Crash kills candidates

Busch, his wife, Reilly perish near Lemhi line

Pete Busch's Piper-Cherokee Arrow was downed near State Highway 28 in Clark County.

The Associated Press
BOISE — The crash of a single-engine plane in rugged mountainous terrain of eastern Idaho claimed the lives of Democratic congressional candidate Pete Busch, his wife and former state Sen. Terry Reilly, officials confirmed Friday.
Clark County Sheriff Daniel Jernberg, who coordinated the search for the wreckage, said all three victims died instantly when the plane apparently hit a hillside late Thursday.
"It looked like it was trying to gain altitude, strafe the side of a hill almost flat on the bottom of the aircraft and bounced along for about 200 feet," Jernberg said. "All three bodies were still in the cabin of the plane, and we believe the death was instantaneous on impact."
He said the Piper aircraft may have rolled over one time during the crash but the plane was generally intact when searchers reached it Friday morning.
Federal Aviation Administration investigators were scheduled to begin their probe into the cause of the crash on Saturday, but Jernberg said weather conditions in the area late Thursday were rainy with patches of heavy fog. That fog delayed the launching of a full-scale search for the plane until early Friday, he said.
The bodies of Busch, 51, his wife Charlene, 42, and Reilly, 38, one of two candidates for the Democratic lieutenant governor's nomination, were airlifted from the north fork of Burnt Canyon shortly before noon Friday, Jernberg said.
Busch, the only announced Democratic challenger to incumbent 1st-District Republican Congressman Larry Craig, was a retired Marine Corps fighter pilot who flew over 400 missions in Vietnam and was shot down once. He retired from the Marine Corps as a lieutenant colonel in 1976 and made a bid to unseat Republican U.S. Sen. James McClure two years ago but garnered only 27 percent of the vote.
"I'm shocked and saddened," Craig said as he was leaving the nation's capital to return to Idaho. "I considered both to be my friends and worthy opponents. Their interests lie primarily in the well-being of Idaho and in good government for the nation."

Reilly, who was vying with state Treasurer Majorie Ruth Moon for the party's lieutenant governor's nomination, was the first Democrat in 44 years to be elected to the state Senate from conservative Canyon County in southwestern Idaho.
The administrator of a nonprofit health care corporation served one two-year term, losing a re-election bid in 1984. In mid-1985, he became the first candidate of either party to announce for the office being vacated by Republican David Leroy, who is seeking the governor's chair.
"On word of the crash, Miss Moon immediately ceased her campaign activities."
Authorities began their search for the airplane after they lost contact with Busch shortly after 8 p.m., MST, Thursday about 65 miles northwest of Idaho Falls. He had taken off earlier in the day from Lewiston, about 500 miles away, and picked up Reilly in Coeur d'Alene shortly after lunch, officials said.
The FAA had no information on weather conditions in the area of the crash late Thursday, but a spokesman said the Idaho Falls area had 20-mile visibility with scattered cloud cover at 10,000 feet.
A limited ground search was launched late Thursday after the plane failed to arrive as scheduled in Idaho Falls. But it was not until

Regan claims a Libyan link getting 'close'

Carriers near battle positions

By BARRY SCHWEID
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — White House chief of staff Donald T. Regan said Friday the Reagan administration is "coming close" to concluding that Libya was linked to the fatal bombing of a West Berlin nightclub last weekend.
Amid heightened expectations of a possible U.S. military retaliation for recent incidents of terrorism, Regan was asked whether there would be an attack against Libya. "You wouldn't expect me to comment on anything like that, no way," he replied.
But he said "as far as most people are concerned" the evidence is incontrovertible that Col. Moammar Khadafi's regime was linked to the nightclub attack.
Asked whether that included the administration, the chief of staff replied, "Well, we haven't reached a final conclusion, but we're coming close."
Questioned by reporters after seeing President Reagan off to Camp David, Md., for the weekend, about whether that meant one could expect "the other shoe to drop, something to happen," Regan said: "Oh, I wouldn't think so. We just have to keep looking."
The carriers — Coral Sea and America, outbound from Spain and Italy, were expected to rendezvous near Sicily "where it won't take long to form a battle group and move out," a Pentagon official said.
"They (the carriers) might not form up until they're in the central Mediterranean," said one source who declined to be named publicly. A second, also speaking on ground of anonymity, said: "There doesn't seem to be anything imminent at this point."
The carriers are about a day's sailing time from the point in the cen-

Dole leads effort to draft bill easing military curbs

By SARA FRITZ
Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON — Republicans disclosed Friday that they are drafting legislation to give President Reagan full authority to use U.S. military forces to mount a global counterattack against terrorism for an unlimited period without ever seeking the approval of Congress.
The bill, to be introduced shortly by Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan., and a group of House Republicans, would exempt Reagan from any original action under the War Powers Resolution if he decides to authorize military strikes against Libya.
In fact, some Democrats criticized Reagan last month for failing to abide by the law when U.S. warplanes destroyed two Libyan targets.
"The War Powers Resolution requires the president to consult with Congress before committing U.S. forces to combat, to report to Congress within 48 hours after hostilities began and to obtain congressional approval if the president continues to use force beyond that period," said a spokesman for the House.
"The act as a vestige of the post-Vietnam era that has no application to the current situation," he said.
"Although the number of the bill is not certain, the War Powers Resolution would apply in the event of a counterattack by U.S. forces. They acknowledge that some members of Congress would like to try to limit the president's authority to use force in the future," he said.

Two FBI agents killed, five injured in gunplay

Battle started when theft suspects seen

By EVA PARZIALE
The Associated Press

MIAMI — A blazing gunbattle erupted when the FBI closed in on heavily armed suspected bank robbers Friday, leaving two agents and five suspects dead, five agents wounded and battered cars and spent ammunition littering a busy suburban intersection.
The half of bullets and shotgun blasts went "on and on and on," said one witness in Kendall, an unincorporated area south of Miami that is home to more than 100,000 people.
"I thought it was a drug deal that went bad, because that's what everyone does down here," said Duane Parker, 24, who said he saw the entire battle. "Then I thought it was a Miami Vice episode, but then I saw the blood and dead guys and thought, 'No way.'"
The slain agents were identified in an FBI release as Benjamin T. Grogan, 53, a 25-year veteran, and Jerry Dove, 30, an agent since 1982. Their hometowns were not included in the release. It was the first time since 1978 that two FBI agents were killed in a single incident.

After agents spotted the car they were looking for during surveillance, they radioed for backup, said Joseph V. Corless, special agent in charge of the Miami FBI.
"Apparently when they believed they had sufficient assistance, an attempt was made to pull this vehicle over. At that point a confrontation ensued, shots were fired," Corless said.
Witnesses said the agents interrupted their gunfire when motorists, unaware of what was happening, drove down the street.
"Those idiots kept going on through," said spectator Billie Holloway. "But the agents knew they were civilians and halted their fire."
FBI Director William H. Webster identified the slain suspects as Michael Platt, 32, and William R. Matix, whose age was not given. Speaking at a Washington, D.C., news conference, Webster said the Soviets end nuclear test ban in wake of Nevada explosion

By ALISON SMALE
The Associated Press

MOSCOW — The Soviet Union announced Friday it is ending its eight-month moratorium on nuclear testing because of continued U.S. tests. It accused America of putting military interests ahead of mankind's desire to end "nuclear madness."
A statement from the Soviet government published by the official Tass news agency said Moscow "declares itself free from the unilateral commitment made by it to refrain from conducting any nuclear explosions." The self-imposed ban began in August and was extended twice since.
The announcement came a day after the United States exploded a nuclear device 1,300 feet underground in Rainier Mesa, 93 miles northwest of Las Vegas, Nev. There had also been a test in Nevada on March 23.
The White House said Friday, after the Moscow announcement, that the United States will continue nuclear testing because national security requires it. Washington has rejected a moratorium, arguing that testing is needed as long as the West relies on a nuclear defense.
The Kremlin still was ready to start talks on a comprehensive nuclear test ban.
"The U.S.S.R. is prepared for any form talks, any type of agreement on that score, provided things advance toward reaching agreement," it said.
The statement did not say when the Soviets would resume underground nuclear tests, which are never announced here, but noted, "The Soviet state cannot forgive its own security and that of its allies if Washington is testing."
The Soviet ambassador to the United Nations, Yuri Dubinin, told a news conference there that "Nuclear tests are possible at any moment."
The statement carried by Tass did not mention the summit between Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev and President Reagan scheduled for this year in the United States, or how it might be affected by the test ban developments.
But Dubinin told the U.N. news conference that the Soviet decision to end its moratorium "brought no new element" to the negotiations for a summit.

Gorbachev said on March 29 that the moratorium would go beyond March 31, but only until the United States carried out its next nuclear test ban.

In February, Gorbachev said agreement on a nuclear test ban could help lead to swift agreement on a date for the next superpower summit.

On March 29, Gorbachev proposed meeting with Reagan in Europe to discuss a test ban, a suggestion Washington spokesman Edward Djerejian said Friday that, in response to earlier statements by Gorbachev that Moscow would resume testing, "We made it abundantly clear that we require nuclear testing for our security. Accordingly, we intend to pursue the current testing program."
"This, we have to note that the Soviets have been making preparations for some time now to resume nuclear testing," Djerejian added.

TWIN FALLS — Magie Valley residents will remember that Democratic-congressional candidate Pete Busch's fatal plane crash Thursday night was his first plane crash.

The day before, he had swept in to the airstrip for a landing, only to find it abandoned and covered with alfalfa and irrigation pipes. He set the plane down in a nearby field without mishap.

But on takeoff the next day, the plane's intake manifold became clogged with grain and then lost power, sending him just under some power lines and head-on into a canal embankment he was unable to climb over. The plane flipped upon impact.

A former U.S. Marine Corps fighter pilot with 400 missions, Busch said at the time that he had been shot down in North Vietnam and survived and he was meant to "carry out a mission," so he survived that crash and the Shoshone crash.

Busch's 1984 crash in Shoshone was investigated by the Lincoln County prosecutor after a citizen filed a complaint alleging reckless flying by Busch. No charges were brought, though then-prosecutor Doug Ross said Busch had made an error in judgment, both in landing the plane in a hayfield and taking off the next day.

Busch and his passenger, lieutenant governor candidate Jerry Kaylor, were the third and fourth political candidates to die in private plane crashes while traversing Idaho.

In September, 1966, Democratic gubernatorial candidate Charles Herndon died in a private plane crash in the Stanley Basin. Earlier that year, Republican congressional candidate John Mattmillier died in a plane crash near Kellogg.

car used in a robbery had disappeared and was believed dead. Corless, wearing dark glasses, was somber when he gave a terse statement to police. He refused to answer questions.

Behind him were four wrecked FBI cars that were involved in the fatal operation. One had slammed into a tree alongside the suspect's car, and two cars apparently hit each other. One of them had five holes, possibly from shotgun blasts.

Blood stained the street in two places where victims had fallen.

Dozens of agents and police swarmed to the middle-class neighborhood of shops and duplex homes after the gunbattle at the busy intersection shortly after 9:30 a.m.

The FBI would not say whether any suspects got away, and Metro-Dade police officers at the scene said they did not know whether any other suspects were involved.

"All I heard was the shots. There must've been 100 rounds fired. They were shooting for 10 minutes," said Mario Tejero, who was unloading a truck at an office complex near the scene.

"It went on and on and on," said Charlie Davis, who lives nearby. Agents Gordon McNeill, 43, a 19-year veteran, and John Hanlon, 48, with the FBI since 1963, were listed in serious but stable condition with gunshot wounds at Baptist Hospital, Corless said.

Busch met his wife Charlene during his unsuccessful Senate campaign two years ago, and they were married just two weeks after the election. Mrs. Busch was a school teacher in the Idaho Falls area and made an unsuccessful bid for the U.S. House seat to Republican Marilyn Stanger.

Since 1908, 27 FBI agents have been killed on duty, Corless said.

trial Mediterranean where they staged military exercises last month in the Gulf of Sidra. This prompted Libya to fire errant missiles and to receive a "withering retaliatory air assault in return."

"It seems we are going to retaliate," said Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton, D-Mo. "What that leads to, no one knows. DeConcini, D-Ariz., said they might be Soviet casualties if the United States bombed Libyan missile installations. Moscow has sent technicians to assist in handling the weapons they supplied to Libya."

But DeConcini, who is co-chairman of the Senate terrorism subcommittee, said even the risk of escalation should not deter Reagan. "I don't think the Soviets are prepared to come to the aid of Mr. Khadafi," he said. "He's a wild card for them."

France, which also kicked out two Libyans last month, is said to be very reluctant to support the U.S. campaign against Khadafi. Officials said the French were trying to derail plans to issue a joint statement condemning terrorism at the seven-nation economic summit meeting next month in Tokyo.

Deaths of Busches, Reilly sadden officials, friends

IDAHO FALLS (AP) — Friends and colleagues from both political parties expressed sadness Friday at the plane crash deaths of Democratic congressional candidate Pete Busch, his wife Charlene and Democratic lieutenant governor candidate Terry Reilly.

State Democratic Party Chairman Mel Morgan, Pocatello, described Reilly, 38, and Busch, 51, as "bright stars on the horizon."
 "Hearts, love and prayers should be extended to the families," Gov. John Evans said Friday.
 Rep. Richard Stallings, D-Idaho, said from Washington that the two candidates and Mrs. Busch, 42, were young, energetic and had so much to offer to the state. The state and families suffer a great loss. My office will provide what little comfort that can be extended to the grieving parties.
 Mrs. Busch, who taught in Idaho Falls and Swan Valley schools for 12 years, had a natural smile and was dedicated to the teaching craft, said Jerry Jacobson, superintendent of Idaho Falls School District.
 "Charlene was a very special person who loved to teach and who was very positive," he said. "She was a special lady for the children she taught."

Congressional candidate

TERRY REILLY
Running for state office

Former governor and Interior Secretary Cecil Andrus, a Democratic candidate for governor, said a great tragedy has once again struck state politics. I am sure that I join all Idahoans in being saddened.
 Two other candidates for lieutenant governor, Democrat state Treasurer Marjorie Ruth Moon and Republican Chuck Lempestis, a Post-Falls attorney, suspended campaign activities for the day. Miss Moon, who was campaigning in Idaho Falls on Friday, returned to Boise after hearing about the plane crash.

"If I win the thing, fine, and if I don't, fine," said Lempestis, who considered Reilly and Busch personal friends. "Some things are more important."
 Blake Hall, the state Republican Party chairman, said "our heart-felt sympathy is extended to the families. It's unfortunate, because Pete was a formidable candidate in the 1st District congressional race, and he would have given voters a choice between two different philosophies."

Radon gas level excessive in Idaho

BOISE (AP) — Tests of hundreds of Idaho homes have found that nearly three of every 10 have levels of radioactive radon gas in excess of state health standards, and tests of homes in Blaine and Kootenai counties showed average radon levels more than double the health standard officials reported.
 But Radiation Control Manager Bob Funderburg cautioned against any overreaction to the results of the $5,000 survey, conducted of 400 homes statewide last winter.
 "People shouldn't be too concerned about the study's results,"

Funderburg said. "I think the levels we're seeing are about what should be expected."
 Radon gas, produced from the natural breakdown of uranium in the earth, has been linked to an increased risk of cancer for people exposed to excessive levels. The Idaho health standard is four picocuries while the Environmental Protection Agency's standard is 4.5. A picocurie is a measurement of radiation calculated by filtering air through charcoal.
 The statewide survey, underwritten by the Idaho Cancer Coorordinating Committee, showed that 29 percent of the 400 homes tested had radon gas levels in excess of the state standard with the average radon level in the homes figured at 3.9 picocuries. The national average is 1 picocurie.

 Research indicates that long-term exposure to one picocurie of radon gas can result in a 1-in-300 chance of getting cancer, Funderburg said.
 In Blaine and Kootenai counties, however, the test homes showed an average radon gas level of 8.8 and 9.5 respectively.

Gem school officials confer

BOISE (AP) — State school administrators, facing another year of tight budgets and override elections, met with Idaho's top education officials Friday in the first of a series of meetings on the impact of the 1986 Legislature.
 Jerry Evans, state superintendent of public instruction, handed about 80 school officials meeting in Boise copies of bills adopted by the Legislature that have to do with public school funding and practices.
 He planned to spend at least half the day going over the specifics of those new laws and discussing how administrators can cope with expected funding shortages during the coming year.

 The Legislature appropriated $314 million for Idaho public schools in fiscal 1987. That's $10 million more than for the current spending year, but $7 million less than Evans said was needed just to avoid further deterioration of the state-run school system.
 In announcing his bid for reelection on Thursday, Evans said many school districts would be forced to ask local residents to increase their property taxes through override levies to finance school operations.

IEA head sees trouble for some legislators

GARDEN CITY (AP) — The 1986 Republican-dominated Legislature's treatment of public schools was "totally unsatisfactory," and the head of the Idaho Education Association said that could cost some lawmakers dearly at the polls.
 "It's going to be a very, very tough budgeting process in school districts this spring," IEA Executive Director Don Rolfe said Friday before his speech to delegates at the group's annual convention in Garden City. "All the responsibility for that lies with the Legislature. All of it."
 But Rolfe said he planned to deliver an upbeat message to delegates, letting them know they are not alone in being fed up with a lack of support for Idaho education.
 "There's a new sense of optimism out in the state, at least that I sense," he said. "It's a feeling that enough is enough."

 The Legislature appropriated $314 million for public schools for the fiscal year that begins July 1.
 That was $70 million more than the state appropriation for the current spending year, but $7 million less than officials said was needed to maintain current operations and far below the more than $350 million recommended by state Superintendent of Public Instruction Jerry Evans.
 Lawmakers "weren't anxious to hear the group's message" during the recently concluded legislative session that there could be no significant economic growth in Idaho without a commitment to improving the state's infrastructure, including schools, Rolfe said.
 "And that means appropriating more money for education than they were willing to appropriate," he said.

Agency denies repair funds

BOISE (AP) — Idaho was denied $2.8 million to repair road damage from late-winter flooding because the damage was not severe or widespread enough, a Federal Highway Administration official said.
 Louis MacDonald, deputy regional administrator for the agency, said Thursday the damage did not meet the specific guidelines for emergency-relief aid.
 State Highway Administrator Keith Green said Thursday the state will appeal.

The largest request — $1.3 million for the Whitebird Hill mud slide south of Grangeville — was denied because the hill has been a potential slide area for several years, said Jack Coe, division administrator for the agency in Boise.
 The regional office has talked with the Idaho Transportation Department about repair recommendations on Whitebird Hill since 1969, MacDonald said.
 "Those types of long-term problems just aren't eligible," MacDonald said.

Bateman quits race for lack of money

POCATELLO (AP) — State Rep. Linden Bateman, R-Idaho Falls, has withdrawn from the race for the Republican nomination for lieutenant governor.
 Bateman, a Bonneville High School teacher, said Friday that he was withdrawing because he had been unable to raise enough money to campaign.

He also said he "overestimated" the desire of area Republicans to have a candidate from southeastern Idaho on the ticket with Lt. Gov. David Troy, the party's likely candidate for governor.
 "I thought that would help balance the ticket," said Bateman, who served as Republican caucus chairman in the House.

Morgan will keep talking up space

GARDEN CITY (AP) — NASA's teacher-astronaut selection said it will be difficult for her to wait for the space shuttle program to get back on its feet, but that she plans to stay busy on the ground keeping the public excited about the space program.

"I'm barely going to be able to stand it," McCall-Donnelly second grade teacher Barbara Morgan said in a news conference Friday in Garden City. "But I know other astronauts have had to wait six, eight or even 12 years for a chance to get into space."

Mrs. Morgan was selected by NASA as the alternate to New Hampshire high school teacher Christa McAuliffe, who died along with six other crew members in the January explosion of the space shuttle Challenger.

She trained with Mrs. McAuliffe, and was named to succeed her as the primary teacher-astronaut after the accident. Since then Mrs. Morgan has spent much of her time touring the nation and talking about the future of America's space program.

Even if it is two years until space shuttle flights resume, Mrs. Morgan said she will be able to maintain a high level of enthusiasm both personally and with the nation's students and teachers.

"I think my classroom has expanded," she said.

Mrs. Morgan and Boise High School teacher David Marquart, one of 10 original finalists for NASA's Teacher in Space program, were scheduled to address the Idaho Education Association's annual awards ceremony later Friday.

Arizona manhunt slows; trail fades

YUMA, Ariz. (AP) — A search began to wind down Friday after officers were unable to pick up the trail of a fugitive who fled after a bus station shootout in which his brother and a police officer died, police said.

More than 100 officers poked around the city and surrounding area Friday after a set of footprints and other leads fizzled in the search for Edward Neil Smith, 29, police said.

"The search today (Friday) isn't as intense as it was yesterday," Lt. John Gross said, adding that there was no concrete information about Smith's whereabouts.

"We really don't know where he is," Gross said. "We suspect that he is not in Yuma, but we aren't assuming it."

Smith's brother, Donald, 30, and Officer Gary Maas, 28, died in a gunbattle at a Greyhound bus station Wednesday night, said Officer John Junk.

Officers followed several footprints within a block or two of bus depot after the shootout, and believed Smith hid in the area at one time, but no other signs of the fugitive were discovered, Junk said.

The Yuma Daily Sun said Friday that police found .38-caliber bullet casings and two blocks of bus depot from the bus depot. But Junk said he could not comment on the report. The gunbattle occurred after the driver of a bus bound for Yuma from Seattle radioed a disturbance. As Maas approached, both brothers allegedly pulled out weapons and fired, Junk said.

On Thursday, police detectives interviewed Donald Smith's wife, Lisa, 26, who was in Yuma before the brothers arrived, Junk said, but added that he did not know if she lived here or was just visiting.

The brothers were being sought by authorities either for questioning or warrant in several other crimes, including killings in Garland, Texas, and Cascade, Idaho, and robberies in Spokane, Wash., and Arlington, Texas.

Pay plan receives judge's OK

TACOMA, Wash. (AP) — A federal judge on Friday approved a landmark $482 million comparable worth pay plan that gives pay raises to 35,000 women and other state employees in female-dominated jobs.

The plan, approved by U.S. District Judge Jack Tanner, is designed to "fairly wipe out" sex-based wage bias by 1992 with pay increases of between 2.5 percent and 10 percent a year, not counting general pay raises.

The first pay increase, averaging 4 percent, will take effect April 25.

"The state of Washington, the governor, the attorney general, the state Legislature" and "the negotiators have actually pulled off a miracle," Tanner said. "I don't know how you've done it."

The settlement ends a lawsuit brought by employees, in which Tanner found the state guilty of intentional "systematic wage discrimination against those in jobs primarily held by women."

However, state Rep. Dick Bond, a Republican, said he would likely sue to overturn the plan, which he said would unconstitutionally bind future legislatures to pay for it.

Guru's adherents forfeit bail money

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Three followers of Bhagwan Shree Rajneesh forfeited $75,000 in bail, saying they would not return to the United States for prosecution on charges of helping him flee his Oregon commune.

The three were arrested with the Indian guru on Oct. 26, 1985, in Charlotte, N.C., when the group made a retreating stop in two rented Learjets.

The bail was forfeited Thursday by Swami Devaraj, the guru's doctor; Ma Yoga Vihar, the guru's longtime personal companion; and Swami Prem Jayesh, a disciple.

U.S., Mexico share set of difficult problems

By PAT MARCANTONIO
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The United States and Mexico are closely and politically interdependent, despite their cultural, language and historical differences, experts said Friday at a symposium on the relationship of the two countries.

But Mexico and the United States, the experts added, also share complex and difficult problems. A discussion of the economics and politics of the countries was one of three sessions sponsored Friday by the Snake River Symposium at the College of Southern Idaho.

massive foreign debt, equalling about $87 billion, or 54 percent of its gross national product. Bilkenstaff reported. In comparison, the U.S. foreign debt is 5 percent of its gross national product.

American banks will be impacted, he added, because Mexico owes them about $25 billion, he added. Banks can't foreclose on a nation.

Mexican industry did grow in the early 1980s, more so than America in some cases, Bilkenstaff said. But several factors took their toll on the Mexican economy.

After spending millions to develop the oil business, the price of crude dropped.

Illegal alien flow now out of control

By PAT MARCANTONIO
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The flow of illegal aliens from Mexico to America is out of control, an official with the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service said Friday.

"I'm the first to admit it. We don't have the resources to stop it," said Bias Martinez, deputy chief of the Immigration Service and Border Patrol.

But Kelly Calavita, a California sociologist, questioned whether proposed laws to slow the tide of aliens could work or just create different problems.

Discussion of the "Disappearing Border" was part of a seminar sponsored by the Snake River Symposium on U.S.-Mexico relations.

"Immigrants come to America for a reason, but mostly for work," said Martinez, an 18-year veteran with the Immigration Service. His own father, he added, immigrated to America from Mexico, once illegally, and the second time to become a citizen.

The Immigration Service enforces U.S. Immigration laws, but over the years its job has become increasingly imposing, he said. "What our tasks involve are neither simple nor unambiguously popular."

More than 1,000 miles comprise America's southern border, with official entry points strung across it at various points, Martinez said. Most of the borders are open country.

ments," he said. Keep in mind, he told the audience, that the service's 3,200 officers also are charged with coasts of America and its interior.

In 1984 more than 1 million illegal aliens were apprehended, and even more in 1985, Martinez reported. Arrests of illegal immigrants this year probably will break more records in one day, for instance, about 4,000 people were caught in the San Diego area.

"With that small force, we're doing a hell of a job," he said.

But removal is costly because it includes the expenses of holding the aliens and transferring them back to their country, he added.

While people of 80 different nationalities were apprehended, the majority are Mexicans, he said. Since 1982 and the devaluation of the peso, there's been a 10-percent increase in illegal immigrants.

"We should not be surprised at the number of people wanting to enter the United States. A major factor is economy," Martinez said.

There is no wall separating the countries, even natural barriers, he added. Electronic sensors help, but often an officer will be left to catch a group of 20 to 30 illegal aliens out in open country. Smuggling of people into this country is a lucrative business.

"This is the reality of it. In spite of the border enforcement, they keep coming," he said.

He has seen people "ginned down" at the border, Martinez added. "That's not the way we operate."

Since 1980 more than 2 million immigrants and 600,000 refugees have

People at the morning session of the Mexico-U.S. relations symposium hear of Mexico's economy entered legally, with 2 million more on waiting lists. And laws limiting immigration should be respected, he added, saying "The heritage of controlled and legal immigration is being threatened by uncontrolled immigration."

"What should help to slow the tide of illegal immigrants is immigration law reform, including punishment for employers hiring undocumented workers, Martinez said. Some states have such laws, but they aren't enforced.

By removing the prospects of jobs, the tide could be turned, Martinez said.

Calavita, a socialist with the Center for U.S.-Mexican Studies at the University of California at San Diego, said one force behind the historical immigration picture was obvious: "A desperately poor country side-by-side with one of the richest countries in the world."

Historically, there's been the suggestion of ambivalence in U.S. policy to Mexican illegal immigration. Calavita said. In some respects, the Mexican workers were welcomed because Americans knew they would return to their home after the work was done.

Mexican laborers even had been exempted from restrictions placed on other immigrants, she added.

Calavita's presentation also included a list of recommendations.

Simpson makes pitch for immigration bill

By DEAN MILLER
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Comparing the use of illegal alien labor in America to the use of child labor in the early industrial revolution and to the use of slave labor through the mid-1800s, cheap source of labor, illegal immigration poses a number of economic and national security problems with his immigration reform bill.

The measure is awaiting action in the U.S. House of Representatives. When the moves to abolish child labor and slave labor began, business interests said they could not do without the cheap labor.

"Are we so dependent upon a fearful, illegal sub-class of human beings that we will go broke without them? Or fall without them? We should determine that in the land of the free," Simpson said.

The assistant majority leader of the Senate, Simpson is a co-sponsor of the Simpson-Rodino-Mazzoli migration reform bill. Among other things, the bill would make it illegal for employers to knowingly hire new employees who are illegal aliens. The bill would also require all workers to possess a universal identification card to be presented only at the time they are hired to prove that they are legal workers.

The card is not a national identification card and the bill specifically prohibits its use for police purposes or any other purpose save proof of legal working status, he said. A plan to revise the current social security card was written by Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., he said.

The 700 illegal immigrants are a source of labor, illegal immigration poses a number of economic and national security problems with his immigration reform bill.

stem the tide of illegal immigrants into America by cracking down on employers who currently employ illegal aliens, Simpson said. Due to a twist in the present law, it is legal to hire an illegal alien, but it is illegal for an illegal alien to work.

Simpson said that by putting the burden of proof of legal immigration on the employer, fewer illegal aliens will be hired and there will be less incentive for people to enter America illegally.

"The alternative is the militarization of our southern border," said Simpson. "The problem of illegal immigration will not recede if the American public will become increasingly hostile to illegal immigrants," he said and more radical solutions than what he has proposed will likely be tried, Simpson said.

In addition, Simpson said in the bill's specifications.

Cost is a facet, along with compassion, prolonging life

By JANE ROBISON
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — "I'm tired of paying my taxes to help someone else pay horrendous medical bills, when it doesn't help me," said one woman Friday at a seminar on ethical dilemmas in health care.

Said another woman, Barbara O'Marra, after the day-long conference at CSI: "I used to think being a humanitarian was the nicest thing to be, but I can see some validity in questioning medical costs."

Whether people try or not, health-care decisions may soon be based as much on money considerations as on compassion and prolonging life.

money considerations as on compassion and prolonging life.

"Cost is an issue, but it's not the main issue. It's just one facet," said Dr. Duane Cutright, administrator of Gooding County Memorial Hospital. "However, I wonder if we're ever going to get to the point of setting a dollar return on medical treatment."

When you consider who will pay, it alters your opinion."

But as Cutright noted, ethical dilemmas are complex and do not resolve just around money.

"I had two cases in the neonatal unit in one week, which is why we set up an ethics committee," said Dr. Bart Adrian, chairman of the Pediatrics Department at Magic Valley Regional Medical Center.

In one case, a premature child weighing less than one pound was born at MVRMC and transferred to Boise for care. After three months, the child developed more severe problems and was transferred back to MVRMC to die, Adrian said.

After the baby boy arrived, the mother could not be found and had given the address of a business as her home address. The staff had to decide whether to do surgery on the baby without the mother's consent.

lungs and profoundly retarded, the product of incest, said Adrian. The mother had put the child up for adoption, and then left, leaving the hospital staff with the responsibility for the child.

An ethics committee was established to grapple with who is responsible and what level of care is appropriate.

To educate doctors and nurses, as well as the public, on the ethical dilemmas faced daily by patients, family members, doctors and nurses, a day-long seminar was sponsored by Magic Valley Regional Medical Center, the Idaho Health Systems Agency and CSI. Nearly 200 people attended.

Another dilemma was faced by a patient who had a heart transplant, and to provide 17 hip transplants.

County zoning board grants permit for 'rustic' store near South Hills

By PAT MARCANTONIO
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls County Planning and Zoning Board Thursday approved a request to build what was described as a kind of "rustic 7-11" store near the South Hills.

The store would offer the "bare essentials," such as milk, eggs and bread, as well as recreation items, such as hunting and fishing licenses, traps, shells and fishing tackle, Cutler said.

For some area residents, the nearest store is 15 miles away, he added.

The store probably will open this summer, Cutler said. He will add gas pumps, but not until next year.

P&Z Board member Lyle Frazier said it was a natural place for a store and won't affect any of the neighbors, many of which are commercial enterprises such as a gravel pit and bar.

Western Days rolls nearer

TWIN FALLS — With several events in the planning stages, the Western Days celebration has been scheduled for May 26-June 1.

Events will start early with Poster Day scheduled on May 9. During that day, volunteers will travel in Twin Falls in horse-drawn wagons and put up posters promoting the celebration.

A parade will be held on May 31. Anyone interested in participating in the parade can call Nancy Jones at 733-9461. There is a $5 entry fee. The Western Days committee plans to have area bands participate in the parade, including the Twin Falls city band and the CSI pep band.

There also will be a chili cookoff during the celebration. Anyone interested in entering the nationally sanctioned contest can call Wes Gates at 734-5838.

A dance will be held at the Turf Club May 30 and 31 at 8 p.m. The band will be C & R Express. Advance tickets will be $2.50 per person, $3 at the door. Area merchants who will be selling the tickets will be announced.

Another dance will be held May 30 for those under the age of 18 at the National Guard Armory. Tickets will be $5 at the door at the 2103-sponsored dance. Area bands will participate in a Battle of the Bands contest at the start of the dance. Interested bands can call Mary Jones at 734-5838.

Other events include a rodeo — that will begin at 8 p.m. instead of last year's starting time of 7:30 p.m. — and a jamboree. Concessions will be open all week during the celebration.

The committee expects this year's celebration to be bigger than last year's event. "From last year to this year will be a big jump," said committee chairman Wes Gates. "This year's will be larger in scope."

With dwindling resources, expensive medical technology and medicine's ability to prolong life — sometimes indefinitely, society must come to grips with how much is too much care and who will pay.

For example, should $100,000 be spent to keep one baby alive in neonatal intensive care or to provide complete prenatal services to 100 women?

Should $250,000 be spent for one artificial heart transplant, or to provide 17 hip transplants?

Should $22,000 be spent on one coronary bypass operation, or to give complete limb?

Arizona manhunt slows; trail fades

YUMA, Ariz. (AP) — A search began to wind down Friday after officers were unable to pick up the trail of a fugitive who fled after a police station shootout in which his brother and a police officer died.

More than 100 officers poked around the city and surrounding area Friday after a set of footprints and other leads fizzled in the search for Edward Neil Smith, 28, police said.

Pay plan receives judge's OK

ACOMA, Wash. (AP) — A federal judge on Friday approved a landmark $182 million comparable worth pay plan that gives pay raises to 35,000 women and other state employees in female-dominated jobs.

The plan, approved by U.S. District Judge Jack Tanner, is designed to nearly wipe out sex-based wage bias by 1992 with pay increases of between 2.5 percent and 10 percent a year, not counting general pay raises.

The first pay increase, averaging 4 percent, will take effect April 25.

"The state of Washington, the governor, the attorney general, the state Legislature and the negotiators have actually pulled off a miracle," Tanner said. "I don't know how you've done it."

The settlement ends a lawsuit brought by employees, in which Tanner found the state guilty of intentional, systematic wage discrimination against those in jobs primarily held by women.

However, state Rep. Dick Bond, a Republican, said he would likely sue to overturn the plan, which he said would unconstitutionally bind future legislators to pay for it.

U.S., Mexico share set of difficult problems

By PAT MARCANTONIO
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS—The United States and Mexico are economically and politically interdependent, despite their cultural, language and political differences, experts said Friday at a symposium on the relationship of the two countries.

But Mexico and the United States, the experts added, also share complex and difficult problems. A discussion of the economics and politics of the countries was one of three sessions sponsored Friday by the Snake River Symposium at the College of Southern Idaho.

Banker Dale Blickenstaff of Boise said the countries may be neighbors geographically, but are worlds apart economically. "For instance, per-capita annual income of a Mexican is $2,300, compared to $16,000 of an American," said Blickenstaff, an officer with Moore Financial Group, parent company of Idaho First National Bank.

In 1981 it took 24 Mexican pesos to equal one American dollar, he added. Now it's about 600 pesos to a dollar. Mexicans continue to struggle against high inflation rates. Three years ago inflation was at 100 percent.

The country does have tremendous natural resources, including oil. In fact, Mexico is the largest supplier of crude oil to the United States, Blickenstaff said.

But Mexico is shouldering a massive—foreign—debt, equalling about $97 billion, or 54 percent of its gross national product, Blickenstaff reported. In comparison, the U.S. foreign debt is 5 percent of its gross national product.

American banks will be impacted if Mexico doesn't pay its debt, because Mexico owes them about $25 million, he added. Banks can't foreclose on a nation.

Mexican industry did grow in the early 1960s, more so than America in some cases, Blickenstaff said. But several factors took their toll on the Mexican economy.

After spending millions to develop the oil business, the price of crude dropped.

"The prices still are dropping and you know what that's going to do to service its debt," Blickenstaff said.

Mexico doesn't allow foreign holdings to own a majority of interest in industries in the country, he added. Because of that restriction and nationalization of other industries, foreign companies avoid building plants there. That means no jobs for Mexicans, less competitiveness and waste among the nationalized companies.

Another symposium speaker, James Reilly of the Office of Mexican Affairs with the U.S. State Department, said the problems are solvable. Experts are predicting the price of oil will increase and that will alleviate some of its problems, he added.

Illegal alien flow now out of control

By PAT MARCANTONIO
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS—The flow of illegal aliens from Mexico to America is out of control, an official with the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service said Friday.

"I'm the first to admit it. We don't have the resources to stop it," said Blas Martinez, deputy chief of the Immigration Service and Border Patrol.

But Kitty Calavita, a California sociologist, questioned whether proposed laws to slow the tide of aliens would work or just create different problems.

Discussion of the "Disappearing Border" was part of a seminar sponsored by the Snake River Symposium on U.S.-Mexico relations. Immigrants come to America for a reason, but mostly for work, said Martinez, an 18-year veteran with the Immigration Service. His own father, he added, immigrated to America from Mexico in 1922, and the second time to become a citizen.

The Immigration Service enforces U.S. immigration laws, but over the years its job has become increasingly imposing, he said. "What our tasks involve are neither simple nor universally popular."

More than 1,000 miles comprise America's southern border, with 6,000 miles of it strung across it at various points, Martinez said. Most of the border is open country.

The Immigration Service force was increased last year by 1,000 officers, but the flow of aliens "outstripped the added reinforcements," he said. Keep in mind, he told the audience, that the service's 3,200 officers also are charged with monitoring the northern border and coasts of America and its interior.

In 1984 more than 1 million illegal aliens were apprehended, and even more in 1985, Martinez reported. Arrests of illegal immigrants this year probably will break minor records, in one day, for instance, about 4,000 people were caught in the San Diego area.

"With that small force we're doing a hell of a job," he said. But removal is costly because it includes the expense of holding the aliens and transferring them back to their country, he added.

While people of 80 different nationalities were apprehended, the majority are Mexicans, he said. Since 1982 and the devaluation of the peso, there's been a 101-percent increase in Mexican illegal aliens.

"We should not be surprised at the number of people wanting to enter the United States. A major factor is economy," Martinez said.

There is no wall separating the countries or even natural barriers, he added. Electronic sensors help, but often an officer will be left to catch a group of 20 to 30 illegal aliens out in open country. Smuggling of people into this country is a lucrative business.

"This is the reality of it. In spite of the border enforcement, they keep coming," he said.

He has seen people gunned down at the Berlin Wall, Martinez added. "That's not the way we operate."

FBI Board member Lyle Frazier said it was a natural place for a store and won't affect any of the neighbors, many of which are commercial enterprises such as a gravel entering legally, with 2 million more on waiting lists, and laws limiting immigration should be respected, he added, saying "The heritage of controlled and legal immigration is being threatened by uncontrolled immigration."

What should help to slow the tide of illegal immigrants is immigration law reforms, including punishment for employers hiring undocumented workers, Martinez said. Some states have such laws—but they aren't enforced.

By removing the prospects of jobs, the tide could be turned, Martinez said.

Calavita, a socialist with the Center for U.S.-Mexico Studies at the University of California at San Diego, said one force behind the historical immigration picture was obvious: "A desperately poor country side-by-side with one of the richest countries in the world."

Historically, there's been the suggestion of ambivalence in U.S. policy to Mexican illegal immigration. Calavita said. In some respects the Mexican workers were welcomed because Americans knew they would return to their home after the work was done.

Mexican laborers even had been exempted from restrictions placed on other immigrants, she added.

Simpson makes pitch for immigration bill

By DEAN MILLER
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS—Comparing the use of illegal alien labor in America to the use of child labor in the early industrial revolution and to the use of slave labor through the mid-1800s, Wyoming Sen. Alan Simpson closed the 1986 Snake River Symposium with a pitch for his immigration reform bill.

The measure is awaiting action in the U.S. House of Representatives. When the moves to abolish child labor and slave labor began, business interests said they could not do without the cheap labor.

"Are we so dependent upon a fearful, illegal sub-class of human beings that we will go broke without them... or fall without them? We should determine that in the land of the free," Simpson said.

The assistant majority leader of the Senate, Simpson is a co-sponsor of the Simpson-Rodino-Mazzoli immigration reform bill. Among other things, the bill would make it illegal for employers to knowingly hire new employees who are illegal aliens. The bill would also require all workers to possess a universal identification card to be presented only at the time they are hired to prove that they are legal workers.

The card is not a national identification card and the bill specifiesly prohibits its use for police purposes or any other purpose save proof of legal working status, he said. A plan to revise the current social security card was written by Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., he said.

Though illegal immigrants are a cheap source of labor, illegal immigration poses a number of economic and national security problems, Simpson said.

If his bill is passed, it will help stem the tide of illegal immigrants into America by cracking down on employers who currently employ illegal aliens, Simpson said. Due to a twist in the present law, it is legal to hire an illegal alien, but it is illegal for an illegal alien to work.

"The alternative is the militarization of our southern border," said Simpson. "The problem of illegal immigration will not recede... the American public will become increasingly hostile to illegal immigrants," he said and more radical solutions than what he has proposed will likely be tried, Simpson said. He does not favor "hunting them down."

In addition, Simpson said immigration reform will help the economy.

Cost is a facet, along with compassion, prolonging life

Money becoming consideration in health care decisions

By JANE ROBISON
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS—"I'm tired of paying my taxes to help someone else pay horrendous medical bills, when it doesn't help me," said one woman Friday at a seminar on ethical dilemmas in health care.

Said another woman, Barbara O'Marra, after the day-long conference at CSI: "I wish I think being a humanitarian was the best thing to be, but I can see some validity in questioning medical costs."

Whether people like it or not, health-care decisions may soon be based as much on money considerations as on compassion and prolonging life.

"Cost is an issue, but it's not the main issue; it's just one facet," said Dr. Duane Cutright, administrator of Gooding County Memorial Hospital. "However, I wonder if we're ever going to get to the point of setting a dollar return on medical treatment. When you consider who will pay, it alters your opinion."

But as Cutright noted, ethical dilemmas are complex and do not resolve just around money. "I had two cases in the neonatal unit in one week, which is why we set up an ethics committee," said Dr. Bart Adrian, chairman of the Pediatrics Department at Magic Valley Regional Medical Center.

In one case, a premature child weighing less than one pound was born at MVRMC and transferred to Boise for care. After three months, the child developed more severe problems and was transferred back to MVRMC to die, Adrian said.

After the baby boy arrived, the mother could not be found and had given the address of a business as her home address. The staff had to decide whether to do surgery on the baby without the mother's consent.

In another case, a baby was born with no lungs and profoundly retarded, but the product of incest, said Adrian. The mother had put the child up for adoption, and then left, again leaving the hospital staff with the responsibility for the child.

An ethics committee was established to grapple with who is responsible and what level of care is appropriate.

To educate doctors and nurses, as well as the public, on the ethical dilemmas faced daily by patients, family members, doctors and nurses, a day-long seminar was sponsored by Magic Valley Regional Medical Center, the Idaho Health Systems Agency and CSI. Nearly 200 people attended.

With dwindling resources, expensive medical technology and medicine's ability to prolong life—sometimes indefinitely, society must come to grips with how much is too much care and who will pay.

For example, should $100,000 be spent to keep one baby alive in neonatal intensive care or to provide complete pre-natal services to 100 women?

Should $250,000 be spent for one artificial heart transplant, or to provide 17 hip transplants? Should $20,000 be spent on one coronary bypass operation or to give complete immunization to 100 children?

County zoning board grants permit for 'rustic' store near South Hills

By PAT MARCANTONIO
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS—The Twin Falls County Planning and Zoning Board Thursday approved a request to build what was described as a kind of "rustic 7-11" store near the South Hills.

Welder Rick Cutler proposed converting two old cabins into a convenience store on about 4.7 acres located 7 1/2 miles south of Hanson on Rock Creek Road. Cutler requested a conditional-use variance permit from the board for his land, which is zoned agricultural.

The store would offer the "bare essentials," such as milk, eggs and bread, as well as recreation items, such as hunting and fishing licenses, gun shells and fishing tackle, Cutler said.

For some area residents, the nearest store is 15 miles away, he added.

The store probably will open this summer, Cutler said. He will add gas pumps, but not until next year. Cutler said he probably will begin construction on a separate shop building within a month.

There had been no opposition from the public to Cutler's requests.

Cutler also requested permission from the board to build a custom iron works shop on the property. He goes some welding in a shop attached to his home.

The board unanimously voted in favor of Cutler's requests, with the condition that Cutler add fire safety improvements to his home if he didn't start building a new welding shop within two months. Cutler said he probably will begin construction on a separate shop building within a month.

There had been no opposition from the public to Cutler's requests.

Western Days rolls nearer

TWIN FALLS—With several events in the planning stages, the Western Days celebration has been scheduled for May 26-June 1.

Events will start early, with Poster Day scheduled on May 9. During that day, volunteers will travel in Twin Falls in horse-drawn wagons and put up posters promoting the celebration.

A parade will be held on May 31. Anyone interested in participating in the parade can contact Marcy James at 733-0461. There is a $5 entry fee. The Western Days committee plans to have area bands participate in the parade, including the Twin Falls city band and the CSI pep band.

There also will be a chili cookoff during the celebration. Anyone interested in entering the nationally sanctioned contest can call Wes Gates at 734-5838.

A dance will be held at the Turf Club May 30 and 31 at 8 p.m. The band will be C & R Express. Advance tickets will be $2.50 per person, $3 at the door. Area merchants who will be selling the tickets will be announced.

Another dance will be held May 30 for those under the age of 18 at the National Guard Armory. Tickets will be $5 at the door, at the Zius-sponsored dance. Area bands will participate in a Battle of The Bands contest at the start of the dance. Interested bands can call Marcy James at 733-0461.

Other events include a rodeo—that will begin at 8 p.m. instead of last year's starting time of 7:30 p.m.—and a jamboree. Concessions will be open all week during the celebration.

The committee expects this year's celebration to be bigger than last year's event. "From last year to this year will be a big jump," said committee co-chairman Wes Gates. "This year's will be larger in scope."

Fire damage placed at $10,000

TWIN FALLS — A house fire Wednesday evening resulted in an estimated $10,000 damage to the home of Roger Hartgrave at 432 5th Ave. W.

Twin Falls Fire Department battalion chief Rick Glesler said the fire was reported shortly before 8 p.m. and when firemen arrived it had already burned through the roof.

"Fire damage was confined to the kitchen where the blaze started, but the remainder of the two-bedroom frame building sustained heavy smoke damage," Glesler said.

Hartgrave had been home until about 6 p.m. and there was no one in the house when the fire began. The exact cause of the fire was not known.

Glesler said two engines and engine crews responded to the fire call.

BOISE (AP) — A Rogerson man has been reappointed to the National Public Lands Advisory Council, the agency that advises Interior Secretary Donald Model on management policies for federal lands.

Burglars take tools, equipment

TWIN FALLS — Burglars visited J&J Enterprises 1077 Johnson Ave. E. Wednesday and removed tools and equipment valued at $4,466.

Twin Falls police officers said entry was gained through an unlocked window, after the screen was forced open.

Jerry Jones of J&J Enterprises said the theft occurred between 7 p.m. Tuesday and 8:15 a.m. Wednesday.

Another burglary was reported by John C. Anderson of Twin Falls. He told police a radar detector and cassette case and tapes representing a total value of $581 were taken from his vehicle sometime Tuesday night. The pickup truck was parked at 137 2nd Ave. E. at the time of the theft. Entry was gained through an unlocked door.

School to share donated spuds

TWIN FALLS — A Catholic school in Twin Falls will share its bounty with area residents today.

St. Edward's School will give away as many as three semi-trailer truck-loads of potatoes in what is called a "spud share" program.

The free potatoes are being distributed between 10 a.m. and 4 p.m. today in front of the Penny Wise Drug Store at the Lynwood Shopping Center in Twin Falls.

The school obtained the potatoes from a donor who wishes to remain anonymous. Auth said, "I hate to see them go to waste," he said. "We have no use for them at the school."

A donation bucket will be available to cover gas costs for the truck, but no donation is required, he said.

People are encouraged to bring their own sacks or other containers.

Auth also offered one other suggestion: Share with the neighbors.

Rotary Clubs' officers meet today for a series of training sessions

TWIN FALLS — Rotary Club officers, directors, and secretaries from Burley, Buhl, Jerome, Gooding, Twin Falls, Rupert, Ketchum, Halley and Shoshone will meet at Canyon Spa 540 (S. 4th St.) today for day-long training sessions aimed at making them better leaders of Rotary when they assume offices in their clubs on July 1.

Mountain Home, and Incoming District Governor Ray Rigby, of Rexburg, are co-planners of the Area District Assembly, which will review for new club officers the accomplishments of Rotary District 540 (Southern Idaho) during the past year and will outline for them what the program will be for the new year, 1986-87.

In addition to instructions from Walker and Rigby, the new club officers will also hear from three past district governors — Charles A. Johnson, Nampa; John H. Gold, St. Anthony; and John M. Barker, Buhl.

Each will speak on Rotary programs having to do with World and Community Service, International Student Exchange and how club officers can make their clubs operate more effectively in implementing the Rotary motto or "Service Above Self."

To his credit, Mexican President Miguel de la Madrid Hurtado is loosening the restriction on foreign business interests and promoting the United States' international trade community, the State Department official said.

Reilly's presentation focused on what he called the complex and difficult problems in the relationship of the economy, a major part of which is commerce.

Drug trafficking from Mexico into the United States is a major concern, he said. About 87 percent of the heroin in America comes from Mexico.

He admitted the United States has an added interest in keeping Mexico stable to prevent the spread of unrest from South America.

"We don't want an unstable neighborhood," Reilly said.

He described the Mexican people as resilient, stoic and "courageous in the face of economic hysteria."

There is a need for a better understanding between the Mexico and the United States, Reilly added. The transfer of technology, tourism and event television has aided that purpose.

Instructors will be Mary Michener and Melody Lenker, speech therapists of Lenker, Michener and Associates, Inc.

For further information, contact Dana Mikusek or Leslie Wheeler at Community Action, 773-9351.

The district assembly was preceded Friday evening with a special dinner for Paul Harris Fellows of Rotary. These are Rotarians who have contributed $1,000 or more to the Rotary Foundation.

Speakers will bring Rotarians up to date on the worldwide programs of the foundation. Of special significance is the program aimed at eradicating the world of polio. Called the Polio-Plus program, the foundation will spend over $100 million during the next few years inoculating 100 million of young children, primarily from the underdeveloped countries of the world, with polio vaccine.

It is planned that the completion of this project will coincide with the Rotary Centennial Year, 2005.

Leroy claims buyout 'mishandled'

By DEAN MILLER
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Gubernatorial candidate Lt. Gov. David Leroy said Friday the Reagan administration's mishandling of the dairy herd buyout program and its impact on red meat prices.

Leroy, who called from Washington, D.C., said he met with Secretary of Agriculture Richard Lyng Friday as part of a meeting of lieutenant governors and was told the Department of Agriculture had been caught by surprise by a red meat market "over-reaction" to the buyout program.

"I would say that the administration is under-reacting at this time to a crisis the government has created," Leroy said.

Shane Johnson, a press aide to Lyng, said Friday the red meat buyout was involved in 1985 Farm Bill negotiations and knew what was coming, but "they overreacted to the whole herd buyout program," he said.

Leroy said the administration is under severe pressure. "They have not formulated an adequate response at this time," he said. "We don't have the flexibility in Idaho to withstand a few more weeks of this."

Johnson said more dairy farmers signed up early than were expected and have lined up to sell off their herds in the first round of the three-part buyout program. As a result, the government is going to be buying more red meat earlier than planned to offset the effects of the flood of dairy cows.

Leroy said he suggested to Lyng that market confidence could be restored if the government could increase herd-buying targets ahead of time to allow the red meat industry to better predict markets, but Lyng rejected the idea.

cluded explanations of two proposed immigration law reform bills. The bills would provide sanctions for employers, amnesty for illegal aliens residing in the country for a number of years, increased resources for the Immigration Service and changes in the current temporary worker programs.

The focused on employer sanctions because she conducted a study of the sanction law in California. The available statistics from California and other countries with employer sanctions, however, could support both proponent and opponent views, she added.

If some type of employer sanction law is passed, prosecution could be difficult, she said. Under the proposals, the companies would defend themselves by proving they sought identification from the worker. But given the availability of fake identifications, it would be easy for employers to escape punishment.

Some companies would voluntarily comply with the law, but some won't

If there is no threat of enforcement, Calavita surmised.

Those who might comply will be larger companies, which could afford not to hire undocumented workers, she added. That could force the illegal workers into marginal or small industries. There, they could be made more vulnerable because marginal industries could tax the wages, she added.

Some companies also could discriminate against foreign-looking people to avoid brushes with the law, Calavita said.

There is no consensus that America wants to get rid of illegal aliens, while there may be a strong ambivalence because the foreign workers may contribute more than they take from America, she added.

The efforts to reform the immigration laws are a admirable, Calavita said. But with such historical and ongoing problems, the barriers to passage of the immigration laws are formidable.

Some countries already are making those choices. Britain sets aside only enough money for 120 kidney transplants, the healthiest States spends $1.8 billion on 20,000 dialysis patients, seminar participants said.

As technology improves and increases the "options," the issues become more difficult, said Dr. Harry Brumback, chairman of MVRM's Bio-Ethics Committee.

Brumback said that, as a doctor, he was trained to save lives in every instance, but "with" advances in technology, "I've changed my attitude."

"Now, I feel with the patient who wants to die, and we're sticking tubes in and making the poor guy miserable," he said.

On the other hand, said Brumback, what happens when the patient wants to die, and there's a disagreement among family members over the time and cost of life or allow death? It was a case that happened to him, he said.

"The woman had cancer. She wanted to die, and a son and a daughter were against it," he said. "But the daughter died."

Cancer treatment was continued, and the woman lived. That was three years ago, he said. And now, the woman does not remember ever saying she wanted to die.

"At the time, we thought her choice to die was rational," he said. "Now, she's very thankful we continued treatment."

Historic papal visit seen as step against anti-Semitism

By VICTOR L. SIMPSON The Associated Press

ROME — The first recorded visit of a pope to a synagogue will occur Sunday in Rome, whose ancient Jewish community for centuries suffered or thrived at the will of the papacy.

POPE JOHN PAUL II To visit synagogue

He said the proposal for the visit came from the pope and that it was a "courageous and coherent" gesture. He said he was moved that "it is the pope who wanted to meet the Jews of Rome in their synagogue, but he noted the visit also recalled 'the sad facts' of the history of the Roman Jews."

"Fire damage was confined to the kitchen where the stove started, but the remainder of the two-bedroom frame building sustained heavy smoke damage," Giesler said. Hartgrave had been home until about 6 p.m. and there was no one in the house when the fire began. The exact cause of the fire was not known.

Giesler said two engines and engine crews responded to the fire call.

School to share donated spuds

TWIN FALLS—A Catholic school in Twin Falls will share its bounty with area residents today.

The free potatoes are being distributed between 10 a.m. and 4 p.m. today in front of the Penny Wise Drug Store at the Lynwood Shopping Center in Twin Falls.

The school obtained the potatoes from a donor who wishes to remain anonymous, Auld said. "I hate to see them go to waste," he said. "We have no use for them at the school."

A donation bucket will be available to cover gas costs for the truck, but no donation is required, he said.

People are encouraged to bring their own sacks or other containers. Those who also offered one other suggestion: Share with the neighbors.

Economics

To his credit, Mexican President Miguel de la Madrid Hurtado is loosening the restriction on foreign business interests and promoting Mexico in the international-trade community, the State Department official said.

Relly's presentation focused on what he termed the complex and difficult problems in the relationship of the countries, a major part of which is economics.

Speakers will bring Rotarians up to date on the worldwide programs of the foundation. Of special significance is the program aimed at ridding the world of polio. Called the Polio-Plus program, the foundation will spend over $100 million during the next few years inoculating millions of young children, primarily from the underdeveloped countries of the world, with polio vaccine.

It is planned that the completion of this project will coincide with the Rotary Centennial Year, 2005.

Drug trafficking from Mexico into the United States is a major concern, he said. About 87 percent of the heroin in America comes from Mexico.

He admitted the United States has an added interest in keeping Mexico stable to prevent the spread of unrest from South America.

"We don't want unstable neighbors," Relly said.

He described the Mexican people as resilient, stoic and "courageous in the face of economic hysteria."

There is need for a better understanding between the Mexico and the United States, Relly added. The transfer of technology, tourism and even television has aided that purpose.

cluded explanations of two proposed immigration law-reform bills: The bills would provide sanctions for employers who employ illegal aliens residing in the country for a number of years, increased resources for the Immigration Service and changes in the current temporary worker programs.

She focused on employer sanctions because she conducted a study of the sanction law in California. The available statistics from California and other countries with employer sanctions, however, could support both proponent and opponent views, she added.

If some type of employer sanction law is passed, prosecution could be difficult, she said. Under the proposal, the companies may defend themselves by proving they sought identification from the worker. But given the availability of fake identifications, it would be easy for employers to "wash" their hands.

Some companies would voluntarily comply with the law, but some won't.

If there is no threat of enforcement, Calavita surmised.

Those who might comply will be largely unenforced, she said. "We don't want any sanctions added. That could force the illegal workers into marginal or small industries. There, they could be made more vulnerable because marginal industries could tax the aliens for the risk they are taking by hiring them."

Some companies "also could discriminate against foreign-looking people to avoid brushes with the law, Calavita said.

There is no consensus that America wants to get rid of illegal aliens, while there may be a strong ambivalence against foreign workers may contribute more than they take from America, she added.

The efforts to reform the immigration laws are admirable, Calavita said. But with such historical and economic interests, the barriers to passage of the immigration laws are formidable.

Leroy claims buyout 'mishandled'

BY DEAN MILLER
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS—Gubernatorial candidate Lt. Gov. David Leroy said Friday the Reagan administration is mishandling the dairy herd buyout program and its impact on red-meat prices.

Leroy, who called from Washington, D.C., said he met with Secretary of Agriculture Richard Lyng Friday as part of a meeting of lieutenant governors and was told—the Department of Agriculture was being caught by surprise by a red meat market "overreaction" to the buyout program.

"I would say that the administration is under-reacting at this time to a crisis the government has created," Leroy said.

Shane Johnson, a press aide to Lyng, said Friday the red meat industry was favored in 1985. Farm Bill negotiations and knew what was coming, but "they overreacted to the whole herd buyout program," he said.

Leroy said the administration is under severe pressure. "They are not responding in an adequate response at this time," he said. "We don't have the flexibility in Idaho to withstand a few more weeks of this."

Johnson said more dairy farmers signed up early than were expected and have lined up to sell off their herds in the first round of the three-part buyout program. As a result, the government is going to be buying more red meat earlier than planned to offset the effects of the flood of dairy cow meat.

Leroy said he suggested to Lyng that market confidence could be restored if the government would release herd buying targets ahead of time to allow the red meat industry to better predict markets, but Lyng rejected the idea.

People are encouraged to bring their own sacks or other containers. Those who also offered one other suggestion: Share with the neighbors.

Some countries already are making these choices. Britain sets aside only 10 percent of its budget for health care, while the United States spends $1.8 billion on 20 million dialysis patients, seminar participants said.

As technology improves, and increasing the options, the issues become more difficult, said Dr. Harvey Brumbaugh, chairman of MVRMC's Bio-Ethics Committee.

Brumbaugh said that, as a doctor, he was trained to save lives in every instance, but with advances in technology, "I've changed my attitude."

"Now, I feel with the patient who wants to die, and we're sticking tubes in and making the poor guy miserable," he said.

On the other hand, said Brumbaugh, what happens when the patient wants to die, and there's a disagreement among the family members whether to try and sustain life or allow death? It was a case that happened to him, he said.

"The woman had cancer. She wanted to die, and a son and a daughter disagreed," he said. "But another daughter didn't."

Cancer treatment was continued, and the woman lived. That was three years ago, he said. And now, the woman is not remember ever saying she wanted to die.

"At the time, we thought her choice to die was rational," he said. "Now, she's very thankful we continued treatment."

Utility gets rate boost

BOISE (AP)—Effective this week, northern Idaho customers of Washington Water Power Co. will be paying an average 10 percent higher electrical rates.

For a residential customer using 1,000 kilowatt-hours per month, the increase will be from $42.82 to $47.38, the Idaho Public Utilities Commission said Wednesday.

The PUC said it has slightly revised the rate increase to give the Spokane-based utility $8.5 million per year in new revenue.

The PUC said the rate increase covers WWP's share of the cost of the Colstrip 4 coal-fired plant in Montana going on line. It also covers the Idaho share of WWP's investment in a nuclear power plant in the state of Washington, which since has been abandoned.

L.M. Boyd What's what

There are meat-eating bees in Panama.

Anyone. Alligators like the flavor of beaver.

Q. Who was the first woman in the United States to have a statue put in her honor?

A. One Hannah Duston merits that distinction. In what later became New Hampshire. She was particularly skillful when she worked alone with a knife and a hatchet. Twelve Indians killed Hannah's daughter and captured Hannah in 1697. She killed 10 of them and took home their scalps. For the bounty money.

Q. If you drilled a clean hole through the center of the earth so it came out exactly on the opposite side, then dropped a ball into the hole, what would the ball do?

A. Fall almost to the far side, then back again, repeatedly, with shortening strokes, much like a pendulum, until it finally stopped at the center.

Q. Why is Oregon called that?

A. Bellef is it's from the Spanish 'Orejon'-meaning 'big-eared-men'. Oregonians do not seem to object overmuch to that. It's not as though it were a slur on the environment.

Anti-Contra allegations to be cleared

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional backers of President Reagan's $100 million aid package for Nicaraguan rebels said Friday that allegations of Contra corruption and drug trafficking must be cleared up, and one said Reagan has personally promised to get the answers.

Meanwhile, Democratic opponents said the aid, scheduled for a House vote Tuesday, should be withheld until a reported federal investigation is concluded into alleged drug smuggling, gun-running and possible violations of the Neutrality Act by the Contras and private American supporters.

Rep. Charles W. Stenholm, D-Texas, who favors the aid, said Reagan assured a group of congressmen Thursday that the White House was examining accusations that Contra leaders diverted funds and that some rebels participated in cocaine smuggling.

Stenholm said the president promised "a written refutation" to some allegations and requested more information on others.

Rep. Bob Dornan, R-Calif., another strong Contra backer, said rebels who may have become involved in cocaine trafficking were "not drug runners per se" but that cutoff of U.S. aid two years ago left many of them with no money to fight the Marxist Nicaraguan government.

"Desperate men do desperate things," Dornan said about the drug allegations. "But the ends do not justify the means."

Reagan pays $122,703 income tax

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, who said he couldn't understand his tax return even after it was prepared for him, paid $122,703 in federal income tax on 1985 gross income of $394,492, the return showed Friday.

The Joint return, which presidential spokesman Larry Speakes said the president and Mrs. Reagan signed April 2 and sent to the Internal Revenue Service office in Philadelphia, shows they are entitled to a $26,907 refund but asked that it be applied to their 1986 taxes.

The return also showed that the IRS challenged an item reported as part of the Reagans' blind trust and that the Reagans paid $187 in interest to federal and state tax collectors on the underpayment.

Speakes said the president's return is automatically audited each year and the payment resulted from a course, he was not aware of.

Police employ gas to scatter strikers

AUSTIN, Minn. (AP) — Police used tear gas to disperse striking meatpackers and supporters blocking the entrance to Hormel's flagship plant Friday, and 17 people were arrested and nine officers injured in the worst violence yet in the bitter walkout.

"We're no longer talking about a labor dispute," police Chief Donald Hoffman said. "We're talking about an out-and-out riot."

The officers were injured when the demonstrators threw rocks and sprayed the chemical Mace and homemade chemicals in their faces, said Hoffman, who estimated the number of demonstrators at 350 to 400.

But Jim Guyette, president of the striking Local P-9 of the United Food and Commercial Workers union, said: "As I see it, it was a peaceful demonstration turned into a riot by the Hormel company in partnership with the city, county and state law enforcement officials."

It was the worst violence in the eight-month strike against Geo. A. Hormel & Co., a dispute that has divided the town and split the union local from the international union's leadership.

The officers suffered head and eye injuries and were treated at St. Olaf's Hospital and released, according to hospital administrator Don Brezicka. There were no reports of injuries to demonstrators.

Hoffman said 17 people were arrested and all would be charged with felony riot. Some gave addresses in Nebraska, Texas, New York and Alabama, he said.

Bennett lambasts clinics

BALTIMORE (AP) — Education Secretary William J. Bennett on Friday said he opposed the idea of schools operating birth control clinics, calling them an "abdication of moral authority."

"Birth control clinics in school may prevent some births. That won't deny the question is, 'What does it teach, what lessons does it teach, what attitudes does it encourage, what behaviors does it foster?'" Bennett said at an annual gathering of the Education Writers Association.

Bennett said in response to a question that he had no idea how widespread such clinics were.

About 45 schools across the country have clinics, usually called "comprehensive health centers," according to Planned Parenthood Federation of America.

Pair faces charges

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — A Brown University senior and a prominent insurance agent were indicted on prostitution charges Friday in connection with a sex-fund money scandal that rocked the Ivy League school last month.

The Providence County grand jury named Dana E. Smith, one of two Brown students whose March 6 arrest led to the seizure of hundreds of photographs of nude and semi-nude women from the condominium of Stanley Henshaw III. Henshaw also was indicted.

The other woman arrested March 6, Rebecca R. Kidd of Orange, Conn., was listed as an unindicted co-conspirator.

Berlin police seeking Libyan bomb suspect

BONN, West Germany (AP) — Chancellor Helmut Kohl said Friday that Libya is a suspect in the Berlin discotheque bombing which killed a U.S. army sergeant and a Turkish woman and wounded 230 people.

A West German newspaper reported that West Berlin police are hunting a Libyan, Mohammed Yasser Charadi, 26, in connection with the Saturday bombing bombing of the nightclub frequented by American servicemen.

A West Berlin security police spokesman, Manfred Ganschow, confirmed that the Charadi was being sought, but said he was wanted on an earlier warrant for attempted murder, and not-in connection with the blast.

The Hamburg-published Bild newspaper quoted security sources as saying that Charadi was one of Libyan leader Moammar Khadafy's "killer commanders" and that he and another Libyan, Elamin Abdullah Elimin, were suspected of having been assigned to blow up the nightclub in retaliation for a March 23 clash with U.S. forces.

Kohl appeared to hint that other countries or groups may be suspect, in addition to Libya, but he refused to elaborate.

"There are a great many indications that the bombing of the discotheque in Berlin also has a Libyan background. I didn't say only, I said also," he said at a news conference.

Kohl, a staunch conservative ally of the United States, urged caution when asked if he would favor a U.S. military strike against Libya in response to the discotheque bombing.

Kohl said he would advise anyone considering such an attack to "beware of what he is starting and what the end will be — what will come of it. That would be my advice."

Khadafy ready to attack south Europe

TRIPOLI, Libya (AP) — Col. Moammar Khadafy said Friday that Libya was ready to attack southern Europe in response to a threat from NATO, the official news agency JANA reported.

The dispatch did not specify what threat Khadafy referred to.

JANA quoted Khadafy as saying the North Atlantic Treaty Organization was threatening civilian targets in his North African country.

"Since the threat this time came from the whole of NATO, the whole of southern Europe is today included in the Libyan counterattack plan, without any discrimination," Khadafy was quoted as saying.

Khadafy has said he will strike NATO bases in Italy and Spain and other countries that provide support for the U.S. 6th Fleet in the United States attacks Libya.

The dispatch said Libya wants Arab governments "to clarify their positions toward these conspiracies."

The 21-member organization, headquartered in Tunis, Tunisia, has adopted resolutions of support for Libya in past quarrels with the United States but has not taken military or political action.

Khadafy said Libya rejects "unjust and insolent military threats which do not scare it at all," according to JANA.

In another dispatch, JANA said Libya had asked the Arab League to "inform the Arab nation that NATO, Israel and the United States have agreed to confront Libya and launch aggression against it."

Hunters find teacher, drive away abductors

BAALBEK, Lebanon (AP) — Gunmen seized Brian, who teaches French at the College Protestant Francaise, Tuesday night in lawless West Beirut, where militia battles, robberies and kidnappings are part of daily life.

Hours after Michel Brian was rescued in the Syrian-controlled valley, Irish teacher Brian Keenan was reported missing and feared kidnapped in Moslem west Beirut. He would be the 50th foreigner abducted in Lebanon since January 1984.

The Frenchman said after his dramatic rescue, "I have had inordinate luck to be liberated only three days after my abduction. There was gunfire and my kidnappers panicked... put me in a ditch... and sped away. I didn't know what was happening."

Brian's kidnapers fired on the clanster, who cast aside their hunting guns and blazed away in return with AK-47 assault rifles, standard equipment for men who venture out in the Bekaa. The abductors pushed their captive out of the car and sped off.

Thousands of Moslems join Libya's anti-American drive

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — More than 6,000 Indians have crowded the Libyan embassy in response to advertisements seeking recruits to help fight America in an embassy spokesman said Friday.

Thousands of would-be recruits lined up Friday in a carnival-like atmosphere, with vendors selling ice cream and popcorn to the applicants.

"They want to help us in the war against American imperialism," said Abu Bakr, the Libyan information officer, in an interview with The Associated Press.

Bakr said the Indians, mostly Muslims, are answering advertisements published in Urdu language newspapers three weeks ago seeking Arab and Moslem recruits to help "crush American imperialism."

A report in the Indian Express newspaper said applicants reported they were offered salaries ranging from the equivalent of $833 to $1,666 per month and more. The average annual wage in India is about $260.

Soviet space lab not ready for long usage

STAR CITY, U.S.S.R. (AP) — The Mir space station, billed as the world's first permanently manned space lab, is not yet ready for continuous occupation, a top space official said Friday.

Vladimir A. Shatalov, head of cosmonaut training, commented on the station during a rare visit by invited journalists to this walled settlement northeast of Moscow. Star City is a 34-acre area housing 50 cosmonauts and their families and about 3,000 workers in the secretive Soviet space program.

Another top official, Gen. Georgy P. Beregovoy, head of the Star City center, rejected a suggestion from one reporter that the Soviets now have moved ahead of the U.S. space program. He said each nation did certain things well.

Beregovoy said all Soviet cosmonauts were saddened by the Jan. 28 explosion of the U.S. space shuttle Challenger.

Beregovoy also said the Soviets cannot yet send women to the Mir station on long-haul missions, because special gear would be needed.

Shatalov was asked repeatedly whether Mir opened up by cosmonauts Leonid Kizim and Vladimir Solov'ev on March 15, now would be permanently manned.

Police push hunt for kidnap victim

DUBLIN, Ireland (AP) — Hundreds of police searched Ireland on Friday for Jennifer Guinness, who was dragged from her mansion overlooking Dublin Bay while her husband and daughter watched helplessly, bound hand and foot.

The deadline for payment of $2.5 million in ransom to the three masked kidnapers passed Friday, but police said it had not been paid and there was no word from the kidnapers.

Police said the kidnapers told merchant banker John Guinness before taking his wife away Tuesday, that he had three days to pay up.

Police said they were concentrating on the Dublin area in their search for the 48-year-old socialite, but that officers throughout the Irish Republic were involved.

Round of 68 gives Ballesteros lead

Spaniard takes slim edge in international battle

By BOB GREEN
The Associated Press

AUGUSTA, Ga. — While insisting he has nothing to prove, Seve Ballesteros had a glint in his eye, the lead in the Masters and room in his closet — for another green jacket.

The sparkle in the eye and the lead came simultaneously Friday when a 25-foot eagle putt found the cup on the 18th hole and prompted a full-throated roar of approval from the Spanish star who has been barred for one year from the American PGA Tour.

It was the critical blow in a round of 68 that lifted Ballesteros into a 1-shot lead over Bill Kratzert at the halfway-point of the 50th-Masters, an independent classic that is not a part of the regular tour.

It helped put him through 36 holes at 139, 5 under par on the Augusta National Golf Club course that he calls "the best in the world," and which has provided him with two previous victories.

The leader board featured many of the best foreign golfers in the game. It showed Tommy Nakajima of Japan alone in third at 141 after a wildly erratic 71 that included a birdie-birdie finish.

At 142, only two strokes back with 36 holes to go in the chase for the famed green jacket that goes to the winner of the first of golf's annual Big Four events, were defending champion Bernhard Langer of West Germany, Australian Greg Norman,

T.C. Chen of Taiwan, and Americans Danny Edwards and Ben Crenshaw. "It's always nice to have two green jackets," said Ballesteros, who acquired his pair in 1980 and '83. "But I'm playing like I never was before."

He brushed aside any suggestion that another victory would prove anything, have any bearing on his suspension. "I don't have to prove anything. I win, great. If not, I'll be back next year."

"It definitely looks better than it did yesterday, but there's still a long way to go, a lot of good players close."

"A good round tomorrow, a low score, I might pick up a few more shots. It'd be nice to have a few more shots, four or five," he said.

Ballesteros, who also owns two British Open crowns, said he "came today just to play good and do my best. I didn't look at a scoreboard until the 18th hole."

And, he was asked, how does it look that scorecard when the Ballesteros name atop the list of the world's finest players? "Poker-faced, Ballesteros studied it again. "It looks very good," he said.

It presented a different appearance to a group of players who once shared the lead, then came staggering out of Amen Corner like a beaten army in retreat, with shock and strain showing on their faces.

Tom Watson, Norman, Chen and the gritty Kratzert went into that stretch of holes either tied for the lead or within a stroke of the top. All fell victim — to a greater or lesser degree — to the subtle torors, camouflaged but not hidden by the analous, dogwoods and wisteria on the far stretch of the course at Nos. 11, 12 and 13.

Watson, trying so desperately to regain his position atop the sport, was the greatest casualty, losing four shots in two holes on that stretch and dropping well back. Kratzert was the survivor, trading a bogey on 11 for a birdie on 12 and hanging on for a round of par 72 on this warm, sunny spring day. He remained within a stroke of the lead at 140, 4 under par.

Edwards and Crenshaw shot 715 in the brisk breeze that brushed the ultra-fast greens. Chen, the slender man who very nearly won the U.S. Open last year, took a 73. And Norman, the craggy-faced Australian known as "the Great White Shark," matched par 72.

Watson, once the world leader in this ancient sport but a frustrated non-winner since 1984, had a share of the lead after 10 holes. But he had to make a 12-15 foot putt for a bogey on the 11th. And on the 12th, a gust of wind knocked his tee shot into the pond, he put his next in a bunker, then missed a 4-foot putt.

It was a triple bogey that sent him reeling to a 74 and a par score of 144 for two rounds.

Seve Ballesteros tips his hat as he leaves the 18th Friday

Nakajima finds No. 13 lucky now

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — In 1978, Tsuneyuki Nakajima of Japan wrote a bit of Masters history when he spent a record 13 strokes negotiating the par-5 13th hole at the Augusta National Golf Course.

No player in 50 years of this tournament has ever hit the ball more often at a single hole.

Nakajima, however, has been making up for the embarrassment, this year. In the first round of the Masters, he birdied the troublesome 13th, final hole at the treacherous Amen Corner. Then, on Friday, he eagled it, helping him to a 71 that left him at 141, two strokes off the lead after 36 holes.

"No. 13," Nakajima said. "It is my friend. I feel I have more than redeemed myself from that one record through my performance on that hole in the last four years."

Nakajima said he never thinks about his 13 at 13 when he steps up to the tee at that hole. "I am somewhat forgetful about unpleasant memories," he said.

Rams run away with win on depth

By LARRY HOVEY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The Highland Rams turned loose a lot of depth and got their first look at senior distance ace Rob Rene when they ran off with both ends of a five-way track meet Friday afternoon.

Rene, a state track and cross country champion over the past two years, has been sidelined all year, passing up the basketball season — in an effort to heal a leg muscle pull. He began working out two weeks ago and Friday added some power to the Rams' depth by winning the 800- and 2,000-meter runs.

"The leg felt fine. I'm just in terrible condition," puffed Rene after winning the 3,200 but obviously pleased with victory in his first competitive comeback.

For the day, Highland took its share of honors and piled up a lot of auxiliary points. Its mile relay clipped nine seconds off its previous best, winning a three-way battle in 3:50.5 while Jerome was second at 3:57.2 and Twin Falls third at 3:57.4.

Twin Falls got a sprint double from senior Bob Bain and since the Bruins went one-two-three in the 100-meter dash, it was no surprise they won the 400-meter race.

Brain Coach Diane Stands said he was satisfied with his team's showing. "I thought our jumpers, both boys and girls, did well. Gabe Ostyn won the high jump at 6-4 and he's Jerome High's Eric Holly stretches away from the rest of the field to take the high hurdles Friday. Jerome finished third in the five-way track meet.

ready for the 6-6 mark anytime now and Tom McClain won the long jump and I think is going to be a high-point winner for us in that event in every meet this year. (For the girls) Dana Cowan bettered 17 feet and got a second in the high jump."

On the track, Stands said the obvious luck was that "Highland just moved away from us on thirds, fourths and fifths, although they are a good team."

Highland's girls relied heavily on sophomore Jenny Hannan, who has beaten just about all the major competition at 800 and 1,600 meters now, and junior Eva Talamantes, who won the two long sprints, bowing to Pocatello's Yolanda Frazier in the 100.

Talamantes had her season bests of 59.2 in the quarter and 28.2 in the 100, Frazier's excellent start surling her bid for a triple in the 100, although she closed to within a 10th-of-a-second at the finish.

Highland's big pluses in the girls division came on four consecutive relay victories plus a one-through-five finish in the shotput.

Twin Falls Municipal slates record tourney

TWIN FALLS — The biggest two-man best ball golf tournament in Twin Falls Municipal history — $10,000 in merchandise prizes — will be offered April 26 and 27. Professional Don Hamblin announced.

Hamblin said the tournament will feature $2,500 in added money from The Oaks in Twin Falls, adding the $10,000 payback is based on a full field of 100 teams, which will include a special division for women.

Entry deadline for the event is noon April 24. Men's handicaps will be 10 for men and 36 for women. Entry fee will be $60 per male team and $50 for women. The overall championship team and flight winners will receive $500 merchandise certificates. All entries must be Idaho Golf Association members and no temporary handicaps will be accepted.

The low handicapped player in each flight will play to scratch and the balance of players in that flight will receive the difference in handicap. A maximum stroke difference allowed within each flight will be six strokes, Hamblin said.

The sponsoring Oaks also is offering tee prices and close to 200 events on the evening of April 26. Interested golfers should bring their entries to Hamblin at Box 1452, Twin Falls, 83401-1452.

Buccaneers to take gamble, bet Jackson will play football

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — The Tampa Bay Buccaneers ended weeks of speculation by announcing Friday the club will make Auburn running back Bo Jackson the first pick in this month's National Football League draft unless it swings a last-minute trade.

Coach Leeman Bennett called the 1985 Heisman Trophy winner the best prospect at his position to enter the draft since O.J. Simpson in 1969 and said he is so good that it would make two quality selections and a first-round draft choice to change the Bucs' plans.

"You don't not take the best three of the first 28 picks in the April unless you get two or three players — draft and four of the top 40 — you feel will help you just as much in rebuilding the defense as a priority the long run," the coach said, and, before Friday, Bennett had maintained the team was undecided about taking Jackson.

outstanding major-league baseball prospect, has said he won't decide until after the draft if he will play professional football or baseball.

The Bucs, 2-14 last season, have three of the first 28 picks in the April draft and four of the top 40. Rebuilding the defense is a priority, the coach said, and, before Friday, Bennett had maintained the team was undecided about taking Jackson.

He said improving a defense that ranked 28th in the NFL is still optional, but acknowledged there are a limited number of can't-miss defensive players available.

Jackson could have an immediate impact in a backfield that would include James Wilder, a 1,000-yard rusher the past two seasons, and quarterback Steve Young.

USFL antitrust suit against NFL starts May 12

NEW YORK (AP) — A federal judge set a May 12 trial date Friday in the United States Football League's $1.32 billion antitrust suit against the National Football League.

A lawyer for the USFL urged the judge not to bother with a trial and to rule for the three-year-old league that for the first time will be playing the fall this year, opposite the NFL.

Summary judgment is almost never granted to the plaintiff in an antitrust suit because "it assumes that important facts are in dispute. A dispute would require a jury to resolve."

USFL lawyer Harvey Myerson contended that the key fact and one which is not in dispute — is that the well-entrenched NFL holds contracts with CBS, NBC and ABC. He argued that a 1961 law which allowed the league to sell television rights collectively, rather than team-by-team, gave the NFL the right to contract with only one network at a time.

The USFL argues that by dealing with all three networks the NFL has essentially flooded the market with pro football in the fall, satiating the networks so that no competitor can strike a deal.

USFL lawyer Frank Rothman revealed that the antitrust law contains no one-network restriction and that the NFL's television contracts are not exclusive. Thus, he said, the three networks are free to buy the rights to air USFL games if they wish.

The USFL suit, filed in 1984, also accuses the NFL of illegally monopolizing access to football players, officials and stadiums, but television and the millions of dollars it pumps into the sport has emerged as the central issue.

New York rookie halts Brewer streak

NEW YORK (AP) — Mike Pagliaro's tie-breaking two-run homer capped a three-run fourth inning that enabled Bob Tewele to win his major-league pitching debut Friday night as the New York Yankees ended the Milwaukee Brewers' 3-2.

The Yankees' rookie Milwaukee's three-game winning streak — the Brewers were the last unbeaten team in the American League — and tipped their own record to 3-1. It's New York's best start since a 5-1 getaway 10 years ago.

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — George Bell drove in three runs with two doubles and Lloyd Moseby homered Friday, leading the Toronto Blue Jays to a 6-2 victory over the Kansas City Royals to spoil the World Series champions' home opener.

Jim Clancy, coming off an injury-plagued 1985 season, scattered six

Boston 7, Chisox 2

CHICAGO (AP) — Marty Barrett's two-run triple keyed a four-run third inning that led Roger Clemens and the Boston Red Sox to a 7-2 victory Friday night over the winless Chicago White Sox.

The loss was the fourth straight for the White Sox, marking their worst start since 1974, when they dropped their first five.

Twins 5, Mariners 1

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Bert Blyleven pitched a strong game as Gary Gaetti and Ron Kraminski hit home runs as the Minnesota Twins won their first home opener since 1980 with a 5-1 victory Friday night over the Seattle Mariners.

Blyleven, 1-0, struck out four Mariners and walked three in 7 2/3 innings. He lost his shutout bid in the eighth on a run-scoring single by German Thomas.

Texas 5, Orioles 4

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — Baltimore relief pitcher Don Aase threw wildly to first base on a pickoff attempt with two outs in the ninth inning Friday night, and two Texas Rangers scored in a 5-4 victory over the Orioles.

Tom Paciorek, who had doubled, scored standing up after the attempt to pick off Oddibe McDowell, who had walked.

Cavs can't find miracle; Celtics knock them out

BOSTON (AP) — The game meant so much to Cleveland accomplished so little. Coach Gene Littles, though, didn't complain about his team's effort in a loss that helped knock the Cavaliers out of playoff contention Friday night.

"I was pleased," he said after the Cavaliers dropped a 117-104 NBA decision to the Boston Celtics, "especially after last night. That was a game we wanted to win. It was a must game and today it was a must game."

Cleveland had to follow its 102-101 setback to Milwaukee Thursday night with a trip here face the team with the NBA's best record.

Pro basketball

CHICAGO (AP) — Michael Jordan completed a 31-point effort Friday night by hitting a 12-foot jumper and a free throw in the final minute, lifting Chicago to a 105-103 victory over the Washington Bullets and clinching an NBA playoff berth for the Bulls.

John W. Baker, Ontario, used a seven-iron on the same hole for his ace, witnessed by Don Harrington and Dallan West.

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston's Glenn Davis hit his second homer of the season to knock up a strikeout string by Atlanta's David Palmer and rally the Astros to a 2-1 victory Friday night.

Davis' seventh-inning home run over the left field fence ended a dominating performance by Palmer, 0-1, who struck out 10 batters, tying a career high.

Cubs 5, Pirates 4

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Steve Trout scattered four hits over six innings and his bases-loaded single keyed a four-run Chicago fourth as the Cubs beat the Pittsburgh Pirates 5-4 Friday night.

Trout, lifted because of a pulled groin muscle after allowing both Pirates' runs in the sixth, retired 14 of 15 batters at one point as the Cubs built a 4-0 lead.

Mets 9, Phils 7

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Gary Carter hit a home run and two singles and drove in five runs as the New York Mets beat Philadelphia 9-7 Friday night to spoil the Phillies' home opener.

CAREY — The Carey Panthers slipped past Camas County in the boys' division and won the girls' side with a comfortable cushion in an open track meet Thursday afternoon.

Carey nipped the Mushers by three points for the team title as Todd Swainston helped by winning both sprints.

In the girls division, Carey had much easier outscoring second-place Rockdale by 72. But Mary Miller of Camas County was the individual pace-setter with three victories.

Buhl, Wood River split decisions

HALLEY — Double winners were the rule rather than the exception Friday when the Buhl Indians and Wood River Wolverines divided a track meet.

Buhl, getting doubles from Brian Howard, Charles Tennant and Todd Stevens, won the boys' division 92-52.

Buhl's Nancy Stevens had three firsts in the girls division but that wasn't enough to keep the Wood River girls from claiming a 62-57 decision.

When West's opening lead gives dummy a cheap early trick, it's easy for South to get careless. He must recognize the danger of West's diamonds, forget overtricks, and look for a way to clinch his game.

West's lead of his fourth-best diamond goes to dummy's 10, and when East fails to cover, West is marked with the strong diamond suit. What should the uppermost thought in South's mind be at this time?

If he bases himself counting possible overtricks, he will lose the game. The bad club break proves insurmountable and instead of game and rubber, South gets a minus score.

South's main thoughts should involve developing dummy's clubs without giving East the lead. At trick two, he should cash the club ace and lead a heart to dummy's king to lead through dummy's club 10.

The finesse wins and South collects five club tricks to go with five other winners for an overtrick. What if the club finesse had failed? The game would still have been safe. West could cash only two diamond winners, and South would have scored at least nine tricks.
