Challenger probe in hands of special board

Coast Guard Lt. (j.g.) John Felker said NASA received this sphere found off Charleston, S.C.

Pathologists examine human remains; sea sweep cut back

By HARRY F. ROSENTHAL
The Associated Press

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. — Pathologists are examining human remains recovered from the Atlantic to see if they are those of Challenger's astronauts, sources said Monday. NASA said Monday that it has recovered no shuttle debris so far from the ocean bottom despite six days of searching with sonar and robot submarines. Two promising "targets" the space agency said turned out to be the old wreckage of a helicopter and a light airplane. That left 17 other potential targets about 15 miles offshore where photographs and radar had detected that large objects hit the water, NASA said. But with the sea yielding less debris each day, officials weighed cutting back on the search of the ocean surface. The Navy was pulling US ships out at the end of the day Monday, leaving the sea sweep to the Coast Guard, which also was reviewing whether to continue. The sources, who spoke on condition they not be identified, would not disclose how many remains had been found or what they were but said they had been taken to a hospital at nearby Patrick Air Force Base to be preserved and studied. Seven astronauts died in the space shuttle's explosion a week ago, and parts of the shuttle have been found as far away as 220 miles north of Kennedy Space Center. Whether the human remains were washed up on the beaches or found at sea, the sources would not say. They would not say when the remains were found. NASA would neither confirm nor deny the report.

At the White House ceremony introducing the new investigative board, NASA acting director William Graham refused to comment directly on the report. "On the issue of human remains, all I can tell you at this point is that we are sensitive to the issue of personal effects and to the remains of the astronauts," he said. "We have plans in place to treat them with great dignity and great privacy, appropriate to the respect that we have for them." The agency acknowledged five days earlier that one bone section washed ashore, but has never said whether it was identified as coming from an astronaut. It cautioned that the bone could be that of an animal or remains from missing fishermen and other people. "They did not retrieve very much." See SEARCH on Page A2.

WASHINGTON — President Reagan took the investigation of the space shuttle Challenger's explosion away from NASA Monday and entrusted it to an independent board "with no axe to grind." In an executive order, Reagan directed the panel headed by former Secretary of State William P. Rogers and onetime astronaut Neil Armstrong, the first man to set foot on the moon, to report his findings within 120 days.

By making the commission independent of NASA, the administration appeared to be trying to avoid criticism that the investigation of the Jan. 28 accident, which claimed the lives of all seven crew members, was one-sided or biased. Yet, half of the 12 commission members named by Reagan on Monday have current or past ties to NASA or the space program.

Presidential spokesman Larry Speakes, addressing reporters in the White House briefing room, said "I think what type of questions you would have been asking in this room had NASA appointed the permanent and only board." Under Reagan's order, NASA becomes a research arm of the new commission. An interim investigative board set up by NASA on the day of the accident is being abolished. The commission, which can be comprised of up to 20 members, includes former test pilot Chuck Yeager, astronaut Sally K. Ride, the first American woman in space, and Nobel laureate Richard P. Feynman. In another development, Capitol Hill sources said Reagan will ask Congress to provide roughly $7.7 billion for the NASA budget for the 1987 fiscal year, an increase in spending at a time when funding for most federal agencies and programs will be frozen or cut.

The sources, who asked not to be named publicly, added that Reagan's board apparently was prepared before last week's accident, and said administration officials had not yet had time to assess the impact of the explosion on the space program. Four of the commission members named Monday, including Ride and Feynman, hold doctorate degrees in physics. Other members include an aerospace engineer, a NASA consultant on rocket engines, an aerospace journalist, an attorney, and the director of the Air Force's space systems and command control and communications. Reagan, appearing before television cameras, in the Roosevelt Room six days after the Challenger explosion, killed six astronauts and a schoolteacher. Chief McAuliffe said, "As we move away from that terrible day, we must devote our See PANEL on Page A2.

Creationism bill on House floor

By QUANE KENYON
The Associated Press

BOISE — The Idaho House will have to decide the fate of legislation requiring public schools in the state to teach the theory of "creation science" along with evolution. The House Education Committee on Monday voted 10-8 to give "do-pass" endorsement to a bill sponsored by a conservative Idaho Falls legislator, despite testimony from a scientist that the measure is almost identical to a 1981 Arkansas law struck down by that state's supreme court. Under normal procedures, the legislation will be up for a final House vote before the end of the week. Rep. Preston Brimhall, R-Idaho Falls, sponsored the bill, calling it a "framing of choice" issue. "I can't see why we should suppress something so vital to these children," he said, referring to the creationism theory. Jack Dalton, executive secretary of the Idaho Academy of Science, read a statement from the association saying that if groups want to teach the theory of divine creation on a religious basis, that might be acceptable to some. "But it shouldn't be called 'science,'" said Dalton, because "the theory that God created the Earth is not based on evidence." "Dogmatic, absolutist belief is not subject to revision in scientific," he said. He said the creation theory comes only from a literal belief in the Book of Genesis in the Bible.

Idaho Legislature 1986. With an effort then to find scientific facts to support. He said that theory is based on "divine revelation," of a supernatural being creating man and the Earth, and it can't be supported on a scientific basis. "Science is one way to inventory our world; religion is another. Teach it as religion, but don't call it science," Dalton said. The vote was 10-8 in favor of sending the bill to the floor for a vote when it came to Chairman Rep. Ernest Hale, R-Burley. Hale could have killed the motion on a "yes" vote, but voted with the majority. Voting against sending the bill to the floor for a vote were all committee Democrats and Republicans: Robert Scates, Dorothy Reynolds, Cyril Burt and Elizabeth Allan. Brimhall testified repeatedly that it is not a religious issue. He said it is possible to teach creationism in the schools without making reference to God as the divine creator. That was disputed by committee members, who argued that there are literally hundreds of different versions of creationism supported by various ethnic groups, and it is only inviting trouble to seek a version that will satisfy all.

Kimberly recall election starts at noon

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

KIMBERLY — Polls will open at noon today in the Kimberly Community Center Building for a special election to recall Mayor Ron Jones. Residents of Kimberly will vote "yes" or "no" on the question of whether Jones be recalled. "City Clerk Edythe Widmer said Monday that total registration for the election is 776, or 191 new registrations since the city election of last November. The petitions, signed by two of the present City Council members, charge Jones with failure to cooperate with the other council members. "Jones agrees he hasn't 'cooperated'" and that he has no intention of cooperating with the councilmen, but he feels their actions are in the best interests of the city of Kimberly. The recall move grew out of a community controversy over investigations of the Kimberly Police Department. An initial investigation was requested by the mayor and made by the Idaho Attorney General's Office. Another was requested by the Kimberly City Council, and made by the Twin Falls Police Department after council members were told of an alleged conspiracy against Police Chief James Campbell. "A vote of at least 329 to recall the mayor is necessary to remove him from office, and the amount of votes for recall must also represent at least a simple majority. Jones was elected with 324 votes and has 2 years remaining on his term. If the recall election fails, Jones said, he will call a special meeting of the City Council within a day or two to make his 1986 appointments. These were postponed by the council during the recall January meeting because Jones was hospitalized. Appointments include council assignments and department heads—Jones has said he would not reappoint the police chief and would change the police commissioner assignment on the council. He said he would assign the present police commissioner, Sterling Croston, to severals and name newly elected Councilman Tom Lewis as police commissioner.

State of the Union address ready to go

By MICHAEL PUTZEL
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Reagan prepared Monday to give a State of the Union address seeking to overhaul welfare, protect people against catastrophic health costs and improve the international monetary system. The major radio and television government plan to carry the half-hour speech live Tuesday night beginning at 6 p.m. MST. The address was delayed a week because of the explosion of the shuttle Challenger. In the speech, described by aides as an effort to "redefine the role of government" for the rest of the century, Reagan is expected to call for year-long studies leading to formal proposals to revise federal programs for the needy and initiate policies to deal with currency fluctuations and the costs of catastrophic illness. Two officials who agreed to discuss the administration plans said the treasury would be modeled after the Treasury Department's analysis of the income tax system, which Reagan called for in his 1984 State of the Union address and which led to his proposal to overhaul the tax system. These White House officials, speaking on condition they not be identified, said Reagan's fifth report to Congress on the state of the nation would emphasize his concern for the American family. Rather than calling for national spending cuts, resulting from the Gramm-Rudman budget-balancing law, the sources said, Reagan will explain the necessary budget cuts in terms of public versus private priorities. They said he would contend it is a choice between the federal budget and the family budget and that he would prefer people be permitted to make their own decisions about how much they spend on housing, education and other items rather than letting the government make such decisions through spending on federal programs.

U.S. keeps silent on spy swap report

By LAWRENCE KNUTSON
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The Reagan administration steadfastly refused to confirm or deny on Monday reports of an imminent East-West prisoner swap including Soviet... dissident Anatoly Sheharansky. "I have no comment on that at all," said Secretary of State George H. Shultz. At the White House, presidential spokesman Larry Speakes said, "We will have no comment period, top to bottom, no comment." "Although he refused to discuss the purported exchange, Shultz did seek to underscore the importance the United States attaches to such cases. Sheharansky has been imprisoned on spy charges in his homeland since 1978. "There is no subject that we have worked harder on, or that I think makes more difference to people in the West... than the release of dissidents in the Soviet Union..." Shultz said. The secretary of state said this includes "more emigration for those who wish to emigrate, more respect for people expressing their religious beliefs inside the Soviet Union." "These are things of tremendous importance to us all, and if the Soviet Union decides to move forward in some of those areas, I'm sure it will be a positive development," Shultz told ABC News. But Shultz twice refused to make any comment on the accuracy of reports that Soviet Jew-fish assistant Sheharansky soon will be permitted to leave the Soviet Union. "A Western government source in Bonn, West Germany said, nonetheless, that an exchange is in the works."

Pair receive artificial hearts
TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — A 40-year-old factory worker dying of a viral infection became the second woman to receive an artificial heart Monday, hours after a Jarvik-7 was implanted to keep a man in Pennsylvania alive until a human donor is found.
 The doctor who received a Jarvik-70 heart, a miniature version of the Jarvik-7, to keep her alive until a human heart is available, said Dellina Bergan, an administrative assistant at University Medical Center. Mrs. Chayrez was reported in critical but stable condition after the operation led by Dr. Jack G. Copeland.
 In Pittsburgh, a 39-year-old man who received a Jarvik-7 artificial heart in a five-hour operation that ended early Monday, opened his eyes in the morning and responded to verbal commands, said Tom Chakurda, spokesman at Presbyterian-University Hospital. The man's identity was withheld at the request of his family.

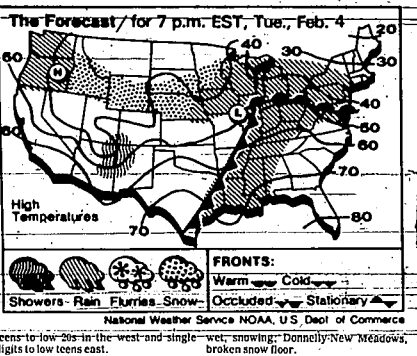

Quake hits Guatemala, Mexico
GUATEMALA CITY (AP) — A strong earthquake shook Guatemala on Monday, causing minor damage to more than 40 houses in two villages, and damaging adobe homes along the border in Mexico, authorities said.
 The National Seismographic Institute said the epicenter of the 9:13 a.m. quake, which measured 5.7 on the Richter scale, was in the province of San Marcos about 118 miles from Guatemala City near the Mexican border.
 San Marcos governor Cesar Humberto Menaldo told The Associated Press by telephone that most of the damage had been reported in the village of Tuaca. Some homes in Sibral also sustained damage.
 The quake also was felt in the Mexican border town of Papachula, and damaged some poorly built adobe homes on the Yucatan Peninsula.

Heavy tremor strikes off Japan
TOKYO (AP) — A major undersea earthquake with a preliminary reading of 7.1 on the Richter scale occurred near the small Japanese island of Chichijima Tuesday morning, the Central Meteorological Agency said.
 Officials said there were no immediate reports of injuries or damage from the quake, which was strong enough to cause widespread, heavy damage.
 The quake struck near the Pacific island, 612 miles southeast of Tokyo, at 5:48 a.m. (1:48 p.m. MST) and was focused 335 miles under the seabed, the agency said.
 In Chiba, 2.1 miles east of Tokyo, the quake registered 2.0 on the Japanese scale of seven, and measured 1.0 in Tokyo.

Arias wins Costa Rica election
SAN JOSE, Costa Rica (AP) — Attorney Oscar Arias won the presidential election convincingly over five opponents and now faces the problem of meeting his pledge to keep Costa Rica out of the wars that beset Central America.
 Many observers had predicted a close contest in Sunday's election, but official results announced Monday showed Arias, 45, a pro-American moderate, with more than half the votes cast and a wide lead over his nearest competitor, Rafael A. Calderon Jr. More than 1.1 million Costa Ricans cast ballots.

Reagan may visit Bali on trip
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan may visit the Indonesian island of Bali during his journey to the Tokyo economic summit this spring, State Department officials said Monday.
 Reagan's nominee as the new ambassador to Indonesia, outgoing Assistant Secretary of State Paul D. Wolfowitz, said at a Senate hearing on his confirmation he hopes Reagan will be able to visit Indonesia on his way to Tokyo for the summit of industrialized countries in early May.

 energies to finding out how it happened and how it can be prevented from happening again.
 "It's time now to assemble a group of distinguished Americans to take a hard look at the accident, to make a calm and deliberate assessment of the facts and ways to avert a repetition," the president said.
 Rogers, now a prominent Washington lawyer, was secretary of state from 1969 until 1973 in the Nixon administration and also served as attorney general earlier.
 Armstrong currently is president of a firm specializing in computer technology for aviation, was commander of the Apollo 11, the first manned lunar landing mission.
 Reagan said the crew of the Challenger knew the dangers they faced but chose to go forward.
 "The presidential spokesman said the investigation will give the American people the opportunity to know that an outside group of experts, distinguished Americans who have no axe to grind either way, have come in to review the findings of NASA and to request additional data and report to him (Reagan)."
 "Speaks emphasized, 'This commission is the only agency that is charged with the investigation of the Challenger accident.'
 Acting NASA administrator William Graham, who was present for the White House announcement, said he did not view the appointment of an independent agency as a sign from Reagan of a decrease in support for the space program or NASA.
 "Quite the contrary, in fact," he said.
 Asked if some members of the proposed NASA board were included in the presidential panel, Speaks said, "The recommendations of the NASA were a large part accepted by the president and you see some of their names here."

Symms holds lead in quest for funds

BOISE (AP) — Republican Steve Symms so far has raised about $800,000 more than Democrat John Evans in the battle for the U.S. Senate.
 In a campaign finance report received at the secretary of state's office here on Monday, Symms reported raising $1.2 million in 1985 for his campaign this year to retain the Senate seat he won from Democrat Frank Church in 1980.
 Evans, in his 10th year as Idaho governor, reported raising $443,273 in 1985, with cash on hand of $269,017 to the $365,318 balance reported by Symms.
 Symms reported 8,261 contributions, averaging $165, and said Idahoans made 4,130 contributions averaging $74.
 The Symms report listed 474 political action and party contributions, representing 40 percent of the total, and averaging about $1,100 per contribution.
 Evans' report showed about 3,000 individual contributions, including 2,167 from party members.
 Other reports also were filed with the secretary of state's office on Monday.
 Republican George Hansen, the seven-term congressman from Idaho's 2nd Congressional District who lost a 170-vote re-election to Democrat Richard Stallone in the 1984 election, reported little progress in retiring more than $100,000 in campaign debts.
 Hansen, facing a federal prison term after convictions on charges of violating federal personal disclosure requirements, reported only a $100 payment on debts of $113,003 from the 1984 campaign.
 Hansen owes Harris Publishing Co., Idaho Falls, $58,858; Century Air Center $15,000 and $13,558 to his own Tee-Pee Advertising Co., Pocatello. Hansen also listed a $7,200 debt to the Idaho Republican Party.
 Dan Adamson, Jerome, one of five Republicans in the race, reported little in the way of contributions or spending, but listed a $40,500 personal loan to his campaign committee.
 Rep. Larry Carr, R-Idaho, who is expected to formally announce for his fourth term, listed 1985 contributions of $84,221, spending of $60,760 and a balance including carryover funds of $30,857.

 first full formal meeting to study film and data that could tell whether a mysterious spurt of fire from the shuttle triggered the destruction of the shuttle and its crew.
 "Ships and planes have been combing a wide area of the Atlantic Ocean east and north of Cape Canaveral since the shuttle explosion rained fiery debris into the water. The Coast Guard reported that 11 tons of charred, floating wreckage had been recovered, but only eight on the plane on Sunday. Shuttle and its cargo of two satellites weighed 123 tons.
 "The search focused between 20 and 40 miles off Daytona Beach, 75 miles to the north, where NASA believes the cabin might have sunk. Simpson said the object found farthest away was a 3/2-foot diameter gold cylinder 48 miles southeast of Charleston, S.C.
 MOUNTAIN VIEW, Calif. (AP) — The Pioneer space probe came nearer to Halley's comet Monday than any spacecraft before, scanning the comet with an ultraviolet device from about 21 million miles away, NASA officials said.
 Pioneer was taking pictures "16 to 20 hours a day to give a timed history of the comet at closest approach to the sun," said Peter Walker of NASA's Ames Research Center. "They'll be able to see changes from hour to hour."
 The probe, over 72 hours, is to take 20,000 pictures of the comet's 20-million-mile-long tail, National Aeronautics and Space Administration officials said.

Congress hints budget stalemate near

WASHINGTON (AP) — House and Senate leaders said Monday a budget stalemate may be inevitable unless President Reagan signals a willingness to compromise on spending plan he'll send to the Capitol this week.

"If they're (the White House) just going to send it out, they may find the House and Senate sitting it out, too," Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan., told reporters.

Dole said "everybody may go on strike" if Reagan continues to shy away from congressional calls for bipartisan budget talks.

Meanwhile, House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., D-Mass., said Democrats and Republicans alike think tax increases will be necessary to meet the deficit target Congress set for itself in a new law aimed at forcing a balanced budget by 1991.

"Nevertheless," O'Neill said, "political facts of life dictate that such an initiative 'must emanate from the White House.'"

"There are many of them who think I'm being too political about it," O'Neill said. But he said that the president continues to threaten to veto any tax increases, and "certainly I have got the message."

Reagan and White House officials have insisted that the austere targets in the new Gramm-Rudman budget-balancing law can be met. This, they say, can be done with a combination of further federal spending cuts, elimination of some government programs and increased revenues from the sale of some government assets and imposition of user fees for some government services.

At the same time, the president has said he wants to continue the nation's military buildup.

Administration officials have said that all of these elements will be in the budget for the fiscal year starting Oct. 1, which Reagan submits to Congress Wednesday. But that package will not contain proposals for increased taxes, which Reagan steadfastly has resisted.

In Congress, though, legislators say the cuts that the president is advocating are too deep and that tax increases also should be part of the mixture.

Carriers to return to Libyan waters

WASHINGTON (AP) — The two U.S. aircraft carriers that conducted flight operations off the Libyan coast last month will return to the area next week, but no decision has been made on whether they will enter the disputed Gulf of Sidra, administration sources said Monday.

The carriers, Coral Sea and Saratoga, are now making port calls in Italy at Trieste and Naples, respectively, the sources said. These port calls will be completed by the end of this week, however, and they will then be directed southward back into the central Mediterranean.

House approves broadcast ad ban, smokeless tobacco warning labels

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House, faced with mounting evidence that youngsters are turning to snuff and chewing tobacco as alternatives to cigarettes, voted Monday to require health warning labels on smokeless tobacco and to ban their broadcast advertising.

The bill, approved on a voice vote, would require one of three rotating warning labels to be added to tins and pouches. "This product may cause oral cancer," the product may cause gum disease and tooth loss or "This product is not a safe alternative to cigarettes."

Arrows and circles would draw attention to the warning labels. And television and radio advertising, which now often feature professional athletes touting the products, would be banned.

The passage of this bill will allow us all to go home... and say that we've made a major step toward protecting the health of young people throughout our country," said Rep. Mike Synar, D-Okla., a sponsor of the bill.

Rep. Henry Waxman, D-Calif., chairman of the House Energy and Commerce health subcommittee, said he hoped the labels would persuade teen-agers not to take up "this filthy habit." He called snuff and chewing tobacco a "very, very dangerous product."

The bill was supported, reluctantly, by most of the tobacco industry as the most palatable alternative to a myriad of state labeling requirements.

Rep. Thomas Bliley, R-Va., a tobacco industry supporter, who blocked consideration of the bill last year, told the House on Monday he would not attempt to delay the bill although he still opposed it.

What is going on in the various state legislatures regarding smokeless tobacco is an abomination," Bliley said. "The chaotic situation with 50 different state labeling requirements (would be) far more injurious to commerce than a federal law."

Illinois congressman still in coma

WASHINGTON (AP) — An Illinois congressman has been in a coma since last week as a result of complications arising after he underwent one of medicine's newest experimental forms of cancer treatment. It was announced Monday.

Medical authorities said it could not be predicted whether the lawmaker, Republican John Groberg of St. Charles, would recover. But on Monday, the National Cancer Institute announced that six additional medical centers will begin testing a promising new cancer treatment that turns ordinary white blood cells into roving cancer killers in the body.

"The chances for recovery are not known at this time," said Dr. Steven A. Rosenberg of the National Cancer Institute, who has supervised Groberg's treatment.

The congressman's office said his campaign organization intends to carry on Groberg's reelection efforts for now in the hope that he will recover.

"John's a fighter; he's always been a fighter," said Steve Trossman, Groberg's press secretary.

Rosenberg, who issued a written statement on the congressman's illness, said the 60-year-old Groberg remains in critical condition at the National Institutes of Health in suburban Bethesda, Md., and is breathing with the aid of a respirator.

Rosenberg, a member of the medical team that treated President Reagan last year for colon cancer, said an artery in the congressman's left arm became infected last month after his last round of cancer treatment at NIH. Doctors had been using the artery to inject combinations of white-blood cells from Groberg's body and a protein known as interleukin-2.

Solarz seeks to cut off aid to Philippines

WASHINGTON (AP) — A reelection victory by Philippine President Ferdinand E. Marcos should cause the United States to cut off all further economic aid until Marcos and his wife Imelda "repatriate" $50 million in U.S. assets, a congressional critic of Marcos said Monday.

Rep. Stephen J. Solarz, D-N.Y., also said that whether Marcos wins or is defeated by his opponent, Corason Aquino, any further U.S. assistance to the Philippines should be "made contingent on fundamental economic reforms, including an end to money capitalism and government-led capital flight."

Solarz contended that an investigation by his Foreign Affairs subcommittee on Asian and Pacific Affairs has produced "compelling evidence" that Marcos and his wife have secret real estate investments in Manhattan and New York State worth at least $50 million.

Earlier Monday, Secretary of State George Shultz said he saw "positive" developments in the Philippines that give hope for fair elections there.

"It's a great mistake to be writing the election off in advance," Shultz said in an interview on ABC-TV's "Good Morning America."

P&Z should deny landscaping change

The Twin Falls Planning and Zoning Commission tonight will be asked to soften requirements for landscaping around the Magic Valley Mall, now under construction on the city's north side.

Price Development says some tenants are concerned that the trees and shrubbery planned to mitigate the visual impact of the large mall would obscure the view of their stores.

We can understand that concern, but we do not support the request. The location of the mall on the south edge of the Snake River Canyon rim is already controversial. A group was formed, belatedly, to stop the mall in part because of its visual impact.

We believe that everything possible should be done by the mall's developers and tenants to establish themselves as good neighbors. Proposing to set aside or weaken requirements that would make the development more esthetically acceptable is hardly a step in that direction. The P&Z Commission should deny the request.

Turn down 'Creation' bill

The Idaho House this week will turn its attention to the first of the Far Right's proposals for regulating what we believe are private matters: our religious beliefs.

This first debate is over the Creation and how it should be taught in public schools. A "creation science" bill is now scheduled for a House vote.

We think it should be defeated.

There is no way, in our view, that the state can dictate the content of a discussion on evolution without getting into religious views.

This proposal is unconstitutional and a violation of our rights as citizens to have a public education system which is free of the promotion of religion.

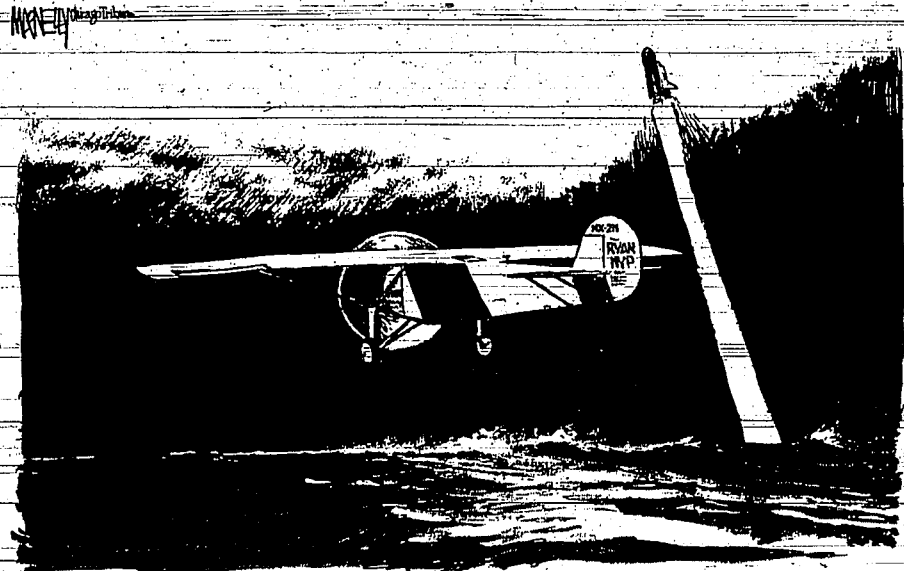

The bill's sponsor, Rep. Preston Brimhall, of Idaho Falls, in effect admits that is the bill's intent. He acknowledges that the bill's language is identical to a Louisiana law which has already been struck down by the courts. Nonetheless, he thinks Idaho should go on record to support this.

Nonsense. What is at stake here is the foisting of a particular religious view — a fundamentalist, Biblical one — on the rest of us by people who want this as the official state religion in America.

The state should stay out of the religion business.

This proposal would be bad public policy and should be defeated.

PATHFINDERS

Legislative haste, secrecy cure nothing

The public interest is not served when budget laws are made in the dark.

A prime example was an important budget-cutting measure passed by the Idaho Legislature Thursday. As a result of the manner in which Republicans ratted Senate Bill 1308 through both houses, these cuts created a bigger problem than they were intended to solve.

I like to remodeling your front room with a Dog Cat. Unfortunately, Republicans would not sit still long enough to listen.

Senate Republicans, who drafted the bill cutting $7.6 million from the current budget, said it was a necessary step in beginning dealing with the state's $46 million revenue shortfall — the fifth shortfall in the past six years.

Few Democrats disagreed with the objective. They did take issue with the way it was accomplished.

Take, for example, the State Treasurer's office.

Cutting $20,000 from its general account fund will cost the state an estimated $1 million in interest income between now and the end of the fiscal year.

State Treasurer Marjorie Ruth Moon said she felt that it is accumulating funds she estimates will total $90,000 by the end of the year. She would, in effect, substitute that money for her general account money.

By cutting $20,000 directly from her general account budget, however, Moon will have to lay off a person from her small staff. That person has the job of finding the best investments, the highest interest rates, for state money.

Sen. John T. Peavey

That entails a lot of telephoning to banks each day. Now there won't be someone there to shop and compare rates. The office will have to accept lower interest rates because the staff won't have time to look for better offers on a daily basis.

The Tax Commission is another example where cuts in haste will cost the state a great deal more than is saved. And if saving is the object, that doesn't make much sense.

Tax Commission Chairman Larry Looney estimated costs made this year, if carried forward into the next fiscal year, could cost the state up to $7 million by the end of 1987.

That's $591,000 saved, $7 million lost. That sounds like mismanagement to me.

Losses would occur because vacant auditor positions couldn't be filled, staff reductions would have to be made, travel expenses would have to be cut (curtailing auditors' activity in the field, where they locate monies owed to the state) and the remaining staff's hours would have to be cut.

There are numerous other examples of ways cuts could have been made in a less injurious, more prudent manner — in the Department of Health and Welfare; the Military Department and others.

In this time of fiscal austerity, good stewardship of public monies means getting as much from each dollar as possible. And the course taken by this bill does not do that.

Provisions of Senate Bill 1308 were hammered out, apparently, in closed Republican caucus meetings. No state department heads — those charged with carrying out these cuts and managing despite them — were asked in to testify about how they would be affected and the best way to accomplish the cuts.

The process circumvented the normal, established path for dealing with budget matters, namely taking them before the Joint Finance Appropriations Committee.

Essentially, the Senate majority intended from the start to rush the bill through their chamber, springing it on the Democratic minority only minutes before the start of a session where a final vote would be sought.

We Democrats balked at voting on a matter of this importance without adequate time to study the cuts. We believed it was unnecessary and ill advised to act without first gathering information on how cuts would affect the public.

Republicans postponed the vote until early the next morning, allowing us to hold a hastily called hearing on the budget cuts that afternoon.

Had they cared to listen, our Republican colleagues would have learned the ramifications of their bill were far more severe than they appeared on the surface.

During the debate on the bill, Democrats urged the majority to hold off for a day — even an hour — while some of the legislation's problems were corrected. That suggestion was voted down on a party-line.

In the end, this was not just a petty political squabble over procedure; however, it's an example of how waste and secrecy solved nothing and created more problems we will have to deal with in the future.

It's unfair to a public, which expects the government to run in an efficient and businesslike manner.

Sen. John T. Peavey, D-Carey, is minority caucus chairman in the Idaho Senate.

Letters/ Readers write on a state lottery, teen suicide, House Speaker Stivers

Lottery should be on ballot

Anyone who holds a position in government office, and is governed by their own religious beliefs, and tries to implant their beliefs onto others, should step down from their position because this affects their better judgment for the good of the people.

Also, it would show some sort of discrimination.

Religion belongs in church and in homes, not in public office. Their own personal beliefs are one thing, but the position of office then becomes another matter. The concern of office should be for the good of all people, all who voted, and for the state he works for.

I, along with others, question the methods of our governor, John Evans, along with those in the Legislature, the so-called lawmakers. If it is high time that people who are sick of all this should take notice and cast their votes for the ones who will in turn work for the good of the people and for their needs, and that their desires should be put in motion. Let us then analyze the needs of the people for a change, and not the lawmakers who would rather see their own thing, and disregard the wants of the people.

We are taught in schools and in books that this is the people's government; they are paying for it. It is the government's right and duty to ultimately decide how much government they actually want, and who in turn should give back to the people their needs. The ones we have in office now rather put heavy burdens upon us by raising taxes, either by state tax or property tax. This they say will help the deficit.

They want all of us to carry the burden as in the past because they can't see the handwriting on the wall; so plain, so simple. Our lawmakers in Boise have the eyes but they see not, or rather they don't want to see, they have ears to hear the wants of the people, but they hear not, rather, refuse to hear. They are upset that people from Idaho are going to Nevada, Oregon and Washington to buy lottery tickets putting money into other states. Poor fools these mortals be.

If we had the lottery, we don't need the machines like Nevada, but the tickets like the other states this alone would help out our state, our schools, police, firemen and other needs of the state. The poor excuse the governor and others gave was about people on welfare. They would rather hide behind this than to let the lottery be in this state.

It is possible that this could, and would prove them wrong and hurt their ego? Get off the kicks about welfare. Mr. Evans, they are still going out to buy tickets in hopes to win to get off welfare?

The people should have this on ballot.

A constant in life can help

I seriously doubt in all of the years that are past if there has ever been a suicide attempt by a young person who was owner of a good pony or horse. This important relationship instantly removes the boy or girl from the classification of "young people who do not have much to look forward to," as described by Jane Robison in her report on "Attempted Suicide by Teens as Published Sunday in The Times-News. Her editor refers to young people of the Jerome community and follows just nine months after a similar report by Annette Cary pertaining to our Twin Falls students.

Personal experience causes me to firmly believe in the relationship of the right pony or horse matched with the right boy or girl can be the richest and most therapeutic of all relationships. Instant and dramatic changes can be observed in the life of even a troubled child if that child can announce to the world, "I have a pony of my very own."

A firm and conditional requirement for ownership is that the child must not neglect the morning and evening chores of feeding, watering, grooming and exercising the animal. However, in almost every instance, it is not appropriate to speak of this work as "chores" because the chief delight and excitement for the child is that of spending time with a beautiful and magnificent animal. The feeling of being important and needed is unavoidable when the young person has sole responsibility for the care of his or her horse.

This charming relation can be and often is the only one which remains constant and untroubled for the teenager. During these formative years, bringing rapid physical and emotional changes, the young person will become estranged from parents, friends, teachers and even from self. But the horse, remains approachable and can be talked to for hours and hours. No questions are asked and no judgments are made by the animal companion. Countless hours of leisure time can enjoyably be invested which otherwise would have been endured in boredom and possibly in trouble. Riding Club or 4-H activities can complement the values of horse ownership by the individual and provide friends with similar interests. Loving and expert training is offered by concerned adults and social life has been known to bring such a story-book ending as the same boy or girl loving the same horse and each other.

Stays cost taxpayers more

I see in Saturday's Times-News that Thomas Creech got another stay of execution. This stay of execution ought to be ready for the Guinness Book of Records.

The state is hollering about being broke. Yet they won't fix their laws for such murderers like Creech. It costs us taxpayers more every time they have a stay of execution.

Why do we need policemen, lawyers and judges they just let the criminal go free? The early Americans' laws took care of such people as Creech better than the modern laws do. I don't know why these modern lawyers don't turn them all loose. It would save the state a lot of money.

Back to the 'good old '30s

Now that the legislature is settling into its annual routine, it is time to give credit to a man who, more than any other, shapes the pattern of how things get done.

We owe a astounding round of applause to House Speaker Tom Stivers for his handling of the mavericks in Boise. It is through his efforts that much of what Idaho is has come about.

Where else but in Idaho can a semi-retiree pay such low taxes and hire competent workers at the minimum wage, or even for less if you look around.

Particularly applaud the way the Speaker has reorganized the House Education Committee. It looks as if we will finally have Creation Science included in our school curriculum.

This could result in a great financial saving of all these geology, paleontology, and biology teachers and get back to the basics as taught by the great Creationist thinkers such as Thomas Aquinas. The author of the Summa Theologica, that great text that helped Pope Urban VIII reach the conclusion that Galileo should get down on his knees and recent that he ever said the Sun was the center of the Solar System, but the Universe itself.

It was the work of such great thinkers and scientists that proved invaluable to Bishop James Ussher, who, relying upon the great mass of scientific data at his disposal, finally calculated that the Earth was created in the year 4004 B.C. at exactly 9 a.m. To those who mentioned such things as fossils, the good Bishop dismissed such things as the work of a satanic spirit who wished to confuse simple mortals.

Now, having saved us the salaries of a bunch of scientific nincompoops, I further apply the speaker for his saving the salaries of our public school teachers. Who really cares if many of our bright young teachers leave Idaho for neighboring states for a measly six or eight thousand dollars a year more salary? We can get along quite well with the speaker for his saving the common sense can teach. If you doubt it, just go down to your local school and take over a class for a couple of days.

Nothing to it! And to think that some of those teachers who do remain in the state have the nerve to expect to be paid as much as carpenters and plumbers. Why, carpenters build houses and plumbers fix toilets. Either of these things is worth more than the mind of a child.

I'm for you Mr. Speaker. Keep up the good work and we'll soon be back to those good old days of the 1930's. Weren't they just great!

Chairman of the Chaband, Forrey, Stivers Booster Club of Corral, Idaho.

No business — a big laugh

Just finished reading the article in today's paper, Saturday, Feb. 1, that stated no city council meeting Monday evening because of lack of business to discuss.

This is the first time I have heard this excuse in many years. I have lived here. Nice way to start out the new year with a new council — did someone have something more important, maybe a real estate meeting, a golf game?

No business, that's a big laugh, with as many problems as our city has, roads, streets, buildings etc. I can't quite see this. Can you? Yours for our regular meetings, business or no business.

Attorney says Cutler 'manipulated' by FBI

BOISE (AP) — The defense attorney in the murder-for-hire trial of former Ryan-Nations security chief Elton "Bud" Cutler said jurors Monday that the federal government had totally manipulated Cutler and even provided the money used to complete the deal with an undercover FBI agent.

"The FBI gave him a hit man and the money to do it and handled him like a puppy," David Nevin said in his opening statement before U.S. District Judge Harold Ryan.

But prosecutor Ron Howen countered that Thomas Martinez, 29, of Philadelphia, was only one of four people Cutler wanted killed. He said he was part of the United States by the violent white supremacist group called The Order.

Cutler, 59, was on trial on a count indictment for retaliating and tampering with a witness using an FBI undercover agent to kill a key witness in the Seattle trial of leaders of the Order.

Martinez was not killed and served as a witness in the FBI's investigation of the Order, whose leaders are scheduled to be sentenced in Seattle Thursday and Friday for racketeering convictions associated with a crime campaign that prosecutors said included armored-car robberies.

Shots close interstate

CALDWELL, AP — A Mustang man faced a felony charge Monday following his arrest in connection with a shooting incident late Sunday that temporarily shut down a stretch of Interstate 84 in southwestern Idaho.

Troy L. Wood, 35, was arrested at a highway off-ramp after motorists reported via citizen-band radios that he drove alongside a flatbed truck loaded with barrels of a petroleum product and fired rifle shots at the cargo, authorities said.

Wood was charged with drunken driving and felony malicious injury to property.

'Get on with it, Glenn asks living

By The Associated Press

As friends and families in New Hampshire, South Carolina and Ohio remembered the dead from the space shuttle on Monday, America's first man in orbit challenged the living to "fix it and get on with it."

Sen. John Glenn, D-Ohio, recalled the last words from shuttle commander Dick Scobee — "Roger, go at throttle up" — before the Challenger exploded last Tuesday.

"These are far more than just their courageous epithets," Glenn said at a memorial service at Firestone High School in Akron, Ohio, where Judith A. Resnik was a classmate in 1966.

"They are America's history and they will turn tragedy into triumph once again," said Glenn, who put the U.S. manned space program in orbit in his 28th year in 1962.

"They would be the very first person to say, 'Let's fix it and get on with it!'"

Monday's other tributes included a private Mass in Concord, N.H., for the family and friends of teacher-in-space Christa McAuliffe and a public memorial service in the tiny farm town of Lake City, S.C., for mission specialist Ronald McNair.

"There's nothing much I can say except thank you for your caring and sympathizing in our loss," Dr. Marvin Resnik told the crowd of students, astronauts, politicians and Akron residents.

Resnik read from a letter he received from his neighbors, who wrote, "As parents, there is a personal door to grief that no one else can enter."

However, the letter said, "The sheer numbers of people that mourn with you must be a great comfort to

Actress-author dies from stroke

ARCADIA, Calif. (AP) — Actress-author Margery Wilson, who played Brown Eyes in D.W. Griffith's 1916 classic film "Intolerance," died at Arcadia Convalescent Hospital of a stroke, a spokeswoman said Monday. She was 89.

Miss Wilson, who appeared in about 25 silent pictures with such stars as Douglas Fairbanks Sr. and William S. Hart, died Jan. 21 of cerebral thrombosis, or stroke, said a spokeswoman for Jack Baker, her physician.

The actress also wrote self-help books, including "The Woman You Want to Be," "Believe in Yourself," and "Double Your Energy and Live Without Fatigue," which was published in 1983.

you. There is a world that as been touched.

"Black balloons and black ribbons along McNair Boulevard — the main street for the 5,000 residents of Lake City — symbolized the community's grief for a native son.

The street had been named for McNair after his first shuttle flight in 1984 — a flight distinguished by his saxophone solo from orbit. On Sunday, a crowd of more than 1,000 overflowed the Wesley United Methodist Church for a religious memorial service.

Vance Brand, commander of McNair's shuttle flight two years ago, told 2,000 people gathered for Monday's observance that the crew loved McNair as a brother.

"Somewhere in heaven, Ron will be having new accomplishments and will want us to continue his journey toward the stars," Brand said.

Schools were closed in Lake City for the day and school district officials announced they would be closed every Feb. 3 in McNair's honor.

"He was a great man," said 8-year-old Skeke Allister, one of the Cub Scouts who led the audience in the Pledge of Allegiance.

The Rev. James Leary of St. Joseph's Church in Bristol, Conn., the priest who officiated at Christa McAuliffe's wedding in 1970, celebrated a private funeral Mass for her Monday.

Her husband, Steven McAuliffe and the couple's two children, Scott, 9, and Caroline, 6, attended, as did about 500 friends and relatives. Cardinal Bernard Law of Boston and Bishop Odore Gendron, leader of New Hampshire's Catholics, Barbara Morgan, the alternate teacher-in-space astronaut from McCall, Idaho, who trained with Christa, and Christa's parents, Ed and Grace Corrigan of Framingham, Mass., also attended.

Guard blocks road to Hormel plant, letting workers enter

AUSTIN, Minn. (AP) — National Guard troops blocked off a road leading to the Hormel plant Monday so workers could get past pickets as the company said it would meet the goal of hiring 750 people to replace striking meatpackers.

State Agriculture Department agents investigating sabotage to Hormel products found 29 punctured or ripped Hormel product containers in 10 stores in the Minneapolis area, a department official said.

Leaders of the 5½-month walkout, scheduled to appear in court today on contempt charges, denied responsibility for the tampering but said they would step up civil disobedience.

"We will go through with the court process. We'll pay our fines. We'll go to jail," said strike strategist Ray Rogers, local union President Jim Guyette, and members of the local's executive board face charges that they exceeded the numbers set, but we exceeded our goals. The plant is up and running. Hormel & Co.'s "flagship" plant is up and running.

A judge's order — The hearing had been set for Monday, but was delayed when Guyette failed to appear.

The National Guard returned to the plant Monday at the order of Gov. Rudy Perpich, and at least 200 riot-equipped Guardsmen stood shoulder-to-shoulder to keep roads open around the plant. A heavy stream of cars crossed picket lines, and those entering the plant included union members and newly hired replacement workers.

"We had people make the decision to come back to work," said plant Manager Deryl Arnold. "I don't have the numbers yet, but we exceeded our goals. The plant is up and running. Hormel & Co.'s "flagship" plant is up and running.

If hiring continues at the present pace, Arnold said, the company could reach its goal of 1,025 employees at the plant by the end of the week.

Chuck Nyberg, Hormel's senior vice president, said he hopes to meet with union officials again this week.

Deputy Agriculture Commissioner Ann Kanten said the investigators were sent out Friday following reports of tampering with Hormel products, and had visited 62 stores.

Local P-9 of the United Food and Commercial Workers union condemned the tampering, Rogers said.

Kissinger steps out

NEW YORK (AP) — Former Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger said Monday that he had decided not to challenge Mario Cuomo for governor of New York because he doesn't have enough time to raise funds and organize a campaign.

"I would immediately have to abandon all existing commitments to devote myself full-time to the substance, organization and financing of an effective gubernatorial race," Kissinger said in a statement. "Circumstances do not permit this on such short notice."

The decision leaves state Republicans scrambling to find a candidate.

FAA orders inspections of 747 frames

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Aviation Administration, concerned about possible severe cracks in the frame of older Boeing 747s, has ordered airlines to closely inspect the fuselage of up to 100 of the jumbo jets, officials said Monday.

Spokesmen for several of the major airlines, which have a large number of Boeing 747s, said inspections already were under way, and that the checks are not expected to disrupt normal air service.

The emergency FAA directive, which was sent during the weekend to all Boeing 747 operators, calls for Boeing jumbo jets with more than 14,000 landings to be inspected within 25 landings, and newer ones within 50 landings.

Planes with fewer than 10,000 landings or those that have had the fuselage frame inspected within the past two years are exempt from the directive, said FAA spokesman Stephen Hayes. He estimated that between 150 and 160 planes would have to be examined under the order.

The directive was issued after the FAA learned of four incidents in recent weeks in which routine overhaul examinations revealed cracks in the frame of the jumbo jet.

In one case, three adjacent frames were found "to be essentially severed," the FAA said.

Criminals could retain seats on board

By DEAN MILLER
Times-News writer

BOISE — Under Idaho law, a convicted child molester could serve as a school district trustee, and a jailed criminal would not be thrown off a school board until he broke attendance rules and missed four meetings in a row, says an official of the Idaho Department of Education.

Answering questions from Sen. Lynn Tomlinaga, R-Paul, in a Senate Education Committee hearing Monday morning, Deputy State Superintendent of Public Instruction August Hein said Idaho law does not provide for automatic dismissal of school trustees who are convicted of crimes, nor does it set out a method of recalling trustees—voters' feel aren't doing their jobs.

Hein was testifying in favor of Senate Bill 1307, which would establish rules for school trustee recall elections.

The committee voted to hold on to the bill for further discussion after members said they felt it set up too many barriers citizens would have to go through to unseat a trustee. Democrats and Republicans alike said they want a chance to make the bill simpler, so it will have a better chance to pass the House.

If the bill becomes law, a citizen will have to take a number of steps to start a recall election. A citizen would have to draft a complaint, muster enough names on a supporting petition, have the county prosecuting attorney condense it into a 200-word statement, submit the statement to a judge for review, and then submit the 200-word complaint to the voters on a ballot with the 200-word response of the board member up for recall.

"The (Idaho) Constitution called for every elected official to be subject to recall," said Hein. But Idaho law only set up recall election procedures for city, county, and state officials, while exempting school and other local district board members, he said.

A bill being proposed in the House requires only a petition bearing a certain number of names of citizens to start a recall election for school board members or the members of any other local board.

Hein said Senate Bill 1307, which was proposed by the Department of Education, would protect school board members from frivolous complaints, while still allowing citizens to recall elected officials.

"School boards go through a number of emotional issues; we felt we wouldn't likely to have trustees exposed to adverse publicity on one issue," said Hein. The bill would force citizens to find school board members guilty of neglecting their duties, breaking the law, or violating their oaths of office, Hein said.

Sen. Laura Noh, R-Kimberly, said he wants the committee to finish work on some bill before the end of the Legislature, but he wants a simpler bill.

Tomlinaga said the House of Representatives is likely to send a recall elections bill to the Senate soon and the committee should be sure to wait for it and see which one it prefers.

"It seems to me 1307 is just fraught with obstacles," said Sen. Gail Bray, D-Boise. Bray said that while she would support the bill on the floor of the Senate, she was "not enthusiastic" about the bill.

Prison finance bill held

BOISE (AP) — Despite continued federal scrutiny of the overcrowded Idaho correctional system, the House tax-writing committee has refused to order a floor vote on a financing scheme to build a new maximum-security facility.

The Revenue and Taxation Committee, by voice vote on Monday, held up the proposal amid controversy over planned legislative involvement in the project and attempts to expand the financing plan to cover other state construction needs.

The bill doubling the $10 "head tax" on the state income tax for the next five years was the target of questions over requirements that the site for the proposed prison be selected by a special legislative committee.

Senate Judiciary Committee Chairman Roger Fairchild, R-Fruitland, who put the tax plan forward with his House counterpart Larry Harris, R-Boise, argued that the bill was drafted to eliminate politics from site selection and construction.

Court upholds convictions

BOISE (AP) — The first-degree-murder conviction of a Marsing juvenile, who battle the court system for nearly three years to avoid being tried as an adult, has been upheld by the Idaho Court of Appeals.

The three-judge court was unanimous Monday in upholding the conviction of Landis Dillard, a Job Corps trainee who at 17 stabbed volunteer instructor Ruth Madsen, to death with a scissors in 1978 and then started a fire to cover up the killing.

In a second unanimous decision, the appeals court also upheld the two voluntary manslaughter convictions and 20-year prison term of Kelli Max Rosenkrantz, 33, who shotgunned his ex-girlfriend and a male companion to death in what was apparently a fit of drunken jealousy.

Labor's legal fees $66,000

BOISE (AP) — Organized labor in Idaho spent in excess of $66,000 in legal fees on the court battle it lost last week to stop enforcement of Idaho's controversial right-to-work law until this November's referendum vote.

The legal payments last year to the law firm of State Rep. Patricia McDermott, D-Pocatello, accounted for over half of the expenditures made by the state AFL-CIO's political action committee accounted for over half the money, the committee spent in 1985 in the initial skirmishes over the ban on compulsory union membership, according to the report filed Monday with the secretary of state.

By contrast, the Freedom to Work Committee, which has been pushing to make Idaho the nation's 21st right-to-work state and conducting an avid media and public appearance campaign on the issue, reported no political spending on right-to-work last year. Director Gary Glenn said only about $10,000 was spent by the committee on the issue and that was for "educational programs" on right-to-work, not as part of any campaign to win voter approval of the proposition at the polls this November.

The AFL-CIO's Idaho political action committee reported total expenditures last year of just over $127,000 and contributions of more than $191,000.

Theft plea gains probation

BOISE (AP) — A former Grangeville man has been placed on two-year probation and fined $1,000 for stealing from the U.S. Forest Service. Joseph McGrath, 72, pleaded guilty to five counts of theft in a plea-bargaining agreement that resulted in 16 other counts being dropped.

In addition to the two-year probation, imposed after a two-year prison term was suspended, U.S. District Judge Harold Ryan also ordered McGrath to pay up to $200 to the two men he had sold the stolen equipment to and cover some $250 dollars in court costs.

CSI per-student costs lead state for '84

By DEAN MILLER
Times-News writer

BOISE — Because classes are small and professors mostly teach and do research at the College of Southern Idaho, the cost per student in the academic program at CSI was the highest of all six Idaho colleges and universities in 1984, says a Board of Education analyst.

In the cost study by the Idaho Board of Education, the annual cost of instruction for first- and second-year academic students at CSI was $1,321, $159 more than the next most expensive school.

The lowest cost in the state was $812, at Boise State University.

The study, performed annually, was handed out at a Senate Education Committee hearing Monday.

Academic instruction costs included in the study were professors' salaries and benefits, clerical help for professors, office expenses, and supplies.

But, while the figures might suggest CSI isn't spending its money well, the Board of Education analyst who prepares the annual cost studies counts and charged to research accounts, Schmidt said.

CSI and BSU indicates the difference between the sizes and missions of the two schools.

Bigger schools with bigger classes spread their costs farther, and 4-year college professors do more than teach.

"Because the community colleges do instruction, not as many expenses go into research and other activities," said Steve Schmidt, a budget analyst for the Board of Education.

Still, the second most expensive school in the state was CSI's sister 2-year school, North Idaho College.

The next most costly academic program was the University of Idaho, at $1,152, followed by North Idaho College at $1,127, Lewis-Clark State College at $1,102, and Idaho State University at $956.

At the state's 4-year schools, part of a faculty member's salary is taken out of academic teaching accounts and charged to research accounts, Schmidt said.

In addition, classes tend to be larger at 4-year schools, so the dollar cost per student in academic programs is spread thinner, he said.

CSI professors teach 12 credit hours per week, as opposed to the 9 taught by 4-year school professors.

"I really, what you see is the different mission, not as many research expenses go into research and other activities," said Steve Schmidt, a budget analyst for the Board of Education.

Bateman begins bid for lieutenant governor

BOISE (AP) — Rep. Linden Bateman, a 10-session veteran of the Idaho Legislature, is giving up his seat to make a run for the Republican nomination for lieutenant governor.

Bateman, majority caucus leader in the House for the last four sessions, announced Monday he's getting into the race for the GOP nomination. Lt. Gov. David Leroy is giving up the position to make a run for governor this year.

Bateman said he supports Leroy and "I'm confident he will be elected."

"He said he and Leroy share a sense of history" and Idaho should learn from the past.

Bateman is a history teacher at Bonneville High School in Idaho Falls.

He was co-chairman of the Education Reform Committee, a panel which came up with recommendations to improve the quality of education in the state.

what was supposed to be the first phase of a two-step effort to boost teacher pay, and started a "career ladder" program.

Ore-Ida cuts 14 jobs from Burley plant

Nearly 100 salaried positions will face knife company-wide

By BOB FREUND
Times-News writer

BURLEY — A cutback in salaried workers by Ore-Ida Foods Inc. will affect 14 positions at the company's two frozen potato plants in Burley, manager De Nelson said Monday.

Ore-Ida Chief Executive Officer Paul Corddry has announced an economy move that will trim close to 10 percent of 990 salaried workers in the potato processors' plants and in subsidiary England Brothers Inc., a specialty meat processing company.

Foodways National Inc. of Boise, a subsidiary which manufactures Weight Watchers frozen food products, is not involved.

The company will reduce the salaried work force by 90 people during the next 15 months, mostly through attrition and a hiring freeze, Corddry said. He announced the move Friday in a meeting with company managers in Boise.

The cuts are being made because sales of Ore-Ida's frozen potato products and frozen steak items made by Gagliardi Brothers are not likely to grow as fast as in previous years, Corddry said.

"The reductions are part of a continuing, company-wide effort to be the low-cost operator in our industry, a position we need to reach and maintain in order to ensure continued health in the relatively non-inflationary and slow-growth economy that we envision will be in effect in the foreseeable future," he said in an announcement.

Nelson said the two Burley factories will lose 14 positions, four of which already are vacant. The plants employ 124 salaried workers out of a total labor force of 654.

The cuts will come from a number of areas. "We're just taking a look at the entire fixed-cost portion of our staff," Nelson said. "Production representatives, warehouse workers and administrators are among salaried staff. No immediate layoffs are planned," he said.

Plant managers have 30 days to devise a plan for implementing the cuts. Nelson said he expects to minimize the effects of the reductions by cross-training employees.

The economies will be made without affecting production or commodity arrangements, he said.

In statements to the press, Corddry also said the company is cutting costs by selling off an airplane and cancelling conferences.

Ore-Ida and its subsidiaries employ 4,300 workers. Ore-Ida operates potato plants at Burley, Ontario, Ore.; Plover, Wis.; and Greenville, Mich. Boise headquarters has about 500 employees.

Ore-Ida executives did not release the amount of savings anticipated from the program. Ore-Ida is a subsidiary of the H.D. Heinz Co.

January weather welcome change

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

KIMBERLY — The weather summary from the National Weather Service here for the first month of 1986 describes conditions as "delightful," compared to November and December of 1985.

William Galkin of the NWS office in Kimberly said the month averaged warmer-than-normal temperatures, with below-normal precipitation. In addition, Jan. 31, 1986 became the first day since Nov. 6, 1985 in which there was less than 1 inch of snow on the ground.

Galkin said there were no new temperature records set for January, with the warmest Twin Falls temperature being 51 degrees on Jan. 29 and the lowest 4 degrees on Jan. 4.

For Twin Falls, the average temperature in January was 28.2 degrees, or 3 of a degree above normal. Maximum daily temperatures averaged 36.2 degrees, while the minimum temperatures averaged 20.3 degrees.

The 1 inch of precipitation for the month is .02 of an inch below normal.

The major storm in a single day dropped .27 of an inch of moisture on Jan. 17.

For the water year that began in October, total precipitation stands at 4.63 inches, or .83 of an inch above normal.

Heating degrees based on a 65-degree base, dropped slightly. Total heating degrees for the month reached 1,134, or 16 degrees below normal. However, the total for the season of July 1 through Jan. 31 averaged 2,882 degrees, an increase of 1,064 degrees over normal for the period.

For February the NWS sees near-normal temperatures and precipitation. In Magic Valley this would mean high temperatures in the 30s to mid-40s, with lows in the low to mid-20s.

Precipitation would normally be .7 of an inch to 1.1 inches, or similar to January, when combined rain and snowfall totaled 1 inch of moisture.

To the north, Camas and Blaine counties should have temperatures in the mid-30s to low-40s and lows of 10 to 20 degrees. About 1/2 to 3/4 inches of precipitation can be expected there.

With most kids back in school, flu hits adults

By JANE ROBISON
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — An influenza outbreak that hit swept the Magic Valley for the last two weeks has tapered off somewhat this week, but health officials report sickness is still making the rounds.

"We're still seeing a mixture of a lot of things," said South Central District Health Department nurse Cheryl Becker Monday. "I think schools are back on their feet, but more adults are out now."

She said lab results from cultures have not shown influenza, but "sometimes it's very hard to pin down. You have to catch it in the first 48 hours, and that's not always easy to do."

Area schools are still reporting higher-than-normal absentee rates, but not at the 15 to 20 percent rates that closed many Magic Valley schools in January.

Businesses, however, have noticed an increase in employee absences.

The virus also hit hospitals, with both Magic Valley Regional Medical Center and the Twin Falls Clinic reporting many employees out sick. Neither had specific numbers.

"Last week was pretty bad, about 10 percent of our staff was gone," said Monty Jackman, administrator of the Twin Falls Clinic.

A spokeswoman at the Pediatrics Center in Twin Falls said the number of patients with the flu, or colds and strep throat, has "slowed way down" this week.

"We're still seeing quite a bit, about 5 to 10 patients a day," she said. "But we were working until 9 or 10 p.m. last week."

Companies such as Idaho Frozen Foods reported a sharp increase in the number of employee absences last week. But Larry Drexler, office manager with Job Service, said his company has not been called on for temporary replacements, "at least nothing out of the ordinary," he said.

Mall to attempt shading zone rule

By ANNETTE CARY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Officials of the new Magic Valley Mall will ask the Twin Falls Planning and Zoning Commission tonight to approve landscaping plans that do not meet city zoning code specifications.

Price Development is asking permission to plant fewer trees and shrubs and include evergreens that are not specified in the code, says Community Development Director LaMar Orton.

"A discussion of the request was planned to be held last week, but commission members were asked another week to consider the matter and make individual trips to see landscaping at other Price Malls.

The commission's decision, expected tonight, should be an important one because of the mall's location on Blue Lakes Boulevard near the canyon rim and the likelihood that it will set the tone for future developments, Orton says.

Dell Cook and Associates of Salt Lake City, landscape architect for the project, is trying to meet the general intent of the ordinance while satisfying major store owners and staying within Price's budget, Cook says.

Meeting city specifications that half of all trees be evergreens would obscure more of the view of the mall from Blue Lakes Boulevard and Pole Line Road than owners of the major stores would like, Cook says.

Planners are also having difficulty finding space for as many trees as the code specifies, he says.

The code does allow developers to submit alternate plans that do not meet specifications if it sets out, he says, "I applied the ordinance," he says. "The intent is very good. We're trying to reach the level of the intent of the ordinance."

Tom Mulkey, project director for Price, says the firm plans more landscaping in Twin Falls than at its other projects. It will be as nice as any development in town, he says.

Ex-officer's complaints to be filed by lawyer

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

KIMBERLY — A Blaine County attorney confirmed Monday that he is investigating a possible cause of action by a former Kimberly police officer against the cities of Kimberly and Twin Falls and several officials of both cities.

Keith Roark, who practices law in Halley, said he has been contacted by David Mason of Kimberly and has discussed with him several situations and possible causes for action involving the incidents.

Roark said that, depending on conclusions reached, there could be violations of federal laws and his client might go directly to federal court.

Mason said Sunday he planned to file tort claims against both cities and officials of both. Roark explained the tort claim is usually the first step, prior to going into court, and simply gives the city an opportunity to pay the claim and avoid court action.

Mason resigned last September from the Kimberly Police Department. He said then that he was resigning because of "constant harassment" by Kimberly Police Chief Jim Campbell and then-City Council president Ted Wasco, as well as Twin Falls Police Chief Tim Qualls.

But Roark said he did not now want to name the individuals who might be involved in any upcoming litigation.

Mason voluntarily took a lie detector test shortly before resigning and during investigation by the Twin Falls Police Department on reports of a conspiracy against Campbell. However, the test was not completed because of what was described as a sinus condition suffered by Mason.

Mason was questioned on two occasions by Twin Falls Police Commander Garry Corder in connection with the Twin Falls police investigation.

Fatal accident nets firm $900 fine

PAUL — The federal Occupational Safety and Health Administration fined Amalgamated Sugar Co. $900 Monday, following the death of employee Garfield Romans Jan. 10.

OSHHA classified the accident as serious, but not willful. The serious classification carries a maximum penalty of $1,000.

Romans entered a tunnel to inspect coal handling equipment Dec. 31 at the company's Paul plant and was overcome by fumes from a smoldering fire. He was found unconscious by foreman Galen Hess and taken to LDS Hospital in Salt Lake City where he died.

Amalgamated was asked to test air in the tunnel for sufficient oxygen before sending workers into confined spaces in the future, OSHA Area Director Ryan Kuchmichel said.

This is the second industrial accident at a Magic Valley plant in an Amalgamated Sugar plant in the last 6 months to result in a fine. In September Amalgamated was fined $420 for the unsafe conditions which led to the death Aug. 22 of employee Janet Jones. That accident was also classified as serious, but not willful. Jones was crushed and killed when a 300-pound piece of compacted sugar fell on her.

OSHHA inspectors have prepared a 3-page report on the industrial accident at the Paul plant, but that report was not available to The Times-News Monday.

Hazelton installs new city officials

By INAHADAM
Times-News correspondent

HAZELTON — City Clerk Joan Wolfe installed newly elected Mayor Toby Crumrine, Councilman Jeffrey Johnson and Councilman Larry Hamby at the January meeting of the Hazelton City Council.

When the new members were seated, Crumrine appointed the council members to oversee specific departments within city government. Johnson is responsible for equipment and maintenance, and Hamby will take on the domestic water and irrigation department. Councilman Alan White will manage the sewer and sanitation departments. Councilman Rod Rudolph will look after streets and parks.

"In other business," Wolfe said, the computer the council voted to purchase at the December meeting is installed and in operation. She said all city records have been transferred onto the computer.

With help from former Mayor Lonnie Bruke, Wolfe said the city was able to send out the January utility bills which had all been converted for computer processing.

Wolfe said general liability insurance for the city expired on Jan. 1.

Jim Miller, from McDonald Insurance, which carries insurance for city vehicles and equipment, gave the council a proposal from Hartford for their general liability.

"However, the council had no decision because they want to compare costs and coverages and investigate the insurance pool (the Idaho Association of Cities is attempting to form for other Idaho cities) which have lost their insurance."

Terry Stratton from the Buhl Cable TV Company told the council about plans to upgrade the cable TV service the company now provides to Hazelton.

Fair board members ex-chief

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls County Fair board member Don Kramer of Castleford was honored Monday for his years of service as board chairman.

Kramer was given a plaque and the thanks of other board members at the regular meeting for the 10,500-square-foot merchant building that collapsed in a wind storm Dec. 11 at the Fairgrounds.

In other business, the board discussed at length a replacement of the board Monday, said Stan Snow, the new chairman. Snow, who served as chairman from 1982 to 1985, Snow said he didn't run for re-election as chairman last month, saying he had served as the leader of the such as steel, wood or concrete, Snow said.

Lively will prepare a design of a replacement structure to present to the board. With the design and estimated costs in hand, the board will go from there, Snow added.

An auditor from the county's insurance company estimated the cost of replacing the old structure would be about $94,166, excluding the floor and including $10,000 for the electrical wiring of the company. The electrical wiring on the loss of the downed buildings.

TWIN FALLS — Two residents of Twin Falls reported their homes were burglarized during the weekend.

In both instances burglars gained entry by forcing open the doors to the residences, police reported.

Herbert Leroy Tyler, of 702 Third Ave. W., reported his apartment was broken into sometime Saturday. He said a sack containing $500 in cash was taken from the apartment, along with two guns.

Scott Andersen, of 559 Jefferson St., told police the front door of his home was broken open sometime between 10:30 p.m. Saturday and 12:10 a.m. Sunday. He reported $300 in cash was taken from the residence.

According to Twin Falls County Sheriff's report, 13-year-old Tender Reay of 1020 Steven Place in Burley was treated for minor injuries at Magic Valley Regional Medical Center and released. The accident occurred at about 10:15 a.m. on a hill west of the Mormon Camp.

Woman's crash injuries fatal

MURPHY — A young Twin Falls woman, fatally injured last week in a one-car rollover in Owyhee county near the Nevada state line, died of head and internal injuries, Owyhee County officers said Monday.

Lamar A. Presley, 19, of Twin Falls, a passenger in a car driven by Karen Sue Cooper, 21, of Buhl, died at the accident scene. The two, accompanied by another young woman, Seren Miller, 18, of Buhl, were traveling to Nevada, officers said. The car went off the right side of State Highway 51, just north of Riddle Twp. and Cooper apparently overcorrected. Both the driver and Presley were thrown out. Officers said the car rolled over Presley and she was pronounced dead at the scene.

Cooper was treated for head injuries in Owyhee County Hospital in Nevada and then transferred to St. Alphonsus in Boise. Officers said she was released two days later. Miller suffered only minor injuries.

Suspected burglar disarmed

TWIN FALLS — A Twin Falls man was charged Monday with burglary after he was disarmed by his alleged victim Sunday morning.

Donald Eric McEntarfer, 20, of 1312 Seventh Ave. E. was being held in Twin Falls County Jail in lieu of a $10,000 bond on a felony charge of first-degree burglary.

McEntarfer is accused of breaking into the 2196 Elizabeth Blvd. residence of Fred D. Broner at about 3:45 a.m.

The filing to an information filed with the criminal complaint in 5th District Magistrate Court, Broner contacted police to report someone broke into his house by smashing the glass in two doors. Broner encountered McEntarfer and knocked the gun out of his hand. The police apprehended the suspect in the kitchen of the residence, the report said.

A public defender was appointed Monday to represent McEntarfer.

Cogeneration rate lowered

BOISE — The Idaho Public Utilities Commission has temporarily lowered the rate Utah Power and Light Co. is required pay cogenerators and small power producers.

The PUC authorized the rate drop saying that the payment level authorized in 1979 "no longer rest upon a reasonable estimate of surplus and are no longer an accurate estimate of avoided costs."

In its decision, the commission lowered the cogeneration rate from 5.45 cents per kilowatt hour to 4.15 cents per kilowatt hour.

The filing to an information filed with the criminal complaint in 5th District Magistrate Court, Broner contacted police to report someone broke into his house by smashing the glass in two doors. Broner encountered McEntarfer and knocked the gun out of his hand. The police apprehended the suspect in the kitchen of the residence, the report said.

A public defender was appointed Monday to represent McEntarfer.

Tougher speed-limit patrols earn ISP renewal of funding

TWIN FALLS — The Task Force on Highway Safety showing a 61-percent increase in the number of speeding citations on Idaho highways over the past year, has also earned the Idaho State Police renewed federal funding.

The TF-55 program began in 1978 and has added two officers in the Magic Valley area, as well as Boise and Pocatello, and increased forces in the Idaho Falls District by one.

In addition to the increased patrol duty available, the seven officers work together periodically in an "emphasis patrol." This involves concentrating the group on a specific stretch of highway, with patrol cars in service at few-mile apart to remind speeding motorists that the speed limit is being enforced.

In the Twin Falls district, the two additional officers provided through the program have patrolled most of the highways and worked with the emphasis patrol on highways with unusually high speed-related accident records.

The highways worked in Magic Valley include U.S. 95, from Twin Falls to the Nevada state line, and some selected sections of Highway 16, the Gooding and Burley areas last February. On the July 4 weekend the concentration of officers moved into the Stanley area for 3 days. The group also worked Interstate 84, between Boise and Clark, in July and concentrated on I-84, from Burley to the Utah state line last October.

Area ISP officers said numerous citations were issued and in doing so, hopefully encouraged drivers to slow down, reducing accident statistics on those routes.

In the period from Oct. 1, 1984, to Sept. 31, 1985, there were 6,345 citations issued statewide by the TF-55 crew, an increase of 61 percent over the 3,894 issued the previous year.

The total ISP force during that period issued 57,796 speeding citations to motorists within the Gem state, also a 61-percent increase over the 35,011 citations during the fiscal year of 1984.

The effort placed Idaho as the No. 10 state in the nation for compliance with the 55-mile-per-hour speed limit and resulted in $205,000 in federal funds for the State Police force. In addition, continuing the program for the coming year, the funds will allow for the purchase of new radar equipment for each of the seven TF-55 program officers.

Job can add meaning or misery to life

By DON COLBURN
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — Working is "not merely a state of employment but a state of mind," writes psychiatrist Dr. Jay Rohrich in his book "Work and Love: The Crucial Balance."

"Nothing else which we associate ourselves can give us the sense of objective identity that work can," says Rohrich. "When we can say, 'I did it,' we are enjoying the ultimate in self-definition."

Work, he says, "organizes, routinizes and structures our lives. It allows for the appropriate outlet of competitive strivings. It keeps us sane."

But sometimes, too, it drives us crazy. The modern dilemma, as sociologist Max Weber once said, is "Do we work to live or live to work?"

"More than anything else," says Kevin Sweeney, chairman of the American Center for Quality of Work-Life, "people are looking for meaning in their life. And work being a large portion of their life, they're looking for meaning in their work. They're looking for something bigger than themselves."

"If they don't find that, they get very frustrated and burned out."

The importance of having an interesting job was ranked "high" or "very high" by 68 percent of Americans in a 1982 Gallup poll — far ahead of having many friends (54 percent); having a high income (37 percent) and having enough leisure time (36 percent).

"When someone asks you what you do," says David Oldfield, director of the Psychiatric Institute Foundation's Midway Center for Creative Imagination, "if you don't have something to say that sounds nice and worthy of admiration, it's embarrassing. It's those titles that mean so much to our self-esteem and our sense of who we are."

"A title, like clothes, may not make the man or woman," writes Sids Terkel in "Working," "but it helps in the world of peers — and certainly impresses strangers."

Monday through Friday, most Americans spend about half their waking hours in offices, factories, classrooms and stores — at a desk or on an assembly line, in a field or behind a wheel-in-short, at work. The average work week dropped from 69 hours in 1870 to 40 hours in 1940, but has stayed almost unchanged since.

"Going to work and being on the job really consumes most of people's time," says Norman Feingold, a Washington clinical psychologist specializing in career development. "It dips in and spills over to the rest of their lives. It determines where you live and who you marry and your lifestyle."

"In our society, your stature and recognition are determined by your work. When you drop out of the work force, you drop out of a great deal of the mainstream of America."

"We're hanging in to be a work-oriented society," says Oldfield. "The American Dream is about work, overcoming obstacles and revolutionizing the world through technology and industry."

The two most common complaints that psychologist Feingold hears from workers are: inability to get along with the boss, and a feeling of being trapped in an unsatisfying job.

For ambitious workers, restlessness and frustration with their current jobs are compounded by overtraining and all the talk about social mobility in the 1980s. They'd rather be in another job — or even another field — but they don't know how to get there. Switching careers in mid-life is easier said than done, Feingold warns.

"It may seem marvelous to be an artist in Albuquerque," he says, "but if it means your family's going to starve, you may think twice about it."

'Just Say No' groups forming across U.S.

DEAR ABBY: Last August you printed a letter from Angel Wilts describing the "Just Say No" clubs, made up of children 7-12 years old who use positive peer pressure to support each other in their commitment to lead drug-free lives.

As a result of Angel's letter in your column, 8,000 people wrote or phoned for information, and hundreds of clubs have formed in cities and towns across the country.

Oakland Parents in Action, sponsor of the "Just Say No" charter club, has published a book explaining the clubs and how to start one. The book includes suggestions for projects and activities, discusses fund raising and recruitment, and lists a number of resources for information about preventing drug abuse. "Just Say No: Stopping Drug Abuse Before It Starts" costs $3.50. Checks should be made out to OPF and orders under $10 must be prepaid. (Quantity discounts are available.)

"Just Say No" clubs are organizing an International Walk Against Drugs on May 22. Five million children and teen-agers are expected to take part. Information about the walks is contained in the book.

Oakland Parents in Action is compiling a national "Just Say No" directory, and is asking clubs around the country to contact us so that they may be included.

We now have a toll-free "Just Say No" information line — (800) 258-2766 which operates Monday through Friday from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Pacific time.

Abby, you have helped us so much already. Will you please help us again and put this in your column?

DEAR JOAN: I just said YES!

DEAR ABBY: My problem is that I am vastly smarter than virtually everyone I know — at least I think I am.

This troubles me, because shortly after I have begun a conversation with someone — anyone from my dentist to my wife — I begin to realize that they are intellectually inferior; any I regard what they say as only amusing if not utterly stupid. Yet, I don't want to become an isolated hermit, or associate exclusively with super-intellects. What should I do?

meet by where you perceive them to be intellectually. Why not relax your standards a bit, and try harder to find something worthwhile in what your wife has to say — and your dentist as well?

I think your chances for becoming a hermit are infinitely better than associating exclusively with the super-intellects, who may find you more confused than smart.

Young couple has twins, then triplets — within 10 months

CINCINNATI (AP) — A woman who gave birth to twins in March and triplets this week said Thursday that she can recall once being concerned that she and her husband would never have any children.

"We thought we wouldn't have any, and then, all of a sudden, two, then three," Susan Ebding said two days after giving birth to triplets. Her twin sons, Justin and Jeffrey, are 10 months old.

"I think it's neat. I'm excited about it," she said.

Her husband of nearly three years, Douglas, 29, a fast-food cook, has plans to try to expand his earning power.

"He's got to look for another job," said Mrs. Ebding. "It's going to have to do something. I'll be staying home a lot."

Originally, the couple just wanted two children, a boy and a girl, she said. The twins were born March 24, and the Ebdings learned a few months later that triplets were on the way.

"They told me when I was 6½ months pregnant. I almost passed out. My husband had to sit down," Mrs. Ebding said. "I was lucky I was lying down."

Mrs. Ebding, who hopes to return home from University of Cincinnati Hospital in five to seven days, said she did not take fertility drugs.

Her twins, who are being cared for by their father and other relatives, "miss their mommy," said Mrs. Ebding, who lives in nearby Covington, Ky.

Her triplets, all girls, were doing well, she said. They are being cared for in a hospital nursery that specializes in handling premature babies.

The new additions are Laura Lynn, born weighing 5 pounds, 1 ounce; Lisa Marie, 4 pounds, 3 ounces; and Leslie, 3 pounds, 15½ ounces.

Ebding, who was present for Tuesday's birth of his triplets, said, "It was neat."

Bulldog girls stun Filer

By SCOTT UDEHOPE
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Second-seeded Kimberly overcame the first-quarter blains to overwhelm top-seeded Filer 56-42 in the semifinals of the District 4 Class A-3 girls' basketball tournament Monday night.

The win assures the Bulldogs of a state berth for the fourth consecutive year, while Filer will have to do battle with Glenns Ferry, a 54-41 winner over Declo, for the second spot tonight. The loser-out finale will be played at 8:30 p.m. in the Wendell High gym.

The winner of tonight's game will meet Kimberly for the district championship Wednesday night.

Filer used its full-court press to force nine turnovers in the first period to plague its opponent. Up 11-5 at the quarter, the Wildcats went to baseline shooter Susan McCandless and outside threat Terri Standley for most of its output.

But Kimberly's Andrea Urle, assigned to take out Standley, matched up well with the Canyon Conference's leading scorer, helping her squad to a 21-8 turn-around in the second period.

"We just got out of our game plan in the first period," said winning coach Wes Remaley. "But defense won the game. I told them if they kept them down to 40, we'd win."

Kimberly's height made its presence known under the hoop. Cindy Holcomb, with 13 boards, and Patti Pettitcerc with 11 rebounds contributed to the Bulldogs' nearly 50 percent shooting in the first half.

Filer was 18-for-33, for 24 per cent.

But it was Urle, who put in 13 points in the second period alone, who sparked the Kimberly offense. She ended up with eight field goals, was 4-for-8 from the line, and together with Pettitcerc's 14 points, was the difference in the game.

"We took ourselves out of the ballgame," said Coach Wade Quensell of the Canyon Conference champion Wildcats. "Things were going all right for awhile, then it just fell apart."

Leading the Wildcats was Standley, with 19 points, including a 3-for-6 performance at the charity strip.

Glenns Ferry 54, Declo 41

The Pilots ripped Declo 23-4 in the first period to keep its state hopes alive with a 54-41 victory in a loser-out contest.

Ann Pember used her 6-foot-1 stature to her advantage by pumping in nine field goals and 20 points to lead Glenns Ferry. Junior forward Barb Johaneck contributed 15 points more, while Declo's DeAnne Kemp-ton led the Hornets with 12.

Johaneck led the attack in the first half with 13 points, but it took six Pilots to put points on the board in that ferocious first period. Both Pember and counterpart Lisa Hurst collected their third fouls, but neither left the game with a fifth.

Kimberly, Gooding boys face showdown tonight

By The Times-News

KIMBERLY — An influenza virus delayed it, but tonight's Canyon Conference boys' basketball showdown between third-ranked Gooding and fifth-ranked Kimberly holds more important than ever to the rest of the A-3 basketball season in the Magic Valley.

The Bulldogs and Senators will get together at 8 p.m. in the Kimberly High gym to make up a game originally scheduled for Jan. 18. Kimberly postponed it then because school was closed due to the flu.

In the interim, the two teams have consolidated the positions atop the Canyon Conference. The Bulldogs are 13-2, unbeaten in seven league contests and sporting a 10-game winning streak extending back to Dec. 20. Gooding is 12-3 and has won six of its seven Canyon Conference games, losing only to Declo on the road.

At stake tonight is not only the conference leadership, but also a leg up on the competition for the rest of the regular season, and heading into the District 4 tournament. Because Shoshone dropped out of the Canyon Conference this year, it's now a seven-team district A-3 tournament with the league champion getting a first-round bye.

The teams are similar in many ways — both have overpowering centers and strong forwards and both second-year coaches Lou Anderson of Gooding and Allen Kelsey of Kimberly emphasize defense.

Elders' residency bill passes Senate

By DEAN MILLER
Times-News writer

BOISE — The Senate Resources and Conservation Committee voted Monday to recommend passage of bills to offer another option to out-of-state bird hunters and to preserve restrictions on senior resident hunting licenses.

Senate Bill 1289 would offer a $45 two-day bird hunting license to non-residents that would allow them to take upland game birds, including turkeys, migratory game birds, and rabbits.

Hunters buying the two-day license could not hunt pheasants during the first 5 days of the pheasant season.

Out-of-state hunters could still buy longer licenses for birds and hunt pheasants on opening day.

Senate Bill 1311 amends the existing law governing senior resident licenses for hunters over 65 years old.

After a court decision ruled that the law requiring 10 years of residency of elder hunters seeking the resident elder license was discriminatory, the Idaho Department of Fish and Game came back with a two-year residency requirement.

Both bills are now headed for the floor of the Senate. If they pass, they will have to be approved by the House and Gov. John Evans before becoming law.

Ryan axes Gilman, signs up Scovill

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — New Philadelphia Eagles head coach Buddy Ryan named the first four members of his new staff Monday, choosing one holdover from last year's team and three men with connections to the Chicago Bears, including former San Diego State Coach Doug Scovill.

Scovill will coach quarterbacks, Ryan said.

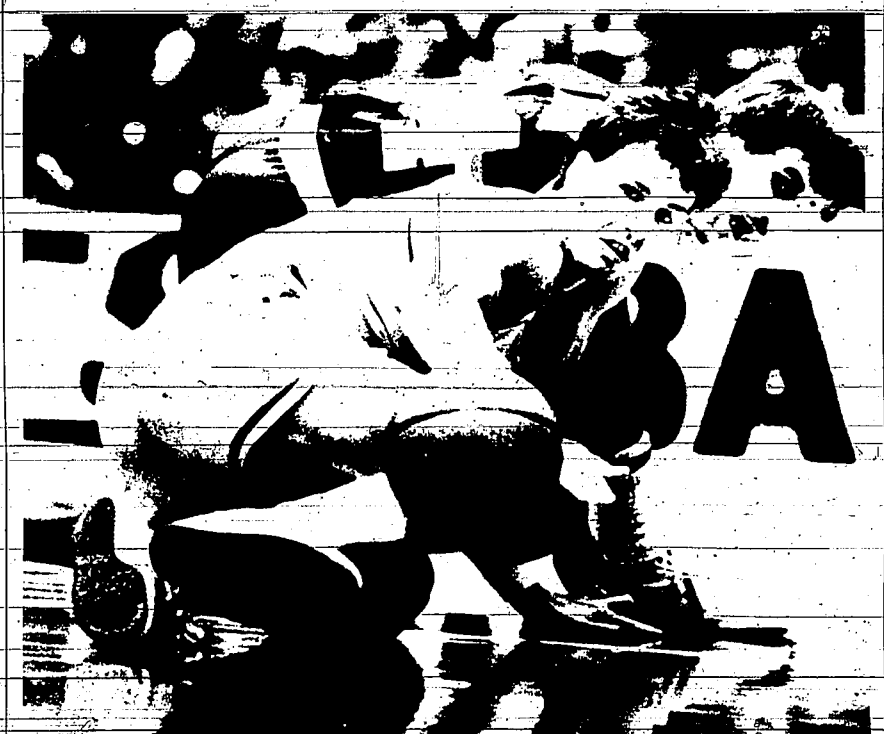

"His hiring all but eliminates the possibility of Sid Gilman returning to the Eagles," Gilman, 74, was brought in by Eagles owner Norman Braman last season to coach the Eagles quarterbacks.

Chicago Bears defensive back Jeff Fisher will coach defensive backs and former Bears center Dan Neal will coach special teams, Eagles offensive line coach Ken Im- an will remain at that job, Ryan said.

"I am very pleased with the quality of the assistant coaches joining our staff," said Ryan, who left the Bears as defensive coach for the Eagles' head job on Jan. 29. "Doug Scovill has 28 years' experience in colleges and the pros and is recognized as one of the most innovative offensive coaches in the game."

Scovill, 58, served as head coach for the past five seasons at San Diego State, where he compiled a 24-23-2 record. He was fired two months ago.

Houston Rockets' forward Jim Peterson and Denver Nuggets' forward Bill Handley struggle to get control of a loose ball during their game Monday night in Houston. The Rockets Midwest Division to 5½ games over the Nuggets. See story on Page C3.

T.F., Minico girls open region tourney

By The Times-News

POCATELLO — Twin Falls and Minico's girls' basketball teams will face a tall order tonight in the opening round of the Class A-1 Region III girls' basketball tournament.

The Bruins will take on undefeated Gem State conference champion Highland at 7:30 p.m., while across town Minico will face Pocatello High at the same hour.

The new format — with Districts 4 and 5 combined — is designed to produce a representative to the state Class A-1 tournament in Idaho Falls Feb. 20-22. The Region III runner-up will take on the fourth-place team from Region II (Treasure Valley) in Twin Falls on Feb. 15, with the winner of that game also earning a trip to state.

Top-seeded Highland (20-0) will entertain the No. 4 seed, Twin Falls (4-16) while the No. 2 seed, Pocatello (11-9), will play host to the No. 3 seed, Minico (8-14). The winners will square off Thursday night on the home court of the higher-seeded team, while the losers will meet at the same time, again on the court of the higher seed.

One team will be eliminated in Thursday's action, while the two remaining teams in the consolation bracket will meet on Saturday. The district championship game between the remaining two teams in the tournament will be played on Tuesday, Feb. 11, with a second game, if necessary, scheduled for Thursday, Feb. 13.

Twin Falls, like everyone else in the Gem State Conference this season, didn't come close to stopping the defending state champion Bruins this season. The Bruins lost 89-29 here in December and by 20 points, 56-36, in Twin Falls last month.

Fikowski — Pocatello beat Minico twice, by smaller margins.

The Indians prevailed 50-45 in Rupert Nov. 21 and 42-30 here on Jan. 2.

Both of the Magic Valley teams suffered badly from the flu through most of January. Minico broke a seven-game losing streak last week with a non-conference win over Jerome, while Twin Falls lost seven in row between Dec. 19 and Jan. 23 before the Bruins beat Bon-neville.

Encryption threatens satellite sports fans

By LARRY STEWART
Los Angeles Times

For the hard-core sports fan, a satellite dish is more like a satellite smorgasbord. With a single dish, even the largest sports appetite can be satisfied.

Let's say you enjoy pro basketball. There will be eight National Basketball Association games played Tuesday night. If you own a satellite dish, you will be able to receive most of them.

If you have cable television, you will get only one of the eight.

If you do not have a dish or cable, you are out of luck totally. You will not even get Tuesday night's National Hockey League All-Star Game, which will be televised by ESPN, a cable network.

But any sporting event that is being televised anywhere usually is available to dishowners.

After an initial investment of about $2,500 — prices now range from $688 for a basic, inexpensive unit to $3,500 for a top-of-the-line unit — dish owners get all the sports they can handle, as well as movies and everything else, live and free.

If it sounds too good to be true, well, it is. Things are changing. The free ride for dish owners may be coming to an end.

Program suppliers, including sports organizations, naturally want to be compensated financially for providing entertainment to dish owners. They say they are not in business to give their product away. Dish owners reply that what comes into their backyards over the airwaves should be theirs for the taking.

The battle lines have been drawn: with the cable industry and programmers on one side, the satellite-dish industry on the other.

The cable industry, in an effort to combat what it calls signal pirating, has chosen its weapon. It is called encryption, otherwise known as scrambling.

Scrambling involves encoding a signal at the source before it is sent to a satellite for transmission to affiliates, or cable operators. The affiliates, who are equipped with descramblers, decode the signal and send it to subscribers. Without a descrambler, you get an unwatchable picture.

Scrambling officially began on Jan. 15, now known as S-Day, when HBO and Cinemax, two major movie and entertainment cable channels, began full-time scrambling of signals. Scrambling is expected to be fairly widespread by the end of the year. Sports outlets such as ESPN, the USA network, WTBS, WOR and Excite, which have plans to encode their signals,

Suicide of popular grid coach stuns Holy Cross

WORCESTER, Mass. (AP) — The suicide of Holy Cross football coach Rick Carter has stunned students and faculty at this Jesuit college, where Carter was remembered not only as a winning coach, but someone who cared.

"Most of the team is just shocked," senior quarterback Patrick McCarthy said. "It had to be a real shock in yesterday afternoon. I'll remember him as a coach and as a friend, someone who played a big part in our lives for four years."

"He made us winners. He got us to believe," said Steve Bessant, a former Holy Cross lineman who now plays with the Montreal Concordes of the Canadian Football League.

Carter, 42, was found dead in his home at 8:14 a.m. EST Sunday by his son, Nick, a 21-year-old Holy Cross student in Worcester County District Attorney John J. Conte said Carter had hanged himself with a belt and called the death a suicide.

Carter's wife, Deanna, had spent the weekend with Carter's seriously ill mother in Kettering, Ohio.

During his 20 years of college coaching, Carter had a record of 137-58-7 and led the University of Dayton to the NCAA Division III championship in 1980 with a 14-0 record. He also had coached at Hanover College and Earlham College, his alma mater.

In his five years at Holy Cross, he had a 35-19-2 record, including a 9-1-1 season in 1983, when he was named Division I-AA Coach of the Year.

It had been a difficult year for Carter.

Friends said the sudden death of his father last summer hit him hard and said he also had been concerned about his mother's health.

"That took a great toll on him," Carter's aunt, Frances Johnson, told The Telegram of Worcester. "He and his father were very, very close. His father was a sports person. They were two of a kind."

Prior to the season, the Rev. John E. Brooks, the college president, announced prior to the season that Holy Cross was de-emphasizing football and would eliminate football scholarships. In 1985, then, the Crusaders finished 4-6-1, only the third losing season for Carter in 20 years of coaching.

"He was the kind of guy who took his losses personally," said George Cook, a neighbor, who coached Carter's 12-year-old son, Andrew, in the local "Pop Warner" Football League. He described the coach as a quiet, family man "who commanded respect in the way he approached life" and had a way with youngsters.

Cook said he often would see Rick and Andrew Carter practicing baseball and football on the high school fields. "He'd just be there for hours, pitching to that kid," Cook said.

His players, who had expected to see Carter at a football banquet Sunday night, were told of his death by assistant coach Mark Duffner at a 3 p.m. meeting. Sports Information director Gregg Burke said there were tears and stunned silence, and the dinner was canceled.

Carter's colleagues also were stunned.

"A friend, I have no higher words of praise," said Holy Cross basketball coach George Blaney.

"I am at a loss for words," said Joe Restie, the football coach at Harvard. "He was full of life, full of enthusiasm. I never saw him when he was down."

The Indians did play well enough to edge the Raft River team 42-40 in the District 4 Class A 4 Southside Subdistrict girls' title — Monday, many of the Shoshone players were smiling. But Indians Coach Ed Sandy wasn't.

With three minutes left in the game, Raft River's Mable Williams buried a jumper giving Raft River a 40-39 lead, but Shelley Rowland pulled through in the final two minutes with a pair of clutch baskets giving Shoshone the margin of victory.

After Shoshone missed the front end of one-and-one situation, Raft River had a chance to send the game into overtime, but a desperation shot by Williams was off the mark.

HARTFORD (AP) — For a good part of his National Hockey League career, Bob Prose has been a No. 2 goaltender.

But he doesn't mind being a backup for Tuesday night's NHL All-Star Game.

"I feel a lot more comfortable being a starter in this situation," the Philadelphia Flyers' goalie said Monday as he prepared for the NHL's 38th showcase game at the Hartford Civic Center.

AT final called off due to rain

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Fuzzy Zoeller became the winner of the AT&T Pebble Beach National Pro-Am when tournament officials reversed themselves and ruled the event completed Monday afternoon.

Golf

"We have decided to call it off today" — tournament chairman Lou Russo said — "it will be a 54-hole tournament and we will pay the full purse. These people have been here for a long time and they have played hard and put on a good show for us so we think they deserve the full purse."

Earlier, officials had decided to continue play on Tuesday. Zoeller, a 5-shot leader after 54 holes, wins the tournament and a $100,000 first prize.

N. Carolina stays in No. 1 spot of AP survey despite first setback

By JIM O'CONNELL
The Associated Press

North Carolina, which suffered its first defeat of the season last week, remained atop The Associated Press college basketball poll, although the Tar Heels were not the unanimous choice for the first time in three weeks.

After winning their first 21 games of the season, the Tar Heels fell at Virginia Tech last Thursday. They beat Clemson 85-57 Saturday. They received 68 first-place votes and 1,235 points from the nationwide panel of sportswriters and broadcasters.

Georgia Tech, which received three first-place votes and 1,118 points, moved up one notch to second, followed by Memphis State, like North Carolina, unshaken until last week.

The Tigers' 20-1 loss on the road at Virginia Tech 76-72 on Saturday and the only one in the voting, with the first other first-place vote and 1,091 points, 29 more than No. 4 Duke.

Oklahoma, 20-1, moved from sixth to fifth, followed by Kansas, 20-3, which had been fourth but suffered a 77-74 loss at Iowa State last week. Michigan, 19-2, jumped into seventh with seven more points, 41 more than Syracuse, 12-2, which jumped from 11th to 16th place ranking last week with a 68-64 victory over St. John's.

Texas Tech, 19-2, improved one place from last week with St. John's, 20-3, and seventh last week, rounded out the Top Ten.

The Tigers on a buzzer shot, 54-52, Georgia coasted to an easy 92-76 victory over Louisiana State, and the Tigers fell to Georgetown on Sunday.

Richmond, which last week made its first appearance in the Top Twenty since 1954, dropped two of three games to fall to 17-3. The Spiders fell to Old Dominion 62-58 and Virginia Tech 71-67 before saving the week with a 67-47 victory over William & Mary on Saturday.

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP) — Notre Dame couldn't claim much success against top-scoring Len Bias of Maryland — but the Terrapins couldn't stop the Irish, either.

White Bias led the Maryland attack with 25 points, 14th-ranked Notre Dame outshot the Terps from the field and went 17-for-21 at the free throw line to post a 69-62 victory Monday night.

"That's a good feeling when the shots fall and you keep the lead when you have to," Notre Dame's Ken Barrow said.

"We threw a fresh body at Bias every chance and tried to fire him out," added center Tim Kempton, one of those who took turns against Maryland's senior forward.

Veteran OSU coach Miller resigns

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio State University basketball Coach Eldon Miller, under fire from fans for a string of recent losses, stepped down Monday, effective at the end of the current season, the university's athletic director announced.

OSU Athletic Director Rick Bay said Miller agreed early Monday that it would be in the best interests of the men's basketball program for the university to seek a new head basketball coach at the end of this season.

Miller's contract expires June 30, 1986, and will not be renewed, Bay said.

"I did not intend to reach a decision on this matter until the end of this season," Bay said. "However, Coach Miller came to me this morning and said he believed we should resolve the situation immediately. It was then we agreed to announce this would be his last season as the Ohio State men's basketball coach."

Bay said, however, that Miller's dedication to the school and the job was unquestioned and called Miller a credit to the university.

"The job of head coach is never an easy one, in that your every decision is under constant public scrutiny, and it is impossible to satisfy everyone," Bay said. "Coach Miller has been a credit to this university and to the basketball coaching profession for a long time."

"The Ohio State program has been one of the most respected in the nation under his guidance. Coach Miller's teams have won 20 or more games in 15 of the last 16 NCAA tournament four of the last six years, and no coach in Ohio State basketball history has had more consecutive winning seasons."

Bay said a search for a successor would begin at once.

Miller, 46, is in his 10th season as head coach at Ohio State and has compiled a 167-113 overall record at Ohio State. This year's team is 10-9 and in seventh place in the Big Ten Conference with a 4-5 mark.

Counting this year's games, Miller has a 395-236 career mark, including eight seasons at Wittenberg University and six seasons at Western Michigan University.

Miller has come under increasing fire in recent weeks as his team dropped five of six games, including a five-point defeat last week to a Minnesota team that had been depleted by the loss of players in a sex scandal.

San Antonio 112 Utah 104

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Artis Gilmore scored 25 points and Wes Matthews led a fourth quarter drive that carried the San Antonio Spurs to a 112-104 National Basketball Association victory over the Utah Jazz Monday night.

Gilmore gave Utah center Mark Eaton fits throughout the game but it was Matthews, scoring nine of his 16 points in the final nine minutes, who brought the Spurs back after they had been down by eight points earlier.

Adrian Dantley, who carried a 29.3 point scoring average into the game, was held to just 12 points by San Antonio.

Utah's leading scorer was Ricky Green with 25 points. Karl Malone and Thurl Bailey joined Dantley with 12 points each for the Jazz, who fell to 24-27 in the Midwest Division.

Mike Mitchell and Alvin Robertson finished with 14 points each for the Spurs, who improved their Midwest Division record to 26-24.

Houston beats Denver, takes 5 1/2-game lead

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston's John Lucas scored 25 points and dished out praise as easily as assists Monday night in rallying the Rockets to a 104-102 NBA victory over Denver.

Lucas had 12 assists, three steals, five rebounds and hit two of three three-point baskets. He hit 12 of 17 shots from the field.

But his praise went to the rest of the team.

"The play of Robert Reid and the rest of the bench was a big difference," Lucas said. "I thought the play of the game was Reid's basket that tied it at 99-99. He told me that he wanted the ball and we got it to him."

Lucas also praised Akem Oluwun, who scored 23 points and hit the go-ahead points with a three-point play with 57 seconds left in the game.

"Akem played a great overall game," Lucas said. "Coach (Bill Fitch) did a good job too."

The victory put the Rockets 5 1/2 games over the second-place Nuggets in the NBA's Midwest Division.

Wayne Cooper led the Nuggets with 27 points but Alex English, the National Basketball Association's leading scorer, had only 14, less than half of his average.

Earlier in the day, it had been reported that English would be out for two weeks with a knee injury, but he denied any injury problems.

Pro basketball

"That was never the case," English said. "My knee never was on a status of not playing. I hyper-extended it but it was never not going to play."

English had scored 42, 54 and 36 points in three previous games against the Rockets this season, but he was only 6-for-23 from the field Monday night.

Houston, plagued by first-half foul trouble, battled from a 15-point deficit early in the third quarter to trail only 81-77 going into the fourth period.

Lucas hit 13 points in the quarter, including eight in the final three minutes, to fuel the Rockets rally.

Houston took the lead for the first time since the second quarter with 8:23 to play at 87-85 on a basket by Reid.

The Rockets took a 27-25 lead at the end of the first quarter but the Nuggets took advantage of Houston's foul problems for a 57-46 halftime advantage.

Duvalier tours city in show of control

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti (AP) — President Jean-Claude Duvalier sent soldiers to two northern trouble spots Monday and rode around in a bullet-proof car in an effort to show that he is in control after a week of riots.

Doctors and other sources said more than 50 people may have been killed in the violence.

Duvalier also met with U.S. Ambassador Clayton McManaway. The United States is the main source of aid to his impoverished Caribbean nation, and the amount of aid could be affected by Duvalier's human rights record.

The army convoy was seen moving through Port-au-Prince to the highway to Cap-Haitien and Gonaives, where some of the most violent riots occurred last week.

Journalists are prohibited from leaving Port-au-Prince without government authorization.

Sporadic protests began Nov. 27 after security forces shot and killed three students demonstrating in Gonaives, 100 miles north of here. The protests intensified a week ago in Gonaives and Cap-Haitien, and they spread to Port-au-Prince for the first time Thursday night and Friday.

Rioting began in the capital in response to rumors that Duvalier, 34, had been deposed and fled the country. It spread when the White House reported the rumors as fact

Friday, in a statement later withdrawn.

Hospital officials refused to give casualty figures Monday, saying they must come from the government. At least 11 people were known killed last week in Port-au-Prince and Cap-Haitien, 125 miles to the north.

A doctor at General Hospital in the capital, who spoke on condition of anonymity, estimated that more than 40 people were killed in the rioting that began Thursday night.

More than 100 people were reported injured or wounded by gunfire in the capital.

Government-owned Radio Nationale said the 80,000 residents of Cap-Haitien, Haiti's second-largest city, were ordered to remain indoors between 7 a.m. and 4 p.m. Six people were killed there last week.

Streets in Port-au-Prince were patrolled by security forces and members of the Duvalier militia that became known as the Tonton Macoute after it was created by Jean-Claude's father, Francois "Papa Doc" Duvalier.

U.S. Embassy officials said the militiamen were not in such evidence in other parts of the country.

Most stores remained closed along with banks and the main post office. High absenteeism was reported at factories in or near the capital.

Consultation over U.S. bases vowed

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — Presidential candidate Corason Aquino said Monday she would consult other countries in the region and "above all" the Philippine people before signing any new treaty on the future of U.S. military bases here.

Mrs. Aquino, who is challenging President Ferdinand E. Marcos in this Friday's special election, also said election fraud could make it difficult for her to win.

"The road to Malacanang (the presidential palace) grows darker as election day approaches," she told nearly 3,000 Filipino and foreign businessmen at a luncheon in a suburban hotel.

"Sinister plans to cheat the people of their liberation are afoot."

Earlier, Mrs. Aquino told The Associated Press she would need about two-thirds of the vote to overcome "massive cheating" from Marcos. "My advisers tell me it would have to be 65-35," she said.

The present treaty allowing the United States to operate at Clark Air Base and Subic Bay Navy Base north of Manila expires in 1991.

Mrs. Aquino told the luncheon guests she would honor the treaty but said "it must state with candor that no sovereign nation should consent that a portion of its territory be a perpetual possession of a foreign power."

Mrs. Aquino has avoided stating categorically that she would retain the U.S. bases beyond 1991 while Marcos has pledged to keep them but says he wants U.S. obligations made clearer.

Meanwhile, Mrs. Aquino confirmed she and Marcos will make their only joint appearance of the campaign on this Wednesday's ABC television program "Nightline."

Marcos told a delegation of religious leaders at the presidential palace Monday that his opponents "are willing to degrade the entire Filipino people just to beat Marcos."

Beirut bomb leaves 9 dead

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — A bomb hidden in a child's school bag wrecked several shops Monday in Christian east Beirut, killing nine people and wounding at least 15, police said.

A 7-year-old girl and her father were among the dead.

A shopkeeper staggered along the street screaming "I've lost my wife!" Rescuers found her under the rubble, wounded, a few minutes later.

The bombing was the sixth in 24 hours in the capital's Christian sector. It occurred as Christians and Muslims battled with tanks and mortars around the strategic mountain army base of Saida el-Gharb, 8 miles southeast of Beirut.

Police said at least 11 people had been killed and 30 wounded during that period in an upsurge of violence that has raged for more than a year. The 10-year-old civil war that has taken more than 100,000 lives.

John Paul blesses the dying

CALCUTTA, India (AP) — Pope John Paul II made the sign of the cross on the foreheads of the destitute, the dying and the dead Monday at Mother Teresa's Immaculate Heart home for the lost.

He spooned potato-curry to the hungry, cradled the head of a sobbing beggar woman, sprinkled holy water on the dead and bowed before their four caskets.

Vatican spokesman Joaquin Navarro said he had "never seen the pontiff so moved" by the "depths of human suffering" in all the pope's travels as during that half-hour visit.

The pope embraced Mother Teresa, the frail, 75-year-old "saint of the gutters" who won the Nobel Peace Prize in 1979 for her work in Calcutta's slums.

He called her clean, well-lit place the "antechamber to heaven" for about 85 impoverished street dwellers.

The pontiff, who arrived in India Saturday on a 10-day, 14-city pilgrimage, said the hospice "proclaims the profound dignity of every human person."

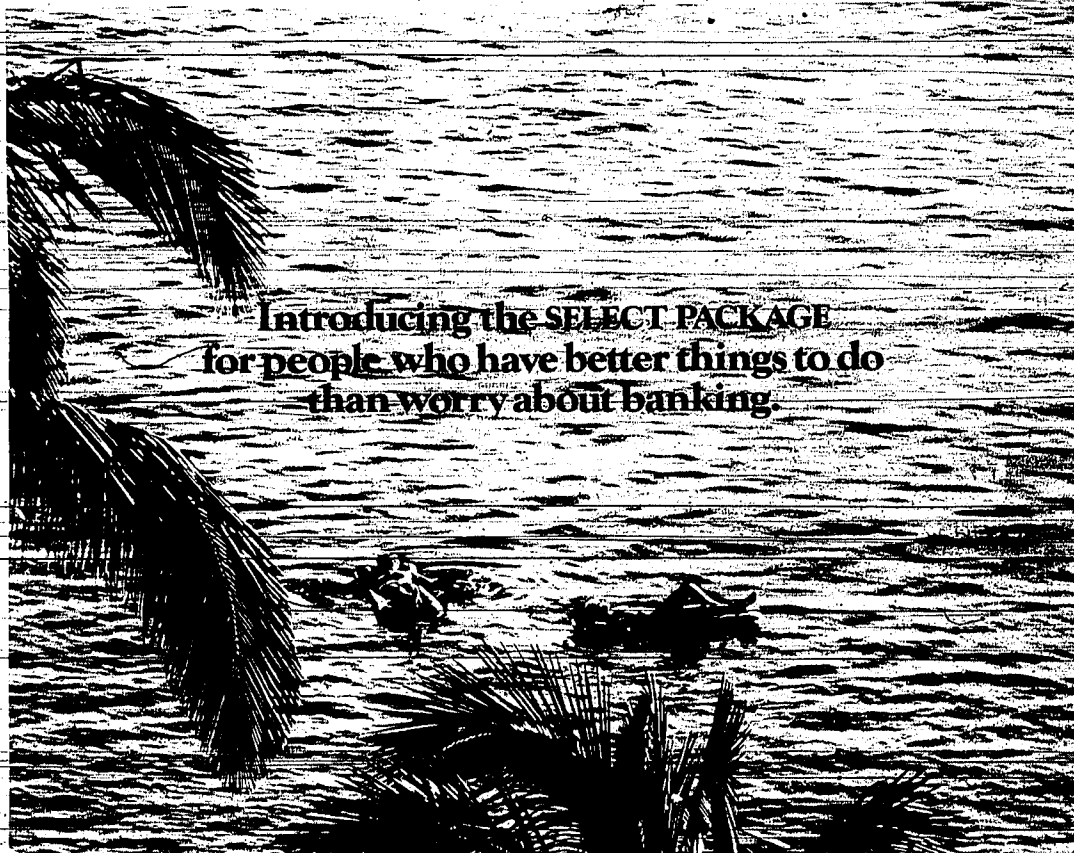

The pope received an enthusiastic welcome in Calcutta, India's largest city with 10 million people, but with street scenes that recall Rudyard Kipling's description of it as "a packed and pestiferous town."

He and Mother Teresa embraced, clasped hands. The Polish-born, 65-year-old pontiff repeatedly patted her bowed head.

Mother Teresa — stooped and quiet — placed a Hindu garland of white jasmine flowers around his neck in a traditional gesture of welcome. They stood on a red velvet-draped podium before at least 10,000 people.

The pope removed the garland and hung it around the nun's neck.

Mother Teresa's home for the dying is next to a temple to Kali, Hindu goddess of death, destruction and pestilence. In a gesture of Hindu-Christian amity, Ajay Mukherjee, a high priest of the Kali temple, gave the pope a garland.

Modest rise in factory orders

WASHINGTON—U.S. factory orders rose 2.2 percent last year, despite a strong December increase attributed to a doubling in demand for civilian aircraft, the government reported Monday.

the biggest increase in 11 months, helping to push construction spending up by 8.6 percent for the entire year to a total of $293 billion.

Bulls drive Dow above 1,594 level

NEW YORK—The stock market surging ahead Monday, establishing new highs in buying attributed to falling oil prices, lower interest rates and signs of a robust economy.

Among other blue chips, International Business Machines climbed 3 1/4 to 154 1/2, General Electric 1 1/2 to 72 1/2, McDonald's 1 1/2 to 81 1/4, and Minnesota Mining & Manufacturing 1 1/2 to 92.

OPEC president urges producers to avoid price war

Oil prices pass $18, slide continues

By GEORGE JAHN The Associated Press VIENNA, Austria—Oil prices tumbled below $18 a barrel Monday for the first time this decade, and OPEC's president predicted a "major price collapse" unless producers restrain output.

The three-day committee meeting came against a backdrop of a worsening global and widespread pessimism that one might OPEC, which dictated the market a decade ago, could reverse a decline that has caused prices to drop more than 25 percent this year.

price war detrimental to all," Giesant said in a prepared statement following the first session of the Vienna meeting.

One reason the price cuts have been slow to filter down to the gas pump is because prices in financial markets are ahead of the prices many companies are paying under oil delivery contracts with suppliers.

Nationwide turnover in NYSE-listed issues, including trades in over-the-counter market, totaled 171.0 million shares.

The NASDAQ composite index for the over-the-counter market gained 1.69 to 337.36. At the American Stock Exchange, where many smaller energy issues are traded, the market value index closed at 243.08, down .79.
