U.S. aids Hondurans repelling Sandinistas

14 helicopters carry infantry to vicinity of alleged incursion

By REID G. MILLER
The Associated Press

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras — U.S. military helicopters with American crews ferried Honduran soldiers to a remote border area Wednesday where up to 1,500 Sandinista troops were reported trying to fight their way back to Nicaragua.

U.S. officials here said 14 helicopters from Palmarola air base were carrying infantry and artillery units to the "Las Vegas salient" about 120 miles east of the capital.

The salient is a triangular-shaped area of Honduras that juts into Nicaragua along the irregular frontier between the two countries. It has long been the site of a major camp of the U.S.-backed Nicaraguan rebels, called Contras, who fight the Sandinista government from bases in southern Honduras.

Honduran military sources, speaking on condition of anonymity, said 1,500 Sandinistas crossed the frontier last Saturday in pursuit of rebels and were trapped inside Honduras by Contras who cut off their retreat.

Other sources, including U.S. officials who asked not to be identified, put the number of Nicaraguan government troops near 800 and said most probably would escape because it was difficult to block all paths through the jungled mountain terrain.

About 100 Sandinista soldiers and 80 Nicaraguan rebels have died in four days of heavy fighting in southern Honduras, U.S. officials said Wednesday.

Pentagon spokesman Robert Sims said he believed the fighting was continuing Wednesday.

But Frank Arana, a spokesman for the largest Contra group, the Nicaragua Democratic Front, said Wednesday, "Everything is under control. The invaders are not going to return to Nicaragua. Our troops have them surrounded." He refused to elaborate.

U.S. officials said about 100 Sandinistas and 80 Contras had been killed in four days of fighting.

Accounts of fighting could not be verified independently. Honduran military sources said soldiers were ordered to keep journalists out of the area.

Senate bickers, but approval of Contra aid package is close

By LAWRENCE L. KNUTSON
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The Senate on Wednesday inched toward likely approval of President Reagan's $100 million aid plan for anti-leftist rebels in Nicaragua after Democrats and Republicans fell into bickering over who was to blame for failure to reach a bipartisan compromise.

After 10 hours of backroom negotiating and five hours of unofficial floor debate, both sides gave up Wednesday evening and said they would try again on Thursday to complete action on the Reagan plan to arm the Contras.

Sen. James Sasser of Tennessee, who has emerged as a spokesman for Senate Democrats on Central American policy, said genuine progress had been made on forging a united position before Adm. John M. Poindexter, the national security adviser, appeared in Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole's office and intervened.

"The admiral, he just steamed in there at flank speed and just said, 'We're not going to have any negotiations between (Washington and Managua)' without pre-conditions," Sasser said. "Adm. Poindexter appeared and he torpedoed the bilateral negotiations."

But Sen. Richard Lugar, R-Ind., chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, blamed Senate Democratic leader Robert C. Byrd of West Virginia for the failure to reach a compromise.

Dole and Byrd met for more than three hours with Lugar and Sasser. Lugar said Byrd had insisted on Congress being given a second chance of blocking offensive weapons shipments to the Contras even if the Sandinista government of Nicaragua refused to negotiate in good faith.

"Poindexter did not enter at flank speed or at any speed, he just walked in," Lugar said. "The administration's thoughts are important to us, but they did not do anything."

Adm. Poindexter cannot be blamed for torpedoing anything," Byrd told reporters that Poindexter had in fact rejected direct U.S.-Nicaraguan negotiations with no third parties involved, a step Democrats said was the acknowledged centerpiece of any compromise on the issue.

Police say 25 dead in apartheid riots

By ANDREW TORCHIA
The Associated Press

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa — Police said Wednesday they shot and killed 25 blacks in 24 hours in battling unrest across South Africa, and reported the deaths of three others in black-on-black attacks.

Police in the black homeland of Bophuthatswana said 11 people were killed and scores were injured when police opened fire with shotguns and rifles at a meeting with 5,000 people that had been called to smooth over civilian complaints of police brutality.

Col. M.A. Molope, district police commander, said the crowd began throwing gasoline bombs and stones, and police fired in self-defense.

Residents said they believed as many as 100 people were injured when police fired rifles and shotguns during the meeting on a soccer field in Witwatersrand. They said more than 1,000 were taken into custody.

Elsewhere, police said they shot dead nine blacks among a crowd of 100 who attacked a liquor store with damaged gasoline bombs at 2 a.m. in KwaZakhele township near Port Elizabeth.

Police said they killed two other blacks in KwaZakhele, two in the Crossroads shanty city near Cape Town and one in Kagiso township near Johannesburg — all during stone-throwing and firebomb outbreaks late Tuesday.

Two black men were reported burned to death near Durban, one with a flaming tire around his neck — in a type of assault used by black militants against people they see as cooperating with the white-led minority government.

Police said a child was stabbed to death near Durban Wednesday, during one of at least 11 riots in seven townships.

The 28 deaths marked one of the bloodiest periods since widespread unrest broke out 19 months ago against apartheid, the system of segregation under which 5 million whites dominate 24 million voteless blacks.

In Washington, White House spokesman Larry Speakes was asked for the administration's reaction to the latest violence.

"Often police actions exacerbate an already tense situation," Speakes said. "We call on all parties, including the South African government, to take the concrete steps necessary to get negotiations started on genuine power-sharing."

Conflict in gulf becomes standoff

6th Fleet remains alert against attacks

By NORMAN BLACK
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The military confrontation between the United States and Libya in the Gulf of Sidra settled into an uneasy standoff Wednesday with the U.S. 6th Fleet primed for action against an enemy who didn't appear.

Libyan radio, Soviet speech — A2

The Pentagon said ships and planes from the U.S. naval battle group continued to operate below Libya's straggleman Col. Moammar Khadafi's "line of death" in the gulf, but no Libyan planes or patrol boats had ventured farther than 12 miles from the coastline since early Tuesday morning.

Naval jets and a missile cruiser attacked four Libyan ships after they ventured into the gulf or Mediterranean Sea on Monday and early Tuesday, the Pentagon said. It has said three apparently sank and one was hit and managed to return to Libyan waters.

Late Wednesday, however, Vice Adm. Frank B. Kelso, the commander of the 6th Fleet, indicated to a small group of reporters allowed on the carrier Saratoga that there had been five naval engagements. Kelso also said he was not yet prepared to claim that any Libyan boat actually sank.

There were two definitely severely damaged patrol boats and we are continuing to evaluate the others," Kelso said.

Pentagon and White House officials had said Tuesday they had received preliminary reports of a fifth engagement with a Libyan boat but that there was insufficient information to confirm it.

U.S. attack planes have conducted two assaults on a radar-guided missile facility near the Libyan town of Sirte. All of the military strikes were prompted by the firing of at least six surface-to-air missiles against U.S. planes as they flew over the gulf on Monday, officials said.

At the State Department, meantime, spokesman Charles Redman said Libyan agents have U.S. installations around the world under surveillance and may have targeted Americans for terrorist attack in retaliation for the gulf confrontation.

Khadafi claims the gulf, a large, U-shaped appendage of the Mediterranean that cuts into the central Libyan coastline, as his own territorial waters. That contention is dismissed by the United States, which recognizes only a 12-mile limit.

Senate Republicans strike apparent public school pact

The Associated Press

BOISE — The Senate's Republican supermajority on Wednesday finally struck an apparent compromise on 1987 state support for public schools, clearing the way for adjournment of this year's session by week's end.

"There is a strong possibility we can finish things up" Thursday, Republican Floor Leader Mark Ricks of Rexburg said.

Gov. John Evans and some $6 million below what education officials said was needed to halt deterioration of the school system.

Although GOP Caucus Chairman Phil Balt declined to predict that the plan could pass after emerging from the hour-long caucus, he said, "There's substantial support. That's all I can say about it."

There were also indications that at least a few Senate Democrats would support the bill, and prospects for its acceptance by the House appeared good. The plan was to be finalized by the Finance Committee early Thursday.

The Senate and House both took final action more than a score of budget measures, sending all of them to the governor's desk. Among the most controversial in the barebones state general fund budget that effectively freezes basic spending next year at this year's level were the blueprints for:

• The Corrections Department that Director Al Murphy said would do little to help the state meet federal court directives to improve prison conditions.

• The Commerce Department,

Constitutional convention may be Reagan's next aim

By TERENCE HUNT
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Reagan, frustrated by Congress, may campaign for a constitutional convention to write an amendment to the Constitution requiring a balanced budget for the federal government, a spokesman said Wednesday.

It is not clear whether such a convention could be limited to a single topic, or whether the entire Constitution would be subject to rewriting, presidential spokesman Larry Speakes acknowledged.

"It may be the president feels strongly enough about the balanced budget that he would favor a constitutional convention may campaign for a constitutional convention to write an amendment to the Constitution requiring a balanced budget for the federal government, a spokesman said Wednesday.

By a one-vote margin Tuesday, the Republican-controlled Senate ignored appeals from Reagan and refused to approve an amendment that would have prevented Congress from spending more money than the government collects in revenues.

The vote was 66-34, one short of

Two good ideas die in Watkins' panel

Two progressive measures before the Idaho Senate Local Government and Taxation Committee have apparently died for this legislative session...

The first, a proposed tax on beer and wine to raise money for alcohol treatment programs, was killed by the committee.

The other, to expand the power of local units of government to levy taxes to meet local needs, didn't come up for consideration...

To its credit, the full Senate on Wednesday voted to establish a special committee to study the local option issue...

To us, the tax on beer and wine measure made a lot of sense. Something is desperately wrong in our culture when alcohol abuse is now among the leading social problems and causes of crime...

Liquor lobbyists — naturally — opposed the bill, as they do all proposals which would do anything to reduce sales of alcohol...

It is apparent to anyone who has dealt with issues like child abuse, divorce, or bankruptcy and credit, or looked inside the criminal justice system...

But our Legislature, attuned as it is to the song of the special interest lobbyist, doesn't see the relationship.

To understand why, attend a function sometime and notice how many of the legislators present have a drink in hand.

There are two things, it is said, you should never watch being made. One is legislation. The other is sausage. This week, we think we'd rather watch sausage production.

In this period crime rates generally have been dropping, but there is no convincing evidence to prove that preventive detention has been a contributing factor...

But critics ask: How can a magistrate reasonably predict future criminal behavior? Doesn't "preventive detention" turn old rules of criminal law on their heads?

Public defenders charge that the law simply is not working as proponents had hoped it would. In a typical criminal case, an arrested person is brought before a magistrate charged with a major drug offense or other serious crime...

Often such hearings are perfunctory. No thorough investigation has been made of the suspect's work record or of his prior arrests or convictions...

The program of preventive detention has increased costs of criminal prosecution: The federal prisoner population has gone up by 32 percent...

Senate passes pay raises for 7 state elected officials

BOISE (AP) — Pay raises ranging from less than 7 percent to 20 percent for the seven statewide elected officials were approved Wednesday by the Idaho Senate and sent to the House.

"They're not magic figures," Sen. Phil Batt, R-Idaho, said of the proposal, introduced just a day earlier by the Senate State Affairs Committee. "They don't please the elected officials at all. . . . But I think they're reasonable."

The bill, being handed as leaders wound down the 1986 session, offers the last possibility for pay increases in those statewide office salaries until 1990 since the pay cannot be raised during the term. All seven four-year terms are on this fall's general election ballot. It was approved by a 32-9 vote.

The bill, proposing the first increases since the 1982 election, would boost the salary of the governor $5,000 to $55,000 a year. Incumbent Democratic Gov. John Evans is running for the U.S. Senate seat held by Republican Steve Symms and is not seeking re-election.

The lieutenant governor's pay would go up $1,000 to $15,000 a

Batt justified the disproportionate raises for both the attorney general and the superintendent of public instruction on grounds that in each case the office holder could command much higher salaries in private industry.

But critics of the plan cited the financial problems facing the state and its taxpayers in opposing the raises.

"When you're having economic depression in the state and we can't put enough money into education. . . . It's no time to be raising salaries," said Sen. Walt Yarbrough, R-Grand View.

But Batt contended that even with the increases called for in the bill, the state officials would still generally remain among the lowest paid in the nation.

Opposing the measure were Democrat Dwight Horsch of Aberdeen and Republicans Yarbrough, Reed Budge of Soda Springs, Vernal Crystal of Lewisville, Rachel Gilbert of Boise, David Little of Emmett, Atwell Parry of Meba, Jerry Thorne of Nampa and Dane Watkins of Idaho Falls. Democrat Ralph Lacey of Pocatello did not vote.

Study local taxes — Senate

BOISE (AP) — The Senate has voted to set up a special committee to review the taxing powers of local governments as its Local Government and Taxation Committee continued bottling up House-passed legislation to grant local option-taxing power immediately.

The overwatching Senate vote to study the issue came Tuesday as the House was passing another bill to expand the taxing power of local governments, the fourth sent to the Senate and the most expansive of any House measure so far approved.

But Local Government and Taxation Committee Chairman Dane Watkins, R-Idaho Falls, a staunch critic of any tax increase or legislation that could lead to one, said earlier in the day that he had no plans to take up any of those proposals as the Legislature moved through its final days.

The latest local option bill approved in the House on a 61-22 vote effectively combined the provisions of the three previous measures clearing that chamber. It would give counties, upon a 55 percent vote of the people, the power to impose a 1 percent local sales or income tax or to raise property taxes in excess of the current 5 percent-increase cap.

Local officials, facing multimillion-dollar losses in federal funds, have been seeking increased taxing powers for the last several years in an effort to stop the erosion of public services and provide the resources needed to compete for and ultimately attract new business. They have had the support of Gov. John Evans, but their attempts have repeatedly died in the Senate. Earlier this year, however, the Senate did vote for a local option taxing package that included repeal of $15 million in direct state aid to cities and counties. In the wake of that vote, a number of senators contended that there was a need to thoroughly review the division of taxing authority and revenue distribution in the state.

Sen. Michael Crapo, R-Idaho Falls, said that was the aim of the special committee that will work through the summer and fall on the local option issue.

"This is not an attempt to set the stage for any kind of tax increase next year," Crapo said, but Sen. Rod Beck, R-Boise, added, "Right now the state controls every nickel that's assessed at the local level."

Gasohol tax break clears Legislature

BOISE (AP) — The Senate has given final legislative approval to six-year extension of the four-cent-a-gallon exemption from the state fuel tax for gasohol despite warnings from some members about the impact of the tax break on the state highway operations.

The bill, extending the tax break through April 1992, was sent to Gov. John Evans Tuesday on a unanimous vote as supporters argued that the tax break played a critical role in establishing new market alternatives for the state's struggling farmers.

With current commodity prices severely depressed by huge surpluses, Sen. Ron Benschneider, D-Grandview, said, "We need an opportunity for our agriculture people to have markets for their products and a chance to be profitable."

Supporters of the extension of the break on the 14.5-cent-a-gallon state fuel tax said it was critical to securing for the state a multimillion-dollar fuel-alcohol plant by the J.R. Simplot Co. that would provide scores of new jobs.

Although the tax break is estimated to be costing the state highway fund $1.5 million this year, backers contend it has played a key role in developing a new industry for the state and a processing outlet for farmers.

But Sen. Reed Budge, R-Soda Springs, while ultimately supporting the proposal, argued that it was not providing the kind of economic relief to producers that many contended and that up to 20 percent of the fuel alcohol being used in Idaho has been imported from South America.

House passes H&W budget amid criticism

BOISE (AP) — There was a lot of criticism of a $227 million budget for the Idaho Department of Health and Welfare in the House on Wednesday, but the House wound up approving the budget anyway.

The vote was 52-32, as the appropriation, largest non-education budget still before the Legislature, went to the Senate.

Rep. Ron Crane, R-Nampa, tried to put the appropriation up for amendment, but withdrew the motion when other members warned the action could delay the end of the current session.

House members complained about various programs within the agency. But backers of the budget bill noted that no one has come forth with legislation to eliminate specific programs.

"We spent many hours and days going over the department. We

Tractor driving bill heads for Evans

BOISE — Acting to make legal what is already common practice, the House Wednesday approved a bill to allow farmers to drive their machinery at night.

Senate Bill 1304, which has already passed the Senate in its amended form, is now on its way to the governor for review.

The bill will limit the liabilities of farmers involved in traffic accidents at night. Without the bill, a little-known provision of Idaho law would make it illegal for farmers to have their machinery on the roads at night and would make them vulnerable to lawsuits if they were in a nighttime accident.

would welcome a letter from anyone ending a mandated service," said Rep. Kathleen "Kitty" Gurnsey, R-Boise.

"This is the annual 'Beat Up On Health and Welfare' legislation," said Rep. Chris Hooper, R-Boise. "We should be beating up on ourselves. We are the ones who have not taken control of this agency."

Without mentioning anyone by name, Hooper said he felt the agency's problems would be eased with different administrators, "from the top down to the bottom."

Vote delayed on shelter homes bill

BOISE — The Idaho House of Representatives put off yet another day consideration of a bill to protect special funding for specialized shelter care homes.

The House voted Tuesday not to amend the bill and was slated to give the bill final consideration Wednesday. But confusion on the part of Rep. Gene Winchester, R-Kuna, led to the cancellation of debate until today.

Winchester said he was not ready to vote on the measure because he was getting conflicting information on the cost of specialized shelter care and wanted to wait one day.

On a voice vote, the House agreed to wait until today to finish debate on the bill.

House kills anti-competition bill by one vote after a battle

BOISE (AP) — The Idaho House battled for more than two hours on Wednesday before finally defeating by one vote legislation designed to prevent state agencies from competing with private companies.

Opponents argued it was aimed mainly at Correctional Industries, run by inmates at the Idaho State Prison.

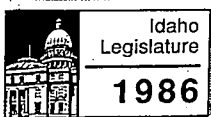

The original vote was 45-38, but House members allowed Rep. Gary Robbins, R-Dietrich, and Rep. Gary Montgomery, R-Boise, to change their votes from no to yes.

When a third House member tried the same thing, Rep. Chris Hooper, R-Boise, objected, because that would have allowed the bill to pass on a 41-40 count.

After a squabble over rules, the vote stood, although opponents said they might try for reconsideration.

The proposal cleared the Senate 30-12 on March 14.

The House debated whether the measure would "affect" a variety of operations, ranging from health districts, the Youth Services Center, the Department of Transportation and the Soil Conservation Service.

The bill, sponsored in the House by Rep. Phil Childers, R-Boise and Rep. J.F. Chadband, R-Idaho Falls, would have set up a new review board to decide if state agencies were performing functions that could be done by private industry.

Sponsors argued that if that were happened, it would be unfair, because prison inmates are paid less than $1 per hour and labor in private industry makes far more than that.

"This is aimed at the prison," said Rep. James Stolcheff, D-Sandpoint. Among many government activities that might be halted, he said, could be the sale of electricity by the cities of Bonanza, Ferry and Idaho Falls, among others.

"It also creates a brand-new government board, which is just what we need this year," he said.

"This is most poorly written legislation for a good concept," said Hooper. "It's a good idea. But we don't legislate concepts, we legislate laws."

When he alleged that the bill might prevent the Transportation Department from cleaning snow off highways, because that's a function that could be performed by private companies, Chadband countered that Hooper was "nit-picking."

"Resist the temptation to pass it because it sounds good," said Hooper.

Rep. Vard Chaburn, R-Albion, also said it was a good idea, but a bad bill. He and others argued that the state could be headed for big trouble if prison industries were stopped and prison inmates had nothing to do.

Senate narrowly passes measure easing search warrant regulation

BOISE (AP) — Despite warnings that critical constitutional protections would be seriously eroded, the Idaho Senate has narrowly approved legislation easing the circumstances under which evidence seized with a search warrant can be used in criminal cases.

But Sen. Vern Lannen, D-Pinehurst, almost immediately served notice on Wednesday that he would probably ask that the 21-20 vote approving the House-passed bill be reconsidered.

The bill, handled by Sen. Ann Rydahl, R-Idaho Falls, would guarantee through law the so-called "good faith" exemption to court rules that require evidence seized through an improper search or under a flawed search warrant be excluded from use in criminal prosecution.

Senate President Pro Tem James Risch, R-Boise, a former prosecutor, argued that the bill was intended to end what he claimed has been the all-too-frequent incidents in which obviously guilty defendants have been released because of technical flaws in handling the investigation against them.

"This is a bite into the constitution," Risch admitted. "But you have to get down to the question, and the question is, 'Is this person guilty or not guilty?'"

But Senate Judiciary Committee Chairman Roger Fairchild called the bill a result of "the hysteria of the day" and a "political stunt to say 'law and order.'"

He warned that while it may be intended to prohibit a known drug dealer from avoiding conviction through a technicality today, "tomorrow it might be a tax pro- tector and next year it might be all of us in a rebellion against

Washington, D.C. It can be used against you."

Although the bill was backed by Attorney General Jim Jones, critics pointed out that state appellate Judge Jesse Walters, while declining to speak for the entire judiciary, said the bill was not needed since the state Supreme Court had already upheld the principle of the "good faith" exemption under Idaho law.

Search warrant bill votes tallied

Magie Valley Senators voting with the 21-20 majority to allow a good faith exemption to the exclusionary rule included Sens. Larry Anderson, R-Twin Falls, and Denton Darrington, R-Declo.

Voting against the bill were Sens. Darrel McElberts, R-Twin Falls; Laird Noh, R-Kimberly; John Peavey, D-Carey; and Lynn Tominga, R-Paul.

BOISE (AP) — An effort to raise $500,000 for alcohol treatment programs through an additional tax on beer and wine has failed in the Idaho Legislature.

The Senate Local Government and Taxation Committee voted to hold the bill. Representatives from the beer and wine industry and the state Liquor Dispensary testified the current excise tax was high enough and that a provision barring sales of pre-mixed drinks in most state liquor dispensaries would hurt distributors.

Idaho State Penitentiary Warden A.J. Arave promoted the bill, saying it would be more cost effective for the state to try to prevent alcohol abuse than to house offenders. Eighty-five percent of inmates are incarcerated for drug- or alcohol-related crimes, he said. But Sen. Rachel Gilbert, R-Boise, who seconded a motion to hold the proposal in committee, called it a "sin tax" that would unfairly tax legitimate businesses. "We don't place a tax on refined sugar for diabetics," she said. Beer now is taxed at $3.10 per 31-gallon barrel. Wine is taxed at 45 cents a gallon for out-of-state wine, and 35 cents a gallon for Idaho wine.

House committee hangs up telephone deregulation bill

BOISE (AP) — It appears a major bill deregulating the telephone industry in Idaho is dead for the session. The House State Affairs Committee abruptly adjourned Wednesday morning, heading off any effort to bring the bill up for consideration. The Senate voted 29-13 for the bill last Thursday after a major debate and lengthy committee hearings. Rep. Walt Little, R-New Plymouth, chairman of House State Affairs, said his committee has not taken formal action on the bill. He said he has polled members, and the majority is against taking up the bill this late in the session. Little said since the bill passed the Senate, members of his committee have been inundated with conflicting material on the telephone deregulation bill. Committee members feel they will not have time to hold hearings and go through all the material on the deregulation bill before the end of the session, he said. Mountain Bell spokesmen told members of the Senate they want the bill to compete with other companies which are not regulated by the Idaho Public Utilities Commission. Little said it was uncertain whether State Affairs would hold another meeting this session.

Courtroom guards not barrier to fair trial

By PHILIP HAGER
Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON — The Supreme Court eased the way Wednesday for tighter courtroom security, ruling unanimously that armed, uniformed guards can be present at a trial without violating a defendant's right to the presumption of innocence. In a victory for state prosecutors, the justices reinstated the armed robbery conviction of a Rhode Island man that had been overturned by a federal appeals court because four state troopers had been seated in the "front row of the spectators' section in view of the trial jury. The noticeable presence of security officers is not an "inherently prejudicial" indication that the defendant is dangerous, the court said. Jurors could just as easily infer that guards were there to prevent outside disruption, it said. "If they are placed at some distance from the accused, security officers may well be perceived more as elements of an impressive drama than as reminders of the defendant's special status," Justice Thurgood Marshall wrote for the court. "Our society has become inured to the presence of armed guards in most public places." Prosecutors in 16 states had submitted a "friend of the court" brief R.I., safe deposit company in 1975, urging the justices to overturn the trial judge's decision. The trial judge allowed the uniformed guards to supplement the usual courtroom security force, which he argued could not provide the sufficient level of security at the time. The case involved the trial of Charles Flynn, who had been held that a roomful of uniformed and without ball on charges of par-armed policemen might pose to a kidnapping with five others in a $4 defendant's chances of receiving a million robbery of a Providence, fair trial," Marshall wrote.

HAPPY EASTER FROM SWENSEN'S

Swensen's has always believed the numerous eyewitness accounts of Christ's resurrection recorded in the Bible and finds his promise of life beyond the grave infinitely more hopeful, satisfying, and above all — more true sounding than the poverty stricken idea that the order and wonders of the universe are a random accident and that the marvelous human body, mind and spirit happen to come into existence through billions of years of unplanned, spontaneous development and ends in nothing with death. The prospect of the big zero after this life is pretty dismal indeed, and Swensen's recommends the future as forecast by Christ and his apostles and as believed and reported by many eyewitnesses and followers on the occasion of the First Easter. May this Easter be a joyous, happy time for you and your families. The Swensen's.

Astronaut remains identified — reports

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Pathologists have identified the remains of six or seven of the astronauts killed in the explosion of space shuttle Challenger, according to relatives and published reports.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration declined to comment on the reports. The agency has said repeatedly since it announced March 9 that divers had found part of the crew cabin and remains on the ocean floor that there would be no further statements until the operation was complete.

"We do that out of deference to the families," said NASA spokesman Hugh Harris.

Seven crew members died when Challenger exploded 73 seconds after liftoff Jan. 28.

Sources told The Associated Press that remains have been recovered and that parts of most of the astronauts had been identified. They declined to say how many.

The USS Preserver, the salvage ship working the crew compartment area 18 miles offshore, twice has returned to port under cover of darkness with no running lights, and on both occasions containers from the vessel were placed aboard military ambulances.

For the sixth straight day Wednesday, the Preserver and other salvage ships were prevented by high winds and rough seas from dropping divers and submersibles overboard.

The remains are being examined at the NASA Life Sciences Laboratory at Cape Canaveral Air Force Station.

Stevenson leans toward 3rd-party bid

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — Adlai Stevenson is leaning toward a third-party bid to revive his gubernatorial campaign after two backers of extreme Lyndon LaRouche scored upsets in the Democratic primary, an aide said Wednesday.

"We want to consider all the angles," said Stevenson spokesman Bob Benjamin. "Whatever course we take is unprecedented — there is no rule book, there is no guidebook."

Stevenson has spent much of the week in talks with state Democratic leaders, some of whom have been cool to the idea of forming a third party to derail the candidacies of LaRouche backers Mark Falchid, who won the nomination for lieutenant governor, and Janice Hart, the nominee for secretary of state.

Stevenson, a former U.S. senator making his second bid for governor, has vowed not to run on the same ticket with the LaRouche supporters, whom he has labeled "neo-Nazis."

Lawyers are still looking at ways to remove the LaRouche supporters from the ticket, but Benjamin said such a move probably would prompt a lawsuit and looks like a "longshot."

He said a third-party bid would require a "massive voter education project. We would have to double and triple our efforts to explain to voters what buttons to punch."

State law requires a third party to offer candidates for all statewide offices, from U.S. senator to University of Illinois trustee.

Katerina Lycheva does a Russian dance at a school visit

Soviet schoolgirl: Plant peace trees

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Soviet schoolgirl on Wednesday urged American children to plant peace gardens to remind the superpowers of life that shouldn't be destroyed, and said she hopes her peace visit will not "be in vain."

Katerina Lycheva, 11, arriving in Washington on the seventh day of her trip to the United States, was greeted enthusiastically by students of Wheatley elementary school whom she joined in a folk dance and then in a rousing rendition of the song "We Are The World."

Katerina's visit that began last Thursday in Chicago commemorates the 1983 Moscow trip of Maine schoolgirl Samantha Smith, whose peace wishes were the focus of an exhibit Katerina organized in Moscow.

At a City Council meeting Wednesday, Katerina said she has felt welcome during her trip. "I think the people here are very kind. I do hope this trip is not going to be in vain," she said.

Smiling and wearing a ruffled, calico-print dress, Katerina walked into the Wheatley school auditorium to the piano music of "Let There Be Peace on Earth." The U.S. and Soviet national anthems were played as the two nations' flags were presented.

The fair-haired Soviet girl looked out on the assembly and said the faces looked familiar because "children all over the world look like each other."

Speaking with the help of an interpreter, she urged the Washington youngsters also to plant trees so "that people going ahead with the arms race might think again before destroying all that."

U.S. to study documents on Waldheim

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Justice Department said Wednesday it will review the evidence a Jewish group has gathered on the World War II activities of former U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim, a step that could lead to Waldheim being barred from the United States.

The Justice Department's Office of Special Investigations asked the World Jewish Congress for documents the private organization says demonstrate that Waldheim was involved in a massacre by Nazis of thousands of people in Yugoslavia.

After OSI's review, the attorney general could decide whether to place Waldheim on a "watch list" that would forbid him from entering the United States.

OSI director Neal M. Sher said he did not know how long the process would take.

The private group wrote Meese asking that Waldheim be placed on the list. Under a 1978 immigration law amendment, the United States can bar anyone who assisted the Nazi government in persecuting people because of their race, religion, national origin or political opinions.

Court says Japanese free of dumping case

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court ruled Wednesday that Japanese manufacturers do not have to defend themselves at trial against a 16-year-old antitrust lawsuit alleging they conspired to "dump" electronic products in this country at artificially lowered prices.

By a 5-4 vote, the court said there is "strong evidence that the conspiracy did not in fact exist."

In the case, the justices said a federal appeals court was wrong when in 1968 it ordered a trial. Zenith and other U.S. makers of electronic consumer products are seeking billions of dollars from their Japanese competitors.

The case now returns to the Philadelphia-based 3rd U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals for further proceedings.

The lawsuit alleges that Sanyo Electric Co., Hitachi Ltd., Toshiba Corp., Mitsubishi Electric Corp., Matsushita Electric Industrial Co., Sharp Corp. and trading companies and U.S. subsidiaries conspired to drive U.S. competitors out of business.

Air Force urges new shuttle

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Air Force's top space official said Wednesday that the loss of the shuttle Challenger has created a national emergency that cannot be cured merely by shifting military satellites to throwaway rockets.

Edward C. Aldridge Jr. told a joint hearing by two Senate subcommittees that the Air Force strongly supports not only additional expendable launch vehicles (ELVs) but also the replacement of Challenger.

"Even with additional ELVs, it is not clear that the current three-orbiter fleet can meet the demands of both NASA and DOD," said Aldridge, the undersecretary of the Air Force.

"Our view of this is that it's a national emergency," he said.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration, which once fought to prevent the Air Force from getting throwaway rockets that might divert military payloads from the shuttle, endorsed them Wednesday.

"The right thing for us to do is to have a balance between shuttle capabilities and ELV capabilities," said Richard Truly, a Navy rear admiral and former shuttle astronaut who was appointed as NASA's shuttle chief after the Jan. 28 Challenger explosion.

—Truly said, as he has before, that NASA expects at least a year's down time before any shuttle flies again.

Sirhan gets another shot at parole

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Sirhan B. Sirhan gets his second appearance in nine months before a parole board Thursday, and his lawyer says the convicted killer of Robert F. Kennedy is optimistic he will soon win his release.

The 42-year-old Sirhan, who has been imprisoned for nearly 18 years, won a new hearing after attorney Luke McKissack complained that a hearing last June was an example of "documented unfairness" in which panel members deliberated only three minutes before deciding to reject the parole request.

This time, McKissack said, he hopes to win a parole date for his infamous client. He said Sirhan is hopeful about Thursday's hearing in Soledad, Calif.

DRUGS

Women are more sensitive than men to most drugs. Why is that? asks a client. Body weight. The lighter the person, the stronger the reaction to the same amount of drug. Labels on most oral medications differentiate only between children and adults. Some medicines say dosage should be prescribed according to body weight.

Legal fees can't buy Beatles royalties recovery from EMI

The Associated Press

LONDON — The former Beatles suffered a setback Wednesday in their long-running legal battle to recover millions of dollars worth of royalties on their early hits.

The British recording company that issued many Beatles hits, does not have to make a new accounting of how much is owed Paul McCartney, Ringo Starr, George Harrison, and John Lennon's widow, Yoko Ono.

But lawyers for the Beatles' company, Apple Corps, said afterward they would still probably reach agreement with EMI on the amount still owed, which they estimated at about $2.4 million.

EMI said in a statement that the company had been "totally vindicated on the question of form and presentation of the accounts."

The suit first came to court in December 1984. Since then, EMI has paid an extra $4 million, bringing to $30.1 million its royalty payments to the Beatles since 1973, said the judge.

Denver may debut song at Challenger concert

HOUSTON — Singer John Denver has penned a song in memory of the seven Challenger victims and says he hopes to perform it at a special benefit for their children.

Denver said the song, called "Flying for Me," may make its debut at the sold-out benefit concert scheduled Thursday night in Houston.

"I would like very much to sing it there," Denver said in a telephone interview from Hawaii. The final decision must be made by the sponsors of the benefit, he said.

The benefit, sponsored by a variety of performing groups including the Houston Symphony Orchestra and the Houston Grand Opera, is for the children of the seven astronauts who died when the space shuttle exploded shortly after takeoff Jan. 28.

Denver said he had a special attachment to the Challenger crew, especially teacher Christa McAuliffe. "It was one of us up there. It wasn't an astronaut or a politician; it was another person. That was the incredible thing," he said.

te Steven Van Zandt, creator of the anti-apartheid album and video "Sun City," appeared in Boston to kick off Free South Africa Day.

Van Zandt, wearing a black velvet robe and a white ruffled shirt, thanked "the City Council" for deciding to sell off $12 million worth of stocks in companies that do business in South Africa and for declaring March 26 a day to honor the fight against apartheid.

Van Zandt, in turn, was honored by Councilors David Scondras and Charles Yancey for his campaign to persuade musicians not to play in Sun City, a Las Vegas-like casino complex in South Africa's Bophuthatse.

"I was born in Boston and there's always been a special attachment for me," Van Zandt said. "When I heard about the racial problems here it really disturbed me."

"But to see this town leading the way with the divestment legislation makes me very, very proud," he said.

The "Sun City" album and video include performances by Bruce Springsteen, Run DMC, Bonnie Raitt and Miles Davis.

Flynt's use of Fawcett poster upheld by court

CINCINNATI — Publisher Larry Flynt did not violate a copyright when he used a 1976 poster of actress Farrah Fawcett in an advertisement, a federal appeals court said.

A three-judge panel of the 6th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals reversed a lower court's decision Tuesday and ruled in favor of Flynt's argument that the Fawcett poster was subject to what the law calls "fair use."

Pro Arts Inc., owner of the copyright for the poster, sued Flynt, claiming Flynt violated the copyright by using the poster without permission. He used the Fawcett poster in a 1978 ad for his Slam magazine, in conjunction with a parody on the 1970s. The ad was published in his Slam and Hustler magazines.

The appeals judges wrote that fair use allows people to use copyrighted material "in a reasonable manner."

Kiss on Easter Sunday riles pastors, officials

HAMMOND, Ind. — Some local pastors and city officials are unhappy with the decision to allow the rock group Kiss to use the Hammond Civic Center for a concert on Easter.

"A concert on Easter Sunday by a group of that nature is offensive," said John DeGullio, president of the city council. "Kiss goes beyond being a rock group. They promote satanic beliefs and violence and violate everything that Easter Sunday stands for."

However, Kiss "never has and never will" espouse satanism, said promoter Jan Pearson of Star Tickets Inc. "They're into heavy-metal rock 'n' roll and having a good time," Pearson said. Members of the group formerly wore Halloween-style makeup while performing.

Head of prostitutes' union leaves U.S. for France to continue fight

By JACK SCHREIBMAN
The Associated Press

SAN FRANCISCO — Margo St. James has had it.

The fiery protectress of prostitutes, bright beacon for the world's ladies of the night, is heading for France on Thursday after 13 years of battling police, the courts and society in general from her base in San Francisco as head of the prostitute's union, COYOTE.

Even in self-exile near the town of Montpellier, France, the 46-year-old Ellingham, Wash., native, says she'll continue to fight to "decriminalize prostitution."

St. James says she knows firsthand the travails of the woman of the streets, having "turned myself out" in the early 1960s.

"A lot of women put themselves through college that way," she said. "I'm leaving this country because I can't hack the criminal status here anymore," she explained. "I'm treated trivially; my words mean nothing. It's impossible to fight a criminal stigma. It undermines every effort."

Hunching down unhappily in a dimly lighted cocktail lounge, she summed up: "I'm disgusted with the institutionalized hypocrisy in this country, the fascist tactics of the vice cops."

St. James added that her departure does not mean she intends to be forgotten. She's going to write a book, and she says she has a "black book" to guarantee it will be juicy.

MARGO ST. JAMES
Can't hack the criminal status'

"Yep," she said breezily. "I'm writing a book when I go over there. I don't think people will be too upset if I publish the black book. Oh, sure, it's got everybody — politicians, celebrities, a few women."

Her star in the firmament of prostitution was born on a Sausalito houseboat on Mother's Day, 1973 when she decided to fight for its legalization. She wanted to use the word "prostitute" in her slogan, but decided on the more sanitary acronym, COYOTE, meaning "Call Off Your Old Tired Ethics."

COYOTE has been retired, she said, but "the work" will continue under other leadership with the tag, CALPEP, for California Prostitutes Education Project.

Over the years, she said, only a few of "about 3,000" local prostitutes rallied to her cause. But they and everybody else knew she was around. For five years she produced the "Hooker's Ball" in San Francisco. The colorful event attended by scantily clad partyers was modeled after 19th century masquerade balls.

"Most (prostitutes) are too afraid to be associated in any way, shape or form with COYOTE. The trouble is the police," she charged. "Vice police do the soliciting seven out of 10 times, and that's a crime, isn't it? They don't play by the rules..."

"Many feel that this is the bottom line of the issue, and they aren't fighting to stop the men from criminalizing a segment of the women's population. I've been unable to make this a priority issue."

She said the difference between prostitution in the United States and Europe is that in Europe, prostitutes "don't go to jail. They don't have the criminal stigma. And the women's movement in Europe has not gotten suckered into going after pornography."

St. James says she is mainly supported with funds from a well-off disabled patron for whom she cares.

Redford joins others in seeking ban of trucks from U.S. 189

SUNDANCE, Utah (AP) — Spruce-dance-ski area, including Hommond and Barbara Jones, whose daughter, son-in-law and three grandchildren were killed in the canyon earlier this month.

Though many expressed concern about general traffic through the area, those attending the meeting agreed banning trucks would alleviate much of the problem.

Car bomb, fighting claim 22 in Beirut

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — A car bomb killed eight people and wounded 80 on Wednesday when its load of TNT exploded in front of an east Beirut building housing an office of President Amin Gemayel's Phalange Party.

Police also reported that a series of artillery exchanges and gunbattles in and around Beirut killed 14 people in Lebanon's bloodiest day in several weeks.

At least 70 people, mostly civilians, were wounded in the fighting between Christians and Muslims in the capital and the hills to the east, police reported.

The car bomb contained as many as 440 pounds of TNT, according to an estimate by police explosives expert Roland Jawdeh. It blew up in the Ashrafieh neighborhood outside a five-story apartment building.

The blast set the building on fire and trapped dozens of people on upper floors. Firemen used ladders to save people and rescue teams battled through choking smoke to drag charred bodies from the rubble.

Buildings for 50 yards on either side of the apartment building were damaged and 50 cars were set on fire. The explosion gouged a crater 8 feet deep in the street.

Another bomb exploded two hours earlier in a six-story building where another office of the right-wing Phalange Party is located. Police said six civilians were wounded in that blast.

No group claimed responsibility for the explosions. But they were the latest in a chain of bombings in east Beirut since — Gemayel loyalists crushed Syrian-backed Christian rivals in fighting on Jan. 15.

The January fighting, in which 350 people were killed, torpedooed a Syrian-sponsored peace accord opposed by Gemayel. Many of the earlier blasts, in which more than 40 people were killed, were aimed at Phalange offices.

As civil defense workers pulled victims from the rubble in Ashrafieh, scores of Soviet-made rockets crashed into Christian areas. Two civilians were killed and 15 wounded by the rocket fire in Ashrafieh and the nearby Dikwani neighborhood, police said.

U.S. Attorney General Ed Meese visits a Pakistani army machine gun post close to the Afghan frontier

Meese says Soviets commit rape, torture

PESHAWAR, Pakistan (AP) — U.S. Attorney General Edwin Meese charged Wednesday that Soviet forces commit rape, torture and genocide in Afghanistan.

Meese also accused the Soviet-backed Babrak Karmal regime of encouraging the growing of opium poppies, which then are converted into heroin and smuggled to Europe and the United States.

Meese, visiting Pakistan as part of a tour of Asian nations that grow and produce narcotics, said, "The regime... certainly maintains an absolute indifference to any measures to control poppy. We strongly believe that there is actually encouragement, at least tacitly, over growing of opium poppy."

According to United Nations and Pakistan and Afghanistan are the biggest producers of heroin.

Speaking at an Afghan refugee camp outside this city, Meese said the United States would continue to defend freedom in war-torn countries such as Afghanistan and Nicaragua.

"Today, I have come here on behalf of my president to promise you, the Afghan people, that we, the people of the United States, will continue to support your heroic struggle against the Soviet empire," he said.

One of the United States' toughest denunciations of the 1979 Soviet intervention in Afghanistan, the attorney general said the presence of about 115,000 Soviet forces on Afghan soil was part of a Soviet drive for world domination.

"The world asks why are the Soviets doing this to Afghanistan... It is part of their desire to dominate the entire world," he told a group of 300 refugees in the camp close to the Afghan border.

The United States, along with China, Saudi Arabia and other nations, arms and supplies Islamic guerrillas fighting the communist government of Afghanistan.

Charges may be filed over Marcos' riches

MANILA, Philippines — The government may file criminal charges against ousted President Ferdinand E. Marcos for allegedly looting millions of dollars from the nation's coffers, an official said Wednesday.

Also Wednesday, members of Marcos' former ruling party said they consider "void and without force" the interim constitution proclaimed Tuesday by new President Corason Aquino.

The constitution abolishes the National Assembly, dominated by members of Marcos' New Society Movement, and gives Mrs. Aquino sole law-making powers. Marcos' labor minister, Bias Ople, said Mrs. Aquino was setting up a dictatorship.

Several assemblymen who had supported Mrs. Aquino also criticized the interim constitution and said they would meet next Monday to consider possible responses.

Raul Daza, a member of the Commission on Good Government that was set up by Mrs. Aquino to track down Marcos' wealth, told a news conference that filing charges against the former president may be the only way to recover the money. Much of it thought to be in Swiss banks.

Daza said, "You might see the commission bring criminal charges against Marcos' after commission Chairman Jovito Salonga returns next week from the United States. Salonga is following up several lawsuits to recover Marcos' holdings there.

Daza said two other commission members were in Switzerland and Canada to investigate reported Marcos holdings in those countries. Switzerland on Tuesday took the unprecedented step of freezing all assets placed there by Marcos and his family.

Neither Swiss nor Philippine officials have said how much money Marcos is believed to have deposited in Swiss banks.

Shultz urges Greek support

ATHENS, Greece (AP) — Secretary of State George P. Shultz, whose visit prompted anti-American demonstrations, told Greece's Socialist government Wednesday that economic cooperation depends on stable relations.

Premier Andreas Papandreu been less critical of Washington lately. U.S. officials and Greek analysts say he wants Western investment to improve Greece's troubled economy.

Shultz also urged Greece, which rejected a U.S. call for sanctions against Libya, to work more closely with the United States on terrorism.

About 500 self-proclaimed anarchists, denouncing the Greek government for inviting Shultz, tried to march without official permission from Athens University to the city center.

Police stopped them with tear gas, and some marchers ran into a law school building. A car was burned, and other fires were started in the streets.

Some protesters threw rocks and bottles at police, who reported 10 arrests.

The fighting occurred at nightfall after Shultz and his party finished a day of meetings with Greek officials and sightseeing that included a tour of ancient temples on the Acropolis.

About 20,000 communists conducted a peaceful, authorized demonstration Wednesday at Constitution Square, near Parliament.

Briefly

World press reacts to conflict

Newspapers in pro-American nations on Wednesday supported the United States' right to send its fleet into the Gulf of Sidra, while Arab and Third World nations denounced America's retaliatory attack on Libyan ships and radar.

Western papers supported the U.S. assertion that the Gulf of Sidra is in international waters and offered advice ranging from calls to oust Libyan Col. Muammar Khadafy to cautioning against future terrorist counter-attacks.

London's conservative Daily Telegraph said: "There is no international sanction for Khadafy's claim to sovereignty over the Gulf of Sidra and his 'line of death' is a dangerous pretension."

First Soviet U-2 film debuts

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union has made its first movie about the U-2 incident 26 years after shooting the spy plane down, resurrecting Cold War fears to deliver an ominous message about U.S. Soviet relations.

"Only Obivayem" (We Accuse) is showing in the midst of a heated Kremlin campaign against what it calls anti-Soviet U.S. films that color the way Americans view this country.

It seems clearly intended to back the current official line that the United States threatens world peace and cannot be trusted. The picture, it points to a military industrial complex and CIA system beyond the control of the presidency, a recurring theme in Soviet propaganda.

A Soviet anti-aircraft missile downed the U-2 on May 1, 1960, which is the International Labor Day and a major Soviet holiday. Its pilot, Francis Gary Powers, was captured on a farm in western Siberia and convicted of espionage in a trial staged before the world's press.

French detect new AIDS virus

PARIS (AP) — The Pasteur Institute on Wednesday announced the discovery of a new form of the AIDS virus, called LAV-2, which may be connected with some rare forms of the deadly disease.

Professor Luc Montagnier, whose team at Pasteur was one of the first to isolate a virus known to cause acquired immune deficiency syndrome, announced the discovery at a conference at the Gulbenkian Foundation in Lisbon, Portugal, the Pasteur Institute reported in Paris.

The research that led to discovery of the new virus was done in conjunction with Portuguese doctors at the Egas Moniz Hospital in Lisbon, and Dr. Françoise Brun-Vezinet at the Claude Bernard Hospital in Paris, the institute said.

The new virus has been found in only two cases out of 2,000 patients tested, according to news reports in Portugal, which said both patients came from Guinea-Bissau.

Swedish police examine films

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — Police hunting for Prime Minister Olof Palme's killer have obtained several hours of video tape shot near the Swedish leader's home prior to his assassination.

Police hope to find pictures of a man who reportedly tailed Palme on at least two occasions shortly before his death, according to the reports.

Police Superintendent Lars Richter declined comment on the report, citing "investigative reasons."

The Aftonbladet daily newspaper said Mariano Catan, an amateur cameraman, was filming street-life close to Palme's home during the six months prior to the Feb. 28 killing.

area, Seiffert said it is important to maintain the quality of the Big Wood fisheries by protecting its banks.
He did say, however, that he would consider the new plan with more studies and that the city and the Fdsbury confused, especially since the mayor advocated hiring Beak Consultants Inc. to make a study for Breen on the site.
"I'm going to talk to the mayor to see what leads him to his conclusion," Fosbury said. If the council is "stuck on the old plan," then the re-subdivision won't happen, he said.
The council based its views partly on a comparison report by Beak's representatives that concluded the original plan is best if the city can control alterations to the stream and its banks.
If the city cannot, then Beak could do the subdivision in a way that would protect the flood plain and give it other important improvements, including spawning beds for fish, a decrease in the amount of erosion during floods and streamside vegetation that would protect the stream's fish habitat, said Rich

Meinlyrie, special projects coordinator for the Portland, Ore., firm.
The proposed re-plot has faced stiff opposition from the Idaho Department of Fish and Game, and Beak's report did not change the agency's position.
Regional wildlife biologist Ted Chu said the Beak representatives had not given its report to the city objectively, saying they had dwelled on how their company could do the proposed project without considering the merits of the approved subdivision.
"Although Beak's representatives said they believed they had stated their choice, Chu pressured Beak's three representatives to make a more definite statement on which which plan was best. They supported the approved subdivision with building signs outside the flood plain.
If the city can get the controls on alterations to the stream banks, said Ron Campbell, Beak's senior fisheries biologist, "do it; I highly recommend it."
The original subdivision has received preliminary approval from the city, and the council questioned whether it could add any more restrictions to the plan—it sought advice from City Attorney Jim Phillips on Tuesday to clarify the matter.

Phillips told the council that the city now requires private owners to notify city officials before rippapping. The city cannot control the removal of natural streamside vegetation, however, he said.
He also said the city can not place restrictions on a subdivision that are not covered by its ordinances. But, the annexation agreement for the Bigwood subdivision, of which the Breen property is a part, allows the city to apply new ordinances to a preliminary and final plats before final approval is given, Phillips said.
On a re-plot, like the Breen plan, Phillips said the city could apply new conditions before giving final approval.
Because of Phillips' opinions, Wolford proposed the council alert the staff it wants to begin work on a "riparian" ordinance that will govern the placement of riprap in or along the city's streams and the removal of streamside vegetation.

Technology

something out of a boiler."
Thode says there is a national trend to implement industrial technology rather than industrial arts programs.
Idaho has allotted $50,000 in funding next year for six schools to start similar programs. Any school is eligible for the funding, says Thode.
"Any facility, no matter how bad of shape it's in, can be transformed into a quality lab," he says.

He speaks from experience on that point, as he helped students nine years ago transform the woodshop and a storage area into a modern, workable laboratory environment complete with darkrooms, laser lab, video studio, graphic communications lab, computer/electronics lab, construction lab area and exterior work area and satellite dish housing.
The students did the design and construction work themselves when building the facility. This produced a sense of ownership in the lab since the students were so involved in the project, Thode says.
"They took pride in what they did and took pride in their school," he says.

More than half the money for the conversion came through federal and state grants, but the community has also supported the program, Thode says.
The technology lab represents years of buying, fixing, updating, as well as scrounging to find useful items at affordable prices, Grosvenor says.
The school has received an $11,000 grant from the Idaho State Department of Education in connection with its designation a model site for technology education in the state. The grant will be used to conduct workshops and prepare a technology curriculum guide to aid other school districts in expanding their industrial arts programs into industrial technology programs.

Hart

Judge in 1982, Rupert City Attorney Don Chisholm and 3rd District Magistrate Judge Nathan Ilger of Burley had opposed Bruce in the 1982 May primary.
It was the first time in 20 years an incumbent district judge had faced opposition in an election in the 5th Judicial District.
In a run-off in the fall election, Bruce easily won over Chisholm after a heated campaign filled with charges and countercharges—mostly centered around Bruce's performance as a district judge.
Hart is a "nice person" and he expects a "high quality" campaign compared to the race with Chisholm, Bruce said Wednesday.
The incumbent had served as a magistrate judge in Minidoka County since 1977 before his appointment by Gov. John Evans to the district bench over three other applicants.
Bruce, another University of Idaho Law School graduate, also served three years as a deputy attorney general.
District judges normally are elected in primary elections; no candidate receives a majority of votes there, the two candidates receiving the most votes face each other in a run-off in the November election.

Buhl seeks grant for water lines

By KATHY SUSELSKY
Times-News correspondent
BUHL — Buhl is applying for an Idaho Community Development Block Grant to improve its city water system.
The program, funded by the federal government and administered by the state, offers grants up to $300,000 for community improvements.
Jim Liechliter of JUB Engineers, consultants to the city of Buhl, has recommended four projects to the City Council to upgrade the current water system.
The cost of the projects total $299,500 and include a new well to improve water service south of Burley Avenue, a new chlorinator for an existing well, replacement of old water pipes and the addition of fire booster pumps to provide adequate water pressure during a fire.
Council members say there is some potential for problems in the case of a particularly dry summer combined with heavy usage by such companies as Green Giant that could be solved with a new well.
However, Buhl may not have a large enough population to qualify under the grant program's guidelines for a new fifth well.
The council discussed its priorities for water system improvements at a public hearing last week. Members decided that the replacement of older deteriorating water lines was the town's most pressing need. Second in importance is a fire booster station and chlorinator, they said.
The new well will be the last priority on the application.
Application for the grant requires a statement of the city's available matching funds. The city offered to provide the labor for the projects to meet these requirements.
Applications for the grants are due April 1, and announcement of grant awards is expected on June 12.

towards lower-cost, community-oriented programs, however, a course it began taking in the last two years, he says.
What it will do, however, is below his personal ambitions, says Markle.
"It's not a time for a lot of philanthropy," Markle says.

The center's activities will be fewer but better, Markle says.
It will continue with its Northern Rockies Folk Festival held each summer in Hailey, the film festival it started this summer, various performing arts programs and there are plans to revive popular programs held in the past.
As for his replacement, Markle says the center's board of directors will wait until the end of the summer before deciding whether to hire a new director or break down the create an endowment to stabilize the center's financial situation.
Markle, who was director of the New England Foundation for the coming to Sun Valley, says he and his wife are considering academic positions at three universities, one each in the Northwest, the Intermountain region and the Northeast.

District sees policy clause go unrenewed

Dietrich — The Dietrich School District has joined the ranks of public entities with insurance troubles, even though the district has never had a claim against it, said Superintendent Wayne Perron at a recent school board meeting.
Perron said he has received notification of non-renewal of the district's liability umbrella clause, effective April 11. The district's insurance carrier, Interstate Fire and Casualty of Minneapolis, Minn., will continue to offer other coverage to the Dietrich School District, but will no longer offer umbrella clauses, Perron said.
"This really surprised me," Perron said. "We've never had a claim."
The district's agent, Lloyd Hamilton Insurance, will be instructed to find another umbrella liability policy, if one is available from another source, Perron said.
A proposed statewide insurance plan may provide the solution to the current difficulties school districts are encountering in obtaining adequate coverage, he said, and suggested that legislators be contacted and urged to set up the statewide plan.

Markle, who was director of the New England Foundation for the coming to Sun Valley, says he and his wife are considering academic positions at three universities, one each in the Northwest, the Intermountain region and the Northeast.

Finding the right prosthesis is matter of black and white

DEAR ABBY: Here's a question I hope you have the answer to. I am a black female who had a mastectomy in 1981. I came through it and made a good recovery.

I'm just getting to the point of thinking of myself as the same woman I was before I lost one breast, then every morning I have to put on this pink or rose-colored prosthesis made for whites, and I don't feel right. It looks very different, and I can't get used to it.

Abby, do you know of any company that makes prostheses for blacks? I haven't been able to find one in this area.

TWO-TONE, NORTH CAROLINA
DEAR TWO-TONE: No. But after this hits print, I'll bet I will. Readers?

DEAR ABBY: Will you please say a few words to the public on behalf of the shopkeepers whose customers arrive five minutes before closing time to do their shopping?

Most businesses have their hours clearly posted and rely on the good sense of the customers to be out of the store by closing time. However, there are always those who feel that if they are inside the door one minute before closing time, they are welcome to stay as long as they please.

This can be very difficult for the employees who have put their full shift in already. Transportation and appointments can be missed and baby sitters made angry when we are kept late.

Abigail VanBuren
Dear Abby

Once in a while I'm not minded, but I am writing after a 9 1/2 hour day on my feet, no coffee breaks, and an hour late out of the door. And this is the second time this week.

So, Abby, please be a dear and speak for those of us who can't very well speak for ourselves without offending our customers.

SPEAKING FOR MANY
DEAR SPEAKING: Consider me your spokesperson. I'm sure most customers who arrive late and shop leisurely are not deliberately thoughtless. Let's hope this makes the lateness more aware of the inconvenience they may cause.

(P.S. I am addressing only customers who can't decide whether to buy one or two-and-a-half yards of ribbon. I have heard of jewelers who cheerfully stay open as long as it takes to close an important sale. And for a Texas oil tycoon, they might even have dinner sent in!)

DEAR ABBY: I have a simple question that has turned into quite a big issue in my family. Your answer will help my family along with other families who have the same problem.

What is wrong with a girl making a telephone call to a boy? I am a 16-year-old girl and my friends include boys as well as girls. If I want to call up a girlfriend to make plans, it's fine with my parents. But they frown on my calling a boy. They say, "Maybe we're old-fashioned, but we don't think it's proper for a girl to call a boy. Besides, what will his parents think of you?"

What do you say?
— TO CALL OR NOT TO CALL
DEAR TO CALL: Much depends on the purpose of your call. To talk? Why not, but don't call a boy who never calls you to talk. To "make plans?" Plans for what? A special occasion? Fine. But don't call a boy repeatedly to "make plans" unless he also calls you to make plans.

Your parents are probably afraid that you will come over as a pushy girl who aggressively pursues boys, which is what a boy's parents will think of you if you overdo it. So don't.

DEAR ABBY: I've been reading you for years in the Leesburg (Va.) Commercial, so I know you are a great believer in donating organs. I recently saw a sign while driving on a Florida highway, and thought of you. It read: RECYCLE YOURSELF. BE AN ORGAN DONOR!

(Problems? Write to Abby. For a personal, unpublished reply, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Abby, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038. All correspondence is confidential.)

Ma Tre Val Camp Fire plans annual spring candy sale

TWIN FALLS — All areas of the Ma Tre Val Camp Fire Council will be involved in the annual spring candy sale the first two weeks of April. The candy sale is the main support for the council, according to Chris Pruett, of Buhl, a leader and board member. Boxes sell for 32 cents and the youthful salespeople earn 25 cents from each sale.

"Sales present a special kind of learning experience for youth members," she says. "They learn to plan for their club's financial needs, set goals for their sale, handle money, talk with the public, keep records, participate in a service activity for their own organization and work together."

The spring candy sale helps youth camps and credits for the summer camp programs or credits may be earned for club membership in the fall if the youth does not attend camp.

For more information call Pruett at 543-8447 or the Camp Fire office in Twin Falls at 733-6214.

Why give the feds an interest-free loan?

In January, 1985, an acquaintance of mine bought a house on which she has been paying mortgage interest and real estate taxes for more than a year.

In the past few weeks, she has been preparing to file her 1985 tax return and to her delight and astonishment, she realizes that she is due for a whopping refund.

Her employer had withheld far too much from each of her paychecks because she had neglected to instruct him to take into account her hefty deductions.

If, to your great satisfaction, you too expect a refund from the IRS one of these weeks (and these are THE tax weeks of the year), take time to review how much you have had withheld from your pay. You're just getting back your own money. You're getting back a loan you have voluntarily given to Uncle Sam interest-free.

"Most people who get refunds simply have too much withheld," says Howard Rabinowitz, a tax partner at Arthur Young in New York. "But just as you would avoid putting money in a bank that pays you no interest, so you should avoid having too much withheld from your paycheck."

The extent of this commonplace error is astonishing. In 1985, 72.3

million taxpayers got refunds averaging $853 on their 1984 returns. As of a few weeks ago, more than 4 million taxpayers had filed for average refunds of $676 on their 1985 tax returns.

Without much effort, you can eliminate the year-long wait that my acquaintance, along with so many others, endures. You can use your own money for better purposes, I would think.

To correct overwithholding, simply ask your employer for a new W-4 Form. You filled out one of these when you started your present job. The form, entitled "Employee's Withholding Allowance Certificate," has a worksheet that helps you figure out how many allowances you can claim. The amount withheld from your pay is based on the number of allowances you take—each allowance means less withheld for tax.

For instance, you take one allowance for each exemption you claim on your tax return, starting with yourself.

But you may be entitled to additional allowances if you itemize deductions, contribute to an IRA or Keogh Plan, have tax credits, or use income averaging.

If you itemize deductions, chances are you will be able to take additional allowances. In calculating your extra withholding allowances, you estimate those deductions (such as mortgage interest, real estate taxes, medical expenses), contributions to your IRA and Keogh, certain moving expenses, alimony payments, unreimbursed business expenses, and the deduction for married couples when both work, the like.

Claim additional allowances for tax credits, such as those for child or dependent care, earned income credit, and excess Social Security withholding.

Basically, claiming extra allowances tells your employers that you have deductions, credits or losses that they don't know about, and that they shouldn't withhold as much for tax.

By reading this, you may already suspect that you can claim more allowances than you do now.

But note: If you claim 15 or more allowances, your employer has to send a copy of the W-4 Form to the IRS. The service in turn may ask you to substantiate your claim by completing a longer form. Another warning: If your withheld income taxes plus your estimated tax payments are substantially less than your actual tax, you may be subject to a penalty for underpayment of estimated tax.

"Sometimes people don't claim all the allowances they can," says Steven Woolf, a tax manager in the Washington, D.C., office of Laventhol & Horwath.

"Claim all the allowances you're entitled to," is Woolf's advice. "If they're legitimate, there's no reason not to."

Review your W-4 Form even if you don't itemize deductions any time your circumstances change: if you get married, have a baby, otherwise gain a new dependent, buy a house, suffer a financial loss.

"Look at any situation where there might be changes in itemized deductions," Woolf suggests, "or changes in the credits you claim."

Do this now, before your interest-free loan gets much larger. You may wind up with some welcome extra money to invest, save or spend today—not a year from now.

Idaho Power's asset acquisition bid in jeopardy

BOISE (AP) — Idaho Power Co.'s plan to acquire the eastern Oregon assets of CP National Corp. may be jeopardized by a dispute between the San Francisco-based energy company and the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers.

On Thursday, a federal judge in Portland ordered CP National to delay the sale of its eastern Oregon electrical system to Idaho Power until the Boise-based utility agreed to assume the terms of a labor contract.

The ruling was in response to a request by the electrical workers' union, which alleges that CP National failed to observe the terms of its collective-bargaining agreement when it agreed to sell its eastern Oregon system to Idaho Power.

The union asked the court to uphold a federal arbitrator's decision in January that CP National is obligated to avoid any sale that would alter its obligation under the labor agreement.

At issue is whether the union can retain some of the jobs of its 70 workers in eastern Oregon if Idaho Power buys the property. About 45 percent of the workers at CP National are under union contracts.

The union wants to keep those jobs, but Idaho Power plans to use many of its own employees after the sale is made final.

"Our intention from the beginning was to use some of our own surplus employees to fill some of those positions," Idaho Power spokesman Larry Taylor said. "We said we would place some of their employees, but not all."

Wayne Anderson, Idaho Power's vice president for human resources, said Idaho Power feels obligated to its own employees. "We feel it is only fair to take care of our own employees first," he said.

William Miller, who represents the union, Local 125 of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, could not be reached for comment.

However, Ellen Stein, CP National's vice president of corporate affairs, said CP National is attempting to amend the judge's order to make it effective only through March 31, when the labor contract expires, and to proceed with the sale.

Meanwhile, CP National is negotiating with the union for a new contract, she said.

Idaho Power agreed to buy the eastern Oregon electrical system of CP National for $65 million in September.

Mountain Bell's repair service has gotten better.

Our telephone repair service is an important aspect of our ongoing commitment to customer satisfaction. And that's why we're pleased to announce an improvement in that service.

From now on, we'll visit your location at no cost to you, even if we find that the problem is not related to Mountain Bell equipment. So you'll no longer have to pay the $27.50 we charged in the past when equipment belonging to other companies was at fault.

Instead, the Idaho Public Utilities Commission has approved a 20¢ per month increase on all residence and single line business customers' basic phone service rates—an increase that will allow us to cover our costs and make all repair calls free of charge.

Of course, it's still important that you try to identify the source of your service problem before calling us. But isn't it nice to know our repair crews are as close as a phone call away 24-hours a day? And, better yet, that there's no extra charge for fixing it, or even coming out to see where the problem lies?

For residence repairs call 1-551-1631 (toll-free), for business repairs call 1-551-1660 (toll-free).

12 teams help CSI usher in rodeo season

Eagles have potential for big year

TWIN FALLS — Based on the showing of last fall, College of Southern Idaho Coach Shawn Davis feels these could potentially be his best men and women rodeo teams ever.

That premise will get its first test Friday and Saturday when the Golden Eagles host their own rodeo at the Expo Center. The rodeo, expected to draw entries from 12 Rocky Mountain sections, will open with a night session at 8 p.m. Friday and run through two more competitions at 2 and 8 p.m. Saturday. About 200 individuals are expected to participate.

In the two rodeos last fall, the women's team had two first place showings and the men were first in one rodeo and runner-up at the second.

Some of CSI's standouts include Joni James, Jerome, who is also the rodeo queen. She was Idaho state high school rodeo queen and the western state junior rodeo barrel-racing champion. She also was an all-regional basketball player and a top track competitor. She decided to forego running for rodeoing this spring.

She is joined on the women's team by Gina Quibley, Buhl; Lori Aslett, Jerome, and Rhonda

Price, Twin Falls, who have all won several events. Bolstering the CSI men's team are Alan Stutzman, Twin Falls, state high school steer wrestling champion and western states junior rodeo all-around cowboy; Hobie Peterson, Filer, a former state high school team roping and steer-wrestling all-around champion; Idaho high school standouts Jim Ruby-Wendell, Destrly Brown and Brian Tubbs, both Gooding, and Gomer Beglan, Twin Falls.

Frank Norcutt, Battle Mountain, Nev., who has won the national high school saddle bronc riding title twice, has joined his brother Wayne at CSI. Wayne was on the CSI 1985 regional championship team and won a go-around at the national intercollegiate finals.

Also returning from last season are Bill Head, Cardston, Can., the runner-up for the 1985 regional bareback and all-around titles and Kindel Mason, Fallon, Nev., who placed third in team roping at nationals.

Trevor Thompson, a national high school bull-riding champion, is also expected to add some points along with Utah State transfer David Shero, Pleasant Grove, Utah.

Sherod views rodeoing as a business

TWIN FALLS — David Sherod, a collegiate wrestling champion from Utah State, came to College of Southern Idaho this year to transfer his athletic skills into rodeo prowess.

The 25-year-old Sherod was on the Utah State wrestling team four years, finishing in the top three in the Pacific Coast Athletic Association each year. Prior to that he was the state high school wrestling champion in Utah in the 134-pound class for two years and was a junior Olympic team in 1978.

He went undefeated on the Olympic tour of Japan and also spent a year coaching high school wrestling in his hometown of Pleasant Grove.

Although he grew up on a ranch and did some rodeoing in his teens, Sherod spared his body from the grueling sport for wrestling, and the college scholarship that went with it.

He turned his interest to rodeoing about three years ago and made the decision to come to CSI last fall.

"CSI has the best team and best coach for rough stock in the country. Shawn Davis (CSI coach) is definitely known to have the best rough stock program there is and that's why I'm here," Sherod said.

Transferring wrestling skills to bareback riding was not all that difficult for him.

"Wrestling teaches you to be aggressive, teaches you balance and being aware of where your body is in relation to your opponent," Sherod said.

The most difficult change was switching that aggression from another man, an equal, to an unequal animal. But, he also sees the development of his upper body strength through wrestling as a real asset.

Conditioning also varies some for rodeo but during the off season Sherod does 600 pushups and 300 situps daily, combined with stretching exercises.

Sherod is also a professional farrier and is captain of this year's CSI rodeo team.

This summer he plans "to go pro" and rodeo fulltime. His future plans include teaching agricultural education at a high school, using the agri-business classes he is taking at CSI this year.

Eagles regain winning touch, sweep pair from Utah Tech

By RON GATES
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — It must have felt good to get back to the home field. It appeared that way on the scoreboard as the College of Southern Idaho ran its season mark to 10-6 with a pair of non-conference wins over Utah Tech.

CSI whitewashed the Wolverines 7-0 in the opener and got its runs two at a time to capture the second game 6-4.

The long ball proved Utah Tech's undoing in the first game. Second baseman Eric Kopp's drew a base on balls with one away in the second inning and Tom Hanger led the next pitch over the leftfield fence at the 375-foot mark — a portent of things to come.

The visitors posed their only serious threat in the fifth as the first two batters singled. But Jason Adkins, a freshman pitcher from Billings, Mont., got himself out of trouble striking out the next three batters. "That was a nice exhibition of power, wasn't it?" said CSI Coach Jim Walker. That power came to the fore in the bottom of that same stanza as the Eagles' offense grounded out to open the frame. Billy Roberts hit a 3-2 pitch that cleared the fence just to the right of Hollinger's target. Shawn Walker singled to right and, one out later, Kevin Loftus followed with another homer to the same area. Utah Tech pitcher Mike Dalley put Greg Adelsbach on with five pitches before a throwing error moved him all the way into third. But he could not have conserved the energy as designated hitter Cory Russell greeted Badger reliever Todd Ellison with the Eagles third round-tripper of the inning and fourth of the contest.

Bobby Edwards relieved in the sixth inning and complemented Adkins' five-hit pitching, allowing only a single and fanning the side in the seventh. In the nightcap CSI picked up a pair of runs in the first inning without the benefit of a hit as the Badger's Shawn Story experienced control problems. Story hit leadoff batter Roberts, then walked Shawn Whalen and both runners moved up on a passed ball. Roberts scored as Story uncorked a wild pitch. Loftus became the second Eagle batter to be hit by a pitch and worked a double steal with Whalen. Utah Tech pushed one run across in the second then knotted the game with an unearned run in the third on CSI's only error of the day. But that little bit of sunshine was short-lived for the Wolverines. In the bottom of the third Doug Moe hit what appeared to be a double play ball with runners on first and second but when the Badger shortstop bobbled it momentarily both runners advanced as only Moe was cut down at first. A hard shot up the middle by Loftus played both as CSI doubled the score 4-2. It was Moe again in the fourth with a bases loaded single with two away that accounted for another two. Whalen capped the Eagle scoring with a homer, driving in Rob Reavy. Aided by a pair of bunt singles, Utah Tech added two of its runs in the final inning but John Braase, who came on in the sixth in relief, got Bill Robertson on a fly to right to end the action.

"I just hope we can start a string of something good," said Walker. "I love the homers but we've lived by them for so many years and, if we don't get them, we lose. We moved Moe back to shortstop and Eric Kopp, who struggled a little on the Arizona trip, played a good second base. Defensively we looked good with only one error in the 14 innings."

Ohio State wins NIT, lets coach go out on win note

NEW YORK (AP) — Guard Dennis Hopson, hitting nine straight, field goals at one stretch, scored 26 points Wednesday night as Ohio State ended Coach Eldon Miller's Buckeye career on a winning note with a 73-63 victory over Wyoming in the championship game of the 49th National Invitation Tournament.

Miller, who was fired Feb. 3 effective at the end of season, coached Ohio State to five consecutive NIT victories. At the same time, he was trying to recruit players by telephone for Northern Iowa, where he will coach next season.

Gary Williams already has been hired to coach at Ohio State.

Hopson, who finished the game with 12 field goals on 17 attempts, and 7-foot forward Brad Sellers, who had 17 points and 12 rebounds, formed an unbeatable 1-2 punch for the Buckeyes, 19-14.

Wyoming, 24-12, with two starters fouling out, had to rely too much on sophomore guard Fennis Dembo, who scored 27 points. Les Bolden was the only other Wyoming player in double figures with 14, while center Eric Leckner fouled out with only six points, 12 under his postseason average.

Hopson had 13 of his 15 first-half points during a 10-minute spate including nine during a 14-4 Ohio State streak that gave the Buckeyes a 29-22 lead with 2:34 left.

Bolden then scored four points to move the Cowboys within three, but Hopson hit two more long jumpers and Curtis Wilson had one as Ohio State built a 35-23 halftime advantage.

Five points by Dembo cut the deficit to 37-33 early in the second half, but the Buckeyes responded with five points of their own for another nine-point lead.

Wyoming got no closer than seven the rest of the way as Hopson hit his first four shots of the half after making his last five of the first half. Ohio State went on to lead by as many as 16 points and, when it was over, Miller's players hoisted him on their shoulders as many in the Madison Square Garden crowd of 11,024 applauded.

Ohio State downed Ohio University, Texas, Brigham Young and Louisiana Tech to reach the final. Wyoming beat Texas A&M, Loyola Marymount, Clemson and Florida.

Senior guard Willie Bland, held without a field goal in Louisiana Tech's semifinal loss, scored 23 points, leading the Bulldogs to a 67-62 victory over Florida and third place.

Bland, 0-for-10 in Louisiana Tech's 13-point loss to Ohio State Monday night, was 8-for-10 for the Bulldogs against Florida.

Louisiana Tech, which finished the season 20-3, held the Galors, 19-15, without a field goal for more than six minutes late in the second half. Florida, with an 11-2 streak, had led 62-44 with 10:59 to go. From 6:41 remaining until there were 16 seconds to go, the Gators didn't hit from the field.

Maurice Jackson, who scored 11 of his 18 points in the second half, rattled the Bulldogs by scoring seven consecutive points. Robert Godbolt gave Tech the lead for good, 61-60, with a 4-04 left with a rebound basket.

Vernon Maxwell led Florida with 18 points, while Chris Capers has 13 for the Gators.

A seasaw first half saw the two teams exchange the lead six times, with seven ties. Godbolt, who scored 12 points, had three baskets during a 10-2 Louisiana Tech streak that opened the largest lead of the half, 24-17, with 7:21 left. Florida came back with a 16-6 run for a 33-30 lead, but Bland scored his last five points of the half to give Tech a 35-33 edge.

CSI hosts track meet Saturday

TWIN FALLS — College of Southern Idaho will hold its track invitational at noon Saturday at Twin Falls' Bruin Stadium.

There won't be a lot of competition in the men's division with only CSI and the Rick's Vikings bringing full teams. However, Idaho State plans to send some individuals.

More individuals are expected in the women's division where Rick's, Treasure Valley and CSI will have full units while Utah State and Idaho State will be sending competitors.

Competition will begin at noon with men and women's events alternating.

CSI will give sophomore ace DeVoe Whaley a relatively mild day, running him in the open 400 and both relays, according to Coach Rick Neill. John Raveling will go in the 1,500 and 5,000 with Omar Jones in both hurdles and relays along with Ben Hicks, sprints and relays. Cliff Hudson will triple jump.

CSI's distant representatives will be Jennifer Whelan in five events and Julie Cupp, will long and triple jump and sprint. Julie Mori will go in the shot put, discus and javelin.

Kimberly graduate Teresa Wright, coming off a lower leg injury, will take her first fling at the 400-meter dash.

Fennis Dembo is halted by Ohio State's Jerry Francis

Artificial flies fine, but try the real thing

The Forest Service trail swing away from the creek and cut uphill through a stand of Douglas firs, joining the water at a higher point on the mountain.

Because of the lay of the land, I knew that the long oxbow of water cut off from the trail would hold some trout habitat that hadn't been disturbed for a year or more.

I eased my pack off my shoulders and rummaged inside for a small piece of fiber glass screening like that sold for screen doors.

I used six thumbtacks I'd carried along to secure the screening to one end of a pair of two-foot sticks I scavenged from a beaver dam and prepared to go nymph fishing.

But unlike most of my fly-fishing friends, I didn't plan to use artificial nymphs — this was a short pause in the hike and I didn't have time to determine which nymph would work best on this strange stream. Nymphs are the larva of aquatic insects and usually constitute about 90 per cent of a trout's diet.

Books have been written about the art of selecting flies to match aquatic insects. But they seldom cover the best method of using nymphs to catch fish.

Generally readers are instructed to capture a live specimen of the critter on which fish are feeding, then to select a fly by comparing it with pre-tied flies from the angler's box or to identify the species and select the proper fly from a chart.

Generally, those methods are too involved for a back packer.

It is amazing how much faster you can catch fish by using the specimen itself for bait. Or better yet, tie two or three nymphs to a very small hook with thread and use a cluster of them for bait.

Generally, very little weight is needed, and you can get by with two-pound test line and a fresh-cut willow for a pole.

I held the screen against the stream's gravel bottom and then disturbed the gravel upstream. In seconds, a selection of the insect larva which live among the stones were trapped against the screen.

I selected one of the larger ones and baited a hook with him, then moved downstream, probing the more promising spots for trout as I went.

After the second cast, I had two nice trout — enough for lunch. I stowed my fishing gear and moved on up the trail.

Bait fishing with live nymphs is a fine art, although it is not generally held in the highest esteem by dry-fly purists.

Although fish will take nearly every nymph offered them, they prefer some over the others.

After a little experience, you'll learn to tell one nymph from another because of such obvious differences as size and color.

Although most species go around naked, the nymphs of one group — the immature caddis fly — build themselves protective armor out of small pebbles and grains of sand. These are relished by trout, who often eat them armor and all.

And as you look at the tiny insects, shrimp and crayfish that inhabit the stream bottom, you might find catching them to be as interesting as catching the trout.

There are really two problems with fishing live nymphs. The first is fastening them to a hook and the second is one of presentation to the fish.

Because nymphs are quite small, they frustrate bait fishermen who try to use them on the same hooks used for worms.

I've found that a single wrap of black thread will often hold the tiniest nymph to a hook securely. You have to be careful to keep from cutting the nymph in half with the thread when you tie him to the hook though.
