Soviets clear nuclear disaster area

By ROXINNE ERVASTI
The Associated Press

MOSCOW — The Soviet Union appealed to the West for help Tuesday in fighting one of history's worst nuclear accidents, a reactor fire that sent a radioactive cloud across northeastern Europe.

The government evacuated thousands, but reported only two deaths.

In its first report on casualties, the Soviet government said through its official news agency that the nuclear plant disaster near the Ukrainian capital of Kiev killed two people, and a Soviet official visiting Washington said less than a hundred had been injured.

U.S. Sen. Patrick Leahy said after a CIA briefing in Washington, "I've seen nothing that indicated that huge numbers of people are dead. It could be two, 12 or two dozen."

Leahy, D-Vt., vice chairman of the Senate Intelligence Committee, said he had heard nothing to support a report that as many as 2,000 people were killed.

U.S. intelligence sources in Washington said the Chernobyl reactor complex experienced a meltdown Saturday, was still billowing smoke Tuesday and threatened another reactor at the same site.

A radioactive cloud loosed by the weekend accident shifted from Scandinavia back toward Central Europe and the Soviet Union, while weathermen around the world tried to track the fallout.

The U.S. State Department said the embassy in Moscow was in contact with Americans known to be in the Kiev area and there was no indication any had been injured. It did not say how many Americans were in Kiev, a city of 2.4 million people 60 miles southeast of the Chernobyl plant site.

Foreign embassies said they were assured there was no danger in Kiev, but the Foreign Ministry told reporters asking for permission to fly there that it could be dangerous.

Poland ordered emergency measures, including anti-radiation treatments for children, but state television said the general public was not endangered because of the "temporary character" of the fallout.

European polluters leaders angrily demanded that Moscow explain why it had not quickly alerted the rest of the world to

U.S. offers technical, humanitarian aid

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States offered technical and humanitarian assistance Tuesday to the Soviet Union to help it overcome the effects of an accident at a nuclear power plant in the Ukraine, U.S. officials said.

The offer was made during a meeting between Assistant Secretary of State for European Affairs Roxanne L. Ridgway and acting Soviet Ambassador Oleg M. Sokolov.

As of late Tuesday, no reply had been received from the Soviets, said the officials, who asked not to be identified.

Specifically, the officials said the United States offered five types of assistance:

- Technical expertise and assistance in radiological decontamination, recovery from nuclear reactor accidents and minimization of environmental effects.
- Medical personnel experienced in diagnosing and treating radiological exposure.
- Technical expertise and assistance in radiological decontamination, recovery from nuclear reactor accidents and minimization of environmental effects.
- An aerial measuring system that can map the spread of radioactive contamination.
- Radiological assistance teams to measure radioactivity in water, air and soil and technical assistance in assessing environmental effects of radioactive materials released.

State Department officials said they had no indication any Americans were injured in the disaster and said it was primarily up to the Soviet government to provide protection for U.S. citizens in that country.

Anti-Valmy views dominate hearing

By KENNETH A. BROWN
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — If ratepayers are required to pay for the Valmy II power plant, they should receive stock in Idaho Power Co., suggested Kirk Charlson Tuesday night.

Testifying at the Idaho Public Utility Commission's hearing on Idaho Power's request for a 27.4-percent rate increase, Charlson told the commissioners, "If I'm going to pay for Valmy II, I want stock. I don't want to pay for Valmy II and not own a piece of it."

Kirk Charlson speaks against the proposed Idaho Power rate hike at Tuesday's hearing

"Idaho's WHOOPERS" a reference to the multi-billion-dollar financial disaster created by the Washington Public Power Supply System's attempt to build five large nuclear power plants in Washington state.

Witnesses testifying at the hearing presented a wide range of concerns, including such issues as the rate hike's impacts on farming, small businesses, senior citizens, low-income families, and schools.

Witnesses almost uniformly predicted that a rate increase would have a devastating impact on the region.

Clara Bell Jackson, a Jerome resident, told the commissioners that utility rates have to be held down.

"If we don't, Southern Idaho is not going to survive," Jackson said. "I think at this time Idaho Power should give us a little stock."

Jackson, who said she owns a small amount of stock in Idaho Power, also pointed out to the commission that company stock will, two-for-one last year and has enjoyed a steady rise in dividends.

With investors enjoying these kinds of profits, Jackson said: "As shareholders of common stock, maybe we're the ones that should be buying the plants."

Much of the hearing's early testimony centered around the rate hike's impacts on farming.

Dick Gardner, an economist with the governor's office, read a letter from Gov. John Evans outlining the impacts the rate hike would have on farmers.

Evans called the possible rate hike and IPC's policy of requiring advance payment on utility bills from irrigators "the major obstacle to this year's production."

Evans urged the commission and IPC to reconsider the advance payment policy. Irrigators, he said, have a strong incentive to pay their bills within a year "because only the utility can turn the pumps on."

Area farmers also testified at the hearing and told commissioners the rate hike will add several thousand dollars to their operating costs.

The commission will continue hearing both expert and public testimony throughout the week. Hearings begin at 10:30 a.m. at the Holiday Inn. Members of the public are encouraged to attend.

Fire threatens a 2nd reactor

By NORMAN BLACK
and JILL LAWRENCE
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — U.S. intelligence sources reported that the Chernobyl nuclear reactor complex in the Soviet Ukraine experienced a meltdown Saturday, was still billowing smoke Tuesday and threatened another reactor at the same site.

Arms control administrator Kenneth Adelman, meanwhile, told Congress that Soviet claims of only two deaths were "frankly preposterous" and called the incident "the most catastrophic nuclear disaster in history."

He said temperatures reached as high as 4,000 degrees (Centigrade, or 7,232 degrees Fahrenheit) at the graphite-cooled reactor and added, "The graphite is burning and will continue to burn for a good number of days."

In Bali, White House spokesman Larry Speakes, traveling with the president, called on the Soviet Union to minimize the danger to other countries by providing full information about the incident, and repeated a U.S. offer of technical help in containing fire and radiation from the accident.

The White House has established a special interagency task force to coordinate the government's response to the accident, Speakes said.

Sen. Patrick Leahy, D-Vt., vice chairman of the Senate Intelligence Committee said after a CIA briefing Tuesday, "I've seen nothing that indicates that huge numbers of people are dead. It could be two, 12 or two dozen. Certainly the blast itself would have killed anyone in the immediate area."

But Leahy said he had seen nothing to confirm a report that 2,000 people had been killed.

He said radiation from the damaged plant "continues to escape at an alarming rate... The nations around the Soviet Union are right to be very concerned."

Emerging from the CIA briefing, Sen. Malcolm Wallop, R-Wyo., told reporters, "As we understand it, the building itself was essentially destroyed... One would have to assume there is contamination flowing everywhere within that 30 kilometer radius. You've got a hot radioactive core and it's still burning."

The estimates are that the radiation levels are "100,000 to 200,000 or perhaps a million times greater than anything that was contemplated at the worst point in the appraisal of Three Mile Island," Wallop said, attributing that assertion to information he received in the briefing.

"There are extensive levels of radiation, some of which are high enough to cause instantaneous deaths, some of which will cause death in days or weeks," Wallop said. "There is a hot fire burning and no ready way of putting it out."

It was understood that much of the U.S. intelligence information was gathered by a KH-11 spy satellite, but nobody was saying so officially.

A ranking administration official, speaking on condition of anonymity, told The Associated Press that officials evaluating recent intelligence

Brackett now cautious over LaRouche

By DEAN MILLER
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — A Magic Valley legislator who traveled to Rome, Italy, last fall with an organization linked to controversial presidential candidate Lyndon LaRouche, said Tuesday he would not repeat the trip and will be more careful in his future dealings with LaRouche's followers.

Since 1983, Rep. Noe Brackett, R-Twin Falls, has had a number of dealings with LaRouche followers and policies.

Brackett said Tuesday he has recently learned more about LaRouche and his organizations and is less open to their ideas than he was in September 1983, when supporters first approached him. He said he would still listen to a LaRouche proposal, as he would the hundreds of other proposals that come to him each year.

"I would not want to get excited about it until I talked to other people about it; if it looked like it had some support, I'd look at it," Brackett said, adding he will be "a little more cautious than I would with the ordinary group."

Though he said it has not been offered, the six-term lawmaker said he would not accept money for his reelection campaign from LaRouche's political organizations.

His involvement with the sometimes left-wing, sometimes right-wing candidate's organization has not hurt his reelection chances, Brackett said. "It's just like any vote we take — somebody upset and somebody happy," he said. "I feel I had taken money support for my campaign, that could have made a difference."

In 1984 he introduced in the Idaho House a memorial to Congress urging support for President Reagan's so-called "Star Wars" defense system. The memorial had been proposed by Brackett in a September 1984 telephone call from LaRouche employee, he said.

Brackett was flown to a conference in Rome for a week last November by the Schiller Institute, an organization headed by LaRouche's wife, Helga Zepp LaRouche.

In the last legislative session, Brackett drafted a bill suggested by LaRouche's organization to crack down on drug money laundering by banks and other to deal with the AIDS epidemic. The bills, like the "Star Wars" memorial, never made it out of the Legislature.

LaRouche, who has held the Queen of England is involved in illegal drug trade and former Democratic presidential candidate Walter Mondale is a "Soviet agent of influence,"

Writers' expulsion mars Reagan visit

The Associated Press

BALI, Indonesia — President Reagan, bearing a "message of freedom" for Asian allies, arrived to a lush welcome in the Orient on Tuesday, but Indonesian authorities promptly expelled two Australian journalists in Reagan's entourage.

A third reporter, Barbara Crossette of The New York Times, who had come on her own, was also ordered out of the country, allegedly because she had written stories critical of Indonesian President Suharto.

Richard Fairbray and James Middleton, Washington-based correspondents for the Australian Broadcasting Corp., were ordered off the press plane accompanying Reagan, detained briefly in the airport terminal here, then told to leave the country on the next plane to Tokyo.

Suharto banned all Australian journalists after a Sydney newspaper published an article alleging corruption in his government.

President Reagan regretted the decision by the Indonesians to deny entry to the journalists, presidential spokesman Larry Speakes said.

"The president wishes everyone could have come in," he said.

the disaster, an apparent reactor meltdown believed to have occurred last week.

"It shouldn't be that way in a modern society," declared Donald Prime minister, Poul Schluter.

Some called on the Soviets to shut down all their nuclear plants until international inspections could be carried out. Western analysts say the Soviet Union has about 45 nuclear reactors in operation.

The Soviet government claimed the "radiation situation" had been stabilized at the damaged plant, 450 miles southwest of Moscow.

But Swedish and West German officials said the Soviets had asked for information on combating nuclear-plant fires, indicating serious problems continued. But spokesmen for U.S. agencies that deal with atomic energy said there was no response from the Soviets to American offers of assistance.

U.S. arms control administrator Kenneth Adelman told reporters in Washington the reactor fire "will continue to burn for a good number of days." He said reactor temperatures had reached 7,000 degrees Fahrenheit, more than enough to have caused a calamitous meltdown of reactor fuel. But other scientists disagreed and no one could say exactly what had happened.

The official Soviet news media provided only sketchy accounts of the accident. Other reports, however, drew a picture of a hurried exodus from the affected area, but seeming unconcerned in Kiev.

A Kiev resident, contacted by telephone by The Associated Press in New York, said in Russian, "Everything in Kiev is absolutely peaceful. I don't know about other places closer to Chernobyl." But in Kiev everything is satisfactory, 100 percent.

When he was asked specifically about Chernobyl, he replied in English, "In that small city now is nobody. All people are evacuated maybe. I don't know exactly." He was asked where they may have been taken and said, "To another, small city. But... It is not too many people."

A West German technician working at the Chernobyl facility said an 18-mile security zone had been established around the damaged plant, Danish state radio reported, Swedish radio, citing unnamed sources in the Soviet Union, said truck convoys were streaming north from the area, in the rolling hills near the Dnepr River, the Soviet Union's industrial heartland.

"No one was aware of anything. No one seemed upset or concerned at all. Activity was completely normal," U.S. Air Force Col. Robert Beris said Tuesday after arriving in Moscow from Kiev.

Manfred Petrol, a West German nuclear industry spokesman, said the accident "must be the worst that has ever happened in the peaceful use of nuclear energy."

He told The Associated Press that diplomats at the Soviet Embassy in Bonn had asked for advice in combating a graphite fire in a nuclear reactor. He said other Soviet diplomats were trying to arrange assistance from West German anti-radiation experts and the possible delivery of medicines.

West German Interior Minister Friedrich Zimmermann said in Bonn that Soviet diplomats had met with government officials on reactor safety, but there was no official request for our help from the Soviets.

Western experts said serious health hazards — many of them not showing up until years from now — are unlikely beyond a 30-mile range of the site.

Some scientists abroad noted that Kiev's drinking water, drawn from the Dnepr River, could become contaminated. The Ukraine is also a major grain-growing region for the Soviets.

The Kiev resident contacted by AP was asked, "Can you drink the water?" and he replied, "Yes, yes."

Intelligence

"I don't believe there was a nuclear explosion per se" at Chernobyl. "But there was clearly a meltdown."

However, a group of physicists said they did not believe a meltdown was possible. Dr. William W. Havens Jr., executive secretary of the American Physical Society, said "it would take temperatures of about 5,000 degrees Fahrenheit to melt the low-grade uranium oxide fuel. It would be hard to reach temperatures of even 3,000 degrees in a graphite carbon fire, he said."

"There was no fuel meltdown," said Allan Bromley, a physics professor at Yale. But he added, "As long as the fire continues, there will be a continued release of radiation."

As of early Tuesday morning EDT, "smoke was still billowing from the site. The roof had been blown off and large portions of the walls of the reactor building had caved in," the administration official said. "And it seemed at the time that (another) nuclear unit just above it might still be some danger."

The source said the U.S. government was convinced there had been a huge release of radiation, but that the most serious radioactive fallout — on the ground — occurred within an area stretching out about 10 miles out from the plant.

This official also said the intelligence analysts were now convinced the accident occurred sometime Saturday.

Reports reaching the State Department said Soviet authorities were hampered in their efforts to put out the fire because of the intense heat. They were also concerned ed that dousing the fire could create more radioactivity than simply letting the reactor burn, according to a source who insisted on anonymity.

Adelman said those in the greatest risk are apparently the inhabitants of the village of 2,000 persons built to house workers at the nuclear facility and their families.

When told by a senator that the Soviet Union has claimed that only two people were killed by the accident, he said that was "frankly preposterous in terms of an accident of this magnitude."

"You have an air danger near Kiev and a water danger if the core should burn down to the water (table) line," Adelman said.

"There is concern over water contamination," Adelman told a Senate committee Tuesday afternoon. "It is water level is relatively high. The burning core at 4,000 degrees is at such an intense temperature, if it goes into the water you could have serious, serious problems with contamination."

The Soviet reactor was not protected by the type of steel and concrete containment building required at American commercial reactors, authorities said.

received a sumptuous reception upon their arrival at this Indonesian island on Tuesday.

They were greeted by Suharto and his wife Tien and led down a red-carpeted receiving line as young girls in native costume tossed flowers in their path.

Under extremely tight security, the Reagans were escorted through the large ornate stone Gates of Bali, the symbolic entry point to the island.

Thousands of Balinese welcomed the five-mile motorcade through the beachside resort hotel where the Reagans are staying.

The president arrived here at 7:10 p.m. Tuesday (8:10 a.m. EDT) after a grueling 16½-hour flight from Honolulu, a 6,000-mile trip that took him across the International Date Line and the Equator.

Reagan was to rest today, then meet with foreign ministers of the six-nation Association of Southeast Asian Nations, or ASEAN, on Thursday.

However, the expulsion of the three journalists was an embarrassing development for the trip Reagan has been trumpeting as a "winds of freedom" journey, some White House aides said privately.

The two Australian correspondents were refused visas despite high-level intervention by the White House up to just a few hours before planes carrying the president and the news media touched down.

Reagan's visit to this archipelago nation is a way stop for the president on his way to Tokyo for the May 4-6 economic summit of industrialized democracies.

While here, Reagan will meet collectively with the ASEAN leaders, representing the Philippines, Indonesia, Brunei, Malaysia, Singapore and Thailand.

He also planned separate meetings with Indonesia's Suharto and Philippine Vice President Salvador Laurel.

Suharto's ban on Australian journalists came in retaliation for a story in the Sydney Morning Herald that Suharto and his relatives had amassed $3 billion in personal wealth during his nearly 20 years in power.

is a frequent presidential candidate and has a number of followers seeking office around the country as Democrats.

LaRouche's doctrine and organization have come to the attention of the public since two LaRouche Democrats beat out mainstream Democrats in an Illinois primary election last month.

Brackett said Tuesday that when he took the trip to Rome last fall, he hadn't checked out the Schiller Institute or LaRouche. "I didn't know how much money they had and I didn't know the background of the men. I didn't know any of that, that's the reason I wouldn't go again," he said.

Brackett said that before he introduced the "Star Wars" memorial in the Idaho House, he checked with the American Legion and found they too supported the plan. He showed a letter from the Legion Tuesday, praising his efforts on the Star Wars memorial.

He said his work with the LaRouche groups was on specific issues and he did not buy their entire platform, as is the case with any other group that is a foe on some bills and a friend on others. "Anyone I can work with on any subject, I'll work with," Brackett said.

The 72-year-old retired rancher said it seems to him there are more organizations such as LaRouche's contacting legislators all the time. "You wonder what their motive is," he said. Asked what he thought LaRouche's motive is, Brackett said "I have no idea."

Bureau director to retire

BOISE (AP) — L.W. Lloyd, Pacific Northwest regional director of the federal Bureau of Reclamation, will retire on May 23 after 28 years of service.

Lloyd has directed all reclamation activities in the Pacific Northwest since moving to Boise in 1980. The region includes Idaho, most of Oregon, Washington, western Montana and the Snake River drainage of Wyoming.

Before moving to Boise, Lloyd was regional director for the Upper Missouri Region. He began his career with the bureau in 1961 as an electrical engineer in Denver, Colo.

Mrs. Reilly to fill ballot slot

BOISE (AP) — Rosie Reilly, widow of former Sen. Terry Reilly, has been appointed to run as the Democratic candidate against Republican Sen. Jerry Thorne of Nampa.

Mrs. Reilly has until May 9 to file her nominating petitions with the Secretary of State's Office, officials said.

She was appointed Tuesday to run as a Democrat against Thorne because no one from the Democratic party sought nomination. Thorne is unopposed in the Republican primary.

Her husband, who was seeking the Democratic nomination for lieutenant governor, became in 1982 the first Democrat elected to the state Senate from Canyon County in 40 years. He died April 10 in a plane crash along with Democratic 1st Congressional District candidate Peté Busch and his wife, Charlene Busch.

Drug use in district steady

BLACKFOOT (AP) — A three-year drug awareness and education program has not decreased the use of drugs in the Blackfoot School District. But officials say drug use has not risen either, and to them that is a victory.

"Nationally, stimulants and use of alcohol is increasing," said Joe Dahle, program coordinator for the district. "Use of tobacco and marijuana has stabilized. If you compare us to the national trend, there's a good indication we're doing well."

With a grant supplied by the U.S. Department of Education, the district launched the program, using community, parent, church and law enforcement involvement to combat drug problems with classroom promotions, presentations and attempts to build up peer group pressure against drug use.

Deal struck on right of way

LEWISTON (AP) — The Potlatch Corp. will be paid $1 million by the Federal Highway Administration for 12 miles of railroad right-of-way between Marble Creek and Avery, enabling the agency to build a new Forest Service road.

Potlatch officials had wanted more than $3 million for the stretch of track. But the federal agency's first offer was $275,000, which it said was fair market value for the property.

Study places Idaho site among worst

BOISE (AP) — EnviroSAFE Services Inc. in Idaho has been rated one of the worst hazardous waste storage sites in the nation, while its parent company was rated the nation's worst toxic waste management firm of those considered in a study.

"I'm not surprised," said Dr. Charles Scott, health officer in Owyhee County, where EnviroSAFE's Grand View site is located. "I've said that all the time."

But state Division of Environment spokesman Steve Provant said the data used to draw the conclusions was outdated, and contended the study was skewed to obtain desired results.

He contended researchers were

"looking for things to make (EnviroSAFE) look bad."

Larry Haack, EnviroSAFE vice president, failed to return a reporter's phone calls, and those answering the telephone said no one else was authorized to comment.

"We want to make EnviroSAFE unwelcome in the state of Idaho," said John Stocks, executive director of Idaho F&P Share, one of the organizations announcing the results of the study.

It was joined in Boise by the Idaho Conservation League, Owyhee County residents and two state senators.

The two-year study was done by the Council of Economic Priorities, a New York research firm, and concluded that EnviroSAFE's parent company, I.U. International Inc., Delaware, was the worst of eight hazardous waste management involved in the study.

That determination was made by considering financial viability, potential liability, public relations, compliance with government standards, groundwater monitoring, technology and site evaluation, said Mary-Kelly of the Idaho Conservation League.

The report concluded that of 11 hazardous waste sites studied, EnviroSAFE's Grand View site was the second worst, based on criteria of ground and surface routes, air route, monitoring and technology.

Information used to rate the Grand management firms and waste sites came from records of the federal Environmental Protection Agency, the U.S. Department of Transportation, and the U.S. Occupational Safety and Health Administration.

However, Provant said some of the information used in the study dated back to 1983. He said that is when EnviroSAFE was cited for some compliance violations in 1983, they started remedial action that was not mentioned in the study.

"We've been inspecting that site and making them low the mark," Provant said.

But Scott said there continues to be serious problems, citing the discovery of PCBs off the Grand View site.

Lempesis takes offer

BOISE (AP) — Chuck Lempesis, the Post Falls attorney who is seeking the Republican nomination for lieutenant governor, said he would accept the Sierra Club's offer for a week-long course in outdoor skills.

Lempesis said at a press conference in Boise Tuesday that he also is mulling Northern Rockies Sierra Club Chairman Ralph Maughan an airline ticket to "Secur d'Alene" to see the success of multiple use forest management in the area.

Lempesis and Maughan have exchanged "verbal" volleys over how much wilderness should be decreed in Idaho. Lempesis has called for no more wilderness.

Maughan, a political science professor at Idaho State University in Pocatello, offered Lempesis the course in outdoor skills and the philosophy of individualism last week.

That was in response to Lempesis' remarks to the Idaho Falls Senior Citizens that the Sierra Club should take a hike out of Idaho.

Maughan said Tuesday he stands firm on his offer, but said he may have problems scheduling before the school year ends May 17.

He said he would be willing to work out an arrangement to give part of the instruction on weekends.

Political fallout could prove heavy

The meltdown of a nuclear reactor core at the Chernobyl nuclear plant in the Soviet Ukraine will probably not result in any appreciable radiation fallout in the United States.

But the political fallout, particularly for the American nuclear energy industry, could be severe.

The event should also serve as a reminder of how interconnected we humans are on this planet Earth, regardless of nationality.

Details of the meltdown are still sketchy, but it appears that at least two people were killed and tens of thousands evacuated when the meltdown occurred.

Perhaps as ominous is the indications that the Soviets did not have the technical knowledge to handle an accident of this magnitude; the Soviets have asked for outside help from West Germany and Sweden on how to fight an unexpected fire in the fuel meltdown.

The accident will almost certainly focus attention on the American nuclear industry and will probably revive concerns about incidents like the one which occurred at Three Mile Island in Pennsylvania in 1979.

Nuclear foes already are citing the Soviet accident to support their claim that nuclear power generation has unacceptably high risks and in urging both Congress and the Nuclear Regulatory Commission not to weaken regulations.

That would seem to be, at the minimum, a prudent step. The extent of the Soviet disaster is not known, but is probably much greater than has been reported.

At least as important as the physical effects are the potential implications in the relationship of the Soviets to other countries. Many European nations angrily responded Wednesday for what they said was insufficient notification by the Soviet Union. The Danish prime minister said such silence "shouldn't be that way in a modern society."

The accident and the response again focus our attention on how interconnected the world has become.

Some Soviet backers in this country may be privately pleased with that nation's disaster, but national boundaries don't mean much when a cloud of radiation is spreading over the world.

Involvement key to solving farm crisis

Waft Mueller

The days in agriculture are looking dark. Can our family farm and rural towns survive this terrible economic crisis? Personally, I don't think so, unless we begin to understand the cause of our problems.

A famous U.S. president once said what happens in politics doesn't happen by accident; if it happens it's planned that way.

What's taking place in rural America isn't a management problem, it's a direct pricing problem. It's been planned that way.

When any business operating below its cost of production the end result is failure of the business. That is where many farmers are at this time. Our cities and towns are also feeling the results of the economic conditions and as the crisis continues we will see more businesses and banks fail. Towns will become just spots on the roadside.

This is happening not by poor farm management, but by an unfair pricing at the market place. It has nothing to do with supply and demand. I see nothing but lower prices ahead with the new farm bill, more foreclosures, bankruptcies and corporations taking over our food production.

We must respond by getting agriculture on its feet again. Interest buy-downs won't do it. Balling out banks and farm credit systems are not going to solve the problems either. These remedies will only give a few control of our land and the farmers and rural businesses will go under.

Many of us are led to believe this all must happen because of supply and demand, but the truth is, supply and demand have nothing to do with this crisis. It is mismanagement within our government and improper priority setting.

The new farm bill appropriates enough money to do the job I managed properly. Currently people are led to believe the family farmer is receiving large subsidies, when really he isn't actually receiving a fair return on his investment. In agriculture, we need both a cost of production report, plus a reasonable profit.

In December, as the farm crisis grew more bleak, a congressman named Jamie Whitten from Mississippi attached a resolution to an appropriations bill authorizing expenditures to keep government going. The intention was also to restore equity to the farm program.

This amendment would have raised loan rates to reflect a cost of production to the farm producer. The producer then would receive a payment from the purchaser, rather than the government.

The Whitten Amendment incorporated the principle of the Farm Policy Reform Act, which in effect provided both the producer and consumer a role in agriculture price setting. Neither have that now.

The Farm Policy Reform Act covered production years 1986-1999. Under the act, commodity loan rates were to be increased from 70 percent parity in 1986 until they reached 90 percent parity.

The Whitten amendment passed the committee and passed the House, but when it reached the Senate Appropriations Committee, it was killed by a narrow three-vote margin. Sen. Jim McClure voted against the Whitten amendment. In doing this the senator voted against a cost of production for his farm constituents. In voting against the Whitten amendment, McClure voted against the commodity rate and lower pricing at the unfair control for family farmers and taxpayers, because producers are not going to receive cost of production returns.

Now I am sure the senator says he is for the cost of production when he talks to his rural voters. How can he truly say this when he voted for the present farm bill, which results in a reduction in farm income?

The time has come to change these policies and hold our senators and congressmen responsible. We must provide a fair price to agricultural producers. This will assist in balancing the budget by providing new wealth from the agricultural sector. History has proved that.

You have the opportunities to do something about the current farm program. Become involved in your district and state political process and support family farm legislation so that agriculture and rural Idaho can survive. It can't be lower interest buy-downs. It can't be operating loans that can't be paid back. It must be a fair farm program for agricultural producer.

You must inform friends and neighbors of the difference between the Farm Policy Reform Act and the current farm program proposal.

Please recognize the real problem as not being your neighbors' mismanagement, but inappropriate price-making legislation at the national level.

Waft Mueller is a Twin Falls farmer and president of the Magic Valley Barbers Association.

Look at candidates as people

Left Wing Democrats, Right Wing Republicans, the LDS, LaFouche, CAUSA Moonies, ALBC (American Legislative Exchange Council), Rajneesh and the Order all have something in common: their heads in the sand and axes to grind.

Rep. L. Ed Brown (Poetello), also representing the LDS preaching the evils of the lottery should know Idahoans need no advice on morality from his glass house.

Sen. Larry Anderson, a complete failure, more interested in CAUSA Moonies than using his touted "Eastern" education. We need "thinkers," not George Hanson protege mouthpieces.

Mr. Stubbs, a fine example of back-room politics, no aims, no goals, just fast footwork and platitudes, well aware of voter apathy.

Rep. Jeff Stoker, ineffective and no expertise except to promote lies and certainly no respect for the law in Twin Falls.

Rep. Donna Scott, a fine lady, but totally out of her sphere to contribute to Idaho, missing badly on childcare and CSI funding. ALBC did her harm.

Sen. Noy Brackett, naive tool of radical Lyndon LaFouche. His "free" trip to Rome has cost Idaho.

None of the above have shown any evidence they understand what they went to the Legislative session to accomplish, and should resign, or be dumped. Any fool today can divide money (maybe not apples/oranges, but money, yes).

To improve Idaho we must first have complete tax reform, then will need resources for Education, Department of Commerce, Marketing Institute, etc. We must limit "helping" farmers because we're doing more harm than good.

The recent 25 percent sales tax increase was regressive. Tax returns are long overdue, however past Legislatures have been ignorant, incompetent and short-sighted in this area.

The last several years the legislature's chief concerns has been the 55 mph speed limit, free privilege parking in the BI, right-to-work and Jerry Anderson's "all ego subjects" - it's pitiful, none worth a tinkers damn.

The voters must begin looking at candidates as people, not party hack recommendations. Only people with foresight, vision, imagination and intelligence (not necessarily education) can improve Idaho's long range status.

Presently the large majority party is in disarray, specializing in arrogant verbosity and mirror admiraltoth, collectively a sorry and pathetic group.

Extremists of any group are harmful to Idaho, where the "Conservative" label now means "radical." Let's examine all candidates carefully and vote for real progress in Idaho. This includes all public office holders from town/city to federal.

GILBERT R. MOORE

with little direction, guidance or supervision. For example: the State Highway Department directors are appointed by the governor. The waste and inefficiency of this department is probably sufficient to fill every chuck hole in the state.

The waste in our bureaucracy is in proportion to their budget. A permit to steal, so to speak.

Finally, Steve, it is your newspaper. What you write is your business, after all, and what your patrons choose to read and believe is theirs. To buy or not to buy remains the question.

Support expressed for Hart

I wish to publicly express my strong support for Bill Hart in his candidacy for the position of Fifth Judicial District Court Judge, to be seated in Minidoka County.

While I know Bill to be extremely enthusiastic about the opportunity, I am also aware that he was virtually drafted by the legal community, as its choice to run for the judgeship.

This is a clear indicator that it perceives him to be fair, dynamic and forceful. These are the daily basis as he has carried out his judicial responsibilities as a magistrate judge in Lincoln County.

I have known Bill personally for ten years, and on my list of highly understanding, good judgement and integrity, he ranks number one. It has come back to me indirectly on several occasions that, as a practicing attorney, he has injected compassion and "the human touch" into what is perceived by many to be the rather cold, community legal process. I've seen his loyalty to community, church and the other things that are good about life in America. His generosity in spending time and efforts on others' behalf is widely acknowledged. What we need are more people of Bill Hart's class and style.

I know very little about Bill's election opponent; what I do know is that we, the voters, have a valuable opportunity to place in office a uniquely qualified member of the legal profession, that an excellent fact and case law in justice for years to come. Please check the ballot carefully on May 27, and vote for J. William Hart for District Court Judge.

Freedom watchdogs or cancer?

Your editorial tirade against Tom Stivers is reprehensible. That you allude the voters in this valley are hopelessly ignorant, stupid and incapable of making decisions puts journalism at an all time low. You are sounding much like the left wing press.

A check of the last Legislature reveals Districts 23, 24 and 25 adhere closely to the wishes of voters who elected them, as promised. I is it possible, Steve, you have aligned yourself so tightly to the special interest groups and malcontents that reality to you is but an illusion?

Recently you editorialized and professed turning a deaf ear, adopting a shield of the road philosophy towards politics. Perhaps this is so, but I shall always wonder who surveyed this road you seek the middle of.

The media have far more information at their disposal than I do, and I do not believe that this media concern themselves primarily with issues that are petty when compared to the real problems of this state? Is the media the watchdogs of freedom or the cancer of society?

Idaho's most pressing problem is the near total absence of leadership for in these many years Idaho has 140 bureaucracies. All are over-funded, over-staffed and without direction. Lacking leadership, they wander aimlessly, as if a dreticif.

The waste in these bureaus is appalling. Once the legislators have made the appropriation, there is very little they can do to control them. This is the governor's job. The governor makes the appointments, then appears to abandon all

Letters/ Charboneau's mother decries prosecutor's 'negligence' in handling case

Slap in the face of justice

Today is a time of great tension and a world filled with sadness, the uncaring hand of terrorism from our neighbors in the Far East. A place where freedom and justice is a mockery and a non-existing virtue.

We, the American people, live with the every-day fear of what is happening to the countries abroad; but what is happening right here in our home land of America has an ill justice so swept our country that it is slowly blinding the vision in the hearts of all free men.

That politicians, and the leaders of our country may be entitled to procedures and courtroom acceptance that can be so easily, and many times are, denied the average citizen.

The last of February a young man that was accused of killing his wife, when in fact he was actually, indeed, only defending himself from her, was denied a lie detector test. The prosecuting attorney in the case threw away all the evidence, bullets - let the gun and all evidence go home with the woman's parents.

When the judge ordered all evidence be returned to the courts, they never could be sure that the gun which was returned was the same gun in the case. The bullets were actually thrown away.

The prosecuting attorney was allowed to take a lie detector test clearing him of this, but the policeman the prosecutor told to throw the bullets away refused to lie for this politician on the witness stand at the young man's trial and was fired because of it, and the prosecutor is still in office running for another office not caring that a young man was sentenced to death and his life is walking in the galleys, while he proceeds with his life in the sunshine and doing it in the name of justice.

When we look at Old Glory gently blowing in the wind and listen to America the Beautiful, doesn't it echo through the hallowed halls and with every tear drop from the hearts of each American citizen that has been unjustly accused of the real intentions of our forefathers that fought and died to bring freedom to our country.

My son, Jamie Charboneau, is waiting on death row in the Boise state prison, while a politician in our state that was negligent and cared not for the true meaning of justice in our free land is free to laugh and sing and to carry on with his life.

If this begins, it will tanker and cancer our freedom, and along the way in doing so, slap the face of justice to make a higher place in government for the few politicians that are spilling our Constitution that God so smiled upon.

Bury memories of WWII

Not intending to slur any race, religion or nationality, the thought has come to mind that President Reagan is not altogether of Jewish descent, but rather of Irish Jewish descent.

This thought occurred to me of his constant defense of Israel who has invaded their neighbors' lands, stolen property from others and has directly been the cause of unrest and violence in that area.

Other groups of people have a right to their homeland as well as the Jews.

As for this deportation of the now old soldiers of Germany, let them now live in peace and let the happenings of World War II bury itself in history.

Not all teen-agers are bad

Several weeks ago we were traveling from Boise to Burley, when our car stopped and refused to go. Three teen-aged boys, on their way to Boise, turned around and came back to help us. In a very short time they had the car running, and then followed us to be sure it was working all right.

They must have sensed our concern because one of them said, "Not all of us are bad."

They were so happy, jovial and respectful which reflects the parentage these young men have. They said they were from Twin Falls. Could you find a small space in the Twin Falls paper to thank these young men? Their names were Micky Jones, Dave Short and Tim Pherigo. Thank you so much.

Freedoms disappearing

The "Spotlight" is a small, weekly magazine, openly and most dependable in America. The Spotlight has reporters in important places all over the world who gather first hand information. This magazine reports pro and con on all issues.

From it, we, the readers are informed of many of the treasonous acts of our leaders, even before they fully materialize.

Now, the Spotlight has been denied access to the House and Senate press galleries. This happened after the Spotlight had met all requirements, making it a fully accredited paper.

This small group of people, mostly editors of some of the largest papers, with the largest number of reporters, and some congressmen who desire to keep the facts under cover are the ones controlling freedom of speech.

It is time the American people awake. Years ago we should have recognized and fought the destruction of our freedoms but America, the apathetic nation, has silently allowed nativity scenes to be forcefully eliminated from programs, has watched parties abused and taken to court for having signs on their places of business that gave Christ honor.

Perhaps when those who regard Christ as their Saviour reach the point where they cannot worship openly and must go underground, they will be honest enough to stand up for truth and right.

Our rights, God given and Constitutionally guaranteed, have just about gone. Oh, we can exercise these rights but by doing so we pay a penalty no matter whether we harm anyone or not. This dictatorship took control while we had representatives in Washington and in the states, claiming to be there for our good. Look at the world now, since those we trusted have had the privilege of manipulating things.

Let me forever stand with those who care, who are not ashamed to speak. Being ignorant of facts and being willfully ignorant are not the same and hoping things will improve if we just remain silent is the most ignorant position of all.

I know there are some who want truth to shine for I have had calls gauge following my last letter to The Times-News and to the Northside News, urging me to write more and more. One who can write home to mother is not excused by claiming they don't know how to write to a paper. When I, who lay no claim to education will stick my neck out what is there to keep the educated, informed, from writing? Apathy! Possibly fear.

The Times-News welcomes letters to the editor but will reject those it considers libelous or in bad taste. Letters must be signed and should include the writer's mailing address. Letters of more than 400 words may be edited for length.

Briefly

Deaver's lobbying extensive

WASHINGTON (AP) — Michael K. Deaver, under investigation for possibly violating conflict-of-interest laws in the 11 months since he resigned as one of President Reagan's top aides, has lobbied friends and top administration officials on behalf of his foreign clients, government records show.

Treasury Secretary James A. Baker III, Commerce Secretary Malcolm Baldrige, Secretary of State George Shultz and U.S. Trade Representative Clayton K. Yeutter are some of the influential people that Deaver or members of his firm has contacted on behalf of their clients.

And the clients have paid handsomely for the services of Michael K. Deaver and Associates, according to documents filed with the Justice Department for the six-month period ending March 18.

Astronauts' remains to Dover

DOVER AIR FORCE BASE, Del. (AP) — Seven flag-draped coffins holding the remains of the astronauts killed three months ago in the explosion of space shuttle Challenger arrived Tuesday to be prepared for burial or cremation.

Under cloudy, gray skies, nearly 150 military personnel and civilians watched as the astronauts' coffins were placed in silver hearses and taken to the base mortuary to be prepared according to their families' wishes.

A six-man color guard carried the American, Navy, Air Force and NASA flags, while a 37-member Air Force honor guard saluted. Seven astronauts served as escorts for their fallen comrades.

Budget deadlock continues

WASHINGTON (AP) — The deadlock over a fiscal 1987 spending plan showed no signs of easing Tuesday as President Reagan called a bipartisan budget blueprint pending in the Senate "totally unacceptable" and Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole said he would never vote for it.

"I think we'd like to have a bipartisan budget (but) we haven't gotten one yet," Dole, R-Kan., said of private discussions among senators seeking a consensus on a spending plan for the fiscal year beginning Oct. 1.

Booster rocket section found

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Searchers have recovered a long-sought section of Challenger's right booster rocket containing the lower half of the joint that caused the shuttle to explode, NASA announced Tuesday.

With the recovery of this piece, which the agency called a "significant component," NASA said it had terminated the hunt for additional rocket debris — three months and a day after the Jan. 28 disaster killed seven astronauts.

'Hands' prospects signing up

WEST HOLLYWOOD, Calif. (AP) — Hands Across America, a plan to link 6 million people in a line across the country on May 25, has surpassed its first goal with 1.5 million people signed up as of Tuesday, organizer Ken Kragen said.

"We are, in fact, maybe a little ahead of schedule," said Kragen. He had predicted in January that the extraordinary feat would succeed if 1 million people had signed up for the line by May 1.

Kragen has insisted that his organization of 350 paid workers and several thousand volunteers will overcome logistical obstacles to form the 4,152-mile line. People will contribute $10 to $35 to stand in the line, and the effort is expected to raise at least $50 million for the nation's hungry and homeless.

AMA to provide list of doctors

WASHINGTON (AP) — The American Medical Association, in a move that Pentagon officials consider a breakthrough, has agreed to provide a listing of virtually all U.S. doctors for use in the event of a wartime call-up, officials said Tuesday.

The list of doctors, their specialties and addresses will be provided for use "in times of a presidentially declared crisis," one Defense Department official said.

The agreement with the AMA, reached during several months of negotiations, was announced to the surgeons general of each service last Thursday by Dr. William Mayer, the assistant defense secretary for health affairs, other sources said.

Methodist bishops condemn U.S. arms policy

MORRISTOWN, N.J. (AP) — About 100 United Methodist bishops from across the country unanimously condemned nuclear armaments Tuesday and torped the U.S. policy of nuclear deterrence, a dogmatic license for perpetual hostility between the superpowers.

The bishops representing the nation's second-largest Protestant denomination declared any "moral case for deterrence, even as an interim epoch, has been undermined by unrelenting arms escalation."

Their document asserted a "clear and unconditioned" "no to any use of nuclear arms, called for a ban on space weapons, a mutual verifiable nuclear freeze and "ultimate dismantling of all such weapons."

"It's a clear and ringing declaration," Bishop C. Dale White of New York told a press conference afterward. "We're challenging the policies of this government and nation and doing so in the name of Christian justice."

More steel goes into bottlecaps -- almost 60 million words. every year in this country -- than into cars.

Drink your tea as the Mongolian drinks tea -- put salt in it.

How could one writer turn out the equivalent 1,000 full-length novels? Charles Hamilton aka Frank Richards did as much. A British author of boys' stories, Hamilton was the most prolific fiction writer who ever lived. He strung together three sections, the waisi-line out in succession. Q. Is the profession of matador really as dangerous as we're told? A. More so, maybe. One matador named Joe Gonzales was gored by 50 bulls before one finally killed him; why? Since Gonzales chose to continue in the game I do not know. Some might have switched careers after goring No. 10, Or No. 20, Or No. 1.

Certain truly skilled professionals never do certain things. The violinist, for example, never grips the bow so the fingertips touch the horsehair. The paperhanger never paints a ladder. The carpenter never strikes a hammer with a hammer. Any others come to mind?

Japanese emperor voices his hopes for peace

TOKYO (AP) — Emperor Hirohito, the world's longest-reigning monarch, Tuesday celebrated six decades on the throne that he ascended as a god-king and now fills as a ceremonial symbol. It was his 65th birthday.

In a short formal ceremony at the national sumo wrestling arena, Hirohito spoke of painful memories of World War II and hopes for world peace.

"Looking back over the 60 years of Showa, my heart is still pained when I recall the sacrifices by the people during the war and I am again moved by the preclusiveness of peace," he said.

Showa, which means Enlightened Peace, is the name given to the Hirohito era.

"I firmly believe we can open the way to a prosperous future if we only put to use, with ingenuity, the lessons learned from past experiences," the emperor said.

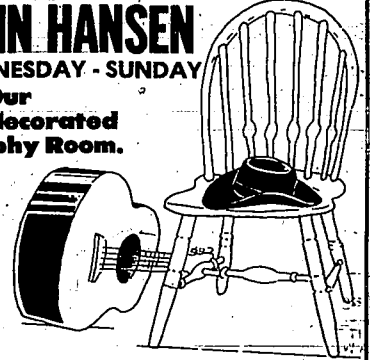

Earlier Tuesday, 81,000 people went to the Imperial Palace to cheer Hirohito on his birthday. He appeared four times on a second-floor balcony — which was enclosed by bulletproof glass — with Empress Nagako, 83, their two sons and their families.

Suspects in shooting seized

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Security forces on Tuesday captured Syrian-backed guerrillas suspected of killing a British tourist in Jerusalem and of carrying out three other shootings in the city, police spokesman Rafi Levi said.

The captured gang belonged to the breakaway Abu Mousa faction of the Palestine Liberation Organization, Levi said. Abu Mousa split from Yasser Arafat's mainline PLO organization in 1983.

A Jerusalem court, without giving its reasons, clamped a news blackout on the case. Police declined to say how many members of the gang were arrested and where or how they were picked up.

Libyan scouted U.S. targets

ANKARA, Turkey (AP) — A prosecutor's indictment says a Libyan intelligence officer visited Turkey in January to scout American targets for terrorist attacks.

Security Court prosecutor Ulku Coskun prepared the indictment, a copy of which was obtained Tuesday by The Associated Press, for the trial of five Libyans accused of planning a grenade attack on a U.S. military officers' club in Ankara.

The indictment said the club was chosen because it would be crowded. About 100 people were attending a wedding party that Friday night, and the prosecutor has said the explosion of just one grenade could have killed or wounded half of them.

Lebanese militia go on alert

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Unusually heavy Israeli air and sea patrols were reported Tuesday and the Shiite Muslim militia Amal went on alert in case of an Israeli raid on terrorist or guerrilla bases.

Amal sources said their leadership believed Israel might attack Beirut's southern suburbs, where radical Shiite groups are said to be based. Shittes have kidnapped foreigners and attacked Israeli military units in south Lebanon.

A Lebanese military source said Israeli warplanes flew repeated high-altitude reconnaissance missions for three hours over south Lebanon and the Syrian-controlled Bekaa Valley.

Pan Am flight reaches Moscow

MOSCOW (AP) — The first U.S. commercial flight to the Soviet Union since 1978 arrived here Tuesday, carrying the U.S. ambassador and 56 other passengers who drank champagne to toast resumption of air service between the superpowers.

The Pan American World Airways flight from New York, via Frankfurt, touched down at Moscow's Sheremetyevo Airport about 10 minutes late at 5:40 p.m. (7:40 a.m. MDT).

A Soviet Aeroflot jet left Moscow earlier in the day, headed for Dulles Airport in Washington after a refueling stop in Gander, Newfoundland.

Corruption story shadows visit

BALI, Indonesia (AP) — A 3-week-old story in an Australian newspaper caused the expulsion Tuesday of three foreign correspondents from Indonesia and cast a shadow over the visit of President Reagan.

Relations between Jakarta and Canberra remained strained because of the article published April 10 in the Sydney Morning Herald, which compared officially sanctioned graft in Indonesia with that in the Philippines under President Ferdinand E. Marcos.

Written by Herald Foreign Editor David Jenkins, an authority on Indonesia, it said corruption was the Achilles' heel of President Suharto's regime.

Posthumous royal honors for duchess

WINDSOR, England (AP) — The Duchess of Windsor, the American divorcee for whom King Edward VIII gave up his throne, was buried beside her husband Tuesday, posthumously drawn into the royal embrace that was denied her for nearly 50 years.

The simple funeral, attended by Queen Elizabeth II and 16 members of her family, was the final chapter to a king-and-commoner romance that rocked 1930s Britain and forced the couple into virtual exile at the insistence of a scandalized monarchy.

The 28-minute ceremony passed without visible displays of emotion. There was no mention of the duchess by name or title, nor of the tumultuous love she played in British history.

The duchess, twice-divorced Baltimore socialite Wallis Warfield Simpson, died childless in Paris Thursday at 89, having outlived the duke by 14 years. Her body was flown Sunday to Britain, a land she was once quoted as saying she would "hate to my grave."

PG-13 Rated
Introduced

A new rating category is in place as of July 1. This new category is inserted between the current PG and R ratings. It is designated as "PG-13." Parents are strongly cautioned to give special guidance for attendance of children under 13. Some material may be inappropriate for young children.

The revised five-category system of the voluntary film industry rating program is now as follows:

- G General Audiences, all ages admitted.
- PG Parental guidance suggested. Some material may not be suitable for children.
- PG-13 Parents are strongly cautioned to give special guidance for children under 13. Some material may be inappropriate for young children.
- R Restricted, under-17 requires accompanying parent or adult guardian.
- X No one under 17 admitted.

All films rated after July 1 will be given ratings under the new five-category system.

Nuclear disaster

Soviets use graphite to control chain reaction

NEW YORK (AP) — The reactors in the Soviet Union's Chernobyl nuclear power plant differ from commercial American reactors in the use of graphite to moderate the chain reaction.

Commercial nuclear plants in the United States use water to moderate the nuclear reaction, said Thomas Cochran, a senior staff scientist with the Natural Resources Defense Council in Washington.

"The graphite has some advantages and disadvantages," said Cochran. "It has a very high heat capacity — an advantage. On the other hand, there are problems such as occurred at the Windscale reactor in the United Kingdom in October, 1957, where they had a fire."

The Windscale plant, used primarily to produce plutonium, uses graphite as a moderator, said Cochran, a physicist who specializes in nuclear power and nuclear weapons issues.

Both graphite and uranium can burn when a reactor gets too hot.

"Then you have a real serious problem," he said. "As in the case of the Soviet Union, where you're getting cesium and iodine in Scandinavia, inside the reactor the levels might be enormous."

The detection of cesium is particularly disturbing, Cochran said. It suggests that filters at the nuclear plant were not able to contain much of the radioactive material released in the accident.

He said he has seen pictures of the Chernobyl plant, and he is confident that the reactors are not inside-so-called containment buildings.

These buildings, typically made of concrete several feet thick, are intended to prevent the escape of radioactive material.

In the absence of a containment building, filters are used to capture some of the radioactive materials. They cannot contain everything, but they should capture cesium, Cochran said. In the Soviet case, they apparently didn't.

Moderating materials — either water or graphite — are used to slow neutrons inside the nuclear reactor.

Neutrons are sub-atomic particles that sustain the chain reaction.

'Hot' cloud moved away from Ukraine grain area

WASHINGTON (AP) — Most of the radioactive cloud from the Soviet Union's nuclear mishap may have moved away from the heart of the Ukraine's rich winter grain area, an Agriculture Department weather expert said Tuesday.

But Norton D. Strommen, chief meteorologist for the department's World Agricultural Outlook Board, said it was too soon to make accurate predictions in the wake of the accident.

"If we go back and look at the meteorological conditions, the plume of fallout from that accident would be confined primarily to the area northwest of Kiev," he said. "That is an area away from their major winter grain-producing areas."

"At this time we have no information on dosage, intensity or duration. Therefore, we can really say very little in terms of what it might mean to the future for the planting of the spring crops and livestock in that area."

Strommen said "more concrete information" will be required "before we can begin to assess the potential impacts" of the accident.

Primary will put precinct plan to 2nd test

County residents to receive notification soon.

By PAT MARCANTONIO
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — County residents will be notified by mail soon of changes in their precinct number and polling place, as the result of re-vamping of the county precinct map.

More than 14,000 cards will be mailed "within a matter of days," Twin Falls County Clerk Dick Pence said.

The clerk's office should be notified of any errors in the addresses or names on the cards or if people have moved recently to insure proper registration in time for the May 27 primary, he added.

Most of the changes will occur within Twin Falls city limits because of a consolidated election system adopted last fall by the county and city, in the name of efficiency.

Under the consolidation, tested during a November city election, the city and county share voter registration rolls and precinct boundaries.

The number of boundaries within the city was increased this year by the Board of County Commissioners. Instead of the nine precincts used in the city election, there now are 20 precincts within the city. The county commissioners had said they believed the nine precincts were too large and unmanageable.

The county also renumbered precincts within the city.

In the rural area of the county, however, only minor changes were made to the precinct boundaries.

People also will be notified if they will be voting at a different polling place than the last election.

To allow for better access to the handicapped, new polling places have been selected, Pence said. The old County Hospital Building on Addison Avenue no longer will be used, for instance, because of the no-camp, he added.

The polling places include the following:
TWIN FALLS: Precinct No. 1, Bickel Elementary School; No. 2, Twin Falls County Courthouse; No. 3, DAV Hall at Shoup Avenue and Harrison Street; No. 4 and No. 5, Robert Stuart Junior High School; No. 6, DAV Hall; No. 7, No. 8 and No. 9, Harrison Elementary

School; No. 10, Twin Falls High School; No. 11, Sawtooth Elementary School; No. 12, Twin Falls High School; No. 13, Sawtooth Elementary School; No. 14, Twin Falls High School; No. 15, No. 16 and No. 17, Valley Christian-Savior Lutheran Church; No. 18, Twin Falls County Judicial Building; No. 19, Morningside Elementary School; No. 20, Christian Center of Magic Valley.

Registrars ready to sign in new county voters

By PAT MARCANTONIO
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Precinct registrars are in place and ready to register people to vote in the May 27 primary.

Twin Falls County residents may sign up with the registrars in their precincts through May 9 or at the Twin Falls County Courthouse through May 16, Clerk Dick Pence said.

There have been changes in precinct boundaries from the last county election, particularly within Twin Falls city.

The Twin Falls County Board of Commissioners this year increased the number of precincts within the city from nine in the last city election to 20. The county also renumbered precincts within the city, but made minor changes to rural precincts.

Under a consolidated election system, the city and county share voter registration rolls and precinct boundaries. In addition, anyone who registered for the last city election automatically is registered with the county.

Although most precincts have a registrar, some are without one, Pence said. If that is the case, voters should register at the Courthouse.

Registrars for 1986 include:
TWIN FALLS Precincts: No. 1, Helen Lamb, 242 8th Ave. E., 733-7870; No. 2, Josephine Wurst, 242 3rd Ave. N., 733-2335; No. 3, Marie Hranac, 475 Rose St. N., 734-5847; No. 4, Delores Hawkins, 145 Caswell Ave. W., 733-7727; No. 5, Sharon Higbee, 1208 Parkway Drive, 734-2729; No. 6, Mrs. Dorer Bertsch, 202 Jefferson St., 733-4573; No. 7, Marge Mason, 558 Jackson St., no phone; No. 8, Inna Deleski, 241 Buehnan St., 733-4332; No. 9, Colleen Smith, 629 Grant Ave., 733-2653; No. 10, Clara Brashear, 1723 Heyburn Ave. E., 733-2465; No. 11, Mary Nutting, 1221 Spruce Ave., 733-1691; No. 13, Mildred Wilson, 1221 Juniper St. N., 733-1898; No. 15, Janet Boyd, 2029 Spruce Drive, 733-5236; No. 17, Emma Wagner, 1328 6th Ave. E., 733-8955; No. 19, Nena Robinson, 1936 Osterloh Ave., 733-2994; No. 20, Mrs. Lloyed LeClair, 485 Addison Ave. W., 733-6696.

Pharmacist regards research as key to economic growth

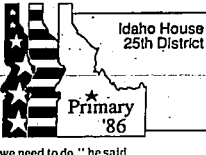

By DEAN MILLER
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Idaho's 1990 centennial celebration and better funding for research at Idaho's colleges and universities are the keys to economic growth outlined by Jerome pharmacist and legislative candidate Robin Kinsey on Tuesday.

Kinsey is running against state Rep. Jerry Callen, R-Jerome, in the May 27 primary election to see who will face Democrat Nell Weir in the general election for the eight-county, 1st District 2A seat.

Outlining his plan for economic growth in Idaho, Kinsey said the state should promote its centennial to boost tourism and should rely on college researchers and business leaders to find ways to improve the economy.

Kinsey, 44, said he is prepared to spend state taxpayer money for economic development, if necessary. "If we have to spend the money up front to get it rolling, that's what we need to do," he said.

Education can help lead the state into more prosperous times, something Kinsey said has been done in other states.

"I think that the good education system can actually lead the way to an economic recovery," he said. Role models Idaho can follow include Massachusetts, where the governor called on universities for help in planning the economic recovery.

Idaho is now enjoying, and Texas, where hard times have prodded the state to continue funding schools, he said.

"We need to get in touch with people who masterminded these programs, we're in a survival situation with the agricultural economy," Kinsey said.

The tourism industry could be aided by promotion of the Idaho centennial in 1990, he said. To do that, Kinsey said he will push for more road signs, "so people aren't entering the state through Snowville, Utah and exiting through Ontario, Oregon with only a stop for a gas fill-up."

He said the state should use advertising in motel rooms and elsewhere to encourage people to stop and spend money in the state.

"I want to emphasize it's all positive; there's a way out of our economic problems," he said.

Kinsey said legislators who talk of the importance of not raising taxes aren't looking at the number of school overrides at the local level. He said the Legislature has thrown school funding increasingly into property taxes.

Majority of Kimberly voters approve school district levy

By MICHAEL VANAUDELN
Times-News correspondent

KIMBERLY — Voters Tuesday approved a $120,000 property tax override levy for the Kimberly School District.

The levy was passed by 75 percent of the voters, down 3 percent from last year; but this year's election had 70 fewer voters than last year. A total of 324 voters turned out for the election, with 249 voters voting for the levy and 81 voting against it.

"The results show that the community still supports us," said Kimberly Superintendent Richard Bauscher. "We have had good response from the voters all week and we felt confident that they would vote for the levy. Those who voted against it, voted mostly for economic reasons." The $120,000 comprises 9 percent of the total budget for next year. The current levy of $95,000 will expire June 30, and the new levy will take effect July 1.

School District officials had sent out letters to district residents explaining what the levy money would be used for and why the $120,000 was needed.

Most of the money will be used for maintenance of district facilities. Bauscher plans to repair two buildings — roofs, including the replacement of the high school roof; purchase new desks, tables, chairs, and equipment for an additional second grade classroom; replace unsafe and dangerous entrance stairs; install solid building walls to replace curtain-divided classrooms in the high school; add student lockers to accommodate increased enrollment; complete blacktopping of all parking lots and purchase a new, 66-passenger school bus.

Despite the increase in the amount of the levy over last year, property owners will actually be paying less than they are paying now. A resident with $50,000 of assessed property value would pay $42.15 for the year, $1.75 less than last year's levy payment of $43.90.

Last year the district had a $30,000 bond that Kimberly property owners were paying in addition to the levy, totaling $125,000. The bond has been retired, so property owners will be paying only on the override levy this year.

Interest boosted in Jerome races

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

JEROME — Announcements by three Jerome County officials that they would not seek re-election this year has sparked heavy candidate interest in the upcoming primary election.

Assessor Marjorie DuBols has announced she will step down from the county assessor's post she has held for the past two years; Pam Smith, who was elected four years ago, is leaving the 2nd District county commissioner post; and Treasurer Elsie Childers will end her county service at the end of December.

There are five candidates for the Republican nomination for Jerome County assessor:
• Henk Bekker, currently serving worked for DuBols the past two years.

• Greg Heinrich is a former appraiser for the Jerome County assessor's office and a state licensed appraiser. His Jerome County appraisal work was ended because of budget cuts and he now works part time under contract as an appraiser for Twin Falls County. He also owns a professional chimney cleaning operation.

• John Wurst, also a certified appraiser in Idaho, Wurst currently serves as maintenance supervisor for the Bon Marche store in Twin Falls. He has been a deputy assessor in Blaine and Ada counties and also in the state of Washington.

• Von Morley operates his own real estate appraisal service. He owned the board is expected to approve construction in May. Money will come out of the plant facilities funds.

CSI given federal energy efficiency grant

TWIN FALLS — The U.S. Department of Energy has approved an energy grant for the College of Southern Idaho, officials announced on Tuesday.

CSI will receive $76,400 in May as part of the DOE's program to improve energy efficiency in public schools and hospitals.

"This affords us the opportunity to extend hot water lines and cut down on energy purchases," said Bob McClanahan, physical plant director. "We're using a great, renewable energy source."

The college is one of 10 colleges, school districts and hospitals in Idaho to receive such grants, which total more than $31,000.

The state Bureau of Energy Resources had recommended 57 public and nonprofit schools, hospitals and local government entities receive approval for the federal funds.

The grants are authorized by the National Energy Policy Act and are to be matched with money from each of the recipients.

CSI will use the money to retrofit pipes in the Fine Arts Building and at the gym in order to pipe water from its geothermal wells through the buildings. Part of the money also will be used to study whether the college can save money by using geothermal well water at the dorms.

CSI officials said last week that savings from the project should reach more than $16,000 annually.

The board must approve using matching funds. McClanahan said the board is expected to approve construction in May. Money will come out of the plant facilities funds.

County cleanup plans proceeding

TWIN FALLS — This year's Joyous Holiday Day on Saturday will be even better than an Easter egg hunt.

Darrell Helder, who coordinates the annual Twin Falls County cleanup campaign, said there will be 300 open-top aluminum cans distributed on all designated routes to be covered by the volunteer trash collectors.

The specially marked cans will entitle finders to prizes that range from a free hamburger or a restaurant dinner to a $50 savings bond or a year's subscription of VCR movies. There will be a prize of a free month for one full year, more prizes, gifts, certificates, souvenand a grand prize of two tickets on Horizon Airlines to anywhere the airlines firm flies.

Warthington C. Eldredge

CAREY — Worthington Castle Eldredge, 64, of Carey, died Monday afternoon at his home.

Born June 29, 1893, in Covalville, Utah, he lived with his family when he was six months old, and had lived there most of his life. He married Margaret Elizabeth McGee on Oct. 25, 1914, in Carey. Their marriage was solemnized in the Salt Lake LDS Temple on Oct. 8, 1914. She died on July 2, 1972. He was one of the early postmasters of Carey. He operated a shoe and harness shop and worked as a stone mason. He served as constable, justice of the peace, was a trustee of the school board for 12 years, and water master for many years. He built canals, dams, churches, schools and remodeled many homes throughout the Wood River Valley. During World War II, he moved to California and worked as head carpenter at a Navy Pre-Flight School. He was the first Scout leader in the Wood River Valley, and he belonged to the LDS Church, holding many leadership positions there.

Surviving are: one daughter, Irene Plinkston of Twin Falls; three sons, Leland Eldredge of Carey, Merlin J. Eldredge of Ingwood, Calif., and Louis B. Eldredge of St. George, Utah; one brother, Horace V. Eldredge of Boise; 13 grandchildren; and 45 great-grandchildren. He was preceded in death by one son, sister and five brothers.

The funeral will be conducted at 2 p.m. Thursday at the Carey LDS Church, with Bishop Heber Kirkland officiating. Burial will be in the Carey Cemetery.

Arrangements are under the direction of the Wood River Chapel in Halley. A memorial fund has been established for the acquisition of hymn books for the LDS Church in Carey.

Charles E. Miller

WENDELL — Charles E. Miller, 64, of Wendell, died Tuesday morning at the Twin Falls Clinic and Hospital.

Funeral arrangements are pending and will be announced by the Demary's Wendell Chapel.

Marian Sellgren

SUN VALLEY — Marian Sellgren, 55, of Sun Diego, Calif., and formerly of Sun Valley, died last Thursday at the University of California-San Diego Medical Center of an extended illness.

Born in 1930, in Salt Lake City, Utah, she graduated from San Diego High School and Stanford University. She married David Sellgren in 1950. She was active in the Republican Party and the Wood River Ladies Golf Association. Earlier she was active in the Girl Scouts, Camp Fire Girls and the Cub Scouts. She and her family were co-owners of the Bigwood Golf Course in Ketchum.

Surviving are: her husband; one son, Peter Sellgren, both of Mesa, Ariz.; three daughters, Dr. Kristen Sellgren of Honolulu, Hawaii, Leslie Brunton Sellgren of Seattle, Wash., and Cecie Sellgren of San Diego; parents, Dr. and Mrs. Elinor Christopherson of San Diego; one brother, Warren Christopherson of Alvin, Texas; and one grandchild.

Following cremation in California, a memorial service will be held at 2 p.m. May 2 at the St. Thomas Episcopal Church in Ketchum, with the Rev. Charles S. Burger officiating.

After the service, a reception for family and friends will be held at the home of Mrs. Louella Liman, 593 S. Hudson Way in Hulen, a community north of Ketchum.

The family suggests memorials may be given to the University of California-San Diego Medical Center Pathology Service, in care of Dr. Judy Harrell, 225 Dickinson St., San Diego, Calif., 92103.

Jerome

Continued from Page B1 and operated a food store in Jerome for several years and has been in real estate and appraisal work for 16 years.

Four Republicans and one Democrat are seeking the 2nd District county commissioner post being vacated by Pam Smith.

Republican candidates for the commission seat are Morris Vandiver, Darrell Kersey, Ray Cobble and George E. Andrus. Unopposed for the Democratic nomination is Leo Alfitt.

Vandiver is the manager and broker for Valley View Realty in Jerome. He is retired from the U.S. Navy, after 20 years service as a dental lab technician. He returned to his home town of Jerome after completing military service.

Kersey is retired after 30 years service with Mountain Bell Co. He is interested in helping develop new business and industry in the area.

Cobble is a former county commissioner in Jerome. He was appointed to the position and served 3½ years. He was also on the Goodrich City Council for 11 years. He owns a motor company in Jerome.

Andrus is a farmer and has lived in the area since 1928. He is concerned about property tax rates and senior citizen programs.

Alfitt is also a retired Mountain Bell Co. employee. He managed the Jerome office of the firm for 16 years and also worked in the Twin Falls office.

Cassette unit reported gone

TWIN FALLS — Chad Rosen, of 312 2nd Ave. N., told Twin Falls police Tuesday that someone pried a built-in cassette player from the dashboard of his pickup truck Monday night or Tuesday morning.

The vehicle was parked at his home between 6:30 p.m. Monday and 6:20 a.m. Tuesday — when he discovered the damage and theft. He said the equipment was valued at $428.

Officers said there was no sign of forced entry and the pickup was apparently unlocked.

2 Utah men face charges in store theft

TWIN FALLS — Two Utah men, facing grand theft charges in connection with the theft of money bags on Monday from a Safeway Store in Twin Falls, were being held in the Twin Falls County Jail Tuesday night under $50,000 bond each.

The two appeared in court on Tuesday afternoon and requested preliminary hearings on the charges.

Public Safety Director Tim Qualls said the two money bags containing checks and cash were still missing on Tuesday afternoon. They were taken from the Safeway store on Main Avenue North at about 6:30 a.m. Monday.

Lynn Lloyd Bell, Jr., 18, and Farrell Lloyd Price, 22, both from Utah, were arrested on Monday morning in connection with the theft.

No dates have been set for the preliminary hearings.

Group claims "welfare mother" a myth

WASHINGTON (AP) — The fabled "welfare mother" who breeds her way to affluence by having more and more children and drawing bigger and bigger welfare checks, is nothing more than a myth, says a group which advocates population control.

The reality for the "welfare mother" is deeper and deeper poverty with each new birth, says the advocacy group known as Population-Environment Balance. Statistics documenting the level of poverty of these classes of welfare recipients, the group says, held true for more than 100 metropolitan areas that it closely examined.

"The more children an impoverished, female-headed household has, the poorer the family becomes," said M. Rupert Cutler, an assistant agriculture secretary in the Carter administration and now executive director of the non-profit advocacy group for population control.

The group's figures are aimed at the argument that welfare and child support payments create an incentive for poor women to have children and remain on welfare.

Cutler quotes President Reagan as asserting that a pregnant, teen-age girl "can make herself eligible for welfare benefits that will set her up in an apartment of her own, provide her with medical care and feed her and clothe her."

But the actual figures, says Cutler, show "just the opposite. These programs do not cover the cost of having the additional children. In all of the 123 cities and metropolitan areas analyzed, ... additional children brought poor families greater poverty."

The study is based on 1980 Census Bureau data. It compares national poverty level figures for various sized families with the actual income levels reported by the Census in 113 metropolitan areas and 15 central cities.

The poverty level rises with each new child, the study shows. A mother with one child and no husband faced a poverty level of $5,537 a year in 1980. If she had two children, the poverty line was $6,565; three children, $8,414. For six children, the poverty line was $13,555.

Welfare checks also increase with the size of the family. But, the group said, income data reported by the Census show that family income growth never kept pace with the increased cost of feeding, housing and clothing the growing family.

Paternity puzzle could be solved

DEAR ABBY: I have a beautiful 1-year-old baby girl and I am not sure who her father is. There are only two possibilities of paternity. One I am engaged to. He is willing to cooperate in finding out who my daughter's father is. The other man is around, and says he will cooperate only if it is absolutely necessary, for he is now married.

I have heard that there is a blood test that can positively determine paternity. If so, please tell me where these men would have to go to take this test, who else would have to participate, and how much it costs.

DEAR WAITING TO HEAR: According to the Long Beach (Calif.) Memorial Hospital (Paternity Lab), the test is called "HLA," and it involves the mother, the possible father, and the child. It must be ordered by a physician, and the approximate cost is $150.

It is 99.9 percent accurate. (No test claims to be 100 percent accurate, so this is the best.)

Have your fiancé take the test. If he is found to be the child's father, the other man is off the hook. However, if your fiancé is not the father, that means the other man is, in which case he may want to take the test because of the legal implications.

DEAR ABBY: You often publish complaints from folks who are miffed because their glits were not appropriately acknowledged. But you've never given equal space to the other side.

My shelves and closets are overflowing with an accumulation of neckties, watches, cuff links, silly T-shirts I'll never wear, books I'll never read and gadgets I'll never use. And if I get one more pewter ashtray, I'm going to give it to my dog and ask him to bury it. One day some archeologist will probably dig it up and write a dissertation on the rituals and artifacts of primitive homo yuppies.

A cousin of mine and I have an ideal arrangement. Every year he sends me two $20 bills for Christmas, and I send him the same. Then we both write a note saying, "Thank you for the most thoughtful gift I have ever received. I'll never have to wash it, repair it, feed it, wind it or frame it." Sign me.

DEAR ENOUGH: Nice arrangement you have with your cousin, but there is no excuse for failing to acknowledge a gift — however useless. How about giving those white elephants away? One man's leftovers are another man's banquet.

DEAR ABBY: I just finished reading the letter from the woman who was helping her mother-in-law clean out her house when they came across some souvenirs her father-in-law (now deceased) had brought home from World War II. One was a hand grenade — still intact.

She asked if it would be safe to keep around since after 40 years it had not exploded. You were right to tell her to call the police immediately and have the bomb squad come and remove it.

Lioness club names leader

EDEN-HAZELTON — Officers and charter members of the Valley Lioness Club were installed at a certification party recently. The club was formed Nov. 25, 1985.

Gerard Baker, president of the Hazelton Lions Club, presided over the charter members Pat Baker, Norma Wright, Joann Andreasen, Eva Lou Orr, Cathy Orr, Lois Jenkins, Vera Jenkins, Lorraine Vilardo, Marzee Slagle and Lisa Brander.

Officers: Pat Baker, president; Joann Andreasen, vice president; Lorraine Vilardo, secretary-treasurer; Lois Jenkins, Lioness tamer-tall twister; and Vera Jenkins, Marzee Slagle and Cathy Orr, board members, were installed by Lois-Tinker, associate-district lioness chairwoman.

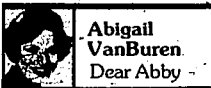

The club charter was presented by Floyd Miller, district governor, who also sang patriotic songs.

Dear Abby

We live on some land that was formerly a military training center during World War II. This area was used for target practice. Not long ago, three children were playing behind their home when they found an unexploded shell. Not recognizing its danger, they used the sharp point for digging. The shell exploded, killing two children and seriously wounding the third.

The military now inspects this area regularly, and they keep finding live ammunition. We have learned that due to erosion and soil movement, shells and grenades surface even after the most careful search. We've also learned that unexploded shells are not less dangerous as the years pass, but more dangerous because they can explode with changes in atmospheric pressure, temperature or subtle movement.

I pray that your reader follows your advice. Old munitions are not safe anywhere. Just because they haven't exploded yet doesn't mean they never will.

Beta carotene offers a health boost

Special recipes and 'spa' menus help fight cancer

Healthful food is very fashionable these days. Even the trendiest restaurants are serving food that looks and tastes good and is good for you.

Some even offer special spa menus as an alternative to their regular fare. These menus feature dishes with lean meat and lots of vegetables, cooked with little or no added fat and accompanied by high fiber breads and vitamin-rich fruits and vegetables.

This style of eating is in keeping with the recommendations of the National Cancer Institute which believes the right foods may help reduce your risk of some kinds of cancer. The NCII urges people to eat foods low in fat, high in fiber and rich in beta carotene (provitamin A) and vitamin C — not only for general health and well-being, but to help fight cancer with your fork.

But what is beta carotene? Beta carotene is the most common fruit and vegetable source of vitamin A, present mostly in yellow-orange fruits and vegetables and some leafy green vegetables. Among the best sources are carrots, sweet potatoes, apricots, pumpkin, winter squash, kale, broccoli and spinach.

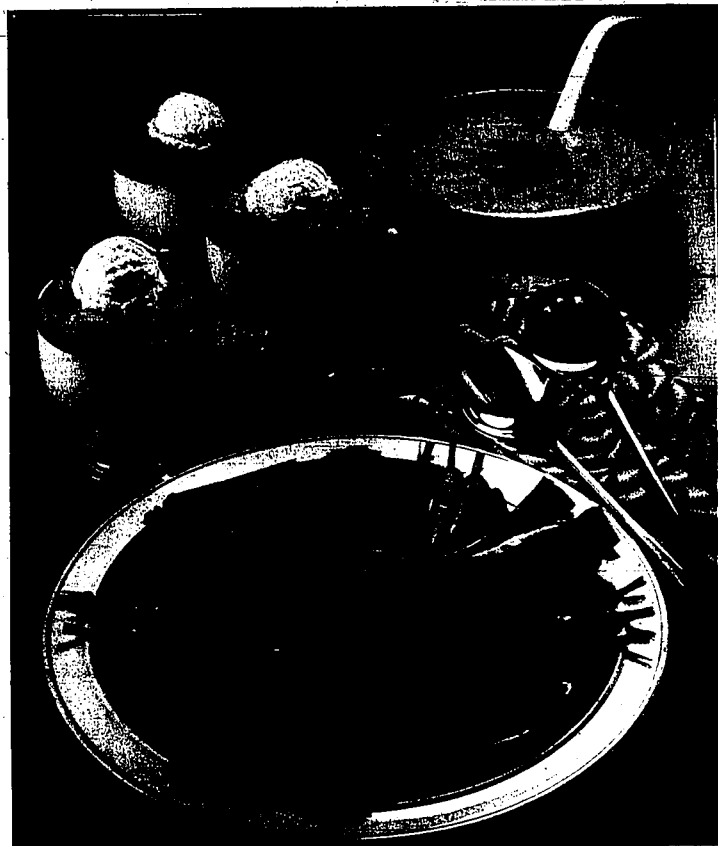

Pictured are three beta carotene-rich recipes that can be incorporated into any meal plan. Sweet Potato Vichyssoise — delicious hot or cold — makes a perfect appetizer before a main meal of fish, fowl, lean beef or pork. The recipe for Braised Beef 'n' Vegetables includes the recommended three ounces of lean beef per serving plus a variety of beta carotene-rich vegetables poached in beef broth. And the Apricot Cobbler with Ice Milk has all the down-home comforts of mom's pie a la mode without the excess fat, sugar and calories.

Menus

- Tomato Juice
- Broiled Chicken Breasts
- Whole Wheat Pasta with Green and Red Pepper Strips
- Asparagus with Lemon
- *Apricot Rum Sauce for Ice Milk

- Mixed Green Salad
- Roast Turkey with Whole Grain Bread Stuffing
- *Spinach Italiane
- Low-Fat Yogurt with Fresh or Frozen Strawberries

- Fresh Fruit Cup
- Broiled Fish Filets
- *Carrot/Potato Sauté
- Baked Potato with Lemon
- Pineapple Sorbet

Dishes such as Vichyssoise, Apricot Cobbler and Braised Beef and Vegetables are good cancer-fighters

High fiber foodstuffs suggested

SWEET POTATO VICHYSOISE

- 2 cups chopped leeks (white only of 2 large leeks)
  - 1/2 cup chopped onion
  - 1 tablespoon margarine
  - 2 1/2 cups (about 1 1/2 pound), diced, peeled sweet potato
  - 3 cups chicken broth
  - 1/2 teaspoon salt
  - 1/4 teaspoon white pepper
  - 1/4 teaspoon cayenne
  - 1 1/2 cups milk
  - 1 tablespoon chopped chives
- In large saucepan cook leeks and onion in margarine, covered, over low heat about 15 minutes until soft but not browned. Stir in sweet potato and broth. Bring to boil, then reduce heat and simmer about 25 minutes until vegetables are tender. Cool. Puree in blender or food processor until smooth. Return to saucepan. Add salt, pepper, cayenne and milk. Stir and just until heated through (do not boil). Cool, then cover and chill at least 3 hours. Ladle into bowls; sprinkle chives over each serving. Makes 6 servings.

BRAISED BEEF 'N' VEGETABLES

- 1 1/2 pounds lean beef sirloin steak, trimmed of fat
  - 3 quarts beef broth
  - 4 leeks, cleaned and quartered (white only)
  - 4 carrots, peeled and cut into 1/4-inch diagonal slices
  - 4 turnips, peeled and cut into 1-inch slices
  - 2 heads broccoli, stems trimmed and peeled
  - 2 red bell peppers, seeded and cut into 1/2-inch strips
- Semi-freeze beef for easier slicing. Slice 1/2-inch thick; set aside. In large pot bring broth to a simmer; add leeks, carrots and turnips. Cook about 10 minutes until tender. Remove with slotted spoon to platter; keep warm. Add broccoli and bell pepper to broth. Cook about 5 minutes. Makes 6 servings.

Delicious 'plato Mexicanos' spice up meals

The ease of Mexican cooking makes it a gourmet's favorite

"So me hizo aguala boca al ver comida tan deliciosa!" exclaimed my youngest daughter, "Tengo hambre!"

It's been a couple of centuries since I took Spanish I, II and III back in the dark ages of high school, but I knew she was referring to the layout of food before us.

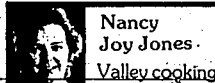

I think the literal translation of her remarks is "my mouth watered when I saw the delicious food" and "I'm hungry!"

It's nice having someone to translate. We made a bargain. I'll do the cooking, and she'll do the talking. Now whether it's "plato Mexicanos" (Mexican dishes) or "plato Espanol" (Spanish dishes) she can help me get to the bottom of it (pun intended).

I really can't imagine a week without some sort of Spanish-Mexican food; it's become such a part of all of our menus. It's easy, quick and inexpensive and quite nutritious too — a great bargain these days.

The next time you get an extra minute in your supermarket, check the aisle where the Mexican foods are lined up. Also check the cold and frozen food sections for the corn and flour tortillas, cheese and ready frozen entrees. If you don't know where to start just read labels as most of them give some very good starter recipes for the easier dishes like tacos, enchiladas or burritos.

This is a good plan when you are tackling something new, as most manufacturers give you good recipes for their products and you are on the spot to make sure you have all the ingredients.

There are lots of good salsas in cans and jars on the shelves, but here is a simple one you can make at home. It's good because you can experiment and see just how hot your family wants it.

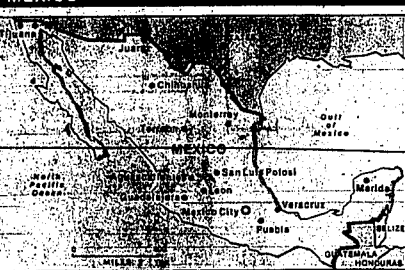

I like the idea of you using canned chilies at first as they can be difficult to handle fresh and take more time than you might have.

SALSA

- 5 small, very ripe tomatoes, chopped fine
  - 2 or 3 canned jalapeno or serrano chilies
  - 1 small onion, chopped
  - 4 to 5 sprigs cilantro or parsley, chopped fine
  - 1/2 teaspoon salt
  - 1 teaspoon sugar
  - 1/4 teaspoon pepper
- Mix everything and store, covered, in your refrigerator. This improves with aging a couple of days, but use in 10 days.

If you have any leftover taco

MEXICO

flavored meat you could easily add it to this next recipe, but it tastes just as good without.

MEXICAN SANDWICH

- 4 french or other oval crusty rolls, split lengthwise
- 1 cup of canned (or homemade) refried beans, heated
- 1/4 cup sour cream
- 1/2 cups Monterey Jack cheese, shredded (6 ounces)
- 2 cups lettuce, shredded
- Canned or pickled jalapeno chilies, halved lengthwise and seeded (it's important you seed them because that's where the hot is.)

Salsa Scoop out the rolls to form shells. You can heat them in your oven a bit and let them get somewhat crusty.

Spread the refried beans in the bottoms of the bread shells and meat. If you have any, over them. Top this with a layer of sour cream and then sprinkle with cheese and lettuce.

Add the chilies and salsa to taste and press the tops of rolls on top of the sandwich.

Another recipe that's easy and that lets you improvise using some of the things you have on hand I call:

MEXICAN TOWER

- 1 pound ground round or extra-lean ground beef
- 2 tablespoons oil
- 1 cup chopped green peppers
- 1 cup chopped red peppers
- 1 medium onion, chopped
- 1 large clove garlic, chopped
- 1 teaspoon chili powder

Native Mexican keeps alive traditions of Cinco de Mayo

By JOAN BEAN Times-News correspondent

TWIN FALLS — Erma Salinas is doing her part to keep tradition alive for area Mexican-Americans. For the last three years, she has been teaching their children the dances she remembers from her youth in Mexico.

How quickly the children pick up the steps depends upon "how fast they start enjoying the music, because this is music they don't hear every day," she says.

"It's hard for them," she says. "I'm really hard for them to learn the steps. This music is from when I was little and danced those dances, and it was typical."

She thinks it is good for the Anglo community to see the Mexican culture, she says. The opportunity comes up when the approximately 15 children she teaches, ages 3 to 14, perform for various groups. This Sunday they will dance during the Cinco de Mayo celebration at the Guatemala Center, after 11 a.m. mass.

The confidence that comes from performing the traditional steps extends to other areas of their lives, school in particular, she says.

"Sometimes," she says, "they don't feel secure or they don't want to do something because they think they might not be able to do it right."

"If they can dance, they can do a lot of things in school. I feel some of the kids — even if they are capable of doing something — are afraid to do it."

The children do not perform the dances perfectly, she says, but doing them and enjoying themselves in the process opens up their lives to other opportunities. She says some day they might say, "I danced in church — I think I can dance in school, and I can do this, and I can do that."

"If they are able to make it — be happy," she says, "I'll never know if it will be happy. But at least they have the opportunity to try, and not say, 'well, I wish to do that, but I don't know if I'm able to do it.'"

"You're able to do it," she says.

Soon four of her eight children will have earned college degrees. And although her family ranges in age from 11 to 30 years of age, she says she still thinks of all of them as her babies.

"I really feel I have a lot of communication with them, and they still come home and say, 'Mom, Mom, I'm home.'"

She and her husband, Librato

The smells of spring: mown grass, flowers and barbeque

Here are some tips to help you start the grilling ritual

The Associated Press

Spring has sprung, the grass has risen, and the first plitches have been thrown (on the field and on the porch).

It must be outdoor barbeque season. Although rabid football fans might argue for the tailgate barbeque later in the year, this is the peak season for those who sell as well as those who fry.

In addition to all the summer guests who will have suggestions on how to barbeque, here are some tips from Scripto, the makers of Aim 'n' Flame, a butane torch charcoal fire starter.

First, line the grill with heavy-weight foil; preferably long by weight cooking. Using gloves, arrange the charcoal on the foil, starting with a base of a single layer, each touching the other. Build up the coals evenly, with fewer coals on each layer. Spaces between coals allow air to feed the fire.

When you're ready to light the fire, squirt a little starter fluid into the spaces of the lower layers of coals. Then light the dampened coals.

When the coals are gray, use a long fork or tongs to rearrange the top coals and spread them around. Then place the metal grill on top with a heat-proof mitt.

Any meats normally broiled indoors can be cooked over a charcoal fire. Meats marinated overnight usually produce the best results.

Then put the meat on the grill, set out the accompaniments and greet your guests.

A twist on the usual outdoor cooking is to use aromatic woods; long-time staples of regional barbeques.

Each wood has a distinctive flavor of its own, according to Roger Brashers, who holds barbeques for up to 500 people at a time for the Jack Daniel's distillery.

Summertime barbeques are fun, but could be dangerous if a few simple safety rules are ignored.

Never use gasoline to light a fire, says Rich Reicher, food service director at United States International University in San Diego, Calif. Use only approved lighter fluid.

Never spray a fire with fluid after it has been lit, since the fluid may "flash up" at you.

Place your grill on grass or cement, not dirt, so dust doesn't fly in your food. Never cook under a tree, since sparks can ignite the leaves and start a fire.

Use forks and wear fireproof cooking mitts when handling large pieces of meat. Always wear shoes when barbequing, in case of dropped embers.

Parboil chicken before you put it on the grill, to remove excess fat and avoid flare-ups.

Never spray a fire with fluid after minutes until crisp-tender. Remove with slotted spoon to the warm platter. Add beef to broth; cook 1 minute. Remove to the platter. Serve individually from platter with broth in small bowls on side for dipping or as a separate soup course. Suggested accompaniments: mustard, horseradish and pickles. Makes 6 servings.

APRICOT COBBLER

1 cup flour
1/2 cup sugar
1 teaspoon baking powder
1/2 cup margarine
1 egg
3 cans (16 ounces each) apricot halves, drained
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1 pint vanilla ice milk
In bowl mix together flour, sugar and baking powder. Cut in margarine until mixture resembles small peas. Add egg; mix just until moistened (mixture should be crumbly). In another bowl stir apricots with cinnamon. Equally divide apricots among six 8-ounce custard cups or ramekins. Top each with flour mixture, dividing equally. Bake on baking sheet in 350 degree oven about 45 minutes until browned and fruit is bubbly. Serve warm with a spoon of ice milk. Makes 6 servings.

SPINACH ITALIENNE

2 pounds fresh spinach, cleaned, stems removed*
2 1/2 tablespoons butter or margarine
2 cloves garlic, silvered
3 tablespoons golden raisins
3 tablespoons toasted pine nuts**
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon cayenne
Cook and stir spinach with water clinging to its leaves in large pot until wilted; drain. Refresh under cold water and squeeze dry; chop coarsely. In wok or deep skillet heat butter over medium-high heat until bubbling. Add garlic; cook and stir until butter is golden. Add spinach, raisins, pine nuts, salt and cayenne. Cook and stir 2 minutes. Serve immediately. Makes 6 servings.
*Substitute 2 packages (10 ounces each) frozen chopped spinach, thawed and squeezed dry.
**To toast pine nuts: Spread nuts in single layer on baking sheet; bake in 350 degree oven until golden, about 10 minutes.

CARROT BROCCOLI SAUTE

1 1/2 pounds whole baby carrots, peeled
1 1/2 pounds broccoli, stems trimmed and peeled
1 cup chicken broth
2 teaspoons cornstarch
2 teaspoons prepared mustard

1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon tarragon
1/2 teaspoon pepper
Steam carrots and broccoli covered; over salted water on medium heat until crisp-tender, about 10 minutes for carrots and 5 minutes for broccoli; drain. In large skillet combine cornstarch, broth, mustard, salt, tarragon and pepper. Stir to blend. Bring to a boil over medium heat, stirring. Cook 2 minutes until thickened slightly. Add cooked vegetables; stir gently to coat with sauce. Cook 3 minutes longer to heat through. Serve immediately. Makes 8 servings.

Paella: a Spanish national delight

The Associated Press

There is an old Spanish slogan, "In the South you fry, in the Central regions you roast, and in the North you stew." But along Spain's Costa Brava, or "Rugged Coast," they do all three.
The cooks of this area prepare the local fish on a bed of hot coals and simmer chicken in a slow oven. But paella, that delightful mixture of fruits of both sea and soil, is something else.
Good recipes crop up in odd places. A young writer friend discovered paella some years ago when he was lazing boxcars in Sydney, Australia, and soaking up atmosphere.

minutes
1 pound beef round, cut into 1-inch square cubes
1/2 clove garlic, cut up
2 green peppers, sliced
12 cherry tomatoes
2 medium Bermuda onions, sliced
24 large shrimp, with shells
3 squid, cleaned and sliced into half-inch strips, plus the tentacles
24 clams, in shells
3 cups white rice
6 cups water
5 pinches saffron
Salt to taste
In deep skillet, at least 12 inches across, heat enough oil to cover bottom. Add chicken and beef pieces and garlic. Saut lightly and fry until slightly browned. Add pepper slices, tomatoes and onions. Add shrimp, washed but with shells still on. Add squid and clams, also with shells. Saut again slightly and simmer over medium heat 15 minutes. Till shrimp are pink, squid pieces are curled and meat is browned. Cover all with dry rice. Pour 6 cups water over mixture and turn heat high. Sprinkle saffron over whole mixture and stir till rice is tender, about 10 minutes.

At this point, clam shells should begin to open and saffron will have turned everything bright yellow. If rice is hard, add more water and continue boiling and stirring. When rice is tender, and water is boiled off, paella is ready.

Trading stamps aren't a consumer bargain

By MARTIN SLOANE
United Feature Syndicate

Dear Martin — We shop at a supermarket that gives trading stamps. Several months ago, my wife wanted a new card table, and I went with her to purchase it with the stamps she had saved.

We gave the clerk the trading stamps for the card table, and she made out a receipt. "You just have to pay the sales tax," she said.

When the clerk told us how much the sales tax was, I was horrified. It was more than 25 percent of the advertised price of the same card table at a local discount store.

Since this episode, I have refused to redeem the trading stamps for merchandise. Instead, my wife puts the stamps in the supermarket's mini-books and redeems them for lower prices on her groceries. This seems like a much better deal. What do you think? — Larry Sherman, Scranton, Pa.

Dear Larry — Most supermarkets have abandoned trading stamps. They have found that they can no longer afford to charge consumers the higher prices necessary to pay for the stamps. But a few stores still offer them.

Are the stamps a bargain for consumers? The answer is not really. On the average, it costs the store approximately one percent of its sales to pay for the stamps. This means that one penny out of every dollar is a much better deal. What do you think? — Larry Sherman, Scranton, Pa.

No matter how you look at it, consumers are paying for those stamps, and your experience with the card table (which is not unique) shows that the true cost paid for trading-stamp merchandise is usually higher than the price that a smart shopper would pay at local stores.

Supermarkets realize that consumers have lost the yen for "free" trading-stamp merchandise, so many of them are offering alternatives, such as the mini-books, which lower the price on groceries. When these stamps are used in combination with low-priced specials, shoppers can get a real bargain. If you have to shop at a store that offers stamps, this is really the only way to go.

THE SMART SHOPPER AWARD goes to Barbara Ames, of Peabody, Mass.: "I recently purchased a squeeze bottle of Parkay margarine priced at $1.15. The store doubled my 55-cent Parkay coupon, so the margarine only cost me 5 cents. But my savings were further improved when I got home and found a mail-in form for a free bottle of Parkay. All I had to send in was one Parkay proof of purchase! So I got two bottles for just 5 cents and postage. I have to squeeze myself occasionally when I come up with bargains like this." Barbara and other readers whose smart-shopping experiences appear in this column receive a copy of my "Guide to Coupons and Refunds." Write to me in care of this newspaper.

NEW BABY'S CHOICE PRESENTS SOME ABSORBING FACTS:

New Baby's Choice is the premium disposable diaper. Here's the complete story in absorbing detail:

ALCOHOLISM HURTS KIDS, TOO

Children are affected by parental alcoholism, having a higher incidence of emotional problems and fewer means of coping with emotional upset. COAs have a higher incidence of school problems, difficulty concentrating, conduct problems and truancy. COAs have higher rate of arrests or involvement with the legal system.
HELP for children ages 4-19, living in alcoholic homes is available. Eight-week series of educational classes will begin in May in the Piler, Jerome, Gooding, and Twin Falls areas. For more information call 734-4200 or 1-800-227-4160.

ONE-STEP REFASTENABLE TAPES
For faster, easier diapering. Diapers can be checked for wetness or readjusted for a more comfortable fit.

SUPER SOFT INNER LINER
This silky liner keeps wetness away from your baby's sensitive skin. It's super soft, yet tough enough to resist tearing, linting and shredding.

MORE CONVENIENT SIZES
Baby's Choice has a diaper to fit your baby:
MEDIUM — 48 premium disposable diapers to a package.
LARGE — 36 diapers to a package — that's four more diapers per package than our leading competitor!
MAXI — Available exclusively from Baby's Choice — 32 super absorbent diapers for heavy-wetting babies.

VALUABLE MONEY SAVING COUPON
So you don't get soaked either.

NEW WIDER, DOUBLE THICKNESS CROTCH
A noticeable improvement on the classic hourglass shape. The double thick crotch soaks up wetness and retains it in a super absorbent pad. And its wider design allows for maximum absorbency.

DOUBLE ELASTIC GATHERS
Our new and improved gathers distribute the tension about your baby's legs gently and evenly for a contoured, leak-proof fit.

BABY SHAPED COMFORT
Baby's Choice is tailored to gently hug your baby for a secure, no-sag, bulk-free fit.

Baby's Choice
NEW! Double Thick Diapers

Annual Cobbler
Tea or Coffee
ANNUAL COBBLER
1/4 cups all-purpose flour
1 1/2 teaspoons baking powder

1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 cup butter
1/2 cup sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 large egg
1/2 cup milk
1 1/2 pints strawberries, hulled and halved

Topping: 1/4 cup butter (soft), 1/4 cup sugar and 1/4 cup flour beaten together.

Stir together flour, baking powder and salt. Cream butter, sugar and vanilla; beat in egg. Add flour mixture and milk; beat just until smooth. Spread over bottom of a buttered 8-inch square baking dish; arrange strawberries cut side down over top; drop teaspoonsful of Topping over berries. Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven until a cake tester inserted in center comes out clean — about 1 hour. Serve warm with ice cream. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

Salinas

 Lee, have always made it clear to their children they could confide in them when something was wrong, she says. "I believe this is important to give the opportunity to our kids to open up and feel more secure. Sometimes we make a mistake, but I think as parents we are the only ones that can help them."

Salinas is not only there for her children, but others in her community as well.
 "I really enjoy helping people," she says. "One of the things that makes me really happy is when someone calls me and says, 'Erma, I need you to help me.'"

Salinas' children have been raised of Mexican food, and they love it. When the whole family gets together she cooks a wide variety of their favorites.

"It doesn't matter if we have a lot of leftovers. At least they have the opportunity to taste all the food when they are at home," she says. "The following dishes are served regularly in her home. Salinas says most Mexican people do not use recipes, so the amounts are all approximate."

REFRIED BEANS

Serves about 10
 Wash 2-3 pounds of beans. Add 1-3 cloves of garlic, a quarter of an onion

Mexican

 1/4 teaspoon ground cumin (or use 1/2 package dry taco seasoning mix in place of chili powder and cumin)

1 8-ounce can tomato sauce
 1 16-ounce can refried beans
 1 medium tomato, chopped
 1/2 cup green chilis, chopped
 6 corn tortillas

1/2 cup oil
 3 cups shredded cheese (Monterey Jack, cheddar or swiss or a mix of any or all)

Small can of sliced ripe olives
 1/2 cup sour cream
 Brown the meat in the 2 tablespoons of oil. Add the vegetables and seasoning. Cook about 4-5 minutes stirring often until peppers are just softened.

Add tomato sauce and cook
 another 5 minutes.
 In another saucepan heat the refried beans, tomatoes and chilies together.

Keep both mixtures warm.
 In a sauté pan, at least 8-9 inches, heat 1/2 cup oil and fry tortillas. I do this one at a time, putting them in the hot oil, counting to three and turning them over for another count of three, then removing them and draining on paper towels.

Place one of the tortilla on a baking pan. Top it with a fifth of the bean mixture, a fifth of the meat mixture and a fifth of the cheese.
 Repeat, topping each layer with another tortilla.

Bake at 375 degrees for 15 minutes.
 Sprinkle with additional cheese and bake until it is melted. Spread sour cream on top and sprinkle olives over. Slice into five pie-shaped pieces.

All of these recipes take less than an hour and if you have fried your meat ahead, even less. They are very good for those days you are short of time.

I really recommend you get acquainted with some of the special items in the Mexican food section and keep some on hand. A can of refried beans, a jar of salsa, taco flavorings, and other items that keep well and you have the start to a quick and delicious meal.

"Vamos a comer!" (Let's go eat), and "¡Muy bien!" (Very good!).
 Enjoy!

and 1-2 teaspoons salt (depending on taste) to the beans. Boil until soft in enough water to cover them. Drain and reserve liquid. Mash well. This can be done in a processor. If too thick, add water. In another pan, heat about 1/2 cup lard or, if preferred, oil. Four beans in when grease is very hot. Cook, stirring until lard is mixed in well.

TORTILLAS

Mix together:
 About 4 cups flour
 About 1 teaspoon baking powder
 About 3 teaspoons salt
 About 1 cup lard
 About 1 cup hot water (or more if needed)

The dough will be firm. Cut dough into little balls — big enough for desired size of tortillas. Roll out — not too thin. Cook on grill without grease, a few minutes on each side, and they are ready to eat. They can be eaten with butter or beans and used as everyday bread.

FRESH HOT SAUCE

(Salsa)
 Cut into tiny square pieces and
 mix together:
 2 tomatoes
 1 small onion
 1-2 jalapeno peppers
 A few chilantro leaves
 1 teaspoon salt

"This is something if you have friends over, and you want to have hot sauce ready, you can just do it right away," she says.
 For dessert, they often have ice cream, but on special occasions the

Salinas family enjoys the following pumpkin treat:

EMPANADAS

Combine one large can of pumpkin with 1/2 cup brown sugar (more or less depending on taste); about 2 teaspoons of anise, crushed; and a stick of cinnamon, crushed. Cook about 20 minutes, until mixture is a darker color. Taste. Meanwhile, make dough, as for tortillas, using about 1 tablespoon sugar instead of salt. More lard can be added if desired, for extra crispness. Roll each tortilla, and put enough pumpkin mixture on it so the other half of tortilla can be brought over to cover — like a little pie. Place on greased cookie sheet, and bake at 375 degrees for about 20 minutes.
 Makes about 1 1/2 dozen.

The desire to plant flowers should be aided with thought

Warm spring days put us into the mood to plant flowers around our homes.

Many gardeners are afraid to plant any flowers before the end of May because frost can be expected until late May or even early June in some of the colder areas. Some high elevations can even get frost occasionally in July or August.

However, many flowers will tolerate temperatures several

Allen Wilson
Intermountain gardening degrees below freezing. If planted early, they can give an extra month of enjoyment. Of course, it does not hurt them to be planted later.

Most stores do not even try to distinguish between hardy and tender flowers. Even nurseries and greenhouses do not always have a trained staff who can advise you properly.

All perennial flowers are hardy because they can even survive the winter. Some popular perennial flowers which are still soon to be in bloom include gold alyssum, rock cress, candytuft and creeping phlox. These are all low-growing varieties suitable for rock gardens.

Other popular perennials include bellflower, delphinium, columbine, tall phlox, oriental poppy, baby's breath, Utah sedum, peonies, daylilies and bleeding heart. There are also many other less well-known perennials available in nurseries now.

The pansy is a hardy spring flower

Annual flowers die at the end of one growing season, but they usually have a longer blooming period than most perennials. The hardiest annuals will survive temperatures in the low- to mid-20's.

One of the best hardy annuals for low edging is alyssum, which comes in white, lavender and pink. Lobelia is a good blue edging flower. It is only hardy to about 28 degrees.

Medium-sized hardy annual flowers include pansy, petunia, calendula, dianthus (or pinks), dusty miller, and several kinds of poppies and daisies. There are also tall Shirley poppies and gloriosa daisies as well as tall snapdragons and climbing sweet peas. Snapdragons and sweet peas also have shorter varieties.

Tender annual flowers can be damaged at temperatures only a degree or two below freezing. They should not be planted until later unless frost protection can be provided. Some of the more popular tender annuals include zinnia, marigold, aster, begonia, impatiens, dahlia, geranium and moss rose.

I have a list of flower varieties which are well adapted to the Intermountain area. This list identifies annuals and perennials and includes information on hardiness and when to plant. There are also mail order seed sources listed for some of the harder to find varieties.

If you would like a copy, send $1 and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Allen Wilson, P.O. Box 40, Rexburg, Idaho 83440.

Perfection rarely visits a gardeners' environs in big, frequent doses

By HENRY MITCHELL
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — There are frosts and rumors of frost. It was ever so.

The thing I have got through my head as a gardener is that things are perfect in quite small and modest measures.

If you plant an avenue a mile long with willow oaks, say, you will notice after 30 years that there are gaps, and the symmetry is not perfect. It simply is not the custom of the living creature to develop and flourish in a precise or predictable way.

If you have a litter of hounds, one hound will differ from another in color, even though they are closely related, sharing a great similarity of genes. But the slight differences turn out to be critical. Further accidents strike at random, hitting one pup and not another.

It is the same in the garden. You plant on paper (and should) but the result will never be very much what you originally saw in your mind the day you planned it all.

One thing that makes good gardens good is the skill and grace with which the gardener has surrendered (or balked valiantly) in effective ways when confronted with the fact that plants have not done quite what was intended.

The view-down my brick walk, to give a trifling and painful, actual example, is not what was intended.

The three great columnar yews on one side have misbehaved considerably. The farthest one took against a nearby plum and refused to grow up straight and tight, but fanned out to the right. The other two began bushing out at the top where it is hard for me to get up and prune them back.

The little touch of golden yellow that was supposed to be provided by an arbutus has not done what was expected, since the arbutus has flourished far beyond expectations and now overdoes the touch of gold.

The soft rounded mass of blue-gray-green that was to be provided by a globe of Ludlow's tree peony has failed, simply because this peony with me grows along nicely for two or three or even four years then dies flat, with no regard to my plans for it.

The massive weeping effect intended in front of the first columnar yew has failed because the Yucca recurvifolia pendula (to give the probably incorrect name under which I bought it years ago) has simply died. It was almost getting there, but then the heavy roots of the yew evidently did it in, along with a particularly vicious winter.

A perfectly hardy palm died the winter. It had no right to do it, but it had it in the past because through a winter of 12 degrees below zero without bluish.

All these irregularities have, needless to say, quite altered the view down the walk. On the other hand, a yellowish shrub, rose "Agnes" has done exactly what it should. I wanted it to bush out at a height of five or six feet, and that's what it did.

Apart from all that, there is the matter of actual flowering. This year, as you know, the daffodils were rather a mess. Many lasted only three days.

Sea World uses hydroponics

While trained whales, seals, sea lions and other marine mammals entertain thousands of visitors, Florida's Sea World helps rescue and rehabilitate shy, curious manatees, raising wheat to feed them.

Sea World has developed special hydroponic stations where it plants wheat in trays. In a week, the trays with foot-long stalks of wheat are inserted into slots in the tanks. The big, fat, gentle manatees, protected against man by law, feed.

As we toured behind the scenes of Sea World near Orlando, zoologist Glenn Young, curator of mammals and birds, explained that fresh water is changed to sea water — reversing a more common pattern. The mammal water system capacity is 2 1/2 million gallons. The Marine Stadium, where the sea creatures perform for delighted audiences, has a capacity of 5 million gallons. It is the world's largest marine habitat made by man. When rain dilutes the salt, it is restored — by reverse osmosis.

Two large manatees — which may be up to 12 feet long and weigh 2,000 pounds — were in a large tank. A baby, found orphaned in a Florida canal when only a few days old, appeared to be thriving in a small tank.

Sea World, with state and federal agencies, helps-rescue-orphaned and orphaned manatees (and beached whales). The animals are rehabilitated and released, also enjoy the wheat, as well as Manatees unable to tend for seeds themselves are kept in captive breeding programs at Long Key.

A manatee may eat up to 100 pounds of vegetation a day, feeding 6-8 hours daily.

Young, who has been with Sea World for 12 years, said the wheat, from certified, high-quality, good germinating seed, takes a week to reach satisfactory length.

It is cost-efficient and nutritious. Our birds and released, also enjoy the wheat, as well as Manatees unable to tend for seeds themselves are kept in captive breeding programs at Long Key. The vegetarian manatees also get romaine lettuce, which Young said they prefer to iceberg and other varieties.

It is cost-efficient and nutritious. Our birds

NFL teams take risks in draft

By DAVE GOLDBERG
The Associated Press

NEW YORK — The first blows in the race to supplement the Chicago Bears as the NFL champions were struck Tuesday at the league's draft.

While the Tampa Bay Buccaneers were using the first pick to take Auburn running back Bo Jackson and offered to open their bank vaults to get him to forego a baseball career, some important wheeling and dealing was being conducted among the first round's lower picks — where the better teams usually choose.

The main participants were the four NFC teams — the Dallas Cowboys, New York Giants, Washington Redskins and San Francisco 49ers — that are the most likely choices to succeed in the 1986 season.

Included were:
• Six deals in the first four rounds by the 49ers, who twice dealt away a first-round choice but still wound up with three picks in the first three rounds.

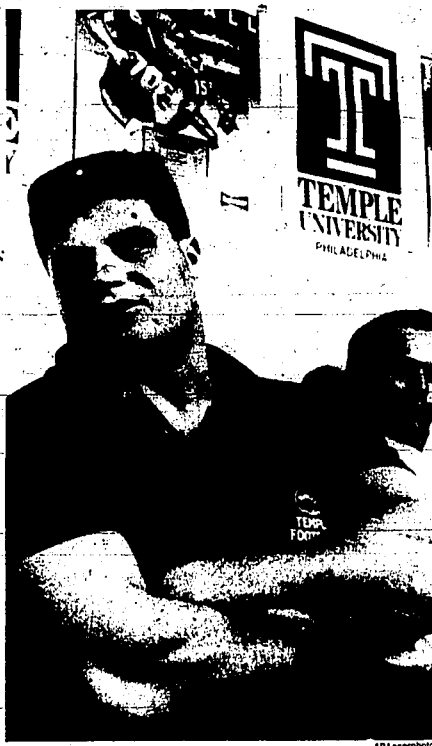

• Two major trades by the Giants, who dealt away disgruntled cornerback Mark Hayes and the rights to USFL offensive linemen Gary Zimmerman. New York wound up with five picks in the first two rounds, which they used to bolster a defense that finished second overall to the Bears in the NFL last year.

• The surrender by Washington for the 10th time in 19 years of their first-round selection — next year's to San Francisco — so they could pick wide receiver Walter Murray of Hawaii on the second round.

And, in an indication of how the teams were thinking, a last-minute maneuver by the Cowboys, who traded with, — who else — the 49ers to jump over the Giants in the first round and grab wide receiver Mike Sherrard of UCLA.

The move accomplished two things — it gave the Cowboys the outside speed they were seeking and it kept Sherrard away from the Giants, who wound up selecting Notre Dame defensive lineman Eric Dorsey.

"We were afraid the Giants would take him, so we had to do something," Dallas Coach Tom Landry said of obtaining Sherrard. "He was exactly what we wanted."

Bosco goes to Packers in Round 3

By JEFF MAYERS
The Associated Press

GREEN BAY, Wis. — Robble Bosco is joining a quartet of quarterback prospects on the Green Bay, but the Brigham Young "passer" doesn't feel like he's being drafted as the immediate solution to a muddled situation.

"I think it's going to take some time," the 6-foot-2, 180-pound Bosco said after the Packers made him their second choice in Tuesday's NFL draft. "I don't think they really drafted me to step right in."

Neither does the 23-year-old Bosco worry about comparisons to Brigham Young quarterbacks who have made their mark in the professional ranks, Jim McMahon and Steve Young.

"The comparisons go on and on," he told reporters in a telephone interview. "I really don't like to compare myself."

"I have a lot of confidence in myself," he added. "I'm going to go in there and give 100 percent."

Bosco is known as a quarterback who can play tight.

In Brigham Young's 1984 championship year, Bosco played hurt before a national television audience in the Holiday Bowl.

He injured a knee and ankle early in the game versus Michigan but returned to finish 30 of 43 passes for 343 yards and two touchdowns, including the winning one with 1:23 in the game.

He played most of last season with a right shoulder bruise yet finished with 4,273 yards passing to up his career total to 8,400 yards.

"He's been tough and competitive," said Green Bay Coach Forrest Gregg. "He's showed great leadership. He's been in a lot of pressure situations."

"I think he'll do a good job for us," Gregg added. "I think he has a chance to make our football team."

The Packers ended last season with four veteran quarterbacks on their roster: Lynn Dickey, Randy Wright, Jim Zorn and Vince Ferragamo.

Bosco may not take as long to develop as a pro passer because he has been with a passing offense.

"Time will tell," said Packers' quarterback coach George Sofcik. "It'll probably take him a year."

In round 4, the Packers chose Memphis State's Timothy Harris.

"I don't think we necessarily drafted for need" but came close to it, Gregg said. "I feel real good about it."

The Packers selected 6-foot-5, 280-pound offensive lineman Dan Knight of San Diego State as their second pick in the fourth round.

The Packers, without a first-round pick and choosing 41st overall, took the 5-foot-10, 212-pound halfback ahead of two notable backs, Washington State's Ruben Mayes and Notre Dame's Allen Pinkett.

BSU's Koch first draft pick by Washington

By BRAD BRELAND
Times-News writer

Four players from the Big Sky Conference were drafted by National Football League teams Tuesday.

Markus Koch, a defensive end from Boise State, was the 30th pick of the 11th round.

Patrick Hunter, a defensive back from Nevada-Reno went to the Seattle Seahawks in the third round in the 69th pick of the draft.

One of Koch's teammates, Jon Francis, a Bronco running back was picked by the New York Giants in the seventh round while Idaho State's Kevin Hudgens was Atlanta's eighth round choice.

Koch, a 6-foot-5, 275-pound player, was selected by the Washington Redskins in the second round. It was the Redskins' first pick after they traded their first round selection to Atlanta.

interview of his early selection. "I was watching the draft this morning and I got a call from Bobby Beathard (the Redskins General Manager). I thought might go to Tampa Bay because they had two first-round picks and an early one in the second round. I couldn't be more pleased."

Koch is the Big Sky's highest draft choice since Bill Kollar of Montana State was drafted by Cincinnati in the first round in 1974.

Boise State running back David Hughes and Northern Arizona's Pete Mandley were second round picks in 1984, but came later in the round than Koch. Hughes now plays with the Seattle Seahawks while Mandley is playing with the Detroit Lions.

Koch was an All-Big Sky player for three straight seasons and led the Broncos with 40 total tackles last year along with 11 sacks.

Koch, a player from Ontario, Canada, was the first-round pick by Toronto in the Canadian Football League draft and will weigh the offers before making his decision on where to play.

yards a carry and a little over 104 yards a game.

In the 84-85 campaign, the 5-11, 205-pound player was the third player in Boise State football to rush over 1,000 yards.

After getting a call from Giants football coach Bill Parcells, Harris was on a plane flying to New York moments after he was drafted.

"He would have gone in the fifth round if he would have been healthy this year," said Boise State Coach Lytle Setelech.

Hudgens, a defensive tackle from Caldwell, was a second team All-Big Sky player with 54 tackles and six sacks this year.

"I was waiting for the phone call all day and it finally came," said the 6-4, 260-pound player. "The scouting reports said I was a seventh to ninth round pick so I was waiting for that."

"Their (the Falcons') defensive coach came in last Friday and talked to me," he continued. "They have me projected as a nose guard or a defensive end. I'm excited about it."

Pilots earn another A-3 track sweep

By STEVE CRUMP
Times-News writer

KIMBERLY — Glens Ferry High School is taking all the fun out of the District 4 Class A-3 track season.

The Pilot boys and girls on Tuesday rolled to their third consecutive victory in a major A-3 track meet, winning the Bulldog Invitational by an even bigger margin than their across-the-board victory in a seven-team Canyon Conference meet in Wendell last week.

In the boys' division, Glens Ferry rolled up 159 points to 96 for second-place Gooding. Wendell finished third with 91, while Declo was fourth with 61 and Kimberly finished fifth at 49, followed by Filer with 48.

In the boys' division, Glens Ferry rolled up 159 points to 96 for second-place Gooding. Wendell finished third with 91, while Declo was fourth with 61 and Kimberly finished fifth at 49, followed by Filer with 48.

Glens Ferry's Carol Williams broke a pair of them, winning the girls' shot put with a toss of 38 feet, 7 inches and the discus with a mark of 120-9.

Other meet records went to Filer's Sandra Garey, who won the girls' 3,200-meter run in 22 minutes, 52.8 seconds; Glens Ferry's Ada Rivers, who took the girls' 200 in 27.0; the Pilot girls' 400 relay team, which ran the quarter in 53.5; Declo's Brad Matthews, who set a new boys' long jump standard of 21-1; Gooding's Gennedy Bennett, who won the triple jump with a leap of 41-3/4; Gooding's Todd Kimmes, who captured the boys' shot put with a mark of 51-10/16; and teammate Ted James, who set a new standard in the boys' 200 with a time of 23.1.

Gooding's Lisa Graves tied the old girls' half-mile record of 2:39.4, while Wendell's Chad Hopie tied the boys' 400 standard of 52.3.

T.F. drops non-league game to potent Nampa

By SCOTT TUDEHOPE
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — If there ever was a time to relax, it would be mid-season against a non-conference opponent. But don't tell that to Bruins baseball coach Bill Ingram.

Inch-guards dropped a varsity preliminary to Nampa 10-2 at the Harmon Park diamond here Tuesday, but had some consolation in the second, winning the junior varsity final.

"Maybe I shouldn't get upset, but I do get that way," he said. "We just shouldn't be playing this way this part of the year; we were flat."

Part of the problem, Ingram said, was the Bruins' approach.

"We knew that we didn't have to win this. It wasn't a league game or anything. Still, we don't have to play like this."

Nampa went ahead 3-0 in the first inning with hits by senior Anthony Negrette and pitcher Don Eide. Eddie Castle RBI'd Dige on a fielder's choice, while Negrette singled to the shortstop to get on base. Outfielder Keither Simon singled in Castle to finish out the first at plate for the Bulldogs.

The water didn't stir again until the sixth and seventh innings when Nampa put up a total of six runs. By the time Twin Falls put across two runners at the bottom of the sixth, it was time to start thinking about the second half of the doubleheader.

Nampa is now 49-5 and 0-2 in the Boise Valley Conference; the Bruins are 10-7 overall and 0-3 in the Gem State.

In brief . . .

Bosox hurler sets K's mark

BOSTON (AP) — Roger Clemens set a major-league record by striking out 20 Seattle batters and Dwight Evans hit a three-run home run with two outs in the seventh inning as the Boston Red Sox defeated the Mariners 3-2 Tuesday night.

Clemens, 4-0, allowed three hits and walked none.

The 20 strikeouts broke the record accomplished by Tom Seaver of the New York Mets, Nolan Ryan of the California Angels and Steve Carlton of the St. Louis Cardinals.

Washington's Tom Cheney struck out 21 in 16 innings against Baltimore in 1962.

Clemens tied an American League league record when he struck out eight consecutive batters from the fourth to sixth innings. Spike Owen broke up the string when he flied to center to end the sixth.

Mets win 10th straight

ATLANTA (AP) — Darryl Strawberry said he knew it was just a matter of time before he would come up with a big hit.

"That was a big one," Strawberry said after hitting a three-run homer in the sixth inning, sparking the New York Mets to a 10-6 victory over the Atlanta Braves Tuesday.

It was the 10th consecutive victory for the Mets, but Strawberry said, "We're not concerned about it. The key for us is to do the little things that help us win ball games."

Strawberry's blast over the center field fence came on a 3-1 pitch from Craig McMurtry, 61, after Wander Backman's fourth single of the game and a walk to Keith Hernandez.

CSI vs. Ricks today

TWIN FALLS — The College of Southern Idaho's Northern Division Region 18 doubleheader in Rexburg against Ricks College was rained out Tuesday and will be played here today.

Game time is 1 p.m. at Frontier Field.
