TWIN FALLS — Public Utilities

Commissions staff member Stephanie

Miller took the stand Friday on the final day of hearings in Twin Falls, in Gefending her position that one-third of Idaho Power Company's investment. In the Valmy-II-power plant-between the final than the final th

Loupied_with her_recommenda-tions on company investments in the Boardman Plant, a coal-fired plant located in eastern Oregon, Miller's recommendations would trim $13 million from Idaho Power's $84.2 million rate-hike request.

In her prepared iestimony, Millersald she based her recommendation on the time period that the company should have known the plant was no longer needed. By 1892, Miller sald, "Idaho Power, became, aware its forecasted loads were declining and that there would be significant surplus power available in the Northwest." By December of 1892, she added, the company had committed about two-thirds of the funds for the Valmy II plant.

Valmy II plant.

The 250-megawatt coal-fired power, plant was completed in 1985. Although Miller's position is less externer than that taken by the attorney general's expert witnesses, it is still not popular with Idaho Power. Earlier in the week, witnesses from, the attorney general's office suggested that ratepayers should not be suddled with any of the costs from Yalmy II because it is not "used and useful" for Idaho.

"Ethink that it was a hell of a good decision," said; IPC-Rate Manager Larrg Crowley in defense of the plant; "It's going to carry us into the next century with a good mix of thermal power and hydropower," he added.

While IPC officials have admitted that the Valmy II plant is not currently running at full capacity, Crowley and others have defended it by noting that utilities never build a plant with the expectation that it will be fully utilized when it comes into operation.

Unlike other controversial rate ases around the country, where the

"The granting of a certificate approved the company's decision to embark on construction of the two generating units," Miller said in her prepared testimony. "It did not prejudge company decisions that would be made during the construction period,

"I do disagree with the company position that obtaining a certificate in 1979 made it somehow Immure from questions concerning its decisions whether to continue with the plant in spite of declining forceasted demand and increasing surplus."

Miller said.

The IPC contends that the commission order approved the plant and recognized it as a needed addition to the utility. Later decisions by the commission, according to Idaho rower's testimony, on the North Fork, Kanaka Rapids and other hydropower projects, "generally agreed that the company would need additional resources over and above Valmy II."

Unfortunately for the power forecasts which were considered valid in 1879, the PUC also issued several orders which had a major impact on the state's power supply. As outlined by Miller in her testimory. # A prescription of caring provides a loving remedy

100 years later, public health nurses are still hard at work

By JANE ROBISON

TWIN FALLS — Dorothy Alexander looks into the eyes of tne young and spots their problems.

She travels 10,000 miles a year to test the eyes of school children, along with taking care of the sick and teaching wellness. That is her job — to care for the people of Lincoln County the way a public health nurse cared for her when she was allttle girl.

"I've always been interested in it," said Alexander, who will retire in September after serving 30 years as Lincoln County's only public health nurse.

"I've always wanted to be a nurse, ever since I choked my brother on a bottle of dirt while we were playing doctor."

But the bottle of dirt may not have done as much to stir her interest in public health nursing as a black-and-white, cross-eyed kitten.

The kitten turned out to be a life-preserver, a present from one of Shoshone's ploneer public health nurses, Stella McFail.

"I' had pneumonia for a month and four days, I'd had smallpox that went into pneumonia. And she gave me this little kitten, so I'd roll around on the bed chasting it, and cough up." Alexander explained as the sat in her cubbyhole of an office in the Lincoln County Courthouse.

It may have been an offbeat reinedy, but it worked. And Alexander's admiration for the woman who took very good care of her still shows in her eyes more than 50 years later.

In celebration of the 100th year of public health nursing, and in conjunction with National Nurses. Week, May 57; public health nurses are stepping into the spoilight to let people know they are still out there, and they still care.

We're out there dealing with necklary to the second of the still care.

"We're out there dealing with problems that no one else gives a rip about," said Cheryi Juntunen, physical health director for the South Central Juntume said. She added that nurses who work with the maternal and infant-care program become "the community grandmother."

"Historically, public health nurses cared for the sick and the poor, Juntunen said. But after World War II, their scope and direction changed to more of a focus on preventality medicine, she said. "In World War II they needed women in industry to fill the jobs, and that meant they needed women-who were well," Juntunen said. "They found that through maternal and infant care, it paid to take good care of people because there was less of a cost later, both in financial and human terms."

The programs public health nurses run have never received large chunks of money. But they have done a lot with the little teep have received. For every $1 spent on prenatal care to prevent birth defects, up to $11 is saved by taxpayers and parents, according to figures released by the Office of Maternal and Child Health Services. And that was just in the area of savings.

savings. But Juntunen is not satisfied.

"We've got to invest more up front, to prevent disease and sickness. But the problem is, when you've only got $10, you don't spend it on vaccina-tions when you have a child that's critically ill," she said.

BUHL — Special services with the David Stephens family, of Turlock, California, will be held at 11 am. Sunday and at 7 pm. Sunday through Wednesday at the Buhl First Assembly of God Church. Evangelist Stephens, his wife Karen, and two daughters have received acclaim for their singing ability. Stephens has been a pastor and evangelist for 25 years and has a positive and to the point ministry. The public is invited to attend the spiritual renewal services. The Church is located on 7th Avenue North and Locust Streets. For further information, call Pastor Jerry Schneider at $43-5191.

TWIN FALLS — Revival services with Evangelist John Everett will be held at 10:50 a.m. Sunday and at 7 j.m. Sunday through Wednesday at First Assembly of God Church, Locust and Addison St.

Evangelist Everett has an extensive background as speaker for evangelistic campaigns, district councils, camp meetings and conventions. His ministry emphasizes spiritual renewal for the church and a message for the unsawed. He will be praying for the sick and for believes to receive the baptism of the Holy Spirit.

Panel reviews Dallas escape

BOISE (AP) — A "scrious-Inoident-review panel" met at the idaho State Penitentiary on Triday to examine whether any prison employees should be held accountable for the March 30 escape of convicted killer Claude ballas.

There was no statement released after the closed meeting. Content of the march 30 escape of convicted killer claude ballas.

There was no statement released after the closed meeting. Content of the content of the converted that prison to discuss the panel's findings.

The panel was composed on Newada Corrections Director George Sumner, Paul Morris of Emmett, Deputy Attorney General Bod Gates, and Don Linford, who has served on the Correctional Industries Board.

Murphy has said that 90 percent of the responsibility for Dallas' escape lies with the inadequate prison facility. However, he said if any prison employee or official was found at fault in the escape, action would be taken.

McClure discusses 'hoppers

WASHINGTON (AP) — With grashopper season coming up, Sen James-McClure called federal pest-control officials together in Washington on Friday to review their readiness to combat a possi-ble infestation this summer.

ble infestation this summer.

"We're miles ahead of where we were a year ago," McClure said a statement issued after the meeting. "We now have the experience and the mechanics in place so that it grasshoppers pose a threat, we can handle the problem quickly."

He met with Robert Burlord, director of the Bureau of Land Management, Bert Hawkins, director of the Department of Agriculture's Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service, Frank Dunkle, acting U.S. Fish and Wildlite Service director; and other agency officials for an update on plans in case-of another grass-hopper outbreak in the West.

Further Envirosafe tests due

BOISE (AP) — Spurred by the results of preliminary tests conducted last fall, state and federal officials hope to-begin more complex testing by June on the possibility of wind-blown contaminates escaping from the Enviros near Grand View.

"We're trying to find out if any of the toxic contaminates taken into the site are leaving the site... by wind dispersion," said Environmental Protection Agency spokesman Ron Moezygemba. The target of the new study is polychorinated biphenyis, or PCBs, which have been legally buried in ground trenches at the site in relatively low concentrations.

Tests conducted by the state Division of Environment last fall on BLM rangeland near the dump turned up what Moczygemba termed minute levels of PCBs.

Extraction method unearthed

IDAHO FALLS (AP) — Researchers at the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory say their studies show microorganisms can be used to extract cobalt from low-grade sulfide ores, potentially freeing the nation from dependence on foreign sources of the strategic mineral.

"We've taken a systematic look at a process that occurs by itself in nature, and are adapting it so that the process can be used by the mining industry," said Paul Wichlacz, head of the EG&G idaho inc. biotechnology group at the INEL.

Research on cobalt extraction at the site is funded by the Interior Department's Bureau of Mines as part of the INEL's Strategic and Critical Materials Program. The program is almost and developing new technologies to lessen U.S. dependence on foreign supplies of materials considered essential to the nation's defense and personny.

BOISE (AP) — Morrison-Knudsen Corp, is seeking new customers both inside and outside the United States in an attempt to keep its Boise In-dustrial Complex locomotive repair shop operating, but the relatively-high labor rate has made that dif-ficult, President William Deasy says.

"We're sticking with the Boise plant, which I think will get the work," Deasy told stockholders at the company's annual meeting Friday.

He said officials were pursuing possible contracts with the U.S. military as well as with foreign governments including Canada and Mexico and have also offered "recassingly competitive" deals to domestic rail carriers. Deasy said talks with the federal government have focused on "what sort of military equipment might be' amenable to the shop."

Johnson eclipsed the old mark of 6-10, set by Jody Ping of Mount Hood in 1980, but missed in three attempts at 7-1. The only other CSI man to score Friday was John Raveling, who turned in a 33-44.1 for second place in the 10,000-meter run.

After seven men's events, the team scoring favored Ricks at 40 points, followed by Treasure Valley at 15, North Idaho at 13 and CSI with

The women's team standings are a bit deceiving, because they include a one-two finish by Jennifer-Whalen and Julie Cupp in the heptathlon, which was run-in-the-Gibb-track meet in Boise last month.

Tilzey, despite a strained foot ligament, won the women's 5,000 meters with a 20:37.

Whalen added a second place in the long jump at 18 feet, 8 inches, seven inches behind champion Mary Roy of Ricks. Cupp was third at 16-6½, Julie Mori hit 33-6½ for third place in the shotput to round out CSI scoring for Friday.

Harper's shooting lifts Mavericks past Lakers

The Associated Press
DALLAS — Derek Harper's biggest professional gaffe came against the Los Angeles Lakers here two years ago in the NBA playoffs when he dribbled away-the-final-secondsthinking the Dallas Mavericks led when they actually trailed.
Harper got some revenge Friday night with two three-point shots in the final minute to lift the Maverleks to a 110-108 -victory over-theLakers in their best-of-seven NBA playoff series.
Los Angeles now lead the playoff series 2-1.

Hernandez's two-run double an-chored a three-run first inling-heading the Mets toward their 12th victory in 13 games. The Reds, who rallied within a run by scoring five times in the eighth, have lost 10 of their last 11. Danny Ainge scored five points each in the final 3½ minutes, as the Boston Cellics downed the Atlanta Hawks 111-107 Friday night to take a 3-0 lead in the best-of-7 NBA Eastern Conference semifinal series.

It was the 10th consecutive vic-tory for the Celtics over the Hawks and their 13th in a row in games played in Atlanta.

The fourth game of the series will be played in Atlanta on Sunday, and the fifth game, if needed, in Boston on Tuesday.

Sanderson-Webster win again

New F & G regulation clarified

TWIN FALLS — The Idaho Fish and Game Commission's regulation regarding permit and general hunts is applicable only to hunts for identical species.

Successful deer permit drawers may hunt elk or other species in general-hunt areas but may not participate in deer areas. The "no-doubling" restriction is applicable only to deer and elk. The new regulations do not contravene any Jaws regarding other species.

TWIN FALLS — It may be time to break up the JoAnne Sanderson-Cheri Webster combination.
That team won its second two-woman best ball title in a week Friday by claiming the Canyon Springs tournament.
The Twin Falls twosome carded a gross 82 in the one-day event while Fern Butler and Norma Jensen, Jerome, was second at 85. In the net division, Irene DalSoglio and Kay Feldtman, Jerome, led with a 67 while Penny Jones and Jody Smith, Wells, were second at 71.

with a 6t white remy some and the first flight, the gross title was shared among Bernice Howa and Freda Anderson and Glenda McGreer and Jackle Gasser at 88. Jan Cummins and America Brodeen brought the course to its knees with a 13-under 59 net, six strokes ahead of Elko runners-up Maria Heller and Marry Glusto.

Best ball entries being taken

TWIN FALLS — Entries are now being accepted for the Best-Western Canyon Springs Inn two-man best ball tournament, slated May 10-11 at Canyon Springs Golf Course.

Host Professional Del Ericson said the sponsoring in will provide added money and more may be anounced next week.

The field will be evenly divided into two flights. Maximum hand-icap will be 30 and the maximum handicap spread between part-ners will be 10 for the event that carries a 30 per man entry lee.

A social function is planned for the evening of May 10, Ericson said.
