bad situation until it just hit them only until harvest time and they only got 24 bushels of wheat per acre," Myers said. She said one farmer who called up recently told her "I haven't been buying before now, but can't make my FHMHA payments or my Land Bank payments. I don't know what to do."

over the past nine years, and Carl says they are eyeing the market for some used machinery.

"I really think the interest thing is the difference between making it and not making it," he says.

The family's approach is straightforward. "If we can't afford it, we don't buy it," he says. Terri chuckles. "There's a lot of frugal blood in this family!"

But the Pendletons also do not shy away from making improvements that will make them more in the future. "We built a new shed this summer," says Carl. "That should give us a marketing edge." The family sells part of its hay crop to dairy producers in the area. Uncovered, it will be a tarp last year. That gave me a $5 a ton edge," he said.

For those in trouble, support from their peers is often hard to find. "Farmers who have farmed all their life and are retired or semi-retired just don't understand it. Their place is paid for, equipment is paid for. They can sit back. They look at a big tractor, but they only had a small tractor. But a small tractor can't pull enough equipment to get it done on time," Myers said.

When machinery expenses are unavoidable, the Pendletons concentrate on getting the longest life for the money. "I'm not going to fix anything—let it go," Carl says.

The equipment also stretch the lives of their plants. The odometer in Jim's 1972 pick-up has topped 175,000 miles. For their family car, they recently bought a new model for a used 1984.

"Although land and equipment are the continuing base for the farm, raising a crop of potatoes or cattle brings in the checks. Profitable crops don't happen by themselves. Flala says his checks began on paper.

"I feel I have to know exactly where my options and big expenses are going to be and where my crop is going to be next year," he says.

At the Pendleton ranch, Carl and Terri just passed up the cattle prices pencil pushing. With cattle prices low for the past five years, the easy

Myers also thinks the public and the press have been ignoring farm problems. "If they closed the Tupperware Plant and put 2.5 million out of work it would make headlines all over Idaho," he said. "But when they put 2,400 farmers out it isn't even mentioned."

"We've made farmers so insignificant that they don't even deserve coverage or even equal coverage."

As for her own family's situation, Myers has not given up hoping they can find some way of saving their farm.

"We have a year. We'll keep looking for money for a while. We'll keep looking for something to redeem it. Not everybody's broke. Just farmers."

considered well-to-do. Their family incomes most likely would fall in the range between $18,000 and $25,000, they said.

"I'd say we've got a good lifestyle, but not an extravagant one," says Jim Flala. His family needs are not as pressing, but doesn't sock away much else. "We're maintaining at this level; we can't get ahead at this level," he says.

And, like many farm families, there are times when the checkbook is thin. Jim says he wonders what is going to happen about July — and the money has gone out for crops and before it comes back in at harvest.

Jackie offers one answer from past experience. "We've always managed to be able to sell a crop just when we need it," she says thankfully.

But the couple also is planning far enough ahead to make their children's future a priority. For instance, they are investing more money in life insurance premiums now to have the option of tapping cash value in the policies in the future.

To augment the family's farm income, Jim climbs into the cab of a snowplow and clears parking lots in Jerome during the winter.

At the Pendleton house, Terri is a second breadwinner. Using her bachelor of science degree in nursing, she works for a Shoshone doctor as a patient educator.

"Without the cash, 'I think we would feel the difference,'" she says. But Terri says she also holds the job for herself, to "keep active in her chosen field."

As you might suspect, neither of the Pendletons are impulse buyers with their family accounts. "You've got to be able to differentiate between what you need and what you want," says Carl, who holds a masters degree in business administration.

Terri jokes that she is a natural shopper, but she resists large, unplanned purchases. "If it's still bugging me a week or two down the road, then I'll look at it," she says.

The families differ in education — the Pendletons have college degrees and the Flalas do not. But they share a common approach to managing their farm and family lives.

It starts with teamwork, says Terri Pendleton. "We had brains enough to make the kind of agreement that will work," she says. "There's a lot give and take in this relationship."

It thrives on discipline in financing and other areas. "I guess you don't get rich this way, but you don't lose your farm," says Jackie Flala.

weigh the merits of action against inaction under the complicated workings of Gramm-Rudman.

Johnston predicted that the House will have an incentive to thwart the budget process and allow the automatic cuts to go into effect next year, since automatic cuts must be spread equally between defense and nondefense programs.

"The president is going to send up what amounts to a political document. It will wipe out domestic programs," Johnston said. "The House people will understand that by waiting, you'll be able to move half those domestic cuts into defense."

His father, Roger, 39, is diabetic and his mother, Kathy, 37, has a kidney disease that could kill her. The family has already lost two children because of the farm credit crunch. It is $300,000 in debt and is on the verge of filing for bankruptcy.

Ex-choir leader-Condle dies

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Richard P. Condle, who brought the Mormon Tabernacle Choir to world prominence during his 17 years at its helm, died Sunday following a short illness. He was 57.

Condle, a tenor who studied at the New England Conservatory of Music and the Fountainebleau Conservatory of Music in France, directed the choir from 1957 to 1974.

After his appointment, the choir began a critically acclaimed tour of the Midwest and eastern United States highlighted by a performance of Handel's "Messiah" with Eugene Ormandy and the Philadelphia Orchestra.

Boy who fell through ice dies

BOSTON (AP) — A 10-year-old boy who spent two hours beneath the icy waters of a lake died Sunday night despite a day of feverish efforts by doctors who said they had not given up hope despite the long odds for his survival.

Jeffrey Goodale died just before 11 p.m.; about 35 hours after he had fallen through the ice on Lake Tashmo, said Martin Bander, a spokesman for Massachusetts General Hospital.

By Sunday evening, the boy's condition was "very grave," the spokesman said, and hope that he would become the first person to survive two hours under water was fading.

'Star Wars' test put off again

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — A nuclear weapons test linked to President Reagan's "Star Wars" missile defense system was postponed for the third time Sunday because of weather conditions, the Department of Energy said.

The test won't be conducted until Saturday at the earliest because of continuing weather problems and the Christmas holidays, said DOE spokesman Chris West.

7 die in pair of plane crashes

The Associated Press

A single-engine plane carrying a family to a Christmas gathering crashed into an icy Michigan lake Sunday, killing all six aboard, while a man who apparently could not fly planes was killed after the craft he started with a house key crashed, authorities said.

In southeast Michigan, divers worked in 20-degree temperatures and winds gusting to 20 mph to recover the bodies of two children, ages 7 and 9, and four adults from a Cessna Cardinal 17 that crashed into Lake Columbia, near Brooklyn, said Trooper Mark Siegel.

In Shawnee, Okla., a man who apparently had no knowledge of airplanes managed to start a small aircraft with a house key Sunday, took off, then was killed when it crashed shortly after takeoff, authorities said Sunday.

Escapees boast of breakout

MOBILE, Ala. (AP) — Three inmates who escaped from a South Carolina prison via helicopter with the help of a woman stole a car at gunpoint Sunday, bragged about their breakout, and vowed they would not be taken alive, authorities said.

The four, including a convicted murderer, were last seen early Sunday at a motel in Mobile by a motorist whose car they commandeered, said FBI agent Steve Tidwell.

The motorist, who was unharmed, told authorities that the fugitives bragged of Thursday's escape and said they wouldn't be taken alive, Tidwell said.

Blazes claim at least 19 lives

The Associated Press

A fire that swept through a Maryland house killed three people Sunday while frozen hydrants hampered firefighters, and three youngsters died in an Oklahoma blaze blamed on a space heater. The deaths were among at least 19 in weekend blazes.

A 43-year-old man crippled by multiple sclerosis, meanwhile, was rescued from his burning house early Sunday by a teen-age house guest who crawled through the building in Placentia, Calif., officials said.

In Chickasha, Okla., at least nine people were injured, including a man who tried to pull people from the fire, caused by a space heater only 3 to 4 inches from a paneled wall, fire department spokesman John Quinton said.

O'Neill thinks Reagan will propose tax hike

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill predicted Sunday that President Reagan, under the pressure of a new deficit-reducing law, will propose a tax increase by 1987.

The Massachusetts Democrat, interviewed on NBC's "Meet the Press," said the new law requiring deep spending cuts to reduce the federal deficit and balance the government's budget by 1991 will force Reagan to change his often-repeated opposition to a tax increase.

"We're going to have a tax bill out there and that tax bill is going to come from the president of the United States," said O'Neill, who supports a tax increase.

"He's changed his mind so many times on so many issues his mind on I think he'll change his mind on taxes? I think he'll change (his) mind on taxes, probably by '87," the speaker said.

The speaker also said he does not believe Reagan would veto legislation to overhaul the federal income tax, despite White House threats. Reagan has said he is dissatisfied with a House-passed bill and he's hoping the Senate will fashion legislation more to his liking when it returns next year.

O'Neill said he expects the Senate to make changes in the bill, and that Reagan still won't be completely satisfied.

Crude-oil spill reaches Puget Sound shores

PORT ANGELES, WASH. (AP) — Officials checked beaches for damage to wildlife Sunday after an estimated 100,000 gallons of Alaskan crude oil spilled from a tanker that ran aground, the Coast Guard reported.

No damage to fish and birds was found immediately, said Coast Guard Lt. Cmdr. Tom Pearson. The spill reached a salmon-raising farm but most fish were unharmed, Pearson said.

Fog hampered observers aboard a Coast Guard helicopter flight, but they said a sheen of oil covered much of the harbor in this scenic Olympic Peninsula town, about 60 miles northwest of Seattle.

Wind and tidal flows concentrated the bulk of the tarry crude oil along the north edge of the harbor, Pearson said.

Atlantic Richfield Co.'s 854-foot

Arco Anchorage ran aground off Port Angeles on Saturday at 4:30 p.m., rupturing the hull over two of its 16 tanks, said Lt. Tamera Goodwin of the Coast Guard's Seattle office. The vessel carried about 99.3 million gallons of oil, or about 100,000 barrels.

The slick spread about 2,000 yards from the tanker. The vessel was moved to deeper water and increased water pressure was keeping the remaining oil in the tanks, although the "gash" in the hull had not been plugged Sunday afternoon, Ms. Goodwin said.

Lie-detector order bespeaks mistrust

The secretary of state is a man of honor: George P. Shultz says of President Reagan's order to use lie-detector tests on thousands of federal workers with access to state secrets that "the minute in this government I am told that I am not trusted is the day that I leave."

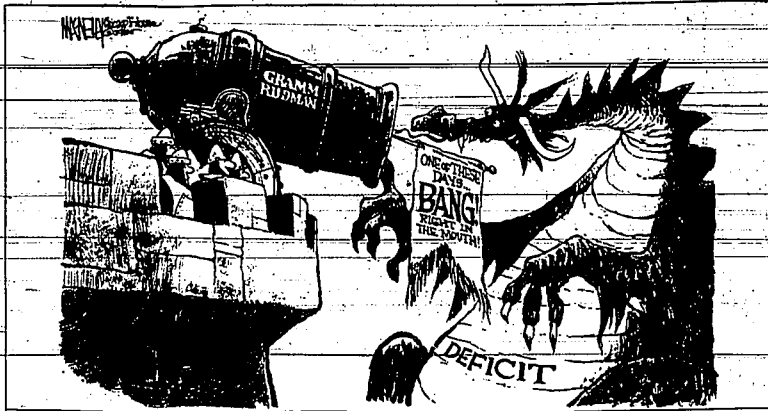

Who among the honorable men and women who serve this country can fail to agree?

Preoccupied with security, from harmless leaks to serious breaches, the Reagan administration has long sought to employ the polygraph; the recent flurry of uncovered spies led to Reagan's order expanding the use of the tests from the intelligence agencies and the Pentagon to other parts of the executive branch, including the State Department and, at least in theory, Cabinet offices.

The president's order is outrageous; the state of mind underlying it, shabby and squalid. Lie-detector tests are reliable only in movies; scientific evidence is overwhelming on that point. The "devious slip" through them, and the nervously blameless bring suspicion upon themselves. The tests' use, as proposed, as a condition of employment, bespeaks a mistrust of others so deep that it would destroy the mutual respect that civilized people depend on to conduct their affairs. A government that would so demean its servants cannot obtain the men and women of quality the people are entitled to.

The secretary of state, speaking from common sense and from indignation, was only stating the obvious: A government that recklessly employs the polygraph forfeits the respect of decent citizens.

Youth movement begins in state GOP

BOISE — The leadership of the Idaho Republican Party appears to be getting younger with age.

Dave Pearson, 35, is the party's new executive director. Blake Hall, 32, became state chairman earlier this year. Both men succeeded party officials at least 20 years their senior.

Hall says he doesn't know whether he was elected party chairman, succeeding the late Dennis Olsen, because of his age or other factors. But he says Republicans — "clearly the party of the future" — are appealing to younger voters. As a result, more GOP workers come from the under-30 crowd, and it's natural to have younger leaders.

Hall said he is about the same age as the GOP party chairmen in several states, including Wyoming, Michigan and Massachusetts. In the 1984 election, Ronald Reagan, who will be the oldest president when he finishes his second term, nevertheless got 58 percent of the vote from voters age 30 and under, Hall said.

Pearson started work this month as the party's executive director, a position that will combine the GOP's old executive director and director of finance positions. There were about 40 candidates for the job.

He'll be responsible for raising and spending the state party's budget. For 1985 and 1986 combined, it's about $580,000.

Rumors circulated in political circles recently that the GOP state office was in financial trouble with barely enough money to pay its bills. Pearson says they aren't true. "We're about the same as we have been in other off-election years," he said.

"The party's duty is not to stockpile money. It's to raise it and spend it. But we are fairly safe where we are right now," he said. Pearson said he will pay particular attention to money-raising. "There's an increasing realization of the need to raise funds" for the state organization, he said, and there are many potential but untapped sources. Pearson, until recently executive vice president of the Idaho Association of Realtors, said he's been using his first few weeks to "learn the players" in party politics.

He won't be a stranger if he visits the Idaho

Legislature, because he has lobbied for years on behalf of realtors.

The State Central Committee doesn't function as a fund-raising arm for candidates. Most of the major candidates are expected to organize and raise their own money.

The central offices, which has direct links to more than 900 precinct committeemen, helps with voter registration and get-out-the-vote efforts. Sometimes it can provide prospective candidates with important lists of registered Republicans and people who might be tapped for campaign financing.

Neither official will say what race has top priority in Idaho in the upcoming election. But in national politics, Hall said, there's no question. Republicans feel it to be "extremely high priority" to keep control of the U.S. Senate. They'd also like to win the Idaho Statehouse from the Democrats and recapture the 2nd District congressional seat won by Democrat Richard Stallings from George Hansen in the last election.

"All three, from our perspective, have equal priority," Hall said.

Leave editors, publishers to decide on cigarette advertising

WASHINGTON — The word from the American Medical Association is that a bill is being drafted to prohibit the advertising of tobacco products. As soon as sponsors can be found in Congress, the bill will be introduced and the anti-smoking lobby will work for its passage. The bill should be defeated.

"That's my own view, based upon a lifelong conviction that in a free society, government has no business trying to make people 'be good.'"

Let it be conceded that cigarette smoking is bad for us. All kinds of things are bad for us — gambling, drinking, overeating, never exercising, too much sun — but until the habits of A demonstrably cause significant damage to B, my thought is that government should leave A alone.

In recent years the age-old campaign against cigarettes has taken on a more passionate intensity. Responding to these pressures, Congress a year ago required manufacturers to print horrendous warnings on every pack: "Smoking causes lung cancer, heart disease, emphysema and may complicate pregnancy." It is conceivable that the votes could be mustered to defeat a filibuster in the Senate. The AMA's bill could pass.

The question immediately would arise: May Congress constitutionally prohibit the advertising of cigarettes in newspapers and magazines? Under Title 15, Section 1335 of the U.S. Code, Congress 15 years ago prohibited the advertising of cigarettes on the air. That law, based upon the power to regulate broadcasting under the commerce clause, was summarily affirmed by the high court in 1972.

The proposed ban on all forms of advertising would raise a different constitutional issue. Here we would be directly concerned with the amendment that Congress shall make no law abridging freedom of the press. How would the courts decide the question? The answer depends upon the degree of protection that the court wishes to accord "commercial speech." Beyond argument, cigarette ads are classic examples of commercial speech. They have nothing to do with political or social opinions; they carry no message of public importance; their sole purpose is to promote the sale of a lawful product.

That will be one of the key elements in a potential suit to nullify the act sought by the AMA. Cigarettes are lawful. On that point, we may recall the Supreme Court's 1973 decision in a case involving the Pittsburgh Press. The city of Pittsburgh had adopted an ordinance making it unlawful for an employer to publish any ads indicating discrimination because of sex. The newspaper was carrying classified ads under headings of "Jobs of interest to males" and "Jobs of interest to females." The city's Commission on Human Relations won an injunction against the paper to halt the practice.

The Supreme Court upheld that injunction. Speaking through Justice Lewis F. Powell, the court held 5-4 that "discrimination in employment is not only commercial activity, it is illegal commercial activity" — and Powell put that word "illegal" in italics for emphasis. "We have no doubt," he continued, "that a newspaper constitutionally could be forbidden to publish a want ad proposing the sale of narcotics or soliciting prostitutes."

The point is that narcotics and prostitution are unlawful. The sale of cigarettes is not unlawful. Cigarettes are as legal as sunglasses, as legal as pharmaceuticals, as legal as abortion services, as legal as the practice of law and dentistry — and in each of these instances, the high court has refused to approve an absolute ban on all forms of advertising.

It is hard to guess how the court would rule on the AMA's bill. Back in 1983, in what is known as the Christensen case, the court ruled unanimously that commercial speech has no protection whatever under the First Amendment. Step by step the court moved away from that position, and in the Virginia pharmacy case of 1976, Christensen was effectively abandoned. Commercial speech now enjoys some protection. The degree seems to depend in part upon the public interest to be served, such as the interest of old folks in the advertised prices of prescription drugs.

My own view is that newspapers and magazines must be left free to accept or to reject any lawful advertising that is offered to them. Editors and publishers, not judges, should make these determinations. Reader's Digest refuses cigarette ads. Time magazine accepts them. In a free country, that's the way to go.

Letters/ 'Pathways to Peace' should be proclaimed throughout community

Thanks for superb series

Bravo, bravo, to The Times-News for the superb series of articles, "Pathways to Peace."

As the week unfolded, I found myself looking forward with anticipation to the next article. Each of the writers provided profound insights to the quest for unity, harmony, and spirituality in our disjointed world. Read separately, each article was a work of art, but when read together they formed a veritable "feast of ideas."

The central concepts expressed — that humankind and the earth are both interdependent parts of one world system, that we have an obligation both to our planetary home and "that Cosmos, ancient and vast, from which we spring," that it is morally unjustifiable to accept a "cosmic Jonestown massacre called the Battle of Armageddon," that the foundation of peace must rest upon an "entire revolution of Nicodemus' Inner man," that only "the full partnership of women and men together (can) lead us into blessings of peace," and that we must learn to view the messengers of God "as the instruments and spirit... and apply the complimentary lessons taught by the founders of each of the great faiths" — these concepts, at least to my mind, are "pathways to peace" which should be proclaimed from every pulpit and taught in every school in our community.

Again, I thank you, Mr. Hartgen and The Times-News, for offering us such a wonderful feast during this sacred season and the International Year of Peace. May we all look forward to the next.

No more stumbling blocks

Sometimes, I feel I'm like some of these ministers, as I keep harping on the same subject. The reason for this, I believe that it is the most important issue the human race has ever faced.

The nuclear threat can be compared somewhat to volcanoes that have wiped out entire cities. Many lives could have been saved, for like they had plenty of warning, but like many people today, they were living under false security.

It's like the woman said after the Nevado Del Ruiz volcanic eruption in Columbia, "The priest said, 'God would protect us,' but the priest was wrong."

Many people have a tendency to try and make prophecies come true, so when prophets, prophesied wars and destruction, people would prepare for war.

If we would have had more prophets predicting peace, most likely many more people would be preparing for peace.

Very religious people that did a lot of praying and prayed out loud, were told by Jesus that they and their fathers always killed the true prophets and that they were from their father, the Devil, and that they would die in their sins.

The biggest mistake these people made was believing the false prophets which told them they were chosen people and that their God would raise up a king that would destroy their enemies, lead them to glory and even raise their dead.

The greatest stumbling block for these people was in believing things that were not true, and our nuclear age, mankind just won't be allowed any more stumbling blocks.

We can now weigh ideas

An open letter to Mike Stroberg: I am very grateful that you wrote such an articulate letter challenging the claim that all religions are "one in purpose and spirit" (T.N. Dec. 12). This concept appears to be difficult for many people to grasp. Indeed, as history shows, much blood has been shed down through the centuries between the followers of the various religions simply because one or perhaps both groups felt that theirs was the only true religion. If peace is ever to come to our tiny planet, the questions you raised will have to be answered. For what it is worth, I offer you some ideas as follows:

To begin, we need to acquire the proper frame of mind — the mind of a child of the universe, an astronaut, or a Jedi Master. The Holy Bible invites us to acquire this "mindset" in Psalm 8: "O Lord, our Lord, how majestic is thy name. In all the earth... when I look at thy heavens, the work of thy fingers, the moon and the stars which thou hast established; what is man that thou art mindful of him...? Yet thou has made him little less than God, and doest crown him with glory and honor."

With this cosmic perspective we will certainly realize that our creator loves each and every child on our planet and has provided each with the teachings he or she needs to come to know him and love him. To do this he sent us his messengers whom, like devine educators, have provided different lessons for mankind's collective social and spiritual development.

Had humanity seen the educators of its collective childhood in their true character, as agents of one civilizing process, it would certainly have reaped much greater benefits from the cumulative effects of their successive missions. This, alas, is a failed day.

But today, Mr. Stroberg, is a new day. We have access to all the Holy Books and the histories of all the great religions in our libraries. We don't need to blindly accept the opinions of every self-appointed authority (and you may include me, if you wish). We can study these books and find out for ourselves what ideas make the most sense. Why don't we give this idea — that "all the messengers of God are one in purpose and spirit" — a try? Certainly it could not divide our religious communities any worse than the present theology of "ours is the only true religion."

Need ideas for revenue

I find this time of year very amusing when it comes to the Idaho Legislators, one group or another, to find fault with the other for the financial woes of Idaho.

The energy they waste in their fault finding missions would be of some value if they were to work for all the people, rather than being self-serving as a great majority are. It is time to move Idaho into the twentieth century, a move way over due. Money problems have and will be with Idaho forever; there are suggestions for solutions and each should be considered.

Consider a law in which farm labor be made to pay state tax prior to receiving wages, this is not generally done and the migrant workers are left to their honesty to file their taxes at the end of the year (some do, many do not).

Desert-entry farms must be required to pay property taxes at the end of the fifth year no matter what their status is with the government. Some have been in operation for 10 to 20 years and have been exempt from paying full property tax.

The people who vote in the Lottery for Idaho, and the majority of Idaho Legislators have determined the "voter" is not smart enough to make such a decision and have denied the choice of the people.

None of the suggestions would hurt the farmer, as he is the wage earner is paying his own fair share, just as the clerk, welder, manager, police officer, etc. We all pay our taxes prior to getting paid and the farm worker should be treated equal.

The desert entry five year exempt status would enable the new farmer the opportunity to get on his feet and then pay his fair share. No other business that is commercial is exempt from property tax, even the non-desert entry farms must pay property tax. The lottery speaks for itself as the choice of the people and it may very well resolve the needs of education.

In closing, I would like to see a place in the newspaper just for ideas to raise revenue from the people in the work place.

Tax rate hikes surpass Magic Valley growth

BY PAT MARCANTONIO
Times-News writer

It was the same story this year all over the Magic Valley — taxes were up, while there was little growth in counties. In most of the eight counties in the Magic Valley, the tax levies for the county, city governments, schools and other taxing districts increased in some cases up to 30 percent over 1984 tax bills. Meanwhile, the growth of the counties — as reflected in the assessed valuation or worth of properties based on market value — also increased, but at a smaller rate this year over 1984, according to information supplied by various county clerks. In Minidoka and Lincoln counties, the valuations even dropped slightly.

What this means to many taxpayers is larger tax bills because the schools, cities and counties wanted more money to operate, but the tax base didn't expand enough to spread out the tax burden. Each school district, county, city and other taxing entity from highway to cemetery district, decides how much revenue it requires to operate for one year. By dividing that amount into the valuation of properties within that district, the levies for each entity are determined. These levies then are multiplied by the assessed valuation of an individual's property to determine how much taxes he will pay for each taxing entity.

The larger or broader a valuation for the taxing district, the smaller the levy and taxes to the property owner, Twin Falls County Assessor Dorothy Hamby says. Unfortunately for most taxpayers in the Magic Valley, that was not the case. The assessed valuation for Twin Falls County grew this year by 2 percent to $1.9 billion over 1984. Because of the way properties are assessed for taxing purposes, the assessment value for 1985 reflects the market value of property in 1984. While there was some growth in Twin Falls County, the taxes increased at a faster rate, from 7 percent to 21 percent this year over last year in some areas of the county. The largest tax increase was in Murtaugh.

As city residents paid for higher rates for municipal liability insurance. The levy for Twin Falls County and two school districts within the county did decrease in 1985 compared to 1984, but they were exceptions as the levies for the majority of cities, school and other districts increased. The total tax levy for Twin Falls residents increased this year 3 percent over 1984. Bull residents paid about 12 percent higher taxes over last year; Filer and Kimberly residents saw a 17 percent increase in taxes over last year and Castleford residents' tax bill grew about 10 percent over 1984. In Blaine County, it was a slightly different story. The assessed valuation of the county grew by about 7 percent this year to $1 billion. Assessor Bob Thomas said new property was the main reason for the increase of the valuation. The state-required reappraisal of lands to market value accounted for most of the increase. The tax levy to support county government kept in step and also grew this year by about 20 percent, mostly because of an increased levy for indigents. While counties and other taxing districts may not increase their tax revenue by more than 5 percent under the law, the levies to generate funds for insurance and indigents aren't so restricted. Elsewhere in Blaine County, the tax levies

Grazing bill fails to pass

By KENNETH A. BROWN
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The omnibus grazing bill "died a sad death," according to Kelly Olson with Rep. Richard Stallings' office in Washington, D.C. as compromise efforts between the House and the Senate fell apart. "Congress was running out of time and the political pressure just became too great," she added. With a grazing bill failing to make it through Congress, the current formula for establishing grazing fees expires Dec. 31, according to H.D. Palmer with Sen. McClure's office in Washington. Assuming there is no intervention by the president, Palmer said, new grazing fees will be set by the Forest Service and the Bureau of Land Management.

McClure, Symms and 26 other Western senators, however, have sent a letter to the White House urging President Reagan to issue an executive order to the Office of Management and Budget and the secretaries of Agriculture and the Interior, directing them to extend the current grazing fee formula, Palmer said.

The current grazing fee formula is tied to the market price of cattle and sheep. Charges are made on the basis of an animal unit month (aum). An aum is defined as grazing for one cow and one calf for 30 days. Cost for an aum for cattle is currently below $1.50 with the price for sheep aums roughly 20 percent lower, according to Forest Service figures.

Palmer said that given the OMB's tendency to "squeeze blood" out of things, there will probably be a push from that agency to substantially raise grazing fees. Environmental groups have contended that low grazing fees amount to a welfare program for the Western cattle industry, claiming that the grazing program costs more to manage than it generates in revenue. Environmentalists have also claimed that current fees are far below those charged on private land.

Some government studies have apparently shared that view, and there was some talk of raising fees to more than $5 per aum, according to members of the Advisory Council for the BLM's Shoshone District.

Countering environmentalists' claims, however, ranchers and sheep men say that when the cost of such inputs as range improvements and fencing are included, the cost of using federal rangeland is comparable to private range costs. For the cattle industry in particular, a jump in grazing fees could add even more financial problems to ranchers who have been plagued by low market prices.

The revenues from grazing fees are not limited to range improvement but are also used for such things as wildlife and watershed improvement projects.

Filer schools

Superintendent proposes contingency budget cuts

By KAREN MAIN
Times-News correspondent

FILER — In case the Filer School District is hit with financial restraints next year, Superintendent Sheldon Kovarsky this week presented a list of proposed budget cuts for the school board to consider.

Gov. John Evans is expected to be 2.5 percent of the school district's budget, but the rate may go as high as 6 percent. Kovarsky said the matter was discussed at a superintendent's meeting earlier this month with Jerry Evans, the state superintendent of schools. The projected state shortfall in revenues — up to $30-million and "creeping" — could mean the district would lose between $85,000 and $107,000, Kovarsky said.

In addition, the state is also losing money on endowment funds, school lands, and liquor and mineral leases which could be another $18,000 less in funds for Filer, he said. "How much of this we get depends on what the Legislature is willing to do," the superintendent said.

On the county level, the school district is certified to receive $74,551, but since only 86 percent of the taxes were collected last year, the prediction is that the district might only receive that percentage or less this year which would result in a loss of $104,000, he said. Since it is out of the question for

Student's snow day plan adopted

By KAREN MAIN
Times-News correspondent

FILER — Filer High School senior Steven Mullen found out at a recent school board meeting that school officials really do listen when students talk.

Based on the recommendation of high school Principal Harry Vankiotis, the board was going to hold classes from 10:25 a.m. to 3:15 p.m. instead of closing school completely on days when snow gets everything off to a slow start.

But Mullen, who was at the meeting as part of his government class, told the board that 33-minute classes did not give students enough time to learn the lessons or ask teachers' questions, so he suggested that classes should be longer.

After listening to Mullen, the board voted in favor of a temporary policy of holding classes until 4:15 on "snow" days.

Board members then offered their sympathy to the young man who suggested that students should stay in class longer.

"You're going to be popular tomorrow when they find out you lengthened the day of school," said Board Chairman Bill Loughmiller with a laugh.

"You've got a lot of guts," said Trustee John Draney.

Superintendent Sheldon Kovarsky said later that Mullen was very conscientious when it came to school, so the board was very interested in what he had to say.

"And, the superintendent said laughing, "I'm sure he endeared himself to his classmates."

Judge: Build fence

By KAREN MAIN
Times-News correspondent

TWIN FALLS — The Filer School District has been ordered to build a five-foot-high chain link fence on two sides of a 10-acre parcel of land the district bought from Lyle and Ruthie Abel of Filer in 1977.

Fifth District Judge Daniel Huributt ordered that the fence be built before April 1, 1986, in his Dec. 13 judgment.

Huributt made the ruling after the Idaho Court of Appeals reversed the original judgment which was in favor of the school district.

The dispute revolved around property south of the high school that the school district purchased with the intention of constructing another school building.

In 1983 the Abels filed a lawsuit against the school district to act on its agreement to fence the land, or pay $21,000 in damages.

Lloyd J. Walker, the Abels' attorney, said the basic disagreement was the interpretation of the contract that required the school district to build a fence

Wendell will hang on to block of school land

By TERRELL WILLIAMS
Times-News correspondent

WENDELL — After studying the appraised value and marketability of a block of school property near the high school, the Wendell School Board has decided not to sell it.

Since October, the board has discussed the feasibility of selling the land now used as the "old" high school football field. Money from the sale would be used to put new bleachers and lights at the new football field by the new high school gymnasium. This is part of a long range plan to eventually locate the high school at the site of the new gymnasium.

Wendell coach Yogi Behrens said the present high school building may become the junior high "30 years down the road." By selling the old football field, he said, the future junior high would be left without a play area.

Board members, agreeing with Behrens, said the school district should "hang on" to the land for now, especially since today's property values are low and are not likely to go up much in the near future. School Superintendent George Crawford said the old field has been appraised at $24,000.

Behrens said if the board decides to sell the land, it should be sold to the Wendell Recreation District and

Causa meeting hits on states' rights

By DEAN'S MILLER
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Sen. Larry Anderson said today he has returned from the joint Causa National Center for Constitutional Studies conference in week-end.

Anderson, NCS leader Charles Starnes, and other delegates traveled to Phoenix, Ariz., for the meeting of the two groups for a three-day conference on the U.S. Constitution. Anderson said the conference was a "great success" and that many people have not realized the Constitution as much as he had in college and law school. "It doesn't occur to me that people don't understand the Constitution."

An underlying theme of the conference was the degree to which federal government has encroached upon state powers.

At the conference, Anderson said Starnes got legislators talking about what rights they do have and how the federal government has encroached upon them. Anderson said the conference was a "great success" and that many people have not realized the Constitution as much as he had in

Leaving accident scene charged

TWIN FALLS — Two drivers allegedly left the scene after striking other vehicles in Twin Falls during the weekend and one of them was in the Twin Falls County Jail Sunday night facing three charges. City police reported Pedro Villa Gomez, of Wendell, was charged with driving under the influence of alcohol, failure to remain at the scene of an accident and violation of a restricted driver's license. Bond was set at $5,000 and had not been posted Sunday night. Gomez's 1979 pickup truck crashed into the rear of a 1973 sedan driven by William Howard Bodett, 27, of Twin Falls at 7:50 p.m. Sunday on Blue Lakes Boulevard North. Officers said Bodett was accompanied by his three small children but all escaped injury. Gomez was arrested later by a Jerome county officer as he drove through Jerome. Charges were pending against a Buick driver whose vehicle collided with a 1984 truck owned by Blocker Appliance and Furniture store. The accident occurred at 8:43 p.m. Saturday in the 200 block of Second Street East. Officers said a witness provided a license number registered to Donald G. Prouse, 49, of Buick, when his vehicle was seen leaving the scene.

Burglars take rings, tools

TWIN FALLS — Two Twin Falls residents reported burglary losses during the weekend. Jewelry valued at $6,500 was reported stolen from the residence of Roy L. Cordell on 1321 5th Ave. E. H. L. Cordell, Twin Falls, reported that sometime between 8 a.m. and 11:30 a.m. Saturday someone entered his apartment and removed two rings. There was no forced entry, the report showed.

The Idaho Vote

Following is a summary of important votes cast by Idaho members of the U.S. House of Representatives and the U.S. Senate during the week ending Dec. 20. This will be the last installment of The Idaho Vote until Congress reconvenes in January.

Here's a list of governmental meetings that are scheduled to take place this week in the Magic Valley. This list is compiled from advance schedules. The Times-News suggests that you confirm the information by contacting the appropriate clerk's office before attending one of these meetings.

MONDAY
 The Blaine County Board of Commissioners will meet at 9 a.m. at the Courthouse.
 The Cassia County Board of Commissioners will meet at 9 a.m. at the Courthouse.
 The Jerome County Board of Commissioners will meet at 9 a.m. at the Courthouse.

The Lincoln County Board of Commissioners will meet at 10 a.m. at the Courthouse.
 The Minidoka County Commission will meet at 9 a.m. at the Courthouse.
THURSDAY
 Wendell City Council will meet at 8 p.m. at the City Hall.

Taxes

 For Haley and Ketchum grew this year by 10 percent and 5 percent respectively. City taxes for Bellevue and Sun Valley decreased slightly. The tax levy for the Blaine County School District also dropped by about 5 percent this year over 1984. In Minidoka County, the assessed valuation of the county dropped to $401 million from $402 million in 1984. Assessor Greg Saylor said the decrease shows what's taking place in the market and that is, not much growth. The values of farmland in particular dropped. As a result, the taxable market is shrinking, Saylor said.

school bond levy, Clerk Duane Smith said. In Jerome County, the assessed valuation of the county grew by about 2 percent in 1985 to $374 million compared to last year. Again, tax levies increased in 1985 over last year. The levy for county government was 2 percent compared to 1984, the tax bill for Jerome City residents went up 16 percent and city residents in Hazelton and Eden also watched taxes rise this year, with higher insurance rates for the cities the culprit.

$1.4-million levy was imposed to pay for flood damage. The levies for the cities within the counties did increase this year compared to last year, but the levy for the Cassia County School District decreased. Other than a hydroelectric project and a few other properties, there were few new additions to the tax rolls in Lincoln County, Assessor Eugene Hestley said. The assessed valuation of the county grew by about 3 percent over 1984, but that mostly was due to bringing up the values of property to the required market value in the normal reappraisal process, she added. Higher insurance rates, school district overrides, a large indigent judgment against the county and a court-ordered repayment of money to the Union Pacific Railroad over past assessments were the causes of the higher taxes in Lincoln County this year, County Clerk Dana Sturgeon said. What resulted was about a 20 percent increase in the levy for the county government. City and school levies generally rose this year also.

Budget

 Liability insurance carriers or school bond holders to accept less than 86 percent of any money the district owes them, there is about 75 percent of the revenue left for the district's budget, he said. "It gets a little frightening," the superintendent said. "Now the bad news..." As requested by the board, Kovarsky said he prepared the proposed budget cuts which include staff cuts. "To do something like this really hurts, and it hurts greatly," the superintendent said. However, he emphasized the cuts are merely being proposed at this time. The superintendent's proposal included laying off an elementary physical education teacher, sixth-grade music teacher and two teachers each from the Hollister School, the elementary school and the high school to save $108,000. Funds for the Hollister School principal and secretary and administrative expenses would also be cut by $29,000. Another $10,000 would be saved by reducing funds for some extracurricular activities and coaches, and $1,800 would come from eliminating the position of crosswalk guard on Highway 30. By holding off on buying textbooks and supplies, $15,000 would be saved and trimming contracted services to the business office would cut another $10,000. The superintendent also proposed the elimination of all junior high interscholastic athletics. In addition, he recommended that all junior high and high school teachers work a seven-period day and that one part-time secretary work part-time in Hollister. "This concerns me deeply and I hope these proposals for budget cuts are not prioritized," said Melanie Hutchinson, president of the Filer Education Association. Hutchinson asked for assurance that if the board considered reducing the teaching staff, the teachers would be laid off in order of seniority according to the reduction-in-force policy and that they would be notified of where they stand. The board does not want to encourage budget cuts that would bring the district back to where it was four years ago, said Board Chairman Bill Loughmiller. But, people should know what will happen if things don't change, he said.

"People have not been too happy this year because it's hit them hard," Sturgeon said. The story of Lincoln County was repeated in Gooding County as the assessed valuation in 1985 dropped by less than one percent to $258 million compared to 1984. County taxes, on the other hand, jumped about 20 percent this year over last year. Tax levies for Gooding, Bliss, Hagerman and Wendell also increased. The levy for Gooding County School District, however, fell by about 5 percent compared to 1984. Camas County's assessed valuation grew from $37 million to $41 million. Increased costs for indigents, however, helped kick up the levy for county government by 10 percent compared to 1984. The levy for the Camas County School District, however, fell by that amount, while the levy for the city of Fairfield increased by about 20 percent.

Fence

 when it began "use" of the property. The Abels contended that when the district assumed possession of the property that was usage of the land, and the higher court agreed, Walker said. Besides, the land was farmed by a lessee, the Filer Boosters Club and a 4-11 Club used while using the property, Walker said. At the trial in 1984, Lyle Abel testified that he needed the fence to keep his cattle in and the school children out.

 not to a private buyer. That way the land would still be available for school use, he said. In other business: The board approved school closures for Nov. 25, Dec. 2 and Dec. 9 due to inclement weather. These days will not have to be made up. Board member Jack Hiral suggested school be held on a Saturday to make up some lost school time. Other board members said this would probably not be possible. Vice Chairman Vernon Mason noted that school has not been held on Saturday "since the winter of '48 and '49." Crawford recommended approval of the closures, saying the three days are not going to be critical to the school year. If the school accumulates more than a week of closures, he added, the board may want to seriously consider scheduling make-up days. The board approved two Idaho State University student teachers who will begin working in Wendell in January. Camille Lindsey will teach English and Elizabeth Lefroy will teach a third and a sixth grade class. Elementary Principal Robert Kessler said a PTA questionnaire will be sent out to students' parents next month to help interest the PTA "get going again." Kessler said participation in the PTA has not been strong this year. "It's a really important group for the school system," he added.

The House on Dec. 17 defeated an attempt to send the tax reform package back to the Ways and Means Committee, setting the stage for approval of the plan later that day by the voice vote. The vote defeating the attempt to stall the package was 171-256. A "no" vote was with the majority, voting against returning the package to the committee.

 The House on Dec. 18 dealt a major blow to oil and chemical producing states, voting to strip a broad excise tax from the conference report on a major debt-cutting ("reconciliation") bill. The proposal would have imposed the tax on thousands of medicated and large businesses to finance the "superfund" toxic waste cleanup program; rather than imposing an existing tax on a broader group of manufacturers who have also contributed to the toxic waste problem. The vote to strip the excise tax from the reconciliation bill was 205-151. A "yes" vote was with the majority, voting to strip the excise tax.

The Senate on Dec. 18 approved the conference report on the 1985 Farm Bill, after the House passed the bill by an overwhelming margin earlier that day. While the White House threatened to veto the legislation in the past, charging that it is too expensive, President Reagan is expected to sign the bill, which authorizes programs for commodity price and income supports. The vote in favor of the bill was 55-33. A "yes" vote was with the majority, voting to approve the bill.

Richfield woman to be reunited with granddaughter in East

Dorothy Seward, 78, longtime Richfield resident, will have a Christmas to remember this year. She left Saturday from Boise to fly to New Hampshire on a free airline ticket sent to her by a granddaughter she has not seen for nearly 20 years.

The granddaughter, Alice Seward, won the ticket, a human interest contest. Although Mrs. Seward and her daughter, Elaine Wilmoth, Twin Falls, who called us about the unusual event, both are unsure of all the details, they understood that Alice's decision to use the ticket to bring her Idaho grandmother back to New England was probably a major reason she won.

The granddaughter, who attends college in Plymouth, N.H., first started writing Mrs. Seward "out of the blue" a few years ago. Her father, Gerald Seward, and mother were divorced many years ago, and her mother has remarried.

The first time mother got a letter from Alice, her daughter said, "she had to sit down and think who the girl was." But the correspondence continued intermittently.

Lorayne O. Smith Spotlight

Then a few weeks ago Alice phoned her grandmother, asking how she would like to come spend Christmas with her, her mother, step-father and brothers.

Mrs. Seward thanked her, but she smee lives on Social Security the cost of the flight made the trip out of the question. But a week ago Saturday Alice called again, this time announcing she had won the ticket and was giving it to Mrs. Seward.

A few hours later an airline representative phoned to confirm that the trip was for real.

"I still think it's something I dreamed," Mrs. Seward says. She never has flown on an airplane before. She and her husband, Joe, who is in the Wood River Convalescent home in Shoshone, raised five boys and two girls. Among the many groups and organizations helping provide a merrier Christmas for others is the Atreus of Magic Valley. Members have "adopted" the Special Olympic Children for attention several times during the year. Recently they gave them a Christmas party at the Valley Vista Village. Monte Lee and his assistant, Lynette Cameron, entertained with a magic show, and Santa presented candy and a gift to each of the young guests.

Five Magic Valley students at the University of Idaho are among 40 seniors receiving alumni awards for excellence. They include Pamyla Stuehl, a theatre arts major and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Messerly; Glenn Perry, Twin Falls students are Shana Brewer, physical education major and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Randall Brewer; Tammy Crow, elementary education, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Crow; Steve Harris, electrical engineering, son of Ray and Shirley Harris; and Jeff Summers, bacteriology major and son of Sue Summers.

Three Twin Falls students at the College of Idaho, Caldwell, have received scholarships for the next school year. Julie Underwood, a junior majoring in political science, has been awarded the Niels Knudsen scholarship; Richard Worst, a sophomore majoring in zoology, received the J. and S. Boone Carter scholarship; and Tim Phillips, a freshman, was awarded the Paddock scholarship.

Three other area students at the Caldwell school are listed in Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges. They include Shawn Jones, Jerome, and Wendy Gest and Colleen Marron, both Twin Falls.

Cynthia Marshall, Twin Falls, a flute performance major at Idaho State University, won the Pocatello Music Club $300 scholarship for the spring term. She plays in the ISU Civic Symphony and the college flute choir. The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ron Stansell, Twin Falls, she is married to John Marshall. They have two children.

Two Gooding sisters, Glenda

Knights, 18, and Carrie Knight, 14, daughters of Harold and Lynda Knight, Route 1, Gooding, had photos entered in the 12th annual national 4-H photo exhibit sponsored by Eastman Kodak Co. at the annual 4-H Congress earlier this month in Chicago.

Clouds of cologne causing air pollution for co-workers

DEAR ABBY: As I write this, my head is spitting! The reason? Too much perfume and cologne. I can hardly breathe.

A "fragrance" is a very personal statement. I use it myself, but you can smell mine only if you get within three inches of me. My co-worker's fragrance can be smelled from five feet away, and I am not exaggerating!

I have already asked this co-worker to please tone down the stuff, and he did (yes, the offender is a "he"), but in a few days, he's back at his old level.

Waiting for it to wear off during the day doesn't help. By that time, I already have a headache (also, I suspect he replenishes the dose in mid-afternoon).

If you print this, I'll bet I won't be the only one cutting it out of the newspaper.

—CAN'T BREATHE
DEAR CAN'T: I'm on your side. One of the few retail businesses that haven't stunk this Christmas is the fragrance business. With so many stores—selling their names to perfumes and colognes, the competition is stifling.

Scents make dollars, but whatever happened to communication? Tell the offender, hourly if necessary, that he or she is interfering with our right to breathe.

Abigail VanBuren Dear Abby

DEAR ABBY: What do you think of a person who would call her hostess the morning after a beautiful, carefully planned Thanksgiving dinner and say, "I was sick all night. Have any of the other guests called yet to say they were sick, too?" (She was the only one who called, so I'm sure it wasn't anything I served.)

I was hurt and insulted, Abby. I am not a sloppy cook and use only the finest and freshest ingredients. What do the etiquette books say about a situation like this?

DEAR HURT: To my knowledge, it's not dealt with in etiquette books. Don't judge your guest too harshly. While she may not win a prize for diplomacy, I'm sure her intentions were not to hurt or insult you.

DEAR ABBY: Please alert readers who have had hip or bone replacements that they should advise their dentists.

I was just made aware of the hazards by my own dentist. I have only a pin (or "nail"). In my hip, but my dentist had me call my orthopedist for advice.

Before even a routine tooth cleaning procedure, where any bleeding may occur, it is usually advisable to begin using antibiotics. Any foreign object in the body is a prime source of infection.

Abby, please let your readers know. This was news to me.

—CAROL FROM MINNEAPOLIS
DEAR CAROL: It will be news to a lot of people. Thank you for sharing.

What's what

What U.S. Grant most liked for breakfast was a sliced cucumber soaked in vinegar, according to the historical footnotes. This, when people didn't eat uncoked cucumbers. Or uncoked lettuce, either, might add.

The original "esquire" - the man, not the magazine - was a young noble apprenticed to a knight. "Esquire" was one rank below "gentleman." Tell your lawyer.

Nova Scotia's foxes are getting bald. Their hair is falling out. No body knows why. Weirid some.

CATCHER IN THE STY

Q. If a cat in a pig sty can't see in the dark, how can it catch the midnight mouse?

A. Infrared sense. A cat detects the heat of the mouse's body. A snake does that, too.

When you hear the year "1492," you think of Columbus. What? Not all others do so. That was the year, too, the Jews were kicked out of Spain.

Q. Didn't the great American chess magnate J.L. Kraff coin the term "paddy wagon"?

A. No, what he did was start his business with a horse named Paddy and a wagon.

The brothels of Hong Kong mark their whereabouts with old barber poles. No doubt this serves to disappoint many an innocent sailor looking for a haircut.

the most sensitive theological question of the 17th Century was: Which came first - the chicken or the egg? During the inquisitions, people were burned at the stake for saying, "The egg."

It has been recommended that the U.S. Postal Service mount this max in plaques in every branch: "The Other Line Moves Faster."

Where were you in 1958. Wherever, that was when the term "pop concert" got started. In London. After musicians there twice a week staged the first "popular concerts" of classical music. It was the same year, incidentally, that British law first let employers pay their manual laborers by check. Only pay envelopes with cash had been permitted earlier.

49ers rally, earn post-season berth

By ERIC PREWITT
The Associated Press

SAN FRANCISCO — Through most of the first half Sunday, the San Francisco 49ers had the look of former Super Bowl champions rather than the reigning Super Bowl champions.

"Little things hurt us in the first half, just the way they did early in the season," said 49ers quarterback Eric Decker. "We had two turnovers and two touchdowns as the 49ers beat the Dallas Cowboys 31-16 to reach the National Football League playoffs."

The 49ers would have kept the 49ers out of post-season play. They trailed 13-0 after 26 minutes of play in which the offense lost the ball twice on turnovers and the defense drew some damaging penalties.

"We showed some character coming back like that. I hope we bring that momentum going now," fullback Roger Craig said.

Craig scored San Francisco's go-ahead touchdown on a 4-yard run in the third period and made NFL history a few minutes later by becoming the first player ever to get 1,000 yards rushing and 1,000 receiving in one season.

"I didn't concentrate on any individual records. Those things just happen—I guess," Craig said. "I knew we just had to go out there and win."

With 72 yards rushing and 50 receiving, Craig finished the season with totals of 1,150 and 1,016, respectively. He was the league leader in receptions with 92, one more than the Washington Redskins' Art Monk.

The 49ers, 10-6, will play the New York Giants next Sunday in East Rutherford, N.J., in the National Football Conference wild-card game.

"And the winner gets to play the Chicago Bears," noted Dallas Coach Tom Landry, obviously grateful that his team doesn't face that possibility for at least three weeks.

The Cowboys, also 10-6, won the NFC East title last week. Their playoff opener will be on the road Jan. 4 on 5 against the Los Angeles Rams.

Chicago, 15-1, awaits the wild-card survivor.

Gary Hogeboom of the Cowboys passed for 389 yards, but Dallas was shut out in the second half by a 49er defense which finished with six sacks of the quarterback.

In the first half, it was us getting all the key plays. In the second half, it was all 49ers," Hogeboom said. "Their blitzes really kept me on my toes, and by the number of times I was sacked you could see that I didn't always pick them up correctly."

Dwight Clark, who caught both of Montana's TD passes, said, "He was right on the money all day. This team has never been one to give up."

Montana said, "The team gained momentum over the last several games. How much momentum we'll have to see."

Craig topped 1,000 rushing during the second period, and he went over 1,000 receiving with a 15-yard gain late in the third quarter on a drive which ended with Jerry Rice's 15-yard scoring run on a reverse.

Montana's touchdown passes covered 48 and 24 yards to Clark. The first one opened the 49ers' scoring and the second, with 8:31 remaining in the game, clinched the victory.

The Cowboys took the game's opening kickoff and drove 82 yards, scoring on Hogeboom's 1-yard TD pass to tight end Doug Cosbie. Halaef Sefton kicked field goals from 20 and 48 yards early in the second period, and he booted a 41-yarder in the closing minutes of the half.

San Francisco scored 10 points in the final four minutes of the first half. Ray Wersching kicked a 39-yard field goal as time ran out.

An interception by cornerback Dwight Hicks set up the third-period drive of 44 yards which Craig ended by carrying two potential tacklers into the end zone for his touchdown.

N.Y. Jets roar into playoffs

By BARRY WILNER
The Associated Press

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. — You couldn't hear any music and nobody was actually singing the words, but the theme throughout the New York Jets' locker room Sunday was clear: "Wherever we go, whatever we do, we're gonna go through it together."

The Jets clinched a National Football League playoff spot Sunday with a 37-10 romp over the Cleveland Browns. New York, 11-5, will host New England, also 11-5, in the tough AFC East, in the wild-card game next Saturday.

To a man, the Jets talked about the togetherness that turned a 7-9 team which lost seven of its last eight games in 1984, into a Super Bowl contender.

"Everybody contributes, that's how we win," said running back Johnny Hectors, who scored twice on short runs. "We feel we can do anything if we play together and play the ball we're capable of."

Schooling those sentiments was defensive end Mark Gastineau, a Pro Bowler who played his best game of the year, forcing two fumbles and recovering a botched snap as well as applying pressure on Browns quarterback Bernie Kosar all day.

"When you want to go to battle for somebody with your backs to the wall," said Gastineau, "that's what was for you. That's what we've got. There is not one guy here who doesn't back all the other guys."

Wide receiver Kurt Sohn, like Hector a backup who played a key role in the win over the Browns — who already had clinched the AFC Central crown — thought the Jets' camaraderie began with an early-season winning streak.

"When we lost (31-0) in the opener in LA (to the Raiders), everybody was saying that the Jets stink, that they're not going anywhere," said Sohn, who stole a touchdown in the first quarter. Sohn wrestled the ball from free safety Don Rogers, who appeared to have an interception at the Cleveland 8 on an overthrow by Jets quarterback Ken O'Brien, then bobbled it before scooting into the end zone.

"But then we got on a roll, we won five in a row, when you do that, everybody gets along better than if you're 1-5."

New England gains post-season berth

By HOWARD ULMAN
The Associated Press

FOXBORO, Mass. — A seldom-used player ran a play the New England Patriots hadn't used all season to make sure they reached a rarely-attained goal — the National Football League playoffs.

With a fourth-down-and-1 at the Cincinnati 32-yard line, Robert Weathers burst off right tackle and through the Bengals' defense for a touchdown with 1:52 left in the game that clinched the Patriots' 34-23 victory Sunday.

It put New England, 11-5, into next Saturday's American Conference wild-card game at the New York Jets at Giants Stadium. The Patriots, in the playoffs for the first time in three years, are winless in three post-season games since they joined the NFL in 1970.

"It was an off-tackle play and then there was a crease," New England Coach Raymond Berry said of Weathers' first touchdown and 41st rush of the season. "It goes against our tendencies and that's what we have in it there for. ... We've never run that play this year. We've been getting it ready for six weeks."

The Patriots' attack features Craig James running off left tackle. Against the Bengals, he gained a career-high 142 yards in 25 carries, including an 11-yard touchdown.

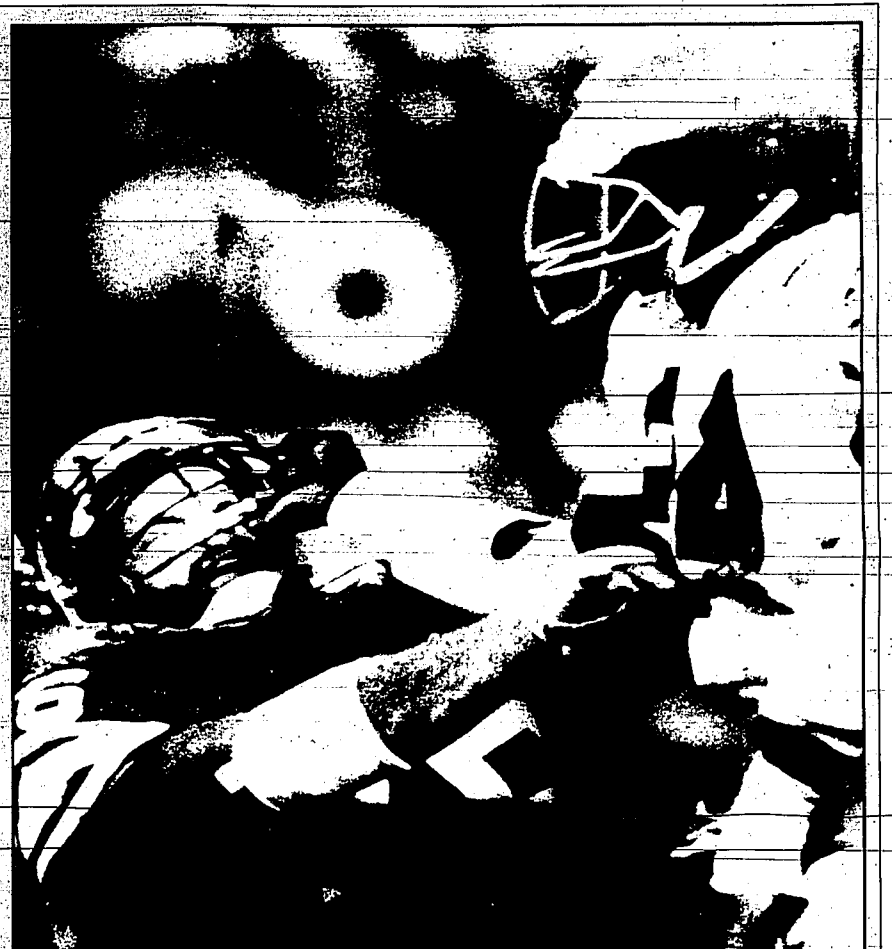

Weathers came into the game for short-yardage plays.

"We tried to stop a sneak" on Weathers' run, said Cincinnati Coach Sam Wyche. "It was a good call by them."

"He thought occurred to me on the bench that I would sure like to run that play," said Weathers. "I got the ball and it was almost automatic."

James spearheaded the devastating running attack that gained 281 yards. New England's largest output in at least two

Broncos, 11-5, end season

DENVER (AP) — Without ever taking the field, the Denver Broncos made National Football League history on Sunday.

The Broncos, who concluded their regular season Friday night with a 27-24 victory over Seattle, failed to qualify for the playoffs when the New York Jets and the New England Patriots both won Sunday. The Jets defeated Cleveland, 37-10, and the Patriots beat Cincinnati 34-23.

The team is NFL history not to make the playoffs. The Jets and Patriots who lost Sunday were the only two teams to miss the playoffs. The Broncos' season ended with a 11-5 record, the same as Denver in the playoffs of NFL. The Denver Broncos' season ended with a 11-5 record, the same as Denver in the playoffs of NFL. ## Miami blanks Bills, wins AFC East championship

By JOEY HOLLEMAN
The Associated Press

MIAMI — After fighting an uphill battle all season, the Miami Dolphins coasted to the AFC East title Sunday with a 28-0 thrashing of the bumbling Buffalo Bills Sunday.

The Dolphins held out the Bills to finish the season at 12-4 and win the division championship.

"We wanted to do it ourselves and we got an opportunity," said

Dolphins Coach Don Shula, whose team won its final seven games to rebound from a 5-4 start. "We got it together and played excellent when we had to play excellent."

The Dolphins didn't play very well Sunday, outgaining the Bills only 308 to 299 yards and leading only 14-0 midway through the final period.

"It was lousy execution. Maybe we were doing too many Super Bowl shuffles," said James.

The Bears topped to a 37-17 triumph over the Detroit Lions on Sunday, equalling a National Football League record along the way. But Ditka blasted his team because the Bears' offense generated only one of Chicago's four touchdowns.

"We would not have beaten a playoff team the way we played today," Ditka said. "We didn't play well anywhere. It took us until the fourth quarter for us to outscore our defensive and special teams. "It was lousy execution. Maybe we were doing too many Super Bowl shuffles," said James.

Swedes win Davis Cup again

MUNICH, West Germany (AP) — Australian Open champion Stefan Edberg overcame Michael Westphal 6-3, 7-5, 6-4, 6-3 Sunday to give Sweden its second consecutive Davis Cup title with a dramatic 9-2 victory over West Germany in the international team tennis competition.

Tennis

Sweden retained the title it won last year over the United States. It's first Davis Cup championship came 10 years ago with a victory over Czechoslovakia, and the Swedes lost to Australia in the 1983 final.

Earlier Sunday, Wimbledon champion Boris Becker ended the score for West Germany in the five-match series at 2-2 when he defeated French Open winner Mats Wilander 6-3, 2-6, 6-3, 6-3.

Westphal ranked fifth in the world, appeared to be taking West Germany to its first Davis Cup title when he captured the opening set against Edberg, the 19-year-old Australian Open champion who is ranked fifth in the world on the Hewlett-Packard-ATP computer.

But Edberg rallied to break Westphal's booming serve in the 12th game of the second set to level the score.

The Swede trailed again in the third set after dropping his service in the opening game, but came back to take the lead and never looked back.

Chiefs' Paige snaps 40-year NFL receiving mark

By DOUG TUCKER
The Associated Press

AFC West

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Even the San Diego defensive backs congratulated Kansas City's Stephen Paige Sunday for shattering a National Football League record that was 15 years older than him.

But perhaps it was Paige, who caught eight passes for 309 yards, who should have been glad-handing the Chargers' safeties and cornerbacks. Paige's 12-yard reception in the fourth period of the Chiefs' 38-34 season-ending victory broke the record of 303 yards set in 1945 by Jim Nance of the Cleveland Rams.

"They came up to me and said 'Nice job, nice job,'" said Paige, a willowy, 6-foot-2 wide receiver, who caught on with the Chiefs as a free agent from Fresno State in 1983.

Paige admitted he could hardly believe what he had done.

"Some times don't get that much in a whole game. When I look at it on paper, it's unbelievable," he said with a laugh.

Paige got started on his historic day with a 56-yard touchdown pass down the middle from quarterback Todd Blackledge. In the second quarter, on what looked like the same pattern, he teamed with Bill Kenney for an 84-yard touchdown pass play.

Kenney and Blackledge both said the huge gains were at least partly the result of "safety errors," and Paige agreed.

"I'd bet my man in the safety for some reason, he wouldn't move. He'd stay there. I'd stick the safety and run right past him. Once the ball got there, all that was left was run with the ball. It seems like he wasn't flying out of there," Paige said.

Strong safety Gill Byrd of San Diego did not take issue.

"It was just a matter of blown coverages," Byrd said. "A couple of times he made great plays but we just didn't play defense the way we were supposed to play. I don't mean to take anything away from him, he had a fabulous day and he's a great receiver. No doubt about it. But a couple of times on the long passes we just blew the coverage."

Paige had 258 yards receiving in the first half alone on receptions covering 56, 51, 30, 17, 84, and 20 yards. He caught a 33-yard aerial from Kenney in the third quarter and was shaken up on the play. He returned to the game, however, and caught his shortest of the game, in the fourth period.

Scoring 28 points in a second-quarter burst, the Chiefs finished 6-10 in their 14th consecutive playoff campaign. The Chargers finished 8-8.

San Diego running back Lionel James set an NFL record for all-purpose yardage. He had 242 yards running, receiving and kick returning for a season total of 2,555 yards, breaking the record of 2,462 set by Terry Metcalf of the St. Louis Cardinals in 1975.

Averting an earlier loss this year to the Chargers, the Chiefs jumped to a seemingly safe 35-6 halftime lead. Paige got the first score with a 56-yard pass from Blackledge.

Herman Hantz then scored on a 7-yard run and Mike Pruitt busted across from 1 yard out following a Kansas City interception to make it 21-3 with 11:41 left in the first half.

Late in the first half Kenney leaned back and hurled a bomb that Paige caught near the Charger 30 and turned into an 84-yard TD play. Blackledge suffered a jammed thumb early in the second quarter and was replaced by Kenney. The Chargers scored three fourth-quarter touchdowns in a valiant comeback attempt.

Tonight: Dickerson vs. Allen, Raiders vs. Rams

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — Two champions, the Raiders and the Rams, battle for the Championship of Los Angeles in a rare meeting Monday night at Anaheim Stadium.

The Raiders already have locked up the AFC West title and the Rams are the AFC West winners, each with 11-4 records.

"They go into the final game of the regular season with only home-field advantages for the playoffs at stake, and the bragging rights of the sport," said Los Angeles Times columnist Tom Ivers.

The teams have played only four times previously, with the last meeting a 37-31 Raiders' victory in 1982 at the Los Angeles Coliseum. That meeting was the "first game between the clubs since the Rams shifted to Anaheim from the Coliseum and the Raiders moved south from Oakland.

The Rams have won just once, a 20-14 decision in 1977.

Monday night's game at Anaheim Stadium, which begins at 7 p.m. MST and is sold out and thus will be televised locally as well as nationally, features two of the National Football League's outstanding runners, Marcus Allen of the Raiders and Eric Dickerson of the Rams.

"I think they're both great runners," Rams Coach John Robinson said. "You're talking about men who are going to go down as two of the great players in the history of the game.

"Both men have the stamina to carry the ball a great deal. It's like comparing Willie Mays and Hank Aaron."

Robinson has been a prominent figure in the careers of both Dickerson, who set an NFL single-season rushing record last year, and Allen, the league leader this year with 1,636 yards rushing (in addition to 630 yards via 59 receptions).

Robinson, while coach at the University of Southern California, made Allen his tailback, and Allen responded with an NCAA record of 2,327 yards rushing and the Heisman Trophy in 1981.

then selected Dickerson out of Southern Methodist to be the focus of his pro team's offense, and Dickerson set an NFL rookie rushing record with 1,808 yards in 1983, then rewrote O. J. Simpson's single-season mark with 2,105 yards.

Robinson said of Allen, who has rushed for more than 100 yards in each of his last eight games: "I love seeing him and seeing him play. But I'll probably be tired of seeing him by the end of the second quarter."

Raiders Coach Tom Flores said of Dickerson and Allen: "I don't think they're similar in styles, but they're similar in production.

"Dickerson's a power runner with great speed. Marcus is more of a slur. We use Marcus a lot differently."

Flores said he considers Allen the league's most valuable player this year.

"You just look at what he's done," Flores said. "The total offense, the number of touchdowns (14). I'm proud of everything else that he's done, the leadership, the intangibles, the way he blocks and catches the ball."

Dickerson, who was a contract holdout for the first two games this season, hasn't been able to match his record-setting 1984 campaign. He's gained 1,136 yards on 267 carries this year.

Freshman placekicker lifts Razorbacks to last-minute victory over Arizona St.

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Freshman Kendall Trainor kicked a 37-yard field goal with 21 seconds remaining Sunday night to give 14th-ranked Arkansas a dramatic 18-17 Holiday Bowl victory over Arizona State.

After trailing going into the game, the Razorbacks had to withstand a final threat by the Sun Devils, who drove to the Arkansas 42-yard line in the waning seconds. But a 59-yard field goal attempt by Kent Bostrom fell short.

The Razorbacks began the game-winning drive on their own 20-yard line with just over five minutes remaining.

San Diego, Calif., Dec. 22

Spurning a field goal attempt with fourth-and-one at the ASU 30, Arkansas — which had gambled and lost in a similar situation earlier — picked up a first down on a 3-yard run by Bobby Joe Edmonds.

Three running plays moved the ball to the Sun Devils' 19, and Trainor made his first field goal attempt of the game.

The Razorbacks of the Southwest Conference fell behind 17-15 when Bostrom hit his first field goal of the evening, a 28-yarder with 5:22 remaining.

Edmonds scored on a 17-yard run and quarterback Mark Calcagni added the two-point keeper on a conversion as Arkansas — which finished the campaign 10-2, took a 15-14 lead with 9:37 left to play.

The Pacific-10's Arizona State, which wound up at 8-4, grabbed a 17-16 halftime lead on Jeff Van Raaphorst's 16-yard touchdown pass to split end Aaron Cox and a pair of field goals by Bostrom.

The strike to Cox, ASU's leading receiver with 40 receptions for 788 yards in his first full season, was set up by the Razorbacks' failure to convert a fourth-and-one play. The failed fourth-down attempt allowed ASU to take over on its own 48 with 3:01 remaining in the second quarter.

Van Raaphorst took seven plays to guide Arizona State to its first touchdown and then completed a pass to fullback Vince Amola for the two-point conversion.

Fullback Derrick Thomas' 9-yard touchdown run accounted for the Razorbacks' lone first-half score.

Thomas' scoring run culminated a methodical 16-play, 80-yard drive that consumed nearly half of the first period as the Razorbacks took a brief 7-3 advantage.

Bostrom kicked his second field goal, a 22-yarder, after a Sun Devil drive stalled at the Arkansas 4-yard line. A 16-yard pass from Van Raaphorst to flanker Bruce Hill gave the Sun Devils a first and goal at the 4, but they failed to move the ball and went for the field goal.

Earlier, Bostrom, like Trainor a freshman, drilled a 47-yard field goal.

Jets

While the Jets prepare for the Patriots, with whom they split this season, Cleveland has a week off despite its 8-8 record, the worst for a division winner in NFL history. The Browns then will travel to AFC East titlist Miami in two weeks, while the winner of the New York-New England matchup will face the AFC West champion Raiders.

"We're 8-8 and we'll make no apologies," said Browns Coach Marty Schottenheimer. "Everybody knew the rules at the beginning of the season."

"I know the makeup of this team," insisted the coach whose team had clinched its division before the finale. "There was no absence of effort, just execution."

Pat Leahy had three field goals for the Jets; but it was Sohn's weird touchdown, at 13:17 of the first quarter with Cleveland holding a 7-3 lead, that irked the Jets. It was the result of a cast on Don Rogers' right arm to protect a broken thumb.

Quarterback Ken O'Brien's pass was overthrown right to Rogers, who had it bounce off his chest and cast. Sohn, the intended receiver, wrestled it away at the Cleveland, eight and scooted into the end zone.

Berry's reaction to making the playoffs in his first full season as an NFL head coach?

"I've always expected it to happen," he said. "The other thing is that it's absolutely incredible that it has."

After James' touchdown punt New England ahead 27-16 with 8:13 left in the game, Cincinnati's Boomer Esiason threw his second touchdown pass, an 8-yarder to Cris Collinsworth, with 5:43 to go.

Patriots

"I saw Joe Morris go crazy on television, make it look easy, and I said I wanted to break out today," James said. "The way our line is moving, I've got to get 10 or 15 yards each play."

Morris rushed for 202 yards Saturday when the New York Giants beat Pittsburgh 28-10. The Steelers' loss eliminated the Bengals, 7-9, from contention for the playoffs.

The Patriots "play hard but you could look at their faces many times and they knew that this one might not be theirs," Wyche said. "Our guys played over 100 percent. Nobody can say that we're not playing. But it was the Patriots who reached the playoffs by repeatedly keeping control of the game when Cincinnati threatened to take it away."

Berry's reaction to making the playoffs in his first full season as an NFL head coach?

Madison five rambles past Minico, 66-60

By The Times-News

RUPERT — Madison's girls capitalized on two weak Minico quarters to get past the Spartans 66-60 in a Gen. State Conference girls' basketball contest here Saturday.

Madison went out on an 18-7 first-quarter lead, only to see that margin fade to four points at the half. In the third, the visitors outplayed Minico 13-8, and used it to win by six.

Philadelphia salvages 7-9 season

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Quarterback Dan Fouts led the Philadelphia Eagles to a 27-17 victory over the Tampa Bay Buccaneers on Sunday, salvaging a 7-9 season for the franchise.

Fouts, who has led the Eagles to three consecutive playoff appearances, completed 22 of 34 passes for 264 yards and three touchdowns. He also rushed for 34 yards and a touchdown.

The Buccaneers, who were favored to win, were held to 173 yards of offense. Tampa Bay's only touchdown came in the fourth quarter when running back James Davis scored on a 45-yard run.

The game was a defensive struggle, with both teams committing turnovers. Philadelphia's defense forced three turnovers, including a fumble by Buccaneers' running back James House.

The Eagles' victory improved their record to 7-9, while the Buccaneers fell to 4-12. Philadelphia will play the New York Giants on Monday night, while Tampa Bay will play the New Orleans Saints on Monday night.

Buccaneers lose to Packers; win first choice in NFL draft

TAMPA, Fla. — Phillip Epps scored on a 30-yard flanker reverse in the first quarter and Jessie Clark averaged 4.4 yards per carry in the fourth quarter to lead the Tampa Bay Buccaneers to a 20-17 victory over the Tampa Bay Buccaneers on Sunday.

The triumph enabled the Packers to finish the season with their third straight 8-8 record, while Tampa Bay completed its first campaign under Coach Leeman Bennett with a 2-14 mark that will give the Bucs the first overall pick in next spring's NFL draft. They are expected to select Auburn University running back Bo Jackson.

Clark's touchdown with 7:03 remaining capped a 13-play, 73-yard drive that backup quarterback Randy Wright engineered after Tampa Bay took a 17-13 lead on Steve Young's 5-yard scoring pass to Jimmie Giles with 13:19 to go.

Wright, who replaced Jim Zorn midway through the third period, completed passes of 18 yards to Eddie Lee Ivey and 11 yards to Gary Ellerson to highlight the march that consumed more than six minutes.

Young, who completed 21 of 37 passes for 278 yards, brought Tampa Bay back to within 10 points with a 27-17 lead.

NFC Central

8:51 before halftime. During that stretch, Green Bay's Al Del Greco kicked a 47-yard field goal that was taken off the scoreboard because an official ruled the time out had been called for the offense. It came up shortly after two minutes warning before the ball was snapped. One play later, Packers' linebacker Mike Douglass intercepted a Young pass at the Tampa Bay 47 and returned it to the Bucs' goal-line mowers and a bizarre second quarter where Tampa Bay fullback James Davis saw the two teams commit Wilder hit him, forcing a fumble three turnovers a piece in the final recovered by the Bucs' Kevin House.

Colts embarrass Houston in finale

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Quarterback Mike Pagel passed for three touchdowns Sunday, while Randy McMillan and Albert Bentley ran for two other scores against a vulnerable Houston defense, leading the Indianapolis Colts over the Oilers 34-16 in their final game of the National Football League season.

Both teams finished the season with 5-11 records, Indianapolis with a two-game winning streak and Houston with a losing string of four games — the last two under interim Coach Jerry Glanville.

The Colts, taking advantage of a Houston rushing defense that ranked 27th in the 28-team league, dominated the Oilers on the ground, with McMillan, Bentley, George Wonsley and Owen Gill doing the bulk of the damage on a combined total of 289 yards.

McMillan led the Colts with 90 yards on 18 rushes, while the top Houston rusher was Mike Rozier with 49 yards on 19 carries.

Only the passing of Houston's Warren Moon kept the Oilers within reach. He hit 22 of 42 passes for 364 yards, including nine completions for 210 yards and a pair of touchdowns to wide receiver Drew Hill.

Moon's first touchdown pass to Hill covered 40 yards and brought Houston within seven points midway through the second quarter. Indianapolis widened the lead to 27-9 before Hill made his second scoring catch on a 14-yard play with nine minutes left in the final period.

But Pagel, who earlier completed touchdown passes of 14 and 29 yards to Pat Beach, iced the game on the next series with a 22-yard scoring pass to Olvir Williams.

Moon guided the Oilers to the Indianapolis 5 with under four minutes to go, but Preston Davis intercepted a pass in the end zone. The Oilers had one more chance to score after an Indianapolis punt was blocked by Keith Bostic at the Colts' 12, but Moon completed only one pass for four yards and Houston lost the ball on downs with just over two minutes to go.

Pagel, who completed 14 of 22 passes for 178 yards, gave way to backup Matt Koller after the interception by Davis. The two-game winning streak is the Colts' longest in two years.

Riggs stakes Atlanta to win over Saints

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Gerald Riggs rushed for 157 yards and a touchdown Sunday, taking over the National Football League's rushing lead — at least for a day — and leading the Atlanta Falcons in a 16-10 victory over the New Orleans Saints.

Riggs now has 1,718 yards for the season and a lead over Marcus Allen of the Los Angeles Raiders. Allen and the Raiders close out their season against the Los Angeles Rams on Monday night.

NFC West

Riggs also surpassed handily the Falcon rushing record set two years ago by William Andrews, who had 1,566 for Atlanta in 1983.

Andrews is trying to rehabilitate a knee injury that has kept him out of football for the past two seasons.

Riggs' touchdown came on a 2-yard run with 4:45 left in the first half.

Mike Luckhurst kicked field goals of 48 yards in the first quarter, 31 yards with six seconds left in the second quarter and 22 yards with 9:39 left in the fourth quarter.

Atlanta finished the season 4-12. The Saints closed out 5-11, a dismal season that still stands as a tie for the fifth-most wins in any of the 19 years the franchise has been in operation.

Perhaps the game's most impressive play came on New Orleans' second play from scrimmage.

Earl Campbell broke over the right side at the New Orleans 48 and appeared headed for a certain touchdown when Wendell Cason overhauled him at the 13, kept stride with him for one step then punched the ball from Campbell's arms through the end zone.

Atlanta then marched to Luckhurst's first field goal and never trailed.

New Orleans got its scores on a 9-yard pass from Bobby Hebert to Eric Martin with 7:41 left in the game and a 28-yard field goal by Morten Andersen with 3:14 left.

Another Cinderella walks off with I-AA title

TACOMA, Wash. (AP) — Georgia Southern, which resumed playing football four seasons ago after a 41-year absence from the sport, has captured the NCAA Division I-AA championship.

The Eagles from Statesboro, Ga., accomplished what their coach, Erik Russell, called an "amazing" feat Saturday by coming from behind to beat Furman 44-14 in the first Division Bowl.

"No one in his right mind would have thought that we could have accomplished what we have in the past four years," Russell said. "I think this is the most amazing thing that ever has happened." Russell said he didn't even know what level Georgia Southern would play at when he quit as an assistant coach at the University of Georgia to become head coach of the Eagles. The Eagles scored their game-winning touchdown with 10 seconds left on a 13-yard touchdown strike from Tracy Ham to Frankie Johnson. Furman led 28-0 in the third quarter, fell behind and regained a 42-38 lead on John Bagwell's fourth touchdown run, a four-yard scamper with 1:32 remaining to complete an 80-yard drive in seven plays.

College football

But Russell insisted there wasn't a doubt in his mind about his team coming back from its 42-38 deficit. "Sure, I thought we had just enough time to win it at the end," he said. Ham, a 5-foot-10, 185-pound junior from High Springs, Fla., ran Georgia Southern's triple-option offense to perfection, accounting for 509 of his team's 640 total yards. He completed 23 of 37 passes for 419 yards and four touchdowns, all in the second half. He ran 19 times for 90 yards.

"Tracy had excellent protection all day," said Russell, "but he really played an excellent game." It was an all-team effort. Ham's game-winning toss capped a drive that covered 72 yards in nine plays, including a 53-yard pass from Ham to Johnson that put the Eagles on the Furman 23-yard line. "It was a game-winning toss capped a drive that covered 72 yards in nine plays, including a 53-yard pass from Ham to Johnson that put the Eagles on the Furman 23-yard line." Coach Dick Sheridan of the Paladins of Greenville, S.C., was downcast. "I hurt so badly for our players," he said. "We're all so very disappointed. We played extremely well for each team late in the game, and Georgia Southern took advantage of them."

A crowd of 5,206 fans turned out to watch the game, dubbed the Division Bowl, in the "Famous Dome." Sponsors said at least 12,000 were needed to break even. The Division I-AA championship game is scheduled in the Tacoma Dome again next year. Ham's other touchdown passes were a 24-yarder to Monty Sharp and a 40-yarder to Johnson in the third quarter, and a 12-yarder to Herman Barron in the fourth quarter.

The "Ham-to-Barron" toss came with 12:21 remaining and put Georgia Southern ahead for the first time 35-28. The Paladins countered with a seven-yard scoring run by Bagwell with 7:51 to go and Keven Bayals' extra-point kick tied the score at 35-35. Georgia Southern went ahead 38-35 on a 39-yard Tim Foley field goal with 3:37 on the clock. Furman led 21-6 at halftime.

Be available to connect with kids

Try to enter your children's world, their sense of present time

Sherod Miller calls it connecting — those special times when you and your child find momentarily and link like meshed gears. When you click, the good feelings flow — and you experience love and warmth that simply don't surface at any other time.

You can't predict when, where or how you'll connect, says Miller and other authors of "Straight Talk." A connection may creep up and surprise you in an activity as ordinary as a bike ride, a game of checkers or a drive to school. But, say these authors, it can't happen if one or the other of you isn't available.

"You walk in the door at dinnertime and your child is watching television. You walk over, hug her, and try to chat a bit, but she's glued to the tube. You barely get a 'hi.' She's not available. So you begin to thumb through the day's mail and get involved in reading a letter. The show ends, she clicks off the TV, comes over to you, and starts talking about school. Now, you're not available.

"Just as see," you say. "Let me finish this last paragraph," and by the time you look up, she's off again. Some parents and children go on and on like this, just missing each other."

To establish a pattern of hits among the misses, you may have to do the lion's share of reaching out to kids (which may not always be rewarded). And you'll need to be psychologically available when you're in your child's presence (you can't, say, connect when your body is sitting by the side of the bed reading a story to your child, or thinking about what you're going to fix for supper, or which team is going to win the latest football game).

If you're like most parents, you straddle a seesaw trying to achieve a balance between connecting with your children and controlling them, say Miller and colleagues. But control is so much a part of handling children that you may inadvertently communicate little else but your control messages to your kids: sit still; stand straight; lower your voice; don't eat so fast; don't walk so slow; try harder; finish your homework; stop playing.

Actually, connecting with kids is every bit as natural as controlling them, stress "Straight Talk" authors. And taking the time to connect is strategic: "In the long run, the more connections you invest in your child's emotional bank account, the less dent the control withdrawals will make in your relationship."

So how do you connect with kids? Well, first by trying to enter your children's world and to look at life momentarily through their eyes. Say Miller and colleagues:

"Share your children's anger over a lost-intramural game, their delight with a compliment from a teacher, their conflict over whether to wear the green slacks or jeans to a school dance, their hysteria because their nose has a pimple or their current love hasn't called, their desire to be left alone, their doubts about whether God hears their prayers."

To cross the invisible threshold from your child's world to yours, says Miller, you must have a perception, you'll need to keep in mind that you and they have a different sense of time. Your kids live in the now, in the moment, while you tend to focus on the future, on finishing the tasks of the present to move to something else waiting ahead. Because you're goal-oriented and time-limited, you usually don't realize that time stops for your children, that what they're thinking, wanting, feeling, and doing — all that matters to them. So, wrapped up in your wants and feelings, you may not bother to tune into your kid's reality — and that means you can't connect.

Increase your chances of connecting by joining your children wherever they happen to be and savoring those moments with them: "If your preschooler is building a tower of red and blue blocks; squat down on the floor and join her. If your pre-teen is dressing a Barbie Doll or snapping together Lego pieces to make an airplane, join in. If your teen-ager is stretched out on the bed listening to music, take your needlepoint to his room and listen with him."

Abandoning yourself to follow the flow of your kids is tough, says Miller and colleagues. Just try it. Invite yourself to a party or a game of cops and robbers and see how long you can play without having to leave a phone call, offer a suggestion, change the rules or exert your influence."

When you allow yourself to join children in their space, your behavior, and actions say: "I, as an adult, take you seriously. What you are doing or saying matters to me. I like you and I want to be with you." Your children will blossom in the glow of such messages, which have a high likelihood of increasing self-esteem and self-respect.

You'll benefit, too. You, like your children, need those vital lifelines — all those you love. And you all need them often. So why not make a habit of entering their child's world and increasing your connections; starting right now.

Condoms prevent AIDs virus spread

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Tests show that using condoms during sex can stop the spread of the deadly AIDS virus, University of California researchers say.

Dr. Jay A. Levy, a virologist at the UC San Francisco medical school, said Tuesday his tests show that the acquired-immune deficiency syndrome virus cannot penetrate the fine membranes of condoms.

Levy said he tested five kinds of commercially available condoms: three types made of latex, one kind of natural lamb skin and another made of synthetic skin.

The condoms were filled with fluids containing a high concentration of either the AIDS virus or a related mouse virus, said university spokeswoman Carol Fox.

No virus particles leaked out of the condoms when they were inserted for up to 30 minutes in a solution of tissue cells, in which viruses normally culture, or when the condoms were subjected to pressure without breaking.

In another test, researchers examined condoms filled with fluid see if the virus organisms would pass through them. Even after three weeks, there was no sign that any of the virus had passed through the condoms, said Levy, an associate professor of medicine and infectious disease at the university's Cancer Research Institute.

AIDS is a preventable disease if people understand unsafe sex and how to eliminate it, said Vin Waltuch, director of the San Francisco AIDS Foundation, which commissioned the research.

The viruses in the fluids were either a mouse virus called "xenotropic type C retrovirus" or the human AIDS virus, which the San Francisco researchers call AIDS-associated retrovirus, or ARV, said Ms. Fox.

AIDS renders the body's immune system incapable of resisting disease. It was first identified in male homosexuals, hemophiliacs and intravenous drug abusers.

As of Dec. 2, 1985, AIDS had struck 15,172 people in the United States and claimed 7,777 lives. The count began on June 1, 1981, but includes some cases dating back to 1979.

Psycho-gurus analyze Freud's legacy

By ANN JAPENGA
Los Angeles Times

Psychotherapy. It could be the last time the gang gets together, too, because most of them are elderly.

PHOENIX, Ariz. — A hundred years ago an Austrian neurologist named Sigmund Freud peered under the hood of the human soul and found a previously unnoticed gizmo that he called the unconscious. The part tended to break down, causing emotional upsets known as mental illness. The way to repair the unconscious, Freud decided, was through talk.

Facing a bank of 26 spotlights, the masters spoke while their images were projected on gigantic video screens. Every other word was lost in the echo of the cavernous Civic Plaza Convention Center. Carl Rogers, who has influenced more therapists in this country than Freud, got a standing ovation from 4,000 people before he even said a word. It was, as organizer Jeffrey Wood said, the Woodstock of psychotherapy. The heroes were there to evaluate where psychotherapy has come in 100 years, and where it might be going — except they really could not agree on either.

has resulted from a century of psychotherapy. "I don't think we've gone beyond Socrates, Euripides, Shakespeare, Tolstoy, or even Flaubert by the age of 100."

Carl Rogers, on the other hand, contended that psychotherapy has made "quite a little progress," particularly in moving away from medical explanations of mental illness toward a focus on growth of the individual.

Dr. Joseph Wolpe, a pioneering behavior therapist, noted: "An outside observer would be surprised to learn that this is what the evolution of psychotherapy has come to — a Babel of conflicting voices."

The 7,000 practicing and student psychotherapists, psychiatrists and social workers who attended various sessions were undaunted by the debates and differences of opinion. Obtaining autographs was a priority for many. Some stuck close within range of their personal favorite theorists; others tried to get a variety of existential, behavioral and cognitive approaches. Long before there was a buck to be made off a troubled soul on a couch, there were tribal elders for primitives to tell their sorrows to, speculated Dr. Murray Bowen. He believes psychotherapy's roots are in an instinctive mechanism by which people feel compelled to help one another.

Before Freud came along in the late 19th century, people who acted strangely were treated by "alienists." The usual prescription involved neurological remedies — rest cures. Freud's theory of the unconscious — which Bowen calls an "educated guess" — gave rise to a demand for psychoanalysts who would help patients unker with this new component of their beings.

Bowen, a clinical professor at Georgetown University Medical Center in Washington, said that one of Freud's lasting contributions was the notion that people replicate early relationships. Thus, problems with a spouse might reflect childhood conflicts with a parent; or feelings toward a parent might be transferred onto a therapist. There was plenty of talk of transference and counter-transference in the long lunch lines — evidence that the notion is still fresh.

Nails need moisturizing care

example, the tendency to break, split and peel — are inherited.

Do you want beauty at your fingertips? Then look no further than David Cannell, Ph.D., who is the vice president of research and development at Redken Laboratories and who has a doctorate from Yale in physical organic chemistry — give your nails the same treatment you give your skin: moisturize.

Yet the real source of nail problems, says Dr. Cannell, is dryness. In fact, a nail's flexibility and its resistance to breaking is directly related to its moisture content. Nail polish, polish remover, detergent and very hot or very cold weather all dry out your nails. To combat dryness, moisturize your nails and cuticles by first soaking them in water and then following up with a moisturizer. David C. Rish, M.D., a dermatologist, suggests using olive oil or your favorite moisturizer.

greaseless moisturizing agents, created especially for nail polish wearers.

NUTRITION: If you eat a balanced diet, which includes adequate protein, you're getting what your body needs to grow healthy nails. Forget that old wives' tale about gelatin encouraging growth — studies show this just isn't so.

ACETONE VS. NONACETONE POLISH REMOVERS: No matter what the contents of the polish remover you use, if it's strong enough to remove nail enamel, it's going to dry out your nails — and make nail moisturizing doubly important.

Your nails are made of hard, insoluble and complex protein molecules called keratin. This protein, like your hair, is essentially dead matter that needs conditioners to remain strong and flexible. The matrix generates new cells, which replace those that have died — the results you see are what's referred to as growth.

If you don't polish your nails, moisturizing presents no problems. If you do, give your nails a break by removing your polish frequently and moisturizing at least once a week.

FUNGUS: Nail fungus, a white or green growth, is most commonly caused by the improper application of porcelain or acrylic nails. To prevent fungus growth, nails must be absolutely clean and dry when false nails are applied.

Hepatitis vaccine largely ignored

WASHINGTON — What if the hepatitis B virus were as deadly as the AIDS virus? Would you get vaccinated? Many people who are vaccinated against hepatitis B do so because of the possibility of getting the disease, but few are aware of the fact that the hepatitis B virus is a major cause of liver cancer and liver cirrhosis, the leading cause of death among chronic liver disease patients.

The Centers for Disease Control (CDC) estimates that about 100 million Americans are at risk of getting hepatitis B, and that about 10 percent of the reported cases of AIDS in this country are caused by the hepatitis B virus.

The fear about the hepatitis B vaccine is that it is not as effective as the AIDS vaccine. In fact, the hepatitis B vaccine is only about 70 percent effective, according to the CDC. The AIDS vaccine is about 85 percent effective.

The fear is unfounded, according to the CDC. The hepatitis B vaccine is one of the most effective vaccines ever developed. It is also one of the most cost-effective, costing only about $10 per dose.

The CDC estimates that about 100 million Americans are at risk of getting hepatitis B, and that about 10 percent of the reported cases of AIDS in this country are caused by the hepatitis B virus.

...ology to prevent that spread of hepatitis B virus, but in the world at large, it just can't afford it.

...new factors could help overcome the old problem: a new method of producing the vaccine through genetic engineering—a new technology that has been developed in the last few years.

...the existing "plasma" vaccine, licensed by the Food and Drug Administration in 1981, is derived from plasma from blood donors who are carriers of the hepatitis B virus. But Merck and several other companies have developed a new method of producing the vaccine through recombinant-DNA or genetic engineering technologies.

...These recombinant vaccines are still undergoing clinical testing, but one or more is expected to be available in the next few years. Although the recombinant vaccine will be less expensive than the plasma vaccine, its research and development costs are substantial.

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING

RULE-MAKING

In compliance with the provisions of the Idaho Code, notice is hereby given that the Idaho Department of Health and Welfare, Division of Health and Welfare, has initiated rule-making under Docket Number 0301-8506, involving the adoption, amendment, repeal and renewal of rules governing the eligibility for financial assistance for the aged, blind, and disabled (AABD) and Medicaid.

The proposed rules are under Docket Number 0301-8506, involving the adoption, amendment, repeal and renewal of rules governing the eligibility for financial assistance for the aged, blind, and disabled (AABD) and Medicaid.

The Department is proposing the following: 1. To clarify the exclusion of a home from resources for Medicaid; 2. To repeat rules exempting unseizable non-exempt resources for AABD and Medicaid; 3. To clarify the exclusion of a home from resources for Medicaid when the owner has transferred the property; 4. To clarify policy for evaluating liquid and non-liquid resources for AABD and Medicaid; 5. To specify those groups entitled to Medicaid assistance; 6. To clarify the undue hardship waiver of the property transfer penalty for Medicaid; 7. To clarify the time limits specified below, any person can review the proposed rules in the DHW Administrative Procedure Section or in any of the regional administrative offices of the Department, Copies of the proposed rules will be made available upon written request specifying the docket number, at a rate of ten cents (10¢) per page. Checks must accompany the request and be made payable to the Department of Health and Welfare for the amount of $13.50.

Because Dogs are placed in every row and SOLD or DESTROYED after 48 hours, please call or visit the pound daily to check whether your pet has been picked up. This is not an up-to-date list. Mixed dogs are hard to describe, come to the pound to see if your pet is there. Come and pick out a puppy or full grown dog. They would love to have a home!
