Sweden scoured for prime minister's killer

By STEPHEN H. MILLER
The Associated Press

STOCKHOLM, Sweden — Mourning citizens heaped flowers Saturday on the bloodstained cobblestone sidewalk where socialist Prime Minister Olof Palme was assassinated, and police scoured the nation for the killer.

Police had reported earlier that Palme's widow Lisbet, who was grazed by the single 9mm bullet that fatally wounded her husband late Friday night, said she thought she had seen the killer before, but could not recall the circumstances.

But police Superintendent Kenneth Carlsson said Saturday night, "She has not reported that she in any way knew the man" or that he resembled anyone she had met.

He said Mrs. Palme told investigators she was walking arm-in-arm with her husband when she heard one or two "bangs" and turned to say something about them, thinking children were playing with firecrackers.

Carlsson reported Mrs. Palme said that as she turned, her husband was falling to the sidewalk, bleeding heavily from the chest, and she got only a brief glance at the killer as he ran from the scene.

Police said they were investigating an anonymous telephone call to an international news agency in London saying West German terrorists killed the 38-year-old Palme, who was serving his fourth term as prime minister since 1969.

Assassination shatters peaceful tradition

By CECILIA LONNELL
The Associated Press

STOCKHOLM, Sweden — The killing of Prime Minister Olof Palme shatters two centuries of peaceful politics in Sweden, a neutral country proud of its citizens' concern for each other.

No Swedish leader had been assassinated since 1772, when the autocratic King Gustaf III was shot during a masked ball at the Stockholm opera.

Palme was fatally wounded just before midnight Friday by a man with a pistol, only blocks from the 1772 assassination site.

He was one of the last West European leaders who felt able to appear in public without bodyguards. Palme dismissed his guards earlier in the evening and walked unguarded into the street after a watching film premiere.

King Carl XVI Gustaf told a nation in mourning Saturday that the death of Palme, a leading advocate of peace and disarmament causes, was "a blow to the open society that Palme always worked for."

Palme, he said, "wanted to live a personal life even if he was the country's prime minister."

Palme's main political opponent, Conservative Party leader Ulf Adelsohn, said, "Sweden will never be the same again. It is a tragedy for the democratic ideals that all we Swedes honor."

Coupled with the mourning for Palme was regret for the loss of the open society Swedes enjoyed, which until Friday enabled its leaders to stroll the city streets.

"The public will definitely lose in quality of life," he said. "The public will definitely lose in quality of life." he said. "The public will definitely lose in quality of life."

National Police Chief Holger Romander said of the call, "Of course we take it seriously but we cannot believe in all these allegations like that."

Swedish Radio said Saturday that Stockholm subway system employees had found a bag containing a dark jacket and pants and turned them over to police.

Palme's assailant was initially described as wearing dark clothing. A police spokesman was quoted by the broadcast as saying the find was "potentially interesting."

More than 10,000 Swedes gathered Saturday in a central Stockholm square for a candlelight memorial service for the flamboyant, caustic politician, one of Western Europe's leading socialists and best-known advocates of disarmament.

Industry Minister Thage-Peterson, surrounded by red banners of the Social Democratic Party, told the assembly, "All Palme did was to walk as a free man in the streets, every man's right."

Sweden's flag, a yellow cross on a blue field, was lowered to half-staff and Stockholm church bells rang in mourning under a crisp and clear winter sky.

Leaders of the governing Social Democratic Party, which has been in power almost continuously since 1902, met in emergency session and nominated Deputy Prime Minister Ingvar Carlsson as new party leader and prime minister.

Carlsson, 51, a veteran politician little known outside Sweden, automatically heads a caretaker government until Parliament, called the Riksdag, meets this week to vote on Carlsson's nomination. Approval was virtual certainty.

Palme and his wife had gone to a new movie, "The Brothers Mozart." Friday night and were walking along a snowy sidewalk in central Stockholm when a man wearing a blue jacket and a hat with earflaps shot him once in the back at 11:20 p.m. Palme had dismissed his bodyguards earlier in the day.

Police said Mrs. Palme, 55, was grazed by a bullet, apparently the same one that killed her husband. Police described the gunman as 35 to 40 years old, about 5-foot-7.

Fed study maps out today's road to riches

By MARTIN CRUTSINGER
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Becoming a doctor, lawyer or accountant is still a good way to get rich in America, but the richest of the Doctors and other health professionals don't get that way through banking, insurance and real estate, a government study reported Saturday.

The review of wealth in America by the Federal Reserve Board found that only 1 percent of all American families earn more than $100,000 a year. But in this group, the survey found marked differences between the rich and the extremely rich.

"Although professionals, such as doctors, lawyers and accountants, constitute a disproportionate fraction of all the high-income subgroups, their greatest concentration is in the second highest group," the study found.

"Families headed by entrepreneurs and by individuals in banking, insurance and real estate appear to have the best odds of earning the highest incomes," it said.

Only 3 percent of American families are headed by someone who works in banking, insurance and real estate, it said. But it said those professions make up 31 percent of the highest income group, families earning $200,000 or more annually.

Lawyers and accountants, who make up 1 percent of the population as a whole, account for 12 percent of the richest families.

Another 43 percent of the very wealthy were in a broad category covering all other professions, including those self-employed.

The report was based on a 1983 survey of 4,100 American families, including 33 high-income families selected on the basis of tax filings, the Fed said.

The survey found that only 10 percent of American families earned $50,000 or more during 1983, the period asked about.

This included 8 percent of all American families who earned between $50,000 and $99,999, another 1 percent who earned between $100,000 and $149,999, 0.5 percent who earned $150,000 to $274,999 and the top real estate group, 1.5 percent of all American families who earned $280,000 or more.

The study noted that it was the first comprehensive review of wealth in America since a similar survey done in 1962.

Cheers, jeers greet bid for House by Hansen

By DEAN MILLER
Times-News writer

BOISE — Connie Hansen's entry into the 2nd Congressional District Republican primary last week was cheered by Democrats, who seem to relish the thought of a general election race between a Hansen and incumbent Democratic Rep. Richard Stallings.

Their cheers may be shared by moderate Republican candidate Rep. Gary Robbins, R-Dietrich.

If Mrs. Hansen's entry into the race manages to spread the conservative vote too thinly to carry any of the conservatives, who have announced, she could hand the primary to him.

But, with the Southern Idaho district considered one of the most conservative in the country, Robbins may have to pick up every moderate vote south of the Statchouse to win.

In addition, arch-conservative Sen. Dane Watkins, R-Idaho Falls, is picking up steam with a slick advertising campaign.

Democrats are betting on Mrs. Hansen's familiarity and her nationwide contacts within the right wing of the Republican Party.

Marcos' possessions may spark legal battle

By HENRY GOTTLEIB
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The Reagan administration, setting the stage for a possible legal battle, said Saturday that U.S., Philippine and international law will determine who gets a planeload of possessions brought from the Philippines by former President Ferdinand E. Marcos.

Administration officials, speaking on condition they not be identified, confirmed published reports that one of the two U.S. Air Force jets that flew Marcos, more than 80 fellow exiles and cargo from the Philippines to Hawaii contained boxes of documents.

The officials would not disclose the subjects of the documents — said to provide information on Marcos' business dealings — but confirmed that the baggage included about $1.1 million worth of Philippines' pesos and boxes of jewels.

Meanwhile, the Washington Post said in Sunday editions that documents left behind when Marcos fled his presidential palace in Manila included a 1982 contract for the $70 million purchase of a 71-story office building on Wall Street in downtown Manhattan.

The contract and supporting documents were stored in a brown folder marked "PFI's copy," shorthand for President Ferdinand Marcos.

The Post said its reporter had viewed the documents which did not identify Marcos or his family directly as the purchaser, but would appear to bolster previous

Aquino forces 22 generals to retirement

By MIGUEL C. SUAREZ
The Associated Press

MANILA, Philippines — President Corazon Aquino retired 22 generals and pushed for the release of additional political prisoners Saturday as more exiles returned to support her fledgling government.

Four days after she was swept to power by a nearly bloodless "people power" revolution, Mrs. Aquino was running the government from an office building as soldiers cleared booby traps from the presidential palace.

The government's Philippine News Agency said that by Saturday, soldiers had neutralized 18 landmines planted by troops loyal to then-President Ferdinand Marcos on the banks of the Pasig River behind the palace.

Army men also hauled away six truckloads of hand grenades, mortar shells and other ammunition, the agency said.

The military said it seized scores of automatic firearms in abandoned homes of two Marcos children and in two establishments owned by business tycoon Eduardo Cojuangco, who joined the Marcoses in their flight to the United States.

Decision was 'by the book'

Go ahead to launch missions always depends on judgment

By PAUL RECER
The Associated Press

SPACE CENTER, Houston — A launch decision process that put men on the moon and worked for 24 successful space shuttle flights also sent Challenger's crew of seven to their deaths in a fiery explosion over the Atlantic Ocean.

A presidential commission investigating the cause of the Jan. 28 disaster said last week that NASA's process of deciding when to launch was "clearly flawed" since it permitted the tragedy to occur.

Analysis

However, officials of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration defend the process, saying its pyramid-shaped management system has worked so well in the past that Americans flew in space for 19 years without a casualty.

Public testimony before the commission last week showed that the NASA system is only as good as the judgment of the people who operate it.

The frustration of the Challenger disaster is that the launch decision process generated information that could have prevented the tragedy.

Failure of a solid-fuel rocket booster is suspected of playing a major role in the accident, and engineers at the Morton Thiokol plant in Utah, where the rocket was designed and built, expressed strong misgivings about launching the Challenger in the freezing temperatures of that Florida morning.

But these engineers wept the bottom of the pyramid and their concerns never bubbled to the top where the decisions are made.

Eight men — four Thiokol managers and four with NASA's Marshall Space Flight Center in Huntsville, Ala. — decided the Challenger leaves the pad on its ill-fated flight Jan. 28

Thiokol engineer Roger Boisjoly admitted there was no clear mathematical proof that the boosters could fall in low temperatures. He said he knew only that the performance would be affected "away from goodness and that's bad."

Lawrence Mulloy, the Marshall Space Flight manager in charge of the boosters, found the engineers' arguments "illogical" and said they were trying to change the rules on the eve of a launch.

Mulloy challenged the Thiokol experts to prove their case, but by the standards of NASA's engineering principles, they could not. It was Mulloy's judgment that the Thiokol case was without merit, and he indicated this to the Thiokol management.

Thiokol managers found themselves caught between the instinctive misgivings of their engineers and the powerful demands of NASA.

Mulloy and others at Marshall chose not to report the engineers' misgivings to the higher levels of NASA, according to testimony at the hearings.

Except for the Thiokol engineers, there was no general recognition that Challenger was in a unique situation. Never before had a spacecraft on the pad gone through the launch eye temperatures endured by Challenger. It sat for hours in temperatures in the mid-20s and was only starting to warm up as launch time approached.

But there was nothing in the book to indicate that these temperatures could cause a problem with the boosters.

NASA went by the book on Challenger's launch, just as it did during the successful Mercury, Gemini and Apollo programs. What failed, commission Chairman William Rogers said, was common sense.

Paul Recer has covered the space program for The Associated Press since 1964.

lower-level engineers did not have sufficient data to back up their concerns and delay the launch, or to evaluate their concerns at higher levels, according to the three days of testimony.

The eight managers went strictly "by the book." It was their judgment that the conditions cited by the engineers did not violate the formal launch rules, according to the testimony.

Weather hampers salvage

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Wind whipped up 10-foot waves Saturday that kept salvage ships in port, delaying efforts to recover wreckage of the space shuttle Challenger from the ocean floor.

Among the shorebound ships was the Stena Workhorse. It was to have moved to the recovery area 42 miles northeast of Cape Canaveral to retrieve a large chunk of the shuttle's left-booster-rocket in a dress-rehearsal for recovering parts of the suspect right booster from deeper water.

The Stena-Workhorse, normally used in offshore oil drilling work, is capable of lifting 100 tons from the sea.

Navy officials said the weather should be better Sunday and that the search would continue then with 10 surface ships, two small manned submarines and four robot submarines.

The presidential commission investigating the Jan. 28 Challenger explosion has focused on the right solid fuel booster as a leading suspect as the ignition source that set off the blast. Photographs show a tongue-of-flame bursting from the rocket, near a seam between segments, 15 seconds before the explosion.

Television pictures shown at a news conference Friday showed the left booster, at a depth of 210 feet. The 4,200-pound part appeared to be heavily damaged, with large fractures in the casing.

Navy Cmdr. James Buckingham said salvagers aboard the Stena Workhorse have developed special equipment to retrieve the left booster segment with the help of the unmanned submarine Gemini

Former chief in line for NASA job

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former NASA Administrator James C. Fletcher was described Saturday by a White House official as the leading candidate to head the agency again in the wake of the shuttle Challenger disaster.

The official, speaking on condition he not be identified, said Fletcher had been told by White House Chief of Staff Donald T. Regan that he is the top contender to succeed James Beggs as head of the embattled agency.

Beggs resigned Tuesday. He had been on leave of absence since December after being indicted on federal fraud charges unrelated to his NASA duties. William R. Graham, who had served briefly as his deputy, has been acting administrator since his departure.

Beggs' resignation had been expected, and the search for a new administrator has been stepped up since the Challenger explosion Jan. 28, which killed all seven crew members.

Fletcher is now a consulting engineer and a professor of engineering and technology at the University of Pittsburgh. He could not be reached for comment. A caller to his home in McLeen, Va., was told that he was on his way back from a business trip to California.

In an interview with CBS news last week, Fletcher said, "I would prefer not to be considered. But, on the other hand, in all fairness, I don't think I'd turn it down out of hand. When the president asks you to do something you just don't say no right away."

Cross-country trek for peace launched

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actor Robert Blake on Saturday led more than 1,000 people on the first leg of the "Great Peace March," a cross-country trek for nuclear disarmament that began despite a lack of insurance and equipment.

The peace activists, carrying signs and American flags, left the Los Angeles Memorial Coliseum shortly after noon. The 8½-month-long walk sponsored by PRO-Peace will take them 3,235 miles to Washington, D.C., passing through 37 cities and 15 states.

people who stopped the war in Vietnam," Blake said. "These are American straights, the real people."

Blake, clad in a T-shirt, Levis and running shoes, said he would walk the entire distance.

Paul Newman, filming in Chicago, was scheduled to join the march later, said PRO-Peace spokeswoman Torrie Osborn. Actress Goldie Hawn was participating, she said, adding that other celebrities who said they would join included Matt Dillon, Martin Sheen and Susan Sarandon.

The march's organizers hope the marchers will number 5,000 by the time they reach Washington. But for now, equipment shortages have limited the marchers to 1,200.

Sweden's Palme was man of convictions

The world has lost another leader to assassination, this time, a man of convictions and peace, Sweden's Prime Minister Olof Palme.

He was not always a friend of the United States government, although he attended college in this country and as a young man spent four months hitchhiking through 34 states. "I saw how poor some people were in the world's richest land," he later remarked. "In the 1960s and 1970s, he was an outspoken opponent of American involvement in Vietnam. He likened the 1972 Christmas bombings of Hanoi to Nazi atrocities; the statement prompted President Nixon to recall the American ambassador to Sweden.

Palme was well known in international circles. World leaders responded to his Friday death, apparently at the hands of German left-wing terrorists, with dozens of messages of praise and honor.

Delicately, he aligned Sweden with the West, but he didn't ignore his powerful Soviet neighbor, which praised him Saturday as an "outstanding political figure."

Under Palme, the country became known as the world's premier "welfare" state, which many observers today think has succeeded remarkably well in raising the standard-of-living-of-the-typical-Swede. The nation's far-reaching health system, for example, has become something of a model.

Palme also was a man of culture. He was assassinated as he and his wife left the premier of a new film. As was his custom on private outings, he had sent his bodyguards home.

No great change is expected in Sweden's direction. Palme had the support of the majority Social Democratic Party. But his outspoken role in international affairs will be a difficult act to follow.

A strong advocate of peace and disarmament, Palme thought of Sweden as the "world's conscience," and in a sense, he molded the nation's foreign policy in that direction.

His leadership illustrates that there is plenty of room on the world stage for nations other than the United States and the Soviet Union. All that is required is courage and vision.

Letters

Parents loved baby daughter

I am writing this letter in regards to the stories about Gary and Rosemarie Staten. So many things said by the press are not the whole truth and so I'd like to tell the truth.

It has been said Tanya Lynne weighed 10 pounds at birth. She weighed 10 pounds and weighed around 7 pounds when she was born. She never was very big and all her life never weighed over 15 pounds - it was stated at one time she weighed 20 pounds.

Her parents never intentionally starved her. All the while she was sick (which really wasn't very long), Tanya was given lots of fruit juices because she couldn't handle milk or solids.

Gary and Rosemarie loved Tanya very much and did everything within their power to care for her, but their care was not enough. The only thing that did wrong was user poor judgment by not seeking medical help for Tanya. If they'd had any idea that without medical help she was going to die, I know they would have gotten it for her.

Since Tanya's death, Gary and Rosemarie have been rounded and treated over commercial criminals and murderers. For their mistake they have paid dearly many times over. They not only suffered through the death of a precious little one, but have been put through pure hell by law officials, the news media and other people.

Now many parents are perfect and have never made any mistakes in judgment while raising their own children? What about the child killed by drinking household cleaners not put up out of reach? Or the child who runs over the street with a car because the parents didn't watch them close enough? Are they common criminals and murderers?

It's too bad you can't see the other five Staten children who are healthy, well, and, for the most part, happy. They know their parents love them. If Gary and Rosemarie are sent to jail, what will happen to them?

Next time you use poor judgment where your child is concerned, you may find yourself in a situation like Gary and Rosemarie - treated like criminals while there are real murderers going free everyday. Gary and Rosemarie are simply good parents who made a very bad decision and will regret it all their lives. I've seen their pain and heartache. I know the truth and I'm mad!

Let any parents who have never made any mistakes cast the first stone.

A relative and proud of it!

City hall lacks understanding

I read a recent article in which the city of Burley said they had not shut anyone's utilities off this winter. I know better because I was one of the victims who was shut off in December for non-payment.

Although I only owed them $20, my four children and I went without power and heat for a day and a half.

I moved to Burley from Pocatello last summer and I was shocked when I found out what a tough policy the city electric company has. Although I had problems in Pocatello paying my power bills a few times, Idaho Power always worked with me and I was always able to pay my bill up. I know that Idaho Power has to follow rules that say they can't shut people with kids off in the winter or for less than $25.

In the article it also said that the city's policy was to knock on the door to let you know they were going to be shut off. When my power was shut off, I was home, but no one tried to contact me before they shut the power off. If someone had contacted me, I might have been able to work something out.

When I went down to city hall, I had to fight with utility people to get my power turned on. They finally agreed to turn it on when I told them they'd be responsible if my children got sick. Even one of the women in the city office was surprised that I was turned off for so little money.

Mayor Frank and Bud Brinegar, the city clerk, say that no one has suffered a hardship this winter. I don't agree. I feel that city hall is very unfair to people who are asking for a little help or understanding. There are a lot of people who have a hard time keeping up with the high bills in the coldest months of the year.

It's time that people wake up and see that this policy is not working. It's time to change it.
SUSAN DE LA CRUZ
Burley

Editor's note: Burley City Clerk Bud Brinegar said Wednesday he has checked city records dating back to June and cannot find any record of a power shut-off at the residence of Mrs. De La Cruz. Brinegar said the city has tried to work out an agreement schedule with her so she can pay her overdue account.

Letters/ McClure's action halted government oppression, gave public excellent road

Senator explains position

Mr. Jean Barry:

I understand you got in touch with my district office. There has been a good deal of confusion, misunderstanding and some blatantly false statements about my actions to allow the Forest Service to purchase a 56 mile road in the Boise and St. Regis, Mont. I hope I can clear up the confusion.

When the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific Railroad went bankrupt, Congress established a special bankruptcy court to sell the assets. Edwards Investments purchased part of the railroad right-of-way with the idea of turning it into a road to haul lumber to their sawmills in Montana.

After the rails and ties were removed, the Forest Service apparently realized what a good road this was, complete with bridges, tunnels and snow sheds.

The Forest Service, with the Department of Justice, then began claiming rights to the land which Edwards purchased. Edwards Investments claimed it had purchased the land from a federal court and was then faced with another federal agency trying to take the land back.

There is no question that in a dispute like this, the federal government has the upper hand. The longer the negotiations go on, the more it costs Edwards, and the obvious government tactic was to stall. The federal government had stalled for well over three years.

Edwards Investments approached me over two years ago, asking only that I try to get the Justice Department to meet with Edwards representatives and negotiate. That I tried to do. I failed and the Justice Department continued to stall.

The federal government offered to purchase Edwards rights to their land for a ridiculously low figure of $321,000 when all independent appraisals indicated that salvaging the gravel, bridges, and other assets would bring Edwards about $6 million. Meanwhile, Edwards was asking in excess of $10 million for the property, an amount I believe is too much.

My primary goal is to open that 56 miles of excellent road for public use. For hunters, fishermen, backpackers, and lumbermen, it is a beautiful road, built to higher standards than most of our primary highways. To rebuild this road today would cost upwards of $25 million.

To settle this dispute, to end the oppressive stalling by the federal government, and to open this road for public use, I settled on a figure of just under $4 million - an amount I believe is fair to Edwards, and a bargain for the taxpayers of this country.

Had my expense been allowed to continue for another three or four years the only beneficiaries would have been the lawyers in the Justice Department.

I hope this explains my position on this matter.

JAMES A. MCCLURE
United States Senator

No decision without input

I'm not going to write this letter as a Twin Falls Clinic physician, because if I did I would decry the attempt by the Hospital Board to legislate MVRIM, a non-profit, tax-exempt entity competing head-to-head with me in the private business sector. Instead I'm going to write this letter as a concerned citizen of Twin Falls County.

The Hospital Board and elected county commissioners are in the process of legislating a dramatic change in the status of our county hospital, without our consent. They believe that the Legislature with its 579 to eliminate present restrictions on the way they can conduct business so they can improve revenues through other medical and nonmedical ventures in this community.

Their argument is that they need to be funded in our present fiscal dilemma, the direct result of ill-timed capital expenditures performed against county taxpayer wishes in two referendums.

This seems to be another attempt to bypass opinion, yet even more flagrantly by not even asking for it. The Hospital Board, county commissioners, their lawyer and IHA lobbyist contend that it is too time-consuming and expensive to educate the taxpayers of this county regarding the complicated issues involved with this bill. Their lobbyist asserted before the House State Affairs Committee that it's too much for the taxpayers to comprehend the meaning of HMO's, PPO's and MRO's.

Their lawyer doesn't feel the public has enough fiscal sophistication to comprehend the complexities of hospital management in today's competitive environment. I thought democracy depended on an informed electorate and that it was the responsibility of the elected officials to keep us so informed.

This is not a statewide problem. Why are we allowing them to make major changes in the structure of our asset without our input?

Sure, we recognize the importance of our county hospital and the absolute need for its continued fiscal solvency; but why aren't we being asked what we think of this bill?

No doubt changes do need to be made in the management of MVRIM and some of the suggested changes in this bill are perhaps required to keep our hospital solvent. But I refuse to believe that the taxpayers of this county are too apathetic, stupid, or fiscally unsophisticated to want to release control of their hospital to the whims of state legislators.

While I am sure your writers few of them before we find out it is too late. Let's solve local problems through local referendums.
ROBERTS, LOBB, M.D.

Stop aiding communists

Abdul Shams, adviser to President Amin of Afghanistan, stated that one of the ways to help the Afghans is to defeat the Soviets was for the U.S. to stop all aid - trade, credits and technology transfers to the Soviet Union.

Since 1917, the U.S. government has supplied the dictators of the Soviet Union and their satellite states with billions of dollars to buy arms and technology. The Soviet communists have used the aid to build their massive military machine, subjugate their people, subvert the U.S. from within, undermine and alienate American allies, support and subsidize terrorist groups on every continent and threaten the U.S. with a devastating nuclear arsenal.

Rep. Philip Crane has introduced two bills which would stop U.S. assistance to communist dictatorships. One is H.R. 97 which would amend the Trade Act of 1974 and the Export-Import Bank Act of 1981 to prohibit all forms of aid to any communist country.

The second bill is H.R. 1345 which would require the president to report to Congress quarterly all loans, credits and grants made to communist countries directly or indirectly through an international agency of which the U.S. is a member.

U.S. aid to the Soviet Union, Red China, and other communists, whose stated goal is to conquer the world, is definitely treason and national suicide.

Please write your congressmen, senators, and President Reagan asking them to help pass this important legislation. Please get involved in protecting our freedoms while helping communist slaves throw off their slavemasters.

Thanks for supporting CSI

On behalf of the students at CSI, we, the student senate, would like to express our sincere gratitude for the great support we received during our basketball season. The College of Southern Idaho is truly fortunate to have a community that supports us 100 percent in everything we do.

During the basketball season, we saw a great jump in attendance, this partially due to the excellent team we have this year, but mostly due to our community's pride in CSI.

Again, we would like to thank our community for the support.

Word that peace has reached Chicago may be premature

CHICAGO - Recently, Mayor Harold Washington announced: "Come wars are over. Peace has broken out. The end of the cellar, Chicago. The bombing has stopped."

What in the name of the Lako? Say it ain't so. Fast Eddie?

It is not so, says Edward ("Fast Eddie") Vrdolyak, chairman of the Cook County Democratic Party, alderman and leader of the 29 aldermen who have been the bombardiers against Mayor Washington's 21 supporters on the city council. There are just 20 seats. There are no aldermanic Switzerlands - no noncombatants.

Vrdolyak came to poll the area as a bee-to-honey - naturally, insistively - but not in the name of the Lako. He came from the neighborhood near the south-side steel mills, but by way of a more refined south-side institution, the University of Chicago Law School. The school did not renege him excessively.

This morning he is wearing a light gray suit that perfectly matches his eyes, which, perfectly match, in color and chininess, Lake Michigan in winter. This is his as French cuffs, his gold watch is thin as a Phillippines district where Marcos beat Aquino 13,643 to zero. Vrdolyak does not seem like the sort who vrolyaks off. At least not in the presence of Eastern journalists and other strangers. But he checks all the memory of Marcos explaining that he has a lot of relatives in that district.

In Chicago, the organization practices reductionist politics. Reduce the problem to its bare bones. The bill: One key is money on Election Day - say, $10,000 a ward. You spend it legitimately, openly, Vrdolyak says, giving receipts to the folks you hire to encourage - OK, if necessary to hurry - people to vote.

Listen up, Vrdolyak speaks an American vernacular almost beautiful in its sparseness. It is the short-hammer-stroke school of rhetoric.

What does his typical Chicago voter - Barney Banglow, "Vrdolyak calls this guy - want from government? "Get out of my face - make the streets safe, pick up my garbage, otherwise get away from me." Has Mayor Washington really, as Washington claims, ended patronage? "What a question - but what about the court decision that forbids hiring or firing or awarding contracts for political reasons? "There's always a way." How about the improved press notices Mayor Washington is getting in out-of-town newspapers? "He's gotta run here."

Mayor Washington was at the game in Miami when the Bears suffered their only loss of the season. Vrdolyak proposed that Washington be banned from attending Bears away games. That was a joke, son. So - sort of - was the episode early in Washington's tenure when, in a city-council meeting, Vrdolyak, asking Washington for recognition to make a point of order, said: "To someone of your gender it should be pretty please: Washington's spouse is a threat to give Vrdolyak a mouthful of something you don't want." Soon the council was voting to consider bulletproofing the chamber and the gray suits sheathing Vrdolyak's long, trim form showed the outline of a bullet-proof vest.

The tractant animosity felt by blacks helped elect Washington, Chicago's first black mayor. Racial animosity felt by whites has been, at its most potent. But racism is not, at bottom, what motivates his opponents-Washington, who is inventive at least at coining verbs, says he has "rainbowed" city government with blacks, Hispanics and women. Vrdolyak just wants his monochromic elite people of any color or gender, who will play by the rules he learned at Mayor Daley's knee.

In 1983 in the Democratic primary (which is the big game), Harold Washington got 36 percent of the vote and two white candidates got 33 and 31. In 1977, Vrdolyak's "regulars" may run one white candidate, or - it could happen, he says - support one black candidate against Washington. If so, go back to the cellars, Chicago.

Vrdolyak can hardly wait. His focus on his turf leaves him only marginally interested in talking about the national party's problems. It was ever thus.

Around 1950, an Eastern journalist visited a leader of Cook County's Democrats and said: "Your governor, Stevenson, might get a presidential nomination. The Cook County man, mightily unimpressed, replied: "But that's only national."

Genocide treaty toothless, but better than nothing at all

WASHINGTON—Only 37 years after it came into being, the International Convention on the Prevention and Punishment of the Crime of Genocide at last made it through the U.S. Senate. Let us hear a round of polite applause. The treaty carries all the magisterial élan of a press release from the PTA, but it will do no harm.

That observation may not quiet the apprehensions of the kooky right, but the truth is that this convention, in the form in which it won approval, is a spayed cat with clipped claws. If an evil regime is bent upon committing the crime of genocide, this convention will not prevent that abortive act. If such a crime actually is committed, this toothless convention will not punish it.

The convention was adopted by the General Assembly of the United Nations on Dec. 11, 1948. Its first purpose is to define the acts of genocide: (1) killing members of a national, ethnical, racial or religious group with the intent to destroy the group in whole or in part; (2) causing serious bodily or mental harm to members of the group; (3) deliberately inflicting on the group conditions of life calculated to bring about its physical destruction in whole or in part; (4) imposing measures intended to prevent births within the group; and (5) forcibly transferring children of the group to another group.

Opponents of the treaty seized immediately upon ambiguous words in these definitions. What was meant by "in part"? What would constitute "mental harm"? Would the counseling of teen-agers of birth control be regarded as "measures intended to prevent births within the group"?

Other articles of the treaty provide for punishment of persons, whether rulers or private citizens, for committing crimes of genocide. Such crimes could be tried in the country where they supposedly were committed, though they also could be tried in the country of the accused. Disputes between nations about the application of the treaty would be submitted to the International Court of Justice.

Opponents found a great deal wrong with the punishment provisions also. Former Sen. Tom Connally of Texas long ago balked at the prospect of American citizens facing trumped-up charges of genocide in an alien land. The senator insisted that a reservation accompany a resolution of ratification, to the effect that the United States would have to consent formally before it would accept jurisdiction of the World Court in a genocide case.

On Feb. 18, by a vote of 83-11, the Senate ratified the convention. Before it did so, it adopted two "reservations," five "understandings" and one "declaration." One of the two reservations shackles the World Court. The other makes it clear that nothing in the convention permits or authorizes the United States to do anything prohibited by the U.S. Constitution "as interpreted by the United States."

The understandings, among other things, clarify what is meant by destroying a group "in part." This means inflicting death, mental damage or population controls on so many persons that "their loss would destroy the group as a viable entity." The understanding on mental harm is that the term means "permanent impairment of mental faculties through drugs, torture or similar techniques."

For all practical purposes, these reservations and understandings will become part of the treaty itself. The treaty is not self-executing. The Senate's resolution of ratification will not be deposited with the United Nations until implementing legislation is passed. Such legislation hasn't even been introduced. No one seems to be in a great tearing rush to finish the job.

Wisconsin's Sen. William Proxmire has made 3,000 brief speeches in support of the convention — one speech a day for every day the Senate has been in session for the past 29 years. Presidents Kennedy, Johnson, Nixon, Ford, Carter and Reagan endorsed it. Conservative publications campaigned relentlessly against the convention.

And now — letdown: Proxmire can't fly off and flutter somewhere else. We have a symbol of American hostility to awful crimes: It isn't a bold or dramatic or stentorian symbol, but a tinkling symbol is perhaps better than none at all.

James Kilpatrick writes his column, "A Conservative View," from Washington. John Suss, James McClure and Steve Symms voted against the treaty.

TWA, Ozark sign merger pact

NEW YORK (AP) — Trans World Airlines and Ozark Air lines signed a merger agreement on Saturday under which TWA would acquire the St. Louis-based airline for $250 million in cash, a TWA spokesman said.

The merger is subject to the approval of Ozark's shareholders and the U.S. Department of Transportation, said TWA spokesman Larry Hilliard.

"We hope approval from the Department of Transportation will be achieved in three to six months," Hilliard said.

TWA, which has its base of operations in Kansas City and executive offices in New York, owns 165 aircraft while Ozark owns 50, he said.

TWA chairman Carl Icahn has said the proposed merger, announced Thursday, would give TWA the facilities and smaller aircraft it needs but could not have gotten any other way.

SDI think tank considered

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Defense Department may establish a federally funded think tank to promote President Reagan's Strategic Defense Initiative, a Pentagon spokesman said Saturday.

Spokesman Robert B. Sims said Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger has been briefed on the plan and is "favorably disposed to it but has not seen any paperwork on it yet."

The Strategic Defense Initiative, known as "Star Wars," is a $3 billion a year effort to build a space-based shield against incoming missiles.

Sims said he had no cost estimate for the think tank. The Washington Post quoted an unidentified source as placing it at $30 million a year or more.

Panel: Get tougher on drugs

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A federal panel will urge this week that the war on drug traffickers be widened with more military involvement, electronic surveillance and pursuit of airborne smugglers into Mexico, a newspaper reported Saturday.

The report by the President's Commission on Organized Crime, to be presented to President Reagan on Monday, says such sweeping measures are justified because "we are confronted by a national crisis."

The Los Angeles Times reported.

The panel also called for all government agencies and companies doing business with the government to be required to test their employees for drug use.

The report says the Joint Chiefs of Staff "should be instructed by the highest levels of government" to expand their definition of national security to cover the war against drugs.

Congress blamed for Pentagon waste

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan on Saturday blamed much of the waste in defense spending on Congress, saying delays in weapons systems have cost taxpayers billions of dollars while lawmakers review "every paper clip, bolt and bullet" in the Pentagon budget.

Reagan devoted his weekly radio address, delivered from the presidential retreat at Camp David in Maryland, to a report submitted to him on Friday by a commission he appointed to look into Defense Department management.

He described the report as a "historic opportunity for Congress and the executive branch to work together" to strengthen the armed forces.

"My foremost responsibility is our national security. Just as it is the prime duty of Congress to appropriate the necessary resources to keep our defenses strong," Reagan said.

But he added, "Much of the waste in defense is directly attributable to the appropriations process. The vote delays on the MX missile and the suspension of the B1 bomber cost this country billions of dollars — dollars that were lost forever as those systems that were not back had to be reprogrammed at higher cost."

"The report also calls for less micromanagement," he said. "Instead of scrutinizing every paper clip, bolt and bullet, Congress should give more thought to our overall defense needs and strategy."

The president particularly praised the commission's recommendation for five-year spending projections and two-year budget cycles for the Pentagon. "We are the only major country in the world that rewrites its defense budget every year," Reagan said.

"The waste that results is immense," he said. "No company in the private sector could survive if it couldn't plan for the future. The effect of funding programs this way is less defense and more cost."

The Presidential commission's report has won praise from key legislators on Capitol Hill; many of whom also say that the Pentagon budget the president has submitted will have to be cut as part of the deficit-reduction effort.

Turning to this issue, Reagan said, "We must not let all that we have accomplished in the last five years be undermined by careless slashing of the defense budget. America must never again slide back into helplessness. America must never become, as it looked like it was becoming in the late 70's, a paper tiger."

Services must grapple with $5.1 billion cut

WASHINGTON (AP) — The first round of spending cuts under the Gramm-Rudman balanced-budget law will force the Pentagon to discharge thousands from duty ahead of schedule, reduce flight hours for pilots and postpone for months some transfers to new duty stations.

The cuts will also lead to a cut in operating hours for Air Force commissaries — prevent almost 12,000 National Guard and Army Reserve members from attending training schools and reduce the amount of military family housing to be constructed.

Those and other changes were disclosed as the Pentagon began Saturday to put in effect $5.1 billion in cuts forced by the new balanced-budget law for fiscal 1986.

The reduction is being carved out of a fiscal 1986 budget ceiling for outlays of $263.6 billion. President Reagan's decision to protect military salaries and his "Star Wars" research program meant that reductions will average 4.9 percent in all other areas.

The Army, Navy, Air Force and Marine Corps declined to release details on many specific programs, particularly weapons-buying plans. They said negotiations were still under way with dozens of contractors over possible savings without reduction in purchases.

Outside the area of weapons procurement, however, the services said the new cuts would hurt their training, operations and maintenance programs as well as affect duty assignments for many individuals.

The Navy declined to provide specifics beyond saying all operating units and ships would be affected and that it had imposed a freeze on the hiring of civilian workers. But the other services agreed to detail what some of the reductions would mean.

The Army said it would have to reduce its helicopter flying hours by 4 percent in fiscal 1986. That translates to a reduction of 75,000 hours compared to the 1.88 million that had been planned.

Fleet of space probes converging on comet

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Five space probes converge on Halley's comet this month for an exploration that scientists say is likely to revolutionize their knowledge of comets and provide clues about the origin of the solar system.

"It's the greatest week cometary science has ever had and is likely to have for quite some time," said John Brandt, astronomy laboratory chief at the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's Goddard Space Flight Center in Greenbelt, Md.

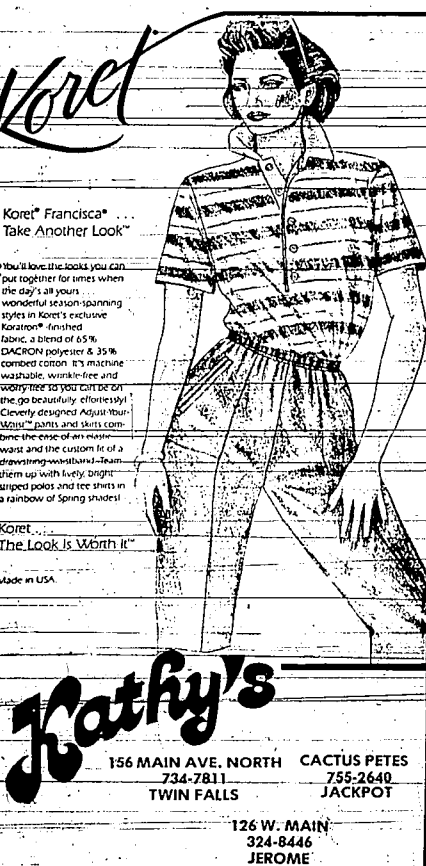

The encounters start late Wednesday when the Soviet Union's camera-equipped Vega 1 flies within 5,555 miles of the comet's solid nucleus of ice and dust, followed Saturday by Japan's Suisei, which will get within about 93,960 miles.

About 18 hours later, the Soviet Vega 2, also carrying a television camera, will fly within 4,986 miles of the comet. Then, late March 10, Japan's Sakigake probe will swing within 4.3 million miles, mainly to study solar winds as the streams of ionized particles emitted by the sun strike the comet.

The satellite examination of Halley's comet climaxes late March 13, when the European Space Agency's Giotto probe gets its closest look at the comet.

Giotto is targeted to sweep within 365 miles of Halley's nucleus, but a late course correction may bring it within 300 miles. Giotto and both Vegas will be deep inside the comet's vast coma, the cloud of gas and dust that is visible from Earth.

Future of Contras rests with Congress

WASHINGTON (AP) — The decision by Congress on President Reagan's request for a four-fold increase in aid to Nicaraguan rebels will determine whether the U.S.-backed insurgency lives or dies, those on both sides of the debate agree.

"Before deciding lawmakers appear determined to get answers to questions about the 5-year-old rebellion that many feel haven't been adequately answered, such as what the administration hopes to achieve and how far it will go in backing the insurgency."

"We have upped the ante," said Sen. Dan Evans, R-Wash., at a Senate Foreign Relations Committee hearing last week. "If the result of this request is . . . a popular revolution, and they don't quite do it, what then do we do? I haven't been able to get an answer that comforts me."

Secretary of State George P. Shultz replied, "I don't know," but said he is confident the struggle must go on to prevent a Soviet-backed communist government from becoming entrenched on the North American continent. He repeated anew there is no plan to send American troops.

Rep. David Bonior, D-Mich., speaking for the Democratic party position in a nationwide radio address Saturday, said that only the Vietnam war of all modern wars in which the United States has been involved has lasted longer than the U.S.-backed insurgency.

"Yet today, the Contras do not hold a single town in Nicaragua," he said. "We are caught in a cycle of failure, pouring more and more U.S. tax dollars into an uncontrolled and unending war."

President Reagan has asked for $100 million in aid for the next 18 months, including $70 million in military assistance. The House leadership blocked military aid last year — approving $27 million in humanitarian assistance instead — and predicts it can block it again.

Many Republicans, in both houses, also have voiced concern about the program, although the administration picked up a strong commitment to its latest proposal this week from Sen. Richard Lugar, R-Ind., the foreign relations committee chairman, who said it was both reasonable and modest. He told reporters Friday he thinks the aim of the American effort should be to force the leftist Sandinista government to hold free and fair elections, after which there would be no need for the Contras.

Even though Sen. David Durenberger, R-Minn., chairman of the Senate Intelligence Committee, has come out against military aid, the proposal is likely to be approved in the Republican-controlled Senate by a narrow margin, even opponents concede.

But Rep. Jim Leach, R-Iowa, a member of the House Foreign Affairs Committee who opposes any aid for the Contras, said the outcome appears to be a toss-up in the House. Three weeks earlier, he predicted the aid package would be approved, but he said last week that backing for the administration has since weakened.

Under an agreement between the White House and Congress, the issue is supposed to be decided this month. More hearings are scheduled in both houses this week.

Robertson demands apology

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Television evangelist Pat Robertson on Saturday accused the chairman of the Democratic Party of "virulent anti-Christian bigotry" and demanded an apology for comments made in a fund-raising letter.

Robertson, speaking at a three-day meeting of 1,500 Southern GOP leaders, referred to a letter signed by Pat Robertson, chairman of the party, that described the evangelist as a "radical right" leader trying to seize control of the Republican Party.

In the letter, Kirk said Robertson "has the most powerful political organization in America. . . . But his greatest threat is not his powerful organization. It is the enormous political muscle of the Religious Right."

Robertson said Kirk "engaged in what I regretfully consider to be virulent anti-Christian bigotry. Is it the intention of the Democratic Party to begin an all-out attack on the participation of Christians in the electoral process?"

The delegates gave Robertson a standing ovation when he read a portion of the letter, according to Kirk, and challenging him to "a public debate on national television."

Robertson, a potential GOP presidential candidate in 1988, said he is a member of the Southern Baptist Convention, "which at 14 million members is the largest Protestant denomination in America."

He referred to a portion of Kirk's seven-page letter that said, "If the Radical Right and the religious fundamentalists take control of the Republican Party, there will be only one thing standing between them and an American east in their image — the Democratic Party."

"Does this mean that the Democratic Party is declaring war on Southern Baptists or does your opposition include all 60 million evangelical Christians, of which I also am one?" Robertson asked, calling for a public apology.

Terry Michael, a spokesman for the Democratic National Committee, said Saturday that Kirk's letter addressed Robertson's "right-wing political agenda, not his religious views or those of any Americans."

"Chairman Kirk has great respect for the religious tradition of Evangelical Christians," Michael said. "But if Pat Robertson is going to enter the political arena, he's going to have to have a little thicker skin and not try to stifle his radical evangelist by portraying them as religious beliefs."

"If he runs for the Republican presidential nomination, will George Bush and Jack Kemp be attacked as anti-Christian bigots every time they take exception to something he says?" Michael asked, adding there would be no apology.

"There is nothing to apologize for," he said.

Tap runs dry on free-beer benefit

ST. LOUIS (AP) — It will be coffee breaks, not beer breaks, from now on at Anheuser-Busch breweries.

The tap went dry for more than 9,000 hourly workers at the company's 13 breweries across the nation Saturday as Anheuser-Busch ended a long-standing tradition of letting employees drink free beer on their breaks.

The tradition is as old as the brewing industry itself, but company officials said times have changed.

"It is a practice which Anheuser-Busch and the brewery workers' unions have agreed no longer is appropriate in 1988," said Jim Morice, a brewery spokesman.

A statement released by the brewer said the beer cutoff is "consistent with the company's philosophy of responsibility and moderation in drinking."

The cutoff was included in national contracts ratified in January 1985 between Anheuser-Busch Inc.

and unions at the breweries. Salaried employees gave up their beer fringe benefit last year.

In exchange for giving up the tradition, the production workers have the option of receiving two cases of beer for home consumption monthly or other increases in fringe benefits of comparable value.

Anheuser-Busch has created a national consumer-education campaign aimed at encouraging people to drink responsibly, called "Know When to Say When."

TSU rejects queen spread

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Miss Tennessee State University won't be featured in an Ebony magazine spread on campus queens because the school does not want to be promoted as a predominantly black university, officials say.

Ebony, a black-owned magazine, has featured campus queens from historically black colleges in its April issue for several seasons.

But Rich Rhoda, a TSU vice president, and Juanita Buford, the school's director of public information, said they decided to pass on the offer this year.

"The stipulation in the agreed court order regarding the desegregation of the school says we are not to identify the school by any particular race," Ms. Buford said.

"I'm totally upset about the whole thing because I did not have any input in the decision," said Miss TSU Regina Hampton. "I don't think it's fair, and I don't think they really understand how I feel."

King Hussein, PLO's Arafat lock horns over West Bank

AMMAN, Jordan (AP) — The chief PLO spokesman said in an editorial published Saturday that Jordan wants to reabsorb lands designated for a Palestinian state and King Hussein was quoted as saying other leadership.

Hussein on Feb. 19 broke off a long-standing alliance with the PLO Liberation Organization. Chairman Yasser Arafat on efforts to arrange Middle East peace negotiations with Israel.

The king accused PLO leaders of backing off on a promise to accept U.N. Security Council Resolution 242, a condition for American deals with the organization. The resolution recognizes Israel's right to exist.

In an interview published Saturday by the Kuwaiti newspaper al-Sayassah, Hussein was quoted as saying, "The Palestinians inside and outside (the Israeli) occupied territory will have to choose another leadership or reconsider the entire system of their political representation."

"We have reached a point with the PLO leaders where we cannot possibly proceed any further. There is no room for us to cooperate with those who are without credibility." The king made similar remarks when he announced on Feb. 19 that he was breaking off with the PLO and he has reportedly insisted he will not be a substitute for the PLO in peace talks with Israel.

In a telephone interview from PLO headquarters in Tunis, Tunisia, the organization's chief spokesman, Ahmed Abdel-Rahman, told The Associated Press Hussein's statement questioning the PLO leadership was "provocative."

He said the PLO leadership would meet within 24 hours and issue an official reply to the Jordanian monarch's position.

Communist Congress assails 'Star Wars'

MOSCOW (AP) — The 5,000 delegates to the 27th Communist Party Congress voted Saturday to condemn the U.S. "Star Wars" program, useless and pledged to double industrial production by the year 2000.

They approved changes to the party platform dropping the late Nikita S. Khrushchev's promises of a communist utopia, and adopted rules for party membership and organization that stress improved discipline.

Delegates saluted with their red party cards once in a ritual years. This is the first since the leaders that rose under Leonid Brezhnev relinquished power in Gorbachev's generation with the death of President Konstantin Chernenko in March 1985.

It provides an important forum for Gorbachev to weave his economic strategy into party policy and in complete the first phase of his personnel changes. The new membership of the party Central Committee is to be announced next week.

and again to signify their approval of the keynote speech delivered Tuesday by party chief Mikhail S. Gorbachev.

The votes marked the end of five days of addresses by Politburo members and other officials who endorsed Gorbachev's plan to revivify the economy and read it into official Communist Party history.

Israeli troops kill guerrillas

SITULA, Israel (AP) — Palestinian guerrillas wearing Israeli army uniforms and religious skullcaps were intercepted Saturday by Israeli soldiers at an electronic fence on the Lebanese border and two were killed, the soldiers reported.

An army spokesman said one Israeli soldier was slightly wounded and treated and released.

Security sources said the guerrillas belonged to the Democratic Front for the Liberation of Palestine, but they did not say how many were believed to be in the infiltration group. Soldiers who participated in the operation said one guerrilla cut through the fence at about 2 a.m. and then threw hand grenades as an Israeli patrol approached.

Speaking later on Israel Radio, the patrol commander who identified himself only as Lt. Avi said the Israeli troops fired at the guerrillas to prevent them from advancing into Israeli territory.

The guerrillas then retreated with the Israeli patrol in pursuit, Avi said, and about a mile inside

Lebanese territory "we established eye contact with them. We started shooting. I can't say there was a fight. They had no chance."

Another soldier who identified himself only as Yoni said the guerrillas were wearing green Israeli uniforms over civilian work clothes and carried Israeli-made food.

"They were also wearing skullcaps," he said, referring to the yarmulkes worn by religious Jews.

The incident occurred near a collective farm 12 miles inland from the Mediterranean Sea.

Egypt shakes up its security forces

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — Soldiers searched vast stretches of desert Saturday for mutinous paramilitary security troopers still at large, and the government announced a shakeup in the top echelons of Egypt's internal security apparatus.

Cairo was calm as its 12 million residents enjoyed a 12-hour respite from a round-the-clock curfew, imposed Wednesday after an estimated 8,000-10,000 conscripts of the Central Security Force began rioting.

But public universities and schools, closed Thursday, will remain shut another week.

Sources close to the government, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said the search for escaped mutineers centered on the desert west of the Great Pyramids of Giza and wastelands southeast of the city.

The government said 35 people were killed and 321 wounded in the riots. But a West European diplomat, who spoke on condition of not being identified, said his information from government sources indicated the death toll was much higher.

Maj. Gen. Zaki Badr, newly appointed interior minister, announced that senior officers in his ministry would be demoted. Two assistant ministers and a director-general responsible for the Central Security Force were downgraded, as was an assistant minister in charge of the State Security Service, comparable to the Federal Bureau of Investigation in the United States.

School name honors Frank

BERGEN, West Germany (AP) — An elementary school in Bergen has been named after famed diarist Anne Frank, ending a controversy over how to honor the girl who died in the local Nazi Bergen-Belsen death camp in 1945.

After months of wrangling over whether to name a street in her honor, the city council chose to name a school after her.

A service making the name official was attended Friday by the 260 students, their parents, and community leaders. They heard speeches warning against any re-emergence of anti-Semitism or of dictatorship.

Anne Frank, a German Jew, died at age 15 in the camp in March 1945, one of an estimated 5 million Jewish victims of the Nazi Holocaust. After her death, she became world-famed for her diary of the time spent hiding

U.S. gets more word on MIAs

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Vietnam has handed over to the United States results of investigations into 49 reports of remains or crash sites involving missing Americans, a U.S. expert said Saturday upon returning from Hanoi.

"We got some specific information back on 49 cases they've investigated. . . I can tell you they have found remains and some of those remains will be repatriated," said Col. Paul Mather.

He led a team which discussed with Vietnamese officials on Thursday and Friday cases involving Americans missing from Vietnam war remains which Vietnam has pledged to repatriate soon were from the group of 49 U.S. members of Congress, who visited Hanoi last month said the Vietnamese.

Col. Joe Harvey, another U.S. military expert who returned from a crash site excavation in Laos, told the same conference the U.S.-Laotian team had dug up the aircraft shot down in March 1972 with 14 Americans.

Mather declined to go into detail on the large number of new cases" on MIAs as well as information on reported sightings of live Americans.

"They reiterated their willingness to ask us 'live sighting' reports and they provide all possible details," Mather said.

He said Hanoi earlier handed over results of investigations by three Vietnamese teams on the possibility that Americans may be living in remote areas of the country.

"None (of the results) proved to be of interest to us," he said.

He said his team gave the Vietnamese

THE REV. ALLAN BOESAK Stops vengeful mourners

Clergyman rescues 'informer'

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — A leading anti-apartheid clergyman, the Rev. Allan Boesak, leaped from the altar Saturday to rescue a black man from vengeful funeral mourners who believed him to be a police informer.

Black mourners in the town of George east of Cape Town, attacked the man after the Rev. Freddie Boo, a black Anglican priest, declared during his eulogy: "There is an informer in the church, and there he sits."

Boesak, who is of mixed race, rescued the bleeding man from assailants, shielded him and helped him into a car, said Associated Press photographer Greg English, who witnessed the incident.

Inflamed mourners pummeled the man, shouting "Kill the traitor!" and "Burn informers!" and later burned down his house, witnesses said.

Elsewhere, police reported three blacks were killed in rioting in 16 communities from late Friday to Saturday evening.

Police shot dead two blacks in clashes at Potchefstroom's black township, 75 miles southwest of Johannesburg, said a nightly police summary.

The funeral service in George was for two blacks shot by police in rioting. It resumed after Boesak drove the man accused of being an informer to safety in Lawaalkamp, George's black township.

Suspected informers have been attacked before at funerals for riot victims, which often become vast anti-apartheid rallies. In a country where security laws prohibit most forms of protest, sometimes the people under suspicion have been stoned and beaten to death.

Shops looted by Brazilians over prices

RIO-DE-JANEIRO, Brazil (AP) — Angry customers looted supermarkets in Rio de Janeiro Saturday after shopkeepers marked up prices despite a government-decreed price freeze, police said.

The freeze is part of the government's sweeping new economic program against inflation announced Friday by President Jose Sarney. The program includes a wage freeze and a new currency, the cruzado, to replace the cruzeiro. The cruzado will be worth 1,000 cruzeiros.

"The looting is taking place all over the city and not just in particularly poor areas," said Rio state policeman Jose Santos. Tens of thousands of dollars worth of goods were stolen, he said.

In Sao Paulo, Brazil's largest city, police said large groups of protesters tried to ransack three supermarkets that were marking up prices Saturday.

The police got to the supermarkets in time to stop people from looting. Sao Paulo state policeman Hello dos Santos said Saturday.

Price increases in supermarkets and luncheonettes were reported all over Brazil Friday. TV Globo, the country's largest television network, showed police escorting managers out of supermarkets where prices reportedly had been marked up Friday.

Also, Friday, dozens of angry customers demolished the inside of a luncheonette in downtown Rio after the manager raised prices. Police broke up the mob by firing in the air.

Protesters broke another luncheonette's windows Friday. Other people, angered by new economic measures, broke bank windows in downtown Rio, according to press reports.

Easy moneymaking plan a scam — sheriffs

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Complaints from persons who have responded to advertising on a moneymaking plan have prompted a warning from Twin Falls County sheriffs' offices.

Chief Deputy Sheriff Harold Jensen said a recent advertisement offering an easy, high-cash return is being investigated by his department. Several persons who have answered the advertisements, including one in the Sooper Ads publication, have complained to the Sheriff's Department and to chambers of commerce.

"We would suggest that before anyone sends money in response to such an advertisement that it be checked out carefully," Jensen said.

He added that any fast-moneymaking offer should be questioned and investigated, before anyone becomes involved.

The advertisement suggested an individual could earn over $4,000 a month by stuffing envelopes.

Ken Thornberg of the Better Business Bureau in Boise said such operations are illegal. The only person who would be likely to area prosecute would be the postal inspector, he said, since the advertising and responses involve the mails.

"Most envelope-stuffer schemes simply tell the person that answers that they should buy envelopes, paper, stamps and other soft touches as did the original individual," Thornberg said.

He said that at one time the postal hearing examiner in Washington, D.C., tested the system. He answered an advertisement, quick and easy money by stuffing the envelopes, and followed the instructions. He made about 45 cents a week at most, Thornberg said.

Jensen said that in the recent incident in this area, a response to the advertisement brought a letter showing two alternative moves. One is to purchase a pamphlet of instructions for about $9, or a more detailed proposal for $40. When a person sends in money, he or she receives a booklet listing many things that can be done at home in spare time, such as offering home-made items for sale through mail solicitation. It also includes sample letters that can be sent out to persons, telling them how to make quick and easy money by stuffing the money-making plan that they have just purchased.

Thornberg said that the sad thing about the business is that it attracts and takes money from those who can least afford it. "Generally, the very poor, uneducated, handicapped or house-bound persons will answer the ads, and sometimes spend their hard-earned savings on the results," Thornberg said. "If anyone could make large amounts of money so easily and without any education, training or special talent, there would be no unemployment problems in the country."

In the Boise area, he said, all publications have been advised by the Better Business Bureau not to accept such advertisements because they are illegal and the publication could also face charges.

Jail conditions improving

By PAT MARCANTONIO
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The 74-year-old Twin Falls County Jail is receiving a face lift. Courts as jailers make improvements specified in an agreement reached in a lawsuit over the jail.

"The county has used its own staff, where possible, to make the changes in an effort to keep a lid on costs."

In the agreement, approved by a 5th District Court Judge Feb. 11, county officials said they would implement several interim solutions to reduce the fire and safety hazards in the aged jail.

The agreement also stipulated the county would reduce the jail population April 1 and place before voters, as soon as possible, another bond proposal for a new jail.

The interim changes were the suggestions of experts who were going to be plaintiff witnesses in the case WEN v. trial. The county was required to complete the projects or report its progress to the court on others, beginning in April.

The lawsuit was filed Oct. 22 by two jail inmates against the county. The resulting agreement closely resembled, and even exceeded, the demands of the inmates.

Among the changes are several related to fire hazards. A new metal fire exit was completed Wednesday, Sheriff Jim Munn said. Experts suggested a new exit be installed in the inmates wouldn't have to walk through the kitchen in the event of a fire.

The old exit in the kitchen, like the new exit, leads to a catwalk outside the building and a fire escape "silo."

The new exit cost at least $200, but not all the bills have arrived, Munn said. The stairway was built by a jailer in his off-duty hours.

A new "crash-bar" for the silo door had arrived Friday, he added. The silo door now is padlocked. A push-bar would allow people to open the door from the outside.

The bar cost $230, a bargain for the county, Munn said. The Beds are being taken out of two-bed cells like this one to limit the jail's population

Cities await insurer's nod

By PAT MARCANTONIO
Times-News writer

BOISE — The Association of Idaho Cities self-insurance program still is on hold as it attempts to obtain enough money to start operation.

With a proposed affiliation with an already licensed insurance company, however, the cities' Governmental Entities Exchange could start providing coverage, association director Jim Weatherby said. The board of the company, which he refused to name, should have a decision March 6 about joining with the association.

Until such an agreement is made, the association faces the major hurdle of obtaining $600,000 in surplus funds to require a state insurance license. So far, it has collected about half the money, with more trickling in, Weatherby said. The surplus fees are obtained by a one-time payment from participants.

The program has been in the same holding pattern for about three weeks, Weatherby added. John "Bud" Blaine, a Boise insurance broker working with the association in the formation of the pool, is attempting to solicit support from other governmental entities to join, Weatherby said.

Blaine wasn't available for comment Friday.

Establishing a self-insurance pool was the association's response to the unavailability of insurance for cities last year from private companies. As a result, some cities operated without insurance and those who did obtain coverage paid double or triple what they previously had paid.

Scott Wolsley, a deputy attorney general with the State Department of Insurance, could be reached for comment Friday about how many Idaho cities are operating without insurance.

In the association plan, cities, school districts and other governmental entities would pay premiums to administer the program and build a pool of funds from which claims would be paid.

"The association has had its share of trouble in forming the pool and has lagged behind similar efforts of the Idaho Association of Counties. The cities group has had delays in finding private carriers to provide coverage beyond the pool amount. The failure of some large cities to join the program also has made it difficult for the association to meet state requirements.

"It's been a frustrating business," Weatherby said. "Certainly, we hope we can deliver. We have everything in place, except the surplus dollars."

Sometimes, the cities group has been tempted to call it quits, he added. But, there is a need for what its program can provide.

Basketball team hails retiring police officer

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Thirty-three years of work as a Twin Falls police officer gained some community-wide recognition for Cliff Sharp Thursday.

Commander Sharp retired Friday as head of the department's records and communications division. He started work in 1951 as the parking meter officer, checking meters and issuing overtime parking tickets.

Since then, he says, he has worked in about every division except for detective work.

"The city has been good to me," he said. "I don't have any complaints, but I want to have some time for taking life easy."

The Northside Bus Co. in Jerome during off-duty hours for several years. He said he plans to travel during his retirement — via the Northside Bus, continuing to take the College of Southern Idaho basketball team to games.

The entire basketball team attended a going-away party for him in the Police Department Thursday afternoon. The players filed in together in full basketball uniforms.

City officials, fellow workers, news media and businessmen and women filled the large classroom at the law enforcement building for the going-away event.

Public Safety Director Tim Qualls presented Sharp with a plaque and a check from the Twin Falls Police Officers' Association. • See SHARP on Page B2

Low self-esteem? Free CSI program tells how to boost it

By JANE ROBISON
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Four weeks ago, 18 adults checked into the College of Southern Idaho feeling depressed, bored, boxed-in, fearful and anxious.

On Friday, they were leaving feeling upbeat, confident, talkative, vital and alive.

The turn-around was 120 hours of free classes that met from 9 a.m. to 3:30 p.m., five days a week under the deceptive heading of "Program for Employment/Education Readiness." Deceptive because the program, through the Center for New Directions at CSI, offered so much more, they said.

"We all have such varied backgrounds, but we came here with a common purpose," said Debbie Moner. "We had low self-esteem and low self-confidence." Although the program was designed to help unemployed and underemployed people reenter the job market or switch careers, it is such a broad-based counseling program that it has also helped participants tap hidden resources, or cope with children and spouses.

"If I'd had this course earlier, I would have raised my family differently," said Norman Brown, who is retired from the Forest Service.

"This has been a great class for depression," said Carol Burgess. "We lost our farm, and we couldn't meet our financial needs. And we were real depressed."

But her husband, Wayne Burgess, said he almost did not attend the class because the name frightened him. "As a farmer, the word PEER threatened me. I think it would scare a lot of farmers."

Although the class has been offered for four years, this session was the first to draw men.

Budget woes snuff county weed bureau

By PAT MARCANTONIO
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls County Weed Bureau closed Friday after more than two decades of providing weed-spraying service to county residents.

The Board of County Commissioners announced Jan. 23 that the bureau would be terminated March 1 to ease pressure on the county budget. The bureau had a history of losing money because revenue from its weed-spraying service and sale of herbicides wasn't enough to cover expenses, officials said. It was expendable because weed spraying is offered by the private sector, they added.

With its six employees, two offices and a budget of about $100,000, the bureau's responsibilities included monitoring growth of noxious weeds and enforcing weed laws.

Since the county is required by law to provide monitoring and enforcement, it will hire a part-time weed control supervisor. Committee member Judy Pelton said 37 people applied for the job. The application deadline was last Friday.

Wallace Savage, the superintendent and 23-year veteran of the bureau, was not among those who applied, he said, he wanted to retire. Savage, however, will remain on the county payroll until summer to ensure a smooth transition for the new weed supervisor. Savage spent the last few days selling the bureau's remaining stock of

of several hundred gallons of herbicides at a 10-percent discount. He will continue to sell the chemicals at the office located at 450 6th Ave. W. in Twin Falls until they are gone, he added. Commissioner Marvin Hempleman said the county probably will sell other bureau equipment at a county auction, tentatively scheduled for April 15. The bureau fleet consisted of seven spray rigs, six trailer sprayers and four trucks, Savage reported. Hempleman said it hasn't been determined which vehicles will be sold. Other county departments, such as Parks and Recreation and the county fair, have spoken for some of the sprayers.

"Anything we can use we won't sell," Hempleman said.

The bureau office on 6th Avenue will not be sold because it also houses the county's voting machines, he added. The new weed superintendent will work out of the county office building near Magic Valley Regional Medical Center.

County officials haven't decided what to do with the bureau office in Buhl, Pelton said. The county-owned, one-story building includes a shop and office space.

The House on Feb. 26 voted to pressure President Reagan to resume negotiations with the Soviet Union leading toward a total ban on nuclear tests. The measure, approved despite President Reagan's opposition, is non-binding, but its passage over strong White House opposition is significant because it repudiates the president's current arms control policy, which holds that a nuclear test ban should only be sought after reductions are made in existing nuclear weapons. The vote in favor of the measure was 269-148.

Senate

The Senate on Feb. 27 decided to open its proceedings to live television and radio coverage, seven years after the House members began reaping the benefits of such exposure. The measure will allow coverage on a trial basis from June 1 to July 15. It was approved by a vote of 67-21.

company supplied a "top-of-the-line" model because it didn't have the type the county had ordered, he added.

The bar probably will be installed next week.

This week, county staff removed 10 bunks from cells at no cost to the county. County officials had agreed to eliminate bunks to ensure the county wouldn't house more than 30 people in the jail. Munn said more bunks will be removed next month.

The metal bunks were taken off the metal walls with a welding torch. Jail Commander Tom Norris said, "The operation took only about 10 minutes per bunk."

Although the county agreed to reduce the jail population by April 1, Munn has been enforcing the restriction since last Saturday in order for his staff to form procedures for the transportation of inmates to other jails. As a result, about 10 inmates have been housed daily in other jails, at an estimated cost to Twin Falls County of $400 a day.

Munn reported that 21 inmates were housed out of the county Friday and 23 were in the jail on the 4th floor of the Courthouse.

Before the restriction, however, the county already was boarding several people in out-of-county jails. Earlier this month, an additional non meal was added, at a cost of about $10 a day, Munn said. The county also has ordered a new medicine cabinet and a new fire door.

The county also agreed to a study of the jail's locking and door system and fire exits. Munn said local fire and building inspectors will conduct the study and make recommendations about improvements.

Munn said, "So far, we're doing everything ourselves. We're moving right along."

As for a new jail proposal, Commission Chairman Ann Cover said the county is planning to have bond issue election during the general election in November. Serious work on a bond proposal won't start until after the recess of the state Legislature.

"The county agreed to propose a 'bare-bones' jail, in contrast to the $6 million bond issue rejected last spring by voters for a large jail/law enforcement building.

There was another gift from a fellow officer, Commander Gary Corder of the detective division presented him a package that required some explanation. It was a section of a chrome automobile bumper mounted on a wooden plaque along with a pair of salt and pepper shakers.

It seems a few years back the two were discussing the selection of officers attend the Federal Bureau of Investigation Academy in Washington, D.C. When Corder expressed the hope he would be selected, Sharp told him his chances were slim. He added that if Corder was selected he'd get a chrome bumper (on Corder's police car) without salt or pepper.

Corder is going to the FBI academy in September.

Sewage woes may suspend construction

By TERRELL WILLIAMS
Times-News correspondent

WENDELL — Because of overflowing sewer lagoons and steady growth in the city, the Wendell City Council plans to put a moratorium on all new building construction.

The council met Thursday with City Attorney Lynn Nelson in a 20-minute executive session to discuss the lagoons and the city's liabilities. When the meeting was reopened to the public, the council gave notice of its intent to apply a moratorium on all building construction, citing "imminent peril to public health as a result of the inadequate sewage facilities."

The moratorium would prohibit all new water and sewer hook-ups.

A public hearing on the proposed moratorium will be held at the next council meeting March 10.

Councilman Harold Little said Friday that the council had been notified by the state health department that the capacity of the sewer ponds has been reached. If applied, the moratorium would last 120 days, Little explained, with the council continually renewing it until the city can afford to build an additional pond.

Population in the city limits of Wendell has almost doubled since the census of 1970, which recorded a population of 1,100. Mayor Otto Lemke said the current lagoon system, completed about 11 years ago, was built to handle at least 2,000 users. But, he said, snow and winters and heavy use from city residents have caused the lagoons to be filled beyond capacity during early spring months.

In related business, Scott Bybee of J-U-B Engineers in Twin Falls told the council grant applications for sewer and water system improvements are due in April.

The state, he reported, will have about $2.9 million in grants to distribute this year, a figure that is sure to be substantially less after 1986, due to government cutbacks.

"Some people feel grants will be totally wiped out," Bybee said. "This year needs to be the best shot you've got."

From more than 100 applications, Bybee said only about a dozen grants will be awarded.

"The key," he said, "is to document the need."

The city must take a survey right away, Bybee advised, to establish that Wendell has at least 51 percent of its population at the low to moderate income level. In the 1980 census, Wendell had only 46 percent at that level.

Bybee said he is certain local income levels have dropped and Wendell will meet grant eligibility requirements.

Recall move rolling

Seekers of the recall of Jerome County prosecutor Francis Gause wait in front of the courthouse for people to sign their petitions

Prosecutor lacks convictions, petitioners say

By JANE ROBINSON
Times-News writer

JEROME — Under cloudy skies, Jerry and Lauri Auten unfolded a card table and two folding chairs around noon on Saturday in their attempt to recall the Jerome County Prosecutor.

The card table, stationed in front of Jerome County Courthouse, was the only visible sign of something brewing. No posters or banners, and no small crowds were gathered to collect signatures on petitions that call for the recall of Francis Mark Gause.

"I might be here until dark," said Auten, a Jerome County resident who began the recall last Tuesday. "If people keep coming, I might be here with a candle."

Right at noon, about 20 people trickled by to sign the petitions. To force a recall, 20 percent, or between 1,700-1,800 signatures of the registered voters in the county, are needed. Auten has 60 days to collect the signatures.

The recall move was prompted by a 5th District Court session Tuesday in which Gause withdrew a felony charge of voluntary manslaughter against a Hazelton couple. Originally, the couple was charged with the death of their 11-month-old daughter, but Gause asked the felony charge be reduced to a misdemeanor charge of injury to a child.

"The most important thing to understand is that that was not an isolated incident," said Lonny Meadows, an officer with Jerome Police who was off-duty. "We've had two more cases, a number of low conduct cases, grand thefts where we've caught the people with the stuff, and nothing, nothing has happened."

Both Auten and Meadows said Gause has not had one conviction since taking office in January 1985.

"He's either reduced or dropped the charges in every case," Meadows said. "I approached the mayor six months ago seeing if we couldn't get a petition for his recall. But the city fathers don't want to get in the middle of a political mess."

While there was no major outpouring in front of the Courthouse on Saturday, people were taking petitions to go door-to-door. And Auten said they were thinking about setting up a table in front of a supermarket to catch more people. He said he hopes to gather 2,000 signatures within the next two weeks.

"We've had lots of calls at home," said Lauri Auten. "I just got a call from a lady in Eden to let us know she couldn't make it today, but she wanted a petition to take around there."

A petition is also available in the police department, although Meadows said officers were warned not to take an active role in the recall while on duty.

Auten said he hopes the issue will not come to an actual vote. "I'd like to see him just quit," he said. "I think it would be smarter."

Ordinance plan paves way for hydro plant

By BARBARA NEIWERT
Times-News correspondent

BELLEVEUE — A change in the Bellevue zoning ordinance, which would allow utilities to exist in a commercial zone, was the most comment from the 13 people attending a public hearing Thursday.

The Planning and Zoning Commission is recommending the City Council adopt the ordinance change, which would effectively create an avenue for Bellevue resident Ted Divine to apply for a conditional use permit for his proposed hydroelectric plant on the Big Wood River.

City Attorney Keith Roark said he and members of the commission have been working the past four months to revamp the city's entire zoning ordinance to provide more well-defined language. A 120-day exension of a moratorium on variances and conditional use permits was adopted Nov. 14 to give the commission and council time to adopt the revised rules.

Divine's property lies within Bellevue's commercial zone. The proposed ordinance now reads, he would have the opportunity to reapply for a conditional use permit for his proposed plant.

However, certain residents oppose allowing a public utility in a commercial district — including the chairman of the planning and zoning commission.

Chairman Wayne Doubitz spoke out against the commission's recommendation that the ordinance be approved and said a public utility should not be allowed as a special use in the commercial district.

Shoshone

Certification status of recall petition due

By JANENE BUCKWAY
Times-News correspondent

SHOSHONE — Backers of a recall effort against Shoshone City Councilman Jerry Baltazor say they are "dissatisfied" with Baltazor's response to the public.

"It's not so much what was done, but how it was done that has upset me," petitioner Chris Derbridge said Thursday.

An informal committee of city residents filed a petition Feb. 13 with 129 names on it asking for Baltazor's removal from office because he "failed to respond to the wishes of his constituents" and also citing "conflict of interest" between Baltazor's job as a state Fish and Game officer and his January appointment as city police commissioner.

City Clerk Ron Bolan said Saturday he has finished checking the names for proper registration, but said he will not release the results until after the petitioners have been notified.

The group needed the signatures of 103 properly registered Shoshone voters to proceed with a recall election.

Bolan said he mailed a certified letter to the petition organizers Friday informing them of the results of his certification check. He said he notified the petitioners they could get the letter at his office, however, they did not pick it up before closing time Friday, so it was mailed.

"I will not release the information until we get their letter in the mail, and that will be Monday," he said.

Derbridge and other members of the citizens committee said they will continue the signature drive if they aren't successful with this petition. The law allows them another 30 days to collect signatures.

Derbridge said people called asking to sign the petition after it was turned in to Bolan, so she was confident enough signatures can be obtained if more are needed.

If a petition is certified, the city must wait 30 days, but not more than 40 days, before calling the special election.

Derbridge said the committee hopes to have Baltazor removed so that "someone who will respond to the people" can be appointed.

"We trust our councilmen to act in our best interest, when they do not we must take action," she said.

"The people are the city, not the council," she added.

Derbridge and fellow committee members Darlene Gaskill and Ed Carothers said they were upset with Baltazor and Mayor Tim Ridinger's response to an informal public petition, "signed by 200 people" asking for the retention of John Shaffer as police chief, and the way a Jan. 8 city council meeting was handled.

"They would not answer our questions or give us a chance to talk, or explain why they wanted to get rid of Johnny," Derbridge said.

"You don't just throw away 15 years of a man's service to the city," Gaskill said, referring to Shaffer's employment as an officer and police chief.

The city council reinstated Shaffer as police chief.

SHOSHONE — A public hearing on Shoshone's first zoning laws will be held Tuesday at 8 p.m. at City Hall.

The comprehensive land-use plan was adopted by the city two years ago, and the Planning and Zoning Commission is now asking residents to comment on the proposed zoning ordinance before it is adopted by the city.

The comprehensive plan was adopted to help keep Shoshone a pleasant residential area, but at the same time encourage and plan for orderly growth, and the proposed zoning laws follow the same philosophy, Chairman Mike Austin said last week.

Under the plan, most of the city is zoned residential with some limited areas of agricultural use designated. The plan calls for an industrial zone along the existing Union Pacific railroad track and on the eastern side of town between U.S. Highway 93 and the railroad line.

Light manufacturing sites are identified along the south side of the Little Wood River in eastern Shoshone, and in the southwestern area of town where the Bureau of Land Management and Idaho Transportation Department operations are located.

A light manufacturing zone is established to encourage the development of manufacturing areas that is "clean, quiet and free of hazardous or objectionable elements such as noise, odor, dust or smoke," the ordinance reads.

No new residential use would be allowed in designated industrial and manufacturing areas.

The ordinance also defines the size of any new residential lots, how far back from the street new buildings must be set and what types of land uses or activities can take place in the various zones.

Off-street parking, mobile home installation and development of new residential subdivisions are among the issues addressed by the ordinance.

Mayor Tim Ridinger said at a recent city council meeting the city was also preparing to negotiate an "area of impact" with the county. Such an area would extend city zoning laws beyond the city limits and make new growth or possible annexation to city services an orderly process.

Ridinger said the county wanted to wait until the city zoning laws were in effect before establishing the size of the impact area or deciding how the area would be jointly administered.

Blaine hospital seeks tax district

By DAVE LEWIS
Times-News correspondent

HAILY — The Blaine County Medical Center Board of Trustees is proposing the formation of a hospital taxing district to make capital improvements and offset an operating loss.

The trustees want the district to raise money primarily for large-cost items the hospital has been unable to pay for in recent years, Board Chairman Kendall Kinghorn said Friday.

Kinghorn said the center will use the money for repairs, maintenance and medical equipment and have less need of it to make up a deficit in operating the 15-bed hospital.

"We're not really using the money to use for operations," he said. "We feel like we're getting closer all the time to getting rid of the deficit, and eventually we'll be able to break even."

The hospital claims a deficit of $65,000 for the fiscal year ending Sept. 30, 1985. In 1984, the hospital lost more than $180,000.

The trustees will take the proposal to the Blaine County Board of Commissioners on March 10. The commissioners must give the initial approval to the district before the trustees can go ahead with their plans.

If approved, hospital administrator David Farnes also said the trustees will use the new taxing authority to raise money for capital improvements.

"However, nobody is going to say that there isn't the potential of using it for operations," he said.

Farnes and Kinghorn say the center needs the money the taxing district can raise because of a maintenance that has been bringing in about a million dollars, said Kinghorn.

He does say, however, the center may need more money in the first years of the law to catch up on the maintenance that has been neglected for the last few years.

Kinghorn said it's been about 12 years since the county has been able to pay for painting part of the

Then, the commissioners transferred those funds from the hospitals to other departments to offset its losses from the rest of the 1 Percent Initiative. The commissioners opted to support the hospital through its indigent fund which is outside the 1 percent restrictions.

Farnes said the hospital's support from the county amounted to $231,000.

Now, there are doubts the county is using the indigent fund properly when it applies it to operations, Farnes said, and the commissioners may be willing to listen to another way of raising money for the hospital.

Although the trustees haven't settled on the boundaries for the district, it probably will include the Ketchikan-Sun Valley area, which is served by the Sun Valley city-owned Moritz Community Hospital.

Last year, the board of trustees for Moritz proposed a plan to the county hospital that would bring joint management of the hospital, and eventually lead to consolidation.

The county trustees rejected the plan, but agreed to talk about the sharing of services, only to have the Sun Valley trustees reject that plan because they thought it was unproductive and would not save money. As of now, the idea is dead.

The state limits the number of "cities" a hospital can apply to the district's property assessment, Farnes said, and the maximum amount of revenue the district can raise is estimated at about $248,000.

It's doubtful the hospital needs the near quarter-million dollars, said Kinghorn.

He does say, however, the center may need more money in the first years of the law to catch up on the maintenance that has been neglected for the last few years.

Symms slates meeting on ethanol

HALLEY, Twin Falls officials in charge of alcohol fuel programs will speak in Burley Saturday during a public meeting about the prospects of ethanol production in Idaho.

The meeting, sponsored by Steve Symms, is scheduled for 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. in the Best Western Burley Inn.

Earle Gavett, director for the Alcohol Fuels Division of the U.S. Department of Agriculture, and Dan Beckman, deputy director of the Office of Alcohol Fuels in the U.S. Department of Energy, as well as officials from trade organizations, the J.R. Simplot Co. and the Idaho Ethanol Committee will participate.

Joe McCaskey, a University of Idaho professor, will speak on alternate crops at a midday luncheon.

Symms said, "This meeting will give Idaho farmers the chance to express their support for developing the ethanol program."

missioners a list of priorities the tax money would pay for when he meets with them on March 10.

There are several steps to forming the district. First, the trustees must get a petition favoring the district signed by 10 percent of the registered voters within the proposed district.

Next, the commissioners must give preliminary approval to the concept and hold public hearings. Farnes said the commissioners will probably hold hearings in Halley and Carey before making a final decision on sending the idea to the voters.

If the commissioners approve of the plan, then it takes a simple majority vote of participating voters to make it legal.

Bellevue resident Victoria Moore agreed that utilities shouldn't be allowed in a commercial zone.

Idaho Power Temperature Comparison Table

When you look in the bottom left corner of your bill and find that your actual electricity consumption this year compared to last year is not what you expected, it might be explained by the difference in temperatures. No matter how hard you work to conserve electricity, your actual use may increase simply because of an extra-hot winter or an extra-hot summer. The temperature comparison below can help explain those unexpected differences. The information compares average temperatures during January, 1986 and January, 1985.

Location	This year is:
Boise	9.6 degrees warmer
Twin Falls	9.7 degrees warmer
Pocatello	9.9 degrees warmer

This information is based on a calendar month. Since your bill is based on a 30-day month, it probably won't coincide exactly with the information given above. If you would like to find out exactly how temperatures this year compared with last year during your particular billing cycle, call the energy management representative at your local Idaho Power office.

Flammable liquids storage regulations aired by council

By INA HADAM
 Times-News correspondent

JEROME — The Jerome City Council discussed two conflicting regulations governing the bulk storage of flammable liquids at their meeting last week.

The issue was raised because of work being done at the Phillips 66 service station at West Lane to replace some underground storage tanks with three, 10,000-gallon tanks to be constructed above ground.

Fire Chief Jim Auchaire said the fire code does not allow above-ground tanks for flammable liquids within 300 feet of residential areas. However, the owner of the station said the Environmental Protection Agency regulations require storage in above-ground tanks.

Auchaire said there are numerous fire code violations in the area, and he charged that proper permits were not obtained before construction work began on bringing the tanks to the surface.

Mayor Ralph Peters asked for more information so the council's decision will be "in the best interests of the city."

The council empowered City Attorney Rob Williams and individual council members to act on behalf of the entire council on this matter.

In other business:
 Mayor Peters told the council the city is still without general liability insurance.
 Peters said the insurance pool the association of cities has been attempting to organize is "not getting off the ground" because the group cannot raise the necessary $600,000 to implement the plan.
 Peters said the insurance pool would save the city money. Last year's insurance cost was about $25,000 but is expected to be between $70,000 to $80,000 if the city has to get liability insurance other than through the pool, he said.

Peters instructed Vandiver to begin work at getting insurance located if the pool doesn't get underway soon.

The expected approval of the bicycle safety ordinance was postponed when Councilman Nathan Brooks asked if the new ordinance does not duplicate an already existing ordinance.

Councilwoman Jeanne Vandiver, who is proposing the ordinance, answered that it is not a duplication because the ordinance provides for stopping at stop signs and requires bicycle owners to take a safety course.

Councilman Gerald Ostler said the goal Vandiver is trying to reach to educate bicycle riders is "very worthy," and Councilman Henry Pharris asked how the ordinance is going to be enforced. The council decided to study the ordinance further before taking final action.

Keith Pierce complained to the council that his water bills have "tripled every year."
 "I am a little upset having to pay this kind of water bill," he said.
 Public Works Director Lanny Sloan said a new meter has been installed and the lines have been checked, and he arranged with Pierce to check the equipment again.

The council approved sending three city office employees for a computer programming course in conjunction with the Small Business Users organization, which will provide $25 of the $50 fee for each employee.

Peters said the training for these employees will keep the city from having to depend on just one person for computer programming.

Evans eyes farm moratorium

Wants authority from the Legislature to stop farm foreclosures

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democratic Gov. John Evans has decided to seek legislative authority to impose a moratorium on farm foreclosures if financial problems in the state sagging agriculture economy dramatically worsen.

"We're going to be going to the Legislature to suggest some standby authority to allow me the opportunity to create and announce a moratorium on foreclosures if it's necessary," Evans said in an interview with the national cable network C-Span, broadcast Friday.

"You lose the farm. You lose the implement dealer. You lose the supply dealer. You lose the business on main street, and then the bank has troubles and goes down," Evans said. "We can't stand to have a domino effect hit agriculture, as I view what the possibilities are."

GOV. JOHN EVANS Wary of 'domino effect'

SEN. STEVE SYMMS Doubts moratorium's value

Evans, in Washington to attend the National Governors' Association winter meeting, gave no details on the kind of proposal he will make to state lawmakers. But aides who have been working on the plan since Evans first suggested it several weeks ago have said the outline of a moratorium plan that has been in effect in Iowa.

Evans' administration economist Richard Gardner has conceded that there remain questions about the effectiveness of a moratorium imposed statewide that Evans ordered in early February from the College of can affect credit from federally chartered banks. The bulk of farm credit in Idaho, as in most other states, comes through the federal credit system.

Administration officials have said that a decision on whether Evans would use the moratorium authority if lawmakers approve it would be based on the results of a survey of the farm financial situation in the state that Evans ordered in early February from the College of Agriculture—at the University of Idaho in conjunction with the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

A similar survey last winter and spring indicated that more than 2,000 of the state's 24,000 farmers expected to be forced out of business in less than two years.

The C-Span interview with Evans followed a similar interview with Republican Sen. Steve Symms, who faces Evans in his 1986 bid for a second term. Symms questioned both the value and the fairness of a moratorium.

"I'm not sure that solves the problem," Symms said. "I have found there's not real enthusiastic support for so-called farm moratoriums, because that clouds the issue of people who want to leave the farm."

On the issue of fairness, Symms said, "The people that have been very thrifty, very frugal and are still holding on to the farm — it's somewhat unfair to them to put them in a position where they have to compete against people who are less better off financially than they are. If you're going to have the system work at all, that's what free enterprise is about — the right to succeed, if you can succeed, but also the right to fail."

Symms, while criticizing some provisions of the 1985 farm bill, contended the policies set out in that bill will move agriculture toward a period of prosperity.

But Evans, calling the bill the best that could be put together considering the political circumstances, was critical of the attempt to "quickly" direct government price supports for producers.

While agreeing with a move toward a free market agriculture, Evans predicted it would be many years until that could be accomplished without dramatic disruption of the nation's agricultural sector.

State Democrats hope only for slight gains in 1986 vote

BOISE (AP) — Democrats after the 1984 campaign, giving the leaders in the Idaho Legislature are hoping for only modest gains in this fall's election with the major aim to break the Republican two-thirds majority in the Senate.

"That one seat is an important one, and we intend to fight for it," said Senate Democratic Leader Kermit Klebert of Hope. The Democrats dropped to only 14 senators in 1984.

With regard to the way the economy has been, you're going to see some people at this point in time who want change, he said. They're going to look for someone else to take a crack at solving the problems.

'Biggest' bull had big heart, say owners of the late Satan

KUNA (AP) — Satan — eulogized as the world's largest steer — was loved by his gentle giant who loved lettuce, peaches and almost made Texas cry.

"He was a good friend, and all the miles we traveled, he never hurt anyone," owner Jack Mericle said. "He was a nice guy. I suppose there will be another world's greatest steer, but he will never be like Satan."

He had to be put to death last Sunday after he injured his back, fell and was unable to get up, Mericle and his wife, Penny, said.

Satan was nearly 16 years old when he died — the equivalent of at least 100 human years.

The 2-ton Brangus shorthorn steer measured 6 feet 4 inches tall at the shoulders, 13 feet 7 inches in length, and 11 feet 5 inches in girth.

People from 28 foreign countries and all 50 states came to the Mericles farm to see Satan. He even received fan mail, Penny said.

"When he wasn't quietly taking care of the centerpiece of Mericle Farm and Managerie west of Kuna, Satan was on the road, appearing at county fairs, and even starring in several television commercials.

Mericle recalled one tour that brought Satan to Texas. Some Texans almost cried, he said.

"They said, 'You shouldn't have a big steer coming out of there. That's potato country.'"

"There were so many places we'd go that (said they) had the world's biggest steer. Then after we'd pull in, they had the second biggest steer."

"For all that, Satan was 'just another member of the family,' the Mericles said.

"He was very special and very much of a person," Mrs. Mericle said Thursday. "He mothered all the animals. He would 'lick' them on the top of the head and just baby them."

Before Satan died, Penny gave him some grain and one of his favorite foods — lettuce.

"He just devoured it," she said. "It was so sad, because he was healthy — he just couldn't get up. His knees were starting to break from trying to get up so many times."

Besides lettuce, Satan loved fresh peaches.

"He would just devour them with his rough tongue," Penny said. "I tried to give him some frozen peaches once, but he wouldn't have them."

Corbell retires from Idaho Air Guard, Townsend steps in

BOISE (AP) — Col. Robert Corbell planned to step down as commander of the Idaho Air National Guard on Sunday in a change of command ceremony at Gowen Field in Boise.

Tactical Reconnaissance Group, Corbell has commanded the 124th since 1978, and is scheduled to officially retire at the end of March.

Under his command, the 124th has received more awards and decorations than any other reconnaissance unit in the country, an Air Guard spokesman said.

Corbell has logged more than 4,000 flying hours in the F-16, the Idaho Air Guard's reconnaissance workhorse. The figure is the highest of any pilot in the Air Force or National Guard.

Risch calls for apology from Ellis

BOISE (AP) — Idaho Senate President Pro Tem James Risch has called on Pocatello School Superintendent Watkins to apologize to the Senate Local Government and Taxation Committee and its chairman, Sen. Dane Watkins.

Ellis rebuked the Idaho Falls Republican last week for preventing a hearing in his committee on a bill that would allow school districts to hold multi-year levies.

The bill was meant to give school districts more budget-making flexibility, but Ellis said the chances of seeing it come up in Watkins' committee were "pretty slim."

In a statement issued Friday, Risch called that unfair criticism, pointing out that Watkins' panel spent more than three hours considering the measure on Feb. 17 and only then voted not to send it to the entire Senate.

The Boise Republican said Ellis' comments were incorrect and maligned the Senate committee system.

"It is important that before a school superintendent takes it upon himself to publicly criticize a committee chairman for blocking a bill, he would do well to fully investigate the matter and get his facts straight," Risch said.

Rigby man killed in crash with auto

RIGBY (AP) — A Rigby man was killed when the motorcycle he was riding hit a car coming out of a driveway onto Idaho Highway 48 east of Rigby, an Idaho State Police officer said.

Drake Lynn Moore, 27, was pronounced dead on arrival Friday night at Riverview Hospital in Idaho Falls. The driver of the car, Scott L. Nielson, 36, also of Rigby, was treated and released.

ISP Cpl. Wes Stewart said Moore was westbound on Idaho 48 about a mile east of Rigby at 9:40 p.m. Friday when he collided with Nielson's car near the left front tire. He was thrown about 20 feet, Stewart said.

No charges had been filed on Saturday, and Stewart said the accident was still being investigated.

The government likes to think of your money as its own. This is for people with a different idea.

Some tax refunds will be delayed

BOISE (AP) — Some Idaho state tax refunds will be delayed by two weeks because of processing problems caused by a change in the tax laws, said a member of the state Tax Commission.

Officials lack the proper computer software to process some returns, said commission member Steve Miller.

The legislature last year combined the Idaho resident return with the non-resident and part-year resident return.

The Tax Commission normally starts paying refunds the latter part of February, and the first week of March, Miller said.

... Few people, if any, relish the thought of giving their hard earned dollars to Uncle Sam each year. In fact, we can't think of a soul who enjoys the annual ritual of paying taxes.

Fortunately, there's a less taxing alternative.

'Last great' sled race draws record field

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — Eager, yelping dogs dragged their handlers down the street to the starting chute Saturday in a field of 73 teams set out into the icy wilderness on the 14th annual Iditarod Trail Sled Dog Race.

The punishing 1,158-mile endurance contest, which organizers call "the Last Great Race on Earth," follows the historic Iditarod Trail, heavily used in the early part of the century when dog sleds were the primary means of winter travel in Alaska.

It is the legacy of a race to save lives in 1925 when relays of dog sleds rushed diphtheria serum to Nome to combat an outbreak of the disease in the Bering Sea community.

This year, each team carries a ceremonial vial of serum to help publicize a modern-day vaccination drive against diphtheria.

Of the 73 starters, there were three from Norway, two from Great Britain, one each from Italy and Switzerland, two from Minnesota and one from Montana. The rest are Alaskans.

The temperature was around zero as thousands of spectators lined the trail in fur hats and hoods and with ice-adorned moustaches and beards, pushed against temporary fences to watch.

Dan Lafferty informed he will be jailed for life

POINT OF THE MOUNTAIN, Utah (AP) — Daniel Charles Lafferty, the self-proclaimed prophet convicted of killing his sister-in-law and her daughter, has become the second person to be told by the state Board of Pardons he will serve the rest of his life in prison.

He will be formally notified in writing because he refused to appear at his hearing Friday and signed a waiver allowing the board to conduct his hearing in his absence.

Utah law requires the pardons board to hold a parole hearing after one year in prison for all persons serving life sentences.

Lafferty, 37, of Orem, was convicted of slaying his sister-in-law Brenda Lafferty, formerly of Kimberly, Idaho, and her daughter, Erica Lane Lafferty, in their American Fork home on July 24, 1984.

He was sentenced by 4th District Judge Robert J. Dwyer to serve life for first-degree murder and five years to life on two counts of criminal conspiracy and two counts of aggravated burglary.

His brother Ronald Watson Lafferty, 43, was sentenced to death. His case is on an automatic appeal to the Utah Supreme Court.

DAN LAFFERTY Parole chance eliminated

Heber Norton, 70, was told earlier this year that he will spend the rest of his life in prison. He was convicted of murdering two bank tellers during a robbery of the First Security Bank in Huntington in 1979.

Debt repaid; commune suit is dismissed

PORTLAND (AP) — A West German woman who sued the commune of Indian guru Bhagwan Shree Rajneesh, saying it had taken $800,000 from her Swiss bank account without her permission, has been repaid that amount. U.S. Bankruptcy Judge Elizabeth Perris on Friday dismissed the bankruptcy action brought in December by Eva Maria Mann of West Berlin against Rajneesh Neosannyas International Commune, Ms. Mann, a former Rajneesh disciple, claimed the money was used by the commune.

Her attorney, William F. Martson Jr., said Mann had been paid the full amount of her claim for money she said was withdrawn in Switzerland by Urs Birnstiel, a Rajneesh follower known as Syamji Prem Dipo.

Birnstiel, a Swiss citizen, was married last year to Ma Anand Sheela, the former top aide to Rajneesh at the sect's Central Oregon commune city of Rajneeshpuram. Sheela was in jail in Portland Saturday awaiting trial on federal wiretapping and immigration-fraud charges.

McKinney's brutality suit dismissed

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — A federal judge has dismissed the brutality suit filed by Joyce McKinney, the former Wyoming beauty queen accused in Britain in 1977 of kidnapping and sexually assaulting a Mormon missionary.

The suit, filed last August, claimed officers used excessive force when they arrested her two years ago on charges of shadowing the same man, was dismissed on a technicality. U.S. District Chief Judge Bruce S. Jenkins ordered the complaint dismissed without prejudice, which means she could file it again.

The suit, filed last August, claimed two police officers violated Ms. McKinney's civil rights when they arrested her two years ago on charges of shadowing the same man, was dismissed on a technicality.

Blocker sets record; Vikings' season is over

By LARRY HOVEY
Times-News writer

REXBURG — A slight case of embarrassment and a little prodding from the sidelines carried sophomore forward Chris Blocker to a one-game College of Southern Idaho scoring record in his final regular-season appearance here Saturday.

Blocker, hitting 27 points in the first half, led the Vikings to a 66-40 victory over the Bulldogs in the final game of the season. Blocker's record-breaking performance shined by one point the previous CSI standard set in 1979 by Ron Fryson and came just 24 hours after he had a 6-for-26 shooting night against Ricks.

"I had to come back," said Blocker. "Last night was the worst shooting night of my life. I felt the rest of my game was pretty solid, but I couldn't hit the broadside of a barn."

Blocker promised Coach Fred Trenkle he would do a little better Saturday night and lived up to that quite easily.

"Yes, I know I must be getting close to a record because coach called timeout and told me to shoot the next couple times down the floor."

CSI

CSI 102, Ricks 84

Region-18 tournament in St. George, Utah, where it will meet southern division runner-up Snow College at 7 p.m. Friday in the Dixie College gym. Most Dixie, the southern division winner, will meet northern division runner-up North Idaho in the 9 p.m. nightcap.

The 6-foot-4 Philadelphia's

Blocker said. "But (Eric) Newman and (Greg) Boyd kept popping open and I had to give the ball to them."

Three consecutive jumpers from just above the foul line carried Blocker to the record. He broke it up with 4-26 to play and Trenkle immediately took him out of the game. Blocker was coasting on a 27-point advantage.

The blocker was 15-for-20 from the field and 13-for-14 at the foul line Saturday night.

Trenkle said he wanted Blocker to have the record, especially after such a torrid first half. He and assistant Coach Steve Irons kept close contact with the official scorer so they would know exactly when the moment came.

Overall, Trenkle said, "It was the kind of series we needed to get ready to play in the tournament next week. Last night, we didn't play behind NIC in the bid for second place. We still managed to come place up with a tight victory and that was good for us. And tonight, I just wanted to give our momentum where we wanted. We'll shoot around a little Sunday, work hard Monday and Tuesday, taper off Wednesday and head to St. George Thursday morning."

It was a bitter loss for Ricks. The Vikings' loss combined with NIC's 100-66 victory over Treasure Valley Community College in Coeur d'Alene Saturday night means that the Cardinals and not Ricks will be the regionalists in the Vikings' four-tournament series this year. Ricks ended the season at 19-12, 6-6 in northern division play.

Simis propels Gooding to crown

Senators nip Dogs; both will go to A-3

By BRAD BRELAND
Times-News writer

WENDELL — For Todd Simis, it was what he had become — just an average night lately.

Simis scored 26 points, just a night after scoring 30, to pace the Gooding Senators to a 76-71 victory over Kimberly and the City District 4 Class A-3 boys' basketball championship.

A-3

Gooding 76
Kimberly 71

Both teams will advance to this week's state A-3 tournament that gets under way Thursday at the Boise State University Pavilion.

At 2:30 p.m. Thursday, the Bulldogs will play third-ranked Sugar-Salem. The Senators, the No. 2 A-3 team in the state, will play at 10 p.m. against the District 4 Class A-3 squad in the state.

The game was dead even for the first five minutes of the contest with both teams trading leads.

Kimberly broke out to a four-point lead on baskets by Brent Meyers and Brett Wright-six minutes into the contest.

Gooding turned the tide in the closing minutes with a three-point shot by Dean Metzger and a pair of buckets by Sven Swenson. Swenson boosted the Senators to a 20-19 lead at the end of the first quarter.

The Senators opened up a seven point lead midway through the second period when they outscored Kimberly 9-3 in the opening four minutes. The Senators held on and led at the break 33-29.

Gooding then went on a tear.

Simis had three baskets from the outside and Swenson and Brian Darcy had a pair on the inside, boosting the Gooding lead to 11 points.

Lennie Paul, who had a career high 21 points, brought Kimberly back after scoring six points in the third quarter cutting the lead to seven.

Gooding outscored Kimberly 13-7 in the final two minutes taking a 60-47 advantage at the end of the third quarter.

Simis, Darcy and Swenson combined for 21 points for the Senators in the third quarter.

Gooding led by as many as 17 points in the fourth quarter before Kimberly scored some uncontested baskets at the end.

Despite the big outburst of points from Simis, Gooding's Lennie Paul, Anderson didn't give him all of the credit.

"We had a lot of players play well," he said. "We played 10 deep and we got good performances out of our seven, eight, nine and 10 players. The kids really played well."

"You gotta love the Kimberly kids," said Kimberly Coach Ann Kelsey said after the game. "They really stuck in there."

Kimberly added 18 points for Gooding while Swenson added 14. William Novis rounded out the top four scorers for Gooding with a dozen points.

Kurt Holcomb had 19 points for the Bulldogs.

The smell of pine tar may soon be as commonplace as snow in January, as CSI starts its season early, thanks to the weather. # Wyatt sinks 40 to sink Bruins, 92-68

By SCOTT TUDEHOPE
Times-News writer

POCATELLO — There's not much you can do when that happens," said Twin Falls Coach John Astorquia, referring to Saturday night's 40-point performance by Pocatello High School senior Wade Wyatt.

That effort propelled the Indians to a 92-68 victory over Twin Falls and into the championship game of the Region III-Class A-4 boys' basketball tournament.

The loss ended the Bruins' season at 11-12.

The 6-foot-4 Wyatt, who signed a letter of intent with the University of Utah before the season began, ripped the nets for 15 field goals, seven from outside the three-point line. His 40 points erased a decade-old school scoring record of 39 points.

A-1

"We weren't aware of the record seriously we weren't," said Pocatello Coach Jerry Koester, whose team will take on Highland in the Rams' gymnasium for the regional crown on Tuesday. "I found out on the way up the stairs to the radio."

But Wyatt wasn't Twin Falls' only savior. The Bruins were out-rebounded 24-1 by Pocatello and pulled down just one offensive rebound in the first half.

"That was our No. 1 pre-game strategy — positioning," said Koester, a former Butte High School coach. "It was what we'd worked on the most."

Pocatello's win was definitive from almost the beginning. Twin Falls fell briefly on buckets by Tom Prater and David Fulton, but the Indians overtook their Gem State Conference opponents on a Jon Goodman field goal with six minutes left in the first period and never trailed again.

The second quarter saw the Indians continually go to Wyatt, despite the Bruins' best efforts to stop him. By the end of the half, Pocatello sported a 15-point lead.

It was a wide-open game, with 21 three-point goals going down, 13 for Pocatello. Unfortunately for the Bruins, their defense wasn't up for the punishment Pocatello was dishing out.

"We tried two different defenses and four different people (on Wyatt)," Astorquia said. "Tommy (Prater) had Wyatt and he is one of our leading scorers. As a result, we had to put couple of slower people on him to give Tommy a breather. Without a doubt, it's one of the best halves I've seen in many moons."

Pocatello's offense didn't slow down in the third period, either. Wyatt passed off to Gary Ramos at 1:30 into the period for two field goals, snuffing a brief Bruin surge. The Indians increased their lead to as much as 29 points in the final quarter before Koester put in his subs.

Except for their problems with Wyatt and his shortcomings on the boards, Astorquia said he wasn't displeased with the Bruins' effort Saturday.

"I got beat by a better ballclub," he said. "All year, we haven't been able to control the tempo of the game we've had trouble with quicker teams."

John Fulton paced the Bruins with 19 points, five of them three pointers.

Bengals post 66-62 win over 'Cats

The Associated Press

OGDEN, Utah — Donn Holston scored 25 points to lead Idaho State in the final Big Sky Conference basketball game of the season for both teams here Saturday night.

The win was the first road victory of the season for the Bengals, who are ineligible to play in the post-season Big Sky Conference tournament because they are on NCAA probation — and ended ISU's season with a 15-12 overall mark, the school's first winning season since 1981-82.

Idaho State's 8-6 conference record placed them in third place in the final Big Sky standings.

Bolise State finished at 7-7 and 17-10 to tie Nevada-Reno for fourth place. The Wildcats are scheduled to play Boise State in Reno on March 9 in the first round of the Big Sky tournament, hitting eight for 15 from the field and eight of 10 from the line, had scoring support from Phil Rohrer, who hit six of 11 3-point shots for 18 points.

Weber State led the second half until one of Rohr's 3-pointers put the Bengals ahead 48-47.

Idaho State's largest lead was 58-50, with 5:21 left in the game. Holston made a crucial 3-point play with 43 seconds on the clock to nail down the win.

The Wildcats started the game with seven straight points, only to have the Bengals answer with a 10-0 streak.

Weber State enjoyed a lead of 30-19 at one point in the first half, but Idaho State had cut it to 41-37 by the half.

Walt Tyler and Dale Baum led Weber State's scoring with 12 points apiece. No other Wildcat was in double figures.

Broncos ruin NAU's title bid, 58-52

By SCOTT PEYRON
Special to the Times-News

BOISE — A Boise night that was no more than a leprechaun's whisker from being magic took a fateful turn for the Northern Arizona University men's basketball team.

Boise State chopped down NAU 58-52 Saturday felling the Lumberjacks' dreams of a Big Sky Conference regular season championship and a 20th victory in front of 4,160 fans.

Boise State's Arizona victory would have meant outright possession of the Big Sky's championship because Montana lost Saturday to Montana State and Weber State — the team that had to finish in the top place for Montana to elude NAU in the chamampionship tie-breaker — fell to Idaho State.

By losing at Boise, Northern Arizona, like Montana, finished 9-5 in the Big Sky, but NAU won the tie-breaker for the No. 1 seed in the post-season tournament next week at Reno.

The tournament champion is automatically seeded into the NCAA tournament.

Boise State climbed to 6-8 in conference play and 12-15 overall.

No more than a month ago, in Flagstaff, Ariz., the Lumberjacks handed Boise State its worst defeat ever, 70-42.

But Boise State's attack, stylish and man-to-man defense confounded Northern Arizona's normally smooth offensive flow.

NAU, the Big Sky's best shooting team, hit just 36 percent of its shots from the floor, 17 points below its average.

All-league forward Andy Hurd hit just 5 of 15 shots for NAU, and sophomore guard Chris Childs scored 11 points. NAU spared eight rebounds for the Broncos.

Junior center Jeff Kelley had 10 points and eight boards to accompany.

CSI women rally on Ricks, 72-65, keep hopes alive

By LARRY HOVEY
Times-News writer

REXBURG — The College of Southern Idaho women's basketball team, getting a big second half scoring spark from Janie Ancho, kept its season alive for at least another game Saturday by defeating Ricks College, 72-65.

The split of the weekend series, the second time the Jaegers have traded homecourt wins and losses means that CSI and Ricks will play off early next week for the second spot in the Region 18 junior college tournament that opens Friday night in Coeur d'Alene.

At a meeting between the schools, it was decided the game would play Tuesday with site and starting time still undetermined. Ricks will investigate the possibility of using gymnasiums in Pocatello and American Falls, if necessary. It was agreed the game would not start before 3 p.m.

Ancho, a freshman from Battle Mountain, Nev., hit five consecutive field goals in the second half as CSI rallied to stay just ahead of the pressing Vikings women.

The first half was close throughout, with the Vikings hitting the last two field goals for a 33-29 advantage. After a succession of ties, CSI took its first lead with 9:31 on Ancho's second field goal. She added another the next time, downcourt, and CSI stayed three to five points ahead over the next several minutes.

CSI's biggest lead was seven points, held three times over the final minutes and 34 seconds.

The victory improved CSI's season record to 17-13, while Ricks fell to 14-13. Both teams wrap up the northern division Region 18 season with 66 minutes.

The winner of the Vikings-CSI playoff will face southern division champion Utah Tech (56-0). Co-3-ranked women's junior college team in the country, in the regional tournament at Coeur d'Alene on Friday.

THE ACES

BOBBY WOLFF

Dear Mr. Wolff: Can you explain in simple terms what is meant by a negative double? There is some disagreement among our top players.

Two Views, Rochester, N.Y.

ANSWER: When one player opens the bidding and his partner doubles an opposing overcall, that double has been traditionally treated as a penalty double. If you play negative doubles, partner's double has a different meaning. It says, "I have a hand worth some sort of bid but no convenient bid is available." The negative double promises six or more HCP and support for unbid suits.

Dear Mr. Wolff: If opener bids one spade and rebids two hearts after a one-no-trump response, is responder forced to bid again?

New Salt, Montgomery, Ala.

ANSWER: No, he may pass with a minimum response and/or preference for hearts over spades. Had opener bid hearts first and then spades at the two-level (a reverse), most would treat this as a forcing bid.

Dear Mr. Wolff: I double an opening three-spade bid for takeout and partner responds three no-trump. Does this promise an unequivocal spade stopper?

Reaching Salts, Whittier, N.C.

ANSWER: I would think so. Something like A-x-x, K-x-x, or as weak as Q-10-x. Some stoppers prove to be more equivocal than others.

Dear Mr. Wolff: If the opponents use Blackwood and I have length in the artificial reply, should I double the Blackwood response to show partner the length? Useful late, Pipe Bluff, Ark.

ANSWER: The double of a Blackwood response suggests that partner lead that suit when the play begins. Doubling to show high-card strength in that suit (or a void) is decidedly preferable. In doubling to show length, information about length might be useful only in those rare cases when it allows partner to find a profitable sacrifice.

Dear Mr. Wolff: If an opponent bids a suit, is my king in that suit worth more if I am sitting behind the bidder?

Positional Values, Tucson, Ariz.

ANSWER: In general, yes. An unsupported king is worth a trick when it sits with an ace behind an ace or opposite the ace. It's worth next to nothing when it loses to an opponent's ace located behind the king.

THE GRANGE

Through its success, the farm fraternity
may have declined

By LORAYNE O. SMITH

Anderson visits

TWIN FALLS — Granges in Twin Falls County need to accept 16 produce booths at the Twin Falls County Fair. Last year there was only one.

Nothing indicates better the steady decline of the oldest farm organization in the world. However, there are still about 28 local or subordinate granges in the Magic Valley and a few are thriving.

But the sale of the Twin Falls Grange Hall recently illustrates the problems facing the longtime fraternal farm organization everywhere.

"We don't have a member under 50," said Elmo Farrar, Hanson master of the Twin Falls Grange. While there are still 48 members, he said attendance has dropped to about a dozen.

The agreement with the Heritage Alliance Church gives the grange a five-year lease to continue holding its meetings at the hall on South Blue Lakes, which over the years has been used for square dances and other community meetings.

But although the Twin Falls Grange is no longer flourishing, members will continue their long history of community support by donating $500 this year to the Twin Falls Senior Center from interest on the proceeds of the sale, Farrar said.

Like many lodges and fraternal groups organized to meet social and community needs in rural America during the 19th century, that even the prosperous years farmers have had for several decades until recently worked against the community-based farm organization.

"Times were so good farmers had money for so many other things, they didn't need each other," he said, referring to the co-op movement spurred by the grange years ago when twine, coal and many other supplies were purchased through the organization to save farmers' money. A few Grange Co-op farm supply stores still exist in Magic Valley.

But recently many younger farm families, lured by TV and recreational opportunities unknown to their predecessors, have lost interest in the more "down home" grange activities, such as potluck suppers, card parties and picnics.

Only Farrar said social activities are but part of the local grange program. Members long have helped with many diverse community projects and the grange is one of the few groups in which men and women, as well as their children, can all meet and work together. Youth can join at age 14 and younger children can belong to the junior grange. But there are only about three of these left in the state, Dougherty said.

Installing concrete markers at scenic sites in the county was one of the many projects of the Twin Falls Grange. Countywide, local granges have provided both money and labor for such places as the Balanced Rock and Rock Creek parks.

Even the ritualistic part of the grange, three of the seven founding members were Masons) has become a bone of contention between the generations, both men and women, as well as their children, can all meet and work together. ## Family history supplies a hobby

By LORAYNE O. SMITH
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Viola Gold's grandchildren never will have to wonder where she went to school or seek in vain for details of her early life.

Family history, for many people lost forever because they don't ask questions while their elders are alive, is kept intact by the Twin Falls woman in an attractive "Heritage Book of Remembrance." She has shown her project many times, urging others to document their own family events.

Falls nine years ago. She's crocheted helium tablecloths for her children and grandchildren and also likes embroidery.

Her apartment is filled with a great assortment of dolls, ranging from Barbies to a realistically dressed Eskimo, from Alaska, where she has visited two of her children several times.

An enthusiastic flower gardener, she served as treasurer of the Gooding County Flower Club. She said she has always loved pets and said she has had a "dog who talks" since moving to Twin Falls. As a girl, she raised orphan lambs and once found a nearly dead quail which she revived and kept inside all winter.

"My parents let me keep it on condition I'd let it go free in the spring," she said. Not only has she had countless dogs, cats and canaries, but she has kept dairies about her pets.

She's done extensive genealogical research, but her recording of family history is nothing new in her family. For her parents and grandparents, who crossed the plains in the Mormon westward movement, and also recorded their experiences.

Gold grew up in the Shoestring district between Wendell and Gooding where her parents, George and Jennie Jenkins, arrived on Dec. 2, 1916, when she was 5 years old. Her father had been foreman of a copper mine smelter plant in Magna, Utah, where she was born on March 7, 1911.

But they had to leave because the air pollution was affecting her mother's health.

Gold attended the Shoestring country school, which was enlarged while her father was chairman of the board. A Gooding was added on the second story.

When they completed the eighth grade, she and her sister went to Salt Lake City to live with relatives while they attended high school, as their farm home was eight miles from Gooding — too far to walk in the days before school buses.

She said her parents lost their Shoestring farm, as did all but one of the early settlers, because of lack of irrigation water. In 1928 she married Denzell Gold, whom she had met at a dance in a Wendell home.

she has fond memories of the gatherings at the school where the "whole community" would gather for a big potluck dinner and program. Then the adults would dance while the small children slept.

After their marriage, the Golds lived in Kimberly, where Denzell was a trucker for a cattle company. But she wanted "to go back to the farm" which her husband, although raised in town, liked as much as she did.

They farmed in the Shoestring district for three years, then in Tuttle, where they lived for many years.

The Golds had five children, four of whom are still living, and in addition to caring for them, she also helped with the farm work.

I milked cows from the age of 9 to 16 when we sold the cattle," she said. She also finished raising a teen-aged grandson, so that she was raising children from age 19 to 70, Denzell, who also worked for the North State Cannery Co. for 30 years, died in 1976. She left the farm a year later.

Her children include Jean Watson, of Twin Falls; Denzell Gold and Patricia Penzenik, both of Anchorage, Alaska, and Sue Ann Frosham, of Boise.

When Joe Laughlin and Anne Prothro were married on March 7, 1915, Woodrow Wilson was president and the U.S. was intent on staying out of World War I.

This Friday, after seven decades, two world wars and the change from a rural horse-drawn agricultural society to the post-industrial age, the retired farm couple will observe their 71st anniversary.

This is, as Laughlin put it, "quite a long time."

They both were 20 years old when they changed wedding vows at her uncle's farm northwest of Twin Falls, although Laughlin turned 21 within a few months, being six months older than his bride.

They both were 20 years old when they changed wedding vows at her uncle's farm northwest of Twin Falls, although Laughlin turned 21 within a few months, being six months older than his bride.

The couple first farmed in the Hazelton area, when the only way to reach Twin Falls was to cross the Snake River by ferry at Shoshone Falls.

They were glad to get back to Twin Falls," Anne Laughlin said during an interview in their pleasant, large room at Heritage Manor, where they have lived for the past three years. In 1924 they moved south to Kimberly and farmed at several locations there for more than half a century. Joe, who "loved to farm," didn't retire until he was 80 years old.

Anne, who was born Jan. 16, 1885, near Natchitoches, La., was orphaned as a young girl. Her father died when she was 5, and when she was 14, she lost her mother. Anne and her three younger sisters went to live with an uncle and aunt, the Edward Duke family.

In 1910, the Dukés moved to Twin Falls, settling on a farm northwest of town. The same year, Joe's

The thick book not only records her own activities but illustrates lifestyles, such as all the different types of transportation she has used — from horse and buggy to airplane.

This is just one of the impressive number and variety of hobbies which keep Gold, who spent her life as a farm wife, from "getting bored."

Perhaps they help explain why Gold, 74, who dropped out of high school to spare her parents the expense of keeping her in Salt Lake City, is one of the very few persons ever to obtain the GED (high school equivalency diploma) at CST simply by walking in and taking the test.

She has since taken courses there and three years ago proudly graduated from the LDS Institute in Twin Falls.

Date nears for (hams) dance across America

By LLOYD GROVES
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — Suppose that one fine day, 6 million Americans all decide to hold hands. They'd make an unbroken human chain from coast to coast. They'd be the largest group of people ever to take part in the same event. They'd be "the largest number of voices," according to a press release, ever to be "joined in song."

"This hand is your hand," they could sing.

"This hand is my hand. From California to the New York Island. Now try to imagine that some very determined types actually propose to do it. That they have already raised money, hired staff, drawn up organizational charts, commissioned marketing studies, rounded up celebrities — even issued press releases

"It naturally causes people's imaginations to run free," says Fred Droz, who is project director of the effort, dubbed Hands Across America and sponsored by USA for Africa, the people responsible for "We Are the World."

"There's a phenomenon that takes over — the creative opportunities just congregate and continue to multiply."

The event is scheduled to occur on May 25 — at noon on the Santa Monica Pier, the westernmost link, and at 3 p.m. in New York's Battery Park — the easternmost link. Three time zones away. People who want to join in — about 1,320, give or take a few, are needed per mile along the 4,152-mile route — will be asked for a handout of from $10 to $50. The point of it: It is to raise as much as $100 million for the hungry and homeless of the United States.

"5:25 Ops." Droz calls the project with military inflection, throwing in

Spotlight

Continued from Page D1 parents came here from Texas, where he was born on June 12, 1894, near Irving, Minn.

The Laughlins farmed near the Dukes, and the young people soon got acquainted.

The couple are longtime members of the Kimberly United Methodist Church, where she used to play the piano. Anne also belonged to the Pioneer Club and the Readers' Guild in Kimberly.

They have two daughters, Carol Snyder of Eugene, Ore., and Lois Pierce of Buhl; seven grandchildren, 17 great-grandchildren, and one great-great-grandchild.

Amy Lancaster, 13, daughter of Don Lancaster, Kimberly, and Karen Lancaster, Twin Falls, will be a contestant in the Idaho Miss Teen pageant, scheduled for June 27-29 at the College of Idaho in Caldwell. Her hobbies include music, crafts, reading, sports, writing and computing. She is sponsored by Ideal Teen Services, First Federal Savings and Loan, Gem Equipment, Simplost Sullibusters, Bonnie's Hair Design and Transformation Unlimited.

Jodi Silvers was first place winner in a Valentine contest sponsored by Penny-Wilco. Halima Shana Schutte took second place, while Rose Pate captured the special design prize and the Kenneth Kneifels took the family prize. Sharing first prizes were Jennifer Emery, Dona Henman, Angle Joy, Granges throughout the Magic Valley all reflect a general graying among memberships, but some are still vigorous, said Esther Kistler, Gooding, who served as state Grange lecturer for eight years and now is Gooding County Pomona master. Her late husband, Ira, was also a state Grange leader.

Kistler, who joined the Gooding Grange in 1945, membership "was like a college education" in which she gained public speaking ability as well as knowledge about governmental issues.

She stressed the value of an organization where husband and wife can work together. Her local Gooding Grange No. 138, of which she was the first woman master, has 180 members and still meets twice monthly. But attendance now runs at about 25 and a kitchen has been installed on the main floor in the attractive hall on Main Street.

The Gooding Grange hosted the state session last fall with some 400 members in attendance.

Gooding County still has six out of seven original subordinate granges, while Mindotko County maintains three active groups, having lost two. Both Cassia and Blaine counties each have one active grange. Albion and Upper Big Wood River, respectively, while Lincoln County still has four.

Dougherty said she has 300 members. She said she was "shocked" to hear of the sale of Twin Falls Grange Hall.

The national grange was formed in 1867, shortly after the Civil War. Oliver Hudson Kelley, who homesteaded in Minnesota, conceived the idea that a fraternal organization of farmers from all sections of the country would "help heal the scars of the war as well as improve the economic and social position of the farm population."

Ironically, the grange, in its success, may have contributed to its own decline.

"I hate to say it," Dougherty said, "but I don't see such improvement unless times get really bad again."

Grange

Hollister is unique in two ways, Dougherty said. It is an isolated community and "several young men have returned to operate family farms."

In contrast, both the Mountain Rock and Knoll Granges, located on the outskirts of Twin Falls, are "just holding their charter."

John Hollister, who served as master of the Hollister Grange, said one of the highlights in that community is the annual event the grange holds each spring to honor all eighth-grade and high school graduates.

Granges throughout the Magic Valley all reflect a general graying among memberships, but some are still vigorous, said Esther Kistler, Gooding, who served as state Grange lecturer for eight years and now is Gooding County Pomona master. Her late husband, Ira, was also a state Grange leader.

Kistler, who joined the Gooding Grange in 1945, membership "was like a college education" in which she gained public speaking ability as well as knowledge about governmental issues.

She stressed the value of an organization where husband and wife can work together. Her local Gooding Grange No. 138, of which she was the first woman master, has 180 members and still meets twice monthly. But attendance now runs at about 25 and a kitchen has been installed on the main floor in the attractive hall on Main Street.

The Gooding Grange hosted the state session last fall with some 400 members in attendance.

Gooding County still has six out of seven original subordinate granges, while Mindotko County maintains three active groups, having lost two. Both Cassia and Blaine counties each have one active grange. Albion and Upper Big Wood River, respectively, while Lincoln County still has four.

Dougherty said she has 300 members. She said she was "shocked" to hear of the sale of Twin Falls Grange Hall.

The national grange was formed in 1867, shortly after the Civil War. Oliver Hudson Kelley, who homesteaded in Minnesota, conceived the idea that a fraternal organization of farmers from all sections of the country would "help heal the scars of the war as well as improve the economic and social position of the farm population."

Ironically, the grange, in its success, may have contributed to its own decline.

"I hate to say it," Dougherty said, "but I don't see such improvement unless times get really bad again."

Hands

Continued from Page D1 for good measure, such terms as "response fulfillment" and "selfie obligation" at 40, he's a veteran political advance man (Fred Harris in 1976 and in 1972 Hubert Humphrey, whose 21-car motorcade he once sent the wrong way down the Tampa St. Causeway, and now leading the Florida primary and now heads a consulting company in California.

His candidates lost, but Droz says his response to his project gleaned from various "focus groups" conducted recently "has been heartening."

"Hands Across America is like a national 'Korschach' test — everybody reads into it what they want," he said. "Dropples view it as a return to the '60s. Democrats see it as a grass-roots activity. Republicans see it as an example of private-sector voluntarism. Seniors view it as a return to neighborhood. And kids view it as a 'Korschach' in the world."

"Droz, it turns out, has the perfect handshake for this sort of thing — not quite limp but not painfully aggressive either, and happily.

"We'll be breaking a lot of records," he said. "Most amount of miles, most amount of Stutzgarts to Neu-Ulm."

community event in history, most portable effort. So far, he said, the effort boasts volunteers in 14 states and the District of Columbia, plus a full-time staff of 35 working away in West Los Angeles. "This thing will need a chapter of its own in the Guinness Book of World Records."

If successful, it will render microscopic the biggest such event to date, according to the Guinness people, that occurred in West Germany on Oct. 12, 1982, when about 200,000 peace demonstrators held hands along a 6.4-mile stretch from Stuttgart to Neu-Ulm.

A name change may be hard for one's loved ones to accept

DEAR ABBY: This is no joke, so please take it seriously and give me some advice. I'm a single male, 33 years old. I was named Ray Jr. after my father (Mr. Michael). I never liked my name. All through school I wished I had a name I liked better.

Two years ago my father died, so last year I petitioned the court for a legal name change. I chose Michael.

Now for my problem: Nobody, but absolutely nobody, calls me Michael. I had copies made of my official name-change document and mailed them out to my friends and relatives requesting that they start calling me "Michael." I even had my I.D., bank account, credit cards, etc. changed to Michael.

When I am addressed as Ray, I politely say, "I am not Ray anymore - I am Michael." I even refused to answer to Ray, but nobody takes me seriously; they just laugh and keep calling me Ray.

I am really upset over this. What should I do?

-MICHAEL
DEAR MICHAEL: To the friends and relatives who have always known you as Ray, it will be difficult for most and impossible for some to call you anything else.

You can keep correcting them and have them write to you to accommodate you, but don't be disappointed if they don't. From now on, introduce yourself to new acquaintances as Michael, or relocate and assume a new identity.

DEAR ABBY: I have a solution for

Abigail VanBuren
Dear Abby

the problem of young children at weddings and receptions. Hold the wedding at night.

I recently attended a 400-guest wedding held at 7:30 p.m. on a Friday night, followed by an adult reception at a hotel with a loud band. It was great. No kids in sight. When I got married, I'm going to use the same game plan.

Can you honestly imagine anyone bringing a 3-year-old to a 9 p.m. reception?

-JANICE
DEAR JANICE: Yes. For a variety of reasons:

"The sister didn't show up and we didn't want to miss the wedding."
"He's a very well-behaved child and we know he'll enjoy it."

"There were a lot of relatives there, who have never seen our child, and we want them to see him."
"We don't believe in leaving our child at home; where we go, he goes." Etc.

DEAR ABBY: I have two teenage grandchildren living in distant cities. They are fine children and a credit to their parents. I write to them quite often and they are very good about responding.

Quite by accident, I learned that their mother opens their mail and reads it before giving it to them. Isn't this an invasion of privacy? Or don't children have any rights?

I have no objections to her reading the letters I write to my grandchildren, but I think they should read them first. Please print your response.

- FARAWAY GRANNY

DEAR GRANNY: Opening mail addressed to another is, indeed, an invasion of privacy. And, yes, children do have rights.

Parents have an obligation to protect their children against suspected drugs or pornographic material that might come through the mail, but obviously this is not a factor in the case of your grandchildren. Shame on their mother.

DEAR ABBY: In "Confidential to T.L. in Berkeley," you wrote that Ralph Waldo Emerson said, "The end of the human race will be that it will eventually die of civilization."

Uncivilization, yes - civilization, no! In his scholarly two-volume study, "Civilization and Eubolics," first published in 1923, the late Dr. Albert Schweitzer wrote: "Our civilization is going through a severe crisis. Most people think that the crisis is due to war, but they are wrong. War, and everything connected with it, is only a phenomenon of the condition of uncivilization in which we find ourselves."

If anything kills us, Abby, it will be uncivilization.

-ARTHUR H. PRINCE

(Do you hate to write letters because you don't know what to say? Thank-you notes, sympathy letters, congratulations, how-to-decline-and-accept invitations and how-to-write an interesting letter are included in Abby's booklet, "How-to-Write-Letters for All Occasions." Send your name and address clearly printed with a check or money order for $2.50 (Friday - slow stamped 10¢ cents) self-addressed envelope to: Dear Abby, Letter Booklet, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.)

Does the outer covering appear to have been disturbed, unwrapped or replaced?
Is the bottle over-filled or under-filled?
Does a plastic or other band

Is the cap on an unsealed container tight?
Is the information and the lot number on the container the same as that on its outer wrapping or box?

Keele's talk on "Ties that Bind and Grow" — The Importance of Women's History — will take at 7 p.m. in the Salmon Development Center on the Women's Dreaming conference at 9 a.m. She will speak in the Student Union Theatre.

MILWAUKEE — Universal Foods Corp. will take an $8-million charge in the second quarter resulting in a small loss, Chairman and Chief Executive Officer John L. Murray has announced.

The company, which owns Idaho Frozen Foods Corp. of Twin Falls, is adjusting the special charge after adjusting inventories and consolidating some facilities.

"This write-down of assets resulted from the partial reconfiguration of our Permentation, Cheese and Import divisions," Murray said. "These measures, while painful today, place the organization on a better operational footing for the future."

Murray said that although earnings from ongoing operations are up, net results for the quarter will show a small loss due to the one-time charge.

Universal Foods manufactures and markets food ingredients and selected consumer food items.

Kimberly Nurseries wins job

KIMBERLY — Kimberly Nurseries Inc. has been selected the landscape and sprinkler system contractor for the new Eastern Idaho Regional Medical Center at Idaho Falls, President Jack Wright has announced.

The $225,994 job is the biggest single contract in the company's 79-year history, he said.

Kimberly Nurseries will install 4,500 trees and shrubs and seed 60,000 square feet of grass as part of the landscaping work, Wright said. The contract also includes a sprinkler system for the grounds.

Wright said the nursery plans to add as many as 10 full- and part-time workers for the project and others this summer. Computerized scheduling in fact, the contract is a two-year contract with Hospital Corporation of America, located in Nashville, Tenn. is building the medical center.

Keim workers accept contract

NAMPA (AP) — A new three-year contract has been ratified by workers at the H.H. Keim Co. Ltd. meat packing plant here, officials say.

Sam Miller, president of Local 368 of the United Food and Commercial Workers, said the plant's 120 workers narrowly approved the agreement, with 95 percent of the employees voting in favor. Others will take pay cuts up to two dollars and ten cents an hour.

However, he said the contract eliminates Keim's two-tier pay structure, which had provided for different pay scales for workers hired at different times.

Miller said that is a big reason the workers ratified the agreement.

'Treat them as equals'

Industrialist tells how he gets along with Soviets

By ROBERT M. ANDREWS
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Billionaire industrialist Armand Hammer says the secret behind his 65 years of successful dealings with the Soviets is to treat them — as equals — respect their pride and never — but never — call their nation "evil," as President Reagan once did.

That approach, and his carefully nurtured contacts with almost every Soviet leader since Lenin, is paying off handsomely for Hammer, who is pouncing on a new cultural agreement between the United States and Soviet Union to arrange exchanges of priceless works of art.

Hammer convinced his Soviet friends to send what he calls the "greatest collection of Impressionists and post-Impressionists to ever leave the Soviet Union" to the United States this spring for a five-month tour.

As part of what Hammer calls a "two-for-one deal," 40 French Impressionist masterpieces, comprising the first collection from Washington's National Gallery ever to be shown in the Soviet Union, went on display at the Hermitage Museum in Leningrad in early February.

After that collection completes a two-month tour in Moscow, Hammer is sending 113 paintings from his personal collection to the Soviet Union until Dec. 1.

Nearly a million Soviet art lovers are expected to view the National Gallery collection, which opened at the Hermitage a scant two months after Reagan and Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev signed the cultural agreement at their Geneva summit last November.

After a six-year chill in relations, punctuated by the Soviets' occupation of Afghanistan in 1979 and their downing of a South Korean airliner in September 1983, the floodgates had opened wide.

The U.S. Information Agency says

American Armand Hammer has been dealing successfully with the Soviet Union since 1920

planiat Vladimir Horowitz will go to Leningrad and Moscow in April, while the famed Kirov Ballet plans to make a two-week tour of Philadelphia, Washington and Los Angeles later this year.

The Moiseyev folklore ensemble is to tour the United States next fall, and the Bolshoi Ballet will visit sometime in 1987. There is talk of sending the Philadelphia Orchestra, a Broadway musical and American jazz performers to play before Soviet audiences.

Hammer, 87, art collector, philanthropist, financial patron of cancer research and chairman of Occidental Petroleum Corp., recalled in a recent interview how he had succeeded in pulling down the Soviet art exhibition, which director J. Carter Brown coveted for the National Gallery.

Both had seen most of the collection two years ago at the private museum of Baron Hans Heinrich Thyssen-Bornemisza in Lugano, Switzerland. Brown said his overture to the Soviets about an exchange of art was torpedoed by the South Korean airliner incident.

Hammer said the baron's show "was so spectacular that the first chance I had to get to Moscow, I saw Peter Demichev, the Soviet minister of culture, and asked if they'd let me have it."

"He said, 'We can't. We don't have it.'"

February drop well under '85 level

Prices for farm products decline again

By JIM DRINKHARD
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Prices farmers get for raw products dropped 2.1 percent in February, falling to 10 percent below the level of a year ago, the Agriculture Department said.

In its monthly report, the department's Crop Reporting Board said lower prices for tomatoes, cattle, lettuce, wheat, eggs, broilers, hogs, oranges and corn contributed most to the decline from the index's January level.

Prices paid by farmers, meanwhile, remained unchanged from the January index, but were 1 percent below the year-earlier mark, the report issued on Friday said. Higher prices for feeder livestock and family living expenses were offset by decreases in costs of feed and of fuel and energy.

The dip in February continued a decline that began in January, when the index fell 3.1 percent and wiped out gains that had been made the three previous months. The rise in the last three months of 1985 was the first interruption in nearly a year-long steady decline.

The February price report showed that the farm prices of crops were down 3.5 percent from January and averaged 12 percent less than a year ago. Livestock and livestock products dropped 2.2 percent in the month to 9 percent below the year-earlier level.

Commercial vegetable prices dropped 18 percent from January and stood at 19 percent from a year ago. Fruit prices declined 4.4 percent from January to 15 percent less than February 1985.

Department economists foresee no sudden recovery in crop prices this year, and say consumer food prices will experience only moderate increases. For all of 1986, the increase may average 2 percent to 4 percent higher than in 1985, when retail food prices were up 2.2 percent — the smallest annual increase in 18 years.

Net farm income dropped sharply in 1985, probably totaling $25 billion to $29 billion, according to USDA estimates. For 1986, department economists project another decline to a range of $24 billion to $26 billion.

According to the preliminary February figures, based mostly on mid-month averages, the price index for meat animals was down 2.1 percent from January and averaged 10 percent below a year earlier.

Cattle prices, averaging $52 per 100 pounds, were down $1.20 from January. Hog prices dropped 80 cents per 100 pounds from January, averaging $43.50 per hundredweight.

Overall, February farm commodity prices were down 121 percent of a 1977 base used for comparison, according to the preliminary figures. That was down three percentage points from the January reading of 124 percent. In February 1985, the index stood at 135 percent.

The report also said:

- Cattle averaged $52 per 100 pounds of live weight nationally, compared with $53.20 in January and $58.50 a year earlier. Those are averages for all types of cattle sold as beef.
- Hogs averaged $43.50 per 100 pounds, compared with $44.30 in January and $48.30 a year earlier.
- Corn, at $2.29 a bushel, was down from $2.33 in January and down from $2.62 a year earlier.

Wheat prices at the farm, according to preliminary figures, averaged $3.07 per bushel, compared with $3.19 in January and $3.38 a year earlier.

Rice averaged $7.80 per 100 pounds, compared with $7.90 in January and $7.72 in February 1985.

Soybeans were $5.13 per bushel, compared with $5.16 in January and $5.74 a year earlier.

Upland cotton was reported at 54.3 cents per pound, compared with 53 cents in January and 49.5 cents a year earlier.

Eggs were 61.7 cents per dozen, compared with 65.1 cents in January and 52.8 cents a year earlier.

The January parity ratio was 39 percent, down two percentage points from the January level and tied with the low reached, according to department records, in June 1932 during the depths of the Depression.

Many economists say the old parity standard is outmoded because it doesn't take into full account changes in farm productivity. But others contend the ratio remains useful in comparing year-to-year changes.

Under the parity formula, prices farmers get for commodities are compared with prices they pay to meet expenses. It then uses a 1910-14 measurement to express what happened. At 100 percent, the indicator would theoretically mean that farmers had the same buying power as they did in 1910-14.

For example, the average price of wheat in February was $3.07 per bushel, according to the preliminary figures. That was 45 percent of the February parity price of $6.83 per bushel.

Central assets accounts hot item now

Among the hottest items in today's financial supermarket are Central Assets Accounts with banks, brokers, savings institutions and even insurance companies scrambling to offer them.

Central assets accounts if you're fairly well off. A central assets account consolidates your banking and investment accounts, offers you such brokers' fees as trading in securities and margin futures, tops the package with such banking services as a checking account, access to cash, a debit, credit or charge card.

Central assets accounts automatically "sweep" — meaning they invest or transfer available cash into some type of interest-bearing account so that your money keeps working.

To keep you informed on all transactions and bills, you receive a detailed monthly statement.

Just in the past decade — in fact, since 1977, when Merrill Lynch introduced the concept — cash management services have mushroomed in popularity. But, as always, the successes have lured the swindlers who, in turn, are trying to lure you into opening accounts. You must shop around, be sure you are not acting on inaccurate information.

In mid-1985, the Better Business Bureau of Metropolitan New York reported increasing instances when company promotional literature offered incomplete or inaccurate information. It also found inconsistencies in advice given over the phone.

Of the 14 companies contacted by the BBB, most agreed, however, to clarify promotional materials and to monitor the information provided by telephone staff.

But even if you want an account, you may not qualify; a typical minimum initial investment ranges from $5,000 to $25,000 in cash securities or a combination.

In addition, you pay an annual fee — from $25 to $100 — and possibly other monthly fees or service charges. You also may pay for the bank card.

To make the decision still more complicated, some companies now offer features such as free travelers checks, electronic deposit of paychecks and government benefits, research reports, and access to networks of automatic teller machines.

Many accounts also offer a routine breakdown of expenses, and you can get a year-end, or even monthly, tax summary.

In shopping for a cash management account, consider:

- How often does the company sweep available cash? Some do so every day, no matter how trifling the amount; others do so weekly.
- And, at least one account sweeps small amounts at monthly intervals and large sums either daily or weekly.

Most accounts offer a selection of three money funds for the sweep: a cash fund, a government fund and a tax-free fund. Each has its own investment strategy. Read the account prospectus carefully before you make a selection about which fund you want.

Will your account offer full-service or discount brokerage? Does it matter to you?

What kind of checking account will you get? Some programs limit the number of checks you can write every month; others place restrictions on the amount of the checks. Still others provide unlimited checking services.

You also may be able to tap into the loan value of your securities in your account simply by writing a check.

Note, though, that not all companies automatically return canceled checks. If you do to retrieve a particular check, you may have to request it, and possibly pay a fee.

Even if you don't have enough assets to open an account, would it make sense for your business to have one? At least one firm offers a plan for businesses.

For a free copy of the BBB's Investor Advisory, "Choosing a Central Assets Account," send a self-addressed, stamped, business-size envelope to the Better Business Bureau, 257 Park Ave. South, New York, N.Y. 10010.

Dairy co-op earnings sink to 6-year low

CALDWELL — Dairymen's Creamery Association, Inc. posted the lowest earnings in six years, despite record milk marketings, the cooperative's officials have announced.

At the same time, DCA members will receive more than $1 million in cash in 1986 in revolving member equity payments and in earnings shares, said Dale Pline, president and chairman of the board.

The Caldwell-based cooperative sold a record 871 million pounds of milk during 1985, and sales increased 13 percent to $116 million, reported General Manager Frank Krone at the cooperative's recent annual meeting last Thursday. Cheese, butter and powdered milk production also set new records, he said.

DCA members will receive almost $975,000 in equity capital payments in June and another $181,000 in August from their share of 1985 earnings, Pline said. He also said DCA plans to "pursue an expansion of cheese facilities that will commit a higher percentage of milk volume to cheese."

At the meeting, Tom Camerino, president of the National Milk Producers Federation, said the dairy industry is likely to shrink. "We are going to have some scars and there will be less of us," he told the dairy farmers.

Camerino also advocated consolidation of farmer marketing organizations and a national management of milk supplies. "We don't have overproduction," he said. "We have underconsumption."

Hammer enjoys boasting of the lucrative business deals he has struck and the trust he has built in the Soviet Union since 1921, when he traveled there as a young Columbia University medical school graduate to help combat a typhus epidemic.

He quickly became a trade pioneer between the Soviets and Americans. He first won an asbestos mine concession in the Ural Mountains and then received Lenin's approval to build a capitalist enterprise — a pencil factory — in the heart of Moscow.

"They told me they'd give me any concession I wanted and I said, 'Give me the concession to make lead pencils.' They said, 'Why?'" I said, "Because Lenin says he's going to teach Russian peasants to read and write, and you haven't got any pencils, and today is reaping fat profits from a $20 billion chemical fertilizer deal with the Soviets."

"I told them I didn't know anything about pencils, but I'd find people who did know," I went to Nuremberg, Germany, and I recruited a staff of experts and know how you have to deal with within six months I had one of the largest pencil factories in all of Europe."

"We took care of all the needs of Russia and we were exporting pencils to Persia, China, even the United Kingdom. We had our own building, pencils made in Russia. Before, Hammer left the Soviet Union in 1930, he was trade representative for 39 blue-chip American corporations. He once sold Ford and tractors to Rostov peasants who fearing they were enemy tanks, and today they were fat profits from a $20 billion chemical fertilizer deal with the Soviets."

"During those years, I learned to deal with the Russians, and I think I know how you have to deal with them as equals. They will stand for anybody looking down on them. They have great pride, and they don't like to be called an 'evil nation,'" he said, referring to Reagan's March 1983 reference to the Soviet Union as an "evil empire."

"Gorbachev was the one who told me that, when I met him in June of last year. Then when I came back corporations. He once sold Ford and tractors to Rostov peasants who

U.S. money supply falls $600 million

NEW YORK (AP) — The nation's basic money supply fell $600 million in mid-February, according to the Federal Reserve Board, but the decline had little effect on interest rates in the credit markets.

The nation's money supply at a seasonally adjusted $630.6 billion in the week ended Feb. 17, down from an adjusted $631.2 billion the previous week.

The previous week's figure originally was estimated as $630.7 billion.

If you believe corn silage should be more than leaves and stalks, Pioneer® brand hybrids are for you.

Since much of the energy in corn silage is in the grain, you'll produce more usable energy or TDN per acre using hybrids that turn out both high tonnage and high grain content. That's especially important to dairymen because a silage ration higher in TDN puts more pounds of milk in the tank.

Whether you feed your own silage or grow it as a cash crop, you'll be money ahead when you plant these "energy-rich" Pioneer® brand hybrids.

A newer hybrid that's been winning friends almost everywhere. 3551 is one of the best mid- to early-season silage hybrids you can plant. It can also be grown for high-moisture cut corn.

3389

Push the population and watch it pile up the tonnage at harvest. 3389 can compete with anything in the tonnage derby, regularly turning out 30-plus ton yields. Strong stalks. Good staygreen.

America's wheat stockpile may produce record by June

By DON KENDALL
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The United States' wheat stockpile is expected to reach a record level by June, the Agriculture Department says, and government experts say this year's harvest should be yet another bumper crop.

Wheat production in 1986 may total close to 1985's 2.4 billion bushels, if yields increase on trend, the department's Economic Research Service said Friday in an outlook report.

The report noted that 1985 wheat yields, though high, were slightly below production during the preceding two years, but added, "Although fewer acres will likely be harvested this summer, producers will plant their more productive area, offsetting the acreage cut."

The United States had less than 1.4 billion bushels of wheat on hand when the current marketing year began last June 1. Because of the bumper 1985 harvest and a slump in exports, the stockpile is expected to grow to a record 1.84 billion bushels by this June 1, the beginning of the 1986-87 wheat year.

The 1986 winter wheat crop was planted last fall, long before this year's federal program was announced. The government's 1985 wheat price support loan rate has been announced at $2.40 per bushel, down 30 cents from last year.

Too much rain in some areas and dryness in others influenced final winter wheat seedings, with many farmers planting well within their acreage bases in anticipation of qualifying for the 1986 program, the report said.

In all, USDA estimated winter wheat plantings at 54 million acres, down 7 percent from 1985 and the smallest in seven years.

"Spring wheat growers approach their 1986 planting decisions with the multitude of program provisions spelled out," the report said.

"Seeding could be little changed to slightly larger than 1985's 17.8 million acres of spring wheat."

By the 1986-87 season, lower U.S. wheat prices may make American wheat more attractive in the world market, the report said. Even so, the report said, "The situation of record U.S. supplies may not be altered dramatically" in the coming year.

"So far this season, less U.S. wheat has been exported than has been consumed domestically," the report said. "For the year, domestic use is forecast to exceed exports by 15 percent, a reversal unparalleled since 1974-75."

For all of 1985-86, wheat prices at the farm are expected to average $3 to $3.20 per bushel, compared with $3.38 in 1984-85 and $3.53 in 1983-84. There was no official projection for 1986-87, but the report said "a new period of farm wheat prices below $3" per bushel is likely.

Farm pay

WASHINGTON (AP) — Wages paid to hired farm workers increased in three of seven states surveyed by the Agriculture Department during the last year.

The survey was made during the week of Jan. 12-18 in Florida, Oklahoma, Texas, Arizona, New Mexico, California and Hawaii.

In Florida, the survey found hired farm workers received an average of $5.04 per hour, compared with $5.20 a year ago. In Oklahoma and Texas, which were considered together, hired workers got $4.71 per hour, the same as a year earlier.

The average rate in Arizona and New Mexico — also considered together — was $4.94 per hour, up from $4.70 per hour a year earlier.

Trade success stories topic of teleconference

PULLMAN — Former Secretary of State Dean Rusk, Undersecretary of Agriculture Daniel Amstutz and internationally known executives, such as Barry Chiswick, Merle Hahn Jr. of Georgia-Pacific Corp., will participate Thursday in a teleconference called "Enhancing U.S. Agricultural Competitiveness Overseas."

The conference, which will be available to anyone with a satellite television receiver, will examine agricultural experts and focus on success stories in U.S. agricultural trade. It will be simultaneously broadcast from three university campuses, including Washington State University at Pullman, to more than 300 sites throughout the country. People who own satellite dishes will be able to watch the program by turning the receiver to the Weststar TV satellite on Transponder 19-D, which is channel 19 in most areas, said Dawn Reynolds, a teleconference coordinator. The signal is not being scrambled.

The teleconference will be televised from 8 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. Thursday. Those who do not have satellite equipment can participate at the Media Services Showroom at the Boise State University Library, said Anne M. Fisher, the local coordinator. Cost is $20 and reservations are requested by calling Fisher at 385-3286.

Catfish farmers increase production

WASHINGTON (AP) — Production of farm-grown catfish in January was about 18.5 million pounds, live weight, up 38 percent from a year earlier, says the Agriculture Department's Crop Reporting Board.

Prices paid growers in January averaged 70 cents per pound, a 3-cent increase from a year earlier.

Freshwater catfish imports in December, the most recent month for that information, totaled 501,000 pounds, a 16 percent increase from December 1984, the report said.

Nearly all the imported catfish was from Brazil.

Great American Screen Test looking for talent, but for fee

Q: National Association of Unknown Players sent me a solicitation asking for $$$ and it is supposed to help me become a star. Do you have any information on this company?

A: We checked with the BBB in Santa Monica, Calif., and they sent us a report on Great American Screen Test.

According to information supplied by the company, The Great American Screen Test was established in August, 1985. Robert Stringer is listed as executive director of competition. The nature of the business is described as "television production and talent contest direct mail." The firm first came to the attention of the BBB in October 1985.

The company is engaged in a nationwide search for unknown talent via direct mail. A $$$ "sponsor fee" is required from participants. According to company literature, 800 contestants will be selected from those responding to the firm's mass mailing with the "sponsor fee." (The $$$ will be returned to those not included in the group of 800.) The company will conduct five rounds of competition, resulting in the selection of 18 finalists. Selection of winners of the competition will be made on the projected TV special, to be aired in 1986.

Smith-Hemion Productions, Inc. is the firm that has agreed to produce The Great American Screen Test TV special. However, Smith-Hemion has no involvement with the project until the selection of the 18 finalists is completed. Smith-Hemion has informed the BBB it is in no way underwriting any activity of The Great American Screen Test prior to the selection of the final 18.

The BBB has not received any complaints regarding The Great American Screen Test, however, the firm has not been established long enough for the bureau to issue a reliability report. This is not a statement of approval or disapproval.

"Travelmate," vinyl luggage and "Dressmaker" sewing machines. In direct mail pieces offering these items, the company includes a coupon which resembles a check, good only towards the purchase of the company's merchandise.

The BBB files opened in February, 1985. The bureau's file is too new to contain sufficient experience or information to issue a customer experience report at this time. This is neither a statement of approval or disapproval.

BBB comments: It should be clearly understood that the coupon good towards purchase of this company's merchandise, although it resembles a check, is not negotiable.

The Better Business Bureau cannot recommend or disapprove of any company.

As general information, it is suggested that persons considering one of these offers do careful comparison shopping in their own communities to determine if the same or similar merchandise is available, and, if so, at what price. It is also suggested that there be a clear understanding of the terms of purchase and of the guarantee. And, if deciding to purchase on layaway, have a clear understanding of the terms of the layaway purchase.

Sppery plans to cut forces

ST. PAUL (AP) — About 500 people will be laid off in workforce reductions now under way at Sperry Corp. commercial computer operations facilities in Minnesota, Pennsylvania, Iowa and Utah, the company announced.

The reductions are being made at Sperry facilities in the Minneapolis-St. Paul area; Blue Bell, Pa.; Clear Lake, Iowa, and Salt Lake City, Utah.

The people affected are employed in a range of professional, administrative and technical categories, said company spokesman Jack Nichols.

The reductions are a result of changes in technology and product mix and market conditions, Nichols said.

Airlines enter marketing pact

NEW YORK (AP) — Trans World Airlines and Piedmont Airlines are entering into a long-term marketing pact aimed at strengthening both carriers in an industry beset by fare wars, mergers and red ink.

The Wednesday announcement came 48 hours after Eastern Airlines, $2.5 billion in debt and confronting strike deadlines, agreed to be bought by cost-cutting Texas Air Corp.

The TWA-Piedmont agreement is designed to provide easy connections between Piedmont's domestic flights and TWA's routes overseas. Both carriers denied it was a reaction to the Eastern-Texas Air agreement.

Discounts extend air fare war

NEW YORK (AP) — American Airlines and Republic Airlines have announced spring-summer discounts that offer up to 75 percent savings on some routes and extend an industrywide fare war that has cut profits for many U.S. carriers.

But analysts noted that the discounts announced Wednesday carry more restrictions than previous offers, reflecting what they called more rational and clever approach to pricing than has been seen before. Both sales are good from April 1 to May 22.

Home sales decline in January

WASHINGTON (AP) — A real estate trade group says sales of existing single-family homes fell 5.7 percent in January, but analysts predict that falling interest rates should increase home sales for the entire year.

The National Association of Realtors said despite the January decline, existing homes were sold at a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 3.32 million units. It was the 11th consecutive month that sales have been at a rate of 3 million units or higher.

The median price of a home sold last month was $77,000, an increase of $1,500 over the December sales price.
