Kremlin says 6 more dead, officials bungled

By ALISON SMALE
The Associated Press

MOSCOW — The Soviet Union announced Monday six deaths from burns and radiation in the Chernobyl nuclear disaster and said 35 people are in serious condition, nearly twice the number acknowledged previously.

The six dead apparently are in addition to the two people previously reported killed in the April 26 explosion and fire at the Ukrainian plant 80 miles north of Kiev.

Plant officials were blamed and punished for the three-day delay in telling the world about the Chernobyl nuclear disaster and a bungled evacuation that did not begin until 36 hours after the accident.

Monday's report on casualties from the Council of Ministers, distributed by the Tass news agency, was the first new official report of deaths in nearly two weeks.

Previous official accounts said one person died of steam burns and the other was killed by falling debris as firefighters battled the blaze in Chernobyl's No. 4 reactor.

"Medical and preventive measures are being taken among the injured," the Council of Ministers statement said. "Thirty-five persons are in grave condition, six who suffered from burns and radiation died." It did not elaborate. According to earlier official statistics, 18 radiation victims were in serious condition. A total of 204 people were reported injured.

The Monday announcement said decontamination work was continuing at the plant, as well as efforts to cool the damaged reactor and build a cement "tomb" around its radioactive core, which many Western scientists believe melted.

"The radiation situation in Byelorussia and the Ukraine, including Kiev, is improving," it said.

PARIS — An embarrassed French government appointed a special Cabinet Committee Monday to reassure the French population in the face of a bitter controversy over the government's failure for more than a week to inform the people about the increased radiation coming from the Soviet nuclear plant disaster in Chernobyl, which will not acknowledge the extent of the increase in radiation. The French government also appointed a special committee to investigate the failure to inform the people about the increased radiation coming from the plant and nearby were being decontaminated with water that was drained away into a special filter system to free it of radioactive material. Topsoil in the "danger zone" was being removed and the area covered with concrete, Izvestia said. It did not give the dimensions of the zone. Pravda, the Communist Party daily, said three local party officials were punished for underestimating the scope of the accident and mishandling the evacuation of 92,000 people from an 18-mile radius.

The reports gave no hint of whether top officials will suffer. Foreign governments have complained about slow and incomplete reporting of the accident and its consequences.

An explosion and fire at the plant early on Saturday, April 26, spewed an invisible cloud of radioactivity over Europe. The Soviet Union did not acknowledge the accident until

Aurora Capital Corp. will move headquarters to Boulder

By BOB FREUND
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Aurora Capital Corp. will move its corporate headquarters to Boulder, Colo., within the next year to take advantage of new business opportunities. President and Chairman Marc Peeperzak says.

"The opportunities for future growth in what we want to do as a company are there and not here," he said Monday.

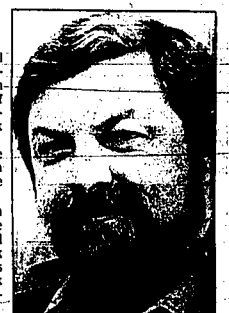

The investments company, which has been based in Twin Falls since 1979, will shift its headquarters and top personnel to Boulder to embark on new ventures. Among them is its fifth Colorado dairy producing milk for the Denver market, said Peeperzak, who is majority stockholder.

"By the middle of next year, 90 percent of Aurora's revenue will be generated in that area," he said. "Already more than 50 percent is there."

Aurora Capital develops and operates projects in agriculture and real estate on behalf of investors. It also owns several developments itself.

A number of the company's 169 Idaho employees, including its headquarters staff, will be offered the chance to move with the company, he said.

Peeperzak, who has been a vocal advocate of economic development, also said he plans to lease his current headquarters but maintain a small branch office in Twin Falls to manage the company's Idaho projects. Aurora operates a wholly owned, 600-cow dairy in Jerome County and real estate developments in Twin Falls, Sun Valley, Burley and Boise.

A key factor in the move is the decision by Magic Valley Dairy Investment Group to leave the dairy-ing business under the federal government's herd buyout program, Peeperzak said.

The group's dairies will dispose of 3,816 cows and cease production by August 1987 in exchange for a payment of about $9.9 million, according to federal figures. Aurora Capital manages the farms for the investors, who generally are West Coast doctors and other professionals.

"I had to find an alternative revenue source for the company," Peeperzak said.

IRS budget cuts hamper collections

By JIM LUTHER
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The amount of uncollected federal taxes soared to $45 billion last year — a 31-percent increase — and the budget proposed for the Internal Revenue Service offers little hope of correcting the problem, government auditors said Monday.

The General Accounting Office cautioned Congress that requiring the IRS to share in mandatory budget cuts with most other government agencies could make matters worse.

"IRS stands virtually alone on the revenue side of the government," GAO Associate Director Johnny C. Finch told the House Ways and Means oversight subcommittee. "Government-wide reductions applied to IRS will likely result in foregone revenues, thus increasing the deficit."

Providing IRS with additional resources will have the opposite effect.

As part of the new Gramm-Rudman balanced-budget law, the IRS was forced to reduce its budget this year by 4.8 percent. GAO, an arm of Congress, and James I. Owens, acting IRS commissioner, went before the subcommittee to urge quick action on a bill granting the IRS an additional $30 million for the current budget year. Unless that money is approved within 10 days, Owens said, 6,000 workers will be laid off and other cuts will start taking effect.

But subcommittee members and some witnesses were more concerned about the agency's long-standing problems, especially the dramatic increase in accounts receivable, or taxes owed but unpaid.

"Although IRS has made significant progress in automating its collection operation, it has not been able to keep up with the over-all collections workload," Finch said. The increase in unpaid taxes, he added, is especially dramatic when compared to the overall growth of the tax system and to the historical growth in accounts receivable.

Unpaid accounts grew almost four times as much as net collections last year, Finch said. In 1984, he said, those accounts grew at a rate much closer to the growth in receipts — 15 percent for overdue accounts and 16 percent for receipts.

The IRS attributes the soaring total of unpaid accounts to a two-year increase of 7 percent in returns filed; a 46-percent one-year increase in the amounts owed on tax returns; and a backlog of several billion dollars worth of unreported payments and account adjustments resulting from the massive multiplier program last year that delayed processing of millions of returns.

'It won't be long before we are flying again' Fletcher again in command of NASA

By HARRY F. ROSENTHAL
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — James C. Fletcher resumed command of NASA Monday in the midst of the space agency's worst crisis and said the shuttle won't fly again "until we can assure ourselves and the nation that future shuttle missions are safe."

After being sworn in at the White House, Fletcher told a news conference that it might be later than July next year before another attempt is made to fly the space shuttle. NASA's new shuttle boss, Adm. Richard Truly, has estimated that it will take 18 months from the Jan. 28 Challenger explosion.

"We think we can fly in 18 months," said Fletcher. "If we don't finish in 18 months, we just won't fly."

"During the down time, Fletcher said, NASA will address two major problems uncovered in the investigations since the Challenger accident — the technical imperfections on the shuttle's booster rockets and "some procedural problems as well."

On the technical side, he said, "We will have the advice of the best people in the country," before a final booster redesign is chosen, but he said it appears risky to him to shift at this time from a segmented to a one-piece booster rocket.

The three-month old presidential commission studying the Challenger accident has determined that a leak in the joint between segments of the shuttle's 150-foot-long right booster rocket probably caused the explosion. A Florida firm proposes to mold the propellant in one long continuous run with Admiral Truly and critics on what measures need to be taken to strengthen the Marshall Jean.

The commission, worried that NASA might be seeking a quick fix when a total redesign may be needed, insisted in a recent private meeting with space agency officials that outside experts review the final solution. It has been learned.

On the procedural side, Fletcher said, NASA would be reviewing all of its decision-making processes and quality control arrangements during the hiatus. The shuttle commission has said the decision-making process was flawed and drove out common sense and good judgment.

Asked about the transfer or retirement of three top NASA officials at the agency's Marshall Space Flight Center where the booster work is supervised, Fletcher replied: "I can't say whether there will be further changes or not. I will mold the propellant in one long continuous run with Admiral Truly and critics on what measures need to be taken to strengthen the Marshall Jean.

Fletcher also sidestepped a question of whether Morton Thiokol Inc., builder of the booster rockets, had acted properly in changing the job responsibilities of two engineers who had objected to the Jan. 28 launch of the Challenger for fear that the booster rockets might fail. William P. Rogers, chairman of the presidential commission, called that move a shocking type of punishment.

And a key member of Congress, Sen. Slane Gorton, R-Wash., said Monday the moves involving Morton Thiokol engineers Allan McDonald and Roger Boisjoly was

Libya expels 36 Western European diplomats

TRIPOLI, Libya (AP) — Moammar Khadafi's government said Monday it is expelling 36 staff members of seven West European embassies in retaliation for diplomatic sanctions imposed on Libya by those governments.

West European nations have ordered dozens of Libyan diplomats expelled since deciding April 21 to take the sanctions. Their decision followed the April 15 U.S. bombing raids on this North African country.

Member governments of the 12-nation European Community agreed to back a U.S. campaign against Khadafi's alleged support of international terrorism by sharply reducing the number of Libyan diplomats allowed in their countries and curtailing the movements of those remaining.

Libya's official JANA news agency said Monday the Foreign Ministry ordered 17 West European diplomats and 19 non-diplomatic Italian staff members to leave Libya, a former Italian colony, in a week to 10 days.

Diplomats and staff members remaining at the seven embassies will not be permitted to travel outside Tripoli without permission, JANA said.

It said those with diplomatic rank were six Italians, four West Germans, two Belgians, two Spaniards, a Frenchman, a Dutchman and a Dane. Their names and positions were not given.

JANA said the expulsions were "in response to the repressive measures taken by these states against some members of our People's Bureaus (embassies) in their countries."

Foreign Minister Hans van den Broek of the Netherlands, which is current chairman of the Common Market, said the members "regret this measure" and it will be "further assessed" later in the week. He spoke with reporters in Brussels, Belgium, where the Common Market foreign ministers had met to discuss the Libyan action.

JANA also said without elaboration that the foreign representatives were being evicted for "activities incompatible to their diplomatic status." The Foreign Ministry reaffirms the existing relations of friendship with the "European nations" in the belief that "the lasting relations are between nations and not governments," the agency said.

China to launch 2 American satellites

PEKING (AP) — China plans to launch two communications satellites for an American company before the end of next year, an official newspaper reported Monday. A Western diplomat said the agreement was not a surprise in light of the space shuttle grounding.

Terest Inc. of Houston and the China Great Wall Industry Corp., a division of the Astronautics Ministry, signed a letter of intent for China to launch the satellites with Long March 3 rockets, the official English-language China Daily reported.

All the American experts are convinced that the Chinese have the capability to integrate our satellites and launch them properly," the newspaper quoted Henry A. Schwartz, president of Terest, as saying. Schwartz said the company would have preferred using an American space shuttle to launch the satellites, but the National Aeronautics Space Administration "can't give us a firm launch date."

Schwartz said that the Chinese were selected because they have launched 18 satellites since 1972 with only one failure.

The U.S. space shuttle program was grounded after the orbiter Challenger blew up soon after takeoff Jan. 28.

France

admitted Saturday that, despite government assurances to the contrary, radiation levels had reached levels in some places at some times of 300 to 400 times higher than normal.

With 44 nuclear plants producing 64.8 percent of its electricity, France is more dependent on nuclear energy than any other country in the world, and critics implied that the government withheld the truth out of fear of jeopardizing the country's nuclear program and of hurting sales of its agricultural products.

In a scathing editorial, Gerard Dupuy of Liberation, an influential Paris newspaper, accused both the right-wing government of Premier Jacques Chirac and the Socialist presidency of Francois Mitterrand of lying to avoid offending French farmers and the French nuclear power lobby. Dupuy said that Minister of Environment Alain Carignon was guilty of "cowardice or incompetence or both." In response to the criticism, Minister of Industry Alain Madelin acknowledged that "the information had been passed on badly" and announced the formation of an inter-ministerial committee to shed all the light possible on the consequences to France of the Soviet accident. He did not announce immediately who would make up the committee or when it would start to issue information.

Meanwhile, Minister of Agriculture Francois Gulloume announced that "all scientific information that we have will allow us to state that agricultural products of our territory do not pose any danger." But Le Matin, a Socialist newspaper, said that, in view of the government's duplicity in the past week, it could not accept the minister's word now. For more than a week, French newspapers had reported that no significant increases in radiation resulted in France from the Chernobyl disaster and therefore the danger posed no danger to health. France, a country where nuclear weapons and nuclear power are a topical issue, seemed a serene exception to the rest of Europe where governments, under the prodding of environmental lobbies, fretted about the danger to people and food from increased radiation.

French newspapers were suspicious. Le Monde published a cartoon late last week showing government officials on the lookout, presumably for radiation. "There's nothing to signal," said one. "There's still not an ecologist on the horizon." But even skeptical newspapers were not prepared for the truth when it came.

On a television news program Saturday, Pellerin, the head of the Service for Radiation Protection, said, "Atmospheric radioactivity in France, after the Chernobyl accident, had been up to 400 times greater than usually observed but remained well below dangerous thresholds."

Asked why that information was not announced earlier, Pellerin replied lamely, "Quite simply because there were two holidays (May Day and V-E Day) in two weeks, and it was very complicated to transmit the data."

Pellerin said that the date of greatest radioactivity in France was May 1, five days after the Soviet accident, and the areas most affected were the Alsace region and southeastern France.

zak said. "We decided on Colorado because the market is there."

Aurora Capital already pumps fluid milk from four large dairies into the densely populated Denver area. The company now is planning to bolster revenue by adding a large, new dairy to its system.

"On the same-size dairy (as in Idaho), we can generate additional revenue in Colorado because the milk price for the same (output of) milk is 10 percent better," said Peperzak. Prices are higher in Colorado because of demand in urban areas for fresh milk. Idaho is a milk surplus state.

Some of the 85 employees working on Magic Valley Dairy Investment Group properties will be offered the chance to move, but how many depends on the size of the new operation, he said.

Locating in Boulder also puts the company closer to its Colorado real estate developments and several major livestock exporting businesses. Peperzak said Aurora Capital, which now is working on a project in Pakistan, is considering future joint ventures with some of the firms.

Peperzak said he expects the move will take place in six to 12 months. The remaining Twin Falls office will employ about five workers to care for Idaho properties. They include: Villa Del Rio, a developed community of 80 homes in Twin Falls; Three Fountains, a 40-unit townhouse also in Twin Falls; a Burley mobile home park; and rental homes and farms in both the Magic Valley area and Boise.

Peperzak is well-known in both local and state business circles. He has pushed openly for economic development at times excoriating the state Legislature for its unwilling-ness to promote funding and provide adequate funding for education. Those views played a minor part in the decision, he said.

Peperzak also is a founder-of-the-Magic Valley Agricultural Institute, the force behind a proposal for an Idaho Agricultural World Trade Center at the College of Southern Idaho. Locally, he is a member of the Magic Valley Regional Medical Center's board of directors.

Peperzak, who also has a home in Sun Valley, said he expects to remain active in those efforts. "I am going to continue to help them."

In the nine days since the decision, Peperzak has lost no time preparing for the move. "We've (this family) been marketing our house, which we've already sold," he said. Aurora Capital already is dealing with firms that may want to rent its office building on Kimberly Road east of Twin Falls, he said.

Fletcher

"diametrically the wrong action," Gordon, chairman of the Senate space subcommittee, said the action "adds the incentive for finding an alternative supplier for the booster rocket."

Fletcher said obtaining money to fix the shuttle and purchase a replacement for Challenger was necessary and "a very important high-priority, urgent problem."

Sources have said top administration officials recently tentatively decided to seek the money through savings throughout the government.

At the swearing in ceremony earlier, Fletcher vowed that "it won't be long before we are flying again."

Chernobyl

Monday night, April 28, after high radiation levels were reported in Scandinavia and Sweden demanded an explanation.

Vladimir B. Lomeiko, the Soviet Foreign Ministry spokesman, told a news conference Monday that local officials were guilty of any mistakes made in reporting and handling the disaster.

"Those people who dealt with the accident initially did not understand what happened, did not assess it correctly," he said. "We did not conceal any information. We tried to make clear what had happened" before telling the world.

Speaking with individual reporters afterward, he said "it is understandable that people were not satisfied with the information that was supplied, but it was not done with ill intent."

"The first people who saw this accident did not think radioactive material would be released into the atmosphere. That is why the evacuation of people from security areas was delayed."

Many of the emergency measures around the Chernobyl plant were taken only after a visit May 2, six days after the accident, by Premier Nikolai I. Ryzhkov and Yegor K. Ligachev, who is considered the No. 2 man to Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev.

This may suggest that, in the hierarchical Soviet system, only top Kremlin officials could cut through the excessive bureaucracy and spur local authorities to coordinated action.

Monday's reports may represent an effort by the top leadership to take credit for sorting out the situation and thus limit damage to the image of Gorbachev, who has yet to speak publicly about the accident.

Official reports now say 92,000 people were evacuated, compared with 84,000 reported earlier. There has been no explanation for the change in numbers.

Correction

TWIN FALLS — Due to a reporter's error, The Times-News incorrectly reported May 7 that Betty James of Gooding filed a $20,000 lawsuit against a group of Twin Falls doctors and Magic Valley Regional Medical Center. The correct amount of the lawsuit, which alleged medical malpractice, was $2.5 million. The Times-News regrets the error.

Firefighters close in on blaze

HAMPSTEAD, N.C. (AP) — Firefighters using aircraft, tractors and shovels inland since Monday toward containing a 14-mile-long blaze that has consumed 75,000 acres in its weeklong, erratic path through swampy southeastern North Carolina.

As 75 fresh firefighters were rotated in, officials hoped steady winds would keep the flames away from populated areas to the north.

The fire didn't spread today, said Bob Grady of the state Forest Service. "There is not total containment on the perimeter, but we did hold the existing perimeter, which we feel is very much in our favor. It's the first day that we've been able to do that."

MOVE supporters hold vigil

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — About 200 residents gathered in a park Monday night for a curtailed vigil marking the anniversary of the MOVE siege and fire that left 11 dead, as lawyers sought an injunction to stop the mayor from limiting the demonstration.

Stefan Presser, legal director of the American Civil Liberties Union of Pennsylvania, said the ACLU asked for an emergency hearing in U.S. District Court to seek an injunction allowing the vigil at Clark Park in west Philadelphia to last for 24 hours instead of two hours.

"They don't want this particular message to be heard," Presser said of the city administration. "They're using it as an excuse to say they want to protect the quietude of the area. But really, they want to silence a political opponent. That's really what's going on here."

The city had initially agreed to a 24-hour vigil, but Mayor W. Wilson Goode later limited the event to just two hours Monday, and denied the group a stage and audio system.

Buyout to create giant ad firm

NEW YORK (AP) — Saatchi & Saatchi Co. PLC expects to vault into the top spot among the world's advertising concerns in July when it concludes its $450 million acquisition of Ted Bates Worldwide Inc., the nation's third largest.

The deal, which was announced Monday, may be the largest agency acquisition ever but will not likely be the last as agencies scramble to develop or expand their multinational capabilities to survive in a global market.

The Bates acquisition, which had been rumored for weeks, would leave the London-based Saatchi with about $7.6 billion in billings, according to the trade journal Advertising Age.

Reagan dedicates '86 to flag

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan has signed proclamations declaring 1986 "The Year of the Flag," and June 14 Flag Day, the White House announced Monday.

"There is no greater, more beautiful, and instantly recognizable symbol of our nation and its ideals, traditions and values than the flag of the United States," Reagan said in the Year of the Flag declaration.

David Hearst dies of cancer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — David Whitmire Hearst, son of publishing magnate William Randolph Hearst and vice president of the Hearst Corp., died Monday at age 70.

Hearst, who died of cancer at Cedars-Sinai Medical Center, joined Hearst Newspapers in 1936 as a police and city hall reporter for the New York Herald Tribune.

He soon moved to the Baltimore News-Post where he served as assistant advertising director before returning to the editorial desk as the paper's city editor.

In 1938 he went to the Los Angeles Evening Herald-Express. He was the paper's executive publisher from 1947 to 1950 and its publisher from 1950 to 1962.

In 1963, the Evening Herald-Express took over Hearst's morning paper, the Los Angeles Examiner, and the resulting newspaper became the Herald-Examiner.

Summit likely after elections

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration said Monday it's unlikely that President Reagan and Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev will hold their next summit until after the November elections in the United States.

The administration had hoped to have the meeting during June or July, but the meeting has been stalled by a lack of agreement on timing.

Presidential spokesman Larry Speakes, asked about prospects for a July summit, said, "It's possible but I would say unless we get the ball rolling it's unlikely that we can do anything until after the election."

Goldwater, Hayes, others given medals

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, presenting the nation's highest civilian award to medical pioneer Albert Sabin and six other Americans, hailed them Monday as rebels who defied conventional wisdom and won greatness.

Following an East Room luncheon, Reagan and his wife Nancy presented the Presidential Medal of Freedom to Sabin, developer of the oral polio vaccine, actress Helen Hayes, Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., Gen. Matthew Ridgway, former West Point football coach Earl "Red" Blaik, journalist Vermont Royster, and former ambassador and publisher Walter H. Annenberg.

"You're a group of happy rebels," Reagan said, reminding the group that author George Orwell had once said, "Freedom is the right to say no."

Reagan said the honorees had chosen to say "no" to the conventional wisdom — to limitations on spouses and others. "Instead he continued, they said 'a big yes' ... to courage, the untried, the supposedly impossible."

"You're all originals. ... You all made America better," Reagan declared.

Four of the honorees — Sabin, Goldwater, Royster and Blaik — used canes to help them walk to the podium where they received their framed plaques and a handshake from the president.

Annenberg, a close friend of the Reagans, got a big kiss on the cheek from the first lady. The Reagans vacation at the Annenberg estate in Palm Springs each New Year's.

Bhopal: U.S. judge passes case to India

NEW YORK (AP) — Billions of dollars in damage claims arising from the 1984 Bhopal chemical disaster that killed an estimated 2,000 people should be decided by courts in India, not in the United States, a federal judge ruled Monday.

The decision by U.S. District Judge John F. Keenan was a victory for Union Carbide Corp., which fought for a year to send the case to India. U.S. courts, which traditionally deliver more money to accident victims and deliver it faster than their Indian counterparts, were favored by lawyers for the victims and by the Indian government.

"In the court's view, to retain the litigation in this forum, as plaintiffs request, would be yet another example of imperialism, another situation in which an established sovereign inflicted its rules, its standards and values on a developing nation," Keenan wrote in a 63-page decision.

"This court declines to play such a role," he said. "The Union of India is a world power in 1986, and its courts have the proven capacity to mete out fair and equal justice. To deprive the Indian judiciary of this opportunity to stand tall before the world and to pass judgment on behalf of its own people would be to revive a history of subservience and subjugation from which India has emerged."

Keenan also wrote he was "firmly convinced that the Indian legal system is in a far better position than the American courts to determine the cause of the tragic event and thereby fix liability."

Carbide lawyer William Krohly said the company had expected to win on the jurisdictional issue because India is "the only proper place" for the litigation. He said company officials were pleased.

Attorney Aaron Broder, whose partner Lee Batley was part of the three-man executive committee appointed by Keenan to determine the victims, said the ruling would be appealed.

Jack S. Hoffinger, a New York lawyer who coordinated the efforts of plaintiffs' attorneys, said the ruling was not "cause for elation by Union Carbide."

Quiet diplomacy not a help to Jews, Shcharansky says

NEW YORK (AP) — It would be a terrible error for Jews to rely on quiet diplomacy instead of public pressure to free their Soviet brethren, former dissident Anatoly Shcharansky said Monday.

"The moment we stop speaking the harm will be much bigger," the 38-year-old mathematician said in an appearance before the Conference of Presidents of Major American Jewish Organizations.

He said the Soviets interpret silence as weakness. Any softening of Jewish efforts to secure the release of Soviet Jews would be read as an indication that the Soviets need not fear the consequences of standing pat, he said.

When Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev comes to the United States to meet with President Reagan, Shcharansky said he should be greeted by 400,000 Jewish demonstrators, one for each Jew who has been unable to leave the Soviet Union.

"Quiet diplomacy is absolutely fruitless with the Soviet Union," he said.

Shcharansky was released as part of a prisoner exchange in February after nearly nine years in Soviet prisons and labor camps. His brother and mother remain in the Soviet Union, and Shcharansky said he was faced with the question of whether to refrain from actively criticizing that country so as not to imperil their opportunities to leave.

Deaver allegations intensify

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former As President Reagan's deputy White House aide Michael K. Deaver chief of staff, Deaver held at least 15 may have violated conflict of interest discussions on acid rain in the most laws by lobbying for Canada on the preceding a U.S.-Canadian summit acid rain, the General Accounting Office said Monday.

Moreover, a Democrat on the House subcommittee that accepted the GAO report questioned whether White House counsel Fred Fielding also may have had a conflict of interest because of the role he played in the Deaver inquiry before leaving himself.

Rep. Gerry Sikorski, D-Minn., said Fielding has told the subcommittee staff that he and Deaver discussed possible employment for Fielding with Deaver while "both of them were still at the White House" but after Deaver had announced he was leaving.

Fielding left his White House job more recently to go to a private law firm.

The GAO said Deaver "may have violated" four different, but somewhat overlapping, provisions of the laws as a result of his involvement in the Canada-acid rain issue.

School vote today will affect us all

Today in Twin Falls is one of the most important elections held in this community in years.

If the community turns down the Twin Falls Schools proposed override levy, the message will be a clear one that education is not a high community goal. Teaching positions will have to be eliminated and severe cuts will have to be made in virtually every area of the school budget.

What's worse, in our view, will be the message a "no" vote will send to many people.

On the other hand, if the proposed levy — for less than the current one — passes, the message will be a direct one to our legislators that people in Twin Falls care about holding onto good teachers and are willing to pay to keep them — even if the funding source is the local property tax.

The Bruin News, the Twin Falls High School student newspaper, puts the issue well: the message by a "yes" vote would be "that the people of Idaho want, and deserve a top-notch educational system for their children."

Many people agree that property tax increases are not the best way to fund education. But those are all this Legislature has given us.

We have previously stated our support for this override levy. Today, our main point is that people vote, regardless of their positions on the override issue.

The discussion of public affairs in Idaho is one thing; acting on those discussions is another.

Involvement in the election process is an important "first phase" of bringing about change; if we want changes in education, in economic development, there are few better places to start than funding for public schools.

Today is one of those starting points. Regardless of how you feel about the issue of educational funding, today is the day in Twin Falls to go to the polls to have an effect on the outcome.

Reagan did what he had to do

"I don't believe for one minute, A. Perry, that you could understand losing three loved ones in an accident due to a terrorist bomb."

What would you be thinking about as you were falling from a hole in a plane to the ground from a terrorist bomb? It certainly wouldn't be what you said in the letter.

What would you do if you were Mr. Reagan? Talk to Mr. Khadady about stopping the killings while Americans and Europeans are being murdered.

The U.S. has done this for years and it has not worked. Mr. Reagan only did what had to be done. Justice, Mr. Reagan went out of his way to hit military targets in Libya. Mr. Khadady went out of his way to kill innocent people.

Why jobs can become scarce

We, residents of Twin Falls, would like to submit the following so all may enjoy.

This weekend starts out his day early, having set his alarm clock (made in Japan) for 6 a.m.

While his coffee pot (made in Japan) is perking, he puts his hair dryer (made in Taiwan) to work and shaves his face with his electric razor (made in Taiwan).

He puts on a dress shirt (made in Taiwan) and designer jeans (made in Hong Kong) with a neat pair of tennis shoes (made in Korea).

After cooking up some breakfast in his new electric skillet (made in Japan), he sits down to figure out how much he can spend this day on his calculator (made in Mexico).

After setting his watch (made in Hong Kong) to the radio (made in Japan), he goes out, gets in his car (made in Japan) and goes looking for a good-paying American job.

At the end of a disgusting day, this man decides to relax for awhile. He puts on a pair of sandals (made in Hong Kong), pours himself a glass of wine (made in France) and turns on his TV (made in Japan), all this time trying to figure out why he can't find a good-paying American job!

Taking action against changes

When a company such as King Videocable Company thinks it can push a service upon customers that they do not want or cannot afford and then add a price increase, I think something should be done. I am doing it! I am canceling my subscription. If more and more people would do the same thing, I am sure there would be some changes.

I can get KMTV without a cable. With it and the newspaper, I can keep up with the news. The quality of the programs we are offered being so poor, I don't think I will be missing very much.

When teachers and others are being cut in wages and farmers and others are losing their property — why can King Videocable keep increasing their rates?

I am also writing to the FCC in Washington D.C. to see if there is any other action to be taken. Mr. Talkington said we could expect another rate increase next year. Where will it end?

Divine intervention ludicrous

The recent Day of Fasting and Prayer for Divine Intervention to Alleviate the Flooding of "Salt Lake" is ludicrous.

If their "God" wouldn't intervene to save some six million victims of the "holocaust" why should he worry about a "Piddling" lake.

King Canute had a simpler approach — he forbade the tide to come any higher. Of course the Future depends on work of individuals

I am writing this letter in defense of an organization to which I belong:

ALEC
The American Legislative Exchange Council is funded entirely by American business and industry: Adolph Coors Co.; Sears & Roebuck; the American Medical Association; Goodyear Tire & Rubber; W.R. Grace & Company; Unified Parcel Service; just to name a few.

The staff of ALEC works closely with President Reagan's cabinet to provide valuable services to our nation's lawmakers in research, political analysis and model legislation resulting in a network of exchange with all 50 states.

The members of Idaho's state Legislature may belong by paying annual dues of $25. ALEC members receive researched information at least twice a week covering the pros and cons of such issues as tort reform, comparable worth, privatization, health care cost containment, hazardous waste, regulation of public utilities and much more. Annual conferences are held with workshops and speakers available. Last year, over 200 legislators met from all 50 states with 17 attending from Idaho.

The Legislature also belongs to two other similar organizations: the NCSL, National Conference of State Legislators, and CSG, the Council of State Government. Our dues are paid by you, the taxpayers of Idaho to the tune of $24,000 a year for each organization. We receive one magazine monthly and are invited to their annual meetings as well.

I recently attended a CSG meeting in Atlanta on the privatization issue. With 168 persons registered, only eight were state legislators, the rest were state employees. The guest speaker at lunch was a liberal university professor and member of the AFL-CIO. You can believe he was not at all concerned with the move to efficiency through contracting out government services to the private sector. Nevertheless, the one of the meeting assured me that one of the major trends reshaping public works in the next 10 years will be that of privatization. It will require foresight, vision, imagination, intelligence and courage.

If we as a country, as a state, as a community are going to move forward, we're going to have to work smarter, with greater efficiency, addressing priorities as we see them. That includes public agencies, departments, and yes, even education. As well as private business — or we simply will not survive.

I am willing, as a legislator, to work year-round, attending meetings, studying the issues, responding to constituents, spending three extremely frustrating months a year in Boise, digging deep into the budgets, taking the heat of the press, because I sincerely believe the future of our country depends on individual responsibility.

We have elected a very popular president of this country because we support his promise to control the runaway growth of government spending. Then we set about, each one in our own selfish way, as special interest guarding our own sandbox, as bureaucrats protecting our positions, as politicians wanting to be re-elected, to preclude the enactment of any of the goals offered by this administration. Where do you fit in? It's your future.

Rep. Donna Scott, Twin Falls, is a state representative for District 23.

Letters/ School override levies, political races draw reader comment

Levy won't raise your taxes

I would like to remind the patrons of School District No. 411 to be sure and vote today for the levy override.

If we want to maintain the excellent quality of our schools, it is essential that this override levy passes. Voting in favor of the override will not increase your property taxes. In fact they will be a little less than last year.

The monies will be used only for high-priority repairs and maintenance. The amount designated for employees will cover increments and fringe benefits only and will provide the salary for an additional teacher.

I have served on the Twin Falls School Board for the past eight years and have been overwhelmed and very proud of the constant concern, caring and support from the students, parents, teachers and patrons of our district.

I hope you will consider the levy override very carefully and continue to support our children and our schools.

Quote taken out of context

In reference to the letter by Sally Beitta, Albion, May 9: "Pass on Legacy of Beauty." The referenced letter uses a quote out of context to attack Chuck Lempesis, Republican candidate for lieutenant governor, on his stand against more wilderness set-aside in Idaho.

Specifically, the author finds offense in the candidate stating that he would like to see the Sierra Club, Wilderness Society, and Children of the Earth put on their backpacks and hike out of Idaho.

Characterizing him as a political candidate who is not concerned with the best interests of Idaho people and our lands, she exploits the naive beauty of Idaho (who could disagree) and the virtues of Democratic candidates Evans and Andrus.

What is omitted is that Chuck Lempesis always prefaces the statement above by noting that he is addressing the Idaho Wilderness issue; that there are unemployed lumbermen and miners on his street in Post Falls; and that there are already four acres of wilderness for every man, woman, and child in Idaho.

A reasonable balance between wilderness and offsetting economic factors is not of particular concern to the special interest groups singled out, and their continued pressure for more wilderness in Idaho complicates the ability of Idaho government to be about the business of Idaho.

On a national scale, we are all sensitive to the pressures that organized special interest groups can generate through Congress. The "out-of-state" influence can tend to dominate local government. Close inspection will show that the Idaho Wilderness issue falls in this category.

A candidate such as Chuck Lempesis, who is willing to take a clear stand on a controversial issue is a candidate who can get something done in office. And you, the voter, can see that he has the opportunity to do it.

Montgomery deserves votes

In the race for Republican Jerome County Commission candidate, District 3, Carl Montgomery gets my vote, and he deserves to get yours.

Over the last three and a half years I have worked with Carl on more than a weekly basis as we faced numerous challenges. He has been consistently in tune, intellectually informed, and actively concerned about the welfare of all of Jerome County.

His common sense and low key, inoffensive approach are outstanding qualities in his role as county commission chairman.

The list of positive steps taken by Jerome County since January 1983, is notable, but most significant are the facts that: 1) the county is far more financially stable now than it was then, and 2) all elected officials and department heads, with Carl in a key leadership position, have worked diligently together to achieve common goals.

Carl Montgomery has competition in the May 27 primary in the form of an ex-commissioner. The challenger has been somewhat offensive in his criticism of the current commission. It is unfortunate for him that he cannot point back to a favorable record during his years as a commissioner. Something as basic as a check of attendance records and hours spent in Monday meetings clearly shows Mr. Montgomery's comparative strength.

I can only think that perhaps, if the challenger had taken a more active interest in the workings of Jerome County when he was a commissioner, Carl Montgomery would not have defeated him twice in 1982.

The best interests of Jerome County will be better served when Carl Montgomery is reelected to the Jerome County Commission.

Vote to eliminate delays

For at least 400 years, and likely much longer, writers have listed among those intolerable things which can make life miserable, the "Law of delays." The writers have correctly reflected the public attitude. At best, the resolving of legal disputes takes more time than any of us expect. Some of the delay cannot be easily overcome; some of it can and ought to be eliminated. Twenty-four years ago I successfully waged a judicial contest to remove a judge who simply was not making decisions in any kind of a timely fashion. Once again, that job needs to be done.

In the district court in Minidoka County (and in the counties of the district where the Minidoka County District Judge is assigned from time to time), unnecessary and inexcusable delays are happening. The present judge doesn't seem to be able to overcome the problem.

That being the case, there is really only one solution, to elect someone who will eliminate the delay and who will move the cases assigned to him with as much speed as is reasonably possible.

I believe that J. William "Bill" Hart, if he is elected, will move the judicial work along, and while treating that work with the care that it deserves, will help eliminate a significant part of the intolerable "Law's delays."

Issue is under-education

Whether or not we favor funding education in an override is not the issue. The issue is that the under-educated child of the '80s are going to be on welfare in Idaho's penal institutions in the '90s.

Packwood leads pack in money raised, spent

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Bob Packwood, R-Ore., whose championing of tax overhaul thrust him into national spotlight, has raised more money and spent more than any other congressional candidate, the Federal Election Commission reported Monday.

Packwood, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, has raised nearly $8 million and spent nearly $3 million, according to figures compiled by the FEC.

Tagged "Senator Death" by anti-abortion activists, Packwood is being challenged in the May 20 Republican primary by the Rev. Joe Lutz, a Baptist minister. However, he is heavily favored to leap that hurdle on route to a fourth term.

While Packwood is looking forward to the general election with a campaign bankroll of about $3 million, his likeliest Democratic opponent, Rep. Jim Weaver, has $1,350 in his treasury.

The FEC figures are based on reports filed with the commission for the 15 months from Jan. 1, 1985 through March 31, 1986.

Ranking second and third among fund-raisers were Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., with $4.7 million; and Sen. Alfonse D'Amato, R-N.Y., with $4.6 million.

Among the spenders, D'Amato ranked second at $2.6 million, and Cranston third about $5,000 behind the New Yorker.

In what is shaping up as one of the big money races of 1986, Sen. Paulo Hawkins, R-Fla., has raised $3 million, while her Democratic challenger, Gov. Robert Graham, has received $2.3 million in contributions. Mrs. Hawkins has spent $2.3 million and Graham $1 million.

The top five Senate fund-raisers were incumbents Packwood, Cranston, D'Amato, Mrs. Hawkins and Sen. Arlen Specter, R-Pa., who has raised nearly $3 million. Rep. Jack Kemp, R-N.Y., was the top fund-raiser in the House with $1.4 million.

Q. At a bullfight where the bulls are really killed, how many bulls die during one afternoon performance?
A. Six. Three matadors work. Each kills two. Takes about 20 minutes to finish off each bull.

A. Those who calculate rules of thumb say three weeks' salary or 6 percent of the annual income.

A nun at St. Stephen's Church in Warsaw distributes bags of powdered milk on Monday. The first U.S. shipment of aid to Poles was sent by a private agency.

Common Market will bar fresh food from Soviet bloc

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — The European Common Market decided Monday to bar imports of fresh food from the Soviet Union and six East European nations affected by radiation from the Chernobyl nuclear disaster, officials said.

"We do have a decision now on an import ban," said Hans van den Broek, the Dutch foreign minister who led the final deliberations in the 12-nation Common Market, known formally as the European Economic Community — EEC.

Van den Broek told a news conference after nine hours of discussions with his fellow foreign ministers that the ban would take effect as soon as its details were published in official EEC registers, which he said would occur "very soon."

Poland said the action would cost it hundreds of millions of dollars in lost exports and invited Western experts to inspect its anti-radiation controls. An official in Warsaw said the communist government would protest to the EEC.

Hungary also criticized the action.

The Roman Catholic Church in Poland began distributing powdered milk and other supplies flown to Warsaw in the first shipment of U.S. aid to Poles affected by the Soviet nuclear power plant accident April 26 in the Ukraine.

Conservative members of the European Parli-ment in Strasbourg, France, submitted a resolution suggesting that the Common Market send food to the Soviet Union and other countries in Eastern Europe, but only in exchange for Soviet concessions on human rights.

The parliament is to debate EEC reaction to the Chernobyl accident Thursday.

All Common Market nations had supported the import ban since the EEC executive commission proposed it last Tuesday, but formal approval was held up by internal disputes.

It applies to a specific list of products. Van den Broek said it would be reviewed May 31 and eased if warranted by scientific assessments of radioactivity in Eastern Europe.

Although details have not been published, the ban as proposed by the executive commission would affect the Soviet Union, Bulgaria, Czechoslovakia, Hungary, Poland, Romania and Yugoslavia.

The foreign ministers failed to reach final agreement on setting new standards on radioactivity tolerance levels for fresh food products traded within the Common Market, van den Broek said, and it emerged very clearly that we needed a more scientific definition of tolerance levels.

The U.S. aid shipment to Poland was sent by Americares, a private relief agency.

Syria's digging new positions, but attack not indicated, says Israel

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Syria's repeatedly said Israeli wants to avoid war with Syria.

There were no signs that the Israeli military sources reported on Monday. The sources said there was no indication Syrian forces were planning an attack.

Foreign diplomats confirmed the Israeli report about new tank emplacements and said they were located in the Bekaa Valley north of Lake Qaraoun, the southern tip of which is 18 miles from the Israeli border.

The diplomats, who spoke on condition they not be named, said there had been "no substantial movement of forces" in Lebanon that would signal a clash soon. But they said Israel viewed the changes in Lebanon more seriously than U.S. and other Western analysts.

Relations between Israel and Syria have been uneasy since Nov. 19 when Israeli jets shot down two Soviet-made Syrian fighters. Syria responded by deploying anti-aircraft missiles in Lebanon and along its border.

West Germany honors Horowitz

HAMBURG, West Germany (AP) — West Germany gave Vladimir Horowitz the country's highest public service award Monday, a day after the 81-year-old pianist gave his first concert on German soil in 54 years.

Horowitz received the German Order of Merit in a ceremony at City Hall. On Sunday night, he stirred 1,800 spectators in the city's concert hall with a 2½-hour performance — receiving standing ovations before and after the performance.

The pianist attended the ceremony with his wife, Wanda, daughter of the late conductor Arturo Toscanini.

Horowitz listened to Mayor Klaus Dohnanyi's praise with a mixture of seriousness and amusement.

When Dohnanyi called him "the greatest (musical) interpreter of our century" and praised his concert as "unbelievably beautiful," Horowitz beamed and said, "Oooh!"

When a television reporter asked him what the medal felt like hanging from his neck, Horowitz quipped "Heavy."

Horowitz last month returned to the Soviet Union, his birthplace, for the first time since leaving 42 years ago.

Horowitz, now a U.S. citizen, last performed in Germany in 1932 in a six-concert series in Hamburg. His concert Sunday included works of Liszt, Schumann and Chopin.

His next concert is scheduled Sunday in West Berlin.

British unveil memorial to U.S. pilots

LONDON (AP) — Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher and U.S. Ambassador Charles H. Price II unveiled a memorial Monday to the 244 American pilots who flew in the Royal Air Force before the United States entered World War II.

Braving a spring rain to see the 16-foot bronze sculpture of an eagle at Grosvenor Square were 38 of the Americans who belonged to the RAF Eagle Squadrons.

Mrs. Thatcher praised the Americans fliers for strengthening the bond between Britain and the United States.

"Today we remember them all and are grateful to them as the vanguard of the many Americans who came to our shores in defense of freedom," the prime minister said.

Ambassador Price said, "The pilots of the Eagle Squadron came to Britain to fight Hitler."

Kirov ballet to tour U.S.

LENINGRAD, U.S.S.R. (AP) — The Kirov ballet will open a North American tour in Vancouver, British Columbia, on Wednesday and then give its first performances in the United States in 22 years.

The 203-year-old Kirov will take its signature ballet, "Swan Lake," and a concert program to the Shrine Auditorium in Los Angeles on May 21.

On May 27, the show moves to Philadelphia's Mann Auditorium, and then to Washington's Wolftrap Theater on June 1. The last U.S. performance will be June 5, and the Kirov will then perform in Montreal and Ottawa.

The Kirov has produced some of the greatest dancers to perform on the Soviet and world stages, including three who were among the first celebrated artists to flee their homeland — Natalia Makarova, Rudolph Nureyev, and Mikhail Baryshnikov.

The tour of the United States was arranged after a U.S.-Soviet cultural exchange was signed at the Geneva superpower summit in November and it will be the first American visit by any Soviet theater group in seven years.

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — Bishop Desmond Tutu said Monday most white-owned South African newspapers, seeking to preserve advertising and white readership, soft-pedal news of the anti-apartheid struggle and do a "catastrophic disservice" to the country.

"Our white newspapers have by and large fallen down very badly" in reporting the conflict and in providing a means of communication between deeply divided racial groups, Tutu told the opening session of a three-day International Press Institute meeting on problems of news coverage around the world.

In Johannesburg, South Africa, however, newspaper editors said they tried to convey black concerns to white readers.

More than 300 delegates from about 40 Western and Third World countries are attending the meeting at the Holberg, Austria's former imperial palace. The press institute is a London-based group advocating freedom of the press.

The group's director, Pefar Gallinar, said foreign correspondents are in greater danger than ever before because they are the easiest targets in war situations.

He said the group noticed some negative developments last year.

CASTEAU, Belgium (AP) — Air forces of six NATO nations will conduct joint exercises in northwest Europe next month to test Allied Command Europe's tactical air operations, the alliance announced Monday.

Belgium, Canada, West Germany, the Netherlands, Britain and the United States will participate in the June 2-6 exercises, code named "Central Enterprise 86."

The maneuvers will be held in Belgium, West Germany, Luxembourg, the Netherlands, France, Britain and Denmark.

Allied Command Europe, with headquarters at Casteau, is the European military command of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

Bruce comes under fire for alleged delays

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The Minidoka County 5th District judge's race is hinging on whether or not incumbent Judge Ronald Bruce is allowing unnecessarily long delays in disposing of his caseload and whether that warrants his defeat by challenger J. William Hart, magistrate judge in Blaine County.

Many attorneys in the 5th Judicial District appear to think so.

But, law enforcement officers around the Magic Valley are saying they see no need for a change in the Minidoka County district judge position.

"What the average voter thinks will probably swing the election to one or the other of the candidates in the May 27 primary," Bruce said reports of almost-solid support

By the attorneys for Hart may raise some questions with the average voters, and he admits he has never been an "attorney's judge."

"I don't socialize with very many attorneys or play golf with them," he said. "I find it easier to make an unbiased decision when my friends are not arguing on one side or the other."

A meeting of the Magic Valley Bar Association last week in which Bruce and Hart appeared was closed to the public, and the press was asked to leave. Bruce said he asked the bar Association to close the meeting if he were going to be questioned about specific cases or rulings. He said he adheres to the standard that it is improper for a judge to discuss any case where an appeal could be made, or where a decision is still pending.

Hart and his supporters had suggested that the press attend, and several attorneys who attended have since volunteered their accounts of what took place behind the closed doors.

"One attorney said the session was calm, there were no questions asked by the attorneys, and the issue continued to surround an alleged lack of speed with which Judge

Bruce handles cases under his jurisdiction. His opponent, Magistrate Hart of Shoshone, has been critical of Bruce in that regard and has said he would provide timely decisions to benefit the clients of attorneys in both civil and criminal matters. Hart says such delays are totally unwarranted.

Bruce has not denied that there are some cases that have waited unusually long for his judgments, but he says he is the only judge in the district working without the services of a law clerk and that he tries to be thorough and give due consideration in making his decisions.

Hart had also pledged, in a meeting in April of the Magic Valley Peace Officers Association, that his policy toward drug offenders would be a "tough one."

Bruce countered by saying that a judge cannot take a position in advance on any classification of cases and must look at every case on its own merits.

Another attorney attending the closed Thursday night meeting said Bruce accused Hart of "a total fabrication of the truth" in saying that Bruce is known for being soft on criminals.

Bruce said Monday that he still contends the accusation is false and he feels there is no basis for such a statement.

Hart is waging a strong campaign for the district judgeship in Minidoka County and has given The Times-News court records for eight cases, which he says are just a few of many that he believes show unnecessary delays by Judge Bruce.

In Blaine County a zoning case that Hart says was submitted in final form Jan. 7, 1985 and not decided until March 19, 1986. (J38)

Students' test scores rise everywhere but in math

By JANE ROBISON
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls junior high and high school students improved in almost every area but math, and local and state educators are at odds over the reasons why math scores took a dive.

"People should be very concerned," said John Briggs, a math consultant with the state Department of Education. "It's a statewide trend, not just in Twin Falls. We expected scores in all disciplines to drop, and only math did."

Test results released on Friday by the Twin Falls School District showed a dramatic improvement in writing scores of 8th graders. Students ranked in the 82.7 percentile, compared with a 78.2 score in 1985. The state average was 78.2.

"I think it speaks highly for our language arts and English programs," said Larry Watson, director of ancillary services and tests. "But it also may show that students need more of a challenge."

The district this year focused on writing in all disciplines, and held in-service training sessions for teachers at the start of the 1985-86 school year to encourage students to do more writing in class.

But Watson was less buoyant about the state-mandated proficiency test required of all Idaho 11th graders.

The tests showed Twin Falls students scored higher in science, social studies, written expression and research skills than students did in 1985. And Twin Falls students ranked higher than the state average. Most scores ranked between the 70th to 73rd percentile.

But math dropped from 58 in 1985 to a 53 this year.

Hansen Library vote moved up to May 20

By PAT MARCANTONIO
Times-News writer

HANSEN — Hansen-area residents will vote May 20 on whether to form a taxing district to support the Hansen Library.

The vote on the library district previously was scheduled June 20. But the Twin Falls County Board of Commissioners decided to hold the library election in conjunction with one for Hansen School District trustees and a vote on the consolidation of the Hansen and Murtaugh school districts.

"Why hold two elections when one will do?" said Commissioner Marvin Hemphillman. The proposed library district would share the same boundaries as the Hansen School District, so the same people would be voting in both, he added.

The library district election will be held at the Hansen City Hall from noon to 8 p.m.

A simple majority is required to pass the library proposal.

Donna Egeler, the Hansen librarian, said she was not disappointed about the new date of the library election.

"I don't know if it would make any difference," she said. More people might be brought out to vote, and it might be good "to get it over with," she added.

She wanted to emphasize, however, that the school and library issues aren't connected.

The Hansen Library Board proposed the taxing district because the city of Hansen this year greatly reduced its funding for the facility.

Although the proposed library budget for 1987 would be $5,000, library officials say only about $3,000 would have to be generated through property taxes.

The remaining revenue would be raised through the donations of the library 10 years ago. The library is located in the front part of Harris' house on Maple Avenue.

If the taxing district issue fails, there probably will be no library, Egeler said.

The facility contains more than 5,700 books, microfiche and microfilm readers, typewriters and other equipment. Its contents have been appraised at $50,900.

Hansen School Superintendent Dick Smith said he didn't see any problems with school and library elections being held on the same day.

People will cast their vote on the school consolidation and library district on a voting machine, while ballots will be used for the trustee election to ensure people vote in their correct zones, Smith said.

Wildlife Federation backs 'local solution' to Salmon flooding

By KENNETH A. BROWN
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The Idaho Wildlife Federation's Board of Directors has announced its support of a "local solution" to ice-flooding problems on the Salmon River.

"We'd like to see something done which does not disturb the Salmon River, which is a protected area," said Don Zuck, a Twin Falls resident who is a member of the group's board of directors.

After a study by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers last year which possible solutions to ice-flooding problems in the city of Salmon, city officials and county commissioners backed a plan to dredge and chan-nelize a three-mile stretch of the river.

Noting that the city is still per- mitted construction on flood plain, Zuck said the town was trying "to get the federal government to bail them out for doing something they shouldn't be doing."

While the dredging option would cost more than $3.9 million, the town would have to cover only $10,000 of the cost. On other options, such as levee construction, the total cost would be $1.5 million, but because of federal laws regulating the local federal cost split, the town would have to shoulder $500,000 of the cost.

"They're still allowing construction on the flood plain, knowing that"

Richardson to return co-op's illegal donation

By DEAN MILLER
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Congressional candidate Mel Richardson of Idaho Falls will be returning a $25 donation to an Idaho Falls dairy cooperative after learning that the donation violated federal election laws.

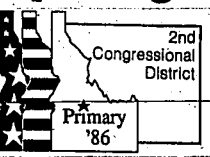

Richardson's son, Lance, who is handling finances for the campaign, said the donation — sherbet, butter, and other Western General Dairy Co-op products for a fund-raising dinner — was accepted last January because the campaign staff thought co-ops were not forbidden from making direct donations to campaigns, as corporations are.

"We have to pay them $205," Lance said. He said he talked to an attorney in Idaho Falls Monday and was told the campaign will have to return the donation because co-ops are treated like corporations under

MEL RICHARDSON
Charges won't be pressed

Lance Richardson said he was told by a Federal Election Commission official that charges will not be pressed for the violation because the campaign staff showed "no intent to commit a breach of FEC regulations."

FEC press officer Fred Elland said in a phone call from Washington Monday that co-ops are prohibited from contributing money directly to political campaigns, but may contribute through registered political action committees. "They are under the same strictures as corporations and labor unions," he said.

Elland said he could only comment on federal election law in general and could not comment on specific campaign finance reports.

Richardson's son said that when the campaign committee was planning a January dinner dance, they put Idaho Falls cinnamon-roll maker Richard Powell to work collecting food donations for the event and he solicited the donation.

At the time, campaign officials called Western General Dairy to be sure it was not a corporation and then reported the donation on the election finance disclosure form, thinking it was a legal donation, he said.

The legality of the donation was challenged in an unsigned letter circulated through the 2nd Congressional District and mailed to the news media last week.

City explores lease-purchase agreement for utility upgrade

By ANNETTE GARY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls City Council began work Monday toward a lease-purchase agreement to finance more than $1 million worth of sewage and water service improvements, without having to go to the voters for a bond election.

A lease-purchase agreement would work much like a bond issue, but certificates of participation in the lease would be sold to investors instead of bonds.

This would be the first time an Idaho city used a lease-purchase agreement to finance such improvements, said City Manager Tom Courtney. The council authorized engineering work for the projects at a Monday work session, but still must vote on the matter at a regular meeting.

Work would include a $1.2 million replacement to the Grandview Interceptor, the city's main sewage collection line, and possibly facilities to improve water volume and pressure to the southeast corner of the city.

The city has replaced three sections of the pipe that caved in during the last three years, but needs to replace the length of the pipeline, said City Manager Tom Courtney. Hydrogen sulfide gas within the line has disintegrated the 20-year-old concrete pipe, he said.

The water improvements are being considered after a well drilled at the Chamber of Commerce Industrial Park failed to produce as much water as expected. Final reports are not yet in but engineer Dale Rieders estimated it was producing 250 to 300 gallons per minute, after drillers hit 1,050 feet.

The city had originally hoped for 1,000 gallons per minute and even after deciding to drill further than originally planned still hoped for 500 gallons per minute.

Monday, Richard Skinner, a Boise bond counsel, said he believed the city could legally pursue an installment purchase program to replace the Grandview Interceptor but had not yet studied the possibility of adding water improvements to the project.

State law limits the types of financing cities can use for capital improvements. The first obstacle the city must overcome is a state constitutional prohibition against incurring indebtedness for more than a year without a public vote, unless the indebtedness is for an "ordinary and necessary" expense.

The Idaho Supreme Court ruled in 1912 that replacing wooden water lines burned in a Nampa fire was an ordinary and necessary expense. "There's not much jump between water and sewer lines," Skinner said.

That leaves the city with several financing options in addition to calling a bond election. Courtney said a bond election was risky because if voters failed to approve the bond the city would still have to proceed with the project. The interceptor is "the backbone of the wastewater collection system," serving all major industries within the city and 70 percent of the land area and must be replaced, he said.

City officials could also use fee revenues, but that would be phasing the project over more years than the existing interceptor would last, Courtney said. Or the city could use reserve funds. But Courtney warned they would not be easy to replace.

The city would have to replace the project and control the design, but a lease would technically own the line until the city completed payments. A vote of city residents would not be required.

Salmon

the ice jam will cause flooding," Zuck said of the town. "There appears to be some local politics involved. There's a lack of proper zoning to keep those people from building where the floods occur," he added.

City administrator Polly Prchal of Salmon said construction going on in the flood plain met all federal and local guidelines for safety. "We've had to have those guidelines in effect since we've received disaster status," she said.

"I don't know what they expect," she said of those criticizing construction in the flood plain. "If somebody's a property owner, they have a right to build."

Engineers spokesman O.C. Dugger said the Corps rejected the dredging option because it was illegal. The Salmon River has been designated as a national wild and scenic river and extensive alterations such as dredging are not permitted.

State and national wildlife groups opposed the dredging alternative because of its environmental impacts. In a letter to the USACOE, the Idaho Fish and Game Department said the dredging would have "serious, extensive and long-term adverse effects on extremely valuable fish and wildlife habitats." Those reports also express a concern to Zuck and the other board members of the Idaho Wildlife Federation. Damaging the river for fish and wildlife could hurt the area in the long term, Zuck said.

Negotiations between the town and the USACOE are at a standstill because there isn't a local sponsor for any of the Corps-proposed alternatives, according to Dugger. The USACOE has recommended a combination evacuation-and levee plan, which would relocate some residents in flood-prone areas and upgrade some of the levees around the town.

was a delay of 5 1/2 months. Bruce says he does not feel his record on delays is any greater than some other judges in the district who have the assistance of law clerks and fewer jury trials. He said he had one trial recently that continued for five weeks and several that were three weeks in length.

Scores

The state average also dropped, going from 63 in 1985 to 56 this year. Watson blamed the declining math scores on the Coverage rule instituted by the state Legislature that will take effect next year. The rule requires high-achieving students to make at least a C average in the core classes such as English, reading and math. Failure to meet that standard would require repeating the course.

math classes" in order to make higher grades. But Briggs said that theory was bunk. "The C average is a scapegoat," Briggs said. "We don't have a good explanation of why these scores dropped."

District officials are clearly unhappy with the new law. They say it will water down the curriculum, cause a higher dropout rate and force teachers to inflate grades so that struggling students will pass. "It's totally unrealistic for all students to make a C average," Watson said. "In a normal school population, 15 to 20 percent of the students are slow learners." Watson speculated that the drop in math scores may indicate students are "opting for lower-level

Time standards set by the Idaho Court system for handling civil cases assigned to Judge Bruce, met with a nine months delay. Hart has researched files in Blaine, Minidoka and Jerome Counties and submitted others, including five cases in Blaine County where he lists delays of nine, 10, and 14 months time; three hire a law clerk and to speed up his Minidoka County cases where his research shows delays of 14 months, number of lengthy trials recently two with seven months delay and which slow down reviewing the pending cases for judgments.

Merritt said Monday that when he made the donation he knew it was for a fund-raising event, but he didn't know it was going to be used for a political fund-raiser. He said he is a regular customer of his who has donated for use in his campaign roll list.

Merritt said the donation was "assured dirty product" worse than the $205 reported on the Richardson campaign finance forms.

"I don't think it was anywhere near that much... it wasn't $205," he said.

Contacted in Las Vegas Monday, where he was attending a convention, Powell said that although he thinks he told Merritt the donation was for a Richardson fund-raiser, Merritt made the donation because of their business association. "It was not for Mel, it was for me," he said.

"I'm in the one that did it. We certainly weren't aware of any violation of any election rule... I didn't go out and think 'Aha! We're gonna sneak it in,'" he said.

Powell didn't remember the donation being worth $205. "I never did know the amount... I don't know where the amount of $205 came from," he said in an apparent reference to the $205 donation listed.

Lance Richardson said the campaign office spoke to a secretary at Western General Dairy Co-op to get the dollar amount when putting together the campaign report.

New Mexico consent law is state's 'claim to shame,' says legislator

DEAR ABBY: You were wrong in your answer to "New Mexico Mess," the grandmother who was concerned about her 15-year-old grandson's sexually active relationship with an 18-year-old girl. You stated that the girl could be charged with contributing to the delinquency of a minor.

Abby, New Mexico's claim to shame is that the age of consent in this state is 18. My heart goes out to the grandmother. Tragically, the type of situation she describes is not uncommon. I know of one case where a 15-year-old girl became involved with a 40-year-old man against her parents' wishes. The authorities could do nothing about it because the child had given her consent!

As a state senator, I have twice carried a bill to our Legislature that would raise the age of consent to 16 for both boys and girls. When force is involved, Abby, I have come back empty-handed.

I intend to keep carrying this bill back to Santa Fe until I get it through. Perhaps if this appeared in your column it might help.

SEN. W. P. VANDERGRIFF, NEW MEXICO STATE SENATE
DEAR SEN. VANDERGRIFF: I'll try! This is a plea to all my New Mexico readers: Phone or write to your state legislators and let them know that you think the age of consent should be raised to 16.

Are you with me, Alamogordo, Albuquerque, Carlsbad, Clovis, Farmington, Gallup, Hobbs, Las Cruces, Portales and Roswell?

DEAR ABBY: I hope you can help us come to some kind of agreement. When my husband and I go to a restaurant or a public place and he holds the door open for me, I walk on in. About that time, another couple or even some women walk up, and he continues holding the door open for them. He says I should wait until all the others have gone in. I say he should follow me in and let the others open the door for themselves. (If that's another man, he should hold the door open for his lady.)

When my husband and I get separated — which is often when he keeps holding the door open for people — he gets upset.

Should I walk or should my husband turn the door over to those who walk up and follow me?

— LEE IN QUARTZSITE, ARIZ.
DEAR LEE: Your husband should hold the door open for you, and those who follow closely on your heels — be they men or women — if he's holding the door for so many that you and he become separated, he's overdoing it. And if this is the biggest problem you and he ever have, you're lucky.

DEAR ABBY: I am the writer of the original "Forgotten's Parents" letter, and having read the follow-up letters you have published since, I would like to clarify a few points:

Perhaps I did not make myself clear when I stated that our son ow-ed us (his parents) $10,000 and has made no effort to repay any part of it. We merely wondered if it had any bearing on the fact that he had severed his relationship with us.

Abigail VanBuren Dear Abby

We do, in fact, have a promissory note, which we would never, under any circumstances, put into force. I am sure my son knows this. We have no idea why he did not repay the money. The money is insignificant in comparison with the loss of our son and grandchildren.

To clarify further, I would like your readers to know that we did send our son several written messages, asking for an explanation, but received no answer. I telephoned his wife and asked her what was wrong, and she said there wasn't anything wrong, and was reluctant to discuss the situation.

I have only one consolation — that I am I, and he is he — for I would not want to have his guilt when either his father or I dies. Unless, of course, he has no conscience, which I do not believe is possible.

— FORGOTTEN MOTHER

Organizing key to wardrobe woes

DALLAS (AP) — Many women begin their day by gazing into an unorganized closet and lamenting: "I have nothing to wear," but with a little planning that needn't happen, says Rosemary Gwin, former fashion model and owner of a Dallas-based image consulting firm.

Organizing the closet is a four-step process, she says. It begins with separating blouses, jackets, skirts, pants, dresses, sweaters and vests into groups, with hangers all facing the same direction. Within each group, cluster items by color. Step two is designed to weed out items that no longer support or you feel ambivalent toward, and enhance your lifestyle and involves removing any worn out or dated clothing, as well as anything that has not been worn in two seasons. Next, separate the remaining friends or given to charity.

Radiation readings declining Boards close off applications for new prison site

Radiation readings declining

OLYMPIA, Wash. (AP) — Radiation readings from the Soviet nuclear accident continued to decline in much of the Pacific Northwest on Monday while federal officials reported that small amounts of radioactive activity had turned up in precipitation over the weekend in five U.S. cities.

The radioactivity appeared Friday and Saturday in Salt Lake City, Jacksonville, Fla., Santa Fe, N.M., Albany, N.Y., and Cheyenne, Wyo., the Environmental Protection Agency said in Washington.

Several Southeastern states reported finding trace levels of radioactivity in the atmosphere that may be linked to the April 28 Chernobyl accident. Nolan Bivens, division director of environmental radiation monitoring for the South Carolina Department of Health and Environmental Control, said the numbers are very low and do not indicate any protective action.

Authorities in all the other areas where radiation was detected also said the levels were too low to pose any health hazard.

The highest readings were detected late last week in the Pacific Northwest. A rainwater sample in Portland, Ore., on Friday showed 5,250 picocuries of iodine-131 contamination per liter. On Saturday, a Seattle rain sample had 2,400 picocuries.

Lake reaches historic high

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — The Great Salt Lake has reached its highest level in recorded history and a National Weather Service meteorologist predicts the inland sea will rise even higher before the weather turns drier.

Measurements taken Monday morning showed the lake at 4,211.65 feet above sea level. The previous record of 4,211.60 was set in June of 1973.

The Utah Legislature is scheduled to convene today to consider a $55 million plan to pump the excess lake water into the west desert.

Bill Alder, meteorologist, said the weather service had predicted a peak of 4,220 by mid-June, and Monday's reading has not changed that forecast.

"This is a historic day in Utah," Alder said.

The lake normally peaks in early June, then it begins declining as the summer sun evaporates the water. However, Alder said, the cool, moist spring weather has forced him to change the predicted peak to mid-June.

Rice trial begins

SEATTLE (AP) — A self-proclaimed anti-communist warrior accused in the Christmas Eve bludgeonings of a prominent Seattle family of four goes on trial for his life today.

David Lewis Rice, a 27-year-old one-time steelworker, will be tried in King County Superior Court on four counts of aggravated first-degree murder, the only crime in Washington punishable by death.

If convicted, he could face either death or life in prison without parole.

BOISE, Idaho (AP) — Idaho's in a crash program to do something about overcrowding and a lack of security at its state prison.

But whatever the state does about building a new maximum security prison should not be of a temporary nature, says state Board of Corrections member Charles Hall.

"If we only build 50 new beds and do it right, we're better off than building 250 beds and trying to just get by," Hall said here Monday.

"We don't just get by, we get hauled into court," by inmate lawsuits, Hall said.

Hall, Boise, and other members of the state Board of Corrections met here with the Permanent Building Fund Advisory Council, the board that controls state construction dollars.

Both boards are working on a new maximum security state prison, a facility to be funded by $3 million appropriated by the Legislature. Construction work may start early next year.

On Monday, the boards agreed to stop accepting applications for the new prison site.

The state has received bids from 27 communities for the new prison and its payroll of several hundred people.

According to a timetable adopted by the two boards, Division of Public Works employees will spend the rest of this month making on-site inspections of the 27 sites. The process was to start Monday night with an inspection and public meeting with officials at Blackfoot.

By mid-July, a decision must be made on the last site. After that, the prison will be designed and a construction bid is to be let before the first of the year, said public works Director Brian Chase.

Corrections Director Al Murphy told the boards that as of Monday, the prison inmate census was 1,381. Predictions made as recently as six months ago estimated prison population at 1,355 at the end of this year.

Besides overcrowding, Murphy said, the main prison south of Boise does not meet standards for maximum security.

What to do about it, and how many beds will be built with the $8 million provided by the Legislature, remained unsettled Monday.

Chase told the boards that building a 500-bed maximum security prison will cost about $25 million, based on a construction cost of $118 per square foot.

The state has been using a list of requirements for the prison site, including one that the location must be of at least 35 acres and within 50 miles of a population center of at least 10,000.

But even those requirements will be changing.

Tough draw for Bruins, Spartans

By STEVE CRUMP
Times-News sports editor

In a spring where half-games and percentage points have made a lot of difference in the Gem State Conference baseball for second place in the GSC and was seeded third in the post-season tournament, will host Skyline (9-12) this afternoon at 4:30. Twin Falls (10-12), which ended up in fifth place by three percentage points, will travel to Pocatello (11-7) for a 2 p.m. contest at Hallview Park. Bonneville (11-14) started off the playoffs on Monday by beating Highland 7-2 in a first-round elimination game. That will put the Bees, who finished in the GSC cellar, into a 4 p.m. contest against No. 1 Idaho Falls (11-9) today. In the other game, seventh-seeded Madison (8-13) will visit No. 2 Blackfoot (15-7) for a 4:30 encounter. If the Bruins and Spartans win, they will advance to the second round of the tournament on Thursday. If they don't, their seasons will come to an abrupt halt. "I feel good about it," says Twin Falls Coach Bill Ingram of the Pocatello encounter. "I don't think they have as strong pitching as some of the other teams in the conference, and we know we can score runs on them. It's just a question of our playing the way we're capable of playing." The Bruins 10 days ago lost a doubleheader to the Indians in Pocatello, 7-6 and 11-9, after leading going into the bottom of the seventh inning in the first game and into the fifth inning of the nightcap. "I'm worried about this one," says Poky Coach Rick Parkin, whose out-balclub finished in a virtual tie with the Bruins after one-half game was deducted under a new conference rule for each of the five games the Indians didn't get in this spring. "It's tough to beat a good team three times, and Twin Falls is certainly a very solid ballclub. We're an up-and-down team this year. We were down last week (in a doubleheader split with Skyline in Idaho Falls on May 3, Foster wasn't on the mound in either of those games). Skyline's a good-hitting ballclub, and if they get some good pitching, they'll be tough," Bridges says. Senior right-hander Tim Woods

(43) will be on the mound for Minico. Twin Falls scheduled: 7:00 p.m. vs. Pocatello; 4:30 p.m. vs. Bonneville; 4:30 p.m. vs. Madison; 4:30 p.m. vs. Blackfoot; 4:30 p.m. vs. Highland; 4:30 p.m. vs. Skyline; 4:30 p.m. vs. Idaho Falls. In NW playoffs

CSI will meet old nemesis

By The Times-News

TWIN FALLS — The Region 18 champion College of Southern Idaho baseball team will face a familiar foe in this weekend's Northwest district National Junior College Athletic Association playoffs here.

Trinidad, Community College of Trinidad, Colo., claimed the Region 9 NJCAA title on Monday and will travel here for a best-of-three playoff series Friday and Saturday. The winner will move on to the NJCAA World Series, which begins May 24 in Grand Junction, Colo.

Trinidad defeated CSI 2-0 last spring in a best-of-three bi-regional playoff series in Trinidad, Colo., after the Eagles had won the Region 18 championship.

CSI Coach Jim Walker said the playoff games are scheduled for 3 p.m. and 6 p.m. Friday at Frontier Field, with a third game, if necessary, slated for Saturday. Walker said Trinidad is ranked 19th in the latest NJCAA baseball poll with a record of 44-15. CSI, now 33-10, is ranked 16th in that survey. "We're not going to have an easy (time of it — they're a good baseball team," said Walker. "I'm just glad we're playing them here instead of there." Last year's bi-regional playoff series began in the small, southeastern Colorado town of Trinidad less than 48 hours after the Eagles had won the Region 18 title in Orem, Utah, 400 miles to the west. CSI lost 9-8 and 12-4.

The Trojans went on to the NJCAA World Series, where they were eliminated in three games.

CSI collected its fourth consecutive Region 18 title here last Saturday with a 4-3 victory over North Idaho College in the finals of the regional tournament.

If the Eagles win the Northwest district playoffs, it would mark their third trip to the junior college World Series in the last four years. CSI won the national championship in 1984.

The Northwest district of the NJCAA consists of Region 18 — Idaho, Utah, western Colorado, western Montana and eastern Oregon — and Region 9, which is the rest of Colorado along with western Nebraska and western Kansas.

Bulgin, Hoag gain state tourney bid

By The Times-News

POCATELLO — The Twin Falls High School doubles team of Dawn Bulgin and Susie Hoag qualified Monday for next weekend's Idaho High School Tennis Championships, but for the Bruin team is a long stay at the inaugural Region III Class A tournament.

Top-seeded Bulgin and Hoag, who played singles for most of the season before being teamed before the Gem State Conference tournament earlier this month, breezed through the girls' doubles division Monday to capture the championship in their event. They gained the title and a state berth with a straight-sets win, 6-3, 7-5, over a Pocatello High School duo.

Highland meanwhile collected the state title with 57 points, 42-20, for Poky. Twin Falls was a distant third with 56 points.

The tournament was originally scheduled for Twin Falls last Saturday, but was rained out and moved here.

The Rams had won the combined District 4-5 A title for three years before their streak was interrupted by the Bruins last spring. Under the new Class A regional alignment that went into effect this year, Blackfoot was moved to another district, leaving just the Rams, Indians and Bruins.

That also meant that only the champions in boys' and girls' singles and doubles and mixed doubles qualified for state. Last year, there were two representatives in each event from districts 4-5.

"The difference in the tournament was that Highland took first and second in both mixed doubles and boys' singles," said Pocatello Tennis Coach Duane Murphy. "There's a lot of points in a finish like that."

The Indians prevailed in both girls' singles and boys' doubles. No other results were available at press time.

Consistency

Jerome's Cam Hirst hopes that's key to state golf B title

By BRAD BRELAND
Times-News writer

JEROME — Consistent. That one word fits Jerome High School senior golfer Cam Hirst to a tee.

"It doesn't matter if the wind's blowing 30 miles an hour, he'll still get a 75 or 76," says Jerome High Golf Coach Dale Mowrer.

"He's the most consistent golfer in the valley," says Burley Coach Steve Jensen. "I think he's got the right temperament, a great swing and he's a great putter."

Hirst, fresh off a first-place finish in last week's District 4 Class B golf tournament, is now preparing for the state Class B golf tourney that starts Friday at the Sandcreek Municipal Golf Course in Idaho Falls.

This will be the fourth straight trip to state for Hirst, who's yet to claim the medalist honors.

This year, as in the past four seasons, Hirst's main competition will come from Marsh Valley's Chet Davids. The pair have finished 1-2 in most of their head-to-head meetings in the last two years.

But Hirst is thinking less about another rematch with Davids than with the prospect of the District 4 champion Tiger golf squad, which finished second to Wallace a year ago at state, winning it all this time.

"I want to win it more as a team. We've come so close," says Hirst, who has finished in the top 10 as an individual for the past three years. "When I was a freshman, we were disqualified. When I was a sophomore, we got third and when I was a junior, we were second."

But the medalist prospects are in the back of his mind. "It would be nice to beat Chet," he admits.

The Tigers' ace has only golfed competitively for a little more than five years. Hirst didn't pick up a golf club until the age of 11 and entered in his first junior tournament when he was 12.

In fact, Davids — who lives in Lava Hot Springs — and Hirst have been battling each other since those junior high tournaments back when both golfers were just youngsters.

"They're both outstanding golfers — they both have solid games," says Davids' coach at Marsh Valley High, Coy Pratt. "I think whoever's hitting the ball on that day will win and when they play, they bring out the best in each other."

Davids is the defending state Class B medalist.

"They're very mature golfers and both are very cool under pressure," says Pratt.

Hirst's fourth and final trip to state as the medal winner from the Fourth District didn't come easy.

He beat his Burley's Brad Church and Gooding's Dean Metzger by a single stroke.

"I played terrible all day," says Hirst of his '76 at the Jerome Country Club last Friday. "On the back nine, I hit two out of bounds. I thought I was out of it."

"Hirst and his Jerome teammate, Tim Peterson, have been battling all season and it has helped out his game, according to Hirst.

"He's a real good golfer," said Hirst of his colleague.

Mowrer agrees. "That helps. It makes him play better with more competition."

As for the trip to state, Hirst is going to treat it like any other golf match.

"I don't try to change anything. If I start to change things, I get a little nervous," says Hirst. "I just have to keep the ball in play."

Mowrer says filling the gap left by Hirst at the end of the season will not be an easy task.

"He's played for four years," says Mowrer. "You don't replace those kind of guys."

Compulsive losers finding ways to win

By BEN WALKER
The Associated Press

Cleveland and San Francisco are doing things differently this season. They're winning. Texas is around 500 for a change, even Pittsburgh isn't so bad.

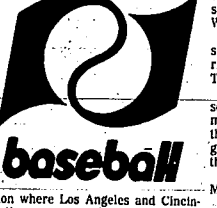

Last year, they were the worst teams in the major leagues, all buried in last place.

But so far, these born losers have been born-again, playing with a renewed faith in themselves and a belief that, yes, they can beat the other guy.

After finishing 60-102 last season, the Cleveland climbed atop the American League East in early May thanks largely to its improved pitching.

"I knew it was a good ballclub, but just that everything hadn't started coming together yet," said veteran Manager Roger Craig. In his first full pitcher Phil Niekro, who joined the Tribe after the Yankees released him.

The San Francisco Giants have similarly turned the National League West upside down. In a divi-without being above .500. Last season, they were 62-99 in the AL West. "You can see it turning around, slowly, but surely," said Larry Parrish, playing his fifth season in Texas. The Pirates went 57-104 last season in the NL East, the poorest mark in the majors. Since then, they've gotten a new owner, a new general manager and an enthusiastic new manager. "These guys are not losers," Manager Jim Leyland said. Also winning are the Houston Astros, also runs the last few years in the NL West, mostly because of poor starts. But this season, the Astros took off under new Manager Hal Lanier and held first place going into May. "That was a big psychological hurdle to get over," said Houston second baseman Bill Doran. It's hard to tell this early in the season whether the Indians, Giants, Rangers and Pirates will keep winning. But none has been winning on pure luck.

The Indians, who finished last or next-to-last since 1978, moved into first place by ripping off seven straight victories on the road. The start of their first game back at Municipal Stadium had to be delayed 15 minutes because fans heading for the ballpark caused a traffic jam.

The biggest reason for Cleveland's early-season success is pitching, a department the Indians ranked last in during 1985. The biggest help has been the return of reliever Ernie Camacho. Camacho, who had a team-record 23 saves in 1984, pitched only twice last season before arm injuries sidelined him. Through this May, he was 1-0 with six saves.

"Last year, we weren't in the seventh, eighth or ninth inning and winning and we'd say, 'Gee, how about our bullpen?'" Butler said. "This year, Ernie is throwing the ball."

The Indians also have baseball's best designated bases-loaded hitter, Pat Tabler, who is 24-for-38 in those situations in his career, including 2-for-3 this year.

Fish and Game Department is acting negligently in delaying an announcement of a spring chinook salmon season for Idaho.

Mitch Sanchotena of Idaho Steelhead and Salmon Unlimited said Monday the count of spring chinook of Lower Granite Dam on the Snake River is nearly double what it was at this time a year ago when the department finally authorized the first chinook season since 1978 because of the healthy salmon counts.

"We feel because of these numbers Fish and Game should stop dragging its feet and go ahead and announce a spring chinook season," Sanchotena said. "We feel the department is negligent in not giving the sportsmen some lead notice."

Sanchotena said anglers and sportfishing outlets need more than his one-day notice to prepare. He contended the announcement on May 24 and the season would open May 25 and run into June last year resulted in permits and tackle being unavailable to many anglers in the state.

He said the run at the dam 55 miles west of Lewiston has been counted at more than 18,000 so far this year compared to about 9,700 a year ago.

Dave Hanson, head of the department's fisheries bureau, said information was still being gathered for a determination on whether the state will have its second spring chinook season in a while and he gave no timetable when an announcement would be made, he indicated prospects for a season this year were good.

Reds spoil still another long winning streak

MONTREAL (AP) — Eddie Milner is one player who tries to stay within his own lane.

"I don't try to hit home runs, I just try to get my bat on the ball and hit it hard," Milner said after his first homer of the season with two outs in the ninth inning Monday night gave the Cincinnati Reds a 4-3 victory over Montreal, snapping the Expos' eight-game winning streak.

The victory came less than 24 hours after the Reds had ended the New York Mets' nine-game winning streak with a 3-2 victory.

"It just so happens I got it on the meat of the bat and it went out," Milner said.

Milner's home came against reliever Bert Borener, 0-1, who was making his first appearance for Montreal since being recalled from the minors May 1.

"He threw me a forkball that just tied the game," said Milner.

Red Power, 1-3, pitched 1 1/2 innings for the victory.

"I've been working on the side and looking at the films and I finally went out and was able to do what I want in a game," Power said. "I was throwing nice and smooth and not trying to force the ball and I was getting better movement-and-better location."

The Expos tied the game 1-1 in the eighth when Tim Wallach was hit by John Denny's pitch and Andres Galarraga and Vance Law walked to load the bases. Al Newman then hit a sacrifice fly off Joe Mauer.

The Reds took a 1-0 lead in the second inning. Dave Concepcion drew a one-out walk. Buddy Bell singled him to third and Do Diaz walked to load the bases. Ron Oester forced Concepcion at the plate with a grounder to third, but Montreal starter McGaffigan then committed a balk that scored Bell.

Montreal tied it in the third inning when Tim Lincecum, who extended his hitting streak to 16 games with a first-inning single, drew a two-out walk. Rainers went to third on Mitch Webster's single and scored on Andre Dawson's infield hit.

BALTIMORE (AP) — Lee Laczy singled home a 1-0 winning run with two outs in the ninth inning after Jim Dwyer had tied the game with a Pinch-hit homer as the Baltimore Orioles failed to defeat the Chicago White Sox on Monday night.

Rich Bordi, 1-0, who pitched to one batter in relief of starter Scott McGregor, was the winner. Bob James, who worked the ninth inning for Chicago, felled 1-3.

Harold Baines' seventh homer, with two outs in the ninth off McGregor, gave the Chicago White Sox 3-2 lead, but Jim Dwyer tied it with his second of the season with one out in the bottom of the inning.

Mike Young followed the homer with a walk, and he advanced to second on Alan Wiggins' sacrifice, setting up Laczy's game-winning hit.

The White Sox, held to two singles through six innings, led the score 2-2 in the seventh on a leadoff single by John Cangialani and a home run by Wayne Talleson, who has hit both of his homers this season off McGregor.

Prior to that, McGregor had faced the minimum 18 batters as the Orioles turned double plays following singles by Bobby Bonilla in the third and Reid Nichols in the fifth.

Atlanta 0

NEW YORK (AP) — Tim Lincecum singled home Ray Knight from second base in the ninth inning Monday night, giving the New York Mets a 1-0 victory over the Atlanta Braves.

Knigh led off the ninth with a double against reliever Paul Assenmacher, 1-1, and easily scored when Teufel followed with his single to center.

Mets starter Sid Fernandez and reliever Roger McDowell, 3-0, combined on a four-hitter and struck out 13 Atlanta batters.

McDowell pitched two hitless innings and fanned three. Fernandez worked the first seven innings, giving up two hits and striking out 10.

The victory was the 19th in the last 21 games for New York.

The Mets had loaded the bases with one out in the seventh against starter Rick Mahler, but Assenmacher escaped the jam. Knight lined a one-out single and took third on a single by Tim Teufel. Mookie

Wilson, batting for Fernandez, then walked.

Assenmacher ended the threat by getting pinch-hitter Kevin Mitchell on a forceout at home and striking out Howard Johnson.

Mahler worked 6 1/2 innings, allowing seven hits.

Texas 19

Cleveland 2

CLEVELAND (AP) — Larry Parrish's three-run homer keyed an eight-run sixth inning and Tom Paolerek went 5-for-6 as the Texas Rangers set team records for hits and runs in a 19-2 rout of the Cleveland Indians Monday night.

The Rangers collected 22 hits, two more than the previous team mark, on route to breaking their previous scoring record of 16 runs accomplished five times previously.

The loss was the fourth straight for the Indians after a 10-game winning streak. Every Texas starter had at least one hit, led by Paolerek with five singles, and scored at least one.

Charlie Hough, 2-0, scattered four hits in six innings for his second consecutive victory since recovering from a broken finger suffered while shaking hands during spring training. Mickey Mahler pitched three scoreless innings of relief.

With the score tied 1-1, Pete Incaviglia singled to start the Texas sixth against loser Neal Heaton, 1-2. After Gary Ward walked, Parrish drove his seventh homer of the season for a 4-1 Texas lead.

Don Wright singled to chase Heaton and moved to second on Paolerek's single off Jim Kern. A sacrifice moved the runners to second and third, and Oddibe McDowell walked to load the bases for Scott Fletcher, who singled in two runs. Toby Harrah doubled for another run and Incaviglia capped the inning with a two-run single in the fifth.

Philadelphia 5

Houston 1

HOUSTON (AP) — Von Hayes hit three doubles and drove in two runs, backing Shane Rawley's seven-hitter Monday night as the Philadelphia Phillies beat the Houston Astros 5-1.

Rawley, 4-3, struck out three and walked 4. Jim Deshaies, 0-1, gave up four runs on five hits in 4 1/3 innings and took the loss.

Deshaies held the Phillies hitless until Hayes' double and an opposite-field double to left with one out in the fourth. Juan Samuel then singled home Hayes.

Kansas City 6

Detroit 5

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Jim Sundberg's three-run homer stretched his hitting streak to 10 games and carried Kansas City to a 6-3 victory over the Detroit Tigers Monday night.

Steve Balboni had two hits and drove in two runs as the Royals handed the Tigers their fifth loss in six games.

The Tigers, trailing 6-2, scored three runs in the eighth after leading the bases with no outs against relief ace Dan Quisenberry, who failed to retire a batter.

The Tigers took a 2-0 lead in the first inning off Danny Jackson, 1-0, before the Royals jumped on loser Dave LaPoint, 0-2, for four in the second. Jackson allowed six hits and two runs in seven innings.

Balboni had two hits and drove in two runs, Sundberg hammered a LaPoint pitch over the left field fence for his second home run and a 4-2 Kansas City lead.

Balboni added a two-run single in the fifth.

Lu Whitaker opened the game with a single, stole second, took third on an infield out and scored when Darnell Coles doubled. Lance Parrish singled home Coles to put the Tigers on top 2-0.

Minnesota 8

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Rickey Henderson snatched an 9-18 slump with a single, a double and a two-run homer Monday night, leading the

New York Yankees to a 9-8 victory over Minnesota despite a six-run ninth-inning rally by the Twins.

Yankees starter Dennis Rasmussen, 3-1, tossed an eight-hitter, walking four and striking out nine for 8 2/3 innings. Rasmussen gave up a run-scoring single to Tim Laudner in the ninth and was relieved by Mike Armstrong, who gave up a two-run single to Al Woods and a three-run homer to Kirby Puckett, who extended his major-league lead to 12.

Blues quell Flames, force rubber game

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Doug Wickenhiser climaxed a furious St. Louis comeback with a rebound goal 7 1/2 minutes into overtime to give the Blues a 6-5 victory over the Calgary Flames Monday night and force a decisive seventh game in their National Hockey League playoff series.

Wickenhiser's goal, his second of the night, tied the Campbell Conference final at three games apiece and sent it back to Calgary for Game 7 on Wednesday night.

The winner will play the Montreal Canadiens in the Stanley Cup finals starting Friday night.

Trailing 4-1 early in the final period, St. Louis awakened with 14 minutes when Wickenhiser scored his first goal on a 35-foot shot past Calgary goaltender Mike Vernon.

Former Blue Joe Mullen answered that at 7:04 with a high blast from 30 feet, but Brian Sutter rebounded.

Hockey

Paul Paslawski's blocked shot past Vernon only 64 seconds left to cut Calgary's lead to 3-2.

Paslawski converted a goalkmouth pass from Sutter in 15:49 to make it 5-4. Paslawski then stole the puck from Calgary's defenseman Jamie Macoube behind the Flames' net, and scored in a four-foot shot to tie the score with 1:08 to play.

Center Dan Quinn scored goals 37 seconds apart at the start of the second period to key a four-goal period that put the Flames in charge after 40 minutes.

Mets Popilnski and John Tonelli scored Calgary's other second-period goals.

Blues center Bernie Federko led the decisive overtime charge into the Calgary zone, carrying the puck across the blue line and shoveling a pass to Mark Hunter on the right wing.

Vernon stopped Hunter's wrist shot from the pocket briefly, but was unable to recover in time to block Wickenhiser's shot.

Only 30 seconds earlier, St. Louis' goalie Rick Wamsley watched helplessly as Calgary winger Joe Mullen put a slapshot past him, but the 59-foot attempt banged off the crossbar.

The goal set off a celebration by the 17,800 St. Louis partisans who earlier in the game, were disappointed when penalties set the stage for a rash of Calgary scores.

Referee Kerry Fraser first sent Sutter, the Blues' captain, off the ice for slashing at 19:20 of the first period and center Doug Gilmour drew a double minor for roughing and high-sticking for his part in a melee that ended the period.

He left the Blues two players short to start the second period, and Quinn took advantage to score at the 20-second mark. He converted again at 1:57 after St. Louis defenseman Lee Norwood was penalized for roughing.

Quinn's sixth and seventh goals of the playoffs gave the Flames a 2-0 edge before Blues rookie Cliff Fontenay scored his first goal of the playoffs at 6:58.

Ranning's goal also came on a power play, the first in the last 14 tries for St. Louis. The goal was set up by defenseman Rob Ramage's pass from right wing.

Action picked up considerably after Quinn's two scores.

Weber closes in on Big Sky's all-sports trophy

BOISE (AP) — The Weber State Wildcats have extended their lead in the race for the Big Sky Conference All-Sports trophy with a second-place finish in the league's golf championships last weekend.

Coming on the heels of its title in tennis a week earlier, the Wildcats pushed their total points to 52 with only the outdoor track and field championships still to be decided.

Nevada-Reno won the golf title, marking only the second time in the last 15 years the crown has been out of Weber State's hands. The victory pushed the Wolf Pack total to 40 points in the campaign for the all-sports trophy and extended the balance within the conference. The six championships decided so far this year have been won by six different out of the outdoor track and field schools.

Montana with a fifth-place finish in golf was second in the All-Sports

Security jitters at World Cup sites

Los Angeles Times

MEXICO CITY — Jitters about possible terrorist attacks during the approaching World Cup soccer tournament has prompted Mexico to undertake stringent security precautions in cities and at stadiums where the games will be played.

A recent rash of bomb threats telephoned to establishments as well as varied as hamburger stands and the U.S. Embassy has intensified the concern.

About 30,000 police and soldiers will guard airports, stadiums, training camps, hotels and roads, according to the Interior Ministry.

"The security system designed by Mexico includes four areas — control of international crime, prevention of terrorism, crowd protection and security of installations," said Ignacio Morales, a coordinator in the Interior Ministry's public safety office. Mexico's nationalistic sentiments to keep enthusiasm from being mistaken for sabotage, fans will be forbidden to set off firecrackers during the games, Morales said.

Mexican security officials have taken advice from FBI agents familiar with security at the 1984 Olympic Games in Los Angeles. As well as the security agencies of France and Spain. The last World Cup was staged in Spain in 1982.

However, a U.S. offer to provide sophisticated FBI technical and intelligence help during the World Cup was rejected, apparently because of Mexico's nationalistic sentiments.

American fighters win fifth match at worlds

RENO, Nev. (AP) — Bill Downey, an 18-year-old Canadian, upset vastly more experienced Seric Nurkuzov of the Soviet Union on Monday at the World Amateur Boxing Championships.

Downey's 3-2 decision over the 28-year-old Soviet boxer sent him into the 125-pound class quarterfinals against 21-year-old Kelle Banks of Chicago.

Banks became the fifth U.S. boxer to win when he knocked out Mehmet Kilig of Turkey with a tremendous right to the body at 2:42 of the second round.

Meanwhile, Cuba ran its record to 15-0 when Pablo Romero knocked down East German Rene Suetovius in the first round and won a 178-pound slugfest.

"I have to fight him in his hometown (country) and I've got to get my act together," the jubilant Downey said of his bout against Banks, which is set for Wednesday. "I've got to make him fight. I can't let him look pretty."

"I'm looking forward to fighting the East German," Banks said, referring to Andreas Zuelow, who could be his semifinal opponent if he goes by Downey.

As for Downey, Banks said, "It will be so a matter of experience there. I noticed today that he got tired, but he (Nurkuzov) didn't press him."

Losers

The Giants are being sparked by rejuvenated Jeff Leonard, rookies Will Clark and Rod Thompson and second-year slugger Chris Brown.

Leonard struggled through the 1985 season, during which he was called — along with several other players — to testify against a former clubhouse caterer at the federal drug trials in Pittsburgh.

Leonard batted .333 with five homers and 19 RBI and helped the Giants to their first above-.500 April since 1972.

"We've beaten the Dodgers and the Cardinals, teams that can intimidate you," Leonard said.

Texas is counting on rookie starting pitchers Bobby Witt, Jose Guzman and Ed Correa to stay strong.

To improve strength and mechanics, pitching coach Tom House has them throw a football in foul ground before each game.

So far, the youthful staff is averaging more than five walks and one wild pitch per game, and has already committed 14 balks — double last season's total.

But the Rangers are showing some patience: "In the past, they've traded away prospects like Dave Righetti and Ron Darling."

The Rangers are also hoping for consistency from power-hitting rookie Pete Incaviglia, who has hit a few home runs but not hit for average.

In Pittsburgh, Leyland — still called Mr. Leyland by some of his players — realizes the Pirates may not win the pennant, "but they can be competitive."

Johnny Ray batted .500 for the first three weeks.

Reds spoil still another long winning streak

MONTREAL (AP) — Eddie Milner is one player who tries to stay within his limitations.

"I don't try to hit home runs, I just try to get my bat on the ball and hit it hard," Milner said after his first homer of the season with two outs in the ninth inning Monday night gave the Cincinnati Reds a 4-3 victory over Montreal, snapping the Expos' eight-game winning streak.

The victory came less than 24 hours after the Reds had ended the streak with a 9-2 victory.

"It just so happens I got it on the meat of the bat and it went out," Milner said.

Milner's home came against reliever Roger Cedeño, 0-1, who was making his first appearance for Montreal since being recalled from the minors May 1.

"He threw me a forkball that just stayed up," said Milner.

Ted Power, 1-3, pitched 1 1/2 innings for the victory.

"I've been working on the slide and looking at the films and I finally went out and was able to do what I want in a game," Power said. "I'm throwing nice and smooth and not trying to force the ball and I was getting better movement and better location."

The Expos tied the game 1-1 in the eighth when Tim Lincecum was hit by John Denny's pitch and Andres Galaraga and Vance Law walked to load the bases. Al Newman then hit a sacrifice fly off Joe Price.

The Reds took a 1-0 lead in the second inning. Dave Concepcion drew a one-out walk, Buddy Bell singled him to third and Bo Diaz walked to load the bases. Ron Oester forced Concepcion at the plate with a grounder to third, but Montreal starter Andy McGaffigan then committed a balk that scored Bell.

Montreal tied it in the third inning when Tim Lincecum, who extended his hitting streak to 16 games with a first-inning single, drew a two-out walk. Raines went to third on Mitch Webster's single and scored on Andre Dawson's infield hit.

Blues quell Flames, force rubber game

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Doug Wickenhiser climaxed a furious St. Louis comeback with a rebound goal 7:2 minutes into overtime to give the Blues a 6-5 victory over the Calgary Flames Monday night and force a decisive seventh game in their "National" Hockey League playoff series.

Wickenhiser's goal, his second of the night, tied the Campbell Conference final at three games apiece and sent it back to Calgary for Game 7 on Wednesday night.

The comeback that gave the Montreal Canadiens in the Stanley Cup finals starting Friday night.

Trailing 4-1 early in the final period, St. Louis awakened with 14 minutes played when Wickenhiser scored his first goal on a 30-foot slingshot past Calgary goaltender Mike Vernon.

Rich Bordi, 1-0, who pitched to one batter in relief of starter Scott McGreevy, was the winner. Bob James, who worked the ninth inning for Chicago, fell to 1-3.

Harold Baines' seventh homer, with two outs in the ninth off McGreevy, gave the Chicago White Sox 3-2 lead, but Jim Dwyer tied it with his second of the season with one and the top of the inning.

Mike Young followed the homer with a walk, and he advanced to second on Alan Wiggins' sacrifice, setting up Lacy's game-winning hit.

The White Sox, held to two singles through six innings, tied the score 2-2 in the seventh on a leadoff single by John Cangello and a home run by Wayne Tolson, who has hit both of his homers this season off McGreevy.

Prior to that, McGreevy had faced the minimum 18 batters as the Orioles turned double plays following singles by Bobby Bonilla in the third and Reid Nichols in the fifth.

NEW YORK (AP) — Tim Lincecum gave the New York Mets a comeback base in the ninth inning Monday night, giving the New York Mets a 1-0 victory over the Atlanta Braves.

Knigt led off the ninth with a double against reliever Paul Assenmacher, 1-1, and easily scored when Teufel followed with his single to center.

Mets starter Sid Fernandez and reliever Roger McDowell, 3-0, combined on a four-hitter and struck out 13 Atlanta batters.

McDowell pitched two hitless innings and struck three. Fernandez worked the first seven innings, giving up four hits and striking out 10.

The victory was the 19th in the last 21 games for New York.

The Mets had loaded the bases with one out in the seventh against starter Rick Mahler, but Assenmacher escaped the jam. Knigt lined a one-out single and took third on a single by Tim Teufel. Mookie

CLEVELAND (AP) — Larry Parrish's three-run homer capped an eight-run sixth inning and Tom Paclorek went 5-for-6 as the Texas Rangers set team records for hits and runs in a 19-2 rout of the Cleveland Indians Monday night.

The Rangers collected 22 hits, more than the previous team mark, en route to breaking their previous scoring record of 16 runs in a five-inning game.

The loss was the fourth straight for the Indians after a game recovering from a broken finger suffered while shaking hands during spring training. Mickey Mahler pitched three scoreless innings in relief.

With the score tied 1-1, Pete Incaviglia singled to start the Texas sixth against reliever Neal Paton, 1-2. Gary Ward walked. Parrish drove in his seventh homer of the season for a 4-1 Texas lead.

Don Slaught singled to chase Heaton and moved to second on Paclorek's single off Jim Kern. A sacrifice moved the runners to second and third, and Parrish's McDowell walked to load the bases for Scott Fletcher, who singled in two runs. Toby Harrah doubled for another run and Incaviglia capped the inning with a two-run single.

Weber closes in on Big Sky's all-sports trophy

BOISE (AP) — The Weber State Wildcats have extended their lead in the race for the Big Sky Conference All-Sports trophy with a second-place finish in the league's golf championship last weekend.

Coming on the heels of its title in tennis a week earlier, the Wildcats pushed their total points to 52 with only the outdoor track and field schools.

Montana with a fifth-place finish in Nevada-Reno won the golf title, marking only the second time in the last 15 years the crown has been put on Weber State's hands. The victory pushed the Wolf Pack total to 40 points in the campaign for the all-championship trophy and continued the balance within the conference.

Of six championships decided so far this year, Weber has won by six different ways.

U.S. athletes becoming reluctant travelers

By CHRISTINE BRENNAN
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — Davis Phinney, one of the United States' better professional cyclists, was on a stopover in New York on his way to Mallorca for the Tour of Spain when he got word of no farther.

His 7-Eleven cycling team had just withdrawn from the race. The reason was simple. The team members were so concerned about terrorism they didn't want to ride. Phinney didn't argue.

"There is no reason to get killed over a bike race," he said.

The cyclists were not alone in their fears. Scores of U.S. athletes, coaches and officials are cancelling or reconsidering trips, rescheduling flights to avoid certain airports, changing their wardrobes to get "U.S.A." off their backs, or, at the very least, expressing concerns about traveling in Europe.

"This really is a time of flux in international sports," said David Proity, executive director of the U.S. Cycling Federation. "I think we all are sitting down, looking at the situation and trying to regroup."

The constant threat of terrorism, the recent U.S. attack on Libya and the nuclear accident in the Soviet Union have triple-teamed U.S. athletes and teams on the eve of an incredibly busy summer sports schedule.

Pros, amateurs, adults, kids: It doesn't matter. The National Football League has to cope, and so does a girls soccer team from suburban San Francisco.

The United States Tennis Association will not send junior players to the Italian or French Opens, or to Wimbledon. The U.S. Tennis Association scrapped plans to send coaches and staffers to Bulgaria for clinics this summer. Trips to Europe have been called off by the DePauw University football team, women's basketball teams at Rollins College and the University of North Carolina and an all-star field hockey team from two small Pennsylvania colleges.

There's more. At the last minute, a U.S. cycling team pulled out of the prestigious Peace Race through Eastern bloc countries last week. The starting line was in Kiev, 80 miles south of Chernobyl, site of the nuclear accident.

Sport for Understanding, a Washington-based organization that arranges international sports exchanges for teenagers, has canceled all four of its trips to Italy. Tennis players and golfers have voiced their concerns.

"But yourself in the terrorist's position," golfer Hale Irwin told the Associated Press. "The British Open, Wimbledon, the French Open. You want to make a speech. Those places aren't protected like embassies. Anyone can buy a ticket and walk in, carrying anything. It's something you think about."

Although an Aug. 3 NFL preseason game between the Chicago Bears and Dallas Cowboys still is scheduled for London's Wembley Stadium (capacity 80,000, including room for a standing area), the league is navigating uncharted, untested security channels to make sure the participants are safe.

Joe Rheln, the league's director of administration, said talks have been held with Scotland Yard and the State Department.

"This is something we haven't had to deal with before," he said, "something we have to learn a lot about."

Officials from both teams have expressed concern. But not Bears Coach Mike Ditka. He told The Chicago Tribune last week that the game must go on.

"I wish I had a machine gun to take on the plane," he said. "I agree totally with our country and its actions (against Libya). I don't have any qualms about (playing the game). What are they going to do? Bomb the stadium?"

When asked what he would think if terrorists did indeed bomb the stadium, Ditka said, "We'll all go down in history as martyrs fighting for a cause that was beyond the control of most of the American people. People will be writing about us for years if that happens."

Moments later, he added a footnote: "I get too excited about things sometimes."

Liked the NFL preseason game, Ted Turner's Goodwill Games, set for July 15 to 20 in Moscow, apparently are going ahead as scheduled.

"My first thought when I heard about Chernobyl was, 'Oh my God, another 1960 (a U.S.-led boycott of the Moscow Olympics),' said a Goodwill Games official who asked not to be identified. "But we think now we have nothing to worry about. Everything's good."

The U.S. team will be selected in competition in the next six weeks, but spokespersons in track and field circles said they have heard no prospective participants complain about going to the Soviet Union.

"Naturally, we've all kept one eye on Chernobyl," said Pete Cava, press-information director of the Athletics Congress. "We're waiting to see what develops, but no one has said to me they aren't going to."

There is a prevailing opinion among many, especially those in amateur sports, that nothing, not a nuclear accident, not terrorist acts, will prevent U.S. athletes from competing in foreign lands.

Robert Helmick is president of the U.S. Olympic Committee and president of FINA, the international swimming organization.

"Concerning terrorism, we see no new problems, no insurmountable problems," he said. "We are well-informed, we are researching the situation, and we will continue to participate in international events."

"We have dealt with the situation since 1972 (when 11 Israeli athletes were killed by terrorists at the Munich Olympics). We will continue to do the things we've done in the past."

Yet, a couple of months ago, in an unprecedented move, the USOC sent a package of information on international terrorism to each sport's national governing body.

"It wasn't 'How to Travel in Europe on $50 a Day,'" said cycling's Proity. "It was more like 'How to Travel in Europe and Stay Alive.'"

The guidelines are "common-sense stuff," Proity said. Although no one within the USOC will disclose the specifics, they are generally regarded as the following tips, which are gaining acceptance throughout the U.S. sports community, are included: Teams are being instructed not to wear USA jackets, especially in airports.

The U.S. Baseball Federation will send a 20-player team to Holland in July. Players will be given two jackets.

"One jacket has a big 'U.S.A. Baseball' on the chest," said Scott Bologan, development director for the federation. "That's the one we will wear in the United States and Canada."

"The other jacket has a small 'U.S.A. Baseball' on the chest. I guess you can call that our foreign-travel jacket." Uniforms will come in different colors this year.

The national baseball team will wear royal blue in Holland. Sport for Understanding participants (not part of the USOC) will wear blue and silver.

"We're not into red, white and blue this year," said Frances Eriebacher, SFU information officer.

The idea is to have U.S. teams no longer look like U.S. teams.

"I've heard people say, 'This probably will be the first time that a coach doesn't get uptight when the team goes in blue jeans,'" said Ed Fabricius, director of communications for the U.S. Tennis Association.

"What I'm most concerned about," said Proity, "is a local person with sympathies toward some terrorist group will see those red, white and blue jerseys go by and say, 'Hey, I can strike a blow for my cause, sort of an impulsive thing.' Nonstop flights are to be taken whenever possible."

Of 38 Sport for Understanding trips scheduled for this summer, 38 flights will have no stopovers.

At the Women's Tennis Association, players and officials traveling to Europe are pondering flights on foreign carriers, and out of Chicago, not New York. "You don't figure you'd be as much of a target as on a big U.S. airline," a spokesperson said.

The Rome airport in particular is being avoided.

Mediterranean ports in general are considered off-limits by many, although The Athletics Congress still is planning to send athletes to the World Junior Championships in Greece in July.

"They're in Athens, which is why it's a matter of deep concern," said Cava. TAC officials have practiced a "run-through" of security procedures in Athens, Cava said. Publicity will be kept to a minimum.

Teams will not announce departure or arrival times. Welcoming committees will be scarce. Names and locations of hotels or host homes will be kept secret. Practice sites, whether they are for cyclists, junior soccer players or for the Chicago Bears, will be closed and, most likely, changed now and then.

"Keep a low profile," said Mike Moran, USOC director of media/public information. "Don't advertise blatantly that you're an American. That's the idea."

"If you seek publicity, you're asking for trouble," said Eriebacher.

It was recently disclosed that at a men's Grand Prix tennis tournament at Monte Carlo, a bodyguard sat in every Volvo chauffeur-driven U.S. players from the hotel to the courts.

Rob Hernandez, a life-insurance salesman in Fremont, Calif., is coach of a 15-player girls' soccer team that is going to Finland in June on a Sport for Understanding tour.

"I've received detailed instructions on what to do at the airport," he said. "We will check in three hours early when we fly out, then leave the airport and go to a hotel where we will wait until we go back and get on the plane."

In Finland, I've been told to get the kids out of the airport immediately, even if our hosts aren't there yet."

However, it's considered unlikely these guidelines will be followed to the letter.

"Athletes are different than your average tourist," Moran said. "Many of them are known. They have reputations. They tend to be flashier and younger than your typical older married couple on vacation."

Added John McLaughlin, director of news services for DePauw University: "When we made our decision to cancel our trip, we thought about a squad of 40 football players being more vulnerable than the average tourists. They tend to do things in a group and want to go to public places where there is a greater likelihood of trouble, like discos and shopping centers."

Phinney, husband of Olympic cycling gold medalist Connie Carpenter, dislikes playing the role of the anonymous American.

"I want to maintain my nationality," he said by phone from his home in Copper Mountain, Colo. "You don't really want to go out of your way to say you're an American, so I'd rather not go than have to hide it. It's certainly easier just to be in America, at least for the time being."

Phinney said he still plans to go to the Tour de France race in July.

"I'm going to go unless there is some other disaster," he said. "It remains to be seen if the terrorists' reaction to America involves its sports teams."

Recently, Phinney met race car driver Danny Sullivan and Michael Andretti at a charity banquet in New York.

"We talked all about terrorism," Phinney said. "It bothered them as much as it did me. You just hate to see disruptions in anything you want to do, but especially sports. Sports has had more than its share. But this isn't another boycott. It's a life-and-death situation."

Perhaps for the first time, athletes who pride themselves on their single-minded devotion to their sport find their attention diverted.

Phinney said teammate Eric Heiden was surprised to hear Belgian officials tell CBS camera crews to cover their network logos when filming Heiden recently. Again, anonymity was preferred.

On a recent trip to Amsterdam, a few days after the nuclear accident, top-ranked men's tennis player Ivan

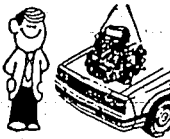

Lendl grabbed a morning paper to see which way the wind was blowing from the Soviet Union.

Now, every day, he calls Washington-based ProServ, a company that represents him, to check on radiation levels in Italy for this week's Italian Open.

Terrorism also is on his mind. "If anyone wanted to blow up Roland Garros (site of the French Open in Paris), how could you stop it?" Lendl said at a New York tournament. "If you think about it, you go crazy. The more you worry about it, the department's Bureau of Consular Affairs."

"You get on a plane, you just say, 'I hope it's not going to fall down today. I know I wouldn't be flying to Beirut or Tripoli.'"

Actually, the U.S. State Department has issued a travel advisory for personal safety reasons for only one European nation: Poland, because of the nuclear accident.

THE ACES

BOBBY WOLFF

"Fortune never appears so blind as to those to whom she does not..."

The luck of the deal was kind to South in today's shaky game, but it served little purpose...

South won his club ace and had to decide in which red suit to finesse. He could choose only one since the spade ace was dummy's sole entry...

South should reason that he needs five red suit winners to bring home nine tricks. And the only reasonable road to five red suit winners is to win two hearts and three diamonds...

Dollar's plunge hits four-year low

NEW YORK (AP) — The dollar fell to a four-year low against other major currencies on Monday after plunging in Tokyo to a new record post-World War II low against the Japanese yen.

Gold prices were mixed. Bullion was quoted at $344 an ounce at 4 p.m. EDT (2 p.m. MDT) at Republic National Bank, down 50 cents from Friday's late bid.

The Federal Reserve Board said its measure of the dollar fell to 110.37, its lowest level since it closed at 110.37 on May 13, 1982.

The index, which is weighted on the basis of trade with 10 countries, peaked at 164.72 on Feb. 25, 1985.

Currency dealers said exchange markets were bearish on the dollar but that fear of intervention by central banks in support of the dollar kept the currency from falling more sharply.

In Tokyo, the dollar slumped to 160.20 yen, its eighth record low in three weeks and down from Friday's previous lowest of 162.85 Yen. Later,

In London, it recovered to 160.90 yen. And, in New York, the dollar slipped 160.67 yen vs. 162.875.

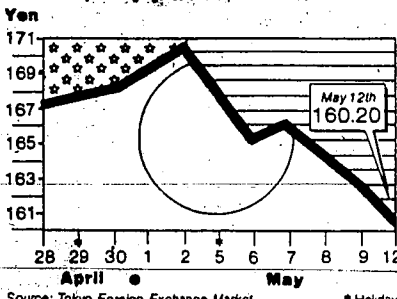

Dealers said the dollar was boosted when the Bank of Japan bought dollars on the open market in late Far East trading. It also was helped by remarks by Japanese Finance Minister Noboru Takeshita that the dollar's decline against the yen was excessive and that Japan would intervene "as necessary" to support the dollar, dealers said.

In addition, there was a brief rally here in the afternoon as dealers bought dollars to fulfill agreements to sell dollars, said Peter Wilt, vice president of foreign exchange at Bank Julius Baer & Co. Ltd. in New York. There was also some profit-taking on other currencies, he said.

The dollar has fallen more than 81 yen since last September, when the monetary authorities of the five industrialized nations agreed to cooperate for a tower dollar to help ease the U.S. trade deficit. The strong yen is now hurting Japan's overseas trade.

If summit plan works, U.S. should benefit

By TOM RAUM The Associated Press

Analysis

WASHINGTON — If the new international monetary system embraced at the Tokyo economic summit works, it could mean fewer overseas bargains for tourists but more reliable foreign markets for farmers, manufacturers and other exporters.

And that could help ease the nation's $150 billion trade imbalance considerably, say U.S. officials who worked on the new plan for increased exchange-rate coordination.

The program, largely engineered by Treasury Secretary James A. Baker III, seeks to eliminate wild swings in the value of one major currency against another.

The current 13-year-old "floating" exchange rate system, in which currencies seek their own levels based on market forces, had too much built-in flexibility, claim framers of the new plan.

The first test of the new coordinated system could come in September, in conjunction with a meeting of the World Bank and International Monetary Fund.

The director of the IMF will play a central role in carrying out the coordination of the new exchange-rate system — serving as a referee • See EXCHANGE on Page D2

SEC charges Drexel official with violation

NEW YORK (AP) — A senior employee in the mergers department of the investment firm Drexel Burnham Lambert Inc. made $12.6 million in illicit profits by trading on inside information since 1980, the Securities and Exchange Commission charged Monday.

It is the largest insider-trading case ever filed, the SEC said. The SEC sought and obtained a temporary restraining order freezing the assets of Dennis Levine after claiming that Levine was trying to move more than $10 million of his holdings from a bank in the Bahamas to the Cayman Islands.

SEC officials said authorities in the Bahamas had agreed to freeze Levine's holdings there. The order was entered by U.S. District Judge Richard Owen, who said he will hear arguments May 22.

Levine is a managing director in the mergers and acquisitions department of the firm, the SEC said. He is also vice president, but has no management responsibilities.

As a top employee in the mergers operations, he would likely have been privy to advance information about a number of deals that later soared in price for target companies soaring.

Levine's illegal stock trading actually began in May 1980, when he was working at Smith Barney, Harris Upham & Co., another investment banking and brokerage house, the SEC said.

Another record-tying forecast greets state winter wheat farmers

BOISE (AP) — Idaho's winter wheat farmers are again looking at the prospect of a record-tying yield this year — the same prospect that a year ago evaporated into the poorest yield in six years.

The government's crop reporting service projected the 1986 state winter-wheat harvest at 67 bushels an acre based on May 1 field conditions. That would tie the record yield in 1983 and be up significantly from last year's.

The government's crop reporting service projected the 1986 state winter-wheat harvest at 67 bushels an acre based on May 1 field conditions. That would tie the record yield in 1983 and be up significantly from last year's.

seven years, the initial forecast for the Idaho harvest shows it would be the fourth largest on record at 53.6 million bushels if conditions hold.

Water supplies and grasshoppers remained a question for winter wheat and other growers in the state, with the next several weeks likely to determine whether moisture will be favorable and grasshoppers sparse.

Overall, however, Idaho farmers joined the nation in the move to curtail production in the face of an enormous stockpile that is expected to remain at historically high levels through the year. Idaho producers, planting only 900,000 acres of winter wheat last fall, planned to harvest just 800,000 acres this summer, the smallest total acreage in more than a decade. The difference between planted and harvested acres was the result of winterkill and other factors with the initial reduction in land committed to the crop due in large part to the government's incentive programs to curtail production.

Agriculture officials pointed out that a year ago the outlook for the winter wheat harvest was again bullish on the heels of 1984's record crop of 56.7 million bushels. But by the time the crop was in, drought and grasshoppers had cut heavily into it, dropping total production to just over 46 million bushels.

However, the report said the figures were highly tentative and that possible Soviet crop losses due to the Chernobyl nuclear accident had not been taken into consideration because of a lack of specific information.

But wheat production in the 12-nation European Community is expected to rise 12 percent this year to 77.1 million tons, second only to the record 1984-85 harvest, the report said.

Despite cuts, world wheat output is rising

WASHINGTON (AP) — World wheat production is rising again this year, despite cutbacks in the United States and the Soviet Union, the Agriculture Department said Monday.

The 1986-87 forecast issued by the Agriculture Department's Foreign Agricultural Service calls for a global wheat harvest of 510.4 million metric tons, up 1 percent from last season and only 5 million tons less than the record harvest of 1984-85.

In the United States, farmers may harvest 59.3 million tons of wheat this year, down 10 percent from 1985, primarily because of a sharp cutback in acreage, the report said.

A metric ton is about 2,205 pounds and is equal to 60.7 bushels. A crop of 59.3 million tons would be about 2.18 billion bushels. The Soviet wheat harvest was forecast at 80 million tons, down 4 percent from last year because of a reduced area for harvest.

However, the report said the figures were highly tentative and that possible Soviet crop losses due to the Chernobyl nuclear accident had not been taken into consideration because of a lack of specific information.

But wheat production in the 12-nation European Community is expected to rise 12 percent this year to 77.1 million tons, second only to the record 1984-85 harvest, the report said.

Heller nominated to Fed by Reagan

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan announced Monday he was nominating H. Robert Heller, an economist at Bank of America, to a term on the Federal Reserve Board.

The president also announced his intention to elevate Manuel Johnson, currently a board member, to the post of vice chairman of the nation's central bank.

The spot on the board and the vice chairmanship became vacant in April when Preston Martin announced his resignation.

Since 1978, Heller has been senior vice president and director of international economic research at Bank of America in San Francisco. Prior to that time he was chief of the financial studies division at the International Monetary Fund.

Heller had been rumored to be the front-runner for the Fed post after William Gibson, a Dallas banker economist, reportedly turned the job down.

The nominations require Senate approval. Johnson, formerly assistant Treasury secretary for economic policy, has only been on the board since February. He and Wayne Angell, a Kansas banker and economics professor, were appointed by President Jimmy Carter.

Within a month after Angell and Johnson joined the board, they had united with Martin and Reagan-appointed Martha Seeger to defeat Fed Chairman Paul Volcker on a key vote affecting interest rates. It marked the first time Volcker had been outvoted in his seven years as chairman and led to speculation that Volcker's effectiveness could be jeopardized by showing that he no longer has full control over monetary policy.

Before joining the administration, Johnson was an economics professor at George Mason University in Fairfax, Va., where he met Paul Craig Roberts, probably the best-known of the Washington supply-siders who caught President Reagan's attention before the 1980 election.
