Sales tax increase squeaks through Senate

The Associated Press

BOISE — An 11-month penny increase in the state sales tax, called a "lousy compromise" even by some of its supporters, narrowly cleared the Idaho Senate late Tuesday.

Passage of the measure came as Republican legislative leaders continued looking for a plan to resolve the state's immediate budget crisis.

"It's a viable solution to our problems," said Assistant Republican Floor Leader Vearl Crystal of Lewisville in leading the push that resulted in approval of the bill on a 22-20 vote.

The plan was the second alternative offered by Senate Republicans to the permit a 5-cent state sales tax that has been the only revenue-raising bill to clear the House this session. Their original proposal for the temporary tax hike coupled with local option taxing powers was summarily rejected by the House last week.

The new proposal would raise the sales tax beginning April 1 with the increase ending next Feb. 28 unless lawmakers in the 1987 legislative session vote to extend it.

Critics, especially the Democratic minority whose members reminded Republicans of their 1984 campaign promise to oppose tax increases, warned that an extension and the problem permanent imposition of the tax was inevitable. They claimed the tax bill had no solution to the state's financial problems but just another "patch and scratch" approach that has led over recent years to severe deterioration in state services.

House Republican leaders planned to meet with their 67-member supermajority in closed party caucus today to discuss the bill's fate, which remained unclear.

House Republican spokesman for Democratic Gov. John Evans indicated that if the temporary tax plan reached the state executive desk it might be considered acceptable.

$56 million in new revenue while it is in effect, paying off the 1986 $20 million deficit and taking the allowable 1987 state budget to as much as $34 million. Critics contended the estimate could be optimistic because consumers will postpone major purchases next winter assuming the higher tax will not be implemented.

But while even the official revenue estimate would represent a $27 million increase over the amount being spent this year, it would force lawmakers to accept spending levels for education at levels public • See SALES on Page A2

In Jerome County

Officials seek new coverage

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-news writer

JEROME — Operations in Jerome County are progressing cautiously since the discovery late last week that the county had no liability insurance coverage since Jan. 20. Sheriff Elza Hall pulled all of his patrol cars off the roads Monday afternoon, instructing officers to respond to only the most serious calls.

But Tuesday morning the county's former insurance agent, Prescott and Craig, of Jerome, issued temporary coverage to law enforcement vehicles so the Sheriff's Department could continue to function.

Efforts are also being made to obtain interim liability coverage for the county courthouse.

Hall notified Twin Falls County Jail Administrator Bill Thorquest

that he could not accept any additional out-of-county prisoners in the Jerome jail, pending a solution to the insurance coverage problem. Twin Falls County Sheriff Jim Munn said this would simply compound the many Twin Falls County jail problems and require increased transporting of prisoners to more distant jails in Gooding and Minidoka counties.

The Twin Falls County jail has been placed on a restricted operation by court order. A mandated reduction in prison population because of conditions in the 74-year-old facility has forced Munn to rent space in several other county jails, including Jerome.

As of Tuesday, there were four Twin Falls County prisoners in the Jerome County Jail. Meanwhile Twin Falls County is also proceeding with

Imprisonment order may be issued soon

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Former Idaho Congressman George Hansen's case likely will be returned to U.S. District Court for an imprisonment order this week, a Justice Department spokesman said.

On Monday, the U.S. Supreme Court decided without comment that it would not consider an appeal of Hansen's 1984 conviction for falsifying financial reports filed with the House of Representatives.

John Russell, a Justice Department spokesman, said Hansen's case likely would be sent back to U.S. District Judge Joyce Hens Green within a day or two. The clerk's office for Green, who sentenced Hansen in 1984, said her docket probably would allow scheduling the case within two weeks.

Russell said an imprisonment order "as a rule is usually prompt."

Hansen, 55, faces five to 15 months in prison and a $10,000 fine. But he said he feels in no immediate danger of going to prison, because he and his attorneys plan a number of appeals.

Hansen said his attorneys plan to ask the courts to review his conviction again, contending that information now is available from the House backing up his claim that Congress did not intend criminal sanctions for violating the financial disclosure law.

Hansen's wife, Connie, a Republican candidate for her husband's old seat from Idaho's 2nd Congressional District, said the court's decision would not make her drop out of the primary race.

"It could be a rallying point," she said. "A lot of people can relate with what happened."

Hansen, a conservative Republican, is the first elected official convicted under the 1978 law that requires most high federal officials, including the nine Supreme Court justices, to make annual disclosures of their financial holdings, liabilities and transactions.

Shultz cites moral duty to aid Contras

By LAWRENCE L. KNUSTON
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Secretary of State George Shultz told a House panel Tuesday the United States has a moral duty to supply aid to Nicaraguan rebels trying to overthrow the leftist Sandinista government.

In an appearance before a House Appropriations subcommittee, Shultz painted the situation in Central America in stark and simple terms, calling the Contras "the good guys," and the Sandinistas "the bad guys" and "a very undesirable cancer in the area."

He said the administration believes it has a moral imperative to "support those people willing to fight for freedom and independence."

Although the administration's request for $100 million in aid to the Contras is its immediate priority, Shultz' appearance before the subcommittee was mostly to lobby for the administration's overall foreign aid budget.

The panel chairman, Rep. David Obey, D-Wis., told Shultz that Congress will not approve President Reagan's request for a $15.5 billion foreign aid budget and directed him "back to the drawing board."

Obey said the proposal for fiscal 1987 is 16.2 percent above actual foreign aid spending for fiscal 1986.

The proposed military aid package to the Contras is already intensely controversial and Senate Democratic leader Robert C. Byrd of West Virginia on Tuesday named a group of 11 senators, headed by Sen. James Sasser, D-Tenn., to help form a Democratic policy on the issue.

In the House, Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. called on the administration to reopen negotiations aimed at producing a peaceful solution to

Concert family weeps as farm is sold

Ken Massey consoles weeping wife, Sue

By DAVE DISHNEAU
The Associated Press

DODGEVILLE, Wis. — A couple sobbed as they watched the 310-acre farm that had been in their family for more than 80 years sold at a foreclosure auction in five minutes Tuesday, saying it was "like we've lost one of our best friends."

Sue and Ken Massey, whose letter about the family's plight brought the farm crisis home to millions when it was read last fall at the nationally televised Farm Aid concert, stood with the five children during the sale on the steps of the town County Courthouse.

Raphael Peterson, a feed supplier who said the Masseys owed him about $65,000, was the successful bidder for the Hollandale egg farm. His $45,000 bid topped a $11,965 offer from the Farmers Savings Bank of Mineral Point, the only other bidder.

"I've been so low. It's been terrible," said Massey, his choking-back sobs. "I just want to say to all the farmers who have considered suicide: you've got to make it. You've got to stay with your family."

Massey, who farmed the land, said he also was a member of the band Alabama read Mrs. Massey is a part-time secretary at a veterinary clinic.

Peterson said he would consider an arrangement allowing the Masseys to continue living on the farm, but Mrs. Massey said staying there would be painful.

"When you go through something like this, it scares you," she said. "All our hopes and dreams were there."

She said she feared for the future of her children, ages 18 months to 10 years.

"The farm was not just their playground; it was their future," she said. "That land could have put all five of them through college."

During the Sept. 22 Farm Aid concert, a member of the band Alabama read Mrs. Massey's letter while photos of the Massey family were flashed on a giant video screen behind the band.

Mrs. Massey said the family received about 150

Tax amnesty plan support increasing

The Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON — As the Senate Budget Committee prepared to begin working for its options Wednesday for producing a budget plan, support appeared to be growing Tuesday for a one-time tax amnesty.

House Democrats went on record as setting deficit reduction as a higher priority than President Reagan's tax-overhaul drive.

Budget Committee members expressed confidence that they would ultimately produce a spending plan that would reduce the deficit enough to avoid triggering the tax-raising and painful automatic cuts required by the Gramm-Rudman balanced-budget law.

The automatic reductions will occur unless Congress can ultimately produce a budget that reduces the deficit to within $1 billion of the law's $141 billion target. "It's truth or consequences in budgeting," said Sen. Ernest F. Hollings, D-S.C., committee member.

However, despite the potential consequences, Budget Committee Chairman Pete V. Domenici, D-N.M., conceded that no strategy was emerging for reaching that goal. "There has been no consensus," he said. "It will be very difficult in my opinion."

Domenici repeatedly estimated that between $1 billion and $20 billion in new revenues will be needed to produce a budget that can win support for a majority on Capitol Hill.

Commodity lien filing bill receives mixed Senate blessings

By DEAN MILLER
Times-News writer

BOISE — A bill that would set up a statewide system for the filing of liens on agricultural commodities left the Senate Agricultural Affairs Committee with mixed blessings Tuesday.

Though the committee voted unanimously to allow the bill to be amended and then debated by the full Senate, Sen. Laird Noh, R-Kimberly, and some farm industry lobbyists said they have some reservations.

Commodity buyers now run the risk of paying twice for produce if they fail to find a lien on the produce filed by a bank that loaned money to the producer. The 1985 Farm Bill instructed state legislatures to set up statewide filing systems by next March. If the systems are not set up, commodity buyers would buy produce with a clear title unless notified directly of liens by bankers. Bankers oppose the second plan because they say it would drive up their cost of doing business and not protect their loans. Noh said he is an agricultural lobbyist supporter of the bill and does not yet know how he will vote for it.

Jonathan F. Schlueter, representing the Pacific Northwest Grain and Feed Association, said the majority of the grain buyers in his organization oppose the bill.

Tom Hovenden of the Idaho Cattle Association and Dave Bivens of the Idaho Farm Bureau Federation said their national counterparts urge caution in the support of central filing systems, but both lobbyists said they were satisfied with Senate Bill 1985.

Idaho Woolgrowers Association lobbyist Stan Boyd said woolgrowers are divided on the issue.

Noh, who is a woolgrower, said when Congress told the states to set up central filing systems to move to "clear title" status, it intended to protect the commodity buyer.

The whole purpose of what went on in Washington was to protect the innocent third-party buyer, he said. Sen. Dwight Horsch, D-Aberdeen, said agricultural commodities, such as lambs on their way to slaughter, are harder to repossess than refrigerators. Schlueter said the bill approved by the committee Tuesday jumps the gun because federal rules that will govern the central filing systems have not been issued yet and because no one knows how much the system will cost.

He said central filing systems have been "disastrous failures" in Washington, Oregon, and Montana.

He said the committee should wait for the federal regulations that will govern central filing and have a summer study committee study the options, including clear title commodity trading.

Skip Kellogg of the Idaho Feed and Grain Association said he supports the bill, but wants to know who will pay for the central filing system and how much it will cost.

Tribal water rights under negotiation

By DEAN MILLER
Times-News writer

BOISE — Representatives of the Shoshone-Bannock tribe have brought their water rights claims to the negotiating table, giving state, federal and water user representatives an idea how much water the tribe intends to reserve.

Present and future rights the tribe intends to reserve will total 782,000 acre-feet.

Of that, 370,000 acre-feet would be for present use, and 412,000 acre-feet would be for future use.

Though the claims could preempt rights that brought the Twin Falls tract under plow, state and tribal representatives say they hope negotiations will yield an agreement that protects existing water rights.

The tribe's water rights, tied to reservation lands, were protected under a 1908 Supreme Court decision, and attorneys for the state and the tribe say they have opted to negotiate the claim instead of going to court.

Because the tribe's water rights were established by an 1868 treaty that predates most of the water rights held by irrigators in the Magic Valley and other areas of the state, the state, irrigator groups, and the tribe are negotiating in an attempt to protect some rights presently held, while giving the tribe the water it needs to develop its lands.

Howard Funke, lead negotiator for the Shoshone-Bannock tribe, said Tuesday the tribe could well take the state to court and demand that all its water come from the Snake River. But Funke said, the tribe wants to preserve good-will and will look at taking water from a variety of sources and increasing the amount of stored water in the state's water system.

Clive Strong, representing the state in negotiations, said Tuesday that negotiations are civil so far, and no one seems ready to go to court.

"We're all reasonably optimistic that the interests of all parties can be accommodated through negotiations," he said.

The tribe's claim, unveiled at a negotiating session late last week, was developed by the water engineering firm Stensengen Engineering, of San Francisco.

Bill keeping public TV tax credit OK'd

By DEAN MILLER
Times-News writer

BOISE — The income tax credit for charitable donations to Idaho Public Television will be preserved if the Idaho House and the governor follow the lead of the Senate and the House Revenue and Taxation Committee.

The committee Tuesday approved a bill to revise tax laws to keep on the books the tax credit enjoyed by public television that a recent revision inadvertently left out. After a round of quips and quibbles, the bill got the committee's go-ahead.

Rep. Chris Hooper, R-Boise, introduced the bill and joked that House Bill 640 is a "self-interest bill because Idaho Reports' (public television's nightly news show) is my favorite show when I'm on it."

Rep. Boyd Hill, R-Meridian, shot back that he would like to amend the bill to ban Hooper from the show. "It would hurt; the ratings would go down so much," Hooper parried.

House eyes anti-AIDS bill

BOISE (AP) — The Idaho House will vote on legislation designed to curb the disease AIDS.

The Health and Welfare Committee on Tuesday gave "do-pass" endorsement to a bill requiring tests for AIDS to be part of the screening process used in sperm banks.

Another bill sent to the floor for a vote adds AIDS to the list of venereal diseases in Idaho. Officials said that requires an interview to determine people who may have come in contact with the victim.

State health officer Dr. Fritz Dixon said Idaho has had four cases of the "always fatal" disease, two in eastern Idaho and two in Ada County.

House to vote on tax for alcohol treatments

BOISE (AP) — The Idaho House will vote on a proposal to increase beer and wine taxes to pay for alcohol treatment programs.

The Revenue and Taxation Committee on Tuesday voted to send the legislation to the House floor. But it will be amended to impose the new tax on beer and wine sold through the state liquor dispensary.

The proposal boosts beer taxes by 3 cents per barrel, about 1 cent per gallon. The wine tax goes up by 15 cents per gallon.

"The problems we face (from alcoholism) won't go away," said sponsor Rep. Reed Hansen, R-Idaho Falls. "Using the alcohol tax to finance these programs is as fair an approach as we can get."

Bill Roden, Boise attorney who lobbies for the liquor and tobacco industry, told committee members on Tuesday a few people who use beer and wine cause problems.

Letters/ Many questions about possible disposition of hospital require answers

Stop hospital bill

I hope the people of Twin Falls County have not waited too long to check into the disposition of their hospital. There are a lot of unanswered questions that need to be answered.

After the county commissioners appoint the first board, is the board then self-perpetuating and even the county commissioners have no more control over the board?

Apparently it is a tax-exempt, non-profit corporation. If the corporation should later generate excess funds, what becomes of them? Can they be buried in board members' salaries?

Will anyone outside be able to see a financial report? Apparently the taxpayers are putting the hospital grounds and the original hospital in to the deal. Will they ever be repaid for it?

Why have the people been characterized as not intelligent enough to help make the decision? Should what was originally a taxpayer-owned government entity be given to "who" as a tax-exempt entity able to compete with private enterprise? If D-573 has already passed the House of Representatives, it may be possible to stop it in the Senate if enough of you contact your senators.

If you are unwilling to get involved, you have no right to complain. It is railroaded through the Legislature. The Times-News editor has raised the question as to whether H.B. 579 is even constitutional.

The Twin Falls Clinic has tried to wave red flags. Don't criticize them on trying to protect their own interests. We will all be affected, some more than others. Are we the people interested?

CHARLES E. HARRIS

Drop international ties

I appreciate so much that some of the papers, including The Times-News will now print some of the letters we submit which only a short time ago would have been rejected. The letters from Walter E. Clark and the one from Nathan Jones are examples. I do think that some are getting their eyes opened to the real threat to America.

I have wondered why the spies for Israel are being erased from the news through quietness of the press while other spies are being brought to trial and exposed.

The media does as much damage through silence as through distorted reports. If the public had the whole story they would know that it is not the Aryans toiling at the terrorisms. Very few know all that I am aware of, which the general media is quiet about: murder, destruction, terrorist training right here in the USA which is being silenced as it progresses.

I so admire the people of Honolulu for refusing to protect Marcos and there is no justification for his removal from the land he held in bondage at the expense of American taxpayers. Honolulu knows how Marcos first got into power and how he accumulated his homes while his people were in bondage.

The planes standing by to transport him, his family and the whole entourage was not America's responsibility.

We are already under a one world government and don't seem to know it. Under the power of the IMF, America meddled into the Marcos affair while right here at home there has been unquestionable proof that we have fraud in elections which we are going nothing about.

Now Mr. Reagan suggests that the taxpayers provide protection for the no-good-dictator. Just how far will the common people allow our people in high places to go? I am wholly opposed to protection to past presidents and their families. They usually rely on wealthy and have done us more damage than good upon retirement.

Let them as well as Marcos fight their own battles, protect themselves just as the average taxpayer has to do when endangered. The general public accepts facts about what is happening, with an open mind, a rebellion right here in America will outline any that ousted Marcos. The trouble is, Americans have to be hit individually before they will admit the truth and that is a slow process.

There was a time when we had enough loyal Americans in Washington to have banded together and stopped the move to internationalize us and to destroy our sovereignty. We should have stayed out of treaties with foreigners as advised by men of wisdom years ago. The cry that we need Israel and any country that is eating American arms and a leg is equal to saying a mouse needs a laxative.

McClure says road decision to 'serve the common good'

While the comments you made about Graham Rudman in your editorial of Feb. 11 (McClure's Bill Shows Why System Is Falling) were right on target, your information on the right-of-way issue was way off base.

For readers not familiar with the issue, the editorial focused on my role in resolving a dispute between the U.S. Forest Service and a Northern Idaho lumber company over a portion of abandoned railroad right-of-way the company owned, and the Forest Service wanted to buy.

The long-running dispute centered primarily on the sale price. The Forest Service appraised the value of the 791 acres in question at $321,000. I amended the Interior Appropriations Bill to provide $3.9 million to the Forest Service so they could buy the land from the company.

The Times-News passed judgment on my action simply by looking at the two disparate numbers, instead of finding out the facts of the matter: namely, that the Forest Service's appraisal was outrageously low.

The Forest Service failed to include the value of improvements on the land, such as bridges, trestles and rock ballast. Furthermore, the Forest Service didn't appraise the land as part of a total road system, instead figuring it as small, separate parcels with no relevance to the 36-mile road it helped comprise.

This method of appraisal is contrary to proper government procedure, and arrives at a figure about 10 times lower than engineers' reports on the land's true value. Such a method of appraisal is akin to estimating the worth of an airplane wing only by the amount of metal it is composed of and ignoring its value to the entire aircraft.

My role in resolving the dispute was not an example of "pork-barrel legislation" or "constituent-massaging." It was an example of serving the common good — of the nation, the state and the Forest Service — and saving money in the process.

By resolving the dispute with the $3.9 million payment, three things were accomplished: — A gross injustice on a private firm was ended and the firm received a fair price for its holdings.

— The government obtained the only interstate transportation corridor in the region at a cost to taxpayers about 10 times less than building a new road, and a price far less than would be incurred in a protracted legal battle with the federal government.

— Hikers, campers, hunters, fishermen and the forest products industry will gain access to a road that stretches through pristine forest land. Public access to this road and the surrounding lands will not, as the editorial claims, benefit "only a small amount of people."

Nearly 200 religious leaders form human cross on steps of Capitol, commemorating dead in Nicaraguan unrest

Bishops lead Nicaragua policy protest

WASHINGTON (AP) — Hundreds of religious protesters, including nearly two dozen bishops of major denominations, formed a human cross on the Capitol steps Tuesday, memorializing Nicaraguan war dead and accusing the Reagan administration of lies in support of terrorism and killing.

"In the name of God, stop the lies, stop the killing," the group said in a written plea read by Roman Catholic Bishop Thomas Gumbleton of Detroit.

The group's declaration, signed by about 200 church leaders and Jewish rabbis, formally declared opposition to President Reagan's plans to send $100 million in new aid to rebels fighting Nicaragua's Sandinista government.

Episcopal Bishop Paul Moore of New York said the group was "representing literally millions of people — Protestant, Catholic and Jewish people of good will throughout this country who have not yet been heard" on the subject.

The statement was not formally endorsed by the denominations' national bodies, but both Gumbleton and Moore said it was consistent with U.S. Catholic and Episcopal leaders' stands.

In the statement, the group accused the administration of ignoring worthy Sandinista peace initiatives — seeming to prefer "the financing of terrorism to the pursuit of peace" — and of covering up credible reports of systematic human rights atrocities by rebels backed by the U.S. government.

"Exaggeration, misinformation and outright falsehood form the heart of the Reagan administration's case against Nicaragua," the statement said. And Moore and other speakers said their own personal visits had convinced them the Sandinistas were a duly elected, popularly supported government.

As for the rebels, the group said flatly, "The Contras are not freedom fighters" as Reagan characterizes them.

"The government's distortion campaign is to prepare the American people for further U.S. military action in Nicaragua," they said. "We call upon the U.S. government to cease its promotion of fear and hatred and to cease its funding of the Contra war against Nicaragua."

After a news conference nearby, the protesters marched to the Capitol where about 100 of them formed a human cross on the east steps. They carried big white crosses with the names of Nicaraguans they said had been killed since last summer.

Organizers of the protest said similar demonstrations were taking place in 78 other cities on Tuesday in a national campaign called "Crosses of Sorrow and Hope."

In Saginaw, Mich., about 50 people gathered Tuesday at the office of Rep. Robert Traxler, D-Mich., then planted crosses in a ceremonial graveyard, said Sister Carol Gilbert, a Roman Catholic nun who was one of the organizers.

Signers of the formal statement included 22 Roman Catholic, Methodist, Episcopal and Lutheran bishops — though only Gumbleton and Moore were in view at the Washington gathering — top officials of the United Church of Christ, the Christian Church (Disciples of Christ), the Monastic Church, the Unitarian Universalist Association, the National Council of Churches, and more than a dozen Jewish rabbis.

Others on the list included seven seminary presidents as well as heads or representatives of 50 religious communities or orders.

Mail rate hike hits charities

WASHINGTON (AP) — Postal rates for charities, newspapers, schools and libraries will increase on Sunday for the second time this year under a new rate schedule approved Tuesday by the Board of Governors of the Postal Service.

The rate increases range from averages of 2 percent to 20 percent for particular types of non-profit and newspaper mail. They follow Jan. 1 increases ranging from 23 percent to 41 percent.

The second hike is designed to make up for the $72 million difference between the subsidy the Postal Service had expected to receive and what Congress actually appropriated on Dec. 19. It also takes into account $32 million in cuts, effective March 1, required by the Gramm-Rudman budget-balancing law.

Tax dollars make up the difference between normal postage rates and cheaper preferred rates ordered by Congress for items such as church bulletins, charitable appeals, newspapers delivered in the county where they are published, farm and classroom publications and books mailed between libraries.

The board, in setting the Jan. 1 rates, assumed a tax subsidy of $20 million as passed by Congress Dec. 3. However, after a veto by President Reagan, Congress appropriated $748 million, which was further reduced to $716 million by Gramm-Rudman.

The rate increases, according to postal spokesman Robert Hoobing-affect—roughly one-third of second-class mail, a fifth of third class mail and a sixth of fourth class mail. First-class rates will not change.

The new rates, effective from 12:01 a.m. Sunday through the end of the fiscal year on Sept. 30, could change again late this year if the Reagan administration succeeds in trimming—or eliminating—all subsidies to mailers.

Here are some examples of old and new preferred rates and percentage increases as approved by the Board of Governors Tuesday:

SECOND CLASS
In-county publications, 6.3 cents (four ounces), 7.3 cents, 16 percent.
Non-profit publications, 8.2 cents (four ounces), 8.6 cents, 7 percent.
Classroom publications, 11.2 cents (12 ounces), 11.4 cents, 20 percent.
Farm publications (four ounces), 10.8 cents, 11.0 cents, 2 percent.

PG-13 Rating Introduced

A new rating category is in place as of July 1. This new category is inserted between the current PG and R ratings. It is designated as PG-13. Parents are strongly cautioned to give special guidance for attendance of children under 13. Some material may be inappropriate for young children.

The revised five-category system of the voluntary film industry rating program is now in effect.

General Audiences, all ages admitted.

Parental guidance suggested. Some material may not be suitable for children.

PG-13: Parents are strongly cautioned to give special guidance for children under 13. Some material may be inappropriate for young children.

R Restricted, under-17 requires accompanying parent or adult guardian.

X No one under 17 admitted. All films rated under X will be given ratings under the new five-category system.

Critics continue demands for more information

Police release summary of RFK files

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A summary of secret police files on the 1968 assassination of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy made public Tuesday shows investigators concluded that convicted gunman Sirhan Sirhan acted alone.

"There was no evidence of a conspiracy in the crime," said the three-volume report, which mentioned no suspect other than Sirhan by name.

Critics said the summary was inadequate and called for immediate release of the full file.

"This commission for 17 years has refused to give up records that have been given up in every other assassination case," said Paul Schrade, a former Kennedy aide who maintains the full files contain a statement from an FBI investigator that there may have been a second gunman.

The commission recommended that Mayor

Tom Bradley appoint a separate committee to handle the editing of the full file, and to set a timetable for their release.

The summary report, which was heavily censored to protect privacy rights, appeared to discount several well publicized conspiracy theories including the involvement of a so-called "girl in the polka dot dress."

The summary recalled accounts of a young woman in a black and white polka dot dress running from the Ambassador Hotel moments after Kennedy's shooting June 5, 1968. A witness claimed to have heard her shout, "We shot him; we shot him," and when asked whom she shot, the woman responded, "We just shot Senator Kennedy."

After the account was broadcast on TV, further witnesses came forward and eventually contradicted each other's stories, the report said.

Ultimately, it was determined that the first witness "had concocted the entire story" the report concluded.

The report suggests that confusion arose because a Kennedy staff worker who was in the hotel kitchen at the time of the shooting was wearing a green dress with gold polka dots.

The summary reviews extensive investigations into Sirhan's possible link with Arabic groups, Communists, Cubans and right-wing extremists as well as a mystical organization. Those connections were discounted by officers who interviewed numerous unidentified people and conducted lie detector tests of those who made claims that he was linked with such groups.

One lead police followed involved an Iranian national who worked at Kennedy campaign headquarters from June 1 to June 4, 1968. The Iranian, not identified by name, had submitted the names of 24 other volunteer workers, all of Mid-Eastern extraction, to the Kennedy camp, the report said.

"It was alleged (the Iranian) was seen speaking to Sirhan at the headquarters, and Sirhan was alleged to have been wearing a gun at the time," the report said.

"(The Iranian) denied any association with Sirhan and all evidence tended to support this," the report said.

Career officer new CIA deputy director

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan on Tuesday accepted the resignation of Deputy CIA Director John N. McMahon and quickly named another career intelligence officer to replace him.

McMahon, 56, a 34-year veteran of intelligence work, gave no explanation for his resignation other than to say in a letter to Reagan he "should have reached a stage where I should move on."

Gates, 42, is a specialist in Soviet and Eastern European affairs who has served two tours on the National Security Council staff at the White House. He holds a doctorate degree from Georgetown University and has been associated with the CIA for 20 years, serving most of that time at the agency's headquarters in Langley, Va., just outside Washington.

The White House statement saying the president had accepted McMahon's resignation cited "personal reasons" for the deputy's departure, which is to be effective March 29.

The statement said Reagan accepted McMahon's resignation "with regret" and praised McMahon's long years of service to the nation.

But McMahon had been planning to leave for some time and his resignation was simply a normal personnel move, according to intelligence sources speaking on condition of anonymity.

In a letter dated Feb. 24 but not released until the resignation was announced, McMahon told Reagan, "With over 34 years in intelligence, I have reached a stage where I should move on."

He said he did so with mixed emotions but "with the satisfaction and confidence that U.S. intelligence has never been better, thanks to the resources you have placed into our intelligence effort and the strong support you have given our intelligence programs."

McMahon offered praise for Casey, a former Reagan campaign chairman who had not been associated with the intelligence community since World War II and has encountered "some opposition within the CIA and on Capitol Hill since assuming the directorship five years ago."

He called Casey "a unique asset" who has brought wisdom, energy and leadership "that has provided our country with an intelligence capability second to none."

What's what

Indians in ancient Mexico played a ball game wherein whoever scored won the clothes of the spectators. A sort of strip rugby, sounds like. Anyhow, one score ended the game, because everybody lit out in all directions, the players to take possession, the spectators to save their costumes. The NFL ought to consider this. It'd clear out the parking lots in a hurry.

No. 2 is "secretary," still.

Was little more than a whim of fashion that prompted much exploration of North America. In the 11th century, beaver hats became popular, and prices rose. It paid the trappers to light out. By the time old fancy fashion faded, the whereabouts of pfitnear everywhere out west was known.

Nai everybody nationwide celebrates Columbus Day. The Comanche Indians don't.

Mail rate hike hits charities

WASHINGTON (AP) — Postal rates for charities, newspapers, schools and libraries will increase on Sunday for the second time this year under a new rate schedule approved Tuesday by the Board of Governors of the Postal Service.

The rate increases range from averages of 2 percent to 20 percent for particular types of non-profit and newspaper mail. They follow Jan. 1 increases ranging from 23 percent to 41 percent.

The second hike is designed to make up for the $72 million difference between the subsidy the Postal Service had expected to receive and what Congress actually approved on Dec. 19. The board, in setting the Jan. 1 rates, assumed a tax subsidy of $820 million as passed by Congress Dec. 3. However, after a veto by President Reagan, Congress appropriated $748 million, which was further reduced to $716 million by Gramm-Rudman.

The rate increases, according to postal spokesman Robert Hooding, affect roughly one-third of second-class mail, a fifth of third class mail and a tenth of fourth class mail. First-class rates will not change.

The new rates, effective from 12:01 a.m. Sunday through the end of the fiscal year on Sept. 30, could change again late this year if the Reagan administration succeeds in trimming or eliminating all subsidies to mailers.

Here are some examples of old and new preferred rates and percentage increases as approved by the Board of Governors Tuesday:

SECOND CLASS
 Incomey publications, 6.3 cents (four ounces), 7.3 cents, 16 percent.
 Non-profit publications, 8.2 cents (four ounces), 8.8 cents, 7 percent.
 Classroom publications, 11.2 cents (12 ounces), 12.4 cents, 20 percent.
 Farm publications (four ounces), 10.8 cents, 11.6 cents, 2 percent.

Police release summary of RFK files

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A summary of secret police files on the 1968 assassination of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy made public Tuesday shows investigators concluded that convicted gunman Sirhan Sirhan acted alone.

Sirhan was not under the influence of drugs or liquor and was legally sane when he shot Kennedy to death, according to a list of conclusions in the 1,453-page summary of more than 50,000 pages of documents in the main investigation file.

"There was no evidence of a conspiracy in the crime," said the three-volume report, which mentioned no suspect other than Sirhan by name.

Critics said the summary was inadequate and called for immediate release of the full file.

"This commission for 17 years has refused to give up records that have been given up in every other assassination case," said Paul Schrade, a former Kennedy aide who maintains the full files contain a statement from an FBI investigator that there may have been a second gunman.

The commission recommended that Mayor

Tom Bradley appoint a separate committee to handle the editing of the full file, and to set a timetable for their release.

The summary report, which was heavily censored to protect privacy rights, appeared to discount several well publicized conspiracy theories including the involvement of a so-called "girl in the polka dot dress."

The summary recalled accounts of a young woman in a black-and-white polka-dot dress running from the ambassador hotel moments after Kennedy's shooting June 5, 1968. A witness claimed to have heard her shout, "We shot him; we shot him," and when asked whom she shot, the woman responded, "We just shot Senator Kennedy."

After the account was broadcast on TV, further witnesses came forward and eventually contradicted each other's stories, the report said.

Ultimately, it was determined that the first witness "had concocted the entire story," the report concluded.

The report suggests that confusion arose because a Kennedy staff worker who was in the hotel kitchen at the time of the shooting was wearing a green dress with gold polka dots.

The summary reviews extensive investigations into Sirhan's possible link with Arabic groups, Communists, Cuban and right-wing extremists as well as a mystical organization. Those connections were discounted by officers who interviewed numerous unidentified people and conducted lie detector tests of those who made claims that he was linked with such groups.

One lead police followed involved an Iranian national who worked at Kennedy campaign headquarters from June 1 to June 4, 1968. The Iranian, not identified by name, had submitted the names of 24 other volunteer workers, all of Mid-Eastern extraction, to the Kennedy camp, the report said.

"It was alleged (the Iranian) was seen speaking to Sirhan at the headquarters, and Sirhan was alleged to have been wearing a gun at the time," the report stated.

"(The Iranian) denied any association with Sirhan and all evidence tended to support this," the report said.

Career officer new CIA deputy director

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan on Tuesday accepted the resignation of Deputy CIA Director John N. McMahon and quickly named another career intelligence officer to the agency's No. 2 spot under William Casey.

A surprise announcement by the White House Tuesday evening said Reagan would nominate Robert M. Gates, the agency's deputy director for intelligence, to replace McMahon.

McMahon, 56, a 34-year veteran of intelligence work, gave no explanation for his resignation other than to say in a letter to Reagan he had "reached a stage where I should move on."

Gates, 42, is a specialist in Soviet and Eastern European affairs who has served two tours on the National Security Council staff at the White House. He holds a doctoral degree from Georgetown University and has been associated with the CIA for 20 years, serving most of that time at the agency's headquarters in Langley, Va., just outside Washington.

The White House statement saying the president had accepted McMahon's resignation cited "personal reasons" for the deputy's departure, which is to be effective March 29.

The statement said Reagan accepted the resignation "with regret" and praised McMahon's long years of service to the nation.

There was no immediate explanation for the announcement, coming as it did after office hours Tuesday and after reporters had been told there would be no further statements from the White House.

But McMahon had been planning to leave for some time and his resignation was simply a normal personnel move, according to intelligence sources speaking on condition of anonymity.

In a letter dated Feb. 24 but not released until the resignation was announced, McMahon told Reagan, "With over 34 years in intelligence, I have reached a stage where I should move on."

He said he did so with mixed emotions but "with the satisfaction and confidence that U.S. intelligence has never been better, thanks to the resources you have placed into our intelligence effort and the strong support you have given our intelligence programs."

McMahon offered praise for Casey, a former Reagan campaign chairman who had not been associated with the intelligence community since World War II and has encountered some opposition within the CIA — and on Capitol Hill — since assuming the directorship five years ago.

He called Casey "a unique asset" who has brought "wisdom, energy and leadership that has provided our country with an intelligence capability second to none."

Court requires strict shop accounting

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court on Tuesday required strict accounting of contributions non-union public employees must make to unions for so-called agency shop contracts.

The justices unanimously ruled that a Chicago teachers union and city officials violated the rights of non-members in the way they handled the funds they were required to contribute, which amounted to 45 percent of the monthly dues paid by union members.

In another ruling, the court voted, 5-4, to limit lawsuits by prison inmates injured by guards during disturbances.

The court threw out a suit by an injured Oregon state prison inmate who claimed he was a "peacekeeper." The court said he was not the victim of "cruel and unusual punishment" when shot by a guard.

In the Chicago teachers case, the justices said unions must explain in advance where the contributions of non-members are spent and must assure there is a prompt, impartial process for settling disputes over the amount of payroll deductions.

Justice John Paul Stevens, writing for the court, said the procedure in Chicago was "inadequate because it failed to minimize the risk that non-union employees' contributions might be used for impermissible purposes, because it failed to provide adequate justification for the advance reduction of dues and because it failed to offer a reasonably prompt decision by an impartial decisionmaker."

He said it is not enough that paycheck deductions for non-union members be based on a good-faith estimate of how much money is used for collective bargaining and how much for ideological or political lobbying activities.

The ruling was hailed as "fantastic" by Thomas J. Harris, chairman of the National Right to Work Legal Defense Foundation in Springfield, Va.

"The high court is saying that before union officials take the first penny from workers who do not want this forced representation, there must be a clear-cut, impartial determination of the amount of money union officials spend on non-bargaining activities," Harris said.

The ruling applies directly to public employees in less than half the states — those that have "agency shops" requiring non-union members to contribute to the operation of the union. It is unclear what impact, if any, the decision has for employees of unionized private businesses.

Domestic car sales drop but imports make gains

DETROIT (AP) — Domestic automakers finished February in a rut, causing sales for the month to tumble 5 percent, compared with a year ago, according to company reports Tuesday.

Sales of imported cars rose 9.9 percent in February.

The monthly U.S. sales report was the first for the fledgling South Korean car industry. Hyundai Motor Co. Ltd. reported 568 deliveries of its Excel sub-compact car during the month. Its first step toward a planned 100,000 sales this year. Two other Korean companies plan to export cars here next year.

Sales of U.S.-made cars were brisk in the middle of February as shrewd dealers beat expiration deadlines for rebates and cut-rate financing. But when the sales gimmicks were revived at the end of the month, they were less generous, and analysts said that contributed to the late-month swoon.

The prevailing incentive offered by the Big Three is a 9.9 percent interest rate on loans financed through their in-house credit companies. The interest rates on loans for U.S.-made subcompact economy cars are below 8 percent.

Sales for the Feb. 21-28 reporting period were 187,092 for the seven domestic carmakers, down 25.6 percent from 251,335 a year ago.

Textbook objections not heeded

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — After hearing hours of sectarian debate, Gov. Bob Graham and state education officials Tuesday approved a secondary school biology textbook that don't discuss the theory of creationism.

More than 100 people attended the meeting to voice their objections to the texts recommended for purchase by Florida's 67 school districts.

Many in the audience wore buttons reading "Protect Parents' Rights." Some shouted "Amen!" during testimony from about a dozen creationism supporters. Some booed when one speaker defended the validity of evolution theories.

Opponents said the books presented Charles Darwin's theories of evolution as fact and ignored creationism, which they said should be presented side by side with evolution.

"I feel somewhat as Moses must have felt when he went to the Pharaohs and said, 'Let God's people go,'" said Shirley Correll of Lakeland. "In general, the teaching of evolution is a fraud and the worst case of coverup in the history of mankind."

Evolution is the concept that every living thing has been shaped by the forces of natural selection and that today's species developed over millions of years from simpler organisms, with fossil evidence showing some of these earlier forms.

Creationism holds that man and the world were created in an instant by a supreme being. It is a view that resembles the story of creation in the Bible, although proponents contend that creationism is science, not religion.

In December, the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals refused to rehear a case in which a Louisiana law requiring teaching of creationism was overturned. The majority opinion said that law "promotes religious belief."

Graham and the Independently elected, all-Democratic Cabinet sit on the state Board of Education. They approved the 22 books and a single home economics text recommended by a committee of educators from around the state. The vote was 5-0, with Attorney General Jim Smith and Insurance Commissioner Bill Gunter absent.

Main grades of U.S. oil dip under $12

By The Associated Press

The main grades of U.S. and British oils fell below $12 a barrel Tuesday, dropping to levels that, if sustained, could make some oil production uneconomical.

In the United States, oil last sold for under $12 a barrel in early 1976. British oil from the North Sea, which began production about 10 years ago, has never sold so low.

"Outside the volatile trading of speculative commodity markets and one-time deals, more U.S. oil companies were cutting official prices for the major grade of domestic crude. Citgo Petroleum Corp. said it has dropped to an industry low contract price of $14 a barrel for West Texas Intermediate."

Economists at the securities firm Merrill Lynch & Co. said in a weekly commentary that the only effective means of stopping the price slide would be a cutback in supplies. "Demand will not rise enough to support current prices," they said.

Several members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries have been trying to persuade colleagues in and out of the cartel to limit production to stabilize markets. So far, such an agreement has been elusive.

Merrill Lynch said pressure for production cutbacks will increase as prices drop to about $12 a barrel, making it uneconomical to operate low-volume wells, extract petroleum from Canadian oil sands or pump oil in remote arctic and offshore areas.

European traders said that oil, the "North Sea" oil grade, for May delivery sold Tuesday for $11.86 a barrel, down 64 cents from Monday.

Fair board eyes a new cinder block building

By PAT MARCANTONIO
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — A proposed cinder block building is the "best buy" to replace the merchants building that collapsed Dec. 1 at the Twin Falls County Fairgrounds, architect Russ Lively told the Fair Board Monday.

The board, in turn, asked Lively to prepare final plans for a new merchants and multi-use building. Another meeting will be held in two weeks for the board to review the final plans and specifications before they are given to contractors for a bid.

Fair Board member Emmett Harrison, who was on a committee working with Lively, said the new building could probably be built for under $100,000.

The county's insurance company projected the cost of a replacement for the old building at about $95,000. Commissioner Marvin Hempleman said. The company already has made a partial payment of about $46,000.

Depending on cost estimates for the new building, the county may have to negotiate with the insurance company for more money, Hempleman added.

Lively presented preliminary plans for the new structure to the board Monday. The building will be 60 feet by 160 feet, or about the same size as the 20-year-old wooden building that collapsed under the weight of snow.

Lively said the old concrete floor slab will have to be removed because it was structurally inadequate. Using it for the new building would be "just calling for trouble," he said.

The front and rear doors in the new building would be set back about 12 feet from the walls to ease entry and to protect the doors from the weather.

Some board members were worried that the design of the doors would mean the loss of rentable space for merchants. But Harrison said there probably would be more space inside the new buildings because it wouldn't have posts inside as the old building had.

Lively added, "In essence, we still are talking about a simple block building." The building will be designed for multi-purpose uses, with forced-air heaters for the winter.

Harrison said there would be detachable redwood benches outside and an attractive entrance to the building.

Fair Board Chairman Stan Snow asked Lively if the proposed building was the best for the least amount of money.

"There's no doubt in my mind," Lively replied. "Using blocks would serve the county's purposes because they are sturdy, mostly maintenance-free and cooler in the summer than a metal building, Lively said.

"You should never have any heat problems in this building," he added. "It's the best buy for the Fair Board."

"I feel we need to keep it in the valley," Snow said. In other business, the board decided it didn't want to foot the bill for increased insurance premiums for the Inland Empire Carnival, a former Twin Falls operation, now headquartered in Las Vegas, Nev.

In a letter to the board, Inland Empire Vice President L. Reed Williams said the company's insurance costs rose drastically in 1986.

Under the terms of last year's contract, the fair took about 35 percent of the gross revenue from the carnival. Because of the increased insurance costs, Inland Empire suggested the county fair this year take just 30 percent of the revenue or, as an alternative, that 10 percent of the gross be taken up front for the insurance costs.

Fair Board member Don Kramer said the board should negotiate, because the Twin Falls County Fair always made money for the carnival operators. "We're picking up the tab for their insurance," Snow said.

Causa invites leaders to talks

Conference tapes will be presented

TWIN FALLS — Causa, the activist arm of the Unification Church, has invited several community leaders, clergy and others to attend showings this week of videotaped presentations from a Causa-sponsored conference for state legislators held last December in Arizona.

The conference focused on the U.S. Constitution and was attended by more than 400 lawmakers, including state Sen. Larry Anderson, R-Twin Falls, and Rep. Jerry Callen, R-Jerome.

The conference, which was held in Phoenix, was co-sponsored by the National Center for Constitutional Studies, a constitution education group.

Videotaped addresses from U.S. Senators Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, and Sam Nunn, D-Alabama, and from Armand deBorjgrave, editor of the church-owned Washington Times, will be presented Thursday in Twin Falls at 7 p.m. at North's Chuck Wagon, said Paul Carlson of Twin Falls, a volunteer for Causa, which regularly sponsors anti-communism seminars across the nation. The meeting will include a no-host dinner and discussion.

The tapes will be shown again Friday in conjunction with a Causa lecture series on communism, Carlson said. The meeting will be held at the Pine Room of the Canyon Springs Inn, with the lecture starting at 3 p.m. The tapes will be shown at 6 p.m.

The lecture includes a history and theory of communism, a critique of those theories and information about the communist role in world events, Carlson said.

The lectures are held locally about twice a month for interested people and others who he believes might be interested, Carlson added. His mailing list includes about 200 people. Despite his sending invitations, the meetings are open to the public, he said.

"The information provided in the lecture is 'intellectual and detailed,'" he said, "and I believe will be presenting the lecture. The purpose of the lecture is to educate people about communism."

Peace project hindered by absenteeism

By MICHAEL VANAUSELON
Times-News correspondent

TWIN FALLS — Despite the absence of several high school students, the "final workshop" of the "Promoting Peace" project, attracted Twin Falls High Student Body President Brad Bowlin and an audience of about 25 persons.

Bowlin had mixed feelings about the absence of his fellow presidents, saying that it was difficult for young people to speak their minds and act for a peace movement.

"There is a lot of concern — not necessarily fear — that we young people have to do something," he said, "but there are problems with expression."

Bowlin felt that today's students express themselves in less direct ways than adults.

"I think we express ourselves in more abstract ways," he said. "For example, we have our music, which is becoming more political now. If some of the political songs were to have been played a few years ago, I don't think they would have been as popular as they are now. I think that represents a change in attitude among the youth."

"There was some discussion that more exposure to other parts of the world, for example, western Europe — might generate more student involvement and interest in political affairs, including world peace."

"I don't think students need to be actually involved," responded Bowlin, "but at least they should be thinking about peace."

Harry Massoth, member of the Magic Valley Committee for the International Year of Peace, said the positive nature of the current peace movement might be a reason for apathy among students.

"In the '60s, the movements were against something — against Vietnam, against racism. But this peace movement is not an anti-something movement, it's a pro-peace movement," said Massoth.

Bowlin agreed, saying, "It's harder to work for a positive movement."

Massoth said that four groups in society were important in achieving world peace because of their sensitivity: scientists, spiritual leaders, artists and youth.

The youth really have an important role because they are living in a time in their life when their imaginations are set loose," he said. "In effect, we will soon be learning from them."

Massoth also felt that in order for the peace movement to be effective, human potential has to be realized.

"There needs to be a new conception of man and a new conception of man in the cosmos," he said. "We have to think of ourselves as citizens in the cosmos and re-think man's place."

One concept that Massoth felt needed re-evaluating was the classification of man in the animal kingdom.

"We are not part of the animal kingdom; we can achieve more than any member of the animal kingdom," said Massoth. "If you don't believe me, try reciting poetry to your dog."

Ketchum shooting victim critical

By DAVID LEWIS
Times-News correspondent

KETCHUM — A Ketchum man was in critical condition late Tuesday after being wounded in a shooting incident late Monday, south of Ketchum.

Gary Widdison, 30, was apparently shot in the abdomen during an altercation in Sun Tree Hollow, a small trailer park 2 1/2 miles south of Ketchum. Widdison was transferred to St. Alphonsus Regional Medical Center in Boise on Tuesday and remained on the critical list there Tuesday night.

Being held in Blaine County Jail on charges of aggravated battery is John Eugene Slimp, 32, also of Ketchum. The shooting took place in Slimp's trailer, according to the Blaine County Sheriff's Department dispatcher.

The only details available of the incident Tuesday were in a sheriff's office press release. Efforts by The Times-News to reach Sheriff Dennis Haynes and Blaine County Prosecutor Sandra Shaw were unsuccessful.

According to the release, Widdison was shot at about 9 p.m. Monday during an "altercation" with Slimp in Slimp's trailer. The release did not say what the altercation was about.

According to a Ketchum Fire Department dispatcher, the city's emergency communications center received a call at 8:57 p.m. Ketchum police, a Ketchum ambulance and sheriff's deputies were dispatched to the scene.

The dispatcher said the officers had no problem securing the area after they arrived. She said Widdison was wounded in the abdomen with a .34-caliber weapon.

The sheriff's and prosecutor's offices are continuing their investigation.

Memories linger after cold night on desert

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

RUPERT — Three persons who spent Sunday night in the desert northeast of Minidoka, were back home Tuesday with no ill effects other than memories of a cold night and long wait.

Minidoka County Sheriff Ray Jarvis said his office was contacted on Monday by Mrs. Roy Cook and John Catmull of the First Security Bank in Rupert, saying they were concerned about a fellow worker. They reported that Shirli Hendrix of Rupert had failed to show up for work Monday and could not be located.

Jarvis said Hendrix, his wife Leda, and their son-in-law, Dick Noble of Anchorage, Alaska, decided Sunday afternoon to drive into the desert to explore the Lebanon Cedars area northeast of Minidoka. The area once contained a stand of huge cedar trees, Jarvis said.

All roads in the desert area along the north portion of Minidoka County are virtually impassable, the sheriff said, and the Hendrix pickup truck had become stuck in a mud hole on the main road. Jarvis warned persons to stay out of that region because of mud from melting snow and recent rains.

Jarvis said the Minidoka County Search and Rescue unit was called out shortly after noon Monday and a

Council makes self-insurance official

By ANNETTE CARY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls City Council voted Monday to make its self-insurance program official. The city has been self-insuring by default since late January when its insurance policy lapsed, with no claims in hand for 1986 coverage.

The lack of insurers may have been a blessing, however, said Councilman Rick Carr, since it forced the city to evaluate its insurance costs and learn that self-insurance could save taxpayers money.

"The success of the self-insurance plan may depend on how well the city can manage its risks, city officials said. City employees are being asked to report any potentially hazardous situations they spot for which the city could be held liable. The public, said Carr, if they spot a potential hazard, do not report it and it results in a claim against the city, taxpayers will foot the bill."

Council members are anxious to dispel any "fear" theories the public may hold about the city. Any claims against the city will now come directly from the taxpayers' pocket, not from an insurer which is paid a premium to cover claims against the city, council members are emphasizing.

Under the plan adopted by the council, any part of the $211,000 liability insurance — that is not paid out in claims or related expenses will be retained in an insurance fund, according to a staff memo. When the fund reaches $750,000, the city will be able to levy only as much money as needed to replace funds paid out in claims each year.

Six years from now that could mean a $150,000 cut in taxes, according to estimates generated by city staff members.

City Finance Director Rick Thompson estimated the council will spend $23,000 annually for additional legal help and $8,000 annually for hourly work by a claims adjuster. If claims are similar to the last three years, the city can expect to pay out $63,000. That puts the total estimated cost of $92,000 for self-insuring in the current year.

The city's best-liability year of the last five, paid liability claims against the city amounted to only $5,500. If the city were to have a similar year after the fund had reached $750,000, the city would spend only $35,000 for li-

Special meeting called on race track bid

By MICHAEL VANAUSELON
Times-News correspondent

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls City Council has called a special meeting for 11 a.m. today to consider approval of a lease that would allow a racetrack to be built on Twin Falls-Sun Valley Regional Airport property.

The council is also scheduled to make appointments to the Industrial Development Corp. Board to clear the way for a request for industrial-revenue bonds from Fantasy Futures Ltd.

Fantasy wants to build a 12,500-square-foot warehouse for Amiac Electric Supply, says city Finance Director Rick Thompson. The warehouse will cost $420,000. An application for the bonds is expected within the next week.

The council has already approved the concept of the racetrack lease, but is still working out details of a lease. Some members are concerned that the city may pay more in liability claims than it collects in rent.

Monday, track developer Robert C. Walls gave the council a revised proposal. He agreed to raise the annual minimum lease payment from $2,400 to $3,000. However, the lease would also contain a provision that would require the owners to pay the city 25 cents per patron.

The Legislature permits cities to exceed a 5 percent annual limit on property tax increases to cover liability costs.

That means the city has more leeway in levying taxes for liability insurance than for most other services and could increase taxes if more claims that usual were received. The city can also drop taxes for liability costs as much as officials want without worrying that the taxing ceiling will be permanently lowered.

In other council business Monday, Councilman Jack Miller suggested that local residents along a block or two of some of the city streets in the coming season opening. The two sides would disrepair might be willing to assess themselves to repair their street.

In praise of plumpness

Designers finally gear advertising to women size 14 and up

By STEPHANIE MANSFIELD
The Washington Post

Let us now praise the plump woman. Also known as La Femme en Plus. La wide load. Everything you always wanted in a woman, and more.

For years, jokes have been made about ample women. Joan Rivers made a career of savaging the pre-Betty Fordian Elizabeth Taylor. ("Mosquitoes see her and scream, 'Surf! She pierced her ears and gravy ran out.'") But now, the zaffig look is back, bigger than ever. We're talking Reubensques, as in the sandwich. Double-doctor dames. Life in the fast Lane Bryant.

This week, Vogue magazine hit the stands with a 33-page advertising supplement celebrating the larger-sized woman. For the first time in its 91-year history, the fashion bible is acknowledging what women have known all along: None of us looks like Janie Lee Curtis.

Why would you want to devote your life to looking like her? High-contrast day revolves around dieting," says Hara Marano, editorial director of the Fashion Plus supplement and a size-20 herself. "There's more to life than a waistline."

Of course the magazine is merely cashing in

I just want to allow women the freedom to not worry about dieting. It's become a very destructive influence in women's lives.

— Nancy Roberts

on what merchants have known for years: 30 percent of the female population wears size 14 or over. That's 40 million women.

"It's the fastest-growing segment of the fashion industry," says Jere Dandel, the supplement's publisher. The reaction has been extraordinary, not only from the fashion industry but from advertisers as well. There's been nothing like it.

Daniel, who said he sold the full-page ads at the regular Vogue advertising rate ($27,500 for full-color page, $19,000 for black and white), is already planning an even larger supplement for the September issue praising the fat pack.

"They're not fat," Daniel says. "I would call them—large. And—large—women can be beautiful."

And the word, in the fashion industry, is spreading. Says Marano, firmly: "There is fashion after size 12."

Is this the dawn of Stout Clout? "I think it's a movement," says Nancy Roberts, British radio show host and author of "Breaking All the Rules," a new book celebrating the voluptuous woman. "Big women are beginning to get angry."

Roberts, sister of actor Tony Roberts, is a satisfied reader of the diet backlist. "I don't want to tell anybody to be fat," she says. "I just want to allow women the freedom to not worry about dieting. It's become a very destructive influence in women's lives."

Indeed, some women's magazines—concerned with the proliferation of eating disorders among young women—are telling their readers to relax. Last month's Mademoiselle, in a report headlined "Skinny Girls Ain't Sexy," even offered advice about how to keep on those extra five pounds. The story, quoting a recent study conducted at the University of Pennsylvania, found that "men consider women with a little extra padding much sexier than women with sleek thin figures." The article also notes that fat gives skin a more youthful appearance, prevents premature wrinkling, helps fight disease and is essential for healthy skin and hair.

Vietnam vets continue to fight myths

DEAR ABBY: I am writing reference to your column signed "Anna in Hillsboro, Ore.," whose father was denied treatment at the VA hospital because he was first admitted to civilian hospital.

While the advice you gave her "Get the book, 'Viet Vet Survival Guide,' and learn what your rights are" was good, I am mighty incensed by your comment, "Realizing that the average Vietnam veteran did not get past high school, the authors use plain language and short sentences."

Where and how did you come by such ridiculous information? As if we do not have enough falsehoods to overcome, we now have been classified as practically illiterate!

I quote from Facts and Fiction, taken from the National Vietnam Veterans Review (Nov. 1982):

FACTION: High school dropouts formed the largest proportion of U.S. forces in Vietnam.

FACT: 79 percent of those who served in Vietnam had a high school education OR BETTER when they entered the military service.

FACT: This was the best-educated army America has ever fielded. For comparison, 63 percent of Korean War vets, and only 45 percent of

Abigail VanBuren
Dear Abby

WWII vets, had completed high school upon separation from the military.

I think you owe the Vietnam veterans an apology. We've had enough bum raps over the years without your undeserved putdown.

VIETNAM VETERAN DEAR ABBY: "The 'ridiculous information' (the average Vietnam veteran did not get past high school) is one of the myths about the Vietnam War still deeply ingrained in the minds of the American public over a decade after the last combat troops left the war zone."

I was not aware that I was perpetuating a false stereotype. Therefore, I offer my sincere apologies to anyone I might have offended.

DEAR ABBY: I am feeling torn. It has taken a long time for me to adjust after suffering a nervous breakdown. During my time of adjustment, I was blessed with a wonderful psychologist who helped me to find my way again.

During the time she treated me, we developed a special kind of friendship. I have not seen her for three months when we agreed that I no longer needed therapy.

I am now being baptized for the first time in my life in the Catholic Church. My priest tells me that I need a sponsor or a "godmother." I would like to ask my former therapist to be my godmother, but I don't want her to feel obligated. I am wondering if maybe it would be too much to ask her.

This is very important to me. Should I ask her?

— UNSUR

DEAR UNSURE: Ask her only if you feel reasonably certain that she will accept without hesitation. Some therapists, as a matter of policy, do not "socialize" with patients or former patients, so if you ask her and she declines, do not feel personally rejected.

DEAR ABBY: It's easy to find out if a gift was not received. Mail a postcard saying, "I am sending you a gift. You should receive it in a few days, a week, or whatever."

You may not hear if it is received, but you will surely hear if it isn't.

Host families needed soon

TWIN FALLS — Host families are needed in Magic Valley by April 1 to house American-Field-Service-exchange students for the next school year.

Families are not asked to make special expenditures for their exchange student, but they do pay food costs and incidental expenses as they would for their own child, according to Susan Waters, Twin Falls, host family coordinator.

She says a careful placement process, based on interviews and information provided by both exchange students and prospective host families, is coordinated by AFS International in New York City. Students and families are matched on the basis of interests and lifestyle.

Families interested in hosting a foreign student should contact Waters at 733-5562, evenings.

10 reasons you should advertise when business gets tough.

Results

Advertising is "news" — about products and services. Most shoppers look for this kind of news in the pages of the daily newspaper. In plush times, retailers often experiment with other media. But when the going gets tough, they concentrate their efforts in the daily newspaper because it provides an immediate payoff at the cash register.

If you're afraid business is heading for a slowdown, that's the best possible reason to increase your advertising in the newspaper. The Times-News will help you plan a program that will pay dividends in more store traffic and more sales. Senate adopts shelter home category

BOISE (AP) — The Senate has endorsed legislation validating the Health and Welfare Department's creation of a specialized shelter home category in a debate marked by warnings of usurpation of legislative authority.

Idaho
Legislature
1986

The bill, sent to the House on Tuesday, was prompted by a state district court decision, voiding the department's administrative action in setting up the specialized category of shelter homes of 15 beds or less and authorizing them for increased government support.

"We cannot allow, we cannot afford laws being written by government agencies, and that is exactly what's happening here," argued Sen. Larry Anderson, R-Twin Falls.

But supporters of the bill, tending off claims that the category was based on an arbitrary number rather than the actual quality of care provided by the home, countered that the developmentally disabled served by the special homes should not be penalized because of a bureaucratic mistake.

"If we really believe the agency should be punished, maybe we should censure the director," Sen. John Peavey, D-Carey, said. "It isn't fair to punish those people who are receiving these services."

In what department officials have said was a belief that they had the authority, the department created the specialized class of shelter home care for developmentally disabled persons to provide a transition between institutionalization and independent living.

Exemption sought

WASHINGTON (AP) — States should be exempted from the "onerous standard" of a 12-year statute of limitations on a bar against state claims, Idaho Attorney General Jim Jones said.

contemplated that the 12-year statute of limitations provided for in the act would be utilized as a bar against state claims," Jones said in prepared testimony. "The legislative history of the act does not indicate that Congress intended it to apply to the claims of sovereign states."

Jones testified in Washington Tuesday before the House Judiciary Committee's Subcommittee on Administrative Law and Governmental Relations on a bill sponsored by 1983 U.S. Supreme Court ruling that states are subject to the statute of limitations.

Jones, speaking on behalf of Idaho and the National Association of Attorneys General, said the existing law puts Western states at a particular disadvantage since large federal land holdings often are shut through with state-owned land which could come into dispute.

"When the Federal Quiet Title Act was enacted in 1972 it was not

House passes bill placing damage limit

BOISE (AP) — Despite opposition of most of the lawyer-legislator members, the Idaho House has approved legislation designed to curb the soaring cost of liability insurance.

Despite warnings from the lawyers that the act was "unfair and unnecessary," the house voted 57-25 for a bill placing a limit of $250,000 for noneconomic damages that could be awarded in personal injury lawsuits.

The bill, which one legislator said was the subject of the heaviest lobbying he has seen in the Idaho Legislature, now goes to the Senate.

Rep. Janet Hay, R-Nampa, sponsor of the bill, said the limit was necessary to protect professional people and organizations from soaring premiums for liability insurance.

At the close of her debate, she read a list of 64 organizations supporting the limit. "How can 64 organizations like that be wrong?" she asked. "There's nothing unconstitutional about making common law follow common sense."

During a four-hour debate, supporters argued the bill was necessary to curb excessive judgments in personal injury lawsuits, which lead to higher premiums for insurance.

But opponents argued that huge judgments are not the reason liability insurance costs have soared. Premiums have been boosted to make up for losses suffered by the insurance companies, they said.

"If ever there were a bill that should be shot down, this is the one," added Rep. Jeff Stoker, R-Twin Falls, a lawyer.

Required use of seat belts clears House

BOISE (AP) — Idahoans may have to buckle up while traveling in motor vehicles, if the Senate goes along with action in the Idaho House of Representatives on Tuesday.

The House voted 45-39 for a new state law requiring motorists to wear seat belts.

Opponents argued the requirement was unenforceable, unnecessary and was just another example of federal blackmail.

"We're just trying to save people," said Rep. Don Loveland, R-Boise. "If it causes just a few more people to buckle up, it's worth the effort."

Rep. Waldo Marentes, R-Jerome, the bill's sponsor, was more specific. He told House members the legislation would greatly increase safety belt use; increased use would save lives, up to 60 per year in Idaho.

"Every well could be your own, or someone else's," he said.

The bill requires anyone traveling in the front seat of a moving motor vehicle to wear a seat belt, if the vehicle is equipped with them. Exempted are motorcycles, farm vehicles, back seat passengers, and passengers in vehicles over 8,000 pounds.

Debate on the bill started Tuesday morning and carried on in the afternoon for nearly an hour before the House decided the issue.

Arguments on the bill didn't stick to the bill itself, but centered on whether the federal government should continue to force requirements on the state.

Murder charges filed in slaying

POCATELLO (AP) — A Fort Hall man has been charged with second-degree murder for the slaying death of a Heyburn man at a weekend party in Pocatello, officials said.

Lester Joe Nagashoah, 32, was being held without bond at the Banook County Jail on Tuesday after giving himself up to authorities Monday night, said Capt. Lynn Harris, chief of police for the Pocatello Police Department.

Nagashoah is accused of slaying the throat of Eugene R. Romero, 31, at a party Saturday night. Romero died Sunday morning at a Pocatello hospital.

Nagashoah was scheduled for arraignment Tuesday afternoon, Prosecutor Shawn Anderson said.

Ditka lauds action against drug users

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Pretty little girls shouldn't play football, and big, tough football players shouldn't take drugs. Coach Mike Ditka of the Super Bowl champion Chicago Bears said Tuesday.

Ditka, the speaker at a Crossroads Rehabilitation Center luncheon, was introduced to 5-year-old Heather Nolan, the central Indiana Easter Seal child at a news conference at the Indiana Convention Center.

Ditka picked Heather up and, as a sponsor handed him a football, he said to the child, "Keep that away from you ... you're much too pretty for football."

"You need a baton," he joked, drawing chuckles from the newsmen in the room.

Then, asked about drug problems in sports, Ditka got serious.

He said major league sports "is getting the knocks" because of the publicity surrounding each revelation of drug use by a high-paid athlete, but he called it "society's problem."

If he were in charge, Ditka said, there would be mandatory drug tests for every player in the National Football League.

"If he doesn't want to submit to the test, fine; he doesn't play. Life is hard. If you're out in society and you commit a crime, you go to jail. Drugs hurt a lot of people, not just the athlete. When kids see these players taking drugs, the image of the game comes down."

Ditka applauded baseball commissioner Peter Ueberroth's action to punish drug-abusers with suspensions or fines. But it was only "a step in the right direction," Ditka said.

"Hopefully, it will force our commissioner (Pete Rozelle) to take a stand. The players' association will put up a fight, but I'm not worried about what the players' association thinks anymore. Just do it. In a few years, we'll have a clean game."

On other subjects, Ditka said: —Instant replay. He is in favor of "anything that makes the game better ... You hate to play good for 15 or 16 games and then be eliminated because of a controversial call. If they can incorporate it, then I'm in favor of it."

—Roster size. "I wish it could go back to 49 players. The cut (to 45) was made as a cost-cutting move and it's been successful. But I think every team carried at least four guys on injured reserve who didn't have to be. We need them not so much for the games but in practice."

Buddy Ryan, the former Bears' defensive coach who has been named coach of the Philadelphia Eagles. "Coaches deserve credit, but people (fans) deserve credit more. Yeah, we'll miss him. But over the years, a lot of good young people have come into our defense, which made it work."

—The Indianapolis Colts, who beat the Bears in an exhibition game last summer and gave them a fight during a regular-season loss. "The Colts are a good team. We were fortunate to win the game. They've got a good basis for the defense and good running backs. I like quarterback Gene Upshaw. We were going to draft him out of college."

—Improving on last season's performance by the Bears. "Improvement comes from not being satisfied. We can improve throwing the ball on offense, and defensively be more consistent in not giving up big plays. The main thing is attitude. We've had a positive attitude the last two seasons, and it paid off."

Northside names all-stars

RICHFIELD — Bruce Bowers and Pegesh Thomas of Northside Conference boys' and girls' champion Richfield lead the league's basketball all-star team as selected by the conference coaches.

Bowers is joined on the boys' first team by Dietrich's Alan Stoddard, Scott Pyrah of Carey, Travis Jones of Camas County and Brian Patterson of Gooding State.

Joining Thomas on the girls' first team are Lois Hobeby and Pauline Sears of Bliss, Mindy Funkhouser of Camas County and Denise Parke of Carey.

Second-team boys' selections were Barry Ward and Todd Swainston of Richfield, Dennis Robbins of Camas County, Steve Sears of Bliss and Roddy Cabage of Gooding State.

Girls' second-team selections were Karin Norman, Tina Erwin and Renae Hlatt of Richfield, Sunny Knowles of Dietrich, Ann Reay of Carey, Marlon Meyer of the Ketchum-Sun Valley Community School and Shea Benscoter of Bliss.

Dietrich's Norm Cook and Richfield's Rudy Miles were chosen boys' co-coaches of the year, while Bliss' Diana McAnulty was chosen as the girls' coach of the year.

Bruno decks Coetzee in first

WEMBLEY, England (AP) — Britain's Frank Bruno knocked out Gerrie Coetzee just 1:50 into the first round Tuesday night and set up a possible fight for the World Boxing Association heavyweight title.

Bruno knocked down the 30-year-old South African twice in the opening round. The second time, Bruno unleashed a hard right that left Coetzee, the former WBA champion, spread-eagled through the ropes. At that point, Canadian referee Guy Jutras stopped the scheduled 12-round bout at the Wembley stadium.

The fight was an elimination bout for Tim Witherspoon's WBA title. A British promoter already has booked Wembley's 100,000-seat soccer stadium for a potential showdown with the American champion in June.

Witherspoon faces a drugs probe and could be stripped of the title because traces of marijuana were found in his bloodstream after he took the title from countryman Tony Tubbs in January. A hearing on Witherspoon's situation will be held Friday in Philadelphia.

Jets name new coach

WINNIPEG, Manitoba (AP) — The Winnipeg Jets named General Manager John Ferguson as coach of the National Hockey League team Tuesday, replacing Barry Long.

Jets spokesman Ralph Carter said Long had been appointed assistant to the general manager and would remain with the organization.

Ferguson's move behind the bench had been widely anticipated. The Jets were fourth overall in the 21-team NHL last season, but have struggled this year and now lag in 10th place overall, having lost eight of their last nine games.

Ferguson said he had not decided whether he would remain coach for the rest of the 1985-86 season.

"It'll decide as time goes by," Ferguson said. "But right now we have an objective to make the playoffs and that's our major concern."

Globetrotters may be sold

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — A Minneapolis-based company has agreed to buy the Harlem Globetrotters basketball team and Ice Capades Inc., an ice skating entertainment company, for $30 million, the company's president said Tuesday.

"I'm thrilled with this opportunity to be associated with two of the pre-eminent entertainment and sporting attractions in the world," said Thomas Scallan, president of International Broadcasting Corp.

The sale by Metromedia Inc. is subject to regulatory approval and completion of financial arrangements, the companies said in a joint announcement.

Both the Globetrotters and Ice Capades will continue to be based in their current locations — Hollywood, Calif., for the Ice Capades and Sherman Oaks, Calif., for the Globetrotters.

Williams to stay at LSU

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — Basketball star John Williams of Louisiana State has squelched rumors that he might apply for hardship and turn professional.

Williams said Tuesday he intends to stay at LSU and wants to try for the 1988 Olympic team.

"I finalized my decision," he said. "It seemed like all the stuff we went through, we stuck together and we won 21 games. That motivates me. Plus, the Olympics are coming up and I want to be part of it."

"I have decided to play two more years at LSU and complete my collegiate eligibility."

Coach Dale Brown said he was "delighted with John's decision because he's not only a magnificent basketball player but a wonderful human being to be around."

D.C. still wants baseball

WASHINGTON (AP) — Representatives of the District of Columbia Baseball Commission are planning to meet with major league baseball owners in Florida to keep alive interest in getting an expansion team for the nation's capital, D.C. City Councilman Frank Smith, chairman of the commission, said Tuesday.

The city's high-profile campaign for a team has moved to behind-the-scenes talk with team owners after major league owners last December failed to vote on expanding. Smith said.

"We're in it for the long haul," said Smith. "Now we're dealing more directly with the owners. There are still some concerns they have about the city of Washington."

Smith said the drive to have fans reserve season tickets by opening savings accounts at area banks has netted more than 15,000 accounts, but that the drive has slowed down since the owners meeting.

NBA honors Larry Bird

NEW-YORK (AP) — Larry Bird of Boston Celtics, who averaged 29.9 points, 13.6 rebounds and 8.6 assists during February, was named on Tuesday as the NBA's Player of the Month.

Bird, the league's Most Valuable Player last year, led Boston to an 11-3 record in a month in which nine of their games were on the road.

He beat out Isiah Thomas of Detroit, Kareem Abdul-Jabbar of the Los Angeles Lakers, Ralph Sampson of the Houston Rockets, Adrian Danley of Utah, Roy Hinson of Cleveland, Herb Williams of Indiana, Jeff Malone of Washington, Sidney Moncrief of Milwaukee and Alex English of Denver.

With a new captain and without John McEnroe, the United States will begin its 1986 Davis Cup play Friday in Ecuador on a dreaded clay surface.

"It's going to be tough, no matter what happened years ago," said Brad Gilbert, who will make his Davis Cup debut in the three-day, first-round World Group competition.

The last time the two countries met on the slow, red clay courts in Guayaquil, Ecuador, was in 1967, when Arthur Ashe lost two singles matches and Clark Graebner and Marty Riessen lost in doubles. Every U.S. loss in the past five years has come on clay — as the Americans haven't won the Cup since 1982.

In the Davis Cup competition, only the 16 countries in the World Group actually compete for the prestigious international tennis trophy. Besides the United States at Ecuador, other first-round matchups will have defending champions Sweden at Denmark, West Germany at Mexico, Australia at New Zealand, Spain at Great Britain, the Soviet Union at Yugoslavia, Czechoslovakia at India and Paraguay at Italy.

Besides the World Group, second-round matches will be played this weekend in the American and African zones, while first-round matches will be played in the Eastern Zone.

In the American Zone, Canada is at Chile, Brazil plays Commonwealth Caribbean at Jamaica, Uruguay is at Argentina and Peru is at Colombia. The Peruvian team will be contested Thursday through Saturday, the others will be played Friday through Sunday.

In the African Zone, Libya is at Zimbabwe, Kenya at Morocco and Nigeria at Senegal. All beginning on Friday, while the Ivory Coast will be at Algeria Wednesday through Friday. The African Zone winners advance to the European Zone first round, which begin play May 9-11.

The Eastern Zone matchups will have Chinese Taipei at Singapore, Hong Kong at Malaysia, Bangladesh at Philippines and Indonesia, and Sri Lanka at Pakistan.

S. Africa government to lift state of emergency on Friday

CAPE TOWN, South Africa (AP) — President P.W. Botha announced that the 195-day-old state of emergency imposed to fight anti-apartheid turmoil in South Africa probably would be lifted on Friday.

His announcement Tuesday was praised by the United States and was given a cautious welcome from some South African liberals. But it provoked expressions of concern from the largest anti-apartheid grouping, the United Democratic Front, that the emergency would be supplanted by repressive legislation.

Botha also made a new offer of statehood for Namibia, proposing an Aug. 1 target date for starting moves toward the territory's independence. He made it conditional on a withdrawal of Cuban troops from neighboring Angola.

He reported two blacks were killed by security officers. They said police shotgun fire killed a man in the western Transvaal province and a youth died of injuries suffered

when police quelled a riot in Johannesburg, southwest of Johannesburg. They also reported that two whites were seriously hurt when their car was stoned in the south of the country.

Botha made his announcements to a packed parliamentary chamber in the country's legislative capital.

He claimed the level of violence had dropped sufficiently to enable him to issue a proclamation, "most probably this coming Friday," to lift the state of emergency.

But critics of the system of racial segregation that keeps power in the hands of South Africa's white minority said they could not readily explain the timing of Botha's announcement. They insisted that the level of violence had not dropped.

The emergency, imposed July 21 on 30 urban and rural districts and subsequently lifted from seven, gives police and troops sweeping powers to use guns against rioters and detain suspects indefinitely without trial. It has been widely condemned abroad, and its removal is a primary demand of anti-apartheid activists.

Botha made no mention of freeing the estimated 300 people being held under emergency powers of withdrawing the troops from black townships. He also said Parliament would be asked to review existing laws in case new ones were needed to help "protect lives and property effectively."

The United Democratic Front, a multiracial coalition of anti-apartheid groups, said lifting the emergency would be an "acknowledgment that the emergency has failed to suppress the desire of our people to be free."

But the organization expressed concern at Botha's mention of new laws, saying: "The government is going to broaden the already draconian provisions of the Internal Security Act. The effect of this is that a de facto state of emergency will exist throughout our country."

The 70-year-old "Africaner" president offered to implement a U.N.

resolution granting independence to Namibia if the Cubans left Angola, Namibia, or South-West Africa, is under South African administration and is a target of guerrillas operating from Angola.

Botha said Namibia's 1 million people "have waited long enough for independence," a delay he claimed "cannot be laid at South Africa's door."

His promise to lift the state of emergency won praise from one of his most implacable foes, Member of Parliament Helen Suzman of the Progressive Federal Party.

Mrs. Suzman told The Associated Press she was delighted because she assumed it meant the release of detainees.

She said the emergency had done nothing to calm the 18-month state of unrest, and warned that "unless an attempt is made to get to the roots of the unrest, we will have an ongoing, endemic state of violence in this country."

Thesido Matona, a black member of the campaign to release jailed African nationalist Nelson Mandela, said it was a victory for the anti-apartheid movement, "because he believes Botha had acted under internal and international pressure."

They said the president may have had in mind warnings from bankers that the emergency was undermining confidence in South African stability, as well as the presence of a Commonwealth group investigating apartheid. The group had talks with parliamentary opposition leaders Tuesday.

Aquino commission claims new evidence

Marcos, pals made off with billions

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — The government of Corazon Aquino said Tuesday it has new evidence that ousted President Ferdinand E. Marcos and his family and associates allegedly plundered up to $10 billion of the nation's wealth.

Former Sen. Jovito Salonga told a news conference documents found at the presidential palace after Marcos hurriedly abandoned it Feb. 25 link Marcos to purported illegal purchases of property in United States.

Salonga is chairman of a five-member commission Mrs. Aquino created last week to recover "all ill-gotten wealth" that the Marcos family and its associates allegedly accumulated and secreted under dummy names during Marcos' 20-year rule.

Asked how much money was involved, Salonga replied, "maybe $5 billion to $10 billion." He did not elaborate.

The estimate was the largest yet. The 1985 national budget of the financially strapped Philippines was $3.3 billion.

The nation's foreign debt is $26 billion and, according to the Marcos government, the average per capita income of the 55.5 million Filipinos last year was $105.

Rep. Stephen J. Solarz, D-N.Y., told a news conference at Manila airport Tuesday he believes the U.S. government "ought to be doing everything we can to facilitate the recovery of these assets," because they were "stolen and swindled from the pockets of the Filipino people."

Solarz, chairman of the House subcommittee on Asian affairs that recently conducted hearings on Marcos' alleged holdings in the United States, said there was "persuasive documentary and direct evidence that the Marcoses control a real estate empire in the New York City area alone of up to $350 million."

Lawyers for the new government obtained a court injunction in New York on Sunday barring sale of five New York properties allegedly owned or controlled by Marcos.

Meanwhile, most members of the Philippines' highest court resigned Tuesday to give Mrs. Aquino's week-old government a free hand in revamping the judicial system. The system is composed of Marcos appointees and has been viewed by the public with distrust.

The official Philippine News Agency reported the resignations of five of the Supreme Court's 12 members after Justice Minister Neptali Gonzales confirmed that most of the 34 members of the Intermediate Appellate court had already resigned.

Among those resigning was senior Associate Justice Claudio Techankee, who swore in Mrs. Aquino as president.

Police attribute Palme slaying to pro hit man

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — Police Commissioner Hans Holmer said Tuesday he has concluded that the assassin of Prime Minister Olof Palme was a professional hit man.

Authorities offered a $70,000 reward for his capture.

Officials said a cab driver saw the gunman, who shot Palme in the back on a well-lit downtown street, leap into a car and speed away with at least one accomplice seconds before police arrived at the murder scene Friday night.

Holmer told Swedish television his conclusion was based on details of the attack, including the bullets used and the close range from which the gunman fired at Palme, who was 53.

"I have come to the conclusion that this man is a professional in the underworld," he told an interviewer.

Sune Sandstrom, the Stockholm police chief, told The Associated Press: "There was at least one person in the (getaway) car." He said police arrived seconds after the assassin's car raced away on the snow-covered street.

"A witness to the shooting said earlier that he chased Palme's killer on foot, but lost him."

Holmer told reporters about the taxi driver's report at a news conference earlier Tuesday. He said the cabbie noted only part of the license number, and police would not describe the vehicle.

The commissioner rejected growing public criticism of the way police have handled the investigation.

Holmer told the conference investigators had received 4,000 tips about the case and questioned 650 people.

He said 100 were interrogated extensively, and arrests in unrelated cases had resulted.

Mexico seeks aid with debts

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Mexico will seek about $6 billion from international financial organizations to meet foreign debt payments this year, the same amount it expects to lose in 1986 because of falling oil prices, the Treasury Department announced.

At the same time, the government will try to offset falling oil earnings by promoting non-petroleum exports and seeking reductions in interest rates on Mexico's $36.4 billion foreign debt, the department said in a statement Monday.

The announcements followed a trip to Washington last week by Treasury Secretary Jesus Silva Herzog to present Mexico's debt dilemma directly to creditors. No details of his meetings were released during the trip.

The $6 billion in new money, to be sought chiefly from the World Bank and the International Monetary Fund, is needed to meet payments this year of $10 billion in interest and $2.5 billion on the debt principal.

Japan cautious on 'Star Wars'

TOKYO (AP) — Japan, the only nation ever to undergo nuclear attack, has held back from joining U.S. "Star Wars" research although Washington says the defense system could prevent a recurrence of the 1945 holocaust that hit the island nation.

While more open on military matters than his postwar predecessors, Prime Minister Yasuhiro Nakasone for more than a year has voiced no more than "understanding" for the space-based project, officially called the Strategic Defense Initiative.

However, Nakasone has quietly built bureaucratic channels and consensus that local news reports say will lead to his announcement in May, before the Tokyo summit of advanced industrialized nations, that Japan will participate in the SDI project.

The ruling Liberal Democratic Party's Policy Affairs Research Council recently urged the government not to officially join the project but to approve a tie-up by private businesses, much like West Germany.

British prison sealed off

WINCHESTER, England (AP) — Guards have sealed off Winchester Prison and banned visitors until Thursday after an outbreak of meningitis killed one prisoner.

Two other inmates have contracted the disease, an inflammation of the brain, officials said.

The Home Office, which administers prisons, said government health inspectors were called to the 682-inmate facility in Hampshire, 66 miles southwest of London.

"Appropriate medication is being given to staff and inmates to prevent any possible spread of the infection," a spokesman said Monday.

The prisoner who died was identified as David Bevan, 39, who was serving a 7-year term for armed robbery. He died Friday soon after being transferred to a hospital in Winchester.

China cracks down on thefts

PEKING (AP) — China has promised a crackdown on wrongdoing by postal workers, offenses which include theft of parcels, opening of private letters, stamp forgery and speculation, the official English-language China Daily said Tuesday.

Last year 1,600 postal workers were found guilty of offenses, the paper quoted Zhu Gaofeng, deputy Minister of Posts and Telecommunications, as saying.

Zhu said the state also plans to increase investment in the postal transportation system, to ease delays. He said mail volume is expected to reach 41.2 billion pieces by 1990, a 38 percent increase over 1985.

Stamp sales increased 90 percent between 1980 and 1985, with 4.1 billion stamps sold last year, the report said.

It said China has 5 million stamp collectors among its 1,046 billion people.

10,000 Burmese lose homes

RANGOON, Burma (AP) — A fire burned down nearly 2,000 shanty houses in western Rangoon Tuesday, leaving more than 10,000 people homeless, police said. They said a few people were hurt, but gave no details.

Police reported that the fire in Nanattaw quarter started in the house of a woman who was cooking beans for sale.

Officers, who insisted on anonymity, said the fire was fanned by strong winds and raged out of control for six hours, razing almost the entire quarter.

Most of the homes were made of timber and bamboo, with thatched roofs.

French return seized yacht

PAPEETE, Tahiti (AP) — The Greenpeace yacht Vega, which the French navy seized last Oct. 24 in a restricted zone around the Mururoa nuclear test atoll in the South Pacific, has been returned to the ecological organization, officials said Tuesday.

After its crew of four were expelled, French authorities took the yacht from Mururoa to Tahiti and loaded it aboard a freighter, the Bounty, which sailed for New Zealand on Feb. 17.

Greenpeace paid for the Vega's return to New Zealand, officials said.

Soviet central committee shakeup due

MOSCOW (AP) — The 27th Communist Party Congress began to wind up its economic business Tuesday in preparation for what is expected to be the biggest shakeup ever in the powerful Central Committee.

Kremlin spokesman Leonid M. Zamyatin said Tuesday night that the committee would be named this afternoon.

Composition of the committee's top bodies, the Politburo and the Secretariat, will be announced Thursday during the closing speech, expected to be delivered by General Secretary Mikhail S. Gorbachev.

Zamyatin also said the new membership of the Central Committee would be made public on Thursday. Western diplomats and Soviet sources, who demanded anonymity, estimate as many as 50 percent of the 319 members elected at the last congress in 1981 could be changed.

As with most top party gatherings, the congress' final days have been preceded by rumors of changes in the ruling elite, headed by the 11 full members of the Politburo.

Such rumors cannot be confirmed reliably and often prove false, suggesting they may have been sparked by groups seeking to discredit or promote one or another member of the nation's top executive body.

Western diplomats say they have been told Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze may be removed from that post and made a Central Committee secretary responsible for international affairs.

Such a step could be seen as a promotion since it would give Shevardnadze, considered a strong Gorbachev supporter, an important job within the top party apparatus itself.

The diplomats said they have heard various predictions of who would become foreign minister, with one scenario suggesting Anatoly Dobrynin, the Soviet ambassador to the United States.

The diplomats said they were themselves uncertain of the reliability of the rumors.

Should they prove true, the move could tighten the new party leadership's grip on foreign policy.

The first step toward that goal was taken last summer when Andrei A. Gromyko was removed as foreign minister and shifted to the largely ceremonial post of president. Shevardnadze was not a diplomat, but a party official.

Some Western diplomats believe Gromyko had taken primary control over foreign policy during his years at the ministry, where he had a strong power base. Dobrynin, by contrast, has spent most of his career outside the country.

But switching foreign ministers for the second time in eight months could be seen from the outside as a sign of indecision in policymaking.

Since the last congress, nearly half of the Central Committee membership has died, retired or been demoted from the posts that give them seats on the body.

Spitfire pilots joining in birthday party

Legendary British fighter 50 years old

By GRAHAM HEATHCOTE The Associated Press

LONDON — "There never was an aeroplane like the Spitfire. When you were in the cockpit it became part of you." ... When the German daylight air offensive was fought to a halt in 1940 by the Spitfire and Hurricane pilots of the Royal Air Force, wartime Prime Minister Winston Churchill said of them: "Never in the field of human conflict was so much owed by so many to so few."

to town one. He found a very battered one in Scotland that had belonged to the Indian Air Force, swapped his own plane "and quite a lot of money" for it, sold his house and sank the proceeds into his own private aircraft venture to begin repairing and rebuilding Spitfires. "There are far more people than you realize who are willing to spend over a quarter of a million pounds ($350,000) on a Spitfire," Atkins said. "It's the most beautiful aeroplane ever built—all graceful curves, a classic, nothing else like it." The Supermarine Spitfire was the creation of Reginald Joseph Mitchell, who designed the racing biplanes which won the Schneider Trophy for Britain in 1927-31. He never knew the combat fame of his masterpiece; he died of cancer in 1937.

When the Spitfire first flew, it was so small and fast that a German officer dismissed it contemptuously as a "toy." But when the war began in 1939, Luftwaffe pilots came to fear the British greyhound of the skies. The standard German fighter, the Messerschmitt Bf 109, could climb and dive faster and had more gunpower than the Spitfire, but it was a bit slower. The Spitfire's famous stabilator, the robust and humpbacked Hawker Hurricane designed by Sydney Camm, could outmaneuver both of them but lacked their speed, 334 mph against the Bf 109's 354 mph and the Spitfire's 367 mph. So Hurricanes were usually sent after the slower German bombers while Spitfires pursued the enemy fighters.

Prime Minister Winston Churchill said of them: "Never in the field of human conflict was so much owed by so many to so few."

Call for suicide units, raics made by Libyans

TRIPOLI, Libya (AP) — The legislature of Col. Moammar Khadafi's Libya has called for formation of suicide squads to attack U.S. and Israeli interests and has threatened those countries' embassies, the official JANA news agency said Tuesday. JANA said the legislature, called the General People's Congress, approved the resolutions Monday night as it ended a seven-day annual session.

The agency said the congress also urged Arabs to impose an economic boycott against the United States to retaliate for the U.S. cutoff of commercial ties with Libya. The General People's Congress follows the wishes of Khadafi, who has no official title but has ruled Libya since a 1969 coup. In a related development, the 50-member Organization of African Unity on Tuesday condemned what it called "provocations, threats and acts of intimidation" by the United States against Libya.

The resolution, approved by member countries' ministers at a meeting in Addis Ababa, Ethiopia, was submitted by the Libyan delegation. It said that by staging naval exercises close to Libyan waters, freezing Libyan assets in U.S. banks and other measures "of an economic and commercial nature," the United States had threatened the "sovereignty and security of OAU and U.N. member states and the peace and security of the region and the world." JANA said the General People's

First woman chess champ dies at 81

MOSCOW (AP) — Lyudmila Rudenko, the first women's world chess champion, has died at age 81, the official Soviet news agency Tass reported Tuesday. The news agency said she died Sunday in Leningrad. A native of the Ukraine, she won the first world chess competition for women in 1950, and held the title for three years. In 1977, she was the first to receive the international grandmaster ranking for women by the World Chess Federation.

What's for dinner? Something FAST

'Uncomplicated' cook offers four quick dishes

What's for supper tonight? Nancy Stern, nationally known as the "Uncomplicated Gourmet," has the answer — four of them to be exact. That's four tempting hot dinners all ready in just 20 minutes — or less. And, in just one pan, which means cleanup is a snap. Now, getting through the week couldn't be easier. Her secret: minute rice and some very practical supper survival tips.

delicious, balanced, moderate-calorie meal but can't spend hours in the kitchen. Nancy offers options created for the way you cook today, to help just about everyone survive. Nancy recommends making this dish ahead and freezing individual portion sizes. This cuts down on defrosting time.

CHICKEN WITH FRESH VEGETABLES AND RICE
2 tablespoons butter
1 pound chicken, silvered

For quick cooking, try Fish/Rice/Broccoli with Basil Cream Sauce and Chicken Cacciatore.

FISH, RICE AND BROCCOLI WITH BASIL CREAM SAUCE
1 package (16 oz.) frozen flounder, slightly thawed and cut into 8 squares
1 tablespoon margarine
1/2 cup chopped onion
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 package frozen whole broccoli spears
1 1/2 cups chicken broth
1/2 cup heavy cream, half and half or light cream

1/2 teaspoon dried basil
1 1/2 cups rice
1 tablespoon chopped parsley
Melt butter in skillet; add onion and salt. Place broccoli on one side of skillet and fish on the other. Cover and simmer 5 minutes, turning fish and broccoli once after 4 minutes. Poil chicken broth, heavy cream and basil into skillet. Bring to a full boil. Add rice; sprinkle with parsley. Cover; remove from heat and let stand 5 minutes. Fluff with fork.

Makes 4 servings, about 370 calories per serving using heavy cream.
Note: Recipe may be doubled (using one 12-inch skillet or two 9-inch skillets) or halved.

CHICKEN CACCIATORE
2 tablespoons margarine or oil
1 pound chicken, cut into strips
1/2 cup chopped onion
1 medium green pepper, cut into strips
1 garlic clove, minced
1 can (28 oz.) whole tomatoes
1 can (8 oz.) tomato sauce
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon oregano
1/2 teaspoon basil
1/4 teaspoon cayenne pepper (optional)
1/2 cups minute rice
Heat butter in skillet, add chicken strips, onion, green pepper and garlic, saute lightly. Add tomatoes, tomato sauce and seasonings. Bring to a full boil. Stir in... Cover; remove from heat. Let stand 5 minutes. Fluff with fork. Makes about 8 cups or 4 servings, about 370 calories per serving.
Note: Recipe may be doubled (using one 12-inch skillet or two 9-inch skillets) or halved.

One of Nancy's pantry staples, soy sauce, adds distinctive oriental flavor to this authentic beef skillet dish. Convenient ingredients — like pre-cooked rice cut down on cleanup and cooking time.

BEEF AND BROCCOLI
2 tablespoons cornstarch
2 tablespoons soy sauce
1 tablespoon water
1/4 pound well-trimmed flank steak, cut diagonally into 1/4-inch slices
3 tablespoons oil
2 cups diagonally cut individually frozen broccoli spears
1 cup red pepper strips
1 cup (16 oz.) water chestnuts, drained and sliced
1 1/2 cups minute rice
Combine cornstarch, soy sauce and water; add steak and stir to coat. Heat oil in skillet, then sear steak until lightly browned. Remove from skillet and keep warm. Add broccoli, red pepper and water chestnuts to drippings. Heat through, stirring often. Add water. Bring to a full boil. Stir in rice. Cover; remove from heat. Let stand 5 minutes. Fluff with fork. Push rice mixture to edge of skillet and place cornstarch. Cover and simmer just until heated. Makes 6 cups or 4 servings, about 400 calories per serving.
Note: Recipe may be doubled (using one 12-inch skillet or two 9-inch skillets) or halved.

pressive culinary capabilities based on years of preparation and practice. As a certified instructor and member of the International Association of Cooking Schools, she is an expert in classic continental cooking techniques.

But Nancy understands that today working people need help when it comes to "weekday survival cooking." By this she means balancing good nutrition with fast results and making meals as uncomplicated as possible. For weekday meals, she admits that "restaurant take-out foods do save time," but are "vastly expensive and often fall on flavor."

Her solution is to make your home freezer a take-out store. With double-batching or some advanced preparation, complete meals can be stored in the freezer for easy take-out.

Here she has especially designed four weekday survival meals, all using just three easy steps, for a working person who loves a

4 ounces fresh mushrooms, sliced
1 small onion, sliced*
2 cups chicken broth
3/4 cup white wine
1 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon pepper
1 cup fresh broccoli florets*
1/2 cup diced red pepper*
1 1/2 cups minute rice
*Or use 1 1/2 cups frozen fresh broccoli, green beans, pearl onions and red peppers.
Heat butter in large skillet, add chicken, mushrooms and onion, and saute for about 5 minutes. Add broth, wine, salt, pepper and remaining vegetables. Simmer covered for 5 minutes. Stir in rice. Cover; remove from heat and let stand 5 minutes. Fluff with fork. Makes 6 cups or 4 servings, about 350 calories per serving.
Note: Recipe may be doubled (using one 12-inch skillet or two 9-inch skillets) or halved. For 1 serving, quarter recipe, using 1 1/2 tablespoons white wine, dash of pepper and 1/4 cup minute rice.

JAMBALAYA

Cooking Cajun Style means it's VERY spicy

Jambalaya, crawfish pie, file gumbo... We tried them all and even more down in "Nawlins" or New Orleans as we Yankies say. It was the annual United Fresh Fruit and Vegetable Convention, and all of us were there from apples and artichokes to okra and zucchini. We, of course, wore the potato continent and proud of it!

The food there is the best there is anywhere. I read a report once that said if you can't get to Lyons, France (the legendary mecca of all chefs), then save your money and go to New Orleans.

After a few days and a stint at a cooking school here, I realized it was because they used what they had to the best of their abilities, which is what good cooks do even here in Magic Valley. In New Orleans, they just have a bit more choice of fresh ingredients such as fish and seafood and a melting pot history of many cultures.

Then came the Italians after the Civil War and added red tomato sauces and pasta to the mix. German immigrants who offered their great sausages and other "bests" of their cuisines to what is now known as Creole.

still is an evolving cuisine that has come a long way in the last couple of centuries or so and will most likely be different a century from now. Cajun food is probably the best known New Orleans cuisine at this time because of one man, Chef Paul Prudhomme.

The food there is the best there is anywhere. I read a report once that said if you can't get to Lyons, France (the legendary mecca of all chefs), then save your money and go to New Orleans from Nova Scotia by the English and later relocated in the swamp areas. There they had abundant fresh fish and game and grew great fruits and vegetables in the rich soil. They used these native products, experimented with herbs and spices and developed the excitement of "hot," not especially "haute" cuisine. There are differences in the cuisines, but they are getting more subtle. This recipe for jambalaya is one that you can do at home. This came from the cooking school and can be either Creole (red) or Cajun (brown). I'll try to explain the difference as we go along. This serves 12 and really is an easy recipe. Read it through a couple of times, and you'll see it's similar to some casseroles that are mainstays in your kitchen.

JAMBALAYA
1/4 cup oil, vegetable, oil, lard or bacon drippings
1 chicken, boned and cut up (you can use chicken that has been cooked before hand)
1/2 pound sausage, hot-Italian style (don't use ground sausage but use the chunky salami kind and slice it up)
1 heaping tablespoon brown sugar (optional)
2-3 heaping tablespoons flour (optional)
4 cups chopped onions
2 cups chopped celery
2 cups chopped green pepper
1 tablespoon chopped garlic
4 cups long grain rice
5 cups stock or water with bouillon
1/2 cup paprika (optional)
3 heaping teaspoons salt
2-3 bay leaves
1-2 teaspoons thyme
1/2-3/4 teaspoons ground cloves
cayenne pepper
1 cup chopped green onions
1 cup parsley
2-3 chopped tomatoes (optional)
You'll need a large kettle or pot. They use cast iron, but I tried it in an enameled pot and it worked well. Heat the oil to medium-hot and season the chicken with salt and pepper and brown it in the oil. Add the cut-up sausage and saute it with the chicken. Remove both from pot. For brown jambalaya, add 1 tablespoon brown sugar to the hot oil and caramelize, then add 2 tablespoons of flour and make a roux. Your roux is made like a white sauce: brown the oil and flour, stirring constantly, until they are a nut brown. If you are making a red jam-

'Lite' and 'lean'

Use of these words prompts definition push

By RANDOLPH E. SCHMID
The Associated Press
WASHINGTON (AP) — Rampant use of the terms "lite" and "lean" on foods has almost come to the point of violating common sense, according to a congressman who wants to set legal definitions for the words.
"Consumers have at least been confused, if not outright deceived" by use of the terms on food labels, Rep. Jim Cooper, D-Tenn., said Thursday at a news conference.
"Millions of consumers are trying to cut their calories, cut their fat, cut their sodium, and millions are being deceived," added Michael F. Jacobson, head of the consumer-oriented Center for Science in the Public Interest.

Americans' concern for their diet-and-health had spawned a $2-billion industry producing foods marketed for better nutrition and reduced fat, calories and salt in recent years, Cooper said.
"Lite and lean seem to be the most commonly used product descriptions, perhaps exceeded only by new and improved," Cooper said.
But while there are rules governing phrases like low or reduced calorie, the widely popular terms lite and lean are not officially defined, Cooper said.
"It is consumer health that is at stake, nothing is more important," he said.

Cooper said his proposal would provide definitions for the two words — "regardless of how 'lite' is spelled" — to counter confusion in the marketplace. While some brands of lite soft drinks, the spelling "lite" seems to have become more popular on labels.
Current rules allow such strange labeling as one brand of "lite" beer containing more calories than twice the calories of the same company's regular beer; a snack chip labeled lite because it has a "lighter texture" than the firm's regular product, and a "light" fish that has more than twice the calories of the same company's regular version.
Other products are often labeled as having less fat or calories, without saying less than what, See LEAN on Page E2

Checker Harney keeps foods easy after day at the market

By JOAN BEAN
Times-News correspondent
KIMBERLY — Supermarket checker Sandy Harney works with food 24 hours a week; so she doesn't want to take her work home with her.
"By the time I get home from the grocery store," she says, "I don't want to think about groceries."
If she is home before 8 p.m., her husband, Larry, has a meal on the table. "Otherwise," she says, "it's frozen dinners, and something to put in the microwave."
"The next house I have is not going to have a kitchen in it," she gulps. "That's a lot of wasted space, as far as I'm concerned."
When she is not at her workplace, Harney's time is taken up with caring for their large two-story home.

And, when there is free time, she likes to knit, crochet, sew and do craft projects.
She has been trying to learn how to tat, by following instructions in a book, but hasn't quite got the knack of it. This almost lost art of lacemaking is particularly appealing to her, because it was something her mother used to do.
"When I was little, I can remember sitting by my mother, leaning up against her, and watching her arms just fly and her hands just fly in tatting," she says.
Harney recently went to Illinois to visit her mother and asked her to show her how to tat. Her mother tried, but because of falling eyesight, was unable to do so.
Although Harney did not ask for instructions soon enough, she says she did ask her mother to make as much lace as she could for her about 10 years ago. She was thinking ahead to the day when her daughter, Molly, would be getting married, planning to put it on her wedding veil.

However, her daughter-in-law Patty had the opportunity to use it first, when she married Tim Harney in September.
"I discovered there wasn't enough of it, so we put it on a thankie, and Patty carried it with her. And that's nice, because Molly will take it, too," she says.
And, at some point, she will give Molly another cherished family heirloom — a little handmade rocking chair. Because Harney is the youngest of eight children, she was given the rocker by her mother, who was the youngest in her family. Her mother got it from her mother. Her Stir 1 cup heavy cream and 2 tablespoons butter milk together in a 2-cup jar or measuring cup. Cover top loosely with plastic wrap and let stand at room temperature for 24 hours or until thickened. May be refrigerated, covered, up to 2 weeks. Makes 1 cup.

Pudding bread returns to scene

Did good old-fashioned bread pudding remain at your favorite list because it was too heavy and solid? Well, take another look. Grandmother's pudding was usually made as a means of using up stale bread. It is a good thrifty tradition especially when that bread was homemade. Today, however, whether the bread is homemade or firm-textured store-bought, a light, airy and delicious pudding results from using fresh bread. Formerly, the stale bread was cut into cubes, adding to the resulting heavy texture. But not now. This new version uses crumbs, making a much lighter product that most people would never associate with bread pudding.
This new method combines chocolate and almonds with the bread to complete the transformation. Baked in individual bakers, coated with toasted-chopped almonds for a crunchy crust, the result is a light, airy, brownie-like almond pudding more like an airy brownie than the former solid version. The almonds add texture and good taste along with extra nutrition in this elegant pudding.

Served with a light custard sauce and a spoon of raspberry jam, it will change your mind forever about good old American bread pudding.

CHOCOLATE ALMOND BREAD PUDDING
1 cup chopped almonds
2 cups bread
1 cup heavy cream
4 (1-ounce each) semi-sweet chocolate squares
3/4 cup sugar
5 eggs, separated
1/2 teaspoon vanilla
1/4 teaspoon almond extract
2 cups firm-textured, fresh bread crumbs
1/4 cup seedless raspberry jam was also the baby.

At work, Harney enjoys the people she meets, especially the children. Her favorite is Kevin, a little boy 4 or 5 years old, who thinks she operates the carousel in the first check-out lane with magic.
On an occasion which calls for a homemade coffee cake, the following recipe is one which fits nicely into her busy schedule.

QUICK AND EASY COFFEE CAKE
Into a greased and floured bundt pan, dump a package of Rhodes frozen dinner rolls (about 24). Sprinkle the following ingredients over the rolls.
1/2 cup brown sugar
1 package dry butterscotch pudding (the regular kind, not instant)
1/2 cup white sugar, mixed with 1 teaspoon cinnamon
1/4 cup chopped nuts
3/4 cup melted margarine or butter
Let rise overnight and bake 30 minutes at 350 degrees. Let stand in pan for 10 minutes before turning out.
A not-as-quick, but good-tasting dish, using ground turkey, Harney recommends for a low-calorie meat.

When the Harneys have "from scratch" meals, they include healthful raw or partially cooked vegetables. And she says she likes to buy the pre-formed turkey patties, in place of hamburger. "I just to have in the freezer and on hand, when the TV dinners are exhausted."

An airy chocolate pudding bread in a crunchy almond crust is served with a light custard sauce and berry jam

Spread almonds in shallow pan. Toast at 350 degrees about 10 minutes or until almonds are a light golden brown, stirring once or twice; cool. Prepare custard sauce; chill. Butter 8 (one cup capacity) baking dishes and sprinkle with 1 tablespoon sugar; set aside. Heat cream to simmering in small saucepan. Place chocolate in food processor bowl using metal blade and chop finely. Pour heated cream into food processor and blend until chocolate is melted and smooth. Blend in 1/2 cup sugar, egg yolks, butter, vanilla and almond extract. Process smooth. In large bowl, combine remaining 1/2 cup almonds and bread crumbs. Stir in chocolate mixture, mixing well. Beat egg whites until soft peaks form. Gradually beat in remaining 1/2 cup sugar, continue beating until egg whites are glossy and stiff in stiff peaks. Stir 1/4-egg white mixture into chocolate mixture to soften. Fold in remaining egg whites. Spoon into prepared baking dishes. Place dishes in large baking pan and add enough warm water to reach halfway up sides of dishes. Bake at 350 degrees, 50 to 60 minutes or until pudding is set and tester comes out with only a few crumbs on it. Remove baking dishes from water; place on wire rack; cool 10 minutes. To serve, spoon custard sauce onto each dessert plate. Heat jam and drizzle jam over custard sauce. Remove pudding from dishes and place on custard.
Makes 8 servings.
Custard sauce: In a large bowl beat 4 egg yolks with 1/2 cup sugar until the sugar dissolves and the mixture is light colored, about 3 minutes. Heat 2 cups half and half in saucepan. Gradually blend into egg yolk mixture. Return mixture to saucepan. Heat over low heat, stirring constantly until custard is thick enough to coat the back of a spoon (instant thermometer should register 180 degrees). Do not boil. Remove from heat; strain into bowl; stir in 1 teaspoon vanilla and 1/4 teaspoon each nutmeg and almond extract; chill.
Makes 2 cups sauce.

TURKEY ROLL

1 1/2 pounds ground turkey, uncooked
1/2 cup finely chopped onions
1 cup tomato sauce
2 slices bread, crumbled
2 eggs, slightly beaten
1 teaspoon dry mustard
1 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon oregano leaves
1/2 teaspoon garlic powder
9 ounces cheddar frozen spinach, thawed, squeezed to drain
2 ounces grated part skim mozzarella cheese
Heat oven to 350 degrees. Combine turkey, onion, 1/2 cup tomato sauce, bread crumbs, eggs, mustard, oregano, garlic powder, and salt. Mix well. On foil sheet, pat mixture into 12x8-inch rectangle. Spread spinach over meat mixture. Sprinkle with cheese. Starting with 8 inch side - roll up. Lift foil to help rolling process. Place roll seam side down on foil in ungreased 9x18-inch cookie sheet. Bake at 350 degrees for 55-65 minutes. Let stand 10 minutes before serving. Heat remaining tomato sauce and serve with turkey roll. Serves six to eight.

Portuguese soup adds foreign flair to a lunch

SPRING LUNCH
Portuguese Soup & Rolls
Fruit, Cookies & Beverage

PORTUGUESE SOUP
2 pounds beef soup bones
1 pound boneless chuck beef (1-inch cubes)
5 cups water
2 tablespoons beef bouillon granules
1/2 pound sausage (linguica or chorizo), sliced
1/4-inch thick
1 medium onion, cut in thin strips
Unseasoned package frozen

chopped kale
2 cups lightly packed coarsely shredded cabbage
2 medium (1/2 pound total) potatoes, pared and cut in 1/2-inch chunks
8 ounce can pinto beans, undrained
1 teaspoon pepper

In a large saucepot bring bones, beef and water to a boil. Add bouillon granules and simmer, covered, for 2 hours. Add sausage, simmer, covered, for 30 minutes. Add remaining ingredients. Let bubble gently, covered, until beef is tender about 1 hour. Remove bones. Skim off excess fat. Makes 10 cups.

balaya, omit the above step.
For both types, saute the onions, celery, green pepper and garlic until tender but still have shape. Return the chicken and sausage to the pot and simmer with the vegetables.
• Add the liquid and bring to a boil. If you are making red jambalaya add 1/2 cup paprika at this time. Add salt and pepper and seasonings.
• Add the rice and return to a boil, cover and reduce heat to simmer.
• Cook for a total of 30 minutes (at our altitude, I would cook for 40 minutes). After 30 minutes of cooking, remove the cover and quickly move the rice away from the sides of the pot and turn it once.
• After the rice is cooked, it's ready. Add the chopped green onions and parsley. If making the red, use the tomatoes, too.

I would practice making the red first, and here is a very important secret. The seasoning should show when you taste it before adding the rice. If it tastes too hot and too salty you'll have a lot of trouble.
• Don't forget to remove the bay leaves before serving.
• Jambalaya is one of those what-you-have-on-hand dishes. You can make it with seafood, you can use ham and sausage, chicken gizzards, sausage and eggplant, or make a vegetarian one.
• As the teacher said: "Whatever you has, make it work."
• If you are using anything that overcooks easily, like seafood or vegetables, remove it before adding rice and re-add it at the last.
• You can adjust this by figuring 1 cup of rice serves 3 people. Figure 1 1/2 cup liquid for each cup of rice.
• The Louisiana Holy Trinity is the combination of onion, celery and green pepper. Use 2 cups of the Trinity for each cup of rice.
• As you can see, it's very flexible and fun to make. It would be very difficult to ruin it, so take a chance and make it this week.
Enjoy!

Cooper went on.
"We think a bill like Congressman Cooper's is essential," said Jacobson, citing the example of a legally labeled sausage which said it was made from "lean" meat, but turned out to contain 50 percent fat.
Under the bill, products labeled "lean" or "low fat" must contain no more than 10 percent fat by weight, and no more than 2 grams of fat per serving.
The definition of "lite" would be a comparison to the "regular" version of the company's product. To use the term, the product would have to contain either one-third fewer calories, one-half less fat or three-quarters less sodium than the regular version.
For prepared meat products such as hot dogs and cold cuts the fat reduction would be one-third to use the word lite, rather than one-half. But the calorie and sodium requirements would be the same. In addition to the lean-labeling allowed at 10 percent fat, these products could say they were "extra lean" if they contained 5 percent fat or less.
In addition to the Center for Science in the Public Interest, Cooper said his bill has the backing of the American Association of Retired Persons, the American Public Health Association, the consumer group Public Voice and the American Heart Association.

Safeway's 'Sit-A-Thon' benefits Easter Seals

By MARTIN SLOANE
United Feature Syndicate

Supermarket Shopper

It may be cold outside, but the hottest spot in the nation this past weekend was RFK Stadium in Washington, D.C.

Forget the temperature. The stadium was aglow because 600 employees of the Washington, D.C., division of Safeway Stores and many Safeway customers were at the stadium to hold the first Easter Seal "Sit-A-Thon."

Interviewed before the Sit-A-Thon, Ernie Moore, a Safeway public manager said: "No matter how cold it is outside, doing this for the Easter Seal kids is guaranteed to make us feel very warm inside."

Representing 150 area Safeway Stores, the employees were after a Guinness record for the number of seats a person could sit in during a seven-hour period. Safeway customers were asked to make a contribution to Easter Seals and guess the number of seats their store representative would sit in during the event. Safeway offered the winner a $1,000 shopping spree.

Many supermarkets used to lose touch with their communities as soon as the doors closed and the store lights went out. Safeway Supermarket executives now recognize that supporting a community-based fund-raising effort makes good business sense, and the Safeway store is an excellent example.

When the first Easter Seals Telethon was held in Washington, D.C. nine years ago, Ernie Moore happened to underwrite the cost of the telethon. Safeway offered the telethon and asked fellow Safeway employees to man the phones. It turned out to be a wonderful experience.

Both management and employees pulled together in a team effort, and since that first year, Ernie and his Safeway friends have raised almost $1,500,000 for Easter Seals.

Both our employees and our customers have become deeply involved," says Ernie, and he points to a letter received from a store manager.

"As we watched the telethon, and Safeway's final contribution was presented and the grand total announced, my 11-year-old son turned to me and, seeing a few tears in my eyes, asked me to pray for myself for being a part of it," wrote the store manager. "Needless to say, my answer was a big yes."

As a result of the experience of Ernie and his Safeway co-workers in Washington—and the Safeway divisions in Little Rock, Ark., Salt Lake City and Dallas in more recent years—Safeway corporate headquarters has decided to support Easter Seals in all 16 of its divisions.

A Sit-A-Thon will be held in Denver, a Swim-A-Thon in Phoenix, and all across the country Safeway employees will be holding Easter Seals fund-raising events to help more than a million Americans with handicaps.

"We're pleased to become a national supporter," said Bob Bradford, Safeway's national vice-president. "Safeway stores serve more than 1,400 communities around the nation—and joining in the Easter Seals campaign allows us to put something back into the communities that welcome us. Easter Seals is very special because more than 95 percent of all Easter Seal revenue stays in the local community to support local services."

The supermarket industry has found another way to make good business work for those who are less fortunate. More than 285 retailers are sending special sections in their newspaper advertisements announcing sales on the brands appearing in next weekend's Easter Seals coupon insert. That insert will be distributed next Sunday in newspapers delivered to more than 65 million households—and will offer coupons and refund savings of more than $25 off a variety of popular brands.

I hope my readers will check the supermarket—Easter Seals advertisements for the bargain prices, then get additional discounts on these same items with the coupons in the Easter Seal insert.

And don't forget to watch the telethon with co-hosts Pat Boone and Donna Mills this weekend. Most important, get that warm feeling inside by giving in and pledging some of your smartest shopping savings to a very good cause.

for broilers), most compositional changes in birds occur after eight weeks, Pretanik said.

However, Ann Salisbury, spokesperson for Perdue, claims that a company analysis has shown that Perdue's cornish hens have 20 percent less fat than generic broilers.

They are comparable in calories and fat to the company's new lower-fat chicken, she said. Salisbury noted that Perdue covets its cornish-hen breeding formula to the point that "broiler" birds are transported by guards and armored cars, lest someone steal them.

Luckily, their offspring—as well as the birds produced by other companies—are out in the open in supermarket cases; and the following express-lane meal takes advantage of that fact.

This complete dinner—prepared in about an hour—is suitable for company as well as a special family meal. As long as you have butter, oil, salt and pepper on the shelf, you're set to help update the cornish hen.

This meal also takes advantage of the imported peaches appearing recently on produce shelves.

EXPRESS-LANE LIST: cornish game hens, curry powder, lemon, salt, cashews, broccoli.

SAUTEED SPICED PEACHES
(4 servings)
2 tablespoons butter,
1-4 teaspoon allspice,
3 peaches, peeled and sliced.
Melt butter in a skillet. Add allspice and peaches and saute over low heat for about 8 minutes, or just until fruit is soft.

BROWN RICE AND CASHES
Serve 2 cups cooked brown rice sprinkled with 1-3 cup cashews.

STEAMED BROCCOLI
Steam 2 cups broccoli florets, sprinkle with lemon juice and serve.

Marlene Sorosky's desserts include Irish Cream Mousse

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
The Associated Press

Marlene Sorosky, who lives in California and teaches classes all over the country, also writes cookbooks. Her recipes are never far out, yet they are new and interesting.

Her latest effort is "The Dessert Volume Cookbook," a handsome volume illustrated with color photographs showing both step-by-step techniques and the finished dishes. The recipes, which have a wide range, are written with utmost detail. Her book could be a lifesaver to many cooks who like to entertain at lunch or dinner or at early evening "come-for-dessert" parties.

IRISH CREAM MOUSSE
2 cups Irish Cream Liqueur, see recipe
1 envelope unflavored gelatin
1/2 cup cold water
3 large eggs, separated and at room temperature
1/4 cup sugar
1 cup plus 6 tablespoons whipping cream

Make Irish Cream Liqueur at least one day in advance.
Lightly oil a 5- to 6-cup decorative mold. Stir gelatin into cold water; set aside to soften, 5 minutes.

Whisk egg yolks in top of double boiler off heat until blended. Whisk in 1 cup Irish Cream Liqueur. Place over simmering water and cook, stirring constantly, with a wooden spoon until mixture feels hot to the touch and is thick enough to leave a pattern when you run your finger along the wooden spoon—about 8 to 10 minutes. Do not boil. Remove from heat and immediately add softened gelatin, stirring until dissolved. Transfer mixture to medium-size bowl and place in larger bowl of ice water. Stir occasionally until mixture thickens to consistency of mayonaisse—and begins to set.

Remove from ice water.
Meanwhile beat egg whites in large mixing bowl with electric mixer on low speed until foamy. Gradually beat in remaining tablespoons at a time until stiff but moist peaks form. Gently spoon whites over top of liqueur mixture; do not mix. Beat 1 cup of the whipping cream in the empty bowl until thickened. Beat on medium speed until soft peaks form; do not beat stiff. Fold whites and liqueur mixture into whipped cream until blended. Four into mold. Cover with plastic wrap and refrigerate until set.

To make sauce stir together 1 cup Irish Cream Liqueur and 6 tablespoons whipping cream. Mousse and sauce may be refrigerated, covered, overnight. Before serving, run knife around edges of mousse and dip mold briefly in warm water. Unmold onto serving plate, slice and top with sauce. Serves 6 to 8.

Cornish game hens supply touch of class for company

By CAROLE SUGARMAN
The Washington Post

Play the poor cornish game hen. In all this hoopla over lower-fat chickens—and the promotion of turkey as a low-fat meat, the little bird has gotten lost in the shuffle.

The typical cook's familiarity with the cornish hen has been limited to wild-rice stuffings and dowdy dinner parties.

In fact, consumption of the small chicken—a mixture of the Cornish game hen and Plymouth rock chicken—has soared.

According to Bill Roenigk, an economist with the National Broiler Council, cornish game hens constitute only about 2 percent of overall broiler production. One hundred million of the hens are produced in the United States each year, compared with about 4.2 billion broilers.

This is a bird that got off on a wobbly foot. Although they first appeared in this country in the late 1800s, cornish game hens were initially introduced for a commercial market in the early 1950s by actor Victor Borge, who hit upon the idea of an individual-sized chicken-for-American consumers.

Borge was rather unsuccessful in his promotion efforts, however, as commercial production didn't really take off until the '60s, according to Roenigk.

Neither the Broiler Council nor the U.S. Department of Agriculture collects nutritional data on the birds they use regular broiler data. According to Stephen Pretanik, director of science and technology at the Broiler Council, there is "no significant difference" in nutritional data between the cornish hen and the broiling chicken.

Although the cornish hen is slaughtered at a younger age (four weeks as opposed to seven or eight

Tarragon stars in chicken mousse

Sauce is the crown of hot liver recipe
By CECILY BROWNSTONE
The Associated Press

"DEAR CECILY: My husband and I did another couple take turns entertaining one another at dinner once a month around soon and I should like to serve an interesting new first course. Do you have a suggestion?"

"I could plan the main course and other dishes on the menu, including the dessert, around it." —FORMAL.

"DEAR FORMAL: A while ago a friend of mine served a Chicken Liver Mousse with a tarragon sauce as first course at a dinner party for four. It was so successful he repeated it for other guests. The recipe came from 'The Cafe des Artistes Cookbook' by George Lang (Pottier), when we met in my test kitchen, my tasters thought the Tarragon Sauce did wonders for the Hot Chicken Liver Mousse. Here is my slightly adapted version of the Lang recipe. —C.B.

TARRAGON SAUCE
Sauté 1 tablespoon finely chopped shallots in 3 tablespoons butter in a small saucepan until translucent, about 2 to 3 minutes. Add 1/3rd cup dry white wine and 2 tablespoons finely chopped fresh tarragon. Reduce over medium high heat until liquid is almost evaporated. Add 1 cup heavy cream and cook for about 6 minutes, until slightly thickened. Remove from heat and whisk in 2 tablespoons butter, a tablespoon at a time, to finish the sauce. Season with salt and freshly ground pepper. Keep warm.

custard cups or ramekins. Place in a shallow baking pan. Add enough hot water to come halfway up the sides of the cups. Bake in preheated 375-degree oven until a knife inserted between the edge and center comes out clean—25 to 30 minutes. Gently run a small spatula around the sides of each mousse to loosen. Invert on warm salad-size plates. Top with the Tarragon Sauce and serve at once. Makes 4 servings—as appetizers. Adapted from "The Cafe des Artistes Cookbook" by George Lang (Pottier).

HOT CHICKEN LIVER MOUSSE WITH TARRAGON SAUCE
4 pound chicken livers, soaked in water in the refrigerator overnight
2 eggs
1 egg white
2 tablespoons finely chopped shallots
1 teaspoon finely chopped garlic
Pinch of dried thyme
Pinch of freshly grated nutmeg
Salt and freshly ground

black pepper
1/2 cup heavy cream
Tarragon sauce, see recipe

Rinse livers under cold running water; drain well; pat dry with paper towels. Puree livers with remaining ingredients (except cream and Tarragon Sauce) in an electric blender until very smooth. Gradually and thoroughly whirl in cream. Pour into 4 well-buttered 6-ounce

When in doubt, let a dealer decide which nail you need

By ANDY LANG
The Associated Press

"Hitting the nail on the head," "nailing down" an agreement and "getting nailed between the eyes" are among the many expressions that have their origin in the fastener we call a nail.

Oddly enough, the nail itself has what can be a puzzling designation. It is called a 2-penny or 2d nail, a 4-penny or 4d nail, and so on. According to legend, generally accepted but occasionally disputed, the term penny—originated—in medieval England to describe the number of nails of a given size sold for a penny.

To confuse it further, the letter used to mean a penny (a small d) is an abbreviation of a Latin word meaning penny.

Although the terminology is still used, the best way to buy nails is to ask for their size and let the dealer figure it out.

Here are some facts about nails that will help you make the proper selection when your do-it-yourself activities reach that knowledge category.

Common nails are, appropriately enough, the most common. They are general purpose nails and the kind you usually get if you don't specify which kind you want. Common nails have diamond points and flat heads. Box nails are like common nails except that they have thinner shanks.

The other type of nail you are likely to use often by the finishing nail. It has a small head and can be driven into the wood with a nailset. It is used for driving the finishing nail below the wood with a nailset. It is used for trim, cabinets and the like. A bit heavier than the finishing nail, but the same type, is the casing nail. Also similar, but smaller, is the Brad.

Besides the diamond points found on common nails, other varieties of points are found on nails. Needle points have the sharpest of all points and are the easiest to start prior to driving, as when making boxes or applying gypsum board. A nail with a blunt point helps to eliminate wood splitting, since it cuts and bounces its way through the wood. It is often used when working with hardwood floors.

There are even what are called pointed nails, which give the greatest protection against wood splitting, since they cut through the fibers of the wood rather than follow its grain.

Chisel point nails are ideal for driving into heavy timbers and therefore usually are long and large, often referred to as spikes.

One kind of nail, called a side point, is for clinching, when the protruding pointed end is to be bent over for driving.

This is only a small part of the story regarding the many varieties of nails. For instance, many different finishes are found on nails. Cement-coated nails are used and give some protection against corrosion. Hot-dip galvanized nails have a pure zinc coating and are used for roofing and other outdoor exposure applications; they give good corrosion protection and have a thick, rough appearance. Electro-galvanized nails have a very thin coating for limited corrosion protection but are bright, shiny and very smooth. Annealed nails have undergone a heat-treating process that enables them to bend rather than break under force. Another fastener of this kind is the hardened nail, also heat-treated to prevent trouble when used on hardwood. Another heat treatment—designed to make the nail free of any residue, turns the fastener blue.

While—average—do-it-yourselfers may never have a need for most of these special-purpose nails, they should know that no matter what kind of project they are working on, they can do the job better by using the right nails—and the right nails are in existence somewhere even if they have never heard of them.

Do-it-yourselfers will find much valuable information on various subjects in Andy Lang's handbook, "Practical Home Repairs," which can be obtained by sending $2 to this paper at Box 5, Teaneck, NJ 07666.)

Denatured alcohol will strip off decals

By ANDY LANG
The Associated Press

Q — I have a varnished cabinet with two decals that I want to remove. I applied denatured alcohol to them and they came off easily, but all I got out of it was a sticky residue. Can you help me to remove these decals without destroying the finish of the wood?

A — One thing that probably would do the trick without danger of hurting the finish is denatured alcohol. In fact, the alcohol may help to remove the stain as well. If it doesn't, a refinishing job in the area of the decals may be in order. If that is necessary, first cut down any gloss that remains on the wood to form a good base for the new varnish.

Q — I intend to make foam rubber cushions for my old kitchen chairs. How thick should the foam rubber be so that sitting on the chairs will be comfortable? Also, is there anything else I should know?

A — It is assumed you have some knowledge of the subject or you would not be starting the project. See if the dealer where you buy the foam rubber or synthetic has some instructional material. The usual thickness for a cushion of that type is 1 1/2 to 2 inches. If the kitchen seat is a solid piece of plywood, drill about a dozen holes in it to allow the foam to "breathe." The seal itself can be used to trace the pattern directly onto the foam. Use a one-half inch on all sides of the pattern.

Q — I hope to start building our family a passive solar house this summer. One of the things I plan to do is to place earth alongside the northern part of the house. That side will have no windows. I assume it will be necessary to provide extra indoor light in the rooms on that side, although whatever I have read on the subject does not mention that.

A — Get to a library or book store and look up the book "Passive Solar Housing." You just can't decide to put soil alongside one side of the house (called berming) without knowing exactly what you are doing. For instance, in most places, the building code may require the placement of bedrooms on that kind of wall because there is no way out in the event of fire. Check the building code carefully before you do a thing.

Q — Settle an argument. Does a light colored roof make a house appear higher or lower?

A — Higher, definitely.

"A Guide to the Selection of Quality Roofing," which contains an asphalt shingle color guide, is available by sending 50 cents and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to KNOX HOW, P. O. Box 477, Huntington, NY 11743. Questions of general interest will be answered in the column.)
