U.S. orders Soviets to slash U.N. missions

By O.C. DOELLING
The Associated Press

UNITED NATIONS — The United States ordered the Soviet U.N. missions Friday to drastically cut their staffs over the next two years, saying they were unreasonably large and posed "a threat to U.S. national security."

The cuts, which are to begin on Oct. 1, are to take place in four stages and reduce the number of Soviet diplomatic personnel at the United Nations from 275 to 170 by April 1, 1988.

"The current size of the Soviet U.N. mission is not commensurate with the staffing needs for official U.N. business," the U.S. mission said in a note to correspondents. "Moreover, it poses a threat to U.S. national security."

At present, the U.S. mission said, the Soviet missions "are larger than the next two largest missions combined." The U.S. mission has a staff of 126 and the Chinese mission 116.

The note said the United States government had long been concerned that Soviet mission personnel had "engaged in inappropriate activities."

"The Soviet U.N. missions unfortunately, have continued to engage in activities unrelated to U.N. business, including espionage," the note added.

The U.S. mission did not say whether the reduction order was prompted by the uncovering of any new Soviet espionage activities here.

The note said Washington did not expect its action to have a negative impact on U.S.-Soviet relations.

"We look forward to continuing the efforts begun by President Reagan and General Secretary (Mikhail) Gorbachev in their Geneva meeting to build a more constructive foundation for U.S.-Soviet relations," the American mission said.

There was no immediate Soviet reaction. One embassy official declined comment, saying he had not yet read the U.S. note.

U.N. spokesman Francis Gulliani said Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar had no immediate comment on the reduction order but was among the U.N. legal council see if it conforms with the Headquarters Agreement between the United Nations and the United States.

The U.S. note said its imposition of a ceiling on Soviet mission staff was "consistent with our obligations" under the Headquarters Agreement and international law.

Over the years, there have been repeated complaints of alleged Soviet espionage activities under UN cover. Last year, the State Department, under congressional mandate, imposed controls on the travel of New York-based U.N. employees from the Soviet Union, Afghanistan, Cuba, Iran, Libya and Vietnam.

Fed cuts key rate to 7%

By MARTIN CRUTSINGER
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The Federal Reserve Board cut its discount rate to 7 percent Friday, the lowest level for this key lending figure in almost eight years, as major banks rushed to follow suit by lowering their interest charges as well.

Market reacts — B5

The cut, from 7.5 percent, was announced minutes after the Labor Department reported that civilian unemployment soared to 7.3 percent in February, an increase of 0.6 percentage point.

In February, the discount rate, the interest the Fed charges for loans to financial institutions, is the most dramatic move the central bank can make to signal its intentions on interest rates.

The discount rate cut was the first since the Fed cut the discount rate from 8 percent to 7.5 percent last May.

The country's major banks, which had not reduced their prime lending rate since June, immediately announced they were cutting this benchmark lending rate to 9 percent, down from 9.5 percent.

The bank move was led by two major New York banks — Chase Manhattan and Chemical — but within hours all the country's lending banks had followed suit in lowering the prime rate, which is used in computing interest charges on short-term business loans.

February jobless rate soars

By TOM RAUM
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The nation's civilian unemployment rate soared from 6.7 percent to 7.3 percent in February, the largest monthly gain in nearly six years, the Labor Department reported Friday.

Area news better — A5

Bad weather in agricultural areas of California, a stumping oil industry in Texas and manufacturing layoffs in Illinois accounted for much of the 0.6 percentage point surge, department analysts said.

The magnitude of the jump surprised government and private analysts alike. Bert Sprinkle, chairman of the president's Council of Economic Advisers, called the jobless increase "bad news" but said it should not be viewed "as a trend but merely as an aberration."

Moments after the unemployment figures were released, the Federal Reserve Board announced it was reducing its discount rate to 7 percent, the lowest level since 1978.

The move is expected to lead to lower interest rates in general throughout the nation.

Some analysts suggested that the Fed may have deliberately timed the announcement to follow the Gas prices may drop further yet

By ANNETTE CARY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Gasoline prices dropped to 99.9 cents a gallon Friday in Twin Falls, the first time in just over two years that many stations offered fuel for less than a buck.

Price fixing? — A4

That may not be the end of the good news for consumers. A regional representative for Chevron, Bob Osmundson in Denver, predicts that prices will slide a little lower, at least in the near future.

V-1 Oil Co. on North Washington was first, or among the first, to drop its gasoline below $1 a gallon when prices were changed about 7:30 a.m. Friday, said a clerk there. Company officials in Idaho Falls said their cost for gasoline was continuing to fall, and they had wanted to pass savings on to consumers.

By early afternoon most self-service gas stations in Twin Falls had lowered their prices to 99.9 cents a gallon. A clerk at Mr. Gas on Blue Lakes Boulevard said that station started offering both leaded and unleaded gas at 99.9 cents a gallon about noon. Don Pieper Gas and Tire Center on Addison Avenue followed suit about 1 p.m.

Prices elsewhere around the Magic Valley varied.

Nick Fife, owner of Valley Auto Paris in Hazelton, said he had been selling gas for less than $1 a gallon all week. Friday customers were buying his leaded gasoline for 99.9 cents a gallon and his unleaded for 99.9 cents a gallon.

He was paying less money for the gasoline he was selling and was able to drop his price and still maintain his usual profit margin, he said. He also was glad to be able to offer local farmers a break in what has been a difficult year for many, he said.

Across town, Jay Douglas at Douglas Service had dropped his price for leaded gasoline to match Fife's price for leaded gasoline on Friday, but said he was making less profit than he should be.

People buying gasoline in the Ketchum and Sun Valley resort area were not enjoying the low prices being offered elsewhere in much of Southern Idaho Friday.

Clerks at two Ketchum stations, Food and Deli and Ketchum Sinclair, reported charging $1.249 for regular and $1.299 for unleaded Friday afternoon.

Dick York of Dick York's Amoco Service and Towing declined to give his prices over the telephone, but did say his station was not offering gas at prices comparable to those in Twin Falls County Friday. Business expenses are greater in Ketchum than in Twin Falls, he said.

Samundson said there could be differing prices among stations, based on transportation costs, the volume of business they do and the number of other stations with which they compete. Some stations have been using unleaded gas as a loss leader, he said.

He attributed prices under $1 to a futures market that has been sliding since mid-January. The current futures market is a good indication that prices will slide a little lower, he said.

Since late January the price of crude oil has fallen $10 a barrel, he said. South Western Wyoming Crude is asking $16.25 a barrel and West Texas Intermediate Crude has dropped its price from $28 to $18 a barrel, he said.

The international oil supply is up, and oil exporting countries such as Mexico are going to a market pricing system, he says.

Crude oil buyers are watching OPEC closely, he says. Saudi Arabia has increased its production substantially to the irritation of some other Mideast nations, he said, and OPEC may return to an allocations system.

"It [prices] could turn around," he said. "You can't forecast what OPEC will do, but I think the softness should continue."

Phone firms split over Bell deregulation

By DEAN MILLER
Times-News writer

BOISE — Magic Valley telephone companies are divided as to whether they will support a bill to allow Mountain Bell to set telephone service rates without regulation by the Idaho Public Utilities Commission.

The telephone companies serving Filer and Alblon plan to oppose the bill next week, while a Rupert company is taking a neutral stand.

Opponents and proponents of the bill agree that telephone service would likely get more expensive for rural customers if the bill passes.

What they disagree over is whether Mountain Bell needs the freedom the bill would provide in rural areas to stay competitive with long-distance companies such as Sprint and MCI.

They also disagree over whether Mountain Bell has given small telephone companies and consumer groups enough time to look at the bill.

Bruce Wenigmann, a lobbyist for Idaho Fair Share, said last week that his consumer group is opposing the bill because it believes it will mean higher telephone rates for low-income rural customers, who may lose their fastest link to emergency services.

Wenigmann said Mountain Bell has not made a good effort to include consumer groups such as Fair Share in discussions of the early drafts of the bill.

But Mountain Bell spokesman Steve Guerber said Friday that the bill was not in final form yet in January and was not ready for discussion. He said that since then, Mountain Bell has met and negotiated with opponents of the bill.

Guerber said the proposed bill prohibits Mountain Bell from pulling out of unprofitable service areas, puts caps on the amount phone rates could grow for five years after enactment, and gives the Public Utilities Commission power to regulate phone service, if needed.

Wenigmann said once the phone company is deregulated, the bill proposed makes it very difficult for the Public Utilities Commission to regulate it.

Since the breakup of the nationwide telephone system and some resulting lawsuits over the use of telephone lines by non-Bell telephone companies, competition for long-distance and city centers has increased.

Mountain Bell officials say that while they are forced by law to maintain regulated service charges on customers, they are losing about $9 million a year in long-distance business to companies such as Sprint and MCI, whose long-distance rates are not regulated.

Mountain Bell will take its case to the House State Affairs Committee Wednesday in the first scheduled hearing on the bill since committee Chairman Sen. Walter Yarbrough, R-Grand View, led Mountain Bell and the non-regulated independent companies to get together and hammer out compromises in the bill.

Former senator Javits dies at 81

The Associated Press

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. — Jacob R. Javits, a liberal Republican and long-time champion who overcame the clubbiness of the U.S. Senate and became one of its most respected members, died Friday night. He was 81.

Javits, who suffered from amyotrophic lateral sclerosis, a progressive muscle and nerve disorder also known as Lou Gehrig's disease, died at Good Samaritan Hospital after being brought in earlier in the day by a nursing supervisor.

Jacob Javits was known for his intellect, for his integrity, for his dedication to the people of New York and the nation, and for the sheer joy he took in being every day of his work.

President Reagan said in a statement issued by the White House on Friday evening. The president said Javits served "with tremendous insight and skill, proving a staunch advocate of freedom."

"He was a truly great American leader, courageous, committed, compassionate," said Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass. "To the very end, he taught us with his own inspiring example to care about those less fortunate than ourselves."

As his condition deteriorated, the disease hampered his physical movement but never dulled his sharp mind.

"Life does not stop with terminal illness. Only the patient stops if he doesn't have the will to go forward with life until death overtakes him."

Javits said in 1984.

Javits represented New York in the Senate for 24 years, a record for the state. He was a minority within a minority — a Republican in a Democratic-controlled chamber, a liberal in a generally conservative party.

mortgage rates and a variety of other interest rates will head lower as well in coming weeks, although they said the declines may not be as dramatic as those that have already occurred.

A variety of interest rates have fallen sharply in recent weeks—with the mortgage rates in some parts of the country dropping below 10 percent for the first time in more than seven years.

The rate declines have been spurred by the sharp declines in oil prices which have eased fears of inflation and made lenders willing to cut their interest rates.

The Fed said its action was based on the favorable oil price declines, the declines in other interest rates and also the actions by the central banks of West Germany and Japan to cut their discount rates.

Only hours before the Fed announcement, the Central Bank of Japan cut its discount rate from 4.5 percent to 4 percent, the second reduction this year. The West German Bundesbank trimmed its discount rate the same 0.5 percentage point to 3.5 percent on Thursday.

The Reagan administration, which has been pushing for lower interest rates both in America and other industrial countries to spur economic growth, hailed the decisions.

"I strongly support moves by Germany, Japan and the United States to lower their discount rates," Treasury Secretary James A. Baker III said in a statement.

Baker met with the finance ministers of other industrial countries in London in January, with interest rates one of the prime topics of discussion.

Only last month, Federal Reserve Chairman Paul Volcker had expressed reluctance to lower the discount rate despite administration pressure to do so. He expressed fears that such an action would accelerate the already-rapid decline in the value of the dollar.

Bell

Mountain Bell first brought forward in January.

Jeff Adams, manager of Rupert's Project Mutual Telephone Cooperative and president of the Idaho Telephone Association, said the Association will not oppose the bill.

"We're not thrilled with the bill. We don't actually support it, but if it passed, we could live with it," Adams said.

Adams and several other representatives of the 19 independent phone companies in the state recently had three all-day meetings with Mountain Bell representatives and convinced them to make three changes in the bill that Adams said were critical to his group's acceptance of the bill.

Still, despite the meetings with Mountain Bell, Adams said his group did not have much time to look at the bill until the legislative session had started. "The amount of time we had was rather limited," he said.

"We're still not sure what the ramifications are of some of the things we agreed to."

Those changes in the bill include the establishment of a "high-cost fund," to be paid for out of phone company revenues and used to subsidize charges in very rural areas, such as Fairfield and Albion, where telephone service is so sparsely but expensive to provide.

Without the fund, service rates charged by a deregulated phone company would, for the first time, reflect the cost of providing telephone service and might be too expensive for some rural customers.

Another change Adams said is important is the addition of a provision to give the Public Utilities Commission power to arbitrate disputes between Mountain Bell and smaller companies, such as Project Mutual.

And, Adams said, negotiators agreed that if the bill passes, Mountain Bell will have to go before the Public Utilities Commission and prove that deregulation is in the public interest.

But the neutral position of Adams and the Idaho Telephone Association is not shared by Filer Mutual Telephone Company and the Albion Telephone Company.

John Gunn, manager of the Filer phone system, said Friday that there has been too little time for phone companies and consumers to discuss the deregulation of Mountain Bell.

"Mountain Bell did not let us see the draft (version of the bill) until Jan. 10," Gunn said. "We're looking for a more gradual change; we'd like to see a study committee over the summer."

He said his company has a hard time predicting what would happen to its service after the bill's five-year limit on rate increases ends.

"At the end of five years, it's 'killed, but the door' the way I see it," Gunn said.

Albion Telephone Manager Odeen

Bedman said Friday he is sure the bill works to Mountain Bell's best interest, but doesn't know how it will affect his rural customers.

"Our intention is not to increase the price of products and services in a deregulated industry and lose them," he said.

Guerber said developing cellular telephone and satellite technology will make small-town telephone service a competitive market in the future.

"If everyone understands it, it will pass," Yarbrough said Friday after noon.

He said that since Mountain Bell cut out of the nationwide telephone system, competition with long-distance-only companies has hobbled the company.

A summer study committee to review the proposed bill and hear from all groups affected would not jack up rates in rural areas, he said.

Jobless

unemployment reports, but others said the two developments were unrelated.

"At least 0.1 percentage point of the jobless increase was due to an understating of the January level through an accounting error, said Janet L. Norwood, commissioner of the Labor Department's Bureau of Labor Statistics.

It is clear, the February data show some deterioration of the labor market, but we need data for additional months to determine what is really happening in the economy," said the congressional Joint Economic Committee.

Economists generally predicted the jobless rate would soon return to a level of 4 or near 7 percent.

"The February jump in unemployment is simply not believable," said Jerry Jasinowski, chief economist for the National Association of Manufacturers.

"Employment has been exhibiting slow but steady gains. I think we can expect unemployment declines to return in the months ahead."

President Reagan said he agreed that the report did not reflect the true state of the economy, claiming "the great part of this is due to the weather that we had." He cited flood damage, particularly in the West.

However, Rudy Oswald, chief economist of the AFL-CIO, said "7 percent unemployment is normally associated with recession, not recoveries."

"While the jump to 7.3 percent may be news to statisticians, it's not news to the 15.1 million Americans who are unemployed, discouraged to look for work, or forced to work part-time because full-time work is not available," Oswald said.

The January increase returned unemployment to the level that prevailed for the first six months of 1985 and abruptly reversed the gradual decline that began last August.

Correction

An article in Friday's Times-News reported that Congress had approved $6-billion for the U.S. Commodity Credit Corp. along with changes to the 1985 Farm Bill.

However, a spokesman for U.S. Rep. Richard Stollings' office, which made the announcement, said Friday the CCC bill did not pass the House on Thursday. Although it had arrived with the changes to the 1985 Farm Bill, it later was separated, said press aide Gary Catron.

The CCC reauthorization, which supplies the cash for government price support purchases, is expected to be considered in the House of Representatives next week, he said. It already has passed the Senate.

House kills another attempt to raise drinking age to 21

BOISE (AP) — Another attempt to raise Idaho's legal drinking age from 19 to 21 went down in defeat in the Idaho House on Friday, defeated by a coalition of legislators against the idea and others who didn't want to allow Sunday retail liquor sales.

The vote was 43-39, with Republicans splitting 24-31 with Democrats opposing the legislation. 12-S, Republicans Marilyn Stanger and Robert Forrey were absent.

Haegenson disputed the $30 million figure. He said northern Idaho's tourism-related economy needs Sunday liquor sales. And he called his bill one that would have maximum impact on highway safety.

He said it would standardize Idaho's laws with those of Oregon and Washington.

It was the second run for the proposal. The first appeared headed toward defeat last month when Haegenson had it withdrawn. A slightly amended version of the bill was debated Friday, and was defeated.

"Part of this bill I like; I don't like the rest," said Rep. Ruby Stone, R-Boise.

"We're being blackmailed. I'd like to vote on a clean bill raising the drinking age to 21," said Rep. Ernest Hale, R-Burley.

"You'll be taking the young drinkers out of the taverns and putting them on the back highways," said Rep. James Lucas, R-Moscow.

Ms. McDermott said it was unfortunate that the House has no members' ages 19, 20 or 21. "I think we've all forgotten what it is like to be that age," she said.

"A human mind is something that should not be wasted," said Rep. Robert Speck, R-Coeur d'Alene. "There is nothing you will do this year or for years to come that will be more important" than raising the legal drinking age, he said.

Here is the roll call vote by which the Idaho House defeated 43-39 on Friday legislation to raise the legal drinking age to 21.

Republicans for (34) — Bengson, Brackett, Brimhall, Brown, Burt, Cullen, Chadband, Chubburn, Davis, Duffin, Edwards, Field, Fry, Gurnsey, Haegenson, Hansen, Harris, Hawkins, Hay, Hill, D. Jones, Kelloff, Kennebeck, Linford, Little, Martens, Reynolds, Robbins, Scates, Scott, Speck, Stoker, Sutton, Silvers.

Republicans against (31) — Allan, Anderson, Bateman, Bayer, Boyd, Brockson, Childers, Crane, Crow, Geddes, Hale, Hoagland, Hooper, Infanger, M. Jones, Loveland, Lucas, Montgomery, Nelbur, Parks, Scheeter, Sessions, Simpson, Slater, Smock, Sorenson, Stone, Strasser, Stucki, Winchester, Wood.

Democrats for (5) — Black, Braun, Echols, Hawk, Reid, Turley.

Democrats against (12) — Adams, Crozier, Geddes, Herndon, Horvath, Johnson, Johnson, Johnson, Keaton, McCann, McDermott, Stohoff.

turno former neighboring Wyoming in voting down the mandate from the federal government to raise the drinking age.

"This is a good, prudent approach to raising the drinking age," said Rep. Pam Bengson, R-Boise. She argued that it would make Idaho's drinking laws the same as those of most surrounding states, thus removing the temptation in border towns to drive to a neighboring state for longer drinking hours.

"The same argument is objected to the idea of raising the drinking age. Others didn't want to allow Sunday sales of liquor by the drink, now banned by state law. The bill also would have extended tavern closing hours 2 a.m. instead of the present 1 a.m."

Rep. Patricia McDermott, D-Pocatello, argued that if 19 and 20 year olds cannot legally drink, it will cost Idaho's tourism industry $30 million.

She said Idaho was considering the change mainly because the federal government threatens to withhold $13.5 million in federal highway money over the next two years if the state does not go along with a federal mandate to raise the drinking age by Oct. 1 of this year.

Losing up to $30 million in tourism and restaurant business because of a federal loss of $13.5 million in highway funds "makes grand economic sense," she said.

Exigency proposal draws fire

CALDWELL (AP) — The state Board of Education has taken the first step toward making it easier to cut programs and dismiss tenured instructors in case of financial emergency, but the action is not selling well with faculty representatives.

"These rule changes could set the stage for potential abuse of tenure and academic freedom in Idaho," David Walker, chairman of the faculty council at the University of Idaho, said Friday.

The Board of Education, at the close of its two-day monthly meeting in Caldwell, accepted an initial recommendation from its Personnel-Administrative Committee broadening the definition of "financial exigency."

Current rules allow the board to declare a state of financial exigency only during a "demonstrably bona fide, imminent financial crisis which threatens the viability" of the institution or its programs and "which cannot be adequately alleviated by means other than a reduction in the employment force."

The proposed change would allow such a declaration when the financial situation "adversely affects" the schools or their programs. Final action is expected after a hearing at the board's next meeting, April 30-May 1, in Moscow.

"It creates a psychological climate that is not very conducive to education," said James Hadden, chairman of the faculty senate at Boise State University.

Hadden and other faculty representatives said the change would make it easier for the board to summarily eliminate unpopular programs or research projects. Others have said that with the continuing budget crisis in state government the rule would virtually eliminate the right to tenure.

Tenure is an almost unconditional guarantee of lifetime employment, granted to professors after a certain number of years of proven performance.

Second District Judge Ron Schilling pointed to the financial exigency definition repeatedly in late 1984 when he ruled against the University of Idaho in the Lois Pace case.

Ms. Pace, a former professor at the Moscow university, was given 30 days notice under a financial emergency declared in the spring of 1981. She sued the school, and Schilling said UI officials failed to prove an emergency existed according to the board's rule.

He also said the university did not look at all possible alternatives before firing Pace and six other tenured professors. An appeal of Schilling's decision is pending before the Idaho Supreme Court.

Sales tax bill put off to Monday

BOISE (AP) — Republicans say their majority in favor of a sales tax increase bill is very thin, so they're waiting until Monday for a vote on it.

The Republican majority tried three times to force an immediate vote on the Senate-passed measure, but couldn't muster the 36 votes required.

Linden Bateman, GOP caucus chairman, said his party has about 43 votes for the bill. Party leaders were concerned that if they forced the issue on Friday, they might lose a vote or two, he said. It would take 43 of the 67 Republican House members to pass the bill, if all Democrats opposed it.

The bill eased through the Senate Thursday afternoon, 22-20, only hours after a compromise committee proposed it. The committee talks quickly broke a nine-week deadlock over taxes, proposing a 15-month sales tax increase to pay off a $20 million deficit in the current budget and producing new revenue for the next state budget. But the House refused to allow an immediate vote, rejecting the idea Thursday afternoon and twice on Friday.

The first try Friday came the closest, one vote short of the required two-thirds majority. Several Republicans stayed out of the House chambers and refused to vote.

It takes 56 votes, or two-thirds of the House's 84 members, and the vote to take up the bill was 55-17.

Jones says he'll look into fixing

BOISE (AP) — Gasoline prices in Idaho have dropped in recent days, but Attorney General Jim Jones said he plans to continue pursuing the possibility of price fixing in the state.

"We've got a couple of concrete leads that we can follow," Jones said at a news conference Friday. "It's something that I wouldn't rule out, but I couldn't say affirmatively that it was (taking place)."

Jones said he had received five responses to the 14 letters he sent out Feb. 18 asking gasoline wholesalers and distributors that use the major pipeline system through Idaho why prices were not dropping as in other states.

Gas prices began to fall two days after those letters were mailed, and by as much as 14 cents a gallon in some locations of eastern Idaho on Feb. 21, Jones said that was "possibly somewhat more than coincidence," but stressed he was not taking credit for the price drop.

One company responding to his request for information on gas prices at terminals on the Idaho pipeline said it was preparing to lower prices on Feb. 16, Jones said.

"The question is would the decline in wholesale price have been followed by a decline in retail price had nothing been said about it," he said.

The decline has sent gas prices below $1 a gallon in some locations for the first time since the oil crisis of the 1970s. But Jones said there still were a number of unanswered questions on why prices remain as high as they do when worldwide oil prices have hit their lowest point in years.

The attorney general said his office had received anonymous calls and a letter, as well as more substantial leads, alleging gas dealers are conspiring to keep prices high.

He would not elaborate.

Jones said he was hamstrung by the lack of funding for a consumer-protection division in his office, but that he plans to continue an inquiry into those price-fixing allegations.

"In a case of this nature, if there is some concerted action (price fixing), it's very difficult to pursue without that individual who has some information coming forward," he said.

6-month foreclosure halt called

BOISE (AP) — The Idaho director of the Farmers Home Administration has declared a six-month moratorium on the sale of farm property owned by the federal government.

Bill Norberg announced Friday that rather than sell foreclosed properties, the FmHA would either lease them to farmers or let them lie idle.

"Our inventory continues to increase, and we are concerned that any extensive sale of these properties may have a tendency to further depress farm values," Norberg said.

The announcement comes just a week after Gov. John Evans pledged to ask the Idaho Legislature for emergency authority to declare a one-year moratorium on farm foreclosures in the state.

Norberg said the federal loan agency conducted 10 foreclosure sales in Idaho last year at prices he considered "really depressing."

As of March 1, the FmHA had 165 farms in its inventory ranging from small dry-lot dairy farms to medium and large row-crop and livestock operations, Norberg said.

He said the heaviest concentration of farms under foreclosure to the administration was in Owyhee, Gooding, Lincoln and Butte counties.

"Farmers' ability to borrow money for operating purposes is dependent to some degree on the value of their assets," Norberg said. "As asset values, particularly land values, decline, so does the farmer's ability to borrow."

Past sales of foreclosed property were "arms-length" transactions requiring submission of sealed bids, but often not meeting appraised values, Norberg said. That forced the FmHA to effectively set market values by negotiating sales.

"I do not believe the government should be establishing the market," Norberg said. "We need to let the private sector do that."

For the next six months, Norberg said, his agency would lease foreclosed properties by sealed bids. However, if the FmHA is not offered at least 80 percent of the market value of the property, it will allow the land to lie idle and contract with a management company for weed control and security, he said.

Local jobless rate rises; state's backs down

By BOB FREUND
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The Magic Valley's unemployment rate jumped up and Idaho's rate dropped drastically, meeting at 5.8 percent during February, the Idaho Department of Employment reported Friday.

The seasonally adjusted rate for Twin Falls, Jerome and Gooding counties rose 0.5 of a percentage point, with unemployment insurance claims running at their highest level of the year, said Lon McDonald, state job force analyst based at Twin Falls, Feb. 7's rate still was less than the 6.2 percent recorded a year earlier, he said.

Changes in weather should bring some improvements, he said.

"March (unemployment) claims now will drop off rapidly as workers return to outside activities," he said.

McDonald said he considered the January rate of 5.3 percent to be low, suggesting that the jobless rate is moving back to normal levels.

During February, 2,413 people were unemployed and 31,017 had jobs, according to department estimates.

Meanwhile, the February jobless rate for the state took an abrupt fall of .4 of a percentage point to 5.8 percent. It fell below 6 percent for the first time in months.

"The decline 'indicates that the economy is Idaho during February was moving in a positive direction,'" said Employment Director Scott McDonald (no relation).

Although the percentage of Idahoans off the job last month slipped significantly, the actual numbers out of work dropped only 900 from January, indicating the reduction was due to an expansion in the work force to 436,900.

Scott McDonald credited part of the progress to the return of most workers at Potlatch Corp. mills in northern Idaho from layoffs late last year and the resumption of production at J.R. Simplot Co. processing plants after a maintenance shutdown.

"These two occurrences, along with increased employment in the service and miscellaneous sectors due to winter recreational activities, resulted in higher employment levels," he said.

The only major layoff last month came when Sunshine Mining closed some operations due to silver stockpiles, but the disruption is expected to end by mid-March, the director noted.

During February, however, the state agency also revised its figures for the past several months to reflect demographics from the 1980 census. It had been using 1970 figures.

The switch changed a number of statistics and made a drastic shift in the January work force levels. Instead of plunging by 17,000 jobs, the January figures now show a 5,000 increase in the state's work force that month to 411,000.

Regionally, unemployment rates in the northern and western parts of the state declined. Following are the unemployment rates and the change from January in various parts of the state:

- Idaho — 5.8 percent, down .4 percent.
- Magic Valley — 5.8 percent, up .3 percent.
- Idaho Falls — 3.7 percent, down 1.1 percent.
- Pocatello — 7.1 percent, up .2 percent.
- Ada County (Boise) — 4 percent, down 1.1 percent.
- Canyon County — 8 percent, down 1.8 percent.
- Lewiston — 6.5 percent, down 1.4 percent.
- Panhandle (Coeur d'Alene) — 7.8 percent, down .2 percent.

USDA frees $2.3 million for farm loans

By BOB FREUND
Times-News writer

WASHINGTON — The U.S. Department of Agriculture has released $2.3 million in Farmers Home Administration funds for immediate loans to Idaho farmers.

However, the new money will hardly make a dent in the line of cash-strapped farmers seeking money for planting, Idaho FmHA Director W.C. Norberg said Friday.

"We could use that up in one day's time," he said.

Members of Idaho's congressional delegation Wednesday pressed top Agriculture Department officials to free more money for farmers' operating loans after the state FmHA ran out earlier this week.

The USDA Friday gave state officials the last $2.3 million available this year for direct loans in Idaho. It was being held back to pay for loans made from April through September.

Sen. Jim McClure, R-Idaho, welcomed the release. "Secretary Designate (Richard) Lyng and the Agriculture Department came through as a big guy," he said.

The state office already has lent close to $15.1 million on 287 applications since Oct. 1.

But, with 282 applications still awaiting action, the money will fall far short of needs. "We may have $11 million worth of applications" stacked up, he said.

In letters on Thursday, McClure and Sen. Steve Symms, R-Idaho, urged Lyng, while U.S. Rep. Richard Stallings, D-Idaho, asked Acting Secretary of Agriculture Frank Naylor to also put another $5.2 million in unused loan guarantees towards direct loans. That is the maximum transfer allowed by law.

Symms and McClure announced Friday they will meet with FmHA Administrator Vance Clark next week to discuss tapping guaranteed loan funds.

The state's guaranteed loan fund has plenty of cash. The agency has been trying to interest banks and other lenders to take on more farmers' accounts by offering to guarantee 90 percent of the loans they make.

However, in Idaho, the response has been slight, Norberg said. To date this year, the state office has made 11 guarantees for operating loans.

"Hopefully, we're looking for $20 million worth in the guaranteed loans program, but it hasn't developed," he said.

Security officer charged with theft of TVs from motel

By The Times-News

BURLEY — George Warrell Jr., owner of Mini-Cassia Security, has been issued a summons to appear in 5th District Court on two counts of grand theft and one count of petty theft.

Cassia County Sheriff Billy Crystal said Warrell had been hired to provide security at the vacant Ponderosa Inn by its owners.

Warrell was summoned on charges made by Cassia County Sheriff's Deputy Dennis Dexter, of allegedly taking a G.E. color television set from the inn on Aug. 1, 1984, and a second set in July 1985, according to court records in the Mindokota County Courthouse.

Each set was valued at $189. The petty theft count was connected to the theft of a table and two chairs worth $69 from the building, according to court records.

Court records tie the case to one involving Burley police officer Marvin Krueger, 32. He was charged with grand theft by possession last week.

Wicki Taylor, the former wife of Krueger, tipped officers, according to court records in the Cassia County Courthouse. She is quoted in court records as saying that Warrell loaned a television set to Krueger when he failed.

Court records also quote an official of the Ponderosa Inn as saying that all television sets should have remained locked in a storage area.

Crystal said he was asked by Burley Police Chief Leman Messley to investigate the matter in early February.

Krueger has pled innocent, and his case will be heard in Twin Falls County.

He has been with the Burley police force for four years and was assigned to patrol duty. He is currently free on $500 bond, but is on a voluntary leave of absence from his job.

Jack Lewis, a Colorado attorney for Massachusetts General Life Insurance Co., declined comment on the matter. Massachusetts General owns the Ponderosa Inn.

Filer schools budget sliced

Eliminates principal, teachers and programs

By KATHY SULSELY
Times-News correspondent

FILER — The Filer School District has joined the ranks of other ailing school districts in the Magic Valley that have cut back staff and programs to make up for an anticipated shortage of funds next year.

In a special noon meeting Monday, the Filer School Board adopted $123,000 in budget cuts that will eliminate the principal position at Hollister School and teaching positions in Hollister and the Filer middle and high schools.

Also targeted for cuts are extracurricular programs, teachers, coaches, textbooks, supplies, transportation and administrative costs.

"The cuts reflect a shortage of funding from the state and the county last year and this year," Superintendent Sheldon Kovarsky said Thursday.

Arts program takes center stage

FILER — A variety of art work, crafts and live performances will be displayed today at Filer High School from 7 to 9 p.m. in the auditorium.

Presentations by both students and members of the community include musical and dramatic performances, visual arts, crafts by local senior citizens and a student-style show, said Principal Harry Vanikotis.

The event, which began Friday, is being funded by the Idaho Arts Project. Filer High School was one of four Idaho schools selected by the state Department of Education to participate in the project, Vanikotis said.

"The purpose of the project is to improve student and community understanding of the arts," he explained. "We are bringing together the community and some of the professional artists with the budding amateurs."

The event is open to the public at no charge. Refreshments will be available in the cafeteria, Vanikotis said, and students will raffle a dolhouse they have made.

In Idaho selected for the project because of its strong commitment to drama, visual arts, music and dance, said art instructor Steve Parr, who will lose his job next year, believes the program provides students with an appreciation of their environment.

"I feel that the board should take another look at the budget," Parr said. "This is too valuable to lose."

Both teachers and administrators say they blame the Legislature for the district's financial problems.

"We view the current budget cuts as a direct consequence of underfunding of public schools by state government," said Melanie Hutchins, president of the Filer Education Association.

She said the FEA is sympathetic to the school board's dilemma in having to choose between programs to balance the budget. However, she said cuts in extracurricular activities "of an academic nature" hit the non-athletic students the hardest.

She said some teachers were surprised the board took final action on the cuts Monday. She said

Causa presentation attracts few viewers

By PAT MARCANTONIO

TWIN FALLS — A videotape presentation from a December conference for state legislators co-sponsored by Causa, an arm of the Unification Church, drew little interest this week in Twin Falls.

Two people showed up for the viewing Thursday at a restaurant and at least that many attended a replay of the tapes Friday evening at a hotel meeting room.

Only a friend of Causa volunteer Paul Carlson and a Times-News reporter covering the meeting attended a Causa lecture about communism Friday afternoon.

Carlson, who also is Twin Falls director for the Unification Church, said he wasn't disappointed about the poor attendance. Sometimes a few people attend, sometimes more, he added.

Carlson previously said he had invited several community leaders, clergy and others from his mailing list of 200 people.

"It was human nature for people not to care," and he just had to get used to that, he added.

The tapes were of speeches made by U.S. senators Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, and Jeremiah Denton, R-Alabama, and Arnold Jaberg, editor of the church-owned Washington Times, at a

Ketchum man, hurt in shooting, dies

By DAVE LEWIS
Times-News correspondent

KETCHUM — A Ketchum man wounded in a shooting earlier this week died Friday morning in a Boise hospital.

Although the official cause of death is being withheld pending an autopsy, Gary Widdison, 30, had been in critical condition from a wound he received in the shooting in a small trailer park south of Ketchum Monday night.

The man originally arrested for the shooting, John Eugene Slimp, 36, is still out of jail after being released Tuesday when Blaine County Prosecutor Sandra Shaw said Slimp may have a "viable defense." He has not been charged.

While a decision on any charges is being delayed until the investigation is completed by the Blaine County Sheriff's office, Slimp's attorney, Keith Roark, calls the incident a clear case of self-defense.

Meanwhile, Blaine County law enforcement officials are considering a coroner's inquest to review the case and determine if charges are appropriate.

"I'm pretty certain that it is what's going to happen," Sheriff Dennis Haynes said Friday. Coroner Russ Mikel and Shaw will join Haynes in making a decision on the inquest by the first of next week.

Haynes said an autopsy was being performed on Widdison in Boise on Friday as part of the investigation.

If the inquest is called, Mikel said a six-person jury will review the evidence and make a recommendation on possible charges to Shaw, who will make the final decision on whether or not any charges are warranted.

Roark said his client was protecting himself when Widdison was shot at about 9 p.m. in Slimp's home in the Sun Tree Hollow Trailer Park.

"Our position is: At the time of the unfortunate shooting, John was protecting himself in his home against a deliberate and unprovoked, deadly attack," Roark said.

"We think there are facts that can be shown. It's necessary to do so, indicating that Mr. Widdison was attempting to intimidate John Slimp — intimidating in the view to keep him from participating in a judicial review against Mr. Widdison," he said.

Roark would not elaborate on his statements. Ketchum Police Chief Cal Nylmark said Slimp was in "some way" involved in an incident with Widdison his department was investigating at the time of shooting. No charges had been filed in the incident, he said.

Catholics defend abortion dissent in newspaper ad

WASHINGTON (AP) — In a new challenge to Roman Catholic Church leaders, more than 1,000 Catholics and other Christians have signed a broadside defending dissent on abortion and opposing Vatican reprisals against dissenters.

The declaration, published as a full-page advertisement in last Sunday's New York Times, includes signatures of at least five priests and 40 nuns, sponsors said, though many signers didn't include affiliations.

Judge: Church workers must pay tax

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — A federal judge rejected freedom of religion arguments by a fundamentalist Baptist congregation and ruled Thursday that church workers must pay Social Security taxes.

Caldwell wrote in his 38-page decision. The dispute between the U.S. government and the Bethel Baptist Church of Sellersville is believed to be the first challenge to direct Social Security levies on church employees.

However, as self-employed workers, the church employees would have to pay Social Security taxes on their own — and at nearly double the rate of other workers, under the tax code.

Reagan tabs Habib, steps up C. America diplomatic effort

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, under pressure from congressional critics to pursue a negotiated settlement in Nicaragua, sent his top diplomatic aide to the country Friday on a search for peace, while appealing anew for military aid to rebels fighting the Sandinista government.

Reagan met with Philip Habib on Friday a few hours after the embassy's return from Manila and announced he is sending him to meet with El Salvador's President Jose Napoleon Duarte next week. The pair will discuss Duarte's new Central American peace plan.

"But let there be no mistake," Reagan said, "Ambassador Habib's efforts to achieve a diplomatic solution must be accompanied by an increased level of pressure on the Nicaraguan communists. What we are asking Congress for is the tools so that Ambassador Habib can do the job," the president said.

Reagan's move came at the end of a week in which four of five congressional panels voted against recommending approval of his request for $100 million in military and non-lethal assistance to rebel Contras who are fighting the leftist Sandinista government in Managua.

The Democratic-led House tentatively is scheduled to vote March 19 on the administration's request for a $100 million aid package for the rebels fighting the Marxist-led government in Nicaragua.

A Senate Foreign Relations Committee source, speaking on condition he not be identified, said the Reagan proposal would have been rejected if a vote had been taken this week, but that the "truth" appointment improves the prospects for approval.

Rep. David Obey, D-Wis., chairman of the House Appropriations subcommittee on foreign operations, said, on the other hand, "Habib is a very nice man. The question is: What are his negotiating instructions? I've seen envoys before. . . . The question isn't who's the envoy. The question is what's the policy. Does the policy give you a shot at reaching the administration's professed goals. As far as I'm concerned, it doesn't."

Shuttle testimony points to rocket

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — NASA officials told presidential investigators Friday that the right solid-booster rocket was the "probable" cause of space shuttle Challenger's catastrophic explosion, but that the ship's fuel tank has not been ruled out as a possibility.

"We know the SRB is the failure," said Thomas Lee, deputy director of the Marshall Space Flight Center. But, he told a hearing by the presidential shuttle commission, "Until we complete all the analysis associated with things such as a potential hydrogen leak (in the fuel tank at liftoff), then we can't close that out."

Using telemetry and computer-enhanced photographs of the liftoff, the experts sketched a chronology of the shuttle's last 15 seconds. In that period, the booster broke loose from its bottom mooring, swung outward and caused the nose cone of the rocket to puncture the external tank which carries volatile liquid oxygen and liquid hydrogen fuel.

The resulting fireball destroyed the shuttle and killed its crew of seven.

Nothing in the testimony contradicted earlier testimony that a leak in the joint between the bottom and second segments of the booster rocket led the chain of events leading to the explosion.

Thomas L. Moser, a top NASA engineering official, said the orbiter itself, its main liquid-fuel engines and the powerful rocket in its cargo hold, have been ruled "improbable" causes of the accident.

The panel was also told of problems that were encountered in stacking and joining the drum-shaped segments of the right booster rocket, a task complicated by finding that the bottom segment was slightly egg-shaped and had to be squeezed back to roundness.

The commission adjourned Friday afternoon with no plans in place for further public hearings. Its four working groups will fan out next week to various NASA installations around the country, a statement said.

Adelman: Soviets chill disarmament effort

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. disarmament director said Friday that Reagan administration will ingenuity to reach new superpower arms control treaties is dwindling because the Soviet Union continues to violate previous pacts.

Kenneth L. Adelman, director of the Arms Control and Disarmament Agency told a news conference, "our patience is limited. You cannot have a viable arms control agreement in the future if the Soviet violations continue."

"Parties to agreements must honor all their obligations and commitments. We all believe that there cannot be an arms control arrangement based on a double standard — one of our complete compliance and their cheating," he said.

Aspirin must carry warning
WASHINGTON (AP) — The federal government ordered warning labels on aspirin bottles Friday in a renewed effort to call attention to the possibility that children and teen-agers can contract Reye syndrome if they take aspirin for the flu or chicken pox.

Health and Human Services Secretary Otis R. Bowen urged parents to be alert for the symptoms of the syndrome in flu-stricken children taking aspirin and, if found, to "get immediate hospital care, which can mean the difference between life and death."

Early symptoms include severe tiredness, belligerence and excessive vomiting. The illness can progress rapidly to convulsions and coma. It is fatal in about 20 percent to 30 percent of cases, and some survivors suffer permanent brain damage.

Walkout shuts down flights
NEW YORK (AP) — Trans World Airlines canceled half its flights on Friday as it squared off against flight attendants who walked out rather than accept pay cuts the airline says it needs to survive.

TWA Chairman Carl Icahn claimed strong support from other employees, but several hundred machinists honored picket lines at the airline's major maintenance base in Kansas City.

FDA issues cheese warning
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Food and Drug Administration warned consumers Friday that a Mexican-style soft cheese distributed in four Western and Southwestern states may be contaminated with listeria monocytogenes, a potentially fatal bacterium.

The agency said the cheese is suspected of causing illness in a 64-year-old woman and a mother and her baby, all in Tucson, Ariz.

The FDA said the cheese, manufactured by Rodeo Industries Inc. of City of Industry, Calif., was distributed to 20 direct accounts in California, Arizona, Oregon and Texas.

Bill prevents mortgage cutoff
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan on Friday signed a bill designed to prevent a threatened cutoff in home mortgage loans guaranteed by the Veterans Administration.

The measure raises the authorized level of VA-backed loans to $18.2 billion, up from $12 billion. Because of spending cuts required by the Gramm-Rudman deficit-reduction law, the amount will be reduced by 4.3 percent.

Faced with Gramm-Rudman cuts, which would have reduced the $18 billion ceiling to $13.6 billion, the VA had said it would have to suspend the home loan guaranty program around April 1.

South Africa lifts state of emergency

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — South Africa ended the state of emergency Friday that was imposed last July to quell black violence against white rule and said the last 330 of nearly 6,000 people detained under it were freed.

Three CBS television staffers were ordered out of the country. The government accused them of filming a mass funeral of black riot victims in "flagrant contempt" of a court prohibition.

Police said an explosive device went off at about 11 p.m. in a women's restroom at a police station in Hillbrow, a Johannesburg apartment district. They said a warning was given and they cleared the area before the blast.

A bomb exploded Tuesday in a men's restroom at "police headquarters" in downtown Johannesburg, wounding two officers and two passersby. There was no claim of responsibility in either case.

The last detainees went free at midnight and the government published a proclamation lifting the state of emergency in the 23 districts where it still applied. Thirty-six black districts were covered when it took effect July 21.

Some freed prisoners appeared at a news conference, which was delayed by jubilant, tearful reunions with family and friends. They accused their jailers of maltreatment and vowed to continue the fight against apartheid.

At the news conference and in separate interviews, freed prisoners spoke of assault and deprivation, tear gas and water-hosing. One of them, 24-year-old Sidney Molokane from Johannesburg's black township of Soweto, said he was suspended from a broomstick with his hands and feet cuffed together and spun around.

An estimated 250 to 270 people remain in prison without charge, according to the Detainees' Parents Support Committee, an independent monitoring group. It says they are held under non-emergency legislation.

The emergency, condemned throughout the world, gave police sweeping powers of arrest and use of firearms. President P.W. Botha's announcement Tuesday that it would be lifted was welcomed by the United States and other Western governments.

Botha also said, however, that Parliament would be asked to pass whatever new laws police needed to cope with rioters, which critics say is a device to continue the emergency without the name.

The government said in a statement Friday that light restrictions on media coverage of rioting "move taken away" with the end of the state of emergency.

Hours after it was lifted, however, authorities ordered the expulsion by Tuesday of the CBS Johannesburg bureau manager, William Mutschmann, a U.S. citizen;

Police say they'll solve Palme murder

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — In Swedish history, "Experience" tells us that the police commissioner said Friday he believed the underworld might help track down the assassin of police Prime Minister Olof Palme so police Commissioner Hans Holmer at his daily news conference.

Marcos party's passports revoked

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — President Corason Aquino issued an order Friday revoking the passports of Ferdinand E. Marcos and those who fled with him, making it technically impossible for them to leave the United States.

Her government also signed its first international agreement, for an exchange of scholars and artists with China.

Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile ordered the military to check prisoners in all military and civilian jails. He said he had received "numerous requests" for the release of political prisoners not on the list of 517 Mrs. Aquino ordered freed.

Mrs. Aquino formally swore in Mrs. Imelda Marcos as her cabinet, choosing human rights lawyer Augusto Sanchez as labor minister, and Rep. Stephen Solaz drew both applause and jeers during an appearance at the state-run University of the Philippines.

Vice President Salvador Laurel, who also is foreign minister, told some reporters that the passports of Marcos, his family and the 79 other members of his retinue were cancelled "on instructions" from Mrs. Aquino.

Included in the group are soldiers who were assigned to protect the Marcoses just before the party fled to Hawaii on Feb. 26 in U.S.-Air Force planes. Reports from Hawaii have said about a dozen of the soldiers have expressed a desire to come home.

Bhagwan barred from Great Britain

LONDON (AP) — Indian guru Bhagwan Shree Rajneesh, deported from Greece, was denied entry to Britain and detained overnight at Heathrow airport before flying to the Caribbean in his private jet on Friday, the Home Office said.

One report said he was headed for the island of Antigua.

The Home Office visa-issuing department said Britain barred Rajneesh "because of his undesirability." In view of his convictions in the United States.

Rajneesh pleaded guilty Nov. 14 to two of 35 charges of violating U.S. immigration laws.

U.S. economy calm amid market clamor

Wall Street edges upward

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market edged upward Friday in a lukewarm response to falling interest rates in this country and abroad.

Analysts said the market had apparently anticipated some of the latest interest rate reductions with its rise to record highs in the first two months of 1986.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials rose 3.23 to 1,699.83, cutting its loss for the week to 9.23 points.

Volume on the New York Stock Exchange came to 163.22 million shares, against 158.99 million Thursday.

By CHET CURRIER
The Associated Press

NEW YORK — With all the fireworks taking place in the stock, bond, oil and currency markets, the news on the American economy is strangely calm and quiet right now.

The upsurge in stock and bond prices, and the sharp declines of oil and the dollar, would seem to suggest dramatic events are shaping up in the course of the economy. But some analysts argue that assumption is incorrect.

"The economy is moving as strong as the (Reagan) administration hopes nor as weak as doom-sayers fear," said Roger Brinner at the forecasting firm of Data Resources Inc.

"We have been thinking more and more that the drop in oil prices and the drop in interest rates would help the U.S. business cycle continue, but do not necessarily make the growth rate of the economy higher," observed Greg Smith at Prudential-Bache Securities Inc.

Many analysts note that the recent fluctuations of the various markets, while generally hailed as favorable, might well produce some conflicting results for the economy, at least over the near term.

The rise of stock and bond prices, for example, naturally increases the overall wealth of the nation's investors. But lower interest rates also mean that people with savings invested in money-market vehicles get less income from these sources.

Furthermore, efforts to cut the federal budget deficit may lessen one stimulative influence on the economy while falling oil prices increases another.

Most of the time, when stock prices rise it is presumed they are doing so on anticipation of higher corporate earnings. But last year, the market had a banner year while profits were generally flat.

And Wall Street sees few signs at present that profits are likely to take of this year, although they are expected to show some improvement.

The bluest of the blue chips, International Business Machines, recently served notice that its first-quarter results would be hurt by price cuts for some of its products.

Indeed, the stock market's historic rally since 1982 has been characterized not by any marked increase in price-earnings ratios, but by what investors have been willing to pay for those earnings — in other words, an expansion in price-earnings ratios.

With inflation abating, financial assets like stocks and bonds have attained greater popularity by comparison with tangible assets like gold, collectibles and real estate.

The stock market's rally bogged down in the past week. The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, down 9.23 at 1,699.83, posted its first weekly loss since Jan. 20-21.

The New York Stock Exchange composite index slipped .36 to 330.36, while the American Stock Exchange market value index was up 2.70 at 260.05.

Big Board volume averaged 158.74 million shares a day, down from 163.81 million in the previous week.

"The recent evidence on income, spending and output suggests that the economy is in good, but not great shape," said Brinner.

"We are against a recession in the next three years unless the improvement in oil prices, budget deficits or interest rates is unexpectedly and sharply reversed," he added. "Nevertheless, it is imprudent to project a booming economy."

Blocks clothing store chain to close

POCATELLO (AP) — The Blocks clothing store chain, founded in Pocatello by a Jewish immigrant from Poland in 1914, plans to close its 11 outlets in eastern Idaho and northern Utah, the company said Friday.

The decision to shut down the major retailing operation was made Wednesday and the company's 150 employees were told Thursday.

Sy Block, president of Blocks Inc., said his company had the choice of either drastically modernizing its operation or closing.

"It looks like we are going to be closing the retail business. Beyond that at this point, we don't have any definite plans. We've never done this before," Block said.

At its peak, Blocks had 16 stores throughout the region; but four or five years ago it closed its two Salt Lake City stores "to get out of the metropolitan market there," he said.

Last fall, it closed three small stores in Arco, St. Anthony and Clearfield, Utah, because residents there had changed their shopping habits.

The remaining stores are in Bountiful, Logan and Brigham City, Utah, and Blackfoot, Burley, Idaho Falls, Preston, Rexburg, Soda Springs and Rigby.

"We were probably out of step. We've been in business 72 years here in Pocatello, trying to give service to customers the old-fashioned way," Block said.

"We're certainly all very saddened by it, but it just looked like maybe our kind of business is not that desirable anymore, and the people of this area. So, we thought we'd quit while we're ahead," he said.

Named Businessman of the Year in 1975 by the Alpha Kappa Psi professional business fraternity at Idaho State University, Block bought five stores in 1958 from his father, the late Nate Block. When the acquisition was made, the younger Block added women's and children's clothing and home furnishings to his company's line of merchandise.

Nate Block, who died in 1973 at the age of 93, joined with the late Nate Morgan to start the retail chain. When it was opened, they sold work clothes, shoes and railroad watches. Their partnership dissolved in 1916.

By Block said that he will meet with professional consultants next Wednesday or Thursday to firm up how the properties will be disposed. High on Block's list is what to do with the company's buildings.

"We own a number of them and many of them are bridges," he said. "I'm kind of trying to cross bridges as I come to them. That's quite a ways down the line."

When the Blocks stores will be closed has yet to be decided, but they are likely to be shut down at about the same time, Block said.

"The chances of Blocks being bought out by another company are slim to none, he said.

"Right now across the country, there are far more retailers going out than coming in. I don't think this part of the country would be attractive," Block said.

Trends, tips for those thinking about traveling on vacation

With the sun shining through the clouds on an increasing number of days and at unexpected times as well, you're merely normal if your mind turns to vacations: the "where" in this era of international terrorism in addition to the usual "when, how much and what."

If you're up to the point of lovely Sunday "arguments" on this, you're even behind the majority, say spokesmen for the American Society of Travel Agents. And the trends already emerging stress that the quicker you move, the better for you and your family.

Trends and tips:

- Foreign travel is still the choice of many — although bookings for the Middle East and Mediterranean countries are down for obvious reasons.

Foreign destinations with the greatest appeal (and bookings) are Scandinavia, the Orient, Australia and New Zealand. As for this date, the dominant factor is peace.

- Group travel has been spurred by the belief that groups provide greater safety in addition to the usual factors of convenience and the possibility of large savings.
- Destinations close to home have increasing appeal. Alaska and Hawaii appear to be especially popular and there's also the fair in Vancouver, Canada.

That fair, Exp 86, runs from May 2 through Oct. 13, and is expected to draw an international crowd to displays and exhibits spread around the theme of transportation and communication. Experts also expect some spillover throughout the Pacific Northwest.

With a mounting number of tours to exotic locations offered at affordable prices, it's more important than ever for you to review every part of your proposed trip — and to understand every detail.

Most crucial, review the "conditions" clause at the bottom of the ad or end of the brochure. Find out whether the quoted price is firm and what the cancellation charges are.

And be sure to find out how the tour operator defines major changes, under which you will get a full refund should changes occur, advises the Council of Better Business Bureaus.

A choice for many travelers, expect to find record crowds at many national parks.

"Camping will be more difficult this summer because of federal budget cutbacks," says a spokesman for the National Park Service. "A number of campgrounds will be operating shorter seasons, and some may even be closed totally."

Which campgrounds will be open and on what schedules will be decided on a park-by-park basis.

You can make reservations through Ticker's more than 600 outlets in 23 states for some of the most popular campgrounds in the national parks. You can visit a Ticker office in person or write to: Ticker and Applications to Ticker, c/o P. O. Box 2715, San Francisco, Calif. 94126. You can reserve places at campsites up to 60 days in advance, at $3.50 for each reservation.

Campgrounds in the following parks are included: Acadia, Maine; Shenandoah-Virginia-Great-Smoky-Mountain, Tennessee and North Carolina; Cape Hatteras National Seashore, North Carolina; Rocky Mountain, Colorado; Grand Canyon, Arizona; Sequoia-Kings Canyon, Yosemite, and Joshua Tree National Monument, California.

Ticker also will handle campsite reservations for the national forest system in California. It will also make reservations for the cave tours at Mammoth Cave, Kentucky.

If you plan to visit several parks that charge entrance fees, buy a Golden Age Passport for $10. It's good for one year, and it allows you and everyone in your car to enter free. To obtain it, write: Golden Age Passport, Post Office Box 37127, Washington, D.C. 20013.

If you are 62 or over, you can get a Golden Age Passport for free, and the Golden Access Passport is available for the disabled. To obtain either of these, you must go to a park or office. You cannot get these passports through the mail.
