U.S. accepts Israeli apology in spy case

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Secretary of State George Shultz said Sunday the United States is "satisfied" with Israel's apology in the case of a U.S. Navy intelligence analyst accused of spying for Israel.

Shultz said in an excellent statement and we are satisfied by it and we welcome it," Shultz said in a statement to reporters traveling with him to Colombia for a meeting of the Organization of American States.

"We have full confidence in Israel's determination and ability to pursue this case down to the last detail and to bring those responsible to account," he said. Part of the text of his statement was made available by the State Department in Washington.

The Israeli government issued the apology Sunday, saying it would take action against those responsible in the spy case and promising to expand the intelligence unit involved if an investigation proves that Israel had used U.S. Navy intelligence expert Jonathan J. Pollard to spy on the United States.

"If there was such activity, it was wrong and the government of Israel apologizes for it," the Israeli government said.

It was Israel's first apology since the recent Bureau of Investigation arrested Pollard on Nov. 21 and accused the 31-year-old American Jew of selling military secrets to Israel for $50,000 over the last 18 months.

His wife, Anne Henderson-Pollard, 25, was arrested the next day and charged with unauthorized possession of national defense documents.

President Reagan, on his arrival in Santa Monica, Calif., to tape a television program, was asked by reporters whether he was satisfied with the apology. He gestured non-committally and did not reply.

Assistant Attorney General Stephen S. Trott, interviewed on NBC's "Meet the Press," said the Israeli statement was an invitation to U.S. investigators to question Israeli diplomats.

"The important part of what they said is that they pledged their cooperation with us in getting to the bottom of this," he said. "We will take them at their word but the proof will be in the pudding. We intend to consider this an invitation to participate in the investigation."

Trott, who heads the Justice Department's criminal division, said it is important that U.S. officials be allowed to question two Israeli diplomats who were abruptly recalled after Pollard was arrested last month.

"Where that takes place is irrelevant. The important thing is that we get the information we need to complete this investigation and I can guarantee you we will get that information," he said.

Trott said affidavits, sworn written statements "usually aren't sufficient." "We like to look people in the eye in order to assess the information they give us."

Snow, ice flatten big fair building

Three county law enforcement officers and a volunteer fireman were stored in the building.

"We had some fair ground trucks, boats, mowers, and all of the things that are stored there," Shouse said.

"He said one of the major concerns Sunday night was insurance coverage on the building and contents," Twin Falls County Commissioner Chairman Art Cover said.

"The building was nothing but a pile of rubble late Sunday afternoon," he said at about 2:30 to 3 p.m. it was standing but when he went outside again at 4 p.m. it was just a pile of rubble.

"We figure the pressure pushed out the walls and then the roof collapsed," Shouse said. "I have seen a lot more snow on the buildings than this, but apparently there is more weight in the ice, snow, next month to replace the buildings, but I just don't think there was enough snow on them to cause anything like this," Shouse said in addition to the

Bonner set for flight to Italy

The Associated Press

MOSCOW — Yelena Bonner, wife of dissident physicist Andrei Sakharov, is booked to leave Moscow today for medical treatment in Italy and the United States after a 19-month exile during which sources say she spent months isolated from her husband and friends.

Mrs. Bonner, 61, has promised Soviet authorities she will not meet the news media during her three-month stay in the West.

Uninformed guards have kept watch on her Moscow apartment since she returned to the Soviet capital Tuesday and refuse to let foreigners inside.

Sources who spoke on condition they not be identified said the 62-year-old physician looked extremely tired and in poor health after she returned from internal exile in Gorky, 250 miles to the east.

She told relatives in Newton, Mass., by telephone last Thursday that she had received an exit visa for Italy and the United States and planned to leave on Monday for Italy, where she will receive treatment for the eye ailment glaucoma.

Later, she will travel to the United States for a coronary bypass operation.

An employee of the Italian airline Alitalia confirmed late Sunday that Mrs. Bonner is booked on the airline's plane to Rome by way of Milan on Monday, but said he did not know if she had picked up her ticket from an office of the Soviet airline Aeroflot, the sole air carrier agent in the Soviet Union.

Mrs. Bonner, who suffers from heart and eye ailments, had not been in Moscow since the spring of 1968, when she was held in Gorky on charges of anti-Sovietism. She later was convicted and sentenced to five years' exile in the city, where her husband was banished in January 1969.

Mrs. Bonner's children in the United States have said he lost 44 pounds during the fasts.

Winter continues assault on Idaho

By The Associated Press

Severe winter weather continued its assault on Idaho Sunday night as the National Weather Service issued a winter storm warning and predicting snow and ice in the valleys and plains.

The NWS said the snow was expected to turn to freezing rain by late Sunday night throughout the state creating hazardous driving conditions, as many travelers were returning home from visits during the Thanksgiving weekend. The winter storm warning included travelers advisories for Idaho roadways.

Idaho State Police in Twin Falls said most secondary roads in the Magic Valley area were down to one lane traffic at 10:30 p.m. Sunday. Major highways were snow covered and slick. As a result, a number of motorists had to idly borrow pits and medians.

Two hitchhikers were picked up by state officers at I-15-93 and I-84 and returned to Twin Falls late Sunday during the snow and wind storm. Officers were attempting to find shelter for them.

Police throughout the area reported severe winds, blowing snow and poor visibility.

Twin Falls County sheriff's office reported some roads were drifting, but none had been closed as of 10:30 p.m. Sunday.

records for snowfall and temperatures that shattered previous records set in the late 1800s.

As of Sunday night, seven people had died on Idaho roadways since Thanksgiving eve.

The latest reinforcement to a storm that left Idahoans digging out after Thanksgiving day comes from a storm developing in the eastern Pacific Ocean, the weather service said.

The center of the storm will remain offshore, but if it is pushing warm air over a dome of cold air that covers the Gem State, creating snowfall that is expected to accumulate up to a foot in the mountains.

As the air mass warms, snow will become mixed freezing rain, which will coat Idaho roadways with a sheet of ice, the NWS said.

In Boise, the NWS reported the coldest and snowiest November on record in Idaho's capital. The average monthly temperature was 27.7 degrees.

The lowest November since record-keeping began in 1880. The normal monthly average temperature is 39.7 degrees.

Snowfall also set a November record with 18.6 inches.

600 sing Christmas carols as trees in City Park light up

By ANNETTE CARY

TWIN FALLS — Some 600 people raised their voices in a chorus of "Joy to the World" Sunday evening as one by one trees in City Park lit up in Christmas colors.

Temperatures dipped and a wet snow clung to caps and faces. But that didn't dampen the spirits of the crowd. They cheered and clapped the million hands as local children waved flashlight torches at each snowy tree to magically summon blue, green, red and yellow lights.

The program began with the reading of passages from the biblical Book of Isaiah foretelling the coming of Christ. The Rev. Gilbert Myers of the First Baptist Church lit the first purple candle on an oversized advent wreath, the candle that symbolizes the birth of Christ.

The program also included a brief memorial service sponsored by Friends of Hospices and the lighting by the First Baptist Church Bell Choir and taped music. The children led the crowd, gathered around the park bandshell in a huge semi-circle, in Christmas favorites such as "Silent Night," "The First Noel" and "Hark, the Herald Angels Sing."

The Christmas in City Park celebration will continue each Sunday in Advent. Next week, the program will feature "The Magichords" — the Sackett Adelines and the Magic Valley Chorale. And the week after that will be highlighted by the unveiling of the city's new nativity scene donated by Howard and Charles Allen. The Hispanic pageant, Las Posadas, is planned for the final Sunday in advent.

The celebrations are the result of the work of hundreds of volunteers. They have served 15,000 colored bulbs into sockets, practiced Christmas carols to perform, donated thousands of dollars and volunteered Saturdays to install electrical wiring and bang lights.

A memorial tree set off with hundreds of glowing white lights.

Senate schedules vote on PAC limits

By DAVID GOELLETT

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The Senate is set to take its first vote this week on a proposal to limit money that members of Congress can accept from political action committees — the fastest growing source of campaign funds.

Supporters contend the consciences of lawmakers will be tested by the vote, while opponents argue that the proposed restrictions will infringe on the political process and need further study.

Both sides agree on two points: PAC contributions to incumbents in Congress are soaring, and the outcome of Tuesday's scheduled roll call is uncertain.

"This is the first Senate vote that squarely faces the issue of whether PACs are a problem," says an important test for every senator, he said.

says Sen. David Boren, D-Okla.

His bill would restrict House candidates to $100,000 in PAC money during each two-year election cycle. Senate limits would range from $175,000 to $750,000, depending on a state's population.

Last year, 251 House candidates exceeded Boren's proposed ceiling. And Common Cause, the self-described citizens' lobby, says that had it been in effect for 1984 Senate races, the $28 million in PAC donations would have been cut in half.

The proposal, which has 10 co-sponsors from both parties, also would cut from $5,000 to $3,000 the amount a single PAC can give a candidate and raise individual contribution limits from $1,000 to $1,500.

This week's showdown is the first time in eight years that campaign finance reform has even been debated on the Senate floor. In 1977, a House vote will to c... financing was killed by a cluster.

In other action, the Senate is scheduled to consider a bill to structure the financially troubled Farm Credit System, the nation's largest farm lender.

The House will decide whether to accept changes the Senate made in a House-passed bill putting import quotas on textiles and apparel.

Senate and House negotiators still are working toward agreement on a compromise version of the Gramm-Rudman budget-balancing measure; a House-Senate conference on the 1985 farm bill also is scheduled to begin work.

The Boren bill, as critics point out, is getting to the floor without being considered in committee, where such proposals have languished in the past.

Storm moves from Rockies, becomes Midwest blizzard

Missoula, with I above and at 17 home," Minnesota State Patrol dispatcher Tracy Woltas said at Mankato.

A major storm that dumped up to 2 feet of snow in the Rockies piled up snow and ice roads Sunday from the southern Plains to the Great Lakes at the close of the Thanksgiving holiday weekend, and police warned people across parts of the upper Midwest to stay off the roads.

Blizzard warnings were issued for central Iowa and south-central and southeastern Minnesota, with subzero temperatures, up to a foot of snow and winds of 40 mph. Students at some universities and colleges in Iowa, Wisconsin and Minnesota were told to stay home Monday, and hundreds of church services were canceled in parts of Minnesota and in Des Moines.

Drifts piled over more than 3 feet high in southeastern Minnesota, the National Weather Service reported. A "bone-deep blizzard," said National Weather Service meteorologist Gary Forster in Des Moines, "is really dangerous. People don't realize how the cold affects you."

Low temperature records were broken on the northern Rockies into Texas, with wind chill factors down to 60 below zero, and thunderstorms broke out along the storm's southern edge. Only one regular reporting station in Montana was above zero by 4 a.m.

vehicles are covered by the usual insurance policies, but the wasn't sure what the collapse of a building would constitute.

"We are hoping they aren't too badly crushed, but we won't know until we get them out from under the building. Maybe we can put out old car bodies on the frames and engines of the new ones," Munn said.

The sheriff said the three vehicles are valued at $24,000.

Shouse said fortunately most of the fair ground vehicles had been moved to the newer Tom Parks Building for repairs and maintenance. He said the building that collapsed is one of the oldest on the fairgrounds. A frame structure with wooden roof, it was built about 1915 or 1916.

Although he said he could not estimate the loss as yet, he added he would press to continue to repair or replace a building of that size.

Shouse said the front wall of the building remained upright, but was leaning badly. He said the first thing he planned to do is to clean-up and salvage. Underwriting is to pull that wall down for safety purposes before anyone went into the ruins. The fairground gates will also be locked until clean-up can be completed, he said.

"We will probably begin taking snow and ice off of the other older buildings too," he said. "We don't have any snow removal equipment and all of the roads in the fairgrounds are blocked by deep snow. We can't hardly go around, so we have to solve some of those problems first."

Shouse said this is the most serious fairgrounds loss since our grandparents burned several years ago, and he added it may not be possible to replace the large structure because of funding difficulties.

He said he and his wife were home when the big structure fell, but they didn't hear it. Neighbors also failed to hear a sound, he said, although it must have gone down with a lot of noise.

Shuttle crews go to work

'Hardhats' in space build a metal tower

Space walker Sherwood Spring attaches platform to robot arm on Space Shuttle Atlantis.

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Atlantis' spacewalking hardhats Sunday built a four-story tower in the shuttle's open cargo bay, maneuvered the massive structure by hand and declared themselves ready to "go build a space station."

In their second spacewalk test of construction skills, astronauts Jerry Ross and Sherwood Spring assembled a 45-foot metal tower from aluminum struts and then manhandled it about the cargo bay to prove they were master space steeplejacks.

"It feels very easy," said Ross as he hoisted the tower. "I can go wherever I want to with it."

At one point, the astronaut laughed and said, "Let's go build a space station."

Ross was standing on a platform at the end of Atlantis' robot arm when the tower was released into his hands. He moved the bulky, 200-pound structure around and was even able to keep it pointed at the end of the spacecraft's 220-mile orbit above the Earth.

"I can bring it down as far as the moon's right in the middle of the frame," said Ross. "Bingo! Smack dab."

The astronauts built the tower from 93 struts of aluminum tubes, 1/2 inch in diameter. The struts had sockets that permitted them to snap the parts together like Tinkertoy pieces.

A 12-foot pyramid, weighing about 384 pounds, also was to be assembled and moved about by hand.

Spring and Ross were eager to start their second spacewalk of Atlantis' mission and moved through a hatch into the open cargo bay at 1:22 p.m. MST, about half an hour earlier than planned.

"It's a bright shining day outside," said Ross. "I can't wait to go outside and play."

"We've got a couple of bit chompers up here," said mission commander Brewster Shaw. "What do you say we get this thing started?"

On Friday, the astronauts built and disassembled the tower and pyramid in a five-hour, 32-minute spacewalk. They read ahead of schedule and were able to build and disassemble the pyramid eight times.

Construction of the beam and pyramid, said NASA officials, proved that astronauts will be able to assemble major elements of a permanent space station that NASA hopes to build in orbit in the 1990s.

During much of Friday's work, the astronauts floated free.

But for Sunday's work, the assembly was accomplished while one of the astronauts stood on the end of Atlantis' robot arm, controlled from inside the shuttle by astronaut Mary Cleave.

At one point, both spacewalkers rode from the bottom to the top of the tower and back.

Study shows victims don't summon police

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two-thirds of rapes and other violent crimes are America's crime victims don't call the police and people are more likely to report car thefts than rapes or other types of assault, the Justice Department said Sunday.

In a report that sheds new light on how people react to being crime victims, the department's Bureau of Justice Statistics said only 35 percent of some 37.1 million crimes in 1983 were reported to police.

These findings, gleaned from twice-a-year interviews with some 129,000 randomly selected people aged 12 and older, showed that nearly 70 percent of motor vehicle thefts are reported while less than half of

U.S. officers in Malta before raid on airplane

WASHINGTON (AP) — At least two American military officers traveled with Egyptian commandos who stormed an Egyptian jetliner but did not participate in the raid, a government source said Sunday.

The source, speaking on condition of anonymity, said the American officers who flew to Malta aboard an Egyptian C-100 Hercules military transport plane were stationed in Cairo as part of the U.S. military aid mission to Egypt.

These officers were engaged in counterterrorism training as part of their duties in the Egyptian capital, the official said.

A third U.S. officer may have traveled to Malta on the Egyptian plane, but none of the Americans participated in the raid, the source said.

In addition, the Army's Delta Force anti-terrorism unit was sent to a NATO base in nearby Sicily after terrorists seized the Boeing 737 on Nov. 23 after takeoff from Athens, Greece, and ordered it to land in Valletta, Malta.

The source said he did not know other details about Delta Force's activities in the Mediterranean after the hijacking.

The Washington Post reported in Sunday editions that one of the American officers who went to Malta was a general and that their presence in full-dress battle uniform had angered Maltese officials.

Nearly 60 people died as a result of the hijacking and the Nov. 24 assault by about 25 Egyptian commandos, who blasted a hole in the plane's cabin entrance to the cabin. There were 38 passengers and crew members aboard the Boeing 737 when it left Athens.

One American woman was shot to death by the terrorists after the plane landed in Malta.

Fred Hoffman, deputy assistant secretary of defense, declined to comment on whether U.S. military officers went to Malta.

Yurchenko info sparks spy probes

WASHINGTON (AP) — FBI Director William H. Webster acknowledged Sunday that his agents have opened "a substantial number" of spy investigations because of information provided by turnabout Soviet defector Vitaly Yurchenko.

If he can't put it in terms of arrests, but we have opened a substantial number of cases based on very useful information that he has supplied, not only new cases but reviewing old information that might reflect on other holes that were opened in prior years, Webster said on ABC's "This Week With David Brinkley."

Referring to Yurchenko's disclosures, the director said, "It's been very useful." Webster provided no details of the cases to which he referred.

Sources have previously said that Yurchenko had implicated two Americans involved in the recent spate of spy cases: Ronald William Pelton, 44, a former National Security Agency communications specialist, and former CIA agent Edward L. Howard, 54, who fled to Finland after being questioned by the FBI. Both are accused of providing intelligence information to the Soviet Union.

Yurchenko, the KGB general-designate, defected in Rome last summer. But in a reversal this fall, he returned to the Soviet Union after accusing the CIA of kidnapping him.

Cartoon voice dies

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Cartoon writer-producer Bill Scott, who lent his voice to the characters Bullwinkle and Dudley Do-Right, has died of a heart attack. He was 65.

Scott died Friday at his home in Tujunga, about 15 miles north of Los Angeles, said his daughter, Barbara Scott.

Scott was best known as the voice behind several characters from the popular "Rocky and His Friends" television show.

SNOW BUILD-UP

During the last few days of continued snowfall and snow buildup the City of Twin Falls has had an increasing problem with snow being pushed out into streets and alleys from private property. City Code Section 8-2-9 (D) prohibits the obstruction of public ways except by special permit. Those who block or partially block streets, alleys, and sidewalks with snow removed from private property are violating the law. They are also increasing their personal liability exposure by creating hazardous driving conditions for the traveling public. Property owners should pile snow on their own property to stay legal. Citations will be issued if continued violation occurs.

Missing-kids ads remain beneficial

Some child care experts and physicians are disturbed by the large number of notices, on everything from milk cartons to shopping bags, being used to depict missing children. They fear that children are being bombarded with these ads and may become inordinately fearful of being followed or kidnapped by any adults they do not immediately recognize.

We suspect, however, that this is an overreaction. Between children who are unafraid of strangers, who accept rides from them or open doors to allow them into their homes, and children who are wary when they are approached by adults they do not know, surely the latter are safer.

Long before anyone thought to run a national campaign depicting missing children, there was a belief that children should be taught early whom to trust and whom not to. Trust, obviously, family members and relatives. Trust neighbors who are friends and other adults who are close friends of the family. Trust school crossing guards, teachers, the police on the beat. Teach children to approach people behind the counters or security guards if they get lost in department stores. Get one's neighborhood involved in becoming more of a community, in learning about one another, becoming friends and looking out for each other's children. Anyone else is a stranger with whom a child should be more careful.

Knowing these things would help make a child feel secure by letting him know his neighbors and other adults in his life as friends. If a child looks at the face of a missing child on a carton of milk and asks his mother or father why the face is there, an excellent opportunity opens for a valuable discussion.

Few of the many children listed as missing have actually been kidnapped by strangers. Some have been taken by one parent. Most have run away from home. Some children are sensitive and may be frightened by the notices, but plenty of experts say such fears are rare. The same children may be equally frightened by the television shows they watch.

Unfortunately, there are relatively few communities around the country where there is no reason to be afraid because there are no strangers to speak of. But it is better if children fear strangers than if they trust an unknown person who has not earned their or their parents' trust. If those ads convey that message, that's not a bad idea.

Soviet sincerity could be hopeful sign

Jack Burby

President Reagan is indeed a quick study. He said last week that General Secretary Mikhail Gorbachev told him what really worries the Soviet Union about "Star Wars" research: that the United States will learn how to launch nuclear missiles from space. The farthest thing from the president's mind, he said, and yet, I'm convinced that Gorbachev really believes this.

Reagan figured out in two days what it took this writer two weeks to grasp during a recent tour of the Soviet Union with California journalists. Looking back, it's clear that the Soviet writers and broadcasters we met along the way, in formal sessions and in more relaxed late-night discussions, really believe the things they say, too.

The Californians went to explore how a workday reporter or television producer or columnist can affect relations between the superpowers. Many of the Soviets we met had spent two weeks in California last year addressing the same question in return as stilled as such first meetings can be.

The return visit was different. We were sparing partners — but partners — and we dove not only into the vast differences in the way writers and broadcasters approach their jobs in the two countries but also war and peace, Afghanistan, nuclear winter, ideology and motivations, territory far outside the usual charter of American journalists — but not outside theirs.

It took me so long to realize that they believe what they were saying. I suppose, because it took time to shake the caricature of the Soviets as people too smart to believe in Marxism and too smart to say so.

What the journalists we met believe is that their system will inevitably take over the world, one exhausted country at a time. There is no hurry. The phrase "hiding time" recurs in the writings of V. I. Lenin. They believe that war on a grand scale would only slow down a process they see as inexorable. They believe that the United States would start any such war. They are indignant that Americans believe the same about them.

They believe that their dissidents disrupt their revolution and that the way they treat dissidents is their own business. They are in Afghanistan to prevent sinister forces from returning the country to feudalism. What they believe leads to such questions as, "Why do Americans hate us?"

Against that cascade, the Californians pressed their concepts of freedom and challenged the way that Soviet journalism ignored Afghanistan for so long. We raised the possibility that Americans were wary of Soviets because Nikita Khrushchev's line, "We will bury you," still rings in American ears (they said that was a faulty translation). We tried, without apparent success, to persuade them that they were wrong when they said press and television in this country did not cover a joint discussion by American and Soviet scientists on nuclear winter.

What makes what they believe special is the role of Soviet journalists in their society. American journalists are schooled in skepticism, especially in matters outrightly self-serving and political.

Soviet journalists are part of government — the part with the talent to write persuasively about the dangers of imperialism and the obligations of Soviet citizens, a role about which they are casual and, in most cases, proud. "We serve the party line," that is true, "said a Pravda correspondent. "And the slogan of the party is that the interest of the people is above all. You may wonder why talented people are so willing to be an arm of the party. It is because we are pioneering a new society."

Nor is everything they write grim. After Gorbachev's crackdown on alcohol, one writer suggested that if vodka was to be discouraged, then perhaps the manufacture of glasses should be stopped since glasses simply invite people to pour vodka into them.

The discussions were not all divisive and take. There were stories that writers and broadcasters could share without regard to border or ideology. For example, we were told that in the early days of the Soviet manned space program, the space bureaucrats considered television crews near the launch pads a nuisance. They stiff-armed coverage. So Soviet television ignored the cosmonauts for a while, and pretty soon the space bureaucrats dropped by to ask how they could be of assistance. It could have happened here.

Agreeing that journalism is a job that keeps you on the run, we picked up an old Russian saying, of which there are at least five for every situation. "The wolf eats by its legs."

One of their group helped us find the voice of America on our shortwave band every time we lost it. They pampered us and put us up at the best hotels. They were quite candid about the need for dramatic change in their economy and the need to move quickly to meet expectations that began rising when Gorbachev took office. They told mischievous and sardonic and very Russian jokes about the system.

"How tall is the Soviet Union?" "It is 1 meter, 82 centimeters."

"How do you know?"

"I am 1 meter, 37 centimeters, and I am up to here with it."

At the last meeting, in a plush conference room at a hotel in the moist, warm air of the Black Sea coast, the Californians got back to their more familiar and narrow journalistic charter — are there ways that Soviet writers distort life in the United States; that American writers distort life in the Soviet Union?

In the abstract, those questions can be argued endlessly, so we agreed to pin them down to particulars. The Californians will spend the next year marking up articles from Pravda and other publications and writing comments on Soviet television shows that we think bend over backward to make Americans look bad; they will do the same with clippings and videotapes from America. Next year, when the Soviet writers and broadcasters come back to California we will devote the working sessions to going over the results in detail, looking for lessons to add to one important lesson from the September trip.

The lesson is that, belatedly, the formal conferences and late-night meetings leave two great crystals of conflicting beliefs and values, neither of them likely to shatter or be altered, even under the pressure of the most eloquent words or persuasive pictures. I think the Soviet journalists would ask us the Californians that we can both live — and let live — with that.

Over time, the world will choose between the two crystals of philosophy — one that arranges people's lives, the other that leaves them free to arrange their own lives. There is a gloomy side to the discovery that the Californians mean what they say. But it is also possible to think that because the Soviets we talked with are true believers, they are likely to work harder to keep the ideological competition peaceful than they would if they didn't believe any of it.

Philosophy, not grunting, moves to fore in today's football

Vince Lombardi, George Halas and Knute Rockne were football coaches, period. They devised game plans, forged strategies and motivated men. Despite ruling their teams with a Nietzschean "will to power," they were never thought of as anything but football coaches.

Today they would be as obsolete as the flying wedge. In 1985 football coaches must be philosophers first and foremost. Just listen to the "color" analysts on this weekend's professional games and you'll hear something like this:

"Well, John it's third and short, what's Coach Shula's philosophy in this situation?" "The beauty of his thinking here, Pat, is that he studiously avoids the dialectic altogether. I suppose you could call him an existentialist. He's liable to do anything." As the play is called, John is proven correct. Lombardi himself (ironically), the arch-chetype coach, may have unconsciously sown the seeds of this modern philosopher coach. Students of NFL history describe his pithy "Run for daylight" tenet as a thinly disguised Sartrean exposition of absolute freedom. On the other side of the argument (and scrimmage line), Lombardi, seemingly contradictorily, but only seemingly so, heralded the linebacker's total liberty to obliterate that daylight, ergo the ballcarrier.

The late Green Bay Packer's mentor is also famous for his Nietzschean insistence on excellence and superhuman exertions by his players. (Some scholars insist he was not molding men, but supermen.) "Winning isn't everything," Lombardi averred, "it's the only thing." That philosophy (it was not such in his time) has had a profound influence on 20th century NFL thought.

Modern football has also been influenced by Karl Marx, who foresaw a century ago that in its advance stages the sport would resort to specialization and an increasing division of labor. No one plays "both ways" anymore. In fact, hardly anyone plays one way the entire game. There are "special teams" and "situation players" galore, like the third down pass-catching halfback. There are run specialists and pass specialists on defense as well. Recently many teams have adopted a two place kicker philosophy: one for field goals and extra points and another for kicking off.

As football has grown exponentially more complex, schools of thought have proliferated. One trend can clearly be termed "Orwellian." Big Coach (not the quarterback, as in days of yore) calls all the plays from the sideline. Only three out of 28 NFL teams (and fewer and fewer college squads) grant their field generals the freedom to choose the offensive plays.

Unlike many of the great thinkers who preceded him, today's philosopher-coaches embrace nihilism; conversely, atheism has no place in the locker room. Indeed, most have advanced this theory a bit by syllogizing thusly: If there is a God and if he cares about mankind, he must logically be an avid, activist fan of gridiron gyrations. Post-Super Bowl interviews with winning coaches are always sprinkled liberally with praise and credit to the Almighty, who seems to throw his support to a different team each year.

Like a playoff-bound squad on a winning streak, philosophy is gaining momentum in the NFL. During a recent pre-season game on television commentator observed: "Will you look at the size of that left tackle? Well, that's been the Raider philosophy: huge linemen."

Probably the next great intellectual upheaval in professional football will be an attempt to somehow integrate and homogenize such thoughts. An anthology of Eric Holder-like aphorisms ("No pain, no gain," "Newspaper clippings don't make tackles," etc.) would also be handy.

Perhaps someday soon we will see Bill Walsh or Tom Landry rushing out onto the field to argue an official's call screaming "C'est absurde!"

Republicans reap strategic benefit from leak of Andrus poll

BOISE — The peris of political polling, and having a major poll revealed to the opposition before it's done, say several here this past week. Republicans obtained copies of a poll commissioned by the Cecil Andrus campaign, and are making the most of it.

State Sen. Skip Smyser (a Parma lawyer who is regional coordinator of the David Leroy campaign, held a news conference to complain about the poll.

He alleged it was biased in favor of the Democratic Andrus, that it was taken in "Democratic areas," and that Andrus' campaign planned to leak the poll to influence public opinion in Leroy's favor.

Some of the contentions sounded strange, because the questions asked in a poll, where it is conducted, and what the candidate does with the material, are strictly a matter to be decided by the person or organization who pays for it.

What Smyser really was doing was calling public attention to the poll and its contents, and brought copies of the poll to Republican leaders, leading to the Smyser news conference.

The development could be damaging to the Andrus campaign, not through revealing the results, but by revealing the questions. Campaign strategy can be deduced from the questions asked.

Political polls can become a sensitive issue, because the way the questions are asked, and of whom in the influence the result. The Associated Press and other news organizations, has strict guidelines on the use of private political polls. The AP asks for information on who was questioned, the possible margin for error, and what the questions were, before considering poll results.

The Andrus poll aimed at areas where union membership might be high, or average wage-earners might be found.

And like virtually all privately commissioned polls, some of the questions could be considered "loaded" to produce a certain answer.

Such as asking the respondent if he or she believes that a lawyer running for high office (Leroy) should tell voters who his business clients are, whether Andrus' experience in dealing with state and federal government would make him more valuable to Idaho if he were elected again, and whether at the age of 38, Leroy "may not have the maturity to handle the job of governor."

Or in a list of public officials, asking the respondent's views of various public officials, putting Leroy between Richard Nixon and James Watt — and keeping Andrus' name far away from that of Jimmy Carter, who never was very popular in Idaho. Or asking the respondents if they would think had David Leroy because he supported George Hansen, the former GOP congressman convicted of government ethics violations.

Questions on wilderness appear to make Andrus' position seem moderate and reasonable and Leroy's position extreme and unreasonable.

The probably are a lot of red faces in the Andrus or Leroy camps, not only from having the poll made public, but also from the having major campaign strategy revealed to the opposition.

Glen Walker, the Kootenai County prosecutor who wanted to run for attorney general, now has his sights set on the state auditor's office. Walker, 41, plans an announcement early next year.

Walker talked about running for attorney general, but decided against making a race against incumbent Jim Jones that potentially could have ended the Republican Party and left the primary election winner vulnerable to a Democratic challenger in the general election.

Bhopal minister lays blame

BHOPAL, India (AP) — The chief minister of Madhya Pradesh state blamed Union Carbide on Sunday for the gas leak at Bhopal that killed more than 2,000 people one year ago, and accused it of acting with a disregard for life "unparalleled in human history."

More than 300,000 people were injured by the fumes.

"It (the disaster) was caused by unscrupulous death dealers," Chief Minister Motilal Vora said in a written statement.

Activists and survivors of the Dec. 3, 1984, disaster plan to mark the anniversary with demonstrations that will include burning more than 2,000 effigies of Warren Anderson, the Union Carbide chairman. They also will unveil a memorial to the gas victims.

Anti-apartheid fight goes on

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — South Africa's biggest union federation, 1 day old and claiming to represent 400,000 workers, allied itself with black anti-apartheid activists Sunday, and demanded that restrictive pass laws be abandoned within six months.

In another development, South African and U.S. business executives were reported stepping up pressure on the government to end its system of racial segregation, under which 3 million whites dominate 24 million voteless blacks.

"The Congress of South African Trade Unions is giving (President P.W.) Botha six months to get rid of pass laws," Elijah Barayi, president of the new labor federation, told a rally of 5,000 people in a Durban rugby stadium. "Otherwise we will burn all the passes of the black man."

Catholics differ on meeting

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope John Paul II on Sunday said a synod of bishops reviewing reforms of the Second Vatican Council reflects the unity of the Roman Catholic Church. But some bishops have expressed divergent views.

"I have followed and will continue to follow with open heart and attentive ear the development of the workings of the members of the synod who offer a marvelous image of the unity of the church," the pope said during a noontime prayer service attended by about 20,000 people in St. Peter's Square.

The two-week synod, drawing 165 bishops from all over the world, was in recess Sunday after a week of addresses and was to resume Monday.

John Paul called the synod to assess progress made in implementing the recommendations of the 1962-65 Second Vatican Council, which was begun by Pope John XXIII.

Thatcher policies criticized

LONDON (AP) — A Church of England commission issued a report Sunday criticizing Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher's for policies it says help the rich at the expense of poor people living in decayed urban areas.

The 400-page report was commissioned by Archbishop Robert Runcie of Canterbury in 1983, two years after rioting first broke out in racially mixed districts of London and Liverpool.

Reacting to the report, which was leaked in the press three days before its scheduled publication, Conservative lawmaker John Carlisle said it showed that the state church was run by "a load of communist clerics."

Conservative lawmaker Peter Bruinvels described parts of the report as "blatant Marxist theory."

Antiques illegally excavated

NDDN (AP) — The British Museum says a collection of 2,500-year-old vases scheduled for auction next week were illegally excavated and "smuggled out of Italy," the Observer newspaper reported Sunday.

The London weekly said the museum warned Sotheby's, the U.S.-owned art-auction house, it will refuse to bid for the Apulian vases, valued at up to nearly $90,000 each, even though it would like to acquire at least one of them.

"There is no way I can recommend my trustees to buy the vase," Brian Cook, curator of the museum's Greek and Roman antiquities department, was quoted as saying. "It would be highly unethical."

Most of the vases come from archaeological sites at Apulia in southern Italy that have been badly hit by looters, the paper said. The antiquities are often smuggled into Switzerland aboard trucks, it said.

Sotheby's intends to press ahead with the sale, due to take place in London on Dec. 9, the paper reported.

Aquino prepares to announce her candidacy

NILA, Philippines (AP) — Corason Aquino, widow of Benigno Aquino, promised a cheering crowd of 15,000 Sunday that "you will hear what you want to hear" when she announces this week whether she will run for president.

Mrs. Aquino told the throng at Santo Domingo Cathedral she would make her "official announcement" after President Ferdinand E. Marcos signs into law the bill calling the Feb. 7 election. Parliament was expected to give the bill its third and final reading today, and Marcos could sign it into law any time after that.

Inside the cathedral, a priest sprinkled holy water on bundles of 1,200,286 signatures urging Mrs. Aquino to run in next year's elections. Mrs. Aquino, 52, had stipulated that 1 million signatures must be collected supporting her candidacy before she would consider entering the race.

Also Monday, a court was expected to give its verdict in the trial of 26 defendants, all soldiers but one, accused in the August 1983 shooting of her husband, former Sen. Benigno Aquino. The most prominent defendant is the armed forces chief of staff, Gen. Fabian C. Ver.

Also, Marcos' chief rival, was assassinated at the Manila Airport when he returned from three years of self-imposed exile in the United States.

Syrian trip to Iran first since revolt

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — Syrian Premier Abdul Rauf Kasm arrived in Tehran Sunday, becoming the highest ranking Syrian official to visit Iran since its monarchy was overthrown six years ago, reported Iran's official Islamic Republic News Agency.

Iranian Premier Hussein Musavi, who invited Kasm for an official visit, welcomed the Syrian delegation at the airport, IRNA said.

Needy to be helped

Mini-Cassia gifts sought

By RONDA TAYLOR
Times-News correspondent

RUPERT — The Mini-Cassia Christmas Council is now working on its sixth Christmas project to help feed, clothe and provide gifts for people in need.

"You can't believe how people get involved to help," said Hazeldean Hunter, council spokesperson. People from various churches and service groups work together, and the only thing they have in common is that they all want to help," she said.

This year, the group plans to fill 350 boxes for poor families. Last year 300 families were helped. The council will distribute the boxes from the Burley Armory on Dec. 14. However, much work needs to be done before that date if the project is to be a success, Hunter said.

Donations of gift items, toys, and food can be left in drop boxes located throughout the Mini-Cassia area. Toys should be new or in very good condition because the council has no facility to fix up damaged items. Toys may be wrapped or unwrapped, but if wrapped, they should have a label stating the age and sex of the child for whom the gift is intended.

Many people do not realize that the council also tries to give gift items to the adult members of a needy family, Hunter said. Gift items for adults, especially for men, are always needed.

Some of the requests are hardly more than children's, Hunter said of the young mothers and fathers the council would like to help.

Any type of commercially canned food can be distributed by the group, as well as boxed or sacked goods such as sugar. She said regulations require all products to be factory sealed.

"Any money we get in is used for more certificates for cash donations," she said, adding that cash donations in any amount are especially needed. Area grocery stores redeem the certificates for any type of meat the holder chooses to the stated value amount. The council has yet to determine the value of this year's certificates.

A clothing certificate also is included in the boxes. This certificate entitles the holder to go to the dining facility at the Assembly of God Church in Rupert on Dec. 16, 17 and 18 and select clothing for his or her immediate family. The Seventh Day Adventist Church in Heyburn provides the clothes from a community program they operate all year long.

Clothing certificates are included because "sometimes they don't ask for clothing, but they need it," Hunter said.

Pam Dowd, chairman of the trust fund, sets up doll display at the Lywood Center.

From Cabbage Patch to Pink Panther Dolls go on auction block to benefit fund for children

TWIN FALLS — Dolls, dolls and more dolls will be on display at various stores around Twin Falls until Dec. 10 as part of the first doll auction to benefit the Pam Allen Children's Trust Fund.

About 85 dolls, including Cabbage Patch dolls, hand-crafted, soft-sculpture dolls, porcelain dolls and the Pink Panther doll, have been collected so far, organizers said.

Money from the Dec. 10 auction at the Elks Club will go to help children with life-threatening diseases. The trust was established in 1984 at the death of 12-year-old Pam Allen. She died Jan. 2, 1984, while waiting for a liver transplant.

The Pink Panther will be on display until the auction at Twin Falls Bank and Trust. Other businesses, which will be displaying the dolls are:

Wright's Florist, Harrell's Jewellers, Danny De Water Beds, Fauteaux Fast Foto, Pennywise and The Elks Club. Also, Jud's Book, The Men's Room, New Beginnings, Rock Creek, Magic Valley Regional Medical Center, Tri-State and Abbot's Economy Video, Mel Quale's Electronics and Yarns 'n' More.

Other businesses displaying the dolls will be: JB's, Rex, Wendy's, Holiday Inn, Heritage Gallery, C.J.'s Frame and Gallery and Fox Floral.

Fifteen dolls donated by the Idaho First National Bank will be on display in the Kimberley Road branch of the bank.

Woodworth, King's in the Lywood, and Smith's Food King also donated dolls, organizers said.

Pam Dowd, a spokeswoman for the trust fund, said the group hopes to raise $1,000 from the sale, which will begin at 7 p.m. Dec. 10.

City Council to consider code changes

By ANNETTE CARY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls City Council will consider changes to the city's zoning codes and to the building code appeals procedure when it meets at 7 p.m. today.

The Planning and Zoning Commission is recommending that satellite dishes, towers and antennas in residential zones meet setback requirements. In no case would they be allowed in front yards. The proposed law would not apply to dishes already in place, however.

Another recommendation of the commission would loosen the requirements for home occupation permits. People who run home businesses that generate no traffic to their houses and use no special vehicles would not need to apply for a permit.

The commission has also responded to a request by Canyon View Hospital to allow a sign to be placed in the mental hospital's yard by proposing an amendment to the city's sign restrictions.

Signs would be allowed in areas zoned for both professional and residential use if property is at least one acre large, has a 150-foot frontage and a front yard setback twice as large as the minimum requirement. Few, if any city, properties other than Canyon View Hospital could meet the requirements.

Changes in the appeals procedure are being proposed by Council member Jack Miller. Miller recently appealed a decision of the city Building Department on a warehouse he constructed, and he is now building a structure for Northwest Foam that was recently involved in an appeals procedure.

Miller said that forms required for the appeal procedure should put the burden of proof on the city, not the applicant. If other business Monday night, the council is likely to set Dec. 9 as a date for a special council meeting to consider an industrial user agreement with Idaho Frozen Foods for the city sewage treatment plant.

The council would also consider on Dec. 9 setting new rates. City Manager Tom Courtney has estimated that residential sewage rates would drop 10 percent, at least, as overhead costs of running the city plant are spread to IFF.

The council would need to negotiate a new contract with Operations Management International, the company that runs the city's plant.

Other matters likely to be discussed by the council include:

• Mike Dolton, executive vice president of the Greater Twin Falls Chamber of Commerce, has asked for time at the afternoon work session to pitch an economic development plan. He is proposing that city and county governments foot at least part of the cost of hiring Panlux Co. of Chicago to analyze the area's strengths and faults, zero in on specific industries that might come to Twin Falls and recommend ways of recruiting them.

• The council will consider bids for a Falls Avenue East storm drain project and for a one-ton cab and chassis for the Water Department.

Low bidder for the storm drain project is Donald Jensen, and Jackson Allred is asking for approval of the final plan for A and J Subdivision. The project includes four lots in a commercial area along Blue Lakes Boulevard North, between Elygreen Drive and Lawfield

Suspect in custody after long pursuit

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

KIMBERLY — A Twin Falls man who allegedly fired at a police officer and then led law enforcement officers on a chase over snow-covered side roads in a high-powered snowmobile was in the Twin Falls County Jail Sunday night, charged with aggravated assault of a police officer.

Kimberly Police Chief Jim Campbell said John Anderson, 46, was apprehended about 3:30 a.m. Sunday in a field four-and-one-half miles west of Jerome by Jerome County sheriff's officers.

Campbell said the incident began at 6:30 p.m. Saturday when Kimberly Police Sgt. Craig Carroll responded to a disturbance call at the home of Anderson's estranged wife at 210 Lincoln St. in Kimberly.

When Carroll arrived, Anderson left the house, Campbell said. Hansen Police Chief Earl Knutsen had responded to assist Carroll. About 30 minutes after Anderson left and officers were outside the Lincoln Street residence, Anderson allegedly fired a shot at the house at a high rate of speed toward the snowmobile.

He allegedly fired a shotgun at Knutsen from a distance of about 100 feet, but missed the officer. Anderson then continued east, out of town and at a high rate of speed, Campbell said.

Campbell said because of the icy streets and roads, the snowmobile could get better traction and it could also cut through to side roads and elude officers.

After the shot was fired, the officers in Kimberly radioed other law enforcement agencies for assistance and an area-wide search began.

Campbell said throughout the search other officers and citizens in the area were alerted and reporting sightings of the snowmobile and reporting its location and direction of travel. In spite of several such calls, the operator eluded officers for several hours.

Campbell said the snowmobile traveled from Kimberly to Hansen, then crossed the Hansen Bridge into Jerome County.

Twin Falls City and county, Hansen and Kimberly officers were joined by Jerome and Gooding County officers as the search expanded.

Chief Deputy Sheriff Larry Webb of Jerome County said the snowmobile was found parked beside the pipeline near the Jerome County line about 1 a.m. Webber, who was called

Burglars strike homes, church in Twin Falls

TWIN FALLS — The holiday season, a time for increases in burglaries and similar crimes is running true to form, say Twin Falls police.

Weekend activities included four vehicle burglaries, two in homes and one at a local church.

The Bible Baptist Church, 317 Shoup Ave. W., was entered and officials said $3,000 worth of sound equipment, ranging from amplifiers to tapes, was taken. Police said entry was gained sometime Friday night or Saturday morning prior to 11:30 a.m. when a window was broken.

Homes owned by John C. Finnegan at 1305 Heyburn Ave. and Cecelia Kay at 544 Madison St. were also entered. Finnegan reported his home was apparently entered through an unlocked door. Burglars took a rifle and small amount of cash, representing a total loss of $800. Kay reported a loss of $285 in camera equipment and food items from her residence.

Two vehicles were entered when someone used the tools to break windows. Ernie N. Monchaca of Twin Falls said his pickup truck was parked at 545 Shoshone St. S. early Sunday morning. He discovered it had been burglarized sometime prior to 2 a.m. and a shotgun valued at $425 was taken from a trunk in the vehicle.

Claire Burrill of Jerome said her vehicle was broken into while parked at 121 4th Ave. S. between 1 and 2 a.m. when someone broke a window and stole a television set and a stereo. Damage to his car was estimated at $125.

Another vehicle was entered while parked at the Twin Falls Cinema parking lot Saturday night. Derlin Newbert of Twin Falls reported a sliding rear window was opened and a gun rack, sound equipment and tapes valued at $732 were taken.

In addition to the thefts, damage estimated at $300 was caused by building at the Twin Cinema operators of Kimberly Road and Eastland Drive Thursday night. Larry Roper told police a group of young people kicked in a metal door, damaging it beyond repair.

Day care operators renew push for licensing legislation

By DEAN S. MILLER
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — With new leaders and more members, the coalition of day care operators that pushed for day care licensing last year is trying to gain this year to get a licensing bill passed.

Dottie Christensen, a spokesperson for the group, said Friday the various Idaho day care and child care groups have been in contact with each other since the 1985 Legislature adjourned and have formed The Child Care Coalition.

She says 18 organizations are members of the coalition, representing 8,206 citizens. Though they have not settled on a licensing bill to support, the coalition will lobby for uniform statewide "enforceable" regulations for day care centers and other child care providers, she said.

There will be at least two bills brought to the Legislature. One is supported by a task force appointed by Gov. John Evans, and the second is supported by the major legislative factions that warred over licensing last winter.

"After stumbling block to day care licensing legislation last year was legislative opposition to placing day care regulation in various state agencies, a mid-November press release, the coalition said it will push for mandatory licensing that is administered by a state agency, but did not specify which agency.

Rep. Donna Scott, R-Idaho, who carried a day care licensing bill last year, topped administration of day care licenses by the state Department of Health and Welfare.

"We'll look at the legislation as it comes up, and if nothing comes up we may even write our own," Christensen said.

Rep. Dean Sorenson, R-Boise, said Friday night he has been meeting all summer with an ad hoc committee of legislators that includes Scott and Rep. Pam Bengson, R-Boise, both of whom sponsored day care licensing bills last winter.

Sorenson said Bengson and Scott have agreed on a bill that does for parents what they cannot do for themselves by requiring day care workers to have a background check by the local sheriff's office.

Sorenson said the bill does not impinge on local control of communities and will not cost day care operators much.

Scott said Friday she will not sponsor the bill, but will support Sorenson if he does. The bill also requires day care operators to make a good-faith effort to provide a safe and sanitary care. Sorenson said he expects the bill to be introduced early in the session.

A task force appointed by Gov. Evans has been studying the issue and is circulating a bill of its own.

Marla Bergson, administrator of the Governor's Commission for Children and Youth, said Friday that legislators on the commission will sponsor the bill and are looking for McRoberts, R-Twin Falls, who is on the high rate of speed toward the snowmobile.

The bill would require all employees and operators of day care facilities to get a permit from Health and Welfare and require buildings used for day care to be licensed as well.

For a $35 fee, the local sheriff's office would take fingerprints and make a background check of day care workers, which would be sent to Health and Welfare to decide who should be issued a permit.

The bill would also create three different standards for building licensing. One would apply to family day care centers (up to six children) and to group homes (up to 12 children) and the third would apply to day care centers (over 12 children).

Fees for building licensing would be $25, $60, and $200 for the three groups. Bergson said the fee would cover all inspections, and Health and Welfare could exercise discretion in sliding the price down from the maximum fee.

Also mandated by the bill is a day care advisory board, which would be charged with promulgating a set of life safety, health and building codes for day care centers.

Bergson said day care centers are currently judged by restaurant and other existing codes that don't take into account special needs of day care centers.

TWIN FALLS — Seven Magic Valley men have been selected to appear in the annual biographical compilation, "Outstanding Young Men of America."

selected based on nominations received from senators, governors, mayors, state legislators, and university presidents and deans.
Anderson was nominated by "Skip Symser," a senator from Parma. A state senator himself, Anderson felt that he received the honor based on a successful first session in the state Legislature.

Tomlinaga joked about how this might affect reaction to his bills in the Legislature.
"I hope they (other senators) don't hold this against me," he said.

What's what

You're into your American literature. If you've read that O. Henry story called "The Four Million." In it first appeared together a couple of French words - one meaning "thick slice," the other meaning "dainty" - that have stuck in our lingo: "Filet mignon."

Even a lot of San Franciscans don't realize it got the world's first cable car - in 1873 - even before the ordinary trolley car was invented. Not much before. But before. First trolley was installed in Berlin in 1881 - Horse-drawn, that one - Cleveland set up the first electric trolley a year later.

CARTOON COST

Q. What's it cost to turn out one of those children's - hit - cartoons "Voltron - Defender of the Universe"?

A. About $250,000 each. Of $17 million for 65 episodes.

Q. Do all those professional athletes that appear on the Bud TV commercials have to be retired?

A. They do - at least - if they weren't retired, they'd need special permission from the Federal Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms to show up on beer commercials.

Q. How many Frijoles the 13ths this year?

A. Two - in September and December. Next year gets only one - in June.

ONE PLUS BELIEVER

Does anybody buy your ideas? If so, maybe you can start something big. It's said all significant social movements in the history of mankind began with one person plus one person who believed in that person.

In the Ptolemy Dynasty of Ancient Egypt, each tax collector personally had to pony up the tax of any evader assessed in said collector's assigned group. History records those collectors became exceedingly dangerous hunters of men.

The first motorcycle - two Frenchmen, Pierre and Ernest Michaux, built the thing in 1869 - had a steam engine. You did no wheels on that one.

People in Atlanta buy more aircraft than people anywhere else. So say the purveyors. Is it the food? If not, what?

The planet Venus - more than any other heavenly body - has been reported as an unidentified flying object.

World's clearest water is in the Sargasso Sea.

It is important that you give praise for any exceptional work done and this will raise the incentive.

Give elders gifts they will appreciate

DEAR ABBY: We read you in the Midway Driller, Taft, Calif. As real life in a nursing home, we hope you will run again your column on what to give older people for Christmas. It is a lot of sense, and people will listen to Dear Abby.

THANKS FROM ALL OF US — DEAR ALI: Here it is with some minor revisions.

DEAR READERS: Can you believe it's time to prepare for the holidays again? Well, it is, so do yourself a favor and do your Christmas — or Hanukkah shopping early.

If you're wondering what to give Aunt Jennie or Grandpa, who don't go out much, let me tell you what NOT to give them:

Forget dusting powder, aftershave and cologne. (They probably have several unopened boxes gathering dust on their closet shelves.)

Grandpa doesn't need another bottle, and Aunt Bertha doesn't really want any more brooches, necklaces, bracelets or earrings.

With the price of groceries so high, older folks who live alone on a fixed income would be delighted to receive a basket of goodies. Include small cans of salmon, chicken, ham, tuna, vegetables, fruit, instant coffee, tea bags, crackers, cookies and instant soup mixes.

Abigail VanBuren
Dear Abby

Older people who live in confined quarters do not need more "things" that are ornamental only. Don't send music boxes, statuettes or other bric-a-brac.

A truly thoughtful gift, postcards and some lined stationery (with envelopes and a generous supply of postage stamps. — Enclose some felt-tip pens, too.)

A handy gift: an assortment of greeting cards for all occasions, so that they, too, can send birthday, anniversary, graduation, get-well and condolence cards to others. (Be a sport and affix postage to some of the envelopes.)

Don't give a gift of clothing unless you're absolutely sure the size is right. That goes for color and style, too.

If you're tempted to pass along a scarf, purse, wallet or some little doodad — you received three Christmases ago, please don't; the recipient will probably find it just as useless as you did. (Besides, you might get it back the year after next.)

If you are aware that someone on your gift list is living on a pension, check for any amount would be much more appreciated than some useless little trinket. Another thoughtful gift would be a year's subscription to a newspaper or magazine you are sure he or she will enjoy.

If you buy a gift on sale, be sure it's appropriate, since if the recipient tries to exchange it, he will be told, "Sorry, sale merchandise is not returnable."

Never give a pet to anyone unless you're absolutely sure a pet is wanted and will be properly cared for. And if you want to delight someone who considers his pet a "member of the family," include a tin or two of cat or dog food for the pet.

Don't give wine or liquor unless you're sure the recipients imbibe. Candy, nuts and fruitcake make wonderful gifts for those who aren't counting calories, but please have compassion for those who are, and let them not into temptation. Also remember that many older people have difficulty chewing hard candies and nuts. And nutritional caution: "Lay off sugar and salt."

Instead of giving someone a gift with permission to "take it back and exchange it if it's not what you want," save yourself (and them) time and effort by giving gift certificates in the first place.

Holiday time can be very depressing for people who are alone, so if you know someone who might be alone and lonely, give him (or her) the best gift of all — an invitation to have a holiday meal with you and your family. Loneliness is the ultimate poverty. Love, ABBY

How to wire your home for phone service.

Thinking of building or remodeling a home? If so, you'll probably have to wire it for phone service. To get the job done, you now have several options available to you.

As always, you can arrange for us to install your wiring. Just tell us when, and we'll wire your home before you put up your walls. Call your service representative for this service and the associated charges.

Or if you're the handy type, you can do it yourself. To help you, we'll provide a free "how to" booklet with instructions and information on safety precautions and procedures. Or, you can have someone else do the work for you, such as an independent contractor or electrician.

Additionally, you can participate in our Wiring Maintenance Plan, which provides low-cost maintenance and repair service regardless of who did the installing. (as long as quality standards are met).

To find out more about wiring installation, check the Customer Guide section at the front of your White Pages Directory. So the sound of a telephone can ring out in your new home.

For the way you live.

SnugFleece® Guarantees You A Better Night's Sleep

Ernest Borgnine

SnugFleece has given me the best rest and sleep I've had since I was a kid.

SnugFleece is a luxurious two-inch thick New Zealand wool underlay that is positioned on your bed between the mattress and the bottom sheet. This cushion support helps soothe back and muscle ache. The wool pile assists in evenly distributing body weight and adding pressure points, ensuring a more restful, comfortable sleep.

The SnugFleece pure wool mattress pad is the best made. It features nearly twice the wool content of its competitors.

We invite you to try one for 90 nights. If, after 90 nights, you're not sleeping more comfortably with fewer aches and pains, we insist you return it for a full refund — no questions asked!

Erickson watch ends today

DENNIS ERICKSON
Reported in Laramie

LARAMIE, Wyo. (AP) — The University of Wyoming will announce its selection for the Cowboys' head football coach replacement at 11 a.m. today and Athletic Director Gary Cunningham announced that UW had interviewed 11 candidates.

Meanwhile, the University of Idaho head football coach Dennis Erickson was scheduled to be in Laramie Sunday, but a UW Sports Information Department spokesman declined to confirm Erickson's arrival. It was reported on Friday by radio station KRQQ in Laramie that Erickson was Wyoming's choice for the coaching post left vacant when Al Kincald's contract was not renewed.

Then, this weekend the Spokane, Wash., Spokesman-Review reported that Erickson had been offered the job and was expected to accept it, while the Idaho Statesman reported Saturday that UW offered Erickson a $100,000 contract.

Erickson has said he's spoken with UW officials about the coaching job, but insists that an announcement will have to be made to determine who gets the position.

The Moscow, Idaho, coach told reporters that Idaho's 42-38 defeat Saturday to Eastern Washington University in an NCAA Division I-AA playoff contest will have no effect on his decision to accept the post left vacant by Kincald's Nov. 11 firing.

On Saturday the Idaho coach said, "I'm going to Laramie tomorrow, and that's all the further I'll say on it."

will be played in Melbourne, Australia.

Among Wyoming's other prospects included Marshall University head coach Stan Parrish. The West Virginia coach posted back-to-back winning records during his two seasons at Marshall and this year the Division I-AA Thundering Herd posted a 7-3-1 record. Parrish was also being considered for the head coach's job at Kansas State.

Another possible candidate was Washington State University head football coach Jim Walden, but Walden decided to remain at the Pullman, Wash. university. Walden's base salary at Washington State is $75,000, while Kincald's was $52,500 annually. Walden's base salary doesn't include the money he earns from radio and television shows.

Erickson, who led the Vandals to their first Big Sky Conference championship since 1971 this season, posted a 7-3-1 record. Parrish was 15-32-15 in four seasons at Idaho, including two appearances in the I-AA playoffs.

Prior to coming to Idaho in 1982, Erickson was an assistant coach in football at San Jose State and receivers at San Jose State.

New Orleans brings Rams down to earth

By AUSTIN WILSON
The Associated Press

NEW ORLEANS — The big difference Sunday was that the New Orleans Saints were a reckless and gambling "ball club" again, said on Monday when his father, Bum Phillips, abruptly resigned.

"Wade put something new in for the defense," Jackson said. "He put a lot of men-up front to leave me one-on-one, and we didn't do that before."

"It's the first time in a long time that we opened up on defense and offense," he said. "Everybody was having fun."

"Before, we'd put new stuff in and never call it. This time we called it."

Morten Andersen kicked five field goals for the Saints. Jackson and Jack Del Rio led an inspired defense that kept the Rams bogged up at their own end of the field for most of the game.

Rams Coach John Robinson said it was a total team whipping.

"We were overwhelmed and beaten," he said. "It started out right for them from the very beginning and wrong for us. Once you get on that emotional wheel, it's tough to recover."

Phillips said he didn't know exactly what caused his initial NFL victory.

"I hope that some of the success was due to our coaching," he quipped.

More NFL — B3,4

He said the victory was especially gratifying because it came against one of the NFL's best teams.

"They are a good football team," he said.

Saints defensive lineman Derland Moore, a 13-year veteran of the season that has never had a winning record, said that he had a special reason for enjoying the victory.

"That's the first time we've beaten those fellas since 1981," he said.

The Saints defense dominated the Rams and blew open the game in the fourth quarter.

Johnnie Poe picked off a Dieter Brock pass to set up the first touchdown of the game, a 43-yard pass from Bobby Hebert to Eric Martin two plays after the interception.

A little over a minute later, linebacker James Hayes sacked Los Angeles quarterback Jeff Kemp, causing a fumble that Del Rio scooped up and returned 22 yards to a touchdown.

And four minutes after that, Ricky Jackson hit Los Angeles tight end David Hill, knocking him loose of the ball at the Rams' 32-yard line where Del Rio recovered to set up Anderson's first field goal.

Anderson's field goals were from 47, 42, 35, 27 yards and 35 yards.

The Rams got their only points on a 41-yard field goal by Mike Lansford with 27 seconds left in the first half.

Browns trap Giants

Lead AFC Central

By TOM CANAVAN
The Associated Press

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. — The Cleveland Browns got owner Art Modell his 200th victory with the same play that helped him get his 199th, a simple trap play.

It was a play that made possible with 14 fourth-quarter points, but one that could have been easily postponed had the New York Giants scored a field goal on the final play of the game.

Earnest Byner scored on a 9-yard run with 1:52 left to rally the Browns to a 35-33 National Football League victory over the Giants Sunday.

Byner's touchdown, his second of the game, capped an 80-yard, 12-play drive engineered by Browns reserve quarterback Gary Danielson.

"It's a little trap play called from upstairs," said Byner. "I don't know why I cut it outside, but I'm glad I did. The Giants were in a full blitz."

Byner said the Browns ran the same play for a touchdown last week in a victory against Cincinnati.

"I feel like I'm a big play guy and anytime we have a big play I want to have the ball," Byner said. "I made a block for Kevin (Mack) last week and he returned the favor this week."

Danielson also masterminded another long drive earlier in the quarter in bringing the Browns back from a 3-21 deficit. He capped the march with a 25-yard touchdown pass to Clarence Weathers with 8:52 left.

The Giants had one final shot at victory and they drove from their own 10 to the Cleveland 17 with four seconds to play, but a 34-yard field goal attempt by Eric Schaubert sailed.

Wilson leads Vikings from 28-0 deficit to win over Eagles

By RALPH BERNSTEIN
The Associated Press

PHILADELPHIA — Vikings quarterback Wade Wilson, angry at his disappointing first-half performance and angry at being pulled from the game, didn't get angry when he was sent back in — he got even.

Wilson was sent back in with 1:33 left to play and threw three touchdown passes as Minnesota rallied for 28 points and a 28-23 victory Sunday over the Philadelphia Eagles in the National Football League.

The backup quarterback completed only six of 14 passes for 44 yards in the first half, and his team trailed 23-0 when he was replaced by rookie Steve Bono to start the third period.

"I was angry inside," said Wilson, a fifth-year quarterback who had thrown just 33 passes this year, with no touchdowns, in relief of Tommy Kramer. "I was angry at the way I played, and angry at being yanked."

"I had mixed emotions about going back in. I wasn't really ready. My emotions were so down and up in that game," said Wilson, who got the start because Kramer was injured.

Wilson, a former East Texas State player, described it as "the most emotional roller coaster of a game I've ever played in."

"To get yanked like that, and to come back from the bottom is quite a feeling," he said.

Minnesota had a big comeback in 1977, when the Vikings trailed San Francisco 24-0 and stormed back to win 28-27.

"I can't remember going from zero to 28 in one period," said Minnesota Coach Bud Grant, a 28-year coaching veteran.

"You can only get humiliated for so long and then you rise up," Grant said.

Eagles Coach Marion Campbell said his team played for 30 minutes and did nothing in the second half.

"We should have gone for 60 minutes. We blew it," he said, "and it boggles the mind."

The Eagles led 23-0 with eight minutes to play and appeared to have won the game and maintained their slim hopes of an NFL playoff spot. But the Vikings drove 58 yards to make it 23-14 with 3:38 remaining.

The Eagles were unable to gain on their next possession, and punted to Carter, who returned 22 yards to the Minnesota 40. The Vikings came up "picked up a fumble by Eagles quarterback Ron Jaworski and raced 65 yards for a touchdown."

The Eagles took the ensuing kickoff and Jaworski completed a pass to John Spagnola, but the tight end fumbled at his 36 and safety Joey Browner recovered for the Vikings.

On third down, Wilson threw 36 yards to flanker Anthony Carter for the Vikings' third touchdown in 4:29 to make it 23-21 with 3:38 remaining. The Eagles were unable to gain on their next possession, and punted to Carter, who returned 22 yards to the Minnesota 40. The Vikings came up with a fourth-and-5 at the Eagles' 42, and Wilson threw the distance to Carter to give the Vikings a 28-23 lead with 1:11 on the clock.

The victory snapped a three-game losing streak for Minnesota, 6-7, while the Eagles slipped to 6-7.

The Vikings played without quarterback Tommy Carter, who was out with what Minnesota Coach Bud Grant described as "general wear and tear." Wilson and rookie Steve Bono divided the Minnesota quarterbacking job.

The Eagles had taken a 23-0 lead on Jaworski's touchdown passes to Spagnola and Mike Quick, and three field goals by Paul McCadden.

Rehabilitated reserve leads Duke past Jayhawks, 92-86, for NIT title

By DICK JOYCE
The Associated Press

NEW YORK — David Henderson, Duke's sixth man in past seasons, was the main man Sunday night in leading the sixth-ranked Blue Devils to the championship of the first Big Apple National Invitation Tournament.

Henderson, a 6-foot-5 senior who was given a starting job this season in place of injured Jay Bilas, made 12 of 14 field goal tries and all six free throws for a career-high 20 points in a 92-86 victory over No. 5 Kansas.

Walter Berry scored 22 points and grabbed 13 rebounds as 18th-ranked St. John's defeated No. 9 Louisville 86-79 earlier for third place.

He never stopped "talking it to them," said Henderson. "Experience is the key to our team. Our older players were able to help the younger. If a team is not poised, things can fall apart. But tonight, we showed great poise."

Duke Coach Krzyzewski said, "Henderson has always been one of our most consistent players. He knew as a sixth man that he would get 30-35 minutes. Now that there has been a change in his role, he has to complement everybody.

Kansas Coach Larry Brown gave praise to Duke guards Johnny Dawkins and Tom Amaker.

"The Duke guards showed poise and got the ball to the right man. They played almost errorless ball in the second half. That was the key."

Brown added, "They beat us for loose balls, hurt us on the boards, and got us into foul trouble. The way they play got us beaten."

It was the Jayhawks' first loss after three victories.

The Blue Devils' lead was cut to 76-74 on Danny Manning's goal with less than four minutes remaining, but Duke put the game away with a 10-2 spurt as Alarie and Dawkins each contributed four points for an 86-76 lead with less than a minute to play.

Manning, a 6-foot-11 sophomore, broke out of a season-long slump by leading the Jayhawks with 24 points, 20 of them in the second half. Calvin Thompson, who made his first 10 shots in the game and 10 of 12 overall, added 22 points and Ron Kellogg contributed 20.

After Thompson scored the Jayhawks' last 10 points of the first half to put them ahead 53-34, Henderson took over. The 6-5 senior scored on a drive that stole the ball for a dunk to put the Blue Devils in front 38-35 at intermission.

In the consolation game, St. John's built a 20-point lead late in the first half and led 46-37 at intermission as Willie Glass contributed 14 points and Berry 11.

St. John's improved its record to 1-1.

Can Bears handle (Marino's) 13?

By JOE MOOSHILL

LAKE FOREST, Ill. — Some of the Chicago Bears' never heard of Triskadekaphobia, few can pronounce it and most don't care. Claiming they have no fear of No. 13, the Bears are ready to take on Marino.

Triskadekaphobia is the fear of No. 13. And No. 13 is looming prominently this week for the undefeated darlings of the National Football League.

"No. 13 is not superstitious," said Marino. "I'm not superstitious," said Marino. "I'm not superstitious," said Marino.

"The Bears will be seeking their revenge," Marino said. "I'll have my pre-game routine. I'll have my pre-game routine. I'll have my pre-game routine."

"I don't believe in superstition," Marino said. "I don't believe in superstition," Marino said. "I don't believe in superstition," Marino said.

No. 13 until you mentioned it. Religion replaces superstition with most of these Bears.

"I don't believe in superstition," said wide receiver Willie Gault. "I don't believe in superstition," said wide receiver Willie Gault.

"God has control over everything. Superstition is absurd," said Jimbo Covert, the outstanding offensive lineman, hovered about being superstitious.

"I do my little things," said Covert. "I do my little things," said Covert. "I do my little things," said Covert.

"I don't believe in superstition," said Steve Fuller, who figures to be the Bears' starting quarterback. "I don't believe in superstition," said Steve Fuller.

"I'm very superstitious," said Steve Fuller. "I'm very superstitious," said Steve Fuller. "I'm very superstitious," said Steve Fuller.

Denver stays on top by beating Steelers, 31-23

PITTSBURGH (AP) — John Elway continues to come of age just as the Pittsburgh Steelers continue to come apart.

AFC West

Elway rallied Denver from a two-touchdown Pittsburgh flurry Sunday as the Broncos scored twice themselves in a 21-second span late in the game to hand the Steelers a potentially disastrous 31-23 National Football League loss.

Elway, returning to the site of his dreadful 1983 pro football debut, completed 24 of 40 passes for 238 yards and a 24-yard touchdown to Clint Sampson. He set up Steve Sewell's game-winning 2-yard scoring run as the Broncos, 9-4, won for the ninth time in 11 games.

"This was a big step in the development of John Elway," said Denver Coach Dan Reeves. "John is getting better and better. This was Elway's finest hour."

Elway, who completed only one of eight passes in his debut, two years ago on Sunday hit two Watson for 19 yards, Sewell for six and Clarence Kay for 27 on consecutive downs on a game-winning 58-yard scoring drive ended by Sewell's short-range run with 1:45 to play.

Pittsburgh had taken a short-lived 31-23 lead on Mike Meriwether's 35-yard interception return touchdown with 5:02 to play.

"After the interception, I told John to forget it," Reeves said. "We still had plenty of time to score. Don't put too much pressure on yourself. We were aggressive considering we were playing the No. 1 defense in the league."

"After the interception I just wanted to come back and play well," Elway said. "So much was riding on this game and everything seemed to be against us. I think this was a giant step for me in my development — and I just hope there'll be more giant steps."

The Broncos, who intercepted David Woodley four times and scored him five times, added an insurance score when Mike Harden returned an interception 42 yards for a touchdown, just 21 seconds after Sewell's deciding run.

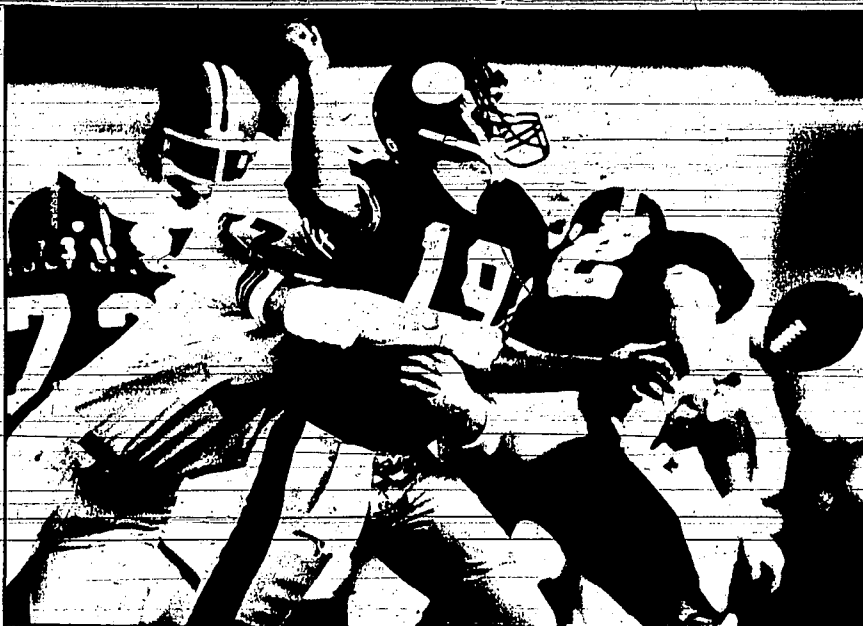

"Our defense was anxious and really got after it," Reeves said. "We used a few different schemes to confuse the Steelers and they were successful."

The victory assured the Broncos of retaining a tie for the AFC West race, while the Steelers, 6-7, fell a game behind Cleveland in the AFC Central.

"I was very, very disappointed," said Steelers center Mike Webster. "When you play as well as we did, you have to make fewer mistakes than they do. We didn't."

"Nobody said it would be easy," Steelers Coach Chuck Noll said. "The game was a bit of a toss-up, but they made more big plays than we did. It was a disappointing loss for us, no doubt. We may have been celebrating a little bit too soon."

Woodley's 32-yard interception pass to Louis Lipps with 6:32 to play, just 1:30 before Meriwether's touchdown had nullified the Steelers' win within 17:16. Pittsburgh had managed only three early Pittsburgh first goals in the first 3 1/2 quarters of play.

Seattle 24 Kansas City 6

SEATTLE (AP) — Dave Krieg recovered from a shoulder brace to pass for two touchdowns Sunday as the Seattle Seahawks kept their National Football League playoff hopes alive with a 24-6 victory over Kansas City.

Before, 52,655 fans in the Kingdome paid 12,236 tickets unused. Krieg teamed with tight end Dan Ross for an 11-yard touchdown pass in the second quarter and Steve Largent for a 17-yard score in the third quarter.

The Seahawks' other touchdown came on a 5-yard run by Curt Warner in the second quarter.

Breaking a two-game losing streak, including a demoralizing 19-0 Monday-night defeat in San Francisco, the Seahawks improved their record to 7-4 to remain two games back in the AFC West race with three regular-season games to play.

Krieg, who failed to produce an offensive touchdown in San Francisco, didn't throw deep patterns in practice until Friday because of a bruised shoulder from the 49ers game. After being listed as questionable all week, he completed 21 of 34 passes for 251 yards and was intercepted twice.

Nick Lowery kicked field goals of 25 and 35 yards for the Chiefs, 4-9, who remained last in the AFC West with their eighth loss in nine weeks.

L.A. Raiders 34 Atlanta 24

ATLANTA (AP) — Marcus Allen took over the National Football League rushing lead with a 156-yard effort — his sixth consecutive 100-yard performance — and Marc Wilson threw three touchdown passes as the Los Angeles Raiders downed the Atlanta Falcons 34-24 Sunday.

Allen scored the go-ahead touchdown on a 4-yard pass from Wilson in the third quarter and the Raiders added two more scores in the final period to retain their stranglehold on the AFC West lead with a 9-4 record. It was the third victory in a row for the Raiders.

Allen's 156 yards gave him 1,392 yards for the year, a club single-season record. The effort moved Allen ahead of Atlanta's Gerald Riggs, the previous leader who had 95 yards on 25 carries for 1,343 yards this season. It ended Riggs' string of consecutive 100-yard games at five.

Wilson fired a 37-yard scoring strike to Jessie Hester in the first quarter and came back with a 7-yarder to Deke Williams with eight minutes left in the game.

Chris Bahr kicked field goals of 35 and 49 yards in the first half. The Falcons, 2-11, led 17-13 at halftime, but netted only nine yards on their first three possessions of the second half when the Raiders took control of the game.

Mick Luckhurst booted a 39-yard field goal and David Archer connected with Arthur Cox on a 62-yard scoring pass in the first quarter. Riggs scored on an 11-yard run in the second period.

San Diego 40 Buffalo 7

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Rookie cornerback John Hendy intercepted two passes Sunday, one of which he returned 75 yards for a touchdown, as the San Diego Chargers rolled to a 40-7 National Football League victory over the Buffalo Bills.

Quarterback Dan Fouts sparked the Chargers' offense, completing 21 of his 36 passes for 261 yards and three touchdowns with two interceptions before being relieved by Mark Herrmann in the fourth quarter.

The win boosted San Diego's record to 6-7, while Buffalo fell to 2-11.

The San Diego defense, rated last in the NFL entering the game, paved the way for 17 of the Chargers' points by intercepting Buffalo quarterback Bruce Mattison three times in the first half.

The inspired defensive performance came five days after team officials warned of possible player dismissals unless there was immediate improvement.

The Chargers rocketed to a 24-7 halftime lead on a 38-yard touchdown pass from Fouts to Charlie Joiner, a 1-yard scoring run by Tim Spencer, Hendy's interception return and Bob Thomas' 24-yard field goal.

The Fouts-to-Joiner scoring pass capped a three-play, first-quarter drive that began on the Buffalo 39 following Charger safety Gill Byrd's 25-yard interception return.

San Diego made it 10-0 with 1:04 gone in the second period on Thomas' field goal, which came three plays after Hendy intercepted his first pass and returned it 22 yards to the Buffalo 11.

Six minutes later, Hendy stepped in front of Buffalo wide receiver Chris Burkett, picked off a Mattison pass, and raced untouched down the left sideline for the score. It was the sixth longest interception return in club history and the first points scored by the San Diego defense this season.

Bengals get back in the race

By drubbing Oilers

By JOE KAY The Associated Press

CINCINNATI — After two weeks of falling to cross the goal line, quarterback Boomer Esiason sensed that the Cincinnati Bengals were hungry for a quick score against the Houston Oilers.

AFC Central

"We were very frustrated the last two games," Esiason said. "We said, 'We're not going to go through this again. We're going to go out and take it to 'em.'"

The Bengals ended their famine quickly, feasting on the Oilers' defense for four first-half touchdowns en route to a 45-7 National Football League drubbing Sunday.

Cincinnati released its frustration by scoring the first four times it got the football on the field in its highest point total of the season against the overwhelmed Oilers. Fullback Larry Kinnebrew powered for three first-half scores and Esiason added three touchdowns passes.

The Bengals showed they were of a mind to score quickly by throwing long and going without a huddle on their first few plays.

"We came out and set the tempo right off the bat," Esiason said. Kinnebrew elminated impressive first-half drives with scoring runs of seven, one and three yards. Esiason hooked up with running back James Brooks on a 57-yard pass play for Cincinnati's best first-half score.

Esiason put the game out of reach with a pair of third-quarter touchdown passes.

Houston Coach Hugh Campbell knew the Bengals were due for an offensive explosion after two tough games, but he'd hoped things wouldn't blow up in the Oilers' faces so early.

"They had gone a couple of games without scoring a lot of points, and they're one of the most potent offensive teams in the league," Campbell said. "I hoped it wouldn't have been against us, and particularly it wouldn't have been so quickly."

The Bengals, 6-7, ended a two-game losing streak and atoned for a 44-7 drubbing in Houston earlier this season. They also stayed in contention in the AFC Central Division while leaving the 5-8 Oilers alone in last place.

Pats dump Colts, regain first place

By STEVE HERMAN The Associated Press

INDIANAPOLIS — The final margin was a lot closer, but it was the same story for New England quarterback Tom Brady who in two games at the Hoosier Dome has hit 49 of 70 passes for 584 yards and seven touchdowns against the Indianapolis Colts.

Brady's performance was really solid, said Patriots Coach Raymond Berry after Sunday's 38-31 National Football League victory over the Colts. "But his execution doesn't surprise me."

Eason, who completed 29 of 42 passes for 291 yards and four touchdowns in a 50-17 victory here a year ago, hit 20 of 28 of 293 yards and three touchdowns on Sunday. He hit 10 of 11 passes in the second half.

"I think this confirms he has all the tools to be a great quarterback," Berry said of the third-year veteran out of Illinois. "I think the next three games, he probably will play the best he has in his career."

Brady said, "We were fighting for the whole game. We respect this (Indianapolis) team. It's a credit to the coaching staff."

Colts first-year Coach Rod Dowhower said, "Overall, we played well. They put a lot of pressure on us with their wide receivers, and when you get in a situation where they have to cover them one-on-one, they have the people who can run."

"We tried to mix things up, and we were able to do that with some success," Dowhower said. "But being close doesn't count. We made mistakes in coverage a couple times."

The Colts' Ron Stark, who averaged 56 yards on four punts, became the all-time NFL career leader. The four punts gave him the necessary 300 to qualify for the record, and he raised his career average to 45.17, edging the 45.10 mark by Sammy Baugh.

New England raised its record to 9-4 and tied the New York Jets for first place in the AFC East. The Colts, losing their fifth straight game and falling to 3-10 for the season, got three rushing touchdowns by fullback Randy McMillan. But Eason's passing kept the Colts in trouble most of the game.

After passing six yards to Irving Fryar for a first-quarter touchdown and 14 yards to Morgan early in the second period, with both scores set up by pass interceptions off Indianapolis quarterback Mike Paget.

After Fryar's touchdown put the game 17-17. But a 52-yard pass to Fryar set up a 4-yard touchdown run by Craig James that gave New England a 24-17 halftime lead.

After Fryar's touchdown put the Patriots ahead 38-24. Matt Bouza scored the final Indianapolis touchdown on a 9-yard pass reception from Paget with 7:08 remaining.

While two of New England's first half touchdowns were set up by pass interceptions, both of the Indianapolis touchdowns in the first half followed short punts by the Patriots' Rich Carraro.

Personal fouls for unnecessary roughness on New England's Ronnie Lippert and Roland James also helped two Colts' drives that resulted in a touchdown and a field goal. The first penalty, following Dave Ahrens' block of a Camarillo punt and a 7-yard gain by McMillan, gave Indianapolis the ball at the New England 17. McMillan ran 12 yards. Paget passed four yards to Mark Boyer and McMillan ran the final yard for the score, spinning off a tackler at the goal line into the end zone.

Allen scored in the second quarter after Fryar's seventh interception of the season and a 14-yard pass from Eason to Morgan put the Patriots ahead 17-7. The Colts again benefited from a New England personal foul.

The penalty gave Indianapolis the ball at its own 46. A 21-yard pass to Bouza, who came off injured reserve earlier in the week, and three runs by McMillan helped the Colts to the New England 15. Albert Bentley then took a handoff and passed six yards to Paget, George Wonsley ran six more yards before Raul Allegre kicked a 25-yard field goal.

Early in the second quarter after a holding penalty on New England on the following kickoff, kept the Patriots inside their own 10-yard line and regained possession at the 34 after a short punt.

Paget hit Boyer for 22 yards on the first play, and Wonsley and McMillan each ran six yards to tie the game 17-17.

The Patriots regained the lead on the next series after Eason unblocked the 52-yard pass to Fryar at the Indianapolis 21. The Colts' Donnell Thompson and the Patriots' Steve Moore were elected for lighting two plays later, but a 9-yard pass to Derrick Ramsey and runs of five and four yards by Craig James gave New England its 24-17 lead a minute before halftime.

49ers blow out 'Skins, close on Rams

By IKA ROSENFIELD
The Associated Press

NFC West

WASHINGTON — The defending Super Bowl champions San Francisco 49ers, hitting their stride for the playoffs, crushed Washington 38-8 Sunday, handing the Redskins their worst defeat at home in 20 years and setting the stage for a showdown next week with the Los Angeles Rams.

The Redskins closed the door on the Redskins in the fourth quarter.

The loss, the worst beating the Redskins have suffered here since losing 37-10 to Baltimore in 1965, dropped the Redskins to 7-6, all but killing their playoff aspirations and just about ending their three-year reign as division champions in the NFC East.

"The best we can do is win 10 games. We're not in good shape, I know that," said Redskins Coach Joe Gibbs, his team two back of division-leading Dallas and one behind the Giants with three to play. "We know this game was pretty much it for us."

Quarterback Jay Schroeder set a new Redskins record for attempts, completed 30 of 58 passes for 348 yards in a losing effort in just his second start after coming on for an injured Joe Theismann.

"I think he played his heart out," said Gibbs. "He made some mistakes but it's tough for a young guy to step up and beat the 49ers. We'd have to have a lot of things go right around him and that didn't happen today."

Things didn't go right for the Redskins from the start as Carl Monroe returned the opening kickoff 95 yards for a touchdown.

"It really fucked us up and got us off to a good start," Monroe said. In a battle of the two teams that have represented the National Conference in the Super Bowl for the past four years, the 49ers trailed everywhere but the scoreboard as they took a 14-7 halftime lead.

Despite owning a 15-minute advantage in time of possession and outgaining the 49ers 270-59, the Redskins were unable to take advantage of the edge as they came up with just two field goals despite moving inside the San Francisco 25-yard line on five separate occasions before intermission.

The 49ers broke on top in the opening seconds as return specialist Monroe took the opening kickoff 95 yards for the score.

The Redskins took advantage of a San Francisco miscalculation to close the deficit to 7-3 at the end of the quarter. Roger Craig's fumble was recovered by Darrell Green at the 49ers 27. Five plays later, Mark Moseley's 25-yard field goal drew the Redskins within four.

Two San Francisco penalties led to the Redskins closing the deficit to 7-5. First, tackle Keith Fahnhorst's holding penalty wiped out a 39-yard touchdown reception by Freddie Solomon. Three plays later, passing from his own end zone, quarterback Joe Montana was called for intentional grounding, resulting in a safe-

The 49ers defense came up with the first of three turnovers that led to touchdowns when Dwight Hicks picked off a Schroeder pass and returned it six yards to Washington 42. The errant pass marked Schroeder's first interception in 74 attempts since replacing injured Joe Theismann three weeks ago.

A 39-yard pass to Solomon moved the 49ers to the Washington 1, where Wendell Tyler carried it in for a 14-7 lead in the second quarter.

The 49er defense accounted for the next score as safety Jeff Fuller sacked Schroeder from the blind side, forcing a fumble which linebacker Keena Turner scooped up and rambled 65 yards for the touchdown.

Moseley's second field goal, a 21-yarder with 47 seconds remaining, made it 21-8, closing out the scoring in the half.

The 49ers defense took the ball back again in the third quarter. Nose tackle Michael Carter forced a fumble as he hit Schroeder's arm as he was about to throw. Jeff Slover recovered for the 49ers at the Washington 34. After moving to the 49ers 4-yard line, Tyler ran it in for his second touchdown of the game and a 28-8 lead five minutes into the third period.

Green Bay shuts out Tampa in snowstorm

By JEFF MAYERS
The Associated Press

NFC Central

GREEN BAY, Wis. — The Green Bay Packers, depending largely on the arm of veteran quarterback Lynn Dickey, weathered a blizzard-like conditions Sunday to shut out the Tampa Bay Buccaneers 21-0 in a National Football League game.

Dickey, who seemed to thrive in the adverse weather, completed 22 of 38 passes for 299 yards and ran one yard for a touchdown as the Packers rolled up 152 offensive yards in a snowy game that rained over last season, he threw for 37 yards.

Dickey, 36, said he couldn't worry about the 30-degree weather with winds gusting to 40 miles an hour.

"I was just in acceptance of the weather, he said. "It isn't going to get any better. Just grip (the football) tight and throw the best you can."

Teammates and Coach Forrest Gregg praised Dickey. "More than amazing," offensive lineman Greg Koch said.

"Close to phenomenal," Gregg said. "I just felt Lynn would be able to get through this."

Tight end Paul Coffman, who was on the receiving end of five Dickey passes, said: "This is when the cream rises to the top. When Lynn gets time, he's going to find people and hit them. A guy like that knows what he needs to do."

The Packers said their plan was to come out throwing. It worked. "They did not let the snow get to them. Lynn threw the ball just great," said Buccaneers Coach Zeeman Bennett. "If the weather conditions hadn't been this bad, we would have been beaten much worse."

"It kind of surprised them that we did try to throw the ball that much early," said Packers wide receiver James Lofton, who caught six passes. "They didn't really adjust well."

Green Bay running back Gerry Ellis adjusted to the layer of snow, setting his feet well enough to rush for 101 yards, including 35 yards for a TD.

"It was 35 degrees in Tampa, and they came up here and the snow's blowing. I know they're not used to that," Ellis said. "It's kind of an advantage for us."

Phillip Epps caught four passes for 101 yards and Eddie Levery rushed for 109 yards.

Tampa Bay's James Wilder was held to 23 yards, still accounting for more than a third of the Bucs' 65 total yards.

Zoeller upsets legends, captures Skins Game

By BOB GREEN
The Associated Press

Golf

MURRIETA, Calif. — It was precisely the situation Fuzzy Zoeller wanted: an uphill, 12-foot birdie putt for $150,000.

"That's what it's all about," Zoeller said. "It's not a feeling of nervousness, there's not a feeling of tension, but there's a hole in your stomach."

"It's what golf is all about," Zoeller said. "I told you I wanted to put myself in a position like that to choke for that kind of money."

"He didn't choke," said Tom Watson. "I surprised him," said Fuzzy, who added another $105,000 later in the day, finished the nine holes with $255,000 and planted a mock kiss on a startled Jack Nicklaus.

Zoeller, making his first appearance in the 2-day, 18-hole made-for-television match and playing against three of golf's legendary figures, rapped the putt into the back of the cup and went on to a money-winning victory Sunday in the third edition of golf's Skins Game.

"Thank you guys for carrying me," Zoeller said to Nicklaus, Arnold Palmer and Watson. Zoeller had picked up twice as much money, really threatened until he won the biggest skin of the match.

"There had been five carry-overs, each worth $25,000, when Zoeller made the big money putt."

"My gut was really jumping," said Zoeller. Three holes later, with $70,000 at stake on the par-3 15th at Nicklaus Bear Creek Club, the relaxed Zoeller dropped an 18-foot birdie putt that had to wait and see if it would stand up.

Watson, with a chance to tie the hole, left a 15-foot putt inches short.

Next it was Nicklaus, the Golden Bear himself, holder of a record 17 major professional titles and the defending champion in the 3-year-old Skins game. He had a 12-foot putt for the birdie that would tie Zoeller and force a carry-over.

Nicklaus' putt hit the left lip of the cup and spun out.

Nicklaus' mis-put was worth $70,000 to Zoeller and as Nicklaus walked off the green, Fuzzy grabbed him, put his hand on Jack's chin and bussed his own hand.

Zoeller finished off the day with a 25-foot birdie putt that won the hole and gave him, with another $35,000 and a total of $255,000 for the day, a Skins Game record.

Australia Open's high seeds sail easily into quarterfinals

MELBOURNE, Australia (AP) — Two-time champion Mats Wilander of Sweden, cool and commanding while his two main rivals appeared anxious and listless, on Sunday moved into the fourth round of the $1 million Australian Open tennis championships at Kooyung.

The third-seeded Wilander, bidding to win the event for the third straight year, romped to a 6-2, 6-3, 6-2 triumph over unseeded American Leif Shiras.

Ivan Lendl of Czechoslovakia, the top seed, defeated American Ben Testerman 6-3, 1-6, 6-3, 6-2, but complained of being unable to keep his footing on the grass courts, while second-seeded American John McEnroe was sluggish in defeating the acrobatic Nduka Odizor of Nigeria 4-6, 6-2, 6-4, 6-2.

Defending champion Chris Evert Lloyd and second-seeded Martina Navratilova both eased into the women's quarterfinals, but Catarina Lindqvist of Sweden, seeded 10th, rallied from a set and a break down to upset fourth-seeded Pam Shriver of the United States, a grass court expert, 6-6, 6-3, 6-2.

American Tim Wilkison and South Africa's Cristo Steyn pulled off the biggest upsets in the men's third-round singles under a blazing sun on Sunday.

Steyn surprised 10th-seeded Brad Gilbert of the United States 2-6, 6-4, 6-4, 7-5, while left-hander Wilkison served extremely well to oust his 12th-seeded compatriot Paul Anacono 7-6, 6-3, 6-3.

Wilander, who has progressed to the fourth round virtually unnoticed, faces Wilkison next, while McEnroe meets No. 13 Henri Leconte of France on Monday and Lendl plays Steyn, who is ranked only 170th, in the world.

Wilander served extremely well and was far too steady for Shiras, who is ranked 130th in the world.

"I think I'm playing better this year than at the same time last year," the 21-year-old Wilander said. "I feel much more confident and it just feels better."

Wilander agreed with complaints by McEnroe and Lendl that the courts are too slippery, but said: "I don't think it's any worse than last year."

and 40 yards.

Morris also scored on runs of three and 58 yards in the first half and finished with 131 yards rushing, the best day of any running-back against the Browns this season.

The Browns led 21-7 in the first half following a 42-yard touchdown run by Mack, a 2-yard run by Byner and 37-yard interception return by Al Gross.

The Browns dropped the Giants to 8-5, one game behind the Dallas Cowboys in the National Football Conference East.

Cleveland improved its record to 7-3 and gave first place to the American Football Conference Central.

Saving face with surgery

A stitch in time skips years

By JOAN BEAN
Times-News correspondent

TWIN FALLS — A lot of us have been looking around for the fountain of youth, but it's not likely we will ever have the opportunity to splash around in it.

That being the case, and because we can neither stop the clock nor set it back, a successful face lift might be a way to move us back three to five years in our appearance.

Dr. Julian Nicholson, a Twin Falls otolaryngologist and head and neck surgeon, explains, "What it's really going to do is make you look a little younger, more rested and a little healthier. It's going to tone the tissue and make you look better."

But, it does not prevent further aging as the years go by. "Let's say it moves you back three to five years, and you're 45 years old, and you go back to 40, you're not going to stay at 40. You get to 50, it (the lifted face) is going to move up," he says.

The person might then decide to have another face lift, and that is okay. There is no limit on how many to have.

Eye lifts (blepharoplasty) are the second most common cosmetic procedure after nose alterations—that Nicholson does. He says this is good, because the eyes are the center of expression.

"That's where people usually look at first," he says, "so if your eyes look young, it tends to overshadow the rest of you maybe not looking so young."

If a woman has a limited amount of funds, and wants to have her lower face done, he sometimes offers the advice that she would be happier if she had her eyes done. She might then consider having the other done at a later date.

In a man, the lower face tends to show age first. This prompts some men to seek a face lift.

Those who do are generally worried about competition from other men, such as an executive who fears he will lose a promotion or be passed over for a younger person. Or, a divorcee might inspire the rejuvenation.

"But, for most of them, I think it's being in a competitive world, which places such a premium on youth—which is not really fair, but that's the world we live in. It's no longer experience—it's whether you're young," he says.

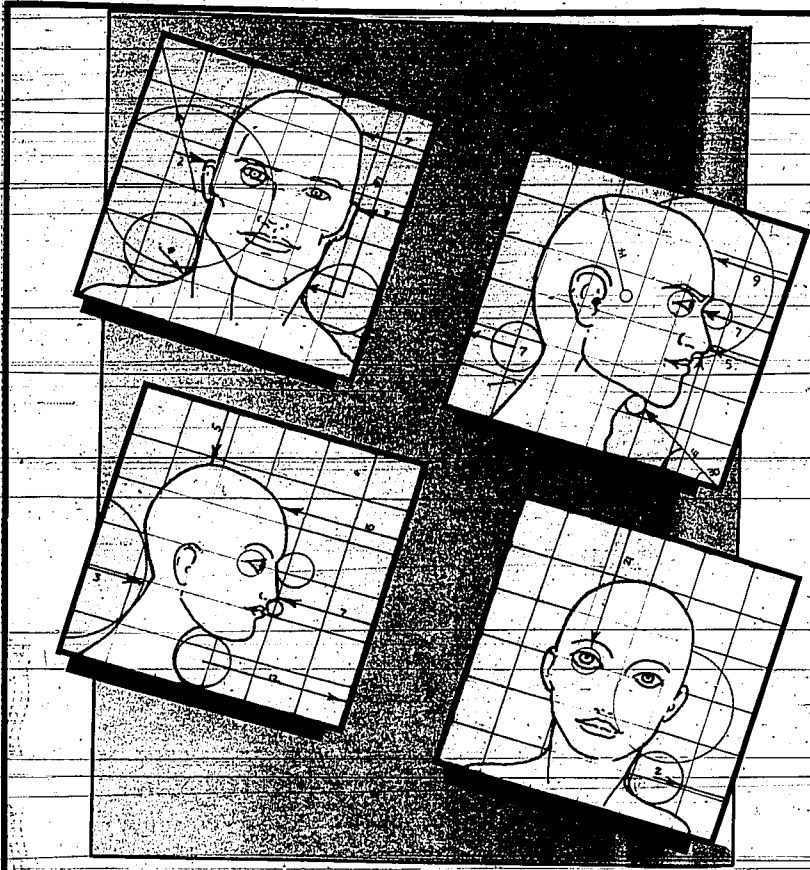

When a patient comes to him for cosmetic surgery, he assesses whether he or she is taking a realistic approach, such as, "I'm an executive—I'm getting older—I need to look younger to keep my job" or "I'm a woman—I'm getting a little older—I want to look better for my husband." He says if a woman comes in trying to keep her husband because he's getting ready to leave, it's unrealistic, it's not going to work anyhow.

He says people should have plastic surgery because they themselves want it, not to please someone else. "A face lift ought to be looked on like 'I am going to get a new car—it's for me,'" he says.

He cites the example of the person who feels he has an ugly nose, and blames all the failure of a lifetime on it. Success in life doesn't necessarily follow a reshaped nose, he warns.

As to whether women age faster than men, Nicholson

8 daily exercises control spreading thighs

By JEAN FAIN
Los Angeles Times

Thighs were designed for motion. But if they aren't given the chance for regular movement, thighs tend to start moving on their own—spreading out in every direction. During cold, winter months, inactive thighs can cover a lot of new territory.

Instead of cultivating thick thighs, why not resolve to sculpt a new shape for your legs this winter? Here's a quick and easy thigh-toning plan designed especially for those who dislike winter sports and working out in health clubs.

The best motivator is to record thigh measurements at the outset of the program. In just a few weeks, you'll be able to measure substantial losses.

For an accurate measurement, wrap a tape measure around your thigh this way: Startling at the widest point of the inner thigh, wrap the tape measure around the back of your leg at a slight diagonal up to the widest point of the outer thigh and back down the front to meet the tape at the inner thigh (not the outer thigh, the widest point is generally higher than on the inner thigh; thus the diagonal measurement.) Because most people are asymmetrical, measure both legs.

If you want good results, do these eight thigh-toning exercises daily. For great results, do some sort of aerobic activity, such as walking or jumping rope, for 30 minutes at least three times a week, in addition to these exercises.

Start with six repetitions of each exercise. Advance to 12 and then three sets of 12. For further advancement, use three-to-five-pound weights.

KNEE TO NOSE — On your hands and knees, bring the right knee into the chest as you tilt your head down. Extend the right leg behind you as high as possible and lift your head up. (People with weak backs should keep the kick low.) Repeat. Change to the left side.

BACK KICK — In the same starting position, extend your right leg behind you, knee straight. Lift and lower the leg. (People with weak backs should keep the kick low.) Repeat. Change to the left.

CROSS LIFT — In the same starting position, extend your right leg behind you, knee straight. Cross the right leg over the left calf so the leg is almost diagonal to the torso. In this position, lift and lower the right leg. Repeat. Alternate to the left.

LEG CIRCLES — Still on your hands and knees, bring the right leg straight out to the side, perpendicular to the body. Lift the leg so it is parallel to the floor. Circle it forward. Repeat. Alternate to the left.

BACK LEG RAISE — Lie on your stomach, hip bones pressing against the floor, chin resting on your hands. Lift and lower the right leg without lifting the hip to the floor. Repeat. Alternate to the left. (People with weak backs should exclude this exercise.)

LEG CROSS — Lie on your back and place hands at the bottom of your spine to support your lower back. Carefully lift the legs straight up, toes pointing toward the ceiling. Cross one ankle in front of the other quickly, but do not touch. Repeat.

OPEN LEG CROSS — In the same position, toes pointing toward the ceiling, cross the right ankle in front of the left one. Stretch both legs out to the side, as far as you can. Repeat. Stretch the left ankle in front of the right one.

TOE IN AND OUT — Still on your back, legs straight in the air, point your toes inward, pigeon-toed fashion. Stretch the legs to an open position, keeping the toes turned inward. Repeat. Alternate to the right.

Carob bars pack saturated fat

Carob bars, often sold as health food, are just as nutritionally detrimental as the chocolate bars they imitate, the Nutrition Action Healthletter reports. Both contain saturated fat, which causes heart disease. The chocolate's fat is from cocoa butter; the carob's, from palm oil.

Kids consider smokeless safer

Almost one in 10 Texas schoolchildren chew tobacco, the Archives of Otolaryngology reports. "Further, 77 percent perceived cigarette smoking as very harmful," writes Dr. Steven D. Schafer of the University of Texas, "while only 40 percent perceived smokeless tobacco as very harmful."

Foster care can't allay damage

Placing abused children in foster homes is not enough to overcome the developmental damage caused by the abuse, a study of school children concludes.

Even eight years after being placed in foster care, the children continued to perform poorly in school, leading two doctors to conclude that "there appears to be no rehabilitative effect of foster care as measured by subsequent school performance."

In a joint research project of the University of North Carolina and the University of Maryland, the school records of 96 abused children placed in foster care were compared with those of 69 who remained in their original home.

Although school attendance went up sharply for children in foster care, their grades were only slightly better than those who remained with their parents.

Tranquilizer shuts down hiccups

Holding your breath, drinking from the back of a glass or swallowing sugar may work.

But North Carolina doctors report that in cases of hiccups that won't go away, injection of a common tranquilizer may do the trick—and safely.

"In our clinics intramuscular haloperidol has been used in seven patients with excellent results," Dr. Michael F. Fleming and several colleagues report in The American Journal of Psychiatry.

High-fat diet sabotages aerobic efforts

By NORMAN D. FORD
Bestways Magazine

Several recent studies, including the Framingham Heart Study, have all shown that the immunity to heart disease provided by aerobic-type exercise is significantly reduced when a high-fat diet continues to be eaten.

"Exercise and nutrition are twin pillars of health" that work synergistically to achieve high-level wellness plus the ability to excel in sports. Today, most exercise physiologists and sports physicians are aware that sound nutrition is essential for achieving the ultimate in stamina, endurance, and athletic performance. The right nutrients also ensure stronger bones, muscle and connective tissues thus reducing risk of stress and injury during the exercise or training.

It has also been found that during and after exercise, the body demands key nutrients that are used to restore energy and that are needed to restore bone, tissue and muscle worn or damaged during exercise. These same nutrients also speed healing after an injury.

Several studies suggest that both fat and carbohydrates are used as fuel for body muscles. During short periods of high-intensity exercise, such as sprinting, the muscles are powered by glucose, the end product of the carbohydrates in our diet. When exercise is prolonged for periods exceeding one hour, the body's store of glycogen (which supplies glucose to the muscles) becomes depleted. From then on, fat-burning contributes an increasing proportion of muscular fuel. As glycogen stores drop, the body may also resort to using protein to meet energy requirements.

"Neither fat nor protein are efficient energy sources," however. A study evaluated by J.A. Scharffenberg and M.D. showed that athletes on a diet high in complex carbohydrates displayed almost three times the endurance of athletes fed a diet high in fat and protein. Another authority on muscle pharmacology, Dr. David Lamb of Purdue University, reported at a recent White House symposium on Fitness and Sports Medicine that fat is inadequate source of energy for competitive sports. He and other experts suggest that 60-80 percent of an athlete's diet should consist of complex carbohydrates with up to 15 percent low-fat protein and with fat limited to a maximum of 15 percent.

Such a diet is ideal for both normally active people and for athletes seeking maximum performance. It dramatically strengthens endurance by supplying more energy to the muscles while protein is spared from supplying energy and left intact for muscular repair.

"Complex carbohydrates" refers to the entire range of fruits, vegetables, legumes, nuts, seeds and whole grains — all high in fiber, energy, vitamins and minerals. "Simple carbohydrates," by contrast, refers to grains and sugar which have been depleted of all nutrients by refining. Such refined carbohydrates as white flour and sugar, as well as most sweeteners and dried fruits, provide only short-term fuel which, swiftly leads to depleted blood sugar, level and fatigue. Yet many young athletes, unable to distinguish between complex and simple carbohydrates, load their bodies with refined foods in the mistaken belief it "improves" their performance.

Looking good

Country versus city makeup

Seasonal celebrations call for dramatic eyes, glowing cheeks, rich lips and hair that gleams for an ultimate evening of color. The difference between the two is in the color and texture of the makeup.

Country makeup is more subtle, smudging the palette, vivid violet-blue goes on the outer two-thirds of the lid (and extends beyond the crease). The "depth effect" comes from brown eye shadow in the crease, while lilac brightens the inner corner and a rose color shadows the outer corner. Frame the lid, there's a midnight-blue eyeliner, and to brighten the white of the eye, use a shimmering, light-colored eye shadow.

City makeup is more dramatic, with a shimmering, light-colored eye shadow in the crease, a shimmering, light-colored eye shadow in the crease, a shimmering, light-colored eye shadow in the crease.

To write out this mind-boggling figure, using an inch for each zero, would need a strip of paper 37,000 miles long!

"You are thus an unrepeatable estimate that the entire universe contains only 10 atomic particles. This means that to find two people genetically strong together alike you need to people."

Most of us, says Briggs, give lip service to our uniqueness and then lightly toss the fact aside. Yet, she points out, the likelihood of another person genetically put together into your own usually good time in the past, present, or future is so infinitesimally small, as to be inconceivable.

"The DNA molecule determines your inherited qualities. The Mathematics estimate that the DNA molecule can theoretically write in 10 ways. By comparison they creation and it is totally irrelevant to compare yourself to another person. There are no carbon copies — our universe does not indulge in duplicates!

And as an unrepeatable creation — a miracle — you have intrinsic worth.

LOVE YOURSELF. As a miracle of the universe, you as a give yourself permission to love — those aspects of you you're pleased with and those you want to change. Develop compassion for yourself and accept your own humanity and frailty. Keep your own hopes, strengths and limitless potential within your vision.

WATCH YOUR LANGUAGE. To reduce the power of continual self-reprimands to terrorize and undermine you, change your self-talk. Instead of self-incriminating, blast give yourself massive doses of self-love by daily repeating one or more affirmations such as:

- I let go of my negative feelings about me.
- I deserve love.
- I like myself — I accept my strengths and my weaknesses.
- I don't have to prove myself to anyone.
- I don't have to apologize for being me.
- I value my opinions.
- I learn and grow from my mistakes.

If you consistently use affirmations you can gradually replace self-critical statements with positive ones and actually choose your self-image.

New movie raises more money for Alzheimer's disease

Shirley Jones stars in movie offered exclusively to fund-raising groups

By DOLORES BARCLAY Associated Press

NEW YORK — He was lost. The realization stabbed him with certain horror: He was a grown man out buying ice cream with his 5-year-old granddaughter and he couldn't remember the way home.

The movie, "The Day After Tomorrow," which shows the devastating effects of Alzheimer's disease on an American family.

grants from the Traveler's Insurance Co., the Bob Hope Foundation, MGM and Sandoz Pharmaceutical Corp., which manufactures the only drug approved by the Food and Drug Administration to help slow the degenerative process of Alzheimer's.

"One thing we're finding is that the lay public does not know that Alzheimer's is a chronic and progressive disease," said Bill Connelly, unit director of mental health and aging for Sandoz.

"About 5 million people have Alzheimer's in the United States, and about 1 million go to the doctor," he said. "The other 4 million don't, and out of those, many can be cured because they don't have Alzheimer's but show symptoms of other things such as poor nutrition or reactions to drugs. But they think this confusion is a symptom of old age and don't go to a doctor."

Alzheimer's is a chronic, degenerative brain disease that strikes the middle-aged and older. There is memory loss, confusion, depression, loss of judgment, agitation. Its cause is unknown. There is no cure.

"Is it fatal?" Carliu asks his doctor in the movie.

"No. People die with Alzheimer's, not from it," answers the doctor.

"That's subtle," a hostile Carliu responds.

Carliu portrays Bob Millard, a 50-year-old happily married man who runs a lucrative sporting goods store with his friend, Don Mason (Dana Elcar). Bob has a certain joie de vivre: He loves to go camping and enjoys an active sex life with his wife, Susanne.

At first, his memory lapses are the usual things most adults laugh off. Then, on the day he gets lost, his granddaughter must lead him home. Sometime later, he takes a group of boys camping and goes in search of firewood and becomes hopelessly lost.

Once diagnosed, he continues working until he painfully realizes he can no longer remember the price of the merchandise or anything else about the items selling his business is one of his last decisions.

As the years pass, Susanne lovingly cares for Bob, dressing him, feeding him, showing him pictures of their lawyer daughter, Jenny (Cynthia Ballhaer).

One night, Susanne forgets to lock the bathroom door, a precaution she takes so Bob won't get lost and hurl in the house. He wanders off with his dog, Jeff. The police find him and return him home.

In a moving exchange, Jenny, who stayed with the worried Susanne while Bob was gone, says goodnight to her father. He stares blankly at her. "Do you still love me?"

"Tears spill from Jenny's eyes as she realizes she is a stranger to her dad," I once did," she says.

"That's too bad," he answers.

The cast, crew and production staff all worked at union scale. The movie was shot in 16 mm at more than a dozen locations.

Mrs. Hope said she and Ms. Malone initiated the project after hearing friends discuss the disease. It took them two years to raise money.

"The thing that really inspired us was meeting with a lot of their caregivers," Mrs. Hope said. "When the going got slow, we thought of these people who spend 24 hours a day looking after these people who don't know them, who don't recognize them anymore."

"They get to like children — like great big grown-up children."

The 50-minute film will not be released theatrically. Instead, it will be given to fund-raising groups, health organizations and facilities to help raise money for treatment and research.

"We want to get the word out and let people know the film is available," said producer Linda Hope of Liliac Productions in Hollywood.

"All they have to do is pay for shipping insurance."

The movie's starring Academy Award-winning actress Shirley Jones, and Tony award-winning actor Len Cariu, was directed and co-produced by Nancy Malone. The $250,000 cost to make came from the personal savings of the producers and doesn't think they do.

"I don't think a 50-year-old woman looks any older than a 40-year-old man," he says.

"Some individuals 40 years old look older than other individuals, but I think it's just that society accepts older men better than older women."

After a face lift, there is some discomfort, but Nicholson says, he has had people come in after surgery and tell him it was not as bad as they thought it would be. A reason for this is because a lot of the skin's sensory supply is interrupted.

Most people will have a bruise, redness under the skin, some swelling and this varies with the individual.

"You're going to have to cover up a lot with makeup, and may have to wear dark glasses. It takes at least a couple of weeks, maybe, to present yourself to your friends," he says.

The procedure is not without some risk. Nicholson always warns of the possibilities of damage to the facial nerve.

"That's rare, and someone trying to do this type of surgery knows where to look for it. In certain people, it can be in an anomalous (abnormal) position, and it could be damaged. I haven't seen it happen, but it's certainly something I know about," he says.

When it comes to the nose, men generally don't want a weak one with a little curve in it.

"All the good-looking men, he says, like Charlton Heston and Paul Newman, actually may have a little hump, so when you are doing a man, you want to leave a little bit of a hump."

"But, for a woman, you would want to scoop out a little more, or at least try to get a straight nose."

Nicholson has artistic talent, which no doubt helps when he is shaping a nose (rhinoplasty). "The idea behind doing a nose," he says, "is you should have a concept of what's pretty, and that does change a little bit with time, although it's not really like sculpture — you're not starting with a raw piece of clay."

"You have to work with what the person's got, and you can't change it completely. But, what you're trying to do is get it more toward the standard of norm — the standard of what's pretty."

For example, a few years ago, in doing blepharoplasty, the surgeon tried to get a lot of space between the eyebrow and the eyelid crease. Now, he points out, in all of the fashion magazines, the crease is actually rather close to the eyebrow, and he cites Brooke Shields as an example.

"Most of all — the head-and-neck plastic surgery performed in the U.S. is done by specialists in otolaryngology, ear, nose and throat specialists," Nicholson says.
