Starts at 10:30 a.m. Solstice brings summer season

By RANDOLPH E. SCHMID
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — It's the longest day of the year, a day without night in some places, and one of festivity for many people welcoming the start of summer, or of warding off the evil spirits of Midsummer.

The Summer Solstice — the northernmost point of the sun's apparent annual movement — occurs at 10:30 a.m. MDT Saturday.

This day has been observed as a special event for thousands of years, from the era of the ancient Egyptians, who oriented the Pyramids to the rising sun on this date, to modern times.

Through the centuries, the day of the solstice has been a time of myth and superstition as well as celebration, although it currently is noted mainly as the start of astronomical summer.

In many cultures, the solstice marks Midsummer rather than the beginning of the season, and like Halloween is heaped with superstition.

Bonfires are popular and witches are burned — at least in effigy — in many places in Scandinavia.

The Germans have a midsummer festival and feast the concludes with a bonfire and celebrants jumping over the blaze.

Midsummer festivities were immortalized by William Shakespeare in the play "A Midsummer Night's Dream," in which lovers are caught up in the magic web spun by the moon, the forest and fairy creatures on that special night.

In Iceland, though, far to the north where the sun shines virtually constantly on this date, Midsummer night was celebrated as a time when trolls and other evil spirits remained hidden away — avoiding the constant daylight.

To Icelanders, the morning dew of Midsummer Day has magical properties, and persons who roll in it naked can make a wish, and may be cured of itching and other maladies.

Astronomical summer lasts until the fall Equinox, which will come on Sept. 23 this year, and it remains a popular method of dividing the seasons.

There are others, though, with meteorologists considering summer to last from June 1 to Sept. 1.

That comes close to actually being marking the warmest weather of the year in the United States — the definition most individuals probably consider summer.

There was also the medieval scheme of seasons, which began on popular saints days due to the strong influence of the church.

Summer, by that reckoning, began on St. Urban's Day, May 25, and lasted until Aug. 23.

Hansen enters prison camp to begin serving sentence

The Associated Press

PETERSBURG, Va. — Former U.S. Rep. George Hansen surrendered Friday at a minimum-security federal prison camp to begin serving a five-to-15 month sentence for falsifying financial disclosure statements.

Hansen, a conservative Idaho Republican convicted in April, 1984, arrived at the Petersburg Federal Prison Camp at 12:34 p.m. MST, 26 minutes before the deadline for his self commitment, said prison spokesman Jack Atherton.

The camp, which holds about 200 inmates in a single building consisting of one- and two-man cubicles, is outside the perimeter fence of the Federal Correctional Institution-Petersburg, Atherton said.

"It's no country club," Atherton said from the facility about 20 miles south of Richmond. "There are no bars or grills that you would associate with a penitentiary, but they are not free to come and go as they please."

The nearby maximum security prison holds about 700 inmates.

Even as Hansen entered the prison camp, some of his Republican supporters back home were circulating a petition at the state GOP Convention in Pocatello, urging President Reagan to step in and free Hansen pending the complete resolution of the appeals process.

The petition, not authorized by party leaders, told Reagan that Hansen was "one of your biggest supporters in the entire House of Representatives, who is now fighting the biggest battle of his life.

"It would be a great injustice if he went to jail and would later be found innocent," according to the petition, that was being signed by only a fraction of the 650 delegates at the convention.

Atherton said the camp inmates are assigned to a furniture refinishing workshop or to general maintenance work. He said Hansen would be given an interim job assignment, pending completion of classification and medical screening.

Hansen's bid to remain free ended Wednesday when a federal judge reversed her earlier decision to temporarily stay the prison sentence pending further appeals.

Hansen, 55, the only sitting congressman convicted under the Ethics in Government Act, blasted the judicial system and the timing of U.S. District Judge Joyce Hens Green's ruling.

"It was stunning, not just to me, but to members of the Senate staff who were there observing, to the media that was there," he told The Idahoan of Moscow, Idaho, from his Washington, D.C., office. "I guess the first question was: Who got to her?"

He also noted that his wife Connie broke her leg Thursday when she tripped near their Arlington home.

"In having to hurry, she stepped

Doctors remove polyps but say president 'in good health'

President Reagan signals he's doing fine as he leaves Bethesda Naval Hospital Friday

By MICHAEL PUTZEL
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Reagan had two small polyps removed from his colon Friday, and his doctor pronounced him "in good health" after five hours of medical tests to check for any recurrence of cancer following the removal of a malignant tumor from his intestine a year ago.

A brief written statement by presidential physician T. Burton Smith, after Reagan was released from Bethesda Naval Hospital outside Washington, said the small growths "will undergo standard laboratory evaluation and final results should be available Saturday."

Spokesman Larry Speakes said doctors presume, based on the size and appearance of the new growths, that they are benign. But he said biopsies would be performed to confirm that preliminary diagnosis.

The president has had several similarly small polyps removed in the past, and all proved to be benign. "The results of all the other tests were normal, and the president is in good health," Smith's statement said.

The physician called it "a routine post-operative examination" that included blood tests, X-rays, computerized "CAT" scans and a colonoscopy, which is the procedure that disclosed the presence of a much larger, cancerous tumor in Reagan's colon last July.

Smith said the 75-year-old Reagan also had an eye examination and, based on the dermatological examination of his nose, from which he has had two small skin cancers removed in the last year.

Reagan emerged from the hospital about 2:32 p.m. MDT, a little more than five hours after he entered. He walked gingerly from a back exit and looked fine, if a little subdued. He put his arm on Mrs. Reagan's, and the pair took several steps to a limousine. Nancy was holding her dog, Rex, by a leash.

Reporters yelled, "What did they find?" Reagan didn't answer at first, but Nancy yelled, "Fine," and the president then said, "A-OK."

As he got into the helicopter to fly to Camp David a few minutes later, the president turned around, smiled and waved. The departure from Bethesda was delayed for 10 or 15 minutes because of a thunderstorm.

Drug firm yanks capsules

By KATIA BLACKBURN
The Associated Press

SEATTLE — Bristol-Myers Co. withdrew all non-prescription capsules from the market Friday, following discovery of a third bottle of Extra-Strength Excedrin capsules tainted with cyanide.

Coroner's investigators were re-examining several deaths in the Seattle area for traces of the poison, while police and health officials hunted store-to-store for any Extra-Strength Excedrin capsules left on shelves.

Cyanide-tainted capsules have been found in two bottles of Extra-Strength Excedrin capsules in suburban Auburn and one in nearby Kent, the U.S.

Food and Drug Administration reported. The bottles from the same lot number, 5-H102, expiration date August 1988, were being analyzed for fingerprints and tampering by an FBI laboratory in Washington, D.C., but FBI spokesman Joe Smith in Seattle said Friday the results of those tests would be withheld during the investigation.

Bristol-Myers had recalled its Extra-Strength capsules nationwide, and on Friday followed with the announcement that the painkillers Datril and Bufferin and the cold medicine Comtrex also would be withdrawn.

Company spokesman Max Friedman said Friday Bristol-Myers would replace or refund the purchase price of all its capsule products on demand.

FBI expels Soviet air attache after snapping shut spy trap

By PETE YOST
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The top Soviet air attache in the United States was ordered expelled from the country Friday after the FBI said it caught him trying to get classified information on some of the U.S. Air Force's most secret defense programs.

Col. Vladimir M. Izmaylov, 43, was arrested shortly after 8 p.m. MDT Thursday by FBI agents at a remote "dead drop" site near a wooded area in suburban Maryland, where the Soviet had gone to dig up buried U.S. defense documents, said the FBI. Izmaylov told FBI agents he was looking for a fishing pond, authorities said.

Izmaylov took a swing at agents taking him into custody, said Dana E. Caro, special agent in charge of the FBI's Washington field office. Caro told reporters the air attache "was quite upset" and was subsequently handcuffed. Izmaylov was carrying a switchblade knife, but didn't try to use it, the FBI said.

When taken into custody, the Soviet attache told FBI agents he was lost and was looking for a place to fish. There aren't any fishing holes nearby, and the Soviet didn't have any fishing gear in his car, said Caro.

The Soviet was later released to embassy officials after they "verified Izmaylov's diplomatic immunity status," the FBI said in a news release.

The documents had been left at the dropsite by a U.S. Air Force officer who volunteered to cooperate with FBI counter-intelligence after Izmaylov approached him more than a year ago.

Taking Izmaylov into custody "abruptly terminated an aggressive Soviet Military Intelligence operation," during which the Soviets attempted to obtain secret U.S. Air Force information on four U.S.

defense programs, said Caro, special agent in charge of the FBI's Washington field office.

The four are the United States Strategic Defense Initiative or Star Wars, the cruise missile program, Stealth technology and the Transatlantic Vehicle Program.

In another spying development, intelligence community sources said a high-ranking Soviet spy in North Africa had defected to the United States, with information about Soviet operations in Arab countries. Oleg Agrantians, an official of the Soviet KGB spy agency, "basically walked into the U.S. Embassy in Tunis a month ago and defected," said one source in the intelligence community.

Several sources who asked not to be identified by name said Agrantians was assigned to the Soviet Embassy in Tunis, where his cover job was as the No. 3 official in the Soviet delegation. Agrantians has been brought to the United States for detailed interrogation, the sources said.

On the matter concerning Izmaylov, the FBI and the Air Force Office of Special Investigations for more than a year have tracked the Soviet's meetings with the U.S. officer whom Izmaylov mistakenly thought he had successfully recruited into being a spy for the Soviets, said Caro.

Senate strips tax cheater amnesty

By JIM LUTHER
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The Senate on Friday stripped from its tax overhaul bill a provision that would have barred criminal prosecution of cheats who confess to the Internal Revenue Service and pay any back taxes plus interest.

By voice vote, the Senate accepted an amendment by Sen. Dale Bumpers, D-Ark., removing the amnesty provision, which had been approved by the Senate Finance Committee. That came after a 43-40 vote rejected a compromise that would have allowed amnesty for only two years.

"This is an excellent program for criminals," Bumpers said. "There is no other place in the criminal laws of this country where we do this. We are making a very serious mistake."

"It's a time-tested program," countered Sen. John Kerry, D-Mass., whose state recently ended a much broader amnesty that raised $561 million. He noted that the IRS already has an informal policy of waiving prosecution in most cases in which a cheat voluntarily pays taxes owed plus penalties and interest.

The bill, however, would have denied the IRS any discretion to prosecute, unless known members of organized crime or drug dealers were involved.

Kerry and Sen. Max Baucus, D-Mont., principal sponsor of the amnesty provision in the bill, said such a program could play a big role in narrowing the tax gap — the difference in taxes owed and taxes paid — which now is estimated at about $100 billion a year.

Eighteen states have had various degrees of success with amnesty in the last two years. Nevertheless, the IRS has stiffly opposed such a move at the federal level.

The Finance Committee estimated that the amnesty provision would have produced $200 million in extra taxes over the next five years. Bumpers' amendment would make up that revenue by limiting tax refunds that corporations currently losing money could receive.

Camp confines white-collar criminals

By ANNETTE CARY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Former congressman George Hansen will be keeping company with white-collar criminals, first-time offenders, an occasional small-time drug dealer and others convicted of non-violent crimes, said a federal prison spokesman Friday, just before Hansen began serving his prison sentence.

He will be housed with about 200 other inmates in a minimum-security camp outside the barbed wire fences of the main Petersburg Federal Correctional Institute near Petersburg, Va., housing 700 inmates, said prison spokesman Jack Atherton.

The camp, which is located about 20 miles south of Richmond, Va., has a security level rating of 1, the lowest of six security designations used by the federal government.

There are no metal bars and grills, and Atherton spoke of one- and two-man "cubicles," rather than "cells." The rooms, furnished with a desk unit, chairs, locker and bed, have partitions instead of doors and are not locked, Atherton said. Hansen would most likely be assigned to a cubicle with a roommate, he said.

The non-violent offenders housed in the camp lend themselves to "a very relaxed atmosphere," Atherton said. Earlier this year five rabbits served time there after staging a sit-in in front of the South African Embassy in Washington, D.C.

Yet, the prison "is no country club," Atherton said. Prisoners are confined five times a day and are required to spend 7½ hours a day at an assigned task.

Hansen would be given a temporary assignment until a medical check-up and other assessments are made, Atherton said. Then he will be assigned to a job in a factory, rehabilitating government furniture, or may be required to do camp maintenance or support services for the main prison.

The minimum-security inmates perform support services — such as vehicle maintenance — in the camp, rather than entering the main compound, Atherton said. A guard was killed in the adjoining facility in 1962, in what the people of Prince George County have come to call the Christmas riot.

The day begins for inmates in the prison camp with breakfast at 6 a.m. Inmates are fed from a standard rotating menu for all federal prisoners. Friday at lunch that meant, "a meal including Polish sausage on hot dog buns, a salad bar and peach cobbler."

Inmates are required to work at their assigned job from 7:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. and then have the rest of the day free to do what they want, Atherton said.

Inmates may play pool, shuffleboard or ping pong in a recreation room or may use a pavilion equipped for weightlifting, Atherton says. Outdoor sports include softball, basketball, volleyball and "bocce," an Italian game similar to bowling.

There is also a library for inmates' use and a book-exchange program with a local library. And prisoners have access to cable television, Atherton said.

On Friday afternoons, Saturdays and Sundays, inmates are allowed to talk to visitors in a room set aside for that purpose. And letters — but no gifts — are regularly distributed.

Hansen's address during his stay will be P.O. Box 1000, Petersburg, Va. 23804-1000.

Force and FBI refused to identify. Immediately told his superiors about Izmaylov's overtures in 1965 and agreed to work with the FBI and the U.S. Air Force's Office of Special Investigations to determine what information the Soviets wanted and their methods of operation.

In exchange for periodic cash payments that totaled $41,100, the U.S. officer was directed by Izmaylov to obtain secret Air Force documents.

The U.S. got to be "very good" at supplying the Soviets with phony or useless documents, most of which had been disguised to appear vital, Caro told a news conference.

"A great deal of effort was exerted to ensure that the feed material had all the appearance of bona fides. . . in some instances it was legitimate information," though not of value to the Soviets, Caro said.

Caro said Izmaylov was a member of Soviet Military Intelligence, or the GRU, the military counterpart to the Soviet KGB spy agency.

Had Izmaylov been successful, the FBI agent said, the United States would have sustained a "significant loss of highly classified weapons and programs systems materials to the Soviets."

"As a result of this investigation, significant insights relevant to Soviet intelligence . . . and Soviet knowledge of U.S. classified programs were acquired," Caro said, adding, "It was a very profitable venture."

The FBI and the Air Force declined to provide any details about the U.S. Air Force officer, other than to say that he was based in Washington and has access to classified information.

Izmaylov has been assigned to the Soviet military office in Washington, an office under the control of the Soviet embassy.

Izmaylov was first assigned to the Soviet military office, an adjunct of the Soviet Embassy in Washington, as assistant air attaché from late 1976 through 1980. His current tour of duty began in October 1984.

He recently was promoted to air attaché, making him the senior Soviet Air Force officer assigned to the military office, the FBI said.

off a curb and broke her leg," Hansen said.

Hansen wanted the additional time to appeal Green's denial of his request for a new trial. Earlier appeals of Hansen's conviction failed before the U.S. Court of Appeals and the U.S. Supreme Court.

He was convicted of failing to disclose more than $300,000 in loans and profits on commodities transactions, some of them involving Texas billionaire Nelson Bunker Hunt.

The former congressman has alleged selective prosecution by the Justice Department in retaliation for his campaign to resign in its power and influence along with that of the Internal Revenue Service and other federal agencies. He claimed other congressmen have acted in the same manner as he has yet have never been prosecuted.

Conns Hansen finished second in a five-way race for the GOP nomination for the seat her husband held for 14 years, also refusing to file the same financial disclosure statement for his campaign to resign in its power and influence along with that of the Internal Revenue Service and other federal agencies. He claimed other congressmen have acted in the

Harmony pervades GOP meet

POCATELLO (AP) — Scarcely a ripple of dissent disturbed the harmony Friday as Idaho Republicans opened their state convention in Pocatello.

Most party leaders were re-elected without opposition with state Chairman Blake Hall of Idaho Falls winning a new two-year term.

But in an action that caught most convention delegates by surprise, the two candidates who engaged in the bitterest primary election battle, C.L. "Butch" Otter and Chuck Lee, both seemed to get Lempesis elected first vice chairman of the state party.

Otter defeated Lempesis for the GOP lieutenant governor nomination in an election that was hotly contested. But on Friday, Otter named the Pocatello attorney to succeed Lee Shellman of Coeur d'Alene as the Idaho GOP's second in command.

Shellman said later he decided not to seek another term so he could pursue other interests.

Two Republicans running for state legislative seats were re-elected to other party jobs. Colia Fokkinga of Buhl, who is running for the Idaho House, was re-elected state secretary and Senate candidate Richard Bauer of American Falls will serve again as state treasurer.

Sen. Phil Batt, R-Idaho, national committee member, were elected for four-year terms in 1984.

Delegates worked through the afternoon on resolutions and a platform for the fall election campaign, both scheduled for formal delegate consideration today.

One unauthorized resolution was circulating among the 650 delegates. It urged President Reagan to keep former Idaho congressman, George Hansen from serving jail time after his conviction on federal charges.

It said a great injustice would result if Hansen starts a jail term but later is freed of the federal charges against him.

Among those signing the Hansen petitions was Mark Stubbs, the Twin Falls County Republican chairman. Stubbs said he thought Hansen had suffered enough after being convicted and should not have to go to jail.

Idaho Sen. Steve Symms drew a big roar from the delegates when he predicted that the Senate would pass a bill overhauling the federal tax system by Tuesday, and it would have a top individual tax rate of 27 percent. Symms said the bill would place 15 percent of the taxpayers in the 15 percent tax bracket, and about 6 million low-income workers wouldn't have to pay any tax at all.

"I think we Republicans should be proud of that," he said.

Roof fire doused at Longview Fibre

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls city firefighters extinguished a roof fire at Longview Fibre Co. on South Park Avenue Friday evening before major damage was done.

The fire apparently started after heat from an electrical conduit on the roof ignited grease and bits of particle board built up beneath a blower, said Capt. Larry Wahl.

All three fire stations responded when smoke was noticed on the plant's roof about 4:45 p.m. Nine firefighters spent about 20 minutes extinguishing flames and then moving the grease to check for hot spots.

There was some damage to the roof, although costs had not been estimated Friday evening. There was no damage to power wires protected in heavy conduit, Wahl said.

Farm Aid II out of stadium
AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Farm Aid II, a benefit concert to raise money to help family farmers, has been forced to move from the University of Texas Memorial Stadium because organizers couldn't get insurance, officials said Friday.

Singer Willie Nelson, who heads the benefit, said the organization was unable to obtain a liability policy for the 78,000-seat stadium where the UT Longhorns play football.

The July 4 concert instead will be held at an outdoor site south of Austin, Nelson said.

ABA to evaluate court picks
WASHINGTON (AP) — Attorney General Edwin Meese asked the American Bar Association on Friday to evaluate the nominated nominees of Supreme Court Justice William H. Rehnquist to become chief justice and of federal appeals court Judge Antonin Scalia to the Supreme Court.

"Our standing committee on the federal judiciary has been advised and will be undertaking promptly its usual evaluation process," said ABA President Willom Falsgraver, a Cleveland lawyer.

Kremlin tries to woo Congress

MOSCOW (AP) — Kremlin leaders maneuvered Friday to bypass President Reagan and go directly to Congress for discussion of a nuclear test moratorium and saving the SALT II arms treaty.

A joint meeting of the foreign affairs commissions of the Soviet parliament's two houses adopted resolutions to be sent to Congress. They urge a meeting soon to discuss the unratified SALT II treaty, which Reagan has said the United States may stop honoring, and a moratorium.

Leftists won't lay down arms

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — Leftist guerrillas said Friday their assault on an army garrison was a reminder they would not lay down their weapons as requested by President Jose Napoleon Duarte in his call for new peace talks.

The rebels, operating under the umbrella organization of the Farabundo Martí National Liberation Front, on Thursday attacked the garrison at San Miguel, about 75 miles east of San Salvador.

Star Wars funds cut deeply

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Armed Services Committee on Friday approved a $30 billion Pentagon budget bill that includes a deep cut in President Reagan's request for the "Star Wars" missile defense program.

The fiscal 1987 authorization bill, approved by voice vote in closed session, is $19 billion less than Reagan sought. The Republican-led panel achieved the reductions by trimming a variety of programs.

The Star Wars cut, the latest in a series of congressional panels, was proposed by Sens. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., and William Cohen, R-Maine. They told a news conference that the money saved from the program should be used for non-nuclear weapons.

The Republican-controlled panel voted 10-9 to authorize $3.95 billion for Star Wars in the fiscal year starting Oct. 1, said congressional sources, speaking on condition of anonymity. Nunn and Cohen refused to give the vote, other than to say the authorization had passed.

Canyon tour flights resume

GRAND CANYON VILLAGE, Ariz. (AP) — Federal investigators prepared to reconstruct the Grand Canyon aircraft collision that claimed 28 lives, and an aerial tour company involved in the crash resumed flights on Friday.

Eight of 10 available seats were taken on the first flight of Grand Canyon Airlines' DeHavilland Twin Otter, the same type of plane that collided with a helicopter Wednesday, said Kirby Lowe, customer service representative for Grand Canyon Airlines.

Passengers were booked on each of Friday's other hourly flights, and the pilots had expressed no apprehension about resuming operations, Lowe said.

Investigators from the National Transportation Safety Board and the Federal Aviation Administration were briefed Friday on how to work in the hot, dry canyon and prepared to collect evidence from the crash site Saturday.

"The most important thing that's going to be done is our structures peodly will be examining the wreckage to see how these two aircraft collided," said NTSB spokesman Ted Lopatkevicz.

U.S. tightens Libya sanctions

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Treasury Department said Friday it was tightening its economic sanctions against Libya by banning sales of U.S. petroleum drilling and refining equipment to foreign firms who plan to resell the products to Libya.

President Reagan in January ordered all American companies and workers out of Libya, froze Libyan assets in this country and banned American export sales to Libya.

The regulations issued Friday would broaden the current ban to include sale of petroleum equipment to foreign countries in cases where the American company knows that the product is intended for eventual sale to Libya.

Gale predicts 30-35 deaths

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The doctor who treated radiation victims of the Soviet nuclear accident at Chernobyl said Friday that a maximum of four to nine more deaths from acute radiation exposure are likely.

"I don't think more than 30 or 35 individuals will die immediately as a consequence of Chernobyl," including the 24 deaths to date, Dr. Robert Peter Gale said during a luncheon sponsored by the Los Angeles World Affairs Council.

Gale, who traveled to the Soviet Union twice to perform bone marrow transplants on radiation victims and who plans another trip next month, again refused to predict the number of future deaths from radiation-induced cancers.

Army identifies slain soldier

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Army said Friday that Staff Sgt. Timothy D. Huggins, 28, of Morristown, Tenn., was the American killed by a Honduran soldier during joint exercises in Honduras earlier this week.

Meanwhile, official sources said a second American, also a Special Forces soldier, was wounded when the Honduran attacked his mock captors with a knife Wednesday during a war games episode. The second American was not identified.

Huggins, who is survived by his wife and two children, was an operations engineer assigned to A Company, 2nd Battalion, 7th Special Forces Group, at Ft. Bragg, N.C., according to Army spokeswoman Elaine Fenran.

A State Department official, who asked not to be identified, said Huggins and his American comrade were escorting the Honduran after he had been taken mock prisoner during the exercise.

Rescuers bring 2 out of mine

DURANGO, Colo. (AP) — Rescuers with drills on Friday freed a teen-ager wedged in an 18-inch mine shaft overnight and a man who became stuck while trying to pull the youth to safety.

"It's nice to see the sunlight," said Thad Scheer, 17, as he emerged at midmorning from the cave where he became trapped 12 hours earlier.

Scheer and Keith Dahl, 25, were treated for exposure and a lack of oxygen from the poor air inside the cavern, said Jane Brown of Mercy Hospital, where both were hospitalized in satisfactory condition.

The rescue ended a 12-hour ordeal in which more than 100 people from 16 agencies and 10 local contractors tried to rescue the pair, said Sgt. Dan Bender of the La Plata County Sheriff's Department.

Jury says tobacco company not liable

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — A federal court jury on Friday refused to find U.S. Tobacco Co. liable for the death of a teen-ager who developed oral cancer after dipping snuff for six years.

It was the third recent product liability victory for the tobacco industry.

Betty Ann Marsee, who had sought $147 million from U.S. Tobacco for the death of her son, Sean, sobbed as she told reporters that she feared the verdict would send a message to other teen-agers that snuff dipping is safe.

"The kids will think that this is another safe product... and there will be another nine or 10 or 25 Seans," Mrs. Marsee said, clenching the hand of her attorney, Danis Deschamps-Braly.

She alleged Sean's use of snuff caused the high school track star to develop tongue cancer in 1983, leading to his death at age 19 a year later.

The verdict in the five-week trial came after six hours of deliberations

BETTY ANN MARSEE
Fears for other youths

that began Thursday, and two of the six jurors wept as they left the courtroom.

"The children won't believe now," Mrs. Braly said. "They will die of cancer if they don't listen to what we're saying."

Attorneys for Mrs. Marsee said an appeal to the 10th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals is likely.

"Sean Marsee was the tip of a very large iceberg," said George Braly, Mrs. Braly's husband and law partner. "The jury did not get to see the rest of the iceberg sitting dangerously below the water."

Braly said U.S. District Judge David Russell had not allowed the couple to introduce evidence of other snuff dippers' cancer deaths among young people.

Mrs. Marsee had filed the lawsuit against U.S. Tobacco because she said the company manufactured the smokeless tobacco that her son had used.

"In essence, the jury has said that U.S. Tobacco was not responsible for this young man's tragic death," said U.S. Tobacco spokesman Larry Alan.

"There's been a lot of speculation as to the impact of this decision on U.S. Tobacco as a company and on the tobacco industry as a whole," Alan said. "At this point, it is simply too early to assess what that impact might be."

The Bralys said their case was the first federal lawsuit alleging snuff causes cancer and also was the first case seeking punitive damages from a tobacco company for a cancer death.

Mrs. Marsee had asked jurors to award her punitive damages of almost $147 million, U.S. Tobacco's profits in 1983, because of the company's failure to warn consumers about possible health hazards of using snuff, despite its knowledge of links between an ingredient in snuff and cancer. She also requested $10 million for pain and suffering, and $38,000 for medical and funeral expenses.

Marsee died in his mother's arms at her trailer home in Ada after a year-long battle against cancer, despite three disfiguring operations. Marsee had developed tongue cancer. Most snuff dippers who develop cancer find the first signs of the disease in the spot where they hold their quid, in the groove between the cheek and the gum, Braly said.

State Department rips House panel

WASHINGTON (AP) — The State Department accused the House and a Republican-run Senate committee on Friday of trying "to undermine our nuclear deterrent forces" with legislation designed to save the SALT II arms control treaty with the Soviet Union.

Spokesman Charles E. Redman said a resolution by the House urging President Reagan to maintain limits on nuclear weapons and a similar measure approved by the Senate Armed Services Committee were unprecedented and sent the wrong signal to Moscow.

Redman said "we are seriously concerned about congressional efforts to undermine our nuclear deterrent forces by tying U.S. forces to the outdated and violated SALT II treaty rather than looking toward our current and anticipated security requirements."

The steps taken on Capitol Hill on Thursday are considered forerunners of legislation to be introduced next month to deny funds for U.S. strategic weapons that exceed the ceilings established in the 1979 Strategic Arms Limitation Treaty.

Rep. Norman D. Dicks, D-Wash., principal sponsor of the pending bill, said the administration was using "harsh and confrontational language" that might be costly when Congress considers its next moves.

"Clearly it's within our authority, because of our responsibility in the Congress to provide for the common defense, to limit the deployment of any weapons system which we provide funds for," he said in an interview.

"The president must be brought to understand the awesome gravity of the situation," House Majority Leader Jim Wright, D-Texas, said before passage of a non-binding resolution that urged Reagan to continue to comply with the unratified treaty as long as the Soviet Union did not undercut its terms.

The Senate Armed Services Committee, meanwhile, unexpectedly attached a similar resolution to the fiscal 1987 Defense Department authorization bill.

Reagan reported to Congress on Thursday that he was prepared to proceed with weapons deployment based "on the magnitude of the threat posed by Soviet strategic forces and not on standards contained in the SALT structure, which has been undermined by Soviet compliance."

Kemp denies foundation impropriety

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Rep. Jack Kemp, a potential candidate for the 1988 Republican presidential nomination, denied Friday that there was anything improper about a tax-exempt foundation he formed.

The Democrat challenging Kemp's re-election, Common Council member James P. Keane, on Thursday filed suit asking the Internal Revenue Service to withdraw the tax-exempt status from Kemp's Fund for the American Renaissance.

"It's political," Kemp said. "When you're 50 points down in the polls and you have no issue, then you attack or sue or go to court."

The suit also seeks an accounting of the more than $500,000 contributed to the foundation since Kemp started it in 1981, Keane said.

Airstreamers love living life on the move

Wally Byam Caravan Club draws campers to Boise rally

By TERRIE JARRELL
Times-News intern

TWIN FALLS — For some people, going camping is just a hobby, but for others, it's become a way of life. The Wally Byam Caravan Club International, the largest single-brand recreational vehicle club in the world — with 16,000 members — is set up specifically for people who own Airstream trailers and motorhomes and enjoy traveling. The club sponsors more than 1,500 caravans and rallies every year, with the largest rally being the International Rally that takes place every year from June 28 to July 4. Boise is this year's site for the rally, with approximately 4,000 trailers taking part in the event.

On the way to Boise, the Airstream owners have stopped in the Magic Valley. Several are staying at various campgrounds in the area. Anderson's Campground, northeast of Twin Falls on Interstate 84, expects 150 and the KOA campground on U.S. 93, north of Twin Falls, will have about 75 Airstream trailers. Between 75-150 trailers will be in the College of Southern Idaho parking lot over the weekend. While they are in the area, the campers are seeing the sights. Among the places they are visiting are Shoshone and Twin Falls, Perrine Bridge, Thousand Springs, the fish hatcheries, and Craters of the Moon, Sun Valley and Jacksonport. The rally's main purpose is to bring people with a common interest together and to give them a chance to get to know each other.

"All of the people come to one place. You have the chance to reacquaint yourself with old friends and make new friends at the same time," said Bob Moore, from Norman, Okla.

The rally is only one of the reasons that Airstream owners enjoy being in the club. Most of the campers are retired, so it is a way of life for many of them.

"It's great," said Moore. "It keeps you young. You're so busy that you don't have time to find a rocking chair."

Several of the members also join caravans. Although most of the caravans go to places in Canada, Mexico and Latin America, there,

Bill Lewis of Tulsa, Okla., is surrounded by Airstreams at the Anderson Campground as he works on his own camper made trailers which China received after the caravan was over. Most of the people who have traveled in caravans have never been to a place that they didn't like. "There is no place that you just hate," said Moore. "It's the fun things you remember after the hardships."

Although it is generally believed that the owners of Airstreams are affluent, it is not always the case. "The people are not necessarily rich," said Herman Dorion, leader of the California Central Valley unit. "We've chosen to do this and we've sacrificed for it. It depends on who you want to live and what you do with your money."

The people in his group come from all walks of life. Dorian said. Among the people in the group are a retired Navy chaplain, two nurses, and people in the educational field. Some of the people had been to Idaho before and would willingly return to it again. "We're impressed with it," said Reno Park of Midwest City, Okla., "It's a beautiful state."

Blocks slow hospital transfer

Old debts, Walker contract and state law delay Gooding plan

By JANENE BUCKWAY
Times-News correspondent

GOODING — There are three possible stumbling blocks to transferring the Gooding County Memorial Hospital to the newly formed Gooding County Hospital District, hospital attorney Fred Decker said Thursday.

Decker told members of the hospital board they still retain the authority to operate the hospital until the property can be put under the direction of the new hospital district.

Several members of the board expressed hope that the transfer could take place soon, but Decker said three things will slow that process down: the hospital's current debt and financial condition, the hospital's contract with the adjoining Walker ACT Center and a conflict in Idaho law about how the transfer is made.

"The primary reason for forming the district was to help bring in more money for the hospital, but we do have some timing problems," he said.

"The hospital has $200,000 to $300,000 in obligations," Decker said. With a projected tax base of $150,000 annually, the tax district "does not have the ability to pay the debt," he said.

He said the district may be able to purchase general obligation bonds to pay the debt, but he did not know if any company would make such funds available while the district is in the process of acquiring the hospital property.

The district will have no operating capital, and it is unfair to ask them to start with no capital," he said.

He told the board there is no precedent in Idaho law to address the "touchy issues in this case," particularly the hospital's "bad debt situation."

Board chairman Doyle Pugmire said the board had been advised the district will not be able to levy taxes until October 1987 and will not actually collect taxes until January 1988. However, county officials say they expect the district could issue tax anticipation notes to cover expenses in the interim.

Decker said tax anticipation notes are one option, with the district able to borrow up to 75 percent of anticipated revenue. Or, he said, the district could consider registered warrants which would allow borrowing up to 95 percent of the anticipated revenue. But, he said the district would have to be repaid at about 7 percent interest.

"The real problem is, what do you do with the debt?" he said. Decker said the county would gain little to transfer the hospital assets and not the liabilities because bankruptcy laws and creditor rights would have to be considered.

He offered some other options, including letting the hospital creditors file a class action suit and getting a court order which would allow the county to levy an additional tax to cover that amount.

Decker also suggested keeping the GCHD board and the hospital district board as "parallel entities" with the board administering the hospital and the district collecting the taxes, which would then be "granted" to the hospital for operating expenses. He said this might be a solution until the transfer and debt problems can be resolved.

"State law requires the district to raise money for a hospital, not own one, and this means work, at least for now," he said, adding he would have to research the issue further.

Pugmire told Decker the hospital's current financial situation

Asdit, Pagoza resign administrative posts in Shoshone District

By JANENE BUCKWAY
Times-News correspondent

SHOSHONE — Two Shoshone School District administrators resigned their posts Friday at a special meeting of the Shoshone School Board.

Superintendent Tim Asdit, who also serves as the high school principal, and elementary school principal Don Pagoza said they will not be returning in the fall. Both men came to the district two years ago.

In his letter of resignation, Pagoza said he has accepted a job as principal of Payette High School, which he regards as a beneficial career move.

Pagoza is a native of Shoshone, and said he feels his experience the last two years have helped him grow. "I am, and always will be, at heart, a Shoshone Indian," he letter said.

Asdit cited several pressing family considerations and a desire to return to his Oregon home as reasons for his resignation.

He said he does not yet have a job offer, but his immediate plans include keeping a "positive attitude" and continuing efforts to seek career advancement. He said he has been interviewing for superintendent positions and has more interviews in Oregon next week.

Asdit also said he felt with Pagoza leaving, his resignation would "clear the decks" for a complete reorganization of the school board's administration. "I feel it is imperative the district be allowed the opportunity to attract the greatest number of quality applicants in the combinations needed to administer the district," he said.

The board agreed to immediately begin advertising for a combined superintendent/principal and a high school principal. They also agreed with Pagoza's suggestion that the superintendent's office be moved to the elementary school building.

Asdit said there has been some "time and job expectation problems" with the combined high school principal/superintendent assignment. Pagoza said having the superintendent's office at the elementary school would eliminate some of the problems that existed in the previous administration when the superintendent/elementary principal split his time between the two buildings.

The two outgoing administrators proposed a third option, suggesting the district share administrators with a neighboring school district. Board Chairman Donna Hibbard said she felt that option has merit but did not feel there is enough time before school starts to pursue such an arrangement.

The board agreed to try to have new administrative personnel selected by the last week in July in order to make a smooth transition and be ready for the start of school.

Hibbard said if acceptable applicants are not available, the board will appoint an interim administrator "rather than hire too quickly and get someone who is not suited to our situation."

But she did not say who might be appointed if that becomes necessary.

Pagoza said elementary teacher Tim Knowles is presently serving an administrative internship and with his knowledge of district operations he could be a "great strength" to incoming administrators.

Hibbard said the board felt this was a difficult time to be seeking new administrators but said she understood the needs of Pagoza and Asdit that prompted them to leave.

Bad economy stirs prison competition

By MARK WARBIS
The Associated Press

BOISE — With Idaho's economy teetering in seemingly endless doldrums, more than a score of cities are competing feverishly, even desperately, for the right to host up to 500 of the state's most dangerous criminals.

Officials are considering 25 communities as possible locations for a new maximum-security penitentiary. And with a long-range economic payoff estimated at nearly $500 million, the contenders aren't worrying much about proximity to hardened felons.

"It's getting to the point now that I don't know that I wouldn't prefer a more negative attitude," said Al Murphy, director of the Idaho Department of Corrections. "Never would I have supported this type of interest would be generated. It's tragic, but there's going to be a lot of people disappointed."

With many local governments struggling to make ends meet on a tax base shrunken by Idaho's depressed farm, mining and timber industries, the risk of disappointment is a small price to pay for a chance at what most believe would be a windfall for their communities.

The 1986 Legislature provided $8 million to begin work on a penitentiary to help ease crowding at the existing state prison south of Boise. The Permanent Building Fund Advisory Council has authorized some preliminary design work, but the prison's ultimate design, and how many inmates it houses, will depend on the site.

Eventual construction costs have been estimated at from $25 million to $32 million, and Brian Chase, director of the state Division of Public Works, said the prison could add more than 200 jobs to a local economy and pump in some $400 million over the next 30 years.

Chase said he and Murphy had expected to be able to make a site recommendation to the state Board of Corrections early next month. But a full review of all the applications was forced a delay until late August. If a location is chosen this fall, construction could begin in the spring.

Despite local efforts that run the gamut from letter-writing campaigns and petition drives to banner-waving town meetings, Chase said the final decision will be based strictly on a cost-benefit analysis.

"We're finding in many smaller communities economically they are hurting quite a bit. They come across as almost desperate for other sources of employment," he said. "But we're discouraging people from anything but, just the information we need to evaluate the sites."

The official selection process has been going on since March, and in one time 28 cities were in the running. Three have dropped out, but those that remain are enthusiastic about the chance at economic stability promised by the penitentiary swiftness.

"We're going to fight for it all the way," Caldwell Mayor Pete Cowles said. "We want to make sure that facility comes to town."

Mayor Merrill Rose, of St. Anthony, one of the most active communities in advertising its advantages as a penitentiary site, said if hard work were the determining factor, his southeastern Idaho town would be a shoe-in.

"We've got some awful hot opposition, but only from about 13 percent of the people," Rose said. "The rest have stood up and shouted and beat the pots and pans, saying, 'You bet, we'll take it!'"

But fears over becoming known as what Chase called "the prison capital of Idaho" apparently convinced a majority of voters in Blackfoot that the city should withdraw its application. In a May 27 advisory vote, local residents narrowly rejected the idea

Clear weather clears way for boosted 'hopper attack

By FLYNN McROBERTS
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Unexpectedly pleasant weather gave grasshopper spraying efforts a shot in the arm Friday, as two Reeder Flying Service planes covered a total of more than 3,000 acres in Cassia and Jerome counties on day after winds all but halted 'hopper-killing efforts in Idaho.

"Dick Reeder," co-owner of the Twin Falls-based service, said one of his craft sprayed about 2,400 acres in Cassia County, while the other hit 680 acres in Jerome County.

"Everything went smooth," he said. "We're all finished in Cassia. They've got another contractor there."

Reeder had been filling in with a contract to cover the area after the original Cassia County offer, the original bid, for Cassia, Plover and Minidoka counties defeated.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture's Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service awarded a new contract Thursday for those three counties to Sunset Aviation of Burley, said Bob Milam, an official with APHIS in Twin Falls.

He also said that approximately 900 acres in Lincoln County were tentatively set to be covered Monday.

Milam pointed out that there was no spraying in the Boise area Friday because the weather was a bit cooler than expected.

Lane Ranch density decided; Sun Valley delays final move

By DAVE LEWIS
Times-News correspondent

SUN VALLEY — Developers of the Lane Ranch got the density they wanted from Sun Valley, but the City Council postponed annexing the 70-acre property until its owners can review the annexation agreement.

In a reconvened meeting Friday, the council agreed to set a maximum density of 120 lots on the about 100 acres of developable land. The number is above the Planning and Zoning Commission's recommendation of 100 lots and the 110 lots CASCEA Partners had originally requested for the property.

The council will reconvene its meeting at 3:30 p.m. on June 27, possibly to annex the property if the agreement is satisfactory.

CASCEA's representatives also agreed to build a 10-foot-wide bike path to meet the specification of the Blaine County Recreation District. Those standards call for a 20-foot easement, the 10-foot paved bike path and a second unpaved path for horses and pedestrians.

On Tuesday, when the council went through long negotiating sessions with the developer's representatives, it recessed with only the density question left to negotiate.

Floyd, Councilmen Steve Luber and Joe Humphrey said the 120 lots are satisfactory for the subdivision. The developers had said the final plat probably won't have 120 lots, but they would like the flexibility the higher number gives for designing the subdivision.

Councilman Tom Praggastis, who had said the density issue was not resolved at Tuesday's meeting when Luber had suggested the 120 figure, went along with his colleagues. Councilman Sean McCoy missed Friday's meeting.

Webb named to tourism post

Six-week deliberation yields new Region 4 ITC representative

By FLYNN McHOBERTS
Times-News writer

BOISE — After more than six weeks of consideration, Gov. John Evans announced on Friday the appointment of Chuck Webb, assistant general manager of the Sun Valley Co., as Region 4 representative to the Idaho Travel Council.

David Porter, director of the state Department of Commerce, said that Evans selected Webb over Larry Anderson Sr., owner of Anderson's Camp east of Twin Falls and president of the Idaho Campowner's Association.

Porter said that the selection — to replace Helle B. Jonas of Ketchum — was difficult for Evans because both Webb and Anderson could offer representation on the council for a number of tourism interests.

Jonas, who stepped down to devote more time to her business interests, had served a full three-year term and was vice chairman of the ITC.

"This is a tremendously important council," Porter said. With the state's mining, lumber and agricultural industries suffering, local tourism is taking on added importance.

"I'm pleased to be back in the job," said Webb, who served a one-year term in 1982-83 to fill a temporary vacancy on the council.

"Tourism can become an even larger industry because I think the state has so much to offer — and I'd like to be part of it."

Calling it the state's fourth natural resource, Porter said, "This is going to be the best year ever for tourism here. We're up very close to 10 percent over last year at this time."

Those impressive figures made Evans' decision even tougher, he said.

Evans' tagging of Webb apparently came as little surprise to Anderson.

"I think Larry pretty well thought they would stay with somebody from Sun Valley," Anderson's wife, Retha, said Friday.

One factor the governor did not consider in the selection was political affiliation, Porter said. Anderson is the father of state Sen. Larry Anderson, R-Twin Falls.

Political party involvement is "just not a consideration in the travel council discussion," Porter said, whereas officials are required to screen nominees for such panels as the Economic Advisory Council.

But he said the governor did consider "the concern of people in the Magic Valley, and particularly some of the chambers of commerce, that they all be represented well in the ITC."

"From our viewpoint, he is the ideal candidate in giving us that double coverage" of both the Magic and Wood River valleys, Porter said of Webb, who grew up in the Twin Falls area.

Nonetheless, Porter also pointed out what Anderson could have offered the council — dual representation as a campground owner and a Magic Valley resident.

Porter, who made his recommendation to Evans last month, said "It's been a decision (the governor) spent an unusually long time considering."

Another major concern for the governor was maintaining representation for campground operators because they are so involved in the tourism industry, Porter said.

That the ITC's present Region 2 representative, Mike Smith, owns a small campground on the Clearwater River in northern Idaho.

But Retha Anderson disputed Porter's claims that Smith represents campground owners, saying he is merely an outfitter and a guide.

"Mike hasn't represented the campground owners in the past," she said. "We have never had representation on the ITC, and all the campground owners in Idaho feel the same way."

The council consists of representatives from six regions plus one at-large member.

She pointed out that only innkeepers and campground operators collect the state's 2-percent bed tax, not outfitters and guides.

With Jonas stepping down, the ITC will have to choose a new vice chairman at its next meeting from July 20 to Aug. 1 in Sun Valley.

"I think now that the council is more mature, there are more things to do," Webb said. "I think it's time to take a very hard look at tourism."

Utah urges state high court to reject Lafferty's appeal

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — A state attorney on Friday urged the Utah Supreme Court to reject condemned God, calling for Brenda and Erica Klier Ronald Lafferty's appeal of his Lafferty to be "removed."

Both Dan and Ronald Lafferty had been involved in a group known as the School of the Prophets, whose members believed they could receive revelations.

In the brief, Assistant Attorney General Sandra Sjogren wrote that Lafferty was able to understand the trial proceedings and assist his attorney by the trial.

Sjogren noted that Lafferty, who attempted suicide in his jail cell December 1984, refused to cooperate with psychologists, and resisted his attorney's attempt to pursue a defense based on mental incompetence.

"It would be strange doctrine to allow a person to refuse psychological testing and refrain from raising an insanity defense, all while asserting his (sanity), then on appeal to argue he was denied his constitutional rights," Ms. Sjogren wrote.

Both victims were found in their American Fork home July 24, 1984 with their throats cut. Mrs. Lafferty also had been severely beaten and strangled.

Prosecutors contended Mrs. Lafferty and her daughter were slain because the brothers believed God had commanded them to do so.

Prosecutors found in Ronald Lafferty's home a handwritten document on Friday urged the Utah Supreme Court to reject condemned God, calling for Brenda and Erica Klier Ronald Lafferty's appeal of his Lafferty to be "removed."

Mother of convict who hung himself in jail cell files lawsuit

BOISE (AP) — The mother of a man who hanged himself in the Twin Falls County Jail after being convicted of rape has filed a $500,000 lawsuit against the county, the county commission and Sheriff James Munn.

Carma Lee Jansson filed the suit Thursday in U.S. District Court in Boise, contending county officials were negligent in the June 29, 1984, death of her son, Richard Ray Bradley.

Bradley, 35, was convicted of rape and first-degree burglary on June 19. He was found in his cell the next morning, hanging by a jail-issue towel.

Mrs. Jansson said unsafe and unconstitutional conditions at the aging Twin Falls jail contributed to her son's "deteriorating state of mind" after his rape conviction.

Authorities at the jail were told by another inmate that Bradley had threatened suicide, but put him alone in a cell despite his "distraught condition" over the possibility of being sentenced to life in prison, according to the suit.

Sheriff's officials should have monitored Bradley more closely, especially as he had attempted suicide before while being held at the jail several years earlier, Mrs. Jansson's suit said.

At the time of Bradley's death, Twin Falls County Prosecutor K. Baxter said jailers had made routine checks of the facility every 45 minutes during the night, but did not enter the cells.

Twin Falls County in February reached an out-of-court settlement in a lawsuit filed by two jail inmates who argued conditions there were unconstitutional. The settlement included a cap on the jail's population and other improvements.

hosting the penitentiary.

"We felt that there would be a tremendous economic impact, all of the leadership felt it would," Mayor Dean Hill said. "There's a very definite disappointment among the mayor and council, but I don't know how you can ignore the wishes of the people."

Jim Weatherly, executive director of the Association of Idaho Cities, said most cities involved are looking past any negative impact to the promise of jobs and taxes to support local services.

Weatherly said broad-based support for the project can be attributed to the weak economy, an increased realization of the importance of active economic development efforts, or the fact that most cities are not other facilities while maintaining "just a few beds" for immediate needs.

However, if the hospital does close, the county will still have to deal with the debt, Decker said.

The second issue blocking transfer of the contract with the Walker ACT Center, which Decker said gives the center and its parent company, St. Benedict's Hospital of Ogden, Utah, first rights to negotiate for operation or ownership of the hospital if the county facility changes ownership.

"I see flexibility in the contract, and, hopefully, they will take a flexible view and work with us," Decker said. But, he said the hospital cannot be transferred to the hospital without approval from the Walker Center.

He also said if the property transfer is made, the alcohol and drug dependency treatment center will have to renegotiate its contract with the new district.

The ACT Center's $1 million facility adjoins the hospital and contracts with GCMH for some services like food service and laundry facilities.

Pugmire said the hospital board had discussed the contract before the district was formed but felt since the Gooding County taxpayers would still own the facility under the new district there would be no problem.

All other hospital contracts, licenses, by-laws and physician privilege arrangements would have to be renegotiated as well, Decker said. He told the board they will need the permission of the Idaho State Land Board to transfer the facility since it is built on state-owned land.

Third issue is a conflict in state law where one statute allows the Gooding County Commission to lease a county hospital to a hospital district for 99 years at a nominal fee, and another statute that requires a vote of the people for any change in property ownership status to be made.

Further complicating the picture is Gooding County's current lack of liability insurance which means the hospital board has no liability or errors and omissions insurance coverage, he said.

But County Commission Chairman Robert Thackeray said "it must be business as usual." He told the board the county expects to have the insurance in place by mid-July. In the meantime, the hospital issues must be dealt with, he said.

Hymn revisionists retreat

Facing harsh protest, committee expected to reverse decision

By GEORGE W. CORNELL The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Facing a wave of protests, the United Methodist Church's hymnal revision committee probably will reverse its decision to throw out "Onward, Christian Soldiers" and "The Battle Hymn of the Republic," a committee staff member said Wednesday.

Bishop Reuben P. Job of Des Moines, Iowa, head of the committee, said it had been swamped by letters, cards and telephone calls objecting to deletion of the two hymns with their marching beat and exhortation to battle for good.

"It's clear the membership of the church wants us to take another look at these hymns," the bishop said. A special meeting was called for July 2 in Nashville, Tenn., of the full, 25-member hymnbook revision committee to re-examine its decision to eliminate the two hymns because of their "unrelenting use of military images."

Bill Hickman, a committee staff member, said the meeting likely will nullify the prior action. "The committee had good intentions in deleting the hymns, but it is also trying to be very responsive to pressure," he said, adding that the majority now has mobilized.

He said he considered it "a foregone conclusion the committee members will reverse themselves." The earlier decision May 17 to delete had passed by a 10-6 vote, with six members absent, and the chairman not voting except in a tie.

The committee's next regularly scheduled meeting had been set in Feb. But the special July session was summoned because of the outcry among the 9.4-million-member denomination, which is the third-largest in America after Roman Catholics and Southern Baptists.

Hickman said members protested that "we didn't realize the songs were in reference to spiritual warfare and that we were taking them too literally. Others felt we were pacifist and that they were not pacifist." He said others simply insisted the songs were favorites and wanted them sung.

The hymnal revision office in Nashville said it received more than 4,000 letters and hundreds of phone calls about the matter. Also, 12 regional conferences of the church have taken formal action calling for keeping the hymns.

Job said the special meeting was "extremely critical... We want all voting members to have an opportunity to speak." All of the committee recommendations on content of the hymnbook remain subject to approval by the denomination's governing general conference in the spring of 1988.

The Rev. Carlton Young of Nashville, editor for the hymnal, said the "concerns of grass-roots Methodists" have been sought throughout the revision process and they generally have been supportive until the decision on the two martial-style hymns.

However, the reaction about them, Young said, has been, "How could you do this?" In voting to delete the two hymns, committee members had said they opposed imagery incompatible with the church's stand for peace and are not biblically balanced, calling for the church to be an army of zealous, stamping out undefined evil.

The Rev. Beryl Ingram-Ward of Bellevue, Wash., had said "Onward, Christian Soldiers" puts "Christ in the role of supreme field commander. I see Christ more as a peacemaker than one who is gathering an army to slay a foe."

Despite such assessments of the two hymns, Young said the committee had not adopted a wholesale policy of removing all hymns referred to soldiers, blood, war or battle. He noted that hymns retained include "Am I a Soldier of the Cross" and "Soldiers of Christ Arise."

On other matters, Young said church membership generally has supported planned revisions, even on sometimes controversial efforts to make language about God and people more racially and gender-inclusive.

On Sunday, Monson and Ballard will organize the Kitchener Ontario Stake from existing units of the Hamilton, London and Brampton Ontario stakes. Toronto also will be the site of the 300th Mormon stake organized in 1960.

Mormon Church plans to form 1,600th stake

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — The Mormon Church plans to form its 1,600th stake, or collection of congregations, during a weekend conference in Toronto attended by two of the faith's leaders.

A stake is a geographic unit comprised of six to 10 wards, each with several hundred members. A new stake is created by division of an existing stake or stakes when warranted by membership growth.

Thomas S. Monson of the governing three-member First Presidency of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints and Elder M. Russell Ballard, a member of the Quorum of the Twelve Apostles, will preside at church meetings Saturday and Sunday at the Etobicoke Olympium in Toronto, Canada.

There are some 18,000 Mormons in Ontario, 100,000 in Canada and more than 6 million worldwide. In 1964 the church organized its 400th stake. The 800th stake was formed in 1977 and the 1,200th in 1980.

Presbyterians vote to reaffirm stance on abortion choice

Assembly rejects reconsideration plan

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — The General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) voted Tuesday to reaffirm the church's pro-choice stand on abortion.

By a 281-to-266 margin, church commissioners voting at the group's annual meeting in Minneapolis rejected a measure which would have commissioned a study to reconsider opinions on the abortion issue.

"We've taken another step in the wrong direction by not taking seriously enough the diversity within our denomination on the issue," the Rev. Bart Tarman, a director of Presbyterian Pro-Life, said at a news conference after the vote.

Tarman, of Santa Barbara, Calif., said the assembly "has missed a dynamic opportunity to reconsider the church's abortion position."

The Rev. Bob Enrich of Saginaw, Mich., said the vote "absolutely reaffirmed the traditional Presbyterian position."

"One of the hallmarks of Presbyterianism is that God alone is Lord of the conscience," said Enrich. "I'm not just about abortion, because there are people who believe abortion is wrong. But they don't want to limit people's freedom of conscience."

The assembly represents the largest Presbyterian denomination in the United States, with more than 3.1 million members. Tarman said that "80 percent of the denomination favors some modification in our (abortion) position."

Enrich disagreed, saying, "I do think they, (pro-life advocates) are a minority."

L.M. Boyd What's what

You know what the groundhog is looking for when it first appears early each year? A mate.

Q. If a boomerang is such a simple device, how come I don't understand what makes it come back?

A. That's "simple"? A Dutch physicist named Felix Hess decided to do his doctoral dissertation on why boomerangs boomerang. Took him seven years to write 555 pages on the matter. It involves extremely complicated principles.

New York City Ballet spends $400,000 a year on toe shoes - 50 pairs per dancer four times a year.

BOGUS QUOTE

Q. I know Humphrey Bogart in "Casablanca" didn't really say, "Play it again, Sam," exactly. But how did that phony quotation get started?

A. Woody Allen used it in a play and film.

More people steal more cars in October than in any other month. Why October?

Q. Does February ever have five Sundays?

A. Rarely. In 1948. In 1976. Next up, 2001.

Emotional depression can give you fat feet. Such is the contention of a psychiatrist. Follow this: Depression makes you slouch when you

Shiite Moslems free 2 Frenchmen held hostage

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Shiite Moslem kidnappers released French television correspondent Philippe Rochot and cameraman Georges Hansen in west Beirut shortly before midnight Friday.

"We were left free near the hotel Beau Rivage and then walked to the hotel," Rochot told Associated Press correspondent Hala Jaber as he sat beside Hansen, 45, in the Beau Rivage hotel lobby.

Rochot, 39-year-old Middle East correspondent of the French network Antenne-2, said they were treated well during the three mon-thats they were held captive.

"We read some . . . French literature. We ate about three times a day. We got three cigarettes a day. There was a shower, we could wash. There was a shower," he said.

When told he had lost weight, he laughed and said he was happy to be free and looking forward to returning to Paris.

No French Embassy official was on hand to see the two Frenchmen as they walked into the Beau Rivage.

"Maybe you can call them, because we have telephone problems here," Rochot said.

Anonymous telephone callers told two Beirut newspapers early Friday that two members of a four-man French television crew kidnaped March 8 would be freed later in the day.

The television crewmen still missing are soundman Aurel Cornea, 54, and lighting engineer Jean-Louis Normandin, 34.

Rochot was asked about Cornea and Normandin and he said, "I don't know when they will be released. They just picked the two of us and said you are going to be freed."

He said Cornea and Normandin "are in good condition. They have been treated like us."

All of the four crew members were kept together in one room, Rochot said.

He said he and Hansen were told they would be released only three hours before they were set free in the Hamlet al-Balida residential district.

The Frenchmen did not know where they were held, Rochot said, but he added, "We were not blindfolded. We were staying on a bed in a room."

Rochot was clean shaven while Hansen had a thick beard. Both were wearing clean shirts and trousers. They were surrounded by Shiite militiamen and Syrian secret service agents as they spoke with reporters.

The release initially was set for 7 p.m. by the kidnappers and it was nearly midnight when Rochot and Hansen were freed and arrived at the hotel.

Police and witnesses had reported earlier that two hostages had been freed, but French Embassy officials denied it and the two could not be found.

Council adopts security laws

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — The President's Council used its legislative power Friday to approve tough security laws whose delay in the two non-white chambers of Parliament led the government to decree a national state of emergency.

By votes of 35-22 and 35-21, the council passed bills permitting detention without trial for 180 days rather than the 14 allowed in non-emergency conditions under current law, and giving security forces sweeping powers in any district the law and order minister declares an "unrest area."

President P.W. Botha appoints all 50 members of the council, which can adopt legislation stated in the three-chamber Parliament.

His ruling National Party has 35 seats. Six other seats are assigned to whites and 19 to Indians and people of mixed race.

Critics say the new security measures amount to a state of emergency without the name. There has been speculation that Botha will lift the emergency declared June 12 after the bills become law by his signature.

The Bureau of Information reported Friday that six more people had been killed, including a 5-year-old child who was shot accidentally by police in the black Soweto township outside Johannesburg. That brought the total of deaths during the emergency to 54.

White business leaders increased their protests to the government about detentions of black union leaders, several dozen of whom are among more than 1,000 people known to have been rounded up under the emergency. The detentions have prompted strikes, and businessmen say they cannot negotiate with leaderless union members.

Thousands of blacks have staged sporadic sit-downs in at least 50 outlets of six retail chains.

China promotes launching service at Swiss space exhibit

MONTREUX, Switzerland (AP) — Chinese delegates took part for the first time ever in an international space technology exhibition this week, promoting their satellite-launching service as a low-cost alternative to the now-halted U.S. and European programs.

Zhang Zhimin, director of marketing for the state-owned China Great Wall Industry Corp., said Friday that the Chinese booth had many visitors but that it was impossible to estimate how many deals might come from the exposure.

"There were some who just wanted a general idea of the corporation and some who came to do business," he said.

China recently signed agreements to launch satellites for a New York company, Teresat Inc., and for Sweden.

Mortar shell misfires, kills woman guerrilla

LIMA, Peru (AP) — A woman guerrilla tried to fire a mortar shell at a building where the Socialist International began its annual meeting Friday but the weapon exploded and killed her, police said.

The attempted attack came a day after police and troops retook three prisons in or near Lima, leaving at least 250 inmates dead following an uprising by guerrilla prisoners.

In another development, the prime ministers of Italy and Norway canceled their plans to attend the Socialist International congress because of security fears.

Police said the attempt to fire a shell from a homemade mortar at the convention center occurred a few minutes before President Alan Garcia arrived to open the four-day Socialist International meeting.

The woman had climbed to the roof of a 10-story building overlooking the convention center, and was killed instantly when the device exploded, sending it to pieces.

They said about 20 minutes later, three bombs exploded simultaneously in a cafe across the street from the Crillon Hotel that is on the same block as the convention center, at a restaurant five blocks away and on a street corner behind the convention center. No casualties were reported.

Security officials said two more bombs were discovered and defused behind the Crillon Hotel, which was filled with convention delegates and reporters.

Palestinians shout threats, halt trial

GENOA, Italy (AP) — Two Palestinians charged with hijacking the Achille Lauro cruise ship shouted angrily in Arabic from their courtroom in Rome, causing the prosecutor to pale and rush out.

"They have made threats," he told reporters.

Judge Lino Monteverde hastily adjourned the day's trial session of 15 men charged in the two days of terror aboard the Italian liner last October during which 383 people were held hostage and a 69-year-old invalid American was killed. Only five of the defendants are in custody.

Prosecutor Luigi Carli refused to say whether the threats were directed at the court. The Arabic-language reporter reported by the court, clearly nervous, refused requests for a translation.

Increased emphasis on security followed a report Thursday by the Italian news agency ANSA that its Beirut office received an anonymous telephone call threatening reprisals if the Achille Lauro defendants are convicted.

K.C. Royals steal Jackson from football

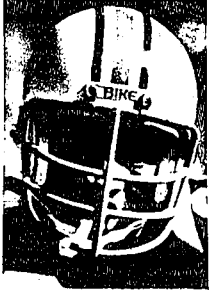

By DOUG TUCKER
The Associated Press

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Helmsman Trophy winner Bo Jackson will shun professional football and sign with baseball's Kansas City Royals, it was reported Friday night. Jackson, the No. 1 pick in the NFL draft by the Tampa Bay Buccaneers, said he would announce his decision Saturday.

A Memphis, Tenn., radio station, WLWS, said that Royals' part owner Ewing Kaufman emerged from a meeting in Memphis Friday and told a switchboard operator not to return any calls to the base because "we've signed Bo and will announce it (Saturday)."

The station said Jackson was signed Friday afternoon and champagne corks were popped in part owner Avron Fogelman's office in Memphis.

The Advertiser in Montgomery, Ala., said in its Saturday edition that Jackson plans to sign a multimillion dollar contract with the Royals, making him the first Heisman Trophy winner since 1958 to turn his back on pro football. Jackson called a news conference

Bias investigation shifts to cocaine

By DIANE DUSTON
The Associated Press

COLLEGE PARK, Md. — A criminal investigation was under way Friday into the "suspicious death" of basketball star Len Bias, as friends suggested he was enticed to use cocaine in a weak moment at an all-night celebration before he died of heart failure.

While authorities in Prince George's County in suburban Maryland were conducting their probe, William White said District of Columbia police had received a rash of calls from citizens who "allege" the 22-year-old Bias may have been seen before dawn Thursday in an area "known for street corner drug sales." Bias collapsed at the campus athletic dorm early Tuesday morning, less than two days after the NBA draft, and his coach at Maryland said authorities told him doctors found traces of cocaine in a test while trying to revive the Maryland All-American.

Boston Celtics President Red Auerbach, who selected Bias as the second player chosen in this week's NBA draft, speculated in an interview with WDMV-TV that following the post-draft reception in Boston, "he came back (to Maryland) and he was so high that he had to celebrate... He didn't know what to do to celebrate. Somebody might have caught him on a weak moment." "This is all supposition," Auerbach added, and there was little else to go on as former teammates and friends fought to grapple with the reality of the popular athlete's death.

"The death of Len Bias is being treated as a suspicious death, and a homicide investigation is under way," said Ernest Rless, spokesman for the Prince George's County Police. No further comments will be made until an autopsy report is complete, "expected no sooner than a week to 10 days." "We examined him, two other NBA teams examined him. He was 100 percent OK," Auerbach said after flying in from Boston to give Bias' parents the No. 30 jersey he was to have worn with the team. Prince George's police impounded Bias' car, and there were reports that officers inspecting the vehicle "discovered... a white, powdery substance."

Interviewed on the ABC-TV show Good Morning America, Maryland basketball coach Lefty Driesell said, "From what I'd understood from the police, that there was a trace of cocaine in his urine... if that's the case, it's completely out of character for Leonard Bias. I would be completely shocked." WBAL radio in Baltimore quoted Dr. Brian Brown of the University of Maryland as saying the drug Lidocaine, which is often given to heart attack victims, could have been confused with cocaine during tests.

Washington television stations WDMV and WRC said police found a quantity of a white, powdery substance in a car that Bias had been driving Wednesday night. WRC-TV also said unidentified police sources had indicated a "new friend" was with Bias in his dorm room before he died. A medical expert, however, said cocaine alone would not have produced the heart muscle damage doctors discovered. Bias' friend Madelyn Woods told WDMV-TV in Washington that peer pressure could have been a factor if drugs were involved.

Experts link fatal heart attacks with casual use of cocaine

BOSTON — Cocaine, even a relatively small dose, has sometimes caused fatal heart disorders, a cardiologist said Friday as he and other medical authorities speculated on why basketball star Len Bias had died.

"We documented seven patients who had life-threatening complications from cocaine use," said Dr. Mark Estes of the New England Medical Center. "Four of the patients had heart attacks," and two died.

The possible role that cocaine could play in cardiac arrest became an issue in the mystery surrounding Bias' death, apparently of a heart attack, following reports that traces of a drug may have been in his system when he died Thursday. Maryland authorities were quoted by the Baltimore Sun as saying that a drug, possibly cocaine, may have been found Bias' system as doctors fought to save his life. Lefty Driesell, who coached Bias at the University of Maryland, said he understood from police that "there was a trace of cocaine," in the player's urine.

Several friends said Bias was not known as a drug user. Estes said that six of the seven patients he cited had snorted the cocaine, while the seventh ingested a purer form of the drug obtained by free-basing, or burning the white powder to drive off impurities. The doses taken by the seven prior to suffering the complications ranged from one-half to one gram, a relatively small amount, Estes said. Five of the seven were recreational drug users, while the other two had chronic drug problems.

"The important thing is that these people didn't have any evidence of heart disease prior to the use of cocaine," he said. Twenty-five other cases of cocaine-related heart problems have been reported in medical literature, Estes said. "Experts don't know how why cocaine might cause heart problems, but they have several theories. Cocaine causes the body to produce adrenaline, which in turn causes a short spurt in blood pressure and makes the heart work harder. The rise in blood pressure could cause a weak blood vessel to burst, said Dr. Louis Creger, assistant chief of medicine at Bronx Veterans Administration Medical Center in New York. Creger, who has studied the effects on cocaine on the heart, said cocaine also can constrict blood vessels or cause them to go into spasms. Estes said cocaine also causes the heart to speed up, and this increased heart action could strip the ability of the arteries to supply oxygen to the heart muscle. Dr. Heed E. Peyerit of Johns Hopkins University Hospital in Baltimore suggested another possibility. He said the apparently

CSI's Norcutt gets slim lead in bronc riding after 2nd go

By The Times-News

BOZEMAN, Mont. — College of Southern Idaho freshman Frank Norcutt maintained his lead in the saddle bronc riding event here Friday night at the College National Finals Rodeo. With a ride of 78 on the final night of the second go-round, Norcutt picked up 120 points. That gives him a three-point lead in average over "Paul Latham of Panhandle, Texas, State College going into tonight's final performance." Former CSI rider Glyn Montero, now a sophomore at Eastern Oregon State College, had a ride of 72 on Friday which moved him up to fourth place in the saddle bronc standings.

Norcutt's elder brother Wayne, a CSI-sophomore, finished fourth in the second go with a ride of 71 Friday. Former CSI bareback riding Gary Brogan, who now competes for Boise State, is only two points behind Chris Guay of Tarenton, Texas.

NL: Blue handcuffs Astros, Giants close to 1 1/2 games in West

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Vida Blue pitched two-hit ball for seven innings and Candy Maldonado led his 11th RBI of the season as a pinch hitter with a seventh-inning grounder Friday night as the San Francisco Giants defeated the Houston Astros 3-1.

The victory moved the Giants, second to Houston in the National League West, within 1 1/2 games of the Astros. Blue, 5-3 after posting his fourth straight victory, bested Bob Knepper, 10-5, for the second time in six days. Juan Berenguer pitched two hitless innings of relief for his second save.

Blue also drove in the game's first run with a sacrifice bunt in the fifth and two sacrifice bunts preceded Maldonado's game-winning RBI in the seventh.

Chris Brown opened the Giants' seventh with a single and was sacrificed to second by Bob Brenly. Knepper made a throwing error to first after fielding Brenly's bunt as Brown reached third.

Brown held at third on a bunt by Bob Melvin but Brenly went to second and Jose Uribe was walked intentionally to lead the bases. Maldonado batted for Blue and Brown scored when he forced Uribe at second.

Cincinnati 8 Atlanta 5

CINCINNATI (AP) — Dave Concepcion's bases-loaded double ignited a four-run first inning that started the Cincinnati Reds to an 8-5 victory over the Atlanta Braves Friday night and their first double-header sweep in more than two years.

The sweep was the Reds' first sweep since April 29, 1984, against

San Francisco. Cincinnati has won six of its last eight games while Atlanta has dropped four in a row.

Bill Gullickson, 5-6, earned his first victory since May 21 by stopping the Braves on seven hits over eight innings in the second game, including home runs by Andres Thomas and Dale Murphy. Thomas also homered in the ninth off John Franco.

Cincinnati 6 Atlanta 4

CINCINNATI (AP) — Buddy Bell drove in three runs to help Tom Browning survive a pair of Atlanta home runs and lead the Cincinnati Reds to a 6-4 victory over the Braves in the first game of Friday's two-night double-header.

Browning, 5-6, went six innings for the victory despite failing to hold a pair of early leads. He scattered seven hits and three walks before yielding to Ron Robinson, who pitched two scoreless innings. John Franco worked the ninth for his 12th save.

Bell drove in two runs with a first-inning double — the first of his three hits — and scored on Bo Díaz's single off David Palmer.

New York 10 Chicago 3

NEW YORK (AP) — Keith Hernandez hit a tie-breaking home run in the sixth inning and Gary Carter's three-run homer capped a six-run seventh as the New York Mets defeated the Chicago Cubs 10-3 Friday night.

Hernandez, who entered the game hitless in 14 at-bats, also had a run-scoring single in the fourth inning when the Mets craved a 2-0 Chicago lead. Carter drove in the tying run with a sacrifice fly.

Winning pitcher Sid Fernandez,

6-2, went seven innings and allowed three hits — all in the fourth when the Cubs scored their runs.

Montreal 7 Pittsburgh 2

MONTREAL (AP) — Hubie Brooks, who began the evening as the Montreal Expos' second leading hitter, went 4-for-4 and drove in two runs Friday night, leading the Montreal Expos to a 7-2 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates.

St. Louis 9 Philadelphia 2

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Bob Forsch moved into fifth place on the all-time St. Louis victory ahead of the late Dizzy Dean with his 135th career victory Friday night, scattering eight hits as the Cardinals beat the Philadelphia Phillies 9-2.

Near-records for Carl Lewis at USA finals

EUGENE, Ore. (AP) — Carl Lewis, the quadruple 1984 Olympic gold medalist, Friday night won the 100-meter dash and the long jump in the USA Meet Outdoor Track and Field Championships with sensational performances, but both efforts were marred by wind.

Track

The 24-year-old Lewis, who has said, "The Lord gave me talent that is unbelievable," proved it by winning the long jump at 29 feet, 5 1/2 inches and the 100 in 9.91 seconds.

The long jump victory extended Lewis' winning streak to a record 48. He has not been beaten in the event since the 1981 USA Indoor Championships, when he lost to Larry Myricks.

Myricks was in the field Friday night, but finished third with a wind-aided 27-9 1/2, behind Michael Conley, the runner-up at 28-3 1/2, also wind-aided.

It was the first time Conley had surpassed the 20-foot mark and made him only the fifth jumper to clear that barrier, joining world record holder Bob Beamon (29-2 1/2), Lewis, Myricks and 1980 Olympic champion Lutz Dombrowski.

He also had the distinction of being the runner-up with the longest losing jump in history.

Friday's two victories gave Lewis a total of nine outdoor national titles, including four each in the 100 and long jump, and one in the 200.

In the long jump, which began shortly after the start of the 100 final, Lewis fouled on his first attempt, then had legal jumps of 26-4 1/2 and 27-4 1/2, his wind-aided winning effort, and a wind-aided 27-4 1/2, before passing on his final attempt.

The wind on the 28-5 1/2 jump was 3.25 meters per second, over the allowable 2.0 for record consideration. On Conley's big jump, the wind was 3.87 and on Myricks' leap, the wind was 3.37.

When it was announced that Lewis was skipping his final attempt, since he had clinched the victory and wanted to conserve himself for Saturday's 200 semifinals and final, the University of Oregon's Hayward Field crowd of 6,000 applauded.

The fans' reaction was in sharp contrast to the crowd at the 1984 Olympics, which booed him unmercifully when he passed his final four attempts.

In the 100, Lewis' clocking matched the fourth-fastest in history under any conditions. The runners were aided by a wind of 4.48 meters per second.

So Lewis will have to settle for a tie for fourth place on the all-time list, in 100-meter races under any conditions.

How, he did set a record for most victories, four, in the 100-meter dash in the national championships. Since the meet was inaugurated in 1976, several sprinters had won three national titles.

AL: Nine-run inning keeps Rangers tall in the saddle in West

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — Texas left fielder Gary Ward had his best Thursday night's game with the Oakland A's because he "lost a game of rock, fist and scissor" against teammate Pete Incaviglia.

The night's rest proved beneficial for Ward on Friday night when he hit a double and an inside-the-park home run in the second inning as the Rangers scored nine runs en route to a 10-7 victory over the A's that kept Texas' one-game lead over California in the American League West.

"Bobby (Rangers Manager Bob Valentine) likes to give players a rest every now and then," Ward explained, "so last night it was between me and Incaviglia."

"We played a game of rock, fist and scissor and I lost, so I had to take the night off. I was ready to play tonight, though."

The nine-run inning also featured a home run by Larry Parrish and what Valentine called the "biggest McGuff play of the season."

The play in question produced a double error by Oakland starter and loser Chris Codrill, 5-8, that opened the door for five unearned runs and made it possible for Ranger rookie right-hander Bobby Witt to coast to his fourth victory in nine decisions.

The Rangers lashed eight hits in the big inning, which Ward launched with his double, a fly ball that was badly misjudged by left fielder Dusty Baker.

California 6 Kansas City 2

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Ruppert Jones homered leading off the game and hit a two-run triple in the second inning Friday night, boosting the California Angels past Kansas City 6-2 for their fourth straight victory.

Ron Romanick, 4-5, gave up eight hits before leaving after George Brett stacked the Royals' eighth with a single. reliever Doug Corbett finished up, allowing a sac-fly free to Steve Balboni that scored Brett.

Baltimore 14 Boston 3

BOSTON (AP) — Tom O'Malley drove in five runs with two doubles and a single, keying a season-high 20-hit attack that carried Mike Boddicker and the Baltimore Orioles past the Boston Red Sox 14-3.

The Orioles, who had lost four consecutive games and seven of their last eight, got three hits apiece from O'Malley, Rick Dempsey, Juan Bonilla and Mike Young. The Red Sox had won three straight.

Milwaukee 1 Detroit 0

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Tim Lary pitched a four-hitter Friday night, leading the Milwaukee Brewers over Detroit 1-0 and snapping the Tigers' four-game winning streak.

The Brewers, held hitless for three innings by Wall Terrell, 6-5, scored in the fourth inning on consecutive singles by Ernest Riles, Cecil Cooper and Ben Oglivie.

New York 10 Toronto 8

TORONTO (AP) — Rickey Henderson's two-out double scored

Mike Pagliarulo from second base and broke a 10th-inning tie Friday night as the New York Yankees broke a five-game losing streak by beating the Toronto Blue Jays 10-8.

Minnesota 9 Cleveland 8

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Pinch-hitter Randy Bush's tie-breaking, two-run home run keyed a six-run sixth inning, as the Minnesota Twins used a five-homer barrage Friday night to defeat the Cleveland Indians, 9-8.

Seattle 5 Chicago 3

CHICAGO (AP) — Jim Preseley doubled to start a four-run second inning and homered in the third Friday night, leading the Seattle Mariners to a 5-3 victory and spoiling Doug Rader's debut as interim manager of the Chicago White Sox.

Rader had been named to replace Tom Lawless, who was fired earlier in the day.

Consumer prices rise in May on gas costs

By TOM RAUM The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Consumer prices, after registering the steepest nosedive in nearly four decades, reversed course and rose 0.2 percent in May as gasoline costs rebounded, the government reported Friday.

It was the first increase in the Labor Department's Consumer Price Index in four months, following drops of 0.4 percent in February and March and a 0.3 percent decline in April.

Analysts said the report indicates that the plunge of world oil prices that has dominated price statistics this year has run its course.

Still, most economists expect consumer price increases for 1986 to average about 2 percent, down from a 3.8 percent rise in the index last year. The May gain was equivalent to a 2.2 percent annual increase.

"With the economy continuing very soft and little evidence of expansion, the general price level is apt to remain subdued," said economist Alan Greenspan. "The only significant pressure on domestic prices is likely to come from a further erosion of the dollar's exchange value."

Largely responsible for May's rise was a 2.5 percent surge in gasoline prices. Even with the increase, prices at the pump remained at their mid-1970s levels. Labor Department analysts said. Gasoline prices had fallen 5.9 percent in February, 12 percent in March and 11.3

percent in April. At the White House, spokesman Larry Speakes said, "With inflation spending up, we expect continued brisk activity in the consumer sector."

Food prices also rose in May, but only 0.4 percent, after gains of 0.1 percent in March and 0.3 percent in April. The largest increase was for fresh fruits and vegetables, up 1.9 percent. Meat, fish and egg prices were up 0.4 percent.

New-car prices rose 0.6 percent in May, a reflecting price hikes in both domestic and imported models. But used-car prices declined 1.9 percent and automobile finance charges dropped 2.6 percent.

Energy prices other than gasoline showed continued declines, with heating oil and coal costs falling 4.4 percent. Natural gas and electricity prices fell 0.5 percent.

The previous three-month consecutive drop in consumer prices was the steepest and longest price fall since 1949, when surplus crops depressed food prices.

"The declines we had are essentially over. We're seeing increases in services and we're beginning to see price increases in imported goods. There will be an upward movement in food prices over the next few months," said Lawrence Chiminer, president of Chase Econometrics.

"The index is going to move back into the range of an annual rate of 3 percent or 4 percent, which is still the underlying inflation rate," he added.

The May gain left the Consumer Price Index at 326.3, meaning that a market basket of goods that cost $100 in the base year of 1967 cost $326.3 last month — 50 cents above what the same basket would have cost in 1967.

The index itself is not adjusted by the government to remove the effects of seasonal factors. Other key figures in the report — including the monthly percentage change in all categories — do reflect such adjustments.

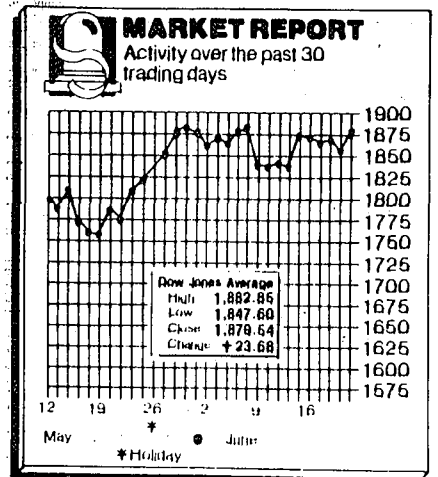

In other details on May price activity, the Labor Department said: • Medical care costs were up 0.6 percent, matching the April gain. • Clothing costs fell 0.2 percent after a 0.3 percent rise in April.

• Overall housing costs dipped 0.1 percent after rising 0.3 percent in April.

Under existing law, Social Security cost-of-living increases are suspended if the CPI drops below 3 percent — as measured by the change from September of one year to September of the next.

If this happens, Congress seems likely to vote to waive the 3 percent threshold. And President Reagan's budget director, James C. Miller III, said recently the administration won't fight such an effort.

The rebound in prices had already shown up at the wholesale level. The Labor Department reported last week that its Producer Price Index climbed 0.6 percent in May, the first increase in that index this year.

Blue-chips score sharp, late gains

NEW YORK (AP) — Blue-chip stocks rose sharply just before the close of a jumpy session Friday as another "triple witching hour" of expiring options and futures went into the books on Wall Street.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials jumped 23.68 to 1,879.64, its highest close since it stood at a record 1,885.90 two weeks before. For the week, the Dow posted a 5.35-point gain.

But declining issues outnumbered advances by about 8 to 7 in the daily tally with the New York Stock Exchange.

U.S. Tobacco jumped 4 1/2 to 40 1/2. A jury ruled in favor of the company in a product liability suit concerning smokes tobacco.

Other tobacco stocks also rose on the verdict, which was the latest of a series of decisions in favor of the industry in liability cases. RJR Nabisco gained 2 1/2 to 51 1/2, and Philip Morris was up 2 1/2 to 69 1/2. Volume on the Big Board came to 149.14 million shares, up from 128.98 million Thursday. The NYSE's composite index added 1.45 to 141.65.

Nationwide turnover in NYSE-listed issues, including trades in those stocks on regional exchanges and in the over-the-counter market, totaled 170.55 million shares.

The NASDAQ composite index for the over-the-counter market edged up .48 to 396.80. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index closed at 281.65, up .46.

Standard & Poor's index of 400 industrials rose 3.84 to 276.78, and S&P's 500-stock composite index was up 3.52 to 247.58.

Company to split

CHICAGO (AP) — Dart & Kraft Inc., which became one of the world's largest diversified food companies through a 1980 merger, says it will split back into two companies. The company's directors said Thursday that they have authorized the breakup through a stock distribution plan, but details have not been arranged.

Critics attack costs Inspectors abandon grain grading policy

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Grain Inspection Service has announced it will drop a new wheat grading policy that critics charged was costing farmers as much as 25 cents a bushel on part of their 1986 crop.

"This is an interim program that hopefully will solve the problem of farmers bringing in their grain and having it classified as mixed," said Alan Atwood, a spokesman for FGIS.

The agency, in a directive taking effect immediately, said inspectors must classify "non-traditional" hard red winter wheats based on their marketing area and not on their visual characteristics.

That means hard wheat in a winter wheat-growing area would receive a winter wheat classification even if it resembles a hard red spring wheat.

However, the FGIS action does not address a long-simmering dispute over the grading of hard wheats that resemble soft wheat.

The agency said it would conduct public hearings this summer to consider a general revision of the grain grading system for the 1987 crop.

The action by the FGIS came after agency officials met with representatives from commodity and grain trading groups and Wheat Belt members of Congress, who complained that a government inspection policy issued earlier this month was penalizing farmers when crop prices are hovering at all-time lows.

FTC to fight PepsiCo-Seven-Up, Coke-Dr. Pepper mergers

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Trade Commission decided Friday to go to court to prevent PepsiCo from buying the Seven-Up Co. and to block Coca-Cola's proposed takeover of Dr. Pepper Co.

The commission said it feared the takeovers would reduce competition in the distribution and sale of soft drinks in the United States.

In a brief statement following a closed meeting on the matter, the commission announced it had directed its staff to ask a federal district court next week for an injunction against both mergers. The commission vote was 4-0, with Commissioner Mary Azucena abstain.

The two acquisitions would cost a total of $550 million and if completed would give Coke and Pepsi control of 80 percent of the nation's soft drink market.

The commission's action comes two days after a lawsuit was filed by Royal Crown Cola, a smaller competitor of the soft drink giants which also contended that the proposed mergers would violate antitrust laws.

PepsiCo launched this latest round of the multi-million dollar cola wars on Jan. 24, with the announcement it planned to purchase Seven-Up from Philip Morris Co., for $300 million.

That would combine the nation's second and third largest soft-drink makers, giving them 35 percent of the market across the country — still not as much as top-ranking Coca-Cola, but close.

Coca-Cola responded on Feb. 20, announce-ing that it would spend $170 million to buy Dr. Pepper, the No. 4 maker in size.

The combination of Coca-Cola, with brands that account for about 39 percent of the market, and Dr. Pepper with 7 percent — primarily in the South — would help Coke retain its firm grip on the top spot in soft drinks.

The proposed mergers have drawn criticism in Congress as well as among the smaller firms in the soft-drink industry. Opponents contend the combination of the biggest firms into two would lead to less competition and higher consumer prices.

The major firms would be able to exert increasing control on supermarket shelf space and restaurant and soda fountain outlets, squeezing out smaller local brands, opponents charge.

On the other hand, Coke and Pepsi have contended that the mergers will help assure continued competition by improving the economic health of Seven-Up and Dr. Pepper.

Philip Morris has reportedly been interested in selling Seven-Up for some time. The company purchased 100-percent stake in the $500 million firm, but has been testing money in that business, according to industry analysts.

Coca-Cola's plan to buy Dr. Pepper comes as the company's sales are rebounding, with sales said to have grown 9 percent last year. Dr. Pepper was purchased by a group of investors for $650 million in 1984, but the buyers then sold off the company's Canada Div division, nine bottling plants and some other assets.

Coke has been struggling for years to retain its top ranking against the aggressive Pepsi challenge. And indeed, for 1985, industry analysts say Pepsi finally managed to capture first place with its name brand, Pepsi Cola.

Pepsi Cola captured 18.6 percent of soft drink sales last year, according to Beverage Digest. Even though that particular drink moved into the top spot, its market share was off a bit, from 18.8 percent a year earlier.

However, at the same time, the competition split its market with Coca-Cola first in introducing new Coke, and then bringing back Coca-Cola Classic.

Thus, new Coke finished the year as the second-ranked brand, followed by Diet Coke and Coca-Cola Classic.

THE ACES BOBBY WOLFF

Dear Mr. Wolff: I doubled one club for takeout and partner jumped to two spades after passing as dealer. I held a fine hand (17 HCP) and three spades headed by the ace. Was I justified in jumping to four spades?

ANSWER: I would be very careful about jumping to four spades with only three trumps and would choose another descriptive bid if possible. Since partner's jump does not guarantee a five-card or longer suit, it's quite possible that a different game would prove better.

Dear Mr. Wolff: After this bidding, should I insist on playing in my six-card heart suit (A-K-Q-9-8-7) or should I take a preference to partner's diamonds, holding J-X in diamonds and a singleton club?

ANSWER: Partner's bidding screams of a minor suit freak - I wouldn't be surprised if he holds two six-card suits. I would definitely make a preference bid in diamonds with J-X.

Dear Mr. Wolff: If an opponent answers my question affirmatively after I have asked if...
