U.S. blasts Libyan support for teams attacking airports

By MICHAEL PUTZEL The Associated Press

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. — Libya is believed to be supporting the Palestinian terrorist group suspected of masterminding the airport massacres in Rome and Vienna, the Reagan administration said Monday as it encouraged other nations to identify and wipe out those responsible.

White House spokesman Larry Speakes, briefing reporters in Palm Springs where President Reagan is vacationing, said of those involved in orchestrating the attacks: "If we can find who they are, or if another nation can find who they are and they attack 'em, wipe 'em out, that's fine with us."

from the initial U.S. stance of cautioning other nations to "exercise restraint in the wake of the airport attacks last Friday, Speakes said: "We have always been firmly opposed to an escalating cycle of violence which contains the seed of broader and more devastating hostilities. In that context, we have urged and will continue to urge all states to avoid taking actions which would only feed that cycle.

"At the same time," he added, "it has been our firm policy that terrorism cannot go unanswered. We have always retained the right to respond to terrorist acts in an appropriate, measured and focused way.

Senior administration officials said the United States was initially concerned that Israel would strike Syrian anti-aircraft missile sites in Lebanon or Palestine Liberation Organization headquarters in Tunisia to avenge the raids that killed 18 people, including five Americans, near El Al airline counters at the Rome and Vienna airports.

Indiscriminate attacks could threaten the Middle East peace process at a crucial time, the sources said, but they added officials did not mean for their initial statements to be taken as a policy shift away from the "swift and effective retribution" Reagan has promised to deal with international terrorism.

Terrorist trail leads to Beirut

By JOHN WINN MILLER The Associated Press

ROME — Investigators believe the airport attacks in Rome and Vienna that killed 18 people were carried out by suicide squads from Lebanon sent by way of Switzerland, the Italian news agency ANSA reported Monday.

Funerals for two victims — American Natasha Simpson, 31, the youngest victim, and Italian Francesco della Scala — were held in Rome on Monday.

Authorities have said the terrorists were sent to avenge the Israeli air raid Oct. 1 against the Palestine Liberation Organization's headquarters in Tunisia, which killed more than 60 people.

lack, Mohammed Sarham, and on other investigations.

Three Palestinian gunmen with Sarham were killed at Rome's Leonardo da Vinci Airport in the Friday morning onslaught. In Austria, two terrorists were wounded and captured and a third was killed after a simultaneous attack at Vienna's Schwechat Airport. Check-in counters of Israel's national airline El Al were the prime targets. Nearly 120 people were wounded in the two attacks.

Sarham, now held in a military hospital, told investigators he and his accomplices belonged to a Palestinian faction headed by Abu Nidal, Italian newspapers have reported.

Judge Domenico Sica questioned Sarham for hours Monday, ANSA said, adding that Sarham's testimony so far filled more than 40 pages.

Tunisian Prime Minister Mohammed M'Zali on Monday told Italian Premier Bettino Craxi by telephone that authorities in his country had determined that the passports found on the three terrorists in the Vienna attack belonged to Tunisian citizens expelled from Libya.

According to a statement from Craxi's office, M'Zali said the passports had been taken from the Tunisians when they were forced to leave the country, this fall as part of Libya's expulsions of foreign workers.

The Foreign Ministry on Monday called in Libya's Rome ambassador to express its "amazement and real disappointment" over Libyan praise of the airport terrorists, a ministry statement said.

Libya's JANA news agency on Sunday called the attacks "brave actions by the sons of Palestinian martyrs."

Jury convicts 10 Order members

By RORY MARSHALL The Associated Press

SEATTLE — Ten members of the Jew-hating, white supremacist group The Order were convicted of racketeering and other charges Monday in a crime spree that prosecutors said was aimed at financing a civil war against the federal government.

The nine men and one woman were accused of crimes including the assassination of an outspoken Jewish radio host and more than $4 million in robberies in 1983 and 1984.

"It was the only decision we could make based on the evidence," said the forewoman, Mary Hall. "The defendants' beliefs and all that were never part of it."

The trial, which began Sept. 9, included 295 prosecution witnesses, 43 defense witnesses and more than 1,500 exhibits. The all-white jury had heard three months of testimony and deliberated for two weeks.

"I can't quarrel with any of it," Assistant U.S. Attorney Gene Wilson said of the verdicts.

The defendants showed little reaction as the verdicts were read. Defendants Andrew Barnhill and Ardie McCreary winked as they left the courtroom, while Randall Evans said "Christ is king."

Nell Halprin, McCreary's lawyer, said he was "ecyical" about the verdicts. "I knew it was going to be real difficult for the jury to separate the 10 defendants. . . . It would have been very difficult to see someone with people accused of murder and armed robbery and not convict them because they were friends." Halprin said he would appeal, but another defense attorney had an opposite reaction. "You don't like to lose, but I don't see how anybody can complain about the jury giving us all due consideration," said Tony Seaveg, attorney for Barnhill. "It seemed to me they were thoroughly reviewed" — the evidence and the trial.

U.S. District Judge Walter McGovern set sentencing for Feb. 6-7. Defendants convicted only of racketeering and conspiracy to racketeer face maximum sentences of 40 years in prison and $50,000 in fines.

Defendants found guilty of racketeering included Pierce, Randolph Ducey, Yarbrough, Barnhill, Richard Kemp, David Lane, McCreary, Evans, Frank Silva and Ms. Craig.

In addition, Pierce and Ducey were found guilty of staging a $43,245 armored-car robbery in Seattle on March 16, 1984; Pierce, Yarbrough, Ducey, Kemp and Barnhill were found guilty of taking $536,000 in another armored-car robbery on April 23, 1984; and the same five were found innocent of planting a bomb in a Seattle adult theater on April 22, 1984.

Yarbrough was acquitted of participating in the March 16 robbery.

Pierce and Ducey also were found guilty of conspiracy to rob an armored car; Ducey and Barnhill were convicted on counts of transporting or storing stolen money; Ducey and Silva were convicted of harboring a fugitive; and Ducey was convicted on various firearms counts.

Pierce, Yarbrough, Ducey, Kemp, Evans and Barnhill face separate charges in a $3.6 million armored car robbery near Ukiah, Calif. Silva

Social Security benefits rise Jan. 1 but taxes go up as well

By CHRISTOPHER CONNELL The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Nearly 40 million Americans will find a 3.1 percent benefit increase in the Social Security and Supplemental Security Income checks being delivered this week.

But the new year also will bring a Social Security tax increase for all workers and higher Medicare deductibles for the elderly.

The average worker will have to pay an extra dime from every $100 that he or she makes to support Social Security as the payroll tax climbs from 7.05 percent to 7.15 percent on Wednesday.

That amounts to a 1.4 percent increase of the self-employed face a 4.2 percent increase as their payroll tax rate climbs from 11.8 percent to 12.3 percent.

And for workers earning $42,000 or more, the maximum payroll tax in 1985 will be $21,240, or 7.5 percent higher than this year, when the cutoff was $33,600. More than 7 million workers are expected to pay the maximum.

The 4 million aged, blind or disabled recipients of Supplemental Security Income will be the first to get the benefit increases. Those welfare checks will be delivered today, a day early due to the holiday, Social Security spokesman James Brown said.

The Social Security checks for 37 million retired or disabled workers and their families will be delivered as usual on Friday, the third day of the month.

The average SSI monthly payment for an individual will rise by $11 to $336, and for couples by $16 to $504. But about half the SSI recipients also get Social Security, and as their retirement benefits go up, many will wind up with reduced welfare checks.

The 3.1 percent benefit increase is the "smallest" since Social Security benefits were linked to the Consumer Price Index in 1975. It will translate to $14 extra a month for retired workers, boosting the average payment to $478. For elderly couples, the average joint benefit will climb to $812 a month, a $24 increase.

Brown said the maximum Social Security benefit for someone turning 65 in 1986 will be $760 a month.

The small increase in the Social Security tax rate — 0.1 percentage points — is earmarked entirely for Medicare coverage, which now will consume 1.45 percentage points of the payroll tax. There will be no payroll tax increase next year, but the tax is due to climb to 7.51 percent in 1988 and 7.65 percent in 1990. The maximum amount of earnings subject to the tax rises each time benefits go up.

The 31 million elderly or disabled persons with Medicare coverage will pay more out of pocket for hospital stays in 1986. The deductible a Medicare patient must pay for the first day's hospital stay will jump on Jan. 1 from $100 to $132.

The Medicare co-insurance for hospital stays of 61 to 90 days will climb from $109 to $123 a day. The co-insurance for stays lasting beyond 90 days will jump from $26 to $246 a day. Also, Medicare will charge people $61.50 a day instead of $50 for stays of more than 20 days in 1986.

Best time to look for comet coming up

By LEE SIEGEL The Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — If you haven't seen Halley's Comet yet, it's time to go out and look for it.

That's because the first half of January is one of the best viewing periods.

"This really is the best time for people in the Northern Hemisphere to see the comet with binoculars or the unaided eye," said Ed Krupp, director of Griffith Observatory in Los Angeles. "It's also relatively easy to find. For these two reasons, one ought to make the attempt now."

From today through mid-January, and perhaps as late as Jan. 21, the comet will be visible after the last glow of twilight in the west-southwest above the planet Jupiter, the brightest object in that part of the sky.

The comet will be lost in twilight in late January, then will be hidden by the sun's glare through most of February.

It may be up to six times brighter in March and April than during the next few weeks, so springtime views will be more impressive, for observers in the Southern Hemisphere and perhaps in the southern United States and places of similar latitudes, said Krupp and Steve Edberg, a coordinator of International Halley Watch at Jet Propulsion Laboratory in Pasadena.

But the comet will be too low on the horizon during the spring to be easily visible from cities north of about St. Louis, so the next few weeks "may be the only chance to see it," Krupp and Edberg added.

Edberg recommended that viewers go to a dark area far from city lights and follow these viewing recommendations made by Sky & Telescope magazine.

Jan. 1-7: Face southwest right after dark and find Jupiter low in the sky. Then hold your fist at arm's length, and find the dim star named Beta Aquarii about one fist-width to Jupiter's upper right. Above that star by another fist-width is the star Alpha Aquarii. Halley's comet will be just to the left of Alpha Aquarii by about the width of two fingers held at arm's length.

Jan. 8-14: Find Jupiter low near the west-southwest horizon just as twilight is ending. Again find Beta Aquarii one fist-width to Jupiter's upper right, then locate Alpha Aquarii another fist-width above Beta Aquarii. The comet will be a little to the left of an imaginary line connecting the two stars.

Jan. 15-21: Look to the west-southwestern horizon after the last glow of twilight. Find Jupiter, then locate Beta Aquarii one fist-width to Jupiter's upper right. Halley's comet will be to the star's upper left.

Edberg said the instructions should work for any Northern Hemisphere location.

Drunken drivers face aroused public

The Associated Press

Drunken drivers faced more than just an array of tough laws in 1985. They also faced growing public concern about their behavior, and nothing reflected that concern more than what occurred in Nevada.

In that state, thousands of motorists no longer ignore erratic driving. Under a new program that encourages people to report suspected drunken driving, police received 3,941 calls, located 891 autos and made 437 arrests this year.

That's an apparent 25 percent increase from 1984, when the state's drunk driving hotline was first established. In Maryland, where police monitor a radio band channel of the number 666-6666, reports of drunken drivers increased this year to 1,526 from Michigan installed a toll-free line for reporting drunk drivers. The drinking law in that state, "Soberize" roadblocks are popping up on summer weekends and winter holidays. Cab companies in dozens of cities offer drivers to replace their own. And, in many states, thousands of drunken drivers are losing their licenses or going to jail.

"We are all getting used to it by having a 24-hour hotline to report drunk drivers. And, we really hope that we will not go back to the days when drunk drivers were just a nuisance."

California's new law, which took effect in January, requires that any driver who is arrested for drunk driving must be taken to a hospital for a blood test. The law also requires that the driver be held in custody until the test results are available.

Burglars strike rural homes

RUPERT—A rash of rural residential burglaries and thefts brought a warning Monday from the Minidoka County Sheriff's Office.

Chief Deputy Bob Nevezar said residents should take precautions to protect their property when it is necessary to be away from home for any length of time.

About $700 in television, sound and recording equipment was taken from one home during the Christmas holiday, Nevezar said. In several other instances homes were broken into and damage done by vandals, and there have been some attempted burglaries.

He said the instances are under investigation, but no arrests have been made.

Tarps taken from parked truck

TWIN FALLS—The driver of a semi-truck and trailer used in Twin Falls police that while the vehicle was parked behind 1922 Kimberly Road someone took several large tarps, valued at $1,900.

Lewis J. Holloway of Twin Falls said the tarps were folded and stored on the bed of the truck when the truck was left overnight on the lot. He said when the tarps were checked on about 11 a.m. Sunday he found the tarps that are used to cover cargo had been removed.

Twin Falls police were also investigating the theft of a radar detector Monday.

Eric Kinsinger of Twin Falls said he parked his vehicle at 1309 Blue Lakes Blvd. N. for about an hour and a half Sunday night. He said someone broke a window and reached in and removed the equipment. He estimated his loss at $380, including damage to the vehicle.

Warberg named to state board

BOISE—Gov. John Evans has announced the appointment of John P. Warberg of Twin Falls as a new member of the Idaho State Board of Hearing Aid Dealers and Fitters.

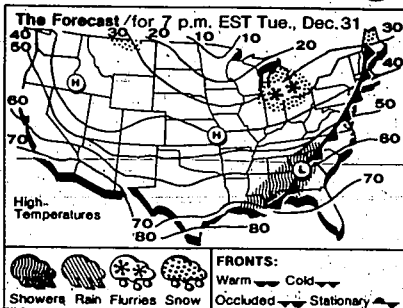

Warberg's term will run until July 30, 1988. As a member of the board, he succeeds Gerald L. Young of Idaho Falls, whose term has expired.

Suspect in burglaries in court

HAILLEY—A suspect arrested Sunday night by Blaine County officers was charged Monday with nine counts of burglary, Sheriff Dennis Haynes reported.

Haynes said Jeffrey Redd, 26, formerly of Burley and now residing south of Ketchum, was charged on burglary charges Monday afternoon and is held in the county jail in lieu of $11,500 bond.

Haynes said the charges involve nine separate burglaries that have occurred over a period of time in Blaine County. He said he hopes to recover all or most of the items taken in the burglaries.

A dollar figure on the items involved had not been compiled Monday, Haynes said, but he expects it to be sizeable. Several of the thefts occurred in Ketchum and others in the county area.

Ski four bus crash kills girl

NEPHI, Utah (AP) — A chartered bus carrying California high school students to Idaho for holiday skiing overturned on an icy highway Monday, killing a student and sending 21 passengers to the hospital.

The bus was carrying a 44-member ski group from Wilson High School in Long Beach, Calif., when it hit black ice, spun completely around and overturned south of here, pinning some of the students inside, said U.S. Trooper Norman Vincent.

The bus had been traveling along a two-lane, undivided and temporary section of Interstate 15 in north-central Utah and was en route to Sun Valley, Idaho, when the accident was reported about 6:30 a.m., said UHP dispatcher Peggy Smith.

The bus, driven by Nelson McElrath, 47, of Midvale, Utah, was not exceeding the speed limit at the time of the crash, said Sterling Christianson, a UHP district commander.

The fatal victim was identified as Kristin Baker, 17, of Long Beach.

Authorities said McElrath and 23 passengers were taken to Central Valley Medical Center in Nephi, where they were treated for minor injuries.

The other 21 passengers, most of them students, escaped injury and were waiting at a motel in Nephi to transfer to another bus to return home.

Order

faces an illegal-weapons charge in Arkansas.

Among the government witnesses were a dozen former Order members or associates who painted a picture of quasi-religious, right-wing extremists with plans of waging war against the federal government and establishing a "homeland" for white people.

They said the group was founded and led by Robert Mathews, a one-time tax protester and family man who said he hoped to recover all or "giving white children a future." He was killed in a shootout with federal agents.

"Great... it's great," John Matthews, brother of the Order founder, said after the verdict.

"For the Order, it ends it," said Mathews, of Metalline Falls, Wash. "But there's lots of kooks out there. I'm disgusted that it all happened, that 'there's people like the nazis.'"

Among other things, prosecution witnesses said:

- Order members were assigned to "clean up" such pro-segregationists and television network journalists, who were considered enemies of the white race. They considered bombing a hotel where the Rev. Martin Luther King Jr. was staying, part of the Rothschild banking family, was to speak to a Jewish organization dinner in November 1983.

The group followed the plot of "The Turner Diaries," a white supremacist novel that depicts a band of Aryan warriors waging war against the government and financing their efforts through armored robberies and counterfeiting.

The federal government was referred to as ZOG — the Zionist Occupied Government.

The group gave stolen cash, up to $300,000 at a time, to leaders of other right-wing groups around the country, and considered approaching the Syrian government or other Arab groups for financial support.

Order leaders considered executing at least two of their own members or sending them on suicide missions for breaking security regulations.

In addition to the 10 convicted Monday, a federal indictment issued Speakes said the United States is prepared to work with other governments to take action against the regime of Libyan leader Moammar Khadafi. While refusing to disclose what steps might be contemplated, he said military action "is always an option" in combating terrorism.

Asked if the administration regards Libya as responsible for the airport attacks, Speakes said, "We can't say that specifically."

"The evidence is still being analyzed," the spokesman said. "All indications so far point to Abu Nidal's group, a radical splinter organization that broke with Yasser Arafat's Fatah contingent" in the PLO in the 1970s.

"Other governments directly concerned share this judgment," Speakes said.

"We also note with considerable interest that the Libyan government has applauded the attacks in Rome and Vienna as heroic acts," he added. "We believe that the Libyan government has given the group a considerable amount of financing and assistance," as well as providing Nidal with an operating base in Libya.

As far as what the United States would do in retaliation, we never comment on what we might do," Speakes said. "We keep our options open."

The United States, which long has branded the Libyan regime as an instigator of international terrorism, has sought to isolate it by invoking various sanctions, including a ban on exports of equipment deemed useful for military purposes.

Police arrest Mandela again

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Police arrested Winnie Mandela after forcing her car off an airport highway Monday and pushing her shouting from the vehicle. Mrs. Mandela had returned to Johannesburg in violation of a state order banning her from setting foot in South Africa's largest city.

The 50-year-old black activist was whisked to a police cell at Krugersdorp, 30 miles west of Johannesburg, where her lawyers said she would be held overnight. She was to appear in court Tuesday to be charged for the second time since Dec. 21 with defying the white-led government's ban.

Mrs. Mandela's arrest occurred shortly after her arrival at Jan Smuts Airport, where she met with her lawyers and then took off in a car with her family and headed toward her home in Johannesburg's black township of Soweto.

FBI foils dozens of plots

WASHINGTON (AP) — In a year of burgeoning terrorism against Americans traveling overseas, the FBI foiled nearly two dozen terrorist incidents in this country, Director William H. Webster said Monday.

At the same time, he acknowledged it is much easier for terrorists to attack Americans traveling abroad, but cautioned against relying too heavily on advisories warning overseas travelers of potential danger.

In an interview on NBC's "Today" program, Webster said that over the past year, the FBI thwarted 23 domestic terrorist incidents before they could materialize. Spokesman Lane Bonner said that was the highest one-year total since the bureau began keeping track of such interdictions in 1982.

Sniper ends hostage seizure

NEWPORT, Ky. (AP) — A self-described heroin addict and murderer who threatened to kill his two teen-age hostages and any police officers he saw was shot to death Monday by a state police sniper, ending a 30-hour siege.

Dennis Lucas, 20, was shot shortly after one hostage was rescued and police decided the situation had deteriorated," said state police Capt. Dale Fortner.

Lucas took the two brothers hostage in their home about 5 a.m. Sunday and demanded between $20,000 and $50,000 and airline tickets to Europe for the three of them, police said.

Shortly before police fired the fatal shot into a first-floor bedroom, they had rescued Robert Wardlaw, 14, whom Lucas had allowed to go into another room, according to state police spokesman Jim Dolwick.

Lucas had threatened the life of the remaining hostage, Robert's 16-year-old brother, Larkin, and police concluded it was futile to continue negotiating, Fortner said.

Road toll may hit 130-230

CHICAGO (AP) — Between 130 and 230 people may die on the nation's roadways during the two-day New Year's holiday period that began Monday, according to National Safety Council estimates.

For counting purposes, the holiday began at 6 p.m. local time and lasts until midnight Wednesday, the council said.

Last year, when the weekend period encompassed four days, 566 people died. The highest New Year's death toll was recorded in 1965, when 644 people died in a three-day period.

In a survey spokesman said about 150 deaths could be expected during a similar, non-holiday period.

Conservatives after Chevron

WASHINGTON (AP) — A conservative group, saying the Chevron Corp. is "working hand-in-glove with Fidel Castro and Mikhail Gorbachev," announced Monday it has launched a $1 million campaign designed to pressure Chevron into pulling its Gulf Oil operations out of communist-ruled Angola.

In San Francisco, Chuck Wootton and Michael Marcy, spokesmen for Chevron, called the campaign by the Conservative Caucus ill-informed, and said the corporation maintains "a position of strict neutrality" with regard to Angola's Marxist government.

Howard Phillips, chairman of the Conservative Caucus, said that Gulf operations in the Cabinda province of Angola generate "more than $2-billion-per-year in hard currency to keep a Soviet puppet regime in power," including helping to pay for Cuban mercenaries and Soviet weaponry.

Budget act target of legal challenges

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Justice Department told Congress Monday it considers a section of the recently enacted balanced budget act an unconstitutional infringement on President Reagan's budgeting authority.

But instead of focusing on the merits of that argument, the department asked a federal court Monday to dismiss a suit brought by a group of congressmen challenging the disputed sections on other grounds.

In a letter to Vice President George Bush, who presides over the Republican-dominated Senate, and House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill, D-Mass., Attorney General Edwin Meese said his department cannot defend in any court the constitutionality of the disputed provisions.

The dispute revolves about the Balanced Budget and Emergency Deficit Control Act, also known as the Gramm-Rudman-Hollings Act named for its sponsors, Sens. Phil Gramm, R-Texas, Warren Rudman, R-N.H., and Ernest Hollings, D-S.C.

Reagan signed the bill into law Dec. 12, but at the time he voiced reservations about the constitutionality of two sections of the act which give new budget-making powers to the comptroller general, who heads the General Accounting Office, and the director of the Congressional Budget Office.

In Palm Springs, Calif., where President Reagan is vacationing, White House spokesman Larry Speakes said Reagan would like a clarification of the legislation constitutionally because it does deal with a previously uncharted area of the law.

The president still supports the landmark measure, Speakes said. Reps. Mike Synar, D-Okla. and Silvio Conte, R-Mass., and 11 other members of the House have filed a suit in federal district court here challenging the same provisions disputed by the Justice Department — but for different reasons.

The suit by the lawmakers asks a three-judge federal panel to declare Sections 251 and 252 of the act as an unconstitutional limitation on the ability of Congress to make federal budgets.

The administration's legal maneuver was more an attempt to get Synar's suit tossed out of court than an effort to buttress the Justice Department's contention that the two sections give officers of the legislative branch too much discretionary authority over budget cuts which would be forced upon the government.

The Gramm-Rudman-Hollings Act seeks to force a balanced federal budget on the government by 1991 by giving new powers to the comptroller general and head of the CBO to prepare for the president orders which would bring about rescissions in various accounts when government expenditures are outstanding receipts in violation of budget-cutting targets.

USSR to give 36 more permission to depart

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Soviet Union has told the United States it will allow 36 more citizens to join relatives here, the State Department said Monday night.

"We welcome the Soviet decision," the department said.

The Soviets have provided American officials with a new list of the three dozen citizens whom it will permit to emigrate, officials said.

San Francisco Mayor Dianne Feinstein made the first disclosure of the Soviet action, saying she was notified shortly before Christmas by Soviet Consul General Valentin Kamenyev.

In response to press questions, the State Department said the 36 Soviets belong to 10 divided families. They are in addition to the 30 the Soviets promised to resolve on the eve of the Geneva summit, it said.

The names of the 36 were not immediately disclosed.

Mayor Feinstein had said the 36 have relatives in California, New York and Minnesota.

She had written Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev last April, asking him to "end the pain of separation" for 160 Soviet citizens with families in the United States.

The letter was co-signed by mayors Tom Bradley of Los Angeles, Raymond Flynn of Boston, Edward Koch of New York, Donald Fraser of Minneapolis, Harold Washington of Chicago, William Hudnut of Indianapolis and William Donald Schaefer of Baltimore.

Feinstein also brought up the matter during her trip to the Soviet Union last month.

She said the Soviet Union is continuing to weigh requests for exit visas from the list of 160 people submitted by the mayors.

Sunday night, Mrs. Helle Frejus became the first Soviet spouse of an American citizen to come to the United States following the Soviet's pre-summit announcement.

Mrs. Frejus, 59, who married 82-year-old Kazimierz Frejus of Pomona, Calif., in 1979, arrived at Los Angeles International Airport. She had not seen her husband since 1981.

In Baltimore on Monday, another Soviet citizen, Tatyana Bondareva, arrived for a reunion with the American husband, Tony Bartholomew, 47, a California businessman. They had not seen each other for a year.

TMI leak contaminates 9

MIDDLETOWN, Pa. (AP) — A small amount of radiation leaked at the Three Mile Island nuclear plant Monday when a seal on a pump leaked, contaminating nine workers with a small amount of radiation, the plant's operator said.

An "unusual event," the lowest of four emergency categories in the nuclear industry, was declared at 1:50 a.m. when the leak was detected, said TMI spokesman Doug Bedell. The event was declared over at 4:20 a.m.

About 300 gallons of filtered water from the reactor's primary system was released during the 10-minute leak in the Unit 1 auxiliary building and a small amount of radioactive gas was vented outside the plant, said GPU Nuclear Corp., which operates the plant.

Karl Abraham, a Nuclear Regulatory Commission spokesman said the incident was not serious.

Civilian rule for Pakistan

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan (AP) — President Mohammed Zia ul-Haq ended 8 1/2 years of military rule Monday, praising the armed forces for saving Pakistan and warning Parliament to avoid discord if it did not want the military to intervene again.

The new civilian government immediately announced the end of a state of emergency imposed in 1965 and used by successive civilian and military governments to suspend civil liberties and curb opponents and dissent.

But the opposition, consisting of nearly all of the nation's political parties, said that Gen. Zia's lifting of martial law was a sham and that Zia and the army would continue to govern behind the facade of the new civilian government.

Prime Minister Mohammed Khan Jinnah said the opposition, consisting of nearly all of the nation's political parties, said that Gen. Zia's lifting of martial law was a sham and that Zia and the army would continue to govern behind the facade of the new civilian government.

Mexico cuts price on crude oil again

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Mexico announced Monday it was lowering its crude oil prices to the range of 90 cents a barrel, retroactive to Dec. 1. It was the second decrease in a month and marked an unusual change in pricing strategy.

In a surprise announcement, the state petroleum monopoly PEMEX also said the next price change would be announced "sometime towards the end of January" and would be retroactive to Jan. 1.

PEMEX normally announces new prices during the first week of each month with the prices effective on the first day of the following month.

New year will bring excellence challenge

A new year is upon us, and with it, senses of both relief and foreboding in world and Idaho events. Let's look both back and ahead:

In the world, the summit meeting between Mikhail Gorbachev and Ronald Reagan ended in what amounts to improved relations between the two countries.

On the other side, Islamic militants are increasingly bold in their terrorist strikes. The Middle East remains what it has been for centuries — a seething morass of politics, religions, feuds and alliances.

At home, righteousness has spread through the American political system. It is now acceptable in some circles for some of our legislators to go off to hear lectures on the evils of world communism.

We would prefer, as we think many other citizens would, that they stay home and work on solving Idaho's problems. Maybe they will in 1986, but don't bet on it.

In Idaho, the economy continues to weaken, and with it, our educational system. It is eroding our state by slow degrees.

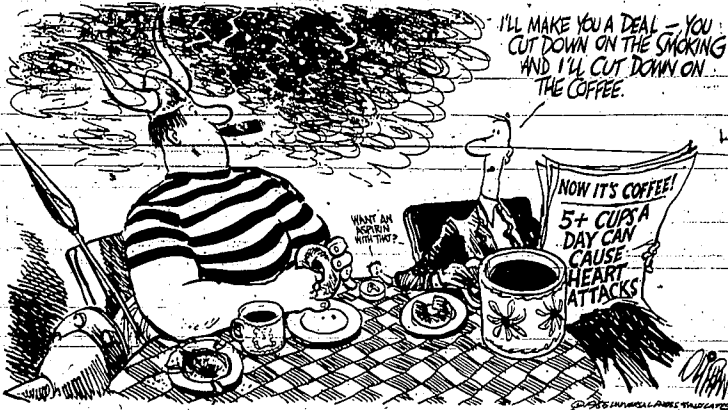

If we do not invest in our own future, if we do not work hard and spend the money necessary to improve, Idaho will slide backward relative to the nation.

Some people want it this way. Ask some of your legislators.

What you will hear is that our children don't need to know anything more than "basics"; that economic growth depends only on getting rid of compulsory unionism; that we can't afford to invest because the economy is "weak."

But ask yourself, what will we have here in Idaho in a decade without that investment?

In November, U.S. News & World Report identified dozens of quality universities and colleges across the country. Not a single Idaho school, public or private, was even mentioned, much less rated. Is this what we want for Idaho in 1986 and beyond?

Private retirement plans down the road

WASHINGTON — As the old year goes out and the new year comes in, let me venture a single forecast:

One of these years (not one of these days), Congress will move toward a phasing-out of Social Security and toward a phasing-in of private programs to protect us in our retirement years.

This is an idea whose time will come. This won't materialize in 1986. It may be a decade or more.

Eventually political considerations will compel Congress to offer young workers: just entering the labor force, a better option than Social Security for their senior years. This phasing-in won't affect the 36 million persons now receiving Social Security benefits: their benefits will be fully protected. Neither will it affect those workers now in their late 40s and mid-50s. They will get everything now promised to them.

The privatization (a dreadful word) will offer an opportunity to my grandchildren. It is their future that concerns me.

These thoughts are set in motion in part by an essay by Peter Young, executive director of the Adam Smith Institute in the U.S.A. His article, recently released by the Heritage Foundation, deals with pending proposals for a gradual privatization of a part of Great Britain's social security program. What is going on there is a portent of what will happen here.

Our program and the British' program have much in common. Both retirement systems operate under an illusion and a reality. The illusion is that some nebulous "trust fund" protects future benefits; the reality is that in both nations, the systems are virtually pay-as-we-go. Taxes come in; benefits go out. Both nations look to the same demographic future: We will have more old folks receiving benefits, and we will have fewer young people paying Social Security taxes. By the turn of the century, just 15 years hence, one of every five Americans will be more than 65 years old.

A political war is coming. We have known this in the past, between free states and slave states, between farm and city, between protective tariffs and the doctrines of free trade.

The impending political war will be between young and old. The relatively young, who will be paying pensions, punitive taxes on their wages, will be rebelling against financing benefits for their parents and grandparents. They will demand an alternative for themselves.

Great Britain is putting out feelers in just this direction. Over the years our cousins have created a supplement to their basic retirement program.

It now is possible for British workers to opt out of a part of the social security taxes they otherwise would pay. They and their employers may instead pay into approved private pension plans. It is a complicated procedure, but roughly half of all eligible British workers have chosen to take the option.

The transition has had no effect on present-day retirees. Their benefits have not been reduced in any way. Every pension entitlement will be honored.

Neither will the program harm those workers who already are close to retirement. Men over 50 and women over 45 will continue under the present system.

Over a three-year period, if the plan gains parliamentary acceptance, younger workers would move toward paying a percent of their wages matched by employers into private pension programs to supplement the basic benefits.

It makes sense. As Peter Young observes in his essay, the plan would create vast new pools of private capital for economic development. It would serve the cause of personal liberty, by giving workers greater flexibility in planning their own retirement.

Each of these Super-IRA accounts would be a valuable personal asset; a worker's fund balance would accompany him from job to job; on his death, the worker would have something tangible to leave to his family.

The system of private pensions advocated by Young is essentially the same system long advocated by Peter J. Ferrara, who writes for the Cato Institute. Both economists believe that private pension programs are philosophically and financially superior to governmental programs. Especially for blacks, who tend to die sooner than whites, private retirement plans offer tremendous advantages.

The British plan, which calls for a 20-year phasing-in of supplementary benefits, would harm no present retiree. It would greatly benefit retirees of the next century. Great Britain is now actively engaged in debate on the proposition.

Our Congress will not even grant hearings on Ferrara's ideas. As I concede, the time for his ideas has not come. Believe me, it will come.

James Kilpatrick writes his column, "A Conservative View," from Washington.

Predictions about smoking, terrorism and politics for 1986

BOSTON — This is the time of year when columnists are asked to tell the future. I have no idea why, since we generally write in and about the present tense. Journalists don't do windows and they don't do the future.

Nevertheless, a New Year deserves something new and so I will break old habits. I hereby offer a set of predictions which are absolutely rock-solid, sure-fire bets.

In the year 1986: Sylvester Stallone will write, produce and star in a movie entitled "Rambo goes to Afghanistan."

The entire Miami police force, through collective bargaining, will adopt white raw-silk jackets and peach-colored sweaters as its uniform.

The Surgeon General will add a new label to cigarette packages. It will read "Smoke This and You Die." Sales will remain steady.

A group of terrorists will hijack a plane in the Middle East and, in return for giving up hostages, demand a 20-week prime-time television series of their very own. The Heritage Foundation will publish definitive research proving that white males are the sole victims of discrimination in America. Edwin Meese will use this research in 16 briefs of the court briefs.

Sometimes in May, IRS computers will send the rebates for the entire state of Illinois to a small town in Wyoming.

A political columnist will break the first story detailing Ted Kennedy's plan to run for President in 1992.

In California, an irate client will sue a weight-loss clinic for malpractice because she gained ten pounds. The jury will find the clinic guilty despite the fact that the woman ate a daily wheel of brle. Amidst great fanfare, Donald Regan will promote the last remaining woman in the Reagan Cabinet, Elizabeth Dole, from her lowly post in Transportation to an exalted post as Ambassador to Tonga.

In the NIH laboratories, 43 out of 60,000 white rats will die after being force-fed candy bars nonstop for six weeks, leading to a national panic about chocolate as a carcinogen.

About 23 present or former senators, governors, Cabinet secretaries and others mentioned" for 1988 will make their first visit to New Hampshire. Just for the siking.

A new rock group named the Child Abusers will release a record called "Burn, Baby, Burn." Those who protest will be described as "a bunch of puritanical, umbrella-waving old ladies."

The Pentagon budget will show an unspent excess of some $50 billion dollars. The joint chiefs will present research proving that the Soviet military budget has $55 billion in unspent excess. In order to assure our national security, they will demand that we match the Russians.

The Reagan administration will continue its harassment of Daniel Ortega by banning the export of designer sunglasses to Nicaragua.

After research showing that breathing charcoal-grilled steak is bad for your health, a restaurant in Minnesota will become the first to institute a new policy of meat-eating and non-meat-eating sections.

According to a new White House security policy, Cabinet members will be required to show identification before attending meetings. A passport, driver's license and two credit cards with a photo I.D. will be accepted.

Somewhere in America, a lawyer will turn down a corporate case with a large fee because "I just didn't feel comfortable with it."

After a nation-wide search, NASA, which has selected Sen. Jack Garn and Rep. Bill

Nelson for missions, will finally announce the winner of its journalist-in-space competition. It will be Ronald Reagan Jr. reporting from orbit the way he reported from Geneva for Playboy magazine.

The British plan, which calls for a 20-year phasing-in of supplementary benefits, would harm no present retiree. It would greatly benefit retirees of the next century. Great Britain is now actively engaged in debate on the proposition.

Our Congress will not even grant hearings on Ferrara's ideas. As I concede, the time for his ideas has not come. Believe me, it will come.

Letters/ With a good deal on whitewash, this citizen could be in business

Not enough mud to reach
I'm walking down Main to D Crado's the day after Christmas, and I spot this kid at the cleaners swooshing a broomstick around in a big old mop can.

I say, "What's that brown stuff you got in the can, kid?" He goes, "Mud, mister, just mud."

I says with my eyebrows at alio, "What're you stirring up a bucket of mud for?"

He goes, "I'm making me a batch of Kimberlums."

I see his dead right off when he tells me Kimberlums are folks from around Kimberley like city hall, and the suburbs.

This is a couple of days after the big meeting, see, and the day after the Times. News spreads it all over. Somebody should tell them about omertà!

But, thinking maybe there's a shot or two here for me, I says, "Kid, here's a couple of bucks, how about adding a name or two from my list to that mess."

He goes, "Now, I'd like to help you, I really would. But there just isn't enough mud. You know?"

Smart alec. He got me, all right. But he won't have the only game in town if I can get Arnold to give me a break on about a ton of whitewash.

I'll set up on home plate, catty-corner from him.

Time to add starving deer

If I think cannot afford to feed its deer in order to prevent starvation, I think the state should appeal to the federal government for help. After all, this is America. In my opinion, few, if any, taxpayers are heartless enough to not care whether deer starve to death or not; that is if it is possible to prevent it.

Let's hurry up and do something before the situation becomes more desperate! Are people there writing their congressmen?

One solution to problem

I was watching a program on TV last week about the horse and buggy days of the early 1900s. When someone would open a new mill or mine, they would build a town around it.

These became known as company towns. In order to work for the mill or mine, you had to live in the company town. Each town also had a company store. To insure that their employees did all of their shopping in the company store, they were paid in company script, which could only be spent in the company store.

The city of Rupert also tells its employees where they can live. In order to work for the city of Rupert, you have to live within their line.

If you wish to live over the line, you have to give up your job. During a Rupert City Council meeting, a top city official expressed the fear that if employees were allowed to live over their line, they may not do all of their shopping in Rupert. This problem could be solved by paying all city employees with a Rupert script, which could only be spent with Rupert merchants.

Thanks to special people

This is the season to be thankful for what we have. It is also the season that some people go out of their way to help others less fortunate than themselves. This is a letter to all the people just like that.

We, my boys and myself, would like to say, "Thank you" to some really special people. Some of whom we don't even know.

The group at the Windbreak in Twin Falls got together and decided to try and help out some families this holiday season. They put a lot of time and energy and a lot of long hours to make some boys and girls a little more happy on Christmas morning. And then K-Mart here in Twin Falls opened their store two hours early so these people could do all the shopping. This is the true holiday spirit.

I'm sure I speak for a lot of other folks. So when I say, "Thank you so much" God bless you. And a special thanks to Debbie.

Also, to the city of Twin Falls; the lights in City Park are beautiful. I look forward to seeing them again. Happy holiday!

Stress creates monsters

The main reason that Greek mythology took the world by storm is because it marked the first time man used his imagination in a positive way.

I have been wondering if a lot of today's stress is not being magnified by the sloppy control of our imaginations.

From the time we are old enough to be afraid of the dark until the day we die we are being confronted with involuntary thought patterns from our imaginations. Take the following as an example:

A child is frozen in fear as soon as his light goes out at night because of imaginary monsters that lurk in the darkness. This is self-imposed stress.

A man sees a beautiful young lady; but fails to make her reciprocate because he is afraid she will think he is ugly or stupid. This is a self-imposed poor self-image.

A businessman sees an opportunity to make a good business move, but fails to do anything out of fear of failure and lets the opportunity go by.

I see older people, that have led successful lives and are now retired, stressing themselves out as they sit around their houses. They start worrying about their children's marriage, their jobs, etc. and literally can not sleep at night with their substituted monster. You see, older people are too intelligent to believe in monsters in their own lives, so they get clever and invent them in someone else's.

At some point our imagination can turn from being a benefit in our lives, to becoming an uncontrolled monster.

I have a way of determining just how beneficial my thoughts are to me, and perhaps it can help you. For the next 24 hours, write down all of the thoughts as to if they are real fears or imagined. You will soon see that we spend a lot of our time worrying about garbage. We can set ourselves free. We can get out of the harness self-indicated stress. I think of John 8 "and the truth shall set you free."

Kimberly's turmoil turns to recall election

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

KIMBERLY — City officials in Kimberly, with seven months of turmoil and two major elections in their community behind them, are now looking ahead to a recall election.

A petition to recall Mayor Ron Jones, who ordered an investigation of the Kimberly Police Department by the Idaho Attorney General's Office, has been filed and certified, Jones said Monday he has no intention of resigning and the election will have to proceed.

Jones must resign prior to 5 p.m. today or face the recall move.

State law provides that a recall election be set between 30-40 days after a proper petition is filed. Such a petition requires the signatures of at least 20 percent of the registered voters who were qualified to vote in the last city general election. In Kimberly this would be 138 signatures. A petition filed late last week with the city clerk contained 174 signatures.

A second petition, taken out against Councilman Jack Wright, has not been returned.

The city clerk's records showed Monday. Jones said he is satisfied with results of the lengthy proceedings involving the investigations by the Attorney General's Office and the Twin Falls Police Department into alleged improprieties in the Kimberly Police Department.

Neither investigation found any grounds for criminal prosecution.

"I feel that what I started out to do has been completed. All I wanted was to do have of the rumors checked out and the public informed. That has been done," he said.

He added he believes the investigation did something for Kimberly and also for other communities.

They (other city councils) are afraid to rock the boats and look into their government officials, so they let things go. I think indirectly this will help other small towns," Jones said.

Jones said he felt the investigation of the Attorney General's Office was unbiased and thorough, "considering they were working with a hostile council and a police chief that wouldn't cooperate."

A report indicating he may still have a sawed-off shotgun in his possession is false,

Jones said, noting that he gave it to the attorney general's investigator and told the council that in an executive session some time ago.

City Council members say they have learned a lot in the past months.

"This shows what can happen when one person takes over to be an investigator," said Councilman Wright. "It is important to follow the chain of command."

Wright cited evidence that the mayor bypassed the City Council in calling for the attorney general's investigation and in giving

Jail suit motion denied

Dismissal refused; Munn to be named

By PAT MARCANTONIO
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Fifth District Court Judge Daniel Hurlbutt refused Monday to dismiss a lawsuit against Twin Falls County over alleged inadequate conditions at the 70-year-old county jail.

Hurlbutt also said Sheriff Jim Munn should be named as a co-defendant with the county and the Board of County Commissioners because he was an "indispensable" party.

In response, attorney Greg Fuller, who filed the lawsuit on behalf of two former jail inmates, said he would file an amended written complaint that included Munn as a defendant.

The Jan. 7 trial date on the lawsuit may be delayed, however, in order to give Munn time to find an attorney. The parties will confer later this week to determine if the trial will proceed as scheduled.

Former jail inmates Ted Malney Jr. and Michael Godson claimed in the Oct. 22 lawsuit that conditions at the jail violated their constitutional rights. They asked the court to order the county to reduce the jail population, close the jail and begin taking steps to build a new jail.

Twin Falls attorney Lloyd Webb, who represented the county, asked Hurlbutt at the Monday hearing to dismiss the lawsuit because there is a question of whether the court has the jurisdiction to grant the plaintiffs' requests.

It's an issue of how much power the judicial branch has over the executive branch," he said.

Meeting to discuss airport suit

TWIN FALLS — The city and county of Twin Falls have called a joint meeting Thursday to discuss a civil suit brought against both in 5th District Court by Walter and Sheridan Mueller of Twin Falls.

The Muellers are asking for compensation for land they own three-quarters of a mile from the west end of the most active branch of the Twin Falls-Sun Valley Regional Airport.

They claim their land lost value when the city of Twin Falls extended its area of impact in 1979 to include their land in an airport zone. The new zone prevents the land from being subdivided.

They also claim that increased noise that resulted from the extension of a runway has reduced the value of their 40 acres.

Both instances are, unconstitutional takings of private land for public use, the Muellers claim in court documents. They are asking the court to require the city and county to purchase rights already taken or to start condemnation proceedings and have them compensated.

A claim for pain and suffering caused by the rumble of aircraft and excessive noise and vibration has already been dismissed.

The case is scheduled for trial before Judge Daniel Meehl late in January.

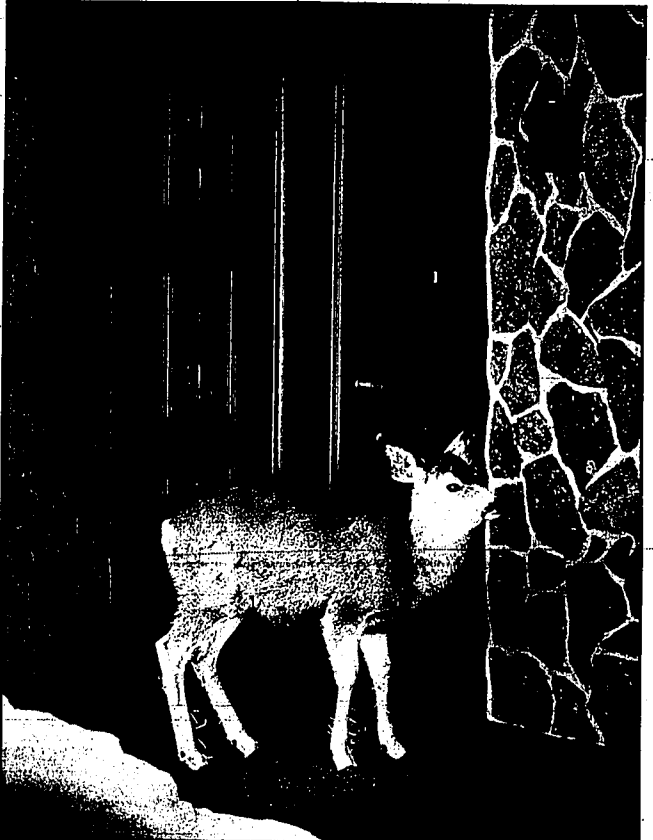

The meeting at City Hall at 3:30 p.m. Thursday will give the defendants in the case a chance to discuss litigation and defense strategies, said City Attorney Shane Bengoechea.

The county commissioners, Twin Falls councilmembers, city and county attorneys, and former city attorney Fritz Wondertlich will attend. Wondertlich, who is familiar with the case from his time as city attorney, is likely to represent the city.

The meeting will be closed to the public, as provided by Idaho code for discussions of pending litigation.

Emergency feeding barely keeps up

By KENNETH A. BROWN
Times-News writer

This injured deer took refuge at a house near the Jerome Country Club

JEROME — Emergency winter feeding programs and other weather-related wildlife problems have meant almost non-stop activity at the Fish and Game Department's District Office in Jerome.

The local office currently is operating 10 emergency feeding sites in the area and feeding about 1,000 deer and 500 antelope, the department's Stu Murrell said. Almost all of those feeding sites are on private land, and Murrell said the department has received outstanding cooperation from area landowners with the deer and antelope problems.

In addition to the local feeding, Murrell said the department is feeding about 1,000 elk and 1,500 deer in portions of Region 4 near the Utah-Idaho border.

In spite of the stepped up program, however, "we're going to lose some animals, no question about it," Murrell said. Holding up a handful of 20 or so telephone message slips, he said they were all for calls reporting crippled or injured animals or farmers and homeowners reporting predation problems.

Murrell estimated that about 300 deer have been killed locally in highway and railroad accidents.

"Unfortunately, we can't go out for every animal in trouble," Murrell said. "We've got hundreds of animals we're trying to feed and we just don't have the manpower."

If the cold weather holds up, money could also be a problem for the department. While $500,000 has been allocated statewide for winter feeding, $200,000 has been used already, Murrell said, even though the winter season is only beginning.

Deep snows and persistent cold temperatures have forced deer and antelope down from their usual winter ranges into the farmland areas of the Magic Valley. Ear tags show some of the deer now in the Twin Falls area have come from as far away as Craters of the Moon National Monument.

The cold weather has been hard on birdlife as well. "We've been bringing in raptors in tough shape," Murrell said. "Some have been hit on the roadway, others are starving to death." Deep snows have made it hard for the raptors — hawks, eagles and owls — to find the small animals they depend on for food. Like other wildlife, they too have taken to congregating near roadways and highways — with fatal results.

In addition to feeding programs, the Fish and Game Department has been wrapping haystacks that have been raided by marauding deer and antelope and having "deer drivers" to push animals away from roadways and private homes and onto feeding sites managed by the department.

Saturday, Murrell said, department personnel and an assorted group of volunteers drove about 72 deer from the Anderson Campground to a feeding site 1 1/2 miles away.

On Monday afternoon, Murrell and a group of 18 volunteers drove a herd of between 50 and 100 from the Jerome Country Club and nearby private homes to a newly established feeding site on nearby private rangeland.

In response to requests from the Fish and Game Department, the BLM has closed off most of the public land in Lincoln, Jerome and Gooding counties to motorized vehicles. Snowmobilers and sightseers in four-wheel drives had been harassing the already hard-pressed deer and antelope herds searching for winter food in the area.

In addition to the BLM closure, Murrell said Jerome County has closed the county road crossing Highway 93 from the east near Brockman's Mobile Homes to protect a herd of about 300 deer in the area.

The effects of the "severe weather on deer and wildlife have been compounded by extensive range fires on BLM land in 1981. These fires burned about 310,000 acres of winter range for wildlife, Murrell said. To date, only 35,000 have been reseeded, he said.

"We'd like to see the BLM place some emphasis on wildlife seedings," he said, "but so far we've had a singular lack of success."

BLM closes lands to motor vehicles

SHOSHONE — Off-road vehicle owners and others who normally travel on public lands during winter recreation months were advised Sunday that U.S. Bureau of Land Management lands in Jerome, Gooding, Lincoln, Elmore counties are closed to all motorized vehicles.

The closure was ordered by the BLM in cooperation with the Idaho Fish and Game Department in an effort to reduce potential harassment to the unusually large number of deer, elk and antelope wintering in the area.

While motorized vehicle closures have been regularly implemented in northern areas of the District, this is the first time the southern portion has been closed.

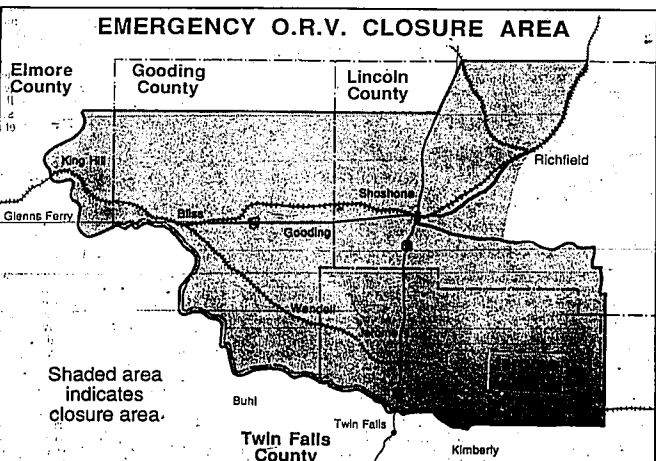

Chief Deputy Sheriff Larry Webb of Jerome said deer are being fed by Idaho Fish and Game Department crews on public land in locations away from major highways and roads. A heavy concentration of snowmobile, four-wheel-drive and other trail machines travel on open land north of the Perrine Bridge and have created problems for those attempting to control and feed the animals.

Most of the problems have been concentrated there because the herds are highly visible to passing motorists, according to Bob Moline with the BLM office in Shoshone. In the past, he added, the Bureau has had excellent cooperation from the public in closure areas.

In announcing the closure, the Shoshone District's Acting Manager Jon Ideo said "we are not trying to make public lands off limits with this closure."

"Rather, we are trying to minimize stress and harassment to these animals in accordance with Department of Fish and Game wishes."

Weaknesses exposed, EHPA may be shored up

By KENNETH A. BROWN
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Idaho's ineffective Environmental Health and Protection Act may be tightened up when the State Legislature reconvenes in Boise next month.

Weaknesses in the EHPA have been clearly underlined by recent state attempts to clean up pollution in the Twin Falls area produced by the Idaho Frozen Foods and Amalgamated Sugar plants.

A battle over IFF's wastewater earlier this year proved that the state could not collect penalties on compliance schedule orders — a voluntary agreement between an operator and the state to clean up a pollution problem.

Compliance orders are one of the two main enforcement tools of the current EHPA.

In a recent civil case, lost by Amalgamated least four cyanide accidents, two mine tailing spills, a mercury spill and other water pollution problems produced by mining operations in the central Idaho mountains. These spills have contaminated the Salmon and Clear-and secondary water quality standards over the past four years.

Yet in spite of the repeated violations, the state Department of Health and Welfare has undertaken no successful enforcement action against the company.

In the last four years there have been at least four cyanide accidents, two mine tailing spills, a mercury spill and other water pollution problems produced by mining operations in the central Idaho mountains. These spills have contaminated the Salmon and Clearwater drainages. In no case, however, was successful corrective action taken against the polluters, according to a position paper written by the Idaho Conservation League.

In its next session, however, the Legislature will be considering some ways of closing up some of the perceived "loopholes" in the EHPA, as well as speeding up the law's cumbersome enforcement process for both business and environmental interests.

 orders-to-police-officer-or going through the police chief or police commissioner in setting up his investigation.

"If nothing else comes of this, other cities should be able to see there are ways, besides discrimination, to get rid of a city officer or employee," Wright said. "The issue is not whether or not we like (police chief) Jim Campbell, but that there is a place to air complaints. If there are enough complaints brought to us, we can take care of these things ourselves," Wright said.

He said he and other councilmembers hope Kimberly residents will take advantage of the recall election and express their approval or disapproval of what has been done in the past seven months.

"I hope they will take a stand and vote it at the special election or elections," he said.

Wright added that one of his deeper concerns is that such a prolonged turmoil will discourage qualified candidates from seeking city office in small towns.

"I am afraid the day may come when nobody will want to take the heat and criticism for a recall that only people with an axe to grind or a personal vendetta will want to be in city government," he said.

Wright said that if the council had to do again, they would probably follow the same procedure. He said he and other members are indebted to the Twin Falls Police Department for its help.

"If it were not for them (Twin Falls police) we could never have accomplished what we did," Wright said.

Wright said he would have preferred to wait another 30 days before releasing investigation results, which were published in the Times-News Sunday and Monday.

 In most jail-related cases he's read, the courts usually tell jailers to stand aside and represent the jail-inmates; not now specifically named, Fuller said.

In response to Webb's other argument, Fuller said that, under other case law, the District Court did have jurisdiction to rule on federal rights and even order the county to remedy poor jail conditions.

Webb said the lawsuit should be dropped because Munn was an integral part of jail operations, but wasn't named as a defendant. Yet, Fuller was asking the court to order both the commissioners and sheriff to take action.

Fuller countered with a U.S. Supreme Court ruling in Roe vs. Wade which also established a controversial case dealing with abortion. The ruling allowed for litigation to remain alive, even though the circumstances of the parties changed.

For example, because the county is allowed to keep inmates for a certain period of time, cases involving the jail never would get heard, since inmates probably would be out of the jail by the time the case gets to court, Fuller said.

His proposed amended complaint allows the lawsuit to represent the jail-inmates; not now specifically named, Fuller said.

added. The sheriff does the best he can with what he has.

Webb's third argument for dismissing the lawsuit was its failure to make a claim on which to proceed. Fuller's original written complaint and his proposed newer version were full of general allegations and "skippy" specifics, Webb said.

If an inmate showed specific injury, then there were courts to handle specific personal injury claims, Webb added.

Hurburt ruled that the sheriff was an indispensable part of the lawsuit. The judge said he could dismiss the suit on this basis, but he suspected the jail issue wouldn't go away.

Fuller then said he will include Munn in an amended complaint.

Hurburt also denied the motion to dismiss the lawsuit on Webb's other arguments. Although some of the complaint was "insurmountable," the case will proceed, the judge said.

Following the hearing, Munn and the county commissioners said they had no comment.

EHPA

 Both polluters and the state in court or negotiations for as long as eight months.

"Everyone agrees it takes too long," said state Sen. Michael Crapo, R-Idaho Falls, who has been chairing the subcommittee examining options for reforming the EHPA.

The existing environmental laws for environmental protection and personal health laws. Passed in 1972, the law gives the DHW power to develop and enforce the rules.

To address these potential problems, the Division of Environmental Quality's Water Quality Programs Advisory Committee has suggested that changes in the EHPA include an "escape ramp" for alleged polluters who believe they cannot get a fair hearing before the Board of Health.

Under the committee's recommendation, an alleged polluter would have the option of taking a case to district court for consideration and filing a set period of time, instead of to the Board of Health.

The existing enforcement process is compounded by other weaknesses in the act, according to Division of Environmental Quality.

The core of the act's weakness, according to critics like Hockberger and the Idaho Conservation League, is its cumbersome enforcement mechanism. When a violation of environmental laws or standards occurs, the state must first document the violation and then obtain an order from the Board of Health and Welfare.

The state can only pursue enforcement action for violations which occur after a board order has been issued.

"It's not like getting a traffic ticket, where you go to the judge and he says you're going to pay a fine," said Mike McMasters of the Division of Environmental Quality in Twin Falls. "We have to have documented violation before we can initiate reform," he said.

Getting a board order, however, can take anywhere from 3 to 8 months, according to Murray of the Division of Environmental Quality.

The procedure, as outlined by Murray, begins with the issuance of a formal administrative complaint, a process which takes 10 to 2 weeks. This is followed by an additional 2- to 6-week delay for the scheduling of an administrative hearing.

The hearing itself takes 3 to 4 weeks, according to Murray's outline, and is followed by an additional 2- to 4-week lag for the "development of a board package" to be forwarded to the Board of Health for a possible board order.

Finally, actual review by the Board of Health can take an additional 1 to 16 weeks.

If the pollution problem the order was issued on is still occurring, only then can the state seek penalties. In other words, Murray said, "the first bite is free." There is no mechanism, he explained, for directly enforcing any of the state's environmental laws.

Some reform proposals are being looked at, according to Crapo, which would give "significant enforcement power to the department at the front end." Those proposals would give the department more enforcement power independent of the Board of Health.

Other proposals are also being considered, Crapo said, which would require more frequent meetings. The state Board of Health is not professional, full-time board and meets only 2-3 months out of the year.

"The charge that it is cumbersome is valid," said state Sen. Larry Anderson, R-Twin Falls. "The length of the review process is most commonly a complaint of environmental interests, the delay is not always popular with businesses, and that's why," he said.

While Anderson said he has no problem with the goal of streamlining the enforcement process of the EHPA, he added that he will consider by the Legislature last year had the director of the DHW "acting as both the prosecution and the judge."

While last year's proposals would have given stronger enforcement powers to the DHW, Anderson said he felt some were "trying to move too fast on the issue." Although environmentalists were interested in giving more power to the DHW and the Division of Environment, they failed to look beyond the current administration of the DHW, he said.

"Pro-environmental interests would be happy with the current administrator," Anderson said, "but if they had a less than pro-environmental administrator they would have a hard time."

To protect against either extreme, Anderson said he believes there should be some outside input into the review process.

While the department is going through the 3- to 8-month process required to get a board order, it can obtain a court injunction to stop a polluter only if there is an "immediate public health hazard." The state has no injunctive powers against polluters for environmental damage, regardless of the impacts an activity may have on fish or wildlife — unless there is an impact on human health as well.

So, until a board order is obtained, a polluter who poses no immediate threat to human health can continue polluting with no threat of prosecution.

Crapo said reforms his committee has been considering will provide "prompt injunctive relief."

Anderson questioned the need for stronger injunctive powers. "What we're talking about is closing someone's business down," he said.

The neighboring states of Oregon and Washington are also considering obtaining an injunction to halt environmental damage.

"Finally," once a board order is obtained, the penalties allowed by Idaho law are the lowest among any Western state.

Buying binges can become compulsion

By REDBOOK

Women don't just shop to buy things — they also go on buying binges as a reward, as entertainment, as escape, and as a means of consolation.

Some women even go shopping as a method of revenge. Judith Viorst writes in the January issue of Redbook, using buying power to pay back their husbands for wrongs or slights.

Shopping can be a healthy form of release or it can be compulsive and neurotic. Dr. Richard Greenberg, professor of psychiatry at George Washington University Medical School, describes compulsive shopping as "a psychological disorder that can range from relatively harmless to a serious illness — an addiction like drugs or drink that can consume a person's life."

Like other addictions, he said, compulsive shopping can interfere with work and personal relationships, and its victims need professional help to understand and control their buying.

Compulsive shoppers range from the woman who feels compelled to check out the stores daily but doesn't break her bank account or budget, to the woman who is totally out of control. In either case, the shopper is fleeing the problems of everyday life and, like any junkie, using an outside fix to relieve inner distress.

A perfectly healthy reason why women shop is to reward themselves for being good — sticking to a diet, finishing a job, not fighting with their mothers. They feel they've earned it. These women consider shopping a form of entertainment, maybe not as healthy as tennis or uplifting as visiting museums. "As an entertainment shopper, however, I'd like to argue that spending a day at a shopping mall can offer just as much exercise as tennis," Viorst wrote. "And cruising antique stores can often provide as much aesthetic pleasure as museums — in addition to which, if I like what I see, I can buy it."

The entertainment shopper may be enthralled by the sport of bargain-hunting. "These women talk of the thrill of the chase as if they were out hunting lions instead of hunting L.L. Claibornes at half price," Viorst said.

Women also use shopping to banish the blues — to temporarily escape personal problems, housework, deadlines or picking up after the kids.

New Year's resolutions kept one day at a time

DEAR ABBY: Last New Year's Eve you published some New Year's resolutions. I cut that column out and taped it on my bedroom mirror, where I could read it every morning. I want you to know that it has helped me to become a better person. I am not saying that I kept every one of those resolutions every day, but I kept most of them, and they have now become habits that have made a remarkable improvement in my personality and character.

Abigail VanBuren Dear Abby

I hope you will run it every New Year's Eve—I'm sure it will benefit many others as it has me.

NEVER TOO OLD DEAR NEVER: The "resolutions" column has become an established annual tradition.

DEAR READERS: These New Year's resolutions are based on the original credo of Alcoholics Anonymous. I have taken the liberty of using that theme with some variations of my own:

Just for today I will live through this day only, and not set far-reaching goals to try to overcome all my problems at once. I know I can do something for 12 hours that would appeal me if I felt that I had to keep it up for a lifetime.

Just for today I will be happy. Abraham Lincoln said, "Most folks are about as happy as they make up their minds to be." He was right. I will not dwell on thoughts that depress me. I will chase them out of my mind and replace them with happy thoughts.

Just for today I will adjust myself to what is. I will face reality. I will change those things that I can change and accept those things I cannot change. Just for today I will improve my mind. I will not be a mental loafer. I will force myself to read something that requires effort, thought and concentration.

Just for today I will do something positive—to improve my health. If I'm a smoker, I'll make an honest effort to cut down. If I'm overweight, I'll eat nothing I know is fattening. And I will force myself to exercise—even if it's only walking around the block or using the stairs instead of the elevator.

Just for today I will be totally honest. If someone asks me something I don't know, will not bluff; I'll simply say, "I don't know."

Just for today I'll do something I've been putting off for a long time. I'll finally write that letter, make that phone call, clean that closet or straighten out those dresser drawers.

Just for today, before I speak I will ask myself, "Is it true? Is it kind?" And if the answer to either of those questions is negative, I won't say it.

Just for today I will make a conscious effort to be agreeable. I will look as good as I can, dress becomingly, talk softly, get courteously and not interrupt when someone else is talking. Just for today I'll not improve anybody except myself.

Just for today I will have a program. I may not follow it exactly, but I will have it, thereby saving myself from two pests: hurry and indecision.

Just today I will have a quiet half-hour to relax alone. During this time I will reflect on my behavior and will get a better perspective on my life.

Just for today I will be unafraid. I will gather the courage to do what is right and take the responsibility for my own actions. I will expect nothing from the world, but I will realize that as I give to the world, the world will give to me.

I have a happy, healthy New Year. And pray for peace!

Ground rules minimize blues of blind dating

By COSMOPOLITAN

Blind dates are cheaper than taking out a personal ad, safer than chance encounters at a singles bar—and they don't have to be dating disasters.

There are ground rules for minimizing blind-date blues, according to an article in the January issue of Cosmopolitan, and even the most blind date lasts only a few hours.

The first thing is to consider the source. If you like the person making the introduction, chances are you will like that person's friends. You have doubts about the matchmaker, ask a few pertinent questions—almost everyone has at least one wild card among his acquaintances.

The initial phone conversation will provide clues as to whether this is a friendship you want to pursue. The man who suggests sipping wine in his hot tub is obviously a dubious choice. If the man seems like a good bet, make the next step: He has made the first call, you suggest a meeting.

Before you meet, get as much information as you can from your source — if possible, a photograph. Practice a smile or greeting you'll need if whether he's a cat or a dog.

A blind date should be set up so either party can escape. Lunch is the best setting because it will be brief and you really do have to get back to work.

Saturday and Sunday afternoons also are good for blind dates. You can walk through a park or drop into an art gallery.

Moving about keeps the conversation going. Shared activity helps you get to know each other and fills the gap if your interaction fizzles.

Taking a blind date to a party can be risky. It may be hard to introduce a new guy you hardly know to other guests. He may not be presentable. Or he may be terrific and you will have to introduce him to other women before he has had a chance to know you.

Don't invite him to your place for drinks or dinner — it's too intimate for a date with a virtual stranger.

If you find yourself stuck for a whole evening with someone you dislike you can either gracefully endure it or make up a respectably plausible excuse to get away. He will know it's an excuse, but that's better than getting cranky or hostile.

If you like him but he's trying to slide away — let him go.

Don't forget the third party in your date — the person who introduced you. If you enjoyed the date, a call telling her you had a good time is in order. Details aren't necessary. If it didn't work, just say he was nice but the chemistry wasn't there.

Don't insult the matchmaker by complaining about the blind date unless he behaved so badly that future blind dates should be warned. And don't badger her for information about how he liked you — you'll find out if he calls.

The best matchmakers are those who have nothing to gain by an introduction. Less well-qualified are those who want to curry favor with one of the parties.

Would-be matchmakers should not introduce a man friend to a new woman if they have even the most lingering romantic interest in him. He could look better once he starts dating someone else.

Be honest, advised Kiki Olson in Cosmopolitan. "Don't say, 'She's got a great sense of humor' when you mean she weighs 170 pounds, or tell her, 'He's very laid back' when you're warning her that she'll have to pay for the pizza."

Most important for a matchmaker — be sensitive to the needs and desires of the people you are trying to match.

Cosmetics firms wooing Japanese

TOKYO (AP) — From the basic bar of soap to the latest formula conjured up in biotechnology laboratories, cosmetic firms are branding an array of products to win the $5-billion race to gloss the Japanese woman's face.

Women are wooed by fiercely competitive domestic makers while foreign firms are making inroads into the 1.1 trillion yen ($5.4 billion U.S.) market, second in size only to the United States. Last year, imports accounted for slightly less than 20 percent of total sales.

"We are at a stage where we must overhaul our approach to the consumer," said Yoshiaki Sato of Shiseido Co., which dominates the market with more than a quarter of annual sales and puts out 2,100 products.

Meanwhile, its biggest rival, Kanebo Ltd., promotes lipstick and eyeshadow made with biotechnology techniques through its "Bio Cinderella" campaign girl.

Max Factor, the foreign leader, is seeking to become a "color leader" with its "froaky lips," a palette of seven-lip shades ranging from blue to yellow that encourages creativity among young Japanese women who tend to lack confidence in choosing colors, said spokeswoman Setsuko Minomiyu.

L.M. Boyd
What's what

Lot of mental illness was linked to combat during the wars. Going back over the medical records, researchers turned up something not widely known. Men in armored vehicles were twice as likely to break down as infantrymen and three times as likely as airmen. Little has been tougher than that tank duty, evidently.

Q. That little kangaroo on some paperback books - what's its name?
A. Gertrude.

DEPRESSION

What depresses married people most is being married. What depresses single people most is not being married. Psychological tests have repeatedly shown that it, essentially, though researchers decorate their reports with phrases like "burdensome dependence" and "lack of interpersonal relationships."

When the British colonized Jamaica, they imported African slaves. And also imported marijuana from the banks of India's Ganges River: To keep their Jamaican slaves docile. That's history.

A live fish in the open sea never stops growing.

the world's most venomous spider - the Black Widow - one dies. Knowing this, few crime novelists anymore use the spider as a murder weapon. Before such statistics were refined, however, some fictional villain was always sticking a deadly spider into some fictional victim's bed.

Injection of distilled water directly into the blood stream seems the hard way to go about it, but the medicos say it will indeed relieve thirst.

Q. Wasn't John Paul Jones the first U.S. Navy officer to reach the rock of Admiral?
A. Yes, but he got there in the Russian navy. He resigned from the U.S. Navy while a first lieutenant.

Idaho

Briefly

Evans wants strict safeguards

BOISE (AP) — Gov. John Evans is calling for strict protection of the South Fork of the Salmon River to fully protect water quality. Evans said he supports the U.S. Forest Service plan for managing the Payette National Forest, but would like to see the South Fork designated a "watershed of critical environmental concern."

That designation would provide for continued research, monitoring and public involvement to ensure revitalization and recovery of the watershed, Evans said.

Evans said he supported the Forest Service's plan for up to 74 million board feet of timber sale.

Snowmobiler injured by fence

POCATELLO (AP) — A Pocatello man was in serious but stable condition after hitting a barbed wire fence Sunday evening while snowmobiling. Bannock County Sheriff Shirley Gameson said.

John Lewis Hoyrup, 39, suffered severe facial lacerations in the accident, a nursing supervisor at Pocatello Regional Medical Center said Monday.

Hoyrup's companion, Allen Schorr, told a sheriff's deputy that he and Hoyrup were snowmobiling in the Elk Meadows area near Mink Creek just after dark when the accident occurred.

Schorr said Hoyrup failed to turn at an intersection of the trail and ran into the fence. The barbed wire caught Hoyrup across the mouth, cutting through his tongue and checks.

Short-term coverage offered

BOISE (AP) — With this week's expiration of liability insurance policies threatening continued operation of at least some emergency vehicles in Idaho, state insurance Director Wayne Soward has set up a special process to provide immediate short-term coverage to keep those vehicles on the road.

"The operation of emergency vehicles is essential to the public safety and welfare," Soward said. "But this is just a stop-gap measure."

The state's city and county associations have been putting together special liability insurance pools to pick up coverage for local governments following an insurance industry decision to terminate most policies in Idaho this week, but Soward said that there still may be a gap in coverage for emergency vehicles like ambulances.

Sheriffs worrying about cap

BOISE (AP) — County sheriffs say a cap on the number of inmates in Idaho's prison system will crowd their jails, increase their costs, and raise the risk of civil rights claims.

And some have said they may bill the Department of Corrections for housing prisoners awaiting state accommodations.

"Sounds reasonable to me," Corrections Director Al Murphy said. "There's no doubt in my mind that it's legal."

Smokers facing new restrictions

BOISE (AP) — Smokers who have to refrain from lighting up in grocery stores and parts of some restaurants starting Wednesday as the Idaho Indoor-Clean Air Act goes into effect.

Bill Rodes, an attorney who represents the Tobacco Institute and the Idaho Restaurant Association, says that's going to catch a lot of retailers and restaurants off guard.

even though the bill was signed into law in March.

Roden said he hasn't noticed businesses erecting no-smoking signs and "I think it's going to be that way all over the state."

Dr. Dean Sorenson of Boise, a spokesman for the Health and Welfare Department who sponsored the measure, agreed law are scheduled to be mailed next week.

Water plant levee holding near Ontario

ONTARIO (AP) — Floodwaters on one of the worst ice jams on the Snake River in over a quarter-century continued lapping at the sandbag levee protecting a city water treatment plant Monday as southeastern Oregon officials braced for more problems caused by unrelenting subfreezing temperatures.

"Although there was some minor flooding in the Ontario water treatment plant itself, city public works spokesman Dan Shepard said, "Up to now, our sandbags are keeping the ice off the transformer and the power pole that we're most concerned about. . . . We're most concerned with keeping the power to the pumps at the plant."

"The most serious flood threat was on the Oregon side of the Snake River, where it cuts the border with Idaho. Seven families left their homes south of Ontario during the weekend as water flowed four feet deep in some buildings. Flooding very minor on the Idaho side of the river, but high water in a low-lying area near Payette forced two families to leave their homes there.

By Monday morning, however, the river had stabilized at least temporarily, leaving other residents keeping a wary eye on the ice jam that ran as much as 35 miles up river from Farewell Bend just northwest of Weiser to the Interstate 84 bridge southeast of Ontario.

"We're going to try to stick it out," said Chris Schram, 25, but "we're prepared to move out if we have to. All our chairs and furniture are stacked up."

Rice first-team All-American

By The Associated Press and The Times-News

NEW YORK — Former Twin Falls High School quarterback Mike Rice, a junior at the University of Montana, has been named to The Associated Press 1985 Division I-AA All-American football team as a first-team punter.

Rice, who transferred to Montana earlier this year from Spokane Falls (Wash.) Community College, was selected along with George Cimadevilla of East Tennessee State for the honor.

The I-AA All-American team, which also includes Boise State defensive end Markus Koch and Idaho wide receiver Eric Yarber, was announced Monday.

"I had some doubts it would happen," said Rice in Twin Falls Monday. "They voted last week, and I didn't hear anything. I wasn't in first place in punting average in I-AA until the last week of the season, so I wasn't sure what would happen."

Rice led the Big Sky Conference and I-AA in punting with an average of 44.7 yards per kick. Cimadevilla finished second.

Rice, who also played wide receiver and returned both punts and kicks for the Grizzlies this season, was a first-team selection to the all-Big Sky team as a wide receiver and as a kick return specialist. That made him the first player ever chosen first-team all-Big Sky at three positions in a single season.

"It's nice to get all the individual honors," said Rice. "But it would be a whole lot nicer on a winning team."

Montana Coach Larry Donovan, the man who recruited Rice, was fired last month after the Grizzlies finished a 3-8 season. Donovan was replaced by Portland State Coach Don Read.

Rice said Monday he hasn't yet met Read, a passing specialist who was hired three weeks ago. "I'll be different playing for him than for Coach Donovan, that's for sure," said Rice. "I've never played on a passing team before."

The 6-foot, 195-pound Rice was recruited to Montana after two outstanding seasons at SPOC. During his sophomore year, he led his junior college conference in punting, receiving, punt returns, scoring and all-purpose running.

During his first year at Montana, Rice finished sixth in the Big Sky and 30th in the nation in all-purpose running. He had 172 yards rushing, 383 yards in pass receptions, 117 yards in punt returns and 657 yards in kick-off returns.

"I'm glad I made the move to Montana," Rice said. "I got the chance to do some things that I probably wouldn't have gotten to do someplace else."

Idaho Class A-1 state championship game in 1982, winning all-Gem State Conference honors as both a quarterback and as a punter. He was a second-team all-state selection at quarterback by The Idaho Statesman in 1982.

Koch, a 6-5, 270-pound senior from Kitchener, Ontario, made the AP All-American unit for the third time, although this year he made the first-unit-for-the-first-time. Koch has been first-team all-Big Sky for the last three years.

Florida State offense rolls over Cowboys

By JOEY HOLLEMAN
The Associated Press

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. — Chip Ferguson passed for 338 yards and two touchdowns and ran for another score Monday night as 18th-ranked Florida State rolled past 19th-ranked Oklahoma State 24-23 in the Gator Bowl football game.

Ferguson hit on 20 of 43 passing attempts, with touchdown tosses of 39 and 19 yards to understudy wide receiver Herb Garner. Ferguson capped the scoring with a 1-yard dive with 10:43 left in the game.

The Seminoles were expected to stress the running game because their top receiver had been suspended for selling complimentary tickets and their No. 2 and No. 3 receivers were injured.

The new wide receivers were Garner and Randy White, a pair of third-year sophomores. Garner had caught only five passes this season, and White didn't have a reception.

But the reserves played like seasoned veterans in front of a crowd of 79,417. Garner finished with seven receptions for 148 yards, while White had four for 87 yards.

Garner literally stole a 39-yard touchdown in the second quarter by outbattling Cowboy defensive back Demise Williams for a pass thrown into the end zone. He snared a 29-yarder to give the Seminoles a 27-3 lead with 4:51 left in the third period.

The Seminoles, 9-3, also scored on a 3-yard run by Cletis Jones and field goals of 23 and 39 yards by Derek Schmidt. Florida State tailback Tony Smith rushed 24 times for 201 yards.

Oklahoma State, 8-4, managed only a 33-yard field goal by Brad Dennis until exploding for 14 points in 93 seconds late in the third quarter. Tailback Thurman Thomas ran 29 yards with a screen pass to make it 27-10 with 2:52 left. After a fumble recovery by Harry Roberts on the third play following the kickoff, Thomas passed 42 yards to quarterback — Ronnie Williams on a flea-flicker to make it 27-17 with 1:19 left in the quarter.

The Seminoles put an end to the Oklahoma State rally by rolling 55 yards in nine plays to Ferguson's touchdown run. The Cowboys finished the scoring when Williams passed 31 yards to Hart-Lee Dykes with 10 seconds to play.

On the unusual first-half touchdown play, Chip Ferguson was intercepted by Garner and Demise Williams — jostled — each other in the end zone. Each got a hand on the ball, popping it up a few feet, and Garner reached out and grabbed it for a touchdown.

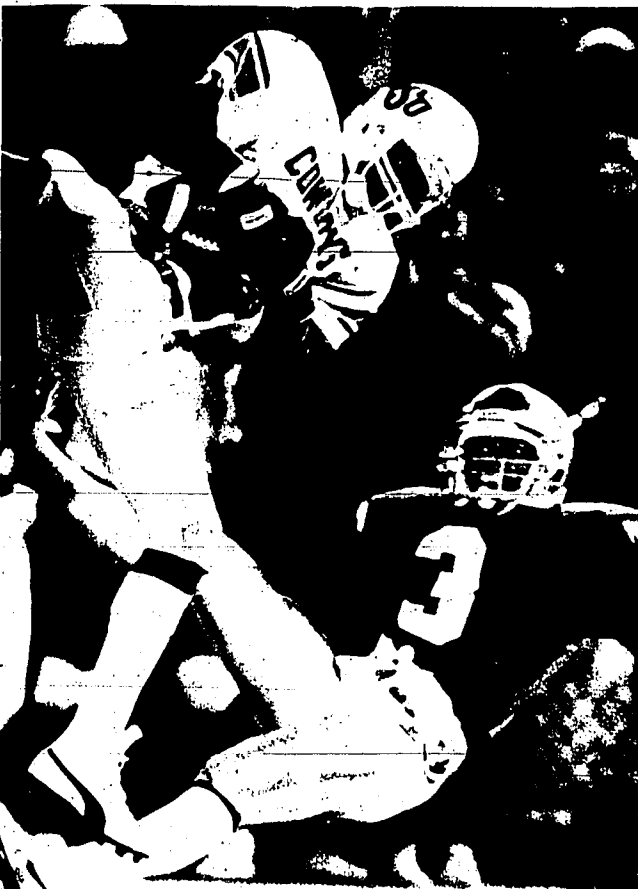

The Seminoles marched 73 yards in 12 plays for their first score, a 23-yard field goal by Schmidt. Florida State displayed a slick two-minute offense at the end of the half, moving 59 yards on eight plays to set up Schmidt's 39-yard field goal with two seconds left for a 13-0 halftime lead. The drive started with a 17 left at the Florida State 18-yard line.

The Cowboys moved 63 yards in 12 plays on their first possession of the second half before settling for a 32-yard field goal by Dennis.

The Seminoles answered with a 12-play drive of their own covering 73 yards. The big play was a 25-yard pass to Garner on third-and-11. Jones ended the march with his TD run.

An interception by Delon Sanders set up the next Florida State score. Sanders returned the theft 28 yards to the Oklahoma State 36, and the Seminoles needed just five plays to score on the 19-yard pass to Garner for a 27-3 lead.

Thomas, who rushed for 1,553 yards in the regular season, was limited to 97 yards on 26 carries. Ronnie Williams completed 43 passes for 251 yards, but was intercepted twice.

UW trims Buffs Freedom Bowl

ANAHEIM, Calif. — Mountain Home's David Toy and freshman Tony Covington each scored on short runs and the Washington Huskies held off the Colorado Buffaloes in the final minutes for a 20-17 victory Monday night in the second annual Freedom Bowl at Anaheim Stadium.

With the game tied, Covington dove into a yard out to put the Huskies ahead 10-10 with 17:10 with 5:35 left in the third quarter.

Jeff Jaeger's second field goal of the game, an 18-yarder on the first play of the fourth quarter, extended Washington's advantage to 20-10.

Colorado, with momentum going the other way, turned to some chicanery to get back into the game. The Buffaloes converted a faked field goal into a 31-yard touchdown pass from punter Barry Helton to tight end Jon Embree.

With the extra point, Colorado was back within three points with 11:05 to play.

The Buffaloes got within two yards of a go-ahead touchdown with five minutes left. However, sophomore halfback Mike Marquez fumbled and the ball was recovered at the Huskies' 2-yard-line by linebacker David Rill, who was credited with 17 tackles in the game.

Washington had taken a 10-7 lead on a 2-yard touchdown run by Toy with 30 seconds left in the first half. The score culminated an 80-yard, 14-play drive that was kept alive by a fourth-down offside penalty against Colorado.

The Buffaloes tied the game on their first possession of the second half with a 33-yard field goal by Eckel.

A 1-yard scoring plunge by Anthony Weatherspoon had given the Buffaloes a 7-3 lead with 5:59 left in the second quarter. Colorado's touchdown was set up by a 28-yard punt return by Jo Jo Collins to the Washington 25-yard line. The Huskies had taken a 3-0 lead on a 30-yard field goal by Jaeger with 3:58 left in the first quarter.

T.F.'s Miller qualifies for Open

By The Times-News

BURLEY — Bowler Jerry Miller of Twin Falls has qualified to represent Idaho in the U.S. Open Bowling Championships next year.

Miller won the state qualifying tournament at the Dell Bowl here this weekend, rolling up an eight-game total of 1,616 points. The field of 22 bowlers was cut to the top four for head-to-head match play.

In the title match, Miller defeated Brad Holm of Burley for the top honors. Holm in turn defeated Jerry Goodwin of Blackfoot for second place, while Goodwin topped Spencer Miller of Pocatello for third-place honors.

In addition to qualifying for the tournament, Miller also received a paid entry and expenses for the trip to Venice, Fla., where the tourney will be held Feb. 9-15.

Why does a 6-5 college team go bowling? It's the money

By EARL GUSTKEY
Los Angeles Times

News Item: Jan. 1, 2000 — The National Collegiate Athletic Association announces that there are enough colleges to permit every college football team to appear in a bowl game after the 2001 season.

Actually, it only seems like the growth of bowl games is getting out of hand. Just because Finland has its very own bowl game doesn't mean we've reached true saturation. In case you missed it, Alma College of Michigan, a Division III school, beat the Northern Lights club team at Oulu, Finland, 7-0, last June, in the first Arctic Bowl.

Back home, we find 18 major college bowl games on the 1985 year-end schedule. Ten years ago this month, there were 11. For the biggies, the New Year's Day games, business is fine, thank you. Fine? We're talking trainloads of money. Each participating school in the Rose Bowl, for example, is guaranteed $5 million this year, money that is shared by every university in both the Pac-10 and Big Ten conferences.

The Rose Bowl payout is more than twice that of any other bowl game. Runners-up are the Orange and Sugar bowls, at $2.25 million per school.

No wonder, then, that Pac-10 and Big Ten football people covet their exclusively arrangement with the Tournament of Roses Committee.

UCLA Athletic Director Peter Dallis, for example, was astonished recently at a reporter's wondering out loud about how much more attractive the Rose Bowl would be if only the No. 1 and No. 2-ranked teams were invited.

"Why would anyone want to do that?" Dallis said. "Why would you want to tamper with a golden goose?"

USC Athletic Director Mike McGee says the Trojans' share of the conference's Rose Bowl money each year accounts for roughly 5 percent of USC's athletic department budget.

Most schools, however, either break even or lose at bowling for dollars. Washington Athletic Director Mike Lude, whose Huskies play Colorado Monday in the Anaheim, Calif., Freedom Bowl, puts the income his school will receive from the Freedom Bowl in perspective:

"We'll hope to break even," he said. "Let me put it this way: Our Freedom Bowl money will pay for all our tennis balls and golf balls next year."

The total payout for all 18 major bowl games this month and on New Year's Day comes to just under $22 million. No wonder, then, that 63 years after they first called that game in Pasadena, Calif., the Rose Bowl game folks are still trying to climb aboard what appears, on the surface at least, to be a gravy train.

Next year, two more bowl games may be added to the roster, when the NCAA is expected to sanction games for Tampa, Fla., and Indianapolis. In addition, the NCAA says it has heard from a group that wants to stage a bowl game in the Los Angeles Coliseum with a "black colleges championship game" format.

16th-ranked Illini weather Cyclones

College basketball

ROSEMONT, Ill. (AP) — Point guard Tony Wysinger sank three clutch free throws in the final 48 seconds of a non-conference game Monday night to lift 16th-ranked Illinois to a 64-62 college basketball win over Iowa State University.

The Big Ten Illini, who made good on eight of nine free-throw attempts in the final four minutes and 35 seconds, are now 9-2. Iowa State, of the Big Eight conference, fell to 5-3. Illinois, ranked 16th last week, had gone ahead for good 57-55 on a driving lay-up and free throw by Anthony Welch with just over four minutes left.

But Iowa State refused to bend and trailed 61-60 with 1:15 remaining.

Wysinger was fouled by Gary Tomkins and hit both free throws for a 63-60 Illinois lead.

Iowa State's Jeff Grayer, who had 17 points, then got a tip in with 27 seconds left. But Wysinger was fouled by Jeff Hornacek and sank a free throw with seven seconds left to give Illinois the win.

Illini's Ken Norman, who scored 16 points, fouled out with 6:24 left in the second half. Iowa State reserve Dave Moss then put his team ahead for the first time at 55-54 with a slam dunk.

With Norman drawing his fourth foul midway in the second half and Iowa State's 6-9 center, Sam Hill, also picking up his fourth foul, both players were benched.

Kentucky 93 VMI 55
LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Kenny Walker scored 18 points on outside jumpers and slam dunks as No. 13 Kentucky routed Virginia Military Institute 93-55 in a non-conference college basketball game Monday night.

Louisiana St. 82 Oral Roberts 64
BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — Nikita Wilson had a team-high 19 points and eight rebounds to lead undefeated and ninth-ranked Louisiana State to a 82-64 victory over Oral Roberts Monday night.

State to an 82-64 college basketball victory over Oral Roberts on Monday night.

The victory marked the 12th for the unbeaten Tigers as they prepared for their first Southeastern Conference game against Georgia on Thursday.

Junior forward Maurice Smith led all players with 22 points for the Titans, while Brian Miles had 13 and Akin Akintola had 14.

The loss dropped Oral Roberts to 4-7 for the season.

Notre Dame 80 Creighton 54
SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP) — Ken Barlow scored 15 points, including his 1,000th career point, as 18th-ranked Notre Dame defeated Creighton 80-54 Monday night in a non-conference college basketball game.

Syracuse 88 C.W. Post 68
SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — Four-thrilled Syracuse, using its depth to bring players like Michael Brown and Greg Monroe off the bench, played sluggishly Monday night but still defeated C.W. Post 88-68 in college basketball.

Duke 78 Northwestern 55
DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — Johnny Dawkins scored 21 points and Mark Alario added 15 Monday night as sluggish and third-ranked Duke took a 78-55 college basketball victory over Northwestern.

Georgia Tech 90 Richmond 64
ATLANTA (AP) — Bruce Dairymple scored 22 points and shut down Richmond star John Newman as Georgia Tech took an early lead Monday night and romped to a 90-64 college basketball victory over Richmond.

several athletic directors recently and asked them to comment on subjects relating to college bowl games. Namely, why there is never a shortage of schools that wish to participate in bowl games; why it is considered so important to participate in bowl games, and generally if they see any trends in the areas of football bowl games and the mother's milk of college sports, money.

Some responses:
Said Lude, who is also chairman of the NCAA's post-season football committee: "I believe we're about to enter a period of a stable number of bowl games. In an average year, two to three groups appear before the NCAA post-season football committee with proposals for new bowl games. A couple of years ago, it was six."

"But a major college bowl game is an expensive proposition to get off the ground. And they're so many now, it's hard to find TV time for new ones.

"A lot of people think the growth of cable television will create a bunch of new bowl games, but I don't see it. Maybe it's too early to say now, but look at all the pro clubs who thought they were going to be making big money in cable TV (by the mid-1980s). It just hasn't happened. Cable TV people keep coming to see me about putting the Huskies on cable TV throughout Washington. Why would I do that and jeopardize the best network radio contract ($1.4 million per year) in college football? Or jeopardize the sale of 52,000 season tickets, for that matter. The dollars everyone keeps talking about in cable TV just aren't that significant yet."

"Why is it important for a football program to participate in a bowl? Because it's important to recruits. Our coaches tell me one of the significant things in the minds of young high school football prospects — and their parents — is the opportunity to get a football davis most of the bills."

Analysis

Is a good chance stocks will do almost as well or perhaps better in the new year with a potential Dow reading as high as 1,850 given the right circumstances.

Robert Stovall, president of the money-management concern Stovall-Twenty-first Advisors Inc., said there is a 65 percent chance that the market could emulate its performance during the Eisenhower and early Kennedy presidencies.

Stovall figures that the 30 Dow Jones industrial will earn $130 and that the Standard & Poor's 500 will net $17.80.

Dow at 1,950 and the S&P 500 at 268.50.

"That would not be out of line when you consider that at one time during the euphoria following Jack Kennedy's election, the Dow Jones climbed briefly at 21 times earnings," Stovall said.

For this to happen, he said, "you need serenity and tranquility and the confidence that means President Reagan must not give the impression that there can be no big financial surprises, no major bank failures and no run-ups in interest rates."

Highly Johnson, senior vice president of First Albany Corp., said the Dow is likely to chart a crater-like course during 1986, moving down about 7 percent (to 1,400) before finishing the year near 1,500.

Factors his forecast include: the shift, just begun, of household assets from low-yielding money market funds and bank accounts into potentially more-rewarding stocks; the market's inclination to move from a fairly valued current position to an over-valued or speculative one; and a positive economic outlook.

William LeFevre, investment strategist at Purcell Graham & Co., also is bullish. The Dow, LeFevre predicts, could reach 1,650 to 1,750. But beyond that, he said, it's anybody's guess.

THE ACES

BOBBY WOLFF

There is no crime in the cynical. Always calendar more humiliating than to be a sucker.
—Max Lerner.

If you're susceptible to basing your defense on the way declarer plays the hand, pay close attention to today's game. For every defender in search of a solution, there's a declarer looking for a sucker.

After West leads a heart, South can see eight quick tricks in the red suits. What happens if he tries to develop a trick in clubs?

To develop a trick in clubs, not only must he and both honors in one hand, but he must also dissuade the opponents from switching to spades. Not many banks would offer a mortgage on such flimsy collateral.

Regardless of which hand under wins the first club, a spade shift is a virtual certainty.

South's chances are improved by resorting to chicanery. He wins the first trick with dummy's heart jack to emphasize his control over the suit, and then leads boldly to his jack of spades. West wins South's "finesse" with his spade queen and shifts to clubs in hopes of finding the setting tricks. East inserts his jack, finessing against dummy's 8, and South wins the queen, happy to collect his ninth trick.

Had Barnum been a bridge player, he would have had a fertile field.
