Tough budget battles seen ahead

By CLIFF HAAS The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The first session of the 99th Congress that ends this week in acrimony over spending priorities will seem like a brief polio chat compared to the budget battles that lie ahead.

Unprecedented balanced-budget legislation enacted this year will make the raucous, exhausting 1985 session the longest in the last five years — only a prelude to more bitter debates over government spending when Congress returns Jan. 21.

"I think this legislation is going to create a lot of frostbite and wounds and fiscal chaos next year," said Senate Minority Leader Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va.

"I think we're in for a bad session," Senate Majority Leader Robert Dole, R-Kansas, shared that view of the coming legislative year.

"I think the first month's going to be the best," Dole said. "We won't be here."

Congress began the year arguing about the budget and ended the year the same way — in between, legislators frustrated about their inability to agree on ways to reduce the deficit — running at a $200 billion annual clip — instead passed the landmark measure

Idaho delegation grades session

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — An ambitious agenda including tax reform, the farm bill and deficit-reduction legislation highlighted the congressional session that ended Friday, but two members of the Idaho delegation graded the performance of Congress average at best.

Both Republican Sen. James McClure and 2nd District Rep. Richard Stallings, a Democrat, gave the session passing grades, but not by much.

"I'd give it a C-minus," McClure said. "It's not falling, but it's barely passing."

"I'd probably give it a C," Stallings said. "We left an awful lot undone. But given the fact that we are a republic and you have to deal with 434 other House members, we did average work."

Both Stallings and McClure expressed frustration at the legislative process, which they said avoided many important issues.

"My biggest disappointments are in not being able to address the basic problems of this nation," Stallings said at the completion of his first year in office.

"For example, the farm crisis. What we've done will perhaps cushion the downturn, or perhaps stop it, but it will not really reverse it."

Stallings said the House and Senate agreeing they could not come to terms on a three-year, $74 billion deficit-reduction package that had been promised by the budget lawmakers struggled to enact last August.

legislative process, which they said avoided many important issues.

Stallings said the House and Senate agreeing they could not come to terms on a three-year, $74 billion deficit-reduction package that had been promised by the budget lawmakers struggled to enact last August.

"We end the year on a rather dismal note," said Sen.

Pete V. Domenici, R-N.M., chairman of the Senate Budget Committee.

But there is general agreement that things will only get worse next year as Congress begins operating under the procedures of the legislation co-sponsored by Sens. Phil Gramm, R-Texas; Warren Rudman, R-N.H., and Ernest Hollings, D-S.C.

The so-called Gramm-Rudman bill requires the elimination of budget deficits through conventional legislation, or if the Congress and the White House cannot agree, through automatic spending cuts.

Debates over the failed deficit-reduction effort this year and a $368.2 billion omnibus spending measure approved at the close of the session demonstrated the anxiety with which legislators view the coming year.

Since both bills defined the base from which future automatic cuts could be made, there was a hard struggle for virtually every dollar being appropriated or cut.

Under the Gramm-Rudman procedures, across-the-board cuts of up to $117 billion are expected next March with those cuts equally distributed between military and domestic spending. Meanwhile, deeper cuts likely will be necessary to hit the statutory deficit target of $144 billion for the 1987 fiscal year that begins next Oct.

Experts see little change in farm bill

By JIM DRINKARD The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The new long-term farm policy President Reagan will sign into law on Monday is expected in slow motion that will neither rescue endangered farmers nor suddenly restore lost U.S.-export markets, analysts say.

What the legislation will do, according to veteran economists, is buy time for farmers with manageable debt loads, letting them weather for a few more years the current farm financial depression, and start the United States on the road to renewed competitiveness in agricultural exports.

"There are few gains for farmers in this bill," said John Schnittker, a Washington agricultural consultant and former deputy agriculture secretary. "It is basically a continuation of the very unsatisfactory cash-flow conditions of the last few years."

On the other hand, says Schnittker, there are few losses. Farm incomes are essentially stabilized by replacing dollars lost to lower price supports with dollars from the federal treasury in the form of income subsidies.

"The situation already affecting corn, wheat and many cotton producers, of inadequate cash flow, is institutionalized by the farm bill," he said in an interview. "Whatever was going to happen to them, survive or not survive, is going to happen. It may be slightly speeded up."

If there are any winners in the farm sector, they would be livestock, poultry and dairy farmers whose costs for feed will drop due to the scheduled decline in grain price supports and the likely continuation of large surpluses, said Schnittker.

By extension, consumers could benefit as well. Low commodity prices mean low raw materials costs for food processors, and that should minimize any pressure for higher grocery prices. Agriculture Department economists are predicting 1986 food cost increases of 2 to 4 percent, at or below the general inflation rate.

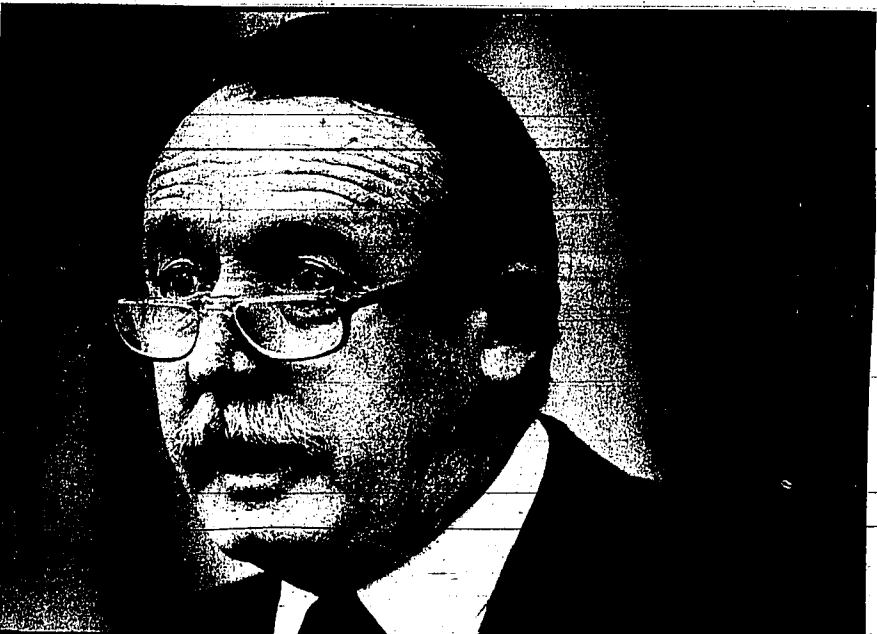

If Americans benefit as consumers, they may suffer as taxpayers. The three-year cost of commodity programs in the bill is put at $2 billion, which would mean at least near-record spending through 1988. Schnittker said even that figure is based on overly optimistic assumptions, and predicted it would be at least $60 billion and perhaps as high as $75 billion.

"Some had hoped this farm bill would do more," says Neil Hari, an agricultural economist at Iowa State University who has closely watched the farm debt crisis reemerge in his state. "It should be realized that alone, the farm bill is not going to deal with the problem of farm debt."

That, Hari said, will take further action when Congress reconvenes next year. Legislators already are laying plans for action to subsidize farm loan interest rates and to somehow isolate foreclosed farmland from the market to stem the slide in land values.

Still, he said, the fact that Congress was able to produce a hold-the-line farm bill and that Reagan plans to sign it is a positive change from a year ago, when the Reagan

Heritage hangs from economic thread

TWIN FALLS — Many of the farmers who came to a recent seminar at the College of Southern Idaho came looking — at least in the back of their minds — for miracles.

The sessions were helpful, said Warren Myers, who recently lost most of his land to the Production Credit Association. "But I don't see any answers."

The core of his farm belonged to his father. He wants to pass his land along to his children, now aged nine and eleven.

satisfaction his family takes in being deeply involved in it. "He's never wanted to live in town."

Yet, he would not want his children to live through what he is living through, he says. "You're dealing with huge amounts of money but there is nothing left to spend. It seems like the non-farmers have more money to spend."

"There is plenty of disagreement among the experts about what will become of the American tradition of passing farms from one generation to another. Some say the children,

Celebration to take on Spanish air

TWIN FALLS — The sounds of Spanish caroling will fill Twin Falls City Park this evening as local residents join in the Las Posadas Christmas ceremony.

The event is an Hispanic tradition to enact Mary and Joseph's search for a warm place to spend the night on the eve of the birth of the Christ child. Those attending the fourth Christmas in City Park celebration — especially the children — will be invited to accept a candle and follow those acting the parts of Mary and Joseph as they ask for shelter at strangers' doors.

The Rev. Juan Garza of the Guadalupe Center will give a reading in Spanish, summarized in English by Sister Rose Mary Bossen. Lolbae Pletz, pastor at Our Christmas in City Park. Savior Lutheran Church, will light the fourth advent candle and read from the scriptures. The program begins at 5 p.m. Today's ceremony will be the last Sunday event for this holiday season, but a brief noon ceremony is planned for Tuesday to light the final advent calendar and add the figure symbolizing the newborn baby Jesus to the creche in the band shell.

Bonner: Sakharov is 'prisoner of Zion'

By TED M. NATT JR. The Associated Press

NEWTON, Mass. — Soviet dissident Yelena Bonner thanked the Jewish community for its "spiritual support" Saturday in her first public address since arriving in the United States two weeks ago.

Speaking during Sabbath-morning services at Congregation Mishkan Tefila, Mrs. Bonner told worshippers, "I would like you to always remember that your 'so-believers' and in general other people in our country, have the same dreams, the same needs and also the same moral and spiritual values as you."

"I do not know whether you know, but my husband is considered a prisoner of Zion because he has helped so many Jews in the Soviet Union," Mrs. Bonner, wife of Nobel Peace Prize-winner

Andrei Sakharov, said in Russian translated by her son.

"My husband has always considered... the right to choose one's country of residence, like freedom of belief, to be basic rights... some of the basic guarantees for preserving human dignity," Mrs. Bonner said.

Sakharov is not Jewish. Soviet Jews imprisoned for seeking to leave their homeland are known as prisoners of Zion.

Mrs. Bonner, 62, arrived in the United States two weeks ago for treatment of a heart ailment after visiting an eye specialist in Italy. She was granted a three-month visa to go to the West for medical treatment under the condition that she not talk to the media, she has said. Her 10-minute speech Saturday was her first public talk in this country.

"Of course, I am very grateful for your spiritual support for myself, for my husband... for your concern and help to my family here," she said.

Mrs. Bonner was accompanied by her daughter, Talana Yankelovich, and her son, Alexei Semenov.

Asked afterward by reporters why she chose to speak at the synagogue, Mrs. Bonner said: "Because anti-Semitism exists, I find it impossible not to come to a synagogue. I believe the most terrifying and the most deplorable development in human history is the teaching of national or religious superiority."

Soviet authorities have sent Mrs. Bonner and Sakharov to live in internal exile in Gorky, a city closed to foreigners because of statements critical of the Soviet government. Sakharov underwent several hunger strikes in an effort to persuade authorities to allow his wife to leave the country for treatment.

'Star Wars' test postponed

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — An underground test of a hydrogen bomb, which officials hope will help produce an X-ray laser for the "Star Wars" space defense system, was delayed again Saturday by wind blowing toward populated areas.

The test device, called Goldstone, was buried in a boxcar-sized canister inside a shaft at Pahute Mesa in the desert 104 miles northwest of Las Vegas. It had an explosive potential equal to 150,000 tons of TNT — 10 times the force of the bomb that devastated Hiroshima.

The test was originally scheduled for Thursday but had been delayed daily because of northerly wind blowing toward Beatty, Nev., and Death Valley, Calif., said U.S. Department of Energy spokesman Chris West.

Purported drug ring smashed

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — A trans-Atlantic undercover operation has smashed a multimillion-dollar drug ring with the arrest of four men, including one who claimed to be the world's top hashish dealer, authorities said Saturday.

The U.S.-Netherlands investigation included a U.S. agent who went to the Netherlands posing as a buyer interested in shipping record amounts of heroin and hashish to the United States in exchange for cash and cocaine, authorities said.

Arrested Friday in the Netherlands were the ring's alleged leader, Stanley Pissar, 32, of the Netherlands, and Abdul Wali, 46, a Pakistani associate, said Glenn Cooper, the federal Drug Enforcement Administration's special agent for New Jersey.

Arrested in Newark were Esser's attorney, Martin Roefelen, 38, and a Lebanese-born physician, Dr. Ahmad Saleh-Bi-Animar, 46, said Cooper.

Reed reported in good spirits

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Oscar-winning actress Donna Reed, hospitalized with pancreatic cancer, was in good condition and cheerful Saturday — and looking forward to returning home on Christmas Eve, her spokesman said.

"She sounded terrific," said Harry Flynn. "She sounded very up. She was laughing and in a good mood."

Arrested Friday, Miss Reed, 61, the star of television's "The Donna Reed Show" for eight years beginning in 1958. The actress, who appeared as Miss Ellis during the 1984-85 season of "Dallas," has been at Cedars-Sinai Medical Center since Dec. 10, said hospital spokeswoman Peggy Shaff.

Helicopter wreckage found

LONG PINE, Neb. (AP) — Searchers early Saturday found the wreckage of a helicopter that crashed on its way to take an injured boy from one hospital to another, killing the pilot and both nurses aboard.

The helicopter, which disappeared Friday night, was found in a shallow valley about 20 miles south of this north-central Nebraska community, said Tom Randall, a flying service owner who joined the search.

"We were in hopes that maybe a beacon light or strobe would be going, or if there was a survivor, they would signal us, but there was no chance of that," said Randall.

Another American faces spy charges

WASHINGTON (AP) — A former FBI clerk who is the 11th American charged with spying this year told an undercover FBI agent that he gave defense secrets to the Soviet Union, the FBI charged Saturday in court papers.

Randy Miles Jeffries, a messenger for a stenographic firm that transcribes national congressional proceedings, was ordered held without bond on espionage charges pending formal arraignment Monday in U.S. District Court.

"In a criminal complaint, the FBI said that Jeffries admitted during a meeting Friday with an FBI agent posing as a Soviet agent that he had met twice with Soviet officials and given them portions of government documents, including one that was marked "Top Secret."

The complaint stated that Jeffries told the undercover agent that he had offered to sell the complete set of three documents to the Soviets for $5,000.

FBI spokesman Lane Bonner said Jeffries worked for the FBI as a "supp" employee from 1978 to 1980 in the agency's identification division. Of his 1980 departure, Bonner said: "I have nothing to indicate that it was other than a voluntary resignation."

Like all other FBI employees, Jeffries had an agency security clearance, Bonner said.

Jeffries, 26, wore a brown jacket, brown shirt and black pants during his appearance before Superior Court Judge Reggie Walton. Jeffries made no statement during the court hearing, which was attended by his wife Naomi.

A report filed by pre-trial services said Jeffries, a father of three, was convicted in 1983 of possession of heroin and had received a suspended sentence. The report said Jeffries had admitted to court officials he used heroin and cocaine.

Jeffries, who began working two months ago as a messenger for the Acme Reporting Co., told the undercover FBI agent that he had access to a full bag of top secret and secret documents which were ripped up but which could be put back together.

The FBI complaint read in court by FBI Special Agent Michael Giglia said that Jeffries offered to provide the undercover agent with three documents that had not been ripped up.

The government's complaint described Acme Reporting Co. as a stenographic reporting firm that transcribed secret House of Representatives sessions "in which classified information relating to the national defense is provided to the Congress."

Cabinet officers to decide on tests

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan has decided to let cabinet officers decide whether members of their departments must take random lie detector tests in the campaign against spying, an administration spokesman said Saturday.

The decision appears to be a retreat from earlier White House statements that a National Security Decision Directive signed on Nov. 1 would require 183,000 federal employees and contractors with access to secrets to undergo polygraph tests starting sometime next year.

The apparent easing of the original order followed a declaration Thursday by Secretary of State George P. Shultz that he would resign if required to take the lie detector test. Reagan met with Shultz on Friday, and told reporters that the secretary of state would not be subjected to the polygraph.

Probation violator 'healed'

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A city judge "raised his hand," snatched "Stand up" convict whose probation the judge had just extended rose from his prison-issue wheelchair and walked out of the courtroom.

Allan R. Fulton, 26, appeared Friday before Common Pleas Judge John L. Braxton on a probation violation. Fulton had been jailed after being convicted of receiving stolen goods while free on probation from a simple assault conviction.

During his latest incarceration, Fulton was classified as handicapped. A psychiatrist's report, however, said the man "had no conspicuous illness," Braxton said Friday.

"If I heal you, will you get up and walk?" Braxton asked Fulton.

Fulton "raised himself unsteadily until he stood erect, then staggered toward the courtroom exit, leaving the wheelchair and a smiling judge behind."

Iowa: Powerlessness leads to tragedy

Jones makes three proposals of merit

Although the proposals may not pass or secure funding, we think Idaho Attorney General Jim Jones is correct in identifying three areas of state law as needing attention from the Idaho Legislature.

The three proposals are to revitalize the state's consumer protection effort, tighten the law for trucks hauling hazardous chemicals in Idaho and permitting the prosecution of criminal defendants even if minor technical violations occur on search warrants.

All three have merit. The search warrant bill would deal with the "exclusionary rule," and would incorporate a recent U.S. Supreme Court decision on the subject into Idaho law. That ruling makes the police job easier, but is no invitation to sloppy investigative work. We see no reason why it shouldn't be approved, as it would result in little, if any, additional state cost.

The other two proposals both would mean staffing costs, but we think they are worth considering.

Beyond the state Better Business Bureau, which is heavily worked, the state has little consumer protection effort. Jones is right that in tough times, people are potentially easier victims for scams and fraud. There is a lot of evidence that such things are all too common in the state. We shouldn't be a haven.

The hazardous waste idea has merit, too. Several chemical spills, including one in Rupert, suggest that Idaho law is too lax in this area. Jones is right that the health and safety of citizens should not be put at risk in such situations. If tougher laws are needed, let's pass them.

...laughs for a minute that tomorrow, your boss tells you that for the next 12 months, you're going to earn only two-thirds of your salary. You can't quit your job.

What would you do? Quick. The mortgage payment is already a week overdue. The kids need books, and it's snowing. Quick.

The last two checks you wrote bounced, and the bank wouldn't pay them. The pediatrician's bill is overdue. The corner grocery store won't let you put anything on your charge account.

Your spouse is angry; you're not holding up your end of the deal. What are you going to do? Quick.

Your father and grandfather have done the same job as you're doing now. They went through the Depression. They lived on prairie and potatoes, and they made it. You are the third generation. You're blowing it.

The pressure builds, the stress is stronger. You keep going to work, hanging on. It doesn't matter.

Nothing you do matters. You are powerless.

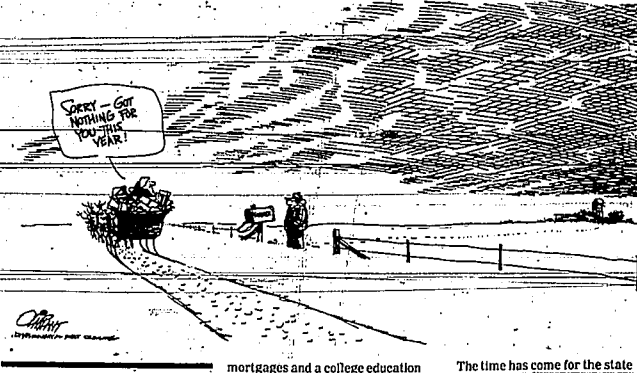

This is the kind of thing Dale Burr probably felt. And it is the kind of thing many other Iowa farmers feel every day.

There are accounts of bank transactions and economic explanations and other hypotheses as the murder and suicide story unravels. But that's not what it is really all about.

It's about people — alone, desperate and powerless with nowhere to turn. Once the Burrs were one of the wealthier families in the county. They were well-thought-of people.

Salt of the earth. Churchgoers. A family of farmers carrying on a tradition. That was a year or two ago. That's how fast things crumble.

mortgages and a college education rose. Then the bottom fell out — for farmers.

Now times are so out of kilter that people who once were pillars of their communities are falling into poverty, depression and disrepair.

This is the farm crisis — the people who are alive and hanging in, and those who have died at the hands of anger, frustration, humiliation. And they are here.

Politicians tell us it is only a matter of time before the books. That if we can reduce the deficit, deflate the value of the dollar, increase exports and give the free market reign — then, everything will be all right.

But if there's one thing that is clear from Monday's tragic series of murder and suicide, it is that the farm crisis is not numbers and deficits and bushels of corn. It is people and pride and tears and blood.

The time has come for the state and the county to reach out to farmers who are suffering — not because they are failed businessmen and women, but because they are human beings whose lives are falling apart — fast.

Dale Burr was a 63-year-old farmer in Hill, Iowa, whose financial difficulties threatened to take his land, livestock, machinery and grain.

On Dec. 9, he went on a rampage, killing his wife, a bank president and a neighbor on their arming suicide on a lonely road near his home.

The next day, the above editorial appeared in "The Iowa City (Iowa) Press-Citizen," which serves the Hills area. It was written by Editorial Page Editor Linda Cotton, and is reprinted here with permission.

Keep rates even with inflation

Re: Warren Barry's article entitled, "Idaho Power should be 'ashamed' to submit 27 percent increase."

In my opinion this article of Warren's is one of the very best I have ever read on the subject, concerning Idaho Power Company and the wisdom, or lack of it, by the Idaho Public Utility Commission!

There is little sense in going over the same ground that Warren has so expertly done. However, there are a few items that Barry left out, that I suppose he didn't have at the time of writing his opus.

Nevertheless, they are very important and I think that the consumers should, by all means, be informed on the subject. Which applies to cogeneration in Oregon and Utah.

Let me emphasize first that the IPUC granted the co-generators 6.8 cents per kilowatt hour (kwh) for all electricity produced and that under a federal law Idaho Power must purchase all electricity produced by the co-generators.

Secondly, Idaho residential consumers pay 4.4 cents per kwh, for a net loss to Idaho Power of 2.4 cents per kwh they buy. Furthermore, the federal government has agreed to pay the IPUC paid to co-generators to the discretion of all the state's PUC, due to the variance in cost of producing from state to state. . . . And that's questionable, too.

As the above indicates, you can vary well see that the three commissioners who sit on the IPUC, judging rates and so forth, certainly lack the wisdom necessary to perform their duties in a knowledgeable manner, or else there could very well be a streak of favoritism involved in these rate adjustments. . . . Whatever it is, somebody is going to take one helluva shellacking in the pocketbook. . . . And as usual it'll be the consumer!

Nevertheless, here are the rates that the co-generators receive in Oregon, and these are right from the horse's mouth, Oregon Pacific Power & Light buys their electricity from co-generators for 1.92 cents per kwh winter rate, Summer rate is 1.79 cents per kwh, Oregon PGE pays 0.93 cents per kwh winter rate, and 2.45 summer rate. Utah rates cost 2.2 to 2.6 cents for 1,000 kwh.

Now it's very easy to see that something is wrong in the setting of co-generation rates by the IPUC. If Oregon and Utah producers can sell electric at those rates listed, and they do, why are Idaho producers getting the rates they are? Something doesn't set well here, and that's for sure. Furthermore, all co-generators, I believe, buy all their equipment from the same companies, so there is no discrepancy there.

Moreover, it's either wind-power or water power, and all that has to be done is harness it to produce electric power. However, in all its wisdom, maybe the IPUC thinks Idaho's air and water is more expensive and that it is not like either.

Nevertheless, I don't think Idaho Power should receive any more rate increase than the national inflation rate, which is 3.5 percent, established by the "hot-stove league" back in Confusion City,

Time to bone up on arithmetic

After reading Warren Barry's comments about Idaho Power and Idaho Public Utility Commission, I'm beginning to think that the "wheels" of both outfits better go back to the third or fourth grade and "bone up" on their arithmetic.

One doesn't have to be very smart to know that you can't buy electrical energy for 6.6 cents per kilowatt hour and sell it for 4.5 cents and last very long. This is what IPUC seems to think is good business! How stupid. I always thought the IPUC was in there to protect everyone. How about it! Will they grant I.P. their asked for rate of 27.4 percent?

The little old lady pictured on the pamphlet which was enclosed in their last statement who needs a little aid for their bills was like the person who fell out of the boat and was thrown the boat anchor instead of the life jacket. How about it!

Which item was thrown to the little old lady? Really, all she needs is a 27.4 percent hike in her power bill.

I just don't believe it is up to the Idaho Power customers to provide or help to provide a "Cadillac" in every stockholder's garage. O.K., make payers just think it over. P.S. Keep up the good work, Warren Barry!

Letters/ Kimberly council may want someone who will close eyes to bull

What happened to results?

Re: To the people of Kimberly and the City Council:

I was at the city council meeting when it first came out that there was an investigation going on to uncover what the city council and police department have had covered up since 1971 and earlier. I have kept up with the investigation in the paper as best I could.

Then I went to the city council meeting Dec. 10 because it was said that the investigation reports would be disclosed. But they weren't.

Mr. Wright said the report was on Police Chief Jim Campbell. And only mentioned, finally, that the allegations were against Campbell. But, from what I understood, in the beginning of the city council had some problems that were being investigated also. But I never heard anything on the results of that. It seems like one of the council members, especially, was under investigation. What ever happened with that investigation?

Mr. Wright also said the public should not see the results of the investigation of Campbell because it would just cause a big fight. It seems like even though the results weren't revealed there is another fight starting.

Just because the mayor felt that the taxpayers of Kimberly should know what they paid for, Mr. Wright and other city council members want him out of office. If that is the reason they want him out, then I feel like the city council members are saying they want someone who will close their eyes to all the bull that is going on and let everyone get away with it.

Mr. Kreskin spent the first fifteen minutes name dropping and making sure that everyone knew how famous he was. He told a few mildly humorous stories, and then in the manner of comic whose material is not all that funny, child and insulted the audience for their failure to recognize how hilarious his material really was.

Close to 45 minutes into the program, Mr. Kreskin finally got around to what most of the audience came to see. He was finally going to do a little mentalism; ESP.

After an unnecessarily long "preparation and pass out the slips and envelopes" period, Mr. Kreskin enthralled his audience with what has made him famous; a fascinating demonstration of mental magic, presented with class, style, and superior showmanship, by a performer who has his own special flair for making it all seem real to the audience.

After inviting many people to the stage and dismissing quite a few after thanking them for successful ability to suggestion, Mr. Kreskin proceeded to present a mildly interesting demonstration of hypnotism, again after assuring the audience that there was no such thing as hypnosis, and that all hypnotists, whether psychologists, psychiatrists, or plain garden variety hypnotists are all fakes, phonies, and frauds.

At the conclusion of the program, a sizeable portion of the audience had already left. This should indicate to Mr. Kreskin that he is not doing what he should be doing: entertaining!

Idahoans are not rude or ignorant as was intimated severely during his performance. They are, however, discriminating and know when a program is slow or dull, no matter how well known or famous the performer may be.

Parts of Mr. Kreskin's performance were superior, five star, tons! Unfortunately, those parts only totaled about 1/4 to 1/3 of the program.

Goose was domestic pet

Those guilty, please step forward. On Dec. 17, a snow machine or snow blower with a trailer carrying two snowmobiles stopped on Blue Lakes Blvd. Two young men in snowmobile suits got out to observe a large goose sitting pretty in the open field. After contemplating for some time, the men unloaded their snowmobiles and grabbed their rifles; in pursuit of this "innocent bird."

Well folks, the end to this story is the goose got away — wounded! My husband had to go out and put the poor bird out of his misery. This was not wild game, but a domestic pet goose. Next time you two avid hunters get a wild feather up your zoid, please consider it may be someone's pet. Shoot only in hunting season and stay off private property.

Why blame Mr. Stallings?

Mr. L.S. Tippet has, in recent days, twice attacked Mr. Stallings for his support of the latest farm bill. Quoting from his latest tirade "Your record of big spending and your support of this Farm Welfare Bill establishes what you stand for and I can be found at the extreme opposite end of the spectrum."

Why put all the blame on Mr. Stallings? The record shows that Mr. Craig, Mr. McClure and Mr. Symms supported the same legislation.

Yes, Mr. Tippet, I agree that eventually there will be very few farmers in this nation and that their profits will come from produce raised, but from special tax shelters enjoyed by limited partnerships.

U.S. presidency wrong job for Iacocca

DETROIT — In the spirit of this season, in which it is more blessed to give than receive, Lee Iacocca is being urged to make of himself a gift to the nation. He does not find the idea of being President either tiresome or disproportionate to his capacities, but although he is flattered by the attention he is repelled by the prospect. So he says: Now.

In the auto industry, the key word recently has been "down-size." Iacocca is in no way scaled down — not in physical presence or energy or ferocity. If confidence were chrome, he would be the human equivalent of a mid-1970s Chrysler Imperial. He wears the worst of the way roughnecks used to wear chain mail and he brandishes a cigar like a lance.

He is the conspicuous star of ubiquitous television commercials that may incidentally sell cars and certainly solve every politician's first problem: name recognition. As director of fund-raising for the restoration project, he is going steady with the Statue of Liberty, a romance sufficient to cause the most hardened political consultant to swoon.

Lots of people — none of them literary critics — are beating a path to his door to try to seduce him into politics. Some people think that is like seducing Catherine the Great, such is the strength of the tendency. But he combines cammishness with an oddly engaging ingenuousness and he knows that politics "is not my business."

George Will

Martin Van Buren was described, not admiringly, as one who approached power with muffed ears. People like Iacocca because nothing is muffed as he approaches anything.

People like his off-the-cuff pugnacity and they think they would like that attribute in a presidential candidate. But his say-it-and-see-what-happens spirit is what causes some professional politicians to say that the only way he could be elected is to nominate him in Barbados in the middle of October and keep him there for the next three weeks.

However, the professionals are speaking from vocational vanity. They probably are right, but it would be amusing for him to see if the nomination marathon can be, just once, an amateur's hour. People like his cantankerousness, so he could make it his tactic, even his platform. He could say: No way am I going to lose in winter. Or New Hampshire. My campaign will be part McKinley, part McLuhan. I will come out on my porch every day or so and snap at Sam Donaldson.

He is in tune with the times in that he resembles Ronald Reagan, in one particular: He has erased the line between public and private persons. That is all very well if you are, like Reagan, a placid jargonist. If you are, like Iacocca, a human emery board, you have to wonder whether you will wear well over the long haul.

Iacocca seems, if not dated, certainly sailing against the wind in his thinking about public policy. Most politicians economize ideas the way some farmers economize water, knowing the supply is not plentiful. Iacocca is a Roman candle of ideas for things Washington should do. Lots of them involve taxes — a value-added tax, a gasoline tax. On those he is probably right, but in politics that is no excuse. He also is hot for an "Industrial policy."

The country, however, is skeptical about agenda-setting in Washington. And the decline of liberalism is directly related to the perception that it has embraced what a critic calls the Quantity Theory of Policy — the more policy the better.

So, Iacocca for President? The answer probably is: Good man, wrong job. But, then, that is what Sam Rayburn said about another political newcomer — Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Mandela dragged from home

JOHANNESBURG—South Africa (AP)—Winnie Mandela, wife of jailed black leader Nelson Mandela, was dragged from her Soweto home at gunpoint by police Saturday when she refused to obey a government order to leave, witnesses said. A man who was among about 20 people in the house at the time said one policeman drew a pistol and pointed it at Mrs. Mandela's neck as she was forced out of her home into a waiting police car. "They dragged her and she was resisting by holding onto doors, onto anything she could put her hands on. One riot squad policeman put a gun behind her neck," according to the witness, who spoke on condition of anonymity. Police said Mrs. Mandela was let go after being taken from Soweto and was not in custody. A close family friend said lawyers told her Mrs. Mandela was safe, apparently staying with friends or relatives. In Pretoria, Law and Order Minister Louis L. Grange said in a statement that Mrs. Mandela's eight-year-old "banning order" had been relaxed and she was no longer banished to Brandfort, a small Orange Free State town. But the revised order still prohibited Mrs. Mandela from staying in the Johannesburg area, which includes the black township of Soweto, and six police officers arrived at midnight to tell her she had to move. Mrs. Mandela, a 50-year-old social worker, was confined to Brandfort in 1977 in a renewal of "banning" orders that also prohibited her from being quoted in South Africa, from meeting more than one person at a time, from attending gatherings and from being on school premises.

Mine blast in S. Africa injures eight

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP)—A mine blew apart a white family's passenger van on a crowded Durban street Saturday—wounding eight people, police said. The explosion demolished the minibus and sent glass and debris flying as Christmas shoppers scattered. Police said they did not know who was responsible. The incident came within hours of a threat by the guerrilla movement to intensify its battle against white rule in South Africa. "Someone threw a parcel under the vehicle and it exploded just about immediately," said a police spokesman, who talked on condition of anonymity, said Saturday night. "We now think it was a limpet mine, but we're not absolutely sure." The explosion was the fourth in Durban, an Indian Ocean port city, in the past two weeks and the first in a central shopping district. A mine was used Tuesday in an attack which badly damaged nine buses—a white-owned depot in a Durban black township.

Explosion leaves 3 dead

NAPLES, Italy (AP)—An explosion ripped through a petroleum storage depot in this port city on Saturday, killing three people, injuring at least 160, and touching off an oil-fueled blaze that raged into the night, officials said. From 700 to 800 firefighters were called in from throughout southern Italy to battle the blaze, and air tanker planes dumped fire-retardant foam on the flames, said Renato Profili, a spokesman for the Naples city government. Italy's minister of civil protection, Giuseppe Zamberletti, declared a state of emergency in the area, where the fire kept blazing in two dozen storage tanks more than 12 hours after the pre-dawn explosion. Thick columns of choking black smoke darkened the sky for 20 square miles over the Bay of Naples.

Bus takes plunge, up to 30 people die

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP)—A bus wedged off a road and plunged into a reservoir in southern Brazil Saturday, killing 20 to 30 people, highway police said. "Around 15 of the (more than) 40 passengers survived by forcing themselves out of the windows of the bus, submerged under 45 feet of water, and swimming to safety," said Policeman Joao Leitao from the town of Pirai, 80 miles southwest of Rio de Janeiro and close to the accident site. "The rest of the passengers were probably trapped inside the bus and drowned, but we haven't got an exact death count yet. Divers are trying to determine that now."

Drug case nets terms

BOISE (AP) — Two Boiseans who authorities say are at the center of the largest drug ring in Ada County history each have been sentenced to five years in prison.

But Fourth District Judge Duff McKee retained jurisdiction on the five-year sentences, which means he will review the case after the two have been in prison for 120 days and re-evaluate the sentences.

Daniel Woodmore, 31, and Nancy Purkey, 43, pleaded guilty earlier to conspiracy to possess methamphetamine with intent to deliver, conspiracy to possess marijuana with intent to deliver and possession of methamphetamine with intent to deliver.

The five-year prison sentences were handed down for the first two charges, and Wooduff gave them each suspended 10-year prison sentences and 10 years probation on the third charge.

Each also was fined $5,000, with all but $1,000 suspended.

Judge grants media plea to open hearing

BOISE (AP) — A 4th District judge has had second thoughts about barring the public and media from a hearing in the case of accused murderer Randall Bainbridge.

Judge Robert Rowell on Friday reversed an earlier decision to close the hearing, granting a request by the Idaho Press and the Boise Post that the hearing, scheduled Jan. 29, be open to the public.

Bainbridge and Lacey Sivak were convicted of first-degree murder and robbery in the 1981 slaying of Garden City gas station attendant Dixie Wilson. Sivak is on Death Row, but Bainbridge's conviction and concurrent life prison sentences were overturned by the Idaho Supreme Court.

"If we proceed, it's going to have to be in open court," Rowell said.

Based on legal tests of public access to court proceedings, the judge said he could no longer keep the hearing closed as requested by Bainbridge's attorney, Stewart Morris.

Morris said allowing the public and media into the proceeding could hurt his client's chances of receiving a fair trial.

Morris and Ada County Deputy Prosecutor Roger Bourne have refused to comment on the nature of the hearing.

Attorney Craig Storti, representing the Statesman and KTIB, said it was possible to assemble a fair and impartial jury should Bainbridge go to trial again.

Questioning prospective jurors and moving the trial could be expensive, but the First Amendment right of access to governmental proceedings is more important than cost or inconvenience, he said.

Greyhound asks for rate increase

BOISE (AP) — Greyhound Bus Lines wants to increase passenger rates 20 percent for most Idaho routes.

Company officials, based in Phoenix, Ariz., say the rate increase is necessary to recover losses during the last several years.

Rising insurance costs and increased competition by small carriers have contributed to the financial woes, company officials said.

Company officials said Idaho in-state fares are among the lowest in the nation.

Since Greyhound received its last rate increase of 20 percent in May 1983, out-of-state fares have continued to increase, officials said.

The company asked that new rates be effective Jan. 10.

Brother, sister are in crash

BOISE (AP) — Two Boise teenagers, a sister and brother, died when their car collided with a truck at an intersection west of Boise, Ada County officials said.

Laura Lyn Martin, 15, and Joel Thomas Martin, 13, were killed in the crash Friday afternoon, Deputy Coroner Dan Christian said. They were the children of Michael and Bobbie Martin of Boise.

Ada County Sheriff's Lt. Dale Woodcock said the youths were on their way home from a Christmas shopping trip at the time of the accident.

He said Miss Martin, who was driving the car, either did not stop at a stop sign or stepped and then pulled out into the intersection too soon to avoid being hit by the truck driven by Brad Johnson, 24, of Parma.

Johnson, who had a through street, "did everything he could to miss the car," Woodcock said. He said no citation would be issued.

Fog lifts; flight jam loosened

SEATTLE (AP) — Thousands of holiday air travelers grounded by dense fog scrambled for flights Saturday as the mist that surrounded the Seattle-Tacoma International Airport for three days finally lifted. But forecasters warned that more fog was expected Saturday night before a new weather system moves in Sunday to clear the area.

The fog that rolled in Wednesday cut visibility to less than 700 feet and forced the cancellation of many flights and delays of others.

Many incoming planes were diverted to Portland, Ore., and Yakima, where Avis and National car rental agents said they ran out of cars to rent to people wanting to drive to Seattle. Some passengers leaving Seattle were bused to Portland, 175 miles to the south, where fog was not a problem.

Others waited, watching the plane sleeping on their luggage, jamming at airport snack bars, restaurants and lounges and forming long lines at ticket counters.

Thousands were still stuck at the airport early Saturday, said Hampton, who could not estimate how many.

The fog hampered the delivery of Christmas cards and packages as workers at the Postal Service's airport facility struggled to get a million pieces of mail to their destinations. The Postal Service and private express cargo carriers were using trucks to get mail to airports at Portland, Spokane and San Francisco.

Blind murder suspect taken

OLYMPIA, Wash. (AP) — A suspect in a tavern slaying who was released from jail after slashing his eyeballs and being declared legally blind has been arrested while driving police said.

Robert George LaSalle, 41, charged with second-degree murder in the shooting death of Kelvin Green at a Salt Lake City bar, was arrested Thursday along Interstate 5, police said.

LaSalle, of Walla Walla, was on parole from Washington at the time he was charged in the Utah slaying. Following his arrest, he slashed his eyeballs, authorities said.

Judge David Dee was told the prisoner was legally blind and ordered him released from jail on the condition that he not leave his home. However, LaSalle reportedly was seen drinking and shooting pool in the bar where the slaying occurred, and he was ordered arrested.

Dear Abby/people

High-top sneakers, hanging earrings are just another fad

DEAR ABBY: It seems I'm always feeling like my daughter is 12 1/2, and I won't let her wear eye makeup—or these ugly high-top sneakers with shoelaces untied. She also wants to wear those hanging earrings that look like rosary beads. We fight every morning before she goes to school. All the girls in her class look exactly the same. I refuse to let my daughter look like that.

Who's nuts, me or the other mothers who let their daughters look like 18-year-old hookers? —LAURA, A "ROTCIEN" MOM

DEAR LAURA: Nobody's nuts. Although it's your perception that the girls in your daughter's room are 18-year-old hookers, it's just another fad that will fade when another "look" comes in. Remember the mini-skirt craze of the '60s allowed by the granny dress that came down to the ankles? Patience, mother, "and this too shall pass." DEAR ABBY: I have been going to a man for nearly a year. I am a widow and "J." has been divorced 15 years. We love each other very much. I'm a young 70, and he is 65, but he said age doesn't matter when you love a person. I was very lonely when I met J., as had not dated since my husband's death—18 years ago. J. has been kind to me. He takes me out to dinner and brings me flowers. There are a few things that bother me. He lives about 15 miles from me and won't give me his home phone number. I would like to have it in case of an emergency. I know the man he lives in, but he doesn't want to give me his home address. Not that I would go there, but I wonder why he's so secretive about these circumstances? —Abby, please comment about people who send wedding invitations to business acquaintances (or silently to the parents of one of the couple). As the wife of a professional man, I am getting fed up with receiving wedding invitations from people whose names I've never even heard!

DEAR COLORADO: You should have written "Regret" on the card and returned it with your name. None an invitation—especially when Whether you've heard the names before or not, it's ill-mannered to ignore a stamped, self-addressed envelope—is provided for a reply.

DEAR BOY: I recently received a wedding invitation that included a card and a stamped, self-addressed envelope for my reply. The card had a place to fill in the name and a box for "number of persons." There was no place allotted for any other information such as "Sorry, I cannot attend."

Rather than put a "zero" in the box for "number of persons attending," I didn't return the card at all. I feel a little guilty about not responding. What would have been the correct thing to do under the

Solstice vigil attracts 200

AMESBURY, England (AP) — About 200 sun-worshippers gathered for the winter solstice Saturday at Stonehenge, the 4,000-year-old stone monument in Salisbury Plain, but clouds obscured the view. Festivities from a nine-and-a-half-hour ceremony included a sunrise vigil and the mysterious double ring of 72 stones, thought to have been used in ancient worship and astronomical observation. Three police officers were on hand, but the gathering was peaceful. Violence marred this year's summer solstice at Stonehenge, when police attempted to hold an annual rock festival at the site. More than 500 people were arrested. The solstice is the time when the sun reaches its greatest distance from the equator, north or south, June 21 and Dec. 21, respectively. Stonehenge is about 80 miles southwest of London.

Kidnapped Briton pleads for release on tape

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Kidnapped British journalist Alec Collett urged British officials in a videotape made public Saturday to free Arabs held in Britain by Western extremists, will release him after nine months in captivity. "I assure you that time is short," Collett stressed.

His appeal came amid a Christmas flurry of efforts to secure the release of American and French hostages held by Shiite Moslem extremists in Lebanon.

Terry Walte, the Archbishop of Canterbury's envoy seeking to free four American captives, said in a telephone call to news agencies in Beirut that he wanted to meet with Collett's captors.

"As I'm here, I would like to meet face-to-face with those people who are holding Alec Collett and I hope they will contact me," he said without elaborating.

Walte returned to Beirut Friday for his third visit since launching a one-man mercy mission Nov. 13 and told a news conference he carried "just-and-fair-proposals" to put to the Americans' Shiite kidnapers. He has since gone underground to await contact with the extremists.

Collett was on a 10-minute videotape delivered to Beirut's leading Independent daily, Ann-Nahar, late Friday night and released Saturday.

He gave no deadline for freeing Arab-prisoners in Britain, and did not say what would happen to him if Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher's Conservative government refused to comply. The government has repeatedly declared it will not give in to extremist demands.

Evans' budget plans find little area support

BY DEAN'S MILLER
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Governor John Evans' budget plans drew little support from Magic Valley legislators who said Evans' ignoring political reality and drafting his budget with an eye on his race for the U.S. Senate. Evans, who is expected to challenge Sen. Steve Symms, R-Idaho, presented his $613-million budget for 1988 on public television Thursday night. This year's budget is $587-million. Evans said he will be looking for additional state revenues of more than $50 million by broadening the sales tax to include some services and other items that are now exempted. That additional money will mostly be used to pay off the deficit in this year's budget. He said he will work to have the six sales tax collections dedicated to education in the coming years. Legislators said there is little chance the sales tax will be broadened this winter. Other highlights of Evans' proposed budget include a 3.5 percent increase in public school funding; a $2.5 million increase for the Department of Health and Welfare; a $100,000 increase for the Department of Commerce coupled with a $250,000 economic development program to be run by the commerce department and the state's colleges and universities. Rep. Steve Antone, R-Rupert, who is the chairman of the Revenue and Taxation Committee, said Friday he expects Evans' proposal to be rejected. "I kinda have a little doubt about the sales tax, we've had that Revenue and Tax a few times. It just seems like a pile of people oppose each section," he said. He said the most vocal opponents of sales taxes are attorneys and arguing that it is a tax on a tax. But Antone said some form of tax increase is likely. "I think that there will have to be some sort of tax increase; services are cut and look at the facts." Rep. Gary Robbins, R-Dietrich, said Evans' going to be raised, it should be the sales tax.

Despite the criticism that a sales tax is regressive and hurts low-income people, Robbins said a higher grocery tax credit would ease the burden. "I would not be surprised if it just came out of the sky," he said. "I would favor taking the whole damn bunch. If you're going to take 'em, take 'em all." Robbins said he expects a sales tax increase. "I'm pretty sure we'll raise the sales tax. I don't like the damn thing, but you've got to go up there with an open mind and look at the facts." Sen. Laird Noh, R-Kimberly, said Evans' budget ignores the state's prison overcrowding problem and shows that the gov-error is keeping an eye toward his race with Symms. "If the governor's budget plan certainly doesn't provide any bold leadership in getting the state out of economic problems," Noh said. "It ignores options such as the cigarette tax and the head tax (a flat-per-person tax paid with income taxes)." Noh said he understood why Evans chose to raise the sales tax. "I understand that raising the rate is a logical way to go, but politically it's a difficult-than-raising the rate." Changes in the tax structure to reflect changes in the economy are due, he said. "The economy has shifted toward services." See BUDGET on Page B2

O'Leary may face staffing warning

13 teachers exceed NAA class size limit

By JANE ROBISON
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — O'Leary Junior High School may receive a warning in January from the Northwest Accreditation Association that puts its accreditation in jeopardy. O'Leary Principal Norman Wiseman said Friday he expects to receive the warning because 13 junior high teachers are assigned more than 160 students a day in their classes. The NAA said junior highs cannot assign more than 160 students per teacher in a day. Wiseman said at least two teachers have between 180 to 185 students, and most of the 13 teachers have 170 students. He blamed the high student count on inadequate staffing. "Last year, we should have been hiring another teacher because we were going up in enrollment. Instead, we lost a teacher and didn't replace the last one," he said. The high student load is for teachers in English, social studies and math, he said. Wiseman learned of the possible warning at a NAA conference in Nevada last week. He was one of 520 delegates reviewing schools in the seven-state, Northwest region. The states are Idaho, Washington, Oregon, Montana, Utah, Nevada and Alaska. Although Wiseman was not allowed to review schools from his own state, he said, he knows O'Leary is in jeopardy based on Northwest Accreditation standards and warnings sent to other schools in Oregon and Washington for the same infractions. Once the school receives the warning, it has three years to correct the problem or else have its accreditation pulled. Wiseman said O'Leary students are still receiving a good education. "The proof is how well we've done on the state proficiency test," he said. "I feel good about the results. We're ahead of the state and we're competitive with Boise students." The state proficiency test, passed by the state Legislature two years ago, requires all ninth graders to be tested in math, spelling, reading and writing. Wiseman released the scores, comparing O'Leary students with students statewide and from Boise. In math, the scores were 78.3 percent of students statewide passed, compared with 66 percent of Boise students and 84.9 percent of O'Leary students. In spelling, 79 percent statewide passed, compared with 84 percent of Boise students and 84.5 percent of O'Leary students. In reading, the scores were 88.1 percent statewide, 92 percent for Boise and 82.3 percent for O'Leary. In writing, the scores were 81 percent statewide, 85 percent for Boise and 86.2 percent for O'Leary.

AT&T to close stores in Twin Falls, Nampa

By BOB FREUND
Times-News writer

ENGLEWOOD, Colo. — AT&T Information Systems will close its Phone Center stores in Twin Falls and Nampa on Dec. 24, replacing them with toll-free phone numbers. The two Phone Center stores, which sell AT&T's telephones, aren't essential to the company's system, and the Twin Falls store was not profitable, said Diane Tipton, AT&T public relations manager for the Intermountain area. AT&T products are marketed widely through other retailers, such as the giant Sears Roebuck & Co. chain. "Today, with all the competition in the marketplace, we have to reduce our costs wherever we can," Tipton said. "This is a pretty routine thing." Four employees will be affected by the closing. They will have the opportunity to move to other jobs, she said. Although the familiar Phone Center is 115 Third Ave. East in Twin Falls will shut its doors, AT&T has opened a service agency at • See PHONE on Page B2

Council campaign costs released

By ANNETTE CARY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Mounting a winning campaign for the Twin Falls City Council did not come cheap in the 1985 elections. All three winners — Mary McClusky, Rick Carr and Jim Vickers — spent between $500 and $1,000 to put their names and faces before the public. Losing was not inexpensive, either. At least for a few of the candidates. Bobby Bopp spent $2,171, only to come in fourth. The Twin Falls Firefighters' Union donated $1,000 to candidates running for election in the November City Council races, making the union the single largest contributor in the campaign, candidate financial reports show. "It was a decision the membership made," said union President Ron Clark. "They unanimously voted and decided to appropriate that amount and divide it among the four candidates we thought most responsive to the needs of firefighters." Only one of the four candidates they supported, Vickers, won election to one of the three vacant council seats. Vickers is a former city fire battalion chief and was the most outspoken opponent of police and fire department consolidation who ran for election. The union gave $250 each to Vickers; former fire chief Bopp; former fire marshal Fred Higgins; and Elbie Vasquez, chairman of the Citizens' Committee • See CAMPAIGN on Page B2

TWIN FALLS — Residency of an indigent is the main issue standing between Twin Falls County and a $36,000 medical bill from the University of Utah Medical Center in Salt Lake City and Magic Valley Regional Medical Center in Twin Falls. The Board of County Commissioners in October denied an application from the hospitals to pay the bill for treating 35-year-old Larry Andrew Goodline, now residing in Twin Falls, who was wounded by a shotgun Aug. 23. After an appeal hearing Friday, the commissioners took the case under advisement. Attorney Christine Burdick, who represented Magic Valley Regional Medical Center, asked the county to pay $11,401 for Goodline's three-day stay at the hospital. The total bill had been $16,000, but it was reduced because the county pays bills only on Medicaid rates. Blackfoot attorney Dean Williams, who represented the University of Utah hospital, said Goodline was treated there from Aug. 23 to September. Goodline testified he "ran off" from the Utah hospital because he knew there were outstanding criminal warrants for him. He returned a week later, he said, because his wound became infected. The University of Utah hospital bill amounted to $21,737, Williams said. But using Medicaid rates, the hospital is seeking only $18,477 from the county. Under Burdick's questioning at the hearing Goodline said that prior to the shooting he had resided in Hanson for a month. Before that, he resided in Twin Falls for about three weeks, and before that in a prison in New Mexico. His assets before the shooting consisted of a truck and television set worth a total of $450, he said. After his release from the hospital, he had received subsequent medical treat- • See CLAIMS on Page B2

Idaho First to watch loan activities more closely

By BOB FREUND
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Idaho First National Bank will eye loan activities more closely and streamline staff under its new top operating officer, said Chairman Fred Humphreys, who heads parent company Moore Financial Group of Boise. Robert J. Lane, who accompanied Humphreys to Twin Falls to meet with area branch managers Friday, was selected Thursday to take the helm of the $3 billion bank effective Jan. 1. Part of the earnings problems common in loan losses in the first nine months of its fiscal year, Moore Financial Group had posted $17.7 million in its allowance for credit losses, three times the same period in 1984. Nonperforming loan totals continue to climb, and most of those loans are in The Idaho First National Bank, Humphreys announced at that time. Humphreys also repeated previous statements Friday that the bank's reserves are more than adequate to handle current losses. He also said Idaho First's problems generally are less than those of its competitors, despite large investment in agricultural and commercial loans. The Boise-based bank is the ninth largest farm lending bank in the country. Lane and Humphreys said they expect more large changes in the bank's lending standards. "Idaho First always has taken a cash-flow billion in assets. • See BANK on Page B2

CSI sets registration Jan. 8-10
TWIN FALLS — College of Southern Idaho registration for the spring semester will be held from 8:30 a.m. to 6:30 p.m. Wednesday through Friday, Jan. 8-10, at the Taylor Administration Building.

In addition to a budget that is already in the red, the superintendent said the economic picture is even bleaker because a state revenue shortfall as high as $26 million has been projected.

If that happens and the state orders a 5 percent holdback in funds, "we will be shorted in excess of $128,000 in May," Spiroupos said.

Classes will begin Jan. 13.

TWIN FALLS — A course concerning the process and problems of dying and death will be offered during the spring semester at the College of Southern Idaho as an evening class.

By far the biggest spender in the council race was Bopp. He spent $661 from his own and his wife's pocket.

Mayor Emery Peterson, who failed to win re-election, spent $765. He collected a total of $420 in small contributions and paid the remainder of the campaign bills himself.

Sun Valley council passes lower option tax

By DAVE LEWIS Times-News correspondent
SUN VALLEY - A proposal to lower the city of Sun Valley's local option tax on hotels...

resort area to compete successfully with other destination resorts. To help promote the town's economy, council members said they want to lower the combined tax to 9.75 percent.

The city projects the 3.75 percent tax will raise the estimated $330,000 it budgeted for the option tax for this fiscal year.

The council passed the reduction despite the rejection by the voters earlier this month of an attempt to change the tax to a about-based, 2 percent general sales tax as authorized by an amendment passed by the state Legislature in 1984 to the local option tax law.

The city had spent the last two years fighting a lawsuit from the Sun Valley Co. in an attempt to declare the tax unconstitutional. The Idaho Supreme Court upheld the tax, however, in a 5-4 vote this fall, and Lieder said she had had enough of the fighting.

Box Canyon development gains support

By KENNETH A. BROWN Times-News writer
GOODING - Comments at a public hearing in Gooding were generally supportive of a development plan for Box Canyon...

the canyon would divert all but 20 cubic feet per second of the canyon's water. In response to Hohnhorst's question, Bob Cordell, manager for the BLM's Monument Resource Area on the Shoshone District, said the current proposal from Hardy guarantees a minimum flow of 20 cubic feet per second, in addition to some other protective covenants.

Barl Hardy of Boise, who owns land above and below the U.S. Bureau of Land Management parcel, plans to divert water from the canyon for a trout hatchery in neighboring Blind Canyon and for a small hydroelectric plant.

Box Canyon is one of the few remaining "aloe" ecosystems on the Snake River in southern Idaho. The area also provides a habitat for three species of snails and one species of fish - the Shoshone sculpin - which are candidates for listing as threatened and endangered species.

Hagerman hikes water fees

By TERRELL WILLIAMS Times-News correspondent
HAGERMAN - The City Council has raised fees for hooking up or disconnecting water service from $25 to $75. Also, the time from notice of delinquent payment to shut off day has been reduced from 60 days to about two weeks.

Owley said later the only policy the city has is that if water is not paid for it is turned off. A Water Grievance Board, he said, is required by the state. Besides Hoffman, other members of the board are City Superintendent Richard Scruggs and City Clerk Rhonda Wickham.

Energy conservation helped Minidoka schools in black

By RONDA TAYLOR Times-News correspondent
RUBERT - Minidoka School Board patrons heard good news about the state of district finances and school utility bills at this week's board meeting.

"Energy usage is at half and the bill is at two-thirds at the junior high compared to last year," Merrill said. The board has worked with Bonneville Power Association-financed program to improve insulation and heating systems at specified schools.

School tardiness policy approved

By HOWARD MILLER Times-News correspondent
RICHFIELD - In an effort to curb tardiness, the Richfield School Board has adopted a plan for students to make up missed school time on weekends or other times set by the administration.

The plan expands the district's policy of having three unexcused tardies equal one unexcused absence. In the event of an unexcused absence, the student must spend two hours in detention - probably on Saturday.

 (of the figurines). "Felipe says, Maria Arriaga, who with her husband operates Arriaga's Basque Family Dining restaurant in Gooding, says the strongest Basque Christmas tradition has been for families to unite for Noche Buena. "All the family all come home and we had a really big dinner, I'm telling you," she says.
 In America, she says, travel is expensive and relatives living in California or back East are too far away to visit. Basque descendants often marry American natives and move out of Idaho, Maria says. And business can interfere with tradition, too, since she and Anastasio keep their restaurant open on Christmas Eve instead of getting together with their relatives in Castleford. They get together Christmas Day, however, says Anastasio.

 But in Spain, Maria says, travel doesn't cost much and the distance across the country is not great. Sons and daughters usually live at home until they are married, she says, and newswives tend to settle in their hometown or not far from it.
 "I don't think the people spread as much as here," Maria says.

Canyon

 per third of the canyon may be desirable, the BLM's ACEC status for its holdings requires it to manage the area as if the four candidate species were already listed as threatened and endangered species.
 If it is determined that Hardy's projects would have a negative impact on the four species, the agency may have to turn down his request for a right of way.
 If he is not granted right of way, Hardy has threatened to develop the canyon both above and below the BLM land - including the now untouched upper third.
 His agreement with the state, however, is conditioned on his obtaining licenses and permits from federal and state agencies for his development projects.

 In closing the session, Cordell told the group that the BLM is neither for or against Hardy's proposal, but is merely studying it. Very few proposals are approved as submitted, he added, and the agency will be working on developing mitigation measures for environmental impacts as it makes its decision.

Christmas brings smiles to generous faces

Civic groups aid area's unfortunate; adults, children alike enjoy season

Christmas has many faces. Just as the season holds different meaning for different people, so do activities and ways of expressing the holiday vary, not only from one culture to another, but among families.

Although Americans have traditions enriched by customs from many lands, some activities, such as those pictured here, are an important part of the season for many area residents.

These include caroling, trimming trees, preparing boxes of food and clothing for the needy, elderly and people without families, and the fun of gift exchanges — a popular event with many business as well as community organizations. Even regular activities, such as the story hour at the Twin Falls public library, takes on a Christmas mood when children brought their teddy bears.

Seventh Day Adventist church members of all ages donated several evenings a week the past few weeks to go caroling on Twin Falls streets. Several other school and church groups also follow this old English tradition of singing carols through the snow.

Remembering those who might otherwise be forgotten is a basic part of Christmas for many groups and individuals who assist the Salvation Army and Community Action Agency with their Christmas baskets. The Twin Falls American Legion Auxiliary annually packs boxes of goodies which they take to older veterans and families of veterans.

While trimming trees is primarily an individual, or family affair, a community tree means much participation. Jerome school children assisted in decorating the community tree by bringing decorations they made in school.

And people of all ages enjoy opening gifts, no matter their material value. Many service groups, such as the Red Cross Sawtooth Chapter Board, add this personal touch to their December meetings.

Retired farmer fills home with music despite loss of hands

By LORAYNE O. SMITH
Times-News writer

KIMBERLY — No one can play the piano without hands, Right? Wrong, if it's Curtis Bower, a retired farmer who played the violin before losing both hands in an accident many years ago.

Now 93, Bower can still fill his living room with music, temporarily turning his piano into a vibratrap, which he once played, by vigorously striking keys in harmonious sequence with the iron hooks which have been his hands for more than half a century. Holding down the sustaining pedal with his foot, he produces a facsimile of a real vibratrap, a percussion instrument which resembles a xylophone.

He and his wife, Madge, had many happy times together with their music before her death in 1978. They played at Grange meetings and occasionally at dances. His wife, whom he fondly referred to as "a dandy," played the piano, and he played both violin and vibratrap.

Although he spent his life as a "plain dirt farmer" south of Kimberly, Bower not only is musical, but artistic as well. Several of his paintings are displayed in his home, including an attractive scenic view of Jackson Lake.

He painted one of his last pictures only about four years ago.

Bower offers a key to growing old gracefully: "I never retired," he laughs. "I just finally quit."

But his story is one of quiet courage in mastering what could have been a severe handicap — by simply continuing to live a normal life.

Bower never let the loss of his hands, which occurred when a hay derrick tangled with an electrical line, killing another man, stop him more than temporarily. It took him "two years and eight months to get well," he says as he burns on his collar bone had to heal.

He did all the things he did before the accident, but "you just have to work harder," he said, adding stoically, "When you have to do something you do it."

He continued operating his farm, driving his car and stacking hay "fast enough to keep three plchers busy." He couldn't climb a ladder with his hooks, but would sit on hay slip and have the horses pull him up to the top of the stack.

Over the years, he wore out several sets of hooks continuing to farm and paint scenic views which caught his fancy.

Bower is a farmer by choice. After teaching school two years at the old Pleasant Valley Country school south of Kimberly, a young man he realized he was "too much of an outdoor guy," he says.

His father predicted he'd "starve to death" when he bought 180 acres where he still lives, because the land was so alkaline. But Bower knew that waste water was available and that water washes out the alkaline.

"I stayed with it," he says and built up the soil which has produced well.

He was a teenager when his parents came to this area in 1906 from Colorado where he was born June 10, 1892, in Routt County which he terms "cow country." His father ranched in the northwest part of the state and young Bowers rode cattle on the range.

But his dad wearied of the severe winters, so the family came to the Twin Falls tract where they grubbed sagebrush from a farm south of Kimberly. The land produced not only rattlesnakes but "scorpions," a poison spewing insect, until they started irrigating.

During the school year, the family lived on Sixth Avenue East in Twin Falls so he and his three sisters could attend school. He recalls the old Perrine Hotel had just one wing at that time, and I.B. Perrine, for whom the structure was named, as a boy he also had time to swim Owned a "nice house" on the corner of Sixth Avenue North and Shoshone Street where the First Christian Church now stands.

Bowers used to mow the lawn at could attend school. He recalls the site, then had to go to the hotel to collect his pay from one of Perrine's many business associates. But when the structure was named, as a boy he also had time to swim often in the Snake River.

After graduating in 1913 from the old "Twin Falls High School" on Shoshone Street, then only two years old, Bower attended the University of Idaho. But he had to drop out in mid-year because of lack of money, but still is pleased with the kind letter the college president gave him, saying he could be re-admitted at any time.

That winter he earned money taking residents for sleigh rides — once taking a load across the ferry at Shoshone Falls to Eden for a dance. He put planks on a converted wagon box to accommodate 12 passengers.

After he had decided to become a farmer he saw a neighbor girl, Marguerite "Madge" Akkin, whom he decided to woo and marry. They tied the knot in 1917. They had five children, three of whom are still living: Leonard Bower, who farms nearby; Bill Bower; Pocchetto, and Fern Hamlett, Twin Falls.

Bower taught a Bible class at the Kimberly Christian Church for 45 years and used to belong to the new defunct Pleasant Valley Grange.

He has 17 grandchildren, one of whom spends much time with him, and Leonard looks in on him daily. But Bowers still "takes care of himself" with an assist from the Senior Citizens meals on wheels program.

It's hard to remember Bowers is now crippled for he has lived an active and full life. The retired farmer says he's had a happy life, the loss of his hands notwithstanding, and is looking forward "to meeting his God."

Who says fancy desserts can't be easy?

Ingredients simple to use

One of the joys of the holidays is celebrating the season with family and friends. Whether the occasion is a casual get-together or a formal dinner party, choosing special desserts is important. The dessert you serve should be delicious, but easy to prepare since the holidays are the busiest time of year. The recipes given here are for four delicious desserts that are just that — elegant but easy.

The reason for the ease of preparation is the ingredients: unsweetened cocoa, peanut butter chips and sweetened condensed milk. Unsweetened cocoa provides delicious chocolate taste without the fuss of pre-melting; peanut butter chips offer the flavor of real peanuts and are conveniently poured right from the package and sweetened condensed milk, a pre-cooked blend of milk and sugar, supplies a creamy, no-cook base for many desserts.

Peanut Butter Chip Cheesecake offers the delicious combination of peanut butter and chocolate. Cocoa and graham cracker crumbs form a chocolate crumb crust for the cheesecake filling, which is made creamy with sweetened condensed milk and flavored with peanut butter chips. This elegant dessert can be made either in a rectangular baking pan or the traditional springform pan.

The popular flavors of chocolate and peanut butter are also combined in Peanut Butter Torte. The peanut butter chips are sprinkled throughout the torte and add a rich peanut butter taste to every bite. This special dessert needs only six ingredients and bakes in 25 minutes or less. Instructions for quick-cake-splitting are included. Chocolate Whipped Cream, easily made with cocoa, complements the peanut butter flavor of the torte.

Quick Black Forest Cake is as splendid to look at as it is delicious to eat. It's also easy to prepare since it requires only one bowl and little mixing. Simply combine the ingredients and bake. Because the cake is made with crumbs and nuts blended with sweetened condensed milk instead of flour, it is similar to dense textured European cakes. Cocoa, unsurpassed for giving cakes the great taste of chocolate, makes this dessert truly special. Layered, lightly frosted with whipped topping and crowned with cherry pie filling, this nutty, chocolate cake becomes moist as the flavors blend together in the refrigerator.

What's so holiday entertaining without candy? A variation of the popular chocolate truffle, Peanut Butter Truffles are a creamy blend of rich peanut butter chips, sweetened condensed milk, cream cheese and nuts or fruits.

The mixture is then shaped into balls and rolled in a combination of cocoa and confectioners' sugar. These truffles can be made several days ahead of time and stored in airtight containers in the refrigerator until ready to serve.

PEANUT BUTTER CHIP CHEESECAKE

- (Makes one 9-inch cheesecake)
- 1/4 cup margarine or butter, melted
  - 1 1/2 cups graham cracker crumbs
  - 1/2 cup cocoa
  - 1/2 cup sugar
  - 1 cup peanut butter chips
  - 2 (8-ounce) packages cream cheese, softened
  - 1 (14-ounce) can sweetened condensed milk (NOT evaporated milk)
  - 4 eggs
  - 1 teaspoon vanilla extract
  - Whipped cream and chocolate curls or shavings, optional

Preheat oven to 300 degrees. Combine margarine, crumbs, cocoa and sugar; press firmly on bottom of 9-inch springform pan or 13x9-inch baking pan. Melt chips in top of double boiler over hot, not boiling, water. Meanwhile, beat cheese until fluffy. Gradually beat in sweetened condensed milk and melted chips until smooth. Add eggs and vanilla. Pour into prepared pan. Bake 50 to 60 minutes or until cake springs back when lightly touched. Cool to room temperature. Chill thoroughly. Garnish with whipped cream and chocolate curls or shavings if desired. Refrigerate leftovers.

PEANUT BUTTER TORTE

- (Makes 10 to 12 servings)
- 6 eggs, separated
  - 1/2 cup sugar
  - 1 teaspoon vanilla
  - 1/2 cup unsweetened all-purpose flour
  - 1/2 cup packaged plain bread crumbs
  - 1 cup peanut butter chips, chopped

Last-minute gifts put wrap on a joyous Christmas Present

Remembering Christmas pasts is sort of like opening a drawer you've stuffed full of mementos of the past (a reality at my house!) and pulling out a card from one year, a picture of another, an angel with a broken wing, if of those little hooks to hold ornaments (what you couldn't find when putting up the tree), a crumpled note to Santa, cookie crumbs, a spilled glue and a recipe from your mom.

These memories are like bubbles in a glass of champagne. They can't be held in your nose, make you laugh or even get a little teary-eyed. But every year you have to open them to make.

Time makes all the trees of the past bend

Nancy Joy Jones Valley cooking

into one, all Christmas Eves picture-card white, and picking a favorite present or a favorite Christmas impossible. It's important that we let the gifts of Christmas Past slide into our celebration of Christmas Present. It gives us a frame for today.

I remember when we used to put the Christmas tree in the playpen! I also remember my first grown-up Christmas away from home (I had to work, and answered the phone bawling all day). I vividly remember a Christmas Eve during World War II (of course, I was very young!) stuck in the Kansas City train depot overnight because a raging blizzard kept even taxis stranded and the loudspeaker kept playing the newest release "I'm Dreaming of a White Christmas" by Bing Crosby while Mom and I tried to nap along with others on the benches.

We've even gone through our first Christmas without all the kids at home. It was the year eldest daughter spent as an exchange student in New Zealand. She called from the warm, sunny beach! This year, they all will be here, but I have an idea this might be the last for a bit, as they all try their wings. We now have a college graduate! She'll be home for awhile, but she's young and single, and it looks like she's going to take advantage of it. I wonder what she'll send us from Australia?

Well, back to the present Christmas: I'm cooking stuff for the holidays because everyone will have a friend or two over and that brings our mealtime attendance anywhere from two to 12. And you know, kids sometimes just show up to eat when the fancy strikes them — like after skiing, after breakfast, after lunch, after dinner, after hours — but not necessarily when you are expecting them!

A couple of years ago, a friend gave me a meal-in-a-box which turned out to be a lifesaver between Christmas and New Year's. It's something you can do if you still have a gift to give for a whole family. Here are a couple of combinations. Put all the ingredients in a box or a basket or even a ketle. Write out the recipe for the card, and you have a gift.

Cookbook gifts give cooks plenty of food for thought

By JOAN BEAN
Times-News correspondent

TWIN FALLS — The rush is on. Shoppers are frantically looking for just-right gifts for Aunt Mary, Uncle Harry, Sister Bess, Mom — and the list is endless.

Gifts of cookbooks might please at least some of these people. A new collection of recipes is always nice to receive and will be used and appreciated for years to come.

There are plenty of the tried and true stand-bys on the market, such as "The Better Homes and Gardens Cookbook" for $16.95, published by Meredith, and "The Joy of Cooking," by Irma Rombauer, published by Bobbs-Merrill.

But, for those who want to be more specific, there is the "H.P. Microwave Cookbook," by Pat Jeske, an oversized paperback, for $14.95. This highly acclaimed book has a wealth of microwave cooking information and recipes.

For the pasta lover, there is "The New Complete Book of Pasta," $12.95, by Marie and Jack Scott, a hard cover published by Morrow. Included among the recipes for dishes like Spaghetti with Baby Squid and Green Noodles are pictures of places and buildings in Italy.

There are several cookbooks about "bed and breakfast" cooking. "Breakfast with a View" by Breakfast Cookbooks, a Manhattan-based publisher of regional favorites from America's most famous bed and breakfast inns, $9.95, by Pamela Lander, published by Running Press. It is printed on cream-colored parchment and contains sketches of some of the inns.

"A new and different gourmet cookbook not only gives recipes from the San Francisco Bay area's best caterers, restaurants and dessert companies, but provides dinner music by the San Francisco String Quartet on a cassette tape. This book also talks about other important things, like how to bust toast, along with a warning to remember my first grown-up Christmas away from home (I had to work, and answered the phone bawling all day). I vividly remember a Christmas Eve during World War II (of course, I was very young!) stuck in the Kansas City train depot overnight because a raging blizzard kept even taxis stranded and the loudspeaker kept playing the newest release "I'm Dreaming of a White Christmas" by Bing Crosby while Mom and I tried to nap along with others on the benches.

We've even gone through our first Christmas without all the kids at home. It was the year eldest daughter spent as an exchange student in New Zealand. She called

Party-giving planning essentials include freezeable hors d'oeuvres

By JOAN BEAN
Times-News correspondent

TWIN FALLS — The process of preparing for a party is not a chore for Penny O'Keefe. It's her specialty, and she loves it. And, by working on the hors d'oeuvres several days in advance, she is also able to relax and enjoy the get-together.

"If you're planning a big party," she says, "you can't start out Saturday morning making 10 hors d'oeuvres for Saturday night. There's no way you would make it."

"So, I make something on Monday and something on Tuesday, and just keep putting it back in the freezer. That way, when it comes to the act of preparation, you might have to just put a few things together and put it in the oven for the hot ones, or just put a few things together from the refrigerator — and you're ready."

She has had plenty of experience with entertaining, even though she has had only about two parties a year since moving to Twin Falls six years ago. Originally from San Antonio, Texas, she and her husband, Tim, lived in Peekskill, N.Y., for three years, where they had had two parties a weekend.

"We didn't need much of an excuse here to have a party ... Groundhog Day or anything. It's really social there. So, there was more opportunity to do this type of thing, whereas here, it's a different way of life," she says.

The O'Keefes also lived in Gig Harbor, Wash., for a year. In both Washington and New York, she was able to obtain fresh seafood, which goes into the hors d'oeuvres she enjoys most.

Because Twin Falls is landlocked, she now relies on canned or frozen seafood. Otherwise, the O'Keefes smoke their own trout and cut them into small pieces for hot or cold hors d'oeuvres.

The word "entertaining" also has another meaning for O'Keefe: She is a member of the Ho-tee-ya (peaceful earth) Middle Eastern belly dance troupe. She and five others perform at the Elks, Rotary and Optimist clubs, for birthdays, at the Blue Lakes Mall, and for the residents of Hazeldel and Skyview — their best audience, she says.

Otherwise, her time is taken up with caring for her three children and her work as a La Leche League leader.

She uses a recipe from the L.L. Cookbook to make the pita bread for party sandwiches.

Preheat oven to 450 degrees
1 tablespoon yeast

1 1/2 cups whole wheat flour
2 1/2 cups warm water
1 1/2 teaspoons salt
1 tablespoon oil

To make dough, dissolve yeast and honey in the water. Add salt, oil and four cups flour. Knead 5-10 minutes. Let rise until doubled — about one hour. Then punch it down and divide it into 12-20 equal pieces (depending on how large you want the pita bread. Roll each one into a ball and flatten it out to about 1/4" thick. Place on a greased cookie sheet and let rest 30-45 minutes. Just before baking, turn them over. Bake 8-10 minutes. Switch position of pans half way through — in other words — the one that is on top, put on the bottom, and vice versa. The 450 degree oven is what makes the bread puff up and make a pocket. These freeze well.

She then cuts the bread in half and spreads cream cheese on the inside and fills it with cooked shrimp and some alfalfa sprouts. Next, she pours a little bottled cucumber dressing on top of that.

"It makes a great sandwich," she says.

A popular hors d'oeuvre is one which she says looks like, but is not, a pizza.

CRAB PIZZA
 11 ounces softened cream cheese
 2 tablespoons Worcestershire sauce
 2 tablespoons lemon juice
 2 tablespoons mayonnaise
 1 small finely grated onion
 Dash of garlic powder
 Put mixture on a dinner size plate, and spread out flat — to look like a crust — in a brownie tin to chill. On top of that, put half a bottle of chili sauce (to resemble tomato sauce). Spread it almost, but not quite, to the edge. Top with 6 ounces of crab meat, and snip fresh parsley over the top of it. It will look like a pizza. This is spread on crisp crackers.
 "It's delicious, and it's real easy to make," she says.
 The following hors d'oeuvre recipe, which O'Keefe created herself, has no name.
 Take two cans of deviled ham, and mix with one package of cream cheese. Add 1 teaspoon mustard and about 1 tablespoon finely chopped

2 egg whites
 1 cup sugar
 Dash of salt
 Spread the pecans on a cookie sheet and toast in oven for 10 to 15 minutes.
 Melt the margarine in a 9x13-inch pan.
 Beat the egg whites until stiff. Add the sugar and salt and beat until peaks form. Add nuts to this meringue and spread in the pan with the melted margarine.
 Bake for 30 minutes, stirring every 10 minutes. Cool on a sheet of foil. Package in a jar.
 This next is a variation. Preheat oven to 275 degrees.

SPICED NUTS
 1 pound pecans, shelled and halved
 1 cube butter, melted
 2 teaspoons cinnamon
 1 teaspoon nutmeg, fresh ground if possible
 1/2 teaspoon ginger, ground
 1/2 teaspoon salt
 1 teaspoon sugar
 Combine the spices, sugar and salt. Stir half of this mixture into the melted butter. Toss the nuts in this butter mixture. Then spread in a baking pan and bake for 10 to 15 minutes. They should brown a bit.
 Remove the nuts from oven and toss with remaining spice mixture. Spread out to allow to drain and cool before putting them into jars.
 "Both these recipes are good. Someday, I'm going to take the time and combine them because I think that might work.
 From our home to yours, we wish you all a Merry Christmas. Enjoy every moment of it!

NACHO PACKAGE
 For 2 large bags (tortilla) chips
 1 can (4 ounce) diced green chilies
 1 or 2 packages nacho cheese mixes
 1 jar prepared salsa
 Recipe: Spread chips in a brailer pan, spread top with diced chilies and mix the cheese according to directions and spread on top. Serve with salsa or sour cream.

Okay, do you see how it works? Now make up your own. Perhaps one for tacos, how about one for chili or a pasta salad? Just take one of your recipes and find as many prepared ingredients as you can and put them together.
 If you still need a quick holiday gift, here are a couple of things you can do with shelled pecans. Preheat oven to 325 degrees.

SWEDISH NUTS
 1 pound pecans, shelled and halved
 1 cube margarine

 The following hors d'oeuvre recipe, which O'Keefe created herself, has no name.
 Take two cans of deviled ham, and mix with one package of cream cheese. Add 1 teaspoon mustard and about 1 tablespoon finely chopped onion. Wash and thinly slice about four unpeeled, medium sized cucumbers. Spread the mixture on each slice.

 "Instead of having a cracker, you've got the cucumber on the bottom. You get kind of tired of something on a cracker, and this way, in a cucumber, you've got a fresh vegetable, and it looks real nice," she says.
 For an extra fancy touch, a pastry bag with a decorative tip or an electric decorating gun may be used to apply the mixture to the cucumbers. They must be dried off well or it will not stick.
 She says the following is a delicious dip for any raw vegetable.

DILL DIP
 Mix together:
 1 1/2 cups sour cream
 1/2 cup mayonnaise
 2 tablespoons Dijon mustard
 1/2 cup fresh dill or 1 teaspoon dry dill
 1/2 cup thinly sliced green onion
 2 teaspoons lemon juice
 1/2 teaspoon salt
 1/2 teaspoon pepper
 Combine and chill a couple of hours before using, so the flavors will blend. Serve with cut up vegetables.
 For a holiday get together, O'Keefe often makes the following punch.

 plan ahead by removing the butter from the refrigerator for at least one hour "so it will be perfectly spreadable."
 "It also tells what to do for spur-of-the-moment toast, and the gloomier aspects of this project. "Trying to spread a cold pat of butter on warm toast is a nightmare," say the authors. "If the butter doesn't tear it altogether, the press of the butter will bruise and batter the surface beyond the bounds of acceptable comfort food."
 For friends or relatives who have coffee tables in their kitchens — and even for those who haven't — there are lots of beautiful, full-color cake, pastry and dessert cookbooks, suitable for display. Along with their lovely covers, these large books are filled with color pictures.
 A new one this year is called "Cakes and Pastries" ($19.95) by Christian Teubner, Jacques Schrette and Hannelore Blohm, published by Hearst Books. It has step-by-step photos, and there are basic recipes, fillings and the art of decorating, as well as how to cut a cake.
 And, for the person who literally has everything, there is "The Millionaire's Diet" ($7.95) by Loyd Grossman, published by Signet House. On its shining gold and silver cover is pictured a butter, wearing white gloves, holding a large silver tray, with what appears to be smoked salmon and a glass champagne. It claims to be the most effective diet ever devised for those who can not live without delicious food and drink, and has recipes for foods like Caviar Smoked Salmon and Caesar Salad.
 Definitely different is Paul Kov's "Transylvanian Cuisine — History, Gastronomy Legend and Lore from middle Europe's most remarkable region" ($15.95), published by Signet. The author, who is Transylvanian, is co-owner of the famed Four Seasons Restaurant in New York. Among the 300 recipes in the collection are Braised Lentils (a bird) With Blueberries, Field Soup Partridge, Kohlrabi, and Stuffed with Calves' Brains, strouds, pastries and Armenian Spinach Pancakes.
 A cookbook gift is easy on the giver, because it is not only unbreakable, but it's a pinch to wrap and mail.

Souping up January observes food event

WASHINGTON (AP) — For those who keep track of commercial food events and enjoy the gastronomic gusto of participating in them, the Agriculture Department offers some wintertime reminders: January, for example, is National Soup Month.
 The January theme, says the holiday issue of Food News magazine, published by USDA's Food Safety and Inspection Service, is: "A safer approach to well-being" — a celebration of the historical and versatile role of soup.
 "It may come as no surprise that the 'contact' for National Soup Month is the Campbell Soup Co., Camden, N.J."
 And there will be National Meat Week, Jan. 20-Feb. 21, with its theme, "Meat—a food for fitness."
 The contact is the American Meat Institute, Washington, D.C.
 February will be Potato Lover's Month, the eighth annual "tribute to America's favorite vegetable." For more information contact the Potato Board, San Francisco, Calif.
 The 30th annual celebration of the century-old alliance of Bauerkraut- and Frankfurter-will be during National Kraut- and Frankfurter Week on Feb. 13-22, says the National Kraut Packers Association, St. Charles, Ill.
 March will be the American Nutrition Month, says the American Dietetic Association, Chicago, Ill. And it will also be National Peanut Month, according to the National Peanut Month Promotion Committee, Titon, Ga.

Idaho Power Temperature Comparison Table

When you look in the bottom left corner of your bill and find that your actual electricity consumption this year compared to last year is not what you expected, it might be explained by the difference in temperatures. No matter how hard you work to conserve electricity, your actual use may increase simply because of an extra-cold winter or an extra-hot summer. The temperature comparisons below can help explain those unexpected differences. The information compares average temperatures during November, 1985 and November, 1984.

Location	This year is:
Boise	11.9 degrees colder
Twin Falls	10.2 degrees colder
Pocatello	8.9 degrees colder

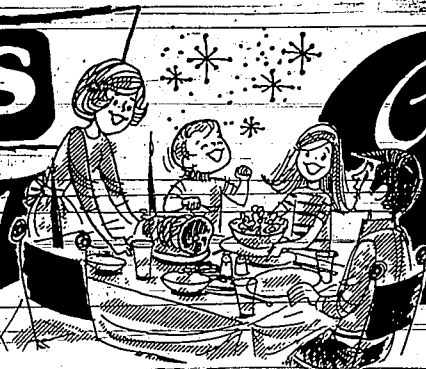

This information is based on a calendar month. Since your bill is based on a cycle month, it probably won't coincide exactly with the information given above. If you would like to find out exactly how temperatures this year compared with last year during your particular billing cycle, call the energy management representative at your local Idaho Power office.

Holiday season delivers special refunds on toy purchases

By MARTIN SLOANE
United Feature Syndicate

Don't throw away the toy boxes. Hang on to those cash-register receipts. For every toy you purchased—no matter how big or small—there may be an unexpected bonus! If you purchased a Fisher-Price

Supermarket shopper

...you may be in luck. On your next trip to the supermarket, look for the Fisher-Price Tie-Tac-Toy rebate forms on the backs and sides of several Quaker cereals, including Life, Corn Bran, Puffed-Rice and Puffed-Wheat, as well as Quaker 100-Percent-Natural cereal. The rebates range from $1.50 to $25 on more than 30 popular children's toys. You can collect up to $150 in rebates. The offer expires March 31, 1986. If you purchased a Barbie doll,

Barbie's Glamour Home or furniture or a Wheeled Warrior Trail Blazer or Battle Base, check the back of the box of Carnation hot cocoa mix and you will find a mail-in form for rebates that range from $1 to $5 on nearly 100 toys. You can collect up to $17 in rebates. This offer expires June 15, 1986. These offers can be an added savings for smart shoppers who purchase their toys after the holiday sales. Just in case you are still looking for a child's gift, a walk down the supermarket aisles can offer you additional opportunities, such as the free set of Legos that I found attached to two tubes of Crest

Toothpaste. Do you know a child who would like a Berenstain Bears Book? Sending one is as simple as filling in the form on the back of specially marked packages of Aunt Jemima Complete Buttermilk Pancake Mix. This offer expires Jan. 31, 1987, so you can expect to see these packages on the shelves for some time, but don't wait too long. Once the specially marked packages are gone, you won't see them again. This week's Smart Shopper Award goes to Gertrude Craig of Faber, Va., "I never go grocery shopping without my coupon-saver file in hand. I recently found an unadvertised special on Ban Sold, which was on sale for $1.50. In my file, I had a "Ban" coupon, so my cost at the checkout counter was only $1. When I got home, I found a refund form that offered a $1.59 refund in return for that one proof of purchase. I think this was quite a bargain!" Would you like to save on your next Ban purchase, like Gertrude did? Then send for a Ban refund request form which, when sent in with the required proof of purchase, can bring you a refund of $1.89. To receive the mail-in form, send your name, address and ZIP code to: BAN Sold $1.89 Refund Offer, P.O. Box 14345, Baltimore, MD 21268. This offer expires May 31, 1986, but readers should send for the refund form as soon as possible. While waiting for the refund form to arrive, be sure to check supermarket and drugstore advertisements for sales on Ban. Gertrude and other readers whose smart shopping experiences appear in this column receive a copy of my book, "The Guide to Coupons and Refunds." Write to me in care of this newspaper.

Chocolate whipped cream (recipe follows)
Preheat oven to 325 degrees. Line bottom of two 8-inch round cake pans with wax paper; set aside. Beat egg whites in large mixer bowl until foamy; gradually add 1/4 cup sugar, beating until thick and light in color. Gently fold in vanilla, flour and bread crumbs, blending well. Fold in 3/4 cup of the chopped peanut butter chips and about 1 cup beaten egg whites, gently fold egg white mixture into remaining whites. Spoon mixture into prepared pans; spread evenly.

Bake for 20 to 25 minutes or until top springs back when lightly touched. Place cake in pan upside down on wire rack which has been covered with a clean cloth dusted with confectioners' sugar; cool completely. Turn right side up; loosen edges with metal spatula. Turn out of pan onto cutting board; remove wax paper. With long serrated knife, using a sawing motion, cut each layer in half horizontally to form 4 thin layers.

Preparation: Chocolate Whipped Cream. Place one cake layer on serving plate. Spread with 1/4 cup Chocolate Whipped Cream. Repeat layering with remaining three cake layers and Chocolate Whipped Cream, ending with cream. Sprinkle remaining peanut butter chips on top around outer edge. Cover and chill at least 8 hours before cutting. (For ease in cutting use a serrated knife.)

Chop by hand or in nut chopper; do not use a food processor or blender.

Chocolate Whipped Cream
3/4 cup sugar
6 tablespoons cocoa
1 1/2 cups whipping or heavy cream
1/2 teaspoon vanilla
Combine sugar and cocoa in large mixer bowl. Add cream and vanilla; beat until stiff.

To avoid 'la turista,' skip the ice

By SCIENCE DIGEST
A Hearst Magazine

Holiday and winter travelers who follow the sun south of the border can help give la turista the cold shoulder by skipping the ice in their drinks or sticking to beer.

Ice cubes can be the culprit in cases of traveler's diarrhea, according to an article in the January issue of Science Digest, and neither alcoholic beverages nor cola drinks will kill all the microbes that cause it.

That's what a group of microbiologists at the University of Texas Medical School found when they set up a study to learn how enteropathogens — the bacteria that cause la turista and typhoid fever — survive in melting ice cubes.

Researchers D. Lynn Dickens, Herbert Du-

Pont and Phillip Johnson froze different bacterial pathogens, including Escherichia coli, Shigella flexneri and the bug that causes typhoid, Salmonella typhi.

The liquids they tested included bottled drinking water, a cola drink, club soda, 80-proof scotch, scotch and soda mixed one to two, and 80-proof tequila.

Contaminated ice cubes were frozen at minus 20 degrees Celsius for five hours, 24 hours and one week, then melted and studied. The scientists found that the longer the cubes were frozen, the more bacteria were killed — but some always survived.

Next step was to put contaminated ice cubes into beakers containing the test liquids, stir, and study after melting.

With bottled water, 100 percent of the bacteria that survived freezing also survived dunking. Club soda had virtually no effect. Cola inhibited bacteria, scotch and soda did better and straight scotch was even more effective. The top bacteria killer was straight tequila.

"The alcohol content is the important factor," DuPont said, "but people don't drink strong liquor like tequila straight with ice."

Ice may not be a major factor in illness caused by E. coli and Salmonella, because only high concentrations cause infection. Shigella, however, is a low-dose pathogen that causes about 15 percent of cases of traveler's diarrhea in Mexico — and it survives relatively well in ice. Travelers might be wise to take their drinks straight or stick to beer.

Travelers should not take preventive medication against 'la turista,' according to a National Institutes of Health consensus conference.

Buying seafood sensibly

You don't have to bait your hook and man your fishing pole to enjoy the taste of fresh fish. Even in landlocked cities, fresh fish counters are springing up everywhere. That's good news for the weight conscious, according to Better Homes and Gardens Low Calorie Recipes, 1986.

A 3-ounce portion of a cooked white fish such as flounder contains fewer than 200 calories (that includes a little butter to lightly brush over the fish during cooking). That amount of fish has 7 grams of fat, 78 milligrams cholesterol, and 201 milligrams sodium.

There's more to choosing a fish than deciding whether it's big enough to be a keeper. You want a fish of the finest quality, and the following suggestions will help you get a great catch every time.

Skin — Look for shiny, bright-colored skin that is lightly drawn to the flesh. The skin fades as the fish deteriorates and serves as your clue that a fish is past its prime.

Flesh — Press the flesh lightly with your finger. A fresh fish will have a firm, elastic feel. The flesh should spring back when you remove your finger. In addition, if you're buying a steak, fillet, or chunk, look for moist rather than dry edges.

Eyes — Check the fish's eyes. Clear, bright, bulging eyes indicate that fish is fresh, but still be bewildered at the fish counter. With the multitude of fish varieties available, it's hard to know which one is most likely to please your palate.

Trial and error is the best test, but to steer you in the right direction we assigned a group of tasters to sample some common fish. They came up with the following descriptions of taste, texture and color. Use them to help decide which fish to try on your next shopping trip.

Bluefish — chewy, firm, and moist; gray flesh.

Butterfish — slightly oily taste; soft texture.

Catfish — very soft, moist flesh that doesn't flake.

Cod — tender with mild flavor.

Chin salmon — orange-pink flesh; very rich taste.

Mackerel — bold flavor; dark flesh.

Georgia Southern rallies to win I-AA crown

TACOMA, Wash. (AP) — Georgia Southern Coach Erk Russell said there wasn't a doubt in his mind.

"Sure, I thought we had just enough time to win it at the end," Russell said.

The Eagles scored on a 13-yard touchdown strike from Tracy Ham to Frankline Johnson with 10 seconds left for a come-from-behind 14-12 victory over Furman for the NCAA Division I-AA football championship Saturday.

Furman led 28-6 in the third quarter, fell behind and regained a touchdown run, a four-yard scamper

Diamond Bowl

College football

with 3:32 remaining to complete an 89-yard drive in seven plays.

Ham, a 5-foot-10, 185-pound junior from High Springs, Fla., ran Georgia Southern's triple-option offense to perfection, accumulating for 569 of his team's 640 total yards by completing 23 of 37 passes for 419 yards and running 19 interceptions. He passed for four touchdowns, all in the second half.

Tracy had excellent protection all day," said Russell, "but he really played an excellent game."

Ham's game-winning loss capped a drive that covered 72 yards in nine plays, including a 53-yard pass from Ham to Johnson that put the Eagles at Statesboro, Ga., on the Furman 29.

"It was an all-team effort," Ham said. "I know I couldn't ask for better protection from my offensive line."

For the Paladins of Greenville, S.C., Coach Dick Sheridan was downcast.

"I hurt so badly for my players," he said. "We're all so very disappointed. We played extremely well."

There were several opportunities for each team late in the game, and Georgia Southern took advantage of theirs.

A crowd of 5,306 fans turned out to watch the game, dubbed "the Diamond Bowl" in the Tacoma Dome. The Paladins countered Sponsors said at least 12,000 were needed to break even.

The Division I-AA championship game is scheduled in the Tacoma Dome again next year.

Ham's other touchdown passes were a 24-yarder to Monty Sharp and a 40-yarder to Johnson in the third quarter and a 13-yarder to Herman Barron in the fourth quarter.

The Ham-Barron toss came quarter back Lamb had one scoring pass, a 33-yarder to Larry Grady that put Furman in front 28-6 at the end of the third quarter.

Furman led 21-6 at halftime.

Bagwell with 7:51 to go and Kevin Esval's extra-point kick tied the score at 35.

Georgia Southern went ahead 38-35 on a 39-yard Tim Foley field goal with 3:37 on the clock.

Ham, who also ran for a two-point conversion in the third quarter, outduelled Bobby Lamb, Furman's quarterback. Lamb had one scoring pass, a 33-yarder to Larry Grady that put Furman in front 28-6 at the end of the third quarter.

Furman led 21-6 at halftime.

Fumble-fingered Orangemen succumb to Maryland, 35-18

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — It was a dream ending to an uphill college career for Maryland quarterback Stan Gelbaugh in the Cherry Bowl game Saturday.

Gelbaugh ran for one touchdown and passed for two in the 20th-ranked Terps took advantage of five Syracuse turnovers for a 35-18 victory over the Orangemen.

"Except for the one play in the intercepted pass in the third quarter, he played as near a perfect game as I've ever seen a quarterback play," Maryland Coach Bobby Ross said of Gelbaugh. "Stan had a very fine day."

Gelbaugh, a 6-foot-3, 207-pound senior, had to wait in line behind first Boomer Esiason and then Frank Reich before he finally got the Terps starting job. He even tried out as a wide receiver at one point, he wanted so badly to play.

"This is the end of my career at Maryland, but I hope it's not the end of my football career," said Gelbaugh, who was named the Offensive Player of the Game.

Gelbaugh completed 14 of 20 passes for 223 yards with one interception. He also ran three times for 19 yards.

Cherry Bowl

period.

Defensive tackle Scott Tye scored on an 8-yard fumble return and halfback Alvin Blount had a 20-yard TD run for the Terps.

"I think we played offensively very sharp," Ross said. "Defensively, we weren't as sharp as we'd like to be. But then, part of that has to be Syracuse's quarterback, Don McPherson. He did some things, he's a helluva athlete."

Robert Drummond had a 10-yard TD run for Syracuse, McPherson had a 16-yard scoring run and Don McAulay kicked a 26-yard field goal for the Orangemen.

McPherson, who was 6-2 during the regular season after taking over as the starter in the fourth game, completed 18 of 30 for 204 yards with three interceptions. He ran for 11 yards on 21 carries, mostly on option plays.

"I think it was we made the kind of mistakes that cost you," said McPherson, a 3-6-3, 180-pound sophomore. "It was a matter of trying to find something that wasn't there."

Blount led all rushers with 132 yards on 24 carries.

Golden Gophers overhaul Tigers, 20-13, even without Coach Holtz

SHREVEPORT, La. (AP) — Sophomore Ricky Foggie and Foggie's position for Chip Lohmler's game-winning 19-yard field goal and Valdez Baylor's 19-yard drive in the final 11 minutes as the Golden Gophers defeated Clemson in the Independence Bowl Saturday night in John Gitekunst's head coaching debut.

Foggie, who comes from Waterloo, S.C., about 50 miles from Clemson, carried three times for 39 yards and a 22-yard pass to tight end Craig Otto on third-and-11 to set up Lohmler's 19-yard field goal with 10:45 remaining.

On Minnesota's next possession, Foggie passed to tight end Melvin Anderson for 10 yards and flanker Gary Couch for 14 before Baylor, who had runs of 16 and 12 yards on the drive, leaped over the top for the winning score with 4:45 left.

The 41-year-old Gitekunst, who had been Minnesota's defensive coordinator, took over the head coaching duties barely two weeks ago when Lou Holtz left to replace Gerry Faust at Notre Dame.

The victory elevated the Gophers to finish the season with a 7-5 record, the first winning season since 1977, which also was the last time Minnesota went to a bowl game.

Clemson, which had the ball over four times, including each of its first three possessions, wound up 6-6. Because of an NCAA probation, it was the Tigers' first bowl appearance since they won the 1981 Cotton Bowl national championship in the Orange Bowl.

Ironically, Clemson Coach Danny Ford also made his head coaching debut in a postseason game when the Tigers defeated Ohio State 17-15 in the 1978 Gator Bowl.

The fourth-period heroics by Foggie and Baylor came after Minnesota blew a 10-0 lead and saw Clemson forge in front 13-10 on second-period field goals of 39 and 21 yards by David Treadwell, plus Stacey Driver's 3-yard option pass to Keith Jennings in the third quarter.

Lohmler kicked a 22-yard field goal to give Minnesota a 3-0 lead in the first period and Foggie whipped a 9-yard scoring pass to Anderson early in the second period to cap a 91-yard drive and make it 10-0.

A crowd of 42,800 attended the 10th Independence Bowl in 56,491-seat Independence Stadium. The game began in 44-degree weather and a breeze of 4 miles an hour picked up during the game.

Clemson scored its only touchdown and took a 13-10 lead midway through the third period when Driver's touchdown pass to Jennings capped a 91-yard drive that began when nose guard Brian Raber recovered a fumble by Foggie, Minnesota's only turnover.

Minnesota was held without a first down on its first three possessions of the second half, but the Gophers got the ball at their 12 when Clemson disallowed a field goal and threw an incomplete pass on fourth-and-two.

The Gophers drove to the Clemson 28 where Foggie connected with Otto for a first down at the 6. Three plays later, Lohmler, who missed a 22-yard field goal try on Minnesota's first possession to snap a school-record string of 10 successful ones, booted a line drive between the uprights from 19 yards out to tie the score.

Clemson ran three plays and punted to the Minnesota 32, and the Gophers began their winning drive with 9:51 left.

ASU, Hogs meet tonight in San Diego

SAN DIEGO (AP) — A victory against Arizona State in Sunday night's Holiday Bowl game would put 14th-ranked Arkansas in some very special company, Razorbacks Coach Ken Hatfield said.

"Only six other Arkansas teams in history have won 10 games or more, so it's an elite group," said Hatfield, whose team finished the regular season with a 9-2 record.

"Joining that group is our major goal," Hatfield said of the Razorbacks, who missed an undefeated season by six points: Arkansas lost its Southwest Conference rivals Texas A&M and Texas A&M 10-6.

Arkansas State looks at the Holiday Bowl game as a way to make up in part for a devastating 16-13 season-ending loss to Arizona that knocked the Sun Devils out of the Rose Bowl.

Arkansas State Coach John Cooper guided the Sun Devils to an 8-3 record and a second-place finish in the # Washington Corps. buys Anaconda Co.

BUTTE, Mont. (AP) — Washington Corps. of Missoula on Wednesday formally completed purchase of the mining assets in Butte formerly owned by the Anaconda Minerals Co.

Washington and Anaconda officials made the announcement in Denver after signing papers, compelling the takeover which has been announced in September.

Dennis Washington, founder and chief executive of the Missoula-based mining and heavy construction conglomerate, said he was pleased with the agreement.

"As the new owners, the challenge now before us is to explore every opportunity to resume mining on a sound basis which will make us competitive on a long-term basis," Washington said. "We are going to work very hard to make this happen."

Anaconda Minerals Co. president Mike R. Bowlin also said he was pleased that the sale had been completed.

"We are especially pleased that the destiny of Butte is now in the hands of a native Montanan and an organization dedicated to bringing a new economic vitality to the state," Bowlin said.

Anaconda is a subsidiary of Avco, which has gradually moved out of the hard-rock mining business during the last three years. Anaconda Minerals shut down its Butte mining operations, most of them involving copper, on July 1, 1983.

Washington Corps. will call the Butte operation — Montana Resources Inc.

Washington said in September he hopes to reopen the East Berkeley Pit for mining by next spring.

He said a successful mining operation would employ as many as 350 people and contribute an annual payroll of about $20 million.

More corn farmers using support loans

By DON KENDALL
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Corn farmers have put a greater amount of this fall's harvest under support loan than they did a year ago, but they're still a long way from driving up market prices, Agriculture Department economists say.

However, a strong start has been made, and they said there is potential for much more corn to be added to the government's loan program.

When corn or another commodity is placed under government loan, it cannot be used or sold until the loan is repaid. If prices remain low, farmers usually forfeit the grain instead of repaying the loan. In that case, the debt is canceled.

If enough farmers place enough grain under loan, it reduces the amount of "free" grain available for sale in regular market channels. That can have the effect of limiting the supply, thereby boosting market prices.

By Dec. 4, the Economic Research Service says in an outlook report, farmers had placed nearly 1.07 billion bushels of 1985-crop corn under loan, almost four times the 278 million bushels locked off the market under loan on the same date a year ago.

"While this is far from the level necessary to cause significant lightening of free supply, loan placements are expected to continue at accelerated rates," the report said. "Loan placements of three billion or more would probably raise prices through the spring of 1986 and choke off demand beyond current expectations."

Economists estimated that farmers who participated in the 1985 feed grain program have 5 billion to 6 billion bushels of corn that are eligible to be placed under loan.

The effect of the corn loan program on market prices might be mitigated somewhat by 1986 crops of early-feed grains and wheat, especially if the loan rates for those crops are reduced enough under new farm legislation to be under the market prices.

According to current projections, the season average price of corn at the farm in 1985-86 is expected to be in the range of $2.65 to $2.65 per bushel, compared with $2.65 in 1984-85 and a record of $3.25 in 1981-84.

The USDA's current estimate is for a record harvest of 8.72 billion bushels. Added to a carryover on Oct. 1 of 1.38 billion bushels, that makes a 1985-86 corn supply of nearly 10.1 billion bushels.

Economists project total corn use in 1985-86 at less than 7.05 billion bushels, leaving a carryover next Oct. 1 of about 3.05 billion bushels.

Federal aid for Montana hay requested

HELENA, Mont. (AP) — Montana Agriculture Director Keith Kelly has requested federal help in dealing with the growing shortage of hay in Montana and five other states.

In a telegram to U.S. Secretary of Agriculture John Block, Kelly asked him to "explore all possibilities of federal assistance to mitigate the serious shortage of hay for the livestock industry that is already plagued-with difficult economic conditions."

The telegram was sent on behalf of Kelly and his counterparts in Wyoming, Nebraska, Idaho and the Dakotas.

"All six states have faced drought and grasshopper infestations, creating a hay crop 60 to 90 percent of normal," he said.

Kelly said the best form of aid would be a subsidy to help offset the high cost of moving hay ranchers from surplus areas, such as eastern North Dakota.

However, he emphasized that any such program should have safeguards to prevent sellers and shippers from merely increasing their prices to absorb the subsidy.

In the mid-1970s, hay cost $65 per ton and the federal government offered $35 per ton to offset transportation costs, Kelly said. That move prompted hay prices to increase to $100 per ton, forcing farmers to pay the same price as without the subsidy.

Kelly's telegram noted that record low temperatures and unusually heavy snowfall during November added 30-60 days to the normal cattle feeding season, leaving ranchers with too little hay for the winter.

Finlandish export estimates for wheat have been raised by 1 million metric tons, and barley shipments have been projected at 500,000 tons larger. A metric-ton is about 2,205 pounds.

Overall, the report said Wednesday, Canada is expected to export 17.5 million tons of wheat, including large quantities of wheat for feed, and 4.5 million tons of barley.

Canada grain floods market

WASHINGTON (AP) — Exports of U.S. feed grains could run into stronger competition from larger-than-expected Canadian supplies of wheat and barley, an Agriculture Department trade report says.

Canadian export estimates for wheat have been raised by 1 million metric tons, and barley shipments have been projected at 500,000 tons larger. A metric-ton is about 2,205 pounds.

Overall, the report said Wednesday, Canada is expected to export 17.5 million tons of wheat, including large quantities of wheat for feed, and 4.5 million tons of barley.
