IEA tape stirs ire

Democratic, GOP lawmakers alike blast 'inaccuracy'

By DEAN MILLER
Times-News writer

BOISE — Angry Democratic and Republican members of the Senate Education Committee spent most of a Friday meeting grilling one of the narrators of the Idaho Education Association's videotape about attacks on public education by the Far Right.

More legislative news — A10

Committee members and Sen. Phil Batt, R-Willard had seen the videotape Thursday and accused "Moss" IEA member and videotape narrator Susan Hovey of misrepresenting a stand of Batt's in his 1982 race against Gov. John Evans for the governor's seat.

Batt said a portion of the IEA videotape narrated by Hovey was "totally inaccurate" when it said he did not condemn an anti-Evans comic book circulated during the campaign that portrayed Evans as a pawn of out-of-state union bosses.

At the committee meeting Friday, Batt read from a newspaper clipping in which he was quoted as saying he deplored and condemned the comic book.

Batt said the tape linked conservative Idahoans to the IEA on Page A2.

3 growths are found, removed

By TERENCE HUNT
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Reagan had three "very small" growths removed from his colon and a sample of skin taken from a bump on his face Friday in his most extensive medical checkup since cancer surgery. Doctors initially judged the specimens to be non-cancerous, but further tests will be conducted.

All indications are that when the lab results are in, they will confirm the president to be in excellent health. The White House said in a written statement describing the results of Reagan's colon examination and checkup at Bethesda Naval Hospital.

The three growths, described by doctors as "clinically benign," were removed from the colon in a non-surgical procedure known as a colonoscopy.

Reagan, leaving the hospital after a six-hour stay, gave a thumbs-up signal and said "Everything's fine." He and his wife Nancy then flew to Camp David, Md., for a three-day Martin Luther King Jr. holiday weekend.

Asked whether he had named a successor to departing Agriculture Secretary John Block, Reagan said, "Not yet."

Reagan, 74, had gone to the hospital for the first examination of his colon since his successful cancer surgery six months ago. The finding of three small polyps in "not surprising," given Reagan's medical history, said Prof. Gary

'85 called good year for housing industry

By MARTIN CRUTSINGER
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Construction of new homes and apartments fell 1 percent last year, the first decline since 1982, but analysts said the housing industry still enjoyed a good year.

Housing construction totaled 1.73 million units in 1985, down slightly from the 1.75 million units started, the year before, the Commerce Department said Friday.

The small decline was the first since a 2 percent drop in 1982. In 1983, housing construction surged 60.3 percent as builders recovered from four dismal years in which construction starts had plummeted by 37 percent.

Analysts noted that despite the small drop last year, 1985 marked the third consecutive year that construction has surpassed the 1.7-million mark.

"We have just finished the most stable three-year production period in the history of the housing industry," said James Christian, chief economist for the U.S. League of Savings Institutions. "The drop in 1985 was minuscule compared to the booms and busts that have been characteristic of housing in the past."

Christian credited the growth in adjustable rate mortgages for this stability. These mortgages are extremely popular during times of rising interest rates since they offer rates below the level of fixed-rate mortgages.

Last year finished on a strong note with a sharp 17.5 percent jump in housing starts in December, the biggest since 1980.

Remains of more MIAs are expected

By TAD BARTIMUS
The Associated Press

HANOI, Vietnam — A Foreign Ministry official told a U.S. congressional delegation Friday that next month the government hopes to turn over the remains of up to 50 of the nearly 1,000 American still missing from the Vietnam War.

Deputy Foreign Minister Hoang Bich Son also reportedly assured two senators and two congressmen there are "absolutely no" living Americans under Vietnamese control, said Sen. Frank Murkowski.

The lawmakers met Friday for more than three hours with Son on what Murkowski, chairman of the Senate Veterans Affairs Committee, called a humanitarian mission to seek answers to the mystery of American MIAs.

After the meeting, Murkowski said in an interview that the Vietnamese appear committed to resolving the MIA issue in the two-year timetable they proposed earlier this month, when a high-level Reagan administration team visited Hanoi.

Murkowski, a Republican from Alaska who is leading the delegation, said Son emphasized more than a dozen times that Vietnam is not holding any live Americans.

He quoted Son as saying, "In 1973 we gave back all the important (people) like the pilots. We have no reason to keep unimportant ones."

Since the Vietnam War ended in 1975, there have been 806 reported sightings of Americans in Indochina. The U.S. government has been able to rule out all but 95 of the reports.

Soviet reaction watched

Arab eyes focus on S. Yemen

By ROBERT H. REID
The Associated Press

CAIRO, Egypt — South Yemen is an important foothold for the Soviet Union on the strategic Arabian Peninsula and rebel attempts to overthrow the government threaten the stability of the Arab world's only Marxist state.

Analysis

Arab countries are watching closely the battle between two Marxist factions in South Yemen as a test of the moderate image the Soviet Union has cultivated among conservative Persian Gulf states.

Some Arab analysts believe Moscow, as well as neighboring Arab states, would prefer to see the pragmatic President Ali Nasser Mohammed triumph over hard-line Marxists seeking to overthrow his regime.

However, active intervention on either side by the estimated 1,000 Soviet troops in South Yemen would threaten Moscow's efforts to woo Persian Gulf countries.

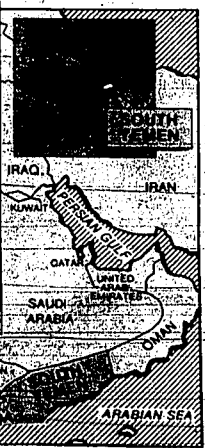

SOUTH YEMEN AT A GLANCE

GEOGRAPHY: 130,541 square miles. South Yemen is about the size of Nevada.

POPULATION: Two million. About 90% of the population is Moslem, 4% Christian and 3.5% Hindu.

ECONOMY: Relies heavily on foreign aid. Agriculture is limited to cotton, grains and livestock because only 2% of the land is arable. In 1981 per capita income was less than $300.

HISTORY: Trade hub between Europe, Asia and Africa for 2,000 years. British base established in 1839. Four-year guerrilla war ends with 1967 independence. Marxist regime takes control in 1969, breaking diplomatic relations with U.S.

Despite his relatively moderate image, South Yemen's president has strongly supported Soviet foreign policy, including Moscow's military role in Afghanistan, and has allowed Soviet warships use of Gulf area, said most tribesmen were from three of the six provinces that were merged into what became South Yemen on independence from Britain in 1967.

Britain's Foreign Office said in London that foreigners trapped by the fighting were being evacuated Friday night from Aden, the embattled capital, by ships that included the British royal yacht Britannia.

More than 200 Europeans were believed at risk in the fighting. The British, French, Italian, West German and Soviet governments had consulted during the day before the evacuation effort was confirmed Friday night.

Soviet-backed truce talks fail; new tank battles begin

The Associated Press

Soviet-sponsored truce talks collapsed and new tank battles began Friday in the five-day-old struggle between rival Marxist factions in south Yemen, the Kremlin's ally on the Arabian Peninsula, diplomatic sources reported.

They said heavily armed war-rriors from mutually hostile tribes were moving on Aden from nearby hills to join the battle that began Monday with a reported coup attempt against President Ali Nasser Mohammed, a Marxist who has been making overtures to Western-oriented Arab states.

Libyan students still allowed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite a freeze on Libya's assets in the United States, the government of Col. Moammar Khadafy will be allowed to continue subsidizing its students at American colleges, U.S. officials said Friday.

And, they said, new students from the North African country will be permitted to come here.

Of about 3,200 Libyans legally in the United States, some 1,200 are students — many of whom are supported by the Khadafy government through a U.S. bank account, said Treasury and State Department officials. They discussed the issue on condition they not be identified.

"We have not tried to aim the sanctions we've taken to date at Libyan persons," an official said. "It's not at the Libyan people; it's not at Libyan students."

He said the decision was "not inconsistent with the intent and purpose" of the economic sanctions the Reagan administration took earlier this month against the Libyan government. The sanctions followed U.S. accusations that Khadafy provided bases for the terrorist group that killed five Americans and 10 other people in attacks on the Rome and Vienna airports.

Fuel standards may go down

WASHINGTON (AP) — Citing potential harm to auto workers and the car-buying public, a federal agency refused Friday to increase fuel economy requirements for 1987 and 1988 model cars, and said it may even lower these standards.

The National Highway Traffic Safety Administration agreed to consider easing the 1987-88 standards from 27.5 miles per gallon to as low as 26 mpg.

General Motors Corp. and Ford Motor Co., the nation's two largest automakers, had asked the regulatory agency to consider relaxing the standards.

Earlier, the agency voted tentatively to reject a diametrically opposing fuel economy standard request. This one came from the private center for Auto Safety and the Environmental Policy Institute, which wanted the standards increased to 31.5 mpg in 1987 and 34.5 mpg in 1988.

The agency said increasing fuel economy requirements could have "a number of adverse economic impacts," including "relative adverse financial and employment effects on the domestic industry vis-a-vis imports" and "increased restrictions on consumer choice."

Tank explosion leaves 2 dead

ASHTABULA, Ohio (AP) — A tank containing 2,000 pounds of a caustic chemical exploded Friday, killing two people, injuring at least 18 and sending a green chemical cloud into the air.

The late-morning explosion at the Diamond Shamrock Corp. plant also caused a small fire. Rain and wind from the south helped break up the chemical cloud and carry it over Lake Erie, where it posed no danger, said Allan Franks, chief of the public interest center for the Ohio Environmental Protection Agency.

He said he was unaware of any evacuations in the industrial area of Ashtabula Township.

Goetz dismissals face trip to appellate court

NEW YORK (AP) — The district attorney said Friday he would appeal the dismissal of attempted murder and assault charges against Bernhard Goetz, who shot four young men in a subway train.

"We have decided to appeal Judge Crane's decision to the Appellate Division," said the one-line statement issued by Manhattan District Attorney Robert Morgenthau's office.

The office said it would issue a fuller statement on the case in which Goetz said he shot four black youths in December 1984 because he believed they were about to rob him.

The case fired a debate over whether Goetz was a victim fighting back or a vigilante looking for trouble.

Earlier Friday, two black leaders said the dismissal of serious charges could be dangerous for other blacks and called on Morgenthau to send the case to a third grand jury in an attempt to get the charges restored.

The ruling "sends a signal that if you are white you can do almost anything to blacks and the law enforcement apparatus is going to stand behind you," said the Rev. Herbert Daughtry of the House of the Lord Church in Brooklyn.

"There seems to be ample validation of people's suspicion that the criminal justice system is against us," he added.

Morgenthau could have appealed Thursday's ruling, sought a new grand jury investigation or dropped the case.

State Supreme Court Justice Stephen Crane dismissed four counts of attempted murder and four counts of assault on Thursday, pointing out defects in the prosecution's presentation of the case to the grand jury and what he said was the likelihood that the testimony of two victims was false.

Five see molestation charges dropped

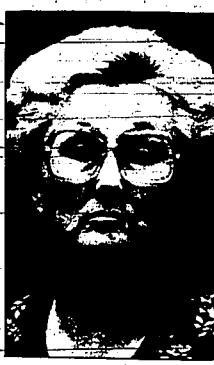

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Prosecutors citing insufficient evidence dropped charges Friday against five of the seven defendants in the McMartin Pre-School child molestation case, and some outraged parents called for the state to take over the case.

"I would never get involved in any vigilante-type activity (but) from what I hear other parents say, I wouldn't want to be one of those defendants walking the street," said Arvin Collins, who claimed two of his children were molested at the school.

"They'd be better off with the trial," said Robert Currie, a parent whose two children attended the now-closed McMartin school in suburban Manhattan Beach. "Otherwise, I don't think they're going to live."

Parents promised to appeal to the state attorney general's office to take over the case and prosecute all seven defendants, who originally had been charged with more than 300 counts of rape, sodomy and other abuse involving 41 children from 2 to 8 years old.

Two-thirds of the counts were dropped during an 18-month preliminary hearing, many because parents were unwilling to allow children to testify and others because of contradictory testimony from younger children.

PEGGY McMARTIN BUCKEY Must still face trial

RAYMOND BUCKEY Grandson of school founder

The children testified about rape, sodomy, satanic rituals and mutilation of animals. Animal bones were dug up in a lot next to the school, Peggy McMartin Buckey, 59, but were never conclusively linked to the case.

Defendants would be tried — Raymond Buckey, 27, grandson of the school's founder, and his mother, but were never conclusively linked to the case.

Prosecutors said in the McMartin case, the evidence had ruled there was probable cause for trying all seven defendants.

Reiner said. "We have a moral and ethical obligation not to file criminal charges where the evidence is insufficient."

Reiner said he disagreed with the assessment of therapists from Children's Institute International, a private counseling group hired to interview children who attended McMartin and other nearby nursery schools that hundreds of children had been molested. He declined to elaborate.

One of the five former defendants said Reiner's decision ended nearly two years of agony, and the charges were the result of media hysteria and overzealous investigators.

"The nature of the case is so horrendous and horrible when children are involved, and that's what incites adults regarding this case," said Mary Ann Jackson, who was a teacher at the school. "There's an injustice here somewhere. Land, sometimes that needs to be brought into the open."

The decision to drop the charges came one week after the end of the preliminary hearing in the case, which began with Raymond Buckey's arrest in September 1983 and has so far cost the state $4 million.

Municipal Court Judge Aviva Bobb had ruled there was probable cause for trying all seven defendants.

Navy reactor to float up Columbia

PORTLAND (AP) — The Navy says it is going to ship a 1,000-ton nuclear submarine reactor system up the Columbia River by barge to Washington state's Hanford Nuclear Reservation.

The Navy says it has notified Indian tribes and state officials in Oregon and Washington that it plans to dispose of low-level radioactive wastes from the USS Patrick Henry as early as April.

It will be the first complete decommissioning and permanent disposal of a nuclear submarine in the 32-year history of nuclear clear-powered craft, said Lt. Helen L. Beckham, spokeswoman for the Navy Chief of Information in Washington, D.C.

James H. Puckett, toxics director for Greenpeace, criticized the plans.

"We don't want to see the Columbia River become a nuclear highway," he said.

Oregon officials will monitor the shipment to ensure that accident prevention and emergency response measures are taken, said William Dixon, administrator of the siting and regulations division of the Oregon Department of Energy.

Doctor enters innocent plea

Claims he defaced cigarette billboard to save lives

SEATTLE (AP) — A physician who says he defaced a cigarette billboard because he wants to save lives has pleaded innocent to a charge of destruction of property.

"As a physician, I have to respond to a medical emergency and I felt it was worth breaking the law," Dr. Michael Lippman said at his city court arraignment Thursday.

Lippman's lawyer, Joy Smucker, said she would use the legal defense of "necessity." Lippman defaced the billboard because he was confronting a crime that is much more serious than the crime with which he's been charged, Smucker said.

Last month, Lippman sprayed the words "of cancer" after the billboard's message reading, "Came... it's a whole new world." He was caught by police.

A pretrial hearing date was set for Feb. 26. Lippman could face a fine of up to $5,000 and a year in jail on the gross misdemeanor charge. He has requested a jury trial.

Ackerley Communications of the Northwest, which owns the billboard, is undecided about pressing charges in addition to the charges already filed by the city.

"We're very much against what he did for obvious reasons," said company spokesman.

Officials will study relocation

Arsenic levels raise fears in Montana

ANACONDA, Mont. (AP) — Permanent relocation of residents in the arsenic-contaminated Mill Creek area here is not recommended, health officials say, although temporary relocation will be studied.

"There is not a serious risk to those people and they can stay in their homes," Anaconda Superfund Site Manager Mike Bishop added.

"Temporary relocation is a possibility," he said.

Officials from the Environmental Protection Agency announced Thursday night that they will study the question for 60 days prior to a scheduled federal cleanup in May.

The study period will be used by the EPA's "Fast Track" team members to determine cleanup methods, Mill Creek residents were told at a closed hearing.

Meanwhile, some members of the local Environmental Advisory Council said the decision not to relocate permanently was a conservative one, and warned that local residents may still be in jeopardy.

"You really don't know what the risk is," Kathy Hadley told officials.

"If you don't know what it is, why would our government want to make a conservative decision in terms of kids' health?"

After the meeting, Hadley said Mill Creek should file a class-action suit in order to set up a medical trust fund.

EPA officials said relocation before this cleanup is not recommended because the amount of arsenic contamination does not pose a serious immediate health risk.

The cleanup was ordered after high-level uranium-level isotopes were discovered in the urine of Mill Creek children in two samples taken in 1984.

Officials have said the children probably got arsenic in their system from playing in or ingesting dirt, which was contaminated by emissions and flue dust from the now-defunct Anaconda Minerals Co. smelter.

The contamination could pose long-term chronic health risks, federal officials have said.

EPA officials from Denver and Washington, D.C., who attended the hearing Thursday night said permanent relocation is not needed.

The federal government is not in the business of purchasing hazardous waste sites, Montana EPA Chief John Wordell said.

When the cleanup is finished, the amount of arsenic in the Mill Creek area will be in accordance with federal health standards, which will be established before the operation begins, officials said.

The EPA's "Fast Track" team has $1 million and six months to clean up the community.

High winds, lightning hit Washington

SEATTLE (AP) — Lightning struck the Space Needle and rain-hail-and-winds gusting to 90 miles per hour bedeviled other areas of Western Washington as a winter storm knocked out power to more than 100,000 people.

The Evergreen Point floating bridge across Lake Washington, and the Hood Canal floating bridge linking the Kitsap and Olympic peninsulas, were closed most of the night but reopened for morning traffic as winds eased.

Approximately 25,000 of the 75,000 Puget Power customers who lost electricity overnight were without power this morning, said utility spokeswoman Jude Noland, while crews had restored most of the outages suffered by Seattle City Light, Snohomish County Public Utility District and Tacoma City Light customers.

Lights flickered in the 605-foot-tall Space Needle when lightning hit the Seattle landmark Thursday night, but Jim Wright, Space Needle president, said there were no other problems since the building is equipped with 46 lightning rods.

Sen. Steve Symms believes family farms will survive because they produce crops more efficiently than corporations.

Symms: Wage a trade war

Prove 'we're (U.S. agriculture) a reliable supplier'

By PAT MARCANTONIO
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — U.S. Sen. Steve Symms says America has to recapture some of the world market for its agricultural goods to help boost its sagging farm industry.

The recently passed 1985 Farm Security Act "wasn't aggressive enough," said Symms, R-Idaho, in an interview with The Times-News Friday.

Symms earlier had attended a farm management workshop in Twin Falls that he sponsored with Idaho's other Republican senator, James McClure.

The Farm Bill, which was signed by President Reagan two days before Christmas, "was better than I thought it would be" and he supported it, Symms added.

Instead of the government buying crops, however, he favors those American farm products for sale on the world market.

On spending cuts — of the Gramm-Rudman budget proposal — Symms said he doesn't think it was equitable because the reductions will not be across the board. Nothing should have been excluded, but programs such as Society Security are exempt, he added.

and gain a foothold on the future. "We're in a trade war and we're losing it," Symms said. "It will take 20 years for us to live down the embargo of the 1970s."

Instead of rolling over and playing dead when it comes to the world market, the American farm machine must kick into gear and prove "we're a reliable supplier," he added.

To comply with the new Farm Bill, Agriculture Secretary John Block announced earlier this week crop loan rates that he said should make U.S. commodities more appealing on the world market.

On a related topic, Symms said the family farm is not becoming extinct, despite the number of farms lost through bankruptcy.

"We've been losing family farms since the 1930s," he said. Family farms will survive because they are more efficient at producing crops than corporations.

On spending cuts — of the Gramm-Rudman budget proposal — Symms said he doesn't think it was equitable because the reductions will not be across the board. Nothing should have been excluded, but programs such as Society Security are exempt, he added.

If there would have been more equitable cuts, there might have been some funds remaining to ease the transition for the cities and counties from their dependence on federal revenue sharing funds, he said. Those funds are set to end this fall.

Idaho cities and counties this year are asking the Idaho Legislature to up the sales tax to help replace the revenue lost through revenue sharing, much of which was used in regular government operations.

As it is, Symms said, the federal government has nothing to replace revenue sharing for cities and counties.

"I don't know where it would come from, because the federal government is broke," he said.

More than 200 farmers attend workshop at CSI

By MICHAEL VANAUDELIN
Times-News correspondent

TWIN FALLS — "We need your experience," said Sen. James McClure to over 200 farmers at the Twin Falls Farm Management Workshop held Friday at the College of Southern Idaho.

"We need a farm bill that will be able to assist you and take on a new enemy — foreign competition. And they're winning."

McClure stressed that for the depressed agricultural economy to be improved, the U.S. must be more aggressive in the foreign market.

"Congress needs to do more than just threaten to act," he said. "We need to be more competitive."

Sen. Steve Symms, who helped organize the workshop, agreed with Sen. McClure. "We need to strengthen our foreign market capabilities," he said.

Symms felt that the U.S. itself might be a source of the problem.

Accreditation in jeopardy at O'Leary

Rezoning may be sole answer

TWIN FALLS — O'Leary Junior High School will lose its accreditation if it does not alleviate staffing problems by next year, the principal disclosed Wednesday.

NAA also cited the school for a shortage of counselors, and for a building violation. Two classrooms in home economics area have an entryway, which causes distractions and is against NAA standards, Wiseman said.

The high student load is in English, social studies and math. "We have until next year to rectify the problems," he said.

Wiseman said the school needs at least three more teachers. But with the current budget crunch, the district cannot even afford one.

"I'm sure the board will be rezoning boundaries this summer," said Twin Falls Boardmember Gary Fay. The rezoning plan for the two junior high schools will be phased in over three years, Fay said.

Robert Stuart Junior High has only 600 students, with a capacity for about 800.

"The easiest solution is to hire more teachers, but we just can't do it," Superintendent Carl Snow said.

160 students per teacher per day. And at least two teachers have between 180 to 185 students, while the rest of the 13 have about 170 students, Wiseman said.

Attendance waiver policy to continue

By MICHAEL VANAUDELIN
Times-News Correspondent

KIMBERLY — Due to the expected rise of absences for the current school year, the Kimbrey School Board has decided to continue the attendance waiver process for the rest of the school year.

"Due to such things as the recent flu epidemic, we will continue to anticipate more waiver applications than ever," said Superintendent Richard Bauscher.

Parents of students who have missed an excessive number of school days notify the school so that the student will receive credit for the semester. For a student to qualify, the student must have passed the semester, had no suspensions

The school then either grants the credit or denies credit. If credit is denied, then the student must retake the classes the next year. The school denied credit to five students.

The board also approved a vision coverage plan as an addition to the options of an insurance policy that is available to Kimbrey school teachers and staff.

The board also agreed to participate in the 1986 high school graduation on May 23. Members of the board will hand out the diplomas as they greet the 52 graduates.

Vawser reported that the new mini-bus has arrived. The bus seats about 15 students and will be ready for use next week. Vawser said the bus will be used for several things, including transporting special-needs students and helping overloaded buses transport extra students.

A High School Principal Richard Rees reported that the Idaho Association of Secondary School Principals Conference was a success.

Rees said that among the items discussed were student discipline and the expected cuts in education.

In reaction to the recent controversy at O'Leary Jr. High in Twin Falls concerning a "box" used to discipline a student, Rees reported that Kimbrey High School does not use a "box" for its in-school suspension, but uses four study carrels.

Surviving farm crisis takes clout — panel

By KENNETH A. BROWN
Times-News writer

POCATELLO — One thing Idaho farmers and bankers cannot do if they are going to survive the current farm crisis is "put our head in the sand and hope things get better," says Jerry Trebesch.

Trebesch, with Idaho First National Bank, discussed the farm economy during a panel discussion at the Idaho Fertilizer & Chemical Dealers Conference in Pocatello Tuesday.

When the current crisis is over, Trebesch said "I think we'll be better bankers and I hope everyone else will be better financial managers."

While a number of farm analysts have predicted there will be a "let-up" in 1986 for farmers, Trebesch said he does not believe Idaho First will be short of money.

Idaho First is the nation's ninth-largest agricultural lender, he said.

Lending was not quite as good to us in 1985, but it has been over the years," Trebesch said.

Other panel members included U.S. Rep. Richard Stallings, state Sen. Dwight Horsch, D-American Falls; Jerry Ruddy, retail credit manager with Simplot, Solboulders in Pocatello; and Richard Polatka, president of the Potato Growers of Idaho.

Stallings, a member of the House Agricultural Committee, outlined the provisions of the new Farm Bill to the group and gave his analysis of the current attitudes in Washington on the farm situation.

The prevailing view, according to Stallings, seems to be that there are too many farmers. There is serious talk of paring down the number of farmers nationwide from its current level of 3 to 4 million, down to 500,000.

In spite of these attitudes, "we've got to be optimistic," Stallings said. "This country has grown tremendously on the backs of farmers and this paring down to 500,000 is not going to happen."

"We can't afford to see rural America disbanded," Stallings said. In relation to the current Farm Bill and its impact on government policies, Polatka, with the Potato Growers Association, said farmers in one state "will have to be integrated into the political things that affect them."

"It isn't just growing a good crop anymore," he added.

Horsch said the farmers will not only have to be more politically aware, but must be politically and economically organized as well.

"Farming tomorrow and farming in the future has got to get organized," Horsch said. Commenting on a report which said there are between 100 to 150 new groups trying to organize farm communities, Horsch said "I don't think we need 150. We need one. We've got to get

Pesticides in groundwater spur control

By KENNETH A. BROWN
Times-News writer

POCATELLO — The contamination of groundwater by pesticides is becoming a national issue of "growing concern," according to Cheryl Brower from the Division of Environment in Boise.

Pesticides have been detected in at least 12 states, Brower said — not from spills or accidents — but from application through normal use.

With pesticide contamination of groundwater being detected throughout the nation with increasing frequency, federal regulations and programs, along with counterparts at the state level, will affect farmers in the next few years.

Speaking at the Idaho Fertilizer and Chemical Conference in Pocatello Tuesday, Brower was joined by Susan Martin, also with the state Division of Environment, in outlining state programs and regulations now being developed which will be affecting farmers and applicators of agricultural chemicals.

The annual meeting brings together dealers, distributors and users of agricultural chemicals in Idaho. At this year's two-day meeting, more than 100 different companies were represented. In addition to product displays and promotional information, the convention featured talks and seminars on a variety of agricultural topics.

While pesticide pollution of groundwater was not previously thought to be a problem, Brower said the use of more water-soluble pesticides and the fact that pesticides are being found more deeply in the soil than previously thought possible have contributed to a growing interest in the problem.

In other states pesticides such as aldicarb and carbendazim have been detected in groundwater at levels above those considered to have an impact on human health. Both of those pesticides are used in Idaho.

Water quality in the state, Brower said, is good, but she prefaced that remark by noting that there is "almost zero data" on the quality of the state's groundwater. Over 90 percent of the state's drinking water comes from groundwater.

Next year the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency will begin its national pesticide survey, which will sample groundwater resources throughout the nation and attempt to characterize pesticide use. That survey will serve as the basis for regulating pesticide use for the protection of groundwater.

One possible offshoot of that study, Brower said, will be to encourage farmers in sensitive areas to use pesticides which are not likely to leach into groundwater.

Currently Idaho has no specific water quality standards for groundwater, Martin said. The state, however, is developing a proposal for ranking aquifers for three levels of protection. Class I, she said, would be a special resource designation. Class II would require maintaining groundwater purity at a level suitable for drinking water. Class III, she added, would be for industrial and agricultural use.

"Before you get upset," Martin told the agricultural chemical group, "you should know that almost all the waters in the state are currently Class II and we intend to protect them at that level."

The state is also developing a management plan for the Snake Plain aquifer.

"I've other coming regulatory programs which will affect the farmer and chemical applicator are pesticide rinate regulations, controlling the rinsing of pesticide containers and application equipment, and lighter disposal laws for hazardous wastes," Martin said.

Some of those, such as hazardous waste, are beyond state control, but for areas such as groundwater and rinate regulations, Martin urged the group to work with the state to ensure that regulations are both workable and effective.

"It's in the state's interest to have its own program that addresses Idaho's needs," Martin said.

Lebanese skirmishes kindle fears of a renewed civil war

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — President Amin Gemayel's supporters used tanks to repulse a two-pronged offensive by Syrian-backed militias in the Christian stronghold Friday.

Police said at least 21 people were killed and 56 wounded in overnight counterattacks by Christian units of the Lebanese army and militias loyal to the Maronite Catholic president, who has opposed a Syrian-brokered pact to end the decade-old civil war.

An alliance of Syrian-backed militias launched their offensive against Gemayel's forces on Wednesday, defying Christian rivals who backed the Damascus accord signed Dec. 28.

By police count, at least 403 people have been killed and nearly 800 wounded since Monday.

Security sources said Gemayel's forces counterattacked with U.S.-made M-48 tanks in the central mountains above the president's hometown of Bikfaya northeast of Beirut and the northern Batroun region around the ancient port of Tyblos.

In the eastern sector, commandos of the army's 5th and 8th Brigades recaptured positions stormed by fighters of the Syrian Social Nationalist Party and other leftist militias Wednesday.

To the north, militiamen of Gemayel's right-wing Phalange Party and Samir Geagea's Lebanese Forces, the largest Christian militia, drove back units of the pro-

Druse militiamen drive to join Syrian-backed militias fighting forces loyal to President Amin Gemayel.

Syrian Marada, or Giants, militia to regain key crossroads.

The Marada is commanded by former President Suleiman Frangieh, a pro-Syrian Christian.

Frangieh apparently sought to settle the old score with Geagea, who led a 1978 assault on Frangieh's northern stronghold of Ehden in which the president's son Tony and his family and 22 bodyguards were killed.

Leftist and Moslem gunners lobbed shells into Christian neighborhoods on Beirut's outskirts, but there was no report of civilian casualties.

By nightfall, security sources reported both sides returned to positions they held before Wednesday's assault by the pro-Syrian forces.

Spain sets official ties with Israel

THE HAGUE, Netherlands (AP) — Spain and Israel established diplomatic relations Friday in a ceremony at the Hague, formalizing cultural ties dating back to the "golden age" of Spanish-Jews which ended with their expulsion 500 years ago.

The Spanish government accompanied the recognition with a declaration pledging friendship with Arab nations and denouncing Israeli occupation of Arab lands. An Israeli Embassy source said his government responded by reiterating its recent proposals for peace with the Arabs.

Spain has never had diplomatic relations with Israel since the Jewish state was founded 38 years ago.

In 1948, Spain was ruled by Gen. Francisco Franco, a fascist ally of Nazi Germany in World War II. Until his death in 1975, the dictator denounced what he called a universal "Judeo-Masonic conspiracy."

Just across the Strait of Gibraltar from the Arab nations of North Africa, Spain has close ties with the Arabs dating from the Moorish occupation that ended in the 15th century.

Foreign Minister Yitzhak Shamir of Israel said in Jerusalem after the signing that Spain could become a channel for contacts between Israel and the Arab states.

U.S. copters collide

MARKTREDWITZ, West Germany (AP) — Two U.S. military helicopters from a regiment parading in next week's NATO winter maneuvers collided in the air Friday, killing one serviceman and injuring four others on board, a U.S. Army statement said.

West German police spokesman Ludwig Kraus said the collision took place at 2 p.m. near the northern Bavarian town of Marktredwitz, about 12 miles from the Czechoslovak border.

"The helicopters crashed at a relatively low altitude and fell to the ground," Kraus said. Both helicopters were destroyed and no one on the ground was injured, he said.

Three of the injured servicemen were hospitalized in Marktredwitz and the fourth American was flown by a West German emergency services helicopter to the larger city of Bayreuth, about 25 miles to the west.

Marcos-Laurel ticket pushed

DAVAO, Philippines (AP) — Presidential candidate Corason Aquino campaigned on Mindanao Island Friday, promising to "shoot down" new fighting-mate's backers wanted him to switch to President Ferdinand E. Marcos' ticket.

In Manila, a nephew of first lady Imelda Marcos accused Marcos of bungling the economy and said he was quitting his diplomatic post and supporting Mrs. Aquino in the Feb. 7 special election.

A Davao newspaper, the People's Daily Forum, reported that key supporters of Sen. Salvador Laurel, Mrs. Aquino's running mate, in Davao were dumping Mrs. Aquino in favor of Marcos. It said natives of Laurel's home province of Batangas, south of Manila, were secretly campaigning for a Marcos-Laurel team.

Laurel has brushed aside the idea.

Visit of clergymen denied

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — The government on Friday refused to allow nine clergymen from the United States and Canada to come here for a visit, accusing them of links to guerrillas who are trying to topple the white-led regime.

The decision by Home Affairs Minister Stoffel Botha came a week after a U.S. congressional delegation returned home and advocated stiffer economic sanctions to force an end to apartheid.

SDI accord could come soon

BONN, West Germany (AP) — West Germany could sign an agreement as early as March on conditions for participation of private West German companies in President Reagan's Strategic Defense Initiative, the government said Friday.

Economics Minister Martin Bangemann briefed Chancellor Helmut Kohl on his discussions earlier this week in Washington that set talks in motion on the space-based SDI, popularly called "Star Wars."

A government spokesman said such an accord would set conditions for U.S.-West German exchange of technological advances arising from SDI, which the United States says is intended to neutralize the feasibility of a space-based defense system to devise weapons that would destroy the enemy's ballistic missiles carrying warheads.

U.N. announces cutbacks

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The secretary-general, citing a serious cash shortage because of late or withheld contributions, announced austerity measures Friday designed to save the United Nations $15 million in 1986.

Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar, in a circular to U.N. states did not mention the United States by name, but clearly referred to a recent U.S. action to withhold $32 million of the $150 million it assessed last year.

American officials said this was done to comply with possible cuts under a bill Congress passed to reduce the U.S. budget deficit. Under another bill, U.S. aid to the United Nations would be cut 20 percent after October if the world body does not give major donors more say in how U.N. money is spent.

Terrorist bomb threat leads to tight security

OTTAWA (AP) — Ottawa police stepped up security after a bomb-smitting dog to the Toronto, Montreal and Ottawa airports Friday as security was steadily tightened following reports of a terrorist threat against U.S.-bound planes.

Royal Canadian Mounted Police refused to comment on various published reports that a Libyan terrorist was trying to arrange for the bombing of a flight from Ottawa International Airport.

The Ottawa Citizen said police are looking for a Libyan sympathizer who attempted to hire a local man for $80,000 to place a bomb aboard an aircraft this weekend. And the Montreal Gazette quoted an unidentified security officer as saying "an underworld contact" told police Tuesday that a Libyan man had asked about buying dynamite.

An official of the union representing airport ticket clerks and baggage handlers said some members were so upset they were thinking of staying away from work this weekend.

Security alert was issued Thursday, and RCMP Deputy Commissioner Normank Inkster said, "We have at this point unconfirmed information that someone has planned to place an explosive on an airplane leaving the country."

Both U.S. and Israeli officials claim Libya backs a Palestinian faction blamed for the Dec. 27 attacks at the Rome and Vienna airports that left 19 people dead, including five Americans.

In Washington, an FBI spokesman said the bureau is cooperating with the Canadian investigation, but he said dozens of such reports are received daily.

Deputy Prime Minister Erik Nielsen, speaking with reporters outside the House of Commons, said extra airport security would remain in place as long as necessary.

He also said "inaccurate" reports were "heightening the anxiety of travelling public and those who work at the airports" and added, "If it wasn't safe to fly, we'd close the airports."

Cocaine, heroin on rise in Idaho

BOISE (AP) — Cocaine and heroin are emerging as the latest major drug problems in Idaho, according to a report by Enforcement Director John Rooney.

"We are noticing an increase in the amount and purity of cocaine coming into the state," Rooney said in a legislative budget "writter's Friday in pressing for a $5.9 million general revenue budget for 1987.

Although marijuana remains the largest target of the department's Narcotics Division, Rooney said nearly $2 million in investigations through the year that ends in June. That will be up about 5 percent from a year earlier.

"It's coming from everywhere, and it's in every area of the state," he said.

As for marijuana, Rooney said the department's continued crackdown on growers resulted in another $8.5 million of the plants seized last year. That is substantially lower than the estimated $16 million seized three years ago after the federal government began arresting the marijuana fields throughout Idaho.

"It wouldn't say we're getting a handle on it," Rooney said of the decline in seizures although he was confident there is less marijuana traffic in the state today than there was in 1983.

"The trend now is smaller fields, if any," he said. "They're going indoors where it's more difficult to be detected. I think we have less, but who knows how much less. But I also think we still have a lot of industrious people out there who have gone underground."

While the value of drugs seized has declined from $16 million in 1983 to about $10.5 million this year, the number of drug investigations has increased 15 percent and the number of arrests is up nearly 25 percent.

"We are getting more involved in combined local, state and federal task force operations involving conspiracies," Rooney said.

Session's first partisan squabble hits Senate

BOISE (AP) — The Senate Republicans have exercised their majority control for the first time this session in turning back what GOP President Pro Tem James Risch called a Democratic attempt at "political hectoring."

By a 24-15 vote, the Senate on Friday decided off floor debate and a vote on a Democratic resolution long-since taken to service from constituents to their legislators. The majority ordered the bill sent to committee for review as Risch described the entire matter "as trivial."

Democratic Caucus Chairman John Foyeville of Carey, who had pressed for an immediate floor vote on the proposition, said its diversion to the State Affairs Committee effectively kills it since that panel has buried similar proposals in past sessions.

Three Republicans, C.A. Smyser of Parma, Lynn Tomlinaga of Paul and Roger Fairchild of Fruitland supported the Democratic in their unsuccessful attempt. But Smyser criticized the tactic, claiming it was a Democratic attempt to take "political advantage to embarrass the majority."

In addition to the floor skirmish over the telephone measure, Democrats also took advantage of their last chance to "personally" introduce bills before the session through a committee to three separate other measures into the hopper that could put their Republican colleagues on the spot.

They would change Senate rules to mandate that "non-secret" party meetings or caucuses be open to the public. Another would quadruple the budget of the new Commerce Department in an attempt to focus attention on expanding Idaho's flagging economy. A third would give financial aid to the people, the right, on-stopped of the county to impose a local income, and a fourth to allow the state to impose state regulations on hazardous waste that the federal government amid rising citizen concern over waste handling and disposal problems.

House committee passes measure to eliminate legislative positions

BOISE (AP) — Will the Idaho Legislature really vote to wipe out up to 36 legislative positions in the future?

The first answer to that question may be answered by the Idaho House state-board of lawmakers set a chance to cut the state's largest Legislature, 126 members, down to 90 or 106.

A resolution calling for a constitutional amendment eliminating legislative positions sailed through the House State Affairs Committee unanimously on Friday. It received "do pass" endorsement.

It's up for final action next week. If two-thirds of the House members agree, and the Senate goes along, the question will be put to the public next November.

Paralleling action surfaced in the Senate Friday. Sen. C.A. "Skip" Smyser, R-Parma, and 10 other senators sponsored legislation limiting the Legislature to a Senate of no more than 20 members and a House twice the size of the Senate.

That could mean no more than 90 legislators, compared with the 42-member Senate and the 84-seat House ordered by the courts in the

ICL members seek to close loopholes

BOISE — Wood River Valley members of the Idaho Conservation League said Friday that they expect to close some loopholes in state environmental laws this year.

About 50 members of the League were in Boise Friday for the ICL's first lobby day and they met with about 20 Idaho legislators to give a send-off to the League's legislative agenda.

Member Tom Pomroy of Ketchum said proposed amendments to the state's Environmental Protection and Health Act have been worked over with representatives of the mining industry and interim committees of the Legislature to ensure passage this year.

Rep. Jerry Callen, R-Jerome, said after an afternoon presentation by the League that he had not seen the ICL's bills yet, but felt protection of the environment is important as long as it does not drive people out of business.

In her side presentation on the proposed amendments, Salmon field office representative Lili Erickson said the amendments will better protect salmon and steelhead waters from pollution than the current law does.

Cindy Telpner, president of the Wood River Valley Chapter of the ICL, said the proposed amendments do not provide the public involvement and prevention measures the League wanted, but they were a "first compromise" between responsible members of the mining industry and conservationists.

The proposals will increase fines for violations of the law and speed the process by which environmentally damaging practices are stopped.

Other legislation being sought by the League includes a bill that would guarantee to workers and citizens the right to know of the whereabouts of hazardous materials.

ICL lobbyist Tim Crawford, of Ketchum, said the bill will likely meet with the same opposition that stalled it last year, but the legislative session is too young for him to make predictions.

Pomroy said the offices of the attorney general and the governor are doing the League's work for them by introducing and lobbying for legislation that will help pay for training of police officers — to be trained to deal with hazardous waste and chemical spills on Idaho's highways.

The bills also deal with the use of trucks to haul hazardous or toxic materials with food and other consumer goods. Crawford said he will be keeping an eye on the bills, even though they have support from Gov. John Evans and Attorney General Jim Jones.

Education panel OK's registration rule

BOISE (AP) — Despite protests from school officials that the idea might cut already low participation, a House committee has approved legislation requiring voters to register before they can take part in school elections.

The House Education Committee on Friday voted 11-4 to give the bill "do pass" endorsement, and sent it to the House floor for a vote, probably next week.

After a spirited debate, the same panel voted 9-7 to take in and introduce legislation prepared by Rep. Robert Forrey, R-Nampa, removing the registration requirement needed to run for the office of state schools superintendent.

Forrey argued that in a "republican" form of government, any person meeting constitutional requirements should be able to run for high public office.

Voters in most Idaho elections must register beforehand, and the law now does that two weeks before an election to allow county clerks to prepare voter lists.

Plurality in school districts now need only sign a statement that they are a qualified voter, to take part in an election.

Committee conservatives solidly backed the bill sponsored by Rep. Myron Jones, D-Malden.

School and county spokesmen argued against the measure.

REP. ROBERT FORREY
WANTS QUALIFICATIONS REMOVED

this up, and registration will not bring the votes out," she said.

Rep. Dolores Crow, R-Nampa, said a Canyon County official said that Canyon county would have little problem registering voters as required by the Jones bill.

Rick Van Hemert, spokesman for the Idaho Association of School Administrators, said the goal is to make the election process as simple as possible, so voters will participate.

Creating another step to be taken before voting will create "disincentives which will cut voter turnout," he said.

"He said he's not aware of any widespread abuses which demand tougher registration laws."

Rep. Joan Wood, R-Riggins, said people in her district are "extremely upset" because local legislators would be asked to vote in a school bond election.

Witnesses mentioned a couple of incidents in recent years in which voters mentioned a school election in a number of school elections — to show how easily it can be accomplished.

Forrey told the Education Committee she has no plans to run for state superintendent, but he knows a superintendent, but he knows of some highly qualified people who do not meet the requirements.

The Idaho Constitution requires candidates for certain state offices to be at least age 25, to have lived in the state for at least two years, and to meet filing requirements. The attorney, lieutenant governor and attorney general must be at least age 30.

Forrey said current laws say candidates for state schools chief must hold a valid Idaho administrator's certificate, "and there's a problem there."

He said those certificates are issued by the Department of Education — run by the school superintendent.

Also, Forrey said, superintendent candidates must be graduates of colleges or universities approved by the board of education.

He called appointments to the board "political." "When you have the advantage, you take it," he said.

"The requirements absolutely restrict almost every citizen of this state," from running, he said. "We need a good manager in that position. If a person could run for governor, he or she should be able to run for this position."

Van Hemert argued that removing the qualifications for the job might produce a state superintendent less qualified than the school district superintendents he's supposed to oversee.

Commencements staggered

MOSCOW (AP) — The University of Idaho and Washington State University will avoid the problems of last year by scheduling their commencements on the succeeding weekends.

WSU students will graduate on Saturday, May 10, while UI students will graduate on May 17, the universities have announced.

Last year, the first that both schools ever on early start calendars, the ceremonies were separated by just one day, causing massive problems for the restaurant and lodging industries — and considerable traffic congestion.

The two universities are just eight miles apart in Moscow, Idaho and Pullman, Wash.

Bruins' best falls short of Skyline's shooters

By SCOTT TUDEHOPE
Times-News writer

Skyline 76
Twin Falls 67

TWIN FALLS — Matching up in height against Skyline's stiletto-sharp shooting artists, Twin Falls stumbled in the second period, losing the Gem State matchup 76-67.

Outscored 22-10 in the second eight minutes of play, Bruins coach John Hart, Dan Trube and Ty Morgan — Astoria skill managed to classify his club's efforts as "the best" that he's seen this season.

The game featured the classic — all-but-rackneyed — David and Goliath sludginess. Twin Falls' David Fulton used his 6-foot-0 frame to his advantage, as the Bruins' leading rebounder and point totaler, ending up with a season-high of 27 points. A trio of Davids — Skyline's Doug Hart, Dan Trube and Ty Morgan — combined for eight three-point goals — which helped keep the Bruins behind all night.

It was a standard first-period exception for Fulton's contribution. After grizzles made their mark, Outpacing their opponents 27-10, the Idaho Falls club led off the Bruins' inconsistent coverage of the outside shot, which helped Hart to connect seemingly at will, while Morgan squirmed his way inside.

If Skyline was to win, it had to clamp down on Fulton, according to his coach.

"We knew (that) we were going to have to focus on him," said Grizzly coach Jim Lewis. "He scored 18 of their 28 points in the first half. We figured if we fronted him and got a guy behind him that we'd be airing —

Bruin Kenny Fuchs checked center Les Gardner to start the third period, then with a minute into the second half hit a field goal to bring BTwin Falls to within nine. Forward John-Fulton hit Gabe Ostyn to make it a seven-point margin — but that was the closest the Bruins got, as the Grizzlies started to pound the Bruins inside, it worked.

Down 34-47, Twin Falls guard Tom Prator hit a pair of field goals to start the final period. With three minutes left, Ostyn found Fuchs to put Twin within three points, but two Bruin turnovers and a key Trube three-pointer led the win for the Eastern Idaho club.

Eagles demolish Flathead, break scoring record

STEVE CRUMP
Times-News sports editor

TWIN FALLS — The yield point — the moment in a basketball game at which Red Auerbach used to light his cigar — came early Friday night in the College of Southern Idaho's 135-87 men's victory over Flathead Valley Community College in the Golden Eagles' Northern Division Region 18 opener.

In nine games out of 10 — that's a signal for Miller Time, Friday was the exception.

The Eagles set a school scoring record, shot 58 percent from the floor and 70 percent from the tree throw line and outscored FVCC 68-34 in the second half.

"Fairly early on, their kids started giggling and joking around on the floor," said CSI Coach Fred Trenkle. "When the other team starts doing that — two things can happen. Either your players do the same thing or they get more intense. That's what happened tonight."

CSI had three reserves in double figures, including freshman forward Doran Duffin, who scored 15 points; freshman guard Keith Jackson, with 13 points; and freshman guard Gerald Collins, with 10.

"This is the best offensive team we've ever had here, so I guess it's appropriate that they get the scoring record," said Trenkle, whose ballclub eclipsed the 127-point mark CSI set against the Air Force All-Stars last year.

Flathead Valley, a Kalksippi, Mont., school in its first season of Region 18 competition after it restored its basketball program a year ago, was outclassed from the start and Trenkle went to his bench early.

"I told their coach before the game that we don't have any bad players," said Trenkle. "We use nine players regularly, so they're all ready to play."

The victory, which extended the Eagles' unbeaten streak to 14 straight and is likely to bolster CSI's No. 9 ranking in next week's National Junior College Athletic Association poll, came the night before the Eagles travel to Logan, Utah, to face the Utah State Junior varsity.

"Utah State could drop a couple of horses on us, but I think we'll be ready to play," said Trenkle. "We've had six 100-point games this year and we've always been ready to play the next night."

Despite CSI's flashy statistics for the night, defense probably had as much to do with this win. CSI's pressure forced eight FVCC turnovers in the first five minutes of the game, at which point the Eagles led 24-5.

By the midpoint of the first half, Trenkle had used eight players and the Eagles led 38-10.

"We had seen these guys play (at the Canadian Holiday Classic) in Calgary, so we knew exactly what to expect," said Trenkle. "But it was still a good win for us. We played with a lot of intensity, shot the ball very well, played good pressure defense and went to the boards."

MSU Bobcats' defense frustrates Bengal plans

By RON VYSE
Special to The Times-News

BOZEMAN — Montana State Coach Stu Starner called Friday's 83-70 Big Sky Conference basketball victory over Idaho State "a total team effort."

Bobcat forward Tom Domako, who led MSU with 22 points and 10 rebounds, agreed.

"Everybody had confidence tonight. Our post people played great, we had a great defensive effort and everybody hit the boards."

That defensive effort was geared toward Bengal junior forward Donn Holston, who still managed to score 24 points. Yet most of them came late in the second half after the Bobcats had built a 23-point lead.

ISU Coach Jim Boutin, whose team leads the Big Sky in defense, was frustrated after seeing his Bengals suffer their first conference loss as they fell to 9-9 overall.

The fastbreak proved to be Bengals' undoing, as MSU guard Tony Hampton led an 18-8 spurt midway through the first half that gave the Bobcats a 46-31 halftime lead.

The fastbreak also never gave ISU's half-court defense a chance to set up. MSU's 83 points marked the first time this season that Bengals have yielded 70 points to an opponent.

Indians control Hornets' offense

Conference leaders romp in 4th period

Shoshone 77
Oakley 50

Times-News writer

SHOSHONE — Top-ranked Shoshone exploded away for a 23-point fourth quarter in downing Oakley 77-50 in a Triagle Valley Conference showdown Friday.

Oakley, which trailed 45-14 at intermission, rode the scoring of senior guard Bryan Jenks to stage a third-period rally that enabled them to twice cut the Indian lead to eight points early in the last stanza.

But Shoshone fired up the fast break in the last eight minutes with Wade Cooper on the receiving end for 14 of his 21 game points as hosts pulled away to the victory.

They took it to us in the third — they controlled the tempo and took us out of what we wanted to do.

— Coach Larry Messick

Jenks, who paced his team's effort with 16, put Oakley on the board first with a reverse layin in the first half minute but nearly four minutes passed before the visitors could count another. Indian junior George Shimer, who sprang for 10 points in the period, replied with a pair on a putback shot. On the ensuing possession Shimer stole the ball at mid-court and took it hard to the hoop for another pair drawing the foul and converting the three-point play; Kelly-Duffin shot Shoshone into a five-point advantage before Steve Manning canned a jumper from the top of the key.

After an exchange of fielders, the Indians took off on a 12-point lead, culminating in a 21-6 lead with two minutes gone in the second as Duffin dropped in a crumple off a steal and assisted by 5-9 senior guard Bart Harris.

But Oakley wasn't ready to concede the contest at the break. "I saw some interesting things in the third quarter — but we got a little tired," said Oakley Coach Neal Wyatt. The defending MVC champs reeled off 12 points in a span of just under five minutes punctuated only by a Duffin charity. Not until Duffin, stole a rebound off the offensive glass at 3:12 could Shoshone get the ball down.

Steve Manning hit from the baseline to open the last period and reduce the deficit to eight and the clubs exchanged baskets for a 40-38 spread in the Indians favor. Ending the hornet rally the Indians could do no wrong over the final six minutes as they popped for 31 points to fashion the final count.

"I'm sure they were hurt some with no practice this week," commented Indian mentor Larry Messick. "But they took it to us in the third — they controlled the tempo and took us out of what we wanted to do."

In taking the junior varsity game 60-51, Shoshone made it a sweep on the evening.

Shoshone takes sole possession of the conference lead at 5-0 and own a 10-1 season record. Oakley drops to 4-5 on the year and 2-1 in the MVC. The number one ranked Indians are idle until a trip to Hagerman Tuesday in conference play.

Witherspoon batters Tubbs, eyes championship

By ED SCHUYLER JR.
The Associated Press

ATLANTA (AP) — Tim Witherspoon got back a piece of the heavyweight championship Friday night, then said "Now I want it all."

Witherspoon, battering Tony Tubbs' body for most of the fight, won the World Boxing Association championship with a 15-round majority decision at the Omni.

"I knew the fight was close but I thought I scored more to the body," said Tubbs, who lost the title in his first defense and suffered his first defeat in 23 pro fights.

The judges agreed with Tubbs' assessment, to an extent. Judge Edward Woods Jr. scored it 144-141 and Harry Cecchini had it 144-143 for Witherspoon; Judge Robert Ferrara scored it 143-143.

The AP card favored Witherspoon 146-139.

"He was a good champion," the 28-year-old Witherspoon said of Tubbs. "This was getting me ready for revenge on Elnkon Thomas and Larry Holmes."

Witherspoon failed to win the World Boxing Council title when he lost a 12-round split decision to Holmes on May 20, 1983. He won the WBC crown on a 12-round majority decision over Greg Page on March 9, 1984, then lost to Thomas on a 12-round majority decision Aug. 31, 1984.

Several hours before the fight, promoters Don King and Butch Lewis and Home Box Office, which televised this fight, announced a series of seven championship fights which would culminate in an undisputed heavyweight champion in 1987.

"I attribute my victory to hard training and dedication and getting my mind together for this fight," said Witherspoon, who had said he wasn't mentally or physically prepared for the Thomas fight.

After the fight, Tubbs said, "Tim won and I am happy for him. It's back to the drawing-board and then back to the title."

Buhl's second-half rally overhauls Mountain Home 64-61

MOUNTAIN HOME — Lyle Peterson and Gary Brown picked up six points between them over the closing two minutes Friday night to preserve a rallying 64-61 victory for the Buhl Indians over the Mountain Home Tigers.

Brown's jumper worth 1:47 left pulled Buhl to a 61-58 lead and Peterson expanded that to five points with a pair of charities 21 seconds from the end. Then after David Clauson's three-pointer pulled Mountain Home back into contention, Brown led with a free throw at the four-second mark. The Tigers' desperation three-pointer brought away:

The win capped a big comeback that left Mountain Home pulling to 57-50 in the second quarter. Buhl rallied back to within one point at intermission and kept coming in the third quarter as Alan Thornberry picked up eight points to spark a 20-point effort.

The Indians took the lead at 45-44 in the fourth quarter made it seem like an easy victory when that grew to 59-52. But Maury Toy and Todd Miles each hit four points to set up the final minutes.

MALTA — The Castleford Wolves broke open a close contest in the second quarter and burst out to a 78-69 Magic Valley conference victory over Raft River.

Ron Owen had 20 points for the No. 4 Wolves while Brian Lima had 15.

The victory was a costly one for Castleford as Gary Reynolds injured his shoulder that sidelined him for most of the football season this year.

Camas 61, Bliss 43

BLISS — Todd Tupper and Don Robbins put on an outside jump shooting display that carried Camas County Musers to a 61-43 victory over the Bliss Bears Saturday night.

Robbins hit 20 points and Tupper added 12 as the Musers controlled the scoreboard throughout. They used a game-long, full-court press to keep Bliss off its offense although the Bears came up with 10 points in the final period.

Due to the hitting of Robbins and Tupper, Camas County shot 65 percent from the field and held a 30-19 rebounding advantage over the shorter Bears.

Idaho Falls 74, Minico 60

KUPERT — The Idaho Falls Tigers nursed about a 10-point lead from the early second quarter on Friday night to register a 74-60 Gem State Conference victory over the Minico Spartans.

The Spartans' offense dropped Bagley came up with three fouls in the first period and sat things out until the final period. He ended up with 17 points, all in the second half.

Freshman Dan Poulton hit three three-pointers for the Spartans.

Gooding 79, Wendell 51

GOODING — Todd Sims and Todd Kimms combined for 40 points Friday night as the Gooding Senators rolled past Wendell 79-51 in Canyon Conference boys basketball.

Sims had 24 points for the winners while Kimms had 16, his highest point total as a Senator.

Jimmy Prince had 24 points for Wendell including three buckets from the three-point line.

Gooding was originally scheduled to play Kimberly tonight, but Declo will play because Kimberly couldn't make the game.

Richfield 73, Carey 48

RICHFIELD — The Richfield Tigers got their transition game going Friday night and past the Carey Panthers 73-48 in the state tournament.

With four men in double scoring figures, Richfield moved ahead 32-19 in the first half and then went to a quarter while Jackpot's shooting turned ice cold Friday night.

After falling behind by 12 in the first quarter, Jackpot sealed its own fate by scoring just two points in the second.

Carlson's George Gerwin, who led all scorers with 31 points, had given the Bulls a 109-107 lead in regulation play on an basket and free throw.

Gerwin had pulled the Bulls into 116-114 in overtime with one of two free throws before Bobby Jones of the Sixers got a layup to pull the visitors ahead at 110-116.

Spurs 113, Knicks 100

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Forward Steve Johnson, who was supposed to sit out with a strained neck, scored 15 points in the first quarter as the San Antonio Spurs rallied to an early lead in a 113-100 NBA victory over the New York Knicks Friday night.

THE ACES® BOBBY WOLFF

"A man whose leg has been cut off does not value a present of shoes." — Chung Tzu.

"I have a gift for you." East told South as he discarded the ace of diamonds. "Perhaps it will make it easier for you to develop your suit," he added, tongue fully in cheek.

East won his heart king and returned the five to West's ace. West then led the heart four to clear the suit, and that's when East found his startling play.

What would have happened had East held on to his diamond ace? South would have had an easy time. He would have crossed to dummy twice to lead toward his diamond honors, and the defenders would have taken only their "three" top tricks.

What did happen after East's timely jettison of the diamond ace? South could no longer make the game. He played his top diamonds, hoping to drop a doubtonlet jack with West. When this failed, his maximum take was only eight tricks. West scored his diamond jack to go with four heart winners, and instead of making an overtrick, South was one down—because of East's "generosity."
