Reactor still leaking radiation, but fire is out

By ANDREW ROSENTHAL
The Associated Press

MOSCOW — Officials of the U.N. atomic energy agency today said that the Chernobyl disaster is by far the worst nuclear accident in history, but Soviet experts are getting it under control.

"They said radiation still leaks slowly from the nuclear power plant's stricken No. 4 reactor, but the fire in its graphite core has been stopped and the Soviets will 'entomb' it in concrete for a years-long cooling process.

A young Kiev resident reads about the Chernobyl nuclear accident. Kiev is 80 miles south of the plant.

Based on their observations and Soviet data, it is clear that the radioactive consequences of this accident are far more serious than in any accident so far, also that the radioactive releases to the environment are much more serious," Hans Blix, chief of the International Atomic Energy Agency, told a news conference.

Blix and his deputies said temperatures in the graphite core were dropping and uncontrolled downward burning of the nuclear fuel, commonly called the "China syndrome," is not an immediate threat.

An explosion and fire in the reactor at the Ukrainian plant April 25 spewed an invisible radioactive cloud over Europe that gradually has been working its way around the world.

No other governments reported health-threatening levels of radiation Friday.

After his group returned to the IAEA headquarters in Vienna, Austria, Friday, Blix said the Soviets had agreed to provide daily radiation readings from seven stations along their western border from the northern city of Leningrad to the Black Sea. These are to be relayed to national nuclear authorities, but not made public.

About 84,000 residents within an 18-mile radius of the plant were evacuated beginning 36 hours after the disaster. About 250,000 children are being let out of school early so they can leave Kiev, the Ukrainian capital of 2.4 million people 80 miles south of Chernobyl.

Journalists from Eastern Europe said a Soviet official told them a third person had died as a result of the accident. Official reports have said two people were killed and 204 hospitalized, 18 in serious condition.

An American bone-marrow specialist leads a team of doctors performing marrow transplants in Moscow on victims of severe radiation exposure.

The Kremlin made its sixth official statement on the disaster Friday evening, which consisted of three paragraphs and gave no new information.

All but one statement have been brief. The first, reporting the accident, was issued two days after it occurred, when high radiation levels had been detected in Scandinavia and Sweden demanded information.

Western governments have criticized the Soviet government for slow and incomplete reports on the disaster.

The first foreign journalists allowed to visit the Ukraine were escorted to a farm 31 miles west of Kiev where 1,000 evacuees are housed. They were shown medical checks being given and allowed to speak with a few evacuees, all of whom appeared to be in good health.

"I took some things, two or three little blankets and pillows," said Marina Ilichenko, 80. She began to weep as she related that she and her children had just moved into a new house.

The people evacuated took their livestock along.

Blix and his associates spoke to reporters in Moscow after five days of meetings with Soviet officials.

European countries may seek damages

By NESHA STARCEVIC
The Associated Press

FRANKFURT, West Germany — West German and Austrian officials say they may seek reparations from the Soviets for the Chernobyl nuclear disaster, but most Western European countries say it's too early to make a decision.

Farmers in Italy and Austria are urging their governments to make a claim.

European governments said radioactively from the damaged nuclear reactor in the Ukraine never reached dangerous levels. But several governments temporarily banned sales of leafy vegetables and restricted the sales of fresh milk to guard against possible radiation poisoning from the April 26 accident.

Farmers in many countries have been told to keep their cows in barns to prevent them from eating contaminated grass.

West German government spokesman Friedrich Ost and Austrian Foreign Minister Leopold Gratz said this week that their governments are considering whether to demand reparations.

The West German mass-circulation newspaper Bild quoted

Wolfgang von Geldern, the No. 2 official in Bonn's Agriculture Ministry, as saying West Germany would demand huge reparations to compensate farmers whose produce was contaminated by fallout from Chernobyl.

"The West German government will shortly ask the Soviets for damages amounting to millions, if not billions," Bild quoted Geldern as saying.

The report quoted Geldern as threatening to bring a suit against the Soviets at the International Court of Justice if they refused to make reparations.

The only Soviet reference to possible reparations was made by Georgi A. Arbatov, director of the Soviet Union's Institute of U.S. and Canadian Studies, who said Sunday that his government would compensate Poland for any crop losses and for anti-radiation medicine distributed to children.

Arbatov made the comment in Moscow on the British Broadcasting Corp.'s "It's Your World" international radio phone-in program.

In Austria, Gratz said legal precedents for demanding reparations were being studied. He said Austria would wait to see what other countries do.

4th rocket failure this year disclosed

By HARRY F. ROSENTHAL
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — A NASA research rocket that had flown successfully 120 times in the desert two weeks ago — the fourth U.S. space launch vehicle to fail this year.

The government, whose space program is under pressure because of the recent explosions of the much larger Titan and Delta rockets and the space shuttle, did not announce the April 25 failure of a Nike Orion rocket carrying a pollution-sampling device.

In response to questions from The Associated Press on Friday, the mission was described by Debra Bingham, a spokeswoman for the U.S. Army Missile Range in White Sands, N.M., and by Dr. Edward C. Zipf, a geophysicist of the University of Pittsburgh, who was conducting the experiment for NASA.

"This was very rare. I think this particular series of rockets, the so-called Orion family, had flown 120 times and this was the first failure," Zipf said in a telephone interview. "This system of rockets has been flying for about six or seven years."

The Nike rocket dates back to the early 1950s when it was developed as a ground-based missile against aircraft. It was used in different military versions until the last one was retired last year from Nike Hercules batteries in Europe.

NASA has been using the surplus, solid-fuel Nike booster in combination with another solid-fuel, military surplus rocket, the Orion. In the configuration that failed last month, the rocket and payload combination was 30 feet long.

The rocket was supposed to deliver Zipf's experiment to an altitude of 50 miles, but he said it got no higher than 5,000-7,000 feet — a little more than one mile. There, the burned-out Nike first stage failed to separate before the second stage Orion ignited.

The rocket veered off erratically and deployed the parachute that brought the $40,000 payload back to earth with only a few scratches but no data. All the rocket debris and the payload fell in the desert of the White Sands range.

"We are going to fly again in August, this is just a momentary problem with one of these war surplus rockets," Zipf said. "There is no investigation of the rocket. It went largely unnoticed because it is such a small thing in the overall perspective of things and because the payload was not lost."

Detailed investigations followed the explosions of the shuttle, the Titan and the Delta, which are much bigger and much more expensive launch systems.

Congressional leaders trade shots on budget

By STEVEN KOMAROW
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Democratic and Republican congressmen traded shots Friday in a preview of the military spending battle expected in upcoming budget negotiations.

"Many think the Senate went too far when it reduced defense spending authority to $30 billion," $15 billion below President Reagan's request, said Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan. "But the House's $285 billion level is irresponsible and totally unrealistic."

Dole and Senate Budget Committee Chairman Pete V. Domenici, R-N.M., said it would be better to raise the budget at the military spending limits in the plan passed Thursday by the House Budget Committee.

"I don't know whether we can get a budget if that's what they're going to vote on over there," said Domenici. "I don't see any reason to play any game of chicken."

Rep. William H. Gray III, D-Pa., chairman of the House budget panel, said Friday that the spending plan should come before the full House next week and he expected it to pass intact. "We will not go to $30 billion," he said.

"I think the White House has got some problems," Gray told reporters. "I think that basically the White House failed to negotiate and become involved in the budget process when they should have."

Now, Gray said, Dole was being asked to "carry the water of the administration to break up the budget, so the administration can

College of Southern Idaho graduates file into the gymnasium during the opening of Friday's commencement ceremony

Financial plea marks CSI graduation

By JANE ROBINSON
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — A plea to support your local college with tax dollars became the theme of the 1986 graduation ceremonies at the College of Southern Idaho on Friday night.

Lefroy Craig, chairman of CSI's Board of Trustees, greeted about 300 graduates and an audience of more than 1,000 people with a plea for money and votes for lawmakers who would support education.

"The fact that they passed overrides in Jerome and American Falls and Blackfoot makes us realize that we're proud of our educational system and we're willing to pay for it," Craig said during opening remarks. "I think it shows that people are willing to tax themselves and pay for quality education."

Craig exhorted the crowd to contact their local lawmakers before the primary election and let them know they support education.

CSI's board declared a financial emergency last month because the Legislature failed to approve increased funding for the two-year college.

Craig also asked the crowd to applaud the faculty for its dedication and commitment and for keeping its spirits high "despite a budget that's been disappointing."

Craig's brief remarks were then followed by an address from a former CSI student, Norman L. Jones, now an associate professor of history at Utah State University. Jones continued the theme of being responsible citizens willing to pay for their educational improvement.

Jones, who graduated from CSI in 1970, spoke on the importance of education throughout history and in America's development as a prosperous nation.

Jones, too, hinted at the need for continued tax dollars to keep CSI going.

"CSI was intended to increase access to higher education, to make good citizens and to improve the prosperity of its citizens," the 35-year-old Jones said. "And it showed Magic Valley is willing to tax itself to prepare people for a better life."

And Jones told the graduates that with their new responsibility comes a debt "owed to the past" to continue their civic obligation and "pass the gift along" to future generations.

Following his 20-minute speech, the largest graduating class in CSI's history, 525, received their diplomas, including a business student from China, "Randy" Cheong Chol Meng, who said he will return to Macao to help run his family's restaurant.

Also decked in cap and gown and receiving a certificate in drafting was 18-year-old Orson F. Hatch, who will graduate from Twin Falls High School in June.

"It's been time consuming, but I've really enjoyed it," Hatch, who plans to become an architect, said prior to Friday's graduation. "I've made some really good friends here."

About 525 students were eligible to receive degrees and certificates, including 224 academic students and 301 vocational students, but not all participated in Friday's graduation ceremonies.

Parents back Deliverance Ranch, say youth school will re-open soon

BOISE (AP) — A ranch for wayward youth will re-open in a remote corner of southwestern Idaho as quickly as students and school officials return there from Boise.

That was announced here Friday afternoon by the parents of two youths at the school. And both parents, Mike Olson, Lynnwood, Wash., and Jim Acord, Lacey, Wash., gave unqualified support to the way the school is operated.

"We fully approve of what has happened there," said Acord, whose son, Jack, 16, is a student at the school.

"The parents said they felt their children were 'closer to God' and received better education than possible at public schools."

Deliverance Ranch is operated at Indian Meadows, a three-hour drive south of Boise in a remote area of Owyhee County.

Last week, county and state welfare officials raided the ranch and took 16 youth into custody. Officials said they were investigating allegations of child abuse, and closed the school down because it was operating without a license.

Robert Aldridge, a Boise attorney and president of the school, this week had school chief Rev. Don Elliott and his wife, Phyllis, named legal guardian of the youth.

Based on that, and the parents backed him at a news conference Friday afternoon, they felt they no longer have to obtain a state license. Department of Health and Welfare attorneys and officials believe otherwise, saying the legal guardian move was just a ruse to get around state licensing requirements. A hearing is scheduled Tuesday before 3rd District Judge Edward Lodge to straighten it out.

Meanwhile, an agreement was signed in Boise Friday—morning, allowing the school to re-open. One or two Health and Welfare representatives will travel to the school to observe operations.

The agreement says the strict discipline used in the past will be relaxed, at least until after Tuesday's court hearing.

Olson and Acord said 11 students and the Elliotts were traveling to the school Friday afternoon. Three students remained there. At least one more will come in next week, they said.

All are from other states, with no Idaho residents involved.

When asked if they agreed that state officials were acting in the students' best interests, because they believed child abuse might be occurring, Olson and Acord said: "Absolutely not."

They said the first trial cost Owyhee County taxpayers $1,400, and deputies accosted, manhandled and violated the civil rights of the students.

"You have a right to know that is the bill you paid for the helicopters that carried out the removal of our boys from their home," said Olson and Acord.

"The truth is, our boys have a legal and moral right to return to their home," they said. "The error is that the state feels it must control our lives. The state is morally and legally wrong."

Faltering economy blamed for Malad City bank failure

MALAD CITY (AP) — First Bank and Trust of Idaho was taken over Friday by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, becoming the first bank in at least 25 years to fail in Idaho, said FDIC spokesman Tom Ruth.

An adverse agricultural climate and faltering state economy are being largely attributed to the failure of the bank, based in Malad City.

The bank's six offices will reopen Monday as branches of Idaho First National Bank. The failed bank's depositors automatically will become depositors of the assuming bank, said Julie Amberson, FDIC corporate communications officer.

Ruth said that is subject to approval by a state district judge, who will contact this weekend.

The bank, which had total assets of $51.1 million, was closed on Friday by Tom McElidowney, director of the Idaho Department of Finance, Ms. Amberson said. Drew said McElidowney revoked the bank's state-issued charter.

The FDIC was named receiver, and chose Idaho

First National Bank as the assuming institution, Ruth said.

Ruth said depositors' money is safe. "Not one penny will be lost in this transaction."

McElidowney said, "Over the past several years, First Bank and Trust of Idaho experienced substantial deterioration in the quality of its loan portfolio due to continued adverse agricultural conditions, the generally poor economic climate in Idaho and management problems."

"Basically, they made bad loans," Ruth said, adding that the state's economy and agricultural problems were key factors.

"These factors resulted in inadequate capital, thereby causing the bank's insolvency," McElidowney said.

The Idaho First National Bank will assume about $54.7 million in 12,300 deposit accounts, and has agreed to pay the FDIC a purchase premium of $280,000.

EPA starts issuing new state waste-runoff rules

BOISE (AP) — The federal Environmental Protection Agency has started the process of adopting a new permit system to restrict waste runoff from Idaho feedlots and dairy streams into waterways.

That sort of runoff, said M. Lynn McKee, Idaho EPA chief at Boise, has been causing an increasing water quality problems in Idaho.

Copies of the new rules were published Friday in the Federal Register. The proposals are subject to public comment before they become final. The proposed permit process will be the subject of public hearings in Boise on June 11 and in Twin Falls the next day.

EPA announced Friday it intends to issue new permit for all feedlots with more than 300 head of cattle and all dairies with more than 200 head. McKee said the intent is to cut paperwork by issuing a general permit for a permit company rather than dozens of individual permits.

The proposed rules ban the direct discharge of process wastewater or storm water runoff that has been in contact with feeding operations.

Operators of concentrated animal feeding operations will be required to design, construct and maintain facilities to prevent the runoff from reaching waterways. Discharges would be prohibited in all but exceptionally wet years, McKee said.

"Compliance with the permit will go a long way toward eliminating the mounting number of water quality problems related to animal waste," said McKee.

The EPA, state Department of Health and Welfare and local health districts have been receiving increasing complaints about feedlot and dairy pollution, he said, with the complaints heaviest in the Magic Valley. The number of dairies in that area has grown considerably over the last decade, he said.

Since waste produced by concentrated animal feeding operations basically are of the same type, McKee said, EPA considers a general permit more suitable than issuing separate permits to individual operators.

"EPA's interest is to improve water quality, not to generate needless paperwork," McKee said. "One of the chief advantages in the general permit approach is its simplicity."

Once the general permit system becomes final, all that would be required of individual operators is for them to provide EPA and the state Division of Environment with a notice of their intent to be covered by the state permit.

Without such notice, any operator would be in violation of the permit if they discharged pollutants into any stream or body of surface water in Idaho.

"The general permit does not add any additional layer of regulatory controls over the dairymen and cattle feeders in Idaho," McKee said.

"The permit is new; the requirements are not."

The state Health and Welfare agency has been working on waste handling guidelines for cattle feeders and dairymen. The guidelines are designed to help operators comply with the permit.

Warehouse destroyed by blaze

ONTARIO, Ore. (AP) — Damages have been estimated at $1.25 million in a fire which destroyed an onion warehouse Thursday night and badly damaged the motel next door.

The fire, which started in a stack of wooden onion crates at DeBrynn Produce Co.'s storage shed, was contained by midnight, Ontario Fire Chief Larry Roberts said.

But the blaze damaged the warehouse to the point where company manager Jerry Baker said the 180-by-200 foot building would be demolished. In addition, 12 rooms of the adjacent Oregon Trail Motel were heavily damaged by fire.

About 13 motel guests were evacuated as the fire started on the roof of motel units, only about 25 feet from the fire.

Damage to the motel was estimated at $250,000.

Evans claims Symms is wrong about label

BOISE (AP) — Republican Sen. Steve Symms has effectively labeled the Mormon Church as being pro-choice on abortion, said Gov. John Evans.

"I hardly think Mr. Symms wants to label Mormons 'pro-choice,' but that's just what his statement does," Evans said Friday.

Evans, a Democrat, is challenging Idaho's freshman senator in November.

On Friday, Evans responded to statements made last week in Pocatello by Symms, who labeled the governor's position on abortion as "pro-choice."

He also said Symms has changed his position since 1973, when he "applauded the 1973 Supreme Court decision legalizing abortion."

Evans quoted a 1973 letter to Symms' constituents, in which Symms said denying abortions to victims of rape and incest "is a crime committed against them."

Evans said that does not belong in the hands of congressmen and judges. "Obviously, Mr. Symms has changed his position," Evans said.

Evans, a member of the Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, said he opposes abortion except in cases of rape or incest or when the life of the mother is endangered. That is the same stance his church has taken.

"That is not a pro-choice position," countered Evans. "I don't think you'll find a pro-choice advocate anywhere who would label it as such."

Symms said he has co-sponsored the Helms-Garn Amendment, which would make abortion illegal in every instance except if the life of the mother were threatened. "I am the only clear-cut pro-life candidate in the U.S. Senate race," Symms said.

"Mr. Symms and I disagree on whether victims of rape or incest should be forced to bear the result of a crime committed against them," Evans said. "As a father, I cannot power but feel not belong in the hands of parents would want their daughters to be further victimized that way."

Gas firm seeks rate hike from large users

BOISE (AP) — Feeling the impact of declining energy prices, Intermountain Gas Co. has asked state regulators for a $2.9 million increase in revenue from its large-volume customers through a change in the way they are billed.

The Public Utilities Commission has set a hearing on the request for Monday.

Intermountain Gas officials said the increase was prompted by an unexpected shift of large volume customers from purchasing its gas to privately contracting for gas supplies and then just having the utility transport it.

The utility said its rate for merely transporting privately owned gas is inadequate to offset the huge shift to the method of energy supply without causing severe revenue shortfalls.

The situation, the company said, has caused its current rate structure to become "unfair, unjust, and unreasonable and confiscatory."

Under its proposal billing changes, the utility wants to effectively negate the impact on its revenues of large-volume customer decisions to either buy its gas or privately contract for their own. The company is also asking for the authority to change its rate scheduled so that large users are encouraged to purchase more gas than the minimum they agree to buy each year.

State Department denies aid to Contras diverted as bribes

WASHINGTON (AP) — The State Department denied Friday that U.S. non-lethal aid to Nicaraguan rebels was diverted to bribe Honduran military officials and asserted that the supplies "have been arriving in the field and are being put to good use" by the Contras.

The denial came in response to an article in The Miami Herald charging that at least $3.8 million in U.S. payments were made to a super-market in Tegucigalpa, Honduras, which billed for 20,000 uniforms that did not exist.

The General Accounting Office, an investigative arm of Congress, reported Thursday that the State Department cannot adequately account for about half of the $27 million in non-lethal Contra aid approved last year.

The Herald said the store, the Supermercado Hermano Pedro, was a front for Honduran military officers and that charges for other items might also have been inflated. The article quoted one unnamed U.S. official as saying that "there were no uniforms."

There were military operations in the Contras' area to carry out in January because they didn't have clothes," the official was quoted as saying. They were out buying jeans, Sergio Valente jeans, in order not to go naked."

One administration official, who spoke on the condition "he not be identified, told The Associated Press that the Honduran military demanded that the Contras buy items from the store as a condition for allowing the CIA-organized rebels to continue operating from Honduran soil.

According to classified government documents obtained by The AP, the store has billed the State Department for $3.8 million since last October for food, transportation, and uniforms.

State Department spokesman Charles Redman said the Herald article "misstated the status of 20,000 uniforms." Redman said documents exist showing payment for 10,000 of those uniforms.

He added that "information available to the administration and Congress confirms that the supplies funded by the department's Nicaraguan Humanitarian Assistance Office have been arriving in the field and are being put to good use by the resistance forces."

In providing locally purchased materials to the resistance forces, we are dealing with known, reputable and experienced business," he said.

A senior GAO official testified Thursday, however, that the State Department lacks adequate controls to ensure that about half the non-lethal aid is not being diverted.

Stage star Bernardi dies at 62

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actor Herschel Bernardi, best known for his long-running Broadway role as Tevye in the musical "Fiddler on the Roof" and as the rumped, cynical Lt. Jacoby in the "Peter Gunn" TV series, has died. He was 62.

The actor died Thursday night of a heart attack in his sleep in his Los Angeles home, said his manager, Charles Stern.

Bernardi's smooth voice was a popular feature on numerous television commercials, and he provided the voice for the Charlie Tuna character on Starline spots for 20 years.

Bernardi played more than 1,200 Broadway performances as the lead in "Fiddler on the Roof," replacing Zero Mostel, and starred in another Broadway musical, "Zorba the Greek."

In a 1982 interview, he said he was intrigued by a Japanese version of "Fiddler on the Roof."

"The content of this play is about the breakdown of tradition and the family," Bernardi said. "After the show, the Japanese producer said, 'I don't see why the show should be so popular in America. It's so Japanese.'"

"The breakdown of the family is universal," Bernardi said. "That's why this play is popular everywhere."

Bernardi was born in New York City on Oct. 30, 1923, to an itinerant show-business family.

Death sentence overturned

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The death sentence of John Harvey Adamson for a 1976 Arizona car-bombing that killed reporter Don Bolles was overturned Friday by a federal appeals court because the charges were increased after he had already been sentenced for second-degree murder.

By a 7-4 vote, the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals ruled that even though Adamson violated a plea-bargain by refusing to testify against two other men implicated in the killing, increasing the charges against him to first-degree murder violated the constitutional ban against double jeopardy.

The ruling, if it stands, means Adamson would remain in prison for 20 years and two months, his original term for second-degree murder.

Arizona Attorney General Bob Corbin called the ruling "ridiculous" and said he would appeal to the U.S. Supreme Court.

'Star Wars' cost charges rebuffed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon on Friday dismissed suggestions that President Reagan's "Star Wars" research program is being pursued with less emphasis on cost than previously.

Responding to press reports, the Pentagon released a statement saying its latest annual report to Congress on the Star Wars program does not represent a departure from previous administration policy regarding cost effectiveness.

"Like all military programs, the Strategic Defense Initiative (SDI) program must be cost-effective," the statement said.

The Associated Press, quoting from a report written by SDI Director Lt. Gen. James Abrahamson, said Thursday the Pentagon had told Congress an anti-ballistic missile defense should be deployed if it meets four conditions:

- If it has a "potential role in U.S. strategy";
- Would serve as a "deterrent to surprise attack and enemy escalation";
- Would make a "contribution to our arms control objectives";
- Is technically feasible.

"How we view the relative weights and priorities of these criteria cannot be fixed in time," the report said. "The degree to which we are successful in defining feasibility and affordability will be a major factor in future decisions."

By emphasizing "affordability," the report dropped a criterion set in a landmark speech by Ambassador Paul Nitze, a key arms control adviser to President Reagan. He said a strategic defense should be "cost effective at the margin," that is, less expensive than new weapons designed to penetrate it.

A prominent congressional critic of the Strategic Defense Initiative, Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., said, "I think that affordability is just a code word for a raid on the Treasury."

Official says tax plan has strong backing

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration will be enthusiastically supporting the tax overhaul plan approved by the Senate Finance Committee in what is likely to be a bruising battle to win full Senate approval, a top official said Friday.

Deputy Treasury Secretary Richard Darman, who has been a guiding force in the administration's effort to overhaul the tax code, told a Washington audience that passage by the Senate tax panel was the first round in what was likely to be a tough fight.

"Traditional interest groups, those who have benefited from the tax code in order to shelter income, will be actively organizing to try to kill this on the (Senate) floor," he said in a speech to a conference on political populism. "There is going to be a substantial risk to this tax bill as it gets to the floor."

But Darman predicted the proposal would emerge from the Senate essentially unchanged because he termed the measure a "populist tax bill" which enjoys bipartisan support.

"You will see us enthusiastically supporting pushing tax reform as quickly as we can through the Senate and on to conference (with the House) with a minimum of change on the Senate floor," he said.

"The tax bill is going to move forward with both Democrat and Republican support and leave in its wake a lot of traditional interests."

The committee proposal, which is expected to be debated by the full Senate in early June, would cut personal tax rates almost in half and pay for the reduction by eliminating or scaling back a variety of personal and business tax deductions.

Copter crash kills 4 Marines

TWENTYNINE PALMS, Calif. (AP) — A helicopter on combat maneuvers crashed Friday near the Twentynine Palms Marine Corps Training Center, killing four Marines and injuring one, military officials said.

The identities of the Marines were withheld pending notification of relatives, said Chief Warrant Officer Ron Frazer.

The CH-53E helicopter with five Marines aboard crashed Friday morning about 12 miles northwest of the main base, officials said. The surviving Marine was taken to the base hospital and treated for minor burns, Frazer said.

A cause of the crash has not been determined and the accident is under investigation, he said.

Transportation deaths rise

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite a sharp increase in aviation-related fatalities, the number of deaths last year in all transportation accidents increased only slightly, the National Transportation Safety Board reported Friday.

The safety board said the overall number of fatalities was kept down because of a 13 percent decline in railroad deaths and only a slight increase in the number of highway fatalities.

Highway accidents traditionally account for about 90 percent of all transportation fatalities.

A total of 49,354 people died in transportation accidents nationwide last year, compared to 47,960 in 1984 for an increase of eight-tenths of a percent.

Strikers lose pair of battles

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — Striking Hormel meatpackers lost two legal battles Friday when one federal judge refused to bar the international union from placing their local in trusteeship and another order that they not to harass the trustee or remove records from union offices.

U.S. District Judge Edward J. Devitt issued a temporary restraining order in St. Paul prohibiting Local P-9 from transferring any of the union's money from its Austin headquarters or removing records.

Devitt's order came about two hours after U.S. District Judge Gerhard Gesell in Washington, D.C., refused to temporarily block the takeover of Local P-9 by the United Food and Commercial Workers International union.

UFCW officials said Thursday they were taking control of the local and removing P-9 leaders because they had refused to settle an 8-month-old strike with the Geo. A. Hormel & Co.

20,000-acre blaze rages on

HAMPSTEAD, N.C. (AP) — Authorities sent pupils home early from school Friday and urged residents to evacuate in the path of a 20,000-acre fire that broke through containment lanes to ravage pine and peat, officials said.

"They are evacuating along U.S. 17 and highway 210 around Hampstead," said Feldman Corn, spokesman for the state Forest Resources Division. "We don't know how many people."

Corn said residents of hundreds of homes would be urged to leave, but the evacuations are voluntary. It was the second time people have been moved from the fire's path since the blaze began Monday.

Three area schools closed early, and sheriff's cars with public address systems blaring drove through the area urging people to leave.

NASA submits to panel's demand on redesign

WASHINGTON (AP) — Appalled by the number of design options, NASA announced Friday that it will not make a final selection until the commission has issued its report and recommendations, expected early next month.

NASA's announcement was made as the commission prepared for the first time, to release the transcript of a session on May 2 that was closed to the public. At that hearing, agency officials as well as engineers from rocket booster builder Morton-Thiokol testified.

Sources familiar with the session said the commission was dismayed on that day to find that a redesign of the rockets was already under way and demanded during a sometimes acrimonious session that the activity be halted, because the space agency seemed to be settling for a quick fix.

These sources said the presidential panel also would demand a total redesign of the joint and that the work be supervised by a group of outside, independent scientific experts.

"An independent group of senior experts will be formed to oversee the motor redesign," NASA's announcement said.

Teen sentenced to life term

FALLS CITY, Neb. (AP) — A 16-year-old boy was sentenced Friday to life in prison for participating in the torture-slaying of a 12-year-old member of a survivalist cult.

Dennis Ryan, who was convicted of second-degree murder last month, received the maximum penalty from Richardson County District Judge Robert Finn.

Ryan put his head down and cried just before the sentence was read. "I'm just sorry for what happened," Ryan told the judge.

Ryan was convicted in the murder of James Thimm, 26, whose body was found last August at the cult's southeast Nebraska farm. Ryan, father, cult leader Michael Ryan, was found guilty of first-degree murder and is awaiting sentencing.

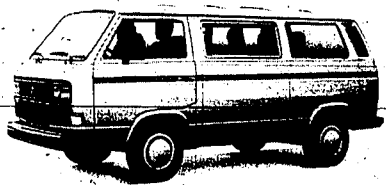

Ryan, his father and three other cult members admitted they whipped Thimm, shot him in the fingers and sodomized him with a shovel handle.

"I don't know whether any crime in Nebraska was ever this horrible," Finn said.

Thatcher unruffled after huge losses

LONDON (AP) — Socialists and a centrist coalition trounced the ruling Conservative Party in local elections and balloting for a parliamentary seat, but Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher vowed Friday to continue her policies.

With most results in from Thursday's voting, the main opposition Labor Party ousted hundreds of Conservatives from city and town councils ranging from the wealthy south to the depressed north.

The centrist Liberal-Social Democrat alliance captured one formerly solid Conservative parliamentary district, Ryedale, and came within 100 votes of taking another — West Derbyshire.

It was the Conservatives' worst electoral showing since Mrs. Thatcher won power in 1979.

But the 60-year-old leader said she emerged from a meeting at her party headquarters, "We now just keep right on with our policies and remain our course."

The Conservatives lost control of 29 local councils, and were left with 43. Labor won outright control of 88 councils, including most London boroughs and virtually all other major English cities, compared with a pre-election 75.

The 5-year-old centrist alliance, in its best showing in local elections, won control of six city and town councils, up from two.

In most of the rest of the 299 councils contested, no party had an overall majority and independents held six.

The Conservative lost more than 600 council seats, of which two-thirds went to the socialist Laborites, and the parliamentary elections showed a swing of nearly 17 percent to the centrist alliance.

Labor leaders said they were finally back on course to oust Mrs. Thatcher, who must call a general election by June 1988.

The Conservative showing underlined fears among party moderates that Mrs. Thatcher's right-wing domestic policies and staunch support of President Reagan have become election liabilities.

Conservative Party — Chairman Norman Tebbit blamed traditional midterm unpopularity for the defeats. Mrs. Thatcher's government is half-way through its second five-year term.

In a radio interview, Tebbit also said Mrs. Thatcher's approval of the sale of British bases for U.S. warplanes that attacked Libya last month may have been a factor. Polls indicated most Britons opposed her decision.

"If the British people are going to vote for appeasement that would be sad. That would be out of character," said Tebbit.

—The Standard, London's pro-Thatcher evening newspaper, commented: "The Tories can no longer rely... on the safety net of the instinctive anti-socialist vote which always resurfaced at general elections before the alliance came along."

Spain expels Libyan; mulls break in ties

MADRID, Spain (AP) — Spain ordered the immediate expulsion of a Libyan diplomat Friday and is considering breaking diplomatic relations with the North African country, a government spokesman said.

Libyan Consul General Saad Ismail was ordered out of Spain "for taking part in activities incompatible with his diplomatic status," a government statement said.

Socialist government spokesman Javier Solana claimed the Libyan diplomat arranged a secret meeting between Libyan leader Moammar Khadafy and a Spanish army officer seeking funding for extremist activities.

The statement also said security police arrested Lt. Col. Carlos Meer de Rivera, a provincial governor, Friday following an investigation that began in January when he met with Jemali and subsequently traveled to Libya to see Khadafy.

Solana told reporters the investigation indicated Meer de Rivera, 56, had no accomplices in his alleged attempt to convince Khadafy to finance extreme right-wing activities in Spain.

Meer de Rivera served as the military defense attorney for one of the army officers implicated in the Feb. 23, 1981, attempt by rebellious army and civil guard troops to overthrow the centrist government of Adolfo Suarez.

Peres refutes reports Israel harbors plans to attack Syria

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Syria is a suspect in recent terrorism against Americans and Israelis, but "alarming reports" that Israel plans military retaliation are not true, Prime Minister Shimon Peres said Friday.

"I want to say in the name of the government, we have no plans to attack Syria, neither today nor tomorrow," Peres told a luncheon meeting of business leaders.

"There are signs that the Syrians are apparently involved in the attempt to attack the El Al plane in London. There are Syrian fingerprints on the attack on the nightclub in Berlin, and Syria must give answers."

Speculation about an Israeli response arose after reports of Syrian involvement in the April 17 attempt to smuggle explosives onto the airliner and the April 5 bombing of the West Berlin nightclub popular with American soldiers, in which two people were killed and 230 wounded.

CBS television quoted intelligence sources that the Arab League's ambassador to the United Nations, made a similar statement to reporters in Washington.

"All the TV networks in the world and in Israel will not bring us a war we do not want," Peres told the luncheon.

He said earlier on Israel radio: "There have been a great deal of alarming reports. I would like to try to calm things down and have a de-escalation of rhetoric."

Peres attributed some of the tensions to alarmist reports he claimed were sent to Arab states by chairman Yasser Arafat of the Palestine Liberation Organization, an enemy of both Israel and Syria.

Brig. Gen. Ephraim Lapid, the Israeli army's chief spokesman, reported no military movement on either side of the confrontation line in the Golan Heights, which Israel captured from Syria in 1967 and annexed in 1981.

World African death toll climbs

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — A private watchdog group on Friday said the death toll in 20 months of racial violence has climbed to more than 1,500, and that April was the third bloodiest month during the period of unrest.

Meanwhile, the white-led government introduced legislation to carry out its pledge to abolish pass laws that restrict the right of blacks to live and work where they choose. President P.W. Botha suspended enforcement of the laws last month.

The South African Institute of Race Relations said 143 people died last month in violence related to apartheid, South Africa's legal system of segregation under which 5 million whites dominate 24 million voteless blacks.

Everest climber Tenzing dies at 72

DARJEELING, India (AP) — Tenzing Norgay, the Sherpa "tiger of the snows" who stood atop the world with Edmund Hillary in 1953, died Friday of a lung infection. He was 72.

He and Hillary, a New Zealander who was knighted for his feat, became the first conquerors of the world's highest peak when they reached the summit of Mount Everest on May 29, 1953. The Sherpa who began as a climber's porter became an inspiration to a generation of mountaineers.

TENZING NORGAY Conquered peak with Hillary

Tenzing died at dawn Friday at his home at his picturesque Himalayan resort about 310 miles north of Calcutta. He had been ill for two years and served as an adviser to the Himalayan Mountaineering Institute.

Hillary, now New Zealand's ambassador to India, said the death of his partner in the successful climb on the 29,028-foot-high crest was "an unexpected shock."

"I feel Tenzing had a remarkable life. He was very successful in every field — and had a tremendous impact on society," Hillary said.

"A good friend is lost. But when I think of the life he led, about the challenges he overcame, about the kindness he had for other people, I feel he fulfilled his dreams."

Prime Minister Rajiv Gandhi called the famous Sherpa a "sir" because of "indomitable spirit who inspired the Indian youth to take to mountaineering. The entire country will mourn the passing away of the legendary figure."

Tenzing, 10 whose small tribe mountaineering is as natural as life, took part in several attempts on Everest before joining the Hillary expedition, but never tried it again after their success.

"I tried to climb Everest six times before Hillary and I did it," he once told The Associated Press in an interview.

He said he never felt tempted to repeat the ascent because "there's no point. I'm not going to make it."

The mountaineer lived in a three-story villa with his wife, several of their six children and 25 dogs.

He once complained that, even many years after the expedition with Hillary, so many people sought him out that he had to post a masiff on his door to keep them away.

Mall hero will don policeman's badge

MEDIA, Pa. (AP) — Jack Lauffer, isn't haunted by nightmares of the October day he stopped a woman's shooting rampage that left three people dead and seven injured in a suburban shopping mall.

He says he never dreams about the screams and the bullets and the blood.

Maybe, he says, he hasn't had time.

For six months, the 25-year-old construction worker has been bombarded with awards and honors from law-enforcement agencies across the country — sometimes four or five per week.

"I don't think I deserve all this," says the part-time ambulance crew member. "I don't feel like a hero."

Now, Lauffer's days of glory are numbered, and he couldn't be happier. Jack Lauffer, hero is about to become Cadet John Lauffer-III of the Pennsylvania State Police.

"I have a strong sense of right and wrong," said Lauffer. "I'm confident I will carry through as a police officer."

The trial of Sylvia Seegriff, 25, the Crum Lynne woman accused of the shootings, is to begin July 2. She is charged with three counts of murder, seven of aggravated assault and one of recklessly endangering.

Police said the death and injury toll would have been higher had Lauffer not acted. Among the dead was a 2-year-old boy.

It was the day before Halloween when Lauffer and his girlfriend were strolling through Springfield Mall. They heard shots and saw shoppers ducking for cover.

Then Lauffer spotted a woman in combat gear firing a semi-automatic rifle.

Lauffer thought the whole event was a Halloween prank that got a little carried away. He overpowered the woman, who he thought was firing blanks.

"I had realized she was shooting live ammunition, I possibly would have taken her from behind instead of taking her from the front," Lauffer said.

Some of the plaques he has received since are hanging on the walls of his parents' house. Others are piled up with newspaper articles in a big cardboard box.

The honors have slowed somewhat. Still, this week alone Lauffer received four more, including one from the Philadelphia Police Department for bravery.

Last week, Lauffer learned he had been appointed to the Pennsylvania State Police Academy. He reports in Hershey on May 18 for a 20-week course.

Last year he finished 49th out of 2,123 people who took the state-trooper tests, but only the top 32 were chosen for further testing.

State police spokesman Curt Ashenfelter said Lauffer's actions at the mall did not seal his selection to the academy this year.

"It certainly didn't hurt, but it wasn't the major reason why he was selected," said Ashenfelter. "He tested well."

First lady offers jets

BOSTON (AP) — Nancy Reagan told a Massachusetts couple Friday that Air Force jets are available if needed to transport a donor liver for their 9-month-old son, who has been given only days to live without the transplant.

The first lady, who was at Camp David for a three-day weekend, telephoned Paul and Ellen Girard at Children's Hospital where their son, Alex, has been since May 1. The infant, whose liver was destroyed by severe hepatitis, is in critical condition.

"She told us that her prayers and thoughts were with us and she wishes there was more she could do," Mrs. Girard said.

Elaine Crispen, Mrs. Reagan's press secretary, said the first lady added: "Be sure and give Alex a kiss for us."

"She wished them well and hoped there would be good news over the weekend for the baby," Mrs. Crispen said. "Her voice sounded very tearful and emotional."

Irving Berlin turns 98

NEW YORK (AP) — Irving Berlin, the songwriter whose music celebrates America and its symbols, turns 98 Sunday and will mark his birthday in private with his family.

The composer, although in good health, will continue to shun fanfare and the public spotlight, his secretary said when approached Friday about a possible interview.

She said Berlin will not take part in the Statue of Liberty centennial observances in July.

Berlin does not plan to be present when he and 11 other immigrant Americans receive medals from President Reagan for their contributions to national life, said the secretary, who does not give her name.

"He doesn't do that kind of thing anymore," she said.

Berlin is identified with the Statue of Liberty through "Miss Liberty," his 1949 Broadway musical about a search for the woman who posed for the statue.

The score consisted of typically breezy Berlin tunes, but the composer also included an inspirational homage to the immigrant experience, setting to music "The New Colossus," Emma Lazarus' poem of welcome inscribed at Miss Liberty's base.

Berlin wrote, among many other standards, "God Bless America," "White Christmas" and "Easter Parade."

Smith has second cancer operation

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Singer Kate Smith underwent surgery for breast cancer Friday and a hospital spokeswoman said the outlook was satisfactory.

Raleigh Community Hospital spokeswoman Becky Starnard said Dr. William G. Sullivan performed a mastectomy and removed a tumor and that a pathology report was due next week. She said there were no plans for additional therapy.

It was the second time the 79-year-old singer had major surgery this year. Her right leg was amputated above the knee Jan. 12 because of circulatory complications caused by diabetes.

Helena Steene, Miss Smith's sister, said the singer was admitted to the hospital Thursday and was "in good spirits" when family members visited her.

Federal agents, seeking artifacts, conduct 16 raids

Mayor says county may have to secede

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — A raid by federal agents who confiscated about 300 rare Indian artifacts from 16 homes and businesses in three states has touched off a flurry of inter-federal government sentiment in southeastern Utah.

"Those seeking the solitude of our beautiful lands may now need to furnish themselves with armed guards," said Blanding Mayor Jim Shumway. He said Friday that if the judge who authorized 18 search warrants and the "Gestapo" agents who served them are not punished, San Juan County probably will have to secede from the United States.

There was a connection between the places searched, or whether any charges would be filed.

He did say the searches by U.S. Forest Service and Bureau of Land Management agents were intended to recover ancient Anasazi Indian artifacts believed to have been taken from federal land in San Juan County.

The warrants were issued for seven locations in Blanding, two in Salt Lake City, four in Moab, Utah, and at one site each in Page, Ariz., Phoenix, and the Colorado cities of Cortez, Dove Creek and Boulder.

San Juan County Commissioner Calvin Black said agents took 23 pottery bowls from his home.

"I thought I was in Germany and the Gestapo came. The officers were extremely arrogant and threatening. I was shocked. I could not believe this sort of thing," Black said Thursday night.

Shumway, speaking Thursday at a hearing on a BLM proposal to set aside 1.9 million acres of Utah's federal land as wilderness, said agents forced their way into homes "to find a damn . . . bowl or two."

Ward denied the agents used unnecessary force in their raids.

"This was a carefully planned and professionally executed search," he said. "Nobody was knocking down doors in the middle of the night or in the early morning hours."

Ward said at a news conference Friday that while he could understand why the people whose homes had been searched were upset, "nothing could be further from the truth that those warrants were executed in an unreasonable manner. The objects of the warrants were objects, not people."

Black said the agents spent four hours "ransacking my home."

"I was shocked. I could not believe this sort of thing," he said. "I have never dug a bowl in my life. Like a lot of people in Blanding we have some artifacts. We weren't trying to hide anything. If someone had said someone was going to search my house for artifacts, I would have laughed and said, 'Get right at it.'"

"Several statements have been made in the heat of the moment," Ward said. "I'm not going to allow myself to be provoked by them. I think they are statements they will later regret."

Black said children and grandchildren were staying at the home and an agent ordered them to stay in one room.

"Babies have to be fed and changed . . . I told him if he had legal authority to keep us in one room, he'd better pull his gun. He left the room," Black said.

The searches by agents from the three states and Idaho on Thursday were conducted at the homes or businesses of 16 people, including two San Juan County commissioners. Both the home and business of three people were searched.

Ward confirmed that "one or more warrants" detailed in one search warrant had been taken from the home of San Juan County Commissioner Jerry Holladay.

Two warrants still remained to be executed Friday, he said.

Ward would not disclose whether

Lake swells above record as rains pour

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Rain continued to hammer soggy Utah Friday, rewriting the weather record books as it boosted the swollen Great Salt Lake to its highest level in recorded history.

The 89-mile-long, 30-mile-wide lake reached an estimated 4,211.6 feet above sea level, breaking the old mark of 4,211.5 set in 1873, said Bill Alder, chief meteorologist for the National Weather Service in Salt Lake City.

"They're calling me Noah Alder these days," he said, noting that a week of persistent rainfall had also forced weather officials to increase the state's flooding index rating to 9.3, or "extremely high" on a scale of 1 to 10.

In the spring of 1983, when floodwaters poured from mountains laden with record snowpack and turned arterials into sandbagged rivers, the index read 9.4.

Alder also said officials had revised the projected summer peak for the lake upward 6 inches to 4,212.5 feet. The briny inland sea has been on the rise since 1982, causing more than $100 million in damage to shoreline properties.

Major LDS church in Ohio burns; valuable records lost

KIRTLAND, Ohio (AP) — A major meeting place for Mormons in northeast Ohio and western Pennsylvania was destroyed by fire over the weekend, along with valuable historical records of the first Mormon families in the area, a church spokesman said Monday.

The fire broke Sunday at the five-story Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints in the Lake County community destroyed the church and records used by non-church members who want to trace their roots, said Bruce C. Walborn, director of communications. State and federal authorities on Monday were still investigating the blaze.

"It's the (local) genealogical records and the historical records that represent the big loss to us," Walborn said. "Much of that cannot be replaced."

Holy Islamic Ramadan season begins

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — Moslems in most Arab countries began their annual month of dawn-to-dusk fasting at first light Friday as religious leaders proclaimed the beginning of Ramadan, the holiest season of the Islamic year.

Religious leaders in Egypt, Libya, Syria, North Yemen, Saudi Arabia and most Persian Gulf countries announced Thursday night that they had sighted the new lunar crescent, which heralds the start of the Ramadan.

In Iraq and Oman, however, Moslem sheikhs did not sight the crescent and announced instead that Ramadan would begin in those countries on Saturday. Fasting also begins Saturday in Tunisia, Algeria and Morocco. In Asian countries such as Bangladesh, Moslems are expected to start observing the holy month on Sunday.

Oregonians oppose steel

LAKE OSWEGO, Ore. (AP) — Residents opposed to a multi-spired Mormon temple proposed for a site near Interstate 5 have taken to the streets to pressure the city into rejecting the design. Morning commuters heeded to the freeway were greeted Monday by about 20 protesters who distributed about 1,250 leaflets to motorists in slow traffic near the 7.3-acre site. The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints plans to spend $13.5 million to build the temple in this affluent Portland suburb. The protesters object to the design's six 170-foot stainless steel spires and its white marble walls, said Lynn Schram, organizer of the protest. The church plans to illuminate the building and a gold angel atop one of the spires. "The residents argue that the lighting and the height of the spires would ruin the night sky and disrupt the surrounding neighborhoods. "We essentially want to keep Lake Oswego the way it is," Ms. Schram said.

Another 'hopper war looms

Farmers, ranchers brace as a new generation of pests hatches

By BOB FICK
The Associated Press

Vivid memories of grasshoppers advancing in mile-wide herds across the high desert have Idaho farmers and ranchers keeping one eye on the sky and the other on their thermometers these days.

They are hoping a cool, wet May destroys the pests that consumed millions of dollars in cash crops and feed during a ravens rampage last summer.

"It looks pretty bad right now," says Angie Valley farmer and plant pathologist Terry Miller. "There's a lot of grasshoppers out there on the desert, and they're already slowly moving onto cultivated land. I'm sure hoping something happens biologically as far as control because if it doesn't, we could be in for something as bad as last year, if not worse."

The summer of 1985 marked the worst grasshopper infestation Idaho had seen in three decades. Following a 1984 season where grasshoppers were locally heavy but little was done, the hatch a year ago spawned a blanket of hoppers as thick as several thousand in just one square yard.

The most intensive aerial spraying program the state had ever undertaken was finally launched in early June, delayed several critical weeks by money and organizational problems. Fifty-three days later, the squadron of spray planes that at one time included half a dozen military tankers had covered 6.5 million acres at a cost of $12 million.

Agriculture losses from the invasion were never totaled — the calculation complicated by drought that drove already strapped producers closer to the wall. But estimates have placed the grasshopper damage in excess of $11 million, not including spraying costs. The devastation was so bad that some farmers resorted to setting illegal range fires to destroy the pests.

While the kill from last year's spraying was 80 percent, the number surges was still massive and the delays in spraying allowed many females to lay eggs before they were destroyed.

Grasshopper counts by the Bureau of Land Management last fall after the worst was over indicated the possibility of another widespread infestation, and reports of heavy hopper populations already have started coming in since the hatch began in late April during a short hot spell.

"You can reach down with a hand and pick up seven or eight of them already," says Grand View alfalfa grower Roy LaSalle. Miller says the hatch seems earlier than a year ago with the numbers about the same.

U.S. Agriculture Department "hopper spotters" were in the field during the first days of May, making their initial count of the year as grasshopper reports came in from all across the southern part of the state. But in a turnaround from a year ago, recent days have brought a wave of the cool, wet weather hateful to hoppers, and conditions over the next three weeks will determine just what kind of grasshopper war will be waged this year.

"There are enough eggs out there that if the weather conditions are just right we'll have easily as bad a problem this year as we had last, and that's all we know for sure," said Agriculture Director Dick Rush. Rush is planning on another major round of spraying but hoping the dismal weather will hold for a while.

The one thing farmers, ranchers and government officials agree on, however, is that they will be much better prepared to handle whatever comes their way this season. They have learned from the mistakes of 1985.

All the agricultural interests affected by hoppers have been meeting through the winter to iron out problems that arose last year. And the federal government, after going into the summer of 1985 without any money earmarked for pest control and scrambling for weeks to secure enough, has set aside $15 million this year for spraying westwide, mainly due to pressure from Idaho Republican Sen. James McClure.

The state has committed itself to at least $500,000 for control, 10 times more than last year, and more federal money could be secured from the Interior Department, which owns much of the rangeland where the hoppers breed.

USDA, which ran into major problems finding applicators and enough pesticides a year ago, has lined up spray planes and secured needed supplies of chemicals. Officials say that should enable them to attack hoppers before their invasion advances too far as it did last year.

But it still be the whim of Mother Nature over the next few weeks, not the intricacies of bureaucratic planning, that will really tell the tale.

"There's grasshoppers out there but we don't know just how bad it will get," says Linda Black, who farms with her husband near Bureau. "It's cold and rainy now, and we hope they all get pneumonia and die. There's always hope."

Grasshopper birth control eyed as a possible solution

PORT COLLINS, Colo. (AP) — A Colorado State University entomologist is trying to devise a birth-control method that could curb grasshopper reproduction.

With the West braced this year for possibly its worst-ever grasshopper infestation, Dr. Elaine Roberts says it is time to find an alternative to insecticide spraying, the traditional means of checking the spread of grasshoppers.

Probing the molecular structures of the insect's reproductive system, Roberts thinks the key is altering the grasshopper's response to its juvenile hormone. The hormone is the "circulating messenger" that regulates egg maturation.

If the hormone could be altered, the grasshopper would not reproduce, she said.

"The method of changing the insect's ability to respond to the juvenile hormones may be a safe control that won't affect other organisms such as humans," Roberts said, noting that insecticide spraying, on the other hand, can be toxic to humans, livestock and domestic animals.

She is experimenting with hormone receptors. If these receptors could be altered in grasshopper populations through genetically manipulated viruses, the insect's spread finally might be checked, Roberts said.

She said that if the method works, it could be applied to controlling other insect pests, such as the mosquito and the fly.

"In essence, we would be fighting the insects by disrupting the activity of their own hormones," she said.

Attorneys argue over who owns Bunker Hill

BOISE (AP) — Who is the owner of the old Bunker Hill mining-smelting complex in northern Idaho, the subject of a state lawsuit alleging years of environmental damage?

That was among the legal points argued here Friday at a hearing before U.S. District Judge Harold Ryan. Ryan is considering a state lawsuit filed against Gulf Resources Corp., owner of the Bunker Hill complex at Kellogg from 1959 until it was sold in 1982.

The state's seeking damages up to $50 million under the Superfund Act for the cost of cleaning up contaminants deposited by years of lead, zinc and silver smelting at Bunker Hill.

More than 20 attorneys, representing Gulf Resources; Plintar Corp., which purchased the property in 1982; the federal Environmental Protection Agency; the U.S. Justice Department; and the state gathered here Friday for arguments on some of the many motions pending in the case.

Ryan made no immediate decisions. He told the attorneys he has written arguments on some of the issues, and did not feel oral arguments were necessary.

As the hearing started, state attorneys asked Ryan to drop one section of the state lawsuit, seeking "actual response" cleanup costs. Since those efforts haven't started, state attorneys argued it would be premature to include that claim now.

senting Gulf Resources, argued that under the Superfund law, only an "owner or operator" could be found liable for environmental damages.

He argued that Bunker Hill was a wholly owned subsidiary of Gulf Resources, and therefore Gulf Resources did not qualify as the "operator."

But Deputy Attorney General F. Mark Thompson contended Gulf Resources participated directly and vigorously in the management of Bunker Hill.

Thompson said a company official testified earlier that no expenditure over $50 could be made by Bunker Hill without Gulf Resources approval, and Gulf Resources kept full control over spending on environmental matters.

"They actively participated in management, and that makes them an operator and liable," Thompson said. "Gulf Resources had the capacity to, and did control Bunker Hill."

Since Gulf Resources controlled decisions about environmental matters, those decisions could have contributed significantly to environmental degradation, Thompson said.

Leaders see 2-year upswing

Growth, interest rates bode well for future, but all is not rosy

By JANET STAIRHAR The Associated Press

HOT SPRINGS, Va. — Buoyed by signs of new growth and low interest rates, top business experts said Friday the U.S. economy should be on the upswing for the next two years. But while executives of the country's leading corporations predicted a "rosy" time ahead, they also voiced a "sense of uneasiness" on several fronts. The main worry was over the future of the tax overhaul bill in Congress. Most executives favored the Senate-Finance Committee's draft but felt the ultimate outcome in a conference with the House might not be as beneficial to business interests.

Nonetheless, he said a new tax plan should not affect the economy this year. And depending on the final congressional language, he said a tax bill could conceivably stimulate consumer spending in 1987.

The forecast made by business leaders was based on several key assumptions, one of them that Congress would fall to approve a new tax bill this year. James D. Robinson III, council vice chairman, acknowledged that the speed at which the tax bill moved through Congress has surprised business leaders. He said the report on the economy, written in April, should have an asterisk by the tax reform section, with "whoops" in a footnote at the end.

Prices slightly higher

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market edged upward Friday, rallying near the close of a drifting session. Retailing stocks and a smattering of computer issues were among the beneficiaries of the late upswing. The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials rose 3.22 to 1,789.43, finishing the week with a net gain of 14.75 points. Volume on the New York Stock Exchange came to 137.40 million shares, against 126.03 million in the previous session. Early in the session, stock prices fell as rising interest rates in the credit markets pushed prices of long-term government bonds down as much as $10 for every $1,000 in face value. But the bond market steadied at that level, and stocks rebounded in the last hour of trading.

Beryl Sprinkle, chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisors, said he believed the chances were good for further declines in interest rates if efforts to restrain inflation continue to be successful. Analysts said investors were proceeding cautiously. They studied the prospective impact on the economy and the markets of the new tax-revision plan approved this week by the Senate Finance Committee. Consumer finance stocks lost some ground, on the presumed possibility that borrowing by individuals might be cramped by the provision in the bill that would limit tax deductions for interest payments. Beneficial Corp. dropped 1/2 to 47 3/4, and Household International 1/2 to 41 1/2. On the other hand, there was talk that retailers would benefit from lower tax rates both for themselves

Retailers report mixed April

The Associated Press Major retailers reported another mixed performance for April, and financial analysts say the persistently high level of consumer debt still is restraining sales gains. Stores are not benefiting yet from lower mortgage rates and cheaper gasoline prices, but those trends should encourage more spending later in the year, analysts said Thursday. Most retailers reported minute or modest sales gains for the four weeks ended May 3. The big exception was Wal-Mart Stores Inc., the fast-growing discount chain, which said its sales spiked 39 percent.

Mortgage rates decline again

WASHINGTON (AP) — Mortgage rates fell again last month, the seventh consecutive decline, although the drop was not as substantial as in March, the government says. The Federal Home Loan Bank Board said Wednesday that rates fell on both fixed-rate loans and adjustable rate mortgages, hitting their lowest levels since the agency began tracking them separately in the fall of 1983. In March, rates plunged even more rapidly, falling to 10.83 percent, more than one-half percentage point below the 11.36 percent February rate.

Bid speculation boosts stocks

NEW YORK (AP) — Sperry Corp. stock is rising on speculation that Burroughs Corp. will sweeten its $4.06 billion offer for the big computer company or face competition from another suitor. Sperry's stock rose 82.12% to $72.50 Thursday in consolidated New York Stock Exchange trading on heavy volume. That was above the $70 cash per share Burroughs offered on Monday. Burroughs fell 37 1/2 cents to $62.50.

M-K gets big mining contract

BOISE (AP) — Morrison-Knudsen Co. has received a multimillion dollar contract for mining services at a gold mine in central Nevada. D.L. Finger, senior vice president of M-K's Mining Division, said Thursday the contract was awarded by the Austin Gold Venture, a joint project of Inspiration Mines Inc. and FMC Minerals Corp. The pact covers four years. Terms were not disclosed. Inspiration Mines Inc., based at Claypool, Ariz., is a subsidiary of Inspiration Resources Corp., New York. The M-K Mining Division will provide contract mining services including mine development, removal of overburden, ore mining and delivery to processing facilities. The project is scheduled to start in the middle of this month. The open-pit mine is expected to produce 55,000 ounces of gold annually from 350,000 tons of ore.

Firms want electricity pacts

BOISE (AP) — Empire Lumber Co., Spokane, and Potlatch Corp., Lewiston, want the Public Utilities Commission to force Washington Water Power Co. to sign contracts for their cogenerated electricity. Both lumber companies presented separate cases before the PUC here Thursday. Testimony in the Potlatch case was continued until June 10. Although based on different grounds, both cases seek to force WWP, Spokane, to enter into contracts to buy electricity they produce as a byproduct by burning waste from lumber mills. Empire Lumber wants the PUC to force Washington Water Power to sign a contract for power generated at its Kamiah, Idaho, sawmill.

and their customers. J.C. Penney added 1/4 to 45 1/2. Associated Dry Goods 1/4 to 44 1/2. Federated Department Stores 1/4 to 78 3/4, and Sears Roebuck 1/4 to 45 3/4. Among computer issues, International Business Machines added 1/4 to 149 1/2; Digital Equipment 5/8 to 177 1/2; and Data General 1/2 to 40 1/4. Viacom-International was actively traded, up 1/4 to 72. Financier Carl Icahn has been widely rumored to be accumulating shares of the stock. Saga Corp. rose 1/4 to 37 1/2. Marriott offered to acquire the company for $34 a share, but it was believed that Saga was holding out for a higher price. Oak Industries ranked among the volume leaders, rising 1 1/4. Activity in the stock included a block of almost 3.1 million shares that crossed the tape at 1 1/4. In the overall tally on the Big Ten Board, about seven issues rose in price for every six that gave ground. The exchange's composite index advanced 37 to 137.12. Nationwide turnover in NYSE-listed issues, including trades in those stocks on regional exchanges and in the over-the-counter market, totaled 162.15 million shares. Standard & Poor's index of 400 industrials rose 37 to 268.01, and S&P's 500-stock composite index was up 72 at 237.85. The NASDAQ composite index over the over-the-counter market climbed 1.70 to 389.10. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index closed at 272.37, up 44.

USDA will ask for delay

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department agreed Friday to ask dairy farmers to voluntarily delay the slaughter of their herds and to take other steps to minimize the impact of a subsidized herd reduction on the beef industry. The National Cattlemen's Association announced the agreement, declaring victory in a lawsuit it had filed in U.S. District Court in Lubbock, Texas. Judge Halbert O. Woodward had given the two sides until June 1 to solve problems stemming from the so-called "whole herd buyout" being undertaken by the government in an effort to turn down the flow of surplus milk. Under the 18-month, $1.8 billion program, the government is paying farmers to sell 1.5 million cows, heifers and calves for slaughter or export. But about two-thirds of the herd liquidation is taking place during the first of three slaughter periods, creating surplus conditions and depressing beef prices, the cattle industry complained. Don Butler, the association's president, said the agreement essentially satisfies the industry's three concerns: that dairy cows being slaughtered go to market in an orderly fashion; that the department step up its reporting of slaughter data; and that the government purchase enough beef to offset the additional cows being slaughtered.

Another 'hopper war looms

Farmers, ranchers brace as a new generation of pests hatches

By BOB FICK
The Associated Press

Vivid memories of grasshopper advancing in mile-wide hordes across the high desert have Idaho farmers and ranchers keeping one eye on the sky and the other on their calendars these days.

"They are hopy a cool, wet May destroys the pests that consumed millions of dollars in cash crops and feed during a ravenous rampage last summer."

"It looks pretty bad right now," says Mingo Valley farmer and plant pathologist Terry Miller. "There's a lot of grasshoppers out there on the desert, and they're already slowly moving onto cultivated land. I'm sure hoping something happens biologically as far as control because if it doesn't, we could be in for something as bad as last year, if not worse."

The summer of 1985 marked the worst grasshopper infestation Idaho had seen in three decades. Following a 1984 season where grasshoppers were locally heavy but little was done, the hatch a year ago spawned a blanket of hoppers as thick as several thousand in just one square yard.

The most intensive aerial spraying program the state had ever undertaken was finally launched in early June, delayed several critical weeks by money and organizational problems. Fifty-three days later the squadron of spray planes that at one time included half a dozen military tankers had expended 6.5 million acres at a cost of $12 million.

Agriculture losses from the invasion were never totaled — the calculation complicated by drought that drove already strapped producers closer to the wall. But estimates have placed the grasshopper damage in excess of $11 million, not including spraying costs. The devastation was so bad that some farmers resorted to setting illegal range fires to destroy the pests.

While the kill from last year's spraying was 90 percent, the number surviving was still massive and the delays in spraying allowed many females to lay eggs before they were destroyed.

Grasshopper counts by the Bureau of Land Management last fall after the worst was over indicated the possibility of another widespread infestation, and reports of heavy hopper populations already have started coming in since the hatch began in late April during a short hot spell.

"You can reach down with a hand and pick up seven or eight of them already," says Grand View alfalfa grower Roy LaSalle. Miller says the hatch seems earlier than a year ago with the numbers about the same.

U.S. Agriculture Department "hopper spotters" were in the field during the first days of May, making their initial count of the year as grasshopper reports came in from all across the southern part of the state. But in a turnaround from a year ago, recent days have brought a wave of the cool, wet weather hateful to hoppers, and conditions over the next three weeks will determine just what kind of grasshopper war will be waged this year.

"There are enough eggs out there that if the weather conditions are just right we'll have easily as bad a problem this year as we had last, . . . and that's all we know for sure," state Agriculture Director Dick Rush concedes. Rush is planning another major round of spraying but hoping the dismal weather will hold for a while.

The one thing farmers, ranchers and government officials agree on, however, is that they will be much better prepared to handle whatever comes their way this season. They have learned from the mistakes of 1985.

All the agricultural interests affected by hoppers have been meeting through the winter to iron out problems that arose last year. And the federal government, after going into the summer of 1985 without any money earmarked for pest control and scrambling for weeks to secure enough, has set aside $15.5 million this year for spraying westwide, mainly due to pressure from Idaho Republican Sen. James McClure.

The state has committed itself to at least $300,000 for control, 10 times more than last year, and more federal money could be secured from the Interior Department, which owns much of the rangeland where the hoppers breed.

USDA, which ran into major problems finding applicators and enough pesticide a year ago, has lined up spray planes and secured needed supplies of chemicals. Officials say that should enable them to attack hoppers before their invasion advances too far as it did last year.

But it will be the whim of Mother Nature over the next few weeks, not the intricacies of bureaucratic planning, that will really tell the tale.

"There's grasshoppers out there but we don't know just how bad it will get," says Linda Black, who farms with her husband near Burneau. "It's cold and rainy now, and we hope they all get pneumonia and die. There's always hope."

Grasshopper birth control eyed as a possible solution

FORT COLLINS, Colo. (AP) — A Colorado State University entomologist is trying to devise a birth-control method that could curb grasshopper reproduction.

With the West braced this year for possibly its worst-ever grasshopper infestation, Dr. Elaine Roberts says it is time to find an alternative to insecticide spraying, the traditional means of checking the spread of grasshoppers.

Probing the molecular structures of the insect's reproductive system, Roberts thinks the key is altering the grasshopper's response to its juvenile hormone. The hormone is the "circulating messenger" that regulates egg maturation.

If the hormone could be altered, the grasshopper would not reproduce, she said.

"The method of changing the insect's ability to respond to the juvenile hormones may be a safe control that not affect other organisms."

such as humans," Roberts said, noting that insecticide spraying, on the other hand, can be toxic to humans, livestock and domestic animals.

She is experimenting with hormone receptors. If these receptors could be altered, grasshopper populations through genetically manipulated viruses, the insect's spread finally might be checked, Roberts said.

She said that if the method works, it could be applied to controlling other insect pests, such as the mosquito and the fly.

"In essence, we would be fighting the insects by disrupting the activity of their own hormones," she said.

Attorneys argue over who owns Bunker Hill

BOISE (AP) — Who is the owner of the old Bunker Hill mining-smelting complex in northern Idaho, the subject of a state lawsuit alleging years of environmental damage?

That was among legal points argued here Friday at a hearing before U.S. District Judge Harold Ryan. Ryan is considering a state lawsuit filed against Gulf Resources Corp., owner of the Bunker Hill complex at Kellogg from 1968 until it was sold in 1982.

The state's seeking damages up to $50 million under the Superfund Act for the cost of cleaning up contaminants deposited by years of lead, zinc and silver smelting at Bunker Hill.

More than 30 attorneys, representing Gulf Resources, Pinar Corp., which purchased the property in 1982; the federal Environmental Protection Agency; the U.S. Justice Department and the state gathered here Friday for arguments on some of the many motions pending in the case.

Ryan made no immediate decisions. He told the attorneys he has written arguments on some of the issues, and did not feel oral arguments were necessary.

At the hearing started, state attorneys asked Ryan to drop one section of the state lawsuit, seeking "actual response" cleanup costs. Since those efforts haven't started, state attorneys argued it would be premature to include that claim now.

senting Gulf Resources, argued that under the Superfund law, only an "owner or operator" could be found liable for environmental damages.

He argued that Bunker Hill was a wholly owned subsidiary of Gulf Resources, and therefore Gulf Resources did not qualify as the "operator."

But Deputy Attorney General P. Mark Thompson contended Gulf Resources "participated directly and vigorously" in the management of Bunker Hill.

Thompson said a company official testified earlier that no expenditure over $500 could be made by Bunker Hill without Gulf Resources approval, and Gulf Resources kept full control over spending on environmental matters.

"They actively participated in management, and that makes them an operator and liable," Thompson said. "Gulf Resources had the capability to do and did control Bunker Hill."

Since Gulf Resources controlled decisions about environmental matters, those decisions could have contributed significantly to environmental degradation, Thompson said.

The weak spots are capital goods spending and commercial construction," Robinson told reporters.

Prices slightly higher

NEW YORK (AP) - The stock market edged upward Friday, rallying near the close of a drifting session.
Retailing stocks and a smattering of computer issues were among the beneficiaries of the late upswing.

Volume on the New York Stock Exchange came to 137.40 million shares, against 136.03 million in the previous session.
Early in the session, stock prices fell as rising interest rates in the credit markets pushed prices of long-term government bonds down as much as $10 for every $1,000 in face value.

USDA will ask for delay

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Agriculture Department agreed Friday to ask dairymen to voluntarily delay the slaughter of their herds and to take other steps to minimize the impact of a subsidized herd reduction on the beef industry.

The National Cattlemen's Association announced the agreement, declaring victory in a lawsuit it had filed in U.S. District Court in Lubbock, Texas.

and their customers. J.C. Penney fell 1 1/2 to 45 1/2. Associated Dry Goods 1 1/2 to 45 1/2. Federated Department Stores 1 1/2 to 78 1/2, and Sears Roebuck 1 1/2 to 45 1/2.

almost 3 million shares that crossed the tape at 1 1/2.
In the overall tally on the Big Board, about seven issues rose in price for every six that gave ground.

Under the 18-month, $1.8 billion program, the government is paying farmers to sell 1.5 million cows, heifers and calves for slaughter or export. But about two-thirds of the herd liquidation is taking place during the first-of-three slaughter periods, creating surplus conditions and depressing beef prices in the cattle industry complained.

Firm tries to thwart takeovers

BOISE (AP) - The board of directors of Trus Jolt Corp. has enacted a measure to thwart any hostile moves to take over the Boise-based company. At the company's annual meeting of stockholders Thursday, the board declared a distribution of one common share per share...

The distribution of the right was not caused by any takeover attempt, Trus Jolt Chairman Harold Thomas said. Stockholders can exercise the right 10 days after 20 percent or more of the company's stock is acquired by a buyer or offer an offer to purchase 30 percent or more of the stock, Thomas said.

In addition to shareholders having the option to pay $100 for $200 worth of Trus Jolt stock they will be able to pay $200 worth of an acquirer's stock in the event of a merger. The company retains the option to cancel the right at 10 cents a share at any time before the acquisition of 20 percent or more of its stock, Thomas said.

Distribution of the right will be made by check on May 21 to shareholders of record on May 19. It will expire in 1996. At the meeting, Thomas announced that the board had declared a regular dividend of 12 cents a share for the quarter ending June 28. The dividend will be paid July 18 to all shareholders of record on June 20.

Forecast

Continued from Page C1 Robinson remarked that "it looks like that will be the first one to be brought into question." The Business Council said the Gross National Product is projected to rise 2.7 percent this year, a "distinct improvement over the 2.2 percent recorded for 1985." The report said 1987's expansion will be "solid" for the economy, with the GNP up 3.2 percent on an average annual basis.

Little relief from high unemployment is anticipated by the report, with the joblessness rate estimated to average 7 percent this year and a record 8.2 percent next year. Auto sales are expected to drop to 10.6 million vehicles this year and in 1987, down from 11.1 million in 1985, the report said. Housing starts should slow a bit in 1987, to about 1.82 million compared to the projected 1.92 million starts this year. That decrease, however, did not worry the economists, who said they viewed 1987 housing starts as a positive indicator.

Although the pace of consumer spending is expected to slow for awhile, economists said there is no need for a panic just yet. The report said, "A strong increase in real purchasing power fueled by oil and energy price decreases, rising employment, improved confidence, higher wealth from the improved stock market and the windfall gains from real estate are all pointing to support of expansion by the consumer."

Many of the corporate chiefs on the council's executive committee said they were not dismayed over the content of the tax bill approved by the Senate Finance Committee. But they voiced cautiousness, at least until they see what emerges from a conference with the House. The version passed by the House would put added tax burdens on specific industries.

Edmund T. Pratt, chairman of Pfizer Inc., said he thinks the current tax code, along with other factors, has led this nation to be the strongest economically in the world. "I have a little bit of the 'If it ain't broke don't fix it' feeling," he said.

CSI edges Cardinals 3-2 to gain Region 18 baseball finals

By THE TIMES-NEWS — College of Southern Idaho moved to the top of the Region 18 baseball championship...

relieved by Jim Winger. The North Idaho ace held CSI for one hit in the next five innings.

Carstensen was tagged for the loss in the third inning, just when it appeared he was keeping the Eagles easily in check.

Those were the only two hits Carstensen gave up. In fact, after Adelsbach's single, CSI didn't have another base-runner.

and Carter faced the minimum over the final two innings. In the batter's opener, North Idaho's Barry Parisito stopped Utah Tech on three hits while the Cardinals picked up seven safeties off loser Quinn Marsh to win it.

Utah Tech stayed alive in the tournament with an 8-6 victory over Snow College. Should CSI lose today's game, the extra session is slated for 11 a.m. Sunday.

In the afternoon's first game, Utah Tech took a 7-0 lead after three innings and had to hold off a late rally by Snow.

Utah Tech had a big second inning pushing across four runs on four hits. Bill Robertson's double scored two of those runs and Robertson later scored on a run down.

Pat Newbold's single in the third sent Jeff Nielson and Rich Ballard home putting Utah Tech ahead by seven runs.

The Badgers closed the gap to one run in the seventh when Robert Sonju reached on an error and Jeff Jorgenson singled. Jorgenson was followed by Steve Hansen who sent the ball out of the park.

Bruins host regional net tourney today

By STEVE CRUMP Times-News sports editor — Twin Falls' last year's District 4-5 Class-A tennis champion, will finally get a chance today to host a district tennis tournament.

Although only the winners will go to the state regional meet, the Bruins will be on hand to cheer for the way the Bruins won it a year ago.

CHICAGO (AP) — Tony LaRussa was retained Friday as manager of the Chicago White Sox and will have more freedom to call the shots without interference from Ken Hawk, Harrelson, chief of the team's baseball operations.

At a busy-up news conference at O'Hare Airport as the White Sox departed for a weekend series against the Cleveland Indians, Harrelson made the "air-clearing" announcement following a tumultuous week in which LaRussa was close to being fired.

"Tony LaRussa is going to remain the manager of the ball club with a couple of modifications," said Harrelson. "It there has been any mistake made, it's mine. I'm going to get my shot and do the way I do it."

Among Harrelson's changes was to shift last year's starting catcher Carlton Fisk into left field, Fisk, who was a catcher throughout his 15 seasons in the big leagues and whose production has dropped dramatically from last year's pace, was expected back behind the plate sometime during the Cleveland series.

The team is off to a 7-18 start and was on a six-game losing streak, fueling speculation all week that LaRussa would be replaced by either Billy Martin or Jim Fregosi.

"I came in with new ideas," said Harrelson, who replaced Roland Hemond as general manager last October. "They have not worked. The players have not responded and we are making a couple of changes."

Among his other ideas was the hiring of Tom Donohue as coach of the relief pitchers in the bullpen and Willie Horton as an extra batting coach. Harrelson said both men would stay with the organization, probably at the minor league level.

"The man hired won over 500 games. I decided this is the way it should be: Tony should have a clear shot at the job without forcing my will on him," Harrelson said.

"I don't feel like joking too much," said LaRussa, who stood next to Harrelson during the news conference. "This move is going back the way things were done in the past."

"But I also figured that if I could hang on and lose six more games in a row, I might have gotten a year's extension on my contract," he said.

"There's always pressure in losing games," said LaRussa. "You feel pressure when the club is struggling. The atmosphere is better now."

"You have to have a certain toughness to manage in this league. I am tough," he said.

"No, there was not a power struggle," said Harrelson. "I'm not backing off a bit. Two pitching coaches and two hitting coaches are a thing of the future."

"But it was a big adjustment for a man to make when he has gone a certain way."

"I asked myself if I had put too much on this man, and the answer was yes," said Harrelson. "Someone had to back up a step or two and it was me."

"It's not that Tony didn't think my ideas wouldn't work — it was the players who didn't respond."

"I had two options," said Harrelson, "keep him or make a change."

He acknowledged there had been "hurt feelings," saying, "When you are 7-18, there are going to be hurt feelings."

Harrelson had discussed the Sox job with Martin, whose managerial stints included four terms with the New York Yankees, and Fregosi, who formerly managed the California Angels and now is at AAA Louisville.

Harrelson said he had a good meeting Thursday with Martin, who is still under contract to the Yankees and does some pre-game television.

"I talked with Billy and we were going to talk again, but under the current circumstances, I didn't want to make a change," he said.

"In my opinion, Billy's the best manager in baseball, but I've said that before."

Martin, in Texas where the Yankees were playing, said Friday night he thought he would get the White Sox job. And Martin's agent, Eddie Sapir, said Harrelson had handled the situation poorly.

Lakers, Celts vie in NBA draft lottery

NEW YORK (AP) — The National Basketball Association lottery for the first selection in the college draft was devised to help the weak teams. But this year, perennial powerhouses Boston and Philadelphia are invited.

"With Boston and Philadelphia in there, it's like playing poker with the Rockefeller and the Kennedys," said Ray Compton, vice president of operations for the Indiana Pacers.

The lottery, which will be held Sunday and televised by CBS, starting at 1 p.m. EDT, is supposed to determine the order of selection among the clubs with the seven worst records during the past season. That qualifies the New York Knicks, Phoenix Suns, Golden State Warriors and Indiana.

It should also include the Seattle SuperSonics, Los Angeles Clippers and Cleveland Cavaliers.

But the 76ers acquired the Clippers' first pick when it gave up Joe Bryant in 1979. Dallas, another playoff team involved in the lottery, received Cleveland's first-round choice in 1983 and 1986 for giving up Jerome Whitehead and Richard Washington in 1980. And Boston traded Gerald Henderson to Seattle in 1984 for the SuperSonics' first 1986 draft choice.

Another surprise this year is that the lottery will determine the draft order of the first eight teams instead of the first seven. The Cavaliers are not in the lottery, but they could pick as high as third in the June 17 draft because of an NBA agreement with the Gund family, which bought the team from Ted Stepien in 1983.

The Cavaliers will choose immediately after the Mavericks, unless Dallas wins the first pick. In that case, Cleveland will get the No. 3 pick.

Last year it was fairly simple. Whichever team won the lottery was going to take Patrick Ewing, the Knicks won.

This season there are several standouts, but no one of Ewing's stature.

"There are a lot of players we like, but there's no Patrick Ewing out there this year," Golden State assistant general manager Hal Childs said. "If we do get the No. 1 pick, we have lots of time to decide who is the right one."

North Carolina's 7-foot forward-center Brad Daugherty is getting the most rave-reviews, but there are several others who could go No. 1.

Other top seniors include Maryland's Len Bias, Kentucky's Kenny Walker, Auburn's Chuck Person, Johnny Dawkins and Mark Alarie of Duke, and Michigan State's Scott Skiles.

A strong group of underclassmen also has entered the draft, including St. John's Walter Berry, Dwayne Washington of Syracuse and William Bedford of Memphis State.

TCU loses 35 football scholarships

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Texas Christian University lost 35 football scholarships and is to compete for the conference championship this year as part of sanctions imposed by the NCAA Friday because seven players had accepted coach and other improper benefits from boosters.

University officials reacted bitterly, saying the Horned Frogs deserved a bigger break because the school had disclosed the infractions and had dropped the players from the team.

Coach Jim Wacker called the penalties "a setback for self-disclosure."

TCU will lose 20 scholarships in 1987-88 and 15 in 1988-89 and will not be allowed to compete for the 1988 Southwest Conference title or play in a bowl game after the 1988 season ends.

The school will be allowed to play on television because it is surrendering $343,203 in television revenue from the 1983 and 1984 seasons.

The unit conference informed the NCAA in September 1985 that the seven players — including All-American running back Kenneth Davis — had been accepting cash.

The NCAA, calling TCU's self-policing a landmark, cited the Horned Frogs for 68 violations from 1979-1985, including cash payments, the wining and dining of recruits and the use of prostitutes.

However, Wacker's staff was given a clean report except for two minor violations, one involving the loan of a $100 pair of work boots. Wacker replaced F.A. Dry as TCU coach in 1983.

David Berst, director of NCAA enforcement, called the TCU case "unique" and said investigators would have had nothing but rumor to go on if the university had not come forward.

"We had heard rumors of improper benefits but we had no direct investigation and no ability to investigate," Berst said. "The findings are the result of TCU's admission."

The NCAA made a special effort to pat TCU on the back by sending Berst to Fort Worth for Friday's news conferences announcing the penalties and the school's reaction.

"The sanctions imposed were not as severe as they could have been. They were measured and tempered," Berst said. "It would be unreasonable of TCU not to expect to pay a price for the violations."

"I have nothing but the highest regard for how the matter was handled by the institution," he added.

Hadlock ace tops pro-seniors

TWIN FALLS — Elko's Boyd Hadlock provided the highlight with a hole-in-one but Twin Falls golfers sacked up the lion's share of the prizes Friday in the annual Twin Falls Muny pro-seniors golf tournament.

Hadlock used an eight-iron to accomplish his ace on the par three, 150-yard fourth hole.

Ken Sparks of Boise continued to mine the senior pro-sweepstakes division with a two-over par 70 for first place while host pro Don Hamblin and Elko's John Heller tied for second at 71.

The Twin Falls team of Hamblin, Duane Serpa, Dr. Ed Allison, Ralph Conant and Delbert Peterson finished with a 112.

In the 6-12 handicap gross division, Chuck Martin of Boise slipped Dean Oliver of Boise 71-72 for first play with Doyle Dugger, Twin Falls, at 73 and Wayne Berry, Boise, 75. Nel honors went to Dr. Allison at 65, followed by Hadlock at 66, Don Hutchings, Duane Serpa and Jim Duffel, all Twin Falls, at 67.

Big Brake, Elko, led the 13-9 gross division with 75 while Paul Ellefge, Twin Falls, had 78; Harry Kendall, Boise, 81, and Perc Petersen, Twin Falls, 82. Ralph Conant shook off a mid-teasing spell to win the net division at 63. Frank Baldwin had 64 and Jerry Feriante, Buhl, had 66.

Sportsmen to meet Tuesday

TWIN FALLS — The upland game birds and Jerome game bird farm will be the major program features at the Twin Falls Fish and Wildlife Conservation, Inc., meeting at 8 p.m. Tuesday in the Twin Falls judicial building.

CSI signs distance ace

TWIN FALLS — Mike Ranieri, who finished fourth in last fall's state cross country championships, has signed a letter of intent with College of Southern Idaho, announces Coach Rick Neill.

Ranieri, a senior at Bishop Kelly High School in Boise, finished 13th in the Kinney cross country meet in California, Neill said. He noted the youngster had best times of 4:40 in the 1600 meter run; 10:20 in the 3200 meters and 16:10 in the 5,000.

Gooding women set scramble

GOODING — The Gooding Women's Golf Association's team twilight session will begin with a scramble at 3:30 p.m. Monday.

Regular play will start May 19. Members interested in competing in the league should contact Marilyn Flynn at 934-5063.

Despite success, Indians for sale

CLEVELAND (AP) — Emotion of the moment will not influence potential sale of the Cleveland Indians, Patrick O'Neill, Indians chairman of the board, said Friday.

O'Neill, also a trucking business executive in Cleveland, said that even as the Indians are pegged into first place with 10 straight victories in the American League East, he is continuing to "explore talk with people" about the sale of the team.

O'Neill became the chairman of the board August 22, 1985, after his uncle, F.J. "Son" O'Neill died. The O'Neill shares went into a private charitable trust upon his death.

"Our stance is to keep the team until we find a suitable buyer who will keep the Indians in Cleveland and also give us a good price for the charitable trust," O'Neill said. "Nothing has changed since I took over the sale."

O'Neill said he is "thrilled by the team's winning streak and increased fan interest in the club."

"It's good to know that the town will get excited and turn out for a winner," he said. "But that doesn't change our stance on the sale. Emotion, wins and losses and things like that will not cloud our business judgment."

"The fact remains that we eventually have to sell the club. It can't stay in the trust forever."

USFL mulls post-trial fate

NEW YORK (AP) — Commissioner Harry Usher said Friday he would not criticize the USFL owners if they folded the league after the 1986 season should they lose their $1.32 billion antitrust suit against the NFL and fail to win a national network television contract.

The trial in the suit begins Monday in U.S. District Court.

The USFL, whose games were carried by ABC for three years in the spring, was not able to get a contract from a major network for its switch to fall. The suit contends that failure stemmed from pressure by the NFL and one of its principal demands is that at least one of the NFL's contracts with the three major networks be voided.

Usher, speaking by telephone from Los Angeles, reiterated that neither he nor the league's eight owner think the USFL will lose. "The only question is, how big are we going to win?" he said.

He said that in response to questions by the Dallas Morning News, he told the newspaper, "We definitely (are) going to play the 1986 season but beyond that, if we lost the lawsuit and didn't have a network contract, then it would be a decision for the owners to make."

When he was asked what he thought they might decide, Usher said he replied, "I said if we lost the lawsuit and didn't have a network contract, I wouldn't be critical of the owners if they decided to cash it in. But I wasn't saying that was going to happen."

Crist sets record as Jerome sweeps both Cross State titles

JEROME — The Jerome Tigers easily swept the Cross State Conference track and field championships Friday and began pointing toward next week's district competition.

The Tiger boys out-distanced runner-up Caldwell 184-144 while the Tiger girls downed the Cougars 154-99.

The boys' division was remarkably free of double winners, although James Juarez of Caldwell claimed both the short sprints. Jerome's relay strength again shone through with four first places. But the Tigers practice of using specialists in the individual events kept doubling at a minimum.

In the girls division, Buhl's Nancy Stevens was the top point winner, taking the 100 and 200-meter dashes and added a first in the long jump at 17.5.

Jerome's Tiffany Crist set a district record at 121-feet and but for a slight miscalculation would have added about 14 more. Using the quartering wind that Jerome Coach Tim Drune set the blocks ring up to exploit, Crist underkicked a 138-foot effort that strayed about a foot out of bounds.

Laura Jensen of Jerome again doubled up in the two long distances and added a fourth in the 400 to help the Tiger cause.

Mountain Home girls forewent some team points when they held five girls out of this competition to run in the Twin Falls Classic against Friday's schools today at Bruni Stadium.

Richfield and Carey wear Northside league track crowns

BY RON GATES
Times-News writer

CAREY — A heavy downpour near the midway point of Thursday's Northside Conference final track and field meet failed to dampen the spirits of the Richfield and Carey tracksters as those two walked away with the team trophies in the boys and girls divisions, respectively.

laurels from last year's champion Panthers.

None of their conference rivals could keep the Carey girls from duplicating their 1985 finish.

The Panthers girls, finishing with 158 points, were paced by a pair of double-winners. Jessie Taylor captured both hurdles while Becky Rummel romped to easy wins in the distances.

Bliss sophomore, in the girls weights and Dietrich's distance ace Jason Miller in both of his specialties, Gooding State's Roddy Cabbage registered his second triple in as many weeks.

The Reddin senior won both the long and triple jumps then required just one attempt to take the gold in the pole vault.

In a near repeat of last week's tune up, both little-winning squads rounded off the depth to the crown.

Junior speedster Todd Swainston tied for first place in the 100 and the Tigers had two winning relay performances to account for all of their victories. But, as in their last outing, the winners took points from 16 of 18 events — two places in five of those — to pull away from a three team tie at 71 and hold off both Camas County and Carey. This time it was enough to lift the conference

The cold, damp weather may have accounted for sub-par performances in a number of events, but Shea Benscooter stretched the conference standard in the girls long jump for the second time in two weeks. This time the Bliss junior got off a leap of 16 feet, 7 inches, bettering her April 24 record-setting mark by two inches.

Others taking multiple conference crowns were Pauline Sears, a Bliss sophomore, in the girls weights and Dietrich's distance ace Jason Miller in both of his specialties, Gooding State's Roddy Cabbage registered his second triple in as many weeks.

The Reddin senior won both the long and triple jumps then required just one attempt to take the gold in the pole vault.

Fratello asks baseball-type security

ATLANTA (AP) — Mike Fratello, named NBA Coach of the Year for the job he did with Ted Turner's Atlanta Hawks, looks across town and sees the manager of Turner's baseball team with a fat five-year contract.

Fratello wants the same kind of security.

"If I'm going to stay here, I'd like to stay for a long time," Fratello said this week, two days after the Hawks were eliminated by Boston in the National Basketball Association playoffs. Atlanta went 50-32 in the regular season — a sharp improvement over the team's 34-48 mark in 1984-85.

Fratello, 39, has reached the end of his contract, originally for two years plus a one-year extension. He noted that baseball's Atlanta Braves, Turner's other pro team, last winter gave their new manager a five-year deal.

"I would like them (Turner and Hawks management) to tell me how long they want me here. To be their coach," Fratello said. "They made a commitment to Chuck Tanner. They made a commitment to certain players, and I would hope that I would be considered the same way."

"They know whether they like me or not — whether I'm good for the team, by now. I'm not going to change all of a sudden."

Fratello said he hopes his next Hawks contract would be "more than two or three" years.

Fratello reportedly signed a three-year deal in 1983, calling for five annual $100,000 payments. On the other hand, Tanner reportedly got a $300,000 base salary for five years, up to $200,000 a year in attendance bonuses and more than 2,000 shares of Turner Broadcasting System stock as a signing bonus.
