Evans seeks $60 million extra in sales taxes

The Associated Press

BOISE — Confronted by a deteriorating economy that has intensified demand for government service while drying up the revenue to finance them, Gov. John Evans on Thursday called for a $60 million increase in sales tax receipts just to keep Idaho in the black this year and maintain present service levels into the next.

Evans, addressing the second major budget crisis of his 10-year administration, said his spartan financial blueprint would require that spending reductions be ordered this fall to be made permanent for the current budgets for all government operations except public education.

But in presenting his most conservative budget yet in a speech broadcast statewide on public television, the Democratic chief executive said the Idaho economy is still fragile for even deeper spending reductions to erase the $25-million-dollar deficit in the present budget or the $40 million gap anticipated between revenues with his tax increase and the $63.2 million in general tax receipts he believes necessary to just maintain government operations at levels he has previously said were inadequate in some areas.

The only realistic option, Evans said, was increasing revenues from the sales tax. But true to his earlier pledge not to seek a flat increase in the current 4-cent tax, the governor called for extending the tax to the most services except for medical, social and educational. The expansion of the sales tax to services, a proposition reviewed and rejected in past legislative sessions, drew immediate fire from the conservative leaders of the Republican-dominated House and Senate. Both House Speaker Tom Stivers of Twin Falls and Senate President Pro Tem James Rishy of Boise called the plan nothing more than a tax increase, predicting it would again be rejected by lawmakers.

Each, a staunch opponent of any tax increases, immediately expressed dismay that Evans failed to present a budget that called for major cuts in spending and the government workforce to handle looming deficits. But Evans, facing tough political decisions as he prepares to enter the 1986 race for the U.S. Senate, suggested cuts beyond the $6.9 million he is recommending. "In most instances, the services provided by the state of Idaho are essential," Evans said. "Because of that, it would be unrealistic of me to recommend a budget based upon the elimination of state services that our citizens need and have said they want."

"The unmet needs for programs such as public schools, higher education, economic development, corrections and law enforcement are well documented," he said. "To consider cutting back even more in these programs at this time is entirely unrealistic."

In addition, Evans called for the replacement of the state's worldwide unitary system for calculating corporate income taxes with a system that considers only a corporation's American operations and revenues. That change, which would cost the state up to $5.5 million, has been demanded by American trading partners, who have threatened retaliation against U.S. companies operating overseas unless all unitary state taxes in the United States are repealed.

To make up for that revenue loss, Evans proposed adding more auditors to the state Tax Commission, estimated to generate another $8.6 million in tax collections. The general revenue budget proposed by Evans is available on page A2.

President will sign farm bill next week

By JIM DRINKARD
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Reagan next week will sign into law the 1985 farm bill, a document that substantially changes the rules for American agriculture and virtually guarantees record federal subsidy spending for the next four years.

Agriculture Secretary John Block announced the president's plans on Thursday, calling it the "massive legislation a package of fundamental reforms that will help point farmers toward the open market and away from the government when they make their production decisions."

He said it will restore health to badly slumping American farm exports, traditionally the backbone of U.S. foreign trade, while giving many struggling farmers a chance to survive the current rural depression.

"It's clear that fundamental reforms were necessary in our farm policy, and this farm bill represents what I believe are major policy reforms, and makes significant strides in moving agriculture toward a market-based economy," Block said at a news conference a day after Congress resoundingly passed the bill.

Reagan's decision also will be a Christmas present for farm-state Republicans running for re-election next year, who had feared the political side effects of a veto-by-a-GOP president.

Democrats already were predicting a spirited election-year debate on whether the bill went far enough toward relieving farm financial stress, however.

"I think there's going to be more and more difficulty in the farm sector for the coming months. No farm bill can prevent that," said Rep. Thomas Foley, D-Wash., a senior farm policymaker in Congress.

"There's going to be a sharp debate in the Midwest over whether the administration met the needs of the farm community" with the legislation.

The bill is expected to have little impact on consumer food prices, Ralph Parlett, an Agriculture Department economist, said — the legislation would require no substantial change in the department's estimate of a 2 to 4 percent increase in food costs in 1986.

While it does provide for substantial cuts in federal price supports for major crops like wheat, corn, cotton, rice and soybeans, the bill also softens the blow to farmers by replacing nearly every dollar lost to lower market prices with a dollar in direct income subsidies. Income supports are frozen at current levels for two years, then eased downward by a total of 10 percent by 1990.

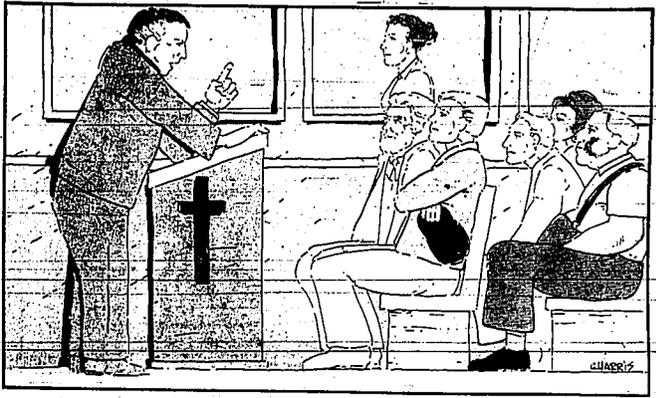

That feature, built into the bill by farm-state lawmakers sensitive to the agricultural depression being felt primarily in the nation's Midwestern grain belt, also drives up the bill's costs.

Of the bill's overall $168 billion five-year price tag, about $12 billion is attributable to the cost of price- and income-support programs, $52 billion of that in the next three years. That, averaged out to $17 billion a year, rivaled the record spending level of $18 billion.

Secretary of Defense Caspar Weinberger are said to agree it would be counterproductive to undercut the accord for the time being.

The SALT II treaty, negotiated by President Carter and Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev, puts limits on long-range bombers, submarines and nuclear missiles. It was never ratified — Carter withdrew it from consideration by the Senate after the Soviet Union invaded Afghanistan in 1979.

Although Reagan campaigned in 1980 against SALT II, he agreed after taking office in 1981 to respect it as long as the Soviets did the same — a policy known as "no undercut."

Some Magic Valley farmers finding help from churches in dealing with economic strains

Churches, civic groups brace for spreading effects of crisis

By BONNIE BAIHD JONES
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Business, church and civic leaders in many Magic Valley communities are bracing for what they expect to be worsening effects from the growing crisis in agriculture.

Most community leaders and business owners say it isn't as bad in southern Idaho communities as it is in such farm areas as Kansas, Nebraska or Missouri.

Farming in Magic Valley is highly diversified and, because of weak farm prices, becoming more so each year, say those closely involved with the farm economy. Many farmers have been looking ahead in recent years, switching to new crops and revised farm practices that have helped them stay in business.

The crisis is hitting southern Idaho later than areas where farmers depend on livestock, grain or other single-crop operations.

Chambers of Commerce officials, churches and many businesses are adopting a positive attitude, hoping that will carry them through to better times. Many say the coming year will be the crucial one for the farm economy in this area.

Family Farming:
Time of Transition
Sixth in a series

Some of the first to detect stress of an economy in trouble are the churches.

Numerous Magic Valley churches are preparing for what they feel will be a strong need among rural members of their congregations in the coming year.

Rev. Dale Heinlein of the Trinity Lutheran Church in Eden, a relative newcomer to the Magic Valley, says some farmers in his area have shared some deep concerns with him.

"It is a confusing time for farmers and small community businesses alike," he says. "There are many farmers in my congregation each Sunday. They come to find hope and comfort."

"One man told me the other day he has found comfort in our church. He knows now there is 'life after farming,' if he comes to that point," Heinlein says.

The Trinity Lutheran congregation's financial offerings are about what they have always been, he says, including the response from farmers.

Like many other churches, Magic Valley's Lutherans are planning to instigate farm crisis meetings. Such a seminar will be held in Magic Valley in the spring, probably in Twin Falls. Heinlein says it is designed to help farmers cope with their stress through religion. Church officials trained to give such assistance, will offer recommendations.

SALT II probably will get new life

By R. GREGORY NOKES
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Reagan is expected to give the unrattled SALT II arms control treaty a life beyond its scheduled expiration on Dec. 31, even though he once denounced it as "fatally flawed" and the Pentagon charges the Soviet Union has repeatedly violated it.

Reagan will decide to continue to abide by the 1979 treaty at least until spring, predicted several well-placed officials, who asked not to be identified.

They said he will confront another difficult decision at that time over how to respond when a new Trident missile-firing submarine, the Nevada, begins sea trials, forcing a choice of either exceeding SALT II limits or dismantling existing missile systems, such as two Poseidon submarines.

Faced with a similar decision last June, Reagan decided to dismantle Poseidon.

Although Reagan is likely to reserve his decision on a second dismantling at least until March, two well-placed officials think he will decide to do it. "If I had to put my money on a black or red square, the odds are that he will dismantle," said one.

Reagan's key advisers — except for Secretary of Defense Caspar Weinberger — are said to agree it would be counterproductive to undercut the accord for the time being.

The SALT II treaty, negotiated by President Carter and Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev, puts limits on long-range bombers, submarines and nuclear missiles. It was never ratified — Carter withdrew it from consideration by the Senate after the Soviet Union invaded Afghanistan in 1979.

Cigarette dangers exceed job hazards

By WILLIAM KRONHOLM
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Cigarette smoking causes more death and disability among American workers than exposure to hazardous substances in the workplace and must be considered in efforts to reduce occupational risks, the surgeon general said Thursday.

Dr. C. Everett Koop, releasing the 17th annual surgeon general's report on smoking and health, said efforts to eliminate work-related lung disease and cancer are unlikely to be successful unless they are accompanied by efforts to get workers to stop smoking.

"It seems clear that the responsibility for health in the workplace includes at minimum a work environment that does not promote smoking or interfere with cessation," Koop said.

A pivotal finding, he said, is that smoking combined with occupational hazards can multiply the risk far beyond the hazard of either exposure alone.

For example, a worker exposed to asbestos fibers has a fivefold greater risk of developing lung cancer than a worker who is not, and a cigarette smoker has a 10 times greater risk of developing lung cancer than a nonsmoker, he said.

But an asbestos worker who also smokes cigarettes faces a 50 times greater risk of lung cancer, not 15 times, Koop said, and the risk of lung cancer is 87 times greater if an asbestos worker smokes more than a pack a day.

"The risk from smoking is so great that for the majority of American workers, cigarette smoking represents a greater cause of death and disability than their workplace environment," the report said.

But it said the corollary is equally true: workers in hazardous industries who quit smoking can show a similarly dramatic drop in their potential risk.

"It is precisely in those occupations where the greatest occupational hazards have existed that smoking cessation also yields a greater return for individual worker's health," Koop said.

The surgeon general's report met expected criticism from the Tobacco Institute, the trade organization for cigarette companies, and unexpected criticism from the AFL-CIO, which charged it could undermine efforts to control workplace hazards.

Koop said, however, that the AFL-CIO misinterpreted the report. He said the study calls for efforts to stop employee smoking as part of any program to reduce risk from hazardous exposure.

Lane becomes head of Idaho First Bank

By BOB FREUND
Times-News writer

BOISE — Robert W. Lane, the 39-year-old chief of Moore Financial Services, Thursday was named president and chief operating officer for Idaho First National Bank, after the resignation of Idaho First President J. James Burum.

The board of directors of Moore Financial Group, which owns both subsidiaries, quickly moved Lane to head the state savings bank, after the state company officials announced Lane's resignation, which also is effective Jan. 1, was accepted "with regret" by the directors, said Lane. Lane said he will continue to be available to customers "service" throughout its 20-branch system. Lane is the top rank of Moore Financial Group broke at last week's time, as reports of Lane's resignation were made. Lane's resignation is the latest in a series of resignations in the state's financial services industry.

Evans represents about 10 percent of all state spending each year, but it is the only portion that the state has any real control over. Other revenues come from either the federal government or from various government operations.
With his own economic analysts projecting growth in state tax revenue of only 2.5 percent both this year and next, a low even lower than the inflation rate, Evans said his proposal of an expanded base for sales tax collections and light control on state spending was the best way to ensure a balanced state budget, maintain services and avoid increasing the financial burdens of local governments that would merely force major property-tax increases.

"To take care of the $26 million deficit for the current spending year that ends June 30, Evans proposed the combination of the spending reductions already recommended, but subject to legislative approval, and delaying payment of some state obligations until the new spending year begins, primarily the final $18.9 million payment to public schools.
The sales tax extension to ser-VICES, as proposed, would begin supplying the state revenue after the 1986 budget year begins, and $20 million of the estimated $50 million it will generate each year would be used to pay those obligations.

The rest would finance the bare-bones state budget proposed for the spending year that begins next July 1.
Although the sales tax extension will generate roughly the same kind of additional revenue as a one-cent increase in the tax rate, a point Evans made in calling the proposal a "subterfuge," Evans said he believed it was better to make the tax more broad-based.

Effects

and chairman of the Jerome County Board of Commissioners, says there are few bankruptcies or farmers who have lost their farms in the small Eden area.
"Most of the farmers around here are pretty well established and not many have lost farms as yet," Montgomery says. "I think the people we deal with, such as farm services and chemical suppliers, are probably being forced to cut costs."
As a county commissioner, Montgomery says he has seen fewer people coming in for public assistance than at any time since he took office.
"It may be because we ask people to repay at least part of the assistance by working for the county. We haven't had any farmers who have lost their farms asking for help but we don't know if that was due to the farmer's financial problems," Montgomery says.
Mayor Owen Hammond of Eden says things in the small community are going on about as usual and he hasn't seen much change in the past several years. Residents are paying water bills and taxes on schedule.
"The biggest blow to Eden was a few years ago when the interstate highway went in, skirting the town. That killed us. But we have come back since then. But we had to let American inspectors visit our area and we all need to work together toward solutions," he says.
Farm crisis classes of several weeks' duration will begin when the material is printed in sufficient quantity to be used by all of the Methodist churches around the country, Tucker says.
"To my knowledge, the farmers we work with are not all that bad off, but they are running scared," Tucker says. "They have seen neighbors go under and they know they are vulnerable. Even the well-run farm could be next."

including me, are in a vulnerable position right now," Whitton says. "We have to review our operations, and come up with alternatives, and I think most are doing that."
"I work outside of the farm to help support the farm. Many others are doing the same, and we're getting by the land himself," Whitton says.
Whitton says he believes farm prices will never improve until the government steps out of the picture and lets supply and demand take over.
"I am not in favor of having the government bail out the farmer or the businessman," he says. "They don't do it for service stations or grocery stores."
"Right now, I don't think the family farm is in any more difficulty than the family grocery store or the family restaurant."
In Twin Falls, Barney Carlson, a banker and president of the Twin Falls Chamber of Commerce, says there is no question but that current commodity prices are affecting the area's economy. But, he says, it is too early to tell what the long-lasting effect will be.
"Agriculture-related businesses, such as large farm equipment dealers and farm services, are the first to feel the pinch, Carlson says. In a farm area such as this, he says, other businesses will eventually suffer.
"Right now, I see most of our community businesses operating with somewhat guarded optimism. Many tell me it is the weather and roads more than the economy that slowed early Christmas shopping," Carlson says. "Automobile dealers have had a good year in our area and main street business is generally up over last year."
Carlson feels it may be a couple of years before local businesses realize the full impact of the difficult farm economy.
"Agriculture will continue to be a viable industry in this area," he says. "We may see changes in the future, and some changes are already being made changes in philosophy and attitudes. A few years ago everything was big. The road to success was via expansion. Today farmers and businesses are looking to cut back and protect what they have. Our current agricultural turmoil will have its survivors and its non-survivors, and the handwriting is already on the wall for both groups."

Moore

"We do have a defined number of cuts," Lane said. "Currently we're evaluating throughout the organization where we can accomplish the same results with four people instead of five, but we're not going for to reduce customer service to gain those savings."
Lane said the personnel cuts are taking place primarily in administrative areas. The changes will continue into 1986, he said.
"Over the years, I think we've had a little fat creep into the organization, and we just want to be sure that we do operate in the most efficient manner possible," he said.
Lane said the bank's top management currently is planning no cutbacks in its branch network, which operates 11 offices in the Magic Valley.

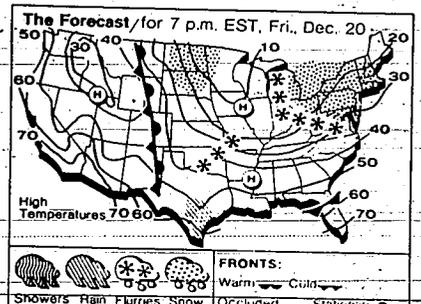

Moore Financial employs 2,365 to 3,000 people in Idaho, Oregon and Utah, with most working for Idaho First. At $3 billion in assets, Idaho First also is Moore Financial's biggest subsidiary.
However, like other banks with large agricultural loan portfolios, Idaho First has had to shore up its reserves to offset loan losses.
"We are experiencing some losses that would be higher than we originally planned for this year, and as a result, we have increased our loan loss reserves to accommodate that," Lane said.
The new Idaho First president also will concentrate on improving earnings which are affected by reserve levels.
"We would like to see some improvement in 1986 earnings over 1985," he said.

Idaho First remains financially solid and the mainstay for its parent company, Lane said.
He came to Moore Financial Services, which is a subsidiary that concentrates on international, corporate and mortgage banking, in 1983 after 15 years with Seattle First National Bank. He was elevated to president and chief executive officer of Moore Financial Services last January, when Burum was appointed to head Idaho First.
Burum joined Idaho First in 1983 and moved up through the ranks by 1980 to executive vice president for branch administration. He held that position until being named president.
Lane and other Moore Financial officials have declined to comment on the reason Burum was asked to take another position.

Today's weather

Little change in prospect for region

Twin Falls, Burley, Rupert, Jerome and Gooding:
Today and Saturday, extensive fog and smoke continuing, otherwise partly cloudy. Highs both days near 20. Lows tonight near zero.
Pocatello, Idaho Falls and the Lower Wood River Valley:
Today and Saturday, partly cloudy with areas of valley fog. Highs both days near 20s. Lows tonight zero to 10 below.
Northern Utah and Nevada:
Utah - Areas of valley fog and low clouds mainly in the western and northwestern valleys, with locally dense fog and snow grains night and into hours. Otherwise mostly sunny days and fair-night throughout.
Nevada - Clear nights and sunny days through Saturday. Lows around 5 degrees. Highs in the upper 20s.
Synopsis:
An air stagnation advisory remained in effect for the entire state of Idaho due to the stagnant conditions and the accumulation of smoke in the valleys below about 5,000 feet.
Reported - mid-afternoon temperatures were near 30 degrees in the north and mostly in the teens and 20s across the rest of the state.
Fog together with high clouds were reported over much of the state with areas of low clouds in some valley locations.
Light precipitation was reported in the southwest in the form of snow. Most reported mid-afternoon winds were light.
The highest temperature in the state Thursday was reported at Grangeville with 35 degrees, while Gooding registered the low of 10 degrees below zero.
The extended forecast for Southern Idaho, Sunday through Tuesday, calls for continued cold and dry. Areas of valley fog, low clouds and smoke. Highs in the teens and mid-20s. Lows 10 below to 15 above zero.
Elsewhere in the Northwest Thursday, a high of 86 degrees was reported at Montebello, Calif., and the highest 28 degrees below zero was recorded at Hibbing, Minn.

Soviet offers testing check

WASHINGTON (AP) - Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev, in a letter to President Reagan, has offered to let American inspectors visit Soviet underground nuclear test sites, a U.S. official said Thursday.
But Gorbachev made the proposal conditional on U.S. acceptance of a moratorium on further tests.
"The White House, while not referring to the letter, rejected such a link - at least for now."
In the letter, Gorbachev also urged Reagan to approve a resumption of U.S.-Soviet negotiations next month on a treaty to ban all such tests, the official told The Associated Press.
"The offer to permit U.S. inspectors at Soviet test sites to check up on their compliance has the potential of giving the lingering arms control process a major push forward in the aftermath of the Reagan-Gorbachev summit meeting."
The official, who demanded anonymity, said the offer was conditional on Reagan accepting a moratorium on further tests. A Soviet self-imposed ban expires Jan. 1.

Briefly

Bonner angry at insinuations

NEWTON, Mass. (AP) — Soviet dissident Yelena Bonner on Thursday said she had not to talk to reporters and expressed anger at press insinuations that she might have exaggerated her illness to win a visa out of the Soviet Union.

In an outburst that family members said could not be described as an interview, Mrs. Bonner told The Associated Press she was disturbed by questions about her condition that arose after doctors determined this week that she did not need surgery to correct her heart problems.

The press is now engaged in a discussion of what kind of treatment is required for me, said Mrs. Bonner, wife of Nobel Prize-winning dissident Andrei Sakharov. "Who invented the story that I needed a bypass?"

Her family had said in November that they understood Mrs. Bonner would undergo a coronary bypass when she came to the United States.

Mrs. Bonner, a pediatrician, said her heart condition was self-diagnosed until now and said her pills self-prescribed — because Soviet authorities would not allow Sakharov to accompany her on a visit to one of the few doctors she trusted, who lives in Moscow.

Convention 'a waste of time'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Chief Justice Warren E. Burger said Thursday a constitutional convention would be "a grand waste of time" and that any changes in the document should be accomplished by the traditional method of ratifying one amendment at a time.

In a wide-ranging question-and-answer session at the National Press Club, Burger also defended a decision to bar the public from attending meetings of the presidential-commission-headers that is making plans to celebrate the Constitution's 200th anniversary in 1987.

The chief justice also repeated his opposition to televising courtroom proceedings because "television essentially is show business."

Shultz balks at lie testing

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State George P. Shultz, defying a White House directive requiring that officials with access to highly secret information submit to polygraph tests — said Thursday he would resign before agreeing to such a procedure.

"The minute in this government that I'm told that I'm not trusted is the day that I leave," Shultz said.

Shultz's angry response came eight days after the White House disclosed that President Reagan had signed a directive requiring that thousands of officials, possibly including some cabinet members, submit to polygraph tests as part of a counterespionage crackdown.

White House spokesman Ed Djerjian refused to say whether Shultz might at some point be asked to take a lie detector test.

"Personally, I have grave reservations about so-called lie detector tests," Shultz told reporters at the State Department.

Kennedy to stay in Senate

BOSTON (AP) — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy announced Thursday that he will not seek the White House in 1988, even though "I know that this decision means that I may never be president."

It was a repeat of the renunciation of the candidacy that startled Democrats three years ago, when he said his "overriding obligation" was to his three children, despite his desire to be president. "This time there was no such explanation."

"I have decided that the best way to advance the values that you and I share — peace on earth, economic growth at home, compassion to all Americans — is to be a United States senator and not a candidate for president of the United States," Kennedy said in a paid political announcement broadcast Thursday evening on a Boston television station.

Kennedy was re-elected to the U.S. Senate in 1982 in the seat once held by his brother, John F. Kennedy, said he would run for re-election to the Senate.

Nicaraguan aid tie disclosed

WASHINGTON (AP) — A private car, inspected by Honduran authorities after a recent accident was discovered to have 450 pounds of Nicaraguan-supplied military equipment earmarked for Salvadoran rebels, the State Department said Thursday.

Assistant Secretary of State Elliott Abrams told a news conference the Soviet-made car set out from Costa Rica and that, during a stopover in Nicaragua, the equipment was placed in six secret compartments.

The disclosure appeared to be the most incriminating evidence the administration has made public to date to corroborate its long-held view that the Sandinista government provides significant support to the Salvadoran rebels.

Glenn plans air safety probe

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Senate investigations panel, spurred by allegations of "dangerous corner-cutting" by U.S. air carriers, will begin a sweeping air safety probe, Sen. John Glenn, D-Ohio, announced Thursday.

Glenn said the probe by the Senate Permanent Subcommittee on Investigations will explore all elements of air safety, including maintenance, inspection, equipment, and air traffic control and will culminate in a series of public hearings early in 1986.

Congress passes catchall spending bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — Like a guest who lingered too late, Congress whisked through a catchall $368 billion spending bill Thursday in a final rush to adjournment.

But enactment of $74 billion in deficit cuts was threatened in an eleventh-hour dispute.

Before leaving for the holidays, lawmakers gift-wrapped a pair of presents for themselves, permitting senators to earn an additional $7,510 a year in speaking fees and opening the door to a congressional pay raise in 1987.

"We've been here too long," Senate Majority Leader Robert Dole, R-Kan., said, and on that there was no debate. Fittingly, the issues that dominated the entire year — spending and federal deficits — were the last ones hanging.

The spending measure was written to grant the Pentagon $281.2 billion for the fiscal year, a $5.7 billion hike over 1985, not counting another $63 billion in transfers from earlier years.

Spending for many domestic programs would be frozen or cut. The House acted first on the bill, adopting it 261-137, and sending it to the Senate, where it was swiftly approved on a voice vote.

Both of Idaho's congressmen — Democrat Richard Stallings and Republican Larry Craig — voted against the bill.

Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., called the provision for increased speaking fees "outrageous," but decided against seeking a separate vote for fear of delaying congressional adjournment. He said that for the first time, senators would be able to claim over $100,000 in compensation, including pay of $75,100 and slightly over $30,000 in outside speaking fees.

President Reagan signed the measure, the White House said Thursday night, even though it provides slightly less for defense and more for domestic programs than he wants. Officials also confirmed the president would sign the $52-billion farm bill passed on Tuesday.

Negotiators working on the other major year-end bill agreed on a measure to cut spending by about $60 billion and raise taxes by $14 billion over the next three years.

Medicare would take the biggest cut — more than $11 billion through 1988 — but the most controversial provision would establish a new tax on most large manufacturing companies to finance the Superfund program for cleaning up toxic waste dumps.

But House voted 205-151 to strip the Superfund provision from the measure and sent it back to the House. "It's dead," said Sen. Robert Packwood, R-Ore., although Dole's aide said the majority leader was unwilling to give up on the bill.

Even if the measure cleared, administration officials were suggesting strongly that Reagan's objection to the Superfund tax could trigger a veto.

Dole and House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. scanned the legislative calendars for other bills to push through.

Don't take first word on new federal laws

Every year, as it rushes toward the Christmas adjournment, Congress abandons logic and passes far-reaching legislation in the last days. Only after the dust settles do we know what has happened. The pattern is particularly acute this year. In the course of a week, Congress has passed a major farm bill, a farm credit rescue plan, a deficit reduction plan, and enabling legislation to fund the government for the coming year. A sweeping proposal to change how — and how much — Americans pay in taxes is close to completion. We would bet that there is virtually no solid information about any of these proposals beyond the mass media, that the average Joe on the street has only the vaguest notion of what the proposals will or won't do.

There are several reasons for this. One is that all of the proposals have been in a great deal of flux; their final form only emerged this week, and in the case of the tax reform measure, its form is still not certain. Another is that no one knows for certain what the impacts are of each proposal. The deficit reduction bill, for example, has variously been described as a boondoggle, a shell and mirrors game, and the only way Congress and the president can agree on where to cut the deficit.

The law may also be unconstitutional in that it delegates to non-elected agencies, specifically the Congressional Budget Office and others, the authority to implement cuts.

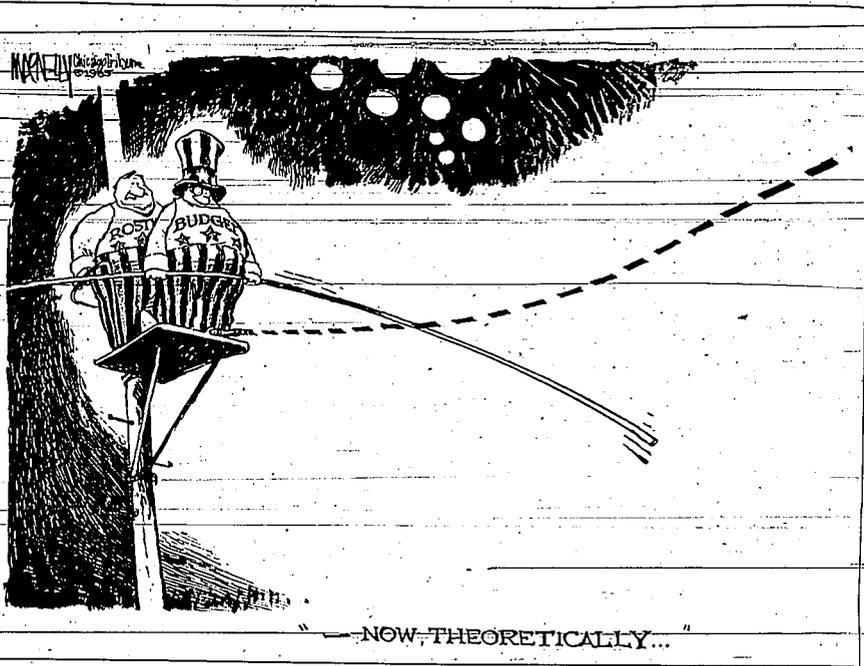

In the case of the tax reform, some members of Congress see it as merely a device to extract more taxes from most of us. Others see it as a real shift, particularly from lower-middle income Americans, corporations and higher-income individuals.

The truth is probably somewhere in the middle. It will be months, and perhaps some legal challenges down the road, before we all know what Congress has actually done this time out.

So hold your breath and don't take the first comment at face value from either Sen. Steve Symms or Rep. Richard Stallings. Remember, both are running hard for re-election.

Baha'is are persecuted

President Reagan at a special White House Human Rights Day program on Dec. 10, stated that "There is perhaps no more tragic case today than that of the Baha'is. The government of Iran has engaged in rampant religious persecution. Since 1979, 100 Baha'is have been put to death, 700 are imprisoned, some 10,000 made homeless, and over 25,000 forced to flee the country. Only the continued world outcry can help bring an end to their suffering." Los Angeles Judge James F. Nelson, chairman of the American Baha'i community, said the Iranian government leaders "have openly proclaimed their determination to destroy the Baha'i community and to obliterate the Baha'i religion itself."

The United General Assembly Dec. 20 also condemned Iran's human rights record in a resolution in which the Islamic regime's actions against the Baha'is, Iran's largest religious minority, it was the first time the U.N. debated and voted on Iran's human rights practices.

Judge Nelson also gave President Reagan a statement on world peace recently issued by the international governing body of the Baha'i Faith, the Universal House of Justice. The Peace Statement, the first formal document ever addressed by Baha'is to the people of the world, has been presented to the Secretary-General of the U.N. and to heads of state in countries on every continent.

My husband, Ray Ettehadieh of Jerome, is an Iranian Baha'i who narrowly escaped the persecutions launched against the Iranian Baha'i community when he immigrated to the United States some twenty years ago.

We are grateful to our Idaho congressmen, Mr. Symms and Mr. McClure, for supporting a number of Congressional Resolutions condemning the human rights violations against the Iranian Baha'is. I am very grateful for the efforts of the American people to put an end to this tragic situation as I have many friends and relatives who remain exiles in their own country.

Propping communism

The word is getting out: On a recent telecast, Jimmy Swaggart was explaining how American money financed Lenin's Bolshevik takeover of the Keresky representative government in Russia following the 1917 revolution.

He further explained that communism would have fallen long ago if it were not being continually subsidized by American food, technology, and money mostly paid for by the American taxpayer.

The federal reserve-trilateralist coalition certainly has their work cut out for them. They not only must keep the American economy operating tolerably well, but also the various communist countries. If they pull too much from the American economy, inflation goes up.

Neither the federal reserve or the trilateralist bosses will survive an inflation rate much above 10 percent. If communism isn't kept alive, they lose a lucrative tax supported racket. As Abe Martin, the Hooster cracker barrel philosopher would say, "It will be fun to watch."

Insurance system is not designed for frivolous lawsuits

I have read with some concern, several articles appearing in your paper on the state of the insurance industry in Idaho and nationwide. Since I was out of town at the time of this public hearing, I feel compelled to set the record straight, as we in the insurance industry see it.

It seems the trial lawyers association have decided to form a study committee to determine the reason for high insurance rates and tight market conditions. This might appear to be a magnanimous gesture on the part of a spirited public service group. We feel their motives might be for other reasons. A like scenario might be "General Dynamics today announced the formation of a study committee to analyze and pass judgment on the propriety of defense contractor billings received by the defense department."

Some of their criticisms have some merit, others are nothing more than a Trojan horse tactic and still others, false and groundless. I am acquainted with both of the "Deans" your article refers to and have the utmost respect for them as individuals and/or professionals.

Needless to say, I found many of their comments to be biased and full of prejudice. Why not? Most of us respond to a condition which might affect our wallets.

I do agree that our industry can justifiably be accused of poor management and gross inefficiency in some cases. This has been most ably demonstrated by the recent "Rate War" for larger commercial/industrial type accounts we have experienced.

Dan J. Obenchain

This type of mismanagement came into being during the last 15 to 20 years and is the result of mergers, friendly and unfriendly take-overs, formation of conglomerates, etc. Bear in mind not all, in fact only a few, companies fall into this category.

The "Whiz Kids" theory was to forget solid conservative underwriting and proper pricing. Get the premium bucks in the door and we can invest them in this hot market. Their philosophy was faulty in that the high interest rates did not last and the contractual obligations agreed to in an insurance policy do. We often get claims on policies that expired 5-10-25-30 years ago. Here are some examples of take-overs and/or mergers: ITT owns Hartford; Citibank owns Home of New York; Kertox owns Crum and Forster Group; Teledyne owns Argonaut; American Express (until very recently) owned Fireman's Fund.

So, I will agree, many of our problems are self-imposed. But it does not account for most of them as the trial lawyers/plaintiffs attorneys would have you think.

Were I to attempt to conscientiously and fairly assess the causes of the problems within our beleaguered industry, the break down would read something like the following: 20 percent reflect the instability of our national economy; 30 percent self-imposed; and 50 percent is the result of a litigious society coupled together with a civil justice system that has become totally self-serving and cannibalistic toward business, industry and consumers in general.

Consider these facts:

- 1) One third of all the lawyers in the U.S. have come into practice in the last five years.
- 2) Two thirds of all lawyers in the world are in this country.
- 3) In Japan, only two percent of the law school graduates pass the bar; the courts charge high fees to file cases; their society does not honor mediation and negotiation. In Europe, when a party has been vindicated in court, the losing party is assessed costs, including attorney's fees. In America, each party must bear its own litigation costs.
- 4) One of the most frivolous of the cases, except for some Canadian provinces, the U.S. is the only country that allows contingent fees. In France it is a crime, in England it is not permitted.

Definition of Contingent Fee: One of which, if a lawyer loses your case, he gets nothing, and if he wins your case, you get nothing.

Statistics recently published by the Defense Research Institute underscore the alarming growth of litigation. In 1950, the total value of legal services was less than $1.5 billion. In 1982, it exceeded $27 billion.

The insurance delivery system is designed to accommodate reasonable (non-frivolous) occurrences. It is not designed to accommodate ridiculous suits filed with a "courthouse steps settlement" planned on from the very beginning.

Many insurance plaintiffs attorneys will pursue any absurd allegation if insurance is involved. Their hope is to settle on the courthouse steps for a lesser amount, any amount, knowing full well a claims manager is measuring the cost of a full blown trial. Turn on your TV, you can identify most of them as they are moving in from Boise, Spokane, Portland, Salt Lake and the list goes on. They all operate on the theory, a liberal application of a "greenback politics" will relieve the pain from any alleged injury or industrial illness.

I agree with Lloyd Webb that Idaho does not see many excessively high awards, but Idaho can ill afford many if you consider its small population base compared with other areas. One large award could wipe out years of premium income from any particular class of business at any time.

Tort reform is an urgent need in such areas as "Joint and Several Liability" (Deep pocket theory) which is a legalized rip-off designed to reward a very self-serving legal system. "Strict Liability" as opposed to the traditional "Negligence" standard of liability needs to be re-addressed.

As is always the case, excesses of any form eventually destroy themselves and then the pendulum swings back to a more moderate position. My frustration is not personal in that I have a deep respect and admiration for most of those in the legal profession. My disgust and lack of respect is with the system.

Our Civil Justice System is no longer civil, nor is it just. The test of who should be liable is who can afford to be liable. That will change when society finally figures out who is paying the tab. After all, society (the consumer) eventually pays the bill for everything; jury awards, taxes, insurance, you name it and eventually we all pay and pay again.

Dan J. Obenchain, Twin Falls, is the former president of Obenchain Insurance and has been in the insurance business for 38 years.

Actions, not words, mark us as individuals and a society

Ronald Reagan, at the close of his "fireside" summit with Mikhail Gorbachev, said something to the effect that the success of their meeting would have to be judged on actions, not words.

It seems ironic to me that our celluloid president, the great communicator, whose presidency is built on "one liners" and show, should speak of actions as substance and keystones of measurement.

"We're people caught up in stick rhetoric and approvingly we accept no action in response to problems. When an occasion of violence or wrong doing arises, we blurt it out in the media, make grand moral statements and then, as if by magic, the thing of it, we drop it from the headlines and pretend it has gone away. It is easy to lay out the words, but to transform those words into action takes something more. It takes commitment.

We will only solve our problems when we are willing to translate our words into actions. We are wasting our time, our energy and our hope for a better tomorrow if we seek only cosmetic solutions to our problems, while we hold the trump cards under the table.

We can't talk equality if I keep five oranges and only give you one, in an effort to keep from dealing straight and in order to rationalize our own position, we mask the issue of greed in some complexity. We even create more words to ensure that complex image.

The fact is that none of it is that complex, from the human body, through the nuclear arms issue, to economics, energy, taxes and international relations. It is only made to sound complex so that those who profit from it may continue to do so.

It is that profiting by the special interest which keeps us from finding solutions to our problems. It keeps us from translating the words into actions.

If in the interest of peace and justice we are not willing to lay on the line our gross consumption of the world's resources then we can't expect peace and justice, we can't expect revolution, war and terrorism. We can't just keep singing the songs and listening to the politicians speak of peace.

If we want to put an end to the nuclear arms race we've got to lay it on the line about the nuclear arms race. Those who perpetuate it can't be the ones who keep making, testing and profiting from the bombs.

If you really want to talk national defense, don't talk about nuclear arms; talk and act on programs which will make us stronger and more independent individuals.

The list of problems and solutions could go on and on. If you want to get in shape, you don't need diet centers and health clubs. If you want a good education you don't need schools; teachers, and degrees; you need an open mind. If you want to get a handle on the national debt, give up your federal pork barrel.

Many people in this country claim to be Christians. These "Christians" rather than following the simplistic life of Christ, who didn't even have a pillow of his own and who was born in a stable, pursue earthly goals and power with little regard for the rights of others; the quality of life on this good earth. They even celebrate the season of Christmas in a frenzy of spending on man made junk. Their actions denote that their religion is not of Christ, but of materialism.

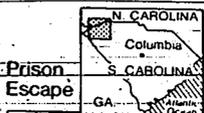

It is actions not words that mark us as individuals and collectively as a society. We can drape ourselves in all the color and rhetoric of the grandest of prophets and statesmen, but it is how we are that says what we are.

S. Carolina prison breakout follows Bronson's film script

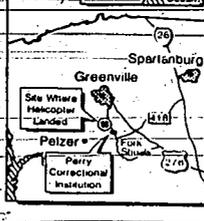

Faulty steering aborts launch of Columbia

PELZER, S.C. (AP) — A woman with a pistol hijacked a helicopter Thursday and forced the pilot to land in the yard of a state prison, where she picked up three inmates and escaped after shooting a guard who tried to pull the men down, authorities said.

Prison Escape

The woman and the convicts, including a convicted murderer, flew about four miles in the Perry Correctional Institution to pasture, where they landed and abandoned the two-passenger craft. They released the pilot unharmed and apparently fled to a waiting car. "I don't see how he (the pilot) did it," said Lt. Tommy Smith, who is heading the investigation for the Greenville County Sheriff's Department. "They must have been hanging out the door."

Sheriff Johnny Mack Brown said the unidentified woman went to Palmetto Helicopters near Donaldson Center, an industrial air park, about 9:45 a.m. and said she had been riding in a helicopter.

Larry Green, 34, who has been a pilot for 18 years, including two tours in Vietnam as a flyer, said he was in the air, she pulled a gun, put it to his head, said "Take me to Perry," and he did," said

Hal Leslie, a state Department of Corrections spokesman. They landed inside the medium-to-maximum security prison complex about 10 a.m., and five inmates from a group of 200 ran toward it. "The pilot said 'I can't take that many' and two either jumped or were pushed off," Leslie said.

Seconds later, the guard, William T. Wade, 34, was shot as he tried to pull some inmates off, Leslie said. Wade, who suffered a gunshot wound to the mouth that knocked out several teeth and fractured his jaw, was in serious condition following surgery at Greenville Memorial Hospital, Leslie said.

"He was evidently shot by the woman," Leslie said. Tower guards fired at the helicopter with shotguns and pistols as it departed but apparently missed, Leslie said. "It certainly was well-planned," Smith said, adding that the escape was like one depicted in the movie "Breakout," starring Charles Bronson. "Somebody mentioned that and there certainly are a lot of similarities."

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — A faulty rocket steering unit forced NASA to abort the launch of Columbia just 15 seconds before liftoff Thursday, and the flight was rescheduled for Jan. 4 to give shuttle workers time off for the holidays.

Just the professional discipline needed to safely secure a shuttle loaded with volatile fuel. Although the clock halted at 14 seconds, officials said a computer had ordered an end-to-the-countdown at off the final seconds before the clock 15 seconds.

scraping what was to have been Columbia's first flight in two years following an overhaul. Although the clock halted at 14 seconds, officials said a computer had ordered an end-to-the-countdown at off the final seconds before the clock 15 seconds.

Smoking Pipes, cigars hazards, too

CHICAGO (AP) — Cigarette smokers who switch to cigars or pipes to cut their lung cancer risk often defeat their purpose because they smoke more and inhale more than people who started with cigars or pipes, a new study indicates. "Cigarette smokers should be advised to quit rather than to switch to a pipe or cigar," said the study by researchers at the University of Minnesota. They measured a chemical in the blood indicating amounts of inhaled tobacco smoke in four groups of people: 192 pipe and cigar smokers who were former cigarette smokers, 111 pipe and cigar smokers who had never smoked cigarettes, 1,197 nonsmokers who had never used tobacco, and 1,196 cigarette smokers.

Researchers found significantly higher levels of the chemical, serum thiocyanate, in the ex-cigarette-smoking cigar and pipe users than in the cigar and pipe smokers who had never smoked cigarettes, they said. They reported results in Friday's issue of the Journal of the American Medical Association. The study said smokers who have switched are exposed to less smoke than those who continue smoking cigarettes, but more than those who began smoking with pipes or cigars. Dr. Russell V. Luepker, an author of the study, said, "When you're a smoker and you try to quit by switching, you're still going to be exposed to the cigarette byproducts and presumably not get that much benefit out of quitting."

Corporations clean up air

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — No haze of smoke hangs over the offices of Stride Rite Corp. No cigarette butts float in unfinished cups of coffee, and not a single ashtray can be found on the desk tops. Stride Rite has gone smoke-free. "The air is breathable," said Rhonda Rosenbaum, spokeswoman for the shoe company. "It's a much better atmosphere." Since April, the 450 employees at Stride Rite headquarters here have had to confine their smoking to a single room of the cafeteria. "We're not telling people they can't smoke. We're saying you can smoke but only in the place we designate," Ms. Rosenbaum said. Things are even stricter at Pacific Northwest Bell, the phone company for Washington, Oregon and part of Idaho. Since October, the smokers among the utility's 15,000 employees have been forced to stand outside to take a drag. Stride Rite and Pacific Northwest Bell are among a growing number of companies that tell some of America's 35 million smokers where they can or can't light up. Some smoking experts say eventually it will be as strange to see employees smoke on the job as it would be today to see someone pour a drink at work. Nationwide, more than two dozen companies of 100 or more employees ban smoking in offices and factories, except for designated areas, said Regina Carlson, executive director of the New Jersey chapter of GANP, or Group Against Smoking Pollution. These include giants such as Campbell Soup, which employs 33,000 across the nation, and Adolph Coors, the Colorado brewer, with 10,000 employees.

Stamp aids rebels

MIAMI (AP) — A rare Afghan stamp has been traded for $2.3 million worth of gold costume jewelry that will be sold to benefit anti-Soviet rebels, an international stamp broker says. The triangular, multicolor stamp, depicting an Afghan rebel walking with his camel, was one of 85 printed in Paris in 1981, then smuggled back into Afghanistan.

Most French courtroom hostages freed

NANTES, France (AP)—A gunman claiming to be a Palestinian guerrilla rushed into a courtroom during a robbery Thursday and with the help of two defendants took about 35 people hostage, officials said.

The three men threatened to kill the hostages if the police attacked. The judge who had been presiding over the trial was chained to a chair, according to police sources who demanded anonymity. They said the two defendants grabbed .357 Magnums from policemen in the courtroom.

Five gunsshots were fired during a 9½-hour period inside the courtroom, the fifth at about 8:30 p.m. (12:30 a.m. MST), shortly after sandwiches were brought in, sources said. No one was hit by the gunfire, which were described as warning shots by the sources, who spoke on condition of anonymity.

The slightest attempt by police to intervene will be immediately met with a response in the seconds that follow," Georges Courtois, one of the defendants, said in a national television broadcast that he had demanded.

A high-ranking police official from Paris and a local governor were negotiating Thursday evening with the gunman, who was demanding a "bus" in which to escape, apparently with the hostages.

The gunman, armed with grenades and high-powered guns, immediately freed six policemen after taking over the courtroom shortly before 11 a.m. (3 a.m. MST). Hours later, they released 11 law students and two journalists, according to accounts by police and local officials.

Reports on the number of people remaining in the courtroom Thursday night ranged from 16 to 18.

Police wearing bullet-proof vests ringed the courthouse in this city about 300 miles southwest of Paris. A police command unit was dispatched from Paris along with Police Superintendent Robert Broussard.

The gunman who burst into a courtroom was identified by police as Karim Khalil, an armed robber, Abdel Courtois, 34, and Patrick Thiolet, 24, then jumped from the dock and took the .357 magnums from police, police sources said. The two other defendants left the courtroom, the sources said.

Police said the hostages included Judge Dominique Balhache and the juror.

Witnesses said that after Khalil ran into the courtroom, he raced toward Balhache, grabbed him by the throat, brandished a grenade and demanded that the police surrender their guns.

Bernard Dussel, the local editor in chief of FR3 television who was inside the courtroom to videotape the gunman, said the men were armed with four grenades and six large-calibre guns. He quoted the gunman as saying they would make their demands known "at the time and hour they wished."

Spy case probers finish questions

JERUSALEM (AP)—A U.S. legal team has completed questioning Israeli officials in the case of a civilian U.S. Navy intelligence analyst charged with spying for Israel, a government official said Thursday.

Director William H. Webster confirmed in Washington that the interviews have been substantially completed, if not fully completed, at this time and the legal team was preparing to return.

Israel radio said a statement would be issued in Washington expressing satisfaction with the outcome of the inquiry.

An Israeli official, speaking on condition of anonymity, said that the United States and Israel have been in contact about issuing a joint statement at the end of the investigation, but it was still unclear whether the statement would be released.

Earlier, an Israeli official said the investigation was proceeding to the satisfaction of both sides.

Four U.S. investigators arrived eight days ago to question Israelis believed to have been in contact with Jonathan J. Pollard, the U.S. navy analyst arrested Nov. 24 in Washington and accused of selling military secrets to Israel for $50,000.

His wife, Anne Henderson-Pollard, 25, was arrested Nov. 22 and charged with illegal possession of national defense documents.

The team, led by U.S. State Department legal adviser Abraham Sofaer, had been expected to interview Raphael Eytan, the former spy master who reportedly headed a secret unit that controlled Pollard, and Israeli science attaches Ilan Ravid and Yosef Yagur.

Both U.S. and Israeli officials here declined comment on who had been interrogated.

Syria, Israel at odds over missile batteries

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP)—A top Israeli general said Thursday that Syria was playing a "dangerous game" by moving missile batteries to its border. The official Syrian press said in Damascus that Israeli flights over Lebanon would not be tolerated.

A public opinion poll in Israel taken before the crisis over Syrian anti-aircraft missiles began, indicated that many Israelis believe war between the two countries is possible in the near future.

On Sunday, Israeli officials said Syria had moved surface-to-air missiles to the Syrian-Lebanese border in an action designed to stop Israeli reconnaissance patrols over the Syrian-occupied part of Lebanon.

The Israeli army's deputy chief of staff, Maj. Gen. Dan Shomron, was quoted as saying in the Yedioth Ahronoth newspaper that tensions could rise.

"At this stage the problem of moving missile batteries is not closed, and the situation could deteriorate," he was quoted as saying.

Shomron said Syria sought political and military advantage in the crisis but was not prepared for war.

"I will be careful not to cause an escalation as it feels and knows it is not ready for an all-out war," he was quoted as saying. "So it will play a dangerous game on the border which is the border of our reaction, too."

In Damascus, al-Baath newspaper of President Hafez Assad's ruling party warned that Syria would not tolerate Israel's continued violation of Lebanese airspace. By moving the missiles to its border, Syria put them in position to menace aircraft flying over Lebanon.

Damascus radio and other state-run media accused President Reagan's government of seeking to "create a new missile crisis with Syria."

The radio questioned why the U.S. administration did not object to Israel's daily flights over Lebanon or to Israel's violation of Syrian airspace on Nov. 19 when Israel reported shooting down two Syrian MIG-23 fighters in Syrian territory.

Politician shoots opponents

DISPUR, India (AP)—A politician from Prime Minister Rajiv Gandhi's Congress Party fired on an opposition party's victory parade Thursday, killing one youth and seriously wounding another, state police reported.

Police said Mukeswar Saha, a businessman and Congress Party leader, tried to drive through a parade of Assam People's Council partisans dancing in the streets of Soleda, northeast of Dispur, the state capital.

When the activists stopped Saha's car, he and two associates stepped toward the youths. The enraged Assam People's Council members attacked the car, and Saha fired his pistol, said Jnanananda S. Pathak, Assam's director-general of police.

Survivors rescued

MANILA, Philippines (AP)—U.S. Navy helicopters and sailors plucked more than 70 survivors of a capsized ferry boat from the shark-infested South China Sea Thursday, bringing to 115 the number of people rescued, officials said.

Chief Petty Officer Jack Leigh of the U.S. Subic Bay Naval Base said that by late Thursday, six bodies had been brought to the base north of Manila.

Grief, revenge calls mix at funeral for victims of land mine

TRANEEEN, South Africa (AP) — Deeply conservative Afrikaners came together in a mingling of grief and revenge Thursday to bury a farmer's wife and her two children, who were killed by a guerrilla land mine that blew their truck apart on a lonely road.

Eleven members of two white farm-families were in the truck when it struck the mine last Sunday. Six were killed and five were wounded.

In contrast to the outpourings of nationalist fervor at funerals for blacks killed by police in anti-apartheid rioting, the mood was somber and subdued at the service for Transneen, a farming center whose whites oppose even modest concessions to South Africa's black majority.

"I have this to say to Oliver Tambo: You must not awaken a Tiger in the Afrikaner," Dirk van Eck, who survived the explosion, said after the funeral. He had buried his 34-year-old wife, Jacoba, and their children Nelmarl, 8, and Ignatius, 2.

Tambo leads the African National Congress, the main black guerrilla group fighting the white-minority government.

"As I looked into the grave, I was stunned there are still people who talk of negotiating with the ANC," van Eck said. He spoke in Afrikaans, which the funeral was conducted in. Van Eck, 36, cradled his only surviving child, 18-month-old Erik, through most of the hour-long service. Van Eck's wife and children, and a grandmother and two children from the other family, were killed when the truck hit the mine on a game farm about 90 miles north of Transneen on a dirt road two miles from the Zimbabwe border.

Brink's hit outside office

MONTREAL (AP) — Two gunmen wearing hoods robbed two Brink's guards outside the downtown head office of the Mercantile Bank Thursday and fled with cash and checks worth more than $22,000, said police. No one was injured during the theft, which occurred as the guards were carrying money from the bank to a nearby truck, said police detective Sgt. Paul Asselin. Asselin said the thieves, armed with revolvers, confronted the guards outside the bank in a corridor of an office building, grabbed two money bags and ran to a waiting car. No shots were fired, he said.

Ohio boy rescued from icy pond dies

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A 9-year-old boy died without regaining consciousness Thursday, five days after he was pulled from an icy pond where he was under water for 45 minutes.

Jeremy Ghiloni died at 7:42 a.m. of heart failure, Children's Hospital spokesman Randy Kielem said. He said Jeremy's parents, Monica and Thomas Kashner, were at his bedside.

There were just too many strikes against him, said Dr. James Kilman, the attending physician. Kilman is chief of thoracic surgery at the hospital.

Ketcham said the cause of death was "simply cardiac failure. The doctor said that late (Wednesday) they got the results back from an echocardiogram ... showing that basically the muscle function of the heart was not good."

"And frankly, the cardiac failure resulted from the fact there had been so much damage to the heart. Although it was beating, the muscle function was never very good."

JEREMY GHILONI
Under water 45 minutes

"(The doctor) did want to point out (that) frankly, the only way reason we got him as far as we did was the excellent care he received from the time that he was rescued until the time of death," he said.

Jeremy fell through the ice covering a pond Tuesday near a school bus stop in Madison Township of Licking County, about 30 miles east of here.

Rescuers detected a pulse and he was taken first to Licking Memorial Hospital in Newark and then to Children's Hospital.

Kilman said Jeremy's body temperature was about 80 degrees when he arrived at the hospital. To raise his temperature, doctors used a heart-bypass machine to warm his blood and Kilman said Jeremy's body temperature had been kept at 96 degrees.

Hopes for the boy's recovery hinged on a phenomenon known as the "mammalian diving reflex," which is triggered by the body's immersion in cold water.

The reflex, which is present in humans shortly after birth but diminishes with age, stops the body's breathing and diverts oxygenated blood from the skin, muscle and gut, sending it to the heart, lungs and brain.

Dr. Edward J. Kosnik, a pediatric neurosurgeon at the hospital, said doctors planned to give Jeremy coma-inducing drugs for four or five days to give his brain a chance to recover.

U.S. troops arrive home from Mideast

FORT CAMPBELL, Ky. (AP) — The final contingent of U.S. soldiers finishing a Middle East peacekeeping tour arrived on two Air Force jets Thursday, the joy of their homcoming muted by the deaths of 248 comrades in the crash of a charter plane.

The 234 members of the 101st Airborne Division, the "Screaming Eagles," stepped off two Air Force C-141 Starliner jets and were taken to the base gymnasium, where about 100 relatives waited to be reunited with them after their six-month tour.

"We are all happy to be home, but I didn't want it this way, being without our friends," said Maj. John Losero, of Los Angeles, referring to the division members killed Dec. 12 when their Arrow Air jet crashed just after takeoff following a refueling stop at Gander, Newfoundland.

After the crash, the Army asked the Air Force to provide transportation for the rest of the returning 101st Airborne soldiers in place of Arrow Air.

Though there were tears for lost comrades, there were hugs and kisses from wives, mothers and children.

"All I wanted to do was be in his arms," Losero's wife Suzanne told reporters who were kept out of the gym as Losero held his 3-year-old daughter Colleen. "It's going to be the best Christmas."

Brenda Harrington of Lake City, Fla., will be spending her first Christmas as the wife of Pfc. Eric Herrington, 20, who was scheduled for the Arrow Air flight out of Egypt but was held back because he had lost his passport.

Council to meet on report

Special session set

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

KIMBERLY — Members of the Kimberly City Council will meet for a special session at 12:30 p.m. today that could lead to release of the disputed Attorney General's Office report on its investigation of the Kimberly Police Department.

The meeting was called by Mayor Ron Jones, who said councilmembers probably go into executive session shortly after the special meeting opens.

In closing the meeting, he announced it would cover "litigation," a subject that qualifies for closed meeting discussions.

The litigation, Jones said, is pending action by the Times-News to seek release of the reports through the court.

In addition to the attorney general's report, a second report, detailing an investigation into alleged improprieties in the Kimberly Police Department by the Twin Falls Police Department that was requested by the council, has also been kept under wraps.

Kimberly officials have indicated that if the attorney general's report is released, it would be desirable to leave out names of juveniles and certain other individuals which, if released, they feel could lead to lawsuits against their city.

Stephen Hartgen, managing editor of the Times-News, called for the release of the report in a Thursday morning editorial. He said later that he believes today's meeting is a good idea. "I want to give the City Council an opportunity to reassess its original position (not to make the report public), and I would argue for release of the report post haste."

Hartgen said he had consulted an attorney and both he and the attorney feel the reports are clearly public property and involve an official governing group. "We see nothing in the law that indicates they should not be released," he said.

If they (councilmembers) decided not to release information, then we have other alternatives," he said.

Group protests Idaho Power's rate hike request

By JANE ROBISON
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — A loosely organized but vocal coalition of seven people, representing groups from senior citizens to farmers and teachers, held a press conference Thursday to decry Idaho Power's proposed $84.2 million rate increase request.

If approved, the group charged, the 27.4-percent rate hike would be "devastating," and lead to everything from hypothermia in senior citizens unable to pay higher bills, to teacher layoffs. It would also force farmers and small businesses out of business, members said.

"We call on all of Idaho's citizens" to oppose this, said "Ulahwti," a spokeswoman for Idaho Neighbors Network, which represents 150 low- to moderate-income families. INN organized the press conference. The coalition is gearing up for a formal fight when the Public Utilities Commission holds hearings in Twin Falls.

Larry Taylor, with the PUC, told the Times-News Wednesday that hearings were scheduled for March in Twin Falls. However, the members of the group said they had heard the hearings would be held in January or February.

Speaking in addition to Ulahwti were Dan Venzon, representing small businesses; Mildred Howard, president of the Idaho State Council for Senior Citizens; Galen Guthrie, president of the Magic Valley Farm Borrowers; Walt Mueller, president of the PCA Borrower's Association; Bill Chisholm, representing conservation organizations; and Melanie Hutchinson, government relations director of the Idaho Education Association, Region IV.

Howard said that if the rate increase is approved, it would "impair the health of senior citizens" causing hypothermia to seniors who could not afford heat, or malnutrition in people having to forego food to pay bills.

"We cannot afford this," she said.

Hutchinson, representing Magic Valley schools, called the proposed hike a "financial form of child abuse." She said the rate hike would mean an additional $17,470 to seven local school districts, an amount equal to 10 teachers. And Hutchinson noted schools already are financially strapped with the 2.5-percent state holdback.

The increase would mean an additional $80,000 to Twin Falls School District; $30,952 to Buhl; $25,482 to Kimberly; $19,494 to Filer; $5,000 to Castleford; $3,322 to Murtaugh; and $6,850 to Hesse schools, according to Hutchinson.

"You can be sure that the teachers of the IEA in this region will strongly resist this rate increase," she said.

The increase would create similar havoc on farmers, Guthrie said. "This increase may well be the final blow to destroy agriculture in Idaho," he said.

Guthrie said the "kiss" of one farmer who paid $12 per acre to water his land in 1975, but $62 per acre to water in 1985, a 500-percent increase.

Agriculture cannot absorb a rate increase of any size," he said.

Ulahwti charged that Idaho Power was "playing poker" by requesting a 27.4-percent rate increase when "they really intend on getting a smaller percentage rate increase."

She said Valley II, a coal-fired generating plant in Nevada which has been the center of the proposed rate increase, was not needed by Idaho Power customers until the 21st Century.

And she said Idaho rate payers should not be forced to pay more, when surplus energy is being sold to California.

Group members said their main thrust is to urge residents to attend the public hearings. "The biggest impact will be to have those hearings packed with people," Guthrie said. "That will send a better message than any testimony."

College heads deny deception charge

By DEAN S. MILLER

TWIN FALLS — Idaho college and university presidents said Thursday they have hidden nothing from the Legislature in the budget process, as alleged by House Speaker Tom Stivers Wednesday night.

At a Wednesday night gathering at the College of Southern Idaho, Stivers said administrators in state higher education are "suspicious" and have hidden things from the Legislature. "They can hide more things that we don't know about until we adjust and go home," he said.

Contacted in Boise Thursday, Stivers said he was referring to an agriculture research grant at the University of Idaho for about $4 million. "We didn't know anything about it and neither did the Legislative Auditors Office."

Stivers said the Legislature wouldn't have given higher education as big a funding increase last year if they had known about the grant.

Harry Armstrong, an assistant to St. President Richard Gibb, said Thursday that he did not know what Stivers was talking about.

"All of the grant activity that this university is involved in is documented at each (Board of Regents) meeting," Armstrong said.

"To my knowledge, we've never been anything but above-board," he said. Armstrong said Stivers should know the university has about $20 million in grant money from private and public sources. "Stivers should know... If not for the grant money, we'd be in dire straits."

Idaho State University President Richard Bowen, who has been on the job since July, said he will work this year to give members of the Legislature whatever information they want. "I think we've got an obligation to be as open as we can," Bowen said.

Boise State University President John Keiser said the state Board of Education closely monitors grant activity. "It is part of the public record and I suggest he pay attention to that," Keiser said.

"If it weren't for the grants, the state of Idaho would be in worse trouble than it is now," said Keiser, noting the university's grants for research come to about $2.5 million, from private sources and the federal government.

Lewis Clark State College President Lee Vickers said his school has been open with the Legislature. "I don't know what Speaker Stivers is referring to," Vickers said.

"I'm sure in the case of Lewis Clark State College, the budget's small enough to analyze easily, and the Legislature does," he added.

Indigent medical bills hit in surge

By PAT MARCANTONIO
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Indigent medical bills totaling more than $200,000 have been filed within the last month against Twin Falls County, according to Welfare Director Susan Eckles.

With the surge of big bills, county officials are glad there's catastrophic insurance to help cover the costs. Otherwise, the county would be digging deeper into its pockets for the costs of aiding indigents.

Any claim against the county is considered catastrophic when it's more than $10,000. That's the deductible the county must pay on each claim before the insurance program pays the balance. The county pays $251,550 a year to participate in the catastrophic program, and probably will get its money's worth this year.

Two claims against Twin Falls County totaling more than $55,000 will be reviewed Friday by the board of the catastrophic program to determine eligibility.

Although Twin Falls County initially rejected the claims, it is standard procedure to apply for payment through the program, in case the claims must be paid after appeal hearings on the appeal was denied, Eckles said.

One claim from St. Alphonsus Regional Medical Center in Boise and an Oregon hospital totals $41,244 for the treatment of a Businessman urges vacant bank plan

By BOB FREUND
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — A Twin Falls business executive is floating a bold plan to gather the city's development agencies in a vacant building downtown for a concentrated drive toward economic growth.

Marc Peperzak, president of Aurora Capital Corp., already has asked Idaho First National Bank to donate its unused branch office to a Twin Falls Community and Economic Development Commission, which does not exist.

Peperzak also plans to seek a government grant and contributions from the city's businesses to put the building on its feet.

"I think we need to do more than what we're doing in the area of economic expansion and recruitment," he says. "If we have all these related things together in one place, all focused on the objective of economic development... we might be able to get something done."

Peperzak unfolded his proposal for the economic development center this week to officials of Moore Financial Group Inc., which owns Idaho First.

The bank has been trying to sell its vacant, two-story former branch at Main Avenue and Shoshone Street — the central corner in town — for almost two years.

Peperzak is still considering selling the building, said Blaine Leon, executive vice president for Moore Financial Group, on Thursday. "We'll consider it (Peperzak's proposal), but I can't say it enough. We want to sell the building."

Peperzak is proposing that Idaho First contribute the building outright to the commission. The building would become the base station for economic and development groups, such as the Greater Twin Falls Chamber of Commerce, United Way of Magic Valley, a satellite office of the Idaho Department of Commerce, the Region IV Development Agency, the Magic Valley Institute of Agriculture, the downtown Business Improvement District and others. All would pay modest rent for the space.

City or county officials then would seek a special "public facilities" grant of as much as $700,000 to restore the bank building and develop validated parking. The building itself would contain offices, public meeting rooms, and a business library.

Once the project is under way, area businesses and other groups benefiting from economic development would pay for the commission's operations and a professional

Charboneau deserves death says prosecutor

JEROME — A special prosecutor in the trial of convicted murderer Jamie Dean Charboneau, 25, urged a death penalty there Thursday in closing arguments of a pre-sentencing, mitigation-aggravation hearing in 5th District court.

Special Prosecutor Marc Haws, of the Idaho Attorney General's Office, told District Judge Phillip Becker that there were no mitigating circumstances in the slaying of the defendant's former wife Marilyn Arbaugh, 36, in Jerome on July 19, 1984. She was shot to death in the barn at her rural home.

Judge Becker resumed a presentence hearing Thursday morning after several months delay for presentation of final evidence and arguments that concern the sentencing.

Shoshone schools lose tax monies due to clerical mistakes

By HOWARD MILLER
Times-News correspondent

SHOSHONE — Patrons of the Shoshone School District have been given an untold tax break due to clerical errors. Shoshone School Board Chairwoman Donna Hibbard told school board members this week.

Hibbard said that because of new personnel at the school district and at the Lincoln County Courthouse, $15,000 in plant facility money and $5,000 in maintenance and operation monies were not assessed on taxpayers property, and the school district has lost the budgeted funds. The recently discovered mistakes come at a particularly bad time for the district, she said, since the school has received no state aid, lack of funds has led trustees to declare a state of financial emergency for two years in a row.

An audit for the 1984-85 school year revealed that the state aid was miscalculated by $15,000 and had not been received by the district. In 1982 approved a plant facility override of $15,000 per year for 10 years, starting in 1983.

Lincoln County Clerk Dana Sturgeon explained that the tax money was collected in 1983-84 tax year, but the budget request for 1984-85 was typed by Adams and signed by Adams. The $5,000 in unclaimed maintenance and operations funds were apparently due to an addition error by school-district personnel. Adams explained: "The district was entitled to $25,000 for this year, but the school listed only $20,000 on its budget request, so the extra $5,000 was not levied for this year."

for emergency roof and door repairs, adding up to the $25,000 total levy. She attributed the loss of funds to a typographical error. Sturgeon said in talking with State Superintendent of Schools August M. Hein she discovered there is nothing that can be done to recover the lost money. The school district is entitled to levy for any amount up to the voter-approved limits each year, but may elect not to for some or all in any given year, she said. Hein said the unclaimed money from one year cannot be collected in another year, Sturgeon said.

Burley teen killed in accident

DILLON, Mont. (AP) — One Western Montana college student from Burley, Idaho, was killed and another critically injured in a collision between a sports car and a towed semi-tractor rig early Wednesday morning, about 17 miles south of Dillon. Highway Patrol Sgt. Leo Barnett said that Trent Woodbury, 18, was driving the car, and instantly from head injuries he was killed as a passenger in ran into the rear of the semi-tractor.

Theodore B. Smith, 19, of Columbia Falls, the driver of the car, underwent surgery at a Jetette hospital and was listed in critical condition. The driver of the semi, which was being towed, Jeffrey Gallager of Great Falls, also was hospitalized in Burley in serious condition.

Barnett said a semi-trailer rig driven by Alex-W. Kline of Great Falls was towing Gallager's rig when the accident happened about 2 a.m. in the north-bound lane of Interstate 15. The death pushed Montana's 1985 highway fatality toll to 219, compared with 236 through Dec. 19 last year.

Ely, Lovelock in race for prison

CARSON CITY, Nev. (AP) — The towns of Ely and Lovelock now preliminary approval Wednesday in bidding by seven communities for a new state prison. Viewed as a boost to lagging local economies. A legislative subcommittee voted unanimously for a medium-security prison in the Lovelock area, and there was only one negative vote when it recommended Ely for a maximum-security prison. The subcommittee's recommendation goes to the Legislature's Interim Finance Committee to make a final decision. A prison would bring in 120-200 jobs, an initial $35 million to $50 million in construction costs and an annual payroll of $5 million. But the actual benefit to the area could be as high as $20 million, prison officials say.

The promise of economic stability offered by a prison produced strong lobbying efforts for the projects, with communities offering to clear land, build roads, move landfills and dig sewer ponds.

Thieves damage car, take tapes

TWIN FALLS — Alan L. McCracken of Twin Falls reported loss and damage of $300 in a car burglary at the Lynwood Shopping Center Wednesday night. McCracken told police the vehicle was parked on the shopping center lot between 7:30 and 10:30 p.m. and someone used a heavy instrument to pry open the door. He said about $200 damage was caused in the break-in, and thieves then took three full cases of cassette tapes valued at $630.

Horgen said. In a City Council meeting earlier this month, Councilman Jack Wright read the allegations made against the Police Department, listed in the report, and investigated by the Attorney General's Office and Twin Falls Police Department. He discussed this same information in a radio-broadcast Thursday morning.

"I still do not feel the reports should be made public," Wright said Thursday, adding that whatever action is taken will be the decision of the city council. Twin Falls Police Chief Tim Qualls said earlier that if the Attorney General's Office report is released he would be in favor of releasing the Twin Falls Police Department report, providing the names of certain people are withheld.

"There are some names that are mentioned in the report (the police report) involving persons who were not involved in the investigation or allegations. It wouldn't be fair to name those people," Qualls said. "However, it's Kimberly's report and they can release it or not release it. We made it for the Kimberly City Council and turned it over to them," Qualls said Thursday.

argument for the death penalty: He has been housed in the Jerome County Jail for a year, during the trial and awaiting sentencing. The Thursday hearing was delayed while his most recent attorney, May, obtained transcripts and studied the background of the case.

He denied allegations that Marilyn shot him because of jealousy over attention to her daughter. Charboneau testified that on the night of their divorce, Charboneau and Arbaugh went out together. He introduced a motel receipt, showing he had spent the night in a Jerome motel.

He said an indeterminate sentence by the court would give Charboneau a chance for parole at some future time. May contended that Charboneau is not a threat to the Arbaugh family, if released at some future date.

Haws countered that Charboneau has shown little remorse in the long proceedings, and he said indications are that he would never change. Charboneau showed little emotion during the hearing, even as he listened to the prosecution's final young man who was in a motorcycle accident. The man was hospitalized from Sept. 27 until his death Nov. 3, Eckles said.

The other claim ready for review is $16,124 from St. Alphonsus and Magic Valley Regional Medical Center for the treatment of another victim of a motorcycle accident, Eckles said.

This fall, when it paid all but $10,000 of a $32,388 medical bill for the treatment of a 62-year-old Buhl man who had head injuries. This year may be different. It's only a few months into the new fiscal year and there already are more than $200,000 in catastrophic bills, Eckles said.

Although Magic Valley Regional Medical Center is a county hospital, it is operated as a separate entity, she added. A public appeal hearing will be held Friday on the county's denial of a claim from the University of Utah Medical Center in Salt Lake City for payment of a $36,738 bill for the treatment of a man who was shot in August, Eckles said. The county rejected the claim because the patient didn't meet its residency requirements for indigency, she added.

Also pending is a $15,887 bill from the Twin Falls hospital for the treatment last fall of a Twin Falls resident with a number of ailments, Eckles said. The Board of Commissioners had denied the claim and the hospital requested an appeal hearing, which has not yet been scheduled.

The hospital also seeks payment of a $14,935 bill for services to a patient with heart problems. The Twin Falls resident was treated at the hospital from Oct. 1 through Oct. 12. The commissioners' also denied that request. Still being processed is a claim for $18,811 for the treatment at MVRMC of a premature baby in November.

staff, Peperzak said. He estimates those costs at $230,000. He said.

(Idaho First's) donation should be conditioned upon significant contributions by most of the other businesses and government agencies in our community," he said. Banks, merchants, professionals, service businesses and industries would be asked to contribute amounts ranging up to $25,000 a year, based on size and their potential gains from economic growth.

The commission, which would be a quasi-public corporation, would replace a number of economic development activities that now exist with a professional agency able to seek out and recruit new businesses.

After three years, the effort will show an "results" but it should be looked at again," Peperzak suggests. The Idaho First building is a prime central location for the development center, he says.

The bank has been trying to sell the building, with a related parcel on the northeast, but now has broken the two apart. Jane George, partner in Gen. State Realty, who is handling the properties, said this week a sale is pending on the other property — the empty Burkholder Building.

Parties also are negotiating on the bank building itself, but no sale has been agreed upon, she said. County assessment records show the bank building and land valued at $475,000, with the adjoining property at about $44,000. Another source said Idaho First had been asking $600,000 for the combined properties earlier this year, before splitting them up.

Lenon said he expects to discuss the possibilities with Peperzak in the near future. Peperzak also is one of the organizers of the Magic Valley Agricultural Institute, which has gained statewide attention with its proposal for an agricultural trade center at the College of Southern Idaho.

The hospital also seeks payment of a $14,935 bill for services to a patient with heart problems. The Twin Falls resident was treated at the hospital from Oct. 1 through Oct. 12. The commissioners' also denied that request.

District court

The following civil cases were filed during this past week in Fifth District court in Twin Falls: Catherine A. Roper, individually and as a representative of the estate of Roy T. Roper and Safeco Insurance Co. of America vs. Ronald A. and Carole Kassel and Green's Trout Farm, Inc. The plaintiff claims the defendants are owners of a hydroelectric project located near the residence of the plaintiff and from March 22, 1983, until approximately Oct. 15, 1985, large quantities of explosives were set off on land adjacent to the plaintiff's residence. The plaintiff alleges the explosions caused injury to the foundation, superstructure, walls, windows, ceilings, driveways and the domestic well serving the residence. The plaintiff alleges following notice of the plaintiff's complaint an agent of the defendant arrived at the plaintiff's residence and battered plaintiff Catherine A. Roper by hitting her with a car door and battered Roy T. Roper, now deceased, by hitting him with a fist. The plaintiff therefore seeks $56,258 for repairs expended by plaintiff Safeco Insurance, for $5,350 for repairs expended by the plaintiff Catherine A. Roper, for damages in the amount of $75,000 for depreciation in the value of the plaintiff's residence, for balance of the plaintiff's residence, for punitive damages in the amount of $300,000, for cost of the suit and attorney's fees.

Keep child's interest in mind for presents

By MICHELE WALDON

Dallas Times Herald

"DALLAS — And now a message for all parents standing in line at the cash register, arms and carts filled with toys to be wrapped and placed under the Christmas tree: Choose the wrong gift and you could end up damaging your child's psyche.

Dr. Patricia Webb, an early-childhood development specialist at Southern Methodist University here and a designer of children's toys herself, offers this and other caveats when shopping for toys.

Jobs of children are given toys that they are not interested in are not appropriate for their ages," Webb says from her office at SMU. "If you buy something too large or too complicated, they feel negative about themselves or get afraid of it."

Unfortunately, some parents push a child beyond his capabilities and buy toys that are too advanced for his level of development. "Many parents want to wear children-like merit badge," warns Webb. "They push their children to be the smartest, the prettiest, the best in the class. But the child has a great weakness in rearing children."

The heaviest toy advertising seasons is upon us and children are "bombarded by brand names," Webb says. "You need to exert a bit of caution and not go out and buy everything that is advertised. Think of the child's wants. If you don't think your child needs it, don't buy it. But if the child has his heart set on it and wants it so badly, it can be something very special."

In order not to duplicate, spoil or injure a child's self-esteem, Webb, who specializes in the study of children "(from) conception to 3 years old," advises parents to look over the child's toy inventory and what toys the child plays with most often. "Generally the child will play longest with the toy that has many uses," says Webb. She advises parents then to "fill in the blanks" with basic styles of toys that serve specific functions in developing a child emotionally, physically, cognitively and socially.

Those basics include what she terms "the single most important category," or—the open-ended toy. "Wheeled toys," like tricycles and small cars are open-ended toys.

"The doll is another prime example. A doll can be a best friend, a baby, a mother, a sister, a teacher, anything the child imagines. And dolls are suitable for boys and girls. 'I don't believe in toys strictly for either gender,'" says Webb.

Other kinds of necessary toys are those that fall into these categories: things to be made, putting things together—and games—with other children, Webb says. "Parents should try to have some toys that involve other children. It is important to help them develop the need to be with other people."

Pretend play is also a necessary for a child's development, Webb says. "This is so he can try on all different roles, but the self isn't threatened."

She cautions parents not to be merely indicative that a child is highly creative.

Now in the heaviest toy buying season of the year, Webb warns parents to stay away from purchasing toys that are not sturdy, that are unsafe or have toxic paint. "I also don't recommend violent toys. We don't have enough research that says what effect those toys have on a child."

One of the most disturbing gifts on the market, Webb says, is Cabbage Patch Doll vacations. Webb says the objective is to send the doll to an address and in a few weeks the child will receive his or her doll accompanied by photographs of the doll on a beach, in the mountains, wherever. "That troubled me," she says. "The child is not getting to participate. I hope it is not too widely advertised. It doesn't do the child any good."

She also adds that while Cabbage Patch Dolls are adopted with most often, "Generally the child will play longest with the toy that has many uses," says Webb. She advises parents then to "fill in the blanks" with basic styles of toys that serve American Heart Journal, was conducted by a team of scientists that included cardiologist Meyer Friedman, who with cardiologist Ray Rosenman identified Type A behavior in the 1950s.

There were 118 participants (116 men and two women) who had been identified as Type A personalities. They were divided into two groups, with 62 officers attending 21 sessions of behavior counseling for eight behaviors, while 56 received no counseling.

Doves on holiday cards Peace theme popular again

By SARAH BOOTH CONROY The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — Peace is in the cards this year.

The fragile dove of peace, an endangered species on last year's happy holiday cards, has fluttered back like a homing pigeon.

This year, Hallmark, the cards' biggest greeting card publisher, and the Greeting Card Association both say peace doves and peace wishes are again a major trend.

"Peace is in the air," said Rachel Bolton of Hallmark. "People today like to express specific views with their cards, not just say 'Merry Christmas.'"

"Evidently the card designers are good at predicting the public mood. Since they work a year or two ahead, the cards were under way before such peace-minded global concerns as 1985's summit meetings, Live Aid or 'We Are the World.'"

Sandy Kooser of Hallmark designed her card not just for world peace, but for galactic peace. The starry firmament brightens with Christmas stars of great magnitude above a shining Earth. Its legend: "To wish you peace at Christmas."

She's not the only one out of this world. "Look the Stars" design for Summertime shows a space station beaming out a Christmas tree. A space shuttle on a card by Rob Furman for Hallmark is called "Joy to the Worlds," and a Christmas tree below decks and a wreath on the tail. Don't stare too long at the space station dovecote on the cover of M.C. Escher's 1986 calendar by Pomegranate—the op-art image seems to propel the viewer into the universe. To top with all this, Edith M. Gardner offers the "Astrologic Everyday" calendar.

"Contemporary Christian" cards, using modern graphics are the big trend with card publishers as well, said Melanie S. Howard of the Greeting Card Association. Hanukkah cards are becoming increasingly popular, with menorahs and Stars of David as motifs.

Prosperity is just around the 1985 Christmas tree.

If the cost of many cards and calendars is any indication, look forward to an affluent year. Some cards cost almost $6 each, and the larger art calendars run near $20.

Doves are more art than bird on the cards designed by Ted Naos, a Catholic University architecture professor, who last year was one of the few designing peace cards. Five doves fly through four almost invisible panels, to hang or stand as ornaments. His "Shalom" card and "Peace on Earth" die-cut tripanel white cards, when hung in a window, make a message in light on the floor. The die-cut cards, technically difficult to make, are a cottage industry with the Naos family.

Peace's dove—perched on—prison bars, Virginia Walker's dove wreathed with barbed wire—and "Judge Delany's" dove nesting shackles are Amnesty International's big sellers.

Small stamped-out metal ornaments are a change from paper cards. A solid brass dove of peace comes from the Library of Congress. The Metropolitan Museum of Art uses gold electroplate and silk-screened colors on a dove-and-wreath ornament adapted from a 1850 Baltimore "friendship quill."

A religious card by American Greetings is embossed to look like a quilted dove, UNICEF has a dove with rainbow streamers by Brazilian artist Paulo de Oliveira and a pastel card with a sky-blue "Pax" by Vietnamese artist Pascale Tran. Among the rare birds is a partridge in a fold-out six-sided pear tree by Graphics 3.

Gift of charity should continue all year

DEAR ABBY: The approach of the holiday season prompts us to write this letter. As residents of the Freeport Manor Nursing Center, Freeport, Ill., we read "Dear Abby" daily and discuss your column.

Beginning in late November and all through the month of December, we have a few faithful volunteers who want to visit the lonely, put on a program, pass-out treats and gifts.

"This Christmas card," says the volunteer who came on a regular basis, but we could use more.

So to all you nice people who come in large groups during the holiday season, we say, "We love you and thank you for caring, but please don't pack us away along with the rest of the Christmas decorations."

—MAUDE, RUTH, HENRY.

DEAR ANDREW: It's also unique. If it catches on, yet another expression will be added to our language: "Go suck a banana!"

DEAR ABBY: This is for that smarty-pants Smith grad and her equally know-it-all teacher. I got this right out of Emily Post.

Although it is not bad manners to peel the skin halfway down and eat the fruit bite by bite at the table, it is better to peel the skin all the way off, lay the fruit on your plate, cut the banana in slices and eat with a fork.

—SABRINA SMITH

DEAR ANDREW: I was taught to eat a banana with a teaspoon at Wilson College in Chambersburg, Pa. We split the banana in half, placed the two halves beside each other and ate the banana with a teaspoon!

—DOROTHY S. KINTZEL ALLENTOWN, PA.

DEAR DOROTHY: Banana case dismissed; I hope nobody appeals it.

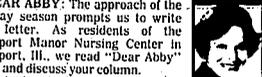

—RUTH H. BIRD, ELLENBURG, WASH.

DEAR ABBY: Now I have heard everything! Please tell that Smith College graduate that she may have learned something about art at Smith, but to eat a banana with a teaspoon? My hat!

When I went to Smith, I ate bananas that only say that made any sense—I had the banana in one hand, peeled it and ate it. Never mind the plate, fruit knife or spoon.

—M.T.B., SMITH, 1936

DEAR M.T.B.: I'm with you, but read on:

Abigail VanBuren Dear Abby

DEAR ABBY: Can you stand one more letter about how to eat a banana? I hope so, because there is one and only one way to eat a banana. Take a slightly overripe banana and roll it back and forth between your hands until the pulp is mushy and practically liquid. Then slice the skin. Bite off one end—it doesn't matter which one—then suck the pulp out of its container.

It's easy, simple and requires no utensils.

Spock urges parents not to 'overschedule' kids

By REDBOOK

Some children are kept so busy with worthwhile activities that they just don't have time to grow up.

Parents who "overschedule" their children's lives may suppress their spirit of independence and impair their urge to learn and mature, Dr. Benjamin Spock warned in his January issue of Redbook.

He said some parents worried that their children would not be able to compete in today's world without every educational and cultural advantage while others worked outside the home and wanted their children safely occupied when not in school. But there can be too much of a good thing in after-school activities.

"I believe that overscheduling—and the inclination of some parents and teachers to be unnecessarily controlling—robs children of some of their inborn drive to learn for themselves and to strive for independence," Spock wrote.

He said it also deprived them of the chance to develop their own interests and hobbies. Studies of the childhoods of unusually successful people reveal they had a tendency to become "deeply involved in a childhood activity."

"Children are born to be curious, inquisitive and explorative," Spock wrote, starting with the 1-year-old who wants to taste dust to the older children between 2 and 6 who spend their little time imitating adults and practicing in play to be adult workers, car drivers, parents and so forth.

"Love plays an important role in this process," Spock said. "Children work hardest at learning to behave like the people they love. Unloved children do not imitate."

Altering angry Type A won't hurt job success

By SCIENCE DIGEST

People with Type A behavior—the potentially life-threatening angry and aggressive personality profile—can modify their behavior without threatening their professional success.

Type A personalities are at risk for coronary disease but, according to an article in the January issue of Science Digest, they justify their behavior by saying it is necessary to their jobs.

A scientific study of senior officers who were students at the U.S. Army War College in Carlisle, Pa., indicated otherwise. Those who were counseled in behavior modification showed significant less hostility and obsession with time—the two traits most closely associated with coronary risk—without compromising their leadership ability.

While they became more tolerant and self-confident, better listeners and nicer to their families, their classes did not find that counseling exerted "adverse effects on the military leadership qualities" of those exposed to it.

American Heart Journal, was conducted by a team of scientists that included cardiologist Meyer Friedman, who with cardiologist Ray Rosenman identified Type A behavior in the 1950s.

There were 118 participants (116 men and two women) who had been identified as Type A personalities. They were divided into two groups, with 62 officers attending 21 sessions of behavior counseling for eight behaviors, while 56 received no counseling.

"We pointed out various Type A behaviors, helped people recognize these in themselves and assisted them in finding ways to substitute more tolerant, Type B behavior," said the principal investigator, Dr. James Gill, a psychologist and consultant to Harvard University Health Services.

When the experiment ended, 42 percent of those counseled showed a reduction in Type A behavior. A year after the study, many participants retained their newly tolerant behavior. The Army has made counseling part of officer training at the War College and some California firms have hired researchers to hold executive counseling sessions.

Shoshone schools lose tax monies due to clerical mistakes

By HOWARD MILLER
Times-News correspondent

SHOSHONE — Patrons of the Shoshone School District have been given an unintentional tax break due to clerical errors, the Shoshone School Board Chairman Donna Hibbard told school board members this week.

Hibbard said that because of new personnel at the school district and at the Lincoln County Courthouse, $15,000 in plant-facility money and $5,000 in maintenance and operation monies were not assessed on taxpayers property, and the school district has lost the budgeted funds.

The recently discovered mistakes come at a particularly bad time for the district, she said; since the schools need repairs and the lack of funds has led trustees to declare a state-of-financial-emergency for two years in 1982 and 1983.

An audit for the 1984-85 school-year revealed that $15,000 of tax-money authorized by voters had not been received by the district.

Also new to their posts that year were maintenance and operations override last year and a supplemental $70,000 to the maintenance and operations override in July

Lincoln County Clerk Dana Sturgeon explained that the tax money was collected in the 1983-84 tax year, but the budget request for 1984-85 taxes from the district was listed zero for plant facility levy, and the money was not collected.

Sturgeon, who is serving in his first year as clerk at the time, said she was not aware that the school district was entitled to the levy, or that the extra $30,000 was not collected for this year.

Sturgeon said she will bring the error to the attention of school authorities.

Also new to their posts that year were maintenance and operations override last year and a supplemental $70,000 to the maintenance and operations override in July

The budget request was typed by Adams and signed by Adsl.

The $5,000 in unclaimed maintenance and operations funds were apparently due to an error by school district personnel, Sturgeon explained. The district was entitled to $225,000 for the 1985-86 tax year, but the school listed only $220,000 on its budget request, so the extra $5,000 was not collected for this year.

Adams said the voters approved a $150,000 bond issue for a sewer a year during the trial and awaiting sentencing.

The Thursday hearing was delayed while his most recent attorney, May, obtained transcripts and studied the background of the case.

Burley teen killed in accident
DILLON, Mont. (AP) — One Western Montana College student, from Burley, Idaho, was killed and another critically injured in a collision between a sports car and a towed semi-tractor rig early Tuesday morning, about 17 miles south of Dillon.

Highway Patrol Sgt. Leo Barner said that Trent Woodbury, 18, of Burley, died instantly from head injuries when the car was a passenger in ran into the rear of the semi-tractor.

Theodore B. Smith, 19, of Columbia Falls, the driver of the car, underwent surgery at a Butte hospital and was listed in critical condition.

The driver of the semi that was being towed, Jeffrey Gallager of Great Falls, also was hospitalized in Butte in serious condition.

Barnett said a semi-trailer rig driven by Alex W. Klins of Great Falls was towing Gallager's rig when the accident happened about 2 a.m., in the north-bound lane of Interstate 15.

The death pushed Montana's 1985 highway fatality toll to 219, compared with 236 through Dec. 19 last year.

there was only one negative vote when it recommended Ely for a maximum-security prison.

The subcommittee's recommendation goes to the Legislature's Interim Finance Committee to make a final decision.

A prison would bring in 120-200 jobs, an initial $35 million to $50 million in construction costs and an annual payroll of $5 million. But the actual benefit to the area could be as high as $20 million, prison officials say.

The promise of economic stability offered by a prison produced strong lobbying efforts for the project, and many communities offering to clear land, build roads, move landfills and dig sewer ponds.

District court

The following civil cases were filed during this week in District Court in Twin Falls:

Catherine A. Roper, individually and as a representative of the estate of Roy T. Roper and Safeco Insurance Co. America vs. Ronald A. and Marie K. Roper. The case concerns a fire in the Roper Farm, Inc. The plaintiff claims the defendants are owners of a hydroelectric project located near the residence of the plaintiff and that Marie K. Roper, who died approximately Oct. 15, 1985, large quantities of explosives were set off on the property to the plaintiff's residence. The plaintiff alleges explosions caused injury to the foundation, superstructure, walls, windows, ceilings, driveways and the domestic well serving the residence. The plaintiff is seeking damages in the amount of $5,000 for emotional distress. In the amount of $50,000, punitive damages in the amount of $30,000, for cost of the suit and attorney's fees.

Thieves damage car, take tapes

TWIN FALLS — Alan L. McCracken of Twin Falls reported loss and damage of $830 in a car burglary at the Lynnwood Shopping Center Wednesday night.

McCracken told police the vehicle was parked on the shopping center lot between 7:30 and 10:30 p.m. and someone used a heavy instrument to pry open the driver's door. The thief stole the car and the break-in, and thieves then took three full cases of cassette tapes valued at $630.

Walter A. Slaughter

KIMBERLY — Walter A. Slaughter, 77, of Kimberly, died Wednesday at his home.

Born July 26, 1908, in Mayfield, Utah, he grew up in Utah, Montana and Idaho. He graduated from Twin Falls High School in 1928 and from the University of Idaho in 1931, where he was a member of the Tau Kappa Epsilon fraternity.

He married Mary Simonson in Woodville in 1934. They had three children: Kimberly since that time, where Mr. Slaughter was engaged in the retail food business for many years. From 1955 until his retirement in 1974, he taught speech and drama at Kimberly High School.

He was a member of the Kayser Lodge No. 91, A.F. and M. in Twin Falls; the Knights Templar, the Scottish Rite Valley of Boise, and the El Korah Shrine Temple.

He had been active in the Kimberly Methodist Church for more than 50 years, and had served both as Kimberly City Council member and mayor for many years.

Surviving are: his wife of Kimberly; two daughters, Claire Major of Gooding and Jane Wood of Boise; two sisters, Ethel Cramer of Kansas City, Kan., and Pat Irwin of Boise; and seven grandchildren.

A memorial service will be held at 2 p.m. Saturday in the Kimberly Methodist Church, 285 Madison Street East.

The family suggests memorial contributions to the Kimberly Methodist Church.

The First State donation should be conditioned upon significant contributions by most of the other business and government agencies in our community," he said. Banks, merchants, professionals, service businesses and industry would be asked for amounts ranging up to $25,000 a year, based on size and their potential gains from economic growth.

The commission, which would be a quasi-public corporation, would replace the volunteer economic development activities that now exist to seek out and recruit new businesses.

"If, after three years, the effort does not show any results, it should be looked at again," Peperzak suggests.

Bills

Young man who was in a motorcycle accident. The man was hospitalized from Sept. 27 until his death Nov. 3, Eckles said.

The other claim ready for review is a $16,121 bill from St. Alphonsus and Magic Valley Regional Medical Center for the treatment of another victim of a motorcycle accident, Eckles said.

Although Magic Valley Regional Medical Center is a county hospital, it is operated as a separate entity, he added.

The appeal hearing will be held Friday on the county's denial of a claim from the University of Utah Medical Center in Salt Lake City for payment of a $36,738 bill for the treatment of a man who was shot in August, Eckles said. The county rejected the claim because the patient didn't meet its residency requirements for indigency, she added.

Also pending is a $15,347 bill from the Twin Falls hospital for the treatment last fall of a Twin Falls resident with a number of ailments, Eckles said. The Board of Commissioners had denied the claim and the hospital requested an appeal hearing, which has not yet been scheduled.

Keep child's interest in mind for presents

By MICHELE WELDON, Staff Writer/Times Herald

DALLAS — And now a message for all parents standing in line at the cash register, arms and carts filled with toys to be wrapped and placed under the Christmas tree. Choose the wrong gift and you could end up damaging your child's psyche.

Dr. Patricia Webb, an early childhood development specialist at Southern Methodist University here and a designer of children's toys herself, offers this and other caveats when shopping for toys.

"A lot of children are given toys that they are not interested in or are not appropriate for their ages," Webb says from her office at SMU. "If you buy something too large or too complicated, they feel negative about themselves or get afraid of it."

Unfortunately, some parents push a child beyond his capabilities and buy toys that are too advanced for his level of development. "Many parents want to wear children like merit badge," warns Webb. "They push their children to be the smartest, the prettiest, the best in athletics. But that is a great weakness in rearing children."

The heaviest toy advertising season is upon us, and children are "bombarded by brand names," Webb says. "You need to exert a bit of caution and not go out and buy everything that is advertised—that the child wants. If you don't think your child needs it, don't buy it. But if the child has his heart set on it and wants it so badly, it can be something very special."

In order not to duplicate, spoil or injure a child's self-esteem, Webb, who specializes in the study of children "from conception to 2 1/2 years old," advises parents to look over the child's toy inventory and what toys the child plays with most often. "Generally the child will play longest with the toy that has many uses," says Webb. She advises parents then to "fill in the blanks" with basic styles of toys that serve specific functions in developing a child emotionally, physically, cognitively and socially. These "basics" include what she terms "the single-most important category," or the open-ended toy. "Wheel toys," like tricycles and small cars are open-ended toys. The doll is another prime example. A doll can be a best friend, a baby, a mother, a sister, a teacher, anything the child imagines. And dolls are suitable for boys and girls. "I don't believe in toys strictly for either gender," says Webb.

Other kinds of necessary toys are those that fall into these categories: things to be made—putting things together, and games with other children. Webb says, "Parents should try to have some toys that involve other children. It is important to help them develop the need to be with other people."

Pretend play is also a necessity for a child's development, Webb says. "This is so he can try on all different roles, but the self isn't threatened." She adds, "Imaginary friends are merely indicative that a child is highly creative."

Now in the heaviest toy buying season of the year, Webb warns parents to stay away from purchases together, and games with other children. Webb says, "Parents should try to have some toys that involve other children. It is important to help them develop the need to be with other people."

One of the most disturbing gifts on the market, Webb says, is Cabbage Patch Doll vacations. Webb says the objective is to send the doll to an address and in a few weeks the child will receive his or her doll accompanied by photographs of the doll on a beach, in the mountains, wherever. "That troubled me," she says. "The child is not going to participate. I hope it is not too widely advertised. It doesn't do the child any good."

She also adds that while Cabbage Patch Dolls are adopted with an assigned name as "a sales pitch so the child will want one of every kind," Webb says, "The child will rename the doll anyway."

Altering angry Type As won't hurt job success

By SCIENCE DIGEST

People with Type A behavior—the potentially life-threatening angry and aggressive personality profile—can modify their behavior without threatening their professional success. Type A personalities are at risk for coronary disease, but, according to an article in the January issue of Science Digest, they justify their behavior by saying it is necessary to their jobs.

A scientific study of senior officers who were students at the U.S. Army War College in Carlisle, Pa., indicated otherwise. Those who were counseled in behavior modification showed significantly less hostility in an obsession with time—the two traits most closely associated with coronary risk—without compromising their leadership ability.

While they became more tolerant and self-confident, better listeners and nicer to their families, their counseling had no effect on the military leadership qualities of those exposed to it. The study, published in the American Heart Journal, was conducted by a team of scientists that included cardiologist Meyer Friedman, who with cardiologist Ray Rosenman identified Type A behavior in the 1960s.

There were 118 participants, 116 men and two women, who had been identified as Type A personalities. They were divided into two groups, with 62 officers attending 21 sessions of behavior counseling for eight months. While 56 received no counseling.

"We pointed out various Type A behaviors, helped people recognize these in themselves and assisted them in finding ways to substitute more tolerant behavior," said the principal investigator, Dr. James Gill, a psychologist and consultant to Harvard University Health Services.

When the experiment ended, 42 percent of those counseled showed a reduction in Type A behavior. A year after the study, many participants retained their newly tolerant behavior. The Army has been counseling part of its officers training at the War College and some California firms have hired researchers to hold executive counseling sessions.

Doves on holiday cards Peace theme popular again

By SARAH BOOTH CONROY, The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — Peace is in the cards this year. The fragile dove of peace, an endangered species on last year's happy holiday cards, has fluttered back like a homing pigeon.

This year, Hallmark Cards, the biggest greeting card publisher, and the Greeting Card Association, both say peace doves and peace wishes are again a major trend.

"Peace is in the air," said Rachel Bolton of Hallmark. "People today like to express specific views with their cards, not just say 'Merry Christmas.'"

Evidently the card designers are good at predicting the public mood. Since they work a year or two ahead, the cards were under way before such peace-minded global concerns as 1985's summit meetings, Live Aid or "We Are the World."

Sandy Koeser of Hallmark designed her card not just for world peace, but for galactic peace—the stars brightly brightened with Christmas stars of great magnitude above a shuddering Earth. Its legend: "To wish you peace at Christmas."

She's not the only one out of this world. "Deck the Stars" design for Summertime shows a space shuttle on a card by Rob Furman for Hallmark, called "Joy to the Worlds," has a Christmas tree below decks and a wreath on the tail. Don't stare too long at the space station dove on the cover of M.C. Escher's 1988 calendar by Pomegranate—the op-art image seems to propel the viewer into the universes of space with this landmark Calendar offers the "Astrologic Everyday" calendar.

"Contemporary Christian" cards using modern graphics are the big trends with card publishers as well, said Melanie S. Howard of the Greeting Card Association. Hanukkah cards are becoming increasingly popular, with menorahs and Stars of David as motifs. Prosperity is just around the 1985 Christmas trees.

If the cost of many cards and calendars is any indication, look forward to an affluent new year. Some cards cost almost $6 each, and the larger art calendars run near $20.

Doves are more art than bird on the cards designed by Ted Naos, a Catholic University architecture professor, who last year was one of the few designing peace cards. Five doves fly through four almost invisible panels, to hang as ornaments. His "Shalom," card and "Peace on Earth" die-cut tripartite white cards, when hung in a window, make a message in light on the floor. The die-cut cards, technically difficult to make, are a cottage industry with the Naos family.

Peace's dove perched on prison bars, Virginia Walker's dove wreathed with barbed wire and Jude Delaney's dove nesting in shackles are Amnesty International's big sellers.

Small stamped-out metal ornaments are a change from paper cards. A solid brass dove of peace comes from the Library of Congress. The Metropolitan Museum of Art uses gold electropiate and silk-screened colors on a dove and wreath ornament adapted from an 1850 Baltimore "friendship quilt."

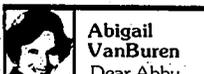

A religious card by American Greetings is embossed to look like a quilted dove. UNICEF has a dove with rainbow streamers by Brazilian artist Paulo de Oliveira and a pastel card with a sky-blue "Pax" by Vietnamese artist Pascale Tran. Among the rare birds is a graphic in a fold-out six-sided pear tree by Graphics I.

Gift of charity should continue all year

DEAR ABBY: The approach of the holiday season prompts us to write this letter. As residents of the Freepop Manor Nursing Center in Freeport, Ill., we read "Dear Abby" daily and discuss your column.

Beginning in late November and all through the month of December, volunteers come out of the woodwork. Already our calendar is filling up with all sorts of organizations who want to visit the lonely, put on a program, pass out treats and gifts or sing Christmas carols in the halls. All this is wonderful, and we appreciate it. But, Abby, where are these generous people between the months of January and October?

We have a few faithful volunteers who come on a regular basis, but we could use more. So to all you nice people who come in large groups during the holiday season, we say, "We love you and thank you for caring, but please don't pack us away along with the rest of the Christmas decorations." —MAUDE, RUTH, HENRY.

Abigail VanBuren Dear Abby

MADELINE AND MANY MORE DEAR MAUDE, ETC.: I'm glad you wrote. The point you raise is a good one. Freepop volunteers and volunteers everywhere—take note.

DEAR ABBY: Can you stand one more letter about how to eat a banana? I hope so, because there is one and only one way to eat a banana: Take a slightly overripe banana and roll it back and forth between your hands until the pulp is mushy and practically liquefied in the skin. Bite off one end—it doesn't matter which one—then suck the pulp out of its container. It's easy, simple and requires no utensils. —ANDREW HUDGINS, UNIVERSITY OF CINCINNATI

DEAR ANDREW: It's also unique. If it catches on, yet another expression will be added to our language: "Go suck a banana!" —RUTH H. BIRD, ELLENSBURG, WASH.

DEAR ABBY: This is for that smarty-pants Smith grad and her equally know-it-all teacher. I got this right out of Emily Post: "Although it is not bad manners to peel the skin halfway down and eat the fruit bite-by-bite, it is better to peel the skin all the way off, lay the fruit on your plate, cut the banana in slices and eat with a fork."

—SABRINA SMITH

DEAR ABBY: My entire teaching career was spent at girls' boarding schools in the Washington, D.C. area. They were known as "finishing schools" in those days. I am sorry, but I'm surprised that you never heard of eating a whole banana with a spoon or fork. That's the way I taught the young ladies to eat a banana—the table.

DEAR ABBY: Now I have heard everything! Please tell that Smith College graduate that she may want something about art at Smith, but eat a banana with a teaspoon. My hat!

When I went to Smith, I ate bananas the way that made any man feel like he held the banana in one hand, peeled it and ate it. Never mind the plate, fruit knife or spoon. —M.T.B. SMITH, 1936

DEAR M.T.B.: I'm with you. But read on.

DEAR ABBY: I was taught to eat a banana with a teaspoon at Wilson College in Chambersburg, Pa. We split the banana in half, placed the two halves beside each other and ate the banana with a teaspoon!

—DOROTHY S. KINTZEL, ALLENTOWN, PA. DEAR DOROTHY: Banana case dismissed. I hope nobody appeals it.

Spock urges parents not to 'overschedule' kids

By REDRICK

Some children are kept so busy with worthwhile activities that they just don't have time to grow up.

Parents who "overschedule" their children's lives may suppress their spirit of independence and impair their urge to learn and mature. Dr. Benjamin Spock warned in his "Parenting" column in the January issue of Redbook.

He said some parents worried that their children would not be able to compete in today's world without every educational and cultural advantage, while others worried outside the home and wanted their children safely occupied when not in school. But there can be too much of a good thing in after-school activities. "I believe that overscheduling—and the inclination of some parents and teachers to be unnecessarily controlling—robs children of some of their inborn drive to learn for themselves and to strive for independence," Spock wrote.

He said it also deprived them of the chance to develop their own interests and hobbies. Studies of the childhoods of unusually successful people reveal they had a tendency to become deeply involved in a childhood activity.

"Children are born to be curious, inquisitive and cooperative," Spock wrote, starting with the 1-year-old who wants to taste dust to the older children between 2 and 6 who spend all their time imitating adults and practicing in play to be adult workers, car drivers, parents and so forth.

"Love plays an important role in this process," Spock said. "Children work hardest at learning to behave like the people they love. Unloved children do not imitate."

District judge, county clerk outline their dispute at hearing

By QUANE KENYON
The Associated Press

BOISE — District Judge John Maynard says he feels district judges need some control over district court clerks to protect the integrity of the court system.

But Nez Perce County Clerk Donna Crooks said Thursday she feels "intimidated" by Maynard, and feels he is keeping her from carrying out her legal duties.

Maynard, administrative judge in the 2nd Judicial District, and Ms. Crooks, who was appointed county clerk last April, testified here Wednesday before a special panel of judges.

Ms. Crooks has asked the Idaho Supreme Court to rule that Maynard overstepped his authority earlier this year when he ordered her and a deputy out of a court area, then had the two women hauled off to jail when they refused to leave.

Jesse Walters, chief justice of the Idaho Court of Appeals heads a special panel of judges gathering information for the Supreme Court in the case. The Supreme Court will use the facts to decide the law in the case.

Sitting with Judge Walters was retired district judge Charles Scroggin, Fairfield. Retired Judge James Towles of Wallace was scheduled to attend but his airplane flight was grounded by weather.

Whether district judges have authority over deputy clerks hired by a county clerk is a question which has drawn statewide interest.

The Idaho Association of Counties has intervened in the case. Five county clerks, besides Ms. Crooks, attended Thursday's hearing.

Canyon County Clerk Bill Staker said he felt the issue was a "time bomb" which could go off in any county.

Staker said he felt that if judges want authority over the deputy clerks, they should take responsibility for them and provide the budgets.

As it is now, he said, if a mistake is made by a court clerk, and damages result, it is the county and the county clerk who are liable, not the judge.

Under questioning, Maynard acknowledged that as a district judge, he has no authority to hire, fire, promote or set pay scales for deputy clerks.

But he said he felt he and other judges must have a voice in the selection of clerks, because of the importance of the position.

"They have vast responsibility, great authority. They could order a sheriff to go out and sell somebody's house," he said.

He said court clerks have to be able to protect evidence in criminal cases and often have access to confidential information.

As soon as Ms. Crooks was appointed clerk, he said, "things started to change. Within two weeks, everybody was at each other's throats," the court clerks felt insecure and morale dropped sharply, he said.

That resulted in "months of absolute chaos" and is one of the reasons why he issued an order banning Ms. Crooks from the court area of the Nez Perce County Courthouse.

Ms. Crooks said she felt the court clerks were disgruntled when she took office, and tried to make immediate changes to improve efficiency.

When she approached Maynard, she said "he was not particularly helpful" and expressed "a great deal of hostility" toward her.

She said she thought that was because Maynard's favorite for the county clerk job, Julie Palermo, did not get the job.

Within a couple of days of taking office, she testified, two men told her to "not rock the boat" although she couldn't say whether they had any link to Maynard.

After she and a clerk were jailed overnight, she said, deputy court clerks ignore her orders and want to please Judge Maynard. She said the clerks apparently fear that Maynard will send them to jail, also, if they don't obey his wishes.

"I feel intimidated by the judge. He thwarts everything I try to do," she said.

Blackfoot man receives death sentence for slaying

BLACKFOOT (AP) — Richard Leavitt, 26, was sentenced to death here Thursday for the stabbing and murder of a Blackfoot woman last year, a crime the sentencing judge called "a vicious attack."

As 7th District Judge H. Reynold George said, "death," Leavitt shouted "Merry Christmas" to his family. The judge called Leavitt "a threat to society."

No immediate execution date was set, but it would be set aside anyway for the automatic review by the Idaho Supreme Court required by Idaho laws.

Leavitt was convicted of killing Danelle Elg in the summer of 1984. He wasn't arrested until several months later.

Sentencing was conducted under tight security, and officers screened courtroom spectators with metal detectors.

In an emotionally charged moment after Leavitt was led from the courtroom, angry words were exchanged by Miss Elg's family and Leavitt's younger brother.

The exchange was prompted by a display of exuberance by Miss Elg's sister, Valynn Mathie, who clapped her hands and shouted as Leavitt passed her.

Mrs. Mathie later said, "It was fantastic. Now we know it will never happen to another little girl."

The victim's mother, Thelma Bross, embraced Bingham County Prosecutor Thomas E. Moss and thanked him for a job well done.

"You can go home and put your lives back together," the prosecutor told the Bross family.

Prior to sentencing Leavitt, George denied a motion by defense attorney Jay Kohler for a new trial. It was based on testimony by Idaho Falls psychologist David Groberg that Leavitt suffers from "intermittent violent behavior disorder," which causes him to have uncontrollable rages.

Kohler also asked George to order further neurological testing, saying Idaho Falls neurologist Dr. Clark Jaynes found during a CAT scan performed on Leavitt last week that there was slight atrophy of the cerebral cortex of his brain.

Kohler said that was sufficient to warrant further testing to determine if Leavitt suffers from some sort of organic dysfunction.

In denying the motions, George said when he granted the motion for a psychological evaluation and neurological tests, he did not indicate to defense lawyers that the outcome would have any bearing on Leavitt's sentence.

George said Jaynes' evaluation of Leavitt's tests showed that the defendant's neurological makeup is within acceptable limits.

The judge said, "Any further evaluation would be of no benefit."

During sentencing, George said the diagnosis of intermittent violent behavior disorder in Leavitt was not a "mitigating" factor, but "rather a condemning one."

He also said the circumstantial nature of the crime was not a mitigating factor.

"Richard Leavitt placed himself at the scene of the crime by leaving his blood there. Atrocious and heinous are not strong enough words to describe the depravity of the crime," George said.

Court rejects death penalties in cases in Canyon County

BOISE (AP) — The Idaho Supreme Court has overturned the death penalties ordered in two separate Canyon County cases.

In each case, the court said even though all who participate in a murder may be charged with it, they must be considered separately when it comes time to consider the sentence.

The court overturned the death penalty ordered by 3rd District Judge Edward Lodge for Michael Shawn Scroggins, convicted of the July, 1983, rape-murder of a 13-year-old Nampa girl, Mondli Lenten.

The 3-2 majority noted that Scroggins, who was 17 at the time of the crime, had a mental age of less than 14, and no previous record.

Under the circumstances, and considering that Scroggins apparently did not do the actual stabbing, the court said the death penalty is not warranted.

The court reached a similar conclusion in the case of Karla Yvonne Windsor, 26, who was the first woman ever sentenced to be executed in Idaho.

Ms. Windsor and Donald Fetterly were convicted of killing a Caldwell man, Sterling Grammer, during a robbery about two months after the murder slaying. Judge Lodge sentenced both to death.

But the Supreme Court said Ms. Windsor apparently did not take part in the actual slaying, and shows promise that she can be rehabilitated. Under the circumstances, the court said the death penalty was too harsh.

In the Scroggins case, the Supreme Court took note of the fact that Lodge noted that Scroggins needs considerable psychiatric help but it apparently isn't available at the Idaho State Prison.

The lack of facilities to treat a prisoner must not be a factor in considering the death penalty, the court said.

Lodge expressed concern that Scroggins, if imprisoned, would not receive the type of medical and High court criticizes judicial error

BOISE (AP) — In a rare procedure, the Idaho Supreme Court has ruled that a Pocatello district judge erred when he refused to allow a woman's confession to be used in her slaying trial.

But Linda Mae Alanis may not be retried for a June, 1983, killing, the court ruled, because she was acquitted of the charge by District Judge Peter McDermott.

The court divided 4-3 that issued the ruling. One justice who sided with the majority on the key issue, admissibility of the confession, sided with two dissenting justices to hold that the woman may not be tried again.

Chief Justice Charles Donaldson, who sided with justices Robert Bakes and Allan Shepard to form the majority, issued a separate opinion criticizing the whole procedure.

"It is clear from the record, and as illustrated by all the opinions in this case, there was a disturbingly substantial amount of error and parochial and unjudicious behavior on the part of defense counsel, the prosecutor and the district judge in this case," Donaldson wrote.

The court later was arrested by Pocatello police and questioned about a stay at a trailer home at a used car lot. After she gave a statement to police, she was charged with first-degree murder.

The count later was changed to second-degree murder. After a preliminary hearing, a magistrate reduced the charge to involuntary manslaughter.

A few days before trial was to start, the defense made a motion to suppress the confession. A jury was sworn in to hear the case. The next morning, Judge McDermott held a hearing on the confession, and decided it was not admissible.

The prosecution asked time to appeal that decision. When trial started, the prosecution said it could not prove its case without the confession, and McDermott granted acquittal to the defendant.

The Supreme Court majority ruled the request to suppress the confession was not made within the time limit, and therefore should not have been granted by McDermott.

But justices Robert C. Huntley Jr. and Stephen Bistline, who dissented, joined with Donaldson in holding that Ms. Alanis could not be tried again because of double jeopardy.

Washington (AP) — Sen. Steve Symms has introduced a tariff bill aimed at Canadian softwood lumber imports, including shakes and shingles.

The bill would place a 30-percent tariff on those lumber imports in 1986, 25 percent in 1987, 20 percent in 1988 and would expire the next year.

The bill would expire earlier if the import level decreases to 15 percent of the American market.

Symms also is co-sponsoring a quota bill and a countervailing duties bill to "provide Congress and the administration with a full range of options to deal with Canadian lumber."

The Canadians' share of the market has grown from 19 percent in 1975 to 33 percent currently. Mill production in the United States dropped from nearly 100 percent to about 80 percent, Symms said.

Inversion curtails operation

POCATELLO (AP) — The J.R. Hinderager phosphate fertilizer plant West of here has been forced to curtail operations, both because of a temperature inversion and because of the startup of new facilities.

Simplot has just finished a $50-million modernization at its phosphate plant, and a new sulfuric acid plant will go into operation soon, said plant manager Larry Hinderager. The sulfuric acid plant is a major component of Simplot's expansion program. The entire plant has been modernized.

Robert Wilkosz, air quality specialist with Idaho's environmental division, said there have been "a lot of weird rumors" about Simplot's sulfuric acid plant since the temperature inversion started.

Collision kills at least 2, closes road

DONNELLY (AP) — Two and possibly three people died in an accident involving a tanker truck and an another vehicle that closed Idaho Highway 55 for several hours Thursday afternoon, an Idaho State Police spokeswoman said.

The 11:45 a.m. crash between Cascade and McCall were not immediately available. Officials at the scene managed to clear the road and begin allowing traffic through about 5 p.m., she said.

The tanker spilled about 500 gallons of diesel fuel into a roadside ditch, but Ms. Butler said the spill was not near any water source.

Dispatcher Denise Butler said the names of the victims and details of

U.S. reneges on contracts, Montana farm director says

HELENA, Mont. (AP) — The U.S. Department of Agriculture has reneged on its contracts with Montana farmers by withholding deficiency payments for 1985, state Agriculture Director Keith Kelly complained Wednesday.

The decision to delay distribution of the checks was made by Agriculture Secretary John Block, but neither state nor federal agriculture officials in Montana are certain why the move was made.

Ralph Peck, deputy director of the state Agriculture Department, said he has been told the decision is a "budget matter" and that Block will not release the money until Congress passes a new federal budget.

Ray Anderson, program specialist for the U.S. Soil Conservation Service in Bozeman, said he had heard that the Commodity Credit Corp. which issues the payments, had reached its spending limit.

But he admitted he does not know if that is the true reason for the delay. "I've not specifically been told why the checks have been held up. You get somewhat different responses," depending on who is asked about the problem, Anderson said.

Like Peck, he attributed the delay to "budgeting problems," but is unsure what federal agency must act to loosen the logjam.

He estimated that checks worth as much as $83 million — half the expected payments for this year — are waiting in county SCS offices throughout Montana.

Deficiency payments are meant to make up the difference between the average selling price for crops and the per-bushel rate at which farmers can obtain federal loans. When the selling price falls below the loan rate, the payments act as a "leveling mechanism" to equalize in the increases and decreases in crop prices, Peck explained.

The deficiency payments are a provision in federal loan agreements signed by farmers and the checks are normally mailed about Dec. 1.

"We need to bust that money loose to prevent further economic hardship" on farmers, Peck said.

Kelly charged, "The decision to withhold deficiency payments from our already seriously troubled agricultural community is a reneging of a contractual obligation on the part of the U.S. Department of Agriculture."

"It definitely promotes doubt as to the ability of the federal government to meet its contractual obligations," he said.

Montana campus bond election set

KALISPELL, Mont. (AP) — The Flathead Valley Community College board of trustees has decided on Nov. 4 as the date for a second bond election on a proposed new campus.

However, the board did not set a price tag on the campus cost.

It battled around the merits of holding the bond election this spring or in the fall, partially on the advice of three area legislators.

The board looked briefly at a proposal for a trimmed down six-building campus for $7.96 million. The first proposal, defeated last November by 160 votes, was for a seven-building, $9.65 million campus.

Explosion, fire rip through home, claim life of Kuna man

KUNA (AP) — One man has died in an explosion and fire that ripped through a frame home in Kuna southwest of Boise, authorities reported.

Roy East, 48, died of smoke inhalation after authorities said an apparent explosion in the kitchen area of the home that was followed by roaring fire, the Ada County Coroner's office said. His body was found in the basement.

Fire Chief Rich Cromwell said a woman and two children managed to escape unharmed from the burning house.

An investigation into the cause of the fire was continuing.

Rites for Oregon soldier draws 100

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — More than 100 people packed a small Portland chapel Wednesday for a memorial service for one of five Oregon men killed when a chartered jetliner carrying U.S. soldiers crashed last week in Newfoundland.

The Episcopal Ascension Chapel overflowed with friends and relatives of Spec. 4 Paul K. Fuller, 20, of the 101st Airborne Division.

The Rev. William Stephens led them in prayer and read or recited from memory biblical passages promising resurrection and life eternal.

"It is difficult for anyone to deal with this kind of death but we are children of the Resurrection," Stephens said. "The moment we are born, we begin to die. How or when that will happen we don't know."

"Accept our prayers in behalf of Paul," he continued, adding "May his soul and the souls of all of the departed rest in peace in the certain hope of eternal life."

After the service, Fuller's brother, David, said the tragedy had been "very hard for the family."

Among those present at the church was Doris Hassing-Strong, Portland, mother of another of the plane crash victims, Mark Steven Hassing of Gresham.

Ms. Hassing-Strong attended the memorial service Monday in Fort Campbell, Ky., at which President Reagan and his wife, Nancy, personally met with relatives of some of the 248 soldiers who perished.

Hassing-Strong gave Ann Fuller a copy of the program from the Fort Campbell ceremonies.

"I have plans to talk with each of the other families" of Oregon victims, Ms. Hassing-Strong said. She said the service for Fuller was "too close to home, for it is still to come for us."

Ms. Hassing-Strong and her husband, and her son's father, Lawrence Hassing, and stepmother, Judy Hassing of Gresham, still awaiting word from Army authorities regarding when the bodies can be transported home.

None of the families has received that word yet, pending completion of positive identification of the victims and autopsies.

David Hull, older brother of Jeff Hull, 19, of Burns, who also died in the crash, is in Burns on emergency leave from his Army unit in Bamberg, Germany, to accompany his brother's body to Oregon when that word comes.

"As soon as they tell me: I will fly to the East Coast and return with him," he said.

School memorial rite honors slain teacher

STEVENSVILLE, Mont. (AP) — Students and teachers at Stevensville High School held a 30-minute memorial service Wednesday for history teacher Mike Shook and his wife Teresa, who were murdered last week.

"To some of us he was a teacher, to others a co-worker, but to all of us a friend," said senior Brenda Daniels about Shook.

"We say goodbye, but never to the memories," Daniels said, reading a poem written by members of the senior class.

Many of the speakers said that despite the way Shook died, it was important for people to remember the manner in which he lived.

"We are shocked and outraged at what has happened," teacher Sue Dolezal said. "However, we must not let our feelings overwhelm our memories."

The Shooks, who both died of stab wounds, were found in their home last Friday morning by a family friend. Shook was 34 and his wife 32. Their three children, ages 10, 8 and 7, are now being treated in a Denver hospital for smoke inhalation.

Ravalli County Sheriff Dale Dye said Wednesday night that the two Shook boys, Matt, 7, and Luke, 4, are doing fine. He said 2-year-old Megan is still in critical condition but is improving, Dye said.

He said the smoke came from a fire set with magazines and furniture under some stairs in an apartment attempt to destroy the house.

Dye has released little information about the double murder or his investigation, and he has declined to say if he has a suspect or suspects.

Court given power over water claims

HELENA, Mont. (AP) — In a sweeping decision Wednesday, the Montana Supreme Court ruled that the state Water Court has the authority to adjudicate water rights claims on all Indian reservations.

In a decision signed by six of the seven justices, the court also concluded that the state Water Use Act is adequate to adjudicate both Indian and federal water rights claims.

Justice Frank Morrison said he would issue his separate opinion on the case later.

On the major issue of whether the Water Court has power to rule on Indian claims, the Supreme Court said a statement in the Montana Constitution relinquishing all state control over Indian lands does not prohibit state courts from adjudicating water rights.

The disclaimer was nullified when the 1979 Legislature passed the Water Use Act, which outlines a distinct method for the handling of Indian claims, the court concluded.

Tribes from all seven Montana reservations had argued that the constitutional statement could not be repealed by implication, but had to be voided by a constitutional amendment voted on by the public.

Until amended, the disclaimer remains a separate and independent barrier to state jurisdiction over Indian lands and Indian water on reservations, the tribes had said.

Attorney General Mike Greely, who sought the Supreme Court ruling, was joined by the state Water Court and the federal government in contending the 1979 law provided all the public consent necessary to override the disclaimer.

Writing for the court, Justice Fred Weber noted that Montana's Constitution provides that all Indian lands will remain under the absolute jurisdiction and control of the Congress until revoked by the consent of the federal government and the people of Montana.

A law passed by Congress in 1952 called the McCarran Amendment eliminated the need for federal consent when the U.S. Supreme Court said the statute extended state authority to Indian reserved water rights as well as federal reserved rights, Weber wrote.

He said a "valid and binding consent of the people of Montana" was given when the 1979 Legislature acted.

In addressing the adequacy of the Water Use Act itself, the court said the law recognizes reservation water rights are distinct from others.

"Indian water rights are based on treaties, which are governed by federal law, and, therefore, any application of the state act must adhere to the federal laws protecting Indian rights," the opinion said.

The Water Use Act recognizes the need to preserve stream flows, for fish and wildlife and "is sufficiently broad to allow adjudication of water reserved to protect tribal hunting and fishing rights," Justice Weber said.

"He added that the law permits tribes to negotiate with the state on the extent of each tribe's reserved water rights, with any negotiated agreement requiring approval from both the Legislature and the tribe.

The Reserved Water Rights Compact Commission already has a ratified agreement with the Fort Peck tribes and is negotiating with all other tribes except the Blackfeet.

The court also concluded that the process protects Indian irrigation needs, allows changes in rural water use and takes into consideration tribes' future water needs.

"We recognize the fear on the part of various parties that the subjecting of Indian water rights to state court jurisdiction will, of necessity, hurt the Indian people," Weber wrote.

But, there are safeguards, he said.

"Should the Water Court abridge Indian reserved water rights by improperly applying the act and the federal law that protects those rights, that failure can be appealed to this court as well as to the Supreme Court of the United States for... exacting scrutiny."

Golden Eagles rolls to 99-38 win in Canada

CALGARY, Can. — It was over almost before it started. College of Southern Idaho, the No. 12-ranked team in the United States junior college ranks, scored the first 19 points of the game and rolled over out-manned Treasure Valley Community College of Abbotsburg, B.C., 99-38 in the opening round of the Canadian-National Holiday Basketball Tournament Thursday night.

The Eagles, after surrendering first possession to Treasure Valley, quickly came up with a pair of steals and easy buckets to break into the lead and the Cascades never had another chance at the lead.

Coach Fred Trenkle knew from the outset that this wasn't going to be the major test of the tournament. That should arrive tonight when CSI meets Sheridan Community College, which is returning several players from last year's national championship junior-college basketball tournament that will tip-off at 9 p.m. and the winner will advance to the finals at 6 p.m. Saturday.

"It won't be this way tomorrow night because Sheridan has the winning tradition built by a national champion and they are a very, very good team," Trenkle said.

Trenkle said he hardly knew how to assess Thursday night's victory. "Our defense was tremendous and our offense was sporadic. Everyone started to do his own little thing. But I changed up the combinations a lot with substitutions and we used a lot of players for a lot of minutes. You really don't expect to see much offensive consistency under those conditions."

The darling of the crowd and the night was 6-4 leaper Joey Johnson who, Trenkle said, "had a career night. He used his quickness for steals and I don't know how many slams."

Johnson ran the whole gamut for the crowd, hitting some slam dunks early and then, as the margin steadily increased, turning in some other tricks. He had a couple of double pumps and then late in the game pulled it behind the head dunk that signaled the coup de grace.

While the first unit was together, it appeared for a while that a basketball shutout was possible: The 19-0 and with 11:42 remaining in the game, CSI had 19-0 lead. CSI coach, Trenkle started going to the bench at that point but the lead moved on. CSI had 20-0 lead at 10:50. CSI record was still in the early stages, converting them into points.

After taking the 60 lead, CSI got its first three-pointer — under international rules being used here — by its most logical member, sophomore Greg Boyd. Chris Blocker rang in with two quick field goals and with just 4:05 gone in the game, Trenkle started going to the bench at that point but the lead moved on. CSI had 20-0 lead at 10:50. CSI record was still in the early stages, converting them into points.

Highland's late flurry pins 52-30 loss on Twin Falls

By RON GATES
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Highland's Gem State Conference Rams handed Twin Falls a 50-30 setback Thursday night.

But the game was more respectable than the final count as the Rams downed 36-27 at the four-minute mark of the final quarter. "We sacrificed a little offense to work on other things," said Highland Coach Randy Rehner. "But Twin Falls didn't give us much chance to do it."

Bekki Rosholt's three-point play cut into the Ram lead but full-court pressure failed to pay off as senior Ram forward Christine Anderson got behind the press for eight points to move her team out of danger.

Highland started the contest by piling up the first eight points and gave an indication of a repeat of last week's rout at Pocatello. Laura McCann cut down the lane and got an assist from Shawn Kaber to get the Bruins on the board. The gap remained in that area until Anderson opened the second quarter with a layup for the Rams' first double digit cushion—Twin Falls trailed by as much as 15 before Shel Wagman canned an 18-footer and Dana Cowan netted a pair of charlotts to trip the Highland lead to 23-18 at the half.

"The kids worked hard," said Twin Falls Coach Paul Slover. "They're getting better and they know it."

The badly outsize Bruin girls battled even with the visitors through the third quarter and well into the final minutes before the defending conference- and state-champs could feel assured of the victory.

Highland is now 12-0 for the season and 60-1 in conference while Twin Falls goes to 2-10 and 1-7.

In joyous action, Highland prevailed 52-30.

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — Michigan Coach Bo Schembechler on Thursday blasted University of Akron President William Muse for replacing football Coach Tim Denison with former Notre Dame Coach Gerry Faust.

Denison, 47, Akron's winningest coach, led the Zips to an 8-3 record last season and to the Division I-AA playoffs. Wednesday, he was appointed assistant athletic director by Muse to make way for Faust.

"The biggest problem with college athletics is presidents like that," Schembechler said. "If anybody should be fired it's that guy."

"You know what? He'll be there two or three years and leave the place in a shambles and go somewhere else," Schembechler said referring to Muse.

No one answered telephones at Muse's office Thursday evening. His wife answered his home telephone and said he wasn't there.

Other Akron officials have defended Faust's hiring.

"Someone like Faust can put us on the map," John Steinhaver, chairman of the Akron board of trustees told The Akron Beacon Journal after Faust's appointment was announced. "We're going to get national publicity."

Denison was 90-62-2 in 13 seasons at the Ohio Valley Conference school, Faust, 50, who resigned Nov. 28 four days before the final game of the season, was 38-26-1 at Notre Dame. The Irish were bombed 58-7 by Miami in Faust's last game.

"Believe me, this guy (Denison) is a widely respected coach," Schembechler said. "You know, it's the type of situation where they should be fighting to hold on to him, that he doesn't get a better job."

Cosell and ABC end long, stormy affiliation

NEW YORK (AP) — Sportscaster Howard Cosell, who helped turn Monday night football into a national phenomenon, and ABC Sports apparently have severed ties, the television network said Thursday in a release.

"After 20 years with ABC Sports, Howard Cosell has asked to forego his remaining 1986 commitments with ABC Sports and ABC Sports has agreed to his request," the release said. It added that Cosell will continue to appear on ABC's Radio Network. He had been scheduled to broadcast the Kentucky Derby and Preakness Stakes and the Tournament of Champions Tennis Classic next year.

Cosell was the commentator on ABC's prime time coverage of National Football League games from its Monday night inception in 1970 until 1983. He also was part of the network's coverage of baseball's World Series during 1977, 1979, 1981 and 1983. And he was the host during 1981-82 of the highly acclaimed but poorly rated "SportsCenter" television program. The program ended its run last Sunday.

"Mr. Cosell has played a very important role in ABC Sports' success during the past two decades," Rooney Arledge, president of ABC News and Sports, said in the release.

After Cosell left the pro football broadcast both two years ago, he criticized the game and the lionization of the players. But that was nothing compared with the controversy surrounding the publication this year of his second book, "I Never Played The Game."

Urie-led Bulldogs rap Pilots out of lead

KIMBERLY — Audra Urie capped a 26-point night with 10-fourth quarter points to spring the Kimberly girls to a 49-38 Canyon Conference decision over Glens Ferry Thursday night.

The victory allowed Kimberly to remain in a virtual tie for the conference lead, each with one loss. It also allowed Glens Ferry absorbed its second league defeat of the season.

Kimberly owed its victory to containing Glens Ferry's usually prolific inside scoring punch of Barb Johannek and Lori Stevenson. Stevenson kept the Pilots close by scoring 12 of her 14 points in the first half. Johannek's scoring was evened out at a couple three points per quarter. Kimberly's Cindy Holcomb had most of her 16 points in the first three quarters to join Urie in keeping the Bulldogs in the game.

Still, the Bulldogs were held to a tie over the first three quarters. But they turned on with the fourth quarter opening. Urie piled up her points largely on pull-up jumpers from the 10-foot range. Glens Ferry managed just seven points over the last seven minutes and Kimberly's 18-point effort pushed the Bulldogs quickly away.

Kimberly won the preliminary 22-22.

Cards levy $1,000 fines after most players refuse drug test

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Most members of the St. Louis Cardinals have been fined $1,000 each for refusing to take drug tests as part of the end-of-season physicals, the National Football League team's player representative said Thursday.

A union official in Washington suggested that such testing was prohibited by the Collective Bargaining Agreement (CBA). But in New York, a spokesman for the NFL Management Council, the owners' bargaining unit, said that under its interpretation of a section of the agreement, the club was within its rights.

The management spokesman also said the owners had sent a letter to the union, protesting what it said was the player representatives' advice to players not to take complete possession physicals.

Cardinals guard Joe Bostic said he and his teammates were notified of the fines Thursday when they showed up for practice. Bostic provided the information during an interview with KMOX radio.

The team, through public relations director Michael Melchior, declined to comment on the fines, saying only: "A portion of the end-of-season physicals were given yesterday and we have no comment beyond that."

The Cardinals, since they will not be playing until next season, declined Saturday against the Washington Redskins.

Bostic, told KMOX that the players, through the union representing them, would most likely seek legal recourse against the action.

"I don't want to cause a problem, but we have to make a stand on what we think is right. We think the court ought to decide it. We'll abide by whatever the court says," Bostic told the radio station.

Dick Bertheisen, general counsel for the NFL-Players Association, would not return phone calls or others at the union said only Bertheisen could discuss the issue.

Roy Jefferson, a former NFL wide receiver and now a union staff representative for the Cardinals and nine other teams, declined to make a by statement, but he did read a portion of the CBA signed in 1982 after the 57-day midseason strike.

Under Article 31 of the players' rights to medical care and treatment, section 7, regarding testing, it says: "The club physician may, upon reasonable cause, direct a player to be tested for testing for chemical abuse or dependency problems. There will not be any spot checking for chemical abuse or dependency by the club or club physician."

Hazelden is a substance abuse treatment center in Minnesota.

Jim Miller, director of administration for the Cardinals and nine other NFL clubs, "are not prohibited by the CBA from conducting urinalysis for drugs in the post-season physicals. The agreement has a provision, an addendum, that outlines what is allowable in the standard physical."

In Appendix D, entitled: Standard Minimum Preseason Physical Examination, it says: "Urinalysis for (including but not limited to): Protein, glucose, TB factor, diabetes, renal failure and gout."

Said Miller: "By that provision, we can check for all those things but we're not limited to checking for those things. Most clubs conduct post-season physicals for injury prevention. Because most clubs conduct a post-season physical, we interpret that Appendix D to mean the same standards apply. We feel we're not limited to testing for those five or six things that you can expand it to whatever we want."

"In a lot of portions of the agreement, language was not cleaned up when it was signed," Miller added. "This is one of those things that Miller said Jack Dunlan, the executive director of the management council, sent a letter dated Dec. 17 to Gene Upshaw, executive director of the union."

"We have been advised by clubs that you and other NFL player representatives are advising player representatives to tell players they should refuse to take complete post-season physical examinations."

Stoddard's scoring helps Dietrich past Richfield by 63-53

By BRAD BRELAND
Times-News writer

DIETRICH — Alan Stoddard had a game high 22 points Thursday night leading the Dietrich Blue Devils to a 63-53 Northwest Conference victory.

Dietrich took advantage of a slow start by Richfield and led by 11 after the first quarter break.

"We just didn't start well," said Richfield Coach Rudy Miles, who started four juniors and one senior in the game. "Did you see the first quarter? We must have thrown the ball away 100 times without any pressure."

Stoddard had six points in the first quarter, pacing the Devils to an early advantage.

The Blue Devils, also starting a young squad with three juniors and a sophomore in the starting lineup, held a comfortable lead through the second quarter, leading by as many as 14 points.

With Dietrich leading 34-20, Luster Swainston launched a three-point shot for Richfield with seven seconds left in the half and Richfield trailed 31-23.

The Tigers mounted a comeback in the second half with Todd Swainston leading the way.

Swainston tossed in eight points in the quarter and after he scored back-to-back buckets midway through the period—Richfield had cut the deficit to six points.

But 40 seconds later, Dietrich boosted its lead back to double figures.

Rich Astle and Curtis Jensen stole passes and scored on cripples and the Blue Devils held a 49-38 lead.

Dietrich only managed to put 11 points on the board in the third quarter, but the Blue Devils held the Tigers to 10 points.

Richfield mounted a final surge early in the fourth quarter when Swainston scored and Dietrich led by eight points.

With 2:20 left in the game, Astle hit his fourth free throw in the game to nail the coffin—Astle—Stoddard had six points apiece in the fourth quarter. Astle scored all of his points from the charity stripe.

The game was different than last week's 41-38 Blue Devil victory. This game was played at a much quicker pace than Friday's contest at the Camas County tournament.

"Our goal at the Christmas break was to be 7-2," said Dietrich's first year Coach Norm Cook, whose Devils raised their record to 6-1 with the victory. "It was a good win for us."

"We learned some things tonight," said Miles, also in his first year as the Tigers coach. "We were just trying to get hard to win."

Jensen added 15 points for Dietrich while Astle chipped in 12.

Swainston had 18 points for Richfield while Casey Riley added 12. Bruce Boyers had 10 points for the Tigers.

Miles and Cook both agreed that the next time the two squads meet, on January 3, it won't be a blowout.

"I'll be a different game," said Cook, who indicated that Barry Ward would be back to help out the Tiger squad. Ward has been averaging eight points a game for the Tigers.

Dietrich leads the conference with a 3-0 record while Richfield dropped to 1-1, 4-3 overall.

Head for the hills and find the warmth

The higher you go the warmer it gets and Magic Valley's skiers are among the warmest residents around this weekend.

Temperatures at all ski areas ranged at least into the mid-30s each day this week. Bald Mountain was reporting 35 degrees on top while the valley floor had 20 degrees and the warmth was just as evident at Pomerelle and Soldier.

Sun Valley — All lifts in all areas will be operating Saturday on packed powder with about 32 inches on top and 30 at the middle of the runs. Total snowfall for the year has been 48 inches:

Pomerelle — Machine packed runs, blue skies and sunshine will be the fare for the weekend. Pomerelle has 81 inches on top and 51 inches at the bottom. The resort will open at 10 a.m. each day through Jan. 5. Road access is good but snowflakes or chains are recommended.

Soldier Mountain — Soldier will be open daily, including Christmas, from now through Jan. 1; the lifts starting operation at 9:30 a.m. Snow depths remain 36 on top and 39 at the bottom.

IDAHO SKI REPORT

Buses will run daily from Twin Falls — except Christmas day, leaving Newton's in Twin Falls at 7:30 a.m., Claude's in Jerome at 8 a.m., Wendell Coffeshop at 8:15 and Gooding Junior high about 8:30 a.m.

Magic Mountain — No new snow has fallen this week but snow conditions continue good. Depths are 50 to 60 inches and all runs are groomed. Daytime temperatures are reaching into the 40s with sunshine and clear skies. The resort is open daily through Jan. 5, except Christmas Day. Daily bus service is also available.

Rice candidates withdraw

HOUSTON (AP) — Two prominent coaches have withdrawn as candidates for the vacant head coaching job at Rice University, but a search committee member said Thursday the committee's timetable has not been hampered.

"Our timetable for naming a new coach is still as soon as possible," said Jack "Bucky" Allshouse, a member of the four-man search committee. "But we're not going to name a coach on Dec. 31 just to be naming someone."

Former Notre Dame Coach Gerry Faust, believed to have been the leading candidate, signed a five-year contract Wednesday as head coach at the University of Akron.

"We were very interested in Gerry Faust," Allshouse said. "But he was up there with three or four other individuals. He just had to make a choice and he made it."

Reds trade for Gullickson

CINCINNATI (AP) — The Cincinnati Reds, striving to strengthen their front-line pitching for a 1986 run at the National League pennant, obtained pitcher Bill Gullickson Thursday in a six-player trade with the Montreal Expos.

Part of the price the Reds had to pay was parting with starter Jay Tibbs.

"To get quality, you've got to give up quality," Reds player-manager Pete Rose told reporters as the club announced the trade.

The Reds obtained Gullickson, 26, and reserve catcher Sal Bula from Montreal in exchange for right-handed pitchers Tibbs, Andy McGaffigan and John Stuper and backup catcher Dann Blardello.

Davis Cup finals begin

MUNICH, West Germany (AP) — Wimbledon champion Boris Becker will play Sweden's Stefan Edberg, the Australian Open champion, Friday as West Germany opens its bid to unseat Sweden as the Davis Cup champion.

The draw on Thursday pitted Mats Wilander, another of Sweden's stars, against Michael Westphal in the first of the two singles matches in the 1985 finals.

The doubles were scheduled for Saturday. On Sunday, Wilander faces Becker in the first of the reverse singles, and Westphal then plays Edberg.

Sweden is defending the title it took from the United States last year.

West Germany's hopes of clinching the Davis Cup crown for the first time could depend on Westphal.

The unheralded 20-year-old player, what may be psychologically the most important match. He could then find himself playing the decisive last match Sunday.

Hampton sentenced for forgery

DECATUR, Ga. (AP) — Dave Hampton, former Atlanta Falcons running back, was sentenced Thursday to five years probation, $43,000 restitution and 300 hours of community service after pleading guilty to forging a mortgage agreement.

Hampton was a Falcons running back from 1972-1976 and gained 3,490 yards, including 1,002 in 1975. He led the team in rushing four seasons.

Hampton was charged with forging a mortgage modification agreement so he could borrow more money on his house, worth an estimated $35,000, according to his team in Portland.

The forgery was discovered when Hampton failed to make loan payments and the house loan was foreclosed, said prosecutor Tom Clegg.

Move-to-Portland fading

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — The possibility that the Denver Gold will move to Portland has diminished, the owner of the United States Football League team says.

Denver owner Doug Spedding said he will decide Monday whether to transfer his team to Portland.

Spedding spent two days in Portland this week, trying to gauge the reception his team would receive in Portland.

"I would have to say that the chances of us moving to Portland are worse than when we were before I visited," he said by telephone from his Denver home.

Bleier's future unclear

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Former Pittsburgh Steelers running back Rocky Bleier says his sportscasting future "is still up in the air" because a Pittsburgh TV station does not plan to renew his contract.

Bleier was replaced as sports anchorman at WPXI-TV last year and has worked only during the football season this year, conducting player interviews and hosting the station's pre-and post-game Steelers shows.

WPXI officials said they do not plan to pick up the option on Bleier's contract for 1986.

Woman coach wants grid job

WASHINGTON (AP) — A woman who wants to coach high school football filed a $151,450 sex discrimination suit against the District of Columbia on Thursday, for giving her the job last year and then taking it away.

Wanda A. Oates, who has collected a dozen city championships in 20 years of coaching girls and boys sports at Ballou High School, filed the suit in U.S. District Court, claiming she was given the job in June 1985.

But a deputy school superintendent stepped in and told Ballou to rehire the former coach, a man, who had been routinely dismissed because of his temporary status, Oates said.

"I believe I was denied the job because I am a woman, not because of my credentials as a coach," said Oates. "I've proven I'm a winner in every sport I've coached. I want my team."

Angels release Zahn, Forsch

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — Veteran pitchers Geoff Zahn and Ken Forsch, both of whom spent much of the 1985 season on the disabled list, will not be offered new contracts, the California Angels announced Thursday.

Zahn and Forsch, both 39, have been invited to the club's spring training as non-roster players.

Zahn was 2-2 in seven games for California last season. Bothered by tendinitis in his right shoulder, he was placed on the disabled list twice.

Mazda tourney opens today

MONTEGO BAY, Jamaica (AP) — Nancy Lopez and Australian Ben Thompson are the top two of 24 PGA and Senior tour golfers playing as teammates, who will be shooting for a $500,000, first-place prize in the $730,000 Mazda Champions tournament Friday and Saturday.

Twelve players from each of the tours are entered in the 36-hole, best-ball event on the Tryall Golf and Beach Club course, a 6,407-foot with a par of 71.

Thompson won a Senior tour-record nine events this year while Lopez captured five titles. Both players also led their respective tours in money winnings.

"I look forward to playing with Nancy," said the 56-year-old Thompson. "But because we were both the No. 1 players on our tours this year is no guarantee we'll be as successful as a team. I would like to think so though."

But for their lousy teams

Here's a list of players you would be seeing in the NFL's all-Pro Bowl

By DAVE GOLDBERG AP Football Writer

The National Football League ends this weekend and will soon set a spate of honors — All-Pro teams, most valuable players, Men of the Year and honorees selected by various products attempting to link their names with football.

"Since there's only one Refrigerator among the 1,260 players in the National Football League, many among them have been overlooked this season. What follows are some names to ponder:

GOOD PLAYERS KEPT OFF NATIONAL TELEVISION BY BAD TEAMS: Chris Hinton, Indianapolis; Jerry Butler, Buffalo; Jimmie Giles and James Wilder, Tampa Bay; Gerald Riggs, Atlanta; Mike Munchak, Houston; Rickey Jackson, New Orleans; Mike Quick, Wes Hopkins at Philadelphia.

Poor Wilder, who has carried the ball on 85 percent of Tampa's rushing plays (quarterback Steve Young is second), may drop from circulation before anybody gets a chance to see how good he is.

BEST LITTLE GUYS: Lionel (5-foot-6) James, San Diego; Joe (5-7) Morris, New York Giants; Stump (5-9) Mitchell, St. Louis; Terry Long (5-11, 272) Pittsburgh.

James, who leads the NFL in combined yardage and is really a sawed-off — Marcus Allen, never played in the United States Football League but he should have — they made a specialty of giving a chance to little guys.

Forris, the first Giant to run for more than 1,000 yards in 14 years, is a bowling ball who does more than knock over tempins.

Long, the Steelers' right guard, is the only starting offensive lineman in the NFL under 6 feet.

LEAST THOUGHT-OUT HOLDOUTS: Al Toon, New York Jets, who might have been Rookie of the Year had he not held out for a quarter of the season.

Earnest Gray, who sat out half the season, signed with the Giants for half of what he was offered a year ago, then was cut. He was claimed on waivers by St. Louis, which only had to pay him what the Giants did.

Todd Bell and Al Harris, who are sitting home and watching the Bears win their merry way to the Super Bowl.

REST PLAYERS-OBSERVED REFRIGERATORS IN MAJOR MEDIA MARKETS:

"You get used to being passed over," Lance Mehl of the New York Jets said when he was named to the Pro Bowl Wednesday for the first time in his six NFL seasons. "You start to feel like your place in life is set for you."

In his honor: Wilber Marshall, Jimbo Covert, Dennis Mackinnon, Steve McMichael, Jay Hilgenberg, Dave Duerson, Matt Suhey, Bears; Lionel Manuel, Terry Kinard, Jim Buttry, Gary Reasons, Chris Godfrey, Grant Melt, Mickey Shuler, Barry Bennett, Joe Flieck, Bill Pickard, Milten-Vann McElroy, Bill Eckard, Raiders; Jim Collins, Henry Ellard, Kent Hill, LeRoy Irvin, Doug Smith, Rams.

A COMPENDIUM OF OTHER OVERLOOKED PLAYERS: Steve Watson, Dennis Smith, Rolon Jones and most of the Denver Broncos except John Elway and Karl Mecklenburg; Brian Holloway, Craig Elmer, Steve Nelson, New England; Dan Fouts (believe it or not), San Diego; Deron Cherry, Kansas City; Darrin Green, Rich "Hot" Dexter Manley, Joe Griffin, Charles Mann, Washington; Joey Browner, Steve Jordan, Minnesota; Leonard Smith, St. Louis; Bob Golic, Clay Matthews, Eddie Johnson, Earnest Byner, Cleveland; Jim Frazier, Boomer Esiason (not for long), Brian Blades, Cincinnati; Mike Kreniweather, Pittsburgh; Keena Turner, Todd Shell, San Francisco; Keith Dorney, Ed Chadwick, Detroit; John Anderson, Mike Douglass, Paul Coffman, Green Bay.

OVERLOOKED DALLAS COWBOYS: contradiction in terms: Eugene Lockhart, Mike Renfro.

HIGHEST PAID USFL

REFUGEES: Bobby Hebert, New Orleans; Steve Young, Tampa Bay.

BEST USFL REFUGEES: Reggie White, Philadelphia; Kevin Mack, Cleveland; Gary Anderson, San Diego; Sean Landeta, New York Giants.

BEST RECEIVERS WITHOUT QUARTERBACKS: Louis Lipps and John Stallworth, Steelers; Henry Ellard, Rams; Jerry Butler, Bills.

MOST DANGEROUS PLAYERS OUTSIDE 50 YARDS: Louis Lipps, Pittsburgh; Ron Brown and Henry Ellard, Rams; Eddie Brown, Cincinnati; Wesley Walker, Jets.

MOST DANGEROUS PLAYERS INSIDE 20 YARDS: Ron Davenport, Miami; Larry Kinnebrew, Cincinnati; Tony Paige, Jets; Joe Morris, Giants; William Jerry, Chicago.

ALL-INJURED: Jim McMahon, Chicago; Freeman McManis, A.J. Duhe (retired), Miami.

ALL REFRIGERATOR: Guy (The Original) McIntyre, San Francisco; Pete Johnson (retired), Cincinnati-San Diego-Miami; Larry Kinnebrew, Cincinnati; Curtis ("Boo Boo") Rouse, Minnesota; Steve Moore, New England; Bruce Smith, Buffalo.

Calagni gets Arkansas starting nod

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Funny thing about Mark Calagni, he went from Arkansas running quarterback to Arkansas passing quarterback and never changed.

Under Lou Holtz, Calagni was behind strong-arm Brad Taylor. He started the season backing up sophomore Greg Thomas in Ken Hatfield's version of the wishbone.

In his only start of the year, Calagni, a fifth-year senior, rushed for 106 yards in a 30-13 victory over Oklahoma Sunday.

In Arizona State University in the Holiday Bowl.

"I always felt like I was a strong runner," he said. "It struck me as funny. I know if I got the opportunity, it could open some eyes. I don't know who determines what kind of runner you are."

Calagni said some people might think he is starting because it's his last game, but that's not true.

Hatfield said the coaches believe Calagni has earned the start with his play in the final two games of the season. In the final against SMU, Calagni threw a six-yard pass to Bobby Joe Edmonds on third-and-23 and then scored from the four as the Razorbacks rallied for a 15-9 victory. Ironically, he tried the same pass against Texas in the final minute and it was intercepted as the Longhorns hung on, 15-13. "That was a bad decision, a forced ball," he said. "If I could take back one play all that would be it."

Hatfield named Calagni as the starter more than a week ago.

"I've had the same philosophy whoever is in," Calagni said. "There aren't any plays we run with Greg that we don't run with me. Things went well for us with Greg starting, and me replacing him, and when things are going well, you don't make changes. But I feel my performances in the second half of the season have merited this start and it's going to be the biggest start of my career."

Thomas was injured on Arkansas' second offensive play against Houston and Calagni ran for 95 yards on 13 carries, and completed six of 11 passes for 167 yards and touchdowns in a 57-27 victory.

In 1983, he carried five times for 20 yards. He played sparingly as a wide receiver last year and in the spring, the coaches gave him a chance. "I wanted another chance at quarterback," he said. The fact that Thomas was expected to start made him work harder, Calagni said. "I just wanted to help the team any way that I could," he said. "That was my goal."

Calagni said he wanted to be a Razorback because he saw older brother Ron — an All-Southwest Conference quarterback in the late 1970s, perform at Arkansas. Following his brother was a two-edged sword. "Those were big shoes to fill, but the name opened some doors," he said.

"Any dreams of bowl glory? Just being a starter and winning the game," Calagni said. "Nothing personal."

Union attacks drugs with color books

NEW YORK (AP) — The executive director of the Major League Players Association said Thursday the union has decided to attack baseball's drug problem with an educational campaign directed at children that will include publication of a coloring book.

"The drug matter deserves serious thought with thorough, long-term approaches," Don Fehr said. "It doesn't lend itself to quick fixes. Quick fixes don't fix much for long."

"We have concluded that if a meaningful message is to be made, the message must be sent to children, the people who will be facing the problem in the next few years, that drugs are bad and to stay away from them."

Fehr said he has agreed with a publisher to a series of books with respect to drug choice.

The first publication, a coloring book titled "It's OK To Say No To Drugs," will be available in February, Fehr said. All royalties from the book will be turned over to drug education, prevention, treatment and research programs, the union chief said.

The union said it also had agreed to a "pilot program" directed at elementary school students, specifically fifth and sixth graders, to talk about the problem. The first such program will involve members of the world champion Kansas City Royals, visiting students in the Shawnee Mission, Kan. school district.

Fehr said the players' association executive board decided on the actions at the first time it happened this month, responding to baseball's termination of the joint drug agreement, which was announced during the World Series. "Joint effort (with management) would be preferable," Fehr said, "but if it's not to be, it's not to be."

The players' association remains opposed to mandatory drug testing and has advised its members that it will fight testing clauses that clubs have been negotiating in newly negotiated long-term contracts.

"The Association has the right to challenge all contract clauses," Fehr said. "We regard them (mandatory testing clauses) as unenforceable and we are prepared to litigate the issue."

A pending National Labor Relations Board complaint of unfair labor practices filed after Commissioner Peter Ueberroth appealed during September directly to the players to accept testing, has been amended to include the contract clauses, Fehr said.

"On a fundamental basis, that (mandatory testing) approach is inconsistent with the basic values that this society is based on, including the right to be considered innocent until proven guilty. The right to be free from unreasonable searches and seizures and the right not to testify against yourself. That's not the message to send. Those are not the values America stands for. We will not participate in sending those messages."

"One of the lessons we want to teach is a fundamental civics lesson, involving the principles on which this country is based. Baseball players were Americans before they got to the big leagues. They will be Americans after they leave the big leagues. And they are Americans while they are there, sharing in those values."

Florida State receiver says he was 'set up'

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — A Tallahassee University receiver who has been declared ineligible for his final college football game because he sold complimentary tickets to a Seminoles game says he may have been set up by boosters of arch-rival Florida who wanted to embarrass his school.

Hassan Jones, Florida State's leading receiver this season, said he was acting as a go-between when he sold 12 tickets to the game. Florida State-Florida game for $100 each. He said he did it as a favor to Robin Fisher, a former Florida player who works for a real estate firm in Melbourne, Fla.

Jones' senior was suspended Wednesday by Florida State Athletic Director Itoole Ingram, meaning he will miss the Seminoles' Dec. 30 season-ending game against Oklahoma State in the Gator Bowl.

"From other information I've gotten, I think there's a possibility I've been set up," Jones told the Tampa Tribune. "I know this is going to be a damper on me, but it's not indicative of me. It really isn't."

Players are allowed only four complimentary tickets to each game, but Jones said he obtained more through three teammates. He refused to identify the teammates, but said profits were to be returned to the other players.

NCAA rules allow complimentary tickets to be used only by students or a player's relatives. Boost clubs may make players say who gets their tickets and those who receive them must sign a receipt.

Some of the tickets signed for the tickets were University of Florida booster Fred Sutton's wife and child. Several other people who received the tickets were Florida athletic contributors or family members, the Tallahassee Democrat newspaper reported Thursday.

Jones said he thinks he may have been framed by Florida boosters in a scheme to embarrass Florida State. He said the first time it happened to me, but if you want to know if it goes on everywhere, the answer is yes," Jones said. "Players selling complimentary tickets happens."

"If people get set up, doesn't happen every season," said Jones, who led the Seminoles with 34 receptions for 738 yards this season and is expected to be an early-round selection in next year's National Football League draft.

Fisher and Sutton said Jones had not been set up.

"Basically what he said was true. I did buy some tickets from him for my clients," Fisher told the Tampa Tribune. "I'd rather not say how many. I didn't set him up. I'm really sorry about the whole thing."

Ingram said he received an anonymous call before the Florida State-Florida game saying a group planned to approach Florida State players to try and buy complimentary tickets. The athletic director said he proved guilty: The tickets were warned players about rules regarding scalping.

'A bad workman quarrels with the man who calls him that'.

Today's South took active measures to keep East off lead. Unfortunately his missing an extra effort is what did him in.

'No you don't,' exclaimed East. He overtook the club jack to push through a diamond, and the defenders took four tricks and a plus score.

Later, after drawing two rounds of trump with his queen and jack, South crosses to dummy in clubs and discards his third club on dummy's heart ace.

South refused the first heart and won the next with dummy's ace. Trumps were drawn in three rounds and a club was led to dummy's ace.

Las Posadas restages 1st Christmas search

BY TERRY RICH HARTLEY
Times-News correspondent

cut through winter's chill Sunday evening at Twin Falls City Park when the Guadalupe Center presents the Las Posadas Ceremony. Directed by Father Juan Garatea and Sister Rose Mary Boessen, the cultural event will provide an opportunity for viewers to see — even participate — in a venerable Mexican tradition.

According to Garatea, Las Posadas, which means inns, lodges or shelters in English, is a tradition that originated in Spain, spread to Mexico, then was brought to the

Las Posadas participants sing requests for shelter from outside carrying Mary and Joseph, as others inside reply in song

Magic Valley by Mexican migrants. The tradition came from Spain with missionaries, but in Spain the tradition is lost," says Garatea. A Basque native of Spain, Garatea says the songs involved in Las Posadas are still known there in both Spanish and Basque languages; however, the nine-day ceremony that actually makes up the celebration no longer exists in the old country.

Garatea dates the New World adaptation of Las Posadas back to 1531, ten years after conquistadores came to present-day Mexico. "It's still alive in Mexico," he says. "The Mexicans in the United States value old customs, and after 450 years they still celebrate it."

He explains that Sunday's ceremony in City Park is but one of nine evenings from Dec. 16 until Christmas Eve that the local celebration actually takes place. Each night is symbolic of Joseph and Mary's trek from Nazareth to Bethlehem, and a request for shelter at a stranger's door.

On each night a group forms at the Guadalupe Center, then travels to a chosen person's house to knock on the door and begin a singing request for entrance. Sung in Spanish, the request is translated to this:

*In the name of Heaven
We ask for a place to stay.
Because my beloved wife
Cannot walk any more.*

*From inside, the answer is curt:
This is not an inn!
Continue ahead.
I cannot open because you may be a rogue.*

Later, still beseeching entrance into the shelter, the outsiders sing:

*We come tired
all the way from Nazareth.
I am a carpenter;
my name is Joseph.*

But, the insiders are firm:

*The name is not important to me!
Let me sleep.
Because as I have said we are not going to open!*

*Happy the house
that embraces this day

According to Boessen, the group representing those inside Sunday evening will be in the bandshell, while others will stand below and sing for entrance. "Anyone wanting to join in accompanying Mary and Joseph and the donkey will be given candles," says Boessen, making it clear that the event is open to everybody.

Explaining the symbolism of the candles, Garatea points out that they represent that "Jesus is the light" and "Jesus is the way." He especially likes to see children join in the celebration and "points out" that in Mexico this is the celebration that ends with children smashing a pinata, a figure traditionally made of clay or papier mache and filled with toys and candy.

"There is even symbolism for the pinata," he explains. "It is the devil, or bad habits. And the children are blindfolded to show that in this life we are like blind people." Garatea says that when the pinata is shattered, the gifts that pour out represent the grace of God.

During Sunday's event, Garatea will give a reading in Spanish and Boessen will then give a summary in English. A prayer will end the formal ceremony, followed by hot chocolate, cookies and other snacks instead of a pinata.

Also scheduled for Sunday will be the final lighting of the Advent candles and the donkey will be given candles. The bandshell events will begin at 5 p.m.

Ketchum artist debuts at gallery

SUN VALLEY — Ketchum resident Minna Casser will open her first painting exhibit at the Hardy Gallery Dec. 27 at 5 p.m. A half hour later, Casser will also begin a reading of her own poetry. Casser majored in art at Trinity College, in Hartford, Conn., under the tutelage of George Chaplin. She has also studied in a Sarah Lawrence College program for two terms in the south of France, where she was shut away in a tiny village away from the distractions of civilization.

Minna Casser's exhibit will include this painting of mountains north of Ketchum

According to gallery owner Charlotte Noble Green, Casser's paintings are rarely of an immediately recognizable form, which the artist feels dictates to the observer — what he should feel. Instead, she presents abstracted subtle ideas, allowing the viewer to make his own response and even feel new emotions each time he sees them.

Green attributes that to Casser's merging of colors. "Her acrylics and pastels tend to be bright and vivid," says Green. "This is combined with a sense of space and timelessness, which is especially apparent in her aerial landscapes."

"However, this depth of feeling is also true with her flower pastels, because however small or large the subject that she chooses, it is explored in the same detail to make size unimportant."

Green points out that Casser has a unique quality in that she has managed to transcend artistic barriers and express her individuality through both mediums, paint and poetry. "The bold yet subtle paintings combined with the freshness of Minna's poems will prove to be an exciting evening," says Green.

Teen youngest touring with AFB

FILER — Among those on stage at the College of Southern Idaho Fine Arts Center during last night's performance of "The Nutcracker" was Jennifer Liby, the granddaughter of Jack and Marinette Jordan of Filer.

Liby holds a special place with the American Festival Ballet in that, at age 17, she is the youngest performer touring with the group.

The daughter of Tom Liby and Karen Jordan Liby of Eagle, she began her ballet training at age seven with Lloyd Carlton of Boise. Then, by winning several scholarships, she was able to continue dance study during the summers.

During three of those seasons at the Summer Dance Laboratory on the Whitman College campus in Walla Walla, Wash., she worked with Barbara Remington of Portland, Ore., who is touring with the group.

with an aunt and uncle, Liby was able to continue study classical ballet under Remington.

She notes her current ability to work with the American Festival Ballet directly to those studies in Portland. There, she became an apprentice with the Pacific Ballet Theatre, appearing as a soloist in the Merillon variation of "The Nutcracker."

Later, she returned home to dance with the American Festival Ballet and was chosen by artistic director Marius Zirra to dance "The Nutcracker" roles of the doll in the party scene, the Merillon, the Waltz of the Flowers, and in the Snow Scene.

"It takes a lot of dedication," she says, noting that her work has excluded a social life. "But, it's worth moving to Portland where she lived."

Disney firm says oui to park in France

BURBANK, Calif. (AP) — Walt Disney Productions on Wednesday signed an agreement with France to set up an entertainment park in Paris suburb in a project that will mean thousands of jobs, billions of dollars in investment and increased tourism.

Prime Minister Laurent Fabius of France signed the agreement Tuesday with the president of an American company, Michael D. Eisner, for the establishment of a theme park in Marne-La-Vallée, 30 miles east of Paris.

France was competing for the site of the park on the Paris-Orly Express between Barcelona, Spain and Atlanta, Ga.

The park, the fourth outdoor entertainment complex of Disney Properties, would be sited near after Disneyland in California with a resort and recreation complex similar to Disney World in Florida. It is expected to open in 1990 or 1991, said a Disney statement.

Disneyland opened in 1955 in Anaheim, Disney World in Orlando in 1971 and Tokyo Disneyland in 1983.

Negotiations will begin immediately on specifics of the project.

"We are hopeful that our current negotiations will result in a definitive agreement to bring Mickey Mouse and the Magic Kingdom to Wall, Disney France, and the European Community," said Eisner.

Marne-La-Vallée emerged as the stand-out location after about a dozen sites were considered. See DISNEY on Page D2.

Sunday's celebration of Las Posadas, a traditional Hispanic ceremony, is the fourth and final community event of the Christmas in City Park celebration.

The public, especially children, are welcome to join in the public dramatic re-creation of Joseph's and Mary's search for shelter in Bethlehem.

DJ overworks reindeer song

DAVENPORT, Iowa (AP) — A disc jockey who played the song "Grandma Got Run Over By A Reindeer" 27 times in less than 3½ hours will be back on the job Friday after promising to behave himself, officials at the radio station said Wednesday.

The decision to reinstate Jack Daniels came after WLLR received hundreds of calls — some from England and Ireland — on his behalf, said Ray Randall, program director.

Daniels was placed on indefinite suspension Tuesday after he had continued to play the song in defiance of Randall's orders, said station manager Larry Rosmilso.

Daniels said he decided to play the song to get himself and his listeners in the Christmas spirit.

Randall said Daniels will be on probation for 90 days and has received a reprimand in addition to the two-day suspension.

"WLLR management considering different facets of the incident decided it was not malicious in intent and there was no actual damage to the station and listeners," Randall said. "Therefore, we feel the reprimand and probation is enough."

Actor Christopher Lambert stalks a Paris subway in a scene from his new film 'Subway,' directed by Luc Besson

'Tarzan' actor swings a new image

Los Angeles Times

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. — After playing Tarzan in a big-budget movie, an actor was offered only one type of role.

"Lots of half-naked persons," said Christopher Lambert, the Frenchman who played the jungle hero in the last year's "Greystoke: The Legend of Tarzan, Lord of the Apes."

"I had to get rid of that image quite quickly," he says. "It seems to have succeeded. In his new film, 'Subway,' he appears in a wild punk-cut and plays 'an optimistic nut, what I call a cross between The Little Prince and Mad Max.'"

In his suite at the Beverly Wilshire Hotel, Lambert certainly didn't look like Tarzan. He was pale and slender, had a two-day stubble of beard and wore small, round eyeglasses, which are necessary because he can't see without them.

Born in New York where his French father was a United Nations diplomat, Christopher Lambert grew up in Geneva and was repeatedly expelled from schools for non-conformist behavior. Fired from a stockbroker job in Paris, the young man studied acting at the Paris Conservatoire and played a few film roles.

His life changed when he tried out, among hundreds of others, for the lead in a new version of Tarzan by the director of "Chariots of Fire."

Lambert, astonished when he was chosen, had to undergo six months of training to muscle out his body and improve his English.

"Greystoke" proved to be something less than a smash hit. Critics were generally favorable toward the young star, however, he said. "None of the reviews were average, they either said it was great or they didn't like it. The same was true of 'Subway,' in France."

Lambert spent many months publicizing the film in the United States and around the world, then returned to Paris to plot a career.

"I realized I had to play something as far away from 'Greystoke' as possible," he said. "In the first picture, 'Words and Music,' I play a street-life character who has a romance with Catherine Deneuve. Then 'Subway,' as a man who is always extreme, never in the middle."

"Subway," which is being released by Island Alive in this country, begins with a chase through the Paris streets and its subway, the Metro. Lambert, wearing spiked white hair and a tuxedo, is pursued by a bunch of toughs also in tuxedos.

He and Isabelle Adjani play "star-crossed lovers in a comic-book universe populated by bizarre characters." It is the second film by Luc Besson, who was acclaimed for his "Le Dernier Combat."

Lambert next stars in "Highlander" with Sean Connery in Scotland, London and New York.

"I play an immortal, 400 years old," said the 28-year-old actor. "The story takes place in Scotland and New York. So I had to have a light Scottish accent first, then close to an Atlantic coast accent for the modern parts." In conversation his English is near-perfect, with only a hint of his Gallic background.

How has his life changed since "Greystoke?"

"I don't live any differently."

Senator debuts on Zappa album

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Slade Gorton, R-Wash., has made an unexpected rock-music debut on a new album by Frank Zappa, with whom he clashed recently at a hearing on rock music lyrics.

The album, entitled "Frank Zappa Meets the Mothers of Prevention," features a cartoon of the Bill of Rights being fed to a meat-grinder and denunciations of "video fundamentalists who use attacks on rock music in their attempt to transform America into a nation of check-malling nincompoops."

In September, Zappa testified before a Senate Commerce Committee hearing sparked by a group of Washington, D.C., women who complained about what they say are obscene and violence-provoking rock lyrics.

During the hearing, Gorton told Zappa, "I found your statement to be boorish, incredibly and insensitively insulting. You could manage to give the First Amendment a bad name if I felt you had the slightest great idea."

It was "Gortons' students at American University that 'it would get teenagers to start reading again.'" snorting, laughing sounds representing Zappa's response.

Zappa's children, Moon and Dweezil, also appear on the record.

Gorton said he has no regrets over the exchange with Zappa, but is disturbed that it has gotten more publicity than other things he has done in the Senate.

"It's hard to deal with the deficit on the so-called news," Gorton said.

The campaign against rock lyrics has had some success. Some record companies have put a label, "Parental Guidance: Explicit Lyrics" on certain albums.

But the movement is pressing for other concessions, such as restricting viewing hours on television music videos and publishing song verses on the covers of albums.

Conservation group slates poetry contest

SALT LAKE CITY — All poets are invited to participate in a new competition sponsored by the Utah Wilderness Association, a conservation organization.

The UWA is requesting that unpublished poems related to the theme of wilderness — its preservation, life, values and spiritual nature — be entered.

A prize of $50 will be awarded to the winning poet. The winning poem and the top five honorable mentions will be reprinted in the "UWA Review."

Poems must not exceed 40 lines, may be in any style and must be limited to the aforementioned themes. No more than three poems may be entered by any poet, and each poem must be accompanied by an entry fee of $2.

To guarantee anonymity, the sponsor asks for two copies; one with the author's name, address and phone number in the top right corner; a second with only the poem.

All poems must be postmarked by Jan. 15, 1986, and sent to: Utah Wilderness Association, 455 E. 400 S. B-40, Salt Lake City, Utah 84111.

Disney

250 proposed sites were evaluated. The site is within 15 minutes of the two major airports serving Paris, and a two mile extension of the Paris Metro system that is planned would connect Euro Disneyland with the main commuter rail system of Paris, Elsnor said.

Disney will seek qualified investors in France, other European countries and throughout the world to form the Euro Disneyland owner company in which Disney Productions also will be an equity investor.

Disney also will receive royalties based on gross revenues from admissions, rides, food, merchandise and contributions of participating companies.

At the opening, the complex will employ about 10,000 people.

Spain reacted with disappointment to the decision, saying Disney failed to "take into account the tourist reality in Europe."

Spain draws an "estimated" 40 million tourists annually while France attracts 34 million, according to published reports.

U.S. Ambassador Joe Rodgers reportedly played a key role in bringing together the interested parties. Rodgers had a hand in the United States recent awarding of a large contract to France for a military communications system.

Paul Seramy, top local official for the Seine and Marne region where the park will be located, stressed that the Americans were not trying to "colonize their method."

He said that Disney executives were "above all interested in creating a park which would draw European visitors."

Civil rights leaders receive 1st royalties from record

ATLANTA (AP) — Steven Van Zandt, who organized the anti-apartheid "Sun City" recording on Thursday presented the first royalties to civil rights leaders helping South African political prisoners.

Checks totaling $50,000 were presented to Coretta Scott King, widow of the Rev. Martin Luther King Jr., on behalf of Artists United Against Apartheid, the all-star assembly of musicians who made the record.

The money, representing a $25,000 advance on the record's royalties and a matching gift from Manhattan Records, which released "Sun City," will go to the Africa Fund, a non-profit organization which will use the funds to help political prisoners and their families, exiles and educational programs.

Van Zandt, the former guitarist for Bruce Springsteen's E Street Band who is known as "Little Steven," put together the "Sun City" project. It features rock, jazz and soul artists singing in protest of performers who have appeared in Sun City, an opulent resort in South Africa.

The musician said he was moved to make the record after visiting South Africa and being appalled by that nation's policy of racial separation. The proceeds of the record, and a related book and videotape, are to be directed to the anti-apartheid movement.

Van Zandt was joined at City Hall by fellow musicians Jimmy Cliff and Darlene Love, as well as Mrs. Clara Janny Andrew Young and state Sen. Julian Bond.

Van Zandt said the record's roster, including Springsteen, Bob Dylan, Run-DMC and Herbie Hancock, has something for listeners of all racial groups, and urged radio stations to give the song a chance.

A 52-minute video of "Sun City," including performance of the song and a behind the scenes look at its making, would be released Friday, Van Zandt said.

Columbia makes U.S. composer

NEW YORK (AP) — American composer David Diamond has been granted Columbia University's William Schuman Award, a $50,000 prize for lifetime achievement in American musical composition.

The award recognizes "the lifetime achievement of an American composer whose works have been widely performed and generally acknowledged to be of lasting significance."

Jorge Mester, music director of the Pasadena Symphony was awarded the university's 1985 Dilson Conductor's Award for his contributions to the advancement of American music. The award carries a $1,000 prize.

Mester was cited for his "continuous and enthusiastic" championing of works by American composers."

Rockabilly guitarist Carl Perkins dreams of Beatle reunion

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Carl Perkins, whose guitar playing left a great impression on the Beatles, would like to reunite the three remaining members of the Fabulous Four in a performance.

Perkins, the singer-songwriter, guitarist best known for his 1956 hit "Blue Suede Shoes," was invited by George Harrison and Ringo Starr to play together on an upcoming Home Box Office TV special in London.

However, Paul McCartney was recording at the time and said he couldn't participate in the October taping of "Carl Perkins and Friends: A Rockabilly Session."

"It was exciting to get that close to it," Perkins said. "It's never too late. I'll try again."

Perkins, whose hits "Honey Don't" and "Matchbox" were recorded by the Beatles, said Harrison and Starr played together on the show the first time in 12 years. Starr also appeared in a music video with McCartney.

"All three just will not publicly play," Perkins said. "There is a backstage there. There are some business reasons. I don't know and the world doesn't know."

The fourth Beatle, John Lennon, was shot to death outside his New York apartment building on Dec. 8, 1980, by Mark David Chapman. The group split in 1970.

The 53-year-old Perkins met the Beatles in 1964 when the Liverpool four became musical legends in the United States and ultimately around the world.

Perkins' lightning-quick style on the guitar influenced their playing. "I'm humbled when I hear people like Eric Clapton and the Beatles say, 'You're the reason I'm holding a guitar,'" Perkins said in an interview. "It weakens my old knees. I don't hear myself in their playing. I do in some early Beatles songs, but that's not so much. Their rockabilly sound wasn't as simple as I thought it was."

Over the years, the Beatles and Perkins have stayed in touch. One year for Perkins' birthday, McCartney sent him a cake shaped like a full-sized guitar, reproduced down to the frets. A few years ago Perkins wrote a song, "My Old Friend," in honor of McCartney.

Perkins played with Starr and Stevie Wonder on McCartney's 1981 album, "Tug of War."

The tall, broad-shouldered Perkins, who is white, grew up picking cotton in Lake County, Tenn., where he listened closely to music sung by black workers as he labored in the fields with them.

"I can hear 'em to this day," says Perkins, a salt-and-pepper style of rockabilly. "I was basically white lyrics with black rhythm."

As a youngster, he used to retreat behind the children house to pretend he was singing on stage at the Grand Ole Opry. His family was so poor that they could afford batteries for the radio only when the cotton had been picked and sold.

"They'd use it to tell us we needed more juice when it was turned off," Perkins recalled. "We kept it real low."

He wrote "Blue Suede Shoes" after hearing someone tell his date at a high school prom not to step on his blue suede shoes. Perkins went home to his dark, housing project in Jackson, Tenn., and wrote the song on a brown pointie sock.

His recording of it sold more than 2 million copies. The song made more money when Elvis Presley cut the tune a few months later.

Before Presley recorded the song, Perkins was seriously hurt in a traffic accident, spent a year recovering. He later spent 15 years battling alcoholism, saying he finally overcame it "through the supreme power of God" by "hurling his last whiskey bottle into the Pacific Ocean in 1967 near Encino, Calif."

Along the way, he wrote "Daddy Sang-Blas," which was a hit for Johnny Cash, and played in Cash's band from the mid-1950s to the mid-1970s.

He likes today's rock groups, such as the Stray Cats and the Blasters who, he says, have returned the rock to its roots. "I like their flavor," he says. "It's just what I needed."

He's just completed an album with Jerry Lee Lewis, Cash and Roy Orbison with the working title "The College of Rock 'n Roll, Class of '55." He also has an album out called "Carl Perkins."

He envisions another television special, possibly with McCartney, Fats Domino, Linda Ronstadt and Wonder.

Carl Perkins' influence on rock music is legendary

Mississippi finally recognizes blues

LOS ANGELES Times

HOLLY SPRINGS, Miss. — When Rust Cole held the first blues and gospel folk festival here last year, the gospel-lovers could claim the grounds fast enough when the gospel sets were over and the blues artists took their turn on stage.

"The gospel fans brought of the blues as the 'old' music," said Sylvester Oliver, festival humanities chairman at the tiny black college and the festival producer. "They considered it sinful to even listen to it."

"If they did then they certainly don't mind last year's festival, the gospel lovers not only stayed through all the blues sets, they were observed laughing at the bawdy jokes of Hezekiah and the House Rockers, a Natchez blues band."

And when sultry blues singer Lynn White emceed her way through a number called "Slow and Easy" in a silky red dress slit to her thighs, a deacon from a local church was so transported that he repeatedly stood up and held his arms in line to the music and then fell from his seat.

But the gospel lovers of Holly Springs aren't the only Mississippians who have changed their tune about the blues. All over the Magnolia State, people are realizing what the rest of the world has known for a long time: that the blues are one of the greatest forms of musical expression America has produced.

And now there are plenty of signs that Mississippians are happy to have the blues. "Blues festivals" are popping out like cotton bolls under a Delta sun.

A Mississippi record company is emerging as the biggest blues label in the country.

The University of Mississippi, once a bastion of segregation, now houses the largest blues archive in the world and publishes a Living Blues magazine, the "Bible" of blues aficionados.

The Delta city of Clarksdale boasts a one-of-a-kind blues museum.

And one of the most popular shows on the state stage is a two-hour blues program broadcast each Saturday night.

"Mississippi has finally come of age in recognizing the value of the blues and of the contribution of its native sons and daughters," blues giants like B.B. King, Muddy Waters and Hawlin Wolf — to the blues tradition," said William Ferris, director of the University of Mississippi's Center for the Study of Southern Culture.

Veteran blues lovers elsewhere are very likely to find this exciting.

Cities such as Memphis, Chicago and Los Angeles have long been havens for the blues — Memphis for so long, in fact, that it boasts of being the "Home of the Blues." The Newport Jazz Festival featured blues performers as far back as 1960.

British and French music scholars were among the first to study the blues formally. Germany, Sweden and Holland all publish blues magazines. And Japan has such avid blues fans that they have begun reissuing some of the classic blues recordings.

But Mississippi is, after all, the legendary birthplace of the blues. It was in the Mississippi Delta — a 200-mile swath of lush, table-top-flat cotton land stretching from Memphis to Vicksburg — that black sharecroppers and day laborers first fashioned the blues, before the turn of the century, out of the poverty and suffering of their everyday lives.

Sebastian stars in syndicated video

NEW YORK (AP) — Music video mania meets nostalgia this month in "Deja View," a syndicated one-hour special with John Sebastian, the former Lovin' Spoonful lead singer, as host.

The program will be broadcast by 100 stations within a three-week period starting Saturday. A similar show is planned for March. Sebastian, now 41, was with the Lovin' Spoonful from 1965 to 1969, and in the Blueyums and the Even Dozen Jug Band before that.

In the show, new music videos are created to follow the stories, moods and emotions of 1960s hits, utilizing some oddie-but-goodie faces whose careers recently have been dormant.

For example, Sly Stone will be featured in a music video for the 1965 hit "Everyday People" by Sly and the Family Stone. In another, Brian Wilson of the Beach Boys has a starring role reprising the group's "Don't Worry Baby."

Los Angeles Times

HOLLYWOOD — Something's wrong.

Item No. 1: The first 10 inductees in the new record industry-sponsored Rock and Roll Hall of Fame have been announced in New York and six are black: Chuck Berry, James Brown, Ray Charles, Sam Cooke, Fats Domino and Little Richard. Other inductees are the Everly Brothers, Buddy Holly, Jerry Lee Lewis and Elvis Presley.

Item 2: New Musical Express, a respected British rock journal, has just published a list of its all-time 100 LPs. Seventeen of the Top 50 are by black artists or by integrated bands led by black artists.

Yet black music continues to be so persona non grata on rock radio that rock stations resist playing it even though it features such white rock radio favorites as Brownie. U2's Bono Howson and Pat Benatar.

The argument here isn't discrimination; given the sales of Michael Jackson, Lionel Richie and Prince, it's hard to argue that blacks don't have opportunity in the record business and aren't exposed to it. The problem is the disconcerting absence of black music on rock stations is caused by — and, in turn, adds to — cultural and musical ignorance.

Atlantic Records' marvelous new seven-album retrospective of the label's black music achievements is in part a blueprint of the role blacks played in defining rock.

The songs and styles in this 186-track collection influenced virtually every white rock artist of note from Elvis Presley and the Beatles through John Fogerty and Talking Heads. His music all rock fans should hear.

Dr. Demento champions 'mad music'

The Washington Post

Most of the time, he's mild-mannered Barry Hansen.

Dress him up in a tuxedo and put him near a turntable, though, and he's transformed into Dr. Demento, champion-of-"mad-music-and-crazy-comedy." For 15 years he's been hosting "The Dr. Demento Show," a radio program syndicated to 180 stations around the country, parlaying an enormous record collection (200,000 discs) and an encyclopedic knowledge of pop music into an empire of audio zanyness. Its latest manifestation: Dr. Demento Presents the Greatest Novelty Records of All Time, a six-record set collecting 80 of said tunes from the last 40 years under one woofer.

Since many, in fact most, of these records are hard to find in retail stores, Hansen's yearning project has about it a sense of mission: He's taken novelty records of the old and injected them back into the mainstream.

"I'm trying to raise the profile of the genre," he says, "to give it, dare I say, some dignity. I want people to realize that this is a particular type of entertainment. It has a history to it. It hasn't just popped up here-and-there now and then. There are people who are great artists who have worked in this field."

Spike Jones, for one: the master of musical mayhem, head of the Musical Depreciation Society, Barry Hansen has set a typical A&M-style time limit (a few months older than Bob Dylan, a few months older than Garrison Keillor) when his father brought home a copy of Jones' "Cocktails for Two." That was it. From that moment, he was in. By age 9, he had already accumulated an impressive library.

'Africa' proffers crumbs to culture-starved cinemaphiles

By SHEILA BENSON
Los Angeles Times

HOLLYWOOD — We are starving for new, for civilized, films, for the play of intelligent minds in movies about something other than a frame of mind, "Out of Africa" with its intense civility, its irreproachable landscapes, its faintly doomed-love story, and its twin superstars seem to be just the thing for famished culture mavens at Christmas.

Unfortunately, and through no fault of Meryl Streep, there does not seem to be enough electricity generated out there in Africa to power a love story 2½ hours long. Sydney Pollack's lush production takes us to unspoiled Kenya in 1914 with the aristocratic Karen Dinesen (Meryl Streep) and her Danish storyteller of the first order, and enough of a snob to marry for a title. Actually, her marriage in Nairobi only hours after she has arrived is not to the man she loves, who spurned her, but to his twin brother, Briliken (Klaus Maria Brandauer, full of quicksilver charm, plays both brothers.)

It is an amiable trade-off, the Dinesen family money for the Briliken baronage. (Frank was Karen Bilken's nom de plume.) Each knows just what the other wants from the marriage, although when Bror protests that the family money bought the title, but not him — just Luedike's tart script has Karen riposte by ordering her servant to "Fetch some wine for my lover's brother."

Luedike has been equally deft in sketching in the inevitable homesickness of these Brits abroad, as one of them feasts on Karen's perfume, thinking for a moment it is one he remembers rather well. Ah. No. Very nice, but not the same.

With enviable vitality, Karen sets about to establish a coffee plantation, a job her husband decides he is eminently ill-suited for. His talents lie more toward womanizing and the hunt. (And later there is the matter of his most vile gift to her, from which she never really recovered.)

For her part, Karen occasionally entertains a pair of Englishmen, the delightful Berkeley (Michael Kitchen) and the elusive Denis Finch Hatton (Robert Redford). There is one magical evening when Finch Hatton demands a story and Karen begins to unroll one magically, until the candles gutter in their holders and the three repair to the fireplace for the end of it all. But if we are in a well-defined family magical, perfectly appointed past, and Stephen Grimes's production design, Milton Candrey's costumes and David Watkins's photography make it just that, where a level of intelligence is prized, then where is the problem? Parity is in this benighted year for movies.

It comes from casting and from a sense of place. Streep may convince us utterly that she is in love with Africa, but our views of it are a little too stately to really feel the place. Consequently, we are stirred the way a really well-presented travel film stirs us, enough to inquire about group rates but not passionately.

The real cipher, strangely enough, is Redford's performance. Finch Hatton, part great British dandy, part Oxford don and elusive as that damned Pippernel was the most English of Englishmen. Quite correctly, Luedike has given her the speech cadences and rhythm of British speech, which Redford does not even attempt.

But beyond accents is the matter of how much Redford wishes to give to the role. Frankly, he was more impassioned for director Pollack 12 years ago in "The Way We Were," or actually, "Impassioned" in just the same wary manner, and these are two very different men.

Streep can pretty nearly do anything; she can certainly make all the facets of the infinitely complex Baroness Bilken sparkle like crystal, but she cannot provide all the heat in a love affair and, regretfully, that is what she is left to do.

There is also the nature of their romance, on too rarefied a plain for the rest of us. On his drop-in visits, never announced, Finch-Hatton would not discuss the problems of her plantation, which were immense. "We never spoke of anything that was real or ordinary," Karen confides. Fine. Then what did they talk about? Having taken us this far into the ozone between these two, we are at least entitled to a snatch of this unreal, out-of-the-ordinary conversation for our 2½ hours.

PG-13 Rating Introduced

A new rating category is in place as of July 1. This new category is inserted between the current PG and R ratings. It is designated as "PG-13." Parents are strongly cautioned to give special guidance to children under 13. Some material may be inappropriate for young children.

The revised five-category system of the voluntary film industry rating program is now as follows:

- G General Audiences, all ages admitted.
- PG Parental guidance suggested. Some material may not be suitable for children.
- PG-13 Parents are strongly cautioned to give special guidance to children under 13. Some material may be inappropriate for young children.
- R Restricted, under-17 requires accompanying parent or adult guardian.
- X No one under 17 admitted.

All films rated after July 1 will be given ratings under the new five-category system.

'Rocky IV' lumbers with pneumatic plot

TWIN FALLS — Following are capsule reviews of films currently playing in the Magic Valley. Ratings are by the Motion Picture Association of America and the Los Angeles Times. Opinions are by Los Angeles Times reviewers.

BETTER OFF DEAD (PG). When you are a teen-ager, love is a comedy of errors, an itching in your heart that you just cannot scratch. This goody adolescent angst is what fuels "Better Off Dead," an inventive, odd-ball gem, that takes the teen-comedy genre off the endangered species list. Marking the debut of 25-year-old writer-director Savage Steve Holland, the movie shows off a nutty visual-imagination that lovingly re-creates all of the worst traumas of teen life. COMMANDO (R). With biceps the size of watermelons and shoulders broad enough to bridge a small river, Col. John Matrix (Arnold Schwarzenegger) looks like a Marvel Comics hero sprung to life. He is the incredible Hollywood Hulk, and a perfect fit for this slam-bang-adventure fantasy. Full of spectacular stunts and shoot-outs, it is a gory crowd pleaser, directed with jolting efficiency by low-budget veteran Mark L. Lester. It is also the beneficiary of the spunky presence of Rae Dawn Chong.

ROCKY IV (PG). Elephantine

vacuousness is the shape of the new "Rocky," which is bigger, scotchier, slower, more preposterous and infinitely emptier than the earlier three. Filled with contempt for everything Russian, and centering around a match between Rocky and a blond Soviet giant pumped with steroids, the film flip-flops at the last second, allowing hope for change in individuals of the two countries, while saying in its other 98 percent that the Soviets are simplistic animals "worthy" only of "our contempt.

SANTA CLAUS: THE MOVIE (PG). A multimillion-dollar fairytale, in the spirit of the old Disney classics, that tries to persuade us of the reality of Santa Claus, his elves and the North Pole and, thanks to screenwriter David Newman, very hard does. He has a harder time convincing us about Manhattan, the U.S. Senate and modern TV.) John Lithgow (as a sneeringly evil toy manufacturer) and Dudley Moore (a go-getting elf) are good, but director Jonnet Szwarc's approach is too flat and functional to imbue the movie with wonder.

LaPierre delves into squalor, hope in book on Calcutta

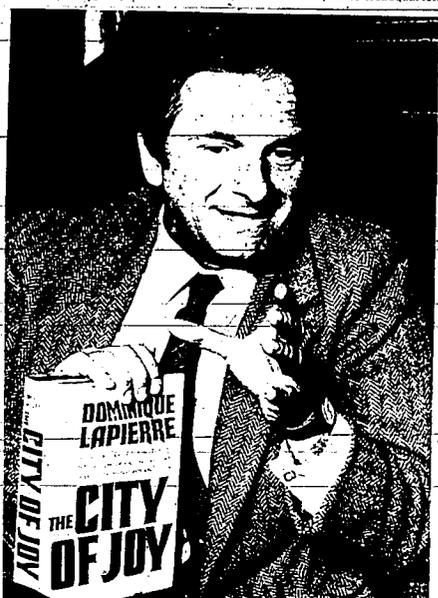

DALLAS (AP) — Of all the places Dominique LaPierre has described in dramatic detail, it is a full-fledged, mucky, overcrowded slum in Calcutta that has won his heart.

The co-author of such best-sellers as "Paris, Burning" and "O, Jerusalem," LaPierre took a sabbatical from Larry Collins, his writing partner of 20 years, to delve into the contradictory life of squalor and hope in the Calcutta slum of Anand Nagar.

"The City of Joy" (Doubleday, $17.95), the English translation of Anand Nagar, is LaPierre's first solo effort in several years, and involved his most intensive research.

He lived in the slum for brief periods during two years, and found people who kept their dignity, humanity and rich culture in the most horrible of circumstances.

There were constant celebrations, he said, with festive rituals for both the important and the mundane,

Dominique LaPierre did live-in research for solo project

'Contact' explores universal rapport

Reviewed by LARRY NIVEN
Special to the Los Angeles Times

Review

First contact between mankind and extraterrestrial intelligence (ETI) is a major topic in science fiction. The universes should be innumerable. Where are the ETIs? What are they like? Why haven't they reached us yet? What do they have to tell us? What other topic would Carl Sagan choose for his first work of fiction?

"Contact" starts in the tradition of Charles Dickens: a child is born. Her name is Ellie, and she fixes radios before she's 10. She becomes involved in the Search for Extraterrestrial Intelligence, "SETI." Dr. Eleanor Froway has established herself as one of the brightest minds around before a message arrives from interstellar space, just short of AD 2000.

A message from the stars is a worldwide event. It cannot be received from any single location. Its importance is such that the world scientific community, established religions, the news media, and national governments must all get involved. The president of the United States and her science adviser play central roles; the latter is, in fact, Ellie's lover.

This story bears the traditional earmarks of the best-seller. Huge cast of characters; meticulously described background; a view into the domain of power... and it all fits. Whatever the nature of the ETI, a story that follows human progress to it will have a familiar look.

Science-fiction readers may feel that the book starts slowly. The signal from Vega arrives as a string of prime numbers on Page 78. It tells little of the senders. The second signal is merely an early TV broadcast returned to Earth. But don't get the idea that nothing's happening. By Page 231 we still know nothing of the aliens except that they're sending designs for a machine; but in the meantime a world has been described.

Sagan is an optimist. Planet Earth of 12 to 15 years from now is a nice place to live. The nations are breaking up; their thermonuclear bombs into fuel cells for power plants. An industrialist has been marketing tiny devices for a TV set that will mute the commercials, or change the channel if you hit a religious show. He's S.R. Hadden, and he will build the Machine described in the message. Nuclear war has not happened; civilization has not collapsed. The point is, this isn't a novel about aliens. It's about communication. We watch governments negotiate to keep the world stable. of Allied Powers in Europe. Collins was an American soldier. Later, when LaPierre worked for Paris Match, the two turned out their first book, "Paris Burning."

LaPierre talked in an interview about the Indian slum of 70,000, where residents live on less than 10 cents a day and must stand in line for hours just to use a latrine.

His fascination with India began in 1975 when he and Collins were researching the country for "Freedom at Midnight," which recounted the end of British rule there.

"This had given me a love story for India," the author said. "I wanted to share my gratitude. I wanted to do something in a field near Mahatma Gandhi would approve."

LaPierre and his wife started two homes, one for the children of lepers in Calcutta and another for the handicapped in Bengal. It was while visiting those youngsters that he first saw Anand Nagar and became obsessed with writing about it.

He went to a shop and bought 10 notebooks and 10 pens, and for the next two years conducted the intensive research that has become the trademark of his books with Collins.

"It's not something you can write from the outside. You have to immerse yourself," said LaPierre.

For two-week stretches, he shared the windowless, mud-floored hovel of a local priest, Stephan Kovalski.

The room measured 3-by-6 feet, sat beside a drain overflowing with black slime, was visited by rats in the night and like all the hovels in crowded Anand Nagar, offered a total lack of privacy.

"You are born publicly. You make love publicly. You die publicly," LaPierre said.

However, there was a limit to what he could stand. And unlike the dwellers of Anand Nagar, who had little hope of ever leaving the slum, LaPierre could.

"I would live (there) for two weeks and then go off for four days to a five-star hotel to get a huge bubble bath — to get three days of bubble bath — and a taste of scotch," he said.

The book opens with the story of Hasari Pal, a farmer who loses everything when the monsoon comes too late.

Like so many country people, Pal moves his family to Calcutta where he hopes to find work. But what he finds is a city so crowded with poor people that work is virtually impossible to find.

The desperate parents send two of their children to the streets to beg and to scrounge up scraps of food from the garbage.

French TV shifts stir political ire

Los Angeles Times

political anger in France.

The French press derides Berlusconi, a 49-year-old Milan businessman, as "the pope of tele-pizzeria." Italy, that thrives on offering viewers a diet of American serials and soap operas, a procession of quiz shows, lots of sports and old movies interrupted by frequent commercials. His three commercial networks overtook the three Italian government networks in popularity.

The award of a television license by a socialist government to a company that includes Berlusconi has astounded French political.

"It's an enormous political error," film director Bernard Taverth, 51-year-old French executive, regarded as a friend of the president.

PARIS — For years, French intellectuals berating France's government-controlled television had one consolation: It was not as bad as television in Italy.

Now, France is about to enter a new era of television in which private commercial channels will compete with government channels, and critics fear that French television may not only fail to improve but may sink as low as its Italian counterpart.

The fears arise from a decision, widely believed to have been made by President Francois Mitterrand alone, to award the first license for a commercial channel to a French company in which Italian television magnate Silvio Berlusconi has a 40 percent interest. The decision has provoked a tempest of

'Grown up' Jeff Colby character makes transition to 'Dynasty II'

By CONNIE PASSALACQUA

The syndicated reruns of "Dynasty," now airing in many cities, offers viewers the chance to retrace the lives of their favorite characters. It's particularly hard, though, to watch Carrington son-in-law Jeff Colby.

He is a nice guy but is a perpetual whipping boy, always taking his lumps. There are his three broken marriages, the melodramatic kidnapping of his infant son and even his preposterous poisoning (with lethal paint fumes) by his brother-in-law. In short, the guy is a wimp.

"But he's grown up a bit," protests John James, the 29-year-old actor who has played Jeff Colby for the past five years. "He was very naive in the beginning. The writers kept using him as a dupe for Fallon (his first wife). But after a while I said 'The hell with that. I'm not going to allow it.' Every chance I'd get I'd try to throw some stripes into the guy. I've made him what he is today. And he is getting stronger and stronger all the time."

And now it appears that the producers of "Dynasty" agree with James. Last month Jeff Colby inherited $500 million and was shifted into a new show: "Dynasty II: The Colbys," which airs Thursdays on ABC.

James insists his character had to be strong to make the transition. "He's got to be when he's up against someone like Jason Colby (played by Charlton Heston). I can't relax! I mean, this guy is a competitor."

Is James, whose only acting experience

John James as Jeff Colby and Katherine Ross is his mother on "Dynasty II" prior to "Dynasty" was a stint on daytime's "Search for Tomorrow," intimidated to be working with an actor of Heston's awesome reputation?

"Oh, no, it's a pleasure," says James, who seems to be every bit as gentlemanly as Jeff. "Working with him is like playing in a good tennis game. Good acting is like hitting the ball over the net and returning it. I enjoy it. It's a pleasure to go to work every day. It's an honor."

But James did find it difficult to leave the legendary "Dynasty."

"Leaving the No. 1 rated show in the history of television takes a lot of thinking," he says. "But I finally decided I didn't want to sit back and be the fourth banana on 'Dynasty' forever."

James also liked what he sees as a substantial stylistic difference between the two shows. "Dynasty" is sheer camp. We always intended to be bigger than life. I call it the 'Rocky Horror Picture Show' of television. But 'The Colbys' is a different kind of show because this family has much greater wealth than the Carringtons. It's a much classier group. It's a lot like 'Dynasty' was two seasons ago. We pay much more attention to the feelings of real people. Let's just put it this way: The Colbys would never go to Moldavia."

Even though he's finally emerging as a star-in-his-own-right on "The Colbys," James struggles to maintain a modest lifestyle, although he did just purchase a new home in the Hollywood Hills. "In my position it's very easy to let it all go to my head. I'm not the one to go out and sign a contract to put my picture on millions of kids' lunch boxes. To me, this is simply a job. But I know I've been very lucky. And the last thing I would do is put myself up on a pedestal."

Redford's too busy making film to include musicals in his career

By ROBIN ADAMS SLOAN

Q. I hear that Robert Redford is planning to star in a Broadway musical? I didn't know he could sing. —T.S.

A. And you won't know that, at least for a while. As of this time, Redford has no plans for a musical turn to his career. He's too busy filming his latest flick, "Legal Eagles," with Debra Winger and Daryl Hannah. However, there is an actor named Patrick Hamilton, now starring in the new musical "Hamelin," who is a Redford look-alike with a terrific voice and has often been mistaken for the movie star.

Q. Is it true that Michael Douglas got last billing in the new film "A Chorus Line"? I'm aware that Michael's a low-key person, but isn't this a come-down for an actor of his status? —P.L.

A. Hold it! Your version of Douglas's screen billing has become a trifle mixed-up in the telling. What actually happened is that Michael graciously agreed to take alphabetical billing for his role as Zach, the director-choreographer who compels 24 dancers, plus his former girlfriend, to reveal their innermost psyches during an audition. Douglas' character, beginning with the letter "Z," would certainly be on the end of any alphabetical list, and that's probably what triggered your misinformation. Actually, for "A Chorus Line," Michael is listed under "D," thus placing him fourth among the credits.

Q. You mentioned that Mia Farrow and Woody Allen were looking for a house and had been considering an enormous mansion on Manhattan's East Side. Where do these two live now? — T.F.

A. Separately is the answer. Mia and her eight children live with Mia's mother Maureen O'Sullivan. Woody lives in his own apartment. (You'll see Maureen's apartment in the new Woody Allen movie "Hannah and Her Sisters.") In the movie, Mia and actor Michael Caine live in that apartment.) However, the rumors of an eventual merged household continue.

Q. A city official who saw Charles Bronson's new vigilante movie "Death Wish 3" remarked on TV that it contained more general mayhem, wild stunts and special effects sequences than any film he's encountered in years. Like how many? — G.C.

A. Stunt coordinator Marc Boyle figures he devised and translated to the screen a staggering 53 believable stunts ranging from tumbling into flames from a six-story tenement; a number of head-on car crashes and true-grit fist fights; motorcycles suddenly shot out from beneath their riders; to ramming a hapless prisoner between the bars of his cell. Not to be outdone, senior special effects supervisor John Evans detonated a trio of shops, one large apartment building and five autos; burned three houses to the ground; and went through thousands of rounds of machine and small gun ammo — all in the interest of screen realism.

Q. Has James Taylor mellowed now that he's married to actress Kathryn Walker and is said to be off drugs? — P.J.

A. The "Handy Man," who wed Kathryn Walker December 14 in New York City, is pushing the family man bit, if the latest sightings of Sweet Baby James are correct. He was seen recently with his kids (from his former marriage to Carly Simon) at a pizza parlor in New York and he gave them money to play the juke box. Did they pick one of Dad's tunes? Nope, they chose Michael Jackson instead, but Taylor seemed 4 Times-News, Twin Falls, Idaho Friday, December 20, 1985 simply amused.

Q. I understand that Cliff Robertson is one of those stars who is afraid to fly. How does he manage to keep his career going so well if he cannot get from one place to another quickly? — A.C.

A. Cliff is not afraid to fly. On the contrary, he's in the select group of actors who pilot their own planes. According to "United Airlines" Magazine, which should know, Cliff even owns seven vintage airplanes which he rents out for use in films. "The sky is my Walden Pond," says Cliff. "I can always find tranquility there."

HOT SEAT, RED FACE: A business exec was flying to Europe a while back when the movie "Bonnie and Clyde" appeared on the airplane's screen. When the chap leaned back to take a snooze instead of watching the flick, the woman seated beside him gently inquired, "May I ask, how come you're not watching the movie?" "Because," was the reply, "I don't enjoy pictures which glorify gangsters." Turning to see more clearly the face of the person he was chatting with, the man suddenly realized that it was Faye Dunaway, the star of the movie, who played the lead role of Bonnie Parker!

Q. A review of the movie "Compromising Positions" explained that it's strange to see Edward Herrmann (who's cast as Susan Sarandon's husband) playing a fictional character for a change. What did the writer mean? — N.W.

A. Herrmann, who's perhaps best known for his classic portrayal of Franklin D. Roosevelt on television, seems to have made a career of re-creating famous real-life personalities, including baseball immortal Lou Gehrig, the McCarthy era's Alger Hiss, and authors T.S. Eliot and George Bernard Shaw. Currently, Herrmann is portraying yet another literary personage, Siegfried Sassoon, the famous English poet, in an off-Broadway play, "Not About Heroes." Herrmann says, "Real persons are generally easier to portray, except when it comes to duplicating the mannerisms of a truly legendary character like F.D.R., who many recall vividly. That's where the real challenge comes in."

Boisterous 'Margo' in new role on CBS sitcom 'Foley Square'

By JOHN N. GOUDAS

Remember the infectious laugh of Margo, the boisterous cop on "As the World Turns"? It made you feel better. And so did Margo's jaunty moves, her whole demeanor. When Margo's Margaret Colin left the soap after a three-year run, some of the zest went with her.

Margo fans will be happy to know the zippy lady is back in another form as a bright, breezy Manhattan lawyer named Alex in the new CBS Wednesday night sitcom, "Foley Square," following Mary Tyler Moore's "Mary."

"Foley Square" isn't terrific, but Margaret Colin is. The youngster from Brooklyn and Long Island jumps from a soap to prime time, and when people see her for the first time they wonder where the lady has been hiding. This isn't Gene Francis out of her depth. For Margaret Colin simply has that thing, presence, along with a neat husky voice, and energy that vibrates. She's not too pretty, just attractive with saucer eyes, and she can twang like Katharine Hepburn, her heroine, once the juices flow.

Margaret is a find, new to prime time and to Hollywood. After screening 150 locals, many big names, CBS re-discovered Margaret in auditions last spring. Her three years on the house "As the World Turns" came as a surprise to network brass. Another example of the old right hand doesn't know what the left hand is doing. Networks look the other way, ignoring soaps when they need a new face for the evening.

In spotting Colin, CBS got lucky. Several months earlier, ABC flew Margaret out for "Moonlighting" and "Spenser for Hire" auditions. She didn't sell. Last June when Colin arrived to film six episodes, she found a beach house and became a Malibu Barbie. But the hot sun dampened energy, keeping her indoors. So much for the grand beach life.

Three years around the clock on "As the World Turns" alongside Justin Deas gave Margaret an edge. "Put a script in my hands and I turn on the energy," says Margaret. "Listen, if you don't have a body like Donna Dixon, you have to do something."

Originally, "Foley Square" hoped to shoot in New York, but a three-

MARGARET COLIN
Energy that vibrates

camera crew couldn't be found in Manhattan. So Colin came west only to learn to stay out of the sun. She also learned "if you have an answer to a question that's over two sentences, people don't hear you."

On the other hand, the actress notices performers making a point of how "New Yorky" they are. "It's a badge of honor I guess. I'm keeping my trap shut."

PLOT PORTENTS:

Mac's nephew Neal Quarry arrives in town with plans to steal the treasure on "Another World." Just when Brittany plans to tell Catin about her pregnancy, he reconciles with Sally. Jake buys Marley an engagement ring for Christmas.

Frank and Maggie follow Jill and Dakota to Miami on "Ryan's Hope." A despondent Johnny packs his bags. Jill and Dakota make love for the first time.

Gilles is injured doing a stunt and asks to see Brooke in the hospital on "All My Children." Daisy tells Nina that she is her mother. Langley sells his hairpiece in order to buy Phoebe a present.

Woody saves the day for a grateful Asa on "One Life to Live." Larry thinks Ivan Kipling is trying to kill Laurel. Clint fights Viki's divorce. Tina fakes a pregnancy.

The police think Wendy may have skipped town just before she was to be brought in for questioning on "Search for Tomorrow." Quinn gets E.Z. a job at the Caldwell house. Hogan backs off from Sunny's advances.

CHANNEL CHATTER:

Bernard Barrow, whose character Johnny Ryan is going through hard times on "Ryan's Hope," will be having a Christmas-Eve "vision" to straighten him out. Depressed over an affair he had some 20 years ago, Johnny packs a bag and leaves home thinking his marriage to Maevie is doomed. While on his way, Johnny has a vision of Christmas future, where among other things he sees Patrick tending bar and Maevie trying to sell the place. Jolted by this, he returns home more determined than ever to patch things up. Also on "Ryan's Hope," the soap welcomes new cast member Dan Mardelesian who will be making his first appearance as intern at Riverside Hospital Treat Baker on Dec. 26.

The newcomers on "General Hospital" are seasoned veterans with familiar faces. Martha Scott, who appeared in such notable films as "Ben-Hur" and "The Ten Commandments," plays matriarch Jennifer Talbot, while her lawyer, Ted Holmes is played by David Doyle, best remembered for playing Bosley on "Charlie's Angels." As the storyline develops, fans will soon see this pair has a past that they do not want revealed.

NBC gives 'Hell Town' pink slip

Los Angeles Times

—HOLLYWOOD—NBC, currently first in the prime-time ratings, said Monday that it was dropping its low-rated "Hell Town" series and would replace it next month with "Blackie's Magic," co-starring Hal Linden and Harry Morgan.

NBC made no other shifts in its current prime-time schedule, although at least two other current series face the ax or will be put on hiatus early next year to make room for Stephen J. Cannell's new "The Last Precinct" and NBC News' "American Almanac."

An NBC spokesman described "Precinct," from the producer of NBC's hit "The A-Team," as a drama-with-comedy police-series. With a cast that includes Adam West, formerly of "Batman," the one-hour series will have a special premiere Jan. 26, then will start its regular run a week later. The night on which it will regularly appear has not been set yet.

"Almanac," a news magazine series anchored by Roger Mudd, premiered this season. (televised on a monthly basis, it originally was to have joined NBC's prime-time lineup as a weekly series in January, but now will do that in March, the network said.

Rating for CBS' opening episode of 'Mary' winds up below hopes

By FRED ROTHENBERG
The Associated Press

NEW YORK — NBC, paced by Bill Cosby and Bob Hope, won the weekly ratings competition and wasn't hurt by the prime-time return of Mary Tyler Moore on CBS, according to figures released Tuesday by the A.C. Nielsen Co.

"Mary," a new sitcom that figures heavily in second-rated CBS' comeback plans, ranked 31st for the week. The premiere episode performed better than the canceled "Slur Crazy" did in the Wednesday time period but didn't reach the networks' ratings projections.

"Mary," which received generally favorable reviews, had a 17.1 rating and 26 share. Its companion comedy, "Foley Square," ranked 48th out of 71 shows with a 14.9 rating. (A rating measures the percentage of the nation's 85.9 million homes with television. A share measures the percentage of the households with their sets on that were tuned in.)

NBC's "Highway to Heaven" easily won the time period with the second half of a two-parter, finishing with a 23.1. The week before, "Highway to Heaven" had a 21.3 rating.

MARY TYLER MOORE
Can't shake NBC lead

Last week, NBC had seven shows in the Top 10, taking its eighth victory in 12 weeks of the 1985-86 prime-time season. NBC had an average rating of 18.2 to CBS' 17.2 and ABC's 14.5. Season to date, NBC leads with a 17.9 to CBS' 16.9 and ABC's 15.8.

For the week of Dec. 9-15, "The Cosby Show" ranked first with a 35.4 rating and a 52 share of the audience watching TV. NBC's "Family Ties" was second with its best-ever rating, 32.6. CBS' "Murder, She Wrote" was third with a 26.5 and NBC's "Bob Hope Christmas Special" was fourth with a 24.8. Next came CBS' "60 Minutes," NBC's "Cheers," NBC's "Miami Vice," "Highway to Heaven," CBS' "Dallas" and NBC's "Golden Girls."

For the second time in three weeks, ABC's "Dynasty," last season's top-rated series, slipped out of the Top 10. "Dynasty" ranked 12th, one notch behind ABC's "Monday Night Football" match-up between the Los Angeles Rams and San Francisco 49ers.

David Poltrack, CBS' vice president for research, said the network needed a vigorous performance from "Mary" and better ratings from its movies to have any chance of catching NBC. "Mary" had a solid 30 share in the 12-city overnight ratings, then slipped to a 26 when its national ratings came in. The networks had forecast a 30 share nationally.

"I still think it will be a 30-share show when it builds through word of mouth," said Poltrack. "The audience was depressed somewhat by NBC's ineffective strategy of running a two-part 'Highway to Heaven' "

Poltrack said he didn't expect "Mary" to make major inroads on the time slot leader, "Highway to Heaven," in the future. "Their audience profiles are different," he said. "We knew 'Mary' would skew toward sophisticated audiences; "Highway to Heaven," starring Michael Landon as an angel, is more popular in rural areas than in the big cities.

Poltrack said that "Mary" was disadvantaged by its 8 p.m. EST time slot. "There's no question that our potential target audience watches less TV at 8 than 9, but we didn't have a lot of problems at 9 on our schedule." One exception was 9 on Wednesday, but Poltrack said it "wouldn't be intelligent to go against 'Dynasty.'"

Meanwhile, NBC is not standing pat on Wednesday at 9. Early next month, it will replace the canceled "Hell Town" with "Blackie's Magic," starring Hal Linden as a magician turned detective.

Ironically, "Hell Town," whose star, Robert Blake, was featured on the cover of TV Guide last week, had one of its best performances, ranking 39th. Poltrack attributed that to the holiday spirit. "I suspect that family dramas do better now," he said. "Both 'Hell Town' and 'Highway to Heaven' got a seasonal boost."

In other notable shows last week, the first part of CBS' "Alice in Wonderland" ranked 13th, but the final two hours fell to 35th. NBC's "Hallmark Hall of Fame" movie, "Love Is Never Silent," about a daughter's conflicts with her deaf parents, was 29th. ABC's "Barbara Walters Special," featuring interviews with Cybill Shepherd, Michael J. Fox and Angela Lansbury, ranked 23rd.

The lowest-rated shows included CBS' "George Burns Comedy Week" and NBC's "Punky Brewster," tied for 66th. ABC's "The Fall Guy," ABC's "Ripley's Believe It or Not," and ABC's "Shadow Chasers" and ABC's "Our Family Honor," tied for 70th.

In the evening news competition, the "CBS Evening News" was first with a 14.3 rating. ABC's "World News Tonight" jumped to second for the first time in eight weeks with a 12.0 rating. The "NBC Nightly News" averaged an 11.8.

Sports highlights

10:30 a.m. (NBC) NFL FOOTBALL Pittsburgh Steelers at New York Giants.

The Giants, who lost the NFC East crown to Dallas last week, can still salvage a wild-card playoff spot by beating the Steelers, who are out of the post-season hunt. If the Giants lose, they can still make the playoffs if Washington loses to St. Louis later in the day.

2 p.m. (CBS) NFL FOOTBALL Washington Redskins at St. Louis Cardinals.

The Redskins, who have overcome a poor start and the loss of quarterback Joe Theismann this season, must win to have any playoff hopes. In addition to winning, they must hope either that the Giants or 49ers lose their season finales.

'Tis the Season

To wish all our friends a very wonderful and warm holiday.

STEER THIS WAY

By Ernie Willis

A slight "pinging" noise is quite common on newer cars with electronic and computer-controlled engine functions, but a loud ping is a danger signal. Try high-octane gas and have ignition timing checked.

Check tire pressure more often when the temperature drops. Underinflated tires waste gas.

Buckle up that seat belt! In some states, if you're not wearing a seat belt you may be considered partially responsible for causing or aggravating any injuries in case of accident.

How close are you parked? Angle the side-view mirror toward the curb - the better to judge distances. Keeps whitewalls cleaner, too.

What's new: a windshield that can clear its own ice quickly. Auto maker will offer an optional windshield that can melt buildup within a few minutes in any weather.

Auto Repair

What's new: we've got the latest test equipment to make sure your car is running right - and know how to fix it if it's not. You can trust your car to Willis Motor Co. Call 733-2857 for an appointment.

Do media have culture by throat?

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — Media critic Neil Postman says television "has the culture by its throat."

The professor-of-communications arts and sciences at New York University, in an interview with U.S.

News & World Report, says "It's different from other media in that people don't go to movies to get the weather or find out political information or get the ball scores. We go to television for everything. And the problem that results is that television, because of its entertainment format — its visual nature — turns all forms of discourse into entertainment packages."

Because of this, he said, we "possibly have the most ill-informed electorate in the West. TV makes Americans know of a lot of things but about very little."

Sports highlight

2 p.m. (CBS) NFL FOOTBALL Dallas Cowboys at San Francisco 49ers.
 A win at home by the defending Super Bowl champion 49ers in this regular-season finale would clinch them a playoff spot. San Francisco still could sneak into post-season play, however, with a loss if Washington also loses. Dallas, meanwhile, has clinched the NFC East title, so a win will only further the Cowboys' chances for the home-field edge in some playoff games.

Baxter won't be replaced

The Washington Post

The producers of "Hotel" still hadn't figured out Monday how to explain the absence on future episodes of the late Anne Baxter, who died last week after suffering a stroke in New York City.

They have decided to commission a portrait of Miss Baxter as "Victoria Cabot" who ran the St. Gregory on the ABC series. The picture will be displayed prominently in the lobby of the fictional hotel in later episodes this season, still to be taped.

A spokesman for the production company said Monday that executive producer Aaron Spelling visited the set of "Hotel" last Thursday, the day Miss Baxter died; to lead the crew in a minute of silent prayer (many of the crew which was not supposed to work that day had come in voluntarily, the spokesman said).

At that time Spelling assured the crew that neither he nor his partner, Douglas Cramer, would replace Miss Baxter's character on the series.

Best-bet films

4:30 p.m. (CBN) The Bells of St. Mary's Two 1947 Academy Award winners, Bing Crosby and Ingrid Bergman, star in the sequel to "Going My Way," the film that won Crosby his Oscar. In this one, Father O'Malley (Crosby) is assigned to a run-down parish where Bergman is the sister superior. Released in 1945, the film features Crosby's introduction of "Aren't You Glad You're You?"

6:05 p.m. (WTBS) Miracle on 34th Street Truly a Christmas classic. Edmund Gwenn stars as Kris Kringle, the jolly old elf working at Macy's who goes on trial to prove he's really Santa Claus. Natalie Wood stars as the unbelieving youngster. Released in 1947.

10 p.m. (KTRV) Holiday Inn Bing Crosby introduces the song "White Christmas" in this perky, 1942 musical that also starred Deanna Durbin. Other great Irving Berlin songs also are featured.

Chiro-CREDIT

...can take the "bite" out of deductibles and co-payments.

At some time in their lives, 4 out of 5 Americans have health problems that cry out for chiropractic care. But the deductible and co-payment requirements in some insurance plans can take a big bite out of your savings. We are pleased that we can now offer CHIRO-CREDIT to budget-minded Americans who need health care.

With Chiro-Credit, you are automatically eligible for up to $300.00 credit to take care of the treatment your insurance does not cover. You decide on the monthly payments, as low as $15 a month. There is no interest, and you have up to 3 years to pay. Chiro-Credit is available to everyone, with or without insurance.

At our office, there is no charge for the initial consultation and spinal function test. Should x-rays or treatment be indicated, most health plans include chiropractic coverage.

Don't let budget problems keep you from solving your health problems.

Call us today and ask about CHIRO-CREDIT.

We Reserve The right To Discontinue This Offer At Anytime.
