President decries 'mad dog'

Leaders discuss opposing far right

Khadafy has declared war, Reagan says

By MICHAEL PUTZEL The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Reagan said Wednesday night that Libyan Leader Muammar Khadafy had declared war on the United States and this country is ready to respond when it has sufficient evidence that Libya is behind terrorist attacks on Americans.

Contra push renewed; budget goes slow — A5

Calling Khadafy "the mad dog of the Middle East," Reagan said his administration is still gathering evidence that might link the Libyan leader to fatal bombings aboard a TWA airliner and in a West Berlin nightclub.

Asked at a nationally broadcast news conference whether the United States is "in a state of war" with Khadafy, Reagan responded: "He declared it. We just haven't recognized the declaration yet."

"We're going to defend ourselves and we are certainly going to take action in the face of specific terrorist threats," Reagan added.

Earlier Wednesday, Reagan told newspaper editors the United States is "not going to just sit there and hold still" as mounting threats against Americans. He said he suspects Khadafy is behind surging terrorism.

Vice President George Bush, talking to sailors aboard the USS Enterprise in the Gulf of Oman, called the Libyan strongman "a mad dog."

On prospects for a summit meeting this year with Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev, the president, at his nationally broadcast news conference, virtually ruled out June as the date. "June is just about out now," he said.

The two leaders had tentatively decided on June at their first summit meeting last November in Geneva. But since then the two sides have had trouble nailing down Gorbachev's visit.

Reagan said July still remained a possibility, but said sometime after the congressional elections in November was more likely. He finally said he would announce the date.

Pentagon actions keep open option of military strike off Mediterranean

By NORMAN BLACK The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The Navy has taken steps to assure that President Reagan can call on a two-carrier battle group if he decides to order a military strike against Libya, including an indefinite extension of the carrier Coral Sea's deployment, the Pentagon said Wednesday.

"The Coral Sea battle group, which was scheduled to end its routine deployment to the Mediterranean shortly, has been extended for an indefinite period to maintain the existing naval presence in the Mediterranean," the Pentagon said in a statement Wednesday night.

The Pentagon refused to elaborate further on the decision, saying only that the Defense Department wanted "to maintain a larger naval presence than would be provided by the (carrier) America battle group alone."

Officials, speaking on condition of anonymity, stressed the Navy had yet to receive any orders to re-form a naval battle group in the central Mediterranean off Libya's coast. But they acknowledged "the latest preparations were the clearest indication yet that plans were being studied for a military strike."

W. Germany expels pair of diplomats

By KENNETH JAUTZ Times-News writer

BONN, West Germany — West Germany ordered two Libyan diplomats out of the country Wednesday and said it has "several indications" that Libya was behind the bombing that wrecked a Berlin discotheque frequented by American soldiers.

Chief government spokesman Friedrichhelm Ost added, however, that the expulsions were not "directly connected" with the bomb attack early Saturday on the La Belle nightclub that killed two people and wounded 230. One of the dead and 63 of the wounded were Americans.

The United States has been pressuring European allies to take action against Libya, including expulsions of Libyan diplomats and economic sanctions against the North African country.

A Foreign Ministry spokesman said outside pressure was not involved in the expulsions. "We do not take such decisions to do anyone a favor," he said.

In Washington, the State Department said kicking the two diplomats out was "an important initial step."

Ost told a news conference the two diplomats had been under observation for some time "for various activities not in accordance with the norms of diplomatic behavior." He would not elaborate on his comments and refused to say whether the Libyans would have been ordered out if the bombing had not occurred.

Ost quoted Chancellor Helmut Kohl as saying, "We will not tolerate activities that endanger American citizens on German soil."

The government spokesman said there were "indications but no concrete proof" that the Libyan Embassy in East Berlin, capital of communist East Germany, was behind the bomb attack. "Those indications come from a variety of sources, including both American and German security sources," he said.

On Tuesday, a West Berlin Interior Ministry official confirmed a newspaper report that Elamin Abdullah Blamin, a Soviet-born diplomat in the East Berlin embassy, was suspected of directing the attack.

TWIN FALLS — In the smoke-filled room tradition, about 40 Twin Falls business and community leaders gathered in the basement of the KMYT-TV building Wednesday night to discuss opposing—and recruiting candidates to run against conservative incumbent Republicans.

Straw poll taken — B1

Chaired by KLIX radio talkshow host L. James Koutnik and Aurora Capital Corp. President Marc Peperzak, the meeting was attended by some of Twin Falls' most prominent business, political, and education leaders, as well as two local media heads.

The meeting was closed after Greater Twin Falls Area Chamber of Commerce Executive Vice President Mike Dolton asked Koutnik and Peperzak if people had been invited to the meeting with the understanding that they would be "quoted or mentioned" by the media.

With some of the people at the meeting abstaining, the meeting was closed by about a 10-3 vote.

Twin Falls Republican Party Chairman Mark Stubbs was there, as were state senators Laird Noh, R-Kimberly, and Darrel McRobert, R-Twin Falls; Rep. Doug Jones, R-Filer; and County Commissioner Judy Felton. Twin Falls Mayor Doug Volmer also attended.

Business leaders included Twin Falls Bank and Trust Co. President Curtis T. Eaton, Magic Valley Regional Medical Center Administrator John Bingham and hospital attorney Robert Taylor, clothing store owner and ex-mayor Emery Petersen, and noted water attorney John Rosholt.

Times-News Managing Editor Stephen Hartgen and KMYT General Manager Lee Wagner were at the meeting. Koutnik said Hartgen was at the meeting as a citizen and a "sound-minded individual" and not as a media representative. Hartgen was one of the three who voted against closing the meeting.

Hartgen said, following the meeting. See MEETING on Page A2.

Backers of McClure gun bill win pair of crucial test votes

By LARRY MARGASAK The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Proponents of a bill backed by the National Rifle Association won two crucial test votes in the House on Wednesday when they crushed moves by gun control advocates to maintain federal controls on handguns.

The victories suggested the NRA has the votes it needs to win passage of a bill to ease many restrictions of the 1968 Gun Control Act, passed after the assassinations of Martin Luther King Jr. and Robert F. Kennedy.

After the two votes, the House adjourned until Friday morning, when debate will resume on two competing firearms bills.

The gun lobby's measure is sponsored by Rep. Harold L. Volkmer, D-Mo. It was sponsored in the Senate by Sen. Jim McClure, R-Idaho. A measure backed by police and handgun control organizations was offered by Rep. William J. Hughes, D-N.J.

Hughes created the test votes when he tried to saddle the gun lobby's bill with key provisions of his own legislation — including maintaining the current law's ban on interstate handgun sales and maintaining state and local controls over transportation of handguns across state lines.

RICHARD STALLINGS Backs gun-lobby position

Hughes lost his first major test, 248-176, on an amendment package that included the interstate sales ban and the interstate transportation provision. He then tried the transportation language in a separate amendment that lost 242-177. The Volkmer bill would allow both interstate transportation of handguns and interstate sales. Idaho Congressman Richard Stallings, D-2nd District, and Larry Craig, R-1st District, both sided with the gun lobby, voting against the amendments.

Hughes had argued that his amendment would "remove the label of cop-killer legislation" from the NRA's bill.

"The issue boils down to whom we're going to support: the police or the NRA and their self-serving interest," Hughes said.

Rep. John D. Dingell, D-Mich., a member of the NRA national board, said the Volkmer bill "does not make it easier for criminals to get guns" but protects "law-abiding" citizens from burdensome regulations.

Rep. William M. Hendon, R-N.C., asked the House to uphold the Volkmer bill "for the good boys in rural America who deserve reform of the Gun Control Act of 1968."

Rep. James A. Traficant Jr., D-Ohio, a former sheriff, said the Hughes language would "give a psychological edge back to our police officers."

The Hughes amendment would have ended the current ban on interstate purchases for rifles and shotguns and guaranteed the right of transportation for those guns across state lines. But this wasn't a slim chance, gravely and aerodynamic forces from the first cabin tumble would have killed them, the source said.

Expert reports Challenger cabin shattered only after hitting water

By HOWARD BENEDICT The Associated Press

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. — Challenger's crew cabin structurally survived the violent breakup of the space shuttle and a nine-mile plunge from the sky and then shattered when it hit the surface of the Atlantic Ocean, a federal safety expert reported Wednesday.

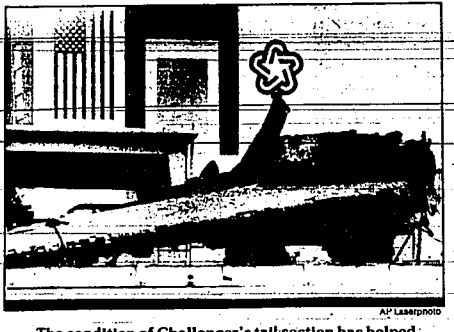

Experts believe the seven astronauts died almost instantly after the shuttle began falling apart, but it is possible they lived a second or two, long enough to be aware that something was very wrong.

A source close to the investigation of the Jan. 28 accident reported the crew undoubtedly died when the orbiter was subjected to very high gravity forces when the vehicle experienced what is known as "out-of-plane acceleration" as the vehicle was tearing apart.

The source, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said the orbiter was jerked violently to one side, apparently by a booster rocket that had partially broken loose and crashed into the external tank, freeing its liquid propellants to form a raging fireball.

It was not known at just what point this acceleration occurred, and raises a question whether the astronauts briefly remained alive.

Even if some of the crew members had survived this violent maneuver, a slim chance, gravely and aerodynamic forces from the first cabin tumble would have killed them, the source said.

The condition of Challenger's tail section has helped lead experts to believe the entire orbiter didn't explode side broke cleanly away from the rest of the shuttle and when it "struck the water, it had some mass inside; that mass was the crew module," said Terry Armentrout, director of the National Transportation Safety Board's bureau of accident investigation.

Armentrout said aerodynamic forces rather than an explosion caused most of the initial breakup of Challenger and that the 140-to-180-mph impact with the water did the rest of the damage.

In fact, he said, there was no large explosion as everyone at first believed. He said it was more of a fireball and that the cloud of smoke and flame resulted from the flames that flashed when liquid oxygen and liquid hydrogen propellant mixed after the huge external fuel tank ruptured.

"There was evidence of explosion visually, but the explosion of the entire shuttle is not something we're seeing," he said. "The external tank did not explode. With all its potential, it would have been a much greater fireball."

Finally! 'Lost' measure is found, finishing legislative work

BOISE (AP) — After a false start, the record-setting work of the 1988 Idaho Legislature is complete — finally. The 1988 session printed more legislation than any other, 2,276 proposed bills, amendments and engrossed bills. It didn't reach agreement on half of the 603 bills printed. Only 320 of them found their way to the governor's office for the consideration of Gov. John Evans. And the last measure didn't become law until Wednesday morning. The Legislature adjourned on Friday, March 28. It worked on a mountain of legislation the final week. One bill got "lost" in the piles of paperwork, and wasn't discovered until this week. It was rushed to Twin Falls by bus, for the signature of House Speaker Tom Summers, and also was signed by Senate President Pro Tem James Risch. Senate Bill 1355, the "lost" legislation, is an eight-page measure setting up new procedures for the recall of school board members, starting July 1. It clarifies that school board members can be recalled, but sets up a lengthy process for it. Among other things, it requires recall sponsors to prepare a synopsis of the basis for the recall, and then allows a magistrate to determine the sufficiency of the charges. During legislative debate on the measure, opponents argued that provision in essence gave a magistrate the right to decide recall efforts. If a magistrate approved the substance of the recall petition, that would indicate the allegations were true, opponents argued.

Sponsors argued it's hard to get citizens to serve on school boards, and they need more protection against recall than other public officials. The legislation requires sponsors of recall efforts to gather petitions with signatures equal to at least 20 percent of the vote which elected the board member in the last election. Evans signed it into law Wednesday at 10:10 a.m., the last act of the Legislature to be decided. There was a lot to decide. Since record-keeping started in 1973, no legislative session generated more paperwork. The 2,276 pieces of legislation, changes and amendments was the most ever, topping the 2,068 pieces of legislation generated in 1981. In contrast, the 1973 session produced almost 1,000 less pieces of legislation. The final report — also shows the Legislature's winding-out process — Of the 1,271 proposed bills, only 693 finally won introduction. Less than half that number, 320, won their way through both House and Senate, or about one-fourth of the original proposals. The 1976 session saw the introduction of the most bills, 740, but the 1980 session passed the most, 410.

State Democratic leader's letter attempts to link Symms, Khadafy

POCATELLO (AP) — Idaho Democratic Party Chairman Mel Morgan has mailed a fund-raising letter to Jewish interests on behalf of Gov. John Evans, attempting to link Sen. Steve Symms and "Libyan leader Moammar Khadafy." An Evans campaign staffer confirmed Wednesday that Morgan authored a fund-raising letter saying Symms was "very anti-Israel" in his voting record and "has consistently voted against U.S. economic aid to Israel." Evans, a Democrat, is challenging Symms for his U.S. Senate seat. The letter says Symms also has supported the U.S. sale of arms to Israel's "Arab enemies," and that Evans "has tried to persuade Symms to stop his flirtation with Khadafy." Morgan was in Washington, D.C., on Wednesday and unavailable for comment on the letter. Evans spokesman Jean McNeil said the governor's campaign paid for the letter, although he was not sure Evans saw the final draft. "The governor was certainly aware of it," Ms. McNeil said. "Mel wanted to send out a fund-raising letter, and he (Evans) thought it was a good idea."

Butler said the letter was obviously meant for out-of-state consumption, "because the voters of Idaho would recall at such a fund-raising effort." Morgan's letter also reportedly contained a photograph of Symms and Khadafy taken during Symms' 1977 trade visit to Libya. Then a member of the House of Representatives, Symms was accompanied by members of the Idaho Legislature and University of Idaho faculty members who were trying to arrange sales of Idaho wheat to Libya. Butler said Symms has "never been a friend of Khadafy's, nor has he been sympathetic to Khadafy's propaganda or philosophy." In fact, Symms recently traveled to Israel, despite State Department warnings, saying he refused to allow Khadafy to be his travel agent. "He (Symms) never had anything but antipathy toward Khadafy," Butler said. "Any attempt to portray him as Khadafy's favorite senator goes beyond ridiculous. But that apparently plays well in the Eastern, liberal Jewish community."

But Ms. McNeil said the point of the letter was not that Symms currently supports Khadafy, but that the Republican "made a major mistake in judgment in going to Libya, and that Evans advised him not to go." At the time of Symms' visit, Khadafy already had been linked to terrorist activity for years, she said. "Some people have tried to compare this to the Stallings-Jane Fonda letter," Ms. McNeil said, referring to an attempt by state Rep. J.F. "Chad" Chadband, a Republican congressional candidate, to politicalize link Rep. Richard Stallings, D-Idaho, with the actress through a cropped photograph of the two. "But the comparison simply isn't there," she said. "The record with Symms' connections to Khadafy is right there. Symms has never denied it." Morgan's letter is the second attempt to link Symms and Khadafy. Last summer, Bethine Church, widow of former Idaho Sen. Frank Church, wrote a similar fund-raising letter, calling Symms "Khadafy's favorite senator." During his recent trip to Jerusalem, Symms admitted his travels to Libya probably have cost him politically. "I've suffered for it ever since," he said.

LaRouche organizer sees followers filing

Brackett says he's not one of them

The Associated Press and The Times-News

BOISE — An organizer for political leader Lyndon LaRouche says the group hopes to field seven or eight candidates in Idaho by the April 18 filing deadline for the May 27 primary election. But although LaRouche organizer Bill Jennings, Seattle, complained of a news blackout on LaRouche's activities, he refused to identify the potential Idaho candidates. Jennings said Wednesday some of them aren't ready yet to commit to the race. State Rep. Roy Brackett, R-Twin Falls, who attended a LaRouche-sponsored seminar in Rome last year, said he was not running as a LaRouche candidate, and he had no idea who was. "I don't keep up with them," Brackett said on Wednesday. "I have not heard of anyone who is going to run." Jennings said LaRouche's National Democrat Policy Committee wants a parity price on oil, and supports nationwide economic development in the Middle East. He acknowledged a parity price on oil in essence would mean Idaho motorists would pay more for gasoline and oil products to help stave off a pending financial crisis in oil-producing states such as Texas and California. But unless oil prices are propped up, he said, domestic producers will go out of business. That could lead to a nationwide banking collapse, he said. Jennings said the LaRouche organization plans to be "quite active" in Idaho politics and said the party had several hundred supporters in the state. LaRouche won a spot on the Idaho primary election ballot in 1984 after a court battle.

Motorcyclist killed

PONDERAY (AP) — A 62-year-old Hope man apparently died instantly Tuesday when the motorcycle he was riding collided with a car, Idaho State Police reported. Russell C. Stokes was thrown from the cycle and sustained head injuries, according to investigators.

Airman found slain on mountain highway

CASCADE (AP) — Two men are being sought for questioning in the death of an airman who was found fatally shot in a stolen car on Idaho Highway 55. Investigators found the body of Mark Eugene Patterson, 20, in a car on Idaho Highway 55 early Tuesday, in Valley County Sheriff M. Blair Shepherd said. The car had been reported stolen in Spokane, Wash., and Patterson's own small pickup truck was not in the area, Shepherd said. There have been no reported sightings of the pickup truck, he said. Investigators believe Patterson, who was stationed at Mountain Home Air Force Base, stopped to give aid at what he thought was an accident 13 miles south of Cascade before he was shot, said Shepherd. Sought for questioning are brothers Edward Nell and Donald Gene Smith, 28, Shepherd said. No formal charges have been filed, he said.

Reagan renews call for Contra aid plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, pressing anew for his $100 million aid plan for Nicaraguan rebels, said Wednesday night that the Soviet Union and Nicaragua's leftist Sandinista rulers must be stopped from making "Central America a communist enclave."

In a nationally televised news conference, Reagan urged the Democratic-controlled House next week to reconsider its earlier rejection of the aid package to show the Sandinistas that they cannot "crush their opponents" and must accept negotiations with the U.S.-backed Contra rebels.

"The Soviet Union, (Cuba's) Fidel Castro and the Sandinistas are determined to make Central America a communist enclave," Reagan said in a prepared opening statement. "We must not allow that to happen."

Earlier, addressing the American Society of Newspaper Editors, Reagan said he hopes that the Sandinista refusal to sign a peace agreement Monday will demonstrate to other Latin American nations the need to aid the rebels so that pressure can be created.

Describing the Sandinista government as "a totalitarian, communist state," Reagan said, "When have we ever seen a communist government that has achieved that totalitarian statehood voluntarily and without some pressure or force give up their power."

The Democratic-controlled House is scheduled next week to reconsider Reagan's request to send $100 million to Contra rebels resisting the Sandinista government. The House defeated the package last month, but it narrowly cleared the Republican-dominated Senate on March 27.

House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., D-Mass., said Wednesday that, after talks with Latin American leaders he is convinced there is "absolutely no support" in the region for Reagan's Contra aid plan.

O'Neill declined to predict the outcome when the House votes on the issue for a second time next Tuesday.

LaRouche snipes at Regan

WASHINGTON (AP) — Political extremist Lyndon LaRouche extended his conspiratorial view of the world right up to the White House on Wednesday and declared that Donald Regan, President Reagan's chief of staff, has been involved in drug money "laundering."

In his first news conference since his party's primary election victories last month in Illinois, LaRouche claimed, among many other things, that the Soviet government and international drug dealers have targeted him for assassination.

He said the only way to stop drug dealing is to stop financial institutions that engaged in "laundering" illicit money and "you have to jail the bankers who do that — like Donald Regan, presently chief of staff at the White House — put them in jail where they belong."

He said the charges are absolutely groundless and as outrageous as the source they come from.

Adlai E. Stevenson, winner of the Illinois Democratic Party's nomination has refused to run on the same ticket with LaRouche supporters Mark Ferrillo and James Hart, who unexpectedly won the Democratic nominations for lieutenant-governor and secretary of state, respectively.

LYNDON LaROUCHE Wants Regan put in jail

LaRouche said descriptions of him as a neo-fascist and anti-Semitic "originate with the drug-lobby or the Soviet operation — which is sometimes the same thing."

He also accused some reporters of being in league with the same conspirators and orchestrating a smear campaign against him.

When one journalist tried to get LaRouche to respond to allegations made in a televised report, LaRouche dismissed the question and snapped, "How can I talk to a drug pusher like you?"

During the meeting with reporters, LaRouche repeatedly contended that the Soviet government, the British government, drug dealers, members of the international financial community and American political officials are involved in conspiracies to destroy the Western world.

Reagan asks to move Palau to autonomy

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan asked Congress Wednesday to approve self-government for Palau, another step in a 16-year process leading toward termination of U.S. trusteeship over the Trust Territory of the Pacific Islands.

Reagan submitted proposed legislation to the lawmakers and said its approval "will complete the enterprise of self-government we began with the peoples of the Trust Territory many years ago."

"It is the final step preceding full termination of the trusteeship agreement," he said.

The trust territory is administered under an agreement the United States made in 1947 with the United Nations Security Council.

Reagan signed legislation in January granting self-government to two other jurisdictions of the territory, the Marshall Islands and the Federated States of Micronesia.

Flustered Budget Committee chief asks where 1987 spending plan is WASHINGTON (AP) — With action on a fiscal 1987 spending plan at a standstill, the Republican chairman of the Senate Budget Committee on Tuesday bluntly asked his colleagues and President Reagan, "where's the budget?" they promised the nation when a new balanced budget law was enacted last year.

"Isn't it amazing, that was just a short, few months ago," Sen. Pete V. Domenici, R-N.M., said in a speech on the Senate floor.

Earlier in the day, Domenici delivered the same message to the president during a White House meeting of GOP congressional leaders.

His remarks were an indication of the growing frustration over the inability of the Senate to get to work on a budget outline for the fiscal year beginning Oct. 1. Congress is trying to find a plan that will meet a required deficit target of $144 billion.

Congressional leaders have given up on meeting a self-imposed April 15 deadline for having a budget in place.

At a nationally broadcast news conference on Wednesday night, Reagan chided Congress for its lack of progress on the budget.

He said millions of Americans will meet the April 15 tax deadline, adding, "But will Congress meet its deadline for the budget resolution?"

The president and his top aides so far have shunned a budget compromise with Congress, Senate Republicans are split on a bipartisan package — drafted by the Senate Budget Committee and Democrats in the House and Senate are, for the most part, waiting to see what the Republicans do.

Meanwhile, Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan., is delaying budget action by the full Senate until there is a consensus on what to do about the Senate committee's package, which was agreed to on March 13.

After the White House meeting, Dole said the president continued to defend his policies and reject suggestions that there should be negotiations. Dole summed up his dilemma saying, "I've got half the Republicans for it (the committee plan), half against it and the White House undecided."

Casey wants leaks criticized

WASHINGTON (AP) — CIA Director William J. Casey appealed to editors Wednesday to be as critical of information leaks as they are of cover-ups...

Casey and Howard Simons, now curator of the Neman Foundation for Journalists at Harvard University, appeared together at the annual meeting of the American Society of Newspaper Editors.

While Casey defended the government's right to protect its secrets, Simons argued the media's case for arresting them out.

Touted benefits may run out

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Army and Navy are running recruitment advertisements touting special college-tuition benefits that are tied to a veterans' assistance law that President Reagan is trying to scuttle.

The law, known as the GI Bill, was approved by Congress in 1944. As a further inducement to attract recruits, both the Army and Navy have added extra benefits to the basic program that can boost to $17,000 the total available to soldiers and sailors for college after a two-year enlistment.

The Office of Management and Budget notified Congress earlier this year, however, that it intends to propose a reduction in the New GI Bill's benefits, effective Oct. 1. If Congress approves such a change, it could force the services to modify their own programs and would, in any event, reduce the total package of tuition funds available.

FBI fingers mass murderers

WASHINGTON (AP) — The FBI has put the finger on eight suspected mass murderers in a new computerized program aimed at combating the growing threat from a new breed of criminal who simply "kill because he is obsessed with killing."

FBI officials said their National Center for the Analysis of Violent Crime at Quantico, Va., started collecting data last June from "detailed, nationwide reports of unsolved "random and senseless" homicides that had no apparent motive.

Winds force 2nd delay of Nevada nuclear test

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — An underground nuclear weapons test was postponed for a second day Wednesday because of wind conditions at the remote Nevada Test Site, sources said.

Weather problems delayed the test, originally scheduled for Tuesday, throughout the day Wednesday.

More than 200 anti-nuclear protesters turned out for a second day at the gates of the sprawling test site in the desert about 65 miles northwest of Las Vegas to vent their feelings about the test and urge the United States join the Soviet Union in a test ban.

Half of the demonstrators were from the Great Peace March, whose members crossed into Nevada Tuesday after being stalled in the California desert for nearly a month.

Two demonstrators were arrested at the site Wednesday, bringing to 96 the number arrested since protests of the test began over the weekend. Department of Energy officials in Las Vegas said the protesters could not reach sensitive areas on the test site or planned to place members on the site in a continuing effort to halt the test.

Spread of AIDS detailed

BOSTON (AP) — The case of a bisexual man who gave AIDS to his wife, who in turn infected a next-door neighbor, provides additional evidence that the virus can be spread from women to men through traditional sexual intercourse, a new report concludes.

AIDS is largely a disease of homosexual men and needle drug abusers, and some authorities question how readily — or even whether — the disease is transmitted sexually from women to men.

In this case, doctors believe a man almost certainly got AIDS through frequent vaginal intercourse with an infected woman.

"We know exactly what they did, and this was the consequence," said Dr. Leonard H. Calabrese of the Cleveland Clinic Foundation. "We have reason to believe that other people who have similar contact should consider themselves at high risk."

A report by Calabrese and Dr. R. V. Gopalakrishna of Cleveland's Fairview General Hospital was published as a letter in Thursday's New England Journal of Medicine.

Acquired immune deficiency syndrome is caused by a virus known as HTLV-III or LAV. Other researchers reported recently that the virus can be present in female genital secretions.

In their report, the doctors wrote that the case "appears to represent a well-documented example of sexual transmission of HTLV-III from a man to a woman to a man through frequent but traditional sexual practices. We believe the risk of such transmission is real and that sexually active heterosexual men and women should be aware of these data."

Nearly 14,000 AIDS cases have been reported so far to the Centers for Disease Control, and 60 percent are men who apparently got the disease through sex with women. An additional 211 victims are women who contracted the disease sexually from men.

Voyager's route may be changed

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Rocks orbiting Neptune could smash and destroy Voyager 2 as it approaches the planet in 1989, but NASA said Wednesday it will change Voyager's route if necessary to prevent such collisions.

Scientists are reluctant to alter the scheduled trajectory because it would allow Voyager's cameras to take the best closeup pictures of Neptune and its moon Triton, said Ellis Miner, deputy Voyager project scientist at the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's Jet Propulsion Laboratory.

The spacecraft's route will be altered only if necessary to prevent the probe from colliding with boulders, pebbles or dust in what appear to be three Neptune-orbiting "arcs," Miner said.

The arcs are partial rings unlike the complete rings encircling Jupiter, Saturn and Uranus.

Factory blamed for fatal blast

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — An illegal explosives factory was the principal cause of the explosion and fire that demolished a block-square industrial complex and killed up to nine people, authorities said Wednesday.

Arrest warrants are being sought for three or more people in the operation, said fire Chief Emmet Condon.

The federal warrants sought were for conspiracy, and additional warrants could be issued for the manufacture of explosives and possibly murder in the Friday blast at the 10-million-sq-ft View Industrial Park, he said.

Its owner "had no idea this was an illegal operation and had been told it was a storage company," Condon said.

"It's a clandestine operation," he said, adding that fire inspectors had gone through the two-story building containing 126 shops during the past year.

"We have yet to determine the cause of ignition," he said, "but the heavy damage was due to the explosives operation. It found high-explosive black powder and a 'charging table' used for assembling explosives, he said.

U.S. Attorney Joseph Russonello said he met with agents of the federal Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms on Tuesday to discuss their search for records of telephone calls by people in the suspected fireworks operation.

District Attorney Arlo Smith said his office may obtain search warrants to check telephone records and other material such as shipping invoices.

Meanwhile, the search for more human remains wound down Wednesday. Fire investigators have said they have the names of nine people reported missing and presumed killed in the fire.

"We have names of nine too, but we've recovered only seven, maybe eight," said Joseph Surdyka, spokesman for the coroner's office.

He identified two victims as Patricia Livingston, 32, a woodworker who made redwood trinkets and souvenirs; and Phillip Maria, 19, a circulation worker with The New York Times.

DANDRUFF CONTROL CAULIFLOWER

Recent pseudo-scientific, authoritative studies have discovered that one of the chief causes of dandruff is eating cauliflower. The tiny white cauliflower buds enter the body as cauliflower and later emerge as flaky white dandruff (former confirmation that you are what you eat), with all the associated problems of dry itchy scalp, embarrassing dandruff, etc. etc. etc. You've been spending a lot of money for expensive dandruff control shampoos, treatments and perfumes, etc. etc. etc. and you've been eating cauliflower at the same time; you can find inexpensive relief by simply buying Swensen's dandruff control cauliflower — a special variety guaranteed not to create dandruff. NOTE: Dandruff in non-cauliflower eaters is obviously caused by eating broccoli; Swensen's cauliflower is also a boon to those suffering other health problems such as vitamin deficiency, and chronic hunger. Also not to be overlooked is the sheer joy of eating fresh overnight-from-the-field cauliflower either cooked your favorite way or crunchy fresh and Swensen's super low price makes it taste even better.

Q. What animal makes the most noise?

A. The blue whale. Its underwater utterings equal the sound of a U.S. Navy cruiser at normal speed.

Aldus Manutius was a printer to the Holy Church in Venice. Working for him was a young black fellow whom the locals thought to be an imp of Satan. They called him "the printer's devil," and apprentice printers have been so called ever since.

FAN

Q. How exactly does an electric fan cool the air?

A. It doesn't. It's motor and blade friction heat the air, in fact. End of item. See "Evaporation on Skin, cooling effects of."

At the time the Spaniards invaded Mexico, that Aztec metropolis now known as Mexico City was at least four times bigger than Madrid or Paris or London, or any European city, for that matter.

Mayor Eastwood celebrates victory

'Just Clint' receives call from Reagan

CARMEL-BY-SEA, Calif. (AP) — Actor Clint Eastwood paraded into the wee hours Wednesday to celebrate his landslide mayoral election victory, then awoke to congratulations from another actor who made it big in politics: President Reagan.

Champagne flowed freely into at Eastwood's restaurant in this seaside tourist village after he grabbed a listful of votes — 72.5 percent of those cast — to defeat incumbent Charlotte Townsend and two other opponents.

Eastwood, star of a host of cowboy and cop movies, said at an afternoon news conference that Reagan had called from the White House and spent about five minutes discussing his fellow Republican's landslide victory.

"He requested his line, 'What's an actor who's played with a monkey — what's he doing in politics?'" said Eastwood, who co-starred with an orangutan in "Every Which Way But Loose."

Reagan shared billing with a cop in "Bedtime For Bonzo." Eastwood said he was "in awe" of the president's impressive margin of victory, the mayor-elect said.

Another film star, Jimmy Stewart, called and reminded Eastwood of Stewart's role as a U.S. senator in "Mr. Smith Goes To Washington."

"I remember the scene when (Stewart) lost his voice during a fil-buster," Eastwood said. "I didn't quite get to that point, but almost."

Townsend conceded 90 minutes after the polls closed Tuesday night in this town of 4,800.

"You can almost feel it in the air," Gordon Simpkins, 75, owner of the Carmel Pipe Shop, said of Eastwood's victory. "There's an atmosphere of optimism and confidence in the future and progressiveness in the community without injuring the aesthetics of the area."

Eastwood, who became a stop-office star for roles as tough detective "Dirty Harry" Callahan and the sharp-shooting gunslinger of spaghetti-Westerns, bristled when townsfolk started calling him Mr. Mayor.

"Just Clint," he said with his characteristic economy of words. The actor said he will give the $200-a-month job priority over acting and credited his victory margin to "a lot of dissatisfaction" with the currently council.

The 55-year-old, gray-haired superstar entered the race because of anger at the city's "second-hand" treatment of the business community, including its initial rejection of his plans to develop a small property next to his restaurant-bar, the Hogs Breath Inn.

"Dirty Harry has always been arguing with the mayor, fighting with bureaucracy, and I guess I have been, too," Eastwood said during a victory speech.

He told reporters at a news conference he isn't planning to seek higher office.

"I'm not running for anything," he said. "I'm staying right here in Carmel. This is where it stops."

Eastwood said the triumph "franks solidly" with his successes as a director and actor. "It's a hit movie at the moment," he said.

As the champagne flowed at the Hogs Breath at 2 a.m., Eastwood lollered on a bar stool surrounded by waitresses; tourists; friends mugged for the cameras that clicked constantly.

Talking to reporters at the bar, Eastwood said "we're going to bring a little fun back to Carmel."

At another victory party that drew 500 supporters to the elegant La Playa hotel, dentist Dan Hake said Eastwood "must be sincere if he's willing to take this job for $200 a month" and predicted the victory would bring even more people to this tourist Mecca.

"When you talk to a tourist, they always ask, 'Where is the Hogs Breath?'," Hakes observed.

Jarvik heart patient dies

PITTSBURGH (AP) — A 43-year-old factory worker who received a Jarvik-7 artificial heart last month while awaiting a human transplant died Wednesday of complications from a lung infection, a hospital spokesman said.

Gary Blake, of East Liverpool had received the artificial heart March 22 at Presbyterian-University Hospital of Pittsburgh, said hospital spokesman Tom Chakurda.

Doctors report the patient died of damage to vital organs that progressed in spite of the artificial heart, Chakurda said. "It was stressed however, that the Jarvik-7 artificial heart used to maintain Mr. Blake functioned properly throughout the post-operative period."

Blake's own heart had degenerated from unknown causes.

Sakharov's family skeptical of rumor

BOSTON (AP) — A rumor that Andrei Sakharov may be freed soon could be a Soviet ploy to distract the world's attention from talks scheduled with U.S. officials or from his health, the dissident's family said Wednesday.

A Luxembourg television station reported Tuesday that Sakharov will be traded on Berlin's Glienicke bridge for spies held in the West. The bridge is where Soviet dissident Anatoly Shcharansky was freed Feb. 11.

French schoolteacher reportedly kidnapped

BEIRUT — Lebanon (AP) — A French schoolteacher was kidnapped by gunmen in Moslem west Beirut on Wednesday, sources at the French Embassy said. No one claimed responsibility for his abduction.

Meanwhile, Paris sent top officials to Tehran in an effort to improve relations with Iran, which has supported Shiite Moslem zealots in Lebanon. Eight other Frenchmen have been abducted by Lebanese Shiites who espouse Iranian-style Islamic fundamentalism.

Michel Brian, 38, who taught at the College Protestant Français in west Beirut for six years, was the third Westerner to disappear in that section of the capital in less than two weeks.

French Embassy spokesman Francois Adi Saad would not confirm Brian had been kidnapped, saying only: "The embassy is making all the necessary contacts to investigate his fate."

But other embassy sources, speaking on condition of anonymity, said Brian was seized by gunmen near the Modca cafe on Hamra Street, west Beirut's main thoroughfare as he walked to school.

They said they had no other details on the number or identity of the reported kidnapers.

China holds shuttle hope

PEKING (AP) — China hopes to be able to send a shuttle into space in the year 2000, once it has perfected its satellite launching techniques, an official in the Aeronautics Ministry said Wednesday.

"The next item on the ministry's agenda is to launch a space station and space shuttle," said Tu Shoue, deputy director of the ministry's Scientific and Technological Committee.

But the Xinfu state-run news agency quoted him as saying a detailed space program has not been worked out.

China is marketing satellite launching rockets, called Long March 2 and 3, and is also offering a commercial satellite launching service.

Israeli stresses Waldheim inquiry

NEW YORK (AP) — Israel's ambassador said Wednesday that the contents of a U.N. war crimes file on Kurt Waldheim justify further investigation of the former secretary-general's activities as a German army officer in World War II.

"It cannot be said that the matter can be laid to rest," Benjamin Netanyahu told reporters after spending more than an hour at the U.N. archives office, where the file from the defunct U.N. War Crimes Commission had been kept under seal.

"There is here clear indication of a need... for further comprehensive investigation," Netanyahu said. He would not discuss the information in the file, a copy of which he was sending to Israel for detailed study.

Waldheim, a candidate in Austria's May 4 presidential election, said in Vienna that allegations of war crimes would not force him out of the race.

Netanyahu and Austrian Ambassador Karl Eiseher were granted access to the secret file in response to reports that Waldheim, now 67, served with a German army unit that committed atrocities, including deportation of Jews, in the Balkans during World War II.

The Austrian envoy spent 17 minutes at the archives office and issued a statement afterward saying the file "consisted of only a few pages." A copy is to be sent to President Rudolf Kirchschlaeger of Austria, who is not a candidate in the election.

The U.S. Justice Department's Office of Special Investigation also will ask for a copy of the U.N. file on Waldheim as part of its review of his wartime activities.

India to top China in tally of population

WASHINGTON (AP) — India is expected to surpass China as the world's most populous nation, while the United States likely will slip from fourth to seventh place in the world population count over the coming century, new population studies project.

World population is expected to top 10 billion by the year 2100, more than double the current 4 billion, and over four times the 2.5 billion people on the globe in 1950, according to the reports released Wednesday by the private, non-profit Population Reference Bureau.

"While growth rates have declined, (the) annual absolute increase in population continues to mount in many countries and will be large for several decades before tapering off," said Thomas W. Merrick, president of the population group.

And "most of the large future increase in the world's population will occur in (less developed countries), including some of the poorest regions of the world — sub-Saharan Africa and South Asia," Merrick said.

Apartheid police capture guerrillas

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — The government said Wednesday it had captured two black guerrillas who were trained in Libya and sent here to assassinate South African black leaders.

Police said a bomb went off in a public toilet for blacks in downtown Johannesburg, blowing a man in two and wounding four other people.

Security forces in the black homeland of Bophuthatswana arrested, beat and whipped scores of youths who gathered in the streets despite a ban on a mass funeral for riot victims.

Louis Nel, deputy information minister, told a news conference in Cape Town that the two alleged guerrillas were among 150 members of the Pan Africanist Congress who had received military and political training in Libya since in 1982.

Farm lender winds up '85 with slight profit

By BOB FREUND
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The Eastern Idaho Production Credit Association emerged from 1985 with hefty reserves but little profit.

The farm lender, which serves the Magic Valley and southeastern Idaho, funneled most of its free income into reserves to guard against loan losses, association officials said Tuesday.

The Pocatello-based farm lender still finished the year slightly in the black, recovering from a $1 million loss in 1984. The association cleared $91,331 in earnings, 0.7 percent of its $119.6 million in assets.

Incoming President Arnold Seeley and other EIPCA officials Tuesday reported the condition of the association to stockholders at an annual meeting in Twin Falls, one of four being held throughout its 26-county territory in Idaho and Wyoming.

Seeley told close to 250 shareholders the "lack-of-income" crisis in Idaho agriculture will continue to be felt by farmers and lenders alike. Symptoms of the strain appeared in 1985 statistics given by Seeley and in a letter to stockholders.

A 13-percent decline in loan volume to $110.4 million, about the same level as in 1982, before the EIPCA took over the Southern Idaho PCA territory including the Magic Valley.

A decline in fully acceptable loans to 67 percent of the total, from 84 percent in 1984. "Problem" paper represented 29 percent of loans, with another 4 percent classed vulnerable or lost. Problem loans are those which have adequate collateral but are delinquent.

EIPCA lost 75% of inherited loan volume

By BOB FREUND
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The Eastern Idaho Production Credit Association retains only a quarter of the loan volume it inherited from the Southern Idaho Production Credit Association of Twin Falls two years ago.

In the EIPCA's annual report, officials said the association still is servicing $20.3 million worth of loans in the Magic Valley, about 26 percent of the volume obtained when the SIPCA was dissolved in December 1983.

EIPCA management cited several factors for the loan leakage:

• "Advanced deterioration in a portfolio to which Eastern Idaho PCA's policies came too late to reverse the trend." Many loans were rejected as inadequate and were returned to the SIPCA, which exists only to settle accounts.

• "An increase in the value of loans charged off (lost) to $459,000 from $261,000 in 1984 and none in 1983. Total charge-offs amounted to 29 percent of the association's average loan volume for the year."

• "A 73-percent increase in loans that are not earning interest, putting those at just over $2 million.

The association's borrowers have been affected by low prices for potatoes and grains and by crop-damaging weather, the association report said. Many eastern Idaho counties, from which the EIPCA draws four-fifths of its loan volume, have been declared economic disaster areas because of freezes last fall.

• "The general flight of members to other commercial lenders once their stock was untrozen and prior to Eastern Idaho PCA having opportunity to meet and serve them." Many solid borrowers left the association, officials said.

• "The adverse impact of operations start-up in a territory occupied by a liquidating association. Recruiting new borrowers was difficult."

Other general problems hurting agriculture also were involved, the association reported.

EIPCA officials reported greater success in its original territory over a longer time period. The association had $30.4 million worth of loans in eastern Idaho at the end of 1985, 85 percent of the volume four years earlier.

In a speech to stockholders on Tuesday, incoming President Arnold Seeley urged his audience to tell financially solid farmers and ranchers in the Magic Valley about advantages of borrowing with the EIPCA.

Seeley also reported the Spokane system lost $88.9 million in 1985, with $33.1 million of that due to production credit associations. About $2.5 million in losses were sustained by the federal land bank associations, while the Spokane Bank for Cooperatives turned a $1.7 million profit.

Treasurer Stanley McDaniel said during the meeting at the Holiday Inn it has been a board priority to fund those as far as possible.

When all the available cash and surpluses are considered, the association now can match more than $12.6 million against losses without drawing on the members' stock, he said. That cushion is much thicker than what the Farm Credit System requires, McDaniel said.

The EIPCA's total net worth remains strong at $20.6 million, roughly comparable to 1984.

Seeley is assuming the presidency of the association on the retirement of long-time president J. Elden Hill this spring. In an interview after the meeting, Seeley said the association plans to hand more lending authority to its local officers in the coming year, but generally will not change its ways of doing business.

In the past year EIPCA members refused to join a five-state production credit association called the Interstate PCA and eventually fought the establishment of Interstate in southeastern Idaho. Congressional legislation settled the battle, giving EIPCA sole charter to the territory.

Charles Woods, vice president for credit for the Spokane Farm Credit Banks, which had formed Interstate PCA, Tuesday urged good relations between the EIPCA and the Spokane-based organization, despite the rift.

He also reported the Spokane system lost $88.9 million in 1985, with $33.1 million of that due to production credit associations. About $2.5 million in losses were sustained by the federal land bank associations, while the Spokane Bank for Cooperatives turned a $1.7 million profit.

Robbins tops in GOP vote

By DEAN MILLER
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Congressional candidate Rep. Gary Robbins, R-Dietrich, led the field of six candidates for the 2nd Congressional District Republican nomination in an informal straw poll of Twin Falls County Republicans Wednesday night.

With 13 votes, Robbins edged out Idaho Falls radio station manager Mel Richardson, who got 12 votes.

Following Richardson were state Rep. J. F. Chandler, R-Idaho Falls, with eight votes; Connie Hansen of Pocatello with seven votes; state Sen. Dan Watkins, R-Idaho Falls, with two votes; and Dan Adamson of Jerome, with one vote.

Watkins and Hansen were the only two candidates at the meeting in the County Judicial Building Wednesday night, and only Hansen addressed the group.

Twin Falls County Republican Central Committee Chairman Mark Stubbs said the poll was a non-binding vote to give voting members of the state central committee guidance when they vote in the statewide straw poll of Republican leaders this weekend in Boise.

"It's a non-binding straw poll to tell the people in this area how the county people feel," he said. At the statewide straw poll this weekend, Twin Falls County representatives will cast eight votes, Stubbs said.

Twin Falls County Republicans had discussed boycotting the statewide straw poll earlier this spring, but Wednesday night only nine voted against the weekend poll, and ballot counters said those who voted against the straw poll still cast votes for candidates on the ballot.

In the lieutenant governor's race, Caldwell businessman Butch Otter won 40 votes, while North Idaho attorney Chuck Lempeis won six and state Rep. Linda Bateman, R-Idaho Falls, won one vote.

Other spoke at the meeting Wednesday night before the straw poll was taken.

Bobbette Chapman of Boise, won 28 votes for state treasurer, while state Rep. Lydia Justice Edwards, R-Donnelly, won 12.

State auditor candidate Doyle Miner tested his competition with 13 votes, leading Richard Williams, who had 11 votes, and Eric Fieldstad, who had eight.

The Republican Central Committee meeting continued at press deadline.

Businessman makes bid for commissioner

By PAT MARCANTONIO
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Businessman Curtis Smith announced Tuesday he will seek the Democratic nomination for the Twin Falls County Commission seat now held by Republican incumbent Marvin Hempleman.

"Part of the reason for his candidacy is to give voters a choice at election day with two parties instead of one on the ballot, said the 47-year-old Smith, owner and operator of Curt's Car Care auto repair shop in Twin Falls.

"We have not had a choice between Republicans and 'radical' conservative groups," he said.

"When there's only one name on the ballot, then it's a show any way you look at it. If we don't take responsibility to get some competition going, we don't have an election."

Smith, who never has held or sought public office, said he had considered himself a Republican for many years. But recently he's leaned more toward the stands of Democrats, such as those of U.S. Rep. Richard Stalling.

All the elected officials in Twin Falls County are Republican, including Hempleman, serving almost six years on the County Board. Hempleman said he will run for a third term as county commissioner representing District 2.

Smith admitted his chances of winning in November are small. But facing such a political barrier isn't discouraging, he added.

"I'm not going to worry about it," Smith said.

An acquaintance had been asking Smith for office for about three years, he added. This year he agreed because it was time to "branch out" and use his experience for the county.

Another reason for his candidacy was what he saw as a deterioration of county services, while taxes increased, said Smith, who was raised in Twin Falls County. The county jail, for instance, wouldn't be in the trouble it's in today if the county had used then-available federal money to 15 years ago to build a new jail, he said.

The 74-year-old jail last year was the object of a lawsuit which alleged the facility didn't meet constitutional standards. The litigation resulted in a court-approved agreement in which county officials promised to make several improvements to the jail.

"I don't think we ought to let things go so far until we're forced to act in an answer. Most businesses can't operate that way," Smith said.

He also favors a revamping of the indigent system, which makes counties responsible for paying medical treatment for the poor. As it stands, an indigent probably receives better medical care than the average per-

TFEA reverses stance on override vote

By JANE ROBISON
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — In a conciliatory press release, the Twin Falls Education Association did an about-face Wednesday and announced it would "vigorously support" the May 13 override election for Twin Falls schools.

The school board after the Twin Falls School Board voted last Tuesday to include increases in teachers' salaries in the tax override levy election.

Of the $680,717 voters will be asked to approve, $342,472 will go toward salary increases for all district personnel and to add one new elementary teacher to help alleviate overcrowded classrooms.

"When the board led the issue of salary increases to the override, the picture changed for us," said TFEA President Ray Grubbs in a press release Wednesday.

Grubbs called the board's vote "a welcome signal."

TFEA's reversal was met with an equally conciliatory response from Board Chairman Gene Champlin Wednesday.

"I think in times with limited funding, it takes the cooperation of all parties — the board, the administration and TFEA — in order to survive the economic crunch they (the Legislature) have put us in," Champlin said.

And he called TFEA's reversal a "good signal" that may carry over when contract negotiations get started, sometime after the May 13 election.

In a memo leaked last week, TFEA said it would not support the override unless contract negotiations were completed before the May 13 election.

Grubbs defended the earlier vote by faculty representatives not to support the tax override levy as a "legitimate expression" of the frustration of teachers. Teachers said they saw themselves at the bottom of the priority list, behind paint and asphalt. Override money was originally going for maintenance of buildings and for textbooks and curriculum.

However, lawmakers appropriated $10 million this session to be earmarked for books and curriculum materials. And since the Twin Falls School District will receive about $200,000 out of that money, the board voted to ask taxpayers to fund an increase in salaries instead.

Grubbs said the board's vote showed they are concerned about changing priorities and about supporting a "positive environment for educators here." And he said teachers "appreciate that very much."

Asked if TFEA's turnaround vote would be viewed with a cynical eye in the community, Grubbs said he did not think so.

"The Legislature took a negative attitude toward education. We've definitely been underfunded," he said. "I think patrons realize that if they expect to keep good teachers, they're going to have to do something about salaries."

Grubbs said that in 1984-85 the average salary for a Twin Falls teacher was $18,569, $5,000 below the average salary in Boise, and below every major school district in the state.

"In fact, Twin Falls stood 66th out of 116 school districts in average salary," Grubbs said. "We believe the override is essential if we as an entire community are to sustain our educational effort here."

Limited weed control plan proposed

By KENNETH A. BROWN
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Integrated pest management — a combination of chemical and non-chemical control techniques — is the preferred alternative of the U.S. Forest Service in its recently released draft environmental impact statement on noxious weed control.

But because of budget cutbacks, the federal agency will be treating only half the acreage which it says must be treated annually to control the spread of noxious weeds and poisonous plants.

Details of the federal agency's weed-control program, as well as a worst-case analysis of the possible control program to a halt. The Ed Stockly, attorney and chief executive officer for the INRFL, said he had told the Forest Service and the BLM that his group would not appeal the weed issue again if the two agencies followed their recommendations. Stockly said that "from a quick glance" the DEIS appears to meet those conditions and is satisfactory to his group.

The weed workgroup was composed of representatives from livestock and farming groups, environmental groups and a variety of state and federal agencies. Some of the key recommendations made by the Weed Control Workgroup, created last October by the U.S. Bureau of Land Management and the Forest Service, are to limit the use of herbicides and to use biological control agents.

Rapist's sentence upheld

TWIN FALLS — A 5th-District Court judge refused this week to reduce the prison sentences of a convicted rapist, who was a plaintiff in a lawsuit over Twin Falls County's treatment of a rape victim.

Judge Daniel Hurbuitt did agree Monday to issue an order to transfer 21-year-old Michael Eugene Goodson of Twin Falls to a state-rehabilitation program at Cottonwood for 90 days and then to a state treatment program at Boise for an additional 90 days. After that time, Hurbuitt will review Goodson's progress to determine if he is ready for probation or if he should serve the remainder of his sentence.

Goodson was in the same cell as a former sheriff's deputy who allegedly was stabbed by another inmate.

Hurbuitt's decision on Hackney's motion was made after a hearing, which Goodson did not attend. Twin Falls County Prosecutor K. Ellen Baxter said Goodson probably will be transferred from the main prison yard as soon as prison officials receive the court order.

Goodson was one of two plaintiffs in a lawsuit filed Oct. 22 by attorney Greg Fuller, claiming the jail didn't meet constitutional standards. Fuller later amended the claim to include other jail inmates without specifically naming them.

An agreement was reached by Fuller and the county in February in which the county promised to implement several improvements to the aged jail.

The Fuller and Messery firm had represented Goodson on the earlier criminal matters.

Hackney, Goodson's new lawyer, also is appealing the judgment of conviction to the Idaho Supreme Court, according to court records.

Goodson was sentenced in December to life imprisonment on a rape conviction and a concurrent sentence of 15 years in prison on an aggravated battery conviction.

Goodson's lawyer, Gar Hackney of Boise, had requested the court to reduce Goodson's sentence to 10 years or a lesser amount considered proper by the court. According to a statement filed with the court Dec. 28, Hackney claimed Goodson's safety was endangered because the general prison population knew Goodson had cooperated with officers on an Oct. 13 stabbing incident at the county jail.

Man sentenced for sexual abuse

TWIN FALLS — One man was sentenced this week for making sexual advances to a child, while another man pleaded innocent to charges of child molestation.

Clarence Ronald Hoffman, 56, a former Twin Falls resident, was sentenced Monday in 5th-District Court to four years on probation following a felony conviction on sexual abuse of a child.

Hoffman, whose last address was 559 Second Ave. N., was accused of making sexual advances to a 12-year-old boy on Nov. 9, 1985, in Twin Falls, according to a complaint filed with the court.

Judge Daniel Hurbuitt had imposed the maximum sentence of five years imprisonment, but suspended it and placed Hoffman on probation.

During the next four years Hoffman will not be allowed any contact with minors under 18 years old.

Hoffman also agreed to continue counseling at his own expense; refrain from drinking alcohol and take antiabuse, a medication that makes one not want to drink, more than $400 for expenses related to his defense.

He will be allowed to continue to reside in Boise at a Salvation Army Center.

In a separate case, 38-year-old David K. Thompson, Route 6, Twin Falls, pleaded innocent Monday to two counts of sexual abuse of a child. A trial on the felony charges is scheduled May 1.

Thompson allegedly fondled a girl on March 1 and another girl in an incident that occurred sometime between Sept. 1, 1985, and Dec. 31, 1985, according to a complaint filed with the court. The children were less than 7 years old.

After the court hearing, Thompson was returned to the Twin Falls County jail where he is being held in lieu of $7,500 bond.

Three other people suspected of sexually molesting children were scheduled to have hearings in court Monday. The cases, however, were continued for various reasons.

Staged plane crash draws calls

HAILEY — A training program for Halley volunteer firefighters and the personnel at the Friedman Memorial Airport Wednesday evening was so well conducted that residents and passing motorists called in reports of a fiery aircraft crash.

Halley Fire Chief Don McCoy said the staged crash was staged to give firemen and ambulance crews an opportunity to practice control of such an emergency situation. Only the few key people in charge knew the event was coming, he said.

McCoy said the fire department worked with Airport Manager Paschel Drake and other airport staff, and 23 volunteer firemen and eight Wood River Ambulance Service people involved.

He said a barrel filled with aircraft fuel was ignited to simulate the fire and an airplane that was loaned by airport officials was towed from a hangar to a designated crash site. Three volunteers agreed to act as crash victims.

Sgt. Lonny Meadows of the Jerome Police Department said Michael Holley, 37, was injured when a vehicle driven by Russell Kelley, 77, of Shoshone, collided with another car, spilling Kelley between the two vehicles.

Meadows said Kelley was southbound on Lincoln Street and turned left onto B Street, colliding with another vehicle. The second vehicle was driven by Dan Schuvaloff, 31, of Jerome, who was heading west on B Street. The impact forced the Kelley vehicle into a car parked in front of the Fitness Center. Holley and Kevin Pedro were standing beside the parked car engaged in conversation when the accident occurred, Meadows explained. Pedro was treated for minor injuries and released. The accident was reported at 4:15 p.m.

Holley was in stable condition following surgery at St. Benedict's Family Medical Center Wednesday evening. Holley said he suffered a compound leg fracture and possible other injuries. Both drivers escaped injury.

Kelley was cited for inattentive driving.

Gunshot wound sustained

HANSEN — Violet Burns, 20, of Hansen, was in frail condition Wednesday after suffering a gunshot wound in the abdomen.

She accidentally shot herself. She was taken to Magic Valley Regional Medical Center where emergency room personnel notified the sheriff's office.

No report on the incident was available from the Hansen police department.

Magistrate court

The following civil cases were filed during the past week in 5th District Magistrate Court in Twin Falls:

Pam Rodney vs. Barry Dunn. The plaintiff alleges that defendant violated a rental agreement concerning property owned by plaintiff. Therefore, the plaintiff seeks restitution of the premises, that any tenancy agreement between the parties be declared forfeited, that the trial setting be made pursuant to Idaho Code, Section 6-310(5) plus cost of the suit and attorney's fees.

Tasco #2 Federal Credit Union vs. Kathy Louder. The plaintiff seeks the sum of $2,787.78 plus interest for overdue account, cost of the suit and attorney's fees.

Triangle Nut Company vs. James J. Philbin and Verda Philbin. The plaintiff seeks payment on an open account in the amount of $514.46 plus cost of the suit and attorney's fees.

Professional Service Agency vs. Marjorie Summerfield. The plaintiff seeks the sum of $5,911.47 plus interest for overdue account, cost of the suit and attorney's fees.

Lucero. The plaintiff seeks the sum of $350.74 for overdue account plus cost of the suit and attorney's fees.

Magic Valley Credit Bureau Inc. vs. Harold Shoup and Shirley Shoup aka Shirley M. Bernier. The plaintiff seeks the sum of $275.19 for overdue accounts plus cost of the suit and attorney's fees.

Credit Bureau of Jerome Inc. vs. Barbara Barry Coonce aka Barbara Barry. The plaintiff seeks the sum of $170.19 for overdue accounts plus cost of the suit and attorney's fees.

Anderson-Blake Inc. vs. James E. King dba Ketchum Taxi. The plaintiff seeks payment for unpaid insurance premiums and late charges in the sum of $2,932.97 plus interest, cost of the suit and attorney's fees.

weed-control efforts, preventing land-use activities which are conducive to the spread of noxious weeds, and monitoring weed treatment sites for follow-up actions and rehabilitation.

Region is $565,000.

According to the DEIS, a study by the University of Idaho found that weeds amount to more than $500 million a year in Idaho.

Sawtooth National Forest personnel are conducting an environmental analysis on the site-specific aspects of treating noxious weeds. Approximately 600 acres in the SNF are being considered for treatment.

Smith

Smith said that he probably will develop a specific platform on county issues as the general election nears. But one thing he does support is "more business, more growth" for the county.

Smith said he probably will enlist help from more knowledgeable people to run his campaign because he has never been active in party politics.

While Smith has become a candidate, he said he doesn't want to become a politician.

"I don't want to make me irritated," he said. "He found that if public officials are in office too long, they forget about their constituents.

"It seems to happen invariably, from the transient right on down," he said.

According to the DEIS, there are approximately 167,000 acres of land with moderate to dense infestations of noxious weeds in the Intermountain Region.

The Forest Service is proposing to treat 7,380 acres of those problem areas annually. The total cost would be about $600 acres that total would be treated with herbicides, 115 acres with biological controls, and 345 acres by manual controls.

While the document says that about 14,000 acres would have to be treated each year to control the spread of the problem weeds, the Forest Service is planning treatment for slightly more than half of that amount.

The environmental group dropped its appeal on the SNF in September, after reassessing the possible impacts of leaty spurge on the state's range and farmland. After the appeal last summer, the Forest Service had considered closing the South Fork area to all public access in an effort to control the spread of the weed.

Leaty spurge and knapweed are two of the "top priority" noxious weeds of concern in the SNF. The main concentrations of those noxious weeds are found in the South Fork of the Boise River drainage, east of Peetherville.

When the weed control program was put on hold by the INRFL appeal last summer, the Forest Service had considered closing the South Fork area to all public access in an effort to control the spread of the weed.

After the appeal last summer, the Forest Service had considered closing the South Fork area to all public access in an effort to control the spread of the weed.

Call was dropped, the Forest Service restarted its control program for leaty spurge.

SNF Supervisor Ron Stolonson said the agency will probably continue its spurge-control efforts in late May. Control on other types of weeds infesting the area, such as scotch thistle, black henbane and Dyers woad, will probably not begin until August, after the current draft EIS has been approved in its final form.

Copies of the DEIS on weed control may be obtained from the headquarters office of the Sawtooth National Forest at 1525 Adnave Ave. E., Twin Falls. The phone number is 737-3200.

Those desiring information on the noxious weed situation in the forest are urged to call their local Forest Service office.

The Regional Office of the Forest Service will be accepting written comments on the weed control DEIS until May 12. Written comments should be sent to: J.S. Tixler, regional forester, Intermountain Regional Office, USDA, Forest Service, 324 25th St., Ogden, Utah 84401.

Recall drive falls short of needed signatures

By JANE BUCKWAY
Times-News correspondent

SHOSHONE — A recall effort against Shoshone City Councilman Jerry Baltazor has failed because six people who originally signed the petition have had their names removed from it.

Only 100 signatures remained on the petition Tuesday, three short of the number necessary to force a recall election, City Clerk Ron Bolan said.

Recall supporters thought they had enough signatures last Thursday when Bolan certified the names of 106 signers. Residents behind the recall movement had to come up with additional valid signatures after their original effort fell short by 18 names when the petitions were first filed Feb. 19.

Bolan said six petition signers had written requests to take their names off the petition. State law allows petitioners to remove their names any time until the election is actually held.

The law also requires a five-day period for the subject of a recall to resign before the election is called. Baltazor, who was in Boise Wednesday night and would not be reached by the recall drive, has said since the issue began in February that he will not resign.

Because the petition came up short of signatures, before the end of the five-day period, Bolan said he is not required to set an election date.

Since Feb. 19, a total of 31 people who originally signed the recall petition have removed their names from the document, including some who said in their written requests they had been misled or given biased information at the time they signed.

Petition organizer Leigh Kelly has said his group started the recall because they felt Baltazor was responsible for the resignation of veteran police chief John Shafter. The petition is "open to" anyone who wishes of his constituents," as the reason for the recall.

The citizens committee backing the recall needed, he also claimed there is a conflict of interest between Baltazor's job as state Police Commissioner and his position as city police commissioner.

Bolan said this latest round means the recall battle is over. If a new recall effort is mounted against Baltazor, the petitioners will have to start all over, with new petitions and new reasons for a recall, he said.

Kelly was unavailable for comment Wednesday.

Gooding may cut teaching position

By TERRELL WILLIAMS
Times-News correspondent

GOODING — With an enrollment drop of about 20 students and anticipated reduced state funding, the teaching staff in Gooding may be reduced for next year.

As the school board meeting Tuesday, trustees adopted a "Reduction in Force" policy to allow a staff reduction.

"I think it's going to be necessary to RIF somebody this year," Superintendent Lester Diehl predicted.

Budget cuts were discussed and the board meeting was recessed until April 22 at 8 p.m. At that time, Diehl said, bus contract bids will be opened and the board will be able to decide where and how much to cut the budget.

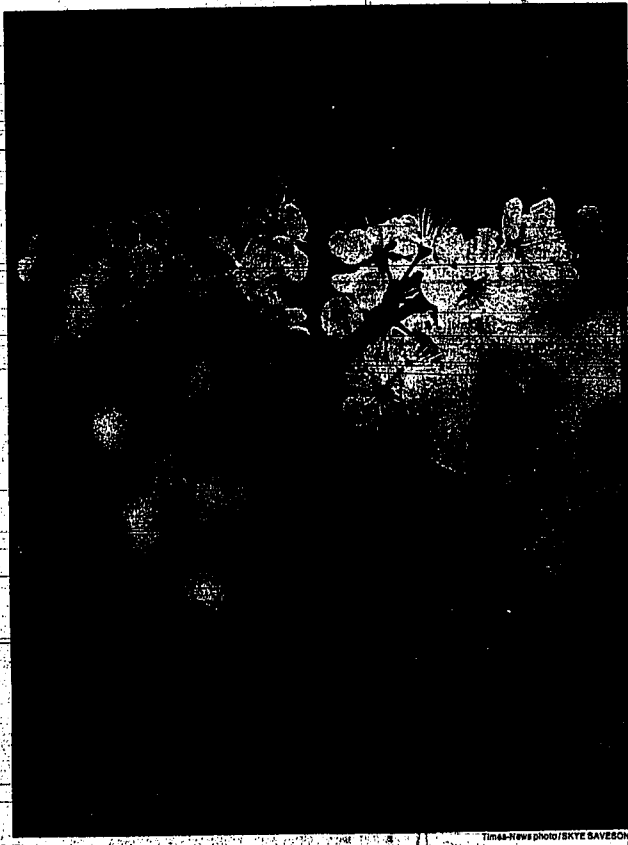

Public input at the April 22 meeting would be appreciated and would help school officials decide what to do, he said.

In other business:

- A trustee election will be held May 20. The seat held by David McGarrath of Zone 4 in central Gooding is up for election. McGarrath is at the end of his first three-year term.

- All trustee candidates must turn in their signed petitions to the school clerk by May 2.
- High school principal Larry Tinker gave a favorable progress report on the seven period schedule, started this school year. The extra class period, he said, gives students more opportunity to take more classes and learn more subjects. The seven-period schedule will be continued in the next school year.

- The board voted to hire all continuing contract teachers for the coming school year.
- Diehl said the school's summer maintenance schedule includes cement work, roof repair, heating system repair and, hopefully, remodeling of all elementary school lavatories.

Recent cold, rainy weather may have dampened the spirits of some Magic Valley residents, but spring seems to be here for good if this plum tree on Jackson Street in Twin Falls is any indication.

Flood plain plan rejected

By DAVE LEWIS
Times-News correspondent

KETCHUM — A plan that would allow the construction of homes in the flood plain of the Big Wood River on Ketchum's northern boundary received its final rejection Monday from the city council.

The plan's defeat, however, showed development along the river is a complex issue with no easy answers.

In a 3-1 vote, council members rejected the plan to move four building sites out of the high-water area.

The council's decision left unannounced a definite policy on such development, but it may prompt the city to establish those guidelines.

Monday's debate spilled on whether or not controlled development along the river is better than letting nature take its course within the sensitive flood plain. Despite the majority vote against the plan, council members said it has a long way to go before it resolves the issue.

The plan's lone supporter, Councilman Tom Held, said he believed it would help solve flooding and erosion problems aggravated by man-made alterations already made to the river.

Councilman Larry Young, although voting against the plan, said he was not rolling out development within the flood plain. He said he based his decision on a report by the city's consultant, Beak Consultants Inc., that concluded the approved plan was better.

Council members Sue Wolford and Suzanne Orb took stronger stands against intrusions into the flood plain.

"I think we have to respect the flood plain," said Orb. "I think we'd be making a terrible mistake approving this and setting it off on down the river."

"I think the best thing to do is to leave (the plan) alone," she said.

Wolford said she was against the plan because the city has the ability to control alterations along the stream through an annexation agreement that brought the sites into the city. She also proposed the city quickly adopt restrictions against removing streamside vegetation to provide more protection within the flood plain.

A different approach was taken by Mayor Jerry Seifert. He agreed the city should protect the flood plain, but he said there may be situations where controlled development is best. The issue needs more debate, Seifert said.

"I prefer to have people build outside the flood plain, but at this particular site I don't know," he said.

It was the peculiar characteristics of the site on which Bren's representatives made their final arguments for the plan.

The lot lies north of Adams Gulch Road, which has a raised roadway that spans the river.

Steve Fisher, a fisheries biologist and habitat improvement consultant introduced by Seifert, said the road and bridge create a barrier that alters the natural course of the river along Bren's lot. As a result, the river has artificially widened the flood plain on Bren's property.

The area, therefore, needs special management to offset the effects caused by the road and short bridge, Fisher said.

Sun Valley considers ranch for annexation

By DAVE LEWIS
Times-News correspondent

SUN VALLEY — The city of Sun Valley is considering the annexation of land covered by its neighbors in the city of Ketchum.

In a special meeting Monday, the Sun Valley city council instructed its attorney to draft an annexation ordinance for the Lane Ranch, a 700-acre parcel south of Elkhorn Road and adjacent to the east side of Idaho 75.

The order, said one Sun Valley city councilman, shows the city is at least serious about considering the annexation.

The same area, however, is one the city of Ketchum has said it wishes to eventually annex. The city has included it for future annexation in recent discussions for creating a zone of impact with Blaine County.

Developers of the ranch, CASCA Partners of New York, approached Sun Valley with the annexation request, but whether or not the city will attempt to annex the property isn't certain.

The proposal must go to the city's Planning and Zoning Commission for a zoning recommendation before the council can consider it.

Sun Valley City Councilman Joe Humphrey said the council's action on Monday shows a definite interest in annexation.

"I would say we are seriously considering it," said Humphrey, although no commitment has been made.

He said the council's ultimate decision on annexation may depend on the final configuration of the proposed development which would put about 100 units on 100 acres of the ranch. About 600 acres would be left as an open space.

In turning the project over to the planning commission, the council said it would only consider a rezoning if the zoning was changed in 1979, the two resort cities got in a fight when Sun Valley attempted to annex the property.

Blaine to protest C grade requirement

By BARBARA NEIWERT
Times-News correspondent

HAILEY — Nearly a third of the high school students in Blaine may be unable to meet the state's new C average requirement, and the district could see a dramatic increase in the student drop-out rate as a result, Blaine County school officials said Tuesday.

Blaine County School Board members are planning to send a letter outlining their opposition to the stiff grade requirement to State Superintendent Jerry Evans and the Board of Education urging that the requirement be changed or dropped.

The rule has been controversial since it was adopted in 1983, and the state board has been evenly split in past attempts to rescind the rule.

said the single most important problem with the requirement is its impact on the high school drop-out rate.

"There's a very real chance that 25 to 30 percent of our kids will walk out these doors because they can't, or don't think they can, make a C," Homer said.

Starting with the 1985 freshman class, the state law requires students to maintain a C average until their senior year in four core courses: math, English, reading and speech.

After surveying the semester grades of Wood River Junior High students, principal Chuck Turner found 27 percent of the ninth grade, or 30 students, already were not up to a C average.

"You can see it in their eyes. They're bowing to the pressure," Turner said. "I don't like to see this in a 14-year-old."

the four educational areas and pointed out there is a serious variation in grading throughout the district within the state.

He said with this system, a D automatically becomes a failing grade, and it could create a tendency for teachers to give C's rather than D's, thus inflating the integrity of the grading system.

Another point concerning school administration is the basis of the grading system itself. Using a C as an average grade means that the students in any given class should receive above, average grades and the rest would fall below average, or fail, Homer said.

No provisions are made for handicapped students as well. Board Chairman Frank Rowlin said this is a discriminatory action, and

City plans celebration welcoming businesses

By CAROLYN DILWORTH
Times-News correspondent

GLENN'S FERRY — City officials are planning a community celebration later this month to welcome several new businesses, both large and small, that have moved to Glenn's Ferry in the last year.

The celebration will be coordinated with the opening of Magic West, a new potato processing plant that is the largest new business to come to Glenn's Ferry this year, Mayor Diane Messery said last week.

Other businesses to be honored include Mart Grain, a plumbing company and ICT, which has expanded recently.

The purpose of the celebration, said Messery, is to welcome commercial development and encourage new business.

"We've been remiss in not doing it before," she said.

In other business, she announced that within three weeks there will be a public meeting held jointly by the city council and the zoning board to present the proposed zoning ordinance. The board has already held public hearings on the new rules.

Councilman Larry Rose was asked to check with the school district and Idaho Highway Department to find out who is responsible for the storm drains and the break-up of the sinking occurring in front of the school.

The mayor signed a proclamation encouraging Glenn's Ferry to participate in National Loyalty Day on May 1 by displaying flags.

More's never enough with children

Did you ever hear parents brag about their kids? The more you give them, the more they want? And when you heard a kid say, "I'm so happy, how shallow, how unbecomingly proud of my parents!"

If you're, you probably know what I'm talking about. We parents are the infamous veterans of the War of the Wills with the children. We've fought nobly but lovingly with them to those many years. And yes, we discovered that a special treat, that coveted birthday if childhood that even today, my greats as Aristotle and Big Bird. To make you give them the more they want.

In our abundant culture, the sense of wisdom is often ignored. Either we are afraid to let our children experience the joys of the good life, or we are so busy trying to give them all manner of stimulation and entertainment that we're not taking the time to stop and spend with them.

Despite the abundance, the principle of the more you give, the more they want, is easily forgotten. I wish the best of all could be taught.

Country neighbors

So in keeping with the parental tradition of ignorance and forgetfulness, this past weekend I indulged my children and they let me know it. To begin with, I gave a birthday party for my little girl. This was not just any birthday party; I gave an AWESOME birthday party with judge cupcakes, ice cream, candy balloons, party favors, gifts and even a clown (in my). We all had a good time and a few of us with tummys aches had too good of a time.

The next morning, fresh from an evening of nostalgic pleasures, do you think my children were prostrating themselves before me with thankful hearts? Surely I just thought I would spend the night with their constant whining and complaining about how they were tired and when I told them that, no, we weren't going to do any of that. We were going to be ourselves and stay home. We had a complete breakdown of communication. I was hoping we could talk about our problem over a cup of cocoa or something, but I had difficulty getting my 9-year-old out of the fetal position and my 4-year-old was screaming at the top of his lungs. My good crystal, I thought, I thought I thought when the crisis had passed and we could finally hold a decent discussion, my children told me: "A didn't love them; A, they were angry, run away, and C never let them see any fun." The "No one but you" was a little bit of a surprise. They all stood there looking at me and wishing I could read my kids' minds. I was let's hop in the car and go swimming and gathered them together and led them to help me pick up the year's 3000 lbs. of laundry and running, blowing me out of the garden and bouquets. It's amazing how fresh air and a little responsibility can change children. Absolutely amazing.

Remarks about 'having your own' prove unkind to adoptive parents

DEAR ABBY: My wife and I are about to adopt a baby in the near future. When we tell friends and family this, the response is invariably the same: "Oh, that is wonderful! But I am sure you will have your own baby right after you receive the adopted one."

This comment is absolutely devastating to prospective adoptive parents.

We understand that people mean well and are trying to do something supportive, but there are two reasons why this particular statement should never be made:

1. The subtle implication is that adopted babies are not as good as "your own," meaning one you bore yourself. My wife and I have many fears and apprehensions about adoption, the raising of an adopted child, and how that child will be viewed by others. This insensitive comment by the end of our fears to the surface.
2. Second, and even more important, friends and family often do not consider that the mother in question may not ever be able to bear a child of her own. My wife has been through many miscarriages, a tubal pregnancy, multiple surgeries, and she may never be able to bear our own child.

We have many friends with similar tragic infertility problems and where the woman has no tubes, ovaries or uterus. Imagine the effect of this comment on them!

Please tell your readers that adoptive parents need to be reassured that their child is just as valued as the one they had hoped to bear themselves. Also, please avoid thoughtless and insensitive comments about "having your own" or "getting pregnant soon." They are brutal. I am a surgeon at a prominent medical school, but sign me.

—EXPECTANT FATHER

DEAR ABBY: I dread going into public places any more because almost everywhere I go, video cameras are trained on me. I walked into a store the other day and was immediately confronted with myself on TV, and a large message that said, "SMILE. YOU'RE ON VIDEO. CAMERA SHOPLIFTERS WILL BE PROSECUTED WITH VIDOTAPED EVIDENCE."

Abby, I will never set foot in that store again!

Am I abnormal for feeling uncomfortable for having every move I make recorded and shown on a TV screen? Do other people feel as I do, and what do you think of this idea?

—MRS. L.M.S.

DEAR MRS. S.: I think it's a shame this method of discouraging shoplifting is used, but look at it this way: Although it's an invasion of privacy, stores that use this method are able to offer their merchandise at a lower cost because they will have fewer shoplifters. And shoplifters cost you and me money!

DEAR ABBY: I have a small but important problem. Our school's big dance is coming up. It's the only dance of the year so it's a big deal. I like to carry a purse with me in case I need money to call someone, or if I need to reapply eye makeup. What do I do with my purse when I dance? Give it to my friend? Put it down and risk losing it? Should I shove the stuff in my pocket and forget the purse? Or dance with the purse on my shoulder?

—R. IN LEVERETT, MASS.
DEAR R.: Carry the minimum, and show it in your pocket.

Women in 30s set divorce record

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nearly six of every 10 married women now have a divorce at some time, according to a new study by Census Bureau experts.

That would be a record high proportion, according to the study of marriage and divorce patterns by Arthur J. Norton and Jeanne E. Moorman. Their findings were being presented at a meeting of the Population Association of America in San Francisco.

Nearly one-third of women aged 35 to 39 already have been divorced, and the study projects that "by the time they are 30s and women 40s and 50s complete their divorce experience, nearly six in 10 of the ever-married women in each group will have been divorced."

"The projection for this age group is greater than that for women 10 years older or 10 years younger," the researchers said.

The projection for women in their 40s was for an eventual 45 percent divorce rate, and the rate was set at 50 percent for those now in their 20s.

The projections are included in a detailed study of marriage and divorce which also said that, after rising to record levels in the 1970s, divorce seems to have leveled off in the first half of the 1980s.

"It appears that divorce, remarriage and divorce may have peaked in the late 1970s and will recede to some new normative level. If this happens, it will be an important but not dramatic change. Most adults will marry and the incidence of divorce in the U.S. will likely remain among the highest in the world," Norton and Moorman concluded.

Be cautious if asked to give advice to a friend

By REBBOOK

Giving advice is an art, but you don't need a degree in counseling to help a friend in trouble.

The first thing to ask yourself is whether your advice will help or hurt, according to an article in the April issue of Redbook, written by Amy Birk, Harris, co-author of "I'm OK — You're OK."

Harris has a list of guidelines to help friends give good advice. She advises friends first to be honest with themselves about whether they want to get involved in the advice-seeker's troubles. If you do, then trust your own insights and instincts. Be aware of your impact and speak carefully if you think your advice may be followed.

Know your own limitations: Don't promise help you may be too busy to deliver and don't be afraid to admit, "I don't know." If drug or alcohol abuse is involved, don't let friendship become a substitute for needed professional help. Choose a specific time and place when a friend asks to talk to you. Talk in a comfortable, quiet place where you will not be interrupted. Restaurants are too distracting, and you don't want to be where you will have to answer the telephone in the middle of a friend pouring out her troubles.

Let your friend talk through — don't hurry her. Listen carefully and respond to her questions. Don't be evasive, or answer a question she did not ask. Is honesty necessarily best? Not when honesty could threaten a friend's welfare without accomplishing anything.

Don't be afraid to share your view, once you have gotten the picture. You may see something she has overlooked. Share with her your failures, and also the ways in which you have found help — prayer, meditation, church or therapy.

Remarks about 'having your own' prove unkind to adoptive parents

DEAR ABBY: My wife and I are about to adopt a baby in the near future. When we tell friends and family this, the response is invariably the same: "Oh, that is wonderful! But I am sure you will have your own baby right after you receive the adopted one."

This comment is absolutely devastating to prospective adoptive parents. We understand that people mean well and are trying to say something supportive, but there are two reasons why this particular statement should never be made:

1. The subtle implication is that adopted babies are not as good as "your own," meaning one you bore yourself. My wife and I have many fears and apprehensions about adoption, the raising of an adopted child, and how that child will be viewed by others. This insensitive comment brings all of our fears to the surface.

2. Second, and even more important, friends and family often do not consider that the mother in question may not ever be able to bear a child of her own. My wife has been through many miscarriages, a tubal pregnancy, multiple surgeries, and she may never be able to bear our own child.

We have many friends with similar tragic infertility problems and where the woman has no tubes, ovaries or uterus. Imagine the effect of this comment on them!

Please tell your readers that adoptive parents need to be reassured that their child is just as valued as the one they had hoped to bear themselves. Also, please avoid thoughtless and insensitive comments about "having your own" or "getting pregnant soon." They are brutal. I am a surgeon at a prominent medical school, but sign me —

— EXPECTANT FATHER

DEAR ABBY: I dread going into public places any more because almost everywhere I go, video cameras are trained on me. I walked into a store the other day and was immediately confronted with myself on TV, and a large message that said, "SMILE, YOU'RE ON VIDEO CAMERA. SHOPLIFTERS WILL BE PROSECUTED WITH VIDEO-TAPED EVIDENCE."

Abby, I will never set foot in that store again!

Am I abnormal for feeling uncomfortable for having every move I make recorded and shown on a TV screen? Do other people feel as I do, and what do you think of this idea?

— MRS. L.M.S.

DEAR MRS. S.: I think it's a shame this method of discouraging shoplifting is used, but look at this way: Although it is an invasion of privacy, stores that use this method are able to offer their merchandise at a lower cost because they will have fewer shoplifters. And shoplifters cost you and me money!

DEAR ABBY: I have a small but important problem: Our school's big dance is coming up. It's the only dance of the year so it's a big deal. I like to carry a purse with me in case I need money to call someone, or if I need to reapply eye makeup. What do you think of my purse when I dance? Give it to my friend? Put it down? Discard it and risk losing it? Should I shove it in my pocket and forget the purse? Or dance with the purse on my shoulder?

— R. IN LEVERETT, MASS.

DEAR R.: Carry the absolute minimum, and shove it in your pocket!

Women in 30s set divorce record

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nearly six of every 10 married women now in their 30s probably will experience a divorce at some time, according to a new study by Census Bureau experts.

That would be a record high proportion, according to the study of marriage and divorce patterns by Arthur J. Norton and Jeanne E. Moorman. Their findings were being presented at a meeting of the Population Association of America in San Francisco.

Nearly one-third of women aged 35 to 39 already have been divorced, and the study projects that by the time they and women five years younger completed their divorce experience, nearly six in 10 of the ever-married women in each group will have been divorced.

"The projection for this age group is greater than that for women 10 years older or 10 years younger," the researchers said.

The projection for women in their 40s was for an eventual 45 percent divorce rate; and the rate was set at 50 percent for those now in their 30s.

The projections are included in a detailed study of marriage and divorce which also said that, after rising to record levels in the 1970s, divorce seems to have leveled off in the first half of this decade.

"It appears that divorce, remarriage and rediocese may have peaked in the late 1970s and will recede to some new normative level. If this happens, it will be an important but not dramatic change. Most adults will marry and the incidence of divorce in the U.S. will likely remain among the highest in the world," Norton and Moorman concluded.

How To Choose A Womens Health Center.

Public Open House All Day April 11th.

St. Benedicts Family Medical Center is proud to announce the development of the most exciting health care facility to hit this area... EVER. The Womens Health Center is an affiliate of St. Benedicts Family Medical Center, but has its own course and direction to serve women of our valley.

For years, women around the United States have been getting healthy care attention like never before. Now that attention has arrived here. Women face an entirely unique set of health care issues: from breast cancer to menopause from BMS to first-and-home care. The Womens Health Center is here to provide you with information and professional help for all of your needs. Most likely you still have questions about Womens Health Center. Maybe we can help.

What is a Womens Health Center?
Our Womens Health Center is a separate building with its own staff and functions. We even have our own physician (you need one).

What services do they offer?
We will offer a full range of services especially for women. These are just some of them:
Cancer Detection
Unit of Utah/Idaho
PMS Program

Family Planning
Fertility Counseling
Parenting
Wellness Programs
Fitness
Stress Management
Child Birth Classes
Early Pregnancy Classes
Baby Sitting Classes
Weight Reduction
Nutrition
Osteoporosis
Heart Disease
Home First Aid
Menopause Support Group
Educational Programs
Car Seat Program Obstetrics
Gynecology

What if I just want to find out more about these problems?
You can use the Womens Health Center as a resource center for all of your questions. Simply call us or come in to visit with us. We'll answer your questions.

Do they have a woman physician?
Yes we do. Our full time female physician has been with us since last fall. We know that sometimes it's just easier to talk to a woman.

Do they have programs for younger and older women?
Our specialty is women. Of all ages. We know there are questions that you may have about changes that are occurring in your body. Let us help you answer them.

Is there a program like this in the area?
No. We are unique. We are a comprehensive and autonomous center. We will provide the services that the women of the area deserve. Our program is professional and responsive to your needs.

Does the Womens Health Center have physicians or can I use my own?
You may do whatever you like. Your physician will know about the Womens Health Center and may refer you for specific problems. However, you don't need to have a physician to use us. We will be happy to help you under any circumstances. Just call us.

What do I do if I want to find out more about the Womens Health Center?
Call us at 324-2016. And be sure to visit us at 222 6th Avenue West. Our first public open house is April 11th. We would love for you to come see why we're so proud.

Be cautious if asked to give advice to a friend

By REDBOOK

giving advice is an art, but you don't need a degree in counseling to help a friend in trouble.

The first thing to ask yourself is whether your advice will help or hurt, according to an article in the April issue of Redbook, written by Amy Bjork Harris, co-author of "I'm OK — You're OK."

Harris has a list of guidelines to help friends give good advice. She advises friends first to be honest with themselves about whether they want to get involved in the advice-seeker's troubles. If you do, then trust your own insights and instincts. Be aware of your impact and speak carefully if you think your advice may be followed.

Know your own limitations. Don't promise help you may be too busy to deliver and don't be afraid to admit, "I don't know." If drug or alcohol abuse is involved, don't let friendship become a substitute for needed professional help. Choose a specific time and place when a friend asks to talk to you. Let your friend talk things out in a comfortable, quiet place through. Don't be afraid to share your view. Talk in a comfortable, quiet place through. Don't be afraid to share your view. where you will not be interrupted. carefully and respond to her questions. once you have gotten the picture. Restaurants are too distracting, and you don't want to be where you will have to answer the telephone in the middle of a friend pouring out her troubles. Is honesty necessarily best? Not always, and also the ways in which you have found help — prayer, meditation, church or therapy.

Buhl boil-water order lifted

BUHL — A boil-water order for Buhl residents was lifted Wednesday by state health officials.

The boil water rule was ordered by the Health and Welfare Department's Division of Environment on Monday after a routine sample from the city's water system showed the possible presence of disease-causing bacteria.

However, water samples taken Monday and Tuesday came back clear, department spokesman said. He said the city's problem with its chlorination system is fixed, and municipal water is now being properly disinfected.

Plain

He disagreed with the conclusion reached by Beak and said the proposed plan offered a better solution to the problems on the site.

The council's rejection came over Fisher's claims and an offer by Bren to give the city the leverage to control alterations in the flood plain. Bren's attorney, Barry Luboviski, offered a four-point plan that would create a penalty for any alterations, among other things. If the city approves the lot plan, Bren would:
• Develop a plan to enhance the fish habitat in the area.
• Develop a plan to enhance and manage vegetation along the river.

• Establish a financial plan to maintain the flood plain within the lot.

• Create a penalty system that was strong enough to deter Bren or any future property owners from making unauthorized stream alterations.
If the city accepted the concept of the restrictions, Luboviski said, Bren is willing to pay for the studies to determine how best to enhance the fish habitat and protect the vegetation.
"With those kinds of controls," he said, "a plan like this begins to make sense."

Grades

the board may apply legal pressure on the state to change the rule.

Homer said with insufficient funding from the state to support the school systems, the possibility exists of deleting elective courses such as second-year algebra, pre-calculus, calculus and creative writing to provide the staff to teach additional remedial math and English classes.

Until some further action is taken at the state level, the board voted to continue with its policy of preparing individual reports for parents and students assessing their class standing and explaining why they are concerned.

Homer said phone calls will come to him, the superintendent and trustees when a student has satisfied all course requirements to graduate, has passed all classes, but because of a D in one of the selected classes must be told he cannot graduate.

"How are you going to explain that?" he asked.

In other business:
• School district attorney Rand Peebles reported his progress in compiling data to obtain useful statistics for comparing district allocations under the state's equalization formula.
During a closed executive session in February, the board considered filling a lawsuit against the Board of Education and the Idaho Tax Commission for what the board deemed an "unfair" distribution of state tax money for schools.

• Blaine County, by itself, in any litigation is not going to go very far," Peebles said.

However, Rowland said, if the board's research is made available to other districts, others may be motivated to "jump on the band wagon," Rowland said.

The board is looking into the equalization formula as well as the state's method for assessing property values throughout the state. Research should be completed within two weeks, Peebles said.

Trustee positions currently held by Frank Rowland and Dar Parke will be up for re-election May 20. Both candidates indicated a desire to serve another three-year term on the board.

Seats for Zone 1 and Zone 3 will expire. Zone 1 includes part of Bellevue south of Elm Street and east of Main Street, plus the south county. Picabo and Carey. Zone 3 lies within Halley and includes sections of town east of 2nd Street, Woodside Subdivision and west on Crox Street to the county limits.

To run for office, candidates must live within the district they are running for, be at least 18 years old and a U.S. citizen.

Annex

to annex Weyakkin, a development adjacent to Lane Ranch on the north side of Elkhorn Road.

That fight ended following an administration change in Sun Valley following the 1979 election, and Ketchum won the rights to annex the parcel.

Although Ketchum supplies water and sewer service to Weyakkin, it has not yet annexed the subdivision primarily because of financial limitations imposed by the 1 Percent Initiative.

Whether or not Ketchum will fight the attempted annexation by Sun Valley hasn't been decided, but the council is expected to take up the issue when it meets in special session today.

Humphrey said he doesn't know if a fight is imminent.

"I don't know. It depends on how Ketchum feels. If a fight comes, it will be on the part of the city of Ketchum," he said.

The Lane Ranch is contiguous to the Elkhorn section of the city of Sun Valley, one of the criteria for annexation, said Humphrey, while Ketchum is separated from the land by Weyakkin and other parcels.

Humphrey said the main advantage for Sun Valley to annex the land is aesthetics — it gives the city control over the type of development on its southern border.

RUPERT — Marine Lance Cpl. Roberto Garcia, whose former guardians are Fred and Mary Lindgren of Rupert, recently participated in Cold Weather Training at Bridgeport, California. During the three weeks of training, Garcia participated in cross-country skiing and cold weather survival and tactics. A 1984 graduate of Minico High School, he joined the Marine Corps in August 1984.

Asparagus warning issued

WENDELL — Highway district officials warned asparagus-pickers in the Wendell area Wednesday that roadside weeds, including the wild vegetable, will be sprayed with a poisonous chemical starting today. Wendell Highway District June Holm said Amitrol, a poison not recommended for edible plants, will be sprayed on 122 miles of barrow pits along rural roads in about a four-mile radius from Wendell.

The spraying will begin today if the weather is clear and calm, she said.

Holm warned that there will be no visible sign of the chemical's effect on the asparagus for about a week after the spraying.

She added that a highway district official told her that eating the sprayed asparagus could make someone "very sick."

WESTLAND HOLDS THE LINE!

On April 12, General Motors will raise prices on all GM units, including Pontiac, Cadillac and GMC, an average of $400 per unit.

And also on April 12, GM is withdrawing its 9.9% financing rate.

WESTLAND MOTORS WILL HOLD THE LINE!

All Pontiacs, Cadillacs and GMCs now on the lot will be priced at their present low sticker price through the end of April.

We don't know what the new financing rate will be after April 12, but it's likely to be higher. But if you buy your new unit on or before April 12, Westland will hold the line at 9.9%.

If you're considering any new vehicle, come see Westland Motors this week. It's simply a better place to buy yours.

Tax advice deductible — even if it's bad

Your expenses for tax advice are deductible even if the advice turns out to be absolutely worthless. Here's an actual case: Collins won the Irish Sweepstakes, so he faced a huge tax bill. He hired a tax adviser/accountant to minimize the bill. The accountant designed a tax-saving business deal. The Tax Court said the deal was a sham. But even though the tax move failed, the accountant did render tax advice worth $4,500 for the fee he claimed as an itemized deduction. How you claim your deduction for tax advice depends on whether the advice was for personal or business purposes. E.H. Warren, divisional senior vice-president of Prentice-Hall urged me to warn you. Personal: Any expenses incurred in connection with the determination, correction or refund of any tax is deductible as a miscellaneous deduction on Schedule A, Form 1040. Deductible expenses include the cost of: 1) Having your tax return prepared; 2) Subscriptions to tax publications; 3) Contesting an assessment of any additional tax or handling a claim for a refund; 4) Determining property taxes;

Sylvia Porter

And now, final advice: Avoid these common errors: Failure to attach your Form(s) W-2; Incomplete address or incorrect Social Security number; Failure to check correct blocks in itemizing filing status; Failure to attach required forms or schedules; Mathematical errors; Incomplete checking of blocks for personal exemptions or listing of dependents; Incomplete listing of itemized deductions. Listing income, deduction, or tax items on wrong line; Failure to sign return. Such easy errors for you to avoid, but with what awful results should you commit any of them and thereby alert an IRS agent to your 1985 return and set off an audit of your tax returns dating back through the years. Be sensible.

Sylvia Porter writes on consumer matters for Universal Press Syndicate.

Last in a series

5) Advice on gift or estate tax matters; 6) Requesting a revenue ruling. You cannot deduct the cost of tax advice in reference to tax-exempt income, however. Business: If any of the above-mentioned expenses were incurred in connection with your business (or rental income-producing property), the deductions should not be taken as an itemized deduction on Schedule A. What to do: Tax advice in connection with your corporation is deductible on Line 26 of Form 1120 (or Line 22 of 1120S). If your business is not incorporated, tax advice for that business is deducted on line 31 of Schedule C, Form 1040. Expenses for tax advice for rental income-producing property are deducted on Part I of Schedule E, Form 1040.

Distribution center to open

MERIDIAN (AP) — Increasing beer sales in southwestern Idaho have prompted Coors Distributing Co. to build a new $2 million beer distribution center in Meridian, said Jeff Coors, president of Adolph Coors Co. Coors was in Meridian on Tuesday to mark the construction of the brewing company's 40,000-square-foot center that will replace its leased building in Boise.

THE ACES

BOBBY WOLFF

How can a man learn navigation where there's no rudder? - Christopher Fry.

WEST: 8943, 83, J974, Q72, 63. EAST: Q10, 83, AK J10 5, 742. SOUTH: K62, AK105, 64, Q10.

North-South steered delicately into the only makable game. Unfortunately South got careless and lost his way in the play.

East won the diamond king and shuffled accurately to the spade queen. With visions of an overtrick, South won his king and cashed the three high trumps.

South's line of play had its chances, but there was a much surer way to 10 tricks. After winning his spade king, South should lead a trump to dummy's king and a trump back to his 10, losing to West's jack.

Vulnerable: Both. Dealer: North. The bidding: North East South West 1♦ 1♠ 1♥ Pass 2♦ Pass 3♦ All pass

Opening lead: Diamond deuce

BID WITH THE ACES 4-10-3

North South 1♦ 1♠

ANSWER: Two no-trump. Highly invitational but not forcing. One no-trump or two diamonds would be a gross underbid.

Send bridge questions to The Aces, P.O. Box 12345, Dallas, Texas 75223, with self-addressed, stamped envelope for return.

Walker is wary of an improving Ricks squad

By STEVE CRUMP
Times-News sports editor

TWIN FALLS — It will be with mixed feelings that College of Southern Idaho baseball Coach Jim Walker watches his Eagles open their Northern Division Region 18 season Saturday here against Ricks College.

"I don't think we're playing up to our ability right now," says Walker, whose team will carry a 19-8 record into regional competition. "I know the talent's there, but we don't always show it."

Walker wasn't happy with his team's performance Tuesday in a non-conference doubleheader split with Utah Tech in Orem, Utah.

"We just flat lost the intensity," he says. "There's no way we should have lost that second game. We'll still try to iron some things out, and if we can do that by the time we get into our conference schedule, then we'll be right."

CSI has beaten two of the other three teams in the northern division by substantial margins this season, sweeping a doubleheader from Ricks and beating Treasure Valley/Community College three times. But the Eagles have yet to see North Idaho College, which Walker considers the team CSI will have to beat in the northern division this year.

Region 18 opener

As for Ricks, Walker doesn't believe the Eagles' 12-1 and 8-1 victories here on Thursday were indicative of how good the Vikings — now 5-10-2 — really are.

"They're playing better," he says. "They obviously weren't ready to play when they were down here before, but they've improved. They split with Utah Tech the other day, so we know they're capable of winning."

The Eagles' league schedule will be interrupted by a flurry of non-conference activity next week, as CSI will host TVCC in a non-conference twinbill on Tuesday, the travel to Provo, Utah, to play the Brigham Young University junior varsity in a set on Thursday. The Eagles will play a single game at the College of Eastern Utah in Ephraim, Utah, on Saturday, April 19. CSI will host a doubleheader rematch with the Badgers here on Tuesday, April 22, before embarking on their annual road trip to NIC and TVCC.

"It's the same (conference) schedule as we had last year, and I think it's a good one for us," says Walker. "We go in North Idaho and TVCC and then they all come down here at the end of the season."

The northern division champion in Region 18 will host the regional tournament, which consists for the first and second-place teams from both divisions. The Region 18 champ will in turn host a bi-regional playoff with the winner earning the right to advance to the NJCAA World Series in Grand Junction, Colo., beginning May 24.

"I think we're the best team in the region this year, and the schedule should put us in the driver's seat," says Walker. "We can play with anybody, but it remains to be seen if we can solve our problems so far have been as much mental as anything."

CSI will go into its regional schedule with four players hitting over .400, but Walker says pitching has been the bright spot for the ballclub so far this season.

"Our latest stats show that our (team) ERA is around 3.00, which I think is pretty good considering how many freshmen we have on the staff—this season (seven). Another bright spot is that we've begun to show we can field the ball. (Freshman) Jeff (Moo) showed me some things around shortstop on Tuesday. We've gotten a lot more steady defensively."

Walker said the Eagles will probably open on the mound Saturday with freshmen right-handers Jason Adkins (5-1) and David Carter (2-0).

Game time is 1 p.m.

Tim Dunne's track record suggests only superlatives

By RON GATES
Times-News writer

JEROME — Jerome High School track Coach Tim Dunne will mark the completion of 16 years coaching cross-country and boys' track and field in the 1986 Idaho Class A-2 track meet next month.

That feat may not set a record for longevity. If not, it will be one of the few records that Dunne doesn't own.

"I've been around here for 16 years and I'd like to stay around 16 more," he says. "I still enjoy the competition and working with the kids. I like the community of Jerome and enjoy the recreational activities — it's a good place to live and raise kids."

Dunne came to Jerome High School as head cross-country and assistant track coach straight out of Idaho State University, where he earned his degree in physical education. In February of this year he was inducted in that institution's hall of fame.

Jerome Track Coach Tim Dunne helps sophomore pole vaulter Wes Pett work on a proper approach grip

A track star in his own right as a prepster, Dunne twice led Boise High School to state championships while capturing a pair of individual crowns in the 200-yard dash and one state title in the 400-yard event. Although a standout in football and basketball as well, his sprinting earned him a track scholarship at ISU.

Since accepting the head coaching job in boys' track eight years ago, Dunne's teams have garnered four state titles to go with the 12-state championships his cross-country teams have taken. By his own admission, Dunne is "unable to remember the last time that Jerome failed to win the District 4 A-2 title, but do recall losing the Cross State Conference title once to Mountain Home — by a single point."

"What can you say about Tim Dunne that hasn't been said?" says Buhl track Coach Tom Chivers. "When you think of Idaho track, you think of Tim. I'm not sure he doesn't have the best coaching record in Idaho. He makes winners out of his kids in track, cross-country, basketball or anything else. When he wasn't winning state he was in the top two or three. I think the best thing is his ability to attract and get out a large number of athletes each year. Tim seems to have surmounted that problem. He's very generous with information. It's not like he has some secret in his back pocket."

If there is no secret, what is the formula for success that has worked so well?

Dunne, twice nominated for National Coach of the Year, repeats some of the advice that he dispensed at a recent coaching clinic.

"Track around here to me, and I think to our athletes, is a big thing," he explained. "A lot of our success has to do with the quality of the kids and maintaining continuity among the coaches and the athletes. Overall, over the past two or three years, Jerome has not had as many good athletes as a few years back — that's where the continuity comes in. For instance, Jim Staffer has been our relay coach for the past six or seven years. He knows what I like to do and handles all of that part."

"Another example, is that we have a very good senior high hurdler this year who works with some of the younger kids. They encourage each other, it alleviates some of the coaching problems and there will be kids sitting there year after year. But, if you don't keep a close eye on it, you will lose that continuity," Dunne continues.

As for the large turnout at Jerome High, Dunne believes that just as college coaches are recruiters, so must high school coaches be.

"If Jesse Owens' high school coach hadn't been a good recruiter, the United States would have really missed something in the Olympics."

Following that philosophy, Dunne has attended every ninth grade track meet in his 16-year tenure and constantly strives to stay involved as much as possible at the junior high level to keep the enthusiasm going.

"You can get more coaching done there than anywhere and, you get to know the kids," he says.

Twin Falls boys' track Coach Duane Stands has seen that element in his Jerome counterpart.

"He's a very competent coach. He really knows his kids — it comes out year after year."

"What he does in track is different from what most coaches do — and there's no question that it works to his advantage," says Jerome High athletic director Tom Jund. "Track is not a fun sport to practice. You would have a credit a lot of his success to his ability to make practices fun. His greatest attribute is that he

Darcy selects Creighton; Rekeweg to Nebraska

By STEVE CRUMP
Times-News sports editor

Gooding High School senior Brian Darcy Wednesday signed a letter-of-intent to play basketball at Creighton University.

Meanwhile, College of Southern Idaho sophomore Jeff Rekeweg, one of three sophomore starters on the Region 18 champion Golden Eagles' basketball team, committed to the University of Nebraska.

Both signings come on the first day under which high school seniors and junior college transfers could commit to four-year colleges under NCAA rules. The University of Idaho and Boise State University each signed one player and said they would not announce his identity until this morning.

In a related development, CSI Coach Fred Trenkle said he would sign 6-foot-10 Twin Falls High senior Pat Clark this afternoon.

The signing of Darcy by Creighton, an NCAA Division I school in Omaha, Neb., that competes in the Missouri Valley Conference, concluded one of the "hottest" recruiting battles — a Magic Valley athlete has generated in some time. Darcy, who averaged 17 points and 12 rebounds in helping lead Gooding to the Idaho Class A-3 basketball championship last season, was also recruited by Idaho, Boise State, Utah State, Cal-Santa Barbara and CSI.

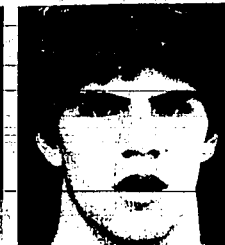

"I just liked what the coaching staff is doing there," said Darcy on Wednesday. "Another big factor was that I'll get a chance to play as a freshman."

Creighton Coach Tony Barone said the recruitment of the 6-8 Darcy was important in rebuilding the Bluejays' program.

"One of the things we've really lacked is at the forward position," he said. "I don't know what he will do next year, but he gives us a good start in building a back line that is competitive with anybody's."

Rekeweg, a 6-7 native of Kendallville, Ind., spent one season at CSI, during which, he averaged 10 points and six rebounds. Rekeweg spent the freshman season at Valparaiso University in Indiana.

"This is a good start," said Incoming Nebraska Coach Coach Danny

Nee. "Rekeweg is a fine, quality kid. (He's) a good student, and a good person."

Trenkle said Clark, the leading offensive rebounder and the No. 3 rebounder overall in the Gem State Conference last season, has a promising future in college basketball.

"We think his skills and athletic ability will make him a good college player," Trenkle said. "I don't know how much impact he'll have next year, but you can't coach 6-10 and 220 pounds. His future is all ahead of him and I believe that he will be a great basketball player for some four-year school after he leaves CSI."

Boise State on Wednesday signed a 23-year-old airman from Mountain Home Air Force Base.

BSU Coach Bobby Dye said David Lowery, a 6-5 native of Pennsylvania who has never played college basketball, would have an immediate impact on the Broncos.

"We feel very good — he's about as

Weekend features running rivalries

Trojans, Senators face off in Wendell

By The Times-News

The high school track picture in Classes A-1 and A-3 in the Magic Valley should be a lot clearer after this weekend.

Two A-3 meets are scheduled that will pit teams favored to take the honors in next month's District 4 track meet, while Twin Falls will show a Gem State Conference meet that will include archrival Highland.

Track action

Action will start this afternoon in Wendell where the Trojans will host the annual Gooding County meet, starting at 3:30 p.m. Wendell, Gooding, Hagerman, Bliss and Gooding State will be on hand, but the feature attraction will be the matchup between the Trojan and Senator boys.

Wendell, the defending Canyon Conference and District 4 boys' champion, will match its strength in the running and relay events against Gooding's power in the field events and in the sprints. The feature matchup should be between Wendell senior Chad Hope and Gooding senior Terry James in the 100 and 200. James is the defending state A-3 champion in the 100; Hope finished fourth at state last year in that event.

Declo and Glens Ferry, the two A-3 teams that have been making the biggest headlines through the early part of the season, collide Saturday in the annual Monte Andrus Memorial Invitational in Hazelton.

Declo, riding solid individual points, will pit that first-place strength against the solid defense of the Pilots in the boys' division. There still remains a question that anyone can challenge the Glens Ferry girls since they've won everything the past two or three years and these are basically the same girls.

Other schools participating will be Kimberly, Murtaugh, Filer, Valley and Aberdeen, making its third straight appearance in the meet.

The Andrus will kickoff with running preliminaries at 10:30 a.m. Saturday with field finals to run from that point through the noon hour. The running finals will start at 1 p.m.

Prior to that meet, which honors former Valley High coach and athletic director Monte Andrus, the Twin Falls Bruins will host four other teams in a Friday afternoon meet at Bruin Stadium in Twin Falls.

The Bruins will be getting their first look at Gem State Conference and Region III foes Pocatello along with the always strong Jerome Tigers and the Burley Bobcats.

We know that Jerome is a strong team because we've run against them," says Twin Falls Coach Duane Stands. "But Pocatello and Highland will be unknown quantities, especially the boys because two of Highland's top distance men have been unable to run due to injury. Burley has asked to compete in one meet with us this year because they will be in the district next year and want to get a look at the situation."

Stands said the girls' division is as unprepared to him as the boys. Pocatello has a top sprinter in Yolanda Frazier and that means another confrontation with Twin Falls Junior Eva Talamantes.

AL: Brett homers twice, K.C. tops Yankees

NEW YORK (AP) — George Brett tried Yankee Stadium on for size and liked the fit.

"You know, it's like sometimes you have an old pair of gray slacks, or a favorite shirt, or a favorite necktie," Brett said, "it just feels comfortable standing out there."

Brett hit two solo home runs "standing out there" Wednesday and Steve Farr turned in 4-9 innings nearly flawless pitching in relief of Charlie Leibrand to lead the Kansas City Royals to a 7-4 victory over the New York Yankees.

Brett's two homers gave him 195 for his career and the club record, which he had shared with Amos Otis coming into the game.

Brett said he was happy with the game despite making two errors, one that nearly allowed the Yankees back into the game in the ninth inning.

"I've always liked to hit in this park," said Brett, who hit his famous "pine tar" shot here, plus a number of playoff homers. "Any time you win, no matter how you do it, it makes you happy. I think everybody in this clubhouse is happy."

Farr, who first joined the Royals from the minor leagues last August, came in for Leibrand with one out in the fourth inning after the Royals starter struggled with his control. Farr retired 11 in a row until Ken Gribble led off the eighth with a single.

"When all your pitches are going where you want them, that's the every day you can have," said Farr. "I'd hate to maybe get out of every 10 times, but that's the kind of night I had."

Dan Quisenberry pitched the ninth for his first save. With one out, Ricky Henderson singled. After two were out, Brett dropped Don Mattingly's pop foul near the Royals' dugout and Mattingly then beat out an infield hit. That brought up the potential tying run in cleanup hitter Dave Winfield who struck out after getting ahead in the count 3-0.

Yankees starter Ed Whitson, who struggled through a 10-3 season in 1985 during which he was berated by Manager Billy Martin, and threatened by fans, gave up a 2-2 hit and touched off a three-run third inning. He left later in the inning to a shower of boos.

"Eddie's hung a few pitchers and Brett is a good hitter," Yankees catcher Butch Wynegar said of Whitson, who has repeatedly asked to be traded. At the mound (won strike hits) Bob Shirley in the seventh can't pitch under these circumstances."

Brett, who had a career-high 30 homers last year, added a leadoff homer to Bob Shirley in the seventh to put the Royals ahead 6-4. In the ninth, Frank White singled and scored on a double by Steve Balboni off John Montefusco, appearing in his first major-league game since last May 14.

Leibrand, 17-9 for last year's world champions, didn't fare much better than Whitson, leaving after 3 1/2 innings. He walked six and gave up four runs on four hits before giving way to Farr.

In the Royals' third, Brett hit a 2-0 pitch from Whitson off the facing of the upper deck in right field. Two outs later, Balboni doubled and Whitson was replaced by Shirley. Singles by Rudy Law and Jim Sundberg drove in two more runs and the Royals led 5-2.

The Yankees got a run in the bottom of the inning when Leibrand walked Wynegar with the bases loaded. Mattingly drove in the Yankees' final run with a grounder in the fourth inning, chasing Leibrand.

With the potential tying run at third, Farr retired Winfield on a grounder to the mound and pinch hitter Mike Easter on a fly ball.

Toronto 3 Texas 1

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — Toronto's Doyle Alexander scattered seven hits in 8 1/2 innings and posted his 15th career victory Wednesday night as the Blue Jays beat Texas 3-1 and spoiled rookie Edwin Correa's debut with the Rangers.

Correa, at 19 the youngest player in the big leagues, was struck in the left leg by Rance Mullinik's line drive in the fourth inning and came out of the game after the fifth. He yielded five hits, struck out eight and walked two.

Baltimore 4 Cleveland 3

BALTIMORE (AP) — Pinch hitter Juan Bonilla hit a two-run double off the right-field wall with two out in the ninth inning to give the Baltimore Orioles a 4-3 win over the Cleveland Indians Wednesday.

Pinch hitter Fred Lynn opened the inning with a walk and Scott Bailes, making his major league debut, relieved Dickie Noles. Bailes walked Mike Young, but retired the next two batters before Bonilla punched a wind-aided double, scoring Lynn and Young.

Minnesota 5 Oakland 4

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Kent Hrbek broke a 3-3 tie with a run-scoring, eighth-inning double off Oakland reliever Jay Howell, and the Minnesota Twins beat the A's 5-4 Wednesday.

Hrbek, who also had the game-winning RBI in the Tuesday night season-opener, drove the ball into the right field corner to score Kirby Puckett from second base. Hrbek scored on a two-out single by Roy Smalley.

Detroit 6 Boston 5

DETROIT (AP) — Dave Wilson, who snapped the 1-1 tie with his fly ball to center.

Baltimore's pinch-hit single with bases loaded in the 10th inning drove in the winning run as the Detroit Tigers beat the Boston Red Sox 6-5 Wednesday.

Boston had taken a 5-4 lead in the top of the 10th. With two outs, Detroit reliever Willie Hernandez, 1-0, walked Glenn Hoffman and Ed Romero — ran for him — Romero went to second on a single by Dwight Evans and scored on a single by Wade Boggs to snap the 4-4 tie.

California 9 Seattle 5

SEATTLE (AP) — Brian Downing hit a pair of two-run homers and Wally Joyner added a two-run shot to lead the California Angels to a 9-5 victory over the Seattle Mariners on Wednesday night.

Joyner's first major-league home run in the third inning pulled the Angels to within 4-3 and Downing's first homer of the game, which followed Doug DeCinces' double, gave the Angels a 5-4 lead. The Angels batted around in the third, scoring five runs off Mark Langston.

In the top of the eighth with California leading 6-5, Downing followed a single by DeCinces with his second homer, lining lined a pitch from Paul Mirabella into the same area of the left-field stands.

Milwaukee 4 Chicago 3

CHICAGO (AP) — Robin Yount

struck three singles, scored once and knocked in a run as Milwaukee edged the Chicago White Sox 4-3 Wednesday.

Righthander Tim Lincecum, 1-0, gave up just five hits and two runs in the 10th. Steve Seargeant got the save as the Brewers beat the White Sox for the second straight game.

Chicago starter Richard Dotson, 1-0, was tagged for five hits and four runs in six innings. In his first regular season appearance in 10 months, Dotson was sidelined last June 7 and underwent chest surgery in July to remove some muscle that was cutting off blood circulation to his right shoulder.

Milwaukee was scoreless until the fourth, when Yount opened with a single, and Paul Mollitor and Billy Reidsma drew consecutive walks to load the bases with no outs.

Ernest Riles struck out, but Rob Deer dribbled a checked-swing ground out to third, scoring Yount. Paul Houghsford followed with a double off the right field wall to score two more runs before Jim Gantner fouled out to end the inning.

Chicago got a run back in the fifth when rookie John Cangelosi walked, stole second and third, and scored on Wayne Tolleson's double to left. In the sixth, Greg Walker ripped Leary's first pitch off the top of the right-field wall. At first the ball appeared headed out of the park, but the wind kept it in and Walker was held to a triple. Aron Kittle and Tim Lincecum struck out, Ozzie Guillen beat out an infield single to score Walker.

Gantner led off the seventh with a single, sending Dotson to the showers after 104 pitches.

NL: Welch hurls L.A.'s second shutout of Padres

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Bob Welch is a quick worker and sometimes in his "rush" to deliver for the Los Angeles Dodgers, his speedy work gets him in a jam.

Such was not the case Wednesday night as the Dodgers right-hander dispatched the San Diego Padres 1-0, just three singles. Welch's masterpiece took just one hour, 50 minutes and 39 pitches.

"When I rush I get the ball up and I get hurt," Welch said after recording his 17th career shutout. "Perry (Dodgers pitching coach Ron Percival) was yelling for me to slow down. Mike Scioscia was really patient. He didn't give me the signal too quickly."

"The end result was that Welch was able to get his first pitch over consistently." The secret tonight was that I got ahead of them and I had good control," explained Welch, a 14-game winner last season.

Padres Manager Steve Boros also gave credit to his own pitcher, Andy Hawkins, who gave up just one run on seven hits.

"It was a well-pitched game by both sides," Boros said simply in a case of too much Bob Welch," Boros said.

In fashioning his 17th career shutout, the 29-year-old Welch struck out five and walked just one. Garry Templeton's one-out single up the middle in the third, a sixth-inning pop single by Hawkins, and a ninth-inning hit by Tim Flannery were the only hits the Padres could muster off Welch.

Hawkins "surrendered" just seven singles, but three of them came in a row to provide Los Angeles' only run in the fourth. Hawkins, an 18-game winner last year, struck out five while walking one in seven innings. Bill Madlock singled in a right-center and Greg Brock followed with a single to right. Madlock holding at second. Then Mike Marshall laced a single to left to drive in Madlock. It was the third straight pitching duel between the clubs in the young season. Fernando Valenzuela beat the Padres, Eric Show 2-1 Monday. San Diego's Dave Dravecky blanked Orel Hersheiser and the Dodgers 1-0 on Tuesday.

San Francisco 4 Houston 1

HOUSTON (AP) — San Francisco's Will Clark and Bob Melvin hit run-scoring doubles and Jeff Leonard scored two runs, leading the Giants to a 4-1 victory over the Houston Astros Wednesday night.

Leonard singled to open the fourth inning, Clark hit a home run in his first major league at bat Tuesday night, doubled to right field in the third inning, scoring Dan Gladden, who doubled to center.

Leonard singled to open the fourth inning, stole second and scored the Giants' second run on a double by Melvin to right field off Houston starter Mike Scott, 0-1. Leonard led off the sixth with a single to Dickie Roth, who fielded the ball deep at shortstop and threw late to first base. Leonard advanced to third on singles by Chris Brown and Melvin, loading the bases and chasing Scott.

Rob Thompson then grounded into a double play, scoring Leonard.

Philadelphia 5 Cincinnati 3

CINCINNATI (AP) — Glenn Wilson broke a 1-1 tie with an 11th-inning sacrifice fly and John Russell followed with a two-run homer Wednesday night to give the Philadelphia Phillies a 5-3 victory over the Cincinnati Reds.

The Phillies scored four times in the 11th off Ted Power, 0-1, the third Cincinnati pitcher. Garry Madrox led off with a single and Juan Samuel also singled. Both runners advanced on Mike Schmidt's long fly out, and Wilson snapped the 1-1 tie with his fly ball to center.

Third baseman Buddy Bell's fielding error on a grounder by Von Hayes let Samuel score, and Russell followed with his first homer.

The Reds got back a pair of runs in the bottom of the inning on Dave Concepcion's two-run single off Steve Brodosian, 1-0.

Left-hander Tom Browning, who last year became the first rookie 20-game winner since 1954, went eight innings allowing just one hit — an RBI single by former-Red Gary Redus in the third.

Eric Davis led off the Reds' first with his second homer of the season, a line drive over the left-field wall off left-hander Shane Rawley. Steve Jeltz drew a one-out walk from Browning in the third. First baseman Nick Esasky failed to bunt. Rawley's bunt, loading both runners safe. Then Redus slipped — a single to center — for the Phillies' first hit and run.

Correction

Due to a typesetting error, two lines were omitted from a story in Tuesday's edition of "The Times-News" previewing the Twin Falls-Minico high school baseball game, changing the meaning of the story. The error concerned Twin Falls' participation in the 1985 Gem State conference playoffs. The Bruins finished in fourth place in the regular season and hosted the first round of the playoffs, losing to Idaho Falls.

The Times-News regrets the error.

NHL playoffs: Toronto shocks Blackhawks

CHICAGO (AP) — Steve Thomas, who scored two goals in Toronto's surprising 5-3 victory over the Chicago Blackhawks on Wednesday night, said "The game plan was to provoke and not retaliate."

The Maple Leafs provoked early, but the Blackhawks retaliated and found themselves two men short when Thomas scored the first goal of the game at 4:07 of the first period.

"They like to come out and rough it up in the first 10 minutes," Thomas said. "I got my scoring goal at the perfect, opportune time."

Thomas scored his second goal at 17:47 of the final period to give the Leafs a 5-3 lead and kill off any hopes the Blackhawks might have had for a comeback in the closing minutes.

The Blackhawks had halted back into a tie at 2:22 on a power-play goal by Darryl Sutter at 4:48 of the third period.

"Toronto came back a little more than a minute later with Gary Leeman, breaking the tie on a pass from Thomas and Walt Poddubny's goal at 9:28 made it 4-2.

"We tried to play defense as well as possible, and we tried to utilize our speed," said Toronto Coach Dan Maloney, whose Maple Leafs had defeated the Blackhawks six times in eight games during the regular season.

"We played very well and tried to continue the trend we had all year," Maloney said. "Steve Thomas' first goal was a big goal. He played a great game."

But Ken Wreggett credited his defense with playing an outstanding game. "I've never seen (Chris) Kotopoulos play a better game," Wreggett said. "All I had to do was stop the puck and the defense cleared the rebounds."

The Hawks were without the services of Al Secord who was home nursing a temperature and Chicago Coach Bob Pulford said "I'm sure

Hockey

The Leafs were happy not to see Secord on the ice. I know I would be if I were Toronto."

Pulford also added "The loss means we're down by one game. It still takes three to win."

Lakes is the team's fourth leading scorer, with 76 points including 40 goals.

The series continues in Chicago on Thursday night and then shifts to Toronto for games Saturday and Sunday.

The Maple Leafs, who defeated the Blackhawks six times in eight games during the regular season, never trailed in the game, that was tied twice.

The Blackhawks were at a disadvantage almost immediately. Curt Fraser drew a double minor penalty for slashing and high-sticking 1:04 into the game, and Steve Ludzik drew two minutes for slashing at 2:14.

Edmonton 7 Vancouver 3
EDMONTON (AP) — Mike Krushynski and Kevin Lowe scored 42 seconds apart early in the third period to break up a tight game and send the defending Stanley Cup champion Edmonton Oilers to a 7-3 victory over the Vancouver Canucks Wednesday night in the first game of their NHL playoff series.

Game two of the best-of-five Smythe Division series will be played here Thursday night.

Montreal 3 Boston 1
MONTREAL (AP) — Bobby Smith scored two of three second-period goals for Montreal, while rookie goaltender Patrick Roy provided several key saves to lead the Canadiens to a 3-1 triumph over the Boston Bruins in the first game of their NHL playoff series Wednesday night.

Smith scored his first goal on a wrist shot from the left side of the net that beat Bruins goaltender Pat Riggin past the glove hand at 6:53.

His second goal came on a backhand at 11:23.

Mike McPhee gave Montreal a three-goal cushion five minutes later.

Roy was working on a shutout until Gord Kluzak barred a rebound through the goalie's legs with 5:14 remaining in the third period on a power play.

Just 15 seconds later, Boston's Louis Sleigher flattened Roy behind the Canadiens net. But defenseman Larry Robinson came to his rescue and landed several hard rights to Sleigher's face before the linesmen got between them.

Roy, who faced 226 shots, was especially sharp in the first period. Boston bottled up the Canadiens' offense for a 1-7 margin on shots on goal. The Canadiens got most of their shots in the last two minutes, when they had a power play.

St. Louis 2 Minnesota 1
BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP) — Doug Gilmour's short-handed breakaway goal with 12:54 left in the game lifted the St. Louis Blues to a 2-1 victory over the Minnesota North Stars Wednesday night in the first game of their best-of-five opening-round Stanley Cup playoff series.

Goaltender Rick Wamsley made 27 saves as the Blues turned back the Stars' offense in the first quarter. North Stars' rivals that swept them out of last year's NHL playoffs. The teams met for the second game of the series here Thursday night.

With the contest tied 1-1 and Berno Federko in the penalty box for tripping, a drop pass by Minnesota's Scott Bjorklund intended for Kent Nilsson was intercepted at the Minnesota blue line by Rick Meagher.

Meagher fed Gilmour at mid-ice and the third-year center skated straight at North Stars goalie Don Bouqure before pushing the puck through the retreating netminder's pads.

The Blues executed their grinding offense to perfection most of the game. They were content to keep the bulk of the action at center ice and keep two defensive players back much of the time.

Minnesota managed only three shots in the scoreless first period on a goal by Don Eason. Eason bounced on a loose puck in the Quebec end, pivoted and blasted a rising 25-foot shot from the right face-off circle past a surprised Malarchuk.

Hartford 3 Quebec 2
QUEBEC (AP) — Sylvain Turgeon scored at 2:36 of overtime to give the Hartford Whalers a 3-2 upset victory over the Quebec Nordiques in the first game of their NHL playoff series series Wednesday night.

Turgeon dug the puck off the boards to the left of Quebec goaltender Clint Malarchuk, moved in front and fired a low shot into the short-side corner to give the fourth-place Whalers a victory over the Adams Division champions in the opener of this best-of-five series.

Brent Ashton had sent the first-round Adams Division series into overtime when he tied the game for the Whalers at 12:47 of the third period. Ashton took a drop pass from Peter Stastny at the edge of the faceoff circle and drilled a slapshot past Mike Liut on the stick side.

The Whalers had taken the lead when forward Nordique John Anderson notched a power-play goal midway through the third period.

Anderson, who came to Hartford on March 4 for defenseman Ed Silanen, scored when he deflected a low shot from the point past netminder Malarchuk at 9:29.

Quebec got a break 47 seconds into the game when Hartford defenseman Ulf Samuelsson was sent off for a high-sticking minor.

The Nordiques capitalized with three seconds left in the penalty as Michel Goulet passed the puck from behind the Whalers' net to Anton Stastny, who ripped a 10-foot shot through Liut's legs at 2:44.

The Whalers tied the game with just 49 seconds left in the first period on a goal by Don Eason. Eason bounced on a loose puck in the Quebec end, pivoted and blasted a rising 25-foot shot from the right face-off circle past a surprised Malarchuk.

Washington 3 N.Y. Islanders 1
LANDOVER, Md. (AP) — Bob Carpenter, considered a nonblat starter because of a knee injury, scored the winning goal at 11:46 of the second period as the Washington Capitals defeated the New York Islanders 3-1 in Wednesday night's opening game of their NHL playoff series.

Game 2 will be played here Thursday night.

Carpenter suffered a hyperextended right knee in Sunday's final regular season game. He skated for the first time Tuesday, and then kept alive his streak of never having missed a game in his five NHL seasons. Washington's Mike Gartner, who had an arthroscopic knee operation on March 28, also returned to action.

Carpenter's backhanded rebound of a Scott Stevens shot gave Washington a 2-1 lead and Dave Christian added an insurance tally at 15:45 of the third period.

Goalie Kelly Hrudey, starting in place of old Washington nemesis Billy Smith, stopped a shot by Jorgen Pettersson prior to Washington's final goal. Defenseman Dennis Polvin' started control of the puck momentarily, but Christian poked it off Polvin's stick and into the net for an unassisted goal.

N.Y. Rangers 6 Philadelphia 2
PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Rookie Mike Ridley scored twice and handed out an assist as the highly-favored Philadelphia Flyers 6-2 Wednesday night in the first game of their best-of-five NHL playoff series.

The Rangers had lost to the Flyers in the NHL's top defensive team 18 times in their last 19 meetings in the past three years. They had not defeated the Flyers at the Spectrum in nine games.

New York scored the victory during a rough-and-tumble game against the NHL's top-goaltender, Bob Froese.

Calgary 5 Winnipeg 1
CALGARY (AP) — Lanny McDonald and John Tonelli scored long distance goals and goaltender Mike Vernon played an outstanding game in his first appearance in the Stanley Cup playoffs as the Calgary Flames defeated the Winnipeg Jets 5-1 Wednesday night.

The best-of-five Smythe Division series continues here with Game 2 Thursday night.

Gminski sparks New Jersey to still another upset of Celtics

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) — There are some nice things about everything an athlete does goes right. Mike Gminski had one of those nights against the Boston Celtics Wednesday.

Gminski set career marks with 41 points and 22 rebounds and the New Jersey Nets became, on the second NBA team to defeat Boston twice this season with a 108-89 victory over the Celtics on Wednesday night.

"As an athlete you can't do anything wrong," Gminski said. "Things were flowing tonight. It's such a great feeling to have a game like this against a team like them."

Gminski hit 15 of 22 shots from the field and 11 of 12 free throws in beating his previous high of 30 points as a rookie. His 22 rebounds were two better than his previous best.

"Our main objective tonight was to control the defensive boards," Gminski said. "We wanted to put a body on their big men and prevent second shots."

The victory came just a couple of days after Nets Coach Dave Wohl ripped his team in the local media for lacking the killer instinct and being underachievers.

"When players read things in the newspaper, it stings a little," he said. "I think that's good. Sometimes players have to play a little angry."

Pro basketball

Gminski said, "There were a lot of problems there. I felt that we should have won but the series graduated the week before the meet and that didn't help. Also, the boys went so hard in the 800-meter relay that it really gassed out some of them."

Bishop Kelly nipped Jerome by a point for this season's state cross-country title, but five of seven Tiger runners in that field return next year for another attempt.

"That will be the beginning of the next 16 years and afford Dunne the opportunity to coach son Timothy, now, in a 100 and the first boy to win state in the 100 and the mile," his dad predicts with a smile.

Celtics Coach K.C. Jones said the Celtics just didn't have their heads in the game.

"It's difficult to get up for a team like this," he said. "We're set for the rest of the season. We have the best record in the league. We didn't need it. The only reason we played it was because it was scheduled and we had to."

L.A. Clippers 132 Denver 127
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Marjorie Johnson scored 22 points Wednesday night to lead Los Angeles to a 132-127 victory over the Denver Nuggets, but the Clippers were eliminated from an NBA playoff berth by San Antonio's victory at Phoenix.

The Clippers, who were kept abreast of San Antonio's progress Wednesday night by public address announcements, learned of their fate while holding an 87-80 lead with six minutes left in the third quarter.

The Spurs clinched the final Western Conference playoff spot with a 114-102 victory over the Suns.

The final four minutes, leading the Sacramento Kings to a 113-108 NBA victory over the Utah Jazz Wednesday night.

The Sacramento victory spoiled a 45-point performance by Utah's Adrian Dantley who pulled ahead of Atlanta's Dominique Wilkins into first place in the NBA scoring race. Dantley is averaging 29.89 points per game and Wilkins is at 29.93. Both players have two games left.

San Antonio 114 Phoenix 102
PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Mike Mitchell scored 22 points and Artis Gilmore had eight of his 20 in the fourth quarter as the San Antonio Spurs claimed the eighth and final playoff berth in the NBA's Western Conference with a 114-102 victory over the Phoenix Suns Wednesday night.

The loss eliminated Phoenix from playoff contention for the first time in nine seasons.

San Antonio, playoff-bound despite a 3-4-7 record that is the worst in the history of the franchise, took the lead for good in the second quarter.

Steve Johnson, who had seven of his 10 points in the period, triggered a late 10-2 run for a 60-53 Spurs halftime lead.

Idaho 'driven to wall' on steel shot

Conley fears hunters will reject regulations limiting lead shot use

BOISE — "Driven to the wall," the Idaho Fish and Game Commission this week or early next week will authorize the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service to establish non-toxic shot zones throughout the state by this fall.

The action probably will come through a conference telephone to all five commissioners and Idaho Department of Fish and Game Director Jerry Conley, who, seeing the handwriting on the wall, through

'We're all going to take a lot of beating around the head over this. But I don't know in all honesty how we are going to reinforce it. We know we are going to see a high level of non-compliance.'

— Jerry Conley

an edict of the Department of the Interior, believes early capitulation will let Idaho duck and goose hunters gain a meager measure of benefit.

Conley announced his decision at an in-service training school after about 90 percent of the department's personnel heard three and one-half hours of background affecting the lead-to-steel shot conversion.

When the toxic zones are in place, a major portion of the Idaho panhandle, all lands abutting Snake River from Hammett to the Oregon border and a large portion of land surrounding the state's best goose-producing areas, ranging from a portion of Cassia County to varying amounts of counties that surround American Falls Reservoir will be affected. This will include all of the Flathead Indian Reservation.

In total, the restriction will apply to three entire counties, plus at least portions of 13 others. Conley emphasizes that the first round of placement will accommodate the requirements of the endangered species act and that alone in a one-time adjudication. The waterfowl poisoning criteria for "hot spot" designation in these areas will be an ongoing application that will have effect in the near future.

Conley said the only benefit would be giving arms companies as much notice as possible that Idaho has now become a major steel shot market. He noted that some areas that underwent the change rapidly last year faced a seasonal rise in prices for scarce steel shells.

Idaho, along with several western states in the Pacific Flyway, was caught in a major conflagration that smoldered for several years, and bursting into flame last August. Tinder was added with the publishing of federal guidelines for bald eagles under the endangered species act, which took effect on Jan. 6.

Conley pointed out that the "problem," which reached both sides of the Idaho Legislature, had developed rapidly in both complexity and frustration. But the bottom line for the Fish and Game Commission remains: "driven to the wall, it is better to authorize the Fish and Wildlife Service to put the non-toxic zones in place than shut down the season in areas that provide 50 percent of the duck and goose harvest in Idaho.

That those were the only two alternatives available to the state was explained by Jim Bartonek, Portland, Western Flyway representative for the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service.

Bartonek said the service's options similarly were reduced to zero last year when the Texas federal district judge sided with the suing National Wildlife Federation and ordered the Interior Department to implement safeguards under the endangered species act to prevent the loss of bald eagles through ingestion of lead pellets scavenged from waterfowl killed with lead shot. He said service now has 100 documented instances of bald eagle death from lead shot.

Bartonek further stated that the Wildlife Federation has "returned to the same judge in the same district" in Texas to seek a judicial order that all lead shot must be banned nationally by 1987. Bartonek said the service had little reason to believe the judge would be any more reluctant to favor the Wildlife Federation this time than he did last August.

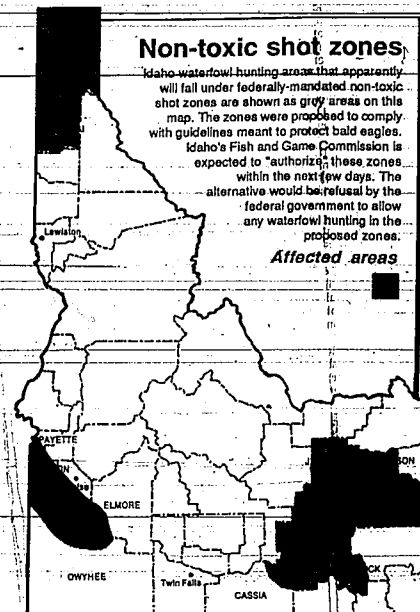

The judge's ruling was rendered on Aug. 14 last year, and included the stipulation that the non-toxic requirements must be in force in last season's identified lead shot spots.

Up to that point, the service, although armed with all the studies of lead poisoning, had moved slowly toward the conversion to non-toxic shot, Bartonek said. This included letting the various flyways pretty well establish their own pace toward that end.

Also integral to the slow-paced procedure was the Stevens amendment,

Non-toxic shot zones

Idaho waterfowl hunting areas that apparently will fall under federally mandated non-toxic shot zones are shown as gray areas on this map. The zones were probed to comply with guidelines meant to protect bald eagles. Idaho's Fish and Game Commission is expected to "authorize" these zones within the next few days. The alternative would be refusal by the federal government to allow any waterfowl hunting in the proposed zones.

which made it impossible for the service to spend any money to implement or enforce non-toxic shot zones "without authorization" of the affected state. He noted the service had suggested the Deer Flat Refuge as Idaho's first non-toxic shot zone. Idaho's commission refused to authorize it and the service dropped that project.

But in 1985 the service, under various criteria, identified 29 counties in eight states as hot spots. When the affected states refused authorization, the Wildlife Federation, a sportsman organization, stepped in and asked the Texas judge to establish these zones under judicial direction. In just about all instances, including major refuges in California and Oregon, the states acquiesced to the judge and service.

Bartonek also noted that some states, Wyoming particularly, had developed legislation prohibiting a banning of either lead shot or steel shot. To accommodate the Texas judge's ruling, the service was left no alternative — but only an option — as to "preferred" procedures for compliance with the 1987 hunting season.

In addition, the original ruling applied to all migratory birds from snipes to mourning doves, but after hearing subsequent arguments, the judge later released doves from the criteria of this ruling.

Bartonek emphasized that the "no-action" alternative was not a provision for allowing the status quo.

"The no-action alternative is no open hunting," he said. As a result of its state law which forbids the banning of lead shot, Wyoming will not be allowed to conduct any migratory bird seasons in its top two harvest counties this fall. And it will be up to Wyoming to bring its statutes into line with the federal government's before hunting will resume, he said.

Bartonek said the service and the Interior Department is congressionally authorized to make those decisions, noting that when the 1917 migratory bird treaties were signed, Congress retained final authority. It subsequently voted that authority to the Interior Department, which handed it on to the service.

On Jan. 6, the service published its new, more extensive list of non-toxic shot zones. The Wildlife Federation followed up with its second suit, asking the Texas judge not only to establish all those zones as published but also to outlaw all lead shot in this country by the 1987 hunting season.

Given that as background, Conley said Idaho's choices were reduced simply to hunting or not hunting. He said the problem has two faces.

Manufacturers stress advantages of steel shot: speed, impact

By LARRY HOVEY Times-News writer

BOISE — Expense, range and safety of older guns usually are the major objections anti-steel shot sportsmen use to argue for the continued use of lead shot.

But Milt Stevens, a representative of Federal Cartridge Company, and Jack Rench, Portland, co-owner of Nontoxic Components, Inc., told Idaho Fish and Game Department personnel at their annual in-service training school on Tuesday that technology is rapidly advancing steel shot into a superior product.

For the most part, both men cited the speed of lead shot (1,350 feet per second muzzle velocity) against lead (1,200 fps), as an advantage hunters will prefer over the slower lead delivery, once they learn to use steel shot.

Stevens said his company participated in an industry-wide safety program which generally indicated that any of the more popular makes and models of shotguns made after 1985 may be converted to steel shot without fear of blowing up a barrel. He added that in most cases, barrel bulging near the forcing cone has been proven "cosmetic" and is not considered a safety threat.

He said another study by his company indicated that the "dealer is the most important factor in this transition."

"The one who is explaining to his customers how it works and why it has to be used has sold the product to satisfied customers and continued in business while the dealer who has been negative about steel shot to his customers has gone out of business," Stevens said.

He said more than anything, the powder being used is the key. Being lighter and much less impervious to distortion than lead, steel shot requires a slower burning powder to propel the shot. But once in motion, steel will outrace lead propelled by faster-burning powder.

"The industry is constantly looking for new loads and the powder companies could come up with those," Stevens said.

He said federal tests had showed steel shot has a five percent tighter pattern than the premium copper loads. The modified choke provided the best patterns and most kills.

"The ideal alternative for lead shot is gold," Stevens said with a smile. "But I don't think any of you could afford a lot of those shells."

He noted that dealers have enjoyed a seller's market in some places, but run into competition in others. He noted areas that were hit with the sudden non-toxic zones just before hunting season last fall had trouble obtaining sufficient steel shot shells. A box of steel shot in those areas could run up to $14 each. But areas with established non-toxic shot areas already had their orders in and those dealers were getting shot for $7 to $8 per box.

Asked if his company could provide sufficient steel shot if Idaho and Washington went non-toxic in key areas this fall, Stevens said "it would be very tough. I think the in-'The (dealer) who is explaining to his customers how it works and why it has to be used has sold the product... the dealer who has been negative about steel shot has gone out of business.'

— Milt Stevens

dustry would take care of it this year but we really needed to know yesterday," he added with a smile.

But Stevens remained confident that when "the supply" pipe is filled up, you'll see good bargains in steel shot.

Rench said he and his partner, Mark Walter, saw a void and filled it: steel shot reloading — something they told you "couldn't be done." Steelshot reloading "has come of age. It is a different ball game. It requires more conscious attention in establishing charges — but the precautions necessary are really on things that we (reloader) should have been doing all along."

Rench noted that his current Nontoxic Components manual offered 40 different loads and the next one coming off the press soon will have "55" recipes for virtually every American-made ball.

He said new devices have stopped "bridging" of shot and others allow shot charges — to be measured to within one-tenth of a grain.

He said the basic rule of thumb was to go up two sizes to attain the same performance of lead shot. He noted that because steel shot is about 30 percent lighter than steel, the volume is greater in the same load. Steel usually will be a few less by count, but because of lighter pattern and shorter shot train, the number of pellets at the desired point at the desired time probably

Sportsmen owe debt of admitting their part in creating this scenario

TWIN FALLS — When the top duck hunting grounds in Idaho are officially go under the non-toxic shot designation in Idaho sometime in the next few days, a great deal of recrimination and head-bunting may break out among hunters.

But to blame anyone in Idaho, from the commission right down to the newest conservation officer, would be similar to blaming the messenger for bringing the bad news. They had no choice. They fought as long as they could.

And let's be exact in understanding this: While the move to non-toxic shot has long been considered a foregone conclusion, the haste in the final days was brought on not by biologists and commissioners but by sportsmen.

While a federal district judge in Texas has been knocking on the single-handedly rendered the decision that says you can't use ole Beasoy out in the marshes any more, it was the National Wildlife Federation, composed totally and controlled solely by sportsmen, that brought on the quick final decision.

Under criteria established just two weeks ago by the Pacific Flyway in Reno, you would have had to graduate to steel — until 1991 to comply with the move to non-toxic shot. If the federation and the judge have their way — and there's a little reason to doubt they won't — lead shot for waterfowl hunting is to pass as of opening day 1987.

You may still use lead shot for upland game shooting. In non-toxic shot zones it is officially made un-usable but you can still use it. But returning to the original premise, it will do no good for sport-men to get up in arms over this. It is a fait accompli. Nothing you or anyone can do is going to change it.

The Boise-Vampa-Caldwell area currently has about 1,000 hunters in arms who want someone's head and the most visible right now is that of Idaho Department of Fish and Game Director Jerry Conley. They want his head. They already have started demanding it. They say Conley didn't do enough. But who could have done more? Who in Idaho could have done anything?

When a Texas judge states the right to tell you what you will or won't shoot in your gun, you get the idea that reverse carpet-bagging is being visited on the north. It also gives you an understanding of how the Civil War was fought over this "state's rights" thing.

It will always be thus with the liberal viewpoint that anything not proscribed by the Constitution means it can be done legislatively, as opposed to the conservative viewpoint that unless expressly allowed by the Constitution, the federal government must acquiesce to the sovereignty of the states.

It leaves us in the unenviable position that the judicial branch, which is constitutionally allowed only to determine the constitutionality of a law, can in actuality legislate.

If you hate strict construction, you gotta love living now.

The people opposed to steel shot enforcement made assumptions and put confidence in things that everyone else knew wouldn't hold up.

The Stevens amendment — which said no money would be used to establish non-toxic shot zones, study impact of lead poisoning or enforce non-toxic shot zones — slowed things for several years but did not stand up under the final pressure.

Those who dismissed warnings that the endangered species act was the greatest threat to lead shot now know better. It was the endangered species act that was the final inelusive scalpel that cut steel shot free.

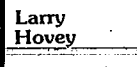

States like Wyoming and Maryland had legislatures that felt they could circumvent the steel-shot ruling. Today, both of these states are looking at closed seasons in their most productive waterfowl areas. And until those same state legislatures abrogate their earlier laws, those closures will remain in effect.

There are those in Idaho who felt that our legislature could mimic Wyoming and Maryland. There was legislation in both Idaho houses. The one in the Senate would have outlawed steel shot. The one in the House ended up as a non-binding resolution urging Idaho to refuse authorization for non-toxic zones.

It was the commission, the department and Conley, backed by a lot of sportsmen, who helped in stopping these bills short of official enactment.

Had either of those bills come into law, here's what you'd be looking at right now.

Territorial fights are natural

Steelhead phone survey set

Men, animals both face them

Mike Harrop
Outdoors

I approached the ranch house and I watched in amazement as one of my dogs rushed around, snapping her jaws at the air above her and barking.

And as I drew closer, I realized the nature of the problem that had driven Maudie to apparent madness: The blackbirds were back.

As Maudie whirled and snapped, a feathered mass of glossy midnight plumbed from a tree and attacked the dog, trying to drive her from the blackbirds' chosen nesting territory.

Maudie resented the intrusion on her napping territory, where she liked to snooze away comfortable afternoons.

From the dog's point of view, the lawn was everything — shade, open air, shelter from the wind and a colony of cottontail rabbits that live under the porch.

Until recent years, she's had to share it with no one other than two other dogs and an occasional visiting rattlesnake.

But things changed when the blackbirds moved into the neighborhood.

Brewer's blackbirds are extremely territorial, defending the area chosen as nesting colonies from many other songbirds and from any predator they can successfully harass.

They'll take on a crow, a coyote or a man. Often, they're the small birds you see chasing a hawk or eagle through the skies.

And when five or six pairs of blackbirds choose a nesting site directly above a bird dog's favored napping site, something would ordinarily give.

The blackbirds were successful in running off my two older dogs, but Maudie is long on energy and may be a little crazy.

She lies on the lawn, pretending to sleep while the angry blackbirds chatter at her from the trees above.

And as soon as one of the feathered pests tries an attack, Maudie leaps as high as she can into the air, trying to catch her tormentor.

Often, the bird is able to dodge away, but Maudie occasionally gets her jaws on one of the offenders. Bye-bye blackbird.

Maudie catches one every week or so. And she hopes that someday, she'll run out of blackbirds and get some peace and quiet.

But one of the precepts of territoriality is that there is always a surplus of would-be mated pairs for every occupied songbird habitat.

Thus, when my dog catches one of the attackers, she isn't getting rid of a bird. She's making room in the nesting habitat for another. And a new bird will occupy the territory within a week.

Naturally, the situation has evolved into a stand-off. The birds don't dare land on the lawn and the dog can't climb trees. Neither is likely to displace the other.

The concept of territoriality can be extended to man as Robert Ardrey did in his "Territorial Imperative." Ardrey used the concept that an animal will seize and defend a territory to the death to explain wars, the existence of nations, street gangs and the frustration often felt by city dwellers, whose territories often occupy only a hundred square feet of furnished room.

You can see territorial disputes over campgrounds, fishing holes, and access to deeded land on nearly any summer weekend.

In Idaho, we've developed an entire class of landless fisherman because of social and legal acceptance of the rights of territory.

Consider the problems that local fishermen have gaining streamside access to Silver Creek in Blaine County.

Because of its nearness to Sun Valley, Silver Creek has attracted a class of landowners foreign to Idaho traditions.

Generally, ranchers in this state used to allow fishermen to walk in and fish or hunt on private property. As long as problems didn't arise, it wasn't necessary to ask permission.

But no trespassing signs have increased with the number of outdoormen.

These days, it is necessary to ask permission whether a sign is present or not — the law has significant penalties which include revoking the right to buy hunting and fishing licenses.

But on Silver Creek, landowners have begun to say "no" even when you ask permission. Some object to your presence, others want to sell the fishing rights or keep it all for themselves.

In a case like that, it is OK to do what the blackbirds do to my dog. It is perfectly all right to circumvent the landowner's rights, if only to maintain your own rights.

Although you can't stand on the bank above the high-water line, it is perfectly okay to walk down the stream itself provided that you stay below the high-water line.

Mike Harrop is an award-winning outdoor writer who operates a ranch near Bliss.

BOISE — About 1,800 steelhead anglers will soon be getting telephone calls from the Department of Fish and Game asking them for their report on fishing success during the 1985 fall steelhead season. The annual survey helps the department set up management guidelines for future steelhead seasons in Idaho. Each respondent gets a letter in advance along with a questionnaire.

After the blanks are filled in, the answers are easy when the telephone call comes. Anglers are asked how many days they fished in each river section open for steelhead, how many fish were kept and how many were released. In the last survey, the harvest was estimated at 31,000 for 1984 spring and fall seasons, almost on a par with the record 32,200 caught the previous year.

The federal government wouldn't let you use lead shot, the state would have outlawed steel. Ergo, from Hammett to the Oregon line, the top three counties in the panhandle and most of the land surrounding American Falls Reservoirs — including Fort Hall Indian Reservation en toto — would be closed.

And don't feel smug if you live and/or hunt in other areas.

A U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service list shows that Gooding County is the second best duck harvest producing county in the state, with an estimated 25,700 kills per year. Twin Falls is 10th at 10,500. Gooding already is included in the steel shot area. Under service criteria, Gooding and Twin Falls will enter that classification by 1987, or 1989 at the latest. (And that only if the Texas judge doesn't outlaw lead shot completely in the meantime.)

The criteria are drawn more tightly — as to number of released birds, percentage of gizzards found with lead shot in them and number of birds harvested — so that by 1988, nothing in the state will be missed.

Right now, for a number of reasons (not the least being the hard-headedness of some legislators), rather than complaining about loss of lead shot in some areas, the majority of Idaho waterrowers should be thankful they will even get afield next year.

There were those among us who would have given that up — ad infinitum, evidently — to make the opposite point.

Larry Hovey is a sportswriter for The Times-News.

would be greater than lead. Because it is quicker, steel shot requires a lighter powder load, to accomplish the same thing as lead. Rench said usually one ounce is enough for steel.

He added improved shot cups, wadings, etc., have made reloading safe for most newer model guns, adding that a reloader can probably save in the area of 50 percent over purchasing factory-made lead shells, while reloaders should save about 40 percent with steel.

In that area, Rench said states should rethink their position on allowable chill size. He noted BBs were the largest allowed by Idaho, but to get comparable performance, the "T" steel shot would be required. He urged states to allow for that increase.

ENERGYGUIDE

Yearly Cost

The yellow EnergyGuide labels help you compare the operating cost of one model with another. The Federal Trade Commission requires manufacturers to place them on refrigerators, freezers, dishwashers, and clothes washers.

The easiest way to see if an appliance is energy-efficient is to look at the bar graph across the center of the label. The most efficient models have "This Model" indicators on the far left of the graph.

You can also compare the energy efficiency of different models by comparing their estimated annual operating costs. The big number underneath the arrow is based on a national average electric rate, which varies from label to label.

EPA recommends that the label be used instead of the big number. Pick a rate that is closest to your own utility rate (such as 4 cents/kWh). Then compare all models at that rate. The lower the operating cost, the more energy-efficient the model is.

All new appliances look fine at the starting line. But when they start to run, some of these hot new models don't look so hot. Because they waste electricity. And money.

run with the right crowd

The best models money can buy save energy all the way to the finish line. Plug them in and these freezers, refrigerators, dishwashers and clothes washers won't waste watts — or hot water — because they're built with better door seals. More insulation. And more efficient motors.

pick a winner at the starting line

You don't have to work up a sweat — or give up your favorite features — to pick a winner. Just ask your salesperson to show you the most efficient machines and compare the yellow EnergyGuide labels. Take the winners home, plug them in — and relax. They'll give you a great run for your money. For now and for the future.

Energy-efficient appliances. They work out better in the long run. For all of us.

Don't waste money on energy wasters. Cold facts. Hot ideas.

Tribal fish official sees good signs

LAPWAI (AP) — Northwest Indians and state agencies have worried too much in the past about catching fish, according to the director of the Columbia River Inter-tribal Fish Commission.

Wapato, like some 70 other Indian and government agency officials, participated Tuesday in the Northwest Tribes Fisheries Co-management Conference.

A hopeful sign, Wapato said, is that the rash of court suits that have shaped salmon and steelhead management in recent decades appears to be diminishing.

Indians often agreed with the outcomes of those suits, which more often than not upheld treaty fishing rights, he said. But the reality is those suits failed to produce any more fish.

Sharing of information has helped to accomplish that goal. "We have gotten rid of a lot of the baggage of fighting over data," he added.

One of his fears, however, is that the individuals who have aided progress cannot occupy their positions forever. The tribes and agencies have yet to make such cooperation part of their standard procedures, and that endangers past victories, Wapato said.

Jack Weyland, Washington Game Department director, shares Wapato's aversion for the past. The fish wars that divided the Indians and the states and pitted state against state were unnecessary and ridiculous, Weyland said.

There is a problem of emotionalism here," Conley said. "It is easy for the county which is not affected to say to its neighbor 'It's time to show these feds we can take a stand.'"

He said the major problem now is that the department will be perceived as the "bad guy" by Indians who stand opposed to steel shot.

"We must go out knowing we have severe problems and sit down with our hunters and explain the situation to them," Conley said. "We know our concern must be for the resource and not the problems of the eastern states."

"We're all going to take a lot of beating around the head over this," he assured department employees. "But I don't know in all honesty how we are going to enforce it. We know we are going to see a high level of non-compliance."

Conley said "trying to battle back from the other side — proving areas are not hot spots — wouldn't be economically feasible."

"Why spend $100,000 on test projects as an effort to disprove something that already has been made a foregone conclusion?" he asked. "That money would be better spent improving habitat."

He said Idaho had aligned itself with the Pacific Flyway timetable, established last month in Reno, that had placed 1991 as the final lead shot cutoff date.

He said the only options now available would be negotiations as to geographic boundaries of the non-toxic zones and/or proving the eagles and ducks were not in the same area at the same time. The latter is a possibility in the panhandle zone, Conleysaid, "the southeastern and southwestern areas look locked in."

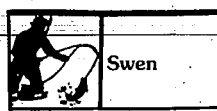

Sportsmen irate over proposed private licenses

Should Idaho set up a game-prussing system similar to Europe's where landowners post their land and manage it for their own hunting and fishing?

The Idaho House Resources and Conservation Committee approved such a measure for consideration in the house.

The bill would allow the Idaho Fish and Game Commission to issue special licenses to land holders, less-than-members of their immediate family to get these special licenses to "harvest" the game upon their land.

Out-of-state landowners and corporate landowners may control a large portion of hunting and fishing access in the state of Idaho.

Swen

"What in hell are they fellows in Boise trying to do to us?" was just one comment at a recent sportsman meeting.

When you purchase any fishing equipment, you pay an additional tax to the federal government to improve recreational fishery management programs.

At least when the bill was passed, this was the purpose of the additional tax.

Some of the money is being spent just for such purposes.

The problem comes with the budget cutting process. Like so many of these do-good taxes, it begins to accumulate, the politicians have control of the funds, and if they do not spend the money a pot develops, and in the case of the Sport Fishing Enhancement fund, it has reached $7 million.

This amount of money, despite where it came from and despite where it is designated to go by law, is now a boon-dog.

The interest from this slush fund can be used to reduce the federal debt.

With more money coming in every day from your equipment purchases and politicians controlling where the money is to be used. The basic principle of the administration now in Washington is "don't spend it, and the interest can be used for many purposes."

If you happen to run into any politician who wants to establish a fund "to help the fishermen" smack him on the side of the head.

If you really want to help, help your local sportsman groups. It is they who are out there doing something, most are broke, most are in need of leaders and volunteers.

My fishing buddy from Boise, Marvin, would be glad to pay for fisher's trips to places we'd like to go if we could just catch up paying for the fisher's trips to places we've already been.

If your favorite monofilament is on sale and you would like to get a few years supply at the bargain prices, you must consider how long you can store fishing line and have it stay in good shape.

Berkley & Company reports that the two main enemies of monofilament fishing line is sunlight and heat.

The research chemists tell us that if you protect line by storing it away from light and heat, you can keep the line several years.
