22 in the Big Sky. He declined comment after leaving his office Monday, saying he needed some time to get his bearings. One reporter said the coach looked "like he was in shock."

Lewis did credit the coach with trying, however.

"Larry Donovan and his staff have been very hardworking, loyal and dedicated to the University of Montana," Lewis said. "It is unfortunate that they have not been able to create the chemistry to maintain a competitive program in the Big Sky Conference. Larry and his staff have been outstanding ambassadors for Montana."

Donovan came to UM from the University of Kansas, where he was outside linebacker coach. He began his coaching career as an assistant at his alma mater, Nebraska, where he played tight end and linebacker, and later was an assistant at Washington State and Iowa. He also coached at South Dakota.

He was informed of the decision Monday morning in a meeting with Lewis and other university officials. The decision also affects five full-time assistants and three part-time assistants.

The only assistant retained was offensive line coach Vic Clark, who had been with the program less than a year.

The university said it was accepting applications for the head coaching job.

BYU, Air Force players dominate WAC all-conference list

LITTLETON, Colo. (AP) — Just as Air Force and Brigham Young University dominated the Western Athletic Conference this season, so do they control the all-WAC football team announced Monday.

The Falcons and Cougars each placed seven players on the first team. The selections were made by the league's head coaches.

Air Force, already assured at least a share of a WAC title for the first time, had two offensive and five defensive selections.

BYU placed four players on the all-WAC offensive unit and three on defense.

San Diego State had five selections, while Colorado State had four, Hawaii three and Utah two. New Mexico, University of Texas-El Paso and Wyoming did not have a team pick.

The 1985 offensive team is headed by Falcon quarterback Bart Weiss, who in 1985 became only the third player in NCAA history to both rush and pass for more than 1,000 yards in a season.

Weiss, a senior, leads the conference in passing efficiency and threw for 1,449 yards and eight touchdowns from the Falcon's widest receiver. He also rushed for 1,032 yards and scored 12 touchdowns as he led Air Force to an 11-1 regular season record and a Bluebonnet Bowl bid.

Colorado State's Steve Bartolo, Chris Hardy of San Diego State and BYU's Lakei Heimuli, all running backs, complete the offensive backfield.

Bartolo, one of only two all-WAC players from last year who repeated this year, broke the CSU single-season rushing record with 1,368 yards, while Hardy has 1,059 yards with one game left.

The receiving corps is led by San Diego State senior Webster Slaughter, who has caught 79 passes for 1,466 yards and 10 touchdowns with a game remaining. He is joined by BYU's Mark Bellini and Hawaii's Walter Murray.

BYU's Trevor Molini is the first team tight end.

The offensive line is anchored by CSU junior Guy Gar at center. He is joined by teammate Edgar Mitchell, Air Force's Kraig-Everson, San Diego State's Donaldson, Utah's Kevin Itach and BYU's David Wright.

San Diego State's Chris O'Brien was named the placekicker. He holds the WAC record for most consecutive field goals and is perfect on 38 extra-point attempts this year.

The first-team defense is laden with Falcons. Backs Scott Thomas and Tom Rotello, who combined for 14 interceptions in 1985, join linebacker Terry Maki and lineman John Zeigler in representing Air Force.

Falcon punter Mark Simon, the nation's leading punter with a 47.3 yard average, also made first team.

Included on the first-team defensive line are BYU's Jason Buck, Hawaii's Al Noga and Terry Unrein of Colorado State, who is only a sophomore.

Joining Maki at linebacker are Cougars Leon White and Kurt Gouveia and San Diego State's Todd Richards. Both Gouveia and Maki were among the 15 finalists for the Butkus Award given to the nation's top linebacker.

Rounding out the defensive backfield are Utah's Errol Tucker and Kent Kafentz of Hawaii.

Texas-Arlington eliminates football program

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — The University of Texas at Arlington has dropped its intercollegiate football program to shore up the school's deficit-ridden athletic budget, the school's president said Monday.

"A level of deficit financing has been reached which cannot be continued," President W.H. Nedderman said. "Thus, we have no choice but to immediately discontinue our most costly sport, football, and thus reduce our athletic budget by over $11 million a year."

Nedderman said UTA would continue to have a basketball program and that head football coach Chuck Curtis' contract, which runs through December 1986, would be honored.

UTA joined the Southland Conference in 1964 and was 4-61 this season.

The Mavericks started playing

"For the past 10 to 15 years, our financial condition in athletics has gradually worsened," said Nedderman. "Despite our best efforts, costs have continued to escalate faster than income."

The school faces a large deficit, despite several sources of income, Nedderman said.

"This year, with funding of over $800,000 from student service fees, in addition to income from ticket sales guarantees and the Maverick club, we face a deficit of approximately $500,000," he said.

Curtis said he wasn't sure what he was going to do, but added, "I'm shocked. We're all in a state of shock around here."

"I had no hint anything was coming," Curtis said. "Athletic Director Bill Reeves told me he wanted me to go to lunch with him and I thought the way he looked there might have been a death in the family. It turned out to be the death of our football program."

Curtis said the players could transfer to any other NCAA school without penalty or their scholarships would be honored at UTA.

"As for myself, I'll land somewhere else. I'm a coach and the good Lord designated my talent in that direction," Curtis said.

Curtis said that UTA was just a year or two away from having "a tremendous team."

"I just wish that had given us another year because I could see so many good things going on and now we won't be able to fulfill our dreams," Curtis said.

Freshman running back Tony Brown of Denison summed up the feelings of the players, saying, "I'm shocked. This is very much like good things going on and now we won't be able to fulfill our dreams."

"I'm going to do it. I'm a football player and I'll probably move on."

It'll be No. 1 Penn St. against No. 3 Sooners

By The Associated Press

Penn State remained No. 1 Monday in the Associated Press college football poll while Oklahoma moved close to a possible national championship showdown in the Orange Bowl.

Penn State completed an 11-0 regular season by defeating Pitt 31-0 and received 49 of 50 first-place votes and 1,186 of a possible 1,200 points from a nationwide panel of sports writers and sportscasters.

The Nittany Lions, who will meet Oklahoma in the Orange Bowl, have been No. 1 for three weeks in a row.

The Orange Bowl had hoped for a 1-2 shootout between Penn State and Nebraska, but the Cornhuskers lost to Oklahoma 27-7. However, that vaulted Oklahoma from fifth place to third behind Iowa.

The Hawkeyes, who moved up from third place to second and are headed for the Rose Bowl after trouncing Minnesota 31-9, received three first-place votes and 1,062 points. Oklahoma had six first-place ballots and 1,074 points. The Sooners still must play regular-season games with Oklahoma State and Southern Methodist.

Miami, a 24-3 winner over Colorado State, remained No. 4 with one first-place vote and 1,058 points. The other first-place vote went to Michigan, which trimmed Ohio State 27-17 and jumped from sixth place to fifth with 971 points.

Oklahoma State and UCLA, seventh and eighth a week ago, both ten and dropped into the Second Ten. Meanwhile, idle Florida went from ninth place to sixth with 848 points, followed by Auburn, which also was off last weekend but shot from 18th to seventh with 761 points.

Nebraska fell from second place to eighth with 722 points, Brigham Young beat Utah 38-28 and rose from 11th to ninth with 631 points and Tennessee rounded out the Top Ten with 580 points after shelling Kentucky 42-0.

Sun Valley sets ski clinic

SUN VALLEY — A four-day intensive ski racing clinic will be held at Sun Valley Dec. 3 through Dec. 6.

The "SKI With the Best" race clinic is for intermediate skiers and above. Classes will last all day, including free skiing, racing and video taping. Evening sessions will cover racing technique, ski preparation, dry land training and video review.

Dick Dorworth, former U.S. Ski Team coach and world speed skiing record holder, will head the coaching staff for the clinic. Depending on turn-out, other coaches will include Pete and Susie Patterson, former U.S. and Olympic team members, and Kathy Kreiner, Canadian Olympic gold medalist in the giant slalom.

Cost for the training clinic is $130. For information and reservations call 622-4111, extension 2431.

Bengen, Hennessey honored

BOISE (AP) — University of Idaho wide receiver Brant Bengen and linebacker Tom Hennessey have been named the Big Sky Conference offensive and defensive football players of the week, league Commissioner Ron Stephenson said.

Bengen, a 5-foot 8-inch, 172-pound junior from Bellingham, Wash., helped the Vandals to a 10-0 record over the last three Saturdays. That gave Idaho its best record ever at 9-2, its first Big Sky title since 1971 and a host berth in the first round of the NCAA Division I-AA playoffs against Eastern Washington University.

Bengen had 10 receptions for 135 yards, including touchdown catches of 14 and 16 yards.

Hennessey, a 6-1, 218-pound junior from Boise, led the Idaho defense with nine total tackles including four unassisted stops. Hennessey also collected his eighth pass interception of the season and had one pass deflection.

Record World Series shares

NEW YORK (AP) — Record World Series shares of $76,341.71 for each winning Kansas City Royal and $54,921.76 for each losing St. Louis Cardinals were announced Monday by the office of Commissioner Peter Ueberroth.

The figures broke the old marks of $65,487.70 and $44,743.31 set in 1983 by the winning Baltimore Orioles and losing Philadelphia Phillies, and were generated by a record players' pool of $7,803,371.25. Kansas City had $2,809,933.64 for distribution and St. Louis' cut was $2,107,437.61. Both teams voted 31 full shares.

The postseason payouts were increased because the pennant playoffs were expanded from best-of-5 to best-of-7 games series. That enabled the players to receive revenue from the first four playoff games, instead of the first three as they had previously.

Texas, Chisox swap players

CHICAGO (AP) — The Texas Rangers traded infielder Wayne Tolleson and pitcher Dave Schmidt on Monday to the Chicago White Sox for right-handed pitcher Ed Correa, infielder Scott Fletcher and a player to be announced later.

Correa, 19, compiled a 15-8 record with three different minor-league teams in 1985. He was signed by Chicago at age 16 in 1982. Correa has a four-year minor-league record of 32-25 with 436 strikeouts in 482 innings.

Schmidt was 7-6 with the Rangers last year. Fletcher hit .256 with two homers and 31 RBIs in 119 games with Chicago in 1985, his third full major-league season. He split time between third base and shortstop. He has a career average of .245. Tolleson hit .313 for the Rangers with 18 RBIs.

Rice is also assured of being selected first team All-Big Sky when those selections are announced next week.

Rice, who transferred to Montana last spring after two seasons at Spokane Falls (Wash.) Community College, also finished third in the Big Sky in kickoff returns with an average of 21.9 yards. He was sixth in the all-purpose running with an average of 121.3 yards catching passes, running the ball and returning punts and kickoffs.

A teammate of Rice's on the 1982 All-Big Sky team, Rice finished second in the state in the Class A high school playoffs, running back Corky Federico, finished seventh in the league in rushing.

Federico, a sophomore fullback at Idaho State, ended the year with an average of 56.6 yards per game rushing, including two games of more than 100 yards. Federico missed the last game of the season with a shoulder separation which he suffered two weeks ago against Weber State.

Despite their season finale loss to the Uni-Webster of the Pacific, 36-24, the Weber State Vandals still managed to roll up over 500 yards to claim the NCAA Division I-AA total offensive title.

The Wildcats, though finishing fourth in the Big Sky Conference, ended the season averaging over 316 yards a game.

But the Idaho Vandals, who came from behind for a 44-27 victory over Boise State in the final regular season game to take the conference championship and an automatic berth in the post-season championships, finished second in the race for divisional total offense honors with over 499 yards a game.

Nevada-Reno, which ended its season last week by beating Nevada-Las Vegas to tie a playoff spot, ranked fourth in total offense in the nation, making the Big Sky Conference the most explosive in Division I-AA.

Both Nevada-Reno and the Vandals also maintained their national rankings. The Wolf Pack was locked in a second-place tie with Furman; both at 10-1, and Idaho, at 9-2 for its best record in 14 years, retained its No. 5 ranking behind fourth-ranked Northern Iowa at 10-0.

Nevada-Reno had a first-round bye in the playoffs, preparing to take on the winner of eight-ranked Grambling against sixth-ranked Arkansas State, while Idaho faces No. 11-ranked Eastern Washington this Saturday in a rematch of a game earlier this season that saw the Vandals emerge with a 42-21 victory. The winner goes on to meet Northern Iowa in two weeks.

The Wolf Pack, which also had the best defense in the Big Sky and the 14th best nationally in allowing under 200 yards a game, claimed the nation's top scorers in the nation in rushing, averaging over 124 yards a game to lead the Big Sky and set a new I-AA freshman record, and junior quarterback Eric Beavers was the top passer in the league and the second most efficient passer in the division with a rating of nearly 152.

THE ACES®

BOBBY WOLFF

"One of the greatest joys known to man is to take a flight into ignorance in search of knowledge."

— Robert Lynd.

Can today's game be made without a peek into the opponents' hands? Not by most. Michel Perron, of France managed the feat, and he had a logical reason for his unusual play.

Jean-Paul Meyer reports the play as it took place at the 1985 European Championships.

Perron won the first heart in dummy and played dummy's diamond nine, capturing East's queen with his ace. The diamond Jack went to East's king and East led a heart, West clearing the suit by playing the ace and another. Dummy's diamond eight was cashed and East discarded a spade. What is South's best chance at this point?

At the table, Perron led a spade to his ace, dropped West's king and took three spade winners to collect exactly nine tricks. How did he know the spade king was singleton? The play told Perron that West held nine red cards, and Perron deduced that West had the guarded club king. (Otherwise West would have ducked the second heart to maintain defensive communications.) Since West was known to have two spades at most, playing for three spade winners via a finesse against East (K-x) was an obvious pipe dream. The only alternative was to try for a singleton king with West, and when it fell, Perron collected a just reward.

At big computer show Find new users, industry advised

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — The computer industry, suffering a relatively slow year after two years of phenomenal growth, can increase sales by doing a better job of adapting its wares to the general public, a marketing expert says.

Speaking at the five-day COMDEX trade show, Regis McKenna, a communications consultant and founder of Regis McKenna Inc., told computer company representatives: "The problems facing the computer industry today are not those of technology. They are problems of limited dimension."

"The dimension that we have to find is that which will bring new users of technology into the market."

Known as the showcase for the computer industry, the giant COMDEX show, which ended Sunday, featured 1,200 exhibitors displaying their products at the city's Convention Center and exhibit halls at four major resorts.

The trade show, one of 10 sponsored annually around the world by COMDEX's parent corporation, The Interface Group of Needham, Mass., provided executives with an opportunity to take stock of the slowdown in growth and get a look at products being introduced next year. They had a choice of more than 30 seminars and 100 news conferences at the seventh annual show.

But attendance Saturday was only 90,000, down from last year's Saturday mark of 90,500, reflecting the slowdown in growth.

The $39 billion personal computer industry had been roaring along at a 50 percent annual growth rate until this year, when overstatement and growing competition began to weed out weaker companies. This year's growth rate is expected to be about 23 percent — still strong by most business standards.

John Young, president and chief executive officer of Hewlett-Packard Co., said the industry had entered into a survival mode after unrestrained growth in 1983 and 1984. He urged company representatives to compare their products to a race and said it should be run as a marathon, not a sprint, with emphasis on sure, steady growth.

"There were plenty of new products, along with gimmicks to introduce them."

One company brought in a giant $1-million cabin cruiser to signal it was launching a new line. Two other companies played off Las Vegas's fame as a gambling mecca with slot machines that paid winners in computer equipment instead of coins.

Among the new systems introduced was Maxell Corp. of America's computerized three-dimensional world atlas. Typing in the name of a city brings a program to the screen, with software programmed to provide information on more than 2,500 cities.

Another new item was Butler in a Box, from Masterpiece Ltd., billed as an environmental control system that responds to voice commands. The product claims to put all the owner's electronic devices under control and can dial a telephone or answer incoming calls.

Dow backs off record levels

By CHET CURRIER
The Associated Press

NEW YORK — The stock market turned downward Monday, backing away from last week's record highs in the highest trading in six weeks.

Blue-chip technology issues were among the primary targets of sellers looking to cash in on the market's recent gains. Depressed metals issues, by contrast, staged a rally.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials fell 7.58 to 1,456.65. That drop, though by no means drastic, was the largest for the average since it lost 9.7 points on Sept. 25.

Volume on the New York Stock Exchange slowed to 91.7 million shares, down from 133.7 million Friday and the highest total since 70.54 million were traded on Oct. 14, when Columbus Day was being observed.

Analysts said stocks appeared to be encountering another of the periodic spells of profit-taking that have punctuated the market's dramatic rise over the past two months.

Losers in the blue-chip and technology sectors included General Electric, down 1/4 at 65; International Business Machines, down 1/4 at 138 1/2; Digital Equipment, down 1/4 at 116 1/2; and Texas Instruments off

1 1/2 at 102 1/2.

Metals issues came to life as the price of gold, which has been in a narrow trading range for weeks, gained $5.40 an ounce for $332.30 on the Commodity Exchange in New York.

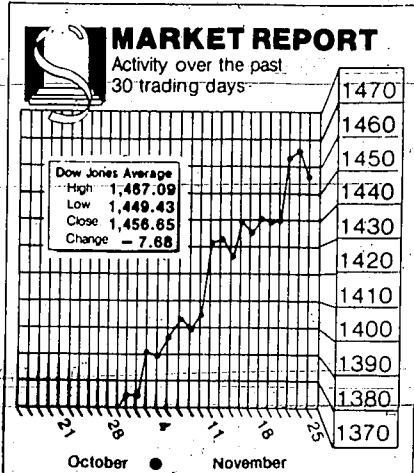

Phelps Dodge rose 1 1/2 to 21 1/2; Hecla Mining 1/2 to 16 1/2; Sunshine Mining 1/2 to 6 1/2; ASA Ltd. 1/2 to 30 1/2; and Homestake Mining 1/2 to 24 1/2.

Another of the day's best percentage gainers was National Gypsum, which climbed 2 1/2 to 36 1/2. It said a group of its top executives will propose a buyout plan for the company, offering $57.50 a share in cash and securities.

Auto issues were mixed as domestic car manufacturers came in with generally weak mid-November sales reports. General Motors rose 1/2 to 70 1/2, but Chrysler fell 1/2 to 42 1/2, and Ford Motor was down 1/2 to 51 1/2.

In the daily count on the Big Board, about two issues fell in price for every one that gained ground. The exchange's composite index dropped .63 to 115.39.

Nationwide turnover in NYSE-listed issues, including trades in those stocks on regional exchanges and in the over-the-counter market, totaled 112.71 million shares.

Regional timber sales up but value off sharply

MISSOULA, Mont. (AP) — The U.S. Forest Service sold more timber from its Northern Region this year than last, but the value of the wood cut showed a sharp 38 percent decrease, the agency says.

Forest Service officials blamed the decrease on the fierce competition in the timber industry.

The value of timber cut in the Northern Region, which includes Montana, northern Idaho and parts of eastern Washington and North Dakota, was $13.1 million during the fiscal year that ended Sept. 30, according to figures compiled last week.

In fiscal 1984, the timber harvest was valued at $21.3 million, the report said.

The agency sold more than 937 million board feet of timber in 1985, while 944 million board feet were actually cut. That compares with 917 million board feet sold in 1984 and 947 million board feet were cut in 1984 and 917 million board feet were cut the year before that.

In Montana, 1985 national forest timber sales climbed to 542 million board feet in 1985, compared to 478 million board feet in sales the year before, but the value of the timber declined from $14.4 million to $11.8 million, the Forest Service said.

Loggers actually cut 496 million board feet during 1985, compared to 536 million board feet the previous year.

The Kootenai National Forest in northwestern Montana led the state in timber cut last year with nearly 174 million board feet, followed by the Flathead National Forest with 89 million board feet.

John Combes, assistant regional director of timber management at the agency's headquarters in Missoula, said the decline in timber value is a reflection of the tough competition in today's timber market.

He said many sawmills, hurt by low lumber prices, are choosing less expensive timber to stay competitive.

Here are 10 ways to save in shopping catalog showrooms

It was back in the 1950s that no-frills, self-service shopping exploded in retail showrooms, thereby offering us a way of buying at wholesale prices brand-name merchandise previously available only at marked-up retail prices and saving significant totals.

From zero, the catalog showrooms have soared into a $10 billion industry located in most major cities and supplying a variety of goods matching this growth. You can now order at discount prices everything from brand-name household appliances to fine jewelry and sophisticated electronic equipment. With Christmas the busiest time of the year, the catalog showroom is a particularly shrewd way of shopping.

Most customers use an annual catalog. First, they pre-shop the catalog; then they come to a showroom to examine the merchandise, then they place their orders.

"In addition to the value and cost saving available, shopping at a catalog showroom is easier and more pleasant today than ever before," says Bernard A. Cohen, executive vice president of Best Products, headquartered in Richmond, Va.

Best has annual sales of more than $2 billion, operates more than 213 showrooms throughout the United States and is one of the two largest publicly held catalog showrooms retailers in the country.

If you are just beginning to take advantage of this merchandising concept, here are valuable guidelines on how to shop and save money:

1. Study the catalog at home. In a good one, you'll find brand-name merchandise in all price ranges.
2. Make a second choice from the catalog. That protects you should the merchandising staff run out of stock at the end of the season.
3. Phone ahead. Catalogs can have your merchandise waiting for you to pick up.
4. Read the catalog's description of how to shop a showroom before you go to one. You can save time if you know beforehand how to place an order, pay for it and pick it up.
5. Look for sales flyers and in-showroom specials. You may have missed a sales promotion if you're not on the catalog's mailing list. There may be an item on sale comparable to the one you're seeking. Ask to be put on the mailing list.

6. At the showrooms, look for items not in the catalog. In addition to the 8,500 products in Best's catalog, for instance, you'll find another 5,000 either of a seasonal nature or introduced after the catalog was printed in the fall.
7. If you're shopping for jewelry, what you see in the showroom display case may not be all that's available. The catalog may be able to track down just about any size and quality stone you want — at prices dramatically below those charged by traditional jewelers.
8. Check the catalog's policies on warranties, returns and rebates.

Most are comparable to full-price retailers, but be sure to save your sales slips in case any questions come up.

9. If you're buying fragile glassware, open the box at the pickup counter and make sure it's in good condition. You thereby eliminate a possible return trip.

10. Today's catalog showrooms are generally large — an average of 30,000 square feet — and they offer computerized shopping procedures. But before looking for an employee to ask a question, read the tags attached to the merchandise with care.

Low prices are possible only when the consumer saves as well. It would be foolish to expect a lot more specialized service outside of the jewelry department.

Assuming you're dealing with an honest, reputable catalog showroom, you can expect full value on a wide range of brand-name merchandise. You can expect prices low enough to beat what you find in regular retail outlets.

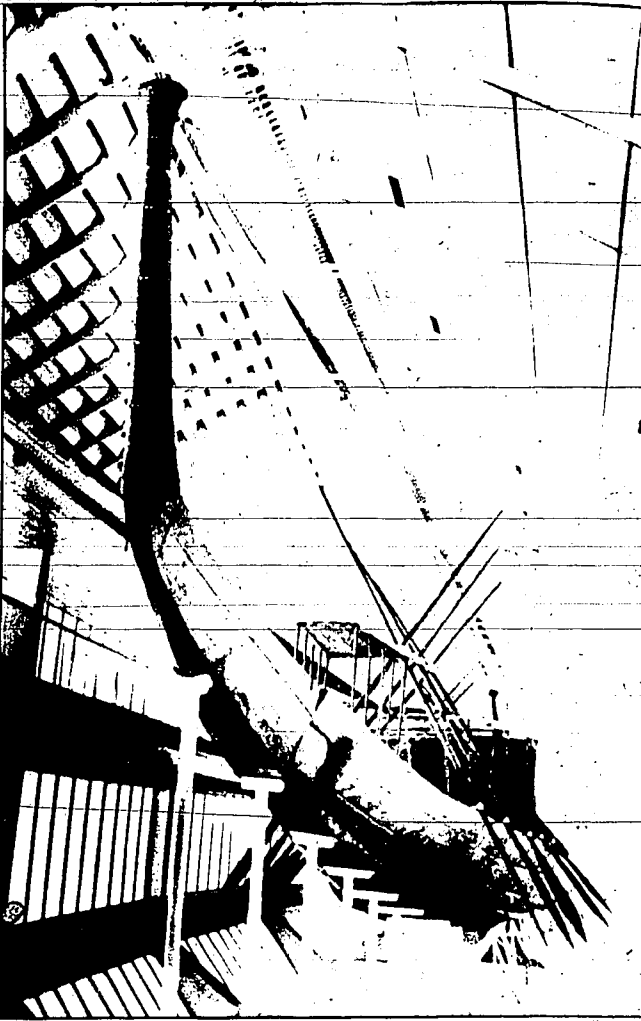

But no-frills means precisely what it says. And serving yourself implies you're a sufficiently sophisticated shopper to know the difference between sound equipment and the plummy fluff.

I know myself well enough to know I don't trust myself alone in this type of showroom. I get value for my dollar but I pay a full dollar for what I buy.

Sylvia Porter writes on consumer matters for Universal Press Syndicate.

A boat like the one built for the Egyptian Pharaoh Cheops (above) may be buried in the pit

Scientists hope to extract 4,600-year-old air from pit

By DALIA BALIGH
Associated Press

GIZA, Egypt — Technology designed to sniff the air on Mars is being adapted at the Great Pyramid of Cheops to save air which the pharaohs breathed.

If successful, an Egyptian-American team hopes to analyze the air — undisturbed for 4,600 years — to learn more about changes in the Earth's atmosphere. The research may also uncover the ancient Egyptians' secret of preserving their possessions for thousands of years.

Once inside the chamber at the foot of the pyramid, there is also a hope of finding another of the boats built for Pharaoh Cheops, on his final voyage.

It is the first entry of the Space Age into archaeological work in Egypt. When Westerners opened the tomb of the Pharaohic tombs generations ago, using picks and shovels, no one gave a thought about the value of the dusty air inside.

This project aims to collect untainted air in bottles developed by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration for sampling the atmosphere of Mars. Sensors will be inserted into the pit at the same time, along with special camera, but there are no plans to excavate until technology is developed to preserve whatever more substantial relics the pit may contain.

The rectangular pit has been known since 1952, when archaeologists found it and an identical one at the south end of Cheops' pyramid. They had been clearing rubble around the mammoth stone structure built around 2550 B.C., the first and largest of the three Great Pyramids of Giza.

Two years later, beneath a huge limestone slab, archaeologist Kamel el-Malahk uncovered one of Cheops' boats, still considered the oldest and best-preserved wooden bark ever found.

The second pit remained untouched, and only last summer did the idea arise of trying to extract the air while leaving the rest of the artifacts intact.

Hope that the pit is airtight is based on the ancient Egyptian practice of carefully filling the cracks between the slabs with gypsum. Workers present when the first pit was uncovered recalled a strong smell of cedar emanating from the wooden ship.

"We hope the (second) pit is very well sealed," said Dr. Omar el-Arini, an Egyptian scientist and adviser to the Antiquities Authority. "The crucial part is to get this air using non-intrusive methods, without allowing any external factors to affect or change it. We'll use Space Age technology to do it."

The project will cost about $1.5 million to be donated by the sponsors, which include NASA, the National Geographic Society, the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration, and the Egyptian Antiquities Authority.

El-Arini said the basic plan entails boring small holes through the limestone slabs, which are four to six feet thick, with drills that use a vacuum process rather than fluids to clear their path. The speed will be regulated so as not to change the temperature, humidity and composition of the trapped air.

He said samples of the limestone already are under study to determine how it can best be done.

A possible benefit of retrieving the air is the possibility that its chemical composition is more effective in preserving ancient relics than the smog-smear air of modern cities. If so, the composition could be copied.

"Even 20-year-old air is considered a prize" by NOAA, el-Arini said, for the information it provides on changes in the atmosphere. Egyptologists say they have no proof that the unopened pit contains a second boat. If one is there it is thought to be a sailboat meant for rowing with the Nile River's currents, unlike the first which had 42 oars for rowing against the current.

Experts disagree on the purpose of the boats. Some say they were intended as a celestial conveyance for the soul, while others believe they were intended for the more mundane task of ferrying the dead ruler's corpse.

Evidence indicates that the first boat actually had been in the water.

Scientists say, however, that there is a slim possibility the pit contains only the possessions of Cheops buried with him for life in the next world, which in itself would be a significant find because grave robbers had emptied all the Pharaohs' other burial chambers.

The next step in the project is to probe the chamber with sonar and radar, to get a better idea of what's inside without disturbing the air.

Whatever is discovered by the modern technology inside the pit will remain there for now. "We will not uncover the pit until they build a museum where we can create the atmosphere we hope to discover," el-Arini said. "That will preserve whatever we find in the pit along with other wooden antiquities."

Honest man turns in $143,000 find

BISMARCK, N.D. (AP) — A man who found a satchel containing about $143,000 worth of negotiable stocks, bonds and checks and savings passbooks resisted temptation and turned in the bag, police said.

Lafone Ratcliff, 26, said he found the bag in a downtown drugstore Monday, checked the contents and looked for identification of the owner. Since he had to go to work, he called police, who later picked up the bag.

"It seemed like a test of some sort, and I had always been taught and taught to get things for free," Ratcliff said. "And then out of the blue this shows up. Well I just didn't want to have it right."

Ecologists blame people, not drought, for African famine

By PAUL RABURN
Associated Press

NEW YORK — The famine in Africa was caused by human activity, not by lack of rain, and emergency food aid is making the situation worse, two ecologists have concluded.

Piecemeal aid from developed countries has changed life in sub-Saharan Africa so dramatically that the land can no longer support the population, the researchers say.

The changes may even be altering the weather itself.

The cure of the problem, according to Anthony Sinclair and John Fryxell of the University of British Columbia in Vancouver, is that too many people are on many cattle are living on land that can no longer support them, because it has been overgrazed and stripped of vegetation.

"If you feed the people and leave them where they are, it won't address that problem," Sinclair said recently in a telephone interview. "It will make it worse, because these people will move into new areas—and alter—the vegetation again, so the famine will spread."

Sinclair is quick to say that on humanitarian grounds there is no immediate alternative to sending food to the millions of starving African families, but warns that more must be done.

"The very first thing we have to address is to repair the vegetation," he said. "We've got to get the grasslands growing again. We've got to take the people off the land, take the pressure off the land."

Moving large numbers of people is a difficult political problem in the best of circumstances, and may be impossible given the political unrest in some of the drought-stricken countries of Africa. In the broad belt known as the Sahel that stretches across the continent just south of the Sahara.

"We're not the right people to say how this should be done," Sinclair said. "We're not in the aid business. But that shouldn't stop us from mentioning problems."

Sinclair and Fryxell are specialists in the migration of wild animals in the Sahel.

In a recent paper titled "The Sahel of Africa: ecology of a disaster," Sinclair and Fryxell described how the wildebeest and the white-eared kob, two African antelopes, survive in large numbers by migrating during the rainy season to areas where short-lived, high protein grasses briefly appear, and then returning in the dry season to areas where lower-quality vegetation grows year-round.

Mass murderer's diary released

By JOHN HOWARD
Associated Press

SAN ANTONIO, Calif. — Suspected mass killer Leonard Lake, whose mountain retreat concealed the charred remains of at least 11 people—wrote in his diary that he had "death in my pocket and fantasy as my major goal," according to court records released Thursday.

Lake, 31, a survivalist who committed suicide in police custody last June, kept a meticulous 250-page diary, which contained dates, places and details of alleged crimes, authorities said.

The diary and transcripts of videotape recordings made at Lake's retreat paint a chilling picture of terror and death. Authorities have linked Lake and companion Charles "Doc" McEachin to the disappearances of 22 people.

On Tuesday, authorities identified some of the remains found at the retreat as belonging to Kathleen Allen, 18, of Milpitas, Calif., and Brenda O'Connor, 20, a neighbor of Lake's. They were both seen on the tape, according to authorities.

"We're going to give you a chance, Kathy. It's probably the last choice we're going to give you, you can go along with us, you're going to cooperate," the transcripts said.

"If you don't cooperate with us, we'll probably put a round through your head, and take you out and bury you someplace. No witnesses."

In another place on the tape, according to the transcript, the woman is seen strapped to a bed. Ms. O'Connor is also seen on the tape, as is a man with a knife whose face is not visible.
